

Gooding fire razes 2 firms

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding firemen this morning were still patrolling smoking debris from a spectacular Thursday night fire that destroyed two businesses in the city's main-business section.

There were no serious injuries reported, but three firemen were struck by flying debris.

Damage in the Gooding Merc. — The Kendrick Drug Store, housed in the same complex, may total about $1 million, according to unofficial estimates. Insurance adjusters, business owners and fire department officers were conferring this morning.

"There was so much mass chaos last night — until you start getting people together and try to piece it together," Fire Chief Jack Waldschmidt said this morning, "there is no way" he could say what caused the blaze.

The fire was reported at 5:40 p.m., just minutes after the Merc closed. Witnesses reported hearing an explosion and saw the front windows of the Merc blow out, followed by dense smoke. This could mean the furnace exploded, the chief said.

The Gooding firemen, assisted by Jerome and Wendell firemen, kept the blaze from spreading to the Lincoln Inn and First Security Bank on either side. However, both of the businesses sustained some smoke damage.

Three firemen were struck by flying bricks when the second story over the Merc, containing hotel rooms of the Lincoln Inn, collapsed. The fire chief said Bob Peterson, assistant chief, and firemen Gary Adams and Steve Finkle were sent to Gooding County Memorial Hospital with lacerations but were not believed seriously hurt.

Four persons living in the rooms above the Merc were not accounted for, according to Police Chief Dwayne Walker. He said three were reportedly in their rooms at the time and one man, a truck driver, was asleep, but apparently was awakened by the smoke and ran out.

Richard Phillips, owner of the Merc Service Center's half block away, said, "The flames were terrible — just like a twister when they did break through the roof." He said he worried about his stallion.

This morning, his son, David Phillips, who works at the Merc, nuzzled soot and debris at the Phillips home some eight blocks from the fire.

Many townspeople turned out to watch the blaze, but were considerable help to fire fighters, the police chief said. Citizens helped with crowd control, some moving hoses and some taking coffee to firemen who couldn't get off ladders and others manning hoses while firemen rested.

"We were extremely lucky to save the Lincoln Inn and the bank," Walker said. He said officers initially had some trouble keeping the public off the street in front of Tingwall's Store, across from the fire, because of fear that the burning building would collapse.

"They sure moved back after it did go," he said.

When the upper story collapsed, the rest of the windows gave way, throwing bricks and debris across the center line of the street.

Police and sheriff's officers blocked off Main Street to keep spectators back. Firemen were hampered by freezing temperatures, causing some with long hair to be covered with ice, Phillips said.

Water sprayed onto the fire soon turned the sidewalk and street into a "sheet of ice," Phillips said, making it difficult for firemen to walk without falling.

The restaurant and bar at the Lincoln Inn was closed today because of smoke damage, but is expected to open Saturday. The new part of the Inn, which was rebuilt after a fire about five years ago, is still operating.

Phillips said he understood one safe which was set in cement between the front windows in the Merc had been opened this morning and its contents, including receipts collected for In-termountain Gas Co., were intact. The department store's other safe, located on the second floor, "probably is in the basement," he said, and as yet has not been recovered.

The bank received very little smoke damage, according to manager James Abney and his assistant, John Phillips.

The first floor of the building was owned by Adam 'Bud' Schubert Jr., owner of a downtown theater and was leased to the department store and drug outlet. The second floor was owned by Cleo Faulkner, owner of the Lincoln Inn.

Burley, Minidoka water districts face quandary

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Burley and Minidoka irrigation districts face a quandary in the wake of the state's decision to replace the existing American Falls dam.

They were the two largest districts among the 35 spacersholders that did not approve a contract for bond repayment to finance the construction project.

Burley and Minidoka held 14.4 per cent of the space at the American Falls Reservoir. Small contractors, including the state, also rejected the proposal. A majority 79.9 per cent approved the contracts. Spacersholders with 2.9 per cent of the space have not voted.

Thursday's 7-1 approval of the replacement project by the Committee of Eight left Minidoka and Burley watersheds with a major decision.

Clifford Darrington, Burley Irrigation District (BID) director, cast the lone vote against proceeding with replacement of the dam. In Boise he indicated the BID might take legal action, but later would make no comment.

Burley watersheds rejected the contract proposal, voting 386-176 against it. The majority of MID voters favored the contract (415-335), but the 55 per cent approval was short of the necessary two-thirds support.

BID farmers protested the project at public hearings. One major objection raised was against watersheds bearing the cost of water quality controls.

Thursday that the vote "went about the way I figured it would go," he said.

He said the district will make no decision on further stands before directors meet next month. The regular meeting would be at 1 p.m. on Feb. 10.

Hubbrook said the district would seek an injunction, but as an individual, and he did not know what the district might do.

He said he doubted that Burley would hold another election this spring on the contract, probably waiting "for a while anyway on it."

William Nichols, board chairman of the Minidoka Irrigation District (MID), was more eager to have his district evaluate its position, but said no decision has been made.

"In a few days we'll get together and decide what way we're going and what we're going to do," he said, adding that would probably be next week.

He said the district probably will hold another election this year if it decides not to continue fighting the project.

The Minidoka district had supported the required project until just before this month's election. When two new directors (Rueben Ketterling and George Stromler) joined the board, it split 3-2 against the contract.

Ketterling said Thursday he could make no comment on district plans until "we talk to our attorney." (Continued on p. 13)

AF officials optimistic

By BILL LAZARUS

BOISE — Officials of the American Falls Reservoir District talked optimistically about their decision to "move ahead" to replace the deteriorated American Falls Dam following Thursday's approval of the project by the Committee of Eight.

But the officials were silent about the possibility of a snag which might arise if a minority of water districts protesting private replacement of the dam were to take their case to court.

"I'm not a judge," John Rosholt, attorney for the reservoir district said, when asked about the effect of a suit.

He said a court suit might take "any number of approaches," making it difficult to predict whether there's an action would hold things up. Rosholt would not describe the possible approaches.

He expressed confidence that the replacement of the dam is going to go ahead. "I feel sure, I think it's a go and I'm very optimistic that to the cold light of day that the gap that we have between where we are and 100 per cent (approval of the project) can be filled," he said.

He said there will be a special meeting of the district board Monday to consider equipment, contracts, insurance requirements, and a construction management contract with Bechtel Inc. for replacement of the dam. (Continued on p. 13)

Hearing before council due ousted TF golf pro

By DAVE HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ousted golf pro Clyde Thomsen will get a hearing before the Twin Falls City Council. Mayor Paul Ostyn said Thursday.

"I will see that he has a hearing, probably at the next city council meeting" on Feb. 2, Ostyn said.

Ostyn would not say whether the hearing means Thomsen might be reinstated.

Asked if the council will take action after the hearing, either reaffirming Thomsen's ouster or renewing his city contract, Ostyn said, "There is no way I can be sure, but any action is always a possibility."

In a 3-2 vote Monday night, the council rejected a proposal to renew Thomsen's annual contract to operate the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course. Ostyn and Councilmen Chris Falkington and Stephen Bancroft cast the negative votes.

The actions sparked a public controversy, with many of Thomsen's supporters and Thomsen himself complaining that he should have been granted a hearing.

Ostyn said he decided to call the hearing after a conversation Thursday with Dick Reed, a Twin Falls attorney and president of the Twin Falls Men's Golf Association.

Reed said he requested the hearing for Thomsen "in my capacity as a lawyer, but I'm doing anything—and everything I can to help Clyde as a friend."

He also said he could not speak as president of the golf association in discussing Thomsen's ouster since the group has not taken a formal vote.

But many association members have called him. Reed said, to express support for Thomsen.

"The association in the past has supported him with a good majority," he added. He said a special meeting of the 300 to 400 member association might be called to adopt a statement for the hearing.

"My feeling is that the majority of the complaints—against Thomsen—come from a relatively small group of people," Reed said.

Ostyn said charges that Thomsen's vendetta against Thomsen are "ridiculous."

"I would only have to point out that I have been on the council for seven years and in the first five years voted in favor of renewing Thomsen's contract."

"It looks to me like if there had been something personal it would have come to light long before this," Ostyn said.

US, Soviets mull formula

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — The United States and the Soviet Union have unexpectedly begun consideration of a new formula after which the strategic arms ceiling set by President Ford and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at Vladivostok in 1974 could be reduced by about 10 per cent, senior U.S. officials disclosed today.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, apparently alluding to this development, told newsmen on leaving Moscow earlier this week that NATO Foreign ministers in Brussels that Brezhnev had given him "constructive" and "significant" new ideas.

The senior official, speaking to newsmen about the Kissinger-Jelliner during the flight to NATO headquarters declined to explain the specific details of the new formula.

But he claimed Kissinger's Moscow arms talks had achieved the biggest single progress of any Soviet-American negotiating session in Moscow. The superpowers are trying to reach a long-term agreement from 1977 to 1985 to limit their strategic arsenals.

The Soviet Union currently possesses about 2,600 strategic missiles and bombers, while the United States has about 2,100. Under the new proposal the Soviet Union presumably would have to reduce its strategic arsenal by 600 missiles and bombers while the United States could remain at its present capacity.

The official said the United States originally proposed a formula involving restrictions on the Soviet Backfire Bomber, which could carry with it reductions of several hundreds of strategic weapons allowed the two superpowers.

At Vladivostok, Ford and Brezhnev agreed Russia and the United States should place a limit of 2,400 on their arsenals of strategic bombers and missiles.

The ceiling now may be reduced to around 1,800 to 2,000, the official indicated.

Kissinger's reported progress on the strategic arms accord was tempered by his failure to persuade the Soviet Union to pressure Cuba to end its intervention in Angola.

Decision may slow ERA repeal effort

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Capital Bureau

BOISE — A decision today may cripple Senate efforts to repeal Idaho's technical of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Following an hour-long technical discussion, the Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee decided with only one dissenting vote that "custom and precedent" make a joint resolution on the ERA question proper.

The joint resolution to rescind the ERA would require a two-thirds majority vote to pass, while a concurrent resolution would only require a simple majority.

Since ERA opponents last year could not even muster a simple majority vote in the senate to rescind, a two-thirds majority vote to repeal ratification is considered unlikely.

Sen. James Yost, R-Wendell, questioned Thursday whether a joint resolution to rescind would be proper under Senate rules. But today, Yost agreed with the committee's determination.

The committee decided that although the joint resolution requiring two-thirds approval does not "strictly comply" with a definition in a Senate rule, "it is properly drafted and is properly before the Senate on the basis of custom and precedent."

Now Lt. Gov. John Evans, who also serves as president of the Senate, must decide the appropriateness of the joint resolution question. Evans leans towards the position that a two-thirds majority is necessary to rescind.

Coffee firm boosts prices

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — General Foods Corp., the nation's largest coffee wholesaler, today raised prices an average 15 cents a pound for regular coffee and 2 cents an ounce for instant.

The price increase was effective immediately and was expected to be reflected in retail grocery prices within weeks. A spokesman blamed last summer's severe frost damage to Brazil's coffee crop for the increase.

US, Soviets begin study of new ceiling on arms

Kissinger told Brezhnev, the senior official said, that continued Soviet intervention in Angola would produce a chill in U.S.-Soviet relations, would weaken incentives on the United States to exercise restraint in a variety of diplomatic situations, and eventually could undermine the administration's policy of détente with the Soviet Union.

In part because of Angola, Brezhnev's proposed visit to the United States still seemed uncertain. At Kissinger's department, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was asked if Brezhnev would go to Washington and he replied, "I do not know but certainly a signal will take place."

Kissinger's Moscow negotiations will now be followed up by further study in Washington and consultations through Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin. Kissinger may take another trip to Moscow, the official said.

The senior official attributed U.S. impotence to affect an Angolan resolution to the Congressional decision to cut off aid to democratic factions in Angola and the inability of pro-Western forces to stop Cuban forces on the ground.

While Kissinger was in Moscow, the strength of Cuban volunteers in Angola jumped from an estimated 8,000 on Monday to about 10,500 on Friday with more on the way.

The senior official said Brezhnev appeared to be in good health during Kissinger's seven-and-a-half-hour negotiations with him. Brezhnev did 93 per cent of the talking for the Soviet side — he joked and bantered.

At one point, another official said, Brezhnev snuffed a packet of cigarettes and put them down on the table. He then gave up smoking on doctors' orders.

U.S. officials said Brezhnev seemed "in far better condition than when he met Ford in Helsinki late last July.

The U.S. official confirmed reports by another U.S. delegation member Thursday that the United States and the Soviet Union had reached a very precise definition of "light" and "heavy" strategic missiles.

