FINAL PIECE of structural steel was placed in the new Perrine Bridge Tuesday afternoon. Traditional symbols were borne by the steel as it was lowered into place. The potted Christmas tree is for sentiment, the American flag for patriotism and the broom signifies "a clean sweep." (Times-News photo by Lou Freeman.)

Ironworkers celebrate last Perrine span steel

By KRIS COLEMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What to do ironworkers do after the last piece of steel has been placed in a bridge the size of the Perrine?

They laugh, wrestle and drink — not necessarily in that order.

"It's one of the big ones all right, really one of the spectacular ones," said "Hunk" Freese, erection superintendent. "I gotta be happy we're done."

A few cans of beer popped open in the superintendent's trailer-office as ironworkers

Local 732, "out of Pocatello," celebrated the end of another long, hard project.

"It's like graduating from high school," said Roy Byrd, leaning against the wall with a paper cup of cold and whisky.

Out the windows to the north the "new Perrine Bridge spanned the Snake River Canyon.

The final piece of structural steel was fitted into the bridge Tuesday. A four-lane roadway now must be built across the span to meet the August completion deadline.

"This is the best winter I've put in for I don't know how long," Freese said.

Asked if he and the crew have had a chance to enjoy the area's winter sports areas, he pointed to a pickup truck loaded with two snowmobiles.

"Another bottle of whiskey was opened and passed around. A man with red suspenders over his green wool shirt came in and grabbed Gary Freese, one of Hunk's two sons on the crew.

The two wrestled, threatening to knock over the many open bottles.

"We had our really big party when the last piece of the arch went in," Hunk said.

Earlier in the day, the crew held a symbolic celebration. One man's potted Christmas tree was placed at one end of the bridge and the American flag at the other — "Love it or leave it," the elder Freese laughed.

In the center of the bridge was a broom. "It's a clean sweep, you see."

Gary pointed out the window to the bridge. "See that white piece?" he asks. "That was the last piece. We all signed it and added our comments." Everybody laughed. "You ought to have a picture of that."

Oil aid to poor nations

PARIS (UPI) — Delegates from the 12-nation international oil cartel today approved a plan to set up an $800 million aid fund to poor nations, conference sources said.

Finance Ministers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced unanimous approval and signing of the fund program after a 2 1/2-hour closed-door bargaining session.

The ministers, meeting here since Monday, extended their session an extra day to settle the question of how much each country should donate to the fund.

Conference sources said the final figure for the fund would be $800 million.

OPEC officials early today had pegged the total at $1 billion, but Ecuador and Indonesia decided not to contribute and Gabon pledged only $1 million.

Refusal to disclose details of the fund helped strengthen reports in Paris diplomatic circles that the session was one more sign of continued differences inside OPEC.

Tuesday Kuwait announced a planned OPEC oil ministers meeting due to start Feb. 1 in Abu Dhabi had to be cancelled.

The ministers said in a communique they "unanimously approved and signed an agreement establishing a special OPEC fund" to become effective "as soon as the agreement had been ratified by member nations."

The finance ministers have said the fund will last for 1976 only, and that all members will have to approve any extension. The OPEC nations include Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Iran, Gabon, Nigeria, Ecuador, Indonesia, Venezuela, Algeria, Libya, Kuwait, Qatar and the United Arab Emirates.

An OPEC spokesman said Tuesday that today's meeting did not signify "either any particular difficulty or dissension in the OPEC group," but that it "simply more time is needed."

The ministers last November adopted a measure providing for creation of a fund to aid Third World countries with interest-free, long-term loans to offset skyrocketing oil prices.

Venezuela's OPEC delegation announced earlier it would contribute $100 million to be administered "without consideration of politics, geographic position, culture or race."

The fund will be used specifically to help nations with staggering balance-of-payments deficits and countries in need of financing critical economic projects. The ministers to create one more institutionalized aid fund, an OPEC spokesman said.

Court impounds Air Idaho plane

TWIN FALLS — Air Idaho lost possession of its 15-passenger airplane Tuesday following a court hearing in Twin Falls.

According to a court ruling by Fifth District Judge Theon Ward, Air Idaho can regain possession of the airplane by posting a bond. Such action had not been taken this morning.

Air Idaho officials made light of the problem when contacted by the Times-News today.

"We have it (the airplane) parked for a day ... we have a minor problem on the lease that is being worked out by our attorneys ... I can't comment further at this time," John Pettis, Air Idaho manager, said. He assured the public that all flights were operating on schedule.

Pettis admitted that this meant that the airline would have to use its seven-passenger Navajo aircraft to fly its routes, but said this could be done with no problem. "We have had to double up on some flights," he said.

The court order was issued Tuesday in connection with a lawsuit filed by Wright Airlines, Inc. of Ohio, which leased the aircraft to Air Idaho in July of 1973.

Wright Airlines Tuesday demanded possession of the aircraft during the course of their $50,000 lawsuit against Air Idaho.

Judge Ward, after hearing arguments, made an order allowing Wright Airlines to take possession of the plane if it posted a bond. He further ordered that Air Idaho could regain possession if it posted a regular bond.

Attorney Tom Snow, representing Air Idaho at the hearing, told the Times-News Wednesday that he did not know if Air Idaho was taking steps to get such a bond. He suggested that it was now a problem of finding a bonding company which would assume this task and pay the premium for the bond.

"It is now up to them," Church said, referring to the need for Air Idaho to purchase a bond and post it with the court if it wants the airplane back.

TF workers' pay up 71% in 1965-72, study shows

By GORDON JUDD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Wages and salaries of Twin Falls County workers grew 71 per cent in the eight years from 1965 to 1972.

The growth, which paralleled that of the state, was not entirely produced by inflation.

Inflation could account for only about a third of the increase.

The economic facts and conclusions are part of a study, "Personal Income in Idaho Counties 1965-1972," by W. Lamar Bollinger, professor of economics at the College of Idaho, Caldwell.

While Twin Falls County's population grew from 42,003 in 1965 to 44,500 in 1972, it also improved its statewide ranking based on per capita income from 13th place in 1965 to 12th place at the end of the study. Of the county populations over 40,000, only Ada and Bonneville counties ranked ahead of Twin Falls in per capita incomes.

The study places the median income of Twin Falls County employees at $7,760. This, however, lags far behind Ada County's $9,708 and places Twin Falls County 27th statewide in median incomes, behind Blaine, Camas and Cassia in the Magic Valley.

According to Bollinger's study, total incomes in Twin Falls County rose from $105 million in 1965 to $176 million at the end of the study period.

Proprietors' farm incomes accounted for $23 million of the $176 million in 1972. Next in order of size came retail commerce incomes, totaling $17 million, and "non farm" proprietary incomes, also $17 million.

Salaries of farm workers earnings grew very little during the period, from $4.9 million in 1965 to $5.7 million in 1972 for a net gain of 15 per cent.

Since U. S. Department of Labor figures place the rate of inflation for the eight-year period at 23.4 per cent, it is questionable whether these farm workers incomes kept pace.

It is possible that farm employees' incomes may have kept up with inflation, however, since the number of farms decreased during the period of the study. The number fell from 1,875 in 1965 to 1,745 in 1972, suggesting that the number of salaried farm workers also decreased, allowing fewer workers to share the reduced incomes.

Manufacturing incomes (food processing, lumber, transportation equipment) rose from about $7 million at the beginning of the study to $14.5 million for a 107 per cent increase.

Food processing incomes made up the majority of the manufacturing income totals and accounted for $8.3 million of the $14.5 million total.

Tough line working

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a recent secret cable to Henry Kissinger, U.S. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan claimed his tough-talk policy is working against America's critics despite little help from the State Department, officials said today.

Secretary of State Kissinger today voiced support for Moynihan and conceded there might be some department "backbiting" against the out-spoken ambassador. He also attacked the leak of Moynihan's private cable to news media.

"I support Moynihan," said Kissinger. "In the formulation of policy, different points of view inevitably are expressed ... there is backbiting in every bureaucracy."

