

Abuses bring CIA watchdog proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rockefeller Commission finds the CIA guilty as charged of spying on Americans and abusing its powers. It says the agency should be brought under the constant scrutiny of Congress and an outside fulltime watchdog. The commission's 297-page report confirms and documents how the CIA kept files on tens of thousands of Americans, tapped phones, kept people under surveillance, opened mail illegally, jailed a defector for three years in near solitary confinement and experimented on unsuspecting innocent persons with LSD, causing one suicide.

Those Americans whose names show up in files on "disidents." The commission charged that pressure from two presidents — Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon — was partly responsible for the agency's transgressions. "Two presidents and their staffs made continuing and insistent requests of the CIA for detailed evaluation of possible foreign involvement in the domestic dissident scene," the report said. "The agency's repeated conclusion in its reports — that it could find no significant foreign connection with domestic disorder — led to further White House demands that the CIA account for any gaps in the agency's investigation and that it remedy any lack of resources for gathering information." The CIA even spied on its own people. The report tells of one employe in the 1960s who attended meetings of a group thought to be financed by leftwingers from abroad. He was kept under surveillance for almost a year. A hole was cut into his apartment and microphones installed in every room. His mail was watched for seven months. His tax returns were examined. "This investigation yielded no evidence of disloyalty," the report said. But the report also stressed these "plainly unlawful and improper" activities are matters of fact — mostly of the Cold War and the anxious 1960s — and that "the great majority" of domestic activities by the agency over the course of its 28-year history were within the law. The report results from a five-month investigation by a panel of eight men, mostly former government officials, headed by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and appointed in January by President Ford following publication in the New York Times of stories alleging "massive" violation of the law by the CIA. The commission interviewed 51 witnesses and took 2,000 pages of testimony. The report, as President Ford announced, said nothing of the CIA's alleged role in assassination plots against foreign leaders. The commission sent what it learned on that to Ford, who forwarded it to Attorney General Edward Levi for possible prosecutions. Levi's office said the attorney general was giving it personal attention. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said his Senate Intelligence committee would probe beyond the Rockefeller report and make a "full disclosure" of facts. In the House, Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., said the report does not tell "the whole story" about CIA, and Congress must bring that story out.

TF school pay accord wins OK

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls school trustees approved the district's first negotiation agreement with teachers Tuesday, and then approved a salary agreement which was not negotiated. The new teacher salary schedule gives pay increases from 6.3 to 10.2 per cent — less than inflation's rise during the year. Starting pay would be $8,000 a year, up 6.7 percent from $7,500 last year. Top pay would be $14,105, up 7.6 percent from last year's top of $13,100. The salaries are for a nine-month work year. Robert Kius, teacher negotiating chairman said today the adoption of the administration's proposed salary schedule was "kind of a necessity" for the board "due to the fact that they had to adopt the budget." Trustees were legally obliged to adopt the budget for the coming year during the Tuesday meeting. Kius said negotiations would continue on salaries, with a meeting set for June 18. Under the negotiations agreement, contracts can be amended if necessary. Members of the Twin Falls Education Association plan to meet Thursday to vote on ratification of the proposed negotiations agreement. Rates are somewhat higher in the middle of the scale than at the top or bottom, according to assistant Supt. Camden Meyer. Because the scale has been shortened, Teachers now reach a top salary in 15 years, not 16 years, with subsequent raises at the 20 and 25-year marks. Meyer said he didn't know what the average raise was. But he said when the seniority increment is added, the average teacher would receive about a 9.5 per cent salary boost. District employes not on the salary scale, including secretaries, maintenance men, principals and others, will receive a 6.5 per cent increase, also approved by the board Tuesday. Raises last year amounted to 11.36 per cent without the yearly increment. The consumer price index rose 10.2 per cent nationally from April, 1974, to April this year, making all but the very top salary scale increases less than inflation. The trustees also agreed to issue contracts beginning June 18, which would include raises from the proposed salary scale. Under the negotiations agreement the board may go ahead with contract issuance if negotiations last past May 15.

Disclosure pledged

IDAHO Sen. Frank Church holds a copy of the Rockefeller Commission report made public Tuesday and said his special Senate committee will make a "full disclosure" of the facts about the CIA. There were hints today the life of the committee may be extended to complete the probe. (UPI)

House sustains strip mine bill veto
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Tuesday sustained President Ford's veto of a federal strip mining bill in a surprisingly close vote, handing environmentalists a major setback in efforts to control the expanding surface extraction of coal. Administration officials had forecast a 20-vote margin, but settled for a 279-143 tally, only three votes short of the two-thirds majority required to override a veto.

Somalia deny Russian misdeeds around
MOGADISHU, Somalia (UPI) — Somalia today denied American government reports that the Soviet Union is building a missile base in its northern port of Berbera. "The Soviets have never asked to be given a base in Somalia and if they did we would never allow it because it is against our principles," Foreign Minister Omar Arteh Ghalib said in a statement.

It said Hanoi was prepared to discuss the issue with the United States.

Mansfield wants 'all facts' made public

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield today called the Rockefeller Commission's CIA report "incomplete" and said Congress must "lay out all the facts" before the public. Mansfield said "It's a good report but it's not a complete report," noting that material relating to allegations of assassination plots was missing. Mansfield suggested that the life of the Senate committee investigating Central Intelligence Agency activities, chaired by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, be extended to allow the panel "to go into this in the greatest detail and lay out all the facts." Mansfield also suggested that former CIA

Director Richard Helms, now ambassador to Iran, be asked to remain in this country until he has answered all questions before Senate and House investigating committees relating to the CIA. Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., the ranking GOP member of Church's panel, said today that Helms will testify before the committee. "There will be a wide range of questions addressed to Helms," Tower said. He added that the committee will concentrate on "covert actions" when talking with Helms, who headed the CIA from 1969 to 1973. Tower, who was interviewed on the CBS Morning News, also said the Senate committee "can disclose anything we want, but we don't want to breach security matters." Church has said that his committee would probe beyond the Rockefeller report and make a "full disclosure" of facts. Sens. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., and Howard Baker, R-Tenn., both former Watergate Committee members, said a joint permanent congressional oversight committee should be established to police all government intelligence activities. The two said in Senate speeches that there was a need to wait for the Church committee to complete its work before forming the special committee. "The need is obvious," Weicker said. "It has been obvious ever since the misdeeds of Watergate became known. The litany of CIA and FBI abuses is overwhelming." Other congressional Democrats said they backed President Ford's "backstop" the central issue and, in fact, passed on the responsibility of doing something about the CIA abuses to the Democratic-controlled Congress. "The Democrats ought to handle this as we did Watergate: Hold the hearings, get the facts out, make some legislative changes," said Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz. "I don't think we can run away from it. He's laid it at our doorstep. Let's show him how responsible we can be." Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., who serves on Church's committee, said Democrats should be "prepared to accept the responsibility."

O'Leary 'worst hazard'

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School is the worst fire hazard in the Twin Falls School District, according to Fred Higgins, city fire marshal. Higgins inspected the district's schools last month and submitted his findings Tuesday night to the school board. His report does not point out specific fire safety violations in the schools. Instead, it lists paragraphs of new safety requirements recently adopted by the state which might apply to the buildings. Asked why he did not name specific violations, Higgins today said, "Well, they are pretty well familiar with their own buildings and they wouldn't have any trouble seeing where these sections apply to their particular schools." He told the Times-News that "O'Leary is in the 'worst shape' of all the schools because it has open stairways, "hilly-panel" doors, a long corridor with no smoke barriers and flammable ceiling tiles in the corridors. The open stairways may channel a fire to higher levels of the school, according to Higgins. The "hilly-panel" doors may not offer enough fire resistance; the corridor, without smoke barriers, may channel flames and smoke throughout the school; and the ceiling tiles have a "pretty rapid fire spread potential," he added. The "next worst" fire hazard is a "toss-up between Bickel and the remaining section of Lincoln," Higgins said. (Continued on p. 13)

OPEC slates price boost; gas next?

LIBREVILLE, Gabon (UPI) — The oil-producing nations agreed today to raise world oil prices again on Oct. 1 and said they had decided to try to take control over natural gas prices, in addition to oil prices. Ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed to postpone until their next meeting, in Vienna, Sept. 24, the decision on how big this raise should be. The most frequent figure heard for an oil price increase is 30 per cent — which would add about $30 billion to the world's oil bill each year. OPEC ministers emerging from the final session of the three-day meeting in this West African capital said they also decided to sever the oil-dollar link by quoting oil prices in the future in Special Drawing Right instead of in U.S. dollars. SDRs, an artificial currency based on an average of 16 major currencies, is considered more stable than the dollar or any other single currency. The switchover from the dollar to SDRs, like the increase in the basic price, will be postponed until next year, the pact. The U.S. dollar will be used to buy most of the world's oil.

however. "We decided that OPEC from now on will also be dealing with the determination of natural gas prices in line with the prices of petroleum," Iranian National Bank chairman Mohammad Yeganeh said. The ministers appointed a commission to study the effect of inflation on the oil price. OPEC's 13 member nations will also draw up a report to lay the groundwork for the increase, which will take effect when OPEC's next impact treaty on prices expires at the end of September. Agreements in principle on the price increase and the end of the oil-dollar link had been reported by Yeganeh Monday night after the ministers dined together and talked privately. Ford, Rabin launch DC talks

Ford smiling and shook Rabin's hand, setting his visitor into an Oval Office. Rabin is being hailed as the Israeli leader's vision, and is considered a peace-loving leader. The two leaders discussed the possibility of a new peace plan in the Middle East.

CIA found guilty of spying, power abuse

Secret postage

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Central Intelligence Agency last year paid the cost of secret postage bills for White House answers to letters of protest against the invasion of Cambodia by U.S. forces, the Rockefeller Commission reported. The CIA used its secret funds to help defray postage costs — at the request of the White House, the report said.

Over 20 years, from 1953 until 1973, the CIA opened mail between the United States and the Soviet Union as it passed through a New York postal facility. A 1962 CIA memo showed the agency knew the operation violated federal laws. Mail intercepts operated on a smaller scale in San Francisco from 1959 to 1971 and in Hawaii in 1954 and 1955. This activity stopped in 1973 when the chief postal inspector refused to continue without an up-to-date high-level approval. In that year, the operation opened 2.3 million of 4.3 million pieces of mail, photographed 33,000 envelopes and opened 8,700. The purpose was to identify persons who were cooperating with Soviet intelligence.

"A detailed analysis of the facts has convinced the commission that the great majority of the CIA's domestic activities comply with its statutory authority. Nevertheless, over the 23 years of its history, the CIA has engaged in some activities that should be criticized and not permitted to happen again — both in light of the limits imposed on the agency by law and as a matter of public policy.

Routine search

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It's not that the Central Intelligence Agency has incurred the distrust of the other government security groups. It was merely routine procedure everyone must submit to when CIA Director William Colby had to appear before a House subcommittee on his hearing without comment. He flipped open the case, the officer led through papers and then waved the CIA director on to his hearing without comment.

"Requests for assistance by the White House reflect a pattern for actual and attempted misuse of the CIA by the Nixon administration," the report said, but there was "no evidence" the agency was involved in the Watergate break-in or the attempt to burglarize the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, the psychiatrist who had treated Daniel Ellsberg.

"Some of these activities were initiated or ordered by presidents, either directly or indirectly. Some of them were plainly unlawful and constituted improper invasions upon the rights of Americans. The agency's own recent actions, undertaken for the most part in 1973 and 1974, have gone far to terminate the activities upon which this investigation has focused."

More classes slated

BLISS — Bliss High School is broadening its curriculum.

Supt. Burton Lenker told trustees Monday night he will know more definitely what can be offered after he employs another English teacher. The current English teacher will work part-time in the school library next year, so a new staff member is being sought.

Applications also are being accepted for math and science teachers in the high school.

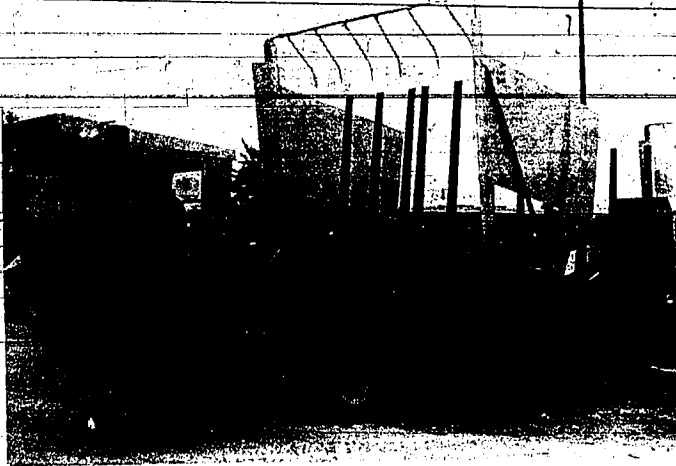

Lenker said he hopes English courses can be broken into semester classes on short stories, college preparatory, literature, writing and grammar and speech and drama. The school also will experiment with nine week "mini-courses" as well as business English.

These classes are the result of suggestions from a needs assessment study made last year after several parents complained about the lack of courses available.

Trustees look under advisement five bids for roofing of the two school buildings. The project of re-roofing and repair may have to be spread over a two-year period, Lenker said, depending upon the cost.

Half-day kindergarten was approved to begin next year. There are 12 children in the community known to be of kindergarten age, but it is not known how many of them will attend.

Lenker said the district is "holding its own" in terms of enrollment.

Jerome studies tot class plan

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Jerome School District is still in the process of planning for a kindergarten program this fall.

A delegation of young mothers — members of the Jerome Citizens' for public kindergartens — attended the school board meeting Monday night to ask for the status of the program, according to Kathy Rowland, spokesman for the group.

Lyle Van Orman, board chairman, said the district has received approval to use both the Presbyterian and Episcopal church parish halls for classrooms. The board is waiting for Rev. Latta of the Episcopal Church to bring a sample copy of a contract (rent of the classroom area) from Boise and does not expect to have it until Monday.

Van Orman said the board has investigated possible use of the Moose Hall, but has not arrived at a rental figure and the facility would have to be approved by the state.

"We are going to have kindergarten this fall. We are hiring a kindergarten teacher and have already ordered the furniture," Van Orman said.

The board approved hiring Margaret Stelts as a kindergarten teacher.

