Prayer for today

We'd like to start all over again, God. When we look back over our lives, we can see that we have made many mistakes. If we could just begin again, we're sure we'd manage better.

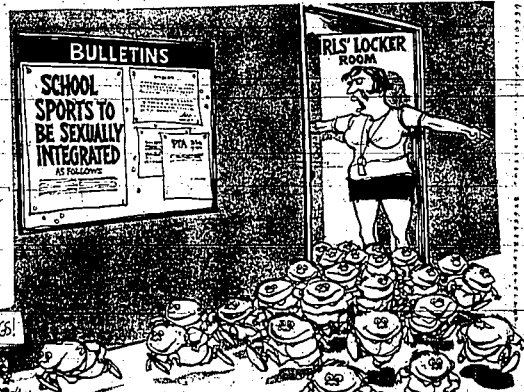

Of course we can't go back, but it is never too late to try again on what's left of our lives. But we'd better not waste any time. Every day lived is one less left to live, so we had better make our new start now.

Please forgive our past mistakes, and, as we begin a new year, guide us into a better way of life with you in charge.

Jesus said, "I have come that they might have a more meaningful life." That is just what we want. Uletta Martin, Buhl.

Homosexual acceptance slow in U.S.

By United Press International Public conscience, often painfully and slowly stirred for "hundreds" of other U.S. minorities, remains a vast question mark for the nation's estimated 10 million homosexuals. Chameleons are hard to come by outside the gay community. Only a minuscule fraction of the once totally fraternal fraternity of homosexuals, lesbians and bisexuals risks public exposure to fight for an end to discrimination in employment, housing and credit.

Yet without a charismatic leader, or any sign of willing public support, gays have clunked up major gains with some outside help to ease discrimination in Pennsylvania, California and the District of Columbia. And in such major cities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Madison, Wis., discrimination based on sexual preference has been forbidden. In Massachusetts, a bill to bar discrimination based on sexual preference, in housing, hiring and credit passed the House but was killed in the Senate.

White-haired Petzoldt attacks Tetons again

LANDER, Wyo. (UPI) — White haired, 67-year-old Paul Petzoldt has been pulling himself up jagged Grand Teton Peak every New Year's Day for the past 10 years, and will try to make it 11 starting Sunday.

employment of homosexuals. And, nudged by a federal court decision in California, the U.S. Civil Service Commission last summer adopted new "suitability" standards that require proof of a connection between conduct and job performance before sexual preference can be made an employment factor.

The Civil Service ruling affects the vast bulk of federal civilian employees outside the armed forces, but its provisions "limit" elevation of gays to top posts. Promoting a homosexual to a "prominent position could jeopardize public confidence in an agency," one spokesman said.

In Pennsylvania, Gov. Milton J. Shapp created by executive order a Governor's Gay Rights Task Force, and armed it with an order to end bias against gays in state government. I am committing this administration to work towards ending discrimination against persons solely because of their affectional or sexual preference," Shapp said.

Shapp's order brought a prompt response from his state police commissioner, Col. James Barger, that "persons with different sexual preferences or unorthodox ones could, not possibly and successfully function," said Pennsylvania State Police. "It is our belief, at this point in time, the public would not condone being policed by homosexual individuals," Barger said. But an avowed gay's state police application has been processed.

Shapp's order, and his avowed plans to translate the task force into a state commission, also triggered a reaction in Pennsylvania's General Assembly, which approved by wide margins a bill to bar hiring gays as state police, prison guards or attendants in state mental or juvenile institutions.

Shapp, campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination, called the bill "vindictive in its intent, a setback for the cause of fair and equal opportunity," and vetoed it. After the California legislature legalized sex acts in private between consenting adults, Los Angeles Civil Service ruled that homosexuality, by itself, may no longer bar employment.

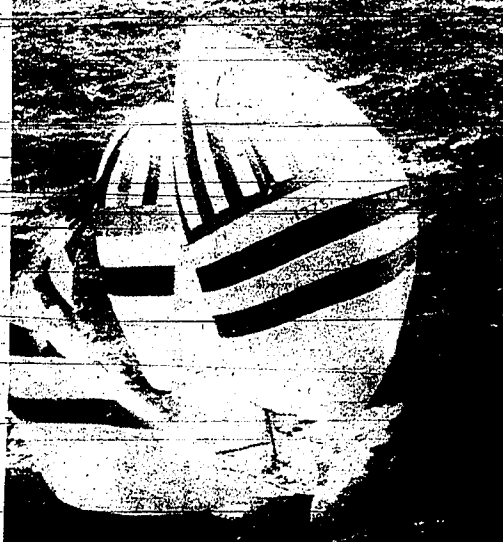

Sternest reaction came quickly from the Los Angeles Police Department Spokesman L. Dan Cooke said "according to our survey and the Police Protective League, 100 per cent of the officers will refuse to work with any known homosexual." Police Protective League Director Tony Amador said "If the public was asked to vote on whether homosexuals could be cops, they'd say 'hell no'."

Officers have called me to say 'if I have to work in a car with a queer, I'll punch his lights out and I don't care how many days they suspend me.'" In the District of Columbia, a 1973 Human Rights Act banned discrimination against gays both in government and private employment.

Dr. Franklin Kameny, Human Rights Commission member — an avowed homosexual, said the new law is untested, that officials "are having as little to do with it as possible." "They know what the law is, they're not happy with it, and they wish it were different," Kameny said.

Both police and gay forces in the nation's capital appear anxious to avoid a gay rights controversy that might bring down the wrath of the district's parental overseer, Congress. In Oregon, Minnesota and California and elsewhere bills to ban discrimination against homosexuals have fallen in defeat. But with increasing militance, gays are now frequent lobbyists in legislatures, and city halls. Some gay newspapers have achieved national, if limited, circulation.

YACHTSMEN from Australia, England and the United States are locked in a heated battle for the lead in the 31st annual Sydney to Hobart ocean race. Pictured here is the 78' American yacht 'Kialoa' running before a fresh breeze with all available sail. (UPI) Spinnakers up!

Fonda backing Tom Hayden

N.Y. Times Service HOLLYWOOD — Henry Fonda spent a portion of the Christmas holidays in the Watts area of Los Angeles, rallying support for the Senatorial campaign of his son-in-law, Tom Hayden. Fonda's non-right his daughter, Jane, could have appreciated more.

next month, illustrating what can happen when the CBS series' heroine inaugurates a Henry Fonda-for-President campaign. Fonda provides a clue to his personal political leanings when he discusses his portrayal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur in ABC's Jan. "Collision Course." "I was anti-MacArthur going into production — and anti-MacArthur going out," Hank says. "He was a military genius; but represented everything I don't stand for: a conservative, a hawk, I feel President Truman was right in firing him."

Actually, the beloved 70-year-old-leading man "likely could run for political office himself" — and win strictly on the strength of his ambivalence image. Hank recognizes that those who know him only from the screen consider him "that, mid-western man of integrity." Such appeal isn't lost on producer Norman Lear either, who'll feature the actor in a two-part segment of "Maude" theirs, but is grateful the show was given more rehearsal time than that recorded the average-TV production. A point in the production's favor is that Fonda and E. G. Marshall won't look like wax museum reproductions of the characters they're playing. Producer David Wolper, profiling some makeup mistakes made in Iliad, Holbrook's "Lincoln" specials, has barely attempted to disguise his "Collision Course" actors.

The mountaineer and author will leave Lander fully outfitted at 2 a.m. Sunday with 23 other climbers for Grand Teton National Park in northwestern Wyoming. They will then cross-country ski to the base of the 13,766-foot mountain and their first camp.

Petzoldt and his climbers will burrow in snow caves at the 11,700-foot level to protect themselves against chill night winds and sub-zero weather. The caves remain about 25 degrees no matter what the outside temperature, according to Petzoldt, and are extremely comfortable. "We have to be careful not to get too warm in here," he said. "It's very easy to get the temperature up to 32 degrees. Then they start to drip and get very humid."

The expedition has reached the peak of Grand Teton only five times in the past 10 mid-winter assaults. The avalanche situation may have improved," said Peter Simer, director of the National Outdoor Leadership School which Petzoldt founded in 1965.

As Beirut burns, movers get rich

© Chicago Daily News. BEIRUT — Some people are actually making money in the burning Beirut. The moving companies and the folks who replace broken glass. The Beirut residents who have left in a panic have dumped their houses and office keys at several of the largest moving and packing firms in town, and bolted with a suitcase, their kids and maybe a dog or two.

"There will be no foregones here — when we finish," said Albert Malouf, manager of packing and warehouse operations for Beirut Express, the city's largest mover. Business for his company has improved by around 400 hundred per cent in the last three months or so when the fighting and bloodshed got so scary that people started to pull out of Beirut wholesale. "I have 150 houses yet to pack," said Malouf. "I'm booked out for all of January."

He tells some perilous tales of three of his movers being kidnapped as they lifted some business furniture from one area embattled in the street warfare. Others have been fired on by snipers, Malouf says. "We're one of the few companies that go into hot areas," he says. "We don't take a 100 risk but we do take a risk." Like United Service International, another major Beirut moving firm, Beirut Express employees have been working seven days a week since the panic set in with a bitter round of fighting in October. United Services International president George A. Loshkajian says business is booming at his place, too, gesturing around his big fat cigar at loads of crates of ammoing his office. Loshkajian figures that his firm is handling twice the volume it handled before the Moslem-Christian fighting set in. "We're not complaining," he says, speaking of the nice "increase" in business. "But, he adds, "we're paying the price for it — and the price could be your life" — a reference to the sometimes dangerous "conditions" his movers face. Both firms are housing employees in nearby-hotels-so they don't have to brave the various fighting factions to get to work. The hotel charges and increased costs of packing materials have been passed on to the expense account customers of the companies. Malouf gripes that his company has paid out more than $8,000 to replace broken glass in company offices caused by one recent bomb.

TF yule sales set record

TWIN FALLS — Most merchants in Twin Falls say the 1975 Christmas buying season set new records with sales up over last year from 20 to 25 percent.

While most store managers said they will not have final figures on December for comparison purposes until the end of the month, nearly all estimated a sizeable increase over last year.

Merchants also reported "was a record year in Christmas buying this year," one merchant said. His holiday buying began in August and continued to increase up to the day before Christmas.

Exchanges of merchandise were described by most store managers as light or fairly well below that of a year ago.

Elvis Cain of Cain's Furniture, said the entire month of December was outstanding although November was off slightly. He said even on Saturday, with Christmas out of the way, sales were hitting an unexpectedly high volume.

Bob Van Engelen of Van Engelen's Department Store, said he believes the entire valley did an outstanding business this year, reflecting the healthy farm economy of this area.

E. F. Pederson said Pederson's Inc. entered some new clothing lines this year and did unusually well. Exchanges in these lines were expected to run high, but have been moderate, he said. He said business started in August with ski equipment sales and continued until Christmas with "heavy" last minute buying.

Toys, he said, sold exceptionally well and as of Saturday the toy inventory was almost gone.

Idaho Department Store officials said this was one of the best years on record, and up over last year although sales figures for the month are not yet complete. Exchange of gift merchandise was below normal.

Earl Faulkner reported the Pair set new sales records with buying extending throughout the month. The last few days before Christmas were exceptionally busy. Exchanges, he said were about the same or better than normal.

Jojo Cello and Stan Harris Krengel's Hardware, listed sales as well above average and ahead of last year's record buying.

Harris said if the store had been able to get more merchandise buying would have been even better. He said workers' strike at the store's west-front warehouse cut back some on merchandise prior to December buying.

One jewelry store owner said business was good but there were not as many large diamond sales and other major items as a year ago.

Another jeweler who estimated business up by about six per cent said unit buying was up and business increased beginning the last two weeks in November through Dec. 24. He said exchanges were about average.

Charles Allen, Sterling Jewelry, said customers this year seemed to have a lot of large currency for their shopping and there was a considerable amount of credit card buying.

King's Variety store in the Lymwood shopping center reported a big increase in tree and home decoration items, especially electrical lighting.

Last year's energy pinch cut sales in these lines, last year, but buying was back at least to normal this year.

Several of the stores contacted reported a number of large items were purchased in the last two shopping days of the Christmas season. Several small gift shops also noticed a heavy surge in buying during Christmas week.

Generally store owners and managers said the Christmas buying extended over a longer period of time this year with lots of early shopping in addition to December's increased sales. Only one merchant said buying was late, in getting underway this year.

Progress

WORK progresses on restoration of the roof of the McFall Hotel, Shoshone. Dr. Wallace Pond, owner, said this is the first phase of a restoration project in which he hopes to restore some of the 1900 decor and anticipates in all about $20,000 in federal funds to be matched by himself in either cost or work.

Corder returns to sheriff post

TWIN FALLS — Sheriff Paul Corder returned to work Friday on a full time basis after three months absence due to illness.

Corder said he feels fine but must return to the tumor center at St. Luke's Hospital, Boise, for check-ups and possibly further treatment. Corder became ill in September and following surgery has been undergoing treatment at the Boise hospital and tumor center since October.

In his absence Deputy T. M. Kendrick, Buhl, has been serving as acting sheriff. Corder said his staff did a fine job of taking care of county law enforcement while he was away.

Holiday bookings increase at SV

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley snow conditions are better than most years at this time and capacity crowds are claiming holiday reservations.

Record bookings for the Ketchum-Sun Valley area for the next 30 days are reported by the Ketchum Chamber of Commerce.

According to Dave Hawley, chamber manager, Ketchum, "people are starting to roll into town," to claim bookings for the holidays.

No cancellations are foreseen by the motel and hotel interests who have found that people enjoy the many benefits of Sun Valley in addition to the downhill skiing, according to Hawley.

"People come here to enjoy the quality of the night life in addition to downhill skiing," he reminded the Times-News.

Hawley claimed the mountain is in "fantastic shape" thanks to the Sun Valley maintenance crew which has been grooming the hills getting them ready for people that will arrive today.

In addition, extensive additions to the snow-making equipment installed for the first time last year have improved the amount and condition of the snow which is now being made 24 hours a day. "We are full and it's snowing lightly on the mountain," Shannon Besoyan, publicity, Sun Valley Co., said when contacted.

"We have more snow than we usually have this time of year and we are making snow up to the 8,200 foot level," she said.

"Snow depths at Sun Valley's Bald Mountain reported on Saturday in the Times-News were 30 inches on top, 40 inches at the midway station, and 34 inches at the bottom of Baldy.

Dollar Mountain reportedly had 20 inches of top and 10 inches at the bottom.

TWIN FALLS — College of Idaho, Caldwell, and Northwest Nazarene College, Nampa, are among 750 privately supported liberal arts institutions receiving monetary gifts from Household Finance Corp.

Linda Morrison, manager of Household Finance Corp. in Twin Falls, said today the Idaho College share in $158,880 being distributed by HFC to the 750 colleges and universities.

Permits required for Sawtooth entry

TWIN FALLS — Permits will be required for all persons including cross country skiers, going into the Sawtooth Wilderness area during winter months.

Sawtooth National Forest officials say permits are required now through May 15 and may be obtained from the Sawtooth National Recreation Area headquarters, the ranger station three miles south of Stanley, or the Hatley ranger station in Hatley.

Purpose of the winter travel permit is to provide a record and detail information as to the route and party members in case of emergency.

Forest officials say the rugged areas are noted for avalanche danger. With more and more winter travel the measure gives the Forest service control over use during hazardous conditions. Permits will not be issued in areas where and times when avalanche danger is high.

Wilderness Zone manager, David Lee said maps and pamphlets concerning avalanches, winter survival and winter recreation are available to the public at forest service offices.

Anti-Japanese hysteria spawned Hunt camp and other relocation centers

Many West Coast farm organizations, who obviously would profit by the elimination of competition by Japanese growers, also pushed for evacuation.

In a Saturday Evening Post article, Austin Anson, managing secretary of the Grower-Shippers Vegetable Association in California's Salinas Valley, said, "We're charged with wanting to get rid of the Japs for selfish reasons. We might as well be honest. We do have the question of whether the white man lives on the Pacific Coast or the brown men. They came to this valley to work, and they stayed to take over. They offer higher prices and higher rents than the white man can pay for land. They undersell the white man in the markets. They can do this because they raise their own labor. They work their women and children while the white farmer has to pay wages for his help."

Some anti-Japanese activists said Japanese Americans should voluntarily leave the West Coast to demonstrate their patriotism. Others warned that they should accept "protective custody" at inland camps to escape possible mob-or-vigilante action.

On Feb. 19, 1942, President Roosevelt signed Executive Order 9066, giving the Secretary of War authority to designate certain "military areas" and to exclude "any or all" persons from them.

Two military areas were established on March 2, Area No. 1 included the western halves of Washington, Oregon and California and southern Arizona. Area No. 2 covered the eastern portions of the coastal states and northern Arizona.

All persons of Japanese ancestry were ordered to leave Area 1 and the California section of Area 2.

They were given less than a month to get out. Those that remained after March 23 were to be arrested.

This "voluntary" evacuation plan failed for two reasons: the deadline didn't allow the Japanese enough time to dispose of their properties and many of the interior states and Wyoming refused to admit people of the "enemy race"; former New Mexico Gov. Clyde Tingley said, "California can keep her Japs as far as I'm concerned. I would rather have General MacArthur a dozen more planes send all the Japs here to the Balcon Peninsula."

The Army soon decided to herd the 110,000 Japanese Americans in the military areas into 15 temporary assembly centers. They would be shipped later to 10 inland camps, including the one in Idaho.

About two-thirds of the Japanese were American citizens. All of them had to sell, store or abandon their belongings. The selling process often were at desperation levels. In many cases farms were leased or left to be overgrown by weeds.

In Washington state, more than 7,000 (most of them from Seattle) were interned east of Tacoma at the Puyallup fairgrounds. Nearly 4,000 were confined at a livestock exposition hall near Portland, Ore. Most Japanese Americans in these two assembly centers were sent to Idaho.

Another assembly center was set up near Mayer, Ariz., and the other 12 were in California.

The centers marked the first time the Japanese Americans were guarded behind barbed wire fences. In effect, the centers served two purposes: they were holding areas while the inland camps were being built and they provided a transition from freedom to imprisonment for the Japanese Americans.

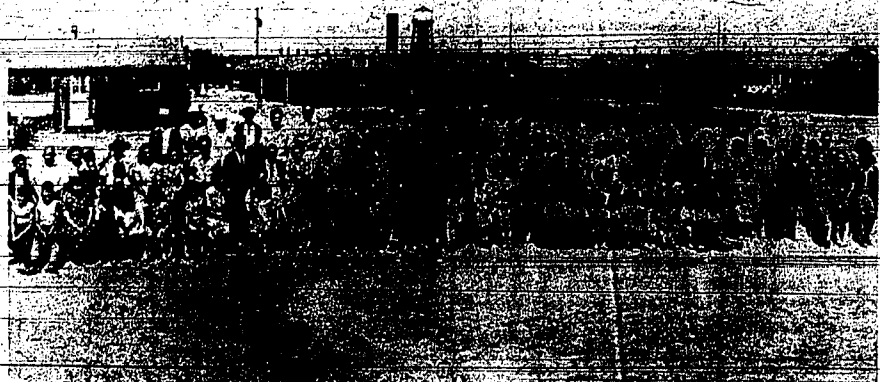

The centers also offered an introduction to Army procedures: mess halls, roll calls, walking in long lines, barracks life.

By the time the Japanese Americans transferred inland, they had experienced several months of life without civil rights.

The Puyallup center was occupied from Apr. 28 to Sept. 12, 1942; the Portland center from May 10 to Sept. 10.

In addition to the Idaho site, relocation camps were constructed at Mamazan and Tule Lake in California; Topaz in central Utah; Heart Mountain just east of Cody, Wyo.; Poston and Gila River in Arizona; Rohwer and Tule in the Mississippi bottomlands of Arkansas; and Granada in southeastern Colorado.

TF man's 'Evacuation Diary' published

Got a job on police force. On duty at 6 a.m. patrolling the lumber pile. If we have to keep such sharp lookout to prevent anyone from stealing lumber, I sometimes can't blame the Americans for not trusting the Japanese.

When someone suggested that I buy a padlock before I came here, I laughed. I thought we can trust each other, but it was a good thing I bought one.

Petty thieves there must be. One woman lost her purse while at dinner. Later she found it but the coin bag was gone. Another man returned to his room to find the side of his suitcase cut open with knife. Someone broke into kitchen and stole several canned goods.

May 19
Birds of feather... In this camp those interested in singing have gotten together to form a choir. They were practicing in the kitchen.

Rain still drumming on the roof. Hope it doesn't leak. Fire department ordered all clothes lines between the barracks to be taken down every night.

Electrician requested us not to use more than one extension cord at a time. Not more than one extension to be used at a time.

Got my second typhoid shot.

First notice calling for volunteers to go to Tule Lake permanent relocation. (Tule Lake in northeastern California near the Oregon border was one of 10 sites selected for relocation camps. Evacuees often preceded the main body of evacuees to prepare the camps for occupation.) Rumor has it that the rest of us may not be sent to the same. That being the case, WCCA (War Relocation Authority) is the military agency in charge of the evacuation program) may find it difficult to find volunteers. Most would rather stay here and where others go.

May 21
I see quite a number of men are volunteering.

The turn of events in December of 1941 left Ted Matsuda dangling.

Financial pressures already had forced him to leave the University of Washington after three years of study. Now, at 31, he was jobless with a wife and critically-ill, year-old son to support.

Ted did manage to get another job at a Seattle hotel, but he was soon caught up in the West Coast evacuation.

His young son, Kel, escaped life behind barbed wire. The boy died of an inoperable heart ailment in January of 1942.

Ted was born in the United States in 1920, when he was 10 years old. He was a "Yobiyose" — a child who was "called over" from Japan by his immigrant parents. He had lived in Japan with his grandmother.

A federal law prohibited Ted or his parents from becoming American citizens.

Ted's wife, Fumi, was an American citizen at the time of the evacuation.

Dutch Harbor bombed. (Alaskan harbor in the Aleutian Islands — reportedly bombed by the Japanese).

June 4
WCCA authorities made a surprise search of the camp. Took away axes and kitchen knives and alcohol.

I helped, being in police, but it wasn't a pleasant job.

June 5
Those volunteers for (farm work in) Montana were prohibited from leaving the camp by Army order, but in the afternoon the order must have been reversed. Trucks were picking up baggage of volunteers.

Indications are all of us in "D" may be sent to Tule Lake sometime between June 15 and 28.

June 6
Today seems like Graduation Day. Teachers from Seattle high schools came to give diplomas to grads.

In the evening, Garfield High commencement exercises were held on the grandstand.

Another funeral in the camp.

First motion pictures shown by Prof. Shimoe.

June 7
Watched sumo (wrestling). Good and peaceful. Nothing to do. No place to go.

June 8
Grandstand was again filled — this time Broadway High School graduation. What a pity these young men and women should graduate into this. There should be some way they can continue their education. They should not be allowed to rot mentally.

June 9
The soldiers carried away the machine gun from roof.

They're asking for 100 bachelor volunteers to stay here till the very end. Does that mean we will be on the move again soon?

June 10
WCCA asked for another inventory of Army properties. It seems they were not satisfied with the figures turned in before. "Too much difference between office figures and the inventory figures," they said. But I think there is more to this than mere figures. Events happening rapidly now point to either differences of views between JACL head and WCCA or that these may be the preparatory events before we are moved further inland.

(The JACL — Japanese American Citizens League — is an organization that was formed before World War II to promote the Japanese American community. During the war, it often acted as the spokesman for Japanese citizens and helped carry out government orders. The reference here suggests a possible disagreement between the president of the JACL and the WCCA.)

My turn to patrol at night — from 10 p.m. — 6 a.m. They started to take roll call at 9:30 p.m. Everybody must be accounted for, the order said. There is to be another roll call 9 a.m.

June 11
For some unexplained reason, the services of the interned police were dispensed with.

We received notice that at 8 a.m. our services will not be required until further notice. Just temporary, they said. But they also said we will be free to use our axes whenever we wish, when they took them away from us, but, now, no one is permitted to check out his own ax.

From the rumors going around in the afternoon, it looks as though the police force will be reorganized. Maybe they will just retain ones over 24.

June 12
Dancing in a concentration camp may seem like a tip-top way of passing the day, but if we can't do something like that, many of us would certainly become bitter and unfit to face the outside society when we get out.

June 13
Community singing — what a welcome relief to this monotonous camp life. Louder you sing, more fun you get out of it.

Camp "News Letter" came out with the announcement that all of us will go to Tule Lake.

Posted on the bulletin board was a letter from someone in Idaho who claims to have made a survey of the attitude of Idaho people toward the Japanese.

