Blaze guts TF feed warehouse

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A warehouse fire Tuesday night at Globe Seed and Feed Co. on Fourth Avenue South gutted a section of the feed mill and storage facility.
Fire marshal Fred Higgins today said the origin of the blaze has not been established, but his "educated guess" was that a piece of hot metal from some welding earlier in the day had gotten into the grain dust, causing it to smoulder and eventually ignite, destroying cribs of grain in an older section.
Welders had been working on new millwork on the roof of a new part of the structure he said.
Some areas were so badly damaged that officials may never know what started the fire, Higgins said.

"Everybody" was called to the fire, Higgins said. The call for equipment came in at 9 p.m., according to the run report at the fire station, and four pumps and a ladder truck responded to the alarm.
Two off-duty shifts were called in, with "at least" 36 of the 42-man force showing up to fight the fire, with police of firefighters directing traffic. No chemicals were used to control the blaze, although two hydrant hookups supplied water.
Working until nearly 2 a.m., fire fighters kept the fire from spreading into the new portion of the seed and feed warehouse, although fire doors to the new section were badly charred, Higgins said.

No one was injured in the blaze, although fireman Jim Vickers hurt his back slightly pulling hose during the fire and went to a doctor, Higgins said. Estimates of the damage are still being made, Higgins said, although he guessed that "the dollar value is going to be way up there."
Globe Seed and Feed president John A. Cederquist said this morning he thought the damage would be high, but "we haven't much to report until we talk to the proper authorities."
Anderson-Blake Insurance Co. is assessing the damage and may have an estimate in a few days, according to Higgins.

US payment deficit cut

Albert responds to Demos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speaker Carl Albert, responding to a Democratic demand for stronger House leadership and a larger voice in party strategy, said today "they don't want a Speaker. They want a bounce."
Nearly half of the 75 freshmen — Tuesday night — to draft a list of grievances to put before Albert in July.
One of the proposals that the freshmen want to see put before Albert is a list of major legislation at the start of new year and then keep a tally on who votes which way. The proposal did not advance any suggestion for punishing Democratic defectors.

WASHINGTON — The international financial position of the United States improved sharply in the first quarter of this year, with the deficit in the "basic" balance of payments dropping from $6.57 billion to $4.5 million, the Commerce Department reported today.
This improvement should strengthen the dollar, which has been declining in value against several key currencies in international markets.
The $6.1 billion reduction in the deficit from the fourth quarter of 1974 was the biggest improvement since the government began publishing statistics on this basis in 1960. The deficit in the January-February quarter was the smallest since the last time there was a surplus, in the first quarter of 1974.
A sharp drop in imports, a decline in overseas investments by Americans and an increase in foreign investments here were the main factors reducing the deficit.
The balance of payments in general measures flows of money out of the United States (which produce deficits) and into the United States (producing surpluses).
Because of radical changes in the international monetary system, these measures have lost much of their significance and the government is working on revised accounting systems.
Within the $475 million deficit in the basic balance of payments, the trade accounts shifted from a deficit of $1.84 billion in the October-December quarter to a surplus of $1.85 billion in the January-March quarter. Exports increased by $2.65 billion to $25.38 billion.
The recession has held down demand for imports.
Declining foreign profits of U.S. oil companies reduced net investment income by $1.23 billion to $1.32 billion.
Adding in services, remittances and other items, the balance on "current account" shifted from a deficit of $168 million to a surplus of $2.14 billion.

TF aide frowns on canyon leap

TWIN FALLS — A California bus driver says he has gathered the $50,000 backing needed to bankroll a new rocket leap over the Snake River Canyon at Twin Falls.
Derrill J. Brown, 43, says he is "99 per cent sure" he can successfully make the leap on July 4, 1976.
However, according to a Twin Falls County commissioner, he may not get a chance to top Evel Knievel's performance.
"I don't think the community would really approve of it," commissioner Ann Cover said Tuesday. "I am going to write him a letter telling him that the community wouldn't approve of it. I don't think we can do it."
"I think they (county residents) feel we had our jump, let somebody else have it," Mrs. Cover said.

Illegal Sawtooth wells drilled, Gem aide says

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
KETCHUM — The federal government has drilled illegal wells in the Sawtooth National Forest, according to the Idaho attorney general's office.
U.S. Forest Service officials denied violating any laws.
Deputy Atty. Gen. Terry Coffin said today the office is considering bringing suit to force the Sawtooth National Recreation Area to apply for state water permits before drilling wells. He said Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell believes that the NRA's digging wells at campgrounds without state permits is "contrary to existing law."
Before bringing suit, however, Coffin said the attorney general will determine whether this is the best possible "test case" to challenge federal claims to water rights on "reserved" lands.
Reserved land is property the federal government retained under its jurisdiction when the state was formed. Coffin said the federal government claims "water rights on these reserved lands, which comprise much of Idaho, but not on lands which it has bought, condemned or acquired by gift after the state was formed."

Coffin said a better case might be found to challenge this issue. He added, "the doctrine is not going to be challenged." He expected a decision early next month on whether Idaho would bring suit to try to force the federal government to obtain state water permits to drill campground wells.
But Rex Naanes, intermountain region water quality coordinator for the Forest Service, said the U.S. Supreme Court decided the matter in 1971.
He said the "Eagle" case out of Colorado brought a court decision that water needed for reserved lands can be taken from those lands by the federal government without a permit.
Since recreation has been defined as one of the uses of the national forest lands, drilling wells for campgrounds is legal, he said.
Tom Koválicy, assistant superintendent for the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, questioned why Kidwell believes the campground wells threaten state water rights.
He said about 1.5 million acre-feet of water come from the NRA each year and that the NRA uses only 150 acre-feet for "administrative purposes."

Winds delay Nevada N-test

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. (UPI) — An underground nuclear test that may be the most powerful such explosion in at least two years was postponed today for at least 24 hours because of unfavorable winds.
The device, code named "Mast", was to have been detonated at 6 a.m. EDT.
A spokesman for the federal Energy Research and Development Administration, successor to the defunct Atomic Energy Commission, said the blast would be delayed until at least Thursday morning.
North winds of 20 to 25 miles an hour were blowing over the Nuclear Test Site toward Las Vegas, 120 miles to the south. Gusts up to 40 m.p.h. were recorded Tuesday.
The delay is a precaution to guard against contaminating the city in case of "venting" — escape of radioactive gasses and material into the atmosphere from the underground explosion.

Scientists bury the nuclear devices deep enough that, except in rare cases, no radioactivity escapes to the surface.
The test would have been the ninth of this year and the second explosion of a megaton-class device within the past month, but only the third detonation of such a big bomb in the past two years out of scores of tests.

Mr. T-N says

These are the kinds of June days we wish were even rarer.

Bliss vote keeps levy

Voters have approved the levy for the past three years, school officials said.

TF coroner's jury rules 1973 death accidental

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A 12-member Twin Falls County coroner's jury ruled late Tuesday that the July 21, 1973, death of Jerry Barnett, 15, Hanson, was accidental.
The verdict came after a 36-minute deliberation and a full day of testimony by about 17 witnesses.
The body of the boy was found in his home late on the afternoon of July 21, 1973. A .45 caliber pistol was near the body and the boy was pronounced dead at the scene.
The first witness during the day-long inquest, Dr. Dennis Venson, pathologist, told the jury there were powder marks in the eyes of the victim, indicating the shooting was a "surprise." He said the eyes were apparently open when the gun was fired.

Coroner Clyde Edwards conducted the Inquest and County Prosecutor William Holt conducted the questioning and instructed the jury.
Art Mitchell, stepfather of the Barnett boy, called the Twin Falls sheriff's office about 4 p.m. on July 21, and reported his son had "shot himself," witnesses said. Officers said the investigation was made on a basis of suicide but other possibilities were checked out at the time and during the one and one-half year investigations.
The victim's friend, Mike Fennewald, Hansen, also 15 years of age at the time of the shooting, told the jury he had been watching television at the Mitchell home with Jerry. He said after the TV program, Jerry gave him some money to go to the store for candy. When he returned, he said he found his friend lying on the floor with his feet on the couch.

The boy said he left the candy on a chair and got on a bicycle and went home. He said he did not tell anyone what he found because he was "scared." An Idaho Department of Law Enforcement investigator, A. R. Mason, who gave the Fennewald boy a lie detector test, told the jury he believed the boy was telling the truth.
Art Mitchell said the court he and his wife were at the Kimberly City Park July 21 for a senior citizens "good neighbor" day and he had set up a booth which his wife was operating.

He said he returned home later and picked up Jerry and his new bicycle. He said Jerry participated in a bicycle race and played at the celebration until about 9 p.m. when he rode his bicycle home because he wanted to watch a boxing program on television.
Both Mitchell and his wife testified they had a number of guns in the home including the .45 pistol which was "always loaded" and kept on a stand beside their bed. Both said Jerry never played with the guns and Mitchell testified the boy was a gun expert and handled the guns constantly.

India's top party aides back Indira

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Leaders of India's ruling political party showed their unanimous support today for their leader, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, to remain in office despite her current political crisis.

Addressing a tumultuous meeting of Congress party Parliament members from across India, the troubled 57-year-old prime minister hinted strongly that she would remain at the helm of government, although she made no flat commitment.

"My staying does not depend on what the opposition wants but on my own party and the people of India," she told her cheering listeners gathered inside the Parliament building.

Mrs. Gandhi has been under fire from her political opponents to step down since Thursday, when a high court in her home district of Allahabad found her guilty of election law violations in her 1971 parliamentary campaign.

Mrs. Gandhi has said she will appeal the ruling to the supreme court but if the decision is upheld, she must step down as prime minister.

She spoke only briefly to the party leaders, who gave her a standing ovation and shouted

"Indira Gandhi Zindabad" (Long Live Indira Gandhi) as she left the meeting room.

The party then passed a one-and-a-half-page long resolution urging her to stay on.

"This meeting reiterates its fullest faith and confidence in her and firmly believes that her continued leadership as prime minister is indispensable for the nation," the resolution said.

The endorsement by her party asking her to stay in office and weather the worst political crisis of her nine years in office was crucial to her battle for political survival.

"What happens to me, to any individual, is not of much significance," Mrs. Gandhi told the party leaders. "But what does matter is what happens to the country and the Indian people."

The prime minister also directed another warning to Pakistan, India's neighbor and longtime foe.

"There have been unfriendly statements from Pakistan," she said. "The Pakistan government should not underestimate the maturity of the Indian people. We are not given to adventurism and certainly this is not the time for adventurism."

Saigon Reds accuse US of Thieu oyster plot

SAIGON (UPI) — American officials plotted with South Vietnamese generals to overthrow President Nguyen Van Thieu in the weeks before the government fell, according to the official newspaper of the new Communist regime.

"Saigon's 'Liberation Daily' Tuesday quoted former Saigon generals—now have turned themselves in to the new government as sources for the article. Most of these officers are now away from the capital attending 'reeducation' courses."

"As Nguyen Van Thieu proved himself incapable of carrying out his function as the figurehead for the imperialist theory of the Americans in South Vietnam, the Americans planned to change their horses in midstream," the newspaper said.

The alleged American-led plotting against Thieu was contained in a lengthy story by Le Kim, a reporter for the Hanoi daily newspaper "People's Army."

Meanwhile, Saigon banks, which were to reopen Monday, remained closed. There was no explanation given.

The banks have been closed since the Communist takeover, causing money shortages in Saigon.

The official news agency, Liberation Press, said Monday another major step had been taken in turning over all power in the capital to civilian authorities.

It said Peoples Revolutionary Committees had been formed in all precincts and villages in metropolitan Saigon and surrounding Gia Dinh Province.

The committees will govern at the local level when the Saigon Military Management Committee steps down.

"U.S. General Meyer, military attache to the U.S. Embassy in Saigon, got in contact with a number of generals, including retired generals who were being mistreated by Thieu, to plan the overthrow of Thieu by April 20."

According to the newspaper, a direct coup d'etat was ruled out by the Americans. Instead, they brought pressure on the president through U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin.

The pressure allegedly forced Thieu's resignation April 30. Saigon fell to the Communists nine days later.

