Jury seated in Connally trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A jury of seven women and five men was seated today to hear the bribery trial of former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally.

The panel is comprised of six black women, one white woman, two white men and three black men.

Wins 6th

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley won his sixth term Tuesday, crushing Republican opponent John J. Bochen with nearly 78 per cent of the vote.

As a result of the landslide, Daley at 72 is now entrenched as kingmaker, power broker and one of the most powerful forces in the councils of the national Democratic party.

Low voter turnout, estimated at only 48 per cent, helped Daley.

Japan Diet approves budget

TOKYO (UPI) — The upper house of the Diet (Parliament) today approved a $70.96 billion budget for fiscal 1975.

The budget, worked out by the government of Prime Minister Takeo Miki, emphasized public welfare, calling for $15.6 billion in expenditures for social security programs.

In contrast, the defense budget amounted to $4.4 billion.

The bill was approved by the lower house March 4.

Simon sees recession end

WASHINGTON Star

WASHINGTON — The economy soon will pull out of the recession, but a fast recovery would doom the country to a new surge of inflation and soaring interest rates, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today.

That would lead to a new recession with even higher unemployment, he warned.

Plot fails

ARNHEIM, the Netherlands (UPI) — A plot by South Moluccan separatists to secede from the Dutch royal family as hostages has been foiled, officials said here.

The group planned to use the hostages to draw attention to their demands for independence from Indonesia.

The South Moluccans are an island group in Indonesia, formerly part of the Dutch East Indies.

W. German chief sets visit

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — President Walter Scheel of West Germany will make a five-day official visit to the United States starting June 2 at the invitation of President Ford, the White House announced today.

Scheel will be accompanied by his wife.

Flays Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., accused President Ford Tuesday of trying to make Congress a scapegoat for the collapse of South Vietnam.

Bayh said, "It is utter nonsense to suggest that the Congress or the United States is responsible for the dismal failure that we are witnessing today in South Vietnam."

Other Democrats took a similar stand on the situation.

FBI hunts Patty in Vermont

BRAATTLEBORO, Vt. (UPI) — FBI officials acknowledged Tuesday they had searched this southern Vermont town for missing fugitive heiress Patricia Hearst — especially after two of their most wanted fugitives turned up here recently.

But they said their investigation failed to unearth any evidence that Miss Hearst had been in Vermont.

Chess group extends deadline

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — The International Chess Federation today said it was granting world chess champion Bobby Fischer another 24 hours to declare whether he will defend his title against the Soviet Union's Anatoly Karpov.

Federation president Max Euwe told a news conference he still had not received word from Fischer regarding his willingness to play the championship match scheduled in Manila for July 1.

War, Thieu crises grip Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Heavy fighting broke out today in the Xuan Loc region 30 miles northwest of Saigon where Communist forces cut Highway 1, the retreat route of government forces trying to halt the Communist onslaught down the coast.

Saigon seethed in a crisis of leadership.

Government defenses were reported crumbling around Cam Ranh Bay, 100 miles northwest of Saigon, and military sources said less than 5,000 government troops stood between Saigon and the Communist offensive that has swept up 17 provinces in a matter of weeks.

Military sources said 2,500 of these infantrymen were battling at Xuan Loc to try to reopen the road. The other 2,500 were paratroops in the Saigon area.

President Nguyen Van Thieu held a series of urgent military conferences and reports army generals had given him three days to resign.

Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, the U.S. Army chief of staff, joined Thieu and high-ranking South Vietnamese army officers at the presidential palace at 5:30 p.m. for a crisis meeting.

Government sources said Premier Tran Thieu Khiem had submitted his resignation but that it had not yet been accepted. Khieu appealed to the South Vietnamese people in an emotional address not to give up despite the overwhelming Communist advance towards the capital.

The South Vietnamese Senate unanimously passed a resolution calling for a change of leadership for the government but not specifically calling for Thieu to resign. It blamed the staggering military defeats on failure of the United States to honor its commitments and on the mistakes of the Thieu government.

The first convoy of refugees and soldiers fleeing the central coast reached the outskirts of Saigon late today, landing at the port of Vung Tau 40 miles southeast of Saigon and bypassing the fighting at Xuan Loc 40 miles to the north. They were met by barricades and tough military policemen.

Yanks leave Phnom

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Seven government positions on the Phnom Penh's ragged defense perimeter have fallen to Communist-led rebels within the past 24 hours, one of 22 miles away. Military sources said today. Rockets, artillery and mortar shells hit the capital and Pochentong Airport.

The U.S. embassy announced it was evacuating 15 per cent of its staff, and U.S. Ambassador John G. Gunther Dean called in the heads of the Red Cross, Catholic Relief Services, World Vision and other charity groups to discuss their evacuation.

Furious fighting on the defense perimeter could be clearly heard in the capital during the hours of darkness.

Official sources said that the insurgents on the east bank had 120 millimeter mortars, which would bring the capital within easy range of rebel shelling attacks.

The American airlift was continuing, but on a reduced level. By late afternoon only 35 planes arrived, whereas last week as many as 54 flights were being made in a single day. At least 20 rockets and nearly 10 artillery shells fell on the airport during daylight hours, killing one person and wounding 15. Strapped slightly damaged one American plane.

The heaviest government loss was that of Neak Lannig, the last government outpost on the Mekong River. The victory freed at least 6,000 Communist-led troops for the attack on Phnom Penh. There was no word on the fate of more than 60,000 refugees and soldiers in the former naval base of Neak Lannig, 31 miles southeast of here.

Military sources said that within 24 hours of the fall of Neak Lannig government forces had been driven out of a total of seven positions to the south, east and west of the capital.

JEROME — A loaded Jerome school bus collided with a milk truck early today, injuring one student and two persons in the truck.

A passenger in the milk truck, Greg Schelling, 17, Jerome, was listed in serious condition today in St. Benedict's Hospital's intensive care unit.

The driver of the truck, Gordon Leiminger, 16, Jerome, and the injured student, Shelley Burrows, Jerome, were treated at the hospital for minor injuries and released.

AN AMERICAN official punches a man in the face, trying to remove him from the door of an evacuation helicopter at Nha Trang, South Vietnam, Tuesday. Americans used weapons and their fists to turn back a wave of Vietnamese who tried to board the flight, which left a short time before the city was overrun by the Communists. (Story, p. 2) (UPI)

About 20 students on the bus were not injured in the wreck at a rural intersection northeast of Jerome at about 8:30 a.m. today.

The 67-year-old bus driver, Lee Hendrickson, was cited for failure to yield to traffic, according to state police.

Sheriff Elva Hall said the bus was headed south on the one mile road and the dairy truck fully loaded with milk was headed west on the two mile north road.

According to Hall the school bus had stopped at a stop sign and the driver of the bus said he did not see the dairy truck and began to make a right

Cong wants Thieu out

PARIS (UPI) — The Viet Cong (P.V.C.) Revolutionary Government indicated that its military forces will press ahead with their offensive and march on Saigon unless President Nguyen Van Thieu's regime is overthrown.

Hinh Ba Thi, the Viet Cong's chief negotiator in France, told a news conference that the Viet Cong was ready to open immediate peace talks with a new Saigon administration that would replace Thieu.

She said the Communist forces considered President Ford's decision to send naval vessels and marines to the coast of South Vietnam to evacuate refugees as a hostile act and a "grave escalation" of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

According to Hall the school bus had stopped at a stop sign and the driver of the bus said he did not see the dairy truck and began to make a right hand turn into the path of the approaching truck. Hall said the back wheels and running board of the dairy truck caught the front end of the bus throwing the bus into the ditch and flipping the truck one and a quarter turns ending up on its side 77 feet from the point of impact in a field.

The rear wheels of the truck were torn completely from the truck and continued to travel another 40 feet down the field.

A passenger in the dairy truck was apparently thrown from the truck while the driver remained inside.

Assisting in the investigation was State Patrolman Frank Mogens.

Idaho PUC denies rail rate hike request

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission today denied a request from six rail carriers for boosts in intrastate freight rates because the applicants did not show a need for the increase.

The rail carriers filed a joint application Jan. 4, 1974, requesting approval of the general increase in intrastate freight rates and charges equal to corresponding increased interstate rates authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The applicants are Union Pacific, Burlington Northern and the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific, The Camas Prairie, Spokane International and the Washington, Idaho and Montana railway.

Hearings were held Oct. 24-25 before the commission.

Union Pacific presented the case on behalf of the group.

The railroad contended a four per cent increase in intrastate freight rates was necessary because the carriers have sustained or will sustain large increases in the cost of operation.

The commission said the fatal defect in the applicants' case was the lack of evidence on the existing rate of return on intrastate traffic.

The commission noted that the carriers submitted an exhibit which indicated that certain intrastate charges were lower than interstate charges for similar shipments but the differential appears to be justified by the relatively low intrastate operating expenses in Idaho.

The commission said that transit times are shorter than the national average because of the quality of tracks. In addition, intrastate rail shipments in Idaho are unusually profitable because of the unique commodity mix.

Shippers and consignees generally provide speedy loading and unloading services and some shippers, such as Potlatch Forests, even provide their own switching engines and switching crews, further reducing the railroads' operating expenses.

The report accompanying the commission order also pointed out that the absence of passenger service is another factor contributing to the comparatively low operating ratio in Idaho rail traffic.

Filer recall vote set

FILER — A special election on the recall of Filer Mayor Paul Shover has been set for April 30.

City Clerk Francis Wells told the City Council Tuesday night the election must be set within 30 days after presentation of properly signed petitions and within the 5 days allotted the mayor to decide whether to resign or stand for re-election.

Mrs. Wells told the councilmen Tuesday night the petitions containing the required 50 signatures have been verified after their presentation by Charles Young, unsuccessful candidate for mayor in the last city election, and E.L. (Mike) Davis.

Mayor Shover announced Saturday he does not plan to resign and Tuesday's council meeting was used as the official date on which to base the 30-day requirement for the recall election.

Young has charged Mayor Shover should not be permitted to be mayor at the time he is building inspector.

Cracks Filled

When "Gilson" Borium began the famous Mount Rushmore sculptures, he realized that the seeping of small cracks would become necessary, even though the bluish-brown would be invisible to viewers far below. Knowing that the freezing of water might enlarge small fissures, he devised a mixture of oil, powdered granite and white lead which is filled regularly on the mammoth faces. ### Councilman quits

ROBERT — City Councilman William G. Strasser resigned from the Rupert City Council Tuesday night.

Theodore Cresson was named to fill the unexpired term.

In a letter, Strasser told the council he could no longer serve because he is moving to Boise.

Strasser recommended that Cresson, a Rupert attorney, complete his term through January, 1976.

The council appointed Cresson as councilman.

If Cresson accepts, he will take a seat on the council immediately, but will have to run for re-election in November.

Rabin tries to ease impasse

CHILD CRYING for a parent is a common sight in Vietnam as families fleeing advancing Communist forces often separated. This infant, two many among refugees at Long Khanh (UPI)

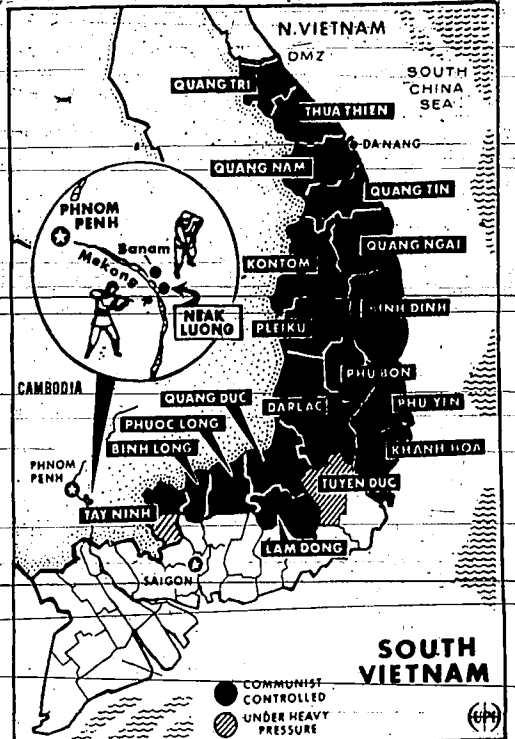

By United Press International
Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said today Israel wants to reach contacts with Egypt over a new agreement in the Sinai Desert but would not go beyond the offers it made during the negotiations carried out by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.
In an interview broadcast by Israel's armed forces radio, Rabin said he believed the cutoff of U.S. aid to Indochina would not be applied to Israel. Rabin said he could not foresee this happening with Israel because Israel could not be equated with U.S. allies in Indochina.
"I see no reason or justification to deviate one whit from what we have intimated," Rabin said in the radio interview. "The fact that Egypt would on no account accept the Israeli proposals must be allowed to bring about a change in the Israeli position."
Rabin's statement appeared to be slightly harder than reports Tuesday in Israeli newspapers and in government circles that Israel was embarking on a campaign to appear more flexible in attempts to reach an interim peace agreement with Egypt. Government officials said that the Israeli was prepared to return more of the Sinai in exchange for a broader settlement.
"Territory is not the problem," one official said. "Political commitments by Egypt are the problem."

Rabin hinted today at possible increased U.S. pressure on Israel to future negotiations but said Washington must respect Israel's independence and security in any negotiation.
"I, for instance, believe that out of experience gained during Dr. Kissinger's mission, that the absence of a direct contact between Egypt and Israel is sorely felt," Rabin said. "Contentions have been raised about misunderstandings but the reasons for misunderstandings lies mainly in the absence of direct Egyptian-Israeli contact."
Asked if President Ford's recent statement that the momentum toward peace might have been maintained if Israel had been more flexible in the Kissinger talks, Rabin answered:
"It is my belief that the United States, when it holds a considered discussion on the reality that has come about, will respect the fact that her friend in the Middle East is independent both in her decisions and her readiness to bear the consequences of these decisions."
"To my belief, the basis of friendship, understanding, and common interests of the United States and Israel remain firm and will make it possible to come through the present period and the differences of opinion which perhaps exist at this time."

Hanoi shifting pressure toward Saigon defenses

Washington Star
WASHINGTON — One of Hanoi's reserve divisions that entered northern South Vietnam two weeks ago has now appeared in the Saigon area, but the impression being created is Communist troops sweeping down the length of the country is erroneous.

The 244 Division appears to military experts to have disengaged after South Vietnamese resistance at Hue and Da Nang on the northern coast collapsed. It was then tracked inland to follow routes to Breckenridge Saigon.
The string of collapses of South Vietnamese military positions down the coast, which had by Wednesday reached to within 100 miles of the capital, was mainly a psychological reaction to attacks — by locally entrenched — Communist troops.
It was not caused by a blitz of North Vietnamese tanks sweeping down the coast like Nazi German Panzers across Poland in 1939 and the low countries in 1940.
The psychological shock wave is already affecting Saigon, according to reports from the capital.
Whether it will cause the city to become engulfed in the chaos and to collapse remains to be seen. But betting against that is not strong among experienced analysts here on Vietnamese military and political affairs.
The key might be whether Hanoi quickly becomes a major military push toward Saigon in order to take the city by surprise.
The appearance of the 244 Division in the area suggests that Hanoi might.
The North Vietnamese Army has had its 3rd, 7th and 9th divisions operating in the area immediately north of Saigon for many years. They were joined recently by the 244 Division. Now the 244 is showing up.
Communist troops have been harassing road junctions and other key points within a few dozen miles north and west of Saigon off and on for some time, in addition to putting heavy pressure on Tay Ninh city. But since the collapse of South Vietnamese defenses farther north, there has not been any significant increase in this enemy activity.
A sudden all-out Communist effort may, even without the careful preparation which Hanoi traditionally likes to make before major military movements, be possible now.
Some of them think younger, Soviet-trained North Vietnamese officers might see the value of keeping up the momentum of their victory march, thus capitalizing on the fear and desperation in Saigon.

Americans leave behind Viet workers, friends

MIAT TRANG, South Vietnam 4 P.M. — "If one Vietnamese is allowed on the aircraft, we'll never be able to stop them," an American said to the South Vietnamese army lieutenant pleading to let children on the mercy flight.
Some Americans holding shotguns, automatic rifles and submachine guns Tuesday kept long lines of Vietnamese friends from taking the planes they had been promised in helicopters flying from Nha Trang to refuge in Saigon.
Others tried to air and beat black pleading Vietnamese who begged at them desperately, and then watched helplessly as the last two evacuation helicopters slid from their hands and balled fire.
Hours later, Nha Trang fell to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.
U.S. civilian employees at Nha Trang left behind more than 100 Vietnamese employees and families at the U.S. consulate compound.
"I'm so ashamed of the U.S. government that I'll never be able to work for them again," said one U.S. government employee. "They really arrogated their responsibility."
"And the pity is that it was so uncalled for. The people in charge knew eight days ago what was coming, but they refused to do anything about it."

All Americans wanting to get out of Nha Trang left on the airlift which began Monday. Only two on an amphibious at Dalat University — refused to leave without their Vietnamese families.
The evacuation of Americans from the cities of Tay Ninh, Cam Ranh Bay, Phan Hong, Dalat, Tay Hoa and Phoi Thot became a panic Tuesday afternoon when the Vietnamese military shut the airbase to avoid a riot like at Da Nang.
Vietnamese consulate employees promised they would be taken and thinking the Americans were abandoning them rushed the compound. Marines closed the gates. The Vietnamese dashed onto the helipad through unguarded gates. They were met by the armed Americans.
Fifty armed shots rang out.
At Nha Trang, air base the scene was the same. The Vietnamese were orderly until they saw Americans were going out. Some South American helped U.S. civilians board while holding back sobbing Vietnamese.

Dual crises grip Saigon

The MPs disarmed soldiers among the refugees and collected them in groups. Only civilians who could prove they had addresses in Saigon were allowed to pass the barricades on a crossroads 4 miles northeast of the capital.
Most could not meet the test and were left sitting idly in trucks, buses and cars parked alongside the highway as a heavy rain fell.
Several armored personnel carriers and about 200 MPs were manning the blockade at the intersection of the Bien Hoa Highway and the Saigon Bell Road near Tu Duc.
MPs held UPI photographer Willie Vioxy at gunpoint and pulled him from his cameras at the roadblock. An MP-ordered journalist to leave the scene.
The 41 senators passed a six-point resolution which said, "We urgently call for a change of policy to solve the war and a new leadership which will base its policy on freedom and justice."
The resolution was passed after an all day meeting. The Senate's first session since the Communist offensive began March 4.
"There must immediately be a new government, united and effective, which will gather all capable good will and clean elements," the senators urged.

"We also call on the United States to immediately honor its commitments to South Vietnam and we earnestly call on signatories of the Paris peace agreement to use their power and influence to stop the North Vietnamese aggressors."
In a radio address earlier, Prime Minister Tran Thien Khai called on the South Vietnamese people not to surrender.
"With your calm and with your determination, to fight all the people and all the army — we will concentrate our efforts to stop the enemy," he said.
Government sources said Khieu had abandoned his resignation to President Nguyen Van Thieu but at had not been accepted. They also said a group of generals had given Thieu 48 hours to resign.
Fewer than 5,000 South Vietnamese regulars stood in the way of a direct Communist assault on the Saigon area from the coast today, and government defenses around Cam Ranh Bay were disintegrating, military sources said.
Cam Ranh Bay, 188 miles northeast of Saigon, is the front line of defense against the massive Communist offensive. The only contact with the city today was by radio, sources said.