This definition was left ambiguous in the 1972 strategic arms accord and has resulted in charges the Soviets have violated the interim five-year arms cap by substituting "heavy" SS19 missiles for "light" SS11 missiles.

The report that the United States and the Soviet Union may consider reducing the Vladivostok ceiling of 3,400 strategic missiles and bombers raised speculation about the specifics of the new formula under consideration.

Some observers believed the Russians would accept certain limitations on the stationing and operations of the backfire bomber. The United States would accept the Soviet insistence that the bomber is not a strategic weapon with an accompanying reduction of the Vladivostok ceiling.

U.S. defense specialists have asserted that the Backfire can strike the United States on a one-way mission with a landing in Cuba.

Shots mar Lebanese cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Lebanon took the first cautious steps today on what a veteran politician called "the thousand-mile trek to build a new nation" and a Syrian news agency in the civil war was generally observed by Moslem, Christian and Palestinian gunmen.

Only "minor and individual acts" marred the cease-fire, declared late Thursday in the nine-month conflict. The joint Lebanese-Syrian Palestinian supervisory committee said.

But sporadic gunfights broke out in some city and suburban areas and reporters saw widespread looting by gunmen who broke into empty houses, apartments and stores stealing anything from candy to suits of furniture.

The Beirut airport reopened today after a shutdown that began a week ago when mortar shells landed on the runway during fighting between the army and Palestinian units.

Loudspeaker trucks toured the center of Beirut calling on all warriors to quit the streets.

"The war is over," a guerrilla of the Moslem Nasserite faction said. "We have won our right for justice. Now is the time for Moslems and Christians to unite."

Former Premier Saeb Salam, a Moslem, said the one-thousand-mile trek to build a new nation has begun.

The 70-year-old Salam told reporters the elder generation of Lebanese politicians were now "politically bankrupt" and "hopes for the future lie with the younger generation."

The joint committee, comprising military officers from the Lebanese, Syrian and Palestinian forces, moved a number of smaller subunits which were moved out to the war zones across the country.

Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim

Khadam, who negotiated the cease-fire, conferred with the chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, Yasser Arafat, and scheduled meetings with right-wing PLO militant leader Perry Gergal and with ex-Premier Rashid Karumli, who resigned last Sunday.

The worst looting was in the devastated Christian town of Damour, south of Beirut, which was overrun by Moslem forces earlier in the week. Gunmen burned the bodies of dozens of villagers massacred during the fighting and carried away goods in autos and trucks or even shopping baskets and baby carriages.

Looters even caused a traffic jam on the main southern highway where 100 vehicles were stalled when two trucks laden with stolen goods jackknifed across the roadway.

In Beirut, a skirmish during the looting of a supermarket killed six persons.

Pro-Western Angolans brace for assault

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Pro-Western forces massed their troops at a small river crossing in central Angola today to halt an all-out assault by Soviet-backed forces on their southern stronghold.

Military sources in Lusaka said the Soviet-supported, Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola was receiving fresh infusions of Cuban soldiers to spearhead their offensive.

The Popular Movement Wednesday claimed its first victory on the southern front, allegedly driving pro-Western coalition forces and their South African allies from the towns of Cella, Santa Comba and Ambova.

The towns, about 250 miles south of the Marxist-capital of Luanda, guard the northern end of a 300-mile-long narrow, paved road leading to Huambo, the political capital of the pro-Western coalition.

Both the Popular Movement and the pro-Western partners — the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola and the the National Front for the Liberation of Angola — have called the southern offensive crucial to the outcome of the year-long civil war.

National Union President Jonas Savimbi said Thursday in Kinshasa, Zaire, his forces would withdraw to the small Queve River, a few miles south of Cella. He said his army would defend its positions, but not attack.

The Popular Movement, backed by 10,000 Cuban troops, has used Russian T34 tanks, 122mm rockets, surface-to-surface missiles and helicopter gunships in its assaults.

Some 1,200 South Africa soldiers are helping the coalition. Military sources in Lusaka said the coalition expected large numbers of white mercenaries and new arms shipments next week.

The Popular Movement's military sources Thursday prompted speculation South Africa would withdraw from the conflict.

The Johannesburg-based Daily Mail quoted foreign military sources Thursday as saying only an immediate supply of American arms could halt the Popular Movement thrust.

Pair attends meet

FILER — Dave Chadwick and Carolyn Turner attended a workshop on ways to conduct an elementary school system-instruction project in Rupert Thursday.

Chadwick is a member of the Filer School Board, and Mrs. Turner is co-chairman of the Filer School Needs Assessment Committee.

Mrs. Turner said that John Briggs, consultant for the Idaho Department of Education, gave representatives of several school systems instruction on the difference between student and institutional needs. He told those attending that the program focuses on students and what the local patrons want them to achieve academically and personally

Mrs. Turner said part of the program is public "speak-ups" in the Filer school district, whether patrons leave children attending school or not.

Mrs. Turner said the Filer district has a teaching meeting planned for Feb. 6 and public speak-ups scheduled for 6 p.m. Feb. 17 at the high school and 8 p.m. Feb. 19 at the elementary school.

The Hollister area will schedule meetings soon.

Mrs. Turner said that if school patrons are unable to attend one meeting, they are encouraged to attend another whether or not their children attend that school.

ERA rescinder fate charted

Action on the ERA issue quickly developed after the Senate State Affairs Committee approved a proposal by Senate Assistant Majority Leader Dick Smith, R-Roxburg, to introduce a joint resolution to rescind Idaho's ratification of the amendment. The joint resolution would require two-thirds majority approval in the Senate.

"But, Sen. James Yost, R-Wendell, on the Senate floor questioned Evans regarding the appropriateness of a joint resolution to rescind Idaho's ratification of the ERA.

Yost pointed out that under Senate rules a joint resolution is defined as "a resolution passed by both houses of the legislature proposing an amendment to the constitution of the State of Idaho." He said the ERA would be an amendment to take U. S. constitution, not Idaho's.

Also, Sen. Dave Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, and a prime opponent of the ERA, had his Senate Agricultural Affairs Committee introduce a concurrent resolution to rescind the ERA ratification. This resolution would need only a simple majority approval to pass.

Now it is up to Evans to decide which resolution is proper - whether it will take a two-thirds or a simple majority vote to rescind.

Faced with essentially the same question last year the majority vote would suffice for the anti-ERA vote.

Last week, he said, about 50 letters a day came into his office, heavily weighted against the ERA. Many of these letters, he said, appeared to be sponsored "by extreme right wing American Party types."

Many letters also had duplicate wording, he said, adding, "You don't take much credence in those types of things."

In the letters "they were pointing to the fact that the decision really was up to me," Evans said.

"I don't look at it that way. It's the Senate rules that govern the Senate. It's not the president of the Senate," he said.

Evans leaned towards the view that it would take a two-thirds majority to rescind. That is the way he ruled last year and he said he has seen no new evidence to change his mind.

Also, he said that each Idaho ratification of amendments to the U. S. Constitution, have always required a two-thirds approval. "The same vote used to apply to be used to rescind," he said. He said the procedure is spelled out in the Mason's Manual, which the Senate refers to in deciding some questions of procedure.

But Evans said he has not made his decision in the matter. He said the Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee decision will "add great influence on my own decision."

Yost, however, questioned how the decision will be made. "It's just a political situation," Yost said Thursday.

LT. GOV. JOHN EVANS

Under ERA pressure

BOISE (UPI) - With one dissenting vote, the House State Affairs Committee Thursday introduced a proposal to take the legislative constitution out of the Constitution and put it into a citizens' committee.

Rep. Ralph Wheeler, R-American Falls, put the proposed amendment before the committee at present, legislators receive $10 per day salary for 60 days in regular session and up to 70 in special sessions. They also receive expense money they vote to themselves.

In the past years, the lawmakers have tried unsuccessfully to change their pay scale but the people have rejected their efforts at the polls.

Wheeler's proposal would eliminate the section of the Constitution which sets legislative pay and stipulate that the legislature shall have no authority to set either pay or expense allowances. That authority would be put into a six-member citizens committee to which the governor would appoint three members and the Supreme Court three members.

Members of the committee would file a report to the governor any public official holding an office to which compensation is attached.

Gas billing refund ordered

BOISE (UPI) - Intermountain Gas Co. was ordered Thursday by the Public Utilities Commission to refund $113,526 in overcharges to customers because of excess billing in October.

The commission ordered the company to credit customer accounts in the February billing cycle.

The overcharge was a result of a Federal Power Commission order lowering rates charged by Intermountain's supplier, Northwest Pipeline Corporation, effective Oct. 1, 1975.

On Oct. 22, the commission signed an order applying the decrease to a Nov. 2 increase requested to pass through a price hike on Canadian Natural Gas. In that order, the commission told Intermountain to propose a plan for refunding the October overcharge to its customers.

BOISE (UPI) - Lt. Gov. John V. Evans appointed Sen. Kermit V. Kiebert, D-Idaho, Thursday to the Western States Forest Industries Task Force.

Kiebert replaces Senate Minority Leader C. C. Chase, D-St. Maries.

Gas cutoff plan drawn

BOISE (UPI) - Intermountain Gas Company has presented to the Public Utilities Commission a natural gas curtailment plan which would require residential customers be cut off last in a shortage.

The commission said there are inequities in the priority system but said the UIC is powerless to resolve them.

Among the problems cited were:

- Inefficiency of gas logs used by residences and small commercial enterprises. Under the federal priorities these could burn while in districts closed.
- Fueler processors would be cut off before fertilizer production plants, thereby allowing potatoes to spoil during a shutdown while natural gas was utilized to produce fertilizer to grow more potatoes.
- No allowance under the federal priorities for wasteful residential customers who keep thermostats at 70 degrees without insulating their homes.
- A high consumption office building could have a higher priority than a sugar refinery even though both use the natural gas for boiler fuel.

Evel sets jumps

HONOLULU (UPI) - Motorcycle daredevil Evel Knievel is coming to Hawaii in September to make two more of his famous jumps.

Promoter Tom Morrella said Thursday night that the locations being considered include Diamond Head crater, Kaunali's Waimea Canyon, Aloha Stadium, "or even the Molokai Channel."

Morrella said the exact site of Knievel's jumps has not yet been determined, but if it takes place inside Diamond Head crater or at Aloha Stadium, "it will be over a number of vehicles, but not buses."

Knievel was injured in attempts to jump over buses last year.

Panel progress cited

BOISE (UPI) - Chairman Richard High of the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee said Thursday the committee was making great progress for this time of the session.

The Twin Falls Republican said the committee was ready to go with 10 supplemental appropriations. They are expected to be introduced by the first of next week.

The joint committee finished its budget hearings Wednesday.

Idaho pen near normal

BOISE (UPI) - Near normal conditions returned to the Idaho State Penitentiary today, with inmates going to meals unsecured and most prisoners reporting to their cells except for meals because of reported harassment of guards, rising tensions and harassment of inmates by other inmates.

Anderson said the prison staff went from cell house to cell house Thursday telling the men what they expected them to do.

"We got a pretty good reception," Anderson said.

Council bungles golf pro's ouster

The Twin Falls City Council bungled its Monday night hatchet job on city golf pro Clyde Thomsen.

In a 3-2 vote, the council released Thomsen from his contract for 1976 without granting the man a hearing. In the process, the council acted against the recommendation of the city's own Golf Advisory Committee.

Squeezing Thomsen out of a job only six weeks before the municipal course opens doesn't leave the 35-year-old veteran of Twin Falls much chance to find another job. The action against Thomsen is even more unfortunate in view of the fact that the only two councilmen who play golf at the municipal course had no quarrel with the pro's performance and voted to keep him on.

In a lame window-dressing effort, the City Council now has agreed to give Thomsen a hearing to discuss his dismissal. But Mayor Paul Ostyn won't say whether the hearing could lead to Thomsen's reinstatement.

A hearing is necessary. It is unfortunate that it will be held after the man was ousted, not before.

If the council is trying to undo the damage of its Monday night vote, Thomsen should be allowed to finish out the 1976 golf season as the municipal pro. That would give the council time to reconsider the decision and would be fair to a man who has given 15 years of service to Twin Falls golfers.

