US seeks help with refugees

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. Times — The United States is asking other governments to accept thousands of evacuated Vietnamese refugees for resettlement. The request to other countries is understood to be going to governments in Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America but apparently not to the Middle East, according to officials at the United Nations who were advised of Washington's initiative. The U.S. was said to be urging that each country take at least 100 of the evacuated refugees.

Vietnam surrenders

SAIGON (UPI) — A triumphant Communist army riding tanks, trucks and captured American Jeeps took over Saigon today and raised the Viet Cong flag over the presidential palace in what the Communist world hailed as a great victory of historic importance.

The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops — jubilant over the unconditional surrender that ended 35 years of war against American, French, Japanese and South Vietnamese forces — seized Saigon Radio and announced they were renaming the South Vietnamese capital "Ho Chi Minh City."

The occupation of the city three hours and a half after the last Americans were flown out in U.S. Marine helicopters was mostly peaceful, but there were some sporadic firefights in the capital as last ditch defenders fought suicide battles.

One by one, the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops overwhelmed the holdouts and gained complete control of all of Saigon. They crashed tanks through the wall at the presidential palace and hoisted a huge Viet Cong flag — red on the top, blue on the bottom with a gold star in the center. President Duong Van Minh was reported in custody.

UPI photographer Hoang Van Cuong rode one of the Russian-made tanks into the presidential compound surrounded by approving, smiling soldiers who shouted "Press guys, good." The Viet Cong made no attempts to interfere with picture taking or news coverage.

One noisy fight broke out in front of the presidential palace — now the Viet Cong headquarters — as UPI correspondent Alan Dawson was attempting to make contact with senior Communist officials to discuss news and photograph operations.

Dawson spent 10 minutes tucked between two Viet Cong behind a tree. The Communists put out a tremendous volume of tank, machine gun and rifle fire and Dawson was able to pull out after about 10 minutes.

Other fighting was reported underway with holdout paratroopers near the Saigon Zoo at the north edge of Saigon and with Special Forces troops at the southwest edge.

When a boatload of persons tried to set off down the Saigon River to the South China Sea, a Viet Cong officer ordered a tank to fire a round across the ship's bow. The boat turned around and returned to the Saigon dock.

There was no comment in Washington from President Ford other than the statement that the American evacuation "closes a chapter in the American experience." Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger admitted that the 14 years of American involvement in Vietnam "did not achieve the objectives of those who started the original involvement." (Continued on p. 2)

Indicted

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anthony (Tony) Ulasiewicz, former New York City policeman who added a measure of comic relief to the Senate Watergate hearings with his tales of bungling, has been indicted for filing false tax returns while employed as a White House investigator. Ulasiewicz, 55, was named in a two-count federal indictment Tuesday accusing him of understating his earnings for two years, reporting income of about $16,000 in 1971 and $27,000 in 1972.

Congress takes up Viet aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite Communist takeovers of Cambodia and South Vietnam, Congress today renewed consideration of humanitarian aid for the victims of the Indochina war.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee convened to consider a proposal by Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., which would authorize $50 million in relief assistance to the war victims in Cambodia.

Meanwhile, the fate of a bill to provide $327 million for evacuation and humanitarian purposes in South Vietnam remained uncertain.

Losers grab spoils

SOUTH VIETNAMESE civilians poured into the American embassy in Saigon Tuesday and began looting within minutes after the last Marine security guards left. Straps of the city were filled with looters carrying all they could steal, delaying a 24 hour curfew. (UPI)

More Red pressure expected

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Dr. Goh Keng Swee, Singapore's acting prime minister and defense minister, said tonight Southeast Asian countries can expect increased Communist pressures through local insurgencies following the fall of Cambodia and South Vietnam.

But he said the disasters in Indochina did not mean Southeast Asian countries would fall one after another in quick succession in line with the domino theory.

Defendant

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — A federal judge Tuesday refused to excuse H.R. Haldeman and three other former Nixon administration aides as defendants in a civil suit growing out of a 1971 presidential visit to Charlotte. U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan rejected a request for removal from the case by Haldeman, Ronald Walker, William Henkle and Michael Duval.

Capitol Hill views muted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The abrupt end of American involvement in the Vietnam war after more than a decade of impassioned congressional debate was greeted today with a muted response on Capitol Hill and the rest of official Washington.

The raising of the Viet Cong flag over the presidential palace in Saigon Tuesday, which dramatically signified the termination of the American war involvement there, elicited no speeches, no debate in the Senate or the House and just a few guarded statements. There has been no response so far from either the White House or the State Department since the South Vietnamese government officially surrendered Tuesday night. (Continued on p. 2)

Historians differ

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When emotions have cooled, after they have disappeared from daily news stories, how will America's struggle in Southeast Asia be recorded in history books?

Idaho historians vary widely on that question. Gene Hull, chairman of the history department at the College of Southern Idaho, said today, "You'll find that wars are not very popular in our history books. Unless that trend changes, the Vietnam war probably won't even make the history books unless it is to explain that there was something going on during this time."

"The Civil War gets big play because it was a local war on a local issue," he added.

Ronald Hatzenbuehler, chief historian at Idaho State University, said the war "will certainly be in the history books." If for no other reason, it will be studied for what "it did to the United States in terms of domestic policies," including President Johnson and his plans for a Great Society and the surprising "impact" it had on President Nixon.

Also, the war represents "the beginning of the end" of the United States' cold war policies, according to Hatzenbuehler.

The top historian at the University of Idaho, William Grever, said the war will get "major play in history books."

"Certainly for the last 10 years it would be one of the two or three things considered as one of the most important events in American history," he said.

The historians were reluctant to make complete evaluations without the benefit of "all the facts." Their profession is made up of specialists in "hindsight," they agreed.

"Judging by the impact on students in classes today, all they want to do is forget about it as soon as possible — that's a reflection of the students here," Hull said.

The war "has certainly turned us inward," he said, "Americans 'will be very selective in what they get involved in... We're going to have to pick and choose who we give military money to and who we give our friendship to," Hull said.

The war "certainly proved that we were not ready to fight an unconventional war with so-called conventional weapons," he added.

According to Hatzenbuehler, the war "is just a chapter in a longer story that's going to continue. That chapter being a general Asian reaction against attempts of outside people to control their destinies."

The ouster of the United States in South Vietnam "was sort of an inevitable thing," he said.

First wave of refugees reaches US

By United Press International
The first wave of the survivors of Saigon, rescued by the U.S. airlift has arrived in the United States, and hundreds of the Vietnamese refugees set out today to find new homes and new lives in America.

Thousands more were on the way. But the American evacuation program failed to rescue additional hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese who said they feared for their lives in the Communist takeover of South Vietnam.

U.S. officials had said up to 1 million people would be endangered by the fall of Vietnam. Fewer than 100,000 — probably no more than 60,000 — were rescued.

Some Americans criticized the emigration of Vietnamese to this country. But other U.S. citizens asked for understanding and a welcoming attitude for the exiles.

Thousands of American military men toiled at the relocation centers in the Pacific and the three bases chosen for the refugees' temporary homes in the United States — Camp Pendleton, Calif., Ft. Chaffee, Ark., and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Across the Pacific, the rescue operation was still picking up groups of refugees.

The American naval armada that picked up the last stragglers who managed to escape Saigon, many of them were deserting South Vietnamese soldiers, moved away from the Vietnamese coast into the South China Sea.

In Honolulu, Adm. Noel Gayler, commander of all American forces in the Pacific, said 20 helicopters piloted by Vietnamese ditched at sea in the pilots' futile attempts to locate the rescue vessels.

Fifty more South Vietnamese warplanes arrived safely today at the American B-52 bomber base in U Tapao, Thailand, where 2,700 refugees swelled camps first set up to absorb fleeing Cambodians.

Idaho loss 189

TWIN FALLS — Idahoans also died in Vietnam. According to the U.S. Veterans Affairs Commission, 189 Idaho soldiers were killed in Vietnam combat from 1966 to the present.

Official records for the number of wounded were not available. However, the Veterans Administration reports that about 1,300 Idaho Vietnam veterans are currently drawing disability pensions for service-connected injuries. However, not all of these served or were injured in the Vietnam War.

The VA estimated there are about 24,000 Vietnam era veterans in Idaho.

Valley comment

Question: What lessons do you think the United States should learn from the fall of South Vietnam?

Bob Clay, Buhl: "I think that the lesson we've learned is that unless we intend to win a war, we should never become involved in one. The United States certainly had the capability of winning that war if they'd wanted to. It seems to me there was some kind of conspiracy of big businessmen, et cetera, to capitalize on such tragedies as Vietnam... It was a rich man's war... Some people won't stop at anything to attain wealth... I don't believe we had any intention of winning that war when we first started."

Harold Arthur, Twin Falls: "Not to play big brother to everybody... I just think it's regrettable that we ever got involved over there."

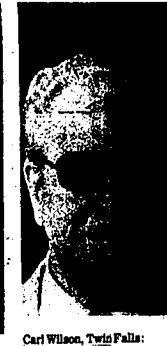

Gloria Routh, Twin Falls: "They should have gone out to win the war, not just to do a bunch of political stuff. Why go in there if you're not going to win the war? We lost too many men over there."

Howard Harper, Twin Falls: "We should never have got in there in the first place. I think it was inevitable. I don't think there is anything they could have done about it (the fall of S. Vietnam)."

Bill Ostrander, Twin Falls: "To mind their own business and stop trying to be a keeper of the whole world."

Carl Wilson, Twin Falls: "As far as a lesson is concerned, I'm in accord with some of the other folks who feel the United States has gone the second full mile and then some... I don't feel anything but pity for the homeless, but as far as our leaders are concerned I feel nothing but anger."

Duff Brown, Twin Falls: "I think we should learn to start keeping our commitments... The second thing I think is that we should mind our own business in the first place... The lesson we should learn is not to make commitments if we're not going to follow through. I don't feel we should ever have been involved over there in the first place."

OAKLEY — Reta A. Blatter, 82, Oakley resident, died Tuesday in the Hurley Care Center following a long illness.

Born Dec. 11, 1892, in Atwood, Ill., she attended school in Illinois and was married to Maurice Pulp in 1909. He died.

In 1909 she moved to Lewistown, Mont., where she lived until 1947 when she moved to Oakley. She married Otto J. Blatter in Lewistown, Aug. 11, 1925. The marriage was later solemnized in the LDS Temple in Salt Lake City. Mr. Blatter died in 1956.

Mrs. Blatter was a member of the LDS Church and active in many church affairs.

She served as a counselor in the Relief Society and as a society president. She was a member of the stake genealogical board and served as ward and Sunday school organist and as a teacher in the society, Primary and Sunday school.

Surviving are a son, Roy Blatter, San Mateo, Calif.; two daughters, Mrs. Karl (Leola) Martin and Mrs. V. Laine Matthews, both Oakley; nine grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and one brother, Raymond R. Pound, Portland, Ore.

In addition to her husband, she was preceded in death by one grandson.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Friday in the Oakley LDS Stake Church with Bishop John Adams officiating. Burial will be in the Oakley Cemetery.

Friends may call at Payne Mortuary Thursday afternoon and evening and at the place of service one hour prior to the funeral Friday.

Annie M. Denning

TWIN FALLS — Annie M. Denning, 78, Twin Falls, died at her home Tuesday evening after a short illness.

Born Aug. 26, 1896, at Tooele, Utah, she was married to James Denning there on March 5, 1917. They moved to Twin Falls in 1946 from Idaho Falls.

She was a member of the Tenth Ward LDS Church, Relief Society and Daughters of Utah Pioneers.

Surviving are her husband; four sons, Clyde James and Gerald Denning, all Idaho Falls, and Vaughn Denning, Westminster, Calif.; three sisters, Stella Nelson and Sally Drömbay, both Tooele, and Ruby Tanner, Salt Lake City, and 10 grandchildren.

Mrs. Denning was preceded in death by five brothers.

Funeral services will be announced by White Mortuary.

Lebanese artillery fires on Israelis

By United Press International

Lebanese artillery units shelled four Israeli troop carriers which crossed the border today and damaged one of them, a Lebanese military spokesman said in Beirut.

The spokesman said the Israeli vehicles twice tried to infiltrate into a forest near the border village of Aita Al Shaab in the Bint Jubel region of southern Lebanon.

He estimated the troop carriers were manned by 30 soldiers.

"Our gunners shelled the Israeli force both times it tried to infiltrate and stopped it from accomplishing its aims," the spokesman said.

He said one Israeli vehicle was damaged by Lebanese shells and "was seen to be towed away by another."

The spokesman did not mention any Lebanese casualties.

Egyptian Vice President Hosni Mubarak arrived in Damascus today for a short visit to Syria, the Middle East News Agency said.

The agency said high-ranking Syrian defense officials met Mubarak at Damascus airport.

Earlier today, the Egyptian newspaper Al Ahras said President Anwar Sadat had decided to send Mubarak on a "special urgent mission" for one day but that Mubarak would be back in Cairo to attend May day celebrations with Sadat.

The Communist victory dealt a stunning setback to the United States, which spent $150 billion and lost more than 50,000 lives in a futile effort to save the South Vietnamese government.

Former President Nguyen Van Thieu, in exile on Taipei, maintained silence.

Soviet State commentator Sergei Bulatnev said that after more than 30 years of fighting "at last, conditions were created that peace should reign in the long-suffering land of South Vietnam, and a most dangerous seed of international

Viet collapse 'inevitable'

BOISE (UPI) — The last American soldier wounded in a combat unit in Vietnam says those who fought there knew the fall of South Vietnam was inevitable.

James McVicar, Boise, said that "to me the end of the war just brought to a close what was inevitable."

"We knew that even while we were there," he said, "most of us just had a longing to come home. We knew then the war was pointless and this just proves it..."

"The only thing that came out of it was that a lot of lives were lost."

McVicar's view of the war was typical of the reaction of many Idaho veterans of the Vietnam War.

Dennis Walker, Boise, was blinded while on duty as a heavy equipment operator

Benjamin H. Brannon

TWIN FALLS — Benjamin Harrison Brannon Jr., 54, Twin Falls, died Tuesday afternoon at a Kimberly rest home after a short illness.

Born July 8, 1922, at Oakland City, Ind., Mr. Brannon had lived in the Twin Falls area for several years. He was a graduate of the College of Southern Idaho Vocational School.

Mr. Brannon was a veteran of World War II, serving in the Navy and was aboard the USS Colorado for five years, including seven major invasions.

He was a member of the American Legion in Indiana.

In 1962 he was married to Carol Moore in Twin Falls.

Surviving are his wife; three sons, Benjamin Brannon, Washburn, Ind.; Robert Brannon, Mountain Home Air Force Base, and Mike Brannon, Gastonia, N.C.; four daughters, Sue Ann and Rhoda Brannon, both Washburn, Linda and Pamela Brannon, both Gastonia; a brother, Roy Brannon, Twin Falls; three sisters, Mrs. Maxine Ford and Mrs. Margaret Livingston, both Twin Falls, and Mrs. Jane Alford, Washburn. There are several grandchildren.

A son preceded Mr. Brannon in death.

Funeral services will be conducted at 3 p.m. Friday at Reynolds Funeral Chapel. Burial will be in Twin Falls Cemetery under direction of Mountain Home Air Force Base personnel.

The Viet Cong's Provincial Revolutionary Government delegation in Paris hailed the capture of Saigon as an historic victory over the Americans and hinted privately that the war-divided country may soon be reunited. First refugee wave hits US

Many of the Vietnamese who landed in California Tuesday and early today left for destinations across the country via rented cars, buses and commercial flights. Most of them were apparently healthy, clean, well dressed and well educated.

"The real hard-core refugees will arrive later," an official in charge of the resettlement efforts at Camp Pendleton, Calif., said.

In California, 813 refugees arrived Tuesday on six flights to Camp Pendleton—the first group aboard a blue-and-silver jet emblazoned "Holiday Inn Freedom"—and 70 more arrived early today at Norton Air Force Base.

A military transport brought 48 Vietnamese infant orphans to Los Alamitos, Calif., Naval Air Station, and 65 more young orphans landed Tuesday night at McChord Air Force Base in Washington state.

An Air Force major from New York City who arrived at Pendleton with eight Vietnamese friends admitted he lied to get them into the country.

"No, I'm not related to any of them—except for the time being, on paper," he said.

"I met them when I was stationed in the Nam" and they're my friends. I just felt I had to get them out and so I told the authorities—I was taking out my wife and in-laws.

"So I lied," the major said. "So what?" The authorities... must have known I was lying but they knew that was the only way to save their lives."

Capitol Hill voices muted

In Congress, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., whose antiwar presidential campaign was soundly crushed three years ago, said, "The only way to redeem anything from the whole nightmare is not to repeat it. That's the only consolation I can draw from it."

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., recently deposed head of the House Armed Services Committee, said, "I don't think the country's ever been torn apart so much since the war between the states... The tragedy is that we never learn from history. We never learn."

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said the nation should have learned a lesson from the war.

