Valley grocery store prices vary widely

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Grocery store prices vary widely depending on where you live in Magic Valley, a Times-News price survey shows.

Generally, groceries were cheap on the South Side and expensive on the North Side.

A survey of the largest grocery stores in eight Magic Valley towns last week showed that average prices vary up to 16 per cent among communities.

The price range among individual stores surveyed was as much as 25 per cent.

Grocery prices were lowest in stores in Minidoka and Cassia counties. Prices were highest in Lincoln County.

If you spent exactly $20 for a 20-item food basket in Twin Falls, the same basket would cost more or less depending where you lived:

- It would cost 45 cents less in Mini-Cassia stores.
- But it would cost 78 cents more in Buhl.
- $1.30 more in Jerome.
- $1.39 more in Wendell.
- $1.59 more in Gooding.
- $2.09 more in Blaine County.
- and $2.85 more in Lincoln County.

The price differences could mean that families in the more expensive areas pay substantially more for food than families in cheaper areas.

According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, a hypothetical urban family of four with a household income of $9,200 a year would spend $53.15 a week or about $2,712 a year for food.

If that family spent that amount in Twin Falls, it would spend $62 more a year than if it shopped in the Burley-Rupert area. But if that family lived in Buhl, it would pay $110 more than in Twin Falls, or up to $290 more in Blaine County and $395 a year more in Lincoln County.

Produce prices varied almost as much as the total did, with many stores asking the high potato prices charged last December in Twin Falls.

Meat prices also fluctuated widely, with the Burley-Rupert area again the cheapest but with Buhl the most expensive, although Blaine County was almost as high.

In three of the four towns where both independent and chain grocery stores were surveyed, the independents were 36 to 75 cents cheaper on the average than the chains. In the fourth town the independents averaged 73 cents more than the chain surveyed.

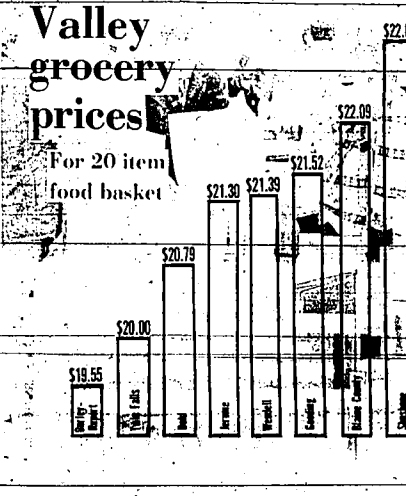

Grocers in the eight areas offered a variety of reasons for the differences, but most agreed prices were still fluctuating, and that last year had been "a strange year," as one manager put it.

"It was 'kind of scary' last year, according to manager Robert Brinkman at Brinkman's in Buhl. "You didn't know whether you'd stay open" last year because rapidly climbing prices caused much uncertainty.

Brinkman said "it's hard to tell" why prices in Buhl were on the low side according to the survey. Prices have been rising so fast that his on-shelf stock represents a greater investment than it did two years ago. Now, however, he's had more price decreases than increases because manufacturers have been pushing special promotions on different items.

People's buying habits have changed to fit the high prices, he said. It "puts pressures on" suppliers, when people stop buying, driving the price down. Brinkman said he felt that prices might go down another 10 per cent, then level off, ending a downward trend that started shortly after the first of the year.

Phnom's leaders fight on

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Cambodian officials formed a new revolutionary committee Saturday to continue the war against the Communist rebels besieging the capital while searching for peace.

The new government vowed to fight on despite the American abandonment of Phnom Penh.

Gen. Sak Suktakhan, head of the armed forces, and Prime Minister Long Boret announced they would head a High Policy Committee of the Khmer Republic to make all military and political decisions.

Phnom Penh 7000 said the Khmer Rouge rebels were barely 2 1/2 miles away and the fall of the city seemed imminent.

Fighting continued around the capital, and mortar and rocket shells continued to slam into the city and its suburbs, 15 of them hitting near the abandoned U.S. embassy compound.

Radio Phnom Penh said the Cambodian parliament voted itself out of power for three months and backed the last-ditch government effort for survival.

The makeup of the new administration was mostly military. Radio Phnom Penh listed the members of the committee, apparently in order of rank: Sak Suktakhan and Long Boret were named to the top two posts.

Included in the first cabinet in three years in the new administration were members of parties which had been in opposition to former President Lon Nol, who left for exile last week.

No Khmer Rouge representatives were included.

Long Boret, in a radio address, said the committee will run Cambodia on a day-to-day basis, and conduct a search for peace.

"I will not abandon the people or the nation until the Khmer problem is solved," said Long Boret, who is on a "death list" of seven men the rebels have vowed to execute if and when they take control of Phnom Penh.

With the departure of the Americans, the emergency airlift of rice, fuel and ammunition came to an end, but in Washington a spokesman for President Ford said there were plans for resuming supply of Phnom Penh by air drop. A regular Air Cambodia flight arrived from Phnom Penh in Bangkok Saturday without incident.

Another domestic Cambodian airliner pulled off its course from Phnom Penh to the Cambodian coastal city of Kompong Som to land at Bangkok in an apparent attempt to flee the fighting.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A professional firefighter's union protested Saturday President Ford's intention to name a volunteer to run the new Fire Prevention and Control Administration.
President Ford selected John L. Petersen of Aurora, Ill., to be the first in the post.

Reds trap relief forces

SAIGON (UPI) — Tank-backed Communist forces pinned down two South Vietnamese government relief forces and stormed into key Xuan Loc provincial capital in a new attempt to overrun the city, military sources said Sunday.

The attack began last Wednesday. The Saigon command said government troops were still fighting for the shell-mattened city on the Saigon defense perimeter in heavy street fighting.

It was the third time in five days the Communists had forced their way into Xuan Loc, which is 38 miles northeast of Saigon and considered a key to the defense of the capital. The two previous times the Communists were pushed back again.

Command spokesmen said Communist gunners slammed an unaccounted number of 100mm artillery shells into Xuan Loc early Sunday in an apparent effort to soften up government defenses for the ground assault.

Two would-be relief columns remained pinned down outside Xuan Loc by other North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces unable to move in to help defend the city.

Government troops west of Xuan Loc on Highway 1 lost more ground, with Communist forces skirting the government column cutting the route only 25 miles northeast of Saigon.

The road cut trapped about 5,000 South Vietnamese forces trying to get to Xuan Loc between Communist lines. About 3,000

Airdrops ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Saying he evacuated Americans from Cambodia "with a heavy heart," President Ford Saturday ordered U.S. aircraft to parachute food, ammunition and medicine into besieged Phnom Penh in a last-ditch effort to help an abandoned city.

Ford, apparently surprised and moved by the decision of Cambodia's leaders to shun evacuation and stay at their posts, also renewed his request that Congress give Cambodia emergency military aid.

Pentagon spokesmen said the mercy airdrops could not begin before daylight today in Cambodia at the earliest.

Davis calls leftover fund use after campaign legal, ethical

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — William E. (Bud) Davis took $16,503 in campaign funds for his own use following his race against Republican James McClure for the U.S. Senate in 1972.

He also bought two new cars with money left over from the campaign.

Dr. Davis, president of Idaho State University, admits he purchased the vehicles with campaign money and used the rest of the unspent campaign funds as personal income on which he paid taxes.

"These actions, he says, were both legal and ethical. He says they were legal because laws prohibits candidates from transferring leftover money to their own personal accounts following the campaign as long as income taxes are paid and ethical because the new cars and the money received only partly make up for his total time and other contributions to the race.

Opinion among both Democratic and Republican leaders is divided on whether Davis' taking unspent campaign funds for his own use is ethical.

Davis estimates that when all factors are considered he put between $20,000 and $25,000 into his race for the Senate.

For seven months he was away from his then $30,000-a-year job at ISU to work full-time in the campaign, making a loss of $17,500, he says.

In addition, Davis says he committed all of his monetary assets to get the race started.

During the race, he says, 100,000 miles was put on one of his personal cars and 85,000 miles on another for campaign purposes. This use "burned them out." One of the vehicles was new. Replacement of these vehicles, he says, was justified as a campaign expense.

Records at the Idaho secretary of state's office show that Davis bought one $2,000 car and one $3,000 car as "replacement" vehicles.

The records also show that Davis spent $8,550 in campaign money for travel and expenses during the race.

"The important thing is that

State OK's Snake water for Pioneer

BOISE (UPI) — The State Department of Water Resources has given Idaho Power Company permission to use water from the Snake River to operate its proposed coal-fired plant at Orchard.

The permit gives the company the right to 30 cubic feet of water per second. That would be enough to operate two 500 megawatt steam generating plants.

Bob Fleener, chief of the water rights bureau in the agency, said the water will be diverted from the C. J. Strike Reservoir in Elmore County. Fleener said the water right does not include authority to discharge waste water back into the river.

Idaho Power must submit proof of beneficial use of the water by 1980 in order to comply with the permit, Fleener said a power plant is a beneficial use.

The power company has asked the Public Utilities Commission for a certificate of public convenience and necessity to build a $60 million, 1,000 megawatt plant about 20 miles southeast of Boise in Ada County. The PUC still is studying the application.

Campaign fund reports differ

One report, filed with the secretary of the U.S. Senate, Dec. 31, 1972, shows total expenditures for Davis' race were $293,394 while total receipts were $222,666.

A second Davis campaign termination report, filed last August shows total receipts to be $163,923. The difference would leave a balance of $139,471.

That "cash-on-hand" balance of $139,471 is shown instead, Dr. Davis says he took this money for personal use as reimbursement for campaign expenses.

The August report showing total expenditures of $163,923 "doesn't make sense to me," Davis says, adding that more than $200,000 was spent in the campaign.

Mel Morgan, finance chairman for the Davis campaign, says the U.S. General Services Administration audited the December report and gave it a "clean bill of health."

He says a second termination report was filed because the auditors wanted a final statement of what was done with the leftover campaign funds. This statement, he says, accompanied the later termination report in a letter.

Morgan says he does not know if or why the second report shows only $163,923 spent. He says a mistake could have been made, but adds that only the Times-News and not the auditors see a problem.

Cambodians fight, US pulls out

Long Boret, highest-ranking Cambodian to remain, is one of seven "traitors" on the rebels' public death list. But he swore to stay on, saying, "I will not abandon the people or the nation until the Khmer problem is resolved."

Fighting continued on the outskirts, and 15 mortar and artillery shells hit near the abandoned embassy after U.S. Marine guards had closed its iron gates for the last time.

With the departure of the Americans, Phnom Penh was sent off. The U.S. airlift of ammunition, fuel and food—the country's lone link with the outside world—ended with the evacuation. The rebels have long since closed off river, road and rail routes.

Long Boret said the revolutionary committee would replace the virtual one-man rule of acting President Sauthkam Khoy, "who left the country without even telling the Cambodian people."

Sauthkam Khoy was aboard a helicopter which also evacuated U.S. Ambassador John Gunther Dean at noon Saturday from a soccer field on the banks on the Mekong River.

"The creation of a high policy committee" is intended to reinforce the political and military power of the nation," said the prime minister.

"We must stop this flow of Cambodian blood and try to find a peaceful solution to the Cambodian problem."

Although he did not officially announce its members, Long Boret indicated the committee would be mostly military. His announcement came after a meeting of the chairman of the two houses of parliament, the heads of the armed forces and more than 20 generals.

All military decisions will be made on the spot by military officers instead of being referred to the president or other civilian authorities, Long Boret said.

The prime minister said the committee would function for three months—or until an insurgent victory.

Some experts predicted the Cambodian army would fall apart with the withdrawal of the Americans, the end of the airlift and the departure of Sauthkam Khoy.

Orphans reach US

FIVE CARDBOARD cartons, each containing a critically ill Vietnamese infant, are carried off a jetliner at Los Angeles Saturday. They were among 300 orphans flown to the U.S. from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines. (UPI)

Ailing orphans given treatment

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A World Airways 747 jammed with 329 Vietnamese and Cambodian war orphans, one infant dead and many ill, arrived at Los Angeles International Airport Saturday in the only scheduled Operation Babylift flight of the weekend.

Thirty-one of the orphans, suffering from illnesses including chicken pox, measles, pneumonia and dehydration, were rushed to eight local hospitals. Six of the more seriously ill, three in critical condition and ranging in age from 8 months to nine years, were flown by helicopter to County-USC Medical Center.

Hospital spokesmen said late Saturday that all of the sick children were expected to survive.

A total of 217 of the children, all from the abandoned An Loc Orphanage in Saigon, were transferred to another jet for a flight to Fort Benning, Ga. Another group of 22 awaited a flight Saturday night to Norway for adoption there.

"We had all our doctors examine them and found that they (the 217) are safe and in good, stable condition to fly across country," said Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes.

The remaining youngsters, ranging in age from 3 months to 8 years, were taken by Red Cross personnel to the Long Beach Naval Support Station where a large gymnasium had been transformed into a nursery.

"The children are adjusting quite well," said a Navy spokesman. "They seem quite content and there haven't been any problems so far."

Manila-US ties eyed

MANILA (UPI)—The Philippine government is reassessing its security ties with the United States because of America's "apparent new perception" of its commitments as reflected by events in Cambodia and Vietnam, an official statement said Saturday.

The statement was released by the presidential press office and attributed to unnamed high government sources. The United States maintains an air base at Clark and an naval base at Subic Bay.

Pub blast toll heavy

BELFAST (UPI)—A bomb exploded without warning Saturday night in a crowded pub in a Roman Catholic district of East Belfast, killing at least five persons.

"It is difficult to say how many have been killed," a police spokesman said. "The place is just a bloody mess, and God knows how many are trapped in the rubble."

At least four persons were killed instantly, three women and a man, and another woman died in the hospital, a spokesman for the Royal Victoria hospital said.

airborne troops were trapped Saturday in a rubber plantation south of Xuan Loc, and another 2,000 militia, ranger and infantry troops are on Highway 1.

Southwest of Saigon, Communist forces overran the training center for the government 9th Infantry Division, and turned captured guns on Can Tho, the largest city in the Mekong Delta 75 miles from the capital.

Fighting cut Highway 4, the so-called "rice road," and left the Communists in control of a wide swath of territory almost to the bank of the Saigon river, which flows from Can Tho.

Military sources said the captured U.S. made 105mm guns fired 28 rounds at random into Can Tho late Saturday night, killing nine persons, wounding 42 others and destroying at least 50 homes.

Xuan Loc is considered a major test of the South Vietnamese military's ability to survive after the disastrous defeats sustained last month when the Communists overran the northern and central regions of the country and began driving toward Saigon.

Field officers said a 300-man brigade of elite paratroopers was trapped Saturday morning three miles south of Xuan Loc in a French-owned rubber plantation which has been the major employer in Long Khanh province.

The paratroopers were airdropped behind enemy lines Friday stripping Saigon of half its defensive troops, in a desperate move to stop the Communist drive on the capital.

A second government unit was stalled by heavy fire nine miles east of Xuan Loc and unable to fight its way through entrenched Communist forces, field reports said.

Grocery prices vary widely over Valley

Sunday, April 13, 1975 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 7

No deal, Andrus says

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said no deal Friday to any compromise by utilities wanting to construct at least two more dams on the Middle Snake River in the Hells Canyon area.

Andrus wrote Rep. Roy Taylor, chairman of the House Interior Committee Subcommittee on National Parks and Recreation, that "the governors of the States of Oregon, Washington and Idaho agree that the so-called compromise offered by the utilities is totally unacceptable."

Andrus and Govs. Dan Evans of Washington and Robert W. Straub of Oregon presented testimony to the subcommittee Thursday urging creation of a national recreation area along 101 miles of the Snake River.

"People are putting up" more food themselves and are being more careful about what they buy, according to Brinkman. His sales of at least one convenience food have dropped by about 50 percent, he estimated. People have been buying flour and other bread-making ingredients instead of bread, for instance.

One grocer in Lincoln County, which has the highest average prices according to the survey, disagreed with survey results.

"No, that is not so ... I would say prices are higher in Twin Falls," Joe Berriochio, owner of Farmer's Market in Shoshone, said.

Berriochio said that he had checked prices in Twin Falls and found that produce, meat and canned goods were all higher. That was two years ago, he said; when a friend of his bought $50 worth of groceries at a store and compared two stores in Shoshone for the same goods, finding the total $1.50 to $2 less. He said he felt that the differences would not have changed much in two years even though prices increased.

"We are in line" with prices listed on a check list of items from Buttery's, Albertson's and Safeway stores and M and W in Boise," Berriochio said.

"We don't pay higher freight rates," he said, since groceries are trucked in by wholesalers, who pay the rates.

Jack Holmes, owner of the Triple S Market in Halley, said that freight charges and bad checks help boost prices at his store. Prices drop when Sun Valley closes and tourists leave the area, he said.

At the end of the ski season, Holmes said, he got $200 to $275 worth of bad checks, but most of them were made good after authorities found the owners, mostly tourists who had elected to buy lift passes rather than pay their grocery bills.

Holmes said his business is also "heavy on credit," which increases his operating costs. Many local people have traditionally bought on credit and pay one or twice a year when the crops come in, he said.

Lee Cook, the owner of Cook's markets in Jerome and Gooding, where average prices were roughly the same, said "I really hadn't noticed" that prices varied from area to area in the Magic Valley.

"We're mainly concerned with prices on a local level," Cook said.

He said that he'd seen "quite a few declines in the last few months," mainly because the price of sugar has declined, making sugar-based products somewhat cheaper.

"It seems kind of good not to have to be raising prices all the time," Cook said.

A Wendell grocer, who would not reveal his name, said he had noticed that prices were "graduating on down a bit." Manufacturers' promotions on certain goods drove prices down only temporarily for the duration of a promotion, according to the grocer.

Although prices in stores in the same chain varied from town to town, merchandisers from both Safeway and Albertson's Boise offices said that prices should be standard in their respective chains.

Bill Johnson, the merchandiser at Safeway's headquarters in Boise, said about 90 percent of the items in Safeway stores in the Magic Valley come from Safeway warehouses in Salt Lake City.

"In this area they are supposedly the same," Johnson said. He said that some items purchased locally, like beer, pop and milk, might fluctuate from area to area.

Johnson seemed surprised that a survey would find price variations among the chain's stores.

"One clerk is assigned in each store" to price goods and prices are to be checked each week against a "book" used by all Safeway stores in an area.

He said a "high volume store might reflect the market changes more rapidly" than a smaller store.

If a price increase is set by the head office, local stores do not raise the price of the old stock still on the shelves, he said.

Meat prices in the survey varied in the different Safeway stores, Johnson said that the Salt Lake City office buys meat from local packers, but that the retail prices are set the same for all stores.

"The upswing in prices has tapered off" he said. Some price advances are being "temporarily" by declines for other items, he said.

A spokesman at the Gooding Safeway said that it was his "general knowledge" that Safeway prices throughout the district were the same, since prices come out of Salt Lake City. Some items are locally priced and may vary in different towns.

Albertson's merchandiser in Boise, Bill Smith, also said that a few items were priced according to local conditions, but that the rest were the same in all Albertson's stores in the area.

All independent grocers who buy from Albertson's Mountain States Wholesale Co. would also have the same prices as Albertson's, according to Smith.

Farmer's Market in Shoshone buys some of its goods from Mountain Sales Wholesale, according to owner Joe Berriochio.

The majority of items in the Times-News price survey were from the chain's central warehouses and not local vendors. Sugar, meat and other staples varied from a few pennies to $1 on the different Safeway stores.