He says the people would welcome the Japanese. And the civil authorities would give us ample protection if we could come and relieve their labor shortage strain.

Quite a difference from the attitude of Governor Clark (Idaho's Gov. Chase Clark), who several months ago said Japs are rats that should be shipped back to Japan.

June 14
I guess the Japanese have heard the story of one Japanese family who had been living in Idaho long before the war started. After Pearl Harbor the neighbors tried everything within the law to drive them out. Finally the town stores refused to sell any food to this family. So Japanese left Idaho rather than starve.

June 15
Jealous of each other? Isn't it ever possible for Japanese to work together for mutual benefit? They make beautiful speeches about cooperation and such, but their actions contradict their words.

I understand the reason why WCCA froze all inter-area moving was that the Japanese who had been placed in charge had bungled things so badly that the WCCA books were mixed up.

Well, old folks had their turn to howl when a regular Japanese SHIBAI (dramatic play) was presented tonight.

Damn that rain — keeps puddling on the thin roof. The grounds are full of mud — muddy and sloppy.

June 15
Issei ("first generation") Japanese who immigrated to the United States are quick to blame every fault on the Nisei ("second generation") Japanese who are American-born offspring of immigrants, but the only fault Issei are allowed to touch is their own.

One Issei watched a quarter pound butter in two and sandwiched one half between two slices of bread and took it home. Issei know less about table manners than the bums on the Skid Row.

Tonight Issei had their show called "HABA-HABA Revue." Still it rains.

CANDLER, Fla. (UPI) — Alabama Gov. George Wallace brought his presidential campaign to this tiny community Saturday, telling a gospel singing, the rapping crowd of about 3,000 "these ultra-exotic left wing liberal noisemakers are through."

"They came in cars and pickup trucks, ate hundreds of pounds of roast ox, listened to gospel quartets and interrupted the crippled governor more than 20 times during a 45-minute speech with cheers and applause. Security was tighter than even veteran newsmen and secret service agents could remember. Wallace, who was felled by a would-be assassin in 1972, made his talk from a bunting-laden pier across a football field-sized pond. The crowd was "noisier" within 50 yards, por were reporters and photographers.

"It would shock you to know how many agents we had in that crowd up there," said one Secret Service man. Navy troopers earlier in the morning had scouted the depths of the pond for possible explosives.

Wallace's second Florida speech since formally announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination was a favor to a friend, J.D. "Jack"

Townley, who was dedicating an addition to his plant, which manufactures rubber mining hoses. The new United Christian Church also was dedicated.

Townley provided the roast ox and pork and beans to serve free meals to the crowd.

Wallace, sometimes quoting scripture, said, "This celebration is really a celebration of God and country. The work ethic and old fashioned, morally are needed more today than in any other time in history."

The world, he said, is divided into two camps — "those who believe in the supremacy of us and those who do not; those who believe getting something for nothing and those who do not."

Then he launched into a familiar tirade against "welfarism," "tax chiselers" and "tax cheaters," and "bureaucrats who don't have the sense to park their bicycles straight."

"These ultra exotic left wing liberal noisemakers are through," he said.

As Wallace was wheeled back to a waiting motorcade, much of the crowd turned in the slugging of "Onward Christian Soldiers."

As he drove away, they cupped their hands in their mouths and yelled three times, "God bless you, George Wallace."

Wallace is still considered the front runner in the Florida Democratic Presidential Preference Primary March 9, but he was slung by more than a 10-1 margin by Jimmy Carter in a straw vote at a recent convention of state Democratic county chairmen.

Julie, David plan excursion to China

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — David and Julie Nixon-Eisenhower left Los Angeles Friday morning on the first leg of a trip to Peking arranged by her father, former President Richard Nixon.

The Eisenhowers were expected to arrive in Tokyo today for a one-day stopover.

The San Diego Union, in a copyrighted story, reported that a spokesman for Nixon and Japan Air Lines had confirmed the couple's departure.

Ker Kachigian, an aide at Nixon's San Clemente estate, said the Eisenhowers were expected to spend 11 or 12 days in China.

The Eisenhowers had spent Christmas in San Clemente with the Nixons.

A spokeswoman for JAL confirmed the Eisenhowers were aboard a plane that left for Tokyo at 10:30 a.m. PST Friday, but said the Secret Service had specifically instructed the airline that reporters were not to be given any information on their flight.

Eisenhower told reporters in October that he and his wife expected to go to Peking at the end of the year, at the invitation of Premier Chou en-Lai. The trip follows up an invitation first issued when Nixon visited Peking as president in 1972. He said

All arrangements were made directly with the Chinese mission in Washington by the former president or by the Eisenhowers, and there was no State Department or other U.S. government involvement. Eisenhower said. He said he and his wife were paying all their own expenses.

Geothermal well drilled

BOISE (UPI) — A test well drilled in Boise's urban core has struck water indicating geothermal heat possibilities, reports Kenneth Hoffmuth, head of the Geology Department at Boise State University.

Hoffmuth said the well has reached 600 feet and struck water temperatures of 120 to 170 degrees. He added the well will go down to 1,200 feet in search of hot water of 170 degrees and above, the temperature required to make geothermal heating feasible for downtown Boise.

BSU and the Argyle General Co. received a $20,000 federal subsidy for preliminary study of a geothermal heating plan for Boise. The system could provide low-cost heating for the capital complex, Ada County Courthouse, Boise city buildings and BSU structures.

Hoffmuth said a larger hole will be drilled in January in the same area for possible production. The present well is being drilled in the Bureau of Land Management's Storage area on Post Street about one block north of St. Luke's Hospital.

If the BSU project is successful, it would not be the first geothermal heating project in Boise. The city has had geothermal space heating on a modest scale for 12 years in the Warm Springs Avenue area, where 120 homes are served with hot water from two wells.

Elkhorn resort planned

SUNDA VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — Elkhorn resort at Sun Valley has announced plans for development of a 450-room lodge at Elkhorn Village Center.

John Harker, president of Elkhorn, said a tentative agreement has been reached with Airco, Inc., a Cleveland based hotel development and operating company, for construction and operation of the new resort lodge complex.

Harker added the hotel will complete the circle of Elkhorn Village and combine with the same architectural style. Recreation facilities to be included are golf and tennis pro shops, and bar, fast food, locker rooms, hot pool, steam and sauna and exercise facilities.

The hotel will also have convention and meeting rooms for up to 350 people, Harker said. He added actual construction plans are still in the preliminary stages.

Trustees escape

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Two Ada County Jail Trustees walked away from the complex Friday evening after supposedly taking a garbage can outdoors to empty.

Sheriff's deputies identified the escapees as Leonard Fred Holbert, 27, Nampa, and William Vernon Hughes, also known as Billy Hughes, 23, of Nampa and Caldwell.

Sgt. Roy Muller said the men took a garbage can out just after 9 p.m., apparently without the jailer's knowledge. About 1:30 a.m., the jailer found the can near the dumpster in the alley, Muller said.

Holbert was serving time for parole violation from a first degree burglary conviction. Hughes was serving time for driving while intoxicated and assaulting a police officer.

Muller said the trash detail normally is supervised, but "apparently they took it on their own to do this time."

Friday holiday criticized

BOISE (UPI) — The director of the Ada County Highway District, whose employees were back on the job Friday in contrast to most city, state and county workers, said the extra holiday Friday was unjustified.

Elmer Sonville said the Ada County Commissioners voted 2 to 1 Wednesday afternoon to give county workers the extra day off after Christmas, but the highway district, which is independent of the county commissioners, did not discuss offering another holiday.

"We had work to do and I don't quite understand how these other people got off in getting it the holiday," Sonville said. "You're giving them something extra that had never been discussed—a free day that costs the taxpayers money."

Ada County Commissioner Eugene Crawford, who said he voted against the additional holiday, said the commissioners voted to make Friday a holiday because Gov. Cecil Andrus had the day off to state workers.

Crawford said he opposed the decision because the county would be paying about $20,000 to workers for the day when no work was done.

Student held up

BOISE (UPI) — A university student from Forest Grove, Ore., told Boise police he was held up Friday morning by a man who placed a knife at his throat and demanded the student hand over his money.

Police said Brian Daniel Davis, a student at Pacific University, told officers he arrived in Boise at 7:30 a.m. Friday and was walking along a street when a man grabbed him by the shoulder and placed a knife at his throat. Davis handed over $41 and the man fled, police said.

Davis described the man as about 30 years old, 5 feet 11, 200 pounds, with blond, collar-length hair. The robber was wearing a brown and gold plaid coat with a white fur collar and a plaid pants.

Coors building plant

SPOKANE (UPI) — The Adolph Coors Brewing Co. has announced plans for a new distribution plant in Spokane that will mark the Colorado firm's first venture outside its 11-state marketing area in the West.

The company said the Spokane marketing unit will be a company-owned distributorship, but no timetable for setting up the operation has been established yet.

In addition, Coors also plans to start distributing its beer in Montana. Company officials said the move into Spokane and Montana is the result of increased brewing and packaging capacity at its one and only brewery at Golden, Colo.

Coors is the fourth largest brewer in the nation.

Search on in Banks

BANKS, Idaho (UPI) — Boise County Sheriff's Deputies were looking Friday night for the driver of a stolen truck that was found overturned in the South Fork of the Boise River about one mile east of Banks.

The truck was found about 6:30 p.m. resting on its top about seven feet of water but the driver had not been found late Friday, authorities said.

Deputy Mike Johnson said the windows in the truck were broken out, indicating the driver may have escaped and was looking for help.

U.S. asked to pressure Soviet Union

LUSAKA, Zambia, (UPI) — Several African nations have asked the United States to use economic and diplomatic pressure to force the Soviet Union to withdraw from Angola, pro-Western Angolan forces said.

Officials of the Union for the Total Independence of Angola said African nations friendly to UNITA's cause have urged maximum U.S. "diplomatic blackmail" for an end to Soviet military involvement.

UNITA officials suggested that Washington threaten to halt all wheat shipments to the Soviet Union until Moscow severs aid to the Marxist oriented Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, which controls the capital of Luanda.

The Soviets have already given the Popular Movement more than $100 million in military aid and have vowed to keep up the support despite U.S. warnings.

There are an estimated 500 Soviet advisers in Luanda as well as some 5,000 Cuban troops fighting with the Marxist forces.

UNITA and its ally, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola, called talks in the southern Angolan town of Silva Porto Saturday to review the progress of the civil war and the declining role of the United States.

The two groups, which control about two-thirds of the mineral-rich West African nation, have formed a coalition government and a united military front to battle the Soviet-backed Popular Movement.

UNITA leader Jonas Savimbi is reportedly concerned that the recent U.S. Senate vote to halt military support to the two anti-Communist groups may trigger an even greater Soviet role in the war.

Miners trapped

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — An underground explosion Saturday trapped about 900 miners in two coal pits in eastern India, and labor union officials feared most of them might be killed.

Indian news agency reports said the accident occurred in two adjoining pits of a coal mine in the mining district of Dhanbad in Bihar state, about 180 miles west of Calcutta.

They said the pits were flooded after the explosion and the miners were trapped. The cause of the explosion was not immediately known.

The reports said authorities have launched an emergency relief operation to rescue the trapped miners.

Government officials in New Delhi declined to comment on the fate of the miners but labor union officials said a majority of them might have been killed.

Two federal ministers, Chandrabh Nayar in charge of steel and mines, and Raghunath Reddy, in charge of labor, planned to fly to the site of the accident Sunday, officials said.

Israeli leader takes hard line

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin stuck to his hard-line negotiating stance Saturday, saying Israel will never go back to the frontiers that existed before the 1967 Middle East War.

Rabin said Israel would not accept a separate Palestinian state in Jordan's occupied West Bank region or relinquish any of the captured Golan Heights to Syria.

But the prime minister told his Labor party he was willing to make concessions to Egypt in negotiations over the future of the Sinai Desert.

Rabin outlined Israel's Middle East policy for the coming year to a party caucus. His explanation of the country's future negotiating stance echoed previous policy statements.

In rejecting the idea of a separate Palestinian state between Israel and Jordan, the national radio quoted Rabin as saying, "Such a state contains the seeds for continued tension."

He suggested that Jordan could negotiate for the Palestinians if the suspended Middle East peace conference were reopened in Geneva.

Rabin said seven of the 11 Jordanian negotiators were Palestinians, when the talks opened two years ago. He said Israel could accept a similar arrangement in the future.

Regarding the Golan Heights, the radio quoted Rabin as saying, "Even when a true peace is achieved we will not go down from the Golan Heights. But there is no necessity to stick to the present line."

Rabin also said Israel was prepared to make a "long-ranging compromise" with Egypt over the Sinai Desert but intended to negotiate land corridors to the Golan Heights and the southern tip of the peninsula.

Rains cool off Beirut fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Blinding rain and gate forces with a heavy summer of the streets of Beirut Saturday, bringing a day of quiet and hope in the Muslim-Christian civil war.

The national radio reported "encouraging signs" in the two cities were ready to adopt a Syrian formula to transform the shaky cease-fire, the 17th-18th months into reality.

The rain squalls, and they followed from the Moslems are on a quiet night of Wednesday when 14 persons were killed and a score wounded. The toll for nearly nine months of civil war was a maximum of 100 dead and a maximum of 1,000 wounded.

Radio announcer Shadi Akhawi, whose reports have been "muted" because since the war began, said things had improved somewhat he believed to the point that he would be the first time in four months.

The situation is encouraging and only a few shots have been fired in some places, he said. The positive calm should encourage all sides to withdraw armed men from the streets and proceed with the "trustable" toward normalization of the situation.

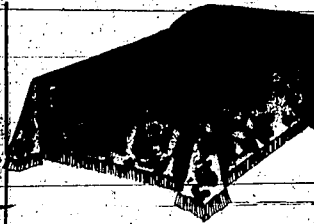

Newspaper commentators reflected his optimism that a solution to the crisis lay "just around the corner."

An Akhawi, which is published by Minister of Labor and Industry Ghassan Tuani, said agreement was near on Syrian proposals passed on to officials involved in the conflict.

The main points of the Syrian formula provided for:

- A 30-day parliamentary suspension of hostilities on Christmas, instead of the 63 days presently favoring the Christians.

Ford vows new war against illegal drugs

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford has vowed to take action in law enforcement, diplomacy and the budget to cut down on illegal drugs entering the United States.

He announced Friday a major new initiative, with appeals to the leaders of Mexico, Colombia and Turkey to cooperate.

"All of us must redouble our efforts to combat this problem," Ford said in a statement issued from his vacation skiing headquarters in Vail. He called drug abuse a "tragic national problem" and "a major contributor to our growing crime rate."

He said he has directed the Domestic Council's task force against drugs to suggest how to close the American border with Mexico to illegal drugs.

Congress should pass his proposal for mandatory minimum sentences for drug traffickers "by those who are spreading this evil throughout our communities will be put behind bars where they belong," Ford said.

The President added that his budget request in Congress in January will cover all the major recommendations of a task force "white paper" on drug abuse with whose conclusions he agrees.

"Because of my particular concern about the problem of Mexican heroin, I am directing (Secretary of State) Henry A. Kissinger to express to the Mexican government my personal concern that we have equal opportunities for improved control," the President said.

He added that he has spoken with Mexican President Luis Echeverria, Colombian President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen and Turkish Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel, urging their cooperation in an enforcement effort against the flow of drugs.

Early losses could doom Ford

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — President Ford would probably have to withdraw as a candidate next year if he loses the Republican presidential primaries in New Hampshire and Florida, says Rep. M. Gene Snyder, R-Ky.

Snyder admitted Friday that if the GOP nominating convention were held now, he would vote for former California Gov. Ronald Reagan instead of the president.

Snyder said in an interview the "stand-by" earlier statements that Ford is a "liability" to the Republican party citing the recent presidential action on the energy bill as an example.

"Even what he does right, he does wrong," Snyder said. "I voted for the energy bill in the face of pressure where we were said the president would veto the energy bill. It turned out that he signed the energy bill."

"I agree with what he did, but he left a lot of guys out there longing on a limb and they're going to remember that."

He added that "liberal" Republicans, such as Sens. Charles Percy of Illinois, Howard Baker of Tennessee or Charles Mathias of Maryland would "almost certainly" enter the GOP presidential race if Ford falters, but he said the snowball effect will catch him. "I don't think he can stay in very long. I may be wrong," Snyder said.

The conservative lawyer said Reagan's chances for upsetting Ford were "50-50 or better" if the convention were today.

"If (Ford) does poorly in New Hampshire and Florida, the snowball effect will catch him. I don't think he can stay in very long. I may be wrong," Snyder said.

He added that "liberal" Republicans, such as Sens. Charles Percy of Illinois, Howard Baker of Tennessee or Charles Mathias of Maryland would "almost certainly" enter the GOP presidential race if Ford falters, but he said the snowball effect will catch him. "I don't think he can stay in very long. I may be wrong," Snyder said.

such a candidacy would probably be too late to stop Reagan.

Despite his criticism of the President, Snyder said he considers Ford better than any Democratic candidate who is likely to be nominated.

"He is a liability, in my opinion, but the Democrats are not going to let George Wallace have the nomination and you're probably talking about somebody like (Minnesota Sen. Hubert) Humphrey or (Massachusetts Sen. Edward) Kennedy. And if you have a Democratic Congress, which I anticipate you'll have, then it'll be a rubber stamp situation which is worse than what we have now," he said.

Search called off

DETROIT (UPI) — A day-long search for a boat which distress signals said was sinking in Lake Erie with 10 persons aboard has been canceled, and the calls dismissed as a hoax by the Coast Guard.

The rescue effort was curtailed late Friday after searchers from Detroit and Cleveland failed to find a trace of the 25-foot cabin cruiser reportedly taking on water near Pelee Island on the Canadian side of Lake Erie.

"We've decided it was a hoax," a Coast Guard spokesman said. "The information came from different voices on different signal strengths and from more than one location."

Utah dismisses highway chief

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah Highway Patrol Superintendent Roy M. Helm has been fired, but he may be able to get back in uniform if he kicks the drinking habit.

The Patrol's Civil Service Commission — with only two of its three members deliberating the case — dismissed Helm Friday for drunkenness and bringing ill repute to the state police force.

But Public Safety Commissioner Raymond A. Jackson said he would consider reinstatement at a lower rank if Helm stops drinking.

The commission recommended that the 49-year-old patrol chief "be given reasonable time to rehabilitate himself" and considered for reinstatement to a rank of Jackson's choosing. "If he successfully overcomes his problems,"

Helm became superintendent on Jan. 1, 1974. Helm was suspended as a result of a Nov. 2 traffic accident which led to the filing of drunken driving charges against him by Davis County authorities.

He was later charged with a felony count of evidence tampering by the Davis County district attorney in connection with the 1974 drunken driving arrest of Willard Eccles, an Ogden banker and chairman of the patrol's civil service board.

The commission, down to two members because Eccles disqualified himself from the case, cited both incidents plus Helm's admitted alcohol problem as reasons for his dismissal.

Manufacturer denies guilt in illnesses

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Allied Chemical Corp., developer of the pesticide Kepone which poisoned 28 plant workers, says it does not feel "legally responsible" because it never attempted to hide Kepone's "highly toxic" nature.

Norman Herrington, chief corporate spokesman, said Friday Allied knew when it developed Kepone 25 years ago it was harmful to humans. But he added that Life Science Products Co. of Hopewell, Va., was also aware of it.

Life Science made Kepone as a bug killer in a converted gas station under contract to Allied until authorities closed the plant last August because 28 employees were poisoned by the pesticide. A dozen workers are asking $20 million in damages from Allied and Hooker Chemical Co., which furnished raw materials. They charge the firms failed to warn them and their new defense employer of Kepone's toxicity.

"Legally we don't feel we are responsible," Herrington said, adding he believed Allied and Hooker may have been named in the damage suits partly because Life Science is no longer in business.

Herrington said William P. Moore, one of two former Allied employees who headed Life Science, was the "principal expert on Kepone" and should have been aware of its dangers to humans.

He said Moore and his partner, Virgil A. Hundtofte, formed Life Science in 1973 when they learned that Allied planned to subcontract Kepone's manufacture. Herrington said they bid on the contract and won.

Allied was "very much distressed" by the poisoning of Life Science workers, Herrington said, and "we are trying to find out what went wrong and why their operation had led to the illness of about 30 persons."

Most world newsmen face censorship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Governments of at least 18 countries subject Roman Catholic journalists to pressures ranging from minor harassment to outright intimidation, a representative of the Catholic press reported Monday.

A.E.P. Walk, president of the International Federation of Catholic Press Agencies, based his report on a survey of church-affiliated journalists in 32 foreign nations, along with individual interviews.

"Perhaps the greatest problem" in gathering information, Walk said, was the concern of reporters that results might bring retaliation.

"Most of the journalists who wrote included a request that nothing be disclosed—that might jeopardize their own position or that might create tensions for religious orders with which they are identified," he said.

Walk listed Brazil, Chile, Cuba, South Korea, Lithuania, Nigeria, Rhodesia and the Soviet Union as nations where journalists feel under severe pressure, directly or indirectly, from government agencies.

"Such pressure may be personal," Walk said, "or it may affect members of a journalist's family or it may be applied via the periodical with which the journalist is identified."

He said journalists feel "intermediately severe" problems but with "less danger of injury or imprisonment" in Ecuador, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Poland, Spain and Uruguay.

Bolivia and India were listed as countries with "indirect or moderate problems."

Walk said that while most journalists surveyed indicated that interference "came primarily from governments," it appeared some officials were using "their official position to advance a personal religious, social or racial point of view." He said in parts of Brazil "the work of Catholic journalists is hindered by anti-Catholic members of a (national) elite" while in some African areas interference "apparently is by those with 'anti-Christian attitudes' that are not specifically anti-Catholic."

Koreans astound diplomats

Chicago Daily News

HONG KONG — Last summer during a Military Armistice Commission meeting at Panmunjom, an American officer was knocked and beaten unmercifully in an unprovoked tuck by North Korean guards. It was not the first such incident.

Fifteen months ago, at an international conference in Stockholm, formerly Ceylon, the North Korean ambassador poked up a glass of water from his desk and poured it on Belgian diplomat's head.

In Lima, Peru, Bob Sang Monon, South Korea's permanent observer to the United Nations, was crossing a driveway outside a conference hall when a car belonging to the North Korean delegation almost ran him down.

In New York during the United Nations session, a South Korean newspaperman was walking toward the elevator when he was hauled by two men to a room by night.

"You sonofabitch," one of them said, "I'm going to kill you."

He didn't, but the reporter was more careful after that.

The two men who accosted him were North Korean diplomats.

Ji Yong Gyon, deputy permanent observer to the UN, and Ji Yong Ho, a second secretary.

"It's a world threatened by barbarism, where diplomats are murdered, hostages are taken, and commandos are sent to shoot at the heads of state," he described his own country.

Yet for sheer coarseness and bad manners, the Democratic People's Republic of North Korea is rapidly climbing to the top in international circles.

For example, consider the Australian experience. Australia is, or was, one of the few countries that had diplomatic ties with Pyongyang, the bleak Stalin-esque capital of North Korea. Former Labor Prime Minister Gough Whitlam had made a point of establishing relations with the Asian Communist.

Last fall, when two different resolutions on reunification of Korea were up for a vote in the UN, Australia began to feel the heat from Pyongyang.

On Oct. 30, the North Korean diplomatic mission in Canberra pulled down the blinds and vanished. The first thing the Australian government knew about the North Koreans' departure was when they were seen boarding a plane at Sydney Airport.

A week later, after the Australians had abstained from voting on a UN resolution favorable to North Korea, Pyongyang charged the Australians with sabotage. The Australian Embassy in Pyongyang denied the charge.

The North Korean foreign ministry returned the blow by upboding. The Australian charge d'affaires, a brave man, redelivered it. Two and a half hours later the Australians were told to get out. In a hurry, they did.

"All we did was to abstain," one of the Australians said later, still stunned at Pyongyang's "fast-moving diplomacy."

Westerners familiar with Korea agree that the Koreans are a tough people regardless of whether they live north or south of the 38th Parallel. And North Korea has no monopoly on ham-handedness.

The notorious South Korean CIA has a long arm—it has reached all the way to West Germany to kidnap alleged spies—disidentist Kim Il Jung, a one-time presidential opponent of President Park Chung Hee, was kidnapped from a Tokyo hotel in broad daylight.

South Korea's Anti-Park Koreans in the United States often are harassed by the South Korean CIA.

But while their instincts may be the same as their brothers in Da' North, the South Koreans are more sophisticated and more civilized in their diplomacy.

North Korean foreign policy is beautifully simple: You are either "a long-time friend" or an implacable enemy. And the most implacable enemy of all is the United States. North Korea Prime Minister Kim Il Sung has volunteered to the New Western news that he has visited North Korea that half of the Americans is part of every North Korean's upbringing.