"The tragic experience we've gone through shows that modern weapons are not the answer," he said. "We had everything. The other side had a people who literally nothing but a determination to defend their own country. It's a collective tragedy for all involved."

Sen. Joseph P. Biden Jr., D-Del., said, "We now seem to be finally out of Vietnam. It seems to me we've learned an important lesson about careless military involvement abroad. Having learned that lesson, it's now time to re-examine the divisions of the war which have separated us for so long."

Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., a long-time critic of the war, said, "The deep sense of relief that this war is finally at an end does not abrogate our responsibility to help rebuild a land and a people so utterly torn asunder. If we continue to act unilaterally, the failure of our past policies, we may learn to correct our ways for the future."

Sen. James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., said the lesson that should have been learned is quite evident.

"Don't go into actual warfare unless you intend to win and get it over with rapidly," he said. "Let's be very careful about making any commitments and having made them, let's understand the consequences of breaking those commitments."

Rep. Gladys Spellman, D-Md., said "If we find that we want to be involved in a war then we have to be in it to win. We ought to learn from this that its time we stop meddling in other peoples' affairs."

Human fallacies key to Indochina analysis

FIRBY RUN, Va. — On the slopes of the Blue Ridge, the fruit trees and the dogwoods are now in bloom and the hard winter summit of the mountains is fringed with green. The natural world is alive again, producing its own good news in defiance of the bad news elsewhere. Down in Washington, the politicians are still analyzing the tragedy of Indochina, mainly in political and military terms...

them. I asked him if there was any way the West could get them on the roads where we could see them. It seemed a wry joke that but not now. Did we fight with nature on our side or against it? Did we understand the geography of the problem or the human nature of the enemy? Or even the nature of our own people and society? In the end, the American people stopped the war because they felt it was violating the human principle for which they thought they were fighting. They tolerated it as long as they thought it might relieve human suffering, but rebelled when it began to destroy the people they were trying to save, and to destroy the essential unity of our own country.

the second, on which the first rested, was that individual human life was precious. This was the first principle of the religions and politics of America, which set it apart from those societies which saw the individual not as an end but as a means to the life of the state. The irony of the Vietnam war is that we started out to defend these principles against the attempt to destroy individual freedom, though most of the Vietnamese had never known what it was, but we did not take into account the cost of human lives in the process. "However hard we have tried in the 20th Century to make allowances in advance for the unpredictable consequences of war," Herbert Butterfield wrote before we were deeply involved in Vietnam...

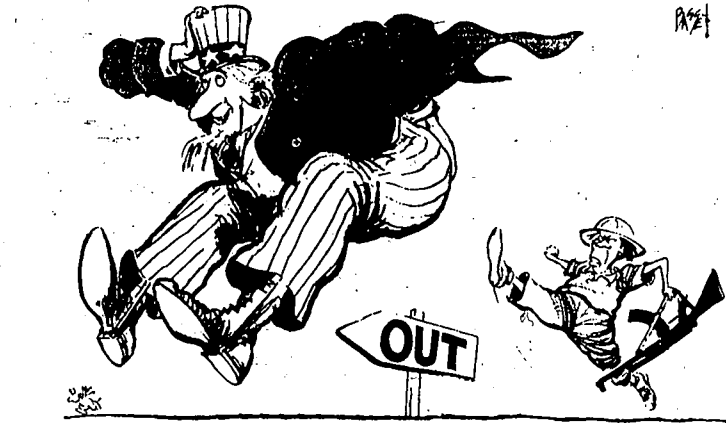

mistakes and that this rule will apply to the Communists in time just as it has applied to the Germans, the British, French, and the United States in Vietnam. The hardest strokes of history, he argues, fall upon those who imagine they can control things anywhere in the world in a sovereign manner, as if they were kings of the earth playing God with the future, and gambling on a lot of risky calculations in which there must never be a mistake. Thus the lessons of Vietnam do not stop with tactics, strategy, misjudgments or power relations between the President and the Congress. The blunders started in the mind of America, not because its original beliefs were wrong or its intentions evil or its Constitution flawed, but perhaps because it was not faithful to its principles or its Constitution. In this sense, the present mood of skepticism and disbelief in America after Vietnam is probably as wrong as the original philosophical mistakes. The world is not going to change fundamentally because of what has happened in Indochina, or because Thieu has fled to Taiwan. It has survived many worse political and military disasters before and it renews itself and adapts to the storms of life as it is doing here in the Blue Ridge.

Labor camp gun

One way to cause trouble is to ask for it. When the manager of the Twin Falls Labor Center routinely wears a pistol on his hip he is asking for trouble. The social climate in a labor center is precarious at best. The potential ethnic conflict between Anglos and Mexican-Americans is always near the surface. The usual difference in point of view between renter and landlord is greatly exaggerated when the two speak different languages and have different lifestyles. There is also the suspicion on the part of migrant laborers that they are being cordoned off from the rest of the community as if they were some kind of contamination. So when the new camp manager breaks with the practice of his predecessors and begins wearing a pistol it is bound to make existing tensions worse. According to camp manager William Taylor, he is entitled to the weapon because he has been deputized by the sheriff, even though he is not an on-duty officer paid by and under the control of the sheriff. He is right. He has the right to wear the pistol. So does every other citizen, that means migrant workers also can wear pistols if they choose. Even though they all have such a right, it is pretty foolish to do so. The days of the wild west where every man wore a gun are past. While we defend the right of the camp manager to tote his gun, we do not defend his judgment in doing so. The directors of the labor center can easily correct the situation by establishing a weapons policy suitable for a residential area.

March trade surplus

Wall Street Journal Early last November we commented in this space on the month-to-month statements emanating from the Commerce Department in reporting the nation's trade balance. Commerce officials expressed "dismay" in September in chalking up the $1.3 billion trade deficit for August and in October they were "heartened" by September's $233.3 million surplus. Our point was that this kind of analysis is at best meaningless and at worst potentially destructive. Because the trade balance is best understood as a function of U.S. economic growth relative to the rest of the world, a surplus can be "good" or "bad" depending on what is happening in the rest of the world. When the U.S. is growing faster relative to the rest of the world, it consumes more goods and exports less and thus runs a surplus. In our November commentary, we offered Commerce a surfeit prescription for building a trade surplus, find a way to throw a few million more Americans on the unemployment rolls. Of course, that's exactly what's happened, and Commerce officials are now "encouraged" because the U.S. trade surplus was a record high in March, $1.38 billion. But James L. Pate, Assistant Commerce Secretary for economic affairs, says, "Unfortunately, I think we'll have to look forward to a resumption of trade deficits in the months ahead. Unfortunately? What Mr. Pate is saying is that if the administration's forecast of an economic upturn is correct, we'll soon be running deficits again. What's so unfortunate about that? As it stands, we are heartened when Commerce officials are dismayed about the trade count, and vice versa.

We never learned much about Viets

Chicago Daily News WASHINGTON — For a few simple, sensible words spoken at Tulane University the other night, President Ford is being acclaimed for ending another long American nightmare. Indeed, if he heeds his own admonition, the regret over the disastrous policy in Vietnam will not be transformed into recrimination, and the linguist can be kept in a container of civility and renewal. The problem with the administration and its spokesmen is that, on the issue of Vietnam, they have shown a more bewildering change of pace than Vida Blue or Catfish Hunter. No one can predict what the next pitch will be. The words of the President were straight, hard and true: "Today, America can regain a sense of pride that existed before Vietnam, but it cannot be achieved by re-fighting a war that is finished as far as America is concerned." If those words mean what they say, the administration and its men now [regret the] corrosive blame-flicking that blurs the vision and depresses the spirit of a nation searching for new footing? Ford's words were received with exuberant approval by his college audience. And he went a step further toward good sense when he observed in the same speech that events in Indochina, "tragic as they are, portend neither the end of the world nor of America's leadership in the world. "Let me put it this way, if I might. Some tend to feel that if we do not succeed in everything everywhere, then we have succeeded in nothing anywhere." It should be recalled that the President has edged up to this reality before, only to fall back and say, "I'm sorry, but he has shown about his Congressional contribution to Gen. Thieu's collapsing regime. And no special genius or courage has required for him to state the obvious. Yet, there is an unconscious here about his consistency, for he has shown a tendency for making mindless appeals to the audience at hand without concern for previous comments on the same subject. The inconsistency marks his relations with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, upon whom he has heaped lavish praise as a wise statesman. Yet, on his plane returning from New Orleans, he was asked if Kissinger had any part in the preparation of the Tulane speech. Firmly and unhesitatingly, he said, "No." Whereupon students of the Ford-Kissinger relationship, always sensitive to the nuances of discord, seized upon the remark as evidence of infidelity. They danced a minuet with press secretary Ron Nessen, the next day, saying that the President and Kissinger held "totally identical" positions and enjoyed a "complete sharing" of views. Moreover, said Nessen, the secretary had "an input" into the Tulane speech. The President's mood on route from Tulane was one of exhilaration, of a man unburdened of a political misdeed, of a man, traveling with a Vong officer and he put his finger to his head and emulated a pistol shot. "Because he was corrupt?" I asked. "Oh, no," the Vietnamese said, "because he was stupid." I thought I got his point, and said, "you mean, because he allowed himself to get caught?" The Vietnamese shook his head. "No, he was stupid and should be shot because he purified his hamlets than he should have." Pacifying hamlets was the game at the time; it meant clearing them of the Viet Cong. Dumbstruck, I said, "Why, in the U.S., we would get a medal for that!" "You Americans don't understand," he said. "This man should be shot because he gave him a quota to lose face, and that was stupid and he should be shot."

PETER LISAGOR

Before I left Saigon, a colleague suggested that I lunch with a venerable Vietnamese acquaintance of his to help me crystallize my own disordered thoughts about Vietnam. Over lunch, the wise old Vietnamese insisted that the American effort was doomed to failure because we didn't understand his people. The conversation got around to a province chief named Vong, who had been arrested for allegedly embezzling U.S. funds earmarked for an airstrip in his domain. It happens that Vong was a promising young officer who had once been lauded by Defense Secretary Robert McNamara. I asked my Vietnamese guest what should be done with Vong's officer and he put his finger to his head and emulated a pistol shot. "Because he was corrupt?" I asked. "Oh, no," the Vietnamese said, "because he was stupid." I thought I got his point, and said, "you mean, because he allowed himself to get caught?" The Vietnamese shook his head. "No, he was stupid and should be shot because he purified his hamlets than he should have." Pacifying hamlets was the game at the time; it meant clearing them of the Viet Cong. Dumbstruck, I said, "Why, in the U.S., we would get a medal for that!" "You Americans don't understand," he said. "This man should be shot because he gave him a quota to lose face, and that was stupid and he should be shot."

real power (and was placed under house arrest for a time by Lon Nol). Sirk Matak was viewed by many knowledgeable Americans as the Cambodian best equipped to reform his country's hopelessly inept government and army. But in maintaining the low U.S. profile in Phnom Penh, no pressure was exerted to substitute him for Lon Nol. It was in keeping with Sirk Matak's high reputation that on April 12 he thanked Am/ambassador Dean "for your offer to transport me towards freedom" but added: "I cannot, alas, leave in such a cowardly fashion." Then, in his hand-written letter, he poured out disillusionment: "typical of Cambodians who had counted on the big white foreigners: 'As for you, and in particular for your great country, I never believed for a moment that you would have this sentiment of abandoning a people which has chosen liberty. You have refused us your protection and we can do nothing about it.'" The paragraph containing intimations of a Delphic deathbed prophecy: "You leave, and my wish is that you and your country will find happiness under this sky. But mark it well that if I shall die here on the spot and in my country that I love, it is too bad, (but) we all are born and must die (one day). I have only commiseration for this mistake of believing in you (the American)!" A footnote: By far, the least expected of the Cambodian leaders remaining in Phnom Penh was Gen. Long. Non notorious younger brother of Lon Nol and considered one of the army's political generals, Lon Non was among 21 Cambodians added to the Communists March 26 to the list of "supertraitors" to be tried as "war criminals" but not specifically condemned to death. Although he could have accompanied his brother to exile in Hawaii, Lon Non passed up that and later chances to flee.

Hints of spring in Prague

By NEA/London Economist News Service PRAGUE — (LENS) Czechoslovakia's Husak regime, keener, than ever to win respectability before Europe's communist parties meet in East Berlin this summer, has suffered a sharp loss of face. Last weekend extracts from a hard-hitting letter by the non-Husak and non-Russian friend, deposed seven years ago, Alexander Dubcek, appeared in the Observer in London and in Germany's weekly Der Spiegel. The Dubcek letter, addressed to the federal assembly in Prague last October, was smuggled out of the country recently along with a similarly critical 200-page essay, but it had been written by some of his former supporters. The proponent of the 1968 "Prague spring," Czechoslovakia's short-lived liberal experiment, is now a forestry clerk in Bratislava. He dwells in his letter on the harassment to which he has been subjected by the security police. But his main point, and that of the memorandum, is that the total political clampdown in Czechoslovakia since April, 1969, has been a failure: Czechs have been bludgeoned into passivity but not won over to the new line. Not only have the underlying problems that provoked the 1968 reforms not been solved, Dubcek claims, but the country has been turned firmly anti-Soviet. Dubcek's public musings, appearing so soon after the publication of the memoirs of his former right-hand man, the late Josef Smrkovsky, in an Italian communist magazine, are bound to embarrass the Russians. They have recently been urging Husak and his colleagues to mend diplomatic fences both with Western governments and with those communists who disappointed of the 1968 invasion. One result has been a spate of visits to Prague by Western ministers (the most recent visitor, earlier this month, was Britain's Lord Goronwy-Roberts) and to the West by Czech officials. The Czechs have also gone out of their way to appease the Yugoslav and Italian communist parties, which were among the fiercest critics of Dubcek's sacking in 1969. Reinforced Soviet pressure on Yugoslavia and the threat of a hostile Western reaction to the communists' bid for power in Portugal have revived Italian and Yugoslav sensitivity about the Czechoslovak syndrome. They have also made both these parties determined to extract a pledge of good behavior from the Russians in return for their participation in the East Berlin jamboree, by which the Russians set great store. This has given new hope to Dubcek's supporters (many of whom are active in Rome and have friends in the Italian Communist party) that Czechoslovakia might be forced onto the agenda of the conference. But even if it is, and even if the Russians give their pledge, they are rightly unlikely to permit even a partial rehabilitation of still-to-popular leaders like Dubcek. Such a move might even set spring blooming again in Prague or elsewhere. This is a risk they cannot afford to take.

Important right threatened

Editor, Times-News:
Dear Fellow Citizens:
One of the most important rights given us by the second amendment of our great Constitution is the right to keep and bear arms.
Why do you suppose our forefathers gave us this right, so we could target shoot, or hunt? No, it was to protect our homes, our towns, our nation, and our other rights.
This right to keep and bear arms is now being threatened. By many sneaky, underhanded little ways our right to own guns and ammo is being taken from us illegally. Even though we have the constitutional right to keep our arms.
Are we, the American public, going to sit by seemingly unconcerned and let this happen? Aren't we going to try and stop this illegal operation to disarm — thereby to destroy us as a free nation?

I know most people are concerned, but they don't seem to be too worried about it. Think of this, the right of disarmament comes at the loss of freedoms of speech, press, assembly, petition and religion, because when we no longer have the means to protect our rights the government is going to go ahead and take them all. Doesn't this frighten you? It does me.

This has been the pattern for complete government control over Communism, and the world over. You can't find any of these freedoms in countries where the citizens have been disarmed. Perhaps you don't think this can happen here in America, but are you going to take that chance?

The second amendment says: "A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, SHALL NOT BE INFRINGED." The definition of militia is "An army, composed of citizens rather than professional soldiers."

The National Guard does not come under the definition of militia since they are trained and controlled by government, therefore making them professional soldiers.

The definition of infringe: To encroach upon the rights of others. No explanation is needed to that.

The second amendment gives every American the right to keep and bear arms, and it denies the government any 'legal' right to disarm us on any pretext.

Now before using that old worn out cliché "but what can I do" ask yourself what you have done, then answer honestly.

How many times have you written to your senator and congressman about gun control issues? Did you write to the Consumer Safety Commission on the recent issues of handgun ammo?

Have you been involved in any group protesting gun control laws? How many times have you failed to vote for any reason? Now don't ask, "but what can I do?" Ask "How can I help?" then do it.

If you really want to, you can find a way, and the time.

Control rumor unfounded

Editor, Times-News:
There has been a nasty rumor going around in all the local bars that Coors put up $300,000 toward gun control. I did a little checking around because I didn't believe that Mr. Coors would do this. I came up with this (letter below). It may be of interest to you and those who don't know what they are talking about.

W. J. HILL
Gooding

Dear Sir:
Word has reached me through my good friends in California that an unfounded and malicious lie about me and my company was aired over the public address system at the California state trapshoot in Kingsburg, June 29, 1974.

We cannot comprehend how any individual who had been given the responsibility of making announcements to those in attendance could spread the falsehood that I have donated a large sum of money in support of national gun control legislation.

I wish to inform you most emphatically that neither myself nor my company has contributed as much as one penny to any kind of national gun control legislation.

