US retreats, energy meet scope widened

PARIS — The United States lost the opening skirmishes of the Paris producer-consumer energy meeting, bowing to Arab insistence on including non-oil commodities.

U.S. officials, with Europe determined not to offend oil-exporting nations, signaled an approaching strategic retreat from historic American insistence on free world markets.

At Algerian and Venezuelan insistence, the United States and other free-trade delegations agreed to scrap the title "energy conference." Leaving open what to call the session summoned by French President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing.

Undersecretary of State Charles W. Robinson, leading the U.S. delegation, said the current was to minimize "the way out to destroy OPEC. Our aim here is to work together."

OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) snubbed his invitation to send an observer because "his obviously is no longer an energy conference," Algerian Ambassador Au Challa asserted.

Challa claimed "near unanimous" support by non-oil participants for Algeria's call for a special conference this year to "take up the problems of all raw materials (including oil) and the problems of development."

Robinson said the conference "should be concentrated on the specifics of energy and directly related matters, and not become diluted with parallel discussions."

But he also said the United States "re-emphasizes the need for imaginative new initiatives" dealing with "all commodities," Washington is "prepared to discuss those other issues elsewhere" including at the United Nations special session in September, he said.

A whole series of continuity conferences, is under study with the possibility open for separate but parallel talks on oil and other raw materials.

Algeria pulled together the seven non-oil industrial countries here — the others are Saudi Arabia, Iran, Venezuela, Brazil, India and Zaire.

The three consumer representatives were obviously Japan and the European Common Market took a soft line on all nine market nations keeping tabs on their success as spokesmen, Emilio Grannier.

U.S. officials said one of Robinson's major chores is to bring together four frequently conflicting U.S. government agencies on his delegation — state, treasury, National Security Council and Federal Energy Administration.

However, Dutch sources said the tone inside the meetings was less strident than in public where Algerian Challa belittled oil consumer stress on conservation measures "while critics are dying" because of other commodity crises.

European officials also hinted the U.S., West German and other free-trade partisans may be planning to go into a world conference that wouldn't be allowed to accomplish much.

U.S. officials insist, however, that they expect a fall energy meeting later this year, with up to 30 participants, they said they believe this conference can "do something concrete and positive."

Miners protest

WELL WISHERS wave as some of more than 600 coal trucks roll through Coburn, Va., bound for Washington, D.C., where a demonstration is planned at the Capitol today in protest against new strip mining legislation. The miners say the new rules will put hundreds of independent coal mining companies out of business and leave thousands without jobs. (UPI)

San Jose substation bombed
SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Three explosions early today ripped a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. substation which was bombed only 11 days ago.

Two transformers were heavily damaged in the blasts and minor damage was done to a third transformer. Service to up to 4,000 customers was temporarily shut down, PG&E spokesman Paul Girard reported.

Thieu uninjured by palace bombs

SAIGON (UPI) — A young South Vietnamese air force pilot returning from a combat mission bombed President Nguyen Van Thieu's presidential palace today in an apparent rage against Thieu's decision to give up much of South Vietnam without a fight.

Thieu and his family escaped unhurt but at least three other persons were killed and four wounded.

Thieu called the bombing an isolated attack aimed at killing him and said it was not an attempted military coup. He vowed to stay in office.

Authorities feared that it was an attempted coup. The 24-hour curfew on the capital and airborne troops were placed on a special alert.

The curfew was lifted after six tense hours during which Saigon resembled a ghost town.

Rumors immediately linked Gen. Nguyen Cao Ky, former premier and air force commander with the pilot, but Ky was quick to deny responsibility. He did say in a statement issued through his office that Thieu should step down for the good of the country.

Military sources said the pilot, North Vietnamese-born Lt. Nguyen Thanh Trung, 26, may have landed his F5 Freedom Fighter somewhere in Communist territory and defected although his whereabouts remained a mystery tonight.

The sources said Trung's family was from the Da Nang area captured by the Communists 10 days ago and that he was furious over Thieu's tactics of abandoning the northern and central quarters of the country to the Communists without a fight.

The bombing attack was reminiscent of a similar bombing attack by two South Vietnamese air force pilots in February, 1962. Their Skyraiders inflicted heavy damage on Independence (Continued on p. 2)

'Babylift' stalls

CLARK AIR BASE, The Philippines (UPI) — A chartered DC10 jumbo jet today flew 302 Vietnam war orphans to new homes in the United States, but Operation Babylift was stalled in the wake of the bombing of the Saigon presidential palace.

Four Air Force C-141 Starliner jets arrived from Saigon throughout the day carrying a total of 51 civilians but no children.

Air Force officers at this sprawling base 30 miles north of Manila said they had not been told the babylift had ended, and the operation was ready to resume at a moment's notice.

Several Americans arriving from Saigon said that movement in the capital was difficult because of the curfew imposed after the bombing.

Senate rejects

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today rejected a proposal to pay reparations to people with all interests in a federal order causes their wells to play out too fast.

The Senate voted 61 to 24 on the proposal by Sen. Dewey F. Bartlett, R-Okla., to amend a bill giving the president standby authority to deal with energy resources.

"This would be a precedent that would come back to haunt not only the federal government but state governments," Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said of the amendment.

Bartlett complained that the bill provides no way to compensate people who would be hurt by certain federal orders. The specific section of the bill he was attacking would let the federal government order, for a short time, that oil wells produce faster than their rated efficient flow.

Boret, Khmer Rouge aides meet
By United Press International

Thai and Cambodian officials disclosed today that Cambodian Premier Long Boret had met with Khmer Rouge representatives in Bangkok Monday in what could be the beginning of a negotiated settlement of the five-year-old Cambodian war.

First official word of the talks came from Thai Foreign Minister Chirathai Choon Havan who told of the four-hour meeting.

Hoffa appeals
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Teamster president James Hoffa Monday appealed restrictions on his parole which keep him out of labor union management until 1980.

His attorney told U.S. District Court that Hoffa was "thrown out of prison in 1971" under the guise of presidential clemency that was harsher than his original punishment for jury tampering and mail fraud.

Church wants nominee scrutinized
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, today called for close Senate scrutiny of the nomination of former Wyoming Gov. Stanley K. Hathaway as interior secretary.

Church said he was troubled that Ford "has picked a man whose nomination has caused deep concern among conservationists throughout the nation."

Agency's refugee fund lack assailed
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., today severely criticized the head of the Agency for International Development for not providing substantial funds to the United Nations to help refugees in Communist areas of Vietnam.

Pressed by Kennedy in angry tones at a congressional hearing, AID chief Daniel Parker said current legislation prohibits sending funds to North Vietnam. He acknowledged that President Ford was reviewing "the matter and therefore he declined to comment."

"Would you support an amendment to strike that prohibition," Kennedy asked.

Parker tried to avoid a direct answer. "This is a complex set of policy decisions now under consideration by the National Security Council," he said.

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., interjected: "The American people want to get aid there to people for whom we are largely responsible. There is a mechanism in being (the U.S. specialized agencies) to give help. Six to eight months from now it may not be important."

Kennedy, in repeated questioning of Parker, complained that the United States had designated only 6 percent of its refugee assistance money to the U.S. High Commission for Refugees and the Children's Emergency Fund, which worked with North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Kennedy also criticized what he said was the Train hurts woman

SHOSHONE — Louise Sahala, 59, Shoshone, was injured when she apparently walked into the side of an eastbound train at about 8:25 a.m. today.

The accident occurred at the Highway 93 crossing in Shoshone.

Mrs. Sahala was taken to St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome, by ambulance where she is reported in fair condition.

Persons near the scene of the accident said there were two trains meeting, one westbound and one eastbound. They said apparently Mrs. Sahala was walking along the track near the eastbound train while the trains were meeting and saw only the westbound one. Witnesses said they thought Mrs. Sahala sustained a broken left shoulder.

Police said they would not have any definite information about what happened until Mrs. Sahala can be questioned.

Canada's jobless rate soars
OTTAWA (UPI) — Statistics Canada reported today that Canada's unemployment climbed to its highest level in 14 years in March, gaining .94 per cent to reach a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.2 per cent.

The government statistics bureau said 840,000 Canadians were out of work last month.

The adjusted figure was almost 2 per cent above the 5.4 per cent recorded in March, 1974.

Kennedy also criticized what he said was the administration's reluctance to spend the full $11.6 million in refugee assistance and $10 million for child care during the current fiscal year.

Parker replied that on April 7, AID had allotted $25.5 million for refugee relief during the current fiscal year and that as of April 8, it had allotted $41.6 million out of an appropriation of $41.1 million — thereby incurring a deficit.

"Aw! Come on, Mr. Secretary!" Kennedy said. "You've obligated all that — in the last 24 hours."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., today introduced an amendment to provide $200 million in immediate humanitarian assistance for refugee victims in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

TF school trustees promise to start kindergarten classes by this autumn

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "If we don't get kindergarten in our schools, I'm gonna go back to Utah," a Twin Falls woman said Monday night.

It looks like she may have to move.

After telling the Twin Falls School Board with probing — obviously pre-kindergarten — questions at a public meeting in Robert Stuart Junior High, the more than 200 persons attending discovered that the trustees are in their corner.

Although the school board called the meeting to "listen to the public," each of the five trustees stood behind the lectern on the school stage to pledge support for a kindergarten program and effectively promise that 5-year-olds will be attending public classes this fall.

The large crowd attending the two-hour meeting also came away with a strong indication of how the program will be set up:

- all five elementary schools probably will be used for the classes, requiring one or two rooms in each facility. That plan would put more 5-year-olds "in easy walking distance" and permit them to "get accustomed" to the school they will attend as first-graders, Supt. George Staudacher said.
- kindergarten students probably will attend half-day sessions throughout the academic year. Staudacher called the program plan a "suggestion," but trustee chairman Dr. Howard Ronk made it semi-official when he said the school board had heartily agrees with Mr. Staudacher's suggestion.
- until the trustees voted their support for kindergartens, many school patrons at the meeting fired challenges indicating they didn't know where the board stood on the issue.
- "Let's have kindergartens, let's have them now and let's have them good," said Vern Barnes.
- If the school board doesn't start the program, it would appear that you're afraid of the challenge," another person said.
- "You should really take the bull by the horns," a man added.
- "I'm, violently for kindergartens," another said.

A kindergarten supporter drew a big laugh when he said "It's been mentioned that we shouldn't rush into kindergartens. Maybe we shouldn't. After all, Idaho was only the 49th state to put in kindergartens."

The recently adjourned Idaho Legislature appropriated $3.2 million for a statewide kindergarten program, but gave school districts the option of not starting the classes for 5-year-olds. Kindergarten measures had been defeated the previous four years.

Ronk said the trustees probably won't make a final decision at their regular meeting tonight. However, it might come at a special board meeting this month, he added.

Ronk repeated his statement that the trustees must take final action by May 1 because the funding plan for a kindergarten program must be included in the district's annual budget. Budget hearing will be held in May, he said.

As the meeting closed, Ronk asked those who supported Staudacher's plan to stand up. With few exceptions, everyone rose. (Continued on p. 3)

There's a statement demanding an attempted coup was broadcast at frequent intervals tonight on Saigon television, along with statements by military leaders and top government officials that the bombing did not represent a coup attempt.

Political analysts here said they felt the palace bombing could speed Diem's exit from power, but the president declared in his speech to the people that "I am determined to remain in office."

