Nixon skirted 'Gate indictments

Oregon cops know 'Two' names

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — An Oregon State Police investigator today identified the mysterious "Two," the couple who lured at least two dozen persons from Oregon in search of a higher life through metamorphosis and a ride into the heavens aboard a UFO.

The couple was identified as Marshall Herff Applewhite, 44, and Bonnie Lu Trusdal Nettles, 48, by Melvin Gibson, criminal investigator for the Oregon State Police at Newport on the Oregon coast.

New source

NEW YORK (UPI) — South African heart transplant specialist Dr. Christian Barnard told a news conference at the United Nations he is experimenting with baboons as donors for cardiac patients.

A drawback, he said, is that baboon organs sometimes contain a virus which doesn't harm the baboon but is fatal to humans. So far, no baboon hearts have been used in human implants.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Twice last year Watergate prosecutors nearly indicted Richard Nixon.

First impeachment proceedings headed them off and finally they were stopped by President Ford's pardon.

The prosecutors said in their 277-page final report Wednesday that they felt they were on firm legal ground both times, but were not sure an indictment of Nixon while he was still president would be upheld by the Supreme Court.

Although the Watergate prosecutors' office will remain in business to handle appeals and perhaps one or two new cases of a minor nature, the work is generally done, the report said. It detailed 63 men indicted, 53 men convicted, 19 corporations guilty of illegal campaign contributions.

(Related stories, p. 6)

The prosecutors said some of the evidence they presented to grand juries — including Nixon's sworn statement — will remain sealed since it did not lead to criminal action. It would be unfair to those named in the evidence to have the material released without chance for rebuttal in court, they said.

Some major investigations did not lead to criminal action for lack of presentable evidence. The prosecutors said they could not unravel the 18 1/2-minute gap on a crucial White House tape, nor find evidence of illegality in the $100,000 billonaire Howard Hughes gave to Nixon friend Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

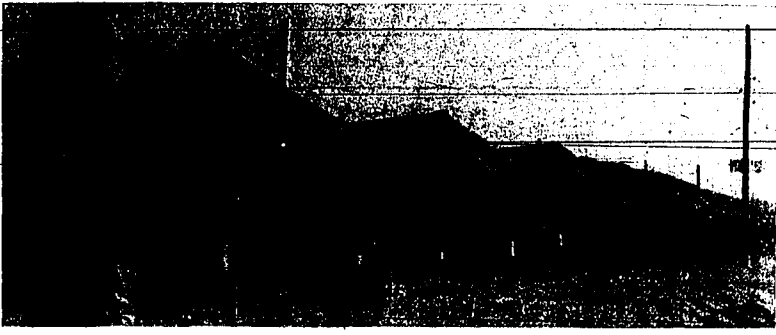

There was evidence, they said, that transcripts of White House tapes given to the House in the impeachment investigation had been doctored to alter to remove evidence damaging to Nixon. But criminal liability for the deletions could not be ascertained.

One matter still pending, prosecutors said, is the charge that the ambassadorship to Luxembourg was sold to Ruth Farkas for a $300,000 Nixon campaign contribution.

For the first time in the two and a half year investigation of the nation's worst political scandal, the report made clear that Nixon twice was on the brink of indictment.

Tents come down

A MARINE walks past a row of empty tents at Camp Pendleton, Calif., where the "tent cities" which housed thousands of Vietnamese refugees are being taken down. The refugees are being transferred to Ft. Chaffee, Ark., for the winter. Some, like Huynh Thi Phuong, right, had to decide whether to stay in the United States or return to Saigon. She joined her husband, Hung, a pharmacist, in returning to Vietnam. (UPI)

Fed sets creditor bias ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board made some concessions to the complaints of women's groups today in announcing final compromise regulations prohibiting creditors from discriminating against applicants because of sex or marital status.

The final rules, which ended a lengthy tug-of-war between the interests of creditors and women, were written and revised twice this year to implement the Equal Credit Opportunity Act that goes into effect Oct. 22.

The biggest compromise in the final regulations was a provision requiring creditors to explain the reasons for denying credit to an applicant who requests such an explanation. The explanation does not have to be in writing.

The first proposed regulations issued by the Federal Reserve Board April 23 required a written statement of reasons for denial. But another draft published Sept. 9 dropped that requirement, prompting a cry of outrage from congresswomen and women's groups.

The final regulations also conceded partially to the women's complaints by stating that a creditor cannot — — inquire into the birth control or child bearing intentions of an applicant or assume that because a woman is of child-bearing age she may soon quit her job.

— Disallow earnings from a part time job when they are assessing an applicant's ability to repay a loan, but may consider whether the job will continue until the loan is paid.

The Federal Reserve Board also partially yielded to the demands of business women by placing business loans under many of the provisions of the act. Applicants for business loans, however, are not entitled to an explanation if the application is denied.

Inmate dies in Jersey pen brawl

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — One inmate was killed and at least six seriously wounded today during a brawl in a classroom at Trenton State Prison, authorities reported.

The inmate, who was not immediately identified, was dead on arrival at the St. Francis Medical Center, according to a city police spokesman.

Giscard-Brezhnev meet called off

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France went sightseeing in Kiev today, leaving Moscow baffled by the unexplained cancellation of two expected meetings with Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Though the two leaders crossed swords this week over ideology, Western diplomats were reluctant to impute any sinister motives to the decision and said it was possibly no more than a change of schedule.

Pinto beans vanish

BURLEY — Has anyone seen 15,000 pounds of missing pinto beans? The Cassia County sheriff's office is asking that question today after David Jarolimek, Burley farmer, reported an unusual theft this morning.

The farmer told officers he loaded beans into bins on a farm truck Wednesday evening. He was planning to take them to a warehouse this morning. Upon returning to the field this morning, he found the bins empty.

Someone apparently worked up a sweat last night shoveling beans into another vehicle.

The Jarolimek farm is located southwest of Burley. Officers said the loss would probably run about $3,000 to Jarolimek. All bean warehouses in the area were being notified today to be on the lookout for the beans and to call their sheriff's office if offered a truck load of pintos from an unknown driver.

Port of entry officials have also been asked to check vehicles attempting to leave the state with the missing beans.

Search for missing pair continues

TWIN FALLS — Ground crews, helicopters and aircraft continued to search today for the plane of Del Storey and Ted Dellogg, presumed down in California's mountainous Kings Canyon area.

Rescuers had hoped to locate the downed craft Wednesday after an extremely strong signal was received Tuesday, but had no luck.

They were not able to receive the signal during search efforts Wednesday. Storey, 43, and Dellogg, 18, were first reported missing six days ago.

Wednesday, an 8-member mountain rescue team packed into the snowy canyon area which rescuers have identified as the "primary search area." The team, equipped with supplies and overnight gear, will stay in until we find them," according to Tom Shaffer, public information officer for the Fresno, Calif., Civil Air Patrol.

More than 10 persons from Twin Falls, Boise and other areas have been at the search center in Fresno. Friends of Storey, they are taking part in rescue efforts and air searches of the area.

Sheldon Slagel, Storey's co-pastor at the Christian Center, returned last night from the area. He said he plans to fly back to California as soon as any solid leads are found.

"We're still sitting here waiting. As soon as we hear something, we'll be back," Slagel said.

Waiting for news is difficult, Slagel said. "It's almost a nightmare. One time you're real excited, and then you're despondent."

Slagel said he had been hopeful that the two men would be located Wednesday, but searchers met with little luck.

Aircraft searching the area today are proceeding "strictly on air visibility" with no aid from a signal. Shaffer said. The planes are making a sweep search, covering every portion of the primary search area, he added.

Storey and Dellogg were returning to Twin Falls from Tulare in central California when their twin-engine Cessna 310 was last on radar at about 9,000 feet.

Guerrillas kill 2

BUNOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Italian executive Rinaldo Dalbosco and an Argentine police bodyguard were killed by machine gun fire today by unidentified terrorists who intercepted Dalbosco's car a few blocks from his home in Buenos Aires suburb.

The identity of the murderers was not known but renegade leftists of the Peronist movement have threatened a bloodbath to disrupt the return to presidential duties of President Isabel Peron. Terrorist bombs damaged two military facilities today just hours after she returned from a month's rest cure in the mountains.

Sedate wear

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Movie Actress Edy Williams, 33, noted for her camera-attracting costumes in public and her unclad roles in movies, was attired in sedate fashion Wednesday when she appeared at a court hearing on a divorce petition.

Her estranged husband, sex movie producer Russ Meyer, 52, filed for divorce late in 1974. He obtained a restraining order forbidding his wife to shoot him or use any dangerous weapon against him.

Anti-Zionism resolution due in UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Twenty Arab nations backed by Cuba, Guinea, and Afghanistan have won approval to introduce a resolution into the General Assembly declaring Zionism a form of racism.

The General Assembly's Social, Humanitarian and Cultural Committee accepted the resolution for debate Wednesday by a vote of 75 to 22, with 26 abstentions, after three hours of procedural wrangling.

13th Spanish officer faces trial

MADRID (UPI) — The number of military officers facing trial on charges of sedition rose to 13 today with the publication of a warrant for the arrest of Air Force Capt. Jose Ignacio Dominguez.

Dominguez, 39, is believed to have fled abroad. Political sources said he has written letters to fellow officers from Italy and West Germany, and recently met with newsmen in France. The order, published in the Official State Bulletin, said Dominguez was wanted in connection with action against 12 other military officers arrested in the past 2 1/2 months. They have been charged with conspiracy to commit sedition.

Wallace keeps 3rd party line open

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace declined today to rule out the possibility that he might run as a third-party candidate in the 1976 U.S. presidential elections. But he said the possibility of his running on a joint ticket with former California Gov. Ronald Reagan "would be out" since if Wallace decides to enter the race it will be in the Democratic primaries and Reagan has said he intends to stay in the Republican party.

Prize winner

AMONG THREE Americans sharing the Nobel Prize for medicine is David Baltimore, 37, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The others are Howard Martin Temin, 41, and Renato Dulbecco, 61. The Carlin Institute said in awarding their prize their work is a "giant step" in cancer research. (Story, p. 2) (UPI)

By DAVID HORSMAN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Are nuclear power plants safe?

Is there no danger of a dreaded "melt down," where the nuclear core overheats and releases deadly radioactive vapors?

The experts, at least, disagree. Carl Hoevar, a mechanical engineer who once worked on federal nuclear projects, claims the government cannot guarantee "potentially catastrophic accidents" will not occur. He does not say they will happen, only that past research and computer calculations are not sufficient to settle the issue either way.

On the other hand, Dr. Herbert Kouts, chief of research for the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC), says the dangers are so minimal that they can be discounted. "I don't think anything is absolutely safe," Dr. Kouts said Wednesday. "I can't prove that a reactor isn't going to hit me as I sit here."

"I have paid a lot of attention to the calculations that were done to support" the operating licenses for the nation's 55 commmercial power plants, he said, "and I have great confidence in them."

Those calculations are the thing that Hoevar challenges when he says, "The computer predictions are based on uncertain assumptions and simplifications rather than on realistic, experimentally verified analysis."

Hoevar last year quit his job at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL) to join the Union of Concerned Scientists in Cambridge, Mass., a privately-funded organization that has been highly critical of federal nuclear energy projects.

During his seven years at the INEL, Hoevar helped develop the computer prediction methods used by the government in licensing nuclear power plants. In a recent technical study, Hoevar claims tests carried out this year at the INEL "raise no doubts about the safety of nuclear power plants with regard to potentially catastrophic accidents."

The tests show "that there may be serious errors in the federal government's official computer predictions of the control ability of major nuclear plant accidents," he charges. Contacted Wednesday by telephone, Hoevar said he learned of the INEL tests through "preliminary reports" filed at the NRC office in Washington and by "talking with those that performed the tests" at the INEL.

The "tests," made in May and August, amounted to a series of runs in which the semi-scale apparatus, basically a model of LOFT (Loss of Fluid-Test) was operated with an electrically-heated core, which was used to simulate a nuclear core," Hoevar said.

During a "simulated accident" in the tests, "the temperatures of the fuel rod cladding... was several hundred degrees higher than the computer predictions," he said. Put simply, the government was not able to pre-judge the results of an intentional accident, according to Hoevar. This is critical, he says, because the government uses computer predictions in determining how much and what type of safety equipment is required on commercial nuclear plants. (Continued on p. 17)

Nixon skirted 'Gate indictments twice

The first time was in early 1974, when prosecutors learned from the March 21, 1973, tape that he had extensive knowledge of the cover-up activities.
"The question of the President's indelibility resulted in intense debate among members of the special prosecutor's staff," the report said. "It was agreed to be on basis for concluding that an incumbent president is immune from the ordinary process of criminal law."
But prosecutor Leon Jaworski concluded the Supreme Court might not uphold such an indictment, and the whole process would seriously delay the impeachment proceedings. So instead the grand jury named Nixon an unindicted co-conspirator in the cover-up.

When Nixon resigned last August, there was no longer a constitutional question involved, and prosecutors rekindled the indictment discussion. They decided to delay legal action until the cover-up jury was sequestered. On Sept. 8, Ford's pardon halted their plans.
The experience left prosecutors to ask

Congress in the report to pass a constitutional amendment—clarifying whether an incumbent president can be indicted for criminal acts. They did not say which way they felt the matter should be clarified.

Other highlights of the report:
— Prosecutors cooperated fully with the House impeachment investigation, turning over documents and leads.
— After top Nixon associates John Mitchell, H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and Robert C. Marland were convicted in the cover-up trial, prosecutors gave strong consideration to indicting two other unnamed persons. But the report said "evidentiary and legal problems" prevented prosecution.

"Among other investigations that did not yield sufficient evidence for prosecution were alleged misuses of federal agencies, including the Internal Revenue Service, abuse of political demonstrators, break-ins at foreign embassies and wiretaps of government employees and journalists."
— Prosecutors anticipated the firing of prosecutor Archibald Cox in the "Saturday night massacre" two years ago. For a week they had been photocopying vital documents and secreting them in a bank safe deposit box.

— Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson, who resigned rather than follow Nixon's order to fire Cox, had sought in preceding months to limit the scope of the Cox investigation.
— The prosecutors said that, in the future, campaign managers or other officials should not become attorney general after election day.

Splashy arrival

ATTLEBORO, Mass. (UPI) — The spotlights were on Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., but a reporter made the biggest splash.

