Red push panics Viet refugees

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces captured another province today and seized a provincial capital 15 miles south of Da Nang where there was such panic that a mercy airlift of refugees was suspended temporarily. The situation eased later and a massive evacuation by air and sea began.

U.S. Embassy sources said the American Consulate General building in Da Nang had been closed but that Consul General Albert Francis and "four or five" staffers remained behind to assist in the evacuation of some of the million refugees jamming the city.

The embassy said Francis and his few remaining staff members were safe and in radio contact with the U.S. Embassy in Saigon.

The two latest Communist victories were the capture of Hoi An, the capital of the province that includes Da Nang 15 miles to the north, and the provincial capital of Bao Loc, 96 miles northeast of Saigon. Fall of Bao Loc, capital of Lam Dong Province, gave the Communists control of more than half of South Vietnam and 12 of its 44 provinces.

U.S. military officers described the situation in South Vietnam as critical but said the government here was not in imminent danger of falling. The assessment came at a briefing for American businessmen by officers attached to the Defense Attaches Office. The office warned that some rockets might hit Saigon.

Military sources said nearly 100,000 refugees mobbed the airport at the port city of Da Nang today and 6,000 of them stormed the runway to try to get aboard evacuation flights, but pilots refused to land because of the chaos. Officials said Da Nang — only large northern city in government hands — was a scene of confusion, disorder and looting.

A second American airlift — the flights into Phnom Penh — also was suspended today because of heavy shelling of the airport there.

The American freighter, Pioneer Contender, sailed out of Da Nang tonight carrying 10,000 refugees south toward safety. The Navy ship USS Miller, crewed by civilians, was being loaded with 8,000 more evacuees.

Crawford found guilty

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After 9 1/2 hours of deliberation, a jury of eight women and four men Thursday found Robert Crawford guilty of two counts of second degree murder and one count of robbery.

The jury rejected the prosecutor's plea for a first degree murder conviction, which carries a mandatory penalty of death by hanging.

The court clerk read the verdict to a courtroom packed with court employees, interested persons, police officers and attorneys, late in the afternoon.

Originally charged with first degree murder, Crawford, 28, Eden, faces a sentence of 10 years to life in prison on each count of second degree murder and on life in robbery.

The charges were made in connection with the double shotgun slaying of Paul Peterson, 21, and Terry Solosabak, 22, last Nov. 7 in Burley.

Greg Billingsley, 29, and his wife, Gave, 28 were also charged in connection with the same incident. They pleaded guilty to reduced charges of being accessories after the fact and robbery, partly this month. The accessory charge carries a maximum penalty of two years.

Presiding Fifth District Judge Sherman J. Bellwood ordered a presentence investigation for Crawford and set his sentencing date for April 28 at the Cassia County Courthouse.

The Billingsleys have not been sentenced yet.

Delivery of the verdict by jury foreman Eugene Mendini ended the nearly three-week long trial. Jury selection began March 10 and testimony started March 15.

The state, represented by special prosecutor Gordon S. Nielson, Boise, also had charged Crawford under the "persistent violator" statute, which provides a sentence of five years to life in the custody of the State Board of Corrections on a third felony conviction.

Crawford was convicted of a first degree burglary in 1964 and of perjury in 1970, according to Nielson. Thursday's verdict would mean a third felony conviction.

Butz sees deficit hitting $100 billion

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz told a Twin Falls audience Thursday that the United States may be heading for a $100 billion deficit next year.

The estimated deficit is the highest known to be offered by a high Ford administration official.

"We're heading for a $100 billion deficit, some people would say, but I don't see a worse case than 60 Republicans at a fund raising affair held at the College of Southern Idaho."

"There is no way we can absorb that except in inflation on the order of 100 percent," Butz said.

"We're accepting short term potatives that make the cure worse than the disease."

Butz made the estimate during the speech in which he abandoned his prepared text. The prepared text had used a lower deficit figure. It said "It is completely possible now that the budget does it will exceed $50 to $90 billion."

Butz attacked Congress for its "big spending" which will push the federal deficit above the $52 billion estimated after President Ford's proposed budget.

Broadcasting suit halted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice William O. Douglas today ordered a halt to civil anti-trust proceedings in Los Angeles against the three major broadcasting networks pending a Supreme Court decision on whether the cases can go ahead at all.

U.S. District Judge Robert J. Kelleher dismissed virtually identical suits last November and the broadcasters contended the actions were brought by the Nixon administration in 1972 merely as harassment.

Reasoning that if the Ford administration decided to re-file the lawsuit, the same argument could not be made, Kelleher dismissed the original suits against the American Broadcasting Co., National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System "without prejudice to re-filing."

The networks have appealed Kelleher's order to the Supreme Court on the ground that he should not have permitted any further proceedings.

The government is charging the networks with monopolizing prime time entertainment programming.

15 arrested

KETCHUM — A roundup of 15 individuals, most of them juveniles, in connection with possession of drugs and marijuana was made today by Ketchum police.

The 15 were brought to the Ketchum police station about 10:30 a.m. for looking for later arraignment.

Officers identified four of the adults involved, as Christopher Hendell, 24, and Kristine Gilbertson, 19, both of Ketchum; Jerry Peterson, 22, Sciole, and Charles Jenkins, 22, Boise.

Officers said they confiscated both peyote and marijuana in the investigation.

Valley residents feel strong quake

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — 2 1/2 very strong earthquakes centered in the desert country of the Utah-Idaho border was felt by Magic Valley residents Thursday night.

The quake was the strongest to hit the continental United States since 1971.

Damage was light because the quake's epicenter was in relatively unpopulated country. The tremor, which measured 6.3 on the Richter scale, was felt throughout much of northern Utah, southwestern Wyoming and southeastern Idaho.

The Times-News received a large number of calls Thursday night and this morning.

Three Hagerman, Boise, and Jerome residents said they saw tables and cups rattling and chairs moving.

"I was sitting in a chair," Mrs. Laura McAnulty, Hagerman, said, "when suddenly the chair started wiggling, and the cups in the china closet rattled."

Charlotte Bell, Jerome, said she and Mrs. Nancy Duke, Boise, were in the Wood Cafe in Jerome when the chair Mrs. Duke was sitting in "started to move." Mrs. Bell said she was "absolutely sure" of the shaking and that she and other guests commented on movement at their tables.

Effects of the tremor were felt as far as Bliss, where Mrs. Norma Slandor reported she and her daughter and little boy were all sitting at their table when it "began to jiggle."

"It felt as though each of us was being tumbled," she said, "but then we noticed the telephone cord was swaying and the chandelier in the dining room was moving."

State highway engineers said today they planned to inspect the Perrine Memorial Bridge for possible earthquake damage. The inspection had not been made by this morning.

According to Dale Harding, assistant district engineer for the highway department, highway crews don't anticipate any damage to the Perrine or other bridges in the Magic Valley area.

"We're checking structures now down toward the Utah-Idaho border," he said.

He said a slight crack had been found in a highway maintenance building in Sublett in Cassia County, he said.

Wesley Peterson, geophysicist with the National Earthquake Information Center, U.S. Geological Survey, Golden, Colo., said his damage was heaviest in Malad where telephone lines were put out of order but restored by this morning.

"If this had occurred in downtown Salt Lake City," Peterson said, "you can imagine the damage would have been much more serious."

Asked if the center, which was moved to Golden from Boulder last summer, had any warning of the quake, he said two lighter quakes were recorded.

The most recent was at 10:38 p.m. Wednesday when a magnitude of 4.3 was recorded. The earlier tremor, which occurred last Dec. 28, registered 3.5 on the Richter scale.

The Wednesday night quake, which also was centered between Malad and the Cache Valley of northern Utah, was felt in Albion, where Keith Amende reported both he and his wife felt movement in their home in Albion.

Person said the U.S. Geological Survey officials in Golden will probably send scientists to Malad to inspect "to see if we sustained any injury, a teenage girl in Malad who was bruised and cut when an acoustic wall panel fell on her head while she was watching a practice for the "Miss Malad" pageant at the high school there.

Damage was reported to homes and businesses in Malad and Snowville, Utah, in clanging plate glass windows breaking, plaster falling from ceiling and bricks tumbling from chimneys and building exteriors.

There were also reports of dishes plunging to the floor.

Irma Sorenson, 62, waitress at a Snowville restaurant "I scared us real bad. It just trembled for what seemed like hours."

She said plaster fell off the ceiling on the west end of the cafe and the lights were knocked down along the other side.

"All the stuff in the place was lying on the floor. Groceries and canned goods were knocked over — shelves were just closed-up and went home," she said.

Lewisport aids Portland

PORTLAND Ore. (UPI) Port facilities at Lewiston, Idaho, will enhance Portland's position as a port but a proposed federal waterway users tax could cost the Portland area economy $20 million a year, says a barge company executive.

George H. Shaver, president of Shaver Transportation Co., said development of port facilities at Lewiston on the Snake and Clear water Rivers "will establish permanent trading links with Montana and other sections of Idaho."

But a waterway users tax proposed by the administration to recover maintenance and operation costs of waterways would greatly diminish Portland's importance as a port, Shaver said. He estimated the tax would mean a loss of $4 million to the Portland area economy. Shaver said 40 years ago the average barge had a capacity of 400 tons. Now, he said, inland water barges range from 1,000 to 3,000 tons capacity and "a multiplex we can carry up to 30,000 tons on a single barge."

Where Vietnamese Reds extend control

Viet Red gains panic DaNang refugee horde

(Continued from p. 1) Another American-chartered freighter was scheduled to arrive in Da Nang Saturday to take off another 10,000 refugees.

An Air Vietnam DC4 and a chartered World Airways Boeing 747 freighter were scheduled to leave most of their women and children, into Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport at nightfall, and airline officials said they hoped to keep the planes moving in and out of Da Nang around the clock.

"Several Air Vietnam DC4s and an American chartered World Airways Boeing 747 managed to land at Da Nang today and bring out loads of refugees, mainly women and children, to Saigon. With the military situation continuing to deteriorate the Viet Cong, in a broadcast over Hanoi Radio, called on government officials and South Vietnamese soldiers and police to desert if promised to support all opponents of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Military sources said the provincial capital of Hue An 15 miles to the south fell today to an artillery and infantry attack leaving Da Nang's southern flank wide open.

Hue An, which once had a 50,000 population, is the capital of Quang Nam Province.