"The aim was to slow down the progress of the revolutionary forces and the progress of Seattle," the article said.

US withdraws more planes

BANGKOK (UPI) — The United States is withdrawing more of its combat planes from Thailand and is dismantling the command headquarters which was responsible for the conduct of the war in Indochina, the Thai supreme command said today.

The supreme command said 87 combat planes, including 42 F4 Phantom II fighter-bombers and reconnaissance jets, would leave Thailand by about June 30.

In addition, the U.S. Support Activities Group would also be withdrawn by around the end of the month from Nakhon Phanom Air base, about 360 miles northeast of Bangkok, along the Thai-Lao border.

During the years of the Vietnam War and the bombing in Cambodia and Laos, the Support Activities Group served as the command and control headquarters for all U.S. combat operations in Southeast Asia. It was moved from Vietnam to Thailand after the Paris peace treaty was signed in January 1973.

The announcement of the latest American troop withdrawal from Thailand was made by the Thai Supreme Command.

Bus driver gains canyon leap bankroll

Brown said he has discussed his plans with Mrs. Covner and her reception was "very nice." The commissioners said they would consider the plan and "let me know," Brown said.

Brown says he will be assisted by Robert Truax, Knievel's engineer who designed the steam-powered rocket which failed to clear the canyon Sept. 8.

Brown said Tuesday the parachute malfunction which abruptly halted Knievel's trans-canyon flight will be corrected. A pre-jump rocket test is planned in January or February.

Brown says he expects to attract 100,000 people to the jump site — at least 10 times more than Knievel drew — cutting prices. Whereas Evel had required a $25 admission fee, Brown expects to charge only $10.

Brown says he already has made arrangements with CBS and NBC to cover the event, giving it a national audience.

But what he's after is the money. "I want to make all I can," he said. "That's the name of the game. I'll be honest with you, I'm in it for the money."

He expects a $1 million gate, of which five per cent would be offered to Twin Falls County in exchange for permission to jump.

Should the Twin Falls jump be rejected by the commissioners, Brown plans to leap the Bruneau Canyon, or other undisclosed sites in Nevada, Washington or Missouri.

After his first jump, Brown plans to make a series of foreign jumps, perhaps in Japan or Switzerland.

Brown, who says he is a 32nd degree Mason and a Shriner, plans to give "a tidy sum" to a Shiner crippled child's home.

"We have already started putting it together. We began about two months ago, working pretty close to full time since then," he said.

Brown refused to reveal his financial backers. But he did say that one of his promoters, Lou Hardy of Reno, says the jump "would be the biggest event in the country."

Brown believes he will succeed where Knievel failed because of his experience as a pilot. "I have an advantage. I've been an airplane pilot since I was 15-16 years old."

Brown said he planned to erect fences or barriers to prevent spectators from falling into the 450-foot-deep canyon. He said the guards would be stronger than Knievel's double fence which was quickly pushed over by the surging crowd when Evel's craft plunged into the canyon.

The only thing that stands in his way now, Brown says, is "permission from the land owner and the county commissioners."

Soviet aides snooping on US telephone calls

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Soviet officials are believed to be using space satellites or antennas atop the Russian Embassy in Washington to monitor the thousands of long-distance telephone calls in the United States each year, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported today.

In a story written by its Washington correspondent, James Deakin, the Post quoted what it called government sources as saying the monitoring is similar to what is being done by American intelligence agencies in the Soviet Union.

However, the newspaper said, the American effort has not been as successful as the Soviet monitoring because the Russian telephone system is less sophisticated than the U.S. system.

The newspaper said it learned of the telephone surveillance after release of the Rockefeller Commission report on activities of the Central Intelligence Agency.

The newspaper said the Senate committee investigating the CIA plans to investigate whether the reported telephone monitoring is a threat to U.S. security.

The newspaper quoted the Commission report as saying, "Americans have a right to be uneasy if not seriously disturbed at the real possibility that their personal and business activities which they discuss freely over the telephone could be recorded and analyzed by agents of foreign powers."

The Post report added that Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller was believed to have written that statement personally. The newspaper said that although the Commission report referred to telephone surveillance by "Communist countries," it was understood that Russia wanted the monitoring of long-distance calls in the United States included in the report, apparently as a justification for similar CIA activities," the newspaper said.

The newspaper said the sources called figures on the amount of Soviet monitoring "impressive" but said the Commission's report that such monitoring could lead to international blackmail or recruitment of Americans as Soviet spies as "a little dramatic, a little James Bondish."

"Government sources told the Post-Dispatch that Rockefeller had particularly

Ford frowns on CIA data leaks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Without naming a culprit, President Ford has made it known that he disapproves of anyone who leaks classified information about the Central Intelligence Agency.

The rebuke issued Tuesday by the White House appeared to be directed at either Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., or Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller.

But Press Secretary Ron Nesssen, who outlined the President's feelings on the subject, declined to comment when reporters asked him if the criticism was intended for Harrington or Rockefeller.

"The President feels it is not in the national interest to spew out bits and pieces day after day" about allegedly illegal CIA activities in previous administrations, Nesssen said.

He said Ford was "displeased" with the way in which some CIA information has been made public because such leaks all serve "personal motivations, history, foreign relations and the investigations" of the CIA.

"This is not a warning, caution or criticism," Nesssen said. "I hope it is really a kind of educational process."

"There does seem to be a continuing series of leaks of alleged partial information. There seems to be a lack of respect for handling this kind of thing in a careful way."

Harrington was criticized by a congressional committee Monday for leaking CIA information to the news media. And Rockefeller hinted Sunday that he had seen unsubstantiated evidence that former President John F. Kennedy and his brother, Robert, knew of CIA plots to assassinate foreign leaders.

Ford met Novikov in the Oval Office. Also attending the meeting was Carla A. Hillis, secretary of Housing and Urban Development who with Novikov is co-chairman of the U.S.-Soviet Joint Commission on Housing and Construction established in Moscow in 1974.

Novikov will leave Washington Friday to tour housing sites across the country, giving special attention to American construction techniques.

MILNER — The Youth Conservation Corps has begun development on an enclosure within three acres east of the Milner Dam site. The conservation projects include painting and developing the picnic ramadas and estimation of the wildlife numbers in and around the area.

C. R. Humphries, camp director, said, "There are 20 participants ranging from 15 through 18 years old in this program." "The kids get paid for six hours of conservation work then for two hours they receive environmental education," says Humphries. "While they work on conservation projects," Humphries says, "they establish environmental knowledge first hand."

Hospital attendants said he was in satisfactory condition today. The final performance of the circus is tonight at the Filer fairgrounds.

Six new highway projects under way

SHOSHONE — Six new highway construction projects have gotten underway the past month, according to Howard Johnson, Shoshone district highway engineer. One of these projects is for road improvement over 2.3 miles of the Clear Lakes Road, calling for constructing the roadway, drainage structures, roadmix surface, seal coat and seeding. Lone Pine Equipment Co., Kimberly, has the contract for $490,165.75. Another is to continue improving State Highway 24 in Lincoln County, this particular stretch calling for construction of roadway, drainage, extension of culverts and constructing a concrete bridge and placing a Type D bituminous surface treatment of 10.584 miles. Western Construction Co., Boise, has this contract for $1.34 million. On State Highway 20-26 through Bliss work will be done placing a plantmix pavement on 2.4 miles of that road. Allied Paving Inc., Idaho Falls, took this bid at $49,597.50.

Kloepfer Construction Co., Paul, has the contract in the amount of $165,447.90 to seal coat 42.9 miles on I-80N, US 30, SH 24 and SH 25. Roadway center line striping, no passing barrier line and edge line striping at various locations in southwest Idaho is another project. The contract led to Idaho Construction, Filer, for $57,914.62.

Riding jamboree set

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone Riding Redskins jamboree will be at 8 p.m. Aug. 2 in conjunction with the Lincoln County Fair. The event will take place at the recreation field near the fairgrounds with ten riding clubs participating. Dean Barney is the chairman of the jamboree. Entries for the flower show and garden exhibits at the fair must be in by noon on Aug. 1. In the flower show awards will be $2, $1.50 and $1 for each of the special arrangements, with $1 for first with a blue ribbon, and 75 cents for second with a red ribbon for bouquets and specimen exhibits other than arrangements. The star of the show will be selected from the award winners.

GLENN'S FERRY — The charter was draped at the Monday evening meeting of the Aileen-Rebekah Lodge at the Veterans Memorial Hall. Chaplain Mrs. Florence Greer, acting noble grand, Mrs. Z. Lewis, staff captain, Mrs. Ray Whitt, and acting vice noble grand Mrs. C. E. Spence were in charge of the ceremony for Edna Stephenson of Payette, past president of the Jurisdiction of Montana, as well as for all departed sisters and brothers of the lodge.

A communication was received regarding Rebekah emblems for tombstones. An invitation to attend the reception for assembly president, Marie Sheffer on Sunday from 2 to 5 p.m. at the Odd Fellow Temple in Coeur d'Alene was received from the Caldwell IOOF. A salad bar luncheon and gift exchange were held in the hall. This was the last meeting until the first Monday in September.

Dark skies on the Fourth

It seems there will be no Twin Falls fireworks display this Fourth of July. The fireworks tradition has been pushed aside like many others in our bustling, progressive Magic Valley.

Now the 'Cowboys' are gone. Jaycee Park is gone. Even the fireworks are gone. The service clubs which once sponsored the fireworks have turned to other service.

Oil nations miss the point

San Francisco Chronicle: "We are witnessing, powerless, the constant and appalling deflation of our already meager incomes," complained the president of Gabon on Monday in a speech welcoming the representatives of the OPEC countries to get more money for a barrel of oil.

At that, the Iranian goal is less extreme than that of some of the wilder members of OPEC who are talking about a 38 per cent increase, or around $4 a barrel. We were glad to hear President Ford raise his voice in protest against this at the White House recently.

What has become of the view once expressed by some of the more sensible Saudi Arabians under the late King Faisal, that if the price of oil was indeed too high and working to the great economic disadvantage of the consumer countries, the price should come down? Clearly, that must be the consumer's goal.

Everyone on this side of the world knows that when the leaders of the industrial west going to succeed in getting the point over to OPEC?

Who'd have thought, ten years ago, we'd be sitting here today griping about the breakdown of services!

More mixed than usual

WASHINGTON — In recent days, things have gotten more mixed up than usual, if you can imagine it. The spies who were brought in out of the cold and stripped naked by the Rockefeller Commission...

They tracked their footprints right into the Oval Office of Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon, and it produced less outrage in high places than you can hear from a squeamish mother when the kids neglect to wipe their muddy shoes on the door mat.

Little was expected of the commission because of the cold-war orientation of Vice President Rockefeller and most of its other members, that the report was received with some surprise.

President Ford's reaction has interested. He left any prosecutions to be pursued by his two-armed attorney general, Edward Levi, and then announced his faith in the CIA emerging from its latest purge wiser, stronger and more effective.

criticize any predecessor on the assassination issue, he was moved to his apparent belief that wickedness varies with the times, to say he would not sit in judgment on "decisions made by honorable men under unusual circumstances."

Of great interest was what might be called the ideological reaction to the report. Liberals, many of whom once worked for the agency and considered its mission a blessed endeavor, hailed it. Conservatives, who normally regard any federal intervention into the private lives of citizens as the work of the devil, damned it.

Oddly, there was scant reaction to the role of past presidents in the CIA's misdeeds. The agency can hardly be considered an innocent victim of presidential paranoia that sucked it into the chain of command...

Careers rarely stand up against orders from the Oval Office and even more rarely quit and blow the whistle on those who would steer them from the straight and narrow.

The commission recommended the creation of a joint congressional oversight committee and a strengthened foreign intelligence advisory board, with permanent oversight personnel drawn from distinguished citizens, to police the CIA.

Sinister way to run a government

WASHINGTON — Bah! The kindest thing that can be said about the Justice Department's secret agreement 20 years ago to let the Central Intelligence Agency usurp its law enforcement powers is that it's a sinister way to run a government.

This scandalous situation is not something unearthed by a reporter as the fruit of a little chat with some unnamed source. It was revealed by the Rockefeller Commission's report on its investigation of the CIA and has been confirmed by the Justice Department.