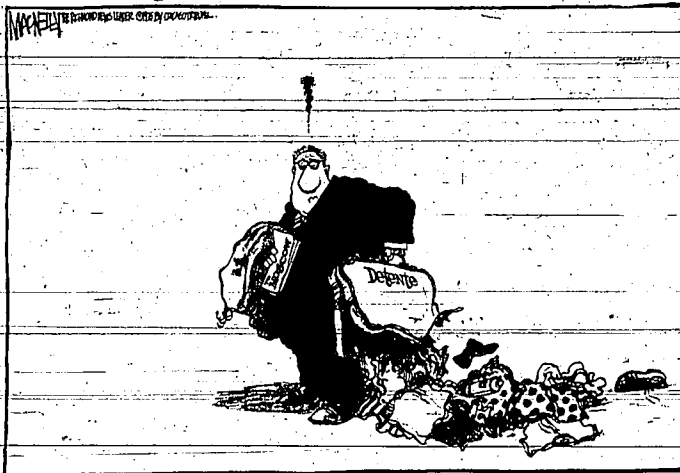

The charges against Thomsen, that he is a poor public relations man and that he is absent from the municipal course too much of the time, should be examined more carefully.

Thomsen claims his absence is due to public relations work he does for the Twin Falls golf course while playing in area golf tournaments.

The public relations problem also is puzzling since many members of the Twin Falls Men's Golf Association have endorsed Thomsen, showing no evidence that Thomsen has a public relations problem with the majority of golfers in town.

Perhaps there are underlying issues in the firing of Clyde Thomsen which the City Council and the pro haven't brought forward. For its own good the City Council should air the complete story of its action against Thomsen if there is more to the controversy than is presently known.

Otherwise, the best and most fair course now would be to reinstate Clyde Thomsen as golf pro through 1976 and forget the Monday night hatchet job.

Bureaucrats seldom lose in long war

WASHINGTON — Military observers in our town, intermittently assigned to the unending conflict, long ago laid down a rule for all ages: The bureaucrats may lose an occasional battle, but they seldom lose a war.

The rule is about to be tested one more time in the continuing struggle between the National Science Foundation and its foes in Congress. Experience suggests a pessimistic piece of advice: If you want to bet, bet on the NSF. But this time it may be different.

The opposing generals are Dr. H. Guyford Steyer, director of the NSF, and Congressman John B. Conlan, a representative from Arizona. Steyer is a 39-year-old veteran of a thousand skirmishes in academic thickets; he can summon massive reserve forces from the scientific community. Conlan is a 45-year-old lawyer now serving his second term in the House. About the best that can be said for Conlan is that his strength is as the strength of ten because his heart is pure.

This is war for survival, and within the mazes of the NSF, the instincts for survival are keenly honed. Conlan's purpose is to abolish one of the foundation's major functions — the development and promotion of school curriculum programs. Conlan sees no valid reason, under the sun of under the Constitution, for an agency of the federal government to spend public funds on the preparation of textbooks and teaching materials. This he regards as a proper function of the private sector, in cooperation with state and local authorities.

The conflict thus involves a fundamental question of the role of the federal government in a free society. Virtually all conservatives (and some liberals also) support Conlan's view. Virtually all liberals (but few conservatives) support the NSF. In a Congress dominated by liberal Democrats, Conlan's cause appears hopeless.

JAMES KILPATRICK

All is not lost. Last fall Conlan zeroed in on a target: The NSF had spent some $7 million of the taxpayers' money on the development and sales promotion of "Man: A Course of Study," known as "MACOS," the 11th-grade teaching materials had aroused passionate controversy across the country. Some teachers through MACOS tremulous; many parents found it outrageous.

Conlan is a dummy. He has pretty fair intellectual credentials in his own right (Harvard Law. Fulbright scholar, graduate studies in International Law). He lost to MACOS and other NSF curriculum innovations. He offered an amendment to the NSF budget authorization to stop the foundation's promotion and marketing activities. He lost the battle, but he didn't lose by much—199 to 215. And when he carried the fight to the Appropriations Committee, he won a substantial victory.

Steyer's forces have regrouped. The foundation is conducting a kind of flanking operation, just months in stages of beat-the-drum meetings in Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas, Denver, San Francisco, Boston and Washington. This month it is inviting bids on $750,000 worth of contracts for studies of pre-college curriculums in science, mathematics and social science. These are skillful maneuvers containing no hint of retreat.

Conlan is on the right side of the fundamental issue. It is clear now, in retrospect, that the NSF's untested new math was a blunder. With NSF backing, the glitzy innovators of "new math" succeeded in imposing their untested techniques on schools across the nation. The innovators, disdained old-fashioned memorization of arithmetic skills; they taught "set theory" and "Babylonian numeration" instead; and they reserved a generation of young men and women who can't make change for a five-dollar bill.

The MACOS affair was another blunder. How many such fiascos, Conlan asks, must be tolerated? In his view, private publishing houses and unqualified textbook writers are entirely capable of producing all the teaching materials our schools require. With good reason, he fears the supremacy of an elite intellectual network having access to millions of tax dollars. He wanted the federal government out of the textbook business.

Congressmen come and go, it is noted, but bureaucrats stay on forever. Conlan has a hunch of a fight ahead. But if parents who share his apprehension will put pressure on their own congressmen, he just might win.

letters Stockholder defends Sierra Life

Editor, Times-News:
I think I owe Fred Frazier, Sierra Life, "What do you do for a living?" He would have to reply, "I sell newspapers."

It took over 15 years to build this truly beautiful company. It took Fred Frazier, one of the finest business men the Northwest has ever seen, thousands of hours and much genius to bring hundreds of jobs and millions of out-of-state dollars into Twin Falls.

It took just a few weeks of slanted headlines in the Times-News to place their subscribers in jeopardy of having this fine company take its home office elsewhere.

Your headlines would be easy to combat except that you have the only game in town. Your editorial last night claiming that your pen did not hurt Sierra shows that you do not know how powerful a weapon your newspaper is. Allowing you to run a newspaper is more dangerous than letting my five year old nephew land a 747 in Times Square.

Every allegation that you have printed against Sierra has come from one bureaucrat or another, none of whom ever generated one dime of profit in his life and in fact each is paid his salary from institutions just like Sierra. As to why these bureaucrats wanted to display their egos in this manner is anyone's guess, but it is no guess that they broke laws of ethics. If not statutory laws by saying anything before Sierra had been given a hearing.

If you really wanted to be fair to Sierra and to your readers who own a lot of Sierra, why didn't you try some of these headlines?

—Sierra must be the most solvent in the land!

—This is a true-love-even after your blunts, Sierra Life could now donate all the questionable assets to the fiscal dog pound and still show nearly a half a million dollars more in assets than legally needed for policy reserves.

Or this one... Sierra was all hearts! How come this positive truth never came out as a headline?

Or if you are really watching out for your customers, try this one... Assets even better than owned by Sierra!

You could have done some honest research and found that Fred Frazier has never released a company asset unless Sierra got more for it than the company books claimed it to be worth.

This headline could have helped a lot of people.

... Don't cash in your life policies!

Your articles caused some confusion in this department and the only ones hurt by it are the people buying the Times-News. As those policies get older the cash values increase quite rapidly and the cost of the insurance diminishes each year. Cashing them in doesn't hurt Sierra as much as it does the individual. I hope your customers don't hate you too much for neglecting to print this headline.

If you knew something about life companies you might have printed...

Prudential, Metropolitan, Equitable and New York Life have their assets questioned also!

From Prudential down to Punduk Life, every life company has more than one examiner audit per year and any company that has been in business for more than a year has had an auditor question some of their assets... This is no claim at all. It happens to all companies at nearly every audit... and it is generally handled quietly to everyone's satisfaction by the company and the commissions. Only in Twin Falls, Idaho is it publicized like the Manson Trial.

If you had once said in a headline "Sierra never in danger!"

There, possibly 100 life insurance agents wouldn't have to find new jobs and Sierra wouldn't have to train 100 more so that they can buy your paper and spend more dollars at over the Magic Valley.

For the record each of the questioned assets was verified and accepted by the Insurance Commissioner of the State of Idaho before Sierra acquired them. Why you chose to try and crucify this company on the basis of a rumor started by one of the underlings of this same commissioner, I suppose will remain a mystery.

I'm just a run-of-the-state stockholder who passes through Twin Falls once in a while. Right now I'm looking for more Sierra stock.

Like the company and the man that's running it, he obviously hasn't seen fit to pass the time of day with you.

You'll have to excuse the yellow, tablet paper. I was going to re-type this letter, but somehow the color seems appropriate.

Angolan questions

Christian Science Monitor
Amid the confusion that surrounds the Angola problem, one development at least should be reassuring to Americans: President Ford is reported to be opposed to any United States combat or adviser role in the former Portuguese colony and to regard the outcome of the civil war as of limited interest both to the U.S. and the Soviet Union. This should help allay any fears that this nation is about to get bogged down in another Vietnam-like quagmire.

It will frustrate the reader not to have a black-and-white answer to the dilemma of what to do. But that is the nature of the problem: What is sorely needed now is public clarity about the Administration's view of the situation. If the Russians intend to intervene in a heavy hand in Angola, that grave a threat would this pose to the West's national interests? To the actual supply lines? At what point would American aid to the anti-Soviet factions become intolerably costly?

As these points become clarified, we would suggest again that aid itself is not sufficient in any event. Washington should make an energetic effort to enlist the Africans themselves to take the initiative in insisting on the withdrawal of all foreign intervention. The ideal solution is that the Africans declare their own brand of "Monroe Doctrine" and decide their own affairs themselves.

Petition effort endorsed

Editor, Times-News:
A hearty "way to go" is due Lee Tucker and his son, Craig, for their petition efforts to protect declining deer, elk and sage grouse populations in their area.

It is people like Lee and his son who know what the game situation is in their area, because they are seeing it themselves, not periodically for a game count. We, of the Central Idaho Committee on Alcoholism (C.I.C.A.), would disagree with you in your saying that the necessary funding for such programs should not come from the taxes generated from the sale of alcoholic beverages. Even if this were to require the raising of the prices of alcoholic beverages sold through the State Liquor Dispensary, we feel that such steps are necessary.

The focus of our concerns lies in the Alcoholism Intoxication Treatment Act amendments that are coming before the legislature this month.

The existing law makes public drunkenness not a crime in Idaho after July 1, 1976. We feel this is a salutary step forward in our state's humane and honest treatment of alcoholism as a public health problem and sickness.

But without amendments, this law is unenforceable since it does not empower law enforcement officers to detain and/or transport intoxicated and incapacitated people to detoxification, evaluation and treatment cennumber of permits issued.

It is a startling experience, as I have had, when "out-of-state" hunters say the number of out-of-state permits should be decreased and the game populations need more protection. I've heard about declining deer and elk herds from farmers and ranchers alike and about their often futile efforts to close certain areas.

If you are also concerned about Idaho's game populations and (and) it is for some changes, I encourage you to write the Fish and Game Department and voice your opinions. It will be these efforts and the efforts of people like Lee Tucker and his son, which will bring about some necessary changes.

Amendments concern panel

Editor, Times-News:
It was with great pleasure we read your editorial of Jan. 6, 1978, in which you recommended that this was a year to adjust budget priorities for the State of Idaho to include state funded programs for "life" treatment and rehabilitation of alcoholics, not periodically for a game count.

We, of the Central Idaho Committee on Alcoholism (C.I.C.A.), would disagree with you in your saying that the necessary funding for such programs should not come from the taxes generated from the sale of alcoholic beverages. Even if this were to require the raising of the prices of alcoholic beverages sold through the State Liquor Dispensary, we feel that such steps are necessary.

The focus of our concerns lies in the Alcoholism Intoxication Treatment Act amendments that are coming before the legislature this month.

The existing law makes public drunkenness not a crime in Idaho after July 1, 1976. We feel this is a salutary step forward in our state's humane and honest treatment of alcoholism as a public health problem and sickness.

But without amendments, this law is unenforceable since it does not empower law enforcement officers to detain and/or transport intoxicated and incapacitated people to detoxification, evaluation and treatment centers. Nor does it provide for their detention and, if necessary, commitment to treatment. Nor does it provide for the funding of such measures.

We feel that since people who use autos and roads pay gasoline taxes, that it is reasonable to ask people who use alcoholic beverages to pay up to 10 per cent in taxes for the treatment, evaluation and rehabilitation of the casualties. Granted present taxes from alcohol use go to the general funds and are dispersed from there to education, highways and county and city government.

We feel that funding could, though, be made also to local and state alcoholism treatment programs.

The State of Idaho is one of the last states in our country, we feel, that still has the genuine chance of dealing constructively with its people problem, be they those of pollution, education of alcoholism, and thus enhance the life and safety of its people and communities.

We hope you will publish our response, and keep up your good work as a stimulating newspaper of thought and action in Twin Falls.

