

July 4 celebrations offer full schedule

Magie Valley residents have a choice of Traditional Independence Day celebrations in three communities today.

Fireworks are scheduled at dusk today on the Buhl Elementary School lawn.

While residents of Halley, Rupert and Buhl had a full schedule of holiday parades, barbecues, dances and rodeos to attend, many other citizens have taken advantage of a three-day weekend to flock to camping and fishing spots.

Parades were scheduled today as part of the annual Buhl Sagebrush Days, the Halley Days of the Old West and at Rupert's week-long Independence Day observance. Rodeos are being held in all three towns tonight with queens to be crowned at each event Saturday night.

In addition, Rupert's holding horse racing at 1 p.m. daily through Sunday and a rodeo and jackpot roping is scheduled at the old arena at Malita at 3 p.m. Saturday.

A full afternoon of Fourth of July entertainment was scheduled today in the town square at Rupert, beginning shortly after the conclusion of the parade at 11 a.m.

Included were a concert by the Minico High School band, Indian dances by Boy Scouts of the Order of the Arrow, and a performance of traditional Mexican dances by the Ballet Alma del Occidente.

Queen contestants and the reigning rodeo queen and her attendants at Rupert were to model their riding outfits this afternoon also, and at 4 p.m. today there will be a square dance exhibition by the River Reelers Square Dance club.

A holiday atmosphere prevailed at Buhl as the annual Sagebrush Days celebration climaxed today with a parade, followed by a full afternoon of activities, including children's games, gymnastics and a free barbecue.

Persons crowded the main intersection Thursday during the traditional staging of a mock wedding and bank robbery as merchants and organizations displayed their wares in sidewalk sales.

The four-day Halley Fourth of July celebration opened Thursday with a kids parade, street games, games and fireworks.

The Days of the Old West Festival continues today with a mile-long parade at 1 p.m., a rodeo at 2 p.m. and a barbecue at 3 p.m. in the city park.

In addition artists and craftsmen will be displaying their work in the city park. This is the first arts festival arranged by the Chamber of Commerce to coincide with the western celebration.

Art work and crafts will center around an old west theme. Winners in the Thursday kiddie parade included Amy Christensen and Greg Mikel as Raggedy Ann and Andy, as the best overall award; Tori Atkinson, Cathy Holmes, Kristen Copeland, Angela Collette, Dannaette and Timi Del Conte, dressed as minutemen who won the biennial award.

Winners in the wheels division were members of a group depicting early Chinese residents of Blaine County, Tina and Eric Smith, Lowell and Lee Anderson and Brandon Walsh. Kristen Emerson won first in the characters division and Angela Story first in pet's competition.

Gem firms give $40,000 for governors' meeting

BOISE — Idaho businesses have pledged nearly $40,000 to the western governors' conference in Sun Valley Sept. 21-24.

With the state legislative appropriation this year of $25,000, the total has reached $65,000 to put on the four-day event.

Governors from 13 western states in addition to the island of Guam at Samoyea have been invited. Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will serve as host at the conference and Nevada Gov. Mike O'Callaghan will chair the conference.

Legislative assistants, invited guests and the press will converge on Sun Valley and Jerry Norris, council of state governments in San Francisco, said between 250 and 300 people generally attend the conferences.

Norris said some of the conferences have been lavish affairs, but the western governors have toned down their conferences in the last few years.

Gov. Andrus press aide, Chris Carlson, said the budget for the Idaho-sponsored affair is relatively low when compared to other conferences.

He said the conference is to be run in a well-organized, functional manner with little of the lavishness attributed to past conventions. Norris said governors used to go out of their way to give expensive gifts, including luggage, furs and jade.

Finance director for the conference, Fred Garrett, Boise, said he has received only $6700 in contributions for the event so far. However, he has pledges of $40,000.

Businesses donating, Garrett said, are First Security Bank, Idaho Power Co., Jack Simpson, Mountain Bell, Albertson's, Ore-Ida, Idaho Bank and Trust and Morrison Knudsen. He said he did not have a specific list of the contributors with him at the time.

Garrett said the conference is a good means of setting up lines of communication between the governor and the businessmen of the state.

Garrett said all contributions would be sent to one central bank, a checking account, will be opened, he said, payable to the Western Governors' Conference.

"We want this thing fully accountable," Garrett said, "we want this thing audited." Carlson said any private, individual may donate whatever he wishes to the conference.

Happy 199th, Uncle Sam!

Gem-jobsless rate drops

BOISE — The unemployment rate at 7.2 per cent for June shows "a substantial improvement" in Idaho's economy, according to the state Department of Employment.

The 7.2 per cent rate is adjusted to account for certain seasonal changes in the labor force, and is considered a record low for Idaho.

Idahoans were jobsless in a civilian labor force of 388,400 with 361,400 people employed.

In May the unemployment rate was 7.5 per cent and 7.7 per cent in April.

"The two consecutive months of declining joblessness provide strong indications of recovery in the state's economic conditions," a department publication released today said.

Spy vessel still in US

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The CIA's submarine recovery ship, the Glomar Explorer, was still in port today, indicating the United States may have decided not to risk a confrontation with Russia's warship by pushing ahead with plans to retrieve the remainder of a Soviet submarine.

Intelligence sources were quoted several times in recent months as saying the Glomar Explorer would return this year to finish the job begun last summer — recovery of a Russian submarine.

Castro plot link denied

© Washington Star

WASHINGTON — Retired Maj. Gen. Edward G. Lansdale says he was not ordered by Robert F. Kennedy to plan the assassination of Fidel Castro or to take "direct action of any sort" against the Cuban premier.

Lansdale issued "a terse statement" Thursday after the Washington Star published an interview with him in which he was quoted as saying Robert Kennedy, the brother of President John F. Kennedy, told him to develop "a wide range of options for getting rid of" Castro.

Elaborating on his statement in a telephone interview Thursday night, Lansdale said "in 1962 I was doing some planning for the President's consideration about meeting possible threats to the United States from Cuba. Perhaps some place in the plans there was something to do about the leader (Castro) who had threatened the lives of millions of Americans."

But Lansdale said he "ruled out assassination" in his planning because "that is not my bag anyway." He added he was "not under orders" from Robert Kennedy.

The Star on Thursday quoted Lansdale as saying that Robert Kennedy had directed him to plan some sort of action against Castro. He said then that the former attorney general had not used the word "assassination" although the discussion clearly included murder as one option.

"The project for disposing of Castro envisioned the whole spectrum of plans from overthrowing the Cuban leader to assassinating him," Lansdale was quoted in the dispatch by staff writer Jeremiah O'Leary.

After Lansdale issued his statement, O'Leary said that his original story was an accurate reflection of what Lansdale had told him.

Questioned Thursday night, Lansdale said his earlier words must have been misinterpreted. He said his plans envisioned a wide range of possibilities such as economic action, psychological warfare and "you name it." But he said conventional military operations were not included in the plan and assassination was ruled out.

Lansdale issued his statement describing the Star report as "a distortion of my remarks" following a storm of protest from former aides to Robert Kennedy.

US prod sought in ending bias

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three civil rights groups Thursday filed a suit to prod the federal government to bring school desegregation in northern and western states, including Idaho, under the compliance complaint. Roy Truby, state superintendent of public instruction, said.

"That report is in, and as far as we've concerned we've been working with Burley and we think they have been making progress," Truby said.

Truby also said he has not had a chance to investigate the matter and see exactly what it might mean for Idaho.

But in the suit, the civil rights groups charge that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has "deliberately" failed to enforce anti-discrimination requirements of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

While the suit is a "class action" potentially affecting 33 states that are technically considered "nonseparable," the attorneys said its successful outcome would immediately affect 74 school districts in 21 states.

The states are California, Ohio, Wisconsin, New Mexico, Washington, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Michigan, New York, Illinois, Connecticut, Colorado, Arizona, Minnesota, Nebraska, Indiana, Kansas, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Idaho and Iowa.

The suit was filed jointly by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the NAACP Legal Defense Fund and the Center of National Policy Review.

The Civil Rights Act forbids payment of federal funds to any government agency that is guilty of racial discrimination, and gives HEW the responsibility of enforcing the provision in administering federal aid to schools.

Jerusalem terror bomb leaves 14 dead, 75 hurt

JERUSALEM (UPI) — A powerful terrorist bomb hidden in an old refrigerator exploded today in a crowded downtown square, hurling bottles through the air and killing or wounding dozens of pre-Sabbath shoppers.

Hospital sources said 14 persons died and at least 75 were injured in the blast, the worst in the city in seven years.

In Beirut, Palestinian guerrillas claimed responsibility for the bombing, calling it an "heroic act."

The square and streets leading into it were sealed off and security forces arrested between 90 and 120 Arabs for questioning, a police spokesman said.

"People were being flying out of the stores," a witness said. "Bodies were thrown all over the sidewalk. I saw a naked woman running down the street — a fire burned her clothes off."

Another witness said he saw "bodies on the streets and sidewalks. I saw [police] take out one body completely burnt and there was a body in pieces on the street."

The streets were covered with shattered glass and the two stores nearest the explosion were wrecked. Firemen kept back a large crowd from the gutted stores and blown-out shop fronts by spraying the sidewalks with fire hoses.

The explosive charge, estimated at 40 to 55 pounds, went off at mid-morning as a bomb disposal unit was off duty. A police source said it appeared two mortar shells were hidden together with the explosive charge inside the refrigerator.

The national radio said people in the neighborhood were suspicious when the refrigerator was unloaded from a truck shortly before the explosion, but they could not get through to the police by phone.

Police Minister Shlomo Hillel said some Israelis tried to get to East Jerusalem to wreak revenge on the Arab population, but security forces turned them back.

Extra police and troops were moved into the Old City of Jerusalem, less than a mile from the bomb site, and East Jerusalem.

'Tories' attacked for commercialism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The People's Bicentennial Commission today named Mobil Oil, Time magazine, Disney World, the Freedom Train and the official American Revolution Bicentennial Administration as "Tories of the Year" for commercializing the nation's 200th birthday celebration.

In a weekly listing ceremony at the Jefferson Memorial to mark the 4th of July, the five "Tories" were singled out by six persons who said they were direct descendants of the Founding Fathers.

"Commercialism and the Bicentennial have become synonymous," the PBC said in a statement. "Corporate men are hoarding and plastering the founding principles and events of our nation at the very time when millions of us need so desperately to renew our commitment to the vision set forth in 1776."

The PBC called the five "Tories" the worst commercializers of the bicentennial and a spokesman said each would be given a 3 by 5 foot "One Way Ticket to Nova Scotia."

PBC said: —Mobil Oil was chosen for "its on-going advertising and public relations campaign that links the corporate policies of Big Oil to the democratic principles fought for by our founding fathers and mothers."

—The Freedom Train was funded by the large corporations and is "the corporate version of the nation's spirit."

—Time magazine's special bicentennial issue "favorably reports on the 'radicalism' of the Sons of Liberty in 1776 while ignoring the burning issues of our own day."

—Disney's "World's America on Parade" was "a BA white spending over $10 million of our tax money to spend forth innocuous platitudes about revolution...has accomplished nothing more than developing a model licensing program for its red, white and blue logo."

—Disney's "World's America on Parade" was "devoid of the issues and principles that added our founders but check full of little furry creatures marching around as minirevolutionaries."

US astronauts take 4th break; complete final flight checks

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Donald K. "Deke" Slayton and Vance Brand sailed through a final series of checkouts for their July 15 space voyage with two Russian cosmonauts and took a Fourth of July training break.

The last of the dry runs with the Saturn rocket and Apollo spacecraft Thursday turned up a minor problem for technicians to resolve before launch day. "In an actual launch, this would have been a no-go situation," said Launch Director Walter Kapryan.