Speakers in Saigon for the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government demanded knowledge of the palace bombing and Hanoi Radio carried a straightforward news report, quoting Western news agencies.

Slaying reported

KIMBERLY — A former Kimberly resident, Claudia Miszczenko Kocourek, 36, was killed in her Alameda, Calif. home March 27.

Mrs. Kocourek was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Miszczenko, Kimberly. She lived here until about seven years ago when she moved to California.

Her father, who just returned from California with her three small children, said his daughter was shot in the head and died in her home in Alameda. He said she was reportedly shot shortly after she arrived home from work on March 27.

Her husband, Billy Kocourek, 37, a chief petty officer in the US Navy, was arrested and charged with her murder. Miszczenko said the couple had separated some time ago and recently resumed living together.

News accounts stated Kocourek apparently called police asking for an ambulance telling them he had shot his wife and then fled the home, going to the home of friends where he was arrested 13 hours later. News reports said he forced his friend's family from their home and barricaded himself there until arrested. (Obituary, this page)

"I do not ask that 'bad secrets' be suppressed," Colby continued. "In fact, I have exposed some of our mistakes in the past. I also believe that 'non-secrets' should be exposed. But I do make a plea that 'good secrets' be respected in the interests not of intelligence but of our nation."

Colby did not define what he meant by "good secrets." His words implied that "bad secrets" involved agency errors or mistakes and that "non-secrets" were facts known to newsmen that might be kept secret by a complaint press.

"I do not ask that the healthy adversary relationship between the press and government, and our government's intelligence structure, should be abandoned," Colby said. "I only ask that the Americans protect our nation's sources in the same way that a journalist protects his."

There have been important changes in the function of intelligence, Colby declared. No longer does intelligence consist only of stealing a military secret so that a general may win a battle, he said. Today it involves the nation's far negotiations to remove or reduce military and economic threats to the nation by mutual agreement instead of by armed force, he added.

The United States, in Colby's opinion, has the best intelligence service in the world, but he warned that it is endangered. Intelligence needs some secrets, Colby said. CIA agents abroad are questioning the agency's ability to protect the privacy of their work.

Many Americans who have helped their country's intelligence service are concerned that they might be swept into a climate of sensationalism and that their business abroad might be destroyed by a revelation of their assistance to CIA, Colby said.

Several cooperative foreign officials have expressed concern to him, he said over

IPUC seeks treaty

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission wants the United States to negotiate a treaty with Canada to provide safeguards against uncontrolled prices for natural gas.

Commissioners said Monday that a statement of position had been filed with the Federal Power Commission recommending an international treaty to control the volume and price of natural gas supplies.

Idaho commissioners contend that contracts between Canadian suppliers and pipeline companies have broken down, prices have tripled and supplies curtailed over the past year.

It said before approval is given to one of two plans to bring natural gas to the 48 states from Alaska that the State Department and Congress negotiate a treaty to provide safeguard on prices.

One proposal before the Federal Power Commission — the Gas Arctic Group Plan — would run a 48-inch gas pipeline from Alaska through Canada to supply both Canadian and American markets.

The second plan, a proposal by El Paso Natural Gas, calls for construction of a pipeline to the Alaskan coast where natural gas would be liquefied and then shipped to west coast ports, bypassing Canada.

The IPUC is asking that no action be taken on the proposals until a treaty can be worked out between the two countries because contracts between the Canadian suppliers and the pipeline companies setting prices were not being honored.

Many persons favored the use of Washington Elementary School advanced classes, which would allow reduction of classroom loads in the district.

If you're looking for solutions, you should look at Washington School for sixth graders," said Steve Carter, Twin Falls. "Although I know it's a traffic hazard, I think we're going to have to do it."

Washington will be vacated this fall when the new Sawtooth Elementary School opens.

The board members, however, said Washington would be unacceptable for any school function.

"The traffic situation around Washington makes it a poor site for elementary classes and even a poorer site for kindergartens," Ronk said. "We want to eliminate Washington altogether as a school."

Some persons suggested that the older portion of Washington be blocked off and the newer section be used for kindergartens. The five-year-olds could enter and leave the building from the rear, avoiding the traffic problems of Blue Lakes Boulevard and Addison Avenue, they said.

The use of churches or privately-owned buildings for the program also was discussed because of stringent and expensive regulations governing public school facilities. According to trustee Ruth Day, the rules cover everything from "bathrooms to fencing."

A few persons were concerned that a kindergarten program would further crowd classes in the upper grades.

Bonnie Arp, Twin Falls, said she supports private kindergartens because the children can pray and recite the pledge of allegiance. Also, the taxpayer isn't charged "year after year after year" for private kindergartens, she said.

Another woman claimed that a public program would "definitely disrupt, if not destroy" private kindergartens.

"We really do have a very good private system," she said. "Competition keeps the prices low and each school tries to be better than the others."

Prisoner transferred

SHOSHONE — Donald LeClair, 38, was taken Monday to St. Louis, Mo., by a federal marshal to answer to a charge of probation violation.

The prisoner, required close observation by law officers in Lincoln County when he swallowed three pieces of wire — each five inches long — and had to be taken to the Jerome hospital where it took three hours to remove.

LeClair has been in the Lincoln County Jail for the past two weeks after being picked up for allegedly burglarizing St. Peter's Catholic Rectory.

While at the hospital a security guard was provided by Lincoln County law officers.

PGI cites price gains

By CRICKET BIRD Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An officer of the Potato Growers of Idaho, said growers have reached a breakthrough point with the signing of the first grower-approved contract last week in Washington.

T. C. McClain, PGI vice president of bargaining, also predicted "firmer ground" for potato prices.

McClain called the recently signed contract between Washington state potato growers and Lamb and Weston Co., a "breakthrough" for growers. The contract is the first grower-approved agreement signed this year, McClain said.

Under the Lamb and Weston contract, growers will receive about $3.42 per hundredweight for average crop potatoes, "40 to 50 cents higher than what our processors have indicated they would pay us in Idaho," McClain added.

McClain also said recent jumps of 25 and 50 cents per day in potato prices make it "look like we've seen the bottom of these cascading prices and we're entering firmer ground."

Negotiations between the PGI bargaining team and several potato processors over 1975 contracts have broken down, with processors saying they'll take their offers directly to the growers.

McClain criticized the processors for offering what he called "unrealistically low prices" to the growers. He said Idaho producers traditionally have negotiated contracts that are 50 cents to $1 higher than contracts in Washington because of their higher quality product.

McClain said about 1,900 of the state's 2,400 to 2,500 growers are PGI members.

"If every grower honors his commitment to PGI," McClain said he did not believe processors could meet their contract quotas without a PGI-approved contract. Officials of some processing firms have said they feel their contract quotas may be filled without PGI members.

PORTLAND (UPI) — The staff of the Federal Power Commission has called for further testimony regarding the Bonneville Power Administration's 27 per cent rate increase, BPA Administrator Donald P. Hodel announced Monday.

The April 2 FPC staff motion follows a March 31 agreement between FPC staff counsel and BPA legal representatives waiving all need for further hearings and documentation. Hodel said the FPC's action was "arbitrary" and "unexplained."

"In our view, this may jeopardize the power supply of the Pacific Northwest," he said.

The FPC gave one-year interim approval Dec. 19 to the proposed five-year rate increase, ruling that hearings would have to be held before an administrative law judge.

John C. Whitaker, under secretary of the interior, contended Dec. 31 that no hearings were required. "If (the FPC) can reject the rates for good and sufficient reason, but it cannot restructure or determine them," he said.

"As far as we're concerned the rate increase is on and good until Dec. 1979," Hodel said.

How many general rate increases has Idaho Power Company had in the company's history?

How many voluntary general decreases?

The answer to both questions is the same:

FOUR OF EACH

A general rate increase or decrease is one affecting all classifications of electric use. General increases were effected in 1974, 1971, 1963 and 1952. General decreases were taken in 1946, 1944, 1941 and 1939.

In addition, there have been nine other voluntary reductions in some classifications, making a total of 13 voluntary reductions. The voluntary decreases produced far greater reductions in average cost per kilowatt hour than were added by subsequent increases.

For Idaho Power residential customers, today's average cost per kilowatt hour is substantially lower than the cost prior to 1939. With all four increases included, it's less than it was ten years ago.

SOON WE SHALL BE ASKING FOR ANOTHER INCREASE

To anyone aware of the energy situation, it should come as no surprise that costs are going up. Our area is in a far better position than those dependent upon petroleum-based electric power. But the necessary addition of thermal to an all-hydro base has increased both construction and operating costs substantially. And we, too, are fighting inflation.

Even though we must continue to ask for higher rates, you still will be living in a "favored area" as far as electric costs are concerned.

Something's rotten in South Vietnam

Something's rotten in the state of South Vietnam. Day after day we read the grim dispatches from Asia detailing the collapse...

What shill message probably stirs guilt among many Americans who wonder whether this is really the "peace with honor" President Nixon promised...

Let's look at some clues. The first clue is the Vietnamese army. A month ago it supposedly numbered about a million men...

Today we are told there are only a few divisions, perhaps 10,000 troops, manning the defenses of the Saigon enclave...

Little number two: There has been surprisingly little fighting going on.

With a few exceptions, the South Vietnamese have not been fighting Communist units.

The pattern has been panicked pullout by South Vietnamese troops and civilians. The northern cadres then just walk in and take over.

This is no blitzkrieg, no invasion from the north. It is a collapse from within the south.

According to numerous eye-witness accounts, the typical pattern of the collapse of the South Vietnamese army was as follows...

Next the soldiers discover they are alone. They too panic, abandoning the civilians.

Soldiers mob planes sent to evacuate refugees, clawing their way aboard. Only the strongest soldiers make it.

Few Vietnamese civilians do. When there is no escape, the frightened South Vietnamese troops go on a rampage of drunken looting, rape and murder.

The one thing they do not do is fight. The conclusion is hard to escape: The South Vietnamese state is a fraud. It is rotten at its core.

More than a nation it is the fabrication of a clique of military officers and politicians who have learned the language but not the substance of Democracy.

They used the language of Democracy to win the hearts and minds of the Americans but not of their own people.

Americans gave 55,000 lives and $30 billion in a sincere effort to help the people of Vietnam.

If Americans are to blame for the fall of South Vietnam it is only because they finally looked the Saigon clique in the eye and saw it for what it was.

The tragedy of Vietnam for Americans is we learned the truth so late.

Revitalizing US justice system mandatory step year saw an increase of 11 per cent in violent crimes, of 17 per cent in property crimes. The number of serious offenses increased by 13 per cent in large cities, by 20 per cent in the suburbs...

the part of our present system of criminal justice. "What is wrong with the system? We must understand," says Levi, "that an effective criminal justice system has to emphasize deterrence. There are many causes of crime, but among them is the failure of our system to move quickly and effectively to detect and punish offenders."

reaction is exemplified by Gary Willis' brooding reflections in The New York Review of Books. Willis sees the prison system as tota future. He speaks for liberals, but many conservatives, for different reasons, will concur in his conclusion.

Now, lessee, Mr. Thieu - I'm sure we can salvage something here...

Spending tax rebate proves no problem for him

Los Angeles Times - The day Malcolm Dundee's $200 income tax rebate was scheduled to arrive, a large crowd gathered on his lawn.