Specifically, the Rockefeller group declared that Justice had "abdicated its statutory duties" for a period from 1955 to last January by giving the CIA power to decide whether or not to prosecute criminal charges involving CIA employees.

Incidentally, the commission said it had found "no evidence" that the CIA "abused" its prosecutorial powers turned over to it by Justice.

The scenario might have been written by Lewis Carroll, except that the author of "Alice in Wonderland" did keep his imagination within bounds. Consider the following out-of-this-world explanation of how it all happened:

"According to the commission, the CIA in 1954 'pointed out' to Justice that 'in many cases involving CIA, jurisdiction would require public disclosure of sensitive agency operations and procedures.'"

"And if it then appeared that 'prosecution would be precluded by the need to reveal sensitive information, the agency should indicate in its file, AND NOT REFER THE CASE to the Department of Justice' (Capitals mine)."

It was not like that, according to Robert Havell, a Justice spokesman. Havell claims that Justice did not find out about the agreement until December, 1974, when CIA Director William E. Colby mentioned it during a meeting at Justice.

"The best we can determine," said Havell, "was that the CIA director or the general counsel in 1974 met with Deputy Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers" to discuss how to deal with a section of the charter that requires the agency head to report crimes committed by its personnel to the attorney general. Nothing was decided at the meeting," said Havell. But subsequently, he said, the CIA director sent a letter to somebody at Justice saying, "This is how it will work and we will do it this way — the investigation will be in the contrary."

"So far as we know," that phrase seems curious one to emanate from the Republic's chief law enforcement agency, which theoretically is supposed to be on top of all Federal criminal investigations.

Some recommendation. As the commission itself noted, those guidelines already are in writing. Their existence as a section of Title 18 of the CIA's charter what prompted the agency to strike an illegal deal with the Justice Department. Page the Red Queen.

THE COMMISSION RECOMMENDED THE CREATION OF A JOINT CONGRESSIONAL OVERSIGHT COMMITTEE AND A STRENGTHENED FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE ADVISORY BOARD...

European leaders relax attitude toward US

PARIS — The attitude of the top Western European leaders toward the United States seems more relaxed this summer than a year ago.

With Vietnam, Watergate and Nixon out of the way, all the major economic and political problems remain but the discussion of these problems, while strictly limited, is more objective and less personal.

Paradoxically, the American experience in Vietnam and Watergate may even have helped rather than hurt Washington's relations with the major European allies. Somehow, the United States, with all its recent troubles at home and abroad, is now seen here as more normal and vulnerable, but still all the more essential to the economic and military interests of the West.

A year ago, officials in Paris were complaining that they were hearing almost too much from Washington, but with the deepening world economic crisis they are now complaining that there is not enough consultation among the major allies on the economic problems of the world.

Also, the theme here last summer was about the danger of American domination, and while this is still a popular cry, there is an underlying fear of American withdrawal and isolation. So the volume and tone of the criticism here are changing.

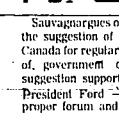

Nixon is seldom mentioned as if he were a political liability and President Ford made a good personal impression here on President Giscard d'Estaing, and other European leaders, and even Henry Kissinger, who was an obsession at the Quai Dorsay in Joubert's time, is now merely a puzzle.

British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan differs with Kissinger on peripheral questions, but regards him as one of the most creative foreign ministers in the world today. The French are less enthusiastic and are still opposing his Atlantic approach to world problems.

grand designs for a new world order, wants everything to be planned, organized, and carried out according to a single design, preferably his own. It is a heroic vision, but not practical."

French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues who is going to Washington for a day early in July to discuss common problems, says France is consciously trying to avoid personal confrontations with Kissinger, but insists on making its own assessments of international problems and believes these independent French analyses often lead to more practical policies. Giscard d'Estaing is even more emphatic in his private talks.

The problems are too serious, he says, to be confused by personalities.

JAMES RESTON

Sauvagnargues observes that France pressed the suggestion of Prime Minister Trudeau of Canada for regular meetings of the NATO heads of government on world problems — a suggestion supported in Brussels recently by President Ford — because this was not the proper forum and might impede the development of European institutions.

France, he says, believes the major nuclear powers, the United States and the USSR, can prevent another world war, but cannot prevent minor insurrections and wars, or settle the economic and political problems of the world by themselves.

their own economies under control, and here exists, have much to contribute.

This, more temperate and philosophical attitude toward the United States; however, does not remove criticism of the effect of the United States economic crisis on the rest of the world, or mute the French government's criticism of the delay in granting landing rights to the French supersonic aircraft, the Concorde, in New York and Washington.

De Toqueville explained the American system of decentralized political power to his fellow countrymen over a century and a half ago, but the French still cannot believe that President Ford cannot simply order or arrange for New York to allow the Concorde to land at Kennedy International.

The United States ambassador here, Kenneth Rush, has pointed out that Washington supports landing rights for the Concorde, but that opposition by environmentalists and local authorities defeated the American government's efforts to build its own superjumbo commercial planes, and therefore cannot be pushed aside outright. With even less logic, the selection by the European allies of the American fighter-bomber, the F16, rather than the new French Mirage, is seen here by many people, not as the European choice of a superior plane, but as an effort by the United States to destroy the European aerospace industry.

The French government does not take this view, however. Officials here say that their quarrel over the planes is not with the United States for winning the competition for one of the biggest military contracts in history, but with the European allies for rejecting the French alternative.

So there are practical differences with the United States here over money, planes, NATO, the Middle East, commodity prices, oil and many other things, and there will be more in the future. But they are being argued out now with less rancor than before. This may not be much progress, but it is some, and they progress in the Alliance there days is welcome news.

Therefore, it is important to make an accurate judgment, not of the ideal, but of what can and cannot be done under present circumstances. Meanwhile, he insists, Europe has to organize itself, slowly and carefully, and use its long experience to help in the peace and development of the new nations of Africa and Asia.

The Third World, says Giscard d'Estaing, is the great challenge to the industrial nations if they can get

Moynihan takes on Third World at UN

DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN
... some tough talking due?

By NEA-London Economic News Service
WASHINGTON (LENS) — The sparks are going to fly at the United Nations. President Ford has chosen the controversial Daniel Patrick Moynihan to be his representative there.

Moynihan is an intellectual of many talents and many moods, who likes to speak his mind. Already, he has indicated how he thinks the United States should deal with the third world countries on the floor of the General Assembly. In the March issue of Commentary magazine, Moynihan criticized America's sensitivity and policy of appeasement towards these new countries.

What is needed, argued the 48-year-old Moynihan, is some tough talking. He pointed out that the economies of the third world were in disarray and their political systems were undemocratic defects which he ascribed to the influence of British socialism, which has encouraged many developing countries to be anti-American.

Ford obviously liked what he said and decided Moynihan was the man for the job.

This change at Turle Bay does not so much reflect the dissatisfaction with John Scall, the present ambassador, whose two year stint went better than expected, as an attempt by President Ford to put his own brand on his cabinet — the UN post carries cabinet rank. Already, Ford has made some intelligent choices by nominating such people as Edward Levi to be attorney general, Carla Hills as secretary of housing and William Coleman as transportation secretary.

The nomination of Moynihan came as no surprise. He had been offered the UN position before by President Nixon, in 1970 and in 1972. The first time, or so the story goes, he turned down the appointment because the then ambassador to the UN, Charles Vost had been informed — a faux pas which made Moynihan choose Harvard instead. The second time he opted to become American ambassador to India, where he put in two low-key years. His major achievement there, which went largely unnoticed, was to wipe out a considerable proportion of India's rupee debt to the United States for food in the 1960s.

Moynihan is a shrewd and seasoned politician. He is a colorful figure in the labor department of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and, perhaps surprisingly for someone of his liberal, Democratic credentials, later became head of the Council on Urban Affairs, under President Nixon, where he unsuccessfully pushed the idea of a guaranteed minimum income and got into trouble for suggesting that the black community could do with a period of "benign neglect."

Moynihan's reputation for bluntness is renowned. Whether his pugnacity is what is needed at the UN at the moment is debatable, when it is no longer the United States, but the developing countries which command a majority in the assembly.

But Moynihan's views go only one step further than Scall's. His "tyranny of the majority" speech on December 6, 1974, was the high water mark of American frustration with the way the assembly is run. In it he talked of America's increasing disenchantment with the political power of those countries which represent only 10 per cent of the world's population and contribute an even smaller proportion to the UN's budget — the United States pays 25 per cent.

Certainly, Congress is losing heart. The Senate Foreign Relations committee began nearings last month into the United Nations, the first review of the International organization for 20 years. Congress has also cut off $1 million from UNESCO, after Israel was excluded from some of its activities in November, 1974. The United States later refused to join a special fund newly established to help the worst off countries. However, whether the old quip "keep the US out of the UN and the UN out of the US" is gaining support is uncertain; a March Gallup poll showed that 75 per cent of

Americans want the United States to stay in. ©The Economist of London

NATO's Mediterranean flank keeps crumbling

WILBUR G. LANDREY
Developments in Italy, Portugal and Turkey this week reflect the crumbling political and military position of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The events along Europe's Mediterranean coast have dealt serious setbacks to an alliance painstakingly built up by the United States since World War II.

In Italy, the Communists made major advances Monday in regional elections, strengthening their demands for a role in running the economically troubled nation.

Italy is a key member of NATO's defense organization formed at the beginning of the Cold War to defend Western Europe against Communist takeovers. But Italy's Communist party, the strongest in the West, has proven its electoral muscle by getting a third of the vote and pulling to within two per cent of the ruling Christian Democrats.

Although the voting does not directly affect the national government, the results stepped up pressure for giving the Communists a role in the coalition.

Few pretend that Communist participation would make Italy a more reliable NATO ally. It would be a blow to a southern flank already weakened by events in Portugal.

The Revolutionary Council of Portugal's ruling Armed Forces Movement has been meeting for four days to consider whether to resist or even outlaw — the nation's political parties.

The Communists have supported the moves of the military rulers against Portugal's Socialist party, which won the most votes in last April's national election to no avail.

The left-wing military government also gave the Communists control Monday of Beja, one of Portugal's last non-Communist newspapers.

U.S. officials are known to believe — rightly or wrongly — that Portugal is "already lost" to the alliance despite affirmations of loyalty.

On NATO's eastern flank, Turkey and Greece, NATO allies but historic enemies are at odds over the Cyprus crisis.

Turkey invaded Cyprus last summer after Greece's armed forces touched off a coup that raised the fears of the island's Turkish Cypriot minority.

Last February, the U.S. Congress defied the administration's wishes and cut off military aid to Turkey. The Senate has voted to restore the aid but the House has not.

Turkey, the only NATO country bordering Russia, said Monday the United States violated its bilateral agreement by shutting off the arms.

Government sources in Ankara said Turkey has apparently decided to start shutting down at least some of the 22 American bases in return.

The Cold War has been replaced by equilibrium and détente. But the events in Italy, Portugal and Turkey weaken the Atlantic Alliance and threaten to tilt the balance.

Letters Hospital efforts praised

Editor, Times-News:
This letter is directed specifically to all of the fine employees and staff of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and should be of interest to all residents of Magic Valley.

My father was recently hospitalized for 12 days in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for a very critical condition for which recovery was doubtful. Obviously, this was a very trying time for myself and my family. Comfort and assurance for us was extremely important, because of grave concern for my father.

In this regard, EVERYONE associated with the hospital made a special effort to provide for this needed but non-essential attention. This included (but was not limited to) everyone from the attending physician to the switchboard director, the girls in the coffee shop and cafeteria, to the emergency room personnel, and especially the attendants and nurses in the intensive care unit.

I have never had the pleasure to encounter so many empathetic, understanding, helpful and kind people in one location. And I would like to take this opportunity to publicly express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to these unusually special people.

You, the residents of Magic Valley, can be justly proud to have such an outstanding facility available to you. Any support you can render that institution would be highly appreciated.

