Mrs. Peron to leave office?
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — President Maria Estela (Isabel) Peron, facing three-digit inflation and a mounting political crisis, will ask for a long leave of absence from office, the Argentine press reported.

Mrs. Peron's return to a normal life would be the first since the president needed "continued rest" to recover from influenza.

Banner headlines in the morning independent newspaper La Opinion and Clarin said the president would leave office.

Bayh states decision
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh said today he will decide within a "few weeks" whether to move into the already crowded field of candidates seeking the Democratic presidential nomination.

"Time is a rather critical factor right now," Bayh said. The Indiana senator said he would have to make his decision "between now and fall."

Bayh, 47, a three-term senator who won re-election last year, announced for the nomination in 1972 but then abruptly withdrew when his wife Marvella underwent cancer surgery. She is now fully recovered.

Films boycotted
ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Actress Jane Fonda has drawn the wrath of the delegates to the 55th annual New York State American Legion. They have unanimously adopted a resolution calling for a nationwide boycott of her films.

The Fonda resolution by 2,500 delegates called for the boycott because the actress "openly displayed her preference for a Viet Cong victory in Vietnam."

Soviet tots named Apollo, Soyuz
MOSCOW (UPI) — Twin brothers were born today to a Russian couple who said they would name them Soyuz and Apollo in honor of the joint U.S. Soviet space mission, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

The brothers were born in Tien Shan, in southern sections of Soviet Union, to Seldymkan and Terebali Satyvaldievs.

ATT takes Saudi loans
NEW YORK (UPI) — American Telephone and Telegraph Company has borrowed $100 million from the government of Saudi Arabia in exchange for interest bearing notes, the firm said.

The notes carry an 8.4 per cent interest rate over 6 years, AT&T said Thursday.

"This private placement relieves some of the demand on the domestic capital market, and should make it easier to raise the remainder of the year's financing required by Bell Corporation," said Charles Brown, AT&T executive vice president.

Statue saved
THIS PIECE of statuary was removed from the top of Washington School Thursday afternoon and taken to the Twin Falls County Historical Society for preservation. According to those who remember when the school was built, the statue was dedicated to school children, but otherwise is a mystery. The school history fails to mention it.

Space buddies share lunches

HOUSTON (UPI) — Russian and American space diplomats traded places aboard their linked spaceships today and gave the world 140 miles below televised tours of their craft and their homelands.

The three Americans and two Russians moved between the Apollo and Soyuz for a series of ceremonies, experiments and public relations lightening tours in the name of detente and scientific cooperation.

They also shared meals but Soyuz commander Alexei Leonov said, in English, "the best part of a good lunch is not what you eat but with whom you eat."

He had steak and potato soup with Thomas

Stallord and Donald "Deke" Slayton in the Apollo and said, "now I eat my space food with my very good, very nice friends, Tom and Deke."

Vance Brand, the third Apollo crewman, ate a lunch of chili, a soup usually made with sour cabbage, along with chicken, plums, strawberries and juices in the Soyuz cabin with Valeri Kubaev.

When Leonov moved into the Apollo for the first time, he happily greeted Slayton in English: "Howdy partner, my old friend."

Brand, Leonov and television viewers on Earth were given tours of the Apollo and Soyuz spacecraft and later the spacemen pointed a camera out the window as the ship swept at 17,776 miles an hour over the vast expanse of the Soviet Union.

"We are going to land here after the end of the mission," Kubaev said as they passed over the cloud dotted Siberian plain at Karasanda.

"It looks like today is a very beautiful day over the Soviet Union," Leonov interjected in Russian. "There is a lot of sunshine... green fields."

As they approached the Volga River, Kubaev said they were over Volgograd City. He explained it was once called Stalingrad and was the spot "where in 1942-1943, German fascist troops were defeated by the Soviet army."

Rail contract talks resume

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiators for the nation's railroads and a 17,000-member clerks union will resume contract talks today in hopes of averting a crippling rail strike later this month.

A spokesman for W.J. Usery Jr., the chief federal mediator, said the bargaining would resume at 10:45 a.m. MDT at a downtown Washington hotel. Federal officials said earlier they had hoped to get the two sides together next week, but then late this morning announced the new session.

Talks between the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks and the National Labor Conference ended abruptly Thursday after a flurry of corridor sessions which followed a night of fruitless bargaining. Management and union representatives spent most of Thursday trading bitter remarks and an earlier atmosphere of optimism was destroyed.

W.J. Usery Jr., the chief federal mediator, shifted his attention to postal negotiations Thursday night after buying more time in hopes of further rail talks next week.

The U.S. Postal Service contract with four unions representing 800,000 workers expires at midnight Sunday.

C.L. Dennis, the rail clerks' president, agreed to postpone his union's plans to strike the railroads Monday morning for at least one more week.

If the rail union's workers, or part of them, go on strike July 23, it is expected to precipitate a nationwide railroad shutdown as other unions respect the picket lines and railroad companies halt their trains.

AIM man jailed

ELKO, Nev. (UPI) — John Trudell, identified as acting head of the American Indian Movement, was booked today on a federal charge of assault with a deadly weapon after shots were fired on an Indian reservation in a remote area of northwestern Nevada.

Trudell was armed with a fully automatic M16 rifle — equivalent to a submachine gun — said Deputy Charles Woodbury, a justice spokesman arrested by Bureau of Indian Affairs police after a shooting incident in a trading post on a remote reservation, Woodbury said, and said to be taken in Reno, Nev., today to be brought before a federal grand jury.

AIM representatives could not be reached for comment. A source in the Bureau of Indian Affairs said Trudell was acting head of the militant Indian organization.

He was surrounded by Bureau of Indian Affairs police in a showdown near the Black Valley Indian Reservation near the small town of Owyhee, Nev., 75 miles south of the TIBBO border, the sources said.

Sale aids wheat prices

By DIANE ALTERS
TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley wheat dealers and brokers expect the Russian wheat purchase to help keep American wheat prices high despite expected bumper crops.

But while farmers get better prices, consumers also can expect higher prices. Two U.S. grain companies have contracted to sell 3.2 million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union, with an additional 2 million tons to come from Canada.

Twin Falls commodity broker Alex Sinclair said today word of the deal had spread during the past 10 days and has "strengthened" wheat prices.

He said, however, prices had dropped slightly since the announcement Thursday.

Today's price for September delivery wheat was $3.59 1/2 a bushel, down 3.5 cents. The closing price was $3.33 and had fallen 16 cents a bushel since the market opened Thursday morning, he said, indicating that "people in the know" had already made their deals and had "strengthened" wheat prices before the 10-for-11 announcement.

There's a "possibility of some new business to come," Sinclair said. "If Soviet crops are smaller than anticipated, they could want even more wheat."

Corn was also discussed, he said, and could be part of another deal this year, but no announcements have been made.

"It's essential to the farm community that we have a good crop of wheat," Sinclair said. Although grain farmers in northeast in the Magic Valley he said wheat is a "highly sensitive" crop and "not to be impudently" sold.

"It's looking good, the acreage goes up... If other crops look good, farmers go to other crops," he said. North Plains and Eastern Idaho are "looking pretty good."

"It's good news, it gives farmers a nice sense of higher prices in the fall," according to agricultural economist Roger Long at the University of Idaho. He said that much of the wheat bound for the Soviet Union would be hard winter wheat and most of Idaho's crop is soft white wheat, but the deal would still affect 911 wheat prices about equally.

Wheat accounted for 4000, or 43 per cent of the state's agricultural production in 1974, and is "one of the leading crops" in the state, he said.

Idaho's wheat crop normally accounts for about 13 per cent of United States crop, according to USDA figures.

A spokesman at Empire Brokerage Inc., Hansen, agreed that the sale would be good for Idaho farmers, although he said the price climb was "slow and very cautious."

"There seems to be such a public resentment to the way the Russian wheat sale was handled that most of the farmers that Americans are anxious to make contracts and avoid delays."

