Judge orders respirator unplugged
HILO, Hawaii (UPI) — A respirator attached to the body of a woman in a coma has been shut off on the order of a judge.
The judge accepted the decision of a majority of doctors that the woman, who had apparently taken an overdose of drugs two weeks ago, was dead although some body functions were being sustained by the respirator.
The "plug was pulled" Monday shortly after the court ruling.

AMC, the smallest of the four companies, said it sold 10,183 cars in the Nov. 11-20 period, compared with 7,171 last year. For the year to date, however, AMC sales of 201,214 cars still are 7 per cent below the 317,629 cars sold through Nov. 20 last year.

The charges accuse the governor of 20 counts of mail fraud and 2 of "prohibited activity." The grand jury which returned the indictment is continuing an investigation which led to resignation of Spiro T. Agnew as vice president.

Secret auto warranty program hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer group today claimed Ford and General Motors agreed at least 34 "secret warranty" programs under which they will pay for correcting defects only if their customers complain loudly enough.
The Center for Auto Safety released the details of several of the programs — all most all of which it said were operated by Ford — and urged consumers to take their cases to small claims courts to get adjustments made.
There was no immediate response from either company.

TF Council backs plan completion

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls City Council have hired a team of consultants to complete the county's unfinished comprehensive plan.
A team from J-U-B Engineers approached the council Monday with a proposal for completing the plan left unfinished when the City-County Joint Planning Council fired planner David Richey.

Big bang due for Uncle Sam

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls plans to celebrate the 200th birthday anniversary of the United States with a big bang — a $5,000 fireworks display.
But not as big a bang as the fireworks company suggested.
The council, at a luncheon meeting Monday, agreed to budget about $5,000 for a Fourth of July fireworks show lasting 30 to 40 minutes.
Northwest Display, the fireworks suppliers, had suggested a three-day show costing about $11,000 but the council balked at the expense.
The fireworks display will be part of a city-wide three-day celebration in honor of the bicentennial. Twin Falls once had a yearly fireworks display on the Fourth of July but stopped the tradition several years ago.
Festivities for the celebration will be held at the College of Southern Idaho campus. Plans call for dances, plays, music by Old Time Fiddlers, art exhibits and other events.
The council hopes to solicit donations from other governmental entities, businesses and civic groups for the fireworks display. If enough donations are received, another day of fireworks may be set, members agreed.
Mayor Winston Jones said he felt the event was a special occasion to warrant the $5,000 show. "1976 comes only once in 200 years," he said. "I don't think we're overspending here."
The actual price for the fireworks display would be about $4,700, according to the proposal made to the City Council by Northwest Display. There would be 238 charges shot off during the show.
Council member Leon Smith said he favored the show but added, "That's a lot of money that'd buy a lot of sidewalks."

hearing stage by March 15, the engineers told the council.
Making the presentation were Dale Hiedesell, Larry Sale and Mike Wardle. The men have already discussed the proposal with the Joint Planning Council which favors the consultant approach, and the county commissioners.
Newly-elected City Council member Chris Talkington asked the three men if they felt there would be any conflict of interest in their taking on the completion of the comprehensive plan.
J-U-B Engineers represents developers and many small businesses in the Magic Valley.
Sale replied, "Mike and I are professional people," adding, "I don't know any of the developers here in town personally."
Sale said, "I think that we can avoid that problem."
"You're at a rather inopportune time to be without planning assistance," Sale told the council. The plan is nearly complete, but must be finished before the "data base" becomes outdated, Sale said.

California fire lines extended

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI) — Firefighters had a line today around about 60 per cent of a brush fire that earlier sent thousands of residents scurrying for safety across a 15-mile front and destroyed about 200 suburban homes.
Hot Santa Ana winds out of the desert, which whipped the flames Monday down hillsides and into residential neighborhoods, subsided today and firemen mounted a ground and aerial assault on the fire's southern line.
A gigantic smoke cloud hung over the Los Angeles Basin for the second day, filtering the usually bright morning sun to a twilight glow. Motorists used headlights at midday. Monday amid a rain of ashes "like snowflakes."
Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. declared the first state of emergency of his term. Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., appealed to President Ford for federal aid against "the terrible fire now raging in the Los Angeles area."

With nearly 2,000 federal, state and local firefighters battling back before the flames whipped by hot winds from the Mojave desert gusting up to 60 miles per hour, home owners mounted individual defenses.
Standing with garden hoses atop homes surrounded by flames, they alternately doused themselves and flaming roofs. Some won. Some lost.
"When I saw my neighbor's houses go up, I thought 'I had it,'" said George Mason. "A fireman kept hollering at me to leave, but I decided no."
A three-hour fight saved his home in the High way Highlands, which had a hole burned in the roof, although both neighboring houses burned to the ground.

The worst fire, the Tujunga Canyon blaze, had consumed 43,000 acres by Monday night, burning 43 structures and sending 3,000 people fleeing. Nineteen houses valued at up to $50,000 or more burned to the ground Monday as the fire roared down the mountains into the Angeles National Forest and into the outskirts of Glendale and the suburbs of the eastern San Francisco Valley.
"It looks like an ameba spreading out in all directions," said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Jim Uferwagner. The blaze leaped from ridge to ridge on an irregular front about 15 miles long and 5 miles deep. The Red Cross set up four refugee centers in schools.

The U.S. Forest Service prepared a fleet of 26 and tankers, "flying water barrels," to be thrown into the fight today. They included Air Force reserve and Air National Guard planes, ranging from World War II vintage B17s to the big C130s that drop 3,000 gallons of fire retardant on each bombing mission.

Strong winds kept most of the planes grounded Monday. "The hell of it is you've got to get down to about 100 feet to do any good," said one firefighting pilot. "And in that kind of 'monsoon country' with the wind up to 50 knots and variable, you'd lose every plane and chopper you got."
A second major blaze in the Angeles National Forest, about 30 miles to the east, raced through 10,000 acres in the Mt. Baldy area on the Los Angeles-San Bernardino county line. An estimated 400 persons were evacuated and two cabins and a $3,000 home destroyed.

Fromme jury deliberates

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The jury in the Lynette Fromme trial today deliberated whether the Manson cultist assisted or attempted to assassinate President Ford with a .45-caliber automatic pistol at point-blank range.
The freckle-faced defendant, who has refused to participate in a month of her trial, was carried from a car into a courthouse holding cell by a U.S. marshal.

If convicted of attempted murder, she will face a term of life imprisonment. If found guilty of assault, she will face a maximum term of 10 years behind bars.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacHride ordered the jury, which worked on the case for five hours Monday, to decide the attempted assassination charge first. Only if the jurors agreed she was innocent of that charge would they deal with the assault issue.
"We would hope you would have a verdict by Thanksgiving," he told the jury, which has been sequestered since Nov. 3.

Defense attorney John Virga closed his case Monday by arguing the 27-year-old woman, a mass murderer Charles Manson did not intend to shoot Ford Sept. 5, but wanted to publicize her fanatic environmentalist, anti-industrial views.
"Miss Fromme rejected Virga's advice and refused to take the witness stand in her own behalf. She has boycotted the proceedings since Nov. 7, when she was ejected in an outburst over the failure to subpoena Manson to testify.
In an unusual appeal to the eight-woman, four-man jury, Virga said: "I'm telling you now that you should find her guilty of assault of a President because that is what she did. She did not act with intent to kill the President."
But U.S. Attorney Dwayne Kyles called for a verdict of guilty to the charge of attempting to assassinate the President, who was gassing a crowd of well-wishers in state Capitol park at the time of the incident.

Lisbon ruler orders alert

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — President Francisco de Costa Gomes declared a state of emergency in Portugal and placed all troops on a "war alert" today to combat a "spreading rebellion" launched by leftist paratroopers.
The rebels invaded and grabbed control of four major air bases and took several senior officers prisoner without bloodshed to demand the creation of a far left government. Other troops joined them and secured television and radio stations and outlets of the mass media.
The president called the rebellion "an attempted coup d'etat" and vowed to smash it.
The capital's Communist-controlled unions called an immediate general strike and urged their militants to gain control of all public works, such as water and electricity plants, and all mass media outlets. Reports circulated that a leftist light artillery regiment on the edge of the capital was handing out guns to civilian radicals.
The far left newspaper Republica quoted sources as saying the rebels were being supported by military security chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho.

Big Wood ski area project stopped

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer
KETCHUM — The U.S. Forest Service has decided to stop further development of the troubled Big Wood ski area 16 miles north of Ketchum.
Termination of a special-use permit which allowed development of the 2,700-acre project will be announced officially Wednesday by the forest service.
Developers of the Big Wood ski area will have 45 days to respond to the forest service termination of the special-use permit.
Spranger Land Investment Inc. said the company can change the forest service's position, the Big Wood ski project will be indefinitely suspended as of Jan. 7.
The forest service decided to withdraw the special-use permit for the Big Wood ski area because an environmental study showed the project would stimulate too much growth in the Ketchum area.
The forest service also questioned the economic stability of the project in light of continued development by Sun Valley of its Bald Mountain ski facilities.

Ed Fournier, Sawtooth Forest supervisor, said "termination of the special-use permit will not necessarily eliminate further ski area development. If at some future time, it would be in the public interest to have the Big Wood development, the forest service would be available."
Spranger Land Investment Inc., known as Big Wood, planned to put six new lifts from Spruce Creek to Butterfield Creek at the site opposite the Russian John Ranger Station.
The project was started in 1972, but was stopped in 1973 by a national directive from the chief of the forest service, stating all new development would require an environmental impact study.
Big Wood holds special-use permits on 1,600 acres, 20 per cent of which was slated for ski runs. The total 2,744 acres included all possible expansion.
The company had plans to construct a lodge near the highway with parking for 500 cars.
Spranger Land Investment Inc. was awarded the bid for the ski proposal and the permit to 80 acres in October of 1970. Spranger Investment Inc. cleared some timber in 1973 for two of the proposed runs and had a considerable amount of money in the project, according to reliable sources.

Fournier said "information contained within comments played a major role in the determination that the Big Wood development should not be pursued at this time." The conclusions by the forest service indicated development now would stimulate growth in Ketchum and surrounding areas which could not be accommodated.
The forest service concluded the Blaine County Comprehensive Plan and Ketchum Action Plan could be completed before approval of a development of the magnitude proposed.
The economic stability of proposed development was also questioned. Fournier said, "There is not now a clear demonstration for the Big Wood ski area, at the time of the permit issuance in 1970, that it would be an obvious need in the Wood Lake area for additional ski facilities; ski runs and areas with a longer season snow pack."
"The need has been partially satisfied through the new or enlarged facilities at Elkhorn, Bald Mountain and Soldier Mountain.

New York court upholds state's no-fault law

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The state's highest court today upheld New York's no-fault automobile insurance law.

The Court of Appeals, in a unanimous decision, overturned a State Supreme Court Justice's ruling that the state's no-fault provisions of the state and U.S. constitutions guaranteeing equal protection under the law and the right to a jury trial.

