SECRETARY of State Henry Kissinger and Sen. Frank Church, Idaho, talk with reporters Tuesday after Kissinger appeared before the Senate committee investigating the CIA. Today, Church sat in a television interview the committee will go to court if the White House continues to refuse to release documents it wants from the Nixon administration. (UPI)

Sinai pullback pact near

By United Press International Israel studied Egypt's response to its proposals for a second military pullback in Sinai Wednesday. Agreement appeared nearer but Israeli sources said further clarifications will be sought from Washington before any final decision is made.

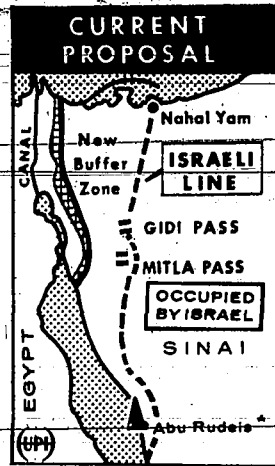

willingness to withdraw from the Mitla Pass in a new agreement that he said will pull back Israeli forces up to 32 miles from the Suez Canal. In the interview, Sadat referred to the current round of American-mediated negotiations and said, "Arabs who read about proposals coming and going would think something was being cooked in the dark."

"But the fact is that our demands which we defined from the beginning with withdrawal from the passes and oil fields, are still the same. It is not our stand which has changed. It is the Israeli intransigence which has changed," he said.

Israeli sources said Rabin's disclosure was made to assure the nervous nation that a withdrawal from the strategic pass would not impair Israel's security.

Poor trench work stirs sewer fuss

By DAVID HÖRSMAN Times-News writer TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls is threatening to halt treatment of Kimberly's sewage if Kimberly does not correct allegedly poor workmanship on a sewer-line trench along Addison Avenue East.

"I do not view such an agreement as dangerous, and anyone trying to define a proposed withdrawal as a disaster for the state is only sowing panic," Rabin told members of kibbutz (communal settlement) Hazerim in the Negev late Tuesday.

A top level Israeli delegation, led by Dinitz, is holding daily meetings with Under Secretary of State Joseph Sisco and aides to draft language of a new agreement for later submission to Egypt.

Document demand unfair, White House aide claims

© Chicago Daily News WASHINGTON — The White House charged today the Senate select committee investigating the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) is putting it "on the spot" unfairly for its refusal to surrender vital Nixon-EARA documents and other records.

The White House refusal to meet the committee's demands marked the first open break between both since the panel was created Jan. 27.

It made a new court battle over White House records appear certain and came as the committee virtually wound up its closed, secret sessions and buckled down to writing an interim report before making its findings known to the Senate next month.

At that time the committee is also expected to start hearings on a number of other CIA operations, as well as intelligence activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Defense Department.

When he declined, explaining that the action was purely a committee matter, "they thought I wasn't going to be cooperative" and a subpoena for the records was served on him Tuesday.

Meanwhile, Sen. Frank Church, (D-Ida.), committee chairman, disclosed the panel had met with another reversal. "It appears at this time that Mr. Nixon is not inclined to testify," Church said of the former president who had been "invited" to explain his policies toward Chile and Allende.

Fly-in medic possible Oakley problem solution

By SHANE O'NEILL Times-News writer OAKLEY — Fly-in medical treatment may be the answer for Oakley's lack of a doctor.

The Chilean president, the first elected Marxist chief of state in the Western Hemisphere, was either slain or a suicide victim when he was deposed by the Chilean military on Sept. 11, 1973.

The two women are organizers of a two-years-plus drive to obtain medical services for this community. But representatives of a Utah medical group that had shown an interest were unable to attend Tuesday and representatives of Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley urged caution.

She would be in contact with two physicians by phone. One of the other physician would fly to Oakley twice a week from Roy, Utah, to treat patients who needed the personal attention of a doctor.

The proposed medical service outlined by Mrs. Stringham would station a nurse-practitioner in Oakley with office and lab facilities to handle many of the people's medical problems.

These requiring specialities would be referred. The two physicians would not practice hospital medicine, Mrs. Stringham said. Anyone requiring hospitalization would have to shift to another doctor connected with a hospital of his choice.

According to Supl. George Staudacher, the school board already has a buyer who is interested in the Washington School property and willing to pay "whatever it takes."

Paul Burnett, manager of adult and child development services for the Department of Health and Welfare, also present at the meeting, asked trustees to give the state time to check out the school building.

The board is in the middle, and feeling good about it. As Leonard summed it up, "I don't know any staff or board that is in such an enviable position."

Richey made several points supporting his idea of retaining Washington School for use as a public office building. Although Richey said he could understand the trustees want to get the highest price possible for the property, he said he felt the building should remain in public ownership.

David Richey, city-county planner, suggested that Washington School be retained in public ownership and used perhaps as a state office building. And Merl Leonard, Twin Falls County Commission chairman, told school trustees the county has its eye on the O'Leary Junior High school property.

Taxpayers support both the school district and the state, Richey said, and he does not intend to differentiate between agencies because of this overall support.

"We have a responsibility to protect whatever investment the public has," Richey said. "The public faces up to $1.5 million in replacement costs at Washington School," he said.

Burnett said he had walked through the building and "what we saw, we liked," but added more time is needed for a thorough study

(1) Force White House officials to put their request for FBI surveillance in writing, along with the purpose of the investigation.

(2) Require that unsolicited information not alleging serious criminal behavior be destroyed within 90 days of receipt.

(3) Limit domestic intelligence activities to those that monitor groups which may use force or violence in violation of specific federal laws.

(4) Limit the use of "preventive action" only where there was probable cause to believe that violence was imminent and could not be prevented by arrest. The preventive action would also, Levi said, be limited to non-violent means.

In a letter sent Tuesday to Kimberly Mayor Von Nebeker, Twin Falls City Engineer George Michael gave Kimberly 30 days to correct the deficiency or face termination of a joint agreement providing treatment of Kimberly's waste at the Twin Falls sewage treatment plant.

The joint agreement was written to allow treatment of Kimberly's sewage at Twin Falls' new multi-million plant in Snake River Canyon, which is expected to be completed by January or February. However, Kimberly has completed a sewage line that connects with the Twin Falls system and its waste has been treated at the existing Twin Falls plant since March.

A section of that Kimberly line is the cause of Twin Falls' threat to call off the joint agreement.

"According to Michael, who has tested the sewer-line trench along Addison-Avenue East between Perrine Coutee and Eastland Drive, the contractor who built the line for Kimberly failed to compact the trench soil properly.

As a result, the trench may settle in the future and cause unnecessary repairs to Addison Avenue paving.

"The compaction... is way below minimum standards and must be excavated and recompacted before we can consider accepting the work for maintenance," Michael said in a July 29 letter to Mayor Nebeker.

Twin Falls City Manager Jean Milar has estimated that the corrective work will cost between $15,000 and $20,000. (Continued on p. 15)

Drowning verdict in Jerome death

JEROME — Dr. Lauren Neher, Jerome County coroner, has ruled that the death of Elmer Jerry Hicks, 34, was due to drowning.

Hicks was pronounced dead on arrival Monday night at St. Benedict's Hospital after being removed from the Tupperware swimming pool where he had been taking swimming lessons.

Elza Hall, Jerome County sheriff, said Hicks was one of two persons taking swimming lessons at the pool when he suddenly went under the water and could not be revived after being pulled from the pool.

Tom Thackeray, lifeguard and recreation director at the pool, said Hicks did not appear to be having any trouble and had been making good progress with his swimming lessons and was capable of swimming the length of the pool.

Burnett expressed doubt the state could pay a high price. "Obviously, I don't know if we could compete with someone in the commercial category." The school trustees were not enthusiastic about the proposal. (Continued on p. 15)

Sugar firm '74 profit 30 per cent

TWIN FALLS — Big profits were made by the sugar companies in 1974.

The average rate of return on investments for the nation's major sugar companies in 1974 was 30 per cent — or twice the average for all-food manufacturing, according to a new government report.

Locally, the Amalgamated Sugar Co. had a rate of return of 29.6 per cent, almost exactly the average for sugar companies.

But an Amalgamated spokesman told the Times-News today the company's profits accrued as a result of following world markets, not as a result of any attempt to gouge consumers.

"The United States has a very small control on sugar on the world market," the spokesman said.

He added that with the cancelling of the Sugar Act in 1974, which had placed quotas on foreign sugar imports, foreign suppliers "started increasing their prices."

Since the US must import about 65 per cent of its sugar, he reasoned, the domestic companies had no choice but to follow the world market prices upward if they were to remain competitive.

"This isn't a case of a beet sugar company or any kind of domestic sugar company trying to make a rip-off," the spokesman said. "If we hadn't increased our prices to remain competitive we'd have lost our stockholders."

According to the Chicago Daily News Service, the study by the Federal Trade Commission staff in Washington covers the period when retail sugar prices nearly quadrupled and products containing sugar spiked in price.

"Profits in 1974 ... were high by any standard," the report concludes.

One FTC staff member who did not want to be identified said the report indicates a consumer "rip-off" by the sugar industry.

"The 136-page report, issued yesterday, was particularly timely since retail sugar prices, which fell during the last six months, are on their way up again.

The report made no effort to examine what investigators termed "collusive activities" in the sugar industry and concluded there was little evidence sugar prices soared in late 74 as a result of anything other than "natural market forces."

However, profits appear to play a significant role in the 1974 sugar spat.

For example, National Sugar Refining Co., the fourth largest cane refining firm had a rate of return of 24.9 per cent in 1974, according to traditional inventory figures.

"Michigan Sugar Co. had a rate of return of 41.9 per cent. Overall, the rate of return for seven sugar companies which sell half the nation's sugar was 30.2 per cent under traditional inventory figures."

The report notes that profits were low in the sugar industry between 1967 and 1973, running about 11 per cent.

There was some fairly good news in the study. It notes that prices rose less rapidly in the sugar sales area known as Chicago-West.

Most sugar is sold on a regional basis and the Chicago-West area includes Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, Michigan, Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana.

Prices were held down slightly here because this region is the most competitive in the nation, the report notes.

In all but the Chicago region, sugar manufacturers account for at least 80 per cent of the market.

The report notes that the sugar industry is highly concentrated and buyer concentration is low. Big buyers could help bring pressure for lower sugar prices, the report notes.

In Salt Lake City, the Amalgamated official said if the domestic companies had not increased prices to meet world market levels, then the companies would have been negligent to their stockholders.

The stockholders, he reasoned, would have begun to sell their stock, which could have started a run on sugar stocks, depressing the stock prices.

"If the manager of a domestic company sold for less (than the world market)," the spokesman said, "that's stupid management."

He said Amalgamated would favor a return to controls such as imposed under the Sugar Act or some similar price regulations. Without such control, he said, the sugar market becomes a "roller-coaster" from year to year which is "not conducive to good management by either the companies or the growers."

Noting that sugar beet farmers, under contract to Amalgamated receive 60 cents of every dollar of company sales, the spokesman said that 1974 was the best year ever for beet growers.

But as a result, he added, sugar beet acreage is nearly double this year over last. This increased supply would probably depress sugar prices which would eventually hurt farmers, he said.

Asked if there was any sugar-price collusion among domestic companies, the spokesman replied "absolutely not."

