Brezhnev denounces 'meddling'

HELSINKI (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev said Thursday the European security agreement to be signed here Friday does not give the West the right to interfere in Russia's internal affairs. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger called the speech "conciliatory."

"No one should try to dictate to other people, on the basis of foreign policy considerations of one kind or another, the manner in which they ought to manage their internal affairs," Brezhnev said.

Although some observers took the speech as a warning to Congress not to make a U.S.-Soviet trade agreement dependent on freer emigration of Soviet Jews, others said it had been made years ago and literally interpreted there would have been no basis for Moscow's invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Kissinger said: "I thought it was a conciliatory speech."

The secretary was pressed on whether he agreed that the address was a renunciation of the "Brezhnev Doctrine" under which the Soviet Union after the invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 claimed the right to intervene anywhere in Eastern Europe.

"It indicates there should be no interference in the affairs of other nations," was all Kissinger would say.

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson said the speech reflected the "spirit of Helsinki."

"Who would have thought years ago that he would have made such a statement?" Wilson said, adding:

"What would have been the fate of certain countries if he had made that statement years ago? For instance, what would be the position of Czechoslovakia if he had said that eight years ago?"

The second day of the three-day meeting of leaders from 35 nations of East and West Europe—the United States and Canada—was again devoted largely to speeches centered on the need for improved East-West relations in Europe.

But Archbishop Makarios, president of Cyprus, departed from his prepared remarks and unleashed a biting attack against Turkey for invading his Mediterranean island state a year ago.

The moment he hearded and robed Greek Orthodox archbishop went to the rostrum, Turkish Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel led his delegation in a walkout from the conference hall, the only such incident so far at the conference.

Demirel returned later and insisted Turkey was forced into intervening militarily after the Greek Cypriot coup overthrew Makarios.

"Besides his warning against meddling in Russia's internal affairs, Brezhnev made a strong appeal for increased military detente in Central Europe and a new disarmament drive after the Helsinki meeting."

"The Soviet Union has consistently supported the idea that the conference should be followed by a further development of military detente," he said. "A priority goal in this regard is to find ways to reduce armed forces and armaments in Central Europe without diminishing the security of anyone."

In the document to be signed Friday the leaders pledge their nations morally—but without binding legal effect—to promote greater security and improved East-West human contacts in Europe.

Ford, Turk chief discuss US bases

© Washington Star

HELSINKI — President Ford discussed with Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel today the closing of U.S. monitoring stations in Turkey, which the administration considers vital to its intelligence on Soviet weapons development, but they apparently reached no conclusions.

After the breakfast meeting at the U.S. ambassador's residence, "Helsinki" Ford newsmen said he could not say now what the conditions would be for restarting monitoring.

The surveillance of Soviet weapons tests and military developments by radio and other techniques from bases in Turkey was halted after the U.S. congress refused last week to lift a ban on U.S. arms supplies to Turkey. The ban was imposed after Turkey broke previous arms supply agreements by using the weapons in its invasion of Cyprus.

The administration is now pressuring congress to lift the embargo in an effort to clear the way for resumed monitoring.

Ford and Demirel, accompanied by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, and Foreign Minister Busem Sahri Cayaganli, talked for slightly more than an hour.

Ford then told newsmen that he would continue his "efforts to remove any roadblocks" in the way of good relations. Demirel declined to give a direct answer about the possibility of a resumption of monitoring. Asked upon what it depends now, he replied: "I cannot tell you right now."

Kissinger told a news conference Wednesday "the issue of our bases in Turkey is not so simple as a formal U.S. request to undo a decision that in itself has complicated causes both in our actions and in the domestic situation in Turkey."

The secretary of state said measures should be discussed which "might make it possible to put our relationship to Turkey on a new basis."

The two countries needed to "look at all of the issues that led to this state of affairs to see whether we can bring about a radical solution rather than a stop-gap one."

At his news conference, Kissinger also said Ford had given the Soviet Union his reply to Soviet views on "Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT). The Soviet proposals on the deadlocked talks were conveyed to Kissinger by Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Geneva two weeks ago.

Ford met Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev Wednesday and presented the American reply. Kissinger said, "the discussions will be continued on Saturday, hopefully leading to an agreement to implement the Vladivostok decisions."

"The two superpowers agreed at Vladivostok on Nov. 23 on the vague outlines of a new treaty limiting each side to 2,400 strategic weapons, with no more than 1,320 of them having multiple warheads. But efforts since then to turn the outline into a tight treaty have been stalemated on several issues, particularly on verification of the number of multiple-warhead missiles."

Kissinger warned, "It would be incorrect to claim any particular achievement." Wednesday. The situation might not lend itself to an announcement Saturday that "an agreement will certainly be reached," he said.

today in brief

Taipei airliner crash kills 29
TAIPEI (UPI) — A domestic airliner carrying 78 people including three Americans crashed at Taipei International Airport today on the pilot's second attempt to land in a blinding rainstorm.

Airport officials said at least 27 persons died and 49 were injured in the crash. One person was reported missing.

Mao reported 'critically ill'
TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist China's Central News Agency, quoting "a reliable intelligence source," reported today that Chinese Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung has been critically ill for the past three weeks.

The report said the 82-year-old Mao was "under the intensive care of five physicians."

Diversion rule upheld

BOISE (UPI) — If a person is prohibited from diverting water from a stream he also is prohibited from diverting water from a tributary flowing into it, the Idaho Supreme Court ruled today.

Justice Allan G. Shepard wrote the opinion that affirmed a contempt citation against Norris Shaub, a Twin Falls County rancher. Fifth District Judge Theron Ward held Shaub in contempt for violating an injunction.

The lower court earlier enjoined Shaub from diverting for irrigation more than a certain amount of water from a stream called the "Mendini Tunnel." The Supreme Court affirmed the order in 1972.

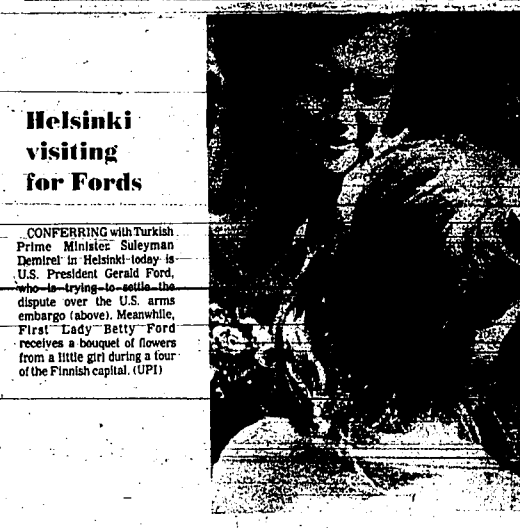

Later, Glenn Dale Ranches — adjacent to Shaub's ranch — complained that Shaub had diverted water from a seepage stream that flowed into the Mendini Tunnel, thus violating the injunction.

Shaub was charged with contempt and, after a trial, the court found him in contempt and sentenced to five days in jail and fined him $500. However, the court said the punishment would not be imposed if Shaub stopped interfering with Mendini Tunnel waters.

In affirming the lower court the Supreme Court said that if a person cannot divert water from a stream he cannot divert water from its tributary.

House extends oil price ceiling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted today to extend price ceilings on domestic oil for six months after their Aug. 31 deadline and sent the bill to the White House despite a veto threat by President Ford's energy chief.

The House vote was 203-117 and if that margin held up, it would be 23 more votes than needed to override any veto. The Senate passed the bill 62-29 last month.

Crash claims Californian

BURLEY — A Californian man was killed Wednesday in a one vehicle accident on Interstate 15, 16 miles east of here.

Idaho State Police identified the victim as Theodore J. Barth, 43, Livermore, Calif. The accident occurred at 11:45 a.m. Wednesday.

Patrolman DeLon Jones said Barth was driving in a pickup truck with camper when it was driven by his son, Timothy, 15. The vehicle was traveling east when the driver lost control and the truck slid into the median. The pickup rolled over, pinning the older Barth in the cab.

The driver and other passengers, Mrs. Diana Barth, 42, and Melissa Barth, 11, were taken to the Christus Memorial Hospital, Burley, for treatment of injuries.

Mr. Barth was reported dead on arrival at the hospital.

Mrs. Barth was listed in good condition and the two children were treated and released.

Retrial ordered

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Supreme Court reversed the conviction of William Tomrowidge on charges of receiving stolen property and remanded the case back to Gooding County today for retrial.

In a majority opinion written by Chief Justice Henry McQuay, the high court held that the jury—by giving jury instructions allowing the jury to presume guilt of receiving stolen property from the possession of recently stolen property, required the reversal.

The court also concluded that testimony implying Tomrowidge participated in similar unlawful acts improperly was admitted into evidence.

Wraps balked CIA audits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats said today the General Accounting Office stopped trying to audit Central Intelligence Agency books in 1962 — with two minor exceptions — because of the agency's stringent secrecy policies.

Staats, who testified before the House Select Committee on Intelligence, also admitted the GAO can produce no accurate breakdown of expenditures by the U.S. intelligence community.

"I should emphasize at this point that we cannot independently verify the accuracy of any estimates which may have been made as to the size of the intelligence community budgets," he said.

"Furthermore, we understand that large segments of the total intelligence budget are concealed within the budgets of various government departments and agencies, which would further complicate an attempt at verification of data."

Staats heads the GAO, Congress' investigatory arm. He was the first witness to appear before a special House committee whose probe of the CIA and other intelligence operations has been delayed by internal dissension.

Particle found
STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Professor Martin L. Perl of Stanford University announced discovery of a new elementary particle, temporarily called the "U" particle because its nature is unknown.

Perl said the particle is produced in pairs, one positive and one negative, with a mass of about 2 billion electron volts, about twice that of the proton, which is the nucleus of the hydrogen bomb.

Budget bill slashes Nixon funds
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress cleared and sent to the White House Wednesday a $7.59 billion budget bill which slashes more than 25 percent from the recommended allowance for former President Richard M. Nixon.

The big appropriation measure for various executive departments and agencies through Sept. 30, 1976, cleared the House by a 337-79 vote and the Senate by voice vote a few hours later.

TF man faces prison terms in stock fraud case

By DIANE ALTERS
Twin Falls writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man faces up to 10 years in prison after pleading guilty to federal stock fraud charges in a scheme which some of those involved claim may have bilked the public of at least $500,000.

The money is still missing.

Jay Victor Miller, 28, Twin Falls, was sentenced to a 90-day evaluation period in a federal institution and then will be re-sentenced on two federal counts carrying possible five-year terms each.

He faces the sentence for part in a complicated series of events involving at least five different federal court cases in Utah, Colorado and California.

On July 18, Judge Sherrill Halbert, Utah Federal District Court, ordered Miller to undergo a 90-day evaluation at a federal institution. A total of 14 counts had been brought against Miller, who pleaded guilty to two, one for the fraudulent sale of securities (a company's stock) and the other for the sale of unregistered securities. He is to surrender himself to a U.S. marshal by Aug. 18 on the 90-day period.

Court records for different federal court cases involving the stock claim said Miller, who owned a stock transfer company in Salt Lake City, offered for sale to the general public shares of fraudulently issued stock in a small Salt Lake City office company.

Miller's company maintained records for the oil company, which says it was unaware of the fraudulently issued stock.

An employee of Miller's company, Evelyn Mitchener, 27, Salt Lake City, already has been sentenced to five years probation for her part. A third person, John Badger, Salt Lake City, also was convicted in the case and awaits sentencing.

Miller was indicted by a federal grand jury in April of 1974 for fraud in the sale of securities and fraudulent sale of unregistered securities.