In my personal situation, to do so would be an outrageous disregard for my own personal safety. Ever since my brother was murdered 14 years ago in an abortive kidnap attempt, I have always had a handgun close by for my own personal protection. I am well prepared to use it and to use it effectively if need be.

My personal arsenal comprises two shotguns, a hunting rifle and two handguns and I am proficient in the use of all of them.

Certainly, many people at the event in Kingsburg were left believing something that simply wasn't true. I hope this letter will set the record straight and the people responsible can somehow correct the damage that has already been done to both myself and my company.

JERUSALEM — The Soviet Union appears to have warmed up a bit toward Israel through a diplomatic campaign aimed at protecting Russian strategic interests and political goals in the Middle East.
A dramatic expression of this new attitude may be seen in the Kremlin's decision to send a three-member Soviet delegation here next week to commemorate the 30th anniversary of Nazi Germany's defeat in World War II.
The Russian trio will be headed by a highly decorated woman fighter pilot. Her partners are a deputy newspaper editor who happens to be Jewish and a representative of the Soviet Union's Council for Friendship and Cultural Ties with Foreign Lands.
An even more profound indication of the Soviet diplomatic shift was in a series of policy declarations made by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the presence of his Egyptian and Syrian counterparts.
Gromyko pledged Soviet willingness to "strictly guarantee" Israel's security and existence if the Jewish state withdrew its military forces to the lines they held at the outbreak of the Six-Day War in June, 1967.
Commenting on the Gromyko statement, Israel's Foreign Minister Yigal Allon told the French news agency, Agence France Presse, that it was "useful" Allon, who also serves as deputy premier, said he agreed with Gromyko that advance preparation was necessary to assure the success of the Geneva conference on middle east peace.
The first sign that the Kremlin is interested in re-examining its tenuous relationship with Israel was detected earlier this month when the fact that a secret round of talks held in Jerusalem between several Soviet emissaries and top Israeli officials was leaked to this country's Hebrew-language press.
Premier Yitzhak Rabin attached more importance to these contacts than observers expected when he said they were "too delicate" to risk detailed elaboration.
His and other official evasions was followed by an announcement that a high-level Russian Orthodox Church delegation was scheduled to visit the Holy Land this year.
Continuation of Israeli-Russian meetings was deemed likely through the church dignitaries, since their status was extensions of the Russian government as it valid today as it was in pre-revolutionary Czarist Russia.
Israel's foreign ministry has been verbally stinging in its reluctant and off-the-record explanations of the sudden upsurge of direct Soviet contacts.

Jerusalem's standard line is that the Kremlin is anxious to improve its diplomatic image as a party capable of dealing with both sides of the Arab-Israeli conflict as the Geneva conference reconvenes.
This would enable the Soviets to better perform their role as co-chairmen of the conclave alongside the United States.
However, there may be deeper and longer-range objectives behind this Soviet activity.
This disruption and disaffection that have characterized Israeli-American relations since the breakdown of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's effort to work out a second-stage disengagement between Israel and Egypt have given the Russians an opening through which to assert some influence on the Israelis.
At the same time, Egypt's turning to the West in general and the United States in particular in its post-October, 1973, war foreign policy may have forced the Kremlin to try for leverage that might restrain a drift away from the Soviets in the Arab world.
An unusual insight into current Soviet-American rivalry for Middle Eastern affections has come from Israel's robust reserve Gen.

Agencies threaten business

Editor, Times-News:
Government harassment and regulation of business costs American consumers billions of dollars annually. Federal ecology programs alone are costing the average family at least $1,000 per year in higher prices.

In Wyoming a railroad line to needed coal supplies has been held up for two years because of the Environmental Protection Agency's concern over the love lives of antelope.

The Federal Trade Commission is conducting a war on advertising, even moving against a commercial featuring a baseball star who stated: "I drink a lot of milk, and it's good for you, and it's good for your body."

Meanwhile the strength of the five-member Consumer Product Safety Commission is described by "Dun's Review" as being "virtually life-and-death power over practically every major company in the nation." These safetyverrats hang first and hold trial later. Dun Smoot's excellent book, "The Business End Government," gives an in-depth look at how the federal regulatory agencies threaten to destroy the American business man. He points out that the individual rights of every American are being violated by these unconstitutional agencies, but this could be stopped by citizen pressure on the Congress.

Unless stopped soon the regulatory agencies will become the unchecked government. Think about it.

Burley Eagle Randall Jarman thanks scouting supporters

Burley fete honors Eagle Scouts

BURLEY — The top Western Boy Scout leader—old 35 Southern Idaho Eagle Scout Tuesday. "You are marked men."

Alva D. Greene, president of the Western United States area of the Boy Scouts, spoke at the Eagle Scout Recognition Banquet held each year to honor Scouts who have become eagles during the past year.

Greene urged the youths to "build America on a good foundation of clean living, honesty, work, unselfish citizenship and reverence to God."

He told the eagles that their achievement means their community will single them out for leadership positions.

Because they are "marked men," he said, they will be expected to assume obligations of service in equal measure with their honor.

Greene said he could not predict what the "environment they will be living in" to 60 years from now will be but he said he was sure the Eagle Scouts would be better able to cope because of their scouting achievements.

The eagle scouts honored were:

4-H club plans tea

TWIN FALLS — "Mothers Around the World" was the theme chosen by the Healthy and Cooky Cutters 4-H Club for the Mother's Tea May 12.

The theme was selected during a meeting of the club Monday at the home of Luanne Platt, leader.

Demonstrations were given by Jackie Powell, "Characteristics of an Infant," and Susan Steel on "How to Be a Good Clean Cook and Cooking Measurements."

Miss Platt led a discussion on reading pattern instructions and pinning a pattern to material. Susan Baker, teen leader, gave a lesson on different types of sandwiches and pointers on good posture.

and Brett Weigle, Jerome. The number of new eagle scouts was much lower than in the previous year because of new stricter standards now being used for the Eagle Award.

Last year there were 168 new eagles. This year there were 35. Council officials said.

The new standards involve additional merit badges and stricter standards used by boards of review to judge a scout's qualifications for the rank.

TFHS pops concert set Thursday

TWIN FALLS — The 19th annual Twin Falls High School Symphony Band pops concert Thursday night will feature Jack Van Buren, tenor.

The concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the CSI Fine Arts Center in honor of National Music Week, which is sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. Van Buren is a teacher of German at the Twin Falls High School and has been soloist at several previous community musical productions. He will be featured in "Kismet" collection by Wright and Forrest; "The Way We Were," Bergman and Hamlish; "I Will Never Pass This Way Again," Gaylord, and "I'll Walk With God," Brodsky. The band is directed by Del

Slaughter with Ted Hadley assistant director. Hadley will narrate a selection by Robert Bowers entitled "The Three Trees."

Other band numbers will include the second movement of Beethoven's "Seventh Symphony," arranged by Rosenber; "Lennox McCartney Portrait," arranged by Holcombe; "Londonderry Air," arranged by Nestico; "A Harvest Medley," Neil Young; "Ronda Go-Round," Dedrick;

"Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band," Lennon and McCartney; "Great Songs from Today's Movies," arranged by Nowak; "Alla Borocco," Giovanni; "Music Man" collection, Wilson; "Phantom Drums of Wadi Rumm," Henderson, and "America the Beautiful," Ployhar.

Admission for the pop concert is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. All bands in the Twin Falls public schools will play May 8 in the Fine Arts Center for band night.

Hearing set in Hansen

HANSEN — A hearing will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Hansen City Hall on plans for improving and resurfacing the lower portion of the Rock Creek Canyon road south of here.

The project was announced by the Idaho Division of Highways and persons are invited to file petitions asking for a hearing. Keith Andersen, engineer of the Twin Falls Highway District, local sponsoring agency, said two petitions were filed with the state.

As a result the public hearing will be held to give both those opposing and those supporting the project an opportunity to voice opinions.

Andersen said the lower portion of the road, about 35 miles, is far below the standard of the upper road and is badly deteriorated. Plans are to widen the road from the existing 22-foot width to 28 feet paved width which requires a 60-foot-wide right-of-way or about 10 additional feet over present right-of-way lands.

Andersen said many recreationists, including summer and winter users, travel the road. He said it serves the Magic Mountain Ski Area, Diamondfield Jack snowmobile area, many church camps, summer homes, picnic and camping area and fishing waters.

If protests are in the majority and reasonable, he said, it may be necessary to revise the existing improvement plan for the roadway.

He urged participation in the public hearing.

Farm Bureau awards given

TWIN FALLS — Membership, awards for outstanding accomplishment were presented Monday night to three Twin Falls County Farm Bureau board of directors members.

Ernest Thaele, Hugo Meyer and John Ennsusa were honored for their membership work. Jay Cole, field representative, reminded other board members they are eligible to receive prizes, including a hammer for three new memberships and a hatchet for six memberships.

He said the Twin Falls County group is competing with Canyon County for honors as the largest membership in the state.

He also announced Idaho may win the membership contest now underway with the state of Pennsylvania.

Elbert Lahr, insurance agency manager for the Farm Bureau, received congratulations for receiving the "agency of the month" award for last month. He reported on a law requiring proof of liability insurance and said it is ill conceived and while more insurance will probably be sold, the new regulation is creating a hardship on insurance companies and their customers.

In other business, Don Stouse was appointed to the board of directors to represent the Hansen Farm Bureau. A report was given by Monroe Hayes, director, on the Idaho Farm Bureau board meeting held last week in Pocatello. He said at that time speakers pointed out some 213 registered government agency lobbyists appeared during the past session of the Idaho Legislature.

Steel profits high

By RICHARD HUGHES
UPI Business Writer

The nation's two largest steel companies Tuesday reported sharply higher profits despite the deepening recession in the first three months of the year. But the profits of the largest automaker hit a 25-year low.

U.S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp. said their first quarter earnings were more than or nearly double profits in the same period last year.

Detroit did not fare as well. General Motors Corp. said its first quarter earnings fell 51 percent to $39 million, or 26 cents a share, the lowest since losing $36 million in a 1946 strike. In the first three months of 1974, GM earned $129 million or 41 cents a share.

U.S. Steel's first quarter profits were $182.1 million, or $3.36 per share, compared to $89.5 million, or $1.63 per share, during the same period last year. Bethlehem's profits rose to $80.3 million, or $1.84 a share, compared to $43.1 billion, or 99 cents a share.

Despite the bleak first quarter, GM executives joined officers of the two steel companies in expressing optimism about an end to the recession.

Henry appeals to N. Viets on 'takeover'

O.N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger appealed to North Vietnam Tuesday not to storm Saigon by force because the United States believed the New-South Vietnamese government was prepared to capitulate.

At a lengthy news conference, Kissinger said a bloody takeover by the Communists was now "unnecessary" since the Saigon government of Gen. Duong Van Minh was "ready to draw the conclusions from the existing situation and in fact was formed to correspond to the demands of the Communist side."

Somber and grim throughout the session at the Executive Office Building next door to the White House, Kissinger conveyed the disappointment of the Ford Administration with the Communist decision Tuesday to step up military activity and make it impossible to carry out the evacuation on a normal basis any further.

He was pressed for details on the extensive American effort in recent weeks to bring about a negotiated ceasefire and settlement — an effort that had only limited results at best.

Kissinger said the effort was not a "failure" because the evacuation of more than a week was carried out "through intermediaries" that had contacts with both Hanoi and the Vietnamese.

Strongly suggesting that there was at "least an understanding with the Communists to let the evacuation proceed without opposition,

Kissinger said that through their pursues "we were in a position to put our views and recommendations."

The dynamics of the situation, he said, and the "importance" of North Vietnam to "peace power" — accumulated events in the last day and a half.

He also noted that as the military situation improved for them, the Communists escalated their demands, at first asking only for the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu, and then the ouster of his successors, and the dismantling of the South Vietnam military and government administration.

"There is no question that the outcome in Ditchheim will have consequences not only in Asia but in many other parts of the world," the secretary said.

"To deny these consequences is to miss the possibility of dealing with them."

"We are determined to manage and to progress along the road toward a permanent peace we have sought, even though there is no question there will be consequences," he said.

Kissinger said he was opposed to any aid to North Vietnam. He said that the United States would have to wait and see what happens in South Vietnam "and whether there is going to be a South Vietnam" before deciding on aid or diplomatic ties.

Weakening power hastened Viet fall

Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger has suggested that a Watergate-weakened President Nixon hastened the fall of South Vietnam by failing to order bombing strikes against Hanoi in the spring of 1973.

Kissinger said a "weakening of executive authority" after the Paris peace agreement in January, 1973, undercut a policy of aiding the Saigon regime when Communist forces renewed combat.

And "he did nothing to discourage widespread reports that Nixon was urged by his top advisers in April, 1973, to resume bombing raids to counter North Vietnamese violation of the peace treaty.

recommended a resumption of aerial attacks against the north. Kissinger sidestepped the question of his Tuesday briefing for reporters.

"To the best of my knowledge, President Nixon never decided on any particular action," he said. "The Washington special action group at that period was considering a number of reactions that could be taken to be the beginning of flagrant violations of the agreement.

"As it turned out, President Nixon never reached a final decision on these options ... to what extent that was influenced by Watergate is a psychological assessment that one can only speculate about," Kissinger said.

Probe ordered

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin dispatched a top aide to South Africa today to investigate the case of David Protter, a Jewish guard who took over the Israeli embassy in Johannesburg at gunpoint.

Protter's seizure of the embassy Monday set off a gun battle with police that ended with four persons dead and 32 others wounded.

Rabin ordered his aide, Beve Maj Gen. Rachamim Ze'evi, to determine how Protter, who reportedly was discharged from the Israeli army because of mental instability, was hired as a security officer at the Johannesburg embassy.

US military intervention is result of decisions spanning quarter century

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. direct military intervention in the Indochina war was the result of a tangled skein of decisions made by five presidents, maybe six, over a quarter of a century.

The memoirs of these chief executives, and the documents disclosed in the Pentagon Papers, suggest that from Harry S. Truman to Richard M. Nixon the U.S. government fell — America's interests in Asia, and ultimately American security, were at stake if Communist forces were allowed unchallenged to take over in Indochina.

—Once the United States committed itself to bolster and assist the Republic of South Vietnam, it was vital to Washington to honor the undertaking. Escalation of commitment was conceivable; withdrawal was not.

The only president not to hold these views was Franklin D. Roosevelt. In 1944, he agreed to let the British admiral Louis Mountbatten command Allied troops in Southeast Asia against the Japanese. China expert John Paton Davies said the British, interested in regaining their empire, helped the French regain colonial control in Indochina.

Despite Roosevelt's few arms deliveries to the wispy, chain-smoking revolutionary Ho Chi Minh, the president's inaction in the area contributed to the fighting, Davies said.

Dwight D. Eisenhower, writing in his memoir, "Waging Peace," was more concerned with Laos than with South Vietnam.

"Despite its remoteness, we were determined to preserve the independence of Laos against a takeover backed by its neighbors to the North — Communist China and North Vietnam," he said.

"For the fall of Laos to communism could mean the subsequent fall — like a tumbling row of dominoes of its still-free neighbors — Cambodia, South Vietnam, and in all probability Thailand and Burma."

Eisenhower's views were partly shaped by the invasion of South Korea, the perception of the 1950s that communism was a monolith controlled from Moscow, and the fervent anti-communism of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Truman had an anti-Communist legacy as well.

The Truman Doctrine supported Greece and Turkey against Communists. The Marshall Plan contributed significantly to the rebuilding of a war-torn Western Europe. It was part of a policy of containment of Russian expansionsism.

Both Truman and Eisenhower gave aid to the French in their battle against Ho's Viet Minh.

The 1954 Geneva Conference was convened to extricate the French from their Vietnam involvement following the defeat at Dienbienphu.

But the United States refused to sign the final accords, which said there was one Vietnam controlled by two governments — the Republic of Vietnam and the Democratic Republic of Vietnam — to be eventually united through election.

Subsequently, the United States supported South Vietnam and its undermining of the 1956 elections.

John F. Kennedy entered the presidency with a rallying cry which present historians call Cold War rhetoric:

"Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival and success of liberty."

When the youthful president found himself bullied by Soviet leader Nikita S. Khrushchev at their first encounter in Vienna in June 1961, humiliated by the ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion, and uncertain about the Geneva Accords on Laos in 1962, he appeared to feel it important to make a stand in Vietnam.

Asked about the domino theory, Kennedy once said "I believe it, I believe it." It was his fateful decision to dispatch the first substantial contingent of U.S. advisors to South Vietnam.

Some have argued that had Kennedy not been assassinated he would have withdrawn the advisers.

Lyndon B. Johnson, on being sworn in, pledged himself to uphold the American commitment, to nail the Vietnamese conskin to the barn door.

In his "The Vantage Point," Johnson wrote about his stand:

"The American people knew what they were voting for in 1964. They knew Lyndon Johnson was not going to pull up stakes and run. They knew I was not going to go back on my country's word. They knew I would not repudiate the pledges of my predecessors in the presidency."