"We plan to ship them hard wheat during a much bigger deal with the Soviets in 1976," he said, and recent charges of fraud among grain dealers in Louisiana and other Gulf ports have made "the public" anxious to avoid delay.

Filer water contaminated

FILER — Filer's water supply reportedly is contaminated with intestinal bacteria. City residents have been urged to boil it before drinking.

David Filer water supervisor said routine tests conducted by Filer waterworks personnel and the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare Water Quality Division discovered the contamination and reported it to the city morning.

He said the contaminated water was from the Filer waterworks. He said the boiling of water should be continued until the water is safe to drink.

He said the city will be in contact with the water works to see if the water is safe to drink.

Building shunned

GOODING — The Department of Health and Welfare is trying to turn over its Gooding facility to the State Department of Public Lands.

Jack Gillette, assistant director of the lands department, told the Times-News today that HAW now considers the building "surplus to its needs" because of the high cost of maintenance and repair.

He said the department received a letter Wednesday from the state director of HAW, which proposed a transfer of the property on Aug. 1, 1975.

Gillette said he has been told that the building is in poor condition and that the state would not want to take on the cost of maintaining it.

Gillette said he has been told that the building is in poor condition and that the state would not want to take on the cost of maintaining it.

Gooding space costly for state

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
GOODING — The state probably could build a new office building with the money it spends each year for its offices in the former Gooding tuberculosis hospital.

The Department of Health and Welfare uses 3,586 square feet, or four per cent of the 92,000 square feet of usable space in the building. In fiscal 1974 it paid $167,444 to operate and maintain the building, state records show.

That works out to $41.15 per square foot yearly for the office space—the department uses.

Other non-profit organizations renting space in the building get a considerably better deal, paying an average of only 17.2 cents per square foot per year, state records show.

The picture may be grimmer for the state agency in the new fiscal year which began July 1.

HAW records show the agency estimates the new year's cost will rise to $156,990 to operate and maintain the building — or $45.72 a square foot.

And federal money apparently won't be available to help pay the bill. HAW records make no mention of the 70 per cent federal matching fund

Public expense estimate should be 'requirement'

By GEORGE WILEY
The News-Review

TWIN FALLS—Developers should be required to estimate the costs to the public of any development they propose, planner David Richey told the Twin Falls Joint Planning Council.

Richey's proposal came Wednesday during discussion of a comprehensive city-county land-use plan now being developed by the joint council.

Presently, Richey told the council, the engineer for a developer will estimate in detail project costs as they add up for the developer, but the engineer "never looks at the impact on the local budget of his project."

Residential and commercial developments, however, add to the public budget through increased traffic flow and other maintenance requirements which are never assessed, Richey said, resulting in higher taxes to meet expanded budgets.

Requiring a developer to estimate costs to the public on a proposed development would give the public a better guideline to community impact to come from the project, he said, and should be a factor in whether or not a project is approved.

The developer has to look at the public costs of his project.

In a wide-ranging discussion, joint council members also touched upon the restriction of individual-mobile-home-units-and-multi-family-dwellings; the consolidation of county highway districts; methods of handling traffic flow; and the continuing or recent law enforcement agencies in a single building.

Under Richey's rough comprehensive plan draft, all mobile homes park or subdivision except on agricultural tracts where they may be used as the primary or an accessory dwelling.

City manager Jean Milar, however, suggested that in a single building, the city individual mobile home units would actually enhance and upgrade neighborhoods.

Milar had earlier pointed to the South Park area as a location in which individual mobile homes might be beneficial in upgrading run-down housing.

"Under those conditions," he said, "it appears mobile homes would be an allowed use."

In a discussion of multi-family dwellings, joint council chairman Jack Muldoon questioned whether zones currently designated residential low density should be opened to certain types of multi-family dwellings.

"We need a strong residential low in our plan," he said. "We also need a place for these multi-family dwellings."

Acknowledging the economic efficiency of multi-family units, city manager Milar added, "Maybe in another 10 or 15 years there won't be any single family residences because none of us will be able to afford them."

Richey suggests that developers of multi-family residential complexes be required to guarantee the design and quality of a development before being allowed to build.

"I think the guarantee is really the crux of the whole problem," he said, referring to developers who change design to cut construction costs once developments have been approved.

Council members also discussed a proposal to consolidate all city and county highway districts under a single board of commissioners. A public election to create such a single district for the entire county is proposed in the plan draft, with the argument that such a reorganization would increase cost efficiency and allow better use of specialized equipment.

Turning to methods of controlling traffic flow, council members discussed alternatives of consolidating traffic along specific heavy-flow routes or dispersal of vehicles from clogged routes to alleviate congestion.

Unless specifically defined, the alternate techniques are not compatible," Richey told the council.

Chairman Muldoon concluded the meeting with a suggestion that all local law enforcement agencies be combined in one building.

"It is my feeling that we need one combined law enforcement building to avoid duplication," he said.

He suggested that the present O'Leary Junior High School site would be the appropriate location for such a building.

New city, county building code requirements explained

TWIN FALLS — Requirements for cities and counties under the Idaho Building Code Advisory Act were explained here Thursday morning in a meeting of Magic Valley officials.

Bart Brown, commissioner of labor and industrial services for Idaho, the new state code provides a uniform set of standards for all counties.

He said if the small communities choose not to make inspections, the state is required to do so. Brown told the gathering of the city and county officials, planners, building inspectors and planning and zoning representatives the state will work with them in applying the various codes called for in the new act.

He said these codes can be adopted by title in full, or the individual counties and cities may adopt the portions they feel most suitable to their own operations.

Brown recommended the smaller communities join together or join a county or neighboring larger city in employing a building inspector. He also stated the law requires inspectors be certified and pass a test for this certification.

The state official said the code sets out minimum requirements and a city or county can adopt more stringent codes.

In three areas of jurisdiction, retained by title, he said, these include the manufacture of mobile homes, manufacture of recreational vehicles and the construction of factory-built housing.

Electrical and plumbing regulations and inspections are separate, he said, and are covered under other codes and laws.

Among codes recommended for adoption under the act are the latest uniform building code and amendments, the uniform fire code and the uniform code covering natural gas installations.

Brown told Twin Falls County Zoning administrator Ed Woods, during a question and answer period, the counties, under the act, can require inspections on farm homes on agricultural-use lands—if their ordinances stipulate this, but the state cannot because the legislature exempted farms.

"He said a farm is any place of land, five acres or more, which is used for agriculture or agriculture-related purposes.

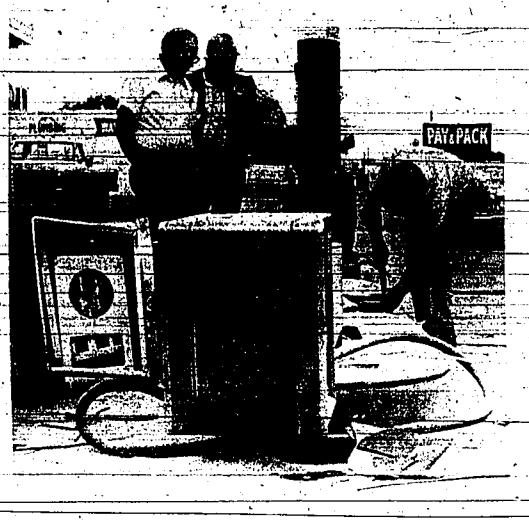

Brown said the legislature eliminated farm homes and buildings, but it is as important for a farmer to reside in a safe building as for a city dweller and he feels the county zoning officials can require inspections and minimum standards on these homes as well.

He also said in many areas the cities and small towns are adopting regulations and requiring inspections on one or two family dwellings only, leaving the industrial structures or large apartments and houses to the state inspector.

Meetings similar to the one in Twin Falls today are being held throughout the state. After the meeting, Brown said, the state will know what extreme it must go to under the law in the way of inspectors and regulations.

He said copies of all required codes are available from his office at a cost to the state basic.

