

today in brief

Military intelligence chief quits

Washington — Lt. Gen. Daniel O. Graham, chief of the defense intelligence, resigned his post late Monday, according to senior defense and intelligence officials.
According to these sources, Graham chose to step down because he felt deeply associated with the administration of James R. Schlesinger Jr., secretary of defense, who was dismissed by President Ford Sunday. Graham, these sources said, chose to resign voluntarily.

Fed sets limits on money supply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arthur F. Burns announced today the Federal Reserve would seek to keep the growth of the nation's money supply in the range of 5 to 7.5 per cent over the next year.
This is the same range the Fed aimed at during the last six months. But it is a decline from what the monetary supply growth rate actually was during the first quarter of 1975.

Threats grow

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Impediment threats stemming from charges of governmental corruption grew today as Argentine President Isabel Peron, 44, ran the country from her hospital bed.
Four political leaders have said they favor impeachment of Mrs. Peron, who was stricken with a gall bladder ailment Monday. She was reported improving and signed several documents.

Irish kidnapers may free hostage

MONASTEREVIN, Ireland (UPI) — The kidnapers of Dutch businessman Tjaco Hoogmoed appear to be ready to free their hostage in exchange for safe passage out of the country, a mediator said today.
Union leader Philip Flynn, picked by kidnapers Eddie Gallagher, 27, and Marian Cuyne, 19, as go-between, said he believed they now had only one demand — and, that is safe passage.

Bangladesh army chiefs seize power

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Senior army commanders have seized power in Bangladesh, reducing President Khondakar Mushlaque Ahmed to a figurehead role and arresting six of his top military aides, diplomats said today.
The arrested officers, all majors in their 20s and 30s, were the men who masterminded a coup d'etat August 15 that killed President Mujibur Rahman — hero of Bangladesh's war of independence, the diplomats said.

Victim freed

CHICAGO (UPI) — Donald Cooper, 50, a Sears, Roebuck official kidnaped in Colombia in August, was released Sunday "after long and complicated negotiations," a company official said.
Cooper was abducted in Bogota while his family was in the United States. He has rejoined them in seclusion and is believed to be in good health.

Franco rallies following surgery

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco overcame what a doctor described as 100-to-1 odds today and snapped back from the emergency surgery that saved him from bleeding to death. His condition improved from very grave to grave.
After the three-hour operation and nearly two gallons of blood transfusions, the 82-year-old Spanish leader was said to have regained consciousness and talked to his wife, Carmen Polo, who had asked a doctor before surgery what his survival chances were.

Snipers threaten Beirut cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Christian and Muslim snipers threatened to break the new truce in Lebanon's religious war today, only hours after the government confidently predicted peace was at hand.
Sniper bullets killed a dozen persons around the war-torn capital Monday, raising the casualty toll in the last two months of strife to about 1,200 dead and 3,000 wounded.
The occasional roar of bombs and crack of bullets during the night kept tension high and streets deserted even though the three-day-old cease-fire appeared to be taking hold.

Panel votes memo compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Select Committee on Intelligence voting against the advice of its chairman, agreed today to compromise with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger over a controversial 1974 Cyprus memo.
The committee voted 15 in favor of a resolution by Rep. Les Aspin, D-Vt., rejecting Kissinger's proposal that the full memo be included in a general collection of dissent papers and turned over to the committee — with the identity of individual authors and their material protected.

The memo was allegedly written before the Cyprus invasion by Thomas Boyatt, who warned of the impending problems between Turkey and Greece. Boyatt was director of Cyprus affairs at the State Department.
Committee Chairman Otis Pike, D-N.Y., joined with four others of the eight Democrats on the 13-man panel in opposing the resolution.
Pike warned that the vote might result in future intelligence documents and facts from the administration "coming in a blender."
Pike said the committee had no quarrels with CIA Director William F. Colby, who had cooperated openly with the panel and was fired by President Ford. But, he added, the lawmakers had shown "a great deal of reluctance to go against Kissinger," who has at times balked at turning over certain information.

The compromise was opposed strongly by committee Staff Director Searle Field, who said Kissinger "should be held in contempt of Congress" for ignoring an earlier subpoena for the Boyatt memorandum.
But Aspin's resolution said Kissinger's formula for scattering the wording of Boyatt's memo among other dissent documents "fulfills the requirement of the subpoena issued for the full text."

The committee approved an amendment by Rep. David Treen, R-La., which said its acceptance did not set any precedent.
Despite a last-minute plea for secrecy from President Ford, the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence Monday unanimously approved a report on CIA assassination plots and planned to send it to the full Senate before making it public before Thanksgiving.

"My guys" added to Ford's lineup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has decided that two former congressmen, an Air Force general and Henry Kissinger will make a better national security team than the old one — an expert on nuclear war, a spy, and Kissinger.
"These are my guys and the ones that I wanted," said the President, emphasizing that the major rearrangement in his cabinet and top level advisers were his personal selections and that the administration would keep seeking détente with the Soviet Union.
At a Monday news conference, Ford introduced the team: Kissinger, still secretary of state, his White House chief of staff, Donald Rumsfeld, becoming secretary of defense; his ambassador to China, George Bush, heading up the Central Intelligence Agency — and Kissinger's old White House deputy, Air Force Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, becoming presidential assistant for national security affairs.

That statement may resolve uncertainty over Kissinger's efforts to reduce tension between the superpowers, to get an agreement to stop the nuclear arms race. Schlesinger and other Pentagon officials have said that despite détente, the United States must strengthen its national security and increase arms spending.
But, Ford told the reporters, recent armory between State and Defense was not a factor.
"Are you saying and intending to be understood," asked one, "that neither personal nor policy differences between Dr. Kissinger and Mr. Schlesinger contributed to this change?"

ELLIOT RICHARDSON
Commerce nominee

PRESIDENT Ford chats with Commerce Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton after a news conference Monday at which Morton's resignation was announced. Elliot Richardson, currently ambassador to London, will be nominated to succeed Morton as commerce secretary. (UPI)

(Related stories, p. 2, p. 7)
Ford emphasized the ones he hired instead of the ones he fired. James H. Schlesinger is out as secretary of defense and Director William F. Colby will leave the CIA. The usual formality of a resignation was not mentioned.
Ford met at the White House this morning with 16 Republican congressional leaders. The personnel overhaul was not a topic of discussion, according to some lawmakers who attended the session.
The President declined to expand on another of Monday's startling announcements, that Nelson A. Rockefeller did not wish to be his 1976 running mate. In a letter, Rockefeller told Ford he did not want to complicate the President's political decisions as the campaign drew closer.
Many Republicans said Rockefeller's departure would help Ford with the conservative wing of the GOP.
Ford hinted that Bush and Rumsfeld might come under consideration as his running mate.
Almost as an aside, Ford announced another change: that Elliot L. Richardson, the Boston Brahmin who left the Nixon administration in the last big shake-up of the "Saturday Night Massacre" of 1973, would become secretary of commerce, replacing Rogers C. B. Morton, who, sources said, would assume "a major role" in Ford's campaign.
Richard Cheney, Rumsfeld's assistant, will run the White House staff.
The President said: "Secretary Kissinger will have the dominant role in the formation of our

TF residents die in crash

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls residents were killed early this morning in a car and truck accident four miles west of American Falls on U.S. Highway 30.
The dead here were identified by Power County authorities as Bart L. Blumer, 22, and his wife, Tina Holton Blumer, 19, passengers in the vehicle and John Percy Taylor, 25, the driver.
Don Glenn, chief deputy sheriff in Power County, said the vehicle driven by Mr. Taylor was traveling east when it suddenly swerved to the left and collided head-on with a westbound diesel truck driven by Everett O. Birdwell, 48, Lebanon, Tenn. The accident occurred on a two-lane section of U.S. 30.
All three Twin Falls residents were pronounced dead at the scene by the Power County coroner. Officers said the driver, and Mrs. Blumer were thrown from the vehicle and Blumer remained in the car. All were believed instantly killed. The vehicle caught fire following the impact. The large truck overturned following the impact but the driver, was not injured.
The accident occurred at about 3:50 a.m., Deputy Glenn reported. He said investigation is continuing but no autopsies or inquest have been ordered.
Mrs. Blumer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bolton, Twin Falls, and her husband, formerly of Jerome, is a student at the College of Southern Idaho and a veteran of military service.
Efforts were still being made today to contact the next of kin of Taylor, whose relatives reportedly live in New York state.

Courthouse rezone rejected

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — City Council members Monday turned down a request to rezone the county courthouse property, but assured county officials the council wouldn't block expansion plans for the judicial building.
Mayor Winston Jones said the city planning council had opposed the change because "it wouldn't really provide any additional parking and would be spot zoning which might eventually make O'Leary subject to the same spot zoning."
The city planners earlier recommended denial of the zone change from residential professional to commercial central to avoid the commercial zone from "creeping down Shoshone Street."

William Chaney, representing the county commissioners at the council meeting, asked members, "What's all the problem?" He said he didn't understand all the discussion of the rezoning and added he didn't feel rezoning of the county property would add to the possibility of an expansion of the commercial zone.
"We've always been shoulder to shoulder in any endeavor we've put together," Chaney said, implying that the city might stand against the county's need to expand the judicial building.

The zone change was originally requested because of a suggestion by a city official, according to Ed Woods, county planner.
The county has tentative plans to expand the judicial building to the west into the parking lot, which would mean less parking space available at the courthouse.
Commercial central has more stringent parking and setback requirements than residential professional.
City Council members were unanimously opposed to granting the zoning change, with most expressing the fear that the O'Leary property might follow suit when sold by the school district.

Valley residents vote today

The polls are open until 8 p.m. for 30 per cent of the eligible Magic Valley voters registered for today's municipal elections.
Twin Falls had the lowest number of registered voters of any Magic Valley community, with only 16 per cent of its voters registering.
Hagerman had the highest per cent of voters registering for this election. The rate of registration there was nearly 80 per cent.
Not counting Twin Falls, the Magic Valley had about 59 per cent registration of voters.
Besides Hagerman, other cities in the area with 50 per cent or over registration were Shoshone with 73 per cent, Gooding with 64 per cent, Filer with 50 per cent, Ketchum with 51 per cent, Kimberly with 50 per cent, Wendell with 50 per cent and Bluff with 49 per cent.

Hagerman, Gooding, Ketchum and Hansen registered the highest voter turnout numbers in their histories. Hansen officials explained that their increase was due to the new trailer court and a new housing subdivision.
Other towns reporting a higher rate of registration than Twin Falls were Rupert with 39 per cent, Burley with 44 per cent, Haisela with 41 per cent and Jerome with 31 per cent.
Percentages were computed on the basis of a comparison of the number of people over the age of 18 years in the Magic Valley counties in the 1970 census.
Women are running for the position of councilman in Hagerman, Gooding, Kimberly, Shoshone and Twin Falls.
All 12 towns polled are holding elections for councilmen and mayors. In addition, Bluff and Shoshone are holding opinion polls on the matter of leases for dogs. If a majority vote is received on this, these two towns will pass laws requiring all dogs to be kept on leashes or behind fences.

Filer is the only town with a bond issue to be voted. The bond funds "to acquire and construct improvements and extensions to the municipal water system." The amount of the bond is $50,000.

Blast kills 6
SCUNTHORPE, England (UPI) — A powerful explosion showered 250 tons of white-hot metal through a steel mill today, killing six workers and injuring 12 others.
A company official said the blast was caused by water leaking into a huge ladle of molten iron.
Four night shift workers were killed outright and one died later in hospital, officials said. Thirteen other men were injured, four so seriously they could not be moved to a special burn unit.

Still time to vote — polls open until 8 p.m.

Allies see Kissinger victory

BRUSSELS (UPI) — America's European allies today saw the ouster of Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger as a victory for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

European government officials and commentators in their first tentative assessment of the U.S. cabinet shakeup, foresaw a boost for Soviet-American detente, but said Schlesinger's replacement by Donald A. Rumsfeld would have little other major effect.

"The power of Henry Kissinger has grown and he no longer has a counterbalance of any importance in the Ford Administration," the Dutch newspaper "De Volkskrant" said. "Kissinger will have a free hand more than ever, because the President is supporting him so distinctly that a capable man like Schlesinger had to make way."

In Britain, the London Daily Telegraph wrote that Schlesinger's departure "could be bid news for the NATO alliance" because the former secretary had been an advocate of a stronger West.

NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns sent both a congratulatory telegram to Rumsfeld, who was U.S. ambassador to the alliance in 1973, and a private letter to Schlesinger.

Both NATO and the European governments refused official comment on grounds that the shakeup was an internal American affair.

But NATO circles reported surprise at the change, coupled with a prediction that U.S. defense policy will remain basically the same.

A prominent NATO diplomat, Rumsfeld, is remembered with respect as "a very vigorous, very dynamic organizer, an administrator, and doer, as a mover and a shaker, as the Americans say." In the words of one man who knew him:

Rumsfeld was an amateur at diplomacy when he arrived here and impressed other diplomats as brash, they said. But, they said, he learned quickly, grew into the job and became an effective advocate of the American position in NATO councils.

"We know he is a powerful advocate of Western defense," one man said. "He is a political animal — unlike Kissinger, a politician first rather than an intellectual defense specialist."

In his 20 months here, Rumsfeld became personally acquainted with many NATO defense ministers. He is expected to see some of them soon at the NATO Nuclear Planning Group meeting in Hamburg, West Germany, on Nov. 17-19; and all of them at the NATO ministerial meeting here Dec. 9-10.

In West Germany, the newspaper Stuttgarter Zeitung said that "Kissinger apparently convinced President Ford that further obstruction by the Schlesinger could burden relations between the two superpowers to their heels."

US security team lists 'My guys'

"That is correct," replied Ford.

"It seems to me that you have not really answered the question," another asked. "What did Secretary Schlesinger do wrong that you didn't like?"

"I have affirmatively answered the question by saying that I wanted my own team, and I am keeping Secretary Kissinger because I think he has done an outstanding job in the field of foreign policy," said the President.

"I wanted a change in the Defense Department because I wanted, in that case, a person that I have known and worked with intimately for a long period of time, a person who is experienced in the field of foreign policy and who has served in the Department of Defense as a naval aviator."

Rumsfeld has served in the House, headed Richard Nixon's Office of Economic Opportunity and Cost of Living Council and served as ambassador to NATO as well as his White House post. Schlesinger, a Harvard Ph.D. taught at the University of Virginia, worked on nuclear war for the RAND Corp., and headed the Atomic Energy Commission and CIA for Nixon.

According to Ford, Bush's qualifications are: "an understudy at the United States for two years. He has been in China better than a year. He is a man of experience in public life as a member of Congress." Colby, educated at Princeton and Columbia, served as an intelligence agent and CIA officer for over 20 years.

The replacement of Colby may be part of a wider shakeup in the intelligence services, and perhaps an indication that Ford is not sure that the professional spies can prevent the abuses of power in the late 1960s that recently surfaced. Pentagon sources have indicated that Lt. Gen. Daniel Graham, head of the Defense Intelligence Agency and Lt. Gen. Low Allen of the National Security Agency may be replaced as well.

Recreation area backed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The governors of Idaho, Oregon and Washington sent telegrams Monday urging the House of Representatives support legislation to establish the Hells Canyon National Recreation Area.

The governors, in the message to Rep. Al Ullman, D-Oregon, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said "the preservation of the freeflowing Middle Snake River is a matter of high priority to our states."

"The Pacific Northwest has benefited from extensive hydro electric development of the Columbia-Snake River system. Today, of the 530 river miles from near Portland to near Boise, all but the 101 miles of the Middle Snake River have been dammed. It is essential that we maintain a balance by preserving this last remnant."