Ari leaves Jackie $3 million bequest

© N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — Under the will of her late husband, Mrs. Aristide Onassis receives $3 million, a bequest far less than published reports indicated she would receive, according to friends of the Onassis family.

Shortly before his death, Onassis reportedly had decided to divorce his wife and asked that a lawyer begin proceedings.

Onassis' will, several sources told the New York Times, also stipulated that trust funds of $1 million be set up for each of the children from Mrs. Onassis' marriage to the late President John F. Kennedy.

The children, Caroline and John, will receive incomes from the fund until they are 21 years old. Previous reports had indicated that they would inherit as much as $15 million each.

When Onassis died in Paris on March 15, estimates of his wealth reached as high as $500 million. The sum left to Mrs. Onassis is said to be the minimum amount Onassis could leave her under Greek law. Earlier reports had estimated that Mrs. Onassis would receive up to $200 million.

Last Dec. 3, John Meyer, Onassis' closest associate, called Roy M. Cohn, the lawyer Meyer told Cohn that Onassis wanted him to be his attorney in a divorce action against Mrs. Onassis. Meyer, who was in Florida Friday, declined to comment on the telephone call. An associate said Meyer would not answer questions until "the Onassis family has decided what to do about Jackie."

Several friends of the Onassis family have said that Mrs. Onassis wants divorce money. However, Christina Onassis, Onassis' daughter by his first marriage, is said to be bitterly hostile to Mrs. Onassis.

Miss Onassis, her friends say, was instrumental in persuading her father to seek a divorce.

Woman admits informing on Attica pen defense

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — A 26-year-old woman said Saturday she furnished radical political organizations, including the Attica prison riot legal defense, as a paid informer for the FBI.

Mary Jo Cook said she was paid "an average sum of $300 a month plus expenses" to report to the FBI under the code name "Jo LeRoy" from the summer of 1973 until fall, 1974.

"I was hired by the government to commit a political crime, but one which I won't be prosecuted for," she said.

Miss Cook, who graduated cum laude from Nazareth College in Rochester, N.Y., in 1970, said she decided to reveal her undercover activities only after "I realized what I was doing was not only wrong, but undermined everything

I had learned to believe in growing up in America.

"I thought I was being loyal to America when I started," she said. "I was being asked by my government to do something I thought was perfectly legal.

"But I guess I watched television too much not to be convinced that the FBI would ask me to do anything wrong."

Two attorneys who have been active in the Attica riot defense, Barbara Handschu and Leonard J. Kiall, accompanied Miss Cook as she spoke during a news conference. Miss Handschu said Miss Cook originally was approached by the FBI to infiltrate the Vietnam Veterans Against the War-Winter Soldier Organization in Buffalo.

A spokesman for the group said "one of the principle areas of her concentration was political defense work, heavily focusing on the Attica legal defense efforts."

Miss Cook said she worked as part of the jury project evaluating potential jurors in a recent Attica murder trial. "I was made privy to information about the defense," said Miss Cook, "and I said a lot" to the FBI.

In that trial, former inmate John B. Hill, 23, of Buffalo, was convicted of murder and former inmate Charles J. Perna, 22, of Camillus, was convicted of attempted second-degree assault in connection with the death of guard William Quinn during the uprising.

Budget proposals close

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Compelled by a new law to decide in advance how much it intends to spend, Congress is considering budget targets remarkably close to President Ford's.

Both House and Senate Budget committees — perhaps cowed by the inevitability of the biggest deficit in history in fiscal 1976 — have called for far less spending than many economists favor as an recession stimulus.

The House committee adopted a recommended budget of $368.2 billion which is only 3.5 per cent larger than Ford's. The Senate committee's $365 billion is only 2.6 per cent over the President's recommendations.

"The committee may be a little more conservative than the Senate as a whole," Chairman Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said Friday when his panel finished its work.

"But things are changing. The public mood may be changing — may be becoming more conservative in regard to spending and in regard to cutting defense spending."

Muskie's committee recommended chipping only $2.8 billion from Ford's $394 billion defense recommendation. The House committee cut $4.3 billion.

After the House and Senate pass budget resolutions in the coming weeks and a compromise figure is agreed upon, the total becomes a guideline for Congress.

Later, if Congress votes to spend more, it must make cuts, increase taxes or vote to enlarge the deficit.

So for the first time, Congress is considering the whole budgetary picture. Heretofore, it approved the slice by slice without advance knowledge of the size of the collection it was backing.

Aide appointed

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) — Terry Sanford, who has not yet announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination, Saturday appointed former Gov. Philip Hoff of Vermont to run his campaign.

Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and now professor at Duke University, is expected to make a formal announcement in late spring or early summer.

Sadat demands pullback

CAIRO — President Anwar el-Sadat Saturday said in effect American mediation in the Middle East is no longer enough and that the administration must state clearly that it wants Israel to withdraw to the borders of 1967.

In a lengthy interview, Sadat also said that Israeli behavior during Secretary of State Henry R. Kissinger's mission last month "has humiliated the United States in the area."

Sadat vowed that in spite of the increased danger of war, he will continue his policy of economic and political liberalization at home.

"This policy is irreversible," he said. The pledge took on added significance because he is understood to be preparing major changes in his government within the next few days and because Ismail Fahmy, the Egyptian foreign minister, is due to fly to Moscow next Saturday.

Sadat confirmed that the Soviet Union resumed arms deliveries to Egypt last January after a 15-month interruption, but he added that these were shipments that should have arrived in 1973 and 1974 and could not be regarded as replacements for losses incurred during the October war. He made it clear that Egypt was paying for the Soviet arms.

He was quoted by Cairo newspapers last month as saying the shipments included MIG-23s.

Sadat carefully left open the question of Israeli-bound cargo passing through the Suez Canal when it opens on June 5, the question will be considered in the light of Israel's future policy, he said.

But he categorically rejected Israel's contention that secret understandings made at the time of the first disengagement agreement of January, 1974, obliged him either to open the canal or to let Israeli-bound cargo pass through.

USSR inks bank loan

© N.Y. Times Service
MOSCOW — The Soviet Union signed an agreement Friday to borrow $250 million from a group of Western banks.

The amount was described as the largest loan this country has ever taken with private Western financial institutions.

Lazard Freres heads the group of lenders, which includes the Morgan Guaranty Co., Banque Nationale de Paris and several West European and North American banks.

The five and one-half year loan will carry interest of 11 1/2 per cent above the prevailing London international bank rate. A Western banking official here for the signing said that the loan was the largest made privately in the West since a $100 million agreement was made with the Soviet Union earlier this year including the National Westminster Bank of Britain. The official said the Soviet Union did not disclose how it would spend the money.

But she says the decision of what to do with the funds is a "personal thing" and recognizes that politicians have a "awful lot of out-of-pocket expenses."
Mrs. Sinclair adds, however, that keeping the money for personal use "doesn't seem quite cricket" and says she could support a law prohibiting this, although she would oppose specific guidelines on how the money should be spent.
Pat Gillespie, executive secretary of the Idaho Democratic Party, believes that if possible, leftover campaign funds should be returned to the donors when a candidate chooses not to run for office again.
She does believe, however, that a candidate is justified in using the funds to make up his own time and financial contributions to the campaign.

But Bob Erkins, Buhl, and finance chairman for the Idaho Republican Party for several years, believe that a candidate takes his changes when he runs and should not expect to be reimbursed for his time off the job.
Carl Burke, campaign manager for Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, agrees that leftover campaign funds should not be used for personal purposes. He knows of no instance where candidates have returned money to the contributors after the campaign since this is a difficult thing to do, but says the unspent funds could at least be put to some political purpose.
Burke says that a new federal campaign act effective this year says that candidates can use leftover campaign funds for "any lawful purpose." What this means, however, will have to be determined by a commission appointed to "make rules and regulations" on campaign finances.

"In any case, the new election law will bring a whole new ball game, thank God" since committees will be strictly limited to how much they can contribute to a particular election, Burke says.
"According to one official for the U.S. House of Representatives, keeping campaign funds for personal purposes up to now has been legal. And the official, who insisted on not being named, says that there are "no restrictions written in the new federal campaign act" on a candidate's use of left-over money.
In at least one instance a senator was officially chastised for making personal use of campaign funds. In a 95-5 vote the Senate censured the late Sen. Thomas Dodd, D-Conn., for "exercising the influence and power of his office... to obtain and use for his 'personal benefit' funds from the public through political testimonials and political campaign." WASHINGTON — A private study group has proposed that the records of President Ford and all future presidents be declared public property.

Dodd had kept at least $116,083 out of $490,273 raised for his own use.
Davis maintains there is "a considerable difference" between Dodd's case and his own. "I spent every penny I had on the campaign," he says.
According to Morgan, Davis' net worth was $10,000 before the campaign and is the same now.

Hansen rips US Asian policy

WASHINGTON — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, will attack American policy in Southeast Asia in a speech to be delivered in the House of Representatives Monday.
Charging that "the kiss, or is it Kissinger, of death has now been applied to Southeast Asia," Hansen said in prepared remarks 30 years of the same foreign policy is now "conceding another victory to the Communists, completing the scuttling of two more nations and further isolating the United States in a sea of world hostility."
After upstating South Vietnam's stability by assisting the overthrow of its government in the early 1960's, the U.S. induced Cambodia to abandon neutrality and enter the Indochina war against Hanoi, Hansen said.
"Aggression has escalated for months with no real protest by American authorities while South Vietnamese supplies dwindled without replacement," Hansen said. "Congressional inaction to assist South Vietnam caused frustration and finally panic. Cambodia and South Vietnam are now fading into history—a monument not to Communist inevitability but to untypical American conduct in foreign policy."

Hansen said the "no win" policy adopted since World War II is certain to produce only the eventual abandonment of the nation's friends and commitments and American embarrassment, frustration and bankruptcy.
"In Asia we could have saved our friends, saved face, saved lives, saved time and saved a fortune and been a whole lot more secure at home if we had carried the war to the enemy so that it was his homeland, not that of our allies which was torn by military action; so that it was his population who suffered; so that it was his territory which was non-negotiable, and so that it was in his interest to stop aggression and stop fighting," Hansen said.

Gem Amtrak panel backs coast, Utah routing

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Advisory Committee on Amtrak recommended Friday that an experimental rail passenger line through Idaho link Seattle and Portland to Boise, Pocatello, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Las Vegas and Los Angeles.

The recommendation was based primarily on studies that showed Boise and Salt Lake as well as the major Pacific Coast cities to be the most popular destinations of Idahoans.

In addition, the proposal is in accord with Utah's desire for a Salt Lake to Los Angeles train, said Dwight Jensen, chairman of the committee.

It would connect at Ogden for trains to Denver and Chicago. There also could be a connection at Salt Lake for Denver.

The plan would call for a regular stop at Shoshone and a flag stop at Mindoka to serve the Magle Valley.

The committee said it also wants to urge some kind of train service through Soda Springs into Wyoming.

Jensen said there is a need for a Soda Springs connection because the community is a growing industrial area and needs some kind of connection to the rest of the state.

The highway is not good. It is too high in elevation for a commercial airport. Therefore, rails would be the only dependable year-round means of transportation, he said.

"Also, we have had more people from that area contact us in writing in favor of rail service than from any other part of the state," Jensen said.

Future Amtrak plans include a new Chicago to Los Angeles route that could go through Ogden. If that happens, the Idaho committee spoke favorably to changing its route so it would run Portland-Pocatello-Green River-Denver, A Butte, Mont., to Salt Lake train also would be recommended in that case, he said.

"That would give Idahoans rail service in all directions," said Jensen. "We have had official support for this route from both Utah and Oregon," he said, "and we will try to present the case for this route to the secretary of transportation later this month. It will make the decision on which route will be designated."

The route was not recommended by the committee, was not the favorite of people at the hearings in Pocatello who said they favored Chicago and Denver destinations.

"But studies we had made showed Salt Lake was favored by 32 per cent of the people questioned while 17 per cent wanted a Denver route, seven per cent wanted a Chicago route and fewer than five per cent favored any route east of Chicago."

On the other hand, 17.6 per cent wanted Los Angeles and 20 per cent wanted San Francisco.

"Therefore, since you can connect at Ogden anyway for Chicago and the east we thought the route south would be the stronger route and get more support from Idaho," he said.

On the cost of using the lines, Jensen said the "present rule of thumb is it costs a nickel a mile to ride Amtrak. A sample is $12.50 Boise to Pocatello and $22 Boise to Portland. It would be about $21 Boise to Salt Lake, and about $50 by coach to Los Angeles from Boise."

During a committee discussion on the routes Friday, Jensen said it would not cost Idaho anything for the line during the two years it will be operated on an experimental basis by Amtrak.

Aide seeks backing for textbook pick

BOISE (UPI) — Executive Secretary Wayne York urged the Idaho Education Association to back up the State Board of Education in its selection of textbooks for classroom use.

York told the IEA delegate assembly Friday that textbooks and educational materials should not be banned, censored or withdrawn in response to complaints based on material taken out of context. He said there should be a study of the objectives of the book or series as a whole.

There are too many time-honored American democratic principles to acquiesce quietly to censorship, York said. He said the public can trust Idaho's teachers to use judgment and common sense.

Teachers should be free, however, to select classroom materials from what is available and that freedom "should be guaranteed and protected from assault or erosion."

Geothermal probes set for Boise

BOISE (UPI) — In the future, Boise may be the only city in North America with space-heating and electrical power generated by its own underground hot water.

The chairman of the Boise State University Geology Department, Dr. Kenneth Hollenbaugh, told the Boise Exchange Club Friday, his department is investigating the capacity and potential for the expansion of Boise's unique geothermal system.

The hot water already heats 160 homes in the Warm Springs Avenue area and although the water is not hot enough to produce electricity with current technology, its space-heating potential could save $200,000 in energy use in the Capitol Mall and in downtown city and county offices.

His department plans to launch a "geophysical reconnaissance" of the Boise system by next December and geophysical investigations should determine the best areas for drilling for hot water. In about a year, Hollenbaugh said, the department should know the capacity of the system and its potential for expansion.

The Boise system is unique, he said, because it contains "super good quality water." He said the water is confined to the corridor along the Boise Front in a regional fault zone which has been inactive for several thousand years.

Lead levels dip

KELLOGG, Idaho (UPI) — The blood-lead levels of those living near the Bunker Hill Smelter have declined since anti-pollution measures were instituted, the director of the North Idaho Lead Study said Friday.

But most of the children living within a mile of their blood, Dr. Glen Wegner said.

Wegner said 185 persons were tested in February after tests in August and October 1974.

In the group of 1,047 children tested in August, 42 were found to have abnormal levels of lead in their blood of 40 micrograms or more, and 40 were suffering from acute lead poisoning with levels of 60 micrograms or more.

The Bunker Hill Smelter at Kellogg was found to be a contributing factor to the presence of such concentrations of lead in the children's blood, and since has undertaken a campaign to ease particulate emissions.

Evans cites gains

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho Lt. Gov. John Evans said Saturday night that public attitudes toward retarded persons had "come a long way in the last 20 years."

Speaking to the annual convention of the Idaho Association for Retarded Citizens in Idaho Falls, Evans said: "Society has finally come to realize that the so-called handicapped have a vast amount of skills to contribute to their communities."

"Most of the progress in improving conditions for the mentally retarded has been in the areas of prevention and education," he said.

"It is predicted by the year 2000 it will be possible to regenerate brain cells, thereby preventing much mental retardation and other handicapping conditions," Evans said.

He said all 50 states have passed some form of mandatory education law for retarded citizens and in Idaho, 98 of 115 school districts provide some form of education for handicapped.

"State and local authorities are meeting their legal obligations to provide for all of the retarded children who have as much right to an education as other persons. The goal for the State of Idaho is to provide full educational opportunity for all handicapped students by 1980," he said.

Auction set April 26 to help humane society

TWIN FALLS — Lynwood Mall merchants are coming to the rescue of the Twin Falls County Humane Society with an auction to be held April 26 at 11 a.m.

Merchandise is being donated by shops and stores in the Lynwood Shopping Mall, but others throughout the community are also being asked to assist.

Individuals or merchants with items to donate may leave them at the shopping center after April 23. A Humane Society truck will be parked in the parking lot after that time and donations will be left at the truck.

A pick-up service is also available and persons wishing to have their donations called for may call 734-2493.

Joe Rowe has volunteered his services to auctioneer the items. Committee members say anything will be acceptable from furniture items to a sack of potatoes. One used car and several home furnishing items have already been donated.

Merchants in charge of the auction say they have set a goal of $5,000 which would cover all debts of the Humane Society and place it on a current operating basis. This would include the $1,800 owed the Internal Revenue Service

Bickel student wins contest

TWIN FALLS — Martha Craney, Room 24 Bickel School, has been judged the district winner in the jungle contest sponsored by the Idaho Beautification Council.

Mrs. Kenneth Miller, councilmember, said Martha's jungle will now be entered in the regional contest.

Her jungle is "If you want a beautiful tomorrow, beautify Idaho today. We only have one Idaho."

Pageant entries open

TWIN FALLS — Entries are still being accepted to the Miss Teen Queen of Idaho Pageant.

The pageant to select the

Girls from 13 to 17 years of age may obtain applications from Pageants Certification Office, Box 11721, Nashville, Tenn. 37211.

Contractors will meet Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — The Building Contractors Association of Magic Valley will meet at Blue Lakes Inn Wednesday for a 6:30 social hour and a 7:30 dinner meeting.

The ladies auxiliary will meet at the same time and place.

A national representative from San Francisco and state executive officer Hal Sweet, Boise, will speak.

State Rep. Tom Stivers will give a legislative report.

For reservations call 724-5022.

Turn-about sale slated

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls League of Women Voters will hold a turn-about rummage sale Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the basement of the Bon Marche.

Articles for sale will include clothes, books, plants, dry beans, tires and a variety of household items.

Interested persons who wish to be held on the main floor of the Bon Marche.

Past Noble Grands meet

FILER — Mrs. Edith Lepper, assisted by Ruth McDonough, hosted the Thursday meeting of Past Noble Grands of the HebeKans.

Mrs. Ruth Thomas was a guest. Mrs. Maizie Brown and Mrs. Florence Cobb received prizes.

Mrs. Grace McCauley is hostess for the May 1 meeting.

Closed circuit TV system great aid for CSI students

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Students at the College of Southern Idaho vocational building "W-1" are watching a lot of television these days.

And they have the full approval of the faculty for educational benefits. The school, with the help of an $80,000 federal grant, now has a closed circuit television system of its own complete with a mini-studio, filming and recording equipment and a control system with a memory bank.

Holly Houlburg, veteran broadcaster before joining the CSI vocational education program, said the federal grant allowed the college to install the mini-studio with cameras, lights and other equipment necessary for color television production.

Equipment — at the college also includes a number of individual television sets which accommodate the film and sound cassettes on various subjects and courses.

With these units, a student may check out a set, much as he would take out a library book, obtain from the library the cassettes he needs for special study and play it for review or resource material. With the system he is able to replay again and again any area which may not be fully clear or which he is attempting to understand.

One major phase of the program serves the school's many deaf students. CSI now has one of the most complete training programs for deaf persons in the entire northwest.

Frank Schell, coordinator of curriculum development, said one of the biggest problems the deaf students have is reading. Many have a reading level of only a lower grade school student because of the difficulty in associating the word they cannot hear with an object.

The cassettes show a picture of the item along with the written words and in such matters as auto mechanics, tools are pictured along with the words because the deaf student does not have the benefit of the sound track.

In a filmed class lecture the CSI instructor will go into the studio and in the case of auto mechanics will show the motor as he lectures on various problems and repairs.

