 The tax cut would be phased in to take full effect next Jan. 1. For an average family of four with income of $15,000 per year, taxes would go down by $286 in 1970 and $407 in 1971. The personal exemption would go up from $750 to $1,000.
 Ford also proposed to reduce the maximum corporate income tax rate from 48 percent to 46 percent and take over measures he contended would stimulate the economy and employment.
 The President said unemployment "remains too high." He added that, while government cannot create enough jobs by itself for everyone who wants one, it can "create conditions, and incentives for private business and industry to make more and more jobs."
 Besides the corporate tax cut, Ford recommended accelerating depreciation allowances for construction of plants and equipment in high unemployment areas.
 As another boost to "private industry," Ford proposed tax law changes to allow more Americans to invest in stocks in American corporations. Dividends on investments of $1,000 to $1,500 would be tax free.
 Ford also urged tax changes to permit small businesses and farms to be passed to heirs at their owners.
 Housing: Ford called for new housing assistance programs for 500,000 low-income families, including measures to build 125,000 new housing units and mortgage assistance to 100,000 families.

Health: Ford proposed that the federal government spend $568 million per year to insure the poor and aged against "catastrophic" medical costs. Under the plan, recipients would not have to spend more than $500 for hospital care or $200 for doctor bills.
 The President said he could "envision the day when the private health insurance system could be used to help millions of poor persons, but he said resources were not now available.
 Under his health proposals, Medicare recipients would have to pay more than they do now for their first day's hospital care.
 Ford also proposed to combine 10 existing federal health care programs, which now cost $9.2 billion, into one $16 billion block system for payment to the states. The principal program involved would be Medicaid.
 Social Security: Ford said that in order to make the system self-sustaining, taxes should be increased by three-fifths of one per cent, which he said would cost each employee less than a dollar more per week.
 Welfare: Ford said sweeping changes in the system are "impossible when the nation is recovering from recession, but asked Congress to request authority to tighten rules for eligibility and benefits.
 Program consolidation: Ford proposed combining 39 existing federal programs in education, child nutrition and social services into broader grant programs to be administered by the states as they see fit. Federal officials said administrative costs and federal bureaucratic control would be cut.

 Foreign policy: Ford said the U.S. foreign policy is "sound and strong." He urged Americans to "quit downgrading ourselves as a nation."
 He said "the crippling of our foreign intelligence services increases the danger of American involvement in armed conflict."
 Without effective intelligence capability, he said, "the United States stands blindfolded and lobbied."
 He promised Congress "cooperation" in governing the intelligence community, but called for an end to "isolationism" about it.

Iowa's Demos favor Carter

 Iowans turned out in near record numbers at the precinct level to begin the process of selecting delegates for the two national conventions.
 Reagan's following was evidenced in a poll of 2 percent of the Republican caucuses, which showed the former California governor running less than 3 percent behind President Ford. The results of the 62 caucuses surveyed showed Reagan with 42.5 percent of the preference, Ford with 45.2 percent and 10.6 percent uncommitted.
 Campaign directors for both Ford and Reagan claimed victory in the straw poll, although it was clear Reagan had made deep inroads into a state controlled by Ford allies, such as Gov. Robert Ray and GOP National Chairperson Mary Louie Smith.
 Ralph McCarty, Ford's Iowa campaign director, criticized the methods used in taking the poll and said regardless of the underlying assumptions, Ford was still on top.
 Ray Haise, Reagan's Iowa campaign director, said there was more to the story than was told by the poll.
 "I think it's a very strong showing on the part of Mr. Reagan, in view of the efforts of Gov. Ray to influence the vote recently," he told UPI.
 "But we had our own precinct poll that showed Gov. Reagan in much better shape than that poll."

Tale denounced

WASHINGTON — The White House has denounced as "blatant" reports that President Ford received unsigned checks for up to $1,000 with a promise they would be signed — if he vetoed the common stock picketing bill.
 The measure, passed by Congress in December and, in fact, vetoed by the President — although he had indicated publicly two months earlier that he would sign it — would have allowed a local union with a grievance against one contractor to picket all other contractors at the construction site.
 The measure engendered intensive lobbying for and against, and echoes of the battle still have not died.
 The newest salvo was fired by George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, who in a speech Monday to a legislative conference of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, labeled Ford a "fumbling, stumbling, bumbling chief executive." Meany cited Ford's handling of the union-sought picketing measure.

Massive protest called in Madrid

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — The Communist party called on illegal opposition groups to take to the streets today in a massive anti-government protest at the prime minister's offices. Police threatened to smother the march.
 The march was aimed at backing among for political prisoners, freedom of political parties, human and regional rights — and a democratic regime.
 Madrid's police security headquarters said it would crush the demonstration and warned "peaceful" Madrid citizens "to stay clear of the march."
 Announcement of the rally came amid a two-week wave of workers' strikes and political protests involving hundreds of thousands of Spaniards.
 The government drafted the nation's 72,000 railway workers into the army Monday in a move to defuse the volatile labor situation — but nearly 100,000 more workers went on strike.
 The demonstrators planned to gather outside Premier Carlos Arias' office in downtown Madrid. They marched up Madrid's main north-south avenue to Chelva Plaza.

 The march marked the first time since the Spanish Civil War of the 1930s that the Communist-dominated Democratic Junta and the Democratic Platform have united for a mass political protest.
 A Democratic Junta leader said today the Communists were "the moving force" behind the march. Nightfall Monday found the streets of Madrid littered with Communist party leaflets.
 For a democracy and democracy the housewives will be there," the leaflets said.

Truce due in 'cod war'

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Britain and Iceland have agreed to a truce in their long-running "cod war" ending the imminent threat of a break in diplomatic relations between the two countries.
 British Foreign Minister James Callaghan announced late Monday night that Britain was withdrawing immediately its warships and air force jets from within Iceland's 200-mile territorial sea in exchange for the Icelandic promise to stop cutting the nets of British trawlers (fishing in the area).

ERA protesters spread jam among legislators

By Bill Lazarus
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Adding jam to what many legislators already regard as a sticky situation, about 125 women converged upon the statehouse Monday in protest of the Equal Rights Amendment.

The women brought the legislators jars of jam, which, according to Idaho Stop ERA Chairman Mrs. Susan Hill, carried appropriate messages in favor of "preserving the family unit" and "stopping a constitutional jam from occurring."

But most legislators appear more concerned that a jam-up in the Idaho Legislature may occur again over the emotional ERA issue.

Four years ago the legislature ratified the ERA. Since then efforts have been made each year to repeal or rescind Idaho's ratification of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Thirty-four states so far have approved the ERA, leaving approval by four more states necessary before it can be added to the Constitution.

But, two states already have rescinded their approval. There is, however, some question about whether it is possible for states to rescind their ratification of a constitutional amendment. Congress would have to decide to recognize the rescissions.

Despite the uncertainty of the matter, anti-ERA groups have been pushing for repeal of Idaho's approval of the amendment. After a drawn-out and emotional consideration of the matter last year, the House voted 38-36 to rescind the ERA. All Magic Valley representatives, with the exception of William Roberts, R-Boji, voted to rescind.

But the issue was quickly dealt with in the Senate which voted 16-18 against rescinding Idaho's ratification of the ERA. Magic Valley senators John Peavey, R-Rupert; Bob Saxvik, D-Burley; and James Yost, R-Wendell, voted with ERA opponents to rescind, while senators Richard S. High, R-Ewin Falls, and John Barker, R-Boji, voted to keep Idaho's approval of the ERA intact.

The vote to rescind in the Senate was far from successful since Lt. Gov. John Evans, who serves as president of the Senate, and the Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee decided it would take a two-thirds majority to rescind the ERA. This procedural ruling is expected again this year, making it unlikely that a rescinder resolution would pass.

"This year, the resolution against the ERA is expected to surface in the Senate.

Nothing has happened yet. ERA opponents are waiting for public pressure to mount before introducing their rescission resolution.

"We haven't decided when we'll run the resolution. At this time we feel the people of Idaho should make their views known," Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, said Monday.

Although the matter is important to all Idahoans, for the past two years the Idaho Senate has only spent 20 minutes considering the measure to rescind approval of the ERA, Watkins said. He said he would support public hearings and a more thorough consideration of the matter.

"I'm sure John Evans will rule that it will require a two-thirds vote" to rescind, Watkins said, but he added, "I'm sure the Evans will be challenged." It would take a simple majority vote to overturn a decision on the matter by Evans.

But, several other senators, even those supporting rescission, do not want to see a "rescind" bill hit the matter.

"Certainly it is my hope that whatever we do with it that we could handle it with dispatch," Senate President Pro Tempore James Ellsworth, R-Leadore, said. He said he would vote to rescind.

Senate Assistant Minority Leader Saxvik, also said he would vote to rescind the ERA ratification since existing equal opportunity laws provide "sufficient redress" for women.

"The only thing — from a leadership standpoint — we're hoping for is that the resolution will surface in the near future so we can handle it with dispatch," Saxvik said.

High, who voted to support the ERA last year, said he has received no new information that would cause him to change his position. "I'd just as soon not go over it again," he said when asked about his position on the amendment.

Peavey said, "I think that probably the majority of the people of the district are for rescinding the ERA and I voted that way. I'll probably vote that way again."

Peavey added, however, that his personal feelings run more in support of the ERA, though "I'm not real big on the subject either way."

While watching the women with the jars of jam, Peavey said it appears that the issue will drag out again this legislature.

"If the sponsors of the legislation have anything to do with it," he said, "they're going to drag it out as long as they can."

Leadore said an interim committee has been appointed from both houses of the legislature to come up with a recommendation on which way the legislature should go with regard to the pay study.

Gem payroll expands

BOISE (UPI) — Full-time equivalent positions in state government grew from 18,470 in the first quarter of 1975 to 21,760 in the third quarter of 1975, Rep. E. V. Metlam, R-Ketchum, told the House today.

"I just thought you might want to know where your money is going," he said, in a brief floor speech.

Expense hike proposed

BOISE (UPI) — At the behest of Rep. Doyle Miner, R-St. Anthony, the House Judiciary Committee agreed Monday to introduce legislation increasing each legislator's daily expense money by $5.

At least one member of the committee advised Miner, however, that his support to introduce the bill was not necessarily tantamount to supporting him if and when the bill hit the floor.

Miner told reporters after the meeting that he took a poll of the House and found members 19-19 in favor of his bill. He said he had "sort of a poll" in the Senate and believed he could squeak it through that body.

Not since 1971 — when they overturned an initiative of the people that cut back on their expense allowances — have the lawmakers received a raise in their compensation.

Under the Constitution, they receive $10 a day salary for the first 60 days of a regular session and the first 20 of a special session. In addition, those who live outside Ada County get $35 a day in expenses and those residing in Ada get $25 a day. Between sessions they receive $3.50 per day in office expenses.

Miner's bill would boost the non-Ada County legislators' expenses to $40 a day and the Ada County lawmakers' expenses to $30. It also would like the interim office expenses to $5.

Rep. T. W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, said there are constitutional proposals for raising legislative compensation and asked whether Miner's bill would be in conflict with them. Miner said he thought not.

Hearing rule stays in air

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Lyle Cobbs, R-Boise, chairman of the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee, said Monday he hoped by Wednesday the committee would decide whether a public hearing would be held on the three land use planning bills submitted by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

Several committee members said they had received requests that a public hearing be held on the issues.

But Cobbs said he yet has received "no plane call for a public hearing."

The committee has agreed to hold a public hearing on the three bills to implement the basic land use bill adopted by the Legislature if there is a demand for a hearing.

Kress endorsed

BOISE (UPI) — The Political Action Committee for Education announced its endorsement Monday of State Sen. Stan Kress, D-Firth, as the Democratic candidate for Congress from Idaho's Second Congressional District.

The committee is the political action arm of the Idaho Education Association.

Hay study wrangle begins

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Legislators began wrangling today whether to accept the Hay study streamlining the way state employees are paid — a key-to-early adjournment of the legislature now in its third week.

