Low Gem cancer deaths

MEN and women in Idaho have low cancer death rates. Cancer death rates for all kinds of cancer show no Idaho areas have death rates higher than national averages. The areas shaded gray are areas with near average cancer death rates. The white areas are those with significantly lower death rates than the national average. The map on the left is for white men and the map on the right for white women.

TWIN FALLS — Idaho residents are much less likely to die of cancer than people living elsewhere in the country.

In fact Idaho cancer death rate is so low that only two states have lower rates.

Idaho is particularly healthy for men in comparison to men in other states.

The cancer death rate for white males in Idaho is 136.61 per cent per year per 100,000 people. The national rate is 27 per cent higher, or 174.04 per cent per 100,000.

Although women have a lower death rate from cancer than do men, their advantage from living in Idaho is less.

Idaho white women's death rate is 115.1. The national average for white women is 130.1, 13 per cent above Idaho's rate.

The figures on cancer death rates come from a new study by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It calculated death rates from information on death certificates, according to county of usual residence.

The study involves six million cancer deaths from 1950-1969.

Idaho's mortality rate for all cancers among white males was higher than New Mexico and Utah and far lower than national average. For white females, the rate was lower in Utah and North Carolina and below the national average.

Non-white males' cancer death rate in Idaho was also third lowest, topping only New Mexico and Wyoming and only about two-thirds of the national rate. Non-white female deaths from cancer were higher than only New Mexico and Utah and only about three-fourths of the national rate.

Idaho's overall cancer rate for non-white males was 123.62 people, compared to 184.28 nationwide. For non-white females, Idaho's rate was 109.27, compared to 139.18 nationwide.

The director of a cancer research and treatment institute in Boise had a word of caution about making too much of the low figures.

"I do not think it would really be fair to make a tremendous thing out of it,"

Dr. Charles E. Smith, director of research and radiation oncologist at Mountain States Tumor Institute said today.

He said that the cancer reporting system had only been complete in the last few years in Idaho, and the true incident of cancer over the entire period of the study was unknown in Idaho. Other states, especially western states, have had a more complete cancer-reporting system for "many years," he said.

Idaho's relatively high population of Mormons indicates that the low rate may be reliable, however. "From information around Salt Lake, it seems that Mormons in general have lower incidents of cancer," Smith said. Not smoking and "possibly" not drinking have contributed to a low rate of many kinds of cancer, he said.

For some kinds of cancer, Idaho can't be compared with other states, according to Smith. Cancer of the testes, for instance, has the second-highest rate in the nation in Idaho, but at 99 per 100,000 people it is "an unusual and relatively rare cancer."

Women in general have a much lower cancer rate than men, he said. Lung cancer occurs far more often in men, mainly because men smoke a lot more than women, Smith said. He speculated that men's exposure to more close environments in office work contributed to the higher incidence of lung cancer, although men who worked outdoors as farmers or loggers were probably more prone to skin cancer than women.

TF County zoners OK housing complex

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Thursday the Twin Falls County Zoning Commission approved "in concept" a proposed 79-acre residential complex on the northeast corner of Falls Avenue East and Eastland Drive.

The proposed development, which received unanimous approval by the zoning board, must still be approved by the county commissioners, the Twin Falls City Zoning Board and the City Council before it can be built.

As outlined, the development would consist of 132 single-family dwellings clustered around 186 multi-family townhouses and 64 apartment units.

The development would add roughly 1,200 persons to the area and require 500 or more vehicles.

It would be built in four phases, beginning with single-family units and some multi-family units and ending after as much as 10 years with more apartments and townhouses.

Planners envision the development would be annexed by the city and would be dependent upon city sewer and water.

In approving the development, the county zoning board gave the nod to the proposed residential complex as a development concept appropriate under the county's Planned Unit Development (PUD) ordinance.

The approval did not touch upon further restrictions to be placed on the project, although county zoning administrator Ed Woods assured neighboring landowners the project would be approved floor plan by floor plan — at least in the case of multi-family units — before it could be constructed.

The zoning board's approval followed a public hearing in which objections to the proposal development were voiced by several neighboring or nearby landowners.

Professional planner Mike Wardle of J-U-B Engineers, which is designing the project for Snake River Enterprises, presented schematics on the project and assured landowners the development was "completely" in present residential development along Falls and Eastland.

TF humidity high

TWIN FALLS — Although cloud cover has lowered temperatures slightly today, U. S. Weather Bureau officials say increased humidity will keep the level of discomfort high.

Temperatures Thursday continued in the 100s around several Magic Valley areas but generally were down a few degrees. King Hill, the area's hot spot, reported 105 compared to a 112 earlier in the week. Tuttle had 102 while Twin Falls and Kimberly reported 93 and 91 respectively.

Rain showers early this morning also caused some cooling today and weather officials say some additional cooling may follow for the weekend.

Moisture of about .01 of an inch fell in this area while King Hill had .25 of an inch in storms last night.

Portugal party asks huddle

LISBON (UPI) — The Popular Democratic Party requested an urgent meeting with President Francisco de Costa Gomes today to determine whether to stay in the Portuguese government or follow the Socialists in withdrawing.

The Socialist Party withdrew from the coalition government Thursday and opted to struggle against the creation of a Communist dictatorship in the country.

Socialist leader Mario Soares, a minister without portfolio in the cabinet, announced the pullout at a rally of 5,000 cheering followers Thursday night.

"We will never accept a dictatorship because we never accepted it in the past," Soares said.

Soares' announcement prompted the left-center Popular Democratic to request the meeting with Costa Gomes to decide if they too should leave the three-party coalition government.

"It all depends on the military's position today," a senior party source said. "Everything is on a razor's edge."

CIA 'contact' cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alexander M. Butterfield, who disclosed existence of the secret White House tapes two years ago and thus speeded the downfall of Richard M. Nixon, was a CIA "contact officer" when he was on the White House staff, a former Air Force colonel said today.

Fletcher Prouty, who said he served as liaison between the Air Force and the Central Intelligence Agency for nine years, said he learned that Butterfield was working with the CIA.

From E. Howard Hunt, a former CIA agent and one of the original Watergate defendants.

Prouty said he "would doubt Nixon or anyone else really knew it."

Prouty, who was interviewed on both the CBS Morning News and NBC's Today Show, was asked if there is "any doubt in your mind that Alexander Butterfield was the man with CIA connections who went to the White House staff and his CIA connections persisted at the time he was on the White House staff?"

"No, I've never had any doubts about that," Prouty responded.

He said, however, he never talked with Butterfield directly in any context regarding the CIA.

Butterfield, a former Air Force colonel who resigned recently as head of the Federal Aviation Administration, was unavailable for comment. But Butterfield's wife emphatically denied her husband had any connection with the CIA.

On July 16, 1973, Butterfield told the Senate Watergate Committee of the type system installed in the White House. It was that revelation that led to the fight over who could hear the tapes and eventually to Nixon's resignation as president.

The issue of CIA infiltration of the White House was first raised Wednesday when two members of the House Intelligence Committee said they had been told of secret evidence that the CIA had a long standing practice of "penetrating the White House, other government agencies and the news media. They said one of the CIA operatives was a top-level aid to Nixon.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen and CIA Director William E. Colby both strongly denied the allegations Thursday.

Nessen told reporters that none of the CIA personnel currently assigned to the White House was working "in any hidden or undercover role and I have been told in the past there never has been."

Ford files finance report
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has filed his first official campaign finance fund report. In ten days he raised $16,000 and spent nearly two-thirds of it.

The President's Finance Committee report was among hundreds flooding the Federal Election Commission as it observed its first filing deadline under the new campaign spending law.

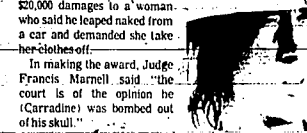

'Boom-and-bust' prices warned
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ford administration farm policies are leaving farmers and consumers open to boom-and-bust price cycles, the chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee charged today.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., lecturing Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz at a committee hearing, told him a crop report Thursday predicting record grain harvests was good news but "it continues the storm warnings on the price side."

"...the bottom line is uncertainty, instability and unacceptable risk — for farmers and for consumers," Talmadge told Butz.

'Kung Fu' star charged
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — David Carradine, star of the "Kung Fu" television series, was ordered Thursday to pay $20,000 damages to a woman who said he leaped naked from a car and demanded she take her clothes off.

In making the award, Judge Francis Marnell said "the court is of the opinion he (Carradine) was bombed out of his skull."

House rejects SST ban
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, in approving a $4.7 billion Transportation Department appropriations measure, rejected efforts Thursday to ban foreign supersonic transport flights into the United States.

The House also refused to roll back the maximum legal weight of trucks on interstate highways to 1974 levels.

The appropriations measure, which was sent to the Senate, would finance the Transportation Department and related agencies such as the Civil Aeronautics Board, U.S. Railway Association and the Interstate Commerce Commission for the fiscal year that began July 1.

Lightning claims Ketchum youth, 9

KETCHUM — A Ketchum youth was killed by lightning Thursday as he huddled with members of his family beneath a tree to escape a storm northeast of Sun Valley.

Eric Stecher, 9, Helen Meadows, was pronounced dead on arrival at Morris Community Hospital late Thursday afternoon after being struck by lightning about 3 p.m.

The boy had been camping with his mother Mrs. Gene Steiner, and his younger brother Roger, 5, and a friend of the family Sue Peterson, for two days in the vicinity of the Corral Creek drainage. The family was on a Pioneer Cabin Trail about two and one-half miles north and three miles east of Sun Valley when the incident occurred.

The other three were all treated for slight burns at the hospital and released.

According to the Blaine County sheriff's report, the family took shelter under a tree to avoid a rainstorm. Burn marks on one hand and one foot might indicate the boy was holding to a tree limb as lightning hit the main trunk, according to the report.

Sheriff Orville Drexler said he did not think the boy was struck directly. The boy was taken to the hospital by his parents.

Two family dogs also were killed by lightning.

Gem agency pays premium for Rupert building

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Moving all its Rupert offices to a central building will be over seven times more expensive for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare than the old arrangement of separate offices.

A department document estimates HAW will spend $29,000 to $30,000 a year for rent and utilities for its central office building, the newly remodelled "Colonial Offices."

Up until just 10 days ago, the same HAW services were located in separate buildings which cost only $4,000 a year for rent and utilities.

Until July 1 Minidoka County had paid the $4,000 for housing all but the Mental Health Center and the city of Rupert had donated office space for this.

Considering the utilities and janitorial services as well as the rent, the cost of maintaining the new offices amounts to more than seven times the cost when the city and county alone were providing the space.

An HAW document on the "Justification for lease agreement" shows that the department expects to pay $11,544 for electricity, water and sewage, telephone, janitorial services and building supplies for the building.

The estimate was put together by Scott Cunningham, HAW regional manager of administrative services, and sent to HAW's regional director Milton Kline and HAW's director James Bax before the department gave final approval of the lease.

Wednesday the Times-News reported that HAW had signed the 10-year $180,000 lease on the Rupert building which county records showed was worth only $75,500.

Cunningham had said before the article was published that he could not estimate the cost of utilities for the building until he had some actual experience in estimating them.

Thursday, when asked about the document showing that he had made an estimate, Cunningham said that the figures were subject to change and that before he made any of them public he wanted to be more sure that they were exact.

Despite the cost, Cunningham defended the department's leasing the building.

He said the county would be chipping in $4,000 a year and that federal funds could be found for paying many of the utilities as well as the rent. So, the state would not pay the whole $30,000 a year, he said.

Besides, Cunningham maintained, the advantages offered in the building cannot be measured in strictly economic terms.

Colonial Offices, he said, provides "one-door service" since all but one of the department's services in Rupert are located in one building. Instead of being scattered, this makes the offices more accessible, he said.

Also, he said, there are individual offices for each employee in the building. This, he said, tends to privacy, which is often necessary in HAW casework. Previously, he said, often the only privacy available was afforded by mere partitions between desks of employees.

Gem health aide faces charges

BOISE (UPI) — A state health official is scheduled to appear in magistrate's court Tuesday on charges he made threatening and annoying telephone calls to the man who succeeded him in a district health job.

Ulisse C. Pardini, a health planning supervisor for the Department of Health and Welfare, is accused of making the calls to Dr. James A. Hirschfeld, director of the Central District Health Department.

Hirschfeld succeeded Pardini as district health director last Jan. 13.

TF woman denied old job

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — The State Department of Employment has refused to reinstate a Twin Falls woman despite a state Human Rights Commission ruling that she had been discriminated against by sex.

The Employment Department more than a year ago by Betty Hoppe now appears headed for the courts.

Glenn Nicholas, executive director of the Department of Employment, said today his agency will not accept the recommendations of the Human Rights Commission. The commission has recommended "Mrs. Hoppe be reinstated and receive back pay plus interest for the time since she terminated her work there in December, 1973."

Nichols told the Times-News today his departments feels strongly there was no sex discrimination in the Hoppe case.

"Our position is one of fact and see what happens," he said. "The Human Rights Commission told us they would take the matter to court if we did not follow their recommendations and our only reasonable course is to deny the recommendations and wait for court action," Nichols said.

He said other recommendations from the Human Rights Commission regarding more promotions and better opportunities for women and minority employees are being carried out by them.

He said since he became department director in March there have been a number of women employees and Rudy Pena, a Chicano, has been hired to a new position as affirmative action officer. His job is to review the department's advancement program and to recommend promotions and the filling of new positions for women and minority groups.

Charles Nicholas, director of the Human Rights Commission, said if the Department of Employment failed to follow recommendations, he would ask the Twin Falls County prosecutor to file a court action. This morning Nicholas said he will wait until next week, hoping to work out a conciliation with the Department of Employment.

