Redistribution urged

IOWA CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Democratic presidential candidate Fred Harris Thursday called for a "massive" program of wealth redistribution and labeled the Ford administration's economic strategy "welfare for the rich."

Appearing on the University of Iowa campus, the former Oklahoma senator said the oil companies — and not the people — are benefiting from Ford's economic policy.

Harris, also former Democratic national chairman, said he supported redistribution of the nation's wealth "from large corporations to lower and middle income Americans."

Announcement set

SIoux CITY, Iowa (UPI) — Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., said Thursday he would announce at the end of the month whether he will seek the Democratic presidential nomination.

He told reporters during the final day of his two-day swing through Iowa that he is testing his strength by cross-country travels to determine if he would offer voters anything different from already announced Democratic hopefuls.

Resignation asked

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Aging Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas should not be pressured to resign, former Supreme Court Justice Arthur J. Goldberg said Thursday.

Goldberg, 67, who sat on the high court from 1962 to 1965, said Douglas will retire when he feels he is no longer capable of participating fully in court deliberations.

"It has to be first demonstrated he's incapable of doing his job," Goldberg told a news conference. "If a justice is incapable of doing his job, then he should resign."

Hostages held

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Occidental Petroleum Corp. said Thursday the Libyan government is holding 230 U.S. citizens as "hostages," preventing them from leaving the country because of an oil production dispute.

The company appealed to the U.S. government for help and State Department spokesman Robert Funseth said, "We would view in the most serious light any such prohibition against American citizens."

The Libyan government has no official statement on the matter, but Occidental said Libyan officials had agreed to "further negotiations" and would send a delegation to New York next week.

Prince visits UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Prince Norodom Sihanouk, Cambodia's resilient chief of state, traveled to New York today to join the world's diplomatic stars and also-rans at the U.N. General Assembly.

The prince, arriving in New York this afternoon, followed a flamboyant, two-day appearance by Field Marshal Idi Amin, Uganda's colorful and unpredictable president.

Sihanouk, who recently ended five years of exile to face Cambodia's new Communist strongmen, has led his country on and off since 1941 — first as king and later as chief of state.

Singer hospitalized

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — Country and Western singer Tammy Wynette Thursday was admitted to Memorial Hospital for observation. She was reported in satisfactory condition with an undisclosed ailment.

Miss Wynette became ill while her musical troupe was traveling through Cheyenne. She was on tour with singer Johnny Rodriguez.

Miss Wynette of Nashville, Tenn., was chosen female vocalist of the year by the Country Music Association in 1968, 1969 and 1970.

Observers to Sinai

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House International Relations Committee unanimously voted today to send 20 American observers to the Sinai Desert to watch over the recent Arab-Israeli agreement. The resolution will go to the full House for a vote next week.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, working to break the administration deadlock with Congress over secret agreements for U.S. aid to Israel and Egypt, was scheduled to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee later.

The House committee voted 240 for a resolution to send the U.S. civilian technicians into the Mideast to monitor the interim Sinai accord between Egypt and Israel.

Harvest under way

BEAN harvest is in full swing in Magic Valley with dealers and farmers reporting excellent quality but slightly lower yields this year. Here Ron DePew checks beans just taken from a harvester in a Twin Falls field.

Bean quality good

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With the Magic Valley bean crop between 80 and 90 per cent harvested, processors are optimistic about yields and quality.

This year Idaho farmers planted an estimated 33 per cent more pinks, 20 per cent more pinks but about 40 per cent less red northern, according to U.S. Department of Agriculture figures.

Dealers in the local areas, however, expect the total production to be only slightly below last year.

Late spring weather did slow down growth, warehousemen say, but the ideal fall harvest weather and good growing conditions during late summer helped crops catch up with normal growth.

Jerry Peck, manager of Beans Inc., Filer, said the harvest should be completed in three to four weeks. He said some farmers have their beans ready for threshing and are waiting for machines and crews to move into the field.

On the other hand, he said, some beans handled through his firm are not yet cut.

He said quality is very good this year and will probably be better than last year. Quality, he said, is probably down to 15 per cent from a year ago. Prices are running about the same as a year ago, he said, except for a slight downward trend in recent weeks.

More beans were planted this year than last, with the exception of great northers, says an official of Bean Growers Warehouse Association, Twin Falls. He estimated crops in this locality are 80 to 90 per cent harvested with a flexible yield. While over-all yields will probably be down slightly from last year, some farmers are reporting from 2 to 12 sacks more per acre this year, he said.

The firm's spokesman expects overall production to be up in Magic Valley this year with more pinks and pinks.

In some cases where late spring frosts damaged sugar beets, farmers replanted with beans. Some of these fields are behind others and represent the beans yet to be harvested, said Bill Cook, manager of Haney Seed Co., Twin Falls.

He said the quality and quantity will not be any less, however, because of the later start.

Cook termed the harvest weather this year "the best I have ever seen." He said last year was also good but this year is ideal.

"It couldn't be any better," he said, "and probably will continue until the harvest is completed."

Cook said in Magic Valley beans are about 80 per cent out of the fields, but in the Glenns Ferry to Boise area only about 50 per cent harvested.

He also described quality as excellent and said contrary to some reports of lower yield he believes Magic Valley fields will average about 20 bags per acre, up from 19 last year.

L.W. Moore, Hansen, estimated harvest in this area at about 80 per cent complete. He said with no rain this fall, the beans have been harvested in orderly fashion without the pressure of all fields being ready at the same time.

Moore estimated yield would be off slightly this year but agreed with other dealers who praised the quality as better than usual.

Hansen believes Soviets spying

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said today he has "every reason to believe" the Soviet Union has been spying on Capitol Hill.

"Certainly the Russians, in their own interests, would be delirious if they weren't trying to infiltrate Capitol Hill," Hansen said in a Times-News interview today.

Hansen's statements came in support of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Arizona, who claimed Thursday that Russian spies have "absolutely infiltrated" the country and may even be on Capitol Hill.

Goldwater said that a finding that the Soviets have infiltrated "seven or nine" Senate offices was deleted from the Rockefeller Commission report on the Central Intelligence Agency, according to United Press International.

Hansen was unable to verify, however, that such a finding had been made.

He said he has heard from good sources that there are "those who gain positions on various staffs (in congressional offices) who are favorable to the Soviet Union." These people, he said, "probably would be a beautiful reservoir of information for the Soviet Union" if they were privy to classified information.

Hansen would name no names. Neither would he pinpoint the source of his information.

He said he had no definite proof of Russian infiltration and that he is "not certain whether any congressman or senator would even know whether they had someone on their staff that was pro-Soviet."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and head of the Senate committee investigating the CIA, was not available for comment. Bill Hall, an information aide to the senator, said he did not know if information on Russian spying on Capitol Hill had been left out of the Rockefeller report.

Ford vetoes lunch funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today vetoed the National School Lunch and Child Nutrition Act, saying it would add $1.2 billion to the federal budget and "such fiscal irresponsibility" is unacceptable.

"We face real danger that the budget deficit could reach $70 billion instead of the $60 billion I said earlier this year," Ford said in a message accompanying his 38th veto.

He said Congress had two choices — to extend present programs — or reconsider — and act favorably on his less expensive proposals for needy children.

"Either course would be in the best interest of needy children, the nation's economic health, and the taxpaying public," Ford said.

"If this bill provided food for children truly in need, as I proposed in March, I would give it my wholehearted support and approve it immediately," Ford said.

"Children of families living in poverty who need help in raising their level of nutrition should receive that help."

Ford charged the act passed by Congress would greatly expand federal subsidies to children from families which do not need help.

Among provisions in the wide-ranging legislation included free or low-cost school lunches for children of unemployed parents for the full duration of their unemployment; and supplemental feeding of expectant mothers, infants and young children in low-income families.

"We should not expand some subsidies to families with incomes above the poverty level," Ford said. "I believe the way to help most American families is to take actions to hold down inflation and reduce their tax burdens."

Ford said his proposed legislation would have provided assistance by the government for all infants and children in families below the poverty level and "halted the steady expansion of federal child nutrition subsidies to increasing numbers of non-needy children."

His bill, Ford added, would have "concentrated more funds on feeding needy children, yet save the taxpayers of this nation almost $4 billion over the next two years."

Patty faces 11 counts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A grand jury has pined down the California charges against Patricia Hearst and her SLA companions to 11 counts bearing penalties up to life in prison — a tactical victory for prosecutors.

In San Francisco, FBI sources said Miss Hearst, already facing bank robbery charges there, had been positively linked to a bank robbery and killing in Sacramento that could bring a death sentence.

And a U.S. attorney there said it is "inevitable that other charges will be filed."

The increasing legal maneuvers Thursday began to have their effect on the Hearst family.

"The media has tried Patty and found her guilty, so why not everyone else," complained her mother, Catherine Hearst, in Redwood City. "The government wants to pin everything on her in order to get rid of everything in one lump."

The grand jury action may have made inevitable separate trials in Los Angeles for Miss Hearst and William and Emily Harris, although their cases are still joined. Miss Hearst is undergoing psychiatric examination ordered by a federal court in San Francisco and there has been no determination yet by state and federal prosecutors which trial will be held first.

The Hearsts were scheduled for arraignment today on the indictments against them and have a constitutional right to demand their trial begin within 60 days.

'Gladys' termed classic

ABOARD NOAA 41C OVER THE ATLANTIC (UPI) — Its wings flapping like a giant bird, the four-engine C130 turboprop dipped and bumped its way through flashes of lightning toward the eye of Hurricane Gladys, but eight weather scientists did not seem apprehensive.

"This storm is a classic," Dr. Robert C. Sheets said enthusiastically over his intercom. "What a beauty... it looks like it came right out of a textbook."

The plane made it through Gladys' 140-mile-an-hour winds into the 15-mile eye of the hurricane. Immediately, dozens of instruments examined and dissected the storm and recorded the data on two banks of computers.

Sheets and seven other National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration scientists who make up Project Stormytry then began monitoring banks of temperature probes, ice particle counters and radar screens, and instruments that can even "fingerprint" the nucleus of a raindrop.

The plane slammed into a blanket of ice and was tossed violently. A cup of coffee carelessly left on a table was lifted six feet into the air and crashed onto the steel floor. Red lights were everywhere on the instrument panel. "The damn gyro's gone loopy," pilot Bob Sanquist said.

Sanquist skillfully guided the plane into a calm spot in the hurricane but the jolt and the ice had disabled two of the scientific instruments.

By the time the plane — stripped of its nose paint by the ice — landed in Miami, the hurricane center was calling Gladys the western Atlantic's most intense hurricane in 15 years. None of the 19 crewmen aboard NOAA 41C doubted it.

Eye of storm

The hurricane hunter turboprop C130 passes over the eye of storm Gladys. Instruments record data from the mainstrom 20,000 feet below. Weathermen regularly fly through tropical storms to gather data. (UPI)

Creech's trial set Monday in Wallace

WALLACE, Idaho (UPI) — Accused murderer Eugene Thomas Creech is scheduled to go on trial in Wallace Monday for the slaying of two men nearly a year ago some 400 miles south of this North Idaho mining community.

The trial was moved to Wallace from Cascade. Fourth District Judge J. Ray Durtsch ordered the change shortly after a jury was selected last May to hear the murder proceedings in the tiny courtroom at Cascade. He felt that Creech would be unable to receive a fair trial because of pre-trial publicity.

Durtsch later transferred the case to Wallace, feeling that community had not been exposed to the influence of the southern Idaho media and because of maximum security jail facilities in the Shoshone County community.

