US pledged Saigon aid in 1973

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard M. Nixon secretly promised South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu that the United States would react "vigorously" to any major violations of the Paris Peace Agreement by Communists, a White House spokesman said today.

In a statement, Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said, however, that the law passed by Congress on Aug. 15, 1973 outlawing military activity in Southeast Asia "of course ruled out the possibility of American military reaction to violations of the agreement."

OIL 'safety net' accord signed

PARIS (Chicago Daily News) — The United States and 21 other nations signed an agreement today for a $25-billion "safety net" to prevent falling into oil deficit bankruptcy.

SEC charges Honduras banana deal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Securities Exchange Commission today charged United Brands Co. of New York conducted a $2.5-million deal with high government officials of Honduras in exchange for favorable treatment on banana exports.

United Brands, one of the nation's largest importers of fruits, has made about half the agreed payments since August, 1974, the SEC alleged in a suit filed in the U.S. District Court.

New mayor

WICHITA, Kan. (UPI) — Connie Peters, 34, became Wichita's first woman mayor Tuesday. She was elected by the city commission on a 3-2 vote.

Mrs. Peters, the mother of three children, will serve for a year. She will also go into the state's history with Medora Salter of Argonia, the first woman to be elected mayor of an American city in 1887.

Trapped pair walking down mountain

PINKHAM NOTCH, N.H. (UPI) — A young couple trapped four days atop a storm-shrouded mountain planned to walk down to safety today with a rescue team.

Efforts to fly David Corne, 21, of Bingham, Maine, and Jane Glotti, 19, of Bethlehem, Pa., off Mt. Washington by helicopter were thwarted by near zero visibility and high winds.

AID chief blasts UN for help lack

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the U.S. foreign aid program today accused United Nations Secretary General Kurt Waldheim of failing to provide major assistance to South Vietnamese refugees.

TF tot classes given go-ahead

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls school trustees voted unanimously to offer kindergartens beginning this fall.

The pre-school program for 5-year-olds would be held at each of the district's five elementary schools.

Kindergarten sessions would be half-day long. Attendance would be optional according to the desire of parents.

As proposed by Supt. George Staudaher, the kindergarten program would last the full school year.

In calling for a decision on the program, school board chairman Howard Ronk said public sentiment was in favor of kindergartens at a meeting held on the issue Monday night.

"What I learned from the meeting last night just furthered my feelings already," Dr. Ronk said, adding that it was "unfortunate" that many people felt the board is "lukewarm or even opposed" to the program.

The board voted to adopt kindergartens and "instruct the superintendent to go ahead and implement" the program.

Staudaher said he would call a special school board meeting in two weeks to consider boundary lines for kindergarten districts. The next day, he said, registration for kindergarten and first grade would begin.

The district estimates 400 children will attend the tot classes. Current enrollment in the first grade stands at 500 district-wide, but some families are expected to not send their children while others are expected to use private kindergartens, Staudaher said today.

The estimated cost of the program is $149,000 with the state paying $125,000 if 400 students attend, he said.

Since kindergartens will be located at each of Twin Falls' five elementary schools, many of the 5-year-olds will be able to walk to school.

But the district will bus all the children who need transportation, Staudaher said. He did not know how many lots would need to take the bus. He said, however, that the district probably will not have to buy new buses since it had planned to cut back two or three buses because of the establishment of the new Sawtooth Elementary School. But, one of two more buses could be needed, he said.

The district also will provide mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks for the children attending the half-day kindergartens, Staudaher said. Estimated cost of the snack program is $20,400 next year at 20 cents a snack.

Army seeking $700 million in Viet aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand recommended more than $700 million in extra military aid for South Vietnam, but President Ford expects to seek much less in exchange for more humanitarian aid, administration officials said today.

The officials said Ford was expected to renew his request to Congress for $300 million in additional military aid to South Vietnam, but they were unable to say exactly how much he would seek to help meet the humanitarian needs of that war-torn nation.

These estimates surfaced at the White House as the President prepared to deliver a major foreign policy address to a joint session of Congress Thursday night. Ford was to meet with the National Security Council today to discuss the situation.

Weyand returned last weekend from a fact-finding mission for Ford in South Vietnam. The report he gave to the President was expected to be made public soon, probably Thursday, in connection with the President's speech.

But administration officials confirmed in advance that Weyand had recommended that the United States come up with an extra $700 million to help the South Vietnamese army in its battle against the Communists.

Ford also was expected to inform Congress of plans for a large evacuation of 100,000 to 150,000 South Vietnamese army officers, government officials, province chiefs, intelligence operatives and defectors who might be subject to Communist reprisals following North Vietnamese victories in the south.

The refugees were expected to be sent to Indonesia, the Philippines and the United States.

Reds hit Saigon flanks

SAIGON (UPI) — Two North Vietnamese divisions probed the outer defenses of Saigon today and partially occupied two provincial capitals and two district towns in what military sources called the beginning of the battle for Saigon.

The heaviest fighting was reported at the town of Xuan Loc, 38 miles almost due east of the capital, but there also was a Communist commando attack at Tan An provincial capital, 23 miles southwest of Saigon where the Communists cut Highway 4 into the Mekong Delta for eight hours.

The thrusts into the provincial capitals marked the first major fighting in provinces near Saigon since the latest Communist push began March 10 and quickly overran two-thirds of South Vietnam.

Communist gunners early today shelled Bien Hoa air base, 15 miles north of Saigon and military headquarters for the defense of the province around Saigon. Spokesmen said the 26 shells killed two soldiers and wounded 15 persons.

Brig. Gen. Nguyen Van Hieu, deputy commander of Military Region II which includes Saigon, was found shot to death in his headquarters at Bien-Hoa Tuesday. There were conflicting reports over whether his death was an accident or whether he had committed suicide in despondency over military reverses.

In addition to the two North Vietnamese divisions already in action, the Communists also held another two divisions — 20,000 men at full strength — in reverse, military sources said.

Elements of the 5th Viet Cong Division moved toward Saigon from the Plain of Reeds, sending a commando team into Tan An Province capital where they cut the so-called river road to the Mekong Delta for eight hours, backing up miles of traffic.

Phnom defenses weaken

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government military positions on two sides of the Phnom Penh defense perimeter have deteriorated further, military sources reported today. Field reports said there were several rebel penetrations of defense lines northwest of the airport during the night.

The defense lines are now as close as 3.3 miles from the city's airport, a gain of several hundred yards in the inch-by-inch fighting. But military sources said the insurgents themselves were worn down by the past three months of fighting and have been unable to mass enough troops to exploit the advantage. The sources said there were gaps of several hundred yards in some defense positions.

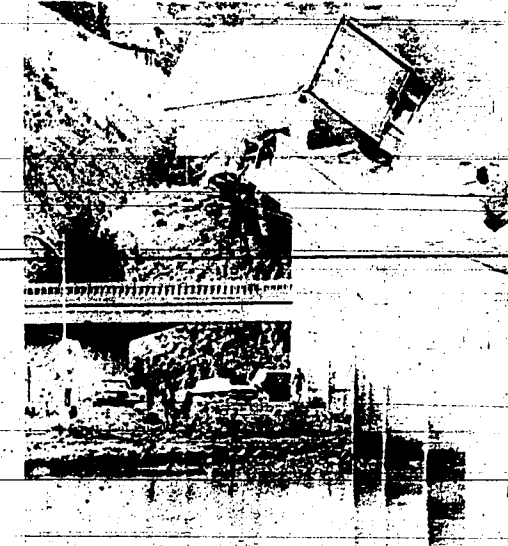

Another critical situation was reported developing on the east bank of the Mekong River facing the capital, and the rebels were reported pouring in reinforcements. The rebels there are so close they have been able to use short-range mortar and recoilless rifle fire on the city for the first time. The government now holds only a strip of about 3.5 miles along the bank and insurgents are within 2.5 miles of the city at some points there.

In political developments, Prime Minister Long Boret met again with senior government officials following his return Tuesday from a week-long absence in Indonesia and Thailand but the government denied Bangkok reports that Long-Boret had met with Khmer Rouge delegates there.

Long Boret did discuss the possibility of trying to open talks with the insurgents in his meetings with Thai and Indonesian leaders, government sources said, but not with the insurgents.

Some senior government officials here have discussed seeking a conditional surrender, but

TF teachers eye pay hike

TWIN FALLS — Teachers here plan to try for at least a 10 per cent wage hike next year, according to Ray Grubb, president of the Twin Falls Education Association.

In an interview Tuesday Grubb would not say exactly how much more money the teachers will bargain for.

But he said the legislature set aside money for a 12 per cent teacher raise and said the Twin Falls district should be able to afford a little more.

With inflation now running at 14 per cent, he said, "I don't think we should go below" 13 or 14 per cent.

Grubb said the TFEA is now examining about 70 pages of possible proposals for negotiation.

The proposals should be narrowed down to about five major items before negotiations begin. He would not say what those items are likely to be.

The TFEA was recognized by the Twin Falls School Board as the bargaining agent for teachers at the board meeting Tuesday night.

Canyon rim plan proposed

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — An advisory committee has unveiled a land-use plan to guide new development along a 14-mile stretch of the Snake River Canyon rim in Twin Falls County.

The Canyon Advisory Committee plan calls for limiting development north of Twin Falls City and reservation of rimland around Rock Creek and west of Hansen Bridge.

Those protected areas would be designated for agricultural use or retained in their natural state.

The plan is the culmination of 18 months of volunteer work by the committee.

The 12-member committee presented its plan to county and city officials in a meeting at the County Judicial Building Tuesday night. Arrangements for a public presentation of the plan, probably at the College of Southern Idaho, are being made by the county zoning commission.

The plan took the canyon rim from two miles west of Rock Creek to the Hansen Bridge. The study area also extends one to two miles back from the rim.

The basic recommendations of the plan include:

- A "development expansion area" from Grandview Drive North to Eastland Drive North, taking in Blue Lakes Boulevard North. The area includes about five square miles. It is set up to accommodate northward expansion of Twin Falls City.
- Septic tank sewage disposal systems would be restricted to one-per-acre in the area. However, all developments would be required to have "dry line" sewer and water systems which could be connected to public systems when trunk lines are extended to the area.
- Most of the area currently has access to public sewer and water systems.
- A small "planned unit development" area north of Pole Line Road, taking in Blue Lakes Boulevard and extending west to Perrine Coulee and east to Eastland Drive. The planned unit development designation would allow the county to give special consideration to developments in the area and require unique building standards.

A "buffer strip" setback is recommended on each side of Blue Lakes in the area which take into consideration any future widening of Blue Lakes.

- A low density development area extending east from Eastland Drive for about four miles. Development in this area would be limited to one housing unit per five acres. It takes in about four square miles.
- If public facilities are not available, sewage disposal would generally be limited to holding tanks or individual self-contained sewage systems in the area. However, septic tanks would be allowed on a minimum five-acre plot if soil conditions permit.
- An agricultural designation for the east and west ends of the study area from two miles west of Rock Creek to Grandview and from the Hansen Bridge to a mile west of Twin Falls Grade.
- The purpose of the designation "should be to maintain the economic base in Twin Falls County," the plan says.
- A minimum agricultural unit of 40 acres is recommended by the plan. (Continued on p. 17)

Part of another division, the 7th, swept into Xuan Loc Province capital of the same name, partially occupied Xuan Loc and fought with government defenders in the center of the city of 30,000 military spokesmen said. They said the Communists moved in from Tay Ninh province last week, poured 2,000 rounds of shellfire onto the provincial capital and broke into the city.

South Vietnamese spotters said they saw Communist forces crossing the Bach Dong Canal and the Cam Co Dong River 35 miles southeast of Saigon today.

Saigon was calm, with most residents unaware of the direct military threat to the capital less than 10 miles away.

Opening stages of battle for Saigon? Phnom defense weakens

Despite the shelling the emergency American airlift continued throughout the day with a total of 33 flights by DC-8 jets and prop-driven C-130 transports. The figure was lower than usual because of the closing of Saigon's airport after Tuesday's bombing attack on the presidential palace there.

Gun plan aims at cities

WASHINGTON — Atty Gen Edward H. Levi's complicated-sounding gun control proposal is really a rather straightforward plan to take the handguns off the streets of virtually all the nation's major cities.

Justice Department officials familiar with the development of the plan said the proposal to make it a federal crime to carry a handgun on the streets of cities with high crime rates was Levi's own brainchild and that it was designed to remove the guns without running into emotional arguments over registration.

Levi reportedly said that the South Vietnam cannot survive without more military assistance from the United States.

Do-Ahead Recipes for Special Occasions

Here's a selection of dramatic desserts, tested in The Kraft Kitchens. Each of these elegant dessert creations can be made ahead of time.

Caramel Praline Soufflé is an outstanding refrigerated soufflé. Its unique flavor is developed through the use of luscious melted caramels. The contrast between this soufflé's light, airy texture and crunchily glazed nut topping make it a unique culinary experience.

If you've always wanted to make a soufflé and have been unwilling to begin with the hot variety, this is your chance to experiment. The gelatin, beaten egg white and whipping cream will insure this cold soufflé's stability and delicate texture.

Royal Pots de Crème are a classic French dessert idea. In this recipe, chocolate and orange flavors blend together beautifully with fluffy marshmallow creme. The combination of ingredients results in a light dessert that will delight guests after a satisfying meal.

Cream puffs, a treat in a class with chocolate eclairs, are surprisingly easy to make from scratch. The shells and filling can be prepared a day ahead and assembled just before serving. Crescent City Cream Puffs depend upon a packaged pudding mix for the filling. Mixed with tender miniature marshmallows, whipping cream and sliced bananas, this simple pudding base becomes special. Serve puffs with prepared Chocolate or Butterscotch topping, and you'll find common ingredients conveniently transformed into a gourmet's delight.

Strawberry Glacé Cheesecake is dazzling in appearance and flavor. Philadelphia brand cream cheese gives this baked cheesecake a rich creamy texture. The pastry crust, typically European, provides a stable base for high cheesecakes. Though not as common in this country as graham-cracker crusts, pastry crusts are simple to prepare and spread easily in a springform pan.