The high court ruled the law, which was passed by the 1973 legislature and went into full effect Feb. 1, 1974, "does not deprive the victim of a right of redress protected by the due process clause of either our state or the federal constitution."

Essentially, the no-fault law allows an injured motorist or passenger to collect up to $50,000 from the motorist's own insurance company, regardless of who was at fault in an accident. Injured persons have the right to sue to recover medical and related expenses over $50,000.

The law also provides that a person whose medical expenses after an accident do not exceed $500 cannot bring a court suit.

The case involved a number of Brooklyn residents who were injured in four separate traffic accidents.

In none of the cases did medical expenses exceed $500, and thus they were prevented from suing. It was this prohibition that they challenged.

State Supreme Court Justice George H. Nicola of Brooklyn, who was later killed in an automobile accident, ruled that the law deprived the injured persons of their rights and was unconstitutional.

The decision overturning Nicola's ruling was written by Associate Appeals Court Judge Hugh R. Jones.

'Shun' ban sought

CARLEISLE, Pa. (UPI) — Robert Bear has shown he is more than just a simple potato farmer whose wife and six children deserted him because he challenged his church.

During four hours of testimony Monday, Bear emerged as a victim of his own complex — and sometimes violent emotions — a man torn between love for his family and the desire to destroy the Reformed Mennonite Church.

The trial has been recessed until Wednesday.

Bear has asked Cumberland County Judge Clinton to ban "shunning" — the 100-year-old practice of ostracism the Mennonite church uses to punish members who have broken church rules.

Bear contends his wife, Gale, denied him social and sexual contact to try to force him to repent. He said when he refused, she turned their six children against him.

Bear faced an audience packed with his supporters and church members who were distinguished by their black hats, bow ties and "plain suits" or drab floor-length dresses and gray bonnets.

During his testimony Bear was both defiant and compassionate, angry and on the verge of tears.

Belknap yields 3 bodies

PRIOLO, Sicily (UPI) — Crewman of the collision-crippled guided missile cruiser USS Belknap said today the bodies of three missing men had been found in the vessel's superstructure wreckage, raising the crash death toll to seven.

A Sixth Fleet spokesman could not immediately confirm the unofficial report but he said earlier that two of four men being sought had been found — one dead and one alive.

The Belknap and the U.S. aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy collided Saturday in the Ionian Sea off the Sicilian coast during night flying exercises.

According to Belknap crewmen, searchers recovered the bodies of three men who had been playing poker or were about to join the game on the deck just below the bridge.

They said the fourth man believed missing had been mistakenly unloaded during muster but was unhurt.

The spokesman said 21 of 47 men injured were hospitalized at the U.S. Navy hospital in Naples and 10 at the U.S. Air Force hospital in Landstuhl, West Germany, which specializes in burns treatment.

The other 35 men returned to duty after receiving medical attention.

U.S. Rear Adm. Don Engen flew to the Kennedy to lead the investigation into the collision, which Navy sources said could have been triggered by failure of the Belknap's hydraulic steering system.

The ships crashed during night exercises in the Ionian Sea 70 miles off Sicily's east coast. The angled flight deck of the 77,000-ton Kennedy America's largest conventional aircraft carrier, sheared off the bridge of the 7,000-ton Belknap, touching off fires.

As the ship approached this Sicilian port town 26 hours after the accident, the Belknap's crew — tired, dirty and still stunned — ran up the American flag.

"The crew was great, beautiful. They really fought for their ship," said Lt. Cmdr. J. Nuzum of Vermont, U.S. Navy, a port liaison officer.

Navy sources said the Belknap was on standby rescue duty in case any of the planes landing on the Kennedy went into the sea during maneuvers, when it suddenly began steering erratically.

According to crewmen, the cruiser came across the bow of the Kennedy, which veered to starboard to avoid it, but the ships collided port to port.

Canyon bill draws blast

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. George Hansen was criticized today for passage of a bill authorizing a Hells Canyon National Recreation Area.

He says the bill was passed hastily in the House and that effort will now be required to repair the situation.

Passage of the Hells Canyon bill, which Hansen says he opposed because no hearings were held in Idaho by the House committee, now awaits action by the President.

Hansen says there is no evidence the President will not sign it into law.

'Cod war' escalates

LONDON (UPI) — Britain has ordered the Royal Navy into the new "cod war" with Iceland and the frigate HMS Leopard is already on the scene to protect British trawlers from harassment by Icelandic gunboats, the government said today.

A statement issued by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office said the measure was ordered to "effect an official navy presence" in the disputed fishing grounds off Iceland.

It said more gunboats would be sent to Icelandic waters if required to keep the British trawler fleet free from interference by the Icelandic navy.

The announcement followed a cabinet meeting faced with an ultimatum from trawler skippers that they would pull out of the new 200-mile fishing limit set unilaterally by Iceland.

The new dispute erupted with the Nov. 13 expiration of an agreement between Britain and Iceland on British fishing off Iceland.

Detroit sniper's binge ends in fire, suicide

DETROIT (UPI) — A sniper firing from a top-floor hotel room killed a grocery store clerk who was pulling two women out of the line of fire and wounded two policemen late Monday. Then he apparently committed suicide during a fire ignited by police bullets and tear gas.

The place was an inferno, a policeman at the scene said. "There was no way for the guy to get out."

Police identified the sniper as Paul Dawson, 28, a Vietnam veteran who lived alone at the hotel. They said Dawson apparently shot himself as fire swept the hotel.

Police said Dawson apparently died in the room that served as a vantage point for the shootings. His body and an army carbine were found in a third-floor room after firemen extinguished the blaze.

Police said Gerald "Cowboy" North, who also lived in the hotel and worked parttime as a store clerk and porter, was killed by the sniper's bullets as he dashed into the street under fire to pull two women to safety.

Witnesses said North was shot in the chest just after he pulled the two women out of the line of fire.

Patrolmen Al Krassich, 30, and Arne Joux, 28, were wounded as they stepped from a squad car to answer an emergency call from the grocery store where North was killed.

They were listed in "temporary serious" condition with bullet wounds in the legs.

Police said they were unable to determine how the shooting started.

Witnesses said there were about a dozen persons in the street when the firing erupted.

A half dozen other residents of the hotel, the Lincoln Hotel, were evacuated, as about 100 police wearing bulletproof vests and gas masks began pouring fire into the upper floor in an attempt to flush out the sniper.

Secret testimony OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will allow intelligence officials to testify about CIA involvement in Chilean politics, but only in secret, the White House says.

The Senate Intelligence Committee, which last week released a report on CIA assassination plots over administration objections, plans hearings next week on what role the United States played in efforts to prevent the election of Marxist Salvador Allende in 1970 and the successful coup that overthrew him in 1973.

Asked about a CBS News report that CIA and other intelligence officials were directed not to testify in public sessions scheduled next week, a White House spokesman said, "The President directed administration officials who had knowledge of the Chilean operations to cooperate fully with the Church committee and to testify in executive session."

Asked why they would not be allowed to testify in open session, the spokesman said the President "wants to keep the information controlled in some responsible manner."

Witnesses said there were about a dozen persons in the street when the firing erupted.

A half dozen other residents of the hotel, the Lincoln Hotel, were evacuated, as about 100 police wearing bulletproof vests and gas masks began pouring fire into the upper floor in an attempt to flush out the sniper.

Cleveland policies scored

CLEVELAND (UPI) — City school officials have deliberately set policies which resulted in segregated schools, a situation which can only be remedied by busing students, an NAACP attorney charged Monday in an integration suit.

But school board attorney Charles F. Clarke said school officials have taken every step but reassignment of students to eliminate segregation in the schools, caused by housing patterns.

Chief Federal Judge Frank J. Battisti today was to begin hearing evidence in the NAACP's suit charging Cleveland public school officials with promoting segregated classrooms.

NAACP lawyer Nathaniel R. Jones, in his opening statement before Battisti, who is hearing the case without a jury, charged school boards since 1960 had "deliberately and purposefully made decisions which resulted in segregated schools."

US aid ruling faces delay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even if New York City raises taxes by $200 million, President Ford will delay deciding whether to approve federal aid to the city, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said today.

Ford will want to see whether New York's banks and unions cooperate before deciding whether he can support federal aid to keep the city from going into default next month, Simon said.

But Simon agreed for the first time that even if all elements cooperate in Gov. Hugh Carey's plan to avert default the city "might have a cash flow problem" which can only be solved with federal aid.

In that case, whatever aid Ford agrees to provide "would be very short term in nature," Simon said.

Simon was interviewed on the CBS Morning News.

The New York legislature was trying again today to take action on a proposal which would authorize the city to raise taxes.

Medics ratify contract

CHICAGO — Interns and residents at Cook County Hospital have voted 8-0-1 to ratify the contract reached after an 18-day strike, the longest physicians' strike in the nation's history.

The vote was 301 to 37.

Dr. Keyin Geraghty and five other strike leaders who are serving 10-day sentences at Cook County Jail announced results of the vote last night within the jail's Work Release Center.

The doctors were sentenced on contempt charges for disobeying a court order to return to work. They are appealing the sentences while serving them.

Moynihan sticks to UN post

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Daniel Moynihan, assured of President Ford's "complete confidence," has agreed to stay at his U.N. post — at least for the time being.

Moynihan, under sharp criticism from fellow U.N. diplomats and on the brink of resigning last week, paid a whirlwind visit to Washington Monday for a White House meeting with Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said later Moynihan was not expected to resign, "in the foreseeable future." He said Ford and Kissinger urged the ambassador "to continue to speak out candidly and forcefully on major issues."

"The President wants it clearly understood that Ambassador Moynihan has his complete confidence," Nessen said.

On his return from Washington Moynihan issued a statement saying Ford and Kissinger said they were pleased with "the way we have been conducting ourselves" at the U.S. Mission.

"They asked me to stay and to continue what we have been doing," he said. "On that basis, I have, of course, agreed."

Moynihan drew a storm of criticism from African diplomats in September when he described Ugandan President Idi Amin as a "racist murderer," and said it was "no accident" that the African leader headed the Organization of African Unity.

He also drew sharp rebukes for a statement that "decent" nations voted against the General Assembly's recent resolution equating Zionism with racism.

Trade rules eased

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has further eased trade restrictions against Cuba.

The Commerce Department Monday announced new regulations which permit Western Hemisphere countries or companies to sell goods to Cuba, provided U.S. made parts or materials compose no more than 20 percent of their value.

Previously, the United States would not license export of materials expected to be used in foreign goods sold to Cuba.

The relaxation applies only to non-strategic materials manufactured in countries which are members of the Organization of American States.

The goods in which the U.S. material is used must be manufactured outside the United States, the department said.

Pentagon tightens tip policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon has tightened its policy against accepting gratuities from defense contractors and expanded the number of military men who must submit financial interest statements.

"These changes will strengthen" the Pentagon's code of conduct "to the point where there shouldn't be any question as to the Defense Department's policy on acceptance of gratuities or other questionable transactions between our military and civilian personnel and major defense contractors," Deputy Defense Secretary William P. Clements Jr. said Monday.