The district is unable to provide noon transportation for students, nor would it be able to furnish hot lunches.

The trustees unanimously agreed to discontinue the past practice of district payment of membership fees in service organizations for school personnel. The trustees approved payment of a previous bill for Jerry James, vice principal of the Junior high school in the Kiwanis Club in the amount of $74. The trustees instructed the school secretary to notify school personnel that the district will no longer pay the service dues.

James, in a letter to the board, said that since he joined the Kiwanis Club as a representative for the school district, the organization has worked to develop several different programs for students in the district which run in excess of $400 each year, paid by the club members.

James said if the district would not pay his dues, he would drop his membership.

The trustees canvassed the votes in the trustee election and confirmed the election of Warren Hart, Jerry Clark and Lyle Van Orman.

A letter from the Idaho Department of Education thanking the Jerome district for serving as hosts to the project select program and praising teachers for the outstanding job they did was read. A request by Mrs. Debbie Orr to allow her daughter to enter the first grade this year was denied by the board. According to Mrs. Orr, her daughter will be 6 on Oct. 16 which is one day after the state deadline. Mrs. Orr said her daughter has attended kindergarten during the past year and according to her teacher was more than qualified to enter the first grade.

Buhl plans new contest for July Sagebrush Days

BUHL — A hay-stacking contest will be a new feature of Buhl Sagebrush Days July 3 and 4 this year.

Ken Patterson, Buhl Chamber of Commerce member, reported at the Monday luncheon meeting that individuals operating the automatic hay loaders will compete at the Jess Inchausti place southwest of Buhl at 2 p.m. July 3, with the finals scheduled for the evening of July 4 at the elementary school playground.

Other activities being planned for the annual community July 4 celebration include a mock wedding at noon July 3, with the traditional bank robbery at 1 p.m.

A teen-age dance is slated at 9 p.m. July 3 with a radio booth nights. July 4 events begin with a breakfast at Jaycee Hall from 7 to 10:30 a.m. and the parade at 11 a.m. followed by a barbecue in the city park at 12:30 p.m.

Patterson said the Jaycees are handling arrangements for the event.

Avery Kirkham, president of the Clear Lakes Country Club, reported on the completion of the installation of a sprinkler system at the club's golf course. One section was done three years ago and this year the west side of the course was put under sprinklers at an estimated cost of $40,000.

The site is also popular for fishermen as well as golfers, with some problems resulting.

Appeal withdrawn

TWIN FALLS — An appeal filed in Fifth Judicial District Court to a judgment against Wayne and Evelyn Ellis, Buhl, has been withdrawn and a motion for a new trial filed.

The notice of appeal was filed indicating plans to appeal to the Idaho Supreme Court on a judgment by District Judge Thearon W. Ward which favored Delwin and Clara Butterfield, Twin Falls, in a suit brought against them by the Ellises regarding a property sale.

Judge gives sentence

TWIN FALLS — Fifth Judicial District Judge James M. Cunningham has sentenced Noe Abel Jasso, 23, Twin Falls, to four years on a felony charge of repeated offense, driving while intoxicated.

The judge then placed the defendant on probation for a four-year period, the first year to be spent under jurisdiction of the Idaho Board of Corrections. He also stipulated that Jasso is not to drive a vehicle under any circumstances during the full probation period.

Judge Cunningham also heard a plea of innocent by Francisco Leta Garcia, 42, on an amended complaint charging possession of a controlled substance from the original complaint charging possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver.

TF man files suit

TWIN FALLS — Ernest Frank Pospial, Twin Falls, is asking $75,000 in damages in a suit filed in Fifth Judicial District Court here.

He names defendants in the case as Robert T. Jones and John Doe.

The complaint charges a vehicle driven by Jones and owned by an unknown person designated John Doe, crashed with a 1961 pickup truck driven and owned by Pospial.

The accident occurred Sept. 8, 1973, about 2 p.m. on Interstate 86 west of Wendell in Gooding County.

The plaintiff charges Jones was driving at an excessive speed and in a reckless manner which caused the accident and resulted in the serious injuries to the plaintiff.

Senate debate raises startling questions

WASHINGTON — The Senate didn't come up with many answers in its reassessment of U.S. foreign and defense policy, but at least it tried to have a constructive and coherent debate, and it raised some startling questions.
— Since it was being asked to approve a $104.7 billion military budget, shouldn't it know what foreign policy this money was intended to support?
— Without the vast expenditures in Southeast Asia, why a $15.7 billion military increase, and three new divisions for the Army?
— What was the policy behind last year's decision to sell $8.6 billion in arms to 136 countries, and provide military assistance to 51 countries?
— Did the security of the United States really depend on new military money for its economic and social stability? Sen. Barry Goldwater also wanted to know whether there really was any security in "that beautiful bubble dream called détente."

Sen. Alan Cranston of California, who pressed for this Senate reappraisal, struck the general theme, namely that the Senate was not adequately informed — on the administration's policies, and seldom even discussed defense policy in relation to the over-all foreign policy of the nation.
What commitments do we have? he asked. What commitments should we have? What is our foreign policy, anyway? What defense posture, what weapons, what manpower, what overseas bases, and troops do we need to match and mesh with this foreign policy and to defend our true interests and our freedom?
The debate demonstrated that there is no general consensus in the Senate even on the safe level of atomic and conventional weapons or how they should be used.
Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts noted that the United States now has some 8,500 strategic nuclear weapons virtually in full readiness and 54 Titan missiles deployed in the United States. Also 41 nuclear submarines with 656 Polaris-Poseidon missiles and nearly 500 strategic bombers.
How much is enough? he wanted to know. With 22,000 tactical nuclear weapons stockpiled around the world, he added, "the simple fact is that we have nuclear weapons in excess of our security needs."

Goldwater, among others, disagreed. He thought the relative strength of the U.S. armed forces to the Soviet Union was declining and that we needed not just three more army divisions but the 10 more that Pakistan really wanted.
The United States actually had fewer ships in the Navy now than in 1939, he said, and manpower had dropped from the pre-Korean level of 1,460,000 to a planned 785,000 this year.
"When the Army can talk about making 16 divisions out of 785,000 men," he remarked, "I think they are frankly looking at the ouija board." Besides, the Senate did really talk to the Joint Chiefs about what was really needed, he added.
The rise of Soviet naval power obviously troubled the Senate. "The Soviet Union, a land power," Sen. Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio said, "is building a formidable fleet. The United States, a sea power, is being surpassed by the Soviet Union in certain areas of naval power."
At the end, the debate came down to the familiar division over money for arms or money for the internal development of the nation.
"I am convinced," Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota said, "that the basic source of American power to deal with these issues lies in the ability of the American people and their government to... manage a growing and vibrant economy, to be first in the world in technological innovation; to lead the world in efforts to bring equality to all our citizens.

We have kept our military machine polished but our cities decay, our transportation systems collapse, our national unity dissolve.
It is noteworthy, however, that despite all the divisions over priorities, there was not a single argument for an American retreat into isolation. This was a serious, if sometimes 'disorderly' debate, but all sides agreed that a post-Vietnam, post-Watergate redefinition of power, and the uses of power were essential and that the Congress had to play a more active and regular part in finding a balance.
Secretary Kissinger, obviously feels that the Congress has been too inactive recently, too inclined to intervene in the day-to-day operations of foreign policy, but he is not opposed to this kind of searching and analysis of purpose by the Senate.
Sen. Jacob Javits of New York summed up the one point on which most senators in the debate agreed. The military budget had to be related to a clearly understood foreign policy, and it was too serious to be left to the Pentagon.

Big Brother needs watching

Anybody who does not want his phone tapped, his mail read or LSD put in his drinking water should be concerned with the Rockefeller Commission report on the Central Intelligence Agency.
The commission report deliberately dodged the most damaging indictment of the CIA — that the agency had plotted to assassinate Castro and other foreign leaders. Instead of dealing directly with the assassination question, the report merely says its study is not yet complete on it.

Still, what was made public is enough to make people who are concerned about their personal freedom shudder.

- Among the findings were:
— The CIA has administered doses of LSD to unsuspecting-Americans in order to test their reactions. At least one victim was committed to a hospital after being drugged, and later leaped from a window to his death.
— The CIA has opened the mail of American citizens in the United States on a massive scale.
— Similarly, the agency engaged in numerous wiretaps on U.S. citizens.
— To a lesser extent, the CIA placed Americans under direct surveillance.

While the report's tone was generally favorable to the CIA, nothing that most of its activities were conducted legally, the confirmation of the agency's domestic spying is unsettling.
Perhaps there is nothing to be surprised about. After all, the agency is a power unto itself — without effective oversight from Congress or the President — which operates in secret with a secret budget.

The combination of enormous power, lack of oversight and secrecy is dangerous.

Any ordinary person finding himself in such a position would be strongly tempted to misuse his power. Perhaps it is too much to expect much better performance from the CIA's chieftains. Then perhaps we should be pleased that so little wrong was found by the Rockefeller Commission.

Perhaps not. As long as an institution such as the CIA holds unchecked power and operates in total secrecy, it will be a threat to the democracy it serves. Someday the head of such an agency successful in creating or destroying governments abroad, may be tempted to try to elect a president here. Nothing is beyond such an agency.

The danger is too great for a democracy to bear.
The solution lies not in destroying the CIA and disbanding its mission of gathering needed information.

Instead the solution lies in making such an agency truly responsible to the nation it serves.

The most glaring weakness is lack of adequate control by elected officials. Clearly the CIA's activities should be under constant review by Congress and the executive.

A Rockefeller commission should be meeting continuously to handle the enormous oversight workload.
A second possibility is to reduce the CIA's power without eliminating its mission or work. The only way to do that is to break it into parallel intelligence-gathering organizations. Obviously, some efficiency would be lost, but perhaps the gain is worth it.

Finally, much of the CIA's business could become more public. Obviously much of the information it gathers must be kept secret. But its operating procedures, its structure and its budget need not be hidden.

Only if the CIA and other similar agencies are controlled can Americans they serve sleep comfortably at night.

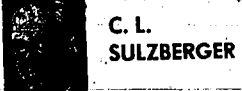

Inflation attack coming

LONDON — In the wake of Britain's referendum on Common Market membership, the Wilson government is now planning a major assault on inflation that will probably assume shape late this summer after the annual Trades Union Congress in September.
Runaway union demands for excessive pay increases have been the primary cause for an inflation rate estimated — according to various extrapolations — from over 20 per cent to over 50 per cent annually.
It is agreed a sharp decrease in the zoom of living costs must be priority number one for Britain's fight against depression, unlike West Germany where the shift in emphasis has swung to unemployment.

Inflation is more serious here than across the channel and the government is now making a serious effort to persuade unions that high inflation necessarily produces unemployment. The goal sought is to reduce the existing rate down to between 12 and 15 per cent before the year ends.
The government's plan is not only to curb wage increases and national defense expenditures but also to cut deeply into welfare payments. During 1976, it is forecast that approximately one billion pounds will be pared from the latter, including health and education.
Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey has been warning unions that if they don't start moderating claims for huge wage increases, he will be forced to demand higher taxes from members and they still refuse to pay heed, he will also be forced to cut their social benefits. Both trends are already in the works.
The big problem originates in the unions. This former imperial nation had already suffered dislocation from the end of the Age of Empire, following a vastly expensive victory over Hitler. It could no longer rely on limitless cheap raw materials from overseas possessions that were efficiently processed here and sold abroad.

Also, the habit of hard work was put aside by the habit of ward and county triumph. Suddenly a small country with a vast administrative apparatus, Britain found herself in a schizophrenic squeeze between past glory and present poverty, between pressures to yield some external authority to a greater European community and other pressures to yield some internal authority to local provincial ambitions in Northern Ireland, Scotland and Wales.
Paradoxically, a victory that preserved Britain's industrial infrastructure allowed it to make do with the existing manufacturing plant and trade union system. West Germany, destroyed by the allies economically and by Hitler socially, was remade into an effective modern state while Britain languished. The Germans obtained new factories to replace those destroyed or dismantled. And the British occupiers of the Ruhr reorganized German labor into a few large industrial unions — what this country needed but never got.

C. L. SULZBERGER

London must straighten out a mess that has been building for a quarter of a century, continually provoked by a workers' revolution of rising expectations and declining willingness to sacrifice in exchange. Production lags far behind that of Continental Europe; too much is consumed and too little invested, and woefully inadequate returns derive from the latter.

Nevertheless, having admonished the unions they cannot have another round of wage rises like the present one, which is scheduled to peter out in July, the government is determined that henceforth pay must be pegged beneath, not above, the rise in living costs.

Healey plans to clean up the entire existing tax system. He is instituting, as a social equalizer, two gradually increasing wealth taxes on the rich but these will not raise large sums. There will also be further levies at lower levels. Wilson simply must show more willingness to risk unpopularity for the sake of doing what needs to be done.

A recent opinion poll shows 77 per cent of all workers are ready to keep wage increases below — or at least no higher than — cost of living rises. Half are amenable to a six-month pay freeze. What is more, the government feels despite Jeremiah's on Britain's future — that if it can start climbing out of the pit later this year, the long-range future is far from bleak.

The battered pound sterling has shown some recent resiliency. The treasury is committed against further devaluation. London is the capital of the Euromarket, boasts more money than New York and, despite difficulties, retains huge sums of Arab oil investments.

The real question is how tough will the government be from now on; also how much leadership will it provide the people, encouraging them to ask less and give more?

Rearmament battle looms in Japan

TOKYO — Unspoken but pervasive post-Vietnam doubts about how long the U.S. military will remain in the Western Pacific is bringing the Japanese establishment to grips with the reality that this nation could find itself defenseless.

The immediate result has been a quiet change among government leaders in cautiously advocating modest increases in Japan's defense. Beyond that is increasing private talk within the establishment that Japan must now consider major rearmament.

But any increased defense activity, modest or major, runs counter to overwhelming public hostility. In a nation that functions by consensus, there is absolutely no consensus for defense. Thus, attempts to enlarge the defense burden strain the fabric of Japanese democracy.

We reported earlier that a Communist conquest of Korea would bring internal turmoil to Japan. But short of that catastrophe, the fall of Vietnam is causing the first widespread consideration here of this question: "can an economic superpower continue indefinitely as a military mid-tier?"

