

Pressure on Thieu grows

SAIGON (UPI) — Senior Communist diplomats said today the Viet Cong was ready and willing to negotiate a cease-fire if President Nguyen Van Thieu is ousted. Opposition against Thieu mounted hourly and anti-Thieu demonstrations broke out in the streets of Saigon.

There were no reports today of further advances of the Communist offensive that swept through the Central Highlands and down the East Coast without opposition but it was not known whether the Communists were regrouping or awaiting the outcome of their peace feelers.

The Viet Cong "are ready to stop the fighting immediately," a leading Communist diplomat with close ties to the Viet Cong military delegation in Saigon told the UPI. "I am sure that if Thieu goes the PRG (Provisional Revolutionary Government) will enter into immediate negotiations. The PRG is very interested in negotiating."

Latest to join the demand for Thieu's ouster was Nguyen Van Binh, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Saigon who asked for an "urgently and orderly" change of leadership. Leading Buddhists and politicians had made similar requests earlier.

Catholics gathered at a number of suburban churches in demonstrations blaming the president for the staggering military collapse

Police fired shots into the air to disperse Catholic demonstrators at several churches as curfew approached but did not fire into the crowds.

The Saigon government earlier today banned such public demonstrations and issued shoot-to-kill orders to soldiers, thousands of refugees and disorganized soldiers fled into the city only to find themselves more feared than the Communists. They also moved Saigon's curfew back from 10 to 9 p.m.

Except for the Catholic demonstrations Saigon was quiet. Shops were open and the streets were busy with normal traffic.

Ford pledges Indo suffers aid

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — President Ford said today he is not blaming anyone for the rapidly deteriorating military situation in South Vietnam, and said the United States will make every effort to relieve the suffering of refugees in that beleaguered nation.

In a speech prepared for delivery to a White House-sponsored citizens conference, Ford said "we are taking all the humanitarian measures we can to relieve the innocent civilian refugees in South Vietnam whose plight touches the heart of America."

Wants controls

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Former U.S. Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma said Wednesday the U.S. government should impose price controls on some industries.

"We have to bring down prices to increase competition," Harris said, calling for controls on autos, steel, oil and gas and food industries. Controls should be lifted when natural regulatory factors take over the market, he said.

US investment supervision slated

WASHINGTON Star — President Ford soon will issue an executive order creating a high-level governmental committee to oversee investments in the United States by oil-rich Arab nations, in effect limiting financial participation in American businesses.

The new policy, revealed today by Assistant Treasury Secretary Gerald L. Parsky, will be outlined at the meeting of oil consuming and oil producing nations in Paris next week.

Hits criticism

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., termed "absurd" President Ford's criticism of Congressional failure to approve $300 million in Vietnam aid.

Speaker at a news conference Wednesday, Jackson called on Ford to try to protect "potential innocent victims of what could be a bloodbath in Vietnam."

Wholesale index dips

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spurred by lower farm prices, the nation's Wholesale Price Index dipped 0.6 per cent in March for its fourth straight monthly decline, the Labor Department reported today.

It was the first time since 1963 that the index declined for four consecutive months. The index, which usually forecasts short-term future moves in retail prices, has made a dramatic turnaround this year.

The WPI for March was 170.4, 12.5 per cent higher than a year ago, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

But for the first quarter of 1975, the compound annual rate of change in the index was down 6.7 per cent. At the end of the third quarter in 1974, the rate of change had been increasing at 35.2 per cent.

The index has not declined over for four consecutive months since the period from January-April, 1963.

Prices on processed food and feed dropped 2.5 per cent from February, principally due to lower prices for grains, oil seeds, fresh and dried vegetables, sugar and confectionery, and manufactured animal feed, the report said.

Although prices for industrial commodities increased 0.2 per cent from February, the index for such commodities increased at an annual rate of only 5.1 per cent — substantially lower than the 28.3 per cent rate recorded during the third quarter of 1974.

The government reported higher wholesale prices for agricultural and industrial chemicals, electric power, some iron and steel products and fabricated metal products in March.

Consumer goods prices increased primarily because of rising gasoline prices and the elimination of special rebates for passenger cars.

While prices for electric power, gasoline and other petroleum fuels increased, bituminous coal prices were lower.

Phnom's defenses punctured

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The government rushed reinforcements today to an area five miles northwest of Phnom Penh where a rebel force punched a hole in the city's defense perimeter Wednesday.

Heavy fighting was reported there today and the government said the situation was not clear.

Military sources said rebel forces destroyed a government force of three M113 armored personnel carriers at Phnom Penh village five miles northwest of the Phnom Penh airport when they raced in to try to relieve government troops who have been encircled for several days.

The government also gave up new ground south of Phnom Penh and the Communist victories increased the threat to the airport.

Phnom Penh's only link with the outside world, about 60 rockets hit the city and the airport Wednesday, and early today, damaging some planes but failing to halt the U.S. airlift.

The U.S. Embassy was able to fly a group of 51 embassy workers to Bangkok today under announced planes to evacuate 15 per cent of its personnel to Thailand "temporarily." They were 31 Koreans, 15 Filipinos, one French and six American military personnel.

One U.S. DC-8 plane was slightly damaged by machine gun fire and an airplane belonging to a local airline was reported hit by shrapnel Wednesday, slightly wounding its American pilot.

FPC grants 2 AF Dam project licenses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission has issued Idaho Power Co. two licenses for hydroelectric projects on the Snake River in American Falls.

One license, which expires at the end of 1983, is for existing power project. The other became effective March 1 and is good for 50 years. The second is for replacement of the existing power facility at the dam, a project which will increase generating capacity to 92,400 kilowatts.

The FPC said a final environmental impact statement prepared by the Reclamation Bureau indicates "the beneficial effects to be derived from the new American Falls project outweigh the adverse effects to the environment."

"Power capacity of the hydroelectric project will be increased through the utilization of increased head, reservoir releases for irrigation will occur at times of the utility's greatest need for power, and better use will be made of recreational attributes of the area," the FPC said.

"In these times of increasing need for reliable power, the additional of this potential is necessary," it added. "No better alternative exists to the licensing of this project and the action best serves the public interest."

The FPC did note that the project will eliminate a 14-acre forbsay considered an important and substantial fishery for rainbow trout. It said the American Falls Reservoir District has agreed to mitigate the loss by providing the Idaho Fish and Game Commission with $875,000 to build and operate new facilities at the fish hatchery and carry out a number of related efforts to improve fishing in the area.

"These conditions specified in the license will substantially mitigate the loss of the forbsay," the FPC said.

Milk price boost political

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr. urged Richard Nixon to boost price supports for raw milk "on the basis of the political aspects of it," according to a White House tape played today at Connally's bribery trial.

"Uh, I'm not trying to talk about or discuss at any great length the economics of it, but as far as the politics are concerned, looking to 1972, it appears very clear to me that you're going to have to move, uh, strong in the Midwest; you're going to have to be strong in rural America," Connally told the former president. "I wouldn't judge it on a moral basis." Connally told Nixon, "I judge it on the basis of the political aspects of it."

The conversation took place March 23, 1973, two days before the Agriculture Department reversed itself and increased the price support for raw milk from 89 to 95 per cent of parity.

The Connally trial is in its third day in U.S. District Court. He is charged with accepting bribes of $100,000 from milk producers for his help in obtaining price support increases.

Grocery prices off 1.8% in March; spuds bargain

By DIANE ALTERS, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — After holding steady for the last two months, food prices in Twin Falls fell 1.8 per cent in March, according to a Times-News survey.

The survey of items in a typical market basket at five Twin Falls supermarkets showed that shoppers were paying the lowest prices of the year, but that they were still paying 11.8 per cent more than a year ago.

The survey, which covered five supermarkets, indicated a trend of declining prices since December when the basket was 2.8 per cent higher than it was this month.

Produce prices dropped 9.6 per cent compared with 1974 and about 22.5 per cent since last year, thanks to dramatically lowered potato prices.

Potatoes, which are part of the produce category surveyed, were the big bargain this month, evidently because the national market is glutted with them. They were down 18 per cent from last month to an average of 69 cents for a 10-pound bag.

That's 49.3 per cent less than the price for potatoes last March of $1.36 for 10 pounds, on the average.

Eggs also declined slightly, contributing to the lowered produce prices.

Meat prices rose 5.3 per cent over February, after holding steady for December, January and February. Prices for meat in March were still about 11 per cent lower than they were a year ago.

Bacon's price jumped erratically from store to store, up 3.9 per cent a pound from last month, up to $1.43 to $1.49 a pound for the same brand. Last month's average was $1.35 a pound for the brand surveyed.

Sugar is also steadily declining with a 16 per cent decrease over February but it's still 7.7 per cent higher than it was at this time last year, at an average today of $1.04 for a 10-pound sack.

Another item that declined slightly was margarine.

Of the five stores surveyed, one had dropped its prices fairly drastically, off 4.6 per cent over last month. Some items were even quietly marked down, with a black pencil slash through the old number.

The highest-priced market was still in the lead, having kept its prices roughly the same as last month's. The cheapest store remained in last place, and its prices were still declining from last month.

Dinosaur drumsticks?

By JOYCE CARPENTER, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — You may have been calling dinosaur at your last Thanksgiving dinner, according to a Harvard researcher.

He not only believes that turkeys and other birds are a kind of dinosaur, but says dinosaurs probably were warm-blooded creatures. Some of the great beasts probably were covered by feathers or hair.

And instead of being sluggish creatures doomed to extinction, the dinosaurs were highly adaptable and more suited for life in their times than mammals.

Robert T. Bakker, a member of the Society of Fellows at Harvard University, presents evidence in an article printed in the April issue of Scientific American, which indicates that some early dinosaurs and most of the later dinosaurs were probably warm-blooded animals instead of true cold-blooded reptiles as is commonly believed.

Bakker says three separate methods of determining information from prehistoric times lead him and other researchers to believe that dinosaurs were warm-blooded.

Holland's oldest cathedral, St. John's, was built in the 13th century, destroyed during the Reformation and rebuilt in the 15th and 16th centuries. Modern pollution has defaced the ancient structure with a residue which peels away, taking with it layers of stone. But the deterioration of stonework and other ornamentation is now being checked by a team of experts, and it is hoped that treatment may help the cathedral withstand future damage. 52 Viet orphans begin new life in US

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The 52 Vietnamese orphans who escaped the horrors of war because of a defiant airline captain began the American way of life today in a gaily decorated Army Reserve barracks.

The children, ranging in age from three months to eight years, arrived late Wednesday night at Oakland International Airport in a World Airways cargo jet. They peered from the small windows at the hundreds of persons on hand.

Tired and confused after a flight which lasted 16 hours and 53 minutes, they were taken by bus to the 6th Army Headquarters in The Presidio here for medical examinations and adoption processing. They were waiting to meet the American families which previously adopted them.

They were here because Capt. Ken Healy defied orders by Saigon air traffic controllers not to take off in the DC-8.

"Just watch me," Healy said he radioed to the controllers just before gunning his craft.

Capt. William Keating, who "also made the flight," explained at a news conference in Oakland: "We were instructed to hold our position by ground control. We ignored that. We taxied down the runway and took off."

But some 500 other orphans were not so lucky. They were left behind because of government decisions that the "stretch" DC-8 was not safe enough and that the children were not strong enough to make the 8,292-mile trip.

For two others the trip did prove to be too much. They were removed from the plane during a refueling stop at Yokota, Japan, and hospitalized because they were ill.

But for the 52 who made the trip, the plane "was one great experience," Keating said.

Adoption officials said here that it was hoped 2,000 orphans could be airlifted from Saigon within 48 hours. But a World Airways spokesman said, "We think it may be too late to bring more children."

For their attendant Jaji Walflett "it was a frustrating experience."

"There are tens of thousands of children who want to get out of Vietnam, but the government bureaucracy won't let them," she told reporters.

The plane had just been removed from the Saigon to Phoenix Peñh rice airlift. It was converted by adding mattresses, blankets and safety webbing.

Aboard the merry flight were also 17 adults, including doctors and nurses.

Volunteer pediatricians and nurses were at Harmon Hall in The Presidio to tend the youngsters. An Army mobile unit was set up to provide food for them. And a hall was filled with mattresses on the floor. Bed frames were not used for fear that the orphans might fall.

The children successful in the flight were under the sponsorship of Friends of Vietnamese Children, an organization based in Denver, Colo.

At the Army reserve barracks, located in the shadow of the Golden Gate Bridge, there was a play-room set up for the youngsters' amusement. Two children were assigned for each mattress. And the rooms were decorated with psychedelic posters.

An adult was assigned to each child to guide him through the health screening and other processes for immigration.

N-test product

SUVA, Fiji Islands (UPI) — All but one child on the Pacific island of Rongelap have undergone surgery for the removal of thyroid tumors resulting from nuclear testing. Micronesian delegates today held the International Conference for "Nuclear Free Pacific."

The tumors, the delegates said, are the results of high levels of radioactive iodine emitted during the 96 American nuclear tests held in Micronesia during the 1950's.

Nuclear testing in the area ended in 1959. The conference was held that of the 21 islands in the Bikini group, only two are still considered habitable by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

Thieu faces ouster call

Airline "otives and the government immigration department were lammed as many of Saigons, estimated 6,000 Americans and dependents and thousands of other foreigners made plans for hasty departures.

Saigon banks were packed with depositors withdrawing funds to see them through any emergency. The open market exchange rate of the South Vietnamese piaster fluctuated in the neighborhood of 2,000 Piasers to $1, more than double the rate at the beginning of the week.

In the Mekong Delta city of Can Tho, 70 miles southwest of Saigon, where Australian planes flew in 1,000 refugees Wednesday, the curfew was moved up from 10 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Thieu's fate was increasingly in doubt. He was in disfavor with some military leaders who blamed him for the debacle that has delivered three-fourths of South Vietnam to the Communists without a struggle.

Reports Wednesday said the generals had flown from their bases to Saigon. The Council of Generals met throughout the day to discuss action — only the second time in three years the generals were known to have met in a group.

There was pressure from the Saigon senate, from Buddhists, from militant Roman Catholics and from outside sources for Thieu to step down. Today in London, San Jacinto, La Jolla, N.Y., said there was a possibility the U.S. Congress would be more favorably disposed to aid South Vietnam if Thieu quit.

Another Communist diplomat said, "Negotiations when we're firing about some sort of coalition and election will be the best."

The diplomats said, however, that the Viet Cong would likely press for a decisive battle for Saigon if President Thieu remained in office. There were similar official statements Wednesday in Paris by members of the permanent Viet Cong delegation there. It said Saigon could even come under artillery bombardment.

The Communists indicated that the three-party National Council of Reconciliation which was provided for in the Paris peace accords but was never put into operation might be the vehicle for the peace negotiations.

There have never been substantive talks between the South Vietnamese and Viet Cong. There has been no formal contact between them since April of 1974 when Saigon called off the weekly meetings in Saigon and Paris.

"The 'shoot to kill' orders already have been carried out in some areas. The commander of the III Corps has been given a list of 170 village squares Wednesday to execute a number of surprise troops."

and seriously wounding a Cambodian mechanic. This morning, sharpshooters launched a 700 attack bunker and snuffed the pilot.

Thailand Premier Kukrit Pramo touched off a blast of excitement in Bangkok when he said he had reports that Phnom Penh had fallen. He quickly corrected the report but said Communists had moved to the outskirts of the "Cambodian capital."

There was heavy fighting all around Phnom Penh, some of only 2 1/2 miles from the heart of the city, the closest across the Mekong River from Phnom Penh.

Military sources said the size of the insurgent force that broke through the defense perimeter along a five-kilometer northwest of the city was not known, but that one battalion of government reinforcements was moved in to try to stem the rebel advance. The sources said fighting continued through the day.

Despite the daily rocket attacks there appears to be no overwhelming tension in Phnom Penh, although there is nervous talk about the future.

But the residents and the refugees have not resigned themselves to the suffering, humanitarian organizations, such as the Red Cross, World Vision and the Catholic Relief Service, work around the clock to relieve the agony.

But it is not enough, and each day, refugees are turned away from health clinics and soup kitchens simply because there is not enough food and medicine to go around.

The hospitals are overflowing with wounded and many must lie on the floor, flies buzzing around their open wounds. There is a shortage of food for transfusions, of doctors, of nurses, of food.

Graph records Idaho quake

TWIN FALLS — A homemade seismograph in western Oregon recorded the earthquake tremor felt here last week, according to a relative of the man who made the instrument.

Helen Rogers of Twin Falls said that her brother-in-law, Jim P. Balsam, built a seismograph which he keeps in the basement of his West Linn, Ore., home. He used spare parts and knowledge gained from interest and from being a radio technician during World War II, she said.

