Officials seek killer vandals

TWIN FALLS — Police are seeking vandals who removed two stop signs at a rural intersection which became the site of a triple death crash late Saturday.

"To the best of our knowledge, the reason for the wreck to begin with was that the Montana people approached us in a hasty manner and probably had no idea that they were supposed to stop," Sheriff Paul Corder said today.

Ford asks complex oil plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today proposed a complex oil-price plan that could drive up the cost of gasoline seven cents a gallon by 1978, in effect challenging Congress to come up with a better idea if it can.

His message was addressed to Congress. But he delayed sending it to Capitol Hill until later this week in an apparent attempt to buy time to woo support both among lawmakers and the public.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., immediately said he would offer a resolution of disapproval, calling the administration's oil pricing policies "intellectually and morally corrupt."

Countdowns continuing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Countdowns continents apart moved smoothly today toward Tuesday morning's launch of Russia's Soyuz spacecraft and the blastoff 7 1/2 hours later of America's Apollo 11 mission.

Astronauts Thomas P. Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton were ready. And Russian managers said in Moscow that cosmonauts Alexei A. Leonov and Valeri N. Kubasov likewise were set for the Balkunar Cosmodrome, 6,870 miles from here, for the rendezvous in orbit.

"All the training has been completed and the crews are in full readiness for ASTP (Apollo-Soyuz Test Project)," said Andrian G. Nikolov, deputy director of the Cosmonaut Training Center, at a midday news briefing in Moscow.

"We are convinced that the crews will fully cope with the mission and we wish the cosmonauts and astronauts a successful launch; full completion of the flight program and a soft landing."

It was also reported that the two cosmonauts aboard Russia's Salyut 4 space lab will continue 14 days during the Soyuz-Apollo mission, ending their two-month mission during the last 10 days of this month. Leonov and Kubasov land July 21. Foreign Ministry press chief Vsevolod Sofronsky said in opening the Moscow news conference that the two ships' union in orbit will strengthen peace and deeper the two countries' defense. This is an example of solving many difficulties and mutual problems in an atmosphere of cooperation and mutual understanding.

Trend back to the farm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For decades Americans have poured off the farms and into the cities. But a government population study says all that has changed since 1970 and Americans are now heading back to rural areas.

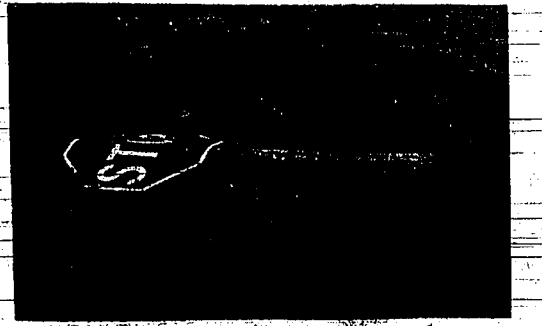

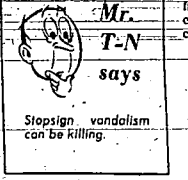

gained 6 million persons while the nonmetro counties actually lost 3 million residents. Metro counties are those containing cities of 50,000 persons and up plus their neighboring commuter counties.

Valley cancer low, uneven

By DIANE ALTERS Times News writer If you're a man living in Magic Valley, your chances of dying of cancer probably are even less than the low Idaho rate.

Valley counties compare with other areas of the state. The rates listed are for white males and females. The number of non-white cancer deaths in Magic Valley was so low that accurate statistical comparisons can't be made.

Falls rates were about the same as national rates. Compared to the overall state rate, however, Twin Falls had higher death rates: stomach cancer killed white males at a rate of 14.6 per year per 100,000 people, although the state rate was 13.73.

President Ford feels great on birthday

By HELEN THOMAS UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, celebrating his first birthday in the White House today, says "I feel great."

Earlier he commented the presidency has "made me more youthful."
Not everyone would agree. Some White House aides believe he has aged a bit under the demanding pace of the presidency, although he takes time out for relaxation, mostly with golf on weekends. There is a new swimming pool at the White House grounds for his daily exercise.

And Sunday night, while boarding Air Force One, Ford looked a little tired from his rigorous weekend trip capped by a day of tennis and golf. He stumbled on the boarding ramp, as he had done six weeks ago in Salzburg, Austria.
Ford smilingly recalls that his birthday falls on "Bastille Day," but he shows no inclination to be free of the White House prison walls. For Ford it is not a "splendid misery," and he announced last week that he will seek another four years in the highest office in the land.

"Ford was born in Omaha, Neb., on July 14, 1913. He attended public schools in Grand Rapids, Mich.; the University of Michigan, and the Yale Law School. He was elected to Congress from his home district 13 consecutive times before being named vice president after the resignation of Spiro T. Agnew. Ford says the only change she has seen in her husband is that "he works harder — if that is possible."

At a news conference in Chicago Saturday, Ford was asked to assess his biggest personal accomplishments and ratings as President.
He said he believes he has restored public confidence in the White House and in the executive branch of government. He also boasted that he has cut inflation in half from 12 percent to roughly 6 percent, but expressed concern over the 9-percent rate of unemployment.

Church sets probe deadline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, says his Senate committee on U.S. intelligence hopes to finish investigating assassination plots by the end of this month. But first it wants to get information withheld by the FBI.
The committee has threatened to subpoena bureau agents if they continue to withhold requested information on alleged illegal material.
In addition to the assassination plots, the committee has several newer topics to investigate, including charges former-Nixon administration aide Alexander Butterfield was a CIA "contact" man in the White House.
It also will try to find out who was responsible for the suicide of an Army biologist who was given LSD without his knowledge.
Sunday night, Butterfield denied he ever worked for the CIA. Interviewed on CBS "60 Minutes," Butterfield said he had an agency security clearance, just like thousands of other persons. "If I was a contact man I was a hell of a poor one because I had no contact whatsoever with the CIA."

Saturday, Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield said he would ask the Church committee to find out whether the CIA has had secret agents working on Capitol Hill.
The committee began asking the FBI and Justice Department two months ago for information on intelligence operations involving wiretaps, bugging and harassment and infiltration of dissident groups.
Church sent a strongly worded letter co-signed by Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, committee vice-chairman, to Attorney General Edward Levi, inviting him and FBI Director Clarence Kelley to appear before the panel this week.
"The failure of the Justice Department and the FBI to respond fully to the committee's request has severely hampered our investigative work," the letter said.
Church told reporters that if Levi and Kelley do not break the logjam, the Senate panel will begin subpoenaing FBI agents.
"We hope," Church said, "that it will not become a serious problem because it seems that the more serious the inquiry, that is to say, the more it is or may have to do with imperfections, the more obstacles are put up by the Justice Department with the committee."
"This we can't really tolerate."

FORMER White House Aide Alexander Butterfield, left, appearing on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes" flatly denies to host Mike Wallace that he, Butterfield, had ever been the CIA's contact in the Whitehouse. The interview took place Sunday. (UPI)

Aide denies CIA contact

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alexander Butterfield, the presidential aide who disclosed the nation's existence of the Nixon administration's White House tapes, says he was "very definitely not" an agent or contact for the CIA.
Butterfield denied totally statements last week by retired Air Force Col. Fletcher Prouty, who said Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt told him Butterfield was a White House contact for the CIA.
"If I was their contact man," Butterfield said Sunday, "I was a hell of a poor one, because I had no contact whatsoever with the CIA."
The former White House aide, who later headed the Federal Aviation Administration, said he has never met, or even seen Hunt.
Butterfield said Prouty's claim about CIA links to the White House had "led reporters to at least discuss a spy motive. In other words, infiltration was used."
"And I think that is irresponsible," Butterfield said during a television interview (CBS, "60 Minutes") on Sunday. "I think it is false... I am upset by that."
Of Hunt, a former CIA official who was working parttime at the White House at the time of the Watergate breakin, Butterfield said his presence in the White House staff was kept from me. It was purposely kept off the rolls and I had the official roll of all members of the White House staff in my capacity as Head of Administration."
Hunt was not listed as a White House staff member at the behest of H. R. Haldeman, Richard Nixon's chief-of-staff. Butterfield said — "for what reason I have no idea."

Kennedy raps constant talk

BOSTON (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., says constant speculation he will change his mind and run for President could hurt his U.S. Senate re-election campaign.
Kennedy, in an interview in the Boston Sunday Globe, said Republicans might be encouraged by the presidential talk to launch a strong challenge against him in the Senate race next year.
"The speculation about the presidency is counterproductive. It is not illogical to think that all the speculation about a candidacy or presidential draft would indicate to Republicans that their primary nomination in the state is very much worth fighting for and pursuing," said Kennedy.
Kennedy said last year he would not run for president and has consistently repeated that statement.
He has been campaigning openly for the Senate. This year, he has made seven tours, speaking at Chamber of Commerce luncheons, meeting with local leaders and becoming increasingly visible in the local media.
Kennedy has been hounded by antibusing groups urging him to oppose court-ordered school integration in Boston.
Also, political observers say he may lose votes because of lingering doubt about his involvement in the 1969 Chappaquiddick accident which resulted in the death of Mary Jo Kopechne. It was believed the percentage drop in votes in Kennedy's 1970 election compared to the 1964 race was because of that incident.
"Chappaquiddick is not dismissed by anyone here or taken for granted," a Kennedy worker said. "It is in the minds of the people, he has to live with it, and he knows that."
However, Kennedy told the Globe, his stands on the issues probably will be the central factor in the campaign.

Cambodia spurns any US help

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Cambodia is not even considering American aid, a broadcast from Phnom Penh said today.
The broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, said "the revolutionary administration of the Khmer Rouge and its people will not fall asleep on their pillows dreaming of happiness or hoping for aid from the American imperialists, no matter what form that aid might take."
The broadcast said "the American imperialists and their lackeys — traitors to the nation — have all practically been eliminated from the country."
It said Cambodia would, in effect, become self-sufficient.
"The people — the broadest — will themselves try to solve their own problems. They will work in the fields and activities to change the backward agriculture of Cambodia into a new and modern industry," Cambodia said.

