Rocky quits Ford ticket

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller today told President Ford he would not be his 1976 running mate. Rockefeller made it clear, however, that he would continue to serve as vice president for the remainder of Ford's current term.

"After much thought I have decided I don't wish my name to enter into your consideration for the upcoming Republican nomination," the 67-year-old Rockefeller told Ford in a letter.

"The President and vice president have a complete understanding regarding the decision," White House Press Secretary Ron Nissen said.

Rockefeller's letter gave no hint of his plans, but he recently told friends that if he were not in public office, "There are lots of things I could do — lots of ways I can serve my country. That's why, I'm totally relaxed about the whole thing — one way or the other it doesn't matter to me."

Rockefeller's announcement came at a time he was under fire from conservatives in the Republican party. Ford's campaign manager, Howard Callaway, said a month ago Rockefeller was the campaign's major problem with conservatives, and suggested he might be replaced by a younger man.

But Ford said in reaction he had "full confidence" in his vice president and expected Rockefeller to be part of the 1976 team.

Rockefeller gave no reason for his decision to voluntarily withdraw from the race, but he told Ford he wanted the President to know, now because "the time is virtually at hand when you will be firming up your program for the presidential primaries, the Republican National Convention and the presidential campaign of 1976."

"A statement by Callaway released by his office said "the vice president's announcement comes as complete surprise. I do not know the reasons behind his decision so I cannot comment on it."

"As a practical political matter, this will stimulate later on in the Presidential campaign and in the Republican National Convention next August."

"Rockefeller, who was governor of New York for 15 years, was named by Ford last Aug. 20 as his vice president. Just two weeks after the resignation of President Richard M. Nixon, Congress confirmed Rockefeller on Dec. 21, after controversial hearings on the possible conflicts between his immense wealth and the power of the vice presidency.

"In his year in office, Rockefeller has become one of the most powerful vice presidents in history. He has been assigned by Ford to direct the White House Domestic Council, the body responsible for drawing up administration domestic policy.

New try made for Beirut cease-fire
BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Premier Rashid Karami today announced a new series of measures to enforce a ceasefire between warring Christian and Moslem militias in the Lebanese capital.

Leaders of the warring factions and Palestinian guerrillas met with Karami and managed to agree on a new program to implement the truce, supposedly in effect since Saturday but violated repeatedly.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a high level shake-up of the Ford administration apparently caused by a dispute over defense, sources said today President Ford fired Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger and CIA Director William E. Colby.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger also relinquished one of his top posts in the administration — head of the National Security Council, the sources said.

An informed source at the White House who did not want to be identified said there was "much more to come."

NBC-TV reported today that both Schlesinger and Colby had been "terminated" — their dismissals. Ford called a news conference for 5:30 p.m. MST tonight, presumably to address the situation.

The informed source said the transition group which helped Ford during the early days of his presidency was the "architect" of the shake-up rather than Kissinger, as some observers believe.

Former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird is a prime mover in the transition group which still keeps close touch with Ford. So is William Seranin, former governor of Pennsylvania.

Another member of the group, Donald Rumsfeld, was reported in line for the job of secretary of Defense.

No reason was given for the dismissals, but sources speculated that it grew out of a difference of opinion between Schlesinger, who favored a "strong" defense, and a tougher stand against Moscow, and Ford and Kissinger, the proponents of détente.

Colby had been expected to leave early next year because of recent criticism of the CIA.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The $2 bill, which was taken out of circulation nine years ago, will reappear next year with Thomas Jefferson's picture on the front and a rendition of the signing of the Declaration of Independence on the back, it was announced today.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said his department expects to have 225 million $2 bills available for circulation on April 13, Jefferson's birthday, and another 400 million sometime before the nation's 200th birthday on July 4.

When the bill was discontinued in 1966, only 6 million were being printed annually.

House panel OK's NY loan guarantee
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Banking Committee approved a bill today to make available up to $7 billion in federally guaranteed loans either before or after New York City defaults on its debts.

The measure was approved on a 23-16 vote. An opponent, Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Ohio, said he saw a 50-50 chance of defeating the bill on the floor of the House, where the membership, he said, was less urban-oriented than in the committee.

Spanish mine blast toll set at 27
BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — A gas explosion rocked a coal mine in eastern Spain today and mine officials estimated the death toll at 27.

Another six men were reported in critical condition and undergoing surgery.

The scene of the disaster is the town of Figols, 50 miles northwest of Barcelona near the Mediterranean coast.

Gall bladder ailment fells Mrs. Peron
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — President Isabel Peron, the frail 44-year-old widow whose government is under investigation on corruption charges, was rushed to a hospital early today with an apparent gall bladder ailment.

In Mendoza, 665 miles west of Buenos Aires, three congressmen of a small opposition party called Sunday for impeachment proceedings to be initiated against Mrs. Peron unless the Peronist majority cooperates with a congressional investigation of corruption charges.

Sadat resting in Florida mansion
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Toasted by Florida Gov. Reubin Askew for his "courageous efforts in pursuing a negotiated peace in the Mideast," Egyptian President Anwar Sadat settled down for a short rest today in his borrowed mansion on the banks of the St. Johns River.

At the end of a long day Sunday, the Arab leader toasted Askew and President Ford at a "fancy" dinner at the San Jose Country Club.

Former Shoshone editor dies at 70
SHOSHONE — Herbert H. (Herb) Love, 70, Shoshone, former owner and editor of the Lincoln County Journal, died Sunday at his home.

Mr. Love operated the Journal from 1944 to 1962. Prior to that he was affiliated with newspapers at Gooding and Wendell and taught in the schools at Fairfield, Hailley and Wendell.

Funeral services will be conducted Wednesday.

PLO blasts arms sales

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The Palestine Liberation Organization charged today that the United States has supplied Israel with nuclear weapons and "filled the Zionist entity's arsenal to overflowing with advanced weaponry."

Ezraouk Kaddoumi, chief of the PLO's political wing, denounced Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's "step by step" efforts toward Middle East peace and said they were "bound to backfire, just as the Zionist and Imperialist policies in Lebanon have backfired."

"The least that can be said of Kissinger's policy is that it lacks credibility," Kaddoumi told the General Assembly.

Stamp plan scored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for an anti-hunger group told Congress today that Agriculture Department proposals for calculating food stamp allotments would cut benefits for 11 million of the 18 million stamp recipients.

Still, another department plan recently proposed would not provide adequate diets although no stamp beneficiaries would suffer cuts, said Ronald Pollack, director of the Food Research and Action Center of New York.

Pollack was a leadoff witness for FRAC testimony on the food stamp allotment controversy before the Senate Special Committee on Aging.

FRAC contested the present program in a federal court which ruled the Agriculture Department's allocation formulas for families of various sizes resulted in shortchanging many beneficiaries, especially in large families.

Oil import fee legality ruling due by US court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed Monday to hear arguments on the issue, critical in the current energy crisis, of whether a president can impose import fees on oil.

The Court did not set a date for hearing the case, long a subject of contention between the White House and Congress. Both Presidents Nixon and Ford imposed fees on oil imports.

Lately Ford has been using a $2-a-barrel fee on crude oil as a bargaining chip to pressure Congress for the kind of long-range energy policy he wants.

Justice William O. Douglas, who spent several days in the hospital last week, was present on the bench today as the court started the first of the arguments in the November sessions. He did not participate in actions announced by the Court on recently filed cases.

Among the other issues accepted for review today were whether evidence discovered in an automobile glove compartment while the car is imposed for traffic violations can be used at trial.

The Court rejected efforts by a Massachusetts woman to allow students to recite prayers in public school buildings apart from other students and teachers during the school day.

In other actions the Court:

- Agreed to decide whether the Interstate Commerce Commission can specify how railroads must spend a rate increase as the price of freeing them from lengthy and costly hearings.
- Let stand a lower court ruling that Louisville, Ky., police are liable for damages for destroying a sign carried by a woman during President Richard M. Nixon's 1970 visit there.
- Cleared the way for a third trial of San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto's $12.5 million libel suit against Cowles Communications, Inc., publishers of the defunct Look Magazine.

Fund tops $52,000

TWIN FALLS — Thirty eight per cent ($32,825) of this year's United Way campaign goal was pledged as of Saturday evening.

"We are running ahead of last year, and it looks like we will make our goal," Dr. Terry Smith, general chairman, said.

"We have asked everyone to turn in their pledges by November 7," he said.

This year's campaign will end November 14th.

Schlesinger, Colby lose posts

The White House gave no official word on the dismissals and the daily briefing by Press Secretary Ronald Nessen was canceled.

Schlesinger this morning attended an Armed Forces Policy Council meeting in his Pentagon office, as he does every Monday.