Miller's Salt Lake City attorney, Sumner Hatch, said Miller could receive probation rather than a prison term after he undergoes the 90-day evaluation period, based on "what he's been doing for the past year and a half," Hatch said.

Hatch said Miller has been "earning a living" and has an "excellent family background," to be taken into consideration in his evaluation.

MADRID (UPI) — Police using tear gas and Tommy guns fought five separate downtown gunbattles with suspected Basque guerrillas in Barcelona and Madrid leaving at least one person dead and several injured, news reports said today.
 There were contradictory reports on casualties and arrests. Government sources said one person was killed and four injured. Madrid newspapers said probably two were killed, several seriously injured and six arrested in Madrid alone.
 A shootout in Barcelona Wednesday with suspected members of the underground separatist organization "Basque Homeland and Liberty" known as the ETA left three bystanders injured and resulted in the arrest of the suspects, the sources said.
 (In Bordeaux, France, a Basque refugee organization said the two men captured in Barcelona were Pedro Ignacio Ibehotegui alias Wilson, named as one of the presumed slayers of Spanish Premier Luis Carrero Blanco, and Juan Government sources said the dead was a suspect who committed suicide when he was cornered near Generalissimo Avenue. The news agency Pyresa and newspapers said the probable second death was a youth reported to have succumbed to gunshot wounds in a Madrid hospital.

 Basque separatists have concentrated their activities on the Northern Basque provinces and rarely ventured to Madrid and Barcelona, Spain's biggest cities. In the Basque country they have slain six policemen so far this year.

Cabinet choice still in limbo

WASHINGTON — Consideration has not been given yet to who might be the new secretary of the Interior, the White House press office reported Wednesday.

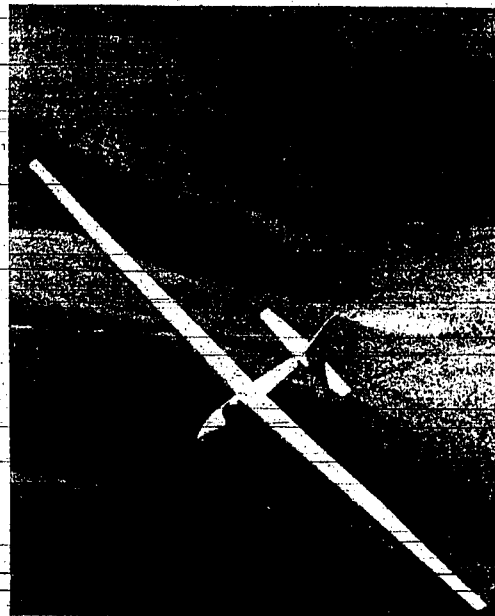

A staff member of the office said that since former Wyoming governor Stanley Hathaway resigned only last week, after a short-lived term, no thought has been given yet on possible replacements.

The staffer would not say whether former Oregon Gov. Tom McCall or former Idaho

Rep. Orval Hansen might be candidates for the post. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus recommended these two men to the President by telegram Wednesday.

"President Ford is currently in Europe. There will be no attention on the matter until he is back in the United States," the White House press secretary staff member said.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, has also recommended former governor, Len B. Jordan for the post.

Boise restaurant razed by early morning fire

BOISE (UPI) — Fire broke out in the kitchen area of the Le Triannon Restaurant on Orchard early today, gutting the place and causing serious smoke damage to a radio station upstairs.

A cruising policeman discovered the fire at 12:44 a.m. and turned in the alarm. The fire department dispatched two pumps, a tanker, a smokel and 12 men. The firemen controlled the flames in 20 minutes but spent three hours on the mop up.

Earl McRoberts, owner and general manager of KSPD, a radio station on the second floor, said the blaze got so hot at one point it melted a cash register in the restaurant.

He said smoke damage in the station was heavy. Flames came up a sidewall into KSPD's traffic department but did not burn much before firemen controlled them.

Station personnel spent all night on equipment and getting power restored but managed to sign on the air as usual at 6 a.m.

Two firemen were cut by glass — one by kneeling on it and the other by pulling his hand on it. Both were treated at a hospital and released. One required stitches, however.

Nobody was in the building when the fire broke out. The restaurant had closed for the evening and the radio station was off the air at the time.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined, firemen said, and the Fire Prevention Bureau began an investigation into that this morning.

"The fire department was really on the ball," McRoberts said. "They did a damned efficient job."

Had the policeman who discovered the fire driven by the building five or 10 minutes later, McRoberts said, the structure would have been lost to the flames.

Gooding sets arts festival

GOODING — An arts festival will be held Aug. 10 to celebrate the opening of the Idaho State Arts Commission's exhibit facility here.

The festival, sponsored by the Idaho State Resource Center, for the Arts, will feature painting, sculpture, pottery, weaving, macrame, knitting, sewing, quilting, carving, welding, mucking and other art forms.

The day-long affair is being promoted by the resource center, located in the old Tyler Hall, the Antique Festival Theatre, the Idaho State Arts Commission and the Gooding County Historical Society.

All artists and craftsmen in the state are invited to participate. Interested artists, groups, guilds or commercial suppliers can register by calling the Antique Festival Theatre office in Gooding at 934-4401, or by writing Arts Festival, Box 501, Gooding.

Deadline is Monday.

No registration fees, commission charges or exhibit space fees will be assessed. Exhibit areas will be assigned on a "first-come, first-served" basis. There will be live entertainment throughout the day and refreshments will be available.

At 7 p.m. the Magic Valley Chamber orchestra under the direction of Carson Wong Jerome, will present a concert. An evening performance of the Antique Festival Theatre's production of "Pickles 'N Pipes" will follow the arts festival. Proceeds will benefit the Gooding County Historical Society.

Better air-route planned

TWIN FALLS — Direct daily air service from Twin Falls to Northern California will begin Sept. 3, Paul Shoaff, manager of Hughes Air West in Twin Falls, announced Wednesday.

He said the service has been under consideration for some time to give area residents better connections on flights to the West Coast. Beginning Sept. 3, two daily jet flights will be available including service to Pocatello and Idaho Falls.

Flight 720 will arrive in Twin Falls at 1:10 p.m. from Seattle, Spokane, Lewiston, Boise, Idaho Falls and Pocatello. The same flight leaves Twin Falls at 1:30 p.m. for Stockton and San Francisco, Calif. Shoaff said it will take about an hour and a half to reach San Francisco out of Twin Falls.

The other flight, Flight 874, will arrive in Twin Falls from San Francisco and Stockton at 3:30 p.m. and depart at 3:50 p.m. for Pocatello, Idaho Falls, Boise, Portland and Seattle.

Shoaff said these flights will make connections to and from various cities in California at San Francisco, eliminating long delays. In Boise or Salt Lake City required by some present flights.

TF officer injured

TWIN FALLS — Richard Elliott Hovel, 29, Twin Falls police officer, was treated and released from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital after suffering injuries in a traffic accident Tuesday afternoon.

Sheriff Paul Corder said Hovel was en route to a trouble call and the blue light and siren on his city car were operation when his vehicle collided with one driven by Michael Snordmeyer, 22, Rupert, at the intersection of Adams Street and Moreland Avenue. The accident occurred at 2:10 p.m.

County aid not planned

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County apparently is not planning to help maintain the Twin Falls County Humane Society.

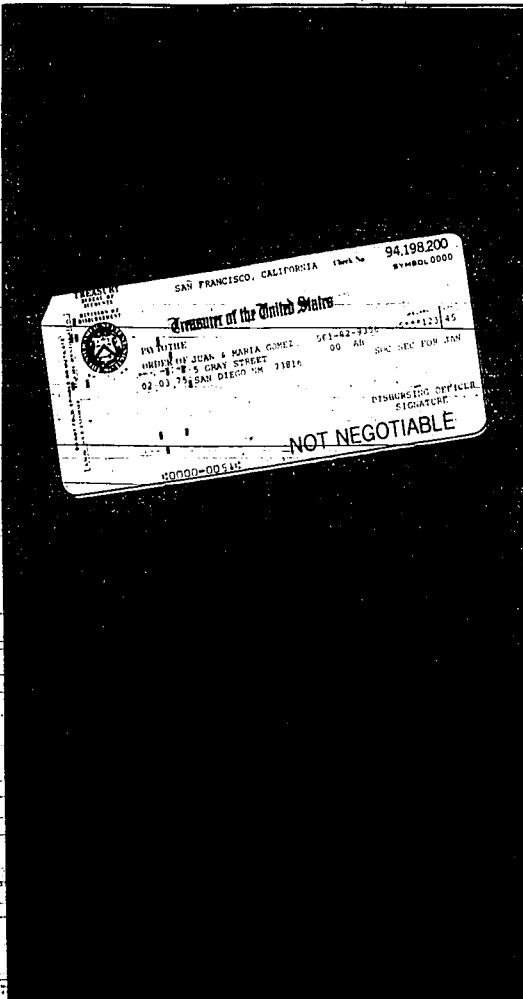

In an informal meeting Monday between the Twin Falls City Council and the county commission, Mayor Winston Jones said the city is putting in $725 a month to keep up society's pound and "apparently we don't have a very good facility" for the animals.

"Is there any thought on the part of the county of giving the Humane Society any additional help?" he asked.

"I feel that presumably it's a matter the public should decide," Merl Leonard, county commissioner chairman, responded. He suggested the matter might be resolved by referendum.

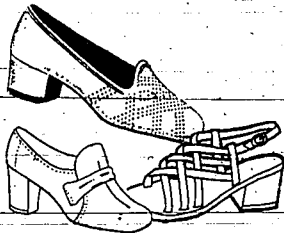

Commissioner Bill Chancy said he can't see taking tax dollars out for the pound since that would "create another tax somewhere else."

Leonard said the commission would not be interested in sponsoring a "joint animal control facility without direction from the public at large." He said it would be up to the public to initiate such direction.

Pressure on Ford to move with caution

WASHINGTON - Worried friends and friendly enemies are pressing President Ford to go slower on strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) with the Soviet Union than the less guarded approach favored by his trusted, enormously influential foreign affairs adviser, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

pushing hard for high-level Pentagon representation at the Helsinki summit, which began Wednesday, for any SALT II conversations. This contrasts with Schlesinger's past reluctance about elbowing into arms talks.

leader Leonid Brezhnev needs SALT II far more than Ford, giving the U.S. the bargaining advantage. The Senate, said Humphrey, demands far greater examination of details in a SALT II agreement and will throw on any treaty without specifics on size and power of new Soviet missiles.

Ford-watchers concerned about Kissinger's influence believe the President is showing more independence on issues other than SALT. They attach importance to Kissinger's absence from the room during Ford's July 2 meeting at Camp David with President Suharto of Indonesia.

Reagan: waiting in the wings

Wall Street Journal
Ronald Reagan, footloose and fancy free, is getting as much attention in the national press corps these days as he did during his eight years as governor of California.

The National Review, which has eyes for Mr. Reagan, estimates that the reason he is not formally announcing is so he can continue his radio broadcast on 310 stations around the country, and his TV appearances, without losing equal time provision of the law.

While he has his fans who would like to see him make the run just for the fun of it, whatever his chances, Mr. Reagan is now more in the position of an underdog than a contender.

Besides, if and when he does formally announce, by the very nature of political competition he will be trying his best seven days a week to outpace Ford, as long as he remains in the wings, he has the luxury of being able to mix forums, without the sarcasm and light applause as he observes Mr. Ford's performance.

