Reds bomb Saigon, tighten ground ring

SAIGON (UPI) — Military sources said jet fighter-bombers captured by the Communists at the height of their offensive bombed Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase today in the first such raid of the Vietnam war.

Scores of American-built jet bombers and other planes were captured intact when South Vietnam pulled out of Da Nang and other northern airfields without a fight at start of the Communist offensive. Many pilots chose to flee with their families rather than stay with the planes.

The bombing attacks which brought gunfire throughout Saigon also brought reports of a possible coup against Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh moments after he had assumed the office of president with a pledge to begin immediate cease-fire talks with the Communists.

It also brought panic and fears of a final assault on Saigon by Communist forces that have reached the suburbs only three miles from the center of the city.

The sources said four A37 Dragonfly jets carried out a bombing mission on the military section of Tan Son Nhut from the Communist-occupied airfield at Phan Rang, 185 miles northeast of Saigon.

Photos of chase planes — F5 Freedom Fighter jets — said the A37s piloted by Communist airmen returned to the coastal city and were seen landing there after the raid.

The attack on Tan Son Nhut touched off explosions which rocked Saigon and heavy bursts of anti-aircraft fire caused 50 minutes of panic in the South Vietnamese capital.

The bombing was carried out by five A37 Dragonfly jets of the type used by the South Vietnamese Air Force (VNAF). UPI correspondents reported from Tan Son Nhut. Military sources said later they were flown by Communists.

The sources said the air strikes destroyed three F5 Freedom Fighter jets, four C119 Flying Boxcars, three C47 aircraft and a DC-3. Casualties could not be determined immediately.

Tracer rounds filled the skies over the Tan Son Nhut area and in the downtown section, where government ships berthed on the Saigon River opened up on the A37s.

Air Force commanders scrambled jets from Tan Son Nhut and the airbase was sealed, halting all flights by U.S. emergency evacuation planes which had been flying thousands of Vietnamese from the country daily.

A C130 Hercules transport plane of the type being used to carry refugees to the Philippines was taking off just as the bombing raid was made. The plane passed over downtown Saigon at a low altitude with its prop-jet engines trailing smoke as it might have been hit. There was no report of any crash in the area, however.

Viet Cong troops advanced to within three miles of downtown Saigon and fighting raged at the northeast outskirts of the capital near the Newport bridge, located on the American-built highway stretching to Bien Hoa.

All roads leading into Saigon were cut by fighting which trapped tens of thousands of refugees in battlefronts where they faced crossfire between government forces and Communist troops.

After dark tonight, police trucks with loudspeakers crisscrossed the streets of Saigon urging all residents to return home. "Stay off the streets," the people were warned.

Li. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, military commander in the Saigon region, ordered a 24-hour curfew on the city. His edict was broadcast over radio Saigon only 30 minutes before the normal 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew would have gone into effect.

People walking around downtown streets panicked when the gunfire and sounds of bombing erupted. Billowing clouds of black smoke could be seen from the Tan Son Nhut area and the city echoed with the blasts from exploding bombs.

Minh peace talk offer rejected

SAIGON (UPI) — Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh today assumed the presidency of South Vietnam and said he would seek cease-fire and peace negotiations with the Communists.

Minh, 59, said he wanted to have a government of "mutual understanding and peace."

As he spoke, fighting raged on the outskirts of Saigon only three miles from the presidential palace.

The Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government delegation in Paris issued a statement which amounted to a rejection of Minh's cease-fire appeal. It said there could be no end to the fighting until South Vietnam dismantles its war machine and the United States backs the 1973 Paris accords and "respects truly the fundamental rights of the Vietnamese people."

President Tran Van Huong turned over his powers to Minh during a late-afternoon ceremony at the palace. Outside a thunderstorm lashed the capital.

Huong told Minh, "Your responsibilities are great."

In his inaugural address, Minh said, "Nothing has to come. I can promise you nothing. There will be difficulties."

Minh said his government would free all political prisoners detained under the regime of former president Nguyen Van Thieu, who resigned one week ago today. He also guaranteed full freedom of the press.

Minh, who led the 1961 coup which deposed the late President Ngo Dinh Diem, named as Vice President Nguyen Van Nguyen, former speaker of the lower house.

Minh said his prime minister would be Vu Van Mau, foreign minister under Diem and now a senator who speaks for the An Quang Buddhist bloc.

Minh said he would press for a cease-fire and a return to the peace talks based on the 1973 Paris agreements.

"I will welcome any initiative and any suggestion for peace," Minh said.

He urged South Vietnamese citizens not to flee the country under the American emergency evacuation program.

"I want to tell you, dear citizens, that this is our beloved land. Please be courageous and stay here and accept the verdict of God. Please remain and stay together, reconstructing South Vietnam."

"Let us sit down together and negotiate, and work out a settlement."

The 72-year-old Huong, whose has been in poor health for a number of years, said in a speech before Minh was introduced.

"Despite my old age, I tried to do my best. However, I realize I could not perform such a critical responsibility."

Kissinger should learn or quit, Church claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, says Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger should step down if he is unable to learn the lessons of his foreign policy failures in Southeast Asia.

But Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, R-Pa., interviewed with Church on ABC's "Issues and Answers," said Sunday Kissinger's batting average has been good and the nation should stick with him.

Church, a possible candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said the political cohesiveness of governments determines whether they survive or perish.

"Events in Southeast Asia and Cambodia have demonstrated that neither the United States nor other outsiders can manage the internal politics of nations to achieve cohesiveness," Church said.

