Living cost rise follows 'line'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of living rose a moderate 0.5 percent in September, more than twice the pace set in August but nowhere near the high levels reached earlier this year, the Labor Department said today.

The consumer price rise in September compared to a slight jump of 0.2 percent in August — the smallest advance in three years.

But the September increase, which works out to a 6 percent annual rate, was more consistent with what economists believe is the current long-term trend of inflation. It was considerably lower than the 1.2 percent jump — 14.4 percent annually — in July.

— Transit fare hikes — particularly in New York City — combined with increases in college tuition, physicians' fees, gas, "electricity, clothing and pork to drive consumer prices up last month.

Those increases were partially offset by declines in the prices of fresh fruits, vegetables and beef.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 163.6 in September, 7.8 percent higher than a year ago.

That means the same goods and services that cost $100 in 1967, now cost $163.60.

The cost of services jumped a substantial 1 percent in September, Labor said, primarily as a result of an increase in New York City transit fares from 35 cents to 50 cents. Food prices rose a slight 0.1 percent and the costs of other goods were up 0.3 percent, all seasonally adjusted.

These increases, combined with a decline in the hours an average worker spent on his job, produced an 0.6 percent decline in real spendable income, Labor said. Over the year, however, real spendable earnings rose up as the result of income tax cuts last May.

Food prices went up less than economists had expected in September. Beef prices, which have risen at enormous rates this year, fell sharply in September — a month when they normally hold stable. Fruit and vegetable prices also fell, particularly the prices of potatoes, onions and apples, along with cereal and bakery prices.

Historian Toynebee dies at 86

YORK, England (UPI) — Historian Arnold Toynebee, 86, died at his home today.

The cause of his death was not disclosed. Toynebee was best known for his monumental 12 volume work, "A Study of History," written between 1927 and 1961. He described it as "an attempt to take a synthetic view of the whole of human history."

Priest testifies in Quinlan trial

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (UPI) — A Catholic priest testified today he first brought up the possibility of removing Karen Ann Quinlan from a life-sustaining respirator last April 15 — the day after she slipped into a coma.

The Rev. Thomas J. Trapasa, testifying in Superior Court on a request by Karen's parents to let their 21-year-old daughter "die with dignity," said he advised the girl's father, Joseph Quinlan, that such action would not be a sin.

Talks stall

DUBLIN (UPI) — The kidnappers of Dutch businessman Tiede Herrera and the soldiers and police outside surrounding hideout continued their stalemate today.

Offers to send food to the second story stronghold were refused and the abductors, taunted Herrera to make a break, threatening to kill him if he did. Negotiation attempts seeking his release also were stalled.

Default bill faces House trouble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Republican opponent of federal intervention to save New York City from default predicted today such a bill would be approved by the House Banking Committee but run into trouble on the House floor.

Rep. Willis D. Gradison Jr., who served as mayor of Cincinnati before his election to the House last fall, said opposition to a loan guarantee bill was running strong in Congress and throughout the country.

S. Carolina Guard alert issued

FLORENCE, S.C. (UPI) — Gov. James B. Edwards placed units of the South Carolina National Guard on "standby alert" early today following an outbreak of violence stemming from the fatal shooting of a black man by a white city policeman.

Bricks were tossed through car windows and two businesses were looted in the incident which police said involved several hundred blacks. One man suffered a broken jaw in the incident.

Senate panel blocks loan guarantee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the first round of what promises to be a heated debate, opponents of federal aid to a financially ailing New York City today blocked Senate committee action on a loan guarantee bill.

An objection by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr., D-Va., a conservative, prevented the Senate Banking Committee from acting on a bill while the Senate was in session. One senator's objections can block action.

GSA nominee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jack Eckerd, 63, a Florida businessman and long-time friend of President Ford, is his choice for head of the General Services Administration.

The agency manages construction and properties and maintains records on federal property throughout the United States. Eckerd heads a drug store chain and was a U.S. Senate candidate in 1974.

Franco elings to absolute power

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco, the last of Europe's rightwing strongmen, clung to power today, refusing to surrender his absolute rule despite a severe heart attack, authoritative sources reported.

A government communique said Tuesday Franco is recovering from an "acute coronary deficiency" and capable of holding meetings. But the government called off his audiences for today.

Labor pushes for higher pay scale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO told Congress today a $3 an hour minimum wage, an increased pay rate for overtime and a shorter work week would help solve the current problem of high unemployment.

Andrew Blemler, AFL-CIO legislative director, said in testimony prepared for a House labor subcommittee that the labor federation endorses a bill that would increase the minimum wage to $3 an hour on Jan. 1, 1977.

Army spends illegally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army has illegally spent some $150 million since 1970 due to accounting error and "a number of factors," it was announced today.

Assistant Army Secretary Hadjal A. Hull said in a letter to Congress' armed services committees that between 1970 and 1975 "approximately $150 million has been obligated apparently without authority."

Such spending would constitute a violation of the Anti-Deficiency Act and the individuals responsible could face criminal charges.

"The Army is conducting an investigation to fix responsibility for this error," a spokesman said. "Since the investigation is still in progress, it is too early to comment on who is responsible or what disciplinary action may be appropriate."

According to the statement, the $150 million loss "was caused by a number of factors including the Vietnam phase-down, the rapid growth of foreign military sales, sloppy accounting practices and the 1971 change by Congress from a single procurement appropriation good for an unlimited time to a system of five separate appropriations which are good for only three years."

Bank credit cancellation gave Regal tax problems

BY RICHARD G. HIGH
Times-News Managing Editor

TWIN FALLS — The president of Regal Homes says his firm's shortage of cash which led to tax problems for Regal's owners was caused by a bank's abrupt cancellation of credit.

According to Claude Roe, president of Regal Homes, a Twin Falls-based manufacturer of modular houses, the Bank of Idaho abruptly withdrew a $1 million line of credit in mid-June and demanded rapid payback of the firm's outstanding debt.

Roe said the problem of paying back the $170,000 in outstanding debt plus the cancellation of future credit led to a shortage of money in the firm.

He said Regal's owner, Greater Idaho Corp., Twin Falls, was forced to bring in money from its other Idaho companies; Air Idaho and Ponderosa Inns Inc. and from Greater Idaho's out-of-state owners.

As a result, Greater Idaho's firms fell behind in payment of their tax bills, which led to state and federal tax officials filing tax liens against Greater Idaho totaling about $200,000, he said.

A Bank of Idaho official said today he was reluctant to discuss the loan.

According to Rich McKernan, Bank of Idaho vice president and Twin Falls branch manager, the bank stopped making loans to Regal after a change in ownership.

McKernan said the bank "was unable to establish a credit arrangement with the California owners. He would not comment further.

Greater Idaho was sold to a California firm, Power Mountain Ski Corp. of Tustin, Calif.

Power Mountain's president, John M. Driggers, Tuesday confirmed the California firm had provided money to the Idaho firms during the ownership transition.

"We have problems, but I wouldn't say they are serious," Driggers said.

"We had some cash flow problems. We have almost finished out financing Regal," he said.

"Now we're looking around for more credit," he said.

"The business will continue," he said.

"We've been profitable since February, except we had to take all the money and pay back Bank of Idaho."

Regal's troubles won't have any serious effect on the solvency of Regal's owner, Greater Idaho, according to Greater Idaho's president, President John Hatley said Tuesday the firm's assets are about $6 million more than its liabilities.

"We have problems, but I wouldn't say they are serious," Hatley said.

Snooping coverup complete

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two former postmasters general testified today they had no knowledge of illegal filing of the mail by the CIA. A third told Congress he had been skimpily briefed on the operation.

"I'm sure, from my recollection, I wasn't told anything ... I figured the CIA had its own line of authority and I had absolutely no more control over them than the Air Force," said J. Edward Day, the nation's top postal official between 1961 and 1963.

Day told the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence that then-CIA Director Allen Dulles wanted to tell him "something very secret" in early 1961 but he told Dulles he didn't want to hear it.

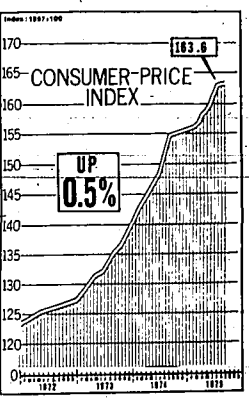

John A. Gronouski, postmaster general from 1963 through 1965, testified that he was never informed of the 20-year mail operation but would certainly have done something about it if he had known.

"Anyone who runs a government agency has a responsibility to find out anything that goes on," he said.

But the committee, probing the inspection of some 28 million pieces of U.S. mail to and from Communist countries until 1973, heard differently from Winston M. Blount.

Blount, postmaster general from 1969 to 1971, testified he was "briefed" shortly after taking office by then CIA Director Richard Helms on the project. But he said he had no knowledge that several million pieces of mail were actually opened and copied and that he never was shown examples of intercept.

"I had no inkling that the CIA was opening the mail," he said. "Helms was Director of the CIA. I had great respect for him. He was telling about a matter of great importance."

Yanks seized by guerrillas

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Guerrillas kidnapped two U.S. Embassy officials in a Muslim-Palestinian district of Beirut today as they were driving to work. Two Lebanese women employees also were seized but released and carried news of the abductions to American officials.

The two Americans, the director and deputy director of the U.S. Embassy's Regional Service Center, were among scores of persons kidnapped by gangs of gunmen freely roaming the capital's deserted streets.

An embassy spokesman identified the officials as Charles Gallagher, 44, of Roanoke, W. Va., and William Dykes Jr., 65, of San Jose, Calif.

The spokesman said the two men were abducted shortly after 7 a.m. while passing through the Corniche Mazraa.

Burley couple dies in crash

BURLEY — A longtime Burley farmer and his wife were among three people killed Tuesday afternoon in a head-on collision on a lonely stretch of road about 18 miles south of Williston, N.D.

Carl Melvine and his wife, Dora, were killed instantly when their car collided with another car driven by Anita Bird, 50, of Williston.

Mrs. Bird also died in the accident. Her 5-year-old granddaughter suffered a broken jaw and facial lacerations.

The accident occurred about 4:30 p.m. Tuesday four miles north of Alexander on US Highway 85. The area is northwest of the Theodore Roosevelt National Memorial Park.

A North Dakota Highway Patrol official said Mrs. Bird was traveling south on her way to a teachers' convention in Fargo.

The official said officers had been unable to question the granddaughter about the cause of the accident because of her broken jaw.

A third driver was following the Melvine car and was about to pass it. He said he saw the Bird car swerve into the left hand lane and the two cars collided.

He said the Melvines were traveling about 50 miles per hour but could not give an estimate of the Bird car's speed.

The Highway Patrol theorized that Mrs. Bird may have reached down to pick up something off the floor, causing the car to swerve.

High hopes, dreams short-lived for Hollister pair

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

HOLLISTER — "God is good, so I'm going to hang on," the glassy-eyed old man murmured to himself.

It was a quiet vow, the type one would expect from B. J. (Benjamin James) Moon, a diminutive man who retired to Hollister in 1970 with his wife, Muriel.