Viets urged to keep their money in banks

SAIGON (UPI) — Vietnamese are being encouraged to keep their money in the bank and in some cases being prevented from taking out excessive amounts, according to a senior official of South Vietnam's National Bank.
The official told a Cambodian news conference and public meeting during the weekend that the government wants money in the bank for building the country by lending it to small businesses and in general raising the standard of living.
"Therefore people with surplus money in the bank should just keep it on deposit so it can be used for national development," Chau said.
Government authorities have promised that all-Vietnam with money in Saigon banks would be able to retrieve it but likely not all at once.
In order to keep as much money on deposit as possible, Chau said anyone requiring more than 10,000 piasters (about $13) a month living expenses per person would be required to obtain special permission for the withdrawal.
"The single excuse that you need the money to pay debts will not be enough to take out the money," Chau said.
The bank manager told the meeting that in fact there was not enough money on hand to pay off all accounts at one time. He blamed poor lending practices of banks under the previous regimes and thieves who stripped cash from bank branches during the U.S. evacuation for the shortages.
Bank Gov. Tran Duong said last month an estimated $200 million had been stolen by fleeing bank officials.
Chau indicated that the only official bank in the future would be the National Bank which he said would establish branches in every Saigon precinct.

Murder trial draws attention

RALEIGH (UPI) — Joan Little, a young black woman accused of killing a white father who she claims tried to rape, went on trial today in a case that has drawn nationwide attention because of its racial and feminist overtones.
The trial began on schedule at 10 a.m. in a packed courtroom of Wake County Superior Court with Judge Hamilton Hobgood presiding. Miss Little, her hair in a short afro style and wearing a pink and blue dress, arrived well ahead of time and sat quietly on the judge's right.
Miss Little does not deny that she killed Beaufort County Jailer Clarence Allgood, a white-haired father of six, by stabbing him 11 times with an ice pick. But she claims she acted in self-defense, warding off a sexual assault with the only means available.
A band of about 75 persons held a peaceful all-night vigil in front of the courthouse Sunday night to demonstrate support for Miss Little, and then joined demonstrators who had marched in the North Carolina Women's Prison to the courthouse. The protesters are barred by court order from demonstrating on courthouse grounds now that the trial is underway, but were given a parade permit for the street outside.

Gem River runners safety eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Amateur river runners and beginning hunters eventually may have to be protected from themselves, according to the chairman of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission.

Jack Hemingway Ketchum made the observation at a recent meeting of the commission and elaborated on it in an interview. He stressed that his views were his own and not necessarily representative of the commission as a whole.

Ray J. Holmes, Twin Falls, a former commission chairman and now the commission's representative on the Outfitters and Guides Board, said provisions of the outfitters' act do not apply to "do it yourselfers."

He said many deaths and injuries that occur on the gem river are the result of the carelessness of untrained adventurers who try to tackle the river on their own without professional guidance.

"None of this act applies to them," Holmes told the commission, "and that's a real sad thing."

"Eventually, we may have to control them," Hemingway said.

Later, he said this applied as well to beginning hunters and he questioned whether the present hunter safety program for schoolchildren could be adapted to the adult sector of the hunting community.

"In some countries, he said, mentioning specifically West Germany, hunters must undergo special training and pass tests both in the classroom and the field before they can be licensed. Even then, they are subject to a 'point system' whereby they can lose their privilege if they abuse safety rules."

"I don't think it's possible in this country to go that far," Hemingway said. "This is very touchy; you get involved in the right to bear arms."

But he said perhaps sportsman groups could do more to encourage beginners to seek instruction before venturing into the field with firearms.

He said a similar approach possibly could be taken to river running and other dangerous outdoor sports. Possibly, he said, the kayakers and canoeists could — through their formal organizations — sponsor training sessions. This is done elsewhere, he said.

There is a classification of runners according to how dangerous they are. Some day, he said, it may be necessary to close the more dangerous ones to all but the skilled. And, he noted, even the well-trained can endanger their lives.

Although training courses for adult hunters might help reduce the number of accidents among resident hunters, Hemingway said, they don't resolve the problem of the hunter from out of state.

He said Idaho and other states may have to band together eventually to make passage of an approved hunter safety course or test a prerequisite to licensing.

Reward offered

MOUNTAIN HOME AIR FORCE BASE, Idaho (UPI) — The $1,000 reward offered last winter for the safe return of Sgt. Billy Meyer's wife, has now been offered as a reward for her murder.

Mrs. Srsod Meyer, 31, a native of Thailand, was last seen Dec. 18 standing by the highway leading from Mountain Home Air Force Base to Mountain Home. She was waiting for her husband when she disappeared.

Her body was found May 30 four miles from the base by airmen hunting rabbits. An autopsy showed she had been shot.

JIM Stephens, office manager, Walco International Inc., Twin Falls, explains office equipment to Joan Hill of Harbor House. Dow Chemical, through Walco, donated $500 worth of office equipment including an electric typewriter, adding machine and small copy machine to Harbor House.

Bicentennial event planned in Jackpot

JACKPOT, Nev. — Nevada's Bicentennial wagon train information-entertainment troupe will appear on stage the afternoon of July 27 at a Jackpot casino.

Mrs. Lorraine Broyles, Carson City, trails coordinator for the Nevada State Florist's association, says the train will reach Thousand Springs (Wilkins) July 26 via U.S. Highway 93 from Wells.

From Thousand Springs the troupe will come to Jackpot, 40 miles north on Highway 93, by bus. It will perform at Cactus Pete's Casino.

A stay of several days will be made at Thousand Springs because the east bound train is not to reach the Utah border until Aug. 3. Thousand Springs was a stop on the California trail, an emigrant route also known as the Rall River-Humboldt River cut-off.

The California trail went from Idaho's City of Rocks near Oakley through the northern corner of Utah to the headwaters of Nevada's Humboldt river. Emigrant springs, 40 miles east of Jackpot, was a rest stop for the horse and even trains. Meadow lands there provided feed for stock after spring green-up had subsided in Northeastern Nevada's high desert country.

Meanwhile, Bicentennial rededication scrolls are being signed at Jackpot, and will be placed on the Pennsylvania-bound wagon train July 23 at Elko.

The scrolls will be microfilmed in Pennsylvania for historical records.

Girls' bodies recovered

EMMETT, Idaho (UPI) — The body of a seven-year-old girl who disappeared in the waters of the Grand Canyon Canal near Emmett was recovered Saturday, about 2½ miles from where she was swept away.

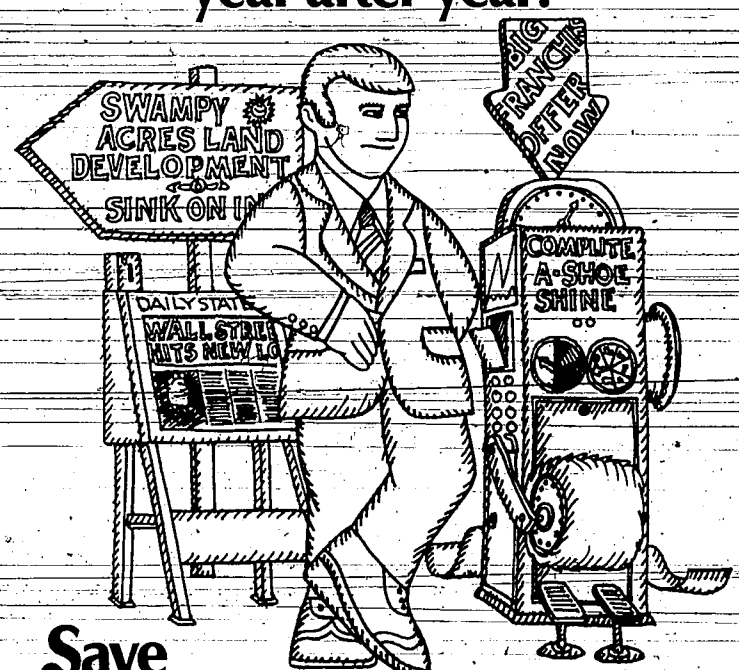

Anna Cochran of Weiser disappeared in the canal Friday. The girl's body was found in 20 feet of water on the northside of the canal.

Searchers in southeast Idaho have found the body of 11-year-old Rhonda Talbot of Fairview in the Bear River in Franklin County. She was found about two miles downstream from the spot she was swept from Thursday.

Arms shipment benefits seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the issue is emotional, a State Department official says Greece might derive an indirect benefit from resumption of U.S. military arms shipments to Turkey.

"It is in Greece's interest not to have Turkey allied with the Soviet Union," the official said.

He was asked recently about the likelihood that any congressional approval of President Ford's request to partially lift the arms ban on Turkey would strain U.S.-Greek relations.

"What would Greece gain if Turkey became an ally of the Soviet Union?" the official asked.

But he added: "The problem is an emotional one."

Congress, over Ford's objection, imposed the ban Feb. 5 because Turkey used U.S. military equipment to invade Cyprus last summer in violation of an agreement that the arms were only for NATO operations or defensive purposes.

Turkey has threatened to close American military bases within its borders and to consider withdrawing from NATO, unless the ban is lifted by Thursday.

In response to a request by Ford, the House International Relations Committee voted Friday, to release $184 million in already concluded arms sales frozen by the ban. The legislation prohibits any further military sales to Turkey until passage of the next Foreign Assistance Act, and it is not expected to be acted on by the House until after Thursday.

Meanwhile, Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., and Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., said Saturday they would introduce resolutions to delay proposed $350 million arms sale to Jordan because of "many grave, unanswered questions."

The Ford administration has informed key members of Congress it will sell Jordan three different weapons systems. Case expressed concern that the portable, Redeye shoulder-fired surface-to-air missile might fall into the hands of Palestinian terrorists who could use it against civilian aircraft in the Middle East.

Strike unlikely in postal talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A strike by Postal Service employees who currently are involved in "difficult" contract negotiations is possible, but unlikely, according to Postmaster General Benjamin F. Ballar.