Colby's spokesman remained silent, referring all questions to "the expected White House announcement."

Congressional and administration sources confirmed the dismissals and there would likely be these changes in the government.

Kissinger will leave as head of the National Security Council, which many congressional critics, especially Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., had asked him to do.

Kissinger's chief military aide, Air Force Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, will take his place.

Donald H. Rumsfeld, a long-time Ford associate and currently White House chief of staff, will replace Schlesinger at the Pentagon.

George Bush, the American representative in China, will replace Colby as head of the State's Central Intelligence Agency.

Jackson, who made the first announcement of the shake-up Sunday, praised Schlesinger as a "breath of fresh air on Capitol Hill" and said he believed the secretary of defense was fired because of differences of opinion with Kissinger.

John Schlessinger "took the truth to Congress. He never equivocated. That's not the case with Dr. Kissinger. And his standing on the hill — that is Schlesinger's — has risen steadily."

There's nothing wrong with growth as long as the right efforts are made to control it.

DeAtley has been a businessman in Jerome since 1937 and feels he has the experience necessary to cope with the rapid growth of Jerome.

He said that with proper budgeting and planning Jerome can avoid the type of financial problem suffered by cities such as New York and still provide necessary services to people.

The candidate has been an automobile and truck salesman in the area for most of the 38 years he has lived here. He said he now feels he should give some of his time to public service.

Kaiser who has recently retired after 20 years service with the city of Jerome feels his past experiences of working for the city will help him in the council position.

"In running for the city council I hope to bring to use my experience in working with the city for the taxpayers benefit. I bring 29 years of combined experience with police, water, sewer, street and irrigation departments. During this time I have become familiar with the design and operation of these departments — and understand their operations and problems," Kaiser said.

Long range planning of Jerome's growth and better communications with townpeople are the two most important factors in Zimmerman's bid for the council position.

Bovay has been a resident of Jerome for 25 years and plans to spend the rest of his life here — not because of the life he is concerned about the welfare and future of Jerome.

"With the attendant increase in population many factors are involved. One of the most important is the necessity of building a new sewage disposal plant. That is the first priority. Secondly, expansion of our domestic water supply must be increased. Other facilities will follow in minor proportions," Bovay said.

Bovay operates Bovay Distributing, a state-wide operation based in Jerome. Bubak has served 10 months on the council filling the position of S.N. Weeks, who retired. He feels his past experience on the council will be of great help in planning other facilities which now will help us to perform our duties as a community more effectively," Bubak said.

Bubak feels the number one problem facing Jerome is the need for a new wastewater treatment plant. He also feels long range planning for Jerome is important. "Planning is something we've needed for a long time but we're only getting started on it now. Lack of planning is one of the reasons we are in the messes we are in today," Bubak said.

Jerome has field of 6 for council posts

By CHARLOTTE BELL Times-News Writer

JEROME — Six candidates are seeking three City Council seats in Tuesday's Jerome election.

Four of the candidates will be seeking two four-year terms of office, and two of the candidates are vying for the one two-year vacancy.

Seeking the four-year term of office are the incumbent Charles Correll, Fred Kaiser, Jeffrey "Buz" Zimmerman and Charles DeAtley. Incumbent Bill Bubak and Paul Bovay will compete for the single two-year position.

Correll, who was appointed to the council at the beginning of 1975 to fill the seat of Fred Bauscher, feels the experience gained since his appointment would help him serve on the council again.

Correll said Jerome is a rapidly growing community. "Having started my business here I have a stake in Jerome's future. I'm not only looking at the present, but also forty years into the future, making decisions now that will continue to make Jerome a nice community in which we all want to live and work," Correll said.

Correll was born and raised in Jerome, having graduated from Jerome High School and has obtained a degree from the University of Idaho. He presently is self employed as a public accountant.

Maloney on a two-vote difference

He wants the city to regain control of the college campus. He says the college expansion or some vacant building should be used as a center to provide recreation for youngsters.

The whole town has to be involved in city government. He says the city's sewer fire protection is one concern. The fire truck is being deteriorated hoses. He said he is concerned about the city "money projects."

He says he has lived in Albion "on and off" since 1946 and is familiar with the city's projects. He believes there should be competition for city offices.

Cagle pledges to let the people have more about where the city funds are spent. He says there are many questions on the sewer and other city efforts. He wants major purchases to go in bid and purchase orders on all smaller items.

Heller is a writer and has lived in Albion about two years. He cites his experience as councilman for Albion, Idaho, as helpful in the growing complexity of city government.

Heller voices concern about city finances and obtaining grants for city projects, such as the present sewer work and other possible improvements.

He says Albion must do all it can to develop the Pomerleau ski area for the business benefits the city will receive.

Albion lists 8 candidates for council

By SHANE O'NEILL Times-News Writer

ALBION — Legal battles over a 99-year lease on the former Albion State Normal School are one concern that brought out eight candidates for four city positions before the voters Tuesday.

At stake are the mayor's post and three council seats. One of them, James E. W. (Chris) Cagle, LaVern E. Roe and Ralph Heller.

The normal school campus was turned over to city ownership in 1973 after the City of Christ stopped operating it as the Magic Valley Christian College. The city signed a 99-year lease with Lynn Geraldine, Douglas and Donna Teplitz to operate it as the Oregon Tr., Festival of Arts.

Since that time the city has given a conditional deed of conveyance on the property to a New Mexico financier for a vocational technical school. It filed suit in 1973 to break the lease, charging the facilities had not been repaired, insurance had lapsed, bills were unpaid and the educational program had not been maintained.

The Peoples filed a countersuit against the city this year for $450,000, claiming city actions have hampered operation of educational programs and slowed repair and maintenance on the buildings. That suit was followed by embroilment charges against Lynn Teplitz for $450,000, claiming city actions have hampered operation of educational programs and slowed repair and maintenance on the buildings.

Mayor Mahoney, who attended Albion State Normal School, lists clean-up of the campus as one of the major parts of his administration. He also cites the city's sewer project, including a lagoon waste-treatment system now nearly completed.

A farmer and rancher, Mahoney was elected to the council in 1973 and appointed city engineer in 1974. He resigned when the former mayor resigned.

He says street repaving is one of his goals and that he wants city funds to be expended economically. Bouk is a local building contractor. The Times-News was unable to contact him for comment on the campaign. Rev. Wunder also was unavailable.

He is a machine shop foreman for Idaho Norland and has lived in Albion eight years. He was defeated for council two years ago by to work on community projects." He charges that some councilmen have "acted as if they didn't want town-ship." He says he will "take steps for productive growth of the Albion campus" and the people should have a full view of city operations.

Ames is concerned about getting streets paved, particularly where sewer installation has made cuts. He also lists the problem of vacant homes and the consequent additional burden on other taxpayers to finance the sewer project. He pledges to go to each resident to get his views on zoning for the city.

The lawsuit and councilman's claim on the college campus also is a concern of Ames, who says the first step to solving the problem of deterioration is to get control back to the city's hands.

He says he has lived in Albion "on and off" since 1946 and is familiar with the city's projects. He believes there should be competition for city offices.

Cagle pledges to let the people have more about where the city funds are spent. He says there are many questions on the sewer and other city efforts. He wants major purchases to go in bid and purchase orders on all smaller items.

Heller voices concern about city finances and obtaining grants for city projects, such as the present sewer work and other possible improvements.

He says Albion must do all it can to develop the Pomerleau ski area for the business benefits the city will receive.

New York day of reckoning moves nearer

WASHINGTON — The essence of President Ford's speech on the bankruptcy of New York City was in this: "New York City's officials have proved in the past that they will not face up to the city's massive network of pressure groups as long as any alternative is available."

So he removed that alternative, once and for all. No more deals and deals. No more "vice President" hookups to raise false hopes, no more receding into the sincere market-calming assurances of Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns the chimeric of last-minute largesse.

No New Yorker can say that Ford led him down the garden path and then doubled-crossed him. Except for one moment — when the President called the "deal" guaranteed with Rockefeller "minimal" — both the President and his press secretary have been consistent, and as it turns out, truthful about the administration's intent.

Uncertainty is now removed; like it or not, the President's speech was surely timely, and the removal of question marks was necessary. What happened next?

First, New York's politicians, special-interest groups and boosters will emit one long, fierce roar of anger, anguish and angst. Nothing wrong with that; people are human.

Next, city and state officials still stop pretending that nothing more can be done to shrink the swollen bureaucracy or to raise new revenues, and editorialists will stop saying that nothing more can be done locally to balance the budget and ultimately restore investor confidence.

Then, sensible bankers and business men will stop running around predicting riot and collapse after default, since that fact is not work, and will begin to set the prudent business men again, building a plan of reorganization on the bedrock of the new reality.