Amalgamated sets new record for past year

TWIN FALLS — Amalgamated Sugar Co. earnings set new records for fiscal '75, according to the annual report just released.

Earnings on each share of common stock rose to $11.56, exceeding last year's income by 13 percent.

The company has continued to benefit from the higher sugar prices which prevailed during their fiscal year ending Sept. 29. Refined sugar prices averaged slightly more than $11 per hundredweight.

The report points up some facts which make the company's future uncertain, however. Although the price of sugar began to rise in late 1973 and finally peaked at well above $60 in November '74 the price began falling until it now stands near $20 per hundredweight.

When the price increased as it did in '74, to almost 500 per cent of normal the consumers refused to pay these high prices and were left with declining consumption and price reductions following.

The company now expects that the 1975 per capita consumption of sugar in the United States will be between 85 and 90 pounds in contrast to the historic average of 100 to 102 pounds.

The company's report points out that United States beet farmers upped their plantings about 24 per cent in 1975 which, coupled with increased production in other nations, will result in four or five million tons more of sugar being available.

than were consumed by the public in 1974.

The report points out the fact that in the spring of 1974 when farmers were deciding what to plant that the sugar prices had not started to climb sufficiently to attract even normal production of beets and resulting output of sugar for fiscal '75 was 40 per cent below the previous year.

Unlike '74 the demand for beet acreage in '75 was high and consequently the demand exceeded the supply of the plants and receiving stations.

The company's report states that sugar prices appear to have "leveled off" and may be expected to prevail for the foreseeable near term.

Of concern to the company is the decrease of 10 to 15 pounds per person in consumption which among other things caused the company to conclude their report by pointing out that the record of the sugar industry for some 40-odd years has been one of remarkable stability.

However, the last two years have marked a trend to that era.

Idaho Saturday following the cold front that moved into the State Friday evening. The high pressure brought partially clearing skies along with gusty westerly winds. This fair weather system will hold over the state Sunday bringing partly cloudy skies. Temperatures will remain cool.

Another Pacific frontal system is approaching the northwest coast today and will be moving inland late Sunday and Sunday night. This weather system will bring increasing chances of precipitation to Northern Idaho today and increasing clouds to Southern Idaho late Sunday night and Monday.

Scattered snow showers will likely spread from northern Idaho to the central Idaho mountains Monday but no significant precipitation is expected in Southern Idaho through Monday.

No gold rush in past year

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A projected gold rush failed to materialize for American investors in 1975 and it is just as well. Those who stayed away from the market appeared to have profited more than their bolder colleagues.

At this time last year gold was hot. Its price, about $200 an ounce and some analysts predicted it would go up to $300. Now it hovers around $140, a dramatic $60 an ounce drop.

Officers concentrate on shoplifting prevention

By JIM JACKSON, Jackson Security Agency. TWIN FALLS — One of the quickest ways to see your name in print is to be apprehended in the process of shoplifting, or stealing merchandise, from one of the Twin Falls stores.

A concentrated effort is being made by the sheriff's department, police department and this agency to prevent shoplifting by putting a small army of men and women into stores to give their owners an even break this Christmas season.

Merchants have hesitated to expand a great deal of money and effort to prosecute shoplifters in the past, but experience has proven a "slap on the wrist" justice is tantamount to a scolding. Afterwards, most "accident" offenders ply their efforts at another store down the street.

Federal reserve chief optimistic on recovery

Chicago Sun-Times. Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns says there is a tangible basis for predicting that the recovery which is now in progress will continue for some time.

His formula in public-service employment would be to keep wages below the federal minimum-wage level to give workers an "incentive" to find better jobs. To prevent Congress from hiking the wage scale, he said, a constitutional amendment would be necessary.

Dam washed out

ORIGINAL diversion dam serving the East Side Rock Creek Water Users was completed in 1966. It washed out during floods this spring.

New structure

New diversion structure on Rock Creek south of Hansen is nearing completion. It replaces one of several washed out on the creek during all-time record floods last spring.

15 projects approved for creeks in TF county

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Time-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A total of 15 projects, including a major diversion dam on Rock Creek, has been approved under the Emergency Conservation Measures program to restore areas damaged by last spring's record floods.

The projects, approved by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, are located along Rock Creek, Cottonwood Creek, Dry Creek and McMullin Creek in Twin Falls County.

Kent Kirk, ASCS office manager in Twin Falls, said all of the projects are being paid for on a cost sharing basis with federal agencies.

The largest project, the diversion dam on the Ted Crockett ranch along Rock Creek, south of Hansen, will serve 13 water users.

Waterusers, with the assistance of the SCS engineers, prepared the project and called for bids on the construction of two large concrete structures to be installed with a gate in the center.

Two pipes will also be installed, one of 42 inch diameter concrete will be used, the other is a 40 foot line, 12 inches in diameter leading to the main channel.

The Rock Creek diversion project represents about $30,000 to be shared by the federal agency and the users.

The original structure was built in 1966 and although it was smaller, served the purpose well until the all time record floods of this spring.

For a period of time and the creek channel was badly damaged in several areas. Many ranchers have received assistance from the ECM program to remove gravel and silt from their fields and pastures.

SCS officials said the flood water washed soil and rock from under the original dam, allowing it to collapse into the creek.

BARBS

The only time it's worthwhile to put things off is if you're unloading a trailer.

The trouble with burying the hatchet is that too many people know that to dig it up.

On McMullin Creek, south of Kimberly, another smaller diversion dam which serves only two farms is also being rebuilt by Neilson and Co.

SCS officials say there are five projects in the Twin Falls Soil Conservation District and several in the Snake River Soil Conservation District.

This spring's flooding on all creeks and streams from the south hills area was described as the worst on record and included snow packed in the mountains was also the heaviest on record.

Kidd said had there been sudden high temperatures and heavy rains during spring run-off, damage could have been much worse.

Why scientists developed an artificial leaf

N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — If it had been a scientist, G. O. G. might have invented a gutter that would collect water and carbon dioxide and convert them miraculously into oxygen and energy. A sort of leaf, in other words.

This scenario, Sunlight (A) has been developed in a laboratory. It is this could be done, new ways might be found to produce energy and food, using solar energy as the power source.

The result of their efforts — a relatively crude sandwich of glass, metal, rubber, plastic and photo-active chlorophyll — has little resemblance to a leaf, but rather looks like a three-dimensional schematic version of a grasshopper, with electric terminals for antennae.

There is a small, two-compartment cell made of glass, separated by a plastic membrane containing the chlorophyll. The compartments contain a reducing agent and a reducing agent with the chlorophyll membrane between them. It is constructed to use light energy and the chlorophyll to create an electrical current by transferring electrons from one side of the membrane to the other, the way a living plant does.

The synthetic leaf, like its prototype in nature, has been found, when light is flashed upon it, "to produce" tiny amounts of electrical energy that could trigger the still little-understood means by which light energy can split water into hydrogen and oxygen and produce organic compounds. "We have been able to detect a change in electric potential across the membrane upon irradiation with light," said Dr. Thomas H. Jansan, a chemist with the study group. If such a transport of electrons, triggered by light, can be produced in the laboratory, the study group reasons that practical applications can be come a real possibility. These include the storage of electricity, whereby electrons could be transferred to one side of a cell and kept there or conducted away to provide electricity. Another is the use of artificial photosynthesis to make carbohydrates or to synthesize protein more efficiently than can be done by plants, or the use of a plant could possibly be used to produce hydrogen, a promising fuel. All such possibilities lie far in the future, the team agrees, but the synthetic leaf, they feel, is an example of novel ways scientists are attempting to unravel the still-mysterious processes of nature and use them for the benefit of mankind.

Dr. Joseph J. Katz, a scientist, is not G. O. G., but he has constructed just such an artificial leaf out of glass, metal and chemicals. Without the elves.

Katz, who is chief chemist at the Argonne National Laboratory in Argonne, Ill., has been working with a group of scientists for the past two years in an effort to gain an understanding of the process of photosynthesis. Results of their preliminary work have recently been made public in the laboratory's bulletin.

Scientists have long known that green plants and leaves, containing chlorophyll, when exposed to light under suitable conditions of temperature and water supply, take carbon dioxide from the atmosphere and, by a complex conversion method, release oxygen back into the atmosphere.

These gaseous exchanges are the external manifestation of the process known as photosynthesis, regarded as the most important of all biological processes. The existence of the entire biological world of plants and animals, with a few exceptions, hinges upon this process.

In photosynthesis, carbohydrates are manufactured from carbon dioxide and water by living plant cells in the presence of light, and oxygen is produced. During the process, the radiant energy of sunlight is stored up as chemical energy in molecules of carbohydrates and other

Iran goes nuclear

Washington Star
TEHRAN — Already hedging against the day its oil resources dry up, Iran has begun construction of the first of possibly 20 to 25 nuclear power plants. It believes it will need.

Near the town of Bushehr on the Persian Gulf, a 1,200-megawatt plant is being built with West German assistance. It is the first of two contracted for with Bonn, each to cost about $1 billion. The twin projects, scheduled for completion by 1981, should make Iran the first Middle East country to turn to nuclear power.

Iran still has 30 years of oil reserves, but the Shah, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, figures if he puts off construction of the nuclear power plants until later, soaring construction costs could make the price tag prohibitive. Despite such prudence, the estimated cost of Iran's nuclear effort already is projected at $25 billion.

Oil money has been pouring in, some believed faster than Iran could make full use of it. So next year, French contractors are to begin construction of two more nuclear plants — with 900-megawatt capacity apiece. Over-all, both France and West Germany are likely to build five nuclear plants each for Iran over the next 20 years. Negotiations are under way with the United States for another eight, and Sweden also reportedly has submitted proposals to build plants.

The Shah's goal is 21,000 megawatts of power from nuclear fission by 1985, about what it is estimated 20 to 25 nuclear power plants could provide.

The estimated $25-billion cost for the planned power system is still over Iran's annual oil earnings, but would be spread out. Oil income is expected to gross $20 billion this year, down some from last year and barely offsetting concurrent foreign exchange outlay. Iran has borrowed heavily this year to improve her position.

The system also would require several thousand tons of enriched uranium.

Steel production expected to increase for 1976

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Industry officials said Friday the nation's steel production for this year by one of its worst slumps since the post World War II period, should recover in 1976 and predicted domestic shipments could reach 55 million tons.

Edgar B. Speer, chairman of United States Steel Corp., said the country's No. 1 producer anticipated a "reasonably respectable year of business in 1976."

The chief executive officer of Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp. said recovery was already under way. Robert E. Lauterbach, chairman and president, said "resurging markets for light, flat-rolled steel should make shipments in January for his firm the best in recent months."

"The outlook for steel shipments is rapidly improving," Speer said in a year-end statement. "For the full year of 1976, it is expected that total shipments by the domestic steel industry should reach 55 million tons."

The projected figure compares with about 80 million tons shipped during 1975. Industry analysts said the decline of total steel shipments last year was one of the sharpest since the Great Depression.

"Steel shipments were depressed in 1975 not only by the general state of the economy but by steel customers liquidating some 11 million tons of steel from their inventories," Speer said.

"Thus, with customer inventories already low and steel consumption rising — particularly among manufacturers of consumer goods — a continued upswing in the economy during 1976 could raise steel demand beyond current ceilings."

He said orders for certain energy-related products were so heavy that U.S. Steel's facilities were booked through 1978.

Lauterbach said Wheeling-Pittsburgh's 234-million-dollar order book was full for January, and orders for hot and cold-rolled sheets were also improving with increased demand for automotive and consumer durable goods customers.

"The American steel industry was among the last to fall victim to the recession," Lauterbach said, "but the industry is now demonstrating that it will match the restoration of vigor being displayed in other basic industries, among them glass, chemical, paper and lumber."

Speer said the "threat of inflation — especially from excessive government spending and indebtedness — is still a very real problem." And he warned that continued pursuit of "unrealistic environmental goals" by the executive branch of the government could trigger unemployment in the steel industry.

U.S. economic recovery may not help unemployed

N. Y. Times Service — NEW YORK — The United States, which led the world into the most serious recession since World War II, is expected to lead it out again in 1976. Yet the recovery in the major industrial countries is expected to be so sluggish as to make little or no dent in unemployment — the worst since the end of the Depression of the 1930s.

The economic staff of the 24-nation Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development has laid out the past and anticipated real wages at the principle non-Communist nations. The OECD's forecasts for 1976 are slightly lower than the official forecasts of the national authorities.

In some cases, OECD's forecasts look too high. For instance, Japan's real rate of growth in 1976 — the increase in gross national product corrected for anticipated price inflation — was expected by OECD to increase by 4.25 per cent about 1 per cent lower than the earlier official Japanese forecast.

However a few days ago the Japanese government itself announced it was cutting its 1976 forecast from 4.25 per cent to 2.2 per cent; some anxious Japanese economists would chop it lower still.

Analysis — Considering that Japan's real growth rate averaged 10.9 per cent per year from 1955 to 1973, the expected 2.2 per cent increase in real GNP next year will feel more like a continuation of the recession than a recovery.

Indeed, so-called "growth recessions," a term coined by Solomon Fabricant, of the National Bureau of Economic Research, can now be perceived as no contradiction in terms at all.

For, in any country where labor-force growth plus productivity increase exceeds the rise in total GNP, unemployment will increase, number of capitalist countries, including Japan, France, West Germany Italy and Britain, are likely to experience rising unemployment next year. In Canada, unemployment should decline slightly.

In the United States, where unemployment currently is 8.3 per cent of the labor force, if GNP rises by only the forecast 5.75 per cent, there would be less than a 1 percentage point decline in unemployment, and the national elections next November will take place with unemployment in the vicinity of 7.5 per cent.

Would this mean defeat for the Republicans as the party in power — even if the candidate turns out to be Ronald Reagan rather than Gerald R. Ford?

As well as can be determined by analysis of the link between economic trends and past elections, the answer is not necessarily.

An economic study by Prof. Ray C. Fair, of the Cowles Foundation for Research in Economics of Yale University, clearly indicates that the main measure of economic performance used by voters in Presidential elections is the growth rate of real output in the year of the election. These results hold for the national elections from 1882, when Grover Cleveland was elected, to 1972, when Richard M. Nixon won in a landslide, with the economy moving up strongly, in large measure due to stimulative fiscal and monetary policies.

If this sliding holds up, says Fair, "then the optimal policy of an administration interested only in maximizing the probability of its party winning the next Presidential election is to maximize the growth rate of real output in the year of the election."

The Fair study also found that the optimal timing for the administration in power would be to have the economy reach a trough sometime during the first three quarters of the year preceding the election year.

Since the U. S. economy turned up in the second quarter of 1975 and real GNP climbed at an annual rate of 13.2 per cent in the third quarter, with the help of tax cuts and the end of inventory liquidation, the Ford Administration's timing for the election year appears to be close to perfect.

However, the strength of the advance, not just its timing, counts for a great deal. If, as the Administration earlier expected, real GNP were to increase by 7 per cent in 1976, Ford — or Reagan — would be odds-on favorites to win.

Chinese see 'war clouds'

HONG KONG (UPI) — China said Friday that the dark clouds of a new world war are hanging more heavily than ever because of Soviet-American rivalry.

"A violent storm is gathering over the horizon and nothing can stop it," an article in the People's Daily, official newspaper of the Chinese Communist party said in a review of the year.

"The article was published in Thursday's edition of the Peking-based newspaper, The New China News Agency transmitted — translated excerpts from the lengthy article today. "Nineteen Seventy Five has seen an intensified scramble between the two superpowers for hegemony and the dark clouds of a new world war are hanging more heavily over the peoples," the article said. "The arms race between the Soviet Union and the United States is proceeding at a feverish pace never seen before."

"In the world today, only the Soviet Union and the United States are in a position to launch a world war. They are the source of a new world war."

Sales tax cut eyed for Idaho

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Sen. Dunc Watkins, R-Idaho, feels his time-Idaho taxpayer cut some tax relief since the state keeps coming up with a surplus in the general fund.

Watkins said today he would introduce a bill in the forthcoming session of the Idaho legislature, starting Jan. 7 in Boise, to reduce the sales tax to 2.5 per cent from three per cent. "This legislation could bring $14 million in tax relief," Watkins said.

Watkins pointed out that the state's citizens have been "over-taxed" some $20-$30 million because of the two large surpluses the last two years.

"This has been deceiving and unfair to Idaho citizens," he said. "Our surplus for this year again looks good."

In fact, Watkins said he understood that this year's surplus "could be at least $11 million. We should adjust our tax structure to what we have been appropriating and not over-tax Idaho citizens."

War memories could kill survivor

TENKS, Okla. (UPI) — The Germans failed to kill Alfred C. Sherman 30 years ago, but vivid memories of World War II may be fatal for the twice-wounded veteran.

Sherman, 54, walked away from a nursing home Monday and fled into the nearby snow-covered hills.

His family fears he may hide from rescuers, thinking they are Nazi soldiers trying to capture him.

Sherman, a diabetic who was wounded in the back and leg in Europe, recently suffered a stroke. Family members said since then he has been confused about time and circumstances.

"Since he had the stroke he's talked about it, the war, continuously," Mrs. Sherman said. "He'll cry and he'll say, 'I'll be glad when the war's over so I can go home.'"

Holiday crush

WILD DUCKS from Siberia were observed jamming a pond in Ueno Park near Tokyo. The ducks are from Siberia, but have flown south to Japan for the season, a sure sign that winter has arrived in Asia.

Andrus asks study delay

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus is seeking a three-month delay on completion of a federal study of proposed phosphate mining in Southeast Idaho to allow state agencies more time to comment.

The governor requested the delay in a letter this week to Secretary of the Interior Thomas S. Kleppe and William J. Schneider, Pocatello, head of a Department of Interior task force.

Last month, Andrus criticized a preliminary draft statement because state agencies had not been consulted by the task force. As a result of Andrus' objections, an agreement was reached between the governor and Schneider that the state agencies would estimate how much time they needed to complete comments and Schneider said he personally would grant a 30-day delay.

State agencies since have indicated they need anywhere from sometime in January to March 1 to make their comments.

Andrus wrote Kleppe and Schneider that he concurs with the analysis of the directors of several state agencies and the administrators of the Idaho environmental and planning offices that there are "serious deficiencies in the methodology and substance of the preliminary draft."

"Furthermore," he added, "the widespread impact of proposed increased phosphate development merits closer attention from the state even though most of the deposits involved are being managed by federal agencies."

Andrus said that without input from the state agencies the draft statement "would exhibit severe weaknesses leading, I believe, to even greater delays following public exposure through the hearings to be scheduled."

Eight companies have proposed 16 new phosphate mines in southeastern Idaho, involving 121,000 acres. Four new processing plants also are proposed for the Soda Springs area by 1987.

Bureau projects births

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The number of women experiencing the birth of their first child in the year 1975 is projected to range from 1.2 to 1.8 million, according to a report released today by the Bureau of the Census.

The report, projecting the number of first births from 1975 to the turn of the century, was prepared in response to numerous requests. Interest is high in first births because they represent a crucial step in family formation. The impact on family lifestyle and consumption patterns make first births an important indicator in the field of social science and marketing.

In projecting first births, the report uses three projection series:

— Series I assumes that the proportion of women who will have at least one child will remain constant. This is slightly lower than the proportion among women born in the 1930's who contributed to the post World War II "baby boom."

— Series II assumes that 85 per cent of the women will have at least one child. This figure is suggested by various data on birth expectations and recent fertility.

— Series III assumes that 75 per cent of women will have at least one child. This is below the historically low proportion of just under 80 per cent among women born in the 1900-1910 period.

In applying these series, the report makes the following projections:

— Under Series I, which assumes that there was a pronounced postponement of childbearing during the past few years, the annual number of first births would increase to nearly 2 million by 1980. The figure would then drop gradually to 1.6 million during the early 1990's before again increasing.

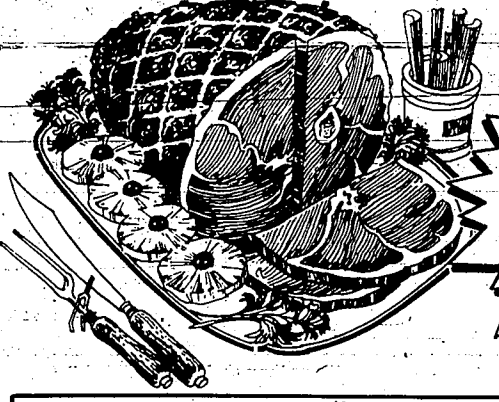

— Under Series II, which assumes some postponement of childbearing during the past few years, the annual number of first births would increase to 1.7 million in 1980 and then would drop gradually to 1.5 million at the turn of the century.

— Under Series III, which assumes no postponement of childbearing in recent years, the annual number of first births would drop slightly below 1.3 million and then increase to 1.4 million in 1980 before beginning a long-term decline.

Historically, the annual number of first births increased sharply following World War II to a peak figure of nearly 1.6 million in the year ending June 30, 1947. The number dropped below 1.2 million in 1950 and remained close to that figure for a decade. Then the number rose above 1.4 million in the 1970-1971-year before declining to an estimated 1.3 million in the 1972-74 year.

Poetry greets shoppers

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UPI) — Directed Christmas shoppers returning to cars parked at expired meters during the past couple of days have been getting a pleasant holiday surprise.

Instead of a five-dollar parking ticket in their windshields, meter violators have found a free Christmas poem from Montgomery County's parking enforcement officers.

The meter was red as time had expired.

In the rush of the season we knew you'd be tired, shopping. A parking ticket would just make you blue. In the holiday spirit this would not do. So during this season of friendship and good cheer — Merry Christmas to you and best wishes all year.

"It's nicer than giving out tickets," said Marcia Weisner, one of a dozen parking enforcement officers who monitor the county's meters in four Washington D.C. suburbs including Bethesda. "We do have about 1,000 of the holiday messages have been given out since Tuesday."

Gem court denies appeal

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Supreme Court has denied the appeal of Chris H. Christensen in his case against Calico Construction and Development Co. Inc.

Christensen filed suit against Calico claiming the doctor provided him by the company after an on-the-job injury was inadequate. He sought medical treatment in Utah and Montana for which he requested payment in addition to a request for disability awards.

The Industrial Commission of the State of Idaho awarded him temporary total disability and permanent partial disability and denied him out-of-state medical expenses.

Christensen appealed both. The Supreme Court affirmed the commission's award because "it was based upon physician's reports and Christensen had not met his burden of proof that he intended to seek medical care from a doctor other than the original doctor provided by Calico."

Busing opponents may move

BOSTON (UPI) — Staving out of the city may be the way to get around the latest federal court decision designed to promote the integration of the city's school system, a newly elected school committee member advised Thursday.

A ruling by U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity on Tuesday left the East Boston school district without its own high school, and prompted Father Paul Paltano, an East Boston resident and vocal opponent court-ordered busing, to say that parents may want to move to the suburbs.

"Summer is coming and people may want to look into other school systems or consider purchasing homes in nearby suburban areas," he said. "The busing is a 'trap' — Saugus and Beverly," said Mrs. Paltano, who takes office Jan. 3.

Under the court's desegregation plan, East Boston's high school would be converted to a technical high school (only a quarter of its 1,025 students, 85 per cent of which are white residents, would remain). The rest would be transferred to schools in other sections of the city.

Meanwhile, School Committee Chairman Joseph J. McLaughlin urged Judge Garrity to modify his order and allow East Boston High to remain in its present form. He suggested a school be established in the district which would be established as a technical or "magnet" school.

"I hope the whole situation can be clarified immediately and parents notified where to send their children," said Mrs. Paltano who intends to seek a legal clarification as soon as she takes office.

Guest may raise big stink

BOISE (UPI) — Gordon Reed has an unwelcome guest but he doesn't want to file him for fear of causing "a big stink."

Reed said he doesn't want "to do anything that will raise a big stink" but he figures he has to find a solution to the problem of getting rid of a skunk that has taken up residency under his trailer, east of Boise on State Highway 21.

Reed said when he first heard the animal under the home, he thought it was a punk rat and he put out a peanut butter trap.

"I'm glad that skunk doesn't like peanut butter because he would have been awfully upset if he had tripped that trap," Reed said.

He has considered poison first, leading to turn the tables on the skunk.

If that fails, Reed will just try some other method. So far, the skunk hasn't caused any problems.

All will fight without sanction

NEW YORK (UPI) — Don King said Saturday the heavyweight title fight between Muhammad Ali and Belgian champion Jean Pierre Coopmans will go ahead as scheduled on Feb. 20 despite the refusal of a European boxing group to sanction the fight.