Senate President Pro-Tem James Ellsworth,

Leadore said an interim committee has been appointed from both houses of the legislature to come up with a recommendation on which way the legislature should go with regard to the pay study.

Camas lists needs

FAIRFIELD — The Camas School district has sent its elementary needs assessment to the Idaho Department of Education.

Supt. Harold Stroud said today trustees approved the material at the last board meeting. The recommendations for improving the elementary school came from a citizen involvement project two years ago when the entire school district was analyzed.

Several of the needs pointed out at that time have already been met, Stroud said. Top priority was for a special educational program in the Fairfield elementary school, he said, and this has now been established.

Another recommendation was to have more art offered to the grade school students. Stroud said there are now several women volunteering to teach art in these classes.

The music program also has been expanded in the grade school, with a music teacher for all 12 grades, Stroud said.

"We have music almost every day in most of the grades," he said. The Camas district has 220 students, 93 of which are in the elementary school.

In other business, trustees approved the school calendar for 1976-77. Classes will start Aug. 30 and the term ends May 20, 1977.

Insurance firm asks $380,000

TWIN FALLS — Life of Montana Insurance Co. has filed a complaint in Fifth Judicial District Court here seeking $380,000 allegedly owed the insurance company by Ponderosa Inns, Inc. in connection with operation of the Ponderosa Inn.

The complaint names Ponderosa Inns, Inc., John M. Driggers, Rudy D. Lang, Floyd Calvin Anglin, Claude T. Ryan and John C. Pettis as defendants, and states the individuals are officers or directors of Ponderosa Inns, Inc., Ponderosa Inns, Inc., and Greater Idaho Corp.

Greater Idaho is indebted to the plaintiffs, the complaint charges, for more than $380,000, including interest and attorneys' fees. The note is secured by a pledge of all outstanding shares of Ponderosa Inns, Inc., the complaint states. It also says Greater Idaho is in default under terms of the note and pledge agreement.

Plaintiffs ask the court to order Ponderosa Inns, Inc. to transfer back to Ponderosa Inns, Inc. the motel complex and pending such transaction to enjoin the defendants from selling or transferring property to any other person or corporation other than Ponderosa Inns, Inc.

In addition to the $380,000 and interest, allegedly owed by Ponderosa Inns, Inc., the firm asks $100,000 punitive damages.

Energy surplus market eyed

CBers vie with sermon

CARRBORO, N.C. (UPI) — The members of the Federal Communications Commission and a local TV repairman, the Rev. Rudolph Hardee, no longer has to compete with critics' hand radio operators when he delivers his sermons.

Since the congregation at Calvary Missionary Baptist Church donated a public address system for use in the pulpit several years ago, Hardee's Sunday morning oratory occasionally has been punctuated by the voices of local CB operators.

The sound system somehow picked up certain transmissions, eliciting chuckles from the congregation.

Hardee wrote the FCC about his problem and was told of measures to take. Last week a TV repairman installed some "capacitors and chokes," he said, and there was no problem Sunday.

"I'm for them," he said. "I feel like eventually they'll take over the local telephone service. Of course, there will have to be a lot more control over them than there is now."

Hardee said he and his congregation are taking a "wait and see" approach to determine whether the new electronic equipment cured the problem for good.

"We're waiting," he said. "I've got a very patient congregation anyway. They have to be patient to put up with me."

March proves authentic

BROOKFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — The re-enactment of the long march 200 years ago of Revolutionary War hero Col. Henry Knox is turning out to be too authentic.

When Knox made the trek from Albany, N.Y., to Cambridge, Mass., to deliver artillery to George Washington's ill-equipped army, the weather was bitterly cold.

Monday, the 33 stalwarts reenacting the trip as a Bicentennial observance faced the same type of biting cold.

"Everybody's talking about the cold, it's the most common subject," said Paul Chagnon, an art teacher at the West Brookfield elementary school where the marchers camped Sunday night.

After a large breakfast of steak and eggs, muffins, juice and steaming hot coffee, trailmaster Dick Raymond of Brimfield led the men outside the red brick school house.

"With the temperature at 14 degrees below zero and their breath turned to vapor, the men look silent satisfaction in the several layers of thermal underwear beneath their colonial style garb.

The horses snorted in discomfort as they were hitched to the caissons pulling the cannon.

"If Henry's ghost came back," he'd recognize the weather," said Chagnon.

The day warmed a bit as the march continued. It was five degrees above zero when police cars escorted the caravan through this central Massachusetts town.

They planned to march 15.2 miles to Leitchester Monday. This was the longest leg of the trek so far, which began in Albany. The group is scheduled to reach Cambridge Jan. 27, the day William Wilbur of Hubbardston, the machinist portraying Col. Knox, turns 77.

Like the original Knox marchers, the re-enactment team is relying upon local residents for food and shelter as they proceed, and have been welcomed at all stops.

A banquet was held Sunday night at the Salem Cross Inn here.

Metal detectors lead to arrest

KENNER, La. (UPI) — When California fugitive Vachel D. Solley tried to board a flight at New Orleans International airport, metal detectors buzzed a warning.

Inspectors opened his briefcases and found two metal, toy pistols had triggered the alarm. They also found bank bags from a restaurant that had been burglarized a short time earlier and $1,300.

Solley, 26, who attempted to board the flight to Morgan City, La., with his wife and four children, was jailed Sunday on two counts of burglary at the restaurant where he formerly worked. Deputies also found property in Solley's residence that allegedly had been taken from the car of the restaurant manager.

Solley is wanted in Antioch, Calif., for parole violation, and in Los Angeles for embezzlement and forgery, the FBI said.

Men only

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., says the treatment she received at the Tinseltown Club — a biennial awards dinner was an insult to all women and especially female athletes.

Mrs. Schroeder said she was with her husband, James, last Saturday night when six men calling themselves "the floor committee" told her she could not attend the all-male banquet.

Drug use studied

TEL AVIV (UPI) — More than 100,000 Israelis take illegal drugs, but only 1,600 of them are "hard" drug users, according to Attorney General Aharon Barak.

Barak said some 2,500 persons, 90 percent of them under 20, were cited for drug offenses in 1975. He said about 20 percent of the 200,000 prisoners in Israeli jails are drug addicts.

Barak cited the figures in a recent report to the Israeli cabinet. Israeli Radio carried excerpts from the report Monday.

The attorney general said there were inadequate facilities for treatment of drug addicts and urged greater coordination between government agencies to stem the drug problem in the country.

Arming Africa

ATLANTA (UPI) — Weapons sent to either side in the Angolan civil war will one day be pointed at American allies in South Africa, Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., said Monday.

Young, a black minister long active in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told the Atlanta press club many African nations have ordered the Soviets to leave after accepting arms from them in a civil war for independence.

Hong Kong marriages drop

HONG KONG (UPI) — The number of local marriages in 1975 dropped noticeably and officials Tuesday said it was partly due to inauspicious influences of the lunar calendar year.

Registrar General Walter Hume said there were 1,442 fewer marriages in 1975 compared to the record-breaking year of 1974.

The decrease, he said, may be partly due to the fact that "the current lunar year, which began on Feb. 11, 1975, is not an auspicious year for marriages among the Chinese because it is a 'blind year,' that is to say, a year in which there is no First Day of Spring (Lap Chun)."

Newman sued

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Gov. Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire is demanding $375,000 damages for libel from newsmen Kevin Cash, author of the book "Who's the Hell is William Leach?"

A suit filed in Hillsborough County Superior Court alleges Cash libeled the governor by stating he "took with him certain accounts" of a law book publishing firm in which he had worked when Thomson moved to New Hampshire to found his own publishing company.

Late bath proves embarrassing

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — Housewife Jane Dixon really took a late night bath because she could not get to sleep. Then it became an old story with the same old twist — it took six men to get her out.

Mrs. Dixon, 23, soaked and steamed and wriggled her toes in the bath and then thought she would get back to bed.

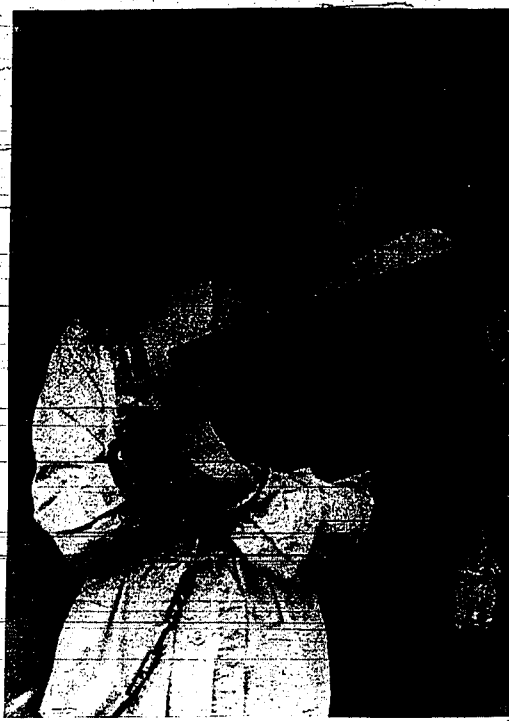

That was when she found her big toe was stuck in the cold water tub.

Mrs. Dixon wriggled and tugged and the water got colder and colder. Nothing happened.

At 1:30 a.m. two policemen and four firemen answered an emergency call for help and crammed into the bathroom to grapple with the big toe. Mrs. Dixon wrapped herself in a blanket to stave off the blushes and the cold.

More tugging and heaving again nothing happened.

The fire station officer Jim Hobbs spotted a shampoo bottle on the shelf and had a brainwave. He squirted the greasy liquid around the toe and gave a gentle tug. Out came the toe.

Awaits ruling

MANSON Cultist Sandra Good, 31, leaves the federal building in Sacramento, Calif., after being told by Federal Judge Thomas McBride that he would rule Thursday on whether to disqualify himself from her case. She is accused in a death threat case. (UPI)

Metal wire may aid clots

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — A "magic" metal wire inserted in a vein may someday reduce the danger of potentially deadly blood clots in the legs breaking free and lodging in the lungs, according to a Boston researcher.

The dangerous clots, such as former President Richard M. Nixon faced with phlebitis, may be trapped by a screen-like formation of wire crumpled inside the large vein that carries blood from the lower extremities to the heart, the specialist said.

Dr. Morris Simon of Beth Israel Hospital and Harvard Medical School said the nickel-titanium alloy wire can be programmed by extreme heat to form any special shape once inside the body.

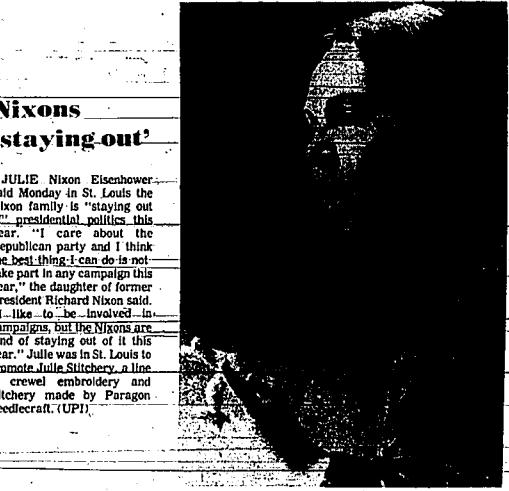

The metal is about 10 inches long and slightly thicker than a straight pin. When cooled, it is straight and easily inserted into the vein through a catheter.

When warmed by normal body temperatures, the wire changes to the programmed shape and catches on the sides of the vein with fishhooklike ends.

The only tests so far have been in dogs, and testing in humans will come later, Simon told the American Heart Association science writers' forum Monday.

The metal, called Nitinol, was discovered in 1962 by Navy researchers looking for a metal which could be launched into space by a small rocket and then unfold in orbit to form a giant antenna. Simon said he does not know if the Navy ever used it.

Anticoagulant drugs are normally used in treating most patients with blood clots. They cannot be used, however, when a patient is suffering from other internal injuries or recently has undergone surgery.