Soon after Brand climbed into the Apollo spacecraft it was discovered his spacesuit was leaking oxygen. A space agency spokesman said tests indicated the leak was in the suit instead of in hoses or hose connections.

Brand has a backup suit in case technicians are unable to find and repair the leak.

Otherwise, the series of exhaustive tests, which began June 25 and ended with the simulated blastoff of the astronauts at 2:03

The three American prime crewmen and their backups had a free Fourth of July weekend in front of them.

Stafford and Brand will return to their homes in Houston, a space agency spokesman said. The astronauts have been under quarantine, in contact only with their wives and a few people they work with in order to avoid picking up any bugs in the final days before the historic dual mission.

Civil Defense and police authorities are estimating a crowd of close to one million will pack into the launch site to witness the nation's last manned space mission until the Space Shuttle program, several years away.

Russian cosmonaut Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov are scheduled to takeoff from the Soviet spacecraft at Bakuhr seven and a half hours before the Americans on July 15—at 8:30 a.m. EDT. The Apollo and the Soviet Soyuz craft are due to rendezvous and hookup July 17 and spend the next two days together in orbit.

Dakota flooding damage placed at $1.5 billion

FARGO, N.D. (UPI) — Rainflooded floods covered a million acres in the rich Red River Valley today and damage in North Dakota alone was estimated at $1.5 billion — the state's worst disaster ever.

Ronald Affeld, director of North Dakota's Disaster Emergency Services, made the $1.5-billion damage estimate. He also said that, in terms of dollars and economic impact, the disaster was the worst in North Dakota history.

Affeld said he took into account the million acres of land under water, crop losses in the farming area north of Fargo, damage to bridges and culverts, and erosion.

Farmers will not be able to plant in another crop this year, he said.

Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson said the flooded cropland in the flat valley looked like "complete desolation."

Rep. Mark Anderson, R-N.D., who lives in a farm near Mapleton, reported all he could see for 10 yards from his house was water.

"One thing is for sure, we won't be in a high-income tax bracket this year," Andrews said.

In St. Paul, Minn., the president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, C. Carpenter, said the government would have to give farmers grants, not just loans, to help them survive.

"This one-time disaster is a terribly severe," Carpenter said.

The Red River of the North, which separates eastern North Dakota and northwest Minnesota, was cresting at Fargo late Thursday at about 100 feet above flood stage. The crest is expected to flow past Grant Forks, 80 miles north, at 141 feet above flood stage Monday.

But a county agriculture agent said the river itself wasn't to blame for most of the flooding.

"Most of the water is coming from higher areas to the west," he said. "The water covers sections after sections of farm land on its way to the river."

INDEPENDENCE FOREVER!

These were the last words of John Adams, second president of the United States, uttered on July 4, 1826, in his nineteenth year, and the golden jubilee of American independence. We feel that on this 199th anniversary of the birth of our precious heritage, they are well worth reverent and determined repeating. Independence Forever!

Lansdale denies plot link

In separate telephone interviews, Kennedy associates Frank Mankiewicz and Adam Walinsky accused Lansdale of participating in a Central Intelligence Agency-backed plot to blame the former attorney general and President Kennedy for illegal activities undertaken by the CIA.

"Gen. Lansdale's allegation is just another part of the CIA's massive attempt to cover up its crimes by blaming them on two dead men," Walinsky said.

Mankiewicz said Lansdale has never been anything but a CIA man.

Shotgun wedding

SURPRISED—but willing "bridegroom," Buhl Police Chief Beanie Ekru, was forcibly brought from among bystanders at left to participate in the shotgun wedding Thursday as part of the opening events of the annual Buhl Sagebrush Days celebration. At right, the wedding takes place to the satisfaction of all in the town's main intersection. Today's events featured a parade at 11 a.m., followed by a free barbecue, children's games with fireworks slated at dusk on the grade school lawn.

TF police probe reported rape

TWIN FALLS—Police here are investigating the reported rape of a 13-year-old girl. The girl said she went to a house where a group of young men were socializing. Twin Falls Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said he cannot release details on the case pending further investigation. He said that two other 13-year-old Twin Falls girls who told their parents and police two men attempted to rape them earlier this week have now changed their stories. One of the girls, he said, went swimming and was away from home several hours with a boy she said her father forbade to go with. She told her parents two men approached her in a small car when she was on her way home from the library and attempted to rape her. She finally got away from them and went home, she said. Qualls said the unusual nature about the investigation, which has been going on throughout the week, is the girls do not know each other but told almost identical stories about the alleged would-be rapists. The other girl went to the city park with some friends, she later said, and stayed out later than she was permitted to stay. One of the girls originally said she was picked up in the 100 block of Second Avenue East and the other in the 300 block of Shoshone Street East. Both said they were approached by two men in a small car. One of the cars was said to be green and the other red, but Qualls said there was a similarity in the descriptions of the men, leading police to believe the stories might be authentic. Under questioning about their stories and in front of their parents, both have now said they told the stories because they were afraid of punishment for staying out late. Qualls said that unfounded reports of rape "makes it extremely difficult for the cases that are authentic because people in general tend to believe all cases are trumped up and the rape victim gets very little consideration in the matter." Because of this many women do not report rapes because they fear the bad publicity, he said, and because they know many rape reports are simply excuses for other things.

TF center grant awarded

TWIN FALLS—A $200,000 federal grant has been awarded to the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare for the construction of a new mental health center in town. Plans call for the new facility to provide space for outpatient services, partial care, consultation and education and emergency services, according to HAW spokesman. The center, to be located next to the Child Development Center on Harrison Street, will "create a service complex with identifiable, accessible treatment facilities," the release says. A federal review of the local program recently criticized it for not having easily accessible facilities in Twin Falls. The total cost of the center is estimated at about $220,000. The state of Idaho will contribute the remaining $20,000.

The mental health program in Magic Valley was established last August. The release cited HAW Director James Bax as saying that the demand for services has far exceeded expectations resulting in present facilities being inadequate.

Sterilization asked

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI)—A petition requesting the sterilization of two brothers, aged 11 and 13, who suffer from "an inherited disease causing mental deterioration, has been filed in third district court. The petition was drawn up by Canyon County deputy prosecutor. It includes a statement from a physician recommending the sterilization, reports from two state psychologists at the Idaho State School and Hospital at Nampa who oppose the operation and the individual statements of the parents granting permission for the procedure. The boys are in a family of five children living at home in Caldwell and attending public schools. The petition says the youths suffer from a familial disease called tuberous sclerosis, also known as Bourneville disease and epilepsy. It is marked by progressive mental deterioration and epileptic convulsions. The condition is inheritable, the petition says.

Kidwell requests lottery probe

BOISE (UPI)—Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell accused the Idaho Public Employees Credit Union Thursday of running a lottery and asked the Ada County prosecutor to investigate it. The credit union is proposing to give away an automobile in a drawing that is to be held on July 23, 1975. Kidwell wrote Prosecutor David Leroy. "The consideration for the alleged lottery is that each member of the credit union is entitled to one ticket for each $5 that the member places with the union. This appears to violate Idaho's lottery laws and is referred to your office for additional investigation and possible prosecution," Kidwell said. Idaho's constitution prohibits lotteries which the Supreme Court has said consist of three elements: chance, consideration and prize. In a May 27 letter to Mrs. Francis West, manager of the credit union, Deputy Attorney General Fred Barchas said that on the basis of facts available the drawing appeared to be an illegal lottery. "Not only are the legal elements of chance and prize present," Barchas wrote, "but the element of valuable consideration in that one must be a member of the credit union to enter, and chances to win the prize are proportionately increased as one increases the size of his or her savings account."

"We must advise you to discontinue the sweepstakes at once and take whatever steps are appropriate or necessary with respect to the offering of refunds to depositors," Barchas said. "We are sorry for the inconvenience that this will cause you, but it is very important that state employees not participate in an illegal enterprise," Barchas said. Mrs. West said the credit union disagrees with the attorney general. She said an assistant attorney general assigned to the Department of Finance, Stanley Kaufman, advised that the element of "valuable consideration" was not present and therefore this was not a lottery. Kidwell said Kaufman works under Barchas, the deputy in charge of the business regulations division, and that he and Barchas considered Kaufman's opinion but found otherwise. Mrs. West said the credit union's attorney, Richard Greener, wrote an opinion as an assistant attorney general several years ago which clarified the legality of her promotion. Kidwell disagreed. He said that opinion clearly and specifically said lotteries were illegal. The promotion in question closed June 30. That no drawing as yet has been held, Mrs. West said, she was awaiting clarification of the legal question before proceeding, although she indicated she was confident she was in the right.

Gem pilot employment program starts Monday

BOISE (UPI)—Young persons from middle and upper income families now are eligible to participate in a special pilot summer employment program limiting new starters. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said today. Andrus said approximately $500,000 in federal manpower funds has been set aside to make available 750 work opportunities for young persons between the ages of 14 and 22. He said each work opportunity would be a maximum of eight weeks long and pay $2.10 per hour. "Every summer the Congress and the U. S. Labor Department design programs for underprivileged youth," Andrus said. "Idaho has historically supported these programs and we are running one again this summer. "However, unemployment also exists among middle and upper income youth age groups during the summer and we should be making efforts to find jobs for them as well," he said. Andrus said each geographic region of the state will receive an allocation of funds. The distribution of funds was decided upon by local manpower planning boards. The funds for the program are authorized under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1972. "Jobs will be in city, county, state and federal agencies and private non-profit organizations," he said. "The intent of each work opportunity is to provide needed public services in the fields of human and natural resources fields and general government services."

What Is Americanism?

BELMONT, MASSACHUSETTS—There must be a definition of Americanism somewhere. Yet, many find it hard to put their finger on it. A housewife might say that it is a combination of patriotism and love of tradition. That's good but not too specific. A bitter young radical might say it's oppression of the little guy by the big guy, while a retired school teacher would point to the marvelous history of opportunity and good will that have always characterized our nation. And a fifth grade idealist might answer, "Americanism is loving your neighbor."

All of which is simply to say that the term means many things to many Americans. But we have a definition to offer, too, because we think Americanism is something very unique. We also believe that a better understanding of it will mean a more certain future for all of us.

When our founding fathers broke from England, they did so because of oppression by government. In July 4, 1776 they drew their names to the Declaration of Independence. In it, they said that "men are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights."

That, we believe, is the core of Americanism.

That small statement says that there is a God and that rights come from Him, not from government. The Declaration of Independence is to secure these rights. Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. In other words, government is the servant, not the master; government owes its very existence to the people who created it. Government's whole purpose then is simply to protect God-given rights.

After declaring themselves independent of England, the founding fathers went on to write a Constitution to strictly limit the power of government. They knew well that a government, if allowed, would become oppressive. So they tied it down with "the chains of the Constitution" as Thomas Jefferson said. Our Constitution doesn't limit the citizen; it limits the government. Even more so, the Bill of Rights further limits government.

Because government was limited, our people were free to produce, to invent, to migrate westward, to build, and to fulfill their dreams. Millions came here to enjoy the blessings of liberty and our country became the greatest man has ever known.

All of this came to pass as a result of a new concept of government, one that has come to be known as Americanism. It starts off with belief in God from whom all rights come; it affirms the innate dignity of every single man; and it insists upon strict limitation of government as the fundamental prerequisite of maintaining freedom.

Americans should treasure our marvelous heritage because the blessings of freedom which it affirms have been enjoyed by so very few. And Americans should be concerned about our heritage today because too few understand it. Stop and think for a minute. We have allowed a burgeoning federal government to build itself into an almost limitless master. And we have allowed our courts, through their anti-prayer, anti-God decisions, to outlaw in the schools the positive belief of the truths contained in the Declaration of Independence, the very foundation of our nation.