Marianas vote US commonwealth status

SAIPAN, Mariana Islands northern Mariana Islands (UPI) — The people of the have voted overwhelmingly to become American citizens and turn the Pacific archipelago into a U.S. commonwealth. The islands, which stretch for 500 miles across the western Pacific, would be the first new territory acquired by the United States in half a century. Still incomplete returns in Tuesday's plebiscite indicated more than three-quarters of the voters favored political union with the United States. U.N. observers spent two weeks in the northern Marianas to oversee voting on the future of the 16,000 persons living in the chain of 14 islands. The United States has administered the islands since 1948 as part of the United Nations Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands, also known as Micronesia. The plebiscite endorsed an agreement signed in February by U.S. and northern Mariana officials. The accord goes before Congress in September for ratification. The islands, used by American planes for the World War II atomic bombings of Japan, would have a commonwealth political status similar to Puerto Rico. Under the pact, which had to be ratified by 55 per cent of the archipelago's voters, the northern Marianas would sell the United States land for military bases. The islanders have been asking for American citizenship for a quarter-century, endorsing union with the United States in two previous plebiscites. But it wasn't until three years ago that the United States agreed to begin talks aimed at separating the northern Marianas from the rest of Micronesia. The commonwealth agreement provides for the breakup of the Marianas district, one of six districts in the Pacific Trust Territory. Under the pact, the five northern Mariana lawmakers in the Pacific Trust Territory's legislature would give up their seats. "The commonwealth status is good for the people and I will happily give up my seat for the benefit of the people," said Sen. Olympia Borja, mentioned as a likely candidate for chief executive of the new territory. The new commonwealth, to be made up of all the Marianas north of Guam, would include Saipan, the capital, and Tinian, the island used to launch the 1945 atomic bombings of Japan. The northern Marianas would be the first U.S. territorial acquisition since the purchase of the Virgin Islands from Denmark in 1917 and the annexation of Swains Island near American Samoa in 1925.

Faisal slayer convicted

BEIRUT (UPI) — Saudi Arabia's high religious court has convicted Prince Faisal Bin Mused Abdel Aziz of assassinating his uncle, King Faisal, and has sentenced him to be executed after sunset tonight, Radio Riyadh announced today. The radio did not specify the manner of execution of the 26-year-old prince, who shot the king to death March 25 at the royal palace in Riyadh, where King Faisal was receiving congratulations on the anniversary of the birth of the prophet Mohammed. The traditional form of Islamic execution is beheading by a sword in the public square after midday prayers. Since the assassination, crowds had gathered most Fridays in the belief that the prince would be executed. The announcement of the secret trial and the swift execution followed a decision by a panel of Saudi medical experts that the prince was not insane when he gunned down Faisal in the apparently motiveless killing.

Plumbers' appeal heard

By WESLEY G. PIPPERT WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon's White House "plumbers" say national security justified the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Watergate prosecutors say it went far beyond the lawful powers of the executive branch. A three-judge panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals scheduled arguments for today in the plumbers' appeal from their conspiracy conviction in July. Former White House domestic affairs chief John Ehrlichman, whom Nixon gave over-all authority for the special investigative unit called the "plumbers," is the chief defendant. Others convicted were G. Gordon Liddy, mastermind of the break-in, and Bernard Barker and Eugenio Martinez, who conducted the break-in. They were convicted of conspiring to violate the civil liberties of Dr. Lewis Fielding, the psychiatrist. Hill's treatment Ellsberg about the time he leaked the Pentagon Papers on the Vietnam war.

Dispirited freshman Democrats plan strategy call on Albert

WASHINGTON — Dispirited Democrats planned a call on Speaker Carl Albert today in hopes of producing better legislative results in the last half of 1975. The freshman "class of '75," held a party unity meeting Tuesday evening to discuss their frustrations and hopes for this session of Congress. A delegation arranged to present their complaints to Albert and express concern about the fate of the 75 new Democrats in the 1976 elections unless the situation improves. The large Democratic majority has been frustrated because President Ford has vetoed three major bills — on farm price supports, strip mining controls and emergency jobs — and the House has failed to muster a two-thirds majority on each bill. In addition, the House rejected proposals by the House Ways and Means committee to impose a higher gasoline tax and has dawdled over the energy legislation despite sharp criticism from President Ford. The top over Chairman Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., and his House intelligence committee also presented the Democrats as a squabbling group which could not agree on how to investigate the Central Intelligence Agency. "I expect that half of these freshmen won't be back next term unless things improve," said Rep. Thomas Rees, D-Calif. There was some talk about deposing Albert as speaker on grounds that he gave weak leadership in the fight to overturn Ford's veto of the anti-recession program. But more senior Democrats cooled the passions of the newcomers who wanted to dethrone the Oklahoma Democrat and his reign seems likely to continue for the remainder of this Congress. Rep. Philip Burton, D-Calif., chairman of the Democratic Caucus, believes the record of this Congress will look better at the end of the year than it does now. While Ford prevailed in his veto of the $5.3 billion emergency jobs bill, Burton said, the House approved Tuesday $2 billion for public service employment, work-study programs and other job-creating purposes. Since this money was attached to the perennial "continuing resolution" that allows federal agencies to keep operating while Congress considers their appropriations, the funds are virtually veto-proof. Another sum — nearly a half million dollars — was approved for summer job programs, at Ford's request. This means that about half of the $5.3 billion that the President refused to spend as "too inflationary" will be used to relieve unemployment. Burton predicted that 90 per cent of that sum will be approved by Congress, with Ford's reluctant blessing, by the time all appropriations bills are passed later this year. The House's refusal to increase the debt limit by a 225-175 vote also gives the Democrats some leverage at Ford. A total of 130 Democrats and 45 Republicans voted to raise the debt ceiling and allow the government to pay its bills after June 30. The Democratic leaders are not eager to bring the bill back for a second vote and may try to attach some anti-recession measure to that veto-proof bill as well. Democrats simply noted that only 30 per cent of the Republicans voted to increase the debt limit, compared to 44 per cent of the Democrats. Ford, they said, would have to work hard to get more GOP votes if he wants this bill passed.

AMA clears protests

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — The American Medical Association has voted to allow its members the "right to protest" — strike — but left up to the individual doctor "the circumstances under which he would stop work. The 240-member House of Delegates, governing body of the AMA, passed a resolution Tuesday after long and sometimes heated debate saying it "reserves for itself and its members the right to protest in behalf of patients what 'intolerable' and 'unwarranted burdens — financial or otherwise — are placed upon patients, the association or its members."

Tel Aviv, Cairo move near talks

By United Press International Israel and Egypt have agreed in principle to resume negotiations on an interim Middle East peace settlement, giving new life to Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy. Egyptian officials said today a revival of the American initiative was one of the acceptable alternatives discussed by President Anwar Sadat and President Ford at their meeting early this month. The Israeli cabinet decided at a 5 1/2 hour debate in Jerusalem Tuesday "to pursue the negotiations aimed at reaching agreement on the subject of an interim agreement with Egypt." The Cairo officials said Egypt will not make a final decision on whether to go along with new peace efforts until the United States finishes its Middle East policy reassessment. They said Egyptian officials also wanted to be briefed on the results of last week's talks between Ford and Israeli Premier Menachem Begin. U.S. Ambassador to Egypt Hermann F. Eillis was expected to return from Washington next week and report to Sadat on both subjects.

Satellite orbited

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The Air Force launched a secret experimental spy satellite into what was believed to be a stationary orbit over the Soviet Union or China at dawn today. The Air Force, which had declined comment on any pending launching, although such a venture had been rumored for months, said in a statement afterward: "An experimental payload employing an Atlas Agena launch vehicle combination was launched today by an Air Force-Industry team from Launch Complex 13 at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, Fla." Unofficial sources said the satellite was a highly advanced version of a series which carry sensitive cameras and infrared equipment to keep watch over the Soviet Union and China and provide almost instant warning of any missile attack against the U.S.

Oil reserves tight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon and the President's budget office have kept the military oil reserves so short of money for years that they would contribute little in an oil emergency, the General Accounting Office says. The GAO report on the naval petroleum reserves said, "A lack of funding has delayed the development of the reserves and the capability of producing large quantities of oil for an emergency." President Ford, in his special energy message to Congress early this year, called the reserves "powerful potential contributors to a domestic solution to this national problem."

Soviets shelve campaign to convene conference

© N.Y. Times Service
MOSCOW — The Soviet Union has quietly shelved its campaign to convene a new Geneva Peace Conference on the Middle East, according to Soviet sources.

The move appears to be indefinite postponement. Its duration is likely to depend upon the success of new American initiatives in the region as well as the result of Washington's reassessment of its Middle East policy.

But the decision to hold off on a conference that Moscow has long insisted is the only way to lasting peace in the Middle East constitutes a tacit admission that the Kremlin has failed in its efforts this spring to bring together the necessary participants in a manner that would offset the same by success.

As one Soviet insider sees it, this means that the Russians are ready for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to resume the sort of step-by-step diplomacy that he had given up in last March. Publicly, Moscow has criticized Kissinger's approach as merely putting off the reckoning of proper peace settlement.

But some officials here have privately acknowledged that the United States must play a significant role in any Middle East settlement, since only the American have the leverage to move the Israelis, while the Russians have been beset by divisions among their Arab allies.

The disclosure follows a marked downplay in the treatment of a new Geneva Peace Conference, following the meeting in Vienna last month between Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

In their most recent speeches this month, the Soviet Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Gromyko did not sound the usual call for a return to the Geneva forum. A communiqué published Sunday between the Soviet and Israeli Communist parties also conspicuously avoided such a call, though it followed the Kremlin's line on the Middle East in other respects.

The decision not to push towards Geneva does not mean that the Soviet Union has given up its hope of eventually holding such a conference, but as one source declared, "It is not our agenda for now."

Moscow appears to have decided to wall on Geneva in part because it wants to concentrate on more promising projects.

Bills limit agency power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate committees approved bills Monday limiting authority of the Consumer Product Safety Commission to ban ammunition and handguns as health hazards.

These restrictions are in bills authorizing funds for the commission for fiscal years 1976 and 1977. Neither measure would allow the commission to ban the sale of ammunition and guns as health hazards — as sought by an anti-gun group in Chicago and ordered by a federal judge.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, called the actions a big victory in the fight to preserve the people's Second Amendment rights to keep and bear arms. But he said, "We can't rest yet."

IPEA sets political unit

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Employees Association is backing formation of a political action organization to work for retirement benefits, encourage participation in political affairs and backing selected candidates.

Removal of political activity restrictions on public employees under the Hatch Act and Little Hatch Acts have enabled us to move forward in an area into which teacher organizations and organized labor have been for some time," said Stephen Swadley, executive director of the organization.

"The non-partisan association, created by this resolution, will have the ability to provide financial resources and campaign assistance to deserving candidates during election years," he said.

The association annual meeting over the weekend elected Robert Venn, Boise, as president for a two year term. He also is director of field services for the employees retirement system. Venn replaces Donald R. Bough, an electrician from the University of Idaho, as head of the IPEA.

Other officers elected were Phyllis K. Blunck, Boise, State Department of Employment, secretary-treasurer; John Little, Kellogg, State Department of Transportation, vice president.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune & W. W. Norton, Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a dear wife who uses "you know" in every sentence. In fact, it is not uncommon for her to put "you know" into a sentence three or four times.

I am sure she doesn't realize how terrible this sounds, or she would try to get out of the habit. I mentioned it to her once, and she acted very nice, but she didn't stop saying "you know," so I never mentioned it again.

Her "you knows" have started to drive me up a wall. Any suggestions?

HER HUSBAND (YOU KNOW)

DEAR HUSBAND: If she wants to get out of the habit, you should say (with her permission), "Yes, dear, I know," every time she says, "you know." She will then realize how much she uses that monotonous and superfluous phrase.

If she doesn't want to drop it, either tune her out or make yourself comfortable up on that wall, where she will surely drive you.

'You know' habit

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife, who had been married 10 years and have four children, got a divorce by mutual agreement.

The wife remarried a month later, and my brother got married in two months. Both married divorced persons. My mother has seven children and 33 grandchildren, and nothing like this has ever happened in her family. She is heartbroken. Now that they both have remarried she does not want to meet them anymore. She says that it may be illegal as far as the state goes, but not with her!