The cheesecake can be made as long as two days ahead of time, if covered in the refrigerator to prevent drying. The impressive strawberry topping can be added up to four hours before serving.

Whether you're looking for a dessert that has the flair to top off a company meal, is just right to serve for a celebration or will stand on its own as an entrée with coffee, one of these delicacies is sure to meet your special entertaining needs.

Action on bipartisanship needed, not talk

WASHINGTON—President Ford has invited the American people to assess the blame for the lost Vietnam, and President Thieu in Saigon has invited us to rush to his aid or be branded as "traitors," but maybe he don't need any more divisons than we have in this tragedy-to-avoid-us all.

Latin America, Europe and Africa, and a fundamental re-evaluation of our foreign policy, trade and monetary policy and strategic arms policy.

partisan foreign policy. About at the same time, and "the same spirit," Secretary of State Kissinger had another of his periodic meetings with Dean Rusk, George Ball, McGeorge Bundy, Cyrus Vance, and other prominent members of past Democratic administrations, plus his academic critics of both parties, to discuss where the nation goes from here.

It is within our power if the parties will forget the politics and "stay together with the humanity of the problem."

Kick the habit

Fear of another round of hyperinflation should open congressional ears to what President Ford is saying. The new federal budget deficit probably will exceed $100 billion.

$100 billion is an enormous blot of red ink. It equals nearly one-third of current spending levels. It is as large as the whole federal budget a decade ago. It represents about $1,500 for every family in the United States.

Worse yet, a huge deficit in one year tends to make people want the same big spending and tax cuts each following year. Once a budget is so far in the red, it is nearly impossible to rally the political support needed to move back to the black.

Injections of deficit dollars into the economy are like giving amphetamines to a junky. The monetary high soon fades to a depressed low, leading to a desperate scramble for another fix.

Even conservative voters can become hooked. President Ford pleads for self-restraint while his own "moderate" budget will build to a $60 billion deficit without new spending programs added.

There is a place in the nation's fiscal policy for deficit budgets. Deficits are a proven method of lifting an economy out of a slump or depression. But when deficits are not balanced by surpluses during prosperous years, then the nation begins to build a false prosperity based on red ink, inflation and devaluation of the dollar.

Through time, the federal budget must be balanced. Years of deficit must be countered by years of equally large surpluses.

The best course for the United States to pursue now is to hold deficits to a reasonable level below the recession. This means levels far below $100 billion.

Perhaps a realistic goal is to hold deficits at the $60 billion figure, and to move as quickly as possible to a balanced budget.

There is no question: the national economy is suffering an economic illness. It is time to call a doctor who dispenses only the drugs which are needed by his patient and nothing more. But it is no time to call in the pusher with his deficit "fix."

If the nation is serious about its long-term recovery it will be willing to suffer the necessary treatment.

Ethnic policymaking truce sought

WASHINGTON—Even while publicly implying the Democratic Congress is to blame for catastrophe in Vietnam, President Ford has been privately negotiating with individual congressmen unsuccessfully, so far—in an attempt to control ethnic foreign policymaking.

Specifically, Ford sought but did not find a formula that would lead to Congress repealing its ban on military aid to Turkey, which if continued threatens new reverses abroad for the U.S. rivaling Vietnam. The ban on aid to Turkey is the product of ethnic politics. Ford's failure to get aid resumed is the product of ethnic politics.

This explains genuine alarm inside the administration that numerically small but politically powerful ethnic groups are now influencing foreign policy as they long have been a force in domestic decision-making.

Nowhere has the danger been clearer than in the ban on Turkish aid, pushed through Congress by an alliance of the small-potent Greek lobby and the large, potent Israeli lobby.

To deal with it, Ford on March 21 found himself personally negotiating with the three liberal Democratic congressmen who lead the Greek-Israeli alliance: Reps. Benjamin and Paul Sarbanes of Maryland. The subject: what they demand from Turkey as the price for permitting resumption of aid.

In the background of the President's secret negotiations with them is the disaster awaiting the U.S. within one month when Turkey begins closing down highly sensitive American bases along the Turkish-Soviet border.

The first bases earmarked for closing are three or four "listening posts" (among a total of at least 30 U.S. installations in Turkey). These posts conduct intelligence operations, mostly electronic, against the Soviet Union—so secret that even the host country, Turkey, has no access to the information obtained.

With the formation of a new Turkish government after months of a caretaker regime, the U.S. has now been handed a list of the bases that Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel intends to close down.

That was the setting for Ford's personal effort with Sarbanes, Brademas and Sarbanes. His message: the moment Americans are evicted

New chapter in Southeast Asia opens

PARIS—The world now opens a new chapter in Southeast Asia, and nobody can say for certain what it will disclose. China is uneasy because of pronounced Soviet influence in North Vietnam.

Eighteen months ago I had a long discussion with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, head of the entire Cambodian government recognized by China (and recently Russia). During this talk in Peking Sihanouk took what now seems to be an objective view of the probable effect of Communist victories.

"I don't believe the Indochina revolution will change all Southeast Asia just like that," he said. "There are too many contradictions. For example, Singapore, Malaysia, Thailand, Japan and Indonesia are strongly pro-U.S.A."

"Pham Van Dong, premier of North Vietnam, told me the Communist party in Thailand is badly organized and won't ever be able to win."

Cambodia, the Khmer Rouge fights for Cambodia, not to export revolution. "India isn't neutral," he virtually an ally of Russia. Burma's neutrality is special, you might call it neutralized neutrality.

C. I. L. ZILBERGER "All over there are fundamental contradictions between the Reds and what I call the Blues, the conservatives. After the war I know I won't be able to get along with the Khmer Rouge myself. I'm not a Marxist, and you can't mix with Communism, they like oil and mix with non-Communists—I am by inclination."

With Southeast Asia rapidly falling under direct Communist influence and power, President Ford is trying desperately to prevent another major American defeat resulting not from Communist arms but from political pressures on some involving a miscellaneous percentage of the American people. He still awaits his first success.

Portland (Maine) Press Herald "The U.S. Senate, after discussing one tax relief bill, hastily adopted another that gives aid and comfort to millions of U.S. taxpayers at an estimated cost of $3.1 billion.

Now it has gone to conference with the House, whose own tax bill is just under $20 billion, but $4 billion more than President Ford wants to do out of tax cuts and rebates.

Both original bills were virtual Christmas trees loaded with goodies for taxpayers. Just about everyone gets rebates from $10 to slightly over $200 a year, while lower tax rates will begin to cut wage withholdings, the same month.

If the two chambers split the difference, the tax bill that President Ford will get could be in the neighborhood of $3 billion, even take a trillion or two.

EVANS AND NOVAK

Moreover, pro-Greek forces in Congress, enormously strengthened by their alliance with the pro-Israeli bloc, will not lift a finger to help the President unless the Turkish government moves first.

So effective is the Greek lobby in the Senate that Ford has been warned against forcing a Senate vote on the anti-aid repealer approved two weeks ago by a 97 squaker in the Foreign Relations Committee. The President has been told that debate on the repealer would make Turkey the whipping boy, stirring up even harsher anti-Americanism among nationalistic Turkish politicians and parties. Thus, a Senate debate would be counterproductive.

What makes this so irrational is that by any yardstick, military power, geographic position, control of the Dardanelles, or proximity to Israel—Turkey dwarfs Greece in terms of American interests.

Yet that fact is ignored by politicians responsive to a small ethnic voting bloc, just as U.S. interests in the vast Moslem and Arab world, which is generally pro-American and anti-Soviet, have been consistently ignored in favor of Israel.

There isn't anything we can do, at this point, to reverse the situation in South Vietnam.

What we could do is stop talking about the causes of the South Vietnamese defeat in all its guises. The only common denominator is that it wasn't our fault.

If you'll help in the case of South Vietnam, but the following points should be made, for future reference: 1. The so-called "will to resist" is a hugely exaggerated factor, in assessing a nation's will to resist.

The principal question to ask is: whether a population has the will to resist its marauders, but whether it has the means and the organization.

There is no more eloquent testimony than the lengths the refugees have gone to avoid coexistence with the enemy from the north on the point of what the South Vietnamese population desires. It desires to keep the enemy away.

We all took for granted that the people who inhabited the Lowlands, and the Republic of France, had the "will" to resist the armies of Adolf Hitler. But they contained Hitler less successfully, over a shorter period of time, than South Vietnam contained North Vietnam.

Conclusions on Vietnam

There isn't a doubt that he cavilled at certain means of eliminating corruption. The courts of New York City could exhibit their will to reduce the criminal element in New York by corrupting the way they deal with it.

Thieu's toleration of corruption has earned him the contempt of many American peaceocks of civic righteousness. One wonders whether they would have admired him more if he deathly corrupting the way they deal with it.

William F. Buckley, Jr. 4. The bombardment of ruthlessness and audacity is powerful. Cortes brought with him to Mexico 508 soldiers, 100 horses, 10 bronze guns, 4 falconets, and 13 shotguns, and conquered an empire of brave, but easygoing people.

The North Vietnamese, day by day, developed an arms edge over the South Vietnamese, and calmly constructed super-highways down which they were able to transport tanks shored on their by Moscow and Peking even as Congress slowly closed the faucet.

For every observable sin committed by Thieu, the leaders of the third Republic in France committed a dozen. But it takes a special sort of callousness to say that a failure to develop the characteristics appropriate to resisting Genghis Khan merit life under Hitler, which is the kind of life towards which the South Vietnamese are now headed.

We are entitled to conclude that the North Vietnamese did indeed fight as bravely and as tenaciously as the U.S. soldiers. Washington Star Syndicate

'Babylift' latest chapter in Viet tragedy

Chicago Sun-Times
The so-called Operation Babylift out of Vietnam is being hailed as a wonderful and noble gesture on the part of the United States. It is not.
Instead, it is an appalling continuation of the overwhelming American arrogance that has made Vietnam a tragedy for our country from the day we arrived there.
I realize that this is going to be an unpopular notion judging from the well-eyec reports from newscasters and reporters, the U.S.-sponsored flights of orphans from Saigon to the United States are widely being viewed as positive evidence of America's humanitarianism and decency. It is easy to get good press when you can use babies as props.
But before this goes too far, it is time to stop for a moment and admit the real thinking that lies behind the taking of babies out of Asia: the theory that the American way of life is the only good way of life, and that we are doing the Vietnamese a favor by allowing them to try to be like us.

We went over there to win hearts and minds. We failed miserably. Now it seems that every person in Southeast Asia who is old enough to talk is busy proclaiming hatred for the United States. So what do we do? Still refusing to learn, we start grabbing the only Asians who are too young to talk back to us, and we bring them over here and announce plans to make them American citizens.

No one could object to evacuation of the children from Saigon now that an attack on the city seems imminent. Throughout the history of warfare, efforts have been made to get children out of the line of fire until the danger has passed.

But this is different. We are not taking the babies to a safe zone until the threat of bombing is over. We are picking them up out of their homeland, and flying them halfway around the world to our own country, where we have determined that some should be.

It is an easy and convenient way to alleviate American guilt over what has happened in Vietnam. To show "an American President cradling a Vietnamese baby in his arms is to comfort a nation. But where was the concern for Asian infants when we were conducting saturation drops of bombs over the Vietnamese countryside? Where was the concern for Asian infants when we were dropping napalm as a matter of course?

Yesterday the South Vietnamese tried to cease the taking of Asian babies out of Asia, but our own country protested, and so the flights were resumed. Will no one stop to ask what right we have to be doing this? Will no one stop to wonder how we are so sure that a Vietnamese child will be happier growing up in Illinois or Alabama than in Vietnam?

The news film has shown Vietnamese foster mothers weeping as plane loads of the babies lift off from Saigon. Can anyone blame the foster mothers? Our country is still so smugly confident that it knows best, that it has all of the answers to the mysteries of life in Southeast Asia.

To say that Americans feel profound and genuine sympathy for the Vietnamese children is simply not enough. It is not our right to determine that the Vietnamese children will be happier as Americans.

Joseph H. Reid, executive director of the Child Welfare League of America, has addressed himself to this question. This is what he said: "Vietnamese, like all people, do not want to lose their children. All Vietnamese have a strong sense of family obligation, and they have shown themselves willing and capable of caring for their own children. Our great moral responsibility is to enable them, in their time of great tragedy, to do so."

"Wouldn't it be far better for the children of Vietnam to be cared for in their own highly civilized culture — whether Communist or non-Communist — than to destroy that culture further by exporting tens of thousands of them to alien homes? Hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese men, women and children have died during decades of war. Do we further deplete their population by "rescuing" their children through flight to the U.S.?"
The unspoken thought behind the taking of the children from their homeland is that we are saving them from a life growing up under Communism. But are we so certain that a Vietnamese child will be less able to adjust to a North Vietnamese government than to a foreign life in the United States? The war is a civil war, and there is no reason to believe that, in its aftermath, North Vietnamese soldiers would do purposeful harm to Vietnamese infants. My Lai was an American atrocity, not a Communist atrocity.

But we will not listen, of course. Instead we will bring plane load after plane load of Vietnamese children to the United States, where we will give them to American parents and change their names to American names. And they will grow up outsiders in a land not their own, and as they approach adulthood they will read the history of what happened in the land where they were born. They will read of the American adventure in Vietnam, and they will wonder how it ever developed that they ended up here. But they will know the answer. They are here because they are the final chapter of an American blindness and an American shame that we still will not admit is real.

Hang gliding — a daring sport while strapped in a huge triangular kite — is rapidly becoming the most popular of 1 e new leisure sports. It can also be a killer sport, as evidenced in the death of a young Californian whose kite carried him into some high voltage power lines.

There's no denying the lyric appeal of gliding gracefully and silently above the crowded, mechanized chaos of civilization — even if the glide is just a few feet off the ground and of but a few seconds' duration. The wish to fly is one of man's oldest and most insistent fantasies. But the wish is concomitant with danger; the myth of Icarus, who flew too close to the sun, confirms that. A San Diego professor has concluded that the chances of serious injury from hang gliding are 1 to 10. The sport has claimed more than 30 lives. Injury and death are potential consequences of hang gliding that deserve consideration — especially from parents of young children.