We are the heirs of all the ages. Let's not simply relax and enjoy our good fortune. Let's pass on our heritage to the next generation. Let's understand Americanism and let's make those in high places understand that we insist on it. Our Constitution limits the government, not the people. If any government official acts contrary to or above the Constitution he should be replaced. That, too, is part of Americanism.

Study shows substandard Minico housing totals 17 per cent

By DAVE BOCKMAN
Times-News Staff Writer

RUMPLET — About 17 per cent of the homes occupied in Minidoka County are substandard.

Nearly half the substandard homes are rented occupancies, although rentals comprise less than 25 per cent of all occupied homes in the county.

Of the 400 occupied homes in Minidoka County, 113 lack one or more plumbing facilities. The majority of the homes in the county were built before 1950 and 28 per cent before 1930.

These are among the findings of the comprehensive plan released last week by the Minidoka County Planning Commission.

The plan draft covers several topics, including housing, agriculture and resource conservation, industry and mining, commerce, transportation, utilities, parks and recreation, education, health and public services.

The housing section of the plan lists several "problems" included are subdivisions are scattered, taking agricultural land from production; some old platted subdivisions have never been developed; subdivisions are scattered outside city limits; want city services; there is "too much junk in the county"; mobile homes in region housing subdivisions often decrease property value.

There are no senior citizen housing developments.

The plan suggests the following objectives be adopted:

- Provide a range and choice of housing types and densities.
- Designate land for residential use which is compatible with and appropriate to its surroundings.
- Evaluate the adequacy and cost of water, sewer and other necessary services when considering changes in residential densities.
- Discourage urban scattering and leap-frog development.

The recommendations to achieve the goals include:

- Only 20-acre farmsteads and already platted subdivisions be allowed in areas zoned for agriculture; existing law requiring subdivisions be platted and recorded be enforced; subdivisions platted outside city limits be voided if no construction takes place within two years of residential building be restricted to buffer zones around existing cities; building and zoning ordinances be established and enforced.
- Health requirements be strictly enforced before proposed subdivisions are approved in areas with a high water table; before the zoning commission approves rural subdivisions, approval should be granted by highway, health, irrigation districts and utilities, and

- A study be undertaken to find ways to aid median-income families in getting financing for homes.

The recommendations for mobile homes include:

- Mobile home parks be treated and zoned as "multi-family residential"; mobile home parks would be required to provide adequate off-street parking, paved streets, curbs and gutters and adequate space between dwellings for fire truck access; minimum area and lot requirements would be required; a "mix-ture" of mobile homes and conventional homes would be prohibited without a variance; mobile homes would be required to have non-flammable skirting and be placed on concrete footings.

Migrant housing:

- Any new migrant camp would be near to the area migrants would be working; all labor camps would be required to meet health and building code standards; a survey of farmers should be taken to estimate future migrant housing needs; the housing authorities should require a "significant" damage deposit from renters.

Rental housing:

- In urbanized areas, adequate space should be zoned as median and high density (5 to 10 and 12 or more dwelling per acre); to encourage building of rental units in cities; rental units would be required to meet fire and building codes; landlord tenant legislation protecting both should be enacted; the FHA loan program for rentals should be continued.

Hotels and motels:

- An area should be zoned for tourist-oriented commercial establishments; motels and hotels would be inspected semi-annually for compliance with health, fire and building codes.

Senior citizen housing:

- All "jurisdictions" in Minidoka County should cooperate in providing and maintaining adequate senior citizen housing; senior citizen housing should be built on scattered sites near shopping areas in Paul, Heyburn and Rupert, and such housing should accommodate the elderly handicapped.

New approach due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Civil Service Commission is taking a new approach on the suitability of homosexual applicants for government employment.

The commission issued new guidelines today, to be effective in August, which determine which applicants are "suitable" for federal service.

A significant change from past policy resulting from court decisions and injunctions provides for applying the same standard in evaluating sexual conduct, whether heterosexual or homosexual, the commission said.

The guidelines say court decisions require that persons cannot be disqualified from federal employment "solely on the basis of homosexual conduct."

The commission concluded "while a person may not be found unsuitable based on unsubstantiated conclusions concerning possible embarrassment to the federal service, a person may be dismissed or found unsuitable where the evidence exists that this or her sexual conduct affects job fitness."

In a statement issued with the guidelines, the commission expanded its new position. "As the courts have ordered," it said, "there must be some rational connection between the individual's conduct and the efficiency of the service."

Testing program set

TWIN FALLS — Adrian A. Smith, Idaho Department of Law Enforcement, Boise, has announced plans for a certification program for mechanics in the Twin Falls area who make vehicle safety inspections.

He said the certification tests will be given for mechanics in the Idaho State Police building July 18 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Any licensee service station making inspections and issuing inspection stickers should send personnel to the certification.

4th of July special day to small lad

WASHINGTON—The flag was up in the attic in the white house on South Street... Pa reached it in a twinkling... Pa pulled it down and tucked it away in a trunk after every holiday... Pa let the flagpole in its holder outside the front attic window... he explained mysteriously... of emergency... Every holiday was fun for a boy lying in a small Massachusetts town... the Fourth of July was special... it was at once a day for celebrating independence and for giving really the back of one's hand... Fourth of July started for the boy when he was shaken out of sleep by his father shortly after dawn... "Come on," Pa said... "Time to put out the flag..."

ANDREW TULLY

shaking the bottle as he came back into the kitchen... As they ate the bacon and eggs, and toast crunchy and dripping with butter... Pa reminded the boy that the resolution declaring America's Independence was passed on July 2, 1776, not July 4... The document adopted on July 4, he noted, was merely an explanation and defense of the action taken two days earlier... "Tom Jefferson was a better writer than Richard Henry Lee," Pa would say... Jefferson, of course, wrote the July 4 explanation, while Lee wrote the resolution declaring independence from King George III... The boy knew that by heart because he had lived with his father quite a few years... Hunger satisfied, father and son climbed the narrow stairs to the attic... "Get to get this junk off the stars," Pa complained... Then, while Pa fussed with the flagpole and cord, the boy opened the trunk and took out the neatly folded flag... He passed it to his father, making sure that he'd drag on the floor... then held one length of the cord while Pa threaded the flag through the other... "All right, put it out there," Pa said... And the boy gave the cord a stiff yank to draw the flag out into place on the staff... then held it there while his father knelt in the courtyard to the people... They stepped back and stood there for a few seconds... "Looks fine, doesn't it?" Pa said... and the boy said, yes, it looked wonderful... "Then I guess we can wake up the neighborhood," Pa said... This was the moment the boy had been waiting for... Pa struck a wooden match on the attic floor and lit the fuse... Then he tossed it out the window... He felt the air... then the action so the explosion would come just as the firecracker fell past the flag... The bang was always magnificent... Even firecrackers were made well in those simple days... Pa always boasted that the explosion "woke up every Protestant in the neighborhood... If the bang didn't, Pa'd then be belted for a whole town to hear... "CONSTITUTION TO THE ENEMIES OF THE REPUBLIC!"... They don't make fathers like that anymore, either.

Let's celebrate

Thousands of Twin Falls residents should leave town today and tomorrow to enjoy the splendid Fourth of July celebrations held in smaller communities throughout the Magic Valley... The "biggest shindies" are underway at Buhl, Rupert and Hailey, but other towns also have fireworks and celebrations... Twin Falls again is one of the few with little to celebrate the Fourth... To the East, the week-long Rupert celebration has involved parades, a carnival, street dancing, fireworks, rodeo and horse racing... Buhl's traditional Sagebrush Days celebration features a parade, a shotgun wedding, wild west bank robbery, harrowed rodeo, teen-age dance, free barbecue, children's games and fireworks... If that isn't enough, Hailey Days of the Old West celebrates with a mile-long parade full of horse-drawn vehicles, cowboy pancake breakfast, kiddie parade and fireworks... So don't sit around in the heat in Twin Falls. Go where the action is. The Spirit of Independence is alive and well elsewhere in the Valley.

Eye for eye?

Retired Maj. Gen. Edward G. Lansdale has named Robert F. Kennedy as the official who ordered a CIA report to eliminate Castro... Lansdale told the Washington Star that while Robert did not use the word "assassination," he nevertheless left no doubt that the "project for disposing of Castro envisioned the whole spectrum of plans from overthrowing the Cuban leader to assassinating him... The remarkable Lansdale statement is the most credible link between former President Kennedy and reported assassination attempts against Castro, the Cuban leader who had just humiliated the Kennedy administration at the Bay of Pigs... It is unlikely that Robert, then the attorney general, would have ordered the Cuban project without knowledge and approval of his brother... Robert often was the conduit through which important presidential orders were delivered... The new report dovetails with earlier testimony from Mafia chieftain John Roselli that he had been involved with the CIA in plans for killing Castro... The suspicion is growing stronger each day that President Kennedy may have ordered a head of state assassinated not long before he himself was assassinated... If so, there is a kind of horrible justice in that.

Other opinions

The Washington Post... The value of the Rockefeller commission report on the CIA is that it puts on record what appears at first reading to be a full and reliable account of the agency's activities within the United States... All previous accounts have been either journalistic and therefore unimpassioned, or official and therefore suspect... This one had the form and might of being written with great access to official sources... it was a saving grace that congressional investigators would shortly be pounding down the same path... Not much of the serious detail is new but it becomes more authentic for having been set in a comprehensive frame.

Keep It Ringing

Last US founders pass from scene

By RALPH HELLER... Special to the Times News... QUINCY, Mass., July 4, 1826 — John Adams, second President of the United States, died at his farm here today shortly before dark... Adams' death was a sad day for the community... His last words were spoken in a longtime friend's home... "Thomas Jefferson still lives... I had no way of knowing that just a few hours earlier he would be dead... Neighbors report that Adams enjoyed remarkably robust health since leaving the Presidency a quarter century ago... He had then written to former President Jefferson that he dreaded the oncoming winter, a time he called "as terrible for me as for you, in which one feels reduced to the life of a bear or a torpid swallow... In recent years the two former presidents, once bitter political rivals, communicated frequently in an increasingly friendly correspondence instigated by the late Mrs.

Adams, when his "beloved Abigail" died eight years ago... Adams wrote Jefferson: "All is now still and tranquil... There is nothing to try nor excite men's souls but agriculture, and I say God speed the plough... Perhaps it was the agricultural reference that appealed to Jefferson, also one of the nation's great planters... for whatever reason the ice was broken, ending a 15-year silence, and the two patriarchs became again the fast friends they were in the early days of the Republic... Adams the more frangible of the two, wrote at considerable length to explain the wisdom of his foreign policy which he said was finally justified by the publication of the famous XYZ papers... It was not easy, he wrote, to steer a middle course between Jefferson's pro-French attitudes and Alexander Hamilton's agitation for war against France... Always the Southern gentleman, Jefferson declined to argue the point... Moreover, he graciously suggested that he never would have become President and certainly could not have denied Adams a second term... had it not been for the backstage maneuverings of Adams' fellow Federalist, Hamilton... More important, the letters reveal that both men were greatly concerned that posterity receive a true impression of the principles upon which they had fought the Revolution... Both were sorely aware that they were the sole surviving Founding Fathers... Earlier this year, as the nation prepared to celebrate its 50th birthday, the former presidents were invited to attend the ceremonies... But at 91 and 83 they were too feeble to venture out, and agreed instead to pen their toasts... At Quincy today, Adams had difficulty finding the right words, finally settling for "Independence forever!"... Those two words having been passed along to the holiday crowd, Adams remarked that he had no further duties, and a few hours later he died... apparently grateful — even if mistakenly so — that Thomas Jefferson lives... The deaths of the nation's second and third presidents on this 50th anniversary of the Republic are a mighty historical coincidence, a sobering reminder of the dreams and aspirations invested in our Declaration of Independence by great men who dared to suggest that something nobler could be built upon all that had passed before.