Though at first skeptical of the military's recommendations, Johnson moved steadily to escalate.

He felt the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, by which Congress authorized him to take all necessary measures to repel aggression, was "the functional equivalent" of a declaration of war. He sent more than half a million Americans to South Vietnam.

Nixon was elected in 1968 with the promise to end U.S. involvement in Vietnam. But he discovered that conflicts are easier to start than get out of.

In the end, he settled on a policy of startling military attack — typified by the 1972 Christmas bombing of Hanoi — with energetic and imaginative negotiations.

The Paris Peace Accords of January 1973 resulted in the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam, the return by North Vietnam of U.S. prisoners of war, and the continued presence of North Vietnamese troops in South Vietnam.

Congress finally prohibited by law the reintroduction of U.S. troops into the hostilities. It was recently revealed that Gerald R. Ford, then House GOP leader, wrote the language that stopped all bombing in Indochina.

Diem headed list of Saigon leaders

By United Press International

When Ngo Dinh Diem became the first head of government in the southern half of a newly divided Vietnam in 1954, few outside the country paid much heed to the intrigue of Southeast Asian politics.

Twenty-one years later, even the most learned scholar of South Vietnamese politics needed a scorecard to keep track of the leaders and would-be leaders who have moved through what has been a virtual revolving door at Saigon's creamy-white Independence Palace.

Finding a non-Communist successor to a century of French colonial rule that did little to disturb the Chinese-style emperors and warlords — interrupted briefly by four years of Japanese occupation in World War II — proved as difficult as Americans finding the light at the end of the tunnel.

From the time Diem was overthrown and assassinated in a military coup Nov. 1-2, 1963, until now, more than a dozen different regimes, some three-time repeaters, ruled South Vietnam in one form or another.

The keynote was martial, but even the military had little success in finding slayers for the course. None ever showed the charisma that successive American administrators sought to counter the popularity of the North's "Uncle" Ho Chi Minh.

Then, the one person who lasted longer than any other as a power — almost 11 years either directing from near center stage or directly in the spotlight — left himself.

Nguyen Van Thieu finally lost the military and outside political support which had sustained him and resigned his office.

He was succeeded by his vice president, Tran Van Huong, who remained in office only a week before handing over power to Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh in a last ditch — but fruitless — attempt to open peace talks with the Communists.

It was Minh who finally announced the surrender of South Vietnam.

Witness assaulted

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Russell Little, one of two reputed Symbionese Liberation Army members on trial for murder, Tuesday attacked a prosecution witness and former friend who had turned against the terrorist group.

Little, cross-examining Christopher Thompson, who was marked for death by the SLA after he testified before a grand jury, leaped into the witness box swinging his fists and striking Thompson in the face.

Little, 25, and Joseph Remiro, 28, are charged with the November 1973 cyanide-bullet murder of Oakland Schools Superintendent Marcus Foster and the attempted murder of Deputy Superintendent Robert W. Blackburn.

DEAR ABBY: About "Bob's Mom" who was in the middle because her son excused his long hair by saying, "Jesus had long hair and a beard."
 It made me think of my sister's boy. He said the same thing when his folks objected to his long hair and beard. My sister replied, "So you want to be like Jesus? Okay, Jesus didn't have a car — he had to walk everywhere. So just hand over the car keys!"
 That same evening the kid walked to the barber shop, and got a shave and a haircut.

MARTHA IN INDIANA, PA.

DEAR MARTHA: That Jesus story doesn't hold up because nowhere in the Bible does it state that Jesus had long hair. In fact, there are Biblical injunctions against long hair in the New Testament (1 Corinthians, Chapter 11, Verse 14).

Don't blame Jesus

DEAR ABBY: I have something to say to "Staying Single" — the girl who doesn't want to get married because her married sisters get nothing but insults from their husbands.
 I say things to my wife of 31 years that might sound like "insults" to others, but I don't mean them as such. For instance, I've always called her "my old lady," and if I'm among people who know her, I say with a straight face, "You know, she is 10 years older than me." (I look 20 years older than my wife, but we are the same age.)
 It is like the oriental potentate who welcomes a guest into his luxurious castle with, "Welcome to my humble home."
 The practice of deprecating one's wife came from an ancient superstition: If the "devil" heard a man bragging about his wife, he came and took her away.
 ED IN LA MIRADA

DEAR ED: A man who sees this approach had better make sure his wife is aware of this superstition, or by the time "the devil" comes to take her away, she'll be gone.

DEAR ABBY: I am fuming! Upon returning home from a weekend vacation, I found that my 15-year-old daughter had had her ears pierced. The parental permission form had not been filled out, but "Grandma" gave her permission over the phone.
 My daughter knows that I detest pierced ears on young girls because we have discussed it many times and I would not let her do it.
 I am just sick about it. Grandma and my daughter gave me the giant double cross.
 What is your opinion?

J.M.

DEAR J.M.: Same as yours, but don't dwell on it. What's done is done. Your daughter will grow up. But what's Grandma's excuse?
 DEAR ABBY: As a divorced woman I often was asked, "How's your sex life?" To which I politely replied, "Private!"
 It never failed.

M.G.

ABOUT SMOOTHING LEGS

By Mary Sue Miller

Along about now a lovely's fancy is caught by swimsuits and sunsuits. Little nothings. Obviously, stepped-up leg grooming is in order. It begins, of course, with depilator. Constant watchfulness is called for. No method offers permanent results except electrolysis. And that's quite an undertaking on such extensive territory as the legs.

For home use, new removal processes revolve around waxing. Kits are now available with a supply of wax and an electric warmer. Lined with metal foil, the warmer may be plugged into any convenient outlet. The method provides for safer and easier application. Fuzz pops off in a trace.

Perhaps shaving is your preference. Designed for feminine, use electric and cordless shavers have a pleasant and effective action. Applications of pre-shave lotion precede electric shaving. A safety razor can be recommended as long as the blade goes unrustied and the skin is prepared with a soapy lather or shaving cream.

Chemical depilatories—cream, fluid or spray—make a clean sweep but take a bit more time than shaving. First use requires a patch test. After depilation, the vital step in leg grooming is lotioning. The legs should never be without a film of sun lotion or body lotion. Fuzz-free and lotion-full are the bywords of a bare leg.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Everything you need to know about deodorants, anti-perpirants and depilatories is contained in my booklet, STRICTLY PERSONAL. All doubts are cleared up about why, what, when and how to use these safeguards of femininity. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin.

CROWLEY PHARMACY

ON-THE-MALL, DOWNTOWN—TWIN FALLS

Special program Friday

TWIN FALLS — The Performing Arts Company will present "What is a Teenager?" at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Vera C. O'Leary auditorium.

The company is made up of 23 junior high and high school students and is made possible by grants from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Idaho Arts and Humanities Commission.

John Gled and Ronny Flacey will be featured in special acts within the show. According to Mrs. Eugene Sturgill, company director, the show is "jammed with jokes and skits about the problems of being a teenager. There is a lot of hilarity and at the end, reflections on getting along with parents and the future."

Mrs. Sturgill said the show has been designed to four junior high schools in the area. She said it will be the last touring program for the year.

Tickets for Friday's show are available at the door or by contacting Mrs. Sturgill.

Mrs. Sturgill said members of the company have given over 80 performances during the past two years, recently completing 23 performances of "Tall Tales" for elementary schools in the area.

40th year observed

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Ben Mal, Filer, were honored with an open house April 27 in observance of the 40th wedding anniversary at the Filer Nazarene Church Fireside Room.

The event was hosted by the couple's children and their families. Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Mal and family and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Mal, and daughter all Pocatello, and Mr. and Mrs. Gary Mal and family, Rupert.

The couple has seven grandchildren.

They were married April 28, 1935, in Kimberly. Mal farmed in Kimberly for two years then in the Hansen area for 11 years. They moved to Filer area in 1947 and have farmed there since that time.

GF party honors newlyweds

GLENN'S FERRY — Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lisle, newlyweds, were honored at a reception at Greer Hall Sunday afternoon.

The bride's table was covered with a white linen cloth, centered with a three-tiered cake. The cake was decorated with yellow roses and greenery and topped with two white wedding bells. Lily of the valley and net graced the bottom of the cake.

Mother of the bride, Mrs. William Pruett, made and decorated the cake, which was cut and served by Mrs. Lee Trull, grandmother of the bride, from King Hill.

Mrs. O. D. Decker, aunt of the bride, was seated at the punch bowl. Mrs. Joseph Black, Hammett, presided at the silver coffee service.

Mrs. Max Clark, Brownlee Dam, arranged the gifts, assisted by Mrs. Richard Brooks, King Hill, both aunts of the bride. Mrs. Walter Trull, King Hill, aunt of the bride, was in charge of the "guest book."

The rooms were decorated with forsythia and jonquills.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pruett of Glens Ferry, the bridegroom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lisle of King Hill.

Guests attended from Boise, Twin Falls, Mountain Home, Brownlee Dam, Hammett and King Hill.

The young couple is living in Glens Ferry where the groom is employed at the Magle-West Company. The new Mrs. Lisle is a senior at Glens Ferry

START CRABBING!

The Greeks have a word for it—dipnet! Available frozen or canned, king crab is cooked and ready to use. Fancy frozen crabmeat comes in 8 oz., 1 lb., twin-pack (2 8-oz. packages), and 1 lb. sizes; 4's canned in 8-1/2, 7-1/2, and 16 oz. sizes. Ready-split crab legs in the shell; 12 oz., and whole legs, 2 lbs., are frozen. The mild crab flavor lends itself to endless culinary combinations.

|-----------------------------------|-------------------------------|
| 1/2 cup frozen or canned crabmeat | 1/4 teaspoon salt |
| 1/4 cup sliced green onion | 2 tablespoons chopped parsley |
| 1/4 cup sherry | 1 teaspoon cornstarch |
| 1 cup long grain rice | 1 cup clam juice, optional |
- Drain thawed or canned crabmeat; remove any remaining cartilage. Cook celery and garlic in butter or margarine until celery is tender, about 10 minutes; orange and salt simmer uncovered about 15 minutes. Add crabmeat, green onions and parsley. Combine sherry and cornstarch; stir into tomato mixture. Cook stirring carefully until sauce is thick. Add crabmeat; heat thoroughly. While crab mixture is being prepared, cook rice as directed on package substituting clam juice for 1/2 cup of the water, if desired. Serve crabmeat mixture over rice. Makes 4 servings.

Combo is a thick seafood soup or stew from the South and snow crab makes it special. This crab, from the Pacific Northwest, is available mainly in convenient 8 oz. frozen packages and 6-1/2 and 7 oz. cans, all ready to use and enjoy. Also look for snow claws in the cocktail pack!

|---|---|
| 1 package (6 or 7 ounce) frozen or 1 can (6 or 7 ounce) crabmeat* | Dash cayenne |
| 1 cup chopped onion | 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes |
| 1/2 cup chopped celery | 2 bottles (8 ounce each) clam juice |
| 1/2 cup chopped green pepper | 1 cup water |
| 1 clove garlic, minced | 1 bay leaf |
| 1/4 cup butter or margarine | 1/4 teaspoon leaf thyme |
| 1/4 cup flour | 1/2 package (10 ounce) frozen okra, sliced (1 cup sliced) |
| 1 teaspoon salt | 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce |
| 1/4 teaspoon black pepper | 1/2 teaspoon file powder |
| | 6 servings hot cooked seasoned rice |

Thaw frozen crabmeat. If used, Drain thawed frozen or canned crabmeat; remove any remaining cartilage and cut into chunks. Cook onion, celery, green pepper and garlic in butter or margarine until onion is tender, but not brown. Stir in flour, salt, pepper and cayenne. Add minced tomatoes, clam juice, water, bay leaf and thyme; stir and bring to a boil. Cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add okra; cover and simmer 15 minutes or until okra is tender. Add crabmeat, Worcestershire sauce and file powder; stir carefully. Simmer about 5 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Remove bay leaf. To save spoon over hot cooked rice. Makes about 5-1/2 cups gumbo, 6 servings. *If desired, amount of crabmeat used may be doubled.

Blue crabs, famous everywhere, are sold fresh in 8 and 16 oz. cans. Cans of 10, 12, and 16 oz. are pasteurized and sealed with a refrigerator life of up to 8 months. Blue crabs are available canned in 6-1/2 oz. cans. Blue crab cocktail claws are ready to enjoy in 10 and 12 oz. cans. Frozen specialty packs and canned crab soups are available at most markets.

|---|-----------------------------------|
| 1/2 pound pasteurized, canned or cooked fresh lump crabmeat | 1/4 cup thinly sliced green onion |
| 1/2 cup finely chopped celery | 1 teaspoon lemon juice |
| 2 tablespoons butter or margarine | 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce |
| 2 tablespoons flour | 3 or 4 drops hot pepper sauce |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt | 1 egg, beaten |
| 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard | 1/2 cup fine corn flake crumbs |
| 1/2 cup milk | 2 tablespoons cooking oil |

Drain crabmeat; remove any remaining cartilage. Cook celery in butter or margarine until tender, but not brown. Stir in flour, salt and dry-mustard. Add milk; cook stirring constantly until sauce is very thick. Stir in crabmeat, green onion, lemon juice, Worcestershire and pepper sauce and egg mix well. Spoon into mounds of equal size on baking sheet; chill until mixture can be coated with crumbs and shaped into patties (minors will be soft). Heat oil in 10 or 12-inch frypan over moderate heat. Arrange cakes in frypan, brown on first side about 3 minutes. Turn carefully and brown on second side, about 3 minutes. Makes 8 cakes, 4 servings.

Delicious Dungeness crabs are sold whole, brine-frozen. Fresh-picked Dungeness crabmeat is available on the West Coast. Inventive cooks will find this easy-to-handle delicacy readily available in frozen food sections and seafood markets. This gourmet treat from the Pacific goes happily into many recipes, among them this superb seafood salad.

DUNGENESS CRAB AND ORANGE SALAD

- | | |
|--|--|
| 6 to 8 ounces fresh cooked,* thawed frozen or canned Dungeness or other crabmeat | 1/4 teaspoon salt |
| 1-1/2 cups chilled cooked rice | 1 can (11 ounce) mandarin orange segments, drained |
| 3/4 cup mayonnaise | 1 cup sliced celery |
| 1/4 cup sliced green onion | 1/4 cup chopped toasted almonds |
| 1 tablespoon lemon juice | Crisp salad greens |
| 1 tablespoon honey | Avocado wedges |
| 1/4 teaspoon ginger, optional | |

Remove any remaining cartilage from crabmeat. Combine rice, mayonnaise, green onion, lemon juice, honey, ginger and salt; mix well. Cover; chill 1 hour. Fold in orange segments, celery and almonds. Carefully fold in crabmeat. Cover and chill until ready to serve. Serve on crisp salad greens garnished with avocado wedges. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

*IF A COOKED WHOLE DUNGENESS CRAB IS USED One medium-sized (about 2 pounds) whole Dungeness crab cooked-in-shell will yield about 1/2 pound crabmeat. To prepare, scrub and rinse body, claws and legs well. Twist off claws and legs where they join the body. Crack each claw and leg and remove crabmeat. Pull off top shell (only with knife, if necessary). Remove gills and spongy parts; save creamy crab butter. Tap back of knife with mallet to cut body cavity in half, then each half in several chunks. Rinse away any loose shell pieces. Remove crabmeat.

Confucius would have approved of the New England and Middle Atlantic red crab combined with pea pods for a Chinese specialty. Red crabs, a diner's delight, are available mainly in 8 oz. containers of frozen picked meat. This crabmeat is especially suited to crab cakes and stuffing, in addition to this quick-fix entree.

RED CRAB AND PEA PODS ORIENTAL

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1 package (6 or 7 ounce) frozen red crabmeat | 1 chicken bouillon cube, crumbled or mashed |
| 1-1/2 cups water | 2 tablespoons cooking oil |
| 2 tablespoons dry sherry | 1 package (6 ounce) frozen Chinese pea pods, thawed |
| 2 tablespoons cornstarch | 1 can (1 pound) bean sprouts, well drained |
| 1 tablespoon soy sauce | 1 can (8 ounce) water chestnuts, drained and sliced |
| 1 teaspoon sugar | 1/2 cup green peppers, cut in 1-inch lengths |
| 1 teaspoon garlic salt | 4 servings hot cooked seasoned rice |
| 1/4 teaspoon ginger | |

Thaw frozen crabmeat. If used, Drain thawed frozen or canned crabmeat. Remove any remaining cartilage and cut into chunks. Combine water, sherry, cornstarch, soy sauce, sugar, garlic salt, ginger and bouillon cube; mix well. Heat oil in 10-inch frypan or Chinese wok over high heat. Add crabmeat and stir for 2 minutes. Add bean sprouts, water chestnuts and green peppers. Add remaining mixture; cook and stir until mixture is thickened and crabmeat is heated. Serve over hot rice. Makes 4 servings.

Off the sparkling Florida coast where stone crabs are found, men of the sea-break off only one claw at a time, according to law. The claw grows back in a short time. Stone crab claws are sold fresh or frozen, perfect for a differently delicious repast such as the two listed below.