Sharpen existing laws

Editor, Times-News:
I am becoming increasingly alarmed over the news relating to the pending laws to confront handgun ammunition.

According to one news article, a proposal would implement a mandatory one-year jail term, which a judge would be powerless to reduce, if found guilty of "illegally" possession handgun ammunition.

Rather than compound the law enforcement problem further, why not put some teeth into the laws we already have?

I believe few people are aware that under present Idaho law (Idaho Code section 19-2601), the district court has the power to suspend execution of the full sentence of any "thief" during the first 120 days (except in cases of treason or murder), and place the defendant on probation.

For example, upon conviction of robbery, the punishment for which is "imprisonment in the state prison not less than five years," (Idaho Code section 18-6203), the defendant could be released and placed on probation after serving

120 days or less. If he is a first time offender. (There's a first time for everything — even John Dillinger had to start somewhere!)

Wouldn't it be feasible to remove the probation situation for serious violent firearms?

It seems to me that the armed robber would give the matter a little more thought if he thought he may actually have to serve his sentence in prison. Right now, it's almost a joke — even television "cops and robbers" shows point out that the convicted felon rarely goes to prison unless he is a habitual offender.

Letters in various agencies in Washington, D.C., in opposition to the enactment of these ammunition laws are available at most sporting goods stores.

If you are opposed to this legislation, don't just sit there reading this! Get up and go do something about it — yes, RIGHT NOW!! We only have until about April 17th to make our opinions known.

Act now, guard arms right

Editor, Times-News:
On this handgun control business I can't believe that the officials of our government would think that they can deny the Bill of Rights and take away people's right to own and bear arms.

I know that we have a lot of people that misuse this right but one way to get around this is to bring back capital punishment in every state in the union. The crime rate is something terrible in this country now and it is bad in Idaho also.

Too many people bend the law to suit themselves nowadays. The US is too lenient with the laws. The law makers are going to have to be tougher with the law making in the future if there is to be safety in this country for the US citizen. I would hate to try and live in this country without the police force.

Mr. Levi is overstepping his authority of office I think trying to take away guns. He is defying the Bill of Rights when he says he is going to try and take handguns away from us.

I understand that Mr. Levi has been promised the next vacancy on the US Supreme Court by taking the job as US attorney general. I hope that the people understand that if he does get a seat on the Supreme Court that we'll be in all kinds of trouble trying to keep our handguns.

According to the Bill of Rights no one has the right to take our handguns or any other kind of gun away from us. We had better act on this now if we expect to keep our rights for handguns or anything else that can be taken away.

While driving to Pocatello Friday we developed car trouble about 16 miles on this side of American Falls. While I was trying to determine our problem, a car passed us going toward Twin Falls. It slowed down, turned around, pulling up and stopping in back of us. He knew at once what our trouble was and that it would require a tow truck to come and pull us to a garage.

Without even considering how much time was involved or the distance he would have to backtrack, he put us all into his car and took us into American Falls. Before leaving us there, he advised, until we had made the necessary arrangements to get a tow truck and to see that everything was going to be all right. He then graciously declined my offer to pay him for his time and trouble.

Gem solon protests sales ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Sen. Frank Church protested to the Consumer Product Safety Commission today attempts to ban the sale of handgun ammunition.

The commission was petitioned by the Committee for Handgun Control, Inc. to ban the sale of handgun ammunition as a hazardous substance. The commission has been ordered by a court to hear the petition.

In a letter to Commission Chairman Richard Simpson, Church protested the hearing violates "the intent of Congress in establishing the commission."

The Idaho Democrat noted the court itself, in the decision, concedes that Congress clearly and unambiguously eliminated guns and ammunition from the authority of the commission under the Consumer Product Safety Act.

Church said Congress "has traditionally dealt separately with firearms and ammunition and did so again under this act."

The senator also chided the commission for not appealing the court order.

"Because there has been no appeal, Congress is being further legislative action to reemphasize that the commission is banned from the consideration of guns and ammunition," Church said.

'Godfather Part II' named top movie

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "The Godfather Part II" completed an unprecedented Academy Awards triumph Tuesday night. Ellen Burstyn won a close contest for the best actress. Oscar and television comedian Art Carney climaxed a night of surprises by taking the Oscar for best actor.

"The Godfather Part II" was named best picture — the first time an Oscar-winning movie was followed by an Oscar-winning sequel — and outdistanced all rivals with a total of seven awards.

It was a night of triumph for Francis Ford Coppola, who won an Oscar himself as best director for "Godfather II" and shared the Oscar for writing the film with Mario Puzo, author of the best-selling novel that began it all.

Coppola saw his own family do as well as his powerful fictitious mobsters, with his father Carmine Coppola taking an Oscar for the movie's score, a rare and possibly unprecedented father-son victory. It brought to 10 the number of Oscars won by the saga of the Corleone dynasty, begun by the original "Godfather," named the best picture of 1972.

The best supporting actor and actress awards went to a traditional favorite, Ingrid Bergman, and a newcomer, Robert De Niro, for his portrayal of a younger version of Marlon Brando's Don Vito Corleone in "Godfather II."

Miss Burstyn won the best actress award for her performance as a housewife turned down and out sinner in "Alice Does It Here Anywhere," nosing out powerful competition from Faye Dunaway ("Chinatown") and Gena Rowlands ("A Woman Under the Influence"). She had been nominated, but lost, last year for "The Exorcist" and in 1971 for her supporting performance in "The Last Picture Show."

A jubilant Carney, who danced a little jig on his way to the stage to collect his statue, won the best actor award playing a gallant old man on a cross-country trek with his cat in "Harry and Tonto." Carney, Jackie Gleason's former television comedy foil, said he was grateful to his agent, who advised him, when he had doubts about a dramatic role sharing top billing with a cat: "Do it; you are old."

"I'm 56 years old and I'm still a kid," Carney said. "I've still got stars in my eyes."

Miss Bergman won her third Oscar, her first in a supporting role, over her performance as a religious fanatic in "Murder on the Orient Express."

The awards were again used as a platform for a political statement. Bert Schneider, coproducer of the winning feature documentary, "Hearts and Minds," a film about the Vietnam War, read a telegram he said was from the chief

Viet Cong representative in Paris, Dinh Da Thi. Schneider said the telegram offered "greetings of friendship to all the American people" and asked him to transmit it to all our friends in America our recognition of all that they have done on behalf of peace."

"Later in the show emcee Frank Sinatra said he had been asked to make a statement on behalf of the Motion Picture Academy, saying: "We are not responsible for any political statements made on this program, and we're sorry they had to take place this evening."

It was not clear whether the Academy, which has not rebuked such political statements in the past, authorized the repudiation. A spokesman for NBC, which broadcast the show, said the statement had been written backstage by Bob Hope, who is not an officer of the academy, and Academy representatives could not confirm that its officers had ordered the statement made.

The victories by De Niro and Carney surprised observers, who regarded Fred Astaire as a sentimental vote shoe-in in the supporting actor class, and the best actor competition as mainly between Jack Nicholson ("Chinatown") and Al Pacino ("Godfather II"), neither of whom attended the ceremony.

But Carney's victory was a popular surprise to his fellows, drawing one of the loudest rounds of applause of the night from the crowd of celebrities in the Los Angeles Music Center.

Italy's "Amarcord" was named best foreign film. Best song honors went to "We May Never Love Like This Again" from "Towering Inferno," which was second in the Oscar sweepstakes with three awards.

Miss Burstyn was not present to accept her award. Miss Bergman said it was much for a little work. I think Valentina Cortese should have won it for "Day for Night."

The 2½-hour show was hosted by Hope, Shirley MacLaine, Sammy Davis Jr. and Frank Sinatra, each of whom was introduced with a series of film clips from Academy Award shows of past years.

Running mate criteria listed

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. (UPI) — Julian Bond was too young to run for national office when his name was offered as a vice presidential choice at the 1968 Democratic convention. Next Jan. 14 he will be 35, old enough to run for president, and he already has chosen criteria for a running mate.

Ford asks veto support opinions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has ordered his Cabinet to give him some preliminary views on a possible veto of legislation that would create a consumer protection agency.

The ammunition Ford wants is a report from each Cabinet member on what the departments are doing now to help the consumer. The President reportedly hopes to stack up enough evidence to prove that a new agency to help the consumer is not really needed.

The order, it was learned, went out at a Cabinet meeting two weeks ago after the legislation began what is expected to be a speedy passage through Congress. The Cabinet officers were told to bring back their reports this week.

Ford reportedly spoke of the legislation in a negative way at the meeting but stopped short of saying he would veto it. Sen. John Tower (R-Tex.) was on record as saying he expects a veto, as the Office of Management and Budget recommended.

Vatican authorizes book censor list

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican said today bishops have a God-given right to ban books "attacking the true faith of good mores" and authorized the Roman Catholic Church hierarchy to draw up lists of censors.

The Sacred Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, successor to the Medieval Inquisition, issued a decree, approved by Pope Paul VI, strongly reaffirming the need for church approval of any books dealing with religion or morals.

Approval has been the task of national bishops' conferences since the Vatican discontinued its Index of Forbidden Books in 1966 as inadequate in the face of the avalanche of modern literature.

FBI finds no trace of Patty

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal investigators have found no evidence that Patricia Hearst hid in the Manhattan apartment of sports figure Jack Scott, according to a high ranking official close to the case.

The official also said the FBI doubts that the 21-year-old fugitive newspaper heiress traveled to New York City at all since she was carried screaming from her apartment in Berkeley, Calif., on Feb. 4, 1974, supposedly the kidnap victim of the radical Symbionese Liberation Army.

The source, who asked that his name be withheld, said investigators reached their conclusions after a painstaking examination of Scott's real estate apartment on Manhattan's Upper West Side.

The disclosure contradicts earlier reports that Miss Hearst might have stayed at the apartment after fleeing a Pennsylvania farmhouse relative to by Scott and his wife, Mick.

In San Francisco, newswoman Marilyn Baker of KPPIX-TV told late Tuesday of a report that Miss Hearst and the Scotts were on route to Algeria to seek asylum. The report could not be confirmed. The FBI had no comment.

The FBI reportedly has fingerprints and other evidence indicating Miss Hearst and other fugitives found refuge last summer in the farmhouse near South Canaan, Pa.

Charges dropped in Blaine case

KETCHUM — Charges have been dropped on three persons in a payee drug bust involving 15 arrests in Ketchum during March.

Blaine County Pros Tom Campion moved to dismiss charges Monday, but Jams Marlin Houston, Kirk Edward Peterson and Kris B. Peterson, all charged with possession of a controlled substance in the Sun (chateau on Warm Springs Road.

Each of the three defendants pleaded guilty to the charge. Houston and Kris Peterson have been placed on probation for one year and fined $150. All jail time was suspended.

Kirk Peterson received a jail sentence of 60 days with all but 10 days suspended and 2 days credit for time spent there already. He was fined $250 and freed on a work release program with a one-year probation.

Libertarian Party asks ballot space

BOISE (UPI) — The Libertarian Party of Idaho wants to take its place on the ballot alongside the Republican, Democratic and American Independent parties.

Allen Dalton, state chairman of the new political organization, said Tuesday that he plans to apply later this month for affiliation with the national Libertarian party.

Dalton said the party was in the organizational stage and hopes to have a state convention later this summer, possibly in the Twin Falls-Hayley area.

The first formal gathering of the party in Idaho was held in Boise Sunday with the appearance of Roger MacFreide, a Virginian who is considered a contender for the Libertarian presidential nomination in 1976.

Dalton noted that Idaho Republican Congressman Steve Symms had not identified himself with the Libertarian party but that "he has voted for sugar price supports and for food import quotas. I believe, and has not supported amnesty."

"We hope he'll see fit to come the rest of the way with us," Dalton said.

Symms told the Idaho Statesman in a telephone interview he didn't "quite endorse" everything Libertarian do because of the practical realities of where we are now — such as their stand on legalizing hard drugs.

Jerome planners schedule meeting

JEROME — The Jerome Planning Council will hold a regular work meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday night.

The meeting had been scheduled for Wood Cafe but has been changed to the basement of the new courthouse annex, according to Alan Smith, coordinator.

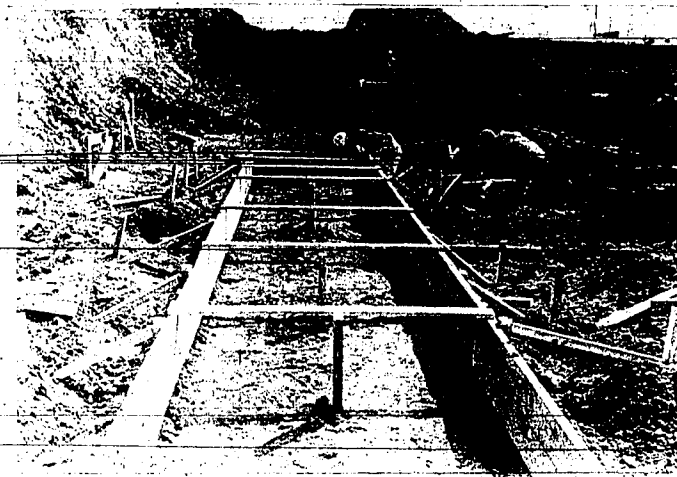

Mrs. Smith said entrance to the basement is on the east side of the building.

Mrs. Smith noted that the April 12 planning council will hold its semi-annual dinner at 7:30 p.m. at Valley High School.

Tickets for the smorgasbord are $3.25 each and may be paid for at the door that evening. However, reservations must be made by the 14th by calling the Jerome County Planning Council office at 324-582 or the home of Louise Robinson 324-584 or Mrs. Smith at 324-783. Mrs. Smith said.

She explained that the dinner meeting will not have a regular guest speaker but that the six chairmen of the different committees working the comprehensive plan for Jerome County will give reports.

"Also we will be changing the by-laws, electing three committee members and offering all members a complete update on our planning progress. Reports will be heard from the social, physical, economic, recreation and airport advisory committees," Mrs. Smith said.