The South Vietnamese command in Saigon announced the loss of Hue Lee, 96 miles northeast of Saigon, in a two-hour battle that began with heavy artillery fire this morning. A spokesman said the defenders of the capital of Lam Dong Province fled to Di Linh, 20 miles to the east at the southern edge of the central highlands.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces now have captured 13 provinces and 120 provinces, all but one since March 10. As the military situation deteriorated, the U.S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Fredrick W. Andrus, arrived in Saigon to begin a four-day fact-finding mission for President Ford.

Wayland, who was the last commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, met with President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials.

The North Vietnamese government's soldiers who fled to the city when the government ordered them out of areas surrendered to the Communists fought hand-to-hand with police in the downtown area Thursday night.

The United States has evacuated most of its personnel from the city, 70 miles north of Saigon on the coast of the South China Sea.

U.S. officials said Cals General Al Abrams and about four or five others remained behind to try to get the refugee evacuation program moving.

Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, South Vietnamese top officer in the northern sector, ordered Marines into the Da Nang airport in a desperate attempt to restore order and try to get the refugee airlift underway.

Military sources said ships at the Da Nang docks got so overcrowded Thursday night they could not get up enough steam to pull away from shore.

A single U.S. charter ship, the Pioneer Commander, was being loaded with 20,000 refugees and other American vessels were en route to Da Nang, officials said.

Officials said the city's 500,000 population must have fled Da Nang before the city fell today. There are more than 1 million refugees in the Da Nang area, more than double the normal population of 500,000.

The government perimeter around Da Nang, now is 15 miles to the north and south and less than 25 miles to the west. The sea and the air are the only escape route.

Nationalist China today closed its consulate in Da Nang. The Taiwanese government offered 20 landing ships, each capable of carrying 3,000 persons, to the refugee evacuation program.

Red-fire halts supply airlift

PHNOM PENH (UPI) - A steady barrage of rebel rocket and artillery fire halted the lifeline U.S. airlift today and insurgent troops made new gains on the east bank of the Mekong river, directly across from the capital.

Takenish Satevira, ambassador to the U.S. Embassy in Phnom Penh, flew into Tokyo today and told the Kyodo news agency that President Lon Nol, Premier Long Boret and other government officials were preparing to flee Phnom Penh and let their successors surrender the capital unconditionally.

"There is no prospect whatever that the Phnom Penh government itself can cope with the military situation, which is following a worsening course," he said. They are steeling themselves for an unconditional surrender to the liberation forces."

At least 51 105mm artillery shells and 100mm rockets landed on Pochentong airport, killing 100 persons and wounding 10 others, military sources said.

Three U.S. Air Force C130 transport planes were able to land at the airport with fuel and ammunition shortly after dawn, but a heavy rocket and artillery barrage from 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. forced suspension of the airlift.

On the east bank of the Mekong, government troops gave up two more positions, field reports said.

The rebels have advanced to within 2 1/2 miles of the capital, and one field report indicated that eight regiments of insurgents, or nearly 50,000 men, were moving toward the capital region from rebel-held territory northwest of Phnom Penh.

In scenes reminiscent of the spring of 1973, when U.S. Phantom fighters-bombers laid down air strikes in full view of the city, Cambodian Air Force prop-driven T28 bombers dropped load after load of bombs on rebel positions.

Like 1973, capital residents watched the aerial bombing display from the west bank of the Mekong.

The bombing was backed up by government artillery. According to field reports, the insurgents have set up a command post at Vibeas Sarr, 12 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. In addition to the movement of the insurgent troops, mortars and rockets are also being moved toward the capital, the field reports said.

Reports from Battambang, the country's northwestern most province, said the situation was still viewed as serious. The defense perimeter of the city of Battambang was reported to be shrinking in the face of insurgent attacks.

Phnom Penh is 100 miles from the border with Thailand and Laos to the north and Cambodia to the west. The city is 70 miles north of Saigon on the coast of the South China Sea.

U.S. officials said Cals General Al Abrams and about four or five others remained behind to try to get the refugee evacuation program moving.

Where Vietnamese Reds extend control

Viet Red gains panic DaNang refugee horde

(Continued from p. 1) Another American-chartered freighter was scheduled to arrive in Da Nang Saturday to take off another 10,000 refugees.

An Air Vietnam DC4 and a chartered World Airways Boeing 747 freighter were scheduled to leave most of their women and children, into Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport at nightfall, and airline officials said they hoped to keep the planes moving in and out of Da Nang around the clock.

"Several Air Vietnam DC4s and an American chartered World Airways Boeing 747 managed to land at Da Nang today and bring out loads of refugees, mainly women and children, to Saigon. With the military situation continuing to deteriorate the Viet Cong, in a broadcast over Hanoi Radio, called on government officials and South Vietnamese soldiers and police to desert if promised to support all opponents of President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Military sources said the provincial capital of Hue An 15 miles to the south fell today to an artillery and infantry attack leaving Da Nang's southern flank wide open.

Hue An, which once had a 50,000 population, is the capital of Quang Nam Province.

The South Vietnamese command in Saigon announced the loss of Hue Lee, 96 miles northeast of Saigon, in a two-hour battle that began with heavy artillery fire this morning. A spokesman said the defenders of the capital of Lam Dong Province fled to Di Linh, 20 miles to the east at the southern edge of the central highlands.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces now have captured 13 provinces and 120 provinces, all but one since March 10. As the military situation deteriorated, the U.S. Army chief of staff, Gen. Fredrick W. Andrus, arrived in Saigon to begin a four-day fact-finding mission for President Ford.

Wayland, who was the last commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, met with President Nguyen Van Thieu and other officials.

The North Vietnamese government's soldiers who fled to the city when the government ordered them out of areas surrendered to the Communists fought hand-to-hand with police in the downtown area Thursday night.

The United States has evacuated most of its personnel from the city, 70 miles north of Saigon on the coast of the South China Sea.

U.S. officials said Cals General Al Abrams and about four or five others remained behind to try to get the refugee evacuation program moving.

Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, South Vietnamese top officer in the northern sector, ordered Marines into the Da Nang airport in a desperate attempt to restore order and try to get the refugee airlift underway.

Military sources said ships at the Da Nang docks got so overcrowded Thursday night they could not get up enough steam to pull away from shore.

A single U.S. charter ship, the Pioneer Commander, was being loaded with 20,000 refugees and other American vessels were en route to Da Nang, officials said.

Officials said the city's 500,000 population must have fled Da Nang before the city fell today. There are more than 1 million refugees in the Da Nang area, more than double the normal population of 500,000.

The government perimeter around Da Nang, now is 15 miles to the north and south and less than 25 miles to the west. The sea and the air are the only escape route.

Nationalist China today closed its consulate in Da Nang. The Taiwanese government offered 20 landing ships, each capable of carrying 3,000 persons, to the refugee evacuation program.

Phnom Penh is 100 miles from the border with Thailand and Laos to the north and Cambodia to the west. The city is 70 miles north of Saigon on the coast of the South China Sea.

State meet slated

BOISE (UPI) — Faculty tenure and alcohol on campus are among a long list of agenda items facing the State Board of Education next Wednesday through Friday at the University of Idaho.

A slate of new officers also will be elected by the board, which will welcome new Board Member J. Chas. Hoopes, a Rexburg farmer. Hoopes was appointed this week by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus to replace retiring J. Kenneth Thatcher of Idaho Falls.

Board President J. P. Munson of Sandpoint said Wednesday would be devoted to a working session on the board's proposed new faculty tenure policy. It is meeting stiff opposition from faculty members, mainly because of a change which eliminates peer review, he said.

Following a joint session with institution administrative staffs Thursday morning, board members will act on fiscal 1979 budget recommendations for all institutions and agencies under board control. The afternoon will be taken up with the agendas of Idaho State University, Boise State University, Lewis-Clark State University and the State Department of Education.

ISU President William E. Davis will ask the board for approval of preliminary plans for a school of engineering, which would include the establishment of an energy experiment station.

Ernest W. Hartung, U of I president, is backing the Associated Students' request that the student code of conduct be revised to permit drinking of alcohol on campus under certain controlled conditions. His agenda will be acted upon Friday morning.

A presentation by the Department of Parks and Recreation, board member and executive committee meetings with institutional presidents will wind up business matters Friday afternoon.

TWIN FALLS. Grange members Clark Kleinkopf and Kenneth Poe, center left and right, present $50 checks to Capt. Dale Vilen of the Salvation Army and James Stone, Harbor House houseparent. The donations were made possibly by the proceeds of the grange's community pancake supper. Poe is secretary and Kleinkopf is community service chairman for the grange.

Bomb blasts mar holy services

By United Press International
Pope Paul VI led the world's 600 million Roman Catholics today in solemn Good Friday observances marking Christ's crucifixion in Jerusalem, holy city of the world's three major faiths, as thousands of Christian pilgrims from many nations gathered in the narrow, cobble streets of the ancient walled city for the walk along the Via Dolorosa — traditional path of Christ's march to his crucifixion.

The 77-year-old pontiff was scheduled to attend an evening liturgical service in St. Peter's Basilica, and then cross a tall cross in a procession around Rome's Colosseum to re-enact the stages of Jesus' crucifixion.

Thursday aides supported the Pope, who suffers from arthritis, as he proceeded from the altar in St. Peter's Basilica to wash and kiss the feet of 12 boys in re-enactment of Christ's gesture to the Apostles at the Last Supper.

The Vatican switched the Holy Thursday mass from the Basilica of St. John the Lateran to St. Peter's so more pilgrims could see it, but the ceremony was held in St. Peter's Basilica, which can hold 30,000 people — only half full.

The Jerusalem pilgrims, many of them carrying large wooden crosses, followed the route of Christ on his way to Calvary, stopping at the 14 stations where He rested.

The Easter week observances began five days ago with Palm Sunday and the traditional procession of pilgrims from the nearby Mount of Olives, through the Garden of Gethsemane and into the walled city through St. Stephen's gate.

Thursday night, the Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, Msgr. Giuseppe Beltratti — held services marking Christ's last supper with his disciples and washed the feet of 12 youths.

The environmental department of Oregon and Idaho denied certification of the proposed construction of two Hells Canyon Dams which would violate state water quality standards.

There is some debate as to exactly what significance denial of certification has as far as the Federal Power Commission's procedure in either granting or denying a license for a power project based on a state's refusal to certify the project.