Governors Robert Straub of Oregon, Cecil Andrus of Idaho and Daniel Evans of Washington said the Middle Snake is an essential resource for the region's economically vital river and ocean salmon fishing industry.

"The diverse public recreational values of the proposed area on our continent and provides nationally significant values."

The governors said the House bill presently in committee has been drawn to preserve the values of the river and make them available for the enjoyment of the American people.

They noted that the bill has had unanimous support from the congressional delegations of the three states. Idaho's Congressman Steve Symms and George Hansen have opposed the measure.

The governors said they have weighed the trade offs and believe that dams should be prohibited on the Middle Snake.

Plane hits hill, 6 die

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Six persons were killed today when a twin-engine business plane crashed and burned on the side of a wooded ridge after taking off from Kanawha Airport.

The "vic" was one of four executives of the McLunkin Corp. and two company pilots. Names were not immediately available.

It was the worst crash at the airport since 1958 when a Piedmont Airlines "crashed" killing 37 persons.

The plane was identified by authorities as a Beechcraft King Air C90. A control tower spokesman said the plane had filed an instrument flight plan to Wilmington, Del.

The McLunkin Corp. is an international mining-and-oil-field supply company based here.

Sadat 'satisfied' with Ford talks

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said today he was "satisfied" with his talks with President Ford and other U.S. officials, but gave no indication whether he had won a promise of American arms aid.

"I have put the question before my friends," Sadat said on NBC's Today show in answer to a question on whether he was satisfied with proposals by Ford to provide Egypt with about $750 million in aid while proposing almost $2.4 billion in assistance to Israel.

"I don't want to try to force them into a decision. I am quite satisfied."

Ford said at his news conference Monday night that his negotiations with Sadat had been very successful, but that any announcement on military aid would have to await the release of the joint communique at the end of the Arab leader's visit on Wednesday.

Sadat said he had placed orders with Britain and France for new weapons and he would accept weapons from any source since the Soviet Union had stopped all arms shipments to Egypt.

Asked if he also would accept weapons from the Soviet Union, he said: "If we follow the same attitudes we have for the past two years, I don't think we will get any from the Soviet Union."

He said that Egypt's request for a nuclear power reactor was made to develop ways of desalinating sea water to increase use of land which he said was 96 per cent desert.

"It has nothing to do with any other nuclear activities and the technicians know this," he said.

The president said that Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger were "ready and willing" to begin negotiations with Syria and Israel for a disengagement agreement on the Golan Heights.

"It is for the benefit of our brothers in Syria," he said.

Sadat was putting the final touches Tuesday on an address before the U.S. Congress, a session of Congress hours before leaving the United States.

American reports auto sales climbed

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors reported today that its October sales jumped 35 per cent from a year ago as Detroit automakers begin reporting their best monthly new car sales since May, 1974.

Analysts said reports from the four U.S. automakers would show sales up about 22 per cent from a year ago. Imported car sales, though up about 5 per cent, grabbed slightly more than 15 per cent of the U.S. market for their lowest share this year, analysts said.

AMC said it sold 27,031 cars in October, compared with 17,408 a year ago when the smallest of the U.S. auto companies was just recovering from a strike. Its annual 10 day period of October, AMC sales were up nearly 80 per cent but its sales so far this year are still off nearly 10 per cent from 1973's pace.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss and grow more hair.

For years "they" said it couldn't be done — but a team of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women that is not only stopping hair loss, but is really growing hair.

"They" don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days at their risk, and see for yourself! Naturally, they would not offer this treatment unless they were 100% sure. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure that it is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you will, until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it, before it's too late.

Lesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will apply your treatment for 32 days at their risk if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation.

Richey resigns, slaps Times-News

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls City-Council member David Richey submitted his resignation to his employers Monday, and issued a memo critical of the Times-News and the City Council. Richey had been asked to resign by the City-Council Joint Planning Council last week just one day after he criticized the City Council and local real estate interests in a Times-News interview.

Richey charged Monday that the newspaper article was "seriously in error," and also repeated his earlier statements that the City Council had presented "the largest obstacle in the form of communication breakdown" to the planning effort.

Richey also asked the Joint Planning Council for two extra weeks of work.

In the letter received Monday by council members, Richey stated that his resignation will go into effect until Nov. 15, but City Manager Jean-Millar said he felt the council would sever Richey's employment as of Nov. 1.

Richey requested the extension "because as a rule it is extremely difficult to find a new job in this profession, and because there is much of the graphic work remaining to be done in order to pull the total plan draft together."

Richey closed his letter, addressed to "planning council members and friends," by writing: "Though the job has been tough, you've been kind and I am sad to leave your company. However, I'm inclined to agree that it's time I turned the office over to a fresh runner."

Richard G. Hayes, Times-News managing editor, said today the newspaper stands behind the story as printed.

"Richey has a history of making controversial statements," High said. "And the Times-News has a history of reporting those statements."

"The Times-News re-interviewed Richey after the story appeared to give him a chance to correct any errors or misinterpretations. However, Richey simply repeated and expanded the statements made in the initial article. The article stands."

Accompanying Richey's letter was a memo detailing Richey's criticisms of the interview which appeared Oct. 29 in the Times-News.

The article, Richey stated, "apparently germinated from an existing discussion with a new reporter about the history of and influences upon the planning council."

But, Richey added, "Various statements, some taken from old news articles, were gravely out of context and intermingled by the newspaper with unfortunately, explosive results."

He then outlined "the items that need to be corrected most . . ."

In his first point, he said, "my remarks are absolutely not an adverse reflection upon my employer, the Joint Planning Council . . . You have been the break-water which made it possible to launch the Citizen's Planning Program and have supported the "in-house" work we have thus far completed."

Secondly, according to Richey, "the article cross-threaded my comments about a group within the real estate community to a traditional opponent within a planner's working environment; with the most frequent remarks made to me by many . . . citizens about local officials."

Richey said the article didn't make it clear that it was the realtors' pressure group which attempted inappropriately to direct my work, not his employer, the planning council."

"The comment, 'Why talk to the elected officials? They will do what they want to anyway,' was misattributed, Richey said. "This is a citizen complaint, not mine, as the paper made it appear."

Richey continued his criticism of the City Council in the memo. "It seems that from the beginning of the planning effort it was the City Council that presented the largest obstacle in the form of communication breakdown . . . We have not received input from those who I expected the greatest number of suggestions for changes in the work."

Richey added that he hoped to gain "eleventh hour input" from the article. "Bureaus about the newspaper's above mentioned errors plus some lesser ones are obvious. Greatest among them is their attempt to 'spice' the article when my conversation . . . was a background profile."

Richey said he felt the planning office should be open to the public and also the news media. "Unfortunately," the local newspaper likes to pound nails with marshmallows. Compared with elected officials, the planning staff are marshmallows and easily destroyed because they catch it from both directions at once."

Finally Richey commented that "a reinstitution of the Citizen Planning Program, with council members actively participating, would greatly improve the sensitivity of the comprehensive plan to the various communities within the county."

As a final note, Richey wrote, "No matter what type approach you use, I wish you success."

NEW member of the Twin Falls Future Farmers of America Alumni chapter, John S. Feldhusen, right, presents his membership to John Gibson, FFA chapter adviser. The two met to compare notes on FFA activities now and 45 years ago. Feldhusen, high school agriculture teacher here in the late 1920s, organized the first FFA chapter in Twin Falls in 1928.

FFA oldtimer

Former TF ag teacher joins FFA alumni group

TWIN FALLS — The Future Farmers of America Alumni Association has just gained a most appropriate member, says FFA adviser John Gibson.

John S. Feldhusen who organized the first Twin Falls FFA Chapter in 1928 and assisted with the national organization in the same year has continued his life-long support of vocational training programs, by becoming an FFA alumni.

Feldhusen came to Twin Falls in 1922 from Oregon as an assistant county extension agent to assist with the Roseworth Project. Seeing the handwriting on the wall as the project began to fail, he decided to teach school. He was about to accept a position as chemistry teacher in Caldwell when the agricultural teacher post opened in Twin Falls and he decided to stay in this area.

During his seven and one half years as ag teacher he took the first place judging team in the national contest in Kansas City, Mo. in 1928 and at that meeting assisted in forming the national FFA organization.

Feldhusen said his three boys from Twin Falls took national championship honors in 1928 with one first, one tenth and one fiftieth judging.

"At that time we didn't judge beef cattle at all. We had sheep, poultry, pigs and dairy cattle," he recalls. "There was also a draft horse judging contest as nearly every farm was then farmed by horse drawn machinery."

Members of the Twin Falls team included Johnny Frels, the first place winner who received a $1,000 scholarship in a sizable amount in 1928, and Carol Baker and George Evans. After he stopped teaching in 1932, Feldhusen became a fieldman for the Jerome Cooperative Creamery and then manager for the Bean Growers Association, a post he held for 14 years. He served as a director for that organization until five years ago. He has held a number of young men in agricultural careers.

"Some of the other teachers and school officials took exception to my efforts when I suggested a young man take vocational training in agriculture instead of going to college for study literature or other academic courses," Feldhusen said.

In addition to his other activities Feldhusen became a farmer-cattle and sheep operator and at one time even raised swine. He also raised and showed fine harness and fine gaited horses.

In the late 1920s and 1930s Feldhusen said he had about 25 to 30 FFA members in the Twin Falls chapter and he even had one girl.

Now there are 68 members and several of them are girls. John Gibson said there are some 4,000 members in 70 chapters in Idaho.

This year three alumni members will go to Kansas City with six Twin Falls delegates. The group will leave Saturday at 11 a.m. for a week long national convention and judging contests. Delegates will include Andy Wiseman, Marlon Nussbaum, Steve Beer, Vance Pulsipher, Bill Holloway and Charles Southwick.

Alumni members will include Don Norris and Bob Holloway, both of whom will receive the region of merit degree for assistance and support given FFA programs.

TF police check robbery report

TWIN FALLS — Reports on an armed robbery were being investigated by Twin Falls city police this morning. Officers said Edward M. Hood reported he was leaving a downtown bar when two men beat him up and took his money. He was unable to provide a description of the men or an exact amount of his missing money.

The Idaho State Police officers, George Thornton and Steve Caesar, notified Twin Falls city police when they found Hood lying on the street with head lacerations. He was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises and interviewed there by city officers. The incident occurred Sunday night at Shoshone Street and Fourth Avenue East.

A burglary was reported at the Alcohol Rehabilitation Center Monday morning.

Officials at the center said the front door of the building was forced open and a file cabinet broke into. About $17 in cash was taken, police reports indicated.

The burglary occurred between 11 a.m. Sunday and 8:30 a.m. Monday. Investigation is continuing.

Boise speaker lists Rocky's successors

BOISE (UPI) — A former spokesman for ex-President Richard Nixon says President Ford will have greater political flexibility in his 1976 election campaign without Nelson Rockefeller on the ticket.

Herbert Klein, in Boise Monday to address a joint meeting of the Boise Ad Club and the Sales-Marketing Executives of Boise, said five GOP vice presidential candidates emerge initially as possible successors to Rockefeller.

Those are Sen. William Brock, Term. Donald Hunsfeld, newly-designated defense secretary, John Connally, former treasury secretary; Rep. Jack Kemp, N. Y., and Pete Wilson, mayor of San Diego.

Depending on the Democratic nominee, Klein said, Ford can choose a running mate in a way to collect the moderate and conservative votes.

Klein predicted the president will win another term after a tough race against former California Gov. Ronald Reagan for the Republican nomination. He also predicted that none of the announced Democratic candidates would get that party's nomination. He said the nominee will emerge from "a brokered convention with all the power blocks bargaining."

Payette man wounded in head by gun blast

BOISE (UPI) — Jerry Alley, 33, Payette, was hospitalized Sunday night improving today at St. Alphonsus Hospital where he was taken for treatment of a gunshot wound in the head.

Alley was wounded at his home by a 25-caliber bullet fired from an automatic pistol Saturday afternoon. Payette police said the cause of the shooting had not been determined but said it appeared to stem from a family altercation.

TF City Council members deny courthouse rezoning

Council member Paul O'Styn told Chaney, "We want to cooperate with you 100 per cent," but added, "I'm thinking ahead to O'Leary. I really believe we can't accomplish whatever the county commissioners want in another way."

One council member pointed out that the county, which has had an eye on the O'Leary property, would have a better chance to purchase the land if it were kept as residential professional, rather than converted to a lucrative commercial property.

Woods told the council, "We don't care what designation you want" as long as "you will permit us to do our extension . . . realizing we're short of parking."

"Our primary concern is that when we push the button to build, we don't want to be faced by months of delay," Woods said.

In other business, council members: — Approved the final plat submitted by Nolan Victor for the Sahara Subdivision. Anne Martin, representing the League of Women Voters, said the league was concerned about the proposed subdivision because no city utilities would be available. She added the league felt dry sewer lines should be constructed for eventual city hookup because of the proximity of the subdivision to the canyon.

City Council members approved the plat, however, stating they had authority to judge the subdivision in terms of its meeting city requirements only, not health or planning requirements.

— Approved a $64,000 bid by Western Road and Machinery Co. for a vacuum flusher unit for the city department. The vote was split, with some council opposition to the expenditure. Mayor Jones commented, "$64,000 is a lot of money."

— Tabled a proposal to shut off permanently a section of Ninth Avenue East by Morningside School. Barrier signs are not working, Jean-Millar told the council, and proposed a permanent closure of a short section of the street. The closure is designed to protect children walking to school in that area.

— Moved to deny renewal and revoke the currently held beer license by Frank L. Garcia for the Chateau Lounge. Police Chief Frank Barnett recommended the action, stating that Garcia has pleaded guilty to a felony narcotics charge.

— Tabled action on a proposal by the Golf Advisory Commission to raise rates at the golf course in order to help fund a sprinkler system. Council members said they wanted more public input on the proposal.

— Appointed Michelle Burrows to fill the unexpired term of Dennis Maughn on the Youth Advisory Commission.

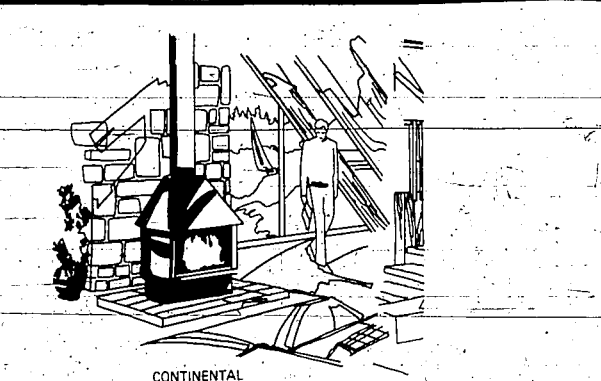

— Adopted two new building codes, including the Life Safety Code and the American Standard Specifications for the Handicapped Code, and took on local enforcement, but without additional personnel.

Inmates asked about fire

BOISE (UPI) — Prison officials questioned two convicts today about a small fire that caused minor damage to the penitentiary's industry warehouse Monday afternoon.

Several holes were punctured in a 50-gallon drum containing flammable solvent. Then the solvent was ignited. The fire destroyed the barrel and damaged one wall slightly. Sixteen more barrels of solvent were in the room but none was damaged.

There were no injuries. The two inmates being questioned by officials were working in the prison yard picking up trash and were not assigned to the warehouse.

Who cares about TF?

Only about one-sixth of the potential Twin Falls City voters bothered to register for today's City Council election, the lowest since 1947. Not all of those will vote.

As a result, some people probably will be elected to the council with the support of only about one-tenth of the city's potential electorate.

Good government requires high levels of public involvement. Without that it won't work as well it should.