Lester C. Boyd of the Providence, R.I., Journal-Bulletin walked into a news conference at the home of C. Robert Yeager and promptly fell into the family's indoor swimming pool.

Hoffa denies tale

DETROIT (UPI) — The son of missing former Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa says he answered his telephone several days after his father's disappearance and heard a man's voice say, "You're next."

However, James P. Hoffa denied a copyrighted article in the Detroit News Wednesday which said that he told the FBI he thought the call came from Charles "Chucky" O'Brien, the elder Hoffa's self-described foster son.

"I did receive a threatening call several days after my father disappeared," Hoffa said in a prepared statement. "I do not know who the caller was to this date. I never told the FBI or any other law enforcement agency that Mr. O'Brien was the caller."

O'Brien became a central figure in the Hoffa case when it was learned that he was in the vicinity of the suburban DETROIT restaurant where Hoffa mysteriously vanished July 30.

O'Brien is now an organizer for Hoffa's successor and rival, Frank Fitzsimmons.

Young Hoffa said he told the FBI only that he received a call at his suburban Troy home several days after his father disappeared. He said the caller said "You're next" and hung up.

Cancer, genetics work significant

BOSTON (UPI) — The work of the three Nobel Medicine Prize winners was significant in both the field of genetics and cancer.

Howard Martin Temin, David Baltimore and Renato Dulbecco were cited for pioneering work showing that viruses can, under some conditions, cause leukemia and tumors in mice and chickens.

In particular, Temin professed a "provirus" theory in 1964, dealing with the fundamental building blocks of life, Deoxyribonucleic acid, DNA, and Ribonucleic Acid, RNA.
These two genetic materials are interrelated, with DNA usually serving as a template for "creation of RNA. DNA is the material from which genes and chromosomes are made. Chromosomes in a cell tell it what kind of proteins to produce.

Rock Creek funding due

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Federal funds for the project to clean-up and beautify Rock Creek Canyon should be released within the next week or so, according to the city's community development director.

LaMar Orton said the city has completed an environmental assessment of the Rock Creek area and will apply for release of funds to clean-up the canyon. The $120,000 first-year grant for Rock Creek development was approved on the condition the city determine what effect the project would have on the environment.

The Rock Creek project is only part of a $700,000 five-year community development plan, in Twin Falls. Other portions of the project involve rehabilitation of existing housing and removal of deteriorated homes.

Most of the redevelopment funding is going to the Rock Creek project. Money will be used to clear the canyon of debris, stagnant pools and provide public parks and bike trails.

Another use for the funds will be purchase canyon bottomlands and rim land. The rim lands are intended for use as a housing development.

In his environmental assessment Orton found the project "would not significantly (affect) the quality of the human environment." With this determination, the federal government should be satisfied with the environmental assessment and not require an environmental impact study, Orton said.

The purpose of the project is to "realize... the potential of the canyon as a natural amenity," and to "meet increasing demand for open space and more outdoor recreation." Also, the plan is to "provide more housing in a suitable environment for persons of low and moderate income."

Orton, in the introduction to the assessment, writes, "Although Rock Creek Canyon is the most outstanding natural feature found within the Twin Falls area, it has never been viewed by the residents of the city as an amenity, but rather as a place along which some of the worst housing in the city was found and a place to dump garbage and even sewage."

Orton said today he hoped the development project of the canyon would help change people's views of the canyon.

Smoke pours from stack

SMOKE from the Amalgamated Sugar plant continued to blacken Magic Valley skies today. A plant official termed it a "serious problem" and referred to a possible boiler explosion hazard to explain the time it is taking to adjust the new air filters.

Smoke problems continue to plague sugar company

By GORDON JUDD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Dense black smoke continues to pour from the Amalgamated Sugar Factory here as workers try to adjust new air pollution control equipment.

An Amalgamated Sugar official said the repair work is made more difficult because of an "explosion hazard" in the factory's boilers.

"We haven't solved the problem yet," Ed Bulgin, factory superintendent said today.

"The problem is in the 'bag house filters' which have been installed by the Joy Division of Western Precipitation Co.," Bulgin said. "Their technical engineers are working with us and they will have to solve it. They are the manufacturer."

The filters, which are allowing the particles of smoke into the air are "like big vacuum cleaner bags," said Bulgin. He described them as 5 inch by 10 foot fiberglass cloth bags.

"The problem may continue intermittently for some time," Bulgin said. "A plan of action" agreed upon by Amalgamated Sugar and the representative of Western Precipitation has been put into effect to try to correct the problem, he said.

Bulgin said this plan had not yet brought about any noticeable improvement. "We have a serious situation here," he said.

"We have a piece of equipment (filters) hitched to an exhaust stack connected to a boiler that has a big explosion hazard," he said.

"We think we are working toward a solution which will really bring the situation under control," he said.

According to Bulgin there is every reason to believe Western Precipitation has the ability to remedy the problem. "They have made other similar installations without problems."

TFHS ties in land judging

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls High School tied for the top score in the fifth annual Idaho Land Judging contest in Durley Wednesday.

Both Twin Falls and Castleford scored 75 in FFA competition.

About 200 individual entries were in the contest, as well as an estimated 30-40 alternates.

Leaders of the Twin Falls and Castleford teams also tied for the top individual FFA score. Julie Carney of Twin Falls and Terry Gortnerman of Castleford earned 280 points each.

The Minicoke County A team, led by Pat Ward and Wayne Winkelman, won the 4-H competition with a 680 score.

Steve Sargent of Cassia County had a 300 for the top individual score. Ward had 245 and Winkelman 240 for second and third in 4-H individual competition.

Minicoke County's B team earned 585 points for third place in 4-H behind Cassia County's 650. John Gibson of Twin Falls tied for second with Darrel Empey, Driggs, and Allen Stastney, Valley. All had 255 points.

Parma, led by Doug Rueth, earned third place in the FFA team competition with 755 points. Jerome had 745 and West Minicoke Junior High School 720.

Rueth scored 275 for third place individually. Greg Mix, Jerome, and Lynn Chadwick, Filer, tied for fourth.

Woodcutters thin South Hills trees

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Woodcutting is big business this year in the south hills and Sawtooth National Forest officials are welcoming the lumbering operation because of the unending supply of dead trees.

Lewis Munson, ranger for the Twin Falls district, said "probably the highest cost of fuel and the publicized energy shortage has prompted persons with fireplaces to cut more wood. This year 1,641 permits have been issued compared to 942 for the entire season last year."

Munson said the Rocky Mountain pine beetle infestation in the area around the Magic Mountain ski resort, on Deadline Ridge and in other areas has created an abundance of wood for cutting.

Some commercial permits have also been issued to clear specific areas.

At the immediate top of the upper terminal of the ski resort's double chair lift, a commercial permit has resulted in cutting a large area of dead lodgepole pine. Some debris will have to be cleaned up next year but many of the trees have been removed.

Munson said the forest service is concentrating wood permits in the area of the ski lift, higher on Deadline Ridge and at the head of Trapper Creek. He said permits may cut standing trees or fallen timber, so long as it is dead.

"Last year we limited each permit to six cords of wood but this year we permit 10 per permit," Munson said.

He estimated the average permit results in the removal of about eight cords of wood.

Munson said permits are available at the Twin Falls Ranger District on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, and are free to the individual who is cutting wood for his or her own use. If the wood is to be cut for resale, a charge is made.

One clerk in the ranger office has had to devote nearly 100 per cent of his time to the woodcutting program this fall, but forest officials say they are anxious to see the dead trees cleared and the wood used.

O'Leary boiler steams

TWIN FALLS — A malfunction on the boiler at O'Leary Junior High School Wednesday morning resulted in a fire call but school officials and firemen found the "smoke" was actually "steam."

Principal Carl Snow said the automatic shut off on the boiler failed to function, causing the escape valve to open, sending steam and water into the basement area of the school.

He said the building was emptied in about one and one half minutes and when he and other officials went into the basement they found it full of steam. He said the fire department had been called but was not needed.

The boiler, he said, is old and repairs have been made. "There wasn't much damage. We have a clean wet basement and the children had another evacuation drill," Snow said.

He said the school has had two bomb threats and the boiler malfunction this month.

Justices to hear appeals

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Supreme Court justices began their third day of hearings here today with three appeals scheduled to be heard.

This morning arguments began in the appeal of Millers National Insurance Co. in the district court dismissal of its case against Richard E. Crippen, Edward F. Hillis, Harold D. Ward and Minidoka Seed Co. Inc.

Fifth District Judge Sherman Bellwood, Burley, dismissed the case in the lower court. The insurance company argues the defendants in the case are obligated to indemnify the insurance company for its losses arising under a contract for a bond between the parties.

Also on schedule for today were arguments in two other cases.

Owen Simpson, Ketchum, appealed a district court decision in which plaintiff, Rosemary K. Bradford, was awarded property abutting Big Wood River after the court found Simpson had trespassed on her property in changing the course of the river. The court awarded the plaintiff $46,462.89 in damages.

This afternoon the court was scheduled to hear the appeal of Joan Suter and the cross appeal of Max O. Suter, resulting from a divorce action and a property stipulation.

Q With words like "inflation" around, do words like "luxury performance, and economy" mean anything?

These days the word luxury is almost as inflated as the dollar. The fact is, the Audi 100LS actually is a luxury car at a reasonable price. Because of German engineering and craftsmanship the Audi handles easily and rides smoothly.

It's luxury because of the orthopedically designed seats that help prevent fatigue. And because of the legroom and headroom for a person well over 6 feet.

It's performance because of front-wheel drive, front disc brakes, rack-and-pinion steering, a synchromesh transmission and independent front suspension.

It's economy, 28 miles to the gallon on the highway.

"Luxury, performance and economy," in times like these? No question about it.

Hydro generator makes sense

Idaho Power should be supported in its proposal to install a fifth generator at Brownlee Dam. The 225,000-kilowatt unit would be used to generate power only during short periods of peak demand.

This kind of peak power generation is most valuable to the Idaho utility.

Idaho Power's load grows sharply during the summer months when irrigation pumping is at its peak.

Somehow, the utility must be able to provide enough power to supply the system during these periods.

One poor alternative is to build large coal-fired or nuclear plants for use during the peak period. Such a choice would produce the needed peak power, but at enormous cost.

But the hydroelectric unit proposed for Brownlee Dam is another matter. For a relatively low cost estimated at about $40 million, the utility would be able to meet an additional 225,000 kilowatts of peak summer demand.

The generator couldn't be used much because there usually is limited water flowing down the Snake River in the summer. But by saving the water for the peak periods the utility can meet its demands and save money.

Idaho Power should be encouraged to upgrade hydroelectric generation capacity all along its system of dams as an efficient way of meeting those troublesome periods of peak demand.

A school isn't a jail

Teachers with guns? According to the Chicago Daily News, teachers and other school officials in Gary, Indiana, have been authorized to carry firearms while on duty.

The policy follows the death of a student who was gunned down in a hallway Tuesday.

School officials, defending the guns-for-teachers policy, say guns are proliferating among students. "The problem in this community and others is that it's as easy to get a gun as it is to go to the library and check out a book," the Gary school superintendent says.

It must be next to impossible to teach or learn in such an armed camp. The teacher's function is warped into that of a guard. Any student interested in his studies likely becomes a victim of armed student toughs and fearful teacher-wardens.

The only learning to be found in such a place is how to survive in the jungle.

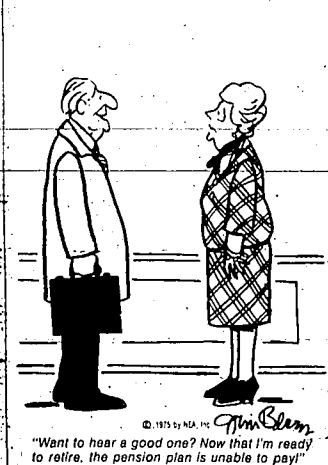

Perhaps it is time to rethink what a school is. It is not a jail designed to hold youthful menaces. A school is a place which can provide an opportunity for an interested student to develop intellectually and personally.

It may be time to consider schools as only one of many choices facing a teenager, not the only choice.

If a kid doesn't want to be in school and isn't getting anything from it, perhaps he should be allowed to do something else.

At the very least, the gun carrying delinquent should be kept out. And that job should be left to policemen, not teachers.

Congress blunders, digs another bottomless pit

WASHINGTON — The Congress blundered once more last week, when both chambers voted to override the President's veto of the School Lunch and Child Nutrition Act.

The veto should have been sustained. Both financially and philosophically, was one bottomless pit has just been dug.

The second bill (H.R. 4222), had enough in itself. The measure is still more ominous for what its enactment portends. Last week's decisive vote surely will encourage sponsors of the long-bushy "Child and Family Services Act" to seek action on their bill in the name of little children.

Under H.R. 4222, when now becomes law, the old familiar school lunch program will become bloated beyond recognition. The act deals with non-school food programs, with feeding programs for mothers, and with summer feeding programs. The act will make the school breakfast program permanent.

Under this measure, children from families of four, with incomes up to $9,770 will be eligible for subsidized meals.

No one knows how much H.R. 4222 will cost. The best estimate is $2.7 billion in the current fiscal year, roughly $1.2 billion above what the White House had recommended for such programs.

The question ought to have been asked years ago, and it should have been asked last week. How in the name of the Founding Fathers did the federal government get into the breakfast business? Does the Constitution impose no limits upon the legislative powers of Congress?

Has the general welfare clause become a boundless reservoir in which the Tenth Amendment drowns? That is what this liberal Congress seems to be saying. The vote to override was 397-18 in the House, 79-13 in the Senate.

Dozens of members, usually thought to be conservative, voted to override. Politically speaking, they felt they could not do otherwise.

The same sentiment that propelled H.R. 4222 enactment will provide fuel for S. 626, the new child development act sponsored chiefly by Minnesota's Sen. Walter Mondale. A companion bill, H. R. 2966, sponsored chiefly by John Brademas of Indiana, is pending in the House.

completed in July. The bill has been napping quietly in sub-committee ever since.

Senator Mondale doubtless will wake it up. If "child development" sounds familiar, it is familiar. Four years ago Congress adopted such a program as Title V of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1971.