She still considers her first daughter-in-law her son's only wife—divorced or no divorce. And she wants the first wife to visit as always with her children—but without her now husband. She says she won't have her son and his new wife sleeping together in her house (they all live out of state) and she goes for the first daughter-in-law and her husband. In other words, she doesn't recognize their divorce and remarriage. "Visit me," she says, "but do your sleeping with your new spouses elsewhere."

What do you say, Abby?

SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Your mother has a right to her own opinions, but whether she wants to recognize the second marriage or not, they are still valid, according to civil law.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are supposedly mature adults in our 40s. We have been married five years. At least five nights a week, his mother telephones when we are eating our evening meal (always between 5:30 and 6). She asks my husband what he's doing, and he says, "Just mending around." So I sit and eat alone while he makes small talk with his mother and sometimes his father. To last night his mother dinner got cold because he was on the phone, and I really exploded.

Abby, his mother doesn't show up in the evening, and they could just as well call an hour later. Or he could say he's having dinner and call them back when he's finished. I would appreciate your opinion on this matter.

NONAME PLEASE

DEAR NONAME: It would be a small matter for your husband to ask his parents to call after 6. And if he doesn't, why don't you?

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lark Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

the contract at game. However, North revealed his hand and decided to make one more bid. He cue bid hearts!
South had been trapped. He wanted no part of a slam and merely returned to five spades. North passed this bid and it was up to South to try to make 11 tricks instead of just 10.
Actually, six might make. Just place king and one spade in the East hand. Furthermore, five was a pretty good contract. It only went down because West was sitting in back of South with the king-jack and another trump.

This was unfortunate indeed, but it won't make either North or South any happier.

Bipartisan similarity shows, males paid more than women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A study released by the National Women's Political Caucus Monday showed that Democratic and Republican senators have one bipartisan similarity — both pay male aides more money than female staffers.

The study, analyzing the published salaries of 2,300 full-time employees of the 100 senators and covering the first six months of 1974, showed that the median salary was $17,670 a year, or about $10,260 for women.

Among senators' employees earning $18,000 or more — the so-called professional slots on the Senate staffs — the median male pay was $23,091 and the median female salary $22,827.

Key China crops threatened

HONG KONG (UPI) — Flood and drought, scourges of Chinese agriculture, are threatening China's wheat and rice crop. Radio broadcasts monitored in Hong Kong, weather data and reports from recent travelers to China indicate serious flooding in the central and southern parts of the country. Provincial radio reports described drought in scattered areas of the northeast and northwest and said several provinces are engaged in an "anti-drought struggle." The broadcasts reported that flood control conferences have been held in affected provinces. A radio broadcast from Anhui province in east China also reported "a handful of class enemies carrying out sabotage." It did not elaborate. Agricultural specialists say if the flooding continues it could cause serious crop losses, but it is still too early to assess damage. The specialists said rice and wheat growing areas of central and south China that normally receive heavy rain in early summer were hit much earlier this year, hampering growth of the wheat crop. Provinces suffering most from heavy rainfall are Anhwei, a vital rice and wheat-producing area; Kiangsi, in which 80 per cent of the arable land is given over to rice; Kwangtung, another key rice producer, and Chekiang, Fukien and Hunan. "Owing to prolonged cold and excessive rain, rice transplanting... has been delayed" in some areas of Anhwei, the provincial radio said. Kwangtung radio reported anti-flood brigades have moved to stations along the province's rivers. Western visitors traveling by train through Kwangtung and Hunan reported vast areas of farmland under water after streams—overflowed dikes.

Moist air mass hovers over Idaho

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert area: Cool with a few scattered showers. Partial clearing at times tonight and Thursday. Lows tonight near 30. Highs Thursday 50 to 55. Synopsis: The scattered frost, if it occurs tonight, is not expected to cause much damage except possibly to the most tender garden vegetation. Although there will be holes in the cloud cover, the air mass is so moist that not much nighttime radiational cooling will occur. The supply of cold air from Canada is also being cut off so it looks as if tomorrow night will be a little warmer. The shower activity will be spotty and mostly light through Thursday, just enough to be irritating. A general clearing trend should develop Friday with good prospects for a fair and warmer weekend. Daytime highs may reach 80 by Sunday, while the night-time lows range through the 40s. Hay cutting can probably safely resume about Friday.

Rainfall amounts in the Magic Valley averaged about .1 of an inch Tuesday.

Promotional plan gains panel's OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House Agriculture subcommittee Monday unanimously approved a bill authorizing cattlemen to set up a check-off program to finance beef promotion and research programs. Producer groups supporting the plan said the check-off would raise an estimated $30 million a year for advertising, consumer education and other efforts to increase beef sales while cutting production and marketing costs. Half of any money raised would go to domestic market expansion programs, 10 per cent to promoting foreign sales and 40 per cent to research. The funds would come from cattlemen paying assessments on all beef animals sold for slaughter. The legislation now will go to the full House Agriculture Committee where it is expected to be considered next week.

TF men say grain export scandals bypass Idaho

By DIANE ALTERS Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Reported scandals in the grain export business probably will not touch Idaho grain raisers and shippers, according to two grain warehousemen here. The conduct of inspections of U.S. ports on the Gulf of Mexico has prompted "scandals" which seem to be spreading this week, according to Business-Week magazine. "Convictions and indictments in New-Orleans and Houston indicate that private inspectors took bribes to expedite shipments," the magazine said. Federal and Senate investigators are probing the changes in all ports, and in the meantime grain experts are wondering what effect the reports will have on the industry. Warehouse manager Cleo Mort of Idaho Storage Corp., Twin Falls, said he thought that the uproar would not affect local grain growers. Mort said that if grain which is dirty, for instance, is sent to ports for export, inspectors at the port will not allow it to be unloaded. "The companies getting around the inspectors were apparently big ones which have several large elevators of two to three million bushels of grain, not the small, half-million capacity elevators in this area. Mike Bland, assistant manager at Twin Falls Feed and Ice Co., said there was "no way" that Idaho grain growers would be touched by the charges. "He said that he thought that the scandal was touched off by foreign grain importers who contracted for grain at high prices last year and want to get out of their expensive contracts to go for lower prices this year. Grower's price for the export market last year was roughly $7 a bushel, compared to about $2.50 a bushel now, Bland said. Foreign markets, Bland said, have apparently complained about the quality of United States grain, even though it meets standards for U.S. No. 1 grading. "We're at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's mercy," he said. Idaho grain does not go to Gulf ports, he said. The biggest share of Idaho grain for export goes to ports in Pasco, Wash.; Portland, Ore., and Vallejo, Calif. Idaho shippers have no control over the grain once it reaches export companies in other areas, he said.

Bee import banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has passed a bill aimed at keeping killer African bees out of the United States. The bill, passed unanimously Monday, would prohibit import of honeybees in all their life stages. Current law prohibits only the importation of adult honeybees. The African honeybee, known for unforgiving stinging and frequent swarming, was accidentally introduced in Brazil in 1956 and began dominating Brazil's more docile European honeybees. "From less than two dozen swarms that escaped from a truck in Rio Clara, Brazil, in 1956, the African or Brazilian honeybee has now spread over an area equal to the continental United States," according to a Senate Agriculture Committee report.

US placed on notice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Complaints from big European buyers about the quality of American corn and soybean meal shipments show the U.S. must upgrade its inspection and grading procedures or face heavy trade losses. Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa, said today. Clark's comment came in an interview after he met Monday with officials of the Federation of European Feed Compounders, a trade association representing firms that buy billions of dollars worth of American crops annually to manufacture livestock feeds.

Colby says Helms set death ban in '72

WASHINGTON (UPI) — CIA Director William Colby has disclosed that his predecessor, Richard Helms, issued a specific directive in 1972 — 25 years after the agency was created — banning any assassination proposal or operation.

But Colby stopped short of confirming current allegations the CIA may have been involved in Helms' past assassination plot and urged public discussion of the issue be muted.

Colby's disclosure came in testimony he prepared for delivery June 12 to the House Select Intelligence Committee but which he never gave because of the resignation of chairman Rep. Lucien Nedel, D-Mich., and the resultant committee leadership crisis.

The substance of Colby's presentation was obtained by UPI.

Colby intended to, assure the House Committee he welcomed current congressional investigations into the CIA, but felt the subject of assassination should be discussed in "closed session."

The CIA director was going to argue that since assassination was explicitly banned in 1972, discussing the past now would prove to be more sensational than valuable and would do no service to U.S. policy.

The Rockefeller Commission made whatever evidence it uncovered on the subject of alleged assassination plots available to President Ford and the Senate Intelligence Committee on a secret basis.

Subsequently, Vice President Rockefeller implied in a television interview show that the late President John Kennedy and late Attorney General Robert Kennedy may have been involved in a CIA assassination proposal.

A spokesman for the Senate Intelligence Committee said the panel has asked the White House to turn over National Security Council minutes between 1969 and 1983 which are reported to have referred to assassination plots.

The committee is summoning Colby Friday to testify in closed session about the U.S. Operation Phoenix in Vietnam, which was aimed at eliminating Viet Cong organizations and which may have involved several or even wholesale assassinations during the Indochina conflict.

Site chosen to process Viet returnees

Looks for sun

WRAPPED in an oversized Marine Corps fatigue jacket, Vietnamese youngster peers skyward looking for the sun over Camp Pendleton, Calif. Weather has been the biggest complaint of Vietnamese refugees there. They have seen much fog, little sunshine and temperatures averaging in the high 50's. (UPI)

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (UPI) — "Little Saigon," first stop for thousands of Vietnamese refugees bound for a new life in the United States, will also be the jumping-off point for those who want to go back to Vietnam.

But one refugee who put in for repatriation is changing his mind again, saying he may want to stay.

The U.N. high commissioner for refugees is handling applications by 2,550 Vietnamese and Cambodians who have applied to return. A U.N. representative said Tuesday that returnees will be assembled here, from other camps in Arkansas, Pennsylvania and Florida, possibly beginning today.

A 23-year-old former South Vietnamese Air Force accountant, who asked not to be identified, told UPI Tuesday he now believes he can find a job and settle in the United States after all, easing the fears that motivated him to apply for repatriation.

"These possibilities are still very slim," he said, "but I think it will work. I have not made the final decision yet, because if I can find a good sponsor, somebody who cares for me, I would change my mind about going back there."

Like most of the would-be returnees, he is motivated primarily by worry over the relatives he left behind. "I left Can Tho the day Saigon fell on a helicopter with many friends in the Air Force, without my family knowing it," he said.

The refugees here are swiftly adapting to American food, much different from the diet they were accustomed to. Cheeseburgers and potato chips are in demand, and even such exotic — to a Vietnamese — foods as spicy, smoked sausages. But one American dish jumped to the top of the list: chicken.

"People here prefer chicken to everything," said a refugee volunteer in charge of the educational program at one of the nine tent villages that house more than 15,000 Vietnamese.

Lisbon's Republica reopens

LISBON (UPI) — Military forces today reopened the newspaper Republica, handing over the facilities to the paper's Communist-led janitors and typographical workers.

The move appeared certain to provoke a major political crisis. The Socialists had threatened to pull out of the cabinet last month when the military regime closed Republica, one of the last non-Communist newspapers in Portugal.

The newspaper's Socialist-oriented editorial staff and editor Raul Rego were not allowed inside the building when troops opened it early this morning.

A spokesman for the Communist workers said the reporters and administrative personnel could return to work but they must follow an editorial policy set by the workers.

"We plan to restructure the newspaper," he said. "It will be more of a formative than an informative paper. It will speak the words of the working class."

Socialist sources said party leader Mario Soares, a cabinet minister without portfolio, was attending a cabinet meeting. "You can be sure he is complaining to the prime minister about it," a Socialist source said.

Other ranking Socialists held a meeting at the party's headquarters.

A source in the Popular Democratic party said if Soares decides to resign, his party would also probably pull out of the government, leaving only the Communists and left-wing Portuguese Democratic Movement represented in the coalition with the military.

Earlier today, thousands of Portuguese marched through downtown Lisbon shouting for the government to outlaw political parties and suspend the constituent assembly.

"Revolutionary government now," they chanted. "Long live communism and the dictatorship of the proletariat."