"If we can't work out some solution, I will ask for court action from the Twin Falls county prosecuting attorney," he said.

County prosecutor William A. Hoffstedt, currently on vacation, said earlier he would file the court action on behalf of the Human Rights Commission and Mrs. Hoppe if asked to do so.

Mrs. Hoppe, who said she has hoped throughout the past year and one half for a conciliation with the state agency, said she will not take action herself. It will await advice and action from the Human Rights Commission.

Widow of CIA victim frustrated, angry

FREDERICK, Md. (UPI) — Mrs. Frank Olson says she does not feel bitter against the U.S. government. But she was overwhelmed with grief, frustration and anger when she learned her husband died 22 years ago after a CIA experiment with LSD.

She said her three adult children told a news conference Thursday at her home the family struggled for years to understand how Frank Olson, a devoted husband and loving father, could have crashed to his death in 1953 through a "New York Times" window.

connection to anything we or his friends had known of, until an "Upper Merion" newspaper said: "Mrs. Olson knew at the time her husband went to New York for psychiatric treatment of a mental illness which seemed to be related to his top-secret work."

His death was officially reported at the time as resulting from "multiple fractures, shock hemorrhage."

Nearly 22 years later, the Rockefeller Commission report on CIA abuses disclosed one unidentified person died as a result of a CIA experiment with LSD in 1953.

A friend called Mrs. Olson's attention to a newspaper article about the report. Mrs. Olson said she felt instinctively the victim was her husband, a civilian biochemist who had been employed on a biological warfare project with CIA connections.

From out of the past, a former colleague of her husband's, who had been in an Upper Merion newspaper, confirmed the man who plummeted from the window was Frank Olson.

"This man whom Mrs. Olson declined to identify had remained silent for more than two decades because he feared violating a secrecy pledge and possibly losing his job."

"At first I had a tremendous feeling of relief, and then deep sorrow. The grief was overwhelming," she said.

"No, I don't feel bitter against the government, no, indeed. But you can understand that I don't have much trust for the CIA."

The family called the news conference to announce they will sue the CIA for several million dollars — worth of punitive and compensatory damages for the "brutal death."

The older son, Eric, 30, who is doing psychology research at Harvard University, said there were still mysterious aspects about the experiment

Why was he allowed to stay with an escort in a New York hotel room instead of being taken to a psychiatric institute when he was judged by Dr. Harold Alexander, Abramson, the New York psychiatrist treating him, to be "totally irrational?"

Why was no physician in attendance at the experiment during which two CIA agents administered LSD in after-merion drinks — without their knowledge or consent — to five scientists to observe their reactions?

Why did the Rockefeller report, in a footnote, say the man who jumped out the window had a history of mental problems when his family had never noticed abnormal behavior? Olson had never before visited a psychiatrist.

The New York police briefly held Olson's escort in jail. Mrs. Olson said, and then released him without pressing charges.

Court removes woman judge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A mini-skirted municipal judge, who called a police officer a "male chauvinist pig" and threatened to give him "a vasectomy with a 38 pistol," has been removed from the bench by the California Superior Court.

The state's highest court, ordered Los Angeles Municipal Judge Noel Cannon, 46, from office effective immediately, but said that if otherwise qualified she could continue to practice law.

"The court found her guilty of 11 counts of malicious and willful misconduct and eight other charges. It said she had engaged in a course of conduct which has 'impinged' the judicial office and clearly establishes her lack of temperament and ability to perform judicial functions in a reasonable manner."

The judge, who created fellow jurors by showing off her trim figure by wearing miniskirts, has been inactive since March 3 when the State Commission on Judicial Qualifications recommended her dismissal. The Supreme Court accepted the Commission's recommendation.

In one case she was admonished by a police officer for excessive blowing of her out-pouch horn. When she got to her court, she sent her bailiffs to bring in the officer, whom she called a "male chauvinist pig."

She told the bailiffs, "I'm going to castrate him. Give me a gun. I'm going to give him a vasectomy with a 38 pistol."

She became only the third judge in California to be removed from the bench.

Among other things, Judge Cannon was found to have arbitrarily sent lawyers to jail for contempt without signing an order and specifying the term as required by law. The result was the attorneys were booked as criminals and could not file an appeal. They obtained their release by habeas corpus writs.

She was also charged with being unreasonable in setting bail and issuing warrants.

At her hearing, the judge's attorney argued she was overworked and "judges are human like the rest of us."

The Supreme Court, in its ruling said: "It is impossible in any event that a lack in the quality of justice cannot be balanced by the fact that justice, such as it is, is administered in large quantities."

Most MV camp areas now open

TWIN FALLS — Campers should be able to find camping facilities in nearly all areas of the Sawtooth National Forest this weekend.

South of Burley the roads to Lake Cleveland, Thompson Flat and Brackenbury Campground are still closed. Snow blocks these areas as well as the roads to Independence Lakes. The road is now open to City of Rocks, however, but some side roads are still muddy.

In the South Hills the main Rock Creek Canyon road has been graded and roads and campgrounds are open with the exception of Big Cedar and Fawn Springs where roads have washed out. The road from Rogerson to Oakley and Monument Peak is now open.

Campgrounds in the area above Fairfield are all open except Abbot which still has some areas under water. Final surfacing and grading are underway on the road from Little to Big Smoky. Logging trucks may be encountered during week days on the road from Fennerville over Couch Summit.

In the Ketchum area, Warm Springs road is open to the base of Dollarhide, about 22 miles, and is then blocked by snow. Road maintenance is underway on Trall Creek Summit. Baker Lake is open but trails and lake areas above 4,500 feet are still snowbound.

Lakes which have become accessible since warmer temperatures began include the first Cabin Creek Lakes, the first three Bench Lakes, Lower Goat Lake, lower Cramer Lake, Hell Roaring, Yellowbelly and Farley Lakes. Snowy passes and other alpine passes are not yet recommended for travel. Tokway and Altee lakes are still partially frozen.

All areas in Sawtooth Valley are open except Mountain View, campsite at Little Redfish Lake. Pale Creek road is closed at Grand Price

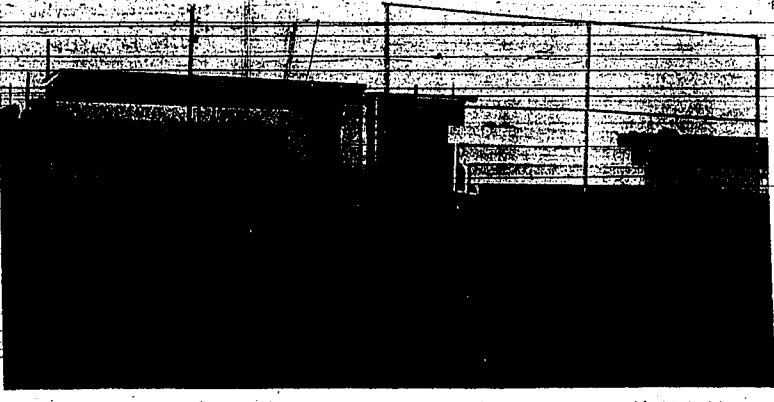

Junction. Fourth of July road is still closed after seven miles and East Fork road is open 15 just below Bowery Guard Station.

Forest officials have established a new solid waste disposal system in many of the campsites. One large garbage collection unit has been set up in a centralized location in each campsite.

Campers are asked to bring their own containers to transfer their garbage to the central collection area in the campgrounds.

Closure orders are now in effect for motorized vehicles. Maps are available from the forest service offices showing all trails and routes which are closed.

Work progresses on new Wendell park.

Wendell gets park funds

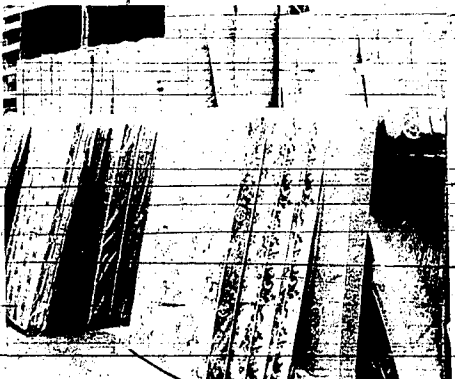

WENDELL — The city of Wendell has received reimbursement of $1,182.73 for work completed at McGinnis Park.

Gwen Collett, city clerk, said this check covers part of the expense for bleachers and either tennis or baseball courts.

The Idaho Parks and Recreation Department provides matching funds as local money is obtained. Mrs. Collett said. "But since the available city tax money for recreation is used in maintenance of the "Little park" and the current recreation program, the only local money for the development of McGinnis Park has to come from donations and this is a slow process," she said.

The land, donated to the city some years ago, is directly east of the city limits and across the road from the new physical education complex of the Wendell High School. Development so far includes restrooms, a gravelled parking area and construction of bleachers.

KH Grange to study land bills

KING HILL — King Hill Grange members decided at a Wednesday meeting to study some land-use planning bills which a Cascade organization has said are unconstitutional.

The Citizens for Better Government of Cascade asked Grange members to reject all federal, regional, county or state land-use plans, saying that pending land-use planning bills would have an adverse effect on farmers.

Grange Master Frank Jones appointed H.J. McKee and Denver Allred to study the bills.

The group also decided to have Jones ask the Elmore County Fair Board to do something about the lack of restrooms at the county fairgrounds.

Fantasy world only compounds wrongs of past

WASHINGTON — The Macmillan Publishing Co. delivered itself the other day of a policy statement expounding "today's egalitarian standards." The statement sets forth guidelines for textbooks that are given its authors and illustrators hereafter. The purpose is likely to be received in most quarters, publicly at least, with the kind of fulsome and dutiful praise extended by Fraydas to the utterances of Mr. Bushmeyer or, that matter, by the American Conservative Union to the utterances of Mr. Reagan. In the popular view of "today's egalitarian standards," Macmillan has said and done the right thing. The publishers have confessed their sins, repented and embarked upon a new life. They are born-again egalitarians. A holy spirit moves within them. Permit me, if you will, a dissenting view. Macmillan's guidelines ought to be developed in what they are: a willful exercise in intellectual dishonesty. The company is insisting that its textbooks depict society not as it is, but as the publishers, in the fantasies of their "newly raised consciousness," would like it to be. Their purpose in producing textbooks is not primarily to teach, to inform, to instruct, or to educate, but to propagandize for a new social order. The guidelines begin with a preface by Dr. Martina S. Harper, president of Ruffdiddle College. She speaks for those who are struggling for a "more egalitarian society." The achievement of such a society is hampered by the "tyranny of the norm," which is to say, by a tyranny that seeks to enforce upon young people irrelevant, inaccurate, and outdated stereotypes about the roles they are expected to play. Dr. Harper would abolish such norms. Through a process of education to counteract the stereotyping, she would rid society of false notions, for example, of what is manly or womanly. In the new egalitarian society, a woman who exhibited "competition in dependence, intellectual competence, and leadership" no longer would be regarded as a victim of mental instability. Macmillan's editors are raring to go. They offer examples of their new publishing philosophy. Because more than one-half of the population is female, illustrators should see that females are represented appropriately hereafter. In the bad old days of textbook illustration, a drawing might have appeared of "mother sewing while dad reads." Under the new egalitarian standards, Macmillan wants a drawing of "mother working at her desk while dad reads or clears the dining room table." In the sinful past, an unagreeable illustrator, his consciousness not yet raised, might have depicted "mother bringing sandwiches to dad as he fixes the roof." No more! New textbooks will depict "mother fixing the roof." Once a textbook might have shown "boys playing ball, girls watching." Such inaccurate, irrelevant and unneeded depictions are now condemned.

Macmillan deserves "both sexes playing ball; sooner or later boys watching girls' team play." Macmillan is not bothered by intellectual fraud: "We are more interested in emphasizing what can be, rather than the negatives that still exist... The fact that black persons do not yet hold a proportionate share of executive positions should not prevent us, from depicting a sizable number of blacks as executives." Now, for the record, there is of course much in Macmillan's position that is admirable. It is perfectly true that for generations our textbooks ignored Negroes, depicted feathered Indians in tepees, put blankets on indolent Mexicans, and consigned darling little white girls to the endless baking of cherry pies. It is altogether desirable to abandon or to modify practices both cruel and stupid. But the wrong is not corrected. It is merely reversed and compounded by imposing educational policies of three white girls, two black girls, three white boys, and a Chinese shortstop? Children are wiser than we think. Looking at such an illustration, children will not say, "What a beautiful egalitarian ideal! They will say, "What a fake!"

CIA in the White House

What the CIA does best — it apparently does everywhere. It spies best, and it spies on U.S. citizens, the press, Congress, executive agencies. Now we learn it spies on the President.

The story of a CIA agent planted illegally in the White House without President Nixon's knowledge is yet another indication of the dangers of a powerful agency combined with secrecy and poor public oversight.

It is not particularly surprising that the CIA would be tempted to infiltrate the White House in its own self interest.

But it is scary to hear that the chairman of the House committee charged with keeping an eye on the CIA, Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D. Mich., had been informed of the White House infiltration but apparently took no action to report or stop the practice.

The report of the Congressional acceptance of illegal CIA spying on the President came from two disgruntled members of the House committee investigating the CIA. The truth of their claims has yet to be proven.

However, should their reports be founded it should be enough to alert every citizen of the need for effective control over the agencies supposedly serving the public.

Either the public will control the CIA and its like, or these powerful independent organizations will control the public.

Candidate president

Christian Science Monitor

President Ford has announced his candidacy for next year's presidential race at a moment when his popularity and self-assurance in office are still on the rise.

As many cautious political observers are pointing out, more time remains up to November, 1976, than has passed since Mr. Ford took office. A hard turn in events in the Midwest, another oil crisis, any unforeseen shift along the major fault-lines of the world's political crisis, could provide a test of leadership that would decisively strengthen or weaken the President's political base at home.