He said the continuing U.S. military presence in Thailand and South Korea are "remnants of a dangerous policy that ignores that reality."

Asked whether Kissinger had lost his effectiveness and should step down, Church said, "If he doesn't change the policy in Asia I would say definitely. Then he's failed to learn the lesson that is there so plain to be seen."

—Scott replied, "I disagree wholeheartedly. He has a better batting average than Hank Aaron and a better pitching record than Califf Hunter. The trouble in this country is you get a winner and you haven't got sense enough to hold onto him. I think he's sense enough."

Both senators expressed hope the evacuation of Americans from Southeast Asia would be completed early this week because the prospect that U.S. combat forces might be needed will become greater the longer it takes.

They said withdrawal of remaining Americans would clear the way for a negotiated settlement with the Communists that could spare Saigon from a final battle.

Israeli consulate seized

JOHANNESBURG (UPI) — A band of guerrillas seized six hostages, some of them women, in the Israeli consulate today and threatened to blow up the building unless Israeli Ambassador Yitshak Ussami personally negotiated their release.

The guerrillas, still not identified, apparently sneaked into the fifth floor consulate offices during the weekend and seized the hostages; employees of the consulate, when they showed up for work. One hostage was reported wounded throughout the day the guerrillas — believed to number six — fired submachine guns at random at bystanders in the streets below the office building in downtown Johannesburg.

Hospitals reported at least 26 persons wounded, 12 of them seriously, before police cleared out the curious bystanders.

TF County food stamp outlets reduced sharply

By DIANE ALTERS
Times News writer

TWIN FALLS — Three of the five banks that sold food stamps in Twin Falls County have stopped selling them.

Another will stop selling stamps in about two months, and Department of Health and Welfare officials are looking for other sellers.

Five to 10 per cent of the county's families use food stamps to supplement their food budgets.

Idaho First National Bank was the only food stamp outlet in Buhl but it discontinued its sales of the U.S. Department of Agriculture-backed stamps last month after the Boise office of the bank issued a notice, according to an Idaho First official in Buhl. Buhl residents now must drive to Twin Falls for stamps.

Also at the request of the head office, Idaho First's Twin Falls bank discontinued sales March 31, according to operations officer John Purtle.

He said food stamp sales had "not necessarily" caused any problems. "We have had just a little bit less customer traffic" but that sales have ended, but "it hasn't changed operations," Purtle said.

The Twin Falls Bank of Idaho also dropped its food stamp program about a month ago, according to assistant vice president William Seek.

"I am not aware of the reasoning behind it," Seek said, noting that the decision to discontinue was made by the head office of the bank in Boise.

"A tremendous amount of administrative effort was involved" in the sales, Seek said.

About 50 people a month came in the bank to buy food stamps, he said. He estimated that each foodstamp customer required 15 to 20 minutes of a teller's time. "It involved time at the sacrifice of enabling us to serve our other customers better," he said.

First Security Bank of Idaho is still selling the stamps, but will stop its program in July according to medical and financial assistance manager Theo Murock at the local IHAW office.

The Blue Lanes branch of Twin Falls Bank and Trust is still selling stamps. The bank has had "no particular problems," vice president and branch manager Weldon Haskins said. The downtown branch of the Bank and Trust does not sell them.

Senators demand pullout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate leaders today urged the administration to close the U.S. embassy in Saigon and evacuate all remaining Americans as soon as possible.

Republican leader Hugh Scott also said he has learned that the administration plans to set up "several relocation camps in the United States" to handle South Vietnamese refugees.

Congressional concern over the plight of Americans still remaining in South Vietnam apparently increased today as Communist ground forces pushed to within three miles of downtown Saigon and jet fighter-bombers hit Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport.

The House is scheduled to approve legislation Tuesday to authorize up to $227 million for evacuation and Vietnamese refugee relief operations. The legislation, which gained Senate approval last week, would give President Ford authority to use American troops in evacuation activities.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Scott both called for the immediate evacuation of all Americans from Saigon.

"I want all Americans out," Mansfield said.

Scott said about 900 Americans remain in Saigon and urged that they be evacuated without delay.

"The sooner the better as far as I'm concerned," Scott said. "I would favor getting them all out at once. In view of the bombing, we ought to remove everyone in the embassy, including our ambassador, without delay."

Asked by reporters to elaborate on the establishment of refugee camps in the United States, Scott said he had no additional details but would ask administration officials to pinpoint specific locations.

Later, Scott said in remarks on the Senate floor that there is no "need to fear too great an influx" of refugees into any one state.

Theater organ dedicated in TF

TWIN FALLS — A community memorial project was climaxed Sunday with the dedication of a theater organ to the College of Southern Idaho.

The J. and Tine Hill Memorial project, spearheaded by the Kiwanis and Altrusa clubs, began several months ago with the goal of obtaining enough money to purchase the theater organ of the late J. Hill.

The entire community got behind the project and the goal became a reality with the Sunday dedication. Proceeds for the organ came primarily from musical concerts, dinner shows and private donations.

The organ was given to the college as a memorial to the Hills who drowned last August when their car went off the highway near McCall.

the memorial committee, made the official presentation Sunday to Marvin Glasscock, representing the College of Southern Idaho.

Opening remarks were given by Arlon Bastian and the program presented by the CSI Stage Band under the direction of Larry Curtis; the Magic Valley Country Music Association and Jay Fowles, a representative of the Rogers Music Co., presenting musical selections to fully demonstrate the theater organ.