The theory that he has to start now rests on the idea that Mr. Reagan can somehow talk the nomination away from Mr. Ford, that by showing himself to be a more skillful stump speaker, a more exciting campaigner, and an angrier conservative to boot, he will cause the GOP rank and file - what's left of it - to kick their incumbents into early retirement.

Probably the greater danger to Mr. Ford, though, is the current trend toward complacency at the White House. When the economy and Mr. Ford's popularity were in a tailspin, Mr. Ford had nothing to lose by following his instincts and being bold and presidential, and even the conservative purists were impressed with his handling of Mayaguez and successful vetoes of spending bills.

But once the White House saw Mr. Ford's popularity climb and the conventional wisdom took hold that the economy was turning up and inflation was tending down, the political people began worrying about rocking the boat.

This is not to suggest that Mr. Ford must devote himself to attaining the degree of theological purity demanded by the GOP's far right. He couldn't do it if he tried, not having the right emotional endowment.

We know it sounds ivory-towered to suggest that Mr. Ford should not be thinking about re-election at this point, or worrying about his underlings in the wings. And to be sure, he's seemed less distracted by 1976 than most of his advisers. But there's always the chance that Mr. Ford will succumb to the temptation and try to fit himself to an issue, instead of being himself and letting his image take care of itself.

If mathematics dictate, Rocky will be dumped

WASHINGTON - Of course President Ford will dump Vice President Rockefeller if the mathematics so dictate. Presidents do not commit political suicide.

What this means is that, although Ronald Reagan has authorized a campaign committee to raise money and organize on his behalf, he cannot seriously believe the Republicans would nominate him for top banana in 1976. If he runs, he will do so to try to force Ford to replace Rockefeller with a candidate acceptable to the conservatives.

Reagan would be lucky if he went to the convention with a third of the delegates in his pocket. But with Reagan as its tiger, the Republican right wing's chances of getting Ford to dump Rockefeller are good to excellent.

What Ford is doing, because he must, is telling the conservatives - "Now don't get all excited, fellows, we're taking your case 'under' advisement. We're leveling with them, too, because he has been careful not to commit himself to Rockefeller, even while - naturally - praising his vice president to the skies.

Berry's World

Why thank a lot, young fella, that's a mighty vulgar message you have there on your tee shirt, too!

No way to tell who's on strike when in Rome

ROME - "Don't go to Rome," I was warned. "Everyone's on strike."

It was of course an exaggeration. When I got to the Leonardo Da Vinci Airport they were only having a slowdown, and it took me two hours to get my luggage.

When I arrived at my hotel, I was handed a slip of paper. "The employees will go out on strike from 10 o'clock until 4 and from 7 o'clock in the evening until 11. We hope you will understand."

A friend picked me up in a taxi. "I would pick you up in my car, but it was stolen. Rome has the highest number of auto thefts of any city in the world," he said proudly. "Forty-two thousand were stolen last year, and only 7,900 were recovered."

ART BUCHWALD

"To the Vatican," he said. "Are you taking me sightseeing?" "No, I have to mail a letter. The Italian Post Office has had so many strikes that the only safe way to get a letter out of the country is by way of the Vatican post office. They set a special mobile lounge in St. Peter's Square just for mail. It's been so successful they should be able to pay all the costs for Holy Year."

"How can they keep going?" I asked. "My friend said, 'The Romans are the greatest survivors of all time, and they're very well set up for strikes.' The telephone company even has a number you can call, and they'll tell you who is on strike so you can plan your day around it."

"What about the Italian companies?" "Oh, they let long ago."

"That's a good idea," I said. "If I, except every once in a while the people who run the service go out on strike."

Giant step forward for secrecy?

By NEA/London Economist News Service WASHINGTON - LENS - "The American press is fighting against a bill, now before the Senate Judiciary committee, which it claims, could give the government powers to muzzle investigative reporting and the printing of official papers."

The Criminal Justice Reform Act proposes to rewrite the federal criminal code, a massive task included in which are provisions to plug leaks of government information to the press.

At the moment there is no criminal sanction against a government employee who discloses classified information, other than that specifically concerned with atomic energy or national defense.

But the proposed code would make any federal official, newspaper reporter or publisher who leaked classified information subject to criminal prosecution. Such restrictions are seen by the American Society of Newspaper Editors as alien to the nation's freedom of the press tradition.

authorized to declare material classified, the press fears that the new code could allow most anything embarrassing to the government to be withheld from public scrutiny. Had these provisions been previously applied some journalists argue that a scandal like that started by the Pentagon Papers would not have surfaced.

Yet this and other disclosures - not least about the activities of the Central Intelligence Agency - have contributed to the anxiety shared by many in Congress and the Administration that the present federal code is inadequate and unable to shelter genuine state secrets. The new measures would seek to legalize the principle that the government owns government information and can restrict it at will.

The prospects for some measure of control have recently been strengthened by the Supreme Court's non-objection to a lower court decision allowing the CIA heavily to censor a book on the agency by Victor Marchetti. The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals had previously ruled that the author, by taking an oath of secrecy while employed by the CIA, had waived his rights under the first amendment to disclose any "classifiable" information about the agency, even if obtained after leaving his job.

The press also feels that its freedom has been curtailed by the recent development of judicial gaps, requiring that a reporter, on penalty of being held in criminal contempt of court, must obey an order not to publish accounts of open court proceedings or of an accused criminal's prior record in advance of the trial.

The right to print has not however, been curtailed systematically. Ready access to federal documents, which was again difficult, if not impossible, to obtain, has been secured by the Freedom of Information Act and is subsequent amendments.

Any member of the public, requesting government papers, must be given an answer within 10 days of the request being made, and a government refusal to provide the information on the grounds of national security can be challenged in the courts.

More competition needed in area

Editor, Times-News: Americans have never tolerated abuse of power, whether political, religious or commercial. Idahoans are notorious for their independence and Magic Valley residents can smell a bad deal a mile away. Freedom of these traits does the thought of one television station dominating the eight-county region seem unwelcome. In the two years' ascension of KMYT and myself, the unescapable conclusion is: one station per market means too much concentration of power. Because radio and TV frequencies are finite, the federal government has declared them "Public Domain" as opposed to private ownership. For license granting or any product applicants must satisfy the CIN code: convenience, interest, an necessity of people served. The pursuit of the sales dollar remains first and foremost in management's mind at KMYT. As news director, I was told to cover

10,500 square miles on a regular basis with four people and outdated equipment. Because there are no local news competition from Salt Lake or Boise, the severely limited resources at hand were deemed adequate. Because the station is owned by a Missoula, Mont., firm, Magic Valleyites can watch their dollars flow-out of state while a "foreign" philosophy is pressed on them in return. A second channel is controlled by the local college — how that became an educational, rather than commercial station remains an intriguing tale of protective lobbying. It is possible to get another frequency allotted by the FCC. But it takes more than grubbing in the corn fields. To ensure a quality product with conscience, the Magic Valley needs more competition to challenge the KMYT fiefdom. CHRIS TALKINGTON, KMYT News Director, Twin Falls.

Helsinki meeting holds detente key

(c) N.Y. Times Service NEW YORK — Andrei D. Sakharov, the Soviet physicist, says in a new essay on East-West relations that it is up to the European security conference to decide whether detente is to be a "comprehensive, profound process of historic significance" or a "cynical political game." In a 20,000-word commentary, Sakharov calls on the United States and on the West in general to be more resolute and consistent in dealing with the Soviet Union. Describing himself as a confirmed reformist, the Soviet dissident devotes half his essay to an indictment of Soviet society and contends that freedom of emigration has become the touchstone of the process of detente. Sakharov, who helped develop the Soviet-Union's hydrogen bomb and emerged as a leading advocate of human rights within the last seven years, contends that the problem of arms control could not be separated from the issue of openness of a society. Genuine arms control, he adds, can be achieved only through on-site inspection and verification. The foremost threats in his view — are Soviet totalitarianism and what he calls the "amazing miscalculations and failures of Western foreign policy."

Time to wake up

Editor, Times-News: To President? Mr. Ford. WAKE UP AMERICA heard a baby cry — I fed it. I heard a baby cry — I clothed it. I heard a baby cry — I had nothing. When I awoke — it was my own — I lost it. You shot a man into the air — with gas we could not spare. You shot a man into the air — cost money we could have spared. A hero fiddled while Rome burned — yours was to shake a hand. To get stabbed in the back while it is turned. Gas so high we cannot drive; food so high we cannot eat. Tell us how we can survive — with you (money hungry) guys we cannot beat. They say a revolution there will be — Please get things in focus we can live. I'll be their leader, and then we'll see — we'll come for you — then will you give? I say these things to you, to let you know this is no joke. I can't call you President — father of our country — he takes care of his own. Can't call you Mr. — respect you have not shown all that's left is Ford and that's a car (like mine) a lemon I can't make that rhyme — so I'll close with Wake Up America. Amen. MRS. LEWIS PARISH, SR. ROBERT MAHEU
ex-Hughes aide

Maheu supports Castro charges

Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON - A former top aide to billionaire Howard Hughes has given "inside" support to allegations that two underworld figures were recruited by the Central Intelligence Agency to poison Cuban leader Fidel Castro.

Robert A. Maheu, a confidante of Hughes until both men fell out more than four years ago, said Wednesday the plan was never put into effect because higher authorities he did not specify whether they were in the CIA or high echelons of U.S. government never gave the "go" signal.

The gangland figures identified by Maheu as part of the plot were slain Chicago mobster Sam Giancana and John Roselli, a reputed underworld boss in Los Angeles who also allegedly wielded power in Florida.

Maheu made his disclosures to reporters Wednesday after appearing before the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, before whom he also testified Tuesday.

Roselli, who has also appeared before the panel, is reported to have said that as many as six plots were hatched to kill the Cuban prime minister, but Maheu said he was aware of only the single poisoning plot.

The action was undertaken by himself, Roselli and Giancana, as part of "just war" and for "patriotic" motives, he asserted, adding that neither of the two gangland figures received any compensation.

Asked whether they participated in the scheme to overthrow Castro in hopes of getting their lucrative Cuban gambling enterprises restored, Maheu said he had read of such allegations but "saw no evidence" to support them.

It was "sometime in 1962," he recounted, while he was doing investigative work for the CIA on a $50 monthly retainer, that his "project officer" - whom he identified as James O'Connell, now retired from the intelligence agency - asked him to "contact Roselli in connection with 'a planned invasion of Cuba'."

O'Connell also asked him if Roselli "would be inclined to help in a program for removing Castro from the scene, or eliminating him in connection with the invasion of Cuba," Maheu said.

Roselli, whom Maheu said he had met "in the late '50s when I was having difficulty in getting a room reservation at a hotel in Las Vegas," was initially reluctant to participate in the idea, he said.

But his resistance gave way "when I explained to him that this was on behalf of his government," and that the April, 1961, Bay of Pigs invasion was thought "necessary" by U.S. officials.

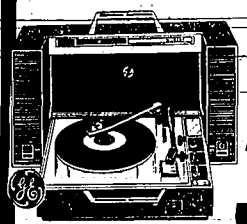

Maheu, under prodding by reporters, admitted that "removing" and "eliminating" Castro meant "killing him."

He said he met Giancana at meetings that took place in Miami several months before the invasion. The Chicagoan was introduced to him as "Sam Gold," he said.

Jim Siebert held the fresh-picked corn in his hand and shook his head.
"They'll never fill out - it'll be small kernels and small cobs," Siebert said. "The heat and dry stress during pollination doesn't take long to cut a field by 20 to 30 bushels per acre. I figure we've lost about 21 bushels an acre already."