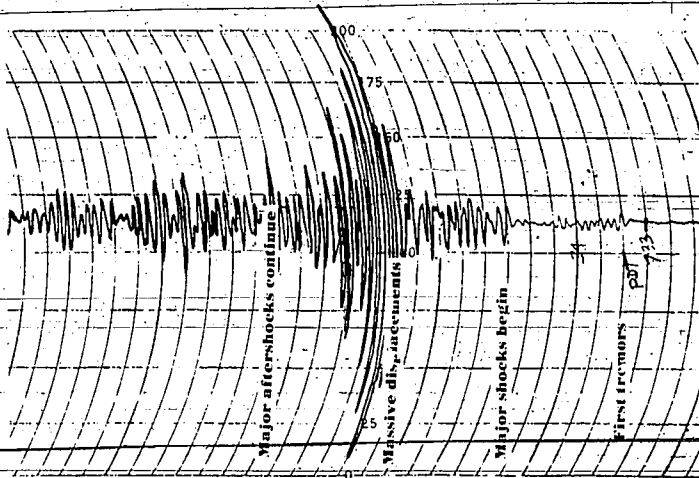

As the seismograph's needle moves from right to left, it shows how strong the tremor is. It records "most earthquakes," she said, including ones reported in Japan and the Philippines, although it doesn't record where it happens.

The section of the graph shown here covered about 10 minutes. The seismograph traces an almost steady line at the right of the chart until the first tremors begin. Minor tremors continue for about two minutes until major shocks begin.

Nearly another two minutes passes until with sudden ferocity the earth's surface begins wild gyrations, traced in the large swings of the seismograph needle.

After about 40 seconds, the worst of the earthquake begins with steady but less severe shocks recorded for about 5 minutes.

The greatest shock, shown by the needle tracing which leaves the graph at top, was measured at 6.3 on the Richter scale, the largest shock to hit the continental U.S. in four years.

Enforcement set on flood rules

JEROME — Highway districts in Jerome and Gooding counties have announced plans to enforce the regulations prohibiting landowners and farmers from allowing flooding on county roads.

Members of the Jerome Highway District Board have met with other highway commissioners and county commissioners to set a policy on enforcement. Thomas P. Mahan, clerk of the Jerome board, said.

He said Eugene Frederickson, Jerome County prosecutor who met with the group, advised the Idaho code makes it a misdemeanor for anyone to allow or cause water used for irrigation or other purposes to flow into or upon any roadway.

Highway supervisors in the various districts are charged with citing offenders into court.

The situation is a serious hazard for the driving public and also contributes to roadway deterioration, Mahan said. Farmers are urged to observe the law and exercise care in handling their irrigation systems.

Highway board members said since the increase of sprinkler irrigation on many area farms, the situation has become more serious. Those cooperating in the order to issue citations to violators include the Jerome, Wendell, Hulsdale and West Point highway districts and the Good Roads Highway District and the Jerome and Gooding County Commissioners.

Convention slated

TWIN FALLS — The fourth and fifth districts of the American Legion Auxiliary are holding a combined convention April 12 in Twin Falls.

Auxiliary national president Mrs. Maurice Kubly will be the featured speaker for the convention at the Blue Lakes Inn.

Conventioners will start a day-long program with registration at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. auxiliary and legion members may attend a course of serving veterans in local retirement homes.

Court rules in favor of teacher

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that the Fifth Judicial District Court had erred in dismissing an action brought by a Jerome area school teacher against trustees of school district 251 and the superintendent of schools.

Orin Gardner brought the action against the trustees of the district comprised of Jerome, Lincoln and Gooding counties and superintendent John B. Campbell over his dismissal. He filed two claims for relief, one against the board for failure to renew his leveling contract and one against Campbell for defamation arising from an alleged slanderous statement made by Campbell.

Fifth District Judge James M. Cunningham dismissed Gardner's complaint in failing to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. The high court said the affirmative defense asserted by the trustees did not appear on the face of the complaint and it was an error to grant the motion to dismiss. The court also held the superintendent had qualified, not an absolute, privilege against a defamation action and that the plaintiff had a legal right to attempt to prove that the superintendent had violated that privilege.

The case was remanded to the lower court for further proceedings.

Bouncing Brandt offers dash of optimism

(C) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Willy Brandt, the former chancellor of West Germany, blew into Washington the other day, bright as an Easter lily, demanding to know why so many people were mourning about the future of the human race.

He is still a man of hope and vision. While most statesmen these days seem to be concentrating on present dangers and disasters to come, Willy keeps remembering the disasters that have been overcome and the gloomy prediction of catastrophe that never came to pass.

Berlin was still alive and free, he observed. East-West relations were far better now than any anybody imagined 15 years ago. The Soviet Union was not really exploiting the present crisis of world capitalism, and the United States, while pressing its own ideology and interests, always seemed to pull back from any serious risk of nuclear confrontation.

No Spenglerian talk of the decline of the West for Willy. He faces the inflation and the present economic and monetary disarray, but thinks there are serious enough to compel effective remedies. He expects no major war in the world in the last quarter of the century, but no spectacular political union of Europe either.

Just a slow movement toward economic integration, with many setbacks along the way, leading eventually to some form of European confederation, more along the kind of line than that of the federalists. Some of the enthusiasm had seeped out of the European movement in recent years, he thought, but the leaders in Europe, who used to gather and tell stories, were now working seriously, if unspectacularly, on their common problems. Cooperation among the European nine, he observed, developed along practical lines. The Maastricht concept of a European coal and steel community was the result of human imagination and common sense necessity. This process would go on, Brandt thought, as new necessities arose. For example, the nine were now talking about establishing a single European embassy in some of the smaller African countries as a sensible way of handling their affairs and as a symbol of their growing unity.

Portugal was going through a difficult time with a small but powerful Communist party, led by men close to Moscow, and controlled for the time being by revolutionary military officers, but while the Soviet Union would help them along, Brandt did not think the Soviet leaders would insist on maintaining the present status quo in Eastern Europe and make a major effort to overthrow it in Western Europe.

He expected Spain to become more liberal after Franco, and hoped Yugoslavia would remain stable after Tito, but while it might be a good idea to bring Spain into the European Economic Community, he wondered whether it would be wise to bring Madrid into the North Atlantic Alliance.

He general thought the great intervention of Europe was being brought about more by the people and by some private organizations than by governments. West Germany had absorbed over 10 million citizens from East Germany, and now had over two million foreigners in the West German work force.

Television was a powerful force for understanding. International sports too, though sometimes the games degenerated into a substitute for war. He could not remember an acquaintance of his boyhood who had ever travelled to France in those days, but now the exchange of peoples was spectacular, and English was becoming the dominant second language of all European peoples.

Maybe, he mused, in the perspective of the last 25 years and the next 25, these things would prove to be more important than the passing crises over Cyprus, Portugal, or the price of butter. Not long ago also, walking through the streets of Paris Frankfurt it was easy to spot a young American from a young German or a young Frenchman, he said, but the blue Jean culture had taken over and they were not so easily identifiable now.

This used to be thought of as 'the Americanization of Europe' but it was more of a European phenomenon now. The young Germans no longer glorified America as they did 15 or 20 years ago. His was partly because the German standard of living was so much nearer America's now. Also, the Vietnam war had badly stained the idealistic picture of America. Some of the magic has gone, he remarked.

eventually you will be dealing with us as one instead of separately as nine, and then you will be able to expect us to carry more of the common burden.

As for America's present troubles in Southeast Asia and the Middle East, Herr Brandt did not think it was worthy of a separate mention. The confidence of Europe, after all, Washington's efforts to bring peace to the world. Europe was not likely to forget the remarkable record of the United States so easily.

Secretary of State Kissinger, who has heard much good news lately, and who hasn't come to the United States in a long time, seemed delighted by Brandt's grace and bounce. He went to the German embassy and told him how good it was to have him back again, and everybody who saw him seemed to feel the same way.

Mideast war seems certain

Pressures for war in the Middle East are now nearly insurmountable.

The odds are good that a new and possibly final Middle East war will break out within the next few months.

The immediate event which hastened the deterioration was the collapse of Henry Kissinger's negotiations to exchange Israeli troop pullbacks for Egyptian peace promises.

Now there is little to hold back any of the belligerents from war.

A second factor in the Mideast instability is the collapse of Cambodia and South Vietnam while the United States only waits and watches.

The Mideast antagonists have not failed to notice the American mood of non-involvement at any cost. They surely wonder whether a United States willing to abandon Southeast Asia still retains its resolve to protect Israel in the Middle East.

Kissinger has expressed such doubts, as have the Israelis and Arabs.

The third overwhelming consideration for Israel must be time. Each year the Arab states are able to turn their vast oil profits into weapons. The regional arms race there is being won by the Arabs, not Israel.

Moreover, the Arab states control the flow of oil to the industrial West. The willingness of the world's most powerful nations to bow to the oil producing nations in exchange for oil guarantees also has not gone unnoticed in Israel.

These three factors — the breakdown of peace negotiations, American isolationism and growing Arab wealth and weaponry — probably will lead Israel to an ominous conclusion.

Israel may decide its only hope for survival is to launch an all-out attack on its neighbors.

Such a conflict would not be limited war, but a desperate bid for Israeli survival. In such a war the United States could no longer bring enough diplomatic pressure to halt Israel's armies.

Such a fight to the death between Mideast foes would be particularly dangerous because of its unlimited, unconpromising nature.

If Israel wins a decisive victory, the Soviet Union would face heavy pressure to act to prevent the destruction of the Arab states. On the other hand, if the Israelis face complete defeat it is likely the United States would be tempted to enter the fray.

There is little assurance now that the crumbling United States foreign policy will be able to supply an answer in time. A demoralized Kissinger is being hounded by congressional critics at home and disappointed allies abroad. Domestic issues get the ear of the President and foreign policy drifts.

There is a sense of inevitability in all this. It is hard to see a way out as statesmen and nations seem caught up in economic, political and military events too large for any of them to control.

It seems too much to hope for reason to prevail in the world's edgy community of nations.

Another blow for women's liberation

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court struck a blow the other day for a young widower, and in the process struck a blow for women's liberation. The opinions fit neatly into a rapidly developing pattern of changes in the law as to sexual discrimination.

While the proposed Equal Rights Amendment languishes, waiting upon the ratification of four or six more states, the Supreme Court has been hastily adopting the purposes of the pending amendment to specific situations. New interpretations of the "equal protection" and "due process" clauses are achieving some of the objects the amendment itself presumably would achieve.

To those who approve of these trends in jurisprudence, the process is known as "interpreting a living Constitution." To those who interpret the process as "judicial usurpation" or "judicial legislation" or "judicial usurpation." In either event, the changes are taking place with remarkable speed.

The court's decision of March 19 had to do with Stephen C. Wiesenfeld and Paula Polatschek. They were married Nov. 5, 1970. On June 7, 1972, she died in childbirth, leaving an infant son. As a school teacher before and after her marriage, Paula had paid maximum Social Security taxes. Stephen's income was much smaller.

With his wife's death, Wiesenfeld applied for Social Security survivor's benefits for himself and his son. The benefits were approved for the infant, but not for the father. Under Section 402 (g) of the law, such benefits were available only to widows, but not to widowers. If he had been a woman, he would have received the same amount as his son as long as he was not working.

In an opinion by Justice Brennan, the court found that this part of the law is "entirely irrational" and "makes no sense." The effect was to discriminate not only against Stephen but against Paula also.

Justice Brennan said: "She not only failed to receive for her family the same protection which a similarly situated male worker would have received, but she also was deprived of a portion of her own earnings in order to contribute to the fund out of which benefits would be paid to others."

As a practical matter, the Wiesenfeld decision may not amount to much. Only a small number of fathers are similarly situated, and the cost to the Social Security Administration has been estimated at only $20 million a year. As a matter of law, the case has considerable significance. Brennan's denunciation of discrimination by reason of sex was just about wholesale.

With only an occasional step backward or sideways, the court has been moving steadily in this direction. Earlier this term, in the dissent of Justice Rehnquist, the court ruled that women may not be systematically excluded from juries. That ruling, by Justice Brennan, was to overturn an opposite ruling just 14 years ago. The court also has demanded equal prerequisites for men and women in the armed services. It has voided an Idaho law that discriminated against women in the settlement of certain estates.

Here and there, to be sure, the court has been held back. In cases from Rochester and Philadelphia, the court refused to act upon the exclusion of women from the junior chamber of commerce. It refused to review a Utah Supreme Court decision upholding a presumption in favor of women in child custody situations. It also refused to hear an Indiana case involving women but dealing with frequent "housewife" illness.

The court has declined to hear a North Carolina case involving massage parlors. It has been sitting since last September, without acting upon a petition from Georgia that directly challenges the business of alimony for women only.

Even so, the trend is unmistakably clear. Unless the states or the federal government can come up with compelling reasons to justify sexual discrimination, such discrimination cannot survive. And the court is finding these reasons less compelling all the time.

WASHINGTON — At a dinner party the other night, a chic and comely matron who is admired for her interior as possessing "a good mind," announced that those thousands of South Vietnamese families fleeing south "are running away from war, not from their side."

At certain dining tables, of course, the term "the other side" is an epithet the Communist I could never understand why the Communist label has always been so determinedly shunned when the Hanoi regime boasts of its Redness, but there's no profit in going into that.

As for the matron's definition of a kind of sense, there is not much thought of politics among the poor when shells are exploding around them. Their only desire is to escape — to save their lives. They seek personal safety, not ideological asylum.

The matron's strange view, however, that so many South Vietnamese opt to stay put, to trust their safety to the compassion of the Communist forces. After all, North Vietnam is a "People's Republic" and each might be presumed to be interested in the welfare of even people who purportedly have condoned Saigon's "fascist" regime.

Moreover, there is no fighting in North Vietnam, nor in the southern territories. Communist forces have conquered "South Vietnam" and the names of the south, and I would be sorely tempted to run the other way — into the relative safety provided by the Hanoi crowd. Unless...

Unless, that is, I had doubts of what kind of life awaited me in a land under Communist "protection." Even after transformation into Vietnamese, I expect to retain a certain cynicism. I might decide that living with the devil I knew was preferable to trusting the devil dealt. I might recall what happened to the Ukrainians who greeted the Nazi troops with open arms during World War II.

I indeed, I would be seized with a real fear that if I stayed to receive my masters or fled to the "sanctuaries" of North Vietnam, I might get up shot dead by my protestors — a former inhabitant of the southland and thus a possible subversive. In fact, I would be acutely aware of the thousands of men, women and children who had been murdered and mutilated by the north's forces of liberation, apparently just for the hell of it.

So I think I would run south — not to embrace General Thieu as a hero, but to, maybe, live a little longer, relatively free of the danger of waking up some morning with my eyes gouged out or my genitals excised.

Meanwhile, I would wonder much about what happened to those humanitarian Americans far across the sea. I would remember how the "peace protesters" took to the streets to denounce U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and the resultant civilian casualties. I would remember the plea of those who became the voices of conscience on American campuses. I would remember the outrage expressed daily in the U.S. Congress in behalf of the women and children killed and maimed by American bombs and shells.

I would wonder, perhaps more in sorrow than in anger, why those great-hearted clergymen and TV commentators of yesterday were so curiously reluctant to spend some of their ringing rhetoric on today's victims of Communist brutality and bestiality. I would not demand riots and college takeovers in my behalf, but only a banner or two, maybe a brief speech on Capitol Hill, reflecting compassion for those butchered martyrs of a new war.

I would wonder, but I know what the answer would be if my thoughts could be heard across the sea. So sorry, I would be told, but — other times, other shores.

Thought for the day

A thought for the day: Bishop Oliver Hart, English clergyman, said: "Give us the fortitude to endure the things which cannot be changed, the courage to change the things which would be changed, and the wisdom to know one from the other."

Berry's World

"Look, honey! I've discovered another world for my new warm-up suit!"

Confusing contradictions come out

The paradoxes of the season are best explained in an article by James Burnham, who though he did not invent the cold war, supplied the working vocabulary of it two decades ago in his hugely influential book, "The Struggle for the World."

Burnham attempts to account for the incongruities at the executive and legislative level, and gives us the following Q and A as betraying the deep unintelligibility of our foreign policy in its present mood.

Q. "Mr. President (the date is March 6) the question is raised by many critics of our policy in Southeast Asia as to why we cannot conduct a policy of detente with the two Communist superpowers in the world and could not follow a policy of detente should Cambodia and South Vietnam go Communist. Could you explain that to us?"

The answer, really, is that, in three tumbling paragraphs, the President couldn't. All he said really, was that we need to try to get on with these great superpowers in the world without whose collaboration we cannot have world peace. That is true. But it is also true that we should try to get on with those tinpoppers without, whose collaboration we aren't getting peace in Indochina.

The contradictions flow out of this schizophrenia. As Burnham itemizes them, Secretary Kissinger sends Senator Jackson for losing up a friendly trade agreement with the No. 1 Communist power by quibbling over the right to emigrate. Secretary Kissinger then sends the congressional leadership for refusing to vote military aid to be used fighting Communists in Southeast Asia. President Nixon exchanges fulsome toasts with the Communist chief at Peking and Moscow. President Nixon authorizes the CIA to destabilize a Chilean regime on the finding that it would end up under Communist domination. The secretary of state tells us a negotiation with the primary Communist power has made "an historical breakthrough" toward "arms control" and limitation: "the secretary of defense tells Congress it must provide more billions than ever for new super-nuclear bombers and global submarines."

Burnham, who is by training a philosopher, is prepared to admit that a skilled dialectician can reconcile these opposites; but this is feasible at a level beyond the powers of a public trained, in the postwar period, in a certain consistency.

After the war, our policy had the benefit of a harnessing bias. It was this: that the Soviet Union was a superpower whose efforts threatened the peace of the world, and freedom in those parts of the world that had it or sought to develop it. That the containment of the Communist world was possible only by drawing inflexible lines around the perimeter of the Communist world.