Nixons 'staying out'

JULIE Nixon Eisenhower said Monday in St. Louis the Nixon family is "staying out" of presidential politics this year.

"I care about the Republican party and I think the best thing I can do is not take part in any campaign this year," the daughter of former President Richard Nixon said.

"I like to be involved in campaigns, but the Nixons are kind of staying out of it this year," Julie was in St. Louis to promote Julie Sitchery, a line of crevel embroidery and stitchery made by Paragon Needlecraft. (UPI)

Half-brother backs Ford

COOKEVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — President Ford's half-brother says the national news media is trying to paint Ford as a stumblebum to hurt his political future.

Leslie "Bud" King, a Cookeville, Tenn., store owner, said Monday he's tired of being "Mr. Nice Guy" and he is going to let reporters know how he feels about criticism of Ford.

He told the Nashville Banner reports that the President is clumsy and reports that some of Ford's recent stumbles were due to an old football injury.

"I do the same thing. He's got a trick knee. He's got both knees," King, 52, said.

Ford and King had the same father but were reared separately — King in Riverport, Wyo., and Ford in Grand Rapids, Mich. Ford was born Leslie Lynch King, Jr., but his name was changed after his mother remarried.

King said he objected to a Harris poll released Friday showing 40 per cent of those questioned feel Ford lacks the intelligence and qualifications to be a first-rate president.

"It's a loaded question," he said. "What is a 'first-rate' president? What qualifies a man to be president?"

"Look at all the stuff that they've dug up on the Kennedys and the Roosevelts. They've dug up all the women that Kennedy slept with in the White House. They've dug up all the wiretapping by Roosevelt. Were they first-rate?"

King was also critical of Mrs. Ford's candor with the news media.

"Betty's a great gal. But it's not good for a First Lady to be that outspoken," he said.

Cancer rates compared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new analysis of U.S. cancer statistics shows black males have been afflicted with more cancer and are dying of it at higher rates than whites.

The biggest factor in the increasing death rates for blacks was lung cancer.

The figures showed cancer rates increased 36 per cent in black men between 1947 and 1969, while cancer in white males went up 42 per cent. The incidence of cancer in black and white women dropped 15 and 13 per cent during the same period.

There were even greater increases in death rates for black men rising 59 per cent to 217 per 100,000 between 1950 and 1973. Cancer deaths among white men went up 19 per cent to 173 per 100,000.

The "statistics," published Monday in the American Cancer Society journal "CA," also showed that cancer has been diagnosed earlier in whites than in blacks. Early diagnosis and treatment improves the patient's chances of surviving.

"Blacks are developing more cancers" and their prospects for diagnosis in a localized stage are poorer," the report said. "Survival rates are poorer and death rates are higher."

Lung cancer rates were particularly high in black men, jumping 233 per cent between 1947 and 1969 with deaths from the disease increasing 324 per cent between 1950 and 1973. Lung cancer increased 133 per cent in whites with death rates going up 165 per cent.

Cancer rates in black males were lower in 1947 than in whites, with 282 cases per 100,000 in blacks and 248 per 100,000 in whites. But in 1969, 301 cases were reported in the same population size for white males and 397 for blacks.

Congressional fighting over Ford plan looming

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional reaction to President Ford's State of the Union address shows there will be some battles when the Democratic majority in the House and Senate acts on his Republican program for a presidential election year.

Republicans generally applauded the speech, but Democrats dismissed it as "electronic rhetoric" signaling a retreat into the past. Congressional conservatives responded favorably while GOP liberals tempered their praise.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said, "If this country is to be saved from disaster, it will require presidents with the courage and foresight of Mr. Ford. His strong efforts to reduce the overburdening power of the federal government should be applauded by every taxpaying American."

But Rep. John Brademas, D-Ill., found the program "about as forward-looking as the one George III had for the colonies 200 years ago."

Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd said, "Ford's rhetoric is Republican, it fails to be realistic."

House Minority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. predicted the Democrats "will not stand for the quotas or cutbacks in programs that help the poor."

Speaker Carl Albert, in a message from the dancing of his nose with a tissue, said Ford's speech "was a typical Republican State of the Union message in an election year... not really anything new."

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott praised Ford's proposal to create jobs, for suggesting a plan to invest in stocks and for proposing a constitutional grant program.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., said he thought the President's speech was "upbeat" but failed to offer a substantive program.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., chairman of the tax-writing Ways & Means Committee, called Ford's proposals "fragmentary" and said, "We need something long range to meet the inflation threat and long range to meet the Social Security problem."

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., called Ford's address "noncommittal and evasive," and said, "A lot of it I liked. Some of it I didn't like. I thought the recommendations on revenue sharing and regulatory reform and the intelligence community were good. I thought his references to employment and the methods of treating minorities inadequate."

Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Appropriations Committee, was not happy about the recommendation for increasing Social Security taxes.

"I think people think their taxes are as high as they can be right now," McClellan said.

Ford message highlights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Highlights of President Ford's State of the Union message:

The Economy

"Last January most things were rapidly getting worse. This January most things are slowly but surely getting better... My first objective is to have sound economic growth without inflation."

Taxes

"By holding down the growth in federal spending, we can afford additional tax cuts and return to the people who pay taxes more decision-making power over their lives."

Welfare

"Including health care reforms, I propose to consolidate some 59 separate federal programs and provide flexible federal dollar grants to help states, cities and local agencies in such important areas as education, child nutrition and social services."

"I must recommend a three-tenths of one percent increase in both employer and employee Social Security taxes effective Jan. 1, 1977."

Health

"We cannot realistically afford federally dictated national health insurance providing full coverage for all 215 million Americans." But "I propose catastrophic health insurance" for coverage covered by Medicare."

Housing

"I will ask for additional housing assistance for 500,000 families. These programs will expand housing opportunities, spur construction and help to house moderate and low income families."

Energy

"Last month I signed a compromise national energy bill which... is part of my comprehensive energy independence program... I again urge the Congress to move ahead immediately on the remainder of my energy proposals to make America invulnerable to the foreign oil crisis."

Crime

He proposed construction of four new federal penal facilities; an increase in the number of U.S. marshals; additional federal agencies to help local authorities crack down on handguns; and additional steps against traffic in hard drugs.

Foreign Affairs

Declaring that the United States must continue to help its friends including those in Angola, Ford said: "I pledge to the American people policies which seek a secure, just, and peaceful world; a pledge to the Congress to work with you to that end."

Defense

"Our military forces are capable and ready; our military power is without equal. And I intend to keep that way." His forthcoming defense budget will show "an essential increase over last year."

Intelligence

"In the near future, I will take actions to reform and strengthen our intelligence community. I ask for your positive cooperation. It is time to go beyond sensationalism and ensure an effective, responsible, and responsive intelligence capability." He said the United States would be "hindered and hobbed" without intelligence capabilities.

ES budget ready

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford announced in his State of the Union speech that his budget he is sending Congress Wednesday comes to $39.2 billion.

It emphasizes reductions in federal spending, he said, and cuts in half the average amount that budgets have increased over the previous 10 fiscal years.

And looking to the future, the President said: "We can achieve a balanced budget by 1979 if we have the courage and wisdom to continue to reduce growth of federal spending."

Midpoint

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking-1 today completed only one-half its journey toward Mars, with scientists giving it a 50-50 chance to meet its target of a bi-centennial landing, despite a late start.

The robot space explorer was in "excellent condition" and should go into orbit around the red planet on June 19, reported scientists at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Although technical problems delayed its launch from Cape Canaveral last August for nine days, scientists estimated there was still an even chance they would be able to send its lander to a July 4 touchdown to search for life on the Martian surface.

Viking 1 reached the halfway point in time Monday, completing 152 days in space with 152 more to go to reach Martian orbit.

Solar unit funds OK'd

N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Department of Housing and Urban Development will grant $1 billion for the installation of solar units in 143 housing and apartments in various communities around the country.

In announcing the plan, HUD Secretary Cecil A. Hills said the installations would mark the first large-scale test of solar energy technology in housing.

Mrs. Hills made the announcement in Dallas at a meeting of the National Association of Home Builders.

Fifty-five builders, public agencies and universities were selected from a field of 250 applicants to participate in the demonstration by putting solar units into dwellings they own or are constructing.

Some solar units will provide home heating, only some hot water, only, and some a combination of the two. Only five installations will provide heating, cooling and hot water, according to HUD.

CIA arms values low

N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency has systematically undervalued, in some cases by half, the military equipment supplied to warring factions in Angola, according to evidence obtained by the House Select Committee on Intelligence.

The effect of the accounting procedure, valuing 45 caliber automatic pistols as low as $5 and 30 caliber semi-automatic carbines at $7.55, would be to understate the value of American aid.

The final draft of the House committee's report on the intelligence community concludes that the actual investment in the Angolan conflict was greater than the $31 million the Ford Administration has tallied Congress. It has spent since January 1975.

The committee report was to be presented to members today for their approval after a year-long investigation, reflects the committee's interest in the cost of gathering intelligence, accountability for the funds that are spent, the effectiveness of American agencies in predicting international crises and the risks involved in covert operations.

More doctors set to spread walkout

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Doctors north and south of the Los Angeles area appear to be joining the 20-day-old physicians strike spreading the walkout to at least three counties.

The leader of a medical group warned the strike could spread to northern California if a solution to the malpractice crisis is not found soon.

Talks continued between strike leaders and representatives of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Brown joined the negotiations personally during the weekend and the talks reportedly continued Monday at an unidentified hotel near the airport.

Striking doctors have said they will expand the strike until the state government puts a lid on the steadily rising price of malpractice insurance, which slat up 327 percent in Southern California Jan. 1, setting off the walkout. Legislators countered that it may take months to pass a law

Greek coup given nod

N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — Officials of the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency may have intentionally permitted Greek militants to engineer a coup against Archbishop Makarios in Cyprus, according to a report prepared by the state of the House Select Committee on Intelligence.

The two-volume report was to be considered by the committee in open session today.

The staff report traced the events leading up to the coup in Cyprus in July, 1974.

Interstate phone rate hike wins OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has been given permission to raise its rates for interstate calls by $25 million, the Federal Communications Commission said.

The FCC approval announced Tuesday allows an overall rate-of-return for AT&T of 9.5 percent, compared to the current 8.74 percent. The $255 million increase, which would mean an initial increase granted last spring.

AT&T now must file new rates based on the FCC decision. Until that is done, it cannot be determined specifically how the ruling will affect customers' bills.

"While we are pleased with this aspect of the commission's action," a company spokesman said, "it falls short of what we believe is required both to provide high quality service and to raise the necessary capital on the best possible terms in today's economic climate."

Last January, AT&T had requested an increase of $17 million but the FCC found that additional proceedings were necessary.

In the proceedings, Bell Telephone contended that economic changes warranted an increase even greater than

How your home uses energy

If your family is typical, the energy consumption pattern in your home is something like this:

- Heating and cooling, more than half of all energy used.
- Water heating, 17 percent.
- Uses related to food, 13 percent.
- Lighting, only 4 percent.
- Other uses, about 13 percent.

Exact percentages will vary according to size and location of home, number of persons and household habits, but the general pattern of use should give you an indication of where potential energy savings are greatest.

If you reduce lighting by one fourth, you'll reduce home energy consumption by only one percent. A one-fourth reduction in heating energy would reduce consumption by more than 13 percent, or 13 TIMES AS MUCH.

That's why we emphasize insulation, weather stripping and caulking. Turning off a light saves a little energy. Insulating the attic saves a lot.