Irrigators given extra water days

SHOSHONE — An extra 15 days of irrigation water has been allowed out of Magic Reservoir to users of water from that source, Legn Grieve, manager of the Big Wood Canal Co., said.

The water will be allowed before the first of October. Extra water cannot be drawn at more than 150 per cent delivery since that is the capacity limit of the canal system.

The reservoir last week contained 174,000 acre feet of water, compared to 161,000 a year ago at this time.

American Falls Reservoir contained a little over 1 million acre feet of water this week, about 140,000 acre feet more than a year ago at this same time.

Two lateral or canal breaks have been caught before water got away and a flume collapse was repaired quickly so that no one was without water for any appreciable time, Grieve said.

America: New maturity or failure of nerve?

WASHINGTON — This capital city is preoccupied, as usual, with the politics and personalities of the coming presidential election campaign, but outside Washington, and also here, there is a muted hum of debate about the mind and values of America, its purposes, polities and intentions beyond the chatter, sham and posturing of politics.

all these intractable issues into the Eighties, much depends. These deeper questions are being discussed in America today perhaps more widely than in any other country in the world. In no other society, certainly not in the Soviet Union or China or Japan, and not even in Europe, with the possible exception of Britain, is there such a torrent of philosophical debate about the meaning of the life individuals, institutions, and nations as here in the United States.

employee, priest, preacher, rabbi and parishioner; editor and reporter, and of course between President, Congress, governor, mayor and taxpayers — all these fundamental relationships of life are now being worked and chewed over at least by a vigorous, articulate and growing remnant of troubled and thoughtful people in the United States.

The "odd and fundamental thing" referred to earlier is that while this fundamental debate about values, purposes, policies and the future of our civilization goes on in this country, and is critical for the future, it usually, overwhelmed by the trivial, the transitory, and secondary gossip of politicians. Not the condition of the present world or the problems of the coming age, but whether Ford is a "nice guy" or "Teddy" is honestly getting out, and what would happen if we had an election on the vicious issue "Watergate vs Chappaquiddick?"

Economic outlook good for Valley

It now looks like Idaho farmers will see their fourth good year in a row.

Shorter-than-expected national grain and corn crops combined with large sales to Russia should help hold grain prices at respectable levels.

And in Idaho, expected shortfall of potatoes should have the same effect with the state's most important crop.

The usually-optimistic Agricultural Statistical Reporting Service expects the Idaho potato crop to fall about 6 per cent compared to last year's levels. That, compared with a resurgence of demand for processed potato products expected as the recession ends, should shore up potato prices at comfortable levels.

Another key Valley crop, beans, shows signs of being a money maker, with prices substantially higher than a few months ago.

This means the Magic Valley's agricultural economic base remains healthy, and with it, the Valley's economy as a whole.

Barring the unexpected, there is much reason for economic optimism in the Magic Valley.

This is the more important thing, the Sunday supplement reports of Gerald Ford's good military triumphs in the White House, or the Monday morning gossip about Henry's struggles with the Congress, or Don Rumsted's fight for control of the White House staff.

On the issues about whether "Turnsfield" or Robert Hartmann is controlling the door to the President's office, or who is leaking information in the White House against Rockefeller and Kissinger, little depends. But on an accurate definition of the world we are going to "live in" after the next election, and the qualities of the President who will preside over

Nothing is excluded now from the cut and thrust of this unruly controversy in America, except one odd and fundamental thing which he will come to later. The most fundamental questions are being examined in the privacy of American homes, and even in the press and radio and television: the relations between the individual and the state; the state and the world; the relations between men and women, between parents and children, the institution of marriage and even whether to have children; between teacher and student, employer and

For example, Commentary Magazine has just produced a remarkable discussion of America's reaction to the defeat in Vietnam, and, being concerned about the future of Israel, asks what was happened to America, and what all this means?

"Is it an expression as some think," Commentary asks, of an adjustment to hopeful new international realities like détente and interdependence, or are we, as Subchenitsyn and others believe, witnessing a resurgence of the "spirit of Munich"? Is the United States exhibiting a new maturity in its international behavior, or is the country suffering from a failure of nerve and a loss of political will?"

Even so, there is a long time between now and the nominating conventions and the 200th anniversary of the Declaration next July, and maybe the question is whether we concentrate on the meaning of the country on that anniversary — who we are, what we believe and what we are doing? — rather than on the personal ambitions of Ford, Humphrey, Reagan, Rockefeller, Muskie, and those other men in their Sixties.

The nation is confused and depressed now, not because it is suffering from "a lack of nerve" or yearning for a new maturity, but because the world is changing around it, and so far no presidential candidate has been able to reduce all this diversity to identity and, recognizing the menace of the present, define the hopes and policies of the future.

Maybe Charles Frankel gave the best answer to this question in his book "The American Mind and Institutions — and so far no presidential candidate has been able to reduce all this diversity to identity and, recognizing the menace of the present, define the hopes and policies of the future."

"If Americans are anxious and disoriented at the moment," he said, "it shouldn't surprise anyone. Business is bad, people are losing their jobs, everything costs more."

"Since 1960, the country has gone through assassination, fires in the cities, and counter-culture in the home. It has seen the long drawn-out process of expelling a chief of state revealed as an unconscionable liar and the superintendent of a tawdry provincial conspiracy... Add to this Vietnam — its cruelty, its shame, its obdurate persistence in folly, its shadowy rationale, and its final whimpering capitulation — and it is not surprising if the American people weren't in their present mood, one would have to suppose they were drugged."

But there is time in this next year to listen to this sort of thing, and analyze the problems before we consider the men who may help solve them. The Commentary inquiry is a good place to begin. It rather rigs the question on the presumption that if a country is suffering from "a failure of nerve" but it has produced the best set of answers from the most thoughtful minds that have come this way in a very long time.

Nobody's perfect, particularly Henry's critics

Chicago Daily News — Henry A. Kissinger has learned to live with doubts about his veracity and suspicions of his motives with a kind of heroic resignation.

He believes that nobody's perfect, most especially his critics.

On this anniversary of the Ford administration, he remains a phenomenon, upright and flourishing, if not indispensable. When Gerald Ford became president as a result of a political earthquake, one of his first acts was to call Kissinger and ask him to stay on. This, despite the fact that the Ford transition team recommended that he be among the first cabinet officers to be replaced.

Another cabinet officer, who asked to see Ford the morning he was sworn in as chief executive, offered his own resignation but said that the new President would be well advised to find a new secretary of state as quickly as possible because Kissinger's departure would be a vivid symbol of change.

Ford rejected the advice, and now he says that "Henry Kissinger and I have the closest possible rapport, personally and professionally, we are a good team and I think we have made some good decisions."

That should scare off some of his bureaucratic detractors, but it will hardly silence those who dislike and distrust him. Kissinger is keenly mindful of his controversial position. He presents and broods over charges by congressmen that he has listened to them. Inadequately, he does not claim they are motivated by malice. Instead, he tends to dismiss the charges as the result of misunderstandings and petty politics.

If he were replaced as secretary of state tomorrow, in his view, the new man might enjoy a honeymoon of six months or so — and then become vulnerable to the same criticism inflicted on him.

As a unique force in world politics, he seems to feel that his status gives him a certain immunity from the attacks of those who claim he is duplicitous, who don't like his style or who think he is too big for his britches.

PETER LISAGOR

His survival leans heavily upon an acute instinct for other men's weaknesses and a blithe faith in his own ability to cope with any challenges to his character or his diplomatic methods. If he isn't exactly serene about the sniping at him by the President's staff, who caw at his arrogant refusal to be a team player, he regards it as the work of intellectual migrants, self-important courtiers jousting for the boss' favor.

In the art of buttering up the boss, he has no master, and in holding forth himself in the bureaucracy, he has no equal. At least a Silver Star with cluster in the Nixon White House against the far tougher opposition of Haldean and Erlichman. With Ford's testimonial in hand, the backbiting of the Ford man must seem no more than a minor annoyance to him.

Kissinger has, in some ways, institutionalized "foreign policy" finding men in the state department to do his bidding.

He claims that advisers now writing memoranda do so with a guarded candor, fearing their advice will be ripped from context and made public. This, he would insist, robs the President of honest counsel. The claim is probably exaggerated.

Under deviousness is no less prepared to accuse his critics of serious defects than the President himself. Total confidentiality is a requirement of conspiracies and long wars, not free societies.

It is hard to separate the Kissinger personality from his policies. Even if he were a man of small ego and as open as Candide, which, of course, he is not, his policies would be, or ought to be, the subject of serious debate. He has not been as supple or as wise as his improvisations suggest. He has leaped from crisis to crisis, not always with sure-foot.

Although he insists that the alternative to detente with Russia involves fearful risks in a nuclear age, he has yet to make a persuasive case for it.

Many of his critics feel his priority concern is his reputation and that his policies lack moral or ethical content. He often acts as though he believes that morality is a subject for the pulpit alone, not the negotiating table.

Kissinger had planned to leave the government at the end of 1974, when he hoped that the American involvement in Vietnam would be finally liquidated. He had even permitted his lawyer to dicker with a book publisher or two. But as Watergate ate away at the Nixon White House, he felt compelled to stay. He calls Nixon about once a month, filling him in on developments in the world, because he has a great sense of obligation to the man who gave him his opportunity as a White House assistant and secretary of state.

At the moment, he intends to stay on the job through this term, and if Ford is elected next year, he might be amenable to a call on him for further service. He apparently feels he is relatively indestructible, and there's much work yet to be done.

Thought for today

A thought for the day: American novelist Thomas Wolfe said, "At the time we think we're sick, it's all in the mind."

Berry's World

"What good is it to have all the power in the world if you can't sink a putt?"

Pentagon apprehensive over coming Tokyo visit

WASHINGTON — Apprehension swept through the Pentagon when it learned that retired Navy Rear Adm. Gene R. LaRoque, favorite military expert of the American left, was about to visit Japan for the first time as guest of left-wing Tokyo newspapers.

The alarm was justified by past performance. Highly questionable — some testimony — by LaRoque on nuclear weapons last year set off a major Japanese political crisis. Before leaving for his current tour of Japan, he reassured the State Department he had no wish to "foul up" U.S. Japanese relations. But in Tokyo last Thursday, the dovish admiral was up to his old tricks.

Incorrectly billed in the Japanese press as former commander of the U.S. Sixth Fleet, the ex-cruiser skipper told a press conference that U.S. bases in Japan and South Korea "do not in any way contribute to the national defense of the U.S., directly or indirectly."

Such strategic posturing from a U.S. admiral undercut the communicative issued here last week by President Ford and Japanese prime minister Takeo Miki, strongly reiterating the bedrock of the U.S.-Japanese alliance: mutual security; inextricably linked to the Korean peninsula, where the U.S. maintains 42,000 battle-ready troops and extensive military bases. But that in keeping with LaRoque's outrageous testimony on the nuclear question.

That testimony by LaRoque, who heads the anti-Pentagon Center of Defense Information, was made before a joint atomic energy subcommittee last Sept. 10 and stands intact in the record despite documented rebuttal from the Defense Department.

