Into exile
WITH SADNESS, Cambodian President Lon Nol bid farewell to his nation today. He flew into exile from Phnom Penh, paving the way for possible peace talks with Communist-led insurgents. (UPI)

Tearful Nol departs; talks loom
PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A tearful President Lon Nol flew into exile today in a move that opened the way for possible peace talks with Communist-led insurgents.

He departed to the sound of three rebel rockets exploding near his plane.

As he left, possibly never to return, Cambodian military commanders moved troops to block breaches in the city's defense line to keep Khmer Rouge rebels from breaking through. The rebels are within four miles of the besieged capital.

The ailing president flew first to the U.S. B-52 air base at Utopia in Thailand aboard an Air Cambodge Convair jet with his family and staff members and then on to Indonesia. Indonesian Foreign Minister Adam Malik said he would remain about 10 days before continuing to the United States.

Before he left, Lon Nol reviewed a guard-of-honor drawn up in the palace courtyard and bowed with clasped hands in a Buddhist tribute before the Cambodian flag, tears in his eyes. He then boarded a helicopter with his wife and three children for the airport. Both the marshal and his wife were weeping openly.

When Lon Nol finally arrived, Dean strode out to his plane, shook his hand briefly and then watched his aircraft lift off from the dangerous runway. (Continued on p. 2)

Dog trainer faces charge
TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls dog trainer, Sharon Suzanne Quikel, 20, has been charged with assaulting police officers with a deadly weapon.

The woman was stopped on Blue Lakes Boulevard North Saturday night by city officers on suspicion of failing to stop at a minor accident.

The woman was accompanied by a German shepherd dog which she allegedly ordered to attack the officers. The dog was shot and killed when it attacked officer Gary White.

Mrs. Quikel was also charged with leaving the scene of an accident and being drunk in public. Bond on the assault charge was set at $10,000 and on the two other charges at $2500.

Mrs. Quikel was in the Twin Falls County jail this morning in lieu of bond and awaiting court appearance.

Reds capture 3 key Viet coastal cities

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese troops and infantry today overran the coastal cities of Qui Nhon, Tuy Hoa and Nha Trang as government defenses crumbled and the threat to Saigon increased by the hour. Rumors of a possible coup swept the capital.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu abruptly canceled a meeting with the U.S. Chief of Staff Gen. Frederick Weyand and President Ford's special envoy on the eve of his departure for the United States. No public explanation was given.

Former Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau, a militant Buddhist who helped engineer the overthrow of the late President Ngo Dinh Diem a decade ago, joined Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky today in asking Thieu to resign. Ky abruptly cancelled an interview with foreign newsmen, saying he was too tired.

Hanoi Radio demanded Thieu's overthrow but offered to negotiate a peace with a new government in Saigon.

In a broadcast monitored in Tokyo it called for the overthrow of the government and the settlement of political questions in Vietnam and called for "an administration standing for peace, independence, democracy, (and) national concord."

It also repeated Hanoi's seven-point program of leniency for soldiers, police and officials who defect to the Viet Cong.

While government troops abandoned millions of dollars of U.S. equipment in their panicky flight — some sources said more than $1 billion worth — the first plane of a U.S. emergency airlift arrived in Saigon today with 14,105 mm howitzers and ammunition.

It was a drop in the bucket for the defense of Saigon where panic was increasing and foreigners began fleeing the country. President Ford says the current debate on failure of the U.S. Congress to grant more military aid to the Saigon government.

Military sources said Communist tanks swept through Nha Trang's streets virtually unopposed today as government troops fled, and Communist soldiers broke into the town jail and freed all the Viet Cong prisoners inside.

Utility mum on plans

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power isn't talking about some of its plans for a proposed coal-fired power plant near Boise.

The Times-News sent a list of written questions to Idaho Power President James Bruce on March 21. The questions concerned a number of issues involving the plant which have not been clarified by the company. The company response was received Monday.

In reply to one central question, Idaho Power refused to pledge that the plant will meet strict Class II federal air pollution standards, but did say it expects the plant to meet those standards.

The company refused to give an answer to four questions, and answered four others.

Text of questions and answers is on p. 3.

Idaho Power:

- won't say whether it acknowledges the authority of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to order the plant to meet strict air pollution standards.
- refuses to say whether the company will try to have the Boise area redesignated as a high-pollution area to accommodate its plant.
- won't say whether the company has ordered equipment for additional plants elsewhere in the state that have not been announced.
- refuses to say whether the company, which says its proposed plant is not "under construction" under the terms of Idaho law, will try to use a federal air pollution loophole claiming the plant is "under construction" according to federal law.
- Idaho Power did give some answers:

The utility:

- said any further units added to the Pioneer plant will meet the federal class II standards.
- said the company is committed to use of coal-fired power, whether or not such plants might be required to include expensive air pollution equipment.

Rocky's CIA probe wins more time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has given the Rockefeller commission an additional two months to investigate charges of illegal domestic spying by the Central Intelligence Agency.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller announced Monday that Ford had signed an Executive order extending the commission until June 6. The commission had been scheduled to wind up its work Friday, but last week its members voted to ask Ford for more time.

Although Rockefeller said the panel's mandate was not expanded, commission sources said it needed the extra time to look into charges the CIA plotted the assassination of foreign leaders.

"Work is progressing well, and the final date will be met," Rockefeller told reporters after announcing that Ford had granted the extension.

"We are reviewing any area where there is a possibility of impingement of domestic statutes," he said.

The panel also will look into the partially successful recovery of a diesel-powered Soviet submarine in the Pacific last summer, sources close to the panel said. The commission's mandate "limits it to domestic activities, but that is being interpreted to include operations planned and organized in Washington."

A panel of four professors Monday gave the commission conflicting testimony about how to prevent the CIA from invading the privacy of Americans. All urged that some sort of group be created to monitor CIA's spy activities. The disagreed whether this should be in or outside CIA.

Arthur Miller, a Harvard law professor, said CIA could set up its own monitoring board, perhaps made up of six security-cleared citizens and six agents. "Their goal would be to try to eliminate gossip and such things as surveillance of political activity and social activism."

William Van Alstyne, a Duke University law professor, said the monitoring body should be outside CIA. "Congress has got to take more responsibility and do more reporting to the public on the nonsecurity matters involving the CIA."

Edward Bloustein, president of Rutgers University, favored an independent monitoring agency named by the executive, legislative, and judicial branches.

Treasure doesn't sway Rupert youths' honesty

BURLEY — Two Rupert high school seniors who found and returned $200,000 in diamonds and rubies have been rewarded with jade and gold jewelry worth about $20.

Martin Barclay and Julie Nielson, both Rupert, found the jewels in a small pouch on a table at the Grizzly Bear Pizza Parlor in Burley Friday and turned them over to the assistant manager Chris Brower, Burley, 19.

Barclay today credited membership in the Mormon Church and his upbringing for the decision of the two to turn in the fortune in jewels.

He said he decided to turn in the jewels because "as soon as I saw them I knew they were very valuable."

Burley police said the jewels, some 4,000 diamonds, rubies and sapphires had been left on the table by a jewel courier who apparently dropped them while in the diner.

Barclay and Miss Nielson came into the pizza parlor and sat at a corner table.

"The small pouch was on the table in clear view when we sat down. At first we thought it was a small pocket calculator and kept it there thinking the owner would come in and claim it," Barclay said.

After ordering and eating their meal, Barclay said, no one had approached the table to ask about the article so they opened it and found a paper wrapped around some of the jewels and labeled "ruby."

One of the stones, a large ruby was reportedly valued at $15,000.

"I knew this was something valuable so I closed it up and didn't check any further," Barclay said.

He said the two waited a while longer and discussed what should be done with the pouch.

"We knew Chris (Brower) and knew he was honest so we decided to leave them with him," the Rupert high school student said.

Car crushes Carey youth

CAREY — A Carey youth was crushed beneath his car Sunday when a jack apparently slipped while he was working.

Rory Sparks, 15, was found dead about 7 p.m. Sunday.

According to the sheriff's report, the sophomore at Carey High School was attempting to take the engine from his car when the accident occurred. Deputy Sheriff Don Green said in his report two front tires on the car were flat also.

The coroner's report said the boy's neck and rib cage were crushed. Green said the boy had no pulse when he checked him at 7 p.m. after being notified of the accident by the boy's father, Louis Sparks.

Blood was found around the boy's mouth and nose, Green said, indicating internal bleeding. Green said in his report he could not shove his fingers between the boy and the car when he arrived at the scene.

Sparks was last seen alive about 2 p.m. by a friend.

Funeral services are pending at Wood River Chapel.

airport, where up to 30 rockets fell in the first five hours today.

"It won't have an adverse effect," Deun said when asked about the significance of Lon Nol's departure. Cambodian sources say the U.S. embassy, led by Deun's played a significant role in persuading Lon Nol to leave.

The Cambodian president was considered a major stumbling block to the possibility of peace negotiations. The Cambodian insurgents and Prince Norodom Sihanouk, their nominal leader, have said they would not negotiate with the Lon Nol regime.

Despite Lon Nol's departure, most political and diplomatic observers expressed belief that the insurgents will not agree to negotiate a peace settlement—especially considering their overwhelming military advantage.

Rebel troops today partially overran one of the government's last provincial strongholds, the Mekong River town of Neak Luong where an estimated 60,000 troops and refugees have been entrenched for two months.

Street fighting was reported in the city 32 miles from Phnom Penh and the military sources said. They're in control of a good part of the town, they may have half of it. It looks like its going to fall.

Even more significant, the sources said, the fall of Neak Luong would free thousands of insurgent troops to turn the attention to Phnom Penh.

Within hours after Lon Nol departed Phnom Penh, India recognized Prince Sihanouk's Royal Government-of-National Union of Cambodia based in Peking. The Indian decision was announced in a joint communique issued at the end of a four-day visit to New Delhi by the Sihanouk government's foreign minister, Santa Chhak.

Lon Nol said he was appointing the president of the senate, Lt. Gen. Sau Khmakoy, to be caretaker president in his absence as provided in the constitution.

"I appeal to you to cooperate with the government in resolving the inner problem and defending national integrity," he said in a speech released after his departure.

Israelis move toward flexible policies

By United Press International
Israel today embarked on a campaign to appear more flexible in attempts to reach an interim peace agreement with Egypt. Government officials in Jerusalem it is prepared to make concessions on the Sinai in exchange for a broader settlement.

"The appearance of flexibility within the government emerged as the United States sought to reassess its Middle East policy. U.S. ambassadors from three Arab nations and Israel were called home to assist in the reassessment by the National Security Council. With Israel apparently easing its stand, Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Fahd called on the Arab nations today to form a united front for the resumption of the Arab-Israeli peace talks in Geneva.

In an interview published in the Beirut newspaper, Al-Akhbar said the Arab states had to interpret Israel's motives following the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's peace mission. Fahd also is first Deputy Premier of Saudi Arabia and is generally believed to be emerging as the power behind the throne.

"Does Israel want to increase Arab disagreements through arguments over who was right and who was wrong or who was victorious and who failed?" Fahd asked.
"Then let's spoil Israel's plan by stopping any agreements. Let us concentrate our dialogue on the next step. Let us agree now on our aim for the Geneva conference."
During the Kissinger talks that collapsed March 22, Israel said it offered to withdraw from the Golan Heights and the Abu Rodos oil fields in Egypt. Egypt refused.

Today an Israeli official said Israel is willing to make a wider territorial offer in a larger scale agreement for more meaningful political commitments by Egypt.

"We are not at the stage of offering specific territorial lines but we are willing to go for a larger scale agreement, even larger than the one described before the talks were suspended, for more meaningful commitments to peace by Egypt," the official said.

"Territory is not the problem," he said. "Political commitments by Egypt are the problem."

The Israeli sources said the emergence of flexibility is based on a statement Monday by Foreign Minister Yigal Allon in which he said Israel would be prepared for a broader pact if Egypt would be prepared to enter into more extensive negotiations based on non-belligerence.

Only slight hope left for DaNang through

By United Press International
American officials say only a slight hope is left for more than one million South Vietnamese refugees who want to get out of Communist-controlled Da Nang.

Communist artillery fire Monday chased off an international flotilla of more than 20 ships that had been requested of the city, which holds Communist troops Sunday.
Daniel Parker of the U.S. Agency for International Development said in Washington one ship had been left in international waters off Da Nang "for anyone who can get offshore and get out to it."

"It is both practical and a symbol of hope," he said. "The South Vietnamese government Monday called on South Vietnam to let the refugees go and asked the United Nations to help. Hanoi Radio said the North Vietnamese government would not go along with a cease-fire."

Deputy Prime Minister Phan Quang Dan told reporters in Saigon an estimated 120,000 people managed to get out of Da Nang, most of them to refugee camps near Cam Ranh City, 185 miles northeast of Saigon.

"We are facing a tough situation now," he said. "Our plans were being readjusted every day and most of them cannot be carried out because of the fast changing military situation."
U.S. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim responded with an appeal "all who may be in a position to help."

A U.N. spokesman said earlier that the world body's High Commissioner for Refugees had been in contact with the Viet Cong office in Geneva, but he would not disclose what was said. Parker, President Ford's coordinator for international disaster assistance, said he believed land routes were still open out of Qui Nhon and other cities to the south. His comments came before the report Qui Nhon had fallen.

He said Nha Trang on the central coast was still under government control and full of refugees from the northern coast and the central highlands, areas that fell to the Communists earlier in March.

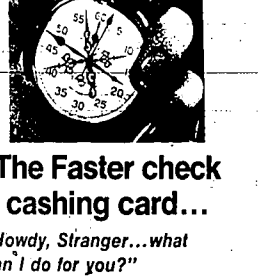

Asked if there would be a repeat at Nha Trang of the chaos that disrupted air and sea efforts to evacuate Da Nang before it fell, Parker said: "The pressures on Da Nang were so great that complete control was lost early."
"Control is being maintained in the other cities except for Qui Nhon, there is not significant military pressure in the area. Therefore, we can assume that there will be less panic."
Parker said civilian U.S. authorities were in charge of the evacuation and vowed not to let any of the rescue ships get into danger. "We are playing it completely safe," he said.