To maintain its military force of about 250,000 men, Japan spends only 87/100ths of one per cent of GNP (compared with nearly 6 per cent by the U.S. and 41 per cent by the Soviet Union). That tiny expenditure produces an impressive little force: well led, fairly well equipped, with foot soldiers considered the equal of Japan's old Imperial Army.

But there is much less here than meets the eye, thanks to restrictions imposed by Japan's anti-military climate. Since a 1971 mid-air collision between an airliner and a freighter plane, Japanese military aircraft have been so restricted that pilots are inadequately trained. The new defense minister was Michita Sakata, a former minister of education not regarded as a major politician and utterly ignorant of military affairs. Like Miki, Sakata is associated with the left wing of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party (LDP), opposing close military collaboration with U.S. forces.

But with the prime minister's backing, Sakata has proposed what the LDP's old pro-American conservative stalwarts never dared: Joint military planning with the U.S. After the surrender of Saigon, Sakata invited Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger to Tokyo for planning. If Schlesinger cannot come, Sakata added last week, he could go to Washington. Furthermore, under Sakata, important changes — such as 24-hour computerized air defense — may soon be made.

"Unless the Japanese people recognize we must defend our nation by our hands, we cannot make more requests for American help," Sakata told us in an interview, adding that "we must make new efforts in defense." Both Japanese and American military experts feel this attitude is shaped by suspicion over Washington's long-term commitment to Japanese defense.

Behind Sakata's good intentions, however, lurks political reality. While trying hard to put defense spending at 1 per cent of GNP, Sakata told us the Diet would not stand for anything higher. But influential elements in Japan are coming to believe that with the American withdrawal, a 1.5 per cent, 2 per cent or even higher is essential — a view so contrary to the consensus that it could produce postwar Japan's most dangerous internal confrontation.

While Japanese business men long have opposed defense spending as wastefully unprofitable, some important industrialists have become apprehensive about declining American power. They are deeply concerned that the Sea of Japan is now a Russian lake. Soviet submarines below it and Soviet warplanes above it. One business leader, by no means a nationalist, has no less faith in U.S. commitments that he feels domestic opposition must be overridden to build a powerful Japanese fleet and air force. Another well-known Japanese figure privately talks of obtaining Japanese missiles.

Besides tearing Japan apart internally, extreme rearmament would destroy the region's power balance and alarm the rest of Asia, including China. Moreover, Japanese defense expert — Osamu Kalthara, former secretary general of the National Defense Council — feels air and naval spending is "unrealistically grandiose."
Kalthara instead advocates a 10-million-man militia — well-trained, armed with automatic weapons and so clearly defensive that it would not frighten Japan's non-Communist neighbors. Nevertheless, the militia along with Kalthara's other reforms probably would double defense expenditures and therefore also provoke bitter internal struggle.

There are, therefore, inescapable consequences of U.S. withdrawal from the Western Pacific: Japanese rearmament attempts, modest now but growing, which will threaten the stability of Japan and perhaps all East Asia. That explains the undercurrent of foreboding among more thoughtful Japanese in the wake of the Indochina debacle.

Then the American Civil Liberties took up Gayer's case. The state court of Appeal ruled last December that Gayer, 36, was a victim of "invidious discrimination" against homosexuals.

The Times-News has repeatedly misinterpreted a statement attributed to me on the length of time required to plan and build a nuclear power plant.
We would like to clarify that a report prepared by NUS Corporation states that about ten years should be allowed from the point of nuclear system selection to the date of commercial operation. The study also states that a period of 2-3 years prior to nuclear systems selection must be allotted for a utility company embarking upon its first nuclear project, as would be the case with Idaho Power Company.
These two lead time periods are in agreement with the total of 12 to 14 years your quote attributes to Mr. James E. Bruce, Idaho Power Company president.

Earlier, Dr. Steyn had said the total time required to plan and build a nuclear plant would be 8-10 years. The time is less in other countries, he said. His estimate was similar to estimates of the Federal Power Commission and the Atomic Energy Commission, but was significantly shorter than the 13-14 year lead time estimated by Idaho Power President James Bruce. Bruce says such a long lead time makes it impractical to build a nuclear plant.
Idaho Power is a client of Dr. Steyn's. Dr. Steyn's new estimate is compatible with that of Idaho Power's.

Contest meet asked

Editor, Times-News:
We wish the Magic Valley Cattlemen's Association would sponsor an open meeting in regard to the carcass contest held at the Twin Falls County Fair each year.

By sponsoring the meeting and inviting the fair board, county commissioners, 4-H leaders, parents and anyone else who's interested, perhaps some of the difficulties and misunderstanding could be cleared up.
There is nothing wrong in picking the best-fitted and most outstanding looking steer and awarding trophies and prizes for that but surely the BEST carcass should be the animal that will produce the most and best amount of edible meat without regard to "on hoof" points.

By NORMAN KEMPSTER
Washington Star
WASHINGTON — By turning criminal matters over to the Justice Department and shunning political questions to a Senate committee, President Ford has separated himself from illicit activities of the Central Intelligence Agency and has defended the White House from cover-up charges.
Moving to preempt critics of his own CIA commission, headed by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, Ford conceded the work was done, but he said it can be completed by others.
As the White House prepared to release the book-length report late Tuesday, the biggest controversy was over the chapter that isn't there — a review of plots to murder foreign political leaders.
Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, of the Senate Select Intelligence Committee, has said his panel has "hard evidence" that the CIA had planned assassinations. Other sources have said the evidence centers on plots that were hatched during the administrations of Presidents Dwight

D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy.
The President also said that regardless of any violations of the law by the CIA, the nation needs the spy agency as part of its national defense.
The Rockefeller panel sent Ford a summary of more than 80 pages detailing its investigation of charges of CIA assassination plans. But Ford said that segment of the probe was unfinished and it would not be in the national interest to make public an incomplete report on such "extremely sensitive matters."
But Justice Department sources said they could see "little" that might result in criminal charges. Even if the CIA did plan murders of foreign officials, it is not clear that any U.S. law would have been violated.
The sources said there "seem to be three possible bases for prosecution, all somewhat far-fetched: It is illegal for a private citizen to mount an expedition against a foreign nation. A separate law prohibits individual Americans from attempting to influence a foreign government without the approval of the President or the secretary of state. And it might be possible to prosecute for conspiracy.

Governors' opinions vary on US energy crunch

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A wordy war between the states over the best way to deal with the national energy crunch was among the last items on the agenda at the closing session of the National Governor's Conference.

One bloc of governors was favoring increased development of more energy sources, especially offshore and Alaskan oil. Another group was stressing stringent conservation measures as a first step toward reaching energy independence in the United States.

The governors had a pile of policy resolutions to deal with before adjourning today, but energy was the main topic.

Tuesday, after sending Congress a request that it give the states a share of any new gasoline tax increase, the governors held a preview debate on the energy issue.

The governors argued and sidetracked a proposal by Gov. James Rhodes, R-Ohio, to ask the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration to increase its gas shale program from $2.5 million to $10 million.

Rhodes' resolution was narrowly drafted, but it opened a much broader discussion. Before finally delaying the Rhodes measure for action

In the final session, the governors agreed with Gov. William Milliken, R-Mich., that the resolution should include oil shale as well as gas shale research.

And when Gov. Reubin Askew, D-Fla., asked if Rhodes' proposal would take money away from the solar-energy-research-able state, he is interested in, the Ohioan said he favors more research on all sources of energy and would gladly "vote for $100 million for that too."

Govs. Daniel Evans, R-Wash., and Phillip Noel, D-R.I., warned against rushing into action on proposals that might conflict with the action of the conference's own natural resources committee.

The chairman of that committee, Gov. Thomas Salmon, D-Vt., did not try to defeat the Rhodes proposal but said another special resolution awaiting action would be in sharp conflict with his group's recommendations.

The proposal, drafted by Gov. Edwin Edwards, D-La., called for an end to price regulations on oil and gas, immediate exploration and development of the Outer Continental Shelf, suspension of environmental restrictions limiting coal use.

Andrus asks amendments

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil Andrus urged Tuesday amendments to the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

Andrus wired the members of the Senate Public Works Committee and House Committee on Public Works and Transportation urging their support and passage of the amendments.

The governor said passage of the amendments to the act in House and Senate versions of the act would implement the Protection Environmental Administration formula.

"Also, this amendment would apply the formula to the previously impounded $9 billion which the U.S. Supreme Court directed EPA to release," Andrus wired.

According to information released by EPA, the amendment would benefit 33 states. Puerto Rico, and the territories," Andrus' telegram said. "This adjustment to the allocation formula is essential to correct a gross inequity and to continue the American Democratic Principle."

Andrus is currently attending the national conference of governors in New Orleans, but the telegram was released from the office of the Idaho governor.

Counterclaim set at Albion

ALBION — Attorneys for the occupants of the old Albion State-Normal School are preparing a $40,000 counterclaim against the city of Albion.

A year ago in February, the city, which owns the 82-year-old campus, filed a suit in an attempt to break the 99-year lease held by the Oregon Trail Festival.

The festival and its founders, Douglas and Lynn Teepees, have occupied the school site since 1971, but the city has made efforts to evict them since 1973. The city gained ownership of the old campus in 1974 from the state.

Attorney for the Teepees, Donald Chisholm, Rupert, said today the court claim will be filed sometime next week. The Teepees will attempt to collect damages resulting from the city's efforts to evict the festival, he said.

Herman Bedke, Albion City attorney, said he was unaware of the pending counterclaim. Bedke would not comment on the case until the suit is filed. However, he said the city's eviction case is still active and the case is now pending before the courts.

In the city's two-year-old eviction notice, it is claimed the festival has failed to maintain the buildings, pay utility bills and conduct an educational program as required in the lease. Also at issue is whether the Teepees have maintained insurance on the several buildings of the campus.

The Teepees have claimed the city's charges are without validity.

Recently one of the campus buildings was apparently burned over by a dog food manufacturer. A city official, who refused to be named, said the manufacturer has since left, but failed to clean up. The city official said people in Albion claim they can smell the rotting offal left behind.

Richfield okays school budget

RICHFIELD — The proposed $203,900 1975-76 school budget was adopted by Richfield school trustees at a meeting Monday night.

Though the total amount remained unchanged from the proposal, $800 from the reserve fund was transferred to the state insurance fund.

Supt. Neil Anderson said no school patrons attended the meeting.

In other business, the board canvassed votes of the school trustee election, confirming the election of Carol Bell, zone 1 and Peggy Robinson, zone 2. They will take office in July.

The board decided to file for bids to tear out and replace a sidewalk in front of the school building.

Anderson said one teacher — a junior high instructor with an English background — remains to be hired.

The board hired Pat Alken, Lewisla, to teach fourth grade.

Trustees will call for bids for a new 49-passenger school bus.

Plans were made to institute a new physical education program in the school system for students in grades one through six next year. Wayne Humphries will teach the program.

Anderson said this is not just an athletic club but will be a physical education program in which the children will be taught coordinating activities, exercises, running, relays and related games to develop physical coordination.

The board has not made a decision as to whether or not kindergarten classes will be conducted.

Classes set at Jerome

JEROME — There will be another registration for summer recreation classes in Jerome.

The registration will be conducted June 12 and 13 in the Booth Park from 10 a.m. to 5:00 and 1 to 3 p.m., respectively.

Synthetic juggling, arts and crafts and a story hour for younger children will be offered. Regular classes will begin the week of June 16.

Panel asks full-time CIA supervision to prevent abuses of powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rockefeller Commission called Tuesday for new permanent machinery — a full-time branch and a joint congressional oversight committee — to keep the CIA from abusing its authority.

The panel also proposed a 10-year limit on the term of the director of Central Intelligence, disclosure to some extent of the CIA's budget, an oversight commission in wartime to oversee domestic mail, and residence within the agency to improper directives — even from the president.

Those were among the commission's 30 recommendations to prevent "the agency's deviations within the United States from its assigned mission."

The panel proposed expansion of the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board into an oversight board of "distinguished citizens" with a full-time chairman and a full-time staff.

It asked President Ford to propose that Congress create a Joint Committee on Intelligence comparable to the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy which provides "effective oversight while avoiding breaches of security in a highly sensitive area."

Other recommendations include:

— A law to make it explicit that the CIA's activities must be related to foreign intelligence and to clarify how the CIA is to protect its sources and methods from disclosure.

— The President, by executive order, should prohibit the agency from collecting information openly or covertly about the domestic activities of Americans, with a few exceptions — persons affiliated with the CIA or suspected of espionage, for example.

— Congress should consider revealing the agency's budget now hidden in a variety of appropriations bills.

— The director of central intelligence should serve as long as the President wants, up to a limit of 10 years.

— Two, instead of one, deputy directors should be appointed, one to handle administrative details and one to work with the military. The position should require Senate confirmation.

— The CIA Inspector general's post should be upgraded and his duties expanded to exercise internal oversight.

— Domestic, small openings should be barred and mail cover examinations should comply with postal regulations and be undertaken only when "clearly involving matters of national security."

— The FBI or Justice Department should upgrade capability to handle intelligence concerning espionage and terrorism.

— Presidents should refrain from directing the CIA in Moscow mails read for 20 years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA, knowing it was acting illegally, opened mail going between the United States and the Soviet Union for 20 years, according to the Rockefeller Commission report.

The project was ended in 1973 at the insistence of Chief Postal Inspector William Cotter, a former CIA official who knew of it from the beginning.

The report said former Postmasters General Arthur Sumpfield, J. Edward Day and Winton Blount and former Attorney General John Mitchell also knew about it at various times.

In its last year of operation in New York, 4.33 million pieces of mail passed through CIA intercept. Of that, 2.3 million were examined, 33,000 photographed and 8,700 opened, the report said.

The CIA and FBI said they found some intelligence value from the operation, although the report said "it is not easy to assess."

While in operation, the CIA's domestic mail opening programs were unlawful, the report said. But agency memos provided cover stories for the project in case it was disclosed, showing "the need for periodic review of CIA operations by objective persons."

The report concludes no mail should be opened again except under "express statutory authority in time of war."

According to the report, the CIA had mail surveillance operations going in New York, San Francisco, Hawaii and New Orleans, but only the New York operation was permanent.

It began in late 1952 with a CIA request to the Post Office Department that the mail between the United States and Russia merely be "covered" — that is, the outside of the envelopes photographed and examined.