EVANS AND NOVAK

Summoned by the subcommittee chairman, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, to discuss nuclear proliferation, LaRoque first made the well-publicized statement which triggered political turbulence in Japan. He said "most people" were not aware that U.S. naval vessels armed with nuclear weapons regularly visit Japanese ports and that "there is a real danger that we may get an inadvertent use of one of those nuclear weapons."

He then went on to give an intimate account of what he alleged to be just such a near-miss accidental nuclear firing. Describing an incident in which the Torrier anti-aircraft missile was to be fired in a practice session from the deck of the cruiser Providence, commanded by LaRoque, the retired admiral testified:

"Lo and behold, we were ready to fire and the machinery clanks and the computers all buzz and whir and up popped a red-tipped missile. Now, a red-tipped missile is a nuclear missile. This mechanism was now completely automated and almost out of anybody's control because the radars had locked on the incoming (practice) plane and the computers had all been smashed. We were able, of course, to plug the genie back in the bottle (but) it really worried me."

Edward J. Bauer, then committee counsel, at Symington's direction, sent this explosive allegation to the Defense Department for a complete report. What came back was a carefully understated letter from D. R. Cotter, assistant for atomic energy to Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger, which gave the lie to LaRoque's testimony, stem to stern.

"No Navy Department record of such an incident could be located. If such an incident had occurred, the commanding officer (LaRoque) would be of course required to submit a report in compliance with existing Navy directives."

by the senior chief fire control technician and the other from the missile house chief, sum up the evidence.

The fire control technician: "An incident such as the one described by (then) Capt. LaRoque never occurred during my time aboard nor do I possess any knowledge. I can never recall any (nuclear) bird on the tail for any reason."

The missile house chief: "Nuclear warheads had no red-tail or nose whatever. The warhead was completely white. We did not, during tactical firing operations, operate the feeder system in automatic. The operation would have been in step-manual until it was on the Launcher rail."

Moreover, the missile house chief said he believed neither LaRoque nor any commander on the bridge could see what kind of missile was on the launcher rail, concluding, "I do know that during my four duty of a nuclear missile was never loaded onto the launcher."

This rebuttal testimony was only sent to Symington's subcommittee, but was never made public. It was then sent to LaRoque for explanation. A committee official told LaRoque's reply was "equivocal, not fully responsive."

Sooner hopeful Harris talks like populist, dresses like banker

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "If you talk like a populist you've got to dress like a banker," jokes Fred Harris, who has taken his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination on byways few candidates ever have seen.

But if his dark suit, portly figure, and parted-in-the-middle hair are orthodox, not much else about him is.

Especially his campaign, today rolling through Iowa in a 24-foot camper and spending $233 a day.

A virtual unknown in the polls, the former Oklahoma senator, and one-time Democratic Party chairman has spent the past 10 months quietly organizing supporters in key primary states. His strategy is similar to that which carried George McGovern to a first-ballot victory in 1972.

Relying on McGovern organization techniques and on the new campaign spending law he says "cuts the rich and the friends of the rich down to size," Harris inveighs against privilege and big business.

His speeches borrow quotes from Thomas Jefferson and Ralph Nader. His complaint about tax loopholes and excessive taxation of the "average family" sounds much like George Wallace.

He says he is a conservative and preaches the "work ethic" ("Let's get this country back to work" and free enterprise ("I want to give big business a strong dose of it").

But his rhetoric is straight out of the new left. He attacks the "privileged" classes and calls for a redistribution of wealth, a public energy corporation, vastly reduced defense spending.

The campaign is a bargain basement effort.

It is run from the basement — and living room, kitchen, dining room, porch and backyard — of his fashionable McLean, Va., home.

Until Harris can prove himself in state caucuses and primaries next year, much of his success will depend on the staff working out of his three-story, ivy-covered home.

The organizing effort, with 10,000 to 20,000 pledge cards stacked in boxes and computerized mailing lists lying about, began in the basement.

It moved into the downstairs utility room where the vital copying machine is, then quickly spread up to the living room, dining room, kitchen, den. Only the upstairs bedrooms are off-limits to the campaign staffers.

U.S. and Oklahoma flags festoon the foyer, where boxes of paper and office supplies await uncrating.

Campaign coordinator is Jim Hightower, 32, a veteran of two Iraq wars.

"My daddy had to vote for George Wallace because there was no alternative," Hightower says. "This is less of a liberal thing. It's people who have been fighting big government and big institutions. One of the first things I worked on was Earl Butz (against his confirmation as agriculture secretary) and Fred fought Butz early, too."

Running Harris' media campaign is Frank Greer, 28, a Tuscaloosa, Ala., native who once was a Senate page.

"Fred says people are alienated by the political process. It takes a certain fervor and belief to say we can get control over our lives; that the average American can make a difference," says Greer. Like the rest of the staff, he has the fervor.

Harris' scheduling director is Mimi Mager, 21, a former Common Cause volunteer. In-house look a course in government from Harris at American University, she is scheduling the campaign to stop such as Plattville, Wis., Ely, Iowa, and Baker, Ore.

Fred Harris is not your ordinary presidential hopeful.

After arriving at Patapasco State Park near Baltimore, he changed from a banker's suit to jeans, work shirt and cowboy hat for an interview.

Snapping dry twigs in his finger, Harris explained why he is running for president — instead of leading a consumer crusade like Nader or Common Cause.

"The presidency is the office I know best... I feel strongly about things. I'm not interested in being president to be 'Man of the Year.' I want to talk about the issues... I've had all the trappings of office and I know how little they mean."

Asked if he has the stamina for a grueling campaign, to make himself known, Harris laughed.

"I used to pick cotton for a living," he said. "You can't imagine how easy this is, what fun it is."

This month's $7,000 camper trip to "the filling stations and grocery stores on the Main Streets of this country" is a self-supporting operation. He and his traveling companions — three family members and two staffers — often spend the night in supporters' homes.

Advance work is done by local volunteers. Financing is carried-as-catch-can. At the coffee, picnics and rallies he holds, Harris passes a gasoline can for contributions.

July retail sales gain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail sales jumped two per cent during July, the sharpest one month sales increase in a year, the Commerce Department reported.

The department said sales of new and used cars and auto parts contributed to the advance.

The 2 per cent increase in total sales in July was the highest since a 4 per cent gain in July, 1974. The July increase was about double that of recent months.

The Commerce Department reported a 7.2 per cent jump in sales of new and used cars and auto parts, apparently reflecting rebates offered to new car buyers and cuts in used car prices.

Sales of all retail goods for the month were estimated at an adjusted $50 billion, an increase of $1.1 billion from June, officials said.

Durables, including autos, totaled $15.9 billion, up $700 million since June. Non-durables rose $300 million to $34.1 billion.

For the May-July three-month period, the department said total retail sales were about 5 per cent higher than the February-April period and 8 per cent ahead of the May-July period of a year ago.

Reserve grain forecasts trimmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The buildup in American grain stocks government officials have been predicting for the coming year will fall short of previous forecasts, Agriculture Department officials concede.

Officials said Tuesday they had trimmed reserve grain forecasts because of a combination of factors including smaller-than-expected crops in the United States, Russia and Western Europe, and bigger-than-expected import demand in the Soviet Union and several other countries.

Economists said in a new supply-demand situation report the wheat reserve carryover, which had been expected to rise from 319 million bushels on July 1 this year to a 523 to 648 million bushel range next summer, now is expected to rise only to 425 to 573 million bushel range.

Reserve stocks of corn earlier had been expected to go from an abnormally small 350 million bushels on Oct. 1, 1975 to 842 million bushels by the fall of 1976. The new report, however, said the stock in the fall of next year would be up only to a 621 to 721 million bushel range.

The new estimates, confirmed that in spite of production setbacks and increases in predicted exports, this year's record American crops will be big enough to meet all currently forecast demands during the 1975-76 marketing season with enough left over to increase the carryover reserves, but by a lesser margin than expected earlier.

Sun scorches corn

By United Press International

Missouri Highway Patrol officer Clyde Gardner, who does a little farming with his parents on the side, screwed up his face and put out his hand at a level about three feet above the floor.

"The corn stalks are about this high," Gardner said.

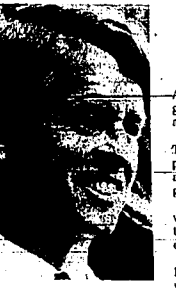

Relentless heat scorched crops in the western corn belt Tuesday and knocked the bottoms out of harvest forecasts.

Officials in drought-parched Missouri and Iowa have criticized federal crop reports that said the corn crop had declined but would still be a record.

Missouri Agriculture Director James Bollitt held a crop disaster meeting Tuesday and afterward said he would send a telegram to Buiz saying Monday's federal harvest predictions were too optimistic and that Buiz should prepare for more pessimistic estimates.

An Iowa agriculture official joined Bollitt, warning that the drought in the midlands has cut into corn yields more than federal crop reporters think.

James M. Mignani, assistant to Iowa Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsbury, said any rain that falls on the state now would have little effect on the corn crop.

ROBERT KENNEDY probe likely

Assassination probe likely

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The county of Los Angeles has taken action which attorneys guarantees a new investigation into the 1968 assassination of Robert Kennedy.

The Board of Supervisors, in a 5-0 vote, Tuesday instructed the county counsel to support a suit to determine whether Sirhan Sirhan acted alone or whether there was a "second gun" used in the senator's death.

It also requested the district attorney's office, which secured Sirhan's conviction for murder, to accede to reexamination of the ballistics evidence introduced at the 1969 trial.

Acting District Attorney John Howard agreed. But he said his office had no doubt that Sirhan was guilty and that the verdict which resulted in life imprisonment for the young Palestinian immigrant was just.

"It is in the public interest to get this entire matter out in the open once and for all," said Supervisor Kenneth Blahnik.

"Was there a conspiracy? Was the CIA involved? Was there a person other than Sirhan involved? These are questions that need answering."

At his trial, Sirhan never denied he killed Kennedy. The prosecution produced a dozen witnesses who said they saw Sirhan firing a pistol into Kennedy's body at point-blank range in the pantry of the Ambassador Hotel.

But the "second gun" theory has been advanced with increasing intensity recently on arguments that ballistics removed from Kennedy's body did not match those which wounded other persons standing nearby.

There also have been claims that, although Sirhan's gun could hold only seven bullets, there was evidence more than seven were fired.

Document demand unfair, Ford aide says

LEAVING courthouse in manacles, in Price, Utah, after being sentenced to death for a revenge killing are Irvin Paul Dundison, Craig Marvel and Gypsy Allen Codriana. Lawyers for the three say they plan an appeal to the Utah Supreme Court. (UPI)

Trio draws firing squad

Utah judge sentences 3 to face firing squad

PRICE, Utah (UPI) — Three men convicted in the revenge-killing of a motorcycle gang member during a pill and alcohol spree have been sentenced to die by firing squad at dawn Oct. 2.

But attorneys for the three said they plan to appeal to the Utah Supreme Court, making it unlikely the men will be shot in October.

Craig Marvel, 27, Gypsy Codriana, 22, and Irvin Dundison, 32, sat expressionless Tuesday as Judge Edward Sheya condemned them for the slaying of Michael Hogan.

Hogan, which last executed a man in 1960, has executed 43 persons since 1854 — 38 by shooting.

Authorities believe the killing was in retaliation for testimony Hogan gave a year ago at the drug trial of a Salt Lake City gang leader.