The Moons came here with high hopes. "We was just goin' to sail. We was goin' to fish and hunt only," he recalled.

But their dreams were short-lived.

In 1972, Moon, 67, gradually lost control of his right arm and leg. He went to a Boise hospital for an operation and rehabilitation "to learn to walk again." Much of the bill was covered by Medicare, but the remaining sum ate deeply into their savings.

Then Mrs. Moon, 63, entered Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. She suffers from many ailments and has since been hospitalized twice in the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital.

During her last stay, she was struck by a heart attack and has been bedridden at her sister's home in Twin Falls since her release a week ago.

Her doctor, S. J. Smith, says she had "about 14 or 15 major disorders when she was last in the hospital." The list is long, but the most painful are her arthritis and an "insufficiency of the veins in her legs," according to Dr. Smith.

"The insufficiency of veins does not allow blood to return, so it tends to back up and fluid will drain into the tissues," he said.

Most of Mrs. Moon's ailments "are not curable. They are not imminently fatal but they are debilitating," he added. In other words, the Moons can expect more medical bills.

She also carries, but does not suffer from, sickle-cell anemia. It is a hereditary disease confined to the black race.

"Thank God we didn't have any children," Mrs. Moon said Monday. She was not aware she carried the sickle-cell trait until it was discovered in Twin Falls.

The Moons lived in Berkeley, Calif., for 38 years, where he worked 28 years as a machinist. Moon suffered a heart attack in 1969 and they decided to move to Hollister. They had visited Mrs. Moon's sister often and enjoyed the hunting and fishing in Idaho. (Continued on p. 17)

House panel waits for Henry's word on paper

Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — The House Intelligence Committee will hear Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger before acting on his refusal to turn over a controversial document on Cyprus.

Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., the committee chairman, who voted for immediate contempt action, virtually conceded defeat in his battle with Kissinger.

A closed meeting did not necessarily agree with Kissinger's position but "believed we would lose on the House floor."

The memorandum was written by Thomas D. Boyatt, Cyprus desk officer at the time of the coup there in 1974. Boyatt is understood to have accepted Kissinger's suppressing an intelligence report that Turkey was about to invade the island.

Solons eye arms talk lag

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three liberal senators have expressed concern that the U.S.-Soviet negotiations on curbing strategic missiles and bombers may have bogged down and could delay a new arms control agreement until well into 1976.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., called on the Ford administration to propose to the Russians a mutual ban on cruise missiles — essentially pilotless bombers — as a way to break the remaining impasses.

Anti-trust move end advised

WASHINGTON — In an unexpected move, an administrative law judge has recommended to the Federal Trade Commission that it withdraw an antitrust complaint it lodged against Exxon and seven other big oil companies.

Justice Alvin L. Berman said the complaint, which alleges monopoly power and excessive prices and profits, fails to relate these issues to the question of national energy policy that has emerged since the complaint was issued in July, 1974.

Ford's record may cost major cities, states

Washington — President Ford is gradually building a record that is almost sure to lose him the big Northern cities and states in next year's election. He didn't plan it this way, but that's the way it's coming out.
 By trying to scare New York City into solvency, he has scared the other big states that may face similar financial crises that have the most electoral votes and usually decide presidential elections.
 New York's plight is merely an exceptionally dramatic symbol of a general urban crisis. The welfare problem, the unemployment problem and the financial problem are all worse in Newark, Philadelphia, Boston, Detroit, Chicago, Los Angeles and San Francisco than in the rest of the country, but the President is acting as if poor folk don't vote.

Nobody can charge him with inconsistency or insincerity. He is talking precisely as he did when he was running for Congress from Grand Rapids, Mich. He is against bankruptcy and loaners. He insists with Calvin Coolidge that budgets must be balanced or deficits result, and that Thomas Jefferson and Billy Graham that cities are the root of all sin.
 On the whole, his policies are not as bad as his lectures and his priorities. "The President will not take action to prevent a New York City default," Tom Nissen, the White House press secretary, said the other day. New York, he added, was like "a wayward daughter, hooked on heroin."
 "You don't give her $100 a day to support her habit. You make her go cold turkey to break the habit," Nissen said.
 In theological terms, this is not a bad argument, and it goes over at $100-a-plate political dinners, most of them financed by tax-deductible funds. But if the preacher insists at the same time on backing the Pentagon, which is hooked on over $100-billion-a-year budgets, and cuts the food stamp program and the school lunch appropriations, where "cold turkey" is a luxury, he must be surprised if the poor folk go back to the Democratic party.

 Symbols are critical in politics, and the battle for fiscal responsibility in the country is obviously long overdue, but it is flawed when a President demands hundreds of millions to save Saigon, and then turns his back on New York and tells it to make do and mend. "Correct yourself," he says, get your expenditures in line with your revenues — this from an administration that has the largest series of deficits in the history of the republic!

Politically, this was a fairly good argument for a while. New York City exaggerates everything. It reaches higher into the skies and sinks lower into the granite than any other city. Whenever we're treating our prospects not good these days, New York leads the way, with the tallest buildings, the deepest deficits, the most creative natives, the most liberal payments to the poor.
 But if New York squandered its resources and wasted its power, there came a time a few weeks ago when the crisis became a national one, and a world economic problem, and the issue was not primarily how to reform it, but how to save it. This is where the other cities and even the other nations of the world came to New York's defense, but not President Ford.
 Even Vice President Rockefeller, who has been more loyal to his chief than to himself or his own policies of the past, finally spoke for federal aid to New York, and even Secretary of the Treasury Simon, of all people, now suggests that maybe a reformed and humiliated city should get some help from the Congress — of course, on conditions.
 But the political consequences of this crisis have gone on long enough and dramatically enough to revive a divided, leaderless, and frustrated Democratic Party, and bring the labor unions back again to its support.
 President Ford may be right in economic theory and he believes he is right in moral philosophy, but with almost 8 million people on his own policies of the past, and in the open they are, the political tides are beginning to run against him.
 For New York's crisis is not the fault of one city alone. The fantastic costs of the Vietnam war, the welfare legislation in Washington, and many other factors have contributed to this crisis. These were national decisions and not something the mayors of New York thought up on their own.
 So the Congress will undoubtedly insist on additional austerities by Mayor Beame; but it will not let New York City default on its payroll and other obligations in the end. You can feel even among legislators as conservative as Gerald Ford.

Ford plan fights hunger and taxes

President Ford's plan to pare down the swollen food stamp program is worth considering. While some of the program's specifics are questionable, the central notion that food stamp aid should be limited to poor families makes sense. The Ford plan also would save money, about $1.2 billion out of current expenditures of $5.2 billion. While saving money is a worthy goal, it shouldn't be accomplished by taking food away from hungry people.

The Ford plan would not limit food stamp aid to poverty-level families. It would allow monthly incomes of $100 or $125 more than the poverty level.

At present, a family of four would need an income of below $421 a month to be considered poverty level.

The Ford plan would call for a "standard deduction" of $100 a month for families, or $125 a month with families containing a person 60 years of age or older.

That would bring food stamps to families with monthly incomes of up to $521, or $546 with families with older members.

Under the Ford plan, families would buy food stamps by paying a flat 30 per cent of their incomes after the standard deduction had been subtracted. So the most food stamps would cost a family of four without older members would be about $126 a month.

As income falls, the amount paid would fall proportionately. A family of four with an income of $100 a month would pay nothing.

The Ford plan is simple, and should be reasonably easy to administer. It would remove many families from the food stamp lines who probably shouldn't be there in the first place.

However, there are grounds to question some of the fine print in Ford's plan. For example, he proposes to determine eligibility for food stamps by counting the income of the last three months. At present, an estimate of next month's income is the basis for determining eligibility.

It could be argued that the three-month time period is too long, particularly for a family without savings which suddenly loses its income. Such a family would have to wait three months before it reached full food stamp benefits — a long time if you are hungry.

On the other hand, the current method of estimating future income obviously can lead to abuses by non-eligible people. Perhaps some formula could be set up considering both past income and estimated future income.

Still the thrust of the program is sound. Help the needy. And help the taxpayer, who also is needy.

Connally standing out in the open, hoping

Washington — A decision President Ford made last summer not to offer former Texas Gov. John B. Connally the post of secretary of state could have an adverse effect on Ford's campaign to win four more years in the White House.

This space reported in July that Ford was considering Connally for an important cabinet post, including the state job. According to White House sources, the President did offer to appoint Connally secretary of health, education and welfare, but the Texan turned him down. Connally, it is said, would have taken the state portfolio, but Ford told him it wasn't up for grabs.

Now Connally politely threatens to play the role of a wrench in the Ford campaign machinery. He is saying that although he is now a Republican he has his own mind and may even join up with a third party movement led by William Rusher, publisher of the conservative National Review.

Of Rusher's project, Connally says it's "a good idea that could perform a useful service." At the same time, he thinks former California Gov. Ronald Reagan's primary challenge to Ford is "a good thing" because the Republican Party has never experienced enough "excitement and debate."

Gerald Ford can be forgiven if he is a touch confused. This is, after all, the same John Connally who continues to claim that he is "a supporter" of the President, and yet complains that Ford has not yet shown "the capacity of leadership to challenge and inspire the nation." A Congressional Texan close to Connally says there's nothing to be confused about. "What we have here," he says, "is John Connally keeping his options open, taking care of John Connally. If Ford and Reagan get into a dog fight that hurts Ford real bad, John wants to be around as a compromise alternative. John wants to be right, but given his druthers he'd rather be President."

It is a role handmade for Connally, who has always taken a coolly pragmatic approach to major league politics. After all, he is a national figure in his own right, and he has everything to win and nothing to lose by qualifying his support of Gerald Ford. There is no law that says Connally has to throw in with Ford at this early date, and there is enough difference of opinion in party ranks so that Connally runs no risk of being ostracized for postponing an all-out endorsement of the President.

Connally's view of himself as a potential presidential candidate is revealed in his remarks on a Ford-Reagan contest. He says simply he hasn't decided what he will do about taking sides. "I might wind up supporting neither of them," he adds. Meanwhile, he just "might run as a favorite son" in the May Texas primary and elsewhere, "but if I do I'll do it on my own. I wouldn't be running as a stand-in or as a surrogate for anyone."

In short, while Connally is not now a candidate, he is standing out there in the open to give lightning a chance to strike. His complaint that Ford has "got to be more imaginative, more aggressive and more innovative on the issues" has the sound of a politician who is confident he's got the qualities he claims Ford lacks.

He's warming up the Connally bandwagon, just in case.

At long last, a transportation policy

By NEA/London Economist News Service
 WASHINGTON — (LENS) — Just what is the federal government's policy on transport?

Congress has been demanding a reply since 1970, three years after the umbrella Department of Transportation was set up, and only got it this month.

William Coleman, who has been the department's head for a matter of months, does not pretend that he has all the answers; his ideas, he says, are designed to provide a basis for discussion. That is realistic.

At present this power lies with the regulatory agencies and approved mergers are exempt from prosecution on antitrust grounds. The Department of Transportation wants this state of things to continue; the Department of Justice disagrees strongly.