The European Boxing Commission wanted Coopmans to meet Richard Dunn, the European heavyweight champion, instead of Ali. King refused to sanction the fight. The World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association have yet to comment.

In 24 fights, Coopmans has won 21, lost two and had one draw.

Three U.S. sites were mentioned as possible locations: Boston Garden, Las Vegas and Capital Centre in Landover, Md.

Cardinals call Rams 'best' they've met

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — As far as St. Louis coach Dan Curvel is concerned, the Los Angeles Rams are the best team his Cardinals have played this season.

"The Rams have a great opportunity to go to the Super Bowl," a disappointed Curvel said in a hushed St. Louis dressing room Saturday, minutes after the Rams beat the Cards, 35-21, in the opening round of the NFC playoffs.

"I know the Rams are the best team we've played this year. But, of course, they have a real tough assignment now, particularly if they play Minnesota next weekend because Minnesota would have the game right in their favor."

"We would have liked to have played this game on our own field," Curvel said. "Terry McCutcheon can't play on grass. It slows him down and it tires him out."

In the Ram dressing room, there were smiles. But most of the Los Angeles players took the victory in a business-like manner.

"I wasn't aware of how many yards I had," said Lawrence McCutcheon. "I knew that I had carried the ball a lot because I was first at the end. The most I had carried it previously was 39 times in college."

"If we have to go to Minnesota next week and play in the cold weather, that's not going to bother me because I played in cold weather all the way through college."

McCutcheon carried the ball 37 times for 202 yards against St. Louis to set a playoff record. He said he felt stronger going into the game because he sat out the Rams' regular season finale against Pittsburgh with a thigh injury.

Ron Jaworski found out just before the game began he was going to be the Rams' starting quarterback in place of James Harris, who has a sore arm.

"James could have played," said Chuck Knox, the Rams head coach, "but he just didn't have the zip on the ball during the warmups."

"I always knew I had the talent, and naturally I always want to start," said Jaworski. "The Cardinals have a much better offensive team than they are given credit for."

Jack Youngblood, the Rams star defensive end, ran back a Jim Hart pass interception 47 yards for the team's second touchdown in the first quarter.

"It was a shock when I first got the ball," he said. "The only thing I was thinking after that was I didn't want to get caught from behind."

"I saw Jim Hart out of the corner of my eye and I thought, 'if he catches me, I'm in trouble,'" Youngblood said.

"We put in a few wrinkles," admitted Knox. "But really, anything you do differently is still predicated on execution. Blocking and tackling — that's what we did."

Cavs drops Bullets

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Campy Russell's offensive rebound basket with 1:50 remaining gave Cleveland the lead and the Cavaliers held on Saturday night for a 106-100 National Basketball Association victory over the Washington Bullets.

Austin Carr led Cleveland, which has now won eight of its last nine games, with 21 points, 10 of them in the final quarter. Jim Brewer, Bingo Smith and Jim Chones each added 16 for the Cavaliers.

Brewer also had 17 rebounds, as did Washington's Wes Unsold.

HEADSTANDING Terry Bradshaw of Pittsburgh injured his leg — of all things — when he flipped head-over-heels after running out of the pocket against the Baltimore Colts in AFC playoff action Saturday. # New quarterback, two interceptions carry Rams into conference finals

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In his second NFL start, second-year quarterback Ron Jaworski guided the Los Angeles Rams into finals of the NFC playoffs Saturday.

"We have been guilty of complacency throughout the year," Jaworski said following the Rams' 35-21 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals, "but never in the big games."

"As for myself, I really didn't feel any pressure at all. I am the type of person who has the confidence to go out and do a good job."

Of course, the Ram defense had a lot to do with the convincing victory in the first-round playoff game.

Jack Youngblood and Bill Simpson scored touchdowns on long runs after intercepting errant Jim Hart passes in the first half. Jaworski accounted for two other first-half failures.

"It's hard to sack Hart — nobody has been able to get in him very often — but I thought we put some good pressure on him, which is what we started out to do and it paid off in some interceptions," said Rams' head coach Chuck Knox.

"I haven't even thought about next week yet. I just want to go home and enjoy this one.

"James Harris is still our No. 1, but I was pleased by the way Ron Jaworski stepped in and gave us the direction we needed. We made the decision to start Ron just before the kickoff."

Lawrence McCutcheon, who missed the Rams' final regular season game against Pittsburgh because of a thigh injury, rushed for a playoff record 202 yards on 37 carries, including 51 yards on nine attempts on his team's first touchdown drive. Earlier Saturday, Pittsburgh's Frances Harris ran for 153 yards to break the previous record set by McCutcheon in a time-breaking Harris' mark.

The Rams, bidding to make it to their first Super Bowl, will play the winner of Sunday's Dallas-Minnesota in the NFC finals.

Youngblood, an all-pro defensive end, ran back a Hart pass 47 yards for a touchdown at 7:29 of the first quarter to give the Rams a 14-0 lead. Simpson, who also intercepted a pass in the fourth period, picked off a Hart aerial and streaked 65 yards for a score just 14 seconds into the second quarter to make it 21-0.

Starting in place of sore-armed James Harris, Jaworski, the "Polish Rifle" from Youngstown State, teamed with speedy Harold Jackson for a 66-yard touchdown bomb at 4:24 of the second quarter.

The Rams took the opening kickoff and marched 79 yards in 13 plays with Jaworski gaining the final five yards on a rollout around left end for a 7-0 lead at 6:32 gone in the game.

The Rams' premier defense, which recorded an NFL regular season low of 135 points in 14 games, was able to get to Hart twice for sacks and had the pressure on him all day.

The Cardinals' offensive line, which permitted only eight sacks all season, allowed Youngblood to make an 11-yard sack in the third quarter and the other Ram defensive end, Fred Dryer, to make a 12-yard sack in the fourth quarter.

The Rams forced the Cardinals to commit five turnovers in the game. Three of them were interceptions of Hart passes and the other two were fumble recoveries.

Four of the Cardinal turnovers came in the first half as the Rams, winning their seventh straight game, grabbed a 29-9 lead.

St. Louis scored its first touchdown at 4:07 of the second quarter on a three-yard run by Jim Ochs but Youngblood, the ever-present Ram defender, got in and deflected Jim Bakken's extra-point attempt. Bakken kicked a 29-yard field goal at 11:12 of the second period.

The Cards, winners of two straight NFC East championships, took the second half kickoff and marched 80 yards in 12 plays, scoring on an 11-yard pass from Hart to Mel Gray at 3:43 of the third quarter to cut the Ram advantage to 28-6.

Ron Jessie then put the game out of reach with 3:39 left in the game when he picked up a McCutcheon fumble on the two and carried it into the end zone. The Cards' Steve Jones scored on a three-yard run with 31 seconds to go for St. Louis.

Playing catchup right from the start, Hart went to the air 41 times and completed 22 of them for 291 yards. Jaworski attempted 23 passes and completed 12 for 203 yards and, unlike Hart, had no interceptions.

"If Minnesota beats Dallas Sunday, that will set up a Los Angeles game at Minnesota next Sunday for the NFC title. However, a Dallas win would mean a Ram-Cowboys' meeting here a week from Sunday."

Baltimore's cinderella hopes die under assault by Steelers' Harris, defense

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Midnight came eight hours early for Baltimore's Cinderella Colts.

It came in the person of fullback Franco Harris and in an inspired Pittsburgh defense led by Mel Blount and Dwight White that scored one touchdown and set up another and led the Super Bowl champion Steelers to a 28-10 victory over Baltimore Saturday in an AFC semifinal playoff game.

Harris ran for a playoff record 153 yards, scored one touchdown and set up another to send the Steelers into next Sunday's AFC title game here against the winner of Sunday's Oakland-Cincinnati game.

Blount's 20-yard interception return set up Rocky Bleier's seven-yard touchdown run in the third period which pulled Pittsburgh ahead to stay and White led a defensive charge that stymied the Colt offense all day.

Linebacker Andy Russell sealed the victory with a 53-yard touchdown run with a fumble late in the game after Baltimore had moved to the Steelers' three.

"We got a lot of pressure from our defense and that was the difference," said Steeler Coach Chuck Noll. "Our offense didn't do a lot. We could have left them home and just brought the defense. Dwight White and Ernie Holmes made great contributions and Jack Lambert also was exceptional."

"Franco was our entire offense. He ran like only Franco can run and he got the yards when we needed them most. We had a lot of mistakes and errors on offense and that hurt us a lot. But our defense bailed us out. I haven't seen them play with such determination in quite a few weeks."

Noll credited Blount's interception as being the turning point of the game.

"Mel" played that just beautifully," Noll said. "He just stepped in and took it away just like we teach it. He didn't get impatient—he waited for his blockers and he set up the big score."

Harris called the game one of the best performances of his career.

"I was one of the best football games I've ever been in," said Harris. "It was a real physical game—the kind of game the Steelers like to play."

With Pittsburgh trailing 10-7 and the Colts on the verge of one of the great upsets in NFL history, NFL interception leader Blount picked off sub quarterback Marty Domers' pass and returned it 20 yards to the Colt seven. Bleier then burst off right tackle on the first play to give Pittsburgh the lead.

Pittsburgh started a 39-yard scoring drive with 9:32 remaining. Bradshaw, who had to be helped off the field at halftime with a knee injury, hit Larry Brown with a nine-yard pass and then Harris took over, carrying four times for 23 yards to set up Bradshaw's two-yard TD plunge.

Toni Linhart gave the Colts a 10-7 lead in the third quarter when he kicked a 21-yard field goal and Baltimore seemed in control before Pittsburgh's 21-point second-half onslaught.

Both quarterbacks suffered injuries in the first half. Baltimore's Bert Jones was hurt on third down on the Colts' first series, suffering a strained arm, and he did not return until the last quarter. Bradshaw was carted off attempting to run for a first down just before the half ended and had to be carried from the field at halftime. He started the second half.

The loss was a bitter one for Baltimore, which capped the greatest comeback by a division winner in NFL history this year by rebounding from a 2-12 record in 1974, the worst record in the league, to 10-4 and the AFC East title in 1975.

The Colts fought to a 7-7 halftime score. Pittsburgh, conservative in its opening series, opened up midway through the first quarter. Taking possession on their own 39, the Steelers needed just four plays to score. Bradshaw threw 34 yards to Frank Lewis, who made a brilliant one-handed leaping catch, and then hit Lynn Swann for 14 more yards. Harris cracked five yards up the middle and then raced eight yards off left end for the score.

Pittsburgh seemed in control when Bradshaw threw directly to Colt cornerback Lloyd Mumphord, who raced down the left sideline 58 yards to the Steeler 19. Lydell Mitchell carried four consecutive times to the five and Darren Isett rumbled right on third down and hit Glenn Doughty, who juggled the ball and finally pulled it in on his knees in the end zone.

Russell's 33-yard run with the fumble was also a playoff record and marked the end for the Colts.

"The game was worth only a regular game paycheck to each one."

Next week's title games include a post-season playoff, money, leading to a $15,000 per man winner's payoff in the Super Bowl.

Buffalo lifts suspension of top scorer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo Braves lifted their suspension of Bob McAdoo, the National Basketball Association's leading scorer and Most Valuable Player last season, Saturday night and he played in a home game against Philadelphia.

McAdoo, the NBA's scoring leader again this season, scored only 18 points against the 76ers, but he grabbed 17 rebounds and had five assists and two steals as the Braves beat Philadelphia 134-105.

McAdoo had been suspended Wednesday after missing a game with Boston because of a strained back. Team officials had asked him to get the opinion of a second doctor after the team physician could find nothing wrong with the 34-year-old player's back.

When McAdoo refused to consult another doctor, he was suspended by team owner Phil Siever.

Buffalo general manager Bob MacKinnon said McAdoo would be fined for the suspension but MacKinnon would not comment on the amount of the fine.

McAdoo also dressed quickly after the game and spoke quietly and sparsely about the suspension, and he "didn't know" how much he would be fined.

MacKinnon said the suspension was lifted "because McAdoo returned to the team."

Idaho will transplant 100 Oregon elk in drainage of Pete King creek

Idaho Department of Fish and Game and Clearwater National Forest officials have announced today plans for a transplant of 100 Oregon elk to the Pete King Creek drainage near Lowell.

The forest service is preparing an Environmental Analysis Report on the proposed project to assess the environmental impacts of the transplant.

The Pete King drainage elk herd and winter game range has been studied for the past 10 years to evaluate the results of winter game range rehabilitation and also elk population dynamics and distribution. The Pete King elk herd winter counts have declined from 408 head in 1957 to about 63 head in 1974.

The exact causes of the decline are not known; however, recent studies indicate that probably a combination of several factors are involved.

The Department of Fish and Game is planning to trade 20 of Idaho's bighorn sheep and 10 mountain goats to Oregon for approximately 100 Oregon elk. They will be trucked from Oregon to Idaho.

Oregon is expected to transplant the big horns on the west side of the Snake River in Hells Canyon. Last year, Idaho's Department of Fish and Game transplanted big horns on the Idaho side of the canyon.

Elk trapping is expected to begin about the middle of January on the Wallowa-Whitman National Forest in northeast Oregon.

Tom Legee, a principal game research biologist with the department, said the 100 new elk will fit into continuing studies of the Clearwater herd.

The transplanted elk will be watched closely for their preferences for spring, summer and fall habitat and how the animals' choices are influenced by man's disturbances. About 10 percent of the elk will wear radio collars and they will be tracked periodically from an airplane.

All of the transplanted elk will have special ear tags for identification," Legee said, "and the key will be whether or not the new elk return to the Pete King winter range. There is adequate browse in Pete King winter and summer range to support the existing herd and the new elk. Closures of unnecessary roads will be made by the Forest Service and a bulls only hunting season will improve the chance of a successful transplant."

Transplanting elk may be a quicker way to fill the habitat vacuum than waiting for the herd to increase in size naturally.

"This project is strictly experimental," Legee said.

Lesli Hamilton shoots for spot in Olympic high jump

Training for the Olympics is not an easy task, but the goals involved remain a challenge for BYU high jumper Lesli Hamilton.

Lesli placed third in the NCAA finals in 1974 with a 5'6" jump. "I wasn't really happy with the jump," she says. "because I know I can do better." The 21-year-old senior has jumped as high as 5'9".

Continging a trip to the Montreal Olympics next summer, Lesli began to work out at the beginning of the fall semester.

"You've got to work hard," she says, "and I haven't worked as hard as I should." Lesli feels a potential Olympic should work out two to three days a week, including distance and sprint running and weight lifting. "I also play medicine ball three times a week."

"Track means more to me than to the average athlete and even more than it does to a lot of coaches," she said. "Competition is just a part of it. I like to compete for fun, but even when it's for fun, I hate to lose," she says smiling.

Lesli began winning in the fourth grade when she won the city high jump event in her Twin Falls, Idaho, hometown. She won again in the fifth grade, but lost the next year. "It just broke my heart, but I kept on jumping."

She feels BYU is the best location for track meets. "There are no other schools with good track programs for women, and I go to meets knowing I'll win. I'd rather have the competition."

"I'm all for women in athletics. They should have a chance to develop, too. You can still be a lady and do well in sports," she adds.

Coach Mayes challenges cage concepts

It's just about time for basketball conference play to start. In fact, some of it gets going next week.

But looking into January and back across December, it does not appear that Magic Valley has the power in basketball it's enjoyed the past several years.

This area has three taken two titles, another time one and a fifth time — its biggest year — won three of the classification group crowns and played for the fourth — in the past five years.

Apparently only Richfield remains among the undefeated, but surprising since Richfield is returning some players who have been starting for three years and played varsity ball for four.

But here also is a worry about that and Coach Wayne Hunt. "My kids kinda has given an acknowledgement in that direction. The fear of an all veteran team returning is that it might have learned its proficiency and not develop further.

"With but two exceptions, Coach Humphreys has stated "not to win this game" or words to that effect.

All senior teams should dominate in December because they basically are playing against teams that are still learning what varsity ball is all about.

"Which does not say that Richfield might not win it all but only on the occasions that Coach Humphreys was happy with the offense did the Tigers run away from another team.

Opposite that argument, however, is the system that Coach Gerald Mayes is using at Minico. He is keeping only one junior on his varsity and, in fact, saw one junior drop out of the program when he declined to make a varsity player of him. Coach Mayes lists only Jesse Miller as a bonafide veteran on his team although several of the others did see some varsity play last year.

Coach Mayes has gone to a system of grade platooning — or if broken down — keeping units together and trying to bring each team up to a varsity peak.

It will be an interesting experiment for basketball fans to watch.

The prevailing idea in high school athletics is that if a junior cracks your top varsity 10, his chances of becoming a valuable asset as a senior are slim. This excludes the top boy varsity coordinator may chance up with his growth in time for the good senior season.

Because of that idea most coaches, faced with the matter of a junior and senior being nearly identical in capability, will cut the senior or play the junior ahead of him.

This situation also brings up what Coach Charles Farmer always felt was a matter of timing. Coach Farmer, now at Filer, believes that you must go with the senior as long as you feel you have to have him to help. That means start the senior and leave the junior on the bench.

"Once you move that junior ahead of the senior, you've lost him (senior) as a hall player," Coach Farmer maintains.

He doesn't mean that the senior will quit and, although it might be quite collectible to watchers, the senior may stay on the team and believe he's still giving his all for the old school.

But Coach Farmer firmly believes that once the senior has served someone else, move past him. He loses that psychological edge and can not help a team as he had done before.

Coach Farmer does admit he's seen exceptions to the rule, but not many.

With that for background, Coach Mayes can be seen holding some accepted and popular creeds:

His sophomores play soph ball, his juniors play junior ball and he schedules a full slate for them and his seniors play varsity.

It accomplishes the "intangible" cohesiveness that everyone

Here are a few reminders of fish and game laws hunters and fishermen should be aware of during this time of year.

First is a reminder to buy that new hunting and fishing license before going into the field after January 1, 1976. They are available at your local vendor now.

Chukar, lun and quail hunters are reminded the season closes on December 28. The only open area in January includes the lower Salmon River and Snake River drainages downstream from Sheep Creek and Brownlee Dam, respectively. This season runs until January 18.

The duck season runs until January 11 in the Magic and Treasure Valley portion of southern Idaho. Goose season closed December 14 east of Highway 93, but runs until December 28 on the west side of Highway 93 in southern Idaho. Your 1975 duck stamp is good for the portion of waterfowl season extending into January, 1976.

Make sure you check the waterfowl shooting hours since it closes early in the evening. These hours are listed on the back of the migratory bird regulations.

Illegal shooting — from moving, motor-powered boats continues to be a problem along the river section in Magie Valley. This activity is taking unfair advantage of the birds, is unsportsmanlike, and can cost you a substantial fine if you are caught. The law states it is only legal to hunt from motor-powered boats if the motor is completely shut off and forward progress has ceased or it is moored. A boat powered by paddle, oars, or pole can be used to shoot from and drifting down on the ducks is a very effective method.

There are a number of changes in the 1976 fishing regulations and some of these involve ice fishing in Magic Valley, Magic Reservoir will have a special winter season from January 1 through February 28. There is a two trout limit on the reservoir and no limit on perch.

Fish Creek, Roseworth and Little Wood reservoirs will have the regular winter ice fishing season from January 1 through February 28. The statewide trout limit, which is applicable to these three reservoirs, has been changed to ten trout, of which not more than five may exceed 21 inches or two over 18 inches. The previous regulation involved ten trout and a weight limit rather than a length limit. The length is measured from the tip of the nose to the tip of the tail on the trout.

The 1976 fishing regulations are also available at your local vendor.

Tarkenton, Staubach duel in battle of NFC's best

BLOOMINGTON, Min. (UPI) — The NFC's top two passers, Fran Tarkenton and Roger Staubach, meet Sunday in a first-round playoff between the Minnesota Vikings, shooting for their third consecutive spot in the Super Bowl game, and the Dallas Cowboys.

The Vikings' 12-1, Central Division champions for the seventh time in eight years, and Dallas, 10-4, NFC wild card team, play at noon Sunday in Metropolitan Stadium. Minnesota is an eight-point favorite.

The natural turf is reported to be in good condition, cleared of snow covered with a tarp and warmed with hot air blowers to prevent freezing. The weatherman predicts cloudy skies and temperatures in the high 30s.

The Cowboys figure they can win it they stop Tarkenton. Immediately followed by running-pass catching — Chuck Foreman. The Vikings, who went to Tulsa for three days of mid-weather practice this week, consider Staubach the key man to contain in the Dallas attack.

"I don't know of a quarterback who does as much with what he has," Dallas Coach Tom Landry said about Tarkenton. "He handles the defenses very well. And, of course, Foreman is a complete ball player. Next to O.J. Simpson, Foreman is the best all-around back in football.

Tarkenton is the top-rated passer in the NFC with a 97.7 rating, 61.2 percent of completion, 25 touchdowns passes and only 12 interceptions. He has passed 1,414 yards' career records for touchdowns passed, pass attempts and completion.

Foreman is the NFC scoring and renaissance leader with 27 touchdowns and 73 receptions and rising run-up with 1,626 yards. He had blurred vision "badly after being hit in the eye with a steel ball in the game of Buffalo last weekend but is ready to start Sunday.

Tarkenton and Foreman have helped make Minnesota the NFC's highest scoring team with 377 points.

Minnesota Coach Don Grant says, "Staubach is the man who has brought Dallas this far and he's the man for us to stop. Like Tarkenton, he won't stand around if the pass isn't there. He makes things happen. If Staubach isn't there, he'll take off like a bull back.

Staubach is the NFC's No. 2 passer with a 96.6 rating, 59 percent completion, 17 touchdowns passes and 16 interceptions.

Landry said Staubach has been "playing better this season than he did the year we won the Super Bowl. He's more sure of himself now, seeing things better and executing better."

The game matches the NFC's leading offensive team, Dallas, against the NFL's top defense, Minnesota. All Dallas' defense is tight in the NFL, forcing a Minnesota offense, led by O.J. Sants, for second in the conference.

The most recent game between the two teams was a 27-10 preseason play last year. The Vikings won that game, but Coach Tarkenton's performance was excellent.

Game sets record

SAM ALAN, P.J. (UPI) — The Saturday Crabmen and the Bayamon, Cowboys owned the longest professional baseball game in Puerto Rican history Saturday, 21 innings and four hours after the first ball was thrown.

Saturday was 2-2, scoring the winning three runs in the first ball of the 21st inning.

The game ended at 2:11 p.m.

The previous record for length in the Puerto Rican Professional Baseball League was 19 innings, played by San Juan on July 9.

Bruins claim bowl drills too tough

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — UCLA coach Don Ackerman said the Bruins' drills were too tough on the players, but the protest was quickly resolved and that morale has returned to normal.

The coach said an "executive committee" of players representing the squad came to him and said they thought "going to the Rose Bowl would be a little bit more fun in terms of preparation."

"Well, we are approaching the Rose Bowl as an opportunity to win another football game and I don't know what we can do, except to win it," Ackerman said. "That's to work hard," he said.

"Perkys and the first three games on the squad had lost 153 titles were home on a split program."

"We actually scheduled a speciality period for 30 minutes and brought them into the locker room and the rest of us and we felt them and their gripes and all that," he said.

"I don't believe there are any easy ways to do anything and the only reason why we are where we are now is because we've got to work hard. Besides there's only one person you can count on for help and that's you. You have to work hard enough. That's going to be our motto."

UCLA coach Woody Hayes gave his Backsies the day off Saturday. Monday had the squad went to the stadium to watch the Los Angeles Rams meet the St. Louis Cardinals in an NFL playoff game.

Indiana, St. John's gain ECAC finals

NEW YORK (UPI) — All-America Scott May scored 32 points Saturday night to lead top-ranked Indiana to a 57-61 victory over North Carolina in a championship confrontation with St. John's in the ECAC Holiday Festival.

St. John's 5-9 guard Frank Abajda thwarted the South Carolina press and sank seven critical free throws to carry the 17th-ranked team to a 71-61 victory over the Gamecocks in the earlier semifinal.

St. Bonaventure beat Columbia 84-73 in the consolation game which opened the tripleheader.

Just as in their first round victory over Columbia, the undefeated Hoosiers ran out to a big lead at the start and coasted to their eighth victory of the season.

May's 32 point total was only one short of his career high scored against UCLA in the season's first game.

Indiana scored 16 straight points early in the first half to take a commanding 22-4 lead with guard Bobby Wilkerson scoring eight of his 10 points in that span. Ken Benson, the Hoosiers' 6-11 center who celebrated his 21st birthday Saturday, added 19 points to the Indiana rout.

The Hoosiers enjoyed a 48-30 halftime edge and gradually widened the margin throughout the second half as Indiana Coach Bobby Knight substituted liberally.

