Fearful of flames

Suspect queries upheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With two justices predicting the landmark Miranda decision will soon be overturned, the Supreme Court ruled 6 to 2 today that in some cases police may continue questioning suspects after they have exercised their right to remain silent.

Justice William J. Brennan and Thurgood Marshall dissented. Brennan, in an opinion endorsed by Marshall, said "today's distortion of Miranda's constitutional principles can be viewed only as yet another step toward the erosion, and, I suppose, ultimate overruling of Miranda's enforcement of the privilege against self-incrimination." The Michigan Supreme Court reversed the conviction of Richard Bert Mosley, convicted for the January, 1971, slaying of Leroy Williams in Detroit.

Mosley was first picked-up for questioning about a series of robberies. He exercised his right to remain silent and interrogation stopped.

Two hours later, other detectives warned Mosley of his rights and, when he did not object, asked him about the murder.

After he was told about an accomplice's confession, Mosley made self-incriminating statements.

The Michigan court ruled the statements were inadmissible as evidence because all police questioning on any criminal matter must stop after a suspect first says he wants to remain silent.

Justice Potter Stewart, writing for the majority overruling the Michigan court, called "unjustifiable" the interpretation of Miranda which could "lead to absurd and unintended results."

Stewart said Mosley was warned of his rights a second time and could cut off questioning by demanding to remain silent.

"The requirement that law enforcement authorities must respect a person's exercise of that option counteracts the coercive pressures of the custodial setting," Stewart said.

"We therefore conclude that the admissibility of statements obtained after the person in custody has decided to remain silent depends under Miranda on whether his right to cut off questioning was scrupulously honored."

In their only opinion today, the justices ruled it to be a District of Columbia case that a physician who prescribes drugs for a patient for professional purposes is subject to the same tough law applied to "pushers" of controlled drugs.

The Supreme Court under Chief Justice Warren has generally consistently struck back the Miranda case without actually overturning it. But the Brennan-Marshall statement might mean a majority of justices are prepared to overrule the case, perhaps after a ninth justice is seated to replace William O. Douglas, who was another staunch advocate of Miranda.

Tax battle escalating

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William Simon said today President Ford would rather see this year's tax cut expire than to have a new bill enacted without his requested $35 billion spending ceiling.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, warned that Congress would not accept the spending ceiling before Ford had even proposed the fiscal 1977 budget. Other committee Democrats echoed this sentiment.

Ford has said he will veto the tax bill passed by the House last week without the spending ceiling. The Senate Finance Committee was expected to ignore the threat and approve a brief extension of 1975 tax cuts without a ceiling, leaving the rest of the bill for next year.

Long, at a hearing on legislation to extend the tax cut, said the fight between Ford and Congress over taxes was "like playing that game of chicken" and that Ford would have to be the one to back down, because Congress would not.

"Either he's going to have to let the chicken or the nation is going to suffer," Long said.

Simon replied that letting the tax cut expire would have a "small economic impact" and that the President was more concerned with controlling expanding government expenditures.

"The President, in the absence of an expenditure limitation, is opposed to a tax cut," Simon said.

"We have the unique opportunity to turn the tide of fiscal irresponsibility which has been engulfing our nation for at least 25 years," Simon said.

"Please do not miss this opportunity. Each year that we fail to do this, the debt becomes more difficult."

It is common practice to approve the short-term tax cut extension, the "revenue" sections of the House-passed bill would be held in abeyance until next year.

Theoretically, this would leave time, before Congress Christmas session, for final congressional passage, a Ford veto and a vote on whether to override that veto. But White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford was considering calling Congress back into session or keeping it in session if necessary to pass the bill.

Ford outlined his plan of a meeting with top economic advisers and Nessen said they assured the President that if the tax cut were to expire for a short period of time, it would have no material effect on the economy.

TWIN FALLS — A Republicans for Ford committee still has not been organized in Idaho.

Neal Newhouse, a private Boise attorney who describes himself as a Republican "moderate," was asked to chair the Ford campaign committee about two weeks ago, but he declined the offer from Robert Flanigan, Rocky Mountain state coordinator for the Ford campaign, last week, after deciding the position would take too much of his time.

All the work involved in complying with the new federal election-campaign laws "takes up too much voluntary time," Newhouse said.

He said he did not know of any other persons now being considered to be chairman of the Ford campaign in Idaho. But he said he had recommended Laird Noh, Twin Falls County Republican Party chairman, as a person "who would do one hell of a job."

Noh could not be contacted this morning for comment on whether he is considering the top spot in the Ford re-

Scouters appoint executive

TWIN FALLS — The Snake River Area Council, Boy Scouts of America, will have a new scout executive Jan. 1. Del Hanks will be coming from Portland, Ore., where he was director of exploring for the explorer scouts in the Columbia Pacific Council. Hanks was hired by an ad hoc committee of the scout executive board which included eight community leaders. Among the committee members were Roy Roper, Elvis Cain, John Roper, and Dr. Vaughn Pond. Dart Gleed, who was scout executive here for eight years, has moved to a new position as scout executive for the Lake Bonneville Council, Ogden, Utah.

Blaine Shafer, program director for the Magic Valley BSA and acting scout executive since Gleed left three weeks ago, said Hanks "probably will follow Dart Gleed as executive secretary by United Way."

BURLEY — The Burley Chamber of Commerce Monday urged the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority to proceed toward establishment of a regional airport.

The chamber forwarded a letter of support to the authority's Monday night meeting on the strength of a luncheon vote that showed only one opposing hand.

The action came after Ed Elliott, one of the originators of the regional airport concept, spoke at the chamber luncheon.

Elliott told the chamber the airport is "inevitable" and will be "soon on its way" to construction. He said it could be self-sustaining within five years.

Castigating what he termed "negative reports" by the press, Elliott stated, "I think the regional airport is vital to the Magic Valley economy... and to proper planning and development of the valley."

Idaho Ford committee still unorganized

All the work involved in complying with the new federal election-campaign laws "takes up too much voluntary time," Newhouse said.

He said he did not know of any other persons now being considered to be chairman of the Ford campaign in Idaho. But he said he had recommended Laird Noh, Twin Falls County Republican Party chairman, as a person "who would do one hell of a job."

Noh could not be contacted this morning for comment on whether he is considering the top spot in the Ford re-election committee. Newhouse said he had not served in any official position in the party since college days in the early 1960s when he served as executive secretary of a Republican challenge's campaign against Sen. Frank Church.

Idaho Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell was announced as the chairman of the Ronald Reagan for President campaign committee in Idaho on Nov. 23.

At that time Vernon Ravenscroft, chairman of the Idaho Republican Party, said he had been assured by Flanigan that a Ford committee would be formed within two weeks.

Flanigan told the Times-News today that he expects the Ford committee to be formed by the end of next week.

He said he is trying to attract a "broad-based element" that includes not only the conservative element of the party but also the "moderates" to the Idaho Ford campaign.

Flanigan would not comment on who was being considered for the chairmanship of the state campaign.

He said the important thing is for the "right person" to be named, rather than finding a chairman within two weeks of when the Reagan committee forms.

"There is a lot of Ford support in Idaho but it's also strong Reagan country. It's a pretty conservative bunch of Republicans up in Idaho."

But it is not non-Ford — having basically the same philosophy as Ronald Reagan. Since he is the incumbent and he is a Republican I don't think that we have a choice we have to support him," Flanigan said.

most ideal spot in the whole United States." He said it is centrally located, presents no hazards, has no noise problem, the weather is right with the wind always out of the west and it is near the intersection of two major highways.

"If people really knew the facts of a regional airport, I don't think there could be any objection," he said. "Other than the college, this is the greatest thing... In the last 20 years that could happen to Twin Falls."

In other matters, the chamber unanimously opposed the common situs bill that would allow picketing of an entire construction site when there is a strike dispute with one subcontractor.

It also decided to ask Union Pacific Railroad for its cooperation in avoiding blocking of the streets that could stack up traffic during the holiday season.

Concorde noise called 'unbearable'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Russell E. Train, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said today the British-French supersonic Concorde is so noisy that any landing at New York's Kennedy Airport "would be undesirable."

Train also told a House Government Operations subcommittee that any landing at Dulles International Airport near Washington "looks increasingly questionable."

United furloughs 13,000 workers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With 4,400 daily flights grounded by a machinists strike, United Airlines furloughed 13,000 workers, as negotiators continued to sort through issues today.

Representatives of United and the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers have been meeting with mediators of the National Mediation Board and W.J. Usery Jr., the President's special labor troubleshooter.

Timor under Indonesian control

JAKARTA, Indonesia (UPI) — Pro-Indonesian forces have captured most of Portuguese Timor in an infant march from the capital of Dili. Local reports said today.

The Indonesian news agency Antara, quoting Radio Dili, said hundreds of leftist troops had defected to the side of the advancing army.

More than 1,000 Indonesian soldiers, described by the Jakarta government as "volunteers," Sunday spearheaded the attack against the Marxist Revolutionary Front for East Timor.

Ex-convict disappears, deepens Hoffa mystery

ON A Y. Times Service KEY WEST, Fla., about 4 o'clock last Friday morning, a loud talking man who said his name was Chuck Medlin — identified by the Justice Department as an ex-convict — left the Downtown Holiday Inn at Tampa, Fla., to try to find his cousin. He has not returned.

In his pocket, Medlin apparently carried almost $10,000 that CBS had advanced in return for his promise to lead a television news team to the body of James R. Hoffa — the former president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters who disappeared last July 30.

Medlin's disappearance was part of a bizarre series of events — which shed some light on the vagaries of investigative journalism — that began about a week ago when Medlin persuaded a North Carolina freelance writer that he could find Hoffa's body.

Before the story ended, it involved not only

CBS but also an editor of Harper's magazine, the Tampa police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation. And it led last weekend to a fruitless boat search for Hoffa's body by a crew sent by CBS to film the story.

The New York Times learned of the situation last Thursday night in a telephone call from the freelance writer, Patrick O'Keefe, who said he felt that widespread publication of the story — no matter how those involved from any effort to revenge for finding the body, A Times reporter was sent to Tampa early Friday, but when he arrived he found O'Keefe upset and Medlin gone.

O'Keefe had made several hours of tape recordings of interviews he had with Medlin and of his own negotiations with CBS, and from these tapes and from further interviews the story was unraveled.

Warning by Rocky to Western aides

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Vice President Rockefeller, facing Western governors and local officials hostile to federal plans to increase offshore oil drilling, said today Americans are "fed up" with mountains of regulatory paperwork weighing down the economy.

"They want a sensible, balanced environmental protection that does not obstruct economic growth and job opportunities," Rockefeller said in remarks prepared for the final White House Public Forum.

Rockefeller appeared to be warning leaders in the West — which has most of the nation's coal and oil reserves — that continued obstruction of federal plans for greater self-reliance in energy would annoy the rest of the nation.

Officials of eight western States — including four governors — took part in the forum. Rockefeller noted that it was the sixth such forum he has chaired.

