Strikes, unrest center in Spanish Basque areas

SAN SEBASTIAN, SPAIN (UPI) — Strikes in protest against Saturday's execution of five urban guerrillas paralyzed parts of the Basque country today and brought an extraordinary session of the government in Madrid to consider the violent Spanish and foreign reaction to the deaths.

Heavily armed police used clubs to quell street demonstrations in some of the Basque towns and cities. There also was a guerrilla-style $35,000 robbery in Barcelona and a vast forest fire that devastated great areas of the Basque region.

The two-day general strike was called by underground labor organizations for the four Basque provinces where extremists seek independence from Spain. It paralyzed several towns in Guipuzcoa province and idled thousands of workers in the industrial center of Bilbao.

A wave of anti-Spanish demonstrations swept Europe and Latin America Sunday and again today and Mexico called for the expulsion of Spain from the United Nations. A dozen nations recalled their ambassadors from Madrid. There were street demonstrations in Madrid Sunday by 1,500 youths shouting "Freedom!" and in Lisbon, Portuguese burned the Spanish Embassy.

Today there were new anti-Spanish manifestations which further isolated Spain politically and diplomatically.

Mexico ordered the expulsion of all Spanish government officials within 48 hours and severed all communications — air, radio, telephone and tele — in a move that prevented Spain's libertarian airways from completing flights already en route. Mexican diplomats were recalled from Madrid.

Switzerland became the 13th nation to recall its ambassador from Madrid following a weekend of violent anti-Spanish rioting there, and European Common Market employees in Brussels demonstrated today against any Spanish participation in the European community.

The executions stirred protests in Spain and abroad because of lingering hostility to the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, widespread opposition to the death penalty and because of the way the executed were tried.

They were convicted by military tribunals which, except in one case, rejected all defense witnesses and evidence. One trial that produced five death sentences — three of them later commuted — lasted three hours after civilian defense lawyers had been expelled — for interrupting proceedings with protests.

ALLIED Construction Co. engineer Carl Dille "coons" this beam on the new Perrine Bridge. "Cooning" is a term used by ironworkers who routinely walk — and sometimes run — along the beams the way most people would use a sidewalk.

Air of excitement marks Perrine bridge progress

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Even in the trailer house office on the dusty lot off the highway an air of excitement, incipient motion and progress surrounds the new Perrine Memorial Bridge.

Project superintendent Ken Lipton, his face wreathed in a beard and his mouth clamping down on a imaginary cigar, is bent around his desk like a bear in a playhouse growling enthusiastically into the phone.

Field engineer Carl Dille has grabbed a pile of blueprints and charts and with the same enthusiasm is explaining what has been done and what is to come.

The optimism has even infected office manager Willie Walker, a bespectacled former newspaperman who rarely gets out to the job site. He is more than glad to shuffle through the files, searching out figures, facts on material, time schedules, manpower, sizes and weights.

The optimism is almost manic. To the outsider it is disconcerting, until it is understood these men are committed to something larger than themselves and that they are going to keep on at hectic pace until the project is done.

Work on the new four-lane bridge began in May, 1973. The need was established in 1968 when inspection showed the present bridge, built in 1927, was structurally unsound. Heavy truck traffic was barred from it the following year.

The low bid of $8.47 million for the new bridge was submitted in March, 1974, by Allied Structural Steel Co. of Hammond, Ind.

The story of bridge building is really the story of the subcontractors, the different crews which pour in successive waves over the site, changing its looks and its feel as the bridge moves through its various stages.

The first to come to the site were the scalers and excavators. Almost immediately they ran into trouble.

They discovered many rock facings along the canyon walls were in a state of imminent collapse. Anchoring the facings with steel rods, which had been expected to be a minimal task, dragged on.

In addition, driller and excavators working on the abutment footings on the north end of the bridge kept on going deeper and deeper into rock. The footings had to be extended and tons of extra concrete poured.

In June, the sun broke through the clouds. The last concrete pier on the south side was completed and the erection of steel began. The huge curving pieces is called the "bottom chord." The bottom and top chords are held together horizontally and vertically by huge pre-bolted steel struts called X's and K's because they take the shape of those letters.

The X's and K's, or parts of them, are lifted out to the arch along the cableway which stretches more than 2,000 feet from high towers set back from each canyon wall.

In the cableway car, operator Bill Hubbs receives his instructions by two-way radio from workmen, called "belboys," near the swinging payloads on the cable hook. Working by these instructions, without really being able to see what the payload is doing, Hubbs pulls levers to bring the several-ton loads into position.

But Hubbs has it easy. The segments of the arch are hoisted and maneuvered by the cableway, but they have to be bolted into place against segments of the arch already held firm. Which means somebody has to get out there to the narrow strips of steel curving against the sky 500 feet above the canyon floor.

The men who take on this job are connectors. They call themselves "boomers" because they "boom" around the country from one job to the next. They are self-confessed thrillseekers, all a little "crazy," and they take great pride in their work.

today in brief

Long-term Poland grain sale eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A long-term agreement for sales of American grain to Poland may be negotiated later this fall, government sources said today.

A source said Polish officials have indicated they would like such an arrangement. He added the administration appears willing to discuss it after negotiating a pending, long-term grain sales deal with Russia and ending a current temporary moratorium on additional sales to Russia and Poland.

Fresh crisis grips Portugal

LISBON (UPI) — Prime Minister Adm. Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo ordered troops to occupy the nation's Communist-controlled radio and television stations today and said the move was taken to prevent Portugal's falling into anarchy.

Troops sent to one of the stations rebelled against their orders and joined the workers. The far left called for mass protests to paralyze the country.

Moslem pirates surrender ship, 29

ZAMBOANGA CITY, The Philippines (UPI) — Moslem pirates surrendered today and released a hijacked Japanese freighter and 29 hostages after Philippine navy authorities threatened to kill them all, a military official reported.

Rear-Adm. Ramon B. Alcala today announced operations in Zamboanga City, 500 miles south of Manila, that a Philippine navy flotilla of 11 navy vessels fired a warning shot across the bow of the hijacked Sushiro Maru when it tried to lift anchor and sail through the navy cordon this morning.

Tentative terms set in Boston strike

BOSTON (UPI) — The striking Boston Teachers Union and school officials today concluded a 22-hour bargaining session with a tentative contract agreement to end a week-long strike.

Details of the settlement were not disclosed. However, a source told UPI it included a 6 per cent pay increase and 75-minutes every two weeks in so-called extra time which the teachers work without pay.

Gunmen demand passage from London

LONDON (UPI) — Three gunmen demanded a plane and safe conduct out of Britain Monday as the price for sparing the lives of seven Italian employees seized as hostages in a botched robbery attempt at a London restaurant. But a high-ranking police official said "there will be no deals."

'Peaceful strike' at Nevada prison

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — About 70 inmates launched a "peaceful strike" at the Nevada State Medium Security Prison today to protest the quality of the facility's services.

A prison spokesman said the convicts were not committing any violent acts and the routine of the prison was about normal. He said the strike is a "spillover" from a work strike last week at the maximum security prison five miles away.

Hills due appointment as SEC head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House Counsel Rodrick Hills will be named chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission by President Ford in the near future.

Hills, husband of Housing and Urban Development Secretary Carla A. Hills, said his appointment "won't be announced for awhile."

Barge fleet escapes Arctic ice pack

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A fleet of tugs and barges laden with $1 billion of vital equipment for the Alaska Pipeline broke through six-inch thick ice Sunday and edged its way around Point Barrow off the far northern tip of Alaska.

The fleet was expected to arrive at its Prudhoe Bay destination today, spokesman for Atlantic Richfield Co. here said Sunday.

House probers squabble over secret data terms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., head of the House intelligence committee, said today President Ford's latest proposal for supplying secret information to the panel was so restrictive it would halt the investigation.

The ranking Republican committee member, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, strongly disagreed with Pike. He told committee members "substantial progress" had been made in efforts to resolve the conflict between the panel and the administration.

"If we accepted the language of the President's proposal, it would completely shut down the investigation," Pike told an open session of the House Select Committee on Intelligence.

CIA Director William E. Colby partially complied with a subpoena from the House panel by declassifying and forwarding selected intelligence materials regarding the 1969 Communist Tet offensive in Vietnam.

5 TF petitions out

TWIN FALLS — Five nominating petitions for the Nov. 4 Twin Falls City Council election have been taken out by City Clerk Edythe Koon said today.

No petitions with the required 40 signatures of registered voters have been turned in, she said.

The five petitions to date are for potential candidates Gordon Cox, Stephen Lincoln, Leon Smith, Chris Talkington and Margaret Youtz. Lincoln and Smith are incumbents on the council.

The seats held by Stephen Bancroft and Winston Jones also will be decided Nov. 4. All four seats carry a four-year term.

The deadline for submitting nominating petitions is Oct. 7 at 5 p.m.

Cassia wreck claims life

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — An illegal alien from Mexico was killed in a pickup truck accident about seven miles southwest of Burley Saturday evening.

Another alien was hospitalized. The driver and a third passenger fled the scene. Cassia County sheriff's deputies believe they may be headed back to Mexico.

Javier Zuniga, 19, a passenger in the pickup, was killed in the wreck.

Ricardo Zuniga, 19, is reported in satisfactory condition at Cassia Memorial Hospital. He suffered a broken left leg and probable spinal

TF man wounded at Caldwell

CALDWELL — A Twin Falls man was wounded in a shooting that killed two people here Sunday morning.

Marvin Smith, 39, Twin Falls, was visiting a family in Caldwell when he was wounded by a small caliber handgun apparently fired by Robert G. Anderson, 49, Anderson apparently shot and killed his ex-wife, Janice Anderson, 37, at her home, then turned the gun on himself, according to Caldwell police, who called the incident a murder and suicide after preliminary investigation.

Smith, treated at a Caldwell hospital, was later reported in fair condition at a Boise hospital.

Officers, said neighbors, reported hearing a disturbance at the Anderson home about 8:30 a.m. Sunday. When officers arrived they found Mrs. Anderson dead from a head wound. Anderson, still alive, was taken to a Boise hospital where he died of a head wound.

Police said Anderson apparently broke into the home.

The Andersons' two children were not injured and apparently did not witness the shooting although they were in the home at the time. The incident is still under investigation, according to police.

A coroner's investigation is not planned, according to Canyon County coroner Dr. Thomas Donnellinger.

and sternum-area injuries.

Driver Ruben Garcia, 40, and passenger Hector Garcia, 20, disappeared from the scene of the accident sometime Saturday evening.