Judge Durtsch will preside over the trial, which will get underway at 9:30 a.m. in the Public Facility building. A court clerk in Wallace said the courtroom in the Public Facility building was being used because it was connected to the jail, where Creech already has been transferred. She said the courtroom there was much smaller than the one at the courthouse.

Creech will be defended by Nampa Attorney Bruce O. Robinson. Presenting the case for the state will be Valley County Prosecutor Robert Remakulus of Cascade.

Robinson was hired as defense attorney after Creech-fired public defender Ward Hower of Cascade, who successfully obtained a change of venue in the first trial in Valley County. Creech tried to fire Hower prior to the start of that trial, but Durtsch ruled that the defendant did not have adequate legal representation.

Creech is accused of murdering John Bradford, 40, formerly of Brownsboro, Ala., and Edward Arnold, 34, formerly of Lancaster, Tex., whose bodies were found last November alongside State Highway 53 near Donnelly.

Arnold's car was located the next day about 50 miles south of where the victims were found and Creech and Carol Spauling, 41, Lewiston, were arrested a day later in Glens Ferry after their descriptions matched a couple last seen by the car.

Miss Spauling pleaded guilty to harboring and protecting a person charged with a felony and was sentenced to two years in the Idaho State Penitentiary. She later was transferred to prison facilities in Nevada.

Creech also is wanted in Oregon in the murder of Sandra Jane Ramsaog, 21, Salem, during a grocery store robbery, and for the death of William Joseph Dean, 22, Astoria, found in Creech's quarters at St. Mark's Episcopal Church Aug. 17, 1974.

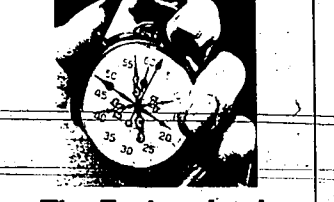

Authorities from other western states also have questioned Creech about unsolved slayings in their states.

Girl wins lawsuit

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Lawyers for a 13-year-old girl who suffered permanent brain damage during routine surgery on her leg Thursday reached an out-of-court settlement for $918,000 with four defendants in the case.

The lawsuit said a drug used in the surgery, Innovar, blocked the flow of oxygen to the girl's brain. It also contended an anesthesiologist was negligent.

Michigan bodies exhumed

FLINT, Mich. (UPI) — The FBI hunt for clues to a series of mysterious respiratory failures at the Veteran's Hospital in Ann Arbor has turned to the exhuming of the bodies of three men who died at the hospital in mid-August.

Authorities were removing the bodies from their graves to get tissue samples that might show evidence the men were injected with a powerful muscle-paralyzing drug just before they died.

During a six-week period this summer, which ended in mid-August, 34 patients at the Veteran's Hospital suffered respiratory failure, and 11 of those patients died. Police have suspected that a psychopathic killer may be administering a drug, such as Pavulon, which paralyzes the diaphragm, causing the breathing failures.

Sources close to the investigation said the search for the possible killer has focused on nurses in the hospital's intensive care unit.

One body was removed Tuesday from an Ann Arbor cemetery, another Thursday from Kalamazoo and the body of a former Flint man was to be dug up today from the River Rest Cemetery. Tissue samples were taken from the two bodies and then they were returned to the graves.

The three men died within 19 hours of each other on Aug. 14 and 15 at the Veteran's Hospital.

There's a suspected murder and murder, one agent said Thursday, and if you get murdered, you need a body and evidence.

Detroit FBI spokesman Jay Bailey said the tissue samples from the exhumed bodies will be sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington for analysis.

Atomic industry officials to test safety systems

STUD LAKE, Idaho (UPI) — Atomic industry officials hope they can finally settle the argument of whether safety equipment on nuclear reactors is really safe.

Attempts will be made in December to intentionally damage a $200 million inactive nuclear reactor in eastern Idaho. It will be the initial phase of a five-year program to test safety systems of atomic power plants.

Scientists believe the first year of non-nuclear damage tests will provide enough information to judge whether the safety systems perform as well as predicted. Radioactive fuel will not be injected into the reactor until early in 1977.

It has long been argued by nuclear critics that the safety equipment is unproven because it has never been tested under accident conditions, but only through computers.

Atomic industry officials note that the test is a drastic step.

"It's like taking an aircraft out and crashing it several times to see what happens," said Gary Ebiner, a technical expert in the Office of Water Reactor Safety Research for the U. S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

But residents of the closest community to the site of the test — Mud Lake, a small farming town of 215 citizens located 12 miles away — feel no danger from the experimental facility.

Japanese royalty honored

TOKYO, Japan (UPI) — A trade mission from Idaho presented a star garnet, and an Idaho potato to the crown prince and princess of Japan Wednesday, along with an invitation to SKI IN TOSH on their next visit to the United States.

L. Gov. John Evans and his wife, Lola, met with the Crown Prince Akhiko and Princess Michako in the absence of Emperor Hirohito who is visiting the United States.

"I was most impressed with the prince," Evans reported by telegram after the 20 minute audience. "On behalf of Gov. Andrus and the people of Idaho, it was my privilege to present the prince with an Idaho star garnet."

Evans is leading the Idaho delegation for the trade mission to Japan which includes the governors of Oregon and Washington.

He said Akhiko seemed pleased with the gift and conveyed his thanks to the people of Idaho.

Twin Falls agency receives federal grant

TWIN FALLS — The South Central Community Action Agency (SCCAA) has received a $30,000 federal grant that will provide emergency food services for low-income families.

Candy McElfresh, SCCAA planning director, said the U.S. Community Services Administration grant will "fill in the gaps" between nutritional assistance programs offered by the county, the Idaho Health and Welfare Department and the Salvation Army.

An advisory board will be named to set up guidelines for the SCCAA program, Mrs. McElfresh said.

Some of the money probably will be spent in acquiring low-income families with food stamp and school lunch programs, she said.

United Way goal $147,000

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls United Way directors voted unanimously today to seek $147,000 in this year's fund drive.

The new goal is only $5,000 larger than last year's goal of $142,000.

After taking out about $9,400 for campaign expenses, the money raised will be divided among 11 charitable agencies.

A new agency, United Cerebral Palsy of Idaho, has been added to the list of United Way recipients. According to United Way President Terry Smith, the cerebral palsy organization will be judged according to its work in Magic Valley. If enough is accomplished locally, the agency will be included in future years.

One of the recipient agencies, the Twin Falls County Mental Health Association, failed to provide budgetary documents to support its 1976 request. The agency's budget request of $1,800 was tentatively allowed providing budgetary documentation is received.

Other 1976 agency requests, as approved by the United Way, are as follows: YWCA, $13,000; YMCA, $12,000; Camp Fire Girls, $7,500; arthritis, $2,500; Salvation Army, $24,000; Boy Scouts, $45,111; Red Cross, $26,088; USO, $700; Girl Scouts, $3,180; and cerebral palsy, $1,700.

The agencies will receive their full requests only if the camaign raises its goals. If the campaign falls short, available funds will be prorated among the agencies.

Dr. Terry Smith announced the resignation of campaign chairman Clayton Budd. Smith said there was not time to replace Budd, so he personally would assume the post.

The 1976 campaign is scheduled to begin Tuesday.

According to Blue Chips division chairman Steve Herig, more than $7,000 has been raised from large blue-chips companies and their employees.

Dr. Smith said he hoped 20 per cent of the campaign goal would be in hand by Tuesday's kickoff luncheon.

Last year's campaign has raised a total of $94,401 to date, according to United Way executive director Darl Glead. Glead said he expects the total to reach about $98,000 by the time final pledges are received.

Providing the $98,000 figure is reached, ten agencies should receive a total of $50,000 from last year's campaign, Glead said.

The agencies expect to receive the following sums from the completed campaign: YWCA, $10,000; YMCA, $10,000; mental health, $1,300; Camp Fire Girls, $7,400; arthritis, $1,100; Salvation Army, $15,300; Boy Scouts, $25,900; Red Cross, $16,000; USO, $500 and Girl Scouts, $2,500.

MV Living Center granted license

TWIN FALLS — A state operating license has been approved for the Magic Valley Living Center, a shelter home southwest of Twin Falls.

"The license is being processed and will be sent to the facility as quickly as possible," Dick Adams, Boise, chief of the licensing section of the Health and Welfare Department (HAW), said today.

"We've got it all squared away and it looks like we're off and running for a year," Adams said. The license must be renewed each year.

The license marks the end of a long effort by the shelter home's management to earn state approval. HAW officials rejected a license application for the facility in August because of fire safety deficiencies.

However, the state agency said a new application would be considered as soon as a fire alarm system and fire-resistant doors were installed.

Adams today said the alarm system is in and the 18 required doors have been installed or are ordered.

Produce firm sold

KIMBERLY — The largest business in the east end of Twin Falls County has been sold, but operations will continue without change, according to J.W. Henry, former owner.

Stock in the J.H. Henry Produce Co. has been sold to William C. Davis, Twin Falls, and Neal Ambrose, Wendell. Davis replaces Henry as president of the firm which was started by the late J.H. Henry in 1932.

His son, J.W. Henry, has retained the trucking operation for the firm which at peak season employs between 90 and 130 persons.

Davis was formerly manager of Western Farm Service, Kimberly, for seven and a half years and before that ran the Henry Farm Sales, a former division of the Henry produce firm which was sold seven years ago to Shell Oil Co.

Chairman Pike's pique treads dangerous ground

WASHINGTON — The statements on Capitol Hill these days sound more and more like communiqués from a battlefield.

In its zeal to restore the balance of power with the executive branch, the Congress seems in danger of losing its own balance.

This was predictable. After years of deception by the White House, the intelligence agencies, and the State and Defense Departments, dramatized by the tragedies of Vietnam and Watergate, the counter-attack from Congress was unavoidable and essential, but some of the latest attacks on the intelligence agencies and the State Department border on the ridiculous.

"If an attack were to be launched on America in the very near future," said Rep. Otis G. Pike, Democratic chairman of the House Select Committee on Intelligence, "it is my belief that America would not know that attack was about to be launched." This is only one example of Pike's pique. Thereupon, the Pike committee voted 10 to 3 to seek a resolution from the full House of Representatives supporting its demand for unimpeded access to classified documents and other materials the committee has subpoenaed from the Central Intelligence Agency.

An argument can be made in this case, for the executive branch not only over-classifies documents but often regards itself as the sole reliable custodian of sensitive security information. But Pike's committee does not stop at demanding such information from the responsible political officers of the agencies and departments.

It wants to know not only the facts of a given situation, which is fair enough, but summons junior staff officers to testify under oath about what recommendations they made to the policy officials. This, of course, is the procedure that almost wrecked the U.S. Foreign Service during the McCarthy period, when Secretary of State Dulles allowed his junior aides to be riddled and finally dismissed out of office.

These distinctions between who is responsible and who is not responsible, and between policy decisions by top officials and policy recommendations by junior staff members, are generally respected by the major committees dealing with foreign and security affairs. But the Pike committee apparently does not see the difference.

There can be no effective diplomatic reporting from abroad or analysis within the State Department, for example, if every ambassador or staff officer knows that his personal recommendations are subject to congressional investigation months or years after. A few bold souls may take their chances, but the rest will probably play it cozy and avoid recommending anything that may be subject to questioning later on.

Kissinger is the responsible official at State, together with the assistant secretaries and others appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. In Rep. Pike's present inquiry into the Cyprus war, for example, Kissinger offered to testify and to take responsibility for the policy. But the committee summoned Thomas D. Boyatt, a junior officer who was reported to have taken a different view on the Cyprus policy, interrogated him in secret session and kept both Hartman and Hyland, the responsible policy officials, out of the room.