The ships off Da Nang were forced to suspend rescue operations Monday because of rocket-propelled grenade fire at small boats carrying the refugees out from shore.

Hanoi forces overrun 3 Viet coastal cities

The province chief made a frantic telephone call to Saigon command headquarters, the sources said. "I am leaving," he was quoted as saying. "The situation is hopeless." Then he hung up without waiting for orders.
The government abandoned Qui Nhon, South Vietnam's fourth-largest city, 250 miles north of Saigon, without a fight, and the loss of Binh Dinh province became inevitable. Tuy Hoa, 44 miles south of Qui Nhon, was evacuated by boat this morning, military sources said.
The attack on Nha Trang, 188 miles northeast of Saigon, forced the government to move its headquarters for the central region of South Vietnam 20 miles south to Cam Ranh Bay, military sources said.
They said the only effective government units in the Nha Trang area were rangers involved in heavy fighting north of the city—near a flight training center and the town of Ninh Hoa.

Khanh Hoa Province, once served as the headquarters for the U.S. Green Berets in Vietnam. It has a population of 170,000 persons, swollen by 60,000 refugees from northern areas seized by the Communists.
It was the 15th provincial capital lost to the Communists, who completely control all of 13 provinces, and more than half of South Vietnam's territory.
There was no indication how many Americans from the U.S. Consulate in Nha Trang were in the city when the Communists moved in. Most had already fled, Americans at Qui Nhon and Tuy Hoa already had left.
Military sources said the airport, located on the beach at the eastern end of the town, was still secure late in the afternoon. Air America officials said they had not canceled a scheduled evening evacuation flight.

Questions answered on IP plant

Editor's note: The following is the first of a series of questions about the proposed Pioneer plant near Boise submitted on March 21 to Idaho Power President James Bruce. The answers were given in a letter received Monday and written by Idaho Power News Director Robert Brown Jr.

Idaho Power officials have refused to discuss the questions and answers further, and would not match answers with the questions. The Pioneer News therefore has taken the liberty of aligning questions with their answers.

1. Question: Will Idaho Power make a public pledge to meet Class II federal pollution standards for the Pioneer plant, even if that would require additional pollution control and even if the federal Class II standards are not binding on the firm?

Answer: Idaho Power Co. has stated in its filing to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for a Certificate of Public Convenience and Necessity on Nov. 8, 1974, Article 11. The generating plant will be designed, constructed and operated to meet air and water quality standards pursuant to the applicable laws, rules and regulations. The company has repeated this statement many times and reiterates it at the present time.

In our opinion, the goal to be used at the Pioneer plant, with a sulfur content of about one-half of one percent, and the design of the equipment, including pollution-abatement facilities, will allow the plant to meet Class II standards as now designated in the Clean Air Act.

2. Question: Does Idaho Power acknowledge the authority of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to order that Pioneer meet Class II pollution standards or their equivalent, even though Pioneer may be exempt from the new federal significant deterioration regulations?

Answer: Technical hearings, which will be held by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, will develop testimony that will be used by the regulatory agencies in the decision-making process as to whether additional pollution abatement equipment is needed or required to protect the public. It should be remembered that it is our customers who will ultimately pay the cost of such equipment if it is determined to be necessary.

3. Question: If Idaho Power adds additional units to the Pioneer plant at a later date, as planned, would this pollution meet Class II standards? Will the company make a public pledge to that effect?

Answer: Though we have no current plans for units beyond the two 500,000-kilowatt units already filed on, any other units also would meet the Class II standards as now designated.

4. Question: In the event scrubbers were required for Pioneer at Orchard, would the company spread or move the proposed units to separate sites in Idaho to meet Class II standards without scrubbers?

Answer: Idaho Power has repeatedly said — most recently in a clear-cut declaration dated March 21 — that the million-kilowatt Pioneer plant is being designed to accommodate sulfur dioxide abatement equipment if it is found to be necessary. In this regard, the location of the proposed generating facilities for the Pioneer plant at Orchard has not and will not be predicated on whether scrubbers may or may not be required.

5. Question: In the event state or federal pollution requirements — at — Pioneer require scrubbers, will Idaho Power change to other power sources such as nuclear energy — or is the company committed to coal-fired energy alone for Pioneer?

Answer: Idaho Power has extensively studied alternative power sources such as nuclear, geothermal and others. It is the company's opinion and decision that the construction of Pioneer's two 500,000-kilowatt "coal-fired" units represent the only feasible energy source to meet projected customer demands on schedule.

6. Question: Does Mr. Bruce agree with Mr. Robert Brown's statement that no boilers or generators or other equipment has been ordered on the proposed third and fourth units of Pioneer? Aside from American Falls generators, have any other plant boilers or equipment been ordered for power plants at any other Idaho locations?

Answer: None.

7. Question: Should Idaho Power be required to meet Class II standards or their equivalent by state or federal authorities, would Idaho Power attempt to have the Orchard site redesignated to a less strict pollution class, such as Class III?

Answer: None.

8. Question: Does Idaho Power consider the first two units of the Pioneer plant to be "under construction" at this date?

Answer: As far as the matter of "commencement-of-construction" is concerned, we do not consider those units to be under construction in the context of 61-526, Idaho Code.

9. Question: If the answer to question 8 is yes, is this construction in violation of chapter 61, section 526 of the Idaho Code?

Answer: Same as answer to question 8.

10. Question: If the answer to question 8 is no, then will Idaho Power agree to be bound by the federal Class II pollution limits for its Pioneer plant?

Answer: Same as answer to question 8.

GINA, a 3-year-old, 145-pound St. Bernard, looks dourly at her 14 pups as if she can't believe they're all hers. The seven males and seven females were born three weeks ago and are a big responsibility since they dry up her milk in about an hour and they feed about three or four times a day. The pups' father is a 240-pound St. Bernard. (UPI)

Jerome annex dedicated

JEROME — Special dedication ceremonies were conducted today for the new $500,000 annex to the Jerome County courthouse.

Participating in the ceremony were county commissioners Claude Bernard, Milford Jones and John Van Orman; County Clerk Virgilina Bicketts; Jerome Chief of Police, Howard Dubois; Jerome County Sheriff, Elza Hall, and county employees.

Special tours of the annex and remodeled section of the courthouse are being conducted until 7 p.m. today.

The new annex, which took over a year to complete, houses a new maximum security prison shared by the city police and sheriff's department. Both departments have offices in the remodeled clerk's office of the old courthouse building.

The county clerk's office has been moved to space on the top floor of the annex.

A new magistrate courtroom, located in the old public health nurses office, has just been finished and will be open to the public.

Still incomplete is remodeling of offices for the Department of Health and Welfare. These offices will be in the basement.

The special tours will include visits to the new jail facility.

Devoted to the citizens of Magic Valley... William E. Howard, Publisher... Richard G. High, Managing Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In defense of the administration's embattled policy on both Southeast Asia and the Middle East, Secretary of State Kissinger suggested several general principles to guide us through our present troubles...

useful to go back to first principles, and taken separately, these Kissinger maxims may be historically valid. But taken together, they raise more questions than they answer.

As Kissinger believes, it probably has to begin at home. "What kind of people are we? Well, for the moment we are a little mixed up. We have over a percent of our people unemployed."

responsible even for its own mistakes. Kissinger's "general principles," good as they are in the abstract, simply don't meet the realities in Southeast Asia, and even those the even more serious political and military realities in the Middle East...

Communist squeeze

New York Times Traditionally Communist party congresses are occasions for inspiring the faithful for emphasizing the positive, and for lambasting about past achievements and planned future accomplishments...

Long standing problem

WASHINGTON — How may the people rid themselves of a bad federal judge? The question is almost as old as the Constitution itself. It defies a wholly satisfactory answer, but a reasonably satisfactory answer is being sought.

judges whose behavior manifestly is anything but "good." The sticking point for many observers lies in the word "removal." Authorities disagree. Such scholars as Phillip Kurland and Martha Tizick contend that federal judges may actually be removed only by impeachment.

The Vortex

Inaccurate evaluation

Chattanooga News-Free Press With Middle East negotiations having not produced another agreement as a step toward real peace, it is being said by some that "Henry Kissinger has failed."

Other opinion

Los Angeles Times The news from Vietnam is somber, heart-rending and inevitable. The world is seeing the ravages of a brutal, unrelenting, far-out-drunk. The Constitution says that federal judges "shall hold their offices during good behavior," which plainly implies that they shall cease to hold their offices when their behavior is bad.

Boys will be boys, even in Camelot

Washington Star Syndicate We were talking about the perspectives on Nixon inadvertently revealed by Washington Post mogul Benjamin Bradlee, in excerpts from an intimate book on John Kennedy abstracted in the current Playboy.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

"The President asked if we were going to take a look at Rockefeller's war record. It is interesting how often Kennedy referred to the war records of political opponents. He had often mentioned Eddie McCormack and Hubert Humphrey in this connection, and here he was at it again with Rockefeller."

Political-money battles may destroy UNESCO

Publicly, UNESCO operatives at the East River headquarters of the United Nations are saying only that "the medal is not going to be sold in the United States." All the inquiries are directed to UNESCO's office in Paris, and no explanations are offered.

Berry's World

No — this one has the VICE presidential seal on it. I'll bet what's his name lost it here's a couple of years ago!

Evans and Novak

The reason for the switch was a last-minute decision at Bankers Trust not to market the medal in the New York area. Under the original deal, agreed to on Feb. 18, the bank would have distributed brochures at its 122 branches explaining the purpose of the medal, with a coupon to be clipped and sent in to UNESCO for the medal.

Evans and Novak

many of whom would be repelled by such a helping hand from the organization that, on the votes of Communist-bloc and third-world members, has imposed what amounts to political sanctions against Israel. That vote resulted from complaints that the Israeli government is "altering the historic features" of the city of Jerusalem.

Evans and Novak

Consider the following: Item: Fabergé, the New York cosmetic house, has cancelled a $5,000 prize for a UNESCO art exhibit and is dropping its sponsorship of the whole project.

Evans and Novak

But that is only the beginning of what some experts fear is turning into an anti-UNESCO campaign in the West which could spell its doom.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: After three generations of Johns, my son prefers a nickname. Anything but "John."
He was named John by his father, grandfather and great-grandfather. Also after Saint John the Baptist. I told Abby: how did that ridiculous lad ever get started? It has become such an accepted part of our language now that even visiting friends have asked: "May I use your John?" I reply: "Of course not!"
What is wrong with using "restroom, bathroom, or lavatory"? Please, anything but John.
WIFE AND MOTHER OF A JOHN

Toilet synonyms

DEAR WIFE: My consultant on words, Ted Bernstein, informs me that since the toilet times, there have been countless synonyms for "toilet" because people were reluctant to use that word. He suspects that "John" came from the word "Jakes," an old English word which means potty. Jakes is a far, cry from John, however. Perhaps someone from Flushing has the answer.

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe it. Here I am, a 78-year-old woman, writing to Dear Abby! At age 32, I was married by a Presbyterian minister.

Before we were married, my fiancé and I discussed our true feelings for each other. We admitted we weren't wildly in love, but we felt that we could be good companions, work together in a compatible way, and have a good life together. And it turned out that way.

I had a very successful but unfruitful marriage. We were very successful in obtaining property, accumulated acreage, and became financially well off.

Now, my oldest son's wife tells me that because I married without being in love, I lived the life of a prostitute. She keeps throwing it up to my son that his mother was a "prostitute."

Abby, my husband and I lived together in peace and harmony for 40 years, and we would be together today but death took him from me. Meanwhile this daughter-in-law calls me a prostitute because of my very stormy marriage, and if that's the result of my "love-match" I will take my kind of marriage any day.

Would you say that a woman who married without being passionately in love led the life of a prostitute?
NEEDS BACKING UP

DEAR NEEDS: Certainly not! Your reasons for marrying were nobody's business but your own. Too bad you didn't keep it that way.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, we had a gathering of friends and family in our home. One of the guests removed his shoes and stockings and proceeded to put his foot up on the coffee table on which I had chips, dips and food for nibbling. (He said his feet itched.)

My husband and I were both upset, but neither of us said anything because we felt it would have been poor manners to correct a guest in our home.

We felt that his wife should have quietly said something to him, but since she didn't, we let it go.
Later, another guest told us that we were wrong to have ignored such gross behavior. How do you vote?
HOSTESS

"DEAR HOSTESS: With you. Don't invite him back.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lucky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

admonitions. He won the king of spades, played a club to the king and a club to the ace. When that suit failed to split, he tried the diamond finesse. The result — down one.

Since he was always going to make the hand if clubs split; declarer should have given himself an extra chance by FIRST playing the heart suit.

With a three-three division, the ninth trick would be assured. The extra dividend occurred here. With the queen and 10 falling in the East hand the play of the third round of the suit toward the nine in dummy will produce the game-going trick.

Bridge is a game full of adages. "Second hand low, third hand high," "never an honor with an honor," "aces are made to take kings," "lead from longest and strongest." These all form a litany that makes a Gregorian chant seem brief. One of the standard admonitions for declarers is to attack your best suit.

"But just as good declarers learn to postpone finesses until other avenues of play are exhausted, they should also be alert to instances when weaker suits should be attacked first in the play of a hand."

Today's declarer was a firm believer in adages and standard

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've had a sore throat for over a month. In fact, it seems as though I've always had one. I have a second pair of tonsils on the back of my tongue. The first tonsils were removed. Is this possible? I have perfect health other than for his. Could these tonsils be diseased? A.P.

Second time around

By George Thosteson.

Everyone has his second pair of tonsils. They are called lingual tonsils to distinguish them from the palatine tonsils, the pair that is seen prominently at the rear of the throat, the ones that usually cause the most problems.

The lingual tonsils were there at the time you had your earlier tonsillectomy, but they probably were not so prominent and thus were of no need for their removal.

The lymphoid tissue, of which tonsils are composed, has a capability of regeneration, and this seems to be more pronounced in some persons than in others. Thus it is possible for tonsils to come back. But from your letter regeneration does not seem to be the problem. I believe you are referring to those lingual tonsils.

