

TF food prices stabilize over 6 month span

TWIN FALLS — Food prices apparently have stabilized in Twin Falls during the past six months.
And during the past year, food prices have risen only about 4.3 per cent — one third as much as the level of inflation for other consumer goods.
Food prices surveyed in five supermarkets here were only a fraction of one per cent higher at the end of May than they were six months earlier.

In contrast the preceding six-month period saw grocery prices rise 4.1 per cent. But the six month before that saw prices jump a whopping 14.3 per cent.
The current trend should be welcome to Valley shoppers who have felt sharp grocery price increases during recent years.

The Times-News survey takes account of 20 items in a typical market basket, weighted in proportion to their use in a typical household.
May's market basket average was $20.40, compared to $20.46 in March, $20.55 in February, $20.78 in January, dropping 1.3 per cent from $21.04 for December and $20.35 in November. Last May's basket was $18.61.
State prices were more uniform in May, with a spread of $1.21 between them compared to a spread of $1.78 in March.

Last month's prices on major items like meat and potatoes jumped dramatically, offset by declining sugar, margarine and egg prices.
Eggs, which are in their seasonal decline, according to the manager of a store not surveyed, averaged 62 cents a dozen for large eggs.

Solon wants FBI to lead drug war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI should take over the federal war on drugs because of alleged corruption and a "lack of professionalism" in the Drug Enforcement Administration, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said today.
He made the proposal at the opening of a major public reexamination by Congress of the DEA and its efforts in controlling drug abuse since the agency was created in July, 1973.

Enters plea

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — In a surprise move minutes before trial, revolutionary Susan E. Saxe, on the FBI's 10 most-wanted list for five years, changed her plea to guilty today to charges stemming from a 1970 bank robbery here.
Ms. Saxe, 29, of Albany, N.Y., also pleaded guilty in connection with the looting of a National Guard armory in Newbury Port, Mass., three weeks after the local holdup which occurred on Sept. 1, 1970.

Police break up UFW demonstration

HIDALGO, Tex. (UPI) — Police today broke up a demonstration by United Farm Workers members who blocked the international bridge to Reynosa, Mexico, stopping Mexican laborers from working in Texas melon fields.
UFW state leader Tony Orendain said the international bridge was the only place demonstrators could stop the workers from entering the state.

US court denies 'Gate 4' hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today denied a hearing to four Milamians sentenced in the original Watergate break-in case who want to withdraw their guilty plea.
The Court acted in a brief order, without opinion.
The four are Bernard L. Barker, who served 18 months to six years in prison; and Eugenio R. Martinez, Frank A. Sturgis and Virgilio R. Gonzalez, all sentenced to from one to four years.

Morton eyes oil tariff removal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said today if exporting countries hike the price of oil this fall, the administration should consider removing the tariff on imported oil.
Morton said that if the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries increases the price of oil again "I'd like to look at it (the tariff) and make a recommendation to the President that we take it off."

Senate gives Moynihan UN post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today confirmed Daniel P. Moynihan, a former urban affairs expert in the Nixon administration, to be ambassador to the United Nations.
Moynihan, 48, succeeds John Scali.

Wounded

FT. YATES, N.D. (UPI) — Russell Means, 35, American Indian Movement leader, was reported in satisfactory condition at a Blismarck, N.D., hospital today after being shot by a Bureau of Indian Affairs policeman during a scuffle.
The shooting occurred Saturday. Police said Means was being sought in connection with another assault, but Means said he was shot trying to break up a fight.

Strip mine bill veto seen standing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Commerce Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton predicted Monday Congress will fail by as much as 20 votes to override President Ford's veto of the strip mining control bill.
The House vote on overriding the veto is expected Tuesday and many supporters of the bill concede their chances of overriding are slim.

Ford may release CIA data

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five months after President Ford asked Vice President Nelson Rockefeller to head an investigation into U.S. intelligence agencies, the uproar over the final product is almost as loud as the one that created the probe.
Ford will hold a nationally televised news conference at 5:30 p.m. MDT tonight, and he was expected to announce he will release the 350-page Rockefeller commission report but withhold from the public an accompanying report on allegations the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in plots to assassinate foreign leaders.
White House sources said Ford will turn over the commission's findings on the assassination question to the Senate committee investigating the CIA, headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.
Ford got the report Friday. Despite an earlier statement from Rockefeller it would be released to the public Sunday, the White House decided to keep it under wraps, not saying if or when it would be released.
But Ford aides said during the weekend it would be released, but without the sensitive material on alleged CIA plots to kill foreign leaders, which the panel did not complete.
Attempting to clarify the confusion, White House sources said Ford had always intended to release it but was offended when commission officials took the lead in announcing an exact release time.
They said Ford felt he was being pre-empted by lesser officials and decided to assert his right to control the situation, providing himself time to read and digest the report.

US admits bombing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — American warplanes bombed a Communist-held antiaircraft installation in Vietnam during the U.S. evacuation of Saigon in April, a Pentagon spokesman said today.
The Pentagon official reported the antiaircraft installation between Bien Hoa and Saigon began firing at the evacuation helicopters April 29. He said fighter planes retaliated by attacking the installations, dropping four bombs.
But, like other administration officials, the spokesman discounted a Los Angeles Times report quoting authoritative sources as saying the United States had conducted heavy bombing in South Vietnam during the evacuation.
Congress passed legislation on Aug. 15, 1973, which prohibited the United States from conducting any more bombing in Indochina. The Los Angeles Times report indicated the evacuation-related bombing violated the law.

AFL-CIO opens TF meet

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho AFL-CIO annual convention begins today in Twin Falls.
It is the first time in the organization's history that it held a state convention here.
The state AFL-CIO, a federation of labor unions in Idaho, is meeting for three days at the Blue Lakes Inn. About 175 delegates from unions in the state meet for the convention, according to state president Robert Macfarlane, who will be up for re-election with other officials during the convention.
The AFL-CIO holds its annual gathering in a different city in the state each year, Macfarlane said. He said the increasing numbers of union members in Twin Falls prompted the organization to meet here. Macfarlane had no figures on union memberships in the area.
On the agenda today will be the annual report of the secretary-treasurer and Macfarlane, who will also deliver his report on this year's legislative session. The group will also consider a number of resolutions and hear speeches by Frank Emig, a national AFL-CIO official, Glenn Nichols, director of the State Department of Employment, and a representative from Oregon AFL-CIO.
Other speakers will be organization representatives from other states, an Occupational Safety and Health Administration official from Washington, Idaho officials from labor-related departments with Lt. Gov. John Evans the keynote speaker at the closing dinner Wednesday.

Mr. T-N says
If food prices were going to stabilize, it's too bad it didn't happen when they were low.

Oilmen huddle on price

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (UPI) — The oil-producing nations opened a major policy-making meeting today with a threat in the air to force world inflation to stop quoting these prices in dollars.
Gabon President Albert-Bernard Bongo keynoted the meeting of ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries by accusing the west-undermining OPEC's new wealth through inflation and a falling dollar.
Gabon is one of OPEC's newest and smallest members and its palm-shaded West African capital put on a rhythmic, hand-clapping show of African singers and drummers to open the first meeting that the cartel has held here.
"It would be possible to decide the pegging of petroleum prices and to post our prices in a suitable unit of accounting," Bongo said.
The ministers from the 13 OPEC nations who applauded Bongo's speech knew that the referred to two proposals before the meeting:
— A plan to stop quoting oil prices in U.S. dollars and use instead the Special Drawing Right, an artificial currency backed by 16 major currencies. The immediate effect of such a move would be a slight increase — about 30 cents per barrel — in oil prices.
— A proposal to "index" all prices by linking them to the rate of inflation of the prices of goods which OPEC countries import from the West. OPEC claims this inflation is some 35 per cent this year.
"These measures would be capable of largely protecting the development of our countries against the running inflation of the Western economies," Bongo said.
The Gabonese leaders, speech seemed to set the stage for an OPEC attempt either to circumvent the prices freeze now or arrange for new price hikes in September.
The need to protect OPEC's funds from inflation and the dollar's problems dominated most conversations here.

Ex-Hughes aide remains silent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert A. Mabeu, a former aide to billionaire Howard Hughes, refused to answer questions and pleaded the Fifth Amendment today before a Senate committee investigating alleged CIA assassination plots against foreign leaders.
Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., who chaired and hour-long session of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, told newsmen the committee would decide what action to take in view of Mabeu's refusal to answer "many questions, some of substance."
"The witness took the 5th Amendment on many questions, some of substance," said Tower, who presided in the absence of Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho. "The committee has not yet decided what to do."
He said Mabeu, an ex-FBI agent, had not been granted immunity. The committee has been questioning witnesses including CIA Director William E. Casey under oath, particularly on allegations of CIA involvement in assassination plots.
Mabeu also declined to answer any questions from reporters outside the hearing room.
Mabeu's name has surfaced in almost every recent investigation involving Watergate. The Central Intelligence Agency, the Mafia and attempts to recruit and cloak were made by Hughes to donate to President Lyndon B. Johnson and later to Richard M. Nixon when he was elected President.
The Senate committee, is concentrating on alleged CIA complicity in assassination plots against Castro and other foreign leaders.

Jobless win right to welfare

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously today that an unemployed parent has the option of receiving either unemployment compensation or welfare — the latter being higher in most states.
Justice William H. Rehnquist said that under amendments to federal welfare laws approved in 1968, jobless parents cannot be forced to accept unemployment compensation rather than welfare.
He said that if Congress and the states, which share in financing welfare costs, want to force a parent to exhaust his unemployment benefits, they must join in changing the federal law.
The Court affirmed the ruling of a three-judge federal court in a Vermont case.
The state had argued that since unemployment compensation is "paid for by employers based on an employee's service, it should be exhausted before benefits can be obtained through tax funds financing welfare services."
The Department of Health, Education and Welfare joined Vermont in asking the justices to reverse the lower court, which had determined the federal law permitted a parent the option of taking either unemployment or aid for dependent children welfare.
The Social Security Act, which controls federal welfare payments to the states, gives states the choice of participating in the welfare program for unemployed parents.
Twenty-four other states plus Vermont participate in order to receive federal welfare funds, but they must comply with the eligibility requirements in the federal law and in-state regulations.
The new law says only that a parent cannot receive both unemployment compensation and welfare at the same time. The three-judge court declared this meant a parent had a choice of which benefit to receive.
Vermont said the Supreme Court's decision would cost the state $4 million each year for welfare each year. $20 million each year for Vermont alone.
Presumably other states with much greater populations could raise the extra federal cost considerably.