No matter what the outcome, he said Sunday, the Postal Service will need to raise rates. But he promised the rate for first-class letters will not go above 13 cents this year.

"I'm satisfied that the postal union leaders really would like to have a negotiated settlement," Ballar said in a broadcast interview (CBS: "Face the Nation"). "They want it on their terms of course, and we're having some difficult negotiations. But I think it's unlikely that there'll be a strike."

Asked about a repetition of the 1970 postal strike, Ballar said it would be "possible... but a postal strike is illegal."

"It's certainly possible," he added, that some other kind of job action — a slowdown or "sickout" — may take place.

"There are some postal employees who feel very strongly about the present negotiations and may create some disruptions," Ballar said.

Ballar said the Postal Service definitely will need new revenues.

"I would think it's quite likely that we'll have to move with the maximum increase which is allowed us — it will be in the order of 30 per cent by the end of the year," he said.

Ballar said the cost of mailing a first-class letter — now 10 cents — won't be pegged higher than 13 cents and may be "something less," depending on developments.

Ballar also said he has received assurance from Central Intelligence Agency Director William C. Sullivan that CIA agents no longer are opening mail of American citizens, though postal inspectors do conduct "mail covers" — noting information on envelopes — for investigative agencies if asked.

Census set

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union will conduct a full-scale population census in 1979, the first in nine years, Moscow Radio said today.

The latest official count of Soviet citizens, released by the Central Statistics Board last Jan. 1, was 253.5 million; up 2.4 million over the previous year.

The Soviet Union covers 16.5 per cent of the earth's surface but its population is only 8.7 per cent of the world's total.

OAS conference opening today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Organization of American States, looking for a way to end controversial sanctions against Cuba, opens a two-week meeting in Costa Rica Wednesday.

Representatives of OAS members, including a U.S. delegation headed by William S. Mallard, will meet in San Jose and attempt to reform a hemispheric treaty under which the Cuban ban was imposed 11 years ago on the Fidel Castro regime.

The last effort failed at a foreign ministers conference in Quito, Ecuador, last fall. Only 12 of the required 14 nations voted there to lift the sanctions and the United States — adopting a position of "strict neutrality" — abstained.

But sources say Washington will change its position in San Jose — more in an attempt to rid the 25-member OAS of a divisive issue that gets too much attention than as a gesture to the Castro government.

Assistant Secretary of State William D. Rogers has predicted the road to full resumption of bilateral trade and diplomatic relations between the United States and Cuba, broken in early 1962, "will be long and intricate" even after OAS sanctions are gone.

The San Jose conference was called by the OAS General Assembly in May for the purpose of amending the Inter-American Treaty of Mutual Assistance, known as the Rio Treaty, so OAS nations could legally abolish the already useless Cuban sanctions. But it is not yet clear whether a final decision on lifting them will be made or whether the issue again may be postponed.

Unless voting procedures are revised and ratified, a two-thirds majority — 14 votes — still will be needed to end the sanctions.

Morgan family vacations in Europe

DURING HIS tour of the downtown area of Mackinac Island, Mich., President Gerald Ford stopped off at one of the island's famous fudge shops to taste and watch two young men carve up a 20-pound loaf of fudge. (UPI)

Ford well received in Michigan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, in his first trip since becoming a candidate, showed this weekend he may be an effective campaigner among diverse groups in Middle America and — by his own assessment — "made a lot of friends."

Whether speaking about economic "moderation and restraint" to corporate executives in Chicago, or dropping in on a band concert in his home state of Michigan, Ford received abundant cheers.

At a regionally televised news conference in Chicago, Ford again criticized Congress' inaction on his energy program.

The effect was not missed by political pros. The President met with a group of Illinois GOP leaders in Chicago Saturday and with Michigan Republicans Sunday.

Political sources in Illinois say Ford's handling of the Mayaguez incident and his use of the veto already are helping disarm a threat to his support there from former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Michigan Gov. William Milliken, who joined Ford through his visit to the state, and state GOP chairman William McLaughlin are firm backers of Nelson Rockefeller. Michigan is considered likely to provide support for Ford's vice-presidential pick.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen stressed the trip was non-political, saying: "He's just out there being ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — U. S. Army Col. Ernest Morgan, kidnaped in Beirut June 29, by Palestinian guerrillas and freed Saturday, flew with his family to a secret vacation spot in Europe today.

Morgan, 43, of Petersburg, Va., arrived in Ankara Sunday for a reunion with his wife Margaret and 11-year-old son Byron. He was en route to his post in Ankara from a Central Treaty Organization meeting in Pakistan when he was abducted during a Beirut stopover.

"The family will be having a rest somewhere in Europe," a U.S. Information Service spokesman in Ankara said.

Turkish officials said the Morgans apparently took a military flight.

They were not on any commercial flights from Ankara today, an airport official said.

Morgan told newsmen in Beirut Sunday. "I wish to express my sincere gratitude to all the people in the world for their prayers."

Morgan, who was freed Saturday night after 13 days in captivity, underwent a medical checkup at the American University Hospital in Beirut before flying to Turkey to rejoin his family.

"Now I shall return to my wife and family in Ankara, and I hope to some semblance of normalcy," he said.

in a brief statement before leaving the hospital.

The 43-year-old, Petersburg, Va., officer said the Palestinian kidnapers decided to free him because of worldwide appeals, especially from American blacks.

Many groups made appeals and this had a profound effect on the people who were controlling me," he said. "Public opinion did a lot to help, I think."

Morgan said he well-treated by his captors and served "surprisingly good" food. He said he was held in five different hideouts during his captivity.

The colonel, dressed in civilian clothes, refused to answer questions at the hospital and left for the airport immediately after making his statement.

The guerrillas freed Morgan on the doorstep of the home of Premier Rashid Karami, three hours before an execution deadline.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said the colonel had "a good night's sleep and says he's still a bit tired but otherwise feeling fine."

The guerrillas kidnaped Morgan in a Beirut suburb June 29 during a stopover in Lebanon on a flight from Pakistan to Turkey. He was one of a series of persons abducted during 10 days of religious warfare in Lebanon.

The guerrillas said Morgan was freed because he confessed to being a spy and the United States distributed ransom payments of food in Beirut slum.

The colonel, who is stationed in Turkey, adamantly denied being a spy after his release. Distributors of the food-said wealthy individuals provided the ransom.

Lawmakers show effects of strenuous sessions

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The sign on the House bulletin board says "only two days left." And one legislator says, "When they start putting loads in cigarettes and throwing spitballs, it's time to quit."

With one day today left in the legislative session, the lawmakers have been putting in long hours seven days a week and are beginning to show the effects. Shenanigans and "sleeping legislators" are becoming commonsights.

Cigarettes have been blowing up with regularly on the floor of the House, as representatives give their colleagues "loaded" smokes. Spitballs and wads of paper go flying through the air regularly, and a number of representatives and senators wander through the chamber taking and posing for pictures with their friends.

"It's just two damn long," Rep. Armand Brinkhaus of Sunset says of the 45-day session. "First this year. Previous sessions, under the old Louisiana Constitution, were limited to 90 days and frequently did not even last that long."

"It's like the end of college," Brinkhaus said. "You know you might not see old friends again. The end of four years."

All of the legislators' four year terms expire this year. Many are running for reelection; a number have announced their retirement.

"They're going stir crazy," Brinkhaus said.

Rep. Walter Bigby of Bossier City had his hair cut Saturday, and he spoke before the legislature after lunch. When he was through, all of the legislators began making catcalls and lewd gestures.

"I don't know," Bigby said later, shaking his head. "When I got up at the microphone, they all started blowing kisses and all."

"At least we only do this for three months," said Rep. Wandy Jenkins of Baton Rouge. "The other nine months they can go home and be sane."

More refugees expected today

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — The United States has airlifted 256 more Cambodian refugees from the base at Utopao, the U.S. embassy said today.

An embassy spokesman said the refugees were "mostly civilian families" who had found their way across the border into Thailand from Cambodia following the collapse of Phnom Penh on April 17.

The refugees were released by the Thai government official under "special parole," waiving normal government regulations.

The refugees aboard two U.S. Air Force C141 Starliner transports were expected to arrive at Camp Pendleton, Calif., sometime today, the spokesman said.

That estimate put the number of Cambodian refugees still in Thailand between 5,000 and 6,000.

Police said they believe the arrest of four men, including an escaped IRA officer, Sean Kinisla on the Liverpool-area and the discovery of a large quantity of arms and explosives indicate the IRA planned to begin a new bomb blitz in England.

Inmates freed in Taiwan

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI)—The government today freed 2,622 inmates, including hundreds of political prisoners, in memory of the late President Chiang Kai-shek.

A Justice Department spokesman said the government ordered the mass clemency as part of memorial ceremonies marking the 100th day since Chiang's death.

Government sources said the freed men included 200 of the 400 political prisoners convicted of being Communist agents or Taiwanese separatists.

The Justice Department said the 3,622 prisoners were the first group to benefit by a nationwide clemency in memory of Chiang, who died of a heart attack April 5.

A spokesman said the government cut the sentences of an additional 4,101 prisoners by one-third to one-half and will "free them when the remaining time has been served."

One political prisoner, journalist Albert Yuan, was freed today in eastern Taiwan after 12 years in jail. He was sentenced to 15 years in 1963 after a military court convicted him of spying for the Soviet Union.

Government sources said two other journalists, Lee Ching-sua and Kuo Yit-ting, both convicted of rebellion, were eligible for commutation.

The sources said Lee's life sentence would be reduced to 15 years, and Kuo's 12-year term would be cut to eight years. They said Kuo would be released next year.

But, the source said, writer Lee Pui and two other prominent persons involved in the Taiwan separatist movement—Hsieh Tsung-min and Wei Ting-sao—would not be eligible for the plan.

Man recovers sight in fall

MADISTONE, England (UPI)—Jon Lawrence, 43, a blind bank telephonist, who recovered his sight May 21 when he tripped over his seeing-eye dog, Omar, and banged his head, described the recovery as permanent.

