

Ford, Soviet leader talk N-arms limits

HLSINKI (UPI) — President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev made "constructive" headway toward nuclear arms control today at a private summit that went so well it briefly delayed the main 35-nation conference.

Obviously pleased with their talks, Ford and Brezhnev conferred mainly on problems affecting the prospective new U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation pact for two hours and 10 minutes — keeping 33 other national leaders waiting 10 minutes to open formally the European security summit.

Brezhnev arrived at the white marble Finlandia Hall conference site in time to kiss Poland's Edward Gierk on both cheeks.

But Ford was the last delegation chief to arrive. 10 minutes before he took his front row seat alongside Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who spent the delay drumming his fingers on a desk in apparent impatience. Finland's President Urho Kekkonen held the conference as "a day of joy and hope for Europe" during the 25-minute NATO coalition ceremony. Ford then lunched with the prime minister of Greece and attended for a four-hour afternoon summit session to hear the speeches of other delegation chiefs.

In the morning, as he and Brezhnev emerged from their U.S. embassy talks, Ford indicated with pleasure they had made progress toward resolving some of the technical snags in the phase-two SALT agreement they hope to sign in Washington this October.

He described the talks as "very constructive, very friendly, very businesslike."

"We did not have enough time, but the discussions were in a very good spirit of frankness."

Ford and Brezhnev met in a jovial mood, with much introductory joking and laughing in the U.S. embassy dining room hours before the convocation of the security summit that brought them together.

"I believe peace in Europe will be enhanced by the security summit and so will peace in the world," Ford said.

Brezhnev agreed. "I want peace and tranquility to reign in Europe so we do not interfere in the internal affairs of other nations, and that we recognize one another's sovereignty," he said, summing up major points of the document to be signed Friday.

Levi ponders anti-trust actions on oil

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. Edward G. Levi is studying the possibility that the oil-producing nations could be tried in U.S. courts on charges of violating the Sherman Antitrust Act.

In the past, the United States has moved against foreign companies for violation of the antitrust law. The new factor, Levi said, is that the petroleum-exporting nations have formed commercial enterprises of their own and entered into cartel agreements to set prices.

General Mills slates flour price hike

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — General Mills has notified grocery store chains that it is raising the price of flour 1.6 cents per pound on flour purchased after Thursday.

The announcement came a week after General Mills announced a penny per pound increase that was to take effect last Thursday and then rescinded it.

The firm said increased wheat costs prompted the flour price boost.

New vote set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acting on the request of Democrat John Durkin, U.S. Senate leaders today declared the disputed New Hampshire seat vacant, clearing the way for a new election.

The Senate has been wrangling for seven months over the election, in which a close vote has denied both Durkin and Republican Louis Wyman the seat. The new election will be in about 45 days.

House OK's compromise measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House today approved a compromise $3.1 billion military weapons procurement measure which authorized funds for the controversial B1 bomber and a nuclear strike cruiser.

The measure, hammered out by Senate-House conferees last week, was passed on a 348-90 vote and sent to the Senate for final action.

The bill was $3.1 billion below Pentagon requests. A separate appropriations measure still is needed to provide the actual funds.

Senate won't kill Ford oil phaseout

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today refused to kill President Ford's proposal to phase out price controls on "old" oil over 29 months — a plan he said was his final effort to compromise with Congress.

Senate Democrats, in a surprise maneuver, sought to attach a resolution of disapproval of Ford's plan to routine legislation providing funds for a committee. A time limitation on the bill, agreed to earlier in the week, prevented a Republican filibuster. But a motion to table, or in effect kill the resolution of disapproval, offered by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, was approved 50-44.

TF junior high bonds eyed

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls superintendent recommends a $4 million-plus bond issue to replace aging O'Leary Junior High School.

George Staudacher made the proposal at a special meeting, but asked for no action as yet from trustees. The proposal came close on voters in a $8.5 million bond issue approved by voters in fall, 1973.

Because of new life safety codes enacted by the state, the O'Leary school will need a massive upgrading program, according to Staudacher and architect Ed Peterson.

The cost could be between $600,000 and $700,000 to install fire doors, sprinklers and other safety items. Staudacher told trustees Staudacher said he could not see putting that much money into the school and still not ending up with a quality "education plant."

"I am asking you to let the people of Twin Falls decide," Staudacher said.

The bond issue would run between $4.2 and $4.4 million, Staudacher estimated.

Besides paying for construction of a new junior high school at a site already purchased, the funds would be used to build an auditorium. O'Leary presently has the only large auditorium in the district.

voters decide how they wanted to handle the situation — fix up O'Leary or build a new school.

"The possibility of an accident occurring at the school was a major concern, he said. "In our position, it should be presented to the public to let them say yes or no."

Peterson had informed school trustees earlier this summer that the new safety law would require extensive improvements to the school.

According to Peterson, the new law has a "grandfather" clause, which makes upgrading of old schools mandatory. Many other life safety laws primarily to new construction, and do not apply retroactively.

O'Leary Principal Carl Snow, also at the meeting, told trustees, "I... know that O'Leary has seen its last days." He said he had been keeping a notebook of changes he felt were necessary in a new school.

Airmen drown

PINE, Idaho (UPI) — The bodies of two Air Force enlisted men were pulled from Anderson Ranch Dam after scuba divers located their car in about 15 feet of water.

The victims were identified today as Sgt. Steven Schmal, 24, Decatur, Wis., and Airman 1st Class Thomas Magness, 20, Orange, Texas. Both men were found in the car. An autopsy has been scheduled by the state medical examiner in Boise.

The men were on a weekend leave from Mountain Home Air Force Base. They were reported missing Tuesday. The car was spotted late Tuesday by Elmore County Sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the car apparently missed a curve on a county road paralleling the reservoir, plunging into the water. Investigating officers said the mishap apparently occurred Saturday night.

Trustees questioned the proposal which comes less than two years after the successful bond issue which built a new elementary school, and additions to Lincoln, Morningstar, Harrison and Robert Stuart junior high schools.

Construction projects financed by that bond issue are just being completed now.

"There's a limit," trustee chairman Dr. Howard Bank said, and trustee Lee Eldredge also questioned whether voters would approve another bond issue.

With a $4.4 million bond issue, between 9 and 10 mills would be added to the school taxes for bond issue and redemption. Taxpayers now pay about 11 mills for construction bonds on school building projects from 1962 and 1974.

Staudacher said he felt it was his duty to let trustees take no action on the proposal for the bond election until their next regular meeting scheduled for Aug. 12.

Stockmen claim federal, private land costs same

TWIN FALLS — Rumors that federal land is as expensive as renting private pasture, according to several local sheep and cattlemen.

The federal government currently leases out grazing lands to ranchers holding long-established grazing privileges for less than fifth the price of renting private pasture.

EPA Administrator Russell Train said new studies show residents of the pesticide in the body tissues of more than 97 per cent of Americans sampled.

More than 70 per cent of the agricultural use of the chemicals is on corn crops. They are also widely used throughout the yard for shrubbery. In all cases, Train said, there are alternatives available which are less restrictive but safe.

Opinions of two major fertilizer distributors in the Magic Valley were split this morning on what impact the EPA decision would have locally.

charges anywhere between 92 cents and $1.54 per AUM, depending on the forest. Both agencies aim for a price of $1.94 per AUM by 1980, or about one-third of the current average market price for renting private grazing land of $5.75 per AUM.

An animal unit-month equals one cow and a calf or five sheep grazing for a period of one month.

According to Don Sandy, president of the Shoshone Cattle Association and long-time Shoshone rancher, it costs an average of $3 per AUM just to keep up fences, put in improvements and hire people to take care of the cattle on federal grazing. And, these costs, he said only account for part of the total extra costs incurred for grazing on federal lands.

Sandy said that in some districts the BLM develop springs and put in fences, but he said on the Shoshone Unit Cattle Allotment this has been done privately.

Over the years about 100 ranchers running a maximum of 2,400 head on the Shoshone allotment have put in 80 miles of fence, put in a well and developed 50 springs, Sandy said.

Crash claims Jerome man, 22

JEROME — Robert Edward White, 22, Jerome, died in a single-car accident Monday night in Jerome County.

Sheriff Elza Hall said the man was traveling east on the Appleton Road and had just left the home of a friend when his vehicle left the roadway and crashed into a concrete canal abutment.

White was alone in the vehicle.

Hall said he is at a loss to say what caused the accident. The vehicle was traveling about 60 miles per hour, the sheriff estimated, and said White had traveled only about two and one-half miles from the friend's home when the accident occurred.

White was dead at the scene when officers arrived. Sheriff Hall said the impact forced the grill and front bumper of the car back to the firewall behind the motor of the vehicle.

The accident occurred about 10:10 p.m. Monday.

Cuban bars coming down

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (UPI) — The Organization of American States has ended the 11-year-old economic and diplomatic isolation of Cuba in the Western Hemisphere.

The United States joined 15 other OAS nations Tuesday night in approving a de facto end to the 1964 sanctions against the Communist government of Premier Fidel Castro.

The OAS voted 16 to three with two abstentions in favor of a "freedom of action" resolution letting member nations determine their own relations with Cuba.

The Mexican-sponsored, U.S.-backed measure stopped short of lifting the sanctions, circumventing the embargo and closed a painful chapter in Western Hemisphere history.

William Maillard, the American ambassador to the OAS, said the resolution represented a "generally acceptable solution" to the Cuban problem.

Diplomatic observers said the move may turn out to be the first step toward the eventual normalization of relations between the United States and Cuba.

But the observers said the United States doesn't appear to be in a hurry to resume ties with the Castro government. Relations were broken in 1961.

None of the resolution were Argentina, Bolivia, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, El Salvador, the United States, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Mexico, Panama, Peru, the Dominican Republic, Trinidad, Tobago and Venezuela.

Chile, Uruguay and Paraguay, nations with right-wing governments dominated by the armed forces, voted against the resolution. Brazil and Nicaragua abstained.

The measure, passed by two votes more than the two-thirds majority needed for approval, leaves OAS nations "free to normalize" their relations with Cuba.

EPA bans 2 pesticides as cancer threat

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency today banned two widely used agricultural and household pesticides — heptachlor and chlordane — saying they pose an imminent human cancer threat.

EPA Administrator Russell Train said new studies show residents of the pesticide in the body tissues of more than 97 per cent of Americans sampled.

More than 70 per cent of the agricultural use of the chemicals is on corn crops. They are also widely used throughout the yard for shrubbery. In all cases, Train said, there are alternatives available which are less restrictive but safe.

Opinions of two major fertilizer distributors in the Magic Valley were split this morning on what impact the EPA decision would have locally.

particularly where potatoes are grown.