Part of the problem in Twin Falls stems from an absurd voter registration arrangement. Instead of a single voter registration process, there are two. The county, state and federal elections are handled under one set of registrations. The city has its own separate registration.

In each city election a large number of people go to the polls expecting to be able to vote, only to be turned away because they are registered for every election except the city's.

The solution is obvious. The city registration should either be combined with county's or eliminated altogether. If registration is eliminated, the matter could be handled in the same way school districts operate, by using voter oaths at the polls. Either way would work better than the present archaic system.

Another part of the problem is more serious and much more difficult to correct. It is a sad fact that many people don't care much about city government. They don't see how it affects their lives.

City government often seems only to deal with the most boring and trivial items, another street light here, another stop sign there, and whether somebody can keep a goat inside the city limits.

True, city government often does deal with such trivialities. But some of its actions or lack of action have major impact on the quality of life in the community.

The results of failure of city government are all around us.

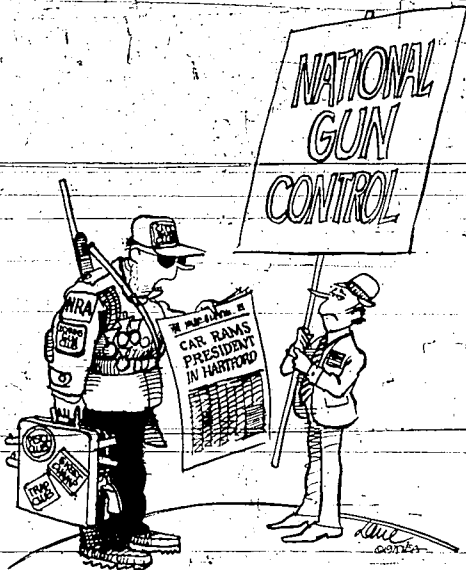

Blue-baked Boulevard North has been transformed from a beautiful entrance of the city once viewed with pride to a kind of Las Vegas strip. This unplanned stretch poses one of the worst-traffic hazards in the city and provides the rudest welcome to out-of-town visitors.

Then look at North Five Points and the other five points intersections which came from the crazy diagonal street pattern of the city. Somewhere in the distant past somebody either should have started out with a north-south city layout or held to the diagonal pattern. As it is, diagonal streets intersect haphazardly with north-south streets in an example of the worst possible kind of city planning.

If history shows the city can muffle its opportunities, the future is no less encouraging. Already we see rampant residential movement outward in a classic case of hop-scotch urban sprawl. So far, city government, along with county government, has failed to deal with the problem effectively.

Despite the mistakes of the past, Twin Falls remains a beautiful city. Rapid poorly planned growth could distort all that. But sensible, well-planned growth could retain and expand the good things about Twin Falls all day long.

City government is important. In the end the people, including both those who take the trouble to vote and those who don't, will get the kind of city they ask for.

"Why not national auto control?"

Party war bodes ill for Demos

CHICAGO — Having lost his opening battle to send Gov. Dan Walker into retirement, Mayor Richard J. Daley is now trying to use the state's two most popular Democrats — Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III and Secretary of State Michael Howlett — in a war to the death with grave national implications for the Democratic party.

Daley's invasion of the state capital in Springfield, commanding legions of his Chicago aldermen and party stalwarts, failed to override Walker's veto of an education bill. But defeat only sharpened the mayor's determination to politically destroy maverick Democrat Walker by running Howlett against him for the Democratic nomination for governor in a state of national convention delegates pledged to Stevenson for President against Walker's slate of uncommitted delegates.

At stake here is not only control of the Illinois Democratic party by the last of the big city bosses but whether the war between Daley and Walker will tear the party apart in the March 16 primary and deliver the fourth largest state to the Republicans in November 1976.

Yet, so unpopular has the dynamic, dictatorial Walker become, declining in popularity to never-selles of Boss Daley — that Daley now counts as supporters the same liberals who helped Walker win the 1972 nomination for governor against the mayor's opposition and helped blackball Daley from the Miami Beach convention.

The day after Daley's jamboree in Springfield one liberal told us: "If Daley can find the right Democrat to run against Walker, I'd vote for him."

The "right Democrat" is Mike Howlett, who Daley now wants to endorse as the party's regular candidate for governor. "Immensely popular with both the Daley and anti-Daley wings of the party, Howlett professes no interest in running for governor. Nevertheless, key party leaders have come to believe Daley will change Howlett's mind before the party states its candidates late this year."

That would set up a titanic Walker-Howlett primary battle and pave the way for Daley's second move: declaring Howlett the Democratic presidential candidate and running states of delegates in each congressional district committed to Sen. Stevenson (with 169 delegates) to the New York City convention at St. Louis.

Daley lieutenants count in this maneuver blocking all but three Democratic candidates from the primary: former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia (committed to enter all the primaries), possibly the uncontrolable Gov. George Wallace of Alabama — and Walker himself.

Never close to the 73-year-old mayor, Stevenson ended all pretense of cleavage between them with an effusive introduction Oct. 20.

when the mayor testified before a special session of the Joint Economic Committee in Chicago.

With no Democratic liberal yet emerging from the crowded presidential field, the mayor sees Stevenson as a passport to power at the New York convention and as a certain way to block Walker's ambitions for control of the Illinois delegation. While publicly in a holding position, Stevenson privately sees Illinois as part of a national campaign, with probable plans to enter California and other presidential primaries. Thus, Daley's Stevenson scheme transcends a mere favorite-son strategy.

Daley had been moving toward this showdown for months, but the full measure of his venom was not exposed until his visit to Springfield last week when he told the Democratic-controlled legislature that Walker should have been defeated in 1972 by the then-incumbent Republican governor, Richard Ogilvie.

Shortly after that apostasy, Daley's emotional appeal for the state legislature to override Walker's education veto was rejected on a tie vote. That defeat, unpalatable in bygone days when the mayor was at his peak, escalated the civil war. Three days later Democratic state chairman John Tuohy refused to commit himself to support Walker if he wins the primary for governor.

Walker replied: "Under the Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1973, my dear Mr. Abernathy, you may not shoot me unless I threaten you with death or with serious — get that, Mr. Jones, 'serious' — bodily injury. I am not threatening you with death, and such bodily injury as I shall inflict on you if you get in the way of my little project here, will not be serious. I mean, you might be out of action for a day or two, but as much would be true if you fell off your horse, or slipped in your bathtub. The law says that if you have the alternative of doing so, you are to 'retreat' to another part of the house — may I suggest your bedroom, Abernathy? — where 'with complete safety' to yourself and others."

The sudden fury of the Daley organization's attack on Walker has astonished politicians here, and none more than Walker. His lieutenants are now plotting a major counter-offensive against Daley as a "party-breaker." Walker's powerful lieutenant, Victor Degrazia, plans to leave the governor's office in early December and take personal charge of Walker's two primary battles — for governor and for delegates (who are pledged not directly to Walker but to "an unbossed, anti-Daley, candidate" — that is, Walker).

Walker plans to boycott Daley's candidate-slating sessions — "illegal" and will campaign "his state" as a charismatic movement — exploiting the governor's patronage resources and portraying himself as the only Democrat able to save Illinois from Daley Bossism.

Walker won that opening battle in Springfield last week. But if a resurgent Daley can produce Mike Howlett and Adlai Stevenson on the ballot, "winning" the civil war with common virtues for Democrats may be far beyond his capacity.

Benefits for burglars?

You hear a noise downstairs, at three in the morning. You know it isn't your son, because your son is a boy of regular habits, and never comes in before five.

You are among (approximately) 77 million Americans who own a pistol, so you take it out of the drawer, grab a flashlight, and tiptoe down the stairs. Reaching the dining room you listen heart pounding. From over there you hear the muffled noise of hardware against velvet. You flash your beam across the room where, working without light, a stranger is calmly and almost silently emptying your adversary into a burlap bag. Three possible sequences:

1. "Stop where you are, or I'll shoot." The burglar meekly raises his hands. Gun cocked, you call the police. Kojak arrives. "Oh, so it's you again! Lenny. Homesick for Sing Sing? Well, you stick with me, Lenny, and I'll take you home to Mother."

2. "Stop where you are, or I'll shoot!" The burglar drops his knees, pulls out his own rod, fires, misses. You fire back, bull's-eye. You call the Frank Campbell Funeral Home, the police investigate, closed case.

3. "Stop where you are, or I'll shoot!" The burglar replies: "Under the Criminal Justice Reform Act of 1973, my dear Mr. Abernathy, you may not shoot me unless I threaten you with death or with 'serious' — get that, Mr. Jones, 'serious' — bodily injury. I am not threatening you with death, and such bodily injury as I shall inflict on you if you get in the way of my little project here, will not be serious. I mean, you might be out of action for a day or two, but as much would be true if you fell off your horse, or slipped in your bathtub. William F. Buckley, Jr.

the option of shooting only to kill." Exit burglar. In fact, the proposed amendment to the federal law has already passed through Congress. And, in fact, there are those who interpret the present law as supplementary rather than to a homeowner the right to use a deadly weapon against a burglar unless gravely threatened. And, in fact, individual states, most notoriously New York, already prescribe the use of a gun against a burglar.

The whole thing is rampant liberalism. A prominent Washington attorney, Northern Ely, is quoted in an opinion on the proposed law: "How do you know whether someone is prowling around in your house at night is going to harm your family? Do you interview him? Do you first ask him whether he is going to rob you, or kidnap you before you shoot him?"

A Z. Eaton suggests, in a letter to his paper in Boston, that as supplementary rather than to a homeowner the right to use a deadly weapon against a burglar unless gravely threatened. And, in fact, individual states, most notoriously New York, already prescribe the use of a gun against a burglar.

"I sincerely hope," writes Mr. Eaton, "that Congress will give this bill and these amendments more than passing consideration." But one begins to think it is unconstitutional for Congress to give anything more than passing consideration to such a bill.

Bib overalls poor disguise

PLAIN, Ga. (UPI) — Two Secret Service men assigned to protect Democratic presidential contender Jimmy Carter in his rural Georgia hometown have bought bib overalls to try to fit in with the populace.

But folks in this south Georgia town population 700 say they stick out like a sore thumb. Word had gotten out that the Secret Service men stood out in their business suits and fancy sunglasses. In two of the villages visited, the overalls and seemed disappointed when they couldn't supply wide-brimmed straw hats.

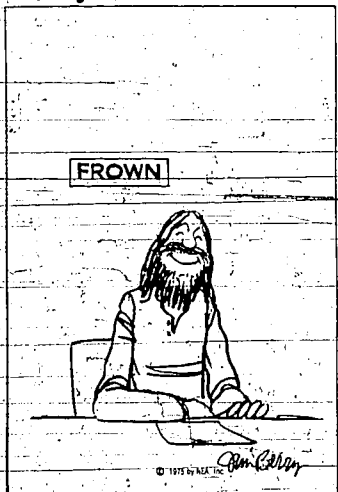

"They weren't just ordinary overalls, but Liberty overalls, just like Junior Samples' of television's 'Lee Haw' show wears," said Turner.

He said he knew the men were Secret Service agents "by their knit suits and Yankee accents."

State Sen. Hugh Carter, a cousin of the former Georgia governor, said the agents later "sauntered into" his antique store wearing "new unbleached overalls."

"I said, 'Oh, you guys must be part of the Secret Service assigned to guard my cousin Jimmy.' They just looked at each other and shrugged."

Berry's World

WASHINGTON — I decided to go to New York City for a few days.

"After what President Ford and Secretary of the Treasury William Simon and Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board Arthur Burns have been saying about the city I first checked with the State Department to make sure that I wouldn't be jeopardizing my citizenship."

"I was put in touch with someone from the passport division."

"I'd like to go to New York City," I told him, "and I was wondering if there were any restrictions on my passport for making the trip. I know we're not allowed to go to Albania, North Korea, Cuba and Vietnam, but I'm not clear on the United States policy on New York."

"What is the purpose of your trip?" the State Department official asked me.

"Tourism," I replied. "I thought I'd catch a few shows, go to dinner at a good restaurant and maybe do a little shopping."

"At the moment the United States has no official restriction concerning an American citizen visiting New York City, but I am obligated to warn you that you will be doing it at your own risk."

"If anything happens and the city goes down the drain we won't be able to protect you. As you know, the President has broken off all relations with the Soviet Union."

"I know what you're saying," I told the man. "But I still think a visit there won't hurt American foreign policy. I'll appreciate the United States more than ever when I get back."

"If you think I can't stop you, the official said angrily. "But we still have to make a routine check with the FBI to make sure you have no relatives there."

"But I do have relatives there. I have three sisters and an aunt."

"That puts a little foreign light on things. How do you know you won't be blackballed by the secret police?"

"I thought, they didn't have secret police in New York any more." I said. "I heard Bernie had to cut them out of his budget."

"I forgot that," the State Department official said. "By the way, you're not going with Jane Fonda are you?"

"I'd like to, I didn't know she was going." "We have information she and Dr. Spock are planning to visit the new Jettie and Shaco Stadium. They expect to meet with the Namalith."

"That's terrible," I said. "But I assure you my visit isn't political. I just want to see the Statue of Liberty and the Metropolitan Museum of Art."

"All right, bring your passport in and we'll copy it for you. In the process, you're going to be in enemy territory and anything you say or do will reflect on the United States of America. When you come back the White House would like to debrief you."

"That's all right with me," I said. "I'll keep my eyes and ears open. If there's anything that brings New York to my eyes, I'll let the President be can confirm me."

President brushes off firing criticism

By PETER LISAGOR
Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — "These are my guys and the ones that I've chosen," President Ford said with an assertion of an executive's right "to put together his own team." President Ford brushed aside criticism of his abrupt removal of Defense Secretary James Schlesinger and Chief of Staff William E. French.

"At the same time, Ford has virtually conceded that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is considered indispensable and will retain his 'dominant role' in U.S. foreign policy, even though Kissinger will relinquish his 'second hat' as a special assistant for national security affairs.

In a firm, emphatic, sometimes near-defiant manner at a news conference last night, Ford stood on his right to dismiss Schlesinger and Colby, both of whom he praised, and replace them with White House Chief of Staff Donald Rumsfeld and U.S. representative to China George Bush, respectively.

He defended the qualifications of Rumsfeld, a former Illinois congressman who held varied posts under former President Nixon, including U.S. ambassador to NATO, to take over the Defense Department, a formidable task which Pentagon experts say will take at least a year to master fully.

He has equally laudatory of Bush, a former Texas congressman, U.S. ambassador to the U.N., and chairman of the Republican National Committee under Nixon. Despite the fact that Schlesinger's differences with Kissinger on the policy of detente and strategic arms control talks have been an open secret here for months, the President bluntly denied that the friction between his two top national security advisers figured in his dismissal of Schlesinger.

Ford said that he, Kissinger and Rumsfeld are no less determined than Schlesinger to maintain a defense second to none. He also defended detente polities as a "two-way street."

Ford said that when he became President in August 1974, he made "a conscious decision" not to change personnel dealing with national security because he believed it was "essential to guarantee stability and continuity in the conduct of U.S. foreign policy."

"Now that the nation's allies have been 'successfully reassured' that the United States will stand firm against any threat and potential adversaries have been 'convinced' that America will 'aggressively seek out ways to reduce the threat of war,'" Ford said he felt he had to strengthen the administration in the national security area very much in order.

Repeated efforts to probe for deeper motives were met with the President's insistence upon his right to choose "my team." He was asked why he didn't include Kissinger and Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft, who was named to replace Kissinger as National security assistant, in his clean sweep, and he again hailed Kissinger's outstanding performance and Scowcroft's ability.