"Everywhere we went we found people concerned about the energy crisis," Rockefeller said. He said Americans are "confused and critical" because "Congress has failed to act" to increase energy supplies two years after the Arab oil boycott.

"Quite frankly, everywhere we went we found people fed up with government bureaucracy and red tape, fed up with the mountain of federal regulations that is necessary just to move even a molehill of a project. We found people fed up with government overregulation of state and local governments, individuals and business — regulation that stifles initiative, regulation that makes it unnecessarily difficult for local governments, individuals and industry to plan for economic expansion and job growth."

Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe is among cabinet officers scheduled to be on the panel of the Public Forum on Domestic Policy.

The department plans to lease offshore oil sites beginning Thursday despite opposition from the state of California and involved counties and cities. A suit by the state and local communities was overturned last week by a Federal District court in Washington.

John G. Veneman, counselor to Rockefeller, said he expected Kleppe to "get a lot of heat on the issue."

Other panel members were Labor Secretary John J. Dunlop, Housing and Urban Development Secretary Carla Hills.

Nader health unit cites more ill effects of DES

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader's Health Research Group said today there is new evidence indicating that male children whose mothers were treated with the drug DES during pregnancy may be afflicted with sterility and testicular abnormalities.

The organization, in a letter to Health, Education and Welfare Secretary David Mathews, urged the government to warn doctors not to prescribe DES to pregnant women without telling them about the potential consequences for their offspring.

Cases of vaginal and cervical cancer among women — whose mothers took DES — during pregnancy have been documented.

DES, which stands for diethylstilbestrol, was used to prevent miscarriages. It is also used in animal feed.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Nader group, said a new animal feeding study published this week showed that 60 per cent of the male offspring of DES-treated mice were sterile and that 66 per cent of the male offspring "had pathological lesions of the reproductive tract including testicular abnormalities and cysts."

Wolfe also said a second study conducted at the Chicago Lying-in Hospital involving 80 pregnant women treated with DES in the early 1950s show that 24 per cent of the male children had abnormalities of the reproductive tract.

Wolfe also said DES is again showing up in the food supply in heavy quantities and should be curbed. He also said its use as a morning-after birth control pill should be restricted to true emergencies such as rape and incest.

"In summary, there is new evidence that DES has caused damage to male as well as female offspring of women who took this ineffective drug during pregnancy," he said.

Probers seek fast windup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although their mandates run into January, two congressional committees hope to complete their investigations of intelligence agencies by the end of this month and start work on final reports and recommendations.

The Senate and House select committees today called in officials and counsel from the CIA and FBI for discussions ranging from legal issues to ways to improve command and control and prevent past abuses of covert activities aimed at foreign nations and American citizens.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate panel, was reported anxious to complete his committee's work to free him for a decision on whether to enter primaries for the 1976 presidential elections.

Church and the other five Democrats on the 11-man panel promised Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield not to pursue the nomination during the investigation.

The Senate committee today is soliciting recommendations on control of FBI activities from Henry Petersen, former deputy assistant attorney general, and William Tucker,husband, deputy to former Attorney General William Richardson.

Richardson and Tucker's names left their jobs in 1973 after they refused orders from President Richard Nixon to fire Archibald Cox, the first special Watergate prosecutor. Richardson became ambassador to Britain under Ford, who recently nominated him to become commerce secretary.

Later in the week, the Senate committee will hear from FBI Director Clarence Kelley and Attorney General Edward Levi.

The House committee today called in Mitchell Rogovin, counsel to CIA Director William E. Colby, and Norman Dawson, a Harvard scholar who has done extensive research on government operations. Colby will be back before the panel later.

Anti-bus appropriation measure on Ford's desk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is considering a $45 billion labor-HRW appropriations bill that runs nearly $1 billion over his budget and bans busing to desegregate public schools. The extra money makes it likely Ford will veto the measure sent to the White House Monday. Final passage came by a Senate voice vote with only a half-dozen senators on the floor. The House approved it Thursday 231-91 after approving the anti-busing section 2071-10. The measure would prohibit the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and not the courts, from ordering school districts to bus children beyond their neighborhood schools to achieve racial balance. HEW told Congress in September that a similar anti-busing measure would "raise questions" about the future ability of the Office for Civil Rights "to continue efforts currently being made to eliminate various types of racial discrimination affecting elementary and secondary school children."

Stephen Kurzman, HEW's top legislative official, said that statement still stands with respect to the bill now on Ford's desk.

Court pondering police grooming

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the first case of its kind, the Supreme Court is pondering whether a policeman must conform to grooming regulations that limit the length of his hair.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, Union attorney Leonard D. Wexler of Smithtown said, because there are varying degrees of rights.

The subject generated a shower of questions Monday, directed by the eight justices to attorneys for Suffolk County, N.Y., which imposes such a requirement, and the patrolmen's union, which is challenging it.

"Well, one is on one end and the other is on the other end," remarked Marshall in apparent disapproval. Wexler rejected the notion that police are quasimilitary in nature on the ground that the union under state law negotiates with the county matters such as uniforms, pay, hours and even equipment.

"Doesn't that suggest that this hair regulation should be negotiated?" asked Justice Potter Stewart. Wexler said the union had been unsuccessful in this regard.

"Can a policeman be made to shine his shoes?" asked Justice Thurgood Marshall. Union attorney Leonard D. Wexler of Smithtown said yes, because there are varying degrees of rights.

Insanity defense

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorneys for Sara Jane Moore have disclosed they will use insanity as a defense in her trial next week on charges of trying to kill President Ford. Public Defender James Hewitt told reporters Monday he has informed the U.S. attorney's office he will use a defense of diminished mental capacity. He said he was making the disclosure in accordance with a new federal requirement that defense attorneys notify the prosecution when they intend to use such a course in the trial.

Miss Moore, 45, a onetime informant for the FBI and Treasury Department, was accused of firing a pistol at Ford Sept. 22 as he was emerging from a downtown hotel. The President was not hurt. Her trial starts Monday.

Meany describes warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany said he had it "in black and white" — an administration memo cautioning President Ford last summer against receiving "disident Soviet" novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn.

Meany testified Monday before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with what he said was a copy of a State Department document. He did not say how he got it. The document said a White House welcome for Solzhenitsyn would be taken as "a deliberate negative signal" on detente. "We didn't want to offend the Communists — so we split in the face of the man our State Department refers to, perhaps sarcastically, as 'the most admired of all Russians,'" Meany said.

Hearst defense seeks gag order

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Government prosecutors, accusing defense lawyers of trying to get sympathy for Patricia Hearst, have asked a federal judge to issue a gag order barring pretrial statements to the news media.

They would not use insanity as a defense, but they have said they may present a "brain-washing" theory. Miss Hearst's trial will start Jan. 26, and there will be a hearing before Judge Oliver J. Carter Thursday on the gag order motion as well as other defense and prosecution requests.

Under public criticism, Ford relented and invited Solzhenitsyn to the White House but then Solzhenitsyn snubbed the President, and issued a statement saying there was nothing to discuss.

Miss Hearst, 21, daughter of San Francisco Examiner President Randolph A. Hearst, was kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army on Feb. 4, 1974. She said through tape recordings later that she decided to join the terrorists. The federal charges resulted from a robbery at a Liberator Bank branch in April 1974.

Cleared

FEDERAL 11th Circuit Court of Appeals Monday dismissed the perjury conviction of former California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke on a Senate rules technicality. He was convicted of lying about the date when he first told then Atty. Gen. John Mitchell of the offer to underwrite the Republican convention if it was in San E. lego. (UPI)

Physician slowdown proposed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Doctors and surgeons have begun a slowdown, calling for a halt to all medical service Jan. 1 if the price of malpractice insurance increases again.

Leaders of the strike movement planned to meet today with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. demanding he do something to prevent an increase in insurance premiums of up to 400 per cent. due New Year's Day.

The strike movement was led by several newly formed groups and only a small percentage of the area's doctors were taking part. But it was gathering steam quickly, with leaders predicting that 8,000 doctors would be ready to cease practice by New Year's Day.

They called for elimination of all but one agency surgeon by next Monday and urged physicians to refuse to pay the higher premiums, allowing their malpractice insurance to lapse Jan. 1. They would be required to refer all patients because it is illegal for physicians to practice without the insurance.

Court pondering police grooming

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the first case of its kind, the Supreme Court is pondering whether a policeman must conform to grooming regulations that limit the length of his hair.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, Union attorney Leonard D. Wexler of Smithtown said, because there are varying degrees of rights.

The subject generated a shower of questions Monday, directed by the eight justices to attorneys for Suffolk County, N.Y., which imposes such a requirement, and the patrolmen's union, which is challenging it.

"Well, one is on one end and the other is on the other end," remarked Marshall in apparent disapproval. Wexler rejected the notion that police are quasimilitary in nature on the ground that the union under state law negotiates with the county matters such as uniforms, pay, hours and even equipment.

"Doesn't that suggest that this hair regulation should be negotiated?" asked Justice Potter Stewart. Wexler said the union had been unsuccessful in this regard.

"Can a policeman be made to shine his shoes?" asked Justice Thurgood Marshall. Union attorney Leonard D. Wexler of Smithtown said yes, because there are varying degrees of rights.

Insanity defense

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Attorneys for Sara Jane Moore have disclosed they will use insanity as a defense in her trial next week on charges of trying to kill President Ford. Public Defender James Hewitt told reporters Monday he has informed the U.S. attorney's office he will use a defense of diminished mental capacity. He said he was making the disclosure in accordance with a new federal requirement that defense attorneys notify the prosecution when they intend to use such a course in the trial.

Miss Moore, 45, a onetime informant for the FBI and Treasury Department, was accused of firing a pistol at Ford Sept. 22 as he was emerging from a downtown hotel. The President was not hurt. Her trial starts Monday.

Road death toll drops

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National Safety Council says traffic fatalities on the nation's highways dropped again in October.

If the trend continues, the council said Monday, 1975 could match 1974 as the safest year on road since 1963.

The council said there were 3,980 fatalities in traffic accidents in October, or 8 per cent below the 4,330 fatalities in October, 1974 and 23 per cent below October, 1973 when the energy shortage had not yet taken hold.

For the first 10 months of 1975, the council said, 38,320 traffic fatalities were reported, 1 per cent above the first 10 months of 1974 and 19 per cent below the same period in 1973.

Results awaited

DETROIT (UPI) — A federal grand jury probing the disappearance of former Teamsters boss James R. Hoffa awaits its most crucial information — the results of a lineup during which a secret witness viewed three possible suspects.

They said only that the grand jury would resume taking testimony today.

Three New Jersey men appeared in the lineup Saturday before the government's secret witness, who claims he saw Hoffa abducted. If the identification was definite, federal authorities said, the government will ask the grand jury to return its first indictments in the case.

Two secret government witnesses said last week that they have knowledge of Hoffa's abduction and murder. U.S. Attorney Ralph B. Guy Jr. promised during the weekend that he would take the results of the court-ordered identification lineup to the grand jury.

Nebraska ruling threatens people's rights

WASHINGTON - This is shoptalk, but much more than shoptalk.