The wreck occurred about 5 p.m. near the intersection of 700-South and 700-West, seven miles from Burley. The pickup was owned by Hepworth Farms, Burley, who employed the men.

Deputies said Garcia was driving east on the gravel surfaced 700 South Road and lost control of the pickup. They attributed the accident to excessive speed.

The pickup rolled at least one and a half times, coming to rest on its top.

Magazine tells 'inside story' of Patty's flight

By United Press International

Rolling Stone magazine reported today that Patricia Hearst asked to join the Symbionese Liberation Army and after listening on radio to the Los Angeles shootout which killed most of the SLA was driven across the country by sports activist Jack Scott.

In the magazine's latest issue released today, Rolling Stone correspondents Howard Kohn and David Weir quoted "informed sources" as giving "the inside story" of Miss Hearst's kidnapping and 19-month disappearance.

The magazine said Scott helped Miss Hearst and her fellow SLA members, William and Emily Harris, leave the San Francisco area when they were in their most dire circumstances by driving Miss Hearst to a Pennsylvania farm house last summer. He then drove her back to the West Coast in the fall, it said.

During the summer, sources said Miss Hearst told Scott of her kidnapping, detention and switch from wealthy society to radical guerrilla.

After her kidnapping on Feb. 4, 1974, the magazine said Miss Hearst was blindfolded in a stuffy closet but was not otherwise brutalized or starved. During that time Donald DeFreeze, the ex-convict leader of the SLA known as Cinque, kept harping on her family ties — "Your mommy and daddy are in prison."

The magazine said Miss Hearst became disillusioned with her family and friends and feared for her life because of the possibility that law enforcement officers might break into the hideout at any time.

"By degrees her disillusionment with her parents turned into sympathy for the SLA," the Rolling Stone said. "Seven weeks after she was kidnapped, Patty asked to join the SLA."

It said the other SLA members were opposed but DeFreeze wanted her as part of the gang and, as "undisputed leader of the SLA," he prevailed.

DeFreeze and five other members of the SLA died in a shootout in Los Angeles on May 17, 1974. Rolling Stone said Miss Hearst and the Harrises were on a street nearby and listened to radio accounts of the holocaust.

Harris bought a used car for $350 — almost all the money she had — and they left the area with Miss Hearst hidden under a blanket in the back seat, the magazine said.

RUPERT — Robert V. Walker, 62, Rupert, died suddenly Saturday at Roseworth Dam of natural causes.

Mr. Walker was born Sept. 17, 1913, at Berryville, Ark. He lived for many years in Hansen and served as a police officer there from 1950 to 1964. He had resided in Rupert for the last 10 years and served on the Rupert Police Department from 1964 until retirement in 1973 as a sergeant. He also was an avid fisherman and hunter.

Mr. Walker was a lifetime member of Peace Officers Association of Idaho.

He is survived by his wife, Anna, Rupert; a son, Loren Walker, Boise; a daughter, Mrs. Larry Judy Curtis, Coulee Dam, Wash.; two brothers, Elbert E. Walker, Twin Falls, and Leroy Walker, Berryville; two sisters, Mrs. Ona Allenberg, Berryville, and Mrs. Lester Setzer, McAdoo, Ore. There are 3 grandsons and one granddaughter.

Services will be Tuesday at 2 p.m. at the Twin Falls Funeral Chapel, with Rev. Kenneth Rhoades of the Bible Baptist Church officiating. Concluding services will be held at Sunset Memorial Park.

Friends may call at the chapel until 9 p.m. today and until service time Tuesday.

Leon B. Taylor

BOISE — Leon B. Taylor, 79, former Buhl resident, died Saturday in Boise after an illness.

Mr. Taylor was born Jan. 19, 1896, in McDonald, Kan. He was married to Caroline Schieler, July 1, 1925 at Ponderosa, Ore. Mr. Taylor came to Idaho in 1906 and graduated from high school there. Later he graduated from the University of Utah and worked for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, for more than 25 years.

A county agent in Weiser and Moscow, Mr. Taylor also worked with the USDA in Boise before being appointed to a post in Washington, D.C. He was a member of the Masons for 50 years.

Survivors include his wife, Boise; a son, two daughters, a sister, Lola T. Chaplin, Jerome, and nine grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Graveside rites will be at Morris Hill Cemetery in Boise at 11 a.m. Tuesday. The family asks that memorials be made to the American Cancer Society.

Jenerson M. George

MALTA — Jenerson M. George, 88, Malta, died Saturday at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

Born April 4, 1887, at Walthburg, Wash., he attended schools in Walthburg and was married to Grace Hakestraw in 1910. She preceded him in death in 1932. Mr. George was a member of the Christian Church and the Spokane, Wash., Eagles Lodge. He lived most of his life in the Spokane area until four years ago when he moved to Malta to be with his son.

Surviving are one son, Basil E. George, Malta; two sisters, Mrs. Bernice Bell in Alberta, Canada, and Mrs. Nevada Smith, in British Columbia, Canada.

Besides his wife, he was preceded in death by one son. Burial will be in Spokane. Local arrangements are under direction of Payne Mortuary.

Search for Hoffa's body halts; new leads sought

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — The search of a 29-acre site where James R. Hoffa's body may be buried has been called off until authorities get fresh information from a tipster who claims he witnessed the Teamster leader's burial.

An investigator for a Senate subcommittee said Sunday that the tipster was being held by underworld gangsters anxious to prove they were not involved in Hoffa's death.

The Senate investigator, reporting on a bizarre, indirect collaboration with gangland families, said he was told the unidentified tipster would be held captive until he provides specific clues to solve the Hoffa mystery, which began with the disappearance of the union boss on July 29.

Police dug with a power

WM. B. GALLINARO says tipster held shovel-for-three-hours Sunday before calling off the search, which began Saturday in a 29-acre rural area of woods and swamp in Waterford Township, about 35 miles northwest of Detroit. Squads using a helicopter and a specially trained dog were unable to find any evidence of a grave, which the tipster reportedly said was dug the day before Hoffa's disappearance.

William B. Gallinaro, an investigator for a subcommittee chaired by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said underworld contacts told him and fellow investigator F. Keith Adkinson the informant had been tracked down and was being held by a gangland chief, according to the Detroit Free Press.

Information from the man reportedly was being relayed by courier to a go-between who contacted Gallinaro about four weeks ago.

In an interview Sunday, Gallinaro and Adkinson said they had mistakenly thought the tipster had been brought back to the grave site by underworld figures, and that he had precise directions to the grave. But the two men said they learned later the man had relied on his memory when he drew a general map of the supposed burial site.

Vincent Piersante, director of Kelley's organized crime task force, said Sunday he wished the investigators "would get the informant here and put a cross on the spot."

"We don't know about the mental condition of this person who made the estimates of direction to a burial site," he said. "But the two men said in the back of your car, every 10 seconds seems like an hour and a half, every hundred yards seems like three miles," Piersante said.

I have a severe heart condition, and was a Medic Alert Foundation member. If you have Hoffa's body in your car, it is permissible to inscribe your name on this bracelet in case something should happen to me?

Answer . . .

Medic Alert is a non-profit, charitable organization which furnishes patients under treatment for diabetes, epilepsy, circulatory and heart conditions with a bracelet or necklace that lists the wearer's name, disease and serial number. In the event of an accident or emergency a collect call to the Foundation's headquarters in Turlock, California, will provide full information about the individual to prevent harmful treatment.

The emergency nature of Medic-Alert would be jeopardized if it were complicated by any other function. Wallet cards available from us will adequately serve the purpose you wish to accomplish. Please telephone, and we will mail a card to you.

Bank work begins

RUPERT — Ground breaking for a new bank was started in Rupert Friday. First Security Bank of Idaho will be moving its location to the northeast corner opposite the town square.

The new bank, a two-story building (the second story a mezzanine), offering full banking services will have two drive-in teller windows, with provisions for a third window, according to Manager Dr. Wm. H. Allred.

The building will be about 76 by 44 feet, with an additional 900 feet of floor space on the mezzanine.

The exterior will be a rustic design with pressure-treated wood.

L.J. Ellsworth Construction Co. of Blackfoot has contracted for the job. Vic Engkrat will act as construction superintendent.

The bank is expected to be completed in May or June, Allred said.

Building plans aired

L.J. ELLSWORTH, owner of Ellsworth Construction, Blackfoot, discusses plans for the new First Security Bank building in Rupert with Shirley Leonl, Chamber of Commerce president, and Dr. Wm. H. Allred, manager of the Rupert branch Bank. A June, 1978, completion date is expected for the building.

Blauer replaces Terhune as Cassia GOP chairman

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Ernest Blauer is new Cassia County Republican chairman. Blauer, elected Thursday night at a meeting of the county's GOP precinct committeemen is replacing Dr. Charles Terhune, who resigned after two years, at the post because he plans to spend six months a year outside Idaho.

Shirley Povlsen, Cassia County treasurer, was chosen state committeewoman. She replaces Katherine Williams, who also resigned.

Steve Westfall was elected to the GOP treasurer position vacated by Mrs. Povlsen.

Three precinct committee posts were filled. Dan Peterson replaced Robert Hale in Burley's precinct 6, Boyd Poulton replaced George Granala in precinct 8 and Lovell Turner was named to the Declo post.

National Committeewoman Orleta Sinclair, Twin Falls, spoke on her trips to committee meetings in Washington, D.C., and Dallas, Texas, in September.

The Washington meeting was to choose the 1978 national convention site, organize committees for it and to acquaint members with the party's programs as they are affected by the campaign reform law.

Mrs. Sinclair said the highlight was a White House reception by President and Mrs. Ford. "It was truly an evening to remember," she said.

Mrs. Sinclair said most of the party leadership was at Dallas. Emphasis was placed on fiscal responsibility, free enterprise, strong national defense, local control on local programs and individual freedom.

She reported that solutions passed included commendation and support for the President, retention of the Panama Canal Zone, commitment to strong national defense and a reminder of Soviet policy against non-Communist governments, prohibition of forced busing but support for quality education, boycott of Cuba, union inclusion in anti-trust laws, self-sufficiency in energy through research and development, specific limitation of government, specific revisions of the food stamp program, support for the national welfare reform bill, specific crime-fighting proposals and restoration of the Senate and House Internal security committees.

Mrs. Sinclair also cited a newspaper article saying 62 per cent of the public follows the Republican philosophy of economics and government, but less than 33 per cent participate in GOP activities.

She said the party should try to gain the 79,000 unregistered voters in Idaho to regain Republican influence in state politics.

Legislative Chairman James Roper expressed the hope that new, young blood could regain the Cassia County state senate seat next year.