In an ABC interview, Kissinger praised Moynihan and State Department officials for "doing a serious and dedicated job" and noted that a newspaper had printed the full text of the message.

"I think that this is only such a huge issue because it is impossible apparently to keep any cable secret any more," he said.

State Department officials confirmed a news report that Moynihan had sent the cable to Kissinger.

Angola war to guerrillas

LUSAKA, Zambia (UPI) — Pro-Western commanders — inaugurated "Phase Two" of Angola's civil war today, ordering their forces to begin massive guerrilla attacks against Soviet-backed troops bearing down on their southern front.

According to reports reaching Zambia, the central command of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola (TUP) ordered its soldiers fighting holding battles across the central and southern parts of Angola.

The National Union Tuesday evacuated its administrative headquarters at Huambo — a coalition capital of the National Union and the National Front for the Liberation of Angola and the largest of the rankled Communist advance.

The change from conventional to guerrilla warfare marked what National Union President Jonas Savimbi has called "Phase Two" of the civil war, to be implemented as a last recourse.

National Union officials in Lusaka said their forces had stalled the pro-Soviet offensive south of Ceta, about 250 miles south of the Marxist-led capital, Luanda, by destroying a bridge over the Queveo River, but they did not expect to hold out for long.

Elsewhere along the front, the anti-Communist forces opposed advancing Cuban-led troops at Novo Redondo on the Atlantic coast and at Luao and Mussendo in central Angola.

The deteriorating pro-Western position received a new setback Tuesday.

Senate OK's 200 mile limit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted 77 to 19 today to extend U.S. fishing jurisdiction 200 miles out to sea despite protests by some senators that it would be a violation of international law.

Similar legislation has already been passed by the House, but the Senate bill calls for enforcement of the 200-mile zone to begin July 1, 1977, rather than next July 1 as proposed by the House.

The Senate bill was amended to push the effective date back to mid-1977 on an amendment by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., who said President Ford had promised to sign the bill if the amendment were approved.

Hearst jury pick moves fast

PATRICIA HEARST — intent watcher

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — As Patricia Hearst watched intently, a federal judge questioned potential jurors on the opening day of her trial and said he hoped to complete jury selection today, clearing the way for opening arguments to begin Thursday.

In a dramatic moment, Miss Hearst, looking thin and pale and dwarfed by the huge courtroom, stood at the judge's request, giving a first look at the famous defendant to the prospective jury panel of 120 citizens, from which 12 will be chosen to try her.

The trial of the newspaper heiress accused of turning terror into bank robber began Tuesday with U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter's admonition to the jury panel that it would be one of the most widely publicized in the nation's history. But it soon became obvious that the historic nature of the case did not intimidate the jurors.

Quickly questioning jurors — a role normally taken by the judge in federal courts — Carter by the end of the first day had dismissed 60 potential jurors. But a surprisingly large number, 74, remained in spite of his apparent leniency in permitting jurors to be excused.

Miss Hearst, dressed in a navy blue pantsuit which appeared to be tailored for her, sat quietly but listened intently in the center of the packed courtroom. She smiled and occasionally chatted during breaks with her parents and two younger sisters, Anne and Vicki, who sat in the first row about 10 feet away.

She sat at a table along with five of her attorneys, including flamboyant F. Leo Bailey, who heads her defense team.

The packed courtroom fell to a hushed silence as Carter read the entire two-count indictment against the 21-year-old granddaughter of legendary newspaper owner William Randolph Hearst to the jury "so that you will understand the case more fully."

Patricia Campbell Hearst and others "by the road," did by force and violence rob the Alhambra Bank branch at 510 E. on April 15, 1974, in committing this offense, the defendant and others not named did assault other persons and did put in jeopardy the lives of the persons with deadly weapons, to wit, firearms.

The others were the four Symbionese Liberation Army members, one man and three women, who accompanied her in the 10-minute holdup during which two bystanders were wounded. All four of her companions in the holdup died in a shootout with police in Los Angeles a month later.

Miss Hearst could be sentenced to as much as 25 years in prison on the bank robbery charge, and an additional one to 10 years for the second charge of using a firearm to commit a felony.

She will contend that while she did take part in the holdup — Los Angeles police say she had been tortured and terrorized by her captors and feared she would be killed if she refused.

Spanish reform plan denounced

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro today denounced a broad program of political reforms to move Spain closer to Western-type democracy.

Opposition groups immediately denounced it as too little and too vague.

Arias told parliament the government of King Juan Carlos will move "without haste and without a pause" to create a two-house parliamentary system, to broaden political freedoms and to legalize political groups, except for the extreme left and separatists.

But Arias announced no schedule and gave few details. As a result, opposition spokesmen immediately blasted the program as too vague and too little.

One spokesman for the moderate Social Democrats said unless democratization is speeded up, Spain will find itself "on a collision course by next fall."

As Arias spoke, leftist-inspired strikes and street protests continued. They have idled about 200,000 white and blue-collar workers and affecting different parts of the country in a rotating pattern that indicated they were centrally directed.

Arias gave no schedule for the reforms. But government sources said it was understood they will be carried out by the end of the current Cortes (parliament) term, scheduled to expire in June 1977.

The sources also said the proposed constitutional reforms will be submitted in a referendum late in summer.

Speaking two months after the death of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, Arias ruled out abrupt change, saying Spain would "travel the road to a democratic alternative with quiet determination."

Arias spoke before the Cortes in a nationally televised 80-minute speech interrupted by applause 18 times. The lawmakers gave him a standing ovation at the end — even though the parliament itself forms one of the first reform targets.

The reform program, to be drafted and enacted over the next 1 1/2 years, included: Creation of a two-chamber parliamentary system. Legalization of all political groups accepting the constitutional order.

Drafting of a new electoral law to assure wider voter participation.

Drafting of new laws governing the freedoms of assembly and demonstration.

Granting more press freedom, while protecting individuals and institutions from slander.

Tax reform aimed at cutting down the differences between the rich and the poor.

The tone of the new program was set Tuesday when King Juan Carlos I, Franco's hand-picked successor, extended the current term of parliament by 15 1/2 months to enact new laws making the next general elections more representative.

The government now has time to enact some of the promised reforms before the next general elections, thus assuring a more representative vote.

Under the laws inherited from Franco, only 105 of the 55 Cortes deputies are elected by popular vote. Political parties are outlawed, and candidates must adopt government platforms.

Single university?

BOISE (UPI) — Reps. C. L. Otter, R-Caldwell, and Larry Jackson, R-Boise, Tuesday introduced a bill to establish a single university system for Idaho with branches at Moscow, Lewiston, Boise and Pocatello.

Originally, Otter indicated he would ask the Education Committee to introduce the proposal.

The bill sets up a chancellor to oversee the various branches. This chancellor would be required to appoint presidents for each of the branch institutions.

Workers celebrate last steel

The "bridge in the bag" began work in early May. The eight-month project went smoothly with no major problems, according to Hank.

The crew will return to dismantle the old Perrine Bridge. The new bridge is expected to be open by August.

"It'll look really beautiful when we get that old one out of the way," Gary said.

All that remains for the ironworkers now is to "clean up the garbage, take down the nets and take the cableway down."

"It feels like we're going to the next job," Gary said.

As soon as the cleanup is through, the crew will disband and everyone will move on to another job. The Presses are headed for Montana, their home state.

"We're a bunch of gypsies," someone yelled across the room. "We must be."

The "go-ahead outfit," as Hank described them, will leave Twin Falls soon — about the third week in February, they estimated. But they'll be back from time to time to look at their creation.

"If in your work is a lot more important than money," Gary said. He finds it all worthwhile — the hazards and hard work — knowing he can generally spot the highest structure and know he helped build it.

"Let's go build another bridge," someone shouted above the din of the Perrine Bridge celebration.

TWIN FALLS — Al-Anon will meet tonight at 8 in the fireside lounge of the Presbyterian Church. Interested persons are invited.