Similarly on the domestic front, traditionally more critical in political competition than foreign issues, there will be a flow of events, benign or difficult, to test Mr. Ford's leadership. Niggling unemployment and the chronic energy problem at this point seem the most likely challenges to Ford's popularity. Special issues, such as the anguish over school busing programs in cities like Boston, could sharply color the emotional context of the 1976 race as they did in 1972 and 1980.

There is no reason to think that Mr. Ford would not be able, on balance, to turn future challenges to political advantage as he has to date. He did, after all, take over a White House disgraced and dispirited by scandal. Mr. Ford's first major policy priority — the economic summit and his first energy plan — went nowhere. But his earnest manner, at first hesitant but now more confident, has created a sense of interest and purpose in the executive branch. And in recent weeks he has been scoring significant policy successes.

To show Mr. Ford has thus far earned his right to bid for his party's nomination. He likely will not have the race all to himself. Within his party, those even more conservative than Mr. Ford will perhaps want to measure him against California's Ronald Reagan. More centrist or progressive Republican candidates may want to see how they stand up against him.

Outside his party, a Wallace third party candidacy could damage Republican more than Democratic prospects. If the Democrats can find a candidate, at least for the second spot on the ticket, who can appeal to Southern and working class conservatives, they could perhaps build those votes which gave Mr. Nixon his overwhelming edge in 1972. It is good political strategy for Mr. Ford to see, as he did when sworn in and again when announcing his candidacy, that he intends to remain President of all the people. More importantly, however, one hopes that in his campaign he will seek not only to pave the way for himself, but to restore a healthy interest in political affairs in the electorate. The public's confidence in politics and politicians today is appallingly low. A forthright, all-views-pointed campaign, which can be expected from Mr. Ford, could be of great help to the country, whether he wins or loses.

"You win again, effendi"

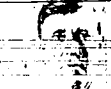

Successful vacationing elusive goal

N. Y. Times Service
For years I struggled to become a successful vacationer. Nothing worked. Golf seemed a bit too much. I went to Europe with bankrupts. Fishing? Oh, I wanted to fish all night. All the great vacationers fished, and I wanted to be one of the greats, but what I got was a pair of pants. I had to take it, and the great vacationers swore and decreed. They said, "Look, the glazed eye with which I contemplated combat with the cunning trout, the distaste with which I dislodged the remittance-free hooker from my thumb. You don't know much about fishing, they said. I didn't know much about golf either, so that was out. At the time, I was a young man, and I seemed about to come to the end of my rope. I had a beautiful horse. You had only to stare at it to have a lovely vacation. But soon people were pressing me to mount a horse and I rode down to the canyon floor. Why a man must ride a horse into certain death simply because he vacations at the Grand Canyon is a mystery. I had no other choice. I had a pallid, the pleasure of other vacationers. They were riding lessons upon you if you plead in compatibility with horses. They were the most humiliating confessions of physical inadequacy can force them to tolerate you alone. In Florida the sun faded the lawyer, red hair, rating insects's dress and his vital signs. The children's not happy. I had to get out of there, pools, deep end, and ginger, an abdominal demonstration before a large audience, including many desirable women, of my inability to swim straight down and to a depth of 12 feet. For several summers I tried driving the car up and down America. The backache and headache alternated with the headache and backache. The car broke down periodically and I had a hard time of it on some streets at high speeds in order to get to movies that were duplicates of movies I had left at home. I have driven across Utah at 100 miles an hour.

Viewing crushed snakes, dead calves, mangled dogs, smashed birds, and mangled roosters rim down by fellow vacationers en route to duplicate hotels, horseback centers down the Grand Canyon and fish hooks in the thumb in the Rockies. In Arizona I once went to look at the Indians and felt, full, full, full. The Indians were sitting on a general store porch drinking Pepsi Cola. It was delicious. Did the Indians come all the way to New York to look at me sitting in the chicken-drinking booth?

There was no peace on that rocky coast. New England vacationing required the expertise of a lifetime.

"Surely you sail," said everybody. I do not sail. I should like to be Sir Francis Chichester or even Captain of the America's Cup-winner, but whenever I boarded a sailboat and asked advice on distinguishing the sheets from the spinnaker, people who had been sailing from the cradle treated me as if I were a hair-dresser who had asked for advice on how to press a suit. I tried buying antiques, a leading New England vacation sport, but it reminded me of the bankruptcy of old European vacations, and I soon retired to my cottage bed and read Proust, which made everybody else. "How about some tennis?" they said. I explained that swimming a fistful of strings at a ball under a hot sun struck me as a pointless and possibly dangerous way to pass time after the age of 29. Then why didn't I at least get out into a hammock and do summer reading? Hammocks make me dizzy, and I don't like mysteries and thrillers. I tried reading Proust in bed because other vacationers. You can do that at home in the winter. Some people qualify as passable vacationers, simply by drifting from house-to-house drinking gin and tonic. I am off gin. Policemen's orders. This summer I might go along to the Maine woods and get lobster, except that having to kill the lobster myself would take the fun out of it, besides which, I am scared to death of bears.

RUSSELL BAKER

People become uneasy about other people who don't succeed at vacations, and when they become uneasy, they turn impolite. "You're not trying to have a good time," they declare, as though in a good time were something that can be produced by plenty of hard work. I couldn't types are worse. They also evidence of sneaky self-mutilation in anybody who resists copying the Indians at their Pepsi or a Gallup poll for the grand Canyon's summit trail. New England vacationing seemed promising. Country boys seemed peaceful enough, but

Ford's day matches his breakfast

Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — Gerald R. Ford lunched alone on cottage cheese and tomatoes Tuesday, according to a White House spokesman. The repast matched his excitement his formal announcement, a short time before the lunch, that he would conduct an "open and above-board" campaign, both for his party's nomination and for the presidency.

A couple of the newly minted officials of Ford's campaign committee even had to wait for clearance at the White House security gate to attend the brief ceremony in the Oval Office. The only grumbling came from a swarm of newsmen in the press room who had gathered to witness the historic announcement, only to be told by press secretary Ron Nessen that a small "pool" of reporters would represent them in the Oval Office.

Nessen, whose handling of the President's press relations has been something less than a model of civility and modest respect, seemed startled by the complaints. But he resisted them and thus maintained his standing with the press at its usual level. When the President finished his three-minute prepared statement and thanked the four men who will run his campaign, he took them into a study off the Oval Office for a short chat. They included campaign chairman Howard "Bo Callaway" of Georgia, finance chairman David Packard, treasurer, Robert Moot, and consultant Dean Burch.

The fact that the three top campaign officials once had a Pentagon experience, raised the inevitable speculation that former defense secretary Melvin R. Laird, an old friend and associate of Ford's, would both men served in the House, would play a strong tactical role in the president's election bid. Callaway was formerly secretary of the Army. Packard served as a deputy defense chief under Laird, and Moot was commander in the defense department from 1968 to 1973. Burch, who had helped to organize the Ford campaign committee, was Sen. Harry Goldwater's campaign manager in 1964 when the Arizona Republican was his party's presidential candidate.

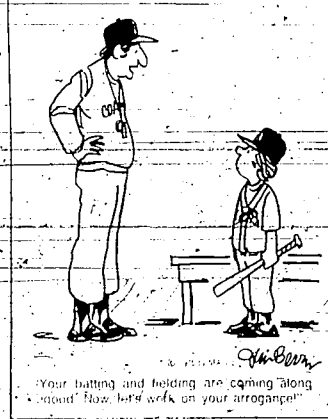

Laird is a member of an advisory group involved in the President's candidacy, and the group, which also includes former White House aide Bryce Harlow and former Pennsylvania governor William Scranton, met in Baker's law office for a strategy session Tuesday afternoon. To underscore his announced determination "never to neglect my first duty as President," Ford acted as though the formality of becoming an avowed candidate was an intrusion upon his presidential duties. After his brief meeting with his election aides, he returned to his desk to pore through folders of official business before lunch. Following lunch, he telephoned Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and then tried unsuccessfully to reach Mississippi Sen. James Eastland, who reportedly had injured his ribs in an accident. Then he met with the federal energy administrator, Frank Zarb, and chairman Alan Greenspan of his Council of Economic Advisors. Fourteen minutes later they were joined by counselor John Marsh and Max Grientendorf, head of the congressional liaison staff.

His only other announced visitor was former transportation secretary Claude Brinegar. It was, in the words of one aide, a "strictly presidential day" — which was the idea all along. The President did celebrate his formal candidacy with a reception at the White House with his campaign managers and his political advisers at the end of his presidential day.

Controversy brewing over new arms pact

By HENRY S. BRADSHER
Washington Star

WASHINGTON — A controversy is brewing within the Ford administration regarding signing any new arms control agreement with the Soviet Union that requires trusting Moscow.

A treaty now being negotiated is moving toward some terms on which Soviet compliance cannot be verified by present U.S. intelligence methods.

Resistance to this movement is developing here. It focuses on a quiet dispute between the state department, under Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, which believed some unverifiable elements are acceptable in the broader interests of getting a new treaty and the Pentagon, under Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, which has strong misgivings.

In his role as President Ford's national security adviser, Kissinger appears to have the upper hand in such a dispute. Resolution of this dispute depends on a presidential decision.

But the ultimate power to block any new treaty produced by the current strategic arms limitations talks (SALT) lies in Congress. Doubts exist there, too, although their depth and strength remain hidden.

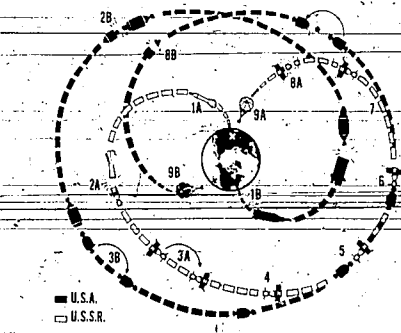

The controversy goes beyond suspicions that the Soviet Union might not be fully living up to the 1972 treaty which came out of SALT I that began in 1969. American expectations of what was being obtained from that treaty have been disappointed in at least one basic area, the increase in Soviet capability to hurl nuclear warheads.

official doubts about the continuing ability of American intelligence to keep track of Soviet strategic weapons developments.

The effect of the SALT I treaty was to force the Soviet Union into following the U.S. in shifting from an emphasis on quantities of strategic weapons to one on higher-quality weaponry.

With their number of intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM's) pegged at 1,613 by the 1972 treaty, compared with 1,064 for the United States, the Russians were in effect encouraged to emulate the U.S. practice of putting multiple warheads onto missiles.

Intelligence that had kept up with quantitative changes is therefore unable to keep up with qualitative changes.

Soviet military effort may gain

By BARRY CASEBOLT
Newhouse News Service
HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — Some American officials worry that the space rendezvous techniques which Soviet cosmonauts will learn from U.S. astronauts during their joint space operation next week will be adapted directly into the Soviet military space program.

It is generally understood that the Soviets are planning for the day when their cosmonauts will have the ability to intercept other nations' satellites in space. Although Moscow apparently has shelved for the moment a program to develop this capability immediately, the experience they gain in the Soviet-American exercise could help revive the program.

The USSR long has had the ability to rendezvous and dock in space, but an American defense observer says next week's link-up between an American Apollo and Soviet Soyuz space craft "will give them (the Soviets) a quantum jump in such technology." Western defense experts, including the Pentagon's chief of research and engineering, Dr. Malcolm R. Currie, have gone on record before congressional committees, sounding alarms over the vulnerability of American satellites to Soviet interceptors.

Within the next 10 years, Pentagon sources say, the United States will have to give prime considerations to the survivability of our military network of satellites, and our national security will be heavily dependent upon them.

Currie recently told the Senate Aeronautical and Space Sciences Committee that "Soviet military space efforts seem to be growing with emphasis now only on strategic systems, but on tactical systems as well."

His testimony was censored heavily for security reasons, but the surviving transcript shows this exchange between Currie and committee

Chairman, Frank Moss, D-Utah.

Moss: Is their ability to rendezvous being enhanced by this exercise we are going through with the Soyuz-Apollo link-up?

Currie: I think so.

Moss: And that might be some factor down the road when they are able to rendezvous and get into the vicinity of satellites that are in orbit. Is that what you are saying?

Currie: Possibly. I think clearly they have some capability. Our space shuttle capability provides the same thing. To the extent that our satellite assets become central to our national security, central to our military capability, I think that we prudently must look forward to the day when satellites are very vulnerable and anticipate this.

Moss: It might be like sailing ships when piracy was in its ascendancy. That possibility?

Currie: Yes, sir.

Three years ago, the Soviets were flying pairs of probes in which a target spacecraft would be chased by an interceptor.

But the Soviets only "exploited" their interceptors in orbit.

"We know they have the capability to intercept satellites," said a Washington defense official. "They put up a target in 1972 but not an interceptor. But I can't fully document that."

The Air Force several years ago was pushing for a new $1-billion program called SAINT in which they proposed U.S. interceptors which would spray paint on the optics of a Soviet military reconnaissance satellite, bombard it with neutrons to see whether it was carrying a bomb, measure its temperature and photograph it. This program never got started, but a member of the U.S. intelligence community now says the U.S. Air Force is pushing a study of satellite interception.

Alexians face second takeover

SHAWANO, Wis. (UPI) — The Alexian Brothers novitiate may be in for another takeover by militant Indians. After a 24-day takeover of their Roman Catholic novitiate earlier this year, the Brothers agreed to deed the novitiate to the Menominee-Tribe for a health center. But Thursday they reneged on that promise, and instead of a response by militants. "If they want to play it this way, well, then we'll go to war," said Melvin Chevalier, Jr., a leader of the Menominee Warrior Society, which took over the novitiate New Year's Eve. The Warrior Society planned meetings to discuss the development. Chevalier said he believed they would decide to occupy the novitiate pending future negotiations with the Alexians. In a statement, Brother Florian Eberle, provincial of the order, said the Alexians were dissolving the agreement because some tribal members had reneged on their promise and maintenance costs would be overwhelming. Eberle cited a study by the State of Wisconsin which indicated conversion of the novitiate to a health care facility would be impossible because of high costs.