Maj. Frank Hill, Florida, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Hill, was on hand for the dedication and expressed his gratitude to the community for such a lasting memorial to his parents and to the capacity crowd that attended the program.

2 Burley teens, TF woman hurt

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman was treated for minor injuries and two Burley teenagers were taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital as a result of separate accidents on snow-covered highways Saturday.

Idaho State Police in Twin Falls reported a 1962 sedan owned by Ralph Okelberry, Burley, went out of control on ice and snow about 7 a.m. Saturday one-half mile east of Murtaugh on Highway 30.

The vehicle crossed the highway and went into a ditch, making a half turn and coming to rest half on the roadway and half in the ditch.

Both occupants of the vehicle were taken to the hospital in Burley before investigating officers arrived. Hospital officials said both were released after emergency treatment.

Glenn Joyce Jacobs, 21, Twin Falls, suffered minor injuries and was not hospitalized after the vehicle she was driving went out of control on snow and ice near Kimberly. The accident occurred about 7:55 a.m. one-half mile north of Kimberly on U.S. Highway 30.

TWIN FALLS — An auction to raise funds for the Twin Falls County Humane Society has been postponed until this Saturday.

DAY CARE AVAILABLE FOR WORKING MOTHERS

The IMA released details of its closed meeting held Saturday in Boise and said should an acceptable program not become available, the second choice was to establish an insurance company by Idaho doctors and possibly include hospitals.

Factors discussed at the meeting included the determination of acceptable coverage and the type and cost of coverage available. Cost of medical malpractice insurance has been escalating rapidly throughout Idaho and the nation for the past six months.

Representatives of a Boise Insurance Firm, Campbell and Company, submitted a proposal for the creation of "The Idaho Medical Protective Association", a self-insurer program, which would require each physician policy holder to make substantial contributions for the creation of a loss accumulation fund. The fund would be transferred to an insurance company and policy holders would be required to maintain a fund at $1,000,000 at all times to pay claims, expenses and litigation costs.

An association committee was instructed to pass the plan on to the Idaho Legislature's Interim Committee on Malpractice.

The IMA rejected a motion calling for an immediate special session of the Idaho Legislature to deal with the malpractice problem.

Anguished feeling over S. Viet fall

Editor, Times-News:

I'm sure many others are experiencing the same feelings of despair, futility, anguish and frustration that I feel as I watch the people of South Vietnam fall captive to the Communists.

Years of turmoil, millions of lives and billions of dollars for that war game. Vietnam veterans tell us bitterly they soon learned that victory was not the objective.

A former employee of Howard Hughes admits to plans to deliberately prolong and escalate our involvement in order to ensure continued sales of helicopters manufactured by Hughes.

Former President Thieu was right in his accusation that Vietnam was used by the super powers for their own purposes. But the Vietnamese are not the only pawns in the power game — only the most obvious at the moment.

Consider a recent New York Times Service article quoting opinions of businessmen across the nation regarding the current recession/depression. A Cleveland industrialist made this comment about our government's role — in the economic situation, "It's as though they took out a textbook and found all the wrong things to do — and then did them."

It's time to stop kidding ourselves. Our nation's leaders are extremely intelligent people. The Vietnam fiasco, the inflation — recession — depression cycle, the approval of immoral and filthy textbooks for use in our schools, and the drive to register our firearms are not merely unrelated "mistakes" by our well-meaning but blundering government.

If you are concerned about any or all of these situations, I urge you to hear former Green Beret Patrick Mahoney speak at the Holiday Inn, Tuesday, April 29, at 8 p.m. and learn how all these "unfortunate situations" form an undeniable pattern, with subjugation of the American people as its ultimate goal.

Mr. Mahoney is sponsored by the John Birch Society. If you assume the Birchers' to be a bunch of wild-eyed alarmists who cry "doom at every opportunity, if you feel uncomfortable about being associated with them, your reaction is what mine once was and what the enemies of our society want it to be. Our enemies don't want you to hear what the John Birch Society has to say."

By investigating for myself I learned that the John Birch Society is a non-political organization dedicated to preserving our constitutional form of government through education of the people. It researches, documents, and makes available to us truth based on fact.

If we dare to ignore their message I fear we will soon realize that the tragedy of Vietnam we are viewing from the safety and comfort of our homes was actually a preview of coming attractions starring Mr. and Mrs. American Citizens, U.S.A.

Citizens' action for support asked

Editor, Times-News:

We need to do something about the terrible injustice against Rep. George Hansen. There has never been anyone sent to jail or prison on a misdemeanor charge.

It's like getting a parking ticket and sent to prison over it. The FBI checked all of his records and personal conduct and gave him an excellent rating.

So just what did George Hansen do? The news sure doesn't make it very plain and make it seem like a very terrible deed. First, he filed a paper late, which his campaign manager said was received late and they filed it as soon as they got it.

Second, he filed a figure in the wrong place. He didn't cover anything up, just put it in the wrong place, which was an honest mistake, he didn't leave anything out or file at all — so he pleaded guilty, because he did file late and he did file on the wrong column. So he should be sent to prison?

Can we afford to have one of our hardest working representatives in jail? Has he been working too hard against gun control and they need him put away for a few months? It's time people like you and us do something about these things going on. So what can we do?

1. First write to Rep. George Hansen and let him know we support and stand behind him.

2. Write or send a telegram to Pres. Ford to get an immediate pardon. It costs $2 for 15 words on a telegram. Call toll free 800-684-4100 and they will charge it to your telephone bill.