But officials of the power companies, which are required to seek certification under the national permit discharge program, contend such certification is desirable but not necessary for the FPC to issue a license.

Van Herset says the decision by Oregon and Idaho to deny certification of the dams is "unfortunate" in light of current conditions.

"To meet today's energy needs, we must develop all energy resources, and the High Mountain Sheep dam site (on the Middle Snake) is the just good hydroelectric site in the Northwest," says Van Herset.

He says the alternatives, coal-fired or nuclear plants, would be much more expensive than hydroelectric dams.

Environmentalists, however, contend that the damage resulting from construction of the dams would outweigh the benefits as far as power generation.

They contend the dams would inundate 55 to 73 miles of land along the Middle Snake and have extreme impact on fish and wildlife, as well as historical and archaeological sites.

Environmental departments for the two states Wednesday denied certification of a project calling for construction of a pair of dams on the middle stretch of the Snake River.

"In my opinion, knowing the effort that has been given the project, I would expect the companies will resubmit plans for development of the hydro power project," says Dave Van Herset of Washington Water Power Co.

WWP is one of four power companies that comprise a consortium known as Pacific Northwest Power Co., which has been seeking permission to construct Hells Canyon dams for the past 20 years.

Pacific Northwest Power and the Washington Edison Power Supply System, comprised of 18 public utility districts, have proposed three alternatives for construction of a pair of dams on the last free-flowing stretch of the Snake.

Accident involves 8 autos

RUPERT — Eight vehicles collided Wednesday evening in a chain reaction accident on an icy overpass near Heyburn.

Mercedes Constantineau's deputy, David Constantineau, said four cars, three semi-trucks and a pickup truck were involved in the accident. There were no serious injuries, he said.

Constantineau said a car stalled on the overpass. A semi-truck approached — the stalled car, tried to stop but was hit in the rear by a second semi that could not stop on the icy road.

The first semi was knocked out of the way, but the second hit the stalled car.

In the meantime, another car hit the second semi-truck and bounced off the overpass railing.

A third car, attempting to stop, slid into the back of the second semi. Constantineau said.

A third semi then pulled to a stop about 50 yards behind the wreck. A pickup truck stopped a few feet behind.

However, another car hit the rear of the pickup, sending it into the third semi.

Constantineau said three hours were required to untangle all the vehicles.

Investigation into the accident is continuing. So far, no citations have been issued, Constantineau said.

GENEVA — Negotiations on European security recessed for the Easter holidays Thursday after the Soviet Union proposed that the final document be signed in four separate parts at a climactic super-summit in Helsinki.

The talks, which have been going on for more than two years, have reached a final phase, and there is now little doubt that they will be concluded during the post-Easter session.

Data shows oil imports pushed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oil industry today avoided a $50-million in taxes by speeding up petroleum imports to beat President Ford's 51 per barrel tariff, government data show.

The tax savings came to light Wednesday — The Commerce Department reported an unexpected record $917 million U.S. surplus in international trade in February because of the deepest reduction in oil imports since the Arab embargo. There was a $216 million trade deficit in January.

The oil industry created a $1.5 billion swing in the balance of trade by slashing petroleum imports from $1.3 billion in January to $1.8 billion in February.

The trade improvement resulted from a 45 per cent plunge in oil volume, although there was no major shift from traditional consumer demand for heating fuel, gasoline and other petroleum products in February.

But Ford's 51 per barrel oil tariff took effect Feb. 1. In anticipation of the tax, oil deliveries were speeded up. Oil imports totaled 185 million barrels in November, then jumped to 207 million barrels in December and soared to a record 286 million barrels in January.

Imports plunged to 156 million barrels in February, 5 million barrels less than February 1978 during the height of the Arab embargo, and about 50 million barrels less than might be expected.

Recriminations won't help matters at Geneva

(C) New York Times Service
The outlook in the Middle East now is fairly grim, but recriminations about who's to blame can only make it worse.
Naturally, and unfortunately, Israel is blaming Egypt for the collapse of the Kissinger peace mission. Kissinger is blaming Israel; both are blaming Kissinger for not reconciling the irreconcilable...

The Kissinger mission has not resolved or even compromised the ancient hostilities between Israel and the Arab states — maybe it was a presumption to think that it could — but it is not necessarily a prelude to war. It was not altered...

few hours' rest, he was up on the hill and down in the pit with the reporters explaining what had happened or as much as he thought he could tell about what had happened, which is not the same thing...

Middle East. Kissinger wanted a different scenario. He thought he had persuaded Sadat to agree that: (1) The problems of the middle east could be settled only by negotiations...

The Butz Message

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz brought his economic pill to Twin Falls Thursday night, but wrapped it in a sugar coating of humor.

Beneath the twinkle in Butz' eye was a stern determination to keep government off the farm and off the backs of workers in the private sector.

His economic message, he said, could be boiled down to an eight-word sentence: "There's no such thing as a free lunch."

He attacked the notion that people can "vote themselves an income."

He lamented the rising presence of government, which he said now involves about a third of the national product.

He said welfare functions will rise to an astounding 68-70 per cent of the Agriculture Department's spending next year, presumably leaving both the farmers and the bureaucrats dividing up the remaining 30-32 per cent.

He raised his eyebrow at the "moderate" budget presented by President Ford which would call for deficit spending of about $32 billion, and then lambasted Democratic attempts to raise that deficit to levels above $70 billion.

Later in his speech he said the federal deficit could rise to levels above $100 billion next year.

A $100 billion ocean of red ink, he said, could only be absorbed through a great increase in inflation.

Finally, Butz ended his sermonette with the observation that the words American and Republican end with the sentence "I can."

He urged all Americans to stress the "I can" philosophy, to work hard in their ordinary roles to improve the country. He said Americans often fail to realize what reservoirs of strength, honesty and decency lie within their society.

After sorting through the political bombast to his message, we agree wholeheartedly.

Sunshine energy

Christian Science Monitor

The spring sun was shining when the Monitor's latest article on solar energy arrived, and for a glorious moment almost anything seemed possible.

Certainly, in contrast with the days when solar energy seemed fantastically futuristic, it now seemed perfectly reasonable for the head of Washington's Energy Research and Development Administration to tell our interviewer such things as this:

That the government was getting under way a plan for trying out solar heating systems in more than 1,000 homes and commercial buildings.

That the looked-for result would be a network of manufacturers making up heating and cooling systems for buildings.

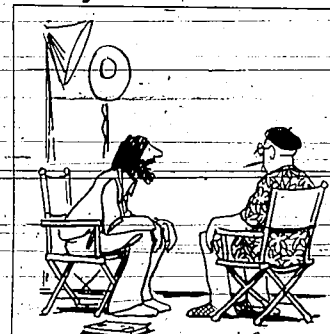

That, within 5 to 10 years, the nation's sun-powered home heating should be available to many Americans.

These prospects, based on progress already passed, make it easier for the sunshine thinker to credit the earlier prediction by a California scientist: that by installing solar equipment in two-thirds of American homes during the next three decades, 20 more energy would be saved each year than is currently produced.

What causes a slight cloud to darken the glow of a solar spring is the need for more money to move ahead on all the fronts of solar energy — including the production of electricity — as fast as technology permits. The latter presents limits to the additional progress that might be made by merely more and more money. But this threshold has not been reached.

As applied by the home and commercial solar heating and cooling programs, much of the basic technology is known, it is the practical development of it on a large scale that is needed. Even with maximum resolve it cannot come overnight. But as long as forward-looking steps are reported on sunny spring days, the energy future will look bright in more ways than one.

While all these complications were being explained and envenomed in Washington, Tel Aviv and Cairo, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia was murdered. And while everybody is trying to find the best of this, the fact is that Faisal's successor is generally regarded as incompetent or worse, and the new man behind the throne, Prince Fahd, is a dubious gambler whose most spectacular achievement is that he once lost $2 million in a single night at a gambling table in London.

These are not sudden developments but, like Gorbachev's patient diplomacy aimed against the U.S. and Kissinger, they have been prepared carefully and over a long time with a view to an ultimate situation like that which may soon prevail. If, as he is being urged to do, Yasser Arafat, the PLO leader, announces a "government in exile" it is hard to imagine any other outcome to present that does not exceed further trouble and perhaps another war.

This is a highly emotional area, and it is astonishing how speedily clouds of war talk can replace the relatively tranquil disquisitions of a lay-writer. And there will be no newsworthy separate Sinai talks or piecemeal settlements. Sadat, who was being widely criticized last week, is now praised by his own opposition for

The Saudi crisis may be a harbinger of violence elsewhere. Now is the time for an urgent new U.S. diplomatic offensive in the Middle East — both secret and silent.

It was worth the cost

(N.Y. Times Service)
NEW YORK — In 1968 when American relations with Egypt were at a low point, the Central Intelligence Agency approached Howard Hughes with an expensive plan to obtain the Great Pyramid of Cheops.

London. This left the CIA in a choice. Richard Helms, then director of Central Intelligence, called the Air Force and asked them to shoot the pyramid out of the sky before it reached London.

At that time Egypt possessed the most formidable pyramids in the world. The CIA believed that if the United States could secretly get hold of one for close study, the world would accumulate a mine of invaluable information on which to defend ourselves if Egypt started anything.

Simultaneously, in Armonk, N.Y., an exact replica of the great pyramid was built in plastic. This cost was dropped by parliament on the same day that the real pyramid was flown out of Egypt and put in the CIA's hands.

Both ends of the job — in Egypt and Armonk — were completed on schedule and a week before the Cairo time. The Great Pyramid of Cheops, powered by 200 jet engines mounted on the desert floor and became airborne over the Mediterranean.

Moments later, giant parachutes dropped the plastic replica into place. When the pyramid was approaching the Azores, however, it began to veer and sink altitude alarmingly. The crew was aware that when it hit the water it would probably sink before they could execute emergency abandon-pyramid procedures, had no choice but to bail out at 1,000 feet.