Spring snow slows construction of new Jerome High School

Progress slow at Jerome site

JEROME — Bad weather has slowed the construction of the new $3 million high school east of Jerome adjacent to the one-mile road and State High way 25.

Snow and heavy mud has hampered work at the site, according to workmen at the job.

Actual on-site construction began last month with ground preparation and the digging of the basement for the school. Work began this week on forms for the foundation which will be poured as soon as weather permits. Work has also been started on underground plumbing and electrical connection so the floor may be poured.

According to the architect's drawings the school will be built in a split-level arrangement, with the main part of the school having two floors.

The upper floor will house the commercial, science, math and English departments as well as the library area.

The lower floor will contain locker rooms, a wrestling and weight room, arts and crafts, home economics department and the cafeteria.

Like most schools now being constructed very few windows will be placed in the structure. The exterior of the school will be faced with rock stained wood, stucco and rock paneling and einder block.

Landmarks spared

BOISE (UPI) — Boise's landmark Idaho Hotel has been saved from destruction along with the Sonna Building and J.C. Penney Store, which had been earmarked for demolition as part of the city's urban renewal.

The Broadbent Development Company, which owns the buildings, had requested that the Boise Redevelopment Agency spare the buildings and Tuesday the area was removed from eligibility for federal funding, leaving no money with which the buildings could be purchased by the agency.

The action is contingent on an agreement with the Broadbent firm at its own cost.

TF OK's urban boundary map

TWIN FALLS — An urban boundary map for the city of Twin Falls has been adopted by the city council in order to qualify for federal secondary street funds.

The map shows a general urban area outside of the specific city limits where the city is likely to expand in the near future and where street and road improvements are expected.

City Manager Jean Milar told the council Monday night such boundary and public notification action in the public meeting will cover this requirement, he said.

The council also approved an agreement with the Twin Falls Highway District for maintenance of streets which now constitute the city boundary lines.

The two agencies share in the cost of these streets with the city responsible for half of them and the county the other half. Little change is shown in the 1975 agreement over last year, Milar said.

In other action a curfew variance was approved for Norm Tarter's OK Tire Shop on Fourth Avenue West and authorization was given Twin Falls Feed and Ice Co. for installing an ice vending machine at Harmon Park.

Ketchum man named in suit

HAYLEY — A $500,000 civil suit has been filed here against Jim Greengrater, Ketchum, for his part in a fight Feb. 3 at Mountain Meadows Training Park.

Kathy Miller, Stefanie Miller, Tommy Miller, Frank Gilbo Jr. and Edward Tyler Melanson each have brought a $100,000 punitive damage suit against Greengrater.

The suit alleges Greengrater pointed a loaded automatic pistol at the five plaintiffs after he had fought with Frank Gilbo.

In a related criminal case, Gilbo was charged with aggravated assault for beating Greengrater "severely on his head and body between 15:20 times," a police complaint said for his part in the fight.

Gilbo has pleaded innocent and will appear in court April 16.

According to the civil suit against Greengrater, the two men engaged in a "physical altercation" arising out of Greengrater's attempt to render aid to plaintiff Kathy Miller.

Kathy Miller was not in need of aid and expressly did not share the defendant's intervention, the suit alleges.

According to the suit, after Greengrater was removed physically from the premises he entered his mobile home, walked out with a loaded automatic pistol over to the car "where each plaintiff was placed in apprehension of fear or death or grievous body harm."

'Moon Maid' says April windy, ugly

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) —

Two almanacs say the sun will shine on Oklahoma for most of the second half of the month. Weather forecasters using scientific data say much the same thing. But Wanna McNeill, who predicts weather by looking at the moon, says it's going to snow in April.

Mrs. McNeill, who says her forecasts are 85 per cent correct, uses the moon's phases and nodes, or points where the moon's orbit intersects the planes of the planets' orbits, to make long-range weather predictions. She uses several almanacs to interpret the moon's phases.

"I don't see much good about April," Mrs. McNeill, 73, who calls herself the Moon Maid, said Monday. "It's just going to be a windy, ugly month."

"On the 11th of April the new moon enters at 11:39 a.m. in conjunction with Saturn, giving us high winds, cold and dry," she says. She predicts snow at least as far south as Oklahoma City after April 19 when the first quarter moon appears.

"But cheers. After the full pink moon on the 25th at 2:55 p.m. it will be sunny and bright," she wrote in her April report.

May, however, will be cold, and May Day will be wet, she said.

Mrs. McNeill has given regular forecasts on radio and television shows in the area since 1966.

She calls television forecasters to congratulate them on the proximity of their forecasts to hers. Recently she heard a Salt Lake City forecaster who had just been surprised with a sudden snowfall and sent him her forecast for the area.

She also has tips for gardeners.

"From the full moon to the new, plant crops that bear below the ground and from the new moon to the full, plant crops that bear above the ground," she said.

She said the moon governs all weather and "it's bound to govern the seeds you put in the ground."

It planted under the wrong moon, the plants bearing above the ground will go to leaves or blossoms and the plants that bear underground will grow tops and not produce anything, she said.

"Our grandfathers had nothing to go on except watching weather from year to year," she said.

"It's a lot of fun," she said. "I have had boy and girl scouts call about their tramps and a highway patrolman called me and wanted to know what the weather was going to be like when he was getting married."

Pool progresses

The Lincoln county swimming pool work continues on schedule for the June 1 completion date. Speaking for the fund-raising committee, Myron D. Johnson said money from pledges continues to come in from the walkathon when about 50,000 was made to help pay off the $15,000 balance needed.

Pacific islanders sue British commissioners

LONDON (UPI) — A tiny group of Pacific islanders takes on the British government today in a David-Goliath battle for a treasure island and a prize of $53 million.

Two lawsuits beginning in Britain's high court today will center on ecology, conservation and the islanders' right to have their island back.

The root, however, is money — royalties from phosphates mined on Ocean Island, a 1,500-acre pinprick several hundred miles west of the Gilbert and Ellis Islands — plus the cost of making the island livable again.

The suits pit 2,000 homeless Ocean islanders, who claim they have been wronged for half a century, against the British government, allied with Australia and New Zealand in a combine known as the British Phosphate Commissioners.

Britain annexed Ocean Island — also known as Banaba — in 1900 when mineral phosphates were found on it. In 1950, the three-nation consortium bought out a private mining company and the alleged rape of the island began.

Open cast mining ripped out the center of the tiny island, forcing the islanders to leave. Phosphates were "shipped" to Australia and New Zealand.

and the islanders — who call themselves Banabans — got a royalty.

Royalties stopped when the invading Japanese in 1942 dispersed the Banabans around other islands. They restarted after the war, though Britain took advantage of wartime destruction to resettle the islanders on Rabi, an island which is part of Fiji.

The present generation of Banabans wants to go home and engage in fishing.

One lawsuit demands Britain and the consortium commissioners should reclaim the island areas devastated by mining or pay compensation.

The other claims the Banabans have been cheated on royalties for more than 50 years and the commissioners sold the island's phosphates at undervalued prices.

Since 1970, the 2,000 Banabans have gotten a share of mining profits in addition to the royalty. Most profits, though, went to the Gilbert and Ellis Islands colony, making up 54 per cent of the colony's income. The Banabans claim this, too, is wrong.

Duties are not small. In 1972-73, the islanders' share totalled 3.4 million Australian dollars. This year's sum is expected to be six times that.

Ocean island phosphates will run out in a few years, and the Banabans are suing for $53 million.

Heart monitors defective

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said today there have been 26 deaths associated with defective electronic heart pacemakers from 1972 through March of this year — more than double the total previously reported.

Most of the deaths are still under investigation and have not been confirmed as definitely due to the electronic devices which are implanted in patients to regulate heartbeat.

HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger gave an accounting of the pacemaker situation in a letter to Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

Weinberger said eight of the deaths have been confirmed as due to defective pacemaker units, while 18 others are under investigation as possibly linked to the devices. Previously the official toll had been placed at less than 10.

There have been about 23,000 pacemakers recalled in the past three years from among an estimated 125,000 in use.

Airport commission created by council

GOODING — Gooding City Councilmen have appointed an airport commission in an effort to facilitate operation of the field.

Councilman Duane Clemons, in moving for adoption of the ordinance Monday night, also stipulated that the second- and third readings be eliminated.

Mayor Rice said he hoped creation of the commission would "take some of the heat off."

Councilmen also believe the city would be more likely to receive federal funds to improve the airport if it has an airport commission.

Earl Kelly, whose lease with the city to operate the facility has been the subject of "controversy" for some months, said, "Getting the airport commission is to make the state happy and hopefully help us get federal funds." He said all other area cities have such a commission.

Councilman Clemons said members will be Ray Hendrix, Oley Boyd, Jack Gough and himself. When it was pointed out the ordinance provides for five members and Clemons said he had been unable to obtain a representative from the county, the group decided to list John LeMoine, county commissioner, as the fifth member.

Duties of the commission will be to review the airport budget, oversee maintenance, conduct periodic safety inspection.

In other action, councilmen:

- decided to meet next Monday with the school board to decide on awarding of the contract for construction of tennis courts and baseball diamond which is a joint city-school district project, with state matching funds.
- accepted an offer from the Rural Fire Department to pay $900 per quarter for support of the city equipment. They now pay $1,500 per year.
- instructed Hobbey to draft an amendment to the ordinance on firemen allowing the council to raise the pay of volunteer firemen and increase the number of personnel, in response to a request by Fire Chief Jack Walt Schmidt. He said the last raise the volunteers got was 16 years ago.

parts — one-third goes to the local scouts, one-third to prizes to the boys selling tickets and the other third to the Snake River Council. The Scout-O-Rama gives the boys — an opportunity to demonstrate the skills and crafts they have learned.

TF plans clean-up day

TWIN FALLS - Initial plans for the sixth annual Johnny Horizon Clean-up Day in Twin Falls County will be made during an open meeting April 15 at 8:30 a.m. in the County Courthouse.

County Commissioner William L. Chancey said the April meeting will be for all organizations and individuals who wish to support the clean-up campaign and encourage it being urged to attend.

Letters are now going out to organizations and individuals who assisted during previous Johnny Horizon programs. Chancey said about 130 will be sent but anyone not receiving an official letter should not let it prevent their participation.

"We want everyone in the county to help us make this the state's cleanest county," he said.

Camp Fire girls, Boy and Girl Scout, 4-H clubs and many church youth groups assist in picking up litter along county roadways, in parks and on public lands in the county.

The Bureau of Land Management joins the county commissioners in sponsoring the annual project to be held May 3. Such groups and agencies of the National Guard, Army Reserves, Twin Falls Canal Co., highway districts and others assist in hauling away the tons of collected debris.

Work begins at 8:30 a.m. and continues until noon when a picnic lunch is served for all of the volunteers.

Chancey said the first meeting April 15, will be in the district courtroom with plans being made as to area assignments and anticipated manpower and equipment to be available.

Anthropologist says women superior to men

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) - A noted anthropologist says that men are inferior to women, and women lower themselves by demanding equality with men.

Ashley Montagu, speaking at Virginia Commonwealth University Monday, said a woman who claims equality with a man "has taken a step down."

"Only inferior people tell people they are superior, and this is what men have been doing," said Montagu.

He said women discovered their superiority long ago and "have the good sense to be quiet about it."

Montagu said women are superior on several different levels.

Mekong Delta peaceful

MY THO, Vietnam (UPI) - Somewhere there is panic, confusion, death. But not here.

Here, sweating Vietnamese farmers bend over their hoes and prepare for the summer rice crop. Occasionally, they relax and gaze with satisfaction on the abundant fields.

The wide, paved highway nearby is filled with trucks and motor scooters heading for Saigon with rice, melons, pigs and chickens.

Men and women who don't have access to motor vehicles carry produce on their shoulders.

The main canal is jammed with barges and boats. Children splash in the muddy waters.

This is the prosperous Mekong Delta, and the war that is ravaging much of the rest of South Vietnam seems as remote as an Alaskan glacier.

But the war is coming closer.

Seven miles overhead, an air force pilot spots artillery bursts from newly positioned North Vietnamese guns.

Not many miles away, insurgent forces have cut three highways. A loaded ferry is sunk by mines.

The Communists tried to seize this rich province 35 miles southeast of Saigon in the Tet offensive seven years ago. They failed. Now, they are certain to try again as the North Vietnamese offensive rolls south along the Mekong River.

But the sweating farmers don't have time to think about that. They're too busy planting and weeding and harvesting crops.

The only sounds of war along Route 4 come from contractors' constructing barriers of earth-filled drums.

At other strategic points, South Vietnamese soldiers shovel the province's rich soil into sandbags to reinforce pillboxes guarding vital bridges along the road.

Other soldiers loiter in the shade of the sandbags.

Janis Joplin story sparks controversy

HILLSBOROUGH, N. H. (UPI) — A book in the high school library portraying the tortured life of the late rock singer Janis Joplin has sparked a parent campaign against obscenity in this tiny New England mill community. "People circulated a petition from the town of 2,778 and gained more than 100 signatures opposing to taxpayers money being used to buy obscene books and books with obscene language in them."

when one of the four children of Bernard Nickerson and his wife arrived home with "Janis" by David Dalton. Nickerson objected to the "considerable amount of bad language" in the biography. "The parents are paying for these books even though the parents themselves wouldn't buy them," said Nickerson. "They say it's censorship, but if movies can be rated R and X, and if that isn't censorship why is this considered to be?"

Opening day of fishing at Magic

Magic land use studied

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone district, Bureau of Land Management, is involved in formulating a land-use plan for national resource lands in the Magic Planning Unit.

According to Charles J. Haszler, district manager, the Magic Planning Unit encompasses 27,000 acres of public land surrounding Magic Reservoir in Blaine and Camas counties, located northeast of Shoshone.

The unit is bordered on the north by State Highway 88, on the south and west by the Magic Road and on the east by US Highway 93.