TWIN FALLS — The certain rises. Standing behind it are 12 Magic Valley women, vying for the Miss Twin Falls title. The competition will be at the Conroy of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Miss Twin Falls of 1974 and Miss Idaho of 1975, Terri Harding, will be on hand to perform the song she will take to Atlantic City, N.J., for the Miss America competition in early September.

According to Miss Harding, this promises to be the largest scholarship pageant for women in the Twin Falls area.

"I would like the people of the Magic Valley area to realize that this is a scholarship pageant, not a beauty pageant," she said.

Miss Poetello, Kathryn Lish, will assist with awards presentation and to perform a dance routine.

According to Floyd Miller Jr., chairman of the pageant committee, Twin Falls has had more Miss Idahos than any other city in Idaho. He also commended Helen Henderson for doing a good job as special coach and adviser to the pageant participants.

The judges come from all over Southern Idaho, with many of them judging

Belated invitation shows new side of Ford

WASHINGTON — President Ford's belated, backhanded invitation to Alexander Solzhenitsyn, rejected with deserved contempt by the Russian Nobel laureate...

memorandum to the President last month stating it would be politically inadvisable for him to attend the AFL-CIO banquet honoring Solzhenitsyn here June 30...

quickly rejected him. Following Kissinger's advice, the President stayed away from the AFL-CIO dinner...

delivered his first personal attack on Mr. Ford in his weekly syndicated column.

Belatedly planned, senior presidential aide discussed Solzhenitsyn daily last week, finally agreeing last Friday that Mr. Ford should tell his Saturday press conference in Chicago he would see Solzhenitsyn if the novelist requested a meeting...

That still leaves the question of why the President would not eagerly grant a legitimate, international hero background statements of high officials that Solzhenitsyn is a non-Westernized Slavic mystic explaining nothing.

Nor does the theory that Kissinger really feared a Russian — most prominent anti-Communist turning up in the Oval Office would embarrass him by exposing his own past failures...

Kissinger, the snub may be explained by the major anti-Communist of Kissinger within the administration: he has become too accustomed to close collaboration with Chairman Leonid Brezhnev and lesser Soviet leaders...

Some high officials, however, see a broader question which will not soon be forgotten: whether Kissinger's control over U.S. policy in pursuit of détente will be challenged in the debate over arms control now entering a critical stage in Geneva...

Planners also should plan

At the risk of quibbling, we'd like to know how Twin Falls City-County planner David Richey plans his own calendar.

Richey issued a last-minute plea today to save the old section of Lincoln Elementary School from the wrecking ball, only hours before the school is scheduled for destruction.

His point surely is a good one. The school, the oldest in Twin Falls, is a community landmark and one of the few architectural connections with the city's pioneer days.

But why, we wonder, has Richey waited so long to raise the question?

Can it be that the planner didn't plan ahead? The school district has proposed replacing the old section of Lincoln School for more than two years.

Finally, in October, 1973, the district proposed and the voters approved a large school bond issue which called for tearing down old Lincoln and replacing it with a new structure.

Since then there were numerous news stories about the demolition contracts and delays in demolition schedules. The paper even ran a story about an attempt to save a landmark tree at the school.

Is Richey so out of touch that he discovers the question only today long after the issue is decided? Even planners should plan ahead.

A handshake back on earth

It's good to see a handshake in space cemented by another handshake back on earth, one closing a new wheat sale to Russia.

The U.S. has agreed to sell 3.2 million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union, the biggest thing since the Soviets purchased 12 million tons in 1972.

Spurred by poor harvests, the Soviets are likely to buy even more U.S. wheat in the coming months.

The immediate effect should be stronger wheat prices in the U.S. with prices of feed grains and, ultimately, meat rising as well. Because total Russian purchases this year are unlikely to be as large as those of 1972, the effect on domestic prices probably will be smaller than before.

Still, the news couldn't have come at a better time for farmers. Even though farm prices have remained fairly strong, costs have been rising at a remarkable rate. Machinery, fertilizer and land costs have skyrocketed during the past few years and show a little sign of leveling off.

The result is a new cost-price squeeze for farmers.

While the handshake in space makes headlines, the wheat sale is what détente really is all about.

Soviet pledge needed before summit

LISHON — The United States would be in sane not to oppose a European security conference and block the scheduled summit, which — although delayed — remains Brezhnev's favorite project, unless it is guaranteed a Soviet pledge not to interfere by any means in Portugal. In making such an attitude clear, Washington should meticulously explain it to states concerned, above all its allies.

A law was enacted here last year banning foreign aid to any Portuguese political party. No legal evidence has so far been produced that this is being violated.

Nevertheless, since the astonishingly free April elections with 92 per cent of the electorate taking part there are signs that the Communists, unflinchingly loyal to Moscow and led by a resolute Socialist, Alvaro Cunhal, have increasing funds available. Proletarian army leaders seem intent on sponsoring their own form of "direct democracy," supported by Cunhal.

The April elections produced fascinating results. The Socialists of Mario Soares, who support individual freedoms and a multi-party system, received 30 per cent. The Popular Democrats' control got 26 per cent and the moderate right CDS 17.5 per cent, producing a discernible anti-Communist majority of over 71 per cent.

Cunhal's Communists received 12.5 per cent and the Communist front MDP 4 per cent, making a pro-Communist bloc of 16.5 per cent. The remainder was divided among fractions, including anti-Cunhal ultra-leftists.

Portugal is still sleepwalking out of fascism's stultifying hanger. It became increasingly alive after the revolution's original frogman, General Spínola, fled last March following an abortive coup. But during both the 48-year-old dictatorship and an indefinite first year that followed, the Communists prepared to seize and subsequently set up key positions.

Frightened at the pulse, they are again moving ahead unperturbed. They have managed to squash hostile media by strikes, warnings, threats, closing down the pro-Socialist paper "República," taking over the pro-Catholic radio station, and now backing a slow-motion anti-coup.

The Communists seem to have generated sums available. "We Socialists receive no foreign aid at all," Soares says. "It is against the law. But I can't guarantee the Communists don't get it. They have lots of money. Of course," (sarcastically) "maybe their 70,000 members are richer than our own 2,500,000."

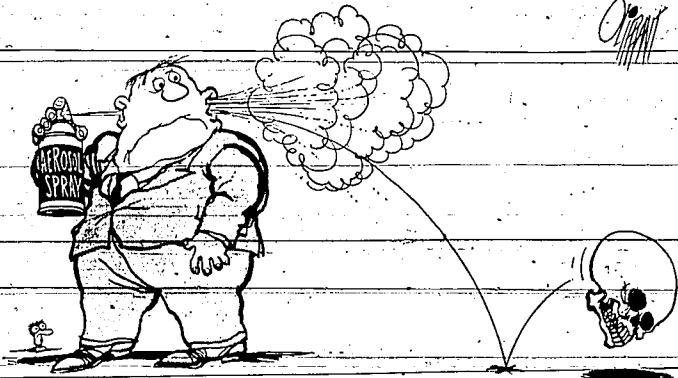

C.I. SULZBERGER

The U.S. Embassy, headed by an energetic ambassador and minister who speak excellent Portuguese, has been put into a needlessly defensive position by an American Government reluctant to see as if it were concerned with local affairs, thus leaving the field wide open to announce adversaries. It is silly to get caught up in denials that Ambassador Carucci is a CIA veteran (which he isn't) or that we contemplate supporting secession of the Azores. Teddy Roosevelt is dead.

The crux of the Portuguese problem is not strategic — keeping available an Azores base preventing a Soviet-sponsored minority from stealing this little land away from its Western orientation.

Unlike Italy's increasingly Marxist population, Portugal overwhelmingly showed it opposed Communism in April. Moreover, many European leaders, including the non-Stalinist Italian and exiled Spanish Communist bosses, Berlinguer and Carrillo, joined such Socialists as Franco's Mitterrand and Germany's Brandt in favoring Soares over Cunhal. The USA is on the right side and the popular side. It should loudly proclaim it.