TWIN FALLS — Ross G. Ward who died last week had been a bishop in the LDS Church. This honor was inadvertently omitted at the time the obituary was published.

Witness returns

DETROIT (UPI) — A reluctant New Jersey Teamster witness appeared for a third time today before a federal grand jury probing the James R. Hoffa disappearance.

Andretta ducked out 11 times to confer with his attorney.

In two previous days before the grand jury, Andretta left the jury room 27 and 58 times.

Andretta, 40, of Little Ferry, N.J., was cited for contempt of court Dec. 11 after refusing to answer a grand jury question.

He has spent the past 48 days at a federal prison in Milan.

Federal prosecutors said they were trying to compel Andretta to cooperate with the grand jury in its probe into the disappearance last July of Hoffa, who led the Teamsters International for 13 years and was trying to regain control of it when he vanished near Detroit.

Government lawyers said after Tuesday's appearance that Andretta — whose brother Thomas, 38, is one of three men named as being actively involved in Hoffa's disappearance — answered 53 questions. But that, they said, was not enough to satisfy investigators.

Sauce, from the Latin "salvus," originally meant "salted food" and was something the Romans put on meat to add a relish. It was served on a saucer or a shallow dish for holding sauce.

Indians protest prison treatment

BOISE (UPI) — The Inter-Tribal Policy Board said Tuesday it might seek legal action if it cannot get Idaho prison officials to cooperate in improving conditions for Indian inmates at the penitentiary.

Gene M. Tiddooahnipah, executive director of the board, told a news conference the board two months ago completed a report alleging Indian inmates are restricted in religious practices, do not have a place to gather to participate in Indian cultural activities and do not receive adequate medical attention.

He said a copy was made available to the prison but "the administration chooses to ignore our requests for cooperation even yet."

Tiddooahnipah said he has received "a vague and nebulous answer" to his attempts to arrange a meeting with Warden Anderson to work on ways the board can help set up cultural, educational and rehabilitative programs for the Indian inmates.

A lack of state funds was blamed for some inmates not receiving corrective surgery ordered by doctors but in answer to a question he said it was "quite possible that none of the inmates receive adequate medical services."

Board members said 95 percent of the 15 to 25 Indian inmates have alcohol problems but are not receiving treatment at the prison. They contend certain traditional religious ceremonies are refused to Indian inmates because the practice is not on the list of approved religious doctrines.

They also said group activity requests have been restricted, that the Indian inmates no longer have access to printing facilities to publish a monthly news letter and are not allowed a place to gather for singing songs important to the Indian as a member of a separate race.

The board said it was trying to call attention to the problems and "attempt to ease tensions between inmates and prison officials, and to try to prevent a potentially explosive situation from developing."

Warden Richard Anderson said the board "never sent me the report."

Andrus 'satisfied'

BOISE (UPI) — A special assistant for Gov. Cecil Andrus said that his office is "satisfied" at this time with results of an investigation into the allegations that Indian inmates at the state prison have been mistreated. The Inter-Tribal Policy Board at a news conference Tuesday alleged the 15 to 25 Indian inmates at the prison have been neglected by prison officials and that legal action "was not out of the question" if prison officials did not cooperate in resolving the complaints.

Pat Vaughn, a special assistant to the governor, said the governor's office requested a report from the warden and director of corrections on the prison situation and they have replied.

Gem court halts rate hike case

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court Tuesday ordered Fourth District Judge W. E. Smith to halt proceedings involving the Intermountain Gas Company and Public Utilities Commission over a rate increase.

The gas company on May 16, 1975, filed an application with the PUC seeking authority to increase its charges for natural gas service in Idaho and make other changes in its then existing rate structure: general service provision and composite depreciation rate.

Upon examination of the application, the commission discovered it included a rate increase already before the commission in another application and failed to include sufficient data to support the proposed modifications.

The commission dismissed the request without prejudice. The company's motion to vacate that order and request for a rehearing was denied by the commission Aug. 8.

On July 22, prior to the commission action, the company filed duplicate petitions in the Supreme Court and with the Fourth Judicial District Court requesting those courts compel renstatement and reconsideration of the company's original request.

The Supreme Court on Aug. 1 denied the petitions without opinion but the district court has set aside on the same petitions. The company on Sept. 5 filed a notice of appeal with the Supreme Court from the commission's dismissal of its original application. Then the PUC sought a writ of prohibition from the Supreme Court to halt the proceeding before the district court.

In issuing the writ, the high court emphasized that two actions were pending involving the same parties and the same subject matter. Both an appeal of the commission's denial of Intermountain's rate increase was before the Supreme Court as well as a petition for writ of mandamus before district court seeking to compel reinstatement of the rate request.

Teachers score aide at Malad

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — The Oneida County Education Association expressed a lack of confidence Tuesday in Lloyd Sorenson, superintendent of School District No. 351.

The teachers told a news conference Sorenson is unable to understand the problems of teachers, to communicate with teachers on an equal basis, to work with them for the improvement of conditions, to provide educational leadership within the community or to keep school board and patrons aware of the real financial conditions of the district.

The teachers said they have spent almost a year trying to negotiate with the school board and that Sorenson as superintendent has caused problems by not keeping the board aware of the financial situation.

Unit gains more funds

BOISE (UPI) — Continuation of the Alcohol Treatment Unit at State Hospital North at Orofino until June 30 was approved by the legislative Joint Finance Appropriations Committee Tuesday with approval of a $65,000 supplement from the general fund surplus. The vote was 12-8.

Sen. Mike Mitchell, Ellettsville, originally sought $80,000 for the unit when it was closed Jan. 9 as part of a financial cutback in the State Department of Health and Welfare.

Mitchell said the unit will have been closed for nearly a month when, and if, the legislature approves the joint committee's recommendation. Therefore, he said, it will need less money to take it to the end of the fiscal year.

Good roads over Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — Except for a few icy spots in the mountains, Idaho roads were in good shape for travel today.

By road, this was the report from the State Departments of Transportation and Law Enforcement.

U.S. 95 — Plummer to Bonners Ferry, icy spots.

State Highway 55 — Banks Canyon to Round Valley, icy spots.

Interstate 90, U.S. 10 — Fourth of July Canyon to Wallace, icy spots; Lookout Pass, broken snow floor.

Positive impact lacking

Editor, Times-News: I am pleased to see in your editorial column of Monday, Jan. 12, what appears to be an apology of some sort to Sierra Life Insurance Company. It is, however, more shaded in defense of your paper than anything else and it is not quite an accurate editorial.

And confidence in Sierra Life is held vindicated in the court? No, I would like to make a very positive statement in Sierra's behalf. Long before these problems were aired in the press, our community was faced with a serious problem.

Criticism may be compliment

Editor, Times-News: Your reevaluation on what seemed might be a move to keep out of sight practices at the county hospital, and the criticism from those concerned, should be considered a compliment for you.

At this point when offered a chance to retreat from his stance, Mr. Frasier's comment to me reads: "The community needs the 'Y' and my company is a part of this community. Where else can you go?" And he was true to his word from that day until the pool opened.

Policy shows changes

WASHINGTON — The United States hands-off policy toward the civil war in Lebanon is a stark measure of how the world has changed since 1958, when President Dwight D. Eisenhower ordered 20,000 Marines into that Middle Eastern country.

and when unrest developed, President Camille Chamoun asked Eisenhower to intervene. Like, in an address to the nation, said he was convinced of Soviet and United Arab Republic (UAR) responsibility for efforts "to overthrow the legally constituted government of Lebanon and install by violence a government which would subordinate the independence of Lebanon to the UAR."

The so-called "Eisenhower Doctrine" under which he acted is a faded memory today. In the current struggle for internal realignment of power between the Christians and Muslims, the United States reportedly has stated that it has no intention of intervening.

When the marine landing brought threats of retaliation from Moscow, but nothing more. In time, the marines withdrew, as they had landed, without a shot being fired.