It is useful to recall what Nixon said about the 1971 bill. Its laudable intent, he said, "is overshadowed by fiscal irresponsibility, administrative unworkability, and family-weakening implications." Nixon termed the bill "a long leap into the dark for the United States government and the American people."

To adopt the bill, he said, "would commit the vast moral authority of the national government to the side of communal approaches to child-rearing." The same objections apply to the sleeping Senate bill. True, a loken effort has been made to paper-over the most sinister implications of the 1971 proposal.

presumptuous "partnership" could not be devised. "partnership" could not be devised.

No one should be fooled by a paint job. The sleeping Mondale-Brademas bill is the same bleeding-hearting scheme advanced in 1971 for the essential socialization of the American family. For all its deceptive trimmings, this bill proposes to make the government the prime parent of millions of children.

Compared to Mondale-Brademas, the just-enacted school lunch is chickened if "child development" becomes law, the cost swifly will escalate into multiple billions. Longfellow once remarked on nature's plan: The child should grow into the man. Keep one day on the Mondale-Brademas baby: It will be an eye become a monster.

Letters

Why was Gem solon picked?

Editor, Times-News: Thank you for your editorial comments to my letter. Your second comment "Hansen's guilty plea and his resultant punishment have been well covered" was what motivated me to write.

How would you like to pay $1,000 for each "no clear from accusation or blame" case?

I again make the same query: Why isn't the Congressional reprint of Sept. 5th printed in its entirety, letting the readers of your paper decide whether or not that congressman was exonerated.

When I read the court's comments "I can't conceive that it all that was done in this case was simply to make a mistake between reporting properly personally and reporting properly by committee, and THAT IT WAS PROPERLY REPORTED IN ALL, that the government would have brought this case."

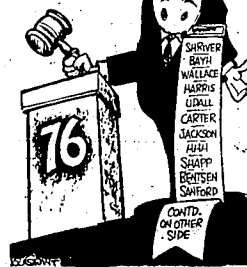

A second question has been brought to mind with your article in the Sept. 28th paper wherein Phillips Petroleum "Had contributed thousands of dollars illegally to the campaigns of 54 members of Congress."

Annals of America

Pamphleteer Tom Paine in January, 1776, offered these reasons for urging independence from Britain: "As to government matters, it is not in the power of Britain to do this continent justice.

"Small islands not capable of protecting themselves are the proper objects for Kingdoms to take under their care; but there is something absurd in supposing a continent to be perpetually governed by an island.

"IT'S CALLED THE DEMOCRATIC PROCESS"

Lockheed, PC stockholders not aided

I have during the past 10 days run into a cliche, uttered triumphantly at a dozen American forums from sea to shining sea, which I undertake, herewith, to discredit.

In the name of truth, justice, and rational discourse, I beseech your help: Go forward and give out the facts to your fellow man.

It goes, in its distilled form, as follows: "Why shouldn't the federal government bail out New York City? It didn't hesitate to bail out Lockheed and Penn Central for the benefit of its stockholders."

Re Lockheed: as a matter of fact it did hesitate: the vote in the Senate was only 49-41. The vote in the House was 192-109. Now hear this: The Democrats in the House who voted to "bail out" Lockheed exceeded the Republicans 100 Dems, 90 Reps.

What the government did, under pressure of labor unions who feared unemployment, the Pentagon which feared the dismantling of a vital defense facility, and Lockheed's management, which feared losing its jobs, was to guarantee a $250 million loan.

In 1967, Lockheed was selling for $74 per share. In July, 1971, before the loan guarantee, the stock was selling for $10. After the vote to guarantee the loan, the stock went down a point. Now it sells at about $8. Economic analysts will explain all of this: the liquidation value of Lockheed would have meant more to the stockholders than shoring up the company by a federally-guaranteed loan.

2. Penn Central: It filed for bankruptcy on June 21, 1970. Since then, it has lost 1.5 billion dollars on operations for the most part required dictated by the government. The value of the stock was $45 shortly after the merger of February, 1968. Just before it went into receivership, the stock sank to $3. Now it is selling at below $2.

The fact of the matter is that the only reason there is any trading at all in the stock is that there is always the hypothetical possibility of liquidation, which sees the shareholders would own a treasure-land of assets.

The government has since given the railroad money and guaranteed the principal and interest on a $100 million loan. This datum is meaningless in the current discussion because the principal operations of Penn Central are by government. Penn Central has not paid one penny of interest to the more than 100,000 holders of its bonded indebtedness.

The rock sends back a one-word reply, "NUTS!"

The patient, who is a horrified neutral spectator to this exchange, tries everything to achieve peace. He paces up and down, rolls to and fro and eventually tires to climb the wall in hopes that the kidney and rock will come to their senses.

Using Kissinger diplomatic tactics, the patient tries to persuade the rock that if it will just move a few inches down the canal, the kidney will not try to break it up.

But the rock is adamant and demands tremendous concessions in exchange for withdrawing from its position.

"How do I know," the rock asks, "that I will move from where I am now I will not be driven into the sea?"

Let us, however — just for the sake of it — suppose that we were living back in the days of the great barbecue, when big business ran the legislature, either by giving Congressmen simple cash bribes, or perks of various kinds.

What that is a reason for federal redemption of New York bonds. In respect of New York City, nobody, really, is interested in the fate of the bondholders who put out money for New York's securities.

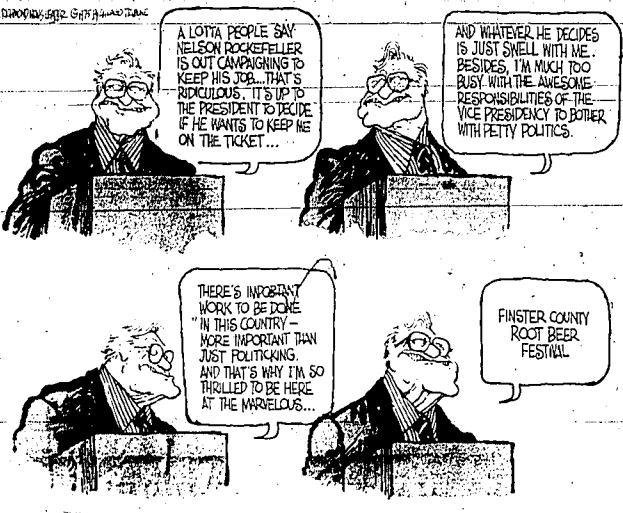

If negotiations fail and the rock refuses to move, then a U.N. doctor is called in who immediately flushes a valley of "demerol" of some other painkiller into the bloodstream.

This does not stop the war between the rock and the kidney, but it gives some shelter to the innocent, while the kidney tries to push the enemy but of its territory. This can only be done with gallons of water which the kidney forces against the rock.

If the good guy (the kidney) wins, the rock will retreat and even sue for peace. If the rock is able to repulse the water attack and hold its own, then the kidney will have to surrender, which means handing over negotiations to the Blue Cross.

It would be nice to report that once a kidney stone has been broken up, the kidney can then just move a few inches down the canal, the kidney will not try to break it up.

Even though my kidney moved the enemy to a safe place, I distinctly heard in my Demerol stupor the rock say to the kidney, "I may go down the drain, but there's a lot more of us where I came from."

Possible calf mutilation eyed

BUHL — A possible cattle mutilation was reported to police here Wednesday by Dan Weaver, Buhl.

Weaver said, "I found the animal with its left ear cut off and part of its lip cut away about noon Wednesday when I came out to plow."

"There was no blood on the ground," which was trampled in the area of the animal, a 400-pound, year-old calf. "I saw no footprints that could be identified," he said.

"The calf, one of a herd of 30, had been feeding in a bean field for about three weeks according to Weaver. He said a neighbor, Clyde Schroeder, told him he had seen the calf lying dead as early as Tuesday noon.

Weaver said, "I am sure that this must have happened sometime after 10 a.m. Tuesday when my grandfather, Amos Caudill, left to go deer hunting because he would have checked the cattle before he left."

The dead calf was found in a field which is in view of the Caudill farmhouse about one-quarter mile away.

Possible mutilation

A 400 pound 1½-year-old calf with its left ear and part of its lip cut away was reported by a Buhl farmer to the Times-News Wednesday as a possible case of cattle mutilation. The calf was found in view of a farmhouse and may have been dead as early as mid-day on Tuesday, according to witnesses near the scene.

Disposal well mapping set

TWIN FALLS — Waste disposal well locations in Jerome, Lincoln, Gooding and Minkola counties will be mapped beginning this month by the Department of Water Resources.

R. Keith Higginson, director of the southern district office, said today the Idaho Legislature has established a permit system to control the use of disposal wells in the state and in order to apply the system effectively, information about the number and location of disposal wells is needed.

Higginson said the wells are often used to dispose of waste waters from municipal systems, agriculture, industry or power generation coolant waters.

He said such disposal can only be permitted under Idaho Code where the waste water will not adversely affect domestic water sources.

He said information about the location of the wells and determinations of the rates of flow and quality of waste waters will be used to help draft formal regulations for such wells.

PGI voice OK'd

BURLEY — The Potato Growers of Idaho has been designated representative for its members to monitor grading, handling and storage of potatoes at processing plants.

More than 100 members at a meeting here Tuesday approved an amendment to the PGI bylaws to authorize the organization as representative in situations on the plant premises while the members still have a financial interest in the potatoes.

The grower organization has monitored grading and handling in past years through authorization included in the blanket marketing contract, with processing companies on behalf of growers.

This year processors and growers failed to come to terms on a blanket contract nationally. Individual potato growers are making their own agreements with the processor for sale of the produce.

PGI reached a contract with only four processors in Idaho. They are Lambert Produce, Blackfoot; R. T. French, Shelley; Rogers Bros., Idaho Falls, and Nonpareil Processing Corp., Blackfoot.

Hansen blasts EPA 'window box farmers'

BY BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency should be "pared down considerably or even abolished," according to Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho.

In an interview Wednesday, Hansen charged there are some "window box farmers" in the EPA who are trying to control farming without any idea of what it takes to run a farm.

He criticized EPA's controls on pesticides, insecticides, herbicides and run off water. In taking such action, Hansen said, the EPA has become an "overlord" over the Department of Agriculture and other agencies in Washington.

He said that under an EPA measure that recently passed the House, farmers would have to go to school for a certificate to apply various chemicals to the soil. He said the bill has not gone through the Senate yet.

"If they (farmers) are howling about OSHA (the Occupational Safety and Health Administration), you know how they are going to feel about that," he said.

Hansen praised President Ford for "having done quite well under considerable handicaps" such as an "almost veto-proof opposition."

But, he said, "someone's going to have to take a hard line on actually abolishing some agencies."

Major surgery in government, besides trimming down or abolishing the EPA, would include abolishing OSHA, he said.

Hansen said he has supported Ronald Reagan in the past and would be "certainly very interested" if the conservative California

Republican were to try for the presidency.

But he said he would not necessarily decide to support either Reagan or Ford in the primary.

"If I have a race to run I'll pull my load and let the other guy take care of his," he said.

Hansen did not take much stock in Orval Hansen's recent statement that he thinks he could beat George in a primary.

"After asking, 'Orval who?'" George said, "I'm welcome to try it. We went at it once before," recalling the last, 1974 primary campaign where George trounced Orval.

Safe drinking act studied

BY GORDON JUDD
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — The state of Idaho will have to spend $500,000 in the coming two years to enforce the Federal Safe Water Drinking Act, George Wagner, state water resources engineer, said Wednesday.

The act provides for the setting of nationwide drinking water quality standards for public water systems. Roy Jones, general physical scientist for the Environmental Protection Agency, told a group of about 30 public water suppliers at the College of Southern Idaho.

A public water system includes any system which provides water to at least 15 different service connections, or regularly serves 25 people.

Under the safe drinking act, all public water supplies must be sampled by an authorized laboratory and the owner of the water supply must keep records of these samples for 20 years, Jones said.

Wagner said Idaho currently authorizes only $120,000 to test water. Enactment of the federal safe water bill will require at least a $500,000 budget and an additional 20 employees at the state level to insure enforcement, he added.

"We have inventoried the state already and have identified about 2,000 owners of water," Wagner said.

"Our employees will have a big job of education to do and we will have to do a lot of sanitary surveys in order to be ready when the act becomes effective," Wagner added.

The Federal Safe Drinking Water Act does not take effect until 1976 or possibly 1977, Wagner said, because of confusion over the wording of the original legislation passed by the U.S. Congress in 1974.

Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate special prosecutor Henry S. Ruth has asked Congress to approve a constitutional amendment to clarify whether a President of the United States can be indicted and tried on criminal charges.

Ruth said his predecessor, Leon Jaworski, believed ex-President Richard Nixon furthered the Watergate cover-up conspiracy but decided against an indictment in 1974 because impeachment proceedings were in progress.

"The question is the President's indictability, which was viewed in the office as obviously momentous in terms of its consequences for the country, resulted in an intense debate among members of the special prosecutor's staff," the report said.

"Jaworski concluded that the Supreme Court would not uphold an indictment of the president," the report said.

But Jaworski told the Watergate grand jury that he felt that Nixon was a member of the alleged conspiracy and recommended the turnover of evidence to the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry.

The proposed constitutional amendment was one of the few surprises in the 277-page report to Congress and the public on the work of the Watergate special prosecution force.

In other recommendations, Ruth urged: — Creation of a Justice Department "division of government crimes," headed by an assistant attorney general, to fight federal corruption with the same vigor used to combat organized crime.

— Divorce of the attorney general and his top aides from politics by barring presidential campaign managers from these high posts in the Justice Department.

— Selection of men with a reputation for independence and without strong political backgrounds to head the FBI, the Secret Service and the Internal Revenue Service.

'Gate scorecard

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate prosecutors' scorecard includes four top presidential aides, two U.S. attorneys general, one commerce secretary, the former governor, one former lieutenant governor, a dozen White House aides, 15 corporate executives and four Cuban Americans.

That is only a partial roll of persons convicted or sent to jail by Watergate prosecutors during the past two and half years.

It totals 63 men who have been charged and 53 who have been convicted of Watergate related crimes.

Seven were acquitted and their charges were dropped, and three cases are still pending.

In addition 17 corporations were convicted of campaign contribution violations and paid fines.

Cox, aides hid crucial evidence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox anticipated Richard Nixon would fire him, and he and his staff hid their most crucial evidence in bank vaults so it could not be destroyed.