Justice Harry Blackmun's dismaying opinion in the matter of the Nebraska gag rule is a threat not only to a free press but ultimately to the rights of a free people as a whole.

memorandum urging the Nebraska Supreme Court to act. When that, too, failed to get a response, Blackmun on Nov. 20 acted on his own. Blackmun dropped a bombshell. He reversed the original gag order in part; he said some kind of things about the role of the press; he expressed his feeling that irreparable damage could be done to a free press if it were prevented from timely publication of the news.

sure enough, the press has behaved disgracefully. The cases of Dr. Sam Sheppard and Billie Sol Estes come to mind. A couple of other cases figure in Supreme Court papers. But such instances of truly damaging pre-trial coverage are exceedingly rare.

"publicizing particular facts will irreparably impair the ability of those exposed to them to reach an independent and impartial judgment as to guilt."

Miss Rodeo America has important work

What an honor for Betty Schnell, her home town of Rogersan and the whole Magic Valley. Betty was named 1976 Miss Rodeo America in competition with 42 women from throughout the United States and Canada.

It is a remarkable individual achievement for Betty. It also says something about Magic Valley young people in general.

There probably is something about life in the Magic Valley which helps youngsters grow straight and confident, a kind of wholeness which permeates the social structure.

We wish we could find the formula for this social ingredient so it could be spread elsewhere.

Perhaps this is the greatest challenge facing Betty and others like her. She will be put in the spotlight during the nation's bicentennial year, a year in which much thought will be given to the nation's roots.

We expect important things from Betty. Her deep community roots in the Magic Valley and her great personal vitality should give her a head start in this work.

U.S. food power

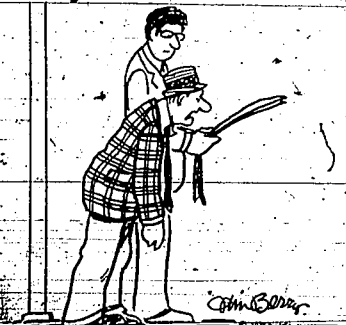

The current debate in Washington over food power as an instrument of international policy is in danger of missing the central point.

It makes no sense, therefore, to talk of withholding American food in an effort to get concessions from other nations - even the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

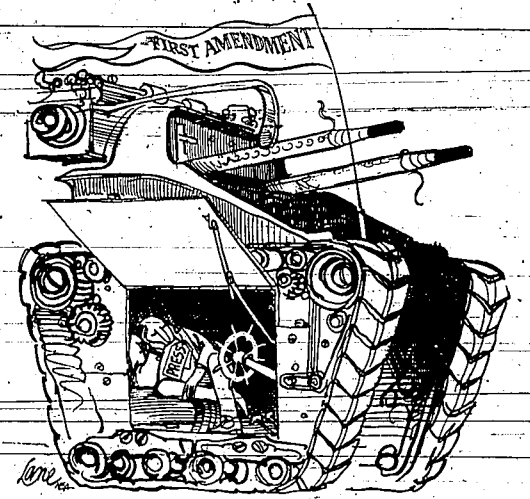

The Ford Administration seems to be moving in this direction. Its deal with the Russians setting maximum and minimum limits on grain buying for the next five years will help stabilize the market.

In dealing with the less developed nations, some of whom supply vital materials to industry, the U.S. should avoid both heavy-handed threats of embargo and large-scale giveaways.

Parental homework effort backfires

WASHINGTON - There is increasing evidence that students are not doing as well in school these days as they used to.

The national tests they take to get into college show that in most subjects this generation of scholars has taken a dive.

Mr. Buchwald, Gerald is 15 years old. When a boy gets to that age, there's so little a mother can do for him.

does do it himself. "You can say that, Mr. Buchwald, because you can't do it for him. I can't tell him how to play with it. I can't even tell him when to go to bed at night.

"That's not the point. The idea of writing a paper is to learn how to gather facts and then put them down. The teacher doesn't care what you or I have to say about the First Amendment.

But further, luxury rages among you, and luxury is the devil. The war has sent this evil demon to impoverish people and embarrass the public.

McGovern still problem

WASHINGTON - Sen. George McGovern to the contrary notwithstanding, the Democratic Party will take a good look at any pragmatic opportunity to "sell its soul" on the issue of school busing.

The South Dakotan undoubtedly is more spiritual than most Democratic big wheels; neither party is overlooked in that department.

This "was made evident at the National Democratic Issues Convention in Louisville, where a Washington pollster named Peter Harl conducted a straw vote among the 1,500 liberal party activists on the busing brawl.

True, a 54-to-37 per cent majority was generally "favorable" to busing, but only 13 per cent favored busing absolutely.

In fact, the Louisville convention was another sign that both Democrats and Republicans wish the busing controversy would go away at least until after next year's election.

Unless the Democratic Party goes completely crackers, McGovern's chances are roughly comparable to George Wallace's winning unanimous election as mayor of New York.

To these technicians, it's unimportant for McGovern to say, as he did in Louisville, that "Any candidate who says or implies that by supporting him the voters can stop busing will prove as President to be either a liar or a violator of the Constitution."

"Because all the mothers of the kids in Gerald's class use the encyclopedia," I wanted Gerald's paper to be more original.

"All right, I'm terribly busy now, but if you come by this afternoon I'll give you some information on it."

"I'll always be there when Gerald needs me. That's not the point. The idea of writing a paper is to learn how to gather facts and then put them down.

Pallo Alto, Calif. (UPI) - A self-described reverend who tried to make a citizen's arrest on a pair of pretty masseuses at a local massage parlor wound up behind bars instead.

Police said Gerald Edward Shamor, 47, went to the Tender Loving Care parlor early Wednesday and allegedly paid $20 for a rubdown and $45 for a sex act.

When officers arrived, they arrested Shamor for false imprisonment and left the girls alone.

Gem legislators rank low in pay

BOISE (UPI) — Potential candidates for legislative races in 1976 might keep in mind Idaho ranks 40th among the states in the total compensation paid to legislators.

A report on the salaries paid to legislators prepared by the Citizens' Conference on State Legislatures based in Denver, Colo., revealed the average biennial compensation totaled less than 10 per cent after adjustment for the cost of living and 24 per cent increase in sessions over the 1952-75 period.

In Idaho, legislators receive a $7,891 total biennial compensation, including a $600 annual salary, mileage, $35 per day for legislators outside Ada County and $25 per day for Ada County legislators to pay expenses during the session. They receive lodging expenses and $10 per day for meals for interim meetings.

The highest annual legislative salaries on figures available in August were in New York — $23,500, California — $21,120, and Illinois — $20,000.

The lowest salary paid among the 50 states was New Hampshire, $200 per biennium. Legislative salaries are augmented by per diem allowances, staff allowances or other perquisites. In California the allowance includes a leased automobile and gas credit card for all legislators, which, in terms of (1975) compensation, put California first and New York second.

The Idaho House Speaker and Senate President, Dan Tom, receive additional $5 per day for salary during the sessions. The salaries for all Idaho legislators are limited to 60 days.

The House Speaker in Louisiana receives an annual $25,000 salary in lieu of per diem and a maximum of $6,000 per year expenses. Massachusetts and New York both pay three-session leaders salaries of more than $24,000 per year.

The conference report noted that the higher salaries are deceptive because they are concentrated in a handful of states and the highest salaries are paid in the states with heavy work loads. California, Illinois and New York have the highest salaries.

The report said there is a disproportionate gap between the average annual legislator salary of $7,087 and the average annual salary of comparable positions in the private and public sector.

The average council member in cities of more than one million population, for example, earned $14,017 in 1972 while a Superior or District Court Judge earned an average of $27,713 in 1971.

The report said although most state legislators are empowered to raise their own salaries the "nerfing" so is one of the most controversial aspects of legislative activity. While the legislators are responsible for allocation and authorization of "hundreds of millions of tax dollars each year, their salaries on the average including expenses in 1975 were $9,943 or .06 per cent of the 1975 average state budget.

The Citizens Conference on State Legislatures is a non-partisan, not-for-profit organization which performs contract work for legislatures and conducts independent programs and research funded by government and foundation grants and corporate contributions.

Church backs transfer of CIA covert operations

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The State Department, not the CIA, should be in charge of secret U.S. operations in other countries, the Senate's chief spy-prober suggests.

Some covert action against other governments is good, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Monday, giving Portugal today as an example where such operations might serve "our historical principles."

Church, chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence which has been leading the investigation of the CIA and other secret agencies, was asked at a news conference what he would do with them if he were president.

"I would just take the whole covert operation wing and cut it out of the CIA entirely and diminish its size to about one-tenth its present size and place it in the State Department," he replied.

In the State Department, he said, such operations "would be subject to the overall policy considerations of our government in connection with the conduct of our foreign affairs."

excitement and danger. They are sitting around thinking up schemes for new interventions all over the world. And why are they doing it? Because they are professional intervenors. This is how they get promoted.

He said all secret operations would come to light eventually and the United States should operate so "that when our hand is exposed we could say 'Yes, we're damn proud of it.'"

Covert action should be used "only in those cases where the national survival might demand it or it clearly accords with our historical principles favoring free government."

An example might be aid to democratic forces in Portugal now struggling against the leftist military regime, he said, because "24 per cent of the people in a national referendum indicated their determination to establish a democratic government," but "power has gone to a very militant minority backed by certain elements of the army."

"I think we could find a proper way to do it," he said. This would be a switch from supporting corrupt dictators by "bribery, abduction, assassination and false propaganda."

The CIA cooks up "all kinds of plausible schemes" for the President, he said. "It's a very intoxicating thing if you are the president of the United States to think that you can fix it because you have the wherewithal, the experts,

McClure explains stance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James Mc Clure agreed with Gov. Cecil D. Andrus today for the need to maintain Idaho's clean air, but said he would continue to vote to allow Idahoans to make the decisions about their air.

The Idaho Republican Senator made the remark in response to a letter from Andrus.

"It seems to me that you, perhaps unintentionally, have placed yourself on the side of those who favor rigid standards which would well prove impossible to live with, and at the same time, urged me to support a denial of the right of the State of Idaho to make its own decisions," Mc Clure told Andrus.

He said the governor's charge that he had voted for the degradation of Idaho air quality was "just not true."

"I am glad to restate my commitment to preserving the goals of the Clean Air Act," Mc Clure said. "Nothing can be of greater interest to the people of Idaho than preserving the purity of the air and the water, which are such essential elements in the unique quality of life enjoyed by Idahoans."

The Senator, a member of the Environmental Pollution Subcommittee which is updating the Clean Air Act, said standards should be written as precisely as possible. He added, however, they should not be written "so rigidly as to destroy our best efforts."

He said the decisions for Idahoans should be made in Idaho and "not by senseless bureaucratic 2,500 miles away in Washington, D.C."

Mc Clure told Andrus that after the Clean Air Act is passed, anyone will have to make decisions about the implementation of the Act.