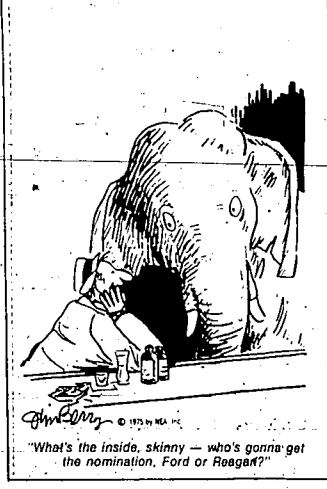

Congress is an even bigger hurdle, and it will have the last word over proposals to introduce more equity into the distribution of federal assistance. At present a third of the total goes to shipping; mass transport, a newcomer, comes next, followed by aviation and road transport, with the railways, which have to provide and maintain their own track, trailing far behind.

Coleman wants the barge operators to pay taxes for the use of the waterways which the federal government keeps up at a cost of over $500 million a year. Road transport may be asked to pay more than it does for the use of roads built at vast expense to the taxpayer.

Coleman is not one of those visionaries who dream of the day when all urban Americans will use public transport. The car, he says, is the most universally accepted means of transport. But it must be made less polluting and more energy efficient and it must be used responsibly.

By responsibly he means that cars cannot continue to have unlimited access to the centers of big cities. Already there are plans to ask certain cities to cooperate in creating experimental "auto-free" areas.
 Public transport, however, also needs some discipline. Coleman noted that costly commuter railway systems are suitable only for a handful of big metropolitan areas; in general money is better spent on buses and underground systems.
 What he wants — and he can withhold money to get it — is for communities to consider carefully what is the best mix of cars, taxis and public transport to meet their needs.

Another game of Chinese checkers starting

Washington — Having begun his career as a new China hand in 1971, when he opened the door for President Nixon, Henry Kissinger returned on his eighth Peking trip fully aware of the need for patience and caution in that diplomatic maze.

"Normalization" in the sense of exchanging regular embassies instead of liaison missions is not at issue right now nor will it be next month when President Ford follows up Kissinger's latest breakthrough journey.

"Normality" cannot even be contemplated so long as Washington is still bound to the Taiwan government by a mutual defense treaty. Moreover, it is politically unrealistic to imagine the administration might invalidate that treaty during an election year.

This issue is unlikely to arise during the secretary of state's conversations this week. Peking has already signaled even without U.S. moves on Taiwan.

However, this signal has been accompanied by a counterpart of Chinese complaints. This year; cancellation of a theatrical tour of Peking companies; calling off a visit by American mayors; objecting to a musical tour here by Tibetan exiles.

There are hints that a cooler wind blows out of China toward America these days. Kissinger's old friend Chou En-Lai is medically incapacitated and fully out of the picture. Deputy Premier Teng Hsiao-ping, who now manages most operations, is less sophisticated, less subtle, and harder for Kissinger to work with.

Hard liners such as Teng could not have been favorably disposed when the United States, at perceptions on issues both consider important. All of which can be shortened into one word — RUSSIA.

When Kissinger and Nixon first broke the ice in China they were, in effect, using Peking as a backdrop to Moscow where arms reduction and détente were being sought. The latter kind of approach must always be fully explained in Peking, whose understanding and confidence is needed by Washington.

Against this background, differences between China and the United States over Taiwan are less important than their concurrent need to restrain Soviet tendencies to expand. Peking has been made to feel the latter need in recent months as Moscow dispatched large missions of military and civilian technicians to Laos on the Chinese border.

When Kissinger and Nixon first broke the ice in China they were, in effect, using Peking as a backdrop to Moscow where arms reduction and détente were being sought. The latter kind of approach must always be fully explained in Peking, whose understanding and confidence is needed by Washington.

Against this background, differences between China and the United States over Taiwan are less important than their concurrent need to restrain Soviet tendencies to expand. Peking has been made to feel the latter need in recent months as Moscow dispatched large missions of military and civilian technicians to Laos on the Chinese border.

This is now becoming a dangerous touchstone. China has been extending its own highway system into Laos. The latest road section under construction is guarded by armed Chinese troops. North Vietnam apparently is anything but risk opposing Peking's efforts to force therefore it called in its Soviet friends to assume the burden.

The situation has become more tense in that relatively obscure corner of Southeast Asia. China, worries once again about Moscow's ef-orts to encircle it. Consequently Peking is nervous about the progress of U.S. Soviet détente, about the relative increase in Russia's armed power, and about the flabby condition of NATO at the U.S.S.R.'s back.

Despite the wide ideological gap between China and the United States and despite political differences and global aims, the two powers share mutual concerns about Russia. And that is what present talks and journeys are about. Both parties agree on the need to understand each other on the rules of cooperation with respect to Moscow.

Nothing dramatic should be anticipated as a result of the newest round of conversations. China, for example, hasn't indicated at any time that it would like to purchase arms from the U.S., to make up for the total break with Soviet suppliers. Nor has Russia uttered any official warnings against Washington's resumption of the Peking-Liaison talks.

From an American viewpoint, we don't want Chinese truculence or suspicion to jeopardize our basic policy of détente with Moscow. From a Chinese viewpoint they don't want that policy of détente in any way to jeopardize China itself. This is neither new nor, as I have said, dramatic. Yet the world's fate depends on how well the game is played.

ICL seeks public views

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Conservation League (ICL) hopes to "incite activity" at an energy workshop in Twin Falls next month.

The "activity" will be directed toward establishing a "good energy policy for Idaho" based on public opinion.

Dwight Jensen, Pocatello, came to Twin Falls Tuesday to drum up support for a scheduled Nov. 18 energy workshop at the College of Southern Idaho. It will be one of eight November meetings sponsored throughout the state by the ICL.

Jensen is project director for the series, which was made possible by a grant to the ICL by the U.S. Office of Education.

Other than a follow-up report, two things should come from the meetings, Jensen said Tuesday.

First, the opinions of Idaho residents on an energy policy will be relayed to all levels of government and industry. This should make it easier to implement a national, state or local policy.

"It will be a channel to help officials be aware of what the people want," Jensen said.

Second, a handbook will be produced based on the meetings showing methods of conservation and discussing the future of energy.

Idaho is "unique" in that it has no developed sources of "conventional energy except falling water," Jensen said.

And the public has made it known that hydro power has about reached its limits, he added. They want to preserve remaining waterways in their present state.

Since the demand for energy will not decrease, alternate forms must be found and utilized, he said. The policy statement that will come from the series of meetings should make it clear what the people want.

Also, Idaho's sparse population poses special problems in energy conservation, according to Jensen. Mass transit, for instance, "can't bring about the savings" that it would in more populated areas, he said.

The Twin Falls meeting, which will be held from 1 to 9:30 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho, will include a discussion of local issues. Atomic energy and its effect on the Snake River aquifer will be among the topics.

Political trend change stressed

BY SHANE O'NEILL

BURLEY — A national swing toward conservative politics is underway in the U.S. according to Helen Chenoweth, state executive director for the Republican Party.

She was in Burley Tuesday to direct a seminar for precinct workers. The workshop was one of 25 covering every area of the state. A similar one was held in Twin Falls Monday.

Miss Chenoweth said a Gallup poll recently indicated 61 per cent of the people would label themselves conservative, rather than liberal or moderate.

She pointed out that the same figure in a Republican-sponsored poll identified with the principles and philosophy of the Republican Party, although only 18 per cent identified with the party itself.

Miss Chenoweth said that means that 61 percent of the people "in every precinct think like we do and like our delegations vote." She theorized that the more conservative lifestyle stemmed from rejection of the rebellious period of the 1960s and a return to moderation.

Even the Democrats are talking conservative, she said, but added that such an about-face was suspect and stemmed from reading the swing to conservatism on the part of the people.

The executive director took an optimistic view of the Republican Party's future. She said polls now show 25 per cent of the people identifying with the party; an increase of 7 per cent over the earlier poll and one she credited to President Ford's strong stances on foreign and economic matters.

She said a primary held in western states today would show the President winning in Washington, Oregon, and Alaska, while Reagan would take the other three states. Ford and Reagan representatives were in Idaho last week establishing their committees for the state.

Miss Chenoweth does not think the party will experience the divisiveness it did in 1964, when Barry Goldwater was nominated.

Bank's sign metric

TWIN FALLS — The temperature sign on the Idaho First National Bank here may read 2 degrees on the way to work tomorrow but don't rush back home for your woollies.

TWIN FALLS isn't experiencing a premature cold blast. Instead, the bank has simply converted its temperature reading into the centigrade scale.

Harold Stearley, vice president, said, "It was our feeling on this thing that we should start going into the metric system. . . . As we move closer . . . we felt this was a good way to get it out."

The American Sign and Indicator Corp., Spokane, which provides the sign for the bank, has converted many of its time and temperature signs around the country, Stearley said.

On the centigrade scale 0 degrees is freezing and 100 degrees is boiling. On the Fahrenheit scale, freezing is at 32 degrees and boiling at 212.

The sign now registers the time, the temperature in Fahrenheit and then in Celsius, or centigrade.

Gary Messenger at the high school provided formulas for converting between the two systems. To convert Fahrenheit to centigrade, you take the Fahrenheit temperatures minus 32 then multiply that number by 5/9.

Mother of boy, 6, sues father over shop injury

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Buhl mother is seeking damages in excess of $500,000 in connection with injuries suffered by her 6-year-old son.

In a complaint filed in Fifth Judicial District Court, Janice Brinkman, mother and legal guardian of Derrick Brinkman, asks $500,000 general damages plus $2,000 hospital costs, $10,000 other medical costs, $10,000 for herself for loss of her child's services.

Named defendants in the case are Ollie Brinkman, owner of Brinkman's Market, and Howard James and Robert Brinkman, the child's father, and Globe Slicing Machine Co.

The complaint charges negligence in an accident Oct. 28, 1974, at the Brinkman Market when Derrick Brinkman lost his right hand and part of his right arm when he put his hand into a meat grinder.

Mrs. Brinkman said the child was at the market at the invitation of the owner and Robert Brinkman and was left alone with the machine. Mrs. Brinkman charges the manufacturing firm with failure to provide a safety cover on the grinder.

In another complaint, Wilbert Jensen and Richard Lee Jensen seek damages from Gale Conner and Gary Dwight Welch as the result of a traffic accident April 7 at 9:50 p.m. two miles west of Twin Falls.

The complaint asks $20,000 general damages, $3,600 special damages and $5,215 damages to the vehicle driven by Richard Lee Jensen. The plaintiffs charge negligence on the part of Gary Welch, driver of the vehicle which collided with one driven by young Jensen.

The Coeur d'Alene Indian Tribe of North Idaho has filed an action against Loughmiller Farms Inc., Twin Falls County, following the purchase of swine from the Loughmiller Farms.

The complaint asks $11,510 for swine purchased from Loughmiller Farms which they charge were ill and diseased and died following purchase.

The Indian tribe asks $15,640 as loss of profit, $4,125 for clean-up work, $1,000 miscellaneous damages and $10,000 attorney fees.