With your history of chronic sore throat, you could be dealing with a recurring infection of these tonsils. You should return to your doctor. Removal would depend upon the size and the degree of infection.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When a woman has a bladder infection, why would the urine be somewhat pinkish? Also, why the great pain after urinating, and the call to urinate every two or three minutes with only a drop or two being expelled each time? Almost unbearable pain went along with mine.

What causes the pain? Do the kidneys swell up or something? — D.D.

An infection anywhere in the urinary tract will, if not treated promptly, lead to an inflammation of tissues. The pinkish tinge of your urine when you had an infection was probably caused by bleeding from the infection site.

The same applies to the burning sensation during urination and afterwards — a result of the acid content of the urine irritating blood cells irritating damaged tissues. The priority of the stream can be caused by inadequate fluid intake as well as frequency of urination.

The symptoms you describe have been experienced by me and, having been through all this, I can attest to the fact that it can be a perfect nuisance and a quite uncomfortable one, too.

Dear Doctor: My problem is my feet and legs. They have been swelling up two or three times their size. I also awake and sometimes my face is all swollen.

Please don't tell me to see a doctor. I am 62 years old, and I have tried to get Social Security or disability, even food stamps. They have turned me down on everything. I can't work.

People have been telling me I have a disease of the liver or kidneys. Anything you can tell me would be greatly appreciated. — Mr. F.A.

What else can I tell you but to see a doctor? Although you have been denied Social Security, there are other agencies around to help people like yourself take care of their health. Contact a family service agency or an out-patient department of a local hospital.

A church minister could steer you to appropriate authorities. Visit a church in your neighborhood and inquire.

Couple exchanges promises

GOODING — Rhonda Mink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mink, and Darwin Wheeler, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wheeler, both Goodings, were married in 7 p.m. March 15 rites at the First Christian Church, Gooding.

Rev. Harold Flake officiated at the double ring ceremony. Altar decorations included pastel carnations and white gladioli. A bouquet of pastel carnations decorated the piano.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional satin gown enhanced by a Rosepoint lace panel in front, full lace sleeves and a high neckline faced by Rosepoint lace.

Her chapel train was attached at the waist by a large satin bow and was trimmed with Heritage Rosepoint lace and satin butterflys. Her four-tiered nylon illusion veil was held by a headpiece of satin flowers and petals, trimmed by seed pearls, crystals and a crystal teardrop.

The bride carried a bouquet of yellow roses, nestled in white spider chrysanthemums and tied with streamers, blue and yellow and white lace.

Mrs. Darlene McLeod, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Judy Wheeler, niece of the bride groom, was flower girl.

Mike Richards, Gooding, was best man and Steve Kelly, also Gooding, was usher.

Candleholders were Karen McLeod and Michelle Ochser, nieces of the bride and bridegroom.

Chris Rogers, Pocatello, nephew of the bride, carried the rings on a heart-shaped lace edged satin pillow.

Barbara Harmon, Gooding, was in charge of the guest book at the reception which followed the ceremony. Nancy Adams and Mieke Campbell arranged the gifts.

The serving table was covered by white lace over green and was decorated by silver candleholders and white candles. The table was centered by two satin bells topped by two satin bells leaning against an eglomise and two white doves, one carrying a ring. The cake was trimmed by pastel flowers, bluebirds and lace patterns and was flanked by two heart-shaped flame cakes. The cakes were baked and decorated by Mrs. Arden Lauritzen.

Mrs. Linda Rogers, Pocatello, sister of the bride, served cake. Mrs. Pam Richards served punch and coffee was poured by Mrs. Loretta Ochser. Both are sisters of the bridegroom.

Guests were seated at banquet tables covered by pastel cloths.

Two pre-nuptial showers were given by Darlene McLeod, Debbie Willard and Joanne Hart.

The bride is a 1974 graduate of Gooding High School. The bridegroom was graduated from Gooding High School in 1971 and is associated with Bartlett Welding.

Special guests at the wedding were Mrs. Anton Almberg, Wendell, and Mrs. Blanch Wheeler, Boise, grandmothers of the couple, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wheeler, Boise, uncle and aunt of the bridegroom.

WASHINGTON — A Central Intelligence Agency operative, posing as a private detective, investigated the personal life of a top aide to former President Nixon during the 1968 campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, according to well-placed federal officials.
 The operative, Franklin H. Geraty, reportedly conducted the investigation under the auspices of a mysterious New York City detective firm that the officials said had been set up as a "front" for CIA domestic operations.
 The alleged target of the undercover probe involving Richard V. Allen, a foreign affairs expert who shortly before had resigned as a spokesman for New York City's Metropolitan Museum of Art, was Nixon's personal secretary, Mary Wood. A high official of the CIA confirmed that the agency had ordered a clandestine investigation of Allen, but he said it has entirely unrelated to his work in behalf of Nixon.

Asian review planned

PALM SPRINGS — California is set to host a series of seminars with a rapidly deteriorating military situation in Southeast Asia, is summoning Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger here earlier than expected, White House sources indicate.

Kissinger, originally scheduled to confer with Ford Friday or Saturday, is now expected here by midweek to review developments in South Vietnam and Cambodia with Ford and to chart U.S. Indochina policy.

During the new report would get during the night was the first of the South Vietnam's fourth largest city, and the exile of Cambodian President Lon Nol.

The President planned to get a report Saturday from Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand, the former U.S. military commander in Saigon who is now on a fact-finding trip to South Vietnam.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Monday, Ford's trip to Palm Springs is part of his program to help reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil. Now that his tax cut proposal has been passed, he has made congressional approval of the energy program his next goal.

Under Ford's plan, the field would be used to build up a one-billion-barrel reserve for military use.

With four Navy officers attending him, the Navy runs the field with Standard Oil of California. Ford looked over wells, a production center, a gas processing plant and oil shipping facilities.

The preserve was established for the Navy by President William Howard Taft in 1912, when oil-fired battleships were the strategic long-range weapon of the day. The field came to national attention a decade later as part of the Teapot Dome scandal, that sent one of President Warren G. Harding's cabinet officers to jail for taking an oilman's $100,000 bribe.

Then Elk Hills sank into obscurity until the Arab oil embargo.

Israel 3rd world target

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Members of 17 third world countries have agreed that punitive measures against Israel, including dismissal from the United Nations, should be considered by the more than 70 countries that make up their influential bloc here.

The toughest line toward Israel was a key point in a new "Havana Declaration" adopted by the 17 at a four-day conference in Cuba. The declaration has been circulated among other delegations.

The 17 make up the steering committee of the loose coalition of Asian, African and Latin American nations plus Yugoslavia that call themselves nonaligned. They will hold a full-dress ministers' meeting in Lima, Peru, in August to draw up their basic economic and political position for the general assembly session this fall.

Flight dangers charged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A National Academy of Sciences research group says higher rates of skin cancer will result unless high-flying aircraft stop polluting the stratosphere so much.

The National Research Council, in a report released Monday, said "if additional aircraft are put into service in the stratosphere, one must be prepared for an increase in skin cancer." The report said the reason is that airplane exhaust includes gases such as nitrogen oxides that break down the ozone layer, letting in more ultraviolet rays which in turn can cause skin cancer, the report said.

"It is not in the public interest to encourage more stratosphere flights without drastic reductions of nitrogen oxide emissions," said Henry G. Booker of the University of California at San Diego. Booker was chairman of the council's "Climate Impact Committee," which prepared the report.

Frederick D. Rossini of Rice University, a member of the committee, told reporters that fuels for aircraft can be cleaned of sulphur, reducing one harmful emission with existing technology—at an additional cost of a penny per gallon.

But changing the engines to burn at lower temperatures and thus eliminating elements that harm the ozone is a matter of new technology that could cost tens of millions of dollars, he said.

Booker said the skin cancer threat is greater to light-skinned persons and greater as one nears the Equator.

Wellhead briefing

WEARING HARD hat, President Ford is briefed by Navy Cmdr Roger Martin at a drilling site on the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve near Bakersfield, Calif., Tuesday (UPI)

Ford pays visit to oil reserve

BAKERSFIELD — (UPI) — President Ford put on a hard hat Monday to tour the rich oil field the Navy has been keeping since the turn of the century for a rainy day.

This visit, the first by a president to the Elk Hills naval reserve, was his way of pushing his argument that the rainy day has come and the oil speeded more in the battle for energy independence than he has.

Boilers of long-beached battleships.

Ford, who has made oil a pet interest since his days in the House of Representatives, surprised his Navy guides by asking questions they couldn't answer.

"Nothing beats seeing it first hand," the President said after a tour of the 100-acre oil field. "I've looked at all the charts in the world but nothing beats seeing it for yourself."

Ford said to Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jack Bowers, flying back to his vacation retreat at Palm Springs after the inspection tour.

Ford wants Congress to open up the field to production as part of his program to help reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil. Now that his tax cut proposal has been passed, he has made congressional approval of the energy program his next goal.

Queries at a trot produce no news

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — President Ford produced this White House press corps Monday, to "run down" a series of queries.

Returning to Palm Springs, Calif., from a visit to the Elk Hills Naval Oil Reserve, Ford was asked at the Bakersfield airport by a reporter "What are your thoughts on the Vietnam situation."

"The President, who had been walking toward Air Force One from a helicopter, began laughing and running "Can you keep up?" said the trotting President.

The press corps took up the trot. They ran for 75 yards to the plane which Ford boarded without issuing a comment on Vietnam.

Later at a Palm Springs news conference, a newsman asked presidential press secretary Ron Nessen, "Can you tell us exactly why the President ran at Bakersfield Airport?"

Nessen: "I am sorry, I did not see what has been described as running."

Said a newsman to the laughter of reporters at the news conference, "He ran almost as fast as the South Vietnamese Army."

Police lacking motive in Ohio mass slaying

HAMILTON, Ohio (UPI) — Police investigating the Easter murders of 11 members of the Ruppert family have their suspect in custody, but they are at a loss to fix a motive for the killings.

Neighbors who knew the family could offer no shred of detail to help explain the slaying. The slaying of Ruppert, 49, shot to death his mother, his brother, his sister-in-law, and eight nieces and nephews, who were together at Mrs. Ruppert's home Sunday for a festive dinner.

Police said they have no idea why the murders occurred, or how they were committed without any cry of alarm or sign of struggle.

"Nobody heard nothing," said Ray Zimmers, who lived across the street from the home of Mrs. Charly Ruppert, a 65-year-old widow.

Normally met him for beers on Sunday nights at a local tavern came to court Monday. "To see if this was the same guy."

"I can't believe all this is happening," the friend said. "I've never heard Jimmy say a cuss word in my life. This is hard to follow."

JAMES RUPPERT ... faces charges

Aide slain

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — The administrative assistant to the dean of Harvard Business School was stabbed to death Monday night in the hallway of her apartment near Harvard Square.

Police said the body of Carol Peterson, 48, stabbed five times, was found lying face down inside the locked front door.

Down-payment said best rebate-use

By United Press International The best way consumers can help end the recession, an economist says, is to take the tax rebate when it arrives and use it as a down payment on an expensive item.

"We'd get tremendous impact out of that," Alan Murray of First National City Bank of New York, said Monday.

If consumers use their $98 to $200 tax rebate as a down payment to buy something on the installment plan, Murray said, the $22.8 billion tax cut would be multiplied several times as it rippled through the economy.

But the major question is not whether consumers will buy something on installments but whether they'll buy anything at all.

Some believe consumers are more likely to salt the money away in a savings account or use it to pay overdue bills, such as for utilities. "This would minimize the effect on the rebate to fight the recession."

Otto Eckstein, director of Data-Resources, a major economic consulting group, believes at least two-thirds of the money will be spent, and that will be good.

and have the whole economy catch fire," said Eckstein. "We think it will."

But, he added, "Our concern is that it will get out too quickly. When all the one-shot cuts are over, then the economy has enough momentum to carry forward or it doesn't."

Eckstein said the tax rebate should stimulate consumer spending enough to raise consumption by 5.6 percent and produce "positive" growth in the next three months for the first time in more than a year.

Albert Sindlinger of Sindlinger & Co. said recent surveys indicate the rebate won't work because the majority of people will use the money to pay bills, mostly for utilities, or save it.

"What has me concerned is that we will get a little surge in the economy, but it will be false and then we will have another downturn," Sindlinger said. "Then Congress will get itchy and decide we need another tax cut."

Sindlinger said surveys taken two years ago showed "tremendous hedge-buying" in cars and houses to beat inflation. "People were even buying canned peas to beat rising prices," he said.

Therefore, he said, there is not a pressing need for cars and houses. "Without housing and cars, the economy can't possibly turn around," he said.

Murray, the Citibank economist, said the debate over whether consumers will spend or save their rebates has been "exaggerated way out of proportion."

"If a consumer doesn't spend any of it," he said, "one way or the other he puts the funds in the hands of people who will spend it."

In other developments: —The New York Stock Exchange Monday completed one of its best first quarters in its 103-year history. The total value of NYSE shares rose nearly $100 billion in January and February and between an estimated $30 billion to $50 billion in March. Trading volume was the heaviest ever.

—William Seidman, an economic advisor to President Ford, said in Philadelphia that although the economy "is still going down"—there will be a bottoming out in mid-summer. Seidman said the first signs of the economic recovery will be in housing and mortgage rates.

SLA defendants see trial on TV

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Two Spontaneous Liberation Army "soldiers" on trial for murder were allowed to watch proceedings on television in a basement Monday. The judge allowed the request, saying "they might lose their cool" in the courtroom.

The two defendants called themselves "prisoners of war" and issued a defiant statement as the trial opened.

"Since this whole circus is for the benefit of others, we'd rather not be present," said Russell Little, 25, and Joseph Remiro, 28, who are accused of the cyanide bullet slaying of Oakland school chief Marcus Foster.

"If not seeing us dragged in and out of court and beaten will take away some of the thrill, that's tough. We have nothing but contempt for this court and everything it represents."

In the four-page statement the two SLA members said: "The revolutionary peoples of the world have already held your trial, and when it comes time for sentencing, it will cost no more than the price of a bullet."

Superior Court Judge Elvin Sheehy permitted the pair to watch the trial on closed circuit television in isolated basement holding cells saying,

"They might lose their cool so I speak—and do something that might be prejudicial to them."