Clements said language was deleted from the military "standards of conduct" directive which permitted:

- "Customary exchange of social amenities between personal friends and relatives when motivated by such relationships and extended on a personal basis."
- "Transactions between and among relatives which are personal and consistent with the relationships."

A spokesman said those provisions had been abused, and so were removed from the directive.

Will Jimmy Carter beat Wallace in Florida?

ORLANDO, Fla. — The prospect of little Jimmy Carter, the former governor of Georgia, being transformed into the giant-killer who humiliates George Wallace in the Florida presidential primary is preposterous — but not quite so preposterous as it was early this year. Indeed, even though no sane Democrat would bet a plugged nickel on Carter's humiliation of Wallace in the March 9 Democratic primary election here, events seem to be conspiring in such a way as to deliver maximum political dividends for Carter. Most important is the fact that no other Democrat — with the inconspicuous exception of Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, an almost invisible dark horse — has shown the slightest interest in a statewide race against Gov. Wallace of Alabama here. To the contrary, even Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who is expected to run delegates in selected congressional districts — mainly Miami with its large pro-Jackson American Jewish community — is not yet regarded as a serious factor except in Miami's Dade County. This, almost by luck of the draw, Carter has a favored track position which other Democratic presidential candidates in years past have often striven for but seldom achieved: a virtual two-man race against Wallace and his hard-core but quite inelastic force of supporters.

In 1972 winner Wallace got less than 42 per cent of the vote in the presidential primary here, despite the highly emotional pull of an anti-busing provision on the ballot. Most Democrats and many Republican leaders here perceive Wallace at best as holding onto just about that same strength next March, with no sure way to measure whether his paralysis will hurt or help him politically. Another 42 per cent of that 1972 vote was distributed among three other candidates, each of them to the left of George Wallace: Hubert Humphrey, Jackson and Edmund Muskie.

On the far left, the strongest showing was made by Sen. George McGovern with a meager 6 per cent of the total vote cast. Neutral Democrats doubt that Wallace will be able to pick up more than scattered votes from among the 1972 non-Wallace voters. If true, and if these same non-Wallace voters of 1972 actually go to the polls, they may well vote for the candidate who has campaigned tirelessly for their support — Jimmy Carter.

That theory is by no means ironclad. Under Florida's presidential primary election law, Secretary of State Bruce Smathers must place every probable 1976 presidential candidate on the ballot unless an affidavit of non-candidacy is filed.

That means the huge bloc of non-Wallace voters could vote for any of the 1976 candidates on the ballot, including Jackson. But since Jackson got only 13.5 per cent of the vote in 1972 despite a major campaign, it is unlikely he would get many more votes in March without a full-fledged effort.

That explains why Carter's relentless campaign here (he has been in the state 22 separate times since last Jan. 20) may pay rich dividends and why he ran away with 70 per cent of the straw vote taken last weekend at the first state convention of the long-decrepit Democratic party in 73 years.

Carter's other asset is the proximity of his home state, running some 300 miles along the north Florida border. Postwar Georgia peanut farmer Carter talks the same language as the conservative farmers of north Florida.

No Democrat in the swollen presidential field is so low-key as Jimmy Carter, who wears a perpetual half-smile and predicts that the 1976 nominee will emerge from the primaries and not from any dead-end convention in New York City next summer.

At a coffee-and-doughnut rally in Lakeland early one morning last week, 150 local Democrats heard Carter's soft-voiced political pitch, which defies precise ideological definition. Carter combines a liberal idiom with some hard-line positions that are anathema to the left, including denial of the right to strike for public employes, unions, and the death penalty for certain capital crimes.

He is campaigning to win here — although he won't admit to being an "anti-Wallace" candidate — in a two-step campaign he thinks will decide the Democratic nominee next summer: first, beat Wallace in this head-to-head contest; second, win in an early non-Southern state against liberal opposition.

If Carter succeeds in step one in Florida's third-in-the-nation primary, step two will look possible, despite Carter's shadowy standing with the controlling liberal Democrats who remember him as the man who nominated Jackson for President in 1972 and who courted Wallace in 1970.

Americans seek higher quality

There may be some sweeping value shifts taking place in the land, if pollster Louis Harris has accurately taken the American pulse.

Harris gave a talk to Republican governors meeting in Wichita in which he told us the commonly felt things about the loss of confidence in the presidency and in business. Nothing surprising or new there.

But then he turned to his recent survey of American values, with some surprising results. His conclusion: Americans seem to be seeking quality, not quantity.

Item: By a 34 margin, Americans say the trouble with most leaders is that they don't understand that the people want better quality instead of more quantity.

Item: 90 per cent said they were willing to do away with changing clothing fashion every year.

Item: 92 per cent were willing to eliminate Detroit's annual model changes in automobiles.

Item: A majority was willing to go meatless one day a week and 73 per cent were even willing to prohibit building larger houses with extra rooms seldom used.

In Harris' view "These are radical findings by any measure for they mean the age of materialism as we know it is going to be radically altered."

After observing that Americans have a deep suspicion and distrust for leaders, he concluded "The gulf between the people and its leadership has rarely been so wide or deep."

If Harris is accurate in his assessment, then public leaders should begin reassessing the goals they help set for the nation. Considerations of the 'quality of life' would then become more important.

Can Spain's king restore democracy?

The transition of power in Spain from Franco to Juan Carlos is far more interesting than the average instance when a chief of state hands the reins to his chosen successor.

It is a historic transition from dictatorship to a constitutional monarchy.

Behind that change is the deeply felt need to remove the stain of illegitimacy that had accrued to Franco's strong-arm Fascist rule with a new, legitimate government that could be socially acceptable among modern nations.

The old Spanish dictator has been treated like a moral leper among world leaders. He yearned for but did not produce a son who could assume power without the stain that never left the old man's shoulders.

Finally, he turned to the grandson of the last Spanish king, a member of the ruling Borbon family, as a successor.

Ironically for Franco, King Juan Carlos now wishes to draw upon his legitimacy to move the country toward a modern constitutional monarchy and away from military rule. He seeks to serve as a strong figurehead while returning self rule to the Spanish people in a system similar to Britain's.

But to do so he will have to successfully remove the gaggle of Fascist friends and associates left behind after Franco's death.

And he must somehow do this without driving the nation into another Spanish Civil War.

We wish King Juan Carlos luck.

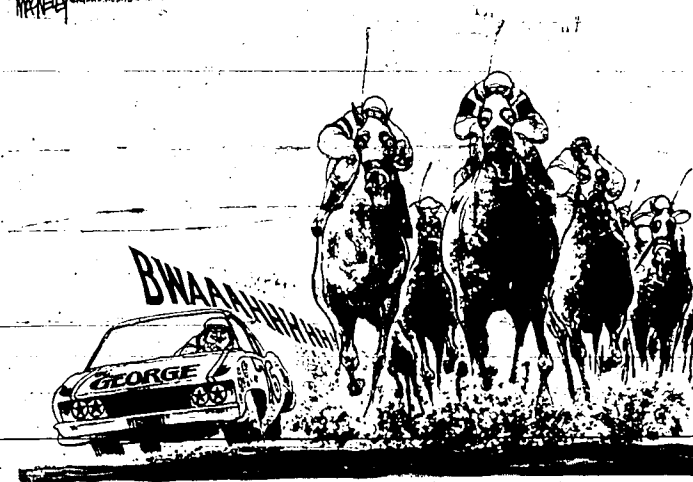

A reformist in Spain will need all the luck he can find, even if he is a legitimate king.

Manpower agency given new name

WASHINGTON — Women who know who they are will note with amused contempt that the name of the Manpower Administration is now the Employment and Training Administration.

The sensible, bill-paying citizenry is lucky. Employment and Training Administration is not a bad name for what Labor Secretary John Dunlop describes as an outfit "which is the nation's focal point for employment and training programs of all citizens."

And, in Washington, of course, everything could always have been worse. The agency's new name was chosen from a variety of suggestions, including one that would have billed it as the "Personpower Administration."

At any rate, Dunlop notes with apparent satisfaction that the new name "removes any reference to gender and thus better characterizes the organization."

I suppose Dunlop is right in that the agency also serves women, but was the name change really that important? Arriving at the proper new name consumed employees' time and, presumably, what passes for thought in bureaucratic circles. New stationery must be bought with the taxpayers' money. Must "any reference to gender" always be removed from governmental activities simply because the country is under siege by a mob of insecure hags seeking liberation from God knows what?

The answer, temporarily I hope, appears to be yes. Before its own name-changing act, the old Manpower Administration had decreed that firemen henceforth be known as firefighters and fishermen as fishers. The poor country by now is they have proved they can handle big jobs, and they're still prettier than most men — a fact honest females will admit is an asset at work as well as at play.

Besides, this sexless bit is getting a touch confusing. I was reading a piece on Patty Hearst the other day in a newspaper that had adopted the surname-only practice for both sexes. Halfway through the piece, Patty seemed to be saying something that suggested she was a male person. However, I checked back and found that the Hearst quoted obviously was her father.

I also noticed that certain females are more equal than others. Another newspaper that uses surnames only published a long account of Caroline Kennedy's close call in a bombing incident in London and referred to her throughout as "Miss" Kennedy.

The President's wife, I'm glad to discover, is still "Mrs." and so is Happy Rockefeller. But I am not so sure an exception should be made in Caroline Kennedy's case. The Kennedy family just seems to be royalty.

There is, to be sure, some sanity to be found in the world of women as expressed in a letter to the editor of the Washington Star (from a wonderful female who signs herself Zelma A. McCann (Mrs. Homer E. McCann)).

In part, Mrs. McCann writes: "I know who I am and have never felt the need to be liberated. Before I retired, I was a respected and very well-paid teacher, but I certainly never was called McCann and I'd better not be now!"

Brava, Mrs. McCann! You give me strength to fight on against those forces who would alter the famous passage in Donne's "Devotions" to read "I am involved in personkind."

Politic movements are like bad summer colds. Some are more serious than others; some linger on and on; but they all go away in time. Congress, I am not mistaken, is getting down to its last sniffling of consumerism. The virus has almost run its course.

This has been a long one. Those of us who chart congressional chills and fevers can recall few viruses as stubborn. Foreign-aid-hung-on-like a smoker's cough. After the Russian Sputnik, Congress came down with a terrible case of scientificism, while the affliction persisted, any bill that wore a white coat was sure to pass. After scientificism came egalitarianism — civil rights, equal opportunity, all of that Environmentalism was next.

In each case, Congress recovered slowly. If a vote that was taken in the House on November 6 is as significant as I think it is, recovery from the excesses of consumerism is now proceeding apace. A few more sneezes and the worst will be over.

Drop the metaphor. The bill before the House that Thursday afternoon was the Consumer Protection Act of 1975. This was the House version of a measure ringerly passed in the Senate some months ago. In either version, the purpose was the same — to create a new federal agency with power to act as advocate for whatever the administrator conceived to be "the interests of consumers." The bill was also known as the Ralph Nader Bill.