Hogan, target of an alleged $1,000 contract against his life, was dragged from his apartment before dawn April 9 and strangled three times, loaded into a pickup truck and driven to a canyon where he was beaten, strangled and shot at least 10 more times.

"If this is not a case for the imposition of the death sentence, it's hard to imagine one that would warrant it," Sheya said.

"To the court's mind, this was a brutal and ruthless murder. From all the evidence, I do not find circumstances sufficient to mitigate the penalty."

As provided by Utah law, the judge offered the killers a choice of death by hanging or firing squad.

Chicago Daily News

The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence heading for a "whitewash" of President John Kennedy and his brother, Robert, in plans to kill Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., a member of the committee, investigating the Central Intelligence Agency, thinks it is.

Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, says Goldwater isn't doing his homework.

In a statement Tuesday the Arizona said that, as the committee's current secret hearings draw to a close, "efforts are being made to discover President Kennedy and his brother, former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, from the assassination attempts made on Fidel Castro in the early 1960s."

This may "lead to a conflict" in the committee, he added, "between those who want to make sure nobody blames President Kennedy and those who want to tell the truth."

The 1961 Republican presidential candidate said he is not seeking "compensation" in the inquiry on the mistakes of the CIA. "But he objects to an impression being created that the CIA was out of control

(Continued from p. 1) Church said Nixon's Washington attorney, Herbert John Miller, was concerned over Nixon's appearance "without knowing what further questions were to be asked, and what is further down the road."

The subpoenas, served on the White House and GSA, seek information on Nixon administration activities between Sept. 1 and Nov. 3, 1970, which were directed toward preventing Salvador Allende from assuming the office of president of Chile.

The request includes, but is not limited to, four White House meetings, beginning with the first one Sept. 15, 1970, between Nixon and then CIA Director Richard Helms.

Subsequent White House sessions on Sept. 18, 22, and Oct. 22, 1970, were attended by Sen. of State Henry Kissinger, at that time National Security Affairs advisor to Nixon, and various high CIA military, diplomatic and security agency officials.

"These included, according to the subpoena, Thomas

Karamessines, chief of CIA clandestine operations, at the Sept. 18 meeting, and Karamessines and Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., deputy to Kissinger, at the Oct. 15 meeting.

Haig was later to replace H. R. Haldean—as President Nixon's No. 1 aide and during the Watergate crisis' latter months was reported to be making the key White House decisions.

A Sept. 22 meeting was attended by Kissinger and the following former U.S. officials: Alexander M. Haig Jr., Deputy Defense Secretary; David Packard, Joint Chief of Staffs chairman Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, and CIA chief Helms.

Also attending the high level session was State Department lawyer John Irvin, and Yiron Peter Valey, identified by an intelligence committee spokesman as a member of Kissinger staff.

The Senate will also seek material related to the meetings of the National Security Council of the 'Forty Committee." The top-level White House security group headed by Kissinger, and which was charged with making policy to be carried out by the CIA.

In addition, the Church panel also seeks reports on proposals and activities "relating to Chile" and which include "plans for a military coup, the passage of machine guns, other weapons, gas masks, gas canisters, or the kidnapping or death of Gen. Rene Schneider, the bribery of Chilean politicians, the use of propaganda, including media personnel on the CIA payroll and the use of private business interests."

Schnelder, Chilean army chief of staff, died on Oct. 25, 1970, after being shot in an attempted kidnapping three days earlier in what was widely believed to be a prelude for a military takeover about the time Allende was to assume the presidency Nov. 3, 1970.

The "private business interests" were not identified in the subpoena. Committee general counsel Fred A. O. Schwarz said but made no comment when a reporter noted that the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., with extensive Chilean investments, had been charged with cooperating with the CIA in an attempt to prevent the election of Allende.

On the domestic front, the committee wants records for the period April 1 to Dec. 31, 1970, in connection with the surveillance proposal by then for a House aide from Charles Huston and put into effect by President Nixon but which Nixon said was later withdrawn.

The plan was called for mail surveillance, burglary, and other intelligence activities to be directed against U. S. citizens.

In connection with this the committee seeks a CIA report made to the White House in the "period May-June, 1970" regarding "revolutionary young activities."

Also sought in this area are records on the discussions held by Nixon, the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover; Gen. Donald Bennett, former head of the Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA); Adm. Noel Gayler, former chief of the National Security Agency; John Ehrlichman, former chief aide to Nixon for domestic affairs; Robert Finch, a White House adviser under Nixon, and Helms and Huston.

Bennett and Gayler were identified by committee aides as "signatories to the Houston plan."

Buchen told the Chicago Daily News that according to a court order controlling the conditions under which the Nixon papers may be examined, he cannot show them except with notification to and agreement by Nixon's attorneys, who must be present.

The only agreement which the former president's lawyers have given, he said, are for matters dealing with "ongoing executive branch business."

This has been "largely interpreted to mean matters dealing with National Security," he said.

A principal in the Nixon law firm largely agreed with Buchen, explaining that we do not contend that we have a "power" over who shall examine the records.

"Instead," he added, "it was never contemplated" that when the agreement on sequestering the records was drawn up, and given court approval, it would allow examination by congressional committees.

Now assigned at Hickam, he serves with Headquarters, Pacific Air Force.

Church raps Barry and conducting private wars against foreign leaders without presidential authority," he added.

The "out of control" phrase appeared to be a clear reference to Church's recent description comparing the agency with a "rogue elephant" at one time.

Church learned of Goldwater's statement while attending a committee session at which Secretary of State Henry Kissinger testified and later declared his innocence of involvement in any plans to assassinate foreign leaders.

He faced, and appearing on the edge of losing his temper, Church told reporters: "I'm at a loss to know what the senator means. He has attended none of the drafting sessions of the subcommittee (preparing an interim report) and I don't know to what extent he has reviewed the evidence."

When a reporter asked whether a tug-of-war exists between those who as Goldwater charged, want to make sure President Kennedy is blameless and those seeking "to tell the truth," the Idahoan relaxed and smiled. He characterized it as a question akin to—"have you stopped beating your wife?"

Auto sales drop

DETROIT (UPI) — Domestic auto sales in early August dropped an estimated 21 per cent from last year when the prediction of higher 1975 model prices triggered a buying rush.

Auto industry analysts estimated sales at about 145,000 cars in the eight sales days in the Aug. 1-10 period, the lowest for an opening August sales period in 12 years. Automakers sold 207,624 cars in the same nine-day period last year.

Reports from the four domestic auto companies were to be released later today. Import sales, which have accounted for a record 20 per cent of sales so far this year, will be tallied at the end of the month.

The estimated 21 per cent drop would be the sharpest year-to-year decline since mid-May when sales slipped 30 per cent.

Last August, prospective customers sought to beat price increases on the 1975 models that averaged more than $400 a car. Many analysts also credited near-record sales last August, following the energy crisis doldrums, to consumer fear of catalytic mufflers that were due on the 1975 models.

State urged to sell its agriculture lands now

BOISE (UPI) — A Boise legislator told a land board subcommittee on leasing and policy Tuesday the state should sell its agriculture lands immediately and make it easier to sell grazing lands.

Republican Sen. H. Dean Summers later moved, and the committee agreed to hold hearings in southern Idaho areas where leased public lands are causing problems. The hearings will be in October or November, at Soda Springs or Rexburg, the Magic Valley and possibly in Boise.

Lt. Gov. John Evans said the hearings will help the committee determine what would be a proper formula to use in setting leases for state land.

The committee also will solicit information from experts in leasing — realtors and agriculture economists — for recommendations before the October meeting.

Summers in the morning session said the state should not be in a position of subsidizing the leases.

He said lease prices should be based on supply and demand to meet the mandate in the state constitution to maximize the monetary returns for the public school endowment fund which is supported by the income from the lands.

He also said it would help the individual counties by getting the state lands onto tax rolls.

Gordon Trombley, land department director, said a recent decision of the land board asked for an annual report on expired leases with recommendations for the disposition of the lands and that Summers' suggestion could become a reality.

Summers said the land issue is a hot political issue for the legislature and the land board. He said it is "the subject to fall out of love with the lands" and that "the subject is not totally cool."

"It's impossible to talk about it."

Evans asked Summers if the political situation of public lands had not improved in the legislature during recent years and Summers replied that it had but there is a long way to go.

Summers disagreed with the earlier suggestion by Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa that the prices should take into consideration the returns farmers and ranchers are getting for their crops or livestock.

Pocatello tax school set Aug. 22

BOISE (UPI) — To better inform legislators and the general public of Idaho's various tax systems, the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho will conduct a one-day tax school Aug. 22 in Pocatello.

Association President Fred C. Humphreys said Monday that the Pocatello session will be conducted by Max Yost, executive secretary of the organization, and members of his staff.

Humphreys said the session "will not be a promotion of any particular tax, but a review of the history and structure of the state's major taxes, including the property tax."

"We'll also talk about the part that state and federal aid play in the balance of government revenues," he added.

He noted that the tax schools are in response to requests from members of the legislature and association members for more information on the tax structure of the state and are open to the public at large.

Featured at the Pocatello meeting will be Clifford Vaughn, a specialist for the Idaho Tax Commission. Vaughn will speak at a luncheon meeting on the commission's assessment practices, with emphasis on utility taxes.

Demo hopefuls have no solutions

BOISE (UPI) — Chairman Al Ullman of the House Ways and Means Committee said in Boise Tuesday there were several good Democrats seeking the presidency but none with solutions to the nation's problems.

In a brief news conference at the Boise airport enroute to tour his district in eastern Oregon, Ullman said he was "not interested with personalities but with issues."

Those seeking the Democratic Party presidential nomination so far have not come up with solutions to the "hard issues or faced up to solving the problems," he said.

Ullman said that the party must come up with a strong program for the future of the nation and find a candidate who will make it work.

Asked his opinion of Sen. Frank Church of Idaho as a presidential candidate, Ullman said he "was as strong as the others and would make an able president, but he has not been able to define an economic program for the nation."

The Oregon Congressman said that the long-range issues must be faced and a candidate selected who can do the job.

Ullman also expressed his satisfaction of the court ruling by a federal appeals court overturning President Ford's $2 per barrel oil import fee. He called it "a long step forward toward the energy problem."

The court ruling definitely shows that the President does not have the authority to impose the import fee, he said.

Further, Ullman said a veto by President Ford of the extension of the oil price control authority which Congress passed would be a "grave mistake."

He said controls should be phased out over the next four years "so we can get back to our price control. A good phasing out would stabilize the market and protect the consumer."

Questioned about the performance of his Ways and Means Committee, Ullman said he would rate it a "little higher than the president."

"We have not been given strong leadership to face up to the long range economic problems," he said.

Turning to a replacement for Stanley Hathaway who resigned as Secretary of the Interior, Ullman said he would like to see someone from the West get the job.

"The spot should come out of the West," Ullman said, "but I don't have a candidate."

Ullman expressed confidence that the Hells Canyon Recreational bill would pass Congress this fall.

He said it had been "tough" working out agreeable language in the bill which would satisfy both the House and the Senate but that it has nearly been perfected.

Idaho court reverses ruling on limitations

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Supreme Court reversed Tuesday a lower court ruling that a statute of limitations on damage claims against a governmental entity did not apply to it.