Nixon's firing of Cox two years ago this weekend stunned the nation and touched off the "firesstorm" of public outrage that eventually led to Nixon's downfall.

An account of Cox's ouster is contained in the prosecutors' final report on the Watergate investigation released Wednesday.

Unbudging on his subpoena for White House tapes, Cox was warned twice that mid-October week by the White House that "we will be forced to take the actions that the President deems appropriate under the circumstances."

On Saturday night, he was fired and FBI agents swept in to occupy his offices.

"Although official documents could not be removed, the most important and sensitive documents had been copied earlier in the week," the report said.

"Task force leaders and other senior staff members then removed copies of certain items from the office... copies of documents of a particularly sensitive nature were placed in two safe deposit boxes in nearby banks."

The copies were replaced six days later when Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ordered the files protected.

In the 16 hours FBI agents controlled Cox's offices, staff members transferred other crucial documents to a central safe "to secure files from anyone who might want to, or be ordered to, read or destroy the files."

The agents were replaced at midday Sunday by U.S. marshals.

Tape gap called classic mystery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The famous 18 1/2-minute gap in a key Nixon tape still has not the elements of a classic mystery.

"That was a particular frustration," retiring special Watergate prosecutor Henry S. Ruth said in an interview. "I sure would have liked to have solved the 18 1/2-minute gap."

Only a few persons could have erased the tape. The crime was committed during a brief period of time.

But all who could have done it — including Richard M. Nixon — have denied responsibility.

The final report of Watergate prosecutors released Wednesday said: — "A lengthy investigation concluded that only a small number of people had had the opportunity to make the erasures, but was unable to fix criminal responsibility on any particular individual or individuals."

Ruth would not name the "small number of people" and refused to give his authority. But he said the broad outlines of the case were spelled out in public court hearings on the gap.

The tape was of a meeting between Nixon and his chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, on June 20, 1972 — the first full working day at the White House after the Watergate break-in.

Haldeman's notes later showed the erased portion contained a discussion of Watergate. Technical experts called in by U.S. Judge John J. Sirica said the tape had been erased deliberately. They showed which tape recorder had done the deed, and this narrowed the time of the erasure to a six-week period between Oct. 1 and Nov. 12, 1973 — just before the tape was turned over to Sirica.

Five people had access to the tape during that period. Nixon had overall custody. His secretary Rosemary Woods was transcribing it, helped by two Nixon assistants, Stephen Bull and John Bennett. The fifth was White House Counsel J. Fred Buzhardt.

Miss Woods testified she may accidentally have erased part of the tape — but no more than five minutes.

The 23-member grand jury heard testimony on the gap from more than 100 persons, including four of the five who had access to the tape.

Nixon gave prosecutors a sworn statement that presumably covered the issue.

"I can't say what was in (Nixon's) grand jury transcript," Ruth said. "But you will recall his lawyer in other court cases said he had nothing to do with it."

Arms limit talks strike snags over new weaponry

U.S. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Several authoritative administration officials say the talks with the Soviet Union on strategic arms limitations are in trouble.

The officials said in interviews that the administration was waiting for a response from Moscow to its latest proposal and expected that the response would not move negotiations, now stalled, along much.

This estimate stands in contrast to Secretary of State Kissinger's public remarks on Sunday that "about 90 per cent of the negotiation is substantially completed." The officials said Kissinger was trying to be upbeat.

Soviet officials agreed that 90 per cent of the important issues had been resolved, but said hard political decisions still needed to be made on secondary matters. Other officials contended that the unresolved issues, concerning the Soviet bomber called the Backfire, the air-breathing American cruise missile and the definition of what were of primary importance and that the talks might well fall over these issues.

The consensus among officials is that if there is no agreement before the Presidential election next year is in full swing, the odds against a final settlement will increase sharply. Many feel that Soviet-American detente could not survive failure.

The officials attributed the difficulty to the three following factors:

— The complexity of reconciling Soviet strategic forces, weighted with large land-based missiles, with a more balanced American land, sea and air posture, along with the different directions being taken by the two sides in the development of new weapons.

— The many misunderstandings that the officials said had been created by sloppy and hurried negotiations between President Ford and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet party leader, in Vladivostok last November, coupled with several instances of Ford's and Kissinger's backing away from concessions previously made.

— Important philosophical differences between Kissinger and Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger over the significance of the Backfire bomber and over how necessary it was to conclude this particular arms agreement with Moscow.

The officials also talked about what they would not say publicly, namely that Ford would link any future concessions to Moscow to the strength of conservative opposition to detente in his own party.

Dialog set for meeting

© Chicago Daily News
PARIS — The United States and the oil-exporting and other nonindustrialized nations reached agreement Thursday on terms of the "north-south" dialog on stabilizing prices and supplies of world raw materials.

After three days of hot bargaining in after-midnight sessions, compromises were reached on guidelines for a 27 nation conference Dec. 16 in Paris and for longer-term negotiations.

A major effect should be to strengthen the hand of Saudi Arabia and other oil moderates in extending the new oil price freeze beyond the June 30, 1976, expiration agreed last month in Vienna.

The agreement was made here between representatives of the United States, European Common Market, Japan and oil cartel members Algeria, Saudi Arabia, Iran, Venezuela, with Brazil, Zaire and Indian speaking for Third World countries without oil.

Economists show recovery doubts

© Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Government economists have turned a little doubtful about the business outlook in the past few weeks.

They still haven't changed their forecasts of a good recovery that will last through 1976 — forecasts that are measurably more optimistic than those of many businessmen and financial leaders. But they are a shade less confident of the correctness of their predictions.

Less than a month ago, these government analysts were revising their economic projections upward. And they still see strength in factory orders, production, employment, and the rate at which inventories are being worked down.

But now the experts also see little hints that things just may not be going according to plan. The most disappointing indicator has been retail sales.

To be sure, the sales figures for August and September were just revised from minus to plus. But the late summer's gains have been slight compared with the quickening that began with the spring. The initial sales of the 1976 model cars, for example, started out marginally below expectations, though they have since perked up.

What makes this trend so disappointing is the fact that consumer spending is the key ingredient of this recovery. Consumers led the way out of the late recession, and they are being counted on to keep the upturn going. Strong consumption is needed to ignite inventory-building and, in turn, to persuade businessmen to step up their spending for new plants and equipment.

There are other hints of trouble, too. The so-called leading indicators of economic activity — statistics that turn up before or after business generally — were flat in August. Home-building remains sluggish; with only meager signs of improvement. And capital spending is still weak.

What's more, a summer-long weakness in financial statistics has become worrisome now that the non-financial side is a little suspect. For example, the nation's money supply — most often defined as currency in circulation, plus checking deposits at banks — grew sluggishly in July, August and September.

Nixon ability cited

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kissinger made the assessment while sitting with Albanie Morin, a member of the Canadian Parliament, Canadian Foreign Minister Allan MacEachern, and his wife, Nancy. Kissinger's conversation leaked through an open microphone, the Post story said.

A story by Bruce Garvey in the Washington Post said that Douglas has been handicapped following a stroke last Dec. 31. However, since the new term began Oct. 6, he has been present each day during oral arguments and has attended conferences on the cases.

NY strike threatened

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some 8,000 city workers, including thousands of teachers and up to 900 policemen, face firing under Mayor Abraham Beame's latest attempt to save New York from bankruptcy.

The cutbacks are being proposed despite a warning from municipal labor leaders of "inevitable conflict and a general strike" by their 270,000 members if further layoffs are made.

The Emergency Financial Control Board, the state-created agency overseeing city finances, today begins considering the austerity plan to slash $200 million from the current budget and has until Monday to accept, modify or reject it.

In addition to the new layoffs, an estimated 23,000 other jobs will be eliminated through attrition. As of the end of September, 22,000 city employees already had been sliced from the payroll through layoffs and several thousand others by attrition.

Mower cost up with new rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Proposed safety rules for power lawn mowers would cost American consumers $367.5 million in one year and could drive one third of the manufacturers out of business, an industry spokesman said today.

The price of a standard electric mower which sold for $95 this year would be increased to $118, it said, while a tractor mower which a user rides would go from the current $550 to $642.

The safety rules were ordered drawn up by the Consumer Product Safety Commission because of a high number of injuries associated with mowers. The agency chose Consumers Union, the independent product testing and evaluation organization, to draft the safety requirements.

But the Outdoor Power Equipment Institute, which represents 70 companies doing $2 billion in annual sales in mowers and related equipment, released a study today attacking the proposal.

The higher retail prices that would result, it said, would cause a 20 per cent cut in sales for the seven million power mowers now sold each year. In addition, the investments in manufacturing machinery needed to meet the proposed requirements would cost from $750,000 to $1 million and could force some smaller companies out of business.

The number of manufacturers would drop from the current 60 to 75 to about 45 or 55, or even fewer, the Institute said.

One area of greatest concern and expense, the organization said, was a proposed "deadman" control — a system to stop the mower when the user lets go of the controls.

CIA kept mum

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Fears that the CIA would be tarred with the Watergate brush prevented agents from volunteering information on the 1972 Watergate break-in, agency director William Colby says.

"You know that there were several people arrested in the Watergate who were ex-CIA people and I think the quite obvious suspicion came up in a lot of people's minds as to whether CIA was actually doing that," Colby told the Associated Press Managing Editors annual meeting Wednesday.

Colby conceded that in retrospect, "There was an undue degree of secrecy, even within CIA, but the overriding concern was to avoid getting into a situation in which one thin connection with CIA thereupon convinces the nation that CIA actually conducted the Watergate operation."

"It was that concern that dominated our thoughts all the way through," he said.

Colby said he ordered a halt to all activities that exceeded the CIA charter when he took over the organization in 1973. The CIA is convinced, he added, "and I think the record has borne us out, that we had nothing to do with the Watergate itself."

Virus cuts cancer back

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Illinois research team has found that infection by a virus that causes benign bone tumors in mice appears to inhibit the development of cancerous tumors in the laboratory animals.

The work deals with one type of cancer in a certain strain of mice but may be important in understanding the normal behavior of tumors, according to Drs. Chris A. Reilly and Miriam P. Finkel of the Argonne National Laboratory.

There is as yet no proof that any type of cancer in humans is caused by a virus, but cancer viruses have been isolated from several species of laboratory animals. Many scientists believe, therefore, that some human cancers eventually will be linked to viruses.

Bomb plant tale told

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The bomb that exploded in the U.S. Capitol in 1971 was carried into the building in pieces and assembled by members of the Weather Underground in an unused room, according to Rolling Stone magazine.

Members of the radical group reported in the story described how they planted the device, accidentally disabled it, then returned to set another bomb in the same spot when the first one failed to explode. The second bomb set off the first, causing $300,000 damage to the Capitol building. No one was hurt.

Although the group claimed credit for the blast at the time, it was never confirmed officially. The FBI arrested Leslie Bacon in connection with the bombing, flew her to Seattle and held her for more than a week, but the case against her was dropped for lack of evidence.

Lease rate hearings set

BOISE (UPI) — Three public hearings on the lease rates and policies on state lands will be held next week in southern Idaho by a special subcommittee of the state Land Board.

The meetings all will begin at 7 p.m. The first will be Oct. 21 at the Rexburg courthouse. The second will be Oct. 22 in the courthouse at Soda Springs and the third, Oct. 23, at the Voth-Buch Building, room 108, College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

LI. Gov. John Evans, chairman of the special committee, said, "One must recognize that all the people of Idaho have a great stake in the efficient management and operation of our state lands because the revenues received from these lands go directly to our public school fund and are distributed throughout Idaho to our school districts."

"Therefore, I think it is imperative that the citizens be given an opportunity to express their views in relation to the management of these lands."

"The subcommittee is hoping for wide participation from the public as well as experts in the leasing, real estate and agricultural areas of our society at these public hearings."

"Our subcommittee was established because of requests and complaints from farmers, cattlemen and woodgrowers who feel lease rates should be tied to the commodity market so that when prices are low rates will be flexible enough to help keep the vital industries operating."

Defense to begin

WALLACE, Idaho (UPI) — The defense in the Thomas Creech murder trial, was to begin its case today in the wake of a denial by the defendant's former girlfriend that two itinerant laborers tried to rape her as contended by Creech.

Creech, 25, is on trial accused of murdering Edward Arnold and John Bradford nearly a year ago and leaving their bodies along a highway near Donnelly in southern Idaho.

During Wednesday's session, Bruce Robinson, Creech's attorney, was unsuccessful in attempts to suppress a 45 second tape in which Creech admitted killing Arnold and Bradford "because they tried to rape Carol."

Oneida school district teachers out on strike

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — Oneida County School District teachers went on strike Wednesday, walking picket lines in freezing weather while district trustees sought a court injunction to prevent the walkout.

District Judge Francis Rasmussen set a hearing for

Oct. 24 on the request by the trustees for a temporary injunction to prevent the teachers from continuing the strike.

Temperatures were in the 20s when buses arrived to deliver students to their classes but the children were returned to their homes when it was learned the strike was in progress. Teachers voted 40-1 last week to strike, beginning Wednesday morning.

The district has three schools — two in Malad and one in Stone — and all three were closed by the strike.

The teachers have accused the school board of failing to negotiate in good faith and contend that the board has offered a salary $1,000 below the average received by Idaho teachers.

The strike in Oneida County came as Pocatello teachers started their second week on the picket lines.

Board Chairman Donald Vaughn said board attorneys were told to look into the possibility of firing the Malad teachers. A motion to that effect was approved by the board Monday night.

Both sides have stressed a willingness to negotiate but negotiations have been idle for a week.

Signup set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service will accept applications for summer jobs only between Jan. 1 and Feb. 15, 1976, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, announced Wednesday. Church said opportunities for new employees will be limited because those previously employed by the Forest Service will have priority.

Diseased animals destroyed

BOISE (UPI) — A Michigan hunter who last week brought four pack animals into Idaho had the animals destroyed Tuesday after the state agriculture department informed him they were infected with equine infectious anemia.

Dr. A. P. Schneider, Boise, administrator of the department's division of animal industries, said his office was notified by Michigan veterinarian that tests results on these mules and one horse headed for Idaho showed they had the disease.

The illness is transmissible to other equines. Michigan veterinarians said that before the results of the tests were known, the owner of the animals left the state, and was enroute with the pack string to Elk City, Idaho, on a hunting trip.