But a CIA memo quoted in the commission report said, "Once our unit was in position (in the New York City post office), its activities and influence could be extended gradually, so as to secure from this source every drop of potential intelligence available."

By 1959, the report said, the program had expanded from the opening of only a few letters "to include the opening of over 13,000 letters a year," which were photographed, analyzed and reread.

CIA budget disclosure sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Constitution says:

"No money shall be drawn from the Treasury, but in consequence of appropriations made by law; and a regular statement and account of the receipts and expenditures of all public money shall be published from time to time."

The Rockefeller Commission on the CIA quoted Article I, Section 9, Clause 7 Tuesday and questioned whether it would be possible for Congress "to some extent" to reveal the Central Intelligence Agency budget.

The agency's budget — believed to run in the hundreds of millions, perhaps even more — is one of Congress' well-kept secrets. The intelligence budget is hidden in the budgets of other agencies of government, chiefly the $94 billion defense budget. The budget of the Defense Intelligence Agency is also massive.

Sometimes, at hearings on the Pentagon's budget requests, a congressman will question a particular item too closely. The chairman is likely to whisper to the congressman. The congressman nods, and drops that line of questioning. Reporters have seen that happen.

The Rockefeller commission did not discuss what effect would result from disclosure of the CIA budget. The agency would probably resist on grounds disclosure would enable the Soviet Union to gauge the extent of intelligence operations.

"All the commission said on the topic was this:

"Congress should give careful consideration to the question whether the budget of the CIA should not, at least to some extent, be made public, particularly in view of the provisions of Article I, Section 9, Clause 7 of the Constitution."

perform internal security tasks and the agency should resist any efforts, whatever their origin, to involve it again in such improper activities."

— Files on domestic surveillance operations already undertaken should be destroyed after current investigations end.

— The CIA should not infiltrate dissident groups unless the director declares such action vital to protect the agency or its people.

— The CIA should declassify whatever it can to give the public access to information it should have.

— A law should be enacted making it a crime for CIA employees to divulge foreign intelligence or how it is collected.

— The CIA should not

'No credible evidence' turns up linking CIA to JFK assassination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rockefeller Commission said Tuesday it found "no credible evidence" to support rumors pointing to CIA involvement in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

As part of its investigation, the commission disclosed it assembled a new panel of five experts to restudy motion pictures taken as Kennedy was shot. Separately and unanimously, the experts concluded that Kennedy was struck by only two bullets, both fired from the rear, and that no medical evidence points to any other shots.

In an 18-page chapter of its report to President Ford on its investigation into allegations about illegal activities by the Central Intelligence Agency, the commission discussed — and dismissed as unsupported by the evidence — two theories:

—That E. Howard Hunt and Frank Sturgis, both convicted of burglarizing Democratic headquarters in the Watergate complex in 1972, participated in the assassination. Hunt is a former CIA employee who handled political aspects of the Bay of Pigs operation in 1960 and 1961; Sturgis was active in anti-Castro groups in Miami.

—That the CIA had links with Lee Harvey Oswald, identified by the Warren Commission as Kennedy's sole assassin, or with Jack Ruby, who killed Oswald two days after the assassination. Both of these theories have been often advanced by persons disputing the Warren Commission's conclusions finding no evidence of a conspiracy to kill Kennedy.

The Rockefeller panel asserted:

—No evidence was found disputing Hunt and Sturgis' assertions they were in Washington and Miami, respectively, on Nov. 22, 1963.

—Motion picture analysis by Lyndal L. Shaneyfelt, the FBI's top photo analysis expert. In a report dated April 21, 1975, says none of three "derelicts" taken into custody by sheriff's deputies on the assassination day is either Hunt or Sturgis.

—The violent backward and forward motion of Kennedy's body shown on amateur motion pictures after he was hit "would be caused by a violent straightening and stiffening of the entire body as a result of a seizure-like neuromuscular reaction to major damage inflicted to nerve centers in the brain" is the opinion of the five experts assembled by the commission. There have been theories the motion showed he was shot from a grassy knoll directly in front of his car.

—That what to some look like human forms with rifles on the grassy knoll in a few frames of motion pictures could not have been that. Instead, the images were produced by sunlight.

Foreign defector confined 3 years

Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — The CIA held a foreign defector prisoner — "involuntarily confined" — in the phrase in the Rockefeller Commission report — for three years, with much of that time in solitary confinement under "extremely Spartan" conditions.

Another was "physically abused," said the commission, "although not seriously injured." The employee involved was fired, it added.

The agency justified the first episode on the basis of a "substantial concern" in connection with deciding whether the defector was genuine.

The action, approved by the CIA director on the advice of general counsel, was also known to "some extent" by the FBI, the attorney general, the U.S. Intelligence Board and "selected members of Congress."

Eventually, the defector was freed and became a U.S. citizen.

The Rockefeller report was extremely sparse on details of both incidents, failing to identify the defectors' nationality, sex or age, time of occurrence, the names of CIA and non-CIA officials, or explaining "Spartan conditions."

It concluded: "Such treatment . . . is unlawful," and the CIA chief and inspector general "must be alert" so that it doesn't happen again.

shadows and leaves. What appear to be identifiable as human beings in frames 412, 413 and 414 of a movie taken by Abraham Zapruder do not have that appearance in frames 411 and 415, taken fractions of a second before and after.

—There is no credible evidence to support implications linking Oswald or Ruby with Hunt or Sturgis. Elaborate theories that Hunt and Oswald may have had contacts because of their mutual anti-Castro activities are supported by haphazard circumstances and thrown in doubt by other circumstances. "The inferences drawn must be considered farfetched speculation insofar as they purport to show a connection between the CIA and either Oswald or Ruby," the report said.

—But the report probably will not silence those who contend links exist between the CIA and the assassination. This is especially so because the Rockefeller Commission limited its investigation.

"Neither the staff nor the commission undertook a full review of the Report of the Warren Commission," the Rockefeller report said. "Such a task would have been outside the scope of the executive order establishing this commission, and would have diverted the time of the commission from its proper function."

"The investigation was limited to determining whether there was any credible evidence pointing to CIA involvement in the assassination of President Kennedy."

On that point, the commission's answer is "no."

Death plot prosecution grounds mullied

'Chaos' matched name

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice Department attorneys Tuesday discussed four hypothetical ways for prosecuting persons who may have participated in alleged Central Intelligence Agency plots to assassinate foreign leaders.

Justice Department spokesman said attorneys in the Criminal Division discussed the matter before they received a secret document outlining the Rockefeller commission's unfinished investigation of the alleged plots.

President Ford ordered the commission's formal 299-page report released to the public Tuesday night. But the material on assassination was given only to the Justice Department and a special Senate CIA investigating committee.

Without knowing what assassination-related data the commission learned, the Justice spokesman said, top criminal division officials came up with these hypothetical situations:

—Anyone who plots an assassination attempt might be considered in violation of a federal statute forbidding use of interstate facilities to violate a state law, specifically a state murder law.

There is no federal statute against murder unless the murder occurs on federal property.

—A plot to assassinate a foreign official might violate the Federal Neutrality Act if it could be considered as mounting an illegal expedition against a foreign country.

This charge would require the government to prove that suspected federal personnel were acting as private individuals or acting outside the scope of their official authority and thus personally responsible.

—An assassination plot or attempt on the life of a foreign official might be considered as an attempt to influence the foreign policy of another country in violation of the Logan Act, which forbids persons in this country from attempting personal diplomacy with the government of another country.

The Logan Act was discussed at the Justice Department after antiwar activist Jane Fonda visited North Vietnam, but she was never charged.

—Government personnel accused of plotting an assassination also might be prosecuted under the laws of the state in which the planning occurred.

CIA headquarters are located in suburban Langley, Va. The Justice Department spokesman said the possibility of prosecution under state law or under the federal law against conspiring to violate the state law would depend on the exact wording of Virginia law.

The spokesman said the criminal division officials also discussed the statute of limitations that might block prosecution for any assassination plots conceived during the Kennedy or Eisenhower administrations.

The Neutrality Act and the Logan Act each carry a five-year limit that would prevent prosecution for any crime that occurred prior to 1970.

State murder laws have no such limitation.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA gave it the code name Operation Chaos — no one has said why — and the operation lived up to it.

By the time it was publicly described for the first time Tuesday, the intelligence operation against racial and antiwar activism had touched off congressional investigations, a presidential investigating commission and a Justice Department inquiry.

But in none of 37 reports to the White House over seven years were Chaos officials able to confirm the insistent suspicions of Presidents Johnson and Nixon that foreign money and direction were behind the American political dissidence of the 1960s and 70s.

Along the way the diligent staff of 52 in the "Special Operations Group" which ran Operation Chaos from a vaulted basement of the CIA's McLean, Va., spy factory compiled more than 300,000 computerized dossiers on American citizens and groups, including 15,000 extensive files on individuals and organizations.

According to testimony and documents, the Rockefeller Commission said, Operation Chaos was reluctantly mounted by the CIA at the insistence of Johnson and expanded at the insistence of Nixon.

Between its inception in August, 1967, and its termination in November, 1974, Chaos had fewer than 30 active agents of its own and all but three of those carried out their intelligence gathering abroad, the report said.

It said much of the information that went into Chaos files was gleaned from the FBI and other government agencies and from newspapers and publications available to the public.

Rocky, 7 others probed CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford created the Rockefeller Commission Jan. 4 to determine whether the CIA has exceeded its statutory authority after newspaper stories alleged it had engaged in massive secret and illegal domestic operations.

Members of the commission, appointed by Ford, include:

- Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.
- John T. Connor, secretary of commerce in the Johnson administration, air combat intelligence officer in the Marines in World War II and now chairman of Allied Chemical Corp.
- C. Douglas Dillon, treasury secretary in the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and ambassador to France and under secretary of state, now a managing director of Dillon, Read & Co., New York.
- Erwin Griswold, solicitor general in the Johnson administration and previously a Harvard law professor, now with a Washington law firm.

- Lane Kirkland, secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO since 1969 and a licensed deck officer aboard merchant ships in his youth.
- Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff from 1969 to 1973, and later NATO's supreme allied commander, previously commander in chief of the Far East and United Nations commands, and in World War II a member of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff.
- Ronald Reagan, governor of California from 1967 to 1975 and formerly president of the Screen Actors Guild and a motion picture actor.
- Edgar F. Shannon, president of the University of Virginia from 1959 to 1974, now professor of English there. The commission's executive director is David W. Belin, a Des Moines lawyer who served as assistant counsel on the Warren Commission which investigated the assassination of John F. Kennedy.

School improvement planned

DIERTRICH — Summer improvement projects at the Dietrich school were approved by the Dietrich School Board at a regular meeting Monday night.

Projects include roof repair with a bid from Smith Roofing, Twin Falls, in the amount of $2,800 accepted. A decision to replace a floor in a basement rec room was also made. Approval was given to allow $50 for coach Don Davis to attend a clinic in Boise this summer.

Lighting of the outdoor basketball court was also approved.

Supt. Wayne Perron said that with the hiring of three new teachers, the Dietrich teaching staff is complete. The new teachers are Mrs. V. C. Ross, North Shoshone for English; Don Davis, Jerome, for science and coach, and Winston Sam Fong, Washington, D. C. for social studies.

SHOSHONE—The Lincoln County Commission will meet at 10 a.m. June 23 at the courthouse as a board of equalization.

This is the last time this year it will meet in that capacity. A decision is pending on whether there will be one county-wide solid waste land-fill established or equipment purchased and the present five locations maintained. The landfills are at Shoshone, Fletcher, Dietrich, north Shoshone and Kimama.

Chairman of the board, Ward Mills, reported on possible equipment purchases he had studied along with data secured in an overall study.

Approval was given the county weed supervisor, Byron Hall, to serve as the Camas County weed supervisor on a one or two day a week basis, with adjustment for mileage and pay by the hour from Camas County.

Meeting with the commissioners to review charges and services by the Mountain Bell Telephone Company at the courthouse was Lyman E. DAVIS, a representative of the company. Note was made that one service connection providing a ring in the magistrate's office for the county nurse's department may be eliminated.

A study will be made by the commissioners to see if all six of the metropolitan services into the county offices are necessary. Five of them are at the courthouse while one is with the Civil Defense Director, Reid Newby. Total telephone billing for the county per month runs about $215, DAVIS said.

Herman Braun, north Shoshone farmer, met with the board regarding problems of noxious weeds growing in his area which are not controlled. Statute provided that complaints may be signed with the sheriff's office.

lower Wood River Valley: Partly cloudy with gusty winds and a chance of a brief shower this evening. Lows tonight near 35 and highs Thursday 65 to 70. Probability of showers, 30 per cent this evening.

Synopsis: A weak cold front is expected to move across the Magic Valley late this afternoon or early—this evening, accompanied by gusty winds and a few scattered showers.

This is the Pacific storm system weathermen have been watching all week, but it has weakened so much that it is no longer considered to be a producer of precipitation.

Cooling behind the system will be minor and temperatures are expected to climb back to near or a little above the seasonal normals by the end of the week.

The remainder of the week should also be dry so conditions are more favorable than usual at this time of year for the first cuttings of hay.

Crops should make excellent growth this week and irrigation requirements.

SHOSHONE—The Shoshone school budget for the 1978-1979 school year totaling $398,267 was approved during a board meeting Monday night at the high school.

Six Kenneth Crothers appeared at the hearing to discuss the budget, but offered no opposition. The budget is up from $357,285 for the past year.

The increase covers general operating expenses, particularly increases in cost of operating school buses and heating school buildings.

In other business during the meeting, a bid was let to Supply Service Co., Salt Lake City, for repair of windows in the old part of the high school. The contract amount was $27,552. The work will be done during the summer.

A school and athletic insurance proposal presented by principal James Clements was adopted and football coaches were granted approval to attend a three-day clinic at Sun Valley.

A new program to govern use of school music instruments was adopted. Students using school-owned instruments will enter into a bond agreement proposal, whereby the use fee will be forfeited in event of any damage to the instruments.

Jerry Habeel was hired to teach fourth grade. He is a graduate of Boise State University, a native of the Caldwell area and a first-year teacher. The teaching staff is complete except for a combination Spanish-English teacher for the high school, Crothers said.

TF trustees okay budget

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls school trustees Tuesday night adopted a $4.8 million general fund budget for next year, up 13.1 per cent from the district's current level.