Iowa Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsbury, who accompanied Siebert on a tour of his 340-acre farm north of Des Moines Wednesday, agreed.

"Yeah, the prognosis isn't for a bumper crop this year for you," Lounsbury said.

Earlier this summer, agriculture observers estimated an average corn yield of a record-high 109 bushels per acre in Iowa. But dry weather could cut Iowa yields by 50 bushels per acre, topping 650 million bushels from the state's production and costing farmers lots of money.

Relentless heat scorched crops in Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and the Dakotas and projections of record or bumper corn crops withered in the blazing sun. Corn stalks browned and leaves curled. Grain sorghum leaves lay twisted and deformed by the heat.

Hazy, hot, humid weather gripped a vast belt of the midlands and the mercury soared again into the 90s and 100-plus ranges with little relief in sight.

Farmers in the heat-baked midlands may well have been envious of their neighbors in Illinois and Indiana, where prospects for bumper crops remained good.

"I've been told by my neighbor that the Illinois and Indiana that they still have some of the best prospects," Lounsbury said. "They've been getting an average of an inch of rain a week. But Indiana and Illinois appeared to be the only corn belt regions in good shape."

Kansas corn and grain sorghum crops already have been severely damaged by the hot, dry weather. Agricultural officials warned a healthy downpour is needed in the next few days to halt the losses.

"It's worsening a little bit each day," says Rex Johnson, an official of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Johnson said his office has already received a few disaster relief applications from corn and sorghum farmers whose crops are useless except for silage or hay. Soybeans also have suffered damage.

"This isn't a great acreage at this point but it's right at the point of getting that way," Johnson said. "If we don't get some relief in the next week we'll probably get quite a few applications."

Douglas' release due

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas probably will be released from the Rusk Institute in New York late next week, a hospital spokesman says.

Douglas has undergone three months of intensive therapy during his recovery from a disabling stroke suffered Dec. 31.

Sources said Douglas is anxious to spend the rest of the summer at his cabin in Goose Prairie, Wash., a remote mountain area. Friends and relatives concerned about the distance from well-equipped medical facilities have been unable to change the 76-year-old justice's mind, they said.

A nurse will accompany Douglas and his wife, Cathy. The hospital spokesman said Douglas now is able to walk short distances with the aid of a cane. His left side has been partially paralyzed since the stroke.

TF man faces prison terms in stock fraud case

The case is complicated, according to John Jennings, Denver attorney for the Flying Diamond Corp., whose stock certificates allegedly were falsified and sold.

Flying Diamond is an oil and gas development company now listed on the American Stock Exchange. It has substantial coal mining interests in Harlan County, Ky., and several hundred thousand acres of land in Utah.

The company completed in 1973 that by Miller and Evelyn Mitchell had falsified company stock certificates for 200,000 shares. Those unauthorized shares then were sold to the public through a stock broker and dealer, according to the complaint Flying Diamond filed in 1973 in the first of several federal court cases involving the company's stock certificates.

In the 1974 case, which still has not been decided, Flying Diamond asked the judge to award the company $1 million in damages, with another $5 million in punitive damages and attorney fees and plaintiff's costs.

Before the unauthorized shares came on the market, the company had 3.5 million legitimate shares, trading at between $1.50 and $5 each. When the additional shares came on the market, according to a source close to the case, the price of the stock declined to about $3.25, making the value of the unauthorized shares about $17,000 at the time.

The audit also disclosed that the signature stamp of Utah bank had been used to verify endorsement signatures on some of the stock certificates, according to the suit's claim.

At the company's request, the records show, the U. S. Securities and Exchange Commission's subpoenaed reading of Flying Diamond stock for 10 days, and stock was not quoted publicly for about another month.

Then, Flying Diamond sued AST, Jay Miller, Evelyn Mitchell and others, involving Utah Federal District Court Judge Willis Ritter ordered Miller and others to turn over all Flying Diamond records, blank certificates, and restrained them from further activity relating to Flying Diamond, and had a trustee collect all AST's incoming mail. Ritter is still considering the case.

But the illegal activity allegedly did not stop there, according to the court record's claim. Almost three months later, a man sold other falsified Flying Diamond stock certificates to a broker in Wallace, Idaho, the record claims.

The seller, the broker and the brokerage, Pennaluna Co. Inc., are now being sued by Flying Diamond Co. Inc., S. District Court, Boise. No decision has yet been made on the case.

The man who sold the documents, stock certificates allegedly is William Campbell, Spokane, who was in federal prison at the end of 1974 for failing to pay federal income taxes, according to the records for the suit.

In October 1973 Campbell allegedly took 6,000 shares in the brokerage company, which eventually sold them for about $24,812.50. Pennaluna and its broker claim they did not know of Flying Diamond's troubles and did not even know that Flying Diamond had filed a lawsuit against the company until after the broker tried to telephone the company and found the phone had been disconnected.

Seller Campbell, who the broker knew as a person who made conspicuous displays of wealth, according to the records, was paid a total of about $24,000 after fees. After he was paid in two different checks at the brokerage office, he immediately went next door to the First National Bank of Wallace and got the sum in cash, according to the records.

Shortly after the stocks were sold, Jay Miller and another man were arrested in Spokane when Spokane police seized two briefcases allegedly containing Flying Diamond stock certificates, apparently identical to the ones already just passed by Campbell.

Miller and the other man were cited with attempted grand larceny, but the charges were later dismissed, according to Spokane County records.

Kenney, because federal cases on the related matters were also pending.

Allegedly included in the briefcases were Flying Diamond's shareholder lists, documents bearing William Campbell's name, blank stock certificate forms of Flying Diamond and three rubber stamps with "signature guaranteed" and one of three different bank's names on each.

When the briefcases, according to the records, were opened, various miscellaneous papers indicating someone had been practicing writing the signature found on the above listed certificates.

In early November, 1974, a Flying Diamond attorney flew to Spokane and inspected the briefcase contents and talked to authorities. But the attorney didn't tell Flying Diamond Allegedly falsified Flying Diamond certificates have mysteriously appeared in at least two other cities since the original fraud was discovered.

Three men were arrested in San Francisco in February 1974 and later convicted of trying to sell 90,000 shares of falsified Flying Diamond stock to a federal secret service agent, according to prosecutor attorney Michael Sterrett, who prosecuted the case in U. S. District Court in San Francisco.

It's "something of a mystery" where the three men—Jack M. Smith, Dan Anderson and a Phillip Georgopoulos—all Salt Lake City, got the shares, Sterrett said. In trial testimony, an employee of Miller's transfer company, Michael Halfhill, linked Miller to the shares, but Miller said he was charged in the San Francisco case, Sterrett said.

The unnamed source close to the case said an Omaha broker discovered an apparently false certificate for 10,000 Flying Diamond shares, but authorities built up nothing about the case. Most of the certificates handled by Pennaluna are in either the U.S. District Court in Boise or in Salt Lake City, according to the records.

The statement of facts in the district court records ends there. The judge is still considering the case, records show.

In Salt Lake City, the case is viewed as "pretty big ... a blatant rip-off of legitimate company" according to an attorney of the Securities and Exchange Commission, which regulates stock and bond activity.

and litigation costs. Apparently the money has never been recovered and no one knows exactly how much is missing.

According to a source close to the case, Flying Diamond stood behind about 150,000 shares of fraudulent stock bought by innocent people and lost the current market value of the 150,000 fraudulent shares backed by Flying Diamond is about $1.2 million.

Environmentalists seek fluorocarbon spray ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An environmental group, citing new evidence of damage to the earth's protective ozone layer, asked the Food and Drug Administration today to ban aerosol sprays with fluorocarbon propellants.

The Natural Resources Defense Council said balloon measurements taken last month by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the National Center for Atmospheric Research provide the first conclusive proof that fluorocarbon gases are destroying the ozone layer.

Previous tests, the group said, went only about 10 kilometers above the earth, roughly the beginning of the ozone layer which filters out the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays. The effects beyond that point were largely speculative, said Ruby Group, a lawyer for the company. The new tests showed 26 kilometers and showed the sun was breaking down the fluorocarbons with increasing intensity as the probe moved upward, she said.

When the fluorocarbons are broken down, chlorine atoms are released and destroy the ozone.

A depletion of the ozone layer could lead to increases in skin cancer.

An inter-governmental task force earlier this year called the threat of ozone destruction a matter for serious concern, but it suggested waiting until a National Academy of Sciences study on the matter is completed before the government takes any coordinated action.

Scoop edgy over summit

Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — President Ford may be enjoying "very friendly" talks with Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev, as is being reported, but to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the visit is a snare and delusion — and the American people ought to be as such, he said.

The Democratic contender for the presidential nomination made that clear to reporters in comments yesterday on the Ford trip to Helsinki.

Jackson said in an air of secretiveness, characterizing reports of Soviet grain needs — reported in June to be 10 million tons and now, reportedly, somewhere near "19 or 20 million tons."

The man who sold the documents, stock certificates allegedly is William Campbell, Spokane, who was in federal prison at the end of 1974 for failing to pay federal income taxes, according to the records for the suit.

Ballow said a hearing will be held within 30 days at which ranchers can present evidence to try prove they own the animals. Gov. DEAR ABBY: I'm 16 and have been going with a guy I'll call Doug for nearly two years. (He's 17.) He's very popular at school and comes from a well-to-do family. (More so than mine.)

Well, four months ago his mother came home early and caught us going all the way. She didn't say anything, but the next day Doug told me he'd promised his mother that he'd break up with me. (She doesn't know it, but we've been going all the way for a year and a half.)

Doug's mother is crazy. Doug said she had been treated for mental illness. Doug and I love each other and hate all this sneaking around. How can we make his mother realize that she can't keep us apart?

DOUG'S GIRL

Teen pair caught

DEAR GIRL: First, I think Doug's mother was very charitable in not telling your mother why she disapproved of you. Furthermore, your remarks about the woman were unkind. Having been treated for a mental illness does not make a person "crazy."

I have no idea how you can get Doug's mother to realize she can't keep you apart. She's understandably concerned about her son's future, and I can't fault her.

A little unsolicited advice from me: "Going all the way" is for people who can handle mature relationships. Obviously, you don't qualify.

DEAR ABBY: I am 10 years old and take piano lessons, but I hate it very much. My lessons are almost over for this year, but my mom says I have to take piano lessons again next year, and I don't want to. What should I do?

PIANO LESSON HATER

DEAR HATER: Take lessons and practice! Many adults have told me that one of the biggest regrets of their lives is having quit music lessons. But not one who has "glad he did."

DEAR ABBY: You hear a lot about ungrateful children. How about ungrateful parents?

Our parents are retired on modest pensions. To save them money, my husband does their plumbing and electrical repair work. He's no amateur. He makes his living that way. Sometimes he spends two or more days on a repair job for them and asks nothing in return. He even supplies the parts.

My kick is that my parents have called other plumbers and electricians who have charged them outrageous prices (one bill was $75 and the other, $160 for jobs that were so poor my husband had to straighten them out afterward.)

It seems to me that if my folks are going to pay for a job, they could at least call my husband and give him the business.

Should we tell them that from now on they should hire people to do their jobs for them? Or should we apply for guardianship of these old fools?

TIRED OF IT

DEAR TIRED: Of the two alternatives, I'd recommend the former.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

When 4NT bid isn't Blackwood

Thus, as a starter agree that an immediate four notrump response to partner's opening bid of one, two or three notrump is a plain raise and does not ask for aces.

North's four notrump shows 15+ to 16 points. His plus was the three 10 spots. South jumps to six because he holds 17 points plus one 10 and two nines.