Committeemen also approved a new set of by-laws and approved special directives for replacing the county chairman or inactive precinct leaders.

Head Start classes set

TWIN FALLS — Head Start classes are in the process of getting under way for this fall's program.

Services for those enrolled in the programs include dental and medical check-ups and follow-ups, as well as nutritional and educational benefits. Emphasis this year is on parent involvement.

Unconditional demands for amnesty increasing

By Congressional Quarterly WASHINGTON — For the United States, the Vietnam era... officially ended...

But for thousands of draft evaders, military deserters and war protesters, the Vietnam experience is not yet over.

With the expiration of President Ford's year-long clemency offer Sept. 15, many of these individuals are renewing their demand for a universal, unconditional amnesty.

In the Senate, a bill introduced by Philip A. "Doc" Mitchell, would give immunity from prosecution to about 11,000 persons...

More controversial legislation introduced in the House by Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., would grant amnesty to war protesters and persons who had received conditional amnesty...

Should Congress grant unconditional amnesty to Vietnam-era draft evaders, military deserters and war protesters?

PRO Helred Marler Col. Edison W. Miller, a former prisoner of war, had a house subcommittee earlier this year...

Constitutional amnesty or clemency is a contradiction since it is "essentially a demand for retribution, a punishment imposed on one faction by another," he said.

Countering the argument of amnesty opponents that a general pardon would set a dangerous precedent, University of Michigan Law School Professor Joseph L. Sax said he believes "everything we know about deterrence suggests that no significant number of people would be affected."

According to Senator Hart, the case for requiring alternate service is undercut when it is considered "how long the disruption of so many lives has lasted and how difficult it will be for men to find jobs of any kind."

Pointing out that amnesty means "to forget, not necessarily to forgive, as is often mistakenly thought," Hart argues that "to require those who have exercised a responsibility of conscience to accept terms which imply an admission of guilt is just not logical."

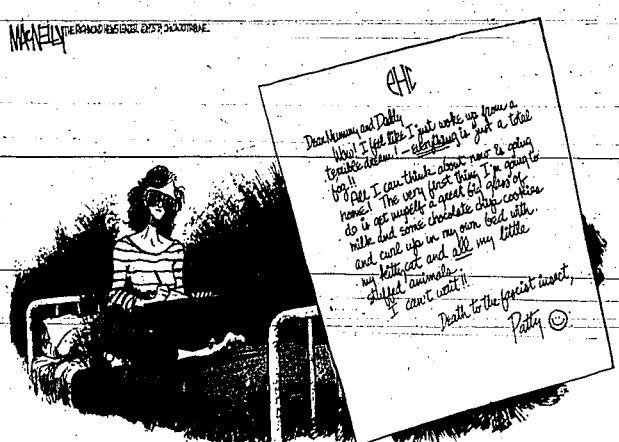

Rep. Abzug maintains that nothing less than full amnesty will restore draft evaders, deserters, war protesters and others "to productive lives in the United States, and put behind us the divisive debate over Vietnam."

Among those opposing universal, unconditional amnesty is former Sen. Charles E. Goodell, who headed President Ford's Clemency Board. "In the guise of seeking to do justice, it would create additional injustice," he insists.

It should not be misted into thinking that every person who refused service did so out of the noblest moral feelings. Many persons acted out of selfish or personal motives...

The proposal "might even exonerate those terrorist bombers, who in 1970 bombed the Mathematics Research Center at the University of Wisconsin and killed an innocent teaching fellow working in the building," he said.

Retired Marine Col. R.D. Holm Jr., a military analyst for the Detroit Free Press, has noted that, under an amnesty bill introduced by Senator Hart, a soldier who defected to the enemy and broadcast from Hanoi could receive higher benefits and pension entitlement than the widow of another soldier killed in battle.

Who's to blame for assassination tries?

WASHINGTON — Consider who would have borne the "brunt of blame" had the second assassination attempt on President Ford been successful.

First would have been the men of the Secret Service, who have gone from heroes to bums in two weeks. Whoever was responsible for brushing aside the specific warning of San Francisco police would have received the same blame that history has allotted the man who failed to guard Lincoln's box at Ford's theatre.

Next, blame would have been directed at the media. Time and Newsweek, which celebrated the earlier would-be assassin on their covers, would have received the condemnation of even these press and television commentators whose own outlets they invaded on the Manson groupie the attention she craved.

Third, blame would have been fixed on Ford, for doing exactly what his press secretary later claimed he was not doing — flaunting himself before the trigger-crazies, providing "a dare or an egging-on" that amounted to playing politics with his own life.

Finally, the refrain would be played again that ours is a "sick society," its profound pathology given expression through assassination, its bloodlust evident in the unwillingness to embrace gun control, and each of us would be asked to bear a portion of the national guilt.

Each target of blame would have had its defense. The Secret Service would have said, quite rightly, that to take every kook into custody when a President goes visiting would require not only massive dosierization of our society, but adoption of a principle of mass preventive arrest abhorrent in a democracy.

And a society whose majority rejects self-flagellation would say, not quite rightly, that a small percentage of Kamikaze nuts do not a sick society make.

The followers of the fallen President would have said, quite rightly, that there cannot be even the appearance of a surrender to terrorism; that public contact with the people is not just exhibiting machismo, but reaffirming faith in an open society.

And a society whose majority rejects self-flagellation would say, not quite rightly, that a small percentage of Kamikaze nuts do not a sick society make.

But all that is in the conditional sense. Fate has given us a reprieve. What can the potential targets of future blame do to avert our appointment in Samarra?

First, the Secret Service can lean harder on the President. In that most secret of behind-the-scenes White House tensions, the last flare-up occurred when H. R. Haldeman forced chief of detail Robert Taylor from his job, for being too zealous in holding back crowds and spilling

Some of those enemies think that if Rockefeller goes, he should be replaced by a non-Washington figure — preferably a young, moderate governor such as Gov. Daniel Evans, 49, of Washington or Gov. Robert Ray, 47, of Iowa. Conservatives would much prefer Gov. James Holtzclouser, 46, of North Carolina.

Whatever the choice, many Republicans feel the President ought to hurry it up. One politically astute cabinet officer told us that Ford should do the unconventional and speak now, either redesignating Rockefeller or picking his successor.

To do otherwise, will encourage more Byzantine intrigue in the heart of Jerry Ford's open White House.

The media would have said, rightly, that news has its own free market, and if editors put their notions of the public interest ahead of their responsibility to satisfy the public's interest, a vital freedom would be lost.

Rumfeld moving into VP game?

WASHINGTON — The fact that a 34-year-old presidential aide named Dick Cheney is increasingly taking charge of day-to-day White House business is a fascinating manifestation of backstage intrigue with far-reaching implications.

The reason Cheney is handling so much of the White House routine today, say knowledgeable insiders, is that his boss and mentor, presidential chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld, is quietly deepening his involvement in the management of President Ford's election campaign.

Cheney's role in the campaign has been so effective that Rumsfeld's stock among party leaders perceptibly declines.

All this creates a tableau worthy of the Byzantine palace. Ford, typically open and straightforward clearly wants to reward Rockefeller's loyal service the past year with a full term as vice president. But constantly at the President's side advising him is Rumsfeld — secretive, clever and no friend of Nelson Rockefeller.

Strengthening Rumsfeld's hand in surreptitiously pushing to dump Rockefeller after a southern tour, which did not win over conservatives and sickened liberals, and the Harris poll showing him hurting the Ford ticket.

The result is agitation against the vice president in Republican ranks which goes beyond the usual palanx of right-wing Rockefeller - haters.

One prominent conservative leader who is counted on by Reagan forces has come to feel so strongly that Rockefeller must go that he is thinking about making this offer to the White House: dump Rocky and I'll back Ford.

If Rockefeller, 67, is dumped, it is highly unlikely that Reagan, 64, will replace him. High-level speculation about young successor bolts down to the three Bs — Sen. William Brock, 44, and Howard Baker, 49, both of Tennessee, and Ambassador George Bush, 51, — plus Rumsfeld, 43.

Baker is the best known but is widely distrusted both in the White House and party circles. With Brock up for reelection next year, his selection might turn another Senate seat over to the Democrats.

Or, if a Ford-Rockefeller ticket lost, remove him from political life. As for Bush, he was one of Ford's final three choices for Vice President (along with Rockefeller and Rumsfeld). But now out of sight in Peking as envoy to China, he is out of the political mind.

Enter Rumsfeld. While the Ford campaign is technically removed from the White House, Rumsfeld, actually runs it. He talks to party leaders far more than is generally known including wily old pro F. Clifton White of New York, architect of Barry Goldwater's 1964 presidential nomination.

What's more, anti-Rockefeller conservatives get this private message from Rumsfeld: I can't do anything about it right now, but I agree that Rocky should go.

"Taking the overall drift of the way Rummy operates," one Republican aide told us "I can only conclude that he is running for vice president."

But the cheering would be restrained if Rumsfeld succeeds. "He reminds me too much of Nixon," says one conservative Congressman. "You never know which way he's going."

Similarly, Rumsfeld is "not without" ferocious enemies in the administration and the White House itself.

Angry man has major battle on his hands

WASHINGTON — Fred Larson is an angry man. Perhaps, lackaday, one of the last of the breed for whom the Republic has become famous and whose history is crisscrossed with successful efforts to control special interest groups.

Larson is executive vice president of the National Right to Work Committee. In effect, the committee is a kind of labor movement in that it seeks to protect workers and the public from the excesses of unionism.

With a minimum of debate, the House has passed legislation which would enforce compulsory unionism by legalizing "common situs" picketing. The bill will become law if passed by the Senate and signed by the President.

Like the House, the Senate has a lot of members who are obligated to Big Labor for campaign help.

Unfortunately, the public has grown accustomed to infringements of the right to earn a living, notably the closed shop — compulsory unionism. In the construction industry, the building trade unions may even force a contractor to sign a pre-hire contract without the consent of even one employee.

They maintain exclusive union hiring halls, and all employees must become members in good standing within seven days or lose their jobs.

Well, this would seem a good time to take on the goons who are trying to substitute force for rule by law. The common situs bill must be an embarrassment to the labor movement as a whole. It is simply too scandalous for decent, responsible labor leaders to swallow.

And those not moved by conscience should be troubled by growing public resentment of labor union power.

It is not an accident or a passing public aberration that most polls show people are embarrassed with labor union irresponsibility — 70 per cent in one poll. More and more surveys reveal that most Americans believe union membership should be voluntary.

