Cambodian gunboats sunk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American aircraft today sank three Cambodian gunboats and damaged about four others in apparent retaliation for the Khmer Rouge's failure to release the captured American merchant ship Mayaguez, the Pentagon announced.

Cambodians intended to remove captive Americans from the ship, which was seized Monday in the Gulf of Siam.

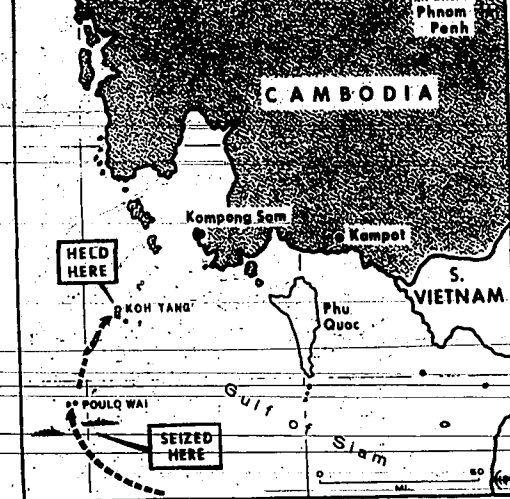

He said the container ship Mayaguez remained anchored off the island. The ship has a crew of 39 Americans.

Three Cambodian patrol craft were destroyed, about four others were damaged and immobilized," he said.

Lattin said the sinking of U.S. aircraft first gave warning — but he did not indicate how — and then "began efforts to block this movement."

There were indications at least some of the crewmen had been taken ashore by their Communist captors.

U.S. officials predicted more military developments before the day was out, possibly as soon as the USS Coral Sea and its fleet of destroyers arrived in the area.

FS orders building

despite protests

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

STICHUM — The U.S. Forest Service has ordered construction of the controversial Sawtooth National Recreation Area headquarters building at North Fork despite community protests.

Regional Forester Vern Hamre, Ogden, Utah, will announce Thursday that he has ordered construction of the "12,000-square-foot administrative visitor center."

The decision was confirmed by a press alert at the Ogden forest headquarters.

A copy of the announcement obtained by the Times-News quotes Hamre as saying "There is general agreement that no serious adverse environmental impact will be created" by the construction project.

Some private citizens say they will go to court to stop construction if the forest service does not reverse its decision.

Hamre met with county and state officials last week in Ketchum to discuss the controversy surrounding the proposed headquarters. He had previously sent two men from his office to investigate complaints from local residents here.

Two state legislators at a May 7 meeting with Hamre called for a public hearing to give the local people a chance to air their grievances.

Nearly 1000 people across the state have signed petitions opposing the construction at North Fork.

Hamre said at the May-7 meeting there had been insufficient public involvement, especially with the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission concerning construction plans at North Fork.

He promised all future projects related to county planning will be discussed with the county planning and zoning commission has attacked the forest service for proposing a commercial use in the county's prime agricultural land.

The commission also contends building at North Fork will free developers to seek commercial outlets along US Highway 93 from Ketchum to North Fork. The forest service maintains the building is not a commercial use.

House kills farm bill

© New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The first attempt by the 94th Congress to override a White House veto failed Tuesday as 71 House Democrats crossed party lines and voted to sustain President Ford's objections to the emergency farm bill.

The vote of 245 to 182 fell 40 votes short of the two-thirds necessary to override the veto, an unexpectedly large victory for Ford.

Before the vote even the Democratic leaders were voicing doubts that the veto could be overridden, but the size of the defeat was surprising to some.

Ford said in a statement, "This vote proves that there is enough concern in both parties in this Congress to hold the line on the deficit."

"I will continue to fight for federal fiscal responsibility and welcome this show of support," he said.

The cost of the bill would be at least $210 million, according to its supporters, but $50 million or even more, according to the administration.

US sinks 3 Cambodian gunboats in retaliation

A contingent of at least 800 Marines began arriving at U Tapao before dawn in Thailand (6:50 p.m. EDT Tuesday). Pentagon sources said at least 25 Cambodian gunboats would be flown to the air base in addition to the aircraft carrier Coral Sea with a half dozen support ships was steaming toward the ship.

"There'll be a lot of artillery around there," said one Pentagon source. They were sent not allow the use of repeated instances for a confrontation with Cambodia, its neighbor to the east. The Thai government is trying to reach an accommodation with the new Communist government in Phnom Penh.

"We will protest because that the Marine arrival is not what we want," said Thai Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj said. "If they send Marines," a spokesman said later, "some action would be taken, but he did not specify what kind."

The armed forces could be used to retrieve the captured merchant ship. But some officials indicated the show of force may be intended more to persuade Cambodia to give up the ship peacefully.

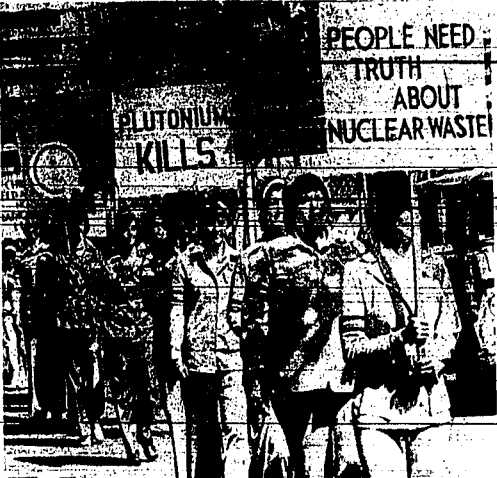

Administration sources said Ford also was seeking the diplomatic help of China, which is believed to have some influence with the new Communist government in Phnom Penh.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Tuesday there would be no deal with Cambodia, such as the one made with North Korea in 1969 for the return of the captured spy ship Pueblo. The United States at that time admitted "a grave act of espionage" and got the crew returned after 11 months captivity.

The White House has repeatedly denied the unarmored Mayaguez is a spy ship. The vessel did carry supplies for U.S. military bases in Thailand among its general cargo, but the Pentagon said it was not under military charter and carried no weapons.

Pentagon sources suggested the Cambodians may have decided to police on the Mayaguez "like a motorcycle policeman behind a billboard" when they learned it was passing through the area.

The feeling around the White House Tuesday was that the United States was being tested in the aftermath of the fall of Vietnam and Cambodia and should not submit to the Cambodian seizure.

GROUP OF 500 women converged on the Embarcadero Center Plaza in San Francisco Tuesday to demonstrate against the threat posed by nuclear power generation. The women, all from northern California, are members of Woman to Woman Building the Earth for the Children's Sake. (UPI)

House sustains farm bill veto

Ford vetoed the bill on May 1 on the ground that it would increase the already swollen federal budget deficit, yet many of the Democrats who voted Tuesday to sustain the veto cited reasons other than fiscal responsibility.

At least 25 Democrats from the major cities such as New York, Boston, Baltimore, Detroit, Chicago and Los Angeles voted with the President on the ground that the bill would have driven up food prices paid by the consumer.

As an indication that this line did gain attention, there were 20 more votes against the bill Tuesday than when it first passed the House on March 20.

Yet 50 Democrats from agricultural states, aided by 25 Republicans who themselves crossed party lines, argued that the farmers needed the support that the bill would have provided and thus voted against Ford.

A few other Democrats, such as Rep. Fred Richmond of New York contended that "Congress must stand up to the President" and not allow him to veto any spending bill that was sent to the White House.

The bill would have increased "target prices" and price supports for cotton, wheat and livestock feed grains, and price support loans for dairy products such as milk, butter and cheese.

Target prices are a trigger for subsidy payments. If market prices fall below the targets provided in the bill the government would have been required to make up the difference in direct payments to farmers. Thus, the aim of the legislation was to shore up farm income if farm prices plummeted.

Price support loans enable farmers to borrow from the government, using their crops as security, while withholding their products from the market in the expectation of rising prices.

As an example, under the terms of the bill the targets for wheat have been raised from $2.05 to $3.10 a bushel and price supports from $1.97 to $2.50. Targets and price supports for corn would have risen a like amount, but cotton would have gone up less.

Total costs of the bill, both to the federal government and to the consumer, varied widely. Even its supporters said it would have cost a minimum of $216 million this year, which they contended was a small price to pay for insurance to provide adequate incomes to farmers.

Kennedy snipes at US evacuation from Saigon

WASHINGTON — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy says "high officials" of the evacuation program have admitted that "half the Vietnamese we intended to get out did not get out and that half who did get out should not have."

The Massachusetts Democrat said Tuesday staff members of the Senate Subcommittee on refugees, of which he is chairman, deduced in an on-the-scene investigation in the Philippines, Guam and California that President Ford's program for evacuation was "ill-conceived, poorly implemented and undertaken with little command control in the field."

He quizzed with administration estimates, based on a survey of the first 50,000 "high risk evacuees, that three-fourths of that number were skilled and literate.

"Increasingly, the refugees are farmers, fishermen, local tradesmen, vendors and South Vietnamese soldiers," Kennedy said.

"Few speak English and fewer still comprehend the implication of their plight as refugees. In fact, many of the refugees fled in panic from conflict and violence — as Vietnamese have fled for years — or of not fully understanding where they are or why they got there," he said.

He said the staff members found that, "for personal reasons, many may wish to seek repatriation to their native land." Committee staff members said this figure could reach the tens of thousands.

Bayh asks pot penalty end

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said today he is aware that many people will be angry at his efforts to remove criminal penalties for possession and non-profit distribution of small amounts of marijuana.

But Bayh added "that's the price we have to pay" for taking action that is necessary.

A bill before Bayh's subcommittee would decriminalize possession and non-profit sales of up to one ounce of marijuana.

The first witness before the panel — Donald E. Miller, chief counsel of the Drug Enforcement Administration — said the administration opposes decriminalization of marijuana for fear it would mean "that the government no longer takes a harsh view regarding prolytizers — those persons who convert naive persons to drug abusers."

Bayh, who heard testimony from five witnesses, said the nation is spending too much money and wasting too many of its law-enforcement agents in pursuing Americans who use marijuana "for reasons that seem good to them."

He said decriminalization of marijuana would allow police and federal agents to turn their attention to the rising tide of violent crime.

In a brief opening statement, Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., turned to a personal experience to illustrate his support for the lessening of marijuana penalties.

TF man injured

TWIN FALLS — Rodney Dee Pooler, 19, Twin Falls, suffered minor injuries when the vehicle he was driving was struck by one driven by Harley Richard Rooter, 59, Twin Falls.

City police said Pooler was traveling north on Carney Street and Rooter was traveling east on Shoup Avenue West when the accident occurred.

Rooter was cited for failure to yield right of way. The Pooler vehicle traveled about 49 feet out of control after the impact and struck a parked car resulting in damage to all three vehicles.

Pooler was listed in good condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital today. He was hospitalized with a concussion.

Farewell planned

JEROME — Rev. and Mrs. John N. Garrabrant will be honored tonight at a farewell party at 8 p.m. at the United Methodist Church.

Rev. Garrabrant, who has been pastor of the Jerome Church for 10 years, will deliver his last sermon June 8. He has been transferred to the United Methodist Church in Cottage Grove, Ore.

Tonight's program is under the direction of Lyle Gray with a number of church members participating. Members and friends are invited to attend.

Pentagon denies weapons on ship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The container ship Mayaguez, captured by the Cambodian navy Monday, does not carry any military weapons or ammunition, the Pentagon reiterated today.

Although there were some reports the ship was chartered by the military to carry military equipment, a spokesman said that was false. The commercially owned ship is operated by the Sea-Land Corporation.

A spokesman said about 10 per cent of the cargo belonged to the military but that no weapons or ammunition were on board. He also said there was no classified equipment because classified material is always shipped on military vessels.

The military shipment, the spokesman said, was known to include mail destined for the U.S. troops in Thailand, plus food for the commissaries and retail goods for the post exchanges there. There was also some office equipment and supplies.

The spokesman said it was possible there were some spare parts for military equipment that were not detailed on the manifest but there could be no weapons or ammunition because they would have had to have been itemized on the manifest.

Death cause listed

TWIN FALLS — The death Saturday of Earl Emil Cook, 60, Twin Falls, has been ruled a traffic fatality.

Twin Falls County Coroner Cloyce Edwards said an autopsy has revealed the man died of internal injuries. It had been thought he might have suffered a heart attack prior to the accident and died as a result.

Mr. Cook was injured when his pickup truck crashed into the rear of a line of other vehicles in front of K mart Saturday afternoon. The lead vehicle in the line of west-bound cars was waiting to make a left turn into the store's parking lot.

Public employes group plans chapter for TF

TWIN FALLS — Plans are underway to form a Twin Falls chapter of the Idaho Public Employes Association (IPEA).

The organization, which acts as a negotiator for many public workers, will sponsor a promotional meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Blue Lakes Inn.

All employes of public agencies, including city and county governments and school districts, are invited to attend.

State employes currently make up most of the membership in the organization. Formerly called the Idaho State Employes Association, it opened its membership to all public employes in 1974.

Membership totals about 4,500 workers.