STONE CRAB CLAWS WITH TWO FAVORITE SAUCES

Stone crab claws are sold cooked and may be served hot or cold. If hot ones are desired drop claws into rapidly boiling water for 7 to 10 minutes or until hot. Crack claws with hammer or stones before serving. It could serve with Mustard Sauce, if hot serve with melted Garlic Butter or Mustard Sauce.

|-----------------------------|--------------------------------|
| CREAMY MUSTARD SAUCE | 2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar |
| 1/2 cup dairy sour cream | 2 tablespoons chopped chives |
| 1/2 cup mayonnaise | 1 teaspoon sugar |
| 1/4 cup prepared mustard | |
- Combine ingredients; mix well. Serve with cooked stone crab claws. Makes 1-1/3 cups sauce, 6 to 8 servings.

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|--|
| CREAMY GARLIC BUTTER | 1 or 2 small cloves garlic, minced |
| 3/4 cup softened butter or margarine | Freshly ground black pepper, as desired. |
- Combine ingredients; heat well. Serve cold or heat in pan or bowl over very low heat or warm water just until melted. Makes 3/4 cup.

Notes:
The crabs on this sheet were taken from a full-color, 30" x 48" chart entitled "Mollusks and Crustaceans of the Coastal United States." The chart is printed on heavy, washable, plasticized paper and is available by sending $7.20 to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402. It is a handsome, educational addition to recreation rooms, clubs, children's rooms and libraries. Materials were developed at the National Fishery Education Center, 100 E. Ohio Street, Room 638, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Study shows several reasons for increased divorce rate

A man divorced seven times says, "It's painless to get married and painless to get a divorce."
Zsa Zsa Gabor says, "You divorce starts the minute you get married."
In England you can get a divorce by mail if you have no children under 16 and have been separated from your spouse for two years.
In the United States, more people are getting divorced than ever before—970,000 in 1974, more than twice as many divorces per 1,000 people as in 1962.
The Episcopal Church now permits remarriage after divorce without the customary year's wait.
The Roman Catholic National Federation of Priests' Councils in March voted to oppose church law forbidding communion to divorced and remarried Catholics.
Progress is one cause of the rising divorce rate. When people marry younger, live longer, have fewer children and, when more women work outside the home, more get divorces, according to one German study.
Economic hard times were considered a cause of marital problems until the late 1950s and 1960s, according to Greta Miao, of Lemoine College, Syracuse, N.Y.

But the correlation disappeared for U.S. whites in 1957, the same year the national birth rate began to decline.
Other reasons seemed to take over. "More people were unhappy, and more unhappy couples were getting divorces," the Lemoine study said.
"The desire for an expressive relationship began to win out over the situational desirability of family life."
Between 1960 and 1969, the U.S. divorce rate among women rose the most among those over 30 years old and especially among those between 35 and 39 years old.
The problem here is "middleclass," the word used by the Rev. Dr. Robert Lee to describe identity crisis over "lost youth."
Not that Lee, professor of social ethics at San Francisco Theological Seminary, is ready to call divorce bad in every case.

Many middle-agers, he says, are living as:
--"Cell mates" imprisoned in the same house
--"Check mates," hickering all the time
--"Room mates" in a relationship of pure convenience.
-- Or "stalemates" who have fought each other to a draw.
"What is long out," says Lee, "are unhappy, unfulfilled relationships." And he sees no reason to keep them going.
Neither does he think "sexual bliss" is a "pill for the woes of life."
"Today's married Americans are having more and better intercourse than ever before. If sexual satisfaction abounds," he asked, "why are people so unhappy?"
One reason might be the times they live in, says the Rev. Eugene Kennedy, a Loyola University psychologist.
"We've been Vietnamized" in the last 10 year

"a brutal decade," says Kennedy, author of "The Joy of Being Human."
Sociologists say people are "redefining" their roles, but Lee doesn't even think they have done that much.
"Roles are in flux. We are between times, looking for patterns. So the wife's instability," Lee said.
"People are dying for 'successful intimacy,'" Father Kennedy says, and Americans "are on the verge of rediscovering the importance of marriage and the family."
At the same time, people are wrong if they seek out marriage as a solution for personal problems, he says.
"Marriage doesn't solve problems. It presents them. 'You don't marry your way into life, no more than you pray your way in.'" Father Kennedy says.
John Garvey, an editor with Templegate Publishing Co., writing in the Critic magazine, defends the old-fashioned virtue of marital fidelity.
Fidelity, like "parenthood and love under every circumstance, demands discipline and forgiveness" of the people who practice it, says Garvey.

"Many middle-agers are living as 'cell-mates' in the same house."

Between 1960 and 1969, the U.S. divorce rate among women rose the most among those over 30 years old and especially among those between 35 and 39 years old.

Today's married Americans are having more and better intercourse than ever before. If sexual satisfaction abounds, why are people so unhappy?

overlooked one slight extra chance.
After East had discarded on the second club, Joe should have led his nine of trumps to dummy's jack. West would have played his singleton 10 and Joe would have had an extra entry to dummy which would have been all he needed.
Just watch the play. A third club ruffed high. The six trumps led and overtaken by dummy's seven. A fourth club ruffed high. A spade dummy's ace. A fifth club ruffed. The queen of spades led and ruffed by dummy's deuce of trumps. The sixth club would now be good and furnish a parking place for one low heart.
The bidding has been: 30

By Oswald & James Jacoby
Hard Luck Joe won the club lead and led the suit right back. When East discarded a spade Joe remarked, "Nothing breaks for me." Then he cashed his ace and king of trumps and led his seven of hearts to dummy's queen. East won with the king and led the suit back. Joe could do nothing better than finesse his 10, lose the second heart trick and score 100 points for his opponents.
Joe had been unlucky. If both opponents had followed to the second club he would have set up enough clubs in dummy for heart discards and made seven. Also if West had held the king of hearts or East the jack, Joe would have lost just one heart trick. But poor Joe had

How Vietnam fall affects Asian nations

GM earnings drop sharply

By United Press International

THAILAND — In the most vulnerable military position because of its 1,000-mile border with Indochina, Thailand has roughly 8,000 Communist-supported insurgents who have stepped up activities in a spontaneous surge as a result of the victories in Cambodia and South Vietnam. North Vietnamese supplies of arms and training to these guerrillas will continue and likely increase.

Politically, the country has just elected its first democratic government since 1948 and its new leaders are troubled by inexperience and a shaky coalition in Parliament.

Future of four American air bases in the country are uncertain.

BURMA — Already fighting an estimated 25,000 insurgents of various types, some of them Communists supplied by China, Burma will continue a struggle to wrest sections of its north and northeast from their dominion. Civil unrest caused by economic problems could bring government changes that might soften present anti-foreign policies and possibly push the Burmese closer to the West. Indochina events expected to have little direct effect.

PHILIPPINES — Separated from mainland Southeast Asia by the South China Sea, the Philippines is safe from any overt military threat as a result of Indochina. With the huge Clark Air Base and the naval complex at Subic Bay it could be the America's first line of defense in the Pacific — if the Philippine government decides that advantages of continued U.S. presence outweigh disadvantages and if the United States government wants to remain.

The Philippine government is also preoccupied with its war with Moslem secessionists in the south who draw most of their support from Middle-Eastern countries.

MALAYSIA — Malaysian leaders have reacted by pronouncing that, hopefully, the domino theory is dead and predicting that Indochina events would have no serious effect on their internal situation.

Militarily, a small splinter group of Malaysian Chinese terrorists operating along the Thai-

Malaysia border continues to harass regular government troops and police with small ambushes and booby traps that have killed 170 men and seriously wounded 25 others in the last month.

SINGAPORE — Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew said the domino theory is dead and publicly professes to believe that Singapore and its Association of South East Asian Nations partners are all stable and have developed to the point where guerrillas have no chance of growth or success.

Privately, Lee is believed to be concerned about the threat Thailand faces from insurgents with short supply lines and increased weaponry. Domestically, Lee faces an cohesive opposition.

INDONESIA — Southeast Asia's strongest nation in terms of population, resources and wealth, Indonesia is far removed in distance from Indochina. But as an island archipelago stretching some 3,000 miles, parts of it could be subject to infiltration and influence from mainland Southeast Asia.

DETROIT — General Motors Corporation reported Tuesday first-quarter net income of $59 million, or 20 cents a share, a decline of 51 per cent from the depressed first quarter of 1974 when the company earned $120 million, or 41 cents a share.

The earnings for the 1975 first quarter were the lowest for the nation's largest auto producer since World War II except for the first quarter of 1964, when G.M. had a loss of $29 million because of a strike by the United Automobile Workers Union.

N-raid plans eyed

WASHINGTON — Shortly after the South Vietnamese army went into its final, head-long retreat early this month, the Ford administration ordered all federal agencies to re-examine their procedures for coping with a nuclear attack.

Reliable government sources, in disclosing the order Tuesday, said it made no mention of Vietnam but contained a warning about the Soviet Union's growing nuclear capability.

The sources said the order raised the apprehension that the Soviets might seek to rattle their rockets for political advantage during a crisis and that improved U.S. civil defense was needed as a deterrent.

Some officials concluded that the order reflected high-level concern that the Soviets might threaten nuclear attack to prevent the United States from taking military action to save the Saigon government.

The sources said the order was not classified but was designated for official use only, thus preventing public disclosure.

The order reportedly contained much of the same language used in the major civil defense reorganization of 1961. At that time, a nationwide program of alerts, evacuation and fallout shelters was set up to enhance the credibility of the U.S. pledge to put nuclear weapons behind the defense of Western Europe.

Nutrition flagging

CHICAGO — Food stamps have failed to improve the nutrition of the poor because the increased purchasing power is used to buy more expensive but less nutritious foods, a study concluded today.

Surveying Department of Agriculture statistics on the nutritional level of participants in the program, University of Virginia economist Kenneth W. Clark said the food stamps have a negative effect on the diet because sweets and fatty foods are often bought instead of cheese, meat and eggs.

The study was published by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, a Washington-based organization that reviews activities of the federal government.

Prof. Yale Brozner, University of Chicago economist and director of the study program, said the findings "are not surprising."

"There is nothing inherent in the food stamp program that requires, or even encourages, the purchase of nutritious foods," he said.

Oil control end looming

WASHINGTON — Republican sources in Congress said Tuesday night that they expected President Ford to take executive action soon to begin a gradual elimination of the remaining price controls on domestic crude oil.

These controls apply to about 60 per cent of domestic production. A period of three years for removing them appeared to be the most likely timing.

Ford conferred at the White House Tuesday afternoon with his chief energy spokesman, Frank G. Zarb, federal energy administrator. An announcement is expected Thursday.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The stock market, operating for the last day under a fixed rate system, opened lower Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, a 6.96-point loser Tuesday, was off 0.94 to 80.12 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 206 to 123, among the 501 issues crossing the tape.

The session was to be the last under which commission rates would be fixed, a practice in existence for 183 years. A negotiated rate system, mandated by the Securities and Exchange Commission, begins Thursday.

There were reports some large investors have been staying out of the market this week in hopes of getting a better deal under the new system. The approach of "Mayday" has made many Wall Streeters uncertain.

TWIN FALLS - Potato futures advanced sharply Tuesday.

The closing quote for Idaho on the May delivery was 7.15 per hundredweight, a gain of 15 cents.

Commodity News Service said the Maine market moved from 3 to 3.30 cents on 3,834 trades, with a large amount of contract highs were posted in November, April and May.

Cash markets were about steady, with Maine firming slightly at 2.00-2.25 per cwt.

Live cattle futures, continuing their steady climb over the past month, closed higher once again, with cash hitting a top of 7.50 at Sioux City. The gains were the result of the shortage of fattened deliverable steers which has created a near vacuum in the cash market, closed higher.

Live hog futures closed mixed after directionless trading most of the day, with cash markets falling to provide guidance.

At the close, markets were off the lows. June, August, and December posted gains of 20, 10, and 7 cents.

Beet, cane prices cut

NEW YORK (UPI) - The prices of both beet and cane sugar were cut again Tuesday.

Amstar Corp., maker of Domino sugar, cut grocery white granulated sugar $2.65 a hundredweight to approximately 34.6 cents a pound. The cut is effective in the northeastern states.

In Salt Lake City, Utah-Idaho Sugar Co. cut the price of beet sugar 4 cents a pound to 27.35 cents.

Potato futures post advances points each, while all other months were off 5 to 12 cents.

Pork bellies recovered from a late break, then rocketed back to post moderate gains across the boards and ending 80 points higher. The strong gain in cattle provided solid support.

The world sugar market was firmer near the close, and ended the day mixed from .46 cent higher to .92 cent down on 3,700 trades. Sugar 12 closed 85 cents lower on July contract after 55 sales. Sugar 12 was unchanged to .05 cent lower but there were no trades.

The world spot price was .40 cent higher, fixed at 20 cents a pound. "The two domestic spots were unchanged at 22 cents a pound."

Improving weather weakened prices on the wheat futures market, but the general attitude was favorable consideration for a good crop. Live hog futures closed mixed after directionless trading most of the day, with cash markets falling to provide guidance.

At the close, markets were off the lows. June, August, and December posted gains of 20, 10, and 7 cents.

Trus-Joint posts loss

BOISE (UPI) - Trus-Joint Corporation recorded a loss of $84,000 during the first quarter of the current calendar year even though sales were somewhat better than earlier anticipated.

President Peter T. Johnson said net sales for the first three months amounted to $5,890,000. That compares with $6,971,000 for the same period in 1974 - or a decrease of 34 per cent.

This year's loss compares with last year's profit of $270,000 for the first quarter.

Cold weather retarding Idaho planting, crops

BOISE (UPI) — Planting and development of Idaho crops is running two to three weeks later than usual, the Idaho Corp and Lifestock Reporting Service said today.

The agency noted that some progress had been made in lower elevations across the state during the week ending April 25 with spring work most advanced in southwestern and southern areas.

Crops in those two areas are making "fair to good" development, the service said.

Progress of winter wheat remains slow with a significant portion of the acreage still under snow, particularly in eastern Idaho.

"Consequently," the service said, "winter kill damage cannot yet be properly assessed." It added there continues to be reports of severe winter kill damage in some localities in the eastern portion of the state.

Wet soils and cold weather are hampering potato field work. Planting of onions is nearing completion while dry pea and lentil plantings are five per cent complete.

The service said livestock continues to show stress from the sustained cold and wet weather.

"In many instances," the agency said, "the animals are fairly thin and in poor condition."

It said that shortage of hay is becoming "more acute" and causing some ranchers to turn cattle and sheep out on pastures sooner than they would like. The service added that growth on pastures in all areas of the state except the lower elevations in the southwest remain retarded by the cool weather.

"The harsh spring weather is causing some health problems in newborn lambs and calves, especially in the eastern part of the state," the service said.

Spring show set

JEROME — The second annual Magic Valley Appaloosa Horse Club All Breed Spring Youth show will be Saturday at Simpson's arena.

The arena is located three miles south and three miles west of Jerome.

There will be classes for ages 11 and under, ages 12 to 14 and 15 to 17. Participants may enter all types of classes from showmanship to equitation and barrel racing. About 30 classes are planned with a special lead line class for ages 8 and under and a walk-trot for boys and girls 8 and under. Prizes and ribbons will be awarded.

Classes will be under National Appaloosa Youth rules. The barrel racing and pole bending will be Indian style — horse against horse instead of timed.

Wind trims Colorado wheat crop

DENVER (UPI) — Colorado Agriculture Commissioner Roy Romer today said weekend winds may have destroyed 82,000 of the 2.7 million acres of wheat planted in 11 eastern Colorado counties.

He said the wheat was "destroyed by a combination of wind and drought." Romer said severe crop losses were reported in counties on a line south of Colorado Springs to the New Mexico border.

Romer said some agriculture officials estimated one-third of the crop in that area had been damaged by the winds which reached reported gusts of 60 miles per hour at times.

At Greeley, Colo., officials said 20 Weld County wheat farmers had applied for disaster loans because of wheat losses blamed on high winds and drought.

Foy Kane of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said the farmers lost up to 3,200 acres of the 80,000 acres of wheat planted in the county.

"We are not really in that bad of shape in Weld County yet, although I expect to get more reports," said King. He said winds in the area reached speeds of 80 miles per hour.

Cut out garbage

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — If you're going to eat like a pig, you will have to cut out all that garbage by the end of June.

John S. Dyson, state agriculture commissioner, Monday said it will be illegal to feed garbage to swine after June 30. The prohibition, already in effect in nine states, is designed to prevent exotic animal disease outbreaks, Dyson said.

More jobless seen

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unemployment will continue to grow after the economy begins to recover from the recession, Tifford Gaines, senior economist at Manufacturers Hanover Trust, said Tuesday.

Gaines said unemployment, now at 8.7 per cent nationwide, will go higher and may not begin to decline until the middle of next year.

"The unemployment rate has lagged behind the turn in business activity in each of the last four recessions and the length of the lag has increased," he said in the bank's monthly economic report.