Saigon envoy rips US role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — South Vietnam's ambassador said today that the United States is "not fitting a large" to help his country, giving evidence that it is eager to be an ally of the Communists and "not to be an ally of the United States."
Ambassador Tran Kim Phuong said the United States is losing its credibility around the world because it has failed to provide additional military and economic aid.
He also charged that the United States had violated the 1954 Paris Peace Agreement because it has not replaced lost or destroyed South Vietnamese weapons on a one-to-one basis.
"I would think that the people around the world would draw only one possible conclusion that is probably, it is eager to be an ally of the Communists and it looks like it is fatal to be an ally of the United States," Phuong said in a taped interview on the CBS Morning News.
"I say that very coolly not with any passion ... but I think that I see a conclusion that people in the world would draw. And this is not what the United States' commitments were the most vocal and bitter voiced by a top level South Vietnamese official since the current Communist offensive began in South Vietnam."
He said "We have evidence that 19 divisions of North Vietnamese troops are now fighting in our territory. It is asking for us to see that nobody lift a finger, that nobody, and especially the guarantor of the Paris agreement — no one of them makes the single move to stop this onslaught."
Phuong said "The United States does not respect the Paris Agreement" which calls in part for long-term replacement of South Vietnamese weapons.

Honest youths earn respect

Two high school seniors from Rupert who returned $200,000 of diamonds and rubies today know something priceless about themselves.

They know without question that they are honest to the core.

A bag full of diamonds and rubies would represent nearly the expected lifetime earnings of either Martin Barclay or Julie Nielson, the two students who found the fortune lying on a Burley parlor table.

If they had been so inclined, they probably could have lived comfortably for the rest of their lives off the interest such a fortune could bring.

But Martin and Julie weren't put together that way.

Without giving it much thought, they began seeking the courier who had mislaid the jewels, and eventually saw the treasure returned to its owner.

For their honesty they received a paltry gift from the presumably grateful jewelry firm, jewelry worth about $60 for the two finders and the equally honest pizza manager, Chris Brower, a young Burley man.

But far more important than any monetary reward is the invaluable gift of self-knowledge.

It is worth pausing a moment to reflect on what it was that made these three people act as they did.

Martin credits upbringing and membership in the Mormon Church for the trio's actions. These and a community expectation that a person will be honest probably are important factors.

But surely there is more to it than that. There must be something in these three that goes beyond upbringing, church and community expectation. There must be a kind of personal dignity there. That dignity should be a source of self-respect for them, and a source of pride for their parents and the whole community.

Healing process

Wall Street Journal

Long after the turbulence of the 1960s burned itself out, some critics still refused to temper their hostility toward American society. As recently as 1970, Black Panther leader Eldridge Cleaver was still encouraging followers to kill policemen. And until quite recently spokesman for the Nation of Islam (the Black Muslims) preached that whites are "blue eyed devils." It's a sign of the changing times that Mr. Cleaver and the new Black Muslim leader are now preaching moderation. According to Newsweek, onetime revolutionary Cleaver has cooled considerably in his affection for communism and for romantic notions about the Third World. In fact, he is said to believe that America needs a strong defense establishment to protect itself from the Russians, and he is no longer anti-police. Mr. Cleaver's conversion may well have something to do with his precarious status in France. He has lived there since getting in trouble with authorities in Algeria, where he lived after a shoot-out with California police. Still, coming from the firebrand orator who received standing ovations during his college lecture tour days, his words have their significance.

The Black Muslims were never in the same league with the Panthers, indeed, in many ways the Muslims preach values that are fundamentally conservative. Strong family ties, hard work, moral and spiritual uplift. Few other organizations have had as much success rehabilitating convicts and drug addicts. But the Muslim philosophy was marred by occasional violence directed against dissenters and by racism toward whites. Muslim schools and newspapers preached pride in being black, but they also coupled that with precepts that whites were evil.

Now, however, Wallace Muhammad, son and successor of the late Black Muslim leader Elijah Muhammad, said in a recent interview that the sect will no longer call white people devils. Whites have returned their ways, he said, adding that the past is in the past and the Muslims will not dig it up.

Obviously, America has made great strides in throwing off a racist past, and it is comforting to see even the Muslims recognizing as much. But we would add that both this recognition and Mr. Cleaver's new mellowness represent less change in American society than change in its critics' perceptions. The anger the critics expressed was no doubt inevitable, and in a certain historical sense justified. But as so often happened, by the time the anger rose the evil against which it was directed was, though not extinct, already decisively defeated.

The saving grace of American society has never been total perfection, but an openness that permits improvement. To see some of the once-bitter critics recognize that grace is encouraging. It means that the healing process to bind up the nation's self-inflicted social wounds is well underway.

Lisbon's leftists use press to undermine US

WASHINGTON — Continuing the techniques by which Portugal's Communist-leaning regime is undermining U.S. influence, the weekly Lisbon news magazine "Vida Mundial" has lashed an anti-USA U.S. Congressman to charges that the U.S. Embassy has become a CIA haven.

Tucked into the March 27 article was the implication, totally untrue — that Rep. Richard Harrington of Massachusetts has broken the U.S. embassy in Portugal since the April, 1974, revolution overthrew 40 years of right wing dictatorship.

Since playing a major role in uprooting classical authoritarian rule, the paper's which revealed covert CIA activities in "Cinco Denunciado Harrington has been the CIA's most prominent American liberal as a confidant of the Communist controlled Portuguese press.

Publishing what it called the "list" of American personnel posted to the embassy after the April revolution, Vida Mundial said its "list" was identical to the "list" that was "provided by the State Department to Rep. Harrington's office in December, 1974."

EVANS AND NOVAK

Testifying last November to the Senate Foreign Relations committee against the nomination of Frankfurter as ambassador to Portugal, Harrington charged the embassy after the revolution was stacked with CIA agents and other subversive specialists. Harrington then asked the State Department to supply him with a list of all personnel sent to Lisbon after April.

But Harrington did not follow up the request. His statement is that he never received such a list is supported by the State Department.

Indeed, Harrington, while a foe of the CIA, is no admirer of Portugal's latest regime. He called us the "deliberate-planned disruption" of center parties "by forces under the internal discipline of the Communist party" gravely concerns him.

Since the revolution, the Communist left, however, finds it difficult to control the press. Having placed himself in the vanguard of the attack on CIA intervention in the internal politics of Chile, he becomes a tool for the forces on the verge of consolidating Communist power in NATO ally Portugal.

The Communist controlled press has become a vital weapon in this totalitarian takeover, marking a change between Portugal with its 40-year tradition of totalitarianism and events following the left takeover in Chile which had a strong parliamentary tradition. The Soviet Union, which played and lost the high-stakes game in Chile, is known to hold the uncontrolled press at least partially responsible for the overthrow of Marxist President Salvador Allende.

The mistake is not being repeated in Portugal, where the far left leftist regulates what people hear and read. Accordingly, the U.S. and particularly the CIA, are painted in ugly colors with no rebuttal possible.

Little wonder, then, that the U.S. finds itself powerless to counter the threat of a Communist takeover in Portugal, and the left of center American politicians find themselves used along the way.

BAGDAD — Iran was not party to the latest Kissinger round of Arab-Israeli peace negotiations.

It is not a neighbor of the Jewish state but Baghdad is much concerned in the whole affair. It has taken part in previous military confrontations through forces sent via Syria, and Jordan.

Moreover, the onetime revolutionary who Kissinger sought unsuccessfully to arrange an accord — Egypt, Israel and Syria — are by no means the only ones directly involved. The secretary of state went out of his way to keep Jordan's King Hussein during his recent shuttle, although that ruler has, for the moment, passed the Palestinian hand to Yasser Arafat's PLO.

It is understandable that the secretary had to limit his negotiation clientele.

It is nevertheless important to assess the views of Iraq, a major oil state, upon claiming potential reserves equal to those of Saudi Arabia with a considerable Soviet-equipped armory. It is as Baghdad hopes, its troops can finish up the last vestiges of a Kurdish revolt and its new relations with Iran continue auspicious, its military power may be shifted as an implicit form of pressure on Israel. Moreover, Iran has considerable influence over the most hard-line Palestinian guerrillas.

With all this in mind I plumbbed the opinions of the Iraq strongman, Saddam Hussein. My conclusion was that recent reports he was moderating his views in favor of a negotiated settlement were correct. In a smaller, independent Israel in its present form, are either exaggerated or wishful thinking. He told me:

"The presence of Israel comes at the expense of our own Arab people and our land. The Arabs have rights that antedate the 1967 war. Had those rights not existed, that war would never have come about."

He continued: "AS Arabs we have no intention of exterminating the Jews who now live in a dear part of our homeland. At the same time, they occupy a part of our territory. Therefore, we should struggle by all the means at our disposal to end that occupation."

"It is perhaps not the time for the Israelis to acknowledge the moment has arrived for a just solution guaranteeing Arab rights. But we are sure that time will arrive in the future, and only then will there be a real solution. Then, whether a secular state or another formula emerges is immaterial. But Israel must cease its aggressive threats and stop meeting world Jewry against us Arabs. And it must end the inflow of Jewish immigration."

His words spoke in careful circumstances. Yet I had a feeling the Iraq boss favored a much tougher line than Egypt and even than Saudi Arabia, which is primarily concerned with establishing Arab control over east Jerusalem.

C. L. SULZBERGER

My impression was that Hussein tends to favor establishment of some kind of secular state, governing all the former British Palestine mandate, allowing no special Jewish rights and working toward Arab majority population.

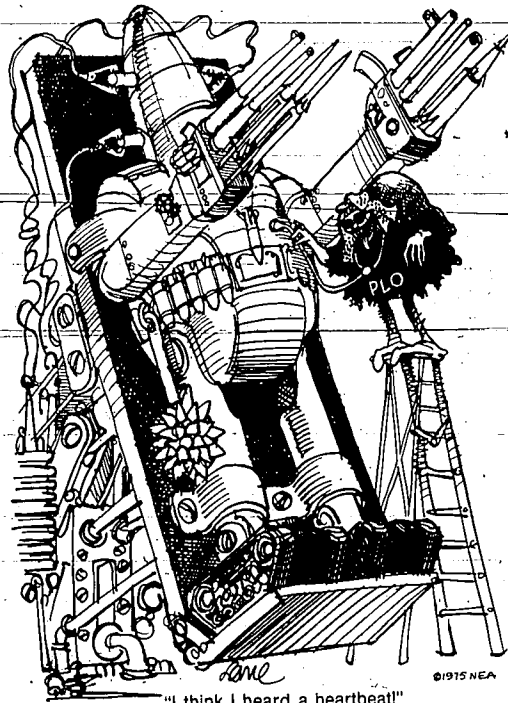

If I am right in concluding the Baghdad view has shifted, I would attribute this to two causes. First, Iraq has squashed the Kurdish revolt, and has also put its hands on its only dangerous neighbor, Iran.

Secondly, the dramatic crumbling of anti-Communist forces in Indonesia had had definite repercussions in this country, which is biased against Communism but leans on Moscow for arms. Hussein's more factual than Arafat, but I suspect he shares a similar encouragement from his own events.

Disaster for America would likely see disaster for American policy in Southwest Asia.

Despite holdups, 'as American as apple pie'

Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — In keeping with my policy of giving all news sources, the Combustible Broadcasting Co. presents tonight an exclusive interview with Bonnie Parker, aide, confidante and chief of staff to Clyde Barry, the greatest bank robber of our time. Bonnie Parker was paid $25,000 to appear on this program which we believe has great historical significance.

"Bonnie, you were closer to Clyde than any one else. What was he like when you worked with him?"

"He was weird. There was a part of him which was very decisive, like when he decided to start the Third National Trust Co. of Omaha. But there was another part of him which showed he had a great inferiority complex."

"Explain that."

"Well, he never thought he tipped enough when he went to a roadside diner. He always believed that after he left the waitress would say he was a cheapskate."

"Bonnie, Bill Spivey has in his book 'The Three and Fall of Bonnie and Clyde' said you had a short temper and chewed out anyone who tried to get near Clyde. How did you feel about that?"

"I wouldn't say ruthless. I would say tough. Clyde always had dirt on things on his mind."

"Why? As I saw it was to protect him from third-rate crooks. I had to keep Clyde free from the day-to-day operations of the gang. Sure, they got mad but no one makes friends in this job."

"Bonnie, one of the things said was that you and Clyde as well as the rest of the gang, looked on everyone as enemies. True or untrue?"

"True. But I think Clyde summed it up best in his farewell address to us when he said, 'Always remember, others may hate you, but those who hate don't win unless you hate them.'"

"Right. Now, Bonnie, let's get on to the job that finally got you all caught — the break-in of the First National Bank of Watergate. Looking back on it, would you say you did it again?"

"In retrospect, I guess it was stupid, not because we did it but because we were caught. I had to take some of the responsibility for that."

"Why?"

"Well, after the robbery we split up the money and we had all these canvas bags left over, with

"First National Bank of Watergate" printed on them. Clyde asked me if we should destroy the bags."

"But I said no — that we should keep them for historical reasons. I never thought the bags would be used against us as evidence. If I knew what I know now I would have told Clyde to burn them."

"Then what you're saying, Bonnie, is that you have no regrets about robbing banks. You are only sorry you got caught?"

"That's correct. But I'd like to say one more thing. The Bonnie and Clyde gang spent only 10 percent of the time sticking up banks — 90 percent of what we did had nothing to do with crime. I hope people will think of other things we did, like watching baseball and drinking beer and going to the movies and hunting squirrel. Take the bank robberies and we're as American as apple pie."

Blaine project hearing sought

Editor, Times-News:

A conflict has recently arisen in the Wood River Valley between the citizens and the Sawtooth National Recreation Area personnel.

The SNRA has selected the North Fork Canyon to construct a 6-acre complex of buildings, housing for 42 employees, paved parking, roads, warehouses, helicopter pad, sewer system, etc. The Blaine-Evans Planning and Zoning Commission at the site is a non-conforming use and is contradictory to the county comprehensive plan. The complex would be in conflict with wildlife and their natural habitat and would have an adverse effect on the scenic impact of the area.

So far, we have been met with a military attitude of the SNRA pushing ahead with the project planning; of their ignoring the public outcry of their destruction of this virgin canyon; and of their vocal abuse toward our planning and zoning commission.

Attempts to register legitimate objections have been met with disdain by specific local SNRA officials as well as other forest service officials.

This multi-million dollar project seems most unnecessary at a time when our President is asking that "Win" be the password for government agencies. The destruction of beaver ponds and natural wildlife habitat is unacceptable for a government agency supposedly dedicated to preservation of the very thing they will destroy.

Until this site is at the confluence of South Fork and Big Wood Rivers, the sewer system, which does not have county or state approval, could contaminate the water supply of Ketchum.

Further study should be made before there is additional progress on the headquarters complex. A public hearing should be held for citizen input on the project.

We are asking the help of Idaho citizens. If you agree, please pass this petition, and return to me by April 10. We are sending copies to the Idaho congressmen in Washington, D.C.

Engineer offers plant data view

Editor, Times-News:

The March 17 issue of the Twin Falls Times-News carried several feature articles about air pollution, one of which is headed "New Plant Uses Loophole."

Before reading this article, Mr. Horsman talked to me at some length on the telephone and I wish to clarify some of the things which appear in the article. I am not accessing him of misquoting me, but I do believe the thrust of the article does not convey the impressions I attempted to give Mr. Horsman in considerable detail.

It is worth repeating that I have never encountered at Idaho Power Co., nor any other company with which we work, any thought of attempting to evade application of the "significant deterioration" rules by commitment for large sums of money in order to meet a compliance date.

The purchase by Idaho Power of the basic equipment for Pioneer Plant was done in the normal sequence of events required to meet the needed operating date for the plant and to obtain a "place in line," or a commitment by the manufacturers that the equipment could be built and delivered on schedule.

It is important to remember that this commitment is for millions of dollars to purchase equipment which will require more than two years to design and fabricate, after which an additional year or more will be needed to install the equipment and have it ready to operate.

This is far different from purchase of a new refrigerator in order to beat a price increase coming up next month.

My name is also associated with a prediction that the first 500-megawatt unit at Bridger Plant, near Rock Springs, Wyo., "probably will cause a pollution rise of 12 to 16 micrograms of sulfur dioxide per cubic meter of air on an annual average." These numbers are not my prediction, but are numbers which have been made by other firms and other people in relation to the Bridger Plant.

Because the new boilers provided for Pioneer Plant are similar to those being installed at Bridger, it is correct that the Bridger Plant can be used as a "yardstick." We must remember, however, that a yardstick is not intended to be a precision instrument for measurement of scientific analyses.

First, the design of Pioneer Plant will not be identical with that of Bridger. There will be differences in features of the combustion zone and of the particulate control equipment, all of which will probably reduce emissions from Pioneer below those of Bridger.

Second, Pioneer Plant is in a similar but different meteorological condition and the plant design, including height of stacks, is being planned to take advantage of that difference and reduce the effect of ambient concentrations.

To my knowledge, there have not been yet released any specific numerical estimates of what we expect will be the impact of Pioneer Plant on ambient concentrations, other than the statement that we do expect the effect to be less than Class II significant deterioration limits.

The only numbers that have been quoted by anyone are the numbers taken from the Bridger Impact Statement which refers to a plant designed five years ago, prior to the latest gain in knowledge on pollution control.

Lastly, the word "loophole" implies a special exemption to avoid application of a rule which does apply to other people. The definition which EPA quotes was first published in December, 1971, and is well-known to all people working in power plant air pollution control.

The date of application of that definition is purely a function of when the EPA made the rule effective, and it applies to every facility equally, making no special privilege.

J. LOUIS YORK

Chief Environmental Scientist
Stearns-Roger, Inc.
Denver, Colo.

Editor's Note:

Mr. York's firm has been hired by Idaho Power Co. to make environmental impact studies of Pioneer.

Mr. York's name was associated with the estimated rise in sulfur dioxide levels caused by the Pioneer plant when he confirmed the pollution figures.

In a telephone interview, Mr. York said members of the Ada County Medical Society had confronted him with figures showing that the first 500,000-kilowatt unit at the Bridger plant would boost the sulfur dioxide level by 12 to 16 micrograms per cubic meter of air.

He said he agreed with the doctors that the figures are "in the category" of the Bridger unit's pollution. He also said he has "accepted the fact that Bridger is being used as a yardstick" in predicting the pollution from Pioneer.

Asked if the Times-News could use his name in connection with the predicted pollution levels, Mr. York said, "I'm not going to argue with you on quoting me on those numbers."

End interference

Editor, Times-News:

The American people are being played for suckers again. The proposals to solve the energy crisis which was largely brought on by government controls are more government controls. This is like pouring gasoline on a fire to put it out.

The President's proposal is for higher taxation while Congress favors rationing. Neither of these proposals stimulate production of more oil in the United States which is the free enterprise solution to the problem.

The best production incentive would be to eliminate government controls, to permit US oil producers to sell all their oil not just oil discovered since the embargo, present law reads at prices competitive with the imported oil and to keep the oil depletion allowance.

The present depression in the US was created by controls on US business men, and the solution is to eliminate government interference with the free enterprise system which has created the highest standard of living in the history of the world.

Spread free-enterprise system

Editor, Times-News:

The conspiratorial Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) has spawned several front groups dedicated to convincing Americans that they live far too well.

A key attack is being directed at our food supplies. We are told that our "affluence" results from keeping food from starving children in other lands. The facts of the world grain trade prove that, on the contrary, it is the United States, with its efficient farmers and relatively free economy, which supplies most of the grain needed by other countries. We are usually the major source, and often the only source of "giveaway" food worth billions, handed to nations whose Socialist systems consistently reduce their own food production. In 1973, the Soviet Union needed more of our grain (purchased "on credit") than all of the populous and industrialized nations of Western Europe together.

Leslie Brown, the so-called "expert" of the Overseas

Development Council, wants Americans to eat less meat so that more grain will be released for shipment overseas. Brown is a member of the CFR as are 44 of the 73 directors of the council. In December he moved across Massachusetts Ave. from his old office to set up a new CFR front, using $500,000 from the Rockefeller Brothers Fund to get started. The new front is called the Worldwatch Institute.

Worldwatcher Eric Ekholm said that American farmland must be regarded as "in world trust." He sees no reason why his opinions on the consuming habits of Americans should not have the force of a law under the new world order enforced by the Communist United Nations.

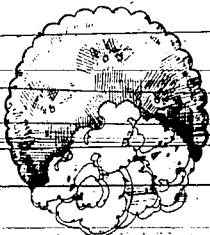

It is time to stop this nonsense and spread the free enterprise system, not destroy it.