Noting the development of Buevys-Eric in Pocatello and the Hewlett-Packard Company in Boise, Mc Clure said each of these environmentally clean industries would still have some effect on Idaho's air.

"It might just be automobile exhaust from cars needed to transport the thousands of employees to and from work," Mc Clure said.

He said he voted to allow Idahoans to make the decisions on the implementation of the Clean Air Act, but "apparently my vote has been misunderstood by some who would urge me to allow the federal bureaucracy to make those decisions."

US blocks raid condemnation

By United Press International
The United States has cast its 12th veto in U.N. history to block a proposed Security Council resolution condemning Israeli air raids into Lebanon.

The veto came Monday night after the Council refused to add a U.S.-sponsored amendment condemning all violence in the Middle East.

"We worked strenuously for a balanced resolution," U.S. Ambassador Daniel Moynihan told the Council. "We have reluctantly had to veto the resolution which we made clear from the beginning we did not consider balanced."

Only one veto is needed to kill a major resolution in the 15-member Council. The final vote was 13 in favor of abstaining.

The resolution came in response to Israeli air raids last month against what it said were guerrilla bases in Lebanon. Palestinian sources said about 100 persons were killed in the attacks. Moynihan said that while the United States guerrilla attacks into Israel from Lebanon should also be condemned.

Lebanese Ambassador Edouard Ghorri said he regretted the U.S. action, especially in view of warm Lebanese relations with Washington.

"But the fact that it was not adopted does not detract from its value," Ghorri said. "The condemnation is there whether it was voted or not voted. The condemnation was voted by 13 members of this council."

The vote followed debate that included the unprecedented participation of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Israeli Ambassador Chaim Herzog, who boycotted the session because of the PLO presence, deplored the "lack of morality" of the majority of the council. He praised the U.S. vote as being "in favor of decency."

The proposed resolution condemned the raids and warned of U.N. sanctions against Israel in the event of future military action.

Ailing Brezhnev seen holding post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some Communist diplomats say the Russians appear to have become more interested in reaching a new strategic arms agreement as Moscow party congress nears and as Brezhnev's health improves.

The Boston Globe indicated that deterioration of Brezhnev's health, rather than improvement, was giving a push to the arms talks.

The official, talking to reporters about the plans for bringing Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger back from Asia Monday, said Brezhnev has been reported making some improvement in his health recently.

What, if any, effect the state of Brezhnev's health may have on the next round of U.S.-Soviet arms talks was not clear, Kissinger is preparing to go to Moscow around Dec. 19 to try to reach a compromise on the recently stalled strategic arms limitation talks.

Kissinger and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin held an unannounced meeting at the State Department late Monday to discuss Kissinger's forthcoming trip — and possibly also Angola, where Russia backs one faction fighting for control of the new nation.

Police kill man in Basque region

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Police making identity checks shot and killed a man today in the explosive Basque region of northern Spain.

The victim's girl friend was injured in the second such incident in less than a week.

According to Spanish news agency reports, Pedro Jose Talasa Golecochea, 28, was killed and his companion injured when police opened fire on his car near the town of Beasain.

Reports said the car was parked by the roadside, but started to move when two rural police officers approached to make an identity check.

Officers in the Basque country have been on the lookout for armed bands of separatists who have fought numerous gun battles with police in the past months.

Last Wednesday a suspected member of the separatist group Basque Homeland and Liberty was killed in a gunfight between police and guerrillas at a spot less than three miles from today's incident.

In Madrid, meanwhile, outlawed left-wing groups marked an important socialist anniversary with calls for more street demonstrations to test the new reign of King Juan Carlos I.

Brezhnev seeking break in arms talk deadlock

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev called today for a breakthrough in the stalled Washington Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

The Soviet Communist Party general secretary also proposed Europe-wide meetings on power, transport and pollution.

Brezhnev, trying to create a post-Helsinki spirit of mutual trust, made the remarks in the course of a largely conciliatory 25-minute address to the Polish Communist party congress.

Stressing the need for military detente, he said "progress in negotiations on the reduction of arms and armed forces could contribute a step forward in this field."

Brezhnev said this was an aim "for which we strive sincerely."

Soviet leader made no specific proposals, but Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is expected to visit Moscow before Christmas to try to resolve the SALT deadlock. The talks are mired over whether to include Soviet backfire bombers and U.S. Cruise missiles in ceilings limiting each country's arsenal of nuclear weapons.

Brezhnev pledged Communist states to unfailing efforts for lasting peace, saying, "We will try to ensure the earth is not engulfed in the flames of a nuclear conflagration."

Proposing the meetings between the Communist and non-Communist countries of Europe, the Soviet party boss said "no small advantage could be gained by convening all European conferences and interstate conferences on environmental protection, transport and power industry."

Looking relaxed in a light blue suit and red striped tie, Brezhnev called on all signatories of the Helsinki pact on European security to create a moral atmosphere of mutual trust and cooperation so there could be "concrete results" at a follow-up meeting planned in Belgrade in 1977.

Brezhnev also denounced "traitors to the cause of socialism." In what analysts here saw as a tacit reference to China.

The Soviet leader received a two-minute standing ovation when he rose to address the congress, keynoted Monday by Polish party First Secretary Edward Gierek.

Australia battered
PERTH, Australia (UPI) — Cyclone Joan lashed two iron mining towns in northwestern Australia today with torrential rain and 155 mile per hour winds.

The cyclone struck Mount Tom Price and Paraburdoo, uprooting trees, lifting roofs and sweeping the district with flooding rain, a police spokesman said.

Cyclone Joan, which formed in the Timor Sea north-northwest of Darwin a week ago, swept down the northwest coast of Australia before crossing inland Monday near the iron ore exporting town of Port Hedland, 1,050 miles north of Perth.

No Arthur of legend in sight for Democrats

BY ARNOLD SAWISLAK
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the legend of Arthur the true king proves his worthiness by extracting the great sword Excalibur from solid rock. The wishful hope of Democrats for a recantment of that myth in 1976 has been dashed.

In the past year, 10 Democrats have declared themselves candidates for the 1976 presidential nomination. At least three others may yet enter the "race," depending on events between the beginning of delegate selection next month and the start of the Democratic national convention July 12-21 Madison Square Garden.

There is an untidy and confusing situation, for the party. Despite the adoption of detailed rules that seem supposed to give everyone a fair chance to vie for the presidential nomination, there seems to be a strong emotional feeling within the party that the Democrats should already have a front-runner, a "natural" candidate. This is the kind of feeling that helped put Sen. Edmund Muskie out front for the 1972 nomination, and despite what happened to him, Democrats have been spending most of this fall seeking a way to cull their herd for a likely winner.

The party's liberal wing, blessed (or cursed) with more people who want to be President than other Democratic factions, was the first to begin the search for a champion. It sponsored five regional forums at which candidates were asked to present themselves to rank and file Democrats for inspection and testing.

Although several candidates seem to have improved their positions as a result of the forums, no single figure emerged as the candidate of the liberals.

Then the Democratic governors decided to try the same system. They called the candidates to their winter conference here last week to talk about issues of importance to the states and to answer questions. Nine of the 10 showed up and the result was the same: the sword remained in the rock.

The governors' forum was the only one at which both middle of the road Democratic candidates — Sens. Henry Jackson of Washington and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas — appeared. Although the governors are supposed to lean toward the right in party affairs, neither senator set the meeting on fire.

Troddenly, the result just may have to blur the picture. Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, one of the most liberal governors, said what he got out of the forum was a feeling that both senators are capable and attractive men he would feel politically comfortable with.

And — ever though his "New Populism" rhetoric seems far too rich for many of the more-conservative governors, former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma got as friendly a reception and as warm a response from the conference as any of the candidates.

The forums did have one constructive result for the Democrats. First, they began the necessary process of getting people interested in the campaign to come. Second, they helped sharpen the issues and cross-fertilize the candidates' positions on national problems.

Examples of the latter were seen when Jackson came up with an idea for increasing federal educational expenditures that was very close to a proposal offered earlier in the year by former Gov. Terry Sanford. Sen. Birch Bayh expressed interest in the 2000-base budgeting espoused by former Gov. Jimmy Carter, and Rep. Morris Udall proposed a comprehensive new transportation trust fund that apparently grew out of Gov. Milton Shapp's plan for a railroad trust fund.

Former US propagandist accepts role in movie

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — America's counterpart to Tokyo Rose of World War II is going into the movies.

Mitsu Yashima, who entreated Japanese women to sabotage the war effort in the home islands, will debut as the grandmother in "Farewell to Manzanar," a two-hour depiction of the wartime relocation of Japanese-Americans.

During the conflict, Mrs. Yashima worked for the Office of Strategic Services, first in Washington and then in San Francisco in 1944-45, recording propaganda broadcasts which were then shipped to Saipan for beaming to Japan.

"My job was to talk to the women in Japan and urge them to run away from the war effort," Mrs. Yashima recalled. "Yes, I knew about Tokyo Rose and what she was saying to the American soldiers. I hated her because I thought how could anybody help the Japanese army?"

Mrs. Yashima, who now lives in San Francisco, came to the United States before the war. She and her husband, Taro, left Japan because they found themselves increasingly at odds with mounting Japanese militarism.

The daughter of a shipbuilding company executive, she had studied in an illegal Marxist group in the 30s and was jailed by the Japanese secret police. She spent nearly nine months in a six-foot-jail cell shared with five to 15 other prisoners. She was never brought before a judge and suffered several beatings before her release.

The couple later left a 5-year-old son, Mako, with relatives and fled to New York. They were there when war came. In 1942, Mako was released. An offer of repatriation to Japan was refused.

"I knew I was doing the right thing," Mrs. Yashima said of the decision to join the U.S. war effort. "I felt that Japan had to be defeated because they didn't treat the Japanese people right or the Chinese or the Korean people. That kind of power had to be destroyed."

Ten years after that decision, the Yashimas were reunited with Mako. He later became an actor and won an Academy Award nomination for his role in "The Sand Pebbles." Mako also will appear in "Farewell to Manzanar."

"I feel the same way when people complain about the U.S. throwing that bomb in Hiroshima. After all, who started the war?" "But it should never be used again. Never!"

Feds battle choppers

By LINDA LEE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS Forest Service officials, after setting aside areas for the public to cut Christmas trees, are saying more than "Bah, humbug!" to persons caught with trees illegally cut from National Forest lands.

Lew Munson, district ranger in Twin Falls for the Sawtooth National Forest, said today county sheriffs in Twin Falls and Cassia are assigning deputies to patrol the South Hills area against the illegal removal of Christmas trees.

While the Sawtooth forest is not experiencing the large scale theft of young trees that is occurring in other western states, all accessible areas of the Sawtooth forest are being illegally scanned by individuals looking for Christmas trees.

Munson said some families are taking trees from special experimental plots, from campgrounds, and from the tops of older trees without the approval of forest officials.

"They have done it for so many years," Munson said, "that we may not have any trees coming up for the future."

According to Munson, any person caught taking a Christmas tree without a permit will be fined $1,000 and/or given a six month jail sentence.