Fourth, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter Rodino, who has been bottling up necessary bankruptcy legislation so that he can never be accused of glossing the city's sins, will — with great reluctance — propose the bill that should have been on the House floor weeks ago.

Then — and this is less certain — the Congress may pass unnecessary legislation to guarantee city indebtedness, in order to elect the promised Ford vote and prove to some constituents that some Congressmen wanted to "save" New York. But it will be so check-full of punitive controls that even New York Congressmen will gag at the prospect.

Sixth, the realization will dawn that there was never much difference between the facile rule given up to a federal board of overseers, reorganized by the guarantee enthusiasts and the home rule, handed over to a federal bankruptcy judge. In both cases, the city admits incompetence and receives protection.

Then, with good sense and some good humor, the city's power-brokers will appear and make the deals needed for union officials to say "Not my fault" to their members, and bankers to say "Don't blame us" to investors. The sense of helplessness and the foretaste of doom will decide when the fact is accepted that the back ends in New York.

Especially when the federal government, the Supreme Court and the biggest federalist point of view, the Eisenhower administration, are maintained. Sen. James L. Buckley says to that.

By and keeping cops on the beat, an infusion of federal money to help the city pay its current debt will be forthcoming. Ford talked only of "debt certificates," paid out of future revenues. But I'm told this means that the national government will buy those bonds and make it possible for the city to redeem them with future revenue-sharing funds. That is a way of providing the turnaround money — the " bailout" — while maintaining the stern expression of Uncle Sam.

The city, if it defaults, will accept the name but not the shame of bankruptcy. We will not see the panic, the rippling rhythm, the general strikes, or all the thousand unforced shocks we have been promised by worried and harried men.

Grumbling, muttering under their breath, New Yorkers will put together the beginnings of a way out. Life won't be the same on City Hall, and investors will have to wait longer for their full payout, but the city's residents have resources of pride, courage and stoicism — even selflessness — that have been too long untapped.

New York is being given the fact but not the appearance of federal help. This will force the city to make efforts to get help, which is a healthy atmosphere for financial and cultural creativity.

For a time, New York politicians will unload their frustrations on Gerald Ford. But before this decade ends, a reorganized and solvent city will thank him, for not postponing the necessary day of reckoning, and for refusing to allow the nation's first city to sell the local sovereignty of its citizens for a mess of federal guarantees.

Landmark case moves up

BRADFORD, Ohio — On a recent Thursday night, the Rev. Levi Whisner had a long distance call from attorney William Ball in Harrisburg, Pa.

"Say a special prayer," urged Ball. "We'll find out in the morning." Twelve hours later came the joyful message: The Supreme Court of Ohio had agreed to hear Preacher Whisner's appeal. One more step had been taken in what now promises to be a landmark case in the law that governs the free exercise of religion.

This is an unlikely place for the building of landmarks. Bradford is a mere dot on the map of the state. The town is a farming county, flat as a photograph record; a bus passenger could sleep through 50 miles of it and never miss a thing. But hard by the highway that runs between Piqua and Greenville is an unpretentious brick church, and behind the church is a square school house. The question now before the Supreme Court of Ohio is whether the Tabernacle Christian School must comply with standards set by the State Board of Education or close its doors for good.

This is a criminal case, State of Ohio v. Whisner, et al. The defendants are 12 parents of children attending the Tabernacle School. The facts are not in dispute. The parents indignantly have sent their children to the school, and the school undoubtedly is not accredited by the state. In Ohio, as in other states, this is a crime. The 12 parents were convicted, fined $25 each, and put under bond not to send their children back.

An intermediate court of appeals has sustained the convictions. Meanwhile, pending ultimate disposition in the courts, the school continues its operation.

Before it ends, the case of Preacher Whisner is likely to find its place in the line of cases that stretches back to Pierce v. Society of Sisters, decided in 1925. It follows in the footsteps of Wisconsin v. Yoder, decided just three years ago. Ball did a brilliant job in that case, successfully defending a group of Amish parents, who insisted upon their right to educate their children in the "old ways."

The same principle is at stake here in Bradford. Preacher Whisner's flock is a fundamentalist flock, partly Dunkard in its origins, composed of persons who have God and fear God. The fear comes first. To expose their children to the worldly temptations of non-religious instruction in their view, is to invite the wrath of God. They live by the Bible. They teach by the Bible. They live by the Bible. They are inoffensive, law-abiding people. They mean to stay that way, but they also mean to keep their school.

This is a classic confrontation between the rights of the people and the powers of the state. The people have a right to the free exercise of religion, and the state has a power to fix minimum standards of education. Preacher Whisner, and the brothers and sisters of Tabernacle Church want their children raised to know God. The State of Ohio wants them raised to know some other things also.

On Friday morning that the word came from Columbus, the 62 pupils of Tabernacle School were quietly at work at their studies. The one big room, 40 by 42, is well-lit, paneled and carpeted wall-to-wall; the building, only two years old, is spotlessly clean. The pupils sit at little cubby holes, in the fashion of graduate students in their carrels. These are their "offices." Each child works in his office at his own speed. The three teachers circulate among them.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The children learn chiefly from "Packets of Accelerated Christian Education," known as "paces." A boy or girl may be working simultaneously at a fifth grade pace in math, a sixth grade pace in social studies, and a ninth grade pace in English. All instruction is Bible-oriented. A typical poster on the wall scorns the children against anger, jealousy, deceit, pride, lying, selfishness, cheating and coveting. The school runs for the standard 180-day term. Library books are few, scientific equipment was not in evidence. Pupils bring their own lunch, and at recess they tumble toward the playground with apparent happy relief of children anywhere.

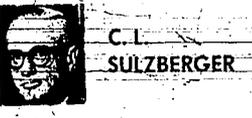

Do parents have a right thus to control the education of their own children? Does the State of Ohio have the power to impose some "Minimum Standards" on such a private school? The state insists that all "activities" of the Tabernacle School "shall conform to policies adopted by the Board of Education." The parents of Preacher Whisner's flock insist on fifty-three alternatives.

If freedom of religion still has meaning, in the end the parents will win.

Policy paralysis season approaches

WASHINGTON — The United States is once again about to enter the regular seasonal period of paralysis that interrupts the normal conduct of its foreign policy every four years because of party rivalry and factional jockeying prior to the presidential election.

Some time before next and January virtually all but the most minor or least negotiable aspects of American diplomacy are likely to find their way into the executive mailbox. Of course President Ford will carry out whatever final arrangements are made for his projected visit to China. Yet it is clear that trip will contain vital serious discussions of the US-Soviet nuclear defense treaty, with Taiwan. Pending a willingness to normalize relationships with Washington while that vestigial remnant of our former Chinese policy continues.

C. L. SULZBERGER

Obviously when a wholly unimpressed emergency session in foreign relations during the presidential period, the United States is not automatically condemned to lassitude. Thus, in October 1956, President Eisenhower ignored the suggestion that strong action against the Israeli-French invasion of Egypt might cost him the influential vote of American Jews. He used all his energy to the contrary, as a whole to take political risks regarded as needless or excessive by practical politicians.

Among both Republicans and Democrats there are well-known groupings and candidates tending to the right or left. These might gain or lose strength in intra-party nominating rivalries were any of the above issues dramatized prior to the conventions.

At the same time it is considered far wiser in the State Department than certain diplomatic matters — the leg out of the emotion over a competitive politics so as not to distort or negate desired results sought by U.S. planners or negotiators.

The well-known phenomenon of policy paralysis that usually accompanies American campaigns is a factor that weighs in the decision-making for foreign countries, as well as U.S. politicians. For example, some influential Arab voices had been raised against Secretary Kissinger's successful second-step negotiation between Israel and Egypt last summer.

His argument was that not enough could be accomplished now in the name of regional peace. They concluded it would be better to await a post-electoral clarification of a possibly new viewpoint in Washington.

It is a pity that this tendency, every four years, to interrupt or interfere with the formulation of American foreign policy should be a factor with which the world must reckon. Yet it does exist. It is awkward and while the United States remains a superpower, its voters and their candidates remain responsive to emotionally presented and sometimes inflated issues which it is wiser not to put forward during elections. That is a moment when the level of democracy can sometimes fall below intellectual judgment, in this country.

Word's meaning remains same

Editor, Times News: Excuse my!

This seems to be a word in our English language which lends itself to many interpretations and meanings of emphasis. There is a current TV commercial in which Sunny makes use of striking dramatic effect when she asks others in their confused and halting attempts to express an idea by merely pronouncing this word.