Centenarian pleads guilty

TAVERAS, Fla. (UPI) — "Possum Slim," a 105-year-old man who killed a woman who he claimed was robbing him, has pleaded guilty to reduced charges of manslaughter. Attorneys for Slim, whose real name is Ed Myers, made the plea Thursday after bargaining with prosecutors reluctant to see the elderly man convicted of second-degree murder.

Circuit Judge W. Troy Hall Jr. set no date for sentencing and allowed Myers to remain free in the custody of Oscar Robinson, a 54-year-old friend of Slim's. Myers faces up to 15 years in prison on the charge. Myers was charged with the June 7 slaying of Louise Stewart, 51. He claimed the woman robbed him of money repeatedly and when they began arguing over a sum of money she allegedly owed him, he said he killed her because he "couldn't take any more."

He had prepared in the plane on the way to London. "In military custody I was treated in accordance with military law," he said. "It would be wrong to make any complaint." "I am very happy to be back. But I was also happy in Uganda. I like it very much and it wouldn't be fair to make any unfriendly statement." (In Kampala, Uganda Radio today broadcast a letter written by Hills to Amin July 4 praising achievements in Uganda and urging the recruitment of more Britons to work there. In the letter, Hills said reporters should visit Uganda to dispel their prejudiced and erroneous creation of a new middle class, the achievements of the farmers, the high standard of discipline in the army and the friendliness of the people. "If he ever believed his life would be spared," Hills said, "hope springs eternal. But I accepted the death sentence and, now it has been revoked. I am adjusting to a new situation. I have accepted that too." "I haven't known what has been going on at all," he said. "Now I realize the debt of gratitude I owe to the British government and to all those who helped me get out of this predicament for which I take full responsibility." Callaghan told the news conference he obtained Hills' release without concessions or bargains. But he said, "I agreed to send out a team of British officials to discuss compensation for former Uganda Asians who were expelled to Britain, credits and prospects."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's weekend Midwest trip gives him a chance to test his new candidacy against its twin threats of economic recession and Ronald Reagan conservatism. Ford and the First Lady were flying today to Traverse City, Mich., the first stop of an action jammed three days in his home state and Chicago. The White House said the trip was non-political. But it included a Saturday breakfast meeting with top Illinois Republicans and as Ford's first venture into the countryside, since formally announcing his candidacy for the presidency three days ago. Reagan, a possible opponent of Ford for the 1976 GOP nomination, is a native of Illinois, went to Eureka College there and is married to the daughter of a Chicago physician. His brand of conservatism is popular in Illinois, particularly downstate.

DETROIT — Ford's home town of Grand Rapids, has been economically depressed. One GOP party leader there told UPI the state's natural pride in the President has been tempered by the condition of the economy. Ford planned to ride in the 50th annual National Cherry Festival Cherry Rodeo parade in Traverse City today and meet the community's two most prominent politicians — Son. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., an old colleague in the House, and Gov. William Milliken. Ford will speak in Chicago tonight to the Mid-American Committee, a group of business executives. Mayor Richard Daley, one of the nation's most powerful Democrats, said he was too busy to meet Ford. "Presidents come in and out," Daley said. "Unfortunately just have other commitments." Ford will have breakfast with the Illinois Republican leaders, hold a regional televised news conference in Chicago Saturday morning and give the commencement address at Chicago State University. Then he flies back to Traverse City to play nine holes of golf in the Walter Hagen tournament. He will speak at the Jackson Arts Academy at the invitation of its chairman, insurance magnate W. Clement Stone, who was Richard Nixon's biggest contributor in 1972.

Hills apologizes for statement

LONDON (UPI) — British lecturer Dennis Hills, freed after three months in a Ugandan prison, says he's sorry he called President Idi Amin "a village tyrant." Hills told reporters arriving in London Thursday he had been unaware of intentions to obtain his release and added, "I am a little bit bewildered by this sudden change in my fortunes."

Amin dramatically freed Hills earlier in the day during a meeting with British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan in Kampala, capital of the East African nation. A Ugandan military court had sentenced the 61-year-old lecturer to death for referring to Amin in an unpublished manuscript as "a village tyrant." Asked if he regretted the remark, Hills replied, "Well, that was unparliamentary language. I regret it now and I have expressed my regrets in writing." Hills spoke in a low, almost inaudible voice. He appeared nervous and read from notes.

Decision delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, after 16 days of partisan debate, has decided to sidetrack the question of when to hold last November's New Hampshire election so impressing national issues can be considered. Thursday's decision to grant the election dispute only two hours a day of attention in the future came when Democrats and minority Republicans admitted an impasse. The majority had failed for an unprecedented sixth time to end a GOP filibuster. Republican Leader Hugh Scott said he still felt some solution could be found to the eight-month controversy when "men of good will" put their heads together. But Sen. Russell Long, D., La., who has worked to produce compromise, said, "I don't see any prospects for this thing being resolved in a year." The Rules Committee asked the Senate May 22 to resolve 35 issues in the election dispute between Democrat John Durkin and Republican Louis Wyman. None of the issues — mostly involving contested ballots — has been settled because the Senate's 38 Republicans insisted New Hampshire voters should choose their junior senator in a runoff election. "New Hampshire needs two senators," insisted conservative Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., "more than it needs wide roads that freeze here."

Spaceflight readied

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — While technicians worked at America's ocean-side launch pad, Russian engineers in the hot desert of California were making the Soyuz spacebus to its rocket today for Tuesday's international spaceflight. The first step for the unprecedented orbital rendezvous also were making final preparations. Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald K. "Deke" Slayton fly to the Cape from Houston Saturday. Cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov are already at Baikonur. The American training schedule included their first launch simulation in an Apollo spacecraft trainer followed by a final regularly scheduled Russian language lesson. They now speak Russian well enough to use it when they meet Leonov and Kubasov in orbit Thursday.

Buddhists plan Obon-Odori festival

OBON-ODORI (UPI) — The Idaho-Oregon Buddhist Temple membership is preparing for the 29th annual Japan Nite-Obon Festival July 19 on the temple grounds in Ontario. In addition to oriental foods and folk dancing there will be a special display of dolls and flower arrangements for the Obon Odori. Non-Buddhists have been invited to participate in the Obon-Odori "folk" music. Kimonos will be furnished for those who wish to join in the dancing. Obon is a season of the year when Buddhists have a memorial service for the deceased. It is said the spirits of the dead return to join in the festivities of the Obon Odori. Mr. and Mrs. Hideo Harada of Jamleson and Mr. and Mrs. Tad Inouye are heading up the festivities.

Bible study held by Clover women

FILED — Mrs. Wayne Jagels presented a Bible study on "Miriam, a Woman of the Bible" to the Clover Women's Missionary League at the meeting in the school. Mrs. Lyle Lierman presided at the business meeting and welcomed a guest, Lori Jacobs. The committee reported on a number of visits during the month. Mrs. Robert Schneider reported used clothing has been sold and the money sent to World Relief, and that the group assisted a family which had all its lights out in a fire. A yard sale is planned in the future with proceeds to go to World Relief. Thank-you letters were read from the "Bible a Month Club," the Lutheran Church in the Philippines for their money; from "Project Hope" for money sent by group two; from Lutheran World Relief; and from the department of Health and Welfare for a donation toward a dental bill for one of the elderly. Mrs. Dorothy Fischer, Christian growth chairman, reported members from the Twp. Twin Falls and Buhl leagues will be guests in August and will explain the advantages of circles within the league and how to organize them. Members were reminded of the L.W.M.L. Camp Parkin-Aug. 2-10 with Rev. Gordon Root, Bountiful, Utah, as Bible study leader. Committees appointed to plan the Anniversary Ten Aug. 1-10 are: support — the theme is "How Our Memory Lane" and all former members as well as senior citizens of the congregation who are not members will be invited. Mrs. Jagels led the group in the pledge to the American Flag. Mrs. Vernon Lasso led a meditation "The Best Form of Government" and the group sang "America, the Beautiful." Mrs. Robert Schear gave a Bible reading and Mrs. Wayne Schmidt led the group in prayer. The group listened to a recording of "Let There Be Peace on Earth" by Anita Bryant.

CHICAGO — The parade was over by the time the rain began to come down hard. It had been one of those Saturday observances held downtown almost every week during spring. The floats and bands and marchers saluting one of the city's ethnic groups. On the fourth floor of a tall building Norman Schrober looked down from the window at the people hurrying along the rain-slicked sidewalks in the gloom. Schrober, from Seattle, is 19 years old, a navy seaman apprentice stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Base. The red neon sign in the window from which Schrober watched hadn't been turned on. It reads Victory Center for Servicemen. Schrober was asked why he started coming to the center. "People care here," he said. "They care about you. Everyone out there is out for a buck. The first three months I was here, I just walked around. There was nothing to do. I didn't know anybody. Once when I was at the train station, somebody handed me a brochure about this center. I came." A large man in his 30s who introduced himself as Al Brett came up. "Are you a Christian? Have you been saved?" he asked the visitor. "I was saved in 1962 at the center in Mantoloking, Ill. when I was stationed at Chanute. I was a 10-year Air Force man." Brett said he is now a civilian and is unemployed but comes to the center on weekends to counsel, visit, service, to win them for Jesus Christ. The Victory Center for Servicemen is obviously more religiously oriented than the USO (which doesn't push religion at all). Both organizations, however, started in 1941, when this country entered World War II. The center is a large L-shape room with carpet, inexpensive furniture, a Ping-Pong table and a dining area arranged with Formica tables and chairs. On a wall in the lounge area is a poster: SMILE, GOD LOVES YOU. This early Saturday evening, from the small kitchen, a turkey and noodle casserole, tossed salad with French dressing and coffee or milk were being served. One young man in a football-type jersey, white with blue and yellow markings, tilted his plate for the third time. Another, Art Whitaker, a 20 class runner's wife, sat on a couch. He's from New Jersey, he's 21, and his wife and two young children were with him. Like practically every serviceman who comes to the center these days, he's stationed at Great Lakes. "The first time I came here, I admit it, it was the offer of free food," Whitaker said. "I'd just gotten out of boot camp, and it was an offer I couldn't pass up. I admit I'm a Christian, but I'm not one of those drag-'em-in-off-the-streets kind of Christian. I'm just not that aggressive a person. I can't preach to a person, but this gets me and my family away from the base, and these are nice people."

"I know I'm not the stereotype of the sailor, the typical gunner's mate," Whitaker continued. "I'm not a hard drinker or a smoker. That's just me." Whitaker has served six years and has two more on his enlistment. He is a gentle, quiet-spoken young man. He and his wife began to play ping pong. "Our main purpose here is to reach people for Jesus," Brett said from an easy chair across the room. "But we don't pressure. It's just like home. There may be little pressure, but there is considerable persistence. As the young man on his third helping sat at a dining table, a counselor joined him. "Jesus gave his wrath to a counselor," said the young man on his third helping. The center is supported by donations from members of various denominations, all of the fundamentalist Protestant churches. Several Baptist churches are represented on the board of directors. The annual report announced that attendance was up 200 for the first three months this year, and decisions for Christ were up 40. There were no figures for the same period in 1974. The center is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturdays and 9:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Sundays. "God made Hell for Satan, heaven for his people..." The counselor continued to talk to the young man, now into his turkey casserole. One of the driving forces of the center is Grace Steele, the assistant director. "She has become a dear friend," Whitaker said. She's there every weekend and takes the lunch-hour from her job in a department store to come to the center during weekdays to help. "We have wonderful boys and young men here, from all over the United States and from foreign countries," Mrs. Steele said. She is tireless and not at all reluctant to put in a pitch for Jesus at any moment. "There are 21 such fundamentalist centers near bases, forts and camps in 23 states and 36 centers in 17 foreign countries. "We are all transients passing through the world briefly," it was Leroy Baldwin, a counselor. He's 73, quite frail, almost totally deaf, blind in one eye and almost blind in the other from cataracts. "A man's life does not exist in the abundance of his possessions. The gates of Hell will not prevail against the Son of God."

Jesse Jackson shifts politics

CHICAGO (UPI) — In a decided shift, Rev. Jesse Jackson is starting to preach racial hatred, however, Jackson, head of the Black Panther Party and an ordained Baptist preacher, has been shifting his emphasis from political and economic freedom to an evangelistic crusade for the nation's spiritual and moral values. "Ours will be a balanced emphasis," he said. "Not just Jesus is the answer." Jackson, 33, said to years ago that oppressed people had to be concerned with material equality, public accommodations, the right to vote, equal access to education. Now other issues have taken precedence, he says. "We've found that if we fight on the school door and the students are too drunk to walk through the door, we have not made progress," he said. "The generation of youth we expected to complete the mission of the '60s — too many of them now are characterized by deteriorated character structures." Jackson said when he and fellow-BPP members make their treks through the cities this fall, instead of going to a church or a mass meeting, "We may go for two or three days where a cross-section of churches will come together. We'll pull people from the school system and begin to speak to the values of the students. Then the business element." "We must deal on an ethical agenda now," he said. "As much as we have a political and economic agenda."