Fighter furor menaces Belgian coalition

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The Belgian coalition government of Prime Minister Leo Tindemans today faced a vote of confidence in parliament because of its choice of an American jet fighter over the French Mirage.

Lucien Outers, secretary general of the French Speakers' Front, an opposition party representing French-speaking half-of-the-nation, said he would call for such a vote Tuesday.

Tindemans has drawn criticism from the Walloon Front, a small party representing French-speaking Belgians within his coalition, as well as from French following his cabinet's selection Saturday of the General Dynamics F16 jet fighter over the French Mirage for its air force.

The coalition seals the purchase of 34 F16s for $2 billion by a consortium of Belgium, Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands to replace their F104 Starfighters.

The Walloon Front executive over the weekend reaffirmed its veto of any plane solution that was "not European."

The party's 13 parliament members were meeting today to decide how to vote in the action.

The Walloon Front usually votes together in Parliament with the 12 members of the French Speakers' Front, although the French Speakers are part of the opposition.

One of the four Walloon cabinet members — Institutional Reform Minister Francois Perin — vowed to resign if his parliamentary colleagues voted against the government.

If the Walloon Front's ministers resign, Tindemans would be faced with the choice of running a minority government — or stepping down with the rest of the cabinet.

The Walloon Front and an allied party have 25 members in the 212-seat parliament. There are 85 opposition legislators in parliament. The Belgian decision climaxed a year-long battle involving the Swedish SAAB Viggen, the U.S. Northrop YF17, the Mirage F1E and the General Dynamics F16 to replace outdated F104 Starfighters in the four countries.

In Paris, Prime Minister Jacques Chirac criticized the Belgian decision to purchase the American plane rather than the French-made Mirage.

"This decision is profoundly regrettable," he said.

Portuguese newspaper return set

LISBON (UPI) — The newspaper Republica, shut down by the leftist government for almost three weeks, plans to resume publication this week, easing a dispute over freedom of the press in Portugal.

But the military government still faced a minor mutiny in the army, anti-government protests in northern Portugal and the Azores, and heavy fighting in the African colony of Angola.

The regime closed Republica, one of Portugal's last independent newspapers, May 29 after the paper and demanded a change in editorial policy.

Republica's management said Sunday night the newspaper would reopen with the permission of the ruling military council.

"Our first edition should appear on the streets by mid-week, but the case of Republica is not finished yet," a spokesman said.

The newspaper said it hoped the Communist workers who provoked the closure — printers and janitorial employees — would find new jobs.

The spokesman said the newspaper's workers would have to accept a socialist, pluralist and independent editorial policy.

The Socialist party had threatened to withdraw its two members from Portugal's 21-member cabinet unless Republica reopened with its editorial leadership intact.

In another press dispute, the Roman Catholic Church said the Communist takeover of the Catholic radio station Renascenca "has attained the point of rupture between the church and state."

A government spokesman said the army mutiny occurred in Port where 40 soldiers refused to obey orders to board a plane for Angola, the scene of heavy fighting among the independence movements.

Reports reaching Lisbon said thousands of Portuguese settlers were clamoring to be evacuated. Military sources said the government was considering rechartering the planes of the national airline, TAP, to fly them out.

Filer Grange fete June 29

PLANS were made for celebration of the Filer Grange's 50th anniversary during a meeting Friday.

Members plan a picnic dinner at 1 p.m. June 29 at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Filer. All grangers and former members are welcome. The Grange will furnish coffee and ice cream.

Those attending are asked to bring a covered dish and their own table service.

Everett Bonnichsen reported on weed spraying to be done on the grounds. Stanley Walters gave the legislative report.

Clinton Dougherty, Pomona master, announced that Pomona Grange will meet June 14 at the Fairview Grange Hall.

Mrs. Warren Stroud, chaplain, was in charge of memorial services. Mrs. Francis Wells was soloist.

Mrs. Al Theener, lecturer, requested everyone to fly the flag Saturday in observance of Flag Day. Readings were given by Mrs. J.D. Crego, Mrs. Bonnichsen and Dougherty.

Food production energy use told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — How much energy does it take to produce the food we eat and some of the beverages we consume?

It takes a lot — 96,023 BTUs — to make a half gallon of ice cream and its package. It takes less to produce beer or wine than hard liquor.

These items were contained in a report released Sunday by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, which tried to calculate the energy intensity of many food products, including their packaging.

It concludes, among other things, that Americans could save more energy if they cut back consumption of highly processed foods, especially frozen dishes, and bought more bulk, unpackaged food.

Distilled spirits take 2 1/2 times more energy to produce than beer does and three times more than wine, the report said. But even top-grade Scotch uses far less energy than a half-gallon of ice cream.

Beer in a 12-ounce steel can rings in at 5,977 BTUs compared to 8,007 for a 12-ounce aluminum can of the same brand. A fifth of Scotch rates 25,702; bourbon 26,308; and gin 27,387.

Other items included: 38,071 BTUs for a 28-ounce jar of peanut butter; 23,662 BTUs for a 12-ounce can of orange juice. A TV dinner requires the same amount of energy as a one-pound can of tomato sauce; and 8,979 for a stick of margarine.

"A considerable portion of the energy expended in food production occurs in packaging," Linda Dulack, a coauthor of the report, said.

High-energy sources include such processed food items as aerosolized cooking oil, TV dinners, frozen and prepared foods and canned beverages.

A TV dinner requires the same amount of energy as would the same food cooked at home, she said.

Filipinos open ties with China

HONG KONG (UPI) — Premier Chou En-lai and President Ferdinand E. Marcos signed an agreement today in Peking establishing diplomatic relations at the ambassadorial level between China and the Philippines.

The agreement, announced by the New China News Agency in a broadcast monitored here, pledged "mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, mutual non-aggression, noninterference in each other's internal affairs, equality and mutual benefit."

Question...

I am considering the possibility of depositing funds to prepay my funeral expenses. What safeguards should I demand?

Answer...

You should insist upon the following minimum requirements:

- That 100% of your deposit be put into trust until your death.
- That interest be added annually to your deposit.
- That you may withdraw any part of your deposit at any time without penalty.
- That the payment of your funeral does not jeopardize your entitlement to a Social Security, Veterans, Civil Service or other death benefit allowance.

We have a very sound Pre-Need Funeral Trust Program conforming to these safeguards. Please call or come by our office if we can be helpful.

'Gold' seminar explains basics

TWIN FALLS — An individual can make a living panning gold, providing he or she knows how to do it, George Massie, of the Gold Prospectors Association, told a large audience Saturday night.

Massie and the Casher of the Gold Prospectors Association of America, conducted a two-hour seminar in Twin Falls Saturday, explaining the basic methods of prospecting and panning for gold. They also presented explanations of "VIBRATOR" equipment and discussed suitable areas in which to look for gold.

Massie told the group there are few large nuggets to be found, but the tiny 10 per cent flakes constitute the main income for the prospector. He said the average prospector of the vacationing family can prospect for gold for entertainment and have a far better chance of coming home with some loot than vacationers who go to Las Vegas or Reno.

"In panning for gold," Massie said, "the most important thing to remember is that gold is the heaviest substance, and think about where the heavy material would settle and then go after it."

Ford's son selects USC

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's 15-year-old son Steven, who spent the past year working as a ranch hand in Montana, has decided to enroll in Utah State College in the fall.

Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, press secretary to Betty Ford, disclosed Steven's decision to begin a college career.

She said he had chosen Utah State, where his brother, Jack, 23, graduated this year with a degree in forestry.

prospectors work their pans down to a cup or so and when they fall to see a sizeable nugget, they throw out the sand, gravel and dirt and start over. He said the panning should work down to one or two teaspoon fulls at which point the gold particles will begin to show up.

He also explained this can then be put into a coffee can or sample bottle and worked more closely later at home.

Massie said the prospectors association is only about 18 months old but already has some 14,000 members. One of the major advantages of belonging to the association, he said, is to help provide strength in protecting the individual's rights to look for gold.

New laws, he said, threaten the individual's rights to prospect. Excavation, he said, is one thing, but just the act of looking for gold or working a pan along a stream should be the right of anyone interested in minerals.

In Oregon, he said, a law has been adopted, under urging by the environmental protectors, to require a $300 permit to even prospect.

"A three-year old child or an 81-year old man cannot look for gold in an Oregon stream without paying $300," Massie said.

The seminar is one of several held in the western states to help persons interested in prospecting and mining for gold.

The two officials urged persons interested in mining to oppose legislative changes proposed to require even the rank amateur to lease land before he can work it.

"This would not necessarily restrict mining. It would only restrict who can mine, leaving the field open to large companies only and eliminating the individual," Massie warned.

TF teachers vote Thursday

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls teachers will vote Thursday on a proposed school negotiations agreement.

The agreement, which sets procedural guidelines for future teacher-school district negotiations, has been tentatively approved by school trustee and teacher negotiators.

The agreement's provisions have not been announced. Negotiators reportedly have eliminated provisions for mediation and fact-finding.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Vera C. O'Leary Junior High Auditorium.

Libertarian party eyes power plant

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. should be allowed to build its proposed coal-fired power plant, according to the Libertarian Party of Idaho.

But party chairman Allen Dalton said the utility should not have the right to function as a monopoly.

In a news release Dalton also called for abolition of the Environmental Protection Agency.

"The Libertarian Party of Idaho opposes EPA and state pollution standards because they are manifestations of government coercion," Dalton said in the release.

"The proposed plant should be allowed precisely because force should not be allowed in salvaging this issue ... actions cause harm from air-pollution of anything else they should have to compensate the victims and take action to prevent further harm," Dalton said.

Property tax deadline nears

TWIN FALLS — Deadline for payment of the last half of the 1974 property taxes is less than two weeks away and Twin Falls County Treasurer Ruth K. Jones says many payments are yet to be received.

She said work pressure is building up in her office as the deadline nears but generally taxpayers appear to be waiting for the deadline.

The treasurer's office has yet to collect $1.55 million of which public utilities owe $593,195.66.

Mrs. Jones said at this time last year the office had $1.7 million in outstanding taxes. She said she expects nearly all of the payments will be received by the deadline, allowing the county to maintain the usual 98 per cent collection for the year.

Persons may make the payments by calling at the treasurer's office on the second floor of the courthouse or mailing the checks.

Color Bond's problem green

By TOM TIZEB

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — For years friends of Georgia state legislator Julian Bond have told him he could become the first black president in American history.