To soften criticism that the President had acted abruptly, White House sources passed the word that Ford got the idea of assembling his own team six weeks ago from his unofficial advisers, drawn from the group that helped prepare his transition from vice president to the White House. They included former defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton, whose resignation Ford announced, Rumsfeld and others.

On Oct. 25, the sources said, Ford called in Rumsfeld and Kissinger and told them of his decision. He planned to announce it later this week, but leaks forced his hand, the sources said.

Ford did not inform Schlesinger of his plans until last Sunday morning before departing for Florida and a day-long meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

Informed sources said Ford mentioned to Schlesinger that his difference with Kissinger made it necessary to make a change. Ford said he took his decision "totally on my own." It fitted the pieces together, and they fitted excellently. However, Kissinger had confided to some associates for several weeks that the President had to resolve his differences with Schlesinger, according to these sources.

The President appeared anxious, in his response to questions, to show that he was in command of his administration and that he had picked two men in Rumsfeld and Bush who were colleagues of his in the House, with whom he was comfortable. Both men are experienced politicians and thought unlikely to cause the President trouble, as Schlesinger and Colby did with their outspokenness of their hawklike

Advantage given Ford in contest with Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republicans, not including President Ford, are saying Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's decision to drop out of the contest for nomination next year will help Ford beat Ronald Reagan next year.

Some of Rockefeller's partisans worried about about the effect on GOP chances in the presidential election a year from now if Ford goes to the party's right wing for a 1976 running mate.

But the hard-headed political consensus was that Reagan, the former California governor expected to challenge the President for the nomination, had taken a decided setback.

Ford declined to make any political value judgment about the Rockefeller decision, but made it clear during his news conference that he had neither encouraged the vice president to pull out nor pleaded with him to change his mind.

"The vice president came to me and said his left hand was tied to his right hand and I accepted it," Ford said.

Nor would Ford concede he had any concern about Reagan or anyone else. "I'm not worried about any competitor... Democratic or Republican."

But others in the political race said Ford did have concerns with the former New York governor and party leader, most likely 1976 running mate and that the Vice President had helped ease them by bowing out.

Reagan himself, declaring he was "astounded" by the action, conceded it would make the launching of a conservative challenge to Ford more difficult. Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, a staunch congressional conservative, amplified that by saying, "This will hurt Reagan's chances because, part of Reagan's appeal was the possibility that Rockefeller would be on the ticket."

Paul Haerle, California Republican chairman, said the action "strengthens—the President's position immensely." Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y., said he believed the Rockefeller decision as the elimination of "a source of irritation to one element of the Republican party."

John Connally, the former Texas governor and Treasury secretary who has been viewed as a possible conservative challenger himself, said: "I think it'll strengthen the hand of the President in the days and months ahead as he tries to secure his own position within the party."

Howard "Bo" Callaway, chairman of Ford's campaign committee who caused a political sensation last summer when he reported that Rockefeller was regarded as a "drag" on Ford by Southern Republicans, attacked the Rockefeller in the President's campaign and in the Republican National Convention next August. Callaway said:

Not all Republicans put an optimistic face on the development. Sen. Jacob Javits, D-N.Y., saw it as part of a series of events which were "identifying the President with the right wing of the Republican Party and this I consider most unfortunate for him as a candidate and as president of this country."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, another staunch Rockefeller man, put it more succinctly: "As better done, we'll have a balanced ticket."

Lost hour marks end of Age of Kissinger

By RICHARD GROWALD
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Age of Kissinger may be over. In the eyes of White House officials, President Ford has stripped Henry Kissinger of his prime power source — his workday morning hour in the Oval Office.

Kissinger himself has based his claim on not being secretary of state, which he remains.

Kissinger has not built his power through being the President's national security affairs adviser. The keeper and administrator of the chief executive's foreign and defense policy matters, the post Ford has taken and given to Kissinger's deputy, Lt. Gen. Brent Scowcroft. Kissinger built his power and his glory through exercising on former President Richard Nixon and on Ford the talents which — in negotiations with the Russians, the Chinese, the captains and kings of other lands — only recently made him the wonder of the diplomatic world.

The outward and visible sign of Kissinger's power has not been his U.S. Air Force Boeing 707. He carried it with poisonous, ornate, 200-pound classic Albers of painting, down the hall from Ford's oval office.

It has been the sight of his black limousine tailed by his station wagon load of Secret Service bodyguards parked on the driveway out front while, inside the White House west wing, Kissinger was having his hour with Ford.

Kissinger, with his reputation for ferocity, might have been expected to be an ambassador waiting. He was always an time for those oval office meetings.

In Nixon's day, then White House Chief of Staff H. R. "Bob" HALDEMAN managed to dominate all presidential aides but Kissinger. He tried and he failed. Kissinger saw Nixon without going through Haldeiman.

Under Ford, Kissinger kept his visiting rights. Donald Rumsfeld, White House chief of staff until he was named secretary of state, and his men grew irked. They chafed Kissinger's refusal to turn his work through the White House papers, as did all other aides. They said he was no team player.

Kissinger loved that. He proclaimed he was no team player. Kissinger worked on the principle that his business was strictly with the President and not with the White House staffers.

Henceforth, White House officials say, plans are being drawn on that will give Kissinger a haring emergency — chiefly one meeting a week with the President. No more the one-a-day.

Further, the officials say, Kissinger will not be meeting alone with Ford. He will share the sessions with Rumsfeld and George Bush, named by Ford as the new director of the CIA.

Ford skids in standing

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Ford's overall standing with the American public dropped 3 per cent from the previous month in the latest Harris survey, giving him an overall negative rating of 56 per cent to 41 per cent positive.

The results of the October Harris Survey released Monday showed Ford received a 53 to 47 per cent negative rating on the key issue of "requiring confidence in the White House," his lowest mark in that category since last April.

On the question of the President's campaigning around the nation and mixing with the public, 49 per cent disapproved and 44 per cent favored Ford's frequent appearances, despite two attempts against his life.

On the economy, the Harris sample expressed disapproval of Ford's approach by an almost three-to-one margin.

"Perhaps," the most damaging finding, however, is the 62 to 27 per cent negative rating accorded the President on his handling of federal spending," pollster Louis Harris said. "This is to be the major theme in the 1976 Ford election bid."

Ford holds default line

© Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — President Ford is holding firm to his convictions that New York need not default on its debts if the city and state "take stronger action" than they are now.

Moreover, the President has told his Monday news conference, his differences with Vice President Nelson Rockefeller preclude to save the city from default were not the reasons Rockefeller decided to give up the office after next year.

Ford has not moved from his position against granting federal aid for the financially beleaguered largest city in the Nation. He has threatened to veto any "bill-out bill" that might be passed by Congress, and in Monday night's press conference in the East Room of the White House, did nothing to soften his position.

Indeed, he hardened it, declaring:

"I believe that New York City can avoid default. They can take stronger action than they have taken—I believe the State of New York can take stronger action to pay its assistance to the city of New York."

"This is a matter that can be dealt with forthright action taken care of in the city, or the city with the cooperation of the State. I hope they will."

And despite testimony before congressional committees by some of the Nation's leading bankers, including David Rockefeller, brother of the Vice President, to the contrary, Ford said he remains "absolutely" convinced there would be no "domino effect" from a default by the city.

"I have verified that with a number of experts within and without the Government," the President said. "And there is no probability, no serious probability, that there will be any national repercussions and I am convinced that the market has already discounted the possibility of any financial problems in New York City and I think the actions of the last three or four days verify that correct assumption."

Ford reiterated that his differences with Rockefeller — a four-time governor of New York — over the way to handle the New York financial crisis continue to be "minimal."

Gubernatorial races test party strength

By United Press International

Kentucky and Mississippi elect governors today in an early test of Republican and Democratic strength before next year's presidential race.

The Republicans have hopes of sparking comeback momentum for 1976 with victories in the middle border states and the South, but the Democrats have history and the political odds on their side.

Among the mayoral races, Mayor Frank Hizo of Philadelphia was up for reelection. The Kentucky and Mississippi contests are the principal statewide elections in off-year balloting across the country. Legislatures are being chosen in four states, bond issues and constitutional amendments are on the list in a number of others and local officials are being elected in scores of cities.

The Kentucky contest pitted an unelected governor, Democrat Julian Carroll, against a Republican seeking his first statewide office, Robert Gable. Carroll, elected lieutenant-governor in 1971, succeeded Wendell Ford last winter after the governor was elected to the Senate.

In Mississippi, it was Democrat Charles Fline, who beat the organization favorite, a Republican, in a runoff election. Fline had three years ago by drawing 40 percent of the vote in what was supposed to be a walkaway election.

Republicans have fared relatively well in Kentucky in recent years, although they have elected only two governors in the past 30 years. Except for some congressional wins, they have been shut out in Mississippi; Upsels by either Gable or Carmichael would boost GOP hopes for the presidential year and give the party a more respectable share of the nation's statesman now divided 36 for the Democrats, 13 for the Republicans and one independent.

The two states, plus New Jersey and Virginia, also are electing state legislatures. In addition, there are Equal Rights Amendments on the New Jersey and New York ballots and a $4.5 billion bond package, the largest ever, in Ohio.

In addition to the Hizo contest in Philadelphia, mayoral contests include Boston, San Francisco, Indianapolis, Minneapolis, Cleveland, Baltimore, Miami and Houston.

Incumbents are favored in most of the cities. Kevin White is busying town Boston; Charles Holsted, who beat a policeman mayor two years ago in Minneapolis; Ralph Perk, one of the few GOP big city mayors in Cleveland; Fred Hofheinz in Houston; and William Donald Schaefer in Baltimore.

In San Francisco, Mayor Joseph Alioto was barred from running after two controversial terms, and the president of the board of supervisors, Dianne Feinstein, was the favorite in a crowded field. Indianapolis Mayor Richard Lugar, one of the country's best known Republican mayors, is retiring and voters could choose between former GOP Rep. William H. Hines III and Democrat Robert Welch.

Busing sparks protests, disorder in Louisville

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—Several hundred anti-busing demonstrators, some shouting "let the buses," set fires and threw rocks and bottles at police Monday night, forcing officers to use tear gas to break up the disturbance.

Seven persons were arrested and three officers received minor injuries.

The outbreak, which police said involved about 200 persons, followed a five-hour sit-in (thousand demonstration by about 2,500 persons. Jefferson County Police Chief Russell McDaniel said 275 officers were used to disperse the crowd after a number of demonstrators marched toward Southern high school, the scene of past anti-busing violence this school year.

"We made our stand in front of the high school to keep them from getting the buses," McDaniel said. "When they tried to march through the buses, we requested assistance from city police."

He said the threats included shouts of "get the buses."

Police fired more than a dozen tear-gas canisters to contain the rack thrusters described by McDaniel as about 200-300 "troublemakers."

McDaniel said after the tear gas was used, the crowd retreated to a parking lot where many had their cars.

"The situation began getting out of hand about 8:30 and within 45 minutes we had things well under control," he said.

City Police Chief John Nevin said none of his men came face-to-face with any large group of demonstrators.

"We headed for the parking lot where the demonstrators had gathered in force, but it was almost empty when we got there," Nevin said. "We encountered a little hecking, but that was about it."

As in previous demonstrations, sometimes violent, taverns and other businesses along the three-mile stretch of Preston Highway where the demonstrators marched were ordered closed.

The area has been one of the main trouble spots for police since court-ordered busing went into effect with the fall term Sept. 4.

Israelis get Suez cargo

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI)—A rustling freighter brought a load of cement to the southern port of Eilat today, the first cargo to reach Israel through the Suez Canal in 16 years. A second ship was expected within a week.

The freighter, Olympos, carrying 8,500 bags of Ruminant cement, docked at 2:17 a.m. after passing through the 100-mile-long waterway Sunday.

Israeli Transport Minister Gavriel Salvendy watched the vessel sail into port, said the second ship would pass through the canal within a week.

"We don't see this vessel leaving as an export," he said. "It's just a shipping process and the process from now on will be based on economic calculation and criteria. It's not a political process."

It was the first Israeli-bound vessel to transit the canal since 1959.

Gerasimos Lueris, the vessel's 36-year-old captain, said the freighter will probably return to Europe through the canal after it has been unloaded by the end of next week.

Passage of the Israeli-bound cargo from the Romanian port of Constantza was made possible by the Sept. 4 peace agreement between Israel and Egypt.

The pact provides for Suez Canal transit of nonstrategic material to and from Israel on ships not flying the Israeli flag.

Egyptian soldiers searched the cargo thoroughly, looking for contraband.

The rustling 25-year-old Greek-owned ship entered the waterway Sunday morning, after a one-day delay because transit fees had not been paid to the Suez Canal Authority in advance.

MOSCOW (UPI)—Soviet scientists have discovered microorganisms capable of eating oil, the Tass news agency said Monday.

Tass said a collection of 300 different species of the microscopic animals were discovered in the Caspian Sea and taken for examination to the city of Alma-Ata, capital of the Soviet republic of Kazakhstan.

Tourism up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Many more foreign tourists are coming by sea to the United States this year than last, the Commerce Department said Monday.

Commerce reported that for the first eight months of 1975, the United States had 11.3 million foreign visitors, up 11.7 per cent from the same period in 1974.

The big increase, the department said, was the result of a large inflow of Mexican and Canadian tourists, whose numbers were 70 per cent of all visitors to the United States during the January to August period.

Hearst competency hearing slated today

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The question of Patricia Hearst's mental competence was the subject of a federal hearing today to determine whether she should stand trial or be so sent by her 19-month, Symbionese Liberation Army odyssey that she needs psychiatric help.

The hearing was set before U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter, who said last week his preliminary opinion was that Miss Hearst was competent to stand trial.

F. Lee Bailey, Miss Hearst's attorney, said the defendant planned to attend the hearing but would not testify.

"Oh, God forbid," he said Monday when asked whether he would put his client on the stand.

Miss Hearst, 21, is being held without bail on federal charges of participating in a San Francisco bank robbery on April 15, 1974, and using an automatic weapon during the holdup. She also faces numerous state charges in Los Angeles County.

If Miss Hearst is declared competent, Bailey said he was prepared to ask that bail be set for her and that she be placed in a private psychiatric facility for pretrial care.

Three court-appointed psychiatrists examined Miss Hearst in the San Mateo County Jail in nearby Redwood City. All the reports were given to the judge as well as the defense lawyers and prosecutors.

Miss Hearst's lawyers said her experiences with the SLA so shook her mental process that it was near the brink of a mental collapse. They said they wanted her treated at once in a private mental facility.

Under the law, a mentally incompetent person cannot be brought to trial. The defendant is usually sent to a psychiatric facility. If, at the end of a stay in the facility, the defendant is still incompetent, the charges are dropped and the person is committed indefinitely to a state hospital.

Miss Hearst, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph Hearst, was kidnaped from her Berkeley, Calif., apartment on Feb. 4, 1974. A short time later, through tape recorded communications, she condemned her past life and swore allegiance to the SLA.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband is either the world's biggest liar, or he must have something I'm not aware of. George said he was through driving sitters home because they just won't leave him alone. He claimed the last one—a 16-year-old girl—practically attacked him in the car. (She's a Junior Achiever. Can you believe that?)

Another time, the minister's wife called and offered me some home-grown cucumbers. She said she had more than she knew what to do with, so I sent George over to get some.

When he came back he said the minister's wife tried to get him to "relax" on a mattress in her basement. Then she "begged" him to try some of her pineapple upside-down cake. He also claimed that to prolong his stay, she handed him one cucumber at a time!

He's always telling me how women can't resist him. Believe me, Abby, he's nothing special.