COTTAGE CHEESE.

Serve it tonight...

any way you please.

Shape up salad.

Our cottage cheese-stuffed tomato salad is proof that dieting can be easier when the diet food is easy on the eyes. Cottage cheese can be a boon to the menu planner with dieters in the family. Cottage cheese is low in calories (130 calories per 4 oz. serving) and it has the same high-quality protein as meat. Complete protein that contains all the essential amino acids for building, repairing and maintaining body tissue. Cottage cheese also has significant amounts of calcium, phosphorus and riboflavin.

Sweet 'n simple salad.

Of course, salads are where cottage cheese's versatility really shows. The salad can be as simple as this: canned pear halves, with a cottage cheese topping and a garnish of chopped walnuts.

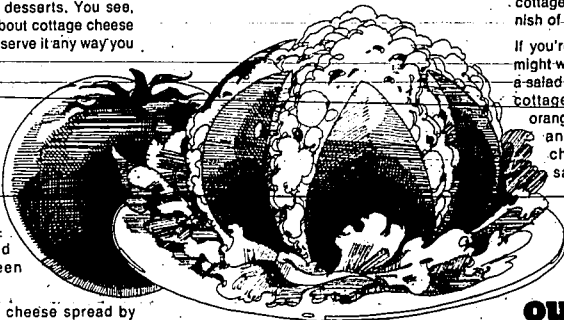

If you're serving a fruit salad, you might want to try cottage cheese in a salad dressing. Here's how: whip cottage cheese in a mixer; add orange juice, orange rind, sugar and cinnamon. It's a tasty change from the ordinary salad dressing.

Versatile. Refreshing. Nutritious. Just look what cottage cheese can do for you tonight. In dips and spreads. Refreshing fruit and vegetable salads. Hearty main dishes. Even surprise desserts. You see, the nice part about cottage cheese is that you can serve it any way you please.

Quick dip.

Now, for a quick dip—blend cottage cheese, deviled ham and chopped green onions.

Make a tangy cheese spread by beating cottage cheese, Cheddar and Blue cheese together with chopped onions, horseradish and prepared mustard.

Cottage meat loaf.

For the main course. How about a variation on a family favorite—meat loaf? Using cottage cheese as a protein extender in your recipe can be a real economy move, and a nutritional one. Here's the recipe for our meat loaf:

In a large bowl, combine these ingredients: 1 egg (slightly beaten), 1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ cup minced onion and ¼ cup minced green pepper. Mix lightly but thoroughly. Press into loaf pan. Bake in preheated 350° oven 50-60 minutes. Let stand a few minutes before removing from pan to serve. (Makes 6 servings.)

STUART Bearup, College of Southern Idaho assistant professor of English, recently was awarded an In-Resident Fellowship by the National Endowment for the Humanities, one of six awards for a year-long study of "Problems in American Autobiography," held at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N.H., beginning Sept. 15.

Gem unit expands efforts

BOISE (UPI) — The State Department of Education will be far more visible and vocal in speaking out for public education in Idaho, the new chief deputy superintendent predicted today.

Jerry Evans, who is resigning as Caldwell superintendent to assume his new duties July 1, spoke briefly at the opening two-day session of the Idaho Association of School Superintendents.

"We are facing a new day in education," Evans said. "We can no longer operate as we have in the past."

"I'm certain the Education Department will approach in the areas of leadership, service and regulation," Evans said. "We're going to help the local school districts in every way we can."

Evans said "Public Instruction superintendent Roy Truhy plans to spend considerable time in the field getting personally acquainted with administrators and learning first-hand the problems of local school districts."

"We're all going to work together to help make education opportunities greater for our children," he said.

Truhy thanked the school superintendents for their support of the kindergarten bill passed by the legislature at its recent session. He said he has plans to work with the superintendents in pre-legislative sessions on proposed bills in the future.

He also said to rest speculation he "might be a candidate for Congress in two years."

"I signed on for four years in this job and I have no other plans but to be a good state superintendent during that period," Truhy said.

Clemency number mounts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Officials of the three phases of President Ford's "earned clemency" program Tuesday estimated applications for the conditional clemency might reach the 25,000 mark.

But they said precise figures, following a final flurry of applications before they were cut off by the Monday midnight deadline, would not be available until the end of the week.

President Ford announced the program Sept. 16 under terms of the two-year extended plan, — Vietnam era — draft resisters and evaders — and military personnel with desertion or absconder charges could receive a presidential pardon and clemency by performing up to two years of alternate service.

"We had about 20 telephone calls Monday," said Jean Vinson, speaking for the Presidential Clemency Board. "We were taking calls right up to midnight."

She said the board, which deals with cases of convicted draft evaders and military deserters, still had a great deal of unopened mail, and estimated applications could reach 20,000 out of a possible 100,000 potential applicants.

Bowles request denied

BOISE (UPI) — A federal district court in Boise has denied a request for an injunction filed by Carl Cluetus Bowles to prevent his transfer while a civil suit is pending contending his constitutional rights have been violated.

Bowles filed a suit with the federal district court Feb. 3 against the staff of the state prison and chief security officer at the institution.

He asked among other things that he be treated as any other prisoner who conducts himself according to prison rules and regulations.

Bowles, who escaped from an Oregon prison while serving a sentence for the murder of an Oregon judge, sheriff, is serving a 75-year sentence in the Idaho prison for kidnaping. He is wanted in Washington State on two counts of first-degree murder in connection with the slaying of Earl and Viola Hunter, Eugene, Ore., who allegedly were killed while Bowles was fleeing Oregon. Bowles was recaptured near Post Falls in June 1974 after a gun battle with Idaho police.

Ronald D. Bruce, assistant attorney general for Idaho, said the state probably will file a motion for summary judgment in about one week.

Bowles has asked the state to give him copies of all items in his prison and medical files, inter-departmental memorandums along with copies of the rules and regulations and policies of the prison.

Bruce said he talked with Bowles and asked him to be more specific in the request because some of the material for which he has asked is very general and "could be irrelevant."

In addition, Bruce said it would be very expensive to reproduce all the files pertaining to Bowles.

Bruce said he eventually will file a hearing in court because Bowles has said enough things in his complaint, such as a complaint that his mail has been interfered with, that it will warrant the court looking into his complaint.

Among the actions Bowles asked for was that the state prison and its agents be prevented from transferring him to any other institution without his express consent during the pendency of the action.

He also asked $10,000 damages from Corrections Director Don Erickson, Warden Richard F. Anderson and Capt. Joseph Munch, chief security officer.

Bruce said the state has allowed Bowles access to a notary public but the court denied Bowles' request for appointment of an attorney.

Court reverses decision

BOISE (UPI) — In a 4-1 decision, the State Supreme Court reversed today the conviction of a former Twin Falls woman on a charge of operating a motor vehicle displaying an expired vehicle registration.

Jean Louise Barabas, now a resident of Boise, was arrested in December 1971 because her vehicle displayed license plates ending in "0" with a pressure sensitive registration sticker designating the "71" attached.

Registration of the Barabas vehicle expired in October 1971 according to the Department of Law Enforcement.

In a majority opinion, Justice Joseph J. McFadden found that Idaho Code requires that the actual expiration date of the registration period be designated on the pressure sensitive registration sticker attached to a vehicle's license plate.

Only the calendar year during which the registration expired was designated on the Barabas vehicle's registration sticker.

The court held the charge against Mrs. Barabas could not be sustained when the registration sticker did not comply with the statute.

Justice Allan G. Shepard dissented from the majority opinion but did not file a written opinion.

Texas political boss found dead

CONROCK, Tex. (UPI) — South Texas political boss George B. Parr, 74, who was called "the Duke of Duval," was found shot to death Tuesday. Authorities said he committed suicide.

Parr, who faced a prison sentence for income tax evasion, was supposed to have appeared in Corpus Christi Monday for a hearing concerning his latest tax evasion conviction. When he failed to appear, he was ordered arrested. Texas Rangers fanned out across South Texas Tuesday hunting him. Ranger Gene P. — all riding in a Department of Public Safety helicopter, spotted Parr's car near a windmill 9 1/2 miles from the nearest farmhouse on Parr's 1,200-acre ranch. Rangers found Parr's body slumped over the steering wheel at 11:20 a.m.

Bradley recovers in LA hospital

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Omar Bradley, the nation's only surviving five-star general, will apparently recover completely from a stroke last month and subsequent brain surgery, UCLA Medical Center said Tuesday. There is still no indication when the general, 82, will be able to leave the hospital, a spokesman said. He was removed from the intensive care unit Sunday where he had been under treatment since a small hole was drilled in his skull last Wednesday to remove a clot.

Experts see economy boom

By United Press International
Four top economists predicted Tuesday the nation would experience a strong economic recovery in the second half of 1975. One said 1976 would bring one of the "biggest booms" in 30 years. Edward Bernstein, a consultant to the U.S. Treasury, told Dan's Review, a business newsletter, that recent signs of recovery from the recession are only the beginning. "Inflation will be down to 2 percent and by the middle of the bicentennial year we will be in one of the biggest booms of the postwar era," Bernstein said. Lief Olson, senior economist at First National City Bank of New York, said in a separate economic analysis that the severe economic slump in the first three months of this year "enhances the likelihood of a strong recovery in the next six months." But said Olson, "the strength of that rebound, while better than the fourth quarter of 1974, is not great enough now to suggest that this is the turning point."

Another Citibank economist, Alan Murray, said "the process of inventory correction has proceeded far enough to be consistent with the forecast of an upturn in the second half of 1975." Gabriel Hauge, chairman of Manufacturers Hanover Trust of New York and a economic adviser in the Eisenhower administration, told a stockholders meeting that there are "hickers of light around the horizon." He said the rate of inflation has declined and inventories are close to a point where production must resume and interest rates continue to fall. Hauge predicted the economy would begin to move upward in the third quarter. "Among other economic developments," New orders for manufactured goods increased in February for the first time in six months, the Commerce Department said. Orders were up 1.3 percent after declining 2 percent in December. Inventories declined 1.1 percent.

Potential jurors answer queries

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A defense attorney in the murder trial of two Japanese Liberation Army "soldiers" asked jurors hypothetically Tuesday how they would react if fugitive Patricia Hearst testified in the case. One woman responded that she would be interested "only if she testified on the shooting, otherwise I would discount it." Another prospective woman juror volunteered that Miss Hearst and her comrades were "a bunch of spoiled brats throwing a temper tantrum." The defendants, Russell Little, 25, and Joseph Reinro, 28, were accused of the cyanide bullet slaying of Oakland, Calif., school chief Martin Foster. They have been watching the trial on closed-circuit television from basement cells. James Jenner, Little's attorney, posed the hypothetical situation. Miss Hearst testified as part of a defense attempt to learn whether potential jurors were biased against the SLA because of what they had learned through the news media. Most indicated they had negative feelings about the SLA but said they did not condemn the defendants due to guilt by association. Nine prospective jurors have been excused for medical reasons or dismissed, including one woman who said "terrorists would be likely to die."

Federal survey reveals nursing home violations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal survey has found serious violations in 2% nursing homes across the country. Two-thirds of them violated try safety codes, said the report released Tuesday by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Nearly 10 percent of the 3,454 patients in the 10 state study had bed sores, an indication of poor care. Almost 20 percent were without physician prescribed diets. Among those with diet plans "only 40 percent of the diet plans contained pertinent information about needs and problems." Rehabilitation services, such as bladder and bowel training and physical therapy, hindered in many cases. The survey also found that many services are required under Medicare and Medicaid laws.

Mamie 'better'

FT. GORDON, Ga. (UPI) — Former First Lady Mamie Eisenhower has been in the hospital eight days and has made substantial progress in her recovery from an intestinal condition, doctors said Tuesday. "According to her doctors she had a comfortable night and currently is doing very well," Maj. George Foster, spokesman for the U.S. Army Medical Center at Ft. Gordon, said Tuesday. Mrs. Eisenhower, 78, widow of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, has been taking a winter vacation at "Mamie's Cabin" on the grounds of the nearby Augusta National Golf Course, where she began to bleed internally. She entered the hospital last Tuesday for treatment of the intestinal problems and had been expected to stay seven or 10 days. Foster said on Monday that her doctors had decided to keep Mrs. Eisenhower longer than 10 days in the hospital to help her gain strength through resumption of a normal diet.

Possible violence seen in Portugal campaigns

LISBON (UPI) — Campaigns for Portugal's first free elections in 49 years opened today in a festive atmosphere, but there were official warnings of possible violence. Gangs of youths pattered Lisbon's walls with paper posters and the liberal Popular Democratic party staged a public meeting. In the south, the Socialist party held a mass rally in the port town of Faro. The April 25 balloting is for representatives to a 247-man constituent assembly charged with writing a constitution for a presidential-style government to be elected later this year. Six million Portuguese are registered to vote in the election, which will come one year after the military coup d'etat that overthrew almost a half century of rightwing dictatorship. Portugal has since swung to the left, its cabinet now in the hands of Communists and their allies in key economic and interior posts. In its final pre-campaign communique, the national election commission Tuesday warned groups and individuals against disrupting the campaigns. "The national election commission vehemently condemns such occurrences and appeals for tranquility and mutual respect that should be the hallmark of the political process," it said. The military's revolutionary council earlier this week decreed that anyone convicted of trying to break up political rallies would be jailed eight years and fined up to $4,000. The moves reflected fears of the parties and the country's left-wing military rulers that the campaigns would accelerate the violence plaguing political activity the past two months. At least one person has been killed and more than 50 injured in recent clashes at party rallies. Several liberal and socialist politicians have said the current campaigns are their last chance to halt Portugal's

Shepin cuts visit in Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Former Soviet secret police chief Alexander Shepin has decided to cut short his visit to Britain rather than face more scenes like the brick and mortar throwing demonstrations that greeted him Monday. Shepin was held at Secret Trade Union House in Glasgow, Scotland, today after receiving a number of anonymously telephoned death threats. He will fly on to Moscow with his attorney after talks with the Scottish Trades Union Congress. Britain's Trade Union Congress, which invited the 57-year-old Soviet labor chief for four days, announced Shepin's decision Tuesday. In Moscow, the labor newspaper Trud also announced Shepin would end his visit today but did not mention any demonstrations. It said in a communique that Soviet and British trade unionists want to revive cooperation "in the spirit of the wartime Anglo-Soviet Trade Union Committee."

LaRue begins sentence

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Former White House consultant Fred C. LaRue, the first man to plead guilty in the Watergate cover-up and the last to be sentenced, began serving a six-month prison term Tuesday. LaRue, a Mississippi oil millionaire and land developer who became known as the Nixon administration's Southern strategist, was sentenced to one-and-a-half years by U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica after pleading guilty to conspiring to obstruct justice. Sirica suspended all but six months of the term. The 46-year-old longtime GOP national chairman from Mississippi worked in Nixon's 1968 presidential campaign and left Jackson, Miss., in 1969 to join the White House staff as an aide after the election. But he was on the staff without pay for three years before his name was listed in the White House directory. During the 1972 campaign, LaRue went to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President as a special assistant to Mitchell, where he became known as the campaign director's right hand man.

Western governors, Ford slate meeting

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and eight other Western governors will meet with President Ford in San Francisco Friday to apparently discuss the nation's economy.

Andrus said Tuesday the meeting had been called by the President but he did not know what would be discussed. He added that the President has been meeting with other state chief executives to discuss the economy.

The Idaho chief executive said that he hoped to discuss with President Ford the use of potatoes in the Peace Program to aid the poverty stricken people of the nation.

"However," Andrus said, "the time has almost run out."

Last week Idaho potato growers began giving their potatoes away because of the low price they were selling on the market.

Earlier, Andrus and several other governors from potato producing states had proposed to the President that the potatoes still in warehouses be used in the Peace Program to feed the starving and at the same time help the potato growers and producers. That suggestion was not adopted.

Andrus said that he also hoped to talk to the President about foreign imports of beef and dairy products as well as forest service problems and other than that it would be what Ford wanted to discuss.

He said he did want to discuss the problems of the U.S. Forest Service on local management, allowable cuts, sales volumes, reforestation practices and stumpage cuts. He said he would depart Boise Wednesday by ear with his wife. "It will give the two of us a chance to get away," he added.

Generally, Andrus takes a little time off after the legislative session but he said "the work load was just too heavy this year," to allow him to get away from his desk.

Taxing ruling sought

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court was urged Tuesday by Lt. Gov. John V. Evans to rule "promptly" on the present system of school district taxation.

The present method of taxing the public schools was ruled unconstitutional by the Fourth District Judge, W. D. Rurtsch in November of 1973. That ruling was appealed to the higher court.

Speaking to the Idaho Association of School Superintendents at the start of a two-day meeting in Boise, Evans said, in his words, "it's past time that we brought equity to both students and taxpayers across the state."

"There is no rationale that will ever support the idea that a child should have a inferior or superior educational program because of where that child lives," Evans said.

He also told the superintendents that his past session of the legislature had been good for education.

"There's nothing to be gained by divide-and-conquer tactics unless one is purposely trying to kill the legislation and I hope we have learned this lesson," Evans said.

"This session of the legislature gave the basic needs of education a high priority," in spite of the compounding problems of inflation and depression.

"I was pleased we were able to keep intact our excellent tax base and that efforts to erode our entire general tax system met with failure so that we could retain our solid foundation for future revenue," he said.

Premium increase barred

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Argonaut Insurance Company of California has been barred from imposing increases averaging 8.5 per cent in the cost of medical malpractice insurance for 23 hospitals in New York.

Judge Charles Tenney in Manhattan Federal Court used in the same time to cancel cancelling unexpired malpractice policies for the hospitals.

"The public interest in continuing availability of quality health services requires that a preliminary injunction be issued," Tenney said.

The action came in response to a lawsuit filed against Argonaut by the 23 hospitals, 17 of them in the downstate area, including some major hospitals in New York City. Thirteen of the hospitals would have had their policies cancelled Tuesday if they did not pay the new rates.

"If the hospitals now were required to pay the vastly increased rates sought by Argonaut," Tenney said, "they would have to eliminate critical services, such as outpatient clinics and the operation of emergency rooms."

The State Insurance Department has scheduled a hearing April 15 into the proposed rate increases. Officials have noted the possibility that Argonaut, a California-based company and New York's largest medical insurer, would drop the malpractice insurance business entirely.

Andrus finishes action on bills

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has completed action on all the bills that were passed by the recent session of the Idaho Legislature, his office reported Tuesday.

Although the governor's office did not have a complete record of the bills which Andrus had acted upon—the secretary of state's office said it had received 296 measures.

Andrus also vetoed 11 bills, the largest number while he has served as the state's chief executive. Previously, the most that Andrus had turned down totaled nine.

Four of the vetoed bills were line item vetoes, in which he objected to appropriation measures that contained language he felt threatened federal funds.

Two of the vetoes regarded tax relief and one would have reaffirmed the attorney general as the state's chief legal officer.

Andrus also vetoed bills which would have provided tax relief from surplus funds in the amount of 10 per cent and 12 per cent on 1974 individual income tax returns.

The governor refused to sign either of the tax relief proposals, because he sought from the legislature expenditure of surplus funds money for public works projects which he contended would do more for Idaho's economy than a tax rebate.

His veto of the bill sought by the attorney general broke a tranquility between Attorney General Wayne Kilduff, a Republican, and the governor.

Mourning for jobs

MOCK FUNERAL was conducted in front of Chrysler Corp. traffic department offices in Detroit Tuesday by laid truck drivers and their families after a postal fund guaranteeing $4,000 workers up to 85 per cent of their take home pay was exhausted. They mourned that and the loss of their jobs in last November's cutbacks. Most now face the problem of meeting living expenses. (UPI)

Coordination need cited in Western energy push

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — Wyoming Gov. Ed Herscher Tuesday said the development of Western energy resources will require intense planning and coordination by states to insure protection of agricultural interests.

Speaking at the Western Governor's Conference on Agriculture, Herscher said he doesn't agree with those who contend land use planning and plant siting regulations are not needed to regulate this development in Wyoming and other states.