This lightened the pyramid and its descent stopped. A few minutes later, it passed through a weather front, the ice melted and the pyramid began to regain altitude. On automatic pilot, it went to 30,000 feet, circled awhile and then, more or less whimsically, started flying toward

Here are tax cut bill major provisions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major provisions in the $24.8 billion tax cut bill:

REBATES

Rebates of 10 per cent of 1974 taxes (those due by April 15) up to $200 maximum. The minimum rebate would be either $100 or the actual tax paid if that was less than $100. After adjusted gross income (income before deductions and exemptions are subtracted) reaches $20,000 the rebate gradually phases down until those making $30,000 or more get only $100. Rebate checks mailed automatically by the Internal Revenue Service within 45 to 90 days. Husband and wife get only one rebate whether they file jointly or separately. Tax cut: $2.7 billion.

1975 TAX CUTS

Special $30 credit. Every taxpayer, regardless of income, would subtract $30 from 1975 tax bills (those owed by April 15, 1975) for every person in the family — the taxpayer, the taxpayer's spouse and each dependent. A family of four, for example, would get a $120 tax cut. This tax credit would be in addition to any present exemptions and deductions. It would apply for one year only. Standard deduction. The present 15 per cent standard deduction is increased to 16 per cent. The minimum deduction, which can be taken no matter how low the income, is increased from $1,000 for everyone to $1,600 for single persons, $1,900 for couples. Maximum deduction increases from $2,000 for everyone to $2,300 for single persons, $2,600 for couples. The 1975 cuts will be reflected in lower withholding rates effective May 1. Tax cut: $7.8 billion.

PAYMENTS TO WORKING POOR

Workers who have children and who earn less than $4,000 per year get a federal payment equal to 10 per cent of their current income. The maximum $700 payment decreases by $1 for each $10 of income above $4,000 until those making $8,000 get nothing. Payment will be made in 1976 based on 1975 income. Tax cut: $1.5 billion.

SOCIAL SECURITY PAYMENTS

Additional $1 billion of Social Security benefits for a Railroad Retirement and Supplemental Security Income get a flat one-time $50 payment. The time it would be mailed is uncertain. One payment made for each check meaning that a widow with two dependent children gets $50, not $150. Cost: $1.7 billion.

HOME TAX CREDIT

The buyer of any new home which was either under construction or unoccupied as of March 25 may subtract 5 per cent of the purchase price directly from 1975 taxes owed, up to a maximum $2,000. Applies to homes, condominiums, cooperatives, mobile homes and any other single family dwelling or boat which qualifies as the taxpayer's principal residence. The test is whether the house was constructed prior to March 25, 1975, or construction actually started March 26 or later. The credit does not apply. The tax break applies if the new home is purchased between March 13 and Dec. 31. Special provisions, backed by criminal penalties, forbid increasing the price of the house above what it was March 25. Tax cut: $600 million.

CHILD CARE

Deductions for home and child care for working parents remain the same as present law except the income level at which the maximum deduction may be taken is increased from $18,000 to $35,000 in the 1976 tax year. The maximum $4,800 yearly deduction then "phases down" to zero as income reaches $41,000. Tax cut: $30 million.

UNEMPLOYMENT BENEFIT

An extra 11 weeks of unemployment benefits would go to workers in high unemployment states who already have exhausted the present 52 weeks of benefits. The provision expires June 30. Cost: $200 million.

sale of residence. The present 12-month deferral of capital gains tax on the sale of a home is extended to 18 months and the period in which the taxpayer may construct a new home to deduct the loss is extended from 18 months to 24 months. This means that no tax is charged if the money is reinvested in another home in those periods. Tax cut: negligible.

retirement plans

Contributions to individual self-employment retirement plans (Keogh plans, as they are often called) made by the time the self-employed person's tax return is due would be considered as made during the taxable year to which the return relates. Tax cut: negligible.

BUSINESS TAXES INVESTMENT TAX CREDIT

The investment tax credit, now 7 per cent for most property and 4 per cent for utilities, is increased to 10 per cent. The credit may be increased to 11 per cent at the election of the business if the proceeds from the extra one-year period are placed in an employee stock ownership plan. For public utilities, the 50 per cent limitation on the amount of tax liability that may be offset by the investment credit is increased to 100 per cent, then gradually reduced back to the 50 per cent level over a five-year period. The present $20,000 limit on the amount of used property subject to the credit is raised to $100,000. Tax cut: $2.4 billion.

CORPORATE TAX RATE. The tax rate on the first $25,000 of corporate income is 20 per cent, the rate on the next $25,000 is 22 per cent, and the remainder is taxed at the regular 48 per cent. Under previous law, the rate on the first $25,000 was 22 per cent, and the 48 per cent rate applied above that. Tax cut: $1.4 billion.

OIL DEPLETION

The 22-per-cent oil and gas depletion allowance is repealed for major companies only. The 10,000 or so "independent" oil producers will keep 22 per cent depletion on the first 2,000 barrels per day of production, or the equivalent natural gas production. However, this will gradually phase down to 1,000 barrels at 22 per cent in 1980, then down to 1,000 barrels at 15 per cent in 1984. Natural gas under fixed price contracts and gas on which price rises are not allowed to reflect the loss of depletion until full depletion. Tax increase: $1.7 billion.

FOREIGN OIL INCOME

Tax credit limitation: The foreign tax credit on oil and natural gas income is limited to 10 per cent above the U.S. 48 per cent rate — 58.8 per cent for 1975. This is reduced to 50.4 per cent in 1976 and 50 per cent in 1977 and later years. The excess credits may be used only to offset U.S. tax on foreign oil related income. Tax increase: $180 million in 1975, $300 million in 1976 and $340 million in 1977.

Per-country limitation: Repealed in 1976 is the per-country limitation for oil and gas income which allows losses in one country to offset U.S. income while in another country the foreign tax credit is being used to shelter income. If overall losses are so high that U.S. income is still offset, the losses can be recaptured by the government in subsequent years when profits increase. Tax increase: $140 million in 1976.

Tax credit for oil purchase: No tax credit may be claimed on any payment to a foreign government for the purchase of oil where the company has no economic interest and where oil is sold at higher than the market price. Effective in 1977. Tax increase: $50 million.

OTHER FOREIGN INCOME

Tax havens: All foreign income of U.S. companies from tax havens sources is to be taxed in the year it is made, not when it is returned to the United States. This means that a company may not actually manufacture a product in the United States, transfer title to a subsidiary company in a tax-haven country such as the Bahamas, and then defer indefinitely tax on the income from the sale. The new rule does not apply if less than 10 per cent of gross income is from these tax havens.

Present exceptions regarding reinvestment of tax haven in less developed countries is repealed. Tax increase: $190 million in 1976. Shipping profits: Deferral of U.S. tax for shipping income received by a foreign subsidiary is limited to the extent that profits from these corporations is re-invested in shipping operations. Tax increase: $35 million in 1976.

Checks flayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader today accused the Postal Service of an illegal "mail cover" on the Public Citizen Litigation Group which has filed numerous lawsuits against government agencies.

Nader said at a news conference the Postal Service's regulations exempt mail between mail cover subjects and their attorneys.

Amended

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — A no-smoking law was amended in the Assembly Thursday to exempt restaurants from a list of public buildings, where smoking would be banned. Supporters of the bill argued the "measure," which bans smoking in most public buildings and meeting halls, would not restrict any personal liberties but would allow nonsmokers to breathe fresh air.

GM agrees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission said today General Motors Corp. has agreed it will not make advertising claims about how well its cars handle unless it can back up such claims with competent scientific tests. The case grew out of a GM commercial for the 1971 Chevrolet Vega.

Interior office to Wyoming man

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House and congressional sources say former Wyoming Gov. Stanley Hathaway will be named secretary of the interior to succeed Rogers Morton, nominated Thursday as commerce secretary.

Morton replaced Frederick Dent, sworn in Thursday as chief of the U.S. Trade Negotiator.

Hathaway, 59, was at his Torrington, Wyo., home Thursday night and was unavailable for comment.

A conservative who claims he is not a politician, Hathaway was the only governor of his state to serve two four-year terms. He first was elected in 1966 and declined to run for a third term last year.

Hathaway is a lawyer and previously had been reported in-line for a federal judgeship. Morton was the first easterner to head the Interior Department and Hathaway's appointment would return the job to a westerner.

Ford ponders veto of tax cut measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford believes Congress' $24.8 billion tax cut bill contains "some good things and some very bad things." He will take several days deciding whether to sign or veto it, according to his aides.

Ford called his economic and energy advisers to a Good Friday meeting at the White House. He met with several of them Thursday to go over the details of provisions of the tax bill.

Ford has until April 8 to decide whether to let the bill become law. If he consents, the government will begin in May sending rebate checks of $100 to $200 in 1974 income taxes to most Americans. The date has begun in May withholding less money for 1975 taxes.

That is a powerful political incentive for Ford to sign the bill, despite his objections to many of its provisions.

The president told his experts Thursday: "This is a tough call." He asked them to draw up their recommendations.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen told newsmen Ford considered the bill a mixture of good and bad things, and Nessen and other officials elaborated some of these:

Ford had wanted only a $16 billion tax cut to spur the N.Y. Times Service WASHINGTON — The Securities and Exchange Commission accused Howard R. Hughes Thursday of fraud and manipulation in connection with the billionaire's acquisition in 1969 of Airwest, which serves 60 cities in the western United States, Canada and Mexico.

In a complaint filed with the Federal District Court for Northern California, the commission asked that Hughes and nine other defendants be enjoined from further violation of federal securities laws and required to surrender, an estimated $30 million, and alleged illicit profits resulting from the acquisition.

In addition to the Summa Corp., wholly owned by Hughes, and Hughes Airwest, the complaint named Herman Greenbaum, owner and publisher of the Las Vegas Sun, and James Jimmy the Greek Snyder, Las Vegas oddsmaker who is also a public relations consultant.

Also cited in the suit were Robert A. Mathes, former head of the Hughes, hotel and gambling interests, in Las Vegas but now a bitter opponent in suit and counter-suit following a break in their relations; Chester C. Davis, chief counsel for the Summa Corp., and David Charney, president of Four-Star International, a television and motion picture company in Las Angeles.

The other individuals named in the complaint were George Crockett, a long-time friend of Hughes, and Patrick J. Hillings, a former Republican congressman and friend of former President Nixon. Hillings figured in the Watergate investigation as pay-off man for the milk lobby who offered the former president a $2-million political contribution from the dairy industry in December, 1973.

The complaint alleged that Hughes, Davis, Mathes, Snyder and the Summa Corp. mounted an illicit publicity campaign in 1968 intended to influence the directors and shareholders of Airwest to approve a cash purchase contract by which Hughes would acquire their holdings at $22 a share.

to comply with the condition, the complaint said.