Should I pretend to believe him, tell him a liar or what?
GEORGE'S WIFE

Don Juan stories

DEAR WIFE: If George is making up these stories, he must feel the need to convince you (and perhaps himself) that he's desirable. If you call him a liar, you'll castrate him. Give his ego a boost instead, and he won't have to lie.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy and I'm in the 10th grade. I gave my girl friend a wrist watch for her birthday, which caused her parents and mine (especially hers) to become very upset.

Her parents seem to think it was an "engagement" present, and they made her give it back to me.

My parents weren't quite so harsh, but they think it was a little too much for a boy of our age group to give a girl friend.

Abby, I didn't give her the watch to symbolize anything. I just wanted to give her something nice, and she needed a watch. It was very inexpensive.

My girl friend was heartbroken when her parents made her return it, and my ego was somewhat pounded into the ground. I realize that they are not old enough to become seriously involved, but I do think she should have been able to keep it.

What do you think? Please be open-minded.

DEAR T.L.: It's not the cost but the kind of gift your parents objected to. Jewelry and personal attire (at any price) are too intimate for 14 year olds.

DEAR ABBY: Five years ago our daughter was hostess to her high school club, and the parents were invited, too. She entertained them in our home on a Sunday afternoon.

One of the fathers was fascinated by a cuckoo clock an aunt had brought me from Switzerland. He said the cuckoo was not emerging properly from the cage for its periodic cuckooing, and since clocks were his hobby, he insisted on taking it home for repairs.

This gentleman lives across town; our paths never cross, and I haven't seen him or the cuckoo clock since.

Perhaps the repairs were more time-consuming than expected, but I'm getting concerned. What should I do?
TIMELESS

DEAR TIMELESS: The "gentleman" who took your clock home is obviously for the birds. Contact him and tell him you're coming by to pick it up—if he hasn't already flown the coop, that is.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hints

Make a Christmas apron for a child by sewing, pinning the gross-grain ribbon across the top of a hand towel decorated with a holiday motif. Leave a leave enough for ties. Make a bib the same way, but with a fingertip towel instead.

When you shop for your holiday turkey, look for extra turkey necks and tails, both byproducts of the turkey-rol industry, to use for making stock for giblet gravy.

Lead roles

FRIGHTENED Mrs. Manningham, played by Coralea Webb, is scolded by her husband, Tim Driscoll, who is attempting to convince her she is losing her mind. The two play lead roles in "Angel Street" a Twin Falls High School play opening Thursday night.

TFHS drama department opens season with 'Angel Street'

TWIN FALLS — "Angel Street," the first production of the season for the Twin Falls High School drama department will open Thursday night in the O'Leary auditorium.

Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. and the play will be seen Wednesday, Friday and Saturday nights. The public is invited to attend and tickets are available at the door.

"Angel Street" or "Gaslight" as it was called when it played in England, was one of the longest running Broadway productions when it opened in 1941. The play is the story of the Mannings of Angel Street. Mr. Manningham is attempting to convince his wife she is insane. She learns from a police inspector, however, that her husband is suspected of a murder 15 years earlier and the inspector proves to her she is sane. The remaining plot deals with attempting to uncover sufficient evidence against Manningham to convict him of the crime.

Tim Driscoll plays Manningham and Coralea Webb his wife. Other characters in the play include Scott Burnett, Inspector Tough; Paula Turner, Elizabeth, Jole Alford, Nancy; Kelly Carey and Ken Freeman in the police station.

Sets for the play are being completed at the O'Leary Junior High School as final rehearsals are underway.

William J. Langley, Jr., drama instructor, is stage and technical director; Beckie Porter, student age director and Dan Minger and Kelly Carey student technical directors.

Others working with the production include Laurinda Corey, in charge of properties; Sheila Mingh, make up; Sherel Hunt, tickets; James Stephens, light and sound; Leonard, Max Mikese, ushers; Anita Amandis, costumes and Mary Nielson, furniture.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market opened lower Tuesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average a 10.32-point loser Monday, was off 0.39 point to 825.33 shortly after the opening. Declines led early advances, 194 to 155, among the 547 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover amounted to about 560,000 shares. Many analysts expect a light turnover during the session due to the bank holiday in New York because of elections.

Spuds, grains decline

Courtesy Sinclair & Co. CHICAGO—Potato, grain and hog futures hit the skids Monday.

The May delivery of Idaho russet potato futures closed at 10-40 per hundredweight, a loss of 40 cents.

Commodity News Service and Maine potatoes lost 5 to 26 points lower with volume of 3,754 contracts. Local selling and light commission house and freight quotations marked the day as traders watched to see how November goes off the board.

Rain in the winter wheat belt over the weekend set new crop contracts down 15 to 20 points; a higher after trading range of about a quarter cent, on a volume of 1,810 contracts. Sugar 12 was untraded, closing 23 points higher across the board. The world spot price was up 45 cents, at 14.15 cents a pound, while the domestic spot was unchanged at 15-1/2 cents.

see-saw trade of about 7,550 contracts, with December of 62-1/2, reflecting cash conditions. February 15 higher, and July 15 down. Distal October closed 120 points higher.

Pork bellies opened trading at a 200 point limit and promptly tried the lower limit. All but distant August opening limit down. At the close, three from months were back to limit down after a slight upturn, and distant July and August were off 140 and 135 points each.

Sugar 11 continued to hold steady, closing 15 to 20 points higher after trading in a range of about a quarter cent, on a volume of 1,810 contracts. Sugar 12 was untraded, closing 23 points higher across the board. The world spot price was up 45 cents, at 14.15 cents a pound, while the domestic spot was unchanged at 15-1/2 cents.

Corn turned negative under pressure from wheat closing 10 to 20 cents with declines greater in distant months. Midwest harvesting is cut by lack of storage space.

Rainy weather interrupted the Midwest soybean harvest but had no effect on the close, soybeans were down 9 to 17 cents, in new crop months and present contracts mostly off 10 to 13 cents. Meal was down 80 cents to 3.30 and oil lost 35 to 65 points.

Live cattle closed unchanged to slightly higher in a nervous trade of about 9,500 contracts. Weak cash prices and rising slaughter rate kept the bid on advances white limit down bellies and a choppy price movement in hogs added to the uncertainty from wheat closing day rallies faltered in the face of technical selling and lack of commission house support.

Idahoans head for polls to vote on candidates, variety of issues

By United Press International
Idahoans head for the polls in warm and sunny weather today to pick mayors, city councilmen and vote on a variety of issues ranging from dog leash laws to a multi-million-dollar performing arts center.

Polls open at noon and close at 6 p.m.
Some, but not all, cities elect mayors just as some, but not all, have special issues on their ballots.

In the capital city, voters pick three councilmen from a field of 16 and decide whether to obligate the taxpayers for $2.1 million in property taxes to help pay for the proposed $8.6 million Morrison Center for the performing arts.

Three million dollars of the cost would come from liquor tax revenues and $1.5 million from the Morrison Foundation. If approved — and a two-thirds majority is required — the center would be built in Boise's Ann Morrison Memorial Park.

Across the state at Idaho Falls, last spring's police strike is one of the issues of a city council campaign in which three incumbents are seeking re-election. In addition, the city has its first black candidate for the council, businessman Leonard Crumbrough, and a former woman employee of Army Intelligence, Arlene Hichens, who is running on an anti-pornography plank.

At Pocatello, there are 10 candidates for five council seats. 13 of them offer four-year terms and five of them for the remainder ten years of former council member Cande Hanson. Mrs. Hansen resigned to re-company her husband, George, in Washington, D.C., after his election to Congress last fall.

At Chubbuck, there is a $250,000 water bond issue on the ballot. At Shelley, voters will be concerned with creation of a fire district to provide volunteer fire services. That Blackfoot is going to stop providing services to Shelby and some other communities.

Eiler voters will decide on a $500,000 water improvement issue while voters in Buhl and Shoshone will be balloting on dog leash ordinances.

In Twin Falls, six candidates are running for four city council seats. Gooding has a race for mayor between appointed Mayor Gene Kelly and challenger Don Morrow. Three seek two-year terms, on the Gooding City Council and one is running unopposed for a two-year term.

There are 10 candidates for four council seats at Burley with seven seeking three-year terms and three a two-year term.
At Nampa, 11 persons seek two council posts — including two women, Margaret LeBrien and Gayle Mabbutt. So far, Nampa voters never have elected a woman to their city council.

Caldwell has six candidates for three seats, including Joe Campbell, an incumbent who changed his mind about not running and got into the fray as a write-in.

At Fruitland, observers are wondering what effect a dispute between the outgoing mayor and the city council will have both on mayoral and council elections.

Outgoing Mayor C. L. (Andy) Anderson made a commitment Oct. 24 to hire Jim Henderson to succeed Raymond Riggs as police chief without consulting the council. Riggs was fired last summer by the Council. Henderson was voted down 3-1 Friday but, after a weekend study and a public apology by the mayor, the council voted early Monday to confirm Henderson and he went to work.

Lloyd Pantenney, the police commissioner, and L. L. Bishop are running for mayor. Seven persons are seeking three seats on the council, including two incumbents who voted against confirmation Friday.
In southern Idaho, most cities have races primarily for council.

At Lewiston, however, where the mayor is chosen by fellow council members, Mayor Leonard E. Williams is among two incumbent councilmen seeking re-election. The other is Dianne St. Marie. Incumbent Bryan B. Bundy declined to run again. Four other candidates are running for the council.

Osborne is one of the cities with a contest for mayor where Richard Stoddard has challenged incumbent Charles Mooney. Five persons seek two council posts but Don Stokoe is unopposed for the two-year council seat.

Multan Mayor Lonnie Greer also is up for election but he is unopposed. Two incumbents — James F. Hebert and Mildred Grant — are among those seeking three council seats.

2nd spot doesn't interest Reagan

BOCA RATON, Fla. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan says he is not interested in a vice presidential spot on the 1976 ticket now that Vice President Nelson Rockefeller has withdrawn from contention. "I am not interested in that position," he said Monday. Reagan, informed of the Rockefeller's decision minutes before addressing the faculty of Florida Atlantic University, said he was "astounded" but felt that "the people would refuse to accept Rockefeller" in the long run.

Reagan said Rockefeller's withdrawal would make it more difficult to launch a conservative challenge against Ford. He added, however, that he did not place much stock in the importance of a vice presidential candidate.

RONALD REAGAN ... 'not interested'

Mental patient attempts escape

BOISE (UPI) — A mental patient scaled a fence at the state prison Monday night but was caught before he could leave the penitentiary grounds.

George Bailey was bruised in the security treatment unit of the prison when he tried to get away. Authorities found him lying face down between the inner and outer fences.

Researcher eyes better in-lawing

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — Hubby's mom is more of a problem in a new marriage than the bride's mother, says a Utah State University researcher.

Dr. Glen Jensen said that the stronger parent-child tie was with the mother and son. But, he said, with the marriage, the wife replaces the mother-in-law role.

"The new wife is also more likely to be a stranger to the husband's mother," Jensen said. "But the man normally spends time at his wife-to-be's home, and he becomes acquainted with his future mother-in-law."

The family and child development specialist said part of the in-law problem was "simply that a problem is expected" and because people have little experience in "being good in-laws."

Jensen said, "the principles of better in-lawing" included gaining approval of the marriage, going easy on advice and suggestions and separate households.

"Affectionate naming is also a positive action — such as Mom and Dad instead of Mr. or Mrs. Jones, or Mary's mother or father," he said.

Decision reversed

FRUITLAND, Idaho (UPI) — After studying this matter further over the weekend, the Fruitland City Council reversed itself Monday and confirmed the appointment of a new police chief.

Friday, the council voted 3-1 against hiring James Henderson, 38, Reno, to succeed acting Chief Hal King because outgoing Mayor C. L. (Andy) Anderson had made a prior commitment to Henderson.

Anderson issued a statement after the meeting Monday in which he apologized for leading the council to believe he had hired Henderson without its approval.

Henderson has served with the patrol division of the Washoe County Sheriff's Department at Reno since 1971. Prior to that he served as a city patrolman for Tampa, Fla., for six years.

National cooperation pledged

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — The energy consuming states of the East are willing to help pay for production related problems in the West, Vermont Gov. Flynn said Monday.

Addressing an opening session of a three-day conference studying energy and water problems in the West, Salmon pledged his state would work for national cooperation instead of regional bickering. The conference participants included a number of Western state legislators.

Salmon said he felt coal developed from rich reserves in the West should carry a price tag that would help the area avoid or overcome environmental and social problems associated with the operation.

"We who are consumers agree that payments for fuel would include the cost of making the land healthy again and that cities and counties in the coal-producing states should not be asked to underwrite cheap energy for us out of their pockets for schools and hospitals," said Salmon.

"It's foolish to think the East and West can do something without the other," he said. "It would not serve the long-range interests of this nation if we were to fragment and let other nations exploit differences between our regions."

Salmon's remarks followed equally conciliatory statements by New Mexico Gov. Jerry Apodaca, who said Western states were committed to cooperate in both the nation meet its energy needs.

If you've changed to electric heat, please let us know!

WHY IS THAT SO IMPORTANT?

It's because the wires from the pole to your home and the transformer on the pole may not have been planned for electric heat.

Hundreds of electric heat installations are being made every month, many without the Company's knowledge. Consequently we are experiencing transformer failures due to overloading.

Resulting outages may occur in the coldest weather, at most inconvenient times. They also can disrupt service for your neighbors. Emergency replacement of repair can cost hundreds of dollars.

So please call us if you have added electric heat in recent months or plan to do so soon. It could save a lot of trouble for you, your neighbors and for our crews.

For free energy-saving help, call for an Energy Adviser.

Beet, sugar supply meet scheduled in TF Nov. 12

TWIN FALLS — One of three sugarbeet workshops planned by the Idaho Beet Growers Association and University of Idaho Extension Service will be conducted here Nov. 12.

The workshop will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the third auditorium of the Vo-Tech Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

Other workshops are planned in Caldwell and Blackfoot.

All three will present information about sugar supply, pricing and marketing developments for beet growers and other interested persons.

Causes of the extreme variations in sugar prices during the past few years will be explained by two officials of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. They are Marvin Gelles director, and Gene Bowles will analyze prospects for increasing sugar supplies through intensified production practices and life building of new mills. They will review the structure of the sugar market and the development of sugar policy in the U.S. and worldwide.

In a timely examination of the sugar futures market, the USDA officials will explain how the market operates. They will explain ways by which a grower might utilize the futures market in order to "lock in" a definite price for all or part of his production.

Robert L. Sargent, University of Idaho extension economist, said, the workshops will present information of interest to growers, other people in the sugar industry and consumers.

Super crops of future will grow on sun energy

MOSCOW — Science will score a victory over hunger and food shortages by designing super-grains and other new crops which will yield abundant harvests without depleting the world's scarce energy reserves, Dr. Haymond Miller, director of the University of Idaho Agricultural Experiment Station, predicted here.

Speaking to the 60-member Consulting Council of the U.I. College of Agriculture, Miller said U.S. agricultural scientists will eventually succeed in breeding plants that can capture huge amounts of solar energy.

"The sun has virtually unlimited possibilities as a source of energy for this planet," Miller said. "We can gain a great energy bonus by breeding plants with an increased capacity for fixation and use of solar energy."

Nitrogen from the atmosphere is another resource that could be tapped by plants specially bred for that purpose, Miller said. "Peas and other legumes are able to fix and use nitrogen from the air," he noted. "A major research need today is to develop nitrogen-fixing varieties of cereals and other crops."

Growing more crops with less water would become possible through research aimed at breeding plants which could utilize water efficiently, Miller said.

While the entire world has an important stake in the agricultural development of the American West, the health of the U.S. economy is directly dependent on the progress of agriculture, Miller said.