Those strikes by public servants have bitten deeply into the people's confidence in Big Labor.

Rec'd Larson and his National Right to Work Committee could have a faceless army on their side. Have it. Ladies and gentlemen, I expect the Founding Fathers would be on your side.

Andrew Tully

the most corrupt in the nation, many of them controlled by or under the influence of mobsters. Let that pass for now. Incredibly, the House would repeal a fundamental civil right — the right to be guaranteed to both union members and nonunion workers.

Practically speaking, that right is more important than the freedom to choose one's own religion, and ranks just below freedom of speech. Indeed, from its birth this has been a country that also made working for a living an obligation.

T-dollars explain tax bite

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you pay income taxes, your share of the cost of running the Agriculture Department for a year is $136.38. The Navy's Trident submarine program costs you $229.18. Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton calls these T-dollars. He says all government affairs should be figured in T-dollars, and the news media should use them, so each taxpayer will know how much each project costs him personally. For every $1 billion spent by the federal government, Morton told a luncheon of consumer reporters—Thursday—the average American household pays $14.06. That is figured by dividing 71,120,000 households into $1 billion.

His symbol for the T-dollar is a dollar mark with the slash through the S changed to a T. Morton said a headline reading "Congress votes $10 billion for X-17 Program" will have more significance if the reader realizes it means $140 of his money."

Assassination attempts revive critics of media sensationalism

N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — Media coverage of the two recent assassination attempts against President Ford has again touched off a controversy over whether the press, in giving prominence to such sensational events, does not inspire a contagion of the violence.

"Vice President Rockefeller said last week: 'Let's stop talking about it. Let's stop putting it on the front pages and on television. Psychiatrists say every time there is any publicity, it is stimulating to the unstable.'"

Two New York Times Columnists, William V. Shannon and William Safire, expressed milder views along the same line.

Shannon wrote in Wednesday's paper the "media could withhold photographs of the would-be assassins and play down detailed coverage of their private lives."

"The press, while reporting the essential facts, has a responsibility to deny them (would-be assassins) the gratification of instant celebrity," Shannon wrote.

Safire suggested in Thursday's paper:

"The media can do with the second would-be assassin what it did with the second moon landing: Commensurately reduce the publicity."

Eric Sevareid, the television commentator on CBS News, said no one denied the press had the right to report that President Ford "sometimes wore a protective vest, but that to do so was 'outrageous.'"

However, he made the comment on a TV special, where many people may have heard about the vest for the first time.

"Few journalists will deny that there is some cause and effect regarding reports of facts of violence. Many reporters believe, for instance, serious questions of public policy — how to protect the President. Should the President be out in the streets as often as he is? It would be a mistake in an open society for the press to censor itself in such matters."

Time and Newsweek appear to have taken the brunt of the recent criticism concerning coverage of sensational events. On the cover of their Sept. 15 issue, each ran a picture of Lynette Alice Prumme, accused of trying to assassinate President Ford Sept. 5 in Sacramento, Calif.

The critics apparently felt that perhaps Sara Jane Moore, accused of firing a shot at the President last Monday in St. Francisco, may also have wanted her picture on the cover of Time and Newsweek.

To most journalists interviewed, however, both magazines handled the report superbly — clearly written and apparently accurate, in-depth

Ford's political coattail termed short, shorter and non-existent

Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — For all their protestations of loyalty to President Ford, House Republicans and even some senators figure that in 1976 the Ford coattails will be so short as to be nonexistent and that they had better try to chart a campaign course independent of the White House.

The reason is simple, as Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, GOP House leader says: "We must be doing something wrong."

In 1952, the year of the Eisenhower landslide, Republicans won control of the House by a hair-thin eight seats. Two years later, they lost control and have been in the majority ever since.

There have been a couple of vintage years for GOP candidates, particularly in 1966, when they won 47 seats, having lost 38 two years before, the year of the Sen. Barry Goldwater (Ark.) debacle.

In 1970, they lost 40 seats and in 1974, when Richard Nixon was winning 49 seats for his presidential campaign the party picked up a modest 12 seats. In 1974, it was the screaming horrors all over again, with a drop of 43 seats.

The old-time political wisdom says that a strong and popular presidential candidate helps congressional candidates and that electoral college votes are reflected across the board, from the Senate and House down to state, county and municipal offices.

"Apparently, that is no longer true, although there are those who believe it could come back."

In any case, the GOP House members are worried about next year, and have produced a document entitled "Republican year, and have produced a document entitled "Republican Legislative Agenda: A program for Progress."

Republicans and other Republicans say this is not designed to be a slap in the face for Ford, nor an attempt to break away from presidential political fortunes in 1976.

Rather, he says, it is a blueprint to be shown to voters to tell them what the GOP can do if it gets back into power. In addition, Rhodes also believes that the drafters of next year's Republican platform could do a lot worse than to follow the congressional precepts laid out in the agenda.

"The program is an umbrella that promises the usual things: 'freedom of thought and action for the individual'... 'an economic climate in which truly competitive free enterprise prevails'... 'a life that promotes and strengthens individual and family responsibility.'"

The initial drafts did not meet with the approval of some White House aides, notably staff chief Donald Rumsfeld and presidential counsel Robert Hartmann.

These officials viewed it as "a stab in the back," according to one Rhodes assistant, and did their best to discourage it.

Rhodes says, however, that as a veteran of 25 years in the House and its former GOP leader, was not averse to the idea and gave it his approval.

The ideas to promote on a Congressional district level, what the party stands for and what it can do. Rhodes and others, particularly Rep. Barber Conable, an Lipstone New York congressman who is regarded as probably the brightest conservative in the House, believe that voters tend to blame "the Republicans" for various things that are wrong.

This, they say privately, is because the White House is occupied by a Republican, and has been for 15 of the last 22 years.

Problems have not been solved: wars, inflation, welfare, drugs, crime, divorce, unemployment, high fuel prices, the breakdown of old institutions without new ones to take their place.

If the President has the ear of the people whenever he wants, if he can command the airwaves and the headlines, he also is the focal point for criticism.

But, as these elected officials see it, he is also seen as the leader of the party and the criticizer of its own problems tends to revolve on the party as a whole.

In addition, they say, most voters do not see the apparent inability of "the Congress" to deal with the same problems as a party matter. "The Congress," not "the Democratic majority," is to blame.

Says Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, the Republican leader: "We're not capitalizing on the things we've done."

Take welfare as a possible example, he says. If the Congress passes a $10 billion general welfare bill and the President vetoes it and then signs one of the second ground for $9 million, the Republicans are at a loss to turn that to political gain.

"We don't point out that last year it was $7 billion and that we as a party have done more for improving welfare than the Democrats have," Scott says.

Rhodes says the "Program for Progress" will "have to be used by individual candidates as they think best."

James MacGregor Burns, the historian, has as a favorite theme the existence of a "Presidential Party" and a "Congressional Party" in American politics. The efforts of the Republicans in Congress to set their own sails a year ahead of what is obviously going to be a hot, issue-saturated election campaign, is proof that Burns' thesis is beginning to assume more material form than ever before, in modern times.

Non-smoking areas working out well

St. Paul, Minn. (UPI) — Minnesota, long known for its legislation, is nearing the end of its second month under one of the toughest segregation laws in the nation — segregation of smokers.

The law, which took effect Aug. 1, generally is working well. But it also has touched off some strange news.

The statute not only sets aside smoking and non-smoking areas in restaurants, business places, public institutions and offices, but also virtually every other place. Violators are liable for $100 fines.

Bessie has been a secretary for 20 years. Eddie sits at the next desk and for 20 years he has smoked smelly cigars. Bessie has continually complained, and now she's got him. She turns him in, and the office is torn with factionalism.

"We get just about as many complaints about smoking in offices as we do from public places," said Charles Schneider, chief of Environmental Field Services for the Department of Health.

"Some of these sound like feuds that have been brewing for years."

In a letter to the editor of the Minneapolis-Tribune, M. Hanson of Edina brought out another problem for non-smokers.

"Pointing out that the law bans smoking in public places except in those designated, she said she had to stand in a bank teller's line behind a smoker."

"When she complained, she said, the bank official pointed out a non-smoking area at a table in a corner."

Flood victims eye cleanup

By United Press International
Residents of Pennsylvania dug through flood-muddied rubble to salvage what they could Sunday.

"The people's spirit is amazing," said Police Chief John Oberdorf of the hard-hit town of Muncy, Pa. "They've been through many floods and they are already fighting to get back to business."

Their spirits got a boost as Hurricane Faye spun away from the East Coast, easing the threat of further rains.

The National Hurricane Center reported Sunday that Faye had turned toward the open North Atlantic and was "no longer a threat to land areas in North America."

Weather officials also said Hurricane Glady's in Atlantic waters to the south, was weakening.

Torrential downpours triggered by the remnants of now-dead Hurricane Eloise had sent floodwaters rising through a dozen eastern states, causing hundreds of millions of dollars in damage and claiming nine lives. Thousands of persons were forced from their homes by rampaging creeks and rivers.

President Ford declared a 30-county area of Pennsylvania a major-disaster area, clearing the way for millions of dollars in aid to homeowners, farmers and communities along the Susquehanna River, gorged by Eloise's stormy backwash.

The river crested at the Conowington Dam in Maryland Sunday, gushing billions of gallons of rain water into Chesapeake Bay. Thirty-three of the 53 flood gates were opened and the water level was just 10 feet from the top of the dam wall at one point. The crest marked the end of the worst flooding to hit the Mid-Atlantic states since Hurricane Agnes, which killed 50 persons in 1972.

Pennsylvania was hardest hit: A civil defense spokesman estimated damages at more than $150 million. The flood knocked out 13 water supply plants and 16 sewage treatment plants, forcing residents of 15 towns to boil their drinking water.

Some 3,300 National Guardsmen who assisted Saturday in evacuating about 25,000 persons from their homes turned their efforts toward the cleanup on Sunday.

Evidence lacking

ROME (UPI) — The thieves stole the evidence.

Authorities said burglars sneezed through an unbarred window in the Rome Criminal Courthouse, stole expensive objects seized by police as evidence in a criminal case and took about $12,000 in cash from a court auction.

Drugging considered

NEW YORK (UPI) — Convicted Watergate burglar E. Howard Hunt says he once explored — the possibility — of drugging columnist Jack Anderson, but never contemplated murder, as was reported last week.

In an interview in the current issue of Time magazine, Hunt said former White House aide Charles Colson once suggested that Anderson might be drugged if he appeared on his live radio program under the influence of a drug.

Hunt and C. Gordon Liddy, another convicted Watergate burglar, discussed the means for doing this with a former CIA physician, Time reported.