Also, he sent Arthur A. Hartman, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, and William G. Hyland, State Department director of intelligence and research, to the Pike committee to answer their questions. But the committee summoned Thomas D. Boyatt, a junior officer who was reported to have taken a different view on the Cyprus policy, interrogated him in secret session and kept both Hartman and Hyland, the responsible policy officials, out of the room.

This is a little like insisting on the right to compel testimony from a junior CIA agent on whether he ever disagreed with his boss, or a sergeant in the Army on whether he liked the search and destroy missions in Vietnam. It violates the principle of responsibility, ignores the principle of the separation of powers, and threatens to make the orderly conduct of government even worse than it now is.

Pike is not an irresponsible man. Like many of his colleagues on the Hill, he is furious about misuses of executive privilege and appeals to national security in the past, and is determined to impose accountability on the intelligence community and the State Department.

Thus, it is right of Congress, which Kissinger has acknowledged, to hold the secretary of state accountable and even to try to hold him in contempt or get him fired. If he withholds information essential to the performance of Congress' duties, but raiding the staff members and interfering with the legitimate private executive analysis of different options is a totally different and destructive procedure.

If Pike wants a confrontation with the secretary of state or this issue, he will get it. For Kissinger will not follow John Foster Dulles' example of throwing staff officers to his critics. The idea of state Congress everything it needs to be an effective partner in the conduct of foreign and intelligence policy is long overdue, but it is not necessary to wreck the Foreign Service to do it.

Untie those 'tied hands'

Bonnie Hollaman of Wendell had a crash course in federal red tape this week.

Her husband, William, is a veteran with a history of heart trouble. He was unfortunate to have an attack last week before a new federal privacy law went into effect on Saturday.

Because the law wasn't in effect yet, and his condition was critical, Hollaman didn't sign a patient consent form authorizing the VA hospital at Boise to release information about him. At that point, legally, there was no need for such a release.

But when Mrs. Hollaman later called up the VA hospital to find out whether her husband was in intensive care, she met a wall of silence.

She says the hospital wouldn't tell her if her husband were still in intensive care or what room he was in.

When she arrived at the hospital to track down her husband, nobody would tell her where he had been taken.

Fortunately, another patient had overheard the hospital staff saying the ailing Hollaman had been taken to room 206, but asked Mrs. Hollaman not to say he told her so.

Mrs. Hollaman is understandably irritated.

The hospital now says it may have overreacted. According to Dan Moore, chief of medical administration for the Boise VA Hospital, in the future, information will be given out saying where the patient is being kept.

We strongly support good laws designed to preserve the privacy of individuals. But it is a marvel when a law results in obvious bureaucratic abuses such as reportedly occurred in the Hollaman case.

It seems that once a newspaper puts in a call to a hospital, idiotic policies seem to be quickly corrected.

What is most distressing is that such policies can't seem to be corrected when a typical citizen and not a newspaper questions them.

The real question is this. When Mrs. Hollaman's plight first became known at the VA Hospital, why couldn't it have been worked out on the spot?

The switchboard operator may have been working under strict orders. Still that operator could have called someone in charge to discuss the problem. If that person felt trapped by the regulations, he could have worked his way up the chain of command until he reached the same top administrator the Times-News reached with its call.

Unfortunately, chains of command in many organizations, especially governmental ones, tend to be one-way streets.

Orders, including stupid ones, come pouring down. Honest misunderstandings take place. But nobody along the way is encouraged to exercise his own discretion.

It's about time organizations of all kinds become responsive to obvious problems.

The old statement, "my hands are tied" just won't do any more.

... ALSO, THERE'S SOME PRETTY WILD STUFF HERE — ONE, OFFICIAL SECRETS ACT, PART 7, SECTION TWO, "THOU SHALT HAVE NOT FREEDOM OF THE PRESS" ...

Something for nothing line has greater appeal

There are stirrings in West Europe. From some of them we can take heart.

The Danish political parties are finally running into genuine resistance over the lengths to which welfareism has taken them. One estimate puts the cost of social services at 55 per cent of the gross national product. Continue at that rate for a little longer, and the Danish people won't have money left over to buy pork with, though one supposes that the Social Democrats would come out for Free Pork. Perhaps some time before then, the people will rediscover their taste for freedom, and the great body of socialists who have written all their laws will be led to the gates of the city and given free passes back home.

In West Germany a recent survey suggests that something is at work on the ethos of profoundly alarming consequence. If one had to select the country that has most greatly prospered since the end of the second world war, all indicators would single out West Germany. Here was not only the rubble of an atomized country, but the awful corporate sense of shame at having been dominated by a mad savage who was a popular leader. The Germans worked hard, and sincerely, for their prospect, and their democratic freedoms.

Suddenly things are beginning to go sour. A recent survey shows that among workers under the age of 30, 29 per cent, if given the opportunity, would elect not to work at all. The corresponding figure in 1962 was 22 per cent.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

The disposition to work, then, has almost doubled in a dozen years. And hearken to this: In the age group between 16 and 20, a total of 76 per cent would just as soon not have to work.

No doubt there are those who will find nothing in the least unusual about the figures. Work can be unpleasant, and sloth achieved its standing as one of the capital sins in virtue of the social recognition that that which is unpleasant has nevertheless to be done. But the doing of it does not make it pleasant.

Dishes have to be washed, and fences painted, but it takes a con-man like Tom Sawyer to persuade people that it is fun to do it. The substitute for Tom Sawyer in a modern society is an ethos — the work ethos. It was known intuitively for thousands of years that people feel better after exerting themselves. Modern psychologists, as usual certifying the obvious, establish that work is necessary to a sense of mental well-being. Sir Harold Nicolson wrote that "industry is the enemy of melancholy."

So what does it mean when three quarters of the young people of the most enterprising and industrious nation on earth decide, with some suddenness, that they would just as soon not have to work for a living? Politically, the meaning of their decision is obvious. They are boob-bait for the demagogues of the left who will whisper to them how they can get it for nothing.

— how, in the phrase of Albert Jay Nock, they can substitute political for economic means of accumulating wealth. What then happens, we all know. Everyone gets poorer, and there are fresh reasons — or are there — for misery?

The surveys seem to be telling us that the standards of the bourgeois world are not accepted by people who rise up into that world by commanding high salaries in the free market. It is, says Professor Noelle-Neumann of the Allensbach Institute for Opinion Research, the other way around. The (London) Times paraphrases: "The bourgeois are adopting not only the blue jeans but also the social values of the workers. Over 10 years, she finds, that has been a steady decline in traditionally bourgeois values such as respect for property, hard work, politeness, modesty, thrift, and the belief that one is responsible for one's own fate. There has been a corresponding spread of what she perhaps best describes as traditionally lower class attitudes such as lack of interest in work, avoidance of effort and risk, the desire for immediate gratification, doubts about the fairness of rewards and fatalism about status."

Here was an interesting test question put to the respondents: A father has to decide which of his two sons to send on an exchange visit to England. He resolves on the one who has been getting the best grades in school. Obvious? The percentage of people who approved his decision dropped from 62 to 49 between 1962 and 1972.

Thought

Above all am I convinced of the need, irrevocable and inescapable, of every human heart, for God. No matter how we try to escape, to lose ourselves in restless seeking, we cannot separate ourselves from our divine source. There is no substitute for God. — Arthur J. Cronin, British author.

Heroes out these days

WASHINGTON — It was not surprising that Oliver Sipple, the de-Marine who deflected the gun aimed at President Ford by Sara Jane Moore and probably saved Ford's life, should have told reporters: "I'm no hero."

Perhaps unconsciously, Oliver Sipple is a creature of the times. Heroes are out of these days. The feeling seems to be that anyone cast in a hero's role must be square, perhaps even a chugbecker and a teetotaler; most certainly not a survivor. In short, although heroes sometimes serve a purpose, they are not considered interesting by the style setters; they are not chic.

Freaks, on the other hand, are in. They are naughty and therefore they are more than interesting; they are exciting — even if they try to kill a President. It is the crazy who lands on Page 1 and on the covers of news magazines, not the hero.

Critics are on solid ground only up to a point in blaming the media for this peculiar state of affairs. Assassins and would-be assassins are news, and people want to read about them. Such creeps have the same fascination for the average citizen as the horrible things that crawl out from under a rock. And in this mixed-up country, where the with-it has become so important, goodness runs deep, it is evil in the merchandise peddled by the media.

Still, even in this age of the anti-hero, when good deeds are either scoffed at or ignored, there should be a place of some little honor for Oliver Sipple and for Secret Service agent Larry Buendorf, who overpowered Squeaky Fromme when she aimed a gun at Gerald Ford. "Nothing fancy, you understand, just a taken something. Perhaps it would be enough if a few of us vowed to remember their names for a few weeks. Buendorf, of course, was doing his job. One could say, and many have, that what he did in Sacramento was what he is paid to do. That may be true, but it is like saying a soldier should not be decorated for valor, that he was hired to be brave. Buendorf has been cited by his comrades and by the President, but he deserves just a tad more public glory than he has been granted.

Consider, now, the case of Oliver Sipple. He was not hired to protect anybody. He was merely a bystander who waited three hours outside the Saint Francis Hotel to catch a glimpse of the President. He was under no official obligation to interfere with Sara Jane Moore, who might well have been able to turn her gun on him.

It is no good saying that of course Sipple had to act, that he had no choice. The record is filled with cases in which human beings were beaten and robbed and raped and even murdered in full view of passersby who decided that on commission of a crime was none of their business. In a Long Island suburb a few years ago, practically the entire population of a housing development listened to a girl's cries for help and did nothing. Eventually, the girl was murdered and a General Motors truck drove across the street while a friend was hanged on a Philadelphia street.

Oliver Sipple acted first and thought later. "Why did I do it?" he said. "It was a gun pointed at the President of the United States, that's why. I seen a gun and I took a dive for it. I don't even know what I felt."

Not bad for a man who served in Vietnam in 1968 and 1969 and got an honorable discharge in full disability for what they used to call shell shock before the shrinks took over the language.

But I suppose both Buendorf and Sipple are considered a touch square in the nation's commotion and in the with-it drawing rooms where the inimitable liberals gather. They are — well, cops, sort of, and therefore nonpersons to both the freaks and the ideological chic. This, I fear, is no longer a country that rewards its heroes and punishes its criminals.

Bible study course said success

BY SHANE O'NEILL Times-News writer RUPERT — A new Bible study course at Minico High School for non-LDS students was termed a complete success Thursday by the president of the Minicota County Ministerial Association. Rev. Henry Barnett, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Paul, told Rupert Chamber of Commerce members. "It was like a beautiful cloud opening up."

Rev. Barnett said Minico students were the impetus for the class, which provides a religious alternative to the seminary classes for those belonging to the LDS Church. He said the churches excited about the program and plans are being made for three classes next year. The Cassia County Ministerial Association has made inquiries and received information on the course. The Cassia group has formed a curriculum committee and hopes to begin a similar course at Burley High School next year. Students in the overflowing class receive half a credit from Minico as a literary or history class, as permitted by Idaho law. Rev. Dennis Thomas, educational pastor of the First Christian Church in Rupert, directs the class. He said students went to Glen Maughn, principal at Minico High School, and to

Supt. Darrell Hatfield last spring. They then asked Barnett's daughter to speak to him about a possible class. When some members of the ministerial association voiced interest, teaching accreditations for limited certificates were obtained. The LDS Seminary, adjacent to the high school offered space for fifth period and the class was listed for the fall schedule. Barnett said 12 seniors enrolled, followed by 12 juniors. He said they cut off enrollment after receiving 12 sophomores, explaining that the total of 36 exceeded the 30 maximum that were supposed to be in a class.