Instructional expenses will account for 78.7 per cent of the budget for the next school year at $3.7 million. This year 76.1 per cent of the general fund budget went for instructional purposes while the year before only 72.2 per cent of the budget went for instruction.

Money available for elementary and secondary school teachers' salaries will be $2.8 million, up 14.7 per cent from this year's $2.4 million. On the elementary school level salary spending will go up 18.3 per cent, partly due to hiring additional staff for kindergartens. Secondary school spending will be up 11.9 per cent.

The teacher pay rates will rise from 6.3 to 10.2 per cent. Spending for textbooks will more than double next year. The new budget sets aside $70,000 for elementary texts, up from $30,000 this year, and $54,000 for secondary school texts, up from $25,000. Library budgets, however, will be down 11 per cent for the elementary schools and 36 per cent for the secondary schools.

General Administrative costs will go up 11 per cent from $139,200 this year to $155,000 next year. Salary money for administrators will rise 9.5 per cent to $64,500 under the new budget.

In one special fund area, administrative costs will rise while instructional spending drops. Federal "Title I" money will go down meant to help underprivileged children, 3.6 per cent next year. Instructional expenses will drop 5.2 per cent to $113,750 but administration costs of the program will rise 13.8 per cent to $10,300.

According to Camden Meyer, assistant district superintendent, federal review teams suggested more money be put into administering the program. Meyer said the district had been hiring aides and spending little of the money on administration, but now he said the government is requiring test data to prove the money is helping the underprivileged.

The 1975-76 budget shows there will be a total of $400,000 carry-over from this year, or 8.1 per cent of the 1976 total. The carry-over from last year was $175,228. Meyer said the districts tried to have five per cent of the total budget rewriting on June 30, the end of the school fiscal year. He said the money is used to pay bills during most of July when neither state or local monies are coming in.

Total expenditures of the school district will drop $2.5 million, mostly because of near completion of building the new Sawtooth Elementary School. The bond building fund expenditures will drop from $3.5 million to $400,000. Overall, the districts total budget will drop from $8.7 million to $6.2 million, down 28.8 per cent.

One federal program to help develop students' motor-perceptual skills in physical education classes, will be dropped. The Title III program, which had a $22,000 budget last year, was a three year experimental program and this was the third year, Meyer said.

Idaho HS rodeo begins at Burley

BURLEY — The Idaho State Championship High School Rodeo begins today in Burley.

The Burley event, which runs through Saturday, will see about 190 high school-age cowboys and cowgirls in competition. A year ago 35 contestants at the Burley rodeo qualified for the nationals.

Although the rodeo won't begin officially until 8 p.m. tonight, team roping events began this morning at 8:30 a.m.

Tonight is kids night, with all children under 12 admitted free if they are with an adult.

Rodeo events include bull riding, saddle broncs, steer wrestling and calf roping. Girls events include pole bending, cow cutting, breakaway roping and goat tying.

The rodeo starts at 8 p.m. each night — Wednesday through Saturday — at the Cassia County Fairgrounds, Burley.

Stereo equipment stolen

TWIN FALLS — Stereo equipment and tapes valued at $385 were stolen from an automobile in Twin Falls Monday. Twin Falls city police were notified.

Loyal Fernberg, Jerome, told officers he was in Twin Falls when someone cut the rear window out of his convertible and entered the vehicle, taking the stereo equipment.

City police were also investigating broken windows at Harrison Elementary School. Damage estimated at $80 resulted when windows at the rear of the building were broken by rocks, officers said.

Joint farm move backed

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Farmers and unionists should be working together, a San Francisco-based labor official said today at the Idaho convention of the AFL-CIO here.

William L. Gilbert, director of the western region of the AFL-CIO, said that most working people were only a generation removed from the farm, having moved to cities when farming became more efficient and required less people.

He said that the nation's "highly integrated" economy needed to expand constantly to allow farmers to sell their goods at fair prices, bringing them money to buy goods produced by working people.

The "business agents of Wall Street" are Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns; Ford's economic adviser, Alan Greenspan; and Treasury secretary William Simon, who are wrong about the economy, Gilbert said.

In a classic disagreement on the economy, which Gilbert says he has been labor's position "since the Boston Tea Party," Gilbert said that the large government deficit is not the cause of current economic conditions, although Burns, Greenspan and Simon say it is.

"We say nonsense," Gilbert said. "The total national debt is the lowest in history in relation to gross national product." After World War II, he said, the national debt was 100 per cent of the GNP, but now it is only 40 per cent of the GNP. He said national debt should alternate economy growth to pay off the debt.

Unemployment is costly, the former toolmaker said. "For every 1 per cent in unemployment, it costs us $18 billion a year in tax revenues." Unemployed workers pay no taxes and unemployment programs are costly to workers and employers as welfare and other maintenance programs, he said.

"The answer to the budget deficits is to have an expanding economy... and elimination of tax loopholes," he said.

"Strict enforcement" of anti-trust laws would prevent the "business agents of Wall Street" from allowing monopolies to set prices, he said. "I'm not saying they're bad people," Gilbert said of the economic advisers he quarrels with.

The advisers say the economy can revive by pumping money into it "from the top," and labor says "feed it in at the bottom," Gilbert said.

Also speaking at the state AFL-CIO convention Tuesday was Idaho Gov. John Evans, who faulted the 1975 legislative cycle for its indifference to labor legislation.

"Every meaningful labor measure either died in committee or was killed in the House," Evans said. "Unbelievably, the bill to rectify the unconstitutionality of our overtime law was also defeated."

Evans said the continued growth rate in Idaho was the bright side of the economic picture which has kept Idaho's unemployment figures below the national average.

"Approximately 12,000 more workers are employed in Idaho than at this time last year, and yet the unemployment rate for the period is nearly identical," he said.

Buhl school budget OK'd

BUHL — Buhl school trustees have adopted the 1975-76 budget of $1,118,827 which is about 11 per cent above last year's budget.

Supt. Dan Mabe said the new budget reflects a salary increase which is a "little more than 10 per cent" for returning teachers, as well as two new positions in the district. These are for a vocational teacher and an additional music teacher in the elementary grades.

Three persons attended the budget hearing Monday night to ask questions, but expressed no opposition, he said. The item for administrative salaries is $27,030 compared to $24,800 last year, with instructional salaries at $758,675, compared to $652,330.

Pupil transportation expense is $88,064 compared to $76,700 while operation of plant salaries remained at $3,000 and food services and student body expenditures also remained constant at $3,500.

Revenues are expected to total $1,130,627, compared to $992,840 last year. This includes $718,325 in the state-territory foundation program, compared to $493,507 last year.

Mabe said six positions are still open for this fall including both elementary and secondary vocal music instructor, business, art, agriculture and multi-occupation teachers.

No OSHA Gem farm checks

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has made no farm inspections in Idaho, according to Richard C. Jackson, area OSHA director for Idaho.

Jackson told the Times-News Tuesday at the state AFL-CIO convention here that no farms in Idaho had been inspected by OSHA, and indicated that farm inspection was not a priority in the state.

Of the 12 OSHA inspectors who work the state, one is an agriculture specialist, but does not spend a majority of his time in farming concerns, Jackson said. "Allied" industries' like food processing and potato warehousing have been inspected, he said.

"Very little agriculture standards" partly account for the lack of farm inspections, according to Jackson. Standards for migrant housing, some chemical and pesticide use and ROPS (roll over protection standards — roll bars on tractors, for instance) have been set, but other standards are "still in the promulgation stage," he said.

A "random inspection" schedule takes inspectors for Idaho to other workplaces where, "immediate danger," or facilities are evident, James Lake, regional OSHA administrator, Seattle.

The two area OSHA officials were in town with John Stender, assistant U.S. secretary of labor for OSHA, Washington, D.C., who spoke Tuesday at the state AFL-CIO convention held in Twin Falls.

In earlier remarks to the press, Stender said that the U.S. Department of Agriculture had expressed interest in starting a training program in occupational safety and health for farmers and farm employees.

Stender credited OSHA with helping reduce construction deaths nationally by 7 per cent during 1973. He said that before safety and health issues were made known by OSHA it was an "acceptable thing to expect to get hurt" on the job.

Stender said he's seen "some overreaction" and misunderstanding about OSHA standards but "I haven't found anyone... opposed to safety and health in the workplace."

School pay plan OK'd

The agreement recognizes in writing the Twin Falls Education Association as "the exclusive bargaining representative" and remains in force until Oct. 1, 1976, unless another bargaining organization gains a majority of teacher support.

Items to be negotiated include salaries, fringe benefits, working conditions and "other mutually agreed-to items." Initially not to exceed 20 items for negotiation. After the original 20 items have been negotiated, however, new items can be introduced.

Under the agreement, the teachers and the board waived their legal right to mediation and fact-finding procedures, both used when negotiations break down.

Other provisions are routine, such as setting up the number of negotiators establishing a joint press release system to "preserve the privacy under which negotiations will be conducted," and spelling out ratification procedures.

Kimberly — Three Kimberly school officials were told Tuesday night the school's water bill has more than doubled because of a clerical error and addition of new rates.

Supt. Clinton Buggs, board chairman Ron Ballard and trustee Houty Houff attended the City Council meeting to complain about the district's water bill which, they said, has jumped from $54 to $140 per month. This includes both water and sewerage charges.

Mayor Von Nebeker said the district never had been billed for water used at either the agricultural building or the high school. It was discovered recently. So, with the increase in special user rates, "it made the bill seem more of a jump."

The rate increase is only for special users and will not affect residences, according to city clerk Edythe Widmer.

The school officials asked if it would be cheaper if they installed meters, but councilmen advised this would undoubtedly cost the district more. The school is charged on the basis of 5 gallons of water per student, an average determined by several other area schools who have water meters, Nebeker said.

Buggs questioned whether students did use that much water and said "When we went to meters in Richfield, we saved money."

They also discussed with the councilmen long-range problems if the school board purchases additional land lying outside the city limits.

The council agreed to install a four-way stop, replacing the present signal light at the intersection of Main and Center streets.

40 inches to spillover

OAKLEY — The slowly rising Oakley Reservoir is now only 2.3 feet from spilling over.

According to measurements Friday and again on Tuesday, the water behind the dam on Goose Creek is gaining on the spillway at the rate of about a half-foot per day.

The rate of rise is expected to slow a little as the surface of the reservoir enlarges as it fills. The streams feeding the reservoir also show signs of decreasing runoff.

However, a storm Monday dampened hopes of containing the reservoir. The storm showers dumped 3 or 4 inches of rain on Oakley and reportedly added new water to the watershed above the reservoir. The snow pack is already above normal for this time of year.

Rita Layton, secretary of the Oakley Canal Co., said Tuesday water from Goose and Trapper creeks — the two main sources of water — is flowing into the reservoir at about 1.15 acre feet per day. Water can be released from the 74,000-acre foot storage lake at about 600 acre feet per day.

There was an estimated 70,125 acre feet of water behind the dam Tuesday.

TF school trustees hear good, bad news at meet

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In an action-filled meeting Twin Falls school board trustees got some good news and some bad news during their regular meeting Tuesday.

The good news came from Francis Rist, Idaho Department of Education and chairman of a 26 person evaluation team which recently spent three days going over the operation at Twin Falls High School in a once-in-10-year evaluation process.

Rist told the board of the 45 evaluations completed in the past five years, "we feel that the Twin Falls High School was one of the best." Evaluations are made as part of the accreditation process.

Commending the school board and administration for supporting the high school programs, Rist said the support was "really great and it's something we don't see out there very often."

Rist also said a frequent complaint in schools being evaluated is the lack of communication between the staff and administration and the administration and students. "That wasn't so here," he said.

The bad news came from architect Ed Peterson, who said demolition of the old portion of Lincoln School was not proceeding on schedule. The apparent low bidder for the job, Mike Stafford of Stafford Excavation, Boise, "broke his ankle," according to Peterson and didn't get the job proceed with the contract.

Stafford will forfeit his bond of 5 per cent of the $2,888 bid for not following through. Trustees decided to offer the contract to the next low bidder, All Clites Wrecking, Meridian, which set the job cost at $14,295, about $5,400 higher.

Since the bids were opened in mid-April, All Clites mentioned requirements that 50 rooms which might be occupied by more than 20 persons must have exit doors that swing out and rooms for use by more than 100 persons must have panic hardware on doors (bars or devices that open the doors when pressure is put on them).

But Higgins told the Times-News today that even though he mentioned the requirements, he did not know if Bickel is in violation of them.

The schools with the least fire hazards are the new Sawtooth Elementary, the new additions to Harrison and Morningdale and Robert Sturt Junior High, according to Higgins.

They are in "pretty good shape," he said.

Cities may not be able to take on the job and rebidding the project may be necessary, Peterson said.

Stafford previously was the low bidder on the demolition of the Lincoln School bleachers last spring, but withdrew his bid on that project also. He subsequently subcontracted for the second low bidder, which in that case was All Clites Wrecking.

Peterson said Stafford assured him he would not be subcontracting for the job this time. Trustees also met with representatives of parents of Sawtooth elementary students, who expressed concern about a planned playground.

The parents, including Rosalee Dingwall, Jan Hutchison and Lynn Affleck, said they favored more natural types of playground design and equipment, like the playground recently installed at Harrison School.

The trustees and administrators indicated that the equipment was already purchased. Rubber mats will be installed under the equipment to lessen the chance of injury. Stephen George Stauber said.

Mrs. Hutchison charged that parents "weren't allowed to give... opinions" on the playground and said she had been put off when they tried to find out details on school building plans.

The trustees countered that a "citizens committee" had been involved during the planning of the schools.

Mrs. Dingwall said she understood the equipment was already purchased but added, "We hope that if we came to you next year, as a PTA group, that you would be responsible."

In other action, the trustees approved the initiation of legal proceedings to sell the Washington School property. Although Stauber said at least two parties were seriously interested, the first step is to have the property appraised by three independent appraisers.

O'Leary 'worst fire hazard'

He cited many of the same hazards found at O'Leary.

Higgins also pointed out, however, that rooms for kindergarten or first grade pupils "shall not be located above or below the floor of exit discharge. Rooms used for second grade pupils shall not be located more than one story above the floor of exit discharge."

Higgins told the Times-News that, in mentioning a particular safety rule, he intended to point out one or more violations of that rule.