Sanford decides to call off Demo nomination bid

By United Press International
 FORTLAURENCE, N.C. — Gov. Terry Sanford has decided to withdraw as an active candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, according to a top aide.

Meanwhile, remaining Democratic candidates — many of whom were meeting with various special interest groups in Washington — learned they may spend an extra $1 million each because of inflation if they can raise the money.

Sanford, on leave as president of Duke University, called a news conference today on the university's campus in Durham, N.C., to make public his plans.

An aide who declined to be identified told UPI the 58-year-old Sanford no longer would campaign actively but that his name probably would remain on the ballots in the Massachusetts, New Hampshire and North Carolina primaries.

It was the end of Sanford's second presidential effort. The first, in 1972, ran on when George Wallace, trounced him in the North Carolina primary.

When he announced his 1976 candidacy last May, Sanford, one of the first "New South" Democrats to enter segregationist politics, said of Wallace: "I am the man to take him on."

His decision to withdraw could put another moderate former southern governor, Jimmy Carter of Georgia, in a stronger position against Wallace.

Carter, who made the strongest showing among Democrats in the Iowa precinct caucuses Monday, faces Wallace in similar caucuses in Mississippi Saturday.

Sanford recently had to stop campaigning for two weeks when he was hospitalized for chest pains in Mayabed, Mass. But published accounts quoted an aide as saying his decision was based not on health but on "political realities."

In Washington, the Federal Election Commission raised the spending limits for presidential candidates by nearly $1 million each because the law provides for an increase to match any rise in the Consumer Price Index from one year to the next.

The 9.1 per cent increase applied as well to congressional candidates and to the amount each party may spend on its national political convention.

There were these activities among the 10 announced Democratic candidates still in the presidential race:

— Carter said in Washington, "I think abortion is wrong," but that he would not favor either a constitutional amendment or state or federal laws to prohibit it.

— Sen. Henry Jackson proposed a health program including national health insurance, expansion of Medicare, malpractice insurance at reasonable rates, a cabinet-level Department of Health, and mandatory use of generic drugs in all federally financed health programs.

— Rep. Morris DeLoe told a consumer group that lack of effective regulation of private utilities has resulted in windfall profits and high power bills, and called for reforms.

On the Republican side:

— President Ford told New Hampshire editors he is considering a long list of possible running mates, including Commerce Secretary designate Elliot Richardson and Sens. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Howard Baker and William Brock of Tennessee.

— Ford's campaign aides in New Hampshire attacked Ronald Reagan's claim of frugality with a five-page analysis calling Reagan "the biggest taxer and spender of any governor in California's history."

— Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., and, below right, Sen. Bill Brock, R-Tenn. Ford also told a group of New Hampshire editors it was "unfortunate and tragic" he had to agree to eliminate George Bush from consideration in bargaining with the Senate for his confirmation as CIA director. (UPI)

Ford veto overridden

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has dealt President Ford his first defeat of 1976 by overruling his veto of a bill to make the Secretary of the Treasury a member of the National Security Council.

The Senate vote was 72 to 16, 13 votes more than the two-thirds needed to override.

The House of Representatives is expected to support the Senate action although a vote has not yet been scheduled.

There was no opposition to the bill when it passed the House.

The National Security Council was created to advise the president on, and integrate all domestic, foreign and military policies affecting national security.

Members are the President, Vice president, secretary of state and secretary of defense.

— Sen. Henry Jackson proposed a health program including national health insurance, expansion of Medicare, malpractice insurance at reasonable rates, a cabinet-level Department of Health, and mandatory use of generic drugs in all federally financed health programs.

— Rep. Morris DeLoe told a consumer group that lack of effective regulation of private utilities has resulted in windfall profits and high power bills, and called for reforms.

Drug tests 'slack'

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration has failed to adequately monitor human testing of new drugs, according to a two-year study by the General Accounting Office released Thursday.

The FDA has conducted only limited inspections to determine if drug sponsors are obeying the law, the report said. In those inspecting that agency found that most drug manufacturers were not fully complying with the strict requirements to insure that human test subjects are being protected and that test data is accurate and reliable, the GAO reported.

There were about 4,600 active new drug investigations involving about 25,000 test subjects as of June 30, 1974, Gerson, a staff director of the GAO's Manpower and Welfare Division, told a Senate health committee hearing chaired by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Kennedy, in an opening statement, said "that despite assurance to the public that the standards of drug clearance in this country are the highest in the world," the GAO study "indicates there are common violations of patients' rights."

Corps clear

SAN GLENN, Calif. (UPI) — Fire investigators have cleared the Marine Corps of blame for a 2,400-acre brush fire that destroyed 10 expensive homes and damaged six others near former President Richard Nixon's ocean-side estate.

The fire was contained and controlled Thursday and mop-up operations continued today.

The fire did more than $1 million damage, Fire Chief Ron Coleman said Thursday. A total of 39 persons were injured, 15 of them — mostly policemen and firemen — overcome by smoke hospitalized.

Beame paints grim picture

NEW YORK (UPI) — In a grim "State of the City" message, Mayor Abraham Beame said New York City's attempt to save itself from default is in serious jeopardy because of the continuing effects of the nation's recession.

Beame said Thursday this year's budget deficit could be $80 million higher than anticipated because of unexpected declines in tax revenues and higher costs of welfare, energy and health insurance.

"The underlying issue is painfully simple," Beame said. "The tax base of our city cannot support the services our people need."

In his strongest language on the subject to date, Beame told a joint session of the City Council and Board of Estimate he faces an "economic paradox:

"When we lay off workers, our welfare and social costs increase. When we raise taxes, we drive corporate and individual taxpayers from our borders. When we cut programs and reduce services, we jeopardize the quality of life in the city."

"If we borrow to pay for current needs, we mortgage our future. If we increase the subway fare, the responsive consumer price index tightens its inflationary grip," he said.

"It is obvious the city cannot solve its problems alone," said Beame. "Our options are severe and narrow. The margin we seek is the margin for survival."

The mayor's proposals included a state takeover of the city's university system, which likely would end free tuition, a tax abatement program to attract industry and jobs, a law requiring new city employees to live within the city, state takeover of the criminal justice system, more state funding for hospitals and middle-income housing and regional financing of public transportation.

Kansas bill asks ban on pay toilets

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Women's rights may have come a long way, but a Kansas lawmaker says a "fundamental need" of women is being blatantly violated in one area — pay toilets.

"Women and others at the bottom of the economic ladder should not be required to pay to accommodate a fundamental need," Rep. James Lawing, DWichita, told a House committee Thursday.

The legislator said pay toilets discriminate against women. He urged support of a bill he introduced prohibiting pay toilets in Kansas.

Lawing said a survey of restrooms at a Denver airport showed 68 per cent of the women's toilets required a dime for usage while only 28 per cent of the men's toilets required the charge.

The reason for the difference is obvious, Lawing said.

"Due to a physiological difference, men need the use of a commode less frequently than do women; and, a commode suitable to 'nature' conducive to a pay lock than is a stand-up urinal," he said.

Kennedy off ballot

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Sen. Edward Kennedy has requested his name be left off the California Democratic primary election ballot for President, Secretary of State March Pong Eu said Thursday.

"I am not and do not intend to be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States in 1976," Kennedy said in a letter.

Soldiers fined $50

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (UPI) — Six soldiers who refused to take the field in temperatures 65 degrees below zero during an Alaska training exercise last month have been fined $50 each and returned to duty.

The soldiers, not identified, are members of the 1st Brigade, 9th Infantry Division. They balked during exercise Mountain Thrust near Fort Wainwright on Dec. 6. The exercise later was suspended because of the extreme cold.

Embroidery shown

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower visited a department store to share her latest embroidery kit creations with 100 other stitchery enthusiasts.

Mrs. Eisenhower, showing her designs of rural scenes, flowers, and children's pictures, said she first learned crewel stitchery about eight years ago.

Court case ends in draw

HAYS, Kan. (UPI) — A canine paternity case in Ellis County Small Claims Court ended in a draw with the father of six puppies still undetermined.

Judge Tom Scott dismissed a suit by Tom Kinderknecht and a counter claim by Kenneth Wolf. Kinderknecht was assessed $5 in court costs.

"The plaintiff contended Wolf's dog entered a fenced pen and mated with his dog, Wolf conceded his dog mated with Kinderknecht's hunting dog, but contended other dogs also may have done so."

Whitney in hospital

THOMASVILLE, Ga. (UPI) — Former New York Herald Tribune publisher and motion picture pioneer John Hay Whitney, 72, is recovering from a heart attack at the John D. Archbold Memorial Hospital in Thomasville, where he has a winter retreat.

Whitney, of Manhasset, N.Y., was chairman of the board of Selznick International Pictures, when he produced "Gone With the Wind" and is regarded as a pioneer in the color motion picture field.

St. Paul celebration begins

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — St. Paul started its annual celebration today to prove an old-time New York newspaperman was all wrong and that Minnesota winters can be a lot of fun.

It's the St. Paul Winter Carnival, featuring a 48-foot high ice palace, snowmobiling, cross-country ski touring, ski jumping, an ice fishing contest, golf in the snow, national outdoor speed skating championships, hockey, sled dog racing, and auto racing on ice.

Back in 1885 some eastern newspapermen visited St. Paul and a New Yorker wrote: "Minnesota is another Siberia — unfit for human habitation in the winter."

St. Paul arched its back. The next year it started the winter carnival to prove it's fun to play in the snow and cold.

Earl Wingard of the Minneapolis Tribune wrote in 1956 that St. Paul should erect a statue of the New York newspaperman alongside the Peace Indian in City Hall with the inscription: "Sleets-and-stones-may-break our bones, but names can only make us, the winter fun capital of the world."

St. Paul thinks it has pretty well made its point.

A 500-mile, $105,000 snowmobile race from St. Paul to Winnipeg, Canada, which ended Thursday afternoon, provided a running buildup for the 1976 carnival. Brian Nelson of Willmar won first place and prize money totaling about $21,000.

"Today was the first full day of events in the 10-day carnival."

Thousands of men, housewives, working girls and kids bundled in winter clothing will search for a Winter Carnival medalion, which the St. Paul Pioneer Press and Dispatch buried in the snow somewhere in St. Paul.

The finder, directed by published daily clues, gets at least $1,000 for finding it, or $2,500 if he or she bought a carnival badge before midnight Sunday — $1,500 if the finder buys one after Sunday.

A bunch of fun-loving vulcanos in red suits, charcoal on their faces, ran around giving balloons and candy to kids and rubbing cheeks with the ladies.

CAP offers alternatives

BOISE — Citizens for Alternatives to Pioneer, after studying Idaho power's history before the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, say the proposed power plant is not necessary.

Cliff Idaho Power's position that southern Idaho is a "black hole" for its present rate, CAP says the area will probably grow at about the rate of the past four years.

"We don't think the new and old residential customers are going to use 72 per cent more electricity, especially when the rates increase," says William L. Smallwood, chairman of CAP.

"We think it is absurd to project that the new and old businesses in southern Idaho are going to use an average of 2.35 times the amount of electricity they used in 1974. And it becomes more absurd if Pioneer were to be built and that rate goes up the projected 2.35 times," Smallwood says.

CAP claims it is untrue that irrigation pumping is one of the main reasons the Pioneer plant is needed. According to CAP, Idaho Power's testimony does not agree with those claims.

CAP says the power company needs that investment for irrigation pumping would account for only eight per cent of the total growth in electrical consumption projected between 1974 and 1980.

Idaho Power will be increasing its production about per cent without Pioneer, CAP says, and in 1974, 500 megawatts were added from a new plant in the Pioneer area. Wyoming, CAP says another 167 megawatts from the fourth unit of that plant will be added.

In addition, CAP says, 70 megawatts of new production will be added, such as the American Falls Dam is reconstructed and an additional 225 megawatts of peaking capacity is to be built into Browning Dam.

All these projects "represent a significant growth of electricity production which our organization supports," Smallwood says. "These are good alternatives to Pioneer."

CAP cites another alternative as the fact that southern Idaho has its highest demand for power in the summer while the reverse is true in the rest of the Pacific Northwest.

"We believe that if Idaho Power can sell surplus electricity to utilities in the Northwest in the winter, there should be a policy requiring this company to purchase any summertime peak needs from Northwest utilities," Smallwood says.

He says by law, the Northwest has prior right to the surplus power, though most now goes to California.

CAP says it also supports hydroelectric production on some rivers, alternate sources of energy such as wind and geothermal energy, and a hydroelectric pumped "pump storage" which uses surplus electricity available during the night to pump water from a lower reservoir back to a level where it can be reused during the day.