He saw an eye specialist early last month and was taken off the list of registered blind persons. He reluctantly returned Omar to the local branch of the Guide Dogs Association.

Jon was taking his wife and young daughter a cup of tea when the accident occurred and he fell down stairs. The first thing he saw was his daughter, Janette, 9.

Dozen healthy adults volunteer to 'die'

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—A dozen healthy young adults, including the mother of a 5-week-old child, volunteered to "die."

Immersed in the symptoms of a variety of terminal illnesses, the 12 and their loved ones studied the approach of death.

Eight weeks later they simulated the moment of death itself.

It was "Eight Weeks to Live; Eight Weeks to Die"—a program at the University of Minnesota YMCA to help an average, healthy person come to grips with fears and frustrations about dying.

"We felt if people could start understanding their own mortality and come to grips with it, it would enrich their lives and relationships with others," said Terry McKenzie-Mandel, a director of the program.

The program was aimed at persons between 18 and 24, the second highest age group for fatalities, Ms. McKenzie-Mandel said.

"These are mostly people in school now, in holding patterns in their lives. Living for later," she said. "Maybe it will help them take a closer look at who they are now."

Medical, law, mortuary science and seminary students were brought in to help the participants deal with every facet of dying. The group made wills, planned funerals and wrote their own eulogies and obituaries.

They were assigned illnesses, such as a brain tumor, and each week were told of the disease's progression.

"Not to be gruesome," Ms. McKenzie-Mandel said, "but just to give them something during the beginning weeks to simulate dying."

The participants kept journals to record their feelings. One woman wrote that if "dying" began to affect her too much, she would tell herself, "It's just a simulation. Just a program I'm in for my own personal reasons. I am not dying—but on a healthy, young adult who probably won't die for years and years."

The final session involved "killing them off," Ms. McKenzie-Mandel said. "It was an incredibly powerful experience."

Kristie Wayne, another program director, said emotions ran from tranquility to sorrow, but "for some it was awful."

One young woman whose brother had died when she was very young said she was able to discuss it for the first time with her parents.

Most of the reactions were positive, keyed on living.

AFL aide asks taxes on wealthy, corporations

WASHINGTON (UPI)—AFL-CIO President George Meany urged Congress today to tax millions of dollars held by wealthy people and corporations.

"The tax structure is rigged," Meany said. "Every dollar in taxes that isn't paid by wealthy individuals and corporations because of special privilege loopholes is one more dollar that must be paid by someone else."

In testimony prepared for the House Ways and Means Committee hearings on tax reform, Meany ticked off a list of tax changes sought by the AFL-CIO.

The way the existing tax system works, Meany said, "the more wealth and income you have, the more opportunities you should have to avoid taxes...it is open only to the wealthy."

He singled out the existing gains provisions of the capital gains provisions of the tax law, saying it cost the Treasury about $10 billion annually, yet about two-thirds of the benefits of this provision go to 1.2 per cent of the nation's taxpayers.

Under the capital gains provision, profits from the sale of stocks or property are taxed at rates that are favorable to the taxpayer, Meany said.

"There cannot be tax justice so long as unearned income from capital gains is only partially taxed while earned income is taxed in full."

Meany said 1971 government data showed that 1 per cent of U.S. families with the largest personal income received 47 per cent of the total dividend income.

Court rejects Gandhi's appeal

NEW DELHI, India (UPI)—The Indian Supreme Court turned down Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's call today for an immediate hearing on her appeal of a campaign corruption conviction.

A four-judge panel, headed by Chief Justice A.N. Ray, set an Aug. 11 date for the hearing despite a request by Jagannath-Kaushal, Mrs. Gandhi's attorney, for immediate consideration of the case.

Shanti Bhushan, lawyer for the socialist leader challenging Mrs. Gandhi's 1971 election to parliament, asked for more time to prepare his arguments.

Mrs. Gandhi did not appear for the preliminary hearing in the court's main hearing room, crowded with an estimated 300 lawyers, visitors and reporters.

Socialist leader Raj Narain remained in jail with thousands of other politicians reportedly rounded up by the government in a crackdown against opposition leaders.

The state court in Allahabad, convicted her June 12 of violating Indian laws by using her personal secretary to campaign for her and government officials to arrange election meetings.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: To make a long story short, another girl and I are interested in finding husbands, and we don't want to waste a lot of time and money looking. I am 30 and she is 31.
Can you tell us where to look for eligible men—preferably with money? Or do you believe in that old saying, "Everything comes to him who waits?"
LOOKING IN ST. PAUL.

DEAR LOOKING: Get out of Minnesota. There are only 81 eligible men to every 100 single women in your age bracket there.

Your best bet is Alaska. The unmarried men outnumber single women two to one.

The pickings are good in Hawaii, Nevada and Rhode Island. The ratio there is about six men to every five women.

Florida, California and Arizona are loaded with older eligibles who are loaded. But prepare to compete with rich widows.

The only thing that comes to those who wait is gray hair. Good luck and happy hunting, girls!

Pair seeks rich catch

DEAR ABBY: We are a middle-age couple. We are mighty into a thing called TMI. Tom and Ann like to get out of town frequently. They gave my husband a key to their house so that he can feed their dog, water their plants, and keep an eye on their house in their absence. I have never gone into their house while they are not home.

Recently we went away on a trip, and my husband gave Tom and Ann a key to our house so they could keep an eye on it.

We've been back three months, and they still have our house key. Yesterday when we returned from shopping, we found a note stuck on our door. It read: "We called, got no answer, so we came in and borrowed some chairs we needed. Signed, Tom and Ann."

Abby, I feel that this was presumptuous. I don't want anyone in my house when I'm not home. And I certainly don't want them borrowing anything without my permission. True, had I been home, I would have let them borrow the chairs, but I feel they had no business helping themselves.

I've asked my husband to ask them for my key. He says I'm being foolish. I will abide by your decision. If you say I'm wrong, I'll apologize.

OVER 60 AND ANGRY
DEAR OVER: No apologies necessary. I think you're right.

DEAR ABBY: Recently I attended a small dinner party at the home of a friend. For dessert she served a lemon custard cake topped with whipped cream and coconut icing. It was delicious. Everyone raved and no one left a crumb.

The next morning I telephoned my hostess to thank her again for the lovely dinner party. Then I asked her for the recipe for the dessert. I was shocked when she said, "It's my own creation and I don't give out the recipe, but if you ever want one, I'll be glad to make it for you—for $10, which will be charged to my check."

"How do you feel about that, Abby?"
DUMBFOUNDED

DEAR D: It's her recipe and her right to refuse to give it. I think it's a good deal for everyone—including the members of her church.

your health

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please discuss sciatica. I have had it three or four times in about two years. The flare-ups usually last only a few days, but the last one lasted five weeks.
I put a board under my mattress to relieve the back pain, and I apply heat and rest for about a week when it happens. I still worry about what causes it. I am 30 years old, five feet tall and weigh 135. — Mrs. R.H.

The sciatic nerve is the large one going from the lower spine and branching out into the legs. Since 85 per cent of the spine, any disorder that puts pressure upon this area can cause sciatica, a pain on one side along the entire nerve network. You may have suffered an injury that distorted the fibrous disc between a pair of lower vertebrae, or you may have even injured one of the vertebrae itself.
Some structural changes caused by osteoarthritis can exert pressure on the roots of this nerve. However, at 30, you seem a bit young for this.

And, of course, the question arises as to whether or not you have true sciatica. Your problem could be an unstable back. In which recurrent muscle spasms can occur. This can mimic the symptoms of sciatic nerve problems.

Bending and lifting can provoke attacks. Mothers who are always lifting babies from cribs (a bending and straining exercise) are prone to low-back problems. Perhaps such an activity in earlier years provoked your condition. Smaller women, like you, who overdo such activity are prime candidates for back pains.

And speaking of your size, you didn't think you were going to get off scot-free in the matter of weight. Did you? If true, you can certainly afford to lose some of that poundage. Overweight is often a factor in the kind of problems you report, and can aggravate a sciatic condition.

Your heat treatment, a firm mattress and rest should help. You should examine your lifting habits and try to correct them if they are placing undue strain on your lower back area. At 30, you are much too young to allow your back to deteriorate if the simple adjustments I have suggested can help.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: The whites of my eyes are red most of the time. I am 57 years old and have had this problem for quite some time. Could this be serious? — M.

This is usually most irritating than serious, unless it is the eyeball. Smoke, fumes and dust are common causes, as is an allergy to a cosmetic or, in the case of men, to an after-shave lotion. It can also stem from a chronic bacterial infection, and this should be investigated.

This is usually more irritating than serious, unless it is allowed to worsen. It should be looked at by an eye specialist to rule out any serious aspects. If it is conjunctivitis, eyedrops containing a steroid drug may help. This should be prescribed by your doctor.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are negativeheel shoes harmful? I would like to buy a pair, but I am concerned about how they would affect my back and feet. — J.G.H.

Negativeheel shoes are those in which the sole is higher than the heel—I have been told that it takes a while to get used to them. Discomfort can be noticed in the legs and back, so you would buy a pair at the risk of not being able to use them.

Any shoes that distort the foot from its natural configuration cannot do much good, unless it is prescribed for therapeutic purposes. Indeed, they can do great harm.

Improper footwear is at the root of many of the foot, leg, even back problems mentioned these days. And style-conscious women seem to be the most prominent victims, although recently many men have joined the ranks of the ill-shod.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple—write Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 3299, Elgin, Ill. 60120, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Doomsday retreat gives mountain folks big laugh

WEDD, Calif. (UPI) — The whole idea of the secret camp was to provide a sort of postdoomsday retreat for the rich who were willing to pay — $200 a day — for a place in which to survive anarchy, nuclear attack or other catastrophes.

The country folks are getting a big kick out of it. "They didn't get anything for their money," said Gary Mortensen, owner of the weekly Pioneer Press.

The camp sprawls over 712 acres in the rugged Cascades in the shadow of Mt. Shasta near the Oregon border.

The rich ponied up $12,800 in cash to become a camp member. Dues were $300 a year. The camp was believed to have 20 members.