Higgins said it looked like the grain in the new portion next to the fire was undamaged, although the sacks were discolored. The roof of the new section was charred in some places and the fire still smoldered in a corner of the old section.

Fire fighters will be guarding the area "for awhile," Higgins said. When the blaze was put under control last night at 1:55 a.m., according to a fire report, all but one truck left for the night. At 7 a.m. the truck came in and was replaced by another at 8 a.m. It left the scene at 9 a.m.

"Fortunately," Higgins said, "such fires were uncommon in the area. In the same area in 1961 a fire burned another building belonging to the Globe owners, he said. "Milling and the fact that grain dust is in milling operations (has made) it nationwide a pretty hazardous occupation fire-wise, because of the very nature of the work," he said.

Change of venue granted
JEROME — A change of venue was granted Lockwood Graders Inc., Rupert, in Fifth District Court here Tuesday by Judge Theron Ward.

Paul Myers and Myers brothers, all Jerome, had filed suit against Lockwood charging they had contracted with Lockwood for delivery and installation of a pivot sprinkling system which was not delivered or installed in time for the planting season, thus causing loss of crops in Myers' farming operations.

Judge Ward granted the firm's request to change the trial from Jerome to Rupert.

Albion miss places
ALBION — Tanya Jolley, Albion, was named third runner-up in the Miss College Rodeo ceremonies at the annual National Intercollegiate Rodeo Association championships Tuesday in Bozeman, Mont.

Christina Dalton, 22, a junior at Fresno State College, California, was crowned Miss College of Rodeo 1975.

Miss Jolley is a freshman at Ricks College, Rexburg.

Junior champion fiddler named
WEISER, Idaho (UPI) — Jess Cooper, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cooper, Hermiston, Ore., won the junior-junior championship at the National Oldtime Fiddlers Contest Tuesday night.

Jess, who finished second last year and third in 1973, received a first place trophy and a check for $25.

Amy Kinney, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kinney, Audubon, Pa., received a second place trophy and $15.

Doug Thomas, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Thomas, Yakima, Wash., captured third place — a trophy and $10.

Convict still hospitalized
BOISE (UPI) — A convict who set fire to the contents of his maximum security cell at the state prison still is hospitalized for treatment of second degree burns.

Charles McManany, 24, who is serving 15 years for armed robbery in Twin Falls County, set the blaze June 10, prison officials said. Don Erickson, state director of correction, said McManany apparently was angry with the institution and wanted to attract attention.

Damage from the fire was minor. Two other inmates suffered from smoke inhalation, however.

Bureau to participate in hearing
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Bureau of Indian Affairs agreed Tuesday to participate in a special hearing July 1 in Boise on problems at the Duck Valley Indian Reservation on the Idaho-Nevada border.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, said the special meeting was arranged after discussing the proposed agenda of a meeting at Elko, Nev., June 19-20 and when it was decided there was not sufficient time to properly explore the Duck Valley situation.

John Artchoker, area director of the bureau in Phoenix, Ariz., said the Elko meeting would consider a wide range of subjects covering the entire region and would not be a good forum to get into the specific problems on a particular reservation.

Hat parts company

THERE WERE spills aplenty at the Little Buckaroo Rodeo Tuesday night at Buhl and hats were often among the first to part company with owners. The final performances of the three-night event is set for 8 p.m. today at the Buhl rodeo grounds. Stock is furnished by Burnice Husabur, Tremonton, Utah, and the event is sponsored by the Buhl Knight Riders and the Buhl Oasis Shrine Club.

Hailey battle rages over fire issue

HAILEY — A battle is raging in Hailey over fire protection for the rural area north of Hailey.

The newly-formed Wood River Rural Fire District wants the Hailey Volunteer Fire Department to agree to send a truck to fire north of the city until the rural fire department's trucks, housed in Bellevue, arrive at the fire.

A spokesman for the Hailey Fire Department said today that it has equipment and manpower problems that prevent it from going to rural fires.

William Burt, speaking for the Wood River Rural Fire District, accused the Hailey district of being "narrow-minded." "They're just being selfish," he said. "They live off the business that comes from the rural community," he said.

Burt said, "We think it's a very little demand on their time or skill for any fires north of Hailey and south of Keetchum," and that the Bellevue and Keetchum fire districts have agreements to help their own adjacent rural areas.

Robert Thompson, Hailey, disagrees. He said the Hailey department has a 1951 and a 1953 truck. "Our vintage equipment is pretty slow," he said, estimating that a response to a rural fire would require two to four hours rather than the hour away from the house estimated by Burt.

Both trucks are needed to respond to a fire, he said, and the time away from the city might jeopardize city buildings if a fire started while the trucks were in the rural areas.

"It sure in hell won't take the Bellevue Fire Department an hour to get to Clarendon Hot Springs (the farthest rural point for the rural district)," Burt said. But Thompson said "There'd be nothing left by the time Hailey's equipment arrived."

Burt said that he expected the department to send only one engine and "five or six" firemen. He said he was not asking the Hailey Department to join the rural fire district, although Thompson told the Times-News he had understood that the request involved joining a rural district.

Coal-fired plant decision said 'unlikely' this year

By BILL LAZARUS
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A decision on Idaho Power Co.'s request to build a coal-fired power plant is unlikely this year, according to a spokesman for the Idaho Public Utilities Commission.

Garth Andrews, public information officer for the IPUC, said Tuesday he is "doubtful" the commission will reach a decision within the next six months on Idaho Power's application to build the "Pioneer" plant.

The power company has said it hopes to start constructing the plant this year, but Garth said just the first phase of the commission's inquiry is likely to take five to seven months itself.

The inquiry, he said, will be divided into three phases. First, he said, the commission will have to determine whether a plant is needed. Second, if the need is proven the commission will consider whether the plant should be nuclear or coal-fired. Finally, Garth said, the IPUC will determine what would be the best location for the plant.

He said that later this week the commission should announce a contract with a firm that will be doing the needs study. If the company comes up with a quick initial finding that the plant is needed, the commission "hypothetically" could authorize the study of what type of plant should be built to go ahead, Garth said.

But he estimated that the first study probably will not be finished before December. Hearings would then be held on the need for the plant before going onto the second stage of the study, he said.

"I know that the commission is going to work deliberately but very carefully on this matter," Garth said.

On another matter, he said the IPUC signed a contract not to exceed $40,000 Tuesday with a Denver, Colo., accounting firm to audit the costs to Idaho Power for the building the Jim Bringer coal-fired plant in Wyoming.

Recently, the power company asked for an overall 26.5 per cent rate increase which it said was needed to pay for its share of the Jim Bringer plant.

The IPUC has contracted with Arthur Young and Co. to determine how much the plant actually cost Idaho Power.

The commission expects the audit to be completed within four months. Representatives will give expert testimony on behalf of the commission in the rate cases, he said.

Responsibility for the fire was also a point of contention, Thompson said he thought problems would be created when "everybody would be giving orders," since each department would arrive at a rural fire at a different time.

Thompson said he disagreed with Burt's estimate that it would take the rural district no longer than a half hour to respond to a rural fire. The rural district's water-carrying trucks are too slow and cumbersome, he said. Burt said a small quick-response truck could answer the fire quickly, with the two large water trucks following more slowly. Burt said the rural district had arranged with the Blaine County Sheriff's Department for sheriff's cars to respond to rural fire alarms and help control the blaze if necessary with the 25 pounds of dry chemicals placed in the cars by the rural district. The Hailey department would be assisting the sheriff, he said.

Burt said he thought the Hailey district "misunderstood" the rural district's request, and Thompson said he thought complying with the request would be unfair to Hailey City residents who pay for city fire protection.

Rufener charges dropped

By DAVID BOCKMAN
 Times-News writer

RUPERT — Charges of false imprisonment against Ernest and Griselda Rufener, Rupert, have been dismissed, but more serious charges are pending.

The charges were dismissed Friday by Fifth District Court Judge Sherman Bellwood at the request of Pres. Atty. William Manning, who plans to file charges of second degree kidnaping against the couple.

Manning said today false imprisonment contains the same elements of crime as second degree kidnaping. But, he said, the penalty for kidnaping, a felony, is up to 22 years in the state penitentiary, while false imprisonment, a misdemeanor, carries only a one year sentence in the county jail.

The Rufeners are charged with chaining Ernest's mother, Anna Marie Rufener, 77, by the neck to a bed with a six-foot tow chain. She was allegedly chained that way for several months before the chain became twisted and she strangled to death.

The Rufeners are to be arraigned in district court July 1. The couple was bound over to district court May 27 by magistrate court Judge George Granata.

At that time, Granata reduced the charges of first degree murder, first degree kidnaping and first degree false imprisonment to involuntary manslaughter and false imprisonment.

Charges of embezzlement leveled at Ernest were retained by the judge, but the same charges against Griselda were dismissed.

Following the hearing, Granata told the Times-News his decision not to bind the couple over on kidnaping stemmed in part from the "unfortunate" wording of the Idaho murder laws.

The state legislature has dropped the "felony murder law" that makes death in the commission of a felony an automatic case of first degree murder, Granata said, but at the same time the provision in the law ruling out manslaughter if the victim died as a result of kidnaping, a felony, was left in the law.

Thus, the judge said, the couple could not be bound over to district court on both kidnaping and manslaughter charges.

Pair charged in Minidoka

RUPERT — A Boise couple is in Minidoka County jail this morning facing charges of rape and lewd and lascivious conduct with minor children.

The couple, William Fischer, 32, and Darlene Fischer, 18, were arrested in Boise Sunday and returned to Minidoka County Monday.

The man is charged with rape and his wife with lewd and lascivious conduct with children under 16.

Pres. Atty. William Manning said the couple is charged with an incident which occurred Saturday in Minidoka County. The victims were a 14-year-old boy and a 13-year-old girl, he said.

Mrs. Fischer was arraigned in Minidoka Magistrate Court late Tuesday afternoon and Fischer was to be arraigned this morning.

Bail has been set at $1,000 for the woman and $3,000 for the man.

Today Manning said he disagrees with that interpretation of the law and will file the kidnaping charges directly in Fifth District Court.

Jury rules '73 death accidental

Mike Fennewald said he and Jerry had on other occasions played with the guns and shot birds from the window of the Mitchell house.

Mrs. Dee Wilder, a neighbor, said on two occasions she had seen Jerry with a gun and once had warned him and his mother about the danger of playing with the guns.

Mitchell told the court when he discovered his son's body it was lying fully on the floor, feet straight out and the gun was about three feet away beside the couch. He also said two kitchen-type chairs were overturned. He said he picked up the gun to see for sure it was his and then put it back where it was and called the authorities.

Mrs. Mitchell reported threats against her son by Larry Fennewald, older brother of Mike Fennewald and said on several occasions both she and her daughter had received threatening telephone calls.

Several members of the Jacob Ray family, neighbors of the Mitchells at the time of the shooting, told of seeing "two boys or young men" leaving the Mitchell yard after hearing a gunshot but before they saw police cars and the ambulance arrive. Ray said one of the boys was running while other members of the family said both were walking.

Two county officers who investigated the shooting, Harold Jensen and Jerry Packer, said they questioned these same witnesses at the time of the initial investigation but they did not come forth with information about the two young men or boys until a year and a half later.

Both said they also received little cooperation from the Mitchells at the time and quoted Mitchell as saying "The family would take care of its own snakes."

Mrs. Mitchell told the jury money was missing from the wallet and pocket of her son's body, and said a jar of collector coins had been taken from the house and has never been found.

Both she and her husband said an old purse containing only papers and receipts had been kept on the window ledge of the bedroom, but after her son's death she found it open in the bedroom with contents scattered on the floor and bed.

Officer Packer said he checked the bedroom to see where the gun had been kept during the initial investigation but did not see the purse or scattered contents.

Coroner Edwards said the inquest verdict closes the case as far as county investigation is concerned and the death will be ruled accidental.

Condition 'good'

JOHN M. BARNES, 18, Twin Falls, was in good condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital following a car-motorcycle accident at Martin Street and Addison Avenue West Tuesday about 10 a.m. Barnes, being lifted onto a stretcher here, suffered a fractured femur when his cycle collided with a car driven by Carol Schuyler.