Congress will partially lift Turk arms embargo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has agreed to partially lift the arms embargo against Turkey, apparently swayed by President Ford's urging that the ban worsened rather than improved the Cyprus problem.

The House voted 237-176 Thursday for a Senate-passed measure that would release $185 million in arms purchased by Turkey before the Feb. 5, 1975 embargo went into effect.

Only Senate agreement to a House amendment calling for Ford to "discuss" with Turkey the problem of opium coming into the United States was needed to send the measure to the White House.

While the bill permits shipment of arms Turkey already has paid for, it stipulates the arms can be used only to meet Turkey's NATO commitments.

It would, however, allow Turkey to make commercial military purchases in the United States and would open up military sales and credits when the military assistance bill is enacted.

The embargo was ordered after the Turkish invasion of Cyprus July 20, 1974, a week after the now deposed Greek military Junta government aided in the overthrow of Cyprus President Archbishop Makarios.

Ford Thursday urged through White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen that the House accept the measure "if vital U.S. and NATO security interests in the eastern Mediterranean are to be preserved.

Backers of the measure stressed the Turkish takeover of U.S. military installations in that country after the embargo was ordered and they also cited Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's warning that solution of the Cyprus problem had become more difficult as a result of the arms ban.

Opponents of the bill sought through an amendment to the release of the military aid to a certification — by Ford — that "significant progress" has been made in resettling some 180,000 Greek Cypriot refugees. It lost on a 227-189 vote.

12 dead from Irish violence

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Police today discovered a 12th victim of a new wave of bombings and shootings in Northern Ireland aimed on Protestant extremists.

Authorities said the latest casualty was a man found shot through the head this morning in the mainly Roman Catholic market area of Belfast.

Eleven persons, most Roman Catholics, died Thursday in day-long violence across the troubled British-ruled province.

Police said more than 30 persons have been injured in two days of sectarian violence. British officials said the new wave of terror brought Northern Ireland one step closer to civil war.

Police said there was little doubt most of the deaths were the work of Protestant militants seeking revenge for Irish Republican Army bombings last week.

Airlines office hit

MADRID (UPI) — Police fired shots into the air in downtown Madrid early today to disperse a small crowd attacking the offices of two foreign airlines.

The national news agency Clira said the attackers hurled stones into the windows of the offices of Swissair and Sabena, Belgium's national airline. Witnesses said police arrested several of the demonstrators.

The attacks apparently came in response to a wave of anti-Spanish boycotts, sanctions and protests triggered by the execution of five Spanish guerrillas last weekend.

Several European airlines, including Sabena, canceled their flights to Spain and workers in Greece, Germany, Italy, Holland, Belgium and France staged symbolic work stoppages Thursday.

Beirut still torn

BELMUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Rival Christians and Moslems began removing their militias from the streets today, but sniper fire and kidnappings delayed a full return to normal in the city torn by two weeks of civil strife.

Both sides left sandbagged gun emplacements and street barricades empty in the Moslem suburb of Chitah and the adjoining Christian area of Ain Rummaneh where most of the fighting has taken place.

But when security forces took up positions along the main road between the two suburbs they encountered sporadic fire from militia units which had apparently withdrawn to new perimeters.

Paratroopers used

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Five planeloads of paratroopers were flown to a southern air base near Beja today to protect it from left-wing protesters demonstrating at the front gates.

The protesters demanded the removal of the base commander for ordering the transfer of 40 army who participated in a rally that had anti-government overtones.

A military spokesman said he did not know exactly how many paratroopers were sent to the base.

Communist-controlled newspapers today reported other protests against the removal of leftist officers and enlisted men in the towns of Evora and Porto and the Lisbon suburb of Monsanto.

Postage hike set Dec. 28

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The price for mailing a one-ounce first class letter will go up from 10 cents to 13 cents on Dec. 28, the Postal Service says.

The rate for post cards will rise from 7 to 9 cents. Parcel post rates will go up about 10 percent.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Butler had announced earlier that the rate increases would be held up until sometime after Christmas.

The air mail rate will rise from 13 to 17 cents for the first ounce, but it is on the way out: The Postal Service expects by Oct. 11 to be sending all intercity first class mail by air at the regular rate if distance warrants it.

After that there will be no point in buying an air mail stamp, and post offices will stop issuing them.

Man challenges ruling

HAMPTON, Va. (UPI) — The Air Force has decided T. Sgt. Leonard Matlovich's discharge on homosexual — may leave the service — with an honorable discharge. But Matlovich says he wants to stay, and will challenge the ruling.

"I do not consider the upgrading of my discharge to an honorable discharge — any advantage because I want no discharge at all from the United States Air Force," said Matlovich Thursday.

"The type of discharge is irrelevant because it will be a discharge for being a homosexual, a fact of my private life which has nothing to do with how I do my job in serving my country."

Cpl. Alan J. Thorgersen, commander of Langley Air Force Base, announced the decision Thursday granting Matlovich the discharge on grounds of homosexuality.

Matlovich, a 24-year veteran, earlier indicated he would appeal Thorgersen's decision, no matter what it was, to Air Force Secretary John McClellan and then to the courts if necessary.

An administrative discharge board had recommended Sept. 19 that the self-proclaimed homosexual be given a general discharge under honorable conditions, the military's usual procedure when it discovers a homosexual in its ranks.

Thousands still out of school

By United Press International School officials ended contract disputes with teachers in some parts of the nation Thursday, but scattered strikes in other areas kept thousands of students out of classrooms.

Striking teachers in North Vernon, Ind., went back to bargaining Thursday for the first time in a week, but a Massachusetts judge sent 13 more striking New Bedford teachers to jail.

Teachers in the Parsippany-Troy Hills, N.J., school district returned to classes for the first time in two weeks Thursday after approving a contract calling for a 16 percent raise.

In the Chicago suburban Atwood school district teachers agreed to return to work under a contract calling for a 9.8 percent salary increase. The settlement reopened four schools where 1,200 children attend classes.

However, teachers went on strike Thursday at Cahokia, Ill., and set up picket lines at 13 schools. School officials kept buildings open for any of the 7,000 students who wanted to report.

Judge Francis Keating sentenced 14 New Bedford teachers to jail for contempt of court, but one chose to return to work rather than be jailed.

Dentist wins large sweepstakes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The luck of the Irish rubbed off on Dr. Vance Davis Bishop when he visited Dublin this summer — he won $600,000 in the biggest Irish Hospital Sweepstakes prize ever. But his wife says they've got all they need.

Bishop, a St. Petersburg, Fla., dentist, was named the first prize winner in the annual sweepstakes Thursday.

The 50-year-old Bishop was visiting his family in Tennessee when an Irish newspaper telephoned his office and broke the news to his dental assistant, Joan Runyon, who said she almost "fell off my chair."

Late Thursday, Bishop's wife, who wanted to hear the news through Mrs. Runyon, was still trying to reach her husband, although she figured "he probably heard the news by now."

"The phone's been so busy he probably hasn't been able to get through," said Mrs. Bishop, who "jumped off the chair with her hands in the air" when she learned of the win.

Hostages released

LONDON (UPI) — Three gunmen released six hostages from the basement of an Italian restaurant today, but the ringleader shot himself rather than surrender at the end of the five-day siege.

The six Italian captives fled out of the Spaghetti House restaurant shortly after 4 a.m., looking tired and drawn but apparently in good condition. Two of the gunmen followed about 20 minutes later and surrendered to police.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who is trying to pave the road smoothly for my 19-year-old daughter.

She is very pretty, and I have never had any trouble with her until now. It seems that she has had a crush on a tall, handsome, 44-year-old salesman who drinks rather heavily. Lives an hour's drive from here and has stood her up on five dates already.

He always had an excuse the day after, but never let her know while she sat all dressed up waiting for him. I feel that he is wrong for her, but I can't seem to get that idea through her head. She could date others, closer to her age, who live nearer to her, but she waits faithfully for this long-distance Romeo. Can you help me?

PUZZLED MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Seldom does a 19-year-old girl listen to her mother in such matters. If it hasn't occurred to your daughter that this man is married—it should.

If she's wise, she'll find out more about him. He sounds like a bad apple, but don't knock him. It will only cause her to come to his defense.

Puzzled mother

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I'd be writing a Dear Abby letter, but I want to speak out in defense of PIANO LESSON HATER, to whom you said, "I've had thousands of people tell me they were sorry they quit piano, but not one ever said he was glad he quit."

Well, now you can retract that statement, Abby. My mother was a piano teacher, and she made me practice an hour every day from the time I was 8 until I was 15. (I'm a boy.) I never was very good at piano, and I hated it. I finally talked her into letting me quit to take guitar lessons.

I worked at every odd job I could get to buy a guitar and pay for my own lessons—that's how much I wanted to learn. And nobody had to force me to practice either.

I suppose I should thank my mom for having exposed me to music in the first place, but music should be "fun"—not drudgery. And when a kid gets to a certain age, I think he should be allowed to select his own instrument and his own kind of music. What do you think?

HATED PIANO—LOVES GUITAR

DEAR HATED: I agree, there comes a time when parents should allow their children to pursue their own interests and develop their own talents, but few 8 year olds are ready for that.

TF flea market scheduled

A toy chest will be given away during the flea market.

FISH FRY CHOW-CHOW

5 lbs. cucumbers
5 medium onions
6 C salt
2½ C white vinegar
1 C brown sugar, firmly packed
1 C white sugar
2 T prepared mustard
4 tsp. ground turmeric
4 tsp. cornstarch
1 ¼ oz jar pimento, drained and chopped
1 medium green pepper, chopped

Peel and cut cucumbers in one-fourth inch slices. Slice onions thinly. Place in bowl and sprinkle with salt. Cover, refrigerate overnight. Drain off any liquid. Chop cucumbers and onions—Combine vinegar and sugars. Blend together mustard, turmeric and cornstarch. Add enough vinegar to make a thin paste. Stir paste into vinegar mixture.

Bring to a boil, stirring frequently. Add cucumbers and onions; bring to a full rolling boil. Add pimento and green pepper. Ladle into hot jars; adjust lids. Process in boiling bath five minutes.

Remove jars and complete seals unless closures are self-sealing type. Makes five pints.

Don't fault mothers for "forcing" their children to take piano lessons; it's the standard instrument that offers an excellent foundation for all musical instruments.

DEAR ABBY: My husband refuses to do anything for himself. He refuses to clean up after himself or hang up his clothes. Asking him to do anything around the yard is like talking to a stone wall. He won't even put gas in the car. I have to balance the checkbook for both of us and even shine his shoes.

If I complain, he tells me that's what he got married for—so he wouldn't have to do any of these things for himself.

We are both 27 and college graduates with master's degrees. Any suggestions?

D. IN RIVERSIDE

DEAR D.: How spoiled is he? If this has been going on for years, he may be beyond repair. If it is a new wrinkle, iron it out with counseling. Both of you.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (20¢) envelope.

Church windows removed Pocatello couple purchases windows

BURLEY — The stained-glass windows were removed from the 60-year-old former LDS Stake and Second Ward church Tuesday.

The building at the corner of 13th Street and Normal Avenue is now owned by the Idaho Migrant Council. The 50 stained glass windows were sold on bid to Don and Kathleen Murdock, Pocatello.

The windows are the original ones installed in the building when it was constructed about 1912-1915.

Mrs. Murdock, an artist, said they plan to restore the windows, which have some panels broken. She said some will be sold to antique enthusiasts but she plans to keep many of them.

Murdock's brother, Frank, joked, "We may end up calling this Kathleen's Folly."

Mrs. Murdock talked her husband, Don, into making a bid for the windows.