3. It would also be a good idea to send a copy to Sen. James McClure so he will know what is being done and can help.

Don't let Idaho go without a representative for two months. Let them hear from us.

Letters Common Cause role demands wariness

Editor, Times-News:

A March 17th Twin Falls Times-News article, "Citizens to Lobby for Idaho Reform" advises that Common Cause is organizing eight regional chapters in Twin Falls, Pocatello, Idaho Falls, Boise, Caldwell-Nampa, Lewiston, Moscow and Coeur d'Alene, according to Keith Axline of Idaho Falls, state coordinator.

The eight regional coordinators, including Royal Sloten of Twin Falls, will be monitoring the Idaho Sunshine law, considering legislative pay increases and "tightening up" loopholes in the state's open meeting laws, etc.

Perhaps, in light of the recent sentencing of Idaho's George Hansen for failure to make proper report as to campaign funds, (through inadvertence and not intent), exposure of other campaigners as to questionable use of campaign funds, etc., an April 8, 1975 insertion in the Congressional Record may be of interest.

It appears Common Cause has been long on exposure and short on compliance. Too, it was Wayne Hays of Ohio who led the fight in his congressional committee to "expose" Congressman Hansen and perhaps deny him seating, who said in part, in the Record:

"I find it rather incredible, but not surprising, that Common Cause, the so-called citizens lobby, has yet to file its March 10, 1975, financial disclosure report with the clerk of the House. The Federal Election Campaign Act Amendments of 1974 require under Section 308 that any organization which spends any money or commits any act for the purpose of influencing any election must report as a political committee. . . . I cannot imagine that they are unaware of the provision that they must file a March 10, 1975 report."

Mr. Hays also points out that Common Cause had filed a document specifically acknowledging obligation to file reports as a political committee.

"It is no wonder their membership is declining if this is the way they are spending their members' dues. . . . In the past Common Cause has monitored and criticized the reports filed by candidates and other political committees. . . . It now clearly appears time for them to assign a portion of their large staff to self-examination and to monitoring their own financial disclosure reporting requirements to insure future compliance with the law."

Citizens of Idaho should be wary of Common Cause. It's role in the "pot calling the kettle black," needs exposure!

TERESSA D. HENDRY
Jerome

P.S. — In an April 14th insertion in the Record by Hays, he indicates an attempted "cover-up" on the part of Common Cause, concerning failure to file, with comment that "Common Cause should be held to the same standards as are applicable to all other political committees. . . . It's no wonder that the membership of Common Cause is declining by the droves."

Douglas departing?

© Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The gossip grows more persistent that Justice William O. Douglas may not return to the Supreme Court on a permanent basis.

The stroke he suffered last December paralyzed his legs and his left arm — a clear indication, according to several physicians, that he also suffered some cerebral damage although his friends insist that mentally he is as alert as ever.

After several months of recuperation, Douglas tried returning to the court but was able to stay for only three weeks before he was rehospitalized for further therapy. His two major public appearances were at a brief press conference March 25 when he first came out of the hospital, during which he appeared not to hear several questions.

Soviet moves show confidence

© N.Y. Times Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union has begun demonstrating greater assurance in its foreign policy as it seeks to explore the possibilities offered by the reverses suffered by the United States around the world.

An air of confidence is noticeable particularly in Moscow's new willingness to place its prestige on the line in working to reconvene a new Middle East peace conference at Geneva following Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's failure last month to achieve another partial agreement.

Communist victories in South Vietnam and Cambodia and the leftist successes in Portugal have helped enhance the Kremlin's view of itself as potential standard-bearer of a worldwide Marxism tribulation.

The Central Committee meeting in Moscow earlier this month struck an optimistic note on foreign policy opportunities, affirming that "the Soviet Union, and our friends and allies are active participants in world events." Even so, Moscow remains cautious about not jeopardizing its accommodation with Washington by taking too visible advantage of American setbacks.

In contrast to Kissinger's diplomatic shuttle in the Middle East, the Kremlin has been summoning Arab officials to Moscow in an apparent effort to obtain a consensus on the peace talks, which the Russians want to open in late May or early June.

Within the last two weeks, Iraqis, Egyptians and now Syrians have been called to Moscow and, according to informed diplomatic formulation, have been briefed on what is expected of them at the Geneva talks. The biggest challenge may be Yasir Arafat, the leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization, who should arrive in a few days and who is expected to be told that the Palestinians must present a united front at Geneva.

The Russians are eager to head off Western predictions that the talks may turn into a propaganda show. Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam of Syria at dinner yesterday that Moscow did not want the conference "to be reduced just to fanfare."

In public, the Soviet leadership has adopted a tough line, musing few words about the cooperation required to make the Geneva conference work. Presumably, the Russians have been as forceful in private. If military aid was promised, it has not been apparent in the speeches or in the make-up of the visiting Arab delegations.

Wednesday Gromyko went so far as to stress that Moscow was ready "to guarantee Israel's independent existence. This, along with a reduction in anti-Israel press comment, tends to confirm foreign reports that Soviet diplomatic preparations for Moscow have extended to behind-the-scenes meetings with the Israelis. Moscow, while still pro-Arab, has evidently concluded that its success at Geneva depends on considering the interests of the Israelis as well as the Arabs.

With the official press offering a diet of American domestic uncertainties, some ordinary Russians have viewed American reverses, particularly in Indonesia, as a sign of weakness. Soviet officials do not necessarily draw such a conclusion and at least one has wondered whether an American withdrawal from Southeast Asia may produce a more aggressive American presence elsewhere, particularly in Western Europe.