In recent days it has been my own experience to have this word repeatedly fed back to me. In times of stammering attempts to convey my feelings that too many people are running loose who should be in jail, too many criminals are being released after being convicted; some of our laws are weak or unfair — the response comes back, "Exactly."

And, strangely, this response comes from people whom we feel are giving endorsement to existing procedures and conditions.

Many times I have deplored many of our new regulations and laws pertaining to law enforcement and the penal code as the men who work full time to enforce the law. Because of their own dedication and involvement there can be overwhelming cynicism or discouragement.

How would you feel if you had worked several weeks to solve a burglary case only to have local citizens refuse to serve as witnesses or to bring charges? If you had chosen law enforcement as your profession would you continue to attempt to support your family on the low salary being received?

Would you become discouraged in trying to carry an impossible work load with inadequate jail space, secretarial help and shortages in every phase and department of your work?

Most of all, how would you feel if it appears to you that our entire judicial system is being undermined by new laws and regulations designed to insure independence and freedom for every individual? But with clever manipulation and legal technicalities, the criminal element in our country can turn the structure of our law enforcement system into a sham.

Law enforcement officials and judges in every community can only bring enforcement and punishment in strict compliance with existing laws. And in this 20th year of our nation's history the informed and intelligent citizen had better begin to deplore much of the recent legislation which has come.

In our local community it will be well to listen to those who have been trying to tell us that existing problems will become worse before they become better.

Merely by being in a growing population center we have been assigned the task of changing and growing as is also true of our schools and every other department offering services to the public. But the most alarming and perhaps unsuspected threats which undermine our peaceable and quiet existence is coming from our strong tendency to become an apathetic and date-oriented society. Lawyers, the criminal element in our country can turn the structure of our law enforcement system into a sham.

Chicago is not the only city in the United States in which an increasing number of laborers and citizens look forward to pay day and to the release and entertainment waiting for them in the use of drink and dope.

If we can visit with one another and if we can have dialogue between various groups and departments it will be wonderful to discover that 90 per cent of us desire the same things. And as we express our desires and criticisms to other persons we will hear the expression "come bouncing back to us." Exactly!

WILLIAM H. PHIPPS Twin Falls.

Try fresh tack

Editor, Times News:

I suggest that Times News's editorial board stop to determine which persons in Twin Falls County are most respected for honesty, integrity, sincerity, charity to those who are hurting and who is least likely to stab his neighbor in the back for gain of power or money.

It would be most interesting to compare such a list with the list of most influential persons. L. J. ETTINGHAUSEN Twin Falls.

Likewise word has been passed to Moscow that after early in 1976 it will become impossible to continue serious SALT negotiations. Strategic Arms Limitation talks until after the quadrennial succession problem has been decided. And already it is apparent that no final agreement with Panama abrogating the existing canal treaty or further steps toward resolving the quarrel with Cuba can be expected until the American people have chosen their next chief executive.

Kissinger 'Sunday morning massacre' architect

By Peter Lisagor and William J. Egan

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was the architect of the "Sunday morning massacre" that led to President Ford's abrupt removal of Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger and Central Intelligence Director William E. Colby.

Ford told Schlesinger that he must be removed in his Pentagon post because of friction with Kissinger over military and foreign policy, government sources said.

Donald Rumsfeld, White House chief of staff, was offered the defense secretary's post by the President but asked for time to think it over, the sources said.

George Bush, former chairman of the Republican National Committee who is now chief U.S. envoy to mainland China in Peking, was reported in line to replace Colby at the embattled CIA.

Schlesinger was said to be in shock over the unexpected firing from the job he has held for more than two years.

He and Colby were summoned to the White House Sunday morning before Ford left for a Jacksonville, Fla., meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The President offered Schlesinger and Colby other unspecified jobs in his administration, sources said. Both refused.

Under the shakeup ordered by Ford, Kissinger would lose his special job as special assistant to the President for national security affairs in the White House. But a close Kissinger friend and ally, Gen. Brent Scowcroft, was the most likely successor in that "second hat" post also held by Kissinger since he was named to the cabinet by former President Richard M. Nixon. Scowcroft is now Kissinger's deputy on the National Security Council.

Government sources said Kissinger wanted to get rid of Schlesinger because the defense chief often was at odds with the secretary of state over military spending, strategic weapons bargaining with the Soviet Union and the entire Kissinger-promoted policy of détente with the Kremlin.

Schlesinger's departure would remove Kissinger's chief challenger within the Administration on foreign- and defense policy matters, the sources said.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., alluded to the infighting in the Cabinet in a statement on the Sunday night.

"Dr. Kissinger is a man of outstanding competence, courage, integrity and honor," Jackson said. "His abrupt removal indicates that the Administration cannot tolerate differing views and honest advice on the most serious issues of national security. His departure is a loss to the nation and to the free world."

The double sucking was termed the "Sunday morning massacre" by reporters here because it recalled the surprising "Saturday night massacre" of Oct. 20, 1973 when Nixon fired the first Watergate special prosecutor, Archibald Cox. Earlier, Richardson resigned as attorney general rather than to question him on the subject, Ford told them "I love you all" but refused to say more.

As late as Saturday night, a Pentagon spokesman denied that Schlesinger was going to be removed. "Government" sources said he would resign rather than accept the deep economy cuts suggested for military outlays because he did not plan to preside "over the liquidation of the nation's defenses."

Schlesinger recently lost a budget battle in the House which cut $7.6 billion from the President's Pentagon request. He termed the cuts "deep, savage and arbitrary" but a Senate appropriations subcommittee has reaffirmed all but $40 million of the reductions.

Kissinger also was reported opposed to Colby's continuing as CIA chief in the wake of scandals in the intelligence agency. The secretary of state believes Colby has mishandled the defense of the CIA during Congressional appearances and interviews, government sources said.

It has been an open secret in Washington that Kissinger and Schlesinger actively dislike each other personally as well as being at odds on public policy.

While Kissinger always has pushed the right congressional apples, Schlesinger disdains the little committees that doubt committee chairmen. In fact, Schlesinger's critics accuse him of an abject arrogance that hurts his own cause.

Kissinger respects Schlesinger's intellect if not his attitude, believing the defense secretary to be the only Cabinet member who can match him on military and strategic matters. Kissinger's critics contend that he cannot abide such a rival.

While he was vice president, Ford once told an interviewer that he might get rid of Schlesinger if he became commander in chief because of Schlesinger's attitudes in congressional relations.

But Ford later said he had changed his mind. Last spring, Schlesinger was being courted by some aides as a superstar in the cabinet who had the President's ear. The administration was reported to be relying too heavily for foreign policy advice on the ubiquitous Kissinger.

Reaction precedes firing news

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The reaction came far ahead of the news when it was first reported Sunday that Defense Secretary James Schlesinger was fired.

With the White House, Pentagon and State Department making no comment at all, it was Sen. Henry Jackson, a Schlesinger supporter, who confirmed the story long before the usual congressional and administration sources could be checked.

Ford seeking lid on US death plots

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and the Department of Justice are moving on two fronts to keep details of United States involvement in assassination plots against foreign leaders from being made public.

A spokesman for the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence said Sunday that late Friday each member of the committee had received a "strongly worded" letter signed by Ford urging the members not to make public the committee's forthcoming report on the Central Intelligence Agency's involvement in plots to kill foreign leaders. The spokesman declined to make the letter public and said that the committee had called for a meeting Monday to discuss it.

A White House source said the three- and one-half page letter set forth "in great detail" the reasons Ford believed the publication of the report would harm national security.

Sen. Frank Church, the committee chairman, immediately rejected Ford's plea.

"I am astonished that President Ford wants to suppress the committee's report on assassination and keep it concealed from the American people," the Idaho Democrat said. "They have a right to know what their Government has done."

"The President himself asked the committee to investigate these charges. For months he has known of the committee's intent to publish its findings in form of a special report. The statement added that Church would oppose Ford's plea in committee debate.

Also late Friday, the Department of Justice filed affidavits opposing efforts to make public Government documents on foreign assassination plots.

The government affidavits disclosed for the first time that the CIA and the State Department had discovered 62 documents on political assassinations spanning the terms of three Presidents.

In one series of "dispatches," according to the affidavit, is a communication from the CIA dated "22 November 1963" and classified secret. That is the date President Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas. The communication is one of eight "dispatches" that a CIA official said in the affidavit should not be made public because they "concern a sensitive covert operation."

Schlesinger mum

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger stayed home Sunday with his children, making no comment about his firing by President Ford.

Several of Schlesinger's eight children answered the door, and one of them demanded and got a newsmen's White House credentials before spokesman Joe Laitin came to the door of the rambling brick house.

Laitin said the secretary was inside but did not do what most other Washingtonians did — watch the Redskins' sudden-death football victory on television. He did inquire about the score, Laitin said.