Bailey was unhappy with the decision. "Hell, I don't know. There is going to be nothing left... Pretty soon they won't have to worry about cancer. They will have to worry about raising crops. Everybody will be starving to death," he said.

Substitutes are available, he said, "but nothing near as effective."

Roy Russell, manager of Simplot Soil Builders, however, predicted the banning of chlordane is "not going to cause any great hardship on anybody in this area."

He said chlordane is a "old product" which is "widely used by us to do with leaf insects. But, he said, there are substitutes and that if the pesticide is dangerous it should be banned.

Both Bailey and Russell said heptachlor is not

John Bailey, assistant manager of Safegens Inc. fertilizer division, predicted that banning chlordane would hurt valley farmers. "It was the only good soil insecticide left," he said, adding that once applied its residue would be good for controlling wireworm for two to three years.

He said chlordane is widely used both on farms and gardens in the Magic Valley, particularly where potatoes are grown.

used much now.

No one was available at the Green Giant plant this morning to say what impact the EPA decision would have.

The order to halt manufacture will be effective in five days unless the producers request a public hearing, which then could last up to 60 days. If that happens, and if the hearing does not dissuade EPA from its findings, the production of the pesticides could be halted by the end of the year.

The pesticides are chlorinated hydrocarbons, the same chemical family as DDT and dieldrin, which the agency previously restricted. They persist in the environment, entering the food chain where they can be passed from animal to animal and eventually to man where they can be stored in body fat.

Castro charges 24 death tries

TF concert Thursday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., announced today he has received from Cuban Premier Fidel Castro documentation on 24 alleged attempts by the CIA to assassinate the Cuban leader and some of his associates.

McGovern told a news conference he was turning over the materials to the Senate Select Intelligence Committee, which is investigating the Central Intelligence Agency.

"I have no way to verify these allegations," McGovern said.

"But if they are true, the CIA has engaged in the most shocking, murderous, and un-American behavior against the leaders of a neighboring state. I find such behavior a complete contradiction of the principles on which our nation was founded."

McGovern said the documentation was provided in both English and Spanish and included photographs of the alleged assassins and their various weapons.

McGovern said the material showed there had been "one or more attempts" against Castro or other Cuban leaders from 1960 to 1967.

The most recent attempt against Castro, according to the documentation released by McGovern, was by a man identified as Jesus Dominguez Benitez who posed as a Venezuelan newsman covering Castro's visit to Chile in 1971.

"We consider that the analysis of the information we offer, the publicly known, and the one that the American authorities possess and have not been publicly allowed to affirm that the physical elimination of Cuban revolutionary leaders, especially the prime minister Fidel Castro Ruz, has been a reiterated policy of the United States through its subversive agencies, making use of Cuban counterrevolutionaries, U.S. citizens and all kinds of corrupted individuals, inside the country as well as abroad, without taking into consideration the victims that would result from these actions."

Castro forwarded the materials to McGovern following the senator's visit to Cuba in May.

Before McGovern's news conference, columnist Jack Anderson said in a television commentary (ABC's AM America) that he had also seen the document outlining the assassination attempts.

US election panel scoops out slush

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Election Commission has moved to take the slush out of secret congressional slush funds.

The funds reportedly are witnessed by congressmen to pay personal and office expenses. The money is collected quietly from unions, businessmen and corporations.

Under the proposed FEC regulation, all such funds would be treated just like campaign funds and subject to the same limits.

They would have to be publicly reported, specifically designated as campaign funds.

Mud saves

Nebraskans in slides

UTAH (UPI) — An 18-foot wall of water swept down the Virgin River Tuesday on the heels of a series of thunderstorms which flooded parts of Zion National Park.

The Utah Highway Patrol identified the occupants of the car as John Quinlan, 27, and his wife Susan, 26, Nebraska City.

The UHP said the four feet of mud which sloped into their car saved their lives.

The Quinlans were driving through the park when the slide dashed their car off the pavement and tumbled it 300 feet down a steep incline and through stands of trees.

"Apparently the mud saved them. There was so much mud inside the car it cushioned them," said UHP trooper Randy Humphreys.

The Quinlans were treated at a St. George hospital for bruises, cuts and inhalation of mud, and released.

No other injuries were reported.

Public attorney opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI)

Present and former Watergate prosecutors told Congress today they oppose establishment of a permanent public attorney to prosecute illegals and abuse of power within the government.

Both the current special prosecutor, Henry S. Ruth Jr., and his predecessor, Leon Jaworski, said the Watergate scandal that drove Richard M. Nixon from the presidency was an aberration not likely to be repeated and thus not requiring a permanent watchdog.

"I am not so naive as to believe that future Watergates may not occur — although in my judgment it is highly improbable that anything approaching in scope and degree will confront our nation in next generation," Jaworski told the Senate Government Operations Committee.

"That there is to be an occasional outcropping of corrupt practices is to be expected, but this alone, in my view, does not warrant the creation of the office of permanent special prosecutor."

Such a proposal is the key provision in a massive post-Watergate political reform bill embodying recommendations of the Senate Watergate Committee.

Both, who succeeded Jaworski as special prosecutor last October, said there would not be enough work to require a permanent investigator of government corruption.

Ruth also said he was worried because the proposed public attorney would be accountable to no one — thus carrying "a potential for abuse of power that far exceeds any enforcement gains that might ensue."

The hearings on the legislation opened Monday. Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-Conn., pointed out that not one of the 98 Watergate-related bills introduced so far has passed the Congress.

Development protests heard

TWIN FALLS — About 30 persons attended a public hearing Tuesday afternoon before county commissioners here on a proposed 79-acre planned unit development. County commissioners said most of those who spoke on the issue protested such a large development as hazardous to traffic and children walking to school. The proposal covers an acreage located at Falls Avenue and Eastland in what is now an agricultural field. Snake River Enterprises proposes the PUD project with J-U-B Engineers as the project planners. Many of those attending the hearing said the narrow condition of Falls Avenue in that vicinity and also the additional volume of vehicle and pedestrian traffic anticipated from a housing development. The children would have to walk to the new Sawtooth School or to bus stops, residents in the area said, and neither street is even striped and there are no sidewalks. The county planning and zoning commission approved a planned unit development concept for the area and listed a number of recommendations and restrictions which they felt should apply to this specific project. Plans call for 332 total housing units and the planning and zoning board recommended 764 parking spaces and setbacks as required in the residential low density zone. Among other recommendations were raised median traffic dividers within the project, adequate width streets, curbs and lighting with pedestrian walkways. The planning and zoning commission made the recommendations in a letter to J-U-B Engineers. Final plans for the development have not yet been prepared. Commissioners took no action following the discussion Tuesday afternoon, pending a review of comments and presentation of final plans.

Airline seeks MV stops

BOISE (UPI) — An official of Sun Valley Key Airlines told the Public Utilities Commission today it needs authority to carry passengers between Pocatello, Twin Falls and Halley to make that route more profitable. At present the airline serves the route only with interstate authority. Sun Valley Key holds a Federal Reserve Bank courier contract to fly from Salt Lake City to those Idaho cities and is asking the commission for interstate passenger authority. The airline's vice president for marketing, Brent Wiseman, told the PUC the airline has received numerous requests from passengers who wanted to fly between Idaho cities but has had to refuse for lack of authority. The real key, according to Wiseman, is the combination of Idaho passenger service and the federal contract. He testified that the present authority, which only allows passenger service between Salt Lake City and Idaho cities plus the federal contract, is only marginally profitable. He said each service requires the help of the other.

Wiseman told the commission the interstate authority should be conditioned on the federal contract and that if the contract were lost the commission should start proceedings to consider discontinuing the Pocatello, Twin Falls, Halley service. Sun Valley Key proposes a once-a-day route from Salt Lake City to Pocatello, to Twin Falls to Halley. The airline currently holds Idaho authority to fly between Boise and Halley and seasonal authority between Boise and McCall. No one protested the request by Sun Valley Key today and the commission took the application under advisement.

Many of those attending the hearing said the narrow condition of Falls Avenue in that vicinity and also the additional volume of vehicle and pedestrian traffic anticipated from a housing development. The children would have to walk to the new Sawtooth School or to bus stops, residents in the area said, and neither street is even striped and there are no sidewalks. The county planning and zoning commission approved a planned unit development concept for the area and listed a number of recommendations and restrictions which they felt should apply to this specific project. Plans call for 332 total housing units and the planning and zoning board recommended 764 parking spaces and setbacks as required in the residential low density zone. Among other recommendations were raised median traffic dividers within the project, adequate width streets, curbs and lighting with pedestrian walkways. The planning and zoning commission made the recommendations in a letter to J-U-B Engineers. Final plans for the development have not yet been prepared. Commissioners took no action following the discussion Tuesday afternoon, pending a review of comments and presentation of final plans.

Henry should counterattack after supersummit

By The Times Service

A good public relations man would advise Henry Kissinger to let the current press criticism of the Helsinki supersummit run its course.

Let the pundits point out to their heart's content that the European Security Conference is a triumph of Soviet diplomacy. Let editorial writers sneer at the shameful way our participation places a seal of approval on the Russian conquest and continued domination of Eastern Europe.

During this barrage from writers who accurately see detente gone berserk, Kissinger would be smart to hold his fire. In the current week, the media torch will pass from pundits to cameramen; a summit makes good television, and the faces of television newsmen against exotic backdrops will set the stage for his public opinion comeback.

Then Henry can be expected to counterattack. In a series of backgrounders for hungry newsmen, he should reveal his secret strategy: that in return for our presence at the supersummit, we extracted understanding concessions from the Soviets in our field.

After a meeting of Leonid Brezhnev and Gerald Ford, Kissinger will whisper to his closest journalistic confidantes that a "conceptual breakthrough" had been conceived, or broken through to, that SALT-II was now on track, and could be concluded in the fall with the Brezhnev visit, and that human survival now stood a better chance, thanks to his skillfulness of the Helsinki lever, and no thanks to those backbiting "experts" who could not see the enormous opportunity available.

The Kissinger kotex will lap it up and pass it along. The focus will shift away from the Soviet achievement, which is what the conference is all about, and on to our achievement in SALT (with some added hints about Russian tolerance of progress in the Mideast).

The trick, of course, in engaging the judgment of any event is to define beforehand the standard of success. Therefore we can expect on the counterattack to come in the SALT and Mideast areas, which are fuzzy and hard to comprehend. A senior official will point out how smart we were, how this trip was really necessary by directing attention away from the real

The criterion that Kissinger most wants to get away from is the actual quid pro quo promise—us by the Soviets in return for holding a supersummit so valuable to both interests, his name—SMBFFP—mutual and balanced force reduction—and it is the forgotten topic at Helsinki.