The mountain folks are tickled over the fact that everyone knows the camp's location. And they think it is silly to put up a lot of money for an A-frame hut and a big barn designed for storage and communal living.

The name of the camp is the Scott Meadows Club. It is linked with Group Retreats, Inc., and Zama Corp. with offices in Newport Beach, Calif.

The big barn — originally was built — as a subdivision headquarters, but the subdivision never materialized.

In the A-frame there is only a small table, unconnected stove and wood-framed bed without a mattress.

The barn also contains dehydrated food. Organizers figured the survivors also would learn to live off nuts, vegetation and animal meat. They also said they had their own water supply — Rail Creek.

Real estate entrepreneur Max Hollis is dead serious about his project. He said members were not allowed to divulge the location. If they did, he said, they were expelled.

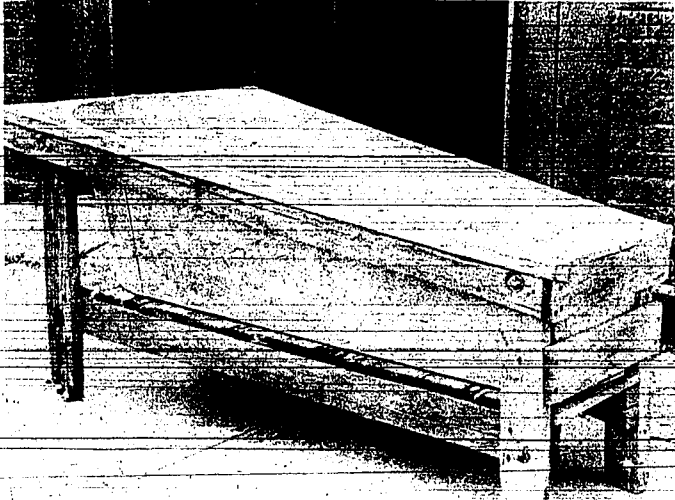

Prospective members have been led out of town blindfolded.

But any of the residents of this Shasta County town or nearby Scott Valley can tell you where the camp is — off the two-lane Callahan Road to Weed, a quarter-mile along a dirt Forest Service tract often used by fishermen heading for Kangaroo Lake.

Nevertheless, Hollis tells prospective members the road could be dynamited quickly. "Two sticks would close the road off," he said.

And in the event persons did get close to the camp, he said, members would have guns to ward them off.

"I'd shoot to kill to protect myself, my food and family," he said.

PASSERSBY did double-takes Friday when they saw this pre-1965 galvanized tin bathtub on the sidewalk by Rancho Supply. The store did a "plumbing trade" with the owner, removed the rust and intends to display it in the store window.

Adolescent girls need vaccinations

Newhouse News Service — Vaccinations for rubella — German measles — should be given only to teenage girls rather than to all children before the age of 12, according to a group of Harvard University researchers.

Rubella offers the greatest danger to pregnant women, who are at risk of bearing blind, deaf, or retarded children if they contract the rash-like disease during pregnancy. Rubella is most prevalent in childhood.

In the United States, public health policies have called for vaccination of all children ages 1 through 12 on the theory that young mothers are most likely to pick up the contagion from young children.

But, in an article published in the Journal of the American Medical Association, a team of researchers reported that women having their first child who would have minimal exposure to small children with the infection — were just as susceptible to rubella as older mothers with several children.

School policy cuts absenteeism

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (UPI) — Parkersburg High School students were given 10 absences during the past school year for which they didn't have to provide an excuse.

The results:

- Absenteeism dropped from 9 to 5 per cent.
- Withdrawals were down.
- Grade point averages were up.

"It's a very good record," said Robert Butler, the assistant principal. He plans to extend the policy.

The major objective was to reduce skipped classes, and Butler said this was accomplished. Parkersburg students missed 9.5 days per student the past year compared to an average 18 days the previous year.

In one group of 374 students with chronic attendance problems, the assistant principal said average absences per student dropped from 34 days a year ago to 18 days per student the past year.

Under the policy, the usual excused and unexcused absences were eliminated, and students were permitted 10 unexcused absences per semester. "Unless granted mercy for extenuating circumstances, the 11th absence resulted in loss of credit for the class."

CIA experimented with LSD in '50s

N.Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — The Central Intelligence Agency was one of the pioneers in studying the hallucinogenic drug LSD, having begun its research eight years before Dr. Timothy Leary swallowed his first dose of the powerful mind-altering substance.

A review of the history of LSD research indicates that the CIA began its experiments with the drug at about the same time that Army and Navy began the studies of what was then — in the early 1950s — a mysterious drug with extraordinary powers to modify perception, thought, emotion and behavior.

LSD's potential utility as a chemical warfare agent was obvious from its earliest days in the laboratory in the late 1940s. Standard reference works on chemical warfare agents list LSD as one of a handful of "psychochemicals" under study by the chemical warfare research laboratories housed at Fort Detrick and of Eggeywood Arsenal, both in Maryland. Chemical warfare research at these centers has since been phased out.

When Dr. Frank R. Olson, the bacteriologist employed at Fort Detrick who also began LSD by CIA experimenters, plunged from a New York hotel window to his death 22 years ago, the drug had been made available to researchers in the United States only a few months earlier by the Sandoz Research Laboratories of Switzerland.

Various government agencies had been working with the drug for several years, having obtained it from a few European researchers who had also begun work earlier, including Dr. Howard A. Abramson, the psychiatrist to whom the CIA sent Olson when he began experiencing bad reactions to the drug.

LSD, or Lysergic Acid Diethylamide, was first synthesized in 1930 by Dr. Albert Hofmann, a Sandoz chemist in Basel. The chemical's effects on the mind were not discovered until 1943 when Hofmann accidentally inhaled some LSD powder and experienced "a peculiar sensation" in which "fantastic pictures of extraordinary plasticity and intensive color seemed to surge toward me."

In 1947 the first systematic study of the effects of the curious compound confirmed Hofmann's earlier conclusions and spurred other researchers to investigate. Abramson began his experiments with LSD in 1951.

Because of the drug's wide-ranging effects, it was studied as a possible treatment for mental illness and as a way of producing artificial and temporary psychoses for research.

At no time was the policy to be interpreted as a school gift for 10 free cuts, Butler said. A student taking that route faced the possibility of missing additional classes for legitimate reasons and losing credit for the class.

Of approximately 250 Parkersburg High School students, 235 of them — 13 per cent — lost credit for 477 classes. Another 250 were replevered for valid excuses.

"The burden of proof was always on me and not the student," the assistant principal said. "Unless I could prove to myself beyond a shadow of a doubt they were skipping, they'd not lose the class."

Butler conceded the policy might have encouraged skipping among students not inclined to cutting classes.

European nations plan summit meet

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — The leaders of the nine European Common Market nations come to the summit this week without their usual baggage of grandiose projects and long-range dreams.

Possibly for that reason, they are approaching it with a lighter step and a greater air of confidence than any European summit in the past two years.

Economy affects eating

NEW YORK — The recession coupled with higher prices, is affecting eating habits and causing changes in the demand for certain types of food.

Especially hard-hit are a number of the relatively high-cost preferred convenience foods — both dry and frozen. But snacks, staples and gourmet foods seem to be holding their own or improving their sales for varied reasons. As the National Association of Food Chains expresses it, "consumers have returned to the basics."

It is difficult to obtain from dollar sales figures an accurate picture of just which items are now selling better than before the recession.

Supermarket statistics show that snack foods, as a percentage of store sales, increased from 6.5 per cent in 1974 to 4.3 per cent in 1974.

This increase, obviously, was due to higher prices because fewer packages move off the supermarket shelves last year — in many instances, the sizes of the items also were reduced.

Sales of such items as fish and beans, canned soups, pork and other foods designed to save work in preparing meals have remained high. However, there is no doubt that sales of the "you-add-the-meat" category in the convenience food field have leveled off.

The success of such dinners in the period of 1970 to 1972, before the recession set in, led to a flood of such products. Market over-saturation resulted in a sharp drop in the number of products being introduced, as well as the discontinuance of some items.

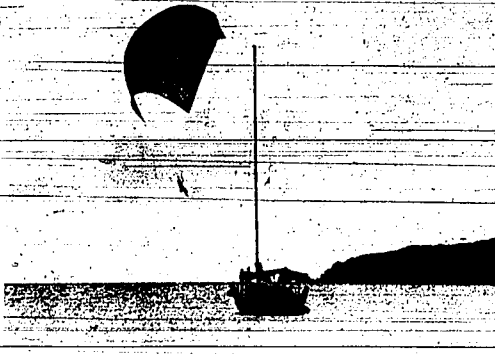

The recession, which set in last year, has taken an additional toll in the number of brands and in sales of those items still on the shelves.

Among the latter are General Mills' "Hamburger Helper" and Hunt & Wesson's "Hunt's Skillet Oriental."

The meat shortage and rapidly increasing prices were the cause of the change in the convenience food field, according to Progressive Grocer.

Consumers turned to canned pasta dishes and certain frozen food items, such as pizza. Lower fresh meat prices earlier this year helped to restore the economy theme of the "you-add-the-meat" dinners somewhat, but fresh meat prices have risen again and it remains to be seen what effect this will have in the convenience foods.

In addition to the pasta specialties, stuffing mixes, usually sold in the baked goods department, as well as instant potatoes seem to be holding their own.

HAGERMAN — Horsemen will display the traditional flag of the Hagerman Pioneer Day parade on July 21 during the parade.

The Hagerman Ward LDS Church holds this annual celebration to commemorate the entrance of their pioneer forefathers in the Salt Lake Valley on July 21, 1847.

This celebration began about 1929 with events such as ball games and foot races. Gradually it has enlarged and this year will feature a parade, dinner, bazaar, rodeo, queen's contest and a talent program.

Bishop Floyd Marsh is general chairman; Ron Wood, rodeo director; Ed Larson, publicity; Bob Evans, parade; Twila Bendorf, dinner and bazaar; and Blaine Hulme, talent program.

Various local civic organizations will sponsor booths.