"The recession is not the only thing that has just about 'bottomed out'!"

High cost of Henry causes 'row' with accountant

PARIS — Every time Henry Kissinger comes to Europe he finds prices skyrocketing. While nobody talks about it at the State Department, the comptroller is becoming very nervous about Kissinger's expense accounts and has urged him to cut down on his traveling. In fact, just before he left on his recent trip to Paris, Geneva, Bonn and London, he had a terrible row with a State Department accountant.

The minutes of this fight were found in Kissinger's garbage. "Mr. Kissinger, I see you're going to Europe again. Don't you think that's a bit much?" "I haven't been to Europe in several weeks. I have to see Giscard, Gromyko, Rabin and Callaghan."

"I appreciate that, Mr. Kissinger, but my job is to keep an eye on expenses. On your last three trips you've gone over the $34 per day allowance that all State Department employees are entitled to. You're setting a very bad example for all our other personnel."

"But, I'll only be in Paris overnight. I'll eat on the plane and Giscard has invited me for lunch."

"But what about breakfast? That will cost you $5."

"It will be my only expense."

"—And laundry? The last time you were in Paris you put in a laundry bill for $120."

"I needed a clean shirt because I was going to see the Pope the next day."

"And I suppose the $19 you paid to have your suit pressed was also necessary?"

"I couldn't talk to Giscard in a rumpled suit."

ART BUCHWALD

"I can't let people pay for all my meals. It looks bad for American prestige. I'm not even eating 'fancy' with me on this trip. The only major expense I can foresee is when I meet the Prime Minister Rabin of Israel in Bonn. But since I want him to give up the passes in the Sinai I can't really expect him to pick up lunch, too, can I?"

"I don't know what we're going to do with you, Mr. Kissinger. Do you realize that if you make one more trip to Paris we're going to have to ask Congress for a supplemental appropriation?"

"I promise you I won't even trip this time. And I'll take the bus from the airport."

"It isn't just Paris I'm worried about, it's Geneva. Do you know what the Swiss franc is worth as opposed to the American dollar?"

"I have it, all planned. I'm going to stink Gromyko with the check for lunch. If they want détente they should pay for it."

"And what about the hotel?"

"I'll share a room with Marvin Kalb and we'll let CBS pay for it. They'll never know the difference."

"You say that now, but you'll probably come back with a dinner bill of $45 for two like you did when you went to Brussels."

"I can't let people pay for all my meals. It looks bad for American prestige. I'm not even eating 'fancy' with me on this trip. The only major expense I can foresee is when I meet the Prime Minister Rabin of Israel in Bonn. But since I want him to give up the passes in the Sinai I can't really expect him to pick up lunch, too, can I?"

"Why don't you split the check with him?"

Keep track of what he eats and you each pay your own."

"—Rabin's tough. He might not go for it. The last time he bought me a meal he asked for $2.5 billion in military aid. When you're dealing in world-class diplomacy there is no such thing as a free lunch."

"—Mr. Kissinger, you have your job to do and I have mine. But unless the dollar makes a miraculous recovery in Europe you're going to have to find some other way of going to all these countries."

"What do you suggest?"

"Have you ever considered a package tour run by one of the airlines? You get your transportation, your hotel rooms, two meals a day and a chance to visit one nightclub in any five cities in Europe. It's quite a saving."

"I am not interested in a package tour. This is getting ridiculous: Are you going to sign my travel vouchers or aren't you?"

"All right. But I'm not going to okay any of your laundry bills when you come back. There is no reason you can't take enough clean shirts and socks to last you through the entire trip."

Indian villagers unconcerned by loss of civil rights

By BOB TAMARKIN
 Chicago Daily News
 UTTAR PRADESH, India — In the village of Ajjpur, 150 miles north of the capital of New Delhi, the people are unaware that their constitutional rights have been taken from them under a three-week-old state of emergency.

Nor do they care. For that matter, they do not know what democracy is.

To the people of this crude farming community of 1,200 in India's largest state, politics and government have no meaning in their daily lives. They have lived the same way for generations; using primitive implements and customs of the ancestors.

Fewer than 10 per cent of the villagers have gotten past the fifth grade and no more than three can speak English, despite the fact that they live in the shadow of one of India's most progressive and urban areas — New Delhi.

There are no newspapers but to an illiterate people it makes no difference. Oddly enough, however, some of the villagers have transistor radios, their only link to the outside world. News here travels by word of mouth, as it does through most of the country.

Ajjpur is typical of the tens of thousands of mud and straw villages dotted across the country. Most of the people here are landless and work the land of their landlords in an arrangement. Some are even indentured servants. Their religion is Hindu, their language Hindi, and they still abide by the outdated caste system of social orders.

Walking through the narrow maze of mud-courts of Ajjpur is like being swallowed up by cons of India's past civilizations. Skinny children, semi-nude, pock-marked, scrawny, malnourished, romp about, their bare feet sloshing through the droppings of the sacred cows and oxen that roam unimpeded slaughtering of cattle is banned by law in many of the 22 states on religious grounds and most of the Hindus do not eat beef because of religious taboos.

Thick squadrons of flies swarm amid the waste and squalor, landing on anything in sight. The stench of human waste permeates the air along gutterless streets.

From the highway, the villages appear to be part of the landscape. The dwellings are huts made of a mixture of clay, straw and cow dung to give them texture.

Ajjpur has one well for the entire village from which the villagers drink and bathe. Women carry the oval pottery jars filled with water on their heads. Their faces are veiled, their skin tattooed with intricate designs and beads hang around their necks and bangles dangle from their arms.

The village carpenter is busy with his work. He is a Hindu, and he is a member of the caste system. He is a Hindu, and he is a member of the caste system. He is a Hindu, and he is a member of the caste system.

"During elections," he continued, "the people vote but they do not know what they are doing. They are given help by the election officials." (There is speculation that the transistor radios many of these people have are part of pre-election attempts by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government to educate the electorate.)

The electorate among India's 600 million people constitutes nearly 50 per cent of the population, or some 270 million people.

"But obviously," Swami says, "you can see for yourself that elections are the least of my people's worries." He points to the village entrance, where painted across the wall in bright yellow are the smiling faces of happy faces in style of a mother, father and two children. The Hindi script reads:

"Limit your family to four members."

The same sign is repeated on buildings and villages throughout the country and is part of the government's unsuccessful attempt to curb the soaring population growth, which far outstrips the annual increase in food production.

"How can we be satisfied?" says Dainirasu, one of the more successful farmers of the village. His family's income last year was about $1,700, far above the average $200 earned by the other villagers.

His family owns 14 acres of land. Most of the farmers who own their own land are considered fortunate to have two acres. Dainirasu, 22, is the only college graduate in the village. He has a bachelor's degree from Agra University, about 60 miles from here.

He says he has repeatedly tried to get jobs in New Delhi or in the nearby town of Kosi, but has been unsuccessful.

"You must either know a minister or someone in the government to introduce you to the right people. I do not know anyone of influence," he broods.

He is the third generation living in this village and he has little hope of leaving it.

Despite his college degree, he still speaks only a few words of English, and he has few chances to try his language skills in the village.

"The (political) emergency does not affect us here," he says. "As farmers, we are not concerned with higher prices and if the monsoon will be a good one." Dainirasu has recently brought his 18-year-old wife to the village. Theirs was a typical childhood marriage, according to an ancient tribal custom. He was 12 years old, and she was 9. But they were permitted to live together until he reached age 20. His education was completed before he called for her.

There have been some improvements in the life of the village since 1971, when Mrs. Gandhi won a sweeping election with her popular appeal to "abolish poverty."

But the improvements have had little to do with ending poverty. "Some of the houses have electric lights now and we also have streets," says Dainirasu's 60-year-old grandfather, puffing on a huge hookah pipe that stood three feet in height from the floor.