Norman I. Craghead, guardian for Jerry Lynn Craghead, 14, asks damages in a suit filed against Darrell Lee Schmitt and Essie Schmitt. The plaintiffs charge Darrell Schmitt drove a 1953 pickup truck owned by his father, Essie Schmitt on Oct. 25, 1973, which struck the Craghead boy as he crossed a road in Twin Falls County.

Plaintiffs ask $75,000 general damages, $25,000 in hospital and medical costs and attorney fees.

Republican meet held in Jerome

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer

JEROME — The first of several Republican organizational seminars in Magic Valley ended Monday afternoon in Jerome.

Conducting the seminar was Helen Chenoweth, state executive director of the Republican party. Richard Hendricks, administrative assistant to congressman George Hansen, Jim Oster, also an congressman Hansen's staff, and Clair Ricketts, chairman of the Jerome County Republican party.

The purpose of the seminar was to better acquaint volunteers and precinct committeemen with the basic Republican philosophy, organizational opportunities, and to discuss solutions to specific county problems.

In addressing the group Ms. Chenoweth said one of the obstacles in the upcoming election will be getting around the personality and popularity of Idaho's Governor Andrus.

"Because of Governor Andrus's personality he has the ability to just take up the phone and get all the help he needs in getting Democrats elected," said Ms. Chenoweth.

She noted, however, personality does not mean good administration.

"The reorganization of state government is a prime example of the poor administration of Governor Andrus," Ms. Chenoweth said. She explained that money was being allotted from the governor's office under the reorganizational plan for which they have not been able to pinpoint. Ms. Chenoweth said since Andrus conceived the reorganization of state government the number of state employees has increased by 33 per cent and not decreased as he said it would.

"Ceel has not made the grade, however, too many Republicans are allured with the personality and so is the press but we can change this," Ms. Chenoweth said.

Ms. Chenoweth stressed the importance of organization noting that the result of the New Hampshire senate election was a tremendous success for the Democrats because of the highly organized way in which they ran their campaign.

Coach, recreation program set at Minidoka

By RHANE O'NEILL
Times-News Writer

RUPERT — A second wrestling coach for East Minico Junior High School and a volunteer recreation program for three elementary schools were approved Monday night.

The Minidoka County School Board gave Juan Nava, recreational coordinator for the Idaho Migrant Council, the nod for a recreation program for fourth, fifth and sixth graders at Pershing, Pioneer and Heyburn elementary schools.

Eisenbarth said he was also concerned about the possibility of injury and felt the athletes could not learn proper techniques without additional coaching personnel.

Michael Erling, athletic director, agreed that the second coach was needed.

"I recommend approval of the coach on the basis of the large participation," Superintendent of Schools Darrell Hatfield said.

Dr. Hatfield pointed out that West Minico Junior High's program was much more successful in competition last year. Although it also had one coach, he had only about 40 wrestlers to train.

The board approved $76 to pay Hendricks for assisting Nava in training the program within the school structure.

US sets nitrite levels for meat curing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department announced Tuesday the levels of nitrites it will recommend be allowed in the curing of meat and poultry products.

Dr. Harry C. Mussman, associate administrator of the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, said the level of nitrite used as a cure would be set at 156 parts per million (ppm) in all categories except bacon and dry-cured products.

Residual nitrite levels would be reduced from 200 to 100 ppm in cooked sausage, from 200 to 125 ppm in pickle cured and canned, cured or perishable products, and from 200 to 50 ppm in cured or perishable products.

The regulations stem from recommendations made by an expert panel on nitrites which Mussman headed.

He said the panel has not yet recommended a nitrite level for bacon and dry cured products but may make suggestions on those products after the next scheduled meeting in December.

Bacon is a problem, Mussman said, because for an unknown reason, the nitrites combine with other chemicals in the product and form nitrosamines, one of the most potent cancer-causing agents known.

Mussman said tests on fried bacon have shown detectable levels of nitrosamines but the levels encountered in bacon have been falling steadily and are now around 10 to 20 parts per billion.

Mussman said research is now being conducted to determine how to prevent the formation of nitrosamines in bacon. But he added, "Entirely new processing procedures may be needed to attain the maximum possible reduction."

Over the weekend, Dr. Donald Houston of the department's Meat and Poultry Inspection Division said the expert panel was concerned about bacon because it is the only known cured meat product that has a nitrosamine problem.

He said the department intends to force bacon producers to remove nitrosamines from their product or cease marketing bacon as it is now known.

Mussman said the recommended decreases in nitrite and residual nitrite levels "take into account the very real danger to people of botulism poisoning if too little nitrite is used as weighed against the potential hazard of cancer resulting from nitrosamine formation."

Because of the botulism threat, he said, "we cannot pull nitrites out of the meat curing process immediately," but their levels can be reduced.

Meanwhile, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, in a Chicago news conference, said, "Our bacon is good," and he predicted the squabble over its cancer-causing potential was an "emotional reaction" that would pass.

Butz said a person would have to eat 4,200 pounds of bacon a year to produce the cancer which has been found in rats which were injected with nitrites.

"Personally, my appetite is not that great and I couldn't afford it anyway," Butz said.

Homemakers denied benefits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Social Security system has been fair to working women in general, says a task force report to the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

But nothing can be done to provide old-age benefits to the housewife who spent a nonpaying career making beds and fixing dinners, the report said.

"There is substantial validity in the claim that some women — and especially working wives — fail to receive full value for their contributions," said the three-man, three-woman panel of advisers.

Their recommendations to end some Social Security inequities were on the agenda for two days of committee hearings on "Women and Social Security" beginning today.

The task force said it "struggled long and hard" with the problems of housewives who don't work or have an insufficient work record to qualify for retirement or disability benefits.

"Regrettably, no acceptable solution was found," their report said. "While not minimizing the economic value of the homemakers' services, we question the appropriateness of using social security — an earnings replacement system — to provide benefits where no earnings loss occurred."

The report said elderly women are twice as likely to be poor as older men.

Rescue bid passes test

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A proposal to rescue New York City from insolvency has barely survived its first test vote in Congress, reflecting suspicion of the figures and promises New York City officials have presented.

On the question of taking up for consideration a draft bill to provide a federally guaranteed loan to the state, the vote by the Senate Banking Committee was 7 to 6.

The narrowness of the vote showed that any save-New York legislation, as in trouble. One senator counted six votes for helping New York, five against and two in doubt.

This afternoon's deliberations on the proposal could decide its fate.

All sides agree the city is likely to default if denied federal help. In default, the city would be unable to pay its debts as they become due, and debtors would sue for whatever revenue the city has.

Conservatives sat back and allowed two liberals, Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., and Edward Brooke, R-Mass., to lead the opposition. Both challenged the accuracy of the figures New York has presented on its fiscal crisis.

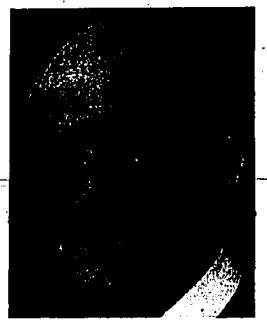

Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said a grand jury ought to look at them and at the fiscal "gimmicks" New York officials have used for years.

Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, said New York's austerities "don't look very stringent to me." He said a wage freeze was insufficient; labor contracts should be renegotiated to reduce wages, fringe benefits and pensions.

At a House hearing, Gov. Hugh Carey won sympathy rather than the hostility which met Mayor Abraham Beame Monday. But opposition remained strong.

The draft bill before the Senate committee would provide a $5 billion guaranteed loan for three years under terms so stringent they might be unacceptable to the city, the state and the banks.

The state would have to impose $420 million in taxes.

Auto sales on upswing

DETROIT (UPI) — Mid-October new car sales are at the highest level in 14 months and dealers report more shoppers and buyers in their showrooms now than in the past two years, according to the trade publication Ward's Auto Reports.

The publication, taking a jump on the auto companies themselves, estimated Oct. 11-20 sales were up 27 per cent from last year. The strong reception given the 1976 models should push October sales above the 700,000-mark for the first time since May of 1974.

The actual figures will be released Thursday by the four U.S. auto companies.

"We're seeing more people in our showroom now than in the past two years, especially because of the new Chevette," John McAuliffe, vice president of Art Moehn Chevrolet in Jackson, Mich., said. "Right now, we need cars, particularly the small ones."

McAuliffe said his dealership has either sold or taken orders for 16 Chevettes, all but one without fuel-costly and expensive options. Other dealers said they were witnessing the same phenomenon — a break with the traditional pattern of leading up cars with options.

The strong sales could be reflected soon in higher production in the final months of 1975, but output still will be at a cautious level to avoid the massive layoffs of last winter.

U.S. auto plants are working more overtime now than at any time in two years. But 76,000 workers — about 40 per cent of the normal labor force — are still idle.

While October sales are not breaking any records, the first two selling periods this month are a sharp reversal from a year ago when the introduction of 1976 models, with price tags up an average of $150, turned buyers off. By January, 30 per cent of the industry's work force was on the street.

"The price doesn't seem to be bothering people as much this year. They've been around enough to know that car prices are up," McAuliffe said. "And people are beginning to realize that car prices aren't up as much as some other things."

If the sales pace holds into November, U.S. automakers may be willing finally to claim their two-year slump — starting with the beginning of the Arab oil embargo in late 1973 — is over.

Deduction OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal income tax deduction for state and local gasoline taxes, claimed by more than 18 million motorists, is safe.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which is softening several of the tentative decisions in its major tax revision bill, Tuesday reversed its earlier vote to repeal the $60 million per year tax break.

The tax-writing committee is reviewing all its earlier decisions before tackling the sensitive question of individual tax reductions, probably on Thursday.

Under current law, anyone who itemizes deductions may claim a deduction for gasoline taxes paid to a city or state. This may be the actual tax paid or it may be estimated using tables in the instructions accompanying the income tax forms.

Under liberal pressure to remove federal incentives for consumption of scarce gasoline, the committee earlier voted to repeal the deduction.

Nixon planning China visit

BUENA PARK, Calif. (UPI) — Richard Nixon is planning a trip to China, Rabbi Baurech Korff reports after another visit with the former President at his home in nearby San Clemente.

Korff, speaking in an interview before a speech Wednesday night, said Nixon recently received a letter from Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung describing Nixon as "one of the greatest leaders of our time" and inviting him to China for a visit.

Nixon accepted, Korff said, and plans to make the trip some time after a visit from his daughter Julie and her husband, David Eisenhower.

The rabbi, one of Nixon's strongest supporters since the days shortly before his resignation, visited the former President and Mrs. Nixon Lady at their secluded seaside estate last Sunday.

He confirmed previous reports that Nixon hopes to be appointed sometime in the future as a freelance, riving ambassador, and said he would like to go first in that capacity to the China mainland.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Psychiatrists examining Sara Jane Moore, accused of trying to kill President Ford, say they are not yet able to tell whether she is competent to stand trial.

Warden John Williams said a four-man team examined Miss Moore, 45, for the second time this week at the Metropolitan Correctional Center. After the tests, the psychiatrists said they were not ready to make their recommendations.