The slam makes easily when the jack of clubs drops on the second lead. If it failed to drop, South would have had to locate the queen of diamonds.

Ask the Jacobys
 A reader from Illinois wants to know what the correct response to partner's opening bid of one diamond is when you hold:

▲ 9 7 6 4 ▲ A 10 2 ♦ J 3
 ▲ K 9 7 4

The answer is that you should respond one notrump unless you have some special partnership agreement that you never bypass a four-card major suit. In that case you respond one spade.

With eight high-card points you are too strong to pass and too weak to respond two clubs.

Miss Barden, Tarter exchange promises

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 Would you be good enough to give me some information as to just what causes scaling in psoriasis? I have this miserable trouble and wondered if there is anything to relieve it. — Mrs. R. M.

The outer layer of the skin is "shed" about every 30 days. This outer layer (the epidermis) is composed of dying cells which have been pushed out to the surface by newer cells which have been produced underneath.

As the outer layer of cells dies, it begins synthesizing a substance called keratin. The silvery scaling is the result of this outer layer change.

Normally, all of this goes on unnoticed by us. However, in psoriasis, the cycle occurs much more frequently — every three or four days in some cases. The slow process of new cell creation and old cell shedding is out of phase, and the result is the creation of abnormal amounts of keratinized cells — scales.

Sad to say, medicine has yet to learn why this happens, much less develop any cure for it. There are numerous treatments and treatment programs available to lessen the discomfort. A dermatologist could suggest one for you. It is well-known that psoriasis improves in summer months. Sunlight seems to be the reason for this.

Psoriasis victims are advised to get sunlight exposure in gradually increasing exposures. When sunlight is not available, ultra-violet lamps can be used, with the usual precautions to avoid eye damage and overexposure of the skin.

GLENN'S FERRY — One hundred and eight people attended the Colvin family reunion beginning Friday in the Hull Memorial Park and ending Monday evening. It had been 34 years since the group had been together. The nine brothers and sisters, children of Fred and Edith Colvin, all graduated from the Bliss High School.

TWIN FALLS — Sandra Lee Barden and Thomas Glen Tarter were married July 12 at Immanuel Lutheran Church, Boise.

Pastor Leon Collins performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Barden, Boise, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Tarter, Twin Falls.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white, trimmed with yellow featuring a chapel-length veil.

Karen Kolar, Boise, was maid-of-honor. Bridesmaids were Darlene and Rose Ann Dimick, both Boise.

Jim Stuart, Twin Falls, was best man. Ushers were Rod Thomas, Gooding, and Steve Spafford, Twin Falls.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony at the Basque Center, Boise.

Following a wedding trip to Sun Valley, the couple resides in Twin Falls, where the bridegroom is a partner at OK Tire Stores.

Psoriasis scaling explained

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 I have had hemorrhoids for eight years, and didn't have any trouble until I became pregnant. At that time they bled and were painful. They made my pregnancy miserable.

Now, a year later, they have calmed down except for periodic flare-ups. I want to have another child, but the thought of going through the hemorrhoids problem again discourages me.

Is surgery the only relief? Or is there some medication that could get me through the pregnancy more comfortably? I am sure the situation would be liveable afterwards. Please send me your booklet on the subject, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids."

I'm enclosing 25 cents and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope. — Mrs. C. A.

Pregnancy, as you are now aware, can make existing hemorrhoids mighty painful for some women. While yours have calmed down since delivery you are still having "flare-ups."

It's almost certain that another pregnancy would add to the trouble, and there is no guarantee the condition would be "liveable" after the delivery.

Mild hemorrhoids can be soothed somewhat by use of suppositories, etc., but this is no cure. Surgical removal may be your only choice for permanent relief, and since it is such a simple procedure with usually good results, I would consider it.

It is important for you to feel as well as possible during pregnancy.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 I just had a baby a year ago, and it left me with a lot of stretch marks. I tried creams and oils to get rid of them, but they only helped a little.

"Can you tell me of some method to get rid of them? I really do need some help. Do you have some book on this subject?" — Mrs. M. S. M.

I don't have a booklet on this subject. The reason, quite frankly, is that there is little to be done to get rid of stretch marks.

Creams and oils won't help, and if yours improved a little while using them, it was probably due to other factors.

Pregnancy can have the same effect as weight gain followed by weight loss (which is what occurs, of course, in pregnancy). The marks are the result of a break-in skin fibers due to the stretching of the skin. They are bluish at first. But the color tends to fade with time.

You don't give your age, but if you are young time and good exercise should bring a return of muscle and skin tone, and the marks should become less visible.

HEW seeks regulation of nicotine in cigarettes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said today it had asked Congress for authority to regulate the levels of tar, nicotine and other hazardous ingredients in cigarettes.

The legislative proposal was made in a letter from HEW Secretary Caspar Weinberger to House Speaker Carl Albert. The letter was sent last week with the latest government report on the health consequences of smoking.

The report, ninth in a series, summarizes recent research in four major areas: cancer, cardiovascular disease, cancer, respiratory disease and the effects of smoking on the non-smoker who shares the environment with those who smoke. The report was made available to reporters today.

In his letter, Weinberger said that cigarette smoking is a serious public health problem.

"Its toll in illness and premature death is needless and preventable," he wrote.

Weinberger renewed an appeal made to Congress last year for legislation to regulate cigarettes "through the power to tax the manufacture and sale of cigarettes exceeding what are considered excessively hazardous levels of tar, nicotine, carbon monoxide and other ingredients shown to be injurious to health."

Generous

BOSTON (UPI) — Massachusetts consumer groups gave Gov. Michael S. Dukakis the shirts off their backs.

Representatives of three consumer groups dumped several hundred shirts and jackets in front of the reception area at Dukakis' State House office Tuesday.

Some of the clothes, which were burned by State House janitors, were marked "enough is enough" and "no new taxes."

"Taxes are very high," said Golda Flathers of Springfield. "We just can't afford to pay them."

"His plans would take the shirts off our backs," Carolyn Bruneau of Easthampton said. "Dukakis has proposed a $68.5 million tax increase."

Gas rate boost defended

BOISE (UPI) — If the term "gas rate" is to mean anything, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission must boost its rates by a little more than $11 million to offset a price increase on gas imported from Canada.

President R. Dean Grimm said Tuesday.

Grimm told the Idaho Public Utilities Commission the price of the imported gas goes up this Friday. The rate increase, if approved in full by the commission, would mean an 11 1/2 per cent rate hike for residential users.

But Grimm said the company cannot absorb the price hike without cutting into what he termed an already controversial fiscal level.

William Wenger, PUC director of accounting and finance, took issue with a portion of the requested increase dealing with $142,000 worth of company used and unaccounted for gas which is passed on to the rate payers.

Wenger said the percentage of company-used gas compared with total purchases rose from 8 per cent last year to an estimated 13 per cent this year — a difference of $8.50.

He made two recommendations:

- That the commission consider the entire $142,000 as operating expense — to be defrayed to a later general rate case.
- Or that the commission subtract the increased amount of company and unaccounted for gas which would amount to $81,510.

Company attorneys countered that the cost of gas which is at issue in the case now before the commission is considered an operating expense so both cost increases can be dealt with at the same time.

The commission has taken the case under advisement.

Paul farmer sentenced

BOISE (UPI) — Federal Judge Fred Taylor has sentenced Blaine Jones, a Paul, Idaho, farmer, to 60 days in jail and fined him $2,000 for income tax evasion. Jones earlier pleaded guilty to a charge of willfully attempting to evade his income tax liability for 1970. A similar charge for 1969 was dismissed. Jones said in jail he was sorry for what he had done. He said that while in jail he will try to help others who are in jail.

Vandalism reported

TWIN FALLS — Vandalism was reported to Twin Falls police today by officials of the Twin Falls School District and Valley Christian Church. Police reported someone used a sprinkler head to break out seven windows in four rooms on the north side of the high school sometime between Wednesday evening and Thursday morning. No estimate of damage has been made.

At the Valley Christian Church, 1700 Heyburn Ave. E., officers said someone broke two window panes and gained entry to the building. All areas of the church were ransacked, but church officials said an inventory would be necessary to determine missing items.

Cattlemen plan picnic

JEROME — The annual picnic of the Magic Valley Cattlemen's Association will be held Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Jerome County Fairgrounds. All members, their families and friends are invited to attend. Each member is asked to bring a cake or salad and their own table service.

Ram sale opens Saturday

FILER — Rams are beginning to arrive at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds for the 5th annual Idaho Wool Growers ram sale which opens Saturday at 9:45 a.m. in the livestock building.

L. Williams, wool growers executive secretary, said about 600 top quality rams will be offered from 45 selected breeders. Most of the rams are Suffolk with others including Hampshire, Suffolk-Hampshire cross, Columbias, Panamas and even a few Finns and at least one Dorset ram will be featured. Buyers from throughout Southern Idaho and adjoining states are expected to participate in the event.

In addition to the sale, the Idaho Wool Growers Association board of directors will hold a meeting at the fairgrounds following the sale. There will also be a luncheon Saturday for the Wool Growers.

Promoted

BOISE (UPI) — Gordon I. Shore, 53, assistant adjutant general for the Idaho Army National Guard, has been promoted to brigadier general.

The Lappal native was named post commander at Gowen Field in 1963 and served in that position until his recent promotion.

Boycott planned at BSU

BOISE (UPI) — A group of students, staff and faculty are planning to boycott the new parking program which goes into effect at Boise State University Friday.

Under the system, approved by the State Board of Education, choice on-campus parking spots will be rented for $30. Leaflets protesting the new system were put on cars at the university by students and staff Wednesday. They criticize several aspects of the new system, including the price and the fact that only a few hundred spaces are available for thousands of persons.

Cenarrusa to represent Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa has accepted an invitation to represent Idaho at the National Folk Festival Friday through Sunday at Wolftrap in Vienna, Va. The festival is held each year for the purpose of identifying, exhibiting, preserving and encouraging folk music, dances, tales and other native and imported folk expressions. A feature of this year's event will be appearances by the Idaho Olmirk-Basque dancing group. Secretary and Mrs. Cenarrusa will accompany the troupe to Wolftrap, leaving Boise at noon today and returning Sunday evening.

Boise woman injured

BOISE (UPI) — Janean Bagley, Boise, was listed in critical condition at St. Alphonsus Hospital today from injuries received in a two-car accident Wednesday morning. State police said a car driven by Bagley and one driven by Ann J. Davis, Boise, collided at the intersection of Maple Grove Road and Fairview Avenue. Miss Bagley was pinned inside her car after it rolled over the impact of the collision. Mrs. Davis escaped injury in the accident.

River search continues

MURPHY, Idaho (UPI) — Ground units continued down river from Bull Basin today in an effort to find two Boise men who apparently drowned in the Owyhee River when their canoe capsized.

Robert Noble, 27, and Jim Rainey, 36, entered the river July 19 at the El Paso Natural Gas Co. pipeline about 35 miles east of the Idaho-Oregon border. They expected to conclude their excursion at Three Forks four days later. Saturday, one half of their canoe and nearly all of their equipment were found lodged against a boulder in the river.

Emergency levy eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Kindergarten pupils may not be used in computing a school district's emergency levy, Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell said today. In an opinion prepared by Deputy Attorney General James R. Hargis for Public Instruction Superintendent Roy T. Tully, the attorney general said the question is whether the addition of the five-year-olds under Idaho's new kindergarten law creates an emergency.

Magazine set Friday

Beginning tomorrow, the Times-News IDAHO Magazine supplement will appear in the Friday addition of the newspaper. The change from Sunday to Friday is being made to provide better weekend entertainment coverage for our readers. The magazine will continue to feature TV schedules for the week. The Times-News hopes the expanded Friday edition of IDAHO Magazine will better serve subscribers.