Before the afternoon was over, the House passed the bill. If the fact alone were all that counted, Mr. Nader could claim a victory. But the vote on passage was only 208 to 199. A switch of five votes would have killed the measure then and there. No matter, the bill is dead anyhow. President Ford promised a veto, and proponents could not possibly win on a vote to override.

Take a look again at the vote of 208 to 199. A year ago, when a much tougher bill came to the floor, the House favored it by 221 to 94. What a sea change! This time around, only 158 Democrats and 20 Republicans could be found in favor. Eighty Democrats and 119 Republicans voted no. And among those 80 Democrats who voted no were 20 of those famous 75 freshmen elected to the House in the Republican debacle of November 1974.

What goes on here? The consumerism movement had been creeping along under full canvas — Mr. Nader could point to a string of victories: food labeling, cigarette warnings, flammable fabrics, safe toys, all-meat hotdogs, the Consumer Product Safety Commission. The Consumer Protection Act of 1975 was to provide the ultimate trophy. Now the wind has leaked out of his sails and his boat lies dead in the water.

What happened, I suspect, is that Congress wet its finger to a different wind — Congress heard from the folks back home. The message was unmistakable: Get Big Government off our backs! The people are fed to their ears with bureaucracy in every form. In small towns and large, newspaper editorials accurately reflected the voters' rebellion. The Consumer Protection Act is dead because consumers do not want to be "protected" — not in the meddlesome ways this bill proposed.

Reagan supporters form Gem campaign committee

BOISE (UPI) — Ronald Reagan's campaign for the presidency officially arrived in Idaho Monday with the formation of a Citizens for Reagan committee headed by Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell.

Steve Symms and Secretary of State Pete T. Conrassa will co-chair the committee with Kidwell. Sen. Paul L. Laxalt of Nevada, national chairman of Citizens for Reagan, told a news conference.

State Republican Chairman Vernon Ravenscroft, Tuttle, and Helen Chenoweth, executive secretary of the state central committee, were present at the announcement but not necessarily as Reagan supporters.

"I've promised both groups I'd appear at their official announcements," Ravenscroft said. "We've assured both groups they'll have our full cooperation."

Laxalt told reporters the Reagan committee considers Idaho "to be very strong Reagan country" and feels the former California governor will do well in this state. He indicated Reagan will make several appearances in the state prior to next May's presidential primary but at the moment is concentrating first on the early primary states.

He said he felt Reagan's challenge of President Ford for the Republican nomination will be "exceedingly healthy" for the Republican Party and whoever emerges the victor has a good chance of winning the general election.

He said Reagan felt his candidacy would be divisive, Laxalt said. Reagan probably would not have entered the race.

"You don't have an incumbent situation here, you have an interim president," Laxalt said, referring to the fact Ford entered the White House by appointment rather than election. "I think we have a unique situation here."

Laxalt said he does not feel the American people will reject Reagan the way they did the candidacy of his fellow conservative, Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater in 1964.

"Barry Goldwater was 10 years ahead of his time," Laxalt said, adding that the people now have concluded that "Washington can't solve problems — it creates them."

Ten years ago, he said, 63 per cent of the people had confidence in the federal government. Now, he said, fewer than 20 per cent do.

Laxalt pointed to Reagan's record as governor of California, saying the Golden State was losing $1.1 million a day when he became governor in 1967 and that he managed its affairs so well the people got three tax rebates and his successor, Democrat Edmund G. Brown Jr. got an $800 million reserve.

"And Jerry Brown ever since has been trying to out Reagan, Reagan," Laxalt said.

The Nevada senator said he did not think Reagan would accept a number two position on the GOP ticket next year and his fax one would advise against it because Reagan is "a number-one, lead dog type." He said Reagan would feel "even more miserable" in the vice presidency than Nelson Rockefeller and added that Rockefeller "has been pretty miserable."

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Mining Association attacked the State Fish and Game Department Monday for playing dirty with a series of articles the state agency issued on the possible impact of phosphate mining in southeast Idaho.

Al Teske, executive secretary of the association, in an interview with a Boise radio station (KIDO), said, "It is obvious to us that these articles were deliberately designed to arouse and inflame rather than to inform."

He said the articles were "a premature and completely unwarranted attack on the mining industry," which has contributed tremendously to the stability and prosperity of that area.

"If I were asked to describe the Fish and Game Department philosophy in this situation in a few words, I would sum it up in two words — play dirty."

Teske said the articles were "replete with unsupported statements and predictions of fish and game losses which are not and cannot be documented."

"These predictions are for the most part, gross exaggerations, but could be self-fulfilling through management practices designed to make them come true."

"Although it may be true that 46,000 acres are held under lease, it would be much more realistic and informative to talk about the less than 5,000 acres of land that have been disturbed during some 30 years of mining activity in that area."

He said most of the land that is held and paid for annually under lease does not contain mineable rock and will never be disturbed.

The 121,000 acres for which applications for prospecting permits have been filed "is an obvious effort to arouse antagonism among the readers."

Ford's stamp plan studied by Church

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Monday he hoped the twoday hearing of his Senate Special Committee on Aging would prevent President Ford from imposing new standards to restrict the right of elderly persons to obtain food stamps.

"He said Ford's proposed new income restrictions on who is eligible for food stamps would result in "utterly unfair treatment" of senior citizens.

"Of all the people I know who are entitled to food stamps, it is the elderly who are suffering by an limited retirement income. The food stamp program is extremely critical to them."

"I hope to dramatize by this series of hearings that the administration in its effort to reduce the number of food stamps made available to the elderly are subjecting them to utterly unfair treatment."

Asked at a news conference if he would announce his candidacy for president, Church said he wouldn't decide until after his committee's public hearings are over, which will be about Christmas.

He expressed interest in the May 25 regional primary in Oregon, Idaho and Nevada. He said he "would have to do well in his own part of the country."

Noting there are 10 Democrats already seeking the presidency, he said, "I heard the other day they are all tied for 10th place."

Jury trial scheduled

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — A Hulbrook, Idaho, man was bound over Monday for a jury trial in Sixth District Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in an incident in which an auto carrying three teenagers was forced off a road.

Allen Smith, 20, is charged with forcing a car driven by Ifal D. Peterson, 18, of Tremonton, Utah, from Interstate 15 south of Malad earlier this fall.

The vehicle went over an embankment, rolling end over end. Rachel Suzanne Spencer and Barbara Napier, both 17, were seriously injured in the incident. Peterson was treated for slight injuries and released. Miss Spencer suffered eye damage and a broken back and is still hospitalized.

Miss Napier suffered a broken leg, eye and face injury.

Two other vehicles involved in the incident were driven by Lida Jenkins and Greg Kent, both 18 of Malad. They pleaded guilty to charges of reckless driving.

Leftwing troops rebel against Lisbon control

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Left-wing paratroops rebelled against the central government today, seizing control of several major Portuguese airbases. Leftist civilians surrounded Lisbon's main arsenal and radio station occupied the national television station.

The moves signaled a general mobilization by Portugal's left in response to the firing earlier today of a leftist general as military chief of the Lisbon district.

The paratroops moved as leftist civilians began massing outside a rebellious light artillery regiment, which controls the army's main arsenal on the outskirts of Lisbon. Self-propelled cannons were maneuvered into strategic defensive positions around the base.

The left mobilized despite a threat by the military's revolutionary council to react to any rebellion with armed force. Troops throughout the country were placed on stand-by alert at dawn, but no other progovernment movements were reported.

The catalyst for the events was the council's pre-dawn decision to go ahead with the dismissal of military security chief Gen. Otelo Saralva de Carvalho as Lisbon district commander, a move that leftist troops in the capital have openly opposed.

The Communist-controlled Radio Club said the paratroops had taken over the big Montijo base — the operations center for the air force across the Tagus river from Lisbon — and several other major bases.

One of the rebels contacted by telephone at Montijo confirmed they were in control of the base, which he said was occupied without any fighting.

"We are occupying the bases to do a true purge of the air force. We hope there will be no need for us to use force," he said.

Left-wing troops who occupied the national television station in Lisbon said they did so to protect it from falling into the hands of anyone else rather than to gain control of its broadcasting for themselves.

Business activity and traffic in the center of the city remained normal.

The radical troops and far left parties began mobilizing their forces shortly after the council issued its statement.

Spanish cabinet meets

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro called his cabinet into session today to begin arguing the problems confronting post-Franco Spain, including what to do with an estimated 2,000 political prisoners.

The session was called as a prelude to a meeting Friday with Spain's new king, Juan Carlos.

A government official said a wide range of topics would be discussed and no decisions were expected, especially concerning the dissidents who have been jailed in the past few years under Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Outlawed opposition groups have been demanding their release as one of the first reforms expected under Juan Carlos.

Juan Carlos, in his inaugural speech Saturday, spoke of equal justice for all Spaniards. But Franco law still provides for arrest without charge and detention without trial.

"Obviously, with a change of systems, there are thousands of problems to be dealt with," the official said.

Among the problems facing Juan Carlos are violence in the Basque region and the demands for political reform.

The killing of a town mayor Monday marked the first violent incident in the four Basque provinces since three policemen were murdered a week before the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco fell in Oct. 17.

Surinam joins world's free nations

PARAMARIBO, Surinam (UPI) — Surinam, once swapped to Holland for a rocky island called Manhattan, today traded more than three centuries of colonial rule for an uncertain future as the world's newest nation.

The new Surinamese flag fluttered to the top of the staff in Paramaribo stadium at midnight Monday, replacing the Netherlands tricolor and unofficially marking the birth of South America's 12th sovereign state.

Prime Minister Henck A. E. Arron was scheduled to proclaim formal independence later today in a ceremony before the 36-man legislative assembly.

But more than one-fourth of Surinam's 385,000 citizens won't be in the country to watch the festivities. They've already left in search of better jobs and more stable social conditions.

Surinam, a Florida-sized country on South America's northeast coast, is rich in untapped resources but plagued by poverty and racial unrest.

East Indians and blacks make up 80 per cent of a population that includes sprinklings of Indonesians, Amerindians, European and Chinese.

Some 42 per cent of the population earns $100 a month or less. Unemployment stands at 33 per cent.

The East Indians, most of whom came to Surinam as indentured servants, began to leave the colony two years ago when Arron's predominantly black colonial government came to power.

Persecution halt sought

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Two Russian Orthodox priests have appealed to the World Council of Churches to help stop persecution of Christians inside the Soviet Union, council officials said today.

The Russians, identified as the Rev. Gleb Yanukin and the Rev. Lev Rogozhin of Moscow, allowed friends to distribute a letter detailing the plight of Russian Christians to the nearly 800 delegates and 2,000 guests attending the council's fifth assembly.

The Russians, who are apparently still in Moscow, said in the letter that Soviet Christians have been systematically persecuted and outlined an eight-point plan to help them.

The letter said dissenters in the Soviet Union were put into psychiatric hospitals "where they were subject to 'barbaric methods of treatment which impair their brain and mind.'"

Conference sources said the letter would probably receive a sympathetic hearing from the three-week-long assembly which will shape the policy of Protestant, Orthodox and "Old Catholic" churches in more than 100 countries for the next seven years.