Public input is now being solicited through informal contacts with interested parties, user groups and governmental agencies. Public meetings will be scheduled later this spring to provide the general public opportunities to offer views concerning management of land and resources. The predominant uses in the unit center around water-oriented recreational activities associated with Magic Reservoir. The unit supports a sizable sage grouse population and is one of the most popular fishing spots in southern Idaho. Livestock harvest, 3,880 animal unit months of forage annually during the spring and early summer seasons. Watersheds are in fair condition with soil erosion occurring at slight and moderate rates. The end result of this planning effort will be the management framework plan which will specify management direction outlining the best use or combination of uses for which the lands will be managed. The final plan is scheduled for completion in the summer of 1976.

FOOD STAMP SHOPPERS

YOUR FAMILY NEEDS ALL 4 BASIC FOODS DAILY

Today's markets offer a tremendous variety of foods for eating pleasure. We should know how to choose foods for sound nutrition as well as eating enjoyment. The USDA has recommended an eating plan for the family. Each of the four food groups contains nutrients important to good health. Choose at least the minimum number of servings from each of the groups. Then choose additional items from all four groups or from other foods not included in the four groups. These foods can be added to make meals more appetizing and attractive. Sizes of servings will differ, of course, with sizes, ages and activity of individuals. (Small for young children, large for very active adults and teen-agers.) Pregnant or nursing women also need more food from the Basic-4 Groups.

Meat Group
Foods Included: Beef, veal, lamb, pork, variety meats such as liver, heart and kidney; Poultry and eggs. Fish and shellfish. Alternates — dry beans, dry peas, lentils, nuts, peanuts, peanut butter.
Recommended Amounts: Two or more servings daily. Count as 1 serving 2 to 3 ounces of lean cooked meat, poultry or fish (count boneless portions only). Count as alternates for 1 serving of meat or fish: 2 eggs; 1 cup cooked dry beans, dry peas or lentils; 4 tablepoons peanut butter.

Milk Group
Foods Included: Milk: fluid whole, evaporated, skim, dry, buttermilk. Cheese: cottage, cream, cheddar type, natural or processed, Ice Cream.
Recommended Amounts: Milk (8-oz. cups or glasses): children under 9, 2-3 cups; children 9-12, 3 or more cups; teen-agers, 4 or more cups; adults, 2 or more cups. Cheese and Ice Cream: amount it will take to replace a given amount of milk, as figured on the basis of calcium content. Examples are: 1-inch cube cheddar-type cheese equals 1/2 cup milk; 1/2 cup cottage cheese equals 1/2 cup milk; 2 tablespoons cream, cheese equals 1 tablepoon milk; and 1/2 cup ice cream equals 1/2 cup milk.

Fruit-Vegetable Group
Foods Included: All vegetables and fruits. Emphasized are those valuable as sources of vitamin C and vitamin A.
Recommended Amounts: Four or more servings every day, including 1 serving of good source of vitamin C or 2 servings of a fair source; 1 serving, at least every other day, of a source of vitamin A. If the food chosen for vitamin C is also a source of vitamin A, the additional serving of a vitamin A food may be omitted. The remaining 1 to 3 or more servings may be any vegetable or fruit, including those valuable for their vitamin C or vitamin A. Count as 1 serving: 1/2 cup of vegetable or fruit of a medium apple, banana, orange, or potato, half a medium grapefruit or cantaloupe, or the juice of 1 lemon.

Bread-Cereal Group
Foods Included: All breads and cereals that are whole grain, enriched or restored. Specifically, this group includes: breads, cereals, corn meal, crackers, flour-grice-macaroni-spaghetti-noodles, rice rolled oats, quick breads and other baked goods, if made with whole grain or enriched flour. Parboiled rice and wheat also fit in this group.
Recommended Amounts: Four or more servings daily. Or, if no cereals are selected, choose an extra serving of breads or baked goods, which will make at least 5 servings from this group daily. Count as 1 serving: 1 slice of bread, 1 ounce ready-to-eat cereal, 1/2 to 3/4 cup cooked cereal, corn meal, macaroni, noodles, rice or spaghetti.

Other Foods
To round out meals and meet energy needs, almost everyone will use some foods not specified in the Basic-4 groups. These will include such things as sugars, butter, margarine and other fats. These often are ingredients in a recipe, or are added to other foods during preparation of the meal. Try to include some vegetable oil among the fats used.

your health

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M. D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
My husband was treated for herpes progonitalis several years ago. His cure resulted and it continues to spread. I'd like any information you may have on this. — J.S.R.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Could you give me some information on herpes progonitalis infection? I've had it for over a year and only recently found out what it is. My last doctor said it is an incurable virus and that they are working on a vaccine for it.

Is this correct? How do you develop this infection, and is it contagious? Mrs. V.M.

Stubborn virus problem

I continue to get a great deal of mail on this subject. The viruses that give man trouble are usually identified by the "target organs" or localities of the body which offer them the most inviting environment. This is readily noted in such diseases as pneumonia and hepatitis (which derive from Greek words for lungs and liver, respectively). The herpes simplex II virus is the infecting organism in herpes progonitalis, and its target is the genitals of both men and women. And, since it is passed on by sexual contact, it meets the description of a venereal disease.

This is a stubborn virus, and for the time being, at least, seems to be resistant to treatment, a fact both of you have learned during your long periods of infection. Finding an effective treatment is a prime goal of those doing research in the field of communicable diseases.

There is a drug called Shield-1 (oxolinic acid) which has been effective against several herpes viruses that attack humans. This drug has also been used against the genital herpes, but with mixed results. And I am told that other new drugs are being studied for anti-herpes II treatment. But they have not been released for general use — which means that they may be used only in authorized experimental situations. However, results in the small number of experimental cases so far look encouraging.

Effective vaccines against virus infections are not easy to come by. My faith has been in many years of research were required to develop protection against german measles, polio, mumps, smallpox, and other diseases. But the whole field of virus research holds much promise for the future.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
A young couple, married three years, are hesitating to start a family of their own for fear drug experimentation when they were in college would adversely affect their baby.

Is there a test to determine whether or not chromosomes have been damaged, or to otherwise reassure them? — Mrs. J.A.F.

There is some evidence that chromosomes may be altered by drug use, but whether this carries genetic defects is not quite clear.

There are some tests that can be made. I understand, but the average physician would not be equipped to conduct them since they are very sophisticated, complicated and expensive procedures. They are usually done in medical centers.

The couple might seek genetic counseling, a new specialty which has only recently emerged in medicine. In this they could have their question answered to the extent that an answer can be given, and go on from there. Your local medical society, or any large hospital in your area, might be able to tell you where such counseling is available.

It is known that some damage can occur to a fetus exposed to drug abuse in the mother during pregnancy. This is why physicians avoid prescribing many drugs during pregnancy, especially during the early months.

The wedding chapel was decorated with pink gladiolus, white daisies and white and blue mums and baby breath.

The couple was honored at a reception in the cultural hall immediately following the ceremony, and hosted by the bride's parents.

The bride's table was covered with a cloth of organza over blue. An applesauce cake with a large round layer at the bottom with square layers topped with a cupid.

Cascading roses of blue and pink decorated the cake. Ruth Haney cut the cake, and assisting with serving punch and cake were Laann Clawson, Zora Morgan, Barbara Bodily and Kerle Mikesell.

Guests were seated at quartet tables covered with organza cloths with centerpieces of chenille anette which held bouquets of pink and burgundy straw flowers topped with pink bows. Flowers surrounded a three-tiered fountain flanked with cherubs.

Kay Thompson registered the guests. Mary Brownee and Lisa Jacobsen were in charge of the gifts.

The couple and their parents and wedding attendants greeted guests before an Austrian pouff draped with sheer blue at the top and blue in the back.

Out-of-town guests attended from California, Washington and Idaho Falls.

Following a honeymoon trip through Utah, Nevada and California the couple will live at 352 1/2 Center St., Kimberly.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune, N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have only one child, a son now married and living in California. (We live in New York.) My elderly mother is very ill, and her days are numbered. She has always relied heavily on me, and being a very dutiful daughter, I gave her lots of time and attention. Because of this, my son has never been too fond of his grandmother. However, my son, husband and I are very close. While talking to my son (long distance), I said, "Keep your woolsen suit pressed because you will need it when you come east for your grandmother's funeral." His reply: "I had planned on coming." When I told my husband this, he said, "If he doesn't want to come, don't hassle him." Abby, don't you think that out of respect for my feelings, my son should come for his grandmother's funeral? I offered to pay his plane fare both ways. If I had brothers and sisters, the situation would be different, but my husband and my son and his family are all I have.

Difficult situation

I don't mean to be a demanding mother, but in a time of sorrow I feel it would be comforting to have those dear to me near. Would it be unreasonable to insist that he come? MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: If your son, knowing how much you want him near you in your sorrow, chooses not to come, shame on him. But if you, knowing that he doesn't really want to come, insist that he does--then shame on you!

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, I wrote asking if you knew of a travel club for nonsmokers. You replied that you did not, but suggested I contact the American Cancer Society. They did not know of any either. Now there is one! The Nonsmokers' Travel Club, which I was instrumental in forming. We are an offshoot of GASA (Group Against Smokers' Pollution), and now have 71 members. We are in the Washington D.C. area, but have members from all over the U.S.A.

We have two domestic bus trips, and three foreign trips planned for 1975. Our buses will have nonsmoking drivers and nonsmoking tour guides. Our foreign trips will travel in the nonsmoking section of scheduled airlines. Once at our destination, we will travel in our own bus with a nonsmoking driver and guide. If you think this will be of interest to your readers, please mention it in your weekly read column. MILDRED A. POST, CHAIRPERSON

DEAR MILDRED: It's mentioned. Those interested in traveling without the annoyance of tobacco smoke may write to me (and please include a stamped, addressed envelope) for the address of the smoke-free travel club.

DEAR ABBY: Some additional information on how one can improve his credit rating. Under federal law, anyone is entitled to inspect his (or her) credit file and offer corrections and inaccuracies. Erroneous information can result in a poor credit rating. If one is refused a loan or a charge account, he has the right to know the name and address of the consumer reporting agency or credit company that supplied the adverse information. This law applies to investigation reports causing denial of a job and is contained in Title 15, U.S. Code, section 1681. DENNIS B. KAVANAUGH, ATTORNEY AT LAW successful diamond finesse but that gave him only two diamond tricks and the combination of the bad spade break and the unfortunate position of the king of hearts left him one trick short. Do you see how South could and should have played the hand? At trick one he should have played dummy's ace of clubs and dropped his king under it. That play would have left him with two more entries to dummy and the means to score the "diamond" tricks. Of course, if East had shown up with the 10 of clubs South would have looked rather silly. But those are the things that are sent to try men's souls.

MISS HIGGINS sets date

Ethel misses ski race

CAMPTON, N.H. (UPI) — Ethel Kennedy never made it to the ski race. And on top of it all a judge fined her $30 for going 84 miles per hour in a 55-m.p.h. zone. Mrs. Kennedy, wife of the late Sen. Robert Kennedy, was stopped by a New Hampshire state trooper last month in this small town south of the Waterville Valley ski area. Plymouth District Court Clerk Philip Tappley received a guilty plea by mail Monday from Mrs. Kennedy, along with a short note. Mrs. Kennedy said Trooper Dennis Burgess was polite and courteous and a "credit to all the people of New Hampshire." He even "contained himself" when she told him to please hurry because she was trying to make a race. Mrs. Kennedy said, adding, "I later thought that probably wasn't the best way of handling the situation..." There was a short postscript at the bottom of the letter. "P.S. I missed the race."

Communion refused

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The diocese covers San Diego, Riverside, San Bernardino and Imperial counties. The bishop hinted long ago on his "shameless agitation" on behalf of abortion, and said its members are guilty of "a serious moral crime." "The issue at stake is not only what we do to our unborn children but what we do to ourselves by permitting them to be killed," the bishop wrote.

THE JOYS OF DIETING

By Mary Sue Miller

Reducers are apt to take a negative attitude toward dieting. And it is this that often leads to diet failures. Instead of dwelling on the privations, which are indeed few, a dieter should give thought to all the delicious foods she may have—broiled mushrooms, for instance, and whole fresh strawberries brushed with honey. Or a whopping portion of lean ground beef.

Approved diets call for no real hardship. Following one, you don't starve—Hunger, real hunger, is a figment of the imagination. Recommended foods are varied to include the commonplace and the gourmet; quantities are ample. In fact, the difference between a normal and reducing intake is a puny number of calories. Of course the difference increases in direct ratio to the excessiveness of a dieter's customary intake.

So viewed, dieting loses its punishing aspect. Furthermore, if you concentrate on its benefits to health and looks, you come to feel a privileged character as the pounds fall away. A positive attitude—a straight-on head—is half the battle.

Some other important segments of positive thinking are frequently overlooked. A vital one is the kind of care that makes you lovelier—as you slim—oil soaks, lotion rubs, facial masks, hair treatments, long walks, a new interest and, above all, visions of a lovelier tomorrow.

Burley reports drug arrests

BURLEY — Burley police arrested two adults and two juveniles early Wednesday morning in connection with the sale of drugs.

Police charged John Hamilton, 19, Heyburn, with delivery and a controlled substance, and Jay Hutchison, 19, Burley, with "frequenting a place where drugs are known to be used."

Two juvenile boys, both 17, were taken into custody. One of the youngsters will be charged with "intent to deliver" and the other with "frequenting."

James Higgins said the arrests took place in a Burley apartment shortly after midnight.

According to Higgins, an undercover narcotics detective purchased 100 amphetamine pills from the apartment's occupants.

Following the arrests, police found several hundred more amphetamine tablets, he said.

Condition reported good

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Louise Sabala, Shoshone, was reported in good condition this morning, by officials of St. Benedict's Hospital where she is being treated for injuries received when she was struck by a train Tuesday morning in Shoshone.

According to a hospital spokesman, Mrs. Sabala sustained a fractured left arm and several severe bruises.

Jerome to enforce parking limit law

JEROME — The Jerome Police Department will again enforce the two-hour parking limit on Main Street.

Howard DuBois, chief of police, said his men will begin marking tires of cars parked along Main Street in the two-hour parking areas. Any cars found violating the two-hour limit will be ticketed.

DuBois said the increased volume of traffic down town has made the enforcement necessary.