However, in remanding the case, back to district court the high tribunal said the judge should give consideration to the claimant's status as a minor in deciding if he reasonably should have discovered his claim and filed his notice earlier than he did.

R. Scott Patterson brought the claim against the Boise Independent School District in May, 1973, contending he was injured on a trampoline during a physical education class at Capital High School in November, 1971.

An Idaho law requires a claimant against a governmental entity to file a notice of claim within 120 days of an accident. The Supreme Court upheld validity of that law in its decision.

Although the notice of claim was not filed within 120 days of the accident, it was filed within 120 days of the time Patterson reached legal adulthood in January, 1973.

The school district argued that Patterson had not complied with the statute but Fourth District Judge Marion Callister disagreed, ruling the law did not apply to minors. The district brought action in the high court, seeking a writ of mandate against Callister.

In a plurality opinion written by Justice Allan G. Shepard, the high court reversed Callister but noted the statute requires the notice to be filed within 120 days from the time the claim arose "or reasonably should have been discovered, whichever is later."

It directed Callister to apply the 120-day notice of claim statute but also to give consideration to Patterson's status as a minor in deciding if he "reasonably should have discovered" his claim and filed his notice earlier than he did.

Chief Justice Henry McQuade concurred and wrote a specially concurring opinion. District Judge Charles Seegelin, now retired, also concurred in the plurality opinion. Justices Charles Donaldson and Robert Bakes filed dissenting opinions.

CAREY — Carey residents feel the county's zoning ordinance is squeezing the unincorporated community's future growth.

Carey is growing, necessitating a zoning change of incorporation to provide enough new housing units, they believe.

Currently, the entire mile-long and half-mile wide city is zoned for commercial use. Since it is unincorporated and does not have the status of a city, the land designation, under the Blaine County zoning ordinance, changes abruptly to agriculture outside Carey's boundaries.

Under the proposed county comprehensive plan, to be adopted, Carey residents will be forced into a situation allowing only one house per acre.

Carey does not have a central water and sewer system which, under the new comprehensive plan, will force it into the one acre minimum lot size.

The only methods available for allowing more housing inside the present boundary are to incorporate, which moves the city out of the county's jurisdiction, or build under a planned residential unit scheme.

Carey residents, worried over the prospects of the new plan have banded together. A new planning group under the direction of Gale Roberts, Carey, will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Carey school lunchroom to draw designated areas inside the boundaries for residential and commercial building.

Roberts said today "under the present ordinance a pickle factory can build beside a nice home."

There has probably been more building in Carey in the last two years, Robert said, than in the previous 15 years. Some of the building may be attributed to outsiders, but much of it boom is from children of Carey residents who are moving back to the small community.

Roberts said there are many new Boise Cascade homes in Carey. Many of those have been built on individual lots, Roberts said, which is probably against the county ordinance and state requirements.

The building has been allowed, he said, if the State Health Department okayes new well and septic tank construction on the lots.

In the past the state and county have not cracked down on the supposed violations but growing pressure means Carey must soon find a way to allow building on smaller lots to accommodate the housing demand, Roberts said.

Roberts said the group will concentrate on new residential areas needed as well as the need to expand present city boundaries.

In addition, he said, the meeting will convene on the possible incorporation of the city to avoid county jurisdiction.

Football field project planned

BUILT — Buhl High School football fans may soon have a more comfortable time watching their favorite players on the field.

School board trustees heard football coach Jon Jund make a proposal Monday evening to build a structure to house both restrooms and a concession stand at Bower's Field.

According to Supt. Dan Mabe, Jund has "persons willing to donate funds for the building's construction. Presently, restroom facilities are located across the street from the field.

The 22 by 16 foot cinderblock building would be part of an improvement project — at the field. Jund also proposed building a wood fence around the field in an attempt to control pedestrian traffic.

Mabe said trustees favored proceeding with the project. In other business, the trustees discussed replacing old wooden seats in the auditorium with newer, upholstered models. No action was taken.

The board accepted the resignation of Martha Frymire, elementary teacher, and the request for a year's leave of absence from Mary Wiggins, high school Spanish teacher.

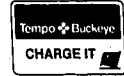

The board amended the school free lunch policy and set $2,500 as qualifying income for a family with one dependent.

The sage grouse, or sage hen, is the largest member of the North American grouse family.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor who I like, but his wife can be very obnoxious. This wife asked me to take a urine sample to the hospital lab for her in the morning because she and her husband leave for work earlier than the lab opens and I go right by the hospital on my way to work later. I slid no flat out. The next morning, this woman's mother was there to pick up the little jar to deliver it to the hospital, which is only six blocks away.

IT'S SHINE, NOT MINK

DEAR IT'S: I think you were being unduly squeamish. You probably would have taken a blood sample and would not have been shocked by the request—unless, of course, you don't like any part of your neighbor's wife.

She refuses lab errand

DEAR ABBY: Joe, a guy I loved with, told me that he just came back from Las Vegas where he had been the best man at three weddings. (I'll call the bridegroom "Paul.") Joe said that Paul first married a girl who was visibly pregnant just to give her baby a name. Immediately after they were married, Paul divorced her. Then Paul went back to the chapel and married Girl No. 2 for the same reason. As soon as they were married, Paul divorced her, too. Paul said the divorces had been set up in advance. Then, they went back to the chapel, and Paul married the girl who was really in love with. (Joe said the third one didn't look pregnant.)

How about blood tests and waiting periods? Personally, I think this so-called "best man" is full of baloney, but he swears this actually happened. Is this possible?

DOUBTING THOMAS

DEAR TOM: It's possible. Blood tests and waiting periods are not required in Nevada. I am informed that divorces are final when granted and the parties are free to marry immediately.

DEAR ABBY: The nursing problems of 1880 caught my eye because I was a graduate nurse in 1908. In training we received $8 per month for four years. We worked 10 hours a day, six days a week, and did all the cleaning. Three months every year, we worked in the TB ward.

Later, on private cases, we were allowed to charge only $25 a week. On contagious cases, we cooked all the patient's meals in the family kitchen, but many times, all I got to eat was one bowl of milk and bread. On private cases we worked 20 hours a day and usually left the case after three weeks feeling exhausted and very hungry.

Today, nursing is a ball.

NORA J.

DEAR NORA: The low pay, long hours and drudgery of nursing in the early 1900s may make today's nursing look easy. But the academic and professional requirements for an R.N. these days are no "ball." And the competition, tensions and living costs that face the modern nurse don't make her work or her life a "ball," either.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Victor Mollo's book is written for rubber bridge players. Therefore, when he asks, "What should declarer play from dummy at trick one?" the answer is obvious.

Declarer should play a low spade. Once this play is made South can win the trick with his ace and take an immediate club finesse. If the finesse loses, that queen of spades will be in dummy to stop the bid. South will be sure of four clubs, three hearts, one spade and one diamond for a total of nine tricks. In match point duplicate there is a real problem facing declarer. He is in a normal contract since almost every one else will open one notrump and play in the notrump game.

The queen of spades play from dummy becomes an attempt to score an overtrick and overtricks are what win match-point tournaments.

Of course, if South knows that West never leads from kings (there still are such people playing bridge), he will make the rubber bridge players play of the low spade. If South is a natural pessimist, he will also play safe for his contract.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Hawaii wants to know if the rules of rubber allow a player to pass when his partner opens with a forcing two-bid.

This question comes up quite often. The answer is that the rules of bridge allow you to make any legal call when it is your turn to bid and a pass is always a legal call.

At the same time it is seldom advisable to pass when your

Oakley plans fly-in medics

The medical corporation in contact with the Oakley people is Med-Air Inc. of Troy.
It has set up similar services in Big Piney, Wyo., and Duchesne, Utah, earlier this summer. Services are also due to be established in Lyman, Wyo., later this month.
Plans had been made for Robert Lewis, chairman of the board of Med-Air, and Dr. Larry King, medical director for the physicians' group, to fly into Oakley Tuesday night to answer questions raised by the community.

Robert Anderson, administrator of the rural health program in the department of family and community medicine, University of Utah Medical Center, was to accompany the Med-Air representatives.
Anderson had put Oakley people in touch with the Med-Air group.

Mrs. Stringham said she had received a phone call about 2 p.m. Tuesday that the trio would be unable to attend the meeting. They said they would be able to meet with the Oakley people another week.

The organizers also want to have Dr. Eugene Holsinger, chief of staff at Memorial, on hand for that meeting. Mrs. Stringham said Dr. Holsinger will be on vacation until Aug. 25.
With school coming up, it was decided to set a new meeting after Labor Day. John Clark, Oakley member of the hospital board as well as the Cassia County commissioners, voiced doubts about the project.

He urged loyalty to the hospital and said Oakley should insist the physicians' group contact the hospital and work through it to establish a clinic. However, he emphasized he was not opposed to Med-Air.

Fred Schloss, administrator of Cassia Memorial Hospital, warned against too much optimism and suggested it would be better to look at all possibilities thoroughly. He offered to help in any way he could.

Schloss also recommended checking with another corporation that utilizes nurse-practitioners in its program. There would be no doctor established in the community, he said, but the nurse would be under a physician established elsewhere.

The group he cited was Internormental Health Care Inc., formerly Health Services Corp. He said Internormental now is a private corporation and has been separated from the LDS Church.

Mrs. Stringham said that corporation had been contacted 18 months ago and had been interested. When Schloss replied the group had then been in his infancy and might react favorably now, Mrs. Stringham agreed to contact it again.

Explaining the proposal offered by Med-Air, Mrs. Stringham said the community would be asked to furnish a building and pay utilities except for telephone.

Med-Air would furnish the X-ray equipment and lab facilities and pay for an open line between the clinic and the doctors and Roy.

The building would be rent-free for at least a year, perhaps two, depending on how soon the clinic showed a profit.
Fees would be comparable to those charged by physicians in the surrounding area. Med-Air officials were quoted on an average of $8 for an office call.

Mrs. Stringham said Med-Air is a private corporation having no financial connection with the University of Utah. However, the university has been involved in the recruiting and placement of five of the six physicians on the Med-Air staff.

Oakley had fewer than 700 residents in 1970. It has been without a physician since Dr. Richard B. Sutton moved to Burley. Schloss doubted the economic feasibility of a doctor in Oakley. He pointed out that the average nurse-practitioner makes $12,000 annually and the clinic would also have to cover doctor's salaries.

A hospital administrator also warned of winter flying. He cited the airplane deaths of three doctors in Utah last year.
"Before you can get a doctor in here full time, you're going to have to have more people," he said. "Dedicated doctors are not around as much as they used to be."

Schloss said most doctors gross $60,000 to $100,000 per year. You have to get more support than is here tonight," he said.
About 25 people attended Tuesday's meeting. Forty had showed up for a meeting July 31, right at the Lewis and Dr. King flew to Oakley to discuss the project with Mrs. Stringham.

It was noted Tuesday that there are 88 physicians in Twin Falls and only 13 in Cassia County, two of them surgeons and one an anesthesiologist. Mindoka County has about one-half dozen, Schloss said.

He told the group Burley is trying to get physicians' offices built. He cited a four-doctor clinic built in Jerome. It is staffed by three doctors new to the area and one previously in the community. Schloss predicted that Burley will have specialists in all nine office facilities are available.