Among the measures the Russians urged the council to adopt were plans to regularly publish a multilingual bulletin on the possible persecution of Christians, monthly prayer meetings for Christian leaders and a plan to flood the Soviet Union with Bibles.

The Russians urged Christians worldwide to mount a campaign to help Soviet Orthodox followers to emigrate if they wish.

According to council sources, Rev. Takunin was Single petitioner joined by 5 picks in Minidoka

RUPERT — Five people have been named to join a single petitioner for office on the Minidoka County Agricultural Stabilization

Elmore ASC slate drawn

GLENN'S FERRY — The slate of nominees for the upcoming ASC committee election has been developed, according to Thomas Coriell, director for the Elmore County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office.

Candidates are D. D. Anderson and Lafe Harris of Glens Ferry, and M. Peter Nielsen, William Trail and Ralph Yratabal of Mountain Home. They will be competing for one position on the county committee.

Presently county committee members are R. Ray Fisher, chairman; Walter M. Schumacher, vice chairman, and D. D. Anderson, member. Anderson's term expired this year.

The ASC county committee election is being conducted by mail from Nov. 21 to Dec. 1. Eligible ASC voters will receive a ballot in the mail with instructions on how to vote for the candidate of their choice and return the ballot to the county ASCS office. Any eligible voter who does not receive a ballot in the mail should request one from the county ASCS office.

Conservation Service committee.

Only Van Sorenson an incumbent committee member, filed a nominating petition for election. At stake are one regular board membership for three years and two alternate positions for one-year terms.

The committee named five other men. Ballots will be mailed out by Nov. 21, according to Leo Van Every, county executive director.

The five men have agreed to their names being placed on the ballot. They are Theodore Fujiki, Perry Meuleman, Russell Holman, Martin Muecke and Lloyd Thae.

The top vote getter will be a regular member of the committee and the next two will be alternates.

Ballots must be returned by Dec. 1 to the ASCS office in Rupert. Van Every said the ballots will be banded there at 1 p.m., Dec. 3 and the count will be open to the public.

Van Every said the committee will hold its organizational meeting Dec. 10 to elect a chairman and vice-chairman, with the new member voting on those specific items. Otherwise he does not take office until Jan. 1.

Basically, everyone operating or owning a farm within Minidoka County is eligible to vote. Specific information may be obtained at the ASCS office.

Direct election of county committee will take place for the first time. Previously the county was divided into four communities holding separate elections.

The community committee then elected the county committee. The state committee eliminated community committees this year in Idaho, giving the farmers a direct vote for the county committee.

Seer predicts snow in valleys

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley River area: Increasing clouds tonight. Cool with gusty winds 10 to 20 miles per hour. Increasing chance of scattered snow in the valleys by Wednesday morning. Overnight lows 10 to 20. Highs Wednesday in the mid-30s.

The outlook for Thanksgiving Day, clearing and cool.

Timley, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley: Increasing clouds tonight with a chance of snow Wednesday. Highs Wednesday near 30. Overnight lows 10 to 15.

The outlook for Thanksgiving Day, clearing and cool. No major changes are expected in the general weather pattern over Thanksgiving and the weekend. A series of weak Pacific storms will continue to move across Washington and Idaho with only a slight chance of snow for southern Idaho.

For those on the road, traveler advisories have been posted for heavy snow accumulations in the mountains of Colorado and eastward, and the mountains of southern Wyoming.

Currently, the weather outlook for Thanksgiving Day across Idaho calls for some snow flurries at times, but generally cool and dry. The extended outlook through Saturday calls for a chance of light precipitation early Friday, becoming dry and warmer. Highs will be mostly in the 30s. Lows in the upper teens eastward and the 20s in the west.

Farmer sugar prices near costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the first time in four years, the world has a small sugar surplus and prices for farmers are down to or near production costs in several areas, government economists say.

But Fred Gray, an Agriculture Department specialist, said in a sugar outlook report today that consumers are not getting the full benefit of the declines in sugar prices.

Gray said retail sugar price declines in this country have lagged behind declines in raw sugar levels but have still fallen significantly in recent months. But most of the U.S. sugar supply goes into processed foods ranging from bakery products to soft drinks, and prices for those products have changed only slightly, the economist said.

Shoppers may find average prices of foods containing sugar down a little in the next few months, but some items will show little change and some will go up, he predicted.

Gray said the downturn in sugar prices hasn't had much impact on processed foods because it has been canceled by rapidly increasing costs for other items purchased by processors. The economist's report said the 1975-76 world sugar crop is now expected to reach a record 11.5 million short tons, up 4.4 million tons from last year and 2.9 million tons above the previous record set in 1973-74.

With sales running slightly below the predicted production level, Gray said world stocks at the end-of-the-marketing season next April may reach 17.5 million tons, up 1.1 million from a year earlier.

This would break a downward trend that began four years ago, he said.

Gray also said although world supplies still cannot be called "overabundant," sugar prices may rise slightly in 1976. But there is little reason to expect any "substantial change from recent price levels which were far below the peaks of a year ago.

Raw sugar prices in New York, for example, averaged 15.5 cents a pound in October compared with the peak of 57.3 cents reached in November of 1974.

Planting 'gun' examined

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Forest Service is looking into the possibility of using a helicopter-mounted "gun" to shoot seedlings in reforesting, hard-to-plant areas.

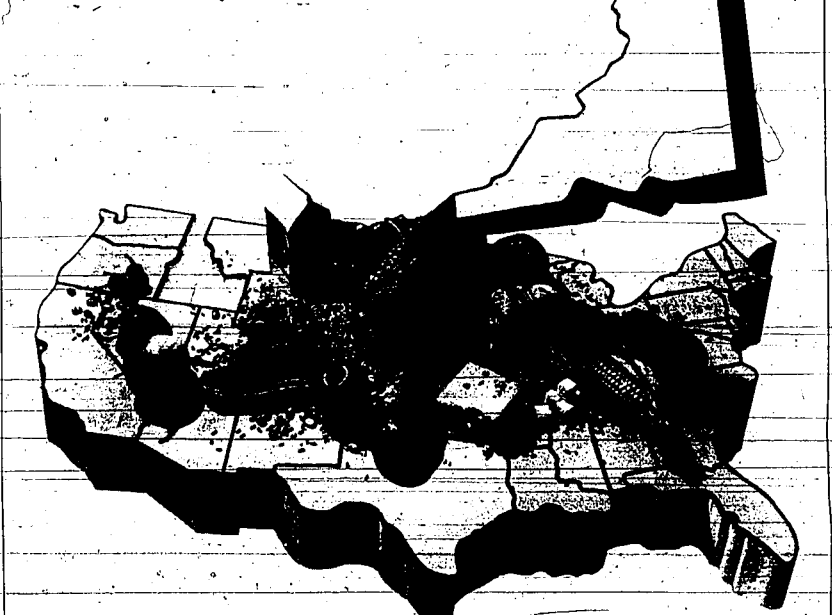

John Eddy, a former helicopter pilot, has invented an ice-like projectile that encases a tree seedling. The miniature missile is blasted into the earth with a burst of pressurized carbon dioxide. Eddy, who has already demonstrated his device to specialists from the Forest Service's Missoula, Mont., Equipment Development Center, envisions his system being used in steep, inaccessible areas where the labor cost of hand tree-planting is rising because few are willing to do the work. He says his system would be a faster and more economical way to plant tree seedlings.

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more mother-in-law letter? I hope so, because that's my problem. My mother-in-law lives quite close to me and is always popping in, which I don't mind because she never stays long. But when she gets home, she phones me, and here is a partial list of her comments and questions:

"Are you sure Albert (he's my husband) is feeling all right? He looks constipated to me."

"I think you are keeping your house too warm. The kids get overheated and might catch cold when they go outside. I noticed that your plants are dry. Aren't you watering them regularly?"

"I saw nationally advertised brand canned goods in your cupboard. Why don't you buy the off-brand products? They are just as good and much cheaper."

"Don't you think you should tell Johnny (my son) to turn down his stereo? I read that today's teenagers will be wearing hearing aids by the time they are 40 because they play their records so loud they're going deaf."

"Why do you let June (my 17-year-old daughter) wear so much makeup? She looks like a cheapie."

In-law butts-in

I've asked my husband to please tell his mother to quit trying to live my life. He says he's tried, but it's hopeless. Have YOU any suggestions? She has already given me ulcers.

ULCERS IN ST. LOUIS

DEAR ULCERS: Learn to tune her out when she's reciting her list of comments, complaints and questions. Throw in an occasional "Yes, Mother," and when she's finished, say, "Thank you. Now I've got to run." Then forget it. And remember, it's not what you eat that gives you ulcers—it's what's eating YOU.

DEAR ABBY: I am a lonely, retired widow, and I am dating a man of the same status. On several occasions he has lost control of his temper and has broken a few things. Also, when he drinks too much, he becomes very loud and insulting. Then, too, he has purposely tried to make me jealous by being overly attentive to other women.

I love this man, but would I be taking a chance on marrying him?

NEEDS COMPANIONSHIP

DEAR NEEDS: Yes. A big chance. Only you can decide whether his "companionship" would compensate for his faults. Me? I'd rather be assa-compans.

DEAR ABBY: Because I am a faithful reader of your column, three members of my family have become card-carrying kidney donors.

We would now like to know to whom we should write for information about how to donate our eyes after death.

Turkey prices up 5% from last year

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Like everything else, turkeys are costing more this year, but they are still a good buy this month compared to other meats, the Agriculture Department says.

A USDA poultry expert said Sunday farmers are sending more turkeys to market this fall than a year ago, but overall supplies are still down and the bird costs about 15 percent more than last year.

The poultry economist, William E. Catcart, said farmers who held production down during most of the year now are expanding. They will send about 6 per cent more turkeys to market from October through December than they did a year earlier, he estimated.