Higgins apparently did not follow that procedure in all cases, however. In his report on Bickel, he mentioned requirements that 50 rooms which might be occupied by more than 20 persons must have exit doors that swing out and rooms for use by more than 100 persons must have panic hardware on doors (bars or devices that open the doors when pressure is put on them).

But Higgins told the Times-News today that even though he mentioned the requirements, he did not know if Bickel is in violation of them.

Wendell students create racquet

WENDELL — More than two dozen students and a few adults attended the Wendell School Board meeting Monday night to petition for an official tennis program in the school.

Some of the students also were seeking trustee approval for the 1976 class's planned senior trip a year hence to Disneyland. Vern McFarland, a class officer, said such an expensive trip means students must begin now to raise money and they need approval of the board for use of the gym for fund raising events this summer.

Vern McFarland, board chairman, told McFarland to get more details as to cost of the trip, chaperones and other information. Trustees tabled the request and said the students could work out future plans with Supt. Lawrence LaRue.

The board also tabled the request for sanctioning official inter-school tennis until more information could be obtained. There is now a tennis club in the school but it is not officially sanctioned.

Pat Mathers, teacher, was spokesman for the students. Several of the persons attending asked questions about the new budget, approved during the formal hearing, but no opposition was raised.

The new budget of $845,791 shows a 20 per cent jump over last year's figure of $666,185. Primary reasons for the increase is the bond interest and redemption fund on the new physical education facility now being built. This item jumped from $27,572 to $122,990.

Construction on the new facilities already has been delayed because of the bad spring weather. LaRue said. The contractor, Dorsey Construction Co., Caldwell, has asked for an extension from Oct. 1 to sometime in November for the completion date.

Other budget items include $36,039 for administration, compared to $33,782 last year; $434,200 for instruction, compared to $381,680, and $29,900 for instructional supplies, compared to $21,650 last year. The instructional costs reflect an eight per cent increase for teachers and salary negotiations are still under way, LaRue said.

He said the money budgeted for Idaho Power Co. under utilities has jumped from $9,000 to $15,000, reflecting the increased power costs with the new physical education facility. The Intermountain Gas Co. costs have jumped from $7,000 to $10,000.

Another significant jump under fixed charges in the budget is for insurance which went from $6,500 to $12,000. LaRue said this reflects not only the new facilities but also the increased insurance value on the present buildings.

Hailey rip-rap rocked.

By MARY QUINN/STAFF

Times-News writer
HAILEY — Hailey resident Greg Mumber criticized the City Council here Monday night for the type of rip-rap used to protect the city sewer.

The city recently fortified the sewer against a potential spring flood. Mumber told the council the area by the sewer was a beautiful spot for fishing and he was disturbed by the concrete slabs, pipe, brick, culverts, wire, glass and cans used as rip-rap for protection from river water.

Hailey Mayor Lawrence Heagle told Mumber the city was not finished. He said the intent was to fill the area and seed it with grass.

Mumber suggested the city use rocks for rip-rap instead of concrete. Heagle retorted that rocks cost too much.

The city received the other material free and was able to use its own trucks to haul the rip-rap.

In other action, Merritt Hill, Hiawatha Hotel owner, told the council he hopes to open the historic landmark July 1. Hill said the hotel has been closed the past six weeks for remodeling.

He said he had spent $150,000 and would spend another $35,000 to $40,000 on carpets and electrical and plumbing repairs.

A swimming program can hopefully be started whereby local children will have use of the natural hot water pool, he said.

Grant Patterson, chairman of the Hailey Planning and Zoning Commission, asked the council to consider the construction of parking areas within the city.

Wage scale may be needed for negotiations in NFL

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Labor Relations Board, which Monday issued a complaint against the National Football League Management Council for 17 unfair labor practices resulting from last summer's strike by the NFL Players Association, declined Tuesday to issue similar charges against the union.

But the NLRB also raised the possibility the Players Association may be forced to negotiate a complete wage scale, just as it did for the auto or steel workers.

The Management Council originally made three charges of unfair labor practices against the players' union, but one was withdrawn, one was held in abeyance by the NLRB and the third was dismissed.

However, the third charge by the Management Council claimed the Players Association, as a government-certified bargaining agent, had failed to live up to its obligation to bargain all salary levels, not just minimums.

The charge was dismissed because there was not enough evidence that the NFL Management Council had pushed the issue in the past, but NLRB regional director Sidney Danielson said, "The subject of players' salaries, including minimum or other salary levels for the unit, is a mandatory subject of bargaining, and a party may not refuse to bargain or 'waive' bargaining on that subject without the consent of the other party."

In other words, if the Management Council so insists in the future, there must be contract discussions regarding the institution of a wage minimum wage, but an entire scale of wages. As matters now stand, the union negotiates a minimum and then each player negotiates individually with his club.

Sargent Karch, the executive director of the NFL Management Council, said, "We accept fully the labor board's observation that collective bargaining on all salaries is a duty of the union that cannot be waived unilaterally. We have had the concept of a union wage scale under advisement for some time, but have not pursued it actively, pending affirmation of our position by the NLRB. That affirmation is now in hand."

The Management Council charge held in abeyance was that the Players Association had failed to bargain in good faith on freedom issues.

The NFL Management Council Tuesday also reiterated statements made Monday by Ed Garvey, the executive secretary of the Players Association. Garvey had said the NFL clubs had not bargained in good faith, but Management Council spokesman pointed out that specific charge by the union had been deemed unsupported by Danielson.

Garvey sees little chance of NFL strike

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Ed Garvey, executive secretary of the National Football League Players Association, said Tuesday players would go to training camps and there would be no strike this summer.

Garvey responded to reporters' inquiries on the complaint filed Monday in New York by the National Labor Relations Board against the National Football League.

The complaint charged the league and its member teams with unfair labor practices resulting from the 1974 player's strike.

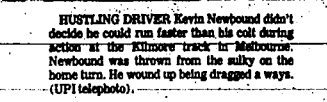

"I don't think we could stay out of camp this year," Garvey said. "Our plans are now to have the players go to camp and then see what we can do even if we don't have a contract by then."

Get off and run

Garvey said football like basketball needs at least one club or official that will stand up and say, "Let's stop trying to break the union and work with it." To date, he said, there has been no response on the bargaining table from the league or owners since the cooling off period ordered last Aug. 27.

"And," he said, "that response was totally unacceptable. It put us back to the 1970 contract."

Garvey said he was "extremely happy" with the NLRB action. "Maybe now the NFL will bargain in good faith."

Kokanee record still climbing

PRIEST LAKE, Idaho (UPI) — For the third time in two weeks, a new record Kokanee salmon has been caught in Priest Lake.

The latest one, caught Monday by Jerry Virge, Spokane, weighed in at 16 pounds, nine and three-quarters ounces.

Last week Stan Bothman, Rosalia, landed a six-pound, 4 ounce Kokanee.

About two hours before Bothman's catch was registered, a third party had registered the first catch over six pounds.

The larger Kokanee, also known as silver or blueback, have been due to the stocking of the lake with deep-water mysis shrimp, imported from British Columbia's Kootenay Lake some five years ago.

Pele has rare athletic gifts

By ALEX YANNIS
© N.Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK — What makes Pele, the uncrowned king of soccer, so much better than other stars?

The 34-year-old Brazilian, who signed a multi-million dollar contract with the New York Cosmos Tuesday, has physical and mental qualities which he calls, "God's divine gifts."

Medical tests have revealed that Pele's heart when he is training, beats 56 to 58 times a minute.

The heart of an average athlete in training beats 90 to 95 times a minute. Pele's aerobic capacity is such that he can repeat a great effort within 45 to 60 seconds. His peripheral vision is 30 per cent greater than that of the average athlete.

Leonardo da Vinci once sketched a man with his arms stretched in a circle to show the perfect proportions of man's body. Pele seems to fit the mold.

Pele's feet are parallel and the bone in heel is exceptionally strong and developed, which forces him to bend forward as he runs and serves as a shock absorber after a jump or a high kick. It also helps his quickness.

A few years ago, medical experts examined Pele's slim, athletic figure for weeks in a university laboratory. They prodded him, wired his head for readings, measured his muscles and his mind and when they finished they announced: "Whatever this man might have decided to do in any physical or mental endeavor, he would have been a genius."

But the man who never finished fourth grade, shrugs off such tests. He is a devout Catholic and is convinced that his talent is "The gift from God and the willingness to be a perfectionist," he said.

"To perfect his soccer, Pele took geometry lessons and learned how to play chess," said Gloria Brel, head of the Pepsi-Cola worldwide youth program and one of the men who worked closely with Pele in the World Cup last summer. "Actually, when he plays soccer it is like he is playing chess. He can see five to 10 moves ahead what his opponent will do."

Australian netters snub South Africa

MELBOURNE (UPI) — The Lawn Tennis Association of Australia (Tuesday) decided to oppose the entry of South Africa into next year's Davis Cup competition.

The LTAA also agreed the continued participation of South Africa is endangering the 1975 cup series.

But the LTAA will oppose a proposal to have a meeting in London next month to deprive South Africa of their 1974 victory.

"Our decisions were made in light of South Africa having received two walkovers in the 1974 competition, including the final, and walkovers in the first two rounds of 1975," Wayne Reid, LTAA president said.

"Also it is now known that some nations won't enter the 1976 competition if South Africa's entry is accepted," Reid said.

A statement from the LTAA pointed out that the decisions were made solely on the Davis Cup regulations and no discussion took place relative to South Africa's internal politics.

Senior vice-president Brian Tobin said: "We are not taking sides in the South African situation.

"We are voting on whether its (South Africa) presence in the competition will disrupt it," Tobin said.

The complaint also argued that the Dallas Cowboys, St. Louis Cardinals, Kansas City Chiefs and others refused to bargain collectively while keeping players' meetings "under surveillance" and refusing representatives admission to pre-season training camps.

The NLRB ordered a hearing on its complaint for July 21. The hearing will also deal with allegations that the NFL failed to negotiate with the players association before adopting the overtime or sudden death and punt rule changes.

20,000 fans mob Ali at Kuala Lumpur

KUALA LUMPUR, (UPI) — More than 20,000 fans broke police cordons and mobbed Muhammad Ali Tuesday night when the heavyweight champion flew in for a title defense against European Champion Joe Bugner.

Girls swooned and fainted as the frenzied crowd chanted "Ali, Ali" and jostled and pushed to get closer to him. It took a police wedge 30 minutes to get Ali's car onto the main road. His entourage of 30, which included his wife Belinda and his trainer Angelo Dundee, then headed for the hotel, where another reception was waiting.

The hearing and chanting began even before Ali's plane touched down and turned into a roar as he stepped down to be garlanded, sprinkled with scented flowers and escorted to the lounge to the beat of Malay "Kampang" native drumming.

The crowd which had waited two hours for a glimpse of Ali was unprecedented in Malaysian history and visibly affected Ali who could just mumble "This is beautiful. It is the most beautiful thing ever just beautiful!"

All told a news conference that after beating Bugner he plans to beat Joe Frazier, George Foreman and Ken Norton, after which he will retire.

Qualifying time lowered

BOSTON (UPI) — Qualifying time for the Boston Marathon has been trimmed to three hours for males under 40, officials announced Tuesday.

The qualifying time for all entrants had been 3½ hours the past few years, and the field has swollen to an unmanageable size. Females and men 40 and older still will be able to qualify in 3½ hours for the annual Patriots' Day event.

To qualify, runners must run a sanctioned 26-mile, 385-yard race in the allotted time and within 12 months preceding the 80th Boston Marathon next April.

Wildman wins tourney

The Wildmans and McLains took top gross and net prizes in the Canyon Springs golf course Chapman tournament over the weekend.

Wildman took gross, followed by Amende and King tied for second, Sorenson fourth and Lawley and Mack fifth.

In net, Garrett, Jones, McCollum and Thaele followed the winners.

Junior clinic set

Junior golf lessons will be conducted by Canyon Springs professional Mike Sessions over the last two weeks of the month. Sessions will be offered June 18 through 20 and June 23 through 26. Golfers in the 13-17 age group will meet at 8 a.m. with 8 to 12-year-olds meeting at 9 a.m. on the specified days.

Werner out for year

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Clyde Werner, five-year veteran linebacker from the University of Washington, is expected to miss the 1975 football season, the Kansas City Chiefs announced Tuesday.

Werner, a 6-3, 230-pounder, underwent secondary surgery on an Achilles tendon last week and the foot was placed in a cast, which must remain on for four to six months.

Werner underwent surgery about four months ago for the same injury.

Rams sign trio

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams Tuesday signed three of their draft choices, including second-round choice Monte Jackson, a defensive back from San Diego State University.

Jackson, 5-10, 189 pounds, was signed to a multi-year contract and given a substantial bonus, a Rams spokesman said. Financial terms were not disclosed.

Also signed were linebacker Gordon Riegel, 6-5, 230 pounds, from Stanford University and wide receiver Chandler Williams, 6-1, 180, from Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo.

Allen takes SMU cage job

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — William "Sonny" Allen, who piloted Old Dominion University to the 1975 NCAA Division II basketball championship, Tuesday was named head coach at Southern Methodist University.

Allen's departure cleaned out the coaching staff of ODU's title team.

Earlier this spring, assistant Charlie Woolloom accepted a head coaching job at Bucknell and assistant Ed Hall became head coach at St. Mary's College in Halifax, Nova Scotia.

"I guess that's part of the price you pay of having a championship team," ODU Athletic Director Jim Jarrett said.

Bartkowski prefers NFL

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The young attorney who is Steve Bartkowski's dorm counselor at the University of California and now serves as his agent said Tuesday the long-throwing quarterback wants to play in the National Football League.

"But Leigh Steinberg said Bartkowski can't ignore some of the million-dollar offers thrown his way by clubs in the World Football League."

"Money is not Steve's only consideration," Steinberg insisted in response to comments by spokesmen from the Atlanta Falcons suggesting that Bartkowski is trying "to make a few quick bucks."

Michigan abandons bowl policy

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The University of Michigan Tuesday became the sixth Big Ten school to approve a proposal ending the league's exclusive pact with the Rose Bowl committee.

The proposal policy, which will be considered at the annual summer meeting of Big Ten athletic directors and faculty representatives in August, would allow second, third and fourth place finishers to accept invitations to play in other conference-approved bowl games.

Adams sues Sun

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Quarterback Tony Adams, chosen most valuable player in the World Football League last year when he starred for the Southern California Sun, sued the club Tuesday for $10.2 million.