Seven prospective jurors were questioned Monday and two were dismissed. Another was released because of a broken foot. None was seated.

The SLA was referred to frequently during questioning of jurors, but fugitive Patricia Hearst was not mentioned.

"The SLA is not the YMLA or the YVLA, but you realize the SLA is not on trial," said Ed Merrill, Remiro's attorney.

Merrill also said the defendants enjoyed watching their trial but told him, "You look lousy on television."

The pair's names are accused of the November, 1972, shooting of Foster, who was ambushed and killed with cyanide-laced bullets on a parking lot near his office. His assistant, Robert Blackburn, was also killed by a shotgun blast at the same time.

Remiro, garbed in a green military fatigue jacket, and Little, wearing a blue shirt and grey jeans, made two brief appearances in the courtroom before being ushered to their viewing cells. They were not handcuffed and seemed relaxed, with Little smiling occasionally.

Truce supervisors now flee Viet war

© New York Times Service SAIGON — Many of the 600 members of the International commission of control and supervision in Vietnam are leaving the country as the fighting they were sent to discourage closes in on the capital.

The four nations that make up the commission, the truce observation body established by the 1973 Paris peace accords, are Hungary, Iran, Poland and Indonesia.

During the chaotic crush of refugees around DaNang last week, Hungarian and Iranian members of the commission were seen commandeering ambulances to haul their luggage and souvenirs to the airport.

Five of the seven geographic regions supposed to be monitored by the commission have been evacuated by commission members and operations in the remaining three have been scaled down. The commission was established by the peace treaty signed in Paris on Jan. 28, 1973, and was designed to oversee all aspects of the cease-fire, including charges of combat and infiltration of foreign troops, and the flow of military aid, which was to be on a one-for-one replacement basis only.

The Paris accords required that all four parties to the agreement — the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Vietcong — had to agree on the commission's membership. Canada had originally been a member but quit in disgust in July, 1973. Her place was filled by Iran.

The tourist organization will also study development of the Mount Parnass area near Athens, a spokesman said.

CIA agent probed Nixon's personal life in '68

(c) N.Y. Times Service
 WASHINGTON — A CIA Intelligence Agency operative, posing as a private detective, investigated the personal life of a top aide to former President Nixon during the 1968 campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, according to well-placed federal officials.
 The operative, Franklin B. Geraty, reportedly conducted the investigation under the auspices of a nonexistent New York City detective firm that the officials said had been set up as a "front" for CIA domestic operations.
 The alleged target of the undercover probe, according to Richard V. Allen, a foreign affairs expert who shortly before had resigned from Stanford University's conservative Hoover Institution, a research institution, to join Nixon as his national security adviser.
 A high official of the CIA confirmed that the agency had ordered a clandestine investigation of Allen, but he said it has nothing unrelated to his work in behalf of Nixon.

On June 25, 1968, barely two weeks after Allen said he joined the Nixon campaign staff, Geraty appeared at the office of a banker in Palo Alto, Calif., the city where Allen had been living, and displayed a credential identifying himself as a representative of the Fidelity Reporting Service of New York City.
 The banker, who asked that his name not be used, recalled in an interview that Geraty said he was seeking whatever personal information he might have on Allen. When asked the reason for the inquiry, the banker said, Geraty replied that he had been retained by "the Republicans" to conduct background checks on some Nixon aides.
 The banker, who was known in high Republican circles, said that he became suspicious and sent Geraty away with a request to call back later. Then, he said, he telephoned Rose Mary Wood, Nixon's personal secretary, to verify the mysterious investigator's purpose.
 According to the banker, Miss Wood checked and informed him that no such investigation of Allen or anyone else had been commissioned by the Nixon campaign.

 Sources familiar with the 1968 campaign said that the matter had been referred to John J. Caulfield, a former New York City policeman who was then chief of staff security for Nixon.
 Caulfield, who later gained prominence in the Watergate scandal through his role as a White House investigator, reportedly made inquiries about the Fidelity Reporting Service and reported that it appeared to be a "CIA outfit," the sources said.
 The added, however, that the assertion that the CIA had investigated a top Nixon aide was not made public in the course of the 1968 campaign for fear that an attack on the Johnson administration would move President Johnson to more enthusiastic support of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, the Democratic nominee, than Humphrey enjoyed.
 An independent, month-long investigation by the Times established a number of details about the incident, including Geraty's true identity, all of which were subsequently confirmed by high officials of the CIA.

 One CIA official conceded that it might appear, on the surface, as though "we were watching the other side" during the 1968 presidential campaign.
 He pointed out, however, that six months before Allen joined Nixon's staff, he had approached the CIA for assistance on a research project.
 Allen, 39, was then a senior staff member of Stanford's Hoover Institution on West Revolution and Peace and editor of its yearbook on International Communist affairs.
 In that capacity, the CIA official said, Allen met in January, 1968 with Richard Helms, then the director of the CIA, and asked to see various unclassified agency reports on the strengths of national communist parties.

Asian review planned

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — President Ford, faced with a rapidly deteriorating military situation in Southeast Asia, is summoning Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger here earlier than expected, White House sources indicate.

Kissinger, originally scheduled to confer with Ford Friday or Saturday, is now expected here by midweek to review developments in South Vietnam and Cambodia with Ford and to chart U.S. Indochina policy.

Among the new reports Ford got during the night was the fall of Qui Nhon, South Vietnam's fourth largest city, and the exile of Cambodian President Lon Nol.

The President planned to get a report Saturday from Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand, the former U.S. military commander in Saigon who is now on a fact-finding trip to South Vietnam.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Monday Ford attributes the South Vietnam military debacle on two factors: Violation of the Paris peace treaty by Hanoi and "failure of Congress to put up the money for more military aid to South Vietnam, which Ford feels 'affected the morale of the South Vietnamese army.'"

But he insisted the President was not assigning blame. Nessen said Ford has been keeping in touch with his advisers on Southeast Asia and feels "a great deal of compassion for the fate of the war refugees. He has seen the television stories and the newspaper stories about the situation there," Nessen told reporters.

Kissinger held an extraordinary meeting at the State Department Monday with some of the top foreign policy advisers of past administrations, many of whom presided over the deepening U.S. involvement in Vietnam under Lyndon B. Johnson.

They included former Secretary of State Dean Rusk, former presidential adviser McGeorge Bundy, former Undersecretary of State George Ball and former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara.

Ford literally ran from reporters questioning him about Vietnam Monday, but he will certainly be asked about the situation in detail at a news conference in San Diego Thursday.

In Bakersfield, Calif., Ford laughed and led a foot race toward Air Force One when he was asked by a reporter to assess the Vietnam situation.

Wellhead briefing

WEARING HARD hat, President Ford is briefed by Navy Cmdr. Roger Murrin at a drilling site on the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve near Bakersfield, Calif., Tuesday. (UPI)

Ford pays visit to oil reserve

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — President Ford put on a hard hat Monday to tour the rich oil field the Navy has been keeping since the turn of the century for a rainy day.

This visit, the first by a president to the Elk Hills Naval Reserve, was his way of pushing his argument that the rainy day has come and the oil is needed more in the battle for energy independence than the boilers of long-beached battleships.

Ford, who has made a special interest since his days in the House of Representatives, surprised his Navy guides by asking questions they couldn't answer.

"Nothing beats seeing it first hand," the President said after a tour of the 30,000-acre oil field. "I've looked at all the charts in the world but nothing beats seeing it for yourself," Ford said to Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jack Bowers, flying back to his vacation retreat at Palm Springs after the inspection tour.

Ford wants Congress to open up the field to production as part of his program to help reduce U.S. dependence on foreign oil. Now that his tax cut proposal has been passed, he has made congressional approval of the energy program his next goal.

Under Ford's plan, the field would be used to build up a one-billion-barrel reserve for civilian use and a 300-million-barrel reserve for military use. With four Navy officers attending him, the Navy runs the field with Standard Oil of California. Ford looked over wells, a production center, a gas processing plant and oil shipping facilities.

The preserve was established for the Navy by President William Howard Taft in 1912, when oil-fired battleships were the strategic long-range weapon of the day. The field came to national attention a decade later as part of the Teapot Dome scandal that sent one of President Warren G. Harding's cabinet officers to jail for taking an oilman's $100,000 bribe.

Then Elk Hills sank into obscurity until the Arab oil embargo.

Police lacking motive in Ohio mass slaying

HAMILTON, Ohio (UPI) — Police investigating the Easter murders of 11 members of the Ruppert family have their suspicions about why they are at a loss to fix a motive for the killings.

Neighbors who knew the family could offer no shred of detail "to help explain the allegations" that James Ruppert, 40, was shot to death by his mother, his brother, his sister-in-law, and eight nieces and nephews who were together at Mrs. Ruppert's home Sunday for a festive dinner.

Ruppert, a jobless draftsman who was "interested in guns and sports shooting," was being held under $200,000 bond for a psychiatric examination today.

Police said they have no idea why the murders occurred, or how they were committed without any cry of alarm or sign of a struggle.

"Nobody heard nothing," said Roy Zimmers, who lived across the street from the home of Mrs. Charity Ruppert, a 65-year-old widow.

"Jimmy was always very pleasant and quiet," said Lucille Tabler, 74, another neighbor. "He was a nice boy and this was a very nice family. I don't know what ever happened."

Don Fischer, an assistant prosecutor who attended high school with Ruppert, said he was "not a troublemaker."

A friend of Ruppert's who normally met him for beers on Sunday nights at a local tavern came to court Monday "to see if this was the same guy."

"I can't believe all this is happening," the friend said. "I've never heard Jimmy say a cuss word in my life. This is hard to fathom."

The suspect, out of work for the past three months, was scheduled for a preliminary court hearing Friday. He was charged with 11 counts of aggravated murder in the case, said to be the largest mass murder involving members of the same family.

The deaths were not discovered until Ruppert called police Sunday night and said: "There has been a shooting here."

In the living room and adjoining kitchen of the small, two-story frame house in this town 25 miles north of Cincinnati police found the bodies of Mrs. Ruppert; her son, Leonard, 32; his wife Alma, 30; and their eight children — Leonard Jr., 18, Carol, 14, Michael, 12, Tom, 10, Dave, 8, Theresa, 7, Ann, 5 and John, 3. All had been shot at close range, and there were no signs of a struggle, except for a tipped wastebasket.

Down payment said best rebate use

By United Press International

The best way consumers can help end the recession, an economist says, is to take the tax rebate when it arrives and use it as a down payment on an expensive item.

"We'd get tremendous impact out of that," Alan Murray of First National City-Bank of New York said Monday.

If consumers use their $36 to $200 tax rebate as a down payment to buy something on the installment plan, Murray said, the $22.8 billion tax cut would be multiplied several times as it rippled through the economy.

"But the major question is not whether consumers will buy something on installments, but whether they'll buy anything at all."

Some believe consumers are more likely to save the money away in a savings account or use it to pay overdue bills, such as for utilities. This would minimize the effect on the rebate to gift the recipient.

Otto Eckstein, director of Data Resources, a major economic consulting group, believes at least two-thirds of the money will be spent, and the rest saved.

"The whole theory of the present tax cut is to reduce the decline in purchasing power, increase consumer spending and have the whole economy catch fire," said Eckstein.

"We think it will."

But, he added, "Our concern is that it will peter out too quickly. When all the one-shot cuts are over, then the economy has enough momentum to carry forward or it doesn't."

Eckstein said the tax rebate should stimulate consumer spending enough to raise consumption by 6 per cent and produce "positive" growth in "the gross national product in the next three months for the first time in more than a year."

Albert Sindlinger of Sindlinger & Co. said recent surveys indicate the rebate won't help because the majority of people will use the money to pay bills, mostly for utilities, or save it.

"What has me concerned is that we will get a little surge in the economy, but it will be false and then we will have another downturn," Sindlinger said. "Then Congress will get itchy and decide we need another tax cut."

Sindlinger said surveys taken two years ago showed "tremendous hedge-buying" in cars and houses to beat inflation. "People were even buying 'cheap' peas to beat rising prices," he said.

Therefore, he said, there is not a pressing need for cars and houses. "Without housing and cars, the economy can't possibly turn around," he said.

Murray, the Citibank economist, said the debate over whether consumers will spend or save their rebates has been "exaggerated way out of proportion."

"If a consumer doesn't spend any of it," he said, "one way or the other he puts the funds in the hands of people who will spend it."

In other developments, "The New York Stock Exchange Monday completed one of its best first quarters in its 183-year history. The total value of NYSE shares rose nearly $100 billion in January and February and between an estimated $30 billion to $50 billion — in March — trading volume was the heaviest ever."

— L. William Seidman, an economic advisor to President Ford, said in Philadelphia that although the economy "is still going down," there will be a bottoming out in mid summer. Seidman said the first signs of the economic recovery will be in housing and mortgage rates.

SLA defendants see trial on TV

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Two Symbionese Liberation Army "soldiers" on trial for murders were allowed to watch proceedings on television in a basement Monday. The judge allowed their request saying "they might lose their cool" in the courtroom.

The two defendants called themselves "prisoners of war" and signed a defiant statement as the trial opened.

"Since this whole circus is for the benefit of others, we'd rather not be present," said Russell Little, 25, and Joseph Remiro, 23, who are accused of the cyanide bullet slaying of Oakland school chief Marcus Foster.

"If not seeing us dragged in and out of court and beaten will take away some of the thrill, that's tough. We have nothing but contempt for this court and everything it represents."

In the four-page statement, the two SLA members said: "The revolutionary peoples of the world have already held your (the court) and when it comes time for sentencing, it will cost no more than the price of a bullet."

Superior Court Judge Elvin Shoeny permitted the pair to watch the trial on closed circuit television in isolated basement holding cells saying,

Truce supervisors now flee Viet war

© New York Times Service SAIGON — Many of the 600 members of the international commission of control and supervision in Vietnam are leaving the country, as the fighting they were sent to discourage closes in on the capital.

The four nations that make up the commission, the truce observation body established by the 1973 Paris peace accords, are Hungary, Iran, Poland and Indonesia.