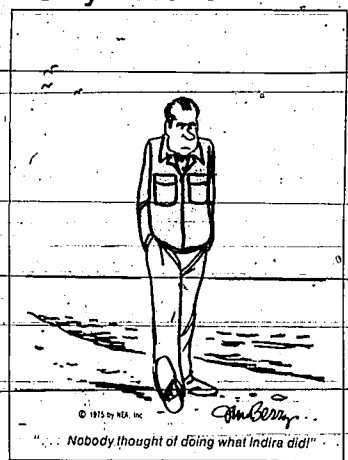

But disease is still rampant, food is in short supply and the school levels reach only to the fifth grade.

"A child must walk four miles each way to further his education in Kosi and there is little incentive to do so," Dainirasu says.

"There are no doctors here either," he adds.

As he talks, a sacred cow ambles through the room, taking up more than half the space. It pauses momentarily to relieve itself, then continues

Critics push drug agency revamp

By Congressional Quarterly
 WASHINGTON — Congressional critics of the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) want to recognize the general public fight against illegal drug traffic only two years after the super-agency was formed.

Three agencies of the Justice Department and part of the Customs Service were merged July 1, 1973, supposedly to make federal drug enforcement more effective. But since the DEA began, narcotics smuggling has increased and drug addiction has risen in the United States.

Late in May the Attorney General's Commission on the DEA's first administrator John R. Bartels Jr. A Senate subcommittee opened hearings June 9 into allegations of corruption and cover-up by high DEA officials, and the fiery, warring and often illegal activities by DEA agents.

Some members of Congress think the responsibility for drug enforcement should be turned over to the FBI. Others say a federal drug effort is in total disarray, and they speak of a need for legislation.

President Ford has said he is committed to maintaining the DEA. Nevertheless, he ordered a White House task force to "undertake a comprehensive review and assessment" of the overall federal drug program.

Should the Drug Enforcement Administration be reorganized?

The DEA's critics say it has not been effective against narcotics trafficking. Each year an estimated 10 to 12 tons of heroin enter the United States illegally. Heroin addiction and drug abuse cause 15,000 deaths a year; their annual social cost is estimated as high as $17 billion.

Staff investigators for a Senate subcommittee say the parts that make up DEA do not fit together. Old interagency rivalries are still so strong that several hundred former Customs Service employees would like to leave DEA. The new agency has no clear jurisdictional line for intercepting narcotics shipments abroad, at U.S. borders or in primary distribution points in this country.

The Senate staff says DEA emphasizes attacking drug traffic on the street, rather than higher levels of smuggling and distribution where narcotics are found in greater volume and purity.

The government is spending $10-million a year to purchase drugs and information leading to arrests, in effect subsidizing narcotics traffickers.

Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) said his subcommittee's hearings on DEA corruption "indicate that there was a conscious premeditated plan to cover up a very important investigation." Sen. Charles Percy (R Ill.) said despite allegations that organized patterns of corruption have merged at the federal level, the DEA still does not have a strong inspections office to investigate integrity problems.

NY Demo heads House probe committee

© Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — The House investigation of the Central Intelligence Agency got off to a fresh start today with a new chairman and without its most controversial member.
 Rep. Otis D. Pike, a moderate Democrat from New York State took the reins of the new 13-member panel and promised to consult with his colleagues on key decisions.
 "I'm not going to run the committee," the 53-year-old Pike told a reporter. "The committee's going to run the committee."
 In naming the new committee, Speaker Carl Albert effectively purged Rep. Michael J. Harrington, D-Mass., who is under investigation on charges of spilling CIA secrets last fall.
 As expected, Albert reappointed all other members of former committee except for Rep. Lueten N. Noyd, D-Mich., the ex-chairman who quit in a dispute over the CIA Inquiry with Harrington and four other Democrats. Noyd asked to be relieved along with Pike, a seven-term veteran of the House Armed Services Committee who conducted the House inquiry into the seizure of the Pueblo, Albert named four other new members:
 Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., a three-term congressman known primarily for his steady criticism of Defense Department spending, was a surprise choice.
 Other new members of the panel will be Rep. Dale Milford, expert pilot; freshman Rep. Philip Hayes, D-Ind., an attorney, and Rep. James P. Johnson, R-Col., a former marine and ex-prosecutor.

Renamed to the panel were Democratic Reps. Robert Glavin, Conn., Don Edwards, Calif., James V. Stanton, Ohio, Ronald V. Dellums, Calif., and Morgan F. Murphy, Ill.
 Republicans reappointed to the panel were Reps. Robert McCloy, Ill., David C. Treen, Wis., and Robert W. Kasten, Wis.
 The chief issue in the House consideration of the compromise plan to abolish the old committee and set up an enlarged panel was Harrington's service as an investigator.

 Friends of the maverick Democrat from Salem, Mass., proposed an amendment to insure that all former members could remain on the board of inquiry into the CIA and other intelligence agencies if they wished.

Arguing against that view Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., said the House should not limit the speaker's power to appoint members of special committees regardless of how it felt about Harrington.
 The Harrington Amendment, as it was called, was rejected by an overwhelming vote of 274 to 119. Only 112 of the 280 Democrats voted to assure Harrington's survival.

LSD case draws varying reports

© N.Y. Times Services
NEW YORK — A former Central Intelligence Agency employee said Thursday he believed that a scientist who plunged from a Manhattan hotel window 22 years ago had knowingly participated in a CIA experiment with LSD before his death.

The statement by Robert V. Lashbrook in a telephone interview appeared to contradict a report by the Rockefeller Commission that the drug had been given to the scientist, Frank R. Olson, without his knowledge.
 In describing the LSD incident and the death, the Rockefeller Commission did not identify the scientist, but a colleague later told his widow and children that it was Olson and the family has announced its intentions to sue the CIA for "wrongful death."

Neither the family nor the police and medical examiner's officials who investigated the death had been aware of Olson's exposure to the potent mind-altering drug, until the Rockefeller Commission's report was published last month.

In the interview from his home in Ojai, Calif., Lashbrook, who has a Ph.D. in chemistry and worked for the CIA for 12 years as researcher, said he attended a "technical meeting" in November, 1953, with three other CIA employees, Olson and five other employees of the Special Operations Division at Fort Detrick, Md., where the drug was reportedly given to four or five persons.
 Lashbrook said he had not personally been present when "everyone agreed" to take part in a test with LSD, but he said someone he felt was reliable had told him of the arrangement.
 "It was my understanding that actually everyone there had agreed in advance that such a test would be conducted and that they were willing to be used as the subjects. The only thing was that the time was not specified," Lashbrook said.
 Lashbrook said that he himself had been asked if he would be a subject in the LSD tests during the meeting and that he had reluctantly agreed.

Portugal's coalition end brings violence, protests

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Mobs ransacked local Communist party headquarters in two towns outside Lisbon early today, burning files and wrecking office equipment in a rising trend of violence against the Communists in rural areas of the country.
 The violence followed a series of moves protest against the influential Communists and the country's left-wing military rulers, who dissolved the coalition government on Thursday.
 The Communists and their allies urged supporters to set up street barricades to prevent the moderate Socialist party from holding an anti-government rally tonight in the northern industrial city of Porto.

Police said the attacks against the Communists headquarters occurred in Lourinha, 15 miles northwest of Lisbon, and Cadaval, 25 miles north of the capital.
 The Communist-controlled labor confederation urged Porto workers to paralyze the city, leaving work and setting up street barricades.
 Other leftist groups called for a mass street demonstration to coincide with the Socialist rally.
 The military denied reports broadcast by the government radio stations that the army had been placed on a provisional alert in anticipation of violence in Porto.
 Thousands of chanting protesters turned out Thursday night in two northern cities to demonstrate against the Communist-backed government.
 Some 20,000 supporters of the left-center Popular Democratic party, the second largest in Portugal, turned out for an anti-Communist rally in the coastal city of Porto.