CHICAGO — The parade was over by the time the rain began to come down hard. It had been one of those Saturday observances held downtown almost every week during spring. The floats and bands and marchers saluting one of the city's ethnic groups. On the fourth floor of a tall building Norman Schrober looked down from the window at the people hurrying along the rain-slicked sidewalks in the gloom. Schrober, from Seattle, is 19 years old, a navy seaman apprentice stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Base. The red neon sign in the window from which Schrober watched hadn't been turned on. It reads Victory Center for Servicemen. Schrober was asked why he started coming to the center. "People care here," he said. "They care about you. Everyone out there is out for a buck. The first three months I was here, I just walked around. There was nothing to do. I didn't know anybody. Once when I was at the train station, somebody handed me a brochure about this center. I came." A large man in his 30s who introduced himself as Al Brett came up. "Are you a Christian? Have you been saved?" he asked the visitor. "I was saved in 1962 at the center in Mantoloking, Ill. when I was stationed at Chanute. I was a 10-year Air Force man." Brett said he is now a civilian and is unemployed but comes to the center on weekends to counsel, visit, service, to win them for Jesus Christ. The Victory Center for Servicemen is obviously more religiously oriented than the USO (which doesn't push religion at all). Both organizations, however, started in 1941, when this country entered World War II. The center is a large L-shape room with carpet, inexpensive furniture, a Ping-Pong table and a dining area arranged with Formica tables and chairs. On a wall in the lounge area is a poster: SMILE, GOD LOVES YOU. This early Saturday evening, from the small kitchen, a turkey and noodle casserole, tossed salad with French dressing and coffee or milk were being served. One young man in a football-type jersey, white with blue and yellow markings, tilted his plate for the third time. Another, Art Whitaker, a 20 class runner's wife, sat on a couch. He's from New Jersey, he's 21, and his wife and two young children were with him. Like practically every serviceman who comes to the center these days, he's stationed at Great Lakes. "The first time I came here, I admit it, it was the offer of free food," Whitaker said. "I'd just gotten out of boot camp, and it was an offer I couldn't pass up. I admit I'm a Christian, but I'm not one of those drag-'em-in-off-the-streets kind of Christian. I'm just not that aggressive a person. I can't preach to a person, but this gets me and my family away from the base, and these are nice people."

Praying woman robbed SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police today said a woman who slugged a woman kneeling in prayer in the Carmelite Monastery in Christa Rey and stole her purse, containing only 50 cents. Solidad Rayo, 37, told officers she visited the Roman Catholic chapel once a day to pray. She said the youth hit her in the face after asking her where there was a restroom.

TF Adventists study nature of Christ

TWIN FALLS — The members of the Twin Falls Seventh-Day Adventist Church have been studying the nature of God, and especially the nature of Christ, for the past few weeks. The study is being conducted by Pastor S.O. Francisco. "Unless there is practical self-sacrifice for the good of others, in the family circle, in the neighborhood, in the church, and wherever we may be, then whatever our profession 'is,' we are not Christians," Francisco said. "Sometimes we hear in our comfortable homes, with our secure way of life tend to bow our backs when threatened by things like energy shortages or economic aid to other countries in the face of rising taxes. Perhaps, what we are forgetting is that the very fact that we have so much makes us as Christians responsible for the sharing of that much, he continued. "We are a global family, the family of man. That this global family will one day come face to face with total catastrophe is inescapable. Science predicts it. The Bible predicts it. How we Christians meet the challenge says help now will determine how we meet that climactic hour of our Lord's return and the end of this world," Francisco concluded.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market opened lower Friday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which finished unchanged Thursday, was off 0.33 point to 871 1/2. Declines led by advances in 108 among the status-crossing the top.

Just as the market opened, New York's treading First National City Bank raised its prime rate to 7 1/2 per cent as many had predicted.

Chubb's formula, based on short-term interest rates, called for the increase. The prime had declined from 12 per cent last October.

Late Thursday, the Federal Reserve Board lifted a $100 million decline in loan demands at New York's 12 leading banks following four increases. Further, the Fed reported the national money supply decreased by $1.5 billion in the last week.

The stock's price-earnings ratio was reduced to an annual 10.6 per cent rate, still higher than the Fed target of 10.7 per cent.

Wall Street has been concerned by rising interest rates. Many fear a short-term money instrument would become more attractive than stocks, which was the case last year.

The profit taking which trimmed Thursday's gains accelerated after Treasury Secretary William E. Simon warned a 6 to 7 per cent inflation rate at the beginning of a recovery would be "clearly dangerous."

Some also were disappointed by the Commerce Department report retail sales rose only 0.7 per cent in June, although they spurred a 2 per cent last week.

Potatoes, grains, meats gain in futures trading

CHICAGO (UPI)—Potato, grain and meat futures closed higher Thursday.

Both Maine and Idaho potato futures posted solid gains. The May delivery of Idaho russets posted an eight-cent gain, closed at 9.55 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said all delivery months in Maine trading closed with gains of 11 to 20 points for the day and from 3 to 8 points over previous life of contract highs.

The volume of 7,146 contracts was the highest since April, 1968, when a record 8,000 changed hands.

Firm cash markets, strength in Chicago grains, and expected decreased supplies of summer and feed River Valley flood losses were among positive market factors.

Corn followed wheat's lead, recording gains of around 1 cent. Slightly over 100,000 contracts were traded, the market cautious as a result of expected bearish figures in the federal production estimate. This was placed at 2.6 billion bushels and the Chicago cash corn increased 1 cent to 30.75 for July, for hoppers and a cent drop to 30.75 for boxcars.

The soybean complex posted limited gains in beans and oil but closed slightly lower off the day's highs. Beans and 7 to 12 cents higher, oil was up 40 to 90 points and meal gained 1.30 to 3.00 in active trading months.

The world sugar market was sharply higher, closing 23 cent, or .85 cent higher on 7.531 trades. Commission houses on spot and futures sugar and some hedge selling appeared. Sugar 12 futures were settled nominally a cent higher but were untraded. The world spot price as fixed 37 cent higher at 18.25 cents a pound. 1700 Caribbean parties. The domestic spot was up 75 cent at 20.25 cents a pound, duty paid.

Live cattle futures closed with near limit gains in a bounce trade of over 30,000 contracts. August closed with a 1.35 gain, compared with advances of over 100 in back months. Traders think August has a 48 cent potential before technical resistance develops and support is strong under the 45 cent level.

Feeder prices were sharply higher in brisk trading. Live hog futures hit limit highs in the front months despite unevenly lower cash markets. Only July and August contracts were active, but prices in all other contracts were up sharply. Tight hog supplies and good produce demand were factors, along with limit gains in bellies and fresh strength in hams.

Protein futures hit an all-time high for July at 85.75, and all months except August, July and August closed limit up in active trading. Higher wholesale prices, larger usage of storage stocks and relatively light hog slaughter were major factors.

Gold futures on the Chicago Board of Trade closed 1.20 higher in light trading; the volume estimated at less than 50 lots. The market noted an earlier performance of 1.20, where there was not that Soviet grain purchases would

DEAR ABBY: After 26 years of a fairly good marriage with three self-sufficient children and a paid-for home, my wife and I sleep back to back—like two fireplace logs. She rations her love as a reward for favors and withhold it as punishment. And when it's given, which is seldom, it's with very little enthusiasm (an understatement).

After nearly a year of this treatment, I'm considering breaking my flawless record of a faithful marriage to seek attention elsewhere.

I don't see much difference between a wife who trades her love for personal gain and a lady of the evening who sells her favors for money. I consider myself a darn good husband. Time is running out.

MV Harbor House reorganizes board

TWIN FALLS — Harbor House of Magic Valley held a general membership meeting Wednesday afternoon to adopt bylaws and reorganize the board of directors.

Lillian Shaff is board chairman with Janice Stone secretary. June Johnston is treasurer. In a board meeting following, the membership session, Mrs. Shaff, Helen Henderson, Janice Stone and Daniel Meehl were named to three-year terms; Betty Colner, Ernie Johnson, T. T. Creed and Maggie Sommer were named to two-year terms, with four other directors to serve one-year terms.

These include Arlan Cull, Earl Haroldson, Lee Taklington, Bonnie Jones, Larry Hauber, Zee Ann Shaul, Reed P. Maughan, Richard Reed and Judy Watson.

Some of the board members have requested they become regular members rather than directors and further re-organization is planned.

Bylaws prepared by Daniel Meehl were adopted by the directors and membership certificates prepared for presentation to all who have served in the past and at present on the Harbor House board.

In other business, Wayne and Joan Hill, new houseparents, reported on house activities. They said there is a need for a piano and television set for youngsters at the home. Additional work in the yard is also being done and dirt is needed for fill purposes.

Plans were also made for a general membership meeting to introduce the new houseparents and give members an opportunity to visit the house. More members are being sought by the organization and all interested persons are asked to contact a board member or attend the next meeting.

Shoshone reading program starts

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone City Library summer reading program for children ages 7-13 is under way now, according to Mrs. Marx Nielsen, librarian.

There are 31 children enrolled in the program and according to Mrs. Nielsen they are "very active this year."

The program will continue through Aug. 15 with a special program to conclude the activity. Mrs. Nielsen said a party may be held at the city park this year. Awards will be presented at that time and a film shown.

In other news at the library, Mrs. Nielsen announces 75 large print books have been purchased and are being prepared for use by patrons. They are for adults and youths, covering all subjects from fiction, non-fiction, travel, to biblical and Shakespeare.

"Anyone who wants to keep strain from his eyes will be interested in seeing these books," Mrs. Nielsen said.

Love rationed

DEAR DISGUSTED: You're confusing sex with love. Love is a gift, not an obligation. Sex can be obtained at a price. Love cannot.

If you haven't discussed the state of your marriage with your wife, it's time you did. If you both want a better marriage, I recommend counseling. But if you're asking me for the green light to pursue the red light, I'm negative.

DEAR ABBY: I have written a letter to a very dear friend of mine, and my problem is I haven't the courage to send it. If you publish it, I am sure my friend will see it. Here it is:

My dear, dear friend:

How else can I say it? You make me sick! No matter how I try to avoid the smoke of your cigarette, it's there, irritating my eyes, my sinuses, and getting into my lungs. After a few hours with you, I'm literally ill. Sometimes when you blow your smoke directly at me, I turn my head or try to fan it away with my hand. You offer a small apology and move your cigarette—but you never put it out! Of course, my problem is that I am a coward. I like you too much to tell you to your face that you are selfish. I don't want to hurt your feelings, yet you go on hurting mine. Do you know that your breath is always bad? And no amount of perfume can mask the smell of stale smoke that's constantly on your hands, clothing and hair.

I love your company. Your sense of humor is priceless, and you've demonstrated your friendship to me many times. Yet, my doctor has told me I must avoid you. Can you believe it? Your smoking is making me ill. I miss you.

"SMOKED OUT"

DEAR ABBY: We recently received an invitation to a golden wedding celebration. At the bottom was printed: "Your presence is not present—is requested."

Wasn't that a lovely way to say, "No girls, please?"

Hints

Homemade ice cream melts and windburn, it also helps to melt with cocoa butter. Favor than ice cream made with chocolate. But the richness of cocoa butter, which represents 50 per cent of the chocolate, provides smoothness that cocoa powder does not.

Keep baking soda on hand to smooth sunburn, windburn, insect bites and poison ivy. Make a paste with water, and apply to affected area. For sun and windburn, it also helps to soak in a bath with baking soda added.

A paste of baking soda and water removes grease from barbecue grills. Burned-on food should be scrubbed with dry soda.

Before inserting a zipper in any garment, overcast the edges of the fabric to prevent loose threads from catching in it.

South should make contract dummy's nine of hearts—East would have won, but would not have been able to lead a second heart. South would cash two trumps, play king, ace and another club, enter dummy with the ace of hearts and discard his last heart on the fifth club.

Ask the Jacobses

This question from Vermont: What is the so-called Free Double?

In rubber bridge when you double an opponent's game bid and he makes the contract you haven't given him his game. He had a bad bid. On the other hand, such doubles aren't anything like free. He gets his trick score doubled and gets 50 for his contract. If he redoubles and scores an overtrick your free double will really have been expensive. So don't make them unless you really expect to set the declarer.

South wanted to know why North had given him a free raise to two spades. North replied, "It was a pretty bad bid, but it seemed a good idea at the time. Anyway, what was wrong with the four-spade contract? You were just unlucky to find everything wrong."

North's free bid was really a bad one. His opening was rock-bottom and his spade support almost nothing. However, four spades would have been reached anyway since South had enough strength to bid it by himself.

Perfect defense would beat four spades. West would have to lead a heart at trick two, but West cashed two diamonds before leading a heart.

At this point South went wrong. He couldn't resist the temptation to finesse the queen of hearts. East took his king and led the suit back to knock out dummy's ace and kill an entry.

pH IS IMPORTANT

PESTICIDES ARE MORE EFFECTIVE WHEN SPRAY WATER IS BUFFERED WITH SORBA-SPRAY®

Sorba-Spray® is more than a foliar nutrient. It's also a buffering agent. For example, just one pint of Sorba-Spray lowers the pH of 100 gallons of pesticide solution to the most effective range where the pesticide gives better initial kill, resulting in longer control.

And there's another advantage. Sorba-Spray is also a wetting agent. Which means no other spreader is necessary. Which means lower application costs.

Humidity offsets lower temps

Humidity offsets lower temperatures in the 50s and 60s, but it also offsets the high temperatures in the 90s. There is about a 20 per cent probability of measurable rainfall.

The extended outlook for the period of Sunday through Tuesday calls for not quite so hot and less events than derorm activity as upper winds become more westerly. High temperatures will lower to 88 to 93 and nighttime lows 55 to 60.

This evening and Saturday will again be uncomfortable for most people because of the high moisture content of the air. The afternoon humidity has been around 45 per cent.

farm Snake carrying snowmelt runoff

BURLEY - The long, cool period that has delayed the snowmelt in the high country for so long has been broken and warm temperatures are producing a steady snowmelt runoff.