The suit, filed in federal district court by attorney Wayne Naphal, accused the Sun management of fraud, conspiracy to defraud, breach of contract and violation of the California Labor Code.

Wife foils negotiations

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The New England Whalers said Tuesday negotiations with right-winger Rod Gilbert have ended. The club said Gilbert's agent notified general manager Jack Kelley last week that Gilbert's wife Judy would not leave the New York City area, precluding any chance of the Whalers signing him.

Oliva leads DHs

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins, three-time American League batting champion, has taken on the league lead in designated hitting with a .287 average according to statistics released Tuesday.

Oliva hit .367 last week as a designated hitter with 11 hits in 30 at-bats and has batted at a .391 clip the past two weeks.

Serles rained out

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Rain forced postponement Tuesday night of the College World Series game between Arizona State and South Carolina—the only two undefeated teams remaining in the double-elimination tournament.

The game was rescheduled for Wednesday night.

Both Arizona State and South Carolina won their first two games in the eight-team tournament. Oklahoma and Texas also remain in the running for the championship with 2-1 records.

Los Angeles (UPI) —

Reliever Mike Marshall's errant pickoff attempt allowed Pepe Mangual to score from second base with the winning run in the seventh inning Tuesday night at the Montreal Expos-aided Los Angeles Dodgers 4-1.

The unearned run cost the Dodgers, who couldn't build onto a 2-0 lead in a club record 11th inning Tuesday night in the National League West. Earlier fromtrunning Cincinnati lost to Pittsburgh.

Steve Renko went 8 2-3 innings for his first win since last Sept. 21.

Sayers says playing only stepping stone to career

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—All-American and all-pro football player Gale Sayers testified Tuesday in U.S. District Court that the elimination of the Rozelle rule would destroy the morale of teams which lose a big name player.

Sayers was drafted by the Chicago Bears in 1965 and played until his retirement in 1971.

"Everything I have today I owe to football. The game itself is not a livelihood. It's too short. It's a stepping stone to something else," Sayers said.

He said that if he were a college player today looking to play football he wouldn't object to the present NFL rules and regulations, including the Rozelle rule.

The loss of a starting player affects the team morale, Sayers said, because the whole team contributes to a well-known player's success. Without compensation of the Rozelle rule, the morale would be very low, Sayers said.

He was completely satisfied with the salary he received while with the Bears and never disputed what Chicago gave him, he said.

Sayers, who went to the Bears from the University of Kansas in 1965, signed a four-year contract totaling $150,000 with bonuses during those years ranging from $10,000 to $25,000. In 1969 and 1970 Sayers received $30,000 a year.

The NFL Players Association is challenging the Rozelle rule which it says limits a player's ability to move from one team to another and is monopolistic. The rule was initiated in 1963 by Commissioner Pete Rozelle to set compensation for a club which loses a player who has played out his option.

Sayers said that Gordon was one of several players who in 1969 "didn't give a damn about playing football and only wanted to collect their salaries every Tuesday."

Rumor of Kuhn's ouster proves false

NEW YORK (UPI) — A published report that Bowie Kuhn is in danger of being ousted as Baseball Commissioner shortly proved without foundation Tuesday when one of those owners supposedly opposing his re-election gave Kuhn his complete endorsement and said he has absolutely no intention of voting against him.

The owner speaking up in Kuhn's behalf was George Steinbrenner, General Partner of the New York Yankees, who, ironically, is under a two-year suspension by Kuhn now for having made illegal political contributions prior to the last Presidential election.

According to a report carried in the Chicago Sun-Times, a move is underway in the American League to dump Kuhn and action on that supposedly could be taken when the major league owners assemble for their annual summer meeting July 14 in Milwaukee one day before the All-Star game.

Charles Finley of Oakland, Jerry Hoffberger of Baltimore and Steinbrenner, all of whom have had personal brushes with Kuhn, are reported to be the leaders of the move. Under baseball rules, nine votes in each league are required to oust a commissioner. Four dissenting votes in either league could oust Kuhn.

From his office in Tampa, Fla., where he runs the American Shipbuilding Company, Steinbrenner made it perfectly clear he is not part of any move to have Kuhn replaced.

"To begin with, under terms of my suspension, I am not involved with the Yankees and I'm not representing them so I would not be voting anyway," he explained.

"But I will say this: I would never vote against the Commissioner because of anything he did within the perimeter of his authority. People seem to think the Yankees will vote against him because of my suspension and that is absolutely not so. He exercised his authority as commissioner and as long as it is within the prerogative of his office, we will abide by his ruling and the Yankees I am sure will not enter into retaliatory attempts of any sort."

Steinbrenner was suspended by Kuhn Sept. 1, 1974, after he was indicted and fined for inducing employees of his shipbuilding company to make contributions to both the Republican and Democratic parties. Kuhn enjoined Steinbrenner from taking part in any of the Yankees' internal affairs.

Last month, a special review committee of the Securities Exchange Commission issued a report saying Steinbrenner had acted "completely in good faith and upon advice of legal counsel" when the funds were contributed.

Kuhn was named baseball commissioner Feb. 4, 1969, replacing the late William D. Eckert, who had been fired two months previously. Originally elected for one year, his contract was extended until August, 1975, when he comes up for re-election. Terms of the commissionership say, however, the owners shall meet not less than six months nor more than 15 months prior to the expiration of the commissioner's contract to decide whether he is to be re-elected or not.

More than likely Kuhn will be re-elected for another seven years, either next month in Milwaukee or at the annual winter meetings at Hollywood, Fla., in November.

One of the big things he has going for him is the unprecedented television contract major league baseball signed with ABC and NBC last March. The total revenue in that package approaches $93 million. Also, Kuhn now is deeply involved in possible franchise changes involving Seattle, New Orleans, San Francisco and Oakland and none of the owners have any other one man in mind who could successfully deal with such an enormous project like that coming in cold from the outside.

Futures market declines

Courtesy Sinclair & Co. CHICAGO — Generally downward. In the direction the futures market took Tuesday. Idaho russet potato futures closed unchanged at 9.50 per hundredweight for the May 1976 option.

Commodity News Service said Maine potatoes futures collapsed at the close in the face of profit taking, posting losses of 7 to 49 points. Volume was 4,319 trades. The market was on the defensive most of the day, with a light cash market and delayed Maine plantings supporting factors. But with completion of planting expected by the coming weekend, traders turned to profit taking.

Live cattle futures closed mixed in a dull trade, placed at 80¢ a cwt. The steady cash tone bolstered summer deliveries while technical local selling and softness in allied markets dampened prices in distant contracts. Final quotes ranged from 78¢ to 82¢ a cwt.

Wheat futures affected primarily by adverse weather conditions in Texas, surrendered early strength and wound up 2 to 4 cents lower. Increasing export inspections, and a reduction of Russian grain production estimate to 200 million tons were major factors. Weekly progress reports indicate favorable prospects despite cool and rainy weather.

Chicago cash wheat was normally unchanged and Gulf basis was steady.

July corn futures continued to resist the decline, closing unchanged but other months were off a cent to 1 1/2 cents at the close. Export buying of July strengthened that contract. Rainfall in the corn belt is considered beneficial. Chicago cash corn basis was down 2 cents, at 13 cents over July.

The soybean complex was generally lower after an early advance, and showed sen-

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, beset lately by concern over oil prices, opened higher Wednesday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up 8.22 points, ending at 823.22, shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 168 to 95, among 1,430 issues crossing the tape.

Observers said many investors were encouraged by a 2.5 per cent increase in retail sales during May. The Commerce Department report indicated consumers may have been spending tax rebate money.

During the past two days, analysts said investors have been concerned by threats of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise oil prices sharply this fall.

OPEC ministers, meeting in Libreville, Gabon, have agreed in principle to price oil according to special drawing rights, a basket of currencies, instead of the dollar.

30 new students enter Hagerman school system

HAGERMAN — Hagerman school enrollment has increased nearly 10 per cent this past school year.

Supt. Ken Black said 30 new students entered the school during the last six months of the year, necessitating additional space for the industrial arts classes, but also bringing the district increased state funding based on average daily attendance.

He told trustees at the June board meeting Monday night that construction will begin in the next few weeks on a 30-by-20-foot addition to the present industrial arts facilities. Cost of the project is estimated at $9,100 and has been budgeted out of capital outlay funds.

The building is expected to be ready for use this fall.

Hagerman had lost enrollment the previous four years, Black said, but for some reasons this past year there were more students than ever before.

"It does seem to know the reason for the jump," Black said. There had been about 370 students in the district prior to the 30-student increase.

Trustees approved next year's budget Monday night with no protests. The proposed expenditure and revenue of $539,359 is a 12 per cent increase over last year's budget of $514,319.

The increase mostly reflects a 12 per cent inflationary increase and 11 per cent teachers salary boost, Black said. The revenue increases came from additional state funding, including kindergarten and "special education" money. There is no increase in the local mill levy.

The bid $19,570 is budgeted for administration costs, compared to $17,528 last year. Instructional costs will be $26,601 compared to $25,776 last year. Maintenance and operation costs jumped about $3,000 with $46,123 budgeted for next year compared to $43,550 last year.

"And we're starting with a full bin of coal," Black said. The high school uses coal and the new grade school is heated electrically.

The only significant drop in the new budget is under capital outlay which decreased from $26,600 to $10,500 because the equipment for the new grade school was purchased last year.

Cost for teaching supplies has increased from $6,200 to $8,200.

In other business, trustees:

- Approved retraining of clerk Laura McNulty, three cooks and two janitors.
- Hired Christine Blevis as new home economics teacher. There is still an opening for social studies and junior high coaching combination position and first and second grade overflow room.

Murtaugh trustees hike teachers' pay

MURTAUGH — Murtaugh school trustees approved a $289,835 budget at the monthly board meeting Monday night.

It is about 12 per cent over last year's figure of $252,860 and includes a 10 per cent salary raise for teachers as well as reflecting increased costs of supplies and operation.

Supt. Florin Hulse said paper costs, for example, have doubled. The total cost for instruction, which includes both salaries and supplies, is $174,565 for next year, compared to $156,483 last year.

The maintenance item is $16,350 compared to $10,860, while the item budgeted for health has gone from $7,500 to $9,000.

Even the new figure probably will not be enough, Hulse said, as this past year $9,800 was spent on the district's gas operated heating system.

The Murtaugh district has had 15 elementary students this past year, bringing total enrollment at year's end to 268. This means a corresponding loss in state funding based on average daily attendance.

Hulse said much of the farm help in the area is being eliminated by the development of larger machinery operated farms, but the district's migrant summer class has more students than last year.

The class, which opened June 2, has 45 children enrolled, while last year the number was down to 28. Those children came from families who do farm-related work and many of them are in the area only during the summer season, Hulse said.

Several of the students live in the Murtaugh labor camp which is operated only during the summer.

TWIN FALLS — The Golden Age Club will meet at 7 p.m. Friday at the DAV Hall. Those attending are asked to bring a sack lunch and own table service. After a short business meeting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Waggoner will show films of their recent trips: Card games and dancing to live music will follow the program.

Father's Day Favorites

There's no need to ask the king of your castle his table choice for Father's Day. It's a safe bet he'd say, "Beef!" For a thick steak or a tender, juicy roast are a man's idea of a real meal. A smart woman knows she can count on beef to satisfy at Dad's special dinner celebration.

Fortunately this year his regal desire is easier to fulfill than ever. For beef, that never-fail favorite, is in especially good supply, and all cuts are sporting most attractive price tags — considerably lower than last year's. With an impressive beef cut heading the menu, planning an all-round successful celebration is easy.

Is his beef favorite steak? If so, sure to satisfy are top loin steaks, broiled on the grill while Dad relaxes on the patio enjoying the delicious aroma. A flavor-packed Salami Bean Salad and Berry-Crowned Cheesecake, a masterpiece dessert, make great menu teammates. Both are spectacular do-aheads.

Aluminum foil makes everything go smoothly, starting especially with the desserts made ahead of the big day. If you don't have a spring form pan for the cheesecake, make a pan from Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap using the directions accompanying the sketch. Foil is a convenience-bonus in outdoor cooking, especially in lining the grill to reflect heat up towards food and in saving final cleanup.

Deluxe choice for a roast beef dinner is the Rib Eye (Delmonico) Roast with foil-wrapped potatoes alongside. For a grand finale, serve a dreamy Frozen Mint Julep Pie that's been waiting in the freezer, securely wrapped in aluminum foil, for this noteworthy event.

Broiled Top Loin Steaks

Place top loin steaks on grill over ash-covered coals. Place steaks cut 1 inch thick 2 to 3 inches from the coals; steaks cut 1 1/2 inches thick, 3 to 5 inches from the coals. Broil at moderate heat. When one side is browned, turn, season with salt and pepper and finish cooking on the second side. Season. Steaks cut 1 inch thick require 12 to 15 minutes for rare and 18 to 20 minutes for medium. Steaks cut 1 1/2 inches thick require 22 to 25 minutes for rare and 28 to 30 minutes for medium.

Salami Bean Salad

- | | |
|---|------------------------|
| 4 ounces sliced beef salami | 1/3 cup salad dressing |
| 1 package (10 ounces) baby lima beans | 1 tablespoon vinegar |
| 1 package (9 ounces) frozen Italian green beans | 1 tablespoon sugar |
| 1 can (16 ounces) cut wax beans | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 1 small onion, cut in rings | 1/8 teaspoon pepper |

Cut salami slices in small wedges. Cook baby lima beans and Italian green beans just until tender; drain thoroughly. Chill. Drain cut wax beans thoroughly. Combine all beans, salami wedges and onion rings. Combine salad dressing, vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper and fold into bean mixture; chill 1 hour. Yields 6 cups.