Two years ago, we agreed to begin meeting the Soviets in preparation for the conference they wanted in return for an agreement to prepare for a deal we wanted: the actual reduction of Soviet and American troops in Europe. The Security-conference talks led to this week's glorious conclusion; the troop reduction talks led nowhere. We were had.

Now, of course, our secretary of state insists that while the two subjects started together, progress on the one was not connected to progress on the other. In other words, had faith on their part was to be matched by good faith on your own.

That was not what the secretary led the Senate to believe. On Sept. 19, 1974, Kissinger submitted to the Senate a carefully drawn document setting forth his understanding of U.S.-Soviet relations. Those who worked on such statements with him know how each word and phrase is weighed for subtlety of nuance.

In this document, the European Security Conference was referred to as "a conference designed to foster East-West dialogue and cooperation," which is a kind of joke, but then in the next sentence—Kissinger hurried to assure the Senate that we were getting something in return for giving the K's until his long-sought coronation.

"At the same time," wrote Kissinger, "NATO and the Warsaw Pact are negotiating the reduction of their forces in Europe."

That was no off-the-cuff slip at a news conference. That was a document designed to give the Senate the impression that the European Security Conference and the Mutual troop reduction were moving forward "at the same time."

As we have seen, that assurance was deceptive. Last week, President Ford admitted to a group of New York Times correspondents that "there isn't any significant move" on SALT, but held out the vague hope of a possibility of getting some results there.

Here is the Ford-Kissinger test at the Helsinki conference: Will the United States demand from Leonid Brezhnev, the specific payment he promised when we agreed to go to his conference?

No SALT in our eyes, please; if detente is a two-way street, when does the mutual reduction of Soviet and American troops begin?

Another Western secretary needed

Salt Lake Tribune

His stay was unfortunately too brief, but former Wyoming Gov. Stanley Hathaway's appointment as U. S. Secretary of Interior reestablished a tradition that should not go un-interrupted. The job and its responsibilities still call for an administrator familiar with and to the West.

After a grueling confirmation process that some now blame for his subsequent health problems, Mr. Hathaway carried with him to the Interior Secretary's office confidence among western states that his predecessor had squandered. Rogers C. B. Morton, whose appointment after Walter Hicker's firing was greeted with encouraging optimism, proved unable to take decisive action crucial to future developments this side of the Mississippi. Mr. Hathaway, his critics notwithstanding, had the knowledge and insight, from direct experience, to correct the prior deficiencies.

It was, until Mr. Morton's appointment by then-President Nixon, customary to name a westerner Interior Secretary. Primarily because this part of the country contains the largest portion of federally-owned and controlled land. That reason is no less valid today. In fact, it is even more compelling.

Resource development, of which so much new emphasis has congregated, will involve the western states to a steadily advancing degree. Use of public lands in the West prompts increasing questions as population grows and migrates. It's essential that federal policy, through such agencies as Interior, stay current and responsive to these circumstances. A man from the West as Interior Secretary would help fulfill that necessity.

Some members of Utah's congressional delegation contend Mr. Hathaway's troubles were complicated by White House attempts to staff his office with too many political appointees who were either unsympathetic with Mr. Hathaway's views or lacked background sufficient for their jobs. If so, Mr. Hathaway's "depression" is even more understandable. The issues concerning federally-held or supervised land and resources are intricate, sensitive and immensely influential on the quality of life in the West, ultimately the entire nation. They need the attention of people whose qualifications go beyond a capacity to mend political fences.

Mr. Hathaway's resignation can be considered a national loss as well as a profound personal disappointment. There was every indication he intended and was able to make as distinguished a record in the federal cabinet as he had in state government. President Ford can redeem the regrettable turn in these events by choosing another Interior Secretary with the western commitment of a Stan Hathaway. And also by nipping any plans to make the Interior hierarchy merely a collection of political spear-carriers.

Other Opinions

Greensburg (Pa.) Tribune-Review

A well-orchestrated campaign to rehabilitate Communist Cuba in the eyes of Americans is underway in this nation. Objectives are to end the trade embargo, resume diplomatic relations and probably start up a program for economic aid paid for by taxpayers.

Castro and his Soviet overlords are hoping Uncle Sucker will lift the embargo and make loans available for the purchase of goods from the United States. We see no reason American taxpayers should give up the tab for either Castro or the Kremlin.

We have hence piven the disastrous foreign and "imperial" route for three decades now. We should have learned our lesson. The United States has other options. It should hold Cuba as much isolation as possible, denying it aid of any sort until the Soviets tire of this burden. Cuba becomes neutralized through economic impotence and internal strife. A weak Cuba, without Soviet sponsorship, would not be much of a force for disorder in North America.

The launching pad for guerrilla activities aimed at our American cities and already striking New York city is a fast the United States must quit.

We think the American people have Fidel's number too. It would be nice if Dr. Kissinger and our foreign policy-makers could only find it.

San Francisco Chronicle
Unsettling events occurring in Portugal suggest that the Armed Forces Movement which overthrew the longstanding Salazar-Caetano Dictatorship may be fashioning a military dictatorship in the near future.

A military dictatorship is nothing to cheer about, but would under any circumstances be more welcome than a communist military dictatorship.

WASHINGTON — With President Ford off to another summit extravaganza, the boys in the backwoods scheme and dream of other, encounter closer to home.

They scout the angles and sharpen their scorpals for a tough political season next year.

The Democrats know the history of modern summits: They restore no worlds, but they do fatten a President's batting average. Those television pictures showing Ford hobnobbing with Brezhnev in Helsinki and touring the streets of Bonn, Warsaw, Bucharest and Belgrade will be watched by the opposition leaders with more pain than pride. The fast jets expand the reach of a President. If not his power and perception.

The Wall Street Journal gave voice to many troubled thoughts the other day in an editorial titled "Jerry, Don't Go." Despite the disclaimers of Ford and Kissinger, the editorial contended that the documents to be signed at Helsinki will be a formal version of Yalta, without Yalta's redeeming features. "It will add up to an endorsement of Russian control in Eastern Europe," the journal asserted, "and in our view, a conference of a much more modest event" than the congress of Vienna in 1815, as a State Department paper describes it. Then critics are perhaps entitled to ask why should heads of government gather there to announce with their presence a document whose language is so loose and ambiguous as to permit its signatories to read anything into it they so desire?

But Jerry Ford's former neighbors in Grand Rapids care little for the nuances and niceties of Helsinki. They will rejoice in the facade of triumph—or will they?

PETER LISAGOR

House-Majority Leader Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr., the 62-year-old Massachusetts Democrat, enters a demurrer to the belief that Americans are absorbed in foreign policy. A savvy pork-chop politician, O'Neill cites a recent poll in which 60 percent of respondents considered foreign affairs an issue of importance. Their chief concern is unemployment. With inflation, second-hand energy a distant third, according to the poll that O'Neill likes any good Democrat believes to be an accurate reflection of public opinion. Ford's votes of bills to deal with the problems of the jobless, in O'Neill's judgment, will haunt him in the presidential contest next year.

O'Neill is right; Helsinki will scarcely make Ford less vulnerable in 1976. And if the blocs, clus, gestures and sidles he has been receiving through his acute antennae prove not to be false, O'Neill thinks that Teddy Kennedy will be himself available as Ford's opponent in November, 1976.

It could be the wishful reaction of a man deeply attached to the Kennedys stays true in his repeated disavowals of any inclination to run; however, O'Neill likes Hubert Humphrey as a winter-book favorite to emerge from the gray crowd of Democratic hopefuls as the nominee. Meanwhile, as a reminder that politics, not statesmanship, is his trade, the President has coolly declined to rebuke his campaign manager Bo Callaway for saying that Vice President Mondale—Hickel—was apparently displaceable on the 1976 GOP ticket.

Ford—who once endorsed Rocky in unequivocal words—now stands mute as Callaway talks of "a younger man" than the 67-year-old Rockefeller as a running mate, and openly declares that if Rockefeller bowed out, it would help Ford in conservative circles.

So the scheming and the dreaming go on as Ford heads for Helsinki and the imagery it affords him. No Metetrlich will be on hand to dominate the conference on security and co-operation in Europe, but his ghost may hover close by. In his book, "A World Restored," an account of events leading to the Congress of Vienna, Henry Kissinger described Metetrlich as a man whose "genius was instrumental, not creative; he excelled at manipulation, not construction."

Trained in the school of 18th-Century cabinet diplomacy, he preferred the subtle maneuver to the frontal attack, while his rationalism frequently made him mistake a well-purchased manifesto for an accomplished action. Napoleon said of him that he confused policy with intrigue.

To critics of this summit, Helsinki would suit Metetrlich as a good piece of work. To "Tip" O'Neill—both Metetrlich and Helsinki are irrelevant, the real action's in Boston, Detroit, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Los Angeles—and in Grand Rapids.

Limit set on criticism

(Third and last in a series)

The final failure in the standard analysis of the cause of Richard Nixon's undoing lies in the failure to recognize conflicting climates.

It is by no means necessary that Nixon should have done what he did in covering up the crime of Watergate. But there is no system of ethics which can be presumed from a world whose principal feat is death by nitrogen bomb, with reference to which critics of Richard Nixon like the editors of Time can confidently transcribe their case against Nixon.

On one page Mr. White, in his book, "Breach of Faith," will join other reluctant admirers of Nixon to celebrate the "success" of the SALT talks. These were a part of Nixon's "triumphant" reversal of the priorities of the Cold War. Elsewhere he will concede that the SALT talks were greatly jeopardized by the publication in the New York Times of the ultrasecreted fall-back position on which the National Security Council had agreed. Leaving the question: what should be done, under such circumstances? There is not a trace of a hint in White's commendatory and readable book.

White, the nation's highest intelligence man, remains fixated that in 1974 there are 1,000 bombshells and 50,000 bombing threats; and that in the White House on at least one occasion it was thought it might be necessary to rely on the military to guard the civil order. What was to be done about that?

Suddenly we find ourselves thinking about the horrors of Garden Lane, about the terrible excesses of the Huston Plan, about the extracurricular activities of the FBI, or the CIA.

One is forced to wonder: if it had been the militant right-wing in America—the forces, say, of John Birch Society and the Christian anti-Communist Crusade—that had disrupted the classroom, so off the line, picked up arms in arm the factories, in protest against Richard Nixon's trip to Peking, or to Moscow; and if Nixon had then authorized a Huston plan designed to identify the malefactors, a White House intelligence group to penetrate and seek to abort the disruptions of the militant right, and to track down the sources of the leaks published in their papers—how would Nixon's critics have treated him? These questions continue unanswered, and in a leisurely promenade through the traditional political quandaries of a society that seeks at once to be free and to be orderly White acknowledges that Nixon's critics have not come up with an answer merely by ousting Nixon.