Mrs. Littlefield said Oakley representatives had gone to a Burley meeting and the doctors there were not interested in the Oakley problem. She said some doctors in Twin Falls had told them to "get lost."

She added that a nurse practitioner had been ready to come to Oakley but a doctor could not be found to sponsor her.
One proposal made Tuesday was to sponsor a Vietnamese physician, but Schloss said he probably would have to spend a year or two working in a large hospital first.

Burley flag stolen

BURLEY — One of the new flags purchased by the city of Burley for the Cassia County Fair ended up in the trunk of a Heuburn car.
The driver of the car ended up in the Burley Jail.
Phillip B. Christ, 19, of Heuburn, is charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors and possession of stolen city property.

Police officers stopped the Christ car at Sheby's parking lot on South Overland Avenue at 9 a.m. Sunday. They said beer was found in the car and juveniles were with Christ.

The flag was discovered in the trunk of the car. Officers said it apparently had been taken from one of the poles displaying the flags downtown for the fair.

BURLEY — The Cassia County School Board is taking a look at possible boundary changes on attendance at the Burley and Oakley schools.

The county will also emphasize efforts toward equal opportunities for all children in the coming school year.

The subject of shifting transportation and attendance boundaries was brought up by board member John Adams of Oakley at Monday night's meeting.

Adams said he had been contacted by Grant Wylly, Burley, and Floyd Pickett, Oakley area rancher, favoring the shift of some students to the Oakley school.

Robert Bedke, Oakley, cited the half-million-dollar renovation and remodeling of the Oakley School and said that area would like to take some current Burley students into the Oakley School.

Adams reminded the board that before the Health officials confer over new federal law

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — About 30 persons attended a meeting here Tuesday night to discuss the impact of the recently enacted National Health Planning and Resources Development Act.
Most of the group also agreed to participate in another meeting next month to appoint a Magic Valley advisory panel that will help implement federal law at the state level.

William Chancey, Twin Falls County commissioner, chaired a panel of health officials Tuesday that discussed the law and its effects. They were Dr. Wayne Carte, director of the South-Central Health District; James Rosenbaum, administrator of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital; and Louis Mergs, executive director of Twin Falls Clinic.

Another health official, Ull Pardini, a member of the health planning section of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, said some people in the field "feel this law is probably the forerunner to national health insurance."

"The more you read this law, the more important and powerful it is," Pardini said.
"The law brings three formerly independent federal programs under one funding roof: the comprehensive health planning program, the regional medical programs and the Hill-Burton program."

In Idaho's case, the entire state has been designated as a single "Health Service Area," which will have a single "Health System Agency" that will determine where, when and how much federal health money will be spent in the state.

According to Pardini, the agency, comprised of between 10 and 30 appointed members, will be ultimately responsible only to the head of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The new federal health system must be set up and an application submitted to federal officials for approval by July 1976, Pardini said.

Gov. Cecil Andrus has issued an executive order in an attempt to bring "grass roots" participation into planning the federal health system in Idaho, Pardini said.

Andrus called for formation of "sub-area councils" in six regions of the state, including Magic Valley, that will act as advisers to the state-level health agency. Some members of the "sub-area council" probably will also sit on the state panel.

Chancey said meetings similar to Tuesday's will be held soon in the Mini-Cassia area and in Shoshone for Gooding, Lincoln, Camas and Blaine counties. Tuesday's session was for representatives of Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

Then, about the second week in September, those who have volunteered to be on the three meetings will meet to form Magic Valley's "sub-area council," Chancey said.
Representatives from the six councils will meet in Boise in October to discuss formation of the state health agency.

Careless refrigeration practice hit at Ketchum

By BART QUESENELL
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — Careless refrigeration practices in supermarkets across the state are still occurring, a food science researcher said here Tuesday.

Speaking before the Western Association of Food and Drug officials, Bill Davidson, Oregon State researcher, said the Wood River Valley is not immune from poor refrigeration practices.

Wandering through a downtown Ketchum grocery Monday, Davidson said he found a supposedly frozen can of orange juice that had turned liquid in the display case.

Davidson concentrated on poultry, meat and dairy stores during his talk to officials here, reporting that 40 degrees Fahrenheit is generally the maximum temperature allowable for perishable meat.

"Temperatures in the 40 to 45 degree range are in the 'twilight zone' and anything over 45 degrees is 'incubating,'" he said. Meat can quickly spoil, Davidson said, if the temperature is allowed over the 40-degree mark.

The consumer should watch for three things in particular, Davidson said, to avoid buying a bad piece of meat. A buyer should feel the meat, he said, to see if it is cold. "If it feels cold, it generally has been kept in a good condition, Davidson said.

In addition, watch for meat that has been piled high in a tall area, he said. Insufficient circulation of refrigerated air can raise the temperature of meat to a dangerous level. Do not trust thermometers placed in the display case, he said.

Most often temperature readings are low, he said, because of the thermometers are placed in the direct path of the blower across the top of the display and do not reflect the true temperature of the meat.

Davidson said he has measured meat products in display cases that varied as much as 40 degrees.
Watch for white paper placed on the bottom of the case. Although the white paper makes a better display, Davidson said the circulation of air in the bottom of the case is retarded and sometimes completely stopped.

No generalization, he said, could be made about refrigeration practices across the nation. Many stores are careful, he said, while many still are guilty of terrible abuses to customers.

Beer is probably one of the best kept products in all stores, he said.
Davidson said his food and dairy office is trying to get managers to monitor carefully the temperatures of meat products with tele-thermometers. The thermometers are capable of taking the surface temperature of meat inside its package, within one-half degree.

"We are in an age of consumerism," Davidson said, "but often the housewife is guilty of violations too."
Shoppers who pick over meat and return the product to the case often put the meat back down directly in the path of refrigerated blowers that are located on the outside edge of the case.

Home refrigeration can be dangerous as well, he said. Davidson warned consumers not to keep meat out of the refrigerator too long.
The convention ends today with talks by other consumer and industry spokesmen on the care and handling of foods.

TF threatens sewage plan

In a reply letter to MICHAEL NEBEKER said, "... we feel that the trench meets all requirements and the only settlement was where the (Twin Falls) service lines were installed; which is no fault of the contractor."

"This project was entered into on a cooperative basis and I hope it can also be concluded on a cooperative basis," Nebecker added.

Several residents of Addison Avenue have petitioned the city to finish the roadwork so travel on the street can return to normal. The city has not completed paving of the street and will not until the trench problem is remedied.

The citizens "felt 14 months is a long time to have the road torn up and we agree," Michael told the Times-News Tuesday.

"Actually, Kimberly shouldn't be on the hook unless they have paid the contractor off," he said. "We have to go through them (Kimberly) to get to the contractor."

The contractor for the project was Jobeca Construction Co., Yakima, Wash.

Milar is attempting to set up a meeting between the Twin Falls and Kimberly city councils to discuss the problem. He said the session may be held Thursday.

According to Twin Falls councilman H.E. Chaney, "we want to sit down with Mayor Nebecker and others to try to avoid an 'either/or' situation on the joint agreement."

Lincoln aide quits

SHOSHONE — The resignation of Byron Hall as Lincoln County weed supervisor has been accepted by the county commission.

Hall said he had taken employment with the Idaho Highway Department. His resignation becomes effective Aug. 15.

Commissioners will advertise for a replacement for the post.

The first goal was completion of the present building project which he estimated would be done in two months.

The other five were pushing for establishment of new programs, support for cooperative teaching and individual instruction, emphasis to improve teaching techniques, added emphasis for reading, and equal opportunity.

The superintendent reviewed five years in office by four board members present who had been elected after he took the post and offered to take any position "if at any time the board feels they'd rather give me another assignment."

He said he felt his job was to "pull people together" — to solve problems.
Grane remarked that he felt everyone on the board was there for the same goals of "doing some good for this district."

Board member Paul Brown, Burley, was classifications. Livestock judging began this morning. Dog, poultry and miscellaneous categories were judged.

Vegetables were entered and judged this morning. Shows went through quality, fitting and showing judging and booth displays underwent the eye of the judges.

The home economics judging contest was held this morning. Judges turned their eye toward the quality, fitting and showing of dairy cattle at 1 p.m. today.

Horses were judged Tuesday and a horse show was held Tuesday night. Home economics and miscellaneous projects of 4-H members and all community household arts exhibits were also judged Tuesday.

On top Tuesday morning is the entry of all flowers, which will be judged at 1 p.m. Swine quality, fitting and showing begins at 8 a.m. Beef breeding quality will be judged starting at 8 a.m., with modern beef quality judging to begin at 8:30 a.m.

Agricultural demonstrations will be in competition at 1 p.m.

Dateline 1775

By United Press International
LONDON, Aug. 13 — The admiralty announced that a tonnage of shipping had been engaged in transports to British waters from Ireland to America. Other vessels were being obtained to move the Hanover troops from Germany to Gibraltar and Minorca, thus freeing other British units for American service.

School uses discussed

Trustee Frank DeLuca told Ritchey, "The public was led to believe we would sell (the property) at the highest bid."

And board chairman Dr. Howard Ronk said he felt taking less than the top price for the property would be "a kicking faith with our constituents. It's a little afraid of their reaction."

State Reps. T.C. Silvers, Noy Brackett and State Sen. Richard High attended the meeting.

Silvers told board members the property, if sold commercially, would lose its tax exempt status and add considerably to local tax rolls. That could balance off the loss of the building to the public, he said.

Also, Silvers said, "I believe in the Peter principle... that the state employees' count increases in proportion to space available." "If the office space is there, the number of state employees will increase to fill it, he predicted.

The trustees' Leonard also heard a proposal from the county. Leonard told the board the county was interested in buying a portion of land extending 30 feet north of the county judicial building.

Leonard said the county was facing a space-squeezing in its judicial facilities and needed room to expand.

Today, however, Supl. George Staudacher said the district probably wasn't interested in selling the lawn portion of O'Leary property because children used the area for activities.

Leonard told the board the county eventually could be interested in the entire O'Leary property for a joint law enforcement and court complex, which could house police, additional court space, a new county jail and record storage.

The city has revenue sharing funds which must be committed within a two-year period, Leonard said, and asked the board to give consideration to his proposal. No members of the City Council were present at the meeting to discuss the idea.

The possible sale of O'Leary property has surfaced because school officials feel the school may need to be replaced. According to Staudacher and Ed Peterson, CTA Architects, safety improvements costing up to $700,000 may be required under a new life-safety code adopted last year by the legislature.

Staudacher has suggested the board approach the public with a bond issue for a new junior/high school instead of spending the funds to improve the old building.

The board told Leonard they would consider his proposal.

Today, Staudacher said no delays would be made in the sale of Washington School. "We'll go through our normal procedure but it's still going to take a month," he said.

The district must have three independent appraisals of the building made and a collective figure agreed upon by appraisers before the sale can proceed. Legally, the district must sell the property for at least the appraised figure, but apparently isn't required to take the highest bid.

No formal action on either proposal was taken by the board at the meeting.

Cassia school trustees study boundary changes at Burley, Oakley

BURLEY — The Cassia County School Board is taking a look at possible boundary changes on attendance at the Burley and Oakley schools.

The county will also emphasize efforts toward equal opportunities for all children in the coming school year.