 Another 2,000 backers of the Socialist party, a far-leftist in the country, showed up for a demonstration in the northern city of Braga, considered a Communist stronghold.
 "Socialism yes, dictatorship no," the protesters shouted over and over in both cities. "A free press, a free Portugal."
 The demonstrations took place without incident. Troops and police maintained a low profile and Communist supporters stayed away.

The Communists accused the Socialists and Popular Democrats Thursday of "trying to generate a climate of strife and violence of unforeseen consequences."
 A Communist statement accused the two moderate parties of trying to "cause disturbances among the population, provoke confrontation between the popular masses and the military, and open the way for counter-revolutionaries."

 The Popular Democrats pulled out of the three-party coalition Thursday, a week after the Socialists quit. The parties won two-thirds of the vote in last April's national election.
 The withdrawals left the Communists as the only party in the government and forced the left-wing Armed Forces Movement, the real power in Portugal, to dissolve the cabinet.
 The ruling movement has announced plans to replace the coalition with a "nonpartisan" cabinet made up of military officers and technocrats.

Campaign funds eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service is investigating 111 corporations for allegedly illegal campaign contributions in this country and abroad, IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander says.
 Alexander's estimate was four times greater than the number of companies convicted or charged with campaign irregularities since these were first uncovered in the Watergate investigations in 1972.
 "This number is larger than I would have hoped," Alexander said Thursday outside the hearing room of the House International Economic Policy subcommittee.
 Alexander amplified his remarks after disclosing the number of corporations under questioning by Reps. Edward Bolster, R-Ohio, and Charles Whalen, R-Ohio.

Challis meet set

SALMON, Idaho (UPI)—A federal court order requiring the Bureau of Land Management to make a special study in the Challis area will be fully implemented Monday night at a meeting here.

Bary Phelan, BLM Challis District manager, said Wednesday that range users have been invited to a meeting in Challis at which time BLM personnel will try to answer questions regarding the proposed allotment management plan the environmental impact study the agency has been directed to prepare.

Idaho BLM Director William L. Mathews said the court ordered studies present a real opportunity for both the bureau and the range and other resource users in the Challis area to work out a grazing program that will provide a sound management base for all the area's resources.

Mathews said two teams are being selected to assist Finlayson in the preparation of the proposed allotment management plan and the environmental impact studies.

The teams will be headed by Ken Satterfield, Idaho Falls, and Carl Armour, Boise.

Finlayson said the first team members will arrive in Challis July 22.

Beef prices higher, but may dip

DENVER (UPI)—Shoppers are paying six cents a pound more for their beef these days than they were a month ago, but the price paid at the checkout stands may be coming down soon.

The American National Cattlemen's Association said Wednesday.

Gordon Van Vleet, association president, said the organization's monthly survey of retail beef prices in 19 cities across the country showed the average price of five beef cuts on July 19 was $1.78 per pound.

The association said the average in June was $1.72. A year ago, the shopper in the prices of grain-fed cattle and the better quality beef which accounts for most retail beef sales.

The higher cattle and beef prices were attributed to reductions in supplies of all types of meat, particularly pork and grain-fed beef. However, members of animals being marketed weekly have increased recently from previous lows.

Cattle and wholesale beef prices have decreased by several cents per pound from their peak level, Van Vleet said.

"Changes in prices at retail — both up and down — generally lag behind wholesale price changes. Since our survey was conducted on July 19, we have had reports of reductions in retail prices in some cities."

The increase was sharply less than the 20 cent jump which occurred a month earlier. In both instances, the increases occurred largely in steak prices, reflecting increases in summertime demand, as well as smaller supplies of grain-fed cattle.

Committee studies Lincoln, Blaine weeds

SHOSHONE—Weeds were studied recently by the Cooperative Weed Control Committee of the Wood River Resource Area when a tour was taken through the Lincoln and Blaine county areas.

The 11 persons taking the tour stopped at the Lincoln Blaine county line to view progress on the county project on the Highway 89 right-of-way and the Big Wood Canal.

Weeds being controlled of particular interest to the committee were Canada thistle and knapweed.

"East of Timmerman junction on Highway 88 dyers wood was studied as a weed for control and follow up was evident."

An area near Bellevue infested with dalmatian toadflax was visited, also. This weed is sometimes spread by a flowering homemaker, who admires its pretty snapdragon flowers.

The group viewed the infestation of knapweed in the Spire Canyon Camp Creek vicinity. This weed is one of the most problematic as it grows profusely where the soil is moist, difficult, and on livestock driveways.

Also viewed was the "sacrifice" areas of overuse such as livestock driveways, livestock bridges, etc., where nothing but weeds will grow because of the constant heavy use.

Discussion centered upon alternatives to sacrifice areas and how best to rehabilitate them.

Final stop was north of Shoshone to view the highway and field of infestation of scotch thistle, a weed that is spreading fast and must be controlled with a shovel if got very long. Otherwise, a 2-4D spray will handle it in the immature plant.

Ivan Hopkins, Lincoln County extension agent, directed the tour and was assisted in the planning and operation by Lynn Williams of the Bureau of Land Management.

Winnipeg, Man. (UPI)—The Canadian Wheat Board Thursday announced the sale of 2 million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union for an unspecified period.

Shipments, consisting of mainly No. 1 and No. 2 grade Canada western red spring wheat, are scheduled to begin October from western ports and in November from St. Lawrence River and Atlantic ports.

About 400,000 tons will be shipped from the west coast and the rest will leave from the east.

The contract, negotiated in Winnipeg between the Wheat Board and V-O Export Khleb, the Soviet grain trading corporation, includes an option providing for an undisclosed portion of the shipment going to Cuba in the form of either wheat or flour, or both.

Officials refused to disclose payment terms of the agreement.

Stamp bill OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Agriculture Committee Thursday approved a compromise bill ordering immediate, no-waiting approval of applications for food stamps in areas where applicants encounter long delays.

Committee officials conceded, however, that the measure would face a virtually certain presidential veto.

Administration officials have charged repeatedly that the legislation might increase fraud and errors in the $6.5 billion food stamp program.

The bill, approved by a 24-13 vote, requires that food stamp applicants whose names and addresses can be verified and who appear on the face of their claims to be eligible for aid — must be tentatively approved on the same day they apply.

The requirement, which would be effective Oct. 1, would allow an initial three-month claim allocation, for newly approved applicants.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market opened mixed Friday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 7.47 percent decline, Thursday, was off 62.83 to 863.66 shortly after the opening. It has lost 17.2 points the past two sessions. Advances led declines, 159 to 155, among the 45 issues comprising the tape.

Turnover amounted to about 560,000 shares. — Just as the market opened, New York's First National City Bank raised its prime rate to 7 percent.

There had been fears the prime rate could escalate following reports the Federal Reserve Board had again tightened credit. Stocks became less attractive as the rates climb and money is more difficult to obtain. The prime rate falls from its all-time high of 12 percent.

After the market closed Thursday, the Fed reported loan demands at New York's leading banks declined by $217 million during the latest reporting week. This eased the pressure on a prime rate rise.

Wall Street was heartened the Gross National Product declined only 0.3 percent in the second quarter following an 11.4 percent plunge in the first. It was evidence the recession had ended and the recovery had started.

Investors were a bit disappointed Thursday by the Commerce Department's report showing a sharp decline in June, following a sharp rise in May. This indicated strongly the economic recovery underway would be slow.

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell a woman after 35 years of marriage and the upbringing of your five marvelous sons that you want to make a new start with another woman? I feel that this other woman can give me the excitement and sexual compatibility that is now lacking in my marriage. Both women are 53. I am 66.

My wife and I enjoy a very serene life, but it's like a brother-sister relationship. She is a fine, devoted, church-going woman who is not unattractive. Perhaps, she can find another man.

This other woman has been divorced for 10 years. When we'd be together we are like a pair of teenagers—very much in love. Her children are grown and gone, and so are mine.

I have too much character to live a lie any longer. Please tell me what to do.

A CHRISTIAN.

DEAR CHRISTIAN: Do you really believe that it shows "character" to tell a wife of 35 years who has played the key role in raising five "marvelous" sons that you want to end your marriage to marry another woman?