Jury pick continues

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — The defense and prosecution in the first degree murder trial of former Bonner County Prosecutor Everett Hofmeister Jr. dug deeper into the pool of 75 prospective jurors today in search of 12 to hear the case.

Jury selection began Wednesday, but there were no sure indications that a jury would be selected before the weekend.

Hofmeister, 44, is accused of murdering his wife, June Darlene, 41, during the early morning hours of June 17, 1974. Her body was discovered in her wrecked pickup near Sandpoint, but an autopsy revealed she was strangled.

The trial was moved to Lewiston on a change of venue.

During Wednesday's session, the defense and prosecution questioned 12 prospective jurors, and five were immediately dismissed after admitting they would not be able to return a fair verdict.

Evans will serve on panel

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — LI. Gov. John Evans agreed Wednesday to serve on the Food Policy Committee of the National Lieutenant Governors Conference.

Evans was elected to the executive committee of the conference in August.

A farmer-rancher, Evans said there appears to be insufficient public awareness of the role played by agriculture in the economy and in the nation's worldwide economic relationships.

"This committee was established to participate in efforts to develop a national food policy and an accompanying public information program," he said.

Couple offers aid

BOISE (UPI) — The financial director of the nation's largest city has touched the hearts and the pocketbook of a Boise couple.

Shirley Greer Clark said Wednesday she and her husband sent a $10 check to the mayor of New York City. The Clarks, who operate an antique shop in Boise, realize that it isn't much to help the city with its multi-million dollar problems, but they hope to start a movement.

Mrs. Clark said she hoped other individuals across the nation would donate what they can to help New York from defaulting financially.

"I have written the mayor of that city to acquaint him with this plan and to offer encouragement during New York's dire financial plight," Mrs. Clark said.

She said they would have sent more money if they could have afforded it.

Mrs. Clark, who has been to New York once in her lifetime, said she has been concerned for sometime over what would happen to the city if it defaulted.

"Until today, it never occurred to me that I as an individual could make some effort for constructive help," she said.

"The Boise woman said the idea of individual contributions struck her while she was listening to an early morning talk show on a San Francisco radio station.

"They were discussing New York's problems and talking about citizens writing their congressmen and letting them know that they want New York City given government financial assistance," she said.

Kidwell files suit

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Attorney General Wayne Kidwell filed suit Wednesday against three Utah corporations and the Idaho Bank and Trust to relieve 200 Idahoans of liability for contracts entered into for membership in a health spa.

The suit was filed in Fourth District Court in Boise against Golden Villa Health Spas, Inc.; Zions Acceptance Corporation and Sparta, Inc., parent company of Golden Villa, and the Idaho Bank.

Kidwell said the suit asks that the 200 be relieved from paying on their membership contracts in a spa which was built in Boise. He said the spa was never built and Golden Villa had left the state.

Idaho Bank and Trust and Zions Acceptance purchased the contracts, according to the suit.

Fords open White House to grieving twins, 18

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Susan Ford opened the family quarters of the White House Wednesday to grieving 18-year-old twins, her close friends, whose divorced parents and grandmother were killed in a murder-suicide shooting tragedy.

Police said Nicholas M. Golubins, 51, shot to death his divorced wife, society leader Patricia B. Golubins, 48, and her mother, Agnes Forgeron, 74, then fatally shot himself in Washington Tuesday.

Elison and Regan, the teenage twins and two of the six Golubins children, flew into Washington from Atlanta's Emory University after receiving word of the shootings. Susan and Mrs. Ford met them at the airport and took them to the upstairs family living quarters in the White House.

The girls are no strangers to the executive mansion. They visited the White House often, frequently spending the night, when attending exclusive Holton Arms school in suburban Virginia with Susan.

They are said to be among Susan's closest friends, and provided her with companionship during the months of adjustment to life in the White House after her father's Aug. 3, 1974, succession from Richard M. Nixon.

There was no immediate indication how long the girls would stay at the White House. The shooting occurred at from Holton Arms Tuesday afternoon. They opened the front door to find Golubins' body sprawled on the living room floor, and screaming hysterically to neighbors.

Weatherman predicts Friday rain

Generally fair tonight with low temperatures in the middle 20s. Increasing clouds Friday, with a chance of light rain by Friday night. High temperatures Friday 50 to 55. Probability of precipitation increasing to 40 per cent Friday afternoon.

Synopsis: Conditions are expected to continue favorable through Friday for digging potatoes and beets. However a very intense storm has developed in the Gulf of Alaska and is threatening the northwestern United States. It had spread clouds into north Idaho by early today.

Rain is likely to spread into Northern Idaho tonight or early Friday and into Southern Idaho Friday night and Saturday.

Hunters can expect precipitation in the mountains Friday night and Saturday with the snow level to about 6,000 feet in the northern mountains and 7,000 feet in the South Hills.

Daytime temperatures will lower into the 50s and a thickening cloud blanket will hold nighttime temperatures above freezing in the valleys.

Now, if two or more students have a 4, average, they are named co-valedictorian. Wilson proposes that only one receive the top honor and the tie be broken by a teacher committee which would evaluate leadership, involvement in activities, character and citizenship in their choices.

In other business, trustees also:

Fords open White House to grieving twins, 18

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Golublas' $150,000 townhouse in upper Northwest Washington.

The bodies were discovered by the Golublas' 13-year-old daughter, Bronn, when she and a schoolmate returned home from Hilton Arms Tuesday afternoon. They opened the front door to find Golublas' body sprawled on the living room floor, and ran — screaming hysterically — to neighbors.

Police said Nicholas M. Golublas, 51, shot to death his divorced wife, society realtor friends and grandmother they were killed in a murder-suicide shooting tragedy.

Patricia B. Golublas, 42, and her mother, Agnes Forgeron, 74, then fatally shot himself in Washington Tuesday.

Elison and Regan, the teenage twins and two of the six Golublas children, flew into Washington from Atlanta's Emory University after receiving word of the shootings. Susan and Mrs. Fort met them at the airport and took them to the upstairs family living quarters in the White House.

The girls are no strangers to the executive mansion. They visited the White House often, frequently spending the night, when attending exclusive Hilton Arms school in suburban Virginia with Susan.

They are said to be among Susan's closest friends, and provided her with companionship during the months of adjustment to life in the White House after her father's Aug. 9, 1974, succession from Richard M. Nixon.

There was no immediate indication how long the girls would stay at the White House.

Worth Crow Duo plans Twin Falls concert Monday

Community Concert Association will present Worth Crow Duo

TWIN FALLS — A program of classical and popular classical organ music will be presented by the Worth Crow Duo in an 8:15 p.m. concert Monday.

The Community Concert Association presentation will be at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

The duo travels with two concert organs, a classical organ and a theater organ especially built for touring by Rodgers Organ Co., Hillsboro, Ore.

Ted Alan Worth, classical organist, began including Andrew Crow, the truck driver, in his programs when the audience requested well known popular tunes played in theater style. Audiences continued to request theater-type tunes by Crow.

In order to achieve the necessary sound, Crow had to make changes in the way the classical organ was set up. The Rodgers Organ Co. then built a large theater-type organ for touring and the Worth-Crow Duo was established.

Included in the program are tunes such as "Trumpet Tune and Air" by Purcell; "Adagio Cantabile and Teccetta and Pique in D Minor" by Bach; "Jealousy," "Meditation," "Stars and Stripes Forever" by Sousa; "War March of the Priests" by Mendelssohn, and others.

Elizabeth, Richard remarry in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor remarried last Friday in a mud-bat African village in remote Botswana and celebrated the event with champagne on the banks of the Chobe River, watched by two rhinos and a hippo. It was disclosed Wednesday.

The local district commissioner, Ambrose Masalela, married the couple in the Northern Botswana village of Kasane, five miles from the Chobe Game park lodge where the couple has been staying for the past ten days.

Kasane is located at the confluence of the hobe and Zambesi rivers, where the borders of Zambia, Botswana, Rhodesia and South West Africa meet.

Masalela was asked to marry the two stars Oct. 6, but he told them he was too busy and could only marry them by special licence four days later.

He told the Johannesburg Star the wedding was a simple one, lasting 20 minutes. "They were very excited but composed," he said.

Miss Taylor wore a green dress with lace frills and gaiters and white feathers for the occasion. Burton was dressed in a red shirt, white trousers, red socks and white shoes.

The couple was divorced 14 months ago after 10 years of marriage. Miss Taylor has been married six times and is Burton's second wife.

The film stars came to South Africa Sept. 25 to attend a charity tennis tournament and for visits to Chobe and the Kruger National Park. Friends said they enjoyed the Botswana game reserve and returned there after another trip to Johannesburg for a rugby match.

The Chobe park, 700 miles northwest of Johannesburg, is almost completely unspoiled and is renowned for its big game elephant, rhino, hippo and buffalo. It is reachable along poor dirt roads or by air.

Two of the rhinos and a hippo eavesdropped on the Burtons' wedding reception.

Friends said the couple spend their time watching game from their verandah which overlooks the Chobe river with its lazy floating crocodiles. West of the lodge is a large pool where elephants come to drink.

"They more or less fell in love with the area so they decided to get married there," Masalela said.

Miss Taylor told friends she was reading film scripts and liked the quiet of the game reserve.

Burton, an ardent nature conservationist, has recorded a commentary for a film about Botswana's Okavango swamps, which neighboring nations threaten to drain.

After divorcing last year, the stars were reconciled in August and flew to Israel to scout locations for the film, "Abakarov" in which Burton was to have starred.

Black woman denied admission

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A black woman who said she wanted to start a Grandmother Club in her neighborhood claims she was hustled out of the convention of the National Federation of Grandmother Clubs of America.

Mrs. Mildred Benson, a resident of Portland's largely black Model Cities area, said Mrs. Annie Gann, president of the federation, refused to admit her because she was neither a member of a Grandmother Club nor sponsored by a member. Convention rules state guests must be sponsored.

Mrs. Gann declined comment on the incident. She said as far as she knew there were no black Grandmother Club members.

Mrs. Benson, who is a grandmother, said the governors of Oregon and Washington had proclaimed Oct. 2 Grandmother's Day and decided "black women are grandmothers, too."

She said she was denied admission to the convention, first by a registrar and then by Mrs. Gann, who took her by the arm and led her to a hotel suite. Mrs. Benson said Mrs. Gann talked to her briefly then said she had to return to the convention.

Open house set Sunday

JEROME — Mr. and Mrs. William E. Dirk, Jerome, will observe their 35th wedding anniversary Sunday with an open house from 2 to 5:30 p.m.

The open house, with the couple's children as hosts, will be at Heritage Hall on North Fillmore in Jerome. Friends and relatives of the couple are invited.

OES unit holds meet

TWIN FALLS — Friendship night was observed at a meeting of Twin Falls Chapter No. 29, Order of the Eastern Star, Tuesday night.

A special musical program was presented by the Sweet Adelines.

Arlene Grose served as associate matron. Richard Machamer substituted as associate patron and Beulah Carter served as Adah.

Refreshments were served under the direction of Mauvornen Hall and Esther. Hess.

That 'shaggy nag' need not be shabby anymore

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Attention horse owners — that shaggy nag need not be shabby any more.

Two horse-loving sisters have set up a shop called "The Shaggy Nag" that has well groomed horses whinnying with delight.

The sisters, Jean Cunkle and Dayle Ritter, make and market colorful, custom-designed, washable fashions for horses.

"No more dull, two-tone horse blankets. In the blanket line, the Shaggy Nag offers a bold tricolor in bi-ventennial red, white and blue, an eye-catching plaid trimmed in red corduroy and a striking yellow and black hound's tooth check.

"We will combine any color," said Mrs. Ritter, the wife of an ex-mayor of Jacksonville. "You just name it and we will make it."

Mrs. Cunkle said they once made a horse blanket of fake fur lined with gingham and sold it to a woman from Atlanta.

The horse blankets are made of washable fabrics—denim, corduroy, acrylic, terrycloth, quilting and synthetic woolen shag.

"The ordinary duck canvas blankets are impossible to clean," said Mrs. Cunkle. "You can't put them in a washing machine, and even if you scrub and scrub, you never get the manure all out."

In addition to the blanket sisters also sell sheet coverings for horses, ponies and mares, horse coolers, quarter covers, grooming and braiding aprons, saddle covers, tack drapes and deck chair covers.

All items can be personalized with the name of the horse, owner or stable.

The sisters, both full-time homemakers, take the orders, measure the animals and find the requested material. The sewing is done by seamstress Virginia Dukes.

"I love to be around horses," said Mrs. Cunkle, who said she has been riding since she was a girl. "And you get to meet a lot of nice people at the shows."

Club hears reports

By George Thosteson
Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 I have a friend who thinks he has cirrhosis of the liver. He isn't a heavy drinker. Is this always caused from drinking alcohol?
 He says that if he has this disease there is no cure for it. I'm sure that it can be helped. Any information you can give me on this subject will be appreciated. I am trying to talk him into going to the doctor. — Miss V.
 What makes your friend believe he has this disease? It is not easy to diagnose from outward symptoms, especially in the early stages. Damage to Local ointments might help with the pain of the hemorrhoids, but the bleeding implies ulceration of the hemorrhoids or fissure formation. This would require surgical correction. The ointment will not control things.

 For almost two years I have been having trouble with loose bowels. And I have a rash on my face.
 I eat a lot of wheat cereal with wheat germ on it. I wonder if I am allergic to so much wheat. You recently had a piece in the paper dealing

 Her recital program will include "Allegro Spiritoso" by Senalle, "Sonata No. 1 in f minor" by Brahms; "Après Un Reve" by Faure; "Der Schwanenreiter" by Hindemith and "Concertpiece in g minor" by Hans Sitt.
 Phillip A. Day, coordinator of choral activities at Westminster College will serve as piano accompanist. The public is invited to attend.

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Pregnant women who drink more than six cups of coffee have a greater chance of miscarriages, a University of Illinois researcher says.
 Paul S. Weatherbee said Tuesday he based his findings on results of a small percentage of the 550 families he observed during 1974.

"We found that 13 of the 14 women who said they drank an average of seven cups of coffee or more daily had an unfavorable pregnancy, said Weatherbee. He conceded his study was "retrospective" and did not include other factors which might have affected reproduction.