Pal Sheehan, information officer for the Intermountain Region of the Forest Service, which includes the Sawtooth Forest, said several recent arrests and eight convictions involving large scale tree thefts are examples of the seriousness of the problem.

Agency officials list the illegal cutting and sale of Christmas trees from National Forests as a major problem in much of the region. The eight offenders who were convicted in federal court in Utah this year received sentences of one to five years in prison.

Felony charges are pending against another individual charged with the unauthorized removal of several hundred trees from Ashley National Forest.

Sheehan attributes the recent arrest to stepped-up law enforcement efforts by trained Forest Service investigators.

The use of aerial surveillance to supplement ground patrols and more sophisticated methods of gathering evidence.

"The trees taken are usually the best in the stand," Sheehan said. "The poorly formed, slow growing trees are then left as a future timber crop."

The indiscriminate removal of young trees damages critical watersheds and reduces scenic values in campgrounds and along popular travel routes," Sheehan said.

He added funds needed to pay for accelerated law enforcement efforts often must be diverted from money allotted for other timber management activities. It can mean a reduction in the volume of timber sold to local operators through regular Forest Service sale procedures and a resulting reduction in revenue shared with county school and road funds.

The greatest problem, Sheehan said, seems to be on forest lands reasonably close to large metropolitan areas that are accessible late in the year.

"As the retail price of Christmas trees increases, illegal cutting becomes more profitable and thus more inviting."

According to Lew Munson, there is only one accessible area in the Sawtooth Forest which Forest officials believe will withstand the legal sale of Christmas trees this year. The area is 15 miles north of Ketchum. It is the snowmobile parking area at Pasko Park. Tree removal permits will be issued on Dec. 13, 14, 20 and 21 at this site.

CHRISTMAS lights have appeared all around Twin Falls with one of the brightest displays being the KLEX-mas tree in front of the KLEX radio station. Workers put up lights on the huge tree last week.

Wiretap leads to drug raid

By BART QUENNEL
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — Using information obtained in a wiretap of a long-distance phone call, Ketchum police officers took a small camper trailer Saturday hoping to make a major drug arrest.

Instead, police found only three ounces of marijuana in the possession of a New Jersey man who has pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor drug charge.

Acting on a tip from New Jersey crime investigators, Dennis Haynes, Ketchum police chief, obtained a warrant to enter a camper trailer belonging to Russell Paraski, New Jersey, and charged with Mountain Meadows Trailer Park.

The action began Saturday as Haynes, working on information from a New Jersey prosecuting attorney's office, sought and received a warrant from Fifth District Judge Douglas Kramer to enter Paraski's camper-trailer.

Haynes' justification for the warrant was based on information from Merrill Kelly, Idaho Bureau of Narcotics, who received his information from Leo Cebelin, an investigator with the prosecutor's office in Westfield, N. J.

Cebelin told Kelly the New Jersey office had installed a wiretap to number 726-9469 which was Paraski's number.

Haynes wrote that a transcript of a conversation between suspect Paraski and David Harris, Union County, N. J., indicated Paraski wanted to establish "a good snow" connection in Blaine County.

The warrant justification continued, "Paraski said that this is a 'high quality place' and that he could move a pound of snow every couple of days."

Paraski said that "they just got some last night. I mean it's big chunks and neck, the best you know."

According to Haynes' statement, the New Jersey prosecuting attorney's office indicated Harris was arrested on narcotics charges in Union County, Dec. 5, and that the search at Harris' apartment turned up the phone number of Paraski.

Buhl Bicentennial celebration OK'd

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

BUHL — Buhl's celebration next Fourth of July has been authorized as an official Bicentennial observance, Wayne Moberg told Chamber of Commerce members at the Monday luncheon.

He said the official authorization, allowing use of official insignia has just been received. The Buhl festival will involve the entire West End of Twin Falls County, he said.

The chamber vice president, who heads the Horizon portion of the observance, said plans are well launched by the large Bicentennial committee headed by Cecil Childs.

He said members of the Buhl Artists guild will display paintings of local history beginning after the first of the year. The observance will include Heritage section, dealing with the area's history, the festival which will be concentrated in the three-day July 4 weekend and Horizon 76, which deals with the future of the community.

He said a parade is scheduled for 1 p.m. July 4, with many area school bands and service groups to participate.

"We hope to have a regular 'old fashioned' July 4 celebration here that Sunday," Moberg said. Churches will be asked to set up booths and three bands will bring a variety of music from modern rock to oldtime styles.

Tournaments for as many types of sports as possible are planned, he said. These include horseshoe, tennis and both softball and baseball. Preliminary games will be scheduled in advance, so the championship contests can be scheduled on the weekend, Moberg said.

'Stack-sack' building in TF

TWIN FALLS — A new building process, born during LBJ's Great Society years and raised in third-world countries like Bangladesh has come to Twin Falls.

Called the stack-sack method, the process is relatively simple, quick and low cost.

The process also yields a building that is durable and attractive, backers say.

Stack-sack is just what it sounds like: A mixture of cement, sand and gravel is poured dry into rectangular burlap sacks; the sacks are soaked in water, and then piled up like sand bags or pliable bricks.

The method is being used on a building under construction for Rent-All's Reg Atlix, Duard Lawley owns the Stack-Sack franchise in the area and Dennis Buhler of Buhler Construction is heading up the work crew. The building is on the corner of Washington Street and Fourth Avenue West.

A special machine bags the concrete, then workers sack the bags in water for about 20 seconds. After that, Lawley explains, "You lay 'em up basically like brick."

Reinforced steel rods are driven through the concrete bags every foot along the walls for lateral support and laid along the sides for horizontal support.

When the concrete hardens a cement finish is sprayed on the inside and outside of the building. The surface can be left rough and textured from the shape of the bags or troweled to a smooth, even finish.

Stack-sack construction was designed in 1966 by a Dallas, Tex., builder. Since then, the buildings have been constructed in 80 foreign countries, backers say, and have figured in low-cost housing projects around the United States.

The cost of a stack-sack building is considerably less than a brick building and, Lawley said, slightly less than a cinderblock building. When the stack-sack construction is finished, it is vapor proof, water proof and vermin proof, he added.

Walls are a minimum of nine inches thick, he said, so the building resists the warm in the winter and cool in the summer.

The lower costs result for several reasons. First, no forms are necessary with stack-sack buildings; unlike other concrete structures, and unskilled labor can be used efficiently to complete the basic structure.

The stack-sack method of building has Federal Housing Administration and Farmers Home Administration approval as well as approval by the International Conference of Building Officials, Lawley said.

The buildings are accepted as earthquake-proof buildings in the Andes Mountains, Lawley added.

Once one of these is built, it'll take a good, solid Sherman tank to pull one of these walls down," Lawley said.

Camas nips Dietrich in final seconds

DIETRICH — A cripple off a steal carried Camas County's girls past Dietrich 31-20 Monday night.

Dietrich, trailing most of the night in its first outing of the season, rallied into a one-point lead with 36 seconds left. But Geisler stole a pass and dribbled the length of the gym for the deciding points. The Mustangs added two more in the final seconds.

Camas County led 15-10 at halftime.

Designated hitter kept

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — The baseball rules committee Monday adopted, by a 6-3 vote, the designated hitter rule as optional for all baseball.

This does not mean the rule which has been in effect the past four years in the American League, will be adopted by the National League. It simply means the designated hitter will no longer be considered experimental.

Under the new rule, any league, major or minor, which wants to adopt the DH may do so with a majority vote.

LA hurler has four crowns

NEW YORK (UPI) — Andy Messersmith of the Los Angeles Dodgers failed to win 20 games but led the National League pitchers in four categories, official figures compiled by the Elias Sports Bureau revealed today.

Messersmith, who had a 19-14 won-loss record, led in games started with 40, complete games with 19, innings with 322 and shutouts with seven.

Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres led the league in earned run average with 2.24 and with a 20-12 record was one of the circuit's two 20-game winners. The other was Tom Seaver of the New York Mets who had a 22-9 mark and was voted the league's Cy Young Award.

Messersmith ranked second to Jones with a 2.29 ERA followed by Seaver with 2.36. Jerry Reuss of the Pittsburgh Pirates with 2.54 and Bob Forsch of the St. Louis Cardinals with 2.86.

Relief star Al Hrabosky of the St. Louis Cardinals had the highest percentage among pitchers with 15 or more decisions — an .813 mark for winning 13 games against three losses.

Ravely Eastwick of the Cincinnati Reds and Hrabosky tied for the most saves, with 22 each, while Rick Reuschel of the Chicago Cubs led the league in losses with 12.

Burt Hooton, who lost his first two decisions, was traded to Los Angeles, finished the season by winning his last 12 decisions, the longest streak of the season.

pleted their regular state two weeks ago but saw one of their major challengers, previously undefeated Texas A&M, fall by the wayside. Woody Hayes' squad received 379 of a possible 380 points, earning all but one of the 29 first-place votes cast from the 42 eligible coaches, and widened its lead to 78 points, now over Oklahoma, which was given the other No. 1 designation.

The Aggies, on their way to a perfect season and a Cotton Bowl berth, were upset by Arkansas, 21-6, Saturday and dropped from second to sixth place at 10-1. Meanwhile, the Razorbacks, now 9-2, jumped from a tie for 15th to rank 10th, the first time this season they have ranked in the top 10 and will go against 9-2 Georgia, ranked 14th, in the Cotton Bowl.

As a result of the Aggies' loss — the only action for any of the top 20 teams — Oklahoma, Alabama, Michigan and Nebraska each moved up one notch to fill the Nos. 2 through 5 positions, respectively.

The Sooners, 10-3, are headed for the Orange Bowl against the Wolverines, 8-2; the Crimson Tide, 10-1, will play eight-ranked Penn State, 9-2, in the Sugar Bowl; and the Cornhuskers, 10-1, are headed for the Fiesta Bowl against No. 7 Arizona State, all 11-0 (one of their unbeaten major college team other than Ohio State. Neither the Sun Devils nor Nittany Lions changed positions since last week.

Texas, 9-2, remained ninth and will go to the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl, where it will face 9-2 Colorado, which dropped one place to fifth.

UCLA, 8-4, Ohio State's Rose Bowl opponent which lost to the Buckeyes 42-20 earlier this year, dropped to 13th, followed by Florida, 9-2, Gator Bowl-bound Arizona, 9-2, and California, 8-3.

NBA delays draft of ABA's players

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Basketball Association agreed in Federal Court Monday to postpone Tuesday's special draft of five American Basketball Association players.

Lawyers for the NBA owners and the ABA players association appeared before Judge Robert Carter in Manhattan Federal Court in connection with an ABA attempt to file a suit concerning an ABA-NBA merger.

During discussion on this move, the ABA asked Carter to issue a restraining order against the draft of the five under-age players, who include Moses Malone, a high school player who went directly to the professionals.

Rather than issue the restraining order, Carter suggested that the NBA voluntarily postpone the special draft, and after some discussion, NBA lawyer David Stern agreed that his league would do so.