Thus we were, at one point, prepared to go to war for Quemoy and Matsu. In our strategic thinking, we did not distinguish them from Berlin. During that period, as Burnham reminds us, "Congress voted the relevant appropriations, by huge majorities. No one looked at classified documents, or yanked about the CIA."

Now we are being asked, really, to punish discrete acts of aggression. We seem to be saying that we must not permit the North Vietnamese to "get away with it." Our concern can hardly be for the misery the North Vietnamese will introduce to the subjugated areas of Indochina. After all, we are prepared to celebrate the felicity that Mao Tse-tung brought to the entire Chinese mainland.

The American people do not, under the new rules, appear to be that exercised over our duty to repel distant acts of aggression. Now that we have been taught to believe that Communism is not a "globalist enterprise" the containment of which is a corporate responsibility of the free world, the contradictions come out and, inevitably, take over.

Kissinger can comprehend them all and, in his highest synthesis, understand them. But he cannot make a self-governing people understand them. They are too complicated.

"IS RELIGION..."

Red dedication major US danger

Editor, Times-News:

The present world problems are enough to cause many of us to wonder about our future.

Some of us who realize what's going on take the Communist threat very seriously while some of us who know what's happening would have seriously else believe there is no Communist threat.

The Communists have bragged that capitalism would fall under its own weight, but have they given it a fair chance? Or are they doing everything in their power to insure that our way of life will fail? What is happening in our political, moral, and economic structures?

Forty years ago here in Idaho I met a very intelligent man who said, "We have what we call the third movement going here in this country and I've been part of it since 1941." He also spoke of "the handwriting on the wall," and he said something about Congress being more powerful than the president which makes a lot of sense right now.

I thought it was a real fun game trying to learn what I could from this man but I had a rude awakening coming. When he realized that I was playing a game and that I had no intentions of joining his cause he became very unfriendly and I was surprised to learn how many friends he had and how very adept they were in the art of psychological terror tactics. I didn't have to act scared. I was scared. Their tactics had the desired effect in that I kept my mouth shut as much as possible.

The Communists are much more powerful and active in our lives and affairs than most of us would dare to think.

It isn't just communism that we have a liberal controlled Congress. It isn't just communism that there is so much turmoil and unrest in our country. Many of these things are the result of elaborate plans from intelligent minds carried out with patience and much dedication.

The rise of liberalism means change, but much of this change has not been in the best interests of freedom. Wherever the Communists can't use force they use change until they become strong enough to use force.

Most of us will grudgingly accept unannounced change if it isn't too drastic, but if we look back and add it up over the years, it becomes drastic. They would have us believe this is only our imagination of course. As J. Edgar Hoover said, they are "masters of deceipt."

The communists are winning the struggle for world domination, not because they are right but because they are dedicated to the use of principles which guarantee success in the end with strong opposition. The Mafia has also been successful but not because they are right.

It doesn't seem to be their theme to control the world. The Communists play a large part in it.

Our situation isn't hopeless but considering what needs to be done it will take more than an attitude of pragmatism and that George do it. Rather an attitude of "if we don't do it now, it won't get done!"

It is time to start thinking seriously of our future and the future of our children and their country.

Following Oregon course suggested

Editor, Times-News:

At the risk of blaspheming the god of development, let me suggest one way Idaho could assure good future returns for their crops.

They could limit the amount of new agricultural land going into development. They should urge the Idaho delegation in D.C. to support provisions in the H.C. Organic Act Bill which would repeal the Desert Land Act and thus keep land out of crops. They could also urge the cowboy lobby in the Idaho Legislature to pass legislation which would assure their water rights while allowing all remaining rights to minimum stream flows for fish and recreation.

Stupid? Everyone knows development broadens the tax base and thus makes it easier on all of us. But the facts show otherwise. A report from Commerce Clearing House, Inc., for the years 1972-73 shows the states with the greatest development have the greatest state per capita tax burden.

New York had the highest, $895. California, $739, and Idaho ranked 13th from the bottom. The most of Idaho residents believe that development will only bring problems we cannot live with. So, let Idaho follow Oregon's course: "Keep Idaho a Secret."

Leash law operates in one direction

Editor, Times-News:

Recently my dog was sold or put to sleep by the Humane Society without contacting me first.

I talked to an employee who works at the Humane Society before a week was up and all they tried to do was to give me a... if a dog in the place of ours and a different dog couldn't take the place my dog was registered.

I thought that a humane society was to show concern, but killing or neutering an animal isn't very humane.

I think there's a leash law for dogs, the same should be for cats. They scratch and nip the yard and are the same as the dogs do.

The leash law is supposed to be for dogs and cats but I never hear of a cat getting picked up and impounded. To me and many others who feel the same as I do, I feel the leash law goes only one way.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the list of contending cities down to six, the Democratic National Committee's search for a 1976 convention site focused on the Midlands today.

Kansas City, Mo., and Cleveland were to present formal bids to the Site Selection Committee in the first of two days of hearings: Los Angeles, Miami Beach, New Orleans and New York are in line for presentations Thursday.

Kansas City, host to the party's 1974 "mini convention," is one of the more aggressive bidders.

Kansas City shares with Miami and New Orleans the disadvantage of being in a state which has not ratified the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution. The Democratic National Committee told the group last month to make ratification of ERA a "breakmaking" qualification between cities with otherwise equal bids.

Only Cleveland, Los Angeles and New York go before the committee with the ERA preference. Cleveland has the partisan disadvantage of a Republican mayor in a state with a Republican governor.

First rebate checks out in May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service will begin mailing the first of 20 million new rebate checks today and the first batch will go to those taxpayers who filed their returns early.

The last of the checks, which will be for between $100 and $200 for most taxpayers, will be in the mail by the end of June, the IRS said Tuesday.

Here are questions and answers on the rebate, issued prepared by the IRS:

Q: What is a rebate?
A: A rebate is the return of a portion of your 1974 tax authorized by the Tax Reduction Act of 1975.

Q: What is the base for the IRS computation of rebates?
A: Generally, the act provides 10 percent of 1974 tax as a base for computing rebates, but establishes $200 as the maximum rebate.

Q: I receive Social Security benefits. Will I receive both the Social Security recipient and a tax rebate?
A: Yes, so long as you meet the general rules for eligibility for rebate.

Q: Will my $30 Social Security benefit and my tax rebate be included in the same check?
A: No. Social Security will authorize Treasury disbursing offices to issue the $30 separate from the tax rebate.

Q: Will I receive any type of explanation with my rebate check?
A: Yes, each check will include an explanatory statement. If my wife and I file separately, will we get a bigger rebate?
A: No, the maximum rebate for a married individual filing separately is $100.

Q: I owe money on my 1974 tax. Do I have to pay it before I get my rebate?
A: Yes, you should pay any amount of tax due. Otherwise, if you owe any money on your current year or any prior year's tax returns, your rebate will be credited to your account. If your rebate is greater than the amount you owe, the difference will be sent to you.

Q: I haven't received my refund; will this delay my rebate check?
A: No. Rebate checks will be issued quickly and in most instances by June 15, 1975. If you have not yet received your refund, it may be included in the same check. If the check has the words "Ref & Reb" on it, this means that the amount of the check includes both the regular refund and the rebate. If it is for the rebate only, it will have "Tax Rebate" printed on it.

Q: I have received my refund; when will I receive my rebate?
A: We are processing these as quickly as possible. However, there are about 70 million checks involving rebates and it will take some time for treasury disbursing offices to process them all.

Taxing questioned

Editor, Times-News:

With all the tax relief we hear about from government officials, I cannot understand how a couple, one over 65, claiming three dependents (double for over 65), can be expected to pay over $200 income taxes on $1 or $2 over $5,000 including SS, interest on savings, plus part-time work and retirement.

However, this is the case, also from $4.01 to $1,000. You may receive $100 of actual tax refund, but when your adjusted income is $5,000 (then you lose this tax adjustment). So there you lose $50.00. Also you pay $214.43 income tax. So we hear and have heard for the past three months, regarding the $30,000 to $40,000 bracket will receive tax relief, perhaps as much as $200-$300, and the little guy, making $5,000 pays over $200 income tax may get $100 back.

Big deal! Would the government rather we drop our SS and apply for welfare? People on welfare receive a lot of checks than I do after working so heavy construction for 20 to 30 years.

What would the government do if we all over the USA refused to pay taxes? Would they have room to put us all in jail? Or would they order us all shot and dumped in a ditch? The powers that be had better start thinking before it is too late.

I am very alarmed about the proposed bill that will make handgun ammunition classified as a hazardous substance.

The government makes it sound like it wants to protect "the people" but believe me it wants to control "the people."

It sounds like a lesser evil to take away the ammunition instead of our guns, but the result is the same: leaving "the people" defenseless. This was the first step taken by enemies that had a majority of educated middle class people before they were converted into a Communist government.

"We the people" of the United States better stand up and start screaming for our rights. This doesn't concern just the gun owners, but everyone because it is your freedom too.

LA aide may hit Hughes with property tax bill

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Unless the CIA drops the last shred of its cover and concedes it built the Glomar Explorer to retrieve a sunken Russian submarine, Los Angeles county may hit Howard Hughes with a $9 million property tax bill.

The warning came from county Tax Assessor Philip S. Watson, who told of a cloak-and-dagger visit in January — before the vessel's spy mission became known — from CIA representatives, visit in January — before the vessel's spy mission became known — from CIA representatives, pleading with him not to blow the ship's cover by levying taxes that would reveal its true value.

One of the surprises of the visit, Watson told reporters Wednesday, was that one of the men was a local lawyer, an acquaintance he never knew had any connection with the secret intelligence agency. "He asked me not to tell his law partners about it," said Watson, who plays golf with the partners. They apparently don't realize their associate works for the CIA, he said.

Watson's problem now is that although it has become public knowledge that the CIA built the Glomar Explorer to retrieve a Russian submarine that sank in the Pacific, and reportedly partially succeeded, public ownership is still in the name of billionaire Hughes, who agreed to loan the CIA the venture. Publicly, the ship was identified as an experimental vessel to recover minerals from the ocean floor. Unless the federal government—which is exempt from local taxes—will certify that it owns the ship, Watson said, he may have to assess a property tax on its estimated worth of $500 million, sending a bill for about $9 million to the Hughes-owned Summit Corp.

The county official said he signed a secret agreement with the CIA at the meeting to keep the vessel off the county tax rolls temporarily, although he failed in his efforts to get the CIA to certify in writing that the ship was federal property. "The lawyers included that if I ever go to Red China I have to get their permission first," he said, apparently so he could not spill the secret project to hostile interrogators.

Watson said that when the four-man CIA delegation called on him "I think it was the last Friday in January at 4 o'clock," he was given a burst of information, pushed from 17,000 feet beneath the ocean surface, to show the vessel could live up to its cover story. The ore sample, used as a paperweight, was on his desk as he talked to reporters. "They gave me this as an introduction when they walked in," he said.

Watson said the CIA was worried because his assistants in the harbor area had heard of the Glomar Explorer when it was being refitted next to the hangar of Hughes' flying boat (the marine "Spruce Goose") at Long Beach. "Our marine appraisers drive around the harbor and you can't keep anything that big a secret,"

Spring blizzard

TRAFFIC on Dan Ryan expressway is jammed up during a spring snowstorm Wednesday. The blizzard paralyzed traffic at the height of the evening rush hour and closed all of the city's airports. Public schools will be closed today because of the 12-inch snowstorm, the worst in eight years. (UPI)

Blizzard snarls Chicago traffic, 8 reported dead

CHICAGO (UPI) — An April blizzard howled across Chicago Wednesday night, leaving city streets deserted, shutting down the airports, busiest airport and turning the nation's busiest expressway into a ghost road of stalled cars.

When it was over, eight persons were dead and thousands were stranded. Eight persons died of heart attacks while attempting to shovel snow, push stalled autos or hike to shelter from their stalled cars.

The city crawled out from beneath a one-foot shroud of snow today and, informed of the worst was over, set about the task of making the paralyzed city run again.

All city schools were closed today, as were most suburban schools, and some businesses. Traffic was still jammed up on Chicago area expressways, posing a nightmare to morning rush hour motorists. But city workers pushed aside hundreds of stalled cars, and plowed away the snow and glare ice in an effort to make high ways passable.

O'Hare International Airport, shut down Wednesday for only the third time in history, remained closed as work crews started clearing airport runways. An airport spokesman said one runway would be open by around noon. Thousands of travelers were stranded at O'Hare.

TV rule ease sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A panel of business executives which has studied the nation's communications system for four years wants to see government restrictions on cable television eased to encourage its development.

The Committee for Economic Development (CED) recommendation evidently aimed at making broadcast diversity a practical reality and not just an electronic possibility, drew vigorous dissent from some of its members from the broadcast industry.

The report, "Broadcasting and Cable Television: Policies for Diversity and Change," concludes that in general there is no one, much government regulation of broadcasting, conventional or cable it recommends.

Retaining the "Fairness Doctrine," which requires broadcasters to air contrasting views on important but controversial issues, only until there are enough communications channels to provide this diversity of opinion without the rule.

Anthony G. Gerbinger of Harvard University, who served as an adviser to the panel, suggested the fairness doctrine might be lifted experimentally in large markets where diversity already exists.

Establishing an independent communications court to take judicial functions from the Federal Communications Commission, so it can concentrate on policy-making. Providing long range funding for public broadcast. Allowing broadcasters to request important events on the Senate and House floors, and from congressional committees.

Encouraging the broadcast industry toward more voluntary self-regulation, as opposed to the current self imposed guidelines concerning violent programming, which were the result of government prodding.

'Value' folds

LONDON (UPI) — Value Today, a magazine designed to help people beat inflation, is folding after only six issues, a spokesman said today.

"Costs have gone up so much we were losing on every issue," said executive editor David Miller.

Overcharge data mounts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Newly reported data shows a total of more than $850 million in definite or suspected petroleum pricing excesses uncovered by government investigators.

In most of these cases, Federal Energy Administration statistics show, offenders adjusted their prices or gave refunds. FEA officials said Wednesday the most recently reported overcharges were those from 12 suppliers to refund $492,016.60 to gasoline retailers; other suppliers, five individual firms and one Colorado utility.

Blasts shake NY offices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Powerful time bombs exploded outside the offices of a bank and two insurance companies before dawn today. A Puerto Rican revolutionary group that killed four people in a January bombing took credit for the blasts.

The bombs shattered plate glass windows, wakened up hundreds of people in midtown Manhattan. No one was seriously injured, however, and damage to the buildings was not severe because the explosives were placed at awkward angles.

A fourth bomb, apparently discarded by the bombers because its timing device was about to detonate, exploded in a trash pile outside a snack restaurant.

A man walking nearby when one of the bombs went off was knocked to the ground and slightly injured. Four firemen were treated for cuts they received while clearing away fragments of broken glass from window frames.

The first three bombs exploded at the headquarters offices of the New York Life Insurance Co. and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. and a branch office of Bankers Trust Co.

The fourth explosive was tossed to the ground in the neighborhood of the bank branch. Police and fire officials said "Perpetrators" had one timed device that was sent on its way, not knowing that, they just tossed it out the window of their car.

A man with a Spanish accent called the Associated Press at 12:32 a.m. less than 10 minutes after the explosions, and said, "This is the F.A.M.-N. We just threw bombs. You will find a communication in a telephone booth at 8th Street and Lexington Ave."

In the note, the F.A.M.-N said it was taking "responsibility" for the bombings of banks and corporations in New York on April 3, 1975. Those corporations are at the heart of yank imperialism. They are important decision makers in the planning of domestic and foreign policy and benefit from the exploitation and oppression of Puerto Rico and other Third World nations as well as the North American working class.

Evidence lacking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Staff of the Consumer Product Safety Commission has concluded there is not enough evidence against aerosol sprays for the agency to warn Americans to stop using them.

The recommendation, now waiting for action by the five commissioners, grew out of a petition from a public interest group, Center for Science in the Public Interest, which asked for actions against sprays which ranged from testing and education to advising the public against their use. It contended that the 3 billion aerosol cans sold in the United States each year pose hazards from explosion and from toxic chemicals suspended in the air.

The staff said the danger of all types of injury is about 1 in every 100,000 cans, while the danger of explosion is even more remote, about one injury per every 1.2 million cans produced.

Expired sticker won't get ticket

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's director of law enforcement said Wednesday the state police will not issue citations for expired automobile registration stickers until new ones can be issued.

Director John Bender said he also is planning to send letters to the various law enforcement authorities in the Gem State telling them basically the same thing.

His statement was the result of an Idaho Supreme Court decision handed down Tuesday which said state-issued validation stickers are not in compliance with the law.

Idaho statutes say the stickers must have printed on them the date of expiration and a code number. In essence the court said that a sticker having a '75 printed on it implied that the license was good through Dec. 31, 1975.

Bender said Wednesday the state will have to send to county clerks new stickers which display the proper month, day and year of expiration.

"That's going to take some time, and is going to cost some more money," Bender said.

He also said he was not quite sure just what law enforcement would do about the '76 stickers which already have been issued since last Jan. 1.

He said they will probably reissue the stickers and car owners will have to apply them over the old ones.