For tips on how you can save energy, call one of Idaho Power's Energy Advisers.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
We have what we hope is not a real problem. Our granddaughter, before she was a year old, at nap time liked putting an object under her leg and moving as in the sex net. She is diaper and potty trained, but she continues this. She is two years old now.
Her parents are worried, and are too embarrassed to take her to a doctor. Do the parents need guidance in dealing with this situation? Will she pass this on to a less intelligent child?
If she gets sleep in a night and does this — Mrs. H.B.
Infants begin discovering their genitals at about one year, and it is not unusual for such actions to take place. However, the parents must be certain that the behavior does not represent an irritation in the vaginal or rectal area. This is often the case in these situations, and her behavior could be her method of relieving the itching. Because of this possibility, she should be seen by her doctor.
Pinworms or a mild genital irritation could be a cause. Bubble baths can be a factor in such genital irritation, which is one reason I often advise parents against the use of these preparations.
Otherwise, the attention, best ignored, although it can be greatly discouraged by offering her a toy or some other diversion at such times. Scolding and bringing direct attention to the activity may tend to make matters worse.
I suspect it is something that will pass as she develops other interests. Since it occurs at nap time, it might also be worthwhile to check into her sleep needs. She may not be getting enough rest.
Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Can diverticulosis cause rectal pain? My mother suffers from this, and her doctor says it may be related to her diet. She has diverticulosis. Please send me your booklet, "Don't Let Diverticulosis Throw You..." for which I am sending 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope. — L. D. F.
Diverticulosis can be an indirect cause of rectal disturbances. Anything that interferes with the basic function of the lower digestive tract can lead to this. In diverticulosis, the problem lies in the formation of tiny out-pouchings from the inner wall of the bowels along that tract.
Your mother may have developed poor bowel habits aid, because of this, upset the bowel function. This could lead to rectal problems, especially if lower bowel spasms occur. Dietary adjustments are sometimes in order to provide a softer stool, which can relieve the situation. There is a more detailed discussion of this along with specific diet recommendations in my diverticulosis booklet.
Dear Dr. Thosteson:
My problem is bad breath. I am 26 and have had this since I was 13. Five years ago I had my tonsils and adenoids removed and they were infected. The crevices were filled with a white, malodorous matter. I thought this would end my problem, but it didn't.
My teeth and slouges are good, and I brush carefully and often. When I brush off my teeth with a cloth, the odor is strong. I have been told I have post-nasal drip and a deviated septum. I've looked at all the probable causes that you tell people about, and I need some advice because I'm pretty disgusted. — T. S.
Has your deviated septum been suggested as a possible cause? This can cause a person to be a mouth breather. This can lead to a "drying out" of mouth membranes with a resulting stagnation of various microorganisms. Mouth breathers often report their breath as worse in the morning after rising.
There is a simple test you can use to find out whether your mouth odors originate in your mouth or not. Have someone smell your breath as you breathe through your nose with your lips closed. Next have the same person smell as you breathe through your mouth, pinching your nostrils shut with your fingers.
If the odor is stronger when you breathe through your nose, you can suspect your trouble is centered in the respiratory system. If it is stronger when you breathe through your mouth, the mouth is the probable site of the problem.
I suggest you investigate the septum possibility. Then try to correct your method of breathing if you have been mouth breathing all these years. If your septum is seriously bent you may require surgery to correct it.
"Bad Breath Can Be Corrected" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet explaining the causes and cure of bad breath. For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, nearly 17, and I'm an honor student. I have always had a good relationship with my parents—until now.

About three months ago I met the most wonderful guy in the world. I'll call him Sammy. It was love at first sight! Sammy is really 30, but we told my parents he is 20 because if they knew how old he was, they wouldn't let me go with him. Sammy is also divorced and has a 3-year-old son who lives with his ex-wife. We didn't tell my parents about the little boy. We just told them that Sammy was divorced. Sammy wants to marry me, but we don't plan on getting married until I am finished with school.

The problem is my father. He has a very suspicious mind. He says I can't see Sammy again until Sammy produces legal evidence of his divorce.

Abby, I trust Sammy, but I'm afraid if I ask him to show my father proof of his divorce, Sammy will be so hurt and insulted at having been called a liar he will quit seeing me.

Don't you think my father is being unreasonable?

I love Sammy so much, I can't live without him. Please help me.

SAMMY'S GIRL

Her father wants proof

DEAR GIRL: Sorry, I'm inclined to go along with your father. You and Sammy are already withholding the facts about Sammy's real age and his son, which is deceitful. If Sammy doesn't want to bring all the facts out in the open, he's less than "wonderful." Be wise. Listen to your father.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, age 64. Last year I met a man my age whose wife had died the year before. We are in love. He would be an ideal mate except for one thing: He is very egotistical and likes to see how he registers with other women (waitresses, especially). In other words, he tries to make me jealous.

This is a small town and there are no men around with whom I can make him jealous, so I am unable to get even. Please tell me how to handle this successfully.

DEAR HURT: Don't try to fight fire with fire unless you want your traces to go up in smoke.

Tell him frankly that you are hurt and jealous when he flirts with other women. (He'll be flattered.) If he doesn't cut out the flirting after that, you'll know he doesn't care how you feel.

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I had a son out of wedlock. We talked of marriage, but it never came about.

I named my son after his father (first, middle and last name) with his approval.

I would like to know if it is illegal or immoral to name an out-of-wedlock child after his father.

DEAR CONFUSED: It is not illegal. But if your father has a legitimate son named after him, two sons with identical names could create embarrassment and confusion. And to intentionally create such a situation, when it could have been avoided, I think is morally wrong.

DEAR ABBY: About that bride who didn't want any fat bridesmaids to ruin the appearance of her wedding: I hope her fat friends will remember her with "skinny" wedding gifts!

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

The most important part of slam bidding should take place below the game level. Once you go past game you should know that you have the ammunition or point count to warrant a slam and that you are going to bid a slam if you determine that the defenders aren't going to take the first two tricks against you.

The After North's four-spade bid South expects to have no trouble making a slam if the defense doesn't start off by taking two diamond tricks against him. How can he find out if his partner can come to his rescue in that suit?

Blackwood will help him if North holds king-small or a singleton there.

South does have an excellent, simple bid at his disposal. He bids five spades! This tells North to bid six if he can handle the second diamond lead. North can't do that so he passes and everything is sweetness and light.

Ask the Jacobys

A Georgia reader says that he was severely criticized for responding two spades to his partner's one-heart bid. His hand was:

▲ A K 8 3 2 ♠ ▲ A K x x x

We would not criticize him severely for that two-spade bid, but we would only respond one spade. We only have 14 high-card points and our singleton is in partner's suit.

Blaine sees pay double

By GORDON JUDD
Times-News writer

Part of a series
HAILLEY Total income in Blaine County more than doubled in the eight-year period from 1965 to 1972, according to a recent study.

Only one other county in Idaho (Madison) had a larger growth of local payrolls for the same period.

These findings were reported by L. Arthur Hollings, professor of economics at the College of Idaho, Caldwell. In his recently published "Personal Income in Idaho Counties, 1965-1972," Blaine farm incomes averaged more than 25 percent during the period, the most in the state.

They charge Randy Shunk and his wife, Lucille Shunk, with operating a vehicle in a reckless manner at the time of the accident and the highway district "not being diligent in failing to remove the stop sign after it had been torn down."

The vehicle in which the Jensens were traveling drove onto a through highway on which Shunk was traveling west at the intersection. The stop sign, which would have brought the Jensen vehicle to a stop had been removed.

The plaintiffs ask $100,000 each for general damages and $50,000 punitive damages. They also ask damages to cover medical costs of about $4,000 and loss of wages due to injuries.

Blaine's income growth was due to a combination of factors, including the construction of new homes and the growth of the service industries.

The study discloses that only two types of income decreased during the period. Mining, which had been reported in 1965 as representing $675,000, dropped off dramatically from a high of $456,000 in 1969 to $24,000 and dipped even further in the following two years to close at only $30,000 in 1972.

Transportation incomes, primarily railroad pay checks, dropped dramatically during the period, presumably due to discontinuance of passenger service by Union Pacific R. R. following the emergence of the railroads.

Government, as compared to recreation or transient growth can be seen not only in the study's reference to the contract construction and real estate income rises but also in salaries paid for county government and public school teachers. These incomes doubled.

U of I chief sees economic conflict

BY LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — The next international conflict will be economic, not military, the University of Idaho president predicted here Monday night.

Addressing the Castalford Men's annual banquet, Dr. Ernest W. Hartung predicted that food will become an arsenal in such conflicts and U.S. agricultural production can be one of the country's strongest defenses.

"We will be under pressure to extend our agricultural production, not only for humanitarian reasons but to maintain the strength of the U.S.," Dr. Hartung said. He is a young, subliminal, from his audience's past, work with the Idaho-Tennessee project of obtaining citizen input toward future planning for development within the state.

Highlight of the banquet, attended by about 300 persons, was the presentation of the fourth annual distinguished service award to Henry R. Senten, Idaho Business Club vice president, presented the award, calling Senten "not only a builder of homes and schools, but of dedication and love." Senten came to the Twin Falls tract in 1907 and helped build many of the area schools. He is a retired farmer.

Dr. Hartung outlined the "four principal wealth producers in Idaho," as agriculture, tourism, forestry and mining, undergirded by the availability of both water and power.

He said the economic outlook is "quite bright" in all these areas, but predicted conflicting interests of the four levels of Idaho's economy "are already creating problems, which are not insurmountable, but need concentrated attention."

Agriculture, and its related processing and distributing businesses, accounts for some 60 per cent of Idaho's total wealth, he said. Dr. Hartung sees an increase in tourism, with current conservation measures in petroleum products forestalling any immediate gas shortage.

Recreation and tourism, agriculture and power interests all are competing for the same water, he said.

Dr. Hartung said the White Cloud issue should be resolved for some hard decisions, because the present solution of putting the area in a national recreation area while generally agreeable, was a solution by default.

Master planning is not the ultimate solution, "but planning can help and provides the real hope for Idaho's future."

Frank Wells, retiring president, introduced 1976 club officers. They include Don Kramer, president; Clinton Quigley, vice president; Jim Wells, secretary-treasurer, and Earl Heidel, usher.

The men's club serves as a combined chamber of commerce, service club and is the major community organization in Castleford.

CSI considers fee increase

By LINDA LEE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho is making a study of possible fee increases to students, according to President James J. Taylor.

Taylor told college trustees Monday that he would present recommendations at the February board meeting for increases in the food service and campus dormitory fees.

He could not say for sure how large the increase would be or whether there would be an increase at all, but said it was being considered.

In addition, Taylor said, a larger share of the student activity fee may be set aside for women's athletic programs at the school. At this time he said $100,000 of the student activity fee is set aside for women's athletics.

Any increases in student fees would become effective at the time of the 1976 fall enrollment, Taylor said.

Taylor said he had not had a final enrollment figure for the spring semester, but he said it looks like a considerable increase over the fall. He said the enrollment of full-time academic students appears to be up to 1,400 students, as compared with 1,200 students in the fall.

He also said the full-time vocational enrollment is up to 463, compared with 425 in the fall.

"Enrollment has not been completed yet," Taylor said, "and the figures are continuing to rise."

Taylor also expressed concern that the Idaho attorney general would determine that in the future the state would be liable for the professional staff at CSI could not be paid out of state sales tax.

"Historically, the legislature has appropriated to the state board of education a share of the state sales taxes which have been disposed of as the public schools and community colleges to pay Social Security for professional staff," Taylor said.

In addition, Taylor said the legislature passed a law a year ago, effective July 1, 1975, preventing CSI from paying the Social Security of non-professional staff out of the college tax.

base money. If the attorney general does decide against using sales taxes for this purpose, CSI will have to ask the legislature for additional funds amounting to $102,000 to pay all CSI employee Social Security.

Also Taylor expressed concern that the legislature would go into a late session debating the public employe negotiation law and the Equal Rights Amendments, which would in turn delay the time at which CSI would receive its appropriation from the state.

Other board business included a report of the audit by Thomas Schabot of the accounting firm of Talbot and Schabot-Bird.

Schabot said the only concern in the audit report was the evaluation of fixed assets. Earl Black, CSI business manager, said the inventory of movable equipment would be complete for next year's audit.

Otherwise, Schabot said, the financial records have been maintained properly. He is doing a better job of living within its budget. The board, Dec. and Mr. Black said he commented.