As the recent Central Committee meeting showed, the Kremlin attaches high priority to a satisfactory strategic arm agreement with the United States that will release resources for other purposes. Broader trade with the United States also remains a key concern.

The Russians have refrained from predicting that they will have more success than Kissinger in the Middle East. But their brisk preparations suggest that developments elsewhere in the world have helped give them enough encouragement to try.

When is a building like your refrigerator?

When the building is a Butler building. It's why. Your refrigerator is the epitome of thermal efficiency. Its insulating mass is approximately an inch thick. Yet there's no wasted energy. Every bit of electricity (except, of course, when you open the door) is used to keep the cold in, the heat out.

When we build you a Butler building, you get components pre-designed and manufactured to provide that same kind of economical and superior thermal efficiency. For example, we can install one inch thick factory insulated roof and wall systems, not unlike your refrigerator is. Roof and wall systems that are five times more efficient than eight inches of concrete block. Seven times more efficient than six inches of poured concrete.

We're not saying that a Butler building is as airtight as your refrigerator. No building is. What we are saying is that a Butler building offers better energy efficiency than ordinary buildings. We think that's important. Especially now, when fuel is critical.

If you're ready to build, consider an energy saver. A Butler building. Call us, and we'll build it for you.

Tent city on Guam houses over 20,000 Viet refugees

Growing Vietnam refugee wave will break next on US shores

By United Press International

The wave of Vietnamese refugees is about to burst upon the United States. But not everyone who wants to get out will make it.

More than 30,000 South Vietnamese have already left their crumbling country. Up to 100,000 more will leave Communist-encircled Saigon in time permits and the United States evacuation airlift continues.

However, despite life size of the American relief effort, fueled by millions of dollars and the efforts of thousands of American servicemen, officials in Washington say it will rescue scarcely more than a tenth of the estimated 1 million South Vietnamese whose lives are imperiled by a Communist takeover.

The frightened refugees who left everything behind in Vietnam and the Americans who are sweating on Guam, on Wake Island and in the Philippines to receive them all are convinced that the end of Saigon is at hand. Few of the evacuees have certain plans for their future in the United States.

Packed Air Force plane arrived at Guam every 15 minutes today. Bernard Powell, the senior immigration officer on the island, said he hoped to send 5,000 persons a day on toward the United States by postponing some normal screening procedures. Evacuation flights from Vietnam were bringing people out at a rate of more than 5,000 persons per day, foreshadowing a backlog in the tent city refugee camps.

Assistant Secretary of State Robert McCloskey said Sunday the administration has decided, "as a practical matter," to bring 20 more than 130,000 Vietnamese to the United States — including those already evacuated — because this country could not absorb an influx of 1 million Vietnamese refugees.

Prices bar many from home market

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many middle-class families have been priced out of the housing market, according to a study prepared by the Library of Congress.

It said 23 per cent more income was required in 1974 than in 1973 to buy the average priced house, and as a consequence the percentage of families able to afford them fell sharply.

In 1974, it said, 21.5 per cent of families, spending one quarter of their income on housing, had the $19,000 annual income required for the median priced $27,100 new home with a 10 per cent down payment.

But in 1974, the study said, only 15 per cent of families had the $23,330 annual income required to buy the median priced new home, now $11,200.

For existing homes, families able to purchase a median priced unit fell from 29.6 to 20 per cent between 1973 and 1974, said the study released Sunday by Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

Paying out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil War ended 110 years ago this month, but the Veterans Administration is still spending almost half a million dollars a year to support 417 widows and children of Civil War veterans.

A VA spokesman said today there are still 205 widows of Civil War veterans ranking in age from 50 to 110. There are also 212 children aged 50 to 90 who have physical or mental disabilities.

Last year the government spent $25,503 on these widows and children. With deaths, that is expected to fall below $500,000 this year.

Filed by the Idaho Falls newspaper. Send to: The Idaho Falls Times-News, Classified Dept., P.O. Box 100, Idaho Falls, Idaho 83401.

Fresh arrivals in the United States during the weekend included 128 orphans, ranging in age from several months to 10 years, who arrived on two flights at Los Alamitos Naval Air Station near Long Beach, Calif., Saturday night and another 65 children who flew in on an Air Force C-141 Starlifter Sunday night. A "sneak-out" flight by Flying Tiger Airlines brought 32 of the airline's employees to Los Angeles Saturday.

The refugees left behind their friends and their homes in the hope they can also leave behind their memories of war and their fears of future oppression.

Officials in charge of "Operation New Life" at the American processing centers in Asia were scrambling to complete living quarters for the homeless and hungry Vietnamese and hastening to send them on to the mainland United States.

"I didn't want to leave my country," said Tran Thi Lang, a 32-year-old divorcee and mother of two who came with a group of orphaned children to the Orote Tent City on Guam. "But I had no choice."

"I wouldn't have been allowed to live under the Communists. And even though I left my country, I will still be able to live in liberty."

The Pentagon threw more planes into its around-the-clock airlift today, bringing in transport jets from Little Rock (Ark.) Air Force Base. Tents were sent from a base in Utah. Navy Seabees toiled in 100-degree heat on Guam to install latrines, showers and field kitchens amid the dust clouds billowing over the tent city.

The flights to Guam were suspended for 36 hours during the weekend to allow construction to proceed. During the interim, 2,160 refugees were flown 1,500 miles farther east to tiny Wake Island, where Seabees put up 1,000 tents on an abandoned World War II airstrip.