The deaf student can see the illustrations and read the written material on the film to benefit from the lecture and can replay it all or in part as needed.

The summarizing of the written material can be made at the same time as the filming is being done, Houlburg said, and if one word or object is being emphasized, another attachment on the control board can flash the picture or word onto the film a number of times.

Diesel mechanics, one of the more popular courses at the college, uses the filming for student training on frequent occasions, Schell said.

The filming control panel and equipment affords a variety of input. The operator can use either 16 or 35 millimeter or super 8 film and written material can be added in three languages.

Dennis Moon, television technician, is responsible for operation of the unit and during the past week has been in California attending special training for servicing of the equipment.

Bradley and others in the vocational division of CSI have found the use of closed circuit television is also most beneficial in rehabilitation training for handicapped persons other than deaf students.

Schell said persons are welcome at all times to visit the vocational building on Kimberly Road, just east of East Five Points and inspect the television operation and vocational training classes.

Simple process

JUST like checking out a library book, the student can obtain a small individual television set and cartridge of film and sound tape, demonstrated at left by Frank Schell, curriculum coordinator at the vocational school. The program is especially helpful in training deaf students. Instead of sound, printed words and drawings illustrate the filmed presentation.

CSI drama group plans 'Spoon River Anthology'

TWIN FALLS — "Spoon River Anthology," a stage version of Edgar Lee Masters' long-loved book of free verse epigrams, will be the next attraction in the drama department of the College of Southern Idaho. Masters' vignettes of mid-western townpeople woven into a dramatic tapestry will be presented Thursday through April 20 at 8:15 p.m. in Theatre 119 of the Fine Arts Center.

Sunday matinee curtain will, be 2:15 p.m. The anthology consists of self-spoken epitaphs of men and women lying in a graveyard near the fictional village of Spoon River. These are not epitaphs, however, which could ever have appeared on a headstone.

They too truthfully reveal the secret passions, joys, fears, aspirations, successes, failures and hypocrisies that stirred these people while they lived. Some are raucously comic, some angry, bitter or despairing. All evoke the sights, sounds and smells of an American prairie town at the turn of the century.

Those appearing in the show are: Luan Clawson, Molly Curtis and Steve Webb, all Twin Falls; Joan Vaux, Hansen and Delain Horn, Rupert. Singers include Jolinda Jensen, Hagerman, and Laine Steel, Twin Falls. Sandra Hammond, Twin Falls, is guitarist. The show is being directed by Fran Tanner, professor of speech and drama.

The cast will glide through a wide variety of character changes — teachers, farmers, merchants, ministers, lonely spinsters, over-pursued beauties, the town's tycoon, an oculist, a local dandy, one marvelously happy woman who died fulfilled at 96.

Interspersed in these portrayals will be a series of both old, familiar folksongs as well as specially written folk ditties for the show.

When Masters first published "Spoon River" in 1915, it scandalized many readers with its disclosure that small-town life was not as pure

GUITARIST Sandy Hammond accompanies folk songs as townspeople, from left, Laine Steel, Jolinda Jensen and Molly Curtis, clap rhythm. Songs are interspersed throughout "Spoon River Anthology" to be presented by the CSI Drama Department April 17-20.

Poignant epitaphs

RIISING from a mock tombstone in "Spoon River Anthology," Joan Vaux and Delaine Horn speak their characters' poignant epitaphs. While the inscriptions are fictional, the characters portrayed actually lived in the villages and along the countryside of the Spoon River in Illinois.

Abby

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I wish people who ask ministers to conduct funerals and weddings knew what the word "honorarium" means. It means payment to a professional for services for which no fee is set or legally obtainable. Some people feel it is so crude to ask a minister: "How much do I owe you," that they just let the matter go and do nothing about it at all.

My husband is a minister (please don't say where), and within the last year, he was called to officiate at the funeral services of both an elderly man and his wife, who lived 35 miles away. He was given no fee.

Abby, can you imagine anyone writing the following note to an attorney? "Thank you, Mr. Jones, for your legal services. Mother and Dad would have wanted you to come down to handle these legal services for us at this trying time."

Honorarium confusing

Or the minister to his barber: "Thank you, Mr. Smith, for cutting my hair at this time. I would not want to embarrass the family by needing a haircut." Or "Thank you, Mr. Brown, for the gasoline, oil and car wash. I wouldn't want to run out of gas on my way to a funeral or show up with a flat tire." Or "Thank you, Mr. Winter, for cleaning and pressing my suit. I would not want to embarrass the family at this time by appearing unkempt."

In order to make ends meet, my husband moonlights and had to pay a substitute for his second job so he could make these two funerals.

INDIGNANT

DEAR INDIGNANT: Perhaps because there is no set fee for conducting funerals and weddings, some folks feel that there is no fee at all. Also, some clergymen have written to tell me that they consider such services a part of their job, and they're insulted when they are offered money for doing the work of the Lord.

I say: "Offer anyway. The offended clergyman can always refuse."

DEAR ABBY: I am 18, and the boy I've been dating for two years is 19. We were supposed to get married secretly last month, but Dick showed up without the license. Originally, when I had asked him if he had it, he had said yes.

But after he arrived at the preacher's house and the preacher asked Dick for the license, Dick said he "forgot" it at home, letting the preacher would perform the ceremony anyway, and let him bring it around later.

Well, the preacher wouldn't marry us without the license, so we decided to wait in a motel that night, thinking Dick would get the license the next day, and we'd get married and nobody would know the careless mistake he made.

Well, the preacher called my father, and my father came to the motel to pick me up. I felt just awful, but I went with my father.

I still have feelings for Dick. He says if I don't come back to him he will kill himself. My parents say I should let Dick go. Should I listen to my parents or stick with Dick?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Listen to your parents, dear. Dick didn't make a "careless" mistake, he lied to you. He sounds much too immature and irresponsible for marriage now.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: Don't believe everything you see in print. Many celebrities prefer to let vicious untruths go unchallenged rather than to sue for defamation of character because they believe that if one wrestles with a skunk, he's apt to emerge smelling as bad as the skunk.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal response, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lakeside Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90210 for Abby's booklets "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a 10¢ self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Nancy Roberts weds Cheney on March 22

BUILT — Nancy E. Roberts and Elwood A. Cheney were married in a 7 p.m. ceremony March 22 at St. John's Lutheran Church.

Rev. R. J. Scholz conducted the ceremony before an altar decorated with an arrangement of white gladioli and pom-pom chrysanthemums flanked with candelabra holding blue tapers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. (Bud) Cheney, Twin Falls.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a A-line dress with an empire waist of white floral lace over satin. A chapel length train trimmed with white lace flowers was attached to the waist of the dress.

The rounded neckline was trimmed with wide scalloped lace and the long lace sleeves were gathered to cuffs of lace and satin-fastened with pearl buttons.

Her two tiered cathedral length veil of bridal illusion was edged with lace, noting that used for the dress. The veil was held by a tiara of pearl flowers and petals. The dress and veil were designed and made by the bride.

She carried a cascade bouquet of blue spirea chrysanthemums, baby white lilies, eleanors and small fern tied with blue ribbons. She wore a small cross necklace, a gift of the bridegroom, and carried a lace handkerchief borrowed from her mother.

The pews were marked with white bows and blue forget-me-nots.

Mrs. Dave Armstrong, Twin Falls, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Cindy Arave, Jerome, and Martha Roberts — Buhl, sister of the bride. Cathy Laine, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Scott and Jeff Herzinger were ushers.

Ray Kubler, Elk, Nev., was best man. Jerry Arava and Phil Pence, both Twin Falls, were ushers. Paul Lowman,

Mrs. Clifford Spreier, Buhl, was organist and Mrs. Gary Bohling, Buhl, was soloist.

The couple was honored at a reception in the basement of the church following the ceremony.

Tapes were decorated with blue candles surrounded by white feather flowers and blue net.

Marilyn Mink, Wendell, was in charge of the guest book.

The four tiered cake was decorated with blue and white and had a miniature bridal couple on top. It was placed on a table covered with a lace cloth over a blue underlay.

The punch and coffee table had a centerpiece with three blue spiral candles surrounded by white feather flowers.

The cake was cut and served by Mrs. Larry Cooper, Nampa, and Mrs. Glenn Herzinger, Buhl, aunts of the bride. Mrs. David Lewis, Buhl, served the bride, and Bonnie Mink, Wendell, dispensed coffee.

Mrs. Judith Laine, Roberts, Port, Calif., Mrs. Tom Lowman, Jr., Gooding, sisters of the bridegroom, Sue Roberts, Buhl, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Lee Hentzelman, Twin Falls, poured coffee.

Mrs. Tom Lowman, Jr., Gooding, sisters of the bridegroom, Sue Roberts, Buhl, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Lee Hentzelman, Twin Falls, poured coffee.

Club elects officers

TWIN FALLS — Geri Miller was elected president of the Magic Valley YWCA at a meeting Thursday night.

Other newly elected officers are: Marguerite Lewis, vice president; Nettie Magel, treasurer, and Eileen Cappel, secretary.

The blue pencil for the best speech was awarded to Mrs. Magel. Greeta Smith received the red pencil for the best performance.

The traveling trophy for best table topics was awarded to Aida Strong.

Dot Miller conducted table topics. Mrs. Lewis gave the lexicology. Aileen Linderood was toastmistress. Mrs. Miller was timer. Aida Strong was general evaluator and Vera Young was in charge of programs and decorations.

Silent auction planned

HASSEN — A girl and her diet might live gaily if only food was so deadly.

This is the opening thought brought to the TWIN FALLS Club meeting by the leader, Mrs. Marjorie Howard, at the home of Mrs. Darrothea Steinhilb.

Mrs. Ralph Simmens was the best loser of the week.

The silent auction date is April 21. All members are asked to contribute unsrapped items.

The second reading of the resolutions and amendments was approved. They will be typed and a copy given to each member.

Mrs. Steinhilb was program chairman. She read excerpts from the Family Health magazine performing in dieting and diet suggestions.

Julia Hurn demonstrated banding and stretching exercises with all parts outting.

Swim signup goes on

TWIN FALLS — Registration for the spring session of the swim program is still in progress at the Magic Valley YM-YWCA.

About 400 persons have signed up for the classes, which range from beginning swimming to swim team.

For information on the program, call 733-4384 or visit the Y at 1751 Elizabeth Boulevard.

Books reviewed

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Public Library has released book reviews on five new books available at the library.

"Great Dream from Heaven" by John Gardner is set in turn-of-the-century Tennessee. A tough, naive hero is smothered in bravery, murder, love and greed. Legendary conflicts of his time.

"The Summer of the Great Grandmother" by Madeline L'Engle speaks to everyone who has an elderly parent or who has lost one. It is a novel about people and their emotions.

"The Brain Changers" by Maya Pines is an engrossing book which discusses the power science gives people to change the brain and control man's behavior. In order to control this power, we must understand it.

Doug Boyd's "Rolling Thunder" conveys the Indians' message that the key to our survival lies in the hands of the culture that white America has tried to destroy. The author is a researcher for the prestigious Menninger Clinic and he offers himself as a bridge between the scientist and the medicine man to deliver the message.

"Avida Gold" by David Westheimer is about a pair of UCLA professors who become treasure hunters when a 125-year old letter reveals the location of a $1 million cache of Spanish gold buried under the streets of downtown Los Angeles.

St. Paul wedding planned

TWIN FALLS — William J. Biederman, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Doris Schmidt, Kenal, Anchorage, Alaska, announce the engagement of their son, Paul, to Jennifer Roth.

Miss Roth is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maxine Utah, Anchorage, Alaska. Biederman and Miss Roth, both graduates of East Anchorage High School, are presently attending Bethel College in St. Paul, Minn.

The couple plans a wedding May 25 in St. Paul.

TF pair observes 50th year

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Modlin will observe their 50th wedding anniversary with an open house April 19 at their home.

The event will be from 2 to 5 p.m. at the couple's home, 1234 Seventh Ave. E., with all of their family and friends invited.

The couple was married April 18, 1925, in Jerome by Rev. C.A. Yarnum. They farmed in Kimberly for five years and for one year in Wendell. They have lived in Twin Falls for the past 44 years. Modlin has retired from the Amalgamated Sugar Co. where he worked for 29 years.

Assisting with the open house will be their daughter Mrs. Jesse (Patricia) Posey and grandchildren Mrs. Rodney (Becky) Reeves, Vicki Posey, all from Kimberly, and Lindsey Posey, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Ely Culbertson once said that any time he could see all the cards, the Culbertson system would get him to the right contract.

Five clubs would be the right contract for today's hand. South would make it easily by winning the first heart, drawing trumps and knocking out the ace of diamonds.

What this hand appeared in the finals of a regional open pairs no one reached that contract. Those few pairs that did get to game all played in three notrump and most of them wound up making their contract.

4-H club discusses cleanup

Display antiques

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls — Happy-Go-Lucky 4-H Club held a meeting Thursday at the home of Robyn Reynolds.

The flag salute was led by Kimberly-Grooms and the 4-H pledge by Kathy Parks.

Johnny Horizon Day was discussed and club members voted to participate again this year.

Discussions were led by Christine Brill, leader, on "Making a Snack" and "How to Wash Dishes." Mrs. Fred Brill, assistant leader, discussed "Making Sandwiches."

A new member, Arlene Smith, was introduced. Robyn gave a demonstration on "Making a Quick Fruit Salad."

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am a very concerned grandmother. My grandson, who is five, has a habit when he goes to bed and becomes chilled during the night. He folds up on his knees and pounds his head continuously on the bed.

This goes on all night, and he just doesn't get proper rest and sleep. My daughter has had him checked, and her pediatrician tells her the boy is healthy and will outgrow this habit by the time he's 10 years old.

Is there anything that can be done to quiet him down during his sleep? Mrs. R. C.

I have an image of grandmother sitting in the darkness of a still evening and listening, flinching with each "bump, bump, bump" echoing from this tot's bedroom. If he is like most head-bangers I've known, you have little real cause for concern.

Head-bangers are always with us, and while the practice may have its humorous aspect, for some, for parents — grand parents, too — it can be a source of great apprehension. I can tell you that the banging rarely results in damage to the head or brain. It is not a sign that the child is a dimwit.

Youngster's habit

Dr. George Thosteson

Why an otherwise healthy youngster will begin this seemingly self-destructive behavior is a mystery. There seems to be no good answer for it, nor any reliable solution. One noted pediatrician says head-bangers tend to be of the more serious type. He suggests that they may require a bit more cuddling than other youngsters.

Folding of the knees — in imitation of the fetal position — and it is a comfortable position for babies, providing them with an extra bit of warmth. Perhaps a warmer blanket, firmly tucked, would help.

The head-banging should end long before his 10th year. If it were to continue that late, you could have more than just an ordinary, garden-variety head-banger on your hands.

While you're waiting for the disturbing practice to end, try some measures to make it a bit less worrisome for you. Put some extra padding around the top of the crib or bed. I recall a father who cut out the headboard and replaced it with strong canvas. Much of the infant's satisfaction in head-banging apparently comes from the sound produced.

Concern about the lack of sleep and rest in children is usually unwarranted.

Another thought about the head-banger. It often begins at about the time in the child's life when mother stops running into the bedroom to quiet bedtime wailing. You already know from experience that the child does not wake up in the morning with his head bloodied from an evening's head-banging session.

Try ignoring it for a while, and see just how much attention-getting is involved.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

A doctor in New Jersey gave me shots for menopause. Now I live in another state where they are not up to date on things and the doctors don't believe in giving anything for relief. Why?

I haven't had a good night's rest for so long because of hot flashes and frequent headaches. — Mrs. S. E. S.

My good colleagues in the second state would be surprised to learn they are not "up to date on things." I have attended fine medical meetings there, and I can assure you that they are quite up to date.

I don't know why your particular doctor does not want to prescribe hormone shots. He may find that you are not yet into menopause. And he would not be the first gynecologist to decide that his patient is better off not having the hormone supplement.

There may be good reasons in your case for such decisions. Finding out about them would be simple. Just ask him.

Valley announces '75 class leaders

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Class leaders for the 1975 graduating class at Valley High School have been announced by William Mitchell, high school principal.

Debbie Hammond and Erica Sorensen, co-valuedictorians, and Patty Vinyard and Wanda Yamagata, co-salutatorians, will be student speakers at the combined Valley High School Commencement and graduation calaureate exercises May 18 at the high school gymnasium.

Both Miss Hammond and Miss Sorensen will graduate with a 96 plus grade point average and Miss Vinyard and Miss Yamagata with a 95 plus average.

Debbie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hammond, Eden. She is a member of the FHA Rep Club, Music Honor Society, student council and National Honor Society. She is secretary of the concert band, accompanist for concert chorus and madrigal choir, captain of the drill team, and homecoming and junior prom queen candidate.

As Twin Falls Junior Miss, she represented the district at the state pageant in Moscow where she won first place in talent competition with a piano solo and second in the Miss Break Hair contest.

She serves as the organist in the Hazelton LDS Church Sunday School. She plans to attend Ricks College and major in music or sociology.

Erica is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Ken Sorensen, Hazelton. She is a member of the FHA Rep Club, concert chorus and madrigal choir, band, the gymnastics team, and the National and Music Honor societies. She has served as chairman of recreation in the district FHA and was elected co-most valuable player of the 1974 volleyball team.

She is president of both the concert and pep bands and vice president of the Music Honor Society.

Erica is an attractive member of the LDS Church and serves on the bishop's youth council and is president of the Laurel Class.

She plans to attend Ricks College where she will major in computer technology child care.

Patty is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bryson Vinyard, Eden, and is a member of Music Honor Society, Pep Club, Madrigal choir, drill team, and is secretary of the National Honor Society at the school.

She is a senior representative on the student council.

She plans to attend the College of Southern Idaho and major in secretarial training.

A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yamagata, Wanda is active in drill team, concert band and National and Music Honor societies. She will attend Links School of Business where she plans to major in executive management.

Miss Mahler, Keisig pick wedding day

VICKI MAHLER plans rites

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence L. Mahler announce the engagement of their daughter, Vicki Lynn, to David S. Keisig.

Keisig is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Keisig, Boise, former Twin Falls residents. Miss Mahler was graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1972. She attended the College of Southern Idaho for one year and Ricks College for one year. She is now attending Brigham Young University and is a member of the BYU bowling team.

Keisig was graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1971 and served a two-year LDS Church Mission to Switzerland and France. He is attending Boise State University.

The couple plans a May 29 wedding in the Manli, Utah, LDS Temple. They will be honored at a reception in Twin Falls May 31.

They plan to live in Provo, Utah.

MR. AND MRS. BEAU WILLIAMS

Candlelight ritual unites local couple

TWIN FALLS — Cathy Houser and Beau Williams were married in a March 27 ceremony at the Twin Falls Church of Christ.

The candlelight ceremony was conducted by Don Wapole.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Houser and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Williams, all Twin Falls.

The bride wore a gown of white bridal satin with a lace inset on the skirt front, a chapel train and long full lace sleeves gathered to wide cuffs of lace fastened with white pearl buttons. The empire style gown had a square neckline.

Her cathedral-length veil was held in place by a lace cap and was edged with lace. She carried a nosegay bouquet of white stephanotis, white sweetheart, redwoods, centered with a white orchid.

Jeanette Annis, Twin Falls, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Rose Inman, Twin Falls; Tina Fox, Boise, and Debbie Goodwin, Fairfield.

Richard Cox was best man. Ushers were John Knapple and Larry Houser, both Twin Falls, and Jeff Connolly, Jerome.