Dr. Taylor reported he met with the state electrical code interpreters Monday and the electrical overhead problems with the new vocational-technical building were resolved.

Taylor now expected the completion date for the building has been moved up a month to early June.

The resignation of Dr. Taylor's longtime secretary was reported to the board. Louise Peterson, who served as secretary for 11 years, her resignation will be effective Feb. 1. Nancy Almon has already been hired to replace Mrs. Peterson and is being trained by her.

United-Idaho scholarships of $250 each were awarded to Bryant Larson and Alan Lohmeier. Honorary James Matthew Devine scholarships to Sheri Lou Yancy and Cheryl Ann Hanky were increased by $50 each. A Centex vocational scholarship was returned to Centex because the student awarded the scholarship did not attend school.

Talkington breaks tradition

TWIN FALLS — There's no such thing as a free lunch, especially when your salary has just been doubled, according to Chris Talkington, new Twin Falls City councilman.

Talkington broke tradition Monday by announcing he would pay his own meal ticket at weekly City Council luncheons.

The seven council members, the city manager and the city attorney gather at a local restaurant each Monday morning for informal discussions of issues. In the past, the food bill has been paid from specially budgeted city funds.

"However, Talkington said Monday he would pay his own way because 'the salary we're getting now is more than adequate for the public service that we're performing. You have to draw the line someplace.'"

Council members last September voted themselves a raise to $300 per month from $150. The pay hikes took effect this month.

Talkington asked City Manager Jeff Miller to keep track of his luncheon bills so he could pay them by the month.

Half Blaine applicants flunk Gem driving test

HAILLEY — Drivers in Blaine County appear to have a tough time passing the Idaho driver's test.

Blaine County Deputy Sheriff Billie Hulder says only about 50 percent of the people taking the driving test pass the exam each day.

Mrs. Hulder said even more people flunk the test if they haven't read the instruction booklet. Blaine County drivers apparently flunk the Idaho Driving Test more often than drivers in other counties.

Twin Falls County's District 15 examiners, Rita Martin says "at least 75 percent of the people who take the driver's test here, pass the test."

Cassia County examiner John Holbrook estimates that 80 percent of the people she tests pass the exam.

The written test for getting an Idaho driver's license was updated three years ago and now is much more difficult than the old test, according to Blaine County Deputy Hulder.

Sierra forecloses on Greater Idaho

Sierra claimed the following debts past due, Powder Mountain Ski Corporation, $345,222; Transnational Realty Corporation, $134,169; North Pacific Construction Company, $144,546; Builders Diversified Services, Inc., $67,149; and a personal debt by Anglin, for $18,029.

Most of the debts Sierra listed just represent December, 1975, installments to be paid on the corporations' promissory notes to Sierra.

Sierra said it had agreed with the management of Dalhar to not demand payments on the total debts and to not foreclose on the property securing each debt. Instead, "Sierra would only seek the payments then past due, and foreclose only against the stock of Greater Idaho Corporation," securing said guarantee by Dalhar.

Sierra also stated that the five individuals who own Dalhar, "are in various combinations the principal stockholders and officers of Greater Idaho."

The suit apparently leaves open the possibility of Sierra later foreclosing on the mortgages on property, which secure the promissory notes from the corporations to Sierra. This might happen if other installments on the promissory notes were not paid.

Insurance departments in Wyoming and Utah are largely questioning the stated value of the mortgages on property securing the promissory notes, "Sierra holds" the insurance departments are questioning Sierra's solvency and are considering denial of permits to Sierra to develop new business in their states.

Fred Frazier, Sierra's president, was not available for comment this morning.

Neither Anglin, vice president of Greater Idaho, nor Howe, another officer of the corporation, were available for comment. James Kennedy, Twin Falls, who Anglin identified as his attorney, refused comment.

Sierra claimed the following debts past due, Powder Mountain Ski Corporation, $345,222; Transnational Realty Corporation, $134,169; North Pacific Construction Company, $144,546; Builders Diversified Services, Inc., $67,149; and a personal debt by Anglin, for $18,029.

Fish and Game won't buy Silver Creek

SUN VALLEY — A national conservation group has decided not to let the Idaho Fish and Game Department become financially involved in the purchase of one of Idaho's prime fly-fishing streams.

The Nature Conservancy, a large private conservation group, has announced that it will attempt to purchase 479 acres of Silver Creek in southern Blaine County without financial aid from the fish and game.

The latest arrangement appears to leave the Silver Creek land in the hands of the conservation group, not the Idaho Fish and Game.

Earlier, the fish and game planned to work with the Nature Conservancy to purchase the 479 acres from the Sun Valley Company.

Protests from a number of Piceacho ranchers, however, apparently changed the Nature Conservancy's mind about allowing the fish and game to become involved in the sale.

The Nature Conservancy now will try to raise an estimated $600,000 cash to purchase the 479 acres of fishing stream and prime agricultural land.

The latest plan to squeeze the fish and game out of the Silver Creek purchase has been caused by the contention among ranchers, as well as fly fishermen, that fish and game mismanaged other sections of department-owned land.

But Jack Hemingway-Ketchum, a state F and G commissioner, denied any clash between his department and the Nature Conservancy.

"A lot of people were trying to create such a situation," he said. "The conservancy felt that this particular area was of such vital importance that it should be taken."

Peter Seligmann, conservancy biologist, said, "Our policy will be the preservation of the outstanding natural values of Silver Creek with an emphasis on its famous fishery."

"We are also looking into the compatibility of agriculture with the protection of those natural values."

Many Piceacho ranchers had contended much of the land involved in the sale could be farmed.

The portion of Silver Creek for sale stretches from Kilpatrick Bridge about four miles west of Piceacho to a stream nearly 1.5 miles including portions of Loring and Stacker Creeks.

The once farmed stream, which is open to fly fishing only, has been preserved in the past as one of the finest natural fisheries in the United States.

"It will be our policy to permit the traditional public access for the purpose of fishing under the regulations that have been established for this stretch of the creek by the fish and game department (fly fishing only)."

A resident naturalist will make the land and do ecological research, according to Seligmann.

Management details still have to be worked out by a special committee, according to conservancy spokesmen. Spencer Beebe, Portland conservancy spokesman, said the group is considering asking world renowned fly fisherman Ernest Schwiebert, along with Hemingway, Greentley and some conservancy officials, to compose the management team.

The conservancy has acquired some 8,000 acres of land in over 1,400 separate projects, according to Henry Little, regional director.

Little said, "By purchasing Silver Creek, private citizens will succeed in protecting a magnificent portion of our natural heritage for the enjoyment of present and future generations."

Fish and Game Director Joseph Greentley did not discount the possibility of fish and game becoming involved later in raising monies for the stream.

He said the department had about $125,000 in its budget for purchases like Silver Creek. The commissioners have not approved that money for any purchase, he said, but added fish and game would watch the fund-raising effort closely and may become involved if the money can't be raised.

"Regardless of who does it, we would like to see that portion of the stream protected," Greentley said.

New US beef standards endorsed by Gem cowman

BOISE—New Department of Agriculture meat grading standards, which go into effect Feb. 23, mean more beef of high quality in the meat counters, according to David Latta, former president of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association.

The new grading system will mean more top quality meat in the grocery grade which has benefited to the highly marbled beef which comes from many months of heavy feeding of grain in the feedlots.

A good portion of this fat is trimmed away by the butcher while that left in the meat is necessary for marbling which adds additional tenderness, flavor and juiciness for the human taste. Both add to the cost of choice and prime grades because of the higher cost of grain and length of time the animals must remain in the feedlots.

The new grading system will permit the industry to move cattle into the market channels before this heavy fat accumulates, but yet requires a degree of marbling within the meat for tenderness.

Housewives at the meat market have become accustomed to purchasing prime and choice beef. However, the new grading system will not only provide more high quality choice beef but many other good cuts of the market place. "The housewife will have a wider selection to choose from and at possibly a lesser cost."

"Yield" grading, required under the new program, pertains strictly to the amount of fat on the carcass and has nothing to do with retail cuts except to provide the housewife with high quality, less fat beef," said Latta.

Changes called helpful

"More desirable, more economical beef for consumers will be the ultimate result of the changes," said Gordon Van Vleet, ANCA president. "We are very pleased to see that USDA is now going ahead with the revisions, which will benefit the public as well as cattlemen."

The revised standards are designed to eliminate the waste involved in production of excess fat. This means the waste of cattlemen's dollars to put the fat on as well as meat industry waste involved in cutting it off before the beef goes to the consuming public.

"When the standards are put into effect, cattlemen will be able to reduce grain feeding time by 10 to 20 days, with savings of as much as $15 to $25 per animal. Translated into costs at the consumer level, the feeding savings alone could be at least 3 to 5 cents per pound."

New rules listed

SAN FRANCISCO—The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced interim regulations for the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children (WIC).

The regulations implement provisions of recent legislation (Public Law 94-202) which authorizes the WIC program to continue through September, 1978, at a level of $26 million each fiscal year.

The WIC program is administered by USDA's Food and Nutrition Service. It makes cash grants to state health departments or recognized Indian tribes, bands, or groups so that specified supplemental foods are made available to pregnant or nursing women and to children through participating local agencies which provide health care.

To be eligible for the WIC program, recipients must live within the approved project area, be eligible for free or reduced price health care, and be determined by competent professionals to be a nutritional risk because of inadequate nutrition.

Local agencies may use various types of delivery systems, including buying and distributing foods, providing home delivery of foods, or providing vouchers which individuals redeem for specified foods at participating stores.

The new regulations include the following program changes:— Allowable administrative expenses increase from 10 to 20 per cent of the program funds. — Prior to receiving funds, state agencies must indicate how they intend to spend administrative funds, including plans for providing nutrition education service.

Overheard talk bares corruption

(Editors note: This is the second in a series of five articles on corruption in the U.S. grain exporting industry. This story deals with what has already been proven.)

By ROYAL BRIGHTBILL, NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—

A multimillion dollar corruption and fraud within the grain export grain industry, still the subject of intensive federal investigations, might never have been exposed but for an accidentally overheard conversation.

"We had no idea of the magnitude of this thing," said U.S. Attorney Gerald J. Gallinghouse. "We were looking for petty thefts."

Gallinghouse, who heads the Louisiana investigation, said on one occasion two FBI agents spent two hours on their bellies in a stakeout, trying to catch petty thieves.

"We were looking for pilferage. We were looking for snacks of grain. We had no idea they were taking the whole barrel."

The break came by accident aboard the grain ship Achilles in March, 1974, at the Port of New Orleans, which ships more grain than any port in the world. A marine surveyor told investigators his overheard and captain told a hearing agent that a ship inspector had demanded money in exchange for a certificate to clear the ship for loading.

The report led to a five-month grand jury investigation and resulted in the first 10 indictments which included charges of bribery against six ship inspectors licensed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The inspectors subsequently pleaded no contest and in hopes of lighter sentences, offered information on a pervasive pattern of bribery falsification of documents and wholesale grain thefts.

So far the investigation at Louisiana's eight export elevators has resulted in 52 indictments against 38 individuals and four companies and the winning of 47 convictions.

In the largest series of indictments, the plant Bunge Corporation of New York and 13 employees were charged with loading less grain on slips than was purchased.

The corporation pleaded no contest and pledged to police itself.

Eleven of the individuals were either convicted or pleaded guilty or no contest and were sentenced. The highest-ranking Bunge employee, vice president Clayton E. Wilcox, 48, of Chicago, pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor in mid-December. Assistant U.S. Attorney Cornelius R. Heusel of New Orleans said felony counts against Wilcox were dropped in return for his cooperation in the continuing investigation of higher Bunge officials.

Another company indicted, along with its owners, was Le Trac Land, Inc., a fictitious corporation formed by three men for the avowed purpose of growing and selling soybeans.

Their leased 200 acres of land not never planted a seed. Falsified documents, however, showed, fictitious costs for planting, growing and harvesting, storage at a country elevator and transportation to an export elevator in New Orleans.