Nearly 23,000 refugees had arrived by this morning at Guam, where Rear Adm. George S. Morrison, in charge of the refugee operation, said he was prepared to handle as many as 50,000 people at one time.

More than 12,000 Vietnamese were crammed into a gymnasium, two aircraft hangars and a sweltering city of tents in the Philippines, at Clark Air Force Base and the naval base at Subic Bay. A 10,000-ton converted military transport brought in 625 evacuees by sea Sunday.

Flying Tiger Airlines arranged a "sneak-out" flight for 32 people — its Vietnamese employees and their families — from Saigon. The Vietnamese were picked up at scattered points around the city in a bus with blacked-out windows — they were fluorescent badges so the driver could spot them on Saigon's darkened streets — and taken through military checkpoints to a DC-8 cargo plane parked in an isolated area of Tan Son Nhut airport.

The airline lied to officials that the plane was crippled by mechanical difficulties, then hustled the Vietnamese aboard. The plane took off on the 5½-hour flight to Guam as darkness fell.

Gary Kambitzer, Flying Tiger's Saigon manager, said "rumors were that anyone working for an American company was subject to extermination... It's not their fault, that the country collapsed around them."

Leukemia cure path may be open

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Researchers say they may be optimistic, but they feel they have found the way to cure "T-cell leukemia," the most common type of blood cell cancer in children.

According to Dr. Herschel P. Bentley Jr., who heads the team of doctors at the University of South Alabama Medical Center, it is believed that two drugs now under research may be the answer to curbing the action of the pituitary gland.

Bentley said the doctors believe the pituitary overstimulates the thymus gland and that T-cell growth becomes like wild-fire, crowding and suffocating other needed cells in the bloodstream.

If the drugs can trigger body hormones into recognizing leukemia cells and destroying them, the disease can be controlled.

The treatment would not work on B-cell or adult strains of leukemia.

"But the T-cell in children has been of most concern," said Bentley, "and if we can whip it, which I believe we can, a great part of the battle will be won."

The project is working with BCG, which is flown in from the Pasteur Institute in Paris and is being used on humans, and with thymosin, which is being tested on laboratory rats.

"We think Thymosin and BCG will do the same thing," said Bentley. "Shut off the pituitary from overstimulating the thymus. Everbody has the T-cell production, but the body regulates its functions."

"You find into leukemia when these normal cell functions fail to shut down and the production of T-cells keeps on."

The drawback to BCG is that it must be administered by cutting grid lines into the arms and legs of the children and it cannot be given until the victim has undergone two years of drug therapy.

Thymosin, which Bentley hopes will be available for human use by August, can be injected as soon as leukemia diagnosis is made.

The program is only four weeks old and many questions, such as the side effects of the new drugs, must still be answered.

"We have much to do but we're very optimistic," said Bentley. "I think we're going to conquer leukemia."

Fair trade law repeal sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today called for a repeal of fair trade laws, saying such a move would save consumers $2 billion a year.

But he also said he opposes legislation creating a new consumer agency, saying it would only add another layer of expensive federal bureaucracy.

In a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Ford said regulation costs consumers money because it prevents competition that can lower prices.

"While we are all accustomed to the open debate on the government's budget, far too little attention has been focused on the ways in which government regulations levy a hidden tax on the American people," Ford said.

"In the nearly 90 years since we created the first federal regulatory commission, we have built a system of regulation which abounds with contradictions and excesses — all to the detriment of the public. There are sound estimates that government regulations have added billions of unnecessary dollars to business and consumer costs every year."

He said Congress should end fair trade laws which allow manufacturers to set minimum prices for items they sell. Discount stores have been trying for years to overturn these state laws so they could sell at lower prices.

"Federal law now permits states to allow manufacturers to dictate the price of their products, and drives up the cost of such items as books, cosmetics, shoes and hardware," Ford said.

"These Depression-era laws — which cost consumers an estimated $2 billion a year — should be laid to rest alongside the N.R.A. Blue Eagle of the same period."

But Ford said, he did not feel a federal consumer agency would help.

"I have ordered action by the executive departments and agencies to make major improvements in the quality of service to the consumer, and I have asked the Congress to postpone action on legislation which would create a new federal agency for consumer advocacy," he said.

"At a time when we are trying to cut down on both the size and cost of government, it would be unsound to add still another layer of bureaucracy."

Foreign investors shy away from US

NEW YORK — New foreign investment in United States manufacturing industry fell substantially in the first quarter of this year, according to data gathered by the Conference Board, an independent, nonprofit business research group.

Of 36 foreign companies announcing new ventures in the United States in the first quarter, the report noted, 20 disclosed planned expenditures totaling $185 million. The number of newly announced ventures was more than 40 per cent below the quarterly average since 1973, when the research organization began monitoring announced investments from abroad.

David Bauer, the Conference Board's international research economist, originated the survey of announced intentions against a background of a general dearth of information on such investments.

NEW YORK — More than 20 of the Soviet Navy's most powerful surface ships and submarines reached home ports at the weekend after the largest and most extensive air and sea exercise the Soviet Union has ever staged.

Defense Department analysts studying preliminary reports from American and other uninformed observers, say that Exercise Okean (Ocean) 1975 — which from the first time employed convoys of merchantmen in an exercise — raised questions whose answers could be of the greatest significance to the United States and its allies in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Does this foreshadow the future use of Soviet sea power to escort a merchant fleet or an expeditionary force en route to a crisis area?