Relating to that decision, Idaho Attorney General Wayne Kidwell told the Idaho Press Club Wednesday that his predecessor had notified the Department of Law Enforcement late last year of the possible problems.

Kidwell said, "It's a top-of-the-head opinion, but I think if you've registered your car this year and have a '76 sticker, you can't be cited for expired vehicle license until after Dec. 31, 1976."

Kidwell added, "This is just one of the examples of the problems created when each agency hires its own legal staff which is not coordinated with the attorney general's office."

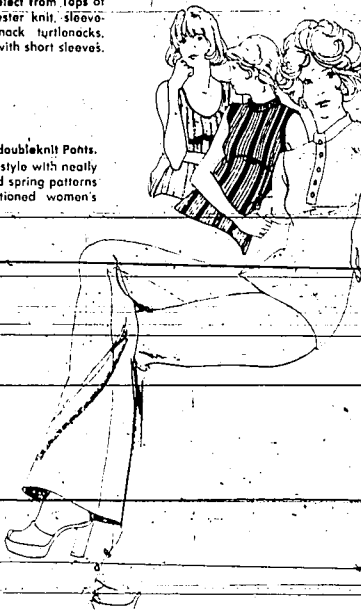

He noted that although law enforcement had been made aware of the possible problem, no one had bothered to do anything about it until Tuesday's decision was handed down.

Hearing scheduled

BOISE (UPI) — Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa announced Wednesday that a hearing would be held April 29 on his proposed Sunshine law rules and regulations.

Cenarrusa said that the hearing would be at his office starting at 10 A.M.

Discussion in the hearing, he said, will focus upon the contents of the lobbyist registration form, weekly report form, the quarterly report form and the notice requirement.

Cenarrusa said the hearing also would discuss the procedures to be followed when submitting a complaint that an individual has violated a provision of the Sunshine law.

Both oral and written testimony and evidence may be submitted at the hearing.

The secretary of state also reminded lobbyists that quarterly reports were due in his office April 30.

Per diem boosted

BOISE (UPI) — An increase in per diem for state employees received approval from the State Board of Examiners, State Auditor Joe H. Williams said Wednesday.

The recently adjourned legislature approved an increase on per diem for the employees, raising it to $10 per day for in-state and $14 for out-of-state travel.

Previously the state employees were receiving $7.50 in-state and $10 for travel out of state.

Western governors adopt farm, energy policies

HILLINGS, Minn. (UPI)—A seven-point policy proposal has been adopted by governors attending the Western Governors' Conference on Agriculture and will be presented to President Gerald Ford.

Montana Gov. Thomas L. Judge will hand the proposals to President Ford at the White House in Washington.

The proposal was drafted by Govs. John Castro, Arizona; Jerry Apodaca, New Mexico; Arthur Link, North Dakota; Richard Kneip, South Dakota; Calvin Hampton, Utah; Ed Heerschler, Wyoming; Richard Lamb, Colorado; and John

Lamb is not attending the conference but indicated his signature was to be added to the proposal.

The governors' proposal calls for immediate action on the following:

- A moratorium on beef imports into this country.
- Distribution of government-purchased beef to the disadvantaged poor in this country.
- Increasing the farm price on wheat to $3.11 per bushel, as recommended by the Senate.
- Protection of agriculture from gasoline and diesel fuel price increases.
- Finding and implementing acceptable methods of halting serious losses being incurred by the sheep industry due to predators.
- Opposition to cuts in the Rural Development Act, which is currently under-funded, and adequate funding for the Farmers Home Administration.

Emergency loans for the livestock industry.

The governors also adopted a "Statement of concern," which calls for:

- Passage and approval of a federal strip mine reclamation bill. The Western states must be given a responsible role in the development of the rules and regulations under that act. Federal coal leasing should be delayed until regulations are finalized and appropriate environmental assessments are completed.
- Opposition to federal preemption of state authority in areas of water, land use, utility siting, clean air and water standards.
- Federal funding to energy-impacted communities.
- The establishment of long-range, uniform federal guidelines for energy conservation.

Each state must also be encouraged to develop its own conservation policy.

- Adequate funding for the development of alternate sources of energy, demonstration projects and energy-conservation research. The states where resource development takes place should participate fully in deciding how and where these funds will be expended.

In their policy statement, the governors also said:

"Agriculture in the Western states is in a serious depression. Prices for some commodities have dropped to record lows while production costs have risen to an all-time high."

It was for that reason they urged the President to adopt the seven-point policy proposal.

Viets get gear from Gem Guard

BOISE (UPI)—Selected equipment items are being forwarded to South Vietnam by National Guard units in 10 states, it was learned Wednesday.

Idaho Army National Guard officials confirmed that some items of communications had been sent out of the Gem State Sunday at the request of the National Guard Bureau in Washington.

Authorities in Washington said the equipment was being provided to South Vietnam under an approved and funded military assistance program.

Subpoena withdrawn

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A subpoena seeking testimony from the father of rebel sports figure Jack Scott on the flight of fugitive heiress Patricia Hearst has been withdrawn.

Doron Weisberg, attorney for John J. Scott, said Tuesday that the government dismissed the subpoena after realizing his client knew nothing that would help locate Miss Hearst and her fellow Symbionese Liberation Army members.

The subpoena was issued after Scott twice refused to answer grand jury questions. He claimed 5th Amendment privilege.

The FBI reportedly believed Miss Hearst stayed in a Las Vegas apartment complex in which the elder Scott lived last summer.

His son was sought for questioning because he is suspected of having rented a farmhouse in Pennsylvania for the SLA members.

Pen probe panel finding 'smoke'

BOISE (UPI)—Attorney General Wayne Kidwell told the Idaho Press Club Wednesday that "where there's smoke there's fire" in allegations of improprieties at the state prison.

Kidwell is chairman of the commission appointed by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus to look into allegations by inmates that they had been sexually abused by prison guards.

A report from that commission will include recommendations on security, day-to-day operation and specific recommendations on policy, Kidwell said.

The attorney general told a headline luncheon that the report will be issued to the governor April 10.

"I feel myself that had there been access by the media to the inmate population there would not have been the kind of smoke that was generated," Kidwell said.

"Investigating the commission and its members of Kidwell's staff have brought up questions 'not who should be in charge of the day to day operation' of the prison."

Kidwell said that will be dealt with in the report along with questions of security and the physical state of prisoners. The commission, he said, will include some specific recommendations of policy in the report.

Obviously, he said, "where there is this much smoke there must be some fire" and the governor was "justified" in calling up the commission to look into the allegations.

On another subject, Kidwell said, "it appears I was unable to persuade the governor that it would be responsible for the assistant attorney general to report to the attorney general."

He referred to a bill vetoed by the governor that would have placed all assistant attorneys general under the attorney general and prevented state agencies from retaining outside legal help without going through the attorney general.

Idaho's Kidwell said he does not intend to give up on the matter. He said he would talk with the governor and some of the independent attorneys who are retained by state agencies to explore the possibility of introducing similar legislation in the next Idaho legislative session.

Along that line, he said his office will file a writ of prohibition with the Supreme Court against the first department that tries to go to court without going through the attorney general.

Insinuating?

CHICAGO (UPI)—The second floor pressroom at City Hall is being painted canary yellow, but it has nothing to do with Mayor Richard J. Daley recently accusing reporters of "Yellow Journalism" for their stories on alleged police spying.

A city official said a random survey of reporters last week showed several favored the color.

Signals planned

PARMA, Idaho (UPI)—Union Pacific Railroad has planned an installing warning signals at the Sharp Lane crossing where a tail-bram pickup accident occurred Monday for at least a year.

J. L. O'Neill, assistant superintendent with the UPRR transportation department in Nampa, said Wednesday the automatic light and flashing red lights are scheduled for installation about a month.

After the railroad made the decision to install the equipment at this and two other dangerous Idaho crossings last year, he said, it had to wait for the device, because only one company makes them.

Work has finished on signals at an east Kuna crossing, he said, and is scheduled to start next week at the Third Street Crossing in Moscow. The railroad has to raise crossing costs.

A rate and signals for one crossing costs the railroad about $100,000, O'Neill said.

O'Neill agreed with many residents of this area that the Sharp Lane is an especially bad crossing. It has a bluff obscuring the motorist's view and a curve in the tracks to block the engineer's view.

Faculty tenure accord lacking

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI)—Idaho's Board of Education spent six hours trying to work out exact wording of a proposed new faculty tenure policy Wednesday and still did not reach an agreement.

Crux of the disagreement between faculty of the state's three universities and college and board members centered on proposed dismissal policy.

Board president J. P. Munson said the board will attempt to write a few draft of tenure policy in time to act on Friday before adjournment of its three day meeting.

"There was something of some controversial aspects dealing with dismissal procedures in our discussion before," Munson said. "Some new ideas were brought up which were not discussed before. I think it was a healthy exchange from that standpoint."

But Tony Iugas, chairman of the University of Idaho faculty affairs committee, was less optimistic over results of the meeting.

"We had a good exchange of ideas but I don't think we really accomplished much on changing the minds of the board of the real issues involved," he said.

"Our main objections to the proposed policy on hearing procedures, peer review and the responsibility of the faculty in areas of internal government at the universities were largely unresolved."

Agendas of the agencies under board control will be taken up Thursday and Friday with arrangements for drinking on the campus at the University of Idaho a controversial highlight.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Diana Hoist, Meridian, has been chosen Idaho's princess for the annual Cheryl Hibson Festival in Washington.

Miss Hoist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hoist of Meridian, is a legislative secretary for Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho.

Bogus food stamp bill count filed

BOISE (UPI)—Bond was set at $500 for a Boise man Wednesday during an argument on a charge of forging food stamp "due bills" in a state print shop and then trying to pass them in local stores.

James W. Yartzell, 28, a printer at the shop, and Tom K. Dabb, 26, Garden City, were arrested Tuesday after a clerk in an M & W Market spotted one of the counterfeit Monday night.

Arrangement will continue Thursday morning in Fourth District magistrate court. Ada County Prosecutor David Leroy said his office is investigating the possibility other stores are involved in the production of the bogus due bills, or change for food stamps.

Miss Hoist was released on her own recognizance and Yartzell posted bond.

Motel plans given nod

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI)—The Pocatello airport board approved preliminary plans Wednesday for construction of a new motel complex near the terminal west of the city.

The plans call for an initial complex of 40 rooms costing approximately $800,000. Involved in the plans are George de Tillo of Pocatello and Ron Van Ocker of Boise.

De Tillo has operated restaurants at the Pocatello airport and at the Twin Falls airport. He has been at the Pocatello airport restaurant for three years.

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Is there a test that tells whether or not a person has been smoking marijuana? I heard that there is, but my girlfriend says no. — J.E.V.

Yes, there is such a test, in fact, it is discussed in a recent report from the Journal of the American Medical Association. Researchers report an development of a test based on the presence of certain antibodies in the bodies of smokers. These antibodies are produced in response to cannabis metabolites.

Testing for 'pot' smoking

By George Thosteson

The test was discovered quite by accident in treatment of a patient with a blood disease known as an autoimmune hemolytic anemia. The patient had suffered a sudden and severe attack of this disease.

Doctors asked him to list everything he had eaten, drunk, or smoked just prior to his attack. He admitted he smoked marijuana, and told the doctors that, come to think of it, he had had previous attacks when he smoked it.

He was given a blood test to see if he had developed antibodies to marijuana. He had. Tests were run on 17 volunteers who were smokers. All had antibodies to the marijuana metabolites. Researchers of the test are so certain that even a whiff of smoke breathed by one person results in a blood in which people are making marijuana can trigger a positive finding. As far as I know, the test is still under development.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am 42 and just had a hysterectomy. I feel weak, get cold easily, and feel lazy most of the time. The doctor told me that after my full recovery I would not feel hormones. Do I really need these shots? — Mrs. G. E. C.

Normally, a hysterectomy removal of the uterus only should cause menopause. The temporary weakness associated with any major abdominal surgery. But if the ovaries were removed at the same time, which seems to be the case with you, you would enter what is called "surgical menopause." Persistent symptoms of fatigue and changes in body temperature are common in this.

The hormones would make up for those formerly produced in the now removed ovaries. The sudden loss of the natural hormone applies to what happens in the symptoms of menopause. If these symptoms persist, you should certainly take the hormones, either by injection or orally. My booklet, "Make Menopause Easier," includes a discussion of surgical menopause, which in some ways is quite similar to the natural occurring type. For a copy, send 5 cents in the name of this newspaper. Enclose a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Can you tell me if, when a person is operated on for tumor of the bowel, that is called transverse colectomy or splenectomy? — H.E.B.

A splenectomy would be a resection of a portion of the large intestine. The portion that runs from the cecum to the left side of the abdomen. Beginning at the appendix in the lower right portion of the abdomen, the colon makes three sides of a

A splenectomy is removal of the spleen, and this has nothing to do with a colectomy, although both procedures may be performed in the same surgery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I would like to know if men ever develop test cancer. Also, is it possible to bring to nurse a baby? I heard somewhere that in some foreign country, when a woman dies in childbirth, the husband nurses the baby. Is that true? — Mrs. E. P.

Cancer in the male breast is extremely rare. Men do develop lumps in their breasts, but these are almost always not malignant.

As to your second question, the answer is no. Men have breast tissue, but they lack the hormonal machinery to produce milk.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My attention has been called to a recent column in your column by a newly remarried lady in her 80s who wanted to know what the chances of her becoming pregnant were at this time in her life. Your answer, that the probability of conception was very remote, no doubt will reach her mind.

However, there are several cases in the medical records which mention the fact that there is hope. I believe it OR NOT some time in 1946: "An American Indian woman, age 99, married a man, age 37. One year later she gave birth to a son. She died at the age of 119, leaving a 19-year-old son and a 56-year-old husband."

60 years old and pregnant?

The second case involved a woman reported to have been 65 years old who married a man about 80. A child was born to this couple. It was reported in several leading American newspapers.

THESE ARE RARE CASES, BUT THEY DID HAPPEN. ALL WOMEN should be made aware that where there is life, there is hope. MASSACHUSETTS M.D.

DEAR M.D.: If one is to take these "reports" seriously, then the only contraceptive that is 100 per cent reliable is "sulfu dental."

DEAR ABBY: Fifteen years ago, my father died. (Mother had died before him.) While he didn't leave a great fortune, everything of value was divided evenly among my two brothers, my sister and myself. The only thing we couldn't decide on was what to do with Dad's rare coin collection.

As time was limited for us all to be together (we live in different states) my oldest brother said, "If it's all right with the rest of you, I'll keep the coin collection until we reach a decision as to what should be done with it. The rest of us agreed, and nothing more was said or done about it. Now, years later, my sister told me that she had once brought up the subject of the coin collection to the brother who had it, hinting that she would like to see it again, but he didn't offer to show it to her. We've always been on good terms with each other, but no one wanted to risk hurt feelings by bringing up the matter.

Now the brother who has the collection has a terminal illness. He has only one child—and he is adopted. Have we waited too long in this matter to do anything? What do you advise? The coin collection is worth several thousand dollars, but of course a good family relationship is priceless. What is your advice?

IN A QUANDARY

DEAR IN: Much depends upon your brother's condition. If he is at death's door, of course the matter of the coin collection should not be brought up. But if he's reasonably well, you might suggest either dividing the coins among the four of you, or having them evaluated, and then if one wanted to buy them all, he could pay the others for their share. (P.S. Some wise person once said, "You never really know a person until you have to share an inheritance with him.")

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, and my wife of four months is 15. I married her because she said she was pregnant. She wasn't. Now she admits that she just said she was pregnant so I would marry her.

Because of our marriage, I had to quit school and get a job in a factory. I even had to borrow money from my parents to make a down payment on a mobile home. This really hurt me because my parents are hard-working people who made a sacrifice to let me have the money.

I really was in love with the girl before we were married, but every time I think of the dirty trick she pulled on me, I'm turned off.

I am thinking about divorce, and want your opinion. STUCK IN S.D.

DEAR STUCK: Granted, it was a dirty trick, but don't rush into a divorce unless you are positive that that is what you want. In the meantime, do your part to make sure there are no unwanted babies, or you'll really be stuck.

A rubber bridge player would waste no time with today's high technology that you can use with his club slam. After drawing trumps he would concede a diamond trick and go on to the next rubber after scoring 1,370 points.

A duplicate player would not risk his slam, but would undoubtedly give himself a chance to score an overtrick that would be worth an extra match point or two.

He would rise with the ace of spades at trick one. Then he would draw trumps with three leads while leaving the five spot in dummy and the six and four in his own hand.

Then he would lead his jack of hearts. If East ducked he would rise with dummy's ace, lead a diamond and give up on seven tricks. But if East covered South would score his extra trick.

He would start Operation Extra Trick by running spades so as to discard one diamond. Then he would overtake dummy's five of trumps with his six, cash his last trump and discard dummy's diamond.

West would have been squeezed with his ace of diamonds and long hearts; and South would have scored the extra 20 points.

GOODING — Cindy L. Barton and Russell Rost were married March 15 in an afternoon ceremony at the First Christian Church. The double-ring ceremony was conducted by Rev. Harold Blake before an archway decorated with burgandy roses and chrysanthemums. Two tiered gold candelabra holding burgandy and kelly-green candles completed the decorations.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Borsh, Gooding, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rost, Wendell. Her bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory satin featuring a high standup collar trimmed with lace and mid-victorian style sleeves. The skirt was fastened with a wide flounce with a double row of ruffles.