Gene Bartlett, Twin Falls supervisor of adult development services of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare and a proponent of a local chapter, said the IPEA "in the past has tended to be a national organization."

Also, membership "has tended to be primarily from the lower people on the salary scale," Bartlett said.

Many supporters of the Twin Falls chapter, however, hope to get some professionals involved to prevent it from becoming more of a union than some of us think it should be," he said.

Although the Thursday meeting is open to all public employes, Bartlett said "most of the group that will be there will probably be from the state agencies."

He said about 25 workers from Twin Falls belong to the Magic Valley chapter of the organization. Most members of that chapter, however, live in the Gooding and Shoshone areas, according to Bartlett, which probably discourages attendance by Twin Falls members at IPEA meetings.

Organizers hope to use the 25 Twin Falls workers as a nucleus for the local chapter, Bartlett said. "I would imagine most of the 25 are state employes," he said.

If city and county employes join the organization, it would "make an effort to negotiate their salaries and benefits," Bartlett said, although he isn't sure "what the implications are at the city and county level."

Stephen Swardley and Chuck Murray of IPEA's Boise office and Ivan Hink, Jerome, chairman of the Magic Valley chapter, will attend the Thursday meeting.

Making fires

MOSCOW (UPI) — The workers of shop No. 2 of the Moskabel factory are supposed to be making cables, but they have been producing a bumper crop of fires.

The newspaper Vechnyya Moskva reported Tuesday that the plant burned down last year and was rebuilt.

A couple of months ago, fire struck again. The workers were so drunk they forgot to call the fire department, the newspaper complained.

Nonetheless, the newspaper said, Moskabel has burned down again.

Dietrich adopts budget

DIETRICH — The Dietrich city budget was adopted at $10,060 Monday night after no one appeared to enter a protest, according to city clerk, Mrs. Terry Costello.

The budget is up from $9,000 a year ago with the additional funds designated to complete the new city office and fire truck building.

The building exterior is complete, with most of the interior finished except for some electrical wiring and heating.

A fire siren will be installed on the city hall when it is complete. When a special telephone number is called the siren will blow. In the meantime, fires are reported to any of the city officials.

City officials include Clifford Davis, mayor; Sidney Edwards, treasurer; Mrs. Costello, secretary; Roger Stoddard and John Sabala, councilmen.

The council made plans to seed about one-fourth of the city park into grass this season, and finish it as time and funds permit. The park, adjacent to the city hall, takes in a full city block and has some trees, pole for lights and flag pole.

Considerable discussion was held by the council about the reuse of the city dump north of town. To clean out concrete that has been dumped there will cost the city about $500. City personnel had started to put up a wire fence on the east side of the dump and report someone has stolen the roll of wire and 14 of the steel poles.

Individuals take their trash to the site and periodically the city hires the highway district to bury the debris.

A reading was given by Mrs. John Brown, two piano numbers were played by Therold Ward and a reading was given by Mrs. Eldon Stutzman.

Tables were decorated by Mrs. Henry Dahlquist.

The next meeting will be June 2 with Mrs. Ray Raedel and Mrs. Jack Bishop as hostesses. Mrs. Loren Holloway will be in charge of the program.

At the Paris Exposition of 1900, fairgoers first stepped aboard an electromechanical wonder of the age: the escalator. Today an estimated 400 million people a day ride on 60,000 escalators on all five continents.

Hailey to move sandbar

HAILEY — Hailey will have to go into Big Wood River again soon with crawler tractors to remove a sand bar near the city sewer plant.

The City Council Monday night said a river alteration permit has been extended until May 31 to move the bar to the east side of the river. Flood waters may be diverted against the plant if the bar is not moved, the council said.

In related action the council was told it would cost about $1500 to obtain flood insurance for the city buildings and contents at the plant.

The council made no decision to purchase the insurance however, after Grant Patterson, Hailey, planning and zoning chairman, told the council no structure from the rebuild in the same location after receiving flood insurance.

In other action, Mayor Lawrence Heagle said he was investigating insurance companies to buy city employees rates have risen "almost 50 per cent" (from $400 to $600 monthly).

The council voted to charge double the building permit fee to anyone caught building without a permit. Flood insurance permit must be obtained to construct a building or alter the structure during remodeling.

The council passed an ordinance which prohibits turning across the street at intersections or angle parking on Main Street between Galena and Walnut Street.

The ordinance also prohibits backing across the center line and proceeding in the opposite direction on Main Street.

Approval for a mobile home park in the northeast corner of Hailey will depend much on the input from neighbors, according to the council.

John Drester, Hailey, is seeking a zoning change to construct an eight-unit trailer park in a limited residential zone. The zoning change requires a public hearing before the city planning and zoning commission and the City Council.

Mrs. John Decler said the park will contain paved parking for eight units over 1.5 acres. The streets are to be paved and curbing provided.

The plans, she said, include a playground, laundromat, and second lawns and trees throughout.

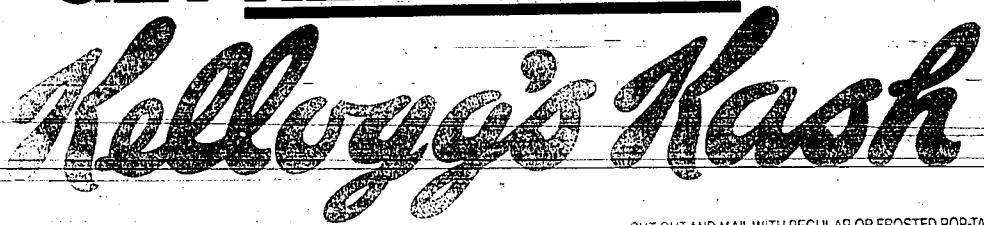

In other action council members said plans have been made to change a city ordinance to allow upgrading of an area zoned for mobile homes. Egan Richmond, Egan Construction, Hailey, said he was not aware of the mobile home designation in northwest Hailey when making plans to build a fourplex there.

Hailey presently has no action in its ordinance to allow the use.

Mayor Heagle announced Hailey begins clean-up week May 17. Any waste material placed in garbage bags or boxes in the alley during the week will be picked up by the city. Brush and tree trimmings must be cut to four-foot lengths.

The watering season has also started. Homes with even house numbers water on even days of the month and odd numbers on odd days.

Demo leadership search may turn to governors

SAN DIEGO — Wherever you go in America these days, you find a longing for new beginnings and new leaders.

After Vietnam and Watergate, even the supporters of Ford, Rockefeller, Reagan, Jackson, Humphrey, Muskie and the other candidates in their 60's seem to be vaguely dissatisfied and hoping for something different, someone younger and more in tune with the coming age of the 1980's.

Governor Brown of California and Governor Carey of New York, both Democrats, illustrate the point. They aren't popular or even well known yet even in their own states, let alone in the nation as a whole, but for the first time in over a generation, the Democrats are beginning to talk privately but seriously about nominating a governor for presidency.

Brown here in California is apparently trying to break out of the old political mold of the days when his father was governor of this state. He is not trying to be popular with the press or following the New Deal, welfare-state, cold-war themes of the 50's and 60's.

Nobody really knows yet what he is trying to do except that he is trying to be different. He is young, handsome, alone, unmarried and uncommitted to any ideology or political strategy of the past.

He doesn't live in the governor's mansion or drive around in big official cars, but stays aloof and seems to be searching for the best in the administration of Earl Warren and Ronald Reagan. In short, he seems to be saying that the old policies and the old techniques are out of date, and that he is going to find a new path to the politics and policies of the future.

California has created many new styles in American politics and life, and Brown is obviously trying to anticipate the political style of the coming generation.

The men of the U.S. Senate have had a monopoly on presidential nominations in both parties since the 1950's — Nixon and Kennedy in 1960; Johnson and Goldwater in 1964; and Nixon and George McGovern in 1972.

Not since 1952 has a governor been nominated for the presidency (Adlai Stevenson of Illinois) and not since 1932 has a governor been elected to the presidency (Franklin Roosevelt of New York).

But the election of Carey as governor of New York and of Brown as governor of California and the emergence of new young attractive governors like Askew of Florida and Anderson of Minnesota has just begun to make the Democratic Party wonder whether it should not go back to the states for its candidate in 1976.

Ever since President Ford stated clearly that he was going to be a candidate in 1976, the Democrats have been reassessing their political problem. They thought, when Ford replaced Nixon, that they could win on Watergate and the economy, with any candidate, but Ford's personality, if not his policies, has proved to be more popular than they supposed.

It has recently occurred to the Democrats that Ford is a serious candidate, that he cannot be blamed for either Vietnam or Watergate, and that the Democratic Party has neither a man or a policy to put against him.

This has been increasingly troubling the young thoughtful Democrats like Joe Callano, Larry McPherson, Ted Sorenson, Arthur Schlesinger, Edward Bennett Williams, Bill Moyers, and many others, but they cannot agree on any candidate or even get together to talk about the Democratic party's problem.

At one point, they seemed to be saying, no Democratic candidate will come out of the primaries with a clear majority in the Democratic convention and then the leaders of the party will have to meet, late or soon, to choose a compromise among the old timers — probably Humphrey or Muskie.

As one of the leaders of the Democratic Party observed the other day, rather sadly, "We will probably compromise on the least unacceptable candidate" — unless, he added, "we turn to the governors."

"The least unacceptable candidate" illustrates the plight of the Democrats. They are counting on the recession and Watergate to bring them back to the White House after eight years, but ignoring the longing in the country for new beginnings and younger men.

And maybe they can win with this negative approach, but the new generation of Democrats is beginning to argue for something different and something better — to "look" in "The Democratic governors for the answer."

Putting teens to work

Christian Science Monitor

The intolerably high unemployment rates for American youths cannot help but have negative long-range implications for American society.

President Ford is right to have asked the new National Commission on Manpower Policy to take up the priority issue of how to get young people into the job market. And Congress should move ahead with plans to fund up to 90,000 summer jobs for youths as part of its $6.1 billion public service jobs bill.

But even with this start at attention, the feeling persists that youth unemployment is worsening at a rate greater than the growing awareness of the problem. The latest unemployment statistics put joblessness at 20 percent for black youths, the rate is as high as 60 percent.

The economic recovery, generally forecast to start sometime after mid-year, is not expected to bring much relief on the employment side for adults or youths for perhaps several years.

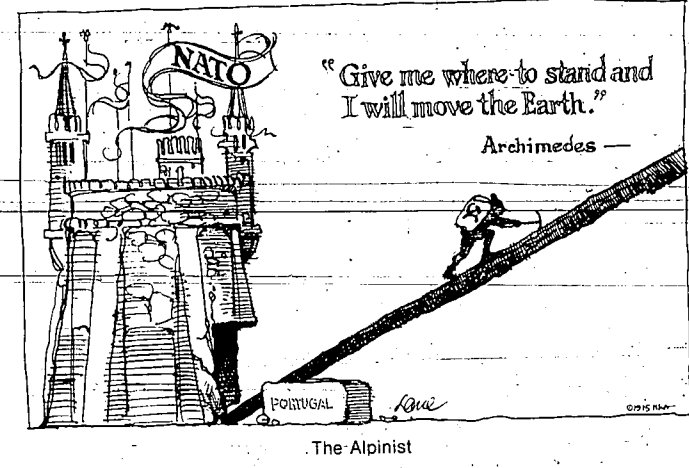

Increased production at first will come from expanded output from the current work force, not from expanded hiring.

Meanwhile, the young sector of the work force is multiplying — in 1980 it will comprise a fourth of the entire labor population.

Several things can be done about the situation. First, it must be seen that the problem is chronic, that it will not fade through the past decade, and that it will not fade through the current recession. Solving teen unemployment in economic-booster areas like Detroit may have to be tied to a major program of industrial and urban renewal. Summer job programs in these areas may help avoid the kind of summer violence that flared in 1967. But against a long-range background of neglect of these run-down economic centers, the most devastated by recession, summer jobs funding will at best buy a little time.

Former Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz has come up with what he calls an "education work policy" worthy of national consideration. He suggests that all teenagers put in at least 500 hours of a job during their high school years. Such a program would compel all members of the community to think far harder than they now do to devise constructive work opportunities for youths.

The job needs of the young cannot be dismissed. The condition of not working leads to a culture of nonworkers. An economy that fails to put the fast-expanding work potential of the young to productive use tends to divide into two classes, with the burden of support falling on the employed, and the burden of discontent and disaffection on the unemployed.

NATO strategy may leak to Moscow

WASHINGTON — When President Ford convenes the NATO summit meeting in Brussels May 21, one head of government sitting in the inner-councils of the western defense organization will be Vasco Dos Santos Goncalves, revolutionary Portugal's prime minister who is widely perceived here as a Marxist and the intimate tie to the Communist Party.

That prospect is causing concern at working levels inside the White House and the Department of Defense. Secretaries Henry Kissinger and James Schlesinger, with this agonizing dilemma: can leaders of the West's defense and political alliance openly discuss their military and defense strategy with Goncalves sitting at the table?

Any unfriendly moves by other NATO members could be interpreted by the powerful Portuguese Communist party as new evidence of Western attempts to subvert their April, 1974, revolution.