— Or do the convoys reflect greater emphasis in Soviet naval planning on the destruction in war of allied military convoys loaded with troops and supplies for Europe and of merchantmen carrying oil and other vital materials to North America and Europe?

— Was this a demonstration as much for the benefit of the Soviet Government as for the West of what the new navy can do, a signal that the navy can no longer be considered merely an extension of the army but a force capable of implementing Russian policy at great distances?

Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf II reported in a speech to the Navy League that the Russians used the exercise to evaluate command and control of naval forces worldwide, ocean surveillance, anti-air, anti-submarine and anticonvoy warfare operations and weapons and electronic systems.

Newsman mum on sources

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — In a case they regard as a test of press freedom, four newsmen are willing to go to jail in defiance rather than reveal the source of a news story.

Managing Editor George Gruner, City Editor James Bart, reporter Joe Baines and William Patterson of the Fresno Bee have been sentenced to remain in jail until they agree to answer questions about how the newspaper got information contained in a grand jury transcript that had been sealed by the court.

Peckinpaugh called the hearing after the Bee published a series of three articles in mid-January about the indictment of City Councilman Marc Stefano, developer Julius Alushi and former City Planning Commissioner Robert Baines charging them with bribery and conspiracy.

After the grand jury handed down the indictments on Oct. 30, 1974, Peckinpaugh ordered the transcript of the grand jury proceedings which led to the indictments sealed and prohibited court officers, court employees or attorneys from discussing the case with the news media or the public.

pretrial publicity before the Bee published any of the sealed testimony. No previously unreleased information about the third defendant was contained in the articles.

Bee attorneys said Peckinpaugh's gag order did not include the newspaper and the Bee violated no court order in publishing excerpts from the transcript.

"We had the information in the stories for about a month before we published the series," Gruner said after the court hearing.

FRESNO COUNTY Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpaugh cited the four a total of 74 times for contempt of court for refusing to answer the questions posed during his inquiry — and last week sentenced them to remain in jail until they reveal the source of their information. He stayed the sentences until May 23 pending appeal.

In its articles, the Bee used extensive excerpts from the testimony during the hearings, and Peckinpaugh ordered the newspaper into court.

Gruner, Rosato and Patterson all refused to divulge the sources which provided the newspaper with the testimony and they were cited a total of 57 times for contempt of court by Peckinpaugh. Bart was cited 17 times during a later portion of the hearing.

"We had the information in the stories for about a month before we published the series," Gruner said after the court hearing.

The editors and reporters took their stand with the support of C.K. McClatchy, editor of the McClatchy newspapers which include the Sacramento Bee and the Modesto Bee as well as the Fresno Bee.

"The Fresno Bee newsmen who now face long jail terms for refusing to divulge the source of grand jury testimony have taken a courageous and important stand in the long fight to preserve a free press," McClatchy said. "Their willingness to go to jail has become essential to prevent an angry, whimsical judge from eroding the public's ability to determine the truth. They have my strongest admiration and support."

The newsmen based their refusal on Section 1070 of the State Evidence Code, the so-called newsmen's shield law, and on the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution guaranteeing freedom of the press.

Gruner, recalled to the stand on the final day of the hearing, told Peckinpaugh and other editors on the newspaper decided to publish the articles containing the testimony "in the public interest," because trials of two of the defendants had been ordered removed from Fresno County due to pretrial publicity before the Bee published any of the sealed testimony. No previously unreleased information about the third defendant was contained in the articles.

Bee attorneys said Peckinpaugh's gag order did not include the newspaper and the Bee violated no court order in publishing excerpts from the transcript.

"We had the information in the stories for about a month before we published the series," Gruner said after the court hearing.

Hunter swallowed by crocodile

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — Searchers recovered the remains of a missing hunter from the belly of a 19-foot salt water crocodile, police said today.

Police said Peter Reimers, 32, was swallowed by the reptile while taking a nap during a hunting and fishing trip at Weipa, 1,200 miles north of Brisbane.

Reimers decided to lie down and rest beside shallow water at a freshwater lagoon 20 miles east of Weipa while his two companions went fishing elsewhere, police said. Officers said the crocodile apparently lunged six feet from the water and attacked him while he slept.

His two companions searched the area but only found his rifle, watch, hat and shoes neatly piled nearby.

7-year-old child attacked by dogs

MIDWEST CITY, Okla. (UPI) — Two German shepherds pulled 7-year-old Timothy Fleming over a fence when the dogs, together with two other dogs, slashed, chewed and mauled the youngster.

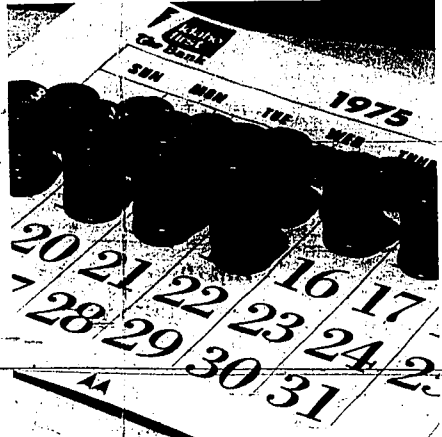

The child was reported in satisfactory condition today at a hospital. It required 400 stitches to close the wounds inflicted by the dog bites, authorities said.

The victim's father, Richard Fleming, a Midwest City police officer, said some children ran into his house Saturday afternoon and said Timothy was being attacked by dogs.

"I ran out the front door and around to the back and jumped the fence and saw three German shepherds and a schauzer chewing on my son," the father said.