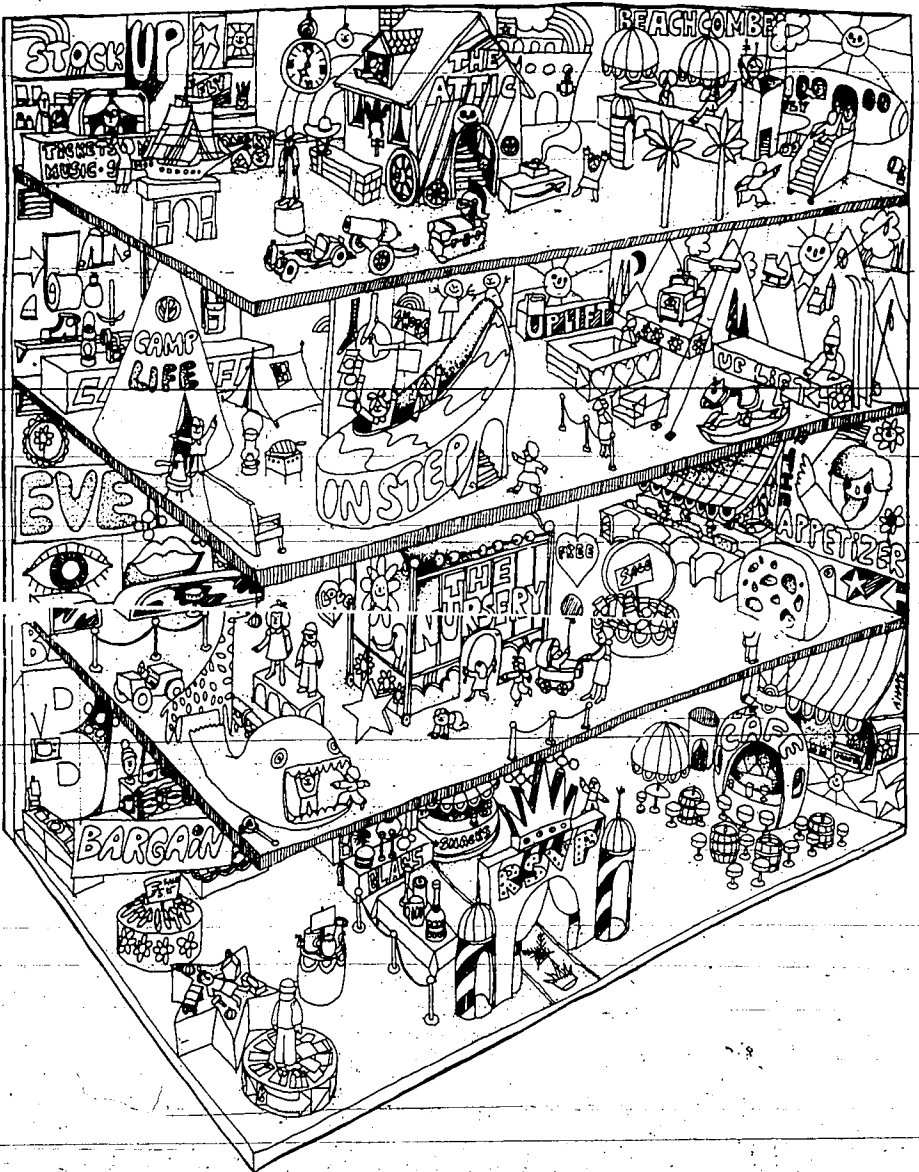

But the toll of a cutback earlier this year is still being felt. Catcart said that even with the current upswing, total supplies available to consumers this Thanksgiving are below a year ago because cold storage stocks are down sharply.

For consumers, economist Gerald Reor said that while prices vary from city to city, retail costs for Thanksgiving appear to be about 15 percent above a year ago. Washington area chains, he said, have advertised turkey for about 10 cents a pound more than last year.

But in many areas turkey is cheaper than the national average because stores lower the cost of the turkey to get customers into the store to buy high-profit trimmings.

Everything's getting bigger these days... to better serve the American consumer.

The gown and veil were designed and sewn by the bride's mother.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of pink and white roses and stephanotis.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Richard Dunn, Burley, and the best man was Jerry Arbogast, Heyburn.

Bride's attendants were Mrs. James Rasmussen, sister-in-law of the bride, Salt Lake City, and Steffan Donovan, Long Island, N.Y. Ushers were brothers of the bride: Raleigh and James Rasmussen.

Out-of-town guests attended from Grace, Pocatello and Boise.

The couple honeymooned in Oregon and Northern Idaho. They will reside in Twin Falls.

your health

BY GEORGE C. THOSTENSON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thostenson:
Here is my problem. Three years ago I had a colostomy. Everything is fine, except for one problem. I get gassy after eating. I try eating mostly starches, and I eat very little during the day. Occasionally I'll get the farts. They will last a few days.

Perhaps there is a special diet you can suggest. At least I'd like any advice you can give. — Mrs. D.F.

Diet is important

The type of food eaten by the colostomate is usually a factor in his (three major) problems — gas, constipation, diarrhea, or constipation. You may go from one of these problems to the other very easily, which seems to be your problem.

Treatment is a matter of experimentation, of learning your tolerances.

You mention eating mostly starches. This could well be one cause of your "trouble" because of resulting high levels of fermentation in the bowel. Avoid candy, sugar, and pastries, for this reason.

Very low protein: lean meat, fish, fowl, eggs, and cheese.

Vegetables such as beans, peas, cabbage should be avoided because they tend to create gas. Eat more slowly to avoid gulping air. Most large hospitals have dietitians who can advise about specific diets. Some have nurses who are expert advisers on colostomy problems.

You seem to have adjusted positively to your colostomy, a major factor in learning how to live with this often troublesome procedure.

Dear Dr. Thostenson:

Eight months ago I had a complete physical, and other than finding of a marked hearing loss in my left ear I was told I was in good physical condition for a 55-year-old woman.

Then about four months ago I started experiencing dizzy spells upon getting out of my car after driving short distances. The sensation lasts about 10 to 15 seconds and I feel a little woozy for a few minutes. It even happens at home when I get up from a sitting position. Would you kindly explain? Also, please send me your booklet, "Ear Noises — Their Causes and Cures." I am sending the 15 cents to you, and enclosing the long-addressed, self-addressed envelope. — J.L.V.

I can only speculate on possible causes, although your earlier report of hearing loss strongly suggests an infection or other disorder in the inner ear, which has caused disturbance in the balance mechanism located there.

Without such a history, one would suspect postural hypotension, a matter of a drop in blood pressure when you adjust from a sitting to a standing position.

After eight months it is time to return to your physician and ask him to investigate further the hearing problem and the

TOPS meetings

HANSEN — The joys of eating are fleeting, the joys of tasting are lasting," was the thought brought to the TOPS 10 No. 84 Club meeting at the home of Mrs. Dorothea Stielmuth Monday night.

The thought was given by the leader, Mrs. Marybeth Howard.

Mrs. Carolyn Bowman was the best loser. Gainers were to write a 50 word essay on why she gained.

The Turkey Tams won the evening's team contest.

The monthly best loser and also a 10 pound loser was Mrs. Furlia Pruell. She received gifts for each achievement.

A secretary was elected to replace a member who had moved from the area. Mrs. Stielmuth was elected and installed until next election date.

A poem was read about a good member from the TOPS magazine.

"A pound loss is a compliment gained," and "Your skin will glow and you'll look great if you'll only get rid of your excess weight," were two recent thoughts.

HANSEN — "Eat right and be light," was the thought brought to TOPS 13 No. 84 meeting at the home of Mrs. Dorothea Stielmuth. Mrs. Marybeth Howard, leader, gave the thought.

Mrs. Beulah Kevan and Mrs. Dorris Morris were best losers of the week. Gainers were requested to eat with a plastic fork from a small plate.

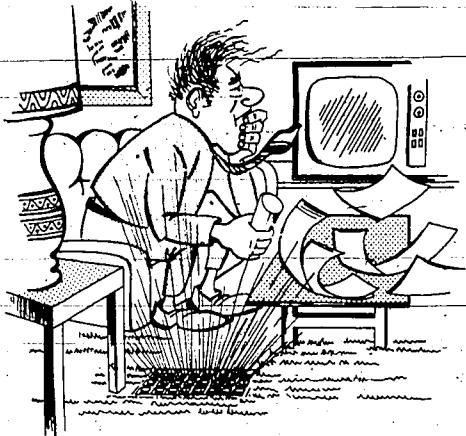

The Turkey Tams were winners of the evening in the Thanksgiving contest.

Each is to bring a gift for her secret pal to the Christmas party Dec. 15.

Mrs. Judy DePew was the program chairman.

We have some advice for you...

Caught in a draft?

Maybe your furnace is larger than you need.

If you are constructing a new home or other building or changing the heating system in an existing structure, you should be especially careful to select the proper size furnace to do the heating job required.

You shouldn't buy an under-sized furnace, of course. But equally important, you shouldn't buy more furnace than you need.

Ton-much furnace capacity can cause needless expense and discomfort.

For instance, if you install an over-sized electric furnace, you will need extra wiring to accommodate the added load. You also may encounter discomfort from drafts and "whistling registers" caused by over-sized fans.

Instead of spending money on an over-sized heating system — whether electric, gas, or oil — you will be better off investing it in energy-saving insulation.

Be sure to ask your heating contractor for a thorough explanation of proper furnace sizing, or call an Idaho Power Energy Adviser.

Dispute settled by IPUC

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has settled the Mountain Bell Company overall state rate of return to settle a two-year-old dispute between two independent telephone companies and Mountain Bell.

The dispute came to the commission in a form of a complaint filed in November 1973 by Idaho Telephone Company charging that Mountain Bell had attempted to alter the terms of the intrastate toll settlement methods previously agreed upon and used by the two companies.

Intrastate toll calls offer the use of the facilities of more than one interconnecting telephone company.

The commission said some method is required to distribute revenues collected so as to reimburse each participating company for its expense associated with such calls.

Idaho Telephone argued that prior to the dispute, it had settled with the Bell companies on a cost study basis using the Bell company's overall state rate of return.

The company argued that the proposal made by the Bell companies that settlements for intrastate toll with the independents be made in the future on the basis of the Bell companies' intrastate toll rate of return is unfair and inequitable.

The independents said the toll rate is inadequate and would place the independents in a loss position making it necessary to increase exchange rates to a prohibitive level in order to satisfy their overall revenue requirements.

General Telephone also pointed out that if the independents are forced to accept inadequate toll settlements, there would result a disparity between exchange rates of the Bell companies and the exchange rates of the independents.

The Bell companies said that the issue of inadequacy of toll rates in Idaho was not before the commission, that the issue was how to equitably divide up the dollars remaining in the pool after payment of expenses and taxes.

The commission order adopted the overall state rate of return method of settlement for the two independent companies for the years 1974 and 1975 and that beginning Jan. 1, 1976, a division of intrastate toll revenues procedure would be adopted.

The procedure involves a formula set by the commission involving payment to each company—settling on a cost basis, the sum of its intrastate toll expenses and the balance to be divided on the basis of each participant's intrastate toll net investment in certain accounts, less reserves, plus federal income tax is applicable.

Brick misses Santa Claus

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI) — Someone threw a brick at Santa Claus during the annual Christmas parade in downtown Wheeling Sunday. It missed.

And the jolly old man was victimized by about 40 boys in the 8-year-old range who clambered aboard his float and broke two legs off a wooden reindeer. After several blocks of the exuberant boys' climbing "all over me," Santa persuaded them to get off the float.

"Imagine, someone throwing a brick at Santa Claus!" the red-suited, white-bearded gentleman exclaimed.

Energy prices recession fuel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Higher energy prices will reignite the recession unless the federal government expands the money supply or reduces taxes, according to a Brookings Institution paper.

George Perry, an economist, said in the paper, published Sunday by the nonprofit research organization that newly increased oil prices could spark inflation throughout the economy.

If the government responds with anti-inflation policies — limiting the money supply and avoiding tax reduction — production and employment will suffer, Perry said.

But if the government responds with tax cuts or the Federal Reserve Board adopts easier monetary policies, the problem of energy-stimulated inflation can be overcome more rapidly, the Brookings fellow wrote.

Perry said primarily there is a "need to offset the depressing effect of higher energy prices on the economy."