Now that the man has apparently begun to believe it himself, he is finding that his prophecies are without money. Bond himself is braver his friends can contribute little. Thus, what could become at least a serious black presidential campaign remains buried in an Atlanta basement, willing, ready but so far unable.

Officially, Bond is an unannounced candidate. He says he will announce next month if he can find $100,000 committed to his cause, but that possibility at present looks slim. His brother James, double O seven, an Atlanta city councilman and Bond campaign director says that the good news is that $5,000 in gifts has been raised, but the bad news is it has all been spent;

"We're working out of the basement in my mother's home. We've got 20 volunteers or so and we're setting up people in some other states. But it's difficult because so far we're just raising enough money to meet expenses. Julian is going like hell, making speeches. He made 22 just last month. But some of that money goes for his own personal expenses, he's got five kids, you know, so we're hopeful but not at the moment rich."

Besides the present difficulties in raising campaign cash, Bond faces future problems caused by the newly enacted — and controversial — campaign finance reform act. For the first time the U.S. government is meddling more than a little in political campaigns, and Bond may be one of those most affected. His people are among legions who believe that the act discriminates against moderate income candidates.

Gene McCarthy, former Minnesota senator and currently another unwealthy presidential hopeful, has joined in a suit against the campaign act, charging that it is unconstitutional. As to the issue of rich vs. unrich candidates, McCarthy says the act provides that a rich one can contribute up to $50,000 to his own campaign, whereas an unrich candidate has to do without such personal generosity. Since a nonwealthy candidate cannot legally solicit this one lump $50,000 from another source (the law prohibits outside gifts in excess of $2,000 to any presidential campaign), he obviously has at least this substantial disadvantage.

Besides this, the Bond people point out, the portion of the new law entitling qualified presidential primary candidates to receive matching funds for every private dollar raised, also benefits the rich more than the poor. The government will match private individual donations up to $250, and since a rich candidate is more likely to have more donors able to give $250, his chances of getting more matching funds far exceed the campaigner who relies mostly on $1 to $5 contributions.

Thus it is that the "lure of dollars-Bond-for-President faces so many obstacles, traditional and new legal, that it may not become more than a bumper sticker slogan. Not this time around, anyway. And yet his friends keep plugging. Maurice Deas, a direct mail whiz, is lending advice to the Bond group; and Ken Boddy, a Chicagoan respected for his abilities in wooing convention delegates, is said to be coming to Atlanta soon. "Things are picking up," says brother James. "Our phone is ringing more now."

No one, perhaps, not even his brother, believes Bond can go all the way. But at this stage that doesn't seem to matter. Bondites promote their Julian as the only man in the Democratic party who can trigger the emotion and votes to stop George Wallace at the convention. Beyond this there is the hope of getting enough delegates at the assembly to create a new kind of black party.

"Julian," says James, "could be the guy they all have to come to to make concessions, for blacks and poor people and that kind of thing."

But first, some money has got to be got. And as of now, Julian Bond can not even afford a secretary. When he's away, and the volunteers go home, his phone is answered only by his recorded, apologetic voice: "Things are hard," it explains. "But remember the words of the wise politician, 'don't get mad, get angry.'"

Korean domino-worrying Tokyo officials

TOKYO — Behind the calm official reaction that the Communist takeover of Indochina afflicts nothing, the anguish it has generated in the upper reaches of the Japanese government was revealed last week at a private reception attended by key figures of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP).

One LDP faction leader who may be the next prime minister of Japan discarded the bland, unrevealing prose favored by leaders of that cautious and conservative party. A new Laredo internal conflict, he said, could destroy between catastrophe to Japan: a "civil war" brought left and right.

Implicit in that grim prophecy is diminished U.S. credibility in Asia after Vietnam — Communist conquest of Korea could come only if the U.S. breaks "treaty commitments to South Korea; instead, Japan's post-war democracy would then result from a belief that the Americans would abandon Japan as they did Korea.

That Japan, East Asia's great industrial power and democracy, should be indirectly threatened by the Indochina debacle is steeped in irony — Japanese leaders — some have suggested — say the U.S. flounders in Vietnam was inevitable and the Americans are lucky to be out of Southeast Asia. No non-Communist Asian country shows less interest in the domino theory than Japan.

Indeed, there is a nonchalance here about the fate of Southeast Asia. One prominent business consultant is advising against Communist control in Thailand because it feels Communist control is imminent, but considers this a minor loss. Japanese leaders generally regard Southeast Asia as a remote backwater, unimportant both politically and economically.

But nearby Korea is the one domino that counts for Japan, as witnesses one of Japan's most sophisticated and most widely respected presidential candidates. A decade ago, he advised the U.S. ambassador here to keep hands off Vietnam and let it go Communist. His views today on Korea: "If the United States leaves Korea, we are finished in all of Asia and the alliance with Japan is finished."

The official Japanese position rules out any chance of that happening. In a private interview with Foreign Minister Takeo Miki told us he has absolute confidence in the U.S. living up to its treaty commitments. "The United States people still remain a trustworthy people as far as the Japanese people are concerned," he adds. Unless there are "gross miscalculations," apparently by North Korea, Miki said, Korea "is not in for a military showdown."

Unofficially, however, there is anguish about the future, particularly if President Ford is not elected next year. Betraying old Japanese-Korean racial enmity, one official at the foreign office here calls the Koreans, "tough people who tend to collapse if things go against them." U.S. withdrawal, he predicted, would lead quickly to South Korea's collapse.

That poses this question: If U.S. commitments are worthless, how will Japan survive? Japanese-Soviet relations are chilly and likely to remain so. Relations with China are warmer, but a Sino-Japanese peace treaty may not be signed; behind the scenes, Foreign Minister Kuchi Miyazawa is staunchly opposing an anti-Soviet clause insisted on by the Chinese. In fact, the cool-headed Miyazawa is known to doubt how much protection Japan would gain from non-aggression promises by Moscow or Peking.

That leaves one alternative to the U.S. defense alliance: remilitarization (a subject we will discuss in another column, from here). But Japan's public opinion and mass media are militantly opposed to a rearmed Japan, nuclear or non-nuclear. That would set up a widely forecast titanic struggle between left and right — the "civil war" predicted by the LDP leader.

In such a tragic conflation, the right probably would be strong enough to win; but at the end of Japanese democracy and what stability remains in East Asia.

This catastrophic menace has deepened appreciation among Japanese leaders for the American alliance. Although high-level circles are fuming about Foreign Minister Miyazawa's reluctance to remilitarize in Asia, they have not been kept waiting by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, there is visibly less grumbling about such petty aggravations than during our last reporting trip here two years ago. Today's preoccupation at the foreign office is keeping Emperor Hirohito's U.S. visit this autumn free of any incidents that could impair U.S. Japanese relations.

Angry disputation in 1973 over textile quotas, trade imbalances and American intention had been replaced by apprehension in 1975 over whether the Americans can still be relied on for the defense of Japan that is essential to this nation's internal stability. That is why Japanese eyes, now and for years ahead, are fixed on the U.S. performance in Korea.

Black voice of reason

WASHINGTON — A black voice of reason is heard across the land. It belongs to the Rev. Jesse Jackson, former street activist of the Sixties, who is now arguing that blacks return to the old-fashioned virtues as a means to a better life. Jackson, a spellbinding orator with organizational skills, is using square words like "discipline" and "responsibility" in a campaign to persuade his brothers and sisters to do their own personal uplifting. He has rejected the old can that whites are responsible for all the blacks' troubles, and dares to come right out and say that "We now must be honest and take the blame for our own shortcomings."

For one thing, Jackson is preaching abstinence from narcotics, alcohol, nicotine and the other vices that have sapped an individual's strength to cash in on the civil rights victories of a decade ago. "We're free to do a lot of things we couldn't do before," he says, "but we don't have the discipline to do them."

Jackson even contends that vices and misplaced priorities are proportionately greater in the black community. "More blacks die from alcoholism than sickle cell anemia," he notes. "And most black-on-black crime is caused by someone trying to get money to get high." He criticizes blacks for wanting their wants first and their needs second. "We pay for drugs, then beg for shoes."

this: "It is wrong to preach abstinence to an entire race — morals and vices are personal things."

But a man's troubles, whether he's white or black, are terribly personal things — things that usually happen to him because of a lack of self-discipline. It seems strange that Roy Wilkins, one of the gentlest and most compassionate of men, should try to deter Jackson from taking a stand in favor of abstinence, or at least moderation. Blacks are not merely a race, they are human beings, and thus share with whites the burden of imperfection. Jackson simply acknowledges that burden.

ANDREW TULLY

In any case, it is refreshing to learn that Jackson is facing the real facts of black life. He is not buying the self-pitying drivel peddled by so many apologists who daily run off at the mouth about "root causes." To Jackson, obviously, a drunken black or dope-ridden black is just as much of a nuisance as a drunken or dope-ridden white. Jackson's voice is in particular a rebuff to "experts" like Dr. Alyce Gullattée, who teaches psychiatry at Howard University. Dr. Gullattée kissed off the more than 500 assaults by obviously a drunken black or dope-ridden black at Washington's recent "Human Kinetics" celebration by asking the shopworn question: "What kind of trauma did the attackers have to overcome as children?" Dr. Gullattée got a standing ovation from a predominantly black conference on juvenile delinquency sponsored by the D. C. Department of Human Resources. Obviously, the audience wanted to hear alibis, not solutions. But if Dr. Gullattée really is worried about racial prejudice, she should have wondered aloud how many of the whites at that mob scene went home

Some accusations haven't been made yet

WASHINGTON — Times Service — Amidst the rash of books and magazine series rehashing all the frightful things Nixon did, it might be useful to recount just a few of the items he has not yet been accused of doing.

1. Nixon never ordered the murder of a fellow chief of state. Recent accounts have alluded to the way the Kennedy brothers, fuming over the Bay of Pigs fiasco, might have had a little something to do with CIA and Mafia activities in connection with Fidel Castro. We will never know the full story about this, because no Congressional committee will put a dozen witnesses under oath to testify about their involvement, but enough has surfaced to justify suspicion that President Kennedy did not frown on murder as a tool of national policy.

2. Nixon never ordered the Justice Department not to prosecute a case that the Internal Revenue Service sent over with a recommendation for prosecution. The Kennedy brothers did this in the Sherman Adams case, inflicting the IRS professionals; in the post-Watergate morality, such conduct in quashing the prosecution for political gain would be labeled "obstruction of justice."