A TV correspondent pushed a microphone in front of the mailman's face and he said, looking into the camera: "Neither snow nor sleet nor heat nor day would stop me from delivering this tax rebate to Malcolm Dundee of 110 West Zilberford Drive."

his hand. "Did you ever think we'd see the day," she whispered to him, "when we'd get a tax rebate?"

"I'm from the bank. Dundee owes this for interest on a loan we made to him to pay his income taxes."

Word had gotten out that Dundee was to be the first person in Clarion Falls to get the rebate, and the town was full of excitement.

The crowd broke into a cheer and the band struck up "Pennies from Heaven."

"I dreamed about it," Dundee whispered back, "but I never thought it would happen."

"A fourth man pushed the banker away. "Not so fast. I'm from the county real estate tax assessor's office and this check must go for the surcharge we put on Dundee's house."

It stopped at the curb and the mailman got out holding the familiar brown government envelope with the green check peeking through the cellophane window.

The mob reluctantly opened a path on the sidewalk. Dundee was beaming, and his wife squeezed

"They what are you doing?" the mail man said. "This check belongs to me," the man said. "Who are you?"

"Over my dead body," said another man. "I'm from the state income tax bureau. We have a lien on all tax rebate Dundee gets from the federal government."

Dundee had made his children get dressed up in their Sunday clothes, and he and Mrs. Dundee stood nervously on their porch awaiting the arrival of their check.

"Here it comes!" someone shouted as the mail truck pulled up. "Deliver it, deliver it, deliver the check!"

"Another man grabbed part of the check from the electric company representative. "Well, I'm from the telephone company and, this check belongs to us."

"The men were now rolling on the ground trying to get their hands on the brown envelope. They were joined by a collector from Group Health, the gas man, a water inspector and a lawyer who helped fill out Dundee's tax return.

Correct the first time. The AFL-CIO has a force the House Education and Labor Committee received $28.4 million of this total.

"I've a million-dollar poll by the Opinion Research Corp. in Princeton, N.J., shows that the average citizen, whether or not he belongs to a union, takes a dim view of Big Labor's attempt to take over control of government workers."

"Be careful," Dundee cried, "you'll tear it." A third man joined the melee and grabbed the envelope.

"It's out of my hands," Lowball said. "We voted you a rebate to spur the economy but we can't tell you how to spend it."

Problem with largesse

WASHINGTON - Today, you are George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO.

'Life Line' director searches for buoying funds

DALLAS - "Life Line," whose right-wing advocacy of "traditional American values" boomed forth daily from more than 500 radio stations five years ago under the aegis of H. L. Hunt, the oil billionaire, has fallen on hard times. Recently the 16-year-old anti-Communist radio program was being carried by fewer than 100 stations and "Life Line's" executive director and commentator, Melvin T. Munn, was searching for financial resources to keep it going.

up a short butt that he had fished out of the ashtray. "I feel our best years are ahead of us," he said. Munn says he is an absolute believer in old-time Americanism—a balanced federal budget, God, Country and family. These homilies provide the basis for the 15-minute sermonic-type radio speeches he has recorded for "Life Line" for 19 years, although much of what Munn says on the radio is ordinary, even his delivery makes it seem as if he is pronouncing that tomorrow has been canceled. The current slump in the "Life Line" program is not because there is no longer an audience for his viewpoint, Munn said recently, but is a result of the decision by Hunt to get out of the food business. One of the most prosperous of the conservative programs pouring from radio stations during the 1960's, "Life Line" began having troubles in 1971 when Hunt decided that his food-canning business was not making any money, and sold his facilities. Hunt's canned food products, H. L. H. and Alma brands, had been "Life Line's" biggest sponsor and accounted for probably two-thirds of the program's income. Hunt's programs supported "Life Line" on so many stations that the names became more or less synonymous to the general public. "Actually," Munn said, "Mr. Hunt was just one of the members of the board of directors of Life Line Foundation. Many people believed that Hunt decided what was to be broadcast, but that was not true. The oilman, who died last November, seldom saw advance copies of "Freedom Talks"—the name "Life Line" programs are known by—Munn said. And he added, Hunt never wrote one. Munn said he alone decided what would be broadcast on the more than 3,000 programs he has made. The "Life Line" program started on radio on Nov. 10, 1958. Although many of the right-wing-oriented programs from other organizations are donated free to radio stations that will use them, "Life Line" charged for its programs, Munn said. Munn said "Life Line's" efforts to strengthen "traditional values in politics, education, economy, religious areas, families, marriage and other basic institutions" have not met universal approval.

Import auto agents uneasy

DETROIT, Mich. (UPI) — Despite soaring foreign car sales, some importers are uneasy. They would prefer a healthy Detroit market. "Clearly, all the importers worry about getting too big a market penetration," says Art Ralston, a Volkswagen vice president. "We know the vulnerability of this in a recessionary period." The only reason importers look so good, he says, is the comparison with Detroit whose first three months of 1975 were the worst in 14 years. If Detroit sales improve, the logic goes, no one will be so worried about increasing import sales and there won't be any cry for higher taxes on the foreign models. For two straight months, imports have grabbed better than 21 per cent of the U.S. market. Not since August of 1971 has the importers share of the market been so great. Sales of domestic makes fell 20 per cent in March from year-ago levels. But importers already depressed, but imports jumped nearly 17 per cent. Fuel economy, more than anything, is the reason Americans are giving for buying the foreign models. Fuel economy like 38 miles per gallon for a Volkswagen Rabbit, 39 m.p.g. for a Honda Civic and Datsun B210. "People are considering the Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert area: variable cloudiness with a slight chance of a few snow flurries through Wednesday. Decreasing winds after today. High today 40 to 45, and Wednesday, 45 to 50. Lows tonight to the mid 30's. The outlook for Thursday, partly cloudy. Halley, Camas Prairie, Lower Wood River Valley: Scattered snow flurries today. Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday. The high both days in the mid to upper 30's. Lows tonight 10 to 15. The outlook for Thursday, partly cloudy. Synops: The upper level low pressure system is located over eastern Wyoming this morning. Cir- culation around the back side of the low continues to produce clouds, low temperatures and a few light snow flurries mainly over eastern mountains with a few snow flurries mainly over northern and southwestern mountains. Unseasonably cool temperatures will continue over the next several days. For almost a month now, except for a few isolated instances temperatures have averaged below normal across most of Idaho. In addition, precipitation amounts have been above seasonal normals. We see no definite heat wave in the near future, but there are indications that warmer daytime temperatures and some drying will take place by the end of the week.

Fence area off for protection

Editor, Times-News: Sunday, March 30, I took the family to see the progress of construction of the new Perrine Bridge and to see Blue Lakes, from where we get a portion of our water for the city of Twin Falls. We did not get out of the car on top of the Snake River Canyon directly above the beautiful Blue Lakes, as it is being used for a dump ground for trash and dead animals. Local citizens, go look for yourself, but do not take guests if you wish to impress them with our canyon's beauty. City of Twin Falls and Idaho Power Co., we appreciate your good work in providing us with sight-seeing areas to Shoshone Falls and Twin Falls as they would probably be similar to the area overlooking Blue Lakes if it were not for your efforts. How about it local citizens — which includes Jerome County — do you have any ideas for correcting the situation? It is too beautiful an area to be fenced off, but if necessary, then it should be.

Meaning reversed

TWIN FALLS — A typographical error in a letter to the editor published in the Times-News Sunday unintentionally reversed the intent of the letter. In the letter, submitted by Tara Desmond, education chairman of the Twin Falls League of Women Voters, a paragraph concerning the organization's stand on public kindergartens should have read "We would now like to encourage the school board in their effort to make this a reality." The word "now" was published "not."

New questions on mission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The weekend launch failure of a Russian Soyuz spaceship raised new questions Monday about the Soviet's ability to meet the July-15 date for the launch of another Soyuz to meet an American Apollo in orbit. U. S. space officials had not heard from their Russian counterparts about the nature of the rocket failure, and it was not known whether the problem would require rocket modifications that might delay Russian preparations for the joint flight. The matter was expected to come up Tuesday when the technical directors for both sides, Glyn S. Lunney in Houston and Konstantin D. Bushuyev in Moscow, discuss project preparations during a regular weekly telephone call. The American astronauts preparing for the flight are scheduled to fly to Russia next week for their final training session with the cosmonauts they will meet in space. During that visit, the Russians will inspect the American Soyuz and its rocket for the first time at the Baikonur launch site. The official Tass News Agency said Saturday's launch of Soyuz 18 cosmonauts Vasily Lazarev and Oleg Makarov was aborted when the third stage of their workhorse rocket deviated from its planned operation. The Soyuz separated from the malfunctioning rocket and returned to an emergency landing in a mountainous region of Siberia. The mission was not connected with the joint flight, but the rocket apparently was of the same type that is to launch the Soyuz in July. It was the first known Soviet manned launch failure. None of America's manned launches has failed. The two cosmonauts were to rendezvous and dock with the Salyut space station left in orbit by the Soyuz 17 cosmonaut in January. "Although we are disappointed that the Soyuz did not achieve its goal of docking with Salyut, we are gratified that cosmonauts Lazarev and Makarov landed safely," a National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said.

Ford eyes NATO visit

BRUSSELS (UPI) — President Ford is considering a trip to Europe next month to assure western allies that America's commitment to their defense remains strong, a North Atlantic Treaty Organization spokesman said Monday. The spokesman said a summit meeting of Ford and the other 14 leaders of the NATO nations is under examination in Moscow. Although no decision has been made, he said, a summit to reaffirm Western unity could take place at NATO headquarters here on May 29-30 — the date already set for the annual spring meeting of NATO foreign ministers.

Food stamp allotments take another $8 jump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Food stamp allotments for two-parent families automatically will rise to $182 a month, on July 1, Agriculture Department figures indicated today.

That is 5.2 per cent higher than the $154 in effect since Jan. 1 and 8 per cent above the $150 in effect last year.

Most experts had been predicting a level of $170. Some experts now believe the rate was lower because retail food prices in the first months of 1975 rose slower than forecast.

Agriculture Department experts said because of increased benefits and recent leaps in the number who qualify, the cost is expected to reach about $5 billion in the year ending June 30 and about $6 billion in 1975-76. Officials had estimated costs of about $4 billion for this year.

Agriculture officials predicted an average of 5.8 million people would get stamps. But enrollment is at a record 18.4 million for February. Some experts now believe it may be close to 21 million by the end of June — about 1 in every 10 Americans.

The program allows people to buy stamps at less than their face value, expanding their food-buying power. Some with no income get coupons free. Others must pay in accordance with their income and expenses — an average of about 23 per cent.

Officials said purchase requirements for most families will not change.

At present, a family of four with $100 a month adjusted net income — rent, educational and medical expenses and the like are subtracted — pays $25 for $154 worth of stamps. Effective July 1, such a family would pay $25 in cash for $162 in stamps.

Allotments for other families now range from $46 for a single person to $266 for an eight-member household.

The Agriculture Department is required by law to adjust allotments every six months in line with retail food costs, so the stamps are tied to the "economy diet plan," the price of enough inexpensive food for a proper diet. Economists said today that rose from $161.50 in January to $162 in February — the figure normally used to set the July 1 food stamp allotment.

Officials also announced that each state will be required to appoint an "outreach coordinator." Suits have charged 19 states and the Agriculture Department with not trying hard enough to make people aware of their eligibility for food stamps.

Oscar awards scheduled tonight

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Competition for the Oscar tonight in the 47th Annual Academy Awards presentations is a three-way race for both best actor and best actor awards.