Conferees push bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With Nov. 15 the deadline for the current extension of oil price controls, House and Senate conferees are at work on a final bill for action in both houses.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., predicted Sunday the conferees would finish the bill this week.

With a meeting today to work out energy prices, the final unresolved issue, "I expect we will adopt a strong rollback that will reduce oil prices to fair levels," he said.

Jackson predicted the compromise bill will be approved by large majorities in both the House and the Senate.

Reuss eyes reversal

NEW YORK (UPI) — The House Banking Committee chairman says President Ford has refused federal backing for loans to New York City for political reasons, but he hopes the administration will reverse its position.

Sen. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., said Sunday, "We don't think that makes sense. We don't think that sadism and politics ought to mix."

Moroccan troops may defy warnings

MADRID (UPI) — Spain warned today that it will fight if necessary to stop a Moroccan takeover of the Spanish Sahara. Algeria also strongly opposes a Moroccan takeover and has hinted that it, too, will fight.

Moroccan Prime Minister Ahmed Osman arrived in Madrid today on a surprise trip and was meeting with Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon, the acting chief of state, and Premier Carlos Arias Navarro. No Spanish official greeted Osman at Barajas airport.

In another surprise flight, United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim was expected in Agadir, Morocco at 10:30 a.m. Friday. King Hassan II, Juan Carlos flew Sunday to El Aun, capital of the Spanish Sahara, and promised that "everything will be done to preserve the prestige and honor of 15,000 Spanish legionnaires there."

The U.N. Security Council urged Sunday during an emergency session that all parties to the dispute do nothing to escalate the crisis. The crisis began Oct. 16 when King Hassan declared he would lead 350,000 unarmed civilians on a peaceful march to take over the phosphate-rich territory which is under Spanish control but is destined for independence.

Nearly all the 350,000 are massed in a tent city 25 miles north of the Sahara frontier and the march was scheduled to begin Tuesday. Wednesday or Thursday with King Hassan in the lead.

"Unfortunately it looks now as if there might be violence in the Sahara," a Spanish government source said. "King Hassan seems bent on carrying out the march and we doubt whether he can stop it now."

"We will have to take action against the invasion of our territory. There is no difference between armed and unarmed invasion."

The source said the problem was that Morocco would not accept any other solution but a handover of the territory to itself and to Mauritania. The Spanish government source said a great many land mines remain planted in the border region over the route the Moroccan march would take to El Aun, the territorial capital 40 miles south of the Moroccan frontier. "We have not been able to remove them all."

"He said Spain would be compelled to take action to stop any invasion because we are responsible for the territory. The United Nations has told us to assure the safety of the territory and its population."

Surprise visit

PRINCE Juan Carlos, the temporary Spanish Head of State, met with local tribesman 'Polisarios', left, from El Aun, Spanish Sahara, when he flew in on a surprise visit Sunday. The prince assured the people that Spain is seeking a peaceful solution in the controversy with Morocco over the control of the region. (UPI)

IEB plans confab to oust union head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The international executive board of the United Mine Workers of America has voted by a 24 margin to call a convention to oust President Arnold Miller.

"An official of the United Mine Workers Union says the IEB vote taken Friday was a 'stupid' lunge for control of the coal union by its No. 2 man. The official, who declined to be identified, predicted that "nothing would result of the 146 vote to oust Miller. The executive board is composed of a representative of each of the union's 21 districts, plus its three top officers."

The union, scandal-racked in the past, is in the midst of an election struggle between Miller and International Vice President Mike Triovich.

The official said proponents of the motion to remove Miller from the office he has held since 1972 were "stupid enough to think that they could do it this way. Probably tomorrow they will vote that the sun will rise in the West."

The union's international executive board planned to meet today.

George Varanese, UMW vice president for pension affairs, but not a member of the board, Friday introduced a motion to call a special union convention for the purpose of removing Miller, the official said.

The official, a Miller ally, predicted the move would backfire and that rank and file miners would rise up in "defense of Miller."

"This was a political maneuver engineered by Mike Triovich who has a greed for power," the official charged.

He suggested that backers of Miller's predecessor, W.A. "Tony" Boyle also were involved in the anti-Miller strategy. Boyle was convicted of murder in the slaying of Joseph Yablonski, who once challenged Boyle for union leadership.

Under the union constitution, an officer can be removed only through a process which first requires a petition for removal by a 5 per cent of the membership. After a bill of charges has been drawn up, members have 30 days to collect the signatures of 30 per cent of the membership on another petition asking for a recall vote. Thirty percent would translate into about 75,000 signatures which are needed for Miller's ultimate removal.

"It's one thing for 14 political pawns on the IEB to vote. It's quite another to get 75,000 members to vote," the official said.

Arab involvement could see Israel intervention

CHICAGO (UPI) — Israel will give serious consideration to military intervention in Lebanon if any Arab nation steps into the current civil war there, according to Simcha Dinitz, Israeli ambassador to the United States.

"We are very concerned that our northern border with Lebanon should not become a border of confrontation," he told a news conference Sunday. "If there is an invasion of Lebanon by any Arab country, Israel will have to weigh the consequences very seriously."

"He would not say, however, under what specific conditions Israel would confront a third party in the Lebanese situation."

Dinitz also criticized Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

He said he did not think Sadat's visit to the United States signaled any change in U.S.-Israeli relations or that the U.S. would acquire new friendships at the expense of old, trusted ones.

He termed Sadat's recent remarks about Israel during his U.S. visit "distortions" and said they did not indicate Sadat's willingness to find a perennial solution to the situation in the Middle East.

"It seems he has retained a sense of the Nazi philosophy," Dinitz said, referring to Sadat's imprisonment in 1971 on charges he collaborated with the Nazis in Egypt.

"He still has a lot to learn and he still has a lot to forget. It is disturbing to see that he still retains some of the Nazis' feelings in regard to the Jews," Dinitz said.

He also called the United Nations' proposed resolution equating Zionism with racism a "clear attempt to prepare the ground for the expulsion of Israel from the United Nations."

Dinitz said another concern of Israel's in Lebanon was the "humanitarian question. A minority, in this case, Christian, is being slaughtered by a Muslim majority and the rest of the world is apathetic," he said.

Sinai pact draws more criticism

CHICAGO Sun-Times

AMMAN — Jordan's moderate King Hussein harbors reservations about the Israeli-Egyptian peace pact in the Sinai.

He said he was pleased by the agreement with Syria and the PLO, but he will not state them as harshly, according to well-placed officials.

Syrian and PLO leaders have been shrilly attacking Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for entering into the agreement with Israel, but Hussein is understood to be limiting his criticism to the pact itself.

"Incessant, word of Hussein's objections is being made known in the United States at a time when Sadat is still on his good will tour there."

A public break by Hussein, King considered the most moderate of all Arab leaders, would contribute to Sadat's isolation in the Arab world.

"Hussein's primary objections to the Sinai pact are said to be that it does not guarantee momentum toward a wider Arab-Israeli settlement and that Egypt has forsaken 'the option of going to war to get back Arab territories captured by Israel in 1967.'"

"Not that this means Egypt should go to war," an official said, "but anybody with occupied territory should have the option. Sadat has forsaken perennial solution to the situation in the Middle East.

"It seems he has retained a sense of the Nazi philosophy," Dinitz said, referring to Sadat's imprisonment in 1971 on charges he collaborated with the Nazis in Egypt.

"He still has a lot to learn and he still has a lot to forget. It is disturbing to see that he still retains some of the Nazis' feelings in regard to the Jews," Dinitz said.

He also called the United Nations' proposed resolution equating Zionism with racism a "clear attempt to prepare the ground for the expulsion of Israel from the United Nations."

Dinitz said another concern of Israel's in Lebanon was the "humanitarian question. A minority, in this case, Christian, is being slaughtered by a Muslim majority and the rest of the world is apathetic," he said.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Do you believe that dogs can understand human language? My sister, Carol, insists that they can. At least she says her poodle can.

Carol went on a three-week vacation and left "Pishar" in a kennel. When she returned she said Pishar was so furious with her that he wouldn't look her in the face for five days. Carol took the dog in her arms, and he turned his head away. Then she said, "If I promise never to put you in a kennel again, will you forgive me?"

She claims the poodle looked at her with love and understanding and actually noddled his head as if to say, "Yes, I forgive you." Then he nuzzled her and started to lick her hand to show his appreciation and affection.

Carol says she knows that Pishar understood every word she said, and she'll never put him in a kennel again because she promises she wouldn't.

Can you believe this? Or do you think my sister is a nut?

ESTHER IN HARTFORD

DEAR Esther: When it comes to dog lovers, I can believe anything.