"In the case of the 1970 recession, the unemployment rate did not turn down until a full 12 months after the economy began to improve. There is reason for real concern that the lag in this business cycle will prove to be at least as long as the last time around. In other words, the unemployment rate may not begin to turn lower until almost the middle of 1976."

One reason for the long lag between an upswing in business activity and lower unemployment will be a return to the labor force of about a million "discouraged workers" who gave up looking for work and by new additions to the labor market.

In addition, Gaines said, businesses have improved their efficiency through recent cutbacks and will be able to increase production "quite a bit" without rehiring workers.

Gaines said there is little government can do to speed the rehiring process. "In dealing with the short-run unemployment problem, government efforts should be directed toward reducing inequitable hardship rather than toward stimulating the total economy," he said.

Predators kill more in Wyoming

CHEYENNE (UPI) — The Wyoming Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says overall sheep losses last year declined, but losses to predators increased 11 per cent over the previous year.

An estimated 342,000 head of sheep and lambs were lost during 1974, 2 per cent below the previous year. These losses were from a sheep population of 1,320,000, 11 per cent less than 1973.

The service said total sheep and lamb losses to predators in 1974 amounted to 152,100 head. Coyotes continued as the major culprit, accounting for 31,900 sheep and 90,800 lambs, it said.

Policy shift eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A change in federal predator control policies is being sought by Western legislators. Ranchers and fish and game experts say Idaho Sen. James McClure led a delegation of those legislators, ranchers and fish and game experts to the White House Tuesday for a meeting with President Ford to seek his backing.

McClure said the meeting with the President had been requested "so that we can lay out the facts on predator control. We have been fighting for a common sense federal policy and a change in the almost prohibition on the use of chemical toxicants on federal lands for far too long. We need a decision now."

The senator said he is hopeful that "when President Ford fully knows, the very serious and very real problems of our ranchers and game managers with coyote predation, he will modify the executive order that banned use of chemical toxicants on federal lands."

New Zealand fears US import limits

SPOKANE (UPI) — United States restrictions on imported beef could be the last straw for New Zealand's economy, a member of the New Zealand parliament said here Monday.

"I must say we are extremely concerned about the effects of a trade barrier on beef would have on New Zealand," said Leslie Gandar, who was in Spokane participating in a tour arranged by the State Department.

"Coupled with our other economic problems, it would place our economy in a pretty desperate condition," he said.

"It could be the last straw," Gandar said he understands the problems facing American cattlemen as a result of surpluses of beef.

But he said import restrictions from New Zealand beef could cause a severe depression in his country.

Gandar said he hopes the United States realizes that the type of beef exported from New Zealand would do little to compete with American beef because it is mostly of hamburger grade.

He also noted that if United States imports of beef are restricted, it would mean New Zealand would have less money with which to buy machinery and other items traditionally imported from America.

Gandar said New Zealand exports nearly all its beef to the United States.

REVOLUTIONARY SPRING WHEATS

Minimize chances of being wiped out by Rust and Root Diseases

Proven High Yields

Respond well to high fertility and irrigation, yet-adapt to stress conditions

WS-6 and PROFIT-75

Hard red (Dark Northern) Spring Milling Wheats

- PROFIT-75 and WS-6 have strong gluten content, valuable for blending with weaker wheats
- Strong Straw. Heavy Root Systems. Virtually Will Not Lodge
- WS-6 has drawn premium prices in major markets
- PROFIT-75 (released in limited amount) shows milling quality equal to or slightly above WS-6

WS-1

Semi-hard, white grain, spring milling wheat

- Especially adapted to the West and Pacific Northwest
- Stiff straw, well adapted to irrigation and dryland
- Shatter resistant, produces mid-textured, high protein white grain
- Tolerant to yellow stripe rust and mildew

SINCE 1856

ADVISORY: These wheats have produced outstanding yields, repeatedly under ordinary and stress dryland operations, and in irrigated farming. These wheats offer "profit potential" due to their bred-in characteristics using cultural practices in accordance with Ferry-Morse recommendations

Propagation for seed purposes prohibited. Registration for U.S. Plant Variety Protection applied for.

Fixed rates come to end

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street, the symbolic center of capitalism, reluctantly embracing free enterprise after 183 years of buying and selling stocks on fixed, noncompetitive rates.

Under government edict, the jealously guarded practice of price-fixing is banned after trading today. For months, brokers have anguished over the arrival of "May Day."

The end of fixed rates was imposed by the Securities and Exchange Commission in three stages. Three years ago, fixed rates were abolished on transactions exceeding $20,000. They were eliminated on transactions under $2,000 April 1, 1974, and will be abolished on everything else Thursday.

Some brokers predicted doom for the stock market. Some fear for their jobs and their incomes. Most predict smaller firms eventually will go out of business or be swallowed up by bigger firms.

The intention of the SEC is to allow an investor to shop around for the best deal.

Major institutions, such as insurance companies and banks, may be the only winners. With more business to deliver, they can negotiate cheaper rates than they now pay.

The individual investor probably will end up paying just about what he pays under the fixed commission system used with various modifications by the New York Stock Exchange since its inception in 1792.

H. Virgil Sherrill, chairman of the Securities Industry Association, says the individual investor may even pay more than he does now.

Sherrill, whose association represents 700 brokerage houses handling 90-95 per cent of all securities transactions, believes "we're going to end up with a two-tier pricing system. The retail customer is going to end up paying more than his counterpart in the institution."

"He's going to end up paying more because he doesn't have the leverage to exert on a securities firm to get a better rate," Sherrill said. "If you want to buy 100 shares of AT&T, you'll pay more than the institution that wants to buy 50,000."

The large brokerage houses say they will not negotiate rates with individual investors.

"It presents the problem of 2,000 people negotiating with 300,000 customers," said Elliott Smith, senior vice president of Bache & Co. "It is just not a practical thing to do."

But Bache will negotiate rates with large institutions. And the firm is offering large investors such inducements as a 20 per cent discount on car rentals.

Merrill Lynch Pierce Fennel & Smith, the largest brokerage house, also said it would not negotiate rates with individual investors, although it will offer optional services at various rates.

Faine Webber Jackson & Curtis is offering discounts for investors who accept certain conditions or contract for other services, including research.

But, said vice president Robert C. Dunwoody, "Paine Webber has the fundamental belief that most of the business will be done (after Thursday) by most investors the same way it has been done for 175 years."

"We are convinced that the individual investor is interested in performance and service, and that the commission is not important to him as long as he gets the service and performance he expects."

Eccles elected

BOISE (UPI) — Spencer F. Eccles, 41, an officer of First Security Bank of Idaho in Boise from 1961-70 is the new president of the First Security Corp., a Salt Lake City-based bank holding company.

Eccles progressed through the ranks with the Idaho bank and was a director and senior vice president in charge of its largest division before moving to corporate headquarters in Salt Lake City as executive vice president of the First Security Company, the service and operating arm of First Security Corp.

In his new position he succeeds George S. Eccles who had been president and chief executive officer of what he says since 1945. George Eccles has been elected chairman of the board. He also remains as chief executive officer. Spencer Eccles is his nephew.

Thought for today

A thought for the day: President Theodore Roosevelt said, "We demand that big business give the people a square deal. In return we must insist that when any one engaged in big business honestly endeavors to do right he shall himself be given a square deal."

American home purchase grows tougher

DENVER (UPI) — The average American family no longer can afford comfortably purchasing a home even with an interest-free mortgage loan, the new president of the American Bankers' Association said Tuesday.

"The major problem of housing is that people cannot comfortably afford the houses now on the market and their attendant costs," said J. Rex Duwe of Lucas, Kan. "In fact many families could not afford a new home even if they could get an interest-free mortgage loan."

"For years, home buying manuals have advised the prospective owner to buy a house that costs up to 2½ times his or her annual income," he said. Duwe said, however, the cost of food, fuel and other essentials was "taking a larger chunk out of our paychecks."

Duwe, in remarks prepared for delivery to an association conference on national housing, said the median price for a single-family home in 1973 was $33,000 and said the average middle-class salary per year was $13,000. He said the average home price rose

Duwe said statistics for the past 10 years showed the costs of home maintenance and repairs was up 92 per cent, fuel and utility costs had risen 62 per cent, mortgage interest rates were up 57 per cent and property insurance was up 38 per cent.

He said construction costs could be cut by 25 per cent if builders offered homes with unfinished rooms, offered price discounts to buyers who agreed to complete interior painting and built three and four-story houses.

Last year, the number of homes built in the $19,999 and under range accounted for only 14.4 per cent of the total, Duwe said.

"It's from Roper's it's right!"

A 10% refundable deposit puts a Valley Center Pivot on your farm, with no payments for two crop seasons.

It's easy with Valmont's new Drouth Protection Lease Plan

If you act now, you can have Valley Center Pivot Irrigation operating on your farm for two full crop seasons by making a 10% deposit, refundable at lease termination.

And you don't make the first payment until November 1976!

A single deposit gets you any Valley Water Drive or Electric Includes pump, engine, lead-in, freight, installation and insurance. You don't pay a cent more until two crops are in the bin.

Is there a catch? None that we know about. It's Valmont's way of making the leading brand—Valley Center Pivots—available to farmers who want to drouth proof their farm right now at minimum risk.

The frosting on the cake is a 10-year lease plan at an unbelievable low annual rental rate based on 8½% money. It's a guaranteed rate, if you order and take delivery before June 30, 1975.*

How do you get it? See your nearby Valley dealer or call toll free 800-228-9410 and we'll give you full information right away.

TF outlasts Skyline for division crown

POCATELLO — The Twin Falls Bruins took 42 points out of the pole vault and halfmile Tuesday afternoon to beat back a strong challenge by Skyline and win the eastern division of the SIC track title.

Skyline, whipping Twin Falls in three of the four relays and going one-two-three in the high hurdles, led by 25 to 35 points most of the day. But the pole vault and halfmile finished about the same time and quickly overcame the Grizzlies.

Twin Falls had 174 and Skyline 161. It was a way back to third-place Highland at 69.

Twin Falls was hurt and helped by Junior Rick Murray who has been out of competition for a couple of weeks due to a knee problem. He didn't run in the mile and then bicycled the knee through the two-mile and placed second. He said afterward the knee had no problem.

The good news was that Junior Randy Barbour doubled for the first time in the half and the mile, winning the former and placing second in 4:37 in the latter — the first time he'd ever gone for laps.

Dough Hillman seconded Barbour in the halfmile. In the pole vault, Coach Jerry Kleinck had his vaulters out after all four had secured the top four places at 12.6. The vaulters, Gary Miller, Rod Schaffer, Craig Nielsen and Kevin Roske, then entered the joyous quartet relay and won that — for laughs.

Twin Falls only five events against eight for Skyline. One of the headmen mentions that Skyline's Masson and Bruin Reed Harris produced a 39.4 — five-fifths of a second under the state record — in the intermediate hurdles.

Twin Falls' only relay victory came in the mile event in a solid 3:28 time — all of it run in a snags storm.

Minico and Bruins split doubleheader

HUBERT — Minico and Twin Falls took turns putting cramps in each other's SIC title hopes Tuesday afternoon as they split a doubleheader.

Burley, Perkins take honors

POCATELLO — Burley won the team title and Burley's Nathan Perkins shared the medalist pin Tuesday in the Gate City High School golf invitational Tuesday.

Burley edged Pocatello 329-332, followed by Blackfoot 335, Skyline 340, Highland 342, Middleton 343, Buhl 351, Idaho Falls, 354, American Falls 364, Minico 366, Rigby 369, Bear Lakes 371, Bonneville 380, Preston 387, Shelley 389, St. Anthony 419 and Soda Springs 467.

Perkins and Pocatello's Kent Smith were tied for low at five-over par 76.

Bull scorers were Perkins 76, Crawford 90, Hopworth 92 and Eastman 93. Burley scorers were Williams 79, Hogan 81, Spencer 82 and Darling 86.

Minico, behind the two-bit pitching and three-run homer hitting of Larry Stoller, dropped Twin Falls 6-0. In the nightcap, Twin Falls choked off a three-run uprising in the last inning to preserve a 4-3 decision.

Minico's chances to get into the inter-division playoff as the Spartans than Twin Falls' as the Brights have only three losses against four for the Bruins.

Following the game, a coin flip decided that the district tournament will open May 6 with Twin Falls at Minico with Burley going to the home site of the winner on May 7. The two losers will play May 8 with the survivor going to the opposite site of the previous meeting for the finale, which may encompass a twin bill in the double-elimination thing.

Minico bombed Twin Falls and Randy Persinger out in the third inning of the opener as Bob Hammond walked, moved up on Mickey Hanks' hit and scored on Kerry Van Every's single. Stoller then unloaded his 370-foot blast.

Mexico deports S. Africa net players

DALLAS (UPI) — The Mexican government in a condemnation of South Africa's apartheid policy deported tennis stars Fred McMillan and Bob Hewitt Tuesday, less than two days before they were to open defense of their World Championship Tennis doubles crown.

Both players flew to Dallas.

Stracey kips to boxing title

LONDON (UPI) — A John Stracey of Britain retained his European welterweight title Tuesday night when he stopped Swiss challenger Max Hebeisen in the sixth round of their 15-round bout at the Royal Albert Hall.

Stracey set Hebeisen up with two powerful lefts which caught the challenger by surprise, then battered him with a flurry of lefts and rights to the head that sent Hebeisen to the canvas.

CSI resets twin bill

College of Southern Idaho has rescheduled its playoff doubleheader with Ricks College for 1 and 3 p.m. Thursday at Cowboy diamond.

The teams were scheduled to play two Wednesday at Rexburg.

The winner of the series will advance to the regionals in Oregon in two weeks.

Allen spends birthday trying to pacify top quarterbacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One thing George Allen never wants on his birthday again is another quiet of quarterbacks. He spent his 53rd birthday Tuesday trying to pacify two of the four he now has on the Washington Redskins roster.

Friday morning, he met with his designated No. 1, Bill Kilmer who wants to be traded. In the afternoon, he was closeted with veteran Sonny Jurgensen who claimed Allen was trying to hand him his walking papers. There was no indication either way happy and expectations were one or both of them would not be on the roster when the Redskins go to training camp in July.

Watching the controversy from the sidelines were former Notre Dame star Joe Theismann, wooed from the Canadian Football League a year ago, and Randy Johnson, a former New York Giant who played with the World Football League last season.

The recent signing of Johnson as a free agent apparently put the cat among the pigeons as far as Kilmer and Jurgensen are concerned. At their age, four quarterbacks are too much.

After his talks with the two veterans, Allen commented through a spokesman: "I met with both Billy and Sonny today. There's been a lot of inaccurate information I had a good meeting with them both and I plan to meet with Sonny again."

Allen, in the heels of a No. 1 starting quarterback under Allen, has also been overshadowed in popularity with the fans and some teammates by his recharged rival who leads the NFL in passing among still active players.

Allen insisted that "nothing has been finalized" on the Jurgensen situation.

Round Stake edges into derby field

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Hobson Farm's Round Stake sent off as a 3-10 favorite, nosed his way into Saturday's Kentucky Derby with a victory at the wire Tuesday in the $21,000 Derby Trial at Churchill Downs.

Round Stake, running an almost identical race to his last victory at Aqueduct, forced jockey Mike Hole to use brute force to keep the 3-year-old colt on a straight line in the stretch.

Asked to give his appraisal of Round Stake's 1:36 2/5 performance in the mile event, Jerkens said, "I'd rather be wrong on about his business and ran away from those horses."

But, providing Round Stake is sound, Jerkens has his first Derby starter in his 25-year career.

Tigers overhaul Orioles on two late homeruns

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Back-to-back home runs by Aurelio Rodriguez and Ron LeFlore with one out in the 10th inning and a two-run shot by Willie Horton powered the Detroit Tigers to a come-from-behind 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night.

Paul Blair doubled with two out in the Oriole third inning and scored on Tommy Davis' single to right field for a 1-0 lead against Laltch. Don Baylor blasted his second homer in two nights off Lolich in the fourth inning to boost the lead to 2-0.

Horton smashed his game-tying home run in the eighth inning after Gary Subertant singled. It was Horton's fifth home run of the year and boosted his RBI count to 14.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Lynn McGlothen backed up by a solo homer by Luis Melendez pitched a five-hitter, 10-strikeout shutout Tuesday night to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-0 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Dodgers claim sixth in row

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Andy Messersmith pitched a seven-hitter and drove in the first two Los Angeles runs and Willie Crawford and Steve Garvey crashed homers Tuesday night as the Dodgers won their sixth consecutive game with an 8-0 romp over the Atlanta Braves.

Mets top Cubs for 7th in row

CHICAGO (UPI) — John Miner batted in four runs with a single and a three-run homer Tuesday to back up Tom Seaver's seven-hit pitching and lead the New York Mets to their seventh straight victory, 9-1 over the Chicago Cubs.