Favorites to win for best actor are Al Pacino (The Godfather Part II), Dustin Hoffman (Lenny) and Jack Nicholson (Chinatown).

Also in the running were Art Carney (Harry and the Tonto) and Albert Finney (Murder on the Orient Express).

Legging the race for best actress of 1974 are Faye Dunaway (Chinatown), Gene Rowlands (A Woman Under the Influence) and Helen Mirren (Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore).

Valerie Perrine (Lenny) and Diahann Carroll (Claudine) were also nominated.

"Chinatown" and "The Godfather Part II," each with 11 nominations, were expected to win most of the awards in the 21 categories at the Los Angeles Music Center during the 2½-hour show (NBC 8 p.m. MDT).

The other three nominated pictures were "The Conversation," "Lenny" and "The Towering Inferno."

Bob Hope, Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr. and Shirley Maclaine are hosting the ceremonies. Nominated songs will be sung by Jack Jones, Aretha Franklin and Frankie Laine.

Arriving early for their chores as presenters of the golden statuettes were Richard Welch, John Wayne, Gene Kelly, Diahann Carroll, Peter Falk, Goldie Hawn, Glenda Jackson, Jack Lemmon, Lauren Bacall and Danny Thomas.

Academy officials promised the audience would be jolted during a film clip of the disaster movie "Earthquake" by Sensurround, a sound system for which Universal Studios will be given a special effects award.

Two oldtimers, Fred Astaire ("Towering Inferno") and Ingrid Bergman (Murder on the Orient Express) were favored to win the awards for best supporting players.

Also contending for best supporting actress were Valentina Cortese (Day for Night), Madeline Kahn (Blazing Saddles), Diane Ladd (Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore) and Taina Shire (The Godfather Part II).

Nominated with Astaire for best supporting actor were Jeff Bridges (Thunderbolt and Lightning) and a trio of actors from "The Godfather Part II": Robert De Niro, Michael V. Gazzo and Lee Strasberg.

Airlift prompts questions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The airlift of 1,000 Vietnamese orphans to the United States prompted, tears, anger and questions at a Capitol Hill meeting Monday.

Rep. Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass., called the meeting of about 200 congressional aides and members of adoption and humanitarian groups. His purpose was to rally support for going far beyond President Ford's proposed airlift of 2,000 orphans.

Tsongas says the administration should try to evacuate all 18,000 orphans identified by the Agency for International Development as ready for American adoption.

Tsongas brought to the meeting the names of 1,000 of these three Vietnamese children brought to the United States more than 18 months ago. Two adoptive mothers wept openly as they appealed for a greater U.S. effort to "prevent the wholesale death of the Vietnam War's most innocent prisoners — the children."

A black woman wanted to know why she didn't see black Americans adopting. The aide in charge of black and Vietnamese parentage, a black man inquired what guarantee there is the orphans will be treated better in the United States than in Vietnam.

A Vietnamese woman said all the people involved in the "babylift" are on "a guilt trip." Another woman asked why "only the orphans in Da Nang, and not the ones in Da Nang, are being helped."

Tsongas said limiting the "babylift" to 2,000 was "gross tokenism by the administration."

That raised the ire of Rep. William A. Steiger, R-Wis., one of several congressmen in the audience.

"You accused the President of the United States of tokenism," Steiger said, "and that's a deeply disturbing thing. I don't think Vietnamese orphans ought to be a political football."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Congress has returned from its 10-day Easter recess in a mood to provide emergency assistance for South Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees, but apparently still reluctant to vote military aid.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on refugees, scheduled hearings today on a measure to provide $100 million speedily for the refugees of the two war-torn countries.

Aides to Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on foreign aid, said Humphrey planned to introduce an amendment today to provide $200 million through the United Nations, Red Cross and other organizations.

In New York, the United Nations has appealed for tens of millions of dollars to be distributed by the United Nations, the U.N. Children's Emergency Fund, and the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees.

U.N. sources said they hoped to announce donations by three or four governments today.

Congress recessed for Easter March 27 without taking final actions on President Ford's appeal for $222 million in emergency military aid for Cambodia or $300 for South Vietnam.

Alabama Demo urges repeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., today urged repeal of two provisions in the voting rights law, charging they had made states into "conquered provinces."

Allen urged the Senate's constitutional rights subcommittee to repeal provisions which set criteria for triggering application of the 1965 act and require federal review and approval of the voting laws and procedures of affected states.

Clarence Mitchell, a director of the NAACP, called for retention of the provisions and extension of the act for an additional 10 years.

Allen said the two provisions were aimed solely at the southern states and that their "justification does not exist in 1975."

N. Viets move south

NEW YORK Times Service — The North Vietnamese Air Force is moving south to join the overwhelmingly strong ground forces being assembled by Hanoi's high command in the critical "battle area" around Saigon.

The North's tactics, United States military sources said, are following the classic pattern of heavy concentration at a key point either to insure a military victory or force a political capitulation.

The North Vietnamese Air Force was reported Monday to be moving into airfields at Pleiku, Da Nang and Hue that were abandoned by Saigon's forces in the first two weeks of the current drive.

As a result of this move, American sources said, in any protracted battle for Saigon the northern attackers could call on fighter-bombers and light bombers to bombard defensive positions.

WASHINGTON — Israel and Egypt have both informed the United States of their interest in a new American mediation effort, but so far neither side has shown any readiness for concessions to break the impasse that led to the collapse of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's latest mission.

Discussions Monday with key diplomats and officials revealed that Kissinger was wary of becoming involved again in a fresh "diplomatic shuttle" until he was convinced that an agreement was certain.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune, N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Ned and I have been married for seven years, and we have one child. Our marriage is far from perfect, but it's a far better man than I am.

My biggest problem is that Ned loves to tickle me. Now, please don't laugh, Abby, because it's not funny. I mean, Ned holds me down, and tickles my ribs and the bottoms of my feet until I am screaming and nearly hysterical.

Ned also likes to tickle our little girl, and she doesn't like it either.

I've begged Ned to stop this tickling business, but he insists that it's all in fun—that people enjoy laughing, so I shouldn't get angry with him.

What is your opinion?

TICKLED (NEARLY TO DEATH)

Ticklish situation

DEAR TICKLED: Ned may not know it, but "tickling" is an ancient form of torture. If he continues to tickle you, knowing that you dislike it, he is being intentionally sadistic.

Tickling one beyond his ability to tolerate it may appear to be a "harmless" game—all in fun—but in reality it's downright cruel.

DEAR ABBY: My husband left me three years ago. At first I thought he would come back, but he never did. I was seven months pregnant at the time.

He just took off, and I never heard from him again. To tell you the truth, I don't even know if he's living or dead. And I wouldn't have the foggiest notion of where to look for him.

Now for my big problem: I met a guy who loves me, and wants to marry me and adopt my child. I want to marry him, but how can I get married when I am not even divorced?

All the lawyers around here talk double talk. Isn't there a mail-order divorce I can send for?

OUT IN THE BOONDOCKS

DEAR OUT: Sorry, a mail-order divorce wouldn't be worth the paper it was printed on, so forget it. Look around for a lawyer who talks single, if you want to BE single, which is absolutely necessary before you can get married again.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé and I are going to be married this June. She will graduate from high school the end of May. We would like to know if it would be proper to send graduation and wedding announcements in the same envelope? It would save time and money.

And can we kill two birds with one stone and send one thank-you note for graduation and wedding gifts?

WONDERING IN N.W.

DEAR WONDERING: The graduation and wedding announcements should be sent separately. And so should the thank-you notes.

DEAR ABBY: Student, Henry County Sr. High, McDonough, Ga., writes: "I have learned to love according to character, not color."

If the late Martin Luther King, Jr. (himself a Georgian) were alive today, he would have been proud. For he once said: "I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character."

Hearts were opened and continued and at trick three Joe made the first key play to let him make the slam. He led the ♣ack, not the five of clubs to dummy's queen.

Next came the 10 of spades from dummy. East played low and Joe was careful to play his nine. This made it possible for dummy's eight to hold the next spade trick so he could finesse for the third time.

Joe pulled the last trump and led his king of clubs. When East showed out Joe was able to lead that five spot he had preserved, finesse dummy's nine and make his optimistic slam.

Here is a hand he played, when the team of Welch, Buck, Wood and Cain won the open team championship in 1935.

Larry Welch was a little out of place on that team — his name was too long.

Successes spark 2nd sub salvage effort

Witness queried

PROSECUTION witness Jake Jacobsen (left) is questioned by Edward Bennett Williams, lawyer for former Treasury Secretary John Connally during the latter's trial on charges he accepted bribes for supporting a milk price support increase. (UPI)

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The CIA spy ship Glomar Explorer will try to retrieve a sunken Soviet submarine this summer because the first effort provided such an intelligence windfall, including atomic warheads and the personal journal of a Russian nuclear weapons expert, the Los Angeles Times reported Monday.

The body of the expert, with two-inch-thick book of notes, was recovered from the submarine along with two nucleartipped torpedoes, the newspaper said.

The salvage crew was threatened at one point by radioactivity because the nuclear weapons had leaked and contaminated parts of the sub, the report said.

The Times said the Glomar Explorer, the ship built under the cover of being a deep sea mining vessel operated by Howard Hughes, is scheduled to return this July to the 1750 miles north of Hawaii where the Russian sub sank in 1968 to retrieve the rest of it, including a nuclear armed missile.

Even before the project's cover was blown, Soviet trawlers kept watch on the site, the Times said, and crewmen described how the Russian ships observed the recovery operation, moving in close enough for the crews to exchange insulting hand gestures.

The Times quoted intelligence sources and sources with independent knowledge of the project, including at least one member of the ship's crew.

The project — first codenamed "Jennifer" and then "Azorian" and now "Matador" — has been criticized as too expensive at an estimated cost of $400 million, but was actually "a stunning success," the Times documented — nuclear potential of the (golf class) submarine," the Times quoted an source as saying.

Two nuclear-tipped torpedoes were brought up with the 38-foot forward section of the submarine that was salvaged," the Times quoted an independent source as saying, along with "a two-inch-thick journal kept by a young Soviet naval officer being groomed as an expert on the nuclear capabilities of the vessel." It was found along with "the young officer's body, curled as if asleep in his bunk, and so well preserved that intelligence agents were able to establish his identity," the newspaper said. The note book "details the suspected — but never before documented — nuclear potential of the (golf class) submarine," the Times quoted an source as saying.

The recovered portion of the sub was contaminated with radioactivity from its nuclear warheads that leaked "either when it sank or during the years it had lain on the bottom," the Times said.

Attention sought

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The leader of 11 prisoners who held 12 hostages in a Tennessee State Prison counseling office for eight hours Monday said the group was just trying to get attention to air their grievances.

"We weren't trying to take over the prison," Dock Walker told a news conference called at the prisoners' request. "We were just trying to get some consideration."

Walker and 10 other maximum security inmates stormed into the counseling office complex Monday morning and held four counselors and eight other prisoners at knifepoint behind barricaded doors while they bargained with state corrections officials.

The hostages were released unharmed about 5:00 p.m. after Corrections Commissioner Herman Yeatman agreed to set up a committee, including inmate members, to investigate a list of 12 grievances.

Yeatman made the decision after conferring with the governor's office and the prison warden.

High on the list of complaints, which included such items as poor food and recreation facilities, were demands for an end to alleged harassment of prisoners by guards, and review of prisoners kept in isolation.