Amtrak meet Friday

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Amtrak Advisory Committee will meet at 2 P.M. Friday to decide what route it will recommend for an experimental passenger train service through Idaho.

The meeting will be held in the State Department of Transportation Building. The committee's recommendation will be forwarded to the U.S. Secretary of Transportation.

MVAG meet set April 21

JEROME — The annual dinner meeting of the Magic Valley Association of Governments will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 21 at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls.

Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m. with cost per plate at $4.75. Husbands, wives and other guests are welcome, according to Dell Taylor, executive director.

Taylor said the articles and bylaws of the association will have to be reviewed and revised to meet program requirements. Election of officers will also be held.

$5.8 million lawsuit filed

BOISE (UPI) — Cling 51 cases of acetone, companies that insured Sunshine Mine all the times of its disastrous fire in 1972 have brought a $5.8 million lawsuit in U.S. District Court.

They charge the United States and companies supplying the firm with polystyrene foam with negligence by misrepresenting the foam as "nonburning" and "non-toxic."

The plaintiffs also charge the defendants with failure to notify the mine that the foam was "unreasonably dangerous to life and property in the event of exposure to sources of ignition."

Bids opened

BOISE (UPI) — Apparent low bids totaling more than $50,000 for highway jobs in northern Idaho were opened by the State Highway Division Tuesday.

M. L. Knapp Construction Co. Salmon, was apparent low bidder of $17,925.25 for demolishing the Wilma Theater at Wallace for right of way in Shoshone County.

Maxwell's Electric Inc., Spokane, was apparent low bidder of $41,490 for installing navigational lighting on the Lewiston Memorial Bridge on U.S. 95 at Lewiston.

Flooding possibilities eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Hot weather this month or early next could trigger flooding along the Big Wood and Little Wood rivers in southeastern Idaho, according to the National Weather Service.

Jerry Burwell, service meteorologist in Boise, said rapid melting of the unusually deep snowpack at lower mountain elevations could cause flooding at Gooding, Shoshone, Hailey and Ketchum.

"We could well get into some situations in which warnings are required," he said.

The Weather Service predicts only about a 25 per cent probability of flooding during the May-June runoff period on most major Idaho streams. But it said there is a much greater threat in southeastern Idaho at Mud Lake, on Willow and Sand Creeks and on the Portneuf River.

Theft reported

BURLEY — The theft of $700 worth of fertilizer and equipment was reported to the Cassia County Sheriff's Department Wednesday morning.

ELK Inc., reported the thefts. Fertilizer, a motor and mixing equipment were taken according to the sheriff's office.

The theft occurred late Tuesday night or early this morning about eight miles south of Burley, deputies said.

Blaine grants 3 conditional-use permits

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

HAYLEY — Three different conditional-use permits were granted Tuesday night by the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission.

But greatest interest turned toward the process used toward selecting the new planning chairman, David Why.

Planning and zoning chairman Nick Purdy admitted the hiring of Why "wasn't handled the way it should have been handled."

Commission member Fred Jenkins said he had heard from two commissioners that Why would not be hired. He was unaware, he said, of a decision to be made so soon.

Purdy said he too was unaware the commissioners were going to select Why without advance notice as they did in a 5 p.m. March 28 meeting in the county commission chambers.

Purdy said as chairman he felt the function of the planning and zoning unit would be placed in jeopardy if a new administrator were brought in at a time when the county comprehensive plan was being completed.

He said Why had more affirmative votes from commission members than all the other applicants.

Jenkins said he is not contesting the qualifications of Why. He said other commission members should have been aware of the meeting when the decision was made.

Purdy said the newly selected plan unit chair Reynolds would handle the day-to-day administrative functions while Why is responsible for adhering to the time table for the comprehensive plan.

He said Why is on a trial basis until July 1.

FFA conference opens in TF

TWIN FALLS — More than 600 delegates from 60 Future Farmers of America chapters attended a three-day leadership conference beginning today at the College of Southern Idaho.

Winners from each of the state's eight districts will compete in parliamentary procedure and public speaking at the opening session of the 44th annual conference.

The four top public speakers will face each other in run-off competition this afternoon.

This evening, awards will be presented to winners of public speaking, parliamentary procedure, proficiency and Creed speaking competition.

Creed speaking is a new area of competition specifically for freshmen, where participants say what the FFA Creed means to them. Proficiency awards are given for projects in specific areas, for instance, dairy, farm mechanics, home improvement or others.

Thursday, Dr. Roy E. Truby, state superintendent of public instruction, will address the afternoon session. Also, state farmer degree winners and the star state farmer will be announced.

The annual session will be held Thursday evening, Friday, a final delegate session, election of new officers and an address by the retiring state president will wrap up the conference.

Discuss tot school

TF school board gives go-ahead on tot classes

The district will plan on having about 30 children in each of the classes. Staudaher said he would assign five teachers for the classes and keep five in reserve. If 400 children do attend classes, all to teachers would be needed. Each teacher would take both a morning and afternoon session.

All details are tentative until the district determines how many children it can expect to attend the tot classes, he said.

Staudaher hoped that registration could be completed by the beginning of May, which would allow time for planning.

Boundaries of each of the five elementary schools will need to be revised along with adoption of the new program, Staudaher said.

He said that some schools are far more crowded than others and that the situation should be equalized by the new school year. Bickel School, the most crowded, will stand to lose about 100 students. The new boundaries, he said, will affect students in grades 1-6 as well as the kindergarten students.

Fixing up classrooms for the new program is expected to cost $3,079 for each room, he said.

After the legislature approved the $3.3 public kindergarten program, Staudaher said he expected approval by the district.

"I'm happy that it's settled. I think it was just a matter of time," he said.

The kindergarten program will begin with all other classes on August 25.

In a public meeting last week, district board chairman Howard Runk said the big unknown was how much money the state will provide for the kindergartens.

Although the estimate is that the state will pay $125,000 this matter remains unknown until attendance next year can be better determined.

The state's share is based on the number of students in the program.

Jerome bus driver resigns

JEROME — A Jerome school bus driver, Lee Hendrickson, 67, who was injured in a bus truck accident last week, has resigned.

Hendrickson told the Times-News he would make the two runs today but would not return to his bus driving tomorrow.

"This is my own decision to quit. A lot of pressure has been put on the bus company and I've been accused of having had a heart attack and several other accidents," Hendrickson said.

He said that in the 12 years he has driven buses in Jerome, he has not been involved in any other accident. "The accident last week was the first one I've ever had, driving a bus. I stopped at that stop sign and I looked and I don't know how I didn't see that truck," Hendrickson said.

Hendrickson said Shelly Barlow, 9, was not injured in the accident, nor was anyone else on his bus. "After the accident, Shelly was crying so I took her in to the hospital where a doctor examined her and could find no injuries. She was then sent on to her home," Hendrickson said.

Jerome Ficus, owner of the Northside Bus Co., said he has not found a replacement for Hendrickson. He said a relief driver will take the route until a permanent driver can be found.

Ficus confirmed that Hendrickson had never been involved in a bus accident in the 12 years he has been driving for his company.

Ficus said rumors have been going around that he has employed bus drivers with bad driving records and histories of heart trouble.

"Each and every driver must have a physical examination each year. The physical, signed by a doctor, states that they are physically fit to drive a school bus. I have a physical on file for everyone of my bus drivers and none of them have been termed physically unfit to drive a school bus," Ficus said.

Canyon rim plan drafted

An "open space" designation from Eastland to the Hansen Bridge and in selected spots along the rim from Eastland to Rock Creek. Also this designation would be given to both sides of Rock Creek and Perrine Coulee and to the Rock Creek Canyon bottomlands.

The land would remain "in its existing natural condition" in these areas. The designation is "intended to restrict the construction of dwellings on the canyon rim," the plan says.

Some of the open space about designations as a shallow 50-foot setback along the rim. For instance, it runs along the rim next to the planned unit development area.

However, most of the open space area is east of Eastland where much of the rimland is owned by the federal, state and local governments. It also occurs along natural drainage ways to prevent development on their floodplains and to protect wildlife habitats.

The plan recommends development of parks and view sites in some of the open areas, although the designation "in no way implies" that public access is guaranteed.

The plan recommends that some of the open space areas be acquired for public use if they are privately owned.

"This could be achieved through scenic easement purchases, donations, bequests, developmental, rights transfers" and other means, the plan says.

The plan also recommends "long-range consideration" of a roadway along the rim area that would feed into the open space sites. According to the plan, "only two minor road links," which total about two miles, would give "united and practically" to the east-west road system that currently exists near the rim.

The advisory committee also recommended that the county adopt regulations governing use of septic tanks which are more stringent than current state standards. "It was concluded that the State Department of Health standards in regard to location and functioning of septic tanks are inadequate," the committee said.

Kimberly aides reject annex

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Kimberly City councilmen Tuesday night rejected annexation of land where a low-cost housing project was proposed.

Bob Willis, Willis Construction Co., who had planned to construct 35 homes costing about $23,500 on 10 acres of land adjacent to the Kimberly mobile home park, asked for a 30-day delay in council action in the face of considerable opposition to the plan.

Councilmen first tabled the annexation proposal which had been recommended by the city planning and zoning commission by a vote of 3 to 2 Monday night, and Willis left the council meeting. Later in the evening the council voted to reject the annexation.

Ken Taylor, Twin Falls attorney representing residents opposing the annexation, told a jammed council chamber that Kimberly should not be turned into a haven for low-income people in the county. He said nearly 100 residents throughout the city had signed petitions opposing the development. He cited additional strain on the city's water, school and traffic facilities.

Taylor said there are lots approved for additional housing within the city which have not been sold and the first consideration of the council should be to see whether a need for additional housing exists before tearing up good farm land.

extension of Lincoln Street in the mobile home park it was difficult to cope with this problem.

The council also approved plans from Arzell Aslett who said he plans to build a meat slaughter plant estimated to cost $30,000 on a 10-acre site he owns back of Layne Pumphs.

In other business, the council:

- agreed to write a letter to Lloyd Watson of Watson Construction Co., saying the city would prefer not to have curbs and gutters in his subdivision at this time because there is no flow for the water to run.
- told Penny Blidner they will not change the burning ordinance which now limits burning from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. She complained about a neighbor who burns late in the evening and the resulting black smoke is "something more than paper."
- Mayor Kneibeker told her to contact city officers if the offense continues.
- told Mack Greer who lives in the 300 block on Spruce Street the city will pay pipe to cover an open ditch he was complaining of but he must purchase the pipe.

Vote secret at Bellevue

BELLEVEUE — The Bellevue Planning and Zoning Commission made a secret recommendation Tuesday night on whether to allow a zone reclassification on 2,900 acres south of Bellevue.

The still secret vote concerns a density increase request by Bart Ballantyne, a Boise developer, on 340 acres near to Big Wood River west of US Highway 93, and over 900 acres east of the highway, both in the Bellevue Triangle.

Most of Ballantyne's land is under Blaine County jurisdiction. However, a small portion is within a one-mile radius of Bellevue, under city jurisdiction.

The county planning and zoning commission has requested the Bellevue City Council make a recommendation to the county commission whether or not to approve the reclassification.

The secret vote, sealed in an envelope, will be presented tonight to the Bellevue City Council. The council will consider the recommendation and report to the county planning unit.

The county planning board will make its decision Thursday night with an open vote on the rezoning request in a meeting at 8 p.m. in the county courthouse at Halley.

Ballantyne told the Bellevue Planning Commission he will accept a rezone in the Wood River Meadow subdivision because land costs three times as much there as in the Silver Star Ranch on the east side of US Highway 93.

If he does get a rezone, Ballantyne will be able to erect 408 units on 340 acres in Wood River Meadows.

However, he told the commission, he could live with a density transfer situation and a "planned residential unit development" (P.R.U.D.) on the Silver Star Ranch, which requires no zone change.

The P.R.U.D. will give him fewer units than he would have under a rezone on the Silver Star Ranch, but he said the project could still be economically feasible.

Before the vote the developer told commission members, "If I have to go to court, there is no question what will happen, but I don't want to do that."

Ballantyne has agreed to place a covenant on most of his southern land on the Silver Star Ranch which would leave it in open space if a rezone or P.R.U.D. is approved for the land to the north.

He said he cannot wait for the comprehensive plan to be completed before a decision is made because of the time he has already spent.

Boise man, 32, faces charges

TWIN FALLS — Mike Stafford, 32, Boise, was arrested by Twin Falls city police Tuesday after officers were called to Fourth Avenue and Second Street East where a large crane was reported blocking traffic.

Stafford was charged with refusing to follow an officer's orders and resisting an officer.

Police reports indicated officer Donald Green went to the scene where he found a large boom and crane rig blocking the intersection. He said he asked the men with the rig to move it as soon as possible and to have someone there to direct traffic around the intersection.

The officer said Stafford refused the order. Stafford was told he would be arrested if he did not comply but continued to refuse, the officer said. As the officer attempted to arrest him, Stafford, who was on the boom of the rig, allegedly pushed the officer, causing him to fall into the equipment.

Several other city officers were dispatched to the scene to assist him with the arrest, police reports indicated.

Stafford was scheduled to appear in court today to answer both charges.

Cool morning plunge

TWIN FALLS — Four young Jerome residents took a cool plunge into Rock Creek in the new Rock Creek Park west of Twin Falls early this morning.

Twin Falls County sheriff's officers reported a car driven by Scott Dell Taylor, 31, Jerome, was traveling into the park when the driver prepared to make a "U" turn in the center of the short road. He drove too close to the edge and the car rolled from the road and into the creek, coming to rest upside down in the water.

The accident occurred about 2 a.m.

Officers said there were no injuries, but one of the young men walked to town to notify officers. The found the two women passengers huddled in one of the restrooms to keep warm and the other young man near the overturned vehicle. All were wet and cold.

The driver was cited for inattentive driving. Passengers included Barbara Pierce, 17; Mike O'Toole, 20, and Shelly Nicholson, 11, all Jerome.