During the chaotic crush of refugees around DaNang last week, Hungarian and other members of the commission were seen commandeering ambulances to haul their luggage and souvenirs to the airport.

Four of the seven geographic regions supposed to be monitored by the commission have been evacuated by commission members and operations in the remaining three have been scaled down.

The commission was established by the peace treaty signed in Paris on Jan. 23, 1973, and was designed to oversee all aspects of the cease-fire, including charges of combat and infiltration of foreign troops, and the flow of military aid which was to be on a one-for-one replacement basis only.

The Paris accords required that all four parties to the agreement — the United States, South Vietnam, North Vietnam and the Vietcong — had to agree on the commission's membership.

Canada had originally been a member but quit in disgust in July, 1973. Her place was filled by Iran.

Geologist says cracks found in Idaho not earthquake faults

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—A Utah geologist says cracks found in Idaho following last week's tremor are not earthquake faults.

Bruce Kalliser, state engineering geologist, spent Monday in Pocatello Valley where an Idaho rancher, Earl Fuhriman, found the cracks— one measuring a mile in length and the other 300 feet long— while snow mobilizing in the area last weekend.

"We spent the whole day up there inspecting the cracks, but none of them are earthquake faults breaking the ground surface, and there is no indication yet of an earthquake fault," said the geologist.

"Either it doesn't exist or it's small enough to go undetected."

Kalliser said the cracks, caused by the "tremendous ground motion" during last Thursday's earthquake near the Utah-Idaho state line, indicate subsidence of a "substantial portion of the Pocatello Valley."

He said the quake caused "an acceleration of the normal process which would have occurred over a longer geologic time," but because the area has been abandoned by its resident farmers for the winter months, the repercussions to the residents will "probably be slight."

June abolished

BOSTON (UPI)—Rep. Barney Frank, D-Boston, thinks a short, cheap summer is just the thing for the ailing Massachusetts budget. He recommends the month of June be temporarily abolished.

"The governor knew in January that we would have to get rid of one month this year," Frank said. If the governor had been willing to "bite the bullet earlier we could have abolished February instead of June."

Andrus vetoes 'attorney' bill

BOISE (UPI)—Tranquility was shattered Monday between Democratic Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell, a Republican.

Andrus vetoed a bill passed by the recently adjourned GOP-dominated Idaho Legislature which reaffirmed that the attorney general was the state's legal officer.

The bill would have required that all agencies use the attorney general's office for any legal affairs instead of hiring outside legal counsel.

The veto was the first confrontation between Andrus and the new attorney general since Kidwell took office the first of the year.

Andrus said he was "regretting" the Democratic Attorney General Tony Park who lost his GOP opponent in last November's general election.

Andrus also vetoed two other measures dealing with administrative rules because they went against the Constitution.

He signed into law 33 bills including one to change the makeup of the Endowment Investment Board to avoid a conflict of interest.

One reason given by Andrus for vetoing the attorney general bill was that it would put too enormous work-load on the office. He also said it would compel agencies to accept the attorney general for legal advice or go without legal services.

Kidwell was informed of the veto several hours before the message was released to the press. He said he was informed the reason for the disapproval was that the governor had received "too much heat" from department heads and what the attorney general referred to as attorneys on "health" retainers.

In his veto message, Andrus confirmed that he had had objections from leaders of the Idaho Bar and department heads and other persons in state government requiring legal services.

"This will would sweep away the present legal services structure and centralize all legal services to the attorney general," Andrus said.

"I have very serious reservations whether centralized legal services can be fully responsible to our needs. Notably, especially, Kidwell said on five occasions had been a "good cordial relationship" between the state's executive officer and his office and "I've bent over backwards to make it non-partisan."

However, he said, the governor's action shows that the system is not working when department heads and "attorneys on big retainers" can bring about a veto of a bill which only reaffirms what the constitution spells out as duties of attorney general.

"Such raw abuse of partisan political power is not only unfair to Idahoans," Kidwell said, "but also indicates that the governor is all too willing to place his Democratic party affiliates over and above his responsibility to the people of this state."

The attorney general said that he planned to sever several attorneys now involved in litigation for the state. He said he would handle the job that he was elected to do, that of chief legal officer.

"I'm just sorry I have to do it the hard way," Kidwell added.

He also said he felt maybe some agencies didn't want his office to handle their legal actions because "somebody has got something to hide."

Condominium probe slowed

Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON—The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has in effect halted its investigation of possible abuses in the condominium industry by diverting staff to other projects, presumably because of budget problems.

The probe of condominium development, sales and management practices reportedly is down to one staff member whose principal duty is liaison with the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which is conducting a similar study.

But FTC Chairman Lewis Engman denied that "shifting resources" meant the investigation was closed. "If it is ever closed, it will be announced," he said. He would not comment further.

However, FTC sources confirmed that as the result of a 3-day budget review, the commission decided to shift staff to work created by new legislation.

Macao status eyed

N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON—Portugal's ruling Armed Forces Movement tried to give Macao back to China, knowledgeable western diplomats said Monday, but Peking said it did not wish to alter the status of the territory.

Although Macao is a Portuguese possession, it has functioned in practice as a Chinese dependency for some years and the Peking government proclaimed it "part of Chinese territory" in 1972.

Neither Portugal's recognition of Peking on Jan. 6, nor a subsequent decision to break ties with Taiwan a month later has altered China's Macao policy, the diplomats suggested.

They said the Portuguese sent Col. Jose Eduardo Garcia to Macao in June to make the first offer on transferring sovereignty and eliminating the Portuguese garrison in Macao.

Program studied

IDAHO FALLS (UPI)—Idaho Sen. James McClure says he thinks it would be a mistake to shelve the fast breeder nuclear reactor program.

"There is an attempt to shelve the fast breeder program because of high building costs," the Idaho Republican said Monday.

"I think it would be a mistake to delay on this because of the current energy situation."

McClure was in Idaho Falls to open a new office. He made the comments in response to questioning about the status of funding for fast breeder reactor programs at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory in Idaho Falls.

About two years ago the fast breeder reactor program was looked at as a way out of the energy crisis and the vehicle that would thrust atomic energy into a contributing role to offset energy shortages.

At present, little more than one per cent of the nation's power is supplied by nuclear facilities.

UCLA claims 10th NCAA title

Rough going

BRUIN Marques Johnson doubles over as he receives a knee to his stomach from Kentucky's Rick Robey during heavy action under the nets in San Diego Monday night. UCLA won the NCAA championship game 92-85. (UPI)

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Cool sophomore Richard Washington fired in 28 points and All-American Dave Meyers added 24 Monday night to give the UCLA Bruins their 10th national championship in 12 years and retiring coach John Wooden a triumphant farewell with a 92-85 victory over Kentucky in the NCAA title game.

The Bruin victory came despite a 34-point explosion by the Wildcats' Kevin Grevey in Wooden's final game of a 40-year coaching career. 27 of them at UCLA.

The Bruins matched Kentucky's muscle and bull strength with finesse and quickness and the scoring of Washington and Meyers.

For Kentucky, it was a bitter disappointment in the Wildcats' bid for their first NCAA crown since Adolph Rupp coached them to a title in 1958.

Pete Trgovich added 16 points while Bob Gayette had 14 for Kentucky.

UCLA, which led 43-40 at halftime, maintained a slim lead throughout the second half.

Marques Johnson, a sophomore like Washington, put UCLA ahead 84-79 with a lay-in with 3:23 to go.

After Grevey connected on a basket with 3:11 remaining, Meyers then drove in off UCLA's delay-game offense to put the Bruins in front 85-84 with 2:16 remaining.

Kentucky came back to cut the UCLA lead to three with a pair of free throws by Grevey with 1:54 remaining but Washington, whose clutch basket with three seconds to go in overtime gave UCLA a 75-74 semifinal victory over Louisville, then made a bucket with 1:22 on the clock that made the score 88-85.

With 1:11 showing, a field goal by Grevey cut the UCLA lead to three points again.

But Andre McCarter made a bucket with 39 seconds showing and Washington earned a pair of insurance free throws with 14 seconds left.

UCLA, which had never beaten Kentucky in three previous games, matching Wooden and Rupp, won the championship one year after North Carolina State broke a string of seven straight Bruin-NCAA championships at Greensboro, N.C.

This was supposed to be the year the country caught up with Wooden after the departure of three-time All-American Bill Walton, the number one draft choice in the NBA last season.

But Wooden, who announced his retirement dramatically Saturday after UCLA's outright triumph over Louisville, surprised everybody by putting together a team made up of only two seniors.

In the first minute of the Bruin-Wildcat game, the Wildcats showed why they had been nicknamed "the Slaughterhouse Five" by knocking down Meyers twice.

Kentucky held a six-point advantage at 20-14 at the 12:38 mark of the first half and was in front 31-27 with 7:04 to go in the first half. The Bruins took the lead for good with 4:06 remaining in that period on a Trgovich basket that made the score 35-34.

From that point, UCLA moved out to a 43-40 halftime advantage.

The turning point of the game may have come with 6:23 to go and UCLA in front 76-75.

Meyers was charged with an offensive foul and then given a technical foul, protesting loudly.

But Grevey, the Wildcats' leading scorer this season, missed the front end of a one and one free throw opportunity and the technical Kentucky had the ball out of bounds and the chance to go ahead but it couldn't and UCLA came down and took a three point lead on a pair of free throws by Meyers with 5:49 left.

After Gayette hit a shot from the side with 5:13 to go for Kentucky, Washington scored on a tip in with 4:56 left to make the score 80-77.

With 4:35 to play, Rick Robey, a 6-11 freshman and Kentucky's starting center, fouled out and Trgovich converted two free throws to put UCLA in front 82-77.

Wooden used only six players against the deep and physical Wildcats and won the game from the floor, hitting 38 of 78 field-goal attempts for a 48.7 shooting percentage. The Bruins outscored Kentucky 54-49 with 7-foot 1 Ralph Brundage, who was the only Wooden substitute pulling down 13 rebounds to go with his 10 points. Washington added 12 rebounds and Meyers 11.

Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall, who explored the legendary Rupp three seasons ago, went with 10 players with Robey, collecting nine rebounds.

Although the talented 6-foot 5 Grevey was the high scorer in the game, and hit 20 field goal attempts, Washington was selected as the Most Valuable Player of the NCAA tournament.

Louisville's Crum rules out Bruin job

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Louisville basketball coach Danny Crum, who has been prominently mentioned in speculation of John Wooden's successor at UCLA, Monday ruled out the Bruin job in his plans for the immediate future. Crum, 37, a former Wooden player and chief assistant, told a hastily called news conference at the San Diego Sports Arena that he planned to remain at Louisville for at least the last four years of his five-year contract.

"I felt because of all the speculation that I should tell my athletic director (Dave Hart) that I would honor my contract at Louisville," Crum said.

"I have not been offered a job at UCLA. I have no idea if they planned to offer it to me."

"I'm going to be coaching at Louisville for a long time."

The news conference came only 45 minutes before Crum's Cardinals went out to play Syracuse in the consolation game of the NCAA first round of four.

Crum had compiled a brilliant 57-22 record in four seasons at Louisville heading into the Syracuse game.

Louisville defeats Syracuse in overtime

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Junior Bridgeman scored 12 of his 21 points in overtime Monday night to lead the Louisville Cardinals to a 96-88 victory over stubborn Syracuse for third place in the NCAA basketball tournament.

The Cardinals blew out 18-point lead in the first half. The Orangemen trailed all the way in the game, including 42-26 at the intermission, until Jim Williams made a layup with five minutes to go in regulation play to put Syracuse in front 66-64.

The score was tied 70-70 at the end of regulation time. Bill Hutton tallied 24 points while Allen Murphs had 20 for the Cardinals, who closed out their season with a 29-1 record.

For Syracuse, which wound up with a 23-9 mark, Jim Lee scored 27 points and Rudy Hackett chipped in with 23.

In the five-minute overtime session, the Orangemen fouled out, in order, Hackett, Williams, Chris Sease, all starters, and Kevin King.

Earnie Seibert, Syracuse's hulking 6-9, 230-pound sophomore center, had to be taken off the court on a stretcher at 15:28 in the second half with Louisville in a 46-38 lead.

Seibert came down hard on Wes Cox, a 6-5 Louisville forward.

However, the Syracuse starting center was not seriously injured, suffering a bruised neck.

A layup by Hackett with 37 seconds left on a pass from Lee sent the game into overtime.

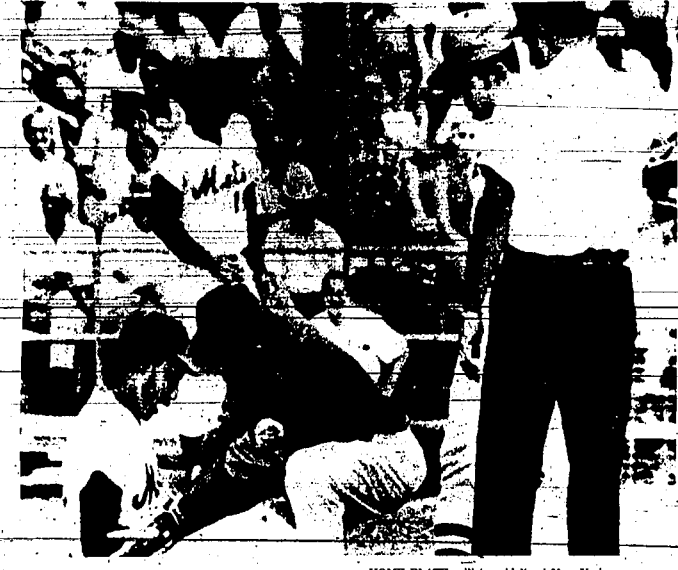

Murphy put the Cardinals in the lead for good 15 seconds into the extra session on a nine-foot shot that made the score 80-78.

Louisville built its lead to 87-80 with 2:39 left in the overtime, but Syracuse rallied back with six straight points to come within one with 2:16 remaining.