Friendship with Peking wrong road to security

REKHA TEMPLE, Malaysia... Abhorrent misclassification of Malaysian jungle guerrilla warfare by Communist insurgents, particularly since the Malaysian collapse, points to the futility of seeking internal security through friendship with Peking... In truth, Malaysia's establishing diplomatic relations with Communist China a year ago was greatly increased... Peking-oriented insurgency... Spreading down from the northern border with Thailand to the central Malay Peninsula, insurgents now are more formidable than at any time since Communist guerrillas were totally eliminated in this then-British colony in 1960... Malaysia, secure only yesterday, today is second to Thailand among Southeast Asia's targets for Communist subversion... This suggests not only the truth of domino theory but the limits of neutralist diplomacy as protection against revolutionary Communism... What is needed here is far greater counter-insurgency effort, both in curbing Chinese Malay "radical" frontiers and in improving inadequate military operations... But these essential steps since the attack by the Haganese... who might thus accomplish... Neutralism had been preached by Tun Abdul Razak bin Hussein before becoming prime minister in 1959... Upon assuming power, he repudiated Malaysia's strongly pro-Western stance with "equilibrium... From the great powers... This was climaxed by his trip to Peking in 1974, when Chinese leaders promised not to interfere in Malaysia's internal affairs... Nothing changed... Christian Communist radio broadcasts are still beamed at Malaysia from Yunnan province, China... "China" front Communist guerrilla leader of the 1960s, directed Malaysia insurgents from Peking... Counter-insurgency experts... a Chinese grand design... Just as Richard M. Nixon's 1972 knowhowing in Peking was followed by a Communist offensive in Vietnam, so Razak's 1974 visit was followed by intensified Malaysian insurgency... China is restraining Malaysia's insurgents no more than it did last month when Radio Peking broadcast anniversary greetings to the Malaysian Communist party, then busily murdering police inspectors here... A stumped Razak summoned the Chinese ambassador, informing him that Peking had broken his promise of non-interference... When the ambassador was unrepentant and unresponsive, the prime minister formally protested to Peking... That, too, went unswayed.

Police inspectors specializing in counter-insurgency are being murdered with depressing regularity... Guerrilla raids have delayed completion of Malaysia's East-West Highway for four years, until 1981... Guerrillas are slowly spreading southward in coordination with urban terrorists around Kuala Lumpur... Western experts believe the Malaysian problem is basically a military effort that falls short in both quantity and quality... Whereas 100,000 British Commonwealth troops were needed to defend the old Malaysian insurgency, only 10,000 are now available... The odds are much shorter today: 5,000 Malaysian troops plus three companies of Police Field Force against 2,000-plus insurgents... The undermanned government forces play into the guerrillas' hand by sticking to the roads and avoiding pursuit into the jungle... Supporting the insurgency is Malaysia's unmitigated ethnic race problem... politically dominant Malays, comprising a little less than half the population, vs. the Chinese "minority" about half the population possessing over 85 per cent of the wealth... Without admitting error, the government now is stripping the German rifles and purchasing the M-16... Nevertheless, neutralist rhetoric persists... In an interview, he told us that the Peking "radical" might have been "understanding" and "advised" (conary) to that the clandestine Malaysia's prime minister remains committed to a bankruptcy policy... Furthermore, Mohammed Ghazali Sharif, the dynamic home minister, has so often proclaimed the doom of the insurgency that experts here frankly might believe it... Defendant questioning legal counsel provision BOISE (UPI)—A defendant in a child support action is questioning the constitutionality of the state providing attorneys to women who sue ex-husbands for child support but make the money for their own attorneys.

Philip Blumenheim, Boise, raised the question in the family support division of Fourth District Court Wednesday. Blumenheim, through his attorney, Preston Lutz, Boise, said the practice of providing the woman legal counsel in such cases deprives the man of equal protection under the law.

Judge Aerial Crowley refused to consider the constitutional question, but suspended the proceedings brought by Carolyn Kaketolas, Nampa, until the question of paternity has been settled.

Lutz said he expects to pursue the case to federal court.

Lutz in an interview today said his client is trying to get the court to either provide men the same protection in family support cases, attorneys paid for by the county prosecuting attorney or attorney general or force the women to use other resources when they are in hand.

He said women can return to the court in which they filed for divorce and ask for changes in the child support provisions of the decree. That would entail using their private attorneys rather than the state funded attorneys.

Ad County Prosecutor David Le Roy said the case was brought under the uniform reciprocal support act with the mother acting as plaintiff on behalf of the children.

He said the legislation was enacted long ago to allow a procedure whereby children in this state or any state that is a party to the compact may receive an enforced support obligation wherever the father resides.

Lutz feels the Blumenheim question is another part of the growing trend in divorces which has seen an increase in the awarding of the custody of children to the father rather than the mother and in awarding alimony to the man.

Idaho self-insurance studied

By RICHARD CHARNOCK

BOISE (UPI)—Insurance premiums paid by the state are approaching the $1 million mark and officials are taking a hard look at eventual self insurance.

D. E. Chilberg, director of the Department of Administration, said the state reluctantly renewed the largest of these premiums — for liability insurance — for fiscal 1976. He said the premium nearly doubled, going to $417,000 from $233,000 just a year earlier.

He said the state shelled out $215,463 for property insurance. That figure compares with $142,000 a year ago.

All types of insurance maintained by the state went up this year, Chilberg said, and for some types it is getting more and more difficult to find companies willing to provide the insurance.

Through the Idaho Association of Independent Insurance

Agents, he said, the state sought bids from more than a dozen companies on the liability coverage.

"Our current carrier, Gulf Insurance, was the only company to respond meeting our specifications," he said. "We renewed. We didn't have any alternative at this moment. We currently don't have the monetary reserves to self insure — but we will be working toward that."

Chilberg said the size of the premium shot up in part because of numerous losses through the year for which the state was liable and because of a few very large cases pending in court for which the state may be liable.

"In addition to our exposure the general climate for governmental liability also is responsible for the increase," he said. "In many, many other states courts have tended to be more liberal in their judgments which, in turn, must be reflected in insurance premiums."

"It's also significant we had only one bidder," he said. "Insurance companies just are not interested in insuring governmental entities."

He said the states are not alone in this regard, that county and city governments are being affected equally.

"We will continue our efforts to reduce our exposures and at the same time explore other alternatives such as self insurance," he said. "It is not just the dollar amount that concerns us but the availability."

He said unless the state has the alternative of self-insurance available "we might find ourselves a couple of years down the road unable to find insurance through the commercial market."

Strip parking lot awash in wreckage

Flash floods dim Vegas glitter

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Heavy rains rained off snowflakes on distant mountains and caused through this gambling capital in the desert Thursday, sweeping away two million, turning parking lots into floating junk piles, drenching homes, closing roads and tapping at the lobbies of luxurious hotels and casinos.

It rained down in an unbelievable said Singer Andy Williams, pacing off from the Caesar's Palace hotel at a parking lot where water ran 20 feet deep, swirling off of jangling more than 400 autos.

The unusual flood struck just as the city began filling up with tourists headed for a holiday weekend at the gambling tables.

Weathermen said warm front on mountains in miles away caused a sudden melting of snow, and the combined runoff poured down through the usually dry washes and gullies of the desert, sweeping in waves through the city, where rainfall was moderate.

All leaves were cancelled for golfers in North Las Vegas, where a hundred mountain posse of 50 men scoured the desert through the night, looking for two men swept away by the floodwaters.

The two city employees had volunteered to help direct traffic on Interstate 15, the main highway from Los Angeles, parts of which were closed by flooding. Witnesses said a wall of water swept over them, washing them off into the desert. They were freed.

The floodwaters had mostly receded today, running off as quickly as they came, leaving mud and debris in the streets.

"I saw the water rolling down toward us about 5:15 p.m.," said a parking lot attendant on the "strip," the famed highway lined with the city's most glittering hotels and casinos.

"It came down like a big wall," he said, floating off an estimated 150 cars from the parking lot at Caesar's Palace.

"I saw one man stuck in a car but they got him out."

The cars were swept into a nearby flood control culvert, forming a tangled mass of metal that dammed the channel and sent more floodwaters over the parking lot. A construction crane was used to clear the channel.

Williams canceled his opening night show because patrons could not reach the hotel through the water. Among the cars carried off by the flood were autos owned by his conductor and some of the dancers in his show, he said.

The floodwaters outside did not halt the gambling in the casinos, which continued 24 hours a day. Gamblers in the past have ignored armed, robbing, nuclear fallout, earthquakes, power failure, test explosions and other test distractions.

"We will have floating crap games before we ingest the gamblers," one casino boss said.

"You could set off a bomb in there and they'd just keep gambling," said Williams.

Water lapped at the doors of the Flamingo and Sands hotels. At one point all the exits from Interstate 15 to the city were under water. At least 20 major-city streets or interchanges were closed by flooding.

As the autos needed, mud, silt and debris including cars tumbled atop each other, closed the "strip" for about a mile, hampering access to the Frontier Desert Inn, Sands, Castaways, Caesar's Palace and Flamingo hotels and casinos.

Water flowed into homes in North Las Vegas. Power outages knocked radio and television stations off the air. Motorists were trapped in cars stalled by rising waters.

A home was struck by lightning, set afire and destroyed by the flames. Lightning struck a Delta Airlines plane as it landed on a flight from Orlando, Fla., but caused no injuries or damage.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The last of the Watergate grand juries went out of business Thursday, leaving many questions unanswered.

U.S. District Judge George E. Hart Jr. dismissed the 20 grand jurors and told them the oath they took requires preserving the panel's secrets and "your duty and oath will follow you to your graves."

He told them to discuss what they had heard in the jury proceedings with no one, including their spouses and reporters. "I repeat not with anyone," he said.

The dismissal left a mystery: what former President Richard M. Nixon said in sworn testimony to members of the panel in California last week, the 18-minute gap on a White House tape, the relationship between Nixon and billionaire real estate developer H. Ross Perot, and the $100,000 campaign contribution that Hughes allegedly gave to Nixon's friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Hart told the grand jurors they had performed "great responsibilities with distinction and honor."

"Your country can never even partially compensate you for the sacrifices you have made," he said.

The grand jury was impaneled Jan. 7, 1974, the third to work exclusively on investigations growing out of the 1972 bugging of the Democratic National Committee at the Watergate complex.

It investigated Watergate matters, including campaign contributions, political espionage, the White House "numbers", special investigative unit, and the International Telephone and Telegraph trust settlement and TIT's alleged $100,000 campaign pledge for the 1972 GOP National Convention.

A spokesman for Special Watergate Prosecutor Henry S. Rubin has said that should more evidence be turned up, another grand jury could consider it and "hand down indictments if warranted."

A moment before the jury dismissal ceremony, Hart sentenced a 63-year-old man to seven years in prison for fraud. It was a harsher sentence than any given to the Watergate defendants.

Bayh calls for price hike probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., says there will be a Senate investigation into gasoline price increases which the major oil companies imposed this week at the start of the peak summer driving season.

Bayh said Thursday he found it "curious irony" that 13 major oil firms raised wholesale gasoline prices by up to 3 cents a gallon at this time and all within 72 hours of each other.

The increases resulted in retail prices of about 60 cents a gallon for regular gasoline in much of the country.

Bayh said the Senate anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee, of which he is a member, would hold the hearings "in the coming months," subject to the consent of chairman Philip A. Hart, D-Mich.