Another payoff hinted in Connally bribe trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The defense lawyer for former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally has raised the possibility his client got $5,000 more than the $10,000 he is charged with taking in bribes.

Monday was the first full day of cross-examination of star prosecution witness Jake Jacobsen, a lawyer for Associated Milk Producers Inc., who said he gave Connally two $5,000 bribes in 1971 in return for help in getting the price support for milk raised.

The trial recessed Monday evening before defense lawyer Edward Bennett Williams could make clear why he, not the prosecution, was raising the possibility of a third payoff.

Jacobsen said he didn't remember giving Connally a third payoff but that after looking at records concluded he might have done so. It was thought Williams might have raised the issue on which Jacobsen's memory was hazy to damage the witness' credibility with the jury.

Jacobsen testified earlier he gave Connally $5,000 in cash on two occasions in 1971. In his opening statement, Williams charged that Jacobsen kept that money for himself and got a third $5,000 from AMPI officials, saying it was for Connally.

Former Texas Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and Connally's brother Wayne, once a candidate for lieutenant governor, were in the crowd that began gathering at 5:30 a.m. Monday.

But the wanted confrontation was marked merely by Williams' low-key questions and Jacobsen's terse, low replies. Connally sat with chin on hand as his former friend of 25 years testified. He smiled slightly when Jacobsen said he could not remember giving Connally the third $5,000.

Without elaboration, Williams abruptly asked Jacobsen whether he had offered evidence against former President Lyndon B. Johnson during plea bargaining with the Justice Department.

"I deny that," Jacobsen said emphatically. Williams gave no details and did not pursue that line of questioning.

Williams read long portions of Jacobsen's statements to Watergate prosecutors in November 1974 in which Jacobsen told of getting an additional $5,000 from Bob A. Lilly, a counsel for AMPI.

Then Williams asked Jacobsen whether he had said the $5,000 must have been given to Connally although he had no recollection of it.

"That's correct," Jacobsen said.

Jacobsen said he was unable "to recall any of the event surrounding this third payment. Now looking at the record I conclude I had received the money from Lilly," he said.

Coverup charged

NEW YORK — A key member of the Attica special prosecutor's office has resigned and charged the chief prosecutor, Anthony G. Simonetti, with covering up possible crimes by law-enforcement officers who put down the rebellion at Attica prison in September, 1971.

The accusation was made by Malcolm H. Bell, once Simonetti's chief assistant.

Bell charged that the inquiry into whether crimes were committed by state-troopers and correction officers "lacks integrity" and was being "aborted" by Simonetti.

Simonetti said that the allegation was "both false and shocking" and that "we have held an open investigation of Attica and we will continue to look at all aspects in a logical and thorough manner."

Boisean wins ski money

SNOWBIRD, Utah (UPI) — Mark Stiegemeier of Boise, Idaho and Genia Fuller of Framingham, Mass., won the Grand Prix Freestyle Championships for 1975 Sunday.

Stiegemeier finished a poor 14th in the aerial event Sunday of the world freestyle championships but it was enough to give him the $19,000 Grand Prix for the 1975 season. Fuller won $9,000 in the women's Colgate Grand Prix and took first place in Sunday's aerials.

Another Idahoan, "Airborne" Eddie Ferguson of Boise, finished 2nd in the Men's Midas Grand Prix and took home $4,000. Twin sisters Ellen and Marion Post of Averill Park, N.Y., won second and third in the Women's Grand Prix.

In Sunday's aerials, Bob Crossman of Pico Peak, Vt., took first with Ferguson second. Scott Brooksband of Stillwater, Minn., won the event. Title of the Snowbird event, the sixth and final event on the tour. John Eaves was second overall with Stiegemeier third and Crossman fourth.

In the women's aerials, Nancy Gillis took second with Joanie Teorly third.

McGinnis, Erving share MVP

NEW YORK (UPI) — George McGinnis of the Indiana Pacers shared MVP honors with Julius Erving for the 1974-75 season but emerged a clear "winner" over the New York Nets star Monday when the American Basketball Association's final scoring figures were announced.

The statistics showed that the 6-foot, 8-inch Pacer forward won the ABA scoring title with an average of 28.9 points a game compared to Erving's 27.9 average.

McGinnis played five fewer games and scored 17 fewer field goals than Erving but had 39 more free throws and 10 more points. McGinnis made up the difference with a whopping margin in three-point field goals — in a brilliant all-around performance, McGinnis, who finished second in scoring to Erving in each of the last two seasons, also finished fifth in rebounding, fourth in three-point field goal percentage, third in assists and second in steals.

Indiana explodes by Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — George McGinnis exploded for 19 points in the fourth quarter Monday night to spark Indiana to a 98-93 victory over San Antonio and give the Pacers a 2-0 edge in the best of seven series of the ABA Western Division playoffs.

San Antonio led the game 43-40 at the half but Indiana took the lead 72-68 by the end of the period. McGinnis, who scored only three points in the first half, took charge and nullified a 21-point fourth quarter output by the Spurs' George Gervin.

McGinnis put Indiana ahead to stay with two free throws with 2:36 left in the game. The big forward wound up with 33 points, 15 rebounds and handed out four assists.

Weskopf third in winnings

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Weskopf, headed for the Masters after his victory in the Greater Greensboro Open, went from 13th to third on the 1975 PGA money list for his 9 under par 25 at Greensboro. His $45,000 first money gave him $91,238 for the year, trailing Johnny Miller's $129,226 and Jack Nicklaus' $109,242.

Bob Murphy yielded his third place spot to Weskopf with a total of $77,970 and Lee Trevino is in fifth place with $71,383.

US Hockey team loses 4th

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Sweden blanked the United States 7-0 Monday to hand America its fourth and worst defeat in the 1975 world ice hockey championships.

Tord Lundstroem and Dan Labraun, with two goals each, tore the U.S. defense to shreds in the first and third periods while at the other end second string goalie Goeran Hoegstas shut out the Yanks.

"We had the same opportunities we had in the other games but we just didn't score any goals," said U.S. coach Bob Johnson.

Denver drops Utah 126-120

DENVER (UPI) — Guards Ralph Sampson and Mack Calvin combined for 21 fourth quarter points Monday as the Denver Nuggets overcame a 10-point deficit to drop the Utah Stars 126-120 and take a 2-0 lead in the opening round of the ABA Western Division playoffs.

Calvin wound up with 27 points and Sampson had 28, with all but eight of them coming in the second half. Mike Green added 24 points and 19 rebounds for Denver.

Utah guard Ron Boone, who suffered a sprained right shoulder and sat out the final seven minutes of the game, finished with 29 points — a sharp turnaround from the horrendous game he had in Sunday's 122-107 loss when he hit just two of 13 shots.

The Stars also got 23 points and 16 rebounds from Randy Denton, who will play for the Utah Stars, 19 from Al Smith and 18, all in the second half, from John Roche.

Behind the shooting of Roche, who helped Denver's Claude Terry for 12 points in the final six minutes of the third quarter, Utah took a 97-89 advantage going into the final period. The Stars stretched that to 101-91 early in the fourth quarter before Boone was injured.

Evert leads money list

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Chris Evert passes the $100,000 mark in tennis earnings each year it is duly noted. But what about the 18-year-old girl from Czechoslovakia, Martina Navratilova, who is on the threshold of the $100,000 mark this early in the year?

Chris, by defeating the stubborn, competitive Martina in the Virginia Slims final at Los Angeles over the weekend, moved — effortlessly — to the $100,000 plateau, with her $40,000 winner's check giving her $121,450 for 1975. Miss Evert is now $10,000 ahead of the pace she set a year ago, when she wound up the year with $51,460.

Martina, picking up $25,000, gave her total for 10 events $36,763. While 20 per cent goes to the Czech government, and the U.S. tax people claim another 30, the teenager is still making a great deal of money.

Ball thrown past Bench

DODGER outfielder Jimmy Wynn crosses the plate as the Reds catcher Johnny Bench misses a wide throw from outfielder Ken Griffey during 4th inning action in National League opener in Cincinnati. Wynn scored on a sacrifice fly by Steve Garvey. (UPI)

Reds top Dodgers in season opener

CINCINNATI (UPI) — What a way to start the season. The 1975 baseball campaign was launched Monday afternoon with a 14-inning thriller between the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds, climaxed by a close and controversial play.

Three hours and 23 minutes after the first ball was tossed out, Reds pinch-hitter George Foster beat out a slow roller to third to bring in the winning run for a 2-1 Cincinnati victory.

Most of the standing room only crowd of 52,526 fans — biggest ever to see a regular season game here — were still in Riverfront Stadium when Foster came to bat in the bottom of the 14th inning.

The Reds had runners on second and third but there were two out when Foster tapped his soft bouncer toward third baseman Ron Cey. If Foster could beat Cey's throw to first, it would allow Cesar Geronimo to score the winning run from third. But if the throw beat Foster, the game would go into the 15th inning.

"I figured I had made the third out," Foster said. "But I said, 'I bet, don't fall me now' and 'I can, as fast as I could.'"

With two strikes on Foster and two outs, Cey had been playing deep at third.

"But I thought I made a good throw," said Cey, who charged and scooped up the ball near the bag.

"Everyone admitted the play at first was close," acknowledged Foster. "It came down to a split second. I looked at the umpire and hoped he would make the right call."

Umpire Paul Fryor spread his arms wide to signal safe. The Dodgers, of course, disagreed.

"In my heart I know we had the man," contended first baseman Steve Garvey, "I sincerely believe we had him out."

Cey claimed he had a good view of the play. "The way I saw it, he had the man beat by a half-step," he said. "We lost the game on a bad call."

Still, the Dodgers didn't protest much to Fryor. "What were we going to say?" asked Cey. "The umpire wasn't going to change his call."

Later, Reds Manager Sparky Anderson held his hands about six inches apart.

"George beat the throw about this far," he said, his hands waving a little bit.

"My hands, the excited manager laughed, "they always shake."

The game had been tied 1-1 since the sixth inning. Garvey, who collected three of the Dodgers' eight hits, started LA to a 1-0 lead in the fourth by singling home Davey Lopes. The Reds tied it in the sixth when Dave Concepcion singled in Pete Rose.

Rookie Pat Darcy, the last of four Reds pitchers, got credit for the victory. Starter Don Gullett went 9 2/3 innings, giving up only five hits and the lone Dodger run.

Angels score in ninth, beat Royals in opener

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Bruce Bochte's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded and none out in the ninth inning scored fleet Morris Nettles from third base Monday night to give Nolan Ryan and the California Angels a come-from-behind 3-2 victory over the Kansas City Royals in the American League's opening game.

Steve Busby of the Royals took a 2-1 lead into the final inning but gave up a single to Orlando Ramirez to open the frame and was replaced by Steve Mingori. Mingori wildpitched Ramirez to second, walked Nettles and surrendered an in-field single to Mickey Rivers to load the bases before Royals Manager Jack McKern brought in Doug Bird to face Angels' designated hitter Tommy Harper.

Harper delivered a bloop single in center that scored Ramirez to tie the game before Bochte came through with a line drive out to Al Cowens, whose throw to the plate was way late to catch the speedy Nettles.

Ryan, who pitched a no-hitter in his last appearance of the 1974 season, allowed only three hits and struck out 12 to earn the victory.