It would, in short, be used by the Communists to base political power far exceeds the bare 25 percent of the vote they polled in the recent constituent assembly election in the same way the aborted coup d'etat by the center-right in March was used; to aggrandize their power by charging foreign and counter-revolutionary intervention into Portugal's domestic politics.

Even if the U.S. had a workable plan to deal with this dilemma, guaranteed not to be hampering it, it is certain that European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization would veto it. In Europe, Portugal is still rather well regarded as a member of the European family.

The overwhelming probability, then, is that Ford and his NATO colleagues will finesse the delicate problem of Goncalves listening to uninvited security talks by making the summit largely ceremonial. The intimate talks will go on behind the scenes.

Even so, an horrendous problem is posed by the final communiqué. The question: could Goncalves, who has not before officially conducted any formal part of Portuguese foreign policy, sign a communiqué that could be interpreted as a warning or a threat to the Soviet Union and the Warsaw Pact?

The precise degree of political connection between Lisbon and Moscow is not known here. Soviet diplomats have gone out of their way to try to claim American fears over Communist influence in Portugal, fearful that the U.S.-Soviet detente might be damaged. In fact, however, high officials here worry deeply about several known facts.

With fellow-traveler Goncalves as prime minister and Tront at least two to possibly-four Communists in the 21-man cabinet, the present Portuguese government is moving toward neutrality between the Western and Soviet camps. Such neutrality is antithetical to NATO, which was built for a single purpose: to combine the military power of the West against Moscow.

The Soviet ambassador to Lisbon is the most active envoy in Portugal — and, at 45, one of Moscow's rising stars. He and the ambassadors from Czechoslovakia, Romania and Poland all speak fluent Portuguese (while U.S. Ambassador Frank Carucci is the only ambassador from a NATO member who speaks Portuguese). The Czech ambassador spent five years as special assistant to the foreign minister.

In short, the Warsaw bloc — led by Moscow — has zeroed in on Lisbon by sending only the highest quality diplomats to work there.

Neither Goncalves nor his new foreign minister, Ernesto de Melo Antunes, has given the faintest sign of wanting to take Portugal out of NATO. To the contrary, Goncalves' NATO credentials by pointing to the highly successful NATO naval maneuvers last February, including simulated bombing runs by U.S. aircraft on targets just 30 miles south of Lisbon. The maneuvers went off without a hitch.

Accordingly, even if NATO contained the members for electing a member (which it does not), Portugal remains in good, formal standing.

The paradox is acute: a neutralist-leaning member with ample potential for turning against the U.S. retains its seat in the highest councils of NATO, with the virtual certainty that any secret defense strategy adopted in Brussels will inevitably flow back to Moscow.

Government power shift bewildering

The shift of power from the executive to the legislative branch of government has come with a terrible swiftness.

It is yet another historical irony, because, although it has been American conservatives who have rallied against executive supremacy, it is American liberals who are benefitting from the ascendancy of the legislative branch.

We all know how it happened. It was not the result of an orderly rethinking of government arrangements. It happened because of Watergate and the peculiar leverages one event had upon another.

It began with the fear of the omnipotent president in foreign affairs. The revolt in Congress was in reaction to the uses made by Lyndon Johnson of the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution in 1965. Before that, Republicans in particular had criticized executive arrogance in foreign affairs. Indeed, if the standards brought against Richard Nixon's conduct of foreign affairs had been used against Franklin Delano Roosevelt, I do believe the gentleman would have been not only impeached, but perhaps have been resigned to the voters that followed Nixon's resignation, the voters stayed home in droves, and those who went to the polls voted substantially for a young set of legislators who went to Washington determined to dominate not only foreign policy, but to turn the domestic plant as well. It happened that this set of legislators were of a progressive, loosely associated with the memory of Nixon. Accordingly, they came to Washington and began doing what everybody likes most to do: spend other people's money.

Early on, in a show of power against the Democratic leadership, which has always believed-in deficit financing, they established rule by caucus. This is now called King Caucus. And it tends to work as follows: The majority party caucuses, and reaches a conclusion concerning a particular issue. The minority is consulted by the caucus on whether to share them with the Associated Press. The other assumption is that it is an act of bourgeois restraint to spend less money than is required to achieve whatever philanthropic purpose any legislator has in mind.

The natural answer to an irresponsible Congress is — a responsible Congress. It is Congress itself that should curb the excesses of King Caucus. Otherwise, it requires the reestablishment of a dominant executive. There are conservative theorists who reason that only a strong executive can summon the public power to contest an irresponsible Congress backed by this huge bureaucracy. It feeds the need at this moment, above all expressions of non-responsible Democrats in the House and in the Senate deploring the excesses of some of their colleagues. These Democrats need, in turn, support from sober members of the progressive establishment.

Because mature men know that, in the end, nothing is achieved by Congressional irresponsibility except the loss of freedom and stability.

Graduation flings

Wood River Journal

The Wood River high school senior class will maintain a longstanding tradition among high school seniors in two weeks as they drive up some out-of-the-way canyon in the Wood River valley and proceed to get totally drunk.

In a meeting last week at the high school, students laughed off the pleas of youth services officer Mack Reynolds for some school activity other than a drunk. Even as Reynolds spoke, tickets to the beer bust were on sale in the high school.

The responsibility of lecturing 17 and 18-year-old students on the problems related to alcohol doesn't lie with the sheriff's office or the state police. Lectures from these authoritarian forces only fuel the fires of defiance and add to the fun of trying to hide from the cops on the night of the party.

There is nothing particularly evil about a senior beer bust and students celebrating their graduation will turn out just as normal as the other hundreds who have gone through the same ritual. The danger however, is that some senior won't make it through the celebration.

Too many graduation parties and in tracing when celebrating senior is found in a mangled car along the highway late at night. Parents and students alike should understand the dangers of over-zealous partying when it mixes with driving.

At the same time seniors should carefully examine the need for getting plastered just for the fun of it. Senior parties are memorable events. Why spend the evening heaving in the backseat when a little restraint would make the whole event more fun?

Grappling with US budget not fun

By DONALD SMITH
 Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Writing a congressional budget is not as much fun as playing monopoly. "An exhausted senator allowed recently at the end of one particularly grueling session of the Senate Budget Committee."

The senator was Maine Democrat Edmund S. Muskie, reflecting the uneasiness of most members of Congress as they grapple with the politically explosive question of how much the federal government should be spending during this recessionary period. Muskie is the committee chairman.

The House and Senate now are deciding on a target spending figure for fiscal year 1976. That figure — along with targets of revenues, the amount of deficit and other related figures — is due Thursday. The targets are supposed to guide Congress through the summer months as it votes on individual spending measures.

This is the first year Congress has put itself through such an exercise. In the past, lawmakers have processed individual spending and revenue bills without much regard to how they totaled up in the end. Such worries as whether spending would outstrip revenues — resulting in a deficit — were left to the President.

That was changed with passage last year of the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act, part of an historic attempt by Congress to regain control of the government's purse strings. Parts of the law are being implemented this year, with a complete run-through set for 1976.

Members of Congress are less impressed with the historical glory of it all than with the fact that this year is particularly bad one for them to be compiling a voting record on the economy.

Few members look forward to voting in favor of a deficit of any size, and the fiscal 1976 deficit promises to be the largest since World War II.

Many fiscal conservatives were shocked when President Ford himself last February proposed a budget that included a deficit of $5.1 billion. Since then Ford's estimate has risen. At the end of March he told a nationwide television audience he was drawing the line at $60 billion.

At the same time, congressional liberals have been pressing to increase the size of the deficit to finance temporary recovery legislation such as public works and public service jobs programs.

With these two competing impulses at work — one to control the deficit and the other — to stimulate the economy — the House and Senate have taken their first steps on target figures. The revenues and the efforts now taking place to reconcile the House version with the Senate's, tell much about the difficulties of getting 535 individual legislators to agree on such politically sensitive legislation.

In the Senate, attempts by James L. Buckley, R-N.Y., and Robert Dole, R-Kan., to reduce the deficit, an effort by Walter F. Mondale, D-Min., to raise it and a stab at balancing the budget by Jesse A. Helms, R-N.C., all received little support.

With the help of ranking Republican committee member Henry Bellmon, Okla., Muskie was able to hold together a solid majority of support for the committee's recommended deficit of about $6.2 billion.

Many conservative senators agreed with Muskie and Bellmon, who both argued repeatedly that the major difference between the President's projections and those of the committee stemmed from different estimates of recession-induced spending for programs such as unemployment benefits and food stamps.

Muskie said the committee's estimates were more realistic than the President's. Bellmon went so far as to label Ford's estimates as "phony."

Viets arrive in Korea

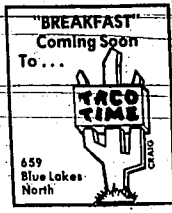

D. N. Times Service
SEOUL—South Korea— Nearly a thousand South Vietnamese refugees arrived at Pusan Tuesday morning, 17 days after they fled Saigon aboard two South Korean naval vessels.

They were warmly received by hundreds of citizens and port officials 210 miles south of here.

In addition to the Vietnamese, the evacuees included 33 Chinese and a Filipino. There were also more than 300 South Koreans aboard the ships. Some of the Vietnamese were dependents of Korean nationals and others employees of Korean companies or agencies in South Vietnam.

Meanwhile, a third ship, a civilian freighter carrying refugees picked up from the South China Sea, will bring 217 more refugees to the port.

The official also said that negotiations will begin soon to decide what to do with the refugees. The South Korean government hopes to send them to the United States or Australia if they are able to secure sponsors.

Reporter gives views on labor camp situation

By GEORGE WILEY
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS— Being put on the spot for an opinion is something that all reporters dislike.

It's not part of a reporter's job to say publicly what he thinks. It is his job to report what happens and to ask the hard question in a controversy. But it is not his job to take sides. In fact, his job is just the opposite, for if he says what he thinks he is soon charged with biased reporting.

Nonetheless, in the heat of a controversy, the reporter often asks "What do you think?" And usually the reporter must reply, "I don't have an opinion, I'm just reporting this." It is the reporter's fate and his comfort to always be riding the fence.

But a reporter has opinions, just like anyone else. Sometimes the objectivity which a reporter cultivates breaks down. He finally says what he thinks.

I had asked Charles Colner, chairman of the Twin Falls Labor Center board, first, if he put barbed wire fence around his front lawn and ran horses on it, and second, if he would like to live in the barracks of the labor camp.

I asked the questions because all week long culminating in the Saturday protest march at the labor camp it had seemed to me unusually cruel to take away the lawn at the labor camp — the single human feature of that sorry place — and turn it into a pasture for horses, and secondly, because, seeing the barracks at the camp once again, I was once again reminded of, the gain, filthy conditions in which the field workers are asked to live — and not only asked to live as adults but raise their children there, too.

It was then that Colner asked me: "Well, what would you do?"

I repeated the line about a reporter being unable to say. But then I told him I would at least get the fences and the horses off the lawn and get the barracks cleaned up.

When Colner then asked me, "Well, who would you suggest to mow the lawn?" I was too flustered to suggest the obvious answer: the camp manager.

But in telling Colner that I thought the fences and horses should be removed from the front lawn, I only told a part of what I think about the labor camp situation. Here, briefly, is the rest of it.

First of all, camp manager William Taylor, who has been the object of almost all the criticism by residents of the camp, is in my opinion, running scared.

Taylor's approach to the camp manager's job has been to employ the rule book and the iron fist. People who don't like the camp can "leave it" he loves to say.

When I first made a visit to Taylor — two weeks ago, unannounced in the mid-afternoon, he was sitting with his feet up on his office desk reading, oddly enough, a copy of the Times-News. He was wearing, as I had been told he would be, a badge and a gun.

Barbed wire had been strung all over the labor camp lawn. It looked like a prison camp. "I'm the only one who's ever done anything for these people," Taylor said somewhere along the line, concerning the migrants, "if they don't want to follow the rules they are free to leave."

Now, under pressure, Taylor is determined not to give an inch. Rather than try to cooperate with the migrants, he is determined that they are going to do things his way. But Taylor is not running a chain gang, he is managing a labor camp. He is so determined not to give an inch that he has done a great job of painting himself in a corner, and the only thing that can come of it is more trouble. Somewhere along the line Taylor may hurt someone, or he may get hurt. It will all be very stupid.

If Taylor can't bring himself to back off a bit, quite a bit, then I think he should be dismissed by the board.

But if Taylor is willing to cooperate with the migrants, then I think Jesus Rojas and the other migrant leaders should give him the chance, a last chance. They should make it clear to Taylor that if he helps them, they will help him. Even to the point of making him feel a bit more secure.

Likely this won't happen, because bitterness on both sides is approaching, if it has not already reached the point of no return. But maybe it could happen.

Personally, I find it hard to forgive Taylor for having been so insensitive as to fence the labor camp lawn with barbed wire. But some of the wire has come down at Colner's request. Maybe the rest of it will.