It was further alleged that the five defendants "caused certain well known and influential persons, including certain prominent political figures, to issue public statements which were critical of the management and operations of Airwest and stated a position in favor of Airwest by defendants Hughes and Summa."

The complaint went on to say that "certain of the prominent political figures who made such statements received contributions from defendant Hughes and his agents." It said that throughout the publicity campaign it was made to appear that the persons making the statement were acting independently and without any connection to the five defendants.

sequent actions regarding Airwest."

In December, 1968, after the five defendants solicited proxy statements on the offer of $22 a share, Airwest approved the offer by a margin of just over 70 percent more votes than the maximum required. It was alleged, but the directors of the carrier refused to execute the purchase contract in order to allow time to consider other offers.

Because the purchase offer was to expire on Dec. 31, the Hughes group stepped up their pressure on the directors, filing lawsuits suddenly by independent shareholders in order to sway the decision. Airwest directors, the suit charged.

The sale caused Airwest stock to drop from 18 1/2 to 15 1/2. On the same afternoon, certain Airwest directors were said to have changed their votes and approved acceptance of the Hughes offer. But instead of $22 a share as provided in the original purchase offer, Airwest shareholders realized only $8.75 a share, or $15 million less than they would have received under the contract, the complaint stated.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A little of the light has gone out of my life. My heart is heavy and I can't seem to turn my thoughts to anything else for very long.

I've just discovered that my lovely, 14-year-old daughter is a thief, and has been for some time. Abby, it's as though I have two daughters. One I know, and the other is a stranger to me.

I have always tried to keep the lines of communication open. My husband and I have always tried to teach our children to be honest and law-abiding. I can't understand what went wrong. What would cause a girl who never wanted for anything, and was raised in a good Christian home to go into a store and steal? Where could she have gotten her criminal tendencies? She is going for counseling today. I want to talk to her about it. I pray she can be helped. I want her to grow into a beautiful young woman inside as well as out.

Have you any words of comfort for me?
DESPAIRING MOTHER

Don't despair

DEAR MOTHER: Don't despair. Your daughter won't talk to you about it because she is ashamed. She knows how deeply she has disappointed you. Young shoplifters do not necessarily have "criminal tendencies." They sometimes steal for the thrill of getting away with something, or to impress their peers with their "courage."

Professional counselors are trained to help children understand their anti-social behavior, and many young shoplifters have matured into respectable, law-abiding citizens.

DEAR ABBY: Our grandson had to marry his high school sweetheart. They had a beautiful, hurry-up church wedding. We gave them a $25 check for a wedding present. Six months later they had a baby boy. Everything went along fine for about a year. Then they got a divorce.

After later, our grandson married a divorced woman who had two small children. That was also a large church wedding. Everything was pale pink. We gave them a $25 check for a wedding gift. That lasted only seven months.

After being single for two years, this same grandson is going to get married again, this time to a young widow who has a small child. We are hoping for the best.

My question is: do we have to give them a wedding present, too? We are living on Social Security; and it is not that much.

GRANDPARENTS

DEAR GRANDPARENTS: Gift giving to grandchildren is never compulsory. Give them your best wishes now, and wait a while to see if it takes. If it lasts a year, give them an anniversary present.

DEAR ABBY: Eight years ago, I fell in love with a married man. We worked for the same company. I was single at the time, but I didn't believe in wrecking marriages (especially where children were involved), so I didn't let the affair get out of hand.

Two years later, I married a wonderful man. I'll admit, I married him for security, but I soon learned to love him in my fashion. I was a faithful wife for six years. After our second child was born, I went back to my old job. The married man was still there, and the old flame was rekindled. We both tried to fight it, but we couldn't. After a while, we picked up our affair where we had left it.

Abby, I have never been happier. He feels the same way. The strange part of it is that I really love my husband, and he loves his wife, but we still love each other.

Tell me, Abby, is it possible to be in love with two people at the same time?
CONFUSED BUT CONTENT

DEAR CONFUSED: No. However, it's possible to "love" more than one person, but the state of being "in love" with most people know it, is strictly a one-on-one relationship.

his partner's queen, he would have presented South with a trick. But if he would not have been the contract trick.

When North bid two clubs, he was using the Stayman convention. South's two diamond rebids denied holding either four hearts or four spades. So there was no way for South to collect four heart tricks. You need four cards in a suit to score four tricks.

Of course, when West let East hold the second club East had to lead another suit. South had time, to knock out West's ace of diamonds and make his game.

By Oswald & James Jacoby.

What did you overlook my question? You asked me about South's jack and wind up your five tricks and a plus score?" asked East.

"You wish to know, I asked West, how many clubs and my play allowed South to score an impossible game with four spades, four hearts and that jack of clubs?"

"Yes," you would have looked silly but that couldn't possibly have happened this time."

East was right. South could have had just three clubs. In that case if West had overtake

Some mothers use it as a cure-all and give an enema to a child complaining of a stomach ache. It is harmful if stomach pain persists.

Please comment on the co-called enemas for reducing fever. What temperature should the water be for this? I think it means just warm, others say cold. If it is too cold, will it chill the patient - A-J-R.

Some have classified enemas as inventions of the devil. But once they were, as someone has written, "mother's sovereign salubrities."

The automatic diagnosis of constipation by a mother whose child complains of stomach ache is often wrong. And even if correct it can usually be treated more easily with prune juice than with anything so drastic as an enema. A thought to keep in mind about the use of enema in constipation is that it cleans out the lower bowel rather completely. Thus, time is required for sufficient stool to accumulate for the next natural movement.

Hence the proper diagnosis of the problem is essential before getting all the enemas. A stomach ache can mean a lot of things. Flushing into enema treatment when even remote possibilities such as these exist can be dangerous. It is especially wary when vomiting accompanies such complaints.

Do enemas have their place? Most certainly, and there are times when the only reasonable method of getting fast, sure results is with the enema, either in reducing fever or promoting bowel evacuation. But you should be sparing, a last resort and, when possible, with a doctor's approval.

Enema: devil's invention

By George Thosolon

Equipment ranges from the infant-size rectal syringe (for small amounts of fluid) to the water-bag-hose-rectal-plastic-tube mechanism for larger amounts in larger children. At most, a quart of water is sufficient.

The "enema-a-lie" lies on his side with legs flexed, or in a knees-against-chest position. The clear tip of the syringe or enema tube should be lubricated with plain petroleum jelly and inserted very carefully. The fluid is allowed to flow in slowly and it should be stopped at the first sign of cramping.

Cool enemas to reduce fevers require tepid water or water that is slightly warm to the touch of the wrist. Cold water won't be any more effective than tepid water in bringing down temperature. It could create a terrible discomfort.

Enemas once had their day, when suppositories and antibiotics-to-kill-infection-or-reduce-fever were not around. In modern medicine, with the exception of occasions such as preparation of patients for surgery, they have lost much of their previous acceptance.

Dear Dr. Thosolon: I do not eat animal fats, eggs, or any type of meat products. My cholesterol level is 277 milligrams. I am 47, a male. I would appreciate any information you can give me on this matter. My doctor tells me that for me this cholesterol level might be normal. Can this be so? — A. D.

Yes, your cholesterol is high normal. But don't be surprised that you have normal range cholesterol even though you are a vegetarian. Experiments with rabbits raised on greens and other rabbit food show that they too possess blood cholesterol. If you never touch meat, no meat products your body would be still convert what you eat to its own cholesterol needs. Don't forget that if you drink milk, eat cheese or use butter you will be getting a fairly good share of cholesterol. Even bread and cakes (shortening) will provide a substantial amount. And once the cholesterol appears in the body, its level in the blood depends upon how it is utilized. How active a person is can be a factor among many that affects utilization.

Mini-Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"The Workhouse" by Norman Langston. This book concentrates on the Victorian workhouse. It discusses and illustrates the life of the workhouse inmate. By exhaustive research into long neglected sources, the author has answered many questions in the words of those who experienced the workhouse regime.

"The Most Dangerous Man in America" by Catherine Drinker Bowen. The benign, faintly dandy figure in colonial portraiture vanished behind the vigorous, flesh and blood individual of Mrs. Bowen's analysis and personal impressions of Franklin's character.

"Supership" by Noel Mostler. A drama of men and ships in conflict with the elements and a brilliantly clear exposition of the modern state of money and oil.

"A Book of Ruth" by Syrell Leahy. A love story so touching, so tender and finally so powerful that you will remember the people and what happens to them forever.

"The Devil is Loose" by Graham Shelby. The murderous turmoil of England and Normandy in the 12th century is superbly drawn in this fine tale of the concept of kings and the wars of influence that marked the passing of an age.

Depression gripping world now, economists say in meet views

By LEONARD SILK
O.N.Y. Times Service
CLAREMONT, Calif. — Will there be a world depression. The distinguished economists from several countries who met here at the 11th biannual Claremont International Monetary Conference answered the question forthrightly: the world is already in a depression.

Robert Solomon, adviser to the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, offered as evidence the weakness and breadth of the slide in industrial production has fallen in the United States, Japan, West Germany, France and the other industrial countries of Western Europe at an annual rate of 8 per cent during the last three months. And the downturn, Solomon said, "will continue for some time."

Yet economic policy to fight depression is hobbled in every country, he said. The Federal Reserve System, he said, is "not in a position to do anything about it."

Another speaker, the Soviet Union, in his view, is playing on the Arabs' anti-Israeli animosities in order to keep the Middle Eastern pot boiling. The Russians, he said, is to strengthen their own hand in the Middle East. He maintained that the Israelis have received a worse press than they deserve.

The real political situation is being further strained by the combination of depression and inflation. However, the view of many here was that the inflation is fading now, giving way to more serious worries about the depression.

How is the world monetary system, with floating exchange rates, weathering the storm? The general view here was remarkably even.

Prof. Emeritus Gottfried Haberler of Harvard stated that the time has come to stop for the indefinite future. But he did not think this implied that all the currencies of the International Monetary Fund "will or should fluctuate against each other."

over the world political crisis. One aspect of it is the shift of wealth and power to the Middle East.

Another, he fears, is the growing strength of the Communist nations. The Soviet Union, in his view, is playing on the Arabs' anti-Israeli animosities in order to keep the Middle Eastern pot boiling.