Her cathedral length veil was held in place by a lace-trimmed cap. She carried a cascade bouquet of burgandy roses. For something old, she wore a gold brooch given her by her mother.

Clara Suter, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Jimmie Rost, Debbie Lee and Tracee Barton, another sister of the bride, were bridesmaids. Suzanne Claborn, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Kelly Rost, a cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Greg Rost, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Gus Miller, John Johnson, and Tony Rost, brother of the bridegroom, were groomsmen. Candlelighters were Paul Childs and Judd Astorgna, cousins of the bridegroom. Rod Adams, John Hunsicker and Tullie Marlowe were ushers.

Mrs. Jane Caster was soloist. Donna Hankus was pianist and accompanist. The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony. The hall was decorated in kelly green and burgandy.

The four tiered cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom seated on a bench. The cake was decorated with pink and burgandy roses. The cake was placed in the center of a lace covered table. Mrs. Walter Gessford served the cake. Mrs. Albert Hall and Mrs. George Jenkins served punch and coffee. The mints were made by Mrs. Walter Harris.

Her Schrank had charge of the guest book. Mrs. Barbara Tish and Bonnie Claborn, sisters of the bride, cared for the gifts. The bridegroom's parents were guests for a reception following the wedding. The bride is a 1972 graduate of Gooding High School and was formerly employed at Kendrick Drug Store. The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of Wendell High School and is employed by Vaughan's Landscape and Construction Inc. The couple lives in Twin Falls.

The bride was honored at a pre-nuptial shower given by the women of the church on March 4. V. C. Barton, Filer, and "Gamp" and Otis Rost, grandparents of the couple, were honored guests at the shower.

Out-of-town guests attended from "Anchorage," Alaska; Bountiful, Utah; Buhl, Filer, and Twin Falls.

Self exam clinic slated in Gooding

GOODING — There will be a free breast self-examination clinic April 24 at the former tuberculosis hospital in Gooding.

Mrs. Abe Loewen is chairman of a special committee of the Gooding Chapter of the American Cancer Society which will plan the clinic, designed to educate women to help detect cancer in its early stages.

Volunteers will take appointments for the clinic on a date to be announced later.

Appointments must be made by those planning to attend. An educational film and an examination by a special trained nurse who will teach each woman individually how to examine her own breasts will be included in the clinic. Physicians will be present to double check any suspicious findings. If any indications of cancer are found in women attending the clinic, these women will be referred to their own doctors for follow up examinations.

Miami doctors threaten to strike

MIAMI (UPI) — Physicians attending a meeting of the Dade County Medical Association voted 10-1 in favor of a strike April 15 unless the Florida Legislature grants them relief from the high cost of malpractice insurance, which has doubled in price since the first of the year.

The 150 physicians attending the meeting of 2,700-member Dade County Medical Association also voted to take a one-day holiday from practice April 9 to go to Tallahassee and demonstrate in front of the Capitol.

In addition to the doubled premiums already in effect, the physicians say they face another 30 per cent premium boost on April 15.

After April 15, the doctors said, they would handle only emergency cases.

Decision to call the limited strike came on a standing vote in which those opposed to the walkout were asked to rise. Only a handful stood.

Among the foes of the strike were the association's president, Dr. Pedro J. Greer.

"This is a sad day in medicine," he said. "I understand my colleagues' concern, but I feel this resolution was voted on under great emotional stress."

Those attending the meeting said anesthesiologists who gross $100,000 a year would pay $27,000 of it in malpractice insurance premiums under the present schedule.

Most of the malpractice insurance in effect in Florida is supplied by the Argonaut Insurance Co., Menlo Park, Calif., which has a five-year contract in effect with the Florida Medical Association. The company is seeking to terminate that contract and cancel its policies. That would leave about 90 per cent of Florida's physicians and at least 60 of its hospitals without malpractice insurance.

Horrible sight greets prospects

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It was a horrible sight and the woman screamed. A real estate agent was taking the woman and her husband through a vacant apartment in the San Pedro area Tuesday when she stepped into the bedroom to look it over.

Floating in a tub of murky water was what appeared to be the headless skeleton of a child. She shrieked. The real estate agent called the police.

Investigators reached into the tub and retrieved the "body" — a realistic looking inflatable rubber "headless corpse" sold in novelty stores as a practical joke item, police said.

Begs for death

STEVEN Ackley, 29, Napa, Calif., screams, "Kill me. Kill me," as he was arrested in the deaths of his daughters, Patty, 8, and Stephanie, 9. Ackley walked up to Napa County sheriff's deputies as they began to search a vineyard where they later found the bodies of the girls. (UPI)

California father charged in slaying

NAPA, Calif. (UPI) — Funeral services for two sisters will be held Thursday at about the same time their father will appear in Justice Court on charges of double murder.

Steven Jay Ackley, 29, was arraigned in Napa Justice Court Tuesday. He attempted to request the death penalty for allegedly dragging his daughters, Patty, 8, and Stephanie, 9, into a grape vineyard and slaying them, a spokesman for the Napa County sheriff's office said.

But the proceeding was put over until Thursday, and attorneys Paul Mulhern and Walter Zylinski were appointed to represent him. Sheriff's deputies said the tragedy unfolded Monday afternoon when Ackley, who is estranged from his wife — his sister, Pamela and the two children were driving near a winery about five miles northwest of Napa.

Miss Ackley, said officers, she had arranged for her brother to visit with his daughters. She said he suddenly stopped the car, took the two girls and ordered his sister to telephone his wife that he intended to kill the children.

Instead, Miss Ackley called the sheriff. Bodies of the two girls were found behind a vineyard.

Sahara Desert trip ends

LONDON (UPI) — Now that the "hundred" position, the Chinese wheelbarrow, 200 miles across the Sahara Desert, the Rev. Geoffrey Howard can "tuck into his heart's desire" a chocolate cake.

"I had given anything for a 'huge cake,' Howard said as he returned from pushing a large wheelbarrow across the burning desert.

"It took him 90 days and nights," Howard said he did it for charity, and to prove himself.

"It had never been done before," said the 30-year-old curate of St. Luke's Anglican church in Manchester.

Howard started in Algeria just before Christmas and finished in Kano, northern Nigeria, last month. He flew home Tuesday to a huge welcome from his wife, Joan, 28, and children Sissy, 3, and Sam, 2.

He made a demonstration run with this large-wheeled barrow, a contraption of two boxes painted with bright stripes on each side of the wheels, and a British flag flying bravely over it.

"Apart from my wife and kids, the thing I missed most was chocolate cake," the Rev. Howard said. "I'd have given anything for a huge cake. That, or a large pot of strawberries jam."

"I was using up so much energy every day and I was desperate for something sweet. I got fed up with eating sugar."

Two British men trailed him in a land rover, but were allowed to give him food and water only at agreed points. Chocolate cake was not in their stock.

The worst moment came when I had just covered 20 miles of soft sand," the bespectacled curate said.

"I empty over the top 'at a ridge and saw the most beautiful line stretching for 200 yards. I just slumped over the wheelbarrow and started to laugh."

"My whole body was shaking with laughter, but inside I was crying. I couldn't believe the desert could be so cruel."

That moment came on his longest stretch between two holes — 251 miles of searching for water. The temperature above 100 degrees, Howard had only a couple of pints of water left.

"I knew that just ahead was a small mining community," he said. "But when I got there I thought I was seeing a mirage. The miners — 350 of them and all Europeans — came out to meet me with champagne."

Drink kills

TOKYO (UPI) — A man drunk on whiskey in one gulp at a friend's urging and died of a heart attack, police said today.

They said Koji Kobayashi, 32, of the port city of Kobe, took up the challenge at a snack shop in his home town Tuesday and collapsed soon after.

Kobayashi was taken home by his friend. His wife found him dead early this morning, police said.

Supporter claims Nixon broke

DALLAS (UPI) — The chief public supporter of Richard Nixon says the former president's health is improving but he is nearly broke and needs hundreds of thousands of dollars to help pay legal fees.

Rabbi Baruch Korff opened his appeal Monday to Texans to contribute to a money-raising drive for Nixon. Korff spoke at an open house held by Dallas businessman Jimmy Asaff and was scheduled to address a luncheon meeting Tuesday.

He said Nixon's health has improved "more rapidly in recent weeks than in the preceding months" and said once Nixon "recovers emotionally and physically, my impression is he will be available for peace missions."

Korff said Nixon is involved increasingly in private observances of the Quaker church, the faith of his parents, but "his preoccupation remains affairs of the nation."

Asaff said as many as 5,000 Dallas area households including a handful of millionaires could be expected to contribute to the fund.

Korff said $148,000 has been raised out of the minimum $50,000 needed for the "President Nixon Justice Fund" to pay legal fees in Nixon's attempt to get control of his presidential papers.

Kent S. students till soil

KENT, Okla. (UPI) — Over nearby reservation at Kent State University they're planting onions these days. University President Glenn Olds plowed it himself Tuesday, and said anybody who'd like to get in his own "inflation garden" is more than welcome.

"We have a lot of unused land here on the university grounds and it seems to me it would be much better than having students and faculty and the townspeople would have a chance to invest a little hard work in the soil and cooperate with nature in producing what they need for their table," said Olds at a one-time program today.

"Frankly, I'm elated because I feel badly whenever I see unused land simply lying fallow. We have this part of the old farm that now will be used constructively."

Olds assigned the first 20-by-30-foot plots Tuesday to Kathy Braden, a student, Dr. Rudolph Malandro, chairman of the KSU accounting department, and to Mrs. John Grubbs of Kent.

Olds first proposed last fall that the university offer unused land after President Ford suggested the nation fight the rising cost of living by planting "inflation gardens," similar to "vegetable gardens" during World War II.

"The fact is we're in a critical recession," said Olds. "Costs continue to soar, particularly on foods."

He said the gardeners will not only have some fun, but they'll also save enormously in terms of their budget.

"This is our modest contribution to fight inflation," he said. "The town has done a great deal for the university and this is a kind of modest way to reciprocate."

The plots will be offered on a priority basis to students living on campus, students living off campus, in nearby communities, KSU employees and residents of the county. Elderly citizens will get first preference.

Jacob Urbeck, director of university relations, is coordinating the project, said KSU will plow and disc the land, lay out the plots and reserve the right to assign plots. The university will not provide any types of garden tools, fertilizer, seeds and plants or water, he said.

Urbeck said the gardeners must agree to keep the plot clean and to harvest and remove all harvest by November so the university can clean up the land.

TF judge stricken

TWIN FALLS — Magistrate Judge Reed P. Maughan was in fair condition this morning at the Blaine County Hospital, Pocatello, after he was stricken by an apparent aneurysm in an abdominal aorta Wednesday afternoon.

Maughan, who underwent extensive surgery Wednesday, is in the intensive care unit at the hospital.

Mrs. Myrtle Maughan, reached at the hospital, today said doctors have indicated the judge has a good chance for recovery.

Maughan left Twin Falls about noon Wednesday following lunch with county commissioners and was reportedly taken suddenly ill en route near Pocatello.

A former Bull mayor, Maughan has served as magistrate since the implementation of the court reform program.

GREG Schelling, 17, Jerome, is still on the critical list in the intensive care ward of St. Benedict's Hospital after being injured in a collision between a dairy truck and a Jerome school bus Wednesday morning. Schelling was a passenger in the truck. Schelling's condition reportedly has improved from Wednesday. Schelling received internal and back injuries when he was thrown from the truck into a ditch. The damaged school bus is shown above.

Drilling ends at test site

By DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

MALTA — Drilling at the first geothermal test site near Malta has ended.

The huge 12 story drilling rig that punched a hole 5000 feet beneath the desert will be moved to a second site nearby.

The goal of the drilling program is to locate several wells capable of providing geothermal hot water at a temperature of about 300 degrees F, with a combined flow of 5,000 to 50,000 gallons per minute.

The first well met the drillers' expectation when they hit a pocket of hot water at 4500 feet. Initial flow and temperature tests indicated the water was 290 degrees F and flow was 1,000 gallons per minute.

Earlier this week additional flow, temperature, and water chemistry tests were run. The results have not been released.

Wednesday, Roger Stoker, on the site for Aerojet Nuclear Corp. said drillers hit "basement rock" at 3000 feet. There's no point in going deeper at that site, he said.

Now, the geothermal explorers will drag the drilling rig to the second test site, about 10 miles from the first hole for the second exploratory hole.

The huge rig will be in place at its new site no later than April 24th, Stoker said.

The geothermal exploration is a joint venture of the state of Idaho, the Baffi River Electric Corp. and the US Energy Research and Development Agency.

The current program just calls for locating hot water reservoirs. However, researchers are hopeful of obtaining funds for the construction of a demonstration power plant at the site.

If successful, it would be the first plant in the US to generate electricity from natural hot water.

Jerome meet tonight

JEROME — The Jerome County Planning Council will have a special meeting at 8 p.m. tonight at Wood Cafe.

Tom Smith, coordinator, said the special meeting was called so the recreation committee of the planning council can present its preliminary proposal for development of recreation sites in Jerome County.

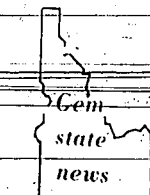

Approval of the proposal must be obtained from the council before the committee can send the plan to the Idaho State Department of Parks and Recreation.

The committee has been working very hard for the last six months to prepare these projections and suggestions. With the council's approval we can send it to the Idaho Parks and Recreation Department for help with an application for grant funds," Mrs. Smith said.

The unit was donated by the hospital's guild.

Chatterton had open heart surgery last year. He will continue to teach academics at the school.

School officials said no successor was in mind.

Sentence day slated

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Judge Alfred C. Hagan plans to sentence Jerry Schroder, former state director of highway beautification, April 30 on fraud charges.

Schroder was indicted March 29 on the counts of obtaining money under false pretenses and use of a fraudulent account. He was accused of reaping substantial benefits from the beautification program he administered by buying billboards from his secretly-owned firm of Media West.

The library is being dedicated in appreciation of the gift of Wood's personal collection of cancer and pathology journals.

Dr. Wood was a resident of Gooding through 1922 and was a director of the Cancer Research Institute from 1959 through 1971 as well as a consultant to the National Cancer Institute from 1956 to the present time.

Moratorium challenged

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Two subdivisions have challenged a Canyon County moratorium on rezoning of rural land with a class action suit in Third District Court.

Ben R. Drake and D. M. Davener, both Caldwell, brought the civil action which demands a jury trial to determine damages. They said they bought property at a substantial cost for the express purpose of subdividing it.

They claim they have been damaged by the delay, have to pay interest on their property and have lost sales of property.

TF child 'improved'

BOISE — A Twin Falls child was reported in improved condition today at a Boise hospital following treatment for a head wound suffered in a gunshot accident Saturday.

An official at St. Alphonsus Hospital said Emery Lynch, Jr., 2, had been moved from the intensive care unit and was classified in fair condition. The spokesman said there was no indication when the child might be returned to Twin Falls.

The Lynch child had been listed in critical condition when he was flown to Boise Saturday evening for treatment of the gunshot wound.

Sheriff's officers said earlier the child was injured when he apparently discharged a .22 pistol in a holster while playing in the family home. Officers said the gun reportedly fell to the floor and discharged as the child attempted to remove it from the holster.

The bullet entered the child's face and passed through his head.

Gem education experts evaluate TF high school

TWIN FALLS — Education experts from several colleges and high schools in southern Idaho are in Twin Falls through Friday for a 10-day evaluation of the high school.

Frances Risk, director of educational audits, Idaho Department of Education, heads the 28-member evaluation team which arrived Wednesday to begin a thorough inspection of the local school, its program and staff.

Risk said during the three-day study the experts will meet with every teacher, visit classrooms and interview students at random Wednesday morning the group began going over an "self-evaluation" report compiled by teachers and administrators of the school.

"We will determine how accurate and fair the self-evaluation report appears and will look into areas of question brought up by the faculty and administrators here," Risk said.

During today and Friday the group will be interviewing teachers, inspecting the school plant, talking with administrators and with students.

"We do not select the top students or the most active, but chat with them at random in the hall and try to obtain a good cross-section for interviews," Risk said.

Before the 28 members disband for their own college or school positions Friday, a group meeting will be held to decide what recommendations and recommendations are to be made.

Within about three weeks, depending on work loads — a written report will be prepared by Risk, based on the reports of the 28 member committee, and sent to the Twin Falls school board and high school board.

"The evaluation is made by the state department — once every 10 years, in fulfillment, the self-evaluations the schools make annually in connection with membership and accreditation in the Northwest Association of schools.

Risk said within the past few years evaluations have been completed in each of our Magic Valley schools in Blaine, Pocatello and Kimberly.

Among things given study by the team are the overall view of the community as it relates to the high school programs; and if the school meets community needs; the philosophy of the school; all curriculum areas; student activities such as organizations, clubs and student government; extra curricular activities; guidance service; library facilities; the staff and if teachers are qualified and suited to the subjects they handle; and teacher eligibility.

Jerome water rates increase

JEROME — Water rates for Jerome residents will increase with the March billing, which will be received May 1.

The Jerome City Council Tuesday night adopted an ordinance increasing the charges to water users. The increase is set at $1 over previous rates for users inside the city limits and $2 for users outside the city.