The subject of shifting transportation and attendance boundaries was brought up by board member John Adams of Oakley at Monday night's meeting.

Adams said he had been contacted by Grant Wylly, Burley, and Floyd Pickett, Oakley area rancher, favoring the shift of some students to the Oakley school.

Robert Bedke, Oakley, cited the half-million-dollar renovation and remodeling of the Oakley School and said that area would like to take some current Burley students into the Oakley School.

Harold Blauer, superintendent of schools, offered attendance figures in Oakley's first six grades last year. He said there may be some space problem in the first grade — it had 29 last year — but not in other grades.

Herman Bedke, attorney for the board, reminded members that the school's policy has been that "if you paid your tuition, you could go where you wanted."

Board chairman Dan Grane, Burley, suggested that the school might consider the transportation to Oakley for those areas it decided to shift but allow the students to go to whichever school they wished on their own transportation.

Bedke agreed that would be all right "as long as the classrooms are not overloaded."
The matter was taken for study.

Supl. Blauer offered a set of six goals for the district.

The first goal was completion of the present building project which he estimated would be done in two months.

The other five were pushing for establishment of new programs, support for cooperative teaching and individual instruction, emphasis to improve teaching techniques, added emphasis for reading, and equal opportunity.

The superintendent reviewed five years in office by four board members present who had been elected after he took the post and offered to take any position "if at any time the board feels they'd rather give me another assignment."

He said he felt his job was to "pull people together" — to solve problems.
Grane remarked that he felt everyone on the board was there for the same goals of "doing some good for this district."

Board member Paul Brown, Burley, was particularly pleased with the list of goals the board presented. He said this gave the board something on which to evaluate administrative progress at the end of the year.

Gerald Frost, board member from Burley, was concerned about Blauer's admission that the district had slipped in standing among Idaho schools on teachers' salaries.

Blauer said that while the district had not advanced with the schools while the district was trying to resolve financial difficulties from deficit spending prior to his being named superintendent.

He said the salaries had advanced more in the past two years. He estimated that there are about 20 districts paying higher salaries and 30 districts with lower salaries.

Frost remarked that teacher salaries were an important issue that should be given high priority.

Sox player waives rights

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago White Sox third baseman Bill Melton Tuesday waived his appeal for a hearing on a fine and suspension for an umpire-bumping incident and started a three-day suspension Tuesday, the club announced.

Melton's action followed a telephone conversation with President Lee McPhail of the American League, the White Sox said, and Melton has agreed to pay his $250 fine to the league.

Former captain signs

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — David Keon, 15-year veteran and former captain of the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, Tuesday signed a multiyear contract with the Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

Keon, 35, a 5-foot-9 165-pound center, played an estimated 1,100 regular season games with the NHL plus about 100 playoff contests and had a total of 950 points on 400 goals and 550 assists.

"We've been looking for a man who would command instant respect as a leader since we became involved in this franchise," Saints General Manager Glen Sonnor said.

"He's got the best backhand slapshot in hockey," Sonnor said. "And his skills at defense are unquestioned."

California Seals sign vet

OAKLAND (UPI) — The California Golden Seals Tuesday announced the signing of veteran defenseman Jim Neilson, voted the team's Most Valuable Player last season, to a multi-year contract.

Neilson, who also led the offense with 17 assists, will be starting his 14th National Hockey League season. He came to the Seals prior to the 1974 season in the intra-league draft from the New York Rangers.

The signing of Neilson raised to six the number of defensemen the Seals have under contract. The others include Bob Stewart, Rick Hampton, Len Frig, Mike Christie and George Pesut.

Steeler comes out of retirement

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Running back Steve Davis of the Pittsburgh Steelers came out of retirement Tuesday and agreed to report to the New York Jets "as soon as possible."

Forbes case dropped

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The assault case against Boston Bruins forward David Forbes for his part in a stick-swinging clash during a game with the Minnesota North Stars last January has been dropped.

Hennepin County District Judge Paul Lommen Tuesday granted a motion by County Attorney Gary Flakke to dismiss the charge against Forbes, whose first trial ended last month with the jury deadlocked 9-3 in favor of conviction.

Flakke said he doubted a second trial would result in conviction because community sentiment was split on the issue of prosecuting an athlete for conduct during a game.

Flakke said he did not want to make an example of Forbes by re-prosecuting, but warned the "National Hockey League and others that extraordinarily violent acts will not be tolerated in this community."

Forbes was indicted for assault with a deadly weapon — his hockey stick — after a fight that left Henry Boucha, then of the North Stars but now with the WHA Fighting Saints, with a serious eye injury and double vision.

After his first trial, Forbes, who was not required to appear in court Tuesday, said he doubted that the trial would have an adverse impact on hockey, "but it will have an effect on how they play in Minneapolis."

World record

JOHN Walker of New Zealand breaks the tape to set a world record of 3:48.4 in the mile at an international track meet in Gothenburg, Sweden, carving 1.8 seconds off the old mark. (UPI)

Ryun surprises with first record margin

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — "I've known for two years that my-mile record would be broken," said a smiling Jim Ryun Tuesday. "I was just surprised that it wasn't broken by more than the first time."

Ryun, whose mile record of 3:51.1 set in 1966 stood as a world standard for nearly nine years, has now seen the record shattered twice in 13 weeks.

Mark Bayi of Tanzania broke it first at 3:51.0 and John Walker of New Zealand Tuesday flashed to a 3:49.4 at an international track and field meet at Gothenburg, Sweden.

The 28-year-old Ryun, who now runs professionally for the International Track Association, said Bayi's record, which shaved only a tenth of a second from Ryun's long-held mark was the most surprising to him.

"I thought that my record would go by a much bigger margin than that," said Ryun. "And now that it has, I'm very pleased for John Walker."

"I've felt for a long time now that Walker would come into his own next year and be the favorite to win the 1,500-meters at Montreal."

"He's a strong runner and has the quickness of a halfmiler," Ryun predicted that Walker's new mile record would now remain a standard for some time as runners concentrate on Olympic qualifying for the 1,500 meters.

"I think Walker's time will stand for a while, but only because the emphasis has now shifted from the mile to the metric mile for the Olympics," Ryun said.

Royal criticizes Switzer, wants lie detector test

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — University of Texas-football coach Darrell Royal criticized Oklahoma football coach Barry Switzer in a newspaper column Tuesday, for "highly unethical" comments and challenged Switzer to a lie detector test on recruiting practices.

Royal also said much more cheating goes on in college recruiting than "most high-thinking people" know about.

"If it sounds like I am hot, I am — real hot," Royal said in a Tulsa World sports column written by Bill Connors. Texas and Oklahoma are traditional rivals on the football field.

Royal's attacks came in response to an earlier Connors column in which Switzer attacked coaching cutbacks under consideration by the NCAA. The regulations being considered would abolish the recruiting coordinator, limit staffs to seven assistants and shorten the time coaches may use to contact prospective players.

"What has happened is that some coaches don't want to coach anymore," Switzer was quoted last Wednesday. "They would rather sit home and listen to guitar pickers. They want to make it where you can't outwork anybody. They are fixing to put us out of business."

Royal, for one, is an ardent country music fan and occasionally seen in the company of Austin's many musicians.

"For Barry to indicate I am in favor of cutbacks because I do not want to work and would rather listen to guitar pickers instead is highly unethical," Royal said. "Since he has felt free to inaccurately express my reasons for favoring cutbacks, I have a proposal to make — again.

"Have the two coaching staffs at Oklahoma and Texas take a lie detector test, based on the recruiting programs of the last two years. If both pass, I will concede I have been outworked and will, quit listening to guitar pickers."

Switzer later answered the comments from his office in Norman, Okla., saying his staff had undergone polygraph tests April 29 and the results had already been presented to university officials.

The coaches were asked if they offered "cars, clothes, money, paid transportation or the selling of tickets" to any football recruit, Switzer said.

Walker breaks mile record set by Bayi

GOETENBURG, Sweden (UPI) — John Walker of New Zealand clocked 3 minutes, 49.4 seconds Tuesday to break Gilbert Bayi's 13-week old world one-mile record, displaying the kind of form which Marty Liquori said would win him, and not the little Tanzanian, the Olympic 1,500-meter title next year.

Walker carved 1.6 seconds off the mark Bayi set May 18 at Kingston, Jamaica, when the Tanzanian broke Jim Ryun's eight-year old record by one-tenth of a second with a 3:51.0 clocking. Walker finished second in that race with Liquori third.

Liquori, after suffering a series of defeats by Walker in Europe, has since moved up to the 5,000 meters for his Olympic challenge in Montreal next year.

Walker broke the tape to set a world record of 3:48.4 in the mile at an international track meet in Gothenburg, Sweden, carving 1.8 seconds off the old mark. (UPI)

Miami skipper says WFL won't finish

MIAMI (UPI) — Joe Robbie, managing general partner of the Miami Dolphins, said Tuesday he does not believe the financially-troubled rival World Football League will finish out its 1975 season.

"I don't see how they got back this year and how they got people to invest," said Robbie, speaking at a luncheon marking the 10th anniversary of the Dolphins in the National Football League. "They must have people who think that if they're going to lose money, they're not going to lose much."

"I don't want to predict that sort of thing, but I don't think they can last the season," he said.

Robbie said the league had more troubles this year than in its inaugural year last season because it has no television contract, "and because it is operating on a cash basis with firms with which it does business."

"That's got to hurt," Robbie said. "I know what would happen to us if we had no TV."

Asked if he thought an average of 17,000 fans per game as an announced break-even point for the WFL was realistic, Robbie said, "No, that's not anywhere near ours, and they're supposed to be operating on the same level."

Robbie said inflation and increasing player demands were making it tougher to run a pro franchise.

"If we fill (the 80,000-seat) Orange Bowl every game in the preseason and regular season this year, we won't make half of what we made the year before last," said Robbie, adding he just about broke even a year ago.

"Last year, we had to buy our football team back because of the WFL," he said. "We probably overreacted in some cases, but we took a calculated risk."

Robbie said he did not think the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, an expansion franchise scheduled to begin in the NFL in 1976, would cut into the Dolphins' attendance.

"I believe it (the Tampa operation) would be more beneficial than not," he said. "I don't think they will hurt us in attendance at all. The only way they might hurt us a little would be if they became a contender immediately and we went downhill fast."

ABA commissioner, executives negotiate with Memphis group

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — American Basketball Commissioner Dave Debusschere and the league's executive director will present an offer from a Memphis group to buy the Memphis Sounds at the league meeting in Chicago Thursday, former Sounds President Mike Storen said Tuesday.

"The ultimate decision as to the placement of the franchise will be made by the trustees of the league based on the recommendation of the commissioner," he told UPI.

Storen, currently executive vice-president of the World Football League Memphis Southmen, declined to say whether Debusschere had endorsed the plan.

Earlier this year, the commissioner said the team, which finished the season on league funds, would not play in Memphis next year.

(Debusschere) was very impressed by the financial capability of the group and the understanding which they demonstrated in terms of pro basketball."

He declined to discuss the cost of the deal but said "We do not anticipate that the purchase price that the league established would be any problem."

Debusschere and ABA executive director Tiurlo McCrady met Monday night with Storen, Stanley Waxman, a local businessman heading the local ownership effort, Avron Fogelman, a past investor in the Sounds, and Saul Kaplan and Ray Dant.