"Most of us in Wyoming realize we will have growth, we will see great changes, we will have increased activity," he said, "what we are trying to guarantee is that this growth, change and activity will take place on our terms. Anything less than this is unacceptable."

Herscher, a rancher and lawyer, said mining is going to affect land and water precious to the future of agriculture and regulation is necessary to insure these interests are not abused by energy developers.

"Maybe in the total agricultural picture of the region or of a particular state, agriculture won't be severely affected, but locally, losing land to coal development and energy protection could mean loss of livelihood for many farmers and ranchers," he said.

Speaking at the start of the 1975 Wyoming Legislature passed legislation to require landowner consent for strip mining. He also outlined plant siting, land use planning and water development programs approved by the session.

The Wyoming governor said he has questioned the legality and feasibility of the proposed 1,000-mile coal slurry line from Wyoming to Arkansas, because of the potential damage it could cause to the state's underground water.

"In my opinion, the main point is that Wyoming should not be required to give away 15,000 to 20,000 acres of water per year just to slurry its coal out of the state," Herscher said.

"If water can be made available from other areas, I am all for the concept of slurring coal to another area where it will be converted to energy."

Crude oil, gas reserves decline, agencies claim

WASHINGTON — Two trade associations said Tuesday that the nation's proven reserves of crude oil and natural gas declined again in 1974.

Estimates by the American Petroleum Institute and the American Gas Association came as a surprise.

It had been widely expected that reserves would show a rise in 1974 because of appreciable increases in average prices paid for oil and gas.

Higher prices encourage drilling in the ground presumably can be recovered profitably, although costs are also a factor.

Controversy promptly erupted.

Bruce C. Netschert, vice president of a prominent New York economic consulting firm, told a conference sponsored by the institute that in light of a 25 per cent jump in oil prices in 1974 he was surprised by the reported decline in reserves, to 34.25 billion barrels from 35.3 billion.

Several oil industry executives replied that more time was needed for price changes to be reflected in reserves estimates. Netschert disputed that, saying the only "pure bookkeeping" was involved and "I still haven't had an answer."

G. C. Bankston of the Shell Oil Co., one of the executives who had rebutted Netschert, said: "I would have to agree that I would have expected slightly more of an increase than was obtained."

The American Gas Association reported that reserves of natural gas fell by 4 per cent to 237.1 trillion cubic feet as of Dec. 31, 1974, as against 250 trillion a year earlier.

The oil reserves figures, also for Dec. 31, and the gas estimates were prepared by separate committees sponsored respectively by the two trade associations and drawn from producing companies.

The 1974 estimates were expected to set off a fresh round of debate about the reliability of industry figures and about the government's continuing dependence on industry data.

Since that debate exploded a year ago during the Arab oil embargo, the Federal Energy Administration has developed its own regular data on oil production imports and inventories.

However, the agency is still working on an independent appraisal of industry estimates of reserves in the ground, the figures released Tuesday.

Congress directed that the appraisal be delivered by June 27, and an official of the agency said the deadline would be met.

British living costs soar

LONDON — The cost of living in Britain, already up 20 per cent in the last year, took another big leap Tuesday — with government encouragement.

Increases went into effect on a broad spectrum of products and services as part of the government's effort to put nationalized industries on a self-sustaining basis.

The increases went virtually unnoticed by a populace already accustomed to one of the highest inflation rates in Europe, but they could have political consequences later when the bills arrive in the mail and the impact literally hits home.

Starting Tuesday the cost of household electricity went up 28.5 per cent and industrial and commercial electricity went up 7.5 per cent. Domestic coal, which heats about 45 per cent of British households, went up 10 per cent, and will increase by a further 12 per cent Oct. 1.

Television license fees, which help finance the British Broadcasting Corporation, climbed 50 per cent to $49.20 annually for color sets and 44 per cent to $19.20 a year for black and white. The BBC doesn't carry commercial advertising.

AF chief clears trio in robbery

AMERICAN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — The American Falls police chief said Tuesday there are several suspects in the robbery of the Power County Hospital but three Pocatello men arrested in raids are not among them.

Chief Walt Miller said interrogations Tuesday of the three men in Pocatello had negative results but he had not ruled out the possibility the three in custody were involved in the pharmacy robbery.

Miller said the robbery early Monday was the first armed robbery in American Falls recorded history.

Clinton E. Hathaway, 26; John R. Otero, 26, and Larry Ray Shaw, 25, all of Pocatello, were arrested in two drug raids in Pocatello and arraigned on charges of possession of controlled substances. The raid was carried out by state narcotics agents, Pocatello city police and the Bannock County sheriff's department. Miller said there are four to five suspects under investigation and he hopes to have warrants issued yet this week.

Evans joins call

BOISE (UPI) — Lt. Gov. John V. Evans had a conference telephone call with the governors of the 48 contiguous states Tuesday to initiate the American Freedom Train's 21-month tour of the nation.

Evans took part in the 48-way telephone call in place of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus who was finishing up last minute business prior to leaving for San Francisco for a meeting with President Ford.

The lieutenant governor said it was appropriate that the kickoff of the bicentennial celebration be initiated by the freedom train since "the American railroad was instrumental in the development of our vast, rich western territories."

"Most Idahoans living more than 2,000 miles from our nation's capital never had the opportunity to see the many documents on display which represent the historical beginning of this great country of ours," Evans said.

The Freedom Train will begin its 17,000 mile journey in Delaware and visit Boise Oct. 15 for a four or five day stay.

Evans expressed disappointment that the schedule does not include stops in Eastern Idaho and the Panhandle area "in order to reach a greater segment of the state's population."

Director selected

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — Former North Dakota Gov. William Guy Tuesday was named director of the Rocky Mountain Regional Energy Policy Office.

Guy was appointed by a vote 17-2 with Gov. Thomas Judge of Montana and Colorado Agriculture Commissioner Roy Romer, who voted for Guy, Richard Lamn, opposing.

Guy needed a two-thirds majority from the 10 states involved in the regional office to be confirmed.

Blaine retains Ketchum man as planning chief

HAILEY David Vnhy Ketchum is the new administrative planner for the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission. After nearly three months of searching for an administrator the county commissioners decided Friday to go with the man who has served as county planner for several years. Late last year the move to replace present administrator Bob Barnes was begun after several conferences with county officials. Barnes is to be the new county weed eradication director. Advertisements for the administrative positions were placed across the United States and nearly 60 men applied for the post. The planning and zoning commission narrowed the field to six. Vnhy was included in the six selected. All of the men except Vnhy turned down the job offer, county commissioner Ivan Gustafson said. He said none were willing to travel to Hailey, work as a one-man planning agency and make $12,000 a year. "Quite frankly there has been some controversy over Dave," Gustafson said. "From what I can see, the complaints are all personality things and have nothing to do with the way he does his job." Gustafson said county commissioners Ray Sweet and C. W. Gardner discussed and thought out the appointment before Vnhy was chosen. Gustafson said the chairman of the planning and zoning commission, Nick Purdy, was "overwhelmingly in favor of"

Vnhy. The push to get Vnhy selected came from Purdy and himself, Gustafson said. When it was over, Ray Sweet seconded the motion and all three commissioners voted for Vnhy, Gustafson said. "We are right in the middle of a comprehensive plan and it's a hell of a time to change people," Gustafson said. "For all practical purposes all of the work on the comprehensive plan, Dave's done." Vnhy will be paid $900 a month. He will share the administrative and planning functions with Alan Reynolds, a newly appointed assistant planner. A strong effort by the two can hopefully get the comprehensive plan completed by July 1, Gustafson said.

The council will work with schools and service clubs, according to Mayor Fred Pence, and the designated day will be announced soon. The council approved bill 5602, giving the telephone company permission to bury cables on East Main Street. The council members discussed projects for persons to be employed under the CETA 6 federal program. The council has approved participation in the program under which the federal government will pay salaries of a supervisor and six workmen. Projects suggested by the council included cleaning alleys and vacant lots, painting fire hydrants, trimming tree limbs, patching holes in streets and similar work. The seven men are to be hired through the Twin Falls office of the Department of Employment. Bids are being accepted by the council for materials to seal-cut all streets paved within the last two years. Interpenetration Gas Co. was given permission to install a no-coal to the city an alarm in the city office which will tell of any malfunctions in the gas lines. The city office was selected because it is manned 24 hours a day. Proposed work at the swimming pool was discussed. The recreation association has brought up the possibility of combining the efforts of the council and the association to install automatic sprinkling systems at Eastman Park and Farris Field in coming years.

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A special "positive action" program at Twin Falls High School has been named Idaho's top drug abuse prevention program by the National Institute on Drug Abuse. The program — new this school year — was named State Selection by the National Search Panel of the NIDA, part of the US Department of Health, Education and Welfare. "Positive Action" class teachers Jackie Rohweder and Carol Allred said four classes were offered first semester and five during the second semester this year. About 200 students, primarily seniors, have taken the semester-long course. As part of the award, Mrs. Allred and Mrs. Rohweder have been invited to participate in a seminar to develop a national strategy for primary drug abuse prevention, to be held in San Francisco April 16-18. The teachers say they hope to attend if they can arrange for travel expenses. Discussing the program, which is based on a similar project designed by psychologist Glenn Jorgensen, the teachers said the primary emphasis is on building a positive self concept in their students. "Drug abuse prevention is a secondary aim," they say. Mrs. Allred said in making an application for the award, she "carefully stated it was not a drug abuse program."

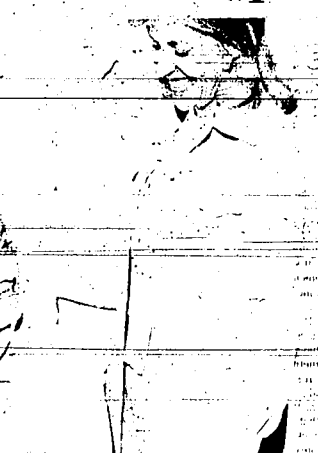

Mrs. Allred said the program essentially tries to teach students to handle their emotions and to make adjustments so they don't need crutches like drugs or alcohol. The course strives to teach the students "respect for other human beings and respect for themselves." Group work is stressed in class sessions, so more of the students will have a chance to participate, Mrs. Rohweder said. For the course students read various books and articles, including "Psychochemistry" by Maxwell Maltz, "Man's Search for Meaning" by Viktor Frankl, and other psychologically-oriented books.

The concept behind the "positive action" program is simple positive actions are what build high self-esteem, and high self-esteem is often indicative of an ability to handle one's emotions, the teachers explained. Many psychological studies have tied low self-esteem to emotional problems, the teachers said. "We figure that drug abuse, alcohol abuse, or any other type of abuse is a symptom of a deep-seated problem," Mrs. Rohweder said. The teachers said they carefully attempt to establish a non-threatening, uncritical atmosphere in the courses. There are no tests and no grade given in the course, they said. Students make written evaluations of their progress, and the course assured that their thoughts will remain in the confidence of the teacher. Basically, the teachers say, "we talk about what they (the students) want to."

Values and a personal code of conduct are among other topics discussed, but the two women emphasized they are "not out to moralize." The values are "strictly their own. We don't try to impose anything on them," Mrs. Rohweder said. But the students know they can come in and say whatever they want and nobody will criticize them, the teachers emphasized. About half the students are girls and half are boys. Both teachers said some students started out the class with something of a cynical, reluctant attitude but almost all finished as willing participants. Some of the students but certainly not all, have had experience of problems with drugs and alcohol, Mrs. Allred said. Even the barriers between the "post-rappers" and the "long-hairs" tend to break down during the course, Mrs. Rohweder said. Students learn to set goals during the course and figure out their own style of conduct, as well as participate in both public and private projects, for instance distributing Christmas baskets to some elderly persons.

Texas solons seek division

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — When Texas joined the union in 1845, it retained the right to divide itself into as many as five states.

New two state lawmakers, Sen. Bob Gammage, a Houston Democrat, and Rep. Fred Agnich, a Dallas Republican, have introduced a bill calling for a public vote on the issue in 1976. The vote would be in the form of a nonbinding referendum.

Gammage got a telegram later saying, "You've got to be out of your damned mind."

But Gammage and Agnich say Eastern states have a disproportionate share of power in Congress. They say Texas could increase its clout by dividing and getting eight additional senators for the four new states.

"It's simply a warning to some of the people back East," Agnich said.

Since Gammage got the telegram suggesting he was insane, reactions have moderated somewhat.

"If you don't have the emotional blocks most Texans have, it sounds like a pretty good idea," Gammage said. "But I'll admit I have a block. I don't want to see it divided up. But it's something to think about."

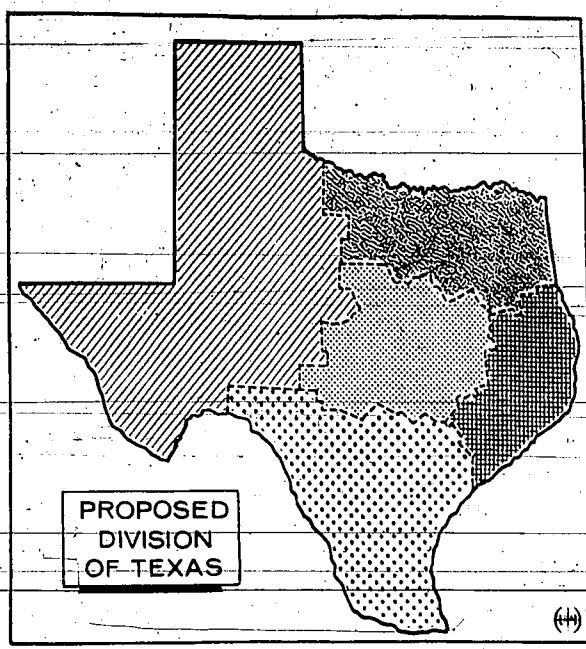

"It's kind of interesting to see people's reactions," Agnich said. "The first reaction tends to be totally negative. Then after some thinking it tends to be less negative. My personal reaction is that at present the disadvantages outweigh the advantages."

Jack D. Knox, president of Summit Energy, Inc., of Dallas, wrote Gammage endorsing the idea to protect Texas oil and gas.

"This resource-rich area simply must have protection from the eastern liberal consumer group, and the only way I can see for us to do it is to utilize the considerable wisdom of our farmers and exercise our privilege of dividing this area into five separate states in terms of representation in Washington," Knox said.

Carl E. Blass, a Rosenberg, Tex., voter, didn't think it was such a good idea.

"Thanks for the comedy relief," Blass told Gammage. "Most Texans are after all Americans first and Texans second. To do what you advocate could better be done by secession."

Oil well rigger searches nation for skilled help

HOUSTON (UPI) — Earl Sheppard says he can't find good help these days because the nation's high schools are preparing kids to go to college and not to work.

Sheppard, director of industrial relations for an oil well fitter, has been forced to go outside Texas in hopes of finding men — experienced or otherwise — who want a good-paying job. The results were disappointing.

"I'm not smart enough to solve all the world's problems, but 20 years ago a lot of people didn't go to college! And they didn't go for financial reasons," Sheppard said.

"But now our high schools are geared to produce a graduate that's going to college. I don't think they are doing a good job of taking these people not going to college and preparing them to go out and get a job so they can become an earning citizen."

Sheppard's firm, Reed Tool Co., sent a team of interviewers to Florida and afterward to Detroit in a cooperative effort between the Texas Employment Commission and the Michigan Employment Commission and the Michigan Employment Commission.

"We set up some 300 interviews," he said. "And we didn't do too much good."

Sheppard said the company is hard pressed to find experienced machinists, operators, tool and dye makers, maintenance repairmen, electricians and machine operators — all positions paying upwards of $15,000 a year.

"It's hard to get some people to understand. I don't think they believe these layoffs are for that long a period of time. I think they still have hopes of going back to work."

But Sheppard said some people drawing unemployment benefits don't need jobs.

"The guy was earning $14 a week less than what he did when he was working. This doesn't give me the money incentive to pick up his family and move to Houston," Sheppard said.

"We feel like the guy who goes out and gets himself a job is going to be way ahead of the pack because he's going to be picking his job. When they run out of their layoffs funds it's going to be all the same time. You're going to have a flood of people looking for the same jobs."

Sheppard said every manufacturing company in Houston had jobs opening and few people to fill them. Competition for experienced people is fierce.

"If an experienced man comes in, I'm going to hire him if there's any way I can," he said. "I'm not going to let a good man get away."

Gun law blankets Massachusetts

BOSTON (UPI) — A gun law which doesn't allow mistakes went into effect today in Massachusetts with a one-year mandatory sentence awaiting anyone caught with an unlicensed firearm.

The law has no discretion in sentencing. There can be no parole, no probation and, after being sent to jail, a person could not be furloughed until at least one year of the term had been served.

The new law, which makes no changes in licensing requirements, toughens punishment of violators. Existing statutes require persons owning rifles and shotguns to register with police for a Firearms Identification Card and pistol permits have been required for quite a number of years.

Exceptions remain for antique firearms, persons holding out-of-state hunting licenses and nonresidents passing through. Otherwise, the law blankets everyone from an armed hand to a teenager found with his father's hunting rifle in the trunk of his car.

There has been a rush on some police departments by gun owners attempting to obtain licenses.

"We've had as many as 200 new applications in one day and as many inquiries," said Pittsfield Police Capt. Stanley Skankiewicz. "On an average day during the hunting season before the law went into effect we might get 10 or 15 applications in a day."

Boston printing firm reported a backlog on orders for 25,000 FID cards.

"At least 100 towns have orders in for blank FID cards. I'd say we have back orders for 25,000 of them," said salesman Dan Hooley of Hobbs & Warren Inc. of Boston. "We sold 80,000 cards to police departments since the first of the year," Hooley added.

China Garden group told to start LID

HAILEY — The City Council here Monday told residents of China Garden to start a local improvement district if they want good roads in the subdivision.

Residents in the west Hailey subdivision have complained since last year the city was not properly taking care of the rutted and dirty streets in China Gardens subdivisions 1 and 2.

Councilman Claude Porter said after the meeting the city does not have the money to do what the residents in the subdivision are asking. The LID is a possible solution, he said, to their problem.

Under the LID, the total cost of paving, engineering, fiscal agents and other items would be about $10,000, according to information supplied by J. L. R. Engineers, Twin Falls. The project would include 6000 feet of roadway 24 feet wide.

The cost would average about $600 per owner of a 7,000 square foot lot, according to city attorney Stephen Butler.

The council told a contingent of China Garden residents it could approve an LID on a three-fourths vote or, if a majority of the residents of the subdivision signed a petition.

Jim Cutler, who is acting as a spokesman for the group, said he thinks the chances of getting a majority of residents to sign a petition which will cost them more money are poor.

The council is supposed to supply Cutler with a detailed cost figure breakdown if he wishes to start the petition drive.

"In the only other action, the council approved a $319,075 expenditure budget for 1975."

Millionairess starves

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Mrs. Bertha Adams, 71, would beg for food, wore clothes given to her by the Salvation Army and sympathetic neighbors who felt she was unable to care for herself got her committed to a nursing home.

Sunday she died of malnutrition, leaving behind close to $1 million in cash and stocks.

"I continue to be dumbfounded," attorney Robert Lette, her court-appointed guardian, said Monday. "It's hard to get over seeing that much money."

Lette, who was appointed Mrs. Adams' guardian by a probate judge who found her incompetent because of "senility and malnutrition" last month, discovered the widow's assets in two bank deposit boxes. One box, at the Atlantic National Bank, contained $600,000 in cash, while another, at the Florida National Bank, contained $199,561.50 in cash and an assortment of various stocks, including 730 shares of International Telephone and Telegraph Co. and 139 shares of International Paper Co.

Lette said he had no idea how Mrs. Adams had amassed her wealth. She had married twice but both husbands were believed dead and Lette knew of no family other than a niece, in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Adams, who weighed only 50 pounds when authorities were alerted to her condition, used to tell neighbors she was "no poor woman" and had once lived in wealth and comfort.