Best known as "the old tabernacle," the building was dedicated in 1919, according to Lyman Martindale, but meetings had been held there for some time before that.

Martindale was Second Ward bishop when the congregation shifted to its new church at 16th Street and Almo Avenue less than two years ago. The sale to the migrant council was completed earlier this year.

Martindale said the building was started by the Second Ward, but it ran low on funds. Stake President D. R. Langlois stepped in, made some changes in the plans and the building was completed as a Second Ward and Stake building.

Martindale said the First Ward also used the building for its meetings.

The Second Ward bought out the stake interest in the 1940s, when the present stake building was erected. But the "old tabernacle" remained basically unchanged until it was remodeled under Bishop Norman Dayley about 10 years ago.

The Idaho Migrant Council purchased the building with federal funds and is moving its offices from Rupert to Burley.

Pastor installed at Filer

CLOVER — Rev. Andrew E. Loesel will be installed pastor of Clover Trinity Lutheran Church at 6 p.m. Sunday at the church.

The sermon will be delivered by Rev. Gary Benedix, Edon, who has been serving as vacancy pastor for the last nine months. Officiating at the installation will be Rev. Richard Scholz, Buhl, assisted by the Lutheran ministers in the valley.

Rev. Loesel comes from Idaho Falls where he had served as pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church for the past six years. He has been Lutheran Layman's League circuit adviser for two years and is presently serving as Lutheran Women's Missionary League circuit adviser.

He was born March 1942 in Arriba, Colo., and moved with his family to CoCoCo, Neb., and later to Bay City, Mich. He was graduated from Concordia Teachers College, River Forest, Ill., in 1967 and served a year as intern-teacher in Holy Cross School, Fort Wayne, Ind.

He was graduated from Springfield Seminary in 1969 and was ordained in his father's church in Bay City in 1971. He completed the Bethel Bible series training at the University of Wisconsin in 1972.

Following the Sunday evening installation service, a reception will be held in the parish hall with the church council and wives in charge.

More grain sales loom

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz says he expects Russia to buy 5 million more tons of this season's grain crop from the United States, a quantity President Ford calls "a good figure."

Butz disclosed his expectations during the return trip aboard Air Force One with Ford Wednesday after a midwest swing.

Ford had told one audience during his farm tour, "so far this season, 399 million bushels have been sold to the Russians and I can say to you Russian sales will be increased beyond that figure and it will be a good figure."

The 399 million bushels so far sold to the Soviet Union in the latest round of sales is the equivalent of 10.3 million tons, meaning Russia will be buying half again as much as it has already purchased in Butz, a restriction is accurate.

The purchase would be in line with what agriculture experts have expected.

A U.S. team of negotiators currently is in Moscow seeking to set up a system for future Soviet grain purchases that will make the grain market more predictable and orderly. An agreement, if reached, might include a tie to Russian oil exports to the United States. Current speculation is that Russia will be permitted to purchase a minimum of 5 million tons annually, and up to 8 million tons on special notice and when U.S. stocks permit.

The agreement also may contain provision for even larger purchases under unusual circumstances, providing there is enough American grain to cover them.

Testing supervisors, Ike and Linda Smith, Kimberly, said the 26 herds totalled 1,526 cows milking and 181 dry cows, according to Donald Youtz, county extension agent.

Production averages for August are given with number of cows milking, number of dry cows, total cows, average daily milk production and average daily butterfat production of each herd tests.

VP named

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Edward F. Koester, Gooding, Idaho, has been elected vice president of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents, the University of Idaho announced today.

The national meeting was held recently in Milwaukee. Koester has served as university of Idaho agricultural agent in Gooding county for 23 years.

Entry action asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, appealed to the Department of Interior today to start moving applications pending in Idaho for desert land entries.

McClure, after meeting with Jack—Horton, assistant secretary of the interior for land and water resources, said Idaho is the only state left with available land for water and agricultural development under the Desert Land Act.

"It is wrong that so many applications are being held up by red tape and bureaucratic delay," he said. "A lot of farmers are losing all the money they have put into it already because of government inaction."

McClure quoted Horton as saying he would discuss the matter with Bureau of Land Management officials in Idaho when the assistant secretary is in Idaho later this month.

Retailers blamed

BOISE (UPI) — An official of the National Farmers Organization blames the rising cost of milk on retailers, specifically chain stores.

Leo Nuttal of Smithfield, Utah, assistant dairy department officer for the NFO, told a consumers seminar in Boise Wednesday night. Consumers in Idaho were paying the highest retail dairy prices in the U.S. but the lowest prices are being paid to the Grade A dairyman who produces that milk.

Nuttal said the average markup on milk in Idaho is 41 per cent, compared with an average markup of 19 per cent on all other food items.

"Why should milk, which has about the highest turnover in the store and involves less work for store personnel have such a high markup?" asked Nuttal.

He suggested one way to combat the situation would be the purchase of milk at outlets which feature lower prices.

West Gem crop down

NAMPA (UPI) — A below average sugar beet crop this season is predicted by Ray Larson, Nampa, Treasure Valley district manager of Amalgamated Sugar Co.

Larson said the crop is expected to be about one-half to one ton per acre below the six-year average of 24 tons.

He said "cool nights and bright, sunny days have brought on a better crop than we were expecting the first of the season."

Larson said no tests had been made yet to determine what the sugar yield per ton is likely to be. He said 250-260 pounds of refined sugar is usually expected from a ton of beets.

Expected harvest and deliveries to the Amalgamated plant at Nampa is expected to begin about Tuesday.

Rustlers 'spooked' by lawman?

MURPHY, Idaho (UPI) — The high-flying antics of Owyhee County Sheriff Tim Nettleton apparently are spooking cattle rustlers.

Nettleton said since he began "flying the mountains" a year ago the number of range slaughters has dropped dramatically. He said whenever potential rustlers spot a plane in the air they think, "There goes the sheriff."

Nettleton said the flights over grazing areas of Owyhee County are incorporated with other business, such as flying a prisoner back from a distant city.

He said a flight around the mountain adds "only six miles to the trip."

The aircraft is leased by the sheriff's department, which Nettleton explained is cheaper than buying and gives him access to seven different aircraft. He said this offered him flexibility in choosing a plane that will match the job.

Support rate boosted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture secretary Earl L. Butz has agreed to raise the government's milk price support rate, congressional sources said Thursday.

An official announcement is expected shortly. One House member said Butz has indicated the support price for manufacturing grade milk will be raised immediately to 80 per cent of the "fair earning power" parity price.

At present, the support price is $7.24 per hundred pounds, which was equal to 80 per cent of parity when the current dairy marketing year began last April. Rising farm costs since the beginning of the year, however, have raised the basic parity price and it now requires a higher support rate to equal 80 per cent of parity.

Beef price dip ahead

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A guide for meat shoppers who want to hold their bills down: Retail beef prices should be declining during the closing months of 1975 while the record price of pork continues to increase.

In the first three months of next year, however, average beef prices could turn up again slightly while pork begins cooling down.

Livestock and Meat Situation summary prepared by Agriculture Department economists warned Wednesday that average meat prices for the rest of 1975, despite the expected declines in beef, will remain "relatively high."

The October-December retail average for all meats, although down slightly from a mid-year peak, probably will be about 15 per cent or more than prices consumers faced last fall. For 1975 as a whole, the meat price average probably will be 7.9 per cent above last year, experts said.

Prices through the fall and well into 1976 will be influenced heavily by what happens in grain markets over the next few months, the experts said. If feed grain prices remain high, they said, expansion in meat production will be slower than expected earlier.

The blame for 1975 meat price hikes goes at least partly to last year's small corn crop that curbed beef production plans and produced a sharp decline in hog production. Agriculture economists said the average American consumer will eat only about 178-180 pounds of meat this year compared with 188 pounds in 1974.

Meat imports are expected to gain little since tariff restrictions will hold beef imports this year to 1.18 billion pounds, only about 100 million pounds above 1974 imports. Hog prices "will drop seasonally after January and may come down further if an expected recovery in pork production shows up by the summer of 1976, officials added.

Hoffa reports checked

DETROIT (UPI) — The James R. Hoffa case took another strange turn today with federal authorities saying they are checking reports that the former Teamster boss was slain in a private banquet hall and his body stuffed into a trash compactor.

Federal authorities said the trash compactor at the restaurant is serviced by a company incorporated by major Mafia figures in the Detroit area.

Robert Ozer, the director of the U.S. Organized Crime Strike Force in Detroit, said Thursday night that FBI agents were investigating reports that Hoffa was slain in the Raleigh House restaurant.

"Information concerning the Raleigh House has come to us in good, usable fashion," Ozer said. "We're prepared to go forward with it to wherever it might take us."

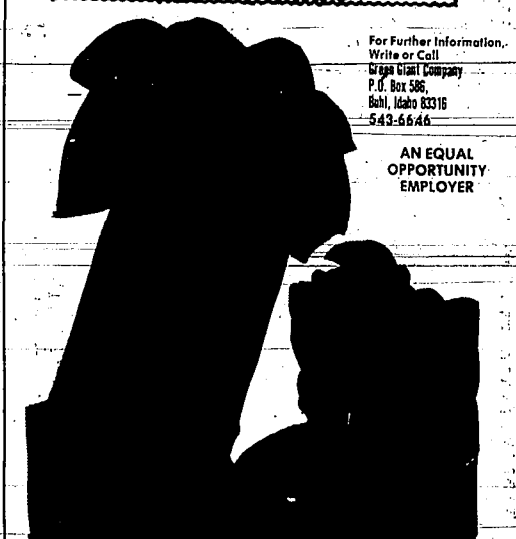

Hoffa, who led the Teamsters for 14 years, until he resigned in late 1971 while in federal prison, was last seen July 30 standing in the parking lot of another suburban restaurant located five miles from the Raleigh House.

Light rain expected Saturday

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley, Rupert area: Increasing clouds tonight with low temperatures 30 to 35. Cloudy and cooler Saturday with a chance of occasional light rain. High temperatures near 50 Saturday. Windy at times. Probability of precipitation increasing to 40 per cent Saturday.

Synopsis: The pattern of fair skies is coming to an end. Protective high pressure over Idaho is weakening and moving eastward. A major trough of low pressure off the coast is expanding into the western United States. Rain spread from Washington State into North Idaho this morning and high clouds moved into South Idaho.

Some occasional light rain will likely drift into Magic Valley Saturday and over the weekend as a strong jet stream pushes more moisture over this area. The extended outlook calls for considerable cloudiness and occasional threats of rain into the first half of next week.

It would seem advisable to take full advantage of the good weather period between the rain threats. Daytime temperatures will drop into the 60s and 70s, but the blankets of clouds should hold night-time lows above freezing during the weekend.

Translation debated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Japanese reporters covering Emperor Hirohito's visit here debated the translation of the Japanese word "kanashimi" which was used in the emperor's toast at Thursday night's state dinner.

Depending on the translation, the emperor either deeply deplored or expressed deep regret or deep sorrow about World War II, which is described as a "most unfortunate war."

Imperial Press Secretary Narachi Fujiyama, who has the rank of ambassador, said the word meant "deeply deplored" in English. Japanese reporters said that translation was too strong.

Fujiyama insisted, "Just take it that he deplores, when he says he deplores the most unfortunate war, he deplores, that's all."

Emperor thanks America

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Japanese Emperor Hirohito, in whose name Japan fought World War II against the United States, says he thanks the American people for helping restore his nation devastated by "that most unfortunate war which I deeply deplore."

Hirohito and Empress Nagako planned to place a wreath today at the Tomb of the Unknowns at Arlington National Cemetery, where many of America's servicemen slain in that war are buried.