The Corps of Engineers, CAP says, predicts, each "pump storage" site can economically produce 1,000 megawatts — the capacity of the proposed Pioneer plant and four times that output of Bonneville Dam.

CAP is officially intervening in the Pioneer case before the IUPUC next month and must file in expert witnesses from different parts of the country. CAP says none of the alternatives are charging a fee, but that plane tickets and a small expense account must be paid.

Photographers plan meet

TWIN FALLS — The Professional Photographers of Idaho will hold their ninth annual convention Saturday through Monday at the Holiday Inn here.

The welcoming address will be given by Ethel Carr, Boise, president of the group.

Featured speakers are Stuart and Ursula Craig, Salt Lake City; Rocky Gunn, Palos Verdes, Calif.; and Don Condit, Portland, Ore.

Subjects to be covered include illustrative wedding photography, indoor and outdoor portraits and commercial photography.

Registration is Saturday. Convention chairman is Clarence Dudley, Twin Falls.

Renewal due by Jan. 31

TWIN FALLS — Idaho motorists with license plates on the staggered system ending in one, "1," displaying "20," red and white stickers are reminded their license expires Jan. 31 and must be renewed.

The registration must be issued by the possessor's office and must be carried in the vehicle at all times while the vehicle is operated upon a highway within the state.

Stickers such as "level trailers" and motor homes, truck campers, camping trailers and van conversions, must be licensed and display a recreational vehicle sticker in addition to any valid license plate needed for the vehicle.

The new recreational vehicle law became effective Jan. 1. Four-foot recreational vehicles are assessed at $3 per $1,000 valuation, with recreational units over $10,000 market value being taxed at $70 plus one-half of one per cent of the value over $10,000.

Stickers are required to be licensed and display snowmobile stickers on both sides of the front part of the snowmobile. However, these operators will not pay the $2 registration fee and not the additional recreational vehicle fee.

TWIN FALLS — The Antislavery Men's Caucus Local 300, meeting in Twin Falls Tuesday, denounced the "Ford administration and other right wingers' campaign to 'cripple the food stamp program'."

"Partner, I think we can make seven." Of course, if you are sure you can make the seven you go ahead and bid it.

West's three-club bid was one of those nonvulnerable bids that some players try on occasion. North's Blackwood four-notrump was a slight overbid, but he liked his distribution. East's seven-club bid was a bid of pressure on South but South was ready.

South studied his hand carefully. His heart suit was good. He had both minor suits aces and the queen of spades. It was just unthinkable for North to be Blackwooding without ace-king of spades and the queen of South bid the bid down grand slam.

Ask the Jacobys

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Once in a while some nasty opponents interfere with your Blackwood call by bidding over it.

There are lots of ways to handle this sort of interference. The one we like to use is to double to show no ace, pass to show one ace and bid no more.

If you yield to your opponent's interferer at such a high level that you have to bid MODERN, send $1 to: "Win seven if you bid at all? In this at Bridge," c/o this case you simply double to say: "Partner, I don't think we can make seven." Pass to say: N.Y. 10019)

Halley, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley:
Cloudy with areas of night and morning valley fog and low clouds. A chance of snow flurries, becoming colder and partly cloudy by Saturday. Highs Saturday mostly in the 20s. Lows tonight below zero.

The outlook for Sunday, little change.

A cold front was lying in a southwest direction from Canada and Montana, through southern Idaho and northern California into the Pacific ocean this morning. This front is associated with a low pressure area now in Canada.

The only significant weather change so far has been light snow falling throughout the valley since early this morning. The front has not been strong enough to blow away the persistent fog which has been in the area for the past few days.

Another high pressure is forecast to move into Idaho behind this front. The only significant weather change expected is a lowering of temperatures to several degrees below normal for the next several days.

The extended outlook for Sunday through Tuesday calls for mostly dry weather with temperatures slightly below normal. Highs will be in the 30s and lows in the teens.

Contract Beans planning contract legality test

TWIN FALLS — Contract Beans Inc. plans to test the legality of contracts which allow seed companies to reject seeds and deny growers a full settlement.

Presently, seed companies may reject seeds which fail to meet their germination standards and deny the grower a full settlement in such cases. The association estimates some 600 acres of beans are in question.

The association says some seeds have a genetic weakness, weather determines germination results to a large degree, and much deterioration occurs in the warehouse. For these reasons, the association argues, the grower should not be held responsible for germination results unless he has "flagrantly abused" the crop.

According to Louis Reiter, president of the association, growers are encouraged to refrain from signing a contract this year unless they can gross at least $400 per acre.

New officers were elected for Contract Beans Inc. at its Monday meeting at the College of Southern Idaho. The new board of directors includes Dev Keckler, Walker Carr and Robert Pershing.

Other board members are Leroy Arrington, Don Wright, Jack Warren, Clint Stephens and Louis Reinke. This leaves the Eden and Gooding areas temporarily vacant.

Dr. David Carter, soil and water conservation researcher, spoke at the meeting, encouraging growers to secure their soil against water erosion.

Carter told the group to use no more water in a furrow than necessary, not to make their crops too long, not to drain waste water off too high, to install settling ponds where the water leaves the farm and to avoid row cropping land with more than a two per cent drop.

Ted Diehl, manager of the North Side Canal Co., encouraged letters to legislators showing positive ways. Diehl spoke against minimum flow telling the association their water rights are "not indestructible."

Hugo Meyer, Ellert, gave an analysis of production cost prepared by the Agricultural Marketing Association which gave the cost per acre as $275 to grow commercial beans.

Idaho dry pea crop off 28%

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's dry edible pea crop in 1975 is estimated at 359,000 hundredweight, the Idaho Crop and Forestry weekly summary reported Wednesday.

The production estimate is 28 per cent below the previous year but 54 per cent above the low production of 1973.

Acres harvested at 69,000 is 22 per cent below last year.

The 1975 yield, at 1,300 pounds per acre, is the lowest since 1944 except for 1973 when the yield was placed at 1,300 pounds.

Damage from pea leaf weevil reduced yields in a number of areas.

Wrinkled seed pea production for the state at 637,000 hundredweight was 12 percent below last year.

Austrian Winter Pea production totaled 270,000 hundredweight in 1975 — the lowest production since 1958 when 210,000 hundredweight were produced. The yield per acre of 770 pounds was the lowest of record dating back to 1949.

Acres harvested at 35,000 was the lowest in 10 years when 29,000 acres were harvested.

Length output in the state was 100,000 hundredweight in 1975, a 10 percent drop from the 1974 crop of 210,000 hundredweight. Production of lentils in Washington State totaled 1,025 hundredweight and production for the two states totaled 1.35 million hundredweight, compared with 663,000 hundredweight the year before.

Corn acreage increase seen in US in '76

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers tentatively intend to boost corn acreage 4 per cent this year, making possible a second straight record crop when combined with restrained retail food price increases, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said a survey of farmers' planting intentions Jan. 1 indicated plans to plant 4.8 million acres of corn this spring compared with the 7.9 million acres planted last year.

The report, which will be followed by another intentions survey in April, made no production forecast. But the feed grain acreage appeared big enough — if farmers get good weather — to produce a record harvest which could help hold 1976 retail food prices in check, analysts here reported over 1975, an Agriculture analyst said.

The report showed soybean growers, apparently discouraged by sharp price declines for their big 1975 crop, intend to cut planting to 50.9 million acres, down 7 per cent from last year.

But intentions for all livestock feed grains combined — corn, sorghum, oats and barley — were up 126.1 million acres. This was up 2 per cent from 1975, a 3 million acre — from 1973 despite the fact that prices for last year's harvest were down 10-15%.

Cotton growers plan to increase acreage by 17 per cent, the report showed, with indicated acreage of durum wheat up by 6 per cent and planting of other spring wheat up 5 percent.

Another big crop report is also being prepared for continued heavy grain exports which take about two-thirds of the nation's wheat and a quarter of all corn produced.

The Soviet Union, which already has purchased more than 500 million bushels of wheat and corn from the 1975 harvest, has agreed to a long-term deal to buy at least 200 million bushels of the two grains combined in the year beginning in October.

Officials stress the reported plans may be subject to change as farmers continue to consider factors including weather and economic conditions.

Corn prospects play a major role in food price forecasts because corn is the chief raw material for livestock feeds — including milk, meat, and poultry products. If weather conditions permit farmers to boost corn production again, the resulting abundant feed supply could encourage increased supplies of meat and other livestock foods.

It's too early to make a forecast about retail food prices for all of 1976, this crop hasn't even been planted yet, an Agriculture expert said.

But officials already have predicted retail food prices in the first half of 1976 will rise at an annual rate of 4.5 per cent, compared with 8.9 per cent last year and nearly 15 per cent in the two preceding years.

One specialist added that prices for all of 1976 "will certainly stay in the moderate zone" if crops are good again and expected gains in hog production materialize.

Challenge possible

BILLINGS, Mont. (UPI) — The National Wheat Growers Association was told Tuesday there are substantial legal grounds to challenge the grain agreement with the Soviet Union.

A representative of the Washington, D.C., law firm of Arent, Fox, Kintner, Plutkin and Kahn, retained by the association, is to study the legality of restrictions on export sales, reported substantial legal grounds exist to challenge both the agreement and actions arising from the moratorium on grain exports imposed last year.

The firm said the president and officials of the executive branch of government did not have authority under the Constitution or existing legislation to enter into the grain agreement with Russia. The firm said conduct of grain trading companies and officials of the executive branch to implement the moratorium may have violated anti-trust laws.

Grazing fee boost draws fresh blast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Livestock representatives from seven western states said Wednesday a 51 per cent increase in grazing fees could put some small ranchers out of business.

Cattle and sheepmen told the House Subcommittee on Public Lands and the ranchers most dependent on public lands for grazing are small producers. They said the impact of the 51-per-cent increase scheduled for March 1 would be much more widespread than the Bureau of Land Management believes.

Five congressmen including Rep. Jim Santini, D-Nev., listened two hours at the livestock representatives urged the approval of Santini's new grazing fee schedule. That proposal would take production costs and changes in range quality into consideration in setting fees.

Livestock representatives are asking the BLM delay implementing the increase. The Public Lands Subcommittee is scheduled to meet with BLM Director Curt Becklund Thursday to discuss the Santini proposal and ask a moratorium on the increase until the proposal is considered and voted upon. Privately, however, sources said it is doubtful BLM will delay the increase.

The raise from $1 per animal-unit-month to $1.51 for grazing on public lands was announced New Year's Day. BLM Nevada Director said it was part of a series of increases begun in 1969 to raise public grazing fees to a level comparable with private fees. He said the size of the increase was because BLM didn't raise fees last year because of the economic condition of the livestock industry.

The Nevada Board of Agriculture condemned the increase and called for approval of Santini's fee proposal.

Idaho wheat down

BOISE (UPI) — A survey by the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service found that Idaho farmers intend to seed 45,000 acres of spring wheat in 1976, a decrease of seven per cent from the 1975 crop.

Indicated wheat seedings, including both the intended spring wheat and the winter seedings published in December, are placed one per cent below a year earlier, at 1.46 million.

Barley plantings are expected to be 700,000 acres or two per cent below the 720,000 acres planted last year.

The intended corn acreage at 100,000 acres compares to 103,000 planted last year.

Growers intend to plant 130,000 acres of sugarcorns which is six per cent less than the 168,000 planted in 1975.

Elder Abegg to speak at Paul LDS confab

PAUL — Elder N. Taylor Abegg will speak Saturday and Sunday at the Paul LDS stake conference in the Paul Stake Center.

Abegg is regional representative to the Council of 12 Apostles of the LDS Church.

Stake President Keith C. Merrill Jr. will preside at the 10 a.m. session Sunday. Special music will be by the Hebburn First and Second Ward choirs.

Junior Sunday school will be conducted for the youngsters.

President Merrill said the public is welcome to the Sunday service.

Regular sacramental meetings will be conducted in the individual wards later Sunday.

A special meeting for professional leadership will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Elder Abegg is director of the Utah Engineering Experiment Station at the University of Utah. He graduated from that college in 1955 with a doctorate in fuel technology and physical chemistry.

Abegg has served in high council in Idaho states, as bishop of the Albuquerque Fourth Ward and later as stake president there.

He served most recently with the University Second Stake at the University of Utah until his call as a regional representative in May, 1973.

Woman leads primary

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Betty Snow has been named president of the Twin Falls West Stake Primary of the LDS Church.

She succeeds Renee Waldron who received a vote of appreciation from stake officials Sunday for five years as Primary president.