He said "higher energy prices aggravate inflation both through their direct, one-time effect on the average price level and indirectly to the extent that this direct effect sets off faster wage increases."

Perry said the last recession was spurred by sudden oil price increases — fear of an energy shortage and subsequent, although smaller, increases for coal and natural gas.

North's jump to four notrump is Blackwood in ordinary circles. Some experts play it as optional Blackwood. South can pass if he is really ashamed of his hand, but responds Blackwood if he likes his holding. Needless to say, South likes his three aces and two jacks and shows the aces, whereupon North settles for six notrump.

The play for six notrump is a good one. South has to try the spade finesse and it loses. Then, the hand depends on a successful club finesse. It is normal to cash dummy's king of clubs first whereupon it is necessary to finesse against East. He holds the club queen and South has his 12 tricks.

ASK THE EXPERTS

—Our Canadian reader wanted to know what the experts would do with this hand. Our article answers him. Incidentally, in playing the spades, declarer should cash a high spade first to see if there might be a singleton queen.

Here is another reader's question hand. It presents problems in both bidding and play. The bidding in the box shows how two experts might well bid the hand.

North responds two spades to see what partner might rebid. South rebids two notrump to show a balanced minimum.

Hearings scheduled

BOISE (UPI) — The Public Utilities Commission will meet in Idaho Falls and Rigby next week for hearings on the request by Utah Power & Light Company for a 32 percent overall rate increase.

The hearings on the UPL request will be held Dec. 23 in the District Court Chambers of Jefferson County Courthouse in Rigby and Dec. 25 in the District Court Chambers of Bonanza County Courthouse at Idaho Falls. They will begin at 9 a.m. each day.

Witnesses who testified at Pocatello hearings last month will be subject to cross examination by the commission staff and intervenors and members of the public will be given an opportunity to make statements in protest or in support of the rate change.

Observance set at Buhl

BUHL - The Buhl Moose Lodge will celebrate its 40th anniversary Saturday night with a special dinner and program.

The lodge moved into its present building in 1934 after meeting variously in the American Legion Hall and later in the building which now houses Kirkham Auto Parts.

The late Theo Buhl, long-time Buhl resident, was the first governor of the Buhl lodge which first met Nov. 21, 1935. The women's chapter was initiated March 5, 1936.

Henry and Charlotte Wavra, Twin Falls, helped with the initiation of the Buhl lodge.

The lodge has two Pilgrim members, which is the highest degree in the order. They are Vern Krough and Wavra.

Hiring favored

(Continued from p. 1) Sale, who has 14 years experience in urban planning, specializes in community planning and planned developments and subdivisions.

He had out a plan of action for the council members. First, J.U.'s planners would review all data and information collected already by the Joint Planning Council.

Then, they would schedule a week of intensive meetings with "community leaders" to review their desires for the future of Twin Falls. After a review, other interested persons would be consulted, another review would be set and finally, a 1980 draft prepared.

Redesol told the council that now "it would be difficult to bring in a planner on staff and meet any time requirements."

The engineers said they would work with a new planner, when hired. And they told the council they would work with local officials.

"The plan needs to be based exclusively on the needs of the people in the community," Sale told the council, not on what an "out of town" planner wants.

But he added, "We don't feel any idealistic plan will succeed unless it encompasses what elected officials consider to be politically feasible."

Council members seemed to favor hiring a consultant to complete the plan. Now it is up to the Joint Planning Council to make the decision, Redesol said.

Garbage pickups will resume Friday morning on a regular schedule with the regular schedule beginning again Monday morning.

TF debate team places 1st

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls High School debate team took home a first place trophy in the novice division at a competition in Nampa this past weekend.

Twenty eight high schools from both Oregon and Idaho competed for the trophy.

The high school's Bruin Debate team had an overall record of 6 wins and seven losses at the Nampa invitational tournament. The novice division's team of Brian Tarks and Jeff Arrington, both Twin Falls, was the only team to go undefeated at the tournament.

In the junior division, the team of Barbara Beckstead and Kris Strawser reached the semi-finals with a five wins, one loss record.

There were three divisions in the tournament.

2 TF burglaries probed

TWIN FALLS - Two burglaries were under investigation today by Twin Falls police.

Someone broke into the Taylor Rental Center, 207 Washington St. N., and took $10. Officials at the rental center said the thieves also took a $200 cash register which the $10 had been left.

United Electronics, 328 Third St. E., was broken into but nothing was reported missing. Officials said a large rock was used to break out a window. Damage was estimated at $100.

TV dispute reaches stalemate

TWIN FALLS - The dispute between cable vision interests and Twin Falls television station KMVT over which program the cable system has to black out reached a temporary stalemate.

Subscribers are often torn at both the cable operator from whom they have been led to believe that full-time signal carriage will be provided and the local broadcaster who requests protection from the commission.

The FCC in its second report and order, conceded that the present exclusivity rules have been a constant source of "aggravation and irritation."

VIVIAN DASS compiles the history of the Buhl Moose Lodge as final preparations are made for the lodge's 40th anniversary dinner and program Saturday night. The event is set at 7:30 p.m. at the lodge hall and charter members will be honored.

TFEA delegates support collective bargaining bill

TWIN FALLS - Delegates from the Twin Falls Education Association (TFEA) supported a public employee collective bargaining bill endorsed Saturday by the Idaho Education Association (IEA).

Philp East, a teacher at O'Leary Junior High and president of the TFEA, said the local group's delegates backed the bargaining bill because "it is a good idea to have procedures set up for all to follow."

Existing state legislation merely recommends negotiation procedures to be followed by government and public employees. He said neither side is required to act according to those suggestions.

"It doesn't say 'do this or do that,'" East said. "Currently it's just guidelines."

But the proposed bargaining bill provides definite rules under which two can meet and talk and, if we don't have an luck in agreement, then it sets up procedures whereby we can keep negotiating including mediators and fact finding panels.

The right to strike is included in the bill according to East, but that right can be exercised only after fact finding and mediation have failed and cooling off period has expired.

East said the proposed state legislation shouldn't affect a new "procedural agreement" between the Twin Falls teachers and the local school district. That agreement will cover only next year's negotiations, he said, which will take place before any new state law could be put into force.

And if a state bargaining law is adopted it probably would take the place of any local agreements, according to East. The Twin Falls agreement will expire in October of 1977, he said, but may be renewed at that time.

East continued that the IEA's Legislative Delegate Assembly voted Saturday to make passage of the bargaining bill its number one objective during the next session of the state legislature.

12 Carey Act projects okayed in Idaho by BLM

By DAVE HORSMAN Times-News writer

BOISE - Twelve Carey Act projects totaling about 116,000 acres in Idaho were approved, temporary withdrawal last week by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management (BLM).

The projects, which would turn arid federal lands into irrigated farms, represent about half of the 22,000 acres in Carey Act applications which the BLM plans to approve or disapprove by the end of this year.

Several of the 12 approved projects are in the Magic Valley, but the largest - the 82,200-acre Gem State Irrigation project - is in southeast Idaho north of Mud Lake.

The other projects are Plateau Development Association, 326 acres, south of Grand View; Cold Springs Project, 640 acres, northeast of Hammett; Narrows Water District Phase I, 6,840 acres, south of Hammett; Dorell C. Stovell, 960 acres, south of Marsing; Valley Heights Association, 6,521 acres, east of Interstate 80, between Mountain Home and Hammett; Karl D. Stiner Project, 100 acres, south of Bruneau; Three Island Project, 1,339 acres, south of Glenns Ferry; James F. Kevon, 655 acres, south of Glenns Ferry; Westberch Irrigation Association, 3,840 acres, west of St. Anthony; Benjamin C. Rice Project, 1,700 acres, north of Hammett, and Box Canyon Farms, 1,560 acres, southeast of Arco.

The project developers will have one year to complete a feasibility study of the land and apply for permanent withdrawal of the land. If they are granted permanent withdrawal, they will farm the land for five years, after which they may be given ownership.

Kenneth Dunn, assistant director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, which administers the Carey Act in Idaho, admitted the developers have a tough decision to make in completing their feasibility studies.

They must base the study on a 23-acre allowance per family (according to Idaho's interpretation of the Carey Act) or on a 16-acre allowance (the federal interpretation).

The state currently is challenging the federal interpretation in a court suit.

The "safest thing" for the developers, according to Dunn, would be to plan it according to the BLM interpretation. It would be easier for them to amend it to our interpretation," if Idaho wins the court suit.

That recommendation also would provide a safety valve in case the court suit is not settled within the year allowed for the feasibility study. Dunn said. The BLM "just wouldn't accept" applications for permanent withdrawal if they were based on 230 acres and the suit has not been decided, he said.

Kidwell heads Reagan drive

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Idaho Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell said today he is heading up the Citizens for Ronald Reagan Committee because he is impressed with Reagan's broad based political appeal and conservative fiscal attitude.

Kidwell said in an interview today he is supporting Reagan's bid for the Republican presidential nomination also because he is impressed with the former California governor's fiscal policies and administrative ability.

But, Kidwell added, "If President Ford is the nominee I will have no trouble supporting him."

Pete T. Cenarrusa, Idaho secretary of state, and Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, are serving with Kidwell as co-chairmen of the campaign.

Former Republican Party state chairman Marge Mihor will serve as coordinator for the first congressional district while Dennis Olsen, an Idaho Falls attorney, will be coordinator for the second district, Kidwell said.

He said he has contacted both Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, seeking support for Reagan's candidacy but that both men "feel that at this time they would like to defer in order to keep their objectiveness in Congress."

Kidwell said he assumes that means it will be easier for Hansen and McClure to work with the Ford administration if they don't take sides in the Ford Reagan race.

"I am going to make a definite effort to keep the Reagan effort as broad based as possible," Kidwell said. He said a primary contest for the Republican nomination "has got to be healthy" for the party. "I think that at times we've had too much consensus politics in America," he said.

Kidwell said Reagan is planning to come to Idaho as part of his campaign effort.

Kidwell said he has taken his position as chairman of the Reagan campaign in Idaho just as a volunteer and will not make any money from it. Also, he said he will not let the chairmanship take time away from his work as attorney general.

Kidwell said he does not think his new position will affect his own political future, although "I have been told that if I were politically astute I would have not jumped this early."

He said he is supporting Reagan largely because of his fiscal policies. Kidwell maintained that "the question can be raised" of lack of restraint in Ford administration economic policies. "The tremendous federal deficits we've been operating under are at least very frightening to me. . . we ought to take a lesson

Buhl school vote studied

BUHL - Buhl school trustees will "undoubtedly ask for voter approval again" on new school building proposals, a trustee said here Monday.

Trustee George Atkins, who said he was speaking only for himself, told chamber members that when 1,000 persons voted in favor of a new high school "We're obligated to try again."

A $2.2 million bond issue was narrowly defeated last Thursday when it received only 67 per cent majority, instead of the required 76 per cent. The vote was 1,091 for 648 against.

Atkins expressed appreciation to the citizens advisory committee, the chamber which had endorsed the bond vote, the news media and all persons who voted either way.