Second, I think that whether Taylor is fired or not, the labor center board should take immediate action to provide both a Chicano representative on the camp board and a Chicano caretaker in some capacity at the camp, either as an assistant to Taylor, or, if Taylor is fired, as an assistant to the next camp manager, or, even better, as a camp manager.

The point is, there needs to be a Spanish speaking person available and with some degree of authority available in a labor camp where most of the residents themselves speak Spanish. This is not a matter of racial equality so much as it is a matter of practicality.

Third, I think the labor center board should open its eyes and take a new look at the Idaho Migrant Council.

Colner said Friday he would not consider giving the labor center to the IMC. I'm not saying he should. But by

Bellevue taxpayer has ire aroused

Editor, Times-News:

I write this letter to bring a few figures to wage earners and taxpayers who are drawing social security.

It is said if you desire something done about something the government is doing which in your mind is against the best desires of the people, one should write to their congressmen. Well, I want this to be read by more than just my congressman.

In the May 6th issue of the Times-News we all read about how "damned mad" our president was at these "great humanitarians" for turning their back on the Vietnamese. Maybe he hasn't gotten out a pencil and paper and roughly figured how many "billions" we have already spent helping these people, not a few mere millions but billions.

Now we are asked to dole out $507 million to keep them 150,000 until June, 1976. That amounts to $3,380 for each one, not just the adults but everyone, per year, or $29.67 per month or $9.29 per day. Now this is just simple grade school arithmetic and anyone can figure it out. Now the next question — how much is the next dole going to amount to?

Now from the social security person's point of view. A very good friend of mine who lives here in Bellevue retired a year or two ago. He has been a wage earner and has paid into the social security program ever since it started. I would say that his wages all this time would be above the average scale as he was first a mechanic then a service manager and later on a car and farm equipment then a salesman and a good one too.

I asked him a day or two ago what he was getting each month from social security. He said it was $227.80 a month. Now again plain grade school arithmetic gives the Vietnamese $53.87 more than our own people and many of them are way under 65 years of age and none have paid as much as a thin dime into the program. Remember taxpayers, this isn't a "hand out" to you when you become 65 years old and eligible for social security, it is your own money which you have worked for and saved for a rainy day.

It doesn't belong to the government. To dole out any place they take a notion, it belongs to you and is entrusted to the care of the government, or at least that is what we are led to believe.

Now I believe I have said all I had on my mind but here is one "damned mad" taxpayer about this latest Washington boondoggle.

Elk meat wasted

Editor, Times-News:

While watching last night's news on KMYT, I was quite distressed to see those beautiful elk starting to death in Yellowstone Park. What is the matter with the people who handle matters like that? Their stupidity should be given the award of the year.

Is this what our taxes are paying for? Why don't they fly food to the elk by helicopters, or transport them to another area where food is more plentiful? I think the best idea would be to allow the hunters to take more deer or elk in the fall. Even extending the season if necessary. The population of the animals would be cut down for winter, and people would have more meat on the table.

To just let them starve is the worst kind of mismanagement. When I think of the horrible waste and stupidity of it all, as well as the inhumanity of it I could cry.

I know that if you or I went up there tomorrow and poached an elk, we would be jailed and fined. Yet, they let the elk die and the meat lies there and rots. It just doesn't make sense.

Discussion set on visit to hospital

TWIN FALLS — "Have a Good Stay — A Discussion of How To," a program to inform prospective patients of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The program is planned to give the prospective patients and their families a chance to learn what to expect during a hospital stay and to ask specific questions about procedures as related to their individual cases.

James Rosenbaum, administrator, said the meetings are open to the public and that questions which would be more properly answered by the patient's physician will not be discussed. He said questions pertaining to nursing care, hospital routines and procedures will be welcome.

Hearing slated at Hagerman

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman School Board Monday stated the district's annual budget hearing for June 9 at 8 a.m. in the board room.

The proposed budget, when established, will be published in a legal advertisement, according to Supt. Ken Black.

The board also offered contracts to four new teachers including instructors for kindergarten and fourth grade, an "overflow" teacher for first and second grades and a social studies teacher for the high school.

No contract has been offered for an opening in the home economics department, Black said.

In other action, the board agreed to provide material for landscaping the new elementary school. The Parent-Teacher Organization has offered to donate the manpower for the job.

The board also agreed to sponsor a meet-Cross swimming lessons again this summer at Gooding.

The board also approved district participation in the state Future Farmers of America contest at Moscow.

3 elected to plan museum

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls men have been elected to the board of directors of a non-profit corporation that will raise funds for a cultural museum on the College of Southern Idaho campus.

CSU President James Taylor, Twin Falls Bank and Trust President Curtis Eaton and jeweler and museum operator Norman Herrett received nearly all the votes cast in the election at CSU.

According to unofficial results, 148 persons cast ballots. Taylor received 146 votes; Herrett, 143, and Eaton, 142.

Six persons received a single write-in vote: Sue Pack, Dorothy Getz, Terrill Castaneda, Nedra Blankinship, Joan Bean and LaVar Steel.

The new board has not met to name a chairman.

Plans call for the museum to house Herrett's collection of historical artifacts and educational displays. Herrett has for many years operated a museum and planetarium on Kimberly Road.

The museum will cost about $160,000, according to Taylor. An application for $50,000 in federal construction funds was submitted last month to the national bicentennial commission.

Also, an application for incorporation has been filed with the state and the Internal Revenue Service, has been asked to give the organization tax-exempt status, Taylor said.

Firm urges turning off pilot light

TWIN FALLS — Turning off the pilot lights on gas furnaces during the summer is a method of conserving fuel recommended by the Gas Appliance Manufacturers Association.

Instructions for turning off and re-lighting the pilot are on furnaces manufactured during the last 18 years which bear the association's certification seal.

A safety precaution is to turn down the thermostat to the lowest reading before re-lighting the pilot.

Senate breaks consumer bill filibuster

Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — An off-and-on filibuster that kept the Senate from voting on a consumer advocacy bill for three years finally has been broken. The Senate voted 71 to 27 Tuesday to close debate on the proposal to set up an independent agency to represent consumers' interests inside the councils of government.

Under the Senate's debate limitation rule, the decision to invoke cloture, carried by 11 votes more than necessary. Moreover, the 71 votes were 6 more than the two-thirds needed to override a presidential veto.

Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., who rallied the opposition pleaded for the "close to 30 votes" he said would encourage President Ford in veto the measure if it passes the House. Many business organizations have resisted the consumer protection agency for the same reasons cited by Allen that it would establish a new bureaucracy and more government "Big Brotherism" to "complicate the lives of producers."

During the last three years there have been seven attempts to bring the issue to a vote on the Senate floor. Last September, although the legislation clearly was supported by a majority, the effort to close debate failed by two votes.

Meanwhile, some senators who had participated in the filibuster — from Colorado, Florida and North Carolina — were replaced by others who voted differently Tuesday. The Democratic sponsors of the legislation, Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, Conn., that a tariff favored by shoe-factory workers in Connecticut has the effect of raising the prices of foreign-made shoes.

SAN FRANCISCO hospital workers went to the California state capitol at Sacramento Tuesday, demanding that Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. call a special session of the legislature to deal with the state's malpractice insurance crisis. A strike which has reduced hospital services in the San Francisco area is threatening to spread across the state. (Related story, p. 8) (UPI)

California malpractice strike threatens

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The two-week doctors strike over soaring malpractice rates was poised to break open across California today.

The 10,000-member Los Angeles County Medical Association will hold a meeting tonight and there were indications the strike could spread to much of Southern California early next week. In addition, there were reports that doctors in Long Beach might go out even sooner.

In Northern California, San Mateo County anesthesiologists, who started a slowdown Monday, said elective surgery would continue for the rest of this week, then terminate. They said they would administer anesthetics only in life-and-death situations.

Doctors in Sonoma and Monterey counties joined striking colleagues in seven other Northern California counties Tuesday.

About 400 San Francisco nurses and orderlies, many of them out of work because of slowdowns in hospitals, rallied outside the state Capitol in Sacramento Tuesday and then moved to Gov. Edmund G. Brown's outer office to confer with him. They want him to call a special legislative session on the issue.

But Robert E. Cartwright, president of the 25,000-member Association of Trial Lawyers of America, branded the strike as part of "a multimillion-dollar propaganda campaign."

Cartwright said "the cause of the medical malpractice crisis is malpractice on the part of the doctors and if they want to eliminate the premium problem, they should eliminate the malpractice."

He said a federal study told the doctors two years ago what to do to avoid problems, making these points:

- The doctors should "eliminate two million unnecessary operations annually."
- They should opte incompetency in their own profession.

—An injury prevention program should be instituted immediately because most of the mishaps are "preventable," especially with the consultation of experts.

In addition, said Cartwright, "We need more doctors and nurses because they're all too rushed and this helps them make mistakes."

compartments would almost certainly burst. The winds and currents would then carry the oil directly onto the northeast shores of the Dominican Republic 50 miles to the west.

The U.S. embassy in Santo Domingo was asked Tuesday to alert Dominican authorities to the danger.

The Epile Colocolonris, bound from Venezuela to New York City, split her hull early Tuesday soon after passing into the Atlantic Ocean north of Mona Passage, which separates Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic.

The engine room began flooding, setting off a series of electrical fires. The 36-man crew immediately abandoned the ship in lifeboats after ridding an SOS. The crew members were picked up by two other tankers.

Peruvians seize Gulf subsidiary

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — The Peruvian military government has expropriated a small Gulf Oil subsidiary, accusing the U.S. company of "notorious, immoral conduct" in Latin America.

But a Gulf official in Lima played down the takeover, saying the firm's Peruvian operation is so tiny "there's nothing to expropriate."

The military regime announced the expropriation Tuesday night in a caustic communique that attacked Gulf Oil for allegedly paying off Latin American politicians.

"Because of the notorious, immoral conduct of Gulf Oil, the revolutionary government ordered an end to the company's operations and the immediate expropriation of the properties of its subsidiary," the statement said.

The communique cited a report in the Wall Street Journal that Gulf paid $2 million in "contributions" to Latin American politicians between 1966 and 1970.

"When a multinational company violates criminal statutes and offends public morality, the company should be excluded from further operations in Peru," the government said.

The statement said the government, by ordering the takeover of Gulf, was "fulfilling its duty to protect the threatened public morality" in Peru.

Edwin McCain, Gulf's operations manager in Peru, made a statement of the expropriation. He said Gulf's small Peruvian subsidiary only runs a chain of 13 service stations. He said Gulf of Peru, which began operations in 1967, has just 26 employees in the South American country.

McCain refused to disclose the value of Gulf's properties in Peru, but sources close to the government estimated the figure at less than $50,000.

The military government expropriated a big American-owned oil firm, the International Petroleum Co., soon after taking power seven years ago, touching off a bitter dispute with the United States.

The regime had described the takeover of IPC, a branch of Standard Oil of New Jersey, as a move to end "foreign economic imperialism" in the country.

Abandoned tanker burns

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — An abandoned Greek tanker spewing flames rocked in the choppy waters of the Atlantic today, threatening to explode like "a time bomb" and dump tons of oil onto the shores of the Dominican Republic.

A Dutch salvage tug steamed from Jamaica toward the half-submerged, 776-foot Epile Colocolonris and was expected to arrive Thursday morning.

"Nobody is going to do anything until we know whether we are dealing with a time bomb," a U.S. Coast Guard spokesman said.

Smoke and flames spewed from the tanker's stern. The Coast Guard said it was impossible to tell when the fire might reach the cargo of 390,000 barrels of crude oil.

Officials said if the tanker sinks, its cargo

Industry taken over
 LISBON (UPI) — Portugal's military government today nationalized the cement, cellulose and tobacco industries and instituted wage controls in its accelerated program to transform the country into a "leftwing Socialist state."
 A government spokesman said the third of the services takeovers would affect 20 large firms.
 The government already controls the transportation, communications, chemical, petroleum and pharmaceutical industries, as well as the nation's banks, insurance companies and the mass media.

Agreement check need

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three senators said that a major lesson to be learned from Vietnam is the need for a more thorough examination of executive agreements made with foreign governments.

Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., chairman of a Senate subcommittee examining executive agreements, said the best example of misuse of executive agreements was a series of letters from President Nixon to South Vietnam's Nguyen Van Thieu promising the United States would respond with force if North Vietnam violated the Paris peace agreement.

The promises apparently were made to persuade Thieu to accept the cease-fire, allowing withdrawal of U.S. troops and return of American POWs. They were not honored.

About six months after the Nixon-Thieu correspondence in August, 1973 — further U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia without consent of Congress was prohibited by law.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and others, have called these secret commitments. The administration maintains that the promises to Thieu were no farther than Nixon's statements on the public record.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, sponsor of a bill to give the Senate review over all executive agreements, said of the virtually conducted an eight-year war by executive agreement.

An executive agreement, reached between two heads of state, has the legal force of a treaty, but does not go through the constitutional requirement of two-thirds approval by the Senate.

Said Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., "I don't think the President (Nixon) had authority to make his pledge (to Thieu). I think this is authorization or approval as a treaty."