Amy Pearson was flower girl. Herliert House was ringbearer. Lori Houser and Stacy Williams were candlelighters. Shelly Houser and Becky Pearson were miniature bride and bridegroom.

Vocal wedding music was provided by Don Martin and Mrs. Rick Todd, duet. Donna Knapple, solo. Ray Phillips, solo. Jim Palmer, Tom Houser, Curtis Foss, Donald Mrs. Ray Phillips, Donna Knapple, Marion Stape and Mary Cox.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony. The five tiered wedding cake was decorated with stephanotis and accented with fuchsia blue. It was baked and decorated by Mrs. Bill Houser, Mrs. Tom Edmons and Mrs. Ken Williams.

Reception assistants included Mrs. Edmons, Mrs. Emil Pike, Mitz Young, Kathy Cox and Bea Woodran. Andrea Canady, Shawn Roseberry and Jenny Cox cared for gifts. Karla Holmes and Nancy Brock were in charge of the guest book.

The couple resides in Twin Falls where the bride is employed at George K's Restaurant and the bridegroom is employed at Kellwood.

HOW TO CARE FOR A DIAMOND

By Mary Sue Miller

A bride-to-be writes: Please tell me how to care for my diamond engagement ring—it's beautiful, and I want to keep it beautiful.

The Answer: Diamonds last forever, but they need caring for to remain their brilliant best. That is true no matter how long you have treasured a piece of diamond jewelry. Here's what the Jewelry Council advises:

Cleaning. Prepare a small bowl of warm water and mild liquid detergent. Soak your ring in the suds for a few moments. Then brush it with a clean eyebrow brush, dipping it constantly in the suds.

Last, place it in a wire tea strainer and rinse under warm running water. Pat dry with a soft lintless cloth. Or buy a brand-name jewelry cleaner and follow instructions.

Storing. When you're not wearing a diamond, store it in a fabric-lined "jewel case" or a "box" with dividers. Never let it touch another piece of jewelry. Because of its hardness diamonds can scratch other stones, metals and each other.

While Traveling. Take along a protective travel case and a small bottle of suds or cleanser. Never leave your ring on the rim of a sink. It can slide down the drain, or you might forget it and lose it.

At Home. Don't wear your ring while doing rough work or using bleaches, because the mounting may become pitted. Do have your jeweler check your ring regularly for loosened prongs, etc. etera.

Enjoy your ring. Wear it with pleasure and pride.

LOVELIER HANDS

Do you have a hand problem? Send for LOVELIER HANDS, a booklet that covers every step in your quest for hand beauty. It tells how to keep the skin and nails groomed, how to overcome weak nails, polish chips, discolored knuckles, prominent veins, wrinkles, how to use the hands with poised grace. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in cash.

Some drivers easy prey

CHICAGO (UPI) — Drivers who pull into a gas station and say "fill it up" stand a much stronger chance of getting ripped than those who ask for a specific amount of gas, a city consumer official said Tuesday.

"It is better to ask for 5 or 10 gallons and figure out your cost," said Terry Hoan, deputy commissioner of the Department of Consumer Sales, Weights and Measures. "Motorists should do a little arithmetic and save themselves some money."

Hoan advised drivers to make sure the price on the billboards is the same as that on the gas pump, and to see that the gas pump registers zero at the start of the fill-up.

TF singer plans senior recital

MOSCOW — Linda Wegner, a University of Idaho music major from Twin Falls, will give her senior voice recital April 20.

Mrs. Wegner, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Tolney, will perform at 4 p.m. in the U of I Music Building Recital Hall. She will be accompanied by pianist Debra Montgomery, a junior U of I music major from Milton-Freewater, Ore.

Mrs. Wegner's program will include selections from Vincenzo Bellini, Robert Franz, Verdi, Chausson, Debussy and Massenet. A soprano, Mrs. Wegner is a member of the U of I opera workshop and a student of Dorothy Barnes, U of I assistant professor of music. She also performs with the college's Oratorio Choir and the Vandaliers.

TF cleanup day set

TWIN FALLS — The first organizational meeting for the 1975 Johnny Horton Day in Twin Falls County has been called for Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the county judicial building.

William Chaney, general chairman, said letters are being sent some 130 individuals and organizations asking for their support and assistance. Everyone in the county is invited to attend and to participate in the one-day cleanup campaign May 3.

Area chairmen will meet and report on plans Tuesday. Some work force assignments will also be made.

Chaney said this is the sixth annual such campaign and a number of other counties have now adopted the one-day spring cleaning project to beautify their counties.

Joining the county in sponsoring the event is the Bureau of Land Management.

These will be held at 8 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts auditorium.

But in addition to the formal evening productions, for which tickets are available at all Twin Falls music stores, the opera members will present free workshops to all persons interested in any phase of theatre production.

These will be held at 7:30 p.m. today on arts management and costumes, wigs and makeup. Monday's schedule includes: 11 a.m. preview of "Travata"; 11 a.m. place of the two productions in operatic history; noon, conductor's view; 1 p.m. singers' view; 2 p.m. vocal coaching and technique and 3 p.m. set and makeup.

The opera personnel also will conduct workshops Monday afternoon at Twin Falls High School for both singers and drama students Tuesday morning one member will present a workshop in each of the five Twin Falls elementary schools.

Opera workshops open to public

TWIN FALLS — All workshops being conducted tonight and Monday by members of the Western Opera Theatre in Twin Falls are open to the public without charge.

The opera group is here for presentation of two full-length operas, "La Traviata" Monday and "The Barber of Seville" Tuesday. Both will be staged at 8 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts auditorium.

But in addition to the formal evening productions, for which tickets are available at all Twin Falls music stores, the opera members will present free workshops to all persons interested in any phase of theatre production.

THE stately strains of a minuet will be one of the special attractions Monday night when 600 Twin Falls fifth and sixth graders give their biennial combined choir program at 8 p.m. in the Twin Falls High School gymnasium. Dressed in period costumes—complex from-Harrison-school, will perform the popular 18th century dance.

600 TF pupils to 'Sing for America'

TWIN FALLS — More than 600 fifth and sixth graders from the Twin Falls schools will present a combined program Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gymnasium.

The biennial performance, composed of children in costumes at each of the city's five elementary schools and special education class, is given each two years so that every student has a chance to participate.

Theme for the Monday night event will be "Sing for America," centered on the bicentennial theme. The songs will present a musical panorama of the American scene over the past 200 years, according to Susan Olsen, one of the three directors.

New this year will be the addition of a square dance, with costumes, live music and a caller. Twelve couples from Washington, Lincoln and Morningside schools will present two numbers.

The "Monticello Minuet" will be performed by eight couples from Harrison school with harpsichord and violin accompaniment. Steve Moss will play the harpsichord, and his father, Ernest Moss, who directs the grade school orchestras, will provide violin accompaniment.

Another attraction this year will be a musical parachute routine performed to a song by the choir. Five children from each school will participate in the routine. Miss Olsen said.

Other accompanists will include Mrs. Charles Alhart, piano; Steve Duffin on bass guitar; guitar and mandolin—Zan Olsen, piano; Jeff Henk, percussionist, and Craig Day, trumpet.

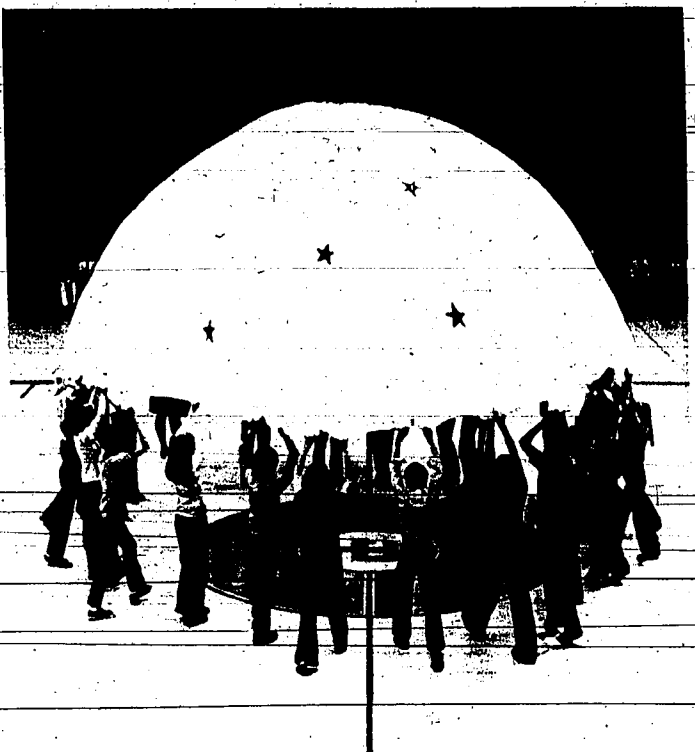

Some of the songs performed will have instrumental accompaniment from members of the choir. The Indian song, "Tunba," will use Orff instruments, drum and recorder. The song, "Cool Water," will use Orff instruments and guitar while "Let Us Break Bread Together" will be accompanied by 10 autoharp players, two from each school.

"America the Beautiful" will be accompanied by a group of elementary orchestra students directed by Miss Olsen.

Miss Olsen said each choir has been practicing in its own school since January and two rehearsals were held for the combined group this week. A flag drill presentation also will be presented by 20 girls in the choir, four from each school.

The three vocal music teachers in the city's elementary schools, Mrs. Ruth Turner, Mrs. Teddy Snow and Mrs. Olsen, will direct the performance.

Transport incubator

RENA Perfect, charge nurse for the newborn nursery at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, and Robert Becker, chairman of the Twin Falls County March of Dimes, display new transport incubator donated to the hospital by the Magic Valley chapters of the March of Dimes.

MV March of Dimes chapters donate special incubator

TWIN FALLS — A special incubator used to transport premature infants has been donated to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by the Magic Valley chapters of the March of Dimes.

According to hospital public relations officer Mary Goe, the incubator, which can operate off a battery pack, will be used to transport sick or premature babies from outlying areas to the hospital's infant care ward.

Through the use of monitoring equipment, the transport incubator allows hospital personnel to begin life-saving procedures while the infant is en route, Mrs. Goe said.

Dr. E. M. Wright, staff pediatrician and a March of Dimes adviser, said the transport incubator may save the lives of newborn babies by placing them in a proper environment during the critical first hours following birth.

The period immediately after birth is critical to high risk infants, Wright said. Half of all infant deaths, he added, occur in this time and other difficulties encountered shortly after birth can result in massive impairment of the infant's bodily functions.

The transport incubator—purchased at a cost of $1,896—was donated to the hospital by March of Dimes chapters in Twin Falls, Cassia, Jerome, Minidoka, Gooding, Camas and Lincoln counties.

Funds for the purchase were raised through last year's March of Dimes walkathons and mothers' marches and were donated from the 40 per cent of the march proceeds retained by the local agency chapters.

This year's March of Dimes Walkathon held Saturday, with about 300 walkers scheduled to participate in the 20-mile hike from downtown Twin Falls along Falls Avenue south to Kimberly and back to Twin Falls.

According to Twin Falls County March of Dimes chairman Robert Becker, last year's march raised about $7,800 with less than half the number of walkers scheduled for this year.

and-wholesome as people had liked to believe. But it was also recognized as a piece showing the sturdiness of Americans in the heartland of the country, to the dauntlessness of their spirit.

"Spoon River Anthology" for years has been considered as much a loving tribute to America as the poems of Walt Whitman and the stories of Mark Twain.

The stage presentation scored its first success in 1963. Then a critic of the New York Times describes it as being "like a brooding and loving American folk poem brought to life on a stage."

This presentation will mark the drama department's initial salute to the country's bicentennial. Tickets are on sale at the Music Center, downtown Twin Falls, or in the book store in the Commons Building on campus.

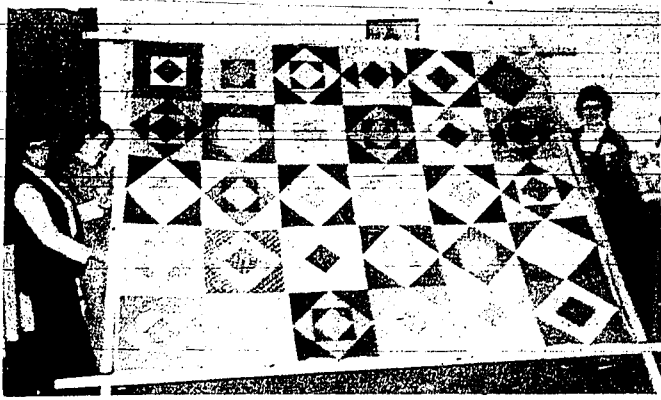

Reservations may be made by calling 733-9554 extension 258. Tickets are $2 for public and $1 for students. CSI students and faculty and senior citizens with a gold card will be admitted free. Seating is limited to 80 each night.

A special senior citizens showing will be offered for the Sunday, April 20, matinee. Senior citizens' groups from area towns are invited to come but advance group reservations must be made.

Goes on display

A PATCHWORK quilt, hand made by members of Jerome County Extension Homemakers Clubs, is now complete. The red, white and blue quilt will be used as a fund-raising project and goes on display Tuesday during the district extension club convention in Jerome.

Jackpot schedules special events

JACKPOT—This is destined to be Jackpot's most eventful summer. Leading off a schedule of major activities will be an air race May 10 from Seattle, Wash., to Jackpot. Filers of consequence will participate. Details are being processed. An air race from Lander, Wyo., to Jackpot May 17 will attract filers from as far inland as Iowa. Cash prizes will go to winners in four engine categories. Annual float trip down Salmon Falls Creek from its confluence with Shoshone Creek two miles south of Jackpot into the backwaters of the Salmon Falls reservoir will be held about June 1, exact time is dependent upon spring run-off. Everyone with a boat invited. Cross-country motorcycle races will be held June 15. Committees expect 150 entries for the 60 miles through wild horse-mesa terrain. They will come from six states, and will include several girls. Barbara Betty, Pocatello, registrar, says. Featuring the work of Harold and Wanda Cox,

Garden Grove, Calif., and LeRoy Hallowell, Bliss, an art show will be held June 26 to July 7 in Barton's 83 convention center. Hundreds of oils, some of Jackpot area scenes, will be exhibited. Cactus-Pete's four-wheeled off-road races will be initiated June 28-29. With prize values totaling $300, the event hosted by the Canyon County

Gene Jammer Club, Caldwell, will attract speedballs from at least four states. Set for the first day is a 60-mile run through the Granite Mountain range. Drag and barrel races will be held the second day. An all-day, family-oriented July 4 celebration will include a Boy Scout flag-raising ceremony, games, contests, outdoor barbecue and dancing contests. Clowns will amuse. The observance will end with fireworks over midnight. Also to be held in the convention center is the first annual Jackpot Gem and Mineral show—July 11-13, committee chairman Ross Parker, Hagerman, reports. It will attract outdoor artists and will be nationally advertised.

Bicentennial quilt completed

JEROME—A bicentennial quilt made by the Jerome County Extension Homemakers has been completed and will be displayed during the district homemakers convention April 15. The convention is for South-Central Extension Homemakers and will be held in the Catholic Parish Hall here. The Jerome County homemakers plan to use their 90 by 108 inch red, white and blue hand-made quilt to raise funds for their various projects and programs. It will be awarded some lucky person during the Jerome County Fair at 8 p.m. Aug. 22. It will also be displayed in stores and other public places during the summer. The quilt is made of polyester materials and is washable. Mrs. Ralph Sentt, county extension clubs president, said.

SBA officer visits

BOISE—A loan officer from the Boise office of the Small Business Administration will be in Twin Falls April 12 to assist local businessmen with SBA programs. Richard White will be available for appointments through the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce. Interested persons should call 733-3874 in advance to make arrangements. SBA loans may be guaranteed for construction, expansion or for the establishment of a new business venture. Persons interested in talking with White should bring their most recent financial information such as balance sheets, operating statements and earnings projections.

National auxiliary head talks in TF

By BILL LAZARUS

Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The national president of the American Legion Auxiliary told Magic Valley legionnaires and auxiliary members that they must "be counted again for America" Saturday night.

During a banquet speech to the fourth and fifth district American Legion and auxiliary, Mrs. Maurice Kubby spoke of the achievement of once seemingly impossible tasks in the past and the need to "achieve the impossible".

To do so will take more than necessity, it will take "challenge, curiosity, and the willingness to stand up and be counted," she said.

Among the challenges the auxiliary faces, Mrs. Kubby said, is to increase its membership to one million, 1955 levels.

"In rehabilitation, we must have a goal to involve every Legionnaire and auxiliary member as a volunteer either in the hospital, in field service or in home service."

"In legislation, we have truly a challenge to work together in lobbying for congress to pass the Legion's entire 1975 legislative program."

"In national security, our Legion and auxiliary must not tire until the majority of the American public recognizes the need for strong internal security and a strong defensive posture."

"In Americanism, our organization faces a real challenge. The Legion and the auxiliary must stand now to be counted again in emphasizing the proper reverence and respect on the part of every person — from Joe Citizen to the highest government officials for this country, its laws, its symbols and its integrity," Mrs. Kubby said.

In an interview, Mrs. Kubby said the auxiliary network to help "rehabilitate" the veteran.

She said that many veterans do not know about the various benefits which are available to them. Informing veterans of these benefits is another job for the auxiliary and legion, she said.

She spoke of foreign aid programs in Vietnam where the auxiliary is helping "handicapped orphans" and in Hong Kong where the organization has set up a recreation center.

In the afternoon the legion and auxiliary elected new officers. Dorothy Showers, Filer, was elected president of the auxiliary and Esther Fetzer was elected vice-president. LaVonne Clindist, Twin Falls, elected historian, and Kay Jones, Filer, Girls' State representative.

New Legion officers are Dave Kraus, Paul, commander; Bill Rude, Filer, vice-commander; Don McDonald, Eden, adjutant; Austin Matheny, Eden, chaplain and Ralph Jones, Filer, sergeant-at-arms.

Mrs. Kubby, who resides in El Paso, Tex., was honored at a reception Saturday evening before addressing the banquet meeting. She is a retired employee of Bell Telephone Co. where she worked for 23 years as an instructor in the traffic department and as an accounting supervisor for Southwestern, Pacific and Mountain Bell Telephone.

She has received many honors, including the Order of Friendship from the mayor of Jurupa, Mexico, one of four outstanding women of the El Paso Business and Professional Women's Club, and Outstanding Citizen of Texas, by the House of Representatives.

She recently was named "El Paso Woman of the Year" in the field of civic endeavor.

today in brief

Burglars apprehended
BURLEY — Burley police apprehended two youthful burglars early Friday morning as the youngsters were attempting to run away on stolen motorcycles.

The boys, aged 12 and 14, both Burley, allegedly broke into the Honda Motorcycle Center about 4 a.m.

Police say the boys took two motorcycles, helmets, gloves and petty cash. The value of the merchandise and cash was set at $1200.

Police Sgt. Kendall Warr noticed the break-in and found the boys about a block away trying to start the motorcycles.

This morning the children were being held in custody. Juvenile petitions were expected to be filed later in the day.

Buhl chamber to meet
BURLEY — Earl Bergendahl, sales manager for the Billings, Mont., marketing division of Continental Oil Co., will address the Buhl Chamber of Commerce Monday.

The meeting will be at noon in the R and R Cafe. Bergendahl will discuss the energy crisis.

Meeting set April 24
JEROME — The annual meeting of the Magic Valley Association of Governments will be held at 7:30 p.m. April 24 at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, instead of April 5 as previously reported.

The association asks that those attending the dinner notify the Jerome office by April 21.