Weatherbee said caffeine is transmitted from the blood of the mother to the fetus, raising caffeine levels in the amniotic fluid, which surrounds the fetus before birth.

Cirrhosis requires diagnosis

the cells of the organ is the only really conclusive evidence, and this might require a biopsy and several liver function tests.
 There are broad symptoms that can raise powerful suspicions, though — loss of appetite, flatulence, nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain or tenderness, and weight loss that cannot otherwise be accounted for. In the advanced stage of the disease, there may be a low-grade fever, foul breath, jaundice, and edema.
 While alcohol is known to have a role in the problem, this may be as much a dietary factor as a toxic one.
 Malnutrition is usually involved. Alcohol provides calories but it is lacking in essential nutrients, so a heavy drinker can be a victim of this nutrient-starvation. Certain drugs as well as hepatitis may be factors. Early detection is important.
 In later stages, when actual damage involving loss of liver function occurs, treatment is less successful. However, diet and avoidance of alcohol can keep the condition under control. Let your friend read this. It may prompt him to end his guessing game.

with gluten. I was wondering if that could cause my problem. I am 67 years old. — Mrs. M. S.
 It is possible that you are allergic to the wheat products, but at your age, one would expect the allergy to have emerged sooner than this. You can try omitting wheat products for from five to seven days to see if there is any improvement.
 The gluten article you mention dealt with a specific disorder (non-tropical sprue). I doubt that this is your problem. It would have appeared years ago in your case. Gluten is the protein substance of wheat and other grains, and it is avoided in such disorders as sprue and celiac disease.
 Possible allergy aside, you may be overdoing the wheat thing, especially for a person your age in whom a balanced diet is so essential to health. If avoiding wheat and altering your dietary balance doesn't help, you should get a thorough colon examination.

DEAR ABBY: I am 42 and was seriously dating Ernie, a very eligible 60-year-old widower, when the following rift developed in our relationship:
One day Ernie suddenly turned to me and said, "You look like your father."
I immediately countered with, "You look like Sylvia Singer." (Sylvia Singer is a mutual friend who, like Ernie, has light blue eyes and is prematurely gray.)
At this point, Ernie became so infuriated he cursed, which he seldom does.
I then said, "You don't mind telling me that I look like a man, but you became infuriated when I tell you that you look like a woman. Why?"
He said, "It's different when you tell a woman she looks like her father."
I said, "There is no difference. You are still telling a woman that she looks like a man."
He never called me again, and all my efforts to re-establish communication by phone and mail have failed. Do you think I was wrong? And how can I patch things up?

SORRY IN D.C.

'Comeback' causes rift

DEAR SORRY: Yes, you were wrong. When he said you looked like your father, he was merely commenting on a family resemblance. But you retaliated in anger with a scathing comeback in a deliberate attempt to belittle his male ego.
Face it, dear. You blew it.
DEAR ABBY: Lately, everything I've been doing comes out all wrong. I'm 17 and have this reputation of being an easy pick-up. Things couldn't be worse. All the guys treat me like some kind of tramp. Sure, I've made a few mistakes, but nobody lets me forget them.
There are about 20 guys I hand around with who put me down because I have let them use me, thinking that was the way to be popular.
How do I shake this reputation of being a tramp? It makes me feel so low and cheap.
To make matters worse, I really like one of the guys a lot but he won't even look at me.

EASY PICK-UP

DEAR EASY: If you sincerely want to improve your image, you can. First, stay away from the 20 guys you mentioned. And the next time you are with a fellow, make it plain that you will NOT permit him to use you. He may not leave it at first, but consistent ladylike behavior on your part will convince him that you've reformed.
DEAR ABBY: Last week, I went to a luncheon at a neighbor's home. She kept chastising her 6-year-old son beside. Once, when he refused to leave, she picked up the telephone and dialed, whereupon the child took off, running in fear.
I laughed and asked, "Are you pretending to call his father?"
"No," she replied, "I'm calling the witch!" She explained that she calls the witch to "come and get him" when he's "bad." Then, she asked me not to tell him there was no such thing as a witch.
I was appalled and told her that when her son gets older and realizes that she's been lying to him, he won't trust her anymore. She then commented that she didn't care what he thought in the future because it worked for now.
Abby, how do you feel about using these scare tactics to discipline children?

STUNNED

DEAR STUNNED: I'm with you. The truth is, always lies. And that goes for Santa Claus, the tooth fairy and the stork.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "A" IN BOULDER, COLO: You can insist that he wear a wedding band, but it won't stop the circulation if he decides to play the field again.
Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Judge stays pendulum swing

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Melania Neubart was born 52 years ago but officially she is only 42. An angry judge won't let her be her age.
In 1955, Miss Neubart decided it would be easier to get married if she were 10 years younger. So she claimed the official records were wrong and obtained a court declaration that she was born in 1923 instead of 1913.
Several months ago, and still single, she was officially too young to qualify for a national insurance pension. She went to a magistrate's court, admitted she had lied the first time and changed her birth year back to 1913. The court granted the declaration.

But the district attorney's office appealed the decision and District Court Judge Shilong Ascher reversed the lower court Monday, calling Miss Neubart's behavior "bold impudence."

Anyway, Watson found himself in three notrump and proceeded to demonstrate that he had learned about safety from the master.
His jack of clubs won the first trick. A careless player would have played out high hearts. After that suit failed to behave he would have cashed three spades, stopping in dummy. With spades misbehaving also he would have fallen back on the diamond (finesse to wind up with only eight tricks assuming the defense had been on its toes).
Watson found a better line of play. At trick two he entered dummy with a spade, led a low heart and stuck in his 10. When this worked he had 10 tricks in top cards and TIMES-NEWS classified advertising manager Ralph Wolter, left, and assistant manager John Souza hold plaque awarded the classified department by the Western Classified Advertising Association for the "best special event in the west." The award was made for last February's "Honest Abe Days" auto sales promotion.

TWIN FALLS — Two Times-News classified advertising men have taken top honors in a competition among all newspaper members of the Western Classified Advertising Association. The association made the "best special event in the west" award to the Times-News classified department for a special "Honest Abe Days" promotion held last February. The award went to classified advertising manager Ralph Wolter and assistant manager John Souza, both Twin Falls.

The promotion was kicked off on Abraham Lincoln's birthday, with an ad listing cars under $1,500. Next, cars under $1,500 were listed, then autos selling for less than $2,000, and finally, previously owned luxury automobiles. The "best special event" award was made for the promotion's originality, ad layout and results produced. A plaque was presented to the paper at the association's 1975 convention in Colorado Springs, Colo. Wolter, 27, is a graduate of the University of Southern California. Before coming to the paper two years ago, Wolter was assistant operations manager for Hershey Foods, Los Angeles. Wolter was assisted in the creation and design of the award-winning promotion by Souza, 25, who has been working with Classified accounts at the Times-News for 10 months. Souza is a graduate of California State University, San Jose. Wolter said he felt the promotion was recognized by the national association for its originality and for its success. The promotion produced highly successful sales results, Wolter said.

Policeman asked to resign

GOODING — A Gooding policeman has been asked to resign or be fired, effective midnight Friday, Gooding Chief Dwayne Walker said Wednesday.

The forced resignation stems from an incident early Saturday morning in the parking lot behind the Lincoln Inn when Edward Henderson, a city patrolman, allegedly was involved in a fight with Pete Peterson.

Walker said some people saw the fight, but no one knows how it got started and that "versions differ." Henderson, who has been on the Gooding force since May, previously served six months on the Jerome police force before coming to Gooding.

The police chief said Henderson, who was not in uniform at the time, ran from the parking lot when the police car arrived at the scene.

The policeman's wife, Paula, told the Times-News Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, Gooding, had "attacked" her and her husband was defending her.

She said she feels the firing is not fair because he was "defending his own wife."

According to the police chief, the Petersons have a different version of what happened.

Mrs. Henderson indicated that they might carry their fight to the City Council.

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News writer

GOODING — The former Gooding tuberculosis hospital could be an excellent treatment center for alcoholics and drug addicts, a panel of midwestern experts said today.

Henry Norton, Johnson Institute, Minneapolis, Minn., explained the possibilities to representatives of the Department of Health and Welfare, Gooding County and City, and local law-enforcement personnel in Gooding.

The center basically would be used for treating alcoholics, but Norton said the Johnson Institute also helps set up centers to work with people on all types of hard drugs.

But Clay Robertson, director of the HAW substance abuse program in the Magic Valley, questioned whether the facility should be used for rare heroin addiction cases.

Norton said in an interview that for every 100 people addicted to alcohol only one person has a heroin addiction problem.

Initial community response to the proposed center was positive. Gene Kelly, mayor of Gooding, said although he hadn't discussed the possibility of the center with local people, he thought there "would be quite a lot of interest" in setting it up.

Norton said he understood the Gooding center would be privately operated but in the state-owned facility.

Edward Bess, representing the Idaho Department of Lands, said it was likely that "the building could be put to use without any cost except for maintenance."

He could not give an estimate of how much money would be necessary to open the center. He said, however, very little remodeling would have to be done to the old hospital building. He said the center could start small and grow.

Norton said the 12 other treatment centers the Johnson Institute has helped establish throughout the nation have paid for themselves.

He said at similar non-hospital centers the cost per patient runs about $40 to $50 a day. He said hospital and patient insurance would pay costs for the majority of patients, but the state would have to pick up the tab for those persons without such insurance.

The objective, he said is to "intervene" on alcoholic and persons addicted to drugs as soon as possible.

estimate of how much money would be necessary to open the center. He said, however, very little remodeling would have to be done to the old hospital building. He said the center could start small and grow.

Norton emphasized that the Johnson Institute's treatment program is not designed just for "derelicts or the people who have hit bottom."

The objective, he said is to "intervene" on alcoholic and persons addicted to drugs as soon as possible.

Cassia will hear views on ballots

BY SHANE O'NEILL Times-News Writer

HALLEY — The public gets its chance to speak on the possibility of bilingual ballots in Cassia County tonight.

County commissioners have called a public meeting at 8 p.m. in the Idaho Bank and Trust conference room.

Commissioners decided to hold the meeting even though Cassia County is not on the first list of governmental entities required to print ballots in foreign languages for minorities.

The list was issued last week by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. County Atty. Al Barrus explained that the county can expect to be on a subsequent list.

Barrus contacted officials in Washington, D.C., last week to verify that Cassia County was not Included. "They said they thought we would be on a forthcoming list," he reported.

Barrus has figures from the Bureau of Census on the exact percentage of Spanish descendancy residents in the county and the percentage of illiteracy.

A 1975 law requires ballots in languages other than English where the language minority is of 5 per cent or more with an illiteracy rate higher than the 4.6 per cent national average.

Barrus said tonight's meeting is to obtain everyone's opinion about whether or not Cassia County should have bilingual ballot instructions in 1976.

Commissioners also want to know whether the Spanish-Americans in the county agree that they constitute a language minority and more than 4.6 per cent are illiterate.

Appeals board decision favors Blaine developer

By BART QUESNELL Times-News writer

HALLEY — For the second time in a week, an appeals board has reversed a planning and zoning commission decision in favor of developers — this time to McCulloch Properties Inc.

The Blaine County board of appeals agreed Wednesday night that Democrat Gulch a mile west of Halley should be rezoned to allow a proposed development by McCulloch, developers of Woodside.

McCulloch owns 1,585 acres on both sides of the county road a mile west of Halley on Croy Creek. The land is currently zoned A-1, an agricultural designation, allowing one residential unit on each five acres.

McCulloch Properties has said nearly 1,000 acres of the property would be left as open space if rezoning was granted on the eastern edge of the land to A-2 and A-3, higher densities.

The A-2 land, if rezoned, would allow 247 units to be constructed under a planned unit development. James Adams, manager of Woodside, said McCulloch was anticipating building only 125 units on the property and that housing would be grouped into a cluster.

A planning and zoning commission voted in July to turn down the rezoning request, claiming there were already many subdivisions not filed in Blaine County and Democrat Gulch in development would not be economically beneficial to the county.

In addition, there was testimony from Idaho Fish and Game authorities that the subdivision was in the path of a deer migration route and near a sage grouse nesting area.

Planning and zoning commission members also felt the entire land mass from Halley west should be considered in one parcel, rather than having the McCulloch project considered separately.

Halley attorney Stephen Bolter argued for McCulloch that there was a mistake in the original zoning. The commission erred, Bolter said, in finding the area not suitable for the development proposed.

"What is 'suitable' development?" Bolter asked. "I would think it would be better to develop in the side valleys, rather than the main one down the highway."

Bolter said it was not the job of the planning and zoning commission to determine the economics of a particular subdivision.

The board of appeals found McCulloch's plan acceptable and voted to overturn the zoning commission's decision.

Last week, voting in executive session as the board did this week, the appeals board overturned the planning commission decision not to rezone land north of Halley for a shopping center.

A final decision in both cases rests with the county commissioners.

Experts disagree on N-plant safety

Heever admitted that the tests are not nearly as alarming when evaluated according to the government's "best estimate" calculations. These "non-conservative" calculations allow a wider degree of error, he said.

In studying the INEL test results, "I have gone back and basically just compared the best estimates with the licensing (calculations) to find out what the differences are," Heever explained.

"Even without having the computer codes, I can tell fairly closely what would be predicted" for the INEL tests according to the licensing calculations, he added.

In other words, the computer predictions would have been way off the mark and possibly could have allowed an accident if they were used in licensing an actual power plant.

"If we are going to rely on nuclear power, we better know exactly what could happen."

"The potential consequences are very severe."

"The play that they (federal officials) have taken is basically that what they are trying to do is evaluate the best estimate models and that this has nothing to do with the licensing calculations," Heever charged.

And, after each series of tests, "they modify their computer codes to show that everything is OK," he added.

These modifications don't alter the fact that the government has yet to prove that it can predict the consequences of accidents, he said.

Admitting that the codes are changed, the government spokesman, Dr. Kouts, said, "You have to realize that these experiments are done to help us improve our calculations."

"I don't think Mr. Heever even knows the character of the computer code now being used," Kouts added.

While claiming that the computer prediction methods are reliable, he admitted "there are some phenomena that we don't understand as well as we feel we need to."

CSI student enrollment up 6.4% from last year

By LINDA LEE Times-News writer TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho student enrollment reportedly is up 6.4 per cent this fall over the fall of 1974.