In a toast to President Ford at a White House state banquet Thursday night, Hirohito said through his interpreter there was one thing in particular he wanted to tell Americans.

"That is to extend in my own words my gratitude to the people of the United States for the friendly hand of goodwill and assistance their great country accorded us for our postwar reconstruction, immediately following that most unfortunate war which I deeply deplore."

Use of the phrase "deeply deplore" in the English translation touched off strong controversy among Japanese reporters accompanying the emperor on his state visit.

Some of them insisted that a more accurate translation of the Japanese word spoken by Hirohito — "Kanashimi" or "deep sorrow" or "deeply regret." They felt the Japanese government was using a soft phrase for Japanese consumption and a stronger phrase for Americans.

Imperial Press Secretary Narachi Fujiyama said, in English translation, had been approved by the Foreign Ministry and Imperial Household.

"I think this is a correct translation," he said. "Just take it that he deplores. When he says he deplores the most unfortunate war, he deplores, that's all."

Hearing date changed

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission said Thursday a public hearing on proposed revisions of the rules on transporting people and property on state highways will be held Oct. 27, not Oct. 20 as earlier announced. The commission said a typographical error was responsible for scheduling the meeting on the earlier date. The hearing will be held at the commission offices in Boise.

Refund ordered

BOISE (UPI) — Reports of reductions in natural gas rates in Idaho this winter actually are a result of a refund ordered by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, a commission spokesman said Thursday.

The commission has ordered a refund as a result of its action to disallow rate filings by Northwest Pipeline Corp. which supplies the Idaho gas utilities.

A statement from the commission said that suggestions by anyone that the refund will offset an anticipated increase in Canadian gas prices are wishful thinking as no action has been taken by the IPU.

The statement said in order for a rate decrease to be effective, Intermountain Gas Company must file a petition with the commission, or if the company fails to file a petition, the commission will order a decrease on its own motion.

First degree murder charged

POCATELLO — Lloyd C. Cobb, 43, Pocatello, was formally charged with first degree murder at Pocatello Thursday in the slaying of his 36-year-old wife.

Patricia Cobb, administrative assistant to the acting president of Idaho State University, was fatally wounded Wednesday. The shooting occurred in the administrative offices at the school.

Pocatello police said the woman was shot several times by a .45 caliber pistol. She was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital.

Bannock County Magistrate George Phillips told Cobb the charge was non-bailable and asked if he had secured counsel. Cobb said he would be represented by Pocatello Attorney Vern Herzog.

A preliminary hearing was expected to be scheduled within the next 10 days.

Teacher strike looms

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — The Pocatello Education Association called for a strike vote Monday night and implied the teachers would stay away from classes beginning Tuesday to protest the failure of contract negotiations.

In a newsletter to teachers, the association called teachers to a meeting Monday night for the vote four days before the Oct. 10 deadline set by the PEA in August.

Leaders decided to call for the vote because of "evidence that attempts at resolving the differences through mediation are also proving fruitless."

Glen Burgeson, federal mediator, said the mediation sessions "are continuing to meet" but would not say anything else.

Association leaders said surveys of teachers indicate 90 per cent support for a strike.

Bill Kilroy, a spokesman for the PEA, said the only thing that might avert a walk-out is an offer from the school district acceptable to PEA negotiators.

In the newsletter, association members said "teachers who have made up their minds regarding a strike are no less ready on a Monday than on a Friday."

"They expressed the intent to continue participation in mediated talks, saying, 'our hope is the pressure of the threatened strike will be the stimulus needed to end the ordeal and bring negotiations to a successful conclusion.'"

District superintendent Dr. Rulon Ellis said he hoped "logical thinking" might prevail at the Monday meeting.

Supporters 'dig'

BOISE (UPI) — Campaign supporters of Idaho Attorney General Wayne Kidwell were asked to dig into their pockets Thursday to cover money spent in the latter part of last year's election campaign based on commitments that "were not kept."

"Now the attorney general is faced with approximately $20,000 in campaign debts," said D. Duff Mc Kee, a Boise attorney, in a letter soliciting funds to cover the deficit. "Wayne carried our banner well in the last election and I hope he will do so again in future elections," Mc Kee said. "I have sent him a check to help liquidate the campaign debt he has been saddled with, and I ask you to join me."

Mc Kee noted that the last election was "not an easy one" for Republicans.

Ouster of F&G director pushed

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man is heading a petition drive to remove Joseph Greenley as director of the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

Orval Willis, 30, a pipefitter who says he enjoys all types of hunting and fishing, claims to have collected "several hundred signatures" on anti-Greenley petitions in Twin Falls and Jerome.

The petitions claim, the fish and game department under Greenley's administration "has become so political... that it no longer serves the hunter and sportsman."

"It apparently serves the cattle and sheep industries and dedicates its time to political endeavors and public relations," the petition states.

Willis said he hopes to extend the three-week, old petition drive to other parts of the state before going to the Idaho Fish and Game Commission to request Greenley's ouster.

No cut-off date has been set for signing the petitions, he said Thursday.

Willis said, "To me, everything is for the out-aster and nothing for the in-aster." He pointed out hunting and fishing seasons usually open in the middle of the week, "when a working man can't take advantage of it."

Non-resident sportsmen, however, are often in a better financial position to take time off from their jobs and come to Idaho for the opening days, Willis claimed.

Asked if Greenley should be held accountable for all fish and game policies, Willis said, "If you follow his actions, I would say yes. When a guy takes time to look up his record." It is apparent that Greenley is responsible.

The petitions claim that the fish and game department "has failed to adequately protect our fish and wildlife resources... and has concentrated its effort on office planning and... sacrificed the supervisor in the field."

"Poachers abound without sufficient policing to make anyone fearful of being apprehended," the petitions state. "Feeling and caring for standard big game animals has been neglected. Over-grazing of mountain areas has resulted in lack of habitat for big game. Stocking and caring for fish in rivers and streams has been neglected."

Also, "the Idaho resident has been cut off from hunting in Southern Idaho by lack of game and cutback on resident permits," the petitions charge.

Fish and game's license and permit revenues have been "squandered on administrative expenses" when they should be "directed to more field supervision, policing and caring for wildlife," according to the petitions.

William Gardunia, 33, Twin Falls, one of 30 persons who had signed the anti-Greenley petition in Penny-Wise Drug Store, said his "primary reason for signing Greenley is 'the deterioration of fish and game in the state.'"

A hunter and fisherman, Gardunia said, "The decline has been so great in the last 10 years that it doesn't even make it feasible to buy a license any more."

Asked if Greenley should be blamed personally for the problem, Gardunia said, "Yes, I do believe it is his responsibility. I understand he was fired from his job as fish and game director in Nevada. I feel that if he couldn't do his job there then he can't do it here either. And this seems to be proven out quite well."

He also agreed with Willis that "fish and game policies have gone to the point where they have disregarded the local hunters and set up policies to go along with out-of-staters."

Hollister third town in MV to initiate recall movement

Recall movement initiated against Hollister mayor

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer
HOLLISTER — The tiny community of Hollister, population 57, has become the third town in Magic Valley to initiate a recall movement against its mayor this year.

A petition charging Mayor Charles Shepherd with "unjust favoritism" is being circulated by Chet Bess who said Thursday he plans to present it to City Clerk C.M. Lanting within the next few days.

Hollister is located about 30 miles south of Twin Falls on Highway 93 and has about 40 registered voters.

The recall petition claims Shepherd has shown unjust favoritism in granting hook-ups to the city water system. Several new residents of the city have been denied or delayed hookups, the documents say, "whereas Mayor Shepherd and several of his relatives have been granted immediate hookups."

Bess and his wife said Thursday Hollister had never charged a hookup fee and recent newcomers, including the mayor's married children, were not asked to pay. But the Bess' son and son-in-law brought mobile homes to town this past summer where they charged $25 hookup fees.

"That's all right, if everyone pays, we need some money for the town," Bess said. But the couple claims the decision to charge the fee was not adequately publicized, although they said Shepherd had said notices were posted in the town's general store and school.

Another example of unjust favoritism on the part of the mayor, the petition reads, involves an incident earlier this summer to spend $1,000 to fence 300 acres of city-owned property.

"After the land was fenced it was leased to the city clerk 'at a rate believed to be considerably lower' than the $5 per head rental offered the council by Thane Doughmiller.

The petition does not name Doughmiller but refers to the $6 per head offer from a "responsible third party who is not on the council." The Besses also say the fencing project was not advertised for bids.

"We could use $1,000 on a lot of things to improve the town besides new fencing for cows," a citizen said.

Although not specifically mentioned in the petition, residents interviewed Thursday agreed the effort to unseat the mayor is part of a larger problem facing the community — lack of adequate water for a growing community.

Although little more than the proverbial "wide space in the road" on the route to Nevada, Hollister is beginning to feel the pressure of residential development with trailer-homes moved in and several new homes now under construction.

Some feeling has been expressed that the entire council was failing to deal with the development problem and water supply, which comes from a well six miles from town.

At a public meeting Sept. 19, which the council called to discuss the water situation, it decided to stop area farmers from getting water from a stand pipe near Hollister if the cistern is not overflowing. Farmers and anyone in the surrounding area who wants to buy water for $1 a tank can do so. Hollister City residents pay $5 monthly for the same water, but even this does not work uniformly as persons living on the east side of Highway 93 are not in the city limits.

But Lanting has checked the cistern regularly since the meeting and it has been overflowing, according to his wife.

Mrs. Audrey Carter, a City Council member, said, "There's no shortage of water if everyone is economical in using it." She said several leaks in the pipes have been repaired recently which has helped the water situation. The council has voted to install another pump on a second well owned by the city.

The councilwoman strongly supports Shepherd and said, "They'll never find anyone to do the job he does."

50 riders set for annual endurance ride Saturday

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Fifty riders from eight western states have entered the third annual Diamondfield Jack endurance ride which begins Saturday at 9 a.m.

Riders and horses will assemble at Crockett Meadows south of Hanson Saturday morning for the 54-mile ride.

Robert Harney, chairman of the event, said the start was delayed from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. to put riders at the finish line in Jackpot, Nev., at a more suitable hour for spectators.

A total of $1,500 in prize money is being furnished by Cactus Pete's casino in Jackpot. Riders on all breeds of horses are entered from Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California, Colorado, Utah, Montana and Nevada.

Riders, many of them professionals, will be riding over a marked course from Rock Creek to Jackpot, depicting the distance and general area of the famed ride of the 1890s which figured in the trial of Diamondfield Jack Davis.

The cowboy had been charged with the murder of two sheepherders and if he committed the crime, would have had to ride from the Nevada state line in what is generally the area of Jackpot today, to Rock Creek in five hours time during the winter.

Riders will be re-enacting the ride Davis was said to have made when they head across sagebrush and aspen covered hills Saturday.

A barbecue will be served today to all entrants, their families and members of the Magic Valley Appaloosa Horse Club, sponsors of the event.

An eastern publication, Classic Magazine, will send writers and photographers to cover this year's event as well as a filming crew from Idaho State University. The ISU crew will be making a bi-centennial documentary film which may be shown on a nationwide basis. Appaloosa News, the official magazine for Appaloosa breeders, will cover the event again this year.

The public is invited to watch the start of the race south of Hanson and to be on hand for the finish early Saturday afternoon at Jackpot.

Jerome developer loses law suit

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer
JEROME — A Jerome developer Lew Rowland lost his lawsuit against the city of Jerome and City Council members in Fifth District Court here Thursday.

Rowland filed the suit after the council allowed a re-zoning ordinance on Rowland's property to die for lack of a vote.