PETER LISAGOR

The situation in 1958 was hardly comparable. The fear then was that Lebanon might become a victim of Communist aggression, misinterpreted in Moscow. The United States, with an acknowledged nuclear superiority, felt it could act without provoking a confrontation with the Soviet Union.

The marine landing brought threats of retaliation from Moscow, but nothing more. In time, the marines withdrew, as they had landed, without a shot being fired.

The Eisenhower Doctrine grew out of the 1956 Suez war, precipitated by Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser's seizure of the Suez Canal. Britain, France and Israel attacked Egypt. In a short-lived war, halted powerful United States opposition in the UN.

Since 1958, the world — and the United States — have undergone wrenching changes. Two more Israeli-Arab wars have taken place; the Russians have gained what the diplomats call "a nuclear equivalence," and the United States has experienced a disastrous foreign intervention in Vietnam.

In January, 1957, Eisenhower laid out the policy which Congress adopted in a resolution that declared the United States regarded the preservation of the independence and integrity of the Middle East nations as vital to America's national interest and world peace.

And the American Congress has asserted a strong negative voice and hand in overseas adventures, as witness the refusal to fund a covert operation in Angola, where Secretary of State Henry Kissinger claims the Russians seek to impose a Communist regime.

The United States was prepared to use force to assist any nation or group of nations resisting aid against any country controlled by international Communism.

Even if the Eisenhower Doctrine were still valid, Lebanon would hardly qualify under its terms, according to diplomatic officials. The which only lately have, outside forces intervened, mainly scattered elements of a Palestine Liberation Army from inside Syria.

Its central purpose was "to leave no possibility of miscalculation in the minds of potential or Communist-controlled aggressors as to the results of aggressive actions." We must take a year later, in July, a military coup was staged in Iraq, in which the pro-western regime of Premier Nuri Sald was overthrown. Nuri, as well as Iraq's young King Faisal II, was killed in the bloody rebellion.

But even more instructive about the changes since 1958, officials point out, is that even if Syria and Israel were to invade Lebanon, to protect their perceived interests, the United States would probably do little more than call for a cease-fire and keep a wary eye on what the Russians might do. The Russians would watch what Washington did, and hopefully, nothing more; these officials believe.

U.S. authorities feared that the coup, whether engineered by the Kremlin or inspired by Egypt's Nasser. In any case, Lebanon nervously expected it might be next on the leftist agenda.

Annals of America

UPI On Congress In the summer of 1786 John Jay and George Washington exchanged a series of letters on the need for a strong federal government. Here is Washington's view of Congress:

Washington, what's going on in Angola, Syria, Lebanon and Israel. He has the speech-writers and the national television audience, and he is using them to full political advantage. Even so, he is making a mistake. He is asking for more spending on defense and energy, and lower spending on education. He proposes to make old folks pay more for health care, and raise Social Security payroll taxes. And to reduce the rate of inflation, he accepts the prospect that over 70 per cent of the work force in the country will be out of jobs at the time of the election next November.

It is this dicey politics, but he has used his prime time on television in the period before the Presidential primary elections to establish a position between Reagan on the conservative right and the Democratic challengers on the left. His assumption is that the voters have come around to accept his own conservative view of the national interest, that they are ready for prudent cutbacks on social programs if not on sacrifices that the majority is now middle-class and would choose continued high unemployment rather than continued high inflation, prices and interest rates. The guess here is that he's wrong, but he is appealing to the dicey political sentiment of

Protection due

Editor, Times-News: The Idaho State Police say most people they arrest for "driving while intoxicated" are good responsible citizens, not criminals, therefore should not be put in jail because drinking and driving are accepted by our Christian society.

Editor, Times-News: In response to Glenda A. Gardener's letter in the Jan. 19 edition of the Times-News?

Now comes the part where the non-drinking population asks: Why in the name of God is it to be preferred to be run down, killed or maimed for life by a good drunk responsible citizen? All drunken drivers should be treated as criminals to protect the innocent. J.C. BENTON Twin Falls

Yes, it took a terrible tragedy to get quick action in a very bad situation on our railroad crossings. It could have been your son or daughter in that ill-fated car — anyone who has driven through our community could have been a victim of this hazard.

Thought

"Humanity either makes, or breeds, or tolerates all its afflictions, great or small." Herbert G. Wells; English historian.

Yes, Glenda A. Gardener, I have nothing as tragic as the tragedy of the three happy young teenagers whose lives were snuffed out here in Shoshone has to happen in the Wood River Valley before these people realize they need better and more adequate roads and bridges to accommodate all the traffic of vacationers and holiday people who really do love the beauty and grandeur of their lovely valley.

Later on the same practical theme, that spending now to put the unemployed to work would use our unused industrial capacity and labor to produce more revenue and help balance the budget, but he was overwhelmed by the President's budget message on the television and in the newspapers.

But for now, the President is in control. The Democrats have no presiding voice to challenge his arguments, and the opposition Congress is too confused to offer a clear alternative.

This is the one short period in a presidential year when the State of the Union address until the start of the Presidential primary elections when the President can clearly dominate the news, and Ford in the last few days has done just that.

Berry's World

Advertisement for Berry's World featuring a cartoon illustration of two men in suits. One man is speaking, and the other is listening. The text below the cartoon reads: "We made a little mistake instead of dropping $50 billions of federal programs, it should be $85 billions!"

Ford gains political advantage

WASHINGTON — The economists of various persuasions are now producing their mystifying clarifications of President Ford's state of the union address and budget, but the politicians of both parties seem to agree that he has produced a couple of fairly effective campaign documents. He has called for conservatism in the name of that old radical, Tom Paine. He has called for self-reliance and squeezed appropriations for Medicare, school lunches and food stamps, but his proposed budget for all these welfare-state programs add up to $171.1 billion or 44 per cent of what he proposes to spend. It is a contradictory puzzle and the Democrats don't quite know how to deal with it. Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill of Massachusetts, the Democratic majority leader of the House of Representatives, a noted friend and adversary of the President, sitting in his hideaway in the Capitol with a picture of the Boston Red Sox on his wall, thinks his old golfing pal's speech and budget are a bit of a fraud, but in political terms he concedes they may give him fits. "We are going to have a rough year on the Hill," he says. "The opening struggles of a presidential election on Capitol Hill clearly favor the President. They are not only political, but theatrical events, and should probably be presented at the Kennedy Center or some other arena of the performing arts. Old Hollywood actors like Ronald Reagan and veteran Boston politicians like Tip O'Neill are beginning to understand Ford's advantage. In this crucial phase of the Presidential campaign, when you can't tell the Democratic players without a scorecard, the President has a clep edge. He has the facts about what Henry is

ERA rescinder switched to new Senate committee

BOISE (UPI) — Proponents of a measure to rescind the Equal Rights Amendment received a setback in the Senate Tuesday.

By a vote of 18-16, senators agreed to send a concurrent resolution to the State Affairs Committee for consideration.

The move to send the Agriculture Affairs-sponsored resolution to the State Affairs Committee was made by Sen. Arthur Murphy, D-Mullan, as debate began on the measure — one of two resolutions before the Senate dealing with rescission of ERA.

Explaining that he did not wish to "kill the measure" or arouse "passion with what I am going to say," Murphy noted that all resolutions dealing with ERA in the past had been handled by the State Affairs Committee.

"Now we find rescission coming from the agriculture committee of all places," Murphy said.

He said also some question may be raised about the legality of the resolution since it was put out of committee by a "back slip," which allows committee members to act without holding a formal measure.

"Some members of the State Affairs feel they have been bypassed by this irregular action," Murphy said.

Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, chairman of the Agriculture Affairs Committee and sponsor of the concurrent resolution, defended his actions, saying "this has been done before" and there was "urgency in this case."

He urged the Senate to defeat the move to send it to State Affairs.

"Let's get it (rescission) decided," Watkins said. "We have an opportunity today."

Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, also argued that in the past bills had been brought out of other than germane committees. He said it was something that was "not unusual" but a "creature under which we operate."

In opening debate on the concurrent resolution, which proponents contend would take just a simple majority rather than a two-thirds vote as would a joint resolution by State Affairs, Sen. James Yost, R-Wendell, argued there was no need for ERA since everyone in Idaho and the nation was equal.

Yost said Idaho acted hastily in ratifying the amendment in 1971.

Still before the Senate and under normal procedures will be up for a final vote later in the week was the joint resolution requiring a two-thirds vote.

BOISE (UPI) — The unresolved question of tax relief, tax shifts and salaries for state employees may stifle the steady progress of the legislature's Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, co-chairman of the joint committee, said today the committee is running ahead of previous years in its deliberation on budgets.

But High said unless the committee receives some direction shortly, progress it has made this early in the session may go for naught.

High said the committee expects to finish work on the supplemental appropriations and will take up fiscal 1977 appropriations Tuesday.

"There are limitations that the committee can go," he added.

"We would like an early resolution on tax relief on tax shifts and state employees' salaries so we can complete our work," High said.

High said the work of the committee wasn't "hurt yet," but quickly added there was just a certain point the committee could go with its work before we will have to stop."

He said it was hoped that the legislature especially comes to grips with a decision on the Hay Study to establish a new pay schedule for state employees.

"This needs to be resolved right away," High added.

The co-chairman said the committee was now four or five days ahead of previous schedules and easily could finish its work by the 45th day of the date set by law for final legislative action.

introduction of appropriations — if it received the desired legislative direction.

Testimony limit set

BOISE (UPI) — Chairman Lyle Coombs of the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee said Tuesday there would be a limit of three minutes for each person testifying on three land use planning bills Monday night.

So far, Coombs said, 29 persons have signed up to testify, but he added he anticipates by hearing time about 100 persons will want to testify.

Panel keeps holdback bill

BOISE (UPI) — State school superintendents said Tuesday they could resolve the problem without the Idaho Legislature passing a law to withhold funds from school districts which failed to comply with the law.

And members of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee decided to go along with their voting 7-2 to hold the bill in committee. It was the second time the bill has been held.

Sen. Dick Smith, R-Freshwater, warned, "however, the time may come when the legislature would have to take a closer look into the operations of the school districts.

Smith, said with state funding for public schools running in the neighborhood of 70 per cent, "we are finding the districts running a pretty poor show."

"Sometime in the future, the legislature is going to be compelled to look into this situation," he said.

Rex Englekling, Nampa, incoming president of the Idaho School Superintendents Association, said with a "little time and a little study," these problems can be resolved.

Cow disease aid sought

RUPERT — Sen. John T. Peavey, R-Rupert, has called for an Idaho legislative study of brucellosis to try to determine where state programs fall short in controlling the disease.

Peavey said, "Other states are more successful at keeping the disease under control. They are closing their borders to Idaho breeding cattle without individual blood tests."

He said he favors a $100,000 supplemental appropriation to the Idaho Department of Agriculture Bureau of Animal Health to "step up (the) blood testing program."

The bureau reported there are no infected herds in northern Idaho, the number of infected herds from the Magic Valley west is decreasing but in eastern Idaho the infection is still on the rise.

Peavey said the disease is expensive to Idaho ranchers because infected cattle must be slaughtered and the herd must be isolated until it is found to be free of the disease.

In opening debate on the concurrent resolution, which proponents contend would take just a simple majority rather than a two-thirds vote as would a joint resolution by State Affairs, Sen. James Yost, R-Wendell, argued there was no need for ERA since everyone in Idaho and the nation was equal.

Bill held

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to allow sale of liquor by the drink outside the limits of incorporated cities was held for further study in the House State Affairs Committee today.

Rep. Dale Branson, D-Nezperce, urged enactment of the bill. He said he thought it preferable to writing new exceptions into the law each year to take care of various types of resorts located outside cities.

Questions from the committee indicated the measure has little support.

Non-property tax bill revised

BOISE (UPI) — House taxwriters sent to the bill drafting center today a revised version of a bill to allow cities to impose certain non-property taxes.

This version cuts to six from 13 the number of specific non-property taxes a city could impose and requires a two-thirds majority vote of the voters to approve three of them.

Under this bill municipalities could impose income, sales and household taxes if a majority of the voters approved them and liquor by the drink, hotel-motel taxes if a majority of the voters approved them.

two-thirds of the voters approved them.

In addition, this version provides for using excess revenues for property tax relief.

When the bill comes back from the bill drafting center it will be considered by the full committee for introduction.

Check asked

BOISE (UPI) — The House Transportation Committee introduced today a bill to require motor vehicle inspections only when the vehicles are to be sold and registered.

At present, motor vehicle inspections must be made annually whether or not the vehicles are sold.

The bill also increased the inspection fee to $5 from $2.

House passes college gift bill

BOISE (UPI) — The House approved 60-7 and sent to the Senate Tuesday Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' bill to provide a tax incentive for contributions to private colleges.

But first it had to beat down two attempts by Rep. C. L. "Butch" Otter, R-Caldwell, to amend the measure. Otter contends the measure is too restrictive and should apply to private elementary and secondary schools and possibly to public universities and colleges.

He tried first to yank the proposal off the debate calendar and put it into the Education Committee. That move failed 14-54. Then he tried to put it into Committee of the Whole for amendment. That went down 12-55.

The bill provides for income tax credits of up to $50 for individuals and $50 for corporations for contributions to private colleges.

Because of a lengthy, noon-hour debate on the bill the House never got to a bill to increase the grocery credit on income taxes to $20 per person from $16. That proposal was held over until Wednesday for debate and action.

Ban snuffed

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, was refused by the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee on his bill to prohibit smoking in public vehicles.

The committee voted 6-1 not to introduce the measure.

Swenson, who last year successfully won approval of a bill to ban smoking at public meetings, called by government agencies, said he was petitioned to submit the public vehicles smoking measure.

Many Thanks!

Carolyn Dinn
Your response to my column red phone has been overwhelming. In just one week local and long distance calls have been pouring in to express customer appreciation for Smith's new low prices and better service. You have given us great suggestions not only to improve our stores but for future columns in our ads.
We have already put many of your ideas to work in our stores for example, one red phone request by a Salt Lake City Customer has prompted us to add dietetic ice cream and ice milk as standard items to all Smith's Food King Stores. Another Suggested we reserve 2 parking stalls for handicapped persons near the stores entrances. We are working on this.
Doe Smith has given me this opportunity to give you what you want at store level. So keep our red phone busy. As You shop our stores, continue to look for ways we can serve you better, and then report back. I will be answering calls on my red telephone between 10-12 daily. When I'm out in the stores or speaking before groups your phone calls will be recorded and I will get back to you as soon as I can.

Simon says

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William Simon says the nation is well on its way to an economic recovery, but he warned against a return to the "excesses—and irresponsible" fiscal policies of the past.

"We're in the process of a very healthy economic recovery, and 1976 is going to be a very good year," Simon told civic and industrial leaders Tuesday night.

"Let's just make sure that we don't re-embark on the excesses and irresponsible fiscal and monetary policies of the past—the futile and false attempt to put people back to work."

Parents find daughter

MOSCOW (UPI) — A five-year-old girl kidnapped more than three years ago was found nearly 1,000 miles away from her home living under a false name, a Soviet newspaper said Tuesday.

She recognized her parents immediately and ran to her mother crying "Mummy," the newspaper said.

Police are still seeking the woman who abducted her.

The newspaper Pravda's Vozzok said Barno Arizova was kidnapped from school in the U.S.S.R. town of Andizhan in late 1972 by a woman who told the principal she was a neighbor.

One step for Anne

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has approved Anne L. Armstrong to be ambassador to Britain.

Confirmation by the full Senate appeared certain after the committee vote Tuesday.

Mrs. Armstrong, 48, who would succeed Elliot L. Richardson, has told the committee that if confirmed she will serve with "total dedication."