Nicklaus recharges for Masters

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus says he always looks forward to the week before the Masters golf tournament. "I always take that week off from tournament play. I have time to get in some leisurely practice at the Augusta National. And I have some time I can spend with my family." Nicklaus has another reason this year—his golf game apparently is in the best shape it has ever been in a week before a "major" championship. The 35-year-old Nicklaus has been a winner his last two times out. He won the Doral Open at Miami by three strokes and repeated that margin Sunday when he came from behind in the final round to beat Tom Weiskopf in the Heritage Golf Classic.

"Yes, I'd have to say that I'm playing better right now than I've played in the past when getting ready for a major tournament," said Nicklaus. "I guess I'd better hope I didn't peak too soon." Jack Nicklaus, winner of 55 PGA tour events and more than $2.6 million in less than 14 years, spaces his tournaments these days, concentrating mainly on the "majors." He has played in only six of the 12-tour events this year, and still won more than $100,000 with two victories, two third-places (Los Angeles and Inverrary), and a sixth-place (Crosby) and a 14th (Hawaii). After Inverrary, where he let a late three-stroke lead get away, Nicklaus went home for a week before playing at Miami, and he took another week off before coming to Hilton Head. "I spent most of that time with my family, and fishing," Augustus.

Abdul-Jabbar challenge backed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Larry Fleisher, attorney for the NBA Players Association, said Monday he would pull out all against Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. He is fighting the American Guild of Liberty Union in combatting the $300 fine levied against Abdul-Jabbar by Commissioner Walter Kennedy. "Paul Silas of the Boston Celtics, president of the Washington Bullets and Bill Bradley of the New York Knicks also were adamant in their belief that 'all athletes have a right to speak out' and that a player's feelings should not be muffled by the league." Fleisher, a guest speaker at a luncheon announcing the joint sponsorship of the NBA Players Association and the YMCAs of the United States in promoting junior basketball competition, said "it was improper for the league office to fine a player for stating his opinion about officiating" in the NBA.

Abdul-Jabbar enlisted the aid of the ACLU after being rapped by a stiff fine for calling referee Jerry Loeber inept in his job. "The ACLU called me at Kareem's behest," Fleisher said. "They are going to charge the NBA with stifling free speech. It will be a constitutional matter with them. We are going on the theme that Kareem did not do anything 'detrimental' to the game with his outburst and we'll fight the $300 fine." Abdul-Jabbar was rapped $200 for what he said to Loeber in public and another $100 for entering the referees' quarters. "Players in the past thought primarily of their jobs, but now there is a new breed of athlete," said Silas. "Kareem is the most dominant figure in the game and he speaks out for what he feels." The judge to speak should not be curbed, I admired Jackie Robinson because he too was a dominant figure in sports and people listened to him. Kareem, too, is knowledgeable on what he speaks of." Unsaid said he "wouldn't limit players' criticism to officiating, but then I'm not the type of player who gets into any controversies." The Bullets star indicated that a referee's decision is something to be accepted, right or wrong, but that if a player feels strongly enough to dispute it, he should be allowed to speak out. "I can see both good and bad in criticism. Sometimes it helps. But then again it can get out of hand. I cannot see stifling that criticism. After all, we, the players, get it from our coaches and the press. Bradley was adamant in his thinking that 'Kareem had every right in the world to speak out.'"

Hockey president won't 'desert' post

MONTHLY (UPI) — National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell does not intend to "desert" the job he's held for 28 years, "but if they opened the door, I'd walk right out." The 69-year-old Campbell has gone through another turbulent year at the helm of the NHL, another year of expansion and another year of pressure to clean up the league's act. In terms of violence on the ice, Campbell says he has been heard from at least one player—Philadelphia Flyers captain Bobby Clarke—calling for his resignation, and a New York hockey writer said in a magazine article that Campbell's days were numbered. Clarke said earlier this season that Campbell should resign because "none of the other leagues have an old man at their head." He later apologized.

Abdul-Jabbar enlisted the aid of the ACLU after being rapped by a stiff fine for calling referee Jerry Loeber inept in his job. "The ACLU called me at Kareem's behest," Fleisher said. "They are going to charge the NBA with stifling free speech. It will be a constitutional matter with them. We are going on the theme that Kareem did not do anything 'detrimental' to the game with his outburst and we'll fight the $300 fine." Abdul-Jabbar was rapped $200 for what he said to Loeber in public and another $100 for entering the referees' quarters.

Derby hopeful hurt

HALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Foolish Pleasure the 1974 juvenile champion and early favorite for next month's Kentucky Derby, suffered cuts on both front hooves during the running Saturday of the Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park. John L. Greer, owner of Foolish Pleasure, said Monday both of his colt's front hooves were cut in the frog area at the rear, but the right hoof was the more serious. He said the injuries would put the horse out of training for about a week but not jeopardize his future racing career. Greer said he thought the cuts could have been sustained over loose pieces of coral on the track. Foolish Pleasure, undefeated in nine previous starts, went off in Saturday's $157,400 race as the 1-5 favorite, but finished third behind the Darby Dan Farms entry of Prince Thot, Art and Sylvan Place. The horse's trainer, Leroy Jolley, said the colt would be entered in the Wood Memorial April 19 at Aqueduct in New York.

Idaho appeals for ruling on salmon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho asked the Supreme Court Monday to help preserve the spring salmon spawning runs by ruling in Idaho's favor. Idaho is asking the Washington-Oregon Columbia Basin Compact. The compact, which limits commercial fishing activities in the Columbia River. Declaring that the supply of salmon, shad and steelhead trout "borders on extinction," Idaho said the justices should also order the neighboring states to admit Idaho to the Washington-Oregon Columbia Basin Compact.

Idaho operates 11 hatcheries and along with the federal government, the state produces 81 million on fish production in 1974. "As can be seen, Idaho contributes a great deal to the anadromous fish runs of the Columbia River system through natural and hatchery production," Kidwell said. "If these fish continue to be taken in excess by Oregon and Washington commercial fishermen and are not allowed to return to spawn, their numbers will be reduced in the near future and their extinction is entirely possible."

Dodgers crowd all-star entries

NEW YORK (UPI) — National League Most Valuable Player Steve Garvey makes his first appearance on a computerized all star ballot to head a cast of nine Los Angeles Dodgers nominated for the 1975 midseason classic. Garvey is one of 23 newcomers to the 1975 ballot, which will be made public Monday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn. The Dodger first baseman won a starting spot in the National League line-up last year as a write-in candidate and went on to be named the game's MVP. The nine players nominated from the Dodgers (ties the 1971 and 1972 Detroit Tigers and 1973 Houston Astros for the most ballot entries since the fan voting was instituted in 1970). All 24 major league teams are represented this year, with the defending world champion Oakland A's and the New York Mets each having eight. Eight players were nominated in each league for infield positions and catcher, while 24 players were chosen for the outfield batting order. The candidates were chosen by a 150-member committee which included players, coaches, manager, general managers, writers and broadcasters. The Dodgers' congregation featured nominees at each infield position, three outfielders and two catchers—Joe Ferguson and Steve Yeager. No pitchers are found on the ballot because pennant winning pitchers Al Dark of the Oakland A's and Walter Alston of the Los Angeles Dodgers are empowered to pick their own stars. The balloting begins May 24 and ends July 6. Final results will be announced on July 9 and 10 for the game to be played July 15 at Milwaukee. Ballots can be obtained at all major and minor league ball parks and at retail stores featuring the Gillette All Star Display. Last year, a record 6,545,712 ballots were cast with Oakland's Reggie Jackson receiving the highest number (1,497,350). Several prominent names were left off the ballot because of space limitations. Former All Stars Harmon Killebrew of Kansas City, Billy Williams of Oakland, Dave May and Dave Johnson of Atlanta and Dickriman of St. Louis are all missing. Al Oliver of Pittsburgh, one of the game's best centerfielders, is on the NL ballot—but as a first baseman while the Pirates' Willie Stargell recently switched to first base by manager Danny Mortuhag, is listed among the outfielders.

Aussie, American top world swimmers

LONDON (UPI) — A stunning performance by 14-year-old Australian pooler Jenny Turrall and a 100-meter butterfly victory by American high school star Greg Jagenburg dominated the final day of an international swimming meet today, although the team-titit went to Hungary. Miss Turrall regained her world 800 meters freestyle record with a time of 44:38 seconds, taking four seconds off the previous world best set by American Jo Harshbarger in Concord, Calif. last August. Jagenburg led from start to finish, never allowing England's Brian Brinkley to pressure him, to prevent his victory. The American boy was timed in 56:47 seconds while Brinkley, breaker of British and Commonwealth 200 meter butterfly records on Saturday, was second in 57:50. For Jagenburg, it was ample revenge for his eclipse by the Briton in the 200 meters butterfly on the first day. Miss Turrall claimed that a camera team speaking a documentary about her helped spur her to the new record. "I had to give Art Mayer, the director, a world record to put in his new film," she said. "It wouldn't have been right not to have given him something worthwhile to shoot." Miss Turrall was also "psyched" into her record by coach Forbes Carlile, who convinced her before the race that she was capable of setting such a formidable portion of Miss Harshbarger's time.

Red raspberries valuable

MOSCOW — Red raspberries are suggested as a valuable addition to the home garden by Anton S. Horn, Boise, University of Idaho extension horticulturist. Horn recommends Washington, Canada and Idaho as "good varieties for the warmer areas of the state," such as Lewiston and the Boise Valley. For eastern and northern Idaho, plant Canby, Newburgh and LaHam, says Horn. Canby, a thornless red raspberry, does well almost anywhere in Idaho, the extension horticulturist notes. He points out that raspberries do best in a deep, well-drained, sandy loam soil. "Raspberries don't like heavy clay soils, especially where there is a high water level," he adds. Horn says raspberries are easy to prune. At this time of the year, cut out all dead canes. Then, thin out weak canes. Leave about eight or 10 canes to a hill or four canes per foot of row.

A Pacific front and upper trough of low pressure in the Gulf of Alaska is moving slowly southeastward. This system will reach northern Idaho Wednesday and southern Idaho Wednesday night and Thursday morning. It will bring a few rain showers to the valleys and to the mountains. In the meantime, we can expect sunnier partly cloudy weather to continue through tonight. It will be slightly warmer in all areas Wednesday. The outlook for Thursday through Saturday calls for cooler with a chance of showers Thursday and Friday, then dry and cool Saturday.

India's farming outlook uncertain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recent weather developments point to good 1975 food production prospects in most major world farming areas but the outlook in India is uncertain, an Agriculture Department report says. "The report, a survey of world weather conditions affecting crop prospects, said Europe, North America, China, Argentina, southeastern Australia and New Zealand all have come through the winter without severe or widespread weather problems. Europe had unusually high average temperatures in most areas and average cold in European sections of the Soviet Union. Even there, the report added, snow cover was generally adequate to protect grains against "winter kill" freezes. European farmers, the report added, got February and March rains where they were needed most and dry weather where moisture was needed least. The rains brightened previously dismal grain prospects in the western Mediterranean basin by ending droughts in Spain, Portugal, Italy and Morocco. But elsewhere in Europe, five wet months were followed by a relative dry spell in February and March allowing soils to dry out so farmers could prepare for spring planting. In China, experts said the late winter was relatively dry but soil moisture was adequate and the winter generally was more favorable to crop development than a year earlier. Crop reports from India, the report said, have been conflicting. Official Indian forecasts for the spring harvest crops have been optimistic, but observers have also reported below normal rainfall through most of the growing season in key producing areas including much of northern India. Rainfall has also been below normal in Pakistan where it cut the report said. In other areas, the survey showed: —North American winter grains have "progressed well" with few exceptions. Previous reports have pointed toward a probable record U.S. wheat crop. —Excess rain has caused concern about summer coarse grain harvests in South Africa and Rhodesia, but farm sources in those countries believe the rains "will have an overall beneficial effect." —European fruit growers fear their mild-winter may cause trees to bloom too early, leaving them prey to early frosts next fall.

Because you live in the Idaho Power service area

$150 a year less for electricity

Based on the use of 1000 kwh a month, which is about the average used by Idaho Power residential customers.

You live in an area where electric costs are among the lowest in the nation. A recent survey of residential billings of 164 companies showed an average cost of $29.76 per month.

Since your bill for 1000 kwh would be only $17.02 (which includes a 66¢ increase in 1974), your cost is $12.74 below this average . . . a saving of $152.88 per year.

Today Idaho Power's average revenue per kilowatt hour is approximately 40 percent below the national average. In some areas of the nation users are paying three times as much or more for electricity as you are.

ELECTRIC COSTS GOING UP

With the need to build new facilities during inflationary times, and the addition of higher-cost coal plants to our low-cost hydro generation, Idaho Power Company soon will be asking for increased rates.

Even so, your cost per kilowatt hour will continue to be well below the national average.

Longhorn models now paying off

ELLCOTT, Colo. (UPI) — Rancho Darol Dickinson bought his first Texas longhorns eight years ago to use as models for his art hobby. Now he's too busy painting them to spend time raising them. "I sold a $40,000 worth of longhorn cattle last year and I only had about 70 cows at any one time," said Dickinson, who ranches 2.50 acres of land near Elicott, in southern Colorado. "So the return per cow unit was very good. Ninety per cent of the cattlemen in the state have lost money — I mean smart people. "I'm not smart, I'm just lucky," he said. Dickinson is president of the Mountain 6-Plains Longhorn Association, said a major reason for the booming longhorn market is because the animals can survive on cactus, thistles and brush, making them cheaper to feed than other types of cattle. "In this day and age, there's a turn away from grain fed cattle," Dickinson, 32, said. "Now granted, the longhorn is not as good a beef animal as the others but there are other things as important as weight. Under poor management conditions, the longhorn will out produce the others."

Greek, Turkish units swap fire

NICOSIA (UPI) — Greek national guardsmen and Turkish occupation troops exchanged shots today along the cease-fire line in the Cypriot capital of Nicosia. Two hours later, U.N. peacekeeping forces negotiated a cease-fire.

Machine gun and mortar fire erupted along the six-mile "Green Line" separating the Greek and Turkish Cypriot sectors of the capital and enveloped Nicosia airport.

A Greek Cypriot girl wounded in the fog during the outbreak, but was not seriously injured.