"In the Western states, agriculture ranks fourth on the list of 'important industries,'" he said. "In Idaho, agriculture is number one — the most important industry in the state."

He said agricultural research has been responsible for boosting the yields of Idaho crops throughout this century.

The outlook for Thursday mild.

Synopsis:

The high pressure system which has been over the Magic Valley area this week continues to block and hold the strong track into Canada. As this high pressure weakens, high temperatures will cool slowly for the rest of the week. The highs should still be above normal through Wednesday.

The extended outlook for Thursday through Saturday calls for warm Indian Summer weather through the period with highs 55 to 65. Lows will be in the 30s. No precipitation is expected through Saturday.

Conditions should be good for the final days of harvest and early fall plowing.

Lowinson set a record high for the day Monday and tied the all time high November temperature with 71 degrees. High temperatures through Idaho were generally above normal Monday.

Plant risks low for nuclear fuel

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — The U.S. Regulatory Commission has concluded after three years of study that the risks attached to the operation of present-day nuclear power plants are very low compared to other natural and man-made risks.

The study was directed by Prof. Norman Rasmussen of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and involved a team of 60 persons formed by Mr. Saul Levine, Deputy Director of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's office of nuclear regulatory research.

The study further concludes that nuclear power plants are 10,000 times less likely to produce fatal accidents than man-made nuclear accidents.

The comparison is based on the study of both nuclear power plants and nonnuclear events such as fires, explosions, toxic chemical release, dam failures, airplane crashes, earthquakes, bus accidents and tornadoes.

The study also concluded that the chance that a person living in the general vicinity of a nuclear power plant will be fatally injured in a reactor accident is one in five billion per year.

The chance that a person will be injured in a reactor accident is one chance in 75 million per year.

Commission Chairman William Anders said the nuclear risks could only be estimated in the study since there have been no nuclear power accidents to date which by melting the fuel in the reactor core.

The only way that potentially large amounts of radioactivity can be released from a nuclear power plant is melting the fuel in the reactor core.

The safety design of reactors, according to the Commission, includes a series of systems to prevent the overheating of fuel and to control potential releases of radioactivity.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader has been critical of the cooling systems of reactors, saying they are inadequate.

Exports meeting topic

BOISE (UPI) — Wheat exports will be among topics for discussion at the Idaho Export Sales Division U.S. Department of Agriculture Association 10th annual convention Nov. 10-12 at the Rodway Inn.

Peter Paul, director of the Export Sales Division U.S. Department of Agriculture Foreign Agriculture Services, will be the featured speaker at the meeting.

Harold West, Boise, executive secretary for the association, said he has assistance Paul will be able to answer questions concerning the Thursday wheat deal. Paul will meet the luncheon Nov. 11.

Discussion of the export situation also will be offered by Richard K. Baum, Portland, president of the Western Wheat Associates an overseas marketing organization representing western wheat producing states.

Don Woodward of Pendleton, Ore., president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, will appear with Baum on the Nov. 10 program.

A panel discussion Nov. 11 will cover "Future Economic Considerations for Idaho Wheat Growers." The panel will be led by Dr. R. W. Schrammer of Moscow.

head of the University of Idaho's agriculture economics department.

Other discussions will cover wheat varieties and disease problems, changing weather patterns, new farm equipment and a representative from the Port of Portland on the Columbia River as a new transportation outlet for Idaho.

bridge

Some bridge in duplicate play

(a bid not recommended by either us or any other writers) or after a jump rebid in notrump - again not recommended but not really a bad call) your score would depend on the opening lead.

A prosaic fourth-best diamond lead against notrump would hold declarer to seven tricks; against any other suit lead he would make at least three notrump and might well make four or five for a really good, but rather undeserved score.

All in all, this hand - shows that there is plenty of luck in duplicate bridge.

ASK YOUR GOODBYES

A Texas reader wants to know why all bridge columns miss the "Goodbyes" in East and West and in favor of North and South.

It is a sort of unwritten law. In order to make it easy for student readers to follow the play, the bottom hand is always declarer. Since it is easier to write about winning hands than losing hands the majority of the cards go to the declaring side.

SPOKANE (UPI) — United Farm Workers spokesman Remy Hatcher says consumer boycotting of lettuce, grapes and some picked by union UFW labor was continuing.

Hatcher, chairman of the local support committee, spoke at a forum at the Spokane Peace and Justice Center.

Hatcher said the boycott must continue until California passed a law making it possible for farm workers to vote in free secret elections about whether they want to be represented by the UFW. The members of the union at all

Laser brand technique patented

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — A Washington State University veterinarian has received a patent on a laser branding technique for fish and wild and domestic animals.

Dr. Keith Farrell says the technique is quick and painless.

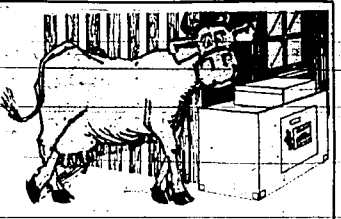

As described in the patent, laser branding is accomplished by transmitting an intense beam of laser light to the skin of the animal through a fiber optic bundle.

The beam can be used to form patterns or characters on the skin of the animal by simply arranging the fiber optic bundle in the shape desired.

The technique has already been used by the Washington Department of Fisheries to mark salmon, but Farrell says later developments might include a "machine-gun" type device to brand entire schools of fish without even removing them from the water.

He says this type of branding might be used in studies of breeding and migratory habits.

Farrell earlier implemented a freeze-branding system using cryogenically-cooled branding tools, and his wife, Beverly, has developed an unalterable alphabet for marking animals.

Washington Bullets down Seattle 94-85

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Washington Bullets outscored Seattle 24-7 in the first nine minutes of the fourth quarter en route to a 94-85 National Basketball Association victory Sunday night.

The Bullets appeared headed for defeat in the third quarter as the Sonics captured a four-point halftime deficit to a 65-53 lead with 5:16 to play in the quarter. Washington trailed, 73-61, at the end of three quarters, before the Sonics lapsed into a scoring drought of nearly five minutes.

Trailing 76-67, Washington scored 14 unanswered points with reserve guard Clem Haskins accounting for three breakaway lay-ins. The Sonics closed to within six, at 89-83, with 1:28 to play, but a three-point play by Elvin Hayes put the game out of reach for Seattle.

Lakers drop Hawks in 116-113 overtime win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 29 points, collected 23 rebounds and blocked 10 shots Sunday night as the Los Angeles Lakers scored a 116-113 overtime victory over the Atlanta Hawks in an NBA game.

Abdul-Jabbar fouled out with two minutes remaining in the extra session, but guard Lucius Allen and forward Cazzie Russell took charge to lead Los Angeles to its fourth victory in six games.

Los Angeles led by 13 points with 14 minutes remaining, but couldn't hold it against the outside shooting of Atlanta's John Drew and Lou Hudson. Drew finished with 22 points.

It was a jump shot by former Laker Gene Hawkins with 24 seconds remaining that sent the game into overtime.

The Lakers had a chance to win it in regulation when Russell missed a jump shot with five seconds to go and Abdul-Jabbar failed on a follow shot at the buzzer.

Sails catch Spurs for 105-102 ABA victory

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Bobby Warren scored 15 points in the second half to lead the San Diego Sails to a come-from-behind 105-102 American Basketball Association victory over the San Antonio Spurs Sunday night.

The win was the second of the season for San Diego and broke a 10-game losing jinx against the Spurs.

The Sails rallied from a 13-point deficit at halftime on the shooting of Warren, an ex-Spurs. Rick Foltish and Kevin Joyce, James entered the mix, scoring with 20 for the Spurs.

George Gervin was second with 26, 12 coming in the first period when San Antonio took a 12-point lead. Warren paced the host's scoring with a total of 20 and guard Pat McFarland had 18.

Penn State tops in Lambert Trophy vote

NEW YORK (UPI) — Penn State, which squeaked by Maryland 15-13 last Saturday to run its record to 8-1, remained in first place Monday in the weekly balloting for the Lambert Trophy, which is given annually to the outstanding Division I college football team in the East.

The Nittany Lions received all seven first place votes and 70 points to take a commanding 10-point lead over Pittsburgh, which moved back into the runnerup spot after crushing Syracuse, 38-0. Harvard was third with 50 points followed by West Virginia (47) and Yale (39).

Penn State has won the Lambert Trophy the last four years.

Gator Bowl scouts will watch games

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Scouts from the Gator Bowl Selection Committee will attend seven and possibly eight college football games this weekend, it was announced Monday.

The Gator Bowl scouts will be at Oklahoma-Kansas, Florida-Georgia, Notre Dame-Georgia Tech, Penn State-North Carolina State, Michigan-Purdue, Nebraska-Kansas State and Ohio State-Illinois.

The additional game under consideration is Southern California-Stanford, the committee said.

Under NCAA rules, the selection date for 1975-76 bowl games is Nov. 15. The 31st annual Gator Bowl game is scheduled for Dec. 29.

ABA Squires axe coach

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Al Bianchi was dismissed Monday night as head coach of the Virginia Squires, the American Basketball Association club that has floundered since 1962.

Injured guard Mack Calvin was appointed as interim head coach to assume command immediately.

"The owners and management of the club felt a change was necessary," said General Manager Jack Ankerson. "We will begin a search immediately for a successor."

The Squires are 1-5 so far this season. Last year's record was 15-49.

George Scott signs

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — George Scott, who led the American League in runs batted in and tied for the home run lead, has signed a one-year contract for next season with the Milwaukee Brewers, the club said Monday.

Terms of the agreement were not announced, but it was assumed Scott got a healthy raise over the estimated $135,000 he received this season.

Scott became the Brewers' first $100,000 player two years ago. He has been a perennial Golden Glove award winner and is considered one of the top fielding first basemen in baseball.

Shelley Hamlin wins Japan Golf Classic

OSAKA, Japan (UPI) — Shelley Hamlin of Fresno, Calif., fired a two-under-par 71 Sunday to win the $100,000 LPGA Japan Golf Classic Satchel tournament by a one-stroke margin.

Miss Hamlin, who tied off in the flat threesome with first and second-round leader Karolyi Kertizian and Japanese pro Yuriko Yano, had rounders of 74-73-71 for a one-under-par 218 on the 6,294-yard par-73 Ibaraki Country Club course. She won $15,000.

American Hollis Stacy won second prize money of $11,000 as she fired a two-under-par 71 for an even par 219.

Miss Kertizian had a three-over-par 76 for a 221 and a third place tie with Japanese pro Takako Kiyomoto and Tu Ayu of Taiwan, who shot a 75 and 72, respectively. They each collected $5,266.

American Pat Bradley fired a one over par 74 for a six-over-par 225 and was alone in sixth place to earn $1,100.

Anthony Davis signs $1 million pact

TORONTO (UPI) — Former All-American Anthony Davis, the World Football League's brightest star, has signed a five-year, $1 million contract with the Canadian Football League Toronto Argonauts.

The 23-year-old running back, who broke all of O.J. Simpson's records at the University of Southern California, became a free agent when the WFL collapsed in financial ruin two weeks ago.

Davis said Monday he was considering offers from both the Argos and the New York Jets of the National Football League but decided his future was in the CFL. He signed with Toronto last Thursday.

"I was going back and forth with the Jets and the Argos and decided that my future here would be more beneficial to me," Davis said. He said the Argos lucrative offer was not the deciding issue.

"If I had to play in New York, I'd play in New York. I play here. The money's not the main thing. I just like football."

Davis said he would have played in the CFL playoffs had Toronto qualified by beating the Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday. The Argos lost 26-16 to finish last in the CFL east with a 5-10 record.

"But I'll be back next season," said Davis, saying notice on the league and superstar Johnny Rodgers of the Montreal Alouettes that the CFL and the former Nebraska University All-American better make room for "A D."

While at USC, Davis had more than 100 yards rushing in 17 games, scored 52 touchdowns and scored more points than anyone in USC's illustrious football history. He broke all the records set by pro football's premier running back, O.J. Simpson of the Buffalo Bills.

With the WFL's Southern California Stars, Davis led the league in almost every offensive department. He had over 1,200 yards rushing, 18 touchdowns rushing, two passing and 41 receptions for 567 yards, all in 12 games.

Red Sox pad Fenway mall

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox can expect even greater defensive plays from outfielder Fred Lynn next season, after a thick padding is installed around Fenway Park's concrete wall.

Told Monday that plans called for a six-foot high pad to be attached from the left field foul pole to the right center field corner, the Red Sox' Rookie of the Year said, "I like it. I definitely will be safer now."

Lynn who braced his shoulder against the wall while chasing a liner in the World Series sixth game, added, "I'll go back and run into it all day."

The news of the Green Monster's softer touch also was welcomed by Red Sox left fielder Jim Rice, Lynn's autograph signing partner at the on-going International Auto Show.

"Maybe you'll see a lot of fantastic catches now; it's a good idea," said Rice. "The wall—the way it is now—is something you don't play with."

The padding, to be completed before the start of next season, had been suggested by Boston center fielder Dum Dum Matoso more than 30 years ago.

The decision to install the two-inch thick pad was made last summer, long before Lynn lay helpless at the base of the 379-mark after just missing the fifth inning drive by Cincinnati's Ken Griffey.

Red Sox General Manager Dick O'Connell, who also announced an electronic scoreboard would be added above the center field bleachers, said the pad will begin 1 1/2 feet from the base of the "Green Monster" and rise to 7 1/2 feet along the wall. The remainder of the 64-foot-high concrete wall will be replaced in the process of being resurfaced with a metal alloy that will replace the present green-tinted covering.

"I'm sure it will change the bounce of balls hit off the wall but it's for the players' protection," said O'Connell, who added that new drainage and sprinkler systems have been included in the 63-year-old park's facelift. Other improvements include new sod in certain areas and a glass enclosure around the pressbox behind home plate.

O'Connell said the scoreboard "will pride over the last 10 years and will be able to transmit pictures. There are no plans for instant replays but I'm told it has the capability of doing that too."

"But there'll be no fireworks or other craziness that scoreboards have in some other parks."

John Unitas to settle out-of-court

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The arm that passed the Baltimore Colts to two world championships and set numerous passing records will reportedly sign a $100,000 check as part of an out-of-court settlement in a 1970 contract dispute.

John Unitas and the Colts issued a joint statement Monday saying an agreement has been reached on the former quarterback's breach-of-contract lawsuit against the team.

The contract guaranteed Unitas a job with the organization, upon retirement for 10 years at a reported $30,000. Although the Colts said otherwise, Unitas claimed the job was only part-time and filed for $725,000 shortly after being traded to San Diego in 1973.

Unitas said he did not want a full-time job because of his other business interests, including a restaurant, a motel and a position as sports broadcaster for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The trade to San Diego ended Unitas' 17-year tenure with the Colts, who picked him up for an $5-cent phone call from the Pittsburgh Steelers in 1956. He was shipped to San Diego after, new general manager Joe Thomas began a rebuilding program. He was benched after five games with the Chargers and retired, at the beginning of the 1974 season.

Former WFL General Manager charged

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Former pro football promoter Ronnie Loudt goes on trial Tuesday charged with dealing in cocaine while at the helm of the now-defunct Florida Blazers.

The one-time linchpin, who became a personnel director for the New England Patriots, actually faces three trials on charges of cocaine, conspiracy to deliver cocaine and embezzlement of state sales tax monies.

Loudt, the managing general partner of the Blazers before the NFL team collapsed in financial disaster after one season, is in Orange County jail, unable to raise a $225,000 bail bond.

Ellis Rubin, Loudt's attorney, planned to get a deposition Monday from Cecil Johnson, the Blazers' former legal advisor, who was arrested with Loudt on March 8 and sentenced Sept. 18 to 14 years in prison for delivery of heroin.