"It is my intention to probe deeply into the ability of the major oil companies to use their dominant position to restrict competition in the oil industry," Bayh said in a statement. "My concern about their market power has been rekindled by the timing and nature of this week's increase in gasoline prices."

He said the questions to be addressed "generally fit into two major subject areas: the possibility of market manipulation by these companies and the economic implications of energy policy."

Euell eats crow today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Ever eat a puny little Euell Gibbons one of the TV commercials. Many parts are edible." Don't, says the Federal Trade Commission.

That and other commercials showing Gibbons munching on cantaloupe, high bush cranberries and other like vegetables to children, the agency said, because youngsters "without Gibbons' experience may go on and eat dangerous branches and plants after watching the ads."

The FTC announced today that General Foods Corp. which ran the Gibbons "natural food" campaign for "Grape Nuts" cereal, has agreed to stop running commercials which depict plants as edible in their natural state.

The "comptom"-signed four commercials showing Gibbons, author of natural food books, eating or mentioning as edible cantaloupe, pine trees, high bush cranberries and the fruit of the prickly pear cactus.

Some attire hazardous

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Women in scanty clothing are a hazard to men working alongside them in an industrial plant, a Nevada state official said.

Paul J. Janson, occupational health and safety officer for Sterling Products, Sparks, Nev., said the men employees were being distracted at their jobs.

Janson said women employees have started wearing halters or working with exposed midriffs because of the warm summer temperatures.

The firm said it was mounting a little too far.

The case was turned over to the Nevada Equal Rights Commission because it had to do with sex discrimination.

DEAR ABBY: What would you do if you found out after your husband's illness and death, and 40 years of marriage that he had been unfaithful for the last 15 years? There were several women, but he saw one steadily.

It was hard enough to take his death, but then I discovered among his office files letters and pictures and even an account of the money he had spent on them (apartment rent, furniture and personal items, which he couldn't afford).

I sat at home and made my own clothes and draperies to save money. Now I have to use the insurance money to help my husband's surviving mother. He had promised during that time...

My ex-husband was a competent businessman, well liked in the community, and he never missed church. His children (and grandchildren) idolized him.

On the nights when he'd come home late, he lied so convincingly that I never suspected a thing.

Am I trying to overcome my resentment, but it's hard. I love him so. My nerves are shot. Maybe a psychiatrist would help. What would you do?

ACHING

DEAR ABBY: The man next door is a very nice person, but his wife is something else. She has been coming over here to use my telephone because she doesn't want her husband to hear her talking. She calls up her boyfriend and talks love talk anywhere from 30 minutes to an hour while I watch her 3-year-old son. It is sickening the way she carries on behind her husband's back.

I don't feel right looking after her child while a married woman with a perfectly wonderful and trusting husband is scheming and plotting with another man on my telephone.

How can I tactfully tell her to please quit coming over here to use my phone for such immoral purposes?

HER NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: Tell her in English. "And don't mislead my words."

DEAR ABBY: Now that I am a man in my 70s, I am the object of some belittling remarks concerning my virility—or the lack of it, from younger men.

I can't complain, having been guilty of the same thing when I was younger.

I recall having once told a newly married senior citizen (as he looks) of counsel that I doubted his ability to satisfy his young wife. He replied: "You wouldn't want to bet your wife on it, would you?"

"I replied, "You mean my LIFE, don't you?" "No," he shot back, "I mean your WIFE!" Realizing what he meant, I kept my mouth shut, and I never made a remark like that again.

called for a two-heart rebid after North's one-spade response had not affected South at all. South did have a sure diamond stopper, a good club suit and 18 high-card points.

Finally, as he pointed out later on North might well have had good diamonds instead of his good hearts in which case the hand really belonged in notrump.

Of course, if South had made his proper rebid of two hearts and North held diamonds, he could have bid notrump. As it was North would have raked to four hearts. Six hearts would be a cinch and seven was there in case it was bid.

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
In a recent physical examination I was told that I have chronic cholelithiasis.

During the past month my weight has gone up ten pounds even though I am on a bland diet. The weight increase has worried me. I am 45 years old. — Mrs. E. F.

This is an inflammation of the gall bladder. Gallstones usually accompany the problem, and the exact cause of the stones is not known.

There are two types of inflammation: acute, in which the onset is rapid and painful, and the type you have, the chronic, which tends to be more of a smoldering affair. It would, however, produce discomfort, itching and a general intolerance to fatty foods.

Some victims get along with the conservative treatment—small, more frequent feedings, a diet low in fat, and medication to relieve spasm in the biliary tract, which can accompany a stone problem.

Chronic gall bladder disease is rather common, especially in women. Obesity and weight gain associated with pregnancy can aggravate the problem and make the symptoms more obvious.

Thus your weight gain could be more than a mere cosmetic nuisance with you.

Weight increase big worry

If stones are detected (by x-ray) you might do well to consider surgical removal of the bladder, because it is likely to do more harm than good under those conditions. Any sharp pain could mean that small stones have entered the bile duct. We call this colic.

Weight gain on a bland diet is not unheard of. A diet low in fat can be high in calories. If you stick to your low-fat diet, you should be sure you lose some of those extra pounds into the bargain.

Also, if your illness has caused you to reduce physical activity, which it usually does, then this, too, could account for some of your weight gain.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Question: How many grams of protein are required in the daily diet of an adult for good health? — A.W.M.

Answer: For a 45-year-old male of average weight and build, it is 55 grams. For the 45-year-old female of average proportions, it is 55 grams. This is according to a table of recommended daily dietary allowances for health by the food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council.

Just to give you some idea of where these grams can be, I can tell you it has been estimated that there are about three ounces of protein (55 grams) in a pound of steak. The average daily protein consumption in the U.S. and Canada is about four ounces. In India it is about two ounces.

Dear Doctor:
Can you tell me the possible causes of lichen planus?

I broke out on both of my forearms and then it spread to the outer, upper arm. A dermatologist prescribed an ointment which is keeping it under control. I thought it might have started when I scrubbed the tile floors with a cleaning material. Can it be my diet? — Mrs. D.H.M.

Lichen is a word applied to a broad category of skin disorders characterized by papules (imples). The various types are differentiated by the outward appearance of the papules of some other accompanying symptoms. In lichen planus, the papules are wide and flat.

The cause is not known, but diet is not a factor. The rash can resemble those caused by chemical irritants, and your lichenizing may well have been a factor.

Lichen planus is often a persistent disorder, and you are fortunate that the discomfort has eased some with your ointment therapy. It doesn't always.

MISS HAMMOND - pianist

Recital scheduled Sunday

EDEN Garretson's "Rhapsody in Blue" will highlight the concert to be given by Debbie Hammond at 4 p.m. Sunday.

The event will be given in the studio of Kelly Bond, 1964 Filer Ave. E., Twin Falls.

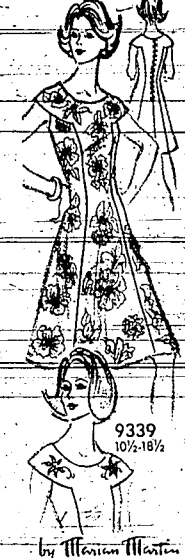

Miss Hammond, a 1975 graduate of Valley High School where she was co-vicepresident and drill team captain, will also play a Mozart concerto, a Bach prelude and fugue and selections from Gottschalk, Grieg, Brahms and Schuman.

She has studied piano for eight years and currently is a student of Mrs. Bond. Miss Hammond is the 1975 Twin Falls Junior Miss and won the talent competition at the state pageant. She is teaching piano students this summer. She plans to attend Ricks College this fall, majoring in music.

The public is welcome at the recital.

Designers are bringing back the traditionally feminine look for fall—with bouffant, ruffled collars, softly gathered waists, long sleeves and ruffled cuffs.

CLOSED FRIDAY, JULY 4th! OPEN AT 8:00 SATURDAY MORNING

today in brief

2 arrested in Buhl

BUHL — Two men were arrested in Buhl Thursday night by city police and state officers on charges of delivery of a controlled substance, marijuana.

Richard V. Jaime, 21, Buhl, and Joe V. Jaime, 29, Phoenix, Ariz., were in custody today in the county jail in lieu of $8,000 bond each.

Merrell Kelley, agent in charge, Idaho Bureau of Narcotics, Twin Falls, said the arrests were made through a joint effort by Buhl Police Chief Ben Ekvrl, the state officers and Twin Falls County sheriff's officers.

Kelley said other charges are pending in the case.

TF man transferred

TWIN FALLS — David Humphrey, who has served as manager of community social services in Idaho Department of Health and Welfare Region 5 the past several years, has been promoted and transferred to Nampa.

Humphrey will serve as regional director of HAW in region 3 and will be in charge of all services in the Nampa and Caldwell areas. Milton Kline, regional director in Twin Falls, said the appointment became effective July 1.

Humphrey, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Humphrey, Twin Falls, has been with the department since 1966 and has served as supervisor in Buhl, Coeur d'Alene and Bonners Ferry before coming to Twin Falls.

Sentence date set for Burley man

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Virgil Womack, 21, Burley, Idaho, will be sentenced Aug. 8 on a conviction of kidnaping in connection with the murder of Oregon rancher Merl Abrahams.

A federal court jury found Womack guilty Wednesday Jack Taylor, 50, had been judged incompetent to stand trial on the federal charge. Both face state charges of murder.

Womack testified Taylor forced him at gunpoint to aid in the kidnaping of Abrahams, who picked up the two as they were hitchhiking near Ontario, Ore., last January. Abrahams was shot to death near Wells. Womack and Taylor later were arrested at Winslow, Ariz.

Womack could receive a maximum sentence of life in prison on the kidnaping conviction.

Project to continue, Hansen says

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said today, that contrary to rumors, the Energy, Research and Development Administration is not giving up on its geothermal research in the Hart River Valley.

Hansen, touring the second congressional district, said termination of the project has been read into the fact that the drilling rigs over the two steam holes are being dismantled.

He said he called administration officials and was told Wednesday that the removal of the rigs was not a matter of great significance because scientists now wanted to see what's in the first hole drilled.

The second hole was drilled to reinject the steam water back into its source.

Investment funds recorded

BOISE (UPI) — State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon earned a record $7.9 million for the general fund during Fiscal 1975 by investment of the state's title funds.

Miss Moon said the earnings eclipsed her earlier estimates of $7.5 million.

The 1974 legislature, when predicting 1975 earnings from her investments, had projected only $3 million without even asking me," Miss Moon said.

In reconsidering this figure, the 1975 legislature asked Miss Moon for her predictions and at that time — with an economic downturn well under way — she reported she had in sight investment earnings of $7.2 million. As more money later became available to invest she revised that figure upward.

Research budgeting stressed

MOSCOW, IDAHO (UPI) — University of Idaho President Ernest W. Hartung hailed "more realistic budgeting" for research as the number one priority over the next five years at Idaho.

In a 72 page report submitted to the University's board of regents, Hartung placed top priority on systematic budgeting and increased administrative rates for the research programs.

"If the school is to be the principal educational research center for the state, then the financial means for discharging this responsibility should be made available," Hartung asserted.

"Too often, the assumption is made that because special budgets are presented in agriculture and forestry research, the research function of the university is taken care of."

Golden eagle rescued

TWIN FALLS — For two days this week the Twin Falls home of John Koontz Jr. became a sanctuary for a sick eagle.

The golden eagle, about 15 inches tall with a four-foot wingspan, was rescued Wednesday by Koontz after his son Doug, 13, reported that he and some friends had spotted the bird on the ground near the Rock Creek crossing about 10 miles south of the Amalgamated Sugar Co.

Koontz called the sheriff's department and was told that the Idaho Fish and Game Department, which manages the protected species, would be notified.