"She came to my back door and begged me for food," said Mrs. Odell Edwards. "But she always used to tell me that she was 'no poor woman' and I believed her. She used to tell me that she once lived at the Breckers (Hotel)."

Mrs. Edwards said Mrs. Adams "dressed nicely and lived well" when she first moved into the neighborhood 25 years ago. But she gradually deteriorated so that in recent years, according to another neighbor, "her house looked like a pigpen and she got what clothes she had from the Salvation Army."

Neighbors finally alerted the Division of Family Services to her condition and last March 17, following Judge Paul Douglas' ruling, she was committed to a nursing home.

Lette, who conducted a court-ordered inventory of her belongings after her commitment, found she owned a 1952 Cadillac valued at $200, had $210.75 in her bank account and had stocks and securities valued at $3,000 before finding the keys to the safe deposit boxes.

Mrs. Adams left no will and Lette said he did not know whether her niece would be entitled to any of her property.

Black Mormons honored at last

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — More than 125 years after the fact, three blacks who accompanied the Mormon migration west will get their due.

They will have their names inscribed on the Brigham Young Monument in the center of downtown Salt Lake City.

The monument since its erection has carried the names of Mormon pioneers who entered the Salt Lake Valley with Brigham Young in 1847, and, as a sort of afterthought, the tagline, "and three colored servants."

The monument area adjacent to the Mormon Temple has recently been made more accessible to the public because of a downtown "beautification project," and City Commissioner Stephen M. Harmsen Monday asked the commission to change the inscription on it to include the names of the three blacks.

"I think it's embarrassing," Harmsen said, "but the three are referred to only as colored servants."

The commission agreed to rewrite the inscription so the three servants are listed as Hank Lay, Oscar Crosby and James Madison Flake.

NY zoo auctions animals

NEW YORK (UPI) — Interested in owning a leopard? Or a de-scented skunk perhaps? Or maybe a lioness?

If so, send a sealed bid to the Municipal Services Administration in New York City. If the price is right, the animal is yours.

The MSA disclosed Saturday that due to overcrowding, about 90 animals from three city zoos are being offered by sealed bid in the first auctions of surplus animals by the city in at least 10 years.

Among the species available to the highest bidders are four jaguars, an eight-year-old leopard, several deer, a two-year-old lioness, a variety of monkeys, chickens, goats, bison and one youthful female skunk, de-scented.

Bids for the animals, now at the Central Park, Prospect Park and Flushing Meadow zoos, will be opened April 15.

"There are no plans to close the zoos, but the animals need more room," said MSA administrator John T. Carroll in announcing the sales. "The zoo will still maintain the same variety of animals, but just less of them."

Among the beasts scheduled for new homes is a two-year-old jaguar in Prospect Park named Cagney. A spokesman said the big cat's name comes from his jail. "Because his legs are short and slightly bowed, and," the spokesman said, "Cagney" tends to strut like the actor.

One female bison, nicknamed "Maude," is also named after a show business personality and the skunk is known as "Sweet's." The spokesman said, preferring not to elaborate.

"Cagney," "Maude," "Sweet's" and all the other animals are described as in excellent health.

French bus accident kills 20

VIZILLE, France (UPI) — A bus crowded with religious pilgrims today missed a sharp curve and veered off a highway, plunging 140 feet onto the banks of the River Rhodane just south of Grenoble.

Police reported at least 20 dead and 20 injured. Many of the injured were reported in serious condition.

Officials said the victims, all from the Loire area near Paris, were returning from a pilgrimage to Notre Dame de la Salette in the French Alps.

They said the bus apparently lost its brakes and missed the sharp, right-angled turn on the highway, known as the "Route Napoléon."

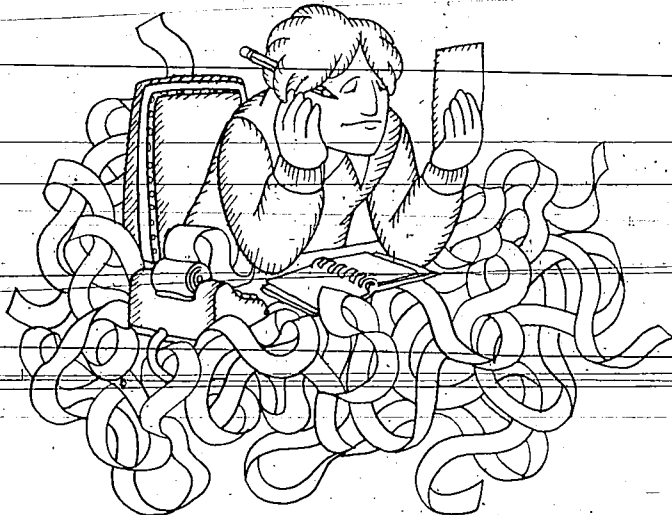

It crashed through a stone-arched bridge crossing and plunged into the ravine, landing on the rocky left bank.

Rescue teams managed to reach the scene of the accident within 10 minutes, but 700 men and foremen had to cut their way through the wreckage to reach the victims.

In 1963, 31 persons died when a Belgian bus smashed through the barriers at exactly the same spot and fell into the river.

Since 1960, over 100 persons have died at the bridge, one of the most hazardous spots in France, police said.

Geothermal progress . . .

Outlook good

GEOTHERMAL tests at a site near Malta have raised hopes that the area might accommodate a power plant capable of generating 10,000 to 20,000 kilowatts of electricity.

This well has been sunk to 4,550 feet, where 230-degree water was struck. The flow measured about 1,000 gallons per minute. Tests of the hot water supply are underway by researchers.

John Griffith, manager of the Energy Resource and Development Administration project, has said a 10,000-kilowatt plant would require between 5 and 10 such wells.

Another researcher, Dr. Jay Kinze, has said if the hot water power plant is successful, Idaho's energy needs could eventually be met with geothermal sources.

Rupert death probed

By DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

RUPERT — William Manning, Minidoka County Prosecutor, said today there are "some extraordinary circumstances" surrounding the death of a 77-year-old Rupert woman, Anna Marie Rufener. But he refused to say what the circumstances were.

Mrs. Rufener, 77, was found dead at her home Sunday.

Manning said the cause of Mrs. Rufener's death has not been firmly established, and said an investigation into the "extraordinary circumstances" is being conducted.

An inquest into Mrs. Rufener's death will be held Thursday at 1 p.m. Manning said.

Coroner Kim Christensen said a decision to hold the inquest was made following an autopsy Monday. However, he declined to make the results public.

Manning said Monday's autopsy was only partial and a complete autopsy will be conducted today.

Rupert Chief of Police Ed Culver said his investigators are still working on the case. Culver said he is still waiting for the signing of statements of people involved before he comments on the case.

Culver said at this time he is not sure if "foul play" is involved in Mrs. Rufener's death.

SNRA site firm despite clamor

By BART QUENNEL
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — The Sawtooth National Recreation area administrative-visitor center reportedly will be built at North Fork unless otherwise directed from a high US Forest Service official.

SNRA Supt. Gray Reynolds made the statement Tuesday in a press conference called by the forest service to explain the reasoning behind the North Fork site selection.

A citizen's group started a petition campaign Friday to stop construction of the 12,000 square-foot center at North Fork about seven miles north of Ketchum.

The group contends that the SNRA has not listened to the public which it serves and that the building is to be constructed in one of the last remaining virgin canyons close to Ketchum.

Reynolds said he would meet with the public and the citizens of the site but probably would not have a public meeting unless directed by the chief of the forest service, John McGuire, from Washington.

Selection of the North Fork site began in 1971, Reynolds said. The announcement to develop at North Fork was made initially in 1972 and was brought up at public meetings across Idaho before Congress made the decision to create the SNRA, he said.

During August and September, 1972, Reynolds said there were seven public meetings across the state at which time there was public support for the site at North Fork.

Over 50 per cent of the people coming into the SNRA drive through Ketchum, Reynolds said, which was one of the reasons the North Fork site was selected.

He said the forest service has conducted field trips to the site as well as pointing out the site to seven thousands of officials and citizens during the dedication of the SNRA in September of 1972. The headquarters site was pointed out to all people on the buses and there was no adverse comment, Reynolds said.

Reynolds said during the planning process, a site at Headquarters Canyon (further north of the present site) was considered but the cost of installing a sewer pipeline from that location would be far too expensive.

The drainfield at the North Fork site is to be located about one-fourth mile north of the proposed site. Test holes were dug 10 feet deep and there is no standing, no underground water table down 10 feet, Reynolds said. He said the drainfield would not pollute the Wood River.

He said an Ketchum there just wasn't enough opportunity for us to build a building.

He said the sewer and water system was installed last fall for $145,000.

Youth ranch complex eyed

RUPERT — Construction of the $264,000 recreation complex at the Idaho Youth Ranch will begin as soon as the necessary permits are obtained from Minidoka County.

Clyde Greenwell, chairman of the board of directors of the youth ranch, said that although some initial excavation has been done, it will be at least two weeks before permits can be obtained to allow construction to begin.

He said it is expected six months will be required to complete the complex once construction is underway.

Neil Howard, executive director, said the project will be completely funded by private donations and a $30,000 check from a Nevada foundation represents the largest single contribution the Idaho Youth Ranch has ever received.

Howard said no state or federal monies or any individual donor family or memorial funds are being used unless specifically designated. He said funds have come from smaller foundations, businesses and other private donors.

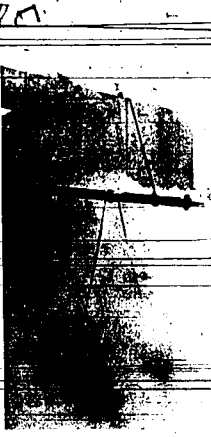

The 11,000-square-foot complex will include a basketball court, a weight room, game room and showering facilities. Sauerman Construction, Idaho Falls, and youth ranch officials worked with the specifications to bring the bid amount of $285,000 down to the $264,000.

Howard said the basic structure will be built for this amount and the youth ranch will be responsible for painting, carpeting, gym equipment and other necessary furnishings.

Spud growers rap contract

TWIN FALLS — Advertisements appearing in southern Idaho newspapers today claim that a Twin Falls food processor is soliciting potato contracts which violate procedures set by growers.

The bargaining committee of the Potato Growers of Idaho Inc. says that Idaho Frozen Foods is soliciting 1975 potato contracts not approved by the grower group.

The processor "has not requested and has completely disregarded the bargaining procedures initiated by their growers to achieve a fair and equitable contract," according to the advertisement.

The grower group urges growers not to sign the Idaho Frozen Foods contract because of these changes in the inspection and incentive clauses, and because the price offered is $1.72 per hundred pounds less than last year on an average crop, according to the advertisement.

Vern Ruffin, president of Idaho Frozen Foods, owned by Consolidated Foods Corp. of Chicago, said today that the contract the company offered was "not quite the way they put it" in the advertisement.

"I'll have to study it first," Ruffin said of the advertisement, before making any further statements on it.

Some growers have accepted Idaho Frozen Foods' contract offer, according to Ruffin, but he could not say how many had accepted.

Representatives of the Potato Growers of Idaho could not be reached for comment.

Filer receives mandate against 'orderly growth'

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

FILER — The Filer City Council received a clear mandate Tuesday night at a packed meeting against "orderly growth" in the form of a proposed Carter subdivision.

Despite an emotional appeal by Ron Carter, Boise attorney, son of the owner of the 60-acre tract, Mel Carter, that "if growth is going to happen right here to stay — no one can stop it and the best thing to do is take hold and control it," the citizens who packed the city hall were adamant in their opposition to the proposal.

According to law any subdivision within one mile of a city's limits must be first approved by that city council.

After many questions and comments by more than a dozen residents, several of which were greeted with applause, those attending voted unanimously against the subdivision when asked by Mayor Paul Shover for a show of hands.

Major concern about the proposed development, which was described as rocky ground northwest of Filer a half-mile from the city limits, was how a deep well would affect the water table of surrounding domestic wells.

Possibility of sewage problems augmented by overcrowding of schools and impact in fire and police protection all were mentioned. Several women said the Filer schools were now at capacity and a bond issue would be needed to increase classroom space.

Carter's proposals as presented by Bernard Mozdelski, a Twin Falls realtor, originally called for individual wells and septic tanks on the 120 building lots which range from 15,000 to 36,000 to 40,000 square feet.

Carter plans to eventually sell the 120 lots with the proposed covenants (restrictions) limiting the houses landowners may build to not less than 1100 square feet.

The developer now plans one central water system which he will own and a lift station which would hook into the Filer city sewer system. The city would charge $1.50 monthly sewage fees.

Lud Dierkes, who farms in the area, immediately asked what would happen if the large well affected his domestic water supply. He said his well had pumped sand last summer when the city was watering lawns heavily.

He was assured by Mozdelski that the state would not allow new wells to be drilled if they would damage existing wells.

The young realtor was questioned sarcastically by some of the farmers present who challenged his statement that the proposed subdivision was not surrounded by farmland.

The Carters emphasized their proposal complied with all zoning regulations and Mel Carter in an emotional appeal told the audience the council had already approved the proposal. He also said he had received approval of the Filer Highway District and county health and zoning groups.

When Councilman Charles Crawford disagreed, Carter said Mayor Shover had assured him of the action during a telephone conversation the day following a previous council meeting.

The subdivision has been discussed since December, Crawford said, but the councilman said the issue has been sidetracked by the recall movement against the mayor which Crawford termed "a smokescreen." This is the first time the council has been able to get public input on the subdivision.

Councilmen emphatically denied approving the proposal and it was pointed out the legal-looking copy Carter was reading from was a proposal drawn up by City Atty. Bob Rayborn at Carter's request.

"We never agreed on anything but the 1100 square feet," Councilman Crawford said.

Harvey Maxson, chairman of the Filer Highway District, relived Carter's claim and said "We never did give our approval."

Dick Shelton, former councilman, said the subdivision could overload the capacity of the sewage lagoon.

"We're going to have to build more lagoons and schools or stop development," he said.

"We're the ones who are going to pay for it," Greg Lamberson, Filer, questioned how the city could have any control over the subdivision residents or problems arising there when it is out of the Filer city limits.

Paul Larrick told Carter, "You ain't putting any pipe across my land."

The Carters, and Mozdelski repeatedly assured the estimated 75 persons, some of whom were standing throughout the meeting, that enforcement of regulations would be handled "by the people themselves."

"We'll turn the water system over to the city," Mozdelski even said during one exchange.

"We don't want your water system. We have enough problems of our own," Councilman Crawford retorted, amid hearty applause.

When pressed to read the restrictive covenants Mel Carter established there could be no pigs, but other animals shall not be permitted to become nuisances.

The citizens at the council meeting clearly had little faith in the ability of landowners to enforce the regulations. They passed problems ranging from what the city would do if subdivision residents failed to pay their water bill to future problems when residents might complain about the dairy farms nearby.

Both Mel Carter and his son said if the proposal was turned down the land would be sold "in three lots with no 'orderly development'."

US meat imports show rise in February

(Courtesy Sinclair & Co.) WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's February meat import figures (for meat subject to meat import law) showed an 81 per cent increase in U.S. imports compared to February a year ago which reflects a heavy New Zealand slaughter during October-December and larger meat shipments from Australia.

U.S. meat imports were valued at $1.2 billion in February versus February, 1974, and those from New Zealand increased 42 per cent.

For the period January-February compared to the same period last year, Australia jumped 88 per cent. A USDA spokesman said that interpretation of the Australian increases should keep in mind the relatively low levels of U.S. imports from that country last year due to producers withholding cattle.

Imports from all other countries, mostly in South America, dropped in February compared to last year's February figures. Although the United Kingdom is listed as having shipped no meat to the United States in February, that country's meat exports to the United States is up 124 per cent over the January-February period versus a year ago.

Drops in imports from South American nations are largely due to more attractive, lower-level prices on the domestic markets in those countries, a USDA spokesman said.

USDA is expected to release to the agriculture secretary's second quarterly meat import estimate perhaps along with an update on U.S. negotiations with exporting countries on the subject of voluntary restraint levels in meat exports.

A USDA source said that if Australia has agreed to a voluntary restraint level the State Department is handling the negotiations. It is logical to believe that the monthly imports from that country will drop in the last half of the year. Countries renegotiating their agreements to restrain exports could have exports turned back upon entering the United States. This sanction is authorized under the meat import law's section 352 and has been used against some South American countries in the past.

Total U.S. meat imports (imports of meat subject to meat import law) totaled 97,492 million pounds in February compared to 82,436 million pounds in February, 1974. For January-February, the total was 16 per cent more than a year ago.

Officials of the State Department of Agriculture which anticipated a total state count of more than 500,000 sheep in Idaho, but counts at the end of the year indicated an actual number of 400,000 or a decline of 8 per cent.

The problem of declining flocks has plagued more sheepmen who blame some of the losses on predators and an

Brazil soybean imports plan called unlikely

Courtesy Sinclair & Co. NEW YORK (AP) — Although an apparently feasible import economic point of view, the idea of importing Brazilian soybeans into the United States for processing oil later export to Europe was considered highly unlikely by members of the trade.

Reports circulated towards the latter part of last week that a major U.S. grain exporter had been importing soybeans from Brazil to the port of Norfolk, Va. The beans were supposedly trucked to a nearby processing plant where oil and meal were produced. The by-products were then reportedly loaded back onto a ship and sent off to European buyers.

Members of the trade were hard pressed to find a mediating factor powerful enough to convince an exporter to bring foreign beans into this country for processing and export.

Some sources indicated that the exporter was importing the beans to force the hand of U.S. farmers who had been holding soybeans on the farm while waiting for more attractive prices.

However, this idea was dismissed by one who said that farmers would not be forced into selling their beans that easily, especially by an idea as unusual as this one.

Perhaps the most convincing argument against the theory was one based simply on economics.

Most exporters placed the current price of Brazilian beans at around $29 a ton, for at these levels, exporters said, the price of the Brazilian product would be just about on

Chemical benefits grasses

BERKELEY, Calif. — It is often said in jest, "and sometimes not just, that man is his own worst enemy." Weeds may be his second-worst enemy. They give him skin rashes, poison both him and his livestock, foul his water, reduce food supplies, and cost untold millions of dollars in damage to beneficial plants.

Man in his inherent competitiveness fought back. He pulled them, he hoed them, and he plowed them. He sent in the geese, the goats, and even the hogs to eat them and thus to do battle for him. Commercial herbicides were also added to this arsenal of weapons.

Even though some herbicides produced unexpected adverse environmental effects, others—produced unexpected benefits. Naturally they controlled the weeds that what they were designed for. But they also imported of increased protein content and increased resistance to plants.

These herbicides, of the triazine group, include atrazine, simazine, and cyanazine.

This increase in protein content is particularly important for livestock. Cured range grasses, in particular, have low protein and nutrition and any way to increase them could mean increased range livestock production and lower meat prices in the super markets.

Packers, farmers feuding over what makes best ham

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — It doesn't take a gourmet to recognize the dry, salty and pungent flavor of country ham. But now meat packers and small farmers are feuding over exactly what it takes to make the Southern delicacy.

The feud began five years ago when North Carolina producers asked the U.S. Agriculture Department to set criteria for using the coveted country ham label.

With exception of Virginia's Smithfield, Ham — made by four firms under patents protected by both Virginia and federal law — there are no country ham standards other than taste and appearance.

Some farmers use hams up to a year, using secret formulas dating back to colonial days when Indians taught early settlers to preserve ham. Others — content — modify methods can cut the curing time drastically.

"They're trying to get them down to a 60 to 70-day ham," said Robert Pulley of Ivar in Tidewater, Virginia. "It's cheaper and it won't shrink as much. It's not a quality product. You just don't have that good pungent taste to it."

"It's not so much the USDA, but the big boys in the meat packing business," said Pulley, whose family has made country hams for three generations.

The USDA proposed standards in 1970 and 1972 but withdraw them. Small farmers in Virginia and North Carolina disagreed on standards and also accused large packers of wanting to stifle quality for profit. The USDA Meat and Poultry Inspection Division said it was caught in the middle.