"We've been fortunate here at this institution to fluctuate between 4 and 10 per cent increases in enrollment each year," CSI president James Taylor said.

Dr. Donald Keith, director of admissions, said that the 6.4 per cent increase was computed by comparing the total number of credit hours enrolled for the academic classes and the total number of full-time students enrolled in the vocational-technical programs with those enrolled at this time last year.

This fall the total number of credit hours enrolled for in the academic classes is represented by 1,234 total full-time equivalents. Last fall the P.T.E. was 1,169.

This fall the total full-time students enrolled in vocational-technical programs is 374, last fall it was 376.

Dr. Keith said these figures are particularly important because the Idaho Board of Education uses them to determine funding for the college. However, because of the continuous enrollment policy at CSI and because the state board collects these figures at different times each fall, accurate comparisons from year to year are difficult, Keith said.

Dr. Taylor said overall enrollment figures in all programs is 3,156 compared with 2,998 in the fall of 1974.

Included in the 3,156 students are 1,705 enrolled in academic classes—723 enrolled in vocational-technical classes, 623 enrolled in continuing education classes and 105 enrolled in basic education studies.

Marvin Glascock, director of adult- and continuing education, reported 623 enrolled in 21 different classes. He also indicated that at least seven more classes will be enrolled at a later date during the fall semester.

Neil Cross, assistant director of vocational-technical division, reported a total of 723 persons enrolled in vocational classes. Of this number 415 persons were enrolled as full-time students in 16 different programs and 309 persons as part-time students in 20 vocational evening classes. Cross also indicated that there would be a number of evening classes enrolled later this semester.

Dr. Taylor expects the overall enrollment figure in all programs to reach 5,000 by the fall of 1980.

Recall petition presented

HOLLISTER — A petition seeking the recall of Mayor Charles Shepherd of Hollister has been presented to City Clerk C.M. Lanting.

Lanting said today he has taken the petition to Lloyd Webb, Twin Falls, who serves as attorney for the town of Hollister, to have him check the validity of the document.

"There's some questions in my mind about the interpretation of the Idaho Code," Lanting said.

The petition was presented Saturday night, but since Monday was a legal holiday Lanting said nothing could be done until Tuesday and Webb has been in court so the petition's validity still has not been determined.

Webb was in American Falls today on court business and unavailable for comment.

The petition charges Shepherd with "unjust favoritism" and seeks an election to determine if voters want him recalled.

Shepherd will not resign and expects to stand for election if the petition is found valid, according to his wife.

Bellevue contract awarded

BELLEVUE — U.S. Sen. James A. McClure announced today that the U.S. Postal Service has awarded a contract for a new main post office in Bellevue.

McClure said that Postmaster N.M. Kacalek informed him that Shaver and Bizer Co. of Boise will build the new facility.

Two parcels of land at the northwest corner of Main and Pine streets in Bellevue were acquired for the office by the postal service. Occupancy in the new facility is expected in April of 1976.

State HS bowlerama set

RUPERT — The State High School Bowlerama opens Friday at the Rupert Bowl with more than two dozen teams entered.

Three-man teams are entered representing high schools from as far west as Boise and as far east as Idaho Falls.

The three-day competition is sponsored by the Rupert Kiwanis Club, which will present trophies to winners.

Each team member will bowl a two-game set on scratch scores.

The qualifying round will be from 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Friday. Eliminations will begin Saturday with the championship match on Sunday. Weekend times have not been established.

SD woman 'strolls' to jail

BURLEY — A nonchalant stroll with a grocery cart landed a South Dakota woman in jail here Wednesday evening.

Annette Yellow Bird, 22, Pine Ridge, S.D., allegedly walked out of Albertson's Market pushing a cartload of groceries she had not purchased. She was arrested about 7 p.m. Wednesday by Burley police and is being held on $300 bond.

She is charged with shoplifting.

Minidoka drops interim census plan

RUPERT — Minidoka County has dropped consideration of an interim census.

Commissioners Tuesday decided against the census on the grounds that it was too expensive. The estimate for the entire county was a little over $10,000, with about $5,000 for the county area.

Rupert had expressed interest in joining in the census. Burley also was interested in being included, but neither had committed itself.

Heyburn already has contracted for a separate census.

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Former Idaho Republican Rep. Orval Hansen thinks he can beat incumbent Republican Rep. George Hansen, the man who ousted him from office last year.

But Orval is not sure he wants to enter a primary race against George. He gives his good job and his new-found freedom as reasons.

Even so, a political committee still is accepting campaign funds for Orval who is now working in a Washington, D.C., law firm specializing in nuclear energy industry consulting.

"I think I could win a primary. It's a question of whether I want to go back to Congress," Orval told the Times-News.

In 1974, George soundly beat Orval in the Republican primary.

"I think the last election reflected a lot of the Watergate climate and worked to the disadvantage of all incumbents. I think that this situation has changed," Orval said to explain why he thinks he now could defeat George.

George is now the incumbent, but "you've got a little bit of the Watergate working the other way," Orval said. He added, however, that it is "awfully hard to analyze" whether George's legal troubles which stemmed from the last election, would make George particularly vulnerable in a primary.

Orval said some of the "strongest encouragement" he has had to run again has come from former colleagues in Congress.

But he said his new job has brought both "a lot more" money and "a lot more freedom" than he had when he was a congressman.

"I used to make all those speeches in Congress about freedom. Now I discover what freedom is," he said.

Orval, who specialized in nuclear energy matters when he was in Congress, would not say how much money he is earning in the law firm he helped organize.

Telling the amount "would scare you," he said. But he added that if he does decide to run for Congress he will disclose all his sources of income, debt and other fiscal matters.

Orval said he has not yet thoroughly considered whether he wants to run. A decision should come by early next year, he said.

"I should be more methodical, I guess. I have to consult with a lot of friends and party people in Idaho," he said.

Despite his Washington, D.C. based law practice, Orval said he has made a number of trips back to Idaho and has kept up his legal residence in the state.

Hansen's current campaign finance report shows that in the past three months the "Friends of Orval Hansen" collected $1,353 for him to use for political purposes, according to the Idaho secretary of state's office.

It also shows that Hansen used over $900 of the campaign funds for travel expenses during the period. It shows the total current cash balance for Hansen's committee to be $2,343, down from $4,075 last spring.

Hansen said he has charged some of his travel expenses to the campaign fund on trips that "are clearly in connection with political activities."

"There is nothing more important, if I am to run, than to keep in touch with the people," he said.

Farmers, rural dwellers hampered by rising gas prices, mode lacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising gasoline prices and the lack of alternative modes of transportation deal an especially hard blow to farmers and rural residents who have to drive greater distances to work than any other occupational group.

An article in a recent Agricultural Department publication, The Farm Index, says there are preliminary indications that efforts to develop a national energy policy will have greater impact on rural residents than city dwellers.

This is especially true, the article said, because most fuel conservation efforts thus far have hinged on increasing the prices of energy to cut consumption.

Such a program is not feasible for rural households because they are so dependent on the car. In 1972, the report said, 96 per cent of all rural households with incomes more than $5,000 owned at least one car or truck compared with 87 per cent of urban households.

And almost 70 per cent of the rural poor, with incomes less than $5,000, owned a car or truck compared with only 40 per cent of the urban poor.

Families in rural areas make more automobile trips each year than residents of other areas, about 15 per cent above the national average and nearly double the average number of trips made by residents of the largest cities.

In addition to driving more miles to work, rural residents also must drive farther for shopping, medical care, recreation and leisure activities.

The publication said total miles traveled by rural households was about 15,500 a year or 42 miles a day. This is more than families living in smaller towns or cities and almost twice as many miles as people living in the largest metropolitan areas.

The article estimated boosting the cost of gasoline by 25 cents a gallon would increase the rural family's transportation costs by $175 for the urban resident. But people living in the city would have more opportunity to reduce automobile travel distances or switch to alternate means of travel such as carpools, public transportation, walking or bicycling.

The rural families have no such option, the article said.

"What all this boils down to is that rural families would have less purchasing power than others as a result of a jump in gasoline prices. The purchase of any product has two cost factors — the market price and the cost of the transportation to obtain it. Since energy folk can rarely cut the gross cost of an item by lessening the transportation, their dollar is worth less than their city cousins," the article said.

The farm residents do have one benefit not enjoyed in urban areas, however. Cars and trucks driven on relatively open roads are more energy efficient than vehicles operated in congested urban traffic.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, asked the Farmers' Home Administration today to consider granting emergency loans to southern Idaho farmers who suffered "severe" crop losses from Mormon cricket infestation this summer.

Church took the action in response to a request by Sterling W. Schow, extension agricultural agent in American Falls.

Schow wrote Church that a financial emergency does exist and that he hoped the FHA would approve some long-term, low interest emergency loans for farmers who were "most seriously affected."

He told Church "a serious financial emergency does exist" for some of these farmers and it "would seem the federal government has an obligation to meet" since the crickets invaded croplands from adjoining federal lands.

Church said he hopes the FHA would carefully review individual cases.

"I am concerned over the financial plight of the affected Idaho farmers," the senator said, "and I am going to do everything possible to secure consideration for those who qualify for loan services."

Food stamp study said necessity

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — House Agriculture Committee Chairman Tom Foley, D-Wash., said a thorough study of the Agriculture Department's food stamp program is necessary to ferret out waste, those who are ineligible and to generally tighten up the $5 billion program.

"Administration of the program has not been careful enough," Foley told a news conference in which all seven Congressional delegates from Washington kicked off a week long tour of the state seeking "a dialogue" with each others' constituents.

"The Department of Agriculture doesn't know how many people are receiving food stamps, nor how many are illegally receiving them," Foley said.

"We don't know the extent of abuse, but we do know some students, strikers and military as well as middle income persons (income over $10,000) have skirted the eligibility of the law and are receiving stamps," Foley said.

"When we find out, we're going to probably set an income criteria for recipients and write in new legislation that protects the eligible from the ineligible. We also want to administer the program and the economies that can be affected."

How much could be saved by tighter law and implementation is not known.

The food stamp program has become the most rapidly expanding social program besides Medicaid under executive and congressional jurisdiction of Agriculture.

An estimate of 20 million Americans, plus another 100 million to eat decently without help, currently receive food stamps.

Other estimates are that the program reaches only half of those eligible for the government food program.

Asked if the emphasis shouldn't be on finding other needy or possibly even hungry individuals for the program rather than going after cheaters, Foley said he felt the figures showing such high numbers are not representative of what is.

Foley said many of those overlooked by the program or who overlook it are eligible perhaps one or two months of a particular year.

He said unfortunately they are counted among those who may be eligible year round.

He said in many other cases, persons in smaller, rural areas where everybody knows everybody else, pride steps in and persons needing stamps simply refuse them when approached or don't even apply.

"I don't think there's a lack of information about the stamps," Foley said. "With such programs as Outreach we think the vast majority of those eligible on long term bases are aware of the program."

"I think what's needed is to uncover the fraud, abuse and errors in the program which create a lack of confidence in it," Foley said. "And that's the purpose of the study."

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, today called for further sale of American wheat to Russia.

"Some Idaho farmers have told me that they are having trouble storing their wheat this fall," McClure said. "It seems absurd to me that we can't sell this wheat surplus to the Soviet Union for solid cash."

He said American farmers should have the world's markets open to them in light of assurances of plenty of wheat for domestic uses and the 19 per cent increase in wheat production this year.

"Farmers simply can't afford a cut in wheat prices because of an artificial ceiling, which closes some worldwide markets," McClure said.

"While the U.S. State Department is negotiating with Russia for a long term wheat sale, Idaho's wheat producers need markets for their extra wheat crops now."

"Farmers simply can't afford a cut in wheat prices because of an artificial ceiling, which closes some worldwide markets," McClure said.

"While the U.S. State Department is negotiating with Russia for a long term wheat sale, Idaho's wheat producers need markets for their extra wheat crops now."

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, today called for further sale of American wheat to Russia.

"Some Idaho farmers have told me that they are having trouble storing their wheat this fall," McClure said. "It seems absurd to me that we can't sell this wheat surplus to the Soviet Union for solid cash."

He said American farmers should have the world's markets open to them in light of assurances of plenty of wheat for domestic uses and the 19 per cent increase in wheat production this year.

"Farmers simply can't afford a cut in wheat prices because of an artificial ceiling, which closes some worldwide markets," McClure said.

Pilots-Shoshone, Raft River-Murtaugh battles carry championship overtones

Glenns Ferry goes under the gun again and Raft River and Murtaugh look for championships Friday in the weekend football games.

But before getting to those four schools have bowed to the opening of deer season and will play Thursday evening. In another concession to the call of the wild, the Grace-Kimberly game has been moved from 8 p.m. to 3 p.m. by host Kimberly.

The Thursday night games will find the Jerome Tigers at Wendell while Wood River will be at Gooding.

The two favorites will find Glenns Ferry at Shoshone and both have little hopes riding here. Glenns Ferry beat back previously-unbeaten Kimberly last week to take the Little Five Conference lead.

Shoshone currently is tied with Kimberly in second place, hence an Indian victory would assure the league of at least a two-way and possibly three-way tie.

Kimberly has completed its loop schedule and Friday night will see Shoshone finish. Glenns Ferry has a last loop game at Valley Oct. 31.

Raft River has not lost a regular season game since Shoshone did it in the opener in 1974. It has won 15 straight since then. Murtaugh, however, has lost only one game during that span, to Raft River, of course, 30-22.

The roles seem reversed from last year when Raft River was the young team challenging the veterans. Youth was served. This time around, Murtaugh has some veterans but freshmen are playing an increasingly larger role in the Red Devil game as injuries haven't stayed away.

It could be an aerial duel—something not expected a week ago when Murtaugh's Steve Pickett chipped some small bones in his left wrist. But the right hander, with consent of his parents, has taken the first off and will play in this one.

Raft River counters with Rick Harper who has thrown a ton of touchdown passes the past two years.

Raft River is bigger. Murtaugh appears a little quicker—and that's overall since Hutcheson and Bruce White for Raft River aren't exactly slow.

In addition to the Grace-Kimberly afternoon game, the Little Five sends Valley out of conference to play at Oakley. The Hornets have been whittled to nothing by injuries while Valley hasn't had many men out all season.

In the Magic Valley Conference, Castford will be at Hansen while Hagerman entertains Dech.