Wheelchair patient 'lost' in hospital

CHICAGO — An investigation by the Veterans Administration has failed to solve the mystery of how a wheelchair patient was "lost" in the Hines Veterans Hospital here for 25 hours last May.

Nevertheless, Dr. John D. Chase, chief VA medical director, said Friday that steps have been taken to prevent a recurrence of the Edwin A. Pawelaki case, which was disclosed by Chicago Daily News columnist Mike Royko.

Officials at Hines initially said they believed Pawelaki, who was awaiting brain surgery and was unable to speak, somehow was left on a busy passenger elevator and went unnoticed for more than a day.

But an investigation by two Washington-based aides to VA Administrator Richard L. Roubesh established "positively" that Pawelaki could not have been on the elevator for the entire time he was missing, according to Dr. Chase.

Robbery suspect arrested

SIREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — Police and FBI agents Saturday captured a suspect in the $1 million jewel robbery of a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., art gallery and recovered a pile of paints estimated to be worth $500,000.

The suspect had more than a score of aliases, but was arraigned under the name Edward Richard Jones, 32, and jailed in lieu of $40,000 bond on a charge of interstate transportation of stolen goods.

Jones was also wanted in a $40,700 robbery in Sacramento, Calif., and was accused of breaking out of the Lincoln Parish Jail in Ruston, La.

He was arrested, unarmed, at an apartment without resistance.

Blastoff scheduled Tuesday

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — They are coming in caravans of campers, flotillas of boats and swarms of airplanes.

Gift shops are stocking up with tacky beer mugs, tie pins, medals, iron-on patches, key chains, license plates, decals, pennants and hoodies.

Area motels are booked up, even with a three-night minimum.

Brevard County officials expect as many as one million persons to scatter along 27 miles of beaches to view the American end of the Apollo Soyuz mission, scheduled for blastoff Tuesday.

It will be a last dip in the well for the local food, lodging and booze merchants. There will be no more American-manned spaceflights until 1979 when the space shuttle goes into operation.

"It looks like it's building up to be something in the neighborhood of Apollo 11," said a spokesman for the Florida Highway Patrol.

Environ park created at Arco

By MARGARET BAILEY
ARCO, Idaho (UPI) — Yesterday's windswept desert security area has been out of the southeastern Idaho nuclear engineering installation is today's outdoor laboratory for studies on rattlesnakes, coyotes and radiation.

The 571,800 acre sagebrush desert area has been set off from the influence of Man, since the 1940's when the federal government set up the National Reactor Testing Station, now called the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL).

The security area outside the INEL in January was named the nation's second Environmental Park.

"The main reason for the park is to make it possible for universities and other groups that wish to make studies outside of our operational areas to come on site and make those studies," said Dr. Adriaan Dahl, chief, environmental sciences branch for the INEL.

Dr. Dahl acts as coordinator for the projects — "about 20 of them now."

"We have to coordinate them so one person doesn't do something that is going to upset somebody else's study."

Some studies had been underway for two to three years before the site was named an environmental park. The experiments are conducted on subjects of special interest to the schools.

Colorado State University is tracing radio nuclides radiocative to some particular weights — in a settling pond used to cool water from a reactor.

Samples from the water, sediment at the bottom, from the algae growing there and from birds and small animals that feed or drink at the pond show the levels of radioactivity and its movement in the water.

The area is fenced to keep out the antelope and larger animals. Dahl said the radioactivity is "fairly low, so there is nothing hazardous to the plants or animals."

Not all the projects are oriented to nuclear physics.

"We have a group of people (from the University of Utah) who want to study the coyote population and find out what they eat."

A second experiment on coyotes, by a student from Idaho State University, involves trapping the coyotes, putting transmitters on them and releasing them, again in their home range to see how far they travel around the countryside.

The vast, cool-temperate desert left undeveloped over the past 30 years has become a natural highway for hawks and falcons, including the rare prairie falcon. One study has helped provide information needed for the placement of a new power line through a hawk nesting area.

Local cancer rate uneven, but quite low

TWIN FALLS WOMEN
For women in Twin Falls County, only liver cancer registered a higher death rate, at 6.8, than the national rate of 5.34. Significantly lower than the state rates for women were rates for stomach cancer at 5.8 compared to Idaho's 6.69 rate; colon cancer at 8.19 and 12.15 statewide; and pancreatic cancer, 3.6 in the county and 5.58 in Idaho.

More of the common cancers had higher rates among women in Twin Falls county than in the state: Lung cancer, 22.94 compared to Idaho's 21.54; breast cancer had a 23.3 rate county-wide and 21 statewide. Cervical cancer's rate with 7.7, compared to 6.4 in Idaho; ovarian cancer, 8 compared to 7.2 nationwide. The rate for leukemia was 6.9 in the county and 5.91 in the state.

MINIDOKA COUNTY
Minidoka county stands out for its low lung cancer rate, among white males. At 13.3, it is slightly more than half the state rate of 22.94 per 100,000 people. Its overall all-cancer rate is 136.5, however, which compares unfavorably to the 136.61 state rate. Leukemia is the only other major cancer among males in Minidoka county which was lower, at 7.8, than the state rate of 9.38.

Stomach cancer among white males in Minidoka county at 18.2 was higher than either the national rate (15.22) or the state rate of 13.73. Cancer of the colon had a 14.2 rate, nearly three points higher than the state's rate. A point is one death per 100,000 people.

Lymph cancer's rate was more than twice the state and the national rate at 8.5. Liver cancer at 5.5 was about two points higher than the state rate.

Overall, women in Minidoka county fared worse, with a 115.5 rate compared to 110.15 in Idaho. Of the major cancers, only stomach cancer, at 5.7, was lower than the state rate of 6.69 and breast cancer at 19.2 compared to Idaho's 21.

Colon, cervical and ovarian cancer were at state levels for women, with liver, cancer and leukemia higher and pancreatic cancer about twice the state rate.

LINCOLN COUNTY
Lincoln county's overall cancer rate for men was 116.8, about 20 points lower than Idaho's. Prostate gland cancer at 15.5 was three points lower than in the state. Lung cancer in Lincoln county had a lower rate than any other county in the Magic Valley, with a 12.6 rate, slightly more than half the Idaho rate. Pancreatic cancer was almost half the state rate.

Higher than state rates in Lincoln county were registered for cancers of the colon, rectum and brain and for leukemia in men. Deaths from breast cancer among women in Lincoln county were far rarer at a rate of 3.4 than in the state. Ovarian cancer deaths at a rate of 19, however, were over twice as common as in other counties. Hodgkin's disease was about five times as common at a rate of 5.8. Women overall in Lincoln county fared far better than men, however, with a total rate of 96.4, some 14 points lower than the state.

JEROME COUNTY
In Jerome County, the overall rate for men was 122.6, about 14 points below the state rate. Stomach cancer was slightly lower, and prostate gland cancer at 12.2 was nine points lower than the state rate.

Higher than state rates were cancers of the stomach, colon and rectum, with lung cancer over six points higher at 28.2. Women in Jerome county were worse off, than men. The overall rate was about 10 points higher than the state rate and was 120.2. Accounting for the high rate were four cancers whose incidence even topped national rates: stomach, rectal, pancreatic, ovarian and Hodgkin's disease. Breast cancer was two points higher than the state rate.

GOODING COUNTY
Gooding County's rate for men was 124.5, 12 points less than the state rate. Keeping the rate down were low rates for leukemia and cancers of the lung, lymph system and rectum. Slightly higher than state rates were recorded for cancers of the stomach and pancreas, with liver cancer twice as high as the state rate.

Cancer among women in Gooding county was one of the lowest in the Magic Valley at 97.8, about 13 points lower than in the state. Leukemia and ovarian, corpus uterine, breast and rectal cancer were lower than in the state.

Cancer among women in Gooding county was one of the lowest in the Magic Valley at 97.8, about 13 points lower than in the state. Leukemia and ovarian, corpus uterine, breast and rectal cancer were lower than in the state.

Slightly higher than state levels were found for cancers of the stomach, colon, pancreas and Hodgkin's disease, with lung cancer about .6 below the low state rate for women.

CASSIA COUNTY
Cassia county's rate for men was 11 points lower than the state rate, and low rates for cancer of the colon (at 8.7) and lung (18.2) probably accounted for the difference.

Stomach cancer for men was high in Cassia county at 15.9 compared to the state rate of 13.73. Higher than state levels were recorded for cancers of the rectum and prostate gland as well as for leukemia.

Women in Cassia County did not do as well as their male counterparts. The overall rate was about 4.5 points higher than the state rate, with high rates for stomach cancer (almost twice the state rate), lung cancer (5.4) and leukemia (8.9) probably boosting the rate. Liver, breast and ovarian cancer were lower than state levels for women in Cassia County.

CAMAS COUNTY
Tiny Camas County had few figures that were significant or usable, because the population is so small. Two deaths a year from stomach cancer boosted the rate to 20.3, far above the 13.73 state rate. Lung cancer was 11 points higher than the state level with only three deaths a year among men. Its overall rate among men was 37.6.

Among men in the Camas County cancer death rate was 137.3, with an average of 11 women a year dying of cancer.

Blaine County's rate among men at 135.2 was an par with the state rate, with comparatively low rates for cancers of the colon, rectum, pancreas, prostate and for leukemia offset by relatively high rates for lung cancer (27.7), stomach cancer (19.4) and cancer of the lymph system (18.2).

ELMORE COUNTY
Rates in Elmore county among white males topped both national and state levels at 189.3 for all cancers, compared to 174.0 nationally and 136.61 in Idaho. Stomach cancer's rate "significantly higher" than US: levels at 30.9; which was over twice Idaho's rate. Lung cancer at 28.1 was over five points higher than state rates. Ingestal cancer was 16 compared to "11.58 in Idaho; liver - 7.4 in Elmore and 3.67 in Idaho; Pancreatic cancer was four points higher, at a rate of 12; kidney cancer about 6.4 points higher at 8.8, and leukemia nearly three points above the state rate at 12.1.