In the meantime, Koontz, fearing that the bird might come to more harm, returned to Rock Creek and picked up the bird for safekeeping.

Koontz guessed that the bird, estimated from bird book pictures to be a 2-year-old, had eaten poisonous substance meant for some other animal.

The eagle, he said, was "really sick" when picked up. "He kind of moved away from you, but he didn't put up any fight."

Koontz placed the eagle in a vacant rabbit hutch at his home and Thursday reported that the bird appeared "a lot better . . . more alert than he was when he first got him."

He said the eagle had eaten fish and about half a pound of hamburger the two days.

The eagle was scheduled to be picked up late Thursday by Bill Gorgen, Twin Falls fish and game officer.

Gorgen said he might release the bird from the Koontz residence if it appeared healthy enough but would otherwise take it to a veterinarian for examination and to the Jerome Bird Farm for recuperation before being released.

State law, Gorgen said, requires that the bird be taken by the fish and game department.

"Private individuals," he said, "can't possess hawks and owls and eagles."

Gorgen said it was not unusual for the golden eagle to be in the Rock Creek area.

"There are quite a few golden eagles up in the South Hills," he said.

Blaine option levy opposed

KETCHUM — A few hotel owners voiced opposition to a local option tax Thursday during the first public hearing on the Ketchum Comprehensive Plan.

The plan has been put together by city planner Jack Peterson, Boise, with the help of Ketchum residents. The final plan is to go to the Ketchum city council on July 21.

The council will also hold a public hearing before the plan can be adopted.

Peterson recommended in his summary "Ketchum push for a local option tax which would allow the city to generate revenue without a heavy tax on permanent residents of the city."

Peterson said if Ketchum averaged a 20 percent occupancy rate in hotels and motels at 10 per night, the city could realize a quarter of a million dollars in revenue in a year's time.

That figure is just half of the present city budget, he said. Ross Fitzpatrick, owner of the Heidelberg, and Henry Taylor, owner of the Christian, opposed the bed tax, contending the added tax would drive away business.

"We have a poor small city here and we are trying to provide facilities for 10,000 people," Peterson said.

Ed Scott, Ketchum, said inevitably wherever he traveled a bed tax is imposed. He said the city would do well to support the tax.

John Wade, Sun Motel owner, suggested tax the ski tickets.

House Bill 80 did not get by the state legislature who have provided the local option to cities to instigate a bed tax. However, Rep. E. V. McLean, R-Ketchum, said he would welcome a public hearing in Ketchum just on the local option tax to find out how many people agree with the concept.

Peterson recommended in his plan the reversion of commercially zoned area in downtown Ketchum, saying the present B-1 zone includes several blocks of residential area and the zoning designation should reflect the reality of the area.

Peterson has also proposed formation of a medium-density zone.

Present zoning classifications include only light and heavy density residential zones.

Peterson recommended formation of smaller water districts along Warm Springs Road to provide more water at a lower cost, instead of expanding the present central water system.

Options reported

BOISE — Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell has handed down opinions including several concerning water rights, citizens' arrests and land.

He has ruled that:

— Washington state is entitled to appropriate Idaho water for use in Washington as long as it has reciprocal legislation allowing Idaho to do the same.

— Before any private citizen makes an arrest, he must prove that a public offense was committed and that the person is guilty. Such an arrest should only be made when law enforcement officers are not available.

Counts name 2 at Albion

By DAVID BOCKMAN, Times-News

ALBION — Charges of embezzlement have been filed against the occupants of the Old Albion Normal School.

Mike Hochstrasser, 18, Albion, was arrested Thursday, and a warrant has been sworn out for Lynn Teeple, 23, Albion.

Teoples and Geraldine Douglas and Donna Teeple, leased the campus in 1971 from Albion City.

The lease is for the Oregon Trail Festival of the Arts.

The embezzlement charges stem from the removal of steam radiators from campus buildings in June. Teeple is charged with "embezzlement by a lessee" and is alleged to have sold the radiators for scrap.

However, when the radiators were removed, Teeple said they would be replaced with modern wall heaters.

Hochstrasser was arrested for "taking and abetting" in the embezzlement. Although in custody, Hochstrasser had not been arraigned by late Thursday afternoon.

A spokesman for the Cassia County sheriff's office said unless a judge could be found, Hochstrasser would probably not be arraigned until after the long Fourth of July weekend.

Hochstrasser's bail was set at $100 when his arrest warrant was signed by Mindoka County Magistrate Judge Jerry Wegman Wednesday.

The dispute over the occupancy of the Albion campus has been ranging between Albion City and the Teeples for at least two years.

In suit and counter-suit, the city claims the Teeples have failed to maintain the building and conduct an educational program, while the Teeples charge the city with harassment.

The city first filed an eviction suit in December 1973, and apparently tried to sell the property to a third party in July 1974.

In June of this year, the Teeples filed a $450,000 counterclaim against the city, alleging harassment.

In the meantime, Idaho Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell announced that his office would investigate the dispute.

US prod sought in ending bias

Troy said few school districts in Idaho have large minority populations and those districts with substantial minority populations are fairly balanced with majority race groups.

He said the Lapwai district, with a large Indian population, is mixed about 50-50 with white students. The Chicano populations in Burley, Nampa and Blackfoot, he said, "are in pretty good balance" with majority race groups in the district.

"I think, really, Nampa is one of the leading school districts in this whole part of the country in terms of their bilingual programs and studies. I think we're making satisfactory progress in this state."

"I think I would have to have more information than this lawsuit to be unduly alarmed."

The compliance review at Burley, he said, pointed up need for more bilingual assistance for students, an alternative effort to the bilingual and teachers, counselors and aides, bilingual and Spanish-American teachers, counselors and aides.

He said the reviewers felt there was a disproportionate number of children in special education classes, as opposed to other classes, when they really needed special assistance in other areas.

"They needed to have more special programs for these children saying language and learning difficulties because of cultural differences."

A state team has gone to Burley to work with the district in making the needed changes.

"Another affirmative step, I think, is that Dr. Paul Brown, a dentist who is chairman of the Burley school board . . . came to Nampa to take part in a review of their Chicano studies program so he could get information on the Nampa school programs."

"We think they are making satisfactory progress. And they have asked for help which we think is an excellent sign."

The district is hiring minority teachers and getting special aids for their bilingual students and working with the state department to make the improvements.

Another reason Troy feels the state is doing well is because "we have held affirmative action workshops in six areas of the state. They were attended by representatives of almost every school district. These have been held since I took office."

He thinks Idaho is the only western state to have the workshops.

TF aide asks commitment

TWIN FALLS — City Atty. Charles Brumbach has asked a Twin Falls man for a "letter of commitment" saying he will stop dumping paper into Rock Creek Canyon.

Miscellaneous charges were brought in May against Gene Hamilton, owner of Hamilton Insulation and Roofing Co., for dumping tons of paper on his property in Rock Creek Canyon.

"Once we have that letter, I'll dismiss the charges," Brumbach said Thursday. The point of the charges, he said, was to prevent Hamilton from dumping again. "Nothing will be proved by prosecuting the case," he said.

Hamilton has "made some effort to clean up as best as humanly and financially possible," Brumbach said.

City manager Jean Milar said Thursday that Hamilton has stopped all action in the area and the city will repair a sewer line and water main that were damaged in the general area of the dumping.

Hamilton eventually plans to build a road into the canyon but has informally agreed to use only proper building materials and no more paper.

Milar said the city will reinforce the utilities lines so a road can be built over them, he said.

"As long as he doesn't use it as a landfill," Milar said, Hamilton could "do all he wants" to his property. Milar said the road he plans to build would enhance the canyon and benefit the area and that the city planned to cooperate.

Hamilton will be using his own materials, he said.

Milar said Hamilton had removed some of the paper he dumped, but could not remove all of it until he gets access to the paper farther down in the canyon.

Bite the dust

PARTICIPANTS at Buhl's Sagebrush Days celebration came to a sorry end in the traditional bank robbery Thursday afternoon. They were "robbed" as they slipped out of the bank, and as one Jaycee member hits the dust "mother-culprits" body" is carried off on horseback. The annual Buhl rodeo ends Saturday night with the final rodeo performance and crowning of the new queen. (Additional pictures p. 3)

Contamination dispute stalls Cairo-bound grain vessel at New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS — An oil tanker chartered to carry American wheat to Egypt in late May is still filling partly loaded to port because a costly dispute continues over inspectors' rulings that it is not clean enough to take the cargo.

After $1.8 million of a $3 million Force for Peace shipment was loaded on the Greek vessel, the U.S. Coast Guard and grain inspectors decided that petroleum fumes and diesel oil slogged from a previous cargo might have contaminated the wheat.

While the ship has been shunted to live different berths on the Mississippi River, the Egyptian buyers, the Greek ship-owners, the Continental Grain Co. and the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service have been trying to resolve the contamination dispute.

The disputed inspections were made by employees of the New Orleans Board of Trade, which is licensed by the grain division of the Agriculture Department. The performance of ship and grain inspectors from this and similar agencies has been the focus of a widespread federal investigation into alleged corruption in the grain export trade in New Orleans and other major ports.

Grain Division's New Orleans office, said that the most recent inspection of the Port's 15 empty tanks, conducted June 30, determined that they were acceptable to the Board of Trade and the Grain Division. But he said that the 18 tanks already containing wheat would have to be inspected if they were to be fully loaded.

Agriculture Department tests found recently that the grain dust on the loaded tanks was unsuitable for milling and baking. The Egyptians could possibly use it as animal feed.

The Cairo-bound vessel, the David, arrived in New Orleans May 17 and failed several cleanliness inspections until the Board of Trade approved all the tanks May 23. But when the ship tied up at the Continental elevator that day, the inspectors rejected it.

The Port was moved, and cleaning efforts continued, but the ship was rejected until June 3, when the loading finally began. An inspector walking over partly filled tanks June 4 detected petroleum odor and sludge in the upper areas of the tank and found the same situation in others, and the loading was halted.

This time, the Port's captain refused to allow the ship to be moved from the elevator berth, where it tied up grain operations until June 17, when Continental obtained a federal court order setting the vessel.

Ship officials would not discuss the cost of keeping the Port idle for the more than six weeks it has been there. But the president of an oil-tanker company disclosed figures indicating that overhead costs could range from $7,000 to $20,000 a day in port. It is not clear who would be responsible for paying possible demurrage charges for delaying the Port's departure.

Looks about right for July

TWIN FALLS — Near normal temperature and subnormal precipitation. That's the July weather outlook for the Magic Valley, according to the National Weather Service office for agriculture.

This would indicate excellent growing weather for all irrigated crops and average or a little above average for non-irrigated crops. Irrigation requirements are expected to increase rapidly as most crops move into a period of maximum use.

Lower elevation rangelands will present an unusually great fire danger due to heavy early snow during the spring. Higher elevation pastures should benefit from rising temperature, weather service officials said.

Haying weather prospects for Southern Idaho are excellent for the month.

Corn crop signs hint at big cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Corn will be well above the traditional yield in many parts of the corn belt.

According to farm lore, Knecht grain in the Midwest corn belt by Independence Day means a good crop.

This year, the signs point to a record harvest that could substantially ease food inflation rates by late 1975 and 1976.

A weekly crop weather report issued by the department Tuesday showed that Iowa corn averaged 30 inches high by last Sunday, with some fields up to 42 inches. In Illinois, another leading corn state, the average was 45 inches with the best fields up to five feet tall, well ahead of normal.

The experts said that as of June 29, "much of the nation's 1975 corn crop was in good to excellent condition, while hot and humid weather promoted growth at rapid pace."