Tom Lockhart led Manhattan with 21 points, but most of them came near the end of the game, long after the outcome had been assured.

St. John's, now 9-0, and South Carolina battled evenly until with 7:53 remaining in the game, the Gamecocks' Nate Davis committed his fourth foul. South Carolina coach Frank McGuire was forced to bench Davis, who had scored 10 of the Gamecocks' 19 second points in that interval. Glen Williams and Benver Smith, who had a team high 10 points, then sank consecutive baskets to give St. John's a 57-54 lead with five minutes to play.

As St. John's went into a slow down offense with Abajda running the show, South Carolina was forced to come out of its zone defense and chase the Hoosiers around the court.

Abajda, who finished with 17 points, then sank seven of eight free throws to build the undefeated Redmen's lead to 66-55.

Davis topped South Carolina, now 6-2, with 11 points and Alex English finished with 12 for the Gamecocks.

Wake Forest nips Florida in overtime

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Unbeaten Wake Forest had to go into overtime Saturday night to take a 70-57 victory over Florida and win the Gator Bowl Basketball Tournament.

The Deacons, rolling up their seventh straight win, trailed by two points at halftime and were unable to score in the last two minutes as regulation play ended at 69-64.

Florida led by a point with 44 seconds left in the overtime period but Rod Griffin hit four straight free throws, the last two with only six seconds to play, enabling Wake Forest to pull away at the end. Griffin was named the most valuable player in the tournament.

Earlier in the evening, Jacksonville lost four clutch free throws in the closing seconds from seven-foot Fulton Young for a 91-90 victory over St. Joseph's of Pennsylvania in the tourney's consolation contest.

Young, high scorer in the half game with 28 points, went up to the line twice in the closing nine seconds to protect a one-point lead and both times hit both ends of a one-and-one.

N.C. State tips Auburn

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The 12th-ranked North Carolina State Wolfpack rallied in the final four minutes Saturday night to beat Auburn 79-74 for its seventh straight victory.

Behind most of the game and trailing 43-36 at the half, the Wolfpack finally went ahead to stay with 1:38 left in the game on a steal and lay-up by Al Green, giving State a 69-68 edge.

Kenny Carr paced the Wolfpack with 21 points. Green and Phil Spence each had 18 and Darnell Adell had 11. Spence also pulled down 14 rebounds to key the Wolfpack to a 43-36 domination of the boards.

Knecks top Jazz

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spencer Hayward collected a game high 26 points and Earl Monroe capped in with 23 Saturday afternoon as the New York Knicks topped the New Orleans Jazz 108-101.

It was the Knicks' fourth straight win, the longest victory streak for them this season, and their sixth win in the last seven games.

Playing without captain Walt Frazier, temporarily sidelined with a hip injury, the Knicks came back from a nine-point deficit, 44-35, in the second quarter.

Nate Williams, who lallied 16 Jazz points for the game, had aided their cause when he came off the bench in the first quarter and scored eight points in a 4:15 span. Ron Behagen led the Jazz with 21 points.

McAdoo paces Braves

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Bob McAdoo, suspended for one game in a dispute over an injury, returned to the Buffalo lineup and scored 18 points to help the Braves to a 139-105 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers Saturday night.

McAdoo, who complained of a strained back and did not play against Boston Tuesday night, was suspended Wednesday and missed Friday night's 96-95 loss to the 76ers. He agreed to return shortly before game time Saturday, and connected on eight of 14 field efforts, scored 13 rebounds, had five assists and blocked three shots in 28 minutes of action.

Pacers edge Squires

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Dave Robisch scored 23 points and snared 12 rebounds Saturday night as the Indiana Pacers overcame a 15-point deficit and went on to edge the Virginia Squires 97-94.

Virginia led most of the game and at one point appeared to have its sixth NBA win of the season wrapped up before Robisch led the Pacers comeback with nine fourth period points. He was assisted by Bo Lamar, who scored eight of his 14 points in the fourth quarter.

Bulls down Pistons

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bulls scored a game high 24 points to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 112-99 victory Saturday night over the Detroit Pistons.

The victory was only the fifth for Chicago in their last 25 games. The loss was Detroit's 10th in its last 11 games and the seventh straight on the road.

Chicago built up a 51-40 halftime lead and held the Pistons to 16 points in the second period, their lowest point total in that quarter this year. The Bulls built up their biggest lead 101-76 midway in the final period with Chicago Coach Dick Motta clearing his bench in the final minute.

Hawks beats Bucks

ATLANTA — The Atlanta Hawks parlayed a tight defense and a free throw advantage into an 87-82 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Saturday night.

The win enabled Atlanta to maintain its lead in the NBA Central Division, increasing its margin to two games over Washington and 1 1/2 games over Cleveland.

A very slow start for both teams saw Milwaukee leading 18-17 after one quarter. Ten straight points by Atlanta at the start of the second quarter produced a 27-18 Hawk advantage.

Louisville cops title

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Tenth-ranked Louisville, led by Phil Bond's 23 points and eight assists, whipped Texas A&M 102-88 Saturday night to win the championship of the third annual Holiday Basketball Classic.

Kentucky State, behind 29 points from Gerald Cunningham and 21 from Lewis Linder, defeated Seattle, 88-84, in the consolation game.

Louisville broke away from a close contest midway in the first half en route to its second consecutive 100-plus victory, only the second time in history that a Cardinal team had scored two century wins in a row.

Idaho State bows to Illinois State

NORMAL, Ill. (UPI) — Jeff Wilkins scored 24 points and Roger Powell hit for 20 to lead Illinois State to a 87-77 win Saturday night over Idaho State.

ISU led 52-40 at halftime.

Idaho State never came closer than four points in the second half as the score was 83-77, 73 in Illinois' favor with 4:37 left on day.

Leading scorers for Idaho State were Steve Hayes with 21 points and Greg Griffin with 20.

The Illinois Redbirds' victory brought their record to 7-1, and Idaho's record is now 4-4.

Yankees hire Lemon

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bob Lemon, a leading candidate to be chosen for the Baseball Hall of Fame next month, Saturday was named pitching coach of the New York Yankees.

A hard-working right-hander who converted to pitching after failing as an outfielder and infielder, Lemon was a 20-game winner seven times during his career with the Cleveland Indians from 1946-58. He compiled a lifetime record of 207-128 and also hit 37 homers.

Detroit wins Motor City title

DETROIT (UPI) — University of Detroit built up a commanding lead while DePaul faltered for eight minutes in the second half Saturday night and went on to defeat the Blue Demons, 74-61, in the title game of the Motor City Tournament.

The Titans, led by tournament MVP Terry Tyler, surged to 69-57 lead while holding DePaul to just four points in the Blue Demons' worst dry spell of the season. The game had been close up to that point, with DePaul taking a 35-34 halftime lead.

The Blue Demons were also hurt by the loss of 6-foot-11 sophomore center Dave Crome, who fouled out with 7 and one-half minutes left in the game.

Tyler, high scorer in the two-day tournament, had 22 points and 15 rebounds for the victory. DePaul was led by forward Joe Possetto with 25 points.

It was only the second loss for DePaul against six wins this season, while the Titans now are 6-0.

Kansas tops Nebraska, Buffs beat Oklahoma in Big 8 meet

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Freshman center Paul Mokeski came off the bench to score 13 of Kansas' final 19 points and lead the defending champion Jayhawks to a 69-66 victory over Nebraska Saturday night in the opening round of the Big Eight Basketball Tournament.

In Saturday's other game Colorado beat Oklahoma 61-59. In Friday's first round action 19th-ranked Kansas State beat Iowa State 81-67 and Missouri edged Oklahoma State 81-79. The tournament resumes Monday.

Mokeski, a 7-3 Californian who is suffering from a pulled hamstring, finished with 19 points and 10 rebounds, six of which came in the closing minutes of the game. Norm Cook led Kansas with 20 points while Clint Johnson had 16 and guard Milt Gibson had eight assists. Ken Koenigs led Kansas with 11 rebounds before fouling out with six minutes to play.

Larry Cox topped Nebraska with 21 points and 11 rebounds while guard Jerry Fort, the fifth leading scorer in the Big Eight, was held to 12 points, hitting five of 19 field goal attempts.

Kansas took control of the game in the first half, when Cook picked up 15 of his points, leading 39-31 at the break. But the Jayhawks' went cold midway through the second half when Mokeski was called on to rally the victory.

With Kansas leading 50-41, Mokeski hit the next 10 points for the Jayhawks and 19 of their next 15.

Guard Jay Sterra hit a layup with four seconds to play to lift Colorado to its opening round win.

Greg Mueller, who fouled out with 6:14 to play, led Colorado with 17 points and six rebounds, picking up 16 of those points and all of his rebounds in the first half. Emmett Lewis added 15 for the Buffaloes, who had 16 first-half turnovers and 25 mistakes in all, and Larry Vanculik had 12.

Oklahoma was led by Billy Graham with 15, and John McCullough with 12 points and 10 rebounds.

Trailing Oklahoma 15-14, Colorado outscored the Sooners 12-2 during a four minute span late in the first half and took a 26-17 lead. Oklahoma fought back to within four, 34-30 at the half, and outscored Colorado 9-4 to open the second half and take a 39-38 lead.

The Sooners built that to six points, 57-51, at 4:32 to play before Colorado rallied.

The Buffs scored 10 of the game's final 13 points including two layups by Sterra for their third win in eight games.

Lakeside, Butte gain W.R. finals

HALIFAX — Lakeside of Seattle and Butte County of Arvo swept into the finals of the Wood-River holiday invitational Saturday night.

Lakeside broke away in the second half to trim Gooding 79-55 while Butte showed a red-hot shooting hand in outting host Wood River 78-62.

Wood River and Gooding will meet in the consolation game at 7 p.m. Monday while Lakeside takes on Butte in the finale about 8:30 p.m.

An overflow crowd watched Gooding give the Washingtonians a good battle in the first half but Lakeside turned loose a full court press in the third quarter to tee things.

Through the half Gooding "treated" 13-01. The Seahawks tried a zone but Lakeside's Aikens hit brilliantly from the outside and Coach Jim DeVito had to abandon that tactic. In the third period Lakeside's pressure resulted in 10 unanswered points and Gooding never was able to challenge.

Butte and Wood River also played close through the first half. Butte hit 10 of 18 attempts from the field to open up a 20-10 first quarter lead but Pat House pulled the Wolverines to within three at halftime.

Arvo, mixing in a few fastbreak crumples but hitting well from everyone, then blazed through the second half by hitting 20 of 30 field goal attempts. Wood River, which had a respectable 46 per cent posted 47 points in the last half.

GLENN'S FERRY — Troutner Construction and Mountain Home gained the finals of the Glenns Ferry Lions holiday outlaw basketball tournament.

The two will collide at 8 p.m. Monday at the Glenns Ferry gymnasium after LeMoyne Realty plays Glenns Ferry for consolation honors at 7 p.m.

Troutner gained the finals by whipping Ingersoll 44-22. Soft Water 47-52 and Mountain Home ousted Singletree Saloon 49-40.

In consolation play, LeMoyne Realty dropped Duffy's 48-42 and Glenns Ferry waxed Taylor Rental 50-25.

Southern has Pelican bowl win

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Senior James Johnson threw one fourth-quarter touchdown pass and set up another on long passes to lead Southern University to a 15-12 win over South Carolina State in the Pelican Bowl Saturday night.

Johnson passed to Isaac Hagins for 36 and 39 yards for set up a nine-yard scoring run by Michael Bryant. He left a 49-yard loss to Ron Steele to put the Jaguars in position for his 29-yard touchdown strike to Steele.

Bryant added a two-point conversion after the second score to complete Southern's comeback in its first bowl appearance.

South Carolina State, which suffered its third bowl loss, went ahead 12-0 in the second quarter on an 11-yard scoring pass from Jesse Prahier to Mickey Pringle and a one-yard run by Jack Reed.

Johnson completed 7 of 17 passes for 194 yards, while South Carolina State's Prahier completed two of three, both to Pringle.

FULLBACK Terry Kunz (39) of Colorado scores from a foot out against Texas in the early minutes of the Astro-Bluebonnet bowl Saturday. Texas rallied to win 38-21. (UPI/Telephone)

Texas rips past Colorado with 31-point last half

HOUSTON (UPI) — Darrell Royal was concerned his players might be fighting only for a moral victory in the second half of the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl game Saturday.

Instead, they scored a real victory.

"Paced by a series of inspiring plays, the big one being a blocked punt turned into a touchdown, the ninth-ranked Longhorns rushed from behind in the third quarter to whip the 11th-ranked Colorado Buffaloes, 31-21.

"I don't recall ever having as big a turnaround as this," said Royal. "I thought we would be playing the second half for pride, but my players thought me wrong."

Trailing, 21-7, to start the second half and completely dominated to that point, the Longhorns exploded to take advantage of three Colorado turnovers and score 24 points in the third period.

Following Jimmy Walker's three-yard run for a touchdown and a missed extra point that left Texas behind by eight early in the third quarter, freshman defensive end Tim Campbell blocked a Buffaloes punt and recovered it in the end zone to put the Longhorns within two points.

Tim's brother, Earl Campbell, then grabbed the only pass he has caught in two seasons as a Longhorn for the two-point conversion that tied the game.

The Campbell brothers were voted the game's outstanding players — Tim the top lineman and Earl the leading back.

At halftime, Royal said he told his players they were lucky to be behind by only 14 points.

"I told them 'men, the amazing thing of this is that as much as we have been dominated, and although we could be behind by more than we are, we could still be within seven points of them.'"

"So I told them we still have a chance. As long as you don't quit you have always got a chance because true defeat comes from within and there is no such thing as defeat except when you no longer try."

Within five minutes after Campbell's blocked punt, Texas had scored twice more on a 53-yard field goal by Russell Erdleben, an Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl record — and on a four-yard run by another freshman, Johnny Jones.

Alvin's 21-yard scoring pass to Alfred Jackson in the second quarter prevented what looked like a Buffaloes rout.

Colorado scored on three of its first four possessions in the first half. Quarterback Dave Williams threw touchdown passes of four yards to Dave Logan and 25 yards to Don Haselbeck, and fullback Terry Kunz hulled one yard for another score.

Two old pros open quest for super bowl visit

OAKLAND (UPI) — Two of the greatest old pros of all time will be on opposite sides of the field Sunday when the Oakland Raiders host Cincinnati in first round AFC playoff action.

Neither Bengals' Coach Paul Brown nor Raider place-kicker George Blanda has ever made it to the Super Bowl. One will find out today if he will continue to be denied.

Both teams were 13-3 in regular season play and the Raiders are a one-touchdown favorite, despite the knee injury which will force defensive end Tony Clin to sit out of the contest and leave the Raiders with just four healthy defensive linemen.

Cornerback Aljije Brown and wide receivers Fred Biletnikoff and Mike Stani are also hurting, but will probably play. Only guard Dave Lapham and backup linebacker Chris Devlin are nursing Cincinnati injuries.

Brown, the only coach ever to have a team named after him, calls this year's squad "the best Cincinnati Bengals team ever" and thinks it has a chance to take him back to his glory days with Cleveland as coach of a championship club.

While the Bengals, led by quarterback star Ken Anderson, can move the ball as well as anyone, it is the solidified defense of this year's Bengals that Brown sees as the key to this season's 11-3 mark.

At the start of the season, many figured the Bengals' defense would suffer because of the loss of all-pro defensive tackle Mike Relj.

Brown tabs 11-year veteran tackle Bob Brown, acquired from San Diego, as the man who cemented his team's defense.

The man who has to face him in Sunday's nationally televised affair, star Raider offensive guard Gene Upshaw, agrees.

"Bob Brown is so big and strong that it is almost impossible to move him. You can throw a good block on him and he will stay right there."

Blanda, who started his legendary pro career in 1949, this season became the first pro ever to score 2,000 points. The 40-year-old veteran, known the lows and he has known the highs — all except the Super Bowl, that is.

Cincinnati's secondary, with Tommy Casanova and Bernard Jackson at the safeties and Ken Riley and Lamar Parrish on the corners, went past Oakland the final week to lead the conference in pass defense.

Duke posts win

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Tate Armstrong and Willie Hodges each scored 25 points Saturday night to lead Duke to a 10-0 victory over Western Kentucky.

Duke trailed most of the first half but finally jumped in front 30-29 on a free throw by Hodges with 7:12 left in the period. After that the Blue Devils were never in trouble and led 36-0 at the half.

Duke had scoring muscle from the bench with reserves Terry Chitt and Dave O'Connell each contributing 15 points.

Western Kentucky's leading scorer, Johnny Britt, was guarded most of the night by Armstrong and held to 16 points, well below his 22 point average.

But star Oakland receiver Cliff Branch has beaten the Bengals for 12 catches the last two times he has faced them.

"They like to play man-to-man and they give me a lot of room to work," explained Branch. "They play off about 10 yards and the short game has been there."

"They haven't showed us much zone in the past or given the corners much help with linebackers and safeties."

Branch did not mention that he also likes to try to outclass Cincinnati's Isaac Curtis in a matchup of the AFC's two top deep receivers.

Cincinnati beat Oakland 14-10 in the rain in the Bengals' last game last October, but Oakland is at the Coliseum, where they have compiled a remarkable 61-13-3 record through the years.

Oakland ran for 188 yards in that first contest and figures to test the Bengals on the ground, too.

Cincinnati ranked only ninth in the conference against the rush this season, but Raiders' Coach John Madden thinks that is a misleading figure.

Sugar bowl coaches see teams at peaks

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant and Penn State Coach Joe Paterno said their teams were near top physical condition for their New Year's Five Sugar Bowl football clash in the Superdome.

Bryant said all-Southeastern Conference quarterback Richard Todd, who accidentally sliced the middle finger of his throwing hand with a hunting knife Christmas Day, will be ready to play despite the injury.

"The cut required two stitches, but Todd went through a 90-minute workout at Tulane Stadium Friday, his finger protected by a padded sheath," he was worried about it," Bryant said at a joint news conference. "But he worked out yesterday and he could take the ball all right and handle it well."

Coaches also pointed to top players. "Stapp," said Bryant, who brought 75 players for the first Sugar Bowl game in the Superdome. He said he expected to play most of them.

Paterno brought about 100 players and said up to 70 will suit up for the game.

"We're in good physical shape," he said. "We should be in the best shape of all year."

Paterno said the Nittany Lions had their best home workout of the year, despite bitter cold and snow, before heading to New Orleans.

Asked if Bryant had really selected, Penn State for the Sugar Bowl game, Paterno smiled and said: "We're not naive enough to believe he didn't have something to do with it. I think he's shown great judgement so far."

Both coaches planned to take their teams on tours of the Superdome before the contest to help their players adjust to conditions before gametime. The clubs will get one practice each in the dome. Daily workouts were scheduled at Tulane Stadium.

"I talked to (New Orleans Saints' Coach) Eric Hefferle, and he said you better get in there a couple of times because it's like playing in a plumb machine," Paterno said.

Arkansas arrives at Cotton Bowl site

DALLAS (UPI) — The Arkansas Razorbacks have hit the Cotton Bowl site first this year and Georgia Coach Vince Dooley thinks that might put his team at a disadvantage.

Arkansas and Georgia meet next Thursday in the Cotton Bowl. Dooley's team has already won a little national recognition.

The Razorbacks came to town Friday in greeted by perfect weather, clear skies and temperatures in the 50s. Georgia, meanwhile, will not arrive until Sunday and the Bulldogs have been practicing in poor weather back home.

"I thought we could get in two days of work at home where we are familiar with everything," said Dooley, who will be taking his 11th-ranked Bulldogs to a bowl game for the third straight season.

"[Bryant] has been very cold and I don't know if it has worked out right for us. That might give them an edge to start."

Bryant, whose Razorbacks are back in the Cotton Bowl as Southwest Conference tri-umphtoppers after a year's absence, is obviously pleased he brought in his club so early.

"The problem in a bowl game is always trying to get your timing back after a layoff," Bryotes said. "When we worked out Friday, I could tell we didn't have it."

"Everybody on our team had enjoyed their turkey. Their mommas had baked those turkeys and they had to eat them."

"The team that gets its timing back will probably be the one to score the most points. We had lost our timing and quickness during our layoff and now we'll be working to get it back. And, also, we wanted our players to see the sights the first few days and then get down to work."

Both teams have been generally overworked on the national level this season. But both made fine showings on national television to close their season — Georgia slamming rival Georgia Tech 42-26 and Arkansas upsetting the then No. 2-ranked Texas A&M Aggies 31-6 in win 'the Cotton Bowl berth."

"I can honestly say," said Dooley, "that I felt Arkansas had a good chance to beat Texas A&M. And I didn't consider that game an upset. I think the better team won because of the completeness of the Arkansas football team."

Texas A&M may have had the better defense, but Arkansas had the more complete football team. And their completeness is the thing that impresses me most about the Arkansas Razorbacks."

DiGregorio can't adjust from limelight to end of bench

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — You used to find Ernie DiGregorio at the heart of the Buffalo Braves' offense. Now he's sitting at the end of the bench.

DiGregorio led the National Basketball Association in assists and free throw percentage just two seasons ago when he was the league's rookie of the year.

But Braves coach Jack Ramsay has demoted the one-time star to his team's fourth guard spot and Ernie isn't happy.

"He's been greeted by boos when he's gotten a chance to play in recent home games, usually at the end of the team bench away from the coaches and is almost always the first Brave to leave the locker room after the game."

Ernie Di says he doesn't feel like talking about his unaccommodated reserve status.

"Besides, nothing I can say would help. It's the coach's decision," he says.

"I'm just going to go out there and play as hard as I can every time I get the ball," he adds with a look of grim determination.

Ramsay says the Braves just weren't winning with DiGregorio in the starting lineup.

"We wanted to give our first unit a thorough opportunity to play (at the start of the season)," he says.

"At first, it looked like Ernie had left behind all effects of a left knee injury which sidelined him after six games last season. He was passing the ball like the old Ernie D and the Braves won their first four games this year. But then they went into a slump and fell to the .500 level."

"I'm just going to play," says Ramsay. "I'm going with anybody who will help us win." Right now, he doesn't include Ernie in that list.

"I'm starting Randy Smith and Kenny Charles," says Ramsay. "Right now I have to come in with Bob Weiss, who's been doing a great job for us. He's been playing in Ernie in whatever situations call for his ability."

In one recent game against the tall Washington Bullets, DiGregorio was even the team's fifth guard as Ramsay played swing man Dick Gibbs at both forward and guard to get added height in the line-up.

"I'm sure Ernie will still run the ball and get it to other people better than anybody else. But over all, I have to rank our other guards ahead of him. They play more aggressive defense. We have to win games and I'm going to win games with whoever will win for me."

Some of Ernie's detractors have always said his defense was a problem, labeling him "Ernie No-D" in the same season he was chosen the rookie of the year.

But others say Ernie's problem is a lack of confidence going back to that injury last season.

He tried to come back from the injury late in the season, and although he showed brief sparks of returning to form, he lacked consistency. His passes lacked their old snap and his shooting was off.

Ramsay benched him at the end of the season, and didn't play him at all during the first round of the NBA playoffs between Buffalo and Washington.

Charles, who took DiGregorio's place in the starting line-up, says Ernie's problem may be in making the adjustment between starting and sitting on the bench.

"For him, not playing is a unique experience," says Charles.

"I really know how it is to sit on the bench. I've been up and down. But I've never been primarily basketball oriented. I've never thought of putting the majority of my futuristic thinking on the game."

"I was never super-star oriented. Not playing didn't affect me as much. But it's got to be different for him, going from super star rookie of the year to not playing," says Charles.

And what of the future?

Charles probably has the best advice. He says Ernie's "going to have to forget the fans. You can't play with your head down. But I think he'll get out of it."

Minnesota beats Creighton

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Undefeated Minnesota, with Mike Thompson scoring 21 points, defeated Creighton University 89-74 Saturday night for the championship of the Pillbury Basketball Classic.

Earlier Butler University limited Penn State to just five first-half baskets and held off a second-half rally for a 63-50 third place win in the game.

Thompson, the tournament's most valuable player, scored 18 points in the second half and blocked three shots in the final four minutes as Creighton failed to cut a Minnesota lead of 33-43 down to 24-47 with 1:12 remaining.

Creighton's consolation game, another All-Tournament selection, made two free throws with 43 seconds to play, but Cornell Smith tipped in a Creighton shot to make it 76-74 with 25 seconds left.

Minnesota's Gus Johnson made a layup 11 seconds later and following a Creighton turnover, Flip Saunders made two free throws to end the scoring with just five seconds left.

Creighton, which had won five in a row and is now 8-1, was led by forward Rick Apke with 19 points and reserve guard John Johnson with 11.

Gopher guards Lockhart and Saunders complimented Thompson's historic scoring, finishing with 22 and 21 points respectively.