"The department is not interested in publishing a standard that shows favoritism toward any one group or locale," said USDA spokesman Bill Dennis. "At this stage, we

Shorter ham curing time eyed

By United Press International

A country ham once took up to a year to make, but the goal, criteria was always fast. Now the Agriculture Department is considering standards for country ham, including a minimum curing time of as little as two months.

Indians first taught early English colonists to dry and preserve hams with the characteristic dry, salty and pungent taste.

Before mechanized agriculture, the most sophisticated hams for country hams were those that fed on peanuts in the fields after harvesting. Now they may come from anywhere since modern equipment does not leave enough peanuts in the fields for feed.

Although farmers use different methods, a USDA spokesman said country hams have several things in common, including a dry appearance and varying shades of brown, depending on surface treatment such as peppering.

Virginia's famous Smithfield Ham, the only country style ham protected by a patent recognized under both Virginia and federal law, probably would not be affected by the proposed regulations. Only four companies, located in the corporate limits of Smithfield in Tidewater Virginia, can use the "Smithfield" label on their country hams.

the meat until the body heat leaves, then smother the hams with salt and put them in a cooler.

Later the hams are washed and hung in a smokehouse where they begin to dry. They will shrink by 25 per cent or more during the aging process, which lasts from six months to a year, depending on the weather. The hams in the smokehouses of small farmers get little aging and flavoring until the summer heat arrives.

But Jones said the big packers can cure the meat faster in controlled-environment smokehouses, a fact some packers want considered if the USDA sets standards for country hams.

"I personally feel 70 to 75 days is what is required to give good ham under today's state of the art," said Robert Oliver, an official of IIT Gwaltney's, a Smithfield Ham producer. "But this type of thing is very subjective."

Oliver's question is whether a quality ham can be produced in the shorter time.

problems," he said.

Surry, ham packer Wallace Edwards doubts the USDA can devise satisfactory standards, but adds, "I don't see why anyone agrees country ham should be shelf stable. That is, it doesn't require refrigeration."

"There's a significant difference in the flavor between one that's 12 months old and one that is considerably less," the consumers know what they like."

Herb Jones, an Isle of Wight county "extension" agent, believes the USDA should not set a minimum curing time. "The packers in this country were trained on this type of ham cooking," Jones said.

For someone to come along and say this is all wrong would be a disaster.

He says that to make the country ham and the Smithfield Ham is somewhat an art of the trade, knowing each that is different.

"They will smother it to try to control the temperature and heating. They are going to make these things, learn the artificial products, learn the country ham and hang it up and that thing might be good for a time, but in 12 months."

"If I did that with a finer cured ham, you'd have

Herb Jones, an Isle of Wight county extension agent, said small producers slaughter hogs in December and January, hang

"It's possible, but highly improbable, that any technology could duplicate the texture, flavor and quality of a country ham in a much shorter period of time," Jones said.

"The key factor is the knowledge that is passed down from generation to generation," he said. "It's like long fishing. Some people know exactly where to go and when to fish. Some I don't think any two farmers are the same."

Sunny plot best gardening area

It's a plot of ground that catches all sunlight, morning up to night, bakes an especially suitable site for the home vegetable garden.

Richard B. Latta, associate extension horticulturist, College of Agriculture, University of Nevada, says full sun means top production.

Post recently listed a number of factors that apply to preparing "the" home garden. Regarding sun, he said vegetables which flower and fruit like peppers or egg plant particularly need it. On the other hand, vegetables like leafy lettuce and chard can take more shade.

"Important in preparing the area, aside from the sunlight 'peet,'" Post said, "is consideration of possible competing plant species, spacing, placement of the preparation, staking, seed bed preparation, fertilization and preplanting irrigation."

such as bark, peat moss, manure or compost. The latter two will provide nutrients as well as aeration.

"Once spading is completed, level out the garden and rake it. It is now almost ready for planting," Post said. He advised, though, that if there is no rain, the garden area should be given a deep irrigation with setting of the soil to depths of 12 to 16 inches.

Post concluded by saying that vegetables which could be planted in March include some transplants such as cabbage, broccoli which can germinate in the garden later. Such vegetables as lettuce, bean sets, onion seed, peas, spinach and turnips can be planted from seed directly into the garden.

Idaho study funds sought by Church

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church has urged the Senate Appropriations Committee to continue funding a resource management study of the Idaho batholith.

Church said Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus had asked for continued funding of the study of the 16,000 square mile area.

Locating the garden on level ground can mean easier planting, straighter rows and easier cultivation and maintenance. Explained Latta, though, that depending on land available, vegetable gardens can also be planted on sloped ground using terracing or contouring for planting and irrigation purposes.

Obtaining a soil test of the garden site, Post said, will provide an idea of what nutrients or fertilizers the soil needs. This will contribute significantly to upping production.

Good preparation of the garden as a seed bed is necessary for good plant growth. The garden spot should be tilled at a time when soil moisture conditions are about right.

"To determine this," Post said, "spade up a shovel full of the garden soil. Take a handful of the dirt from the middle of the shovel. Squeeze it. If you release your grip and it still stays in a ball, yet crumbles relatively finely when you poke a finger into it, the soil is right." He added that if the soil is too dry, it won't turn right or be too hard to dig, and if too wet can result in large clods.

In the process of turning the soil, reference can be made to the soil test. If phosphorus is needed it can be top dressed and turned under with the spade work, along with about two inches of organic material

ATTENTION ALL POTATO GROWERS:

- In keeping with our commitment to keep you informed, an evaluation of the following facts should be analyzed:
  - Idaho Frozen Foods, a processor in Twin Falls, is now soliciting potato contracts for the 1975 growing season which have not been approved by Potato Growers of Idaho Inc.
    - Idaho Frozen Foods has not requested and has completely disregarded the bargaining procedures initiated by their growers to achieve a fair and equitable contract.
    - Idaho Frozen Foods is offering two contracts:
      - A modified U.S. No. 2 processor grade contract at $3.10 less tare and penalty clauses for dirt, foreign material and tenoz. (which would average $2.92 per cwt. for useable potatoes)
      - An incentive contract with a base price of $2.75 for all useable potatoes with a top of $3.20. (average grower price here is $3.01 per cwt. for useable potatoes)
  - All potato growers are urged not to sign the Idaho Frozen Foods contract because of the following facts:
    - The inspection and incentive clauses have been completely changed reverting back to "damage by" provisions in past contracts.
    - The bargaining committee has worked for years to achieve a fair and honest inspection and incentive clause. We cannot afford to lose them now. It should be noted that recent contract negotiations with other Idaho processors have resulted in agreement on the same basic incentive and tare clauses as in the 1974 contract.
    - With a fifteen to eighteen percent increase in inflation and operating costs coupled with a five to six percent increase in tare, how can you afford to accept a contract of 1.32 per cwt. less than last year on an average crop of potatoes?
  - Mr. potato grower let's ask the J.R. Simplot Co., Idaho Frozen Foods, and Magic Valley Foods: Why, quality production, and incentives, for that quality are suddenly unimportant to our industry?
  - Contract negotiations with all processors, except J.R. Simplot Co., Idaho Frozen Foods, and Magic Valley Foods are in progress and both parties (processors and potato growers of Idaho Inc.) are confident a fair contract will be negotiated soon.
  - Some of our processors would like you to have the feeling that you are standing all alone but you are not. There are over 1900 other potato growers standing with you honoring their commitment to Potato Growers of Idaho Inc. in asking a fair price for a quality crop.
  - The statistical reporting service has released the planting intentions for the fall crop showing a 5.4 percent decrease. At a recent meeting of all producing areas, an evaluation of planting intentions, crop carry-over (fresh & processor inventories) indicates a ten to twenty percent reduction in plantings is needed of all producers to establish a realistic marketing year for this year and next.

Weekly newsletters and newspaper ads will be issued to bring and keep you up to date on all contract negotiations. If you desire further information call Potato Growers of Idaho Inc. 785-2669.

Coalition governing

N.Y. Times Service SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces in Da Nang have announced that the city is being governed by a coalition rather than by the Vietcong, a South Vietnamese intelligence official said Tuesday night.

The officer said that for about one hour this afternoon, Da Nang Radio could be heard broadcasting before the Saigon government began jamming.

Da Nang Radio reportedly described life in the city, asserting that it had returned to normal, and asking the population to remain calm.

The defense of Da Nang collapsed Sunday, and the North Vietnamese Army moved immediately into the city with no fighting reported anywhere.

Snow above average

MCCALL, Idaho (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service today reported figures showing snow depth on the Bridgeway Mountain snow course was 140.87 inches, or three per cent over the 11 year average.

The water content for the snow was 55.25 inches which also is three per cent over average.

The Back Flat snow course was 74.06 inches at the April 1 measurement, or 26 per cent over the 30 year average. The water content was 22.50 inches, 16 per cent over average.

Steelhead run down

Earlier predictions of a poor steelhead run this year began to come true this week as 245 fish returned to the federal hatchery at Dworshak Dam.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game is hoping for a "maintenance run" this year of 2,000 fish, far below the 9,000 fish returning to the hatchery in 1973 and over 7,000 in 1974.

The Dworshak hatchery was given a goal of 3.6 million steelhead smolts as federal mitigation for the state for the loss of fish in the North Fork of the Clearwater when Dworshak Dam was built.

The majority of the steelhead enter the hatchery during the last weeks of March and the first of April.

Steelhead spawning, now underway, started in 1969 when wild steelhead were trapped at Dworshak Dam, spawned and the progeny reared in the hatchery for release later into the Clearwater.

Sounds rip Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — George Carter scored 24 points and Chuck Williams added 19 as the Memphis Sounds romped over the Virginia Squires 121-102 in American Basketball Association action Tuesday night.

The Sounds scored 15 unanswered points midway through the second half and stretched a 79-74 lead to 94-74. During one-fourth quarter span, the Sounds outscored the Squires 23-6 and pushed their lead to 95 points, 102-77.

Norton expects All fight

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Another heavyweight bout between Muhammad Ali and Ken Norton, the ex-Marine who broke Ali's jaw two years ago, is probable this year, Bob Horn, Norton's co-manager, said Tuesday.

"I have every reason to believe that Ali will fight Norton," Horn told sports writers at a news conference.

Norton said he would not fight George Foreman again. He said his ideal next fight was Foreman in the future since his "sense of direction" was toward a fight with Ali.

"I'm 40 now but better than I was when I fought Ali," Norton said. "Bill Singleton, my present trainer, has made me such a

Bulls drop Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Chicago Bulls, with Chet Walker leading six men in double figures, pulled off a 98-93 National Basketball Association victory over Buffalo Tuesday night to end a three-game trip and halt the Braves' five-game winning streak.

Third-year star Harold Green of Florida State came off the bench for 18 points as the Bulls took a two game lead over the Kansas City-Omaha in the Midwest Division with three games remaining.

Spirit rally beats Utah

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Marvin Barnes and Freddie Lewis scored 26 points each and keyed a third quarter rally that gave the Spirits of St. Louis a 122-109 ABA victory over the Utah Stars Tuesday night.

The Spirits led by as much as 15 points in the second quarter before Utah, paced by sharpshooting Joe Bangie, fought into in the first half and early in the second half narrowed the gap. The Stars led 69-69 on a jump shot by Ron Boone with 6:47 to go in the third period.

Spurs thump San Diego

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Donnie Freeman with 23 points headed a list of eight Spurs in double figures Tuesday night as San Antonio rolled over San Diego, 130-113.

Knicks near playoff spot

NEW YORK (UPI) — After a helter-skelter first period in which they fell behind by 15 points, the New York Knicks returned to basics — hitting the open man — in the second half to defeat the Philadelphia 76ers Tuesday night and move to within two victories of clinching a playoff berth.

Bucks stay alive

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks held the Detroit Pistons without a point for three minutes late in the fourth quarter and kept their slim playoff hopes alive by beating the Pistons 98-91 Tuesday night.

The Bucks have three games remaining and must win them all, while Detroit must lose its two remaining games for the Bucks to earn a wild card berth in the playoffs. Milwaukee has games against Detroit, New York and Chicago remaining while the Pistons play Chicago Wednesday night and then the Bucks.

Denver downs Indiana

DENVER (UPI) — Bobby Jones hit a pair of quick buckets late in the fourth quarter Tuesday night to send the Denver Nuggets on their way to a 126-112 win over the Indiana Pacers.

Denver held a 105-104 lead when Jones went over three Indiana players for a tip-in and he then pulled up and followed with a stiff-jump to give the Nuggets a 104-103 margin. Denver stretched that to 119-107 before Indiana slowed the Nuggets down.

Rockets make playoffs

Twin Falls sweeps pair from Highland

Second baseman Bruce Bird drove in the decisive run with a single in the sixth inning and Gary Hull and Gene Turley provided the runs in the second game Tuesday when the Twin Falls Bruins dropped Highland's Bruins in an Eastern Idaho Conference doubleheader.

Bird, who cracked a two run homer in the first inning, provided the impetus, punctuated by Hull's three-run homer in the second and Turley's Sophomore Scott Williams batted two hits to win the five-inning nightcap.

The Bruins struck hard in the first inning of the opener, behind starter Joe Nunnley. Clay Buneman joined on an error and Bird and Bob Woods followed with line drive homers in the sporadic eighth inning.

But the Bruins gave back two unearned runs in the fourth and in the sixth too throwing errors to Highland to tie it.

In the bottom of the ninth, Nunnley's re-singer opened with a bump-batted single and Dale McFarland drew a walked. Bird plated a run with his single and another scored on Woods' misplayed field ball. The first out came on the crushing blow.

The Bruins did all the scoring in the first inning of the nightcap. Thomas, Hull and Turley combined singles with a walk to plate the two runs and Williams made them stand up. He was threatened only in the fourth when Highland put two men on base, but extracted himself without damage.

Gauntlet hurled at NCAA kings

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Bill Bangert, mayor of the suburban Village of Champ, Tuesday challenged this year's NCAA champions in field events to compete with him in a special Scottish-throwing event July 6.

"We'll see whether they can beat an old man," said the 59-year-old Bangert. "I'll show them the answer to the Age of Aquarius."

The athletes whom Bangert plans to invite to Champ will be winners of individual titles at the June 5 NCAA championships at Brigham Young University in Provo, Utah.

Bangert, a former champion shot putter and discus thrower, said he will attend the NCAA events and extend the invitations to the young athletes at that time.

"I'm sure I'll be able to get them to come," he said. "I'm offering the winner a free trip to Hawaii to compete in the Hawaiian-Scottish Games in October."

Bangert's competition in Champ will be in shot throwing events, the 28-pound hammer, the 28-pound ball and chain, the 28-pound stone, the caber and the 56-pound weight. The 28-pound weight is ten throws for separate measurements of length and distance.

Bangert explained that each contestant will get four throws in each event for a total of 24 throws, with all of the distances added together to calculate a contestant's score. The total weight involved in all throws adds up to one ton.

Bangert has asked the federal government for $500 in reimbursement money to buy a stainless steel flagpole, 21 feet long and weighing 150 pounds. His plan is to use it for a flagpole for the opening ceremonies, then remove the flag and use the pole for the caber throw.

"It's a bit longer and a little bit heavier than a real Scottish caber," he said. "But the pole has to be long enough for the flag. You can't have a short, spindly flagpole."

Burley slates 15-match ring card Saturday

BURLEY — Amateur boxing will make its last appearance of the season Saturday night with a 15-match card at the Burley High School gymnasium.

Norm Vollmer, southern director for the Idaho State Athletic director's office, said action will start at 8 p.m.

Leading the card will be local favorite Bill Munz of Burley, who will take on Brent Richards of Utah in the 56-pound battle. Also fighting will be Earl Shields, a 175-pounder who won the heavyweight title in the Gooding card six weeks ago. Shields, a Filer product now living in Twin Falls, will take on Stone Loto of Hawaii.

The program is part of the continuing effort by state Athletic Director Dale Trumbo and his helpers to build a strong state boxing program. The state group hopes to build an Idaho team which will meet similar competition from other states.

- The matches scheduled up for Saturday include:
- 103 pounds — Ted Hughes, Idaho, vs. Randy Brown, Utah
  - 110 pounds — Dave Trimble, Idaho, vs. W.G. Richards, Nevada

Vollmer said there was a possibility of two more heavyweight matches.

McAdoo selected as NBA's most valuable player

NEW YORK (UPI) — Center Bob McAdoo, who is less than a week away from capturing his second straight National Basketball Association scoring crown, has been named the league's most valuable player. It was announced today by Commissioner Walter Kennedy.

McAdoo was the overwhelming choice in a vote of the NBA players to win the Bobdolph Trophy, receiving 81 first-place votes and 547 points to easily outdistance rival Atlantic Division center and runner-up Dave Cowens of Boston.

Cowens received 32 first place votes and 370 total points based on a 5-3-1 point distribution for first, second and third place votes. Washington forward Elvin Hayes finished in third place despite receiving five more first place votes than Cowens.

Golden State's Rick Barry finished fourth in the voting and Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar fifth.

McAdoo is the 11th straight center to win the award in a string dating back to the 1964-65 season when Bill Russell, now the coach of Seattle, was named the MVP while with Boston. The last non-center to cop the award was Oscar Robertson with Cincinnati.

Kimberly, Murtaugh collect track wins

MURTAUGH — The Murtaugh boys and Kimberly girls collected team victories in a child-bitten track meet Tuesday afternoon at Murtaugh.

Murtaugh picked up a big edge in the field events, dominating the long jump, shotput and pole vault. Kimberly's girls picked up eight individual first places to win the distaff division.

Basically the same teams are expected to collide April 11 and 18 with the Magic Valley Conference championships to be run April 21. Murtaugh again will host the district run-offs, the preliminaries going April 30 and the finals on May 2.

Charlotte fails in public bid to keep WFL franchise alive

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Upton Bell, president of the Charlotte Hornets, said Tuesday the club's limited partnership offering had fallen short of the $1 million needed to keep the team in the World Football League, but that a last ditch effort would be made to find private investors.

"This is not the time to give up," said Bell. "It's too damn easy a life to give up."

But he was clearly disappointed that the effort to sell 100 shares in the team fell short and wouldn't afford his chances of finding adequate private funds before the league meeting April 16.

On that date, WFL President Chris Hemmeter is scheduled to announce teams for the 1975 season.

"Hornets' officials" met Monday with an unidentified out-of-state businessman who had pledged to make up the difference between the amount of money raised through the sale of 100 shares in the team and the $1 million goal.

"We met with the man yesterday afternoon," said Bell. "We felt everything was fine, we were supposed to have a final meeting Monday night. It didn't show."

Bell said the offer, he said, had been $1 million and $200,000 in the bank from the sale of shares and said it approximately $2 million to be raised from private investors. Steps would be taken to use the money now in the bank but permission would have to be obtained from the individual shareholders.

Bell, whose telephone number during his news conference were a sharp contrast to the sun faced office workers, said it might be easier to find private investors now that the team has spelled out its financial situation in the offering circular.

Bell said he had talked to the main Trustees and had no intention of creating him.

Bell announced March 31 that the team had raised $7,000,000 including pledges. He said Hornets officials and players who agreed to pledge up to 10 percent of their salaries for purchase of shares in the franchise.

He said the players "all thought it was a great deal and very willing to do it."

Bell said the deal has between $100,000 and $200,000 in the bank from the sale of shares and said it approximately $2 million to be raised from private investors. Steps would be taken to use the money now in the bank but permission would have to be obtained from the individual shareholders.

Idaho's top hunt, fish resources hit by bad year

By ROYCE WILLIAMS
Idaho Department of Fish & Game

It was a bad year. So began an 18-page report by Joe Greenley, director of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, on the state of wildlife resources in Idaho. In the report, presented to the 40th annual meeting of the Idaho Wildlife Federation, Greenley said, "... 1974 was one of the poorest years we have experienced for a long time for elk, deer, salmon, steelhead and pheasants, our prime hunting and fishing species."

For the most part, Greenley said, the bleak picture is the result of habitat changes, some obvious and others quite subtle, some man-influenced, some by natural plant succession that have been occurring over many years.