Giants edge Reds in ninth

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Chris Speier, San Francisco's most consistent run-producer so far this season, doubled home the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning Tuesday night to give the Giants a 4-3 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

Gem State aide promises firm, fair Sunshine Act enforcement

By RICHARD CJARNOCK
 BOISE (UPI) — A deputy secretary of state told a sometimes hostile group of lobbyists today that the Sunshine Act will be enforced as firmly and fairly as possible as long as it is on the books.
 But more than once Ben Ysursa advised the group during a hearing on procedural rules for its implementation that the people adopted the act and the secretary of state merely must enforce it.
 "What's the purpose of this law?" asked Ira L. Craven, Caldwell, chairman of the Canyon County Board of Commissioners. "Is it to isolate the people at the grassroots from their legislators?"
 Ysursa said the purpose of the hearing was to consider the procedural rules and not the philosophy behind the law.
 When several lobbyists questioned wording on the reporting forms required under the act — an initiative requiring campaign finance reports and lobbyist registration and reporting

— Ysursa noted that 98 per cent of the law was patterned after that in neighboring Washington state and that some of Washington's forms were adopted.
 "That's why it's a damnable law," Craven said.
 Mary Meach, Boise, coordinator for the Sunshine Initiative which the electorate overwhelmingly approved last Nov. 5, criticized the secretary of state's office for advice on registration.
 "My major concern is with the number of people who felt they should register to be on the safe side," Mrs. Meach said. "This bill was designed to register the lobbyists who lobby for a living or lobby for organized interests which provide compensation."
 "It was not intended to register each and every citizen who went to the Statehouse to speak to his or her legislator," she said.
 "I have been disappointed that this office has not chosen to be aggressively helpful to the citizen," she said. "Citizens calling the secretary of state's office have been advised to register to be on the safe side."

Speaking for himself, he added that the public approved the law during a time of emotional stress about government last year.
 Paul Wise, Lewiston, said he felt the reporting forms discriminate against lobbyists from outside Boise. He said they enable the news media to "zero in" on payments they make for lodging and personal meals while in Boise.
 John Hayes, Spokane, a spokesman for General Telephone Company, suggested that since the people voted in the law that the lobbyists all try to live with it and make it workable.
 A. J. Teske, Boise, executive secretary of the Idaho Mining Association, said he felt the act discriminates against highly paid corporate executives who must register to make a telephone call to their legislators.
 Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, one of the sponsors of the initiative, urged the secretary of state to be fair but aggressive in implementing the law.

Chile sets probe

SANTIAGO, Chile — The Chilean military government Monday promised a "serious investigation" to determine who was responsible for the arbitrary detention and physical mistreatment of two correspondents of Agence France-Press, the French news agency.
 The reporters, Jacques Kaufman, a Frenchman, and Enrique Gutman, a Chilean, were arrested last Saturday afternoon by secret police while covering a political meeting of a pro-government group about 40 miles south of Santiago. The newsmen were released 24 hours later. No charges were filed against them.

Trouble finds female jockey, KKK member

LINCOLN, Neb. — She's a winning jockey and a Playboy pit-up girl, a model and a kidnap victim, a woman who says she knows no fear and a member of the Ku Klux Klan. She rode racehorses during her final month of pregnancy...

about my private life. I'm no different than the rest of the world. She agrees that her outspoken comments brought on many of her publicity problems. "I believe something I do it," she said. "I'm just not as phony as other persons."

But Mrs. Bacon, a rough and tough pro jockey in the once male bastion of thoroughbred racing, wants history to record her life from the gate to the wire and leave to speculation the trappings of her personal life.

To continue her life as a jockey, Mrs. Bacon says she gave up marriage to jockey John Bacon; suffered through broken bones, two broken backs and other injuries and rode, she says, into her final month of pregnancy with Susan.

"I've probably been exposed as much as any female in the United States," she said during a telephone interview following an early morning workout at Ak-Sar-Ben race track in Omaha, Neb., where she is riding this morning.

"To me, winning is living," she says. "I want to ride and I want to win, and there is nothing that is going to stop me. They've tried to stop me in every way possible."

Her achievements in the world of racing are a matter of record: a pro jockey since 1969, 2,073 mounts and 782 finishes in the money, including 250 victories.

"I got a lot of harassment and pressure, but I haven't stopped yet," she said.

It is a record, she says, that was earned in the major leagues of racing, including New York tracks, which she described as riding "with the best where it's tough."

Mary says too much was made of her remarks at a Klan rally earlier this month in Walker, La., and the Klan is misrepresenting her.

The personal life of the 5-foot, 100-pound rider is less definitive, running the gamut of exposure in Playboy magazine, modeling for a woman's cosmetics firm, a kidnapping by the Ku Klux Klan.

"The movies and magazines have made it to be something that it is not," she said. "It's not a bunch of illiterate southerners out to kill people, but then who wants to read something that's not a little scandalous?"

Her quoted comments in defense of the Klan and criticism of alleged mistreatment of thoroughbreds in Louisiana sparked recent publicity, controversy and her dissatisfaction with the news media.

"I don't have any fear. That's probably better."

Canada regulates land purchases

—F.N.Y. Times Service VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Upset by the number of Americans buying choice properties in Canada, seven of the 10 provinces have either passed laws regulating the purchase of land by foreigners or are considering such legislation.

At the same time, a quiet reverse flow of Canadians buying residential property in the United States has grown to such proportions that even the Canadian nationalist circles here are beginning to feel an American backlash.

In a side effect of the migration from Canada southward across the border, numerous Canadian purchasers of homes in the state of Washington have run afoul of United States immigration laws, often innocently, and have had to leave the country, selling or renting their American property.

Many Canadians, lured across the border by the fact that a house in Bellingham, Wash., may cost only half the price of the comparable dwelling in Vancouver, have moved south with their families with the intention of continuing to their jobs on the Canadian side, where they retain the Canadian low-cost health insurance and other welfare benefits.

It discovered by the Immigration Service, however, they must go back to Canada unless they have a permit for permanent residence, which normally takes two and a half years to obtain. This misery has led to scores of Canadians in the Washington border area, according to United States Immigration officials.

In 1974, 1,112 Canadians were among foreigners apprehended by officers under the district immigration office in Seattle, Richard W. Abern, the director, said in a telephone interview.

"About 500 of these Canadians were formally deported, and the rest left on their own," Abern said, adding that the problem had lessened after a campaign explaining the law to both American and Canadian real estate agents in the Northwest region.

There is no legal bar to purchase of property in the United States by foreigners either for recreational use or as an investment, and many Canadians have taken advantage of the freedom to buy in Washington and other states, especially Florida, California and Hawaii, according to Canadian and American investment authorities interviewed here.

In Canada, on the other hand, a foreigner buying real estate in Ontario must pay a special tax of 20 per cent of the purchase price, and the seller is taxed 50 per cent on any profits. On Prince Edward Island, no foreigner may buy a plot larger than 10 acres; or, very rarely, more than 600 sq. ft. of shoreline. In Saskatchewan, foreigners are barred from buying farmland worth more than $15,000.

British Columbia requires special registration of a foreign transaction, so far only for record purposes. Restrictions of various kinds are contemplated in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Manitoba.

USFS aides endorse tram board creation

TWIN FALLS — Proposals for creation of a tramway board to assume responsibility for ski lift safety inspections in Idaho has endorsement of Sawtooth National Forest officials.

Robert Hoag, recreation officer for the Sawtooth Forest, said today he and Supervisor Ed Baumgardner discussed the matter and would like to see such a program initiated.

"This is a time consuming and costly operation," Hoag said. "Statements from Woody Anderson, Pomeroy owner, are correct. We are not properly equipped to operate the ski lift inspection program."

Hoag said in addition many ski areas are located on private land. For these, he said, there are no regulations at all and it is simply up to the area operator to set his own standards.

Anderson, who assisted in establishing a tramway board in Utah, has urged similar action in Idaho in the interest of better public safety for those riding ski lifts in Idaho resorts.

He has called for a state law which would provide properly trained and qualified employees who understand ski lift construction and who would make annual inspections of all ski lifts and be able to enforce compliance with strict safety standards.

Hells Canyon bill perils water rights

TWIN FALLS — A warning on potential threats to Idaho water rights from the proposed Hells Canyon Recreation bill was sounded here Monday by Vernon Ravenscroft, former state legislator.

Ravenscroft addressed the Twin Falls County Republican Women Monday afternoon. "The proposed recreation area bill directly threatens land and water development and indirectly threatens existing water rights in Magic Valley," Ravenscroft told the women.

He said federal courts in the past have not honored state or local water rights when federal installations have wanted water. "If we are to have water for pending projects such as Salmon Falls Project or the half-million acre potential development west of Idaho, provisions for upstream storage must be written into the bill," Ravenscroft said.

"You can't do both," Ravenscroft said. "This legislation will set the stage for a lawsuit between upstream users and the wild river advocates."

your health

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M. D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I have never seen in your writings anything on the subject of curvature of the spine. About 20 years ago I was told I had this and that it should be corrected.
I did nothing about it. I have a very good, upright back. What is curvature of the spine? What should I do about it? — Mrs. C.B.
I have discussed this before. Perhaps you missed my reference because you didn't recognize the medical term for it, "scoliosis."
My first thought upon reading your letter is that you have been quite lucky to have escaped deformity, the usual result in untreated cases of scoliosis. Only rarely has this condition in infants been known to correct itself. You don't tell me your age, so I have no idea whether or not you are one of those lucky few.
Adolescent scoliosis is more common, and it is usually detected at about the age of 12. Females are affected more than males by a 3 to 2 ratio.

Group leader

A. B. (RIP) GERDES, Twin Falls, Bank of Idaho, has been elected president of the Magic Valley Bankers' Association. Other new officers include Terry Hales, Burley, vice president; Marian Onida, Shoshone, Secretary; Rupert, two-year director and Gordon Huffaker, Buhl, one year director.

Muskie pushes deficit spending

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund G. Muskie, D-Maine, called on the Senate Tuesday to approve a budget with heavier spending and a bigger deficit than President Ford says he will tolerate.
With the welcome backing of a key Republican, Muskie, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, opened Congress' first floor debate under a 1974 reform on the appropriate size of the federal budget in fiscal 1976, which starts July 1.
Usually Congress passes tax and spending bills piecemeal, with no regard to their total impact.
Muskie, presenting the proposal approved by a 10-3 vote of his committee, argued for spending $10 billion more than Ford proposed.

"Not when the very economic stability of the nation is at stake."
"The Budget Committee's near unanimous judgment is that we cannot spend less and still keep millions of unemployed workers and their families weather the worst recession in a generation. We cannot spend less and still meet our commitments in national defense, transportation and other programs."

Sen. Henry Bellmon, Okla., ranking Republican on the committee, backed up Muskie. The apparent differences between the committee proposal and Ford's are large, Bellmon said.

Spinal curvature discussed

The cause, in most cases, cannot be determined. Somehow, a sideways deviation appears in a segment of the spine, usually in the middle section. This produces the characteristic shoulder drop on one side with an accompanying elevation of the pelvic bone on the same side. In severe cases especially, it is quite noticeable on standing.
It is difficult for a physician to predict the eventual outcome or the degree of expected deformity. This depends on the age at which the first symptoms appear. The progression of deformity tends to stop with stabilization of spinal growth (at about 17 in boys, 15 in girls). Scoliosis tends to run in families.
The cause can be determined in only about 15 per cent of the cases, and these include poliomyelitis, defects in back muscle formation or birth defects.

I wouldn't want other scoliosis victims to be deluded by the apparently happy outcome in your case. As I mentioned earlier, you appear to have been a very lucky girl. Even the mildest symptoms of scoliosis bear careful attention, especially since the condition can progress very rapidly toward severe deformity.
Early treatment is essential. This usually includes use of the famous Milwaukee brace developed by Dr. Walter Hueston and quite effective when worn religiously following early diagnosis.
Your scoliosis if, indeed, that is what it was, was detected 20 years ago, and has since stabilized. Therefore, there should be no need for treatment or for concern at this late date.

Rooftop escape

CREWMAN of Air America helicopter helps evacuate up ladder atop Saigon building Tuesday. The site was one of many in the downtown area of the city from which Americans and other foreign nationals were taken to U.S. Navy ships off the coast. (UPI)

Death sentence over breakfast

SAIGON (UPI) — The death sentence was passed on the young couple's hopes over breakfast coffee in the quiet garden of Saigon's Continental Hotel.

The reporter had just smeared his warm croissant with jam when the two embarrassed Vietnamese presented their letter.

She was of travel poster beauty, he, in his mid-30s, wiry and wearing a neat white shirt and black slacks.

The letter identified them as relatives of a Vietnamese abroad. It asked the reporter's help in getting them an entry visa to his country.

They had come to a foreigner, a stranger, as a "court of last appeal."

No matter how softly the reporter spoke or how diplomatically he attempted to dull the words' meaning, the decision would be: "appeal denied."

He asked the girl why she wanted to leave.

The man, a doctor, translated into groping English her explanation that her relatives had been executed in Hue in the 1968 Tet offensive. They were mandarins, and she was certain her entire family, was on the list of those to be executed if Saigon fell.

The doctor said he had worked for the Americans and knew there was no way of keeping his "traitorous" past hidden.

There were families involved. Her parents, and the doctor's two children.

Then it became clear. The words were never spoken, but what the girl was offering the reporter was herself.

No mention was made of the small wedding ring on the girl's finger. How stupid of them not to have left it at home, for it glaringly disclosed their clumsy plot.

They were not just friends. They were husband and wife. Perhaps the letter was even fake.

They had heard that foreigners, enticed by the possibility of possessing a beautiful Vietnamese girl, might arrange to get her out of the country.

With her husband's approval, she was offering herself to save her family.

By no word or question did the reporter disclose his awareness of their plot. There was no way he could help.

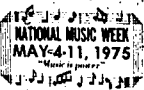

He explained the two would need exit visas from their government. Without such papers, no Vietnamese was allowed to leave Saigon and no entry visa to the reporter's country could be given.

He suggested they obtain the clearance from Vietnamese immigration and then return and he would try.

The reporter never knew if they, too, were aware of the grisy fact that visas were being given only those able to pay into greedy palms hundreds of U.S. dollars — sums only lottery winners could pay. They nodded solemnly. With murmured apologies for disturbing his breakfast, they slowly walked out of the garden and the reporter's life.

War ends for Viets on US ship

ABOARD THE USS BLUE RIDGE (UPI) — In the glare of deck lights, the small group filed past heavily armed American Marines.

"It's all over for you," one Marine said. "You won't need these any more."

The U.S.-manufactured M16 rifles, sidearms, grenades and bandoliers of ammunition the newcomers carried were hurled over the side of the ship into the dark South China Sea.

That is how the war ended Tuesday for 16 young Vietnamese soldiers, at least two of them officers, and two others wounded, standing on the deck of one of the U.S. Navy's most sophisticated warships.

Two women dressed in thin white pajamas, both clutching infants, stood beside them on the flight deck in front of the helicopter that had brought them out of Saigon's heavily bombed Tan Son Nhut Airport.

Several Marines tried to reassure the soldiers in dimly remembered Vietnamese.

Minutes before, the signal had gone out over the darkened ship: "Unidentified helo circling above us wanting to land. Landing lights on."

The tense command and communications vessel for the Seventh Fleet task force massed off the coast of South Vietnam to receive Americans was ready.

An armed reception team appeared out of nowhere on the darkened deck. The hovering helicopter, 50 caliber machine guns protruding from its front ports, settled on the deck. Lights suddenly blazed.

American officers moved slowly forward. The English-speaking pilots said simply that they wanted to stay.

The ship's captain agreed, and the rear of the Chinook opened. The small groups filed out, women first, buffeted by the night wind on the South China Sea.

"I came from Pleiku, then Pleiku gone, Phu Cat, then Phu Cat gone, Nha Trang, it go too, to Bien Hoa, yesterday that go, today Saigon Tan Son Nhut bombed—six A7s. So come here," one of the soldiers told a sympathetic Marine.

Their faces expressionless, the officers interpreting the U.S.-trained soldiers of the South Vietnamese government were disarmed and offered sanctuary.

One pilot said he believed other helicopters were somewhere out in the night, looking for ships to land on.

Marines identified

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Marine Corps announced Tuesday the names of the two Marines killed in the artillery and rocket attack on Saigon airport Monday.

The two men were the fourth and fifth American servicemen killed in Vietnam since the cease-fire agreement Jan. 27, 1973.

The dead were:

- Cpl. Charles McMahon Jr., son of Charles McMahon Sr., Woburn, Mass.
- Lance Cpl. Darwin L. Judgerson of H. Judge, Marshalltown, Iowa.

The pair were among the 120 Marines assigned to the security guard detachment at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon. They were killed less than 12 hours before the final evacuation of Americans began.

Conservationist gets area post

SHOSHONE — Russel E. Manwaring, formerly at the Grangeville Conservation office, began work Monday in his new post as conservationist in Shoshone.

Manwaring is a native of Blackfoot and fills the vacancy created when Leo Senten moved to Meridian office. Senten served as conservationist in the Wood River District for the past six years.