Startling proof that we are not alone in the universe.

Defense team plots legal battle

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's defense team, dropping hints of its legal battle plan, worked today on strategies for getting the newspaper heiress out of jail — either by bail or for psychiatric care.

"Her health is deteriorating here and she is getting melancholy," Terence Hallinan, one of her attorneys, told reporters Sunday night after visiting Miss Hearst in the San Mateo County Jail.

He said a motion would be filed in federal court Tuesday for Miss Hearst's transfer to a more appropriate setting in light of her medical problems," namely, the psychiatric ward of San Francisco's St. Mary's Hospital.

The facility, Hallinan said, could provide better physical and mental care for Miss Hearst, whom he said did not appear "as spaced out as when she was arrested."

In Hartford, Conn., the newest addition to the defense squad, Boston attorney E. Lee Bailey, said Sunday that California was "not a very good state" for an insanity or diminished capability plea.

He said he would advise her not to plead insanity. Bailey also said he would not seek a change of venue for the trial.

"I think it's a very challenging case — one probably without anything that could be described as a precedent. And it involves someone in which I've been interested in for a long time and that is the whole kidnapping-brainwashing syndrome — what you can make a human being do."

In an affidavit last week, Miss Hearst claimed she was subjected to inhumane treatment by the Symbionese Liberation Army after they kidnaped her from a Berkeley, Calif. apartment on Feb. 4, 1974. The document said she was under constant fear of death and finally joined the terrorist group that April because she thought there was no other direction to take.

The last of many monologues from the SLA was received June 7, 1974.

Patty's registration found

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst registered at Sacramento, Calif., City College as "Sue Hendricks" during her life in the underground, it was reported Sunday.

An identification card in the name of Miss Hendricks, whom law enforcement officers identified as the fugitive heiress, was discovered in a hideout — of the Symbionese Liberation Army, the Sacramento Bee said.

Nether Miss Hearst nor SLA companions William and Emily Harris, who also registered as students eight months ago, were believed to have attended classes.

FBI agents visited Richard Gillies, dean of students, who confirmed that cards with pictures were issued. The agents speculated Miss Hearst and the Harrises sought the cards to establish a new identity.

Miss Hearst was an art history major at the University of California at Berkeley, in which she was interested in for a long time and that is the whole kidnapping-brainwashing syndrome — what you can make a

US women plan one-day strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the National Organization for Women say they have received thousands of letters and telephone calls from people across the country who want to join a one-day women's strike Oct. 29.

The nationwide strike was announced two weeks ago by NOW members who believe it will show how much the country depends on women.

"The response in the last week has been fantastic," said Cindy Clark, a strike leader, in a telephone interview from San Jose, Calif. "We have heard from women in the military, women on Capitol Hill, nurses, business and professional women, factory

Happy Birthday America! 1776-1976

In honor of the occasion, we're doing something new and special for our friends. We're giving away Great American Trading Cards, 30 in all.

Each handsome card is in full color and carries the name and picture of a famous Great American. Pertinent biographical detail is printed on the back.

Here's a chance to bone up on American History. Learn names, places and dates in handy reference form. They're an indispensable aid for home study and classroom. A valuable assist in special assignment projects. A great way to stimulate interest in the most important heritage we have. The American past.

Kids can trade off cards with friends to fill out their own collection, learning history can be fun. That's the idea behind our offer. You'll see the terms in the parcel opposite.

Also of historical interest is the fact that we are the originators of the double-deck hamburger, the Big Boy. So for hamburgers and trading cards with a sense of history, bring the kids to your Big Boy Family Restaurant. It'll be an education. We promise.

Tight security set for Hirohito visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some of the tightest security measures in history will be in effect during Japanese Emperor Hirohito's two-week state visit to this country starting Tuesday.

The emperor and Empress Nagako, the first Japanese monarchs to come to the United States, open the visit Tuesday at 10 a.m. in Williamsburg, Va. President Ford will welcome them to Washington Thursday with full military honors.

Heavy security has been ordered throughout the tour, which includes several cities from coast to coast. U.S. embassies around the world reportedly have been alerted against possible demonstrations or attacks by Japanese radicals.

U.S. officials said their chief concern is that Japanese terrorists — such as the "Red Army" group that raided the U.S. embassy in Malaysia two months ago — might try to attack the emperor or stage another embassy raid.

Officials at all U.S. ports of entry have been closely checking incoming Japanese, especially younger ones, for a month or more.

Reporters covering the trip will be restricted to designated areas far from the royal couple and have been warned to move no closer.

No times of arrival or departure, travel routes or residences are being published. Alternate plans and routes have been worked out.

IRS head once considered coverup case defendant

CHICAGO—The U.S. Customs Service once named Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald C. Alexander as a possibly defendant in a criminal investigation into an alleged coverup of import duties owned by Procter & Gamble Co., the Chicago Sun-Times has learned.

A lawyer, however, represented the Chicago Sun-Times that Alexander was not named IRS head in 1973.

The Chicago Sun-Times has learned that the Customs Service — a branch of the Treasury Department like the IRS — has been investigating Alexander's role while a lawyer for Procter & Gamble in the company's failure to pay U.S. Customs of import duties led to the government on toys imported from Japan.

The Customs service investigative report concluded that Procter & Gamble made false statements to avoid the duty payments and that Alexander, as an official, advised others on how to defraud the government of duty, according to well-placed federal sources.

The report cited as evidence of Alexander's role in the alleged conspiracy a letter he wrote that, Customs sources said, advised Procter & Gamble not to reveal "all this" past duties owed.

However, Alexander also advised the company to pay the duties in question in the future. The company followed that advice. Customs, it was learned, referred the case to the U.S. attorney's office in Seattle, where most of the toy shipments came in, for a decision on whether criminal charges should be brought against the alleged conspirators.

The referral occurred more than a year ago. A federal grand jury has since heard testimony from Procter & Gamble officials and others involved in importing merchandise for the company. Alexander has not been questioned by the grand jury, the sources said.

The U.S. attorney's office in Seattle declined to comment when asked about the case.

However, it was learned that the office notified the Customs Service Thursday that it is rejecting the request that the Justice Department consider bringing criminal charges against Procter & Gamble.

While Alexander was named a potential defendant, a high-ranking Customs official told the Chicago Sun-Times that he disagreed with the findings about Alexander's role.

"He wouldn't be a subject of this investigation if he was Mickey the Mope," the officials said. "While Alexander's advice might be construed by some as an ethical lapse, from an ethical standpoint, we don't deal with ethical questions — we deal with crimes — and there was no violation on his part, in my opinion."

The Customs official was asked, if this were so, why was Alexander named in the report.

"The agency who makes the investigation has the freedom to set and write up what he wants in his report," he replied.

The Customs investigation was conducted by John I. Burns, a Cleveland-based special agent. Burns refused to comment.

Alexander declined a request for an interview through an aide. The spokesman said Alexander could not discuss the case without the consent of his former client, Procter & Gamble.

No followup on Army LSD testing

WASHINGTON — Ten weeks ago the army promised to conduct follow-up experiments on about 550 soldiers to whom it gave LSD, but a spokesman disclosed on Sunday that the service has not yet tried to reach any of the men.

The spokesman also said, in response to an inquiry, that the Army had decided not to do follow-ups on the approximately 900 civilians who were given LSD and other psychochemicals in experiments sponsored by the service at universities and research centers.

Rep. Thomas J. Downey, D-N.Y., who has been one of the most prominent critics of the Army's human experiments with drugs, said he was "astounded" by the latest disclosures.

The follow-ups must be given the highest priority, Downey declared and said that it is "absolutely essential" that the civilians be included.

"If anything needs to be investigated," the congressman said, "it is the outside programs where there was no Army supervision and the researchers were able to do whatever they wanted."

The Army contends that responsibility for a follow-up on the civilians rests with the research organizations that did the contract work.

The Army acknowledged, on July 18, that nearly 1,500 soldiers and civilians had received LSD under its auspices and that it intended to try to locate all of them to determine if they had suffered any ill effects. Eleven days later, with criticism mounting, the Army announced that it was suspending the testing program which it had begun at civilian facilities in the early 1950s and was launching a major internal investigation.

Since then, subcommittees of both the Senate and the House have begun hearings into the drug experiments which were conducted not only by the Army, but also by the Air Force, the Navy and the Central Intelligence Agency.

Altogether, more than 4,000 persons were given mind-altering drugs in the experiments by the military and the CIA, some of which incapacitated individuals for up to four days. But so far only the Army has indicated intentions of doing any kind of follow-up and its current plans call for dealing with only those test subjects who received LSD.

The Army spokesman said that since July efforts of the service's Human Use Review Office had been limited to "setting up the administrative system for locating the individuals" who were given LSD.

In explaining why so little progress had been made, the spokesman said, "You must keep in mind that this has been an additional load on individuals in the Human Use Review Office who have other responsibilities and assignments. They have not been able to devote their entire effort to this one project."

"There has also been delay," he said, "caused by the tremendous amount of work in responding to public and congressional inquiries on this subject."

The spokesman said that Army personnel had telephoned and personally visited offices of the Veteran's Administration, the Social Security Administration, and the Army's personnel records center in St. Louis, Mo., seeking assistance in locating the soldiers involved in the experiments and added, "We are in the process of sending letters" to those places also. The spokesman indicated that he felt that "substantial progress" had been made in the preliminary stages.

Nixon bounces back from 'Gate emotional strains

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard Nixon has "bounced back" from his serious illness and the emotional trials of Watergate, says his daughter Julie Eisenhower.

"My father is very active on his book. He has bounced back physically...in every way. I think he's getting sorted out," she said in an interview.

"He still feels he can be of service to his country," Julie's husband, David, agreed the Nixons "lived the corner last December" and their lives have become more bearable as time begins to heal some of the wounds of Watergate.

Seated in her fashionable apartment near the Watergate complex that lent its name to the Nixon administration scandal, Mrs. Eisenhower said any critical judgment on her father's political life should be delayed at least a decade.

"History will judge him differently," she predicted. "I really do feel we need a different perspective."

She is clearly unreconciled to the dramatic events that led to her father's political demise and appears touchy when asked about Watergate.

The Eisenhowers' living room is decorated with souvenirs and mementos from the Nixon White House days.

Nixon, who came near death from phlebitis after leaving the presidency, is writing a book about his side of Watergate.

Pat Nixon has remained entirely out of the public eye since his Aug. 8, 1974, resignation. And Julie said the former First Lady "just thinks my father is a great man and felt he shouldn't have had to leave the White House when he did... It was a tragedy with all of us."