New process saves corn germ protein

Chicago Sun-Times

PEORIA, Ill. — Corn, the Midwest's silken-haired summer queen, has been ground up and sieved for our tortillas, corn flakes; grills and beer; but scientists have learned we've been squandering a precious by-product on livestock.

The by-product is the corn germ; a high-protein leftover of the milling process from which oil is extracted. After extraction, the corn germ usually is mixed with the hull and other leftovers as part of the hominy feed given to cattle—said Dr. George E. Inglett of the U.S. Agricultural Research Service.

Inglett and his co-workers, however, have developed a new process of refining the corn germ for grinding-into-flour—with a protein content of 25 per cent, the new flour is expected to be a significant contribution to the worldwide search for protein supplements.

A Danville, Ill., milling company is expected to begin production of the new flour within the year, Inglett said. He noted that it could be used as a supplement to wheat flour products such as cookies and bread as well as in such traditional corn flour products as tortillas.

He also may be eating corn-enriched hamburgers. He said the new flour has about the same protein content as ground beef.

Grain shortages in recent years and continuing population pressures have burdened the world's food supply. Scientists estimated last year that as many as 10,000 persons were dying daily from protein deficiency.

Inglett said he is trying to get the new flour into the Agency for International Development (AID) emergency feeding program for use especially in those parts of the world where meat intake is low.

The new flour will be produced through the dry-milling process in which the kernels are broken down into the hull, germ and endosperm. The endosperm, which has a relatively low protein content, then is broken down further and processed for use in corn flakes, corn meal and grits sold to farmers, Inglett said.

Uncowed dreams

CONOVER, Wis. (UPI) — Who knows what a milk cow dreams of when her farmer straps her into a size 100 bovine bra.

For 23 years, the Franksville Specialty Co. has been making bras for cows and has been selling about 5,000 of them annually, Dorothy Rice, president of the company said Monday.

She said she believes her firm is the only one in the country manufacturing the bras, called Tamm Under Supports.

The largest size is 108.

Bridges weak

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The biggest problem with bridges in America is their inability to handle loads for which they were designed, according to Donald B. Stabler, president of The Road Information Program. Stabler said 25,400 bridges on the federal-aid highway system require reduced traffic loads, or weight limits.

Subsidy checks due wool growers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Department field offices will soon be mailing 1974 wool subsidy checks totaling about $16 million to sheep owners around the nation, officials announced today.

The payments will be made under a wool support program in which the government pays farmers the difference between actual average market prices and a support rate of 72 cents a pound. The national average average market price was 59.1 cents a pound.

Officials said payments to individual growers will be set by applying a 21.8 per cent payment rate to the amount the producer got for his wool.

The system, which sets the highest dollar payments to farmers who succeeded in getting above average prices, has been used for many years to encourage producers to improve wool quality and increase production.

Officials said no wool subsidy payments were made for 1973, since market prices exceeded the support level. In 1972, subsidies amounted to $68 million.

In addition to the 1974 payments on shorn wool, spokesmen said growers would get payments of 52 cents per pound on all unshorn lambs sold or slaughtered last year.

No payments will be made on mohair since market prices averaged above the 90.2 cent a pound support for that fiber.

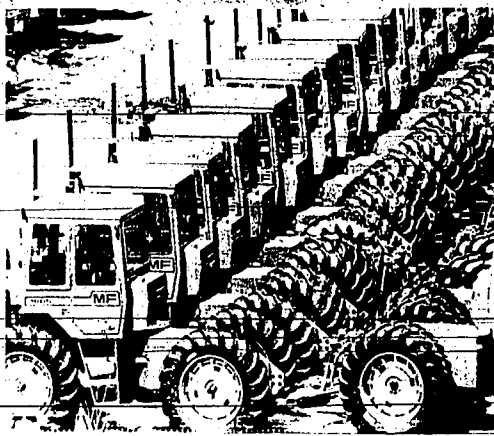

Blizzard stock toll at 19,000

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise River has spilled over its banks from Boise to Linder—flooding farm lands along the river at Star, Middleton and Eagle.

One Middleton rancher reported more than 100 acres under water. Whitley Mace, Flood District 10 superintendent, said some erosion of the river bank was reported by a Linder farmer.

Flooding will continue as long as storms persist in the hills, requiring release of excess water in the reservoirs, Mace said. A spokesman for the Reclamation Bureau said water will be released later this week into the New York and Ribbonhough canals to ease pressure on lower Lucky Peak Reservoir.

Mace said most flooding reported was not extensive and the overflow was not deep. But he said lands adjacent to those inundated have become very spongy.

Awaiting season

MASSIVE diesel-powered four wheel drive tractors, fresh off the assembly line, await the new farm season standing in ranks outside Des Moines, Iowa, factory. Priced in the $30,000 bracket, the vehicles are among the largest available to farmers. (UPI)

Chill delays fruit blooms

By United Press International

Fruit trees in Southwestern Idaho are as much as two weeks behind their usual blossoming schedule this year but orchardists feel it is just as well because of the delay in spring weather.

"In a normal year we would have been smudging by now," said Mrs. Cecil Shurtlett of Shurtlett Farms in Payette.

This year, however, she said, there has not been anything to smudge.

"We're going to start the fruit season quite late apparently this year," said Jerry Henggeler of Henggeler Packing in Fruitland.

Orchardists interviewed said they feel the lateness of the blossoming is just as well as long as snow and below freezing night temperatures are likely.

Henggeler said there has been some damage to the oriental plum crop but apple buds in Fruitland area orchards are at a state where they could withstand temperatures as low as 10 degrees without damaging the fruit.

"We've had a very light kill on the Bing Cherries," said George Yost of Diamond Fruit growers in Emmett.

"But so far the weather has done very little damage," he said. He expects cherries to bloom by late April if the weather turns warmer pretty quick. Other fruit will follow.

While growers said they were not hurt by the two inches of snow that fell Monday accompanied by cold temperatures, they are concerned that, the late spring might be combined with an early fall.

Oats aid Bear Lake stockmen

MONTPELIER, Idaho (UPI) — The emergency livestock feed program in Bear Lake County—in effect since March 5, has distributed 11 freight cars of whole oats to Bear Lake livestock producers.

The 11 cars contained 825 tons of oats. On the open market the oats would sell for about $5 per hundredweight. Through this program the local livestock producers pay $1.85 per hundredweight.

There have been 105 applications submitted to the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) for approval. Sixty-seven were approved.

The grain itself is Commodity Credit Corp.-owned stock. Before the program ends May 31 the ASCS estimates it will distribute 1,425 tons of oats.

In order to qualify, a livestock producer must meet four requirements. He must have suffered a substantial loss in livestock feed, not have sufficient feed to get through the winter, purchase feed in a quantity larger than normal and would suffer undue financial hardship through normal channels.

Workers taught

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — With serious industrial accidents now exceeding 10 million a year, apprentices are being given special instruction on their legal rights to a safe work place.

A University of California team is teaching 70 auto repair trainees as part of the University of California Labor Occupational Health Project.

Gem wool markets slowing

BOISE — The wool market seems to be somewhat improved although the number of sales of Idaho wool has quieted down.

The third week of March a sizeable clip of range wool was contracted at 44 cents in the grease delivered Portland. Some sales in California were reported at 43 cents and some Utah wools were sold in the 40 to 45 cent range. As usual these clips are on the half blood or finer side. Some Wyoming wools were reported sold the fore part of March at prices from 39.5 to 45.5 cents.

Some medium wools in Utah were reported to have sold for 31 to 32 cents grease basis.

Closing futures on March 12 listed May fine wool at $1.20 and crossbred wool at 59 cents. The July figure was $1.17 for fine and 68 cents for crossbred wool on a clean delivered basis.

It appears much of the 1974 wool clip in Idaho is being sold at about the same time as the 1973 clip is marketed.

No pools have offered their 1973 wool clip for sale as of the last of March. As shearing progresses it is expected a number of the wool pools will offer their wool for sale.

Closing futures on March 20th quoted May delivery of fine wool at $1.13 and crossbred wool at 60 cents which is quite a little improvement over the previous weeks quotation.

There has been quite a little trading in the domestic market. The bulk of the trading has taken place in Utah, Idaho and parts of Wyoming. Bulk grade 58s range from 85 to 88 cents clean delivered. Some crossbred wools have sold. Some heavier shrinking Idahos have been quoted from 35 to 40 cents.

The Sheridan, Wyo., pool of 8,500 fleeces brought $37.70 in the grease F.O.B. The top 4 bidders were very close together which indicates keen competition.

Join board

TWIN FALLS — Alex Mai, Burley, and Marilyn Wade, Castleford, have been elected to the board of directors of the Idaho Shorthorn Association.

Mai will serve a two-year term and Wade a one-year term on the nine-member panel. Mrs. Marvin Wade was elected secretary-treasurer of the association.

Mai and Wade also will sponsor the group's summer picnic and field day this year.

Chances are better than 1 in 5 your job depends on agriculture

If all the workers directly involved in agriculture drove tractors to work, parking lots around the state would look like this. Every fifth vehicle would be a tractor. Even in our largest cities.

That's because a full 14% of all workers in the state work directly in farming or ranching. There's another 5% who work in food processing in fact, when you count all the other industries that supply and support agriculture, an estimated 40 to 60 percent of the total labor force depends in some way upon agriculture.

In fact, when agriculture has a good fiscal year the state government has a good fiscal year.

But for all its contribution, agriculture cannot stand alone. It needs your understanding and support to keep it vital and productive. The simple fact is that this state needs agriculture. The Idaho farmer-and-rancher is needed in the state. And he needs us. For more information on why you need him as much as he needs you, write The Idaho Wheat and Bean Commissions, Sulfur, Owyhee Plaza, Boise, Idaho 83702.

The Idaho farmer. You need him. He needs you.

Winter-like weather rules Idaho

Continued cold and windy at times. The high both days in the upper 30s. Lows tonight in the teens.

The outlook for Friday, cloudy.

Synopsis: Winter-like weather continues over the intermountain west. The cause of the adverse weather continues to be a must upper low pressure system hanging over the intermountain region. Circulation around the system this morning is producing light rain and snow over Idaho.

There are indications the low pressure system is beginning to undergo a weakening process. However, steady skies and periods of light precipitation will continue through Thursday.

Idaho-Montana air route eyed by Hughes Aircraft

BOISE (UPI) — An executive for Hughes Aircraft Co. said today a proposed air route between Boise and Billings, Mont., could be a reality "if we could find the bodies to fill up the seats."

But Vice President Richard Fitzgerald, San Mateo, Calif., said more facts would be needed before the route could be presented to the Civil Aeronautics Board to authorize the Idaho-Montana route.

Chamber officials from Idaho and Montana as well as Idaho industry spokesmen met with Fitzgerald and Terry Ashton, Hughes vice president, to push for a direct route between the two cities.

Jack Lawson of the Billings Chamber of Commerce said there is a great need for an air route between his city and Boise to connect with Portland and California points. He said it also would be nice if the air travel from Boise to Billings could be reduced from the 900 miles it now takes through Salt Lake City or Spokane to the 450 miles the direct route would afford.

Fitzgerald said that Hughes mining equipment. He urged the Boise Billings route, saying that Pocatello needed a gateway to the East. He said such a route would provide that gateway.

Spokesman from the Boise, Caldwell and Nampa Chambers and from Morrison-Knudsen Company and Boise Cascade Corporation also said they were anxious to see such a route.

Fitzgerald said that Hughes had not been convinced yet that there was enough traffic to make the route work. He said if there had been "you would have had the service now."

He said it was not a question of whether the residents of the two states needed the service but a question of whether Hughes could economically operate it without being subsidized.

Asians ponder reliability of US as partner

HONG KONG (UPI) — The United States' change of heart in South Vietnam has reaped a harvest of criticism in Asia's press. Governments are taking a wait-and-see attitude, and are bringing up the reliability of the United States as a ally.

While officials were generally reserved in their comments about President Ford's omission of any call for military aid in his latest speeches, newspaper editorials focused on U.S. inaction in South Vietnam and what might happen if their own countries need military help.

Although the Philippine government's official remained silent, the Daily Express, whose owners are close to the government of President Ferdinand E. Marcos, said the Vietnam War has taught nations to strive for self-reliance.

"The tragedy in South Vietnam exposes the weakness of this country, which has been dependent largely on American assistance," the Express said in an editorial. "When this kind of help stops, the recipient becomes crumbly."

"Other countries relying on any big power for their internal security and progress should learn and profit from the mistakes of South Vietnam. The day may come when their benefactors have a change of heart and they will be left fend for themselves."

The issue has caused considerable concern in South Korea, where officials and newspapers noted the differences between the Indochina and Korean situations.

The fact that South Korea has a mutual defense treaty with the United States, unlike Vietnam, has been repeatedly emphasized.

Newspapers — prominently displayed — Defense Secretary James Schlesinger's statement that the United States would abide by the South Korea-U.S. defense pact.

In Bangkok, Prime Minister Kukrit Pramo said that as the prime minister of a friendly country, he did not want to say whether the United States has been a reliable ally or not, because it will affect our relations.

But Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said, "Thus and others in Southeast Asia know that the patience and the perseverance of the Americans has not matched that of the Communists — not simply Communists in Vietnam, but also their suppliers, the People's Republic of China and the Soviet Union."

Max. justice ruling on name change

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — If Jane Smith wants to change her name when she marries Joe Brown, there is nothing to stop her, according to a decision handed down by the Tennessee Supreme Court Monday.

The five justices voted unanimously that there were "no statutory provisions that a woman automatically assumes her husband's surname upon the act of marriage."

Justice Joe Henry, who signed the decision, said that chaos would not result from the ruling, but in the future the measure would straighten out confusion.

"With the rapid increase of divorces and of marriages in America today, with the attendant name changes, we may reach the point of having to forbid a change of name by marriage, in order to bring about stability, reduce confusion and preserve the identity of women who acquire a different name from each successive husband," Henry said.

The ruling stemmed from a lower court decision in which Chancellor Ben Cantrell of Davidson County ruled that Nashville attorney Rose Palermo did not have to assume her husband's name in order to register to vote.

The five justices said that the common law practice of the past does not become the written law of the present in this case.