The council also adopted the uniform building code after only one reading by suspending the rules pertaining to three readings of the ordinance.

The new code replaces the national building code which the city had previously used. The ordinance includes all future updates of the building code and specifies that three copies of the code will be available at the city clerk's office for public scrutiny.

Adoption of the code by the city would have been inevitable due to a bill recently signed by the governor which makes the uniform code mandatory for the state of Idaho as of July 1.

It was pointed out that the gas, electrical and plumbing codes now being used by the city may also have to be changed in order for the city to be certified by the state as required by the legislation.

Marshall Everheart, councilman, recommended the city wait and see what will be required by the state.

"All through this session no one said anything about what this is going to cost. The code will have to be enforced by the state and don't be surprised if it ends up costing half a million dollars a year to finance the commission," Everheart said.

A third bill adopted by the council provides for the installation of stop flow valves in sewer lines of residences that are built with floor drains. The bill also removes the city's responsibility if a sewer line backs up into a home if the resident had been told to install the valve.

The first reading was given to a bill pertaining to sick leave and vacation pay recently adopted by the council. The bill requires that employees to accumulate up to 18 days of vacation time and 30 days of sick leave.

Ed Evans, public works director, was granted permission to advertise for bids for three different types of gravel purchase gasoline and diesel fuels and sandblasting of the city swimming pool.

It is anticipated it could cost the city up to $3,000 to fix the pool. Everheart questioned the necessity of spending that much money for one year's use of the pool.

"I keep hearing all over town that the chamber of commerce is going to build us a new swimming pool for the bicentennial. If the present pool is going to be torn down in a year, why spend the money?" Everheart said.

Evans pointed out that it would take longer than one year to build another pool, noting that federal funds to finance the project couldn't be received until the fall of 1976. He said the present pool is leaking so badly that it is difficult to hold water in it over the three-foot level.

"There is so much paint on the pool that the only way we can find the cracks is to have it sandblasted," Evans said.

Court eyes Blaine

HAILEY Fifth District Judge Douglas Kramer may "move his court" from Gooding County to Blaine County.

Kramer said Friday the large case load in Blaine County demands the attention of a judge located nearby. The same legislation this year amended the provision that Kramer must reside in Cassia or Gooding County. The new bill allows Kramer to establish resident chambers in Blaine County.

Kramer is also administrative judge in the 10th district. He said new office space must be available if he is to move here. Some administrative aides will be required, he said, and office space needed for them.

Currently the bottom level of the Blaine County courthouse is being remodeled. However the second story of the courthouse where Kramer and Magistrate Dan Alban are located is old and in need of repair.

Conflicts will arise soon, Kramer said, when the magistrate court and the district court schedule trials for the same day. There is presently space only for one trial at a time. Alban will be required to hold a magistrate trial in his small office if two trials are scheduled simultaneously.

Several lawsuits have been dismissed on the grounds of a new judicial building to be erected in Hailey. The new building has $290,000 in a building fund to allocate to the construction but must secure matching funds before the construction can begin.

An unidentified source said Monday the county is searching now for Law Enforcement Planning Commission funds to help erect the building.

New Jerome courthouse annex dedicated

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — The new annex of the Jerome County courthouse was dedicated in special ceremonies this week.

On hand for the dedication were John Hender, Boise, Idaho State Law Enforcement Director; Frank Finlayson, Idaho Falls, director of Region 11, Idaho State Law Enforcement Planning Division; Sal Anderson, architect for Sunberg and Associates; Idaho Falls; and Jerome County commissioners.

The new $300,000 annex was recently completed and houses a modern maximum security jail which is jointly operated by the Jerome County Sheriff's Department and the Jerome City Police Department.

The two law enforcement agencies also maintain offices in the "new" section of the courthouse.

Both Hender and Finlayson commended the sheriff and city police departments, county commissioners and Jerome City Council for their foresight and progressiveness in combining the departments into joint facilities, communications equipment and record system.

Finlayson said that by combining the two agencies Jerome County will have a much better police force which is better informed on what each department is doing.

"As soon as the two agencies get over the initial impact and start getting along, they will be able to serve this community with a 24-hour-a-day protection. The economic outcome in the years to come to the average taxpayer could save enough money in 10 years to pay for the new building," Finlayson said.

5th grader takes gripe to President

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ten-year-old Walter Ford believes "prices should lower or wages should higher."

He particularly misses the afternoon cookies he used to get.

But unlike most people, including adults, he didn't just talk about it.

The Twin Falls boy wrote the President. And the fifth grader at Washington school has a reply on White House stationery.

The answer signed by Holland L. Elliott, director of correspondence for President Gerald Ford, includes the usual platitudes of appreciation and voices the hope of President Ford that "with the help of all Americans and our government doing its part, we can overcome the problems."

"The Twin Falls boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Ford, 1987 Sigrid Ave., makes some specific comments about the economy. He said he'd like to see writing was not prompted by my project in school. Indeed, his teacher, Mrs. Norene Williams, doesn't even know about it. His father said he thinks Walter got the idea from hearing his folks complain about the rising costs of gas and groceries.

It used to be, Walter wrote the President, last Feb. 9, that he looked forward to coming home from school and eating homemade cookies.

"But now there is nothing like that to look forward to because the price of sugar and flour is too high. We can't afford it or can't even buy cookies at the store," the boy wrote.

"His grandparents live only 500 miles away, but because of the high gas prices we can't see them," Walter wrote, asking pointedly "So why can government officials fly 5,000 miles every two days or whatever?"

"We are just as equal as they are," he continued. "Besides, they are the ones saying 'Save, guys.'" and so

"Everybody else can live on it and so can everybody else, because they have to. No one can quit," Walter wrote philosophically.

But he makes a pungent point: "Of course rich people can't feel it (high prices) at all. But I am

10. I've got 70 more years to live my life. My brother is 4 years old; look how long it is gonna be for him to take these high prices.

The student also let the President know he is against deficit spending — at least on a small scale. He said he and his friends, Robert Sherman, "both don't buy things until we can save up what we have to, just like grownups."

Recently Walter lost his dog when the animal was hit by a car so he's now saving his money to be able to buy another dachshund.

The boy hopes to become a veterinarian and he likes math best in school. He said social studies and language tie for his next favorite subjects.

Walter Ford, 10, writes letter to President markets

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market, concerned recently on upward pressures on interest rates, opened lower Thursday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a lesser the past three sessions, was off 1.25 to 759.31 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 305 to 201, among the 634 issues crossing the tape.

Wall Street has grown deeply concerned over the amount of money the Treasury is having to borrow to fight the recession but subsidizing the money market. This has driven bond market prices lower and put upward pressure on rates.

A number of corporations have postponed or canceled planned debt offerings and if the trend continues, it could force large corporations to curb spending plans. Overseas investors led the first quarter rally interrupted by a strong recovery rally last year.

Just as the money market opened, the Labor Department reported its wholesale price index declined for the fourth consecutive month in March.

US food prices decline slowly

By JEANNE LESSEM
UPI Food Editor

An oversupply of beef potatoes, dry beans and split peas and plentiful supplies of 12 or more other staples promise lower retail prices this month for American shoppers.

But how much lower is anybody's guess. Marketing specialists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture said prices for the first four items have been declining slowly.

Ground chuck remained about 89 to 99 cents a pound in most of the 24 cities covered in UPI's weekly survey of 17 basic grocery items. It reached a high of $1.19 in Jacksonville, Fla., and a low of 59 cents for the third week in a row in Los Angeles.

In Birmingham, 20-cent-apound hamburger prices were the lowest for the third successive week, followed by 41 to 49 cents a pound in Dallas, Phoenix, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Jacksonville, Fla.,

Little Rock and Philadelphia. But they hit a high of 84 cents a pound in Portland, Ore., which also reported the week's high of $1.84 a pound for loin end pork chops.

The same cut of pork was below $1 a pound in only four cities—Cincinnati, Dallas, Little Rock and New York. To make it go further, try dried bean casseroles such as a French cassoulet made with one or more kinds of pork and sausages, or a German-style casserole of pork chops, sauerkraut and potatoes.

This is also a good week to make your own french fries any place but Phoenix, where a one-pound package of the frozen, hot-and-eat variety cost only 21 cents. The high of 61 cents a pound was reported in Honolulu. Food prices generally are high there because most products are imported. Frozen french fries sold mostly for 39 to 48 cents a pound elsewhere.

Cow's owner wants rematch

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Farmer John McAdams Wednesday asked for a weather forecasting rematch between his "dumb old cow" and the federal government.

Brimmer, a 4-year-old half Holstein and half Brahma heifer, lost a contest against the National Weather Service. McAdams blamed tickle Texas spring weather and his own carelessness for Brimmer's loss.

"I kinda shook them all up, anyway," said the crusty farmer-trader park owner.

"All that high-priced machinery they got, you know."

McAdams, 58, has used his cattle for 20 years to forecast the weather. Brimmer lost throughout the 30-day contest, by as much as 21 points, until the very last round.

McAdams said he has used his cattle for weather forecasting for 20 years. He won't be specific about what signs old black Brimmer gives to let him know what's coming, saying only he watches subtleties at the cow's posture.

He said Brimmer would fare better in the rematch this summer.

The last contest began in mid-January when McAdams told government meteorologist Irwin Holbrecht of Houston a cow with her tail in the wind or a hog lured to its jaws in mud were better weather fore-casters than Holbrecht's equipment.

Residents given first job choice

MIDDLETOWN, Del. (UPI) — The Green-Giant Co. has announced it will hire unemployed Delaware residents rather than migrant laborers for $16 jobs picking asparagus for $2.25 an hour. Each job lasts 10 weeks.

Arthur H. Benson, state director of employment services, said Green-Giant has offered to hire up to 100 residents in the past but never before on such a scale.

Whether all the jobs will be taken remains uncertain. About 30 persons signed up Monday, the first day of the program, at the three state employment offices handling the jobs.

The asparagus harvest is to begin in mid-April. The company said applicants who are hired can expect to work six days out of seven for eight to 10 hours a day.

The minimum wage is $2.25 with fast pickers able to earn a maximum of $3. The exact wage is based on how much asparagus is actually picked.

A daily charge of $3.35 for meals will be withheld from each worker's wages, the company said.

If the fashion magazines seem a bit out of touch with you this spring, the hand crocheted square neckline of this off-white top will let you, perhaps, identify with a softer era. Even Bobbie Brooks blushes at the warmth our tops radiate.

Severe feed crisis confronts US cowmen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Livestock producers, already suffering from falling market prices and rising costs, will soon face the worst feed crisis since the 1930s, according to the American Forage and Grassland Council.

"Unless cattle producers plan expanded forage programs for the next few months, many will face economic disaster," said W. J. Malme, AFGC president and an extension agronomist at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln.

Due to the unusually late winter and spring, thousands of producers have jaded their cattle and now have two calf crops at farms where there ordinarily would be only one. Also, he said, many cattlemen went into the winter with overgrazed pastures and inadequate supplies of hay and silage due to last summer's drought.

Add to this the fact that many cattle producers reduced feed purchases because of rising grain and protein supplement prices and there is the potential for serious feed supply problems, Malme said. He urged an all out emergency program to increase supplies of homegrown feed.

Malme recommended the following general measures to increase forage production:

- Seed small grains in permanent pastures, a step that can be taken for another 20 to 60 days depending on location and weather conditions. Small grains require four to six weeks from seeding to produce available forage, and the forage may be grazed or harvested.
- Small grain seed supplies are abundant.
- Overseeding legumes such as clover, alfalfa and birdsfoot trefoil, to increase the volume and quality of summer forage. Overseeding may be done now. Legumes require six to eight weeks from seeding before they can contribute significantly to the food supply.
- Planting summer annual forage crops, such as sudans, sorghum-sudans crosses and millets. These may be planted after corn planting time for use as temporary pastures or harvested forage. Seed supplies are below normal, however, and these crops usually require four to seven weeks after planting to reach harvestable stage.

Fertilizing permanent pastures. Although expensive, fertilizer is still one of the best buys for increasing forage supplies. The AFGC said the most effective type is no nitrogen on grass pastures, just as the spring comes in beginning, which is now in many areas.

Better grazing management, primarily rotating animals from one pasture to another. Instead of letting them graze at random, helps utilize more forage per acre, the AFGC said.

Also, farmers could harvest and store surplus forage instead of allowing ungrazed areas to grow to maturity, or when time it has relatively low feed value. The AFGC said "hundreds of silos now standing idle on beef farms could be brought into use this year" for storage of hay crops and small grain silage.

The group added that beef cattle will probably be grown to heavier weights on forage in the future before being moved to feedlots.

Stock role cited

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — An American National Cattlemen's Association spokesman said Tuesday cattle play a vital part in the western economy, turning useless land into productive grazing pastures.

"Over 80 per cent of the feed for beef consists of roughage, crop residues and byproducts not edible by man," ANCA president Gordon Van Vleck told the Western Governors Conference.

"Without rugged animals like cattle this land would contribute absolutely nothing to the nation's food production."

He said the land — about one third of the total land area of the United States — was too rough, dry and infertile for cultivated crop production, but it does supply cattle and sheep with their feed requirements.

Van Vleck said cattle did not require as much grain as some officials claim. He said in 1974 and 1975 cattlemen used only 1.8 pounds of grain for each pound of edible beef.

"Add that includes all beef, grains fed, on-feed and partially fed," said Van Vleck. "Some reports, claiming as much as 20 pounds of grain are used for a pound of beef, are absolutely ridiculous," he said. "We couldn't even stay in business if that was true."

Bullets rip Rockets

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Elvin Hayes scored 31 points and grabbed 14 rebounds Wednesday night as the Washington Bullets romped to a 112-85 NBA victory over the Houston Rockets.

The win enabled the bullets to maintain their half-game lead over the Boston Celtics for the best record in the league's eastern conference.

Washington is 58-21, with three games to play; Houston completes its season at 41-41.

Hayes, who has scored 30 or more points in his last three games, had 24 by halftime as Washington held a 52-49 lead.

Nick Weatherston and Mike Rorford hit back-to-back baskets midway through the third period to give Washington a 73-61 lead, and Houston never got closer than seven the rest of the way.

Nets batter Memphis

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Julius Erving's 26 points and 12 rebounds in 29 minutes paced New York to a 119-97 triumph over the injured hampered Memphis Sounds Wednesday night and allowed the Nets to stay even with Kentucky in the race for the ABA's East championship.

Kentucky beat Virginia 88-81 Wednesday night and now the N.B.A. and Colonels, tied with 57-26 records, reverse opponents for the regular season finishes Thursday night. If they finish the season tied, Kentucky will host New York in a one game playoff Friday night.

After spotting Memphis a 9-4 advantage in the opening two minutes, the Nets made the Sounds look like high school competition. Even without Billy Paultz, sidelined with a minor muscle pull in his left thigh early in the game, the Nets had little trouble running up a 21-point lead, 60-39, by halftime.

Celtics edge Braves

BOSTON (UPI) — Dave Cowens' 22 footer with 52 seconds remaining clinched a 107-103 win over the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night, insuring a showdown match against the Washington Bullets.

Boston and Washington, deadlocked in the race for the best record in the NBA, meet here Friday night, in a game which may determine the league's top team.

Cowens led all Celtic scorers with 23 points, Buffalo's Bob McAdoo, the NBA's most valuable player, was game high scorer with 25 points.

Forward Don Nelson's 10 points, 17-in-17 on the Celtics paced Boston's last period comeback from a 68-66 deficit.

It was Nelson's 20-foot jumper who put the Celtics on top to stay 78-76 after 3:57 of the final period. Buffalo closed to 89-88 when Jim McMillan dropped in two free throws with a little less than three minutes remaining.

Colonels stretch streak

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The Kentucky Colonels, paced by Ted McClain's 17 points, led all the way Wednesday night and stretched their winning streak to eight games with an 88-81 victory over the Virginia Squires.

The triumph enabled Kentucky to remain in a tie for first place in the American Basketball Association's Eastern Division with the New York Nets, who defeated the Memphis Sounds 119-97 Wednesday night in their seasonal Memphis Thursday night, while the Nets visit Virginia.

The Squires, who already have lost more games than any other team in the ABA history, dropped their 19th game in their last 20 outings and their seventh in a row although the slow paced contest was closer than most of the games between the two teams this season. The Colonels now have beaten the Squires the last 14 times the two teams have played.

Pistons gain playoffs

DETROIT (UPI) — Bob Lanier scored 26 points playing on a torturous sore leg that knew Wednesday night to put the Detroit Pistons into the playoffs of the National Basketball Association with a 97-89 win over the division leading Chicago Bulls.

The Pistons' win eliminated defending NBA champion Milwaukee and assured Detroit of a second straight playoff appearance for the first time in 12 years. The Bucks will finish last in the Midwest Division.

Two scoring bursts enabled Detroit to build up a 44-point lead, 69-55, after three quarters and the Pistons held on in the final period to clinch a first round playoff berth against Seattle.

John Mengert scored 12 of his 14 points, 10 of them on free throws, in the fourth quarter to lead Chicago at bay.

Suns topple Lakers

PHOENIX (UPI) — Gary Melchioni hit a jump shot with four seconds left Wednesday night to give the Phoenix Suns a 108-106 win over the Los Angeles Lakers.