The re-zoning ordinance, had been voted on and passed, would have changed the classification of Rowland's property on South Fillmore from multi-dwelling to a townhouse district, thus allowing Rowland to build a proposed townhouse complex.

One of the major reasons Rowland filed his lawsuit was because the City Council had spent nearly six months drawing up a special ordinance which would provide guidelines for the construction of townhouse complexes within the city of Jerome.

The council on June 17 passed the townhouse ordinance and two weeks later refused to vote on the re-zoning of Rowland's property.

In Thursday's court action Rowland's attorney, Robert Paine, asked the court to have the City Council vote on the ordinance.

District Judge Theron Ward ruled the council was not required to vote on the ordinance but pointed out that the motion was still alive and could be brought to the floor at any time for further action.

Rowland had also asked $25,000 in damages because of the delay in construction by the city. Judge Ward ruled that Rowland's claim for arbitrary and capricious action did not state a claim that would allow him to recover damages.

Ward dismissed the city and the individual councilmen from any financial responsibility.

One of the council members, Marshall Everheart, whose council position is up for reelection, stated Wednesday he was waiting for the outcome of the lawsuit before announcing whether he would be a candidate in the upcoming election.

Everheart told the Times-News this morning, "My intentions are at this time that I will not be a candidate, however, I have not completely made up my mind."

Everheart says he is pleased with the way the judge ruled, but declined to comment any further.

Rowland, who has received permission from the council to build a 54-unit apartment house on the same land, was not available this morning for comment.

Merged astronomers group sets election

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer
BURLEY — It doesn't take a lot of money to be an amateur astronomer.

That is the major point. The Southern Idaho Astronomical Association would like to make to the public. It was also a major factor in the merger of the Burley Astronomy Society with the Southern Idaho group.

The small association of about 15 members will meet at 8 p.m. Saturday at the home of John Mackley, two miles west of Farmers Corner in Burley. The meeting is open to the public.

Neil Lewis, Rupert, is being director of the association and Larry Bresson, Paul, secretary. The merged group will hold elections Saturday.

His 10-year-old daughter will soon grind the lens for a four and a quarter-inch telescope. "The stars seem like friends," said Bresson of his nightly hours of watching.

Many amateur astronomers have smaller scopes and spend much of their time watching variable stars that change in brightness over a period of time. Bresson said amateurs perform 99 per cent of the useful observations on variable stars, turning those observations over to professionals who produce valuable calculations.

He cited the five million amateur astronomers having more flexibility than the rigid program, including under the 200 to 300 professional observations operate.

Bresson pointed out that 70 per cent of the major break-throughs in astronomy are due to amateur observations. He said 90 per cent of the comets and novas are discovered by amateur astronomers and these discoveries related to professionals.

The Moonwatch project for tracking artificial satellites ended about six months ago. The federal government estimated it saved $15 billion by relying on the work of amateurs.

The newly merged Southern Idaho groups plan to develop a format that will introduce young people to astronomy.

The association has a large collection of astronomical subjects. It develops programs for presentation at schools. Bresson said he has delivered lectures on astronomy at several schools.

Owners challenge players to negotiate all salaries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Executive Director Ed Garvey today said the pro football players union would "consider" an owner challenge that the union negotiate salaries for every individual member, but the proposition was certain to be rejected resoundingly by the players and superstars such as Joe Namath.

Garvey, whose union has been trying to negotiate a general contract with the owners for nearly 20 months, was highly cautious of the proposal made at a congressional hearing Thursday by Theodore Kheel, attorney for the NFL Management Council.

"We'd consider it if the owners would show us the individual contracts," Garvey said after the hearing by a House Labor subcommittee on the long sports labor dispute. "But we'd have to see them and the owners have always refused to give us any information on individual salaries."

No immediate legislative action is in sight by the House group headed by Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., but said he has been in touch with chief federal mediator William J. Usery Jr., who has been trying to achieve a pro football peace between the owners and Garvey's NFL Players Association since early 1974.

Kheel also predicted that if the Rozelle Rule governing free agent compensation is softened by the owners, "every player will become a Cashfish Hunter." In seeking exorbitant long term contracts, Hunter signed a multi-million dollar contract with the New York Yankees after the American League ace's contract with the Oakland A's was declared invalid.

Kheel voted about that a contract could be reached unless the union begins bargaining on individual salaries rather than on a general minimum pay as at present.

"My definite, positive conclusion is that the only way for collective bargaining to work is for this union to accept the responsibility of every other union and negotiate salaries for all its members," the veteran labor attorney said.

He suggested that such bargaining could set a general salary range for various positions with adjustments for length of service and being selected on all-pro teams.

"It would probably mean that Namath wouldn't get $450,000," Kheel said, "but it would mean a lot of players would get more."

He said also that the NFLPA's refusal to negotiate on the Rozelle Rule pending the outcome of a series of law suits was "a major hangup" to settlement of the contract dispute which has already triggered two pre-season strike actions on the pro football field.

Sargent March, Executive Director of the Management Council, testified that "a major impediment to constructive collective bargaining is the union's present leadership."

"The fact is that neither this committee, the Management Council, the media, nor the members of the union can ever confidently rely on this leadership's public or private statements," Karch asserted.

Of the prospect of special legislation to speed up the handling of disputes, he said: "Let me state at the outset that the NFL Management Council has no fear of expedited decision making by the NLRB."

"So many of the NFLPA unfair labor practice charges have been without substance, with the union maximizing the publicity concerning the charges for long drawn out periods, that any speed in handling will be welcomed." But we don't think the players association representatives have been candid with the subcommittee for the reasons for such delays," Karch said. "In fact we are of the view that the union's leadership has arrived at a stage where accuracy in public expressions is viewed by them as largely irrelevant."

Reds 3-2 favorites over Pittsburgh

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds, anxious to get back to serious business after finishing their division almost 12 months ago, are slight favorites to win the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National League playoffs beginning Saturday.

Nevada oddsmakers list the Reds as a 3-2 choice in the best of five game series.

Cincinnati clinched the National League West on Sept. 21, the earliest a league title has ever been wrapped up, and went on to win a club record 108 games.

"I'd be worried about losing our momentum if we'd just gone through the series the last month," explained Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson. "We had a

Two shoot 65s to lead Kaiser open

NAPA, Calif. (UPI) — La Jolla, Calif., neighbors Chuck Courtney, playing his best golf of the season the last two weeks, and Gene Litterer, putting the cap on the floss of his long career, shot matching seven under par 65s Thursday for a share of the first round lead in the $175,000 Kaiser International Open golf tournament.

Courtney, who almost quit the tour a month ago because of frustration, finished in a tie for ninth in the Sahara at Las Vegas last week and in his opening round here, he had six birdies and one eagle and one bogey on a card of 30-55.

The veteran Litterer, winner of three tournaments, ties this year and 1973, had eight birdies and one bogey on a card of 32-53.

They led them a stroke ahead of Bobby Wadkins, a second year pro from Richmond, Va., who had five birdies, an eagle and a bogey on a card of 33-53.

Larry Nelson, a 28-year-old pro from Acworth, Ga., who took up the game seven years ago, was all alone at 67 after bagging five birdies for a 33-54 card.

Defending champion Johnny Miller was in a group at four under 68 while Jack Nicklaus, who leads the money chase this year with $291,849 after winning five tournament titles, opened with an even-par 72.

Boston would like series of 12 games

BOSTON (UPI) — A maximum of five games will be needed to decide the American League champion. But it would take a dozen games played in many days to determine whether Boston or Oakland is the better team, according to Red Sox Manager Davey Johnson.

"You'd have to play every game for 10 to 12 days to decide which team was the best because then each team would have to use their fourth and fifth starters, everyone in the bullpen and their whole bench. That would be the perfect way to determine it," Johnson said Thursday.

"It's a short series you don't get to see the extra starter or the entire bench very often."

Johnson's job, however, will be to win the short series that begins Saturday afternoon at Fenway Park. The Red Sox will open with righthander Luis Tiant against Oakland lefty Ken Holtzman. In another right vs. left duel Sunday, Reggie Cleveland is scheduled to face Vida Blue.

If Holtzman falls behind in the first game, he might be lifted in favor of Blue, according to Manager Alvin Dark.

"I'll do anything I can to win the first game of a short series," said Dark.

Wilt must play for LA, NBA chief says

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien Thursday said if Wilt Chamberlain wants to return to the basketball court, it will have to be in the uniform of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Chamberlain, who has not played in two years, set out his option year with the Lakers; he later coached the San Diego Condors in the American Basketball Association. Under NBA rules, a player must play out his option year rather than sit it out as Chamberlain did.

It appears, however, that Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke is "not interested" in having Chamberlain play for the Lakers and the Lakers have warned Chamberlain to stay away from their camp or risk being "embarrassed."

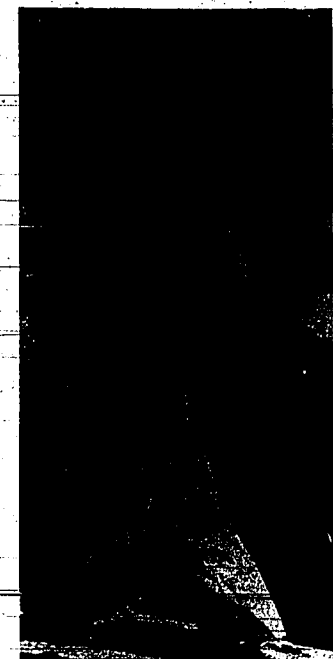

The Lakers continue to own the rights to Chamberlain under the heavily criticized NBA option clause but have refused to pay him his $450,000 salary that was in effect under the contract.

O'Brien ruled late Thursday that Chamberlain is still under contract to the Lakers. If Chamberlain decides to report to the Lakers camp, O'Brien continued, the Lakers must live up to their end of the contract. If the two sides failed to reach an agreement among themselves, O'Brien indicated, he would step in and review the situation.

San Diego claims Douglass on waivers

CHICAGO (UPI) — Quarterback Bobby Douglas went to the San Diego Chargers on waivers Thursday. The Chicago Bears received a $100 waiver price for the player who had been expected to lead them into contention in the National Football League.

Douglass said he believed the abrupt transfer to San Diego could hurt the Bears since they would be taking a chance on Huff not getting hurt.

"I would have been content to stay as backup quarterback," he said.

He said the Bears suggested he might play another position and that he told them "we can talk about it."

"I'm not happy with the change and I don't think they're happy. Let's just hope it benefits everybody. I know it's going to benefit me.

"If they have some problems I think they can be hurt and, let's face it, they didn't get that much in return for me. They could have gained a much more."

Douglass said he would report to the Chargers Thursday night but would continue to make his home in Chicago.

"That conference occurred Tuesday. Wednesday morning, Douglas was notified he had been placed on waivers."

"I never was immune to the boos in Chicago," he said. "But certainly they disturbed me at times. What the people apparently don't know is that I tried as hard as anyone to win. I would like to question why some reporters and people showed so much personal hatred towards me. I certainly

Downstream migrant survival increases

More steelhead and chinook smolts are surviving the gauntlet of dams between Idaho and the Pacific, making the 1975 survival rate an improvement over 1974. Estimated survival of steelhead from Lower Granite to The Dalles Dam was 42 per cent this year, the highest survival rate since 1969, the Department of Fish and Game reports.

Survival on chinook salmon was 25 per cent, and most of these fish were wild stocks. The department said the lower survival rate for chinook might be connected to the high number of hatchery chinook 60 per cent — in the out-migration.

Hatchery fish, reared in a very controlled environment, may not be able to withstand the shock of a series of unimproved dams as well as wild fish do. As dams are altered to improve fish passage, survival of hatchery fish should improve, the department said.