Henry said that denying the woman the right to maintain her birth name "would stifle and chill virtually all progress in the rapidly expanding field of human liberties."

The court emphasized that a woman has a "freedom of choice on whether to accept her husband's name in marriage."

Mrs. Palermo said that she had practiced law for nearly seven years, under her birth name and felt that she should not give it up.

Yoder to join juco stars in tour of Brazil

Honors continue to pile up for College of Southern Idaho sophomore-guard Gary Yoder.

The 64 Indiana Tuesday accepted an invitation from the National Junior College Athletic Association to take an eight-game tour through Brazil next month with other juco college all-stars.

Yoder is set to leave his country May 1 and return about May 15.

The juco all-star team apparently will be made up of five players from national champion Western Texas and seven individuals chosen from throughout the country. WT coach Mike Mitchell will serve as head coach.

Homer, victory put successful tag on Robinson's managerial debut

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Frank Robinson admitted cheerfully that his debut Tuesday as player-manager of the Cleveland Indians was just about perfect.

—He hammered a home run in his first time at bat, the 57th of his career, his close friend Boog Powell blasted another, and the Indians defeated the New York Yankees 5-3 before 56,204 roaring fans.

—"It was great and a big win and a tremendous win," said Robinson, the first black to manage in baseball major leagues.

His homer came on a 2-2 pitch off Yankee starter Doc Medich and rocketed past the left field fence as he got around on a low fast ball.

The first two strikes I just couldn't pull the trigger but then he came back with a sidearm motion," he said. "I saw him drop down and boom. I had no feeling really. I just go blank after hitting. But when I got to third base I thought, 'will wonders never cease?'"

Winning pitcher Gaylord Perry, the first man out of the dugout to congratulate Robinson despite their disagreements in the past, said: "Robbie took the pressure off us all."

Carlton allowed only four hits in the losing effort.

Boston drops Milwaukee 5-2

BOSTON (UPI) — Catcher Bob Montgomery doubled home two runs and scored a third Tuesday in leading the Boston Red Sox to a 5-2 opening day victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Milwaukee's Hank Aaron went 0-3 with a walk in his first American League appearance of a 22-year major league career.

Tony Conigliaro, returning to baseball after a three-and-a-half-year layoff because of an eye injury, singled one in four at bats.

Conigliaro wasn't seeing well at all in July 1971 when he left the California Angels because of deteriorating vision in his left eye. The sight had been impaired by a 1967 beaming while he was with Boston but Conigliaro came back to hit 56 homers in 1969-70 for the Red Sox.

Conigliaro hits in first at-bat

BOSTON (UPI) — The initial swing was smooth and hard but nowhere near the ball Tuesday as Tony Conigliaro stirred the Fenway Park air again.

"On the first pitch I was going to swing from my butt no matter where it was," said Conigliaro after his first major league baseball game in 3 1/2 years. "I'm lucky it was a strike; the pitch could have been up on the screen."

After swinging under Jim Slaton's first pitch to him in the first inning, Conigliaro took three balls then poked the fifth pitch to right field for his first hit since mid-1971. He then executed a double steal with Carl Yasfriemski that resulted in Boston's first run of an opening day 5-2 win over the Milwaukee Brewers.

He grounded out in his next three appearances but felt his performance was satisfactory.

"One thing really impressed me; the ball looked like a basketball," said the 30-

Elder has none of 'history' making

AUOUST, Ga. (UPI)—Lee Elder might be the least impressed man in town. All around him, people are using expressions like "precedent-setting," "barrier-breaking" and "history-making" to describe his appearance in the Masters golf tournament this week. But Elder keeps trying to brush it all off as merely another week's work, and he just could be able to succeed. "I really do not feel like a great man in history," he says. "And that's the way I would like to be."

Elder, the first black to qualify for the Masters, made the only diversion from his pre-tournament routine Tuesday afternoon to hold a news conference for nearly 200 reporters who are trying to equate this tournament with everything from Jackie Robinson's major league debut to lunch counter sit-ins. He would have none of it. "When one reporter suggested that Elder was here as a representative of the nation's entire black population, he made it quite clear just whom he was representing."

"Lee Elder is playing for Lee and Rose Elder," he said. "I'm not playing for anybody else. I'm playing for myself." "I've played bad before, and I've played good before, in major championships and in other tournaments. So no matter how good or how bad I play, it will be for myself, and I won't be embarrassed." "No first time player at the Masters ever has gotten more attention than Elder has in his first two months here."

"I'll tell you one thing," adds defending champion Gary Player. "Whoever beats Jack Nicklaus this week will win the tournament."

"I don't think there should be any pressure on him, other than what he places on himself," Nicklaus says. "He's been enough places and played enough golf to know how to handle all that."

"The only man to ever win the Masters in successive years (1965-66), Nicklaus has finished among the top 10 in five of his first six starts this year. He's playing so good now that Jimmy Miller, the 1960 money winner last year and this, says, "Everybody's forgotten about me."

Rockets top NY in first game

HOUSTON (UPI)—Little Calvin Murphy scored 22 points and foot Kevin KCurtis blocked six shots Tuesday to lead the Houston Rockets to a 99-94 opening win in a best-of-three NBA playoff series against the New York Knicks.

Murphy, Mike Newlin and rookie Gus Bailey combined defensive efforts to force Earl Monroe to miss 15 of 20 shots and help hamstring the Knicks to a poor 39.3 per cent shooting night.

The Rockets were especially tough the first seven minutes of the fourth quarter, outscoring New York 20-10 and expanding a seven-point quarter lead so much that Knicks' coach Rod Holtzman took Monroe and Walt Frazier out with 4:30 remaining.

Colonels take 2-0 lead in playoffs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Veteran guard Lovie Dampier rifled 17 of 11 shots from the field for the Kentucky Colonels Tuesday night as they romped to their 12th straight victory, a 119-105 decision over the Memphis Sounds, to take a 2-0 lead in their ABA Eastern Division first round play-offs.

The Colonels turned the game into a laughter in the second quarter on field goals by Wil Jones, Ted McClain, Issel and Dampier to shoot into a 15-point lead. From that point on, the Sounds never got closer than 12 points and trailed 60-43 at the half.

The teams play again in New York Thursday night and back in Houston Saturday, if needed. Kunnert, a second year center from Iowa who, along with Eddie Ratliff, led Houston into the playoffs for the first time, sat out most of the explosive fourth quarter in foul trouble.

Settlers travel slowly
NOBLETON, Ont. (UPI) - A group of tough-talking homesteaders who formed an old-fashioned wagon train and started out a week ago for unpopulated land 1,000 miles to the north have so far traveled six miles.

But slow going has not been the only problem for the 35 pioneers, including 10 children.

They have been mired in mud, hit by breakdowns, heckled by cynics, harassed by humane society officials and stalled 16 inches of snow dumped on southern Ontario by a howling spring blizzard.

"But nobody is giving up," wagonmaster Gordon Roberts, 46, said Monday as he took a break between feeding horses and repairing a harness. "We are all determined to get there."

Roberts, a former movie studio manager, conceded the weather has put them behind schedule. But he said, they hope to move out again today and "we still count on getting there by late August."

The wagonmaster said the settlers may have been a blessing in disguise for the hardy travelers. "Basically we are much better prepared now than when we started. We are wearing more suitable clothing and are steadily conditioning ourselves."

"And, that's vital when you consider we are going to an area where the temperature in winter gets down to 50 or 60 degrees below zero."

The travelers are headed for the Peace River District in Northern Alberta where they hope to escape forever the pressures of city life and find tranquility and prosperity on the land, they say.

They are traveling in a cavalcade made up of eight canvas topped wagons, a small food wagon, a red and yellow stagecoach, a frontier-style medicine man's wagon marked "home remedies, tonics and cures for all" and two traveling toilets, marked "this" and "there."

Robert said that although the little wagon train has traveled only six hundred miles, already the pioneers have experienced a major difference in the people they have encountered away from the city.

When the spring blizzard hit last week and the homesteaders were forced to take refuge in a roadside picnic site in a small valley, many nearby residents offered a helping hand.

A farmer threw open a nearby barn for the horses. Someone lent them an old school bus, converted into a hunting camper, for shelter. Area residents turned out with food and offers of help.

"People have been fan tastic," Roberts said. "And it's all the more amazing when you realize we're only 25 miles from downtown Toronto where you could drop dead in the street and passersby would just give you a kick in the butt."

But why a wagon train at all?

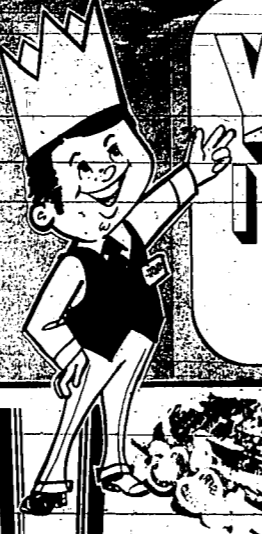

"Maybe it's because we're a little soft between the ears," he said.

"Maybe it's because people climb Mount Everest or used to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel. Why are the Russians skiing across Siberia to get to the North Pole?"

"It's a challenge."

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Morning favors shopping, outside tasks. Work inside, enjoy your stow in the afternoon. Drive carefully in p.m., with both hands.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): You gain the backing of good pals during day, but they are pressed for time in p.m. Stay at home in p.m. and forget the social.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Approach career affairs in a more modern way for good results in a.m., since later there can be obstacles to progress.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): You have inspired ideas in a.m. and should put them in action quickly, gain the assistance of others: Plan a trip.

Everytime the human race comes up with a faster way to go someplace, it's the men, not the women, who go first. That's not the fault of the girls, sure enough. They're not given a fair chance. Tyke horses. It wasn't until the gentlemen started driving cars that the ladies in general took up horseback riding. About the time men first began to pilot airplanes, women in large numbers, finally drove automobiles. And when the females eventually got their wings as pilots, the males already were at work toward rocketing to the moon.

Q. "What's the rarest sort of snake in the world?"
A. Not certain, but I'd guess the white python. Such is said to turn up only once every 1,000 years.

THE SIGNATURE, reproduced more often than any other in history is that of safety razor inventor King C. Gillette. Believe I already told you the same claim can be made for his picture.

ONE HISTORICAL footnote records that Cleopatra habitually nibbled pickles as her own little health food fetish.

CLIENT ASKS if I ever hear anymore from that old boy in Everett, Wash., who personally checks out every sign in this column. No, haven't received word from him since I reported that whistling swan has 25,216 feathers. Imagine he's still busy.

RIOT
Small riots occur from time to time at sporting events, as everybody knows, over the decisions of referees and umpires. But no riot in the last 1,443 years compares with the big fight during a chariot race in the Hippodrome of Constantinople. Name of the character who made the unpopular ruling remains unknown. What is known is most of the city was destroyed and 10,000 citizens were killed.

MISTER, between the ages of 35 and 80, you can expect to lose 50 per cent of the strength in your strongest hand even though you won't lose anywhere nearly that much strength in the weaker hand.

Dow Jones Average

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, relieved by a stabilizing in bond prices and given a psychological boost by some individual issues, moved higher Wednesday in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average was ahead 6.34 to 755.48 shortly before noon EDT. Advances led declines, 723 to 253 among the 1,434 issues crossing the tape.

The two-hour turnover amounted to about 6,000,000 shares, compared with 6,620,000 traded during the same period Tuesday. Trading was halted from 10:20 a.m. to 10:35 a.m. EDT because of the mechanical problems.

Observers said the market was continuing Tuesday's rally. The bond market stabilized and pressure on interest rates eased. These problems had dampened investor enthusiasm and raised concerns about the Treasury Department's heavy borrowing to finance the large federal deficit.

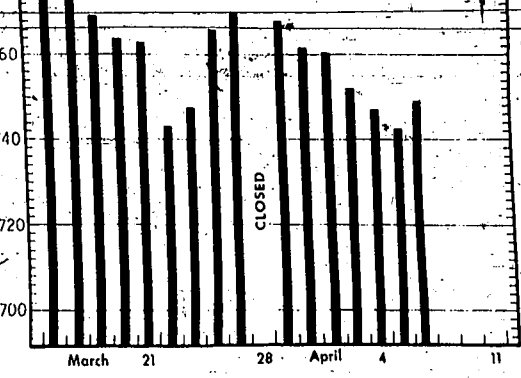

While most analysts generally have anticipated lower quarterly earnings reports, some were better than expected. "This has helped investor psychology," one analyst said.

Toy Manufacturing gained 2 1/4 after a delayed opening. The company reported second quarter earnings of $1.89 a share, compared with $1.25 a year ago. The stock gained 5 1/2 Tuesday.

Chemicals were strong. DuPont, Union Carbide, Monsanto and Dow Chemical were pointed gains. Drugs were mixed. Merck gained 1 1/2.

POTATOES — Futures leaped ahead again Tuesday. The May delivery of Idaho sharp advanced with a 20-cent gain, closing at 64 3/4 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said Maine futures, stimulated by rebounding cash prices, moved ahead sharply on a trade of 4,468 carlots. Some 3,700 carlots were traded in May, with that month gaining 23 cents for the day. New crop months gained 15 to 24 cents, closing on the highs.

Demand was good in Maine and prices gained 15 to 20 cents to 1.70 to 2.10 per cwt. Profit taking part about 15 cents.

TRADING — Sugar — Fundamentals appear bleak for the old crop but the recent turn provided strong incentives.

Live cattle futures closed sharply higher in moderate trading, with a strong cash market and firm carcass trade. June reached 42.50 in soy, its best in 10 days, and closed at 42.40, 10 cents off the high.

Bid denied

BOISE (UPI) — Lemhi Telephone Company's request for a rehearing of its order by Public Utilities Commission is denied. The commission ruling that the firm issuing credit cards outside its service area was denied today by the commission.

In February the commission had ordered Lemhi to discontinue issuing credit cards to Burlington Northern Inc., employees or individuals outside the firm's service area and to pay $38,546 to Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company in reparations for overpayments. Lemhi on March 10 asked for reconsideration of the order. The company argued that it is financially unable to satisfy the state's demands and pay the reparations.