Fleming kicked the dogs away from the boy and handed him over the fence to his wife. The officer then used his service revolver to protect himself from the dogs until he could get back over the fence. He said the child told him they had seen two of the dogs pull the child over the fence which separated the yard in which they were kept from a play area.

INTEREST COMPOUNDED EVERY DAY

Your interest on regular savings is compounded daily. This has the effect of increasing earnings to you. For example, the 5% annual rate of passbook savings will actually earn 5.13% in a year's time. This is because interest is earned every day... day in and day out... on previously paid interest as well as on the principal for that account. Earnings on earnings. Interest is earned from date of deposit to date of withdrawal for active accounts.

Idaho First — where interest every day is quite a bit more than everyday interest.

STATEMENT SAVINGS CONVENIENCE

A report of your savings earnings, and all account activity, is mailed to you quarterly. Automatic. Time saving. You can even make both deposits and withdrawals by mail, if you like. You're notified to a passbook. No waiting in line. As in checking, you will not need to come in to update your record (although you may, come in if you prefer).

Instead, Idaho First comes to you.

That's the way it should be with any bank — and particularly with "The Bank."

markets

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, reacting to some unfavorable economic news, surrendered an early lead Monday as prices moved lower in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 3.21 to 888.59, shortly before noon. Declines overtook advances 580 to 574, among the 1,603 issues crossing the tape.

The turnaround began shortly after the Commerce Department reported its March index of leading economic indicators fell 0.5 percent, the seventh decline in the past eight months.

February's gain was revised downward.

Turnover during the first two hours on the NYSE amounted to about 8,200,000 shares, compared with 7,810,000 traded during the same period Friday.

Eastman Kodak's first quarter earnings reported of 59 cents a share compared with 71 cents a year ago was a marked depression.

Kodak, a major component of the Dow average, was off 1/4. DuPont, also down 1/4.

Also, there was some concern on Wall Street that government borrowing plans and corporate financings later this week could drive prices lower and yields higher on the bond market, taking money away from securities.

Some analysts said a few investors may have been disappointed the Viet Cong rejected immediate cease-fire efforts in South Vietnam.

'Catfish' wins No. 1; Aaron ties record

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jim "Catfish" Hunter threw 7 2/3 innings of no-hit ball before giving up hits to Sixto Lezcano and Tim Johnson in the eighth inning to give the New York Yankees a 10-1 victory Sunday after Hank Aaron tied Babe Ruth's major league RBI record in the Milwaukee Brewers' 7-0 opening game win.

Hunter, who lost his first three decisions for the Yankees, allowed only a third-inning walk to Bob Coluccio for 7 2/3 innings as he made a bid for the second no-hitter of his career in his first victory for the Yankees. The $2.8 million pitcher hurled a perfect game over Oakland A's 1-0 loss.

A crowd of 41,983 saw Hunter strike eight and walk two. The Yankees got on top in the first inning, scoring four runs with the big hits—a two-run single by Chris Chambliss and a two-run double by Herrmann.

They added single runs in the fifth and sixth innings with Graig Nettles and Bobby Bonds driving in the runs.

Aaron tied Ruth's mark of 2,293 RBIs with a two-run double in the seventh inning, the first game as the Brewers backed Pete Brubaker's threehitter with an 11-hit attack.

Have you ever thought you were dying? Pollsters put that query to numerous groups. About 35 out of every 100 women said yes. But only 25 out of every 100 men said likewise. Why so many more women than men have felt they were at the rope's end remains unexplained.

ANOTHER innovation devised before its time by that genius Leonardo Da Vinci in 1508 was contact lenses.

I'M TOLD you can pretty well count on the notion that plumbing pipes in future homes will be made of glass which never corrodes.

CHERRY TREE TALE

Q. "Any truth to the old story that George Washington cut down his father's cherry tree; then confessed, saying 'I cannot tell a lie?'"

A. Not likely. A biographer named Parson Weems dreamed up that one. He put a lot of fiction in books about Benjamin Franklin and William Penn, too.

THERE'S a plastic surgeon in New York City who makes most of his money by cutting dimples into cheeks and chins... IT WAS a personal policy of the great comedian W. C. Fields never to drink liquor between 5 a.m. and noon... ITEM 1473C in our Love and War man's file reads: "Forgiving a man is the supreme pleasure known" to women... CUSTOM among some tribes in New Guinea is for a widow to wear her husband's jawbone around her neck... STATISTICS indicate arsonists set more fires during the full moon than at any other time.

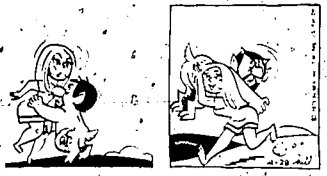

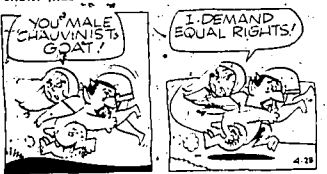

PAIR

Far more people than you might think enjoy pain, evidently. Consider chili that's extremely spicy, for instance. Neither the flavor nor the fragrance is the outstanding characteristic of that dish. Neither is the nose nor the taste buds have much to do with the enjoyment. Rather, the strong chemicals in the spice stimulate the pain nerves that respond to heat. And that kind of pain in the mouth is a pleasure to many.

YOU'VE PLAYED cat's cradle, that child's pastime wherein a loop of string is stretched on the fingers to make various geometric figures. Mention it because it's the world's second most widely played game. Only hide and seek is more popular.