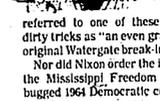

3. Nixon never ordered the extended wiretapping of a civil rights leader for the purpose of leaking derogatory information about him to the press. Certainly the deposed president's eavesdropping proclivities were reprehensible, but his motive was the plugging of national security leaks. The tapping of Martin Luther King appears to be attorney Robert Kennedy and Nicholas Katzenbach had no such justification, and the deliberate playing of such taped conversations to reporters and Congressmen violated law.

The Justice Department has recently admitted that the purpose of the King tap was "investigating the love life of a group leader for dissemination to the press." AS HERBERT LAW professor Alan DeLoach has recently written in the New Republic, "the King intrusions included the taping of as many as 5,000 separate conversations that violated the privacy of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of innocent King callers and visitors." And nobody ever sued.

4. Nixon never amassed millions of dollars in public office. One of his aides went to jail for boss a bundle, but Nixon did not enter public life a poor man and emerge a generation later with a net worth over $14 million, as his predecessor did. Fortunately for President Johnson, Sen. Sam Byrd was there to cast a pivotal vote against a Senate investigation into the activities of long-time Johnson intimate Bobby Baker.

5. Nixon never ordered the FBI or the CIA to spy on political opponents. Nixon hired his own "plumbers" but he never ordered the FBI to examine the telephone records of a vice-presidential candidate, as Lyndon Johnson did with Spiro Agnew in 1968. Nor did Nixon get the FBI to snoop on Robert Kennedy at the 1964 Democratic convention (no honor among tapers) as T. B. J. did. A New York Times editorial referred to one of these taxpayer-supported dirty tricks as "an even graver offense than the original Watergate break-in."

Nor did Nixon order the illegal surveillance of the Mississippi Freedom Party at that well-buzzed 1964 Democratic convention; curiously, nobody seems to want to go to court to discover who did.

6. Nixon never lied to the people about his health just before an election. We have known for about a year that Franklin D. Roosevelt knew he was dying in 1944, and concealed that fact from the voting public with the connivance of his doctors. Only recently have we learned from Ben Bradlee that John F. Kennedy referred privately to "my Addison's disease" and fretted about his face appearing puffed up because of prolonged cortisone treatment.

In 1969, when Democratic committeewoman India Edwards charged that candidate Kennedy was afflicted with Addison's disease and that the required treatment called into question his capacity to serve, Kennedy and his doctors put out a misleading statement about a "mild adrenal deficiency."

Lying to the people is always wrong, as Nixon learned, but lying to them about a material fact concerning ability to perform just before voters are called upon to make their decision — as we now find Senator Kennedy did — that has a special poignance.

Those are some of the things that Nixon never did. Of course, we would know a great deal more about other things he never did if Congress were to spend one-tenth the time and money investigating previous administrations as it expended on Nixon's. But that is not to be.

So let us smack our lips as we pore over the pages that recount the villainy of the early 70's. We need to reassure ourselves that the Good Guys, who win at last, were really the Good Guys all along.

Isn't that much more fun than forcing ourselves to look at the things that Nixon never did?

Newsman close in on Wallace

Wallace tosses loyalty issue back to Democrats

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Wallace turned the Askew proposal around: "I wonder if all these leaders want to announce they want to support me if I'm the nominee. I don't know why I'm required to take a loyalty oath until they do."

As to the statement by the chairman of the conference, Democratic Gov. Calvin Rampton of Utah, that he could not support Wallace because the Alabamian's health was not up to the rigors of the presidency or vice presidency, the wheelchair-bound governor said, "If I decide to run, it's because I feel well enough to run."

Wallace did not say he would abide by the party's decision next year on a nominee and in fact added, "There are a lot of people I can't support either."

He said the Democrats who have been attacking him recently were old opponents but his appeal was going to be "the people" anyway.

Wallace's appeal to the public was apparent as he was rolled into the lobby of the convention hotel a few blocks from New Orleans' historic French Quarter.

One woman rushed up to him and kissed the governor, and his arrival attracted far more attention than any of the other state chief executives.

The talk of Wallace's candidacy took center stage despite the hope of Rampton and other conference leaders that they could keep the spotlight on the meeting's theme: state responsibility to county and local governments.

GOP '76 choices certain

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The nation's governors have little doubt Gerald Ford and Nelson Rockefeller will be at the top of the Republican ticket next year, but they have no clear idea as to who will oppose them for the Democrats.

Asked by United Press International on the eve of their national conference here to make predictions of the major party standard bearers next year, 28 of the 37 governors who responded named Ford as the GOP candidate. Nineteen expected Rockefeller to be his running mate.

But there was nothing like a consensus about the likely Democratic ticket. Five governors believe Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., will be the presidential candidate and three named Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash.

There also were single favorite-son mentions of Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., but most of the governors simply declined to predict at this point.

Govs. James Edwards of South Carolina and Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire, both staunch conservatives, were the only Republicans who believed Ford could be denied the presidential nomination if he sought it. The two said they thought former Gov. Ronald Reagan could win the nomination and both named Reagan as the strongest candidate. The Republicans could nominate.

Asked to rank the current crop of Democratic presidential aspirants, minus Kennedy, four governors named Jackson front-runner. But an overwhelming majority said it is too soon to make a judgment.

"It's like looking at the elephant's ear and telling where the circus is," Gov. Ray Blanton of Tennessee said.

The governors also were asked to list the primary issues of the 1976 campaign, and the economy was the governing choice. Thirty-four of the 37 governors who replied made the economic situation the first or second top issue. One governor, Democrat Thomas Judge of Montana, made his list. The economy, the economy, the economy.

© N.Y. Times Service
LOS ANGELES — The federal authorities and the motion picture industry are cracking down on the possession and distribution of illegal prints of movies.

In Los Angeles alone, more than 27,000 cans of copyrighted films have been seized from unauthorized printers in recent months by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The crackdown has raised the price on bootleg films and caused film buffs to try to keep their private collections secure.

In addition to individuals and companies that traffic in pirated films, it is estimated that 65,000 private collectors across the nation might be in violation of federal laws that protect copyrighted motion pictures.

The infringement of federal copyright laws can bring a punishment of one year in prison or a $10,000 fine if the government can prove an individual printer is responsible for the sale of a pirated film.

Moreover, mere possession of an unauthorized film can subject the owner to civil infringement damages. This has created a secret society among private collectors, even within the Hollywood community itself, where for years the stars and production personnel have illegally accumulated and exchanged prints for reasons of personal amusement.

The government's last week dragged its investigation against an actor, Roddy McDowell, and announced that no criminal charges would be pressed against him. F.B.I. agents earlier this year had seized more than 500 films from McDowell's Hollywood home.

The actor has declined to comment on the case, but government attorneys said an investigation showed that McDowell had not used the films for personal profit.

However, his collection has remained in the hands of the government, and the presumption is that McDowell will get back only those films authorized by the motion picture studios to be in his hands.

The problem also extends to pirated copies of television programs and special events, although the market is considerably smaller compared to the demands for movies.

Developments in technology have made it easier and cheaper to copy motion pictures, and televised products. In recent years, according to experts, thus contributing to the unauthorized use of copyrighted material.

The industry is currently working on a system of identifying individual prints of films so that pirated copies can be traced to the point of their thereby exposing weak links in the chain of distribution.

'Buy' money rises 20-fold for year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Buy" money, the cash federal narcotics agents use to pay off informers, has risen from $50,000 to $9.6 million this year, according to Senate subcommittee sources.

The reason for that sharp increase, as well as sweeping charges that corrupt federal agents have committed crimes, theft and many other murders in the line of duty, were to come up at hearings starting today by the Senate Intelligence subcommittee.

Subcommittee sources, stressed the unproven nature of the charges, said the hearings will cover a broad and lurid variety of corruption charges against federal narcotics men.

They said the charges will include allegations agents have murdered informants, kidnaped and planted evidence on suspects, used illegal wiretapping and stolen from the huge federal payroll for informers.

One line of investigation, they said, will examine claims that Howard Hughes' Summa Corp. bankrolled federal agents at Las Vegas gambling tables to help them establish "cover" in a drive against drug dealers known as "Operation Silver Bullet."

The sources said the hearings also would focus on the increase in federal requests for "buy" money.

Not interested

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Breathes there a politician — a governor — who doesn't see himself as president of the United States one day?

Apparently there is.

Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida said Sunday, "I just don't want to be president or vice president."

Asked on a national television interview NBC's "Meet the Press" why he isn't interested in a place on the 1976 ticket even though he is frequently mentioned by Democrats around the country, Askew replied, "I just don't want to go into national politics... It's not what I want to do in life."

Governors prefer fuel allocations

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Both President Ford and Congress have not come up with an adequate energy program, most of the nation's governors agree. Most would rather see fuel supply allocation than higher prices.

In response to a UPI poll on the eve of the National Governors Conference, only Michigan Gov. William Milliken said he thinks a program is being developed. A few others give Ford credit for trying, and some see slight progress.

But of the 27 governors participating in the poll, 26 flatly replied, "No." When asked whether the government has developed, or is in the process of developing, a workable program.

Their replies indicate as much disagreement over what should be done as exists in the administration and Congress. Most, however, indicate they favor allocation over Ford's increase of tariffs on imported oil or congressional moves to tax gasoline, both of which would increase fuel prices.

The governors would accept allocation reluctantly, but rationing of gas was termed a measure of "last resort" and a "gruesome prospect."

There was strong opposition to any program using higher prices to discourage gasoline consumption, although a few governors recommended that approach. Some others were willing to let voluntary conservation remain the keystone of the energy program.

Venus goal for craft

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union is sending a new, unmanned spacecraft toward Venus, strengthening its virtual monopoly on exploration of the earth's closest planetary neighbor.

The Tass news agency said the Venus 9 rocket launched Sunday was functioning normally on its way to a scheduled rendezvous with the planet next October.

The news agency said Soviet ground controllers would have to make several course corrections during the spacecraft's 30-million-mile flight.

your health

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am 19 and have a terrible problem with weight. It's not that I'm weighty much, as I am only 80 pounds. I can't seem to gain any weight.
It seems like I lose a lot more than I gain. And I'm pretty fit. I try to lift something and I start shaking like I did. I don't know if that is caused by my weight or not. I am not trying to put you to rest — Mrs. D.P.
Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I was wondering — if there are diet pills that help some people lose weight, are there any pills to help me gain weight? I'm a boy, 16, and I weigh 115 to 120 pounds. I would like to gain 30 or 40 pounds if possible.
I eat just about all the time, but I don't gain, not a pound — T.V.