The Suns, who moved two games ahead of the Lakers, who are at the bottom of the Pacific Division, were led by Charlie Scott with 25 points and Mike Bantom with 24.

High scorer for the game was Laker forward Cazzie Russell with 27. Zelmo Beaty and Brian Winters each had 19 for the Lakers.

Sonics nip Kings

SEATTLE (UPI) — Fred Brown tipped in his own missed shot with six seconds left Wednesday night to give the Seattle SuperSonics a 99-96 NBA win over the Kansas City - Omaha Kings.

It was the fourth win in a row for the play-off-bound Sonics. Nate Archibald hit for 12 of his 14 first half points in the opening quarter as the Kings opened up an eight-point lead of 35-25 but Seattle bounced back, scoring the first eight points of the second quarter. The lead changed hands repeatedly before the Kings took a 55-54 halftime lead.

Spirits shatter Q's

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The Spirits of St. Louis, with Freddie Lewis, Maurice Lucas and Marvin Barnes combining for 74 points, outlasted the San Diego Conquistadors 134-110 in an ABA game Wednesday night.

Lewis had 27, Lucas 24 and Barnes 23 as the Q's, playing possibly their last game in San Diego, suffered their 10th loss in a row, their longest losing streak of the year.

Colts sign pair

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts Wednesday announced the signing of draft picks John Bushong from Western Kentucky and Royce McKinnery from Kentucky State, bringing to five the number of draft choices the Colts have signed so far.

Bushong, 23, a 6-foot-4, 230-pound defensive end from Tomkinsville, Ky., and a two-time Ohio Valley Conference all-star pick, was the first of the Colts' three choices in the eighth round.

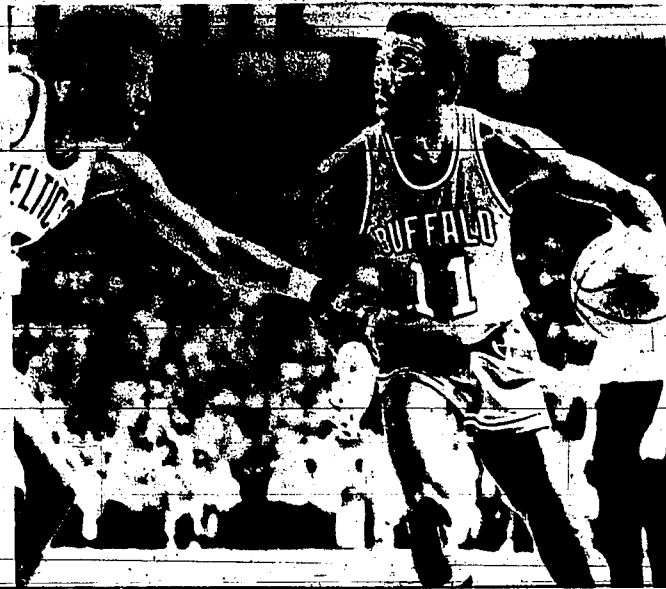

Budget kills coach

DENVER (UPI) — Jim Balfanz said Wednesday he was fired as director of the U.S. Nordic Ski Team because he was critical of a $49,000 cut in his budget for this year.

Balfanz, who was fired Tuesday, will be replaced by Mid-dlebury College coach John Bowser.

"They plan to cut another $30,000 out of the budget next year," Balfanz, 34, said. "So they got me out of me because they knew I wouldn't still for it."

"I've never failed to take any part of my job and they couldn't even tell me why I was being fired," he said. "I see it as an attempt to drive the Nordic programs into the ground."

Miller hopes to regain touch, in Greensboro open

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, who saw his golf game drop from sensational to sour last week, hopes to put some fire back into his game this week in the Greater Greensboro Open.

With the Masters barely a week away, Miller changed plans and decided he would play here rather than practice after missing the cut, for the first time in almost two years, at last week's Heritage Classic at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

Miller's change of plan automatically made him a favorite for his $225,000 tournament that begins Thursday, but most of the other top pros may make a similar decision. Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Gary Player, Arnold Palmer and defending champion Bob Charles, a lefthander from New Zealand, are all competing. So is Lee Elder, who next week will become the first black ever to play in the Masters.

Most notable absentee is Jack Nicklaus, who has won in his last two tournaments, Hubert Green, U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin and Bruce Crampton have also opted to practice for the Masters rather than play in the GGO.

Miller, winner of three tournaments already this year, set a PGA record for season winnings last season and heads the money list this year. He's already won $120,000 so far and could pocket another $45,000 by capturing the GGO.

The GGO is traditionally held a week before the Masters and is traditionally played by rain.

But despite a reputation for foul weather, the tournament has been a success for its organizers, having become a major spring social occasion in golf-crazy North Carolina. Advance ticket sales this year were down between 12 and 14 per cent, but a slightly bigger purse and good conditions on the greens and fairways of Segethfield Country Club have again attracted a solid field of competitors.

The course stretches 6,700 yards through Carolina pines, with just 170 yards left to the clubhouse, the course was toughest of this year's event. Most fairways are about 45 yards wide now, compared with 60 or 70 yards in the past, and some new traps have been installed.

Sam Snead, who has won the GGO eight times in his 62 years, said the traps make a couple of holes more difficult, but the fairways cause no big problems.

"The narrower fairways don't make much difference right now because the rough is low," he said. Snead deserted the greens this year as the "best I've ever seen them."

As usual, rain is the forecast. But the showers are predicted to end Thursday, and the remainder of the week is expected to be fair and mild.

Broncos begin spring football drills Saturday

BOISE — Boise State head football coach Tony Knapp and his staff will greet 76 players Saturday morning, April 5, as the Broncos begin their annual spring drills in Bronco Stadium. Practice will start at 9:30 a.m.

The spring session will end for the Broncos on May 3 with the Alumni Game in Bronco Stadium. The Alumni Game, which will feature the 1975 Broncos against former Bronco players, has its kickoff slated for 6 p.m. in the stadium.

Knapp has three main objectives for the spring drills. "Our main objective is to learn the techniques and skills it takes to run the 1975 offense and defense and a little of the kicking game."

"As coaches we have prepared plans within each of these three areas and on paper they seem to fit the personnel, but this is another thing we mean to test. No offensive concept or defensive concept can be very effective unless the players can execute the fundamental skills involved," Knapp added.

The Broncos have 38 letterman back from the 1974 Broncos team which was 10-2 in the year and won their second consecutive Big Sky football title. They won the Big Sky Conference championship with a perfect 6-0 league mark — the second time in two years they had escaped from the league was undefeated. BSU also took part in the NCAA Division 11 playoffs and lost 20-6 to the eventual national champion Central Michigan.

One of the major problems facing Knapp is the replacement of all American quarterback Jack McMillan. "Personnel evaluation is another major objective and it is especially crucial in the quarterback position. How close can we come to replacing the skills of Jim McMillan the way he played the game?"

There are five prime candidates for the number one quarterback spot. They are upcoming senior Lee Hickey, junior Greg Stern, junior Todd Morgan, freshman Dee Puckett and junior Rick Lewis.

"We would like to balance our offensive attack by being able to run the ball more effectively through the use of power and option concepts and much of this desire will depend upon the strength and skill of our offensive line and running backs," Knapp said.

He added that he was very pleased with the depth at the running back and offensive line spots and expected them to rise to the challenge.

Defensively speaking, Knapp said, "We need to replace the great skills of players like Rolly Woolsey, Pat King, Mike Campbell, Loren Schmidt and Ron Davis in the secondary, as well as the strength and power of the Dan Franklin, Mark Clegg and Chico Mills from the down four."

The Broncos have five defensive starters back in linemen Pete Proumele and Sala Misa, Jr. along with Hnebacker Gary Gorrell and defensive backs Gary Rosolowich and Clint Sigmund. Gorrell was also the leading punter in the Big Sky Conference last fall. "Gorrell puts our punting in good hands but Clint Sigmund needs help in manning the other kicking chores. We hope to find someone in that area," Knapp said.

Bartow to be new UCLA coach

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Illinois Coach Gene Bartow has gained his release from a five-year contract and will become the new head basketball coach at UCLA, replacing just-retired John Wooden. UCLA Athletic Director J.D. Morgan announced Wednesday.

"I regard Gene Bartow as one of the nation's outstanding coaches who is a fine proven teacher of the sport of basketball," Morgan said. Bartow will officially take the reins of college basketball's dynasty at a news conference at 11 a.m. PDT Thursday in Los Angeles. UCLA and Illinois officials said.

In replacing Wooden, he will be stepping into the shoes of a legend.

The coach of college coaches 61, announced his retirement Saturday afternoon, two days before his team advanced to the NCAA finals in San Diego to win his 10th national title in 12 years. In his 27 years at UCLA, Wooden coached the Bruins to 620 victories.

Bartow built a national power at Memphis State and was selected coach of the year by the National Association of Basketball Coaches in 1972-73 while guiding the Tigers to a runner-up finish to UCLA in the national championship.

He has 15-year coaching record of 230-140 and was considered the savior, for Illinois' faltering program when he took over the post a year ago, but reportedly became disenchanted with recruiting restrictions placed on the school by the NCAA.

The punishment was for recruiting violations committed while Harry Schmidt, Bartow's predecessor, was in command. It limited Bartow to just three athletic scholarships for each of the next two seasons, less than half the normal number. Bartow did not lead policy to hold a coaching until he left Memphis State to take the job.

The Illini finished with a disappointing 8-18 record this season, and in a tie for last place in the Big Ten.

In Champaign, Ill., Illini Athletic Director Cecil Coleman said he released Bartow from the last four years of a five-year contract because he felt it would not be a good policy to hold a coach in a position when he had another

There was speculation that Coleman had appointed a new coach even before Wooden made his announcement. But Coleman said UCLA Athletic Director J.D. Morgan contacted him on Monday and asked permission to interview Bartow, who was attending the tournament in San Diego.

Coleman said he granted the permission and Bartow called him late Monday night and asked to be released from his contract.

Kentucky lands prospect, frets over pros' bid

NEW YORK (UPI) — High school star Hill Willoughby of Englewood N.J., called by one college coach "the top forward prospect in the country," is about ready to sign with Kentucky.

Willoughby, a consensus high school All-America, has been hotly pursued by a number of colleges, but the skinny, 6-7 senior had narrowed his choice to North Carolina, North Carolina State, Cincinnati and Kentucky.

Now it appears he'll become a Wildcat.

"I would hope that's true," said Kentucky Coach Gene Bartow in a telephone interview with UPI from Lexington, Ky.

"He's a super player—the top forward prospect in the country. He would greatly enhance our competitiveness next year."

Hill didn't actually come out and say Willoughby, who sported a 31.6 scoring average this season at Dwight Morrow High School, would definitely sign with Kentucky. Hill couldn't if he had, he had violated an NCAA rule forbidding a high school player from signing a letter of intent with a particular college until April 9.

But the Kentucky coach certainly didn't rule that out.

"I don't know who our competition is," Hill said. "Many, many schools have been recruiting him. But he visited our campus at the end of the season and saw us play a game and he expressed interest in our program and our style of play."

"I haven't talked to him in about three weeks—since he was down here—in a telephone interview with UPI for that has been in constant contact with him."

Evaluating Willoughby's possible role next season, Hill said "he'd have an excellent chance to start. He'd want a chance to earn his spot. But if you know we've got our starters at that position (Kevin Grevey, a second team All-America, and Bob Guyette) due to graduation."

AUTOGRAPH SEEKERS surround John Miller, 27, after he leaves the 18th green in carding a four-under par 67 in the pro-am prelude to the greater Greensboro Open Thursday. The blonde Californian decided at the last minute to come to Greensboro and admitted his poor showing last week in the Heritage Classic was the main reason.

Rich get richer

FAR HILLS, N.J. (UPI) — To no one's surprise, the two men who need the least help — Johnny Miller and Jack Nicklaus — are running 1-2 in the points race that amounts to legal exemption from all qualifying for the U.S. Open golf championship.

Miller, with three tournament victories this year, has 22 points prior to this week's Greater Greensboro Open and Nicklaus, with two victories, has 26 points.

The five points leaders from Jan. 1 until the close of Open entries on April 30 are exempt from both local and sectional qualifying rounds, which will reduce the anticipated number of entries from more than 4,000 to 150 for the tournament proper. However, both Miller and Nicklaus already have exemptions from qualifying for the Open, which will be played at the Medinah Country Club, Medinah, Ill., June 19-22.

Four men who can use the exemption also are among the leaders. Bob Murphy is third with 15 points, Pat Fitzsimons is tied for fourth (with Lee Trevino) with 10, points and Gary Groh and Gene Littler are among four players deadlocked with 10 points. The others not to are J.C. Snead and Larry Ziegler who, like Trevino, already are exempt from all qualifying.

Murphy, Fitzsimons, Groh and Littler do have exemptions from local qualifying, but unless they finish among the top five in the points race they will have to engage in sectional qualifying before gaining a berth in the U.S. Open.

Florida urged to purchase race tracks

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — A Business Regulation Board advisory committee said Wednesday the state of Florida should buy and run the five thoroughbred racing tracks it has "trapped and plundered."

The board scheduled a public hearing April 16 in Miami on proposed legislation to create a Thoroughbred Racing Trust of Florida to be governed by a five-member authority.

The authority, to be patterned after the New York Racing Association, could sell bonds to buy the tracks, which would be exempt from local taxes.

It is the most far-reaching of several plans to give relief to the horse-racing industry, which is in serious trouble because purses are not competitive with other states.

Board chairman Richard Pollat says the plan as a longrange solution which would take several years to implement. Membership of the advisory committee argued, however, that it should be pushed through this year's legislative session.

When board member James W. Kynes Jr. said the state should not act hastily in any move to restrict free enterprise, O.M. — Dennis Phipps of the state racing industry said it has already been destroyed in the horse racing industry. "I've already been destroyed in the free enterprise system in this industry already by taxation. You can't rape and plunder every day."

Phipps, a nationally known horse racer from Miami and official in the New York authority, said the non-profit authority is the only way to save horse racing in Florida. Mitchell Wolfson of Miami, who took the lead in drafting the plan, said the owners of Calder, Tropical, Hialeah and Florida Downs racetracks have indicated a willingness to sell and that the authority could operate successfully with the four.

Idaho's anadromous fish runs require attention

By ROYCE WILLIAMS
Idaho Fish and Game Dept.
Restoring salmon and steelhead runs in Idaho is not going to be done overnight.

"During the last year, no other single sphere of activities in the department has received as much of my own personal attention as have anadromous fish matters, and I plan to continue this way as long as necessary."

Joe Greenley, director of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, made this pledge in his report on the state of wildlife resources in Idaho.

Saying the state's wildlife has reached "a critical point," he used the anadromous fish as an example of an unbalanced habitat changes, occurring in obvious and subtle ways over a period of time.

"Although the outlook this year is not good for other steelhead or salmon, due to very low survival of young," Greenley said, "we'll be watching the dam counts daily and provide a fishery on 1975 if possible."

He said the outlook for 1976 is better. Runs "should be more nearly normal since survival of downstream migrants improved greatly in 1974." After 1974, Greenley said Idahonians should begin to see results of corrective measures underway now. Greenley lists the corrective measures as:

• Correction of deficiencies at Columbia and Snake dams, such as installation of flipflaps to curb nitrogen supersaturation and screening to keep downstream smolts from being sucked into turbines "where they are killed by the millious."

• A Columbia Basin-wide water storage and river-flow regulation scheme to prevent low flows causing high losses of fish at turbines and slowed fish migration.

• High flows, on the other hand, produce more nitrogen supersaturation.

• A temporary plan for collecting smolts at the uppermost dams on the Snake and tracking them around the state to determine their survival below Bonneville Dam during 1975 and 1976.

However, Greenley said, "We strongly advocate positive efforts to make the rivers once again safe for natural migration."

— Work on a plan in which the Corps of Engineers compensate the department by hatchery production for losses of steelhead and salmon. The plan, expected to reach Congress by November or December, would return 40,000 each of adult salmon and steelhead to Idaho.

• Intensified efforts to change the Columbia River Compact to give Idaho a voice in decisions made on anadromous fish.

"We're not reason for optimism here," Greenley said, "since the U.S. House of Representatives has passed legislation to admit Idaho as a voting member."

"If this legislation, and similar bills introduced in Oregon, fail, Greenley said, "We are working closely with the Governor's office and the Attorney General on a lawsuit AGAINST OREGON and Washington to admit us to the compact and assure its application of the fish we produce."

At this writing, the complaint is being printed by the Governor's office. The complaint will be filed with the U.S.S. Supreme Court, unless

Washington and Oregon act to include Idaho in the Columbia River Compact.

"We see no immediate change in direction for the Indian gill net commercial fishery," Greenley said because rulings "by two federal judges have put fisheries management agencies at a distinct disadvantage in regulation of the Indian fishery."

"With these anadromous fish, as well as other species, it is going to take a well planned effort to restore and maintain viable populations in the future," Greenley said.

Only 33 steelhead have returned to Pahsimeroi

WENDELL. Only 31 return spawning steelhead have shown up at the Pahsimeroi weir, giving substance to the Idaho Fish and Game Department's expressed fears over the Columbia River commercial Indian fishing and nitrogen problems.