Poodle forgives

DEAR ABBY: Rick and I were both underage and needed our parents' signatures to get married. I was pregnant at the time, but after we got married I lost the baby.

We couldn't afford a place of our own, so we lived with my parents. It was okay for about three months, then Rick decided it was too crowded at my folks' house, and he thought it would be better if I lived with my parents and he went back and lived with his.

"Abby, I don't like this arrangement at all. Rick has started to run around with his friends like he did before we were married. I'm afraid he's got another girl.

If he keeps telling me that as soon as he can afford it we will get a place of our own, but I don't believe he really wants one.

He comes to see me maybe once a week for an hour, and then he takes off. I just sit and cry. Please help me. I don't feel married anymore.

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: Married people belong together. If you can't afford a place of your own, you should live with your parents or Rick's. This way, you have no marriage, debt, Tell Rick it's either—or. His answer will tell you what to do.

DEAR ABBY: I identified with the fellow who preferred not to broadcast the line work he was in.

I am a Roman Catholic priest, and every time I get to a town where I'm not known, I take off my collar and put on a sport shirt.

I'm not trying to get away with anything, but the minute people (especially Catholics) spot me in my Roman collar, they corner me and start to tell me their troubles.

Most people are much more relaxed and comfortable around me if they don't know I'm a priest.

INCOGNITO IN MASS.

DEAR ABBY: The man who lied about his job because he didn't want people to know that he was a garbage collector caught my eye because I lie about my job, too.

I'm a police officer, and when I'm off duty, I tell strangers (when they ask) that I work for the city.

If they inquire further, I tell them that I'm a garbage collector. In a way, I sometimes am.

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
My daughter is just 13 months old and has what her doctor calls a "funnel chest." He says it is not a very serious one at this point. We have discussed it and I have not been able to understand much about it. I would like to know what causes it? Is there anything to do about it?
Can't be cured or fixed now or in later years? — Mrs. G.C.
A "funnel chest," called "pectus excavatum," is a depression of the breastbone (sternum), the vertical structure to which the ribs are attached. In funnel chest, the depression is at the lower portion of the rib cage and it causes the characteristic bowing in of the chest. Thus the name.
Its cause is uncertain. One theory is that there is a maldevelopment of the front muscles of the diaphragm — a shortening of a central tendon attaching to the breastbone which exerts an abnormal inward pressure.
My consultant, Dr. J.H. Hertzler, a pediatric surgeon, tells me this is an unusual condition. He believes it is caused by parts of the fetus exerting abnormal pressures on the breastbone. Since it may be found in several members of the same family, hereditary factors are suggested.

Funnel chest may 'crowd'

This high defect is crowded only when the depression is severe enough to cause a "kinking" of organs that lie behind the area — the heart and lungs notably. Your physician apparently feels your daughter's case does not fit that category as yet, so it poses no immediate problem.
Later, if necessary, surgery can correct the depression. This is done after the fourth year, and is possible up until puberty. An X-ray of the chest from the front and the sides will provide continuing information regarding the progress of the condition.
The child should be watched for such symptoms as undue shortness of breath. When the child can cooperate, lung function tests will help keep you apprised of progress. Heart function will also be monitored from time to time to detect any impairment.
Some surgeons are reluctant to suggest repair of the defect unless it can be demonstrated that the condition poses an actual threat to health. Some do not consider repair for cosmetic purposes justified.
I have had personal experience with this problem in a grandson. After examination and thorough testing, it was decided to do nothing. The boy, now 10, tells the curious simply that he was "born that way." Your daughter, now a little over a year old, needs nothing done at present.
Exercises to develop the chest wall are important. Pulling on a rope, push ups, deep breathing, blowing into a balloon or on a musical instrument have been helpful in improving a minor depression.
For you, the next few years will tell the story.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I would like to make donations to foundations doing research on both diabetes and kidney disease, but I cannot seem to find how to. Can you give me any addresses? — Mrs. F.E.
Local diabetes and kidney foundation units are usually listed in telephone directories of any large city near you. This of course, applies to other groups doing research into other diseases. These groups welcome such donations.
Specifically, you can write to the American Diabetes Association, 18 East 48th St., New York, N.Y., 10017, and to the National Kidney Foundation, 116 East 27th St., New York, N.Y., 10016.
Confidential to Mrs. A.R. — The fact that you have not had intercourse in more than 20 years would not rule out pregnancy, especially since you say that you are still menstruating. Precautions under these circumstances, even though you are 50, would be in order.
Low blood sugar is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 3999, Elgin-111-60129 for a copy of "Help for Hypoglycemia," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

DAY INTO EVENING HAIRDOS

By Mary Sue Miller
Hair fashions, now so swingy and casual by day, literally perform a about face after dark. The evening do is designed for dazzle and drama.
THE SWITCH is made by brushing the hair up and back to meet a hair piece—a chignon, or a curl pouf—or a braid. The sides and back are brushed to sleekness; the front is slightly domed.
Hairpieces are positioned toward the back of the head, never forward on the crown. When bangs are a part of the scheme, as well they may be, they form a thick, smooth arch over the forehead with nary a whisk or whisker to break the line.
Polish is actually the crux of evening arrangements. It routes any sort of endy undies.
Best of all, it is now possible to convert from day to evening in a matter of minutes. Just add a styling hair spray and a box of radiated hairspray to your hairpiece. Plus a few practice sessions, of course.
Expertise comes from following these suggestions: Lightly dampen the hair with spray; immediately arrange the front and sides with a brush, tucking in a small pin as need be. In the back, lap one side over the other, turn in and pin the overlap and spray again. Now attach your hairpiece well back on your head and secure with a sturdier pin.
You'll look lovely!

Oswald: "The continent-wide charity game is played later on this month. This duplicate game is played all over the continent under the auspices of the American Contract Bridge League Charity Foundation."
Jim: "With tens of thousands of people playing the same hands anything is likely to happen and does happen."
Oswald: "Here is a hand from the spring game. The bidding in the box is what might take place with a pair who play standard American without any Stayman responses. South opens two notrump with his balanced 23 high-card points. North bids his five-card club suit and South shows his five hearts. Then after North raises to game, South takes the bull by the horns. Blackwoods to find the missing ace and goes to seven."

Jim: "There are thirteen easy tricks. The hands are a perfect fit and we imagine that many pairs wouldn't even get to six. Of course, top score would go to anyone who bid seven notrump. A finesse is required but the finesse is on."

ASK THE JACOBY'S
— A reader from North Dakota wants to know if we would open the bidding in third seat with:

▲ K ♠ x x x x
♦ A 2
♣ K x x x x
♦ No. Not only are we likely to lose points because of bidding with this balanced mess, but we also lose so much partnership confidence that we will start to distrust all our bids.

Council discusses nutrition classes

TWIN FALLS — The Nutrition Council met Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho to discuss possible nutrition related programs for the Magic Valley.
Zan Payne, home economics coordinator for CSI, said that the meeting was very productive, although sparsely attended.
The group which included nutrition experts, high school teachers and representatives from the elderly in the community developed a four-point plan for the future.
The first proposal was to sponsor or develop a class for young marrieds which would also appeal to the elderly living alone. The class would deal with how to shop, manage time, prepare quick meals and make meals appealing and nourishing.
The second proposal was to make a graduate credit class at CSI for teachers who wish to increase their knowledge of nutrition.
Lastly, the group hopes to compile a calendar of nutrition related events in the Magic Valley.

Pay and Pack's new home

Pay and Pack will move into expanded quarters

TWIN FALLS — Pay and Pack, an electrical and plumbing supply store, is moving into new quarters twice the size of its old store.

Grand opening is set for mid-November, with the store operating out of the new building at the corner of Kimberly Road and Eastland Drive beginning Nov. 10.

The new store, 14,000 square feet, will offer an expanded supply line.

"Basically we are just expanding our full-line residential electrical and plumbing supplies," said manager Cal Wilson.

Wilson said he felt much of Pay and Pack's success in the community was due to service.

"The number one thing we offer is personal service... helping someone to do it themselves in the electrical and plumbing work," he said.

The store, one of three in Idaho, has been operating in Twin Falls about seven years, he said.

"We have a complete line of do-it-yourself sheets," Wilson said, which tell a person how to do "just about everything, from installing baseboard heaters, roughing in a bathroom and setting a toilet."

Many persons ask for the instructional sheets, Wilson added. "We do get people, who have never replaced a wall switch before," he said.

"Part of the pleasure of working for this company is we're helping people do these jobs themselves... Maybe they can't afford to pay to have it done," Wilson said.

Another reason Wilson cites for the store's success is low prices. "I think that's one of the reasons we've been so successful in this line — our pricing structure... You never pay retail at Pay and Pack."