Earlier, Butler limited Penn State to just five first half baskets and held off a second half rally for a 63-50 third place victory.

Butler, 4-4, built a 26-5 lead over the first 12 minutes and led 23-16 at the half, thanks to Penn State's 21 per cent shooting.

The Nittany Lions' 2-3 came back midway through the second half to trail by just 42 in a Chris Erbesen layup with seven minutes to play.

Butler, led by 5-foot-10 guard Wayne Harris, outscored Penn State 38-10 over the final seven minutes.

Penn State's total was 13 points below its previous season low.

Sun Bowl won't see Pitt in '76

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — The fans who saw Pittsburgh beat Kansas in last Friday's Sun Bowl don't expect to see Tony Dorsett and his talented teammates back in El Paso next year. They're convinced the Panthers are headed for bigger things.

Panthers coach Johnny Majors, who three years ago took over a team that had gone 1-10 the previous season, has now put together three straight winning seasons at Pitt. (Am. Soc. Can.) scattered for the 1976 season.

"We have won our first bowl in a long time and this should certainly build confidence for the future," Majors said. "I think we should be a very good football team next season."

The Panthers, who won their first bowl in 30 years with their 14 victory over Kansas, lose only four starters from a team that was 7-4 during the regular season.

Dorsett, who is within reach of becoming the all-time NCAA rushing champion and the first back to go over 1,000 yards four straight years, is among those who will be back. Quarterback Holbert Haygood, the Sun Bowl's most valuable player, also returns, as does powerful fullback Elliott Walker.

The trio of Dorsett, Haygood and Walker compiled 366 rushing yards against Kansas, with Haygood passing for another 60.

Most of the Panthers, and Dorsett and Haygood in particular, feel a national title is just out of reach in 1976.

"Next year we should be loaded," Dorsett said. "We take a lot of pride in Eastern football and this bowl victory should set the stage for next year."

One of those who benefited by Pittsburgh's outstanding season was defensive coordinator Jackie Sherrill, who accepted the head coaching job at Washington State two weeks before the Sun Bowl. Sherrill, who spent eight years as an assistant with Majors at Iowa State and Pitt, leaves with Majors' endorsement.

Rhode Island stuns San Francisco 85-77

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — With sophomore guard Jim Williamson hitting for 20 points, Rhode Island upset the University of San Francisco, 85-77, in the final game of the Ocean State Holiday Basketball Classic Saturday night at the Providence Civic Center.

San Francisco, ranked 17th in this week's UPI poll, led only once during the entire game and that, 15-14, in 11 minutes to play in the first half. From then on, Rhode Island commanded at least a five-point lead, and ended the half ahead 49-33.

Williamson, voted the tournament's most valuable player, led Rhode Island with 20 points while Mark Czynski and Stan Wright, both voted to the all-tourney team, had 19 and 17 respectively.

Wilford Boynes, one of two San Francisco players on the all-tourney team, had 22 points and Marlon Redmond, 10.

Also named "all-tourney" were Williamson, Jim Harlow of San Francisco and Andy Walker of Niagara University.

"We were flat out beat," said Bob Galland, the San Francisco coach. "I can't think of one thing to detract from their performance. They took it to us on offense and forced us to lose our momentum defensively. I felt helpless at the defensive end of the floor."

Asked if San Francisco had taken Rhode Island too lightly, Galland said, "It's possible, but once the game starts and they go down the floor twice, and stuff it down your throat, you wake up."

In the consolation game, Niagara University, 27th-ranked, Andy Walker scoring 23 points, defeated Brown University 77-59.

Stained Glass wins

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Stained Glass, co-owned by movie star Rod Steiger, turned in a stunning upset victory Saturday over Telly's Post, the West's top 2-year-old co-owned by actor Telly Savalas, in the $55,930 California Breeders' Champion Stakes at Santa Anita.

With Laffie Pines, Jr. in the saddle, Stained Glass took the lead, as the field of six headed for home and pulled away to record a length and a half victory in the seven-furlong sprint.

Households shift homes

WASHINGTON, D. C. — About one of every five American households moved into another residence in just one year, according to a report released today by the Bureau of the Census.

During the 12 months ending in October 1974, renters were about four times more likely to have moved than homeowners, the survey showed. This was true for central cities and suburbs, as well as nonmetropolitan areas.

The 1974 Annual Housing Survey was conducted by the Census Bureau for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The survey also showed that nearly 90 per cent of the nation's households had moved in the 24 years that elapsed between 1951 and 1974; three-fourths of all households moved to other residences since 1961, and two of every five households shifted residences between April 1970 and October 1974.

Renters were predominant among those who moved between October 1974 and 1975. About 4.8 million mover households, two-thirds of the 13.3 million in 1974-75, rented their units; the remaining 4.8 million owned their homes.

Of the 13.3 million recent mover households, 10.1 million had the same head in the present residence as in the previous one. The remaining households are those with a different household head caused by such factors as separation, divorce, death and newly married couples moving into their first residence.

The proportion of mover households between October 1974-75 was greatest in the West, with a total of 25.7 per cent shifting residence. The proportions for the Northeast, North Central and South regions were 13.9, 17.7 and 21.6 per cent, respectively.

Almost 100 per cent of the nation's 7.0 million black households in the U. S. were recent movers in 1974, about the same as the 18.8 per cent for households with heads of whites and other races.

Funds raised

JAY Sudweeks, left, and Pete Blumenthal, right, display a check for $3,800 raised by the Magic Valley Swim Club in an aqua-thon conducted recently. Mark Harris and Suzette Tegan look on from the pool. The money is to be divided as follows: $500, construction; $2,000, general operation; $800, starting blocks for competitive swimming; $500, hair dryers for the locker room.

Creditors to meet in bankruptcy cases

TWIN FALLS — The first creditors meeting for three bankruptcies filed from Magic Valley will be held Jan. 13 at 10 a.m. in the Fifth Judicial District Courtroom, Twin Falls. Bankruptcies include filings by Clinton Junior Kerr Jr., Twin Falls; John B. Kimball, Carey, and Arthur Melvin Florence, Hansen.

At the initial meeting, creditors may file claims for amounts owed them by any of the three individuals. A trustee will be elected and a committee of creditors will be named for each case. Any other business pertaining to the bankruptcies will also be transacted at that time.

M. S. Young, Boise, Idaho bankruptcy judge, said the initial meeting may be continued or adjourned without further written notice.

Supersonic liner service launched

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union's 1,500-mile-per-hour "Konkordski" inaugurated the world's first supersonic airliner service Friday, beating the British and French version by three weeks.

The flight of the droop-nosed TU144, postponed Thursday because of weather, took off from Moscow's Domodedovo airport for Alma Ata, capital of the Kazakh Republic, an airport official said.

It will carry freight over the 1,900-mile route three times a week, cutting flying time to the remote city from four hours — by conventional 146 aircraft — to one hour and 55 minutes.

The new service began 30 days before the scheduled beginning by Air France and British Airways of their Concorde passenger services from Paris to Rio de Janeiro and from London to Bahrain.

Deputy Minister of Civil Aviation Nikolai Bykov said last week the "Konkordski" would fly 180 times over remote, unpopulated regions without commercial passengers because "some unresolved questions" about the aircraft remain.

Passenger flights are not scheduled until mid-1976.

Moscow radio said the inaugural flight was manned by two senior pilots, Vadislav Popov and Ivan Vedernikov.

The flight left at 8:30 a.m. (11:30 a.m. EST) and the plane was expected to return to Moscow by mid-afternoon.

The aircraft is an improved version of the prototype that crashed at the 1973 Paris air show, killing 14 persons.

The TU144 is remarkably similar to the Concorde, with a needle nose, delta wings and identical 193-foot length and 4,000-mile range. It was designed by Andrei Tupolev, founder of the Soviet Union's aircraft industry, and his son.

Unofficial reports said the planned Christmas Day inauguration was postponed because of heavy snow at Alma Ata.

Corruption probe 'hastens ouster'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Maurice Nadjari, the special state corruption prosecutor fired this week by Gov. Hugh Carey, hinted before a scheduled news conference today his investigation of top state Democrats may have hastened his ouster.

In interviews published since he was dismissed Tuesday, Nadjari has indicated his dismissal may have been influenced by his office's probe of judicial corruption, possibly involving top party members.

The New York Times quoted Nadjari today as saying, "Is the governor motivated in covering up corruption by firing me? Do we have our own Watergate in New York State?"

The Times also quoted "members of Mr. Nadjari's staff" as saying he had ordered an inquiry into a "leak" about a wiretap being used in the investigation of the alleged sale of judgeships.

In its Thursday editions, The New York Times quoted unidentified sources as saying the targets of the Nadjari investigation included State Democratic Chairman Patrick Cunningham, Manhattan Surrogate Judge S. Samuel DiToro and several judges from the Bronx borough of New York.

Cunningham angrily denied Thursday Nadjari's firing was intended to thwart such an investigation.

"The irresponsible insinuations made by unidentified individuals and freely used by newspapermen remind me of the McCarthy days, so tragic in our history," Cunningham said in a statement.

In announcing his intention to dismiss Nadjari, a Republican, Gov. Carey said he would be replaced by Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau.

Carey said Morgenthau, a Democrat, would retain his post as Manhattan DA, a move which Nadjari has questioned as possibly unconstitutional.

Joint plan council seeks nominations

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Joint Planning Council wants nominations from the public for the position of member at large.

The planning council, which is charged with the responsibility of preparing a comprehensive plan under the local planning act, recently restructured itself to include more public representation.

The council has added representatives from highway, Soil Conservation, and school districts in the county and will now fill the post of "member at large" which had previously been created but never filled.

Those now serving on the Twin Falls Joint Planning Council are: members: Jack Muldon — chairman; Ann Coover, Steve Bancroft, J. A. "Al" Clagson; Joe Fehrlbacher; Clyde VanAuken; advisors: Roy Jessor; Kenneth Poe and Lawrence Hodge.

Alternates: Merl Leonard or Bill Chaney; H. E. "Bud" Penney; Dick Pense; Tom Schuler; Les Porter; Clinton Daugherty; Advisor alternates: Gene Thomas, Dr. Howard Bank and Loyd Showmaker.

The public is requested to have their suggestions into the planning office no later than January 2, 1976. Phone 734-2471.

Holiday parties highlight season

Buhl party

ONE of the largest holiday home parties was held at the Alvin Mochacek home near Buhl. Above, Jean Mochacek serves refreshments, and left, Mr. and Mrs. Laveene Haney, help Sonia by handing out gifts to other guests. This is the third year the Mochaceks have hosted the 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. night shift staff at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

A registered nurse on the night staff, Mrs. Mochacek prepared smoked turkey, rolled ham, numerous salads, punch, appetizers and dessert of mince pie, pudding and fruit cakes. A total of 70 persons attended the party, including night staff members, their wives and husbands, former night staff members and their families.

Nine of the original registered nurse class at the College of Southern Idaho, attended. All went well, Mrs. Mochacek said, except for a fire in the oven. She said the guests gathered on the main floor and in the basement recreation area of the Mochacek home until 3 a.m. which is only about mid-afternoon for the night people.

Last year's party was more unusual. Shortly before guests began arriving the Mochacek home and many others in the Buhl area were without electric service due to a power failure. Dinner, finished cooking on the fireplace and guests gathered by candlelight.

Celebrates 104th year

Conference call unites pair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It was not your standard wedding. The bride was not from more than five days off from his job to return to the United States.

The couple decided a wedding in Bahrain was out of the question after they found that local custom required inviting the entire community to the ceremony.

No sense trying the Canary Islands — there was a three-week waiting period for a visa.

The same was true in London, Switzerland, Spain.

"I guess the idea of having a telephone wedding just started as a joke," she said. "Then I just looked into it and found that it is perfectly legal in the District but not allowed in Virginia or Maryland."

"And I guess this is pretty close to it."

But Steve found his wife approved for his fiancée and she applied for his wedding license alone. She then secured the Rev. Joe Rainey, a Methodist minister at American University, to perform the ceremony.

At about 12:30 p.m. Christmas Eve, the phone in the chaplain's office rang and Steve was on the other end.

At the same time, more than a dozen friends and relatives from California, Utah, Arkansas and Arizona picked up their telephones to listen to the exchange of vows through a conference call.

Beth, who left Christmas Day for Bahrain to be with her new husband, said, "I think I always pictured a small, family wedding."

"And I guess this is pretty close to it."

Ceremony held at prison

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The best man couldn't come to the wedding, so the wedding moved to the best man — in the Nevada State Prison.

Patti Moser and Terry Bengo were married by Prison Chaplain Al Fry as the best man, Gary Nelson, stood by.

Nelson is serving time for robbery and prison officials would not let him go outside the walls. The couple decided that was no reason to keep him out of the ceremony.

The bride wore jeans. The groom wore a brown leather jacket and an earring. Nelson wore traditional prison garb.

"I think every girl dreams of a big church wedding, but as I got older I came to see it didn't fit my life style," Patti said.

"What we did was much better than putting on a show for a bunch of people. It was a beautiful, fantastic ceremony."

By Abigail Van Buren
1375 W. Chicago Tribune Bldg., New York, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: My guests maybe love is blind, but I should have known something was wrong when Freddy didn't show up for dinner half the time and would get home at dawn.

Also he'd go on a lot of "fishing and hunting" trips, but he'd never tell me how I could reach him in case of emergency.

Well, it all became clear when two young girls came to my house yesterday. One of the girls said she was my husband's "fiancee" and started telling me all the heart-breaking details about how Freddy had promised to marry her as soon as our "divorce" was final. She said her home was 160 miles away, but that she'd quit her job, sold everything and moved here waiting for Freddy's divorce to come through so they could be married. She was also six months pregnant.

I asked her to stay until Freddy came home. When he got here and saw her, he nearly died. He admitted having "known" her but denied that he promised to marry her. I know he was lying and told him so. He exploded and then took off and left me with an hysterical, pregnant girl on my hands.

What do you make of this mess? What would you do in my place?

FREDDY'S WIFE

Fishy stories

DEAR WIFE: Freddy sounds like a pathological liar to me. He needs to see a lawyer and a doctor. And if he refuses to do so, I'd see a lawyer and tell Freddy to get lost.

DEAR ABBY: After 33 years of what I thought was a happy, solid marriage, my husband asked for a divorce to marry a 22-year-old girl.

Abby, I know that old men think they are lucky to get young girls, but what could a young girl see in a man who is old enough to be her father?

After the settlement, he will have very little money—so it can't be money.

HEART BROKEN

DEAR HEART BROKEN: Don't rule out the possibility that she could "love" him. "Love" means different things to different people. We never really know what is in the hearts and minds of others.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 26-year-old waitress who has been working in restaurants since the age of 13. I am now employed at one of the finest cocktail dinner spots in town and hope you'll print this. It would help waitressess immensely if the public would follow these simple rules.

1. Please don't holler across the dining room at your waitress, especially, "Hey, girl!" Also, don't snap your fingers or whistle at us. (We aren't dogs.)

2. If you're not satisfied with your food, please don't anarl at us. Calmly state your complaint, and we will be glad to get you something else and report it to the management.

3. When the waitress hands you a menu, please study it and decide what you want so that when she comes back she can take your order. (About 95 per cent of the customers never look at their menus until the waitress comes back to take their orders. The customers are then annoyed because it takes so long to be served.)

4. If it says, "No substitutes" on the menu, please don't ask if you can substitute.

5. Tell the waitress when you order if you want everything on one check or separate checks.

6. If you're going to fight over the check, please don't tear the check in half!

Thanks, Abby!

WANTS TO PLEASE

DEAR WANTS: That's a switch. A tip from a waitress. I hope it helps.

The reverse of the trump promotion play may well be called the "trump demotion play." The man perpetrating this crime against the defender tries to get one of them to waste an apparently valueless low trump on an unnecessary ruff.

South wins the heart lead with his queen. The five of clubs is a club, but South wants to make one more trick. An overtrick means 30 points

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader wants to know what North should respond after South opens one spade and West passes. North has:

▲ 886 — — — ▲ 10 9 8 7 4
▲ Q 8 5.
We don't know if our reader is pulling our leg or not since this hand appeared in our column recently. We stated that we would raise to two spades but would not criticize a two-diamond response. Incidentally, the hand was a real trouble hand and anything was going to lead to trouble.

Millions of worms needed for 'Squirm'

PORT WENTWORTH, Ga. (UPI) — A film producer making a movie about the wrath of worms against man can't find enough Georgia worms to fill his cast of millions.

more than 100,000 worms daily from an oceanographic institute in Wood's Hole, Mass. "We like to get fresh worms daily," he said, "because they wiggle more. We will have used millions when we're through."

So, Edgar Lansbury, executive producer of the movie "Squirm," is flying in the Independent movie company is through with the worms. It sends them to the University of Georgia's Institute of Oceanography on nearby Skidaway Island for observation and care.

Lansbury said most of the Massachusetts worms probably came from Maine originally, since it is the leading worm-producing state in the nation. "Squirm," which features no well-known stars but a number of local residents, is about the terror a small community experiences when millions of worms get excited by a surge of electricity forced into the earth during a power failure and become killers.

MISS ANDERSON sets date

EDEN - Mr. and Mrs. Larry Anderson, Eden, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Christa Jo, to Chad Wright.

Wright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Wright, Hurricane, Utah.

Miss Anderson is a 1974 graduate of Twin Falls High School and is a sophomore at Brigham Young University.

There was a very clear warning in Robertello's deep, confident voice as he set forth strict guidelines for today's parents, and described the way in which he thinks "Spock-marked" parents of the 1950s went wrong.

It's OK to say no to your child

Chicago Daily News

No to your kid. You MUST forbid him to smoke cigars and pot. You SHOULD interfere when he chooses friends who are undesirable.

And sometimes, if it's true - you can tell him that you like his little brother better.

That's the advice of Dr. Richard C. Robertello, 52, the New York psychoanalyst who wrote "Hold Them Very Close, Then Let Them Go."

Dr. Spock and his contemporaries showed parents how to be affectionate, indulgent, permissive, fawning and apologetic.

supported by their parents. They seem to lack the stick-itiveness or drive or will to succeed in any area.

The theme of Robertello's book became evident as he pointed out that although these children were reared in an atmosphere that nurtured their emotional needs, it was essentially devoid of hardships, deprivations and challenges.

"Because of this, they never developed the particular kind of strength necessary for meeting challenges," Robertello flourished.

"That strength is essential to achievement of success. These young men and women have a 'missing part,' because their parents never really let them go."

"No," because their parents, in an effort to win the doctor's affection, were afraid to say the doctor remarked.

He added that it's easier to say "No" when a child is small and you're establishing your authority and have more power over him.

He was in familiarizing the child with the word before it occurs to him to argue.

Also, these young adults have rarely heard the word

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am a 13-year-old girl, 110 pounds and I am not thin. I eat an unflavored gelatin my fingers will become darker.

Neither is true. The gelatin idea has been around for some time now. Adequate protein intake is important for health and hair health.

The same goes for the peanut butter idea. Not true at all. Peanut butter provides calories and this can cause weight gain.

There are a lot of these so-called notions always making the rounds. Some represent innocent misunderstandings of how the body works.

For instance, if you gain can make you "less weight." Look at this for a minute!

Notions never die

A vinegar salad dressing is obviously less fattening than, say, a full oil dressing, but it is not logical to say, therefore, that vinegar will "make" you lose weight.

As for your immediate "problem," give your lost its natural opportunity to develop.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can athlete's foot be cured? About eight years ago I went to a public pool and came away with it.

You must be a patient individual to have suffered with this for eight years.

It is caused by an identifiable fungus, which needs only a friendly, moist environment in order to set up biological housekeeping.

Treatment is relatively simple, and usually effective. Burn's solution for warm soaks is an effective method of treatment.

Keep the feet dry and use of anti-fungal medications are two measures I discuss in a section of my new booklet dealing with athlete's foot and other foot disorders.

Recognizing the symptoms may be more difficult in women. There is a difference between recognizing the symptoms and diagnosing the presence of the germ.

Usually, in women, the same symptoms may be there, but be slightly misread and mistaken for any number of other vaginal complaints.

Also, although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is also vital to human life.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Disaster awards given for movies

BY ROGER EBERT © 1975 Chicago Sun-Times Every year at this time, we present our Movie Disaster Awards - a tribute to the movie industry that it persists in the face of such tribulation.

And I 1975 gave us nothing quite so bad as "Last Horizon" last year - it wasn't because "The Master Gunfighter" didn't tide trying.

That meant lots of dollars, lots of warm bodies in the theaters and, inevitably, lots more chances for disasters.

If the shoe fits, wear it

NEW YORK (SEA) — It's as simple as this, says Arthur Samuels, president of Gulo Footwear: "Shoes have to go with the way a woman lives and the clothes she wears."

In short, the customer is diverse and so are shoes to wear with the tunic, skirt, jeans or dress brought this season. Open and closed for day and evening, sporty and dressy depending on texture and height. The rules are almost up for grabs.

"There is no one look that is the look," says R. W. Short, merchandise administrator for Shoe-Biz, a high-fashion shoe house. "Today, the customer can have a wardrobe of shoes if she wants to."

And if she can afford to, that is she can't, there's an answer to that, too.

"The 'swing' shoe — a Mary Jane low heel, or moccasin crepe sole wedge, or canvas espadrille that can be worn with pants and skirts — is there for the mixing.

In general, the tendency in women's fall shoes is toward a more refined, lighter look, because "pretty" is back in clothes. "Lighter," incidentally, can be taken literally. Polyurethane, flexible and weightless, is coming into use in wedge bottoms. Toes are tapering, platforms are "watering," and heels are elevating both ways: up and down.

It's true, too, of the junior or young contemporary market. Platforms can breathe easier because those ankle-threatening platforms of rope, cork and wood are getting lower.

"Girls are starting to wear 'clothes' again," says Marcie Begli, assistant Mary Kay manager for Carber shoes, "and although they don't want to wear what they see their mothers wearing, they'll put on another interpretation of it."

A moccasin on a modified wedge, for example, or a suede oxford on a high, straight heel.

Eventually, she may start slipping into flats, the tall girl's salvation, and "the biggest news in shoes this year," according to R. W. Short. "It's a fashion expression, yes, but women are also beginning to demand comfort."

"The ghillie, or laced-up shoe without a tongue, is a 'swing' flat, as is the ballet slipper on a slight wedge. But the kiltie, a low stack heel with fringe flap, is primarily suited to pants.

"There's still a feeling for natural materials and colors," says Christine Rudansky, fashion director for Rayback Corp., the maker of Gaminis, Ad Lib and Prilege shoes.

"Our customer, who's a traditional woman, is slipping into the more fashionable colors such as amber, rust and green," says Steve Wallach, regional sales director for Red Cross shoes, which includes Cabbies and Socialites.

"Her eye has become attuned to wedges and strappy sandals and she's demanding them. Our big seller currently, for example, is a kidskin moccasin in rust, on a wedge, which is a filled-in heel."

Now that women's feet are out from under pant cuffs, they're being strapped. Across the instep, around the ankle, and up the middle with one of the newest styles for skirts, the T-strap with closed toe and back, in varying heights.

"I personally hate to see a girl wearing a dress with a closed pump," says Harry Zee, sales representative of Famolare. "In my opinion, an open shoe is much more feminine."

"The dress shoe used to mean a very high heel and a pointed toe," says Arthur Samuels. "Now, it's a high pump on a wedge or a high stacked, slimmer heel."

Or a delicately strapped sandal, a closed toe slingback, or a T-strap with "art nouveau" cutouts. In lush suede tones.

In walking shoes, vendors are all but soft-selling each other to death. The Earth shoe, which was first picked up by college students in 1970, probably started it all. It has become so popular that it is being shown in 12 new styles, including a T-strap and a sling version.

"We wanted to accommodate the 55-year-old woman who wants to walk in the country as well as the young sophisticate working in an office," says Eleanor Jacobs, vice president of Kato System, maker of the shoe.

The ghillie gets in the 'swing' of things

Auditions scheduled

RORY Scanlon, right, and Julie Sturgill prepare to audition for the parts of Charlie Brown and Lucy. Auditions for "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown, Community Children's Theatre's first bicentennial year production, are scheduled for 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Boy Scout auditorium above the scout office on Main Avenue North. Auditions are open to students ages 15 to 22. The cast requires four men and two women and those auditioning should be prepared to sing a musical number. The show will open Feb. 7.

Famolare has come out with a "Get There" sole, a four-wave rubber bottom to facilitate walking, available in Steplins, ox-fords and sandals.

And not to be outdone, Carber offers its "Carberators" in five styles, including single-eyelet tie sandal and loafer.

"The shoe is built so that the ball of the foot is perfectly level with the heel," explains Marcia Begel.