An official grain inspector at the elevator, in collaboration with the conspirators, prepared false tickets to show receipt, grading, weight and storage of the non-existent soybeans.

The tickets were wired to a grain company in Illinois which paid more than $20,000 for fictitious soybeans.

Last March 25, a federal grand jury in Houston returned the only Texas indictments. Five inspectors, all employees of Houston Merchants Exchange, were charged with accepting bribes totaling $5,350 from 1970 to 1974.

Victor Diaz, a captain of grain ships owned by the Maritime Overseas Corp. of New York, testified he bribed the inspectors to certify his slips were clean and free of insects without actually inspecting the holds of the ships.

Heusel, who is chief of the criminal division of the U.S. Attorney's office, said, "Unless some similar other break occurs, this thing could just be rolling along."

Idahoan invents new spud storage handling system

ABERDEEN—Lynn Johnson, the inventor of a low-damage potato harvester, has developed a new overhead potato storage handling system.

He says the advantages of the system include fast handling, less bruise damage, better cleaning and relatively low cost.

"Because the system is faster, fewer trucks are required for hauling," Johnson said. "The grower can use the same truck bed for potatoes as he uses for livestock, beans and other hauling."

Johnson will discuss the system's capabilities at several sessions of the Idaho Potato School. Sessions will be held in Idaho Falls, Jan. 25-27; Blackfoot, Jan. 27-29; Burley, Jan. 28-30; and Boise, Jan. 29-30.

The Potato School is sponsored by the University of Idaho Cooperative Extension Service with the support of the Idaho Potato Commission and allied potato industry groups.

A research professor at the Aberdeen Research and Extension Center of the University of Idaho College of Agriculture, Johnson's goal since 1968 has been mechanization of potato harvesting and handling to reduce damage to the crop.

The agricultural engineer designed and perfected for the university a low-damage potato harvester.

During a leave of absence from his university research, Johnson collaborated with Leland Clinger, American Falls, in developing an overhead potato storage filling system. The handling system was tested in the 1975 harvest and it proved to be "highly successful," Johnson said.

In the handling system designed by Johnson, loaded trucks do not enter the storage structure. Instead, potatoes are unloaded by side and are fed onto a covered conveyor chain. Loose soil is removed as the chain vibrates. The trash picking crew removes debris while the potatoes move toward a belt which will carry them up an incline to the top of the storage facility.

Inside the storage area, two belts travel the length of the storage facility. The system is engineered to fill storage to a uniform depth. Because no potato falls further than six to eight feet, bruising damage is reduced.

During the 1975 harvest trials, beet harvesting on Clinger's farm commenced at the same time potatoes were to be harvested. Dump bed trucks, sometimes carried alternate loads of beets and potatoes.

"I've long felt there should be a better way to haul potatoes than the 'jigger bottom' trucks," Johnson said. "I designed my system to accept either dump or belt bottom trucks. The dump bed trucks to be used require no boards, and this will decrease lost truck time in the field."

In this talk at the potato school, Johnson also will report results of tests completed with his low-damage potato harvester. In field trials, the harvester was compared to four different standard harvesters.

Seminar scheduled

MOSCOW—A management seminar, geared to the needs of executives who manage large farms and ranches in Idaho, will be conducted Feb. 4 and 5 at the University of Idaho.

G. Ray Frigate, extension farm management specialist at the University of Idaho, said a 12-member instructional staff will lead discussions about farm and ranch management strategies.

"Advance registrations for the seminar must be made promptly," Frigate said. "Every person who is interested in attending should contact one of the extension agricultural specialists."

8 arrested

PULLMAN, Wash.—(UPI)—Washington State University campus police arrested eight Idaho students who were riding hogs in the school's swineyard.

School officials said one of the hogs was absorbed by her litter, destroying a scientific experiment at the WSU's school of agriculture.

No charges have been leveled and officials said it was not known what the monetary loss of the experiment totaled.

John Walker named tops in Track and Field

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — New Zealand's John Walker, who set a 3:48.4 world record mile last year in Goteborg, Sweden, Monday was named 1975's top track and field athlete by Track & Field News.

The 24-year-old Walker's time, set Aug. 12, bettered the existing world mark by 1.6 seconds.

Walker, who also ran the second fastest 1,500 meters ever, 3:32.4, edged professional shot putter Brian Oldfield, 194 to 180, in the voting conducted among an international panel of track experts.

Ranking the top five were hammer thrower Karl-Hans Riehm of West Germany; high hurdler Guy Drot of France; and decathlon performer Bruce Jenner of the United States.

California makes move to keep Giants home

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The state Senate Local Government Committee Monday approved a bill designed to prevent the proposed sale of the San Francisco Giants baseball team to Toronto.

The measure, sent to the floor of the Senate, would specifically prevent persons from breaking contracts with local governments. Under existing law, legal contracts are binding, but there is no express prohibition from breaking them.

Sen. Milton Marks said it was "terrible" that National League owners could vote to pull the team out even though the Giants' contract with the City and County of San Francisco to play at Candlestick Park runs until 1995.

Stram Saints coach?

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The New Orleans Saints scheduled a news conference for Tuesday to formally announce the selection of Hank Stram as their new head coach.

Although team spokesman Larry Liddell refused to flatly say Stram had been signed, he said, "Our new coach will be here, and it's not a very well kept secret who that is."

Liddell said Saints owner John Mecom Jr., executive vice president Richard F. Gordon Jr. and administrative vice president Harry Holmes also would be on hand for the 2:30 p.m. announcement.

Squires want Burden

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The Virginia Squires hope to complete a trade this week for their unhappy rookie sensation, Mickey Burden, a spokesman for the American Basketball Association team said Monday.

Burden, whose average tumbled from over 30 to less than 23 points a game in the arrival of coach Bill Musselman in November, says he does not want to play for Musselman.

Musselman says if that is the way Burden feels, he does not want him.

"By mutual agreement, the 6-2 sharpshooting Burden has not played since Jan. 7."

"I was scoring well and my defense was improving and then all of a sudden I was on the bench," Burden said of his change of status under Musselman.

"I've had my fill with the Squires," he said. "I'm not going to play for him again."

"We are working on a deal and expect to hear something this week," said Squires' spokesman Henry "Doc" Caliri. "We're trying to make a deal for him."

Terry Metcalf arrested

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Terry Metcalf, star running back of the St. Louis Cardinals, was arrested Monday for allegedly saying he would use the firecrackers in his luggage to blow up the plane that was to take him to New Orleans and the Pro Bowl.

Metcalf was taken from the airport to the St. Louis County jail prisoner intake center, where he was booked, fingerprinted and photographed. He was released pending applications for warrants.

He later boarded another flight to New Orleans. Eight of his teammates, including quarterback Jim Hart, had left on the original Delta Airlines flight for the post-season game.

Authorities at Lambert Field said two women employees of Wells Fargo Security Guard Services found a package of firecrackers in Metcalf's handbag, which had been examined as he went through a security gate. The two said they did not recognize Metcalf and he refused to identify himself.

The women, Maggie Salt and Sherry Feltone, said Metcalf threatened to blow up an airplane. They then called airport police.

Metcalf, 24, denied he made a threat. He said he asked, "Oh, I'm going to blow up an airplane with these firecrackers?"

Steelers receive hero's welcome

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The fans stood on truck beds along the Penn Lincoln Parkway, hung out skyscraper windows, clung to traffic signal poles, perched on shoulders, waved from overpasses.

For 15 miles they stretched, from Greater Pittsburgh International Airport to downtown, walling in freezing temperatures to arise and thank the Pittsburgh Steelers for bringing home another Super Bowl title.

One sign, held aloft by one of the clusters of fans along the parkway, said it all: "So Much Better the Second Time Around."

The victory, making the Steelers the third team to win back-to-back Super Bowls, seemed sweeter, and the throngs who greeted the team generally were considered more euphoric and less volatile than last year's.

"And the hope that the Steelers would become as legendary as the old Green Bay Packers colored the whole scene."

"Twice is not enough," said many signs. "21 31!" said another. Still another: "Dynasty will beat anyone."

The celebration began at an airport freight terminal, where more than a thousand fans and the gold-and-black uniformed Quaker Valley High School Band had waited close to two hours for two chartered planes that brought the Steelers home from Miami.

The parkway route to the city was dotted by groups of fans, some numbering a half dozen, others a hundred. Cars, trucks and buses were parked on the berms. Their drivers blew horns, blinked headlights and hoisted kiddies up on their shoulders.

"Look at that, look at that!" said Steelers center Ray Mansfield with obvious delight as he noted the banners dotting the countryside. His face lit up when he read one slogan printed on several cards held aloft by "teen-age girls."

"Thanks, we needed that," it said.

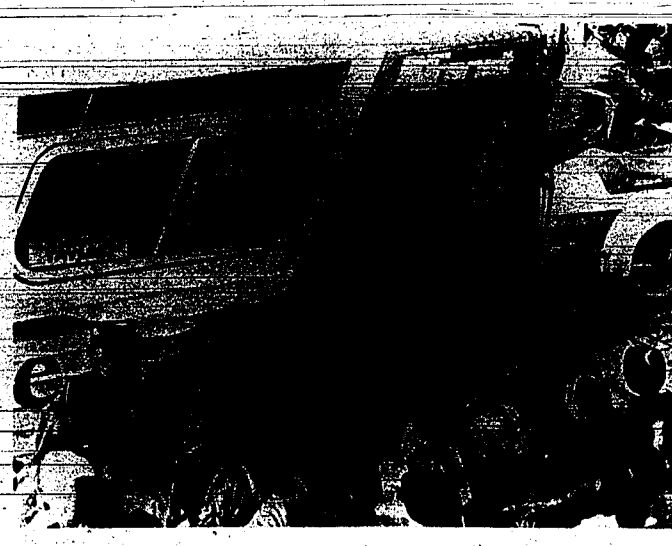

Upon entering the city, the players found bouncers, grinning, shouting fans standing 20 rows deep and stretching to touch the buses that bore the players and coaches through town. Police estimated the crowd at 50,000, but some called that figure conservative. The crowd was mostly youthful, many of the celebrities being students idled by a city teachers strike.

In their exuberance, the fans seemed not to notice the absence of many of the top stars, including Lynn Swann, Franco Harris and Mel Blount. The three-star players who made the Pro Bowl went on from Miami to New Orleans to start practice. Terry Bradshaw, feeling the effects of his second concussion in as many weeks, went home to recover.

The fans treated the players to this city's own version of the ticker tape parade. Scraps of newspaper and pages of telephone books floated from tall buildings like a gray snowstorm.

Many commented that last year's parade was "more rowdy." One woman offered a reason: "Last year was the first time the Steelers won anything. People were more elated."

Heroes return

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion George Foreman worked a hard 90 minutes, including six rounds of sparring, Monday while Ron Lyle took it easier and went three rounds in preparation for their scheduled 12-round at Caesars Palace Saturday.

Foreman sparred three rounds each with Oliver Phillips of Las Vegas and Marty Monroe of Los Angeles.

"Training is fun again," the 27-year-old former Olympic gold medal winner declared. "I look forward to it every day."

According to Bobby Lewis, Lyle's co-manager, Lyle will weigh between 215 and 220. Las Vegas oddsmaker Jimmy "The Greek"

Ilie Nastase wins Phoenix Cup Tennis

ATLANTA (UPI) — Ilie Nastase, a 26-year-old Romanian who had said he might not play in the finals without a change in officials, coasted to a 6-2, 6-1 victory over Californian Jeff Borowiak Monday night to win the WCT Atlanta Phoenix Cup tennis championship.

Nastase, picking up $17,000 for his victory, had claimed Sunday he would not play if Natalie Cohen, a 35-year veteran, officiated but relented after Miss Cohen publicly apologized for some statements she had made earlier.

Nastase, 29, overpowered and out-finessed the 26-year-old Borowiak, former NCAA singles champion. He jumped into a 4-0 lead in the first set, breaking Borowiak's serve twice, and then finished off the first set with a pair of aces.