The eight-man action will find Clark County at Hetchfield while Bliss goes to Rockland.

Burley goes west for a Cross State Conference game at Mountain Home.

Meanwhile, Jerome will be seeking its first win at Wendell, where the Trojans haven't won since the opener.

The Tigers should have Greg Gibson sidelined after a concussion sidelined him last week. That has to be the happiest news Coach Ed Peterson has heard this year since injuries have stripped an already thin backfield.

Wendell has played well defensively but the Trojans haven't scored in the last three outings and only in that opening win against Hagerman put up more than one touchdown. It also should be noted this is the smallest Wendell team in a long while.

Wood River will be trying to stay in the race for second place when it travels to Gooding Thursday night. Wood River sustained its first setback during last week's loss to Mountain Home in two weeks.

The Wolves need the win to set up a minor showdown for the runner-up spot at Mountain Home in two weeks.

Gooding would like to win since at 2-2 the Senators would be doomed to no better than fourth. A win would keep alive a chance for a three-way tie for second.

Triple jump mark shattered in Pan-Am

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The thin air of this capital city, which sits at an altitude of 7,300 feet, won another champion Wednesday when Joao Oliveira, a Brazilian soldier, broke the world triple jump record with a prodigious leap of 58 feet 8 1/2 inches.

Oliveira, in adding the triple jump gold medal to the long jump gold he won Monday at the Pan American Games, bettered his previous best of 54-11 by nearly four feet. He broke the old record of 57 feet 2 3/4 inches set by Olympic champion Victor Sanyev of Russia at Munich, Oct. 17, 1972.

Nearly seven years in the state Bob Beamon of the United States beat the world of track and field on its car when he long jumped 29 feet 2 1/2 inches, a personal best by nearly 2 1/2 feet—to win the '68 Olympic gold medal in the same jumping pit.

The thin air helped Tommy Hayes of Monterey, Calif., to a new U.S. national record when he won the silver medal with a jump of 56 feet 5 1/4 to beat the old mark of 55-9 set by Dave Smith, Caleb Ruffin of Los Angeles was third at 55-0 1/4.

Americans won two of the five track and field medals up for decision on the third day of competition and placed in one other final.

John Powell of Cupertino, Calif., took the discus with a toss of 294-2, some 22 feet below his existing world record, to win from Cuba's Julian Morrison and teammate Jay Silvester of Orem, Utah, who first competed internationally when Powell still was in short pants.

Kathy Weston of Reno, Nev., came back in the last 10 meters to snatch the gold medal away from Canada's Abbie Hoffman, the defending 800 meter champion, with a time of 2:04.8.

Veteran George Young of Columbia, Mo., finished third in the 20-kilometer walk behind a couple of Mexicans, Daniel Bautista winning in a time of 1 hour, 33 minutes, 5.87 seconds, while Cuba's Luis Mediana won the men's 800 in 1:47.98, the only event in which an American did not earn a medal.

The U.S. team lodged a protest about Morrison's silver medal toss of 196-6, three inches better than Silvester's throw, when the discus he used could not be found.

Officials held up the victory ceremony pending outcome of the appeal. The Cubans said the discus could not be found.

Officials held up the victory ceremony pending outcome of the appeal. The Cubans said the discus could not be found.

Oliveira, who stands 6-foot-1 and weighs 165 pounds, first competed in the triple jump two years ago. He fouled with his first trial Wednesday, then produced his history-making leap.

"I was not wised after that first foul. I did not come here to win. I just wanted to at least match my personal best. But I am glad, obviously, to have won both my events and set a world record in the process."

America's men's and women's sprinters all made it safely into the finals of the 200 meters with Pamela Jiles of New Orleans, La., the dash winner on Tuesday, breaking the Games record with a 23.03 clocking to clip nearly a half second off the mark established by Canada's Stephanie Bertie in 1971.

In the men's 200, Bill Collins of Houston, running without a bandage around his damaged thigh, won his heat in 20.8 which was 3/10ths of a second behind the winning effort of Guyana's James Gibbs in the other heat.

On the shooting range it was "USA day" when Americans swept all four gold medals with Margaret Murdock claiming a world record in the standing phase of the three-position event when she scored 385 points to better two points the old record of teammate Lones Wigger.

Mrs. Murdock, a 33-year-old nursing student at the University of Kansas and the mother of a baby boy, won the three-position gold medal with a total 1166 points" from Wigger, of Columbus, Ga., who took the silver with a 1162 total.

She scored 395 in the prone and 386 in the kneeling position.

American athletes also nailed down third and fourth places, but under the rules of the Games, which permit only two individual competitors per event, the bronze medal went to Miguel Valdez of Cuba who shot a 1150, well off the 1159 of Lanny Rasmussen of Bedford, Tex., who would have been third.

The Americans tallied 4639 points for the team gold, with Cuba and Canada finishing next in order.

Marvin Black of Columbus won the centerfire rifle gold medal with a 589 score ahead of Hershel Anderson, who also comes from Columbus, and Leopoldo Ortega of Mexico.

The U.S. scored 2334 for the team-gold medal ahead of Argentina and Cuba.

The Cubans, however, did not lose too much ground in the gold medal race, Roberto Urrutia taking all three medals in the lightweight weightlifting where Dan Cantore of Pacifica, Calif., picked up three silvers.

Tiant draws raves in Sox locker room

CINCINNATI (UPI) — "Pure guts" was the refrain being echoed throughout the victorious Boston Red Sox clubhouse.

"It was the one tribute the Red Sox players agreed fitted Luis Tiant's gutsy nine-inning, 5-4 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

"He had to be tired," said Carl Yastrzemski, who caught Joe Morgan's pop-up at first base to end the game leaving the Reds with runners on first and second. "It was guts, that's all you can say. I'll tell you, I'd let him pitch to the whole world, the way he battles."

Tiant, who threw 163 pitches, seemed to bear down even harder when the Reds closed to within 5-4 with a pair of runs in the fourth that really were not his fault. In the ninth, however, he got in trouble when Cesar Geronimo led off with a single. Ed Armbrister successfully sacrificed and Pete Rose walked.

"That brought out Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson, but Tiant wasn't ready to take a shower.

"I told him, 'I started this thing, I wanna finish it,'" Tiant said.

Puffing on his customary post-game Havana cigar, the Cuban-born 34-year-old righthander conceded Fred Lynn's ninth-inning over-the-shoulder catch in deep centerfield off Ken Griffey (the next batter after Rose) saved the game.

"It was a game-saver," Tiant said. "I threw Griffey a fastball and he hit it, but after giving up the hit to Geronimo on a curve, I threw nothing but fastballs from then on."

Lynn, the 23-year-old candidate for both the Most Valuable Player and rookie of the year awards in the American League, admitted the sensational catch might not have been made had it not been for the rain prior to the game.

"I was playing everyone back about 15 feet tonight," Lynn said. "That was because of the wet field and also because of the way the ball travels in this ballpark. I was especially moving back on Griffey because of the way he hurt us with that hit in our ball park in the second game.

"I figured I had a good shot on it. I just turned around and started running."

Still, in the end it was Tiant who the Reds couldn't solve for the second time in five days.

ABA chief says Wilt must play for San Diego or not at all

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave DeBusschere, forced into a second possible court situation, warned all interested parties Wednesday the only place Wilt Chamberlain could legally play professional basketball was in San Diego.

In a letter addressed to NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien, Wilt Chamberlain, Mike Burke, the president of Madison Square Garden Inc., which owns the New York Knicks, Los Angeles-Laker owner Jack Kent Cooke and Seymour Goldberg, Chamberlain's lawyer, DeBusschere said.

"In response to recent newspaper articles, this shall serve as notice to you that in the event Wilt Chamberlain desires to play professional basketball, he is obligated to procure said services to the American Basketball Association pursuant to a contract dated Sept. 15, 1973, said contract to expire by its terms on Sept. 30, 1976."

Chamberlain's position is that his contract was breached by the San Diego franchise last year. Under the standard ABA contract, however, a clause states that in the event a player believes his contract has been breached, the club and the league must be notified within 10 days.

According to a league spokesman, Chamberlain did not report to camp, subsequently retired and never notified the league that his contract had been breached.

The San Diego Conquistadors had fallen into financial trouble and briefly were taken over by the league office. They have since been sold and renamed the Sails.

Reds stunned by late shutout

CINCINNATI (UPI) — "I didn't think he could shut us out the last five innings," Joe Morgan said of Luis Tiant.

"But he did."

"He'd gotten every body out before and I guess he figured he could again."

Tiant allowed the Reds only three hits in his final five shutout innings Wednesday night to preserve Boston's 5-4 win over Cincinnati and even the World Series at two games apiece.

Pete Rose figured Tiant pitched even better Wednesday night than Saturday, when the 34-year-old veteran with a corkscrew delivery blanked the Reds in the Series opener.

"I think he hit the ball better Saturday," said Rose, breaking the quiet of the subdued Reds' dressing room.

"He kept the ball away from us tonight," explained Rose. "He was being very careful. He made the big pitch when he needed it."

"And, Lynn made the big play too," added Rose, referring to Boston centerfielder Fred Lynn's magnificent game-saving catch of Ken Griffey's drive with two on in the bottom of the ninth inning.

"Four hundred feet," mused Rose of the distance Griffey's drive carried before Lynn grabbed it. "That'd been trouble in Fenway Park."

"But, it's a game of inches. I hit one like it last night and he (Lynn) missed it," recalled Pete. "Lynn made the big play tonight."

Reds Manager Sparky Anderson propped his feet on his desk and refused to worry about losing a game that could have given his ball club a 3-1 edge.

"I don't take anything hard," contended Sparky. "It doesn't bother me in any shape, or form."

"To me, baseball is fun," he continued. "If you look at it as a life or death thing, then you're going to have a long struggle."

TF, Minico try Nampa, Caldwell

Twin Falls makes its last trip of the year, going to Caldwell, while Minico travels to Nampa Friday night in SIC action.

The teams enter the last half of the conference season all but mathematically out of playoff contention.

Twin Falls fell a probably fatal step behind — being snowed under by Highland 42-0.

"The score was indicative of the game," says Coach Dennis Almquist. "They just beat the heck out of us. We have no excuses, we just didn't play well."

This week Twin Falls welcomes back running back Mike Allison, who missed the Highland game with a leg injury.

Caldwell goes into the battle winless but the Cougars do something that gave Twin Falls fits last week against Highland — throw to men out of the backfield.

Running back Scott Engum is their leading receiver with 21 catches. The Cougars also are the passngest team in the league and Greg Blood does most of the throwing. He has passed 101 times, completed 47 for 558 yards and four touchdowns.

Minico might be hitting

Meridian at the wrong time. The Warriors had trouble during the early part of the schedule but in the last two games have moved the ball well. They picked up 238 against Twin Falls and then 507 against luckless Caldwell.

Washington closes Snake river steelhead fishing

SEATTLE (UPI) — The State Game Commission Wednesday continued indefinitely its closure of the Snake River to steelhead fishing.

Commissioners had been imposing temporary closures of three-months duration, the last one of which would expire Jan. 1. Today's action makes the closure a permanent order effective until rescinded by the commission.

A State Game Department spokesman said that 80 per cent of the steelhead expected to migrate upstream this season already have passed Lower Granite Dam and the count amounts to only 12,700 fish. Only 16,000 are expected to make it. Over a 10-year period the average in the recent past has been 57,000 migrants a year.

The commission said the Snake is closed to steelhead fishing because runs of that fish in the river are in danger of becoming obliterated.

Victorious huntsman

HUNTER Jay Lajeunesse, Twin Falls, displays the deer he picked up in the opening day of the deer season in the south hills Wednesday. Kirk Burrows, checking station employee, checks it out.

Few deer greet fewer hunters in midweek south hills opening

Midweek opening of the general deer season accomplished its purpose in the south hills Wednesday.

In a real reversal of the dust-raising bumper-to-bumper reenactment of previous years, things were slow. Idaho Fish and Game Department checking station personnel almost "could" nap between visits of hunters going into or out of the area.

By and large hunters were reporting few sightings of game.

This was not unexpected in that area since the Cassia division has been heavily used this fall by weekend parties seeking firewood. District Ranger Lew Munson noted hundreds have been in the hills for that and other recreational purposes the past few weekends.

The heavy presence of man should have pushed the deer off the roadways.

Purpose of the midweek opening, to a degree, is to reduce the harvest by sharpening up the animals before the wholesale invasion of hunters.

Those planning a weekend trip into the hills are advised that the sideroads still have some snow on them and all are wet and muddy. The main access roads are in good condition.

Jerome grabs SCIC cross country title

JEROME — Jerome ran off with another South Central Idaho Conference cross country title while the girls and Wood River shared distaff honors.

Mike Thompson took the individual victory in pacing Jerome to 23 points while Wood River had 65, Mountain Home 71, Filer 85, and Buhl 164.

Mark Tappan, Buhl, who took the wrong turn — but didn't check out the course before hand — was second, followed by Chester.

Knocki, Mountain Home, Rocky Bartholomew, Jerome; Dan Archambault, Jerome; Monty Tolman, Jerome; Allen Klaas, Jerome; Brian Gebner, Filer; Joe Larrison, Wood River, and Mark Slemmon, Wood River.

Jerome and Wood River girls had 37 each while Filer had 84, Mountain Home 113, Buhl 129.

Sue Shay and Rose Bergin gave Wood River a one-to finish, followed by Jill Mechem, Jerome; Beth Rupprecht, Filer, and Janet Dickerson, Wood River.

CSI Boosters meet tonight

College of Southern Idaho Eagle boosters will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the gymnasium instead of Wednesday as previously reported.

All interested persons are invited by Dr. Robert Ridgeway, booster president.

Stoneham rejects new offer

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A southern California mortgage banking company made a public bid Wednesday to buy the San Francisco Giants baseball club, and move it 50 miles to San Jose, but its latest offer, according to Horace Stoneham, "isn't in the ballpark" and "doesn't deserve comment."

While officials of the company (American Funding of Beverly Hills) insist they have spent many hours negotiating the purchase of the Giants, Stoneham, who owns more than 70 per cent of the club, says "these people haven't approached me. They are getting publicity and I guess that's what they want."

Merle Jones and Gordon Eldred of American Funding said at a news conference Wednesday "we have made two firm offers to purchase the club."