Although this week's hearings are to cover all kinds of executive agreements, Tuesday's testimony kept returning to the Nixon-Thieu letters.

Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, the retired chief of naval operations, told the committee Nixon's public statements must be read in the context of Watergate — that was said about these commitments at a process during which a president was destroying himself and the presidency was becoming unraveled.

Zumwalt said he was "miffed" that Nixon had not mounted stronger opposition to Congress' August, 1973, prohibition of further U.S. military involvement in Southeast Asia. Zumwalt said Nixon's Watergate problems forced him to back off because congressional — and — public support were eroding.

Zumwalt said it is "absolutely mandatory" that Congress be informed of agreements it may be forced to keep. He said the Nixon situation was "so unique" that Congress should not over-compensate.

"Anything we try to do statutorily to compensate for the excesses of his regime might make it difficult to conduct foreign policy," he said.

WILLIAM SEAWELL ... outlines plan
SHAH REZA PAHLEVI ... offers loan

Iran shah ready to help Pan Am

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Shah of Iran is just about ready to pump $300 million into financially ailing Pan American World Airways.

Pan Am stockholders were told Tuesday that there would be a final agreement with Mohammed Reza Pahlevi in a few weeks.

Pan Am Board Chairman William T. Scawell said the Shah would hold a mortgage on the entire jet fleet and on half the company's hotels as security. The deal, he added, was subject to approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

And, the executive said, there were still "obstacles to be overcome."

Sources said the financing pact would be announced within a few days during the Shah's state visit to the United States.

American banks cut off credit to Pan Am some months ago when the airline was $250 million in the red and losing nearly a million dollars a day. Pan Am, which pioneered overseas air travel 40 years ago, reported losses of $81.8 million for 1974 and $39 million for the first quarter of this year.

Some $55 million of the Iranian money will be used to obtain 55 per cent. of Intercontinental Hotel Corp., a profitable Pan Am subsidiary which operates 80 hotels around the world. Most of the $245 million left will be used to repay loans. Iran will be given the option to buy $6 million worth of authorized but unissued shares of Pan Am stock.

Despite the infusion of new money, Scawell told some 600 stockholders at the carrier's annual meeting that the company still hoped to work out a merger with another U.S. airline.

As of the moment, Scawell said, negotiations were in a state of suspension until completion of the Iranian deal.

Scawell said the purpose of the deal with the Shah and the merger proposal was to "create a global airline more suitably attuned to 1975, 1976 and beyond."

Manson attacked

FOLSOM, Calif. (UPI) — Convicted mass murderer Charles Manson was attacked by a longtime enemy Tuesday as he walked in the Folsom Prison exercise yard for only the third time in more than 2 1/2 years.

Guards fired shotgun rounds to break up the fight after a third inmate jumped into the fray. Manson, 40, was not injured, but Kenneth Como, who has links to women in the so-called Manson family, was injured by one of the shots. He was taken to the prison hospital for observation.

Associate Warden Huel Morphis said Como attacked Manson as he entered into the yard. Morphis said Como also attacked Manson the last time he was in the yard. The prison official said it was Manson's third walk in the yard in more than 2 1/2 years because he had been kept in a special unit for a long period of time.

Morphis said Bobby Davis, who was on Death Row at San Quentin with Manson, joined the fight before the shots were fired.

BOB WILLIS ... dies at 70

Musician dies of pneumonia

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Bob Willis, the lead singer for a group called Asleep at the Wheel, walked to the microphone of the Longhorn Ballroom Tuesday night and told 1,500 persons who came to pay tribute to Bob Willis there was no reason for sadness.

"We're going to play Bob Willis' music. Just like we always do," Benson said in leading his group, which plays the country swing music Willis originated 30 years ago. "We don't want any sadness here and we want everybody to be happy because Bob played his music and we want everybody dancing. Bob would have wanted it that way."

Bob Willis, the man Merle Haggard called "the best damn fiddle player in the whole wide world," died at 1:05 p.m. Tuesday of bronchial pneumonia. He was 70.

He died at the Kent Nursing Home where he had been confined the last year, completely unable to communicate after suffering his second stroke in 1973, according to a spokesman for the nursing home. He was in a coma the last two months and died without regaining consciousness.

His death came at a time when his music, some of it recorded as long ago as 1945, was enjoying its biggest popularity in his home state.

The songs Willis made famous with his bands, the Lightcrust Doughboys and later the Texas Playboys, are still played from the plush ballrooms of New York to the small country clubs of Bakersfield, Calif. Songs like "San Antonio Rose," "Faded Love," "Take Me Back to Tulsa," and "Stay All Night, Stay A Little Longer."

"This is the man who originated the Nashville music," the late Tex. Ritter said in 1968 when Willis was inducted into the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Willis, himself, doubted he would ever be inducted into the hall. "I play western-musical country music," he told a friend who drew him to the Ryman Auditorium, the original home of the Grand Ole Opry, in Nashville the night he was named to the country music honor roll.

"He was a giant, a super giant before there were super giants, an Elvis Presley of the 1930s and '40s," a Dallas recording official said.

He is survived by his wife, Betty, who spent the last six days at his bedside, three daughters, a son, three brothers and four sisters.

The family said there will be no memorial services in Fort Worth. He will be buried in Dallas.

Soyuz-Apollo space mission rehearsed

HOUSTON (UPI) — Flight controllers solved life-or-death problems dreamed up by experts, sending the pretend Apollo spacecraft toward a make-believe orbital link-up with the Soviet Soyuz.

The start of the American half of the joint U.S.-Soviet flight simulated through computers Tuesday, was fraught with problems which could stop the real mission this summer.

The simulation picks up again Thursday for docking and two days of joint activities.

Soyuz simulated launch early Tuesday went without a hitch. Alexei Leonov and Spacemen for both countries worked inside computer-operated spacecraft simulators, pretending to launch and reach orbit where they were to meet two days later.

The simulation picks up again Thursday for docking and two days of joint activities.

Soyuz simulated launch early Tuesday went without a hitch. Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov "blasted off" at 8:20 a.m. EDT — the exact time and day of the week of the real July 15 launch.

American astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Donald K. "Deke" Slayton and Vance D. Brand practiced their launch seven and one-half hours later.

Mission Control — the Johnson Space Center — screened a video replay of an earlier American launch and a few observers said they briefly believed it was the real thing.

The promised Soyuz air-to-ground communications and a video replay of a former launch were not provided. A NASA official said it was a misunderstanding of which circuits were to be used to transmit the communications to this country.

The problem should not occur on the real flight, the officials said, and observers will monitor all communications from the Soyuz.

A tape-recorded replay one hour after the launch showed a startling difference from the U.S. technical jargon.

Burch will lead nomination try

WASHINGTON — Veteran Republican leader Dean Burch will head President Ford's effort to win the GOP presidential nomination in 1976.

Melvin Laird, a long-time political adviser to Ford, said Tuesday that Burch would manage Ford's campaign at least through the Republican National Convention next summer.

Burch, who was GOP national chairman when Sen. Barry Goldwater ran for president in 1964, already heads a group of six friends of Ford who are making plans for the president's race.

Laird, speaking at a breakfast session with newsmen, said there are several "good reasons" for tapping Burch for the campaign job, among them Burch's close ties to the Republican party's conservative wing. Some conservatives are disenchanted with Ford's performance in the White House.

"His organizational ability is good," Laird said of Burch. "He was a good delegate chairman" for Goldwater in 1964.

Following the convention, Laird said, the Ford campaign will be run under the auspices of the Republican National Committee. This would make Mary Louise Smith, the GOP national chairman, Ford's chief campaign manager.

But Laird said that a separate campaign director might be installed in the national committee structure. In any event, the President has no plans to remove Mrs. Smith, Laird added.

The basic strategy being devised by Burch, Laird and the four other men who are planning the Ford campaign calls for the President to avoid most primary elections unless he is seriously challenged for the Republican nomination.

"It will be a mistake (for Ford) to go into every primary," Laird said, noting that the President probably will be placed on the ballot in seven primaries regardless.

If there is a strong challenge, however, Ford would be forced to enter all the Republican presidential primaries next year, Laird said.

But Laird, who has defense secretary and then a White House adviser during the Nixon administration, said he does not expect "any major primary challenge" as far as the President is concerned. There's not going to be a great deal of interest in the Republican primary campaign, he said.

Like a number of Democrats, Laird predicted Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., would wind up as the Democratic presidential nominee next year, and he said that Kennedy would probably be the strongest opponent for Ford.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who appears to be the current frontrunner now for the Democratic nomination, "is going to have a tough time in the primaries," Laird predicted.

Nol denies payoff reports

HONOLULU (UPI) — Former Cambodian President Lon Nol describes as "crazy lies" reports he had been given a million dollars to flee his nation as Communist force approached.

In his first interview since leaving Phnom Penh, Lon Nol also called for world condemnation of alleged Khmer Rouge atrocities and blamed Cambodia's defeat on the brute force massed against us by a determined coalition of Communist aggressors.

Despite acute shortages of promised U.S. aid and armaments, Lon Nol said he did not feel America had betrayed Cambodia.

There was only one airplane when we left Cambodia. Then we transferred to the Indonesian plane, and then we flew here from Guam in an American Air Force jet. It would have been impossible to have carried even a small amount of gold to say nothing of the 16 tons I was supposed to have brought away with me."

Lon Nol, 62, attired in an aloha shirt and green slacks, said his financial situation could not even be described as "comfortable" by American standards and said he was going to have to be "very clever" to support his family in Hawaii.

During an hour and 45 minute discussion Tuesday, of Cambodia and himself, Nol also said:

"It would be very difficult for the unassisted Cambodians to depose the Khmer Rouge."

He had no knowledge of any American "pressure" to have him from office.

"The Communists had violated the Geneva accords on warfare and treatment of POWs and had ignored the principles of diplomatic immunity.

He produced a cabinet-signed document inviting him back to Phnom Penh as evidence of the "crazy lies" that he had been given a million-dollar bribe to flee Cambodia and had taken with him tons of government gold.

"I was never paid a million dollars to leave Cambodia," he snapped. "When I left it was on a diplomatic mission whose expense was to be paid in monthly installments through a government letter of credit issued on the Bank of Cambodia. We were only able to draw a small amount when the government fell and this paper became worthless."

"As for the tons of gold," he said, shaking his head in amazement, "how was I supposed to have done it?"

Urologists warn about male cancer

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Urologists say cancer of the testicles afflicts one of every 2,000 American males during their lifetimes, and almost 95 per cent of the lumps on the testicles of men in the 25-to-35 age group are cancerous.

The doctors, meeting this week at the 70th annual convention of the American Urological Association, also said Tuesday the form of cancer rarely spreads from one testicle to the other, and that surgery for it is unlikely to result in the loss of sexual potency.

The AUA has put together a 10-minute film illustrating a simple self-examination for men to determine if they have a lump on the testicle.

Dr. John Ravera of Long Beach, Calif., who supervised the preparation of the film, said he hoped the film would help men seek medical attention for a testicle lump more quickly after they discover they have one.

"We hope it will reduce the average six months interval between the time when a man first notices a lump on one of his testicles and the time he seeks medical attention for it," Ravera said.

The finger and thumb examination for lumps on the testicles shown in the film is similar to the self-test for breast cancer which has had dramatic results in early detection of that form of cancer among women.

Gem humanities director meets with prison aides over art program

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Arts and Humanities Commission director met with State Penitentiary administrators in the governor's office Tuesday to discuss prisoners' complaints about the budgeting of an arts program at the prison.

Suzanne D. Taylor, told Correction Director Don Erickson and Warden Dick Anderson she has not been able to discuss just how the administration of funding is going out there.

"She said she had received letters from prisoners that they have not gotten the art equipment they requested under the Desert Arts program which is funded through the commission."

Grand Drewery, administrator of operations for the Department of Corrections said there is no coordination of the institution for the program.

Warden Anderson volunteered to act as the coordinator with help from someone else from time to time to make sure the Desert Arts Council meets its obligations to the prisoners with the Arts Commission.

The others at the meeting agreed that Anderson should act as the liaison between the commission and prisoners, and provide guidance to the prisoners in the program.

Anderson said he also would look into the Desert Arts Council rule that only 10 of its 50 members are allowed to vote.

Erickson expressed concern that the administration have a say on what the inmates can purchase with the $2,400 the Desert Arts Council received in its grant from the federal government and Idaho legislature.

regarding the security of the institution just because such items were ordered for art work."

Mrs. Taylor said all she was asking is "that they receive the things that they are asking for and that it can be shown in the books — and that the prisoners comply with the contract they have with the commission."

In answer to a comment from Drewery that he was in doubt about the problems that had brought them together, Mrs. Taylor referred to difficulties she and Jerry Reed, director of special projects for Boise State University, had found in trying to get prison officials and her concern over the inmates' letters discussing supplies.

Stoklos and Anderson pointed out Mrs. Taylor had trouble seeing them because she had made an appointment with Director Erickson but on arriving at the prison asked for "the warden" and was told he was out because Warden Anderson was not in his office. They all agreed there was confusion among the prisoners' Desert Arts Council on the grant, the procedures of the program and the prisoners' obligations.