C. R. "Bub" Quidor, superintendent of the Niagara Steelhead hatchery, said on comparison of last year's returns, the returns were less than 10 percent of last year. "It had started their final run up the Pahsimeroi River."

"But there are other considerations," Quidor hastened to point out rather than point on all black putrid. "The water temperatures today, Wednesday, were six degrees colder than at this time last year. They (the steelhead) just won't move when it's that cold."

Quidor said "it's still early in the run, but we should have more than this. Based on dam counts and past experience, Quidor said the department had figured about 100 normally would return this year."

So far, the department has stopped six returns and collected 100 runs. Helping somewhat is the fact that of the 31 returning fish, 21 are females.

Meanwhile, the Niagara hatchery has returned 47,000 pounds of smolt to Ellis, where they will be planted in the Pahsimeroi. About one and one-half million smolts again have been raised at Niagara and these hopefully will return in good numbers in three years.

Aaron, Brave fans ready for opener

By United Press International
Both Henry Aaron and the fans of Milwaukee are more than ready for the start of a new baseball season.

Aaron, who already holds the career home run record of 723, unleashed his first homer as a Brewer Wednesday as Milwaukee coasted to a 5-1 exhibition victory over the San Diego Padres at San City, Ariz.

Almost on cue with Aaron's homer, the club's ticket director pronounced from Milwaukee that the first opening day sellout in history is in prospect for Milwaukee County Stadium April 11.

"I think it's been a great thing for us," said Dick Hackel, crediting the acquisition of Aaron for the apparent sellout. "I don't know how to guess, but I shudder to think what would have happened without Aaron, the economy being the way it is—I think we have a good ballclub under Aaron, but he's created great interest in the team. There's been no lull this winter."

More than 35,000 opening day tickets have been sold for the home opener against Cleveland and, when all 39,538 reserved seats have been sold, Hackel said he will put 10,000 bleacher tickets on sale.

Another key player who switched leagues during the winter has yet to indicate he's ready for the start of play, but Dave McNally still will be on the mound for Montreal on opening day, according to Expo manager Gene March. McNally, acquired from Baltimore, suffered through his third consecutive poor performance Wednesday when he allowed 11 hits and four earned runs in six innings against Cincinnati. He'll open against St. Louis Monday night.

Johnny Bench had a two-run homer in the first inning for the Reds but Gary Carter responded with a three-run blow in the bottom of the inning as the Expos pulled out the game, 6-5, at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Steve Busby also making his last exhibition appearance before his opening day assignment, was a lot more impressive as he allowed only two scratches in five innings when Kansas City blasted the Chicago White Sox, 5-0, at Sarasota, Fla. Busby will open for the Royals against Nolan Ryan and the California Angels Monday night.

Hal Metzke hit a two-run homer for Kansas City, which also got hitless relief pitching from Doug Bird and Dave Leonhard.

In other exhibitions:

Rick Monday hit back-to-back homers off Don Sutton and Mike Marshall to lift the Chicago Cubs to a 9-4 victory over Los Angeles. Gary Thomasson, with a homer and a single, figured in two San Francisco rallies as the Giants overcame California 6-4.

Kentucky happy with year despite finale

ATLANTA (UPI)—Weep no more my lady for the Kentucky basketball team.

The Wildcats went so much further than even their most ardent supporters could have expected that losing to UCLA in the NCAA finals distracts only a tad from their finest season in many years.

The Wildcats won four games in the NCAA playoffs, and that's all it would have taken in past years to win the whole ball of wax. And, don't forget, that included beating the nation's top-ranked team, previously unbeaten Indiana.

A lot of people felt Kentucky had the size and depth necessary to beat UCLA, and the Wildcats almost pulled it off.

In retrospect, the Wildcats probably would like to turn back the clock to 6:23 left in their game with UCLA.

That was the moment when, having reduced a 10-point deficit to just one point, 76-75, Kentucky had two free throws coming up, the second a technical, and were to get the ball out of bounds at mid-court.

If Kevin Grevey, the star Kentucky senior who scored 34 points in the finals, had made the two free throws and the Wildcats could have followed up with a field goal, they'd have had a three-point lead.

Instead, Grevey, who hit four out of five free throws during the season, missed both of his tries. The Wildcats lost the ball on a turnover, and UCLA took advantage to widen its lead to three points.

That six-point turnaround marked the end for Kentucky. But, as stated earlier, waste no tears for the Wildcats. The year before, Kentucky had posted a 13-13 mark, only the second time in more than 40 years that the Wildcats hadn't had a winning record.

Joe Hall, the man who succeeded Adolph Rupp, went off last Spring and rounded up five outstanding high school prospects, including three who were 6-foot-10 or bigger.

All five of those freshmen played in the NCAA finals.

Hall rotated those three big men—Rick Robey, Mike Phillips and Don Hall. A fourth freshman, 6-5 Jack Givens had been the star of Kentucky's semi-finals victory over Syracuse. And the fifth, 6-6 James Lee, also saw action.

One has to believe that Kentucky will have another outstanding team next season. Especially if Hall decides to let Robey and Phillips all the game time as double pivots.

UCLA has been in a class winning 10 national championships in that span is a record that probably will stand forever.

But the Kentucky Wildcats have done pretty well themselves with four cham-ionships and two second-place finishes over the past 28 years, winning the Southeastern Conference title 18 times in that span.

Going all the way to the NCAA finals has to be especially gratifying for Joe Hall, a former Rupp assistant who played on the Kentucky team that won the NCAA championship in 1949. Hall was a man on the spot when he succeeded Rupp three years ago.

His first team won the SEC championship but lost to Indiana in the Midwest Regionals and when his second team only broke even there were cries for Hall's scalp from alumni long accustomed to Rupp's winning ways.

This past season not only saved Joe Hall's job, it got his contract extended for at least four more years. It also brought Joe Hall part of the way from under the Adolph Rupp shadow.

You won't find Hall crying about that loss to UCLA. He's too happy about the good things that happened to Kentucky basketball this year.

Consistency is key word in Bears' outlook for new year

CHICAGO (UPI)—New coach Jack Pardee has seen game films of all the Chicago Bears games of 1974, some of them twice, and had a more detailed description of his primary objective for training camp.

Pardee, like his predecessor Abe Gibron, noticed numerous

"little mistakes" which kept the Bears in trouble almost constantly—and like his predecessor, he had no quick cure for the fault other than experience.

The new Bears coach introduced his staff and new general manager Jim Finks presented his staff to the Chicago press Wednesday.

newcomers in all, and Pardee spoke about the problems faced by the new group, attempting to restore a once proud National Football League franchise to a position on top of the league.

Pardee offered no quick solution, but he and his coaching assistants will open their preseason skill sessions Thursday at the new Bears training camp, Lake Forest College, and he said it would be concentrated mental workouts for the first two weeks.

"We might call in a few players from time to time," he said, "for workouts." The quarterbacks and some other backs normally would come in early and we'll get them in early for workouts. One thing about the new location, we can get some of the players in from time to time if we want to."

Quarterbacks, as usual, could be the first problem Pardee has to solve, and he said that veterans Bobby Douglass and Gary Hull would find the job wide open. He was doubtful that either Joe Barnes, a rookie who stuck last year, or Bob Avellini, a No. 6 draft pick from Maryland, would be contenders for the starting job although he figured both would get a chance.

Pardee said he had looked at films of Bears games with Detroit and Minnesota more than once since those teams would have a continually this year and both are in the same division with the Bears, calling for two games with each of them. Green Bay, with a new coach, Bart Starr, might be changed a little, Pardee said, although he didn't expect great changes since Starr was on the packer staff two years ago.

TOP novice girl skier in the Intermountain region is Barbie Lierman, Hansen. She returned this week from Salt Lake City where she won first place in her division in a giant slalom national. The race was among skiers selected as the best in each division on the basis of winnings this season.

Nuggets can't go full bore in finale

DENVER (UPI)—If the Denver Nuggets don't get too excited about Thursday's regular season finale with San Diego, coach Larry Brown will understand.

"I want us to play good basketball and to work," said Brown, who in his first year at Denver turned the franchise from a last place team into the Western Division champion. "That I've got to understand that our players are going through, it's anticlimactic."

Thursday's game will be the 94th this year for the Nuggets—84 regular season games and 10 preseason contests. And the contest means nothing, as Denver has already assured itself of the ABA's best record with a 64-19 mark going into the game.

The Nuggets have also beaten San Diego nine times already, losing only once. And they clinched the ABA West title back on March 11. So even though they play San Diego, the one team that was eliminated from the West playoffs after an 84-game schedule—the Nuggets will probably have their minds on Sunday's playoff opener with Utah.

"Against San Diego we hope to be able to work on a lot of things that will prepare us for Utah," said Brown. "In some aspects it can prove more valuable than a practice."

Brown, who has assured, will use a lineup similar to the one that played in Tuesday's 126-115 win over Indiana. In that game, none of the Nuggets 11 players saw less than 15 minutes playing time for more than 25.

The only real question mark for Denver is forward Byron Beck, who has been under the weather with a cold. Fatty Taylor appears recovered from a hamstring pull that limited him to just one minute of action in eight games before last weekend. Ralph Simpson and Mike Green are having only minor problems with Taylor back injuries.

"We just have to hope everyone is healthy by the weekend," said Brown. "I don't worry about anyone getting injured. The way you do that is by taking it too easy and being too cautious."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Decide what it really is you want to accomplish and then make definite plans to gain your aims. Be more cheerful.

WATER SPLITTING (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to solve an annoying problem early in the day. Steer clear of a higher-up who is not in a good mood right now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure you don't jump into new interests at the expense of old and tried ones. A monetary problem can be handled easily now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to start making money early in life. Send to the right schools that can equip your progeny for success in business. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life. A desire for the social will come later in life. The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely UP TO YOU!

what's what

When it's the husband but not the wife who earns the family income, it's usually the husband but not the wife who makes the big decisions. A client asks if the reverse is true when the wife but not the husband earns the family income. No, oddly enough. Scholars with the Florida State Research Council studied the matter--And they contend the husband has considerably more voice in family decisions when his wife is the breadwinner than when she isn't. Why is a mystery. Maybe it's because the wife is too tired at night to argue.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q. "Isn't the tonsillectomy the most frequently performed surgery?"
A. Not anymore. Abortion is now.

Q. "IS THERE ANY state in the union where the temperature has never gone up to 100 degrees F.?"
A. Not a one.

Q. "WHAT was the first U.S. automobile sold abroad?"
A. That was a steam car made by Eli Ransom Olds. An outfit in India bought it in 1893.

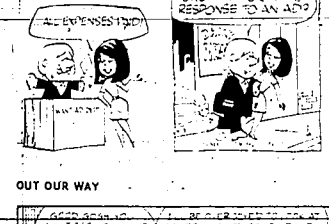

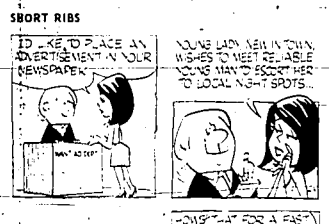

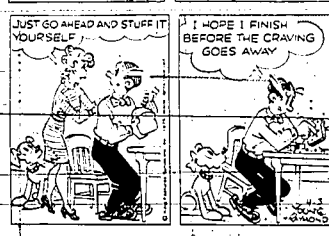

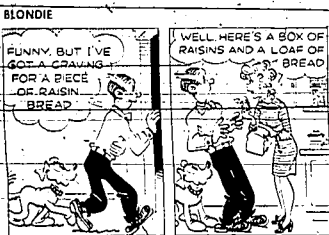

FREQUENTLY reported is the contention that people with blue eyes are less sensitive to pain than are people with eyes of any other color. Client asks what eye color indicates the greatest sensitivity to pain. That's brown.

MURROW Are you old enough to remember that newscaster of the name named Edward R. Murrow? Once his compatriots at CBS in New York City formed a "We Don't Think Murrow is God" club. Each member was elected a vice president, but the presidency itself was left open. They said they were reserving that spot for Mrs. Murrow. But when Murrow himself found out about it, he applied for the office.

ARGUMENT continues over the origin of the word "mafia." Now contends one more client: "Your explanations of mafia are wrong. Mafia is a contraction of 'Manus Inmista' which simply means 'Black Hand' in Italian."

AUSTRALIAN newspapers run daily columns under the headline "Drunk and In Jail." In it go the names of all the DWIs arrested there.

Snow measurements gain

TWIN FALLS — Snow measurements on watersheds surrounding the Roseroweth and Salmon creeks showed a marked increase over last month and 11 to 12 per cent of normal water content.

Twin Falls Soil Conservation District snow measurements for April 1 show, with a normal runoff condition, there should be a good supply for both tracts in the coming season, conservation district officials said.

About 20 inches increase in snow depths over a month ago are shown in this month's report at a time when total depths are generally moving downward.

The Magie Mountain course reports 47 inches of snow and 22.5 inches of water compared to 59 inches of snow and 23.4 inches of water at this time last year and a 19.6 inch water average over the past 32 years.

Other courses in the order of this month's measurement of snow and water last year at this time, and the average water content, include: Deadline Butte, 40 inches of snow, 27 inches water compared to 69.9 snow and 29.2 water last year and 23.2 21 year average; Shoshone Basin, 27 and 10.2 inches, 16 and 7.1 inches and 5.6 inches, 10 year average; Hummingbird Springs, 40 and 26.4 inches, 7.6 and 15.4 inches and 25.5 inches, 20 year average; Pole Creek, 80 and 29.3 inches, 6.6 and 21.9 inches, 20.3 inches, 4 year average.

Average tax up for US farmers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American farmers paid an average property tax of $2.56 per acre during 1973, a 2.5 per cent increase over the previous year, according to an Agriculture Department report on farm real estate taxes.

The total 1973 farm property tax bill totaled $2.5 billion, the report said, but the tax increase lagged behind gains in farm real estate values which were up 12.8 per cent over 1972.

Also, the report said, farm taxes actually declined in terms of their share of a farmer's personal income. In 1972, farm real estate taxes were 6.1 per cent of personal income while in 1973 that figure dropped to 4.2 per cent.

Department economists said the tax declines relative to income reflect the fact that there was a profitable year for farmers. Taxes per acre on farm real estate were higher in 36 states during 1973, down from 42 states that imposed higher taxes on farm property in 1972.

In assessing future prospects of taxation, the report said the demand on property taxes to fund public education appears to be lessening since enrollment has been declining nationally since the 1971-72 school year. This means a decreasing demand for teachers and lower school expenses.

But the report said the demand for other local governmental services continues to expand, and the property tax is likely to remain the most important revenue source for local governments. "Perhaps the most important unknown," the report continued, "to influence future property tax levels is inflation. Continued high rates of inflation could cause the farm real estate tax to resume a rapid rate of increase nationally, even though in its absence other factors would dictate a much more moderate rise."

Fertilizer hearing set

BOISE (UPI) — Public hearings are planned in Boise April 10 by the State Agriculture Department on proposed revisions of commercial fertilizer regulations.

Elmer Russell, Boise, administrator for the plant industries division, said the revisions are designed to update the existing regulations as applied to "bulk blends."

"These changes essentially deal with the 'guaranteed analysis' of bulk fertilizers, fixing the responsibility for the amounts of plant nutrients in the product with the dealer, who may be mixing fertilizers from two or more manufacturers," Russell said.

The proposed amendments to the regulations state that a "customer-mixed formula shall be deficient if the overall index-value of the fertilizer is below 97 per cent of the guaranteed analysis."

Water same

SALMON — Water content of snow on the Williams Creek snow course near Salmon is about the same as average.

Average water content of the course March 28 was 14.7 inches, which compares to the 31-year average of 14.17 inches.

Average snow depth at the course March 28 was 49.4 inches.

New TF extension aide introduced

TWIN FALLS — Celia Black, new Twin Falls County extension home economist, was introduced at a meeting of the County 4-H Council Tuesday night.

Mrs. Wilma Southwick spoke briefly concerning her experiences at the Western 4-H leaders' Forum in Casper, Wyo.

President Ken Day, announced that district leader training will be April 24 at the College of Southern Idaho.

Vivian Pyry, 4-H urban and district 4-H extension agent, discussed scholarship applications and their deadlines.

Members voted to support six scholarships to 4-H Club Congress and 36 scholarships to 4-H Camp. The Club Congress scholarships will be $25 each and the camp scholarships $5.

Harvey Skinner and LuAnn Howard, Builders' Club members, briefly outlined current Builders' Club activities. Skinner said club members are seeking yard work, housecleaning and any other odd jobs to give to the needy.

The meeting was held in Washington, D. C., in August. Anyone needing to hire someone for such work may contact Miss Terdy at the county extension office.

Following the business meeting, the township and district group committees discussed leader training and plans for the year.

Cold aids orchards

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — A prolonged winter may save blossoms in western Idaho orchards from spring frost this year.

Heatise of the weather blossom time is 10 days to two weeks behind normal and fruit growers in Emmett Valley and Sunny Slope are wondering if the past three weeks will constitute the annual frost or whether the season is yet to come.

Normally, spreads bloom about March 20, but there's almost April in it and apples aren't in bud until April 25.

"It looks like we're in this to two weeks behind normal," Richard Summs, manager of Summs Fruit Ranch at Sunny Slope, said.

Edwin Nichols, owner of the Nichols Fruit Ranches on Emmett, agreed.

"This cold weather has retarded buds," he said.