The Russians, he said, is to strengthen their own hand in the Middle East. He maintained that the Israelis have received a worse press than they deserve.

the United States, even at its present pace. It is only by South-American standards, in Latin America a rise of prices under 10 per cent is regarded as deflation."

Haberler thinks a yen-also may also develop. And several countries are already moving their currencies in the West German mark. However, European monetary unification has been a complete failure, and it is doubtful that it can be resumed without restructuring national integration — which apparently is not in the cards.

And while the world has outgrown the dollar standard, there is as yet nothing to take its place, the SDR — special drawing rights — "paper gold" exists, but in its excess world liquidity nobody wants to create them of them.

The world may be moving sluggishly toward a SDR standard, but formal reform of the monetary system seems to have come to a halt. The political conflicts among nations, the uncertainty about the economic balance of the United States, and the growing world depression, and the wrenching effects of the oil price transfers of dollars in the Middle East are all exerting centrifugal pressures upon the past world economy.

Yet the economists' fear does not give way to despair. The future lies in the ability of government to cure the depression chiefly through fiscal and monetary policies, appears unbroken.

Murder involves English ministers

WAKEFIELD, England (UPI) — Two clergymen who performed a six-hour exorcism on a man who then went home and murdered his wife may have to appear before a coroner's jury.

Wakefield coroner Philip Gill said Wednesday, "An inquest is the only way to ally public opinion."

Gill made the statement less than 24 hours after Michael Taylor, 31-year-old father of five sons, was found not guilty by reason of insanity of the murder of his wife, Christine. He was committed to Broadmoor, an asylum for the criminally insane.

Taylor, after undergoing an all-night exorcism ritual in a church last October, returned to his Ossel, Yorkshire, home and killed his wife by ripping out her eyes, tongue and part of her face with his bare hands.

He was picked up as he wandered the town streets, naked and drenched in what he called the "blood of Satan."

The Rev. Peter Vincent and the Rev. Raymond Smith performed the ritual at which they alleged to have cast out demons out of Taylor, including those of incest, bestiality, blasphemy, heresy, lewdness and masochism.

The exorcism, lasting from midnight to 6 a.m., also was attended by the wives of Vincent and Smith, and Donald Jarrett, a Methodist lay preacher.

Vincent reportedly had said that crowd-pulling exorcisms might be one answer to poor attendance at his church.

The ones who brought demands from authorities in the Church of England and the Methodist church for an immediate explanation of the circumstances surrounding the exorcism.

The Bishop of Wakefield, Dr. Eric Treacy, said in a statement, "I am bound to say that the attempts made at exorcism during the night before the killing were unwise."

But Treacy said he believed Vincent and Smith were "actuated by a good intent" to help Taylor.

During the trial, defense attorney Harry Ognall accused Vincent and Smith of "krotzque and wicked malpractices posing in the guise of religion" that led directly to the murder of Mrs. Taylor.

Christianity alive in Peking

PEKING (UPI) — Christianity hangs on Peking — kept alive by three old men and a woman.

"That is about all there is, really, but it is there," said Barbara Bush, wife of the U.S. envoy to China.

Christianity survives for an hour or so on Sundays in a crumbling plaster building about a mile from the Forbidden City where Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung has his seat of atheistic authority.

In this gray-painted, smog-clouded capital, the three old men and a woman gather in a former Bible Society headquarters, clinging to their faith in spite of intense official opposition.

Most cowmen planning to keep replacements

(COURTESY SINCLAIR & CO. KANSAS CITY, LEFM) - In this month's Ag-Pulse survey and Modern Farmer magazine, six out of 10 cowmen said they plan to keep as many or more replacement heifers than they did last year.

Nine out of 10 expect prices to stay the same or improve during the next six months. There was little evidence of panic over prices. If they don't get an average 35¢ cents for their calves and 35 cents for yearlings now on hand, seven out of 10 expect to have the feed to carry them until replacement markets improve. Four out of 10 rated range and pasture prospects

Old lilacs can regain attraction

MOSCOW - Old and overgrown lilac bushes can be brought back to attractive size and shape, says Anton S. Horn, Boise, University of Idaho horticulturist.

The first step in rejuvenating lilacs is to cut out all the dead wood. "They explode when they get on your knees and cut out one third of the old ones. Preserve most of the younger ones; they will make your new shrub."

After blossoming, cut back old canes to a side branch at the height you desire. That is growing to the outside. Cut back canes unevenly to preserve the natural gracefulness of the shrub.

By cutting heading back immediately after bloom, new blossoms for the current year will be lost, Horn says.

The next year remove half the remaining canes, the horticulturist said. The third year, remove the remaining old canes. The result will be a new bush.

To maintain the bush, preserve desirable new canes, but thin out the surplus, he suggests.

Horn says some persons cut the old bushes to the ground. "The result is getting a bush that grows as being too drastic. It results in a mass of sucker growth difficult to do anything with," he adds.

"To have a crop of lilacs blossoms every year," Horn suggests, "cutting old canes as soon as they will prevent seed formation."

"If a lilac produces a lot of seed, it hasn't strength enough to bloom the next year," Horn advises.

philosophy of riding horses for enjoyment. He will also narrate a slide show on the "Mille Trèves" endurance ride in California which he recently completed.

Hornstrom said he considered the April 18 event to be among the "outstanding programs since the short course was started in 1963."

He expects horse enthusiasts to attend from Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Wyoming and Canada.

either good or excellent. On the basis of early returns, cowmen in Colorado, Wyoming and Montana were most optimistic about future marketings. Only three of 10 indicated they plan to add fewer breeding heifers to their herds than they did last year. They were also slightly more bullish about the short-term price outlook; they put a price tag of 35 cents on their yearlings.

Sunny, little warmer for Easter

Camas Prairie, Halley and lower Wood River Valley: Partly cloudy today through Saturday. Mildly rainy through Sunday. Easter Sunday, fair and not so cold.

Daytime temperatures Saturday over Magic Valley should climb to the low 40s Sunday in the mid valley. Monday upper 40s and Tuesday into the 50s. Night time lows by Tuesday will range from 20's to mid-30's. Mostly sunny except brief periods of partly cloudy skies.

Noted horse trainer due at Moscow short course

MOSCOW - Dave Jones, Tallahassee, Fla., nationally sponsored jointly by the University of Idaho and Washington State University, will be in the annual industries pavilion on the west edge of the U.I. campus. Routed markers will be placed.

The registration desk will be open from 8 to 9 a.m. Friday at the short course site. Members of the U.I. Bookie and Brille Club and Rideo club will serve lunch both days.

Short course co-directors are Morris Hornstrom and Joe Johnson, respectively extension livestock specialists from the University of Idaho and Washington State.

Hornstrom promised that during the entire short course, audience participation questions will be treated. We want the event to be so formal to the point that everyone has the opportunity to have questions about problems with horses answered.

Hornstrom said Jones has been brought back by popular demand after drawing 40 persons to Moscow when he participated in the 1966 basement short course.

Jones is to hold three sessions during the two-day short course. "That alone, says Hornstrom, makes the $10 per person short course fee a bargain."

Johnson, short course co-director, said Jones will hold a three-hour session on training and handling problems with horses beginning at 1 p.m. Friday.

He will hold a 9 a.m. to noon and 2 to 5 p.m. class on training problems with horses Saturday.

Hornstrom described Jones as a "no-nonsense" trainer who uses methods the average horseman can understand. "He will demonstrate and explain these methods, using riders and horses from the Palouse area," Hornstrom added.

"Another well known personality in horsemen's circles scheduled in the short course program is 'Doc' Rogers, Houston, Tex. Rogers, editor of Horseman Magazine, and author of "Mare Owner's Handbook," will make two appearances. At 4 p.m. Friday he will discuss

Feed need down on new standard

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) - Cattlemen will require less feed in raising choice graded cattle in the 20- to 30-month of age range under best grading standards which go into effect April 14, according to Dr. Richard W. Berry, assistant professor of animal sciences at Colorado State University.

Berry said the standards proposed last fall, were adopted by the standardization branch of the Agricultural Marketing Service at the Department of Agriculture. He said the change drawing the most attention dealt with the level of marbling required in cattle of certain grades.

Under the new rules, all cattle up to 30 months of age will require the same level of marbling for a certain grading category.

Previously, cattle were required to have higher levels of marbling the older they became to meet the grading standards.

"The changes won't affect consumers significantly," said Berry. "Taste tests have shown the various marbling levels required under the old system caused very little change in the eating quality of the meat."

He said mandating yield grading will also be required of all beef carcasses receiving a USDA quality grade and conformation no longer will be a factor in final grading because it has had a minimal effect on quality of meat obtained from cattle.

Under the old rules, a carcass which graded less than choice in quality but met choice standards in conformation could be graded choice.

Other changes include the removal of a high maturity category in the good and standard grades and cattle which are 42-48 months old will be graded as commercial utility, cutter and canner.

Idaho water aide lauds court ruling

BOISE (UPI) - The director of the State Water Resources Department described as landmark a decree affecting irrigation water rights that was adapted March 17 by the First Judicial District Court.

R. Keith Huggins said the decree, "the first" completed determination of water rights involving the department under Idaho's 1969 revised adjudication statutes, firmly establishes water rights in the Blanchard Creek basin that were valid by reason of use but had never before been recorded.

In years of short water conditions, water use will be in the order of priority as set forth in the decree.

Huggins said the decree establishes limits for each water user in the Blanchard Creek drainage as to the season of water use, the maximum rate of diversion and "the volume" of water associated with each right. The court decreed the season of use for irrigation purposes as April 1 - Nov. 1 each year.

The volume of water for irrigation is three acre feet per irrigated acre each season.

The department is involved in determining water rights in six other drainage basins - Basin-Creek, Lemhi River, Monroe Creek, Payette River, Snake River and

Theatre moves to Gooding

GOODING — The Antique Festival Theatre has found a permanent home and Tyler Hall, part of the former state tuberculosis hospital, has found a worthwhile use.

Adrieh Bowler, producer-director of the traveling repertory theater company, has announced finalization of a lease for Tyler Hall at the south entrance of Gooding.

The lease was arranged by the Antique Festival Theatre and the Idaho Commission on the Arts and Humanities through the Department of Health and Welfare, owner of the buildings which formerly housed the tuberculosis hospital.