The ABA players on Dec. 1 filed papers alleging that the New York Nets, the Denver Nuggets and John Y. Brown of the Kentucky Colonels, all ABA teams, were conspiring to drive the ABA out of business and thus facilitate merger of the two leagues.

It was brought out in Monday's legal proceedings that Carter had on Friday refused to allow the ABA to intervene in that Dec. 1 suit, and on Monday, the ABA therefore sought to file a related suit, details of which were not revealed.

Carter agreed to allow that suit to be filed after Stern agreed to postponement of the draft. No new date was set for the special draft.

New Gem driver testing law may create state problems with US

BOISE (UPI) — While many Idahoans would welcome the chance to renew their driver's licenses without taking a written examination every three years, such a law may cause the state some real problems with the federal government.

Sen. Dan Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, has announced he will file a bill providing that an Idaho citizen who has a clean driving record during the previous three years of his license period would not have to take a written examination to renew his license.

"This legislation will cut red tape and help Idaho's citizens," Watkins said.

Although it may cut "red tape" in the renewal of a license, Pat Ehrlich, Idaho Traffic Safety Commission director, said it also could bring federal sanctions on the state.

Ms. Ehrlich and State Law Enforcement Commissioner John Bender explained that it was contrary to federal standards which require reexamination of drivers at least every four years.

Also, Bender pointed out that the national trend is away from less stringent testing.

Bender noted that there also was opposition to reducing the standards because a person's physical condition, such as his eyesight, may change during that time.

Ms. Ehrlich said if Idaho's present law was changed, the federal government could take away all Highway Safety funds and 10 per cent of the federal funds for highway construction.

She said already the federal government was placing sanctions on states which either have repealed or have never passed vehicle safety inspection laws and do not have motorcycle helmet provisions.

Presently, she said, there are proceedings against California, Utah and Illinois on motorcycle helmet laws.

"Reexamination is one of the important areas coming up for sanction consideration in the next couple of years," she said.

She said there were very few states that "do not have periodic examinations" for renewal of driver's licenses.

"Let's face it, it's a time for refreshing people's minds and reminding them when they have to renew their licenses," Ms. Ehrlich said. "We go back and read the rules of the road and refresh our memories on what we are suppose to be doing as drivers."

She said she also was concerned that a change in the law would be "rewarding the guys that don't get caught."

"There's just as many who don't get caught," she said. "So we're saying if there's no conviction, he doesn't have to take a written exam."

Uranium information pool advised

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — The nation's energy crisis makes it essential that uranium and thorium exploration companies pool their information to reduce costly duplication and improve their exploration work, a federal energy expert said Monday.

"The United States is not just experiencing an energy crisis," said Dr. Charles Masters, chief of the U.S. Geological Survey Office of Energy Resources. "We are involved with an energy revolution that promises to significantly alter our way of life."

Masters, who is based in Reston, Va., made the remarks at a Uranium and Thorium Research and Resources Conference at the Colorado School of Mines. He said his agency intended to develop and maintain a computerized file of data on uranium and thorium deposits, and exploration.

The nation's present uranium and thorium resources are adequate to fuel existing and planned nuclear reactors until 1982, he said.

"It is unthinkable that decades of nuclear energy research would terminate at a premature date owing to inadequate resources," Masters told the opening session of the three-day conference.

"To achieve the required resource additions will require a national effort that must transcend proprietary information development."

Masters said he was not suggesting that there be no further confidential data because he realized the economic well-being of the industry demands the resultant successful and timely development of adequate uranium-thorium resources," Masters said.

Also speaking at the conference was Richard Gratch, a Geological Survey official based in Denver. Gratch said uranium deposits were more common in the eastern United States than previously believed.

Withholding hike temporary

BOISE (UPI) — Thousands of Idaho wage earners may have smaller pay checks the first couple of months of next year.

However, the Internal Revenue Service in Boise assured wage earners that while withholding taxes may be greater the first couple of months, everything will be straightened out in the long run.

The IRS said withholding for millions of Americans could be in error for the first six weeks of 1976 because of Congressional delays in acting on extension of a tax cut which expires Dec. 31.

Tax Specialist Betty Dresser of the Boise office of the IRS said over 15,000 Idaho businesses will be affected and thousands of Idaho employees will have more withheld during the first six weeks of the year.

She said the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 that expires at the end of the year applies to withholding taxes. She said beginning last year less money was withheld from checks in the form of withholding tax due to the tax reduction.

She said unless Congress passes a bill to continue the act or comes up with new tax scales, she will have to revert back to the tax tables of 1973.

She said there is legislation pending in Congress right now, but it would have to clear a number of committees before being passed, and then would have to be approved by the President.

"The tax official said the IRS is urging taxpayers to contact Congressional delegations asking adoption of a resolution that would circumvent the problem."

New Hampshire primary battle 'looms large'

Town for sale

MILICAN, Ore. (UPI) — The Bill Mallin has the Christmas present for someone who has everything, but it would be tough to gift wrap.

They have decided to sell their home of 30 years — the town of MILICAN.

For considerably less than $100,000 one can buy this entire central Oregon desert town — a small grocery, living quarters, garage, gas station, lunch counter, motel, antique shop, electric and to surrounding areas. It is on U. S. 20 about 30 miles east of Bend.

Mrs. Mallin said the purchasers of Millican is what she and her husband enjoy the most — "it's out of the way and it's quiet. No smog or anything like that," she said.

"What about neighbors?" "We have neighbors six miles in that direction," said Mallin, waving an arm toward the desert.

The Mallins say they want to sell their town so they can "travel and camp, not to be the mark all the time."

By STEWART POWELL
CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — President Ford makes his first stand against Ronald Reagan 10 weeks from now in what is New Hampshire, the state where two presidents have seen their hopes of additional terms go glimmering.

Ford and Reagan go to the voters Feb. 24 in the nation's first presidential primary. For the President, it will be his first campaign outside the Michigan congressional district, which sent him to Washington for 25 years.

New Hampshire will send only 21 Republican delegates to the national convention in Kansas City next August, but because it is the first test for both "meat" in presidential politics, the primary looms large.

Ford plans two or three days of campaign appearances before the primary. Reagan has scheduled 18 and Ford organizers say privately they need more of the President's time.

Reagan already has taken advantage of his flexibility as a full time candidate. While the Ford operation slogged through tedious details of campaign organization, Reagan jettied in for a rousing personal appearance hours after declaring his candidacy.

The Reagan campaign got its literature to the state's 165,000 registered Republicans more than a month before the competition and an intensive telephone canvass quickly followed to locate support by the end of December.

Reagan aides claimed in mid-October the former California governor would get 40 per cent of the vote. They think that is sufficient to be interpreted as a triumph over an incumbent president.

Ford aides insist that it takes more than 30 per cent to claim victory. A poll taken by the Ford campaign in October had the President leading Reagan by 4 or 5 per cent with a large number of voters undecided.

In the past, the New Hampshire primary has carried show of strength against a challenger. Three weeks after Sen. Eugene McCarthy got 42 per cent of the vote against a stand-in for — Lyndon B. Johnson, the President — announced he would not seek reelection.

And in 1952, a stronger than predicted New Hampshire showing by Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., helped convince Harry Truman to take the train back to Independence, Mo., at the end of his term.

While Republicans argue conflicting definitions of victory, at least five Democrats shun talk of winning and look instead merely for a "good showing" in their competition for 17 delegates for the July convention in New York City.

All seem eager to avoid the frontrunner "javelin" that damaged Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, in 1972 when he failed to achieve a big victory in New Hampshire.

Soon after declaring for president in November, 1974, Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., recruited many of the state's experienced activists. As he worked behind the scenes to expand a grass roots organization, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia rolled on an early series of public appearances to attract fresh volunteers. Former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma also sought new volunteers, focusing his drive on a year-long series of coffee klatches in private homes.

The decision of Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., to join the race in October brought in a core of about 60 supporters who had been waiting to organize for him ever since he dropped out of the 1972 campaign.

Senator Shriver, the party's 1972 vice-presidential candidate, adopted a strategy of all-out public campaigning to overcome the lag in organization.

New Ford fund-raiser dedicated

N.Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Robert A. Mosbacher, President Ford's new campaign fund-raiser, describes himself with pride and pleasure as an oil and gas "wrecker," a sailor, an admirer of Ford and, with reluctance, as a millionaire.

Mr. Mosbacher, 42, took on a job that his predecessor, David W. Packard, left after three months. Mosbacher has worked for Ford since 1968, from his business and from his wife's four children and two grandchildren. He has also abandoned plans to buy a new boat and try out for the next Olympic.

"I did this," he said, "because I believe — and I know this is going to sound like a cliché — that the President is a good President. He is a fine, honest, intelligent man doing a good job."

Mosbacher added that in his view, Ford "is the only electable Republican" and of just such an alternative is going to be socialism.

In 1971 and early 1972, Mosbacher was the Republican National Finance Chairman for Texas, and later worked, he said, on business and industry for the Nixon reelection.

In 1972, he said at a news conference last week, he contributed about $20,000 to President Nixon's reelection campaign. "A lot of money to me," he said. Asked how much he was worth, Mosbacher dodged — and feigned — good-naturedly, saying first "I don't know," then "I know my income is slightly in excess of my outgo," and finally "I suppose actually my worth is more than a million dollars."

Robert Adam Mosbacher was born March 11, 1927, into a moneyed family in Mount Vernon, N.Y. He went to the Choate School in Connecticut and then to Washington and Lee University, where he graduated with a degree in business administration in 1947. The next year he was off for Houston.

"I fell in love with Houston when I first arrive," he said.

He went there, he said, because "I wanted to be a wildcatter. I wanted to live in the West — or Southwest — Moshbacher, who has real estate and ranching interests aside from being an oil and gas producer, is a passionate sailor like his brother, Emil Mosbacher. He has won medals in two Olympic sailing classes — dragons and solings — and is an outstanding ocean racer.

Mosbacher seems guardedly confident that he can succeed where Packard failed. Asked if, he thought he could get along harmoniously with Howard Callaway, Ford's campaign manager,

Cuban force in Angola disclosed

Washington Star
WASHINGTON — A Cuban army lieutenant captured by the Anti-Russian National Front for the Total Independence of Angola (known as UNITA, from its initials in Portuguese) in Angola was admitted that the Cuban force in the former Portuguese African colony has now risen to 10,000 men.

The source said the Cuban force acknowledged that the force sent to rebellion-torn Angola are not volunteers, as Moscow and Havana have claimed. He talked readily to his UNITA captors, U.S. officials have learned, and said that the Cuban troop units felt deceived when they arrived in Angola believing they were to fight "colonialists" and found themselves killing other Angolans.

UNITA is allied with Holden Roberto's National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA) rebel forces against the pro-Soviet Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) which controls the capital of Luanda, and four of Angola's 16 provinces. South Africa, Zaire, the Peoples Republic of China and — with great caution — the United States are backing the FNLA-UNITA group against the MPLA of Marxist leader Agostinho Neto. The Soviet Union is using giant antonov transport planes to bring U.S. to try vast amounts of arms and ammunition to the Luanda forces.