Mrs. Snow said she will work to help develop the talents and abilities of boys and girls of primary age by seeing each is involved in classes and primary activities, and to give each an understanding of religion.

The program involves some 700 children between the ages of 4 to 11 in eight wards in the west portion of Twin Falls County.

Mrs. Snow is a native of Los Angeles, Calif., and attended Dixie College in St. George, Utah, and Utah State University, Logan. She and her husband have lived in Twin Falls the past 17 years.

Mormons choose apostle

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — David W. Haight, former mayor of Palo Alto, Calif., has been named to the Council of the Twelve Apostles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Haight, a 49-year-old business and civic leader in California before becoming an Assistant to the Twelve in 1970, fills the vacancy created by the death Dec. 2 of Hugh B. Brown.

"My concern in embarking on this new assignment is, how can I measure up—have never been called to a position I felt I was adequately prepared for. But that's part of the refiner's process. You just get in harness and go," said Haight.

Haight served two terms as mayor of Palo Alto and was a director of Stanford-Palo Alto Hospital as well as a leader in Red Cross and Boy Scout activities.

He is managing director of the church's Melchizedek Priesthood Department, responsible for quorum instruction and training. He is also area supervisor for the Central South Area of the United States, supervising the missions in that area.

Haight was president of the Scottish Mission and served three years as assistant to the president of Brigham Young University. He was born in 1926 in Oakley, Idaho and married the former Ruby Olson of Fairview, Utah. They have a married daughter, two married sons and 18 grandchildren.

Ski addicts hear Sermon on Mount

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — You might call it a "Sermon on the Mount."

It's the Rev. John Herrmann's way of bringing the word of God to skiers.

The Rev. Mr. Herrmann, 27, pastor of Halley's Lutheran Church, found it difficult to get ski addicts to come to church on Sunday. So he decided to take church to them — on the slopes.

Last Sunday he and his wife, Sandy, flew by helicopter to the Roundhouse, a slope restaurant on Bald Mountain, the resort's main ski lift. There were several skiers relaxing in the sun with a beer or lunch.

Pastor Herrmann announced a service but finally decided just to stand by and preach. Several skiers pulled up their chairs to hear what he had to say.

Standing at more than 10,000 feet, the pastor told them, "You come up here and there are rocks in the sky — but there are bigger rocks in our life." He advised them to turn to God for help with "these bigger rocks of life."

Pastor Herrmann acknowledged it was difficult to begin his "Renewal at the Roundhouse" program. But he said he felt that "God was with me in that situation."

He plans, weather permitting, to preach every Sunday at the Roundhouse: "He reasons that skiers want to ski but that they probably want to have Sunday devotion" as well.

"I feel a burden to do this," he said.

DEAR ABBY: I am a respectable, married, God-fearing person. Something has been weighing heavily on my conscience for nearly 20 years, and I hear that you can help me to make things right with the Lord.

When I was between 12 and 13 years old, my mother was the church Ladies Aid treasurer. I used to take a dollar or two out of her "church purse" every now and then. I don't think she ever knew that money was missing. I figure that over the years I must have taken $25 or $30.

I want to give that money back to the church, but I don't want them to know where it came from. I heard that if I sent you a check for that amount, you would send the church your own check for the same amount without any mention of my name.

That way, they'd be paid back, and my conscience would be clear. Will you do it? God bless you.

GUILTY CONSCIENCE

DEAR GUILTY: Yes, I will. I have been the go-between for many who have stolen from their employers, friends, and even from their families. Make the check payable to me, and I will send my personal check to whomever you designate.

Abby helps reader

DEAR ABBY: I am a professional woman. I married five years ago and the marriage was going badly, so I adopted a child to hold the marriage together. That was a big mistake as I later learned.

We were divorced, and now I have met another man. He said he would marry me in a minute but he doesn't want a 4-year-old daughter. He is 50. I am 40.

The child is adorable and she deserves to be in a home where she is wanted. Please don't think I am a terrible mother, but I honestly don't have the time for her and I wasn't cut out to be a mother.

I love this man and want to marry him. What should I do about my daughter? I will be the first to admit that I am —

A POOR EXCUSE FOR A MOTHER

DEAR POOR: At least you're honest, which is to your credit.

It's not too late for the child to find adoptive parents who want her. Discuss this with your lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: This has been bugging me for a long time, so I finally decided to write to you.

Maybe I should tell you that I am a 13-year-old girl. Sometimes after dinner, our family talks over the events of the day. My mother will say to me, "Get out of the room for a minute. Your father and I want to talk about something."

Abby, if they want to talk about something in private, don't you think THEY should go out of the room? I have told them this but they won't listen.

PUSHED-OUT DAUGHTER

DEAR PUSHED: Your parents' privacy kick seems unnecessary to me. I agree with you, but do as you're told, and no big, honey!

81% increase seen in Gooding income

GOODING — Total income in Gooding County increased approximately 81 per cent in the eighth year period from 1965 to 1972, according to a recently released study.

As a result, Gooding County has risen from its previous 1965 state-wide ranking of 23rd among Idaho's 44 counties, to 24th place in 1972.

These and other facts became known as a result of a study conducted by W. LaMar Bollinger, professor of economics at the College of Idaho, Caldwell. In his study, "Personal Income in Idaho Counties 1965-1972."

During the same period Gooding county's population rose only slightly, from 9,139 to 9,300, and the number of farms within the county decreased from 864 to 741.

Although county-wide farm employees salaries rose from $1,266,000 in 1965 to $1,543,000 in 1972 — this modest 18 per cent increase wasn't enough to keep up with the same period's inflation rate of 33.4 per cent according to the U.S. Department of Labor Statistics. The study doesn't identify whether this small gain is due to farm salaries being paid or a drop in the number of farm employees earning them.

Proprietors (owners) farm incomes did better, rising from $1,685,000 to $7,289,000 which would tend to indicate more profitable farm operations than at the beginning year of the study.

Incomes of employees in the food processing category more than doubled and lumber products manufacturing incomes almost doubled, according to Bollinger's figures.

Railroad employee incomes and persons engaged in wholesale and retail commerce also came very close to doubling their earnings.

Salaries for employees of governmental, federal, state, and local amounted to the largest county's payrolls and sources of income. These incomes amounted to $3,546,000 in 1972 compared to $2,519,000 in 1965, and earned by 27.4 per cent of the total incomes carried by all Gooding County residents.

Contract construction payroll, jumped from $279,000 in 1965 to almost six times that amount ($1,339,000) in 1972 which could be the result of capital improvements by farmers.

Since net population increased only 20 persons per year, it is not expected that any significant building of new homes would account for the stable increase in contract construction.

SV project receives nod

SUN VALLEY — Following on the heels of two new large developments in Sun Valley, a third proposal which will include nearly 90 new condominium units has received preliminary approval for construction here this spring.

Duvilly-Fenton Associates expect to start development on a new Sun Valley acre village this spring. In addition, Elkhorn resort expects to construct a new hotel convention center.

New California, developer Tom Dempsey wants to erect some 90 condominium units on Dollar Mountain across from the Village Property Management condominiums here.

James Barnett, Sun Valley planning and zoning chairman, said Dempsey was given preliminary approval this week. He said the project is to include 80 units this spring, with the additional 50 to follow sometime in the future.

Dempsey is still to provide the landscaping plan, Barnett said Dempsey was the developer of Horton's 4, a condominium complex in West Ketchum.

Dempsey's manager here said the developer was ready to give out details of the project. Dempsey was out of town.

Theoretically, the three new developments will tie into the Ketchum-Sun Valley water district lines. However, the Environmental Protection Agency has set strict guidelines on the amount of effluent that can be dumped into the river.

O'Leary dress-up day

SCENES — In the halls of Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School Wednesday were reminiscent of the 1950s as students dressed in the styles of that era. Carl Snow, principal, said just about everybody, including the faculty, participated in the dress-up day which was a combination school spirit activity before a ball game with Robert Stuart and celebration of the end of the first semester.

"Some of those girls looked real cute, reminded me of some I used to know," Snow said. He said some of the boys had their hair all "greased down."

Snow said most of the faculty members brought a picture of themselves taken during the 1950s. The pictures were displayed and "the kids had a real good time pointing and giggling."

He said that during a pep assembly, faculty members did the jitterbug to show what dances were like in the '50s, and answered questions about how things were in junior high when they were growing up. Students were surprised at the price of hamburgers — 15 cents — Snow said.

Snow said there was a school sock hop after the ball game and O'Leary was the ninth-grade A and B games.

Imported spuds processed in Idaho sparks concern

By CHRIS PECK
Times-News writer

BLACKFOOT — Idaho Potato Growers say out-of-state potatoes being processed in Idaho are hurting the state's potato farmers.

Alan Huntsman, executive secretary of the Idaho Potato Growers, said Wednesday more than seven million hundredweight of Oregon and Washington potatoes will be processed in Idaho this year.

The out-of-state spuds are surplus potatoes which processors buy at a depressed price, Huntsman said.

If Idaho growers want to sell potatoes to local processors they must accept the depressed price being paid to Oregon and Washington growers, Huntsman claimed.

"Most of our potato crop is in storage right now because the Idaho processors won't pay our asking price," Huntsman said.

Processing plants in Burley, Caldwell and Shamp are currently are buying out-of-state potatoes to meet part of their production schedules.

The head of the IPG charged that some processors actually are paying more for the out-of-state potatoes than they would pay for Idaho spuds when shipping costs and shrinkage are figured into the total price.

Huntsman suggested Idaho processors are buying out-of-state spuds in an attempt to force Idaho growers to lower their prices.

Idaho growers could easily provide all the potatoes needed to run the state's processing plants but are not growing all the potatoes he could because of the outside competition, he said.

Huntsman said the Idaho Potato Growers may lobby for state legislation banning the use of out-of-state potatoes in Idaho processing plants when local spuds are available.

Ore-Ida, Simplot and Carrington all buy Washington and Oregon potatoes at the present time, Huntsman said.

"Right now we don't have any legislation ready but we are very concerned about the effects of these out-of-state potatoes," Huntsman said. "We're looking into all possible avenues which could curtail the out-of-state potatoes from being processed in Idaho."

The seven million hundredweight of Oregon and Washington potatoes being processed in Idaho currently are only 10 per cent of the total number of potatoes processed in the state.

Huntsman said more Washington and Oregon potatoes will be processed in Idaho this year than in any other year.

Only 28.3 per cent of Idaho's 1975 potato crop has been processed so far, Huntsman said. In 1975 at this time 25 per cent of the Idaho potatoes had been processed.

AF Dam decision draws optimism

He said the approval has taken "a year longer than we anticipated in our wildest dreams." The "kicker" for getting the project going, he said, came in December when Congress approved a tax exemption for interest on project bonds, saving irrigators between $16 million and $17 million, he said.

Roger Ling, who had represented the Mindoka Irrigation District which failed to approve the dam replacement project, said he could not speak for Mindoka on whether that district would file suit to stop the project. He said that he had voted for replacing the dam as a member of the Committee of Eight, representing all of the spatcholders in the district, and not as a representative of the Mindoka Irrigation District.

Reservoir District President John Barker said, "I'm very pleased that the Committee of Eight directed us to go ahead and we shall proceed with all dispatch."

"I don't know what to think," Barker said regarding the possibility of a lawsuit holding up the project plans.

He said the first step now is to have all the proceedings on approval of the project approved by the Twin Falls County District Court. After that, the final plans and design of the project must be presented to the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation by Feb. 11, Barker said.

Five MV students named to academies

TWIN FALLS — Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, has announced nominations for United States service academies, including several from Magic Valley.

Douglas Wilkerson, Kimberly, has been nominated for the Air Force and Naval Academies. Wilkerson is the son of Mrs. Barbara Lukehart, Kimberly, and Irvin H. Wilkerson, Boise.

Clare Hesselholt, Buhl, has been nominated for the Air Force Academy. This is the first year women have been eligible for admission. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hesselholt.

Military academy nominations also go to Thomas Doerr, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Doerr, Twin Falls, and to Bret Scofield, Busby. Scofield is the son of CPO Russell Scofield and Mrs. Scofield.

Leonard Houston, son of Dr. and Mrs. Paul Houston, Sun Valley, has been nominated for the Naval Academy.

Each of these students now has the opportunity to compete for final appointment to the respective academies. Those who are appointed will enter the academies in July 1978.

Waterusers face quandary

Currently the MID does not have an attorney. The board voted 3-2 earlier this week not to renew the annual contract of Roger Ling as counsel.

One of the reasons cited was Ling's position in support of the dam construction. Ling is a member of the Committee of Eight and still counsel of A & B Irrigation District, but his contract with MID expired Jan. 1.