Bowler, Hagerman, said the lease includes all of the first and third floors of the building as well as the west wing on the second floor. The move into Tyler Hall began this week.

He said this will give the group plenty of space for headquarters, storage of equipment and costumes and for rehearsals. He said some of the theater employees may also live in the building.

Negotiations to obtain space in the state-owned buildings began about two years ago when inquiries were made by Bowler. With the help of the Idaho Commission on Arts and Humanities formal negotiations started one year ago.

There are five permanent employees in the Antique Festival Theatre and during the theater season as many as 22 work in the various productions.

Bowler said the use of Tyler Hall will enable the theater to function much easier as it will provide a single headquarters. The theater began in Buhl 19 years ago and has since used the American Legion Hall in Hagerman for storage and other buildings in Buhl and Gooding as they were available.

He said the Antique Festival Theatre hopes to develop community involvement in Gooding and to become a permanent part of the community. Custom-made supplies will be available to high school drama classes and community groups.

He said the theater personnel will work closely with the Department of Health and Welfare to assist them in state supervised programs and projects to give more people an introduction to the arts.

Bowler said the theater has already started its 1974-75 spring tour with a program March 7 in the Boise Schools.

The concept of Antique Festival Theatre, he said, is to bring theater to rural communities where there is no opportunity for this type of entertainment.

Last year the theater presented more than 50 performances before schools and in area communities. This year the summer tour also includes some 50 shows prior to Labor Day when the season ends.

In the present tour which ends May 6 in the Blaine County area, the theater will play before 24 schools and will give performances of "Whose Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" before adult audiences in Idaho communities.

The schools on the spring schedule include several in Oregon as well as Magic Valley and western Idaho.

In addition to the tours, the theater group presents workshops for schools and offers an opportunity for scholarship work for college drama students from many other areas.

TF employes reject union

TWIN FALLS — Route salesmen employed by Troy National Laundry have voted down a proposal for union representation.

The vote was 6 to 2 with 10 employes eligible to vote in the Thursday election. The proposal was for representation by the Teamsters Union.

Election results were announced by the Idaho Employers' Council according to Bill Powell manager of Troy Laundry.

Impounded liquor draws SV suit

HAILLEY — Sun Valley Co. has filed suit here contending the Blaine County prosecutor is holding confiscated liquor unnecessarily.

The suit, filed in Fifth District Court, contends the prosecutor, Tom Campton, has impounded over $8,000 of alcoholic beverages and supplies as evidence in a pending criminal trial of Leonard and Oleta Johnson.

Sun Valley Co. contends it is not necessary to keep items for evidence as pictures together with inventories and affidavits would suffice. The suit charges Sun Valley Co. is in need of the items confiscated.

Campton said Thursday Jim Donart, legal counsel for Oleta Johnson, was not agreeable to release of the alcohol and supplies.

Sun Valley contends they need the hotel rooms in the Sun Valley Inn where the alcohol is stored. In addition, it is not secure where it is held, the complaint states.

The complaint lists confiscated liquor as including bourbon, Irish whiskey, Scotch whiskey, rum, rum-brandy, vermouth, Sherry and miscellaneous supplies.

Leonard Johnson was charged with first and second degree burglary while working as a security guard for Sun Valley last year. His wife, Oleta, was charged with receiving stolen goods.

Security personnel at Sun Valley found thousands of dollars of merchandise which the pair is accused of stealing and holding for their own use.

Secretary Butz answers questions at CSI press conference

Butz flails Congress for deficit spending

In foreign policy, the nation's grade would have to be an A-plus, Butz said. One-half million Americans who were in uniform six years ago are now home, he said. The U.S. is trading with Russia when it was at "sword points."

And the door has been opened partway to China. Six years ago, the U.S. pretended "600 million people in China weren't there," Butz said.

The grade on domestic policy during the Nixon and Ford administration is not as good, Butz continued.

"We flunked Watergate," Butz said, but added it was only a "mildern quiz." Overall all the grade comes out pretty well, to an A-minus or B-plus.

We've stopped bombing on the campuses, Butz told the audience. We've stopped marching in the streets, we've turned the Supreme Court around. And he added, the level of wage payments is higher than any other time in the nation's history except last year.

Butz issued a statement before his speech in which he urged Americans to "get your eyes up and your chin out."

"What we need more than anything else these days is for every American to have confidence in our country," he said.

He said there is nothing wrong with the country "that Americans can't cure."

Despite the nation's strengths, he said, "the very fabric of our nation is being questioned."

In response, he urged Republicans to "stand up for principles" and to "never allow the systematic dismantling of the incentive system."

He urged Republicans to "truly" around President Ford, who has had the courage to tell the nation about the seriousness of its current economic problems.

He praised Ford's "basic honesty" when he told the people that "the state of the union isn't good," and the President's "prescription" of tough medicine to cure the ills.

Utah-Idaho border hit by 'strong' earthquake

(Continued from p. 1) Person said this was the strongest earthquake in the continental United States since the Los Angeles tremor Feb. 9, 1971, which killed 65 persons, injured 1,000 and caused more than $1 billion in damage.

That quake registered 6.5 on the Richter scale, only slightly stronger than the Idaho quake.

Thursday night's quake swayed buildings in downtown Salt Lake City about 100 miles southeast of the epicenter but caused no damage, according to wire service reports.

In the Barley-Rupert area the quake created some panic but "no damage." The most serious effect was jammed telephones which were out of order for about a half hour Thursday night.

Dean Perry, repairman for the Albion Telephone Co., said the quake "first shook the air in the couch." He said he felt two tremors, the first a small one lasting five or six seconds, followed by a much stronger one he estimated lasted 10 to 15 seconds.

In Rupert a Minidoka County police dispatcher said his experiment "just a little swaying," which started for a minute.

Following the tremors most people must have reached for their phones, overloading phone company systems and interrupting service for half an hour.

In "Burrley," a police dispatcher said the phones at the department were out for about 30 minutes.

In Rupert 1,000 telephone lines were lost temporarily as too many people picked up their phones at once, tripping a breaker switch serving about a third of the Project Mutual Co. phones.

Ken Mann, Twin Falls Mountain Bell district manager, said so many people picking up phones at the same time caused so much demand on power that people were unable to hear the dial tone.

Recall progresses

GOODING — The Gooding recall movement against Mayor Leo Rice is Friday.

"We are coming along fine," she said, "and we have gathered almost 200 signatures."

According to state law petitioners have 90 days in which to obtain signatures equaling 20 per cent of the number of electors registered for the last city election. This would require 247 signatures in the Gooding movement.

Doris Vaughan, one of the initiators of the petition, said they plan to obtain 300 names before submitting the document to City Clerk George Silva.

The recall movement officially started March 2 when the leaders found their notice of intent did not list specific allegations of the state code. They had obtained about 100 signatures up to that time.

"We just are keeping busy answering calls for people who want to sign," Mrs. Hastings said. "We don't have any specific deadline; but things are going very well and we're having no trouble getting signatures."

Walk-A-Thon to benefit Lincoln swimming pool

SHOSHONE — A Lincoln County Swimming Pool Walk-A-Thon will be held tomorrow to raise funds for the pool.

The event will start at 10 a.m. to begin the 16-mile trek along US Highway 20-26 back to Shoshone.

Johnson said about $15,000 needs to be raised to complete the $29,000 Olympic-sized pool now under construction on the west side of the Shoshone City Park.

Johnson said the response in pledges to the hikers has been "tremendous."

"I don't think this will do it," he said, "but it should be a tremendous help."

A minimum contribution of 25 cents per mile has been asked of those sponsoring a hiker, he said, with prizes given to hikers who collect the most pledges.

Once completed the pool will be administered by the Lincoln County Recreation District. Funding for the pool, Johnson said, has come from state and federal matching grants in the recreation district, which account for about half of the pool cost, and from fund

Israel sinks vessel

By United Press International
Israel said today one of its navy missile boats shot an Egyptian fishing vessel in the Gulf of Suez a week ago, wounding four Egyptians, one of whom later died.

In London, diplomatic sources told UPI correspondent G.C. Butler that Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev may visit the Middle East to line up Arab support for the Kremlin at the planned Geneva peace conference.

The Israeli military command said the attack on the Egyptian fishing boat occurred March 21, a day before the breakdown of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's attempt to bring about a disengagement agreement between Israel and Egypt.

It said the vessel was released Wednesday night following interrogation of the crew. A command communiqué issued in Tel Aviv said the missile boat spotted a "suspicious looking vessel" with 13 crewmen aboard that was approaching the Israeli-held east coast of the gulf and repeatedly called on it to halt.

"The vessel did not heed the call of an Israeli navy vessel to halt," the communiqué said. "It attempted to escape despite repeated warning signals that were relayed to it and warning shots that were fired."

"The Israeli navy vessel fired in the direction of the Egyptian vessel in order to stop it. Four persons were wounded in the firing."

"They received medical treatment but one of the wounded succumbed to his injuries."

The incident occurred as Israeli soldiers went on precautionary alert along the frontiers with Egypt and Syria, measures in effect before and after Kissinger's departure from the Middle East following 15 days of shuffling between Jerusalem and Assuan, Egypt.

In London, the diplomats said Brezhnev is well enough to visit Egypt, Syria and Iraq to try to win backing for a new Moscow diplomatic initiative to be presented at a Geneva conference, the Soviet Union and the United States would be co-chairmen of the meeting.

raising efforts organized by the Shoshone Rotary Club which was being directed the overall fund raising effort.

The dozen or more prizes will be awarded to individuals and groups competing in Saturday's walk-a-thon.

The top money raising hiker in each of two age groups (18 and under and 19 and over) from each of the three communities of Shoshone, Dietrich and Richfield will receive a family season ticket to the pool. Second and third prizes of individual season tickets will be awarded in each category also.

School classes raising as a group $400 in Shoshone, $250 in Richfield or $200 in Dietrich will be awarded a pass for one-day class swimming party.

Johnson estimated the 16-mile hike will take at least four to five hours, "but there's a job," he said. He urged all participants to "dress warmly and have a good time."

Johnson said he has received personal pledges for his walk of about $200, which is far below his self-imposed quota of $1,000.

"Anyone wishing to sponsor me, my address is Box 176, Shoshone," he said jokingly.

The schedule for the Walk-A-Thon is as follows:
Dietrich walkers should plan to meet at the Dietrich School and to be ready to leave for Richfield at 9:15 a.m.