John Maberry boomed a home run off Ryan in the sixth inning to give the Royals a 2-1 lead. A crowd of 24,105 turned out at Anaheim Stadium to see the American League's 75th inaugural game in temperatures in the high 50's. Kansas City and California each scored in the second inning, with the Royals tallying on a one-out single by George Brett, a stolen base and Cookie Rojas' single to center.

Expo home run gives win over Cards in NL opener

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Rookie Tony Scott doubled home two runs in the eighth and rookie Gary Carter hit a three-run homer in the ninth to give the Montreal Expos an 8-4 win over St. Louis in the Cardinals' home opener Monday night.

With two out in the eighth Larry Parrish and pinch-hitter Larry Blyler singled, then scored on Scott's double. The blow allowed Dave McNally to make a successful debut in the National League after 12 years with Baltimore. Dale Murray pitched two innings of hitless relief.

Carter's homer in the ninth came after a single by Pepe Mangual and a fielding error by Mike Tyson on a grounder by Barry Foote.

St. Louis starter Bob Gibson, beginning his 17th and last year with the Cardinals, struck out 12 in eight innings but allowed nine hits and five runs. Elias Sosa allowed the three-run homer in the ninth.

The Cards had the lead on Reggie Smith's solo homer in the fifth. Ted Steward had doubled to lead off the inning and scored when Carter fielded Babe McBride's single in right, then dropped the ball.

The Expos got two runs in the first on a walk to Scott and singles by Tim Foli, Mangual and Carter. Foli doubled in the fifth, advanced on two walks, and scored on Gibson's wild pitch.

Houston beats Braves

HOUSTON (UPI) — Jose Cruz, making his first appearance in a Houston uniform, hit a three-run homer and also collected two singles Monday night to lead the Astros to a 6-2 opening day victory over the Atlanta Braves behind the four-hit pitching of Larry Dierker.

Cruz, acquired from St. Louis in the off-season, clubbed his homer during a five-run fifth inning and sparked a 14-hit attack. All the Astros' runs in the fifth were unearned as Atlanta catcher Vic Corelli, having trouble with knuckleballing pitcher Phil Niekro, made one error and a passed ball in the inning.

Righthander Larry Dierker allowed Atlanta four hits with a complete game victory, his fourth without a loss in season opening games. Enos Cabell started the rally with a single but was thrown out at third on a single by Rob Andrews. Andrews went to second on the play and took second when a pitch got by Corelli. He scored the Astros' first run on Cesar Cedeno's two-out bunt single.

Elder silent to prepare for first Masters start

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Lee Elder says he will break his self-imposed silence this afternoon and tell how it feels to be the first black golfer to appear in the Masters.

Elder arrived Monday afternoon at the Augusta National and was swamped by requests for interviews.

"I'm not talking," said Elder. "Everytime I talk, I get into trouble."

But Rose Elder, Lee's wife and business manager, said her husband would hold a news conference at 3 p.m. EDT today.

"Lee feels that this is the only fair way," said Mrs. Elder. "Lee's serious about not talking. He's here to play golf and he wants to be left alone."

He figures that the best way to handle the situation is to meet with all the news media at one time and then hope they'll let him get on with his golf.

Never mind that many of the world's finest golfers are here to watch the 40-year-old Elder, who broke a long Masters tradition when he won at Pensacola, Fla., last April and earned a Masters berth.

"You can't imagine the demands that have been made on him since he won at Pensacola," said Mrs. Elder. "Especially since about the first of the year. Day or night, I really don't know what else he can say. At one time or another he must have talked about every possible angle anyone can think of."

If Elder weren't in his unique position, he'd probably attract little attention here because his play since winning at Pensacola has been in the contention for the Masters title.

The favorite is Jack Nicklaus. But Nicklaus, who skipped the Greater Greensboro Open to get in four days of practice here, was present Monday.

had gone home for the weekend and was scheduled back today.

Nicklaus, four-time Masters champion and winner in his last two tournament appearances (Doral Open and Heritage Classic), is rated a 4-1 favorite to make this year's Masters his 15th "major" title.

Other leading contenders include defending champion Gary Player, the little South African who is the only foreigner ever to win in the Masters (he also won here in 1961); Heritage runnerup and Greensboro winner Tom Weiskopf, who tied for second in both the 1972- and 1974 Masters; and Johnny Miller, leading money winner this year and last.

"I feel my game is rounding back into shape," said Miller, who tied for sixth at Greensboro after missing the cut for the first time in 35 tournaments the previous week in the Heritage.

Miller had not intended to play at Greensboro, but changed his mind after his poor showing the previous week.

"I had taken the week off and rested up," said the 27-year-old star who has won 11 tournaments and $470,000 the past 15 months. "I know Jack (Nicklaus) has had a lot of success coming in here early, but I figure I really know the course and don't see that I'd gain anything by playing it a week ahead of time."

Arnold Palmer, the only other golfer besides Nicklaus to win four Masters titles, came to Augusta buoyed by his 66 in the final round at Greensboro, but was muttering about his play in Monday's practice round.

The Masters, the first of the four golf tournaments each year (the others are the U.S. and British Opens and the PGA), begins Thursday.

When Elder refused to talk Monday, his Masters caddy, Henry Brown, moved into the spotlight.

Brown, a 36-year-old scratch golfer who is working his 12th Masters, had been asking to be Elder's caddy since 1971. He was Roberto de Vicenzo's caddy for 10 years including 1968 when the Argentine golfer threw away the Masters crown by signing an incorrect scorecard. Last year he caddied for Art Wall, the aging former Masters champ (1950). "Each year, I'd go in and ask that if Lee Elder made it to the Masters that I be assigned as his caddy," said Brown. "I read the newspapers and watch on television and I figured he was the black golfer with the best chance of making it to the Masters."

"I don't know how Lee Elder will do out there this week," said Brown. "But I'm going to help him all I can. He won't be outcaddied."

Assault charges on Lyle delayed past Ali fight

DENVER (UPI) — District Judge George Manerhino Monday delayed until May 22 the preliminary hearing for seventh-ranked heavyweight Don Lyle on charges of second-degree assault on his wife.

Lyle sought the continuance so court date would not interfere with his training for a May 16 title fight with heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali in Las Vegas.

Manerhino also said he would issue a "stay" order in the case in light of Mrs. Lyle's contacting Denver newspapers and issuing a press statement detailing her side of the March 13 incident. She charged that Lyle fired a gun at her.

Lyle's attorneys at first had agreed to waive the preliminary hearing if the arraignment on the charges could be delayed until after the championship fight. The agreement was made when the district attorney indicated he would fight any request for a delay.

"That is such a cumbersome type of agreement," Manerhino said after the details were explained to him by Lyle's attorney, William Lewis. "I don't know why you want to make it so cumbersome when it can really be handled very simply by just delaying the preliminary hearing."

"On the date of the hearing (April 28) bring the defendant in and if he wants to go ahead and waive it that is fine," said Manerhino, to the surprise of assistant district attorneys Steve Munsinger and Bob Jenkins. "But I am continuing the preliminary hearing without any conditions."

Leonard Cressler, who is working with Lewis in Lyle's defense, said the continuance was needed because "the matter is dealing with two very serious things in a man's life."

"First he is facing the chance of a lifetime in his career and secondly this is a very critical stage in the judicial process and his mind and body both have to be elsewhere."

Lyle, the only member of the top 10 that Ali has not fought, has a 39-2-1 record with 21 knockouts.

West files $1 million suit against LA Lakers

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Jerry West, former Los Angeles Lakers basketball star, Monday filed a breach of contract suit against team owner Jack Kent Cooke and his corporation, charging them with reneging on an agreement that would have paid West more than $1 million after his retirement.

A spokesman for the Lakers confirmed that the suit was filed in Superior Court late Monday.

West, a 13-time All-Pro guard who scored more than 25,000 points during his illustrious pro career, retired from the Lakers prior to the start of the just-completed season.

The Lakers deeply regret that Jerry West has seen fit to sue California Sports Inc., bringing a sad ending to what had been a 16-year mutually satisfactory association," the Lakers said in a statement.

Allegations of the suit were not specifically known, nor was the exact amount of the damages sought by West.

CBS television sports reporter Tom Kelly, however, said the sum was believed to be in excess of $1 million.

Kelly said that West, now a CBS network commentator, covering pro basketball, charged in his suit that Cooke and the Lakers reneged on two agreements.

One would have paid West $6,000 per game as long as he was an active player. After his retirement as a player, another agreement would have taken over giving West $250,000 a year for the next five years for work in another capacity with California Sports Inc.

"CSI categorically denies the allegations made by Jerry West," the Lakers' statement said. "After West agreed to negotiate a contract with CSI to play for the Lakers in the 1974-75 season and following seasons, West suddenly, unilaterally and without prior notice to CSI, announced his retirement.

"CSI has seriously and continuously attempted to reach a reasonable settlement of the differences between CSI and West, but, unfortunately, those attempts have failed."

The Lakers wound up their 1974-75 campaign Sunday night losing to the Portland Trail Blazers, 109-97, their worst season since coming to California 15 years ago.

USSR, Czechs in title game

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union, the two giants of the amateur ice-hockey world, meet today in the first of two games which will decide the world title.

A sell-out crowd of 9,914 was expected for the game with the traditional Scandinavian grudge match between Finland and Sweden set to follow.

Both the Russians and the Czechs have won all their games so far in the world championships but the Czechs, the only team to have taken the title from the Soviets since 1963, were favored to win because of their 4-1 record against them in the Irvien Cup competition last month.

Bacon, ham consumers' bad news reads good for pork producers

CHICAGO — For those who delight in eating bacon, ham, or pigs knuckles, the news this past week was bad.

There are, at the moment, about 40 million head of hogs fattening in the 14 largest pork-producing states. This was a drop of 17 per cent below the total there in March, 1974.

So, for farmers who breed and raise hogs, this was good news. Declining numbers usually mean rising prices for them.

The stockyard prices farmers got this past week were already hovering around $40 a hundred pounds, which was nearly 30 per cent higher than a year ago. With feed costs still slipping downward, this meant a return to profit-making on hogs.

But rising stockyard prices in the past have always meant a corresponding rise in prices paid for processed pork, and consumers could expect to pay more in the coming months.

On contrast, prices paid in March to farmers for almost every other food commodity declined by 2 per cent. It was the fifth month in a row that this index has declined.

Although inflationary costs of middlemen have kept most retail prices from dropping to the same degree, consumer food prices have also been declining.

The rising level of prices at the stockyards has the result of a classical reduction in supply.

A year ago, with corn and soybean prices increasing their feeding costs, farmers were getting only about $31 a hundred pounds for their hogs.

In this unprofitable squeeze, they began selling off larger parts of their herds and reducing the number of sows bred to produce pigs.

Most hog raisers grow corn and soybeans as well. So, instead of feeding their crops to their own hogs, they sold their grain at the highest prices since World War II.

With a hog's shorter fattening time, it has taken less than a year for these reductions in hog numbers to be reflected in higher prices at the stockyards.

In contrast, two years must pass before a reduction in cattle herds starts to push beef prices up. At the moment, the nation's cattle population has swelled to a record 132 million head. The numbers slaughtered for the retail market are rising, and retail beef prices, especially for the lower-grade cuts, have been dropping.

This competition from beef was the only factor that could hold back a greater increase in retail pork prices.

Gerald Beattie, a Sumner, Neb., hog raiser and this year's president of the National Pork Producers Council, recently foresaw hog prices rising to $50 a hundredweight by summer if the numbers declined further.