Nastase appeared to let up slightly in the second set when he began clowning with the crowd and complaining about photographers during his serve, but he still managed to break service twice and win with apparent ease.

The Phoenix Cup doubles title went to John

Alexander and Phil Dent, both of Australia, with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Karl Meiler of Germany and Wojtek Fibak of Poland.

Borowiak, one of only two Americans in the 16-player field of the $50,000 tournament, battled long and hard to win his first game. He and Nastase swapped advantage numerous times before Nastase hit the ball into the net to make the score 4-1.

Borowiak picked up his second game at 5-2 when Nastase missed two consecutive baseline shots but Nastase finished off the set in the next game with a pair of blazing serves.

Borowiak closed to 4-3 and again 5-4 in the second set but it was apparent at that point that Nastase had things under control. Nastase became perturbed when a questionable call gave Borowiak his fourth game of the second set.

Borowiak managed to force the final game to deuce but first hit the ball into the net and then hit the ball wide to give Nastase the championship.

Mets Jon Matlack OKs terms

NEW YORK (UPI) — All-star pitcher Jon Matlack, a 16-game winner last season, has agreed to terms with the New York Mets for the 1976 season, the club announced today.

The 25-year-old southpaw had the best season of his four-year career last year, posting a 16-12 record with a 3.38 earned run average. He also was the winning pitcher for the National League in the All-Star game and shared the game's most valuable player honors with Bill Madlock of the Chicago Cubs, whose game-winning hit gave the NL a 3-1 victory over the American League.

Matlack might have had a better season had he not been involved in an auto accident that caused him to miss almost two weeks. Following the Aug. 6 accident, during which he suffered lacerations and a mild concussion, he won only three more games and did not get a victory after

Aug. 29.

The Mets also announced the signings of catcher Ron Hodges and rookie infielders Ken Perry and Randy Trapp.

Hodges spent most of the year with the Mets' Tidewater club of the International League after being with the Mets for the 1974 season. He added 266 in 95 games with two homers and 33 RBIs batted in at Tidewater, then joined the Mets in September and hit .296 with two homers and four RBIs in nine games.

Perry, a second baseman, hit .310 at Visalia of the California League and .229 at Jackson of the Texas League last year. Then hit .261 for the Mets' team in the Florida Instructional League.

Trapp, a third baseman, batted .263 in 47 games at Tidewater and .257 in 27 games at Jackson.

Lawsuit shadows NFL expansion plans

Rockets top Bullets

HOUSTON (UPI) — Seven-foot center Kevin Kunnert made 11 of 13 field goal attempts and Rudy Tomjanovich scored 28 points Monday night to pace the hotshooting Houston Rockets to an easy 115-96 victory over the Washington Bullets.

In gaining their third win without a loss over the Bullets this season, the Rockets streaked to as much as a 20-point first half lead with 67.5 percent shooting.

Washington never pulled closer than 15 points in the second half as its big men, Elvin Hayes and Wes Unseld, sat out most of the first quarter. They combined for only 13 points and seven rebounds in the game.

Kunnert, a third year pro from Iowa, took charge on the boards in the opening quarter with six rebounds. His scoring came into play as Houston opened a three-point quarter lead to 20 at halftime.

Kunnert hit his first 10 shots before missing, and he finished with 22 points, 14 rebounds and three blocked shots.

The high scorers for Washington were guards Dave Bing and Phil Chenier, who combined for 29 points. In Hayes' absence, Lynn Robinson scored 13 points and grabbed a team-high eight rebounds.

Ashe world champion

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Top seed Arthur Ashe outlasted young Vilas Gerulaitis Monday night, 6-2, 6-7, 6-4, to capture his second straight World Championship Tennis title.

Ashe, 32, the reigning Wimbledon champion and winner at Columbus, Ohio, last week, won the thriller in just under two hours to extend his 1976 victory string to eight matches and pocket $17,000.

Gerulaitis, 21, received $7,000.

Gerulaitis, the improving New Yorker, faced Ashe for the third time in his career and has yet to beat him.

Ashe, from Miami, overpowered his opponent in the first match and broke service in the first and seventh games. Gerulaitis took the see-saw second set by winning the tiebreaker, 7 points to 6, with a volley that Ashe couldn't handle.

In the deciding set, Ashe broke Gerulaitis' service in the fourth game for a 3-1 lead and broke through again in the 10th game to close out the match.

Honors for Sooners

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — The 1975 national football champion Oklahoma Sooners will be honored at a luncheon Jan. 31 and again during the halftime of the Oklahoma-Oklahoma State basketball game that night.

United Press International, the Associated Press and the Football Writers Association will present national championship trophies. Defensive tackle Leroy Selmon, the 1975 Outland Award winner, will receive a commemoration for that honor.

Cocher Barry Switzer, co-captain of the championship team and the 1975 All-Americans will receive awards at both functions.

Virtually the same presentations that will take place at the luncheon will be duplicated at the halftime of the basketball game. Sooner football players and coaches will be stationed around the concourse at the Lloyd Noble Arena prior to the game to sign autographs and meet the public.

Featured speaker at the luncheon will be Gen. Daniel James, commander of the North American Aerospace Defense Command and a longtime fan of Oklahoma football.

Jimmy Harris, who quarterbacked OU to back-to-back national championships in 1955 and 1956 and was the only quarterback never to play a losing game at Oklahoma, will be master of ceremonies.

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — A lawsuit could keep the Tampa Bay Buccaneers from joining the National Football League this year, but the expansion club will be ready with a training facility worth more than a half million dollars if all goes as planned.

At a luncheon Monday, the Bucs unveiled plans for a permanent training and administrative facility located on a five-acre tract adjacent to Tampa International Airport and about a mile from Tampa Stadium, where the team will play its home games.

Ground will be broken this week and the facility will be completed by mid-June when the Bucs are scheduled to open their first training camp.

Tampa Bay owner Hugh Culverhouse and Coach John McKay said they were both pleased with the location.

"It will be spartan," Culverhouse said. "It is patterned after the Miami Dolphins' facility. It will be functional and easily accessible to the fans so they can watch the development of the players and can witness the birth of the team."

McKay noted it is better that the training camp is in Tampa rather than away from the city.

"You could be on the road into October before you play at home," McKay said. "I want you to see the team."

Local businessman Jim Walter, who announced plans for the project with Culverhouse, said he will build the facility and then present the Bucs with a 15-year lease containing a year option after that. He said the lease price will not be known until the final overall cost is determined.

Preliminary reports indicate, however, the buildings and equipment will cost about $300,000 and the two football fields would be another $50,000.

The Bucs and another expansion team, the Seattle Seahawks, are scheduled to begin play in the NFL this season, but a suit has been filed seeking a court ruling on the legality of staffing the two expansion clubs through a draft of veteran players from other teams.

As a result of the court action, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle has delayed both the pro and college players drafts pending the outcome of the suit.

Team and league officials have said they hope the matter will be settled by the time training camp opens in the summer, but Rozelle says there is a possibility the entry of the two clubs could be delayed.

"It seems we have spent more time in court than on the field and it's good to be getting on with the show," Culverhouse said. "We intend to play ball."

Hoosiers remain undefeated

BLOOMINGTON, IND. (UPI) — Scott May solved Purdue's 23 zone defense for a 40-29 victory Monday night to lead the Hoosiers lead 44-35 at the half.

Only May was able to hit with any consistency over Purdue's tight zone, earning him of his 42 points before the intermission.

Back-to-back buckets by May gave Indiana a 67-62 lead before Gerald Thomas and Jerry Schilling narrowed the margin to 69-67 with two seconds left and Wilkerson completed the scoring after being fouled by Parker as time ran out.

Tom Abernethy hit 13 points for Indiana and Wilkerson had 10. Parker led Purdue with 14. Jordan added 13. Macy 11 and Schellor 11.

The loss left Purdue with a 4-1 Big Ten record and 9-5 overall.

Indiana, which led virtually all the way, had its biggest lead of 11 points late in the first

Irving leads ABA All-Stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — Forward Julius Erving of the New York Nets, playing for the fifth consecutive year, and center Artis Gilmore of the Kentucky Colonels, the 1974 All-Star MVP, were unanimous choices to the American Basketball Association All-Star team which will face the Denver Nuggets Jan. 27 in Denver.

Under the revised league format, the ABA leader on Jan. 18—which was Denver—hosts an All-Star team composed of players from the other six clubs. This change from the East vs. West arrangement was necessitated by the failure of the Baltimore, Utah and San Diego franchises, which saw the league reorganize into one division.

The starting five, as selected by members of the media in the seven ABA cities, is rounded out by forward Billy Knight of the Indiana Pacers, appearing in his first All-Star Game, and guards Brian Taylor of New York and James Silas of the San Antonio Spurs. Both starting guards are making their first starts after seeing reserve action last season.

Named as reserves were forward Marvin Barnes of the St. Louis Spirits, center Billy Paultz of San Antonio and guards Ron Boone of St. Louis and George Gervin of San Antonio.

The remaining three players were chosen by the coaches. They are Maurice Lucas of Kentucky, Larry Kenon of San Antonio and Don Buse of Indiana. The trio replaced three Denver players—David Thompson, Bobby Jones and Ralph Simpson—originally chosen by the media before it was ascertained that Denver would be the host team.

You've seen that renowned painting called "American Gothic" wherein a severe rural man with an upright pitchfork in his hand stands next to his gently sag-looking wife. Seems to symbolize survival through hard farm work, doesn't it? But what the Iowa painter Grant Wood didn't know when he posed his sister and her dentist friend for that picture was that the building in the background actually was a house of ill repute.

Those scholars who study life among the married report their research proves one out of every five wives is more passionate than their husband.

SUPERMAN

O. "How old is Superman?"
A. Just 42. His creators, Joseph Schuster and Jerry Siegel, both were 19 when they dreamed him up. After five years of pounding on doors, they finally got "Detective Comics" to print him in 1938. That outfit trademarked and copyrighted young Superman and tipped Schuster and Siegel $15 a week to turn out the strip. Eventually, those two artists were replaced with other cartoonists. And Superman flourished to make multimillions out of some excellent promoters. Schuster and Siegel went their separate ways, each broke. They filed a batch of lawsuits to try to get something out of their creation for themselves, but always lost. A different company called Warner Communications, Inc., now owns the rights to Superman. Having given up the legal route, Schuster and Siegel last year simply asked that firm to pay them a little money on the grounds it was morally right to do so. The firm agreed. Superman's creators finally henceforth each will receive a $20,000 annuity. They're both 81 years old, and they can use it.

FAMILY CIRCUS

GROUP OF UNITA (National Front for the Total Independence of Angola) troops share rations during operations near Luso, Angola, which was the scene of fighting this past week. The national group controlling that area appears to be unable to check a column of black and white mercenaries which has looted and robbed across southern Angola in recent weeks. (UPI)

Renegade mercenary band shoots way across Angola

Editors: Raymond Wilkinson, Africa correspondent for United Press International, is one of a handful of foreign newsmen who have seen the Angola civil war—at first hand. Wilkinson, a veteran war correspondent who also has served in Vietnam and the Middle East, has spent nearly three weeks in southern Angola. He has filed a series of dispatches on background to the civil war which will move this week. In this dispatch he reports from Gago Coutinho that a gang of black and white renegade mercenaries has blazed a trail of gunfire, robbery and looting throughout southern Angola.