"Some of my best friends voted no. I voted yes, but I think we're still friends," Atkins said. He said he had no criticism for those who opposed the bond issue, but he was disappointed that more parents didn't get out and vote.

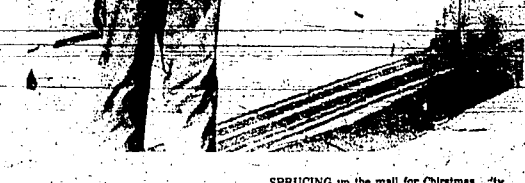

"When we have seen 2,000 enrollment, and only 1,700 some persons vote," he said, "and some of them did not have children in school, it's disappointing to know many parents of school age children did not vote."

He also said everyone in Buhl should "at their leisure" go down to the E.H. Buhl school and go through it before deciding how to vote on another proposal.

Hal Walker, chamber president, said the chamber is working on obtaining signs on Interstate 20 at Bliss, giving directions to Buhl.

Rev. H. Martin, pastor of the Buhl Nazarene Church, luncheon speaker, said "Every day should be Thanksgiving Day. If we stop and think about our blessings," he urged his listeners to take time to say "Thank you" to just one person who has influenced their lives.

Wendell Gannon announced the annual chamber banquet is slated for Jan. 12 in the Buhl Elementary School with Albert Carlson, Boise, president of the Idaho Power Co., as speaker.

ABA players association takes action

NEW YORK (UPI) — Alarmed at the rapid fire demise of two of its teams, the Players Association of the American Basketball Association Monday accused league President John Y. Brown of acting against best interests of the ABA and requested indemnification from the Denver Nuggets and New York Nets for what they termed "conspiracy to violate Federal Antitrust laws."

Explaining the decision of the players to involve themselves in court actions, Julius Eryng of the Nets said, "The loss of jobs when Baltimore folded made the players feel we had to be a part of our destiny. We couldn't sit around and let things happen all around us. The ABA Players Association had not been heard from and we had more to lose than anyone."

Carter said he will conduct a hearing on the request next Monday morning. "We have some particular concerns about the continued existence and viability of this league, particularly because of the actions of Mr. Brown, the president of the league, and the actions of the Nuggets and Nets," said Edwin McAmis, an antitrust counsel for the Players Association.

activity seems to have been working against the interests of the ABA. He seems to be encouraging two of the teams (Virginia and Utah) to fold."

The top two finishers ran together from the halfway point until the five-mile mark when the Illinois junior took the lead. He ran the final mile in 4:46.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 26, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES. This is a day when you should be wise to conform to that which has proven to be successful. If you take any chances you could later regret it. Be sure to keep promises you have made.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you handle all that work ahead of you in a painstaking manner, be it at home or elsewhere. Make future plans.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Being with congenials is wise now since the other type of individuals could get you into some kind of trouble. Be more active.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An associate may be in a bad mood and may want to argue or complain. Avoid this by keeping busy at your own duties.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Engage in intelligent conversation with allies and make the future brighter. Steer clear of one who is jealous of you.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to cut down on unnecessary expenses. Financial experts can be most helpful if you contact them now. Think constructively.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Improve your health early and then delve into new interests that can help add to present abundance. Forget temper tantrums.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan how to make your life more orderly and satisfying, both in personal and business realms. Use extreme care in motion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Discuss future aims with trusted friends. Try to be more frugal that you have in the past. If you invest do so wisely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are not thinking very clearly today so trust higher-ups for best results. A mistake could prove costly at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a better method under which to operate in the future and get better results. Make new allies who can be helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle your responsibilities well today. Some aim you have of a personal nature may not be worthwhile. Express happiness.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) There are many fine opportunities for you to advance in the days ahead if you prepare for them now. Use your hunches.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be concerned with big ventures while not being practical, so teach to get feet on the ground. Give fine education and then life becomes a most successful one. Teach early to pay more attention to detail.

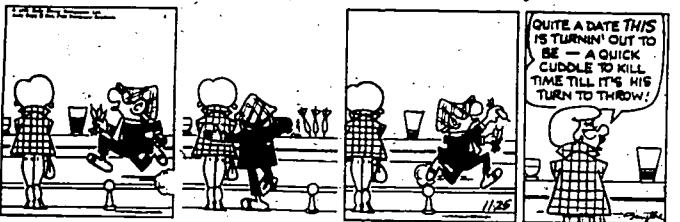

...The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

what's what

L. M. Boyd

Men should wear high heels. To make their feet feel better. Or such be the claim of a university orthopedic surgeon. Men, too, might benefit some, if their weight were elevated from the balls of their feet upwards and backwards a smidgen, according to this authority. That contention is not so hard to digest, if you've ever worn a good pair of cowboy boots. Those inch-and-a-half heels under soft leather skillfully stitched are remarkably gentle. I don't own any, yet. Intend to, though. Tried on a well-worn pair of a fitting friend recently and they seemed more comfortable than anything previously. Understand the technique of the stitching around the ankles is supposed to be highly significant. Why I don't know.

BUSINESS

Q. "Do you have any idea how many of our country's college students are majoring in business?"
A. About one out of five, at last report. Wish them well. It's an oddity. Business professors do not traditionally do as well in business as the unprofessional businessmen. They tend to wind up at their apex as United States Secretaries of Something or Other. Where students of business learn the most about business is in business. Watch this space for further dogmatic pontifical declarations.

OVERWEIGHT

What's your waistline tape measurement in inches? Don't tell, just jot it down. Subtract that from your height in inches. Do you get a figure of 35 or less? If so, tut tut. The answer should be around 38 or more. Otherwise, you're letting that thing called overweight creep up on you.

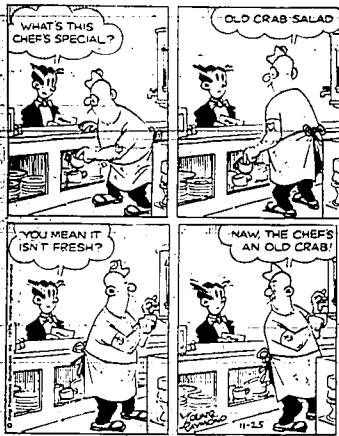

FOUR OUT of every five citizens who suffer glaucoma ailments are women. DO YOU REALIZE that 72 out of every 100 houses built in the last 10 years have sliding glass doors? ... PHONETICALLY, it's possible to spell "Shakespeare" in 4,000 different ways.

THE OLDER the patient, the longer said patient during a stay in the doctor's office visits with that professional. Whatever the age, though, about half of all patients spend less than 10 minutes in the actual presence of the esteemed being.

EXCEPTIONS abound, certainly, but studies now indicate that the son of a full-blown alcoholic tends either to turn into an alcoholic himself or a teetotaler, but not usually a moderate imbiber.

Chip's a chip, FDA says of 'restructured' wares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration ruled today "restructured" potato chips — those from dehydrated potatoes that come in uniform sizes — may be called chips even if they are not made in the traditional manner.

The labels will have to state, however, that the products are "made from dried potatoes."

The new type of potato chips have made a big dent in the market in recent years — taking up as much as 25 per cent of the sales in some areas.

Some makers of the traditional slice-and-fry type of chip have contended the new products are "restructuring" to drive them out of business and should be called not chips but "snacks" or some other coined name.

Those chips are made by crushing and dehydrating potatoes. They are formed into what packagers believe is the "perfect" chip size and shape and quick fried. They are then stacked in containers where they remain fresh for months.

The FDA said it realized there was a competition factor in the potato chip business but "the effects of competition between different products are not a factor in considering the proper common or usual name for a food."

"Chip" still charges the commissioner with establishing a name that is not false or misleading and that accurately describes the product to the consumer.

In two other food rulings also published in today's Federal Register, the FDA ordered that:

— Onion rings made from chipped onions, rather than actual rings, be called "onion rings made from dried, sliced onions."

— Seafood products made from chipped fish, clams or shrimp be labeled "made from minced fish."

Soviet SALT violations hidden, magazine claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger are "concealing" the policy of secrecy and deception in concealing Soviet violation of the Strategic Arms Limitation Agreement, Aviation Week & Space Technology said Monday.

In an editorial on SALT disarmament talks, the technical weekly said, "A deliberate policy of secrecy and deception on the part of the Nixon and Ford administrations has tried desperately to conceal from the U.S. Congress and public the deliberate Soviet violations of both the letter and spirit of the SALT agreement and the gross U.S. policy errors that are steadily building an irreversible Soviet military advantage."

It said Kissinger, "as the chief architect of the SALT policies, has become the most skilled practitioner of the art of not telling the truth without actually lying since Robert Strange McNamara, left the Pentagon, and this is the crux of his current problems with Congress and the danger facing the American people."

Kissinger faces a contempt of Congress citation for failing to answer a subpoena from the House Select Committee on Intelligence demanding all documents given to the National Security Council about Soviet adherence to the provisions of the 1972 Strategic Arms Limitation agreement and the Vladivostok agreement in 1974.

The committee also wants a copy of a letter allegedly written by former Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger asking the NSC to meet on Soviet violations. Schlesinger, fired by Ford three weeks ago, said in a TV interview Sunday he could not recall such a letter, but added the Soviets "have failed to meet our expectations."

Meetings between Ford and Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev have been cancelled because of a lack of progress on phase two of the SALT talks.

Earnings increase

ORDEN, Utah — At its board of directors meeting Friday, the Amalgamated Sugar Co. announced a net income of $23,232,000, equal to $1.56 per common share, for fiscal 1975 operations, which ended on Sept. 30.

This amount compares with 1974 fiscal earnings of $20,705,000, or $1.09 per common share. Sales for the fiscal year just ended amounted to $175,861,000, down from the $200,325,000 recorded for fiscal 1974.

The board of directors also declared a regular quarterly dividend of 25 per cent per common share, payable on Feb. 1 to stockholders of record on Jan. 16. A special dividend of $1 per common share payable on Dec. 19, was also announced for stockholders of record on Dec. 5.

In reporting its fiscal 1975 financial results, the company noted that the earnings per common share in 1975 are based on a daily weighted average number of common shares outstanding of 2,024,154 whereas the earnings per common share in 1974 were based on a daily weighted average number of common shares outstanding of 2,051,387.

AMC sets new plan

Chicago Sun-Times CITICGO American Motors Corp. on Dec. 2 will publicly announce a new service protection plan that involves three major service areas, according to Automotive News, an auto industry publication.

The plan's major areas, says the publication, include a guarantee of labor and parts, written cost estimates before repairs are made and inspection of parts.

Automotive News says it learned that the guarantee provides that when a customer buys service work for an AMC car from an AMC dealer, the auto maker guarantees to the customer that "under normal use, the work done — which may include parts — will be free from defects for a full three months from completion of the work or 3,000 miles, whichever comes first, and that your AMC dealer will correct any defect at no charge to you."

Too Rippe Oranges bearing a greenish tinge are the ripest fruit of all. The fruit is greenish, a phenomenon known as "regreening." As the fruit hangs on the tree in warm weather, chlorophyll returns to the skin. Oranges are never picked until fully ripe.