Johnson was found guilty June 19 on charges stemming from a crackdown that also resulted in the arrest of Loudt's bodyguard, Alphonso Cain.

Cain got a 13-year sentence for cocaine delivery and later pleaded guilty to additional conspiracy charges in return for a concurrent sentence.

Oregon State player wins in court case

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A federal court judge issued a preliminary injunction Monday allowing Oregon State star Lonnie Shelton to compete in collegiate athletics although he signed and then reneged on a contract with the American Basketball Association.

U.S. Circuit Judge Gus Solomon granted the OSU Junior All-Coast center-forward the request for a preliminary injunction allowing him to begin the season with the Beavers.

He led his club to the postseason NCAA playoffs last season when the Beavers finished second in the Pacific-8 Conference. They were eventually eliminated by Indiana.

Solomon's decision meant Shelton could play with the Beavers until the matter can be further heard in court. It put a restrainer on the NCAA, which had ruled Shelton ineligible because he had signed with the ABA. His contract wound up at St. Louis, which also has threatened suit against Shelton.

"I'm happy," Shelton said following the 44-minute hearing. "I'll get to start with the team."

George Gangwer, attorney for the NCAA, indicated the NCAA would appeal to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco.

Solomon rejected the NCAA attorney's plea that Shelton, automatically disqualified himself for college ball by signing a pro contract.

French mare retired

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — Alex France, the French mare winner of a record-setting $1.3 million in purses, is being retired and has been withdrawn from Saturday's Washington, D.C., International Jockey Race Track officials announced Monday.

According to a Laurel spokesman, Alex France will instead be shipped to Ocala, Fla., preparatory to being bred to Secretariat next Spring.

Her withdrawal followed that of Waluma from the $150,000 turf event, leaving a field of eight entries with the possibility that a ninth may be announced shortly.

Indiana rips Russians

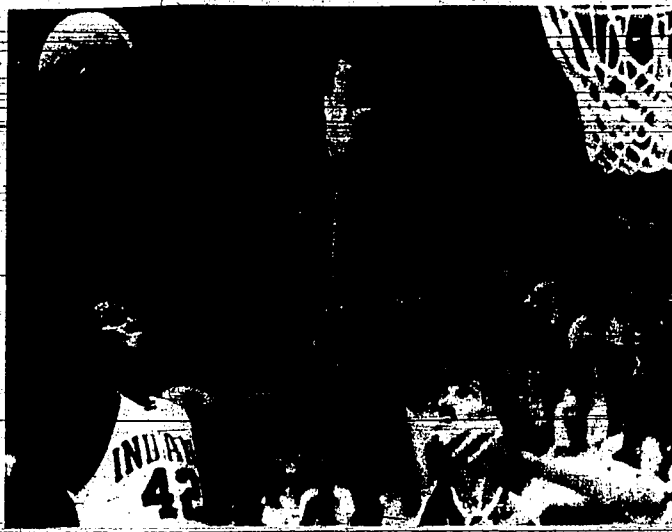

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Indiana All-American Scott May, who missed the NCAA tournament last spring with a broken arm, scored 34 points Monday night to lead the Hoosiers to a 94-78 victory over the Russian National basketball team.

After a fairly tight first half that ended with the Hoosiers leading 48-42, the Big Ten champions bolted to a 28-point lead, 79-61, with 10 minutes to go. Coach Bobby Knight substituted freely during the second half, putting all 12 players in for some action. Even Quinn Buckner, who had suffered lower back spasms during practice, saw some limited action.

May hit 13 of 19 from the field and 8 of 10 from the free throw line. Kent Benson added 12 points, Mark Haymore 11 and Tom Abernethy 10.

The Russian Olympic champions were led by Sergei Belov with 21 points—17 the first half. Ivan Edeshko and Alsat Sharmuhamedov each added 17.

A capacity crowd of about 17,000 filled Market Square Arena for the exhibition game, the second in a series by the touring USSR squad. The Russians also lost their earlier game with Marquette.

More baseball?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Thought baseball was over, did you?

Now hear this.

The Cincinnati Reds, newly crowned world champions, will open the 1976 National League season Thursday, April 8, against the Houston Astros. It was announced Monday.

With the Reds maintaining their tradition of beginning play a day ahead of the rest of the league, eight teams will open the season Friday with Philadelphia entertaining Pittsburgh Saturday.

The Friday games will have Los Angeles at San Francisco, Chicago at St. Louis, Montreal at New York and Atlanta at San Diego.

The following week, teams starting the season on the road will play their home openers.

San Francisco will be at Houston and San Diego at Los Angeles April 12. The following day New York will be at Chicago, St. Louis at Pittsburgh and Cincinnati at Atlanta with the final home opener in Montreal April 14 with the Expos hosting Philadelphia.

Rams rout Eagles

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Quarterback James Harris threw for three touchdowns and the Rams defense scored two others and set up a third as Los Angeles drubbed the Philadelphia Eagles 42-3 in the nationally televised Monday night NFL game.

The Rams, now 6-1 and running away with the National Football Conference Western Division title, dominated the game after the first quarter and handled the hapless Eagles their sixth loss in seven games.

It was the most one-sided contest in the Monday night series this season.

Before going out in the fourth quarter, Harris was 10-for-20 with three touchdowns and 207 yards. Two of his touchdown passes were to wide receiver Harold Jackson, a former Eagle, and the third went to wide receiver Jack Snow.

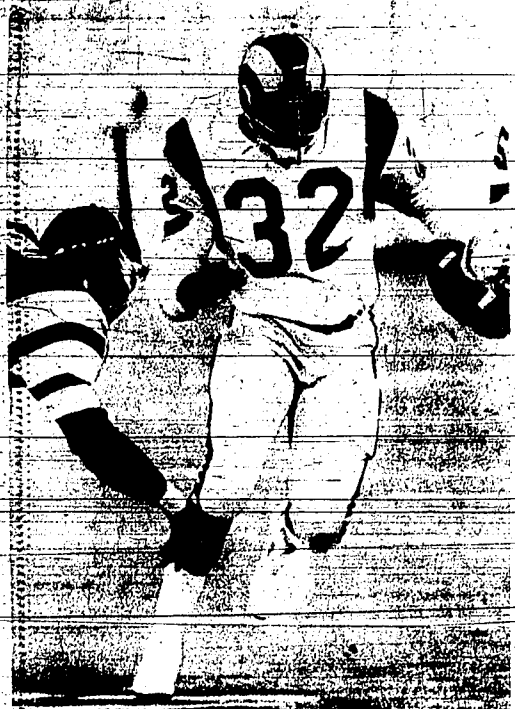

The defense scored on a 76-yard touchdown romp on an interception by Isiah Robertson and a 20-yard run by linebacker Fred Dyer with a recovered fumble. Free safety Bill Simpson set up the Rams' first score in the first quarter with an interception.

The Rams, who had a 21-3 halftime lead, put the game out of reach in the third quarter. They took the kickoff and went 67 yards in eight plays in a drive temporarily set back by two penalties. But then with third and 28 on the Eagles' 42, Harris passed down the middle to Snow for a touchdown and a 28-3 advantage.

Twenty-one seconds later, the Rams were on the board again when Larry Brooks sacked Gabriel for the second time of the night, the Eagles' quarterback fumbled and the ball popped up into the arms of defensive right end Dyer and he galloped 20 yards for another TD.

Later, Eagles' backup quarterback Mike Boryla came in and he had his troubles too. He drove the Eagles down to the Rams' 12 as the third quarter ended but on the first play of the fourth quarter, he suffered a 12 yard loss on a sack and threw a pass that Robertson picked off on the sideline and rumbled 70 yards for the final touchdown.

Bill Walton injured

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Bill Walton will miss Tuesday night's game against Atlanta and may be lost to the Portland Trail Blazers of the NBA for all six games of the team's home stand because of an ankle injury.

Walton was hurt in the Saturday night game against Milwaukee, when he came down hard on his right ankle and turned it, and was forced to sit out the second half. Examination showed he suffered "a severe sprain."

The injury came in the Blazers' fifth game of the young season. Walton missed more than half the schedule last year with a bone spur on his left foot.

Gooding fire chief flayed

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News writer

GOODING — The Gooding fire chief came under heavy criticism Monday for not knowing where the city fire hydrants are located.

About 25 people attended the Gooding City Council meeting Monday to discuss the fire department's handling of a Friday fire which claimed the life of 3-year-old Frank Edward Bolton Jr.

The child's father, Frank Bolton, 27, was listed in critical condition today in Brooke Army Medical Center, San Antonio, Tex., where he was flown Friday night.

At least six volunteer firemen spoke in support of Chief Jack Waldschmidt and the council, by a vote of 3 to 1, went on record supporting the chief and the volunteer department.

But Councilman Bob Shaver was adamant in his contention "the fire chief should know where the hydrants are located."

Shaver's son, Logan Shaver, and Chief Floyd, former Gooding police chief, both questioned and other minor details of the fire-fighting operation.

No one questioned that the intensity of the pre-dawn blaze was so great that nothing could have saved either the life of the Bolton boy or the house itself.

The house was an "inferno," Waldschmidt said, when he arrived at the scene. He said the call was received at 5:28 a.m. and he got to the fire alone before others of the volunteer crew arrived.

The chief, supported by several volunteer members throughout the discussion, said fire-fighting rules are that the first thing to do upon arrival at a blaze is to "size it up" for possibility of trapped persons.

Since he was alone he couldn't lay the hose until the volunteers arrived, the chief said in answer to alleged delays. Gary Adams, a volunteer, spoke emotionally "as to Waldschmidt's ability and contrasted him favorably with the previous fire chief."

Floyd referred to another fatal fire in Gooding some years ago when he said "the body was not allowed to be cremated." Floyd asked why firemen did not use a nozzle to spray through the window where the victim lay.

He later told the Times-News, the city ordinance requires the police chief to be at every fire and for 13 years he did so, "so I know something about what can be done."

Adams said the most important thing firemen did was to save the homes on either side of the burning house and keep the fire from spreading to a building behind.

"Our first priority was to protect the exposures," Adams said. He also said "with an aerial crew, we can only do so much."

Waldschmidt said a map is being made of where hydrants are located and "we're going to take 10 seconds to look at it" before answering another call. Several points, including firemen, said no one could be expected to know where every hydrant is located, especially in an emotionally charged situation where a human life is involved.

"We're not God, we're just human," one fireman said. George Waller, Wendell fire chief, also testified that the Gooding firemen did things in the right way.

"Is that all you want me to say," he asked Waldschmidt. Bill Skaggs, the neighbor who had called firemen, said with "some study you could find out that the hydrants there is a pattern to their location." Skaggs said he is a former volunteer fireman.

At one point in the meeting Waldschmidt accused Councilman Shaver of having referred to the firemen as "kids." The councilman denied this and said his criticism was restricted to the fire chief.

Annexation approved at Burley

BURLEY — A north Burley area, once thought to be part of the city, was approved for annexation Monday night and an area in the eastern section of Burley was approved for a rezone to commercial.

Two subdivision annexations were tabled for a committee to work out details regarding requirements for utilities and street improvements.

Mayor Chuck Shaddock appointed councilmen James Roger, John Croft and Floyd Taylor to meet with developers of the two subdivisions in southern Burley. They are to work out agreements assuring improvements and report to the council Nov. 17.

One area is Highland subdivision No. 2, being developed by Otis Orton in the southeastern part of the city.

The other area is SIR Estates subdivision being developed by South Idaho Realty in the 27th Street area, west of Overland Avenue.

Orton asked the committee to meet with him this week.

The approved annexation is in the Mac Rae addition. It is an area north of Emerson Avenue for 1,176 feet between the canal and a drainage ditch in Middlefork County, west of Highway 27. The city thought it was already part of Burley, but a check of ordinances showed it had not been formally annexed.

The council directed city attorney William Parsons to draft an ordinance annexing the area and to set zoning as commercial.

It also ordered a draft ordinance changing zoning of an area in northeast Burley from residential to C-3 commercial.

The rezoned area is from Fifth Street to Eighth Street. It is west of the alley between Elba and Malta Avenues and east of the alley between Hansen and Albion Avenues.

Parsons said the Burley Planning and Zoning Commission had approved all four proposals without opposition at its public hearings.

However, he said the commission is studying the county subdivision ordinance. Although the city has no ordinance on subdivisions now, he says, the council could attach conditions on improvements and indicated the commission expected such conditions.

The conditions would require installation of utilities and street paving, curbs and gutters or financial assurances that they will be completed.

The Highland subdivision, No. 2, lies between Highland Road and Alamo Avenue, south of Dean Street.

The SIR Estates subdivision, which proposes extension of Virgin Avenue south to the canal, excludes the canal right of way.

Short school day slated

RUPERT — Minidoka County schools will meet only briefly Wednesday.

The short day will allow teachers afternoon time to handle records at the end of the quarter.

The school board Monday night approved the minimum day at the end of each quarter.

It is a shift from a policy allowing two minimum days for that purpose at the end of each semester.

In another negotiation-related matter, the board approved a $100 gift certificate for Mary Ann Bohon, despite an objection from one teacher.

Mrs. Bohon was a lay member of the negotiating committee on teacher contracts.

2 more seek Hailey seats

HAILEY — Albert Knight, 51, and Dave Nance, 36, both China Garden residents, have announced a last minute write in campaign for two City Council seats here.

The two will be opposing four-year incumbents, Lyle Breunman, 61, and Chandler Purter, 41.

Nance issued a statement Monday, "I am concerned with your interests in opposition to healthy and there is more than many are aware that in the last election they voted away their right to petition and referendum. It's time to regain that basic American and Blaine County citizen's right."

Night was unavailable for comment.

Polls open today at noon and close at 4 p.m. Residents in precinct 1 vote at the city hall, those in precinct 2 at the city hall. The Hailey city clerk says there are about 500 residents registered to vote.

Record crop costs owner $100 bet

HOLLISTER — Dan Montgomery has a record field of potatoes but it cost him a $100 bet to his father.

Potatoes in the 26-acre field on the Montgomery farm east of Hollister near Nat 500 this year are running 40 to 45 bushels per acre.

"I told Dan this field would run over 400 sacks," Fred Montgomery said Monday, grinning proudly as he handled the huge smooth spuds. "But he didn't think his old man knew anything," he chuckled.

It takes just one round on the quarter-mile rows to fill a truck holding 100 sacks. With perfect weather Monday, the Montgomerys had dug more than 2,000 sacks by midday. They expect to complete the field today.

Fred Montgomery says not only is the quantity setting a record, but he estimates 85 per cent of the spuds are running No. 1's.

"It just shows what this Salmon Tract land will produce when we get enough water," Montgomery said. "He has been farming" all his life and says this is the best crop of spuds he's seen in 20 years.

"I don't need the publicity," the farmer said wryly. "But the Salmon Tract has always been sort of a stop-child around here. Now that we've had four or five good water years, it shows this tract can produce better than even some of the new land like Bell Rapids."

Montgomery said his son Dan had raised the crop of Russet potatoes which were planted in mid-May after the heavy snowstorm early in May.

He termed last week's storm a help because "now the spuds are settled up" and the sky is as tough and firm. He said some of the spuds dug several weeks ago were not mature and were easily skinned.

While the amount and size of the crop obviously is a tribute to the productivity of the land, the Montgomerys helped things along, according to 66,000 worth of fertilizers was used on the field, Fred Montgomery estimates. This is the third crop of potatoes on the land in the past 10 years. During the short water years the field was rotated between hay and grain.