She said her parents are "closer now than they've ever been. I think they sometimes get on each other's nerves... but they enjoy watching movies, swimming, walking on the beach."

Fishing cut OK'd

MONTREAL (UPI) — The United States and Canada have scored a conservation breakthrough, winning approval of 15 other nations for a sharp reduction of fishing in north Atlantic waters.

The International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries unanimously accepted Canada's three-part conservation plan and two American proposals.

David H. Wallace, chairman of the U.S. delegation, said the meetings by representatives of 17 nations were "some of the most successful in the commission's 25-year history."

At the conclusion of its weeklong meetings Sunday, the commission agreed to a plan to cut the 1976 overall catch quota off the U.S. coast by more than 10 percent — from 724,000 metric tons to 650,000 metric tons — and establish a system of national vessel registration, to aid the monitoring of North Atlantic fishing activity.

Canada's proposal calls for more stringent catch limits on endangered fish stocks, a higher-percentage shares of the overall catch for Canada and a 40 percent reduction in member nations' attempts to catch bottom fish, including haddock, cod and halibut.

Pay bill or lose water, Army told at Ft. Chaffee

FORT SMITH, Ark. — City officials here have asked police on the United States Army that they cut off the supply of water nearby Ft. Chaffee, where some 16,000 Vietnamese refugees are housed, if the military does not pay its delinquent water bill by Oct. 10.

Army spokesmen have countered that they may call upon President Ford to get the water turned back on if the city carries through with its threat.

The heart of the controversy is the rate the Army is paying for millions of gallons of processed water it receives daily from Fort Smith, a city of 66,000 population.

An old Army contract with the city calls for the military to pay only 4.5 cents per 1,000 gallons of water. However, Ft. Chaffee was closed for a number of years, until it was reactivated to house thousands of refugees earlier this year.

Last spring, before the arrival of the refugees was known to the city, the city directors established a new contract water rate of 21.3 cents per 1,000 gallons which was charged to all bulk customers outside Fort Smith.

The Army has refused to pay the higher rate, contending that "The U.S. government is not to be considered the same as other customers using a high volume of water. The U.S. government is a superior sovereign."

At the end of August, according to the city, the Army was more than $40,000 delinquent in its water bill.

"We will cut their water off," City Administrator Ray Riley said. "All the revenues from the sale of water were needed to support the upgrading of our water distribution system, which has been severely strangled by the reactivation of Ft. Chaffee. Presently the city actually is subsidizing the Army — it costs more than 12 cents to treat and pump 1,000 gallons of water, and the Army has been paying only 8.5."

Riley says that all attempts to negotiate with the Army have failed, since the Army contends it should pay less than other contract customers.

"All we want is for everyone to pay the same rate," the city official contends.

Riley said cutting off the water to Ft. Chaffee was not a result of any hostility toward the refugees. He noted that the city had welcomed the refugees on short notice, provided a number of sponsors for the victims of war and encouraged volunteers to go to the fort to help the refugees.

Since opening as a refugee center, Fort Chaffee's water consumption has risen to about 2.5 million gallons daily. The total capacity of the water system for the city is 27 million gallons a day, and Fort Smith sells large amounts of water under contract to surrounding communities.

Tucson city strike ends

TUCSON (UPI) — Striking police and firemen have returned to work following a week-long walkout that won them a salary increase, a future cost-of-living adjustment and other benefits.

The strike, which began last Monday, ended Sunday last when the Tucson Police-Fire Association and the City Council accepted a settlement worked out in meetings with federal mediator Guy Parent.

The strike idled 90 percent of the city's 530 policemen and left only 16 firemen to staff four of the city's 12 fire stations.

City Manager Joel Valdez estimated the cost of the settlement at $3.6 million.

The council approved the settlement on a 4-3 vote with Mayor Lew Murphy and council members Ernest McLoughlin, a Republican, and Barbara Weyman, a Democrat, casting the dissenting ballots.

Murphy said he could find no fault with council members who voted for the settlement.

He said he voted against it "as a community protest against the implications" of the strike.

"I told the members of the Police and Fire Association, 'strike-who-through-fear' have brought the people of this great community to its knees," Murphy said. "I weep for all of us."

Voting for the agreement were councilmen Rudy Castro, Dick Kennedy, Ruben Romero, and Robert Cauthorn, all Democrats.

The settlement called for wage increases of 7 1/2 percent for those earning more than $900 a month, and 5 percent for those earning less than $900. The wage increases will affect all 4,000 city employees.

DEAR ABBY: My sister, Jane, was widowed after 45 years of marriage to Joe Smith. When Joe died, she bought a double plot with a big single grave stone with "SMITH" across it. She put his name on one side of it, plus the date of his birth and date of his death. The other side was for her when her time came.

Well, she ups and marries Chester Lind, who was never married before. Chester has expressed to wish to be buried side by side with my sister, Jane, and she has two plots to accommodate them in his family gravesite.

My sister is no longer a Smith, so how can she be buried with Joe Smith in the Smith family plot even if she wanted to?

How is a problem like this handled?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: It's up to your sister to make her wishes known soon. If she wants to be laid to rest beside her first husband, she should so advise her present husband. Her marker would then read, "JANE SMITH LIND." If she doesn't make her wishes known, my guess is that if she outlives Chester, she'll join the Smiths. If not, Chester will bury her with the Linds.

TWIN FALLS — Melinda Miller, formerly with Ballet West in Salt Lake City, will begin a class in modern dance at the YWCA, beginning Oct. 6 at 4:15 p.m.

The class, for junior high and high school students, will run for eight weeks.

Participants will be concentrating on the types of rhythm available and the variety of body movements they can create to complement them, striving to improve the body's coordination and ability to move to music.

Cost for the course is $15 for members and $18 for non-members. To register, call the YWCA at 733-4384. The class is open to female and male students.

Grave invitations pose problem

DEAR ABBY: I feel sorry for the Sunday school teacher who has a discipline problem with the pastor's 6-year-old son and doesn't know what to do. Being a pastor myself, I know that every Tom, Dick and Harry threaten to quit the church if they don't get their way.

I've heard everything from, "If my daughter doesn't get to play the organ," to, "if my grandfather doesn't get to preach his own funeral service, I am going to quit this church!"

When anyone tries to blackmail me in this manner, I simply get out my pen and note pad and ask them to put it in writing. And I hold them to it afterwards, too!

No church needs members like those I have lost. If it weren't for the bad language, I'd tell them all to go to hell.

MISSOURI PASTOR

DEAR PASTOR: And if it weren't for your restraint, you'd be looking for a new pulpit.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, but I look much younger. My husband is 30, but he looks older. (He's losing his hair fast.) The problem is that everybody thinks I am his daughter, and this irritates us. In fact, we almost hate to go anywhere where people don't know us because everybody makes that mistake.

Have you any suggestions on how I can look older without dressing like an old lady?

LOOKS LIKE A KID

DEAR LOOKS: The solution to your problem could be to get your husband to look YOUNGER. Has he thought of a hairpiece? That would help. In the meantime, enjoy looking "like a kid." Too soon will come the day when time, the subtle thief of youth, will change all that.

DEAR ABBY: Tell FLAT to cheer up. The slim, willowy look is in. Look at the fashion models.

At 14, I was flat, and still am at 35, but it doesn't bother me. I still have the body and muscle tone of a teenager, while most of my big-busted sisters are getting flabby and saggy.

Boise Gallery of Art offers fall classes

BOISE — The Boise Gallery of Art announces classes in painting, drawing and dance will be given this fall.

A painting workshop for ages 9-15 will be held Saturdays from 10-12 a.m. The class will be taught by Kathy Mann from Oct. 4-Nov. 8 for a fee of $25.

A mime movement dance class with instructor Jenny Stenling, for ages 6-12, will be given Saturdays from 9:10-10:30 a.m. The class will begin Oct. 4 and end Nov. 22. A $20 fee will be charged.

Planning a wedding?

Your wedding may be the most important event in your life. We wish you every happiness.

In order to obtain the best possible news and picture coverage of your engagement and marriage a few newspaper rules should be kept in mind.

Time deadlines are important. Engagement stories and pictures must be run in the paper before the wedding. Space is short, and engagement stories take some time to process, so it helps to bring in or mail the information as early as possible.

Pictures of the wedding must be received by the Times-News within two weeks after the event. Beyond two weeks, wedding pictures will not be printed. Remind your photographer of the deadline.

After the two-week deadline, wedding stories will be printed, but often in shortened form as space permits. After three months, wedding stories will no longer be printed.

There is no charge for printing wedding and engagement pictures and stories.

Attend Gem music meet

TWIN FALLS — Several Magic Valley residents have returned from a board meeting of the Idaho State Federation of Music Clubs held in Nampa.

At the meeting, were Mrs. Roger Vincent, Filer, state president; Doris Youz, Twin Falls, state scholarship chairman; Betty Blirell, Twin Falls, Music Club president; Martie Mead, second vice president of the Twin Falls club and chairman of auditions and national scholarships.

Couple united in marriage

TWIN FALLS — Terralyn Anne Blei and Greg Paul Juchau were united in marriage on the evening of Sept. 13 in the Episcopal Church of the Ascension.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman J. Blei, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Juchau, Eden.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Albert E. Allen.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a gown of white miramist fashioned with an applique encrusted bodice. Her chapel train fell from an empire waist band with pastel applique.

A matching flounce-encircled skirt and train. Her elbow-length veil of illusion was held by a madonna lilara which matched her gown.

She carried a bouquet of baby's breath, apricot roses and gladioli.

Mrs. Doug Scott, sister of the bride, attended as matron of honor, and Mrs. Richard Grif served as bridesmaid. David Juchau, Oxnard, Calif., served as best man, and Mark Okelberry, Hazelton, served as groomsmen.

Brent Christopherson and Clint Stennett were ushers. Mrs. Lonnie Deuel provided organ music and Mrs. Jan Storrs was soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Ken Sorenson.

The couple was honored at a reception immediately following the ceremony. Guests were received by the wedding party before a background of wrought iron arches draped with apricot sheers.

Guests were seated at round tables with apricot flounced overshirts. Centerpieces of cherub pedestal vases with gladioli and lace in the bride's colors of apricot and white adorned the tables.

The bride's table featured a ceramic fountain, silver candelabra, crystal punch bowl, and a three tiered wedding cake which was baked and decorated by Mrs. Jerry Michener.

Mrs. Michener, Debbie and Carla Juchau, all sisters of the bridegroom, served the guests. Jennifer Linford and Kathy Jensen assisted with the gifts.