The report said "the development of the crop was ahead of normal in all corn belt states except Minnesota.

Support comment sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers, consumers and other people interested in the issue can submit formal advice to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz on price support levels for 1976 grain crops, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials said they will accept formal comments until Aug. 4 on issues including the 1976 price support loan levels for corn, other feed grains and wheat.

They also will accept advice on the level of next year's average allotment for feed grains, a key decision in case market prices for the 1976 crop should sink below the support level that will be set later.

The allotment does not limit the amount of corn and other crops farmers can plant. It does, however, limit the amount of acreage eligible for support payments if they prove necessary.

For 1975, the feed grain allotment was set at 89 million acres, which means support coverage is available on 85 percent of the 104.5 million acres of the 1975 crop. Farmers are expected in many cases to urge the Agriculture Department to broaden their protection next year by increasing the allotment.

Department spokesmen said written comments should be sent to the Director of the Grain, Oilseeds and Cotton Division of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service.

No comments were requested on the 1976 wheat allotment, because it was set on April 10. The feed grain allotment, however, does not have to be set by law until Dec. 31.

Carey Act appeals procedure sought

BOISE (UPI) — A spokesman for the Idaho Carey Act Association says proposed rules for settling on desert land should include an appeals procedure.

Vernon Ravenscroft, Tuttle, offered the criticism Wednesday at a Department of Water Resources hearing on updated regulations for the state Carey Act. Passed in 1984, the act has not been updated since 1930.

Ravenscroft and others testifying at the hearing also objected to the nine-month length of residency required under the proposed new rules for a settler to prove he has established a home on the land.

He said the nature of the hearing is more important than some specific time interval and suggested "one crop year" be substituted.

Several persons also objected to the size of the house that must be built under the proposed new regulations.

Elaine Martin, Jerome, said an 800 square foot house would cost about $16,000 and require a young couple to spend too much money on a house that might not be adequate when they rear a family.

The department will accept written comments on the proposed regulations until July 15.

Dairymen accuse NFO of mart raid

SPOKANE (UPI) — One man's free enterprise may be another's market raiding.

The Washington-based Northwest Dairymen's Association charged the National Farmers Organization of the Boise, Idaho, Valley of trading in the "local market" by exporting milk to the Spokane area.

Merritt Nash, Seattle, chairman of the dairymen's association leveled the charges Wednesday.

He said the situation has brought a "depressed market to the Spokane area."

He said Boise Valley producers have brought in about a million pounds of milk per month since April into the area.

The price to the retail outlet, at least, has been lower, as a result.

Nash said Class one price for milk in the Spokane area went from $10.09 per pound to $9.80 from $10.09 per pound to $9.80.

Most futures gain in Thursday trade

CHICAGO — Futures generally closed higher Thursday.

Idaho russet potatoes were among the commodities advancing. The May 1976 delivery, posting a 16 cent gain to close at 9.41 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said Maine potatoes closed 4 to 15 points down in contracts, with most of the activity pre-holiday evening up by long and shorts. Spud losses to flooding in the Red River Valley have been estimated at more than 10,000 acres.

Live cattle gained up to 77 cents in live trading, with scalping and end-of-week liquidation eased prices back from highs. Volume was slightly over 8,000. There was better demand for heavier choice carcasses and a good "clean up trade" in live channels. Feeder prices moved higher in live trading.

Live hog futures also rebounded with an estimated 4.95 cents traded. At the close only August was limit up as light evening up brought other options of the highs.

sports Connors, Ashe play for Wimbledon title

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Defending champion Jimmy Connors, crushing Roscoe Tanner as he has all others before him, Thursday swept into the Wimbledon tennis championships finals where he will meet Arthur Ashe in the first all-American windup since 1947.

Connors, the top seed, unleashed an explosive display of power hitting to blast Tanner off the grass of Center Court, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4, in what will rank as one of the finest displays seen at the All-England Club.

Ashe, the sixth seed, reached the final for the first time in 11 attempts when he edged Australia's Tony Roche, 7-5, 4-7, 6-0, 6-4.

"My form was my best ever," said Connors, and there was nobody to disagree. Many Center Court veterans ranked his performance among the finest ever seen at the All-England Club and equal to Rod Laver in his golden years of 1968 and 1969.

He was among the top in the seventh game of the opening set when Tanner, the 11th seed, had beat him two weeks ago at Nottingham, broke his service with two forehand passing shots. Connors then turned on a ruthless display to break back and win the next four games with the loss of only four points.

From then on the match was a formality. Tanner uncoiled 11 aces in the match but when Connors did get to his 14th ace in the fourth set, Roche found it coming back across the net — with interest.

Jimmy took the second set in just 20 minutes, often leaving Tanner shaking his head in dismay at the ferocity of his shots.

The fifth game of the final set, in which Connors broke Tanner's service, included a shot by the Belleville, Ill., player which will rank among the greatest seen in Center Court. Connors hoisted a lob and Tanner met it squarely with a smash that landed a little short, Connors, standing five feet behind the baseline, hit a cross court forehand shot of such incredible power that it flashed across the net even faster than one of Tanner's cannonball serves.

Connors then served out the set, completing the match in 75 minutes.

In Saturday's final, worth $25,000 to the winner, he will meet a man he has already beaten three times in Ashe. It will be the first time two Americans have reached the final since Jack Kramer beat Tom Brown 28 years ago and Connors will have an excellent chance of equalling Donald Budge's 1938 record of winning the tournament without losing a set.

Ashe's greatest win over the 30-year-old Australian tennis star was when Waggie Waggie was as grueling for the 10,000 spectators as for the players. "It was a dull match," conceded Ashe. "Semifinals are sometimes like that."

The match lasted two hours 50 minutes, but a five-shot rally was a rarity with both players favoring smash and grab tactics by moving into the net behind their first serve and either hitting a winner or a fault.

In the opening set, they exchanged break in the seventh and eighth games but then Roche, the steadier of the two, capitalized on two poor forehand volleys by Ashe — his worst shots throughout the match — to place a drop shot just over the net in the 12th game.

Ashe got the single break of the second set in the fifth game with a couple of exquisite backhand passing shots and repeated in the 11th game of the next set to go 2-1 up. Both players held service in the fourth set, to bring about a tiebreak which Roche won, seven points to three.

Roche, who has been suffering from stomach trouble since ousting Ken Rosewall last week, appeared to tire in the final and Ashe broke his serve in the first game and then served out the match. He didn't help himself with two double faults in the last game, but Roche felled a backhand on match point to help him out.

Ashe said he set himself two targets this year. He achieved one of them when he won the WCT championships and the Wimbledon title, less than a year from his last championship, would be the other.

Reaching the final "is a little bit like a prize you're entitled to," said Ashe.

Connors' performance today made him a 2-11 favorite with the bookmakers who also picked Ashe to reach the final in the original odds.

Friday's women's final, Billie Jean King will be attempting to equal Suzanne Lenglen's record of six singles crowns when she meets Evonne Coolidge-Cawley of Australia.

Ex-strikers take emergency pay

MONTREAL (UPI) — More than 1,500 of the 2,000 construction workers at the 1976 Olympic Games site will trade their two-week summer holiday for double pay to complete "hot work" on the facilities, an industry spokesman said Wednesday.

The unions had already agreed to forego their vacations and take double pay averaging $14 an hour, in accordance with a clause in the government's construction industry decree allowing "emergency work, if necessary," instead of vacation time.

"This is considered emergency work," the spokesman said. "There are certain areas of the jobsite which cannot be left for 15 days as is, but must be completed."

Tennis team bankrupt

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A creditors' petition was filed Thursday asking the U.S. District Court to adjudicate the World Team Tennis Philadelphia Freedom bankrupt.

The petition was filed by three creditors with claims totaling $30,894.

Novely Printing and the Valley Brook Co., both of Philadelphia, claimed $17,958 and $1,394 respectively. DBS Films, Inc., of King of Prussia, claimed $11,542.

The Freedom transferred their property and World Team Tennis franchise to the Boston Lobsters last March, the petition said.

Bugner takes holiday

KUALA LUMPUR (UPI) — European Heavyweight Champion Joe Bugner left Kuala Lumpur Thursday night for Los Angeles to join his wife and two children for a short holiday.

Bugner, defeated on a unanimous decision by Muhammad Ali in their world title fight here July 1, said he will gear up for his "toughest fight" with his 5-foot-2 wife Melody when they meet in California.

Bugner spoke to newsmen at his hotel prior to his departure. He said he hoped to get another crack at the world heavyweight title in Kuala Lumpur again depending on the outcome of the Ali-Joe Frazier fight in Manila on Oct. 1.

"If Joe Frazier beats Ali," said his manager-trainer Andy Smith, "I'm sure I can get Frazier to defend his world title against Bugner in Kuala Lumpur."

Penguins receive offer

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Jack Butten has finally found a way to wipe his hands of the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Now comes the hard part.

A group of Columbus, Ohio, investors, led by mortgage banker and hockey-team owner Al Savill, offered $3.8 million for the debt-ridden National Hockey League franchise and made a $190,000 down payment as a show of good faith.

But the deal must now be approved by Federal Judge Hubert Teltelbaum, who placed the Penguins in receivership last month when they could not meet payments on a debt of $6.5 million.

Walton returns to Lions

DETROIT (UPI) — Wide receiver Larry Walton, who had played up his option last season, has signed a new agreement with the Detroit Lions of the National Football League.

Walton, 26, caught 31 passes, his high with Detroit, for three touchdowns last season. He also returns kicks and is a favorite for Coach Rick Forzano's receiver reverse play.

"We're very pleased that Larry has decided to stay with the Lions," General Manager Russ Thomas said. "He had a fine season last year and we feel that he is just starting to show his many talents."

Walton ranks fifth among Lion receivers in all-time catches.

Morgan repeats honor

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds was named National League player of the month for June — the second time this year he has played the monthly honor.

Morgan also won the award in April. By repeating he joined Willie Mays (1958) and Willie Stargell (1971) as the only players to win two such awards in one year.

Morgan edged Philadelphia's Greg Luzinski (22) for the June award.

America sends second team against Soviets

KIEV, USSR (UPI) — The United States men fielded an admittedly second-rank team today for the two-day, controversy-shrouded Soviet-American track meet.

While trying to buy confidence among his athletes, Coach Lee Calhoun said he was pressing the Soviets to call off scoring of the match and let individuals stand on their own accomplishments.

The meet also was thrown into confusion by the sudden inclusion of a Bulgarian team, ending the traditional dual nature of the meet.

Calhoun said he was forced to assemble the men's team on short notice and said, "It could not be called a national squad."

He said the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union was trying urgently to bring champion sprinter Steve Williams from Rome for the 100 and 200-meter races.

The Russians announced simultaneously that their gold medal winning star Valery Borzov has been entered in the 100, 200 and 400-meter relay.

Calhoun placed his hopes on 22-year-old Mark Eyrault, who emerged undefeated from the AAU and NCAA meets in the 800-meter race.

While the American squad is mainly second-level, the Soviet team is one of the best they could field. In addition to Borzov, it includes Viktor Masnikov, holder of national records in the hurdle.

American planning efforts were cast into disarray when the AAU first canceled the meet in a television contract dispute with the Soviets.

Reading helps Wall take tourney lead

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Two weeks ago while most of his fellow golfers were at the U.S. Open, veteran Art Wall Jr., was at home in Pennsylvania trying to reconstruct his golf game.

One morning he woke up at 3 a.m., unable to sleep and sat down with a golf magazine. He credited what he read for his slim one-stroke lead Thursday in the second round of the Greater Milwaukee Open.

Rain halted play with nine threesomes still on the course, but Wall was on the final tee at 10 under-par and was the leader when play was suspended. Gibby Gilbert and Ken Sill were both in the clubhouse one stroke back at nine under-par 135.