Miss Moore was sent to the center five days after she fired a bullet at Ford as he walked out of a San Francisco hotel Sept. 22. The report on her mental state is expected in federal court in San Francisco by Nov. 18.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My family name is "Gay." My ancestors have been traced back to France in the early 1600s. I am writing this in hopes that the Gay Liberation Society will see it and realize how unfair they are being in using our name for their organization.

The gay liberation group holds that they have a right to be called "gay" a philosophy with which I am in complete agreement. But in so doing, they have infringed upon the rights of others.

Since the homosexuals have organized and officially adopted our name for their group, we have been harassed with Frank telephone calls all hours, and subjected to insults and ridicule.

Our name was "Gay" long before they took that name. I think, in all fairness to us Gays, they should change the name of their society to one more befitting their cause.

The "last straw" came when my father called me long distance after he saw a TV series on homosexuality, and he seriously suggested that WE change OUR name!

A PROUD GAY

'Gays' unhappy

DEAR PROUD: I understand your plight and am most sympathetic, but I doubt if the Gay Liberation Society will consider changing its name. Although you were Gay first, I believe there are more of THEM than there are of YOU.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married. The wedding was beautiful and quite costly. My parents paid for everything. They hired the finest photographer in town, who took nearly 100 pictures in color. He took about 25 group pictures in which the mother of the groom appeared.

Later, we learned that she went to the photographer's studio and asked to see the pictures of the wedding. Then she BOUGHT the negatives of all the pictures in which she thought she looked "terrible," and she destroyed them! These pictures can never be replaced, Abby. What do you think of such a vain woman? And what can be done about it?

HURT BRIDE

DEAR HURT: If your parents hired the photographer, he had no business selling the negatives to anyone. The groom's mother was clearly out of line.

There is nothing you can do about it now. P.S. One word of advice, dear. Don't taunt your husband about this. He's not responsible for his mother's deeds.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married for 30 years and raised a fine family. He was a wonderful man, and I loved him very much. After he had been gone for 10 years, married another man.

This marriage was not a beautiful love affair, as was my first. It was a convenience for both of us. My second husband also had been married previously.

I want to be buried in my family plot when my time comes, and my present husband wants to be buried beside HIS first wife. We are agreed on that, but here's the problem: How can I be buried beside my husband with my present husband's last name—which I legally bear?

This would be dreadful.

Could I have my marker read: "Elizabeth, child of God, 916"? Or would that be in poor taste?

PLANNING AHEAD IN CANADA

DEAR PLANNING: I think you've hit on the perfect solution.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DESPERATELY IN NEED OF YOUR ADVICE IN JERSEY CITY, N.J.": Write to me in one of the newspapers that carries my column, and I will send you a personal reply at once.

Miss Van Zante weds Darrell Fitzpatrick

JEROME — Lola Van Zante and Darrell Fitzpatrick were married in a 7:30 p.m. ceremony Oct. 4 at the Twin Falls Church of Christ.

Rev. Ron Warpole conducted the double-ring candlelight ceremony. Seven taper candlelight held blue candles which were lit by David Van Zante, brother of the bride, and Dwight Higley, nephew of the bridegroom.

Vocal music was provided by an eight-member choir ensemble.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Van Zante, Jerome, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fitzpatrick, Eden.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white tulle in an empire style. The dress featured long full sleeves gathered to cuffs and an oval neckline trimmed with lace. Lace was used to trim in front of the dress and the sleeves. Lesa Hankins, Twin Falls, designed the dress which featured a detachable train trimmed with lace.

Her waist-length veil was of flowered mesh and was trimmed with lace. A lace and ribbon headpiece held the veil in place. She carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations and roses, trimmed with long streamers with baby roses.

Tanya Standtee was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Diane Fitzpatrick, sister of the bridegroom, and Brenda Van Zante, sister of the bride. Kristy Tipton was flower girl.

Hal Kelso was best man. Ushers were Chuck Van Zante, brother of the bride, and Jeff Fitzpatrick, cousin of the bridegroom. John Rife, cousin of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

The church was decorated with two baskets of blue and white pom-pom chrysanthemums and pastel roses. Two smaller baskets of pastel gladioli were placed above the altar. The pews were decorated with blue ribbons and carnations.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony.

The three tiered oval shaped cake was decorated with blue roses and pastel colors. The cake was made by Herb Nussgen, uncle of the bride.

Guests were greeted by Steve Wood, Nampa, and Joey Fitzpatrick, brother of the bridegroom. Mrs. Ron Warpole was in charge of the guest book.

Angle and Chris O'Connor and Susan Louder served. Helping in the kitchen were Mrs. Jane Standtee, Terry Van Zante and Josie Gonzales.

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M. D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Would you please write something about thoracic syndrome, what causes it, what are the symptoms, and what can be done to relieve the pain? — Mrs. N. H.

These are chest area pains, caused by abnormal pressure on certain spinal nerves as they pass from the lower spine through the neck. The particular nerves involved are those entering the upper chest (thoracic) space.

Pressure may result, for example, from what is called a "cervical rib," an abnormal protrusion from one of the lower neck vertebrae. The nerve pressure can also result from a tightening of a muscle running from the back of the skull to the collar bone (scalene muscle).

Because of the complexity of nerve and muscle systems located in the cervical (neck) portion of the spine, abnormality in any of the structures can produce a variety of complications. Certain positions or movements can exert pressures on nerve trunks or arteries, producing pain and numbness as far distant as the fingers.

An X-ray of the lower neck spine would disclose the cervical rib, which, if present, can be corrected surgically. Likewise, the taut muscle problem can be relieved with surgery.

Thoracic syndrome

Short of this there is little else to be done. The person must learn to avoid the positions or movements that provoke pressure and the pain. A neurologist can often determine the precise sources of pressure and pain from the patient's symptoms.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Can you answer some questions about trichomoniasis? How is it contracted? How is it eradicated without a doctor's care, if at all? What happens if it is left untreated? — Mrs. M. A.

This form of vaginitis is usually due to infection from a sexual partner. I don't know how one would treat the problem without the supervision of a physician. The trichomonas parasite must first be identified from appropriate tests before a specific medication can be prescribed to combat it. Also, it is important for the sexual partner to be treated at the same time to avoid cyclic infection and reinfection.

If left untreated, the progress would be the same as in any infection, with increased discomfort and vaginal discharge. Tip: women who become chronic victims of this infection should look to their toilet habits. Toilet tissue should be used in a forward to back wiping motion. Readers will excuse the explicitness of this rather homely bit of information, which can be the answer in a great many of the causes of chronic trichomoniasis, as well as of other, similar vaginal disturbances.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Some time ago you had an article in the paper about a man whose wife was red after he ate red beets. My husband seems to have the same problem, but his stool turns red. Do beets do the same thing to the bowels?

He is a heart patient and is using a blood thinner. Could this have something to do with it? — Mrs. N. K.

After eating heavily-pigmented food such as beets, the color can appear in the stool.

However, use of blood thinner, especially too high a dose, can cause subtle bleeding which can appear in the stool, urine or gums. If your husband notices blood, it should be reported promptly to his doctor. If it is only a red coloring that occurs after eating beets, then there is no problem.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can find out about the causes — and the cures — for this troublesome complaint in Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Allment." To get your copy, write to him in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 3999, Elgin, Ill. 60120. Enclose a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope and 25 cents.

Big sister night held

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Business and Professional Women's Club held its monthly business meeting Monday at Sunnyview Courts.

President Minerva Larain welcomed those present. A special welcome was extended to new member, Angie Watson.

Notes were read from Betty Ainsworth, Irene Molton and Jane Culbreth thanking the club for its help with the "Star-Spangled Skillshop."

The 1975-76 yearbooks were distributed.

It was announced that the week of Oct. 19-25 in National BPW Week.

Lori Bingham presented two violin solos, accompanied by her mother, Melanie Hamilton playing a violin solo, Marilyn Tolberg, public relations representative of the Up With People group, spoke about the groups. They will present a concert at the College of Southern Idaho Nov. 1 and 2.

Parents urged to check treats

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission today warned parents to check all Halloween "treats" collected by their children before allowing them to eat any.

"Plus, razor blades, slivers of glass, drugs and poison have been found in treats passed out by real life ghouls," the agency said in issuing a list of safety tips for trick-or-treaters.

It also said Halloween costumes are a "major concern." Shoppers should look for costumes, masks and so on with labels indicating they are fire retardant.

Because of vision and breathing problems with masks, it added, a "natural mask of cosmetics applied directly to the skin is usually safest."

on to the slam.
 Mathematically, the slam is not a really good one. The ace of clubs must be lost. With all four trumps in one hand there is a sure trump loser and in any event the diamond queen must be located.

South started out by playing three rounds of trumps. East's first discard was the three of diamonds, his next one the five of clubs.

This diamond discard gave South all the help he needed. He didn't play diamonds right away, but when he got around to the suit he finessed against East and made his slam.

ASK THE JACOBS

A Wisconsin letter asks what you should do holding:
 ♠— 2 ♠KQ53 & 108543 after the bidding has gone four hearts — four spades — double.

Our first suggestion is to give the hand to a kibitzer. If you can't do that and have a partner who will understand that a four notrump call asks him to bid a minor suit (even a three carder) bid four notrump.

Otherwise, just say to yourself, "This is not my day," and pass.

(Do you have a question for the experts' write "Ask the Jacobs" care of this newspaper. The Jacobs will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

The utility one club opening is usually made with a balanced hand that is too weak for one notrump. Thus with 19 high-card points, North opened one club. His jump rebid to two notrump showed this exact hand.

With 11 high-card points of his own, South merely raised to three notrump. North had been heading for the spade game all the time and proceeded to bid four spades to announce specifically that he had 19 or maybe 20 points with four spades and three cards in each other suit. South revalued his hand and decided to invite a slam by going to five spades. North's values were mostly in aces, kings and good trumps and he went

Cold front moving toward MV

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert area:
Strong gusty winds tonight. Partial clearing tonight with a chance of snow showers tonight and Thursday. Lows tonight 25 to 30. Highs Thursday 40 to 45.
Outlook for Friday: partly cloudy and cool.
Halley, Camas, Proirie, lower Wood River Valley:
Cold and windy with snow showers decreasing tonight and Thursday. Lows tonight 20 to 25. Highs Thursday 35 to 40. Outlook for Friday, partly cloudy and cool.

Synopsis:
The cold front that has been across Idaho for the past two days has moved southeastward. Rain associated with the front has moved to south central and southeast Idaho. Colder air behind the front is dropping temperatures sharply and the rain is changing to snow in the upper valleys.

Winds are strong and gusty in the Magic Valley and a traveler's advisory has been issued in addition to the one in effect in the mountains of Southern Idaho. Temperatures will remain cold for the next two or three days with precipitation decreasing tonight and Thursday.
The outlook for Friday through Sunday is for warmer temperatures. Highs should be 45 to 55 by Sunday.