Richfield walkers should plan to be at the Richfield City Park by 9:45 a.m. to register sponsors.

Shoshone walkers should be at the Lincoln Elementary School by 9 a.m. to register sponsors and board buses for Richfield.

Richfield walkers will leave the Richfield school at 10 a.m. and should arrive at the Shoshone Water Tower about 3 p.m.

Ketchum hires planner

KETCHUM — The city of Ketchum has hired a planner, Jack Peterson, Boise, to help complete the city's master plan.

Peterson estimates the project will be completed at the end of four months. It will cost Ketchum about $7,500.

The planner said he plans to live in Ketchum about one month gathering data.

Public meetings and a hearing will be held before he puts the plan into final form.

Public meetings, he said, will be held to give citizens a chance to contribute to the plan. Peterson is expected to begin work in April.

Nielson was appointed special prosecutor by the attorney general's office after Alfred Barras, Cassia prosecuting attorney, disqualified himself in the case.

Nielson said he would have preferred a conviction on the first degree charge, but indicated he was not unhappy with the jury's verdict.

He said he would have pursued the "persistent violator" charge if permitted by the court

The Billingsleys also testified that Crawford was responsible for firing the shots which allegedly killed Peterson and Salasabala.

In his defense, Rolatto brought out the fact that investigating officers had neglected to take fingerprints at the scene or off the weapon, take blood samples or look for footprints.

In his closing argument, Rolatto told the jury they should not compromise and find Crawford guilty of a lesser offense if evidence for a first degree conviction was not there.

Wooden says UCLA's history carries no weight in NCAA finals Saturday

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — UCLA's Bruins will be appearing in their 11th NCAA basketball tournament final round of four in 12 years Saturday but John Wooden says that doesn't necessarily mean they have any edge in playoff experience.

"By now, with the extra game added this year, all the teams left have played at least three tournament games. Besides, I'd rather have talent. The one Bruin who was a regular all last season is Dave Meyers, a 6-9 senior forward and an All-American this year. However, Meyers has been hampered by a severe charley horse suffered against Washington at Seattle Feb. 22. He will not be at peak condition against the Cardinals."

With Indiana dispatched from the tournament by Kentucky last weekend, UCLA has been installed as the team to beat here. The Bruins' 27-year coach won't have any of it, though.

"I think Kentucky should be the favorite in the tournament because of the draw," said Louisville coach Dennie Crum, alluding to the fact that the Wildcats will be matched against Syracuse.

Clemency plan near end

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At midnight Monday, the initiative for any new amnesty proposals moves from the executive to the legislative branch of the government.

After the applications have had varying degrees of approval from any of the three parts of President Ford's conditional clemency program will be accepted.

The parts — administered by the Presidential Clemency Board, the Justice Department and the Defense Department — have had varying degrees of approval from any of the three parts of President Ford's conditional clemency program will be accepted.

The Justice Department says only 12 percent of the 4,300 unconvicted draft evaders have applied to its part of the program. The Defense Department has received applications from more than 100 percent of the 1,000 unconvicted deserters eligible for participation.

The Presidential Clemency Board, which handles applications from among the 100,000 men convicted of draft violation or desertion during the Vietnam war era, has received 16,300 applications — about 16 percent.

The President has acted on 65 clemency applications referred to him by the board. Several hundred others are ready for presidential action.

Legislation has been introduced in both the House and the Senate either to extend the Ford program, which requires alternate service in return for clemency, or to grant universal and unconditional amnesty to everyone in any legal jeopardy arising out of Vietnam-related offenses.

Clemency Board Chairman Charles Goodell said Thursday he does not believe in universal and unconditional amnesty but "personally" favors an extension of Ford's conditional amnesty program.

Goodell said he has asked President Ford to double the size of his membership board so it can process by the time it goes out of business in September all the applications filed by March 31.

Antiperspirant makers sweat ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration has decided to take no immediate action on a plea from its own experts to prohibit the sale of antiperspirants.

Instead, the agency said it will wait several weeks until the committee — that recommended the action gives it a full report on the situation.

The proposal, made in a letter to the FDA Commissioner Alexander Schmidt by a panel appointed by the FDA to review deodorant and antiperspirant products for safety and effectiveness. The recommendation was recommended this week to FDA Commissioner Alexander Schmidt by a panel appointed by the FDA to review deodorant and antiperspirant products for safety and effectiveness.

turned up adverse reactions in animals.

Procter and Gamble said the review panel's recommendation to Schmidt is based on "pure speculation" — not supported by scientific data. It said it has complete faith in the safety of its products.

The FDA said there have been no documented cases of injury to humans, although "one study on monkeys did show lung problems associated with sprays containing zinc." It said it would like to have the panel's final report — on whether to ban the products — in a matter of weeks.

Executive Dish Calum Goadge, who invited members of Congress to breakfast meetings at the White House, started his guests one morning by pouring coffee and cream into his saucer. In confusion several others at the table did the same. Without a word, the President placed his saucer on the floor for his dog.

Ex-trooper charged

LENNOX, Calif. (UPI) — A former highway patrolman was arrested Thursday on charges of being the head of the biggest prostitution ring in Southern California.

Hofack J. McKenna, 32, who was dismissed from the patrol after he was arrested for credit card fraud, was held under $15,000 bail on charges of conspiracy to commit pimping, pandering and prostitution. Los Angeles County Sheriff's investigators said McKenna was suspected of being the head of a syndicate that ran brothels and "sex centers" that took in an estimated $100,000 a month. Deputies Tuesday night raided nine sex centers, believed to be part of the operation, in the southern Los Angeles area.

A spokesman for the Highway Patrol said McKenna, of 2501 Orleans, became an ex-trooper in June 1967, but was dismissed in 1972 after being arrested in Palm Springs on charges of stealing and forging credit cards.

43 bills signed by Gov. Andrus

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus signed into law 43 bills passed by the recent legislature, including those which provide a presidential primary, malpractice insurance for Idaho doctors and a boost in pay for state employees.

The malpractice bills would provide for a $50,000 liability in a medical malpractice suit against an individual and that the doctors would have insurance for the next two years.

The malpractice "problem" arose when Argonaut Insurance Co., which provides the medical malpractice insurance for two-thirds of Idaho's doctors, announced that it was discontinuing the insurance as of June 1.

"Approved by Andrus were the presidential primary measure similar to the proposal that the Young Republicans attempted to get on the ballot last November. The bill provides for a presidential primary the fourth Tuesday in May and every four years with 80 percent of the delegates committed to the candidate.

The pay proposal which the governor signed would give state employees an additional $20 per month. Earlier in the session the legislature also passed a resolution directing the Joint Finance, Appropriations, Committee to set up the appropriations for the coming fiscal year with a 3.5 percent increase plus reallocation.

Prison probe data expected in April

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General Wayne Kidwell expects a final report of the governor's special commission investigating reported abuses at the Idaho State Penitentiary by the middle of next month.

Kidwell, who was named chairman of the independent commission by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, said Thursday he has three investigators at the prison looking into inmate allegations.

Earlier this month, inmates at the prison submitted Andrus a list of alleged violations of Idaho law.

Andrus appointed the board of corrections, which some of the allegations had been directed toward, to look into the problems.

Later, the governor appointed an independent study group composed of the attorney general, the state treasurer and correctional officers from Oregon, Washington and Texas to look into the alleged problems.

Andrus said he had faith in the findings of the corrections board. However, he said he set up the commission because of "the little things" he was investigating "itself."

He said he didn't want this and wanted to begin if there was merit to the allegations.

Basque Day planned

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has urged that Idaho observe Easter Sunday as Basque day.

Andrus urged Thursday that "Egg Sunday" is the traditional holiday celebrated by the Basque of the world in commemoration of Basque nationalism.

"The Basque people for the last three centuries, but today more than ever, individually and as a group, are fighting for the principles of democratic freedom against the tyranny which is trying to subjugate and destroy them," Andrus said.

Tricky thieves take tire, rim

SHOSHONE (UPI) — Thieves who stole a tire and rim from a car belonging to Pete Gauge, Shoshone, had to be both strong and light footed, police surmise.

Lincoln County Sheriff Bill Anderson says he has no idea how thieves were successful in taking the tire and rim. They had to elevate the car to take the tire but there was no trace of the use of a jack in the fresh show that fell Wednesday evening and Thursday morning.

The tire was gone when Gauge got up in the morning.

'Scoff-law' unsigned

BOISE (UPI) — Without his signature, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus let become law Thursday a bill which retains Idaho's 55 mile per hour speed limit as it now exists.

But Andrus said he could not approve the "scoff-law" provisions of the bill.

It was the same law which Andrus let become law without his signature a year ago. He said the "unusual nature of this bill causes me to deviate from my policy."

"While this bill mandates the nationally-established 55 mile per hour speed limit in Idaho and thus protects our federal highway funding, the sanctions provided there in a $3 maximum fine without loss of violation point counts makes enforcement difficult," Andrus said.

"I cannot endorse the scoff-law provision of this bill," he said.

Potato giveaway slated today

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — At least part of the farmers planning to participate in a potato-giveaway in Boise and Salt Lake City today headed their trucks and left their farms Thursday although bad weather delayed the departure of others.

Inspectors stood by at the area where farmers had dumped potatoes in Louisville, near Idaho Falls, to check on the potatoes that would be shipped across the state line to make sure they met agriculture standards for interstate commerce.

The farmers earlier planned to burn their surplus potatoes to draw attention to the plight that they cannot get money out of the crop this year.

A letter to the governor from the farmers in southern Idaho said they would burn the potatoes rather than ruin their potato pits with the spuds rotting there unused.

Gov. Cecil Andrus urged the farmers to find a way to draw attention to the plight but get the potatoes into the hands of people who are hungry rather than just destroy the food and the farmers changed their plans from a burn to a giveaway.

Kent Remington of St. Anthony, Idaho, said he was prepared to leave at 4 p.m. Thursday to truck his potatoes to Boise for the distribution today.

A similar giveaway is planned for Salt Lake City where the potatoes will be distributed Saturday afternoon from a parking lot at the City County Hall of Justice. The Salt Lake City Commission granted permission for the use of the parking lot.

In Boise, the farmers have been given permission to park their trucks in front of the State Capitol for distribution of the potatoes.