Berry-Crowned Cheesecake

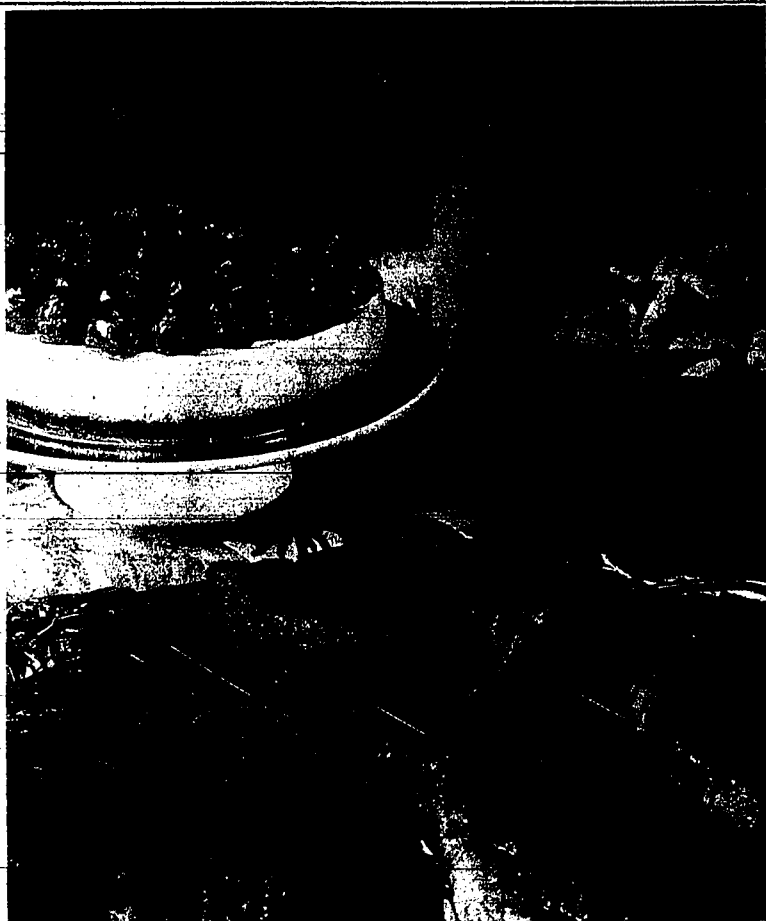

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|---|
| 12 ounces cream cheese | 1/4 cup lemon juice |
| 2 tablespoons butter | 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel |
| 1/2 cup sugar | 1/2 to 1 pint dairy sour cream |
| 2 eggs | 1 to 2 pints whole strawberries, hulled |
| 2 tablespoons flour | 1/3 to 1/2 cup strawberry jelly |
| 2/3 cup light cream or half and half | Graham Cracker Crust* |

Cream together cheese and butter until blended. Add sugar and eggs and beat well. Stir in flour and cream, then lemon juice and peel until thoroughly combined. Pour filling over Graham Cracker Crust in foil-formed pan. Bake in a slow oven (325°F.) for 35 to 40 minutes. Remove from the oven and spread with sour cream. Return to oven; bake 5 minutes. Melt jelly; cool. Dip strawberries in jelly and place on cake. Chill 3 to 4 hours. To slice and serve, slide cake and pan together onto serving platter and remove foil band, leaving foil base under cake. Serves 8 to 10. Note: Cake can be chilled overnight. In this case, garnish with the jelly-dipped berries and chill 1 to 2 hours before serving.

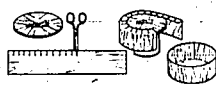

*Graham Cracker Crust

|---|
| 1 1/4 cups graham cracker crumbs |
| 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted |
| 1 tablespoon sugar |

Stir melted shortening and sugar into graham cracker crumbs, mixing well. Press in the bottom of an 8 or 9-inch aluminum foil-formed pan. Chill.

TO MAKE A FOIL-FORMED PAN

Cut an 8 or 9-inch circle from strong cardboard. Cover with aluminum foil, securing foil on the bottom with tape. Multiply the diameter by 4 and tear off a length of heavy duty aluminum foil to correspond. Fold this piece in half lengthwise, then in thirds to make a band 3 inches wide. Cut short 1/2-inch snips on one long side at 1-inch intervals. Place foil-covered circle on a can or other object to elevate it. Fold foil band around it, attaching it by bending snipped ends flat against bottom and fastening them down with tape. Let band overlap; so are with tape. Place upright on a shallow pan for support.

TIPS ON ROTISSERIE COOKERY

Large boned cuts of beef are ideal for cooking on the rotisserie. Insert rotisserie rod, lengthwise, through center of roast. Test for balance by rotating in palms of hands. Fasten beef securely so that it turns only with the rod. Insert a meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part but not resting in fat nor touching rotisserie rod. Build fire and let coals burn until covered with gray ash. Form a drip pan with Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. Spread coals and place drip pan under roast, arranging coals around it. Cook at moderate temperature to desired degree of doneness. Remove roast from rotisserie and allow to stand 10 to 15 minutes before carving.

Beef Rib Eye Roast

Place a 4 to 10-pound beef rib-eye (Delmonico) roast, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so the bulb reaches the center of the thickest part, being sure it does not rest in fat. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a moderate oven (325°F.) to the desired degree of doneness. The meat thermometer will register 140°F. for rare; 160°F. for medium; 170°F. for well done. For roast weighing 4 to 6 pounds, allow 18 to 20 minutes per pound for rare; 20 to 22 minutes for medium; 22 to 24 for well done. For a 7 to 10-pound roast allow 15 to 17 minutes per pound for rare; 17 to 19 for medium; 19 to 21 for well done. Allow to stand in a warm place 15 to 20 minutes before carving. Since roasts usually continue to cook during this time, it is best to remove them from the oven when the thermometer registers about 5°F. below the temperature of doneness desired.

Special Stuffed Potatoes

- | | |
|-----------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 6 to 8 baking potatoes | 1 1/2 to 2 teaspoons salt |
| 1/2 cup diced green pepper | 1/8 teaspoon pepper |
| 1/4 cup butter or margarine | 1/4 cup shredded Cheddar cheese |
| 1/2 to 2/3 cup hot milk | |

Scrub potatoes, prick each with a fork and wrap individually in Reynolds Wrap and bake in hot oven (400°F.) until done, approximately 1 hour. Cut slice from top of each potato immediately and scoop out centers, being careful not to break skins. Cook green pepper in butter or margarine for 2 to 3 minutes; remove green pepper and reserve. Mash potatoes; add the butter or margarine, hot milk, salt and pepper and beat until light. Fold in reserved green pepper and fill potato shells with the mixture; return to foil wrappings, folding foil to make containers. Sprinkle shredded cheese on top. Return to oven and bake 15 minutes. Serves 6 to 8. *Or bake with roast at 325°F. until done, approximately 2 hours.

Frozen Mint Julep Pie

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1 1/3 cups crushed chocolate wafers | 1 cup light cream or half and half |
| 2 tablespoons sugar | 1/3 cup bourbon |
| 1/4 cup melted butter | 3 tablespoons mint-flavored jelly |
| 1 envelope unflavored gelatin | 1 cup heavy cream, whipped |
| 1/2 cup sugar | Few drops green food coloring |
| 1/8 teaspoon salt | |
| 3 eggs, separated | |

Combine crumbs, 2 tablespoons sugar and melted butter. Shape a square of aluminum foil into a 9-inch pie plate and press crumb mixture firmly into bottom and against sides of foil-lined pan. Chill. Combine gelatin, 1/4 cup sugar and salt in saucepan. Beat egg yolks lightly, add to light cream and bourbon and stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until custard coats the spoon. Stir in jelly. Chill until mixture begins to thicken. Beat egg whites to soft peaks. Gradually beat in 1/4 cup sugar; beat until meringue stands in peaks. Fold meringue and whipped cream into the thickened custard. Turn into crumb crust. Place in freezer until solid. Remove pie in foil pan-liner from pie plate, cover top and then overwrap with Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap. Return pie to freezer. To serve, remove overwrapping, place pie in foil liner in pie plate, rolling foil to edge of plate. Garnish with whipped cream and sprigs of fresh mint, if desired. Serves 8 to 10.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: There is scuttlebutt among my shipmates that Dear Abby is really a cigar-chewing, bald-headed boiler salesman in Cleveland, Ohio who moonlights by writing a column.

Is there any substance to this accusation?
MERCHANT SEAMAN

DEAR SEAMAN: No way, mate! I'm a non-smoking, genuine female with hair growing on my head and no grass growing under my feet.

DEAR ABBY: One of my friends has a baby who is a little doll—very bright and good-natured. My friend and her baby are living with her parents.

Floating rumor

Abby, I am not sure anything is wrong—and I hope to God there isn't—but that baby will be a year old next week and he can't sit up at all. He just lays on his back or stomach and kicks his little legs around. I'm afraid something is wrong with his spine.

My problem is I'm afraid to mention it because the baby's mother doesn't seem to think anything is wrong, and I guess her parents don't, either. (They say he's "lazy.")

I have a baby girl the same age, and she is all over the place. I just don't know what to do, Abby. If something is wrong with that baby's back, the sooner they get him to a doctor, the better, right? Should I bring it up? And, if so, how do I do it without sounding tacky?

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Tell your friend of your fears and don't worry about sounding "tacky." It would be a kindness. And if she hasn't had her baby checked by her doctor recently, she should do so at once.

DEAR ABBY: Recently, my daughter was riding her horse along a country road. A car approached her from the rear and the well-intentioned driver blew the horn. The horse was startled, threw my daughter and ran away. My daughter was hospitalized with a broken arm.

The driver of the car stopped, administered first aid and kept repeating how sorry he was. He simply didn't know the basic safety rules that should be exercised around a horse. You would do a great service if you would publish the following:

1. A loud, sudden noise will cause a horse to run forward blindly.
2. Never walk within six feet of the rear of a horse. He may kick.
3. Don't accelerate a motorcycle when passing a horse.
4. Young horses are more unpredictable than older horses.

Q. "What's 'Porn beer'?"
A. It's a Swedish beer that's sold in cans covered with naughty words and naked ladies. Graegens Breweries puts it out. Understand it's selling spectacularly.

TOO FEW PEOPLE realize that those shooting stars we see flash across the sky usually are no bigger than wheat grains. Most of them burn out about 70 miles up.

TWO-THIRDS of the food you eat serves no other purpose than to keep your body temperature at 98.6 degrees F., but that's purpose enough, what?

SHOE SIZES—Was none other than that shoe expert Lionel M. Levey who said: "There's a big variation in shoe sizes throughout the country. For instance, in the Southwest feet tend to be short and narrow. They are wider in the Northeast, longer and narrower in Minnesota, and short and wide in Southern California."

SPEEDOMETERS on General Moto's compact car next year won't read any higher than 85 m.p.h. ALMOST BUT NOT QUITE one out of every four new homes is equipped with a septic tank. THAT VEGETABLE oil with the longest shelf life is said to be sesame seed oil.

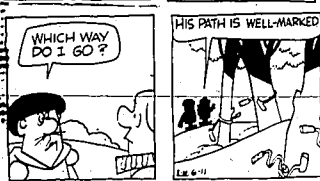

NO DOUBT that the deadliest form of dueling ever devised by man was a bit of bestiality called the Scandinavian belt duel. Opponents were stripped naked, fastened together with a strong belt so they faced each other about a foot apart, then handed short daggers.

STEALING—It's common knowledge that numerous fortresses in the Old West were built on a beefy base of rusted cattle. Less widely known is the report that a number of modern fortresses have been built on stolen goods from sidetracked railroad cars. And not just single cars, but whole strings of them, sometimes. Mysteriously, they get shunted aside, then stay lost for weeks and months. Couldn't prove it in a court case, but I believe the story a man told me in Houston once: That he made his first $1 million when he stole an entire freight train loaded with sulfur which he sold to the government.

KING RICHARD II of England in 1386 hocked his royal crown for $20,000. If any other ruling monarch ever pawned an article of the royal regalia, the record at hand doesn't note the occasion.

Blaine nepotism tabled

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Blaine County School Board tabled action Monday on hiring the daughter of board chairman Rhonda Hunt as a teacher.

Hunt read a section of Idaho code detailing the illegality of hiring the spouse of any board member for district work. However, the code is unclear, according to the board, on whether it would disallow the hiring of other close kin.

Hunt's daughter, Phyllis (Hendrickson), a West Jordan, Utah, teacher, was interviewed for an elementary teaching position last month. A recommendation for her hiring from Bellevue principal Claude Ballard was read by Hunt.

Hunt said the procedure of teacher hiring is generally not made public, but he wanted everything out in the open on this particular matter.

"If there is any embarrassment for any of the board members or my daughter, I will resign from the board," Hunt said.

The board decided to get legal advice before taking any action.

In other action, the board raised the price of student activity cards from $10 to $15 a year.

John Barton, high school principal, told the board the fee would have to be raised or a subsidy applied to the athletic department. The board also:

- Accepted resignations from fifth grade Bellevue teacher Rod Bond; fourth grade Bellevue teacher Jan Sevy, and high school counselor Terry Tracy.
- Set June 16 at 8 p.m. in the junior high all-purpose room as the budget hearing date.
- Agreed to a $2,500 Hemingway school-city park maintenance agreement with Ketchum.

Camas budget approved

FAIRFIELD — Trustees for the Camas County School District Monday evening approved the proposed 1975-76 school budget after a hearing unattended by school patrons.

During their regular meeting, trustees also hired two new teachers and raised hot lunch prices.

The budget is up 16.8 per cent, from $271,610 this year to $317,263 next year.

Supt. Harold Stroud said the major part of the increase comes from adding a kindergarten teacher and from teacher salary raises.

Stroud said teacher raises amounted to 15 per cent overall, including the yearly increment.

Stroud also announced the maintenance and operation levy would be reduced from 30 mills to 27 this coming year. He said the levy has declined from 35 to 27 mills in the past three years.

Administrative expenses are up 32.5 per cent, from $22,935 to $30,400 and instructional expenses are up 19 per cent, from $177,827 to $211,700.

Other areas have also increased, including transportation, $19,780 to $20,730, 4.8 per cent; operation of plant, $33,315 to $34,287, 2.9 per cent; maintenance, $4,500 to $4,900, 8.6 per cent; fixed charges, $10,315 to $12,746, 23.5 per cent; and hot lunch and student body costs, which were stable at $2,500.

Hired by the trustees was Louis Anderson, Millard, to coach football and track and teach seventh grade. He replaces resigning Mark Hanson. Mrs. Linda Miller, Fairfield, was hired to teach first grade, replacing Peggy Exxon, who is also resigning.

Trustees also raised the price of hot lunches from 40 to 45 cents for grades 1-6, and from 45 to 50 cents from grades 7-12. Stroud said the increase was necessary to offset last year's deficit of $1,200 in the hot lunch program.