Carlos C. Randolph, Minidoka Project superintendent, said today that Jackson Lake and Palisades are continuing to operate for flood control with about 100,000 acre-ft. of flood control space available.

The natural flow at Heise peaked on June 8 at 34,000 cfs and is now regulated to control a measured flow of 15,000 cfs. Heise is a measuring point on the south fork of the Snake River

Disaster payment data mailed

SHOSHONE - All Lincoln County farmers with feed grain and wheat allotments have recently been mailed a packet with information about disaster payments under the 1973 farm program.

In making this announcement, the Shoshone Stabilization and Conservation Service, explained that disaster payments are again available this year if feed grain or wheat allotment production is lost or substantially damaged by disaster. Such payments are not meant to compensate a farmer fully for the loss—the ASCS officials said, but can provide some income following a major crop loss.

Disaster payments can be made only to farmers with feed grain or wheat allotments who make a timely report of the disaster and certify their acres. The programs are open to all eligible farmers without regard to race, sex, color, religion or national origin.

Should any eligible Lincoln County farmer suffer substantial crop damage because of a disaster this year, he should file a report immediately with the county ASCS office. Until the ASCS verifies the production, acreage and damage, the producer should not dispose of the crop residue in any way, even though he or she has harvested the crop.

This caution is included in the disaster leaflet, along with other "needed" information," according to James Page of the ASCS office.

Angry bees cause havoc

CONGRESS, Ariz. (UPI) - Rosie Oldham's angry bees, riled by a traffic accident that dumped their hives in the road, closed off a highway, imprisoned state troopers in a patrol car and stung Mrs. Oldham more than 100 times before specialists were flown in by helicopter to subdue them.

Mrs. Oldham, a beekeeper from Quartzite, Ariz., was reported in satisfactory condition today at a hospital in Wickenburg.

She was driving a pickup truck loaded with 25 beehives northwest of Phoenix Wednesday. She said her brakes failed as she tried to pull off the road and the truck overturned when she swerved to avoid a drainage ditch.

The cloud of thousands of angry bees surrounded the truck, stinging Mrs. Oldham. Police who tried to reach her were driven back by bees. The officers related in their patrol car and rolled up the windows.

Beet firm expects $25 million loss

MOORHEAD, Minn. (UPI) - American Crystal Sugar Co. has estimated sugar beet losses from flooding in the Red River Valley at up to $25 million, pending a report to producers that the flooding would drive up the price of sugar.

Dick Krabbenhoft, assistant general agriculture manager for the cooperative, said at least 12,000 acres of a total of 252,000 acres planted were destroyed and the toll could be higher if there is more heavy rainfall.

In addition, the loss estimate is expected to worsen when more information reaches the company's headquarters here.

DYLOX whips bad bugs and worms that cut green bean yields and quality Green beans are a short-season crop. When western and vancouver cutworms, army worms, Mexican bean beetles, lygus bugs and stink bugs destroy foliage or damage bean pods, you lose.

Let good bugs help by policing your bean fields until the bad bugs get out of hand. Then spray with DYLOX selective insecticide. DYLOX protection will knock out the bad bugs quickly. But it won't wipe out populations of predator insects. When DYLOX is used as directed, beneficials get time to re-establish dominance for extra natural insect protection that doesn't cost you a cent. And you'll grow bigger yields of tender, high-quality green beans that put more extra profit in your pocket.

Wrecking crews to start Monday

TWIN FALLS — Drivers may want to wheel past an old familiar landmark soon to be destroyed — the old part of Lincoln School.

Heavy wrecking equipment, which had been delayed because of difficulties with contractors, is set to move in Monday to tear down the old school.

The school is making way for a new structure built to the north of the existing building as part of a school district construction project.

After the building is demolished, landscapers will redevelop the playground area, sprucing up the school's site for the next generation of Lincoln School students.

ENGINEER Dale Haddock, standing left, told the Twin Falls County Zoning Board Thursday a proposed 79-acre residential complex along Falls Avenue East would have to be annexed into the city because of utilities. The board approved the project unanimously.

today in brief

Teen treated for gunshot wound
TWIN FALLS — Thomas Hisher, 15, Twin Falls, was treated for a gunshot wound in the shoulder Thursday evening. He told officers he was reaching for a .22 rifle from a gun case and was checking to see if the safety was on when it discharged, hitting him in the shoulder.

The accident occurred at his home, 2167 S. Ash St. He was treated by a local physician and released.

Kimberly street bldgs opened
KIMBERLY — Bids for street resurfacing have been opened by Kimberly City councilmen Thursday night.

Beymeyer Paving Co., Twin Falls, was the apparent low bidder. The firm proposed to pave 2,400 linear feet of Kimberly streets for $12,600.

Other bidders were Banhook Paving Co., Jerome, $13,800; Gordon Paving, Twin Falls, $13,859; and Klopfer Paving, Paul, $15,888.

Councilmen also accepted the yearly audit submitted by Tom Candle of the firm of Riddle, Roth, Evans and Candle, Twin Falls.

TF man charged
TWIN FALLS — Gonzalo M. Ortega, 24, Twin Falls, was charged with reckless driving after his 1973 four-wheel drive vehicle crashed through a group of garbage cans, a fence and a tool shed Thursday night.

Ortega was driving down the alley in the 200 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard South, officers said, when he drove through the rear of the property at 210 Blue Lakes S. He was uninjured.

No estimate of damage was made although police reports indicated 16 feet of fencing and a tool shed were destroyed.

BSU parking fees eyed
BOISE (UPI) — Parking fees at Boise State University may go up dramatically this fall to raise money for the scholarship fund and settle a dispute between students and faculty.

Dr. John Barnes, BSU president, said he will ask the Board of Education for permission to hike the cost of parking decals to $30 per year from $1. He said $20 of the $30 fee would be put into the scholarship fund.

SV airlines to add flights
SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Sun Valley Fly Airlines will add three flights to its service between here and California next month.

Beginning Aug. 1, the regional carrier will add a flight serving Reno, Nev., from the Salt Lake International Airport. The flight will also stop at Elko, N.C.

Sun Valley Fly also will fly two additional routes from Reno, serving Elko and to Oakland, Calif.

Creech trial goes to Wallace
BOISE (UPI) — Fourth Judicial District Judge J. Ray Durt-schl Thursday ordered the murder trial of Thomas Eugene Creech to Wallace Idaho in Shoshone County.

Creech, of Oregon, is charged with first degree murder in the slaying of two men near Donnelly, Idaho, last November. He also is suspect in murders in Oregon and other Western States.

The judge made the decision after listening to arguments from Creech's attorney, Bruce O. Robinson and deputy attorney general Lynn E. Thomas.

Robinson, in a surprise move, asked the judge to keep the trial in Boise because of security available in Ada County and the expense of a trial in North Idaho.

Thomas said Twin Falls in southwestern Idaho is the state's preferred site.

Salmon authorities look for relatives
SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — Authorities in Salmon are looking for relatives of two Nevada residents who died Monday when their motor home went off U.S. 93 into the Salmon River.

One of the victims was identified as Everett B. Hudson, 62, Henderson, Nev. The second is believed to be his wife, Violet C. Hudson. There was nothing with the body to make positive identification on the woman. Both bodies are being held at the Jones-Coffey Funeral Home.

Officers notified officials in Henderson where the couple maintained their residence in a trailer court.

Complex discussed

Zoners approve 79-acre TF residential complex

But several residents continued to voice objections, some pointing to the population density increase and increased vehicular traffic along Falls Avenue — project would bring.

Oliver Smith, a Falls Avenue resident, told the board the development would not only add to existing congestion on Falls but would deteriorate over a relatively short period of time.

"I have seen a lot of these five years old or older," Smith said. "Look at your old apartments in town and that's what they'll look like... They tend to run down."

Another property owner, Maurice Foubion, also objected to the development and called the "at least 500 vehicles" to be added to traffic in the area excessive.

"We're not exactly thrilled by this," Foubion said. "They've asked us to accept an blind faith a very general concept."

Another property owner, Chris Talkington, asked the board if city-county professional planner David Rehey had been consulted on the proposed project.

"I'm not aware of the details," Rehey told the board.

"I don't believe there are enough details for me to make a decision on it," Talkington said. "and I suggest that more details be made available to the public before any action is taken on it."

"I think it should be pointed out that this is a concept which is being approved," zoning board member L. James Koutnik said.

"It is not a blank check being approved," added zoning administrator Ed Woods. "The floor plans... have to be recorded and approved and have to be built that way... The board would have a rein over the architectural design board... We feel the planned unit development gives us more control than would an ordinary subdivision."

"After more discussion and objections from residents the board made its unanimous decision to approve the proposal and forward it to the county commissioners for their consideration."

Manages

BOISE (UPI) — A former $30,000 per year consultant for the Department of Health and Welfare is managing operations for Fuel West while his ex-boss negotiates to purchase the firm.

Bill Rundell, a certified public accountant, said he was hired to control the company's operations through an impending ownership transfer to James A. Bax, director of Health and Welfare.

Bax is attempting to buy the firm from Brock O'Leary, subject to approval by Standard Oil Co., a prime supplier of fuel oil to the Boise firm.

Howard Jamieson, administrator of Health and Welfare's management services division, said Rundell was employed under contract from July 1, 1974 to June 30, 1975 to provide technical assistance in organizational development and to revise financial reporting systems and federal cost allocations plans.

State building costs soar in Rupert contract

Dr. Bax was not available for comment this morning. But Howard Jamieson, who is in charge of fiscal matters for the department, denied the lease.

He said that the cost of the building at $9.21 per square foot per year appears to be "a hell of a rate because up here (in Boise) we can't look at anything for less than $6.50 to $7."

"As costs go across the state this, in my mind, is a pretty reasonable price," he said.

Jamieson also said that there was no "comparable" space available for HAW when the lease was signed. In order to make decentralized programs work, he said, suitable space must be provided.

"It is not always in the best interest of the people in the community or the agency to rent the least expensive space available," he said, concluding that the lease was "approximate."

Jamieson said he looked at the basic cost of renting the building and did not concern himself with utility and other costs when approving the lease.

Apparently the Idaho Department of Administration, which reviews all state leases, did not consider the estimated $11,544 bill in addition to rentals when giving its approval. Tom Payne, chief of the bureau of building services for the department, told the Times-News that the lease calls for the building owner to pay "electrical." It took a Times-News review of the lease to find this referred to "electrical maintenance."

Payne said he only had information on rental costs, not other costs of the building.

Payne confirmed statements that compared to other rental costs the $21 for this building is reasonable.

He said rents in small towns over Idaho run no lower than $3 per square foot now and go up to $5 a square foot.

HAW records, however, show that at least in the Magic Valley most of the buildings HAW is renting go for well under $3 per square foot.

The regional office building in Twin Falls, in fact, goes for $1.68 per square foot. But HAW officials say that the county, which owns the building, has knocked down the price to help pay for county services.

TF teachers slate meet

TWIN FALLS — Teachers here will meet July 17 to ratify final contract agreements between the school board and the Twin Falls Education Association.

Larson Smith, TFEEA vice-president, said no new salary raises had been negotiated since the school board adopted a salary schedule about a month ago.

The teachers will vote on teachers' assignment procedures and responsibilities negotiated by the board and teacher representatives, Smith said.

The teachers and board arrived at a negotiations agreement earlier this year.

Smith called the agreement, "a real positive move. I think it's something that has been needed... I think teachers will appreciate the board's effort in this way."

Teachers representatives originally said they would continue to negotiate on salary. The school board proposed a new salary schedule.

Smith said, "We complained about salary but it had been pretty well determined that they (the board) did about as well as they could."

The ratification meeting will be held at 8 p.m. next Thursday at the O'Leary Junior High School auditorium.

3 fires reported

SHOSHONE — The continuation of daily afternoon and evening thunderstorms kept the Boise Land Management fire crews busy Thursday.

Four fires were also reported in the Boise BLM district and one about 10 miles south of Bruneau, was contained but still not under control this morning. About 250 acres have been burned in the lightning-caused blaze which broke out about 8 p.m. Thursday.

Boise BLM officials said three bulldozers, six tanks and 37 crewmen are still at the Bruneau site.

The Shoshone fires — all within a five-mile radius of Shoshone — burned a total of 20 acres, according to Andy Payne, fire control officer. He said two of the fires were man caused and one started from lightning.

Disaster plan critiqued

TWIN FALLS — Those who participated in a critique of the disaster plan at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital said they found a great difference in an incident at the hospital compared to one where injured are brought from other areas.

The plan to test the call system and response was held at 9 p.m. Wednesday night. A review was held Thursday noon with some participants urging a review of the call system to bring persons to the hospital more rapidly.

In the event of a disaster away from the hospital there is more time to prepare. The test Tuesday night involved a mock explosion in the building lobby. Doctors and nurses said this could also hamper handling of the situation because some of the hospital facilities might be eliminated.

All in-all, doctors and hospital administrators said the test worked well with some possible streamlining of the telephone system for calling off-duty personnel to the hospital.

Hospital officials said there would also be a greater problem than was experienced in the test about an accident occur at the hospital. More people would be crowding around and into the building to check on family members in the hospital or employed there.

Mary Goe, hospital public relations representative, said this is the first "in house" disaster drill the hospital staff has held. She said, however, the hospital staff holds regular fire drills on a frequent basis and special training sessions for the staff on fire control and prevention.

Gem cancer rate low compared to average

Stomach cancer is the one ailment that doctors have "some information" for, Smith said.

"There does seem to be a definite correlation of worldwide incidence," he said.

Worldwide, Japan, Finland, Iceland and Chile have the highest rates, and these countries have "considerably different dietary habits" that account for the high rates. Smoked fish and other vegetable products, are a "classic" non-beef testing in laboratories. In countries where more raw vegetables are eaten, the stomach cancer rates are lower.