Mrs. Manwaring is the former Louise Wilson, Jackson, Wyo., and they have two children.

Burley man named to humanities unit

BOISE — Michael Feiler, Burley, has been appointed to serve on the Idaho Commission on Arts and Humanities.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus appointed Feiler to succeed June Chapman, Kellogg.

Andrus also appointed Mark Grefenson, Twin Falls, to a six-year term on the State Board of Medicine, succeeding Ben Katz, Twin Falls.

Michael Gray, Twin Falls, was re-appointed by Andrus to a three-year term on the College of Southern Idaho dormitory housing commission.

Basketball winners

TOP young basketball artists in Twin Falls, Cass Herbst, 12, and Gary Krumm, 11, receive trophies from Kenneth Colner, at right. Colner is chairman of the annual Tri-Star basketball contest sponsored by the Optimist Club for youngsters 8 to 13 years of age.

36 trophies given for Tri-Star hoop contest

TWIN FALLS — Chairman Ken Colner of the Optimist Club's Tri-Star basketball contest presented 36 trophies to winners in boys and girls divisions Friday afternoon.

The club sponsors the event for youngsters 8 through 13 years of age and for the first time this year had a special division for girl basketball players.

High point awards for the overall event went to Cass Herbst, 12, for the girls and Gary Krummell, for the boys. Young Krumm scored 210 points to lead all of the other contestants by a wide margin.

Colner said there were 119 boys and 65 girls participating in the contests held last week in the high school gymnasium. In the event the youngsters compete in three events, passing, shooting and dribbling and accumulate points in each for a total score.

Colner said there is the fourth-year the Optimist Club has sponsored the event and given trophies and ribbons to the winners.

North Side soil district will compete for award

JEROME — The North Side Soil Conservation District will again compete for the Honor District Award in the 29th Goodyear Conservation Awards Program.

Dean Weatherwax, Hunt, board chairman, said the district will be judged on its 1975 achievement in resource management in competition with other districts in Idaho.

According to Weatherwax an independent judging committee will select first and second place winners and honor district awards in the contest sponsored by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. in cooperation with the National Association of Conservation Districts (NACO).

The first-place district, in addition to receiving a plaque, will be awarded an expenses-paid vacation-study trip for its outstanding operator and a member of the governing board. Representatives of 53 first-place districts will be guests on this year's grand tour to Goodyear Farms, Litchfield's Park, Ariz., in December.

The North Side Soil Conservation District was selected in 1973 for the Goodyear conservation award as Idaho's top conservation district. Alvin Chojnacky and H.H. Bryant last year toured Masco Island, Fla., as representatives of the district.

The district was selected in 1973 for the award on the basis of its outstanding contribution in the field of conservation, which included the district's work with its operators, the directing of conservation work, the promotion of educational programs and the dissemination to all segments of the public of conservation information and news.

North Side Soil Conservation District's outstanding operator for 1975 will be honored as part of the awards program, according to Weatherwax.

Saved by a ball

PEOPLE who love glass houses are throwing a ball to celebrate the saving of one of the nation's most beautiful structures, the conservatory of the New York Botanical Garden. The 75-year-old Bronx structure seemed slated for demolition until architect Edward Larrabee Barnes and landscape architect Dan Kiley came up with a restoration plan. A dinner dance will raise funds for the restoration. (YPU)

Exploratory oil drilling on upswing

WASHINGTON — Exploratory oil drilling in the United States is on the upswing, but domestic production is still declining, new oil industry figures show.

According to data compiled by the American Petroleum Institute (API), there were 1,651 active drilling rigs operation in oil field last month, compared with 1,377 in the same month last year.

But crude oil production during the first quarter of this year was down 5.6 per cent from the same period last year and 8 per cent from 1973, marking the fifth consecutive year that the nation's oil output has declined.

Meantime, the nation's demand for oil is picking up. API figures for the first three months this year show that consumption of gasoline and other petroleum products was 3.4 per cent higher than for the same period last year when the impact of the Arab embargo was still being felt.

API oil specialist said oil use would have been even higher if it were not for a warm-weather-unusual winter, coupled with higher oil prices and the economic recession. The price of gasoline averages five cents more today than it did a year ago. This was caused by five successive price increases of imported oil in the wake of the embargo.

Oil-in-port levels also reflect the current economic recession and the effects of President Ford's $1-a-barrel boost in the oil-import tariff. Imports fell 45 per cent in February and another 24 per cent in the first three months of this year, compared with the same period last year.

Even with the temporary drop-off in imports, caused mainly by the recession, oil specialists say the United States is relying increasingly on foreign oil, with more and more of it coming from the Middle East. API data show that Middle-East oil purchases are growing while neighboring countries like Canada (still the country's largest oil supplier) and Venezuela are cutting back their exports to the United States because they want to save their oil.

Refugee rate high

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said Tuesday the total number of Vietnamese refugees admitted to the United States would be "not more than 45,000."

"It's hoped that other countries will take some of these," Scott told reporters after a White House meeting between congressional leaders and President Ford. But, he added, this would "probably be a small percentage" of the total.

Both Scott and Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., said that Ford was ready to order a general evacuation early Monday.

Ky's wife among Viet refugees

SAN FRANCISCO—The wife of former South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and 13 members of her family arrived Monday night on a refugee flight at Travis Air Force Base three days after her husband denounced fleeing South Vietnamese citizens as "cowards."

An Air Force spokesman Tuesday disclosed the arrival of Mme. Ky and her family and said Ky, who is a marshal in the South Vietnamese air force, did not accompany his wife.

Madam Ky arrived aboard a Trans International Airlines DC3 with 210 other refugees.

said Lt. Col. Thomas W. Sturgess, information officer at the air base 45 miles northwest of San Francisco.

"She was treated just like everybody else—given no special attention," an Air Force spokesman said. "She went through immigration and customs of the base. She was with 13 members of her family."

The spokesman said Madam Ky was believed to be staying with relatives in San Francisco.

Her husband served as his country's premier in 1967. He was elected vice president under President Thieu in 1968, but was not selected as a running mate when Thieu sought re-election in 1971.

In a speech to 6,000 persons at a Saigon rally Friday, Ky exhorted his countrymen to stand and fight against the North Vietnamese. He branded persons attempting to flee to America as "cowards" who would become "houseboys and servants" in foreign countries.

"If Hanoi refuses to negotiate a peace and demands a surrender we will fight to the death," Ky said. "Our backs are against the wall now and we are fighting for our very survival. So let the cowards who are leaving with the Americans go and let those who love South Vietnam stay and fight.

"The North Vietnamese may try to make us run by shelling Saigon, but don't fear that because each of you can make your house safe against it. Whatever you do, do not leave your homeland."

"No matter what happens you should stay here. Even if the Communists win, you should stay because at least they will be yellow-skinned Communists."

Madam Ky is the air marshal's second wife. A former Air Vietnam stewardess, she underwent plastic surgery a few years ago to change her nose and eyes, making her look more "Western."

US-Viet tragedy ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger swallowed a piece of candy, picked up the telephone and was connected to President Ford in the second-floor family quarters of the White House.

Ford listened a moment and then — fourteen years after American troops were sent into Indochina by presidential order — ordered the evacuation of all Americans remaining in Vietnam. It was about 11 p.m. Monday.

Kissinger, at his desk in his corner office of the White House West Wing, then telephoned Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger and the President's will was done.

The last act of what Ford has called America's Vietnam tragedy began about 6:30 p.m. Monday in the Cabinet Room where the President was meeting economic and energy advisers.

Ford had been expecting word from Saigon that Communist military pressure on the South Vietnamese capital was ending the time left for evacuating the remaining 90 Americans and far larger numbers of South Vietnamese.

He was seated at the Cabinet table, flanked by Commerce Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton and Federal Energy Administrator Frank Z. Taylor, when Lt. Gen. Brent A. Scowcroft slipped into the room with a piece of paper.

Scowcroft, Ford's deputy national security affairs adviser, a slim and quiet spoken military intellectual, kept the President informed hour by hour. Ford unfolded the paper.

"The White House had just received details of the North Vietnamese heavy artillery assault on Saigon's Tan Son Nhut Airport, Ford nodded, reread the paper and ended the meeting in which Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller and 12 others were advising him on whether to postpone oil import fees.

At 7:10 p.m. Ford walked from the Cabinet Room across the hall and into the Roosevelt Room where his National Security Council was assembling.

Kissinger and Scowcroft were there. Others included Schlesinger, Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and CIA Director William Colby. Ford asked: had the time come for the final evacuation?

Fifty-five minutes later, Ford emerged from the Roosevelt Room, talked with Kissinger and walked to his second-floor living quarters to have dinner with the First Lady.

CIA aide home hit by bomb

DENVER (UPI) — A pipe bomb explosion outside a Central Intelligence Agency official's suburban home may have been caused by radicals inspired by the bombing of a bank hours earlier, or may have been the work of a "crackpot," police said Tuesday.

The bomb exploded in front of the home of CIA regional director James Sommerville 30 minutes before midnight Monday, shattering windows and shredding portions of the roof on the one-story brick house in south Denver. Windows in a house next door were broken.

Bricks were blown from the front wall and the explosion damaged a sprinkler system inside the house but neither Sommerville's wife, Allene, nor their 14-year-old son, 13-year-old James, were injured.

Mr. Sommerville said her husband was in Texas and said, "I know people are connecting this with his job but there's no real proof. I really can't say what happened. I was asleep at the time. The explosion woke me up."

Bomb squad Detective Fred Stevenson said the blast did not appear related to the explosion of a dynamite satchel charged at the American National Bank in Denver 12 hours earlier in which six employees received minor injuries.

NC coed calls it 'rape'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 21-year-old coed from Charlotte, N.C., says it was rape. But the defendant, cable television show host Martin Evans, who went on trial Monday, said he simply seduced the woman.

"Everybody in New York City engages in seductive activities, in bars and in the streets," said Evans' attorney, Howard Meyer of the Legal Aid Society. "If there is a conviction in this case, everybody is up for grabs."

"There's a thin line between seduction and rape," Meyer told Justice Edward Greenfield during the nonjury trial in Manhattan Criminal Court Monday.

Evans, moderator of "The Alternative," a cable-TV program which provides a dating service as part of its format, is accused of rape, sodomy and unlawful imprisonment.

The woman who brought charges testified she met the 38-year-old Evans at LaGuardia Airport on July 15 about 9 p.m. She said she was a student at Wellesley College in Massachusetts at the time.

The woman testified Evans told her he was a psychologist researching a book on women coming into the city and he "had been watching women come off the plane."

"He said there was something special about me," she testified. She said he took notes while they chatted.

She said she accepted Evans' offer of a ride to Grand Central Station in Manhattan, where she was to catch a train to suburban White Plains, N.Y.

The couple made a detour, however, and ended up at a lively Upper East Side singles' bar, the woman said. She testified the two stayed there until midnight, studying "the superficialities of singles' bars" as part of the research.

Evans and the woman then took a cab to "one of his apartments" to pick up his car, the woman testified.

"The girl testified that after the two spent about an hour talking about her innermost feelings" in the apartment, Evans suddenly grabbed her and pulled her backward onto the sofa bed and raped her.

Trainmen observe legend's passing

CHICAGO (UPI) — Railroaders observe the 75th anniversary of the death of Casey Jones today amid speculation the celebrated train engineer may have been more reckless than brave.

Casey died in the cab of engine No. 382, a 10-wheeler of the Illinois Central Railroad, on April 30, 1912, when it struck a freight sticking out on the main track at Vaughan, Miss.

"Casey was found in the wreckage, with one hand on the throttle and the other on the air-brake control," the railroad said. "He had died to preserve his often-heard boast that no passenger or crewman had ever been killed on one of his trains."

A railroad shop worker, Wallace Saunders, is credited with turning Casey's story into a chant which grew into the ballad of Casey Jones and assured him folk hero status.

Almost everyone agrees that John Luther Jones was a fearless engineer who could move freight fast. Two railroad buffs in downstate Illinois have information that indicates Casey's neglect of railroad rules may have been responsible for the fatal crash.

Dallas Smith, president of the Call Publishing Co., Du Quoin, Ill., said he has seen the original report on the accident made by the railroad agent.

"Casey broke every safety rule the railroad had. He ran over the flags. He ran over the torpedoes. He did all the things that the rule book said he shouldn't have done," Smith said.

The report, Smith said, "doesn't do anything to set Casey up as a hero... I think Casey was a hell of a good engineer. He was what they called a 'runner'—men that move the freight. They put the stick in the corner and got tonnage over the railroad and the railroad shut its eyes because they made money for the railroad."

Ernest Dolan, a 50-year veteran of the Illinois Central and a former engineer who lives in Centerville, said from all the evidence available, "It seems he was in trouble a good deal of the time. It seems like he violated rules a lot."

Dolan, 57, quoted from a book entitled "Casey Jones and the Wreck at Vaughan" by Bruce Gurner to show Casey was suspended from 5 to 30 days at least eight times from 1888 until his death for violating railroad rules. The violations include "ramming through a switch," "gross carelessness in handling orders" and "not recognizing a flagman."

The railroad said Casey, then 36, had the throttle wide open, to make up time when his engine flashed by a warning flagman and over a warning torpedoes on the track to crash into the stalled freight train. Casey was the only one to die in the crash. Fireman Jim Webb survived the crash after Casey told him, according to the legend, "You jump, I'll stay."

"Asked about the real Casey, a spokesman for the Illinois Central said, "As far as being reckless, I don't think so. As far as being flamboyant, perhaps."

Home folks support Hathaway selection

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Former Wyoming Gov. Stanley K. Hathaway may find rough going in his nomination for interior secretary, but the home folks—Republican and Democrat alike—are behind him all the way.

Senate hearings on Hathaway's nomination were scheduled to resume Wednesday with the former Republican governor to provide what Interior Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., called "clear cut answers" to charges he ignored wildlife laws and natural resources.

In Wyoming, however, visible opponents to Hathaway's nomination in Wyoming are hard to find.

His boosters even include Paul Wataha, the Democratic mayor of booming, problem-ridden Rock Springs.

Wataha, an outspoken mayor for 18 years, saw the mining town's population double in the past five years to almost 25,000. Inadequate planning left the city with housing headaches, traffic jams and increased crime.

"Stan would be a great secretary of Interior," Wataha said. "He didn't want to see this (impact problem) any more than anyone else. He was always there when we needed him."

Wataha said when Hathaway was elected to the first of his two, four-year terms in 1966—the only governor to serve that long in Wyoming—the mining industry had shut down and many workers were out of jobs. The new governor pushed for industrial development.

"Our young people were leaving, especially in the southwest corner of the state," said Lee Keith, Kaycee, Wyo., businessman and staunch defender of Hathaway.

Jerome High School names 3 class leaders

JEROME — Nancy Priest has been named valedictorian for the 1974-75 school year in Jerome.

Valerie Van Patten and Rick Hoskin have been selected to share the honor of salutatorian. Joint baccalaureate and commencement services will be held May 18 at 2 p.m., according to Jerry Diehl, high school principal.

Miss Priest is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. (Bill) Priest. She has a 4.0 grade average and has been a member of Honor Society and Student Council representative during her senior year.

Miss Priest was active in girls glee, varsity chorus, Triple Trio, pep and concert bands.

She was selected Miss Spirit of 1974-75 this year and has been president of the Office Education Association. She was also selected for Outstanding American High School Student Society for her junior and senior years and was appointed for Who's Who two years.

Miss Priest has been active in 4-H and has won many awards over the years for her projects. She was selected to attend a 4-H conference in Chicago.

Her future includes marriage June 7.

Miss Van Patten is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Van Patten. She has a 3.98 grade average and has been a member of the Honor Society for two years, serving this year as secretary-treasurer. She has been active in the varsity chorus and the Chorallers.

Miss Van Patten has been listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students for two years. She has been active member of the Biology Club and the United Methodist Church choir.

Miss Van Patten says she plans to study medicine. Her goal is to become a laboratory technologist.

Hoskin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hoskin, has a 3.98 grade average and is president of the Jerome chapter of the National Honor Society.

Hoskin has been active in sports, having been a member of the cross country, track and basketball teams.

For two years he has been listed with Who's Who Among American High School Students and the Society of Outstanding American High School Students.

He was elected supreme court judge at the 1974 session of Boys State.

Hoskin is a member of the LDS Church and has earned his Duty to God and Eagle Scout awards. His future plans include continuing his education at Ricks College and enjoying in engineering.

California pot bill progresses

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A bill reducing the criminal marijuana penalties and substituting a maximum $100 fine for possession of small amounts of the weed was approved today by the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The Senate-passed measure (SB95) by Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, was approved on a 11-7 vote with little discussion in the heavily Democratic committee, and sent to the full Assembly where supporters forecast approval.

The bill, similar to an Oregon law would repeal possible felony sanctions against marijuana users.

For persons caught with an ounce or less in their possession the maximum penalty would be a traffic ticket-style citation and a fine of up to $100. An ounce can roll at least 20 joints.

During his election campaign, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said he favored the concept of the Oregon statute but has not declared himself specifically on the Moscone proposal.