Coaches see 'dying process' in money drain through equal athletic programs

Minico retains coach

RUPERT — Minico High School track coach Gerald Harding will be retained as coach for another year. The decision to keep Harding was made at a regular Minidoka County School Board meeting Monday night.

At an executive session earlier in the month, the board had decided to seek Harding's resignation or to fire him. The move to oust Harding apparently stemmed from the coach's poor last season's record.

Harding appealed the board's executive decision in a public meeting last week. Harding said the decision to fire him was made privately in a meeting he did not attend. He also said his contract called for another year as coach. If the board fired him, his coaching salary would still have to be paid, he said.

Harding blamed the poor performance of his track team on the lack of training facilities and a lack of seniors participating in Minico sports.

Monday night the board said Harding would be retained.

CSI Boosters set meeting

Officers will be elected at the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagle Boosters annual meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at the college gymnasium.

Dr. Thad Scholes said he would not stand for a third term. All boosters should attend, he said.

Pattersons named to ski team

PARK CITY, Utah — Pete Patterson, 17, and Susie Patterson, 19, both Sun Valley, have been named to participate in the U.S. Olympic ski training camp.

The nation's 14 entries for the 1976 winter games will be chosen from the 35 Alpine skiers selected Tuesday. The other Idahoan invited was Mike Dorris, 20, of McCall.

Rangers sign Texas hurler

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Righthander Jim Gleason, pitcher for the College-World Series champion University of Texas, signed Tuesday to play with the Texas Rangers, the club that made him its first choice in the recent professional draft.

Gleason, who negotiated his own contract, was assigned immediately to the Rangers' Sarasota club in the Gulf Coast Rookie League. He was to be reassigned within 10 days to another club in the Rangers' farm system, probably to the Triple-A club at Spokane.

Chargers hire Younger

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Paul "Tank" Younger, a member of the famed "Bull Elephant" backfield of the Los Angeles Rams in the 1950s, Tuesday was named assistant general manager of the San Diego Chargers.

Younger, 47, who attended Grambling College, joined the Rams in 1949. During his nine seasons with Los Angeles he earned several All-National Football League selections as a fullback from a backfield that included Deacon Dan Towler and Dick Hoerner.

Seattle names NFL team

SEATTLE (UPI) — Seattle Tuesday chose the name "Seahawks" for its 1976 entry in the National football league.

General Manager John Thompson of Seattle professional football, owner of the expansion club, told a news conference that the nickname was selected from among thousands of entries by fans in a name-the-team contest.

Pro football hasn't used the name Seahawks since the early 1950s when the Miami entry in the All-America conference carried that name.

CBS picks up match race

NEW YORK (UPI) — The $50,000 match race between unbeaten Ruffian and Kentucky Derby winner Foolish Pleasure will be televised live by CBS on Sunday, July 6, from Belmont, the network announced Tuesday.

The time of the one-hour special has not been confirmed yet, but a CBS spokesman said it would be either from 5:30-6:30 p.m. EDT or 6-7 p.m.

The race will be over a mile and one quarter and under scale weight conditions. Foolish Pleasure will carry 126 pounds to 121 for Ruffian.

Gullett out for month

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds were jolted Tuesday when their winningest pitcher, Don Gullett, was on the 21-day disabled list because of a fractured thumb on his pitching hand that will be in a cast at least four weeks.

"You don't replace a Gullett," moaned Reds manager Sparky Anderson. "It's a tremendous blow."

Counting rehabilitation time after the cast is removed, it will be more than a month before Gullett, a 24-year-old lefthander with a 9-3 record, can even think about pitching again.

Miller retakes money lead

WASHINGTON, D.C. (UPI) — Johnny Miller has moved back into the lead on the PGA money winning list with his second place finish last week in the Philadelphia Golf Classic.

Miller received $17,100 for his runner-up finish to push his yearly winnings to $179,630. Jack Nicklaus, who did not compete in Philadelphia, drops into second place with $173,299.

There were no other changes in the top 10, as Tom Weiskopf remained in third with $128,372. Hale Irwin stayed in fourth with $124,752 and Tom Watson remained in fifth with $122,322.

NHL may dissolve two teams

MONTREAL (UPI) — National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell, admitting the league made mistakes in granting franchises to the Pittsburgh Penguins and California Seals, indicated Tuesday that either or both financially troubled teams could be dissolved before next season.

Campbell, speaking during a break at the NHL annual meeting here, said both Pittsburgh and the Oakland-based Seals would report to the NHL board of governors Wednesday.

LeVias becomes Oiler

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Chargers Tuesday traded wide receiver Jerry LeVias, a six-year veteran of pro football, to the Houston Oilers for an undisclosed draft choice.

LeVias, who began his pro career at Houston in 1969, was obtained by San Diego in 1971 in a trade for Chargers' linemen Ron Billingsley and Gene Ferguson.

Pacers chasing McGinnis

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — The Indiana Pacers haven't given up on George McGinnis.

"It may be weeks, perhaps longer, until the bidding war for the ABA's leading scorer of the past season is ended.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — College football coaches Tuesday predicted the death of intercollegiate athletics for men if women are guaranteed equal treatment in sports.

"The end result very well could be that we'd have to give up all athletic programs," said Coach Darrell Royal of Texas.

"Eventually, we can see a dying process for all athletics for both men and women."

Royal's assessment was delivered to a House education subcommittee, which is examining rules proposed recently by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to forbid colleges and universities that receive federal funds from discriminating against women.

In sports, this would mean that female students must be provided with equal opportunity in equipment, facilities, publicity, coaching and so forth now available to male athletes.

"I can't see that they will do anything but eliminate, kill or seriously weaken programs we now have in existence for men," said Royal, who is president of the American Football Coaches Association.

"I'm not opposed to women's intercollegiate athletics, so help me — but we're going to be so drained and so weakened there won't be enough money to continue."

Royal was accompanied by fellow coaches Bob Blackman of Illinois, Joe Yukica of Boston College, Jerry Claiborne of Maryland, Frank Kush of Arizona State, Mike White of California, Tom Osborne of Nebraska and Bo Schembechler of Michigan.

Since athletics receive no federal funds, they said, college sports should be exempt from the anti-sex law.

The coaches urged that Congress disapprove the rules and enact a moratorium on athletics pending a study on the need for such regulations and their likely "destructive economic impact."

Royal's team won quick support from Rep. Ronald Mottl, D-Ohio, a crew-cut congressman who went to Notre Dame on a baseball scholarship.

"I thank God for football and basketball that supported us or else I never could have gotten my education," Mottl said.

"The bureaucrats at HEW are all wet on this. We want to be fair to women, but this is not the way to go about it," Royal said colleges just can't afford to siphon already limited funds from men's programs to expand those for women.

He said most colleges support athletic programs solely by revenues generated by fine-drawing sports such as football and basketball and barely have enough money now without diverting money for women's sports.

If forced to do so, he said, men's sports will eventually be killed off because "we will weaken our programs to the point where people won't buy tickets to see them."

NFL figures differ on rule importance

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Two National Football League figures differed Tuesday on the importance of the Rozelle Rule in player trades.

Hank Stram, Kansas City Chiefs coach until December, 1974, and Joe Thomas, general manager of the Baltimore Colts, testified for the defense at the trial brought by 15 players and former athletes against the NFL.

Without a Rozelle Rule, Stram said he would have shown more interest in tight end Jim McFarland of the St. Louis Cardinals in the spring of 1972. The Cardinals wanted a No. 2 draft choice, Stram said, which was more than Kansas City wanted to give since the Chiefs had enough players in McFarland's position.

McFarland is one of the players who brought the suit.

McFarland said the kind of salary a football player wants is the most important consideration.

Thomas, who has been a head scout with the Minnesota Vikings and the Miami Dolphins, said Miami rejected a $70,000 salary request made by a representative of Bob Hayes of the Dallas Cowboys in May, 1972. He said Miami coach Don Shula agreed the Dolphins could pay Hayes no more than $47,000 and "certainly not more than Paul Warfield's salary."

The suit brought by the players contends the Rozelle Rule is monopolistic and limits an athlete's ability to move to another club for more money or a better chance to start. The clubs, owners and the league believe the rule is needed to maintain equality among the teams.

Thomas said the Colts asked for first round draft choice for guard John Williams, a proposal which was rejected by the New York Giants and the New England Patriots. Los Angeles accepted Williams for the same compensation, however.

Thomas testified that wide receiver Dick Gordon's representative asked for a three-year, $70,000 yearly salary plus a $35,000 signing bonus which the Colts rejected. The former Chicago Bear was obtained by Los Angeles midway in the 1972 season. Thomas also said Chicago wanted two Baltimore players as compensation for Gordon.

"The most important thing is what he (the player) is demanding in money," Thomas said. "The player's salary must be within the money structure of the club." He said "then we try to work out compensation" with his team.

Stram said before the merger of the American Football League and the NFL a player drafted could go to either league without compensation to another team.

Before the merger, there was an unwritten agreement concerning players among the AFL teams, though, he said.

"People in the league (AFL) agreed not to bother a player," said Stram, who was with the Dallas Texans before the franchise moved to Kansas City.

"He could go somewhere but, the chances of a team picking him up were somewhat remote."

Stram said an exception was Ernie Ladd's move from San Diego to Houston in 1965.

"Sometimes the agreement was broken," Stram said. "We were very competitive. You do anything you can do to obtain a player, even paying large sums of money."

Stram said the Chiefs later paid Chicago a No. 1 draft choice for defensive tackle George Seals because he could "step in and improve the team and we felt he was worthwhile."

Rain requires cram course at Medinah

MEDINAH, Ill. (UPI) — There'll be a "cram course" on Medinah's No. 1 golf course today for the 150 contestants who'll begin the diamond anniversary U.S. Open Thursday.

Repeated rains, daily since last Friday, have soaked the 7,032-yard par 71 golf course, forcing officials to close it Sunday and Tuesday and depriving the players of a chance to familiarize themselves with the layout.

Tuesday, with 142 of the 150 eligible players on hand, the course was open for barely an hour before drenching rains, plus tornado warnings, sent them running for cover.

"Every green I saw was under water," Gary Player said. He had to walk into the clubhouse before he reached the first green due to the rain. Nobody played more than six holes and some didn't get on the course at all.

This today will be crucial for everybody for strategic planning and particularly how to attack a waterlogged layout. Rain was forecast to continue at least part of today and possibly in the morning Thursday.

Clearing skies and a mild heat wave were anticipated Friday, possibly drying out the course quickly and forcing the contestants to change their style of play in the second round to try to stay even with par or better.

Johnny Miller, a one-time Open winner and one of the favorites, was one of the few who were carefree about the enforced idleness.

"Practice doesn't mean beans to me," he said. "I went over the course three or four weeks ago and that helped. One day of seeing it now and I'm ready to go."

"I'd rather see it three days, but don't count me out because I only see it one day. I'm using new clubs and I've finished fourth and second in two tournaments with them. I'm driving longer, but I'm erratic. I'm just trying to hit it in the fairway. My irons are very good right now. I'm raring to go."

Lee Trevino, who played the course about two weeks ago, said he believed one round would be enough for him to figure out how to play the challenging links.

"I think my game is suited to this course," he said.

Nuggets sign Towe as Thompson hedge

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Five-foot-7 Monte Towe, North Carolina State University guard who averaged 10.4 points per game last season, has signed a contract with the Denver Nuggets of the American Basketball Association.

Ted Shay, financial adviser to Towe and his better-known teammate, All-America David Thompson, said Denver Coach Larry Brown "felt there is room for a small man and is giving Monte the chance to prove himself through a very gracious offer."

Towe stands 5-foot-5½; shoeless, but was billed on the Wolf-pack roster as 5-foot-7.

The terms of Towe's contract, signed Tuesday, were not disclosed. He was the first player picked in the ABA draft Monday to sign a contract. Towe was picked in the fourth round of the National Basketball Association draft by the Atlanta Hawks, the team that made Thompson its No. 1 pick. In the ABA draft, Denver bypassed Thompson to pick Marvin Webster of Morgan State as its No. 1 choice. Both Thompson and Towe had visited Denver earlier.