Women in Elmore county died of all cancers at a rate of 131.4, about 11 points higher than Idaho's rate but about 63 points below the U.S. rate. Higher rates for breast and uterine cancer boosted the rate, as did rates for cancer of the pancreas (9.2), colon (12.0), stomach (18.3) - over twice the state rate, and esophagus, which was 4.2 compared to .56 in the state.

In counties with small populations, the cancer small populations, the cancer death rate figures are probably less reliable. A rare form of cancer might kill one person, for in-

Fiddlers draw big audience

By MELBA THORNE

SHOSHONE Following the tradition of the past dozen years, the Idaho Oldtime Fiddlers Jamboree held at the Shoshone City Park Sunday brought thousands of people to Shoshone.

In spite of heavy fog at about 5 a. m. the weatherman cooperated with sunny skies and just enough breeze to make the day enjoyable.

Several organizations as well as countless families held picnics at the city park along the Little Wood river. Teenagers swam in the river, often emerging from the water, dripping with their clothes on.

All types of people, from infants to some older people in wheelchairs were attracted to the festival at 11 a. m. 45 musicians were counted playing at one time, there were probably 100 who played at different times during the day. Besides coming from the Magic Valley, they came from Boise, American Falls, Pocatello, Idaho Falls and even one visitor from Illinois who heard about the event and stopped by to play awhile.

Manny Shaw, Corral, the originator of the revival of oldtime fiddling in Idaho about 15 years ago, was the Master of Ceremonies and introduced state president Archie Turner, Twin Falls, and club secretary Kathryn O'Connor, Moscow.

Coordinating the event were committee members T. V. Staunck and George Kenaston. Both men are members of the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce which sponsored the event.

The Jamboree started at 10 a. m., and lasted through 9 p. m. after which a small group of musicians went to the Wood River Convalescent Center to play.

2 Oregon men arrested

FILER — Two Oregon men were arrested Sunday morning in Filer on multiple drug charges.

Daniel Wayne Henry, 20, Astoria, Ore., and David Aaron Coats, 24, Seaside, Ore., were arrested about 10 a. m. Sunday by state narcotics agents, Twin Falls Sheriff's deputies and Filer police.

Henry was charged with one felony count of possession of a controlled substance, and one count of possession with intent to deliver a controlled substance, also a felony.

Coats was charged with one count of possession of a controlled substance, a felony, and one count of possession with intent to deliver a controlled substance, also a felony.

Both marijuana and amphetamines reportedly were involved in the arrests.

According to state narcotics officer Merl Kelly, the arrests involved state narcotics agents.

Henry was being held today in the Twin Falls county jail in lieu of $4,300 bond. Coats was being held in lieu of $4,000 bond.

stance, and boost the rate out of proportion to its importance.

Lawsuit eyed over machines

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A lawsuit may be in the works against state tax commission employees and others who assisted in last week's confiscation of unlicensed cigarette machines.

A local car salesman and a service station owner whose machine was confiscated last week claim that the state has violated the owner's civil rights and has stolen already stamped cigarettes by confiscating them as well as the unlicensed machines.

Car salesman, John Durham, Twin Falls, said today that he is working with a service station owner who doesn't want his name printed to notify officials of charges they would like to file against them.

Durham, not an attorney, said he plans to file a lawsuit if the owner's machine is not returned in 48 hours. He is charging tax commission employees, and possibly employees of the moving company hired by the state to remove the machines, under the federal Civil Rights Act and state trespassing and theft laws.

The suit is "a reminder that the constitution of the U.S. is the supreme law of the land," Durham said. Generally, the suit would claim that defendants violated the owner's right to trial, to due process of the law, his rights against unreasonable search and seizure, excessive punishment, slavery and other rights not enumerated in the U.S. constitution Bill of Rights.

"The local people at the tax commission have asked us to hold off on any actions until we get a letter from Boise," Durham said. "If the letter doesn't change anything, then we're going to go ahead on it."

Durham didn't know who his friends had talked with at the local tax office. Vern Doolter, head of the local office, said today some men did come into the office, but he didn't see the papers and he wasn't sure whether they had been filed.

Blaine endures locusts

ELKHORN — Dead "13-year-locust" carcasses are piling beneath trees and shrubs here. However, the whining sounds of locusts in the resort of Elkhorn and Sun Valley is reportedly subsiding now after two weeks. The "periodical cicada," a group of locusts which appears at intervals across Blaine County, emerged heavily here.

County extension agent Jim Eakin said the 1.5-inch long locust is an underground insect which feeds on roots and stems until it emerges to lay eggs.

The locusts, he said, are thick and numerous with an estimated 200 to 300 per square yard on trees and shrubs around the resort.

The only real damage, he said, caused by the locusts is breakage to some limbs in areas of the weight and density of the insects. The female also splits the bark of the tree as she lays eggs. After the eggs are laid the female dies.

Eakin said the locust has a seven to 10-day laying period.

A secretary at Elkhorn said there were many dead locusts on the ground this morning and that she could not hear the loud whining sound as much as before.

An Elkhorn official said he did not know of any plans to spray the larvae. Eakin said he had been contacted about a controlled spray, but Sun Valley publicity director Shannon Boyer said Sun Valley does not spray until all small birds have left their nests.

Hansen man rescued from canyon ledge

TWIN FALLS — A Hansen man was rescued from a ledge in the Snake River Canyon late Saturday after local youths led rescuers to the scene.

According to Sheriff Paul Corder, the rescue effort began shortly after dark Saturday when one member of a party of three reported the man disabled on the canyon wall.

The rescue was completed after midnight, following the spotting of the man by local youths who knew the area, Corder said.

Corder said Richard Scofield, 24, Harold Gardner, 22, and Lotis Gardner, 19, all Hansen, had gone into the canyon near Twin Falls park about 4:30 p.m. Saturday to "prospect for gold."

Slightly before dark, Corder said, the party began a climb up the canyon wall near the site of the old Kimberly dump. During the climb, Lotis Gardner kicked loose a rock which hit his brother, Harold, in the hand - Unable to continue climbing, the elder Gardner remained on a ledge while Lotis Gardner and then Scofield climbed from the canyon.

Lotis Gardner contacted police to help his brother. Corder said, but he was unable to point out the exact location where his brother had been left behind.

Harold Gardner, Corder said, was located by Derry and Cindy Pascoe, two teenagers living in the area, who scouted the canyon until they spotted the man.

Ropes were then dropped and Gardner was pulled from the canyon by volunteers and search and rescue unit members, who took him to the hospital for treatment of the injured hand.

Oklahoma threesome arrested

TWIN FALLS — Three Oklahoma residents were arrested by Twin Falls police, Sheriff's deputies and state police "Saturday" on felony warrants out of California.

Twin Falls police chief of detectives Tim Qualls said today the arrests followed routine national crime center checks after the threesome had stopped at the Twin Falls police station requesting assistance with gasoline.

Arrested were Jimmy D. Ray, 24, Wapnetka, Okla., and Kathy Wittingham, 22, and Carl Lee Wittingham, 34, both Coalgate, Okla.

Ray and Mrs. Wittingham were arrested on grand larceny warrants out of California and information was arrested on a California parole violation. Qualls said.

He said the three stopped at the Twin Falls station requesting gas Saturday morning but were not arrested until the warrant information was received over the wire.

In the meantime, the three had left the station but were picked up about one mile south of Rogerson, Qualls said.

The three are being held for California authorities.

NEW YORK (UPI)
Buyers encouraged by signs of economic improvements and sellers dismayed by rising interest rates left prices little changed in active trading Monday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was ahead 0.23 to 871.32 shortly before noon EDT. Advances barely led declines, 659 to 517, among the 1,617 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover during the first two hours amounted to about 4,400,000 shares, compared with 9,270,000 traded during the same period Friday.

The market was torn between the Commerce Department report business inventories fell a record $2.97 billion in May — indicating a business recovery was set — and news two more major banks raised their prime rate to 7 1/2 per cent from the prevailing 7 per cent level.

AMARILLO, TEX. (UPI)

If the federal government would update the 1921 Packers and Stockyards Act and force packing plants to pay cash for livestock, beef producers would not be holding $24 million in uncashable checks, a Kansas livestock official told a U.S. House subcommittee Saturday.

"Over the past five or six years with the development of commercial feedlots and more direct buying across the country, the payment for cattle has been slower and slower," Virgil Huesman of the Kansas Livestock Association told the subcommittee field hearing.

"It is this delay in payment that has made the whole issue of packer payment so volatile and controversial today. It is our opinion that if American Beef Packers Inc. had simply been required to pay for cattle on the day they took delivery of the cattle, we might have only $1.2 million rather than the $2.4 million in uncashable checks now."

American Beef operated one of the nation's largest processing units last January when the firm filed for reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws. Checks paid to cattlemen who had sold stock to the firm were not negotiable and several small producers across the nation lost a year's income.

Some lawmakers moved to rewrite the antiquated legislation to protect cattlemen and scheduled the Texas Pondera hearing and another later this month in Omaha, Neb.

A representative for the National Independent Meatpackers Association told the hearing, chaired by Rep. W.R. Poage, D-Tex., consumers would pay more for beef and pork if packers were required to pay cash to producers on the day livestock was acquired.

Curtis Jones of Wichita, Kan., said the price of cattle would be affected by 31 per cent.

"The current purchase system allows the packers to have in effect interest-free loans for short periods of time because they can delay payments to the cattlemen. Elimination of this method would limit packer capital and thus they would charge more for processed beef in order to maintain what they considered sound investment flow."

Representatives of the Livestock Laws Reform Commission said legislation proposed by subcommittee members including a bill by Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Tex., was a "stagnant proposal" advanced each time the nation faced difficult economic times.

Atmosphere beginning to dry out

Twin Falls, northside, rainy; Rupert area, clear.

Chance of a brief thunderstorm and gusty winds this evening. Tonight, mostly sunny. Tuesday, low temperatures tonight near 55; highs Tuesday near 90. Probability of measurable rainfall: 10 per cent this evening.