Anderson said the director of education at the prison was given responsibility for the program when it was set up in the early 1970's and while staff representatives have not been members of the council they have "looked over shoulders" at what the council was doing.

Clark Reynolds, an inmate who worked as an education clerk, has helped as leader of the council but now has said he wants to step down from that job. Anderson said he would try to find out Reynolds' reason for resigning.

Mrs. Taylor said the council would lose any money in its grant which is not spent by the end of the funding year.

"We have to know what the situation is out there and have a breakdown of where the money is," she said.

Drewery said he would not be responsible for the fund if the prisoners have authority to spend the money as they want without someone controlling how much is being spent.

He also said no one has ever asked for the financial records on the Desert Arts fund.

On complaints that supplies have been held back, Drewery said the orders are passed along to security personnel to make sure what items are coming into the institution. He said there have been some delivery delays in the past because items were back ordered.

He also pointed out that he could not allow prisoners to take up metal work and order cutting torches. That, he said, would make him nervous.

The prisoners this year have asked for supplies for photography, painting, woodworking and weaving. The prison administrators said they could not have chisels handed out for woodworking or other materials that would

Teams to find road hazards

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho insurance agents and other volunteer groups will fan out in teams across the state May 21 to search for, identify and report killer hazards and booby traps on the roads.

Among the things for which they will be searching are steel guardrails that act like javelins, close-to-the-road signs, unsafe utility line stanchions and death-pit drainage ditches.

More than 100 members of the Idaho Association of Independent Insurance Agents, Inc. will participate in the booby trap survey. They will be joined by members of the slacks insurance women's clubs from the Boise, Idaho Falls, Lewiston, Pocatello and Twin Falls areas, as well as mutual agents and the Lewiston Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Months in planning, the project was developed by the insurance information institute of New York.

Valuation methods in Ada probed

BOISE (UPI) — A civil investigation of the Ada County Assessor's office by the Idaho State Tax Commission, has turned up indications the former assessor used improper valuation methods for certain property categories.

The commission in a statement released Tuesday said its investigation included a three per cent random sampling of all real property appraisals in the County.

The investigation indicated that the former assessor had granted some exemptions to widows and veterans not authorized by law, in many instances used improper valuation methods for certain categories of property and failed to support its appraisals of real property with a sufficient quantity and quality of

THE PRETTY AND PRACTICAL GARDEN

A GUIDE TO PLANNING AND PLANTING A BEAUTIFUL, EDIBLE GARDEN

Spring is the time when a gardener's fancy turns to thoughts of lovely plants. While impatiently waiting for the ground to become workable, gardeners are poring over seed catalogues and thinking about what to plant where. And this year, more and more Americans are giving thought to raising a garden that will be utilitarian as well as ornamental.

Considering the battered food budget, it's not surprising that so many gardeners are eager to try their green thumbs at growing vegetables. And, of course, a garden can be both pretty and practical. "All About Vegetables," from the Ortho Book Series, puts it this way: "In the language of gardening, the word 'ornamental' is used to distinguish plants used for beauty in the landscape from plants used for food and fiber. But many plants serve a dual purpose: And so you have edible-ornamentals and ornamental edibles."

To illustrate, the Ortho Garden Book suggests planting a bed of curly kale alongside a bed of ferns, rhubarb chard combined with white Sweet William and a groundcover of parsley with daffodils dancing above. Other possibilities are crinkled Savoy cabbage and okra in a flower border and the ferny foliage of asparagus planted to show its delicate tracery against a house wall. Consider, too, some chives tucked neatly into nooks and crannies around the garden and a row of sunflowers along a fence. All are beautiful additions to the garden and each contributes something delicious to the family fare.

Another attractive way to combine the pretty and the practical is to alternate long, narrow rows of vegetables with flower beds of complementary shapes and colors. And borders of low growing annuals such as alyssum and dwarf species of many flower varieties will add color and contrast to vegetable beds.

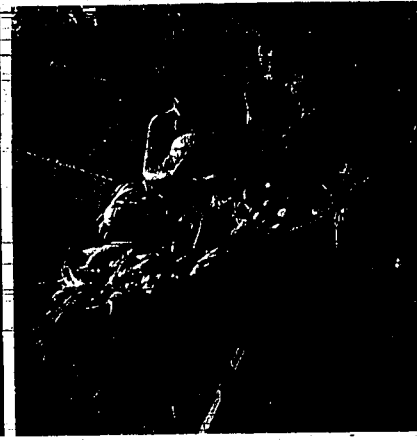

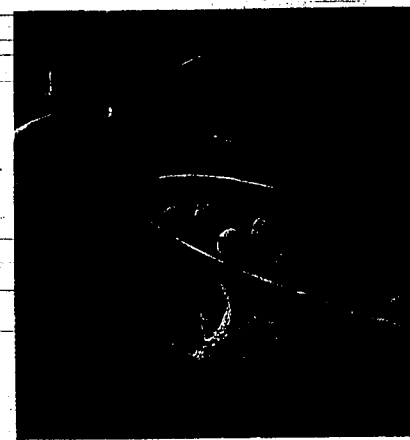

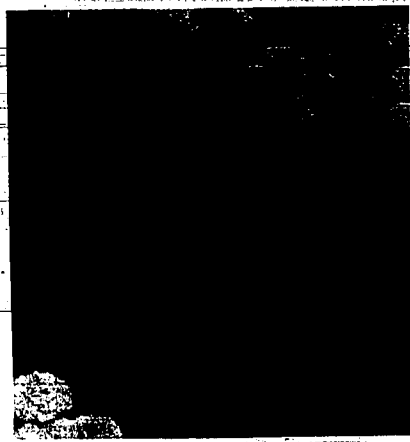

Proper planning, fertilizing, watering, care, and of course, work go into producing a flourishing flower garden. These same elements can also produce a vegetable garden. But according to "Gardening Shortcuts," another in the Ortho Book Series, one additional factor is needed to insure a crop of good-to-eat vegetables—selecting varieties that are suited to the length of the growing season in your area.

Most seed packets indicate the number of days the plant needs from seeding to maturity. Such information is important to gardeners in warm climates who can grow both early and late varieties, and vital to gardeners in short season areas. For the latter, planting the early varieties is recommended—these will produce crops with less total summer heat than the later maturing varieties.

"Gardening Shortcuts" points out that each vegetable has its own range of temperatures for maximum growth and each has its minimum temperature at which it will not grow. So when choosing vegetable varieties to plant, also keep in mind the length of the days in your climate zone, day and night temperatures and the intensity of heat. Siting plants to your garden's environment will go a long way toward that ultimate triumph—a harvest of succulent vegetables.

How large a plot do you need to grow a vegetable-flower garden? As big or as small a space as you have or wish to plant. In fact, both can be grown in no garden space. Plants and flowers can flourish in containers, and so can vegetables. Large containers filled with fertilized synthetic soil are perfect for growing tomatoes, peppers and eggplants. Most herbs, too, do beautifully in pots making them an ideal choice for city dwellers. And containers, being movable, can be positioned in the sunniest locations, which frequently gives them a decided advantage.

For those with space for planting vegetables, "All About Vegetables" offers plans for gardens of various sizes. Two of these plans, illustrated below, show how much can be grown in small plots. An area of 24 inches by 30 inches, can be cultivated to amply fill the salad bowl of a family of four during the summer months. And it will produce sufficient parsley and chives that, if frozen, will garnish their dishes throughout the winter as well.

These beautiful vegetables are part of the bountiful harvest from one garden. This garden was a project for a "mixed-up" family where flowers, herbs and vegetables were integrated, furnishing beauty to the eye and good taste for use all year round. "All About Vegetables," from the Ortho Garden Book series, describes ornamentals and vegetables which can be grown together.

And with a plot 3-feet by 9-feet, a family of six can be assured of a bountiful harvest of salad greens and root vegetables. Add to this tomatoes, peppers and eggplants grown in containers, and the space is utilized to its fullest potential.

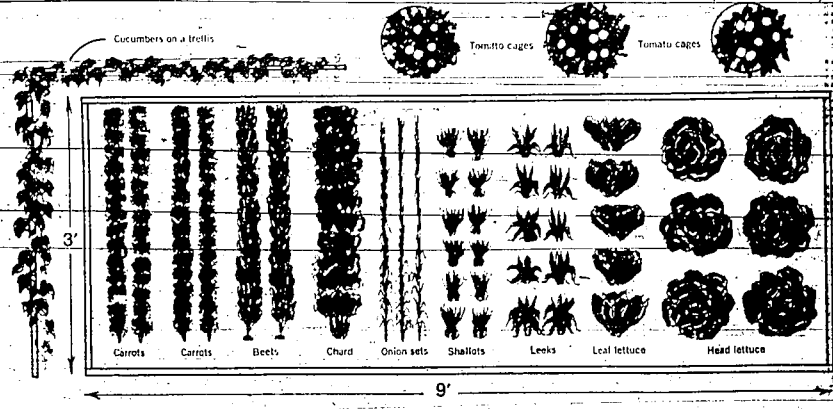

The small space gardener, however, has a difficult task when it comes to planning a garden that will yield a continuous supply of fresh vegetables. When planting, a 30-foot row of lettuce may look short. But when 30 heads of lettuce arrive in the kitchen in a ten-day period, that row becomes very long indeed. To avoid this feast or famine situation, "All About Vegetables" advises small plantings at two or three different times of the same vegetable. That way, the harvest period can be spread over a longer period of time. In areas with long growing seasons, a succession of plantings, from early spring to late fall, will insure a continuous harvest of just-picked vegetables.

In this concentrated area of 24-inches by 30-inches, the carrots were sowed in 4-inch wide bands, spaced 5-inches apart. After thinning and eating baby carrots, two rows of mature carrots remain in each band, yielding about 66 carrots. The two rows of onion sets can yield more than 50 green onions.

Beautiful green cabbages grow side-by-side with varied colored annuals in this pretty and practical garden. Vegetables can be ornamental as well as good to eat and when combined with complementary flowers, make a garden that is both edible and attractive.

In this 3-foot by 9-foot plot, planting in bands 4-inches wide, spaced 5-inches apart, allows for two rows each of carrots and beets, one row of chard, three rows of onion sets, two rows each of shallots and leeks, one row of Bibb lettuce and six heads of leaf lettuce. A trellis for cucumber adds a crop without taking much ground space. Tomatoes, peppers and eggplants grown in tubs bring this garden into maximum production.

DEAR ABBY: Because I read in your column about that toll-free number which allows runaway kids to call to let their parents know they are O.K., I re-established contact with my parents, went home and had the most wonderful Easter in my life. I'm a 19-year-old boy who dropped out of school and hit the road 16 months ago.

Will you please run that item again, Abby?

LUCKY IN ILLINOIS

DEAR LUCKY: With pleasure. Runaways, dial 1-800-231-6346. An operator will telephone your parents anywhere in the U.S. and convey a message from you. ("I'm alive, don't worry about me" is typical.)

There will be no lecturing or counseling. Your call will not be typed, and the only question asked of you will be: "Do you need anything?" If you do, you'll be told where you can obtain it for free. No attempt will be made to bring you home, regardless of your age.

Elmore couple honored

GLENN'S FERRY — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Van Sickle were honored with a 40th wedding anniversary party at their home Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. James Van Sickle and three daughters, Pocatello, were hosts for the open house.

A large square cake decorated in red and white for the ruby anniversary sat on a table covered with a white lace cloth over red. Red and white candles in half circle candlesticks flanked the cake.

Mrs. James Van Sickle presided at the silver coffee service. Mr. and Mrs. Van Sickle were married May 11th in Memphis-Tenn. They came to Idaho in 1949 and farmed for a number of years in the King Hill area. In 1973 they sold the farm, retired and moved to Glenn's Ferry.

Number for runaways

Runaways, please forget the past and call that toll-free number now. Let somebody know that you are alive. You will sleep better tonight, and so will they.

P.S. This wonderful program originated in Texas and has been adopted by 37 states! It's staffed by volunteers, including some grateful runaways who have come home.

DEAR ABBY: I recently met a very attractive man. We hit it off immediately, and I could get serious about him, but he told me something about himself that made me begin to wonder about him. Please don't laugh, because this is serious. He does need pinpointing!

How otherwise normal. Do you think I have a problem? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Yes. But the problem is with you, not him. Need pinpointing is wonderfully relaxing. It calms the nerves, occupies restless hands, beats smoking and gives one a sense of real accomplishment. And neither sex has a monopoly on that!

DEAR ABBY: I sympathize with "Red-Faced," who wrote me saying that she was embarrassed to watch some of those TV commercials with her boyfriend.

I've been in sales and advertising for over 50 years, and I recently became uneasy watching certain TV commercials with my daughter and son-in-law. I think the media is going out of bounds with some of the products they advertise.

If the "red-faced" young lady will go to the public library and ask for an up-to-date copy of "Advertisers' Register," she will find the names and addresses of all major companies listed with the brand names they produce and the names of their executive personnel.