Cancer of the colon is increasing in countries that are experiencing greater industrial development, Smith said, where less raw wheat and raw products in general are consumed.

Less developed countries in Africa where diets are starchy and raw have much lower incidence of colon cancer.

Leukemia and cancers of the pancreas, prostate, kidney, and other low-rate cancers in Idaho cannot be rated or caused attributed to them, Smith said.

Viruses, genetic deficiencies in older patients "may be equally as important as environmental reasons for cancer, Smith said. "When we finally get some answers, each cancer is probably going to be caused by multiple agents," he said, including the patient's own genetic makeup and his or her exposure to several things.

Smith said that the nation-wide study will be useful to the tumor institute. "We can look at our own data, on an environmental standpoint, and try to seek out reasons why Idaho is different," he said.

The study will help make doctors more aware of certain kinds of cancer. If they're aware that a certain cancer is "reasonably common," he said, they will look more closely for it.

According to the federal study, lung cancer was the big killer among white men in Idaho of the 35 types of cancer studied, causing the deaths of 1,406 white males in the year studied, although the Idaho rate was much lower than the national rate for stomach cancer. That cancer killed relatively few white women, 271, and was 20 per cent of the male rate and slightly lower than the national average.

Among white women in Idaho the biggest cause of cancer deaths has been cancer of the large intestine, which claimed 776 lives for a still much lower rate than the national average. Although the national rate for white men was about the same as for white women, the Idaho rate was lower, accounting for the deaths of 707 white males.

White men overall had higher death rates than white women, although Idaho rates were usually lower than the national rate for men and women both.

Lung cancer's 22.94 rate among white males in Idaho made it the biggest killer, although Idaho's rate was third lowest in the nation, after North Dakota and Utah. White males were also affected by other major cancers, including:

- prostate gland cancer, which had a slightly higher rate than the national average;
- stomach cancer, lower than the national average;
- Large intestinal cancer;
- Leukemia and Aleukemia, whose 9.28 rate was higher than the 8.1 national average;
- Testes cancer, which at 17.39 rate was small but still higher than the 8.3 national rate;
- Lip, some endocrine gland, myeloma and Hodgkin's disease were also higher than national rates but were still not major killers in Idaho. White women in Idaho died from different cancers, including cancer of the:
- Large intestine
- A miscellaneous category of unspecified areas

Leukemia and aleukemia, at a rate slightly higher than nationally.

Although not major killers, four other women's cancers topped national rates. They were kidney, skin, thyroid gland and connective tissue cancer.

Cancer of the esophagus and larynx among white males was lower only in Utah, with liver cancer lower only in Utah and Vermont. Tongue and mouth cancer was lower only in the Dakotas, and skin cancer was lower only in Wisconsin.

For white women, bladder cancer rate was the second lowest in the nation next to the Dakotas, and breast cancer rates were fairly low, topped by many southern states. Thyroid gland cancer, among white women in Idaho, although low at .79, was the fourth highest in the nation.

Martin shares gold medal
 JEROME — The International Sled Dog Racing Association announced last week that Terry Martin, Jerome, received a gold medal in seven-dog competition for 1975.
 Martin tied for the medal with Craig Hilliper, Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The competition was based on four association-sanctioned races anywhere in the United States with points determined by distance, cash purse and placement.
 Martin clocked earlier this year at 19 miles an hour on a trial at Priest Lake. He holds the 35-year-old and five-dog titles in California and won the association's bronze medal last year.

Bell rejects honor
 ANAHEIM (UPI) — Third baseman Buddy Bell of the Cleveland Indians Thursday turned down an offer for American League Manager Alvin Dark to be back-up third baseman in the All-Star game next week.
 Bell, who missed out in the popular All-Star vote, was selected by Dark to back up third baseman Graig Nettles of the New York Yankees during the championship between the American and National Leagues next week at Milwaukee.
 Bell said he made his decision after long soul searching.
 "I would love to represent the league in the All-Star game," he said, "but I had to turn it down because I feel there are other third basemen more deserving."

Ashe heads U.S. corps
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Arthur Ashe, the Wimbledon champion, will represent the United States in the first annual Nations Cup tournament this autumn and if he so desires, Jimmy Connors can be his partner.
 Ashe, upset winner over-tending Wimbledon king Connors, is president of the Association of Tennis Professionals, which devised the new international tennis event in which the two top players, plus a third man, are selected on merit to represent their nation.
 The tournament, to be played Sept. 29-Oct. 5 in Kingston, Jamaica, will be limited to eight qualifying nations. As of Thursday, the United States and Australia had earned the right to enter.

Lane trade buoys rookie
 RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — There may be daylight in store for big Barry Smith, the former University of Richmond star who was the Green Bay Packers' No. 1 draft choice in 1974.
 The 6-2, 235-pound running back says his chances of starting this fall have been greatly enhanced by the trade Wednesday of MacArthur Lane to the Kansas City Chiefs.
 "I can't tell you how excited I am," Smith said. "He (Lane) has been a block in my career. I really think my chances of starting have to be pretty good now."

Davis ready for action
 IRVINE, Calif. (UPI) — Running back Anthony Davis, who was injured in a second quarter scrimmage in last week's game against San Antonio, returned to practice Thursday after missing three days of contact drills with the Southern California Sun.
 Head Coach Tom Fears pronounced Davis "ready to go" for the Sun's game against Larry Conka and the Memphis Southmen at Anaheim Stadium Monday.

Sooners deny new suspension
 NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — University of Oklahoma Vice President J. R. Morris said Thursday no one has proposed putting the Sooners football team on probation again because of any alleged racial violation.
 Thursday's edition of the Oklahoma Journal in Oklahoma City reported the Big Eight Conference would consider another probation for Oklahoma next month and it could result in the Sooners dropping out of the league.
 "In the first place, the University of Oklahoma will go off probation in August," Morris said. "There is not now nor has there been any action or expectation to the contrary."

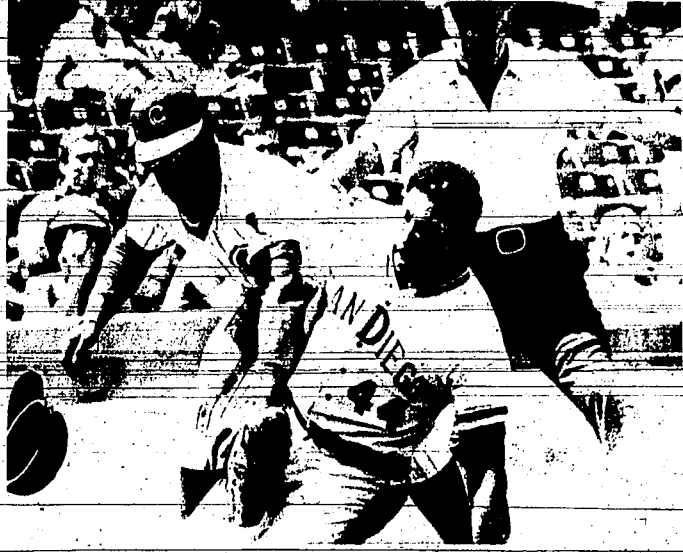

Utah lands Indiana star
 SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Indiana's university forward Steve Green Thursday turned his back on the NBA to sign with the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association.
 It was the first time in their five-year history the Stars signed a first round draft choice. Terms of the contract were not released.
 The 6-7, 220-pound Green said, "I'm hoping to play a part in building the Stars back up where they were when they won the ABA championship in 1974. I've always been a follower of the ABA. I'm really impressed with the Utah organization."

NFL players resume talks
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Football League players-union and owners will resume another round of bargaining talks July 24, the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service announced Thursday.
 James A. Secare, deputy director of the agency, urged both sides to "avoid costly efforts" to reach an agreement on a new contract before the coming season.
 The session, to be held here, signals the first serious negotiations to be conducted since last year when the NFL Players Association called a six-week strike in protest but then agreed to play without a contract.

Nuggets out of bid war
 DENVER (UPI) — Denver Nuggets president-general manager Carl Scheer says he will not enter a bidding war with the Atlanta Hawks for high schooler Bill Wiloughby.
 "He is theirs if they want him," said Scheer. "There's no money left in it."
 The Nuggets have already signed 7-foot Marvin Webster, their first choice in the ABA draft, and have reached agreement to sign All-American forward David Thompson, marking the first time an ABA team has signed the No. 1 pick of the NBA.

Obscure Scotsman assumes lead in British tourney

CARNOSTUIE, Scotland (UPI) — It didn't really matter to David Hush that the British Open golf championship reached the "choking point" Friday.
 The 31-year-old Scot club pro who led a trimmed field of 36 golfers into today's third round reckoned that all he could do was his best.

"The bookies bet 20-1 it wouldn't be enough."
 "I'm just looking to put up a good show," Hush said Thursday. "The biggest news conference of his life... I'll keep playing the way I'm playing. I'll be quite content, regardless of where I finish."
 "If you're not good enough, you're not good enough. And if you're good enough on four rounds, fair enough."
 With the likes of Tom Watson, Peter Oosterhuis, Hale Irwin, Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller with five strokes of his eight under-par 69-67-136, Hush said that he wasn't nervous even if he does lead the rush on Ben Hogan's course record of 282.
 That was a day ago.

Perhaps, he said, things will be different when the 104th Open came to what Irwin described as the point where "we start seeing who can swallow and who can't. It becomes a little tighter."
 "The choking point, to put it mildly."
 Hush is the pro down the road at North Berwick. "I teach, and watch the shop" — and he had to birdie two straight holes the second in a playoff — to even make the 133-man field for this richest of British opens at $165,000.
 But he had won $6,000 in some local tournaments and the U.S. tour game was taking shape. He has never played in the P.S. tour and has no ties. "For one thing, he hates to fly. For another, he doesn't want to wear spurs, anything."

 Besides, home is Perth, where the wife and two young ones are.
 For a man who started his career as a 15-year-old assistant pro selling golf balls at the counter, the 6-foot-2 local hero had some 20,000 Scots spectators, cheering him in with some dazzling iron play Wednesday.
 Time and again, he kneed approaches and chips to the pin for birdies and to save pars. He came in with fours on all three par-five holes, finishing on a par on a day when the 70-year-old Carnoustie course succumbed to par-smashing suitors.
 He slammed a three wood to within 15 feet on the 2-3 yard, par 3 1/2 hole, one of the toughest in golf, and ran the putt over a hump to cap his seven-hole run.

But South African Baby Coe came in with the day's lowest round — a 68 — to break the course record of 67 set in 1953 by Ben Hogan and equaled in 1968 by Billy Casper and again Wednesday by Oosterhuis.
 Oosterhuis, the big Babe, took himself out of the lead with four bogeys in the last five holes as rain squalls and a Scottish mist descended on the ninth coastal course.
 But he was in a group of four, including Watson, two strokes off the pace. Five players, among them Irwin, are back one more stroke, with Nicklaus and Miller leading the four at 10.
 Britain's intrepid bookies took only slight edge of Hush in setting their overnight odds. They put Nicklaus and Oosterhuis at 3-1, Miller and Irwin at 7-1 and Hush at a distant 20-1.

Robinson's all-star career over

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brooks Robinson could miss his first All-Star game since 1969 because he finished fifth in the balloting of fans after winning the vote during the last four years.
 The Orioles' third baseman, whose quick reflexes and sure glove have frustrated hitters for more than 45 years, is having one of his worst seasons, struggling around the 200 mark, although he has not appeared to have slowed down much in the field.
 "His worst previous season was 1969, when he hit only 234. This lifetime average going into this season was 272."
 The fans still gave him 441,447 votes making him fifth among American League third basemen but only 300,000 votes behind starter Graig Nettles.
 Robinson played in 18 All-Star games since 1969 with an average of 297. He has never made an error while handling 41 chances in All-Star games.

Orioles thump Angels 7-3

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Fred Henneke rapped out 152,000 dollars and a triple. Bobby Grich collected four hits and Ken Singleton led Jim and Thurp each cracked solo homers. Thursday night the Orioles' 1-1 hit attack in a 7-3 victory by the Orioles over the California Angels.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. (UPI) — The number of clubs in the National Football League would drop from 26 to 12 within a short time if the Rozelle Rule were eliminated, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Thursday.
 Rozelle, who prefers to call the rule the option-compensation clause, predicted a bidding war that would be disastrous for weaker clubs and ultimately harmful to players.
 "I feel the draft would be rendered virtually useless without the option-compensation clause," Rozelle said.
 "The pattern is clear that down clubs have the opportunity to come up — they get there, and the draft is the main way it's done."
 "In a relatively short period of time — five or six years — we'd be closer to 1969 when I became commissioner than to the 26 or 28 counting the Tampa and Seattle expansion teams now."
 There were 12 teams when Rozelle took over as commissioner. Dallas was added in 1960, Minnesota in 1961, and eight teams came in when the American Football League merged with the NFL.
 "With fewer franchises operating, there would be fewer jobs for football players," Rozelle said.
 Rozelle said wages for "name players" would go up in a "free market" situation, but added "in time there would be a settling, with less jobs because the weaker clubs could not exist in those circumstances."
 Rozelle said the rule was adopted in 1963 after R.C. Owens signed with Baltimore after playing out his option with San Francisco.
 Owens' action caused "deep concern bordering on panic in the minds of some of the teams" that there would be an exodus of players to better teams in better climates after they played out their initial contracts, he said.
 In earlier testimony, Rozelle said the option-compensation clause is the primary reason for the stalemate in negotiations between club owners and the NFL Players Association.