With these changes, Greenley said, are changes in wildlife populations, factors such as hunting, fishing, predation and disease, which normally are rather insignificant, become a significant impact on the wildlife populations," Greenley said.

"When this happens," he said, "a critical point is reached: We have reached or are reaching that point in Idaho in many areas on many species."

Greenley used elk to illustrate a critical point in the state. Without funds and the political clout to get them, Greenley said the department can no longer finance controlled burning in northern Idaho where over 50 per cent of the Idaho's elk harvest comes from.

After five years, "in which the department budgeted $192,000 and over 26,000 acres have been burned," Greenley said.

Elk populations today are mainly the result of historic wildfires in the area that provided new growth of forage plants for the animals.

"Two hurdles need to be lumped before this range will be managed for elk," Greenley said. First, he said, the Forest Service has to be convinced it is in the best interest of the majority to grow elk browse where they could in some cases grow two to three per cent of the total national forest area.

Second, Greenley said, is money. "If the decision is made to manage for maximum elk food production on parts of national forest land, funds will be needed to get that done," he said.

Greenley estimates about $1 million a year in supplementary appropriations is necessary to rehabilitate about 25,000 acres a year in northern Idaho forests.

"Such a program would be aimed at stopping the decline in the elk population and at increasing the herds substantially in the coming years," Greenley said.

Greenley, in a letter to the Forest Service, said the department could not continue to carry the financial load of a burning program past the current year.

Greenley expressed "deep concern" about elk calf predation in north central Idaho which he said has been highlighted in the past year as the result of some of our own research.

"High losses to predation have us very concerned," Greenley said, "however, losses still cannot be accounted for as typical as great as last year."

In the Coowler Ridge area study, collars were put on 32 calves, of which 23 did not make it to their first winter. Nineteen of the 23 losses were due to predators — 11 by bears, four by cougars and four undetermined.

"Another year of study should shed additional light on the matter," Greenley said, but he emphasized last year's late snowmelt, saying the greater amounts of snow on calving areas may have had an effect on predation.

"Because of snow hanging on later last year, the usual spring foods for bears — woods grasses, and maybe even ground squirrels — were delayed. Bears also stripped more bark from trees than normal, indicating the bears may have put more effort into catching and eating elk calves than they would normally."

White Greenley left the door open to possible changes in hunting regulations and selective predator control in the area, he emphasized that declining habitat remains the basic problem.

"Winter range forage has greatly decreased since the mid-1940's, and any plans we have for substantially increasing elk numbers will revolve around providing improved winter habitat for them," he said.

Walton sells home

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Bill Walton of the Portland Trail Blazers, who has missed most of the National Basketball Association season with a bone spur injury, has put his specially built A-frame home on the banks of the Willamette River up for sale.

The $95,000 price tag was listed and advertised in the classified ad section of the Sunday Oregonian. Walton, who prefers privacy, apparently is disenchanted with the home he had built in the West Linn area just south of here because its location has been highly publicized.

Jets sign linebacker

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Jets announced Tuesday they have signed linebacker Richard Wood of Southern California, their third choice from the January college player draft.

Wood, 21, signed a multiple year contract, but no terms were announced. The 6-2, 215-pounder figures to play outside linebacker for the Jets, Ralph Baker and John Ebersole are the incumbents at that position.

Yankees add strength to bench to bolster flag bid

By United Press International
The New York Yankees gained a left-handed hitting reserve catcher Tuesday but may have lost a switch-hitting first baseman.

The wheeling and dealing Yankees, apparently not content with off-season acquisitions—Catcher Hunter and Bobby Bonds, moved to back up first string catcher Thurman Munson by acquiring lefty-hitting backstop Ed Herrmann, 28, from the Chicago White Sox Tuesday for four minor leaguers.

For Herrmann, who caught

100 or more games for Chicago in each of the last four seasons and last year hit 259 with 30 homers and 39 runs, the Yankees gave up southpaw Fred Anyeski, outfielder-first baseman John Marron, outfielder Ken Bennett and catcher Terry Quinn, plus cash.

However, fast on the heels of the Herrmann acquisition, came the news that switch-hitting Roy White, last year's leftfielder and frequent designated hitter, would be sidelined for at least a week with a chip fracture in his left thumb.

White, who had been making a fairly successful transition to first base this spring, was injured after diving for a ground ball Monday during an exhibition game between the Yankees and Minnesota X-rays revealed a fracture and it was believed that White would likely miss the Yankees' opener versus Cleveland.

Basis of the Herrmann deal was the catcher's refusal to sign a contract with the White Sox after asking for $52,000 and being offered $48,000. He agreed to $30,000 with the Yankees and, ironically, may wind up as the club's opening day first baseman in the wake of White's injury.

In other spring training

The New York Mets optioned catcher Ron Hodges to Tidewater, thus opening up a spot for John Stearns, the highly-rated "throw-in" in the 1974 draft for the New York trade with Philadelphia last winter. Stearns, a former No. 1 draft choice of the Phils, has had a good hitting spring for the Mets as a backup catcher to Jerry Grote and sometime third baseman.

Montreal's spring phenom, Gary Carter, continued his hot hitting with a two-run homer that lifted the Expos to 5-2 over Minnesota Twins.

Home runs by Tony Perez and Ed Armbrister highlighted a 19th Cincinnati attack that powered the Reds to an 8-2 victory over the Mets.

Rookie Pete Van Horn's bases-clearing double in the ninth inning helped the University of Arizona to a 6-3 come-from-behind triumph over Cleveland. Ken Boswell won the game for the Reds with the winning run in the ninth inning to give Houston a 3-2 win over St. Louis. Wilbur Wood went the seven inning route to lead the White Sox to a 4-1 decision over Pittsburgh in the first game of a doubleheader.

The Chicago Cubs lost first baseman Andre Thornton for at least three weeks with a broken bone in his right wrist. Thornton was hit by pitched ball from Cleveland's Tom Buskey on Monday. A bloop single by Bobby Grich scored designated hitter Tommy Davis with the winning run in Baltimore's 4-3 win over Texas.

Catcher Bob Davis singled in what proved to be the winning run and then scored himself on Mike Iwé's sacrifice fly as San Diego downed the Cubs 4-2.

UCLA players felt John Wooden should end career as winner

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — After 767 games, 629 victories and 10 NCAA basketball championships at UCLA, John Wooden, the bespectacled, gentlemanly former South Bend, Ind., high school teacher, has ended his faltering coaching career.

Wooden, 64, went out a winner Monday as his Bruins, a dominating force emotionally up after the surprise resignation of their coach, ousted Kentucky's Wildcats, 93-85, in the national championship final.

"I was not in it for the man," said Pete Trivette, one of two graduating seniors.

"There was no way we were going to lose coach's last game," added Andre McCarter.

"Coach Wooden told us there was no tomorrow, so I gave it everything I had," said 73 Ralph Brindley. "I was not there playing for God first, then Coach Wooden."

Wooden's dramatic announcement two days before Monday night's NCAA title game that he would not return for his 29th season at Westwood overshadowed everything else here. It was not a matter of it being so much a surprise but Characteristically, Wooden used a low-key approach in his final days as coach.

"I told them how proud I was of them," he said softly. "I told them they'd won a national championship just to keep it in perspective. There are other things ahead."

But this was a team in every sense. Pete and Andre may not be the best shooting guards in the world but they've come through for us all year. And Ralph is just a tremendous person."

The two Bruins who hurt Kentucky the most were 69 sophomore Richard Washington and 68 All-American Dave Meyers. UCLA's other graduating senior, Washington fired 28 points and Meyers 24 in the 37th annual NCAA final.

"Number 10 is a nice round number for Coach Wooden," smiled Washington.

"My goal this year was to win a championship for Coach Wooden," said Meyers.

Interestingly, UCLA will lose more coaches than players. Wooden's chief assistant, Gary Cunningham, revealed after Wooden's decision that he planned to leave coaching for health reasons.

Barlow and Providence's Dave Gavitt. Barlow's Memphis State team lost to UCLA in the NCAA final, 85-76, at St. Louis two years ago.

Wooden's decision could have remained at Westwood and was 68, revealed his decision Saturday after his team beat Louisville, 75-74, in overtime in the NCAA semifinals.

"I'm sad I'm getting out," said Wooden. "But I'm going out pretty happy, too."

The outgoing UCLA coach, who will be 65 Oct. 14, leaves with a list of records that boggles the imagination.

In 40 years of coaching, including 11 in high school and two at Indiana State Teachers College in Terre Haute before he moved to Los Angeles in 1948, Wooden won 885 and lost 203. His UCLA record was 641-114.

UCLA won national championships in 10 of the last 12 seasons and won 44 of its last 45 tournament games under his supervision.

Frank Arnold, Wooden's No. 1 recruiter and second assistant, will take over as head coaching post at Brigham Young. Arnold is a Mormon.

J.D. Morgan, UCLA's athletic director, will select Wooden's successor and he's expected to do that before April 9, the date high school athletes can start signing national letters of intent.

One man it will not be is Louisville Coach Remy Crum, a former Wooden player and top assistant who announced before his team's consolation game at San Diego that he was not a candidate. Crum denied Morgan had talked to him and insisted he had decided to honor the final four years of his five-year contract at the Kentucky school.

Two names that surfaced in the renewed speculation were those of Illinois Coach Gene

Almost slipped by!

NEW YORK (UPI) — A baseball milestone will be passed this season in the glare of the public eye — thanks to an aspiring baseball fan and his mini-calculator.

Mark Sackler, a 12-year-old fan from Westport, Conn., discovered a mini-calculator for his birthday and used it to discover, by research through the baseball encyclopedia and 1974 copies of the Sporting News, that 997,069 runs have been scored in the history of the National and American Leagues.

Leaving only 2,131 to go for the 1,000,000th run.

With an average of 625 runs per week scored during the 1974 season, this means that the milestone runs should be scored about the second week in May.

Tootsie Roll Industries has therefore decided to sponsor a nationwide contest, now underway, to honor the player who scores the historic run.

Stan Musial, the former St. Louis Cardinal great and Hall of Famer, chairman of the 1,000,000th run sweepstakes, said, the company will award $10,000 to the Association of Professional Ball Players of America, which is concerned with helping it and indigent former major and minor leaguers, on behalf of that player.

In addition, the company will give 1,000,000 pennies, $10,000 or whatever the winner can give for one-cent pieces in a public sweepstakes. The entrants have to name the player, team and stadium on which the record-making run is scored. Entry blanks are available throughout the U.S., with the last day of the contest April 30.

Debt assured

HOUSTON (UPI) — The president of World Team Tennis Tuesday predicted not one of the 11 franchises will make a profit in the second season beginning next month.

"Maybe next year," Larry King, said, "I believe we're setting a bad hoop, which has instant success, it's just not easy."

King, husband of WTT star Billie Jean King, announced

Rule on draft registration abolished

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 27-year-old rule requiring young American men to register for the draft within a month of their eighteenth birthdays was abolished Tuesday, Selective Service officials said. It will soon be replaced by a once-a-year registration system.

A spokesman said exact details remain to be worked out and will be announced later in the year, with the first mass registration in early 1976. "The requirement to register is still in full force and effect and only the method of registration will be changed," emphasized Selective Service System Director Byron V. Peppone.

When the draft ended there was concern that young men either would not know about or would intentionally ignore the registration law. But Peppone said the agency registered more 18-year-olds last year than the Census Bureau thought were alive. But another Selective Service official said "we've been having somewhat of a problem getting young men to register in a timely fashion."

The old system required men to sign up within a period 30 days before to 30 days after their eighteenth birthdays. The officials said it was hoped that a once-a-year registration, held amid considerable hoopla and publicity, would be easier for the registrants and cheaper for the government.

Officials have been debating whether to use high schools, courthouses, or polling places for the registration. They also have to decide how many days to devote to registration. Most officials are taking of three to four days. The law gives the President the right to prescribe the registration system by proclamation. The present system has been used since 1948.

Black congregation wants to build private school

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A black church congregation wants to raise a quarter of a million dollars to build a private school as an alternative to what members consider intolerable conditions in their city public schools.

"Lack of discipline, crime, narcotics, poor teacher interest in pupils, those are some of the things wrong with the public schools," said the Rev. Samuel Austin Layne.

Layne, pastor of Temple Church of Christ, said if the fund drive by his Pentecostal denomination is successful his school will offer a fully qualified program from first grade through high school.

"The school will be modern, but the teaching will be strictly traditional," he said. "There is a great need to get back to teaching children how to read, write and do mathematics."

Most of the emphasis would be on discipline.

Plans will come out inside the building, students will wear uniforms and teachers will have a dress code," Layne said. Plans are for one teacher for every 25 students, compared with a 1:125 ratio in higher student-teacher ratio in public schools.

The church is seeking $250,000 from the general community to add to about $150,000 raised from the congregation largely through 100 per cent tiles. Plans were originally to build a community center next to the church, but Layne began thinking about building a school instead in the wake of two killings in city public schools.

The school would be the first in St. Louis operated by a black church. Continued operation of the school would be supported by church members, with pupil fees being minimal, Layne said.

A lot adjacent to the modern church building is being cleared for the school, whose enrollment Layne projects at 400-500. Target date for the first class is the fall of 1977.

"Construction will begin because God will provide a way for us to get the money," Layne said.

FDA orders warning labels

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration today ordered warning labels placed on newly manufactured microwave ovens to protect users from excessive radiation.

The final order is not as sweeping as Consumers Union, the group which petitioned for the rule, had requested. But the FDA said it felt the new precautions would be adequate to prevent injury through misuse or from faulty equipment.

The label, which would have to be permanently attached to all microwave ovens traced out after next Oct. 3, will read:

"Precautions for safe use to avoid possible exposure to excessive microwave energy."

Do not attempt to operate this oven with an object caught in door, or door that does not close properly, or damaged door, hinge, latch, or sealing surface."

Currently such information is required only in instruction manuals. Both the FDA and Consumers Union contended that such manuals are often lost or not available, especially in apartment buildings or fast food areas.

A second label on the ovens will state that they should be serviced only by qualified personnel. The new rules also specify safety precaution in formation for the instruction manual and the dealers' service manual.

"Although microwave ovens have had a good safety record, it is prudent to take suitable precaution against possible misuse or damaged equipment," said FDA Commissioner Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt.

The regulations, however, will allow manufacturers to apply for an exemption to the labeling requirement if they can demonstrate that the oven door is constructed in such a way as to make one or more of the precautions listed on the label unnecessary.

Winners announced

TWIN FALLS Winners of the Disabled American Veterans first talent show Saturday at CSI auditorium were LuAnn Howard and Carolyn Jessor of Buhl High School.

The pair sang and played guitar. Receiving honorable mention were Bonnie Pierce, O'Leary Junior High School, and Jeff Harding, Jerome High School. Pierce did a ventriloquist act and Harding played the piano.

Miss Howard and Miss Jessor won a traveling trophy for their high school, according to Dave Stradley chapter commander from Boise.

"We had some outstanding talent," Johnson said. Representatives of schools from all over the valley participated in the show organized to cover the expenses of a bus trip to Boise where the performers gave a show at the Veterans Hospital. Johnson said the turnout was small because people had left for Easter vacation. He said the chapter had not decided whether to hold a show next year.

COME TO COFFEE, COME TO TEA

Naturally, the hostess wants to pour forth friendship along with steaming cups of coffee. So she extends the warmest of welcomes at the door, includes the timid in conversation and offers the finest of foods. Her guests can be called 100% natural, the same as the cereal revolutionizing her buffet table! The honey-brown sugar sweetened cereal, plain or with raisins and dates; teens with rolled oats, rolled wheat, coconut and almonds. Ever so subtly, it enriches the topping on Peach Sunburst Cake; intertwines with the spicy taste of Cinnamon Twist Bread; and enlivens the texture of Bright Spot Muffins, named for built-in preserves. Baked Apple Bonanza, not pictured, is but one more coffee accompaniment benefitting from the blend of nuts and grains.

Versatile 100% natural cereal also triumphs at teatime as a snack and as an ingredient in sumptuous cookie treats. All the better for its sweet crunchiness are Sundaes Supreme with Butter Crunch Bars, Cream Cheese-filled Dainty Date Sandwiches and Orange Tea Cookies!

CINNAMON TWIST BREAD

Makes 1 large braid

- |                                       |  |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| Bread:                         | 3-3/4 to 4-1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour |
| 1 cake compressed or 1 pkg. dry yeast | 2 eggs                                       |
| 1/4 cup lukewarm water                | 1-1/2 cup Quaker 100% Natural Cereal         |
| 2/3 cup milk                          | Cinnamon Frosting:                    |
| 1/3 cup butter or margarine           | 1 cup sifted confectioners sugar             |
| 1/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar     | 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon                        |
| 1 teaspoon salt                       | 4 teaspoons water                            |

For bread, soften yeast in lukewarm water. Use warm water for dry yeast! Combine milk and butter in a saucepan; heat until butter is melted. Pour warm milk mixture in a bowl over sugar and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Beat in 2 cups flour, softened yeast and eggs. Stir in 100% natural cereal. Add enough additional flour to make a soft dough.

Turn dough out on a lightly floured board or canvas. Knead until satiny, about 10 minutes. Round dough into a ball and place in greased large bowl. Brush with melted shortening. Cover and let rise in a warm place until double in size, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down. Divide dough into 4 equal parts. Shape 3 parts to form 12-inch ropes. Place on a greased cookie sheet and drain loosely. Pinch ropes together at ends and tuck under. Divide remaining portion into 3 equal parts; shape these 3 parts to form 3-inch ropes. Braid 3-inch ropes. Place small braid on top of large one, tucking ends into larger braid. Brush with melted shortening. Cover and let rise until nearly double in size, about 45 minutes. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F) about 30 minutes. Cool slightly and drizzle with cinnamon frosting made by beating together confectioners sugar, cinnamon and water.

BRIGHT SPOT MUFFINS

Makes 1 dozen

- |                                     |   |
|-------------------------------------|---|
| 1-1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour | 1/4 cup sweet orange marmalade or peach preserves |
| 1 tablespoon baking powder          | 1/4 cup vegetable oil                             |
| 3/4 teaspoon salt                   | 1 egg, beaten                                     |
| 1 cup Quaker 100% Natural Cereal    |   |
| 3/4 cup milk                        |   |

Heat oven to hot (425°F). Sift together flour, baking powder and salt into a bowl. Stir in 100% natural cereal. Combine milk, marmalade, oil and egg; add to dry ingredients all at once. Stir just until dry ingredients are moistened.

Fill greased muffin cups 2/3 full. Spoon 1/2 teaspoon sweet orange marmalade, peach preserves, strawberry preserves or grape jam in the center of each muffin. Bake in preheated oven (425°F) 18 to 20 minutes. Serve warm.

BAKED APPLE BONANZA

Makes 6 servings

- |                                   |   |
|-----------------------------------|---|
| 1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar | 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, soft |
| 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon             | 1 cup Quaker 100% Natural Cereal        |
| 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg               | 6 baking apples                         |
| 1/4 teaspoon salt                 | 1 cup hot water                         |

Heat oven to moderate (375°F). Combine brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt. Blend in butter, then 100% natural cereal, until evenly mixed. Wash apples; remove cores. Peel top third of each apple and slightly widen top hole to form a funnel shape.

Place apples in a shallow baking pan. Pack filling into holes and slightly mound on top. Pour hot water into bottom of pan. Cover loosely with foil. Bake in preheated oven (375°F) 35 minutes. Remove foil and bake 10 to 15 minutes longer, or until apples are tender when pierced with fork. Serve warm.

Peach Sunburst Cake, Cinnamon Twist Bread and Bright Spot Muffins glow invitingly as the coffee hour nears.

From a pot of tea come cups of kindness. And from a box of 100% natural cereal come offerings of friendship—Sundaes Supreme with Butter Crunch Bars, Dainty Date Sandwiches and Orange Tea Cookies.

| 1-1/2 cups sifted all-purpose flour |   |
| 1 cup Quaker 100% Natural Cereal    |   |

Heat oven to very slow (275°F). For cookie bars, beat butter and sugar together until smooth. Add egg yolk and vanilla; blend well. Gradually beat in flour. Stir in 100% natural cereal, crushing largest pieces. Spread evenly into an ungreased 15x10-inch jelly roll pan. Brush with slightly beaten egg white. Bake in preheated oven (275°F) 40 to 45 minutes. Cut into 5 dozen bars while still warm.