Indeed, a sixth sense in White, the journalist and the historian, warns him that Nixon's abuse of the presidency could have a strategically undesirable effect: it could, at a time when we need a strong executive, give us an executive dangerously weakened.

But he fails, one fears, to animate any ethical universal. The Nixon who could look the people of America square in the face and assure them that in the matter of Watergate and the cover-up he was guiltless, could look Chou En-lai in the face, as he did publicly on occasion after occasion in mainland China, and tell him that both governments desired peace and the wellbeing of their people.

The Richard Nixon whose rhetorical hypocrisies were indispensible to the phony genuineness between him and Brezhnev was the same Nixon whose hypocrisies at home brought the disdain of his critics and, finally, of the majority of the people.

In an age when one can breeze through the classrooms and parlors of cosmopolitan America and with impunity admire the work of Chou En-lai and Mao Tse-tung, we cannot successfully isolate the sin of Richard Nixon, beyond saying that he was—clumsy, and tasteless.

That is bad enough, but no further than that are Nixon's critics entitled to go. © Washington Star Syndicate

Editor, Times-News:
Mr. George Forscher has requested that demand be made upon you pursuant to Section 6712 of the Idaho Code for retractions concerning the printing in your paper on Sunday, July 20, 1975, of a certain letter to the Editor from Ian Coriel, which is editorialized by your paper as "Dictator Hit".

The statement complained of pursuant to Idaho Code 6712 is as follows:
"Dictator Hit"
Editor, Times-News:
What's with this George Forscher running Twin Falls County and Twin Falls City business?

"I'm speaking about this regional airport. What's it to him. This guy would do well to have a closed mouth and an open mind and leave this airport bill alone.
Hell, he lives in Burley and trying to run Twin Falls business.

He's been in this country a few years and now he wants to be a dictator in our local Twin Falls politics.

Hit your own damn business, Herr Forscher!
Ian Coriel
Twin Falls

At the time of this publication your newspaper was well aware that Mr. Forscher was Chairman of the Regional Airport Board, an elected official, and that he spoke as Chairman for the Regional Airport Board and that portion of the publication indicating he had been in the country but a few years and wanted to be a dictator were entirely false and untrue and were written in a way as to question his loyalty to the United States, to Idaho and Magic Valley all of which are entirely false.

As I am sure you are aware, Mr. Forscher, immigrated from many apartments three (3) years ago and after coming to the United States not only became a citizen, but brought his family to this country. As you may or may not be aware of Mr. Forscher during the Second World War even though just a teenager worked actively with the Allied and the United States Forces in the war against the German Dictator, Hitler. Since coming to the United States as a young man, he has continued to serve the United States and still serves active duty in the Pentagon for the United States Armed Forces each year. He has also donated many hours to not only the communities in Magic Valley but the State of Idaho in various positions and has been profiled in the news media as a distinguished citizen of Idaho.

I am sure there are few people in Idaho who can match Mr. Forscher's record of active opposition against a dictatorship and active support of the democracy of the United States.
Your false characterization of him in the headline as a Dictator is not only libelous per se, but to so characterize him in view of his background and service to this country is even more offensive.

This letter will serve as official notice pursuant to Section 6712 of the Idaho Code for correction of (1) inference that Mr. Forscher is trying to run the business of Twin Falls County or Twin Falls City; (2) that he is a dictator; (3) that he has only been in the United States for a few years; and (4) that his loyalty to this Country, State and Magic Valley is anything less than 100 per cent.

GOODMAN, DUFF & CHISOLM, (c) LARRY R. DUFF RUPERT

Editor's note:
The Times-News does not believe that Mr. Forscher is trying to run the business of Twin Falls County or Twin Falls City; that he is a dictator; that he has only been in the United States for a few years, or that he is in any way disloyal to the nation, state or local area. Any reader inference of such would be unwarranted.

The Times-News believes in free and open discussion of all sides of important public issues and the often controversial work of public officials. The letter was printed by the paper in that spirit and certainly was not an effort of the newspaper to defame or damage Mr. Forscher.
As readers know, the Times-News does not necessarily agree with the content of letters it prints. Letters reflect reader opinion, not the newspaper's. Were the paper to print only letters with which

It agreed it would be severely limiting public discussion and would, in effect, be establishing a kind of newspaper "dictatorship."
Like Mr. Forscher, we abhor dictatorships of all kinds, including those which would inhibit open discussion of public issues and the actions of public officials.
We also feel the Times-News itself should not be above criticism, and regularly print letters critical of the paper.
We believe both Mr. Forscher, as a public official, and the "newspaper" should recognize the important role of public criticism in the democratic process.

CHICAGO (UPI) — A burglar battered his way into a jewelry store while hundreds of persons milling around a theater looked the other way, then casually started filling his bag with jewelry, police said Monday.
Not one of the potential witnesses bothered to call police.
The burglary was well in progress when the thief broke through an inside door, setting off a silent burglar alarm that brought police to the scene.
Officers said they found Michael Mastro, 22, inside with a bag filled with $3,300 worth of jewelry. "The street was packed with people. There were telephones all over the place. The only thing needed to stop the guy was for someone to drop a dime," said one policeman.
"But we received no calls. Just the alarm."

WASHINGTON — President Ford, bringing a long controversy to a close, has ordered the Navy to halt its bombing training runs on the tiny Puerto Rican island of Culebra by Sept. 30.
Ford made the decision last Friday, the day before he left for a 10-day trip to Europe, according to administration sources.
The Culebra issue has been simmering almost from the time during World War II that the Navy began using the island inhabited by 900 people for anti-air training activities.

Andrus backs 2 for post

HOUSE (UPI) Gov. Cecil D. Andrus urged President Ford by wire today to consider former Oregon Gov. Tom McCall or former Idaho Rep. Orval Hansen as his next secretary of Interior.

"As a former governor, Tom McCall commands the respect and admiration of all his fellow governors for his knowledge and expertise of the subjects which Interior deals with," Andrus said.

"Tom is considered as a moderate Republican which I think would be to your advantage," Andrus, a Democrat, added. "His total understanding of the problems of the western U.S. would be to everyone's advantage."

"If for some reason Governor McCall is not considered for this post, I would certainly recommend to you for your consideration a former colleague of yours in the U.S. House of Representatives, former Congressman Orval Hansen."

"If you are looking for an interim appointment which would be methodically go about conducting the important duties in the manner it should be run, I urge you to consider either Tom McCall or Orval Hansen."

Andrus wired his fellow western governors that he was recommending McCall for the post and asked them to wire their congressional delegations immediately if they can support him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I have had two cataract operations, the last one three months ago. I would like to know what I should avoid. Are people like myself more prone to getting detached retinas or hemorrhages of blood vessels in the eyes?
I've always been a mechanic, and have done other hard work, so I'm at a loss as to what I can do. I also lift heavy material quite a bit.
I'm in my 50s, so I have to work. — F.R.

Persons who have had cataract surgery are more prone to both retinal detachment and hemorrhaging. This is why heavy work should not be resumed for at least two months after surgery. The main reason, of course, is to avoid bumping the head.

If, after three months, there have been no complications, the main reason why you should not go back to work: You will have to learn to be cautious about how you work. However, since your duties may be rather strenuous, I think you should be extra watchful during this period, and have periodic examinations. These will detect any budding problems and also serve to reassure you about your condition.

Straining, lifting heavy objects, etc., is not advisable. Stay off ladders, since your vision may not yet be completely adjusted. A fall could be dangerous.

Proper care essential

Dr. George Thosteson
I'm sorry I can't give you the further assurance you desire. The best of gifts. While thankfulness is not going to keep bread on your table, the fact that you have your eyesight will allow you to continue working, perhaps at some less strenuous employment in your general field.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
What is ketosis? Is there a cure for this disease? Does ketosis cause bad breath? — V.B.

Ketosis is a chemical abnormality caused by an incomplete combustion of fats in the body.

Two acids are formed as a result of this, beta hydroxybutyric acid and acetoacetic acid.

These are what we refer to as ketone bodies. One result can be a fruity odor of the breath. It is a common complication of uncontrolled diabetes, and is usually alleviated by attention to proper diet and insulin therapy for the diabetic person. Small children are prone to ketosis if they have a high fever and are dehydrated. Fluids and candy help this.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I would like to know about a drug I can get for people who have lost their sense of taste.
About two years ago I had my upper and part of my lower teeth extracted. Since then I have lost my sense of taste. My appetite is very bad. I am 72. — W.K.

Assuming you have acquired dentures to replace your extracted teeth, I might suggest you look to them as a possible cause of your loss of taste. I am told by a manufacturer of dentures that an improperly fitted set, especially of the uppers, can have a definite effect on taste reception.

Often a small grinding down of the upper palate fixture can correct this problem.

However, at your age you can expect some diminishment of factory nerve as well as taste buds functioning. Smell, too, can be a part of taste sensation.

About the medication: zinc sulphate has been used in capsules for this. It should be taken after a meal to lessen stomach irritation. It may or may not work for you. It has to be prescribed.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know someone who is, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, P.O. your side holds all the aces. This makes it possible for the partner of the Blackwood to take charge when he has the right cards. It wasn't hard for North to count to 13 tricks after South's bid of four and five notrump. Then since the game was match points, North bid the grand slam in notrump. Ten points means nothing in rubber bridge but to duplicate it may mean the difference between a good score and a top.

Ask the Jacobys

I responded one notrump to my partner's spade opening. He jumped to three spades. What should I bid with:
▲ 8 ♠ X X ▲ 10 ♠ X X X
▲ 6 ♠ X X X

We would bid four spades. Our seven high card points are in the form of an ace and a king and even our doubton heart might be worth a trick. Our second choice is to pass and we definitely would not rebid three notrump.

Miss Hendrix, Rev. Burchfield recite promises in TF rites

TWIN FALLS — Connie Lynn Hendrix and Rev. Don Burchfield were married in a candlelight ceremony July 18 at the Twin Falls First Church of the Nazarene.

Rev. Gary Skagerberg, Castle Rock, Wash., performed the double-ring ceremony before brass candleabra accented with blue bows and arrangements of blue and white chrysanthemums. The candle arch was entwined with greenery and white chrysanthemums. The pews were marked with blue bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Hendrix, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Burchfield, Reno, Nev.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white floor-length gown of satin and lace fashioned with a fitted bodice with a scalloped neckline outlined with beading and long lace. Her train was accented with scalloped lace on each side.

Her veil of english-nylon illusion net was held by a lace cap trimmed with seed pearls.

She carried a colonial bouquet of white roses, white carnations and lily of the valley accented with blue net and tied with blue ribbons.