A U.N. spokesman said sporadic shooting went on for 10 or 15 minutes after the general cease-fire went into effect shortly at 2:35 a.m.

The spokesman described the shooting as the heaviest this year saying, "In fact, it is the most serious breach of cease-fire since the end of the hostilities last summer."

The spokesman said U.N. Chief of Staff Brig. Gen. Clay Beaton of Canada, negotiated five separate cease-fires after the shooting began.

"This last one seems to be holding," he said.

"I don't know who started the shooting and why."

The shots sent persons scurrying from downtown nightclubs and dance halls. Heavy traffic was reported on roads leading out of the city to the south.

The Turkish Cypriots have declared a separate state in the northern 40 per cent of the island. Ankara's troops occupied after an abortive coup against President Archbishop Makarios inspired by Greece.

The incident occurred three days before the scheduled resumption of talks between the Greek and Turkish Cypriot on problems arising from the Turkish invasion after the July 1974 coup.

Oil plan approved

N.Y. Times Service

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA — An $800 million program to expand oil refineries for domestic demand has been approved by Petromin, Saudi Arabia's national oil company.

Universal Oil Products, an American company based in Des Plaines, Ill., appears to be in a strong position to obtain the design and management for these new refinery facilities.

Since 1962 when very few American companies, other than the partners in the Arabian-American Oil Co. (ARAMCO), had representatives in Saudi Arabia, Universal Oil has been doing business with Petromin as a consultant.

This led to a design and management contract for the first Petromin refinery at Jeddah, the Red Sea port, with a daily capacity of 25,000 barrels.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farm commodity prices, declining for the fifth straight month, plunged another 2 per cent in the month ending March 15, the Agriculture Department reported Monday.

Contributing most to the decrease in commodity prices were lower returns on wheat, corn, upland cotton, soybeans, tomatoes and milk. Farmers received higher prices for cattle, onions and apples, but not enough to offset the falling prices for the other commodities.

The drop recorded through mid-March left the average prices for raw farm products

15 per cent lower than a year earlier. The March decline followed drops of 3 per cent in February, 1.5 per cent in January, 2 per cent in December, and 1.5 per cent last November.

The Agriculture Department said farmers suffered a 6 per cent drop in feed grains and hay prices by mid-March, with corn dropping 19 cents a bushel since mid-February. Oats declined 12 cents per bushel during the last month, while barley dropped 34 cents, and grain sorghum was down 10 cents from a month earlier.

Only oats, at $1.46 per bushel, sold for more in mid-March than a year ago.

Food grain prices also dropped 7 per cent, with wheat off 30 cents a bushel from mid-February, 70 cents from mid-December, and 10 cents from a year ago.

The overall food grain index was 28 per cent below mid-March, 1974.

Administration economists say the slide in farm prices since fall is largely responsible for a recent scaling down of predicted increases in retail food prices this year. Initially, consumer prices were forecast to be rising at a 15 per cent annual rate, but that figure has now been reduced to 11 per cent.

Despite five straight months of dropping farm returns, however, retail food costs have shown no corresponding reduction due to a continuing increase in the middleman's profit margin.

CARACAS (UPI) — Health Minister Antonio Farra Leon says messages will be taken to require all graduates of Venezuelan medical schools to spend one year working in small interior towns before being allowed to practice in cities.

He says this is to overcome a shortage of rural doctors.

Scots check water

N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — Mental retardation among Glasgow children has been linked in a Scottish epidemiological study to contamination of drinking water with low levels of lead.

The Scottish doctors found that the probability of mental retardation was much greater when the pregnant woman or infant drank water containing more than 800 micrograms of lead per liter. Some lead can cross the placenta to the fetus in the womb.

The world health organization considers 100 micrograms the upper limit of acceptability for lead in drinking water. A microgram is one-millionth of a gram.

The results indicate that "every effort should be made to reduce the lead content of drinking water," the doctors said in their report in the March 15 issue of Lancet, a prestigious medical journal published in London. The doctors did not state these areas where water lead levels exceeded the WHO recommendation.

Mental retardation results from a wide variety of causes other than lead.

Reasons given for resigning

BURLEY — George Forschler, Burley, in a press release issued Monday, outlined reasons for his resignation as president of Ponderosa Inns Inc.

Forschler said it was his own decision and was made to give him as opportunity to concentrate once again on management of the Burley Ponderosa Inn, to do local civic work in which he is involved and to spend time with his family after many years of traveling.

He said the other operations including Bannock Motor Inn, Pocatello, the Ponderosa Inn, Idaho Falls and the Ponderosa Inn, Boise, are being held by the holding company. Ponderosa Inns now have strong management.

"I will continue to serve as consultant to any of these companies and their managers," he said.

"This resignation will give me more time with personal duties and business," he said.

Rudy Lang, president of Greater Idaho Inc., has stated the presidency of Ponderosa Inns Inc. will remain vacant for an interim period.

Forschler, who remains as general manager of Ponderosa Inn in Burley, will be working to build up the Burley facility as a convention center for Idaho and adjoining states. He will continue as president and majority stockholder of Ponderosa Lewis and Clark Motor Inn, Lewiston.

TF bank eyes new branch

TWIN FALLS — Franchise property now being cleared along Addison Ave. East apparently will be used as a site for a branch office of First Security Bank of Idaho.

While officials of the bank would not directly confirm that a branch bank is planned for the site at the corner of Addison Ave., East and Elm Street, Ken Bowman, manager of the present Twin Falls First Security branch on Main Ave. S., did say the bank had "bought the property and we're moving the houses."

Newman also said that the bank had applied for a charter for a branch bank at the corner site directly across Elm behind Washington School and that the charter had been approved by the US Comptroller.

Ordinarily, he said, a bank has a year after a charter has been approved to construct a facility on the site approved under the charter. The charter may be extended under some circumstances; he added "I saw the Elm Street corner site was the site approved under the current charter."

The bank, he said, had purchased the corner lot and the two lots directly east of it. He declined to speculate on whether bank officials expect the site to tie in with future commercial development on the present Washington School site II and when Washington School is torn down.

Idaho Power skips answers

— said the firm considers the Pioneer plant not to be under construction according to state law, despite the fact that it has ordered generators and boilers for the plant. "Construction" prior to Idaho Public Utilities Commission approval is illegal.

— said the firm is not planning to disperse the four separate units eventually planned at Pioneer throughout the state to escape pollution control and even II standards.

The answers to the questions put to President Bruce were issued by the company's new director, Robert J. Brown Jr., in a letter to the Times-News.

Brown refused to comment on the unanswered questions, and Bruce and other high Idaho Power officials were unavailable for comment.

The Times-News asked if Idaho Power would make a public pledge to meet Class II federal pollution standards at the million-kilowatt Pioneer plant, even if that would require additional pollution control and even II standards are not binding on the firm.

Class II is the pollution control designation given the entire nation under the new federal rules.

The initial Class II designation may later be changed to more strict Class I or less strict class III.

Brown said Pioneer will meet "applicable" rules governing air quality.

By using the word "applicable," Idaho Power sidestepped a commitment to meet Class II standards under the new federal rules because, according to an EPA official, those rules will not apply to Pioneer.

Gary Young, chief of air programs at EPA's Seattle office, has said Pioneer will not be subject to the new pollution standards because Idaho Power can take advantage of a loophole definition which exempts the coal-fired plant from their control.

Idaho Power ordered generators and boilers for Pioneer last year. According to a federal definition, "the equipment orders were the same as "commencement of construction." The new rules therefore would not govern Pioneer because they apply only to pollution sources which begin construction after June 1 of this year.

The federal definition holds even though Idaho Power has not yet received required approval from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission (IPUC) to begin construction of Pioneer.

In his letter, Brown also said, "In our opinion, the coal to be used at the Pioneer plant and the design of the equipment" will allow the plant to meet Class II standards.

The Times-News met Brown Monday in an attempt to clarify Idaho Power's position. However, Brown refused to comment.

Brown's letter ignored some of the questions submitted by the Times-News.

Idaho Power was asked if it acknowledges the authority of the IPUC to order that Pioneer meet Class II standards of equal standards even though the new federal rules won't apply.

Brown's only reply was that the IPUC will hold technical hearings which "will develop testimony that will be used by the regulatory authorities in the decision-making process as to whether additional pollution abatement equipment is needed or required to protect the public."

If Pioneer's pollution is not controlled by the new federal regulations, it would be limited only by older federal air standards and existing state standards which are the same as Class III, allowing maximum pollution.

A vital part of another question was also ignored in the Idaho Power letter.

The Times-News asked if the power company considered Pioneer to be "under construction." If the answer was affirmative, the Times-News asked Idaho Power if the project was in violation of an Idaho law prohibiting construction until IPUC approval is granted.

If the answer was negative, Idaho Power was asked if it would agree to be bound by Class II standards at Pioneer since the exemption from the new federal rules apparently would be eliminated.

In Brown's letter, Idaho Power mixed its answers and avoided any possible pitfall.

"We do not consider (Pioneer) to be under construction as defined by Idaho law, the letter said. There was no answer to the applicable follow-up question.

Another question which was ignored concerned coal-fired units that might be added to Pioneer in the future. Although Idaho Power has formally requested permission to build two 500,000-kilowatt units near Boise, the power company has said that another million kilowatts might be added by 1990, making Pioneer a 2 million kilowatt plant.

The Times-News asked Idaho Power President, Bruce to confirm an earlier statement by Brown that no equipment has been ordered for units that would produce the second million kilowatts.

If equipment has been ordered for those units, then they would probably also be exempt from the new federal standards.

Brown's letter did not answer the question on equipment orders for the additional units, but it did say that, if they are built, they "would meet the Class II standards."

Another unanswered question asked whether Idaho Power, if it is required to meet Class II standards at Pioneer, would attempt to have the area changed to a less strict designation, such as Class III.

The letter did state that Idaho Power has considered other forms of energy for Pioneer, such as nuclear or geothermal energy, but has concluded that "coal-fired units represent the most realistic energy source to meet projected customer demands on schedule."

The Times-News asked if Idaho Power would "spread" the proposed Pioneer units to separate sites in the state in order to reduce the concentration of pollution and avoid possible required installation of "scrubbers" to cut down sulfur dioxide emissions.

In his letter, Brown replied that Pioneer "is being designed to accommodate sulfur dioxide and that no equipment is found to be necessary." The location of Pioneer "has not and will not be based on whether scrubbers may or may not be required, he said.

New signs slow Blue Lakes Boulevard North traffic

TF speed limit lowered on Blue Lakes Boulevard

TWIN FALLS — A new speed limit is now in effect on Blue Lakes Boulevard North from Evergreen Drive north to beyond the Perrine Bridge.

City Manager Jean Miller said today the Idaho Department of Highways installed 35 mile-per-hour signs along the route Monday reducing the speed from 50 m.p.h. on US Highway 93 within the city and beyond the city limits to a point 2 1/2 mile north of the Perrine Bridge.

Previously the speed limit changed to 50 m.p.h. at Evergreen Drive just north of Falls Avenue.

Miller said the city has requested this action over a period of about two years because of the commercial development along Blue Lakes Boulevard and the increased traffic.

He said this section of highway probably carries one of the heaviest traffic-accident rates of any in the state.

The increased development in the past few years, including the Blue Lakes Inn, several auto agencies and other businesses, increased the number of exits and entrances to the heavily used route, making the reduced speed limit necessary, Miller said.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said traffic officers will give motorists about a week's warning period to become accustomed to the new regulation. After that time, he said, speeders may expect tickets.

The reduced speed zone was extended to bypass the Perrine Bridge to take in the construction zone which already carries a 35 m.p.h. limit.

Jerome program funded

JEROME — The Jerome County commissioners Monday granted $1,500 to the Jerome County Senior Citizens Committee to help maintain the committee's program.

Miss Hammond, senior citizen director, said the commissioners granted an annual allotment for the committee to draw from in order to maintain senior citizen activities in the community.

Mrs. Hammond explained that federal funds had been used in part to fund the program but that these funds had been greatly curtailed and without the help of the county commissioners the senior citizen activities would have had to be discontinued.

Mrs. Hammond said the money granted by the commissioners will be funneled into the nutrition program which provides one meal a week to senior citizens who request it. However, according to Mrs. Hammond, the senior citizen program is still faced with a major problem in trying to find someplace to house the senior citizen activities.

"We are trying to find a building that would suffice as a senior citizen center," Tw in Falls has a house that has been converted into a center.

They have put large tables into the house to serve the meals. They conduct pinocle parties, square dancing and are presently conducting yoga classes. This is the type of activities that some of the senior citizens in Jerome County are wanting," Mrs. Hammond said.

She noted that the large percentage of senior citizens would like to have a center where they could just meet once or twice a week with friends.

GOP women take no stand on tot classes

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Public kindergartens were discussed at length by the Twin Falls County Republican Women Monday afternoon before the membership decided to take no stand.

In a Monday luncheon meeting in the Blue Lakes Inn, members voted by a close standing vote to refrain from taking collective action.

Republican Women met briefly for regular business prior to a legislative luncheon honoring the six county legislators.

Each reported on the session just closed, giving Republican women and their guests views of session action.

Sen. Richard Olmstead, district 27, criticized what he called Democratic "over-crowding as the worst he has seen in his five terms.

He said this is the first session he can recall in which the Democratic committee members and legislators voted as a block in committee and on the floor.

He accused Gov. Cecil Andrus of a deliberate desire for power in his efforts to control Democrats in support of his own proposals.

At the same time, he said, the governor declined to take a stand on the threat of a colored Idaho Power plant in the Boise area which would create pollution problems.

"If we are going to have leadership, we should have initiative for these matters," he said.

Rep. William Roberts, district 24, also criticized the political activities of the session, saying the deficit budget was brought on by the governor's recommendation for higher state employee wages.

The joint finance committee, which he chaired, Sen. Olmstead said, has hoped to stay within the projected revenue. In spite of this, he said, the increased sales tax and other revenue will probably cover the $222 million budgeted.

Sen. John Barker, Buhl, told Republican women there are many changes coming in health and welfare matters on the national level which will involve Idaho residents. He said it is now possible, for example, to attach salaries of federal employees for such things as failure to pay child support.