LDS temple re-dedicated
MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — The newly remodeled Arizona Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will be re-dedicated Tuesday and Wednesday by Mormon Church President Spencer W. Kimball.

Kimball, spiritual leader of the world's 3.4 million Mormons, will pronounce the dedicatory prayers repeated seven times both days. Nearly 28,000 LDS Church members are expected to witness at least one of the services.

Some 205,000 persons toured the temple during a recent public open house before the building was closed again for its dedication.

The temple was originally built a half-century ago and was dedicated in 1927. But it was closed for extensive remodeling early last year. After the renovations, the LDS Church leaders decided to reopen the building to the public prior to the second dedication.

More funds sought for dairy research

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal-state review panel has called for a 14 per cent increase in research to help head off possible future shortages of milk and other dairy products, an Agriculture Department report said Saturday.

The report said federal and state governments should add $7.6 million to their current $56 million combined dairy research budget. Most of the money would go to studies aimed at allowing farmers to make wider use of low-cost forages so they can reduce their dependence on high-cost feed grains. The study group of Agriculture — Department of officials, farmers, and scientists from state universities and colleges, said dairy farmers are in "desperate straits" because increased grain and protein feed prices in recent years have driven up production costs. Unless new cost-cutting methods can be developed, the report said, farmers may be driven out of business at a rate which would pose a "serious threat" to future dairy food supplies.

Wendell finalizes plans for April 24 hearing

WENDELL — Final plans for the April 24 hearing on the local improvement district proposed by the Wendell City Council were made Thursday night.

The hearing, to be held at 8 p.m. April 24 in the city hall, is to give citizens opportunity to protest formation of the I.I.D. Total cost of the improvement district, which will include nine scattered areas throughout the town, will be $24,120, according to Owen Collett, city clerk.

She said the cost will be assessed against owners of the property benefited, figured on a square foot basis. Preliminary estimates are about $50 for a 50-foot lot per year, over a 15-year period, Mrs. Collett said, but it may be less.

The city will pay for the closing of intersections and the property owners will have to pay for the rest of the street improvement. The I.I.D. is proposed in response to numerous requests to target the streets involved.

If there are enough protests at the hearing the project will be dropped. Mrs. Collett said persons wishing to protest should send their comments in writing.

A list of the areas involved in the proposed I.I.D. may be obtained from the city office. The streets include Sixth Avenue between Idaho and Miller streets, Fifth Avenue from Lewiston to Shoshone streets and from Idaho to Pocatello streets; Pocatello Street from Fourth to Sixth Avenue; Fourth Avenue from Lewiston to Bliss Street; from Highway 16 to Wendell Street;

Second Avenue from Bliss to Wallace Street; Avenue A from Wallace to Shoshone Street; Avenue C from Hailey to Wendell streets; and Wallace Street from the city limits to the south edge of the railroad right-of-way. The council has added Bliss Street between Fourth and Fifth avenues, Mrs. Collett said, upon request of a citizen.

In other business, councilmen: Accepted a bid of $12,000 from Elliott's, Burley, for a backhoe and loader for the city. The other two bids from Zillan's, Wendell, for $14,000, and North Side Equipment Co., Jerome, $12,200, were disqualified because the bidders' security was not in proper order.

Referred Kay Calhoun, high school art teacher, to the park board on her request for funds for summer ceramic and art classes.

Heard an appraisal on about 90 lots the city wants to sell in the west part of town. If protests are received equal to 10 per cent of the number voting in the last city election, an election will have to be called on this site.

Passed an ordinance vacating a portion of West Avenue F, so that the title of the 30-foot strip dedicated for a street which never was opened, will revert to the owner of the adjoining property.

Discussed an ordinance to control development of subdivisions. It states what types of water and sewer lines are required and where and how streets should be developed.

Auction set at Shoshone

SHOSHONE — An auction will be held from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday at the fairgrounds in Shoshone for the swimming pool fund.

Co-chairmen of the event are Mrs. Al Kristal and Mrs. Joseph Debridge.

Persons having items they wish to donate and want picked up may call Myron Johnson or Rex Nathan, Van Shoshone; Wayne Perron at Dietrich, or Neil Anderson, Richfield.

Messersmith Auction Service, Twin Falls, will donate its service to the event and all proceeds will go to the pool fund to help pay off the remaining approximate $15,000 obligation of the county.

Construction of the pool is under contract to Globe Seed and Feed, Twin Falls. Urie Pools, Ketchum, is now digging the hole.

Overall construction cost of the pool is running about $80,000 and is being paid for by the county citizens and state funds.

In addition to the usual items for sale, such as snow tires, building supplies, sporting goods, furniture, farm equipment, handwork, dishes, toys, etc., there will be an autographed portrait of President and Mrs. Gerald Ford and family; a gubernatorial glass tray from Gov. Cecil Andrus; a flag that flew over the nation's capitol on March 5, 1975, from Sen. Frank Church; the Congressional Club cookbook from Sen. James McClure; and competition of works of art and other objects in the US Capitol from Rep. George Hansen.

Lincoln to act on report

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County commissioners will act on the joint city-county planning commission report when they meet Monday.

If approved, the plan will give authorization to establish zoning laws and provide for planned growth patterns within the area.

It would take in such things as industrial development, subdivisions and related growth of any kind and through such will qualify the county for federal funding in many areas.

At a public meeting recently, the commissioners and planning commission reviewed the written outline, discussed the subject matter and presented it to those present in order to receive public opinion. It will be upon this basis that the commissioners will then act at the Monday meeting.

If the commissioners do approve the plan, the next step will be to authorize this planning commission or another group to handle the zoning commission work.

A report called OEDP, basically the same as the one being considered by the commissioners, has already been approved for the area on a state and regional level and is at the national headquarters at this time for approval. This, too, is a necessary step in order for the county to be eligible for federal funding for some projects.

Members of the planning commission include Floyd Kisting, chairman; Joyce W. Bernard, secretary; Lindell Cooper; Monte Sorenson; Michael Green; Kenneth Blackburn; Oscar Kerner; Lowell Naughan; Cliff Ward, Frank Carothers and Carolyn Costello.

Ex-officio members are Frank Dallas, FHA; Leo Sontfen, SCS James Paie, ASCS; Charles Haszler, BLM; Reid Newby, watermaster, and Ivan Hopkins, Extension Service.

The commission takes in the joint city-county planning in areas of not only the people, but agriculture, water, range resource, public utilities; economic base, recreation, geological and mineral resource, government and finance under resources of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Soil Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration;

Bureau of Land Management, Idaho Dept. of Employment; Idaho Dept. of Transportation, Division of Highways; Idaho Fish & Game Dept.; University of Idaho and University of Idaho Cooperative Extension Service.

The outline includes maps, background history and information on the county, soils, land use, community and county government and recreation.

In addition to the history of Shoshone, Richfield and Dietrich, the outline sets up goals and objectives for the future.

MARCH OF Dimes Walkathon chairman Bob Becker, left, kept his shoes on during the 20-mile walk Saturday but the students ahead of him near the 10-mile point said their feet were too numb to leave them on. They are Bonnie Jensen, 13; Tammy Somers, 12; Renee Hammon, 16, and Susan Fadness, 16.

Hikers walk sans shoes

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What do you do if you walk 10 miles and pull your shoes off, but your feet swell too much to get them back on again?
You limp the next 10 miles if you're like the young high school girl who participated — — According to Sandy Becker, who was helping register walkers at MacDonald's, about $17,000 was pledged for those who completed the 20-mile course. Three times as many walkers participated this year with about 310 other people — in the March of Dimes Walkathon Saturday.

compared to last year, she said. By mid-afternoon, nine members of the Twin Falls track team had finished, with Rick Murray running the course in one hour and 59 minutes. Mrs. Becker said a local Brownie Scout Troop had hiked 10 of the 20 miles.

Storms improve Wyoming water

CASPER, Wyo. (UPI) — Recent snowstorms have improved the Wyoming water outlook for this spring and at least average or very near average steamflow is now forecast, the U.S. Soil Conservation Service said today.

"Only a few isolated exceptions such as the eastern end of the Wind River Range, and a few tributaries to the Green River draining from Wyoming and Uinta Ranges show forecasts in the range of 5 to 10 per cent below normal runoff," the report said.

The Bear and Snake drainages are now forecast at average runoff for the April to September period. This is about 20 per cent better than forecasts released two months ago.

The North Platte drainage, with the exception of the Sweetwater River, will probably provide an excellent water supply, the service said, with 100 per cent of average runoff predicted at the Colorado — Wyoming, state line. Flow on the Sweetwater River may be a little below normal. The Bureau of Reclamation said carryover storage in the reservoir system is 102 per cent of normal for April 1 on the North Platte. Deer Creek near Glenrock is predicted at 110 per cent.

The service said streamflow in the Big Horn Basin is expected to produce above normal runoff varying between 105 per cent from Tensleep Creek to 120 per cent from the Tongue River near Dayton. A heavy snowpack exists in the Black Hills region, which is considered a recovery from recent years. The service doesn't make forecasts for the region but the water content of the snowpack in some areas is the highest in 30 years.

Spring fever time has arrived

Magic Valley, Twin Falls, Northside and Vicinity. Mostly fair Sunday, with increasing high clouds and slight cooling Monday. Low temperatures will be in the 20s to low 30s with high temperatures near 60 Sunday and 55 to 60 Monday.

The probability of precipitation is near zero through Sunday night.

It's beginning to look like spring for the first time in about six weeks. Temperatures are near the seasonal normals across most of Idaho. Across southern Idaho Saturday temperatures were mostly in the mid-60's. In the southwest and the mid-50's in the southeast.

At Boise it was the warmest day in 1975, with the temperature climbing to 65 late in the afternoon, exceeding the 1962 record.

Lewiston was the warmest spot in the state Saturday with a reading of 68.

Synopsis: The ridge of high pressure that has brightened the weather will begin weakening today, allowing an increase in cloudiness in northern Idaho. But Southern Idaho residents can expect fair weather and mild temperatures to continue Monday.

Temperatures around the state this morning are mostly in the upper 20s and lower 30s. On late Monday and early Tuesday, the increasing high cloudiness will spread across southern Idaho and gradual cooling is expected over the state.

Rural US economy lagging behind urban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite continuing growth in federal rural development programs, the rural American economy has not been keeping pace with expansion of the urban economy, an Agriculture Department study says.

The study, compiled by the agency's Economic Research Service, showed that rural areas made substantial gains in total employment during the 1960s and outpaced urban areas in adding new manufacturing jobs.

In service industries, however, only 1.2 million of the 6.2 million new jobs created nationwide during the 1960's were located in rural areas. As a result, 84.1 per cent of the total national job numbers gain in the decade went into urban areas.

As a result, the USDA study warned that "nonmetro areas must do better... in creating employment" if the traditional county-to-city population drift is to be halted.

According to the study, nonmetro areas gained a net total of more than 2 million jobs in the 1960's as growth in manufacturing and allied fields more than offset the disappearance of 1.1 million jobs in areas like farming and mining.

The rural growth, however, was heavily weighted toward new jobs for women. The 1970 census showed the female labor force in nonmetro counties grew by 33 per cent while the number of employed men rose by only 139,000 — about 1 per cent.

The report said nonmetro areas will probably need 2.3 million more jobs for males alone during the 1970's if migration to urban areas is to be halted.

The study added that, in spite of recent progress, average income in rural areas remains below the national average and poverty remains above average.

Near the end of the last decade, in 1969, the study found the median family income in urban areas was $10,406 a year.

In nonmetro counties, records showed median family income ranging from $8,701 in suburban areas down to $6,142 for the most rural regions.

Florida wins war with pesky snails

MIAMI (UPI) — In 1964 a young boy from Hawaii visiting his grandmother in Florida brought along a couple of snails in his pocket. He left them behind when he returned.

The mollusks turned out to be large African snails known for their big appetites and their ability to multiply fast. A single African snail can eat an entire head of lettuce at a single sitting. They are seven inches long, and what's more, they smell bad.

They soon overran a 12-block area of suburban North Miami and then spread to suburban Opa-Locka—three miles to the west.

The snails began eating everything in sight that was green—foliage, flowers, fruit, vegetables, and later they began eating paint off homes.

The Agriculture Department stepped in and imposed a plant-animal quarantine in the area. Agents spread poison pellets.

Thursday, after a seven-year fight, the Agriculture Department said the pests were finally eradicated.

Farmers sell meat to public

DENVER (UPI) — Ranchers upset with low prices at the stockyard and high prices at the supermarket said Thursday they will sell tons of steak-and-hamburger directly to the public at $1 a pound.

The sale, they said, was to take place Friday in two department store parking lots.

The meat will be sold in five-pound bags priced at $5 each.

Spud use told

BOISE (UPI) — Processing of the 1974 crop in Idaho and Malheur County, Ore., through March used 38,205,000 hundredweight of raw potatoes, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

Of the total processed, 32,661,000 hundredweight were Idaho potatoes and 5,544,000 hundredweight were produced in other states, the report said.

"The purpose of the sale is to point out the continued widening of the price that is paid the producer and the price paid by the consumer," said Ed Behr of Woodrow, Colo.

"We also want to point out the farmer can be paid according to a cost of production, while the consumer can buy a high quality product that is competitively priced."

Behr said the average supermarket price of meat was $1.09 per pound "but that beef doesn't have the steaks and fillets we're putting in ours."

He said the sale would be sponsored by Colorado members of the National Farmers Organization, the same group that sold 20 tons of cheddar cheese to long lines of shoppers March 22.

Behr said an additional three tons of cheese would be sold with the beef Friday for $1.30 per pound in five-pound blocks.

Findings reported on canyon land-use plan

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Snake River Canyon rim land-use plan unveiled Tuesday night contains observations about land ownership, geology and utilities, recommendations for controlling development of the rim.

The Canyon Advisory Committee studied 12 subject areas in developing the rim plan. Each of these subject studies influenced the character of the final land-use plan.

The subjects and the committee's findings include:

— Land ownership: About 75 percent of the rimland covered by the plan (a 14-mile stretch from west of Rock Creek to the Hansen Bridge) is privately owned. Another 20 per cent is owned by the state and federal governments and the remaining 5 per cent is owned by Twin Falls City.

— Most of the state and federal land is between Dierkes Lake and Hansen Bridge. The city property is concentrated in the Dierkes Lake area.

— The committee recommended that vacant land in cities should be developed before the rimland. Twin Falls City alone has "almost 700 acres of zoned residential, commercial and industrial lands," the committee said.

— The 12-member panel also said the current 2-acre minimum agricultural tract is too small and "efforts must be made to increase that size to 40 acres or more." Lacking the time and money to do a complete geologic study of the rimland, the committee recommended that the county conduct "a three-phase geologic, scientific and professional study."

— A primary goal of the study would be to "point out potential dangerous construction sites and problem areas," the committee said.

— It is also recommended that, if a development is allowed on the rim before the study is completed, "the developer must be required to conduct a geologic study at that site at his expense."

— Also, the property owner should accept all responsibility for any damage which might result from geologic faults, the committee said.

— Soils: "Prime" agricultural land covers only about 2 percent of the rim area. Another 8 per cent of the land is classified as secondary agricultural soil. The remaining 90 per cent is considered "non-prime" land, much of it dry pasture or containing lava outcroppings.

— The committee also found that about 93 percent of the land is not suitable for septic tank sewage disposal. Four per cent of the area can accommodate septic tanks through "special planning and design" and the remaining 3 per cent could easily absorb effluent from septic tanks.

— Surface water: The committee recommended that the county establish a 50-foot easement on each side of the creek high-water mark of natural drainage ways, including — Perrine Coulee. It also urged that the county "undertake a potential flood study within the study area and develop a flood hazard map for use by public and private developers."

— Slope: The committee recommended that land with a slope of up to 20 per cent be limited to agricultural, development, recreational and wild and natural uses. If the slope is between 20 and 40 per cent, the land should be used only for pasturing, custom-styled development, "passive" recreation such as hiking and wild and natural purposes. Land with a slope greater than 40 per cent should be reserved for passive recreation and wild and natural uses.

— Vegetation: Plant life in the rockland and range areas and the wet and marsh areas should be protected, according to the committee. Trees, "because they take so much longer to grow," should be given "special conserving attention," the committee said.

— Transportation: A "direct road access" to view points and historical sites was recommended by the committee. It also asked that "connecting roads" be established in the existing east-west road system. "Only two major road links (some two miles) are needed to give unity and practicality to the road system," the committee said.

— Utilities: The committee recommended that "city subdivision-type developments" in the rim area be connected to public sewer systems or be required to construct "dry line" sewers that "empty" into public systems when they become available.

— The county or city should pay the cost of extending sewer and water trunk lines to the developments, the committee said. However the developer should pick up the bill for collector lines serving individual homes.

— The committee also said all utilities should be buried unless the costs would be "exceptional."

— Septic tanks should be allowed only in the prime development area of the rimland, according to the committee, and should be restricted to one per acre. Outside the prime development area, septic tanks should be limited to one per five acres.

— Views: The committee recommended that the following viewpoints along the rim be "maintained for unlimited use for the benefit of the public": Rock Creek, the Twin Falls Gun Club site, Perrine Bridge area, Pillar Falls, the end of 3200 East road, the rim of Dierkes Lake and Juniper Point (one and one-half miles east of Hansen Bridge).

— Secondary or good views should be preserved for limited public use and other interesting views should be reserved for public enjoyment where primary or secondary views cannot be maintained.

— Wildlife: Range and rockland vegetation areas should be retained in their current conditions. "Total wildlife habitat and large numbers of species are to be maintained," the committee said.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus did something Saturday hardly anybody thought he would.

He lost a five-stroke lead. Just one day after he had been conceded a record fifth Masters championship by almost everybody else, Nicklaus found himself in second place.

He got there with some help from a friend, fellow Ohioan Tom Weiskopf, who shot a six-under-par 66 to move ahead by one stroke, Nicklaus, five up on the field and six in front of Weiskopf when played started Saturday, had a 73, which was not all that bad.

FALTERING Jack Nicklaus anguishes over his putt on the 10th hole but it failed to drop for a birdie. Nicklaus shot a 73 Saturday in the Masters and saw his second-round, five-stroke lead eaten up by Tom Weiskopf. (UPI telephoto)

Prayer

It was a prayer for a hole-in-one that was answered Saturday in the final hole of the Masters. Tom Weiskopf, who had a six-stroke lead over Jack Nicklaus, hit a hole-in-one on the 18th hole to win the tournament.

Three championships decided in German shorthair trials

Three championships were decided Saturday in the first half of the German Shorthair Pointer Club of Magic Valley's spring trials.

Blaisdell leads Eagles to victory in TVCC invitational

ONTARIO — Freshman Kein Blaisdell won both sprints — the 220 in national qualifying time of 21.8 — and ran on two winnings relays Saturday when College of Southern Idaho smashed to victory in the Treasure Valley Invitational.

Palmer played with Nicklaus in the day's final, two some and the two all-time greats were followed by a gallery that quite possibly was the largest ever to watch one group play in a golf tournament.

Estimates of the Palmer-Nicklaus gallery, most of it cheering lustily for Arnold, ranged to 25,000 plus. Veteran Masters-watchers said it was the biggest crowd they ever had seen but all the galleries saw was Jack's 73 and Arnold's 75.

"The way Jack was playing, I knew I couldn't afford to shoot a 72 or 73," he said. "What happened Saturday was almost a repeat of two weeks earlier."

That time Nicklaus took a six-stroke lead into the third round of the Heritage Classic at Hilton Head Island, S.C. Weiskopf caught him with a 68. But Jack won the shootout Sunday by three strokes.