Before giving his daughter in marriage, the bride's father sang "Just a Little While Ago." After the wedding music was provided by Rev. Steve Ford, soloist, and Mrs. Doyle Mason, organist.

Mrs. Lex Hoyer, Twin Falls, was matron of honor. Becky Hendrix, Gooding, and Kym

Snyder, Twin Falls, were bridesmaids. Mrs. Jim Jensen was in charge of the guest book. Julie Ann Fraley was flower girl.

Rev. Hal Deboard, Connell, Wash., was best man. Groomsman were Jim Jensen, Twin Falls, and Lennie Hendrix, U.S.A.F. Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo., brother of the bride. Kevin Rosenau and Greg Snyder, both Twin Falls, were ushers and served as candlelighters. Fred Skagerberg was ringbearer.

The couple was honored at a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered cake bed with white and decorated with blue and white flowers. The table was covered with white lace and floor-length skirts with blue lining.

The backdrop was an austrian drape trimmed with blue swags and greenery.

Guests were seated at round tables covered with white lace cloths. The centerpieces were white chrysanthemums in small vases.

Mrs. Byron Snyder, Mrs. Ray Hendrix, Mrs. Ralph Andree, and Mrs. Gary Skagerberg attended the serving table. Others assisting were Mrs. Edna Egner, Mrs. Charles Harris, Mrs. Lyle Wingard and Mrs. Clytie Lowry.

Assisting with gifts were Mrs. Rudy Loder, Mrs. Ted Baughman, Connie Johnson and Cheri Mason. Sandy Snyder and Kurt Rosenau were gift bearers.

The bride was honored at a shower given by Mrs. Lex Hoyer and Mrs. Marvin Kerbs.

Friends of the couple were hosts for a rehearsal dinner given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fraley.

Out-of-town guests attended from Buhl, Fler, Kimberly, Gooding, Wendell, Jerome, Melba and American Falls, Reno, Nev., Kent, Wash., Castle Rock, Wash., Connell, Wash., and Templeton and San Jose, Calif.

After a short honeymoon trip to Sun Valley, the couple will reside at 758 West Roosevelt, Gooding, Ariz., where the bride is employed as a teacher of the Coolidge Church of the Nazarene.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A woman's libber (obviously) wanted to know why no woman's face had ever appeared on a U.S. dollar bill or any other denomination. You polled 12 women, asking how they felt about it. Nine agreed that it was time a woman got her face on paper money, two said they didn't care one way or the other and one said, "I don't want to get my face on any folding money, but I'd like to get my HANDS on some."
Abby, didn't you know that Martha Washington's picture appeared on the silver-dollar certificate in 1891?
T.O.W.

DEAR T.O.W.: I do now. I also learned from my readers that Martha wasn't the first female to have her face on folding money. Pocahontas appeared on a $20 National Bank Note in 1875.

Martha not first

DEAR ABBY: My 73-year-old husband has been providing my best friend (she is 71) with friendship, affection and all manner of looking after since his husband's death 15 months ago.
She has been my friend for 38 years. Her husband, also an old friend, was an invalid for several years, and when he died, she needed the strong shoulder of a man. My husband volunteered with my full approval.
I slowly came to realize that my husband was spending more time with my friend than with me.
He admitted that he had grown very fond of her and enjoyed being "needed." Then she confessed to having developed a deep affection for my husband. Of course, they both said they "love me," and don't want to hurt me.
She advised me to "stay put" until we could work things out.
Does this happen frequently in the geriatric set? And what should I do? I am 72. This is my second marriage. It has lasted 30 years—Thirty years ago, I was the other woman. Irons: jst 11?

HARD STAYING

DEAR HARD: What was your husband trying to catch a few moonbeams in the twilight of his life. Stay put, and he'll probably get things in focus again.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15, and my parents are in the process of getting a divorce.
I can understand their wanting to be apart because they fought when they were together, but the pressure I get from both is something terrible.
Each puts down the other one, and both try to find out who the other is seeing.
Please help me. How can I tell them to get off my back?

IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Tell them both that you don't want to report to either one. And that should settle it.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.
Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Buster squirrel finds home

FILER — "Buster" the squirrel is quite at home on the W. A. Grieve farm south of Filer and is becoming a pet of both Grieve and the Dan Lierman family who live on the place.

The small bushy-tailed animal makes his busy way up and down the tall trees on the place and is hiding nuts for the winter. Everyone loves him, but they are mystified as to how he got there. Tree squirrels are numerous in Boise and Burley and have been reported this year in Buhl and Filer but a lone one in a grove of trees in the country is an oddity.

The Liermans think perhaps the little squirrel crawled into the vehicle of a Green Giant Irrigator and unsuspectingly rode out to their place in that manner, as friends have told them of another case where a squirrel crawled into an open car and jumped out when the car owner arrived home.

However Buster got there the Liermans are glad he did and are becoming fond of him, especially their two sons, Chris, 9, and Greg, 3. Each day they place a daily ration of corn, peanuts, popcorn and other goodies at the base of a large tree where Buster is frequently seen, and landlord Grieve contributes pecans and other delicacies.

Now the whole neighborhood is hoping a trail for Buster will show up so there can be some baby squirrels. People who have squirrels in their trees report the energetic little animals become quite tame and can be trained to eat out of people's hands or frisk their pockets for food.

Chore for tot

GREGORY LIERMAN, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Lierman, Filer, has the daily chore of placing peanuts or other nuts at the foot of a large tree for "Buster," their tree squirrel. The family is mystified where the squirrel came from but he is fast becoming a family pet.

Using "very conservative" estimates, Sandy said he figured the total cost of these improvements at $50,000 in "actual cash investment" without including the "tremendous amount of labor" used in putting them in.

When he said the ranchers with permits on the allotment each provide about 17 days of labor during the year to watch the cattle and make improvements up. This labor and improvements, he said, amount to $3 per AUM.

On private grazing land, Sandy maintained none of these costs, only current. He said he rarely curbed on private land at times and the owner looks after the cattle and furnishes the water.

Furthermore, Sandy said, the cattle gain more weight on the irrigated private pasture than on sparsely grassed BLM lands where cattle have to work harder to find food.

Steer calves which were brought up on home pasture weighed 322 pounds while the same aged steer calves he put out on federal desert land only weighed 453 pounds at the time he sold them, he said. 139 pounds even at 90 cents (per pound) — that's no small value," he said.

Sandy said his bull investment recently stood at $25 per cow on the federal desert lands and $20 per cow on the private pasture since more bulls are needed to mate with the cows on the open desert lands. Even then, he said at the end of this April, only 76 per cent of his cows on the federal land had calved whereas 100 per cent of the cows on his own ranchland had calved.

When all these costs are taken into account, he said, grazing animals on the federal land is no special bargain. "The one value that federal ranches has is its availability. It's there. We've built into it," he said.

"The value of the privilege on the private market, he said, represents the investment the ranchers have put into the land. He said the privileges commonly sold for $25 per AUM in the past, but are not selling that high now because of recent drops in cattle prices.

Cliff Stutzman, another Shoshone rancher, also said that when all the ranchers' investments and the lower weight gain on calves is considered, a fair price is now being paid for federal grazing land.

Stutzman admitted, however, that the rancher who holds federal grazing privileges "to a certain extent" has an advantage to the rancher who has to lease private lands.

But he wondered whether small ranchers who have to lease private land will be able to stay in business with low cattle prices.

"I think the price right now (on federal grazing land) is all right," he said. If it needs to be adjusted, he said, this should be done in relation to the price of cattle on the market.

Laird Noh, Twin Falls, director of the Idaho Wool Growers Association took another tack.

Noh said the federal government could charge more for its grazing land. But he said, the impact would be disastrous for small, family ranch operations and would lead to unused and abused land and to meat shortages in the store.

If the land were put up for bid there would be an incentive for the winner of the bid to get as much out of the land as he can" while he has the lease, he said. That, Noh maintained, would lead to overgrazing.

"What we really ought to be doing if we want to improve and really care for those lands is see that tenure is kept up," Noh said.

Keeping the grazing privilege in the hands of the same person, he maintained, would mean that one person would have an interest in maintaining the land.

Noh said that the fact that the grazing privilege sells for money "does mean that it's cheaper to rent from the government" than to run cows on private pasture.

But, he said, that the government is not subsidizing one segment of the cattle industry to the detriment of another. He said every operator has the right to buy grazing privileges himself and that any cost advantage for the privilege holder is wiped out because of the price he has to pay for buying the privilege.

If the government charged a high enough price for all its lands, the value of the grazing privilege would be taken away, Noh said.

But, he said, the value of the privilege is not widely along with the value of the particular piece of federal land it is attached to.

"You can't eliminate the value of those grazing privileges unless you raise the fee so high that you eliminate the value of the most valuable grazing privilege," Noh said.

If those high fees were charged it would mean that much federal land would go unused and that many small ranchers who could not afford the costs would go out of business, he said.

Noh said that the higher government is planning to charge does not take into account the money many ranchers have paid for their grazing privileges.

The higher federal fee, he maintained, "on the average will eliminate the investment that the grazers have in their privileges" and "will wipe out a lot of family operations."

Noh said, however, that Congress now is considering changing the whole Taylor Grazing Act and that the future of grazing fees is not settled.

Soviet grain purchases worry Fed chief Burns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur F. Burns is frightened by the amount of U.S. grain the Soviet Union is planning to buy, but the Agriculture Department's top economist is not.

Burns testified Tuesday before Congress' Joint Economic Committee that he expects the latest round of grain sales to the Russians to cause a sizable increase in American food prices. He said he has seen estimates of the amount the Soviets plan to buy "that frighten me."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said the sale could effectively take "money out of the pocket of every worker," to which Burns agreed. "I don't see any escape from that conclusion."

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz previously described as "minimal" the effect of the Soviet grain purchases on U.S. food prices. Tuesday, USDA chief economist Don Paarlberg was asked to respond to Burns' fear.

Based on actual and estimated future sales to the Russians measured against potential American grain production this year, Paarlberg said he hasn't "seen anything that frightens me yet."

Paarlberg said a regular reestimation of the food price outlook is now being made and he cannot predict its outcome. But in a forecast last week, the department said 1975 average food prices would probably go slightly beyond the 6 to 8 per cent advance over 1974 predicted earlier.

Here, taking wheat for example, are the estimates of U.S. production measured against export and reserve needs.

The USDA is forecasting record harvest of 2.2 billion bushels and with a carryover of 319 million bushels of reserve wheat, "that" would bring the total U.S. supply for the current marketing year to 2.5 billion bushels.

From that supply, American consumers are expected to need somewhere between 784 and 800 million bushels, leaving about 1.7 billion bushels the export or storage in reserve against future needs.