Payroll system hits snag

BOISE (UPI) — A proposed statewide payroll system for Idaho stumbled in its infancy Tuesday over questions of legality and a lack of communication with the legislature.
Chief Deputy Attorney General Peter Heiser questioned the legality while state payroll officials complained that the proposal was received only last Friday, giving them little opportunity to familiarize themselves with an initial document on changing the present system.
Heiser said the legal propriety of the project was raised since the proposal was undertaken by the Department of Health and Welfare instead of the state auditor.
"Why is the information out of the Health and Welfare instead of the auditor's office?" questioned Heiser.
Heiser said his office would be there was some endorsement from the auditor's office, his agency would feel "more legal assurance."
Sen. Vernon K. Brassey, R-Boise, chairman of the Task Force on Payroll Systems, assured Heiser said the project had the blessing of the auditor's office although it was funded by the health and welfare department.

He said a joint committee of the legislature had been working with the auditor's office for six years to come up with a proposed payroll system for all state agencies.
Brassey said the state would benefit from the input of the health and welfare work.
Robert Dunlop, spokesman for Touche Ross, the consulting firm which was contracted for the $60,000 project, said the reason the Department of Health and Welfare provided the funding was it was able to find available federal funds for such a study.
One payroll official questioned wording of a letter stating that if a representative was not in attendance or no

Crech trial goes to jury

WALLACE, Idaho (UPI) — A six man, six woman district court jury Tuesday began deliberating the fate of former church sexton Thomas Eugene Crech, who is accused in the shooting deaths last November of two itinerant painters in southern Idaho.

Crech, 25, has denied he killed Edward Arnold and John Bradford, but admitted in surprise testimony last week that he was an accessory or committed 42 other murders in the past 13 years.
Crech said the murders he did commit were part of a murder-for-hire motorcycle gang he belonged to and later were part of Satanic rituals in California.
Ten of the 42 deaths have been confirmed by Police as having been checked out after discussions with Crech. Included in the ten are the Bradford and Arnold deaths, for which Crech is on trial.

Pocatello schools slated to reopen

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Schools in this southeastern Idaho city were scheduled to reopen today, after teachers voted overwhelmingly Tuesday night to accept a two-year contract with District 25.
On two voice votes by the 580-member Pocatello Education Association, only a handful of teachers voted against the pack recommended by a fact-finder.
The pact calls for a 12.5 percent average wage increase, plus additional fringe benefits and added leave time that could add more than $100,000 to the total package.

The wage and fringe benefit portion of the contract will be open to negotiations next summer, while other terms of the contract will extend through the 1976-77 school year.
The teachers voted to strike Oct. 6 after working more than six weeks without a contract. They began setting up pickets the next day.
The district had offered the teachers a total 12 percent wage/fringe increase in the contract. The teachers at first demanded a 28 percent hike in the total money package.

Trial under way

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — The autopsy report on Mrs. June Darlene Hofmeister and events surrounding the investigation of her death took up Tuesday's session in the first degree murder trial of former Bonner County Prosecutor Everett Hofmeister.
Dr. Frank Kimball, who performed the autopsy on Mrs. Hofmeister the day after her body was recovered from her wrecked pickup truck, told the court she died of strangulation.
Kipball, the pathologist at Coeur d'Alene Memorial Hospital, said the woman was intoxicated at the time of her death and that she had also suffered a severe head wound which caused brain damage but did not kill her.
Two Bonner County sheriff's officers and Sheriff Herbert Wilcox also testified about events surrounding the 41 year old woman's death.

New Plymouth man charged
PAYETTE, Idaho (UPI) — Louis Eugene Sorter, 27, Route 2, New Plymouth, has been arraigned in district court on a charge of attempted murder.
Bond was set at $30,000 and Sorter, who entered a plea of innocent, was held in the Payette County Jail.
Sorter was arrested Sept. 22 after an altercation in Fruitland where Harold Cobb, 23, Antioch, Calif., was alleged to have been stabbed several times.

Nampa faces bond issue

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — The Nampa City engineer said the city will have to pass a $1.4 million bond issue to finance its share of a $20 million waste water treatment facility.
Joe Luckabeck said the facilities plan calls for upgrading the city's existing treatment plant and transporting treated water into the irrigation system, with land disposal for the sludge.
He said engineering costs would be $1 million and construction $20 million.
The new facilities plan is needed to achieve zero discharge into Indian Creek and other local streams by 1979.

Hatch Act does not apply
FRUITLAND, Idaho (UPI) — The Hatch Act which prohibits federal employees from holding political office does not apply in the case of municipal election, it was reported Tuesday.
The question was raised in the case of Lloyd Puntney, Fruitland postmaster, who is a candidate for mayor. Puntney has been serving as councilman by appointment and recently filed for election as mayor. He will meet L. L. Bishop, a seed dealer, in the Nov. 4 election. Incumbent Mayor C. L. Anderson did not seek re-election.

WALLEYE PERCH from Salmon Reservoir has grown from "a blue hair" to 13 inches in length and almost a pound. The new species was introduced to the impoundment in May, 1974.

Almost trophy class

Salmon reservoir walleye show record growth rate—13 inches in 18 months

The lost walleyes of Salmon reservoir have been found—and found growing at a record rate.

A gill-netting census at the reservoir, conducted by the Idaho Fish and Game department, came up with four of the newly-introduced species. While they all showed remarkable growth and were nearly of the same size, the largest was 13 inches long and weighed right at one pound.

Stu Murrell, regional conservation educator, said all four fish had fared heavily on crapple minnows just before being netted.

"We put them in there (Salmon reservoir) to eat perch," he smiled, "but I guess they'd just run into a school of crapple."

The department planted the walleyes in May 1974 when they "looked more like a three-quarter-inch long blue hair," Murrell recalls. "We had one and one-half million of them in two of the regular sized garbage cans."

From that meager start, the fish already have turned cannibal and are putting on remarkable growth.

"We've checked all over the country and the only place we've found that has shown similar growth rate is a lake in West Virginia. Utah (which also is introducing the species for trash fish control and angler opportunity) reports its general growth rate is about six to seven inches in 18 months," Murrell continued.

After the walleye were introduced in May, the department couldn't find any to check their survival. Regular gill netting produced the usual polygot of fish in Salmon Reservoir but never a walleye until last week.

"We'd heard some reports of walleye being taken but none we've ever been able to confirm," Murrell says. "I think some undoubtedly have been caught by people who assumed they were chub or something and didn't keep them."

Department plans to augment the original planting with another two million this summer when Minnesota, which provided the first eggs, was unable to meet the demand this season.

The department has its order in for next year again and the rapid growth of the walleye now in the impoundment lends hope for some early natural reproduction.

Magic Valley deer hunting success hits 28 per cent

Nearly a third of Idaho, hunters participating in the five-day whitewind seasons came home with meat.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department conducted nine checking stations through five complete days, checking out 5,244 hunters with 1,194 deer for 20 per cent success.

The stations were conducted on both the north and south rims of Magic Valley. The south hills success was 33 per cent, down five per cent from last year. The northern stations reported success up slightly to 20 per cent against 18 for 1974.

For all purposes the years are identical.

During the station operation, a large number—not all—of hunters were asked to answer several questions about their preferences.

Probably the most accurate, because over 1,000 individuals were surveyed, were the answers found at the Timmerman hill checking station.

"One of the hotstove items this year as been the matter of a standard opening, Oct. 15 each year regardless of the day of the week it falls on. At Timmerman checking station, a remarkable 782 favored the standard opening while only 144 opposed it.

The nine checking stations all showed a preference for the standard opening. The low was 61 per cent at the Rock Creek station and ranged up to 87 per cent in northern areas.

But when asked if they favored a straight midweek opening, 58 per cent at Timmerman said yes and 42 said no. Overall, the midweek opening was favored by 63 per cent of the hunters surveyed.

From then on the questions centered fairly much on the Cassia division (unit 54) the perennial controversial hot spot.

On the matter of favoring control hunts over open seasons, 90 per cent of the hunters at the Rock Creek station favored permits. But overall 72 per cent of the hunters wanted that area controlled.

The south hills hunters were fairly well split on whether the number of permits for Unit 54 should be increased or reduced. Just 56 per cent wanted to see an increase and 44 per cent wanted a decrease in the number of permits available.

On the matter of a general deer season in Cassia division, the Rock Creek station had 14 per cent in favor and 86 per cent against. The overall total had 39 per cent of the hunter wanting a general season and 61 preferring it remain controlled.

The department also asked hunters if they would favor another "sex hunt" on a control basis in Unit 54 followed by a short, general "bucks" only hunt. South hills hunters rejected that 71 to 29 per cent. At Timmerman, 61 per cent like the idea.

The matter of "road hunting" also was explored with a question concerning possibility of closing all but the main roads to "put the hunt back in hunting."

Rock Creek hunters rejected the walking idea by 84 per cent while the total survey saw a near split with 51 per cent favoring closing of the side roads and 49 per cent wanting them left open.

"It is obvious," says Stu Murrell, regional conservation educator, "that a permit in hand makes a lot of difference in the answers."

ABA distributes Baltimore players

NEW YORK (UPI)—Seven players were selected by six teams—Tuesday—as the American Basketball Association conducted a dispersal draft of players from the defunct Baltimore Claws.

The ABA folded the Claws Tuesday.

San Diego picked up two of the players, selecting Steve Johnson and adding Dave Robisch, who was drafted by St. Louis, for an undisclosed amount of cash and a second round draft choice.

Virginia selected Chuck Williams, St. Louis chose Paul Ruffner, Utah took Joe Hamilton, Indiana picked Scott English and Denver obtained Claude Terry.

San Antonio, New York and Kentucky all passed.

Players who went unclaimed were George Carter, Mel Daniels, Stan Love, Bob Rhodes, Mike Rozenski, Tony Styles, Tim Vanblommestein, Jim Bradley and Skip Wise.

Bradley was under suspension by the Claws at the time of the folding and Wise had conditions in his contract which must be worked out by the league before he is claimed by another team, an ABA official said.

Swimmers and wrestlers add to U.S. gold medal hoard in Pan-Am games

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Swimmers wearing U.S. uniforms swept all six pool events Tuesday, and with the wrestling team winning five of 10 weight divisions, the American harvest of gold medals scintillated at the Pan American Games.

For good measure add two golds in the four yachting classes, medals which were locked-up Tuesday with the final regatta still to be sailed on Wednesday.

At the pace the U.S. team has been going the last three days. It is conceivable the squad could surpass the 89 individual awards it brought home from Cali, Colombia, four years ago.

At the Olympic Pan-Am, Americans finished 1-2 in three events: Rick Colella and Kathy Heddy won their second gold medals in three days; and outspoken world champion Victor Delgado of Ecuador, a star at Southern Illinois, met his match in the 200-meter butterfly.

Delgado, the only non-American male to triumph in the pool following his victory in the 100-meter Sunday, was relegated to third place behind Greg Jagenburg, of West Chester, Pa., who won the event in 2:03.42, with Steve Gregg of Wilmington, Del., coming through in the final meters to catch the tiring Ecuadorian for second.

Jagenburg, 19, was quite sure he could swim before he plunged into the pool. In fact, he said he thought he could break Mark Spitz's world record of 2:00.70 with Spitz sitting at poolside. But he came up short.