The anti-MPLA nations are encountering severe difficulties in attempting to counter the massive Soviet and Cuban intervention. China is leading moral support, but is too far away from the scene.

U.S. involvement is limited to the $40 million in arms it can legally provide to Zaire, the former Belgian Congo.

The South Africans, who dread the rise of a pro-Russian Marxist regime in Angola, would probably step up their intervention, considerable

Hazelton miss, Black exchange marriage vows

Tuesday, December 9, 1975 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

Hazelton — Kathy Denine Hensley and Steven Brent Black were married in Nov. 21 rites in the LDS Church in Hazelton.

The ceremony was performed by Bishop Donald Black, uncle of the groom, before baskets of yellow and orange mums, greenery and fall colored leaves.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elsworth Hensley, Hazelton, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dan Black, Eden.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white gown of bridal satin. It featured a chapel-length train, long full sleeves with wide lace cuffs and a lace yoke with hand-headed pearls.

Her floor-length veil of illusion net was held by a tulle-trimmed with seed pearls and lace. The gown and veil were designed by the bride and sewn by Mrs. T. H. Clark, Jerome.

The bride's bouquet was a cascade of roses, yellow carnations, baby's breath, lilies of the valley and yellow ribbon streamers carried on a white Bible, a gift from the bridegroom.

The bride's jewelry included a diamond-heart-necklace and gift from the bridegroom, diamond earrings borrowed from her grandmother and her great-grandmother's wedding band.

Vaida Tattersall, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Cheryl Black, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid.

The bride's table was covered with white lace over yellow satin with yellow bows. It was centered with four-tiered cake decorated with white frosting and white-yellow and orange flowers and cupid. It was topped with miniature cupid. Fresh flowers and greenery around the bottom of the cake completed the decorations.

El Verta Manning, Venita Carter, Robin Briley and Jan Lewis served the cake and punch. Also helping with the serving were Alvinia Sellers, Sandy Kyle, Cindy Pullin and Niki Henry.

Female influence lacking in politics

Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — You've come a long way, baby — but you've still got a long way to go.

That's the gist of a survey of women in politics by a young political scientist, Kathleen Newland of the Washington-based World-watch Institute, a think tank specializing in global issues.

We may be on the threshold of a real surge in female influence in local, national and world politics, Newland believes. But we haven't crossed it yet, and in some countries we're not even near the threshold.

Talking about her 37-page monograph, "Women in Politics: A Global Review," at a recent news conference, Newland pointed out that even in countries where the female political presence is ostensibly greatest, politics is still a man's game.

This is especially true in the Communist nations where female participation in governmental affairs is greatest. 73 per cent of Communist cabinet members are women, 46 per cent at local and regional Soviet levels, in Russia). Get up into the decision-making ranks in these countries, Newland says, and there's hardly a woman to be found.

Except in rare instances in the past (Cleopatra, Catherine the Great, Elizabeth I) and the present (Jindira Gandhi, Golda Meir, Sirimavo Bandaranaike of Sri Lanka), women haven't reached the top. And when they have, they've tended to seek the advice and close counsel of men rather than women, she points out.

And when male leaders seek women as close associates, outside "the boarder," they usually give them cabinet posts in what Newland calls "soft" areas of concern (Oveta Culp Hobby as Eisenhower's welfare secretary, Carla Hills as Ford's secretary of Housing and Urban Development).

There are exceptions, of course (France, Finland as the labor secretary, in Roosevelt's labor-conscious government, Meir as foreign minister under David Ben Gurion) but they deal with "hospital" professions, women children — not issues men consider important," Newland said.

MR. AND MRS. KARL BOX

Miss Doshier, Box recite vows

TWIN FALLS — Connie Feiba Doshier and Karl Sherman-Box were married Nov. 22 at the Twin Falls LDS Church. Bishop Mark B. Carlson performed the ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mrs. Maureen Doshier and Vernon Doshier. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Box.

The bride wore a traditional gown of Chantilly lace with a Sabrina neckline, highlighted with sequins sprinkled on the bodice and down the front of the skirt. The dress had a fitted bodice and cape sleeves accentuating the long tapered sleeves. Her full skirt fell to a cathedral length train. Her Alençon lace bonnet-cap held a lace trimmed, elbow-length veil with a pool face veil. Her bouquet consisted of a cascade of pink roses and baby's breath with white satin streamers.

The bride wore an heirloom ruby ring of her grandmother's. The ring is more than 80 years old.

Karla Nipper, Twin Falls, was the maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Jeanne Doshier, Peggy Doshier, and Sherry Doshier, all Twin Falls, with lavender bows. Dan Sanders was best man, Richard Honsinger was groomsmen, and others were Lionel Box, brother of the groom and Joe Herre.

Hostess was Mrs. Buck Hamilton and organist was Mrs. Larry Fulmer. The reception followed the ceremony. The bride's table was decorated with a white lace cloth over pink underlay. Bagnets of pink and lavender pom poms decorated the table. The tree-trunk cake was white, decorated with pink and lavender hearts. It was topped with pink satin wedding bells.

The quart tables were skirted with lace cloth over a pink underlay with brandy snifters holding pink pom poms in lavender water. Pink backdrops were behind the bride's table and receiving line. The gift table was decorated with lace cloth over pink underlay. Large baskets of lavender mums and pink pom poms christenstems with baby's breath decorated the chapel where the ceremony was held and later used at receiving line. The pews were decorated with lavender bows.

Reception assistants were Jackie Jensen, guest book; and Denise Gross and Barbara Smith — gifts.

Mrs. Keith Jensen, aunt of the bride was in charge of the bride's table. Others helping were Mary Ann Doshier, aunt of the bride; Lisa Livingston; Janette Annis and Carrie Custer.

Two showers were given by Mrs. Keith Jensen, aunt of the bride and Lisa Jensen, cousin of the bride. The other was by Karla Nipper and Denise Gross.

Out-of-town guests were from Bountiful, Utah; Woodcross, Utah; Moscow, Rupert; Kimberly; Montrose, Colo.; San Rafael, Calif.; and Eden.

For a wedding trip the couple took a short trip to Boise. The bride is employed at Mountain Bell, Twin Falls. The bridegroom is employed at the Longview Fibre Co., Twin Falls. The couple will reside at 1322 Washington St. N., Twin Falls.

Anti-cancer drug shows promise

WASHINGTON — An experimental drug — treatment used by Mrs. Betty Ford after her breast surgery last year is being watched with cautious optimism by cancer-fighters on the basis of encouraging preliminary results in a nationwide clinical trial sponsored by the National Cancer Institute.

The drug called L-phenylalanine mustard (L-PAM for short). It is a chemical relative of the dreaded mustard gas that was used in the trenches in France in World War I.

L-PAM is already approved for use against another kind of cancer, multiple myeloma, but for breast cancer it is officially designated an "investigational new drug" and is supposed to be used only by approved physicians under carefully supervised conditions.

For about a century the most widely accepted treatment of breast cancer has been the Halsted radical mastectomy, an operation named for its originator, the American surgeon William Halsted. It involves removal of the nipple and breast tissue beneath the skin of the chest, as well as adjacent tissue up into the armpit.

In the armpit are about 20 lymph nodes, which are thought of as "litter traps" in which cancer cells migrating from a malignant breast tumor are caught and prevented — at least temporarily — from reaching more remote parts of the body.

Halsted, and generations of successors, reasoned that if the cancer were caught early enough and the lymph nodes removed along with the tumorous breast, the disease could be stopped. The rationale was good but in something like three-eighths of cases the cancer wasn't caught early enough.

Still, the Halsted radical, in many surgeons' opinion, was the most promising method of fighting breast cancer — and so it is to this day.

quite unsound, but it succeeded because North held four hearts and two spades. North actually held the heart queen, but all he needed was four hearts.

Experts used it for about 20 years and then started to get away from it because of two weaknesses. The first was that you used four bids to cover the few hands that warranted an opening force. The second, that the negative two notrump response tended to make the wrong hand declarer at notrump.

In the next articles we will show how the experts have found ways to handle forcing opening bids in a better manner.

Ask the Jacobys

By Oswald & James Jacoby
The forcing two bid with the bust two notrump response was invented by Theodore Lightner, Waldemar von Zedwitz and Oswald Jacoby back in 1929. Here is a hand that led us to that invention — Jacoby, who sat South opened one spade. He hoped that he would get a second chance and he did when the unfortunate East player opened with two clubs. Young Jacoby simply jumped to seven hearts.

A Nebraska reader wants to know if many experts use a one club opening as a forcing bid. The answer to this question is that a very small number do. Probably only 50 of the top thousand list masters, if you want to use that as your criterion.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you out of desperation. After three years of marriage that I thought was good, I have to face the fact that my husband is a "peeping Tom." Three years ago he watched my sister take a bath. She caught him. There was an ugly scene. I made excuses for him—"It was an accident, etc."—and he really seemed sorry for having done it. I finally got over it.

Well, last night he did it again. This time it was another sister. He knew she would be trying on some clothes, so he arranged the curtains for a peep hole, then sneaked outside to watch. He hadn't planned on my needing him for something at that time. When I couldn't find him in the house, I went outside and caught him looking in the window at my sister. I didn't want anyone to know what was going on, so I didn't make a scene.

Abby, I am heartsick. I love him so much, and he is such a good man in every other way. I've never said no to any of his sexual demands; yet I feel that it must be my fault. Could he become dangerous? I don't know how many other windows he's looked into. Please help me.

MR. AND MRS. PRESTON STANGER

TF-miss, Stanger exchange vows

TWIN FALLS — Ellen Toolson, Twin Falls, became the bride of Preston Stanger of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Stanger, Hansen, on Nov. 22 in the Logan LDS Temple.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William E. Toolson, Twin Falls.

A reception was held at the LDS Stake Center in Twin Falls the evening of Nov. 22. The bride wore her mother's 25-year-old wedding gown made of heavy, silver satin with ruffled V-neckline, wrist-length pointed sleeves and long chapel train. Her veil was fingertip length gathered at the top to a cap of lace and seed pearls. Her bouquet was tallman roses and gardenias.

Bridesmaids were Debbie Toolson and Marilyn Daqa, MaryAnne Tomlin and Reesa Stanger. Theron Stecker, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Cheri Hessing registered the guests at a round-table covered with off-white satin and lace skirts.

The wedding party received guests before a backdrop consisting of an Austrian drape with orange chiffon valance. Baskets of tall flowers lined the reception line.

Guests were seated at quartet tables centered with bouquets of bronze and yellow mums situated on off-white lace over satin skirts.

The bride's table was also covered with an off-white lace skirt to the floor.

Gifts were arranged by cousins of the bride, Michelle Toolson and Jan and Julie Clark. Accepting and carrying the gifts were Susie Wrigley and Andy Toolson.

The appetizer spice wedding cake made by Virginia Bingham was decorated in off-white with orange roses and a fountain in the center. It was cut and served by Mrs. Jack Bullard. Mrs. Jack Clark passed orange punch. Mrs. J. Richard Toolson assisted at the serving table with party.