Charles Marshall, owner of the C.J. Produce Co., Jerome, agreed the Montgomery field was an "exceptional record." He said the state average yield this year is running between 225 and 230 sacks, but there are some fields in the Magic Valley area running around 400 sacks.

He said produce dealers require 50 per cent No. 1's when they contract potatoes, so that 85 per cent No. 1's shows an excellent quality.

The Montgomerys are not planning to sell their potatoes immediately, but are storing them in their spud cellar.

Burley store construction eyed

BURLEY — Another step was taken Monday in the red-tape surrounding construction of a K mart store in north Burley.

The Burley City Council passed an ordinance under suspension of the rules to vacate an easement that crosses the K mart property, at west Third Street North and a residential parcel.

City attorney William Parsons explained that the easement is unnecessary and could be vacated merely on request of the property owners.

The electrical transmission lines will be shifted to the rear of the store, where another easement exists. Rural Electric Co. has agreed there is no encroachment with the line it maintains near that point.

TF man arrested

BURLEY — A Twin Falls man was arrested, over $6,000 in baled hay was burned and other bales scattered in an otherwise unusually quiet Halloween in Cassia County.

Burley police arrested Peter Hernandez, Twin Falls county, about 11 p.m. Friday after he allegedly drove on the Burley High School lawn and tore it up.

He is charged with reckless driving, destruction of private property and driving while his license was suspended.

More than 100 tons of hay bales burned about 11:15 p.m. Friday on the southwest of Hector. They were owned by Scott and Wanda Loveland.

Jerome school carnival set

JEROME — A carnival is scheduled Saturday evening at the Jefferson Elementary School in Jerome.

The Area Association for Handicapped Citizens is sponsoring the event which will take place from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. The carnival will include a raffle at 7:30 p.m. and continuous games and food.

There will be no admission charge. Proceeds from the event will go to help the special education program in Jerome.

Everyone is invited. Persons wishing to help out may call Mrs. Kenneth Woodrow at 324-4361.

The school is located at 600 North Fillmore.

Members, advisers speak at Buhl

BUHL — Four members of the Twin Falls 4-H Builders Club and their adviser spoke at the Buhl Chamber of Commerce luncheon Monday.

Mrs. Frank Southwick, adviser, and Scott Fehrenbacher, Sal Southwick, Shannon Cantrell and Tam Busmann were part of a group of 12 from Buhl who attended a citizenship school course last summer in Washington, D.C. The seminar was sponsored by the National 4-H Foundation.

Each of the four youths spoke on a different aspect of their trip. Miss Cantrell drew general laughter when she said, "Talking to the 100 congressmen was funnier than they can talk for a long time and you still don't know what they're saying."

Port funds defended

BURLEY — City attorney William Parsons Monday defended Burley's expenditures at the city airport, saying charges the city was spending money arbitrary to a lease agreement was a "distortion."

The city expenditures in question involve money spent for a lowered ceiling, construction of low walls at the airport and new tile.

The expenditures came under fire from several City Council candidates after a question last week at a candidate's forum.

Councilman L. V. Morgan proposed the council try to keep such "technical questions requiring legal opinions" from being asked of candidate at such forums. "I don't think these should be presented," he said.

Councilman James Roger disagreed. He said the council had nothing to do with the forum which was sponsored by the Exchange Club.

Parsons said councilmen had requested he look into the lease provisions. He agreed maintenance was the responsibility of the lessee, but said "a covenant to maintain is not a covenant to improve."

He said the lessee (city) can make improvements with the consent of the lessee, but the lessee has no obligation to make any improvements.

Mayor Charles Shaddock remarked that the work was needed.

Parsons said "there is nothing wrong" with the city money being spent at the airport.

The city attorney suggested the council take a close look at the lease which expires in April.

He emphasized the lease may need no changes and the airport may be handled to the best interest of the city, but he pointed out that the airport is a "valuable piece of property" and Federal Aviation Administration regulations have changed over the past 10 years.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Confusing, illusive, or deceptive conditions can be adverse for you now, so stick to what has proved successful, proper and conventional, and you achieve more of value. Think out ways to place your future on a better planned basis, and you make big strides forward.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on getting your present aims working more effectively. Instead of jumping into some new venture you know little about.

TURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make plans privately, otherwise others could gain at your expense. Carry through in a methodical manner. Cooperate more with male.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good day to state your own aims with partners, listen to theirs. Then you operate together more ideally. Sociable p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen to what others have to say about some new venture you have in mind. Profit by their ideas and get needed information.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get into the right kind of amusements if you really want to enjoy yourself today, and steer clear of danger. Avoid cheap thrills.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep any promises you have made and do not go against the wishes of family. Be more affectionate with mother. Take financial chances.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Rely more upon what associates have to say instead of listening so much to outsiders—and you have better results. Reach for higher things.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Instead of worrying about the monetary side of your job so much, find the right new wrinkle that will make it better paying.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Test your ideas against your best judgment today instead of using intuition. Go for advice to those who have succeeded.

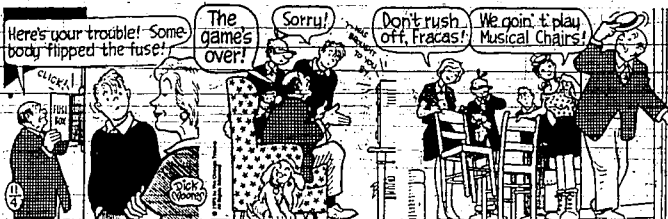

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Expand into better paying and more interesting new outlets. You can handle necessary routines later. Enjoy social in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day to handle monetary affairs since you could make serious mistakes, but fine for strengthening bonds with valuable friends.

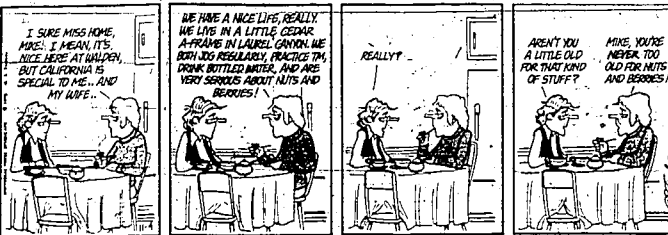

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Important to keep promises made to others, especially higher-ups. Study own ideas to decide whether they're as worthwhile as you think.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a born philosopher and should be taught religious and ethical training to make the most of this wonderful quality.

That facial feature which most girls would like to have changed is the shape of the nose. Or so the surveys have indicated, repeatedly. Artists recognize this fact, evidently. Q. "Do giraffes kick each other?"
A. Each other, no. They kick lions. When they fight each other, they stand side by side and take turns swinging their necks. Object of the swinger is to hit the swingee anywhere between the shoulder and ear. Object of the swingee is to duck.

Consider the 19 touch football teams of the state University of Birmingham, N.Y. Each must have three women and three men players. Each must use a woman as quarterback. Each must permit only a woman to throw a forward pass. Now, sir, if you don't think such a sport could become popular, how do you account for the fact that 500 players have signed up?

TWIN FALLS—There are three new marble champions in Twin Falls as a result of the annual marble tournament sponsored Saturday by the YMCA and Kiwanis Club. About 30 to 35 youngsters participated in the event for first through sixth grade pupils. Shooting rings were set up in the O'Leary Junior High School gymnasium for participants. First and second graders competed as did third and fourth and fifth and sixth. Champs for the various divisions included David Cornell, first and second grades; Shawn Hulman, third and fourth graders; and Kurt Henman—fifth and sixth graders. Ribbons were presented winners of each match and trophies to the winners of each division.

BOISE — People who pay taxes and some who make them will have the chance to meet at the 29th Annual Taxpayers Conference on Nov. 19 at the Ramada Inn, Boise.

Apples spiked with needles

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A box of Halloween apples and oranges spiked with razor blades, pins, needles and slivers of glass was found in the home of a 58-year-old woman who was arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. Police said the mother of two youngsters discovered the hardware-laden fruit in the children's Halloween bags Saturday. The youngsters led officers to the home of the unidentified woman. Investigators confiscated 12 apples and eight oranges at the home, all containing razor blades, pins and needles or slivers of glass.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Samuel Johnson, following the January, 1775, publication of his book Johnson, the Hebrides, wrote Boswell, "I am going to write about the American Revolution. I have read Johnson's book about the colonists' cause, and was compelled to state his own opinions. Boswell wrote to Johnson: 'I am ashamed to say that I have read and thought little on the subject of America... our government has been precipitant and severe in the resolutions taken against the Bostonians. Well do you know that I have no kindness for that race. But actions, or bodies of men, should have a fair trial.' The World Almanac notes.

TIMES-NEWS ANNUAL TOUR ... 10 FANTASTIC SUN-FILLED DAYS

IN FRENCH POLYNESIA TAHITI

DEPARTING FEBRUARY 11, 1976

Tahiti and the islands of French Polynesia provide an ideal setting for the 1976 Times-News Annual Tour. Hotels on the outer islands are bungalow-style, with white sand beaches that offer the traditional Tahitian way of life. The larger islands with major cities offer shopping, dining and nightlife to make this tour a perfect combination. This year's cost of $975.00 per person includes Round Trip air fare from Twin Falls to Tahiti (Economy Class), transfers from island to island, first class hotel accommodations throughout, baggage, portage, all tax and tips other than meals, and it's fully escorted for your convenience.

Ford-Reagan ticket said 'unlikely'

WASHINGTON — Ronald Reagan is unlikely now to become President Ford's 1976 running mate, according to Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho. McClure said he was "very much surprised" by Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's announcement Monday that he would not run with Ford for vice president next year.

Gov. Ronald Reagan now might become Ford's running mate, McClure said. "I don't think that's unlikely. I don't see a change in the governor's course of conduct, although it's possible." McClure said it is widely believed in Washington that Reagan will soon announce his candidacy to run against Ford for the Republican presidential nomination next year.

Other Idaho political leaders speculated the selection of a running mate for Ford would be thrown open to the 1976 party convention, according to United Press International.

Republican National Committee Chairman David Little of Emmett feels the announcement possibly was more a protocol act by Rockefeller than a hard decision to leave the ticket. "I think it is customary. I think it was a wise move on his part. I think he probably can be drafted, but it was to free him. It isn't traditional or necessary that the vice president follow the president." On the question of whether or not the decision would make a place for Reagan on the ticket, Little said "I think this will be up to the president to decide."

"If he feels it will strengthen his candidacy to have a more conservative candidate or more moderate one, that will be his decision." Republican State Senator Phil Batt of Wilder said "The Republican Party, being in a position of having both a vice president and a president to be are not elected, should be in a position to choose whoever they want at the convention. This should make it a little more wide open at the convention." He said that Vice President Rockefeller has served the country very well.

"I doubt very much that Reagan would accept the vice presidency," Batt said. "Perhaps it would tend to turn the convention a little more conservative."

Democratic Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said, "What the Republicans do in their selection process has nothing to do with what the Democrats do in their selection process for the presidency and vice presidency nominations."

"However, this obviously opens the door to the possibility of the president offering the vice-presidential slot to Ronald Reagan."

Former Sen. Len B. Jordan, a Republican, said he does not know what effect the decision will have on the party. "It leaves it wide open for grabs," Jordan said. "I think it will help the party with conservatives. There was a good deal of opposition to Rockefeller from conservatives and a good deal of support from liberals. There's a question in my mind: there's no clear-cut decision here."

Asked if he thought Rockefeller's difference in opinion with the president on how to handle New York's financial problems could have influenced the decision, Jordan said Rockefeller as a former Governor of New York "couldn't have any other position."

Judge denies new trial, but OK's motion for pleas

BOISE (UPI) — Fourth District Judge J. Ray Durtachi refused Monday to allow a new hearing for convicted murderer Thomas Eugene Creech but granted a motion to hear pleas Dec. 4 to set aside his conviction.

Durtachi said he could find no reason to allow a new trial as requested by Defense Attorney Bruce D. Robinson of Nampa, who argued that he was denied introduction of Satanical evidence and prospective jurors were excused because they were against capital punishment.

The judge also denied a motion for a new counsel. Robinson argued to continue the case would be too costly.

Creech had been scheduled for sentencing Monday to the double-slaying of a year ago of two southern itinerants John Wayne Bradford, 31, and Edward Thomas Arpold, 31, whose bodies were found near Donnelly, Idaho.

Durtachi said that all ground previously had been considered. He said he would have to deny the new trial in "all respects."

Robinson said over his objection he was not able to produce evidence that Creech believed in the Satanical Bible. He also said there were challenges of jurors because they didn't believe in capital punishment.

Argument against a new trial Valley County

Prosecutor Robert Remakus said the Satanical Bible was not admitted because it was "not relevant."

He also disagreed with Robinson's contention that his client should receive a new trial because he, the detector, evidence had not been allowed. Remakus said "no precedent" had been set accepting polygraph evidence in Idaho.

Remakus asked that the motion be denied and Durtachi agreed.

If Creech goes to the gallows, he will be the first person to be executed in Idaho since Oct. 28, 1957, when Raymond Allen Snowden was hanged for the murder of a Garden City woman.

Last week Creech said he prefers death to a life in prison, although he vowed that "they'll have a tough time getting me up on the gallows." But he said if there was no chance for help in prison or to get out, "I'd rather get hung and get it over."

Should a new trial be denied, the death penalty is automatic.

A special gallows will have to be provided at the new prison site. There were no provisions for a gallows at the new penitentiary when it was built. At the time of its construction, the U.S. Supreme Court had struck down the death penalty.

GOP liberal challenge seen as Rocky quits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Rockefeller's withdrawal as a possible running mate opens the way for a liberal Republican challenge of President Ford, Rep. George Hansen said Monday.

"While the Ford campaign has been fighting bravely against a Reagan challenge for the nomination which has to some degree pulled his administration rightward, dissatisfied liberal Republicans have been smarting under such incidents as the Calloway statements regarding Rockefeller and their strong opposition to the Ford approach to saving New York City," he said.

Hansen said Rockefeller could have felt he was getting nowhere with an uncertain Ford ticket "and would be better off free to run for president himself, with the possibility of profiting by a Ford-Reagan split of conservative Republicans."

"The said two significant incidents have appeared recently showing the surface of the liberal effort."

"The first was a visit by liberal Republican members of Congress to the president, requesting his change of posture in the left and the second, just last week, came from some of those same individuals declaring a possible effort and candidacy against the president's re-election," he said.

Search continues

KALISPELL, Mont. (UPI) — Winds approached 70 miles per hour Monday as the search continued unsuccessfully for a light airplane believed down in the Glacier National Park area.

Missing were pilot Donald, Donovan and passenger, Kathy See, both of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

The Montana Aeronautics Division managed to get one search plane into the air, but turbulence and clouds on both sides of the Continental Divide hampered the effort. A division spokesman said also that the late model white Beechcraft is difficult to see in the snowy, timbered mountains.

Donovan and See left Coeur d'Alene Saturday and were expected later that day in Shelby, Mont., to pick up See's sister.

Gem tax evasion limits set forth

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Attorney General issued an opinion Monday saying the penalties imposed by Idaho laws for attempting to evade the payment of county taxes are limited to years not barred by the statute of limitations.

Ada County Prosecutor David Leroy asked Kidwell for opinions on the laws which took effect this year requiring the county assessor to prepare an owner, who attempts to evade taxation by doubling the assessment of the property when the property is discovered.

The statute requires the double assessment in cases where the evasion took place "for the current year, or the preceding year or years" which Leroy said seems to be in conflict with another statute saving the taxes will not be subject to assessment or collection at any time after the second calendar year following the year for which such tax is imposed.

Kidwell said the 1975 amendment applies only to property assessed after July 1, 1975, and therefore applies only to property placed on the subsequent roll and personal property assessed between July 1 and July 7, 1975.