McGinnis goes with NBA
 PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia 76ers announced the signing Thursday of George McGinnis, former American Basketball Association star, to a multiyear contract with the National Basketball Association club.
 McGinnis played the past four seasons with the Indiana Pacers of the ABA, leading the league in scoring last year with a 29.8 average.
 A member of the ABA All-League team the past two seasons, McGinnis was the center of a dispute between the 76ers, which originally drafted him in the second round of 1974 draft, and the New York Knicks, which signed him last May.
 NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien ruled the contract with New York void and fined the Knicks for tampering.
 Philadelphia 76ers general manager Pat Williams said the club's contract with McGinnis was essentially the same as the one he signed with New York. McGinnis received a bonus, from the Knicks and Williams said he will keep the money since the 76ers have agreed to pay the Knicks for the bonus.

McAnulty wins net honors at Jackpot
 JACKPOT — Everett McAnulty of Jackpot, Carl Hoss and Al Rohweder of Twin Falls, and Barry Espl of Hansen mined gold in the Silver Star Classic Thursday.
 The two-man, ball-ball, including individual sweepstakes, wound up a two-day run with John Warren of Boise sinking a solo putt on the final hole to hoist himself and Hoss into the championship flight victory at 120 - 21 under par.
 The others all took double spots out of under and individual awards.
 McAnulty, who bowled to the course greenskeeper, shook off a disappointing slump to win at 243 while Bruce Morrison, Idaho Falls, who sold golf balls, won gross at even par-144.
 Hoss was second in gross at 16 while Mark Stout, Twin Falls, and Terry-Bilton, Ogden, shared third at 148. Warren had fifth at 151.
 Behind McAnulty, Espl and Rohweder shared second in net at 129 while Ray Jacobs of Itene and long hitting Gordon Brown of Glens Ferry were fifth.

Espl and Dale Crisp, Twin Falls, second Hoss and Warren in the 12 flight at 121, a figure shared by youngsters Bilton and Brent Fenstermaker of Ogden, Mark Stout and Kevin Packard, Twin Falls, and Manson and Virgil Jacobs, Jackpot, shared fourth and fifth at 126. Curt Young, Boise, and Pete Slaver, Twin Falls, had 127 while Jim DeAngelis and Bob Orsvalk and Gary Holand and Wayne Ballard, Twin Falls, shared 128's.
 In the 13-17 handicap flight, perennial winners John Bahannon and Ray Jacobs, Reno, took first at 117, three shots ahead of Al Rohweder and Dick Rees, Twin Falls. At 212 were Brown and Richard King while Bob Starr and McAnulty, Jackpot, had 123. At 124 were Nick Hansen and Dave Werbeck, Twin Falls, while sixth was shared by Hoss, Brown and Dr. E. C. Carpenter, Twin Falls, and Evid Gerritt and Glenn Thistle, Twin Falls, at 130.
 Carl Butler and Bill Kersey of Jerome took the 18 and over handicap flight at 126, two strokes ahead of the Bulb comb of Tom Wall and Gary Meyer, John Uselton, Billings, and Larry McCormick, Idaho Falls, had third at 132 while Wally Kilgoye and Larry Harney, Kimberly, were fifth at 133. The brother duo of Al and Virgil Cross, Butte, were fifth at 134.

Tall rookie has tournament lead

MOLINE, Ill. (UPI) — Howard Twitty, a 6-foot-5, 200-pound pro player in his first PGA tournament, fought off some of the wisest contestants of the year Thursday and fired a five-under-par 66 to take the first round lead in the $75,000 Quad Cities Open.
 "I wasn't very nervous," said Twitty, 26, of Phoenix, Ariz., after his hot round on the 6,900-yard Oakwood Country Club course. "But I'm a bit more nervous now."
 At day's end, he held a one-shot lead over four veterans Terry "Dill" Dill, Don Dickberger and Ray were two shots ahead of Frank Beard, who is struggling to end a four-year victory drought on the PGA tour. Sam Snead, defending champion Dave Stockton, Barry Thompson, Allen Miller, Grier Jones, Bruce Lieckie shot 66 and were three shots back.
 Twitty, one of huskiest prospects to join the tour, cleared the PGA's qualifying school in his third try this spring. The long-hitting rookie was successful Monday in his first try at qualifying for a pro tournament when he shot 72 to meet the standard for the Quad Cities event.

It's still a fact that many natural blondes in Denmark dye their hair brunette just to be different. Far more there than those who dye their hair blonde. Our Love and War man says a lot of those Danish blondes are striking all right. But they're so numerous, they don't realize it.

UNDERSTAND a number of resorts these days are opening up their places a month early in the spring and closing them down a month late in the fall. Cut rates are offered then to guests who want to pitch in with the work. To mow lawns and otherwise gussy things up for the summer rush. And to rake leaves and otherwise batten things down for the winter. Not bad; that notion.

LOAD DICE How is it possible to load transparent dice? A Nothing to it. Let them stand for a few weeks in a saucer containing mineral oil about an eighth of an inch deep. The impregnated side of each die thereafter will be a little heavier than the other sides, so will tend to wind up on the underside at each throw.

Q. "CAN YOU say that all the roulette wheels in Las Vegas are honest?"
A: No; but certainly most are. Why should a house rig a wheel when it already has a minimum hedge of from 5 to 19 per cent against the player on every bet?

MANIA? It was in 1904 that C. W. Post tossed onto the market a brand of corn flakes he called "Elijah's Manna." Men of the cloth didn't like that name. How dare he associate his newfangled grub with God's gift to the children of Israel? For one thing, Elijah was served bread and meat, not manna. But that wasn't the point. Post repackaged his delicacy under the new name of "Post Toasties."

WHAT CAN YOU tell about a person from looking at a photograph of some? Not much, evidently. Recent tests prove that neither intelligence nor personality traits show up with any consistency in plain photographs.

Jerome council agenda outlined

JEROME—The Jerome City Council will be asked Tuesday night to approve an apartment complex on South Fillmore Street or reconsider townhouses for the area.

Law Rowland, a Jerome developer, has applied for a building permit for an apartment house complex on the street. Rowland had previously asked for rezoning of the area to permit townhouse development for a 38-unit complex, similar to condominiums.

The council, however, after passing a comprehensive townhouse ordinance, refused to make a motion on the third reading of the ordinance which, if adopted, would have changed the zoning classification of the property.

The present zoning classification, multiple dwelling, will permit the developer to build the apartment house as long as he meets all city and state building codes.

Robert Paine, Twin Falls attorney representing Rowland, said he is checking into legal action against the council.

"We have discussed the possibility of filing a writ against the City Council in an effort to make the matter come to a vote. We may file a suit by the end of this week," Paine said.

"My research on the matter indicates the council can make a motion at any time on the ordinance. The action taken by the council at the last meeting does not resolve the issue," Paine said.

Rowland said he prefers to build the townhouse complex but if necessary will go ahead with an apartment building.

"I have a lot of money tied up in this and I am not going to back out on my investment. I don't understand the people's attitude in the area. We have worked very hard to make the townhouse a nice addition to the neighborhood. How many people can afford to hire a full-time gardener and repairman like the townhouse complex would have provided?" Rowland commented.

Rowland said he still does not understand the City Council action.

"They worked with us for a year in developing a townhouse ordinance which they adopted. Then they turn around and refuse to let us build the townhouse. They keep trying to get more industry to come to Jerome but they continue to refuse to provide the adequate housing that would be needed for expanded industry. You can't have progress without changes," Rowland said.

Rowland said he thought Councilman Bill Bubak should have stepped down from his council seat during the townhouse controversy because of the councilman's personal involvement.

"Bubak lives only two houses south of my property and has stated on several different occasions he personally was opposed to the townhouse. Bubak is supposed to be a representative of the majority of the people and not his own personal interest," Rowland said.

2 TF men arrested

TWIN FALLS Two Twin Falls men were arrested by city police Tuesday on charges of manufacture of a controlled substance.

Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said the two are alleged to have been growing marijuana in Twin Falls.

Arrested were Oliver Russell Higgs, 25, and James David Pamperon, 24. The arrests were made by city police through the cooperation of the Idaho Bureau of Narcotics, Qualls said.

Both men were released on their own recognizance following initial appearances in magistrate court Tuesday afternoon.

He said the damage, amounting to about $300, occurred between 7:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Tuesday. Higgs said a pellet gun had been fired into the window to cause the damage.

Rosenberg files opened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edward L. Davis today ordered the FBI and the U.S. attorney's office in New York to let the sons of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg see files on their parents' spy case as soon as possible.

The Rosenbergs were executed June 19, 1953, after they were convicted for passing atomic secrets to Russia.

Levi and the sons, Michael and Robert Meeropol, will receive those Rosenberg files which pass new tests under the Freedom of Information Act — after each page has been reviewed. The Meeropols will receive monthly status reports on how the review is going — a Justice Department spokesman said Thursday, and the materials will be released to them as they are processed.

"They'll get quite a bit," the spokesman said.

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, reporting progress in the search for a strategic arms agreement, met again today with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in the Carnival Bar of the Geneva International Hotel to land down some of the details.

Kissinger, winding up talks with Gromyko before flying to West Germany for a meeting with Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin, said the United States and the Soviet Union are making progress toward a new Strategic Arms Limitation Talks treaty.

"With respect to SALT, we had extensive discussions and progress was made,"

Kissinger said on emerging at midnight Thursday from seven hours of talks.

Reporters asked Kissinger if progress was made toward settling the major stumbling block to a new SALT pact — verification.

"I cannot go into the details of a discussion that is still going on, but as I pointed out progress has been made," Kissinger replied.

But he said nothing about talks toward a treaty limiting nuclear tests to blasts of up to 150 kilotons. A senior U.S. official indicated one-site inspections could help police peaceful blasts.

President Ford and Soviet Communist leader Leonid Brezhnev agreed last November in Vladivostok to limit each country to 2,000 nuclear missiles and planes, including 1,320 missiles with multiple warheads.

Today's talks were expected to also include Kissinger's efforts to get Israel and Egypt to agree to an interim Middle East peace pact.

Aides explained the bar was the only spot in Kissinger's headquarters hotel that was both air-conditioned and easily protected by 600 guards.

Kissinger was scheduled to confer with Israel Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Bonn on Saturday, a day after talks with West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

Egypt has demanded the return of the Abu Rudeis oil fields and Giddi and Milla passes in the Sinai Desert. Israel has pressed for Egyptian political concessions and U.S. guarantees against treaty violations.

A diplomatic sideshow in Geneva Thursday gave Kissinger and Gromyko an object lesson in the inability of superpowers to get their views adopted all the time.

Malta, demanding the pullout of U.S. and Soviet warships from the Mediterranean, blocked the wishes of 34 other countries trying to arrange a European Security Conference summit for July 30 in Helsinki.

Kissinger later endorsed the European Security Conference summit and called for "as rapid a conclusion as possible" to the preparatory talks in Geneva.

US generals urged to 'make way'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army and Air Force are encouraging some of their generals and colonels to retire and make way for more aggressive, younger officers.

Some of the retirements are required because the armed forces are shrinking and Defense Department officials are adjusting to peacetime after Vietnam.

An Army spokesman said letters went out July 1 to selected colonels and lieutenant colonels, suggesting retirement because of age.

"This is important now, they continued, because of the need to provide quality leadership for an all-volunteer Army that statistics say is more intelligent than it has been in previous years.

"The Army," a spokesman said, "had one of two choices: slow or stop promotions or force voluntary retirements. The Army opted for encouraging voluntary retirements. If sufficient numbers of retirements are not generated, other alternatives will have to be explored."

A law which has the effect of increasing retirement pay for generals and admirals is reducing the number of the military's "highest" officers. This year, roughly 60 of the 350 Army generals, 61 of the 285 Navy admirals and 125 of the 400 Air Force generals are retiring by Sept. 1 to take advantage of the provision.

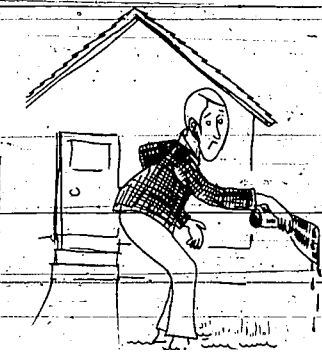

A quirk in the retirement pay laws give many officers a break if they retire. For example, a colonel with 30 years' service would get $2 a month less if he postpones his retirement past Oct. 1.

The Air Force, while not going so far as the Army, is suggesting to certain colonels and lieutenant colonels that they could profit by retirement — and would face mandatory retirement if Congress passes a new military personnel management law.

Ford reassures nation's mayors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford had a message for the big city mayors: the nation's economy will begin "bouncing upward" soon, easing the strain on their recession-battered budgets.

But after hearing Ford's optimistic forecast Thursday, leaders of the group said many cities with high unemployment already are pressed to maintain normal public services and that the mayors will keep seeking an infusion of $2 billion in emergency federal aid.

Mayor Moon Landrieu of New Orleans said "most local governments are finding it extremely difficult to maintain the basic level of police, fire and sanitation services that are essential if their cities are not to rapidly deteriorate."

Treasury Secretary William Simon promised the mayors the administration "would take another look" at their request. But he said Ford has resisted the idea on grounds the federal government cannot afford more deficit spending.

The developments came a day after the annual U.S. Conference of Mayors in Boston. Most of about 125 city executives who heard Ford's remarks traveled to the White House from that meeting.

"We have gone through a rough time in the last few months and we are not totally out of the woods at the present time," Ford said in assessing the economic situation.

"But every indicator I see is turning up, or it looks like it is not as bad as it was a couple of months ago. When you put them all together, it adds up to the fact that America is going to start bounding upward."

Ford predicted an expansion of job opportunities and told the mayors "your financial affairs inevitably will improve" and unemployment — now running at close to 9 percent nationwide — will decline.