"Spitz said in '68 the altitude had affected him. I think he's right. I tried for it, but I just couldn't do it," said Jagenburg.

Miss Heddy, a four-year veteran of international competition at age 17 and only the second of nine American world champions to come to the Games, said, "I did not know I had won until I looked up at the scoreboard. Jenni (Frank) and I switched off and on all the time. We never knew who's going to be first."

In the event, Miss Franks, of Wilmington, Del., finished third behind Canada's Cheryl Gibson who led for three laps until Miss Heddy, of Summit, N. J., unleashed her feared freestyle on the fourth- and final lap to win in 5:06.05.

Colella, a 23-year-old from Seattle, Wash., turned back Canada's Dave Neinback in the 200 meter breaststroke in a time of 2:24.00, good for a four length victory. He won the 100 on Sunday.

In the women's 100 meter butterfly, Cathy Wright of New Albany, Ind., beat teammate Peggy Tosdal of Dana Point, Calif. by three-quarters of a length in 1:02.71, while also finished 1-2 in the men's 400 meter freestyle were Doug Northway of Tucson, Ariz., won by 2 1/2 lengths from Bobby Hackett of Yonkers, N. Y.; in 4:30.31.

Dana Point's J. J. Harrelson of Mishawaka, Ind., won the other U.S. swimming gold by taking the 200 meter backstroke in 2:06.69.

At the wrestling arena, where the Cubans had hoped to regain some lost ground, the U.S. came out ahead 5-3 in gold medals, with the Americans winning a medal in every weight category.

It was at the heavier weights, however, in which the U.S. prevailed. Michael McCready of Dubuque, Iowa, won the 200-lb. title; Russell Hellekson of Oregon, Wis., was successful in the 202-pound division; Len Peterson of Comstock, Wis., won the 198-pound class; Gregory Hicks of Santa Ana, Calif., was successful at 191 pounds; while Lloyd Keaser of Annapolis, Md., won the 162-pound division.

The U. S. upset Cuba to win the men's overall team gymnastics gold medal with 554.90 points, but Cuba's Jorge Cuervo took the individual title with 112.85 points.

Fisk's homer saves Sox, extends series

BOSTON (UPI) — Carlton Fisk, known as the "blue-man" for his ability to hold his club together, won the game with a 12th inning homer Tuesday night to give the Boston Red Sox a 7-6 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds and set up a seventh game showdown for the world championship.

The Red Sox, who rallied from the brink of defeat to tie the score on Bernie Carbo's pinch-hit, three-run homer in the eighth inning, will seek their first world championship in 57 years Wednesday night when they send south-paw Bill Lee to the mound against Cincinnati's ace left-hander Don Gullett. The Reds have not won a world championship since 1940.

Fisk, the Red Sox All-Star catcher, slammed a pitch by reliever Pat Darcy off the foul pole in the 12th and climax the four hour and one minute marathon—one of the most exciting contests in World Series history.

"I didn't know if it was going to be fair or foul but I knew if it was fair, it was out of here," said Fisk. "That probably had to be one of the best-played, not just World Series games, but one of the best-played games I've ever seen."

There were spectacular plays on both sides, but none rivaled the catch Evans made in the 11th inning that saved the day for the Red Sox. With Ken Griffey on base for the Reds and one out, Joe Morgan slugged a long drive to deep right that appeared to be going for extra bases.

But Evans, lauded by Reds Manager Sparky Anderson for his fine all-around play in the series, raced back and made a one-handed, over-the-shoulder catch before knocking into the wall. Then he turned and threw to first baseman Carl Yastrzemski, who in turn flipped to Rick Burleson covering first to double up Griffey.

"It's the best catch I've ever seen," said

Anderson, "and we'll never see another one like it."

"I think it was a row or two up in the stands," said Evans. "I got back there, turned around to see where I was and just stumbled it. The next thing I know I was throwing the ball somewhere toward first."

With two on and two out in the eighth, Carbo, relegated to the bench during the series, pinch-hit for pitcher Roger Moret, Boston was behind 6-3.

After working Cincinnati's ace reliever, Raulo Hakwick, to a 2-2 count, Carbo took a feeble cut at a breaking ball; getting enough to foul it behind the plate. He sent the next one out to dead center on a line. It disappeared into the bleachers.

"I was just trying to make contact," said Carbo. "All I kept saying to myself was 'Don't strike out. Don't strike out.' I was a little embarrassed on the pitch before. I took a funny swing."

The homer was his second as a pinch-hitter in the series, tying a record set in 1959 by Chuck Essegian of the Los Angeles Dodgers. His first one, in last Tuesday's third game, was hit off his old Cincinnati roommate, Clay Carroll.

Carbo was mobbed in the dugout.

"I was really excited," said Carbo. "When I hit it, I thought I was good enough to go out but I wasn't sure. After I fouled first, I looked again and it was gone."

Carbo, acquired during the 1973 World Series, along with Tuesday's winner, Rick Wise, has had a history of home runs on memorable occasions.

"My first hit in the big leagues was a homer and my first hit in the World Series was a homer."

ONE-SWING RALLY developed when Boston's Bernie Carbo whacked this pitch out of the park for a three-run homer in the eighth inning. It allowed Boston to pull into extra innings against Cincinnati and then win in the 12th (UPI telephoto).

Rose enthused by brilliance of game

BOSTON (UPI) — "If this ain't the number one pastime, I don't know what is!" beamed Pete Rose in the glow of the losing Cincinnati Reds dressing room.

The Reds had just been beaten 7-6 by the Boston Red Sox in one of the most dramatic World Series games in history, but Rose couldn't have been more excited.

"My God, you couldn't have more exciting things than that," said Rose, referring to Carlton Fisk's game-winning homer off the foul pole leading off the 12th, Bernie Carbo's game-tying three-run homer in the eighth and Dwight Evans' game-saving catch in the 11th.

"I know they say that Evans is good," said Rose. "But if that catch of his is any indication of just how good he is, well I hope I never hit another ball to right field."

Reds Manager Sparky Anderson was even more emphatic about Evans' sensational one-handed catch and the subsequent doubling up throw on Ken Griffey that baited the Red Sox out of a tight jam in the 11th.

"It was by far the best catch I've ever seen," said the still shell-shocked Anderson. "We'll never see one any better, I'm sure."

With that, the white-haired Reds' skipper walked to his office, shaking his head in disbelief over what had happened to his team.

But Rose, cheered over the prospect of having Reds ace Don Gullett ready for the seventh game Wednesday night, still was bubbling over Tuesday night's thriller.

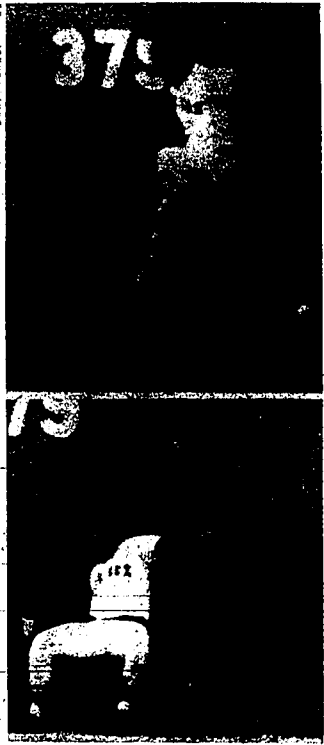

"The ballpark beat us again here," said Rose. "Call it home court advantage or whatever. We popped up in foul territory at least four times and there just isn't enough of it in this little park for that to happen."

"And that catch by Evans ... in our place Morgan's hit bounces off the concrete. I don't know how he caught it."

Rose also revealed that Boston's Denny Doyle did not have the "go" sign when he tried to score on Fred Lynn's shallow fly to left, only to be doubled up at the plate on a pinpoint throw from George Foster.

"I was right there," said Rose, the Reds' third baseman. "And I know Red Sox third base coach Don Zimmerman did not give Doyle the sign to run. He was holding him."

"But that's the hell, it had to be the greatest World Series game in history and I'm just glad I'll be able to say I was in it. My son and I will be talking about this one for a long time to come."

BACK BREAKING experience felled Boston centerfielder Fred Lynn as he takes a pounding trying to run down Ken Griffey's fifth-inning, two-run triple. Lynn was able to continue and Boston was 7-6 in 12 innings. (UPI telephoto)

USC expects defensive battle

CHICAGO (UPI) — Southern California's John McKay expects a defensive contest Saturday when his No. 3 ranked Trojans play at Notre Dame on national television in the renewal of an annual contest McKay thinks is "the greatest game in college football."

Speaking by telephone to football writers, McKay said he believed his team would be "up" for the game, a contrast to its recent performance.

"We've played as poorly the last two weeks as any team I've ever had," he said. "We have good talent, but we're not playing well. Ricky Bell is playing magnificently but I wouldn't say that anybody else is."

McKay said the Trojans would have to find ways to help Bell, the national rushing leader, in order to beat the No. 11 ranked Fighting Irish.

"Bell is the best hard running halfback in the United States," he said. "I don't think anybody compares with him. He's got over 1,000 yards in six games. But we've got to support him by throwing better."

"To beat Notre Dame, we've got to make the big play. We've got to throw well, and we have thrown about as poorly as any team in America. I believe our defense will play a good game. But with our offense the way it is, the defense may be on the field too long—and you can't convince me anybody is going to score a lot of points on Notre Dame."

McKay's coaching rival, Dan Devine, was not on hand last year when the Trojans wiped out a 24-0 Notre Dame lead and won 35-24.

"I wasn't there," Devine said. "So I don't know how I feel about that. But looking at the films, I can see some mistakes on our part and I hope we don't let them happen again."

Claws dissolution begins under ABA supervision

BALTIMORE (UPI) — An American Basketball Association representative arrived Tuesday to supervise the breakup of the Baltimore Claws, dissolved by the league Monday because of the team's financial difficulties.

General manager Leo Silverman said he expected to complete the team's affairs by the weekend and would have an announcement within three days about the Claws' responsibilities to ticket holders.

"There are no innocents in this thing. A lot of people are guilty in this," Silverman said. "No one is going to come away clean."

Silverman, who had management experience in minor league hockey before joining the Claws, formerly the Memphis Sounds, said team president David Cohen and business manager Dee Finerman were responsible for all the financial arrangements, even though he was responsible for running the team and procuring players.

"Anytime they told me about them (finances), it always seemed to be an afterthought," said Silverman. "I think they weren't always sure of what was happening."

According to Silverman, "The whole problem was strictly management and ownership. The players handled the whole thing in a very professional way. They were fine gentlemen."

Cohen was unavailable for comment.

In a franchise where nearly 10 investors had insisted on running the team, each in his own way, Silverman suddenly found himself alone to face the ABA, the staff, the players and the team's creditors.

"Still, he felt no bitterness over the experience. "There's a feeling more of disappointment and sadness that it didn't go," he said. "These people (the staff and the players) are a bunch of beautiful, honest and hard-working people. It's too bad they're getting the short end of the stick."

Silverman said he met with the players Tuesday morning to thank them for handling themselves as professionals under trying circumstances. They wore the gentlemen's.