Experienced help also benefits the customer at the store, according to Wilson, who is in his 14th year with the company.

The store will offer "everything you need to build, rough in and finish a house as far as electrical and plumbing goods go," Wilson said.

Two new salesmen will staff the enlarged, expanded store, he added.

Filer bull sale in progress

Crowd lack, low prices hamper Filer bull sale

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News writer

FILER—The 101 head of bulls at Thursday's annual Fall Range Bull Sale brought a total of $22,000 or an average of $219 each, according to sale officials.

The crowd and prices were both down from other years at the fairgrounds. Cattlemen blamed the low cattle market and uncertainty for the future for this year's average price.

The highest selling bull was consigned by Rex Daniels and Sons, Malad City, and sold for $1,800 to C. M. Cox, Oregona. Daniels and Sons also had the grand champion bull of the sale which was sold for $1,250 to Cox. Reserve champion bull was consigned by Natlie Hereford Ranch, Nampa, and purchased for $1,200 by Everest Smith Grace.

The nine A grade bulls averaged $972 and 24 A-bulls brought an average of $767. The 37 B-bulls averaged a sale price of $563, and 31 B bulls, an average of $426.

Roland Patrick, Rogerson, president of the Idaho Cattleman's Association, introduced guests at a get-acquainted banquet for consignors and buyers Wednesday evening at the Rogerson, Twin Falls. A cocktail hour was hosted by the Twin Falls Bank and Trust.

Special guests included Burns Beal, Boise, state hand inspector; John Hayes, Rockland, president of the Idaho Hereford Association; Noy Brackett, Twin Falls, state legislator; and Tom Shouse, Filer, secretary-manager of the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds.

Highest bidder was C. M. Cox, Oregona, at $1,400 purchasing a bull, on consignment from Daniels Brothers, Malad.

Other high bids were $1,250, also Cox, for a bull on consignment by Rex Daniels and Sons, Malad City.

Former Rupert aides seek voter approval

RUPERT—A former councilman bids for reelection to office and a former mayor seeks to retain his council seat in Rupert.

Three other candidates, one a write-in campaigner, also are vying for the two seats before voters Tuesday.

Clark Cameron, 42, incumbent, has served the community since 1944 in various civic capacities. He was elected mayor for one term and previously completed an appointive term as a councilman.

He was president of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce for two terms and helped develop the North Side Pumping Division. He served as chairman of the Blinnoka County Hospital Board when the present hospital was constructed, president of the Rupert Lions and chairman of the selective service board.

Cameron has consistently urged development of additional culinary water sources for the city. He points to his experience in city government and his past record on budget economy.

Bill Whitton, 57, Whitton served on the council from 1970 to 1971. He is a Farm Bureau employee known for his newspaper columns and TV and radio broadcasts.

Whitton also cites his experience and that he will increase and that he will be available to the people.

He offers support for city employees and a fair wage and has called for improvement of the city's low pressure water system. He also has promised to keep the people informed about governmental affairs.

Dave Wilson, 41, Wilson is former superintendent of the city's waste water treatment plant and now environmental control chief at Ore-Ida Foods in Burley. He also served on the Blinnoka Planning Commission. Wilson believes his training and experience in the environmental field can be especially valuable to Rupert, now, particularly as it works toward a lagoon waste treatment. He also cites the need for an ongoing program to keep culinary water pipes cleaned to prevent the red water that occurs each spring.

He also is calling for a storm drain system for the city.

Wilson said he believes a councilman should represent the people and said he wants to provide the best possible service and the best possible price to the citizens.

Judson VanEvery, 42, VanEvery is the other filed candidate. He recently resigned as a teacher at West Minco Junior High School to take a job with Boise Cascade Builders Service Center. VanEvery has been secretary of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce, coached the League ball for 12 years and served in numerous civic organizations. He wants to see the city's recreation program strengthened and calls for more street repair and traffic control. He also voices the need to upgrade the low pressure water system and promises to strive for harmony in city government.

David Ulrich, 41, a write-in candidate is David Ulrich, who turned 21 Thursday. A draftsman at Larry Wright Construction, Ulrich missed the filing by two signatures and could have cut that to one by signing his own petition.

He believes the people want a change in councilman and want young "hood in city government."

AG asks utility to withdraw ads

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News writer

BOISE — The Idaho Attorney General tried but failed to get Idaho Power Co. to sign an agreement to not run a possibly misleading advertisement about how clean coal-fired power plants are.

The attorney general decided to not press the matter in court because of jurisdiction problems, according to Rudy Barbach, deputy attorney general who heads the office's consumer protection division.

The advertisement in question, Barbach said, stated: "A coal plant is so clean they have to shut off the air filter in order to make smoke."

He said the question is what constitutes "smoke" and whether "clear" can mean "clean."

"My contention is that just because it's invisible does not mean it's clean," he said. He also questioned whether invisible gases rising from the plant might be construed as smoke.

A coal-fired power plant the size of Idaho Power's proposed Pioneer put out hundreds of tons of invisible sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide gases daily, according to Idaho Power.

Bob Brown, public relations director for Idaho Power, said Saturday, "We don't consider the advertisement misleading and don't believe that there are any statutory grounds for a lawsuit."

Asked whether his company has any present plans to use this particular ad again, Brown said, "Not to my knowledge."

According to Barbach, the position of the attorney general's office is "that even if the advertisement was technically true, that it could conceivably be misleading."

He said he had sent a draft proposal to Idaho Power for the power company to not run the advertisement or a similar advertisement again, but he said the power company would not sign.

About three weeks ago, Barbach said that he, Attorney General Wayne Kidwell, Idaho Power President James Bruce and Vice President Logan Latham met together to discuss the matter. Idaho Power, he said, made it clear that it would question the attorney general's jurisdictional authority on the matter in a court case.

After the meeting, Barbach said he and Kidwell decided to drop the case because of the jurisdictional problems.

Barbach said a company must be trying to sell something more material than an idea to fall under the provisions of the Consumer Protection Act. But in Idaho Power's advertisement, "they are trying to sell an idea," he said.

Also, Barbach said, the Consumer Protection Act does not apply to transactions which are permitted under guidelines set forth by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission. He said it was decided that the matter would be up to the PUC to consider.

Because of the jurisdictional matters, "we probably would have lost it if we had gone to court," Barbach said.

"I don't know what we would have done if we had determined we had jurisdiction," he said.

He said no verbal or written agreements with Idaho Power were made but that "they became aware of the potential problem and they'll probably act accordingly in the future."

"One just had the general impression that they were going to back into this matter a little further before they would run an ad like this again," he said.

Bridge closed

RING HILL — A car-bridge accident early Sunday morning resulted in closure of the severely damaged bridge and demolished the car.

Gilbert Rivera, 21, Glens Ferry, started across the Snake River bridge at Ring Hill, which connects Highway 30 and a county road, at a high rate of speed at 2:45 a.m. Sunday, officers said.

First on the surface of the bridge caused the car to slip off the planks laid in the normal traffic lane.

The car went sideways into the guard rail and broke two sections of it and damaged two steel bridge supports. Damage to the bridge was estimated at several thousand dollars, according to residents in the area.

Tom Schaeffer, Glens Ferry, was a passenger in the car. According to Richard Wills, Idaho State Police, investigating officer, first aid was given the man at the scene. They were then taken to the Mountain Home Hospital by ambulance. Hospital reports said this morning the man had no record of the incident.

Investigation is continuing and a citation is pending, Wills said.

Closure of the bridge means that persons who need to cross at Ring Hill must either drive about five and one-half miles to Glens Ferry or go to the new freeway to cross the river.

Aqua-thon raises $8,000

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Swim Club's first annual "aqua-thon" raised $8,000 Saturday.

Although no official start was set by the club, officials had hoped to raise $4,000, according to Pete Blumenthal, aquatic director and swim coach.

He said some 50 youths, between the ages of 15 and 19, participated in the "aqua-thon" in an attempt to raise $8,000.

Swimmers were selected by club members to sign a written "pledge per length" which ranged from a penny to the dollar per lap the swim club member would cover. Each member was told how many laps he or she was capable of swimming and then tried to swim the pledge for that amount, the director said.

Adults participating, and the number of laps they swam included Joe Clements, 100; Ray Lytle, 150; Peggy Yontz, 120; and Soren Jensen and Scott Roberts, 200 laps each.

Blumenthal said about 22 swim team members swam 200 laps and in addition to giving the fund drive a hefty boost, they will receive free hamburgers from McDonald's each week for a year.

All other swim club participants swam between 100 and 200 laps. The "aqua-thon" began at 9 a.m. Saturday and finished at 4 p.m.