They want to gain weight

Leanness, and sometimes downright skinniness, has to be accepted gracefully. It is not easy to force weight gain, as both of you have learned. The fables swear they eat like birds, the skinnies that they eat like horses. Neither claim can be entirely true.

Neither the young woman nor the boy writing here gives helpful statistics or mentions build, both important factors in evaluating just how thin they really are. So it is difficult to comment on their individual cases.

However, most plumpness seems to run in families. So does leanness. Most plump persons have high caloric eating habits, while the lean ones generally do have good basic food intake.

Fatless also tend to engage in less physical activities, although whether this is a cause of their condition, or a result of it, is not clear. The skinnies tend to be little dynamos of activity, able to "burn off" enormous amounts of calories.

While both plumpness and leanness can be hereditary, leanness seems to be more so, and if this is the case there is little really to be done about it.

Both writers, especially the first (the 80 pounder), should have physical examinations to rule out any systemic disorder — an overactive thyroid, for example.

T.V. asks about a pill. A preparation called Pericatin (cyproheptadine) has been tried in some cases of underweight, but under physician's supervision.

Theoretically, trying to stuff the thin person with high caloric foods should work, but usually it doesn't. If the condition is hereditary, the best you can do is to accept your fate, and take some consolation in the fact that leanness generally is a better state of health than fatness.

Girls should make the best of the situation with optical deceptions such as avoiding tight-fitting clothes. As the years roll along, both these young people may find themselves gaining weight, and it will be less unsightly if it does not, in spots such as the tummy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am an 18-year-old girl. About six months ago I noticed a small white spot on the lower half of my breast. I have read about calcium deposits. Could it be this, or like cancer? Can someone in their teens get breast cancer? — G.D.

Calcification of breast tumors — such as fibroadenomas — or of papillomas can occur, but this is not too common a problem. It is more likely an innocent calcareous cyst. Cancer of the breast can occur in teens, but this, too, is not very common. Have your doctor look at it the next time you go in to see him.

Dear Doctor:
Is it true that cocoa butter will remove scars left by sores? — Mrs. O.W.

Scars are caused by the formation of fibrous tissue. Cocoa butter will not remove them. Some scars will tend to become less visible with time, for example, a vaccination scar, or those of acne or from an operation.

DEAR ABBY: I had the same problem "OUT IN THE BOONDOCKS" had. My husband deserted me and I wanted to get married again but couldn't locate my husband to divorce him. On the advice of my lawyer, I put an ad in the newspaper asking my husband to please contact me. It ran for three weeks without results, so I went ahead, divorced him and married the other man. It's been 12 years now and I still haven't heard from my "ex" and neither has his family. However, when I wanted to declare him legally dead, my children could collect his Social Security and I could collect his life insurance. I was advised that my "ex" was still paying into his Social Security, which meant he is still alive!

Law protects ex-husband

But (get this) the law is protecting that bum by refusing to let me know the location from which he is paying. How about that?

DESERTED

DEAR DESERTED: Social Security data are confidential. The law is very democratic. Even "bums" have rights.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 75-year-old widow in excellent health, am very independent and am enjoying a full life. Two years ago, my brother lost his wife and came to make his home with me. He is 86. We are of the Jewish faith. A cousin of ours invited my brother to the first seder (religious dinner) at her home. However, she did not invite me! I know why, too. She has a new boyfriend and was afraid that if he saw me, he might like me more than her. (This cousin is now in a nursing home.) I felt bad because this might be the last seder I could spend with my brother.

Do you think it was very nice of our cousin to invite my brother and not me? (He didn't want to go without me, but I insisted!)

STAYED HOME

DEAR STAYED: No. But on the brighter side, it's a compliment that at age 75, your charm and personality poses a threat to a woman five years your junior.

DEAR ABBY: This may sound crazy, but I need your advice. I am divorced and the mother of a sweet, 4-year-old boy named Ronnie.

We were at home recently when an armed intruder confronted us. The man was gentle and he quickly put Ronnie at ease. He wanted only money and promised not to hurt us. We both explained to Ronnie that Mommy would have to be tied up for a while. He seemed to understand.

After I was bound and gagged, Ronnie was told to turn the TV on and when the program was over (about 20 minutes) he could help me or call for help. I was taken to another room and the robber left.

Abby, my son spent the next THREE HOURS watching TV while I was bound and utterly helpless. I finally managed, through the gag, to tell him to go next door for help.

Could Ronnie possibly have some hostility toward me? Should I see a psychologist? Please answer.

TIED UP

DEAR TIED: From your description of the way the intruder put Ronnie at ease and "explained" that you would have to be tied up for a while, the boy obviously felt no urgency about getting help or setting you free. Psychologist? Hostility? What for? The kid didn't get the picture—except on TV.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lusk Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL HARRIS

Miss Sims trades vows with Harris

GLENN'S FERRY — Mary Frances Sims, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sims of Glens Ferry became the bride of Michael R. Harris on May 24 at 4 p.m. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Harris of Mountain Home.

Father P.B. Condon performed the double-ring ceremony in the Our Lady Of Limerick Catholic Church before baskets of blue gladiolus, white carnations and chrysanthemums flanked by white tapers. The bride, given by her father, chose a white floor-length gown of satin crepe with the bodice and full length sleeves of lace with pearl trim. The 12-foot train had a head piece trimmed with daisies and pearls. Her bridal bouquet was of white roses, long white ribbon streamers. The mother of the bride made the dress ensemble.

Danny Shrum, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Shrum, was altar-boy. Teri Powell-Glenn Ferry, was maid of honor. Debi Johnson of Glens Ferry and Cris Kohring, Mountain Home, were bridesmaids. Debi Harris, sister of the groom, was the flower girl. David Harris of Mountain Home, uncle of the groom, was the best man. Allen Harris, Mountain Home, brother of the groom, and Daniel Sims, Glens Ferry, brother of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in Veteran Memorial Hall. The hall was decorated with blue and white bells, ribbon and baskets of flowers. The bride's table was covered with a white taffeta ruffled cloth with net draped over it, decorated with blue bows. It was centered with a four tiered cake which was decorated with blue and white flowers with greenery and topped with white doves. The cake was flanked with white candles.

Mary Alice Glasby, Mountain Home, and Susie Shrum Glens Ferry, cut and served the cake. Mrs. David Harris, sister-in-law of the groom, and Joseph Howard, Nampa, served the punch. Tammy Powell, Glens Ferry, presided at the silver coffee service. Crisie Rice, Glens Ferry, was in charge of the guest book and Kathy Gerch of the gift table. Both

LET US DO A LITTLE SHIFTING FOR YOU... AUTOMATICALLY

With First Security's automatic transfer, you won't notice it's missing, but you will notice it's growing. It works like this: You fill out a simple form authorizing us to shift money from your checking account to your savings account. Then on the day you say, we automatically add the amount you say to your savings account and subtract it from your checking account. And with our continuous interest, compounded continuously, your money starts earning immediately from deposit to withdrawal. It's the most painless way to save regularly anyone's come up with yet. And you can make arrangements to do the same thing with your First Security mortgage payment or Timeway loan payment. We just transfer funds from one account to another automatically. No fuss, no worry, no late payments because you forgot. An old proverb says, "If money isn't your servant, it is your master." Automatic transfer is an easy way to make sure your money doesn't turn the tables on you. Come in to any office of First Security and we'll be happy to help you fill in the forms.

Permission necessary

DIETRICH — Farmers in this area who want to put irrigation pipe under a road must obtain permission from the District Highway District, according to a decision of the board.

Costs for materials and re-covering of the road will be charged to the farmer, according to a resolution issued.

No one appeared to protest or voice opinions regarding the proposed budget which was set at $62,000.

Highway board members decided that because of payment of overtime the price for dirt will be $7; gravel, $18 per load and machinery may be hired out at $18 per hour.

Firm operators convicted

BURLEY — Three operators of a mobile home firm have been convicted in Cassia County Magistrate Court of violating Idaho public utilities laws.

Steve and Jerry Kenland and Ed Stamper, who operate Kenland Century Mobile Homes, were fined $50 each for moving mobile homes for hire without a PUC permit.

Crank callers usually apprehended

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Police Detective Ed Brake says it sometimes takes years but most people who make obscene phone calls or write threatening letters are apprehended.

Brake said police use telephone line identification and handwriting analysis to identify crank callers and obscene letter writers. The first suspects checked out are those with whom the victim has had personal or business dealings.

The task is more difficult when a public official is involved, he said. But even then the offender usually is apprehended.

"I've arrested people for this sort of thing two and three years after they committed the crime," he said.

Budget revised

BOISE (UPI) — Boise school administrators are looking at a proposed 1975-76 budget of $24,126,923 after cutting $200,000 from it in a weekend work session.

Ron Ruanan, assistant superintendent for administration, said controversial budget categories for alternative schools and administration will be taken up at a session Tuesday.

The revised budget exceeds projected revenues by $32,000, he said.

Albino horse 'recruited'

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — A 26-year-old albino horse called only "The Old White Mare" and described as "just a hay-burner" has been recruited for a possible role in a Walt Disney film.

The horse, owned by Paul Landers of Smith's Prairie north of Mountain Home, has not been ridden in 15 years. She once was a cow horse and helped with hunting.

The Disney Studios commissioned Chuck Hoagland of Mountain Home to find horses for a film they plan to shoot in Idaho this summer called "Open Winter."

Hoagland thinks the old white mare could play the part of "Grandma" in the movie — if she can learn to nibble at straw hats as the story horse is expected to do.

She's 'as American as apple pie'

BOISE (UPI) — A Boise couple who adopted a Vietnamese orphan nearly two years ago say their young daughter Karey now is "as American as apple pie."

Karey, 3½, arrived in the United States June 10, 1973, when her adoptive parents, Mr. and Mrs. Court Olson, were living in Nebraska.

At the time, she was underweight, behind in development, and covered with infections. Mrs. Olson said the girl weighs 30 pounds, is very talkative, enjoys swinging for hours and likes to watch "Sesame Street."

Boise death probe

BOISE (UPI) — Boise police are investigating the death of Caryl B. Jain, 77, Boise, 6717 Morton Drive, who was found dead at his home of a gunshot wound.

The Ada County Coroner's office said materials found near the body when it was discovered at 1 p.m. Saturday indicated the man may have been cleaning the gun when it discharged.

Area fires destroy house and barn

FILER — The Filer fire department fought two fires Sunday, one which destroyed a house and the second a barn.