Trudy Summers and Mike Collins, both Caldwell, were in charge of the guest book.

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. L.J. Juchau, Eden, grandparents of the bridegroom; and Mrs. Esther Blei, Murtaugh, grandmother of the bride. Guests attended from Washington, Utah, California and Idaho.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner at their home in Eden.

The bride was honored at miscellaneous shows given by the West End Social Club, Eden, and Mrs. Bling Linford and daughter, Jennifer, Twin Falls.

After a honeymoon trip to Jackson Hole, Wyo., the couple will reside in Logan, Utah, where they will continue their studies at Utah State University.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Jim: "How did you happen to think of the rule of the ace and the king?"

Oswald: "In the early Thirties slam bidding was a hit or miss proposition. I wanted a simple rule to tell when to invite or actually bid a slam. I came up with the idea that any time you could take a king out of your hand and still have enough for game, you should think of a 'slam' and possibly make a mild slam invitation. If you could take out an ace, you should definitely invite a slam. And if you could take out an ace and a king, you should bid the slam."

Jim: "I assume the bidding in the box shows this rule in operation. South would surely bid four spades without the ace of diamonds. So he invites the slam by bidding four diamonds. If North signed off at four spades South would probably give up."

Oswald: "Right. But North cue bids in hearts and now South invites the slam strongly by bidding five spades. He doesn't use Blackwood because he isn't worried about aces. North has his full values and goes on to the laydown six."

Ask the Jacobys

An Alberta reader says: "Playing at three notrump the deuce of hearts was led against me. Dummy held ♠Q6 and I held ♠A105. Should I have played the queen from dummy?"

The answer is no. The play of the six spot insures two tricks in the suit. If you rise with dummy's queen and the king covers you may only make one heart trick."

EOPS news

LANGRISH — "It's when you're on a diet that the 'seconds' count," a dieting thought brought to the EOPS No. 84 meeting at the home of Mrs. Dorothea Steelsmith. Mrs. Marybell Howard brought the thought to the Monday night meeting.

Mrs. Julia Bourn led the group in exercises.

Mrs. Carolyn Bowman and Mrs. Miss Anna Trowbridge were two of the best losers of the week.

Members are to count calories and push a diet conscience sign on her refrigerator door.

It was announced there will be an area meeting from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Thursday at the "Y." Diet recipes were given to members.

'Boomers' lower X span into position on new Perrine Bridge, in background is north arch

Perrine span work progresses

"We're the cream of the crop," says raising gang foreman Ray Byrd, an ex-Marine mountaineering specialist who supervises six men at the Perrine site. "We're the Perrine guys that get around the best and have no fear."

Have no fear. It is possible, having come from the jacking platform down the long, wooden safety ramp and then up the top chord to which a cable hand railing has been attached, to make the final leg of the journey to the small bolting platform at the end of the south arch segment by straddling a narrow steel beam and scooting along on one's fanny and walking the bottom flange of the beam with one's feet.

"The nets are a benefit because they give you more confidence," says Byrd, "and you can work harder."

Still, the net is 30 to 40 feet below the boomers and there is lots of steel in between.

"We know a lot of the tricks," Byrd says. "It's something new that gets the guys, something unexpected. The odds are still in our favor."

The sixth man, Neil Smith, is called "Strongarm."

"He's a White Goliath," Byrd says.

The ironworkers, the bolting gangs who will follow the connectors, and the "rebar" men who have tied together the iron rods poured over with concrete in the abutments before the erecting of steel beam, make good money. Base pay is more than $9 per hour. The connectors get somewhat more: Nobody gets rebar.

Such a straddling method of travel is derisively called "cooning" by the boomers, who scamper over the iron like goats. But cooning works.

From the bolt platform the air seems cleaner, the sun brighter, the colors sharper. Far below in the muddy burrows along the edge of the bank.

"Connecting has kind of always been the glory aspect of being an ironworker," says Byrd. "Our goal is to be a 'good hand' and we all judge each other."

"They call me 'Razor,'" Byrd says. "because I'm sharp."

Gary Freese, one of the men under Byrd, is called "Come-along" after a device used to lever steel into place. "Because he's strong," says Byrd.

"Usually you have two homes—one at the site and one permanent and it costs you quite a bit to live," Byrd says. "You can't hardly buy life insurance... But once it connects is in your blood there's nothing else you're happy doing."

"Lots of us have college degrees. I've tried college twice and I've come back to this—it's just for a certain type of people."

Below them a nylon safety net has been stretched and below that is nothing until the canyon floor.

A second workman, Dale Sommers, is called "The Commander" because he wears mirrored sunglasses which don't show his eyes. A third, Bill Steffensen, is called "Wild Bill."

"He's crazy on the iron," Byrd says.

Ron Balder is called "Blood Brother" because he wears his hair long. "He's part hippy and looks like a wild Indian."

"Rule one, Byrd says, is that 'you don't get yourself hurt and you don't get anybody else hurt.'"

Rule two is more complex: "Nobody can force you to do anything you don't want to do. But by the same token, if you want to do something, you go to it."

No plans made to replace portions of Highway 93

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The Idaho Department of Transportation has no plans to replace worn-out portions of U.S. Highway 93 until Blaine County adds a more accepting attitude to a four-lane highway.

part of the road between Twin Falls and Ketchum.

So unless the new construction takes these projections into account, the federal government won't chip in its 70 per cent. And there aren't enough state funds to pay for replacement costs, on the existing two-lane road, Manning said.

"The road 'isn't obsolete now for what it's doing, but if we rebuild it, we have to build it to take care of the traffic that we project during the life of the useful project," Manning said.

The department plans to continue its rehabilitation policy. "Right now if things break up on the highway, we go in with 100 per cent state funding and rehabilitate it... but the state money is limited," Manning said.

The department's Division of Highways will pursue "an aggressive rehabilitation program" on Highway 93, director Darrell Manning said Friday. But he said the department does not have the money to undertake new construction programs.

Any work on Highway-93 will be a rehabilitation effort "on our part," Manning said.

"There isn't at this point, today, a need for a four-lane highway," Manning said.

He does, he reflects, remember one woman connector, "an ex-go dancer. She was real popular. She wasn't the good connector but I don't think anybody was gonna run her off."

The connectors look after each other, they kid each other, and they reinforce their notion that they are a people apart, alone on the iron. Outsiders are referred to as "people on the banks" or "people on the beaches," as if the connectors were really at sea. Men who try connecting as a way of making quick money are spurned and called "Joes."

School libraries plan open house

RUPERT — The Minidoka School Libraries will hold an open house Wednesday to discuss what books should be available to Minidoka students.

All elementary, junior high and high school libraries will be open to parents and the public throughout the school hours (8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.) and again 7 p.m.

Each morning, Byrd takes a list of what iron workers will have that day. He also works out a method for the delivery of the various pieces of what is to be set up in each load. There is an art to this, for the method of assembling the piece can save labor and, more importantly, risk.

The reason, Manning said, is federal funding regulations. To receive federal aid highway 93 "must be designed for the projected demand," he said. Usually, the federal share in a project is 70 per cent to the state's 30 per cent, he added.

Highway department projections for Highway 93, when run through a mathematical formula used to determine highway maintenance needs, show a four-lane highway is indicated for at least

Joyce McGain, president of the Mini-Cassia Media Association, proposed the open house to the school board at its last meeting and received board support.

At the recommendation of Transportation Chairman Ron Klebe, the commission eliminated a feasibility study on combining highway district and city street departments into a single entity.

"The men have to be careful. It's a big X is being lowered into position, one connector waiting at each corner of the X."

"There are four points coming in there at once," Byrd says. "They can't all pull on it... It has to be coordinated."

"Fixing your end of a piece is called 'big hoist.'"

Planners make changes in Minidoka plan

RUPERT — The Minidoka County Planning Commission made several changes in the proposed comprehensive plan Thursday.

The commission approved setting publicly visible grading of food service establishments, stipulated apartments or condominiums for maximum dwelling units in medium and high density areas, and gave mobile homes the same minimum lot standards as houses in agricultural areas.

ranges, so that low density areas may contain "one to four dwelling units (houses) per acre," medium density "five to 10 dwelling units (apartments or condominiums) per acre," high density areas "11 or more dwelling units," "apartments or condominiums per acre."

Falkner said the change had been suggested when Heyburn Councilman Wilford Wilcox objected that 10 houses were too many on an acre. The stipulation of apartments clarifies the intent, Falkner said.

small cities do not have enough recreation work for a full-time employee and consolidation would solve personnel problem.

Snapp added that it would give a greater opportunity for recreational programs to serve everyone in the county.

Snapp offered educational changes, one stipulating inclusion of the school board with the administration and professional teachers association in the educational evaluation process.

The commission unanimously approved the proposals, all previously having received the nod of the subcommittees, and made other smaller changes in the plan.

The commission lowered the lot requirements on mobile homes in areas zoned agricultural to "meet the existing frontage, depth and health regulations outlined for residential dwellings."

Previously it had proposed requiring mobile homes to meet "the regulations outlined for a farmstead."

It also inserted explanatory clauses on density

County Commissioner Fred Mater cited the new tennis courts in Rupert.

Schab replied that the courts are a city project. He said that, whenever the county as a whole has a need, the county recreation district could look at the entire county and determine what area needs it the most.

Klebe remarked that Minidoka city officials "think consolidation is a great idea." He said

"The other change recognizes a 'shortage of counseling in the district, especially at the elementary level.'"

"The two health changes in the plan recognize 'the consuming public (should) be informed of the degree of compliance with sanitary food requirements in individual food service establishments' and calls the 'county and cities (to) adopt a grading ordinance for food service establishments'."

Elkhorn to close Oct. 12

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — Elkhorn at Sun Valley resort will close down for the slack period on Oct. 12th and reopen at the end of November, according to Elkhorn officials.

All the recreation facilities will remain open until the 12th, with the following new hours: golf course, open daily; pool, open from 12 noon to 6 p.m. daily; ice rink, 2:30 to 8 p.m. on weekdays and 12 noon to 8 p.m. weekdays; tennis courts, daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; horseshoe pits, daily from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.; and recreation hall, weekends from 4 to 10 p.m.

TF student injured

TWIN FALLS — A 16-year-old Twin Falls High School student was injured in a car-bicycle collision near the high school Friday.

Jeff Hinton was taken by ambulance to the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital following the collision about 8:45 a.m. at the corner of Filer and Lynwood. He reportedly has only minor injuries. The driver of the car was Jim Tarter, 25, Twin Falls. Twin Falls police cited Hinton for failure to stop on the proper side of the road.