Equality pushed

BERN, Switzerland (UPI) — Two women members of the Swiss Parliament have introduced a motion that boys as well as girls in primary school should learn how to sew and darn and in high school be taught how to cook as well.

"Who can guarantee Adam that he will always have an Eve to sew on his buttons," said deputies Lise Oertle and Susanne Gessner. "Mrs.'s helplessness in this sort of thing is well proven."

Phony identities

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — An engineer admitted Tuesday he outsmarted hundreds of lending agencies and obtained 1,000 credit cards by creating more than 300 phony identities and a group of non-existent businesses.

The engineer, John L. Spillane, 31, of Sicklerville, N.J. in Camden County, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court to submitting false loan and credit applications to get more than $650,000.

Jack finds job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jack Ford has finally found a job.

The President's second son has been hired as director of Youth Marketing for special projects for World Mark Travel Inc., starting today; the White House said.

Jack, 23, will be based in Washington although headquarters of the travel firm is in New York.

Sheila Woldenfeld, first Lady's press secretary, said Jack would be involved in creation of programs for the travel agency and will specialize in youth and convention travel.

Skinny dip tours offered

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — New Yorkers pay $350 to $400 for "skinny dip tours," crossing the continent to see and be seen on the only legal nude beach in the United States, a travel agent says.

In a City Council debate last week over the status of Black's Beach, a councilman voted fears that San Diego would attract "skinny dip tours," with mobs of nudists coming to enjoy the beach, and herds of clothes tourists going to gawk at them.

"There already are such tours for nudists, Barry Flaxen of Town and Country Travel of New York said Tuesday. "San Diego is one of the more popular designations because it is the only city in the country with an official nude beach," he said.

He said his agency books about 2,000 New Yorkers a year to San Diego to enjoy the beach, and they pay $350 to $400 for the trip.

Father hospitalized

MIAMI (UPI) — Dade County policeman Raymond Southernland, whose three children have all been stricken with cancer, has been hospitalized at Bethesda Hospital in Maryland for treatment of what doctors have diagnosed as a brain tumor.

Southernland's son, Jeffrey, died of cancer in 1967 at the age of 4, but sons Stephen, 15, and Mike, 10, have been cured of the disease. Stephen became a friend of Ted Kennedy Jr., son of the Massachusetts senator, after both lost legs to cancer.

"When I was in the situation, my father said to me, 'have faith and trust everyone around you,'" Stephen said. "He told me not to be a quitter."

Now it was Stephen's turn to give a pep talk before his father and mother left for Maryland Tuesday.

"I told him today to have faith. And not be a quitter," he said.

Stephen said doctors at Miami's Mercy Hospital discovered "a large mass of something" on the right side of his father's brain during tests last week.

"The Southernland family is being studied by the National Cancer Institute because there are no other known cases where three children in the same family had been stricken with three different, and apparently unrelated, forms of cancer," NCI officials said.

Prices cut

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — The Pillsbury Co. Monday announced price reductions of 12 to 18 per cent on all of its refrigerated dinner rolls and canned "1889" brand biscuits.

The reductions are effective today, and consumers can expect to see the changes shortly at retail stores.

Marion Javits resigns Iran Air post

NEW YORK (UPI) — The wife of Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R.N.Y., has resigned her public relations post with the Iranian national airline because of public concern that her position might have undue influence on her husband.

Javits is the senior Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and an outspoken proponent of Israel in the Senate. Iran recently signed the U.N. resolution that condemned Zionism as racism.

Mrs. Marion B. Javits issued a statement Tuesday saying that she was resigning the job for Iran Air because it has become "very hard to maintain an objective point of view about my work and my responsibilities because of 'critical comments from those who were concerned that the senator might be influenced by my work for the airlines.'"

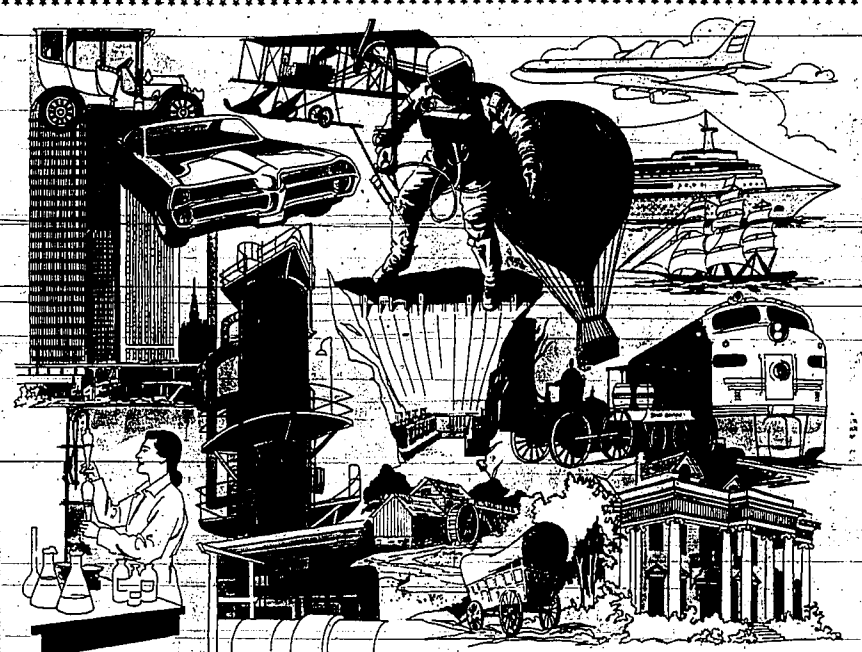

"My primary concern is the unjustifiable, painful criticism that has been leveled at my husband because of the appearance of possible conflict," Mrs. Javits said.

In a statement released in Washington, Javits said "I am deeply grateful to my wife for a sacrifice of considerable magnitude."

Secret Angola aid ban gains approval in House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a toughly worded warbling from President Ford, the House has overwhelmingly endorsed a congressional ban on all covert U.S. military aid to the African state of Angola.

The 223 to 99 vote Tuesday to bar additional aid to the former Portuguese colony was a sharp rebuff to Ford's argument that U.S. prestige and will were at stake in Angola.

House Republican leaders were singularly silent during the brief debate on a $112.3 billion defense-appropriation bill which contained a amendment prohibiting all aid funds for Angola, except those for intelligence-gathering purposes.

Minority Leader John J. Rhodes said he was surprised that the President's position got 99 votes. The Arizona Republican attributed the lack of support to a lingering fear in Congress of another Vietnam.

In a last-ditch effort to stay the House action, Ford sent a letter to House Speaker Carl Albert Tuesday morning in which he declared that the absence of effective Western aid would result in the destruction of the two largest political movements in Angola by Soviet arms and a Cuban expeditionary force.

"Ford said that between March and December of 1975, Soviet and Cuban aid to a 'minority' faction in Angola amounted to $200 million. Cuba dispatched more than 10,000 troops to destroy the two opposing factions which, he said, command the loyalties of 60 per cent of the population and occupy the major portion of Angola territory."

For the United States not to act, the President said, would be to send "a message of irresolution" throughout the world.

Ford claimed that U.S. aid, though limited, had begun "to reverse the tide and block the Soviet-backed effort to take over the country by force."

GRAHAM MARTIN ... tells of fall

Ford-Reagan debate may be near

By United Press International

The presidential adviser who said Monday President Ford is not changing his middle-of-the-road stripe because of Donald Rumsfeld's Tuesday night suggestion that Ford debate his GOP challenger.

White House counselor Robert T. Hartmann said Ford always debated opponents when he ran for congress in Michigan despite advice he shouldn't, and he might advise Ford to do the same now. Hartmann also said reporters here could not conceive of a situation that would cause Ford to withdraw from the race.

He quoted the President as saying, "If anyone thinks I'm going to pull out, they are out of their minds."

would send his Democratic rivals "scurrying like a cat on a hot tin roof."