Wheat exports, including 165 million bushels now destined for Russia, are expected to run close to 1.2 billion bushels. That figure, according to USDA estimates, would leave a domestic reserve next July of between 523 and 648 million bushels, compared with this year's 319 million

Nixon bowed to Soviets in 1973, admiral claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union threatened to send troops into the 1973 Middle East war unless the United States stopped Israel from destroying an elite Egyptian unit, Adm. Elmo Zumwalt said today.

President Nixon accepted the Russians' terms because the Soviet navy outnumbered the U.S. 6th Fleet by a factor of 3-2 and could bring overwhelming air power to bear, said Zumwalt, chief of naval operations at the time. It was the first time anyone in a position of authority publicly discussed the matter.

Leonid Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, sent the note to Nixon Oct. 24, 1973.

"The letter was savage, even by normally harsh diplomatic standards," Zumwalt told 49 in a telephone interview. "It didn't even start 'Dear Mr. President.' It just said 'Mr. President.' It reminded me of notes we sent the Soviets during the Cuban missile crisis, when we felt the security of the United States was at stake."

On Oct. 6, Egyptian troops crossed the Suez Canal into the Israeli-held Sinai. Israeli tanks eventually crossed the canal and cut off the Egyptian 3rd Army. Israel apparently intended to hold the troops hostage as a bargaining counter. A ceasefire was declared Oct. 24. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat asked the United States, which was supplying Israeli forces, and the Soviet Union, which was helping the Arabs, to supervise the cease-fire.

"Then the letter arrived.

"The letter made it clear that unless the Israelis were forced to end their encirclement of the 3rd Army, the Soviets would go in and free them," Zumwalt said.

The next day, Oct. 25, Nixon ordered a worldwide alert of the 22 million U.S. troops. Zumwalt replied "absolutely" when asked if the alert was related to the Russian note.

Zumwalt said the Soviets "had much greater capability to bring into the area." They had 98 ships compared with roughly 65 for the United States and were able to use air fields in Egypt, Syria, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union. U-58 planes could land only on 6th Fleet carriers.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said at the time the alert was "precautionary." He told reporters: "we do not now consider ourselves in a confrontation with the Soviet Union."

"He said he would explain within a week or a week and a half," Zumwalt said. "He never said anything about it."

Buhl studies medic plan

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

BUHL — Buhl committee members searching for a doctor for Buhl are considering a proposal from a Utah firm to fly in doctors to provide part-time medical coverage.

The proposal was made public by Robert E. Bailey, chairman of a committee to find a new doctor, in response to a question at this week's Buhl Chamber of Commerce meeting.

Four representatives from Med Air of Roy, Utah, recently made a proposal to the Buhl community group to provide medical services by flying in doctors for several days per week.

The proposal would require the community to provide rent-free facilities, which "need not be fancy," according to a member of the doctor committee.

The Utah firm provides such "flying services" to several rural communities, including Duchesne, Utah, and Big Piney, Wyo. The firm is headed by Robert J. Lewis, who told the Times-News the firm was founded recently.

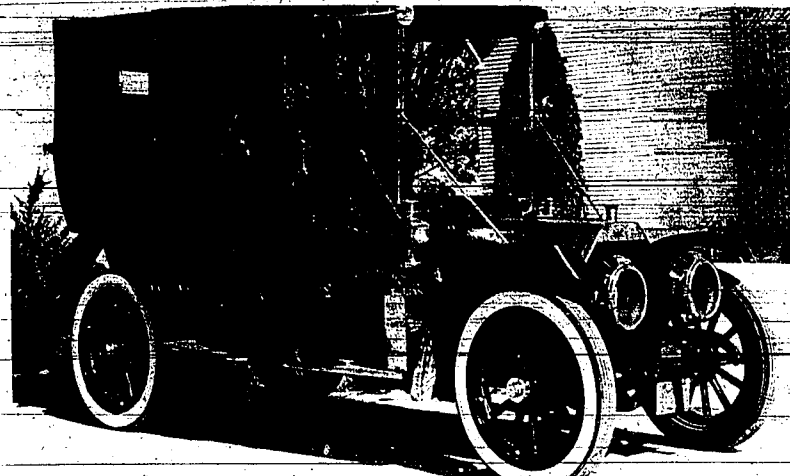

He said some of the company officials also are associated with General Medical Corp., also at Roy, an Ogden suburb.

The Utah firm would provide all medical equipment, but the community would be expected to provide the building and office furniture.

The doctors would not handle hospital cases, so if a patient were hospitalized he would still need the services of another doctor, committee members said.

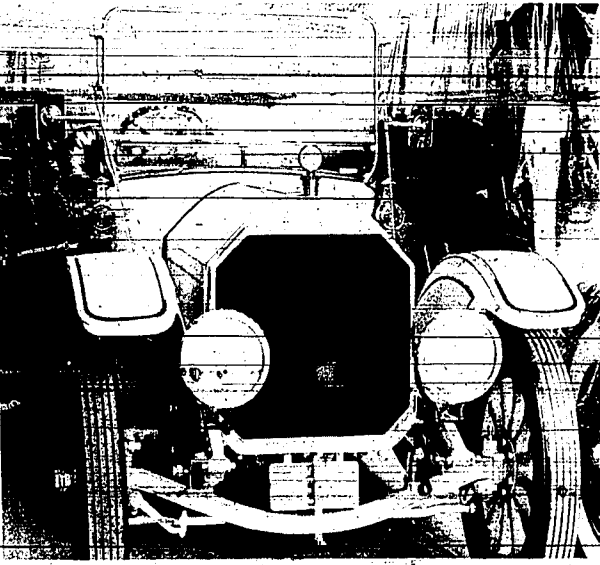

Committee members said it was not yet certain how many days a week the medical coverage would be provided.

One committee member, who was not identified, said the offer should get within the near future.

TF school aides OK bid for all-weather track

TWIN FALLS — School board trustees Tuesday accepted the low bid of $45,589 by Beymer Paving Co., Inc., Twin Falls, for a new all-weather track at the high school.

Other bids submitted for the track were $52,700 by Bannock Paving Co. Inc., Pocatello, and $54,271 by Gordon Paving Co. Inc., Twin Falls.

The cost of the track was originally estimated at about $51,000 by former athletic director Bob Donnelly.

The board also heard a proposal by representatives of the Xerox Corp. for the purchase of a copy machine for the high school. Purchase price would be $21,135. Monthly rental on the machine, which has been used at the high school since last fall, has been about $633.

Frank Charlton, high school principal, told trustees the machine was a very effective educational tool. The Xerox representatives recommended the outright purchase plan as being the most suited to the school's purpose. The machine could last up to 20 years, they told the board.

Board members took no action. If they decide to purchase a copy machine, they must first call for bids, as legally required for a purchase of that amount.

In other business, the board:

- Accepted a milk bid from Young's Dairy Produce Co., and Ida-Gem Dairy, Inc., of 97 cents for 1/2 pint homogenized plain milk and 11 cents for chocolate milk.
- Started legal proceedings for the sale of Washington School. Supt. George Sluadher told trustees two firms were interested and one potential buyer has said "he's going to buy it no matter what it costs." Building appraisals are due this week.
- Took no action on a request by Paul Epperson, athlete director, for a salary increase for coach Reid Pfefferle.
- Hired 10 new kindergarten teachers, among others. Sluadher informed the board that 324 children were pre-registered for the program, with about 400 expected to attend the classes.

Hazelton man faces charge

JEROME — One man is in custody and charged with assault with intent to commit murder and another in a Burley hospital following a stabbing.

Sheriff Eliza Hall said Gbadaoupe Andrade, 25, a resident of the Hazelton Labor Camp, was bound over to district court in Jerome County Tuesday afternoon and is in custody in lieu of $10,000.

He is charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder in connection with the stabbing Monday night of Gustavo Espinosa, also a resident of the Hazelton Labor Camp. Andrade is also being held for immigration authorities on suspicion of being an illegal alien.

Sheriff Hall said the stabbing allegedly occurred following an argument between the two men near a telephone booth in Eden shortly before midnight Monday. He said Andrade was arrested by Burley police in Burley after he accompanied the victim and the brother-in-law of the victim to the Burley hospital.

Officers reported the suspect asked for a ride to Burley with the other man and fell asleep in the back seat of the vehicle. He was turned over to police after Escorcarer was taken to the hospital. Escorcarer was listed in good condition at Cassia Memorial Hospital this morning.

TF reconsiders plan

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County is reconsidering its proposed $1 million addition to the county judicial building.

Bids on the second story addition are supposed to be decided on Friday, but according to commissioner Ann Cover the county may decide to postpone consideration of the bids.

At an informal joint meeting Monday between city councilmen and county commissioners several persons called for exploring alternatives to the proposed addition.

"As a taxpayer I rent the county commission spending $11 million to put a second story" on the present facility, councilman Steve Lincoln said.

Mayor Winston Jones said the proposed two-story building is "going to be outdated as far as parking space is concerned as soon as it's built."

Councilman Leon Smith said a joint facility is "the only practical way to go."

Mrs. Cover said the commission will have to make a definite decision Tuesday by Friday. She said the decision will hinge on whether there is enough space and money for a joint decision and whether senior district Judge Theron Ward will abide any delay.

State deputy mine inspector, Milt Fife, said today the mine was in Parker Gulch.

The small group was searching for souvenirs, Foulk said, in the home. He said the supervisors and the kids did not realize they were handling dynamite.

Inspector Fife said the dynamite had a 1949 date on the box found inside the shaft. The sticks of dynamite were filled with gelatine with a 40 per cent strength of nitroglycerine, according to writing on the box.

Sheriff's deputies and Fife supervised the burning of 50 more sticks of dynamite in and around the shaft Tuesday.

Fife said he is attempting to find the owner of the mine. He does not know yet the name of the owner or if the mine has been abandoned.

Fife said liability for the dynamite could be placed on the owner of the shaft or on the U.S. Forest Service if the mine has been abandoned.

Originally the mine was on forest service property, he said. If the mine has been abandoned, the mine reverts back to the forest service. However, if the mine is still active, the group could have been trespassing on private property, Fife said.

Dynamite given to authorities

ELKHORN — Dynamite found at an abandoned mine near Elkhorn last week by participants in a tennis camp has been turned in to authorities, the Blaine County sheriff said today.

Sheriff Orville Drexler said today the eight pieces of dynamite carried off by youngsters in John Gardiner's Tennis Ranch Camp have been found.

Bill Foulk, coordinator of the tennis program, said the small pieces of dynamite had been carried by various participants back to California, Salt Lake City and Indiana.

Foulk said the dynamite was found during a supervised hike to a deteriorated cabin about two miles east of the tennis camp, near an old mine shaft.