Barry ready to leave cage career

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Saying "there are no other worlds left to conquer," Golden State Warriors' superstar Rick Barry said Tuesday night that he wanted to retire from professional basketball to go into broadcasting and television work on a full-time basis.

"I mean right away," said Barry, who led the Warriors to a four-game sweep of the Washington Bullets last month in the finals of the NBA playoffs. "Of course, it would have to be the right opportunity."

"I'm not in the financial position to leave basketball unless I can make the same kind of money in broadcasting and TV that I am now. So I'm not going to retire for less money. But I'm dead set on this. I can't play. I need to renegotiate my contract with the Warriors."

"What more is there left for me to do after this year? There are no other worlds left to conquer."

Barry, 31, returned to the Warriors from the ABA in 1974 after a two-year hiatus. He said he was playing under a long-term contract with Golden State but would not disclose its length or its terms.

Here to appear on several television talk shows, the 6-7 forward said he felt he "accomplished the ultimate" during this past season.

Harrell to run for life again Saturday

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Willard Harrell says he has been running for his life all his life and his duties on his first trip to Texas won't change things.

Harrell, part of the West backfield in the 15th annual Coaches All-America Football Game Saturday night, claims he's been running for his life ever since he started playing football.

Kickoff before a near-capacity stadium crowd of 45,000 and a national television audience via ABC is set for 9 p.m. EDT.

Harrell, a 5-10, 180-pound tailback from the University of Pacific, ranks ninth on the all-time NCAA career rushing list with 3,244 yards and was fourth in the nation in rushing last year with a 130.8 game average.

"When you are my size, you try and get out of the way of those big guys," Harrell says. "You think what it would feel like to get hit head-on, and that helps you move a little faster."

He says he usually gets hit from an angle instead of straight on, and that makes a big difference.

"I'm kind of used to playing in the heat, and I'm looking forward to the experience Saturday night. There are so many great players in the game that you just want to be a part of it."

Gold coins, copyright boost Olympic coffers

OTTAWA (UPI) — The Federal Government turned to gold Tuesday in an effort to reduce the size of the projected 1976 Olympic deficit.

The house of commons gave first reading Tuesday to amendments of the Olympic act permitting production of $100 Olympic commemorative coins and giving the Olympic corporation borrowing copyright powers.

A government spokesman said even with the best of opposition cooperation it would not be possible to get the amendments through to the final stage before mid-July.

Another spokesman estimated the gold coins would generate "possibly $20 million" in additional revenue for Olympic organizers.

The bill also awards to the Olympic corporation ownership rights over Olympic trade marks—and symbols.

Eagles get kicker, plan more trading

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia Eagles coach Mike McCormack has made six offseason trades, including Tuesday's deal which brought him placekicker Horst Muhlmann from the Cincinnati Bengals, and he said he is not finished.

"We are continuing to talk to other clubs as part of the multiclub trades we previously spoke about," McCormack said after the Eagles acquired Muhlmann from an undisclosed future draft choice.

Muhlmann will replace Tom Dempsey, whom the Eagles traded recently to the Los Angeles Rams, also for an undisclosed future draft choice.

"Horst is a proven National League kicker and we think he will help our ball club," McCormack said. The Eagles coach said they had talked to Muhlmann about "the charity horse which bolstered him last season and he said he was fine now, in great physical shape and very happy to join our club."

Regarding other trades, McCormack said, "we are talking to four other clubs but it's very difficult to get four other coaches and four other general managers at the same time. It's frustrating."

One report has the Eagles trading backup quarterback John Heaves to various clubs, including the Bengals.

"We've heard the consistent reports that John Heaves has been traded," McCormack said. "He told us, 'I've been traded four times by one source.' But I've talked to John and assured him that if we do trade him, he will be the first to know."

McCormack added, "but of course we would trade any time and anyone if we can get what we want."

Since the 1974 season ended, the Eagles have traded, in addition to Dempsey, offensive tackle Steve Smith to Atlanta for fullback Art Malone, got fullback John Tarver from New England for an undisclosed draft choice, traded offensive guard Mark Norquist to Chicago, defensive back Charlie Ford to Houston and defensive tackle Jerry Patton to Detroit for undisclosed future draft choices.

Oakland won the first game 4-2 behind the six-hit pitching of Vida Blue.

Was 27 years ago that doctors in the Soviet Union came up with something called electro-sleep. They taped electrodes to the eyelids and, instead of volunteers to send mild currents into their heads. Both tensions and anxieties promptly went away, those experimenters reported, and said volunteers dozed right off. American researchers now are thinking about trying to put anti-somnia machines on the market.

Q. "HOW DO YOU account for the fact that more men than women sell women's shoes while more women than men sell men's underwear?"

A. Most shoe sellers get paid commissions. Most underwear sellers don't. That seems to be the explanation, although maybe it ought not to be: Why far more men than women tackle commission sales jobs remains a matter for debate.

WHEN SOMEBODY talks about William Shakespeare's Juliet, ask which one. Remember, he wrote about another Juliet in his "Measure for Measure."

WILLARD HUNTINGDON WRIGHT was bright. Too bright, his doctor thought. So in 1922, said doctor confined Willard in a lonely room inside a Paris clinic. Notion was to cure that patient of his melancholy, his addiction to sedatives, his extreme physical weakness. The doctor opined that Willard intellectualized himself through a hypochondria into a real illness. So he refused to let Willard do anything there in solitary except read detective stories. Shucks, said Willard or words to that effect. I can write better stuff than this. He dreamed up a fellow named Phil Vance, one of the great storybook sleuths, and wrote his way back to good health under the pseudonym of S.S. Van Dine. Remember him?

Agency raps corps

WASHINGTON (UPI) - An Environmental Protection Agency official accused the Army Corps of Engineers Tuesday of inventing problems to undermine the new federal program to regulate the disposal of fill material into American rivers.

In a head to head panel discussion before the Water Resources Congress, Vance Hughes, EPA's coordinator for the new program, turned to two Corps of Engineers officials and said, "Our sister agency only pares down the program. Many of the problems you are hearing about just aren't problems."

The corps raised a storm last month when it issued a press release suggesting that the law would require that every farmer would need a permit just to plow a field. Col. Robert B. Hughes, the corps' assistant chief of construction operations, tried to put that to rest Tuesday saying, "That, of course, would not be required."

But Joseph W. Hana of the Soil Conservation Service was not satisfied. "We do hope that the courts will agree with you," he said, but if the courts interpreted the law literally, "it could require permits for almost every farm activity and it could take 19 million permits a year."

The EPA's Hughes denounced that saying almost any "law, statute or ordinance can be construed to a ridiculous extent." He said no more than 2.5 per cent of the nation's land area was covered under the law's protection. "EPA doesn't want to see 19 million permits issued. We still can't figure out where that number comes from," he said, adding that EPA would go to Congress to get the law changed if any program of that magnitude existed.

Col. Hughes said the corps' jurisdiction would climb from 100,000 miles of rivers and lake shore line at present to 5.5 million miles.

J. J. Lankhurst, the corps' assistant general counsel, said, "Coming down the road is a vehicle that will really lead to back door land use planning. People should realize it could become a massive federal program." He said the law even raised questions about who has title to land under rivers - land traditionally owned by the states.

But EPA's Hughes said "Some of the problems they are suggesting are misleading for example that the traditional state ownership of land under rivers will be clouded. That is not true. This is only a regulatory law."

The 1972 law is designed to preserve the nation's wetlands by requiring among other things, a permit before anyone can dump fill material into waters or the adjacent lands. Citizens have until the end of this month to make comments on four sets of draft regulations recently published by the Corps of Engineers.

Warranty law eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Federal Trade Commission told manufacturers they should stop using the word "guarantee" in the promises they make to consumers about how well their products are supposed to perform.

The preferred word, the FTC said, is "warranty."

The agency set the policy in guidelines published to implement the Magnuson-Moss Warranty Act - legislation passed by Congress last year in a move to completely overhaul existing warranty laws.

The guidelines do not change the force of law, but they represent current thinking and put the industry on notice that straying from the policy could subject it to a lawsuit. Formal regulations implementing the law further will be published within the next year.

Hansen budget adopted

HANSEN — Hansen school trustees have adopted a budget of $551,431, a 7.7 per cent increase over last year.

In addition to a 5 per cent salary increase for teachers in the district, the new budget also reflects the inclusion for the first time of the total cost for ancillary personnel shared with three other school districts.

Supt. Percy Christensen said Tuesday all but 20 per cent of salaries for the school psychologist, speech therapist and a partial resource teacher is reimbursed from the state and Hansen divides the 20 per cent with Murtaugh, Kimberly and Valley school districts.

But since the full amount is supposed to be paid from $175,841 to $230,000, Christensen said.

Another big jump in the new budget — is the maintenance item, which includes both heating costs and supplies. The new budget lists $30,400 compared to $26,800 and Christensen said "I don't think it will be enough."

Instructional costs, which include both textbooks and other supplies, will amount to $26,800. This also includes the ancillary personnel, whose costs and time are shared with the other districts.

Garth Miller, who will assume the superintendent's post July 1 when Christensen takes a similar position in Jerome, attended the board meeting.

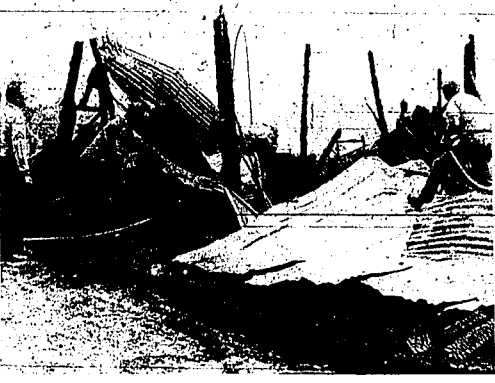

Plans were discussed for landscaping the grounds of the new elementary school which was completed this past spring.

Students honored

POCATELLO — Idaho State University officials announce the college of pharmacy dean's list for the second semester.

Students must earn a grade point average of 3.25 or higher to be listed on the honor roll.

Buildings destroyed

THE MACHINE shed, shop and chicken house of Tony Britt, Kimberly farmer, burned down Monday afternoon. Britt said grass was being scorched on the backside of the shed and the wind probably whipped up the flames and spread them. Kimberly Rural Fire Department was called to extinguish the flames.

Ketchum mayor praises ambulance crew's aid

HAILEY — At the Ketchum City Council meeting Monday Mayor William Brand praised Ketchum's emergency ambulance crew, which saved the life of a man early Monday morning.

Brand commended Richard Burks and Robert Kohli, who gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and heart massage to a man whose heart stopped as he was taken to Sun Valley Hospital. With Oliver Dibble and Mark Healy at the hospital, the crew helped the man regain consciousness 30 minutes later. The crew responded to three emergency calls that day, Brad said.

Two ordinances passed unanimously without comment brought Ketchum city sewer hookup and building fees within the guidelines set by a recent court decision declaring Ketchum's former fees excessive.

New fees are $40 for sewer permits and inspection on residential and commercial property, with fees for industrial property to be established in relation to the waste to be discharged for each property. Building permit fees were set at $1 for every $100 valuation with a $5 minimum.

Letters are going to 50 Ketchum residents now not connected to city sewer lines, according to city manager Charles Corwin. "The hookup fee shouldn't stand in their way now," he said.

Corwin also said that the city had checked water infiltration into the city's sewer lines by using a TV line scanner. Heavy infiltration was evident from service lines on Skyway Drive and Lyjod Drive, where residents will be asked to make repairs quickly, he said.

City attorney Jim Phillips will draw up papers establishing a local improvement district for two small areas of the city not included in the original L.I.D. bringing city sewer lines to the Warm Springs area.

Hans Hub, a property owner in one of the small areas, told the council he wanted to build on his land this summer, but council members said sewer lines would not be built in his property during this building season. The council suggested that Hub contract the district health officer to see if a septic tank could be temporarily installed on his land.

The Ketchum City Park will officially be named for Chuck Atkinson, according to a motion unanimously passed by the council. Atkinson, a long time resident of Ketchum, had given a great deal of time and money to the park.

The council decided against buying additional insurance to cover the use of Flemingway school by the city's summer recreation program.