But liberal Democrats turned their fire from Ford and Reagan to follow Senator Edward Brooke in New England and Henry Jackson did the same in Florida.

Carte's strong showing in Iowa last week has set him up as a target for other candidates striving to gain the "liberal" vote in New Hampshire, Morris Udall and Birch Bayh have been publicly questioning some of the former Georgia governor's positions on abortion and labor issues. And in Florida, Jackson ran down a Carter suggestion Monday that the March 7 primary would send Carter Wallace at bay.

Senate OK's Bush

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has confirmed George Bush as director of the CIA despite charges his past involvement in partisan politics will further erode public confidence in U.S. intelligence efforts.

Bush, whose nomination was approved 64-27 Tuesday, will replace William Lovell Weicker, R-Conn., as director of the CIA.

Bush will be the ninth director of the CIA since its creation in 1947 but the first with a political background.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., was the only Republican to oppose the nomination, although Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., voted present.

Even senators opposing the Bush nomination praised his honesty and integrity during public service as a congressman from Texas, ambassador to the United Nations and the U.S. liaison to the People's Republic of China.

CIA key to Saigon moves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Graham Martin, the last U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam and the target of criticism for the handling of the U.S. evacuation of Saigon, says he based his actions on a secret CIA report that the communists would not interfere with the airlift.

Martin Tuesday told a congressional panel that he could not have ordered evacuation of American personnel from Vietnam any earlier than the helicopter airlift of April 29, 1975 because a "panic situation would have resulted."

In his first public comment since the fall of Saigon last spring, Martin said he was convinced in January of that year that only a miracle could prevent a Communist takeover. Ironically, however, reports were ignored that a push would be made for a military victory. It was felt the war would end in a political settlement.

Martin has been widely criticized for delaying in the order to remove American personnel and South Vietnamese who faced possible Communist reprisals. He was not one of the last helicopters that lifted off from the roof of the U.S. embassy.

"I was the only person in Saigon who knew the South Vietnamese had undertaken on April 22 that they would not militarily interfere with the evacuation," Martin told the House International Relations Investigations Subcommittee.

He said he also had CIA information in mid-April that the North Vietnamese had decided to push for a military victory but "at that time that report was not given much credibility, so much so that the CIA station chief would not send it back through normal channels. I did more incredulity on it than the station chief did, in fact."

He said the Viet Cong were indicating a desire for a political solution at the same time, and that it was felt the information was erroneous and designed to trick the United States.

US oil bill sets record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Uncle Sam's fuel bill in fiscal 1976 reached a record $2.8 billion, more than twice the amount the government paid for oil in 1972.

Yet the record outlay bought a third less oil. An estimated 95 to 97 per cent of the oil went for military purposes, with the remainder allocated to other parts of the government, ranging from the White House to local post offices.

Adm. William Oller, head of the Defense Fuel Supply Center, oil purchaser for the entire government, attributed the increased cost to the sharp rise in world oil prices since the Arab embargo. He said there was a better than even chance that the fuel bill would rise still higher this year, but that would depend primarily on whether the oil companies are allowed to pass through their higher costs under regulations now being drafted by the Federal Energy Administration.

Russ gates open

MOSCOW (UPI) — Has the Soviet Union quietly opened its gates to increased emigration by dissidents?

Western diplomats said today recent government decisions to permit emigration of several prominent dissidents indicated a new strategy, but they are unsure of the policy's significance.

Within the last several weeks, four leading dissident Jews have either left for Israel or have been freed from captivity in a psychiatric hospital and sent to the West.

The Defense Fuel Supply Center purchased approximately 228 million barrels of gasoline and other petroleum products in fiscal 1975, which ended June 30, down from 288 million in fiscal 1974 and 333 million in fiscal 1973.

There are two reasons why the government is getting by with less fuel, Oller said. "We're not fighting a war, and everyone is under orders to conserve fuel," he said.

At the height of the Vietnam war, the government was purchasing more than half of its oil abroad, primarily for military aircraft and ships. But now oil from outside the United States accounts for less than a third of total purchases.

Burglar mauled by dog

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — A burglar, who failed to heed a guard dog's warning, was mauled by the 150-pound Great Dane Monday when he insisted on entering an art gallery, authorities said.

The burglar smashed a rear window to gain entry to the Sechle II Art Gallery, got away but his blood was splattered over the gallery.

Damage was estimated at about $2,000 by the owner, mainly to a valuable sculpture and some pottery knocked over by the burglar as he broke in and to wall hangings and other items that got splashed with his blood.

Dick Lusk, whose wife owns the gallery, said the dog was trained to bark, bark and growling to give an intruder a chance to leave.

However, he said, the burglar apparently didn't take the opportunity and was chased and mauled by the dog throughout the three-story building, which was formerly a fire station.

"At one point, Lusk said, the dog cornered the man in the base tower and really did a number on him" before the burglar was able to flee. "There was a lot of blood up there," Lusk said.

Snowbound cows rescued

TWIN FALLS — A group of snowmobilers rescued three yearling cows from a snowbound mountain area in a day-long operation Monday.

The cattle were found Sunday by snowmobilers at the head of House Creek on Elk Mountain. When found one older cow was dead and the carcass picked clean by coyotes. Three others, including one in such poor condition it could not stand, were nearby.

"One of the yearlings was still in good condition and had to be chased and caught by the rescue party."

A group of Magic Valley Snowmobile Club members and ranchers using two sleds and one car hood traveled the 10 miles from the Devil Creek Ranch in the Three Creeks area to the site of the stranded animals Monday. Medication was given to those in poor shape and they were strapped to the sleds and pulled the 10 miles back to Rolland Patrick's Devil Creek Ranch.

"At the ranch it was determined the animals were owned by Dick Agee from the O'Neal Basin Ranch. By road it is about 120 miles from where the cattle were found to the owner's ranch, snowmobilers said. The three yearlings will be kept at the Devil Creek Ranch and fed until they are able to stand being trucked to the owner's ranch, the rescue crew reported.

Those who participated in the rescue include John Thompson, John and Curt Darrow, Joe Haley, Truman Clark and Dusty Whiteley, all Caspoford and Roseworth; Randall Brewer and Dave Jones, Three Creeks; and Joe Hilschever, Buhl, president of the Magic Valley Snowmobile Club.

Axe-wielding separatists seize New Guinea towns

PORT MORESBY, Papua-New Guinea (UPI) — Hundreds of axe-wielding rebels seized two towns on an outlying island Tuesday, abducted government officials and demanded independence from Papua-New Guinea.

The separatists, isolated behind barricades of felled trees, also demanded $3.4 million from the government in Port Moresby for copper mined on remote Bougainville Island.

Prime Minister Michael Somare ordered a 100-man contingent of riot police to the island, but the DC-13 military plane carrying the force was prevented from landing because of obstacles on the airfield.

About 800 rebels swarmed into the towns of Buni and Boku, attacking government buildings with axes. They felled trees onto some buildings, closed the airport at Buni and cut off roads leading to both towns on a hillside.

The rebels seized the government officer in charge of the Boku patrol post, his assistant and their families. Buni is located about 35 miles southeast of Arawa, capital of the island. Boku is about 30 miles southwest.

Separatist leader Aloysius Noga issued a statement warning the Paman government against trying to retake the towns.

"If police come in here, they will be putting more coals on the fire," he said.

Controversial report delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A parliamentary maneuver on the House floor Tuesday forced a delay in the publication date of the House intelligence committee's controversial report on intelligence agencies.

Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., the committee chairman, failed in an attempt to obtain unanimous permission from the full House to issue the report by midnight Friday.

Pike also requested that committee members be allowed until Feb. 11 to agree on recommendations on how to improve monitoring of the CIA and other agencies.

Rep. Robert E. Bauman, R-Md., objected saying he understood there were committee members who did not want the document published in its present form because it contained secret and sensitive information which could hurt U.S. interests, and which the White House and CIA had asked be deleted.