"I sure hope," Weiskopf said wistfully, "it doesn't turn out like that again."

After 54 holes, Weiskopf, whose previous rounds were 69 and 72, stands at 207, nine under par.

Nicklaus, who started 68-67, is at 208. Johnny Miller, the man who was supposed to be challenging, finally got his act together and shot the tournament's best round, a 65, to move into third place at 211.

"My game just needed inspiration," said Miller whose six successive birdies on the front nine beginning at the second hole set a Masters record.

Tom Watson was fourth at 72:12 and Bobby Nichols, the first round leader, and Billy Casper were at 213 following Saturday rounds of 72 and 73, respectively.

Arnold Palmer and Lee Trevino headed a group of 215 and Gary Player, last year's winner, was at 219 and out of contention.

CSI splits with ISU, drops two to TVCC

BOB DePasquale's three-run homer in the third inning pointed College of Southern Idaho past Idaho State 11-2 Saturday afternoon after the Bengals had dropped the Eagles 9-1 in the opener.

The nightcap was the first win at home for the Eagles who dropped a pair of tight decisions to Treasure Valley Friday afternoon.

Idaho State, now a club team supported by the student council and not the athletic department, got a one-hitter from Williams in the opener and led things early.

The Bengals scored two runs in the second inning and then led it with three more in the fourth as Coach Jim Walker went through three pitchers trying to find one with some control.

In the fourth, Steve Brower singled in two runs and threw runner in ahead of Larnard Jones who tripled.

Idaho State added four more on an assortment of walks, errors and hits in the sixth inning.

The Bengals also took the lead against Billy Haynes in the nightcap by scoring twice in the top of the third, a fielder's choice was followed by Jones' RBI single and then a triple to Davidson to give ISU a 2-0 lead.

But in the bottom of the frame, Carter walked and Kevin Murphy and Pandl singled to load the bases. Carter scored on a wild pitch and DePasquale then unloaded his homer run.

Two lining later, walks and a hit batsman loaded the bases for CSI again with Pandl.

Fremmel and Joey Melasquez, coming up with RBI hits and three more scoring on errors and wild pitches, Scott Becker's double drove in the last CSI run in the sixth.

CSI now returns to the road, going to Treasure Valley Tuesday, NNC Thursday and Idaho State Friday.

The Chukurs won the opener on Sanjour's two-run homer in the 11th inning 4-2 and claimed the second 4-33 when six walks and two wild pitches in the first inning staked them to a 4-0 lead.

Consecutive doubles by Sanjour and Primrose got one TVCC run in the first and Maxwell doubled in another run in the third. CSI tied it in the third when Morgan singled, scored via a double by Kevin Murphy and Bob DePasquale then delivered the second run with a hit.

But in the fifth VanLiff opened with a single and scampered in on Sanjour's homer.

The six walks and two wild pitches to open the second game hung the loss on Andy Davidson, who was relieved by frosh Jim Rogers. Rogers then led TVCC easily in check with two hits the rest of the way.

Two walks and an error gave CSI one run back in the 11th and two hit batsmen, a walk and another miscue provided another give in the second. CSI pulled to within one in the fifth when DePasquale tripped and scored on Pandl's sacrifice fly.

Beating out drag bunt

HUSTLING Larnard Jones of Idaho State steps on the bag as CSI first baseman Shawn Jenkins reaches for a low throw. Jones beat out a drag bunt on this play as ISU won 9-1. CSI took the pigskin 11-2.

Finley hits Braves over Johnson deal

OAKLAND (UPI) — Charles O. Finley, owner of the Oakland A's, questioned Saturday the Atlanta Braves' right to negotiate with a Japanese team for the services of pitcher Dazey Johnson and said he planned to challenge the 32-year-old veteran from the waiver list.

The Braves placed Johnson, holder of the major league home run record for second baseman, on waivers Friday for the purpose of giving him his unconditional release so that he could go play in Japan. The Braves said they took the action after failing to negotiate a trade for Johnson with another club.

Finley, however, said he felt it strange that a player of Johnson's experience and caliber would clear waivers so easily, especially since he had talked to the Braves' star recently and that Johnson had expressed a desire to play for a team in the U.S. primarily for Oakland.

"The Braves say they put him on waivers to give him his unconditional release. How is this possible?" Finley asked. "What good is the waiver to give him his unconditional release? Anyone can claim him for one dollar, and I intend to."

"I heard that Atlanta has already reached an agreement with Japan for Johnson. I think this is grossly unfair. It's 144 times worse than unfair for a team in Japan to be able to deal with him. I don't think a club has the right to sell a ballplayer to Japan and I intend to protest vigorously to the commissioner about this."

Finley said he was one of the parties interested in obtaining Johnson from the Braves, but that Atlanta officials had balked at his offer.

"I offered them a fair deal," said Finley, without going into details. "They offered him to me first for $150,000 and they also offered him to me for $50,000 and a ballplayer. I hear the Japanese have offered $130,000 for him."

"I don't see anything wrong with him going to Japan if he really wants to but he told me recently that he would rather play for a club in the United States, especially Oakland. I don't really use a player like him. And, I'm not the only one interested in him. The White Sox have told me they're interested. I'm definitely going to claim him on waivers."

Martin goes arguing wired for sound

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Ranger manager Billy Martin says he is tired of having one-sided versions of his conversations with umpires being reported to the American League office.

So, like former President Richard M. Nixon, Martin is bugging himself.

Martin was involved in an altercation with the umpiring crew headed by Bill Haller Friday night in which the Ranger manager finally was kicked out of the contest. The man in the Haller umpiring crew Martin prefers to argue with most is Ron Luciano.

So, when Martin took the lineup card to home plate before Saturday's meeting with Oakland, Martin was wearing a small microphone pinned to his warmup jacket.

"I want to even things up," Martin said later. "They have their side of the story and I want to have my side down."

Judge reconsiders NFL decision

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal judge said Friday he would allow the National Football League to present evidence on the "reasonableness" of the so-called Rozelle rule in professional football when the suit of quarterback Joe Kapp goes to trial.

U.S. District Judge William T. Swigert conducted a pretrial conference with lawyers from both sides and announced that he would modify his December ruling, which said the Rozelle rule was unreasonable on its face.

The Rozelle rule provides that National Football League clubs must be compensated for the services of players who Have played out their option and signed with other clubs. The rule is fiercely defended by the league.

Swigert denied a league motion to vacate completely the December order, but indicated from the bench that he would make "some minor modifications."

UCLA chief defends hiring of Bartow

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA athletic director J.D. Morgan defended Saturday that Louisville coach Denny Crum, a former chief assistant and player under John Wooden, was considered as Wooden's successor.

Morgan named Gene Bartow, 44, to succeed Wooden April 2 two days after Crum, the head coach at Louisville for the past four seasons, had said he was going to stay in Kentucky to honor the final four years of his five-year contract.

Bartow asked for and was granted permission by Illinois to get out of the final four years of his five-year pact. He was at Illinois one season after coaching four years at Memphis State.

"Every outstanding basketball coach in the country was considered and that includes Denny Crum," Morgan said. "I want to point out there was a lot of coaches who were interested in following John Wooden with a 10-foot pole."

"And there were some others who weren't available to come if they had wanted to."

Tough three-week schedule doesn't bother Cleveland

CLEVELAND (UPI) — It is always tough. And that game against Washington will also be difficult because they were in the playoffs, too.

Besides, taking on the Steelers, Bengals and Oilers on the road, the Browns will also play at Oakland, Baltimore, Denver and Detroit. The Browns' game against the Oilers will be at their new facility in Pontiac, Mich.

The Vikings haven't played a regular season game here for eight years when the Browns triumphed 14-10 in 1967. And George Allen's Redskins, who the Browns met twice annually in the Eastern Conference of the NFL from 1959 through 1969—have not made a regular season appearance here since 1969 when Cleveland took a 27-23 thriller.

"It's a tough schedule," said Gregg. "No doubt, about it."

The Browns, for the second straight season, will not have a nationally televised game on Monday night.

"I don't know what it takes for them to put you on a Monday night game," Gregg said. "The games have done a lot for football because it really draws a lot of attention to the football teams and to the game, and that's the reason for the subject one way or the other."

Other home games feature a repeat with Paul Brown's Bengals, the New Orleans Saints and Kansas City. The battle against the Chiefs will mark the Cleveland coaching debut of former star defensive end and team captain Paul Wiggin, who played for the Browns from 1957 through 1967.

The Browns have pre-season games against the San Francisco 49ers, Philadelphia Eagles, Buffalo Bills, New York Giants, the Redskins and the Lions.

Steelers face top rush teams

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers' 1975 schedule should delight fans who prefer ground-to-air contests to aerial battles. The Super Bowl champions' heralded defense will be facing five of the NFL's top six rushers last year.

The only player among the top-10 gainers the "defense" won't have to worry about is the Steelers' own Franco Harris, last year's fifth leading rusher.

The Steelers open defense of their title in San Diego Sept. 21 against the Chargers and the NFL's Offensive Rookie of the Year, Don Woods, who ran for 1,162 yards to rank as the league's second leading ground gainer.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 13, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine Sunday to relax, rest, and do whatever small chores face you, and to organize a beneficial course of action whereby you can gain goodwill by carrying through on any promises made.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): A good day to meet socially with a monetary expert and get good advice. Avoid one who would attend to practical matters.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Improve your health and appearance with proper treatments in a.m. Then off to beneficial social affairs. Speak charmingly.

GEMINI (May 20 to June 21): Make future plans and take care of time-consuming personal tasks. The evening can be a most romantic one. Budget wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Decide on personal aims and plan practical matters for the future. Make new contacts of worth. Get social with ease.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Analyze practical matters wisely in a.m. Plan how to get needed support from a bigwig. Take no chances with a money-hungry person.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Study new conditions for better handling. Do not permit some cheap influence to come into your life. Be alert to ways to build character.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Follow intuitive faculties today for best results. Enjoy recreation with the one you love. Show more regard for any good relatives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Know what partners expect of you and please them. Don't antagonize one who opposes you. Keep cool under all circumstances.

SAGITTARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You have much to do at your hand. Put everything else aside. Then study new projects before putting into action.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Go to places where you can develop spiritually and mentally. Visit with good pals and close ties. This can be a happy day.

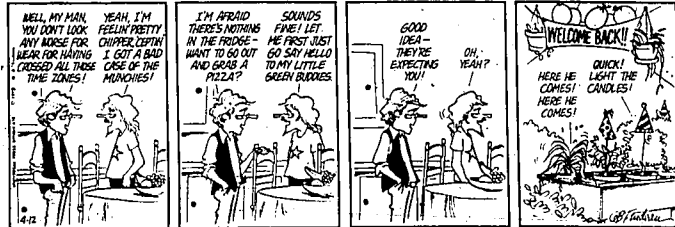

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will like to deliberate a good deal before reaching a decision, but should be taught to speed up the thinking to prevent others from benefiting from the delay. The field of finance is especially fine here, particularly where new methods are concerned.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Valley comment Tax rebates

Question: What will you do with your tax rebate?

Clyde Hertlein, Twin Falls:

"Oh, spend it, put it back in the economy. Most people will probably just spend it—I think that's the whole idea behind the rebate, to play it back into the economy."

Eugene Starr, Twin Falls:

"I don't know, it's hard telling—I've got to see it before I can do anything with it. That's just how sure-of-the government I am."

Ron Chancey, Twin Falls:

"Probably pay it as far as it'll go on my bills and go back to work."

Dick Fushrer, Buhl:

"I don't know yet... it all depends on what our situation is then... we've got to cough up some for taxes..."

Lumir Zack, Buhl:

Drummer sends her to institution

By ERMA BOMBECK

I've told you before about my son who marches to a different drummer.

Well, between the drummer and the drumee, I'm going to goose step my way into an institution.

I have been driven literally crazy by a child who is flakier than acute dandruff. Dumb things, like playing "Bridge Over Troubled Waters" on the push button phone, adding 34 to the bill. Crawling out of the Grand Canyon and saying, "I have to go back. I left my billfold at the bottom." Leaving his cat to guard his bicycle.

Then one day you say firmly, "From here on in, you learn to live with your own stupidity and your own forgetfulness. Grow up!"

It was 3 a.m. last night when I got the call from him that he had returned from a skiing trip — and was in a dark parking lot phone booth on the south side of town alone.

"Where's my car you said you'd leave for me?" he asked. "In the garage." "We couldn't move it when you took the car keys with you."

"Right. So can you come and get me?"

Deep breath. "Absolutely not! Call a cab. You're on your own."

3:05. Suppose that was his last dime and there's a car at the curb with a gang of hoods in it armed with chains who don't believe that a kid with all that skiing equipment wouldn't have any money on him and punish him for it.

3:10. Suppose the police see him in a phone booth late at night with a big red S on his shirt for Snow and say,

"We've got another Superman loogie on our hands. Wait. Let's run him in." And he spends the night in a cell full of perversa.

3:15. I've got it. The cab driver picks him up but is weird and not really licensed by the cab company but is filling in for the driver he has just done in.

3:30. Wake husband and show him the baby-book.

Remember? It seems like just last week when he used to HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — For Ursula Wolcott, Connecticut government was all in the family.

She was the wife, mother, daughter, sister, aunt and cousin — four times — of some of Connecticut's first governors.

Her husband, Matthew Griswold was governor from 1784-85; her son Roger in 1811-12; her father Roger Oliver Wolcott Sr. from 1795-97; and nephew Oliver Wolcott Jr. between 1817-27.

Her cousin William Pinkin was governor from 1766-69; cousin Jonathan Trumbull Sr. from 1769-84; cousin Jonathan Trumbull Jr. during 1797-1805; and cousin—Joseph Trumbull in 1849-59.

Kids responsible for their dog

By LINDA MERRY, D.V.M.

Question: Before my two brothers, my sister and I were allowed to have a dog my father made us sign a contract with him. The contract holds us responsible for any mischievous acts our dog may do. If we can't keep our contract up, then my father may dispose of our dog as he sees fit.

Our dog is a 2-year-old German Shepherd, and so far we have been doing real well keeping up our obligations; except for the past few months. We have a problem we can't seem to solve. Our dog is digging up the lawn in the backyard where she is kept.

merry pet

When the wind blows she chases anything that she sees blowing. When it stops, she starts pawing and digging at the ground. She has dug out a pretty wide area. We've had to cover it up many times. There is no grass left where she digs. Now she has resorted to digging on the side where she can't see her.

We've tried spanking her, putting chemicals on the area, spraying a repellent and tying her up.

Please help us find a solution to her digging or else we'll probably have to give her away. We are desperate!

Answer: No one could resist four kids as responsible as you or a father smart enough to have reared you. I know two ways to get a dog out of a rut. The first is easiest — build a fenced run with a gravel or concrete floor.

The second entails a lot of old-fashioned discipline applied for two or three weeks. It's more work but I'll bet you four could convince a mole to give up tunneling if you tried hard enough.

Move the dog to a spot you can see through a window. Arm yourself with three tin cans tied together and mount a watch. When the dog starts to dig, fling the cans out and shout at her to stop. If she goes right back to burrowing, or after being initially startled decides the cans aren't all that impressive, move out.

Grab her by the collar, drag her to the hole, point it out, shake her thoroughly and give her a lecture she'll remember as an old lady dog. Return to your window and wait for a repeat performance.

You can use the old mousetrap trick to keep her standards elevated while you're at school. Set two or three mousetraps about nine inches apart under two sheets of newspaper. When the wind ruffles the paper and the dog digs in, she'll get a snappy reply.

Don't worry that she'll be hurt, the traps aren't strong and the paper will keep them from pinching her toes. A few bouts with objects that fight back should convince her to keep her paws to herself.

Take turns with trench duty, be persistent, make each lesson more dramatic than the last. Two weeks of training should convince her to give up ditch digging forever.

Traveler journeys over world with his jeep

By CRICKET BIRD

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — He's 66 years old and his Jeep is nearly 30; together they've journeyed from the tropics to the northern tundra and they're both still going.

Edward P. McKean-Smith, born in Boston, has been traveling for many of his 66 years, and so has his Jeep, a 1946 Willys which he purchased for $900 in 1947.

A former Sun Valley resident, "Mac," as he says friends call him, stopped by Twin Falls on his latest voyage.

He had just finished a trip that took him from Oregon to Panama, from October to March.

The Jeep, which has had three motors and has probably logged about 250,000 miles, serves as a moving hotel for McKean-Smith, who says he slept in the car the whole way.

Mac stretched his sleeping bag from the dash straight back through a narrow space made in the back-seat storage compartments. The lower portion of the bag fits in a wooden box. Mac says if he stragglers all the way out, his feet and head just barely graze the back door and dash.

The Jeep, the first civilian model made after World War II, looks like it's ready for a safari and is outfitted with a stove and many other items of camping gear.

McKean-Smith, who sports a bushy mustache, has been traveling since he was 14 years old and has visited 111 countries across the world.

He might be called the "original hippy."

"Traveling is simple, if you have the time and the money," Mac says, "and if you have the interest you'll find the other two."

"You have to make a decision in your life about what you want to do. I've taken jobs where I can work six months and take off," McKean-Smith said. But he added, "This isn't being a good citizen ... the country wouldn't survive if everybody did this."

McKean-Smith worked for seven winters after the war in Sun Valley and has followed many trades. He's been a sailor, logger, forest warden, construction worker, truck driver, movie extra, hotel night manager and more.

Mostly, though, he likes to travel.

He took the Jeep along to Europe, making it through all the western and eastern European countries, except Albania and Finland.

He and the Jeep also toured through Russia, traveling with the same woman guide who accompanied author John Guther on his trip there.

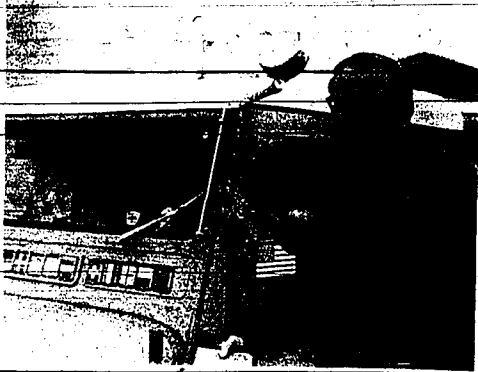

Mac also toured South America and Africa, including Nairobi during the Mau Mau uprisings.

The glory shouldn't go to him, McKean-Smith says, but to the Jeep. "It's never left me holding the sack." But he admits parts for the 29-year-old machine are getting harder to find.

"McKean-Smith is not one to scorn a job — any type — when he needs to eat. 'There's always a job if you're willing to do it,'" he says.

Mac says he credits the hippies for making "us aware that there's more to life than an 8-to-5 job for 30 years."

Like Will Rogers, who said, "If I die tomorrow, I wouldn't feel I've been cheated," Mac says, "I don't feel I've been cheated."

Danny Kaye explains opera

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frantically Danny Kaye will attempt to entertain millions of unsuspecting children this month by explaining opera to them on television.

Rare indeed is the man with the courage enough to tackle small fry on a subject historically abhorrent to them.

Fortunately, Danny's two great passions are youngsters and classical music. He also has a plan for keeping the kids from squirming or simply running for their lives.

"I'll cope with their short attention span by making them do something," said Kaye before embarking on his perilous mission. "When their interest wavers, I'll make them participate."

"They'll sing with me or clap their hands to the music. We'll see what happens."

The show is "Danny

CARPET COLOR wasn't much of a problem not so many years ago — perhaps when you bought your first carpet. Carpets were supposed to be like children, unobtrusive, providing a muted background in grey or beige or soft green.