According to fire chief James DeVall, the Filer fire truck, along with a truck from the Kimberly Fire Department, first responded to a fire at the home of Rod Berry Jr., about two miles southeast of Berger.

The fire destroyed a farm-house on the property, with the loss estimated at about $16,000. DeVall said the structure was nearly destroyed when firemen arrived.

Sheriff Paul Corder said the fire may have been started by an oil stove which had blown out and filled with fuel and then been ignited by a

Field Day awards listed

HOLLISTER — Winners of the awards at the Idaho Junior Polled Hereford Association Field Day were announced today.

The Gooding Future Farmers of America won first in team judging. Its members include those Blinn, Bruce Ellington and John Bolte.

The Filer FFA won second place and its members are Wyatt and Wade Williams and Tim Chadwick.

First place in junior judging to Farrol Renner-Gooding and second place to Carmen Kendall, Emmett. Dave Chadwick, Hollister, placed first in adult judging and Bethine Brewer, Three Creek, second.

During a business meeting, seven directors voted for the coming year. They are Carol Shepherd, Filer; Neal Ward, Rexburg; Jeannette Breeding, Murlaugh; Kenny Colter, Gooding; John Moody, Gooding; Lynn and Tim Chadwick, Hollister.

The directors chose Colter, president and re-elected Neal Ward, vice president, Carol Shepherd, secretary and Jeannette Breeding, treasurer.

The group set the 1976 field day for June 9 and 10 with the place to be announced. Next year's field day will include a queen contest and a public speaking contest. Plans were made for a booth at the Twin Falls County Fair in September.

Directors will meet Aug. 2 at the home of John Coleman, Twin Falls, youth advisor. The entire group will meet during the Hereford Bull and Heifer sale at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Filer, in November.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Boss were hosts for a barbeque dinner Saturday during the field day at their ranch.

Thought for today

Franklin D. Roosevelt, 32nd U.S. president, said, "If civilization is to survive, we must cultivate the science of human relationships—the ability of all peoples, of all kinds, to live together in the same world, at peace."

Food cost stabilizes

Potato prices jumped a big 51.5 per cent, with the average price for a 10-pound sack $1.03 in May compared to 68 cents in March. Ground beef prices also jumped, with an average of 79 cents in May compared to 59 cents in March, a 33.9 per cent increase. Potatoes, however, have dropped 44.5 per cent over the year, since they were $1.86 last May when ground beef prices averaged 89 cents a pound.

Bacon prices also rose, but more slowly, with a pound averaging $1.77 in May compared to $1.60 in March for a 10.6 per cent increase.

Sugar prices took a big drop from $4.30 to 10 pounds in March to $3.11 in May, a 27.7 per cent decline. Margarine also dropped $1.4 per cent from 70 cents a pound in March to 55 cents a pound in May. Sugar was 18.5 per cent higher this year, compared to $2.53 for 10 pounds last year, with margarine a penny higher at 56 cents.

Cassia meet set tonight

BURLEY — The Cassia County school board has slated a discussion tonight on charges by HEW that the district has failed to draw up a plan to end alleged discrimination in the school system.

In December, HEW (U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare) charged the district's Burley schools with several violations of the civil rights act. In January, the district agreed to make plans to end the discriminatory practices. Now, however, HEW says the district has failed to state how and when it will comply with the civil rights act.

The district now has until July to establish an "interim plan" for complying with the civil rights act.

The second fire occurred about 7 p.m. on the premises of the Magic Valley Living Center about two-and-one-half miles south of Curry.

Corder said deputies were investigating whether faulty wiring could have started the barn fire.

There were no injuries from either blaze, DeVall said.

Judge refuses release

RUPERT — A magistrate judge refused to release Ernest Rufenner from jail Friday after Rufenner's attorney sought the release.

Rufenner, who has been jailed for the chain strangulation death of his mother, had sought release Friday on grounds that he is illegally detained. His attorney claimed that the prosecuting attorney had failed to file charges in District Court within 10 days of the preliminary hearing, as required by state criminal procedure.

Magistrate Judge Daniel Meehl denied the request, saying the preliminary hearing order was not signed by Magistrate Judge George Granta until 7:27. Therefore, Prosecuting Attorney William Manning has until today to file charges in district court.

Rufenner's wife, Griselda, also has been charged with voluntary manslaughter and false imprisonment in the death of Anna Marie Rufenner, 77. Mrs. Rufenner is now free on $1,000 bond.

Survey shows vacancy rate

BOISE — A recent postal vacancy survey indicated a 2.1 per cent vacancy rate in the Twin Falls, Buhl and Jerome area, according to Charles Holley, Jr., Boise.

Holley is director of the insuring office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

He said that the survey, conducted by carriers, revealed a total of 16,928 possible deliveries to residences, apartments and mobile homes with 360 of those units vacant.

Of the possible deliveries surveyed, 15,328 were residences, with 291 vacant with the 1.9 per cent vacancy rate including 61 newly completed units. A total of 109 residences were reported under construction.

Of the 682 apartment units, 4.4 per cent were reported vacant. Carriers reported that the 30 vacant units included no new units and 114 apartment units were under construction.

A total of 918 mobile homes were surveyed with 39 vacant units for 4.2 per cent vacancy rate.

A breakdown of the report shows that in Twin Falls 10,570 units were surveyed with 214 vacant for 2 per cent vacancy rate.

There were 9,428 residences with 164 vacant, 570 apartments with 26 vacant and 572 mobile homes with 24 vacant. Of the vacant residences, 19 were new. The survey reports 65 residences and 80 apartment units under construction.

In Buhl, a total of 2,789 addresses were surveyed with 51 vacant. There were 2,573 residences with 70 vacant, 54 apartments with 1 vacant and 162 mobile homes with 13 vacant. There were 19 residences and 12 apartment units under construction. Of the vacant residences, 6 were new.

In Jerome, 3,569 addresses were surveyed with 57 vacant. There were 3,227 residences with 51 vacant, 58 apartments with 8 vacant and 184 mobile homes with two vacant. There were 25 residences and 22 apartment units under construction. A total of 36 of the vacant residences were new.

River runoff at peak

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Little Wood River runoff may have peaked already and Big Wood River has decreased in volume flow slightly in the past few days. Heavier than normal snowfall on the lower elevations this year caused some observers here to worry about flooding, however, cooling temperatures at night retarded much of the expected heavy runoff and the watermaster of the Big and Little Wood Rivers expects a sustained runoff with only a slight possibility of flooding.

The height gauge at the Hailey metering station this morning registered 5.33 feet, which is down from the high reading this year of 6.35 feet Saturday.

The flood stage established by the National Weather Bureau for Big Wood River is 6.5 feet. Water is running a little higher than at the same time last year. Big Wood River peaked out last year on June 18 with a reading of 6.50 feet with 400 cubic second feed of water passing the Hailey gauge.

Little Wood River flows if full now, according to watermaster Field Newby, with a little over 3,000 acre feet spilling over daily. Little Wood Reservoir, which is fed by watersheds in the Muldoon area should fill by June 15, Newby said. He said there is still much snow in the high watershed which drain into the reservoir.

CSI education TV nears end of 2nd year of service

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Although still unfamiliar to many local TV watchers, the educational station KATV-TV, channel 13, is nearing the end of its second year in service.

The college recently was required to file for a renewal of its license to operate the station, which is actually a low-powered translator which re-broadcasts programs aired by Boise station KATV-TV, channel 4.

According to a Federal Communications Commission spokesman, translator licenses are routinely renewed without question, unless protests are filed from the community or others. It appears that the station has not attracted a mass audience. Problems of reception may be one of the reasons.

But Holly Houburg, who handles the station's public relations, said viewers may not be readily apparent when things are running smoothly. "The just will until a program is interrupted," Houburg said many calls come in.

The translator itself picks up a snowy signal from its mother station KATV, channel 4, in Boise, according to one KATV employee. And, in Boise, according to one KATV employee, the translator is powered at the required low level of 100 watts compared with KMTV's more than 300,000 watts.

Reception may be nearly impossible in some areas, and in others, good only after a rooftop antenna is installed, according to a television repairman.

To improve reception, a "channel-cut" antenna is best, according to a television engineer. The antenna is specially constructed to maximize reception of a specific channel.

Because of reception problems and a lack of television sets, few if any school districts have used the educational channel in class.

Several schools, however, have plans to use television in their curriculum. The Twin Falls district may have cable hookups in all schools by next fall, according to curriculum director Dennis Messenger.

But even with the planned cable hookup, the students wouldn't see the programs rebroadcast from CSI; they would see KUED-TV, Salt Lake City educational television station.

Houburg, coordinator of CSI's audio-visual department, said channel 13 may be brought onto the cable. Houburg said Ken Walker, Cablevision director, "loved to bring in channel 13 on cable."

Walker was out of town, but his staffers seemed to think a cable link was unlikely.

During the school year, the station broadcasts

Education Television programs, ETV, from about 8 in the morning until 3 or 4 p.m., Houburg said. Then PBS, Public Broadcasting Service, programs and programs originated by KATV are broadcast until late in the evening.

When the school year ends, only the PBS and KATV-originated programs are broadcast, Houburg said.

A brief glance at the ETV schedule shows program offerings like "Mulligan Stew," which features a children's rock group teaching mathematics. "Time to Draw," which gives visual and drawing lessons, and a show where Shakespearean plays are produced with puppets.

The PBS programs include offerings like "Masterpiece Theatre," Kenneth Clark's "Civilization," and scientific and news features. Programs originated at KATV in Boise include legislative news, interviews with Idaho personalities such as J.R. Simplot and others.

Original plans for channel 13 called for locally-originated programs to be broadcast from a Twin Falls studio. But as yet there has been little progress towards that goal because of setting up a studio, according to Houburg.

Before the push by CSI officials for an educational station, channel 13 was designated as a commercial allotment, one of two in Twin Falls. The other commercial station, channel 11, is held by KMYT-TV.

Since the channel allotments were made by the FCC in about 1952, three commercial interests have held options on channel 13, the last being KBQI (now KBCI).

Johns, president and general manager, said, "We, like all the predecessors, didn't build it (the station) either and we turned it over to the junior college there," Johns said.

The FCC subsequently approved an official change in channel 13's from commercial to educational, in early 1972, according to an FCC attorney.

Only an educational station can now operate on channel 13, but a full-fledged educational station would take precedence over CSI's translator, should anyone attempt to establish a competitor.

One FCC man called translators "squatters" and another said, a translator "operates a channel" on a secondary basis. They can be bumped at any time.