Blaine land sales questioned under five acres are sold, or offered for sale. Under the county ordinance, any division of land must come before the county planning and zoning group. The Gimlet land sales are of immediate importance because two of three county commissioners said Monday they will probably vote for approval soon on four subdivisions under consideration in Gimlet.

Planning and zoning administrator, Alan Reynolds, has turned over 11 warranty deeds recorded by the county in Gimlet to DuPont. At least four of the deeds are for land under five acres. The others do not give the acreage. County Assessor Del Nicholson, after a search of his records this morning, said ten of the deeds in question are land sales that are not in approved subdivisions.

DuPont said the land sales appear to be in violation of both county ordinance and state code. However, only one deed turned over to DuPont was recorded within the past year. That deed, to Walter R. Wright Jr., Sun Valley, was filed May 30, 1975. According to DuPont the statute of limitations for a misdemeanor in the statute code extends only one year from the time the alleged misdemeanor was committed.

DuPont says it appears the statute of limitations has run out on the other deeds. DuPont said he hasn't researched the case sufficiently to bring charges. He is also researching deeds to land sold by Gerald Sherman and Robert Ratto, both Bellevue, and John Koppes and M.D. Dean, both Hailey. The county commissioners are to meet with DuPont Friday before approving the Gimlet subdivisions.

DuPont thinks the commissioners can approve the subdivisions without facing liability even though they are aware the land sale question is in doubt. He said he will suggest to the commissioners that a full accounting of all land sales by Ted Toren be given on subdivisions 5, 9 and 10, and subdivision 11, owned by California Harry Rinker.

The planning and zoning commission has placed restrictions on the subdivisions. DuPont said land sales of any recorded may be without those restrictions. He said the commissioners should ask Toren to provide all names and land sales involved and sold prior to approval of the four proposed subdivisions so all lots are in conformance with the recent suggested restrictions.

Road fill blocks Rock Creek Canyon at Blue Lakes Boulevard South

Property owners legal in canyon fill projects

By CRICKET BIRD Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Seeking to "improve" their land by filling the canyon with dirt and rocks apparently aren't breaking any laws. Several property owners and the county highway district have undertaken massive filling projects in the canyon, creating new land masses in and across the canyon.

Apparently few if any regulations prevent landowners all along the canyon from filling their land and bringing it to the elevation of the rim rock. Some of the most obvious filling sites are the South Blue Lakes Boulevard canyon crossing, a new crossing west of Independent Mead Co. and a fill area at Robinson's Family Drive-In.

Instead of bridges most road crossings of the canyon are made-of-wide-dirt fills, which stretch through the canyon rims. The creek has been channeled through the fills in culverts.

At Robinson's, as at other private sites, the fill is designed to provide additional building space at rim rock level. Owner Joe Robinson has had arrangements for local firms to dump fill material at the site for several years.

According to local officials, no regulations prohibit the fill operation on private land, as long as proper fill material is used. County zoning administrator Ed Woods said he didn't know anything that would stop a property owner from filling his land in the canyon, as long as city or county officials were informed of the project. David Richey, planner for the Joint City-County Planning Council, said no regulations prohibit the canyon filling now, but he added regulations could be imposed on the canyon because it is a natural God-made feature.

"Rock Creek canyon" is an interesting little place," Richey said, and added he felt it would be unfortunate if the community loses that. "It becomes boxed up so that it's not a canyon but a series of holes."

One problem occurs because Rock Creek has not officially been judged as a navigable river, which would put it under state jurisdiction, although it would likely fall into this category. Property ownership thus extends in some cases to the mid-stream point, and in others, clear across the creek.

In addition to aesthetic considerations, extensive filling of Rock Creek Canyon may present problems during flood stages.

"The canyon area has been identified as a 'flood prone' area by the U.S. Geological Survey, but no 100-year flood marks or other specific data have been established as yet. Both the city and county are waiting for federal engineers to designate flood plain areas, required as part of the federal flood insurance program. When the flood plains are detailed, it might mean more restriction on building in and alteration of the Rock Creek Canyon area, according to Woods.

The danger of natural floods is less significant than the possibility—the canyon could serve as a runoff for the Twin Falls Canal Co. According to its attorney, the canal company holds the flood easement for Rock Creek. In preparing the county's comprehensive plan, Richey said no specific regulations governing fill are proposed. But he added the plan recommended bridges, not fill, wherever roads needed to cross the canyon.

Wagon train sets GF stop

GLENN'S FERRY — The public is invited to view the Bicentennial Wagon Train at the Three Island Crossing State Park here Aug. 7. The six wagons will be in the Elmore County Fair parade the afternoon of Aug. 7 and a patriotic play portraying the birth of the nation wagon during the evening at the state park, according to Jan Belliston of Three Island State Park.

Regional port study completed

BURLEY — The Environmental Impact Study for the proposed Southern Idaho Regional Airport has been completed, showing full approval of the project by 14 separate state and federal agencies.

The study, completed by the Federal Aviation Administration, has been a full year in the making. Completed copies have now been made available to city and county libraries, county commissioners, city administrators and chambers of commerce.

"We want this statement, probably the most important single event in the history of the project to date, to be available to all citizens and taxing units in the seven-county region," said George Forscher, chairman of SIRA (Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority).

Counties involved in the region include Jerome, Lincoln, Gooding, Cassia and Nimitz.

Meanwhile, Darrell Manning, Idaho Transportation Department director, announces he has asked the Division of Aeronautics and Worthle Rascher, public transportation administrator, to have his staff investigate the possibility of assisting SIRA in development of a multi-model, multi-use facility at the proposed airport site.

He said in addition to preparing the development plan, methods will be established to encourage both compatible and complementary land uses on land around the airport facility.

Manning said the department has in mind industries or businesses that would complement air transportation and which would not be affected by noise and which would benefit from close proximity to the airport.

He said division personnel will be working closely with Economic Development Administration offices in Boise and Seattle in carrying out the study.

Forscher said Technology in Action in Progress (TAP Inc. Billings, Mont.), has begun assembly of the master plan for the regional airport. This will include detailed engineering on the design and location of the proposed field. It will require another year to complete this plan after which the project will be ready to submit to the counties of South-Central Idaho for review and acceptance.

The proposed regional airport is to be located in Jerome County south of Interstate Highway 80 and east of the U.S. Highway 93 at the junction of the two main routes. It would be a mile northeast of the Perrine Bridge in what the airport authority feels is the most logical location for the entire valley and adjacent to all major rail and highway arterials.

Cost to local taxpayers, Forscher said, would be minimal under present federal regional airport programs under the FAA. The federal government would provide $3.65 per cent of the overall construction costs and about 50 per cent of the local remaining share will be advanced by the Idaho Aeronautics Commission.

Consumers will shoulder price increases

By JOYCE CARPENTER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Any wholesale price increases for sugar and flour will eventually be passed on to the consumer, according to two local supermarket managers.

Roger Jones, manager of Bullseye Foods, said today that the recently announced wholesale price increase for sugar will affect his store's prices right away. "Sugar went up $3 a hundred on what I received today," Jones said. He said this will mean a price increase of 20 cents per pound bag in the store.

"Sugar has 'come down' a long way," Jones said, adding he hopes the price will eventually level out. In referring to the eventual effect of announced increases by General Mills and Am-star, the nation's largest sugar producer, Jones said, "It's pretty hard to make any type of guess."

The wholesale price of a 5-pound bag of grocery sugar rose to $1.64 from $1.54 two weeks ago, according to a report of United Press International. The wire service report said the price was as low as $1.21 on July 1.

General Mills announced a 1.6 cents per pound raise in wholesale flour prices effective Friday. The flour price increase will affect only flour purchased in grocery shops, not bulk flour used for mass production of bread and other bakery products.

A spokesman for Pillsbury said his company will wait until the Aug. 11 U. S. Dept. of Agriculture report comes out before deciding whether to increase its prices for flour. Some authorities predict higher prices for bread because of the Russian wheat purchases.

An Amstar spokesman said he expects to see sugar prices decrease somewhat again this fall due to a record worldwide crop of sugar beets.

Marion Swenson, manager of Swenson's Market, Main Ave., said "We will just have to raise the prices of things." If the wholesale prices rise, he said usually a grocer buys a certain amount ahead and the price doesn't change until he runs out of his stock.

"Sugar is down quite a bit from what it was and flour is quite reasonable," Swenson said. "It is a supply and demand situation and if we do this panic buying, the soft drink companies have lowered their prices as the price of sugar decreased and he expects to see those prices go back up as the wholesale price of sugar increases.

He said the price of processed foods such as fruits and cereals has just started to decrease and he didn't expect to see an increase in those items for a while since it takes longer for product cost fluctuations to be reflected in such items.

Swenson said he thinks labor is one of the biggest factors in determining the cost of processed foods and that factors in product cost probably won't make as much difference in the cost of food items as increases in labor costs.

He said most companies are aware of how unstable the market is and have planned accordingly.

The livestock judging contest will be Aug. 7 at 8:30 a.m., followed by the quality judging of all 4-H livestock. Fitting and showing of these animals will begin at 9 a.m. Aug. 8.

Fund hike proposed by Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho's share of sewage treatment funds would jump 77 per cent under a proposal approved by the Senate Tuesday.

The revised formula approved by the Senate Tuesday for allocation of $9 billion in federal sewage treatment funds would reduce the amounts allocated for 17 states and increase the amounts for 33 states.

The revision would for the first time take population into account as well as need.

Previously approved by Congress, the bill under consideration by President Ford, the funds are intended to help states and localities modernize their sewage treatment facilities.

Here is how states, grouped according to regions, would fare under the proposed new formula. The first figure after the state name is the amount allocated under the existing formula, and the second figure is the estimated gain or loss under the revised formula. The figures are in millions of dollars.

- Regions
- Montana — 12.4, gain 9.4; Utah 21.4, gain 30.6; Wyoming 2.9, gain 13.8.
- Region 9
- Arizona 18.8, gain 69.5; California 345.8, lose 52.7; Hawaii 9, gain 10.4; Nevada 31.8, gain 1.9.
- Region 10
- Alaska 25.3, gain 16.9; Idaho 19.2, gain 14.8; Oregon 77.6, gain 5.9; Washington 103.9, gain 38.1.

Judge selected

FAIRFIELD — Judge Charles W. Packham, Camas County, has been selected to attend a judicial education course conducted by the National College of the State Judiciary in Reno, Nev.

The basic two-week course, which will be conducted Aug. 2-15, will include study of up-to-date procedures to help in further improving the administration of justice in Idaho.

Judge Packham has served in Camas County for the past four and one-half years.

Funds for the course are provided by a grant from the Idaho Law Enforcement Planning Commission.

Gem facility termed progressive

BOISE — The Idaho Youth Service Center at St. Anthony has been unofficially termed the most progressive such center in the nation.

According to an article in the current issue of HOPE Magazine, published by the Mental Health Association of Idaho, Bebe, the former youth facility has undergone considerable change from the "vision of bars and gray, unironed prison uniforms."

The new service module treatment program when completely implemented, will be the basis for one of the most progressive Youth Service Centers in the nation, according to the article written by Rusty Broughton, Idaho Falls, director of mental health services in Region VII, Department of Health and Welfare.

She said there are perhaps half a dozen facilities nationally that are pursuing the intensive treatment approach on a completely integrated basis and "by current unofficial comparisons in the field, the Idaho Youth Center has achieved the best inter-disciplinary treatment, team balance and cooperation."