Several factors contributed to the high survival of steelhead and native chinook in this year's outmigration: — Favorable rainfall resulted in less delay for the fish and lower death rates in turbines. — Reduced power loading at Lower Monumental Dam. Through most of the out-migration about 80 per cent of the water and fish passed over the spill. Losses of fish through spillways are about five per cent. — Reduced generator capacity at Lower Granite. Only one turbine was operating during most of the outmigration. — Turbine screening at Lower Granite and Little Goose diverted about 1.5 million fingerlings out of the turbine intakes. — Reduced nitrogen supersaturation and fish loss from gas bubble disease in the Snake River. "Flippers" in operation at Lower Granite and Lower Monumental dams significantly reduced nitrogen levels below those dams. — Higher survival of steelhead smolts released from Dworshak Hatchery than in 1974. — This year fisheries agencies worked with dam owners to control flows at critical times for the fish.

Homecoming begins

Girls' football, tricycle racing and a bonfire kicked off Twin Falls homecoming celebration Thursday night. The senior girls defeated the Juniors 27-7 in the powderpuff flag football event. Highlight of the occasion comes Friday night when the Bruins entertain the Meridian Warriors in a Southern Idaho Conference battle at Bruin Field. Homecoming floats and crowning of royalty, plus a march-drill musical extravaganza, will be held at halftime.

outdoors

By STU MURRELL
Regional Staff Conservationist
The duck season in southern Idaho will open October 4 at one-half hour before sunrise and will end at sunset each day through January 11 in the Columbian Basin mallard counties.

The forecast is for an excellent flight from the Canadian prairies, and the daily bag limit has been increased to seven ducks per day with a possession limit of 14.

Goose season will open on October 11 in southern Idaho and run until December 14 east of Highway 93, and December 22 west of the highway. Daily bag limit is three geese per day, of which not more than two can be Canada geese.

Idaho has had five good waterfowl seasons in a row with over 500,000 ducks harvested annually. The bag was an estimated 634,700 in 1974, based on hunter questionnaires. This was 28 per cent above the long-term average of 494,900. The excellent duck production is a real success story and shows what hunters have done to preserve duck habitat through duck stamp purchases and other hunters' unlimited contributions.

There will be a special goose census conducted in Region 4 just prior to opening day, according to Gary Will, Region Game Manager. This is the first time a pre-season census has been undertaken in the Region, and Gary hopes to have an estimate of the numbers available to goose hunters.

Carl Nellis, Big Game

Research Biologist, has been monitoring radio-collared fawns in the South Hills this spring. There are five fawns remaining from the original eleven collared with the special radio transmitters designed to change signals when they die.

Of the six lost, two were abandoned by the doe, probably due to disturbance caused by the tagging operation. The radio transmitter failed on another, so it could not be tracked. One fawn was killed by a cougar and two by unknown causes. One of the animals which died from an unknown cause was finally eaten by a coyote and could possibly have been a coyote or cougar kill. This information is based on a limited sample, but it appears that no one factor is a serious mortality problem with fawns in the Rock Creek area south of Twin Falls.

Another year or two of additional tagging should give a better picture of the average losses and their causes.

There were two fawns for every doe observed this spring and a 50 per cent loss after the hunting season would place numbers at about one fawn for every doe. Our herd composition counts last January were very close to this figure.

Nellis stated it is vitally important to our management program to have hunters turn in any collars or ear tag numbers from deer they bag. Checking stations will be set up for the first five days of the season and will collect collars or tags from deer taken in various areas of the Region.

Rookie rejects $250,000 pact

VANCOUVER (UPI) — One week was enough for 20-year old Robin Sader as a professional hockey player. And now he's walked away from a $250,000 contract with the Montreal Canadiens and wants to become a fireman. "The money just wasn't that important," he said Thursday. "I can be happier doing other things even if they don't pay as much. And that's the main thing."

Fans want refund

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — There was a rush to the New Orleans Saints ticket windows Thursday, but not the kind the team wanted to see. A number of season ticket holders, disgusted by the team's 0-2 record, moved on the team offices to obtain refunds based on a television sportscaster's announcement of a refund offer Wednesday night. Saints spokesmen said it was not a legitimate offer. "We did not put out any such announcement," said Harry Holmes, Saints vice president.

Milwaukee school reprimanded

MISSION, Kan. (UPI) — The NCAA reprimanded the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and placed the school on one year's probation without sanctions Thursday for violations in its basketball program. The NCAA said the school's athletic teams will be eligible for postseason competition since no sanctions were applied. The probation was dated Sept. 19, 1975.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 4, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to take no chances but to make a special point to coordinate your efforts with others so you can handle duties requiring your undivided attention.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Try to avoid arguments—with allies—today or it could firm into something serious. Make sure to keep your mind.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Get busy at the work ahead of you without relying so much on others. Do something thoughtful for a good friend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Be content with simple pleasures that do not cost much. More thoughtfulness of mate brings more happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Being more considerate at home increases harmony in that important realm. Strive for happiness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23): Make sure you listen to ideas of associates and try to cooperate with them more. Speak more clearly and concisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22): If you are too extravagant now, you find you jeopardize your present comfortable position. Improve your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Study yourself sensibly and know how to improve yourself, healthwise and careerwise. Concentrate on the important.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Not a good day for investigating so get busy attending to necessary duties. Lend a helping hand to a good friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Strive clear of an individual who never fails to either bring trouble or be in trouble. Be logical.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Listen to what higher-ups have to say and follow their ideas to the letter. Show increased devotion to mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Spend time looking into the facts and costs of a new project before getting yourself involved. Use common sense.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Your hunches are not working as accurately now as usual—so don't follow them. Use your finest judgment instead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be eager to get along with others but if too many favors are extended, it could lead to trouble. There is a precisionist in this chart, so send to the finest schools. Give ethical training early in life.

what's what

L. M. Boyd

Do you know at what time of day or night you were born? Theory is spreading that your birth sets your physical clocks to ticking, thus determining at the outset whether you were to be a day or a night person. If you were born around dawn, you're thought to do your best work in the early morning. But if you were born in the late afternoon, you're not expected to perk up really until the evening. Or so goes the notion.

ODD-COINCIDENCE: This: That John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, the only two presidents to sign the Declaration of Independence, died on the same day, namely on the anniversary of that Declaration, July 4, 1826.

BLUE MOON

Where'd we get the phrase, "once in a blue moon"? A volcano kicked ash into the sky over Java back in 1833. And the moon, shining through it, looked blue. Rare sight. That's where.

STATISTICALLY, the backseats in a car are three times as safe as the front seats, please note.

STILL HARD to get it through my head that Mexico City and Rio de Janeiro are just about the same distance from New York City.

EMPEROR JULIAN of Old Rome decreed that all freight wagons be moved at night only. Citing this ancient solution to some traffic trouble, a few lawmakers intermittently consider legislation to "force" long-haul trucks likewise to drive only at night. Idiots.

ACTORS

You knew that actor David Niven used to lumberjack in Canada, didn't you? That James Caan got his start by carrying quarters of beef around a meat market? That Sebastian Cabot once chauffeured a London limousine? That Clint Eastwood never spent more than one semester in the same school? That Glenn Ford was born Guyllan Ford, but eventually named himself after his father's Canadian birthplace, a little Quebec town called Glenford?

WHAT, the knock-knock jokes are back? So a juvenile today reports. It was 1935, I believe, when they first popped up. Then there was a revival of them about 10 years ago. Last one that comes to mind went: "Knock-knock. 'Who's there?' 'Highway cop.' 'Highway cop who?' 'Highway cop every morning with a headache.'"

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market opened higher Friday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average was up 1.59 to 800.14 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, crossing the tape.

Just as the market opened, the first National City Bank of New York announced it would leave its prime rate at 8 percent. This followed Federal Reserve Board reports late Thursday the nation's money supply declined $1.1 billion in the latest report.

Demands at New York's leading banks declined by $7 million.

After the market closed Thursday, Moody's Investor's Service lowered its rating on New York State's general obligation bonds to AA from AA-.

Other than that, the rating service said New York City's problems were proving to be drag on the state.

The market rallied Thursday afternoon when State Controller Arthur J. Levitt agreed voluntarily to contribute state employee pension funds to a $2.5 billion program to help New York City.

CHICAGO — Up the limit. That's where most Maline and Idaho potato futures ended Thursday.

The May delivery of Idaho russets closed at 13.75 per hundredweight after a 50-cent advance.

Commodity News-Service said all months except November among Maline potatoes closed with 50 point limit gains on bullish fervor generated by Maline's short crop, delays in harvesting due to rain, and the threat of cold weather damaging the unharvested crop.

Volume of 3,788 lots was limited because most months were locked out. May reached a new life of contract high of 18.65, only about 50 cents short of the all time high in 1973.

Live cattle closed lower after an erratic trading day, with unimpressive fundamentals such as heavy receipts, a large kill and falling live and dressed prices.

Nearby October's steady tone gave way under back-months pressure. December lost 25 cents. There was a rebound in the live market.

Wednesday's gains, prices in every delivery declining from 7.9 to 5 cents on an estimated volume of 18,000 contracts. December closed at 300.80, down 850 points.

More profit taking produced losses in New York gold, which closed with declines of 70 cents to 1.10 in a less active trading day. The closing price for December was 143.40, an 80 cent drop. Traded total 1,387 contracts.

191 points, oil was mostly 50 to 70 lower and meat was down 3.00 to almost 5.00.

Disillusioned longs, weary of dragging dealings between the U.S. and the Soviet Union liquidated their positions in wheat, forcing two options down the limit. Wheat futures dived 17 to 20 cents as a result.

Export reports included purchases by the Philippines, Brazil and Israel. Chicago cash basis was unchanged at 15 cents under December for hard winter and 20 under for soft red. Gulf basis for hard wheat ranged from 2 down to 1 up 20 to 26 over Kansas City.

BC elects 1st woman

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade Corp. announced today election of its first woman to the firm's board of directors.

She is Anne Armstrong, former counselor to President Nixon and a member of the Cabinet. Mrs. Armstrong served the President from February 1973 to December 1974.

As a counselor to the President, Mrs. Armstrong was responsible for advising him on several areas of national policy and coordinating the federal effort on the American Revolution Bicentennial. New Federalism, women, youth and Hispanic American.

She also was a member of the Domestic Council, the Cost of Living Council, the council on Wage and Price Stability, the commission on the Organization of Government for the Conduct of Federal Policy and chairman of the Federal Property Council.

During 1971-72, Mrs. Armstrong served as co-chairman of the Republican National Committee. She was secretary of the 1972 Republican National Convention and the first woman keynoter of a major party convention.

Volume of 3,788 lots was limited because most months were locked out. May reached a new life of contract high of 18.65, only about 50 cents short of the all time high in 1973.

Live cattle closed lower after an erratic trading day, with unimpressive fundamentals such as heavy receipts, a large kill and falling live and dressed prices.

Nearby October's steady tone gave way under back-months pressure. December lost 25 cents. There was a rebound in the live market.

Similar factors weakened corn, which ended the session 9 1/2 to 10 cents lower except for distant September, which closed 4 1/2 cents off. Chicago cash basis was nominally 2 cents higher, 1 1/2 under December for boxcars and hoppers. Gulf cash basis for railcars was off 3 cents at 40 under December.

A featureless session left world sugar futures .45 cent to 25 cent down on a trade of 25 contracts. Sugar futures were down 45 cent after 32 sales. The world spot price was raised 2 cent to 14.4 cents a pound. The domestic spot was also up 2 cent at 16 cents a pound.