"The rest is said," Ketterling said of the American Falls project. "Our prices drop down as low as 10 years ago but other costs tripled or more."

He said, "I'm looking for the benefit of the younger generation. How are they expected to pay these bills? We can't pay for it on the prices we get for farm products."

Ketterling said milk prices "has gone way down, cattle are way down and beef are $12 and you can't sell them." He predicted that "a lot of farmers will go down the drain next year" because of the cost water.

"I don't want to lose our water," he said, "but I don't want to throw everything away."

Ling said the Boise decision means "everything is go" on letting bids and getting contracts signed with those that passed the election.

"American Falls" Reservoir District, the prime contractor for the project, already has bid on three segments of the equipment needed for dam construction. The contracts must be awarded soon and reservoir district president John Barker has described them as very satisfactory.

Parcel had the low bid of $1,328,000 for designing and furnishing five radial spillway gates (4x25 feet) and five radial gate hoists.

Ling said Steel Corporation had low bid of $261,339 for steel outlet liners and pumping plant intake pipeline and accessories.

Lakeside Bridge & Steel had low bid of $725,000 for three fixed-wheel intake gates, one intake bulkhead, specified accessories and designing and furnishing of gate hoists and accessories.

Ling said bids on the three segments "came back in at a considerable savings." He said eight national firms are interested in bidding on the total program and called that encouraging.

Representatives authorized to answer the project will begin work immediately on approval of plans and specifications. Ling said. They are Cecil Hobday, Gooding attorney; Thurston Schaffer, engineer with Newton Schaffer & Johnston of Twin Falls; and Robert Hogg, Idaho Power Co.

Ling said final Bureau of Reclamation approval of plans and specifications is expected at a Denver meeting on Feb. 10.

Barker said advertising of bids on the total project could come as early as March 13. He said construction could start in June, with the new dam completed and ready to fill again during the winter of 1977-78.

Torrid Eagles thump Ricks 93-60

College of Southern Idaho, burned Ricks College with a 93-60 victory Thursday night and coasted into the first half of their first big test of the winter regional series. The Eagles dominated everything, but particularly the basket.

With Gene Bowen, Ken Davis and Kim Goetz doing much of it, the Eagles hit seven of their first eight shots — mostly from the 15-20 foot range — and missed the only triple they had.

By halftime the Eagles were coasting along 60-35 as they repeatedly took the ball inside for short shots.

If there were any freer-throw thoughts harbored by Ricks fans of last Saturday night when Ricks came from 24 down at halftime to beat Eastern Utah 77-70, they were quickly dispelled by CSI. Ricks did get the deficit to 20 once — at 66-46 with 13:51 to go but, the Eagles then hit the next six points.

"I think we were mentally ready to play this one," said Coach Boyd Grant in one of the major understatements of the year.

He led his major difference in the forward line where Bowen was particularly outstanding in the first half. "They just couldn't stop us in the zone and we were a little too quick for them underneath. I believe that's what held our scoring down. In the second half, our forwards got freed — but that's my fault."

CSI couldn't complain about his defensive effort as they limited the usually high scoring Vikings to 60 points — just two-tenths above the Eagles' defensive average of the year. CSI scored 10 more than its offensive average.

The coach also trotted out two Western Athletic Conference officials for the game.

"We're going to use all WAC officials for our regional games here. They can use whoever they want to like they always do. But I'm not going to let them say we didn't bring in outside officials for our games," Grant said.

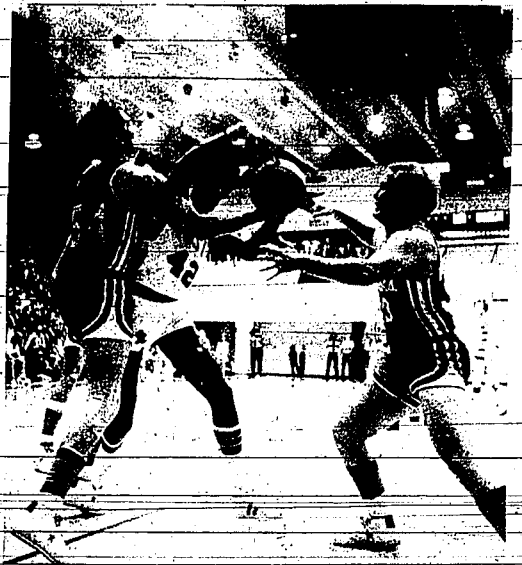

Bowen's five points and four more from Davis developed the first 20-point lead and only on three occasions was Ricks closer than that for the rest of the night.

Eric Lovey's bucket put it at 23 for the first time at 50:25 and then Wally Easter came up with six points — two on wild put break shots. Bowen offset them with four points and Jim Marshall re-established it at 25. That carried to halftime.

CSI came out considerably more patient in the second half and Ricks turned to a man defense. It was fitting for the first six minutes, seven points by Childs and two by Foster getting Ricks back to that 66-46 deficit.

Then Dwight Williams and Davis led CSI on another tear. Goetz' follow shot and two free throws established the final margin at 93-60.

CSI now hosts another regional tie, North Idaho (10-3) Saturday night and winds up the home portion of the regional schedule Tuesday by entertaining Treasure Valley (12-3).

Up-for grabs

FLOATING ball draws all the attention from CSI's Kenny Davis (42) and two Ricks players, Childs (54) and Nelson (40). Action came as CSI was demolishing Ricks 93-60 to open the intra-regional portion of their schedule. The Eagles take on North Idaho here Saturday night.

NFL stars vote to play in pro bowl

NEW-ORLEANS-UPI — Pro Bowl players, disturbed over reports their pension fund is endangered, Thursday night voted to play the game anyway.

The players called on National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle to meet with them and discuss the future of the pension fund.

The vote was taken during a 1 1/2-hour closed meeting with representatives of the NFL Players Association. About 70 of the 90 Pro Bowl squad members attended.

The players asked first to vote on whether to strike, voted in a "near unanimous decision" according to Ed Garvey, head of the union.

"The question was really, 'who would be hurt if you couldn't play the game?'"

"Then the question is, what is going to work," Garvey added. "Would shutting down the game hurt the owners or the players? We decided it would be self-defeating."

Safety Cliff Hartnett of the Dallas Cowboys said the players were hoping they could "get someone to listen to us."

"It's an honor to play, and the fans are hurt if we don't. They're tired of all the strikes," Hartnett said. "But we want management to tell us something about the pension fund."

The union, which has been without a contract since 1974, contends that $5 million of pension money paid by the owners is in escrow and says benefits to injured players and widows are threatened if new money is not added.

Garvey said Rozelle and many of the NFL owners would visit New Orleans this weekend for management meetings. He said the players issued an open invitation to any management representative to sit down and discuss the situation.

The possibility of a walk-out of the game, scheduled for Monday night in the Superdome, was raised last week when Garvey accused the NFL of withholding payments to the player pension fund because of the stalemate over a labor contract.

Garvey said the Pro Bowl has long been recognized as a benefit for the pension fund and should be canceled if the payments were not to be made.

Twin Falls posts 44-39 win over Burley

Twin Falls spurred to a seven-point lead in the early fourth quarter and held off the Burley Bobcats 44-39 Thursday night.

In a battle of cold shooting teams, addition more than four points separated the clubs. The difference came when Twin Falls, which hit 10 points a quarter over the first three periods, picked up two buckets from Graydon Stanley and one each from Dave Nutting and Mike Hill while Burley could manage only a field goal.

"That made it 39-31 and although Burley did slide back to within two points, the Bobcats couldn't overcome it."

Although Twin Falls would outlast the first four minutes without scoring — a team trait that Coach Ron Watson would like them to lose — the Bruins took the lead at 6-4 and the two battled to a 10-10 deadlock.

In the second period Twin Falls twice moved off to four-point leads but Farrell Williams and Byington got together to shoot Burley into a 22-20 halftime advantage.

Twin Falls caught up at 24-24 on a bucket by Craig Nielsen but Byington and Williams again showed Burley on top, 29-26. Burley's hopes ended there as they hit a four minute full that netted just two points.

Nutting and Stanley carried Twin Falls ahead 39-29 at the rest period and they came back the short, but telling breakaway.

The Bobcats closed the deficit to 38-36 before Nutting got Twin Falls off to a follow shot. Kay Dalton and Twin Falls' Jeff Osborne had offsetting free throws. Two free throws by Williams brought Burley to within two, with 37 seconds left and an in-bounds violation returned the ball to the Bobcats.

They couldn't convert on the break and Nutting then got behind the press for a clinching bucket. In the final seconds Bill Ived led the cable with a free throw.

Twin Falls sophomores — the finer nullifying one Bruin bucket at the end of regulation — got a closing-seconds field goal from Dave Welter to win the preliminary 65-64 in overtime.

NCAA nixes tie-breaker, liberalizes blocking rule

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The NCAA Football Rules Committee Thursday lightened rules on spearing, liberalized rules on blocking and deflected a proposal to break the games.

Chairman Cliff Speagle, Commissioner of the Southeastern Conference, said the tie-breaker proposal was defeated. He said Speagle acknowledged that there was probably more interest in rules defeated by the group than those that passed.

The blocking change, which allow freer use of the hands, is the first major alteration in blocking rules in 19 years.

The tie-breaker and other major rules changes were proposed at a convention in St. Louis earlier this month by the American Football Coaches Committee.

David Nelson, secretary-editor of the rules committee, noted that the coaches did a complete about-face on the tie-breaker — turning it down 17-0 a year ago and approving it 161 earlier this month. Both he and Speagle indicated that the tie-breaker will stand a better chance of passing if the coaches feel the same way next year that they did this year.

Speagle noted that there were only 10 ties in college games across the country last season and Nelson added that many stadiums do not have lights to permit games to continue late in the season.

Speagle said that more research is needed to determine the physical effects on an athlete playing a prolonged game.

In other action, the committee:

- Made hip pads and thigh pads mandatory equipment for participating in a game.
- Changed the roughing-the-passer penalty to provide that if the pass is completed the 15-yard penalty is stepped from the point of the tackle rather than from the line of scrimmage.
- Broadened the definition of "gestures or actions which provoke ill will."
- And changed the rule regarding forfeiture of games.

Under the new rules, if one player swings or kicks at another player and misses, that will be construed as a "gesture of ill will."

When a team forfeits a game, the score at the time of the forfeit will stand. Under the old rule, the team that forfeited automatically lost by 1-0. Nelson noted that the forfeit rule, passed in 1908, was one of the oldest in the NCAA book.

The new blocking rules allow the player one-half of full extension of his arms but provide that the hands must be kept inside the frame of the blocker's body and below the shoulders of his opponent.

The rule further specifies that the hands must be cupped or closed to prevent illegal holding.

Speagle said the blocking, spearing and new equipment rules were all designed to make the game safer.

Spearing has been defined in the past as the deliberate use of the helmet to punt an opponent.

Speagle said the rules committee broadened the definition to specifically prohibit "butt blocking" and ramming an opponent. He said research by doctors across the nation has shown that a football player making contact with his head in a lowered position is more subject to injury than one with his head up.

A proposal for a four-point drop kick was discussed by the committee but was never put in the form of a formal motion.

Shields slates ring retirement

Earl Shields, Twin Falls boxer, said Thursday night he will make his ring appearance during a match in Twin Falls later this spring.

Shields said he had decided not to participate in the Gooding card Saturday night.

"I've got to quit (fighting) sometime," said the former AAL national finalist. "I started in Filer and I want to end my ring career around here... so I decided to make my only (last) fight in a one — in the Twin Falls card, I owe Bill (Coach Bill Moran) a lot and I want to make one last good fight for him and for me."

But Shields said his absence shouldn't be missed that much at Gooding.

"They've got a good card with some outstanding talent coming in there (Saturday night)," he said.

Leroy Selmon wins Lombardi trophy

HOUSTON (UPI)—Defensive tackle Leroy Selmon, a six-foot, 230-pound man from the Oklahoma plains, who changed his demeanor on Saturdays to better opponents of the Oklahoma Sooners, Thursday night was named winner of the Lombardi Trophy, symbol of the top college lineman in America.

Selmon was selected by a panel of 60 coaches and sportswriters from four finalists, which included his brother Dewey, Notre Dame defensive tackle Steve Nelhaus, and Texas A&M linbacker Ed Simolin.

Leroy Selmon predicted his victory before the black-tie dinner began. Already the all-time player was named United Press International "line man of the year and winner of the Outland Trophy from the Football Writers Association.