Storen said he was hopeful the trustees would again chose Memphis, home of the franchise since 1970, on the basis of season tickets sold, the financial position of the potential owners, and "the total positive community support and because of the interest of the city fathers."

While the club has never had a successful season on the court or at the gate, Storen said the potential owners "believed to the tune of willing to purchase the team."

Last season the Sounds drew an average of about 4,100 persons to their games, finishing last with a 27-57 record.

Twice before when it seemed certain the team would fold, new investors came on the scene to rescue it.

6 weeks remain in season

NEW YORK (UPI) — With six weeks still remaining in the baseball season, the designated hitters in the American League have already equaled last season's total home run output. It was announced Tuesday by league officials.

Milwaukee's Hank Aaron, the holder of baseball's all-time home run record with 74, stroked his 11th of the season in Monday night's contest against the Minnesota Twins. It was the 16th home run of the season for the league's designated hitters, who are allowed to bat in place of the pitcher under a new league ruling instituted last season.

There are still 282 games left to be played in the 1975 season. Willie Horton of Detroit leads the DH's with 26 homers, followed by Billy Williams of Oakland with 15. Minnesota's Tony Oliva has 12, Aaron has 11 and Harmon Killebrew of Kansas City has 10.

Jim Rice of Boston leads DH's in batting with a .287 average, followed closely by Tommy Davis of Baltimore with a .283 and Oliva at .281.

Rifle champ increases lead

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (UPI) — Two-time former champion Lones Wigger of Carter, Mont., increased his lead to three points at the end of 11 matches in the National Smallbore Rifle Prone Championships Tuesday.

The 10-woman United States team fired the first perfect 4,000 score in the 24-year history of the International Randle Match.

Wigger, an Army major stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga., scored 4,399 points out of a possible 4,400 with one day of firing to go. He leads David West of Oil City, Pa., who had 4,295.

Army Reserve Capt. David Ross of Houston and Tom Whitaker of Belmont, Calif., were tied for third with 4,395 points each.

School facilities expanded

HAGERMAN - Hagerman school Supt. Ken Black reported to trustees Monday night that work on the expanded industrial arts room was proceeding on schedule.

The project, which includes the addition of a 30 by 20 foot section, was undertaken to provide more space for the already crowded industrial classes.

Black also reported that kindergarten plans were ready, with classes to be taught at the elementary school with Mariene Bruhn, teacher.

Trustees also hired ten new teachers, Donna Christensen, home economics, Wendell, and Donna Weed, elementary classes, from Dillon, Mont. Black also reported on the recent Idaho Board of Education meeting at Sun Valley and told trustees work on the hot lunch room dishwasher was in the final phase.

US sells planes to Uganda

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The State Department said today it has approved the sale of a $15 million executive jet, a helicopter engine and a commercial jet navigation system to the government of Uganda, which is headed by controversial President Idi Amin.

But a department official quickly added that under no circumstances will the United States sell military equipment to Uganda. He said the navigation system for the executive jet was of no strategic importance.

The spokesman said the Grumman jet was paid for in cash and that the plane and aircraft parts were not sold to Amin personally, but to the Ugandan government. Amin has raised the ire of a number of foreign governments with flamboyant statements about world affairs. He recently threatened to execute British writer Dennis Hills for calling Amin "a village tyrant" in an unpublished book. But he later rescinded the order and released Hills.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, AUGUST 14, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can accomplish much that is sane and sensible early, so organize your time wisely and intelligently. Later you are apt to want to make some hasty and unwise moves that could cause you considerable trouble. Avoid anything drastic or dramatic.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get your feet on the ground and discharge your responsibilities. No tangents. Use a different angle to deal with problems like a game.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can reach a far better understanding with associates in a.m., but later proceed with caution and you get into trouble.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know what others expect of you to avoid errors that could prove expensive. Handle unexpected situations carefully. Quiet—p.m.—at home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make plans for recreation with friends, then carry through with work at hand. Don't overdo, though, or you could undermine health.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to please kin more in a.m. Tonight, don't anger good friend by being too blunt. Smile more and gain good will—businesswise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show good friends how much you appreciate them—and reconcile with any-whom you have had altercations. Don't lose temper.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Analyze finances. Don't be too harsh with a good friend, and get away from the influence of a bad one. Drive carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't spend money foolishly. Not a good idea to trust an adviser who is pressed for time. Have a time social pm.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Assist one who comes to you for help, then do something to improve your position in life. Perk up your appearance. Don't argue.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Interest a friend in some important project in a.m., but don't confuse your plans to urter later. An expert can help.

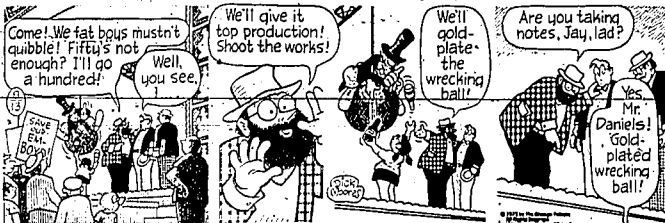

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care of any public work early, then be with congenials. Clarify personal aims. Don't jump into anything you're unsure about.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Some new idea can be put in operation early, but later get into routine work where there is no element of danger.

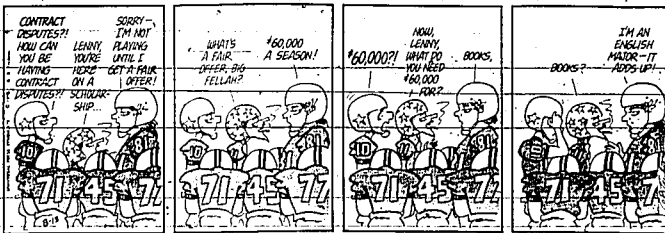

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will want to be more secretive about own plans and will want to do everything alone, but later in life this changes and the importance of having allies is understood and big strides can be made toward in life. Give as fine an education as possible and include the study of foreign languages. Slant schooling toward work with foreign governments, imports and exports, etc.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

In the London publishing company of John Murray, Ltd. is a safe, and in that safe is a tin box, and in that tin box are dozens of tiny parchment envelopes. Each contains a lock of hair and each is inscribed with a girl's name and a conquest date. The collection was the personally accumulated property of George Gordon, Lord Byron. On one little envelope in Byron's script is written: "Whose this was I don't recollect, but it is of 1812."

WHALE

"Could a whale actually swallow a man whole?" A. That whale with teeth, such as the sperm whale, can do it. Its throat is big enough. But the largest of all whales, the baleen blue whale, couldn't handle it. That one's throat is only about a foot in diameter. Biggest animal ever found in a blue whale's innards was a small penguin.

"STAGECOACH" was the movie that made John Wayne a star. But the late Gary Cooper was the first choice for that role. The film "High Noon" revitalized Cooper's career. But Wayne was the original selection for that role.

HEN'S EGGS

Please, my dear, do not wash those hen's eggs before you put them in the refrigerator. You'll scrub away the special oil that seals the pores of the shells. You don't want to taste like everything else in the refrigerator, do you? You don't want them to go bad early, what?

THAT YEAR of marriage during which a husband is most likely to stay is said to be the third. Just about 25 out of every 1,000 marriages end with divorce in that year. Only 13 out of every 1,000 break up in the seventh year. And a mere 10 out of every 1,000 come apart in the tenth year.

New credit line for packer firm

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — General Electric Credit Corp. said Monday it would give American Beef Packers Inc. a new line of credit totaling $30.5 million which should pave the way for the reopening of at least three ABP plants and provide the funds necessary to finance the ABP creditors' arrangement plan.

"This was pretty much the final support document to the creditors plan," Jones said. "And paves the way for the plan to be considered by the Creditors Committee."

In a statement from its Stamford, Conn., headquarters, GECC said it was planned that full operations from the Oakland, Iowa, and Omaha plants would resume if the conditions of the plan and financing were met, and that it was anticipated the Council Bluffs, Iowa, plant will be reopened sometime between Jan. 1 and April 30 of next year.

Long range plans call for ABP to sell its facilities in Council Bluffs, Iowa, Fort Morgan, Colo., and Nebraska City.

The Dumas, Tex., packing plant and Minatone, Neb. feedlot operation have already been sold.

GECC said the funds "should be sufficient" to generate the capital allowing ABP to pay its unsecured creditors, including livestock feeders owned more than $23 million by ABP.

GECC said, however, a "significant condition" of the financing was that cattle feeders and their banks, representing at least 95 percent of the total amount of the possible reclamation claims against ABP, and GECC, release those claims.

Bill Jones, creditors committee spokesman, said, "We are very gratified at today's action by GECC."

Hall named weed unit director

MOSCOW — The new president of the Idaho Weed Control Association is Gordon Pettis, Canyon County weed control superintendent.

He was elected at the weed-fighters' annual meeting at Blackfoot. About 150 persons attended.

New directors are Homer Futtler, Latah County weed control superintendent; Byron Hall, Lincoln County weed control superintendent; and James Bean, Boise, representative of Dow Chemical Co. Bean was elected vice-president of the association.

Experts who spoke at the Blackfoot conference suggested ways by which the people of Idaho might reduce their $50 million annual bill for losses and damages caused by weeds.

"All speakers agreed that the control of pernicious weeds is everyone's business," said Robert E. Higgins, Twin Falls. "He is extension weed specialist for the University of Idaho College of Agriculture and is secretary of the weed control group."

"The non-farm population is being urged to join farmers in supporting weed control," Higgins added. "Our group hopes to gain general support for a strong weed prevention and control effort so that Idaho's land resources can be protected and used for the greatest advantage to all."

Food price telephone line opens

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Council of America has opened a toll-free nationwide telephone line to enable consumers to report cases where anyone uses Soviet grain sales as an excuse for raising retail food prices.

The Agriculture Council of America announced.

The ACA announced plans for the line last week after asserting the Soviet grain sales were needed to keep U.S. farm prices from plunging under the impact of a big harvest and that they would not be responsible for increasing consumer prices.

Spokesmen said the number — 800-424-3510 — would be in operation from 5 to 9 p.m. MDT tonight. Ten incoming lines will be answered by farmers ready to tell consumer callers "the facts" about current food supply and price prospects.

An ACA official said further operating hours for the hotline would be determined later after the group sees how many calls are received.

PUC grants Washington rate hike

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has granted Washington Water Power Company two rate hikes, including flat rates for residential—electrical—and natural gas use. The firm would be allowed a flat 17 cents per therm for natural gas and 1.07 cents per kilowatt hour for electricity on top of a 12.50 service charge in each case. Ken Smith, commission administrator, said it was the "first flat rate" design he could recall adopted by the PUC for an Idaho-serving company.

Q: "Dry dog food is a money-saver, but my dog won't eat it. Any ideas?"

A: First, try Blue Mountain Instant Mix. Most dogs take to it right away, because it's been formulated by professionals that know dogs best. Like veterinarians, breeders, and animal nutrition experts at leading universities. And it not only tastes good, it provides him complete 100% nutrition. If your dog is an especially picky eater, try adding some Blue Mountain Beef Chunks to the Instant Mix. Then cut down on the canned food until you're saving only Instant Mix in a few days. By then your dog should love the change in his meals. And you'll love the extra change in your pocket.