State deputy mine inspector, Milt Fife, said today the mine was in Parker Gulch.

The small group was searching for souvenirs, Foulk said, in the home. He said the supervisors and the kids did not realize they were handling dynamite.

Inspector Fife said the dynamite had a 1949 date on the box found inside the shaft. The sticks of dynamite were filled with gelatine with a 40 per cent strength of nitroglycerine, according to writing on the box.

Sheriff's deputies and Fife supervised the burning of 50 more sticks of dynamite in and around the shaft Tuesday.

Fife said liability for the dynamite could be placed on the owner of the shaft or on the U.S. Forest Service if the mine has been abandoned.

Originally the mine was on forest service property, he said. If the mine has been abandoned, the mine reverts back to the forest service. However, if the mine is still active, the group could have been trespassing on private property, Fife said.

Burley project approved

By DAVE BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A major renovation program for the Burley Irrigation District's canal system was barely approved in a special election Tuesday night.

The $15 million program was decided by seven votes.

Two-thirds of the district's voting members had to approve the project. The unofficial tally was 235 in favor with 137 opposed. The vote will not be official until the BID board of directors canvasses the vote Monday.

BID manager Burdell Curtis said the next move is up to Congress, which has to appropriate the money for rehabilitation. Curtis said all Idaho's congressmen will support the appropriation and he expects reconstruction to begin this winter.

The appropriation will be an interest-free loan repayable over a period of 15 years. Curtis said. Repayment begins two years after the project is completed.

The rehabilitation project includes replacing old switch gear, installing a new electrical system to prevent arcing, installing automatic gates in canals and re-winding pump motors.

Currently, the district is short of water because a major pump motor was decommissioned from a lightning strike and faulty switching equipment.

Curtis has said the outage might have been prevented had the new control panels been installed. The panels will protect pump motors from sudden surges of power, he said.

Oregon, Gem hit by high wind storm

ONTARIO, Ore. (UPI) — Gale force winds cut a swath through Eastern Oregon and Southwestern Idaho Tuesday afternoon, causing perhaps millions of dollars of damage in lasting but about 20 minutes.

The only injury reported was to an eight-year-old boy in Payette, Idaho, who sustained cuts and bruises when the wind pushed him into the path of a car.

The Idaho Statesman in Boise reported that workmen at the Gayway Bowling Alley in Fruitland, Idaho, narrowly escaped injury when the wind tore out a 50-foot section of the wall, tossing eight-pound chisel blocks into the air.

"We were working behind the bowling pin machines in the alley when the light went out," said Min Nakamura, one of the workmen. "We couldn't see to work, so we walked up to the front of the building."

"Just as we got there the wind came and lifted the corner of the building where we had been," the National Weather Service at Boise said. The winds, estimated at between 50 and 60 miles per hour, but unofficially up to 80, cut a swath 60 miles wide from north of Emmett, Idaho, to the Owyhee Mountains in both states. The wind whipped trees, caused power and telephone outages, upset camper trailers and mobile homes.

An empty trailer house, measuring 16 by 70 feet, rolled over one and a half times in a residential area five miles south of Ontario.

"I looked up and saw that thing rolling toward us. You wouldn't believe the feeling I had at that moment," said Mrs. Ted Squires.

She said that her husband had slept in the camper the previous night.

Andy Sloan, 22, a Partland truck driver, found himself hanging from his seat belt when winds pushed his semitrailer tractor rig over on its side at the westbound ramp onto Interstate 80N at Ontario.

"I was doing alright in this wind as long as I could move slowly, but I had to stop for traffic in front of me," he said. "The wind just pushed the rig over onto the guardrail."

Two Mountain States Bell Telephone Co. crews were sent to Plymouth, Idaho, to repair long distance lines when 20 telephone poles were blown down.

Chris Moore, editor of The Daily Argus Observer, said wind demolished most of the hangars at the Ontario Airport, ripped roofs off buildings and toppled hundreds of trees. She said power went off at 3:19 p.m., and was still out an hour after the storm.

An emergency cleanup was used in the part of entry right off the freeway in Ontario. The wind dumped two mobile homes in the freeway entry ramp at Ontario.

Authorities were unable to give an immediate assessment of damage, she said, although it could run into the millions of dollars.

City Manager Jack Collins said power was out in the entire city of Ontario, she said. "Traffic-wise everything has ground to a halt. The National Guard has been pressed into service."

Telephone cables and electric lines are down in innumerable places creating a hazard. Water is standing in every small depression, running a foot deep in borrow pits. Traffic is expected to be stuck in some highway areas because of zero visibility.

NFO plans victory fete

BURLEY — Magic Valley NFO members will celebrate the organization's recent victory over the Securities and Exchange Commission with a special program Friday night in Burley.

An attempt by the SEC to turn the NFO's assets over to receivership was turned down by a federal court last week.

Ralph Maughan, Rupert, said all Magic Valley farmers and their wives are invited to attend a no-host buffet and meeting of the NFO at the Ponderosa in Burley. The event is scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday in the Pomerelle Room.

Maughan said the NFO's top commodity chairman from throughout Southern Idaho will be on hand to discuss the various crops and products of the members.

A report will be made on the NFO's victory last week over the SEC, Maughan said.

If you drink a little wine with your meals, you'll probably lose weight. Or so some researchers at the University of California now believe. They isolated for 75 days a batch of volunteers who heretically offered to imbibe of the grape while remaining on closely supervised diets. When the alcohol was removed from the wine, they still lost weight. But when water was substituted for the wine, they began to pick up pounds again, or at least stopped losing them.

A. No, but they all dig underground dens.

Valley Beans Corn, sugar, pork belly futures up; spuds drop

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market opened mixed Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, a 2.47-point loser Tuesday, was off 0.06 to 824.78 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 214 to 104 among the 456 issues crossing the tape.

Analysts said investors feared a surge of inflation could impede the economic recovery, while Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, said advisers to the board were "tendering solid healthy" Tuesday after Burns, testifying before the Joint Economic Committee, warned the recent Russian grain deal could be inflationary as the one in 1974.

He further warned the Wholesale Price Index for July would show an uncomfortably sharp increase following the Labor Department's report last week the Consumer Price Index rose at 8.6 per cent annual rate in June.

The Burns statistics killed an early rally Tuesday which followed the Commerce Department's report its leading economic indicators rose 1.3 per cent in June; the fourth consecutive monthly rise. Also, the nation had a record $354 billion trade surplus in the second quarter, the department said.

Courtesy Sinclair & Co. CHICAGO — Corn, sugar and pork belly futures advanced early strength faded under profit taking and commercial selling.

Idaho russet potato futures dropped 9 cents on the May 1976 option, closing at 9.25 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said Maine potato futures closed 15 to 20 cents down on a trade of 5,699 contracts.

Traders ascribed much of the day's heavy selling to declines in the cash market.

Specialized trading selling was responsible for a decline which hit a low of 8.55 basis May in the afternoon.

Corn futures opened with 10 cent advances but combined profit-taking and commercial hedging sold off gains.

Weather and its adverse effects on the crop was the major factor in trading all day. At the close, corn was 5 1/2 to 10 cents higher. Chicago cash basis was down a nickel, with Soybeans 15 cents higher September and 10 cents higher 20 over September.

Wheat futures declined 8 to 10 1/2 cents with hedging offsetting export purchases. With a record wheat crop as well as recent price gains attributed to weather concerns, corn and beans advanced.

Chicago and Gulf cash prices were steady.

Soybeans and soy oil both advanced, with speculative buying and commercial support aiding major market factors.

Oils recorded 150 point limit gains at the start and ended 50 to 110 points higher August through January. Beans closed 10 to 14 1/2 cents higher after some advances exceeding 23 cents.

Meal posted a mixed pattern after early strength faded under profit taking and commercial selling.

The world sugar market posted 5,225 contracts and at the end of trading were 27 cent higher with switching accounting for much of the volume. Sugar 12 futures were traded and nominally settled 30 cent higher.

The world spot price was set half a cent higher at 20 cents a pound. The domestic spot price was also higher at a cent at 23.25 cents a pound.

Pork bellies advanced the limit the third straight day, posting contract highs across the board. Despite closing at an all time record high of 97.00, August bellies fell a cent, discount to cash as market-type bellies reached 95.00. Some traders see bellies remaining strong until long marketings increase after Labor Day.

"Lower" wholesale demand for easier live prices sparked carryover selling which drove live cattle futures lower for the second straight day. Final quotes ranged from down 5 to 50 cents, with thinly traded distant months notching modest gains.

Feedstuffs prices edged lower in light trading.

Live hog prices closed higher with the exception of August, with support found in a 10 cent advance in August and 50 cents to 1.50 higher in major leaner and fresh-pork products gained. Final quotes showed August down 2 points with gains of 27 to 105 points elsewhere.

International Metal Market gold futures recorded early gains as major staples and closed lower in volume estimated at 4,000 contracts. Losses for the day ranged from 1.20 in September to 3.20 in March.

Buhl whips Sage in Legion meet opener

Buhl reared and belted in the seventh and eighth innings to whip the Mini-Cassia Sage 18-8 in the opener of the district Legion tournament Tuesday night.

Coach Jerry Hawkins will send his charges against Twin Falls at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Jaycee Field with the winner taking a big step toward the only berth available to this district in the state playoffs.

The loser of the Twin Falls-Buhl game will play at 7 p.m. Thursday for the right to battle the undefeated team Friday evening. All games are set at Jaycee field.

Mini-Cassia started out well, jumping ahead 2-0 in the first inning and stay just ahead as Buhl kept rallying back. Buhl cut it to 3-2, fell behind 5-2 and finally caught up in the sixth at 6-6.

Between time, a triple play kept Buhl at bay. It came in the fourth with runners at first and second. Jerre Hills hit a shot up the middle but Sage second baseman James Dean made the catch.

Second and three for first the third out. A missed tag at third base in the eighth inning was all that stood between the Sage and another triple play.

The turning point of the game came in the seventh when Dean opened and a long triple. Buhl immediately went to see Tim Martin who retired the next three men without damage.

Martin then singled in the go-ahead run in the bottom of the frame and Buhl was ahead to stay. Hills and Lehman followed with hits and Buhl added six runs in the eighth ending the game under the 10-run rule.

torney, Jimmy Walsh, reached base agreement over the telephone late Monday night and expect to have the details worked out in time for Wednesday's news conference.

Namath, Jets reach agreement

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Namath, who sought $500,000 a year to renew his contract with the New York Jets, settled for slightly less Tuesday when he reached basic agreement with the club for the next two years at a salary of $400,000.

The Jets scheduled a "news conference" for Wednesday afternoon at their headquarters in the training camp where details of the agreement would be announced.