But he also said that the temptation to take advantage of this prospect was growing and many farmers who have quit raising hogs might start again.

"We have a lot of sympathy for the cattlemen, because we are prone to make the same mistake: increasing herds too rapidly every five years or so ourselves," he said.

"There are far many cattle in the country now and they will have to be eaten before that industry can recover," he went on.

Ketchum lacks quorum

KETCHUM — The Ketchum City Council meeting regularly scheduled for Monday night was canceled due to lack of a quorum.

Andrus to get honorary degree

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will receive an honorary doctor of law degree from Gonzaga University during ceremonies in Spokane, Wash., May 11, the governor's office confirmed Monday.

"Naturally I am pleased and flattered that I am receiving this recognition from such an outstanding institution," Andrus said when asked about the honor.

Gonzaga is a coeducational university founded by the Catholic Church in 1887. It is staffed, run and administered by priests of the Jesuit Order and is one of the few outstanding Catholic universities in the Pacific Northwest.

Firemen prevent serious fire

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Fast-moving firemen prevented a serious fire from breaking out at J. R. Simpkins Company's fourth division unit Monday after frying oil in the plant burst into flames.

There were no injuries to the dozen employees in the immediate area and only minor damages reported. Normal operations resumed later in the day.

Simplot officials praised the fire department for the quick response. By arriving within three minutes they prevented what could have been extensive damage.

Tourism increase set

BOISE (UPI) — Tourism is expected to increase between five and 10 percent in Idaho this year, pulling an additional $10 million in $12 million into the state's economy.

Ken Stearns, economic development specialist for the state tourism and industrial development office, said the tourism industry should keep pace with inflationary pressures the state is undergoing.

Andrus declines comment

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus declined Monday to comment on charges by a Republican state senator that funds had been manipulated to save the alcohol safety action program.

Chairman Reed Budge, Soda Springs, of the Transportation Committee, Friday said Andrus and Darrell Manning, director of the Idaho Transportation Department, had changed funding priorities within the traffic safety commission projects.

Budge said the $87,000 for the program came from the accident investigation school and other federal funds.

Gem population takes 12% jump

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's population jumped more than 12 percent in the past four years, federal census estimates show.

The estimates, recently released by the US Department of Commerce, put the state's population mid-1973 at 799,000, up from 713,000 in 1970.

That equals a 2.9 percent increase per year, over four-fold the average yearly increase of about .7 percent per year between 1960 and 1970.

Meanwhile, Idaho's two congressional districts continue to have more representation than almost all other districts throughout the United States, the Department of Commerce data shows.

On the average, the population of each of the United States' 435 congressional districts is 486,000, or 23.7 percent greater than Idaho's second congressional district and 20 percent greater than the state's first congressional district.

The nation's capital stands as the most underrepresented district with a 223,000 population and only one representative.

Only two states are better represented than Idaho in congress, the data shows. South Dakota with an estimated population of 682,000 and Montana with an estimated 735,000 population each have two representatives.

New trial denied

TWIN FALLS — Fifth District Court Judge Sherman J. Bellwood Monday denied a motion for a new trial for Delbert Crawford, Eden, convicted on two counts of second degree murder.

Crawford's attorney Victor J. Rolitto, Ketchum, said he plans to appeal the case to the Supreme Court, according to United Press International.

The motion for the new trial was based on 16 reasons, filed with the Cassia County district court clerk.

One statement indicated that the defendant was required to wear handcuffs during most of the trial and manacles on his feet during all of the trial, in full view of the jury.

The reasons also questioned the possible perjured nature of testimony by some of the witnesses.

Crawford was convicted of the murders of Greg Salosabai and Paul Peterson last Nov. 7 in Burley. He was also convicted on one charge of robbery.

Judge Bellwood said the defendant has 30 days after his sentencing, scheduled for April 28, to appeal his case.

Jerome driver pays fine

JEROME — Lee Hendrickson, 67, Jerome school bus driver, was fined $50 and court costs Monday for failure to yield to traffic.

Hendrickson appeared in magistrate court before Judge Russell Shaud. Hendrickson was the driver of a school bus which collided with a milk truck April 2, injuring one student passenger on the school bus and the driver and his passenger in the milk truck. Greg Schelling, the passenger in the truck, is listed in fall condition today in St. Benedict's Hospital.

Gordon Leininger, 18, driver of the truck, and Michelle Burrows, 9, passenger in the bus, were both treated for minor injuries at the hospital and released, following the accident.

The other 19 students on the bus were not injured. Hendrickson was cited by state police for failure to yield to traffic when he pulled out in front of the truck after he had halted at a stop sign.

Jobless number declines

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment in Twin Falls County declined in March but the rates are still higher than they were last year.

Jim Voegelé, labor market analyst for the local Department of Employment, said that unemployment for the county was about 7 percent in March compared to about 5.5 percent in March 1974.

Unemployment in February was 7.8 percent and in January, 7.3 percent, adjusted upward from figures published last month to account for seasonal changes.

Farm employment is up slightly, although the weather is "holding it down," Voegelé said. Government and food processing jobs have also increased slightly.

Typically, fewer people enter the job market this time of year, which also helps to keep the rate down, he said.

The rates are still much higher than last year because the weather is generally worse, holding down construction and other outdoor hiring. The general economy is also worse, according to Voegelé.

"We have a weaker economy than last year," he said. Unemployment has been short term this winter compared to last year, he added.

TF council okays condo

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Approval was given by the Twin Falls City Council Monday night for the first business office condominium in the city.

The building to be built on Falls Avenue behind the Masonic Temple at Blue Lakes Boulevard required special action by the council because there are no provisions in the city code for this type of condominium. However, the structure to be a business building for office space rental so no action would be needed because of the commercial local zone in which it will be located.

Dale Riedesel, engineer, presented the plan for the building. He said it will be managed as a regular condominium in which the occupants will purchase their space but will be for business offices rather than residents.

The two-story building will be occupied by J.U.B. Engineers, represented by Riedesel, and by one other major firm. He said both may lease some of their space. A number of federal agricultural agencies are considering the space in order to function in a single location, Riedesel said.

Council members discussed recommendations of the Idaho Department of Highways and the city traffic and safety committee for eliminating left turns at the North Five Points intersection for traffic going south on Blue Lakes Boulevard.

Action on the recommendation was delayed until the Twin Falls School District decides if Washington School will be used for kindergarten purposes.

Councilman Paul Ostyn said there has apparently been a change of heart by the division of highways. That agency previously turned down such a proposal on grounds it would throw a heavy traffic load onto residential streets not suited for the traffic, Ostyn said.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said he did not agree entirely with the division of highways. He said local persons would, and probably already do, avoid the intersection if turning left. They cut off on Heyburn Avenue if going to the east, and pick up Addison Avenue behind the corner.

Rupert death charges due

RUPERT — Criminal charges will probably be filed today in the chain strangulation death case of a 77-year-old Rupert woman.

Mindok County Pros. Atty. William Manning said this morning charges will probably be filed later today. However, Manning declined to state what the charges would be, or who would be named.

Last week a Mindok County coroner's jury said Ernest Rufener and his wife Griselda, both Rupert, committed involuntary manslaughter in the death of Anna Marie Rufener, 77, Ernest is Mrs. Rufener's son.

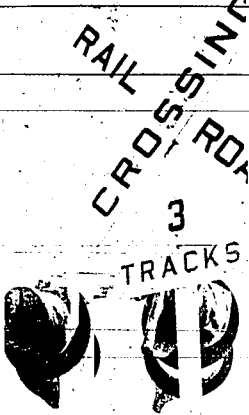

The jury said Anna Marie died after choking to death from a chain fastened around her neck by her son and daughter-in-law.

The six-foot law chain was anchored to a bed. The woman's son said it was used for about four months to restrain the woman.

The coroner's jury also named Griselda's sister and her brother, Minerva and Joe Monreal, as accessories.

The coroner's jury's findings are not binding on the prosecutor. Manning could file more serious charges or drop the case altogether.

Manning said charges would be filed. But, he said, he is awaiting evidence that "they" have occurred at the Rufeners' former residence" in Seattle before determining the charges.

Safety controls

DROP ARMS are being installed as the first phase of the installation of safety controls at the Grape Street crossing of railroad tracks in Shoshone. Drop arms and other safety equipment will be installed at all three Shoshone railroad crossings this spring with the railroad, highway department and city sharing the $250,000 cost. Construction is expected to require six weeks to two months.

Mayor Leo Rice thanked Klinger for his service, saying "We haven't always seen eye to eye, but that's all right."

Outside Gooding—just change limits?

By LORAYNE O. SMITH

Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding Councilman Paul Klinger resigned Monday night because he lived outside the city limits.

So the other councilmen and the mayor considered annexing Klinger's land so that he could again serve on the council.

The idea was scrapped, however, after discussion.

Klinger offered his resignation at the start of the meeting, even though city attorney Cecil Hobbey said he had "grave doubts" about the legal necessity of a councilman having to reside in the city limits.

He read from the code that a councilman shall "be an elector in the state of Idaho" although it specifically says the mayor must be a resident of the city.

Klinger said because of possible conflict between state and city ordinances he felt he should resign since he has now moved into a new home which is outside the city beyond Gooding Lane.

"If you want to annex the property and appoint me later, that's fine," the young councilman said. Efforts to take action on the annexation at that time were prevented by Hobbey who instructed councilmen they best had to accept or reject the resignation.

Toward the end of the long meeting, efforts by Councilman Gene Kelly to have the Klinger property annexed were defeated by the other two councilmen, Duane Clineken and R.M. Shaver.

Mayor Leo Rice thanked Klinger for his service, saying "We haven't always seen eye to eye, but that's all right."

The councilman's father, Dr. M. V. Klinger, and a brother, Doran Klinger, were among the nearly 20 residents attending the meeting.

Dr. Klinger said he was there in response to a proposal to investigate possible ways to extend Gooding Lane. He pointed out on a map location of an irrigation ditch which the city would have to move before any street extension could be undertaken.

Hobbey advised that as long as the property is outside the city limits there is nothing which can be done and councilmen agreed there is now no need for annexation.

Jerome man faces charge

JEROME — Rufus Riley, 31, Jerome, has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon in a complaint signed by another Jerome citizen, Michael Thompson, about 30, following a Friday night incident.

Sheriff Elza Hall said Riley allegedly fired a shot into the pickup truck driven by Thompson on U.S. Highway 93 just north of the Perrine Thompson Bridge Friday night.

In the complaint, Thompson charged the two were driving north on the highway, crossed the bridge with Riley traveling at a low rate of speed. Thompson passed him, the complaint states, after which Riley allegedly gained speed, flashed his lights and then fired a shot into the Thompson pickup truck through the rear window, shattering the dome light.

Riley allegedly forced Thompson to pull to the side of the road and stop, then argued about Thompson's having passed him.

Thompson reported the incident to the Jerome sheriff's office and provided the license number of the Riley vehicle. Riley was later arrested by Idaho State Police. He has been released from the sheriff's custody on $1,000 bond, pending appearance in magistrate court.

Bellevue re-elects mayor

By BART QUESNELL

Times-News writer

BELLEVUE — L. T. (Pete) Johnson was re-elected to his third term as mayor of Bellevue.

Robert Thomas who was opposing Johnson received 63 votes compared to Johnson's 175. Johnson said this morning he was "humbly grateful for the confidence of the people."