She should then write a letter to the president of the company telling him why she thinks his advertising is offensive. It will be far more effective than writing to the F.C.C., as you recommended.

I've done this with several products and was amazed at the personal attention I received.

T.W.T.: TEXAN

DEAR T.W.T.: Thanks for the suggestion. Others have written to tell me that writing to the F.C.C. to complain about offensive TV commercials was a waste of time.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope, please.

Blaine zoners reject land plan

By BART QUESNELL, Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission voted down an amendment Tuesday which would have allowed planned residential unit development in the county's prime land designations.

The controversial amendment was introduced over two months ago as a way to accomplish cluster development on prime land and still leave most of the land open to farm.

The P.R.U.D. allows a developer to transfer density rights from a portion of his land and cluster his development in a compact unit. Currently over 30 per cent of Blaine County is zoned prime agricultural land or A-1. One house per five acres can be constructed in A-1 land in Blaine County.

Two months ago the commission was contending adamantly that P.R.U.D.'s should be allowed in A-1 lands to prevent the one-house-per-five-acre density which could ruin the open space under that designation.

The amendment originated silently from within the planning and zoning commission at the time the county was faced with three developers who wished zone changes to increase density all within A-1 lands.

The commission decided after a public hearing last night to reject the amendment. Allan Reynolds, present administrator for the planning commission, said the original idea behind P.R.U.D.'s was "to give the developers a way to go."

"The proper way is to change the zone," he said.

All of the public testimony last night was opposed to the P.R.U.D. concept. A total of 20 form letters signed by different individuals were entered into the record in support of the concept.

Reynolds said the form letters were from the office of Bart Ballantyne, Boise developer, who has over 2,000 acres in A-1 land.

The Blaine Soil Conservation District, Idaho Fish and Game Department and the county prosecutor all opposed the concept. The soil conservation district and the fish and game department said the concept should be shelved at least until the data collecting stages of Silver Creek aquifer study are complete.

Prosecutor Tom Campion told the commission when it originally voted to send the amendment to a public hearing that the Blaine County comprehensive plan should be completed before any amendment to the concept should be shelved. County residents last night said it appeared it was developers who applied pressure to get the P.R.U.D. concept passed for agricultural lands. The general consensus of the group was that farmers and condominiums don't mix.

TF newsstand bargarized

TWIN FALLS — Burglars took about $25 in change and bills and a number of books and magazines from A-1 Newsstand Tuesday night.

City police reported someone broke into the building by the rear door and removed cash from the counter. Al Ralph, owner, said total loss amounted to about $50.

Teacher talks stalled

BOISE (UPI) — Wage negotiations between teachers and the Boise Independent School District are hung up because the teachers consider a 3.5-per cent base salary increase inadequate.

Teachers rejected the district's offer and are reported to be asking for a 14 per cent boost in the $7,400 base salary paid to beginning teachers.

The district is offering an economic package which the superintendent says amounts to about a nine per cent wage increase for the average teacher in the district. But the negotiators for the teachers say the offer provides only for a 3.5 per cent boost over already contractually-agreed upon merit raises.

Basin unable to pay

IDAH0-CITY, Idaho (UPI) — Officials of Basin School District 72 say they have not paid tuition for students attending Boise high schools because they have had "financial troubles."

The district owes the Boise Independent School District tuition for 37 students based to Boise schools during the 1973-74 year and Idaho City students may be banned from the Boise schools next year if it is not paid.

Oscar Baumhoff, president of the Idaho City school, acknowledged that the $15,000 is "a just and due bill that hasn't been paid." He said the balance of the debt — delayed because construction of an addition to a building in Idaho City cut into the district's cash flow — will be paid this year.

Suit filed in Ada

BOISE (UPI) — A Garden City man has filed a $75,000 lawsuit charging his civil rights were violated by illegal detention in the Ada County jail.

Golden Wadsworth brought the suit in Fourth District Court against Garden City, Tom Norris of the Garden City Police Department and Ada County Sheriff E. C. "Chuck" Palmer.

Wadsworth alleges Norris arrested him Jan. Dec. 28 and took him to the county jail where he was held without a charge being regularly made and lodged in a court of proper jurisdiction until Jan. 14.

Additional charges filed

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Additional narcotics charges are on file against two College of Idaho students, one a former student body president, accused of selling cocaine.

Larry J. Stamps, 27, Caldwell, the former student leader, was charged Tuesday with possession of cocaine.

Mark Shumaker, 24, Caldwell, was accused Tuesday of possession of marijuana and LSD. So was his wife, Davene, 22. Monday, Shumaker was accused of sale of marijuana and with sale of cocaine.

Stamps was released on $2,000 bond Tuesday evening. The Shumakers were released Tuesday on their own recognizance — although Shumaker posted bond Monday night on the earlier charges against him.

Two prosecuted

ELKO, Nev. (UPI) — Two men accused of kidnaping and killing an Ontario, Ore., man last January are being prosecuted, a federal kidnaping charges in Reno.

Jack Taylor, 50, and Paul Womack, 21, Burley, also face state charges of murder in the slaying of Merrill Abraham, 55.

Abrahams picked them up on route to Caldwell, Idaho Jan. 8 and they were arrested in Phoenix, Ariz., a few days later with his car and credit cards. Abrahams' body was found near Wells, Nev., Jan. 25.

Elko County District Attorney Robert Manley said the two men were returned to Nevada after several weeks of evaluation at a mental institution in Missouri.

New device used

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Early detection of lung disease is possible with a new, electronic medical device installed at Caldwell Memorial Hospital.

Called an "Ohio 2000," the device helps in the diagnosis of emphysema, bronchitis, bronchial asthma and a variety of lung diseases.

It measures air volume, flow and rapidity electronically and a computer built into the system enables it to make precise diagnoses of lung disease. It is one of the few such devices in the Pacific Northwest, according to hospital officials.

"With the Ohio 2000 system, we can really perform," Wayne Baines, assistant director, said. "The whole testing takes only 15 minutes for basic screening. And, I might emphasize, there's no pain."

Nampa adds to class

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — Add Nampa schools to those inaugurating kindergarten in Idaho next fall.

Trustees voted 3-2 Tuesday night to go ahead with their next year, but with financial restrictions. The projected cost is $128,440 and the board voted to limit funding to state distribution of monies designated by the legislature for this purpose.

Nebraska man robbed in TF

TWIN FALLS — Waded Yager, North Platte, Neb., told police an armed man came to his motel room sometime Tuesday night and robbed him of nearly $7,000.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said Yager notified the police department at about 3:40 a.m., saying he had been robbed while in his room at the Blue Lakes Inn.

Barnett said the man told officers he had checked into the motel with his wife and two children. Yager said after the family retired, the robber rang warning him but no one was there when he answered so he went back to sleep.

Burley 'shootout'

SOUTHERN IDAHO police officers compete in the Magic Valley Police Officer's annual spring pistol shoot Tuesday at Burley. With any certified police officers in the area eligible for the competition, about 65 to 70 officers entered. Two women were included in the competition.

'Lost' Burley family in Boise

BURLEY — A Burley family, believed to be lost or stranded in the mountains south of Burley, were in Boise all along, searchers discovered Tuesday.

The Cassia County sheriff's office began a search early Tuesday morning for Jim Southern, his wife and three children after they had been reported missing. According to Deputy Don Taylor, the Southern told relatives Monday evening they were taking a drive into the South Hills and would return later the same night. When the family did not return by Tuesday morning, the sheriff's office was notified that the family was apparently lost or stranded.

Taylor said roads in the South Hills are muddy or snow covered and overnight temperatures dropped to below freezing.

Taylor said Tuesday morning a search for the family was organized. The search team included at least 11 people and an airplane, Taylor said.

In the meantime, Taylor said the Southern had inexplicably gone to Boise instead of the hills. The family had apparently failed to notify anyone of their plans, Taylor said.

The Southern showed up just after 11 a.m. Tuesday, Taylor said.

Negotiation agreement OK'd by TF trustees

(Continued from p. 1) Phil East, president of the Twin Falls Education Association, said that without such an agreement, the board could change negotiating contracts without further negotiations with teachers.

East said he does not know of this ever having been done but "it's just the fact that it can be."

"It gets down to personal rights — we have a right to have a say in what conditions we work under," he said.

He said that besides the 60 to 70 teachers who packed the school board meeting room, about 40 who could not squeeze in stood outside at the beginning of the meeting.

"The master agreement or master contract" would require negotiations be made before any changes in contract are undertaken, East said. He said he did not like to call it a "contract" because such language makes the education association sound like a union which it isn't.

"In the process of establishing the negotiation agreement, East said "it's possible that we could come up with alternatives for the budget too." He said he did not want to put any limitations on the negotiation agreement talks scheduled for Thursday.

"The teachers aren't terribly happy with the proposed salary increases. But we haven't heard a lot of opposition to it," East said.

According to Meyer the proposed budget would give teachers a 9.5 per cent salary hike and about a 5 per cent increase in fringe benefits.

"The teachers of course feel there should be more than that. Our big problem is... a loss of students over the last three years," Meyer said.

He said that because of declining enrollment in first grade, the district has lost 275 students.

Since each school receives $370 per student per year the fiscal impact of the decline on the elementary schools is substantial, Meyer said.

"We're going to lose next school year too," he said, adding that elementary school enrollment should be down "another 75 kids or so."

Meyer said he hoped the proposed salaries for next school year would not be subject to discussion. "I think they (teachers) really realize that we've done the best we could on the salary schedule. It's the best we can do with what we've got," he said.

He said that $3.4 million or about 75 per cent of the general fund budget has been proposed for the teachers.

The general fund budget proposed is $42 million up about 8.8 per cent above the $4.2 million budget last year. Of this about $125,000 will be for the new kindergarten program, he said.

Jerome trustees refuse definite answer on kindergarten possibility

JEROME — School trustees here Monday refused to give a definite answer on the possibility of starting a kindergarten program this fall.

Calvin Rowland, spokesman for a group of residents seeking answers, said the district had told the group for the past two months that an answer couldn't be given until certain questions had been answered. She said she felt those questions have now been answered.

According to Mrs. Rowland, the district has been told that it will receive $12,000 from the state to help pay for a kindergarten program, and that state officials have approved the use of the Presbyterian and Episcopal churches for kindergarten classrooms.

"We feel that there is no longer any need for a delay and we would like to know now where the school board stands," Mrs. Rowland said.

Gooding fall hurts woman

GOODING — Cherie Yore, 31, Gooding, was listed in good condition today in Gooding County Memorial Hospital where she was being treated following a fall from a horse.

Gooding Deputy Sheriff Bill Boyer said Mrs. Yore was helping her family work cattle on their property near the Hale in the Wall, north of Bliss on the Snake River. He said she was not certain how the accident happened but understood the woman's horse fell with her and both went down an embankment of some type.

Deputy Boyer said the sheriff's office received a call about 11:15 a.m. Tuesday after another worker rode horseback to the Bob Gill ranch to call for help. Lynn Stevenson flew a helicopter from the Gooding Airport to the site to bring out the injured woman.

A helicopter was also standing by at the Mountain Home Air Force Base but was not needed.

Several Yore suffered a broken collar bone and several broken ribs, officers said.

Burglary probed

TWIN FALLS — County officers are investigating the second burglary in two weeks at Barger Matson Auto Salvage sales.

Officers said the burglary resulted in the theft of a telephone from the outer office area, some tools, a transmission and several other items.

About a week ago the same business was entered and cutting torches, equipment parts and such items as hubcaps and hand tools taken. Officers said several clues have developed in the more recent break-in.

Hansen OK's new budget

HANSEN — The Hansen City Council approved a $68,656 budget Monday night "with no protest," according to Mayor Harold Miller Jr.

Earlier, Hansen's lateness in approving the budget had caused some question. City attorney Emil Pike declined to state a legal opinion on the budget approval.

At the council meeting following the budget hearing, the council discussed a summer recreation program and plans to build a tennis court. No decisions were made during the discussions, according to Miller.

Miller also said that people from Hansen Estates requested speed bumps on their streets. He said that the city would talk to Regal Homes, which is preparing to install streets at the housing area.

The City Council decided to shut off water service to people whose accounts are delinquent, Miller said. Delinquent accounts will be mailed a shut off notice and "if they don't come in or make arrangements to pay," the water will be shut off, he said.

Verifon Orman said this would have to be verified, leaving another question unanswered.

He also said the district will also have to purchase desks and chairs for the program.

"As far as I can figure now, the extras would cost the district $1,800 and where the money would come from, I don't know yet. As far as I am concerned if I have to make a decision now without talking to our new superintendent it would be no," Verifon Orman said.

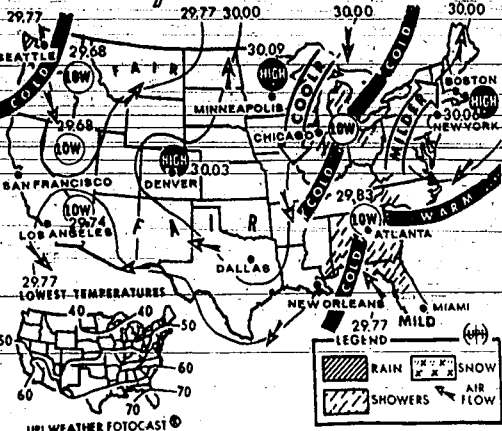

The board agreed that members all favored kindergartens, but felt they could not give an answer until all the facts are known and they have consulted with the new superintendent.