CSI has had little financial obligation resulting from the establishment of the translator. The translator equipment is located with the KMYT tower on the Jerome butte. CSI pays no rent and KMYT engineers service the equipment for the college, apparently at no cost.

In addition, KMYT, originally donated, the translator and installed it, according to past and present employees of the station. Dr. James Johns, former president, estimated the original cost to be about $15,000.

Apparently other commercial outlets have not been interested in establishing a full-fledged station in Twin Falls because of a limited market.

However, should such an interest come in the future, it should be the community feel the need for another locally-originated station, the FCC could possibly designate another commercial allocation for the area.

If a group of people think a community can support another station, three conditions must be met before another channel can be allocated, according to an FCC attorney.

The additional channel must be "engineeringly feasible," there must be a sufficient population to support the channel and a need must be shown for a new station, the FCC attorney said.

Without doing a detailed study, the FCC attorney said he thought Channel 5 might fit in the Twin Falls area if another commercial station becomes desirable.

A-State drops Texas 5-2

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Arizona State defeated Texas 5-2 Sunday night after Todd Helmer tossed a six-inning and his 32nd Hall terminates bombed tournament favorite Florida State out of the NCAA College World Series playoffs in an earlier game, 11-0.

Texas went 5-0, took a 2-0 lead in the bottom of the third. But the Sun Devils, who ran their mark to 0-11, tied the game in the top of the third. One of the runs came on a 343-foot smash over the left field wall by Gary Allenson, who also doubled in the home run in the eighth inning.

Texas relief pitcher Terry Ray Wild pitched one run home in the ninth and then gave the Sun Devils another tally when he walked a man with the bases loaded.

The pitching loss, though, was charged to Texas starter Richard Wortham, who suffered his first defeat against 14 wins. The victory went to Arizona State reliever Tom Van Der Meersch, who relieved starter Greg Cochran in the fifth.

Hot McLinn tops golf field

Dot McLinn carved out a net 61 to lead 23 women to victory in the annual "beat the pro" contest.

The Twin Falls Women's Golf Association members were given a mediocre 73 to shoot at by host Professional Clyde Thomsen. They then were allowed full handicap plus four strokes.

Hawley thrown from mount

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Three-time North American riding champion Sandy Hawley was thrown from his mount at the finish of the fifth race Sunday at Hollywood Park and was taken to a hospital for treatment and examination.

Hawley fell when a horse swerved in front of his mount, Nash Book, causing the horse to fall just at the finish line. Taken to the track first aid station, Hawley complained of neck and arm pains and was taken to the hospital.

Expos acquire Scherman

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Montreal Expos Sunday acquired the contract of left-hander Fred Scherman from the Houston Astros for cash consideration or a player to be named later.

Montreal vice president and general manager Jim Fanning said Scherman, 30, will join the Expos Tuesday in Los Angeles. Scherman has pitched in the majors since 1959 with the Detroit Tigers and the Astros. He has pitched mostly to relief.

Italian wins Moto Journal

LE CASTELLO, France (UPI) — Giacomo Agostini of Italy won the 125-mile motorcycle "Moto Journal 200" race at the Paul Ricard circuit Sunday on his Yamaha 750 cc motorcycle.

Hayes gets three new fans

COLUMBUS (UPI) — Ohio State University football coach Woody Hayes has three new fans—perhaps the most enthusiastic ones he has ever had, considering they don't know anything about football.

Hayes and his wife are the American sponsors of three Vietnamese refugees—Paulette Kim Ngan and her two sons, Huy and Thy.

The Ngans' arrived here last week and will live temporarily with the Hayes family in suburban Upper Arlington.

Mrs. Ngan, who is divorced, met Hayes during four trips he made to Vietnam during the war for talks with servicemen about football. She was in charge of scheduling itineraries for entertainers, athletes, coaches and other American visitors to that country.

"The good fortune I have," she said Sunday, "I am afraid I do not deserve."

During the final days of the war, when Saigon was being shelled by the North Vietnamese, Hayes received a call from a friend of Mrs. Ngan's in New York informing him she was in need of a sponsor.

Hayes and his wife agreed to the sponsorship and (Rep. Sam Devine, R-Ohio, handled the arrangement.

"Maybe I still be in Saigon if I do not have a sponsor," said Mrs. Ngan, who is seeking local employment, so she can establish a home here.

Asked her impressions of America, she replied, "It is like heaven."

Attendance down at horse track

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Churchill Downs officials reported Sunday decreased attendance and betting totals this year in contrast with record 1974 figures.

Zaack spokesmen said the decline was due mostly to a 40 per cent drop in Derby Day attendance and wagering.

For the track's 37-day meet this year, 486,277 fans pushed $40.4 million through the betting windows. In 1974, attendance reached over 547,000 and betting was almost $42 million.

Statistics for the entire Churchill Downs Meet this spring, however, will show increases over last year because the Kentucky State Racing Commission has extended the meet 12 days, until June 21.

McGriff and Chevella win

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Hershel McGriff of Bridal Veil, Ore., driving a 1967 Chevella, won his third straight California 100 late model sportsman car race Sunday, finishing nine seconds in front of Vince Giamformaggio of Van Nuys, Calif.

McGriff, who was a late qualifier Saturday and started in the eleventh row in the 40-car field, averaged 91.029 miles per hour and completed the 100 miles over the Riverside road course in one hour, seven minutes and 21 seconds. He won $1,350.

Cubs sign 1st draft pick

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs Sunday signed their No. 1 draft pick, Brian Rosinski, who batted .517 this year for Evanston High School and is rated by Cubs scouts as one of the nation's top six prep prospects.

Rosinski, an outfielder-first baseman who throws right and bats left, will report to the Cubs' Bradenton, Fla., rookie class in the Coast League on June 13, a Cubs' spokesman said.

Foyt wins 150-mile Rex Mays Classic

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Pole-sitter A. J. Foyt won the 150-mile Rex Mays Classic Sunday despite having been black-flagged for passing another car while the yellow flag was out after an accident on the one-mile State Fair Park track.

Foyt, who had won the pole in qualifying with a time of 128.8 miles per hour, posted an average winning time of 114.042 miles per hour.

Bobby Unser, winner of this year's Indianapolis 500, lost a chance to win the race of Albuquerque, N.M., lost a chance to win the race when he allowed Foyt to pass him on the 129th lap, mistakenly thinking that Foyt was a lap behind him.

Johnny Rutherford, Fort Worth, Tex. and last year's Rex Mays winner, was third, followed by Wally Dallenbach, Basalt, Colo., and Mike Mosley, Fallbrook, Cal.

Several drivers held the lead at the beginning of the race, including Gordon Johncock, Phoenix, who had taken the lead from Foyt on the eighth lap. Johncock blew a piston while coming in for a pit stop on the 71st lap and was eliminated.

With Unser leading Foyt, the yellow flag was put out for 10 laps when Mel Cornett, Wausatcha, Wis., spun out on the back turn of the 51th lap and was hit by John Martin, Irvine, Cal. Neither was hurt.

Just before the yellow flag was lifted Foyt passed Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., and was given the black flag on the 68th lap and had to make a penalty stop.

Unser's crew thought Foyt lost a complete lap in that stop, but the Houston driver had actually lost only seconds. Unser, who had regained the lead on the 125th lap, subsequently let Foyt pass him on the 129th lap and Foyt led the rest of the way.

The official results were not posted for 45 minutes after the race while Unser's crew conferred with officials.

The total purse for the race was $80,025 and 34,552 persons attended.

Foyt, who won $18,739 in the race by second on his pit stop under the black flag because he was in radio contact with his crew. They had told him it was a penalty stop so he was able to zip in, stop briefly, and head right back onto the track.

Unser won $12,905 in the race, but still retained first place in the national championship standings for USAC.

Vinnie Giles victorious in British Amateur golf

HOYLAKE, England (UPI) — A lip from his wife made the difference to Vinnie Giles Saturday and paved the way to his crushing victory in the 36-hole final of the British Amateur golf championship.

Giles, the red-headed 22-year-old lawyer from Richmond, Va., beat English champion Mark James 8-and-7 in a lopsided contest on Royal Liverpool Golf Club's windswept seaside course.

It equaled the largest margin of victory in the British Amateur in 25 years.

Giles saved his best golf of the week-long match play tournament for the final, especially on Royal Liverpool's tiny greens that had given him trouble all week. He had his wife key to thank.

"Normally, I like to have my eyes over the ball when putting," Giles explained later. "Key noted that the ball was too far back. I was working about a foot behind it."

An hour's putting practice on the hotel room carpet Friday night set that straight and sealed the fate of James, a cool 21-year-old who won praise the week before by winning all his matches in the Walker Cup competition at St. Andrews.

The result of Giles' overnight practice was not long in coming. On the first green Saturday he ran down a 20-footer for a winning birdie enroute to a morning round that included eight birdies and six one-putt greens.

That put him two up. On the first hole of the afternoon round he chipped in from 35 yards for a winner. He took the second and third holes with single putts and won the fourth when James hit his approach into a garden adjoining the course.

With Giles standing six up, the matter then became academic.

The soft-spoken Virginian was the 19th American to win the title since the first British Amateur was played at Royal Liverpool in 1865. He also became the 12th Yank to hold both the British and American Amateur titles, having won the U.S. championship in 1972.

Barclay Joy comes from behind to win invitational turf 'cap'

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Irish-bred Barclay Joy scored a major upset Sunday when he came from last place with a powerful stretch run to capture the $125,000 Invitational Turf Handicap by a head at Hollywood Park.

The victory by the 5-year-old stretch-runner was held up for 10 minutes while stewards studied the film of the race because of rough riding on the final turn, but allowed the results to stand.

Captain Cee Joy was a head behind the winner and a neck in front of Chief Hawk Ear, and the heavily-favored Buffalo Lark was seventh in the field of 10.

Tommy Doyle, who saddled Avast Saturday to win the Belmont Stakes in New York, sent out Barclay Joy to his surprise victory in the 1 1/2-mile race on the infield turf course. The winner was timed in 2:27 and earned a purse of $75,000 to surpass his previous career winnings of $61,322.

Barclay Joy rewarded his backers in the crowd of more than 40,000 with $71,301, $31,610 and $14. Captain Cee Joy paid $14 and $8 and Chief Hawk Ear paid $11.

The claim of foul was lodged by jockey Frank Olivares, who rode Pass The Glass to fifth place. Olivares claimed interference by the first four horses, but his claim was disallowed.