The inter-disciplinary approach began in 1956 at the institution, long known as the Idaho Industrial Reform School, with primary emphasis on vocational rehabilitation.

Boston gate reaches million

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox Wednesday reached the 1,000,000 mark in attendance in their 50th home game of the season.

A crowd of 33,850 attended the afternoon game against the Milwaukee Brewers, bringing 1975 attendance to 1,005,397.

Last year, the Red Sox did not reach the 1,000,000 mark until their 54th home date. A total of 1,556,411 fans saw games at Fenway Park in 1974.

Kingman earns NL honors

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A seven home run outburst over a 12 game stretch after the All-Star break earned Dave Kingman of the New York Mets the National League's Player of the Week award for the period, July 17-27.

Kingman's spree raised his home run total to 22 for the season. During the spree, Kingman also had 14 runs batted in and compiled a .333 batting average.

Packers suspend Ellis

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Green Bay Packers Coach and General Manager Bart Starr Wednesday suspended veteran cornerback Ken Ellis after Ellis failed to appear at training camp.

Ellis had left camp last Friday over contract differences, but showed up for the team breakfast and morning practice Tuesday. However, he was not at the Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday practices.

Starr said the suspension was the only alternative the club had. He had announced Monday that Ellis would be fined $300 for every day he missed training camp.

Starr refused to comment further, but had called Tuesday's events a "confusing, perplexing situation."

Webster injures foot

DENVER (UPI) — The Denver Nuggets said Wednesday that 7-foot, 1-inch rookie center Marvin Webster suffered a bone chip in his right foot during a clinic in his hometown of Baltimore, Md., Tuesday night.

His physician in Baltimore said the injury was "not serious."

"The injury is expected to heal in sufficient time for Webster to prepare for the Nuggets fall training camp which will be in late September," said a Nuggets spokesman.

The spokesman said a short leg cast was applied to the foot as a "precautionary measure" and Webster was expected to wear it for three to four weeks.

The Nuggets announced the acquisition of 7-foot, 1-inch Jimmy Foster from the Spirits of St. Louis in exchange for a future Denver draft choice.

Bullock breaks leg

GOLLETA, CALIF. (UPI) — Rookie running back Wayne Bullock of Notre Dame, fifth draft choice of the San Francisco 49ers, broke his leg Wednesday during a passing drill.

It was not immediately known how long Bullock would be out with the injury but it appeared unlikely he would be able to play football this season since the break was in his lower right leg.

The injury came as Bullock was running a pass pattern and apparently caught his cleats in the turf.

Colts release Orduna

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Former Nebraska running back Joe Orduna is a free agent today after the Baltimore Colts released him Wednesday because of a National Football League team claimed him from the waiver list.

The number two draft choice in 1971 by the San Francisco 49ers, Orduna played on Colt specialty teams last year. He also played with the New York Giants, who claimed him on waivers in 1972.

Orduna led national champion Nebraska in 1970, rushing 884 yards and scoring 14 touchdowns.

Tanana slates surgery

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Southpaw Frank Tanana, who leads the majors in strike outs, will undergo surgery on his right hand Thursday and will be out of action for 12 days, the California Angels reported Wednesday.

Tanana, who leads the majors with 165 strike outs, will be operated on for repair of a fracture of the second joint of the little finger on his right hand.

He was injured in the first inning against Chicago Monday night when a line drive by Pat Kelly hit him in the hand. He went the distance but lost the game 3-2.

Channel beads paralyzed swimmer

FOLKESTONE, England (UPI) — Jack Robertson, paralyzed from the waist down, swam for 18 hours in the English channel Wednesday but failed to make it to France.

Don Phillabaum, manager for the Ohio-born school teacher, gave up at 11:30 p.m. (14:30 p.m. EDT) a half-mile from the French coast. He said Robertson was beset by a late-start, foggy conditions and adverse tides.

"Jack swam like a champion," Phillabaum said. "But he just couldn't make it." They returned to the English coast shortly before 2 a.m. Thursday to a welcome from Robertson's parents.

"He is very tired and we'll have to sleep on it before deciding if we're going to make another attempt," Phillabaum said.

Supergame TV replay okayed

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Football League has agreed to allow the New Orleans Saints to telecast instant replays in their new Superdome while games are in progress this season, a spokesman for the NFL said Wednesday.

"We will permit the use of instant replay in any stadium that has the same capabilities," the spokesman said. "At present, only the Superdome has this capability." In other stadia, replays had previously been used during the quarter and halftime intervals.

"We will not authorize a simulcast (direct live full telecast) during the game because it would affect the game itself and it doesn't enhance any play for the spectator," the spokesman added.

Lefty Tim Martin spun a two-hitter Wednesday night when the Buhl Legion nipped Twin Falls 2-0 to remain the only undefeated team in the district tournament.

Martin gave up a double to Bob Jackson in the third and a single to Gary Huff in the ninth and walked only a couple of men. Still he was locked in a scoreless duel with Twin Falls' Gary Miller until the seventh inning.

Miller deserved a better fate in the crisply-played hour and 50 minute sparker. Both Buhl men conceivably could have gone unscathed.

Martin brought the deciding run home when he started off the seventh with a long fly to leftfield. Huff made a leaping try for the ball and had it in his glove for a split second. It bounced out. It would have been a spectacular catch, but possible.

The next Buhl man sent Martin to third by grounding to the right side and Pat Hamilton then bounced a Pro Clyde Thomson and son Jeff Thomson went 62-61 for second place but the hot round of the second day was posted by Boise pro Ray Honsberger and amateur Jeff Thomas who combined for a 58. They shared third spot with Pro Al Jones and Val Toolson of Rupert, both at 124.

Tied at 126 were pro Rich Hutchins and Harold Schweigert, Boise, and pro Jim Packard and Carl Hoss, Twin Falls.

The ad which ran in Times-News Sun., July 27 for Potato Growers of Idaho should also have included the following line: "less than other settled pre-season contracts."

ATTENTION ALL POTATO GROWERS

Potato Growers of Idaho, Inc. in keeping with its commitment to keep you informed would like to make the following announcement.

During the past week negotiations have been taking place with Lamb Weston. After several attempts to reach agreement on a pre-season contract, the management of Lamb Weston decided to take their proposal directly to you, the grower, and by now you have received a letter in the mail. This letter was mailed last Saturday, even before the PGI bargaining committee could be contacted, and is directly opposite what the management of Lamb Weston had agreed to do. This same proposal was rejected by the PGI Lamb Weston bargaining committee because of not meeting the requirements of other pre-season contracts previously settled with Eastern Idaho processors and shippers.

Lamb Weston proposed a base price of $3.50 per cwt. Other settled pre-season contracts also have a base price of $3.50 per cwt.; however - Lamb Weston will pay out 28% per cwt. less than other pre-season contracts.

The differences in the contracts are:

Lamb Weston proposed starting incentives and decentives on U.S. No. 1's at 55%. Other settled pre-season contracts start at 50%.

Lamb Weston proposed incentives and decentives of 1' per cwt. per percent. Others settled pre-season contracts have 1 1/2' per percent.

Lamb Weston proposed incentives and decentives on 10 oz. starting at 22% of 1 1/2' per percent. Other settled pre-season contracts have 2' per percent.

Lamb Weston proposes a minimum size of 1 5/8" in diameter. Other settled pre-season contracts have 1 1/2" in diameter.

Lamb Weston proposed U.S. No. 2 processor grade. Other settled pre-season contracts have U.S. No. 2 processor grade as modified, giving the grower an additional 5% more payable potatoes.

Lamb Weston has also proposed revision of the rejection clauses making them more stringent.

Do you feel that it's a privilege to grow potatoes for Lamb Weston for 28% per cwt. less than other processors. Why take less for your crop than your neighbor will receive from another processor?

The PGI Lamb Weston bargaining committee is continuing negotiations with Lamb Weston and is always available and ready to bargain on a fair and equitable basis.

Namath signs pro grid's richest pact

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — Well-tanned, healthy and very, very rich, Joe Namath today was as happy as he could be.

Why not? He's the proud possessor of the richest contract in pro football—and he hasn't been hit yet.

Maybe in a few weeks I'll have an assortment of helmets and trunks," the grinning Namath said Wednesday after signing a two-year contract with the New York Jets worth an estimated $5.5 million.

Right now I feel physically good and my right knee just doesn't have the pain in it that it used to.

"Physically, I'm ready to play now. Mentally, I'm not ready yet."

The 32-year-old quarterback admitted he had no compromise on his original salary demands for an 11th year, but this is a sacrifice he was well able to afford after signing a 20-year contract earlier this month with a cosmetics company that will bring him $250,000 annually.

In addition, Namath has numerous other commercial deals, so it isn't too surprising that he refrains from becoming emotional in discussing his jet contract.

After all, it's only a few weeks since he rejected a $4 million offer from the World Football League.

"Years ago, when I first signed a contract, I was excited and pleased that I got more than anyone else," he said. "Now I can't think about money and what people get paid. I'm just glad to be the highest paid player in football. It's nice, but I'm not going to dwell on it."

Namath contends that quarterbacking has become a more difficult job in the last few years because of the reasons, both he and the Jets got off to such a poor start in 1974 when they lost seven of their first eight games.

"There is more of an emphasis on a quarterback to think better than he had to in '74 or '75," he said. "The defenses are more sophisticated and you've always got to be alert. My mind wasn't all on it during the first half of last year, and that hurt us. I made a lot of mistakes, and I know I can do better."

In preparing for the Sept. 21 National Football League start, Namath is encouraged by two major factors: He is coming off his first injury-free year in a long time, and the Jets closed out 1974 with a rush, winning their last six games.

"We have a lot of potential, but we have to go out and prove it," Namath said. "I'm sure I'll play better this year."

to award Bryant to Detroit. Ferguson said Aug. 12 to hear arguments on whether to issue a preliminary injunction, which would mean the Rams would still have jurisdiction over Bryant.

The 24-year-old veteran, contending for the No. 1 running back job with the Rams, said he did not want to go to Detroit and "sit on the bench" Tuesday to ask for a restraining order.

Ferguson said Bryant was "entitled to better treatment" and also said the "economic power of the NFL has become... truly awesome."

The judge added: "The awesome control of the commissioner may be necessary for efficient management of the league... but the rule of reason is not merely wiped aside by such necessity."

Judge delays Bryant deal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Running back Cullen Bryant won a reprieve from being forced to leave the Los Angeles Rams and play for the Detroit Lions — but only temporarily.

U.S. District Court Judge Warren J. Ferguson Wednesday issued a temporary restraining order halting the assignment of Bryant to the Lions on the grounds that the National Football League's Option Compensatory Rule, also known as the Roselle Rule, was a violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Under the rule, a team must compensate another team for acquiring its free agent.

Bryant was awarded to the Lions by Commissioner Pete Roselle in exchange for receiver Ron Jessie, who played out his option last year with Detroit and was signed by the Rams.

The Rams and Lions were unable to come to terms for Jessie, and Roselle stepped in.

Sun fields stronger team

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (UPI) — Head Coach Tom Fears says the Southern California Sun of the World Football League is a stronger and better team but that the squad is currently hampered by injuries.

The Sun won the Western Division championship last year and finished the season with a 13-7 mark.

"We're probably 50 per cent better this year. We're much stronger at running back and at quarterback. And defensively, we're a better team," Fears said at his weekly news conference Wednesday.