Cameo Prairie and Lower Wood River Valley: Same as Twin Falls and northside except that temperatures tonight should range from 45 to 50 and the highs Tuesday in the mid 80's.

Synopsis: The atmosphere over Idaho is beginning to dry out resulting in much more comfortable afternoons and nights. Humidities which have been running around 45 per cent during mid afternoon will lower to 25-30 per cent making evaporative or "swamp" coolers more effective. There also should be less evening thunderstorm activity to interrupt hay baling. On the weather maps an old low pressure disturbance off the coast has greatly weakened and upper winds are turning westerly to provide a more normal summertime climate.

Track records fall at Jerome turf day

JEROME — Two track records were set at the annual, parimutuel horse races Sunday at the Jerome County Fairgrounds. The first record came in the Magt Valley Futurity event when He Flys, ridden by Bobby Coe, eclipsed the finish line with a time of 17.63. The old track record was set in 1974 when a horse named Buddy Wayne ran the 350-yard race in 17.70. J.J. Taylor rode Vegas Ringo for the second place finish followed by Sweet Feast ridden by Ted Gessel for the third place spot. The Intermountain Quarter Horse Derby, race nine, was the site for the second track record. The 400-yard dash was won by Chan's Eternal, jockeyed by Ted Gessel. Chan's Eternal marched down the course to the finish line producing a time of 19.91, breaking the record of Campbell Sue who held the 1970 record of 20.02. Grilly Bay with Scott Gollyghy riding took the second place spot followed by Smart Dixie in third. The horse Phillion, ridden by K. ANDRETTI sets record WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — Mario Andretti set a track record of 122.408 miles per hour in a Victory Lola during the second heat of Sunday's trials for the Formula 5000 race. England's Michael Redman came close to the track record in the first heat with a time of 121.048 mph. The previous record was set in 1973 by Mark Donohue, who went 122.096 mph. England's Jackie Oliver in a Shadow took third position for the race and American Al Unser the fourth spot.

Watson defeats Australian for win

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland (UPI) — A confident Tom Watson finally proved his ability Sunday to stand pressure and win a major golf title, two-putting from 40 feet to win the British Open on the 18th and final playoff hole against Jack Newton of Australia. His approach pulls were letter-perfect all day and the one on the 18 was no exception. He tapped in from two inches for the par four and left the Australian with a 12-footer to tie. Newton missed for a bogey five. "I just thought my time had come," said the man who had blown the lead in the past two U.S. Open championships. "I had a goal in my life—to win a major tournament—and now I've fulfilled it." Watson, 25, finished with a 36-35-71, one under par, for the playoff round and won $16,500 to add to the $36,333 he has earned this year as the fifth-leading money winner on the U.S. professional tour. Newton, a 22-year-old, covered the rain-swept, 7,065-yard Carnoustie course in even par and came away drenched. He said he was disappointed, but had no regrets—"Tom just played great golf." It was Watson's first British Open, his first major title and he gave a gold medal and silver cup to his wife, Linda, as a present for their second wedding anniversary from last Tuesday. He said he had forgotten a present on the day itself. The new champion had earned his berth in the first Open playoff since 1970 with a 12-foot birdie putt on the 72nd hole Saturday that gave him a nine-under-par 279 and gained a tie with the faltering Newton. "I just felt that my time had come," Watson said. "I had a good opportunity to win even though I was lucky to get into the playoff. I just told myself to 'give yourself a good chance this time.'" The key to his round was a 25-foot chip shot that went in for an eagle at the par five 16th, giving him a one-stroke lead that he was later to lose with a bogey four at 16 and set up the final hole climax. "Those are the kind of things where destiny shows," the Huck Finn character in a Scots golf fair said of the chip. "Something like that shows certain people are destined to win." Watson jumped to a two-stroke lead after two holes, but the advantage changed hands three times—and the lead changed hands two more times before the decider. Watson knifed a long iron to within three feet at the 464-yard second hole and sank the putt for a birdie three for his first advantage. He picked up the second stroke when Newton bunkered his approach to number three and missed a nine-footer. The Stanford university psychology graduate suffered his only bogey of the front nine at five, where his drive caught a fairway trap, his second shot fell short; his third was trapped again and he had to sink a pressure-packed four-footer. The putt set the tone for his round. "It was probably the second key hole of the round for me," he said later. "A double bogey would have completely wiped out that early lead." Even so, Newton birdied the next hole with a head-on chip that left him an easy three-foot putt. The match carried on for even terms through the next seven holes as each man reeled off par after par. Newton, the son of a Sydney detective who plays the British pro circuit but failed to qualify for the U.S. tour, jumped into the lead at the 476-yard par five 12th by reaching the green in two and two-putting. He had trouble all day controlling his teeshots, pulling most of them to the left, and it happened again on Carnoustie's shortest hole, the 156-yard 13th, and cost him his one stroke advantage. The rain and pressure increased together. Newton choked on gum and smoked. Watson chewed an occasional fingernail. Neither spoke to one another after the handshaking pose for photographers before tee off.

LATROBE, Pa. (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Steelers opened their 1975 training camp Sunday with 57 players, including 19 veterans and 38 rookies and free agents, reporting at St. Vincent College. Coach Chuck Noll of the Super Bowl champions had planned to have only three veterans — quarterbacks Terry Bradshaw, Terry Hanratty and Joe Gilliam—join the first-year players for the initial three days of camp.

Ragtime, Ondine battle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ragtime was just 325 miles from Honolulu at the Sunday rollout of the Transpacific Yacht Race, but Ondine was making a strong move to be first to finish the 2,255-mile contest. Ondine, a 73-foot ketch with considerably more waterline length and sail area than the 62-foot, stoop Ragtime, was 391 miles out at the 8 a.m. report. She was gaining 30 miles a day on the leader in strong northeast trade winds up to 20 knots. One or both yachts are expected to finish the race by mid afternoon Monday. Windward Passage, 152 miles behind Ragtime at the latest report.

White wins Miller 200

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Don White of Keokuk, Iowa, drove his 1972 Dodge Charger to a victory Sunday in the $30,000 Miller 200-mile USAC stock car race. Second was Ray Barnell of Deerfield, Ill., in a 74 Charger and third Bud Hartman, South Zanesville, Ohio, in another 74 Charger. Hartman had been going for his eighth win in the last nine stock car races at the Wisconsin State Fair Park Speedway where the race was run.

Hawaiians crush Charlotte 32-14

HONOLULU (UPI) — Sonny Sixkiller passed to Tim Boyer for two touchdowns in leading the Hawaiians to a 32-14 World Football League exhibition victory over Charlotte Saturday night. Some 16,000 fans saw Sixkiller connect on six of 11 passes for 82 yards. The Hawaiians came back in the second quarter with three touchdowns after fullback Lewis-Jolley had capped a 5-yard drive in the opening period for the Hornets.

Calvin Hill, former Dallas Cowboy running back, scored the Hawaiians' first touchdown on a two-yard plunge after recovery of a Charlotte fumble. Clayton Heath, a second year running back from Wake Forest, went around left end from four yards out and Sixkiller, formerly of the University of Washington, passed to Boyer for the other two scores.

Molitor cops Idaho amateur golf crown

BURLEY — Wedge whiffing Dave Molitor of Boise, chipping in twice on the first nine, rode into the Idaho state amateur golf championship Sunday. Molitor, second in last year's event, appeared fighting a delaying battle through the first 12 holes but seized command on Twin Falls' Jeff Thomsen on the 13th and claimed the crown by five shots. Most of those came on the last couple-three holes. Molitor entered the day with a shot lead on the field but fell back by one stroke in the first four holes. He got back even with Thomsen on the fifth and then brought out the magic wedge. He knocked in a chip for an eagle on the sixth hole and then took himself out of seemingly jail on the eighth with another chip-in on the eighth after his approach shot had sailed over the green. "I was just trying to get it close there," he said, "and afterward, I knew the green was hard and the ball would run. I wanted to hit about three feet onto the green and then let the ball run." Those two strokes proved enough—Thomsen was betrayed by his putter when a putt on the ninth—of about two feet—ipped the cup and stayed out. Molitor gave a kiss back on the 10th when he lagged against Thomsen's putt. Meanwhile, Tom Smith of Boise, a teammate of Molitor at Bishop Kelly high school for a few years ago, was making a charge from the first flight for supremacy. With a steady short game, Smith climbed into a tie with Thomsen and threatened Molitor from a stroke-back

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JULY 15, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: It is difficult now to reach a meeting of minds with those with whom you have any sort of contact, so try not to upset anyone, or to place pressure on them. Do for yourself whatever work requires precision, neatness and exactness. Sudden events require calmness and poise.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Partners may be under pressure, so don't try to discuss much with them today. Make new contacts. Do your work efficiently.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) The situation could be tense with co-workers or partners, so keep busy at your own job and all ends well. Don't criticize.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't overspend on recreation, or you will regret it later. Be patient with men. Concentrate on personal happiness and good nature.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't argue, or you can start a battle royal, best avoided now. Buy small gifts for kin that please, instead.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Drive with care and use a wise choice of words to keep out of trouble. Check statements for errors. Work in measured way.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to monetary experts. Don't take risks or think you know it all, or it could cost you plenty. Avoid overspending on fun.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Busy yourself with duties and avoid feeling imposed upon or unhappy. Attend social affairs you like that will be free of arguments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Keep secret worries to yourself, or you could annoy others, lose them as friends. Don't force love with loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Following every regulation that applies to you—reputation, reputation, security now. Set up the money instead of arguing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fair fields are not greener, so stick to present set-up which is good, but needs a little revision, more often.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Your brilliant ideas are not practical, so forget them. Not a good day to plan a trip. Catch up on routine work.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use your best judgment instead of following that erroneous hunch, and so avoid trouble. If mate gets frisky, don't be angry.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be full of energy, will want to jump into things without forethought about results, so teach early to think first and then act with deliberation. Give training that will lead your progeny in right directions, an education that is constructive, and give good books to read. Teach to smile more and to use ingenious methods in whatever the forte may be.

"The Stars" ungel, they don't compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