By RAYMOND WILKINSON GAGO COUTINHO, Angola (UPI) — A group of black and white renegade mercenaries has blazed a trail of gunfire, robbery and looting throughout southern Angola in recent weeks. The national group controlling the area, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA), appeared powerless to check the progress of the heavily armed column. The polyglot collection of mercenaries belongs to the so-called Chipenda column, according to UNITA officials. It is a 1,000-strong band which has been fighting on the allied side in the civil war under the leadership of former stock star Daniel Chipenda. In recent weeks, however, the mercenaries abandoned the frontline and embarked on an orgy of destruction. According to UNITA officials, who now describe the Chipenda fighters as common outlaws, they robbed several banks in the UNITA capital of Huambo (formerly Nova Lisboa), seizing currency worth at least $2 million. They also sparked a Christmas-time shootout with UNITA troops in Huambo. In three days of gunbattles 20 to 30 persons were killed. A few days later in the southern town of Sa Da Bandeira, other Chipenda troops forced a showdown with UNITA forces, which at one point abandoned the town and then surrounded it. This tiny village near the Zambian border was the latest target for some 300 Chipenda mercenaries. Earlier this month a heavily armed column of both blacks and whites swept through the town, according to local residents, robbing and looting and urging the villagers not to support UNITA. The group later disappeared into the bush. Chipenda has been the wild card thus far in the war between three Angolan nationalist factions. Until late 1974 he was a powerful figure in the Marxist "Popular Movement" for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA). But after an unsuccessful bid for supreme power he switched allegiances to the National Front for the Liberation of Angola (FNLA), taking many of the MPLA's best fighters with him. He is still nominally attached to the FNLA, but operates now on his own in southern Angola. The FNLA's main forces are all concentrated in the north. UNITA officials have now demanded the FNLA discipline the Chipenda force. This is an unrealistic request, given the current disarray in that group. It is also a tacit admission that UNITA does not have the firepower to do the job itself.

Rail line key target

LUSIA BRIDGE, Angola (UPI) — A thin ribbon of metal running across the center of Angola has become a vital target for both sides in the war. At a center where possession of land is relatively unimportant, and towns, roads and communication facilities are vital, the British-owned Benguela railroad has become one of the major prizes. After a series of offensives late last year, soldiers of the Union for the Total Independence of Angola secured control of virtually the entire length of the line from its Atlantic coast terminal at the port of Lobito to the Zaire border. The Union soldiers were thwarted in their efforts to capture the whole line when retreating troops of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola blew up a series of bridges on the approaches to their last stronghold in Teixeira de Sousa near the Zaire border. The Lusita span is the largest and most important of the bridges. A Popular Movement dynamite charge dropped it neatly into the rushing waters below.

The Union high command claims it now has equipment from Britain to replace the broken span quickly and plans to capture Teixeira station. Regrouped Popular Movement troops are poised only a few miles north of the line and another battle for the railroad is imminent. Snaking up from the Atlantic coast 500 miles across the thickly wooded African landscape, the British-built and -operated single line is both a valuable revenue earner and a vital transportation artery. Union forces have been feverishly repairing track torn up by retreating Popular Movement troops and already have started to move some vital supplies over the railroad with antique steam locomotives. As the petroleum situation eased, the Union for the first time recently also recommissioned a few diesel units to haul badly needed supplies inland. Before the war, Zaire and Zambias shipped large quantities of copper, cobalt and diamonds from the Benguela line and both need to use it again quickly to shore up sagging economies.

Bullet-beating speed may spell trouble for SST

Cutback sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Concorde airliners take off from Paris and London Wednesday to usher in the era of passenger flights at twice the speed of sound, but they may be heading faster than a speeding bullet for economic trouble.

One SST-bearing, the colors of British Airways will take off from London on a three-hour, 43-minute dash to Bahrain in the Persian Gulf. Another in the livery of Air France will leave Paris on a seven-hour run to Rio de Janeiro via Dakar.

Both routes are top from the money-making North Atlantic routes the builders of the Anglo-French superjet counted on to recover the project's $1 billion cost.

Uncertain over routes and fares, British officials say they may either realize an $8 million profit or suffer a $50 million loss on the current SST project.

Such a compromise might avoid retaliation against American airlines or aerospace exports which the French and British governments have hinted could follow outright rejection.

Environmentalists could still seek a court injunction. The Senate could pass a bill already approved by the House for a six-month ban on Concorde landings at JFK, but not Dulles.

And the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey, which controls JFK, would still be able to rule on its own on whether the Concorde meets the airport's stringent noise standards.

The British-French effort to build the 100-seat SST was launched 13 years ago to challenge domination of the skies by U.S. jets. Service to the United States was its specific goal.

on the project without government help.

Cruising at 60,000 feet, miles above subsonic jetliners, the $50 million superjet flies at 1,350 miles per hour — just over twice the speed of sound, or 500 m.p.h. faster than a .22 rifle bullet.

The thunder of its four engines during takeoff and landing is the Concorde's most publicized enemy.

British Aircraft Corp. and Aerospatiale, the French builder, say their SST is little louder than subsonics and its four daylight flights a day scarcely would be noticed among 1,000 other flights a day. At Dulles, they say, there virtually would be no impact.

But the Environmental Protection Agency says the Concorde will sound twice as loud to outdoors listeners as the noisiest subsonics and four to eight times louder than quieter jets like the 747 and DC10.

If U.S. environmentalists, battling the Concorde's thundering noise and expected pollution, have their way, the SST will never land in the United States on regular commercial flights, their prospects for at least a partial victory look good.

British Airways and Air France want to start this spring making four flights a day from Europe to New York's Kennedy Airport — most profitable of all international routes — and two a day to Washington's Dulles Airport.

After years of argument and counter-argument, the Concorde battle hit a peak this month as Transportation Secretary William Coleman Jr. heard nine hours of SST support and criticism. He promised a ruling by Feb. 4.

Close observers bet Coleman will grant a six-month or one-year trial at Dulles, a federally owned airport, but disapp...

There is long-standing suspicion in Britain and France that the real opposition to Concorde comes not from environmentalists but from the U.S. commercial aviation industry which cannot offer a competing service. Congress refused to provide money for a domestic SST and none of the airlines took SST opponents question whether the United States can justify keeping other nations who might purchase Concorde from flying to New York if Britain and France do, or whether Russia can be barred from flying its TU144 SST to New York if the Concorde is allowed.

HONG KONG — Two years ago, when the Arab oil squeeze went into effect, Japan panicked and began to buy up all the oil it could find. And when China emerged last year as a potential oil exporting giant, Japan begged for more.

Today, a high-powered 45-man Japanese delegation is in Peking with the unenviable task of persuading the Chinese to sell Japan less, not more, oil. The delegation is headed by one of Japan's top industrialists, Yoshihiro Inayama, chairman of Nippon Steel Corp., the biggest steel company in the world.

Inayama is going to need all his negotiating skills; for, in effect, China is being asked to review its massive oil development program to fit Japan's reduced needs. Because Japan is China's biggest market, the Chinese have to listen.

Winner-take-all method wins bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled unanimously Monday that the winner-take-all method of electing California's 167 delegates to the Republican National Convention does not violate constitutional rights to fair and equal representation.

California's delegate bloc is the largest of any state. The court's decision increases chances the June 8 primary will be a key contest between President Ford and Ronald Reagan, two-term governor of the state, since so many votes will be at stake for the winner.

The justices, in a brief order without opinion, affirmed a three-judge district court ruling that so long as each vote is given equal weight statewide, the presidential candidate who wins a plurality can control all 167 delegates to the convention in Kansas City, Mo.

Only Oregon, Rhode Island and the District of Columbia elect convention delegates in a similar fashion.

California Democrats elect delegates through a modified proportional system divided into congressional districts. That system was challenged and upheld by the three-judge court, and Democratic voters did not appeal to the Supreme Court.

The state Democrats used to have a similar primary system but changed it for this year's election to correspond to national Democratic primary guidelines.

The GOP delegate selection system was challenged by a Republican voter, James S. Graham, who argued that creating a statewide, at-large voting district, substantially reduced the power of individual voters.

Graham said delegates should be elected by congressional district so that the California convention delegation would better reflect voter sentiment.

The three-judge court said there was no proof particular classes of voters were discriminated against, only that supporters of a particular presidential candidate were denied representation because their candidate lost. This, the lower court said, did not constitute a denial of equal protection of the law.

In another action, involving Harrisonburg, Va., the justices declined to review a lower court ruling which allows public school children to take time off from classes for religious instruction.

And the justices declined to review the convictions of the "Wilmington Ten" — eight black students and two adults, sentenced to varied prison terms of up to 34 years for participating in 1971 racial disturbances at Wilmington, N.C.

Several persons were killed or injured as the blacks protested alleged discrimination in the newly integrated local high school.

Rise in personal income slows down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The growth in personal income slowed in recession-struck 1975 to a 2.3 per cent annual rate that barely kept pace with inflation, the Commerce Department reported today. Personal income increased 9.5 per cent in 1974.

The announcement said the largest gains last year were concentrated in wage and salary income. Investment and farm income grew at a lesser rate.

The growth rate in personal income fell off sharply in December, from November. After climbing $8.5 billion in November, the growth rate slowed to $2.2 billion in December.

Personal income in the last month of 1975 was estimated at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $1.3 trillion.

Most of the December increase was centered in manufacturing payrolls, which rose $2.9 billion compared with $1 billion in November. Dividends fell $2.1 billion after remaining unchanged in November.

Personal income for the year was estimated at $1,236 trillion, a gain of $91.3 billion from 1974. Personal income increased $102.4 billion in 1974.

Although the worst recession since World War II ended in the spring of 1975, unusually high unemployment rates persisted throughout the year.

Extended jobless benefits helped maintain minimum living standards for unemployed workers, but the benefits were much lower in most cases than they would have gotten from wages and salaries.

The Commerce Department said transfer payments — unemployment compensation, social security and welfare — increased 24.6 per cent in 1975 compared with 18.4 per cent in 1974 when the recession began.

Wage and salaries rose 5 per cent, down from 8.9 per cent in 1974. Farm income declined, but at a significantly lesser rate than the previous year. After plunging 21 per cent in 1974, farm income dipped another 3.9 per cent last year. Dividend income increased 5 per cent last year, about half the rate for 1974.

Hearing scheduled

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A court hearing was set today for Wednesday to hear further defense testimony on a controversial government psychiatrist which Patricia Hearst claims harassed her and drove her to insanity.

The hearing was scheduled following a closed-door meeting of defense attorney Albert Johnson, U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter and U.S. Attorney James Browning. Following the meeting the defense filed two sealed motions, apparently dealing with the psychiatrist and possibly with the detector tests given the newspaper heiress.

Johnson said the defense would present "newly discovered evidence" at the hearing about the psychiatrist named by the prosecution to examine Miss Hearst, whose bank robbery trial is scheduled to begin next Monday.

DATSUN.

NOW AMERICA'S

#1 SELLING IMPORT.

Why should I care?

Not many people give any thought to the fact that one auto company is outselling another. But that doesn't mean it isn't worth thinking about.

After all, Datsun outsold all other imports in 1975 for some good reasons.

Probably the most important is the way Datsun stretch gas.

But there's more to it than that. Let's look at Datsun's strong points:

Choice of Models.

At a Datsun Dealer you can select from an entire economy car pool, wading right through hardtops and hatchbacks, stylish sedans and our legendary Z-Car Wagons, too. Fourteen models in all, including America's #1 selling small pickup, Datsun's L11 Hustler.

Gas Mileage.

While other cars are learning, their fuel keeps burning. Datsuns knew how to pass up a gas pump a long time ago, and we keep getting better. Right now, our champion gas squeezer, the B-210, gets an amazing 41 MPG on the highway and 29 MPG in the city. (EPA mileage estimate. Manual transmission. Your mileage may be more or less depending on the condition of your car and how you drive.)

Parts and Service.

Datsun takes care of its own. You can count on a dealer network with nearly 4,000 factory-trained service technicians, and a nationwide, computer-connected parts system. Your Datsun Dealer's very big on small car experience, too.

Value and Durability.

Datsun puts 'em together to stay together—with 43 years experience building today's size cars. Quality features like unibody construction, crankshafts with five main bearings and all-vinyl upholstery mean a Datsun not only saves, it survives.

The whole point is that we want you to know we're number one, but not to do a number on you. Datsun outsells other imports for good reasons: economy, durability, a wide selection of models and a fine dealer network. If you're in the market for a car, it's something you ought to care about. A lot.

Come look at number one.