Stars use secret drill to install game plan

CHICAGO (UPI) — The 1975 College All Stars, coached by John McKay of Southern California, had only one day to put in their game plan for Friday night's nationally televised contest against the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

McKay, his team a 17-point underdog, kept his practices open until Wednesday and refrained from scrimmaging his squad. But on Wednesday he kept the pro scouts, as well as the fans, outside the screened fences at Northwestern's Doye Stadium.

"We just kind of went over our game plans, walked through it on the field, and put what we wanted to do in various areas of the field," McKay said. "On Wednesday we just had too many distractions, so many damn people on the field."

McKay used a formula of simplicity to prepare the All Stars for their 10-minute games against the pros. "You can't get too complicated," he said. "We have so many kids from various systems and they've been working out with the pro teams and know the camps as just has to be simple."

McKay went to the well to get to Pittsburgh to make a mistake, that's all.

The starting lineups for the Stars could remain uncertain until game time since some of the better players have stretched muscles or muscle pulls.

"If they're ready to go, they'll start because they are the better people at their positions, and if they aren't ready to go, they won't start," McKay said.

Some positions—though, were established, among them California's Steve Bartkowski, the nation's leading college passer last year, at quarterback, and Stan Winfrey, from Arkansas State, a 5-11 fullback who tips 223 pounds on a freepug build.

"Tallback is kind of up in the air," McKay said. "I don't know whether I'll use Walter Payton's elbow. I don't know how well it is—it was badly swollen, but it's gone down a bit. He normally would start, but I don't know whether he will."

McKay said that the production of the pro rule prohibiting interior lineman from going into the backfield is a problem for his squad.

"Getting them to slow down and not go down quickly has been driving the coaches and players both crazy," he said.

The offensive line "looks as good as any I've ever seen when he tutored the All Stars to a 14-3 loss to Miami, he said, and added "we have a good solid defensive football team."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, AUGUST 1, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Do practical jobs. Take care of statements, accounts, etc. Discuss improvements at your residence with your family.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't spend all that money for pleasure as you'd like to do, or you will regret it. Be happy with loved one in p.m.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Consider what should you do to gain your finest aim, then go after them, but write measured pace to avoid confusion.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Analyze your position in the world of affairs so you can improve it intelligently. Show more devotion and generosity to mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get in touch with good pals you have not seen in some time and something fine will come of this. Avoid a meddler.

DEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle career matter more intelligently if it is to work out satisfactorily. Involve yourself in civic work that can be helpful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show others you are ready for expansion since you have new ideas and points of view. Make new contacts of worth.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Fine day to get rid of that obligation that has been bothering you for some time. An especially happy p.m. with loved ones.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Have long talk with associates as you've been wanting to do for some time and reach a new understanding of mutual civic matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Forget fun things. Get at all those accumulated duties and they are soon out of the way. Take health treatments.

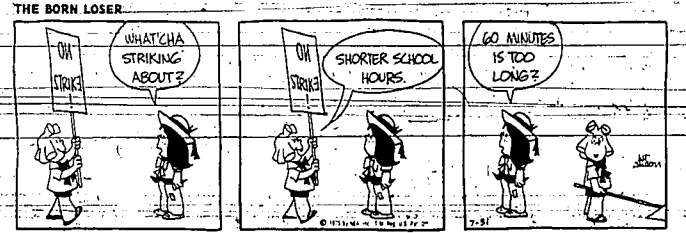

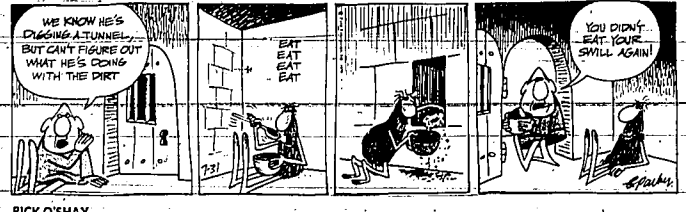

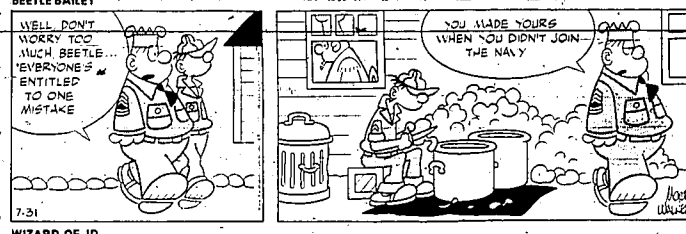

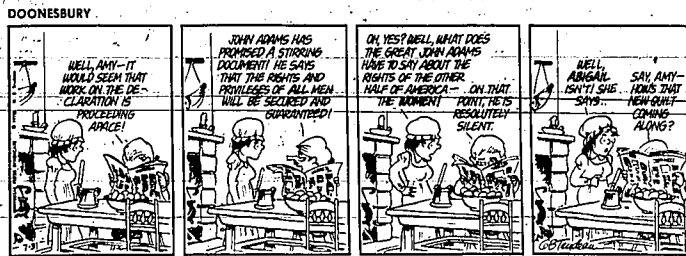

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get together with those you love and increase your happiness during spare time. Your creativity is high and can be expressed well.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Home affairs require more attention since you have new information, plan and start. Get into some new outfit that can be successful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to take that short trip that will give you the data you need. Handle communications. Be on your toes.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will comprehend the overall picture of any important enterprise and have fine management qualities, plus a practical know-how to carry through with projects. So slant the education along lines that will combine such qualities admirably. Teach early to make up the mind more quickly, or others will get ahead of your fine progeny. Ethical training early, also.

Client asks how an Indian snake charmer can charm a cobra by playing a flute in light of the widely known fact that said snake is deaf. Pretty tricky. A snake like that will strike at the nearest warm or moving object. And it will only strike a prescribed distance in proportion to the length of its body, depending on the container it's rising out of. To make the snake sit up and look around, the charmer taps on the ground to send vibrations. To make the snake wave and bob, the charmer himself waves and bobs, now a little closer and now a little farther away. If the charmer were to make the mistake of getting too close, the snake would strike the end of the flute. That's what the flute is for. To protect the charmer's hands and face.

ABUSED WORDS
The three most abused words in retail advertisements, according to a Better Business Bureau official, are "selling elsewhere for."

BETWEEN 1087 and 1700 in England, any man condemned to death there could save his life by proving he could read the first verse of the 51st Psalm; I'm told.

THAT BIG CITY with the cleanest air in this country is said to be San Antonio. Surprised to hear it. Thought San Diego or Seattle merited that distinction.

MOTHER GOOSE
Q. "Was there ever a real Mother Goose?"
A. Indeed - Born in 1665, Elizabeth Foster grew up to marry Isaac Goose in 1693 at Boston. She wrote a lot of songs to sing to her grandchildren. Her son-in-law Thomas Fleet published them in 1719. She died in 1757 at age 92.

CONSIDER yourself a Seasoned Citizen, too, if you remember when the feed-mills put out their livestock-grub in dress print bags. Around 1940 it was, as I recall, a lot of girls walked around in smocks made out of those feed sacks.

DURING WORLD WAR II, the U.S. Army claimed it developed a two-way homing pigeon. That is, a fancy bird that not only would fly to its assigned destination, but would turn around then and come back. Some bird.

Idaho crops make gains

BOISE (UPI) — Persistence above normal temperatures continued crop development at a rapid rate in Idaho this past week, a federal crop report said today.

Scattered hail storms caused damage in some local areas, however, and rains are needed in many of the dryland areas. Hayling, irrigation and working summer fallow grounds are some of the more busier farm activities at present.

Winter wheat harvest is under way in early fields in the north and some lowland elevation fields in the southern part of the state. For the state, six per cent of the winter wheat crop is ripe at this time — compared with 21 per cent last year.

About 20 per cent of the spring wheat has turned but only a limited acreage in the southwest is ripe. Last year at this time, 39 per cent had turned and 12 per cent was ripe.

Only a few early fields of winter rye are ripe. Last year, 20 per cent were.

farm Stockman backs joining efforts

GREILEY, Colo. (UPI) — William H. Webster, who is stepping down as president of the Colorado Cattle Feeders Association, says he still admires individualists, but believes it is essential for members of the cattle industry to join together to protect their livelihood.

Webster, in a farewell message in the organization's newsletter, said he had had "considerable sleepless hours" because of wildly fluctuating price trends, the inflationary spiral, the attitude of some consumers and the impact of state and national legislation.

"We have always admired the rugged individualist and we still do," Webster said. "But he is now faced with the prospect of working with others in his field, as well as others who are not acquainted with his field of endeavor. It has become a part of the big picture and must work with others in order to maintain his nature."

Webster said cattlemen were involved in "one of the most viable, interesting and necessary businesses to be found" and it is of great importance to all of us in this industry to recognize that we are now in the mainstream of the world trade.

The association spokesman said his group had been active in the last session of the Colorado legislature to win passage of a bill to reduce the tax on livestock from 13 per cent to 5 per cent of actual value. The bill died in the closing days of the session.

"But, me, this has pointed up the need for the cattle industry to become more deeply involved in those factors that affect our industry," Webster said. "We can no longer have a few dedicated members of our industry to carry the load, as is easier carried if the weight is more evenly distributed, and all of us have the responsibility to do our share. We are earning our living from an industry, and we should become active in it in order to help ourselves."

BLM planning Utah roundup in autumn

CEDAR CITY, Utah (UPI) — The Bureau of Land Management may have its first wild horse roundup in Utah this fall.

The BLM says since 1971 wild-horse herds have been increasing about 20 per cent each year in Utah. The latest count shows approximately 1,600 wild horses on national resource lands in the state.

Paul L. Howard, BLM state director, said a roundup is being considered in the Cedar City BLM District. He said increased grazing pressure by wild horses is being felt on the ranges in Iron and Beaver counties.

Howard said wild horse herds in the state have expanded rapidly since passage of the Wild Horse and Burro Act of 1971. "Now they are competing with livestock and wildlife for the available range in southwestern Utah."

The BLM's Cedar City District is developing a wild horse management plan. The plan will identify the number of animals to be removed from the range. If approved at public hearings and by the director of BLM, a roundup could be held this fall.

Howard said, "Any captured horses would be available for individual use under a cooperative maintenance agreement with the federal government. Under this program, the government retains ownership of the horses, but individuals can keep and use them."

Hazard claim ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A major producer of agricultural pesticides has agreed to quit claiming its products are hazardous to humans.

The Federal Trade Commission said today that FMC Corp. of Chicago has agreed with the FTC under which the firm is prohibited from saying its pesticides are non-toxic and free of hazards to humans.

The FTC said the firm's advertising campaign included claims that its products are "safe" and "harmless" to humans, birds, fish or the environment, the agency said.

In addition, the settlement will require a warning notice included in any promotional material where a claim is made "for safety or environmental impact."

The warning would read: "Stop! All pesticides can be harmful to humans and the environment. Read the label carefully and use only as directed."

FMC has more agricultural pesticides registered with the federal government than any free of hazards to humans. Its products include "Paraquat," "Albion," "Thionon," "Sine," and "Polymor."

If the FTC has arrived to own public hearings to check the opportunities in today's Classified Ads.

Is it really necessary to run an ad more than once to get results?

That's a good question...

There have been, of course, ads which obtained results on just one appearance in the newspaper, but this is rare. The average time span is 3-1/2 days. This is a relatively short time to find a cash buyer for most items. However, three and a half weeks can be a very long time for people in need of the cash the sale of any item will bring. This is why your best approach is to run an ad each day, cancelling after the advertised time has been sold. This not only assures you of quicker results, it also lets you run your ad at the lowest rate.

You'll find it easy and inexpensive to advertise with us. Just call the number shown below. We will help you word your ad for maximum response.