Boise Philharmonic program set

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise Philharmonic will present an hour-long television program at 7 p.m. Wednesday on Channel 4 in conjunction with Philharmonic Week, Oct. 12.

The KADTV presentation features a chamber orchestra under the direction of Philharmonic conductor Daniel Stern and a discussion of the Philharmonic's history, current plans and future.

Season tickets for the Boise Philharmonic's 1975-76 season are now on sale at the box office, 1020 W. Franklin, from 2 to 5 p.m. on weekdays and at the Allied Arts Booth. The season opens on Tuesday, Oct. 7, with violinist Sidney Harph performing Beethoven's Violin Concerto.

Floater number mounts

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — The Middle Park of the Salmon River saw an all-time record use by recreationists during the 1975 season.

Sam Warren, Middle Ford ranger at Challis, said persons floating the Idaho Primitive Area "wild river" totaled 4,682 this year, compared to 4,030 in 1974. He said use of the river has increased annually from 752 persons in 1964.

Warren said his office will begin accepting applications for 1976 river trips on Oct. 1.

Warning given motorists, hitchhikers

BOISE (UPI) — The manager of the Idaho State Automobile Association, Ken Miller, warned both motorists and hitchhikers today that the practice of hitching a ride is a dangerous one.

He cited recent instances in Idaho and California where motorists picking up hitchhikers have been kidnapped and robbed. Miller said hitchhikers have no idea as to the identity or moral character of the motorist offering the ride.

Miller advised motorists to refuse to pick up hitchhikers and for hitchhikers to hike, not to try to hitch.

Public meet set Wednesday

BOISE (UPI) — A public meeting to explain the Ada County Fish and Game League's grazing lands lawsuit will begin at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Idaho Fish and Game Department meeting room, 600 South Walnut, Boise.

League President William Meiners will show a slide presentation and explain the lawsuit brought against the U.S. Bureau of Land Management by several Western environmental organizations, including the league.

The suit charges the bureau mismanaged livestock grazing on more than 150 million acres of publicly owned lands in 11 Western states.

3 Gem Guardsmen cited

BOISE (UPI) — Three Idaho Air National Guardsmen have been cited by the National Guard Association of the United States during its 97th annual conference in Seattle last week.

Staff Sgt. Arthur M. Pierce, 44, of Caldwell, was awarded the Valley Forge Cross for heroism, the association's highest individual medal for heroism in peacetime.

Pierce helped pull a Caldwell woman and her six-year-old son from their car submerged in a canal last October.

Other Idahoans cited were Brig. Gen. James M. Trull, who received the Distinguished Service Medal, and Lt. Col. Leland Bernascone, who received the Meritorious Service Award.

Half-price rate not used in MV

By DIANE ALTERS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Unemployed people in the area apparently aren't taking advantage of a half-price rate offered by Continental Trailways Bus Lines.

Ticket agents in several Magic Valley deserts say no one has bought the special tickets, offered by Trailways at half the regular price to unemployed people. The ticket must be for a point outside the state in which it was purchased.

The offer, which lasts until Nov. 1, with any trips to be completed on or by Nov. 21, has attracted dozens, according to Trailways terminal manager Wayne Coker, Boise.

"We've had a lot of calls on it," he said. "A lot of senior citizens call. They figure they might qualify for it."

Unemployment checks are the proof of unemployment. "It seems to be the only proof they can furnish," Coker said. Senior citizens age not eligible for the special rate.

"All that do buy it are real thrilled with it," Coker said.

No particular direction seems to be favored, Coker said, although "quite a few are going to California."

"The ones we've sold seem to be young," he said, although there are "some older ones."

The Boiseans are among 6,146 people who took advantage of the special fare between Sept. 8 and 23, according to Trailways vice president of government relations Larry Stanton, reached at the bus line's home office in Dallas.

Greyhound Bus Lines, which won't honor the special tickets, has filed a petition of protest with the Interstate Commerce Commission, claiming the rate is discriminatory.

"It's unfortunate that the largest bus company is not standing up for the unemployed," Stanton said.

He said the fare was not "unjustly" discriminatory because "the times call for it."

"Full-paying passengers aren't subsidizing those who buy the half-price tickets," he said. The ICC okayed the special fare, he said.

Study starts on potential energy use

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

IDAHO FALLS — Hydrogen gas generated from water may some day be used to power buses and short-haul trucks.

The Idaho National Engineering Laboratory began hard study of the possibility two weeks ago in Idaho Falls.

The Energy Research Development Administration (successor to the Atomic Energy Commission) recently received money and authorization for a study of the Fallsides Dam and other south Idaho projects.

Under study is the potential energy use of trapping bypass waters at the dams and diverting it for conversion to another type of power.

Dr. Jay F. Kunze, manager of the geothermal and advanced projects for ERDA and its Idaho Laboratory, said Friday conversion of bypass waters to hydrogen gas could make a dent in the amount of foreign oil required by the United States.

The primary use under study is for fleet vehicles, particularly local buses and short-haul trucks. Kunze said hydrogen gas can be used ideally for trips up to about 60 miles.

Another direct use could be for heating. Conversion of the stored gas to electricity is not efficient or feasible, he said, but termed it "wasteful" to allow water power to continue to bypass dams without using its fullest potential. Only about half of the water at the Fallsides Reservoir goes through the dam for generating electricity.

"The major problem is conversion of falling water into storable electrical energy."

"The only way we know is in a reservoir," he said, referring to water storage rather than converted electrical power.

The new ERDA project would not solve the electrical problem. Dr. Kunze said storing the hydrogen gas for turning generators for electrical power would only get about a third of the power back in electricity.

But Kunze said the hydrogen gas could be used for transportation or heat applications.

He said the power potential takes only a 10-20 per cent penalty in hydrogen conversion. This could be recovered because converted engines operate 20-25 per cent more efficiently on hydrogen gas than on gasoline.

NEW YORK (UPI) - Finding little in the news background, investors retreated to the sidelines Monday and prices drifted lower in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said most investors already had anticipated FedCO ministers would raise oil prices by 10 percent which they are doing this weekend.

Shortly before noon EDT, the Dow Jones Industrial average a 1.64-point loss Friday, was off 6.25 points from the 1,460.00 closing of the 60-day decline in 1975.

Turnover during the first two hours amounted to about 4,400,000 shares, compared with 5,400,000 traded during the same period Friday.

QCEC ministers voted Saturday to raise oil prices by 10 percent through next June. Last week, Congress voted to extend price controls at home through Nov. 15 in an attempt to work out a compromise energy program with the Ford administration.

The news surprised few on Wall Street. Investors were looking for other news, but found little.

Cooler, no hard frost seen repeated this week. We can expect abundant sunshine, low humidity, and moderate winds which will contribute to excellent drying conditions for harvesting and baling.

There will be a little minor cooling the first half of the week, followed by some minor warming, the last half of the week.

Some scattered light frost is possible most nights. A hard freeze is still not likely.

The main storm track continues far to the north in Canada and no precipitation is in sight for southern Idaho.

Soil temperatures at the four inch depth are expected to remain well above the 45 degree danger point where bruising of potatoes occurs.

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert Area:

Fair and a little cooler tonight. Low temperatures in the middle 30's with patches of light frost. Sunny skies with light, pleasant temperatures Tuesday, with highs 70 to 72. Light winds tonight.

Probability of precipitation near zero through Tuesday.

I tried it and it's true! You know, Scotch people gave it to me straight. Ten High really is rich, smooth and flavorful... everything I'd expect a true bourbon to be except expensive.

Tom Brunelle, San Francisco, Calif.

TEN HIGH Scotch Whisky. Straight and True.

After his victory over George Foreman last October, he looked back over his career and said slyly, 'the two fights with Frazier, they were hell...'

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, SEPT. 30, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine day to express your self-confidence. You can easily charm others now with your winning smile. A new course of action will be beneficial.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Plan time for recreation with persons you like. Something of a creative nature can find expression at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study how to have more harmony at home and bring increased happiness. A new venture could be quite lucrative.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) This is a fine day for making new arrangements with associates. Go to the right sources for information you need.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Elevate your consciousness so that you can have greater abundance in the future. Try to budget your assets.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23) You are highly charming today and can easily make a fine impression on others. Attend important social affairs tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Concentrate on personal matters today. Prove your devotion to mate in some different way. Be more understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Think over what your true aims are in social matters and then make a bee-line in the right direction. Be logical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Plan a course of action that will add prestige and true respect to your life. A friend can be helpful at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Being with good friends during free hours can cut down on tension. Strive for more efficiency at work.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Organize your regular duties well so you'll have time to engage in favorite hobby. Stay within your budget.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to gain the respect of close ties, whether in business or personal life and make the future brighter.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get busy putting artistic touches to your surroundings at this time. Find better ways to improve your health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be easy to rear and for others to get along with. There is much ability here and the education should be directed toward the arts. Be sure to give ethical and religious training early in life.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

You've heard that toast, "Here's looking at you!" It got started in England shortly after the pewter people there first put glass bottoms in their beer tankards. Originally, it meant the same thing as "Bottoms up!"

DID I TELL you the feathers of a pigeon weigh more than its bones?

IT HAS BEEN PROVED that women when deliberating in jury rooms do not talk anywhere nearly as much as do the men therein.

WON'T DWELL overlong here on the possibility that you might have a heart attack, mister, but if you do, bear in mind your chances of surviving it run four out of five.

RONALD REAGAN

Kindly dig up some quotations to show how liberal Ronald Reagan used to be.

A. If you mean political quotations, sir, you're barking up the wrong column. Do have at hand, however, something by Mr. Reagan from our Love and War man's file on kissing. Said he once, "When you kiss even the most frozen blondes, they seem to glow." He added that was why he always preferred kissing blondes to brunettes on screen. Please note, I cannot confirm that such whimsical observations did not originate in a studio publicity office.

BLUE AND PINK

Client asks, "Who concocted the notion that baby boys should be dressed in blue and baby girls in pink? And why? Who is a mystery. But why isn't. At least, why the colors differ isn't. Necessity was the mater of that invention, too. Without such customs, nobody but the parents would know at first glance the gender. Pink or blue is the mother's way of telling you whether that damp nose is a Cynthia or a Cedric.

ARE YOU SATISFIED with bacon and eggs in the morning? Likewise... But it's claimed that a third-of-mankind would rather die than eat such a breakfast.

SURGERY ON people goes way back. To old Egypt. Pictures of these operations around 2,500 B.C. are carved, significantly, on tombs.