Two councilmen were returned to office while a third who had been appointed last year to fill a vacancy was voted out.

Councilman Joe Bergin was returned to office with the highest vote total of 201. Ralph Griffin, another councilman, received 159 votes.

Two newcomers were elected to council. Glenn Steina received 163 votes to oust Jerry Smith, an appointee who filled the unexpired term of Mike McGraw last year. Smith received 47 votes.

The other new face will be Tim Burk who received 167 votes. Other candidates and their vote totals were Byron Downard, 65; Roger Fry, 90 votes, and Martin Gutches, 22.

John Pascoe refused to be nominated for office but he received eight write-in votes.

The vote will be officially canvassed at a special meeting Wednesday.

Minico Power plan costly

By DAVID BOCKMAN

Times-News writer

BURLEY — If Burley and Rupert join in construction of power plants in Washington State the new power may cost four to five times as much as the rates now pay.

Several Idaho communities, including Burley, Rupert and Hayden, are being asked to buy into two new nuclear power plants being constructed by the Washington Public Power Supply System (WPPSS).

Electricity generated from the new plants is expected to cost from 12 to 16 mills per kilowatt hour.

Currently the Idaho municipal utilities are buying power from the Bonneville Power Administration at less than 4 mills per kilowatt hour.

However, Idaho's utilities are being urged to join the construction of the $2.2 billion project to insure a power supply in the future.

The two nuclear power plants to be built by WPPSS are scheduled to come on line in the early 1980s. The plants will be twins to plants already under construction at Hanford and Grey's Harbor, Wash.

If the Idaho utilities elect to help finance the construction of the plants, they will be able to mix the cost of the high priced power with lower cost hydropower, but the latter cost of the consumer pays for power will probably not reach five times current costs. Low high consumer rates will be unknown.

The proposal by WPPSS, that Idaho communities help finance the cost of building the new power plants, is being met with some Idaho officials by surprise.

Burley's mayor, Charles Shaddock, said Monday he is in the dark about the proposal. A spokesman for WPPSS, Burt Metzker, told the Times-News an "option and services agreement" is being mailed to cities and other utilities that might like to buy a share of the proposed power plants.

By signing the options to buy now the utilities could go ahead later to purchase a share of the plants, when built.

Total cost of the plants is now estimated at $2.2 billion. Idaho city owned utilities could purchase 3 percent of the plants' output by being off $66 million of bonds issued by WPPSS.

As proposed the two plants will have a combined output of $2.3 million kilowatts.

A consultant to WPPSS, Winston Peterson, Seattle, said preliminary estimates put the price of a kilowatt hour from the plant at 12 mills per kilowatt hour.

However, Arthur L. Smith, city attorney for Idaho Falls, one of the communities considering buying into the nuclear plants, said the power could cost the communities from 15 to 16 mills per kilowatt hour.

Although the cost is high, Smith said, construction of the plants is one way to assure a power supply 10 years from now.

The community-owned power systems that help finance the plants will be guaranteeing revenue bonds issued by WPPSS, Smith said.

Andrus pledges help

KETCHUM — Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, reportedly has pledged his help to stop construction at North Fork for at least one year. Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, said Monday.

However, the governor's office had no comment on the issue today.

Peavey conducted a hearing Monday here with concerned citizens over a proposed 13,000-square-foot administrative visitor center to be constructed at the boundary of the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, seven miles north of Ketchum.

A petition drive to stop construction there until further study is conducted has yielded nearly 400 signatures. Peavey introduced a memorial in the legislature this year seeking US Forest Service compliance with local zoning laws of Blaine County. That memorial passed the Senate, but was tabled in the House State Affairs Committee.

Peavey told the local group of 30 people that Andrus will carry the fight back to Washington next week when he is to meet with the President.

He said each US congressman has given some indication of support "to get the wheels rolling." He said they each have requested complete documents of events that led to the controversy.

Most of the people attending the hearing blasted the forest service for its stand that too much time and money have already gone into the site selection and that it will not turn back.

Jack McGuire, planning and zoning commission member, said the forest service never approached the commission before going on with the project.

"That is government property and I guess the federal government will do essentially what they want on their own property, although it just happens to be in Blaine County," McGuire said.

All requirements with which a private citizen must comply under the Blaine County ordinances were never adhered to by the forest service, he said.

The 35-foot-high building will be the tallest erected in Blaine County, he said. Since it is located on A-1 agricultural land, it would never have gotten to the commission except under an application for a rezone.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have unusual charm now to win the goodwill and active assistance of a person you like very much. Attend to social matters as the evening is unusually beneficial for good fortune from this.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Query others early, then make plans for greater success. Put them in effect before nightfall. Consider high-ups who can help.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get ideas for advancement from a good friend. Keep whatever you are doing confidential. Go after personal aims in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to increase present success and then contact influential friends who can assist you. Improve present prestige.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A situation arises that will help you get your finest talents before bigwigs and gain your aims with relative ease.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go through with promises made so that later you can enjoy social pleasures without worry. Please mate more; be understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study projects in detail to know exactly how to proceed with them. Try to appease one who opposes you; win him over.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get duties done in a.m. to free time later for making agreements with associates for a fine future. Live a more active life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make creative plans in p.m., then put in operation. Amusements are best in p.m., but contact friends early to accompany you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Finish work at home by lunchtime so you can then be off to more important matters. Be adept businesswise. Gain bigwigs' respect.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Shop, do research work, etc., in a.m. Then you can sit down with partners and make progress in business. Use diplomacy at home.

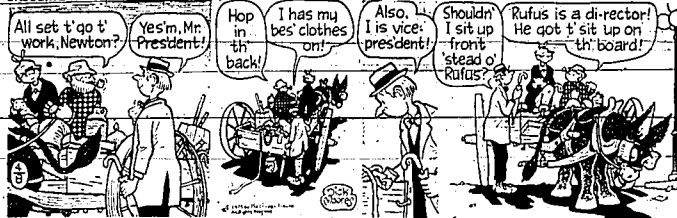

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle any monetary matters that are important. In a.m. you can have more success at regular duties. Listen to expert's suggestions.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ideal a.m. to go into the activities that most please you and be happy. Then handle financial problems wisely. Be charming.

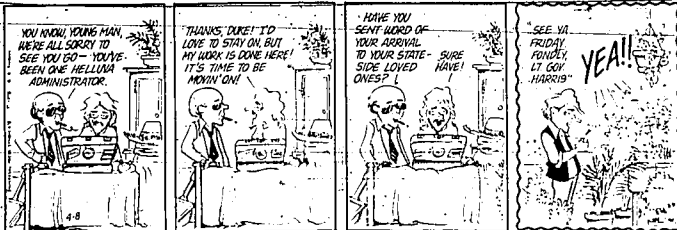

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be highly sensitive, so will need to be taught to be more objective in dealing with others. Otherwise the fine pioneering spirit and courage here will be lost and your progeny could suffer a good deal, instead of becoming highly successful. There could be fame in this chart, provided the parents give a happy home life easily.

Average age at which a woman now undergoes that physical change known as menopause is 50. Used to be in the mid-40s. This comes up because a client asks at what age did menopause occur among the majority of women in ancient Rome. It didn't. Not among the majority. Most of those Roman women didn't live long enough to experience it. Many did, true enough. And the late 30s was the time. But the life expectancy of women there and then, calculated to include all the deaths of children, was age 23.

BANDAGE

Mrs. Earle Dickson of New Brunswick, N.J., burned her fingers more than once on kitchen pans. Finally, her husband unrolled a strip of surgical tape sticky side up on a table, pulled the middle of it with a thin gauge strip, then covered it with the crumple. Anytime she might burn herself again, he told her, she was to scissor off a piece, tear away the crumple, and apply the little bandage. By now, you've guessed he worked for Johnson & Johnson. It was the superintendent of the company mill, W. Johnson Kenyon, who created the trade name "Band Aid."

Quake could trigger another

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Earthquakes may follow the domino theory, scientists say, with one major quake triggering another.

Approximately 1,200 seismologic, geologic and other earth scientists discussed the recurrence and relationships of earth tremors during a recent three-day conference at Cal State, Los Angeles.

"It seems that there is more structure to the occurrence of earthquakes, at least in the Pacific," said Michael A. Chinnery, leader of the applied seismology group at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Lincoln Laboratory.

According to Chinnery, sometimes "the whole Pacific plate is moving as a unit, so that when something happens in Alaska, something else happens some other place."

For example, a huge tremor that rattles Japan could trigger another large quake in Peru, Mexico, California or some other place on the edge of the Pacific basin.

In a study of 8,000 quakes with magnitudes between 2.2 and 6.5 on the Richter scale occurring between 1964 and 1974, Chinnery and MIT scientist Thomas E. Landers found there was a great deal of seismic activity in 1964-65.

There were large earthquakes then in Alaska, the Aleutian Islands and South America.

In 1973-74, Japan, South America and Mexico had the same type of movements, but between those periods of active seismic incidents were fairly few.

Scientists have generally accepted the theory that earthquakes are caused by the slipping and grinding of the earth's continental and oceanic plates against each other. Each tremor, however, had previously been viewed as a local phenomenon and not related to earth movement farther away.

Dr. Benjamin F. Howell Jr. of Pennsylvania State University, told the meeting that earthquakes recur along active faults and that an earthquake large enough to damage property could be expected within any 20-square-mile radius of a major fault.

"This could occur," he said, "on the average of once every 100 years."

Large earthquakes, such as the devastating 1906 jolt to San Francisco, do not recur as frequently as smaller tremors, Howell said, adding that if this theory is correct, the recurrence rate would be about once every 200 years.

"San Francisco has had its big earthquake for several hundred years," he said, "but Los Angeles hasn't. But that's a pure guess."

Several scientists said they considered the 1867 quake that hit Berkeley, Calif., about 100 miles north of here, to be Los Angeles' equivalent of San Francisco's big quake, but Howell disagreed.

Most of the scientists did agree, however, that pressure is being up in the San Andreas Fault between Bakersfield and the U.S.-Mexico border and that another large quake is inevitable, but none would hazard a guess as to when it might occur.

Quake damage still uncertain

MALAD CITY, Idaho (UPI) — Officials in the Malad City area were still busy today attempting to assess the total damage from the earthquakes which have been rocking the area since March 26.

The first quake registered 4.7 on the Richter scale and was followed the next day with one registering a magnitude of 6.4 on the scale. The epicenter of the quake was about 10 miles south of Malad City on the Idaho-Utah border.

Since the major quake March 27 there have been hundreds of aftershocks and several quakes which have registered above 4 on the Richter scale.

Officials said they were still finding structural damage to many homes and buildings in the area. They said old-style all-brick homes that were built before the 1934 Hansel Valley earthquake near here were the most severely damaged.

The officials said the Latter Day Saints chapel at Pleasantview, eight miles south of this community, appeared to have received the most damage of public buildings in the area. Damage has forced the congregation to hold its services in a recreation hall. Total damage has been assessed.

Roads, bridges, overpasses and dams in the area have been checked but no damage has been uncovered.

Mary Matthews of the Idaho Enterprise, a weekly newspaper, reported at the Le Fuhrman farm — believed to be the epicenter — the quake burst granaries, spilling wheat, and also "made a shambles of the interior of the home on the farm. The house is unoccupied during the winter months."

She said a tour of the area found all farming without irrigation and "we could not see any damage to the interior of the home in the valley and several had been moved off their foundations."