Barclay Joy is owned by the Barclay Stable of John McShain, a Philadelphia hotel magnate. The invitational was his ninth start in this country and the 5-year-old son of El Levantado had flashed winning form at Santa Anita last winter when he captured a division of the Camino Real Handicap and finished third in the San Luis Obispo Handicap. He then failed to win a race until last month when he scored on the grass to indicate his return to winning form.

Barclay Joy had won only $6,487 in Ireland and did not race a day until he was purchased by McShain and brought to this country, making his debut at Santa Anita.

Chief Hawk Ear was ridden by jockey Howard Grant, who replaced the injured Sandy Hawley, leading rider at the meeting. Hawley was thrown heavily to the track in the fifth race when his mount, Nash Flash, clipped the heels of another horse. Hawley missed the rest of the day, although his injuries were not reported serious.

Seton Hall wins in the College Series

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Weather permitting, action will resume tonight in the NCAA College World Series with Seton Hall matched against one of the pre-tournament favorites, Texas, and Oklahoma taking on Eastern Michigan in the night cap.

Sunday, Seton Hall pounded in an 11-0 Florida state's pitching ruin which knocked the pre-playoff favorite out of the double elimination series. Fullerton State of California earlier was sent packing after suffering two defeats.

South Carolina, which took a rain-shortened six-inning 5-1 victory from Eastern Michigan Saturday night, won't play until Tuesday when the Gamecocks will tangle with Arizona State's Sun Devils who defeated Texas Sunday, 5-2.

Seton Hall's Todd Heimer ran his record to 8-0 with an impressive six-hitter over Florida State. His teammates meanwhile were "battering" Seminole pitching for 12 hits with the biggest gunners Rick Gerona and Ricky Sposta.

Gerona belted a two-run homer and a two-run double while Sposta drove in three runs with a pair of two-baggers.

The loss for Seminole starter Larry Jones was his first this season. He had won 15.

The Sun Devils spotted Texas a two-run lead in the second but got those runs back in the third with one of them coming on a shot over the leftfield wall by Gary Allenson. He also knocked in what proved to be the winning run with a two-base blow in the eighth.

Texas starting pitcher Richard Wortham was beaten for the first time this year after racking up 14 wins. Sun Devil reliever Tom Van Der Meersch was credited with the win, his eighth against three losses.

South Carolina pitcher Greg Ward took his 14th win in the 16 decisions, and Eastern Michigan's Bob Welch saw his record go to 7-4.

Borg, Gottfried win matches to advance in French tourney

PARIS (UPI) — Sweden's Bjorn Borg and America's Brian Gottfried won straight set third round matches Sunday to advance in the French Open Tennis Championships, the world's premier clay court tournament.

The first-seeded Borg blasted Czechoslovakia's Jiri Hrebec off the center court, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1 in his bid for a repeat performance of last year's championship victory.

Borg next plays the winner of the match between South Africa's Ray Moore and America's Stan Smith in the fourth round of the $300,000 men's singles championship.

Gottfried, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., thoroughly outplayed Britain's Roger Taylor at the net for a 6-0, 6-1, 7-5 win. He will play his fourth round match against either Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md. or Georges Goven of France.

The blond Gottfried, 23, said he considered his match with the British No. 2 his best to date in the tournament so far. He beat Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash. and Birger Andersson of Sweden to gain the third round.

"The farther you get in this tournament, the better you have to play," he said after the match.

After breezing through the first two sets, the former tennis All-American from Trinity University in Texas ran into trouble in the third set when Taylor began playing better and won three straight straight games to overcome

Gottfried's 4-2 lead.

But then the American served a love game with brilliant net play, broke the British left-hander's serve with lobs and sharp volleys to go up 6-5 and then served for the match.

In the last games, he served through most of the match, the ballboys had better chances at the ball than Taylor as Gottfried hit repeated winners at the net.

"I wasn't worried," Gottfried said of the Briton's 5-4 lead. "I was making a lot of mistakes on my first serve and missing my volleys. You can't do that against a player that good. I knew I had to concentrate harder and get my first serve in."

Borg crashed through his match with Hrebec in 63 minutes, hardly giving up a point except when he smacked a ball long or into the net.

The 19-year-old Swede, who celebrated his birthday Friday with a straight-set win over Hungary's Peter Szoke, only allowed the husky Czech to hold his own service in sixth game of the first set, the third game of the second and the sixth of the third.

Leading 3-1 in the second set, the Swedish sensation returned a high-bouncing smash from Hrebec with a smash of his own that the Czech couldn't handle. It was typical of Borg's astonishing play, as he hit winners with topspin two-handed backhands and his peculiar wristy forehands that seemed as if they would go out but dipped sharply to hit the baseline.

Holtzman's no-hit effort fizzles

By United Press International
Ken Holtzman was one strike away from the third no-hit game of his career when Oakland centerfielder Bill North, second in the lineup, long flyball to center by Tom Verzer, credited with a double, as the A's defeated the Detroit Tigers 4-0 Sunday.

Holtzman, who had pitched two no-hitters previously as a Chicago Cub, had permitted only one baserunner before Verzer's soft double but still faced the minimum number of men, thanks to a double play.

The A's outfielders had kept Holtzman's hopes for a no-hit game alive with four fine catches earlier. North, in fact, had raced to the warning track in dead center field to snare a long fly by Verzer in the sixth.

Giants nip Pirates 4-2

Floyd posts first victory on tour

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (UPI)—Ray Floyd gave his mother a nice birthday gift Sunday, his first victory on the professional golf tour in six years.

"My mother's birthday is today," said Floyd, "and after a three-stroke victory in the Kemper Open. 'This is here gift.'"

Floyd, who now lives in Lake Havasu City, Ariz., grew up at Ft. Bragg, N. C., and his father still lives there. Both his parents, though now divorced, were in the gallery Sunday.

The burly six-footer was locked in a tight duel with playing partner Gary Player until the 33-yard ninth hole, where he used an eight iron to chip in a 100-foot shot for an eagle.

"I ran it up the hill, down the valley and around the corner," Floyd said of the 100-foot clincher shot. "I was amazed to see it go in; I think I reached the hole in four steps."

McU-blanks Ford to win slowpitch title

Favored McU Sports of Boise put an 11-0 whitewash on battling Ford Transfer of Twin Falls in the finale of the Twin Falls slowpitch softball tournament Sunday night.

A three-run homer by Larry Beary proved enough to clinch the championship game. McU earned its way into the finals by dropping Ford Transfer 9-3 in the p.m. game and Ford then had to battle back to defeat Ted's Chrysler of Pocatello to earn the right to re-challenge the undefeated Boise crew.

The Ford-Ted's game was a good one with both sides registering a shutout until the sixth inning. Earlier in the day, Ted's ousted Spirit of Salt Lake City and Otetola, Cleaners of Salt Lake eliminated Captain's Gallery of Mountain Home.

Ted's then dropped Colonial to set up the match with Ford. Mountain Home's Bisbee, who hit over 300 for the two-day tourney, was named most valuable player.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 10, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good time to be concerned with little chores that have to do with getting needed appliances for the home. Look around with surroundings and takes steps to improve conditions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Getting family matters handled early leaves you time for important business matters later in the day. Relax tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Come to a better understanding with business associates. Don't neglect important correspondence. Use caution in motion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Monetary affairs should be handled early in day for best results. Make plans for needed improvements to property.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make improvements today to whatever is of a personal nature. Do some entertaining and repay social debts.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take time to analyze your life and take steps to make necessary improvements. Make good use of your latent talents.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A personal aim that had been difficult to reach in the past requires only a little more time and patience. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make plans to engage in as many outdoor activities as possible. Consult a business expert for information you need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A plan you have in mind is fine but it needs more study before you put it in operation. Making new contacts is wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be sure to handle new responsibilities with confidence. Follow your intuition when making plans for the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study a new project well before making an important decision. Beware of a person who has an eye on your assets.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do whatever will improve your health, and get ready for important activities ahead. Show more devotion to mate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Once your work is done, engage in amusements you enjoy. Pay more attention to loved one. Show courtesy to everyone.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be endowed with a strong ambition to get ahead in the world. Be sure to give as fine an education as you can afford to equip your progeny for a successful life in business. Don't neglect religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

That dandy hymn "God Moves in a Mysterious Way His Wonders to Perform" was composed in 1799 by William Cowper of London. That's widely known. Less widely known is what caused him to write it. One evening he became so melancholy he decided to commit suicide. He hailed a taxicab and told the driver to take him to a Thames River bridge. But the fog was thick. After an hour of wandering aimlessly, the cab man felt he gave up, he couldn't find the bloomin' bridge, and he didn't even know how to get his fare back home. Cowper stepped out only to realize he was right in front of his own room. That's when he went indoors to write "God Moves..."

NAME GAME

It's true the name "Margaret" means "pearl" in Greek, but it's not true the name "Pearl" means "Margaret."

AT LAST REPORT it was revealed that only 15 per cent of the divorced fathers hereabouts honor their child support agreements completely.

WHEN I WAS a lad on the farm, a cigarette was referred to as "a smoke." "Prilnear" was a common synonym for "almost." And "jawn" was a more popular word than "coffee." Don't hear much of the old slang any more. Why not?

BRICK

"An Englishman regards it as a compliment to be called a brick." Why?

A. That goes back to when an English ambassador visited the King of Sparta. The ambassador couldn't figure out why the town had no walls for defense. The king took him out on the plains where the Spartan army was lined up at the ready, and he said, "There, thou beholdest the walls of Sparta, and every man a brick!"

SOME DRUNKEN DRIVERS in South Africa are hit with jail sentences as long as 10 years.

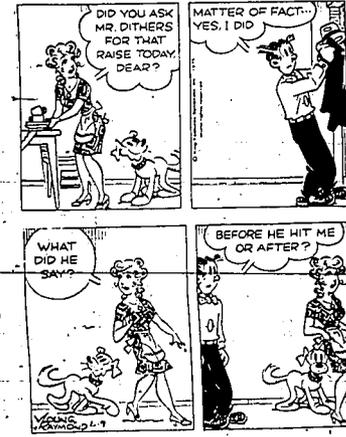

YOU OUGHT NOT to try to buy a house at a price that's more than 2 1/2 times your gross annual income. That's the elderly real estate rule. But a renowned financial expert contends there's a still more significant rule in this matter. Says he: You ought not contract for monthly house payments — including mortgage, taxes and insurance — that exceed your gross annual income divided by 60. Check that one out on your pocket calculator.