For sundaes, alternate miniature scoops of vanilla and strawberry ice cream in dessert dishes. Sundaes can be scooped into miniature balls ahead of time and kept frozen, if desired. Spoon cherries over ice cream. Top with whipped topping and additional 100% natural cereal. Insert 2 cookie bars into each sundae. Freeze remaining cookies for future use.

| 1 teaspoon grated orange peel |                                     |

Beat butter and cream cheese together until well-blended. Beat in honey and vanilla. Blend sugar with orange peel and beat into creamed mixture. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; stir into creamed mixture. Stir in 100% natural cereal. Chill at least one hour.

Show into 1-inch balls. Flatten each into chocolate shell and place on ungreased cookie sheets, about side up. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F) 12 to 15 minutes, or until very lightly browned on edges. Remove from cookie sheets at once and cool on wire rack.

Luncheon planned

CowBelles set spring luncheon

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS' The Desert Gold CowBelles are hard at work making the colorful decorations for the annual spring luncheon.

This year the luncheon is to be held at the Black White Inn April 19 and the notices are being mailed this week with reservations to be in by April 12.

Mrs. Terry Thornton is chairman of the courteous committee and is being assisted by Mrs. Merle Louman, Mrs. Bethena Brewer and Mrs. Paul Fullmer.

About 150 CowBelle members are expected for the spring event which will be preceded on April 17 by a business meeting at which time all the business will be transacted rather than being done at the luncheon.

"CowBelles" and ladies interested in the best industry are invited to the business meeting at 10 a.m. at the Sun-Field Room of the YWCA, according to Mrs. Don McGregor, president.

The group which met this week at the Thornton home to work on the centerpieces name tags and corsages included Mrs. Alton Patrick, Mrs. Pamela Steele, Mrs. Brewer and Mrs. Thornton.

A cherry orange and white color motif will be carried out this year with orange and white gingham prearranging. The club makes its own decorations for both the spring and fall luncheons and always come up with new and charming decorating ideas.

At the convention, the CSI Cup is presented to the Single Service trophy for its efforts to raise $770 with a benefit basketball tournament for the Multiple Sclerosis foundation.

The club also has a traveling trophy and a scrapbook trophy and plans to enter the scrapbook in competition at the international convention Aug. 17 in Toronto, Canada.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune/WT. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Paul (not his real name) and I have been married for 22 years, and I must say he has been an ideal husband and father. He is loving, sober, generous, and considerate.

About a year ago, Paul started going out every Wednesday night—"with the boys"—or so he says. He never mentions any of the "boys" by name, and I know of no one in our circle of friends who goes with him.

My problem is that Paul refuses to say where he goes—and with whom.

We can never make any plans for Wednesday night, because that is Paul's night out.

Abby, this not knowing where he goes is slowly driving me to distraction. My demands that he tell me, or to cease going, have gotten me nowhere.

I am seriously considering hiring a private detective to follow him, but wonder what harm it could do to our marriage if Paul is innocent of any wrongdoing, and learns that I've had him followed.

What is your advice?

DOUBTING DODU: DEAR DOUBTING: Grow up. You don't have to know where your husband is every minute of his life. Isn't an adult man (or woman) entitled to some real personal freedom without being held accountable for his time 24 hours a day? And wouldn't the hiring of a private detective be the ultimate assault on that freedom, and an insult as well?

If you want to ruin your ideal marriage, just continue to "demand" that your otherwise perfect husband give you an hourly accounting of his time. Or have him followed.

DEAR ABBY: The saying, "live and let live" is a tolerant point of view. But Abby, live and HELP live. Is exactly what you do.

Your wisdom, wit and humor is a blessed inspiration. For 19 years of pleasure. My sincere appreciation!

JAE SWIDLER (AGE 91)
GOLDENCREST HOME, L.A., CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: My father is 59, and a retired coal-miner with a disability.

He bought U.S. Savings Bonds years ago, through the payroll office, and kept them at home. One house burned down 25 years ago, and all the bonds were destroyed. Dad never had copies of the bond numbers.

Is there any way he can trace these numbers? Everyone we talked to says we should forget it.

MRS. P: DEAR MRS. P.: Don't forget it. Your father should contact his local bank, or the nearest Federal Reserve Bank, and request Form PD 1048.

He should then contact his former employer to help in filling out this form, as sometimes the payroll offices keep records of the serial numbers and dates. Your father should fill out the form in duplicate, keep one copy for himself and send the other to the Bureau of Public Debt (the address is on the form).

It may take a while, but eventually your father will get his bonds.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, I. A. Call, 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lakely Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Losing play gets sympathy opened and some five minutes later, South had played the desired queen dummy. East used the trick, led the suit back and watched the slam go to never-never land.

Most of the time we tell people that you can find sympathy in the dictionary somewhere between stupidity and unconsciousness, but this time we do sympathize with poor South.

He had no sound reason to expect a singleton diamond lead and had played the diamond ace the hand would have collapsed against a four-one spade break. This way, if East had to win the trick with the king or queen he would not have been able to lead the suit back and South could then have handled a 4-1 spade break.

The bidding has been: 2 Pass - 1 N T Pass - Pass - You, South, bid. K Q 9 6 5 A 2 K 4 3 A Q 8 7

What do you do now? A - You have a pass, with three spades a poor second choice. You opened a minimum and should not bid again.

TODAY'S QUESTION: Instead of responding one to one, you partner has raised you to two spades. What do you do now? Answer Tomorrow

TWO LOCATIONS TO SERVE YOU!!
Downtown & Lynwood Twin Falls

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

How long do head cold germs live? Would the germ live three hours, six hours, a day? How about a child picking up the handkerchief of a person who has a cold? Or if he gets a cold?

Questions about the common cold always intrigue me, and when I get reader mail on the subject I send you back to the new literature and to my research expert friends.

And you know what? I find that not much more is known about it than was known last year or many years before. But the common cold has been and continues to be the subject of much investigation. And certain facts are known:

Questions about 'colds'

By George Thosteson

There are more than 80 viruses which can be involved, so that should tip you off that no answer to your question is going to be simple. There is no doubt that there are "cold seasons" just as there are "flu seasons," and these tend to be in the winter, although summer colds are not uncommon.

Studies have been conducted to answer your specific questions about the transmissibility of colds. Volunteers have been subjected to the infectious material - the sputum and nasal secretion of victims. Surprisingly, the majority of the volunteers did not develop any symptoms of a cold.

Yet we know that colds are spread by droplet infection and can follow the sneezing or coughing route from one person to another.

What about temperatures? Colds has been shown not to be a factor, while humidity has been. It is common to have a prolonged stretch of bitter cold weather and have a noticeable absence of cold incidence. In fact, there is evidence that temperatures below that of the very quickly render a cold virus inactive.

So where do colds come from? Healthy persons, free of cold symptoms, have been shown to harbor cold viruses in their nasal membranes, and to sneeze or kiss from such a person can transmit the virus to another person.

Now to your handkerchief question. I don't think we can measure the virus life in terms of hours, for it is doubtful whether a cold virus can exist outside the body environment that long. Minutes, perhaps seconds, seems more reasonable.

So very immediate contact seems required. This is why children seem to collect and distribute cold viruses so readily. They are uninhibited in conduct, and this usually brings them into constant and close contact with cold virus carriers. At home, in the evening, a bedtime kiss can easily transfer the germ to parents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

What is "bird disease," specifically, its proper name, cause, symptoms, treatment and prognosis? M.B.

You are probably referring to psittacosis, a virus caused disease transmitted to man from birds of the psittacine family - parrots, parakeets and lovebirds, and to a lesser extent by canaries and some poultry. The commonest means of infection in man is through the breathing of dust from feathers or droppings at the bottom of cages in homes. It can be passed on, though, through bites or scratches from infected birds.

The disease resembles pneumonia. X-rays of the lungs of infected persons bear strong resemblance to those taken in early stages of pneumonia, and the symptoms are similar - fever, chills, headache, backache and dry cough. Treatment includes antibiotics and bedrest.

The incidence of the disease became alarmingly high during the 1950s, before strict controls were imposed on imports. Today, there is little danger in purchasing such birds from reliable dealers.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I would like to know if any physical damage can come from taking a teaspoon of cod liver oil every day? P.L.

No. But if you are watching your weight, you should be advised that there are more than 100 calories in each teaspoonful. It is a rich source of Vitamins A and D. But it need not be taken if you are on capsules or tablets containing those vitamins.

lovelier you

By Mary Sue Miller

A Lovely writes: My girl friend and I are the same height. She weighs more than I do, but looks slimmer. Could it be that she is bigger-boned than I? We read in your column that bone size is an important factor in figuring ideal weight. Both of us would like to know how to tell exactly what size our bones are.

The answer: A person's ideal weight cannot be accurately determined unless the bone structure is taken into account. To get a clear picture of your own bone structure, first measure your wrist. Be sure to use an unstretched tape, circling the wrist bones with it snugly but not so tightly that the skin ridges.

Next refer to the chart below. Under your height there are three wrist-measurements - average, small and large. Your own wrist measurement will fall into one of those categories and indicate your overall bone size - average, small or large.

Height - 5' to 5'3": Average, 5 1/2"; Small, under 5 1/2"; Large, over 5 1/2".

Height - 5'3" to 5'6": Average, 5 3/4"; Small, under 5 3/4"; Large, over 5 3/4".

Height - over 5'6": Average, 6"; Small, under 6"; Large, over 6".

Now, just what influence does bone size have on weight? Ideally, height being the same, a small-boned girl or woman should weigh five pounds less than one with average bones and ten pounds less than one with large bones.

Retired army colonel fights litter, stays fit

ATLANTA (UPI) — Each day of the week for two hours, a retired Army colonel may be found walking along the busy Atlanta expressway system with a cleanup stick, a trash barrel and a plan for cleaning up the environment while staying in shape.

Clyde J. Sutton, 59, has been getting out and cleaning up other people's litter on his free time ever since he took the job as chief promotion officer for the City of Atlanta in 1959. He says it's an excellent way to stay in shape, bending over picking up beer cans and discarded wads of paper which people throw from car windows.

"I have had this back trouble and I know that the real problem was that I didn't use my back enough," he said. "There's no question about the exercise helping my back. It also helps your circulation."

A 1939 graduate of West Point, Sutton commanded infantry in the Pacific in World War II and served 15 months in the Korean War. He was a member of the Korean Military Advisory Group from June 1950 to August 1951, where he was awarded the Purple Heart, Combat Infantry Badge and six campaign stars. In 1956, Sutton achieved the highest score ever made on the U.S. Army's Physical Fitness Test.

"Some people even say we ought to purposely get off the bus at a stop not the closest to our home so we would have to walk more."

Sutton estimates that he picks up about seven barrels of litter on an ordinary weekend. "That would be about 200 pounds, a week-end," he said. "I guess it would be about five tons a year on weekends alone and about 10 tons a year if you figure downtown and weekends together."

Judge gets promise from 'leprechaun'

CHICAGO (UPI) — If he promises not to paint the town green again, William Kilkenny of Evanston will remain a free man.

Kilkenny was arrested on St. Patrick's Day for painting a green line down the center of the street in front of O'Hourke's Public House and Dart Shop, his Neff North Side tavern. The green line is a nine-year-old tradition, according to the tavern owner, who donated the green and a leprechaun's cap for the March 17 festivities.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

In Thailand, there still occasionally can be seen some elderly citizens whose front teeth are finely tattooed with the likenesses of Charlie Chaplin, Mickey Mouse and Dan Cupid. Such was a cosmetic custom there some years ago. Another fairly common tattoo for the four front teeth called fopa spade, a heart, a diamond and a club.

DON'T RECALL, at the moment who that mathematical genius was who first defined a straight line as the shortest distance between two points. But can tell you it was Mae West who defined a curved line as the liveliest distance between two points.

J. STICE
Q. "Who was the youngest man ever appointed to the U.S. Supreme Court?"
A. William Johnson of South Carolina was only 32 when he got that job in 1804.

Q. "LOUIE, did I understand you to say that you gave up public speaking because you couldn't stand to see the people in the audience look at their watches?"
A. No, because I couldn't stand to see them shake their watches.

Q. "HOW TALL is that cartoon character named Andy Capp?"
A. Just 5 feet 4, says his creator Reg Smythe.

WASHINGTON
Imagine you've read George Washington was 35 when he was inaugurated as president. It's said that if there had been motels in those days, Washington would have been a lot richer. Weren't any, though. Nor hardly any taxis. Numerous travelers stopped off at Washington's place to spend the night and eat. And they lingered too. As a gentleman he couldn't charge them nor could he refuse them.

MISTER, DO YOU get 12 new ties a year? Neither do I. But the statisticians say that's typical of the average American man. Incidentally, they also say that three out of four father's Day gifts are ties.

IT'S REPORTED that more than 100,000 marriages a year now are directly traceable to romances which began during coffee breaks.

PUT THAT hot cake pan on a damp cloth for a few seconds if you want the cake to come out easily.

Covered wagon train makes way to homesteads

TORONTO (UPI) — A covered-wagon train fitted out with all the Old-West trappings rolls out today on a 3,000-mile trek to a rugged pioneering life in northern Alberta.

For the 50 or so people on board it is serious business, a chance to escape the rat race of the city and make a fresh start out where it's all uncrowded and unpolluted. But to skeptics downtown, it's one of the greatest April Fool's Day capers of all time, certain to backfire on those taking part. Some are even taking bets on how far the caravan will go before the "pioneers" drop out and the venture collapses. Wagonmaster Gordon Roberts, 46, brushes aside the jokes and the criticism.

"We are going through, come hell or high water," he vowed Monday.

The homesteaders, many of whom have sold belongings or spent a large part of their savings to make the trip, will set out with 20 covered wagons, a red-and-yellow stagecoach, an open wagon and a trailer-style medicine man's traveling booth-trucks.

They hope to cover 20 miles a day and reach Alberta's Peace River area by late August. After a year's residence in the province, they hope to get parcels of homestead land from the Alberta government.

"We have been told the powers that be are waiting for us with open arms," said Roberts, a former movie-studio ranch and wildlife park operator.

"We know it will be hard going but we are prepared for that. I just want to get away from Ontario where people are always telling each other what to do."

For motorists zipping along the Trans-Canada highway the slow-moving cavalcade promises to be a mind-blowing sight — and a potential danger.

And that's one of the things we are concerned about, the safety of the animals," said Tom Hughes, executive vice-president of the Ontario Humane Society. "If we find they are suffering unnecessarily or are exposed to too great a danger, we shall remove them."

Animal Inspector Donald Hepworth reported the travelers had 14 horses, four mules, one llama and a performing pig.

"No, I don't know why they want a performing pig," he said. "But they could eat it if they get hungry."

Hepworth said, "These people are in for a lot of cold hands, cold feet and sore bottoms. Six hours in the saddle at this time of year is not wonderfully desirable."

Bryan statue given to Illinois town

SALEM, Ill. (UPI) — William Jennings Bryan may belong to the ages but his statue officially became the property of his hometown — a gift from Congress by way of Nebraska.

The statue was officially conveyed to the city Monday in ceremonies in front of the frame-home where "The Great Orator" was born on March 19, 1856. The ceremonies also marked recognition of the home as a registered national historic place.

Bryan, born in Salem, moved to Nebraska before gaining national prominence as a politician in 1896, 1900 and 1908, and later served as secretary of state under President Woodrow Wilson.

Bryan's running mate in 1900 was the grandfather of Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill.

It was at the 1896 convention in Chicago that the "silver-tongued orator" gave his famed "cross of gold" speech, telling the convention, "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns. You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

Bryan's statue, which had been on loan to Salem since 1961, became the property of the city when Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., handed Mayor Charles T. McMeekin the title to the memorial.

Hillary services conducted

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — The wife and daughter of Sir Edmund Hillary, the first man to conquer Mt. Everest, were cremated Monday on the banks of the Bagmati river.

Lady Louise, 44, and her two-year-old daughter, Belinda, were among five persons killed Monday when their single-engine plane crashed shortly after takeoff from Katmandu airport.

Hillary, a New Zealander who climbed the world's tallest mountain in 1953, his elder brother, Rexford, and the his wife's parents were among those present at the cremation.

Hillary has been living in the village of Phaplu, about 100 miles northeast of Katmandu at the base of Mt. Everest, where he is directing construction of a hospital for Nepalese Sherpas.

Hillary's wife and daughter were flying together with an American former peace corps volunteer, Barbara Wylie, and her husband A. Lama, a Nepalese national, to Phaplu to visit the hospital site when the crash occurred.

Royal Nepal Airlines officials identified the pilot as New Zealander P.C. Shand.

An official of the British embassy said the ashes would be interred at the British embassy cemetery at Katmandu.

Airline officials said the single-engine Pilatus Porter plane, apparently experienced engine trouble and the pilot radioed the airport for permission to land less than 19 minutes after takeoff.

'Joey the Clown' cheers shut-ins

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Most of the time "Joey the Clown" is the Rev. William J. Peckham, 41, youth minister at Springfield's First United Methodist Church.

But every Saturday, Peckham paints on a sad clown face, slips into a colorful costume and leads about 25 other clowns, ages 11 to 14, known collectively in the community as "The Holy Fools."

They visit hospitals, nursing homes and halfway houses. Their mission is simply to make people happy.

"We don't perform. And we don't preach or pamphleteer. We just fan out and go from room to room to visit and bring some joy to people who don't have much to be joyful about," Peckham said.

"There is so much trouble in people's lives today that if we can bring a smile, even for a minute, it's a good thing," he said.

"The results are amazing. Even the saddest, most depressed people light right up when a clown walks into the room. It's so unexpected."

Peckham told of an 80-year-old woman in a Lincoln, Ill., nursing home who had been in severe depression or, perhaps, refusing to eat, talk or see visitors.

"We sent in a 12-year-old girl and inside of five minutes the old lady was laughing and giggling and talking about her family," Peckham said. "She snuggled right up to it. I'm not saying we're miracle therapists or anything like that, but it works."

The kids are given no formal training when they join the group, Peckham said. "I just tell them they must always be kind; focus on others; and do nothing to humiliate themselves or anyone else," he said.

"And they do great. At their age, you'd think it would be very difficult for them to do this type of thing. But when they get into their costumes and makeup, it's a freeing thing. Everybody loves a clown. And to hear the talk afterward, they're just tickled to death when they see someone respond to them."

UNIVERSITY of Idaho students Nancy and Ed Litteneker are working on advanced degrees, she in food science and he in law. Nancy, who is researching vitamin E in wheat, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.S. Toome, Gooding, Ed, night manager of the Student Union Building and a law student, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Litteneker, Idaho Falls.

Man picked up after eluding officers

TWIN FALLS — Charles Frank Spencer, 20, Twin Falls, was in custody on charges of driving while intoxicated and driving on a suspended license following his arrest early today.

Spencer was arrested after city police attempted to stop his vehicle on Blue Lakes Boulevard-North, near Heyburn Avenue. Officers followed the vehicle to a residence on Lincoln Street, where Spencer was taken into custody about 1 a.m.

While he was being booked at the police station he slipped out the rear door. He was seen a short time later in Jerome and officers returned him to the police station.

Bond was set at $5,000.

Artist plans to build filmy nylon fence

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Artist Christo Javacheff wants to build an 18-foot-high "running fence" made of filmy nylon along 2 1/2 miles of rolling Northern California coastal hills.

Christo, as the Hungarian-born New York artist calls himself, is the same man who hung a large nylon curtain over the Hite Creek Canyon in Colorado about three years ago.

To build his $1 million "fence," Christo needs permission from two more government agencies. He now has approval of his plans Monday from the State Lands Commission.

He still needs permission from the State Coastal Zone Commission and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.