The newlyweds are making their home in Pravo, Utah, where the bride is attending Brigham Young University.

Guests attending the reception were from Sacramento, Calif.; La Mesa, Calif.; Pravo, Phoenix, Ariz.; and Hurley, Twin Falls, Hansen, Kimberly and Murrough.

GIVE CLOTHES THE NEEDLE

By Mary Sue Miller

DEAR HEARTSICK: The chances for your husband being "dangerous" are very small. Most voyeurs (people who like to look) are usually harmless, but on the chance that he is not, talk to him about it and insist that he join the local Mental Health Association for an appointment to discuss his problem with a professional. He can overcome it if he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: My mother and I are having a disagreement. I am 19 and was engaged for six months. I recently broke up with my boyfriend and can't decide what to do with my beautiful (and quite expensive) engagement ring.

I think I should keep it because it was given to me as a gift. My mother and my boyfriend think I should give it back because the ring was given as a promise of marriage, and since I broke that promise, I should return it. I don't care what the etiquette books or the lawyers say, I want to know how you feel about it.

KEEP ME ANONYMOUS

DEAR KEEF: I think that when an engagement is broken—regardless of who broke it—the ring should be returned.

DEAR ABBY: There are a lot of dogs in my neighborhood, and I will tell you right now that I am no dog lover. I don't like their yapping when I'm trying to sleep, but worse yet, I don't like what they do to my lawn and bushes—if you know what I mean.

There must be something a law-paying citizen can do about this problem. Whom should I call? And where can I go?

HATES DOGS

DEAR HATES: You don't say where you live, but you can call your police or sheriff. And if you ask some of your dog-owning neighbors, they will be glad to tell you where to go.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

It takes more than a bit of forethought to look one's best during the holiday whirl. No doubt, you have already planned your attire for festive events and have set aside time for beauty business. But what of the little details? That's where an oversight—a loose button or split seam—is most likely to occur. And it really shakes you when you don't discover it until you dress for an occasion. Last minute repairs lead to haste, jitters and a hoth.

The damage sometimes cannot be repaired and you have to wear it. What a setback to a confident appearance. Do check now and avoid a mis-miss. These are checkpoints most often overlooked:

1. Along with the above-mentioned buttons and seams, check for broken stitching in hems, rips in linings, missing or wobbly snaps and hooks, broken loops at the tops of zippers. Incidentally, how's your thread supply? Do you have all the colors you need?
2. Examine shoes for rundown heels, cuffs and spots.
3. Put handbags to the spotless test, in side-out.
4. Have you enough stockings and panty hose to get by until santa arrives?
5. Are your scarves and kerchiefs pristine? Gloves clean? Costume jewelry sparkled with dry sud?

If not, you know what.

Exactly 41 per cent of the girls who go to Stanford University indulge in that practice known euphemistically as physical romance. But only 27 per cent of the men there do likewise. Such be the findings of a recent study Our Love and War man is looking into the situation there to determine what prevents parity in this matter.

NEANDERTHAL Am asked how the anthropologists know that the Neanderthal man believed in life after death. Easy. Digging around in cave graves in France, the scholars found Neanderthal skeletons which had been buried with tools and grub. Supplies for the journey beyond, clearly.

WHICH OF the numerous rising costs irritates you most? When the pollsters put that query to a sizeable sampling of citizens, the price of gasoline was in the No. 1 spot for criticism. Utilities ranked No. 2. Food was No. 3.

THAT A WOMAN typically tends to be more sensitive about age than does a man has long been known. Now the science boys say they think it's an inherent trait: A woman's time for bearing children is limited. A man's time for fathering same is far less so. So many generations of women have been conscious of this fancy fact that they're believed to have taken it by genetic memory right into their basic nature. Interesting, if true.

Strong US farm system required

SPOKANE (UPI) — House Agriculture Committee Chairman Tom Foley today told the Washington Association of Wheat Growers here Sunday the United States must play an important role in the future in trying to insure there will be enough food for the world's exploding population.

Foley cautioned, however, that if the U.S. is to successfully play this role, it must first insure its agricultural system remains strong.

To remain strong, Foley said the government must insure farmers a reasonable profit return for their production and that foreign export markets are encouraged and kept free.

from export controls. Policy noted that from the time of recorded history until 1830, the world's population reached one billion. "It took only another 100 years after that to reach 2 billion and another 45 years until now to reach the level of four billion."

"At its present rate of expansion, it will double again during the next 25 years — within the lifetime of most of the people in this room," Foley said. "We must be able to produce the vast food needs of this additional population, tremendous volumes of new food must be produced."

North Viets hint offshore oil deal

Chicago Daily News
PARIS—North Vietnam has told 12 congressmen that normalizing relations with the United States could mean American participation in developing Vietnam's offshore oil.

Hanoi's ambassador Vo Van Sung brought up oil while opening the House delegation here that North Vietnam knows of no additional "missing" Americans still on its territory.

The Hanoi official promised that bodies of three U.S. pilots shot down during the Vietnam War will be returned within a few days as "another expression of good will."

Return of the three airmen had been held up after the United States voted applications by North and South Vietnam for UN-affiliated Nations membership.

Rep. Jonathan Bingham (D-N.Y.) said Sung pledged that Hanoi agencies will keep searching for Americans living or dead still in Vietnam and will "raise no obstacle" to their returning home.

The three pilots to be returned are Maj. Jesse Taylor Jr., Maj. Gregory J. Fliton and Capt. Ronald D. Perry.

In nearly five hours discussion Saturday at the Hanoi embassy here, Sung also called for lifting of the U.S. embargo on trade with North and South Vietnam and for the American reconstruction aid promised in the 1973 Paris peace accords.

Bingham, who heads a House subcommittee on international trade, has sponsored a bill to lift the embargo on South Vietnam imposed after the Communists conquered Saigon last April.

He said he advised Sung, however, that "American public opinion isn't going to support large-scale aid for Vietnam."

Rep. Gillespie Montgomery (D-Miss.), chairman of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast

Asia, said the talk was "very friendly and beneficial to both sides."

Rep. Paul McCloskey (D-Calif.) said, "I hope this meeting will open a new era of friendship between our countries."

Rep. Pat Schroeder (D-Colo.), another member of Montgomery's committee, said, "None of those on the missing list are, in an impossible position. They have to apply to get their husbands' status changed from missing to presumed dead."

"Masses of women have come to my office and told me they want to do this, but that they were under pressure against it from their families and the League of Families of Men Missing," she added.

The league has a list of more than 1,000 persons unaccounted for in the two Vietnams, Laos and Cambodia.

Families of those missing received the first advance duty pay and automobile promotion raises. If the men aren't found in 15 years, then they additionally receive their life insurance, Social Security, and pensions, committee sources said.

"There is no evidence that any Americans still are alive in Vietnam and trying to get out," Bingham said.

He said lifting the embargo is an issue independent of the missing persons, although the league of families wants the embargo continued.

"I feel that the best way to achieve our aims is to be cooperate with the Vietnamese," Bingham said. The State Department permitted private and church agencies to send food and medicine after Hanoi released nine Americans in October. But Bingham said the embargo still prevents sending farm tools, fishnets and other aid. It also bars trade. "Oil is by far the most important subject under the trade category," he said.

American oil companies indicated there were prospects for finding oil off the coast of South Vietnam before the fall of Saigon. At the time, Communist propaganda charged oil was a major motive for U.S. intervention in Vietnam.

Now Hanoi is turning the issue around and seeking the use of oil as an attraction to obtain normal relations and aid from Washington.

Refusing to extend the reconstruction aid promised in the Paris accords (once estimated by President Lyndon Johnson at a potential $15 billion), the United States says that Hanoi violated the accords.

However, the United States hasn't formally declared the accords null and void. The possibility of bringing home any missing Americans still alive is one reason for this. Meanwhile, Hanoi recently has made several major moves. It has announced it is absorbing South Vietnam into one country. It has signed a big aid agreement with the Soviet Union. It has adopted the Soviet line favoring "detente" and rejected the Chinese anti-detente line.

Pipeline progress listed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The multibillion dollar trans-Alaska pipeline is more than three-fifths finished and oil will begin flowing 800 miles from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez on schedule in 1977, the company reported today.

More than half of the pipeline portion is finished with about 350 miles of pipe in place and another 200 miles welded into sections and ready for installation. Pump stations and terminal facilities are more than 20 per cent finished and communications sites are 64 per cent finished.

"We expect to have the pipeline finished on schedule in mid-1977, and 1.2 million barrels of oil will begin flowing daily from Prudhoe Bay to Valdez," John Ratterman, public affairs supervisor for Alyeska Pipeline Service Company, said.

At $3.98 billion, the pipeline is the largest privately funded construction project ever undertaken. Each mile of pipe from the frozen tundra of Prudhoe Bay across snow-covered mountain passes and frozen rivers will cost an average $7.5 million.

But when the pipeline is finished—the eight-oil-and-pipeline companies which banded together to build it will begin tapping an estimated 10 billion barrels of oil locked under Prudhoe Bay. The oil will flow through the 48-inch pipe to the ice-free harbor at Valdez where it will be stored in giant 510,000 barrel tanks before being pumped aboard tankers and shipped to markets in the lower 48 states.

Construction work began April 29, 1974, with site clearance and a 300-mile road finished that year. But it wasn't until spring of this year that the first welded section of pipe was placed beneath the Tanana River on March 27, and actual construction began on pump stations, terminals and other facilities.

By the end of the summer construction season, 260 miles of pipe were in place and 230 miles of ditches were excavated, ready for more pipe.

The lowest temperature ever recorded in the United States, a minus 80 degrees Fahrenheit, was at the Prospect Creek construction camp in the interior of Alaska Jan. 23, 1971.

From a summer high of 21,600 persons, the work force was expected to drop to about 10,000 during the mid-winter months.

SAY Merry Christmas WITH NEW KitchenAid APPLIANCES!

How you can clean up on a kitchen sink.

KitchenAid Dishwashers and Disposers

By replacing a kitchen sink with a KitchenAid dishwasher-sink combination. Only KitchenAid makes a unit like this. And it gives you much more than a sink to sell.

Because it's also a KitchenAid dishwasher. And a work surface top. And a spacious storage cabinet with room for a KitchenAid disposer. Add a hot water dispenser—and you can make an even bigger sale.

It's just 48" wide. And with one simple installation, you can offer your customers a more convenient kitchen within hours. Retailing for less than $600. (Prices may vary slightly in some areas.)

Offer a choice of two models. Shown: the Superba model with stainless steel sink and work surface, single-lever mixing faucet, and 7-cycle dishwasher, including automatic Soak Cycle and SaniCycle. For the smaller budget, the Custom model with porcelain-on-steel top and automatic Full-Cycle dishwasher. (Either may be ordered without a top, if your customer requests a top of other material.)

Want to really clean up? See your KitchenAid distributor about our clean-up center. Or write KitchenAid Dishwashers, Dept. ODES-9, The Hobart Manufacturing Company, Troy, Ohio 45373.