Play will resume Friday morning with the nine threesomes beginning play where they left off Thursday. The third round will start at 11 a.m. from both tees with the cut determined after second round play is finished.

"I've been playing just feverishly and there was no use in my even entering the national Open," said Wall, 31, a former Masters champion. "One night during the Open I couldn't sleep. I was restless so I got up and picked up 'Golf World' magazine."

"There was an instructional series with David Graham analyzing Jack Nicklaus' swing. I saw something there that really helped me out."

Wall said he had read "The Book of Golf" by Bob Dwyer and "The Book of Golf" by Bob Dwyer and "The Book of Golf" by Bob Dwyer.

Homosexuals supported

Chicago Sun-Times
MINNEAPOLIS — The United Church of Christ has voted to support civil rights of homosexuals, abolition of a separate military justice system and unconditional amnesty for war resisters.

On the first day of the 12-million-member denomination's biennial general synod, 80 per cent of the delegates approved a resolution "proclaiming the Christian conviction that all persons are entitled to full civil liberties and equal protection under the law." The document does not endorse or condemn homosexuality but "recognizes that a person's affectional or sexual preferences are not legitimate grounds for discrimination or for civil rights."

Acting on the recommendation of a task force on ministries to military personnel, the synod overwhelmingly approved a resolution favoring the "abolition of a separate military law code and judicial system."

Supporters of the action declared that the American soldier is the victim of a system of justice that "is neither American nor just."

Armed forces personnel, they pointed out, can be tried on charges that have no counterpart in the civilian justice system. During the Vietnam War period, for example, some military personnel were charged with showing "disrespect for a superior officer" because they registered their dissent with the nation's war policies.

In its call for "general amnesty," the synod urged President Ford to grant amnesty to draft resisters, military deserters and civilian war protesters who participated in nonviolent resistance.

Further, the resolution states that amnesty and retroactive nonmilitary discharges should be granted to certain present and former military personnel for honorable discharges for "military offenses."

Adventists fight alcoholism war

TWIN FALLS — With alcoholism increasing in the United States by 250,000 annually, the temperance department of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination has stepped up its emphasis on alcohol education.

Latest film to be released by the department, "I'm Sorry, Baby," is going well, reports S.D. Francisco, pastor of the Twin Falls Seventh-Day Adventist Church. Another documentary film is in the hopper.

Erancisco says, "I believe the answer to alcoholism must be a positive approach rather than a scare tactic. We must know how life can be lived more fully without alcohol, narcotics and tobacco."

Alcoholism, Francisco declares, "has become a serious problem. There are eight or nine million alcoholics in the United States today, and each one adversely affects eight or ten other people — families, fellow workers, other motorists, taxpayers."

The temperance program, Francisco says, aims at creating an awareness of the problems and of how to live happily without "such crutches" as alcohol, tobacco or other drugs. It does this through production of magazines as well as films, slide programs and posters. All of these, he points out, can be used in schools, fitting into the pattern of reaching the young mind with facts before unhealthy habits are formed.

The new film being prepared by the temperance department, Francisco says, will "among other things, show how parents who use tobacco, alcohol or other narcotics endanger the well-being of their unborn children."

Lutheran delegates face controversy

TWIN FALLS — Dave SchorZman, Twin Falls, and Rev. Andrew Loesel, Idaho Falls, left this week for Anaheim, Calif., where they will represent Lutheran congregations of the Magic Valley and the area near Yellowstone at the 51st regular convention of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod.

The two will be part of a total of 32 voting delegates plus a advisory delegate who will attend the biennial convention meeting at Anaheim's Convention Center today through July 11 from the northwest district of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod.

The synod's northwest district comprises the states of Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Alaska.

Of special interest to delegates at this year's convention will be an attempt to resolve a doctrinal controversy which flared up following the demonstration's 1973 convention at New Orleans.

In protest to action taken at the convention, a majority of the faculty of the church's largest theological seminary walked out. The "seminary" was named "Seminary" and formed what has been called a "seminary-brother" (Sombrex).

The president, Dr. John H. Tietjen, was charged with malfeasance of office and condoning the teaching of false doctrine and has since been suspended by the seminary's board of control.

Individuals and congregations have since rallied around and deposited seminary head and the newly formed "Sombrex" which poses a threatened split in the 126-year old synod.

Vortex of the doctrinal controversy centers on the use of the so-called historical critical method of Bible interpretation and its implications by faculty members of the church's theological training schools.

A document written by Dr. Jacob A.O. Paulsen, president of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod, which sought to identify the issues and restate the historic Lutheran confessional position and which was adopted by delegates to the 1973 convention, has also been the object of considerable protest.

US flag used as symbol

TWIN FALLS — The American flag was used by Mrs. Larry Brose, devotional leader, as a symbol of the freedom Christians have in Christ at the July meeting of the "Lutheran Women's Missionary League" on July 2 meeting Tuesday.

She pointed out the red is reminiscent of sacrifice — the shedding of Christ's blood for the remission of sin; while stands for purity; and the stars in the flag are a reminder of the most famous star in all the world — the star of Bethlehem which shone down where the child lay — the star which pointed its light toward the Christ child who was born to make mankind free.

She said this is a nation under God — of the people, for the people and by the people. She said, "Let us as Christians in this country work to preserve this freedom by being patriotic, obedient, law-abiding citizens."

There, Brose, under a filmstrip on the work of the braille workers for the blind, was the background of a talk-demonstration given by Mrs. C.V. Hovey and Mrs. Gerald Heinke, certified braille transcribers.

The braille writer — similar in construction to a typewriter — was demonstrated to the group. The league is purchasing a braille writer for the use of Mrs. Hovey. They also purchased the one presently being used by Mrs. Heinke.

Mrs. Gerald Martens was accepted as a new member of the league.

Mrs. Arnold Werner reported on the international LWML convention to be held in St. Paul, Minn., on July 21-24.

Mrs. Clarence Degeer, Kimberly, will be the delegate from this zone.

Mrs. Edwin Bruhe reported on the Good Shepherd Idaho Unit Executive Board meeting that was held recently. She announced there would be a chuck wagon and auction held

One of his responsibilities will be working with some of the church youth groups, plus assisting — Father — Thomas Laley as needed.

Non-candidate Ford campaigns

By Newhouse News Service

CLEVELAND — President Ford has opened his campaign for nomination and election to a full term in office before his formal announcement that he is a candidate, and the keynote is "a fresh start" combined with a battle against a do-nothing Congress.

In a purely political address here and in a non-political speech in Cincinnati, the President laid the groundwork for his campaigns against Congress and the spending policies of the New Deal. His preoccupation with the depression days of Franklin D. Roosevelt stems from the nation's present economic conditions.

"What we need in this country is not a New Deal but a fresh start," Ford said. "The New Deal was a Republican program from 1890 to 1930, with the chief executive, Woodrow Wilson."

"The depression policies of the 1930s — on which Democratic-controlled Congresses have based their program ever since — cannot solve the problems of the 1970s. If those policies were effective in their day, they are old and tired and ineffective now."

This sort of rhetoric was expected at a political speech. But Ford's defense of his policies was a surprise as he addressed the latest in a series of White House domestic and economic conferences. Ford has used the veto 33 times, six of them this year. Congress has overridden him three times, all in 1974.

But Ford noted that Harry Truman exercised the veto 259 times (12 Congressional overrides) and Dwight D. Eisenhower 181 times (16 were overridden only twice).

"The American people have a right to expect their President to protect their interests," Ford said in Cincinnati. "That is one reason the veto power exists in the Constitution and why I will use it when necessary."

Ford said that he would work with Congress — which he accused of "sitting around and twiddling its thumbs" — to come up with better legislation every time he vetoes a bill and his action is sustained by "most Republicans and some discerning Democrats."

The President made two speeches in Cincinnati before coming here — in a rough 40-minute flight marked even more when his plane blew a tire as it taxied down the runway at Hopkins Airport here — to assume his political role.

This was a role he seemed to enjoy. He was effusive as he told the Cleveland Republicans some jokes, gave them a dose of politics and a "huge" serving of patriotism and idealism one always expects on the eve of Independence Day.

His first stop was to dedicate an environmental laboratory building at the University of Cincinnati, and he worked the crowd before sitting through other speeches and delivering his own in 93-degree weather under an air inversion which has kept Cincinnati in a pollution alert for a week.

When he went inside to meet with representatives of environmental groups, he doffed his suit coat, disclosing a shirt drenched with sweat. The building is not yet air conditioned, and Ford perspired freely while two window fans did nothing to cool things down.

The Cuyahoga County Republicans had billed this as an "Independence festival supper" and not a political event.

But the White House recognized it for what it was and Press Secretary Ronald Nessen announced that the Republican National Committee would pay the entire transportation cost.

Ford gesture stresses point

Ex-POW's re-enact holiday pageant

MONUMENT — Color — UPI — It was July 4th, 1971, in a North Vietnamese prison camp.

Air Force Lt. Col. Tom Storey, shot down more than four years earlier, decided to stage a celebration show to tell the history of the United States.

His fellow captives were the actors — and they recaptured patriotic songs and verse. One prisoner of war recited the Gettysburg Address.

The North Vietnamese kept us pretty busy during except at Christmas time and the Fourth of July," said Storey, now stationed at the Air Force Academy. "They considered July 4th as our revolutionary day. They look on revolution a little different than we do and because of that, they let us celebrate it."

Today, Storey has rounded up — friends, neighbors and castles from the academy, to recreate that Independence Day program at the Hanol Hillen four years ago.

He said he hopes it leaves his fellow Americans with a little more pride in their country and helps them realize how good the nation really is.

"I thought a lot about my country up there," Storey said. "I got home and saw a lot of changes, sort of like the Rip Van Winkle syndrome. We have a lot of deviousness and we're not united.

"My motto now is let's get together and put 'united' back into the United States of America. If we don't think enough of ourselves to get out and celebrate the past and the future, we're making a big mistake."

Storey, who was shot down over North Vietnam Jan. 17, 1967, said he based the program entirely on memory since he never was allowed a pencil or paper until the final two weeks he was a captive. "It's the history of our country in song and verse," Storey said. "It's broken down into 10 different acts and ends with the Vietnam era."

Officer suspended

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A disciplinary board Thursday suspended policeman Phillip Berry for 10 days without pay for making a sexual advance to his patrol car partner, the first such case in the history of the department.

The charges were brought by Officer Candice Fisher, 22, one of the first women assigned to the "missus" program to break down sex barriers in the police department.

A board of three captains, after two days of testimony, found Berry guilty of making verbal suggestions to Officer Fisher that they engage in sex. But he was acquitted of more serious charges of actual sexual misconduct, including an attempt to force Officer Fisher into a patrol car position and "thrusting his penis against her in a sexually aggressive manner."

Berry, 31, a bachelor, allegedly committed the offenses when he and Miss Fisher were on patrol in August and October last year.

Reporters were barred from the hearing, apparently at the request of Miss Fisher. A police spokesman said the affair was closed because the one of the witnesses "felt too embarrassed to testify if reporters were present."

$25 fine pays off big

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — It cost David G. Ness a $25 fine but he managed to get out of Minnesota with two million firecrackers estimated to be worth $50,000.

Fireworks are illegal in Minnesota.

Two weeks ago Ness pleaded guilty in Hennepin County Municipal Court to illegally storing 83 cases of fireworks in downtown Minneapolis. He was fined $25 and told by Judge Dolta Pierce that he could have the fireworks, which had been confiscated by police, if he could get them out of state.

Normally illegal fireworks are destroyed, but an assistant city attorney said disposing of 1.5 tons of fireworks posed a problem.