Today's carpet colors have come alive with a vengeance! In tune with the trend toward livelier colors and bolder decoration, you can go as wild as you want in the carpeting you choose.

Decorators advise you not to let the colors of walls and ceiling, or even furnishings, dictate the carpet color. Painted surfaces change often. Even furnishings will be slip-covered, reupholstered or replaced long before the carpet goes. So why not put the carpet first when it comes to color?

The rule today is: don't be conservative about color. Let yourself go and pick the color or colors that make you respond whether it's a vivid orange or an electric green or even plum. The manufacturers have followed the trend and you'll find a dazzling color range to choose from.

The choice is better than ever... in our big carpet displays, in colors and textures... and prices, too. Come in and look over our selection, where you always find the best carpet values.

Colored foliage plants easy to grow

BY GEORGE ABRAHAM

FOLIAGE PLANTS WITH COLOR: There are some mighty good colored foliage plants that can be used in your planting beds.

ASIDE from color, there are other good reasons for using plants with highly colored foliage.

Start with plants with bright red foliage: For tall ones, grow Amaranthus, For mid-height items—grow Coleus and Iresine. For low growers, try Alternanthera amounea, A. rosea and A. spectabilis.

If you want plants with brownish-red or dark leaves, try Amaranthus ruber, coleus hybridus, and various alternanthera.

If you like bluish or purplish leaves, grow coleus, Gynura (purple passion plant) and for low growers, Ajuga or Rhocho.

Plants with blackish to dark brown leaves include some begonias, various coleus, lobelia, ornamental basil (Dark Opal) and perilla.

For dwarfs, you can use purple ajuga, alternanthera, selections of fibrous begonia. You can even have a selection of plants with yellow or yellow-variegated leaves. These include variegated "flowering maple" (abutilon) Dracaena, selections of coleus (candium is a good one), Iresine ("Chicken gizzard"), plant and chrysanthemum.

For yellow dwarfs, try alternanthera, begonia ("Gold-ball") and dwarf ("fig-marigold" mesembryanthemum).

For some reason, plants with brightly colored leaves are often tougher, more pest- and disease-resistant than as the crop itself is concerned, it wouldn't make much difference, just in the seed. Bean blossoms are self-pollinating, and different varieties may be planted side by side with only some crossing, due to insect activity.

On the other hand, squash, cucumbers and muskmelons will NOT cross with each other under any circumstances, although certain species of pumpkins and squash will cross occasionally.

Sometimes winter squash such as butternut or butternut is our lettuce always turns out so badly? Flavor isn't good, although the size of the plants is."

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: R. F. of Twin Falls: "Why is it our lettuce always turns out so badly? Flavor isn't good, although the size of the plants is."

First, lettuce is a cool weather crop and should be planted early for best production and flavor. It likes a soil that's loose and with plenty of moisture. Fast growth helps to avoid a bitter taste. As warm weather increases and days become longer, growth slows down and even the flavor changes.

Most gardeners sow seed too thickly and then fail to thin out the seedlings. We allow about 6 or 7 inches between plants for head lettuce.

Crowded plants grow slower and do not form a decent head, and with heavy-type bitter-taste develops. Water your plants during dry spells, especially when heads are forming.

Leaf lettuce is easier to grow and develops quickly (4 weeks) and is more tolerant of hot weather than is the head lettuce.

For the home gardener who has difficult growing head lettuce, we suggest you skip it and grow an intermediate form (half-leaf and half-head), and the variety we have in mind is Buttercrunch.

The green, broad leaves are easy to clean and they are very crunchy. The heart consists of loosely folded leaves thick, crisp and tender. Even grow any cos romaine lettuce? The variety known as Parris Island cos is upright, attractive has an endive-like flavor. The hearts blanch nicely while without you having to tie the leaves.

W. E. of Hansen "We have some beautiful impatiens plants and want to start some from cuttings. Some friends tell us they do not have success that way — plants get buggy. Is that true?"

First, you can start new plants from tip cuttings rooted in plain tap water. Make cuttings 3 inches long and remove bottom leaves. They'll also root in perlite, sand or vermiculite.

As for bugs, impatiens do get aphids, regardless of how you start them. Aphids can be checked by spraying with nicotine sulfate, or by dipping the plant in a soapy solution, with nicotine added.

Jewish musician trying to popularize violin

Scott's World:
Izhak—Gundshel
By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)
with a name like Izhak Pachman, a man would almost have to become a concert violinist out of self-preservation.

Mr. Pachman is 30 years old, hip, a native of Tel Aviv and pronounces his given name "Itz-sock," half expecting strangers to holler gundshel in reply.

Izhak is pursuing a personal mission of futility
—popularizing the violin
among rock musicians.

He realizes his quest may be folly, but in Israel, where he was given his first fiddle at age 4, the violin is the most popular musical instrument of all.

More so than the piano,
guitar or saxophone.

In the interest of promoting the violin, and not incidentally himself, Izhak has recorded "The Easy Winners, and Other
Rap-Time Music of Scott
Joplin" in an album with

Andre Previn. The album is unusual.

Izhak is hurt by American indifference to violin music except as interpreted by the fiddle savings of country
musicians whose scrapings
send a shudder down his sensitive spine.

In the tradition of most great violin virtuosos, Izhak is foreign, Jewish and unwilling to Angelize his name.

"Perhaps foreign sounding names have something to do with the fact that violinists are not in the front rank of popularity with Americans," Izhak said.

His own popularity is worldwide. In nine months this season he has played 130 concerts. But until a violinist as All-American as Van Cliburn comes along chances are slim fiddle players will become national idols.

"I have no idea why almost all great violinists of the recent past are Jewish except that the fiddle is a tradition with us," Izhak said.

He knows it would be difficult for American parents to name their sons after Jascha Heifetz, Igor
Oltrakh, Pinchas
Zukerman, Yehudi
Menuhin, Isaac Stern, Zino
Francescatti and Mischa Elman.

Even Notre Dame's forward wall couldn't handle Jascha. Igor, Pinchas, Yehudi, Isaac,
Zino and Mischa.

Some American violinists change their names to old country counterparts. Heifetz,
"emblemizing them with a Russian sound, full of musical mystique."

"This is one reason the violin suffers from a prejudicial being-highbrow. Also there is the terrible sound fiddlers make when children scratch the bow against the strings."

"This new album of mine proves the violin is not a freaky instrument and it doesn't have to be highbrow just because it is played well.

"I think the pop violin field can be improved. But you have to change the material to make it happen. Violins must play pop music, not convert the audience to classical music."

Personally, I find wonderful response in my concerts when I play rag.
Maybe things will change."

It wouldn't hurt if the maestro switched his name from Izhak to Van, or maybe even Elvis.

ITZBAK PERLMAN
... mission of futility

Rabbi teaches Bible in Hebrew in futuristic way

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Rabbi Menachem Rodal teaches a language that is thousands of years old. He teaches Hebrew to children between 6 and 13 years old. And he uses teaching techniques which some educators say is futuristic.

The children are learning the Old Testament in its original form through a combination of individual and group instruction and tape recorded learning programs.

Rabbi Rodal is a teacher at Yeshiva
Acheil Tmimim, a Jewish day school in Pittsburgh's Soho District. He uses teaching methods pioneered by the University of Pittsburgh's Learning
Research and Development Center.

And the modern techniques the bearded Orthodox rabbi uses appear to be working—and working quite well.

A group of four 10-year-old girls in one of his classes not only translate Hebrew his daughter, Mrs. Keny Deren, is the Hebrew principal. There also is a secular Principal, Rabbi Charles Weiss.

"The purpose of Jewish education is not just to give knowledge," Rabbi Posner said. "It is to train children in learning how to live with the gifts only man possesses."

And Rabbi Posner has a very simple rule in teaching Hebrew and Jewish philosophy:

"If you want a good school for Hebrew,
you need a better school for English."

So an involved parent, Mrs. Rita Herman, contacted officials at the university and the Yeshiva became the first school to experiment with Individual Prescribed Instruction.

"This is a great program to keep students interested," she said. "Through workbooks and taped lessons," the child progresses at his own pace through 20 books.
Even the biggest behavior problem children bloom.

"We all remembered the boredom we felt while we waited for the slowest child to catch on to a lesson. On the other hand, we might recall having to rush through a subject before we completely understood it. The use of tape recorders helps solve this. Taped lessons allow for the children to be individual in their rate, but it also permits the teacher to give individual tutoring to children not working on the tapes."

Rabbi Rodal took the principles at the IPI program and adapted them to teaching religion.

The school does have its problems.
"Many parents are afraid of religious school," Rabbi Posner said, and added with a laugh, "They are afraid of my frock coat and beard, although the hipies helped there. We need more students."
And money is short.

"I still have to carry the financial burden," said the Rabbi, who is in his late 60s.

"We get some help from the Jewish Federation of Pittsburgh. And we accept all little children, no matter how little the parents can afford to give us."

Rabbi Posner and his daughter see a resurgence of interest in religion and they are confident the enrollment of their school will increase. "We cannot be satisfied just being Jewish," Rabbi Posner said. "We must be fruitful in being Jewish, bear children and teach them our Jewishness."

Salmon pair well lighted

SALMON — Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Combs of Salmon feel pretty secure should their lights go out at their home.

They have 70 kerosene lamps — all in working condition.

The Combs began collecting the lamps 10 years ago. And only one has gotten broken in that time.

Most of the lamps have been gifts from relatives and friends. The lamps are age from brand new to at least 100 years old.

The collection of lamps is displayed on the fireplace mantle and a 12-foot room divider in the Combs' living room.

"We're still collecting lamps," the Combs commented. "If we run out of space we'll just build another shelf."

MRS. GLENN COMBS, Salmon, displays a 100-year-old lamp that belonged to her great-grandmother in Nebraska. It is part of a collection of 70 lamps the Combs have acquired in the past 10 years.

Salmon man survives cancer bout

SALMON — Cancer strikes one out of every four persons. One of those is Doyle Longhurst of Salmon.

He says had it not been for the strides in cancer research made possible through the funds collected in the April Cancer Crusade he might not be alive today.

Longhurst, now 52, entered the Veterans Hospital in Salt Lake City Sept. 1, 1973, with multiple myeloma, or bone cancer.

His case was so severe he was only given a rare possibility of surviving the initial illness. He was near death for two months and underwent radium and chemotherapy treatments.

Later he went to a cancer clinic in Mexico where he received laetrille, a Vitamin B derivative.

"It was necessary for me to take a maximum plus dosage of the strongest pain killers available for over one year," he recalled, "and I'll not get rid of the pain pills for another year."

"When I was discharged from the hospital in October, 1973, the doctors said I had 1½ years to live, with little hope of ever walking or being a useful member of society again.

"I was fortunate in having the ability to respond to all types of treatment and was considered in complete remission in August of 1974. Now I've reached the 1½ year life expectancy point in time, and am not only in full health mentally, and nearly physically, but am more enthusiastic, have more vitality, than in any time in my life."

Longhurst has become actively engaged in community affairs and has led a movement organizing a city beautification committee in Salmon.

"I promised the doctors I would outlive them and I'm now looking forward to bigger and better things."

Longhurst, whose mother, Anna, resides in Salmon, went to the first and second grades here, and has lived here off and on since 1966. He retired from the Air Force, having been a B-17 bomber during World War II.

Discussing his ordeal with cancer, Longhurst noted that radium treatments were one of the first successful developments to combat cancer and resulted from research money which also brought about chemotherapy.

"At present the laetrille treatment is being researched and hopefully will be available in other states. I'm also aware of several other research programs, that have developed different types of treatment that have achieved some degree of success."

"There are a number of clinics that have some new approaches to treatment as well."

Longhurst added that the funds provided through the April Cancer Crusade are vital to continued cancer research which has provided knowledge and treatment methods to cure one third of all cancer patients nationally.

Through early detection another 16 per cent can be cured, which means it is possible to save half of all cancer patients, he added.

There are more than 1.5 million Americans alive today five years after being told they had cancer, according to the American Cancer Society.

Longhurst returns to the VA Hospital every three months for an examination with another appointment in between for a blood test.

He said that to him the key factors in his survival are: "I responded exceptionally well to treatment. I learned the art of prayer. I have an immense desire to get better and I have an immense amount of faith. It takes a ton of faith for anyone to overcome something like this."

"Research is so vital to reach all cancer patients, particularly those not as fortunate as I in having the ability to combat this terrible illness."

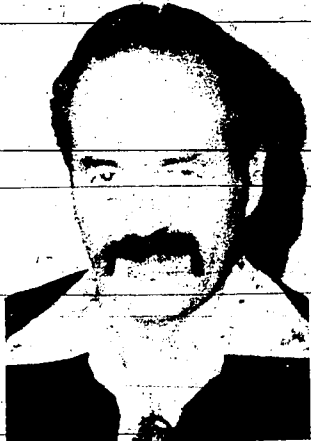

Longhurst said that he feels the turning point between death and life came for him while he lay critically ill in the hospital.

"I realized that I was about to die and I said to myself that if I were to live I would have to start fighting. There were many long ordeals but I kept fighting."

Longtime captain

BOB KEESHAN stars as Captain Kangaroo on the award-winning children's series, "Captain Kangaroo," which is seen weekdays on the CBS-Television Network. Keeshan, who also created the series, has been making television visits as the captain since the program began on Oct. 3, 1965.

Astrophysics observatory set on Bonneville flat

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — When a cosmic ray ends its trillion mile trip through space by colliding with the earth's atmosphere, the flash flashes across the sky with all the intensity of a 100 watt light bulb.

The shower of fine particles cascades to the earth several miles below at nearly the speed of light, striking the ground 60 to 70-millionths of a second after the subatomic space traveler first crashed into an air molecule.

A 100 watt light at more than 186,000 miles a second is dimmer than the stars or the glow of the night sky behind it even in unpopulated and remote regions like the western Utah desert.

But the Bonneville Salt Flats and similar spots far from urban civilization are the only places where physicist-studying high energy particles and the origins in cosmic rays can get a glimpse of the collisions.

A team of University of Utah scientists has received a National Science Foundation grant of $260,000 to start work on a unique astrophysics observatory located on the bone-white desert best known as an auto speedway.

The observatory will consist of 80 dish-shaped mirrors on the outside of a large geodesic dome. A dozen photo-multiplier tubes suspended over each mirror — about 1,000 over the entire structure — will be attached to a computer.

The structure, which won't be finished for three to five years, is nicknamed "fly's eye" because of its resemblance to the compound eyes of a fly.

It will operate only on dark nights when there is no interference from moon light. Although cosmic rays are dimmer than the stars or glow of the night sky, the background is steady while the rays are moving rapidly.

"So we'll look for changes in the light intensity," said Dr. Haven Bergeson, associate professor of physics and one of three principal investigators on the project.

Bergeson said the array of mirrors of "fly's eye" will permit detection of higher energy particles than current cosmic ray counters, allowing the analysis of more events, and will also give a picture of the ray's angle of descent, its energy and its distance away.

The experiments will be in two basic areas: high energy particle physics and astrophysics.

High energy physics — the study of the interactions between subatomic particles fired down atomic smashers into target particles at nearly the speed of light — is limited by the energies accelerators can produce, Bergeson said.

"We will be able to detect interactions in the atmosphere involving cosmic rays with energies 100,000 times higher than accelerator particles," he said.

"A number of theories on interactions have been developed that fit data produced with accelerators," Bergeson said. "But they give different predictions for reactions at higher energies."

"Although our measurements will be fairly crude compared to those obtained in accelerators, they will be precise enough to determine between conflicting theories," he added.

Among other things, the Utah scientists hope to determine exactly where in the upper atmosphere the cosmic rays, which are believed to be protons — begin interacting with the nuclei of oxygen and nitrogen atoms.

The cosmic rays usually strike an air molecule some 15 to 20 miles above ground, creating a shower of new particles. These particles strike the nuclei of other molecules, generating an ever-widening shower of particles as they descend to earth.

"We won't see them until they are about a fourth of a way through the atmosphere — about eight miles up — and at about 10 percent of full development, but we'll be able to infer where the first reaction occurred," Bergeson said in an interview.

The speed of the reactions will help scientists determine if the rays are portions — hydrogen nuclei — or heavier elements.

In the area of astrophysics, the overriding question the Utah team hopes to answer is, where do the rays come from?

"At lower energies, we've thought of too many places, and at higher energies, it's not clear any of the suggested sources could do it," said Bergeson.

Nature's comedy-drama

Clearing house aids on drugs

CLEVELAND (UPI) — The office is small, crowded and deep beneath the main floors of antiquated Yost Hall on the Case Western Reserve University campus.

It houses the Drug Education Clearinghouse, a repository for books, pamphlets, tapes and movies that could change a life or prevent its ultimate destruction. But few people who could benefit from the stored information know about it.

To spread the word, Ellen Woolfolk has been named new resource developer for the clearinghouse, a service of the Cuyahoga County Mental Health and Retardation Board.

Ms. Woolfolk's desk is cluttered with journals and news releases that keep her updated on the latest breakthroughs in the drug field and changes in drug laws. She's a one-person staff, dedicated to educating society.

"As long as people think they can find a chemical solution, there will always be a drug problem," she says. One of Ms. Woolfolk's prime concerns is providing information for individuals and agencies who can use it but who don't know about the clearinghouse.

"I believe there is still a population out there which still does not utilize our service," she said.

"People must realize that drugs are still a part of our society," she said. "The crux of the program is to show the reality of drug addiction."

Schools are a major recipient of Ms. Woolfolk's knowledge. Most of her attention is directed to junior high and high school students, but she is also trying to reach elementary school children.

"Several years ago no one was talking in terms of preventive education," she said. "That's why there's never been a program developed to teach the younger children."

In recent years, drug researchers have watched the use of both hard and soft narcotics infiltrate the lower grades. What was once a street problem gradually worked its way into colleges, high schools and on down through elementary grades.

"We want to educate them (the young children) so they don't seek the same solution that drug addicts have," she said. "I want to tap this force so maybe we can make a difference in their lives by the time they get to junior high or high school."

Ms. Woolfolk noted that drug usage, and therefore the need for certain drug information and education, runs in a vicious cycle. Depending on the social climate in terms of drugs, she can tell which ones are at peak usage in a community.

"At the time of the Quaalude scare (a highly potent sedative), everyone wanted information on the effects of sopors," she said, adding that the demand for information on certain narcotics coincides with the popularity of the drug.

She also wants to destroy a myth. "Everything that is pathological is immediately connected with the inner city," she said. "I've noticed the biggest drug problem lies in the suburbs."

Spring ride

AMISH residents of Berne, Ind., enjoy a spring ride in their horse-drawn buggies on a road near this small northeastern Indiana community. A proposed reorganization of the Penn-Central Railroad would leave the town without rail service, threatening the Amish families who rely on the rails for coal to heat their homes. (UPI)

'Amish families face loss of heat

BERNE, Ind. (UPI) — Members of the Old Order Amish, who live in simplicity and shun modern comforts, depend almost entirely on coal to heat their homes.

The coal comes to Berne by Penn-Central Railroad. Under national rail reorganization plans, the line through Berne could be abandoned.

There are more than 100 Amish homes in the area. Few use electricity, gas or oil for fuel, depending on coal and wood.

"Take the railroad away and we are up against it," a concerned Amishman said. "We don't want to compromise with the world and go modern by using electricity and gas, so the only solution may be to move away where coal is more readily available."

The Amish use a lot of coal for heating their big old rural homes. Their homes mostly are large, two-story structures and few are insulated. Most have several coal-burning stoves in constant use during cold weather.