Barker also discussed the current study on rural health problems and the malpractice insurance of the medical profession.

Rep. Ralph Olmstead, District 16, said with the governor's vetoes not many was done in the way of tax relief except for one bill to assist the needy on sales tax on groceries, and a circuit breaker bill to give the elderly some relief on property taxes.

Rep. Noy Brackett, district 24, who attended his first legislative session, told his group he voted against the kindergarten bill because he felt the money could be better used in trade schools and vocational training for those unable

Meet scheduled

JEROME — The Jerome City Council tonight will discuss a proposed townhouse ordinance during its regular meeting.

The council will meet at 8 p.m. in the council room at city hall.

A request by two separate contractors to construct townhouse complexes has prompted a townhouse ordinance. The council has refused to take action on the two requests until a complete study of both proposals has been conducted and a townhouse ordinance agreed upon.

Bill Hart, city attorney, has presented a 14-page townhouse ordinance for consideration by the council and the Jerome zoning board.

In other business before the council tonight, readings will be given for five separate bills which includes the first reading of a proposed uniform building code.

Scheduled for adoption after the third reading are two separate ordinances. One will provide for an increase in the charge to city water users and the requirement of a stop-flow valve in sewer lines serving dwellings with floor drains and the installation of the valve in homes that have had two or more incidents of sewage backage into the home.

Rep. T. W. Silvers, also a first-term legislator from district 25, told the luncheon gathering it was an informative experience. He said he learned most of the work of a legislator is in committee assignments and little of it is on the floor.

He said collective bargaining was one of the most heated issues in the house. It was defeated, recalled for reconsideration and defeated again, he said.

"I still think Idaho is a rural state and does not need labor organizations for its public employees," Silvers said.

He added the legislators give the state em-

KETCHUM — The superintendent of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area refused Monday to comment on a movement to stop construction at the proposed SNRA headquarters site at North Fork.

Gray Reynolds, superintendent, adamantly refused to answer any allegation by petitioners here that the site, seven miles north of Ketchum, would be detrimental to the aesthetics of the area and ruin the wildlife habitat there.

Reynolds' only statement was that much money and time was involved in the site selection and "we won't turn back."

Tom Kovalicky, SNRA official, informed members of the press here that a press conference is scheduled for 3 p.m. today on the proposed headquarters site.

Petitioners to stop the construction at North Fork are contending they were never informed during all of the public hearings of the size of the 12,000-square-foot administrative-visitor building.

Billie Thompson, coordinator of the petition drive, has written in letters "the destruction of beaver ponds and natural wildlife habitat" is unacceptable for a government agency supposedly dedicated to preservation of the very thing they will destroy.

Petitioners to stop the construction of the North Fork and Big Wood Rivers, the sewer system, which does not have county or state approval, could contaminate the water supply of Ketchum.

"We still thought the owner would surely come back and claim them," he said.

Later Burley said, he learned the man had come in and asked the manager Davis Vansant, about the loss, possibly while he and Miss Nielson were in the diner, but had not checked their table.

"In the meantime the courier, who for some reason did not contact Burley police, had begun a search elsewhere."

Sen. Jim Higgins, Burley police department, said the courier, not finding the packet at the pizza parlor, assumed he had lost them before arriving in Burley. He was checking with officers in Washington when a teletype message was sent from Burley.

The jewels were owned by a New York jeweler but were being transported by the unidentified courier. Police said the identity of the courier and the jeweler who owns the stones could not be made known for security purposes.

As a reward for their honesty, Burley received a jade and gold tie clasp, valued at about $80. Miss Nielson was given a bracelet and Brower a ring, all jade.

Session reviewed

FIRST term legislators, Noy Brackett, left, and T.W. Silvers, chat with Helen Quale, program chairman, during Republican Women's legislative luncheon in Twin Falls. The six legislators from Twin Falls County reported on the state legislative session just completed.

DID I TELL you it's illegal in Norfolk, Va., for a girl to go to a public dance unless she wears a corset?

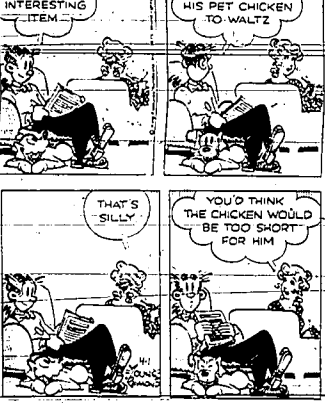

PALEM

Am I asked the most useful of all trees. That's said to be the coconut palm. You can build a house out of it, then furnish said house out of it. With chairs, beds, mattresses, carpets, brooms, cups, saucers, even lamps. You can make clothes out of it and get both food and drink from it.

AVERAGE MAN stops growing when he's 21 years 2 months old. Average girl stops growing when she's 17 years 3 months old. Or so the most recent studies indicate.

LOS ANGELES POLICE sometime back set up an experimental race in four unmarked cars. Over a 10-mile stretch of the eight lane Hollywood freeway. Three of the cars were committed to go as fast as possible without changing lanes. The fourth was permitted to weave at will, switching lanes, jockeying for position. That fourth car made the trip in 1.5 minutes 30 seconds. The other three finished in another four seconds, 76 seconds and 82 seconds, that quickly. Illuminating.

MAJOR HOOPLE

Markets

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market opened Tuesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, at a two-point 107.44 shortly after the opening, declines led advances, 185 to 10, among the 415 issues crossing the tape.

Many investors have retreated to the sidelines to await first quarter earnings reports. Most of those are expected to be had because of the recession analysis.

Profit taking would be considered normal, observers said, in light of the strong gain the market has made since the mid-December. Some adjustments already have begun, they said.

Wall Street is concerned about the deteriorating situation in Indochina—the possibility of a new war in the Middle East and the federal deficit.

Right after the market opened, the Commerce Department reported new factory orders rose in February for the first time in six months.

Cattle futures advance

Chicago — Live cattle futures hit their highest levels in months Monday.

Commodity News Service — Improvements in other grain markets and cash prices declined slightly and sugar futures closed mixed.

Live cattle futures opened with strong advances and held their ground through the close, as curtailed receipts pushed cash prices over the 40 cent mark on several markets. April led all options with an advance of 1.07 while most active June was up 65 cents to 42.32, registering its best level since last October.

Feeder prices were also mixed but trading was light.

With the London market closed Monday, sugar futures in New York traded listlessly on a narrow spread over the session. Final prices ranged from 25 points lower to 30 points higher on a volume of 1,258 contracts. Prices ranged over a 50 point difference.

Sugar 10 futures were unchanged 10 points lower on 100 trades while Sugar 12 normally settled unchanged to 20 points lower.

The world spot price and both domestic spots were unchanged, the former at 35.50 a pound and the latter at 27.5 cents.

Export potential influenced wheat futures trading, which covered a 13 cent span, with Bangladesh and India the market gained up to 14 cents but held within 10 days at the Gulf. Chicago cash basis both hard and soft red winter wheat was 5 cents over May.

The Santa Fe crop report said harvest will probably start in six to seven weeks in the Red River area of Texas and Oklahoma.

Lack of selling at the onset put the corn futures market on its way with a strong start, with an 8 cent advance followed by a 4 to 7 cent retreat. A tighter holding

April led all options with an advance of 1.07 while most active June was up 65 cents to 42.32, registering its best level since last October.

Feeder prices were also mixed but trading was light.

With the London market closed Monday, sugar futures in New York traded listlessly on a narrow spread over the session. Final prices ranged from 25 points lower to 30 points higher on a volume of 1,258 contracts. Prices ranged over a 50 point difference.

Sugar 10 futures were unchanged 10 points lower on 100 trades while Sugar 12 normally settled unchanged to 20 points lower.

The world spot price and both domestic spots were unchanged, the former at 35.50 a pound and the latter at 27

Stocks show major gain

NEW YORK (UPI) — If business activity had picked up as much in the first quarter as the stock market, the recession would have lapsed out and there would be no need for a tax-cut, analysts indicated Monday.

The value of all stocks on the NYSE increased an estimated $10 billion in the first three months of the year that ended Monday. NYSE officials said the gain was nearly $100 billion in January and February.

On the business activity front, first-quarter earnings which will not be compiled and announced until early in April are not expected to be anywhere near as rosy. Profits are expected to show a decline.

If the market, as many contend, foreshadows the economy by six to eight months, business should pick up substantially in the third or fourth quarters this year.

But take these three quarters just as they come, analysts said. But he and most others believe the market will retreat during April, when the report of the first quarter earnings are expected to have a depressing effect.

Prior to the market close Monday, the Dow Jones industrial average, helped by an 87.45-point gain in January, rose 154.02 points to 727.25 during the first quarter, up 21.9 per cent. That compared with a 4.18-point loss to 446.68 during the same period last year.

That was one of the best percentage starts in history for the Dow. The best was a 77 per cent climb in the first quarter of 1923.

There also was breadth to the market's climb.

During the first quarter, advances in issues after most routed their declining, 1974 to 92, among the 2,103 crossing the tape. No one could remember when the market made such a broad advance and the lower-priced stocks benefited from the start.

Other averages also climbed sharply during the first three months. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 15.29 to 83.83 or 22.8 per cent. The NYSE common stock index rose 33.21 to 44.46, or 23 per cent.

But the development that has brought joy and money to Wall Street brokers has been the volume. The turnover in the first quarter totaled 1.3 billion, compared with more than 800 million during the same period last year. It was the heaviest quarterly turnover in history.

The first quarter's volume picked up in the last week of January and continued through February and into March. An incredible 56,077,444 shares were traded from Jan. 27 to Feb. 28, the busiest five-week period in the NYSE's 123-year history.

March proved to be the busiest month in history, with some 450 million shares traded.

In addition to the earnings reports, investors also will be watching the effects of the recently passed tax cut bill, what Congress does about energy, interest rates and the Middle East situation.

There is considerable debate over what caused the sharp first quarter rise. This much is known: prices in the first three months of the year were low since the stock market took its worst beating in 1974.

Interest rates declined the prime rate fell from 12 per cent in late September to 7 1/2 per cent at present. The Federal Reserve Board lowered its discount rate four times from early December to 6 1/2 per cent. Short-term money instruments began to yield less. There was considerable money ready to invest.

Videotape best

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Taking advanced videotape courses in engineering may be more effective than actually attending classes, judging from a Stanford program of graduate study.

The engineers, taking the course 100 miles from campus with the help of a local tutor, had an average grade point of 3.8 out of 4.0 possible. Full-time students attending classes on campus averaged 3.5. The results were especially surprising to educators because qualifications of many of the videotape students would not qualify them for admission to Stanford.

Beef moratorium death probable

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate House farm bill conference next week probably will kill a Senate plan to slap a 90-day moratorium on beef imports, a veteran congressional farm aide predicts.

The staff aide, who asked to remain anonymous, said inclusion of the beef import suspension (a final version of the emergency farm bill) would eliminate any chance of sending a presidential veto of the measure.

"If it (the beef ban) stays in the bill, it would be the kiss of death," another legislative specialist agreed in a separate interview.

The beef import moratorium was added to the farm bill by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., last Wednesday as the Senate was passing its fattened-up version of the measure which won House approval a week earlier. Both bills — designed to encourage expanded crop production — include increases in support prices for feed grains, wheat, cotton, soybeans and milk.

The Senate measure provides higher supports than the House bill for wheat, cotton and milk. It also provides three-year increases for grains, cotton and soybeans rather than the one-year term provided by the House. In addition, it includes a one-year hike in tobacco supports — and an increase in the minimum price at which the Agriculture Department could reseed government-owned stocks of grains, cotton and soybeans.

A final compromise version of the bill, reconciling the Senate and House differences, will be written by a Senate-House conference committee next week. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has already promised to recommend a veto, but Chairman Thomas Foley, D-

House members of the Senate-House conference also will argue that inclusion of the beef ban in the final bill would lose important consumer support in a final House vote on the measure, an aide pointed out. Tentative efforts to include another beef import control amendment in the final House bill had been dropped several weeks ago because of opposition from House Ways and Means Committee leaders.

Forecasts that the Senate beef amendment will be scrapped in conference were strengthened by the casual manner in which the Senate approved the proposal without a roll-call vote after just a few minutes of discussion.

A COMPARISON BETWEEN CONVENTIONAL and MONOCROSS SUSPENSION

In the case of a conventional rear suspension using a double-cushion unit, the rear end tends to twist due to a twisting frame and uneven spring and damping conditions between the right and left sides. The twist of the rear end causes a lateral vibration of the frame, thus making the machine unstable.

But on the Monocross suspension (a new type rear cushion suspension which has been adopted in the new Yamaha scooter), the cushion unit is supported by the head pipe. As a result, it is free from an adverse effect caused by the twist of the rear end.

Another feature of the Monocross suspension is that it is made up of a single cushion unit. This makes the greater rigidity of the cushion unit, and it can be said, therefore, that the Monocross suspension has many great advantages over a conventional double-cushion type shock absorber.

The guy that sold horses and buggies probably said the automobile would never last. If you want to stay in the dark ages, DO NOT BUY a new Yamaha MONO-SHOCK.

—Mike Speer, nurse/yanan

“Our $1,000 certificate of deposit, held to maturity, will bring you a net gain of $349.82!”

—Diane Gomez, Savings Officer

Tell us what you want to know, where you want to get financially. Equitable Savings people like Diane Gomez will help. Really help. With answers that count. With a financial program designed to meet your unique needs.

In Mike Speer's case, we suggested that some of his savings be put in an easy-access 5¼% pass-book account. But we recommended most of his account be placed in a $1,000 4-year certificate returning a high 7½% annual interest, compounded daily.

Held to maturity, the $1,000 certificate will give Mike an impressive net gain of $349.82. Naturally there's a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal.

Mike wanted to know if his interest could be paid every month, instead of quarterly. Diane had the answer, a resounding yes.

Equitable Savings & Loan. Come see us about high-yield certificates that mature in 1 year, 30 months, and 4 years. Bring us questions about your financial future. We want to work with you on a first name, face-to-face basis, to help you get ahead and stay ahead.

You'll find we're a lot more than insured accounts and 40 local offices and free travelers checks.