The majority of the parents attending agreed they would be willing to pay $10 or more a month to help the district meet expenses for the program this year. The board is expected to arrive at a decision within a month.

East India facing major food shortage

N. Y. Times Service—NEW DELHI — Amid criticism of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's food policies, a wide belt of eastern India is abruptly facing major food scarcities.

The shortages, in such states as West Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, has spurred villagers to trek into cities in search of food and has led to "near famine" conditions in farm areas. Food experts blame the scarcities on three disparate factors: Drought, the absence of purchasing power among peasants — who cannot afford to buy available food on the market — and the failure to states to use muscle to procure food from farmers and hoarders who sell wheat and rice on the black market.

"The state governments need to develop a greater sense of awareness and political will" said the Economic Times, a moderate daily. Tuesday. "Otherwise, every year thousands all over the country will continue to starve on the brink of death, euphemistically spelled malnutrition."

Another newspaper, the moderate Indian Express, said of the serious food problems in West Bengal: "The present critical situation is entirely man-made, and the responsibility for its rest squarely and entirely on the state government."

It is common knowledge that various states, even with the most radical posture, are adverse about compelling farmers to sell food to the state machinery. The states buy wheat and rice for ration shops that feed the bulk of India's urban poor.

The farmers, who prefer to sell their stocks on the open market, at higher prices, are often politically powerful and major contributors to the ruling Congress party. Thus, states such as West Bengal and Bihar are reluctant to force farmers to sell part of their stocks to the governments, stocks that would eventually feed poor people.

"Within recent months—the government's 'absence of political will' has stirred broad criticism in the nation's press and among the opposition.

Dilip Mukerjee, a columnist in the Times of India, said Monday: "The governments in the center and in the states are neither willing to compel the farmers to part with their surplus at the price set for procurement, nor are they able to offer adequate monetary or other compensations to outbid the private trader.

At present, the "official" government price for rice is more than nine dollars to 220 pounds. The unofficial or market price ranges between $12 to $15 for 220 pounds of rice.

Rooney maintains greed overshadows Rozelle rule

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Steelers coach Tommy Lasorda believes greed is a greater obstacle to player freedom than the "Rozelle Rule."

Rooney said Tuesday National Football League veterans who play out their options are often left hanging without new contracts because they price themselves out of the league.

"I've said, repeatedly, that the basic question is where the money will come from," Rooney said. "We are fighting an economic crisis—all professional teams are."

"If any player plays out his option and asks for a huge sum of money, he's got to expect problems," he said. "It's a reality that the Rozelle Rule impedes players in negotiations with other teams."

Rooney is currently involved in contract bargaining with defensive end L. C. Greenwood, who played out his option last season after signing with the defunct Birmingham Americans of the World Football League.

NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said Tuesday the escape valve, or Rozelle Rule, was instituted in early 1963 and has been invoked only four times—three times after players signed with other clubs and once before the signing.

His statement was contained in a deposition read in a federal court at Minneapolis.

Brubins open state meet with Meridian

The Twin Falls Bruins will open their bid for the 1975 state basketball championship at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Nampa while the Minico Bulldogs did not receive an at-large berth and will have to sit this one out.

Nampa took the at-large bid with a 21-9 record, although that gives the third district bid the representation in the single elimination event. Nampa, which won the 1974 title, finished fourth in district.

Minico, which twice saw Twin Falls come from behind Monday to wrest the fourth district laurels from it, posted a 12-7 record and won the Eastern Division SIC championship. Hence, the Eastern SIC list will see three others go to state.

The pairings for the event include doubleheaders at Borah and Nampa Thursday and Friday. At Borah, Pocatello takes on Boise at 6:30 with Lewiston meeting Capital in the nightcap. Twin Falls and Meridian lead off at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at Nampa with Skyline and Nampa playing at 8:30.

Meridian compiled a 10-10 record during the season but came on to win the third district title.

Bruin Coach Ron Watson anticipates seeing 6-5 sophomore Rasmussen on the mound. The lefthander twice defeated Borah.

"We're definitely going to workout against lefthanders," Coach Watson said at that news.

Dunne vies for national honors

JEROME — Jerome cross country coach will be vying for national high school coach of the year next month at the National Coaches Association convention in Orlando, Fla.

Dunne, a Boise product, already has won the seventh district coach of the year award and will be going against the older seventh district winner, Billie.

The 23-year-old ex-coach will be made June 14 at the final convention banquet, which Dunne will attend.

Dunne's Tigers capped several years of success last fall by sweeping the first five individual places in the state class B cross country finals.

Kentucky topples Pacers in opener of ABA final series

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Fast-breaking Kentucky, with foul-plagued Artis Gilmore on the bench, outscored the Indiana Pacers 31-19 in the final eight minutes Tuesday night to win the first game of the American Basketball Association playoffs.

Receiving a big lift from reserves Marv Roberts, Bird and Tommy, the Colonels put the Pacers away with a splurge increasing their lead from 22-14 to the final 26-point margin.

The Colonels will be host for game No. 2 Thursday night before the best-of-seven series moves to Indianapolis for contests Saturday and Monday nights.

Roberts fired in a season-high 19 points, Averitt 12 and Thomas 10 to take up the scoring slack left by the departed Gilmore with his sixth foul by 9:19 remaining in the game.

Kentucky withstood a 35-point outburst by George McGinnis, but the Colonels largely shackled his teammates.

Gilmore wound up as Kentucky's leading scorer with 26 points and Louie Dampier added 22. Dan Issel, held to six points in the first half, collected 12 more in the

Lyle's 10-year wait will end Friday

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — For Lon Lyle, the longest wait of his life has begun, but this wait is one he has "imposed" upon himself.

The 23-year-old ex-coach who challenges Amundson All Friday night finished his ring training Tuesday with three rounds of sparring, bringing to 100 the number of rounds he has sweated through. He'll wait now for his shot at the title—a shot which virtually no one in this long-shot dream has given him a chance of winning.

But Lyle, serene as he mopped the sweat from his brow, said that all's braying, that all those who give him no chance, fall to bother him.

"I've waited 10 long years for this chance," he said and it was obvious he was referring to his 10 years in prison. "Now a wait of just three more days ain't gonna bother me at all."

He was asked how he would spend the 72 hours waiting for the belt that would bring him across the ring to face the flamboyant champion who has treated this match as a trifle, but just a trifle, more important than the Cleveland

Top drivers still seek spots

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Tom Bigelow and Rick Muther were among several drivers who toured the track Tuesday in hopes of finding enough speed to make the starting grid for the May 25 Indianapolis 500-mile race.

The final two days of qualifying are set for Saturday and Sunday.

Bigelow, Whitewater, Wis. and Muther, Laguna Beach, Calif., took unqualified racers out for practice laps Tuesday in an effort to find the right formula for filling the five spots still open in the starting lineup.

Steve Krisloff, Parshlyppan, N.J., was informed by doctors he will not be one of the drivers who will take part in the final qualification runs. Krisloff sustained a fractured left foot in a practice lap crash at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway and he has not recuperated sufficiently from the injury.

Twenty-eight cars were qualified last weekend. Once the 33-car field is filled, the traditional "bumping" process will begin, with faster qualifiers knocking the slower ones out of the lineup.

Also out Tuesday in unqualified cars were Bob Harkey of Indianapolis, Jigger Sirois of Hammond, Ind., John Hubbard of Johnstown, Pa., and Larry McCoy of Langhorne, Pa.

Harkey already has qualified a car for the race, but was "shaking down" another machine which isn't in the lineup yet.

Wilcox retires

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dave Wilcox, rated by many as the model outside linebacker, Tuesday announced his retirement after 12 years with the San Francisco 49ers on an unhappy note.

"I just didn't think it was worth it," Wilcox said of his future in the National Football League. "I figured if I was going to risk permanent injury on my knee by playing, I should have a contract that offered me reasonable security, but the 49ers apparently disagreed."

Olympics place second

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa said Tuesday he would sacrifice the 1976 Montreal Olympics to restore social order to the province.

Asked if in the wake of labor violence and a wildcat strike at Montreal's Olympic site he expected the games to be canceled, Bourassa said "I don't expect that will be so."

"We did invest a considerable amount of money in the Olympics," he said, "but if the social order involved in that, of course the social order must be above all events, whatever their importance."

Pele still talking

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — International soccer star Pele and representatives of the New York Cosmos held friendly and cordial negotiations with Pele's agent negotiations Tuesday, but failed to arrive at an agreement. The team's president told UPI.

Nesimi Ertugun, president of the Cosmos of the North American Soccer League, said, "we held friendly and cordial negotiations with Pele, but so far we have not reached an agreement. Negotiations will continue for several more days."

SEATTLE (UPI) — The University of Washington board of regents has turned down a request from Seattle Professional Football to rent the university stadium for a National Football League preseason game, but a revised request has been submitted.

Seattle Professional Football, which will field an NFL expansion team in 1976, had asked to rent the 59,000-seat stadium Saturday, Sept. 6, for a game between the Cleveland Browns and New York Giants.

 Some of the temple keepers in ancient Greece collected money every month from their members. If said members paid those dues faithfully, they were given fine funerals; that practice was thought to be the world's first life insurance system.

OPTIMIST
 Q. "Wasn't it Playboy magazine that described an optimist as the fellow who first called it free love?"
 A. No, Cy N. Pearce said that. Playboy characterized an optimist as "a man who makes a motel reservation before a blind date."
NONE BUT purebred Jersey cows are permitted on the channel island of Jersey. If a 200-POUND man were as strong proportionately as an earthworm, he would be able to move six tons... DID YOU know there's only about 6 cents worth of bees in $1 worth of canned beets?
WONDER WHY that longshore labor leader named Alfred Renton Bridges decided to call himself Harry? ... AS FAR AS entertainment toys go, nothing outsells guitars except TV sets, I'm told.
BEER
 What a lot of people don't realize about the Pilgrims of Mayflower fame is how much they liked beer. In fact, one of the main jobs of the youngest of them — namely, John Alden — was the repair and construction of beer barrels.
IT WAS BEFORE I was 16 years old. While working as a dishwasher at Seattle's Hungerford Hotel. And living in a pay-by-the-week room nearby. And knowing the current addresses of no relatives. With no reference other than the coffee shop's vegetable man who drank an awful lot. That I applied for a fairly sizable loan at a major bank, but was turned down. It was said. The foregoing comes to mind because a high school boy has written to complain that the bankers have refused him a $12,000 loan to finance an expedition in search of Bigfoot. He wants those bankers exposed for what they are — unreasonable.

Cassia aides open bids on 9 old school sites

BUDLEY — In action Monday night the Cassia School Board opened bids on the site of nine old school sites. The ownership of some of the sites was disputed. Monday night the board accepted three bids and rejected the others as being below the appraised value.

The accepted bids were $750 from Ernest Hale for the "Hud" Oakley dam site; $1,250 from C. B. Young and Calvin Helmer for three acres southwest of Elba, and $1,555 from Vaughn Dimer for the old Locust school site.

The board's attorney, Hyman Bedke, noted that the legal description in 1916 by Mr. Emery. When several school districts were consolidated many years later the school and site were abandoned.

About 1949, Emery sold the land around the school site to the school district in the Oakley family. The family believed the school site to be included in the site and has been paying taxes on the three acres since. Family member Ralph Poffen, is the most recent owner.

However, the school district has always claimed title to the three acres and last night the school trustees approved the bid submitted by Hale who outbid Poffen.

An attorney for Poffen contested the trustees' bids were not opened on the 10th of May as called for in the legal advertisements.

However, the attorney indicated he would take no action if he could work out a deal with the apparent high bidder for the property.

In other action, the board turned down a suggestion by Supt. Harold Blauer that the existing Head Start program for 5-year-olds be converted to a home-based program for 4-year-olds.

Blauer indicated with the advent of kindergarten, the Head Start program for 5-year-olds might not be needed.

As outlined by Blauer, the program would be centered around the same kind of children only going to a classroom situation for two half-days a week.

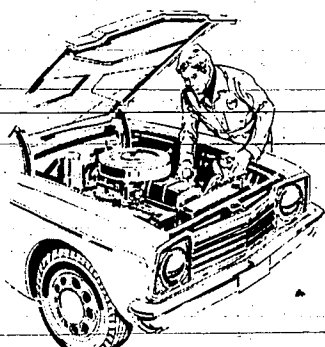

The program would be designed for low-income children. The big problem is that parents of poor children don't understand the need for education. Blauer told the trustees the goal of the home-oriented program is to educate low income parents about the importance of education for their children.

But the board rejected Blauer's suggestion. Four-year-olds shouldn't go to school to learn 0-year-old tasks, Charles Ward, Malta, said.