He wants new wife

At age 56, is not "serenity" at least as important as "excitement and sexual compatibility"?

You say "perhaps" your wife can find another man. What if she can't? I say it's better to "live a lie" than to break an innocent heart.

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about a mother-in-law who is constantly pushing her quarter of the family budget?

Our children are examined for physical likenesses to her family traits; we get family trees in the mail and all sorts of "proof" that her ancestors were bluebloods.

Why isn't it enough that our children are happy, healthy individuals?

I cannot understand her preoccupation with her ancestors.

How should I deal with it? It's beginning to get to me.

FED UP

DEAR FED: The only way to shut her up would be to dig even deeper into her ancestry, and come up with a horse thief—or worse.

DEAR ABBY: Why do ministers end the marriage ceremony with "I now pronounce you man and wife"?

It makes about as much sense as saying, "I now pronounce you man and woman."

The minister is supposed to make the couple HUSBAND and WIFE.

The man was a man to begin with, just like the woman was a woman, so how come after the ceremony the woman becomes a wife but the man is still a man?

I don't get it.

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: I don't get it, either. But I'll bet after this hits print, there will be a lot more men becoming "husbands" after the marriage ceremony.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Leaky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Speaker scheduled

BUHL — Arnold Marquis, pioneer radio writer and producer of the National Broadcasting Company will speak at the Buhl Kiwanis Club July 23 at the R and R club at noon.

The couple also will speak on the topic of North American Indians at the Castelford First Baptist Church at 8:30 p.m. the first.

A reader from Shreveport was known who point count limits we advocate for a notrump opening bid.

The answer is that we go with the standard American 16-18. We have no quarrel if you want to shade it to 15 to 17, but we see no merit in weak or superstrong notrumps. We see even less merit in the scatter gun 15-18 notrump. To get the most value from your notrump openings keep them as precise picture bids.

Lutheran moderates challenged

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The 112,000-member English district of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod, its president and its very existence under challenge, meets in Chicago Sept. 20 to decide whether to go its own way.

Forty-seven of the 210 congregations in the district, sixth largest in the synod, are in the Chicago area. The rest, almost all in urban areas like Detroit and St. Louis, range from California to the New England states.

It will be the second meeting in Chicago within a month on the issue of breaking away from the synod after a 28-day convention here which saw the conservative majority order a burgeoning moderate movement to mend its ways or leave the church.

The first, Aug. 12-15, will involve the leaders of the moderate movement, the Evangelical Lutherans in Mission (ELIM), which the convention officially branded as "schismatic."

"Speaking for myself, what we do will depend on how punitive the synod is to our movement," President Henry Gleditsius said. "If the office vacant, we'll just vote him back in," said Rev. Paul R. Landahl, pastor of Ascension Lutheran Church in Riverside, Ill., a convention delegate, and a member of ELIM, from the English district.

The English district president, equivalent to bishop in other churches, is Rev. Harold Hecht, Detroit. He is one of eight presidents the convention ordered to stop helping graduates of a "liberal Seminary," "St. Luke's (Seminary)" or face their offices being declared vacant. The eight issued a joint statement saying they would do no such thing because of the demand of "freedom of conscience," their obligations to the prospective ministers and the belief that the congregations, not the political hierarchy, rule the church.

Hecht's district came under particular fire because it was placing a substantial number of Seminex graduates as pastors. A resolution to dissolve the district failed by voice vote.

"It'll be revived, absolutely," said Elmo F. Petersen, Bradley, Ill., a lawyer and layman delegate, also from the English district. "It didn't pass this time because of a lot of conservative delegates felt they didn't need another inflammatory issue."

"They have the votes."

For a convention sump, the Chicago Daily News interviewed Gleditsius and Petersen and two spokesmen from the conservative side, Rev. Raymond Wessler, pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church in Calumet City, Ill., and Rev. Edmund H. Hoppel, of Chicago, president of the Northern Illinois district and chairman of the committee which turned out the resolution.

Wessler said he was pleased with the convention actions, for one reason, "because it assures my congregation that the synod is stable as far as doctrinal conservatism and orthodoxy, and yet it has taken steps by which it can resolve its differences."

The problems can be resolved if the dissidents, away from the pressure of the convention, thoughtfully and prayerfully consider the matter, and agree to go along with the rule of the synod, he said.

Hoppel, in a separate interview, agreed, and specifically noted the defiant statement of the "Dirty Eight," as they called themselves.

"Under tension we make many statements. I think after prayerful reconsideration, they might have another thought," Hoppel said. "They said they'd go back and see what their districts say. I believe a lot of people back in those districts are going to say, 'Brother, I love you, we think you have many fantastic gifts, and we encourage you to seize this opportunity. I think they'll consider it.'"

Hoppel, whose district has "200,000 souls" in it, said that this convention had been talked of in advance as "Armageddon" or the "one where we're really going to blow it, or settle it."

"Well, it wasn't Armageddon. The church wasn't blown. The really strongest votes we had were against splitting the church. People want to stay together and get this straightened out," he said. "There may be some pastors leave, some people from new congregations, but I don't see a lot of it."

Petersen and Landahl agreed it wasn't Armageddon but unlike Hoppel and Wessler didn't see it all coming right in the summer of 1975.

"I think our district will produce some pretty strong resolutions on the course we will follow when we meet in Chicago in September," Landahl said.

Wessler said he was in favor of dissolution of the English district, not as a punitive measure, but because this widely scattered district, with no geographical boundaries like the others, would be better off split up among the other districts.

The comparatively rich district, which has a kitty of $12 million for mission development for example, would be a great financial help to other districts if it were divided up.

Behrmans to sing Sunday

TWIN FALLS — The Behrmans, Burlington, Colo., will sing Sunday at 7 p.m. at Tyler Street Baptist Church, Twin Falls.

Rev. Kenneth Himple, pastor, said the family group consists of Laddie, who is pianist, and Trina, Patsy and Stephen, who play the bass guitar. They have been singing together for church services and youth rallies since early childhood.

In 1973, the four won first place in the vocal ensemble division in the National Teen Talent Search held in Miami Beach, Fla. To them, music is more than a form of entertainment, but a means of extending — the message of Jesus Christ as they minister in song, Himple said.

Tokyo has 11 million people in it while New York City only has 8 million. Still, there were 182 times as many robberies in New York City last year as in Tokyo. Suppose it has to do with the Japanese character, generally. But I suspect it also has to do with the fact that the Japanese police are deployed in little substations every few blocks.

AT LAST REPORT: eight states had passed laws to require motorcycleists to have lights that turn on with the ignition. Theory was that daytime headlights on cycles would cut accidents. Five Eagles treated CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — Five Philadelphia Eagles were treated at Crozer Chester Medical Center Thursday for heat cramps suffered during practice at Widener College.

By BOB STEWART UPI Sports Writer NEW YORK (UPI) — Muhammad Ali better get a wee bit more careful when he jabs on about how great he is and how he's gonna stage that "chill-kill, thrill-in" Manilla with a gorilla.

He's the great showman, he is, but in his virtual monologue Thursday while waiting for "gorilla" Joe Frazier to arrive for their joint press conference, Muhammad suddenly was saying: "The fools still think Joe can beat me... All you chumps put your money on Joe."

UMPIRE Jerry Dale called this slide by Cincinnati outfielder George Foster (15) safe as Montreal's 3rd baseman Pete Brinc (38) tried to tag him out in the top of the fourth inning at Jarry Park. The Expos won 3-0. (UPI) doll. The nets were for Frazier, "cause I'm gonna dance like a butterfly and he'll need a net to catch me." and the gorilla pecking from his breast pocket was "Fraz-zuh's conscience, I got 'im in my pocket, see?"