The director said the money will be used to buy equipment for the Y pool and help with the operation of the swim team.

Still 'critical'

GOODING — Frank Edward Bolton, 27, Gooding, remained in critical condition today at Brook-Army Medical Center in San Antonio, Tex.

He suffered second and third degree burns over 54 per cent of his body in a futile attempt to save his 3-year-old son, Frank Edward Bolton Jr., in a house fire Friday morning in Gooding. The child died in a bedroom of the log house.

Demos hold mock caucus

By GORDON JUDD Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — State Democrats held a mock caucus training session for Magic Valley party workers Saturday.

New rules governing the selection of delegates to the Democratic National Convention in 1976 were explained by Phil Barber, chairman of the State Central Rules Committee to a group of party workers at the Rogerson Hotel.

"These training sessions are being held in an effort to get all Democrats who are interested in the selection of our next presidential candidate to participate in that process," Mrs. Deekle Rice, State chairwoman, Idaho Democratic State Central Committee said.

"We very much feel that Watergate turned people off, and we are trying to make our rules as open as possible to let people get involved to help elect a presidential candidate," she said.

Rule changes necessary as a result of passage of Idaho's new "Presidential Preference Primary" law were explained to those who attended. The new law requires that 80 per cent of the State's delegation be chosen according to the percentage preferences established by the primary from delegates previously specified by each candidate.

The apparent conflict of this new law with the National Democratic Party's rules "which mandate broad-based Democratic participation at all levels in delegate selection, and which prohibit 'state-making' have been compromised through the creation of a new level of caucus workers were told Saturday.

Barber said that on the third Tuesday in March, at 8 p.m. caucuses will convene in each legislative district. Caucus participation will be limited to qualified voters in that district who are willing to sign a pledge that they are members of the Democratic Party. At the legislative district caucuses, in sub-caucuses organized by candidate preference, each district's delegates to the state convention will be elected.

Following the legislative district caucuses, the preliminary congressional district caucuses will convene on the third Saturday of April.

Following the primary, at the state convention to be held in Sun Valley, the delegates chosen at the legislative district caucuses will again convene in congressional district caucuses for the purpose of selecting 80 per cent of the delegates to the National Convention according to the percentages established for each candidate in the primary election.

2 seek 1 Murtaugh Council post, but mayor seat open

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News Writer

MURTAUGH — For the record, there's a contest for the one Murtaugh city council post left Tuesday's city election.

But, because there is no official candidate for mayor, both candidates could end up on the council.

Richard Annala, Murtaugh high school science teacher and coach, said he was approached to run for mayor, but he declined because, "I don't know enough about the situation." But he filed for the council post.

He and his opponent, Bob Rice, owner of Rice Automotive Center, both agree there are no overriding problems facing the town.

It is quite possible that whichever of the two men is defeated in the council race Tuesday could be appointed to the council to fill the place of the incumbent councilman who will be appointed mayor.

Elka Peterson, city clerk, earlier said the solution to no mayor candidate probably would be to have the council name one of its own members to the post after the council election Tuesday.

Annala, 29, is a native of Great Falls, Mont., and a graduate of Montana State University. Bowman lives in his seventh year teaching at Murtaugh.

He said he would like to see the town cleaned up and some of the "more run" down buildings' electrified.

Rice, 29, is a Wendell native and graduated from high school there. He has been in Murtaugh about five years and was active in the Lions club when it was functioning here.

"I would like to see Murtaugh grow," he said. "I would like to interest others in moving here. He said he understands one developer plan on getting FHA financing to build some homes as soon as the water distribution system already approved by voters, is built.

Challenge seen in SV mayor race

By BART QUESNELL Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Winton Gray, Sun Valley mayor for ten years, will be challenged by four-year resident Bea Longley in the Sun Valley mayoral race Nov. 4.

In addition, three city council positions are up for grabs with all three incumbents seeking reelection. They will be opposed by first time political aspirants in Sun Valley, Joe Humphrey and Jo Ann Levy.

Gray believes there are no major issues facing voters in the upcoming election. Gray is not against "growth," he said, having seen a lot of it in his 26 years as mayor.

He foresees no huge future problems for Sun Valley and believes his experience will allow him to know what to do.

He said the primary of Dwight Fontenot to build out the Sun Valley mall "is big" but added the tax base will stimulate the city.

The sewer question facing Sun Valley does not involve the city council, or himself, Gray said. He said the Ketchum Sun Valley sewer and water board is handling the matter of contaminants into the river and his position is the same as the sewer and water district.

Bea Longley sees growth as the major issue facing the small city. "I don't think growth is inevitable," she said. "Fortunately, Sun Valley has adopted a master plan which will be a guideline for future development."

She said there are approximately 140 eligible voters in Sun Valley, most of which are absentee voters.

She said the new plan to develop Sun Valley mall is too ambitious.

"It's a time-mall plan but it's not Sun Valley to me," she said. "I think people who come to Sun Valley like it because of the modesty, and low key simplicity of the place."

In the council race, incumbents Royce Asher, Bill Hines and Fred Judd are opposed by Humphrey and Levy.

Judd has been unavailable for comment. Hines and Asher voice similar stands on most issues and both feel the city council is competent and should not be reelected.

Asher has said he is not campaigning for himself so much as the entire council. Hines feels it not advantageous to change the council since it is functioning well and each member now has a grasp of the problems facing the city.

Challenger Joe Humphrey, a private electrical engineer, favors the present Sun Valley development plan and likes the proposed new mall plan that will approximately double the size of Sun Valley.

Humphrey said he likes to see densely populated in a small area with open space surrounding the development.

He said the mall will change the character of Sun Valley but added "growth is inevitable."

Humphrey said he would rather see the individual land owners go back to using septic tanks than stop development because too much effluent is going into Big Wood River.

Jo Ann Levy, 12-year resident of the area, will investigate the present Sun Valley tax structure on personal property, a transportation system for the city and try to foster "an old time meeting atmosphere" concerning city government if elected to the council.

She feels the present personal property tax rate to land owners in Sun Valley "is exorbitant."

On the problem of growth control, Levy said, "Progress is inevitable. This place is not going to stay the same so we must plan it in an orderly way. I would like to see everything developed in Sun Valley in a new way."

She said Sun Valley residents need to promote a sense of community, something that is lacking now.

She would also investigate the possibility of an area government rather than the two separate Ketchum and Sun Valley governments.

Filer bond vote Tuesday

FILER — Filer voters will decide on a $550,000 bond issue for water system improvements in Tuesday's city election.

Mayor Paul Shover said the existing water system is deficient in several areas. The wells from which Filer draws its water are not adequate of supplying peak water needs and storage facilities are not adequate and many of Filer's water lines are too small.

Planned improvements will include construction of a new 400,000 gallon storage tank, one additional well, two booster pumps and replacement of the water mains with larger pipe.

With these improvements, Filer would be able to supply all the domestic water needs as well as provide ample water for fire protection, Shover said.

If the bond issue receives the required two-thirds majority approval, the project will be financed with general obligation bonds issued for 20-year retirement. This type of financing will raise the average water user's bill by approximately $6.90 per month, according to engineers' cost estimates.

Shover said the Farmers Home Administration has expressed interest in the project and federal loan money might be available for financing the project in fiscal year 1976.

If a federal loan is obtained, water rate increases would be lower than the $6.90 previously projected, the mayor said.

NEW YORK (AP)—Concern over New York City's financial problems overshadowed a brightening interest rate picture Monday as prices headed lower in sluggish trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the market, as it has been for weeks, is concerned about the uncertain effects of a possible New York City default. That uncertainty has driven many investors to the sidelines.

Several major banks joined the list of those lowering their prime rate to 7 1/2 percent from 7 3/4 percent. First National City Bank of New York started the move Friday.

The news did not impress blue-chip investors. Shortly before noon EST, the Dow Jones industrial average, a 33.38 point loss Friday, was off 5.25 points to 839.91.

Of the 1,491 issues crossing the tape, 679 declined, 389 advanced and 433 remained unchanged, indicating investor uncertainty.

Turnover during the first two hours amounted to about 1,800,000 shares, compared with a 3,000,000 traded during the same period Friday.

MCA Inc. slipped 1 1/2 to 7 1/2, despite the fact the company reported its third quarter earnings climbed to $4.25 a share from $3.24 a year earlier.

Federal National Mortgage led the Big Board actives, off to 14 1/2 on 91,700 shares. Sony Corp. followed off 1/4 to 10 on 67,000 shares.

Prices were lower in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Houston Oil & Minerals led the Amex actives, off to 29 on 10,000 shares.

Beverly Enterprises followed unchanged at 11 on 5,000 shares.