"I feel honored to have been connected with these people," he said.

"At least Mike Storen (former Memphis boss) faced the guys last year in Memphis when we ran out of money," said Trainer John Lally, expressing bitterness over the disappearance of Cohen when the ax fell.

Lally had packed his wife, children and belongings into a U-Haul truck and driven to Maryland when the franchise was moved to Baltimore.

Cissy Howard, the team's secretary who came to the Claws from St. Louis, accepted the turn of events philosophically. "I have another job lined up next season," she said. "I'll just wait this one out."

Kentuckian pays price for losing team

ATLANTA (UPI) — Kentucky's Sonny Collins is a victim of circumstance.

Collins won't be listed among those Southeastern conference players who won All-American honors even though he is already established as the greatest runner in SEC history.

More than a dozen Southeastern conference runners of the past were All-Americans and the underrated Collins has eclipsed them all on the football field.

Collins' problem boils down to a simple fact: He has been playing for four years for a losing team and national recognition has gone to the top runners on the top teams in the country.

If Collins runs at Georgia Saturday as he did against the Bulldogs the previous two seasons, he'll go over the 1,000-yard mark after just seven games and be favored to break the SEC single-season record he missed by 99 yards as a sophomore in 1973.

Collins, who has 855 yards rushing already this year, gained 156 against Georgia in 1973 and 147 last year.

Collins has a career total of 3,540 yards, 445 more than the previous SEC record set by Tulane's Eddie Price in the late '60s. He also holds the SEC record for most rushes (689), most yards per carry (5.1) and most yards per game (98.3).

He gained 1,213 yards in 1973, falling 99 short of the 1,312 record John Dottley set at Ole Miss in 1949. He appeared enroute to topping Dottley's mark last season when he reached the 970-yard mark midway through the ninth game of the season.

But he broke his leg in that ninth game, against Vanderbilt, and missed the rest of the season. If it hadn't been for that injury, Collins figured to become the only SEC player ever to rush for more than 1,000 yards three times.

This season's headlines have gone to Archie Griffin and Pete Johnson of top-ranked Ohio State, Ricky Bell of third-ranked Southern California, and Joe Washington of second-ranked Oklahoma. And those are the players who will receive top consideration when the 1975 All-American team is selected.

Collins remained almost unnoticed as he ran for 120 yards against Virginia Tech, 133 against Kansas, 161 against 12-ranked Maryland, 140 against ninth-ranked Penn State, 109 against Auburn, and 192 against LSU to climb into second place behind Bell among the nation's major college runners.

But Georgia coach Vince Dooley is well aware of Collins' talents.

"Sonny Collins is the greatest ball-carrier in the United States today and the greatest in the history of the Southeastern Conference," said Dooley, who is not known for making rash statements. "If he had been playing for a high-ranking team, he probably would have been a three-time All-American."

Collins, recruited out of Madisonville, Ky., during the regime of former Kentucky Coach John Ray, has a sensational high school career and went to Kentucky as one of the most heralded freshmen in Wildcat football history.

Despite missing playing time with an ankle injury, he still led Kentucky in rushing that 1972 season with 592 yards and has been an unanimous all-Southeastern conference choice since.

Fran Curel, who inherited Collins when he succeeded Ray as Kentucky coach in 1973, Collins' sophomore season, says Collins is a better runner than Chuck Foreman, who starred for Curel at Miami before joining the Minnesota Vikings.

"Foreman is a better all-around back," said Curel. "But Collins is better than Chuck was in college as a pure runner."

There was some question about how Collins would rebound from last fall's injury, but Sonny was claiming this past year that he was running 100 yards in 9.5 seconds.

"Sonny Collins never ran 9.5 in his life," retorted Curel. "But he is a consistent 9.8 and he is very quick under 30 yards. He runs fast enough to win with."

Unfortunately, so far as Collins' chances for post-season honors are concerned, Kentucky has not been winning despite his running talent. The Wildcats, 4-11, beat Virginia Tech in their opener and, although they've been in every game right up to the end, they haven't won since.

Gooding approves plat plan

GOODING — Gooding City councilmen Tuesday night said they would approve the Mountain View subdivision plat, once it has the city engineer's okay.

Jim Wilkins who plans to develop the subdivision south-west of town, presented a letter to councilmen from the Gooding City Planning and Zoning Commission, stating that group's approval of the plat.

Wilkins said he will install his own water system using wells and the water would be owned by the property owners. He will not need city water but would like to hook on to the city sewerage system.

Mayor Gene Kelly said once the plat has the signature of City Engineer Wendell Smith, Preston, the council will approve the proposal.

Councilman Dan Beed was authorized to work with City Atty. Cecil Hobbey to issue a call for bids for a new garage truck.

Councilmen agreed to raise the pay for volunteer firemen from $3.50 to $4.50 the first hour and from $1.50 to $2.50 for each additional hour they work. A similar raise has been agreed to by the rural fire district board also.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Reach a better understanding with friends and cooperate more for best results. Make a friend of one who opposes you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Handle all that work instead of going off on tangents and you really progress. Take treatments that make you feel better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Out to the recreation you need and be happy. Show real devotion to mate for fine results. Avoid one who tries to horn in.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Improve family relations. Make home repairs. Study into some new interest that brings you more success in the home.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... If or she will be one of those New Era children who will handle affairs in a different way from others and is a genius, so be sure to send to the right schools and encourage to express talents. There can be much fame here, especially in the New Era professions that are now emerging on the world's horizon. Give good grounding in the age-old standards.

BLONDIE

I CAN HARDLY WAIT TO START THIS NEW BOOK I BOUGHT.

IT'S A THRILLING ADVENTURE STORY OF OLD SAILING SHIPS.

HE POOPED OUT BEFORE HE GOT TO THE POOP DECK.

SHORT RIBS

GIVE ME THE MACHINE GUN, DUM DUM.

USE THIS SMALL CALIBER GUN WITH ONLY ONE BULLET IN IT.

YEAH DUE TO SPIRALING INFLATIONARY PRESSURES.

WE HAD TO CUT BACK ON PREMIUM COSTS FOR OUR CONTRACTS.

FAMILY CIRCUS

COOKIES

Let's go over there, Mommy! That lady's givin' out free samples!

Evenin', Miz. Walle! Me an' Rufus come callin'!

What's goin' on out there?

I think Joel's centurion lead's car!

WELL, ANDREW, YOUR COMPANY'S OFFER SEEMS QUITE SINCERE, BUT I MUST WORK MY REAR END BEFORE WE CONTINUE.

I HAPPEN TO THINK THE REEL OF THE SA-MAN PEOPLE AND I MUST PUT THEIR INTERESTS ABOVE EVERY-THING ELSE IN MY DELIBERATIONS!

I UNDERSTAND, SIR...

SUBMITTING FINAN-CIAL REPORTS, EM-PLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES, ASSURANCES THAT THE FRAGILE ECO-SYSTEM OF THE REE WILL BE PRESERVED.

THESE FOR THE ASKING, SIR!

GOVERNOR, THINK OF ME AS SANTA!

MMMM...

KZUNK!

MESSE IT'S NATURE'S WAY OF TELLIN' ME TO SLOW DOWN.

HOW FAR UP TH' CANYON DO WE GO, OSCAR?

UNTIL WE COME TO A PLACE CALLED 'FRIGIBLE ROCK'.

WHAT HAPPENS THEN?

WE LEAVE THIS RIG AND START HIKING! SAY...

...THAT'S A PRETTY GOOD STORM UP AHEAD!

YEAH, THERE'S A LOTTA WATER IN THAT BABY... MEBBE TOO MUCH!

WATCH AN' THINGS WHILE I'M GONE, OTTO.

IN AMERICA A WATCHDOG WATCHES WHAT HE WANTS TO WATCH.

WHAT'S FOR DINNER?

ALWAYS WHAT'S FOR DINNER...

...CAN'T YOU EVER START OFF WITH 'WHAT KIND OF A DAY DID YOU HAVE?'

I'LL KNOW THAT WHEN YOU TELL ME WHAT'S FOR DINNER.

WELL, NOW, WHAT HAVE WE HERE? LOOKS LIKE THE OPENING TO A BOX CANYON.

SOFT DIRT HERE AT THE ENTRANCE, AN' NOT A SINGLE TRACK OF ANY KIND.

AH RECKON AH'M JUST SUSPICIOUS BY NATURE... BUT SOMETIMES NO TRACKS TELL MORE THAN MANY.

COMPY?

MMM-HA

GOOD PROGRAM? TERRIFIC!

I DON'T KNOW WHAT THEY'RE TRYING TO DO TO ME, KEITH, BUT I CAN'T TAKE IT ANY LONGER!

JUNE, ARE YOU GOING TO THE OFFICE?

YES—I'M LATE!

TAKE VALERIE THERE WITH YOU, I'M GOING TO HAVE A TALK WITH THAT MR. MARKER.

I THINK THAT'S WISE, KEITH!

Take 6000 men, ages 45 to 54: Study the marital records. That's what a University of professor did. He learned that the men who had married to their first wives were the more likely to get promotions at work. The men who had divorced and remarried were the second more likely. The divorced, separated and widowed men who stayed single were less likely to get promotions. The foregoing report does not come to our Love and War man as a large surprise.

PALINDROME
No other palindrome, a message which spells alike both forward and backward, is as long as this one. It warrants: DENNIS, NEIL, EDNA, LEON, NEDRA, ANITA, ROLF, NORA, ALICE, CAROL, LEO, JANE, REED, DENA, DALE, BARI, RAE, PENNY, LANA, DAVE, DENNY, LENA, IDA, BERNADETTE, BEN, RAY, LILIA, NINA, JO, IRA, MARA, SARA, MARIO, JAN, LILY, ARIE, BETTE, DAN, REBA, DIANE, LYNN, ED, EVA, DANA, LYNNE, PEARL, ISABEL, ADA, NED, DEE, RENA, JOEL, LOPE, CECIL, AARON, FLORA, TINA, ARDEN, NOEL, ELLEN SINNED. Must have been some party, what?

MORE PEOPLE who don't work hard commit suicide than people who do work hard.

EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS' 36 "Tarzan" books have been made into 38 motion pictures and 52 TV shows. Maybe you've heard that Burroughs never went to Africa.

LARGEST JOINT
Q. "Largest joint in a man's body is where—at the hip or the sacralia?"
A. The knee.

VEST
An acquainted with a gentleman who wears a vest solely as a weight-watching signal. When the second button from the bottom won't button, he gets off the saddle and goes back on the salad.

ONE OUT of every seven children under the age of six is being raised these days by a lone parent. Just 25 years ago, only one out of every 14 children was growing up in such a circumstance.

KINDLY IDENTIFY that mass transportation system which carries the most people yet earns the least revenue. All right, you named it. Elevators.

SLEEP RESEARCHERS contend one out of every 10 citizens dozes with the covers pulled over the head. That's bad. Very bad. Cuts down on the oxygen intake, they say.

LAW IN THE NORTHWEST frontier province of Rawalpindi, Pakistan, prescribes 80 lashes and six months in prison for any citizen thereabouts convicted of drinking liquor.