But Leroy was not gloating. "I'm just as happy when I get back home," he said, "if my brother wins."

Leroy is one of three sons of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Selmon of Eufaula, Okla., to start for the Oklahoma football team.

Their oldest son, Lucius, was one of the four finalists for the award two years ago, but Ohio State's John Hicks, an offensive tackle, won it that year.

Ohio State linbacker Jim Stillwagon won the first Lombardi Award following the 1970 season. The other winners were Notre Dame defensive tackle Walt Paterek, Nebraska middle guard Rich Glover and Maryland defensive tackle Randy White.

Leroy, one year older than Dewey, is expected to be the No. 1 pick in the National Football League college draft this spring.

With Leroy at his defensive tackle spot, playing alongside middle guard Dewey, Oklahoma won 11 of 12 games this season and the national championship.

Vince Lombardi, one of seven college players in Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite line, gained fame as a successful coach of the NFL's Green Bay Packers, winners of the league championship five times between 1956 and 1967. He died of cancer.

The awards dinner in the past four years has gathered more than $170,000 in contributions for the American Cancer Society.

MONTE CARLO (UPI) — Italians Sandro Munari and Silvio Matarra, surviving the 142-minute race of a jammed gearbox, Friday won the Monte Carlo Rally, leading Lancia to a 1-2-3 sweep, according to the provisional results.

It was Munari's third victory. In five years and he had led the six-day, 3,000-mile event for all but 100 miles in his Lancia Stratos.

Foreman doesn't plan to lose again

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — "I've only lost once, and I didn't appreciate it," George Foreman said. "I don't want to lose again."

With that statement Thursday, a relaxed and trim Foreman finished his pre-fight talking before his scheduled 12-rounder with Ron Lyle Saturday at Caesars Palace.

Foreman, 27, has been made a 2-to-1 favorite against the 33-year-old Lyle in the nationally televised ABC bout. But there still is a question.

Except for his Toronto exhibition last April against, five nameless foes, Foreman, the former Joe Coppsman from Houston, hasn't been around since losing his heavyweight crown to Muhammad Ali in Zaire 15 months ago.

"In the past," Foreman said, "I've had to go after guys. But now maybe they'll think they can come after me since I've been knocked out."

"I've got one to 12 rounds to figure out Lyle. But I'll try to. I don't believe in letting my opponent stick around."

Lyle had known poverty and prison. He was stopped in 11 rounds by Ali here last May but was impressive in losing.

"I'm basically an emotional person," he said. "But I don't let my emotions guide me all the time. I figure I've paid my dues and I study and learn as much about my profession as I can."

Lyle, who is earning $140,000 to Foreman's $250,000, doesn't sound like a man who intends to lose again.

"People like Ali and (Joe) Frazier dictate the terms on whether you'll fight them or not," he noted. "They're part of the boxing establishment, and you have to walk for them."

"After Foreman, I'd like to fight (Ken) Norton or Ali."

Armed with a new manager, Gil Clancy, and a new trainer, Alvin Rapinder, Foreman will take a 3-4-1 record with 37 knockouts into the fight. Lyle is 31-3-1 with 22 KOs.

"I've felt I'd gone as far as I could in boxing while I was getting ready for the Zaire fight," the former champion declared. "But when you start to do something else, it doesn't have the same zing and you find yourself back in the gymnasium."

"You know, throwing down newspapers and tearing them up."

Despite the managerial change, Foreman insisted he would be the same fighter against Lyle.

"My technique won't be a whole lot different," he said. "The old technique was pretty successful. I got to be champion of the world with it. So I don't want to change too much."

Nicklaus, Morley share early lead in Crosby meet

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus made his 1976 debut in impressive fashion Thursday, shooting five-under-par 67 in his initial tournament in a three-man fight for a share of the first-round lead with Mike Morley in the $185,000 Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

Nicklaus' whose last tournament was the Australian Open the first week of October, had seven birdies and two bogeys on a card of 35:32 at Cypress Point.

The weather on the Monterey Peninsula was summery-like and so was Nicklaus' game.

The Golden Bear, who won 5 of the 8 tournaments he competed in last year, including the Masters and PGA Championship, said he was pleased with his round, mostly because he putted well.

"I played fairly well for my first tournament," Nicklaus said. "My iron game was reasonable, but I putted very well."

Morley, who missed exemption this year by placing 64th on the 1975 money list, had five birdies and no bogeys on a card of 34:47 while also playing at Cypress.

Pebble Beach and Spregels Hill are the other two courses used in the Crosby before the contest made for the final round.

Play despite no wind and a temperature ranging in the 70s, was rugged, mostly because of the tight but fast greens on the three layouts.

Johnny Miller, who came down with a touch of the flu, shot a two-over 74 at Pebble Beach to finish seven shots behind the Tucson Open.

Donnie Bob Gilder, who won the Phoenix Open last Sunday, was a little better with a one-over 73 at Cypress while Roger Maltbie, second to Gilder at Phoenix, had a 71 at Cypress and Howard Twitty, second to Miller at Tucson, had a 75 at Cypress.

George Johnson shot a 35-33-68 at Cypress to lay a shot off the lead and a shot ahead of David Graham and Bruce Summerhays. Graham got his at Pebble Beach and Summerhays his 69 at Cypress.

Hall of fame camaraderie

Lemon and Roberts voted easily into hall of fame

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those long hot summers of laborious effort did not go in vain after all for pitchers Robin Roberts and Bob Lemon.

The two right-handers, who had been rebuffed repeatedly in their efforts to join the elite in the Hall of Fame, finally made it to the coveted Cooperstown, N.Y., shrine Thursday when the Baseball Writers Association of America voted them in by an overwhelming margin.

Roberts, who won 286 games and worked more than 4,600 innings in 19 years with the Philadelphia Phillies and two other clubs, and Lemon, a 207-game winner who pitched over 2,000 innings in 13 seasons for Cleveland, had been severely disappointed last year when they missed election by the narrowest of margins. This time, however, they had no trouble collecting the 75-per-cent of the vote required for election. With 201 votes needed, the 49-year-old Roberts received 337 and the 55-year-old Lemon got 305 in balloting by 388 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

No one else among the 32 names on the ballot was close. The late Gil Hodges, a slugging first baseman for the Brooklyn and Los Angeles Dodgers during the 1950's, finished third but was 58 votes short of election.

Hodges was the only other player to get more than 200 votes. Enos Slaughter, an outfielder with the St. Louis Cardinals in the 1940's and '50's who was famous for his hustling style of play, was fourth with 197 followed by Eddie Mathews (189), Pee Wee Reese (186), the late Nellie Fox (174) and Duke Snider (129).

Election for Roberts came in his fourth year of eligibility while it took Lemon 12 years to receive enough support to gain a place in the Hall of Fame. Both admitted they were a bit upset at the BBWAA a year ago when they fell short of the required vote total.

"When you just miss getting in the reaction is to feel that you men (baseball writers) are doing a terrible job," Roberts said. "But when you get in like today, you've done a good job. It's a relief to know it's over."

"Last year I would have to say you guys were horsefeathers," added Lemon, who fell 39 votes short last season. "But really this couldn't be a bigger thrill. This is the epitome of where you go in baseball. I don't know where you go from here. As pitching coach of the Yankees this year I would hope maybe a pennant or a World Series ring."

Roberts and Lemon are the 122nd and 123rd players to be elected to the Hall of Fame since its inception in 1936, but only the 52nd and 53rd chosen by the BBWAA, which prides itself on its selectivity. The BBWAA has been especially strict with regard to pitchers. Roberts and Lemon are only the 18th and 19th pitchers to gain admittance to the Hall by a vote of the BBWAA.

"If hard work is the criteria for success, then Roberts and Lemon certainly paid their dues. No two pitchers ever worked harder during their primes. Roberts won 20 or more games six consecutive seasons for the Phillies from 1950-55 and worked more than 500 innings in each of those seasons. Lemon, who didn't become a pitcher until he was 30, had seven 20-victory campaigns from 1948-56 and averaged more than 270 innings a season during that stretch.

"There's no question I thrived on work, but to be frank I was really overworked," said Roberts. "That's one thing I would do if I stayed in baseball—to see that doesn't happen to kids today. When I played three days rest was normal and quite often I had to go on two days rest."

Roberts admitted, however, that he was never critical of his management until the latter part of his career when he had lost his effectiveness.

"The only time I looked back on it was when I was struggling in the latter stages of my career and I wondered whether the people who had been over me in Philadelphia had given me good advice," said Roberts.

Lemon is the third member of the Indians' pitching staff of the early 1950's to reach the Hall of Fame. He joins Bob Feller and Early Wynn.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 24, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day for spending as much time as you can in obtaining facts and figures for an important project. You are able to devise a plan that will be profitable.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Pay attention to your hunches since they can be most helpful when dealing with others. Think along idealistic lines.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get in touch with associates and leisurely talk over future operations. A civic affair should be handled wisely.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend to necessary chores early in the day. Make an effort to show gratitude to those who have been helpful to you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Engage in activities that will help you express your most creative talents. Show more devotion to mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Home and family require more than usual attention today, so be sure to give it willingly. Strive for more harmony.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Good day to attend to those accumulated tasks. Study new ways to have increased efficiency in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make the collections and payments that are possible so that you feel more secure. Make plans for the future.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get busy early at whatever is of a personal nature and make your life more charming. Spend within your means.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Forget about going out today until you get all those accumulated tasks out of the way. Think constructively.

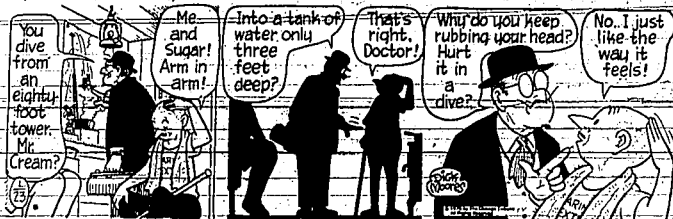

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact allies who truly comprehend your ideas and make headway with their aid. Much can be accomplished.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Good day for handling public affairs and getting excellent results. Show others that you are an efficient person.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can set up a finer set of conditions today by thinking along more practical affairs. Take health treatments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to have all the facts and figures before getting involved in anything, but once committed to a course of action, your progeny will do the utmost to make it succeed. Give critical training. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

GASOLINE ALLEY

what's what

L. M. Boyd

You didn't know you could get married in California without a license, did you? And without a blood test, too? You can. Legally, all you have to do is pay the minister a $5 fee or whatever, get him to say the words, and that's it. Record of the ceremony goes on file with the county clerk, but nobody can check up on the matter without a court order. The law that authorizes such marriages is fairly ancient, but it's still in effect. In Los Angeles alone, more than 11,000 couples made the commitment under its provisions last year, I'm told.

JOBS

Only one out of every five jobs that's expected to open up within the next five years will require a college degree. Nonetheless, almost four out of every five high school students are taking college prep classes. Odd.

Q: "Where does Betty Ford rank on that list of our most popular first ladies?"
A: Right close to the top. The scientific surveys don't date back far enough to cover them all. But she's one of those several thought to have outgrown even their husbands in public appeal.

Not many but a few experts on life in the penitentiaries contend that convicts should be given marijuana daily to keep them calm. What's your stand on this matter?

SOUNDS

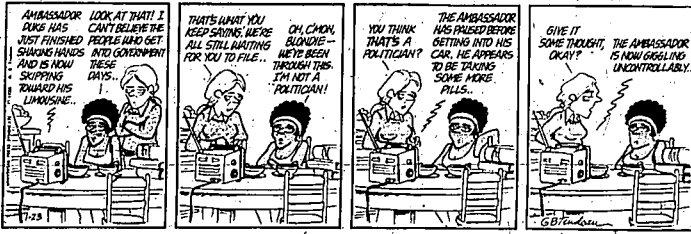

The various sounds you make when you talk are called phonemes. You vocalize anywhere from 11 to 62 of these phonemes, depending on whether you're just a grunter or a real conversational virtuoso. But if you deliver most of the phonemes in English, you probably use about 40. Now please note, a pig is known to be capable of emitting 23 phonemes, entirely enough to make a spectacular speech, if only said pig knew how. A cow has control of about eight phonemes. But a particularly noisy dolphin might well manage up to 19.

Once for ounce, cantaloupe is more nutritious than watermelon, watermelon more than oranges, oranges more than strawberries, strawberries more than bananas and bananas more than apples.

"How much butter is in a 'butterball' turkey?" Inquires a client. No butter. Soybean oil, coconut oil, water, salt, emulsifiers, annatto color and artificial flavor, but no butter.