Amish may not believe in modern comforts, but they believe strongly in physical comfort. Regardless of how much coal it takes, they insist on keeping their large families warm and cozy in the winter.

If things reach the point where the Amish feel they must leave the Berne area because of the coal situation, it would not be the first full-scale exodus of members of the sect from Adams County.

During the 1960s more than a dozen families sold their farms near Berne and moved to MISSOURI where land was cheaper and where they believed the danger of their young folk becoming "too worldly" was less than in this area near Fort Wayne, one of Indiana's largest cities.

Word trickles back, one for the most part, Amish families who moved away are settled in their new communities. That includes the group which migrated to Missouri and earlier groups which went to Iowa, Tennessee and Pennsylvania.

But a great many of the Hoosier Amish appear to have a sentimental attachment to Indiana, where they live peacefully with their Old World customs amid their more modern neighbors, shunning the contemporary lifestyles but being tolerant of those who don't.

Newspaper may some day be on film

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — The daily newspaper may in a few years arrive in the home not on paper but on one or two sheets of film only four by six inches, a group vice president of GAF Corp. predicted Wednesday.

Raymond J. Wilcox told editors attending the National Microfilm Association convention that a newspaper almost certainly could be printed and distributed on microfiche film more cheaply than on paper and most of the technology to do so already is available.

It can't happen overnight, he conceded, for a variety of reasons, including present commitments of publishers to newsprint mills and printing pressmen's unions.

But Wilcox said unlike fanciful ideas for electronic newspapers to be read in the home on cathode screens like a television program, a microfiche newspaper would be a relatively simple change. "Up to the putting together of the pages, none of the present journalistic publishing methods would be changed," he said.

Even with the equipment now available, which was not designed with periodicals in mind, an investment of about $500,000 would print 30,000 copies of the microfiche paper daily and there are no technical obstacles to developing machines with a year that would print-film-five times as fast and cost perhaps only two and a half times as much, he said. Making master copies for the machines takes only about 15 minutes.

The microfiche film sheets cost only about a nickel each. And making the photoprints in full color is relatively cheap—if an color separations are needed. The finished newspaper would be delivered to the home or sold on newsstands at enormous cost reduction.

In the home, the microfiche newspaper would be read with the aid of enlarging machines that could be mass-produced for under $50, possibly as low as $25, he said. "Publishers could rent the readers to subscribers or even give them away as circumstances dictate."

The ancient composing room gag about rubber type to squeeze a more reading copy into the page is possible with microfiche. It's possible to double the number of pages on the microfiche film—if the reading machines are adjustable. The average printed book can be recorded on only two or three microfiche films and the whole Encyclopedia Britannica could be put on a stack that could be held in one hand.

Wilcox said advertisers would like microfiche newspapers because they could get full color easily and, even could have their ads done in three dimensional photoprinting for those customers who would acquire Three-D viewers.

Microfiche was invented in France, a development of the older microfilm industry, and arrived in the United States only a decade ago.

It has grown up rapidly, although it still represents only a small proportion of the $900 million a year volume of the whole microfiche industry. But GAF, Eastman Kodak and other companies that are in microfiche tend to consider it the fastest growing segment of the business and to say its potential market barely has been scratched. It already is widely used by industry, universities and libraries, the armed forces and publishing houses for instruction manuals and document storage and increasingly to replace printing of books and periodicals. Information on microfiche also can be indexed for instantaneous retrieval with the help of the electronic computer.

Start small

If you're planting your first vegetable garden this year, remember that it is better to make a modest one thrive this summer and leave expansion for later.

Don't plant too much of a good thing. Your family can tire of a steady diet of zucchini, no matter how fresh it is. Plan for a good assortment of vegetables.

Don't grow large vegetables in small gardens. Vine crops, white potatoes and sweet corn are best adapted to large spaces. Consider your vacation. If you're going to be away, figure out maturity dates so you don't sow what you won't be able to reap.

Plant at the right time. Some plants need a very early start so they can mature in cool weather; others need to wait until it's warmer. The seed catalog or packet is your best guide to timing.

Raymond Wilcox examines microfiche

Vegetable gardens way to lower cost of food

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) — Not since World War II victory gardens has there been so much interest in home vegetable gardening. The pleasure of outdoor activity is part of it, but this year, with inflation and recession, many people are looking to a vegetable garden as a means of cutting their food bills.

How much can you save? There is no single answer since it depends on how much you would ordinarily spend on vegetables at the store and how much of that food your particular garden will supply. A very rough estimate for a small garden, 20-by-20 feet, would be a saving of a little over $200. That would be after paying your gardening costs — not counting anything for your labor.

How much time will it take? This, too, is impossible to answer for everyone. Some people have soil that is easier to work than others. Some years it rains at the right time, and some years you have to do a lot of watering. As a ball park figure, once your garden is spaced and planted, you can probably expect to spend about three or four hours a week keeping things in shape. To start, select a location away from shade and the competition of trees. Well-drained sandy loam is ideal, but other soils can be improved by adding organic matter. If your soil is poorly drained, you can get advice from your county cooperative extension agent about installing drainage tile.

A soil test will indicate the amount of lime and fertilizer needed for a successful garden. Here again, your county agent can tell you how to have the test made.

Plan your garden on paper first to ensure using your land most efficiently. When possible, grow vegetables vertically on a pole or trellis, but place these vegetables at one end of the garden so they will not shade smaller plants.

Arrange early-maturing crops so it will be easy to plant a second vegetable in the same spot after the first is harvested. For instance, early peas or lettuce can be followed with bush beans or beets.

You can also interplant late vegetables between the rows of another maturing crop. Winter scallions or fall radishes can be seeded between ripening snap beans. After harvest, pull the bean plants out to make room for the scallions and radishes.

Select varieties carefully. Your county agent, again, can advise you on vegetable varieties, such as bush forms of butternut and acorn squash which are particularly well suited for small gardens.

If you are thinking of raising soybeans, as many people are this year because of their high protein content, it is a good idea to buy ready-to-cook soybeans first at the market and try them in a couple of recipes to test the family taste buds. If you decide to plant them, be sure to buy edible soy, not the variety used for animal feed.

In many areas, certain plants such as tomatoes must be started early indoors in order to have a long enough growing season for a good crop to mature. You can try raising your own seedlings at home, or you can buy transplants. Other crops, such as peas and lettuce, must be sown outdoors early to mature before hot weather comes.

If you plan your garden well, in most areas of the country, you can arrange to have fresh vegetables on a practically year around basis.

Cheaper to repair car than purchase new one

The cost of fixing a car is going up, but garage operators say more people are willing to face a big repair bill for their old car than are willing to face another string of payments for a costly new model.

"I have a '66 that's bought and paid for," said a shop foreman at a Tucson, Ariz., Ford dealership. "It has 115,000 miles on it and it still doesn't burn oil. It gets me there and brings me back. With the 55 mile per hour speed limit, it's as quick as a new one."

He said most customers feel the same way, and many are willing to spend $1,000 to repair a 1965 model that he said costs $3,000 or $5,000 into a new one.

Most garages agree that repair costs — parts and labor — have increased. The cost of hauling an ailing auto has gone up — depending on the model and work done — in the past year.

The biggest Chevrolet dealer in Salt Lake City said he raised his basic hourly labor charge to $16, but a large Chrysler dealer said he was holding the line on labor costs at $10.

Salt Lake City dealers

questioned said parts prices were skyrocketing.

"That's the sore spot," one dealer said. "Parts prices are killing us. Some things are only up 25 per cent, but plenty of things are just out of sight."

Even so, dealers said people are willing to pay to fix their old cars.

"An overhaul job that cost $200 last year is going to cost $250 to $300 today. The parts cost more, the mechanics have to have more — after all, they're hit by this inflation just like anybody else," said Mac Klausen, a Chicago service station and garage operator. "But when you consider that the car is in tip-top shape and you're saving five grand, it's a bargain."

Customers seem to think so, too.

"If it runs, keep it," says Tom Roche of Chicago, surveying his 1950 Plymouth. "Just because the way the tin is bent is out of style this year doesn't mean the thing's no good. In 20 years, it'll be in style again — as an antique. And by then, if you treat it right, you'll have gotten a million miles out of it."

The manager of a Seattle, Wash., Chrysler-Plymouth garage said, "The logic expressed by some customers is that when they have their old car fixed up, they don't have to worry about getting a lemon."

60 YEARS AGO, YOU DIDN'T NEED A COLLEGE EDUCATION

In fact, you didn't need much of anything except a willingness to work 16 hours a day. For $8 an hour. Under brutal conditions. But times have changed drastically. Life for the working man is more challenging. Safer. More stimulating. And far more rewarding.

Why? Many things have helped. Especially an endless flow of technological improvements and discoveries. Many of which came from college campuses, and from college-trained men and women.

We must sustain this flow of ideas. Only in this way, can we increase the productivity that will maintain and increase our standard of living. America's colleges need your help. They are in deep financial trouble.

GIVE TO THE COLLEGE OF YOUR CHOICE. NOW.

Red wolf given survival chance

PORTLAND — One of the most endangered mammals in North America, the red wolf, may have a better chance for survival in the wild through establishment of a cooperative Federal-State recovery team, Lynn A. Greenwall, director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said Friday.

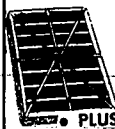

Appointment of the team comes on the heels of reports that the red wolf, which is imperiled by both human persecution and hybridization with the related coyote, is in an even more precarious situation than had been thought. In the early 1970's there were hopes that a last remnant population in extreme southeastern Texas could be stabilized and saved from inter-breeding with the coyote. Specimens collected in 1974, however, indicate the recovery team may soon initiate new conservation measures, possibly including a "Dunkirk" type evacuation and reintroduction of red wolves in safer areas.

The red wolf, the only one of its kind in the world along other wolves in the world are subspecies of the gray wolf), was one of six endangered species that the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service selected for priority treatment when it appointed separate recovery teams for each animal recently. The five other endangered animals are: the Florida panther, the Indiana bat, the Karstland warbler, the dusky seaside sparrow, and the Mississippi sandhill crane. There are 109 animals currently listed as endangered in the United States. The six teams recently named are the first of a total of 50 recovery teams that the Fish and Wildlife Service will establish and set to work by July 1, 1975.

Heading up the red wolf recovery team is Russell Clapper of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Other team members are Don Freis, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, and Joe L. Herring, Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission.

ACTRESS-SINGER Florence Henderson will perform on and preside over the awards-presentation special "Women of the Year, 1975" on the CBS Television Network.

Distinguished unit to select women

NEW YORK CITY — A panel of distinguished women from various fields has been selected to determine the winners of the "Women of the Year, 1975" Awards, to be presented in a live broadcast from the Ed Sullivan Theater in New York City Saturday, April 19 on the CBS Television Network.

The annual awards program, which is being produced this year by Joe Cates, with Walter Miller as director, honors women chosen for distinguished achievement in various categories. The panel selects the winners from nominations made by the general public in a poll conducted by Ladies' Home Journal.

Among the women who will act as judges are four previous "Women of the Year" winners, Martha W. Griffiths, lawyer, former Michigan Congresswoman and sponsor of the Equal Rights Amendment; Dorothy Height, president of the National Council of Negro Women; Dr. Dixie Lee Ray, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and Ellen Straus, founder of Call for Action. Ms. Straus was a 1973 winner. The other women won in 1974.

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: Has Sidney Poitier lost interest in Joanna Shimkus now that she's borne him two daughters out of wedlock? I hear he's hot for his new leading lady, an Indian girl. — H.W., Fairfield, Conn.

A: Absolutely not! Sidney's relationship with India's Persis Khambatta, his co-star in "The Wilby Conspiracy," is strictly professional. Sidney's so hung up on Joanna that they will probably marry soon. For ages Sidney disapproved of interracial marriage, but the successful wedlock of his friend black musician Quincy Jones to blonde actress Peggy Lipton has about changed Sidney's mind.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED:

Which former U.S. President's daughter and her husband are expected to announce a "final separation" any minute? We'll never tell, but we'll let you guess. Watch the papers.

Q: Was Richard Burton serious about that beautiful black actress Jeannie Bell? — S.D., Baltimore, Md.

A: Not for a minute. Richard was doing a big married friend in the business a favor, taking Jeannie out and pretending he was interested, to stop the pal's wife from worrying.

Q: How do Cybill Shepherd and Burt Reynolds feel about the bad critical reception of their musical movie "At Long Last Love"? — E.R., Paterson, N.J.

A: Cybill is told by her lover-director Peter Bogdanovich not to copy any attention to the bad reviews so nobody knows whether she thinks she's good or bad. But Burt Reynolds is smart. He says, "I think we bombed."

Q: How did Ellen Burstyn and her "son" in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" really get along? In the movie they were something else. — P.P., Newark, N.J.

A: There's a love lost between the Oscar-nominated Ellen and her movie "son," Alfred Lutter III, whom you'll soon see in Woody Allen's "Love and Death." Alfred says of Ellen: "She was always biting me in the mouth on the set. I told her not to, but I'm only a little boy." Ellen says, "Some little boy!"

... hung up on Joanna

Remember what the Gov. of North Carolina said to the Gov. of South Carolina? Well, that's nothing compared to what the President of France, Giscard d'Estaing, said about the President of the U.S. after they met in Martinique. According to reporter Alice Cockburn, he said, "Je n'ai jamais rencontré un imbécille." Or, "I've never met such an ass."

QUICKIES: Barbara Streisand still wants to make a movie with her idol Marlon Brando. "He's the greatest," sez she. ... Ann-Margret can't stand off-color stories. ... Erich "Love Story" Segal is bawling his own love story with an English girl named Karen. ... Audrey Hepburn's return to the screen as Maid Marian in "The Death of Robin Hood" will be overseen by the zany director Richard Lester in the campy mode he created for "The Four Musketeers."

Q: Does the Shah of Iran think it's good publicity for him to be shown sking at St. Moritz when the world is in such a mess? — D.E., Boston, Mass.

A: The Shah is such a total monarch and is so adored by his country that he knows he can do just about anything he pleases. The Shah works hard, so he feels it is his right to play hard. That's just what he did in Switzerland ... sking all day and then watching movies, like Claude Lelouch's haunting new film "And Now My Love," at private night screenings with 24 bodyguards in attendance.

BRIEF ENCOUNTER:

We hear that Frank Sinatra was sedately eyeing a tall, beautiful blonde who happened to be sking an elevator with him in Hollywood when she suddenly announced to him that he was her god-father. Frankie had failed to recognize 20-year-old Beatrice Welles, who had come from England to see her father, Orson, honored by the American Film Institute. Orson and Frank have been friends for years.

Q: Will Dyan Cannon and Cary Grant ever get back together because of their child? — O.P., Waco, Texas

A: Not likely after their fierce misunderstandings. Anyway, Dyan has a new romance in movie director Hal Ashby, who has shot to fame as a result of "Harold and Maude" and most recently, "Shampoo." Dyan is so much in love with Hal she is acting more and more human every day, which is a relief to everybody who deals with Q: How many times has Mickey Rooney been married? — I say five. My buddy says six. — W.W., Phoenix, Ariz.

A: Old Mick has been to the preacher seven times so far. But he's not cured. He says, "I'm looking for No. 8 somewhere out there is the perfect wife."

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED:

The film star wife of what superstar is a compulsive cleaner? Al MacGraw... What had Streisand started with "Funny Lady"? Stashing her jewels in the water bottle at the Fanny Brice... What's the latest scare news from Alvin "Future Shock" Toffler? Toffler rushed a book together for Bantam on why our economy is out of control. It's called "The Eco-Spasm Report."

Q: I am a young person who is still outraged by the killings of the Kennedys and Martin Luther King. Isn't there any place I can work within a coordinated effort to help bring their true murderers to justice? — H.W., Seattle, Wash.

A: The Assassination Information Bureau at 63 Inman St. in Cambridge, Mass., is organized to try to reopen the investigations of these assassinations and to organize citizens to act politically on these issues.

Q: I hear that Oriental athletes swear by ginseng root saying it gives them extra power. Is that the real truth? — K.L., Richmond, Va.

A: Well, the British are investigating in the hopes that it may provide some super-sportsmen for the next Olympics. So far, 42 "quinea pills" athletes have taken ginseng and shown some improvement in their performances.

Q: Is Diane Ladd, up for a supporting actress Oscar for "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore," the daughter of the actor Alan Ladd. What has she done before in films? — W.V., Waco, Tex.

A: Diane Ladd is not the daughter of the late film actor. Her father is a poultry tycoon in Mississippi. You might remember Diane as the woman who pretended to be "Mrs. Mulwray" the Faye Dunaway character in "Chinatown." She also picked up good reviews for a sleeper called "Wild Angels" with Nancy Sinatra and Peter Fonda and two years ago appeared for five months on the soap opera "The Secret Storm." Despite her Oscar nomination, for "Alice," Diane hasn't worked since. That's show business.

Q: Give us some little detail that we haven't read anywhere else about the death of Aristotle Onassis. This is a challenge. — W.W., Brooklyn, N.Y.

A: Hmmmm... well, let's see. Bet you didn't know that toward the end, the Golden Greek was given a tracheotomy in the American Hospital in Paris to help him breathe more easily. He was also placed in an iron lung and his entire blood supply was replaced with whole new blood every 48 hours. These drastic measures were to no avail.

Q: Is Bob Hope still the richest of the Hollywood celebrities? — G.N., Waco, Tex.

A: These are things only your accountant knows for sure, but here's a recently published run-down: Hope — $80 million; Crosby — $50 million; Gene Autry — $20 million; Fred MacMurray and Roy Rogers — $100 million. Frank Sinatra is also reported in the $100 million class, with James Garner moving up fast. Hope says that Steve McCouen is showing signs of financial wizardry, and

Q: The other day Julie Harris and Rex Harrison gave Earl Wilson an interview saying they were getting along just fine in their Broadway show "In Praise of Love" and that Rex wasn't misbehaving. What do you think? — L.P., N.Y., N.Y.

A: We think Ms. Harris and Mr. Harrison are very civilized and clever at getting publicity mileage out of Rex's reported stage antics. We don't blame them a bit. But it doesn't take a broken heart for every light on Broadway to know that Rex is as temperamental as a bear with a toothache. So where there's smoke ...

HUM A FEW BARS OF THIS: — To top 8500 "You're No Good" pretty much slates how composers Burt Bacharach and Hal David feel about each other. They're on the outs again.

Q: Was the X-rated movie "Emmanuelle" a flop as predicted? I hope the movie company that made it lost its shirt. — N.B., N.Y., N.Y.

A: Tch, tch. Haven't we enough of a depression without wishing companies ill? Columbia sprung with half a million to bring the French import to America. They stand to make about $10,000,000. So the gamble paid off.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Why would Cary Grant, in his 70's, marry Maureen Donaldson, in her 20's? Well, obvious reason of sexual attraction aside, Cary thinks it might make a favorable impression on the judge in his custody fight with Dyan Cannon if he, Cary, could show that his daughter would be living in a stable home with daddy and a step-mommy who used to be a nanny, while Dyan is off on the road with her nightclub act.

Q: How did Ellen Burstyn and her "son" in "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore" really get along? In the movie they were something else. — P.P., Newark, N.J.

A: There's a love lost between the Oscar-nominated Ellen and her movie "son," Alfred Lutter III, whom you'll soon see in Woody Allen's "Love and Death." Alfred says of Ellen: "She was always biting me in the mouth on the set. I told her not to, but I'm only a little boy." Ellen says, "Some little boy!"