Proxmire charges 'lavish spending'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today employees of federal agencies that regulate banks spend lavishly on travel, office space and furnishings.

Proxmire, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, leveled his criticism at the Federal Reserve Board, the controller of the currency and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

None of the bank regulators is funded by tax dollars collected through the Treasury Department and authorized by Congress. The regulators raise income from fees charged to banks. The Federal Reserve also earns income through sales of government-backed securities through its Open Market Committee.

Proxmire said his conclusions were based on a General Accounting Office study that showed the comptroller, FDIC and Federal Reserve spent $17 million to regulate banks in 1974.

"I believe we could save at least $10 million through a single agency," Proxmire said. "More important, the single agency would strengthen bank regulation and help prevent future bank failure."

Proxmire introduced legislation Sept. 5 to coordinate the activities of the three agencies into a Federal Bank Commission.

Proxmire said the Federal Reserve spent more than $9,000 for office space, furniture and equipment for each employee in Washington. Proxmire said spending for space alone was estimated at $6,000 which "was six times more than the Securities and Exchange Commission paid."

"The GAO report reveals a consistent pattern of waste and inefficiency in the three bank regulatory agencies," Proxmire said.

Proxmire said the comptroller's employees have offices that are twice as large as those of employees who work for comparable agencies. The comptroller also spent $1,300 in travel for each employee, which was three times higher than the SEC and twice as high as the FDIC.

Boise gets 61 proposals

BOISE (UPI) — Sixty-one program proposals seeking expenditure of $14,653,177 have been received by the Boise City Department of Community Development, Tom Aucutt, agency director, announced today.

Aucutt said the second-year proposals will be reviewed by the agency staff to determine which are eligible under federal regulations and to analyze program budgets before they are reviewed by an ad hoc committee, which then will make program recommendations to the city council for final approval and funding.

He said a public hearing will be held prior to final action by the council, probably in February, after the committee makes its recommendations.

The proposals included six on-going physical activities, $4,155,000; 17 in the new physical category, $3,250,087; 19 new non-physical programs, $518,085; and 19 on-going non-physical, $1,132,105.

Aucutt said Boise will receive a federal grant of $5,179,000 from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for its second action year which starts June 1, 1976. He said the first action year the city received $3 proposals calling for expenditure of more than $15 million and 30 programs were funded.

The director said there will be some unused funds remaining from the first action year and these will be carried over and used to fund second-year programs.

Earn interest compounded continuously from day of deposit to day of withdrawal

With Passbook Savings at First Security Bank

At First Security our compounded continuous interest program on passbook savings works for you all the time — not just daily — but continuously.

By compounding your interest continuously, the rate of 5% per annum yields 5.13% per annum, when both principal and interest are left for a full year. Accounts are insured to $40,000, of course.

You can add to or withdraw from your account at will. Your money earns from Day One. And, all the time it's on deposit, it has earned interest from continuous compounding. You can also make deposits by mail and transfer arrangements between checking and savings accounts are available.

Come in now and start your money working for you everyday

TF tourists to visit Polynesian islands

Casual salesman

PINEAPPLE salesman uses the casual approach. In the public market in Papeete, Tahiti, the farmers and produce people do not pressure the customer. Instead they wait in an almost disinterested manner for the customer to select items.

TWIN FALLS — Downtown Papeete is a festive spot and a place to understand the life in the Polynesian islands.

The Times-News tour to Tahiti in February will include time for visiting the downtown shops, buying handmade items from street stands or just a study of the casual life of the South Pacific Island.

Papeete, the capital of Tahiti, will be the only "city" the tour members will see from the time they leave Los Angeles, Calif., until they return.

In the downtown area are numerous shops selling jewelry items, television sets and appliances or brightly colored Polynesian materials from which the native Pareu or bikini is made.

In the downtown area where the residents of the island shop, the visitor finds a genuine display of supplies or gifts at prices generally lower than those of the hotel gift shops, and in much greater variety.

The visitor can ride "le truck," or the informal mode of travel which costs only about 20 cents for a trip from any of the motel-hotels to downtown. These buses run about every 30 minutes and the visitor will sit on wooden benches and "rub shoulders" with the Tahitians who use the bus as a major means of travel.

The public market is worth nearly a day's time itself. Here the residents buy their main food supplies not raised in their own gardens or caught from the ocean by their own fishing nets and poles.

The farmers and fishermen bring their vegetables, fruits and fish to the market while those who are more talented in handicrafts, weaving or jewelry making also have their booths where the buyer can find anything he or she wants from a fresh pineapple to a new frock.

There are also a number of excellent dining rooms and restaurants in the downtown area and specialty shops.

Officer shops

DOWNTOWN Papeete in Tahiti is a bustling place. A police motorcycle is parked on the main street while the officer visits with a nearby store manager. Papeete, the only city on the island, has a population of about 25,000 and a wide variety of shops and businesses.

Papeete, capital city of the French Polynesian islands, has a population of about 25,000 persons.

From Papeete, a circle island tour around the island of Tahiti covers only about 75 miles, but it takes the better part of the day.

From the bustling city of Papeete with a jet airport and other modern facilities, the trip reaches into the beautiful residential area of the wealthy home owners whose homes are located on a scenic hillside overlooking the beaches, to the poorer areas where some Polynesians live without benefit of electricity or indoor plumbing.

Tahiti Island is about 490 square miles in size. Volcanic in origin, it is now a series of green covered mountains which reach as high as 7,000 feet in central areas.

Four Season Travel Agency, Twin Falls, is currently completing the tour list for the mid-winter "break" and a total change of scenery for winter weary Idahoans.

QUESTION: What is your wish for either yourself or the country for 1976?

Ruth Beasmont, Twin Falls:

I wish world conditions would get better so inflation would stop. That has become a frightening part of life — to see prices continually keep going up. Maybe we should freeze prices on items like gas. It seems there is no end to it.

Mrs. Joe Koch, Twin Falls:

I wish all the problems would get settled down so that everyone can make a living and be satisfied. If everyone who is able to work could have a job, things would be much better. Some of the young people don't seem to want to work.

M. S. "Bill" Hafer, Twin Falls:

I wish everyone could go to work if they are able. Everyone would benefit from working, including me, and I'm retired. I'm 68 and on Social Security and if I didn't have a little savings it would be really hard. People feel better when they work and if a person has a job he feels secure and doesn't have too much time to worry.

Edith Robertson, Twin Falls:

I wish the brotherhood of man would really come true. If people would stop hating each other and learn to love and accept others, the world would be a great place.

D. V. "Buddy" Bridwell, Twin Falls:

I wish Twin Falls had a place where young kids could go to play pool and other games.

Jeff Slater, Twin Falls:

I hope the US can get back on its feet and that the economy will be stabilized. This is important whether we have a new president in 1976 or not.

Lee Smith, Twin Falls:
I hope the United States can progress in terms of the economy and cut the unemployment rate. I feel the US is holding its own and we want to maintain this level and go forward. We should quit running scared and be a little more positive about our country.

Earl Walker, Twin Falls:
My wish is to get some honest politicians in 1976. The only way to have them, but that's what the country needs.

Insight on Alaska

What is life really like in Alaska? Jim Jackson, now a Twin Falls resident, worked for 18 months on the Alaska pipeline and offers some insight into what the pipeline project entails. Jackson, 36, currently is writing a novel about his experiences in Alaska entitled "Project ICE," pp. 8-9.

Jim Jackson, now a Twin Falls resident, lived in Alaska for 18 months, working on the Alaska pipeline. While in Alaska Jackson took this picture of a workboat off the Alaska coast.

THE ice carrier Robert C. Stanley appeared to be a ghost ship as she rode anchor in the steam filled Milwaukee harbor. The near zero temperature combined with the warm water of Lake Michigan produced the effect. The Stanley was later towed into Jones Island slip where it will remain for the winter. (UPI)

Male criminals 'dominate'

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — State District Judge Richard Armstrong, who vows he's not a male chauvinist, said Thursday men generally dominate women in criminal partnerships and therefore deserve more severe punishment.

Armstrong's theory was put into practice this week when he refused to reduce the sentence of a Tulsa man given a prison term four times longer than his female co-defendant on the same armed robbery charge.

"The true perpetrator of the crime, the dominant figure, should receive a greater sentence than the subservient individual, regardless of sex," Armstrong said. "Regrettably, there are too many individuals in society who are pawns and misled into the commission of crimes by reason of their weakness."

One instance of male dominance, the judge said, involved Keith Kelly Ward, 21, and his common-law wife, Gina Amellia Donnell, 20.

Last May Ward pleaded guilty to robbery, car theft and forcing a woman to write a bogus check. Armstrong sentenced him to 20-to-60 years for the robbery, 20 years for auto theft and 10 years each on the other charges while another judge sentenced Miss Donnell to 5-to-15 years for the same robbery and three years on the auto theft and check charges.

"There's no excuse whatsoever for co-defendants to receive such a wide variance in sentences," assistant Public Defender Terril Corley said in asking Armstrong to reduce Ward's sentence.

The judge said the sentence was "fair, equitable and just." Armstrong said he was convinced the former Marine had "led" his then-teenaged partner in the crimes.

"In his testimony, Ward disavowed any influence over her, but he was the one who had known the victim before," Armstrong said. "The entire pattern of the offense indicated to me he played the dominant role."

More geraniums start from seed

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

GERANIUMS FROM SEED

Who'd ever think you can start geraniums from seed and have husky flowering plants by Memorial Day?

More and more commercial growers are doing it and for good reasons. Normally, geraniums are started from cuttings rooted in perlite, sand or vermiculite. Carrying over mother plants for cuttings in fall and winter is expensive business, fuel-wise.

They can start their own plants from seed so small they can hold it all in the palm of their hand. Seed strains of geraniums perform just as well (if not better) outdoors.

Some seed geraniums are not quite as attractive as cuttings started in a 4-inch pot, and maybe the flowers are not quite as double as some varieties but these are minor.

If you're a user of a lot of geraniums, it might be to your advantage to try raising them from seed, especially with plants as much as $1.50 each in spring.

Here's a schedule to try if you're interested in growing geraniums from seed. Sow seed now. In a soilless mixture such as Jiffy Mix, Pro-mix, etc.

Cover lightly with same mixture, place in a pan of water so it can soak up water automatically. Cover with plastic sheet and keep soil temperature at 72 degrees F. until seed starts to sprout.

After seed sprouts (takes 5 to 10 days), remove plastic sheet and place in full light. After seedlings are an inch or so tall, transplant them into 3-inch pots, or Jiffy-7 pellets (all garden stores have them).

In case you aren't familiar with the "pot-less pellets," we'll explain. The pot and pellet are combined in a pellet that looks like a chocolate cookie. The pellets are crumpled in nylon netting and compressed under great pressure.

When soaked in water they expand to seven times their original size. They swell into a cylindrical plant container about two and a half inches high. A seed or seedling is inserted in the pellet and you plant the whole works outdoors, eliminating the chore of preparing soil, sterilizing it or filling a pot.

On the market are peat pots (cheaper than the pellets) which are impregnated with plant nutrients. These too are set out 'pot and all.'

Grow geranium seedlings in a sunny or bright window and a temperature of 65 or 70 degrees. Geraniums don't need a lot of heat. They require plenty of elbow room, uniform supply of moisture and a cool temperature. Lower temperature means later flowering, but a huskier plant.

In spring, you can save money buying from your greenhouse operator in packs of four to six. They're three-inch plants, will take a few weeks longer to fill out the outdoor bed, but not long.

YUCCA 'HOUSE PLANT.' The so-called "Spanish bayonet" or "Spanish dagger" (yucca) is gaining in popularity as a house plant.

As an outdoor plant this item is not fussy — full sun and good drainage, plus a rather poor soil.

Indoors, the plant is more exacting. It needs perfect drainage. Make sure there are pebbles in the bottom of the pot for quick drainage. Avoid glazed, metal or plastic pots for yucca. They don't "breathe" enough and you're apt to overwater the plant in dry. A clay or wooden pot is better.

Grow the plant on the same soil, watering only once every week or so. Too much water (or poor drainage) causes the tips of the leaves to turn black and finally shrivel at the tips, when this happens take a razor blade and cut off the affected portions.

Do NOT syringe the foliage of yucca. It's fine to take a damp cloth and dust off the foliage every month or so, but do not mist.

Yuccas do not like a rich soil. One that's predominantly sandy is best, without manure and with only a little peat moss. Do not feed heavily. Maybe a liquid feeding once every three or four months, since the plant isn't too keen on fertilizers. Best room temperature is anywhere from 72 to 80 degrees. That's about all the care it needs.

green thumb

EDIBLE FIGS: In our latest book on growing plants under glass several people were surprised to learn you can grow edible figs in the greenhouse.

It comes as a surprise to know you can grow carriels, blueberries and dozens of other edible crops in your greenhouse. Heretofore, people felt that the better greenhouse was for raising flowers, but there's no reason why you can use it for raising bananas, citrus and dozens of food plants, as well as ornamentals.

Some people grow the edible fig outdoors in tubs. In fall the tubs are brought indoors and kept moist in a cool cellar until spring, when plant is set outdoors again.

Others bundle the tree up in fall by pulling the branches to the center, then tying them firmly together. Then an old carpet is roped around the plant. They also mound soil around the base. Another trick is to dig a trench near the plant and gently bend it over into the trench.

Leaves and soil are put over the entire plant and left there for the winter.

More echoes of 'Guns of Autumn'

By LINDA MERRY, DVM

Question: I would like you to please answer a question for me. Why do people find such a pleasure in hunting? I was watching a spot on TV called "Guns of Autumn." It had people talking about how good it is to go hunting, and once you have killed a deer, you are hooked to it.

Some of the things they did on there were just too awful to tell. The hunters say it is a cheap way to get meat. So maybe it is, but I feel they are not really being fair. They don't care what others think about hunting.

think, because animals are something in life that I really care about. I don't know. Answer: You're up the only person terribly upset by the film "Guns of Autumn" and its companion "Echoes of Autumn."

merry pet

On that TV show, it seemed like they were going hunting just for the fun of it. They had the nerve to laugh at some back just because they did not die right away. They shot him five times but he had too much pride to die. After a lot of suffering he finally died.

They don't care if others like the beauty. I say that they should leave them alone let nature take its course. Nature will work things out for them.

And so one can tell me that they will suffer from starving to death, because how about all the big hunters that take their little boys out for their first hunt? Some of them could easily miss... and wound them. Just think of all that suffering they have to go through until someone else can help them out.

To the Hunters: I'm sorry about the way I feel, and I am just telling what I

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: R. F. McManis asks: "I know it's winter, but do you think if I left you something hilarious? Two years ago, you said in your Green Thumb column that you had been told you could start roses in a potato. Well, I took cuttings from my favorite roses and inserted them into potato in the ground. Two roses started. One started and one bloomed the very next year."

"I was so proud of myself that I started more roses, using the potato method. I was disappointed when the potato grew. I harvested a bush of potatoes, and nearly 90 year old Auntie was so disappointed. What do you think of that?"

We think it's a good idea to start roses by inserting the cuttings into a potato. This process has been used by many gardeners with considerable success. We don't use potato but we do just the cuttings directly in the ground and place a glass jar over each.

Some gardeners use cuts to start their roses. They fill the end with a knife and insert a cutting into the hole. The theory behind this is that the cuttings are rooting while in the potato. However, variations you can root roses easily without using the potatoes in most soil.

F. R. of Burley: "One purple plant had a purple tip on its stems. They were even darker than Africa. I had some plants I took your tip and found that the stems had all into a solution of household detergent. The detergent killed off the white fly. We used the soap at the bottom of the tablespoon to a gallon of water."

"It's very important the bottom and the sides of the leaves are completely covered. This was a lot of fun for us that morning with the white fly which was really a help."

Green Thumb note: Glad you had good luck fighting such a bad pest. It's a good idea to be alert and check for white fly every week or so because the white fly has four stages, and while you can lack the adult stage, other stages in the life cycle are difficult to detect.

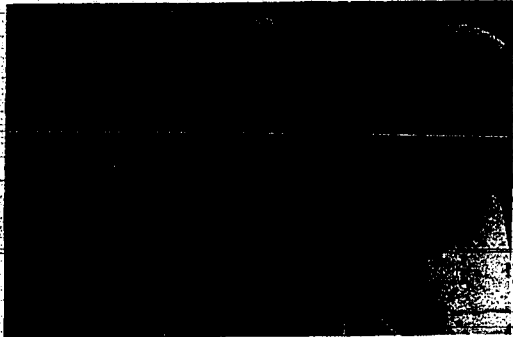

you prefer to begin taking them out of the house. They're very easy to get rid of.

Many men and women seem to like for the camping trip as much as the kill. There are weeks of planning preparations with bears, traps, tents or cameras, food supplies, and chartered flies. They can't find mountains have several miles of camp, and a lot of good hunting with all the excitement.

Others say that it is needed and that it is a fun thing to do. They say that it is a good way to get away from the city and enjoy the outdoors. They say that it is a good way to get away from the city and enjoy the outdoors.

It damages are proven. The National Rifle Association and Michigan Club, many other organizations, have been requested. They have been requested. They have been requested.

I'll have to plead innocence in answering your question of why hunters hunt since I neither hunt nor saw "Guns of Autumn" (and am not likely to, since there is a court injunction against showing it again). I do, however, know many hunters and their companions, the dogs and horses. After I received

High school formal regaining favor

BY SCHOLASTIC MAGAZINE EDITORS

The big high school formal, which became an endangered species during the 1960s and early 1970s, is beginning to enjoy a resurgence popularly, according to a recent Scholastic Magazine survey.

In a nationwide poll of 52,000 junior and senior high students, a 56 per cent majority say they are "all for" such formal dances and "would like to attend them."

"I love them," says Susan Roesch, 17, of Warrensville, Ohio. "It's the only time everybody gets dressed up and goes out. And it's one of the few times when the whole class goes together."

This positive attitude toward formals may also reflect a new trend among young people — a desire to dance and listen to more traditional forms of music.

Several years ago, when hard-to-dance-to rock became popular, teens were more inclined to listen, rather than dance, to their favorite rock groups. Also, the wave of informality during the 60's affecting clothing and social graces seemed to affect teens' attitudes toward proms. Formals, with their tuxedos and long gowns, fell out of favor.

But today, music and dances suitable for the ballroom are making a comeback. Unlike the discotheque free-for-all, these dances, particularly the Hustle, have a stylized step and require that the partners hold each other.

"There are a lot of many different styles of dancing," says Bob Barnes, of Dodge City, Kans. "We all wear little jeans. Guys call you up and show up and you're not really jealous anywhere. You're just getting together." She finds the formal dances provide a chance to "dress up, go to a meal, and show pride and dignity toward each other."

Even though schools are asked if they have had a big formal dance sometime during the school year, 110 of you describe your feelings toward such dances? "

% Boys % Girls % Total
A. I'm all for them and I'd like to attend. 47 65 56
B. They're O.K. but I don't care one way or the other. 43 31 38
C. I am not in favor of them. 10 4 6

Even though these school favor formals, 63 per cent, a majority, their edge is far from overwhelming. Six per cent are opposed to formals, and 38 per cent don't care one way or the other — a total of 44 per cent who for some reason are less than enthusiastic about such dances.

"These things are kind of a big hassle," says Jim Nueringer, 17, of Saginaw, Mich. "If you ask a girl, everybody starts in teasing you. Everybody thinks you're going to be dating her from then on."

A New Jersey girl, who admits she hasn't been asked to the big dance this holiday season, says the formality of the event causes boys to back away. "Going out at my school is on a kind of a friendly basis. These formals with their flowers and things are such a commitment."

Some students object to formals because they dislike the ritual aspect of some of the picking-out and queen of the ball. They say it is unfair to the other students and sets up unnecessary competition.

Considering these objections, it isn't surprising that the Student Council of Aquinas High School in David City, Neb., recently scheduled a rock-and-roll dance on whether or not the annual Christmas dance should be a formal.

Nevertheless, Scholastic found that most students polled — particularly the girls — like the formality and ritual of proms. In the poll, 65 per cent of the girls say they like the dances, compared to only 47 per cent of the boys who say they do.

Theresa Gould, who lives near Grand Rapids, Mich., says, "I'm in favor of formal dances. I like to dance. I like to have a good time. I like to get dressed up once in a while." Judy Runquist of Sacramento, Calif., jokes what it does for people: "When they're dressed up, kids don't want to ruin their clothes. So they act better. They don't run around and get weird. They talk more and have a good time."

Laura City of South Dakota welcomes the formality of the occasion. "Going out now is more or less 'let's go have a hamburger.' You should have a chance to get a little more mature. The formal dances let people act more like ladies and gentlemen."

For some students the dances are one of the few times they get to be with their entire class and feel a sense of school spirit.

"During school, everybody's on their little group," says Mark Straka of Oklahoma City. "The class should get together so people can learn each other's names and what they're doing. It's a shame we don't have more occasions to do so."

Study of US foreign policy coming on Jan. 5

By JOHN HANAUER
UPI TV Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Chancellor will anchor an NBC News special on-foreign-affairs Jan. 5, helped out by 13 NBC News correspondents and an all-star cast of dignitaries led by Gerald Ford and Henry Kissinger.

For the sixth time since 1965, the network will preempt three hours of prime time, from 8-11 p.m., Eastern time, for an in-depth study of American foreign policy, where it's been, where it's at and where it's going.

Ford and Kissinger are two among many special guests interspersed throughout the time slot. Others range from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, from Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., to the U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, Daniel P. Moynihan.

At the start of this project, I wondered how we would fill three hours," Chancellor said in an interview. "Now we were 45 minutes over."

Top of the list in new situations is that strange animal called detente. Asked how he defined the word, Chancellor said:

"The first part of the program will be historical in a sense," Chancellor said in his book-lined, cluttered office. "It tells us where we've been, pretty much from the end of World War II, when we began to look at the world differently than we had before — but who knows."

He believes that the United States now is in another period of change, with new situations bringing on new problems. Top of the list in new situations is that strange animal called detente. Asked how he defined the word, Chancellor said:

"The real meaning of the word is a relaxation of tension. Looking up the origin we found it was a medieval French word, one definition of which was 'lessening of tension in a crossbow string.'

Chancellor will appear on the NBC foreign affairs program at one point demonstrating just that, complete with crossbow.

"Edwin McDowell will appear from time to time with essays on words such as meaningful dialogue and other cliches," Chancellor said.

The NBC anchorman

plans to do certain sections of the writing himself — such as the section on Angola because it may need last-minute revising and he can lend itself to visual telling.

"It's hard to get film out of Angola," he said, "and it's hard to make sense out of what film we do get. The camera can't pick up words, rather than shown."

Another area for foreign affairs the program will explore is the relationship between the poor countries and the rich countries, and how the United States is getting along with the third world — and the fourth world.

He defines the first world as the United States and the other non-Communist industrial countries; the second world as the Communist nations, including the Soviet Union; the third world as the nonindustrial nations with the potential to become self-sufficient (Saudi Arabia would be an example); and the fourth world consists of countries such as Bangladesh, which are "broke and hopeless."

The multinational companies and their activities, such as in Chile, also will be discussed.

Chancellor said President Ford would be on for a 10 to 15-minute interview — and likely would deal with the President's views on what the future might hold for us, the significance of the week's, even day's, news, on Angola, and detente. He also will discuss a congressional dabbling in policy making, perhaps even the significance of American foreign policy on the presidential primaries, conventions and election.

"We aren't going to make it the Gerald R. Ford program," Chancellor said, adding that the White House had imposed no restrictions on questions nor made any demands for screening prior to air time.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger will be followed about a good deal by NBC camera crews. Chancellor said when he was trying to explore the question of just how American foreign policy was made, with the interaction of pressure groups, Congress, business, and the bureaucracy, he finally was moved to ask Kissinger if anyone really understands how American foreign policy was made.

There was a long pause and then Kissinger replied in his flat, deep voice, "I do."

Chancellor doesn't expect three hours on foreign affairs to be a big moneymaker for the network, or that the show will score high in the ratings. It doesn't bother him.

Alcoholics become '90-day wonders'

SAN MATEO, Calif. (UPI) — A self-help program which helps alcoholics in an attractive motel is turning them into 90-day wonders.

Staff members of "Project 90" report a 90 per cent success rate for men who tend to be hard core alcoholics, previously averaging 16 arrests apiece for liquor-related offenses.

They stay sober in the central San Mateo motel at one-third the cost of San Mateo County's conventional rehabilitation program.

Project 90 members are placed in two-room motel apartments in groups of four. They pledge to forgo drink and to attend an Alcoholics Anonymous meeting every night for the first 90 days.

The plan grew out of an after thought by Oakland businessman Letty Ejeenor, who worked part-time to provide emergency help for alcoholics.