The former champion had a few small bars of his own, especially when claiming that he had done more and better work in his gym with his sparring partners that Ali had in 41 rounds with Chuck Wepper, Ron Lytle and Joe Bugner. Ali, who had insisted he was going to stay in Malaysia to train for Frazier and Manila, admitted he had changed his mind because "I miss my children. I've been in training so long, and when I was doing roadwork outside Kuala Lumpur last week I suddenly started crying. So I came back, and I'll train at my Deer Lake (Pa.) camp."

He indicated he really didn't need to train too much for Frazier, for to hear him, a victory over Joe is a mere formality. "I'm gonna stop him with head shots," he insisted. "You can't miss Joe. He just loves to get hit, and I'm gonna hit him, and hit him, and hit him."

Bob Hayes acquired by San Francisco SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wide receiver Bob Hayes, a Souther California State University-Bakersfield, and a 10-year NFL Football League veteran, Thursday was acquired by the San Francisco 49ers from the Dallas Cowboys in exchange for an undisclosed high draft choice.

Hayes, 32, was a seventh round future draft selection of the Cowboys in 1963, but did not play in the NFL until after the Olympics in Tokyo. In his 10 seasons, Hayes, who lost his starting job to Drew Pearson in 1974, scored more points than any other Dallas player in the team's history.

Hayes, 5-11, 185, joins veterans Terry Beasley, Mike Bettiga and Robert West in the battle for the flanker slot opposite Gene Washington. In addition, the 49ers who released Dan Abramowitz last week, are trying Kermil Johnson, a running back refugee from the World Football League. Del Williams and former defensive back Mike Holmes.

Probers found CIA chief destroyed LSD test files

Blaze contained

WARNER SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Firefighters today won a five-day battle against a fire that destroyed almost 9,000 acres of desert brush land, menaced rare wild sheep and perhaps killed some of the wild herds of Heiloh Canyon.

"We have achieved 100 per cent containment," a spokesman for the state Division of Forestry said today, meaning the fire had been completely circled by fire lines.

"We expect full control some time tonight," he said.

The blaze continued to smolder in islands within the perimeter. It burned 8,930 acres, including more than 5,000 acres within the Anza-Borrego State Park about 50 miles northeast of San Diego.

WASHINGTON — The staff of the Rockefeller commission concluded that the chief of the Central Intelligence Agency's program of LSD destroyed the drug program's records in 1973 to hide the details of possibly illegal actions, commission sources said Thursday.

These sources said that the chief of the program, Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, a 37-year-old biochemist, was personally involved in a fatal experiment in November, 1953, in which the commission has said a researcher was surreptitiously given LSD, a potent mind-altering drug. The researcher, Frank R. Ison, jumped to his death from a New York City hotel room less than two weeks later after reportedly showing symptoms of anxiety.

The Rockefeller commission staff, on the basis of its investigation, concluded that 20 years after Ison's death, and 10 years after the LSD experiments were purportedly halted, Gottlieb ordered the destruction of all the records of the program, including a total of 152 separate files, commission sources said.

The Rockefeller commission, previously reported the destruction of records on the LSD experiments but did not mention Gottlieb by name. It also reported a program through the Federal Bureau of Drug Abuse Control in which the CIA had arranged to test LSD on "unsuspecting volunteers" on two programs, one in the West and the other along the East Coast.

Staff sources on the Rockefeller commission said this program was also commanded by Gottlieb.

The record destruction came shortly after other records had been destroyed by Richard Helms, then Director of Central Intelligence, these sources said. Gottlieb retired from the agency a few months after Helms left in January, 1973, they said.

For a short time after he resigned from the CIA, Gottlieb was a paid consultant to the Drug Enforcement Agency, John Bartels, director of the agency at the time, said that Gottlieb had completed a management study on research facilities on a consultant basis. He later went to Africa, according to CIA sources, and now lives in the Far East.

The staff of the commission headed by Vice President Rockefeller, which was established by President Ford to look into allegedly illegal domestic operations by the CIA, attempted to interview Gottlieb and was told by the agency that he was unavailable. The New York Times tried unsuccessfully to reach him.

According to intelligence sources, Gottlieb joined the CIA, in 1951; though he had done national security work before that. He was a close associate of Helms and was promoted to the head of the technical services division of the covert operations branch of the agency, these sources said.

The CIA's experiments with such hallucinogens as LSD stemmed from World War II concerns over how agents could resist torture in interrogation and could defend themselves against drugs being used by enemy intelligence services. The experimenting was a closely held secret even within Government.

The Rockefeller commission report said that the testing of hallucinogens was halted in 1963 by the CIA's inspector general.

Wheat sale said aid to US farmer

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — The sale of 2 million tons of wheat to the Soviet Union by Cook Industries Inc. will help American farmers and will have a large effect on U.S. food prices, board chairman E.W. "Ned" Cook says.

"We need to sell our surplus (grain), and I think the farmer deserves a fair price," Cook said Thursday.

"A much larger grain sale to Russia in 1972 caused only about a third of a later jump in food prices with other factors, including unfavorable weather," "compounding—the problem," he said.

He said while the 1976 harvest would supply between 25 and 30 per cent of the wheat in the current year, it was expected to be a record 30 per cent strike again next year.

"(Those conditions) only happened once in this century. The probability is it won't happen," he said.

While he declined to comment on the price of the approximately 70 million bushels of No. 2 hard red winter wheat sold for cash, it would bring between $290 and $300 million at current American market prices.

Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis announced Wednesday its European affiliate, Tradax, had sold another 12 million tons of wheat to Russia, nullifying officials announced Thursday the sale of 2 million tons of wheat to the Soviets.

Cook said "at the moment" he didn't anticipate any more purchases sales by his firm, "but I think you will see an announcement by one of our competitors in the near future regarding corn sales to other countries."

In apparent response to charges from some congressmen—that the government isn't adequately informed about such sales, Cook said the transaction was conducted with the full knowledge of the government.

"The International Grain dealing firm is cooperating with a Federal probe of alleged corruption in the grain shipping and inspecting system, including reports of adulteration and deliberate misweighing of shipments."

"He declined to comment further on the probe, but said "a little investigation never hurt anybody."

Clashes mar peace talks

By United Press International

A State Department spokesman reported Thursday that "progress continues to be made in the search for an interim Middle East peace agreement between Israel and Egypt" but the situation was darkened by new Israeli military setbacks today and what like statements by Iraq.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz were meeting today in Washington to discuss Israel's latest views on a settlement of the two-man pact Thursday, but today's meeting was called because Kissinger needed additional clarification from Tel Aviv.

An Israeli military spokesman reported in Tel Aviv that security forces killed three Arab guerrillas who infiltrated the northern border town of Mutallah today. He said the guerrillas, who entered from Lebanon, carried weapons, explosives and leaflets demanding the release of terrorists held in Israeli jails.

In Lebanon, witnesses reported Israeli artillery shelled two south Lebanon villages in retaliation and that fires were started. They said three houses and some other property were damaged. They said the shelling was accompanied by an overnight of Israeli jet fighters.

Oil-rich Iraq offered Thursday to set up a northern military front with Syria against Israel, provided the Damascus government rejected Middle East peace efforts. The offer came in a speech by President Ahmed Hassan al-Bakr, broadcast by Baghdad Radio and Television, to mark the 12th anniversary of the overthrow of the Iraqi monarchy.

"We believe the time has come for the immediate establishment of a northern military front between us and sister Syria and for the presence of Iraqi troops on Syrian territory provided the Syrian government clearly announces its rejection of Security Council resolutions calling for establishment of secure and recognized boundaries in the Middle East and rejection of the Geneva conference, Bakr said.

"Bakr's offer came as a surprise to diplomat quarters, since Syria and Iraq are riddled by internal factions of the Baath party.

"One cause of current tension in the Middle East was Egypt's announcement it would not renew the mandate of the U.N. peace keeping force between Israeli and Egyptian forces in the Sinai unless there is Security Council action to force Israel to make further withdrawals.

Retired Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog, the new Israeli Ambassador to the United Nations, warned Thursday that removal of the U.N. force could lead to a new Middle East war.