Namath was expected to work out with his teammates after meeting the media. Iselin and Namath's attorney, Jimmy Walsh, reached basic agreement over the telephone late Monday night.

Iselin, speaking on the telephone from Monmouth Park race course, said "Joe was very fair and we're always glad if he's going to play any place it will be with the Jets. This is his home."

"I'm glad it's all over with. Now we can get over to business," Iselin said.

Utah BLM Director Paul Howard said Tuesday the study is aimed at resolving a dispute over what is causing the salt depletion. The two prime suspects are the weather and a chemical potash plant.

Auto racing clubs blame the chemical company, which draws brine from long ditches running parallel to the highspeed raceway. The company believes a natural wet weather cycle is responsible.

The Utah Geological Survey completed a study of the flats last winter. The study found the track had lost 13 million tons of salt over the last 14 years.

The state geologists said the salt depth along the 16-mile track had decreased as much as one foot in some places, posing a safety hazard to 600-m.p.h. rocket-powered race cars such as those driven by Gary Gabelich and Craig Breedlove.

If the race track is to be preserved, they say means must be developed to stop the depletion of the salt, or to restore the salt at the same rate it is lost, the state report said.

Decay of salt flats prompts BLM probe

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management will spend $80,000 during the next two years to determine why the famed Bonneville Salt Flats Speedway is dissolving.

Utah BLM Director Paul Howard said Tuesday the study is aimed at resolving a dispute over what is causing the salt depletion. The two prime suspects are the weather and a chemical potash plant.

Both Connors and Trabert refused comment Tuesday night on the pending developments.

The U.S. just held the Davis Cup in 1972. The following year, Australia scored a 5-0 sweep in the final at Cleveland, then followed up defeats of the U.S. in preliminary rounds by Colombia and Mexico.

Trabert can't get Connors on cup team

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the United States next plays Davis Cup it will be under the direction of Tony Trabert, the man mainly responsible for breaking Australia's domination of the competition in the middle 1950s, but the team still will have to get along without Jimmy Connors.

It has been an open secret that Trabert would succeed Dennis Doldor as captain and his appointment today by Stan Malles, president of the United States Tennis Association.

Connors refused to play for Ralston. He said he would never play Davis Cup while Ralston was captain, although he was eager to play for his country. Now he has rejected Trabert.

Last May Trabert told United Press International that he'd be happy to captain the Davis Cup team and, as far as he knew, his relationship with Connors was cordial.

Connors sees it the other way. "Jimmy has told the (Cup) committee that he will not play for Trabert," said Cup number manager, Bill Ralston.

"There is hard feeling between Jimmy and Trabert. I'm not sure what it is, but he won't be a hypocrite. He does not like Trabert and will not play for him."

Connors, however, insists he still wants to represent his country.

Both Connors and Trabert refused comment Tuesday night on the pending developments.

Bryant fights transfer order

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Attorneys for Los Angeles Rams running back Cullen Bryant Tuesday sought a restraining order to prohibit the National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle from forcing Bryant to go to the Detroit Lions.

Rozelle last Friday awarded Bryant to the Lions as compensation for free receiver Ron Jesse who signed with the Rams after playing for the Lions last year.

This was the first time a club has been awarded a veteran player under the Rozelle Rule. It was said.

U.S. District Judge Warren J. Ferguson said he will hear "extensive oral arguments" at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday before making a decision on the request for a temporary restraining order.

Bryant, a big and fast runner, was a second-round draft choice in 1973 from Colorado University. He is 6-foot-1 and weighs 225 pounds.

He has been used mostly as a kick return specialist and averaged 56.6 yards on 21 kickoff returns with one touchdown last season.

Attorney Bruce R. Lederer, one of three representing Bryant, said his client needs to begin practicing immediately to get in shape for the football season and has already lost five days.

The Rozelle Rule bars him from practicing with the Rams and he is under orders to report to the Lions at their Rochester, Minn., training camp.

Finley spikes transfer rumor

CHICAGO (UPI) — Charles O. Finley threw some cold water Tuesday on widespread rumors that he planned to convert his world champion Oakland Athletics into the Chicago White Sox with owner John Allyn selling the White Sox to a city not in major league baseball.

"There's nothing to it," Finley said bluntly. "These are just rumors coming from somebody who wants to get Finley in hot water again."

According to the reports, Allyn has been in financial difficulty and would like to sell the White Sox. These reports have cropped up annually for the past three years, but each time Allyn has denied the thought of a sale while pointing out that anything would be available for a price.

Allyn's price for the White Sox, it was understood, has been too high to interest potential buyers. One local oil man, Tony Tortorella, said the price offered after he was established at $20 million, and that he would be interested in making a purchase at a lower figure.

It was understood that Allyn currently wants $15 million for the team and the ball park. Higher than most buyers, including Tortorella, are willing to pay. Thus rumors have circulated that he will sell the team to interested buyers who would move the franchise to Seattle or New Orleans.

Should such a move occur, then Finley, according to rumors, would move the Athletics to Chicago, where they would become the White Sox, providing he can escape a long-term lease on the Alameda County Coliseum, where the A's play.

"I won't comment on that," Finley said. "I have just nothing to it. All I know is what I've read about it."

Wood was signed as a free agent by Green Bay in 1969 and went on to play 12 years on the NFL club and was selected as an all-pro safety eight times. He said he patterned his playing style after Emitt Tunnel, a black defensive back and pro football hall of famer who was buried Tuesday in a Philadelphia suburb.

Bell coach has no time to celebrate

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Willie Wood, the former NFL great, became the first black professional head football coach in 50 years Tuesday but he didn't have much time to celebrate.

Wood, the new head coach of the World Football League's Philadelphia Bell, had to start preparing his team today for the season opener next Saturday night against Hawaii.

"I'm going to be tough getting my feet on the field," Wood told a Tuesday afternoon news conference. "I feel like I ought to be out working right now."

"I hope that somewhere down the road we will have a winning team and we can play up the fact that I, the Philadelphia Bell, has a winning team and play down me as a black coach," Wood said.

"But the mere fact that I am black and I am here today makes that impossible."

Asked if he possessed any problems, Wood said: "Whenever you have a platoon of administrators there are problems. I do anticipate problems, but of what kind and degree I don't know. I don't anticipate any problems from the fans."

"As I said before, we have the finest bunch of players I know. I don't anticipate any problems with them."

The last black man to coach a pro football team was Fritz Pollard, who coached the Hammond Football Club of the National Football League from 1923-25.

South Vietnam's 3 biggest problems listed

House for 'old' Vets day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee has decided to make an exception to the seven year old practice of celebrating some national holidays on Mondays in order to give Americans longer weekends.

Congress decided in 1968 to make four national holidays fall on Monday: Veterans Day, Columbus Day, Washington's Birthday and Memorial Day.

Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., chairman of the House Census and Population subcommittee which decided by voice vote to go along with the states, said, "My subcommittee today voted to recognize reality."

SAIGON, South Vietnam (UPI) — South Vietnam's three biggest problems are the economy, security and education, a senior government official told a policy conference, according to a transcript of his remarks made available Tuesday.

Nguyen-Huu-The, senior adviser to the Provisional Revolutionary Government, called for unity and predicted all three problems would be solved.

He spoke Sunday to the opening session of the Saigon Popular Liberation Front but his remarks were made available in English only Tuesday.

"The economy, education and culture, and security and order pose the major difficulties in normalizing everyone's life," he said. "The short speech to the two-day meeting made no mention of solutions to economic and cultural problems."

But he said so far as security is concerned, the Communist government that came to power April 30 is willing to forgive those who fought against it in the past so long as they report and agree to work for the good of the country.

"If these elements continue to fight the revolution we will punish them severely," he told delegates to the congress.

The meeting was the first major policy congress for the Saigon city itself and discussed problems and possible solutions in mostly open sessions Sunday and Monday.

Among other decisions taken was formation of a broadly based 3-member advisory board for the Saigon People's Revolutionary Committee.

Gen. Nguyen Huu Hanh, who ordered the actual surrender of the Saigon army at mid-morning April 30 over Saigon Radio.

Inflation rate speeds up again

Newhouse News Service WASHINGTON — Government economists are bracing for further indications that the rate of inflation is speeding up again.

They now expect to see a big jump in the wholesale price index for July, which will be released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) in about two weeks.

Of course, what happens to wholesale prices goes far to determine what happens to consumer prices a month or more later.

Released by BLS a week ago, that's an annual rate of 9.8 percent a year. Energy and food led the way.

And these two areas will continue to power the rises in the months ahead. July's number will largely reflect higher farm products.

Later on, as domestic oil prices are decontrolled one way or another, gasoline and other fuel prices will be added further thrust.

What makes the economists so gloomy about the Wholesale Price Index rise we'll soon be seeing is the dismal parade of price increases that have been occurring in the commodities markets. In the four weeks ending July 22, for example, here's what has happened to prices of key items:

- Hogs — up 1 1/2 per cent
- Pork bellies — up 3 per cent
- Lard — up 7 per cent
- Eggs — up 25 per cent
- Cocoa — up 25 per cent
- Coffee — up 36 per cent
- Orange Juice — up 14 per cent
- Coconut oil — up 17 per cent
- Cottonseed oil — up 14 per cent
- Soybean oil — up 14 per cent
- Sugar — up 33 per cent
- Flour — up 27 per cent
- Corn — up 12 per cent
- Wheat — up 13 per cent

NW wheat good

Courtesy Sinclair & Co. PORTLAND (GIN) — Reports of exceptionally high yields and quality are coming from Pacific Northwest areas where the wheat harvest has started.

In southeastern Washington, some farmers have been getting 50 bushels per acre in irrigated areas, where the normal yield is about 16 bushels—One report placed a yield at 80 bushels per acre.

Cool weather during a key period in June was credited with the good results. Harvest is picking up speed in Oregon and yields are reported as unusually high.

The test weight is extremely good. Washington growers said wheat stands are so thick that cutting has been slowed and more straw than usual is being left in the fields.

Beef quality dips

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Beginning this fall consumers will see the cheapest beef prices on the market in recent years but its quality will not be top grade, according to the past chairman of the American National Cattlemen's Association.

"I expect to see large supplies of hamburger, hotdog, cold cuts and baby beef on the market this fall," W.D. Parr said Monday. "The consumer also will see prices drop drastically."

Farr, speaking at the American Society of Animal Science Conference meeting at Colorado State University, said ranchers were liquidating surplus cows to better balance the high cost of grain.

Dr. S.A. Ewing, head of the animal science department at Iowa State University, another conference speaker, said there was a strong possibility of Western-wentured areas becoming pasture land in the future.

He said the United States could more than double its pasture land by developing the remote Western areas but warned of economic problems in making the conversion.