Fleener said county officials were reluctant to admit one of his protégés who would get drunk a few hours after receiving treatment in the local rehabilitation center.

"Finally in desperation I rented a house and put my son in charge," Fleener said. "It also provided space for three other men."

"I told him he could stay there as long as he liked and as long as he didn't drink. Then, as a sort of afterthought, I told him he'd have to attend an AA meeting every night."

"Much to my surprise he stayed sober — in fact, he stayed sober for two years, until he died of lung cancer a couple of years ago."

Project 90 participants are housed in the motel at a cost to the county of $7.50 per day. The more conventional structures of County Alcoholics Recovery Unit costs $24.75 per day per patient.

Most of the men receive monthly welfare checks of $121, which are picked up by project staff authorized to cash them. They take $50 for rent money and turn the rest over to members. The men shop and cook for themselves.

Wife ruins TV football viewing

Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO—I was surprised to see my friend Burnett out walking his dog on a Sunday afternoon.

He had never before missed even a moment of Sunday football, or Monday football, either. For that matter, he watches all of the filmed highlights during the week, and on the 10 o'clock news, and during the off-season he will watch news shows about highlights of the previous season.

"Is your TV broken?" I asked, knowing that couldn't be the reason, since he has two spare sets just for such an emergency. And he sometimes watches two games at the same time.

He shook his head, "No, I'm just..." and his voice broke with emotion: "I'm just... not watching. I'll never watch again."

"I can't believe that. You love pro football more than anyone I know."

"Not anymore," he shouted. "It's all over for me. It's been ruined forever."

"Today, I get ready like I always do. Beer, chips, my pro-football guide from the paper. I watched the pregame predictions, the highlights from last week. The interviews. Then during the National Anthem I went to the bathroom like I always do. You know, I've trained to the bathroom to only eliminate during the National Anthem, or half time or time outs. Even at work."

"I came back and sat down and waited for the kickoff. That's when my wife walked in and sat down."

"I know. I asked her what she was doing there. 'All she did was smile and say: 'I want to watch.'"

"The game started and the quarterback dropped back to pass and a lineman broke through and chased him."

"My wife said: 'Why is that big man chasing that other man?'"

"I told her that he wanted to tackle him."

"She smiled and said: 'How do you know what he REALLY wants to do, if we weren't watching.'"

"I said: 'What do you mean by that?'"

"She said: 'Well, you read the papers. You read about how some of them are... you know.'"

"I told her to shut up."

"A minute later, somebody caught a pass. When he trotted back to the huddle, the quarterback patted him on the rear."

"My wife said: 'Hah! Did you see that?'"

"I said: 'See what?'"

"She said: 'He patted that young man's bottom.'"

"I said: 'But they always do that.'"

"She smirked and said: 'Really?'"

"Sure. It's tradition."

"She looked at me and said: 'Do you put each other's bottoms in the company bowling league.'"

"I told her to shut up. But the next time the quarterback patted a guy, I looked away at my potato chips. I mean, what does he have to do that for? Couldn't he shake his hand instead?"

"Then there was a fumble. And you know how everybody piles on and they get all tangled up."

"My wife says: 'Good grief, what are they doing down there?'"

"I said: 'They're trying to recover the fumble.'"

"And she laughed and said: 'Do you really believe that?'"

"The next time there was a fumble I felt embarrassed."

"Then there was a touchdown. And you know how one of his teammates will grab the guy who scored, and hug him and lift him up in the air and sometimes they fall down and roll around on the ground?"

"My wife said: 'Will you look at those two.'"

"And I yelled at the TV set: 'Cut it out, you guys, stop it.'"

"She said: 'Disgusting.'"

"And on the next touchdown, instead of cheering like I always do, I went into the kitchen to wait until a commercial came on. She yelled at me: 'They're at it again.'"

"When the half ended, the teams ran off the field and my wife said: 'Where are they all going? In such a big hurry?'"

"I told her: 'To the locker room.'"

"She just giggled and said: 'Oh?'"

"I said: 'What do you mean by that?'"

"She said: 'Nothing, just oh.'"

Is that when you turned it off?"

"No. I tried on till the second half. Then they had a cleopuse of a player sitting on the bench. He smiled and winked at the camera. I blushed."

"She said: 'He's lookin' at you, sweetheart.' That's when I headed for the door."

"And you'll never watch again?"

"Not for a long time. And if I do, not with her around. Maybe I'll watch in a closet, wait... I like that tack..."

New movie adapted from Kipling story

N. Y. Times Service

NEW YORK — The setting is India in the late 19th century when the British raj was in his glory. It is a time of mission and mystery and the white man's burden, of appalling poverty and of wealth often described as untold.

The elites tend with unruly humanity, with beggars, blind men, snake charmers, demoted holy men, starving children.

In the upland territories, British soldiers guard the frontiers to places of which someone will say, quite seriously, "No white man has ever gone in there and come out alive."

In "Mowgli and the Wolves" lives like "Lives of the Bengal Lancers" and "Gunga Din," this world is very far removed and terribly romantic, as it still is in John Huston's highly entertaining new film "The Man Who Would Be King," based on the short story by Rudyard Kipling.

The most pleasant surprise about "The Man Who Would Be King" is that although it is about as romantic and implausible an adventure as you're likely to see, it's not anachronism. It's neither a silly update of an entertainment designed for pre-World War II Saturday-afternoon America, nor is it one of those films that are wise with hindsight about earlier eras, like John Milus's "The Wind and the Lion."

"The Man Who Would Be King" manages to be great fun in itself while being most faithful to Kipling, whose story, written in the 1890's, is a kind of raffish metaphor for the British colonial experience that did not end for another half century. But this really isn't what "The Man Who Would Be King" is about. It's a tall tale, a legend, of steadfastness, courage, camaraderie, gallantry and greed, though not necessarily in that order.

It's about two former English soldiers turned con artists, Danny Dravot (Sean Connery) and Peachy Caranoh (Michael Caine), who decide that Victoria's India is no longer big enough for them and their growing reputations as blackmailers and forgers. They decide to carve out their own kingdom in Kafiristan, now a part of Afghanistan but then an undiscovered territory not visited by a known tourist or king since Alexander the Great.

Danny and Peachy are grand, old-fashioned adventures with the gift of gab and a sense of style. Outrageously disguised as a holy man and his servant, they climb mountains and cross glaciers to penetrate the forbidden territory where, through luck and a series of coincidences, they realize their wildest dreams.

Danny gets himself crowned King and recognized as a god, the legitimate son of Alexander, and Peachy becomes chief of the armed forces and the treasure guardian. But while Peachy keeps his eye on the main chance; that he an opportunity to abscond with the gold, Danny begins to like the divinity business and to take his responsibilities seriously, which is his downfall.

Husband resembles Mt. Rushmore

By ERMA BOMBICK

On an emotional scene, my husband is somewhat to the right of Mt. Rushmore.

He speaks about six words a year (four of them to me), has a "c" that reveals nothing, and gave in to giddiness on only one occasion. (On the birth of our first child, he punched me in the arm and said, "There will be a little something extra in your paycheck this week.")

Just before Christmas I read an ad that was to solve my problem. I read, "Get him the ring that betrays his every emotion. Find out whether he is relaxed or under pressure, inhibited or aggressively passionate. The ring that lets a woman know where you're coming from."

On Christmas morning, he put the Mood Ring on his finger. It turned black and had been in a holding pattern ever since. "Why are you tense and inhibited?" I asked.

"What makes you think I am tense and inhibited?"
"Your ring is black. If it were yellow you would be unsettled, green, serene and calm, or violet blue."

the government owes us $2,000." (Still black.)
Our daughter perched on the arm of his chair. "All my girl friends think you look like Robert Redford."

... then blue ... then green ... and finally WHITE!
"You don't have to be that choked up," I said. Then I noticed that he was reading a stack of Christmas bills.
"What does white mean, Mom?"
"Get the respirator."

Every day, since Christmas, the family and I have dedicated our lives to making that funky little ring turn color.

Pipeline camp carved out of the forest

Camp hospital where Jim Jackson worked

Life on Alaska pipeline remembered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jim Jackson spent 18 months working up and down the Alaska pipeline from May of 1974 through November 1975. Jackson worked as a field medical technician and then as a security man while in Alaska. He left Alaska after concluding the atmosphere on the pipeline to be unhealthy because of hard drug problems, alcoholism and rising labor disputes. Jackson is writing a novel about his experience in Alaska which will be published in the spring of 1976 under the title "Project ICE". The 38-year-old Jackson lives in Twin Falls and is the owner of the Jackson Security Agency here.

By JIM JACKSON Times-News writer

When I first arrived on the Alaska pipeline morale was excellent. In early May, 1974, the project was still fresh and exciting to most of the workers.

During those first days most of us on the pipeline gained about a pound a week because the food was so good. A typical menu included:

Soupe Aux Courgettes, Bouillabaisse, Boeuf ala mode, Mais au Beurre, Steak, Shrimp, and assorted pies.

In the beginning we had about one female for about every three hundred males. Needless to say, the women were treated as something very special. Something to do with the law of supply and demand.

However, within 18 months the number of females increased in each camp and their "queen" status diminished.

In 1974 camps were being constructed along the pipeline with such names as Prudhoe Bay, Crazy Horse, Franklin Bluffs, Happy Valley, Lupine, Toolik, Galbraith, Atigun, Chandalar, Dietrich, Coldfoot, Prospect Creek, Oldman, 5 Mile, Livengood, Fairbanks, Delta, Isabel Pass, Glennallen, Tonsina, Sheep Creek, and finally Valdez. Valdez, by the way, is pronounced as "Val'deez" by the Alaskans.

Alyeska's (the oil consortium) original concept was to place camps about every 50 miles apart in order to distribute the work needed to build the haul road. The road had to be constructed in order to move the huge 80 foot lengths of pipe across the otherwise delicate tundra.

Of course the work hours were long but so were the days. Daylight in June peaked at 20 hours then crept slowly downward towards the awesome bleakness of a gray and cold winter.

In contrast, spring in Alaska is a rebirth of the countryside. In May every color imaginable bursts forth in a rainbow of verdant sun rays.

Humor during the early days of construction was picturesque if not downright corny. One friend received a fruit cake in the mail one day and remarked to his foreman, "Got a fruit cake in today?" His boss paused for a moment before replying, "Oh, did they finally hire your brother?"

One control tower operator was called by Fairbanks on the radio and asked for the range of visibility. The operator told Fairbanks the "range was unlimited."

Apparently the Fairbanks operator wasn't satisfied with the answer and demanded a "definite range."

With a sigh the control tower operator reached over and opened the door. With the microphone in one hand and his eyes shielded with the other hand he squinted for a moment at the sun.

"Radio Fairbanks," he drawled, "Right now I am looking at the sun and I recall it's about 93,000,000 miles from my tower. Now, in my book, that's what I would call 'unlimited range of visibility'." There were no other comments from Fairbanks as a chuckle could be heard over the speaker.

A favorite pastime during the summer of '74 was mosquito hunting. First of all you would have to see the hardy Alaskan Mosquito in order to understand why some are actually trophy size.

It is a fact, so I am told by the natives, that all of the mosquitos in Alaska outweigh all the moose in Alaska. Anyway, it was common practice to see the workers kill mosquitos and then put the dead mosquito in their pockets. At the end of the day the mosquitos were counted and measured. The larger ones were then taped to the trophy board and the winners were announced each week.

One operator was so good at killing mosquitos that his nickname was the "Mosquito Bandito".

Most of the camps have recreation-halls that are well equipped with pool tables, a steam room, and bar bells. Some have a good selection of books in the library along with the usual "Mens Magazines".

In addition there are movie theaters in each of the camps and a new movie is shown for each shift. Everything except the tooth paste and razor blades are free. Except for such personal items as cigarettes, one could easily get by on about $2.00 a week. Not too bad when you consider the average worker earns around $4,000 a month.

In the early days of construction the use of alcohol and drugs were not permitted by regulations, however, no one paid much attention to the part about alcohol. Whenever someone would run out of "medicine" it was common practice to convert to grape juice, yeast, sugar, and tincture of time into some very tasty homemade wine.

The longest any home-made stuff ever sat around was about 5 days. Once we had a batch that actually aged for a week, I found the use of rubber surgical gloves over the mouths of gallon jugs worked wonders when the gases began to expand. Naturally I kept several gallons in my dispensary in case of mosquito bites.

Everything in Alaska was in a state of motion in 1974. During the last 18 months the pioneer spirit of the pipeline slowly died and in its place, came people from all over the world to make the big money and then to get out as fast as possible.

As hundreds of new personnel were being hired daily the quality of life in the camps began to degenerate. By the spring of 1975 it was evident that hard drugs were being used in the camps.

It was very common to see men going to work drunk or so tired from partying that they were dangerous to their fellow workers and themselves.

By the end of 1975 I concluded the Alaska pipeline was not for me. The long hours, the degenerating atmosphere in the camps and the distance from my family convinced me to leave the work for others to finish.

Now into its second winter, the pipeline project is about half completed. The work on the pipeline should be complete by the end of 1977 and America will then begin consuming oil from the most expensive field in the world.

Pipeline the most expensive private project

If nothing else the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Project has to be the costliest development ever undertaken by private industry.

An eight oil company consortium is paying over $5,000,000,000 to build 800 miles of pipeline, and 12 sophisticated pump stations in order to bring oil from Prudhoe Bay to the terminal at Port Valdez.

Oil was first discovered on Alaska's North Slope in July, 1968 and within a year plans were formulated to build a pipeline that could move the estimated 700,000,000,000 barrels of "crude" out of the wastelands of Alaska's north country and eventually to the west coast ports of America by way of large ocean tankers.

Engineers estimated in 1969 that a pipeline could be built for around $1,500,000,000 and ordered 800 miles of 48 inch pipe from Japan at a cost of $100,000,000. In addition an Alaskan right-of-way permit was filed in June of 1969 along with a federal application for permission to use an estimated total 12 square miles of Alaska's 586,000 square miles for the pipeline route.

The outlook was optimistic until several environmentalist groups brought suits against the oil companies with the argument that a pipeline across the face of Alaska would upset the ecology and disturb nature. In 1970 the Environmental Protection Act was passed by a pressured congress which resulted in a standstill of the project because of federal injunctive suits.

However, the people in America had a rude awakening in 1974 when the Arab oil embargo forced the prices up sharply on all petroleum products.

A panic stricken public demanded the Alaskan oil fields be opened in spite of environmental group objections and congress authorized the construction of the pipeline project in November of 1974.

In order to build the pipeline it was necessary for eight oil companies to form a consortium and pool their money and resources. The name "Alyeska Pipeline Service Company" was selected by the owners of Amerasia Hess Corporation, ARCO Pipeline Company, SOHIO Pipeline Company, EXXON Pipeline Company, Mobil Alaska Pipeline Company, Phillips Petroleum Company, Union Alaska - Pipeline - and - British - Petroleum - Pipeline Inc.

The Alyeska Pipeline Service Company began getting up during the winter of 1974 months and were ready to begin work on the pipeline road after President Nixon authorized construction in April, 1974.

A small army of men and women began moving north of the Yukon River in one of the largest logistic feats in construction history. Most of the equipment and supplies were airlifted to camp sites by the Fairchild C-27 and huge Hercules L-102 and the rest was trucked in.

Permanent 5200 foot runways were carved out of the wilderness in such places as Dietrich, Prospect and Galbraith. In addition several dirt airstrips were built at other sites along the 350 mile route.

A gravel base of 3 to 6 feet (28 feet wide) was poured into the unstable tundra from the northern tip of Prudhoe Bay to the Rocky banks of the Yukon River in the South.

The road now continues across the river on a new $25,000,000 bridge which towers 20 stories over the south side of the river and spans more than 2,300 feet from one bank to the other. The two lane structure is designed to support the pipeline in addition to heavy construction traffic.

Before completion of the new bridge it was necessary to cross the river on "ice bridges" during the winter, and however it during the spring and summer.

The pipe is buried in some sections and is above ground in other areas. Of the total 800 miles, about 382 miles will be above ground and 418 miles buried at least 4 feet deep to prevent thawing of tundra due to the high temperature of the oil passing through the pipe.

Although the oil is a heavy 30-40 weight, it comes from the ground at 180 degrees and enters the pipeline at about 140 degrees. Further heat is generated through internal friction between the oil and the inside of the pipe, and by the time the oil has arrived at Valdez it will be a comfortable 90 degrees.

Each mile of the line will contain 11,300 barrels of oil, with the full length holding an estimated 3,000,000 barrels (one barrel equals 42 gallons). Because of possible oil spillage the 800 mile pipeline will contain some 142 different valves including some that will be operated by a satellite many miles above the earth. Maximum shut down time for the entire system is designed to be 6 minutes or less.

Other fail-safe designs include an above ground zig-zag arrangement of pipes in order to prevent rips due to Alaska's massive earthquakes. Several miles of the special pipe crosses the infamous Denali Fault where shocks have been recorded at 7.0 on the Richter Scale.

Assuming that all goes well, oil should flow during the third quarter of 1977 at a calculated 1,200,000 barrels a day and will move at 4 miles per hour. The trip to Valdez will be slow 7 1/2 days or a little over 100 miles per day.

What about the eventual impact on your lives here in Magle Valley? Well, one ARCO engineer said last month that the company buys one barrel of oil for $13.00 and by the time it gets refined the American public will pay over $150.00 for that barrel of oil.

He also made it very clear that the pipeline would be paid off in one year after the first drop of oil reached Valdez. Not a bad deal for the oil companies when you consider the life expectancy of Prudhoe Bay oil fields is predicted at more than 20 years.

Senator lauds TV

WASHINGTON (UPI)—
Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., praised the television industry today for voluntarily cutting violence in its programs and said critics of "family viewing" have failed to offer an alternative.
Pastore said the television industry responded to the problem of excessive violence "with specific, responsible self-regulation" by setting aside the first two early evening hours for programs suitable for the entire family—the so-called "family viewing" period.
"I strongly support these broadcaster and network reforms," Pastore said in a Senate speech.
"While 'family viewing' may not mark the millennium, it is an encouraging sign that the broadcast industry recognizes its great responsibility to the American public and tends to act accordingly to police its own house to avoid exposing children to
violence."

Jogging talk

NEWLY signed - NBC-TV sportscaster Dick Eoberg (right) had his worst cut out for him when he was assigned to interview retired, legendary UCLA basketball coach John Wooden for a half-hour feature on the NBC-TV exclusive coarscast of the UCLA-Notre Dame NCAA clash in Los Angeles Saturday and the only time the two could get together was at 6:30 a.m. during Wooden's daily five-mile jog.

REAGAN ... plenty of time

A: Newton lives in Las Vegas and performs there about 30 weeks a year. His price is new—hold your hats—$5 million a year. And he just signed a new seven-year contract. That's 35 million smackers. If you've forgotten the multiplication tables:

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: What top movie star will be sued for more than divorce if he doesn't stop knocking his wife around in public as well as in private? Last week onlookers were treated to the spectacle of him pushing her out of the car door and onto the street. He didn't even bother to pull over to the curb.

Q: You mentioned Rod McKuen some time back. I'd love to know whether he's wealthy or not. — W.O., La Jolla, Calif.

A: Rich, Rich, Rich; poetry, songs, books, calendars, McKuen is a one-man industry and there isn't a tougher businessman around. Nobody gets the kinds of contracts Rod manages to extract from clients.

Q: What's the relationship between Tony Orlando and Dawn — you know, the two girls he works with on TV? — C.R., Benshurst, N.J.

A: Tony doesn't like to discuss it but he and Telma Hopkins and Joyce Wilson haven't always gotten along. They were engaged at Debut Union scale while Tony made big money. Now that has been ironed out and the trio gets along better.

Q: Whatever happened to Elizabeth Taylor's friend, the used-car salesman, is he gone and forgotten now that Richard Burton is back? — S.P., Cleveland, Ohio remember the brand name. — A.G., Lincoln, Neb.

A: If you mean Henry Wynnberg, he's in London turning down lucrative offers from publishers to write about his days with Liz Taylor. And even the optimist, Wynnberg keeps telling friends that Burton will "fall off the wagon" and Liz will come back to him.

A: You're referring to the new Mary Quant line for men. The makeup, which includes conservative versions of your typical cosmetics including a blemish and wrinkle concealer, will be on the market this spring. Some cosmetic insiders feel it will cause a revolution in male beauty products.

Q: Is it true that prostitutes in West Germany are allowed to advertise openly? — F.C., Louisville, Ky.

A: Yes, but within certain limits. Recently some of the "girls" in a West German town tried to fight the recession by sending an airplane aloft towing their names and phone numbers across the sky on long banners. Authorities moved quickly to stop the practice. They grounded the "Lastminute" flights.

Q: I just got around to reading a highly flattering Newsweek story about Jackie Onassis going to work for a publisher. What a valentine! And I was happy to see something nice about her for a change. — H.T., Madison, Wis.

A: Sorry to tell you — Jackie didn't like this story any better than she has liked any others written about her.

Q: I thought Katharine Ross and cinematographer Calvin Hall were an inseparable twosome. But I read she's married someone else. What gives? — A.A., Ogden, Utah.

A: The story we hear is that Katharine went off to do a movie on location and lived to regret it. When she got back she discovered Calvin had found a new love and Katharine went off and got married on the rebound.

Q: Does Wayne Newton live in Las Vegas? He always seems to be appearing there. — M.D., Scottsdale, Ariz.

ROSS ... married on rebound

BY ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN
Q: Are all the top stars of "Come With the Wind" dead? — B.B., Atlanta, Ga.

A: No. Olivia de Havilland, who played Melanie, is alive and well and living in Paris. She returns every year to lecture on her years as a Hollywood star. She also sees CWTW every time it is released since she feels "It is such a rich film, each time I see something new in it."

Also very much alive are "Butterfly McQueen" (Prissy) and Evelyn Keyes and Ann Rutherford who played the sisters.

Q: What big name will be next to surrender to the advertisers and show up on TV selling a product? — P.R., Peoria, Ill.

A: How about that most famous of effete snobs, Rex Harrison? Word is that he has Pointer sisters. But June, the youngest, had several emotional collapses and is not performing in public for the time being. She will probably still keep recording, however, during the period of recuperation.

RUMOR OF THE WEEK: A top rock star is in dangerously low spirits once again. His friends and associates are extremely worried.

Q: We know Barbra Streisand and Liza Minnelli are the two women who count at the box office in this country but what about abroad? I'm betting it's Sophie Loren. — C.F., Kansas City, Mo.

A: The answer is Charlotte Rampling, the third highest paid woman in the movie business. Charlotte has been hot ever since "The Night Porter." She then made "Farewell My Lovely" but turned down "The Marathon Man" and "The Seven Per Cent Solution." She is now top choice to star in "The French Lieutenant's Woman." Charlotte and her husband, Brian Southcombe, put together figures on how much her movies had earned and dumped them on the desks of Hollywood producers. The result: Hollywood wants Charlotte and is paying her price.

Q: Now that Ronald Reagan is officially running for president, how will he have time to do his radio program and continue with his lecture tour? — L.P., Barstow, Calif.

A: Reagan's lectures can easily be translated into campaign speeches and as far as his five minutes syndicated radio program is concerned, Barry Goldwater is doing the show now. However, rumor has it that Julie Nixon Eisenhower may take over the show. Have to wait and see.

Q: I don't see or hear much about James Cagney. Has he retired completely? — C.D., Roanoke, Va.

A: Though Jimmy has retired from show business completely and spends most of his time on his farm in Dutchess County, New York, the old Yankee Doodle Dandy still loves to see America. Twice yearly, churning planes and trains, Jimmy drives across the country to visit friends in Hollywood.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: What top model with a million dollar contract is about to be given her walking papers by a major cosmetics company because she has become a prima donna? The company is already looking for a replacement since they feel their products can't make any pretty girl look better.

Q: Did you have a story about a new makeup for men? I'm interested but can't succumbed to the lure of the buck and is doing a Dodge auto commercial. It will be directed, however, by movie great Mervyn Le Roy. As Rex says: "If you're going to do it, you might as well do it properly."

CAGNEY ... still around

A: Did Nixon — make any concessions to David Frost concerning the TV interview does he will grant him next year? I mean does Frost have any strength on his side in asking the questions? — B.G., Wayne, Pa.

A: Good question, H.G. Yes — (1) Nixon won't know the questions in advance — (2) he has no right to see the completed programs before they are put on TV — (3) Frost can go back to Nixon after he has checked Nixon's answers and he will use a team of journalists and advisors for the checking process.

Q: I saw the Pointer Sisters on TV the other night and there were only three. Am I crazy or weren't there four? — L.P., Louisville, Ky.

A: You aren't crazy. There are four