Under House rules unanimous consent must be obtained in order to publish a report when the House is not in session. The House does not normally meet on Fridays, thus necessitating Pike's move.

Pike will have to put forward another motion next week, probably on Monday, to start the procedure again.

Bauman, before voicing his objection to the Friday publication, asked Pike who had leaked the report, even before it was issued, to the New York Times which published major portions of the document Monday and Tuesday.

"I don't believe anyone abhors leaks more than I do," Pike said. "Obviously, this has hurt the credibility of the committee."

Bridge progresses

THE last piece of structural steel was placed Tuesday afternoon on the new Perrine Bridge spanning the Snake River north of Twin Falls. A four-lane roadway now will be built across the bridge. An August opening date is planned.

today in brief

Power rate boost takes effect today

Tax paper assistance offered

TWIN FALLS — Free assistance to taxpayers will be offered by the Internal Revenue Volunteer Income Tax Assistance program beginning this Saturday. An assistant will be available each Saturday at the YM-YWCA building in Twin Falls at 11 a.m. Tom Hamilton, VITA coordinator, said the service is available to anyone needing assistance. More information is available by calling him at 734-4660. Those making use of the service should bring their own tax forms and records with them.

Pancake supper, auction set

BUHL — The Buhl Grange will hold its annual pancake supper and auction Friday at 5 p.m. in the Buhl Grange Hall. Dinner will be served from 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. with the auction to begin at 8 p.m. On the menu are pancakes, eggs, sausage and beef. Tickets are available at the door and fees are $2 for adults and $1 for children under 12 years.

KH bridge open

KING HILL — After nearly three months the King Hill Bridge over the Snake River is open to traffic. A warning sign says the load limit is 16,000 lbs. (8 tons) gross weight, the speed limit is 5 miles per hour and violators will be prosecuted. The Nelson Co. of Twin Falls did the construction work. Gary Smith, J-1-B Engineers of Boise, was the inspector, and the work was under the supervision of the Glenn Ferry Highway District Board. Al Graybeal of Deer Creek Lodge did some welding on the bridge.

Jerome meet tonight

JEROME — St. Benedict's Hospital Foundation will hold its annual meeting tonight at 7:55 in the long-term-care unit dining room at the hospital. The purpose of the meeting will be to conduct the annual business of the foundation and approve the election of three executive board trustees.

Station manager to retire

RUPERT, Idaho (UPI) — Mervin Ling, a broadcaster and radio station manager in Oregon and Idaho for the past 25 years, announced Tuesday he would retire Feb. 1. Ling said John T. "Mark" Hayes will assume full ownership and management of Inland Broadcast Company, the licensee of KATV Radio, a country music station in Rupert.

TF baby 'critical'

TWIN FALLS — Dustin Lee Tippett, 1-month-old son of Linda Tippett, Twin Falls, remains in critical condition today in St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise. The child was transferred there Monday night after he apparently fell to the floor in his home. Twin Falls city police said the child suffered massive skull fractures, a bruised wrist and other body bruises. He was taken to Magie Valley Memorial Hospital by the mother after she returned from work late Monday night and found he had been injured. The mother, who said she felt injuries resulted from an accidental fall, told police the 30-year-old baby either had crawled for her two children for some time and was reliable. The baby's mother said he was changing the baby's diaper and holding him on his lap when he slipped between his legs to the floor. He said he did not realize the child was badly injured until after the mother returned and checked him.

BOISE (UPI) — A rate increase for Idaho Power Company boosting the charge on 1,000 kilowatt-hours of residential service by nearly 8.5 cents per day will take effect today for the utilities general business customers in Idaho. The new rates were authorized earlier this month by the Public Utilities Commission but delayed pending action on the company's request for clarification of its order. James E. Bruce, company president, said the new rates will have the following effects: Increase residential rates by 15.3 per cent with monthly costs for 1,000 kilowatt hours of use rising from $17.02 to $19.50 or $2.48 per month. Increase irrigation rates by 16.5 per cent. Increase rates for all general business customers, including residential and irrigation, by an average of 16.2 per cent. Provide Idaho Power with $15.4 million of additional revenue annually if electric use by general business customers continues at the anticipated rate. Permit the company to earn an authorized rate of return of 8.09 per cent on rate base, or the money invested in materials and equipment to serve its customers. Permit the company to earn a projected 13.28 per cent return on common equity which is less than the range of 13.5 per cent to 13.75 per cent rate of return on common equity authorized in the PUC order. Bruce said nationally the average residential user pays $22.37 for 1,000 kWh or $13 more than the company's average residential customer in Idaho under the new rates. He said the increase was "essential" for three reasons — the high cost of capital to finance construction of necessary new customer service facilities—the increased costs of materials and equipment to provide reliable service to growing numbers of customers; and Idaho Power's necessary transition from an all-hydro to an combined hydro-thermal system with resulting additional fuel costs. Bruce said the increased rates do not "guarantee" Idaho Power a higher net income or the authorized rate of return. "They only provide us an opportunity to recover the costs of providing electric service and an opportunity to earn the authorized rate of return," he said. "These are goals which we are permitted to reach if economic conditions in the year ahead permit."

Paul man pleads guilty

JEROME — Duane Amen, 22, Paul, pleaded guilty Tuesday to two counts of assault with a deadly weapon, his car. Amen was originally charged with three counts — two for deadly assault with a revolver and one for kidnapping. Amen's attorney, Lawrence Duffin, Burley, says the kidnapping charge was dropped because of difficulty in determining if a husband can kidnap his wife. Duffin says the two counts of assault with a revolver were amended to read assault with a car because it is believed Amen's revolver was not loaded. According to Duffin, a gun must be loaded to justify an assault charge. Amen was arrested in September in a steep part of the Snake River Canyon near the Murtagh Bridge where he and his estranged wife, Vivian Amen, whom he allegedly abducted at gunpoint, had spent the night hiding. He is reported to have forced the vehicle of his wife and her mother, Mrs. Reyes Hernandez, off Interstate 80, with his car, then to have kidnapped his wife at gunpoint. Judge James Cunningham, Fifth District Court, has ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Duffin says Amen should be sentenced around Feb. 15. The maximum sentence Amen may receive is four years imprisonment. He is out of jail on a $10,000 property bond posted by his parents.

Boy Scout officials air plans for council program

TWIN FALLS — Plans for a council-wide camporee program to mark the bicentennial year were discussed here Tuesday by the Falls District chairman of the Snake River Boy Scout Council. John Massey, district scouting chairman, conducted the meeting at noon in the Boy Scout office. He also introduced Boy Scout executive Ed Hanks, recently appointed as a Falls district official. Hanks, who succeeded Darl Goed, was appointed effective Jan. 1. He had not met with the Falls district group until Tuesday. Hanks was born in Twin Falls, attended schools inampa and was transferred here from Portland, Ore. Hanks served as field director in charge of Explorers in the Portland area and has been a scouting executive the past 12 years and a part of the organization since joining as a boy in 1947 in Nampa. Ed Schell, chairman of scouting for the district, proposed the bicentennial council-wide jamboree-type event. He suggested it be held at a site in Magie Valley where demonstrations, camping and public programs could be held for some 2,000 boys. He asked other members of the district committee to discuss the possibility and to contact other districts in the council for their views. This would be the first such council-wide event for the bicentennial year for all of the boys participating. Plans were also discussed for another Aerospace workshop for the Falls district. This will be held April 24 in the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds. Events begin at 10 a.m. and continue through the day with skits and shows each hour. This will also be held around the bicentennial year with historical skits and scouts wearing their skit costumes throughout the day. Massey said February will feature the annual scout fundraising program, such as scouting family tents at various troop sponsoring churches and other organizations. In communities other than Twin Falls, where United Fund provides 25 per cent of the total budget, door-to-door solicitations will also be made. Scout officials were reminded of the Thursday night annual council banquet to honor volunteers of the scouting program. Five Silver Beaver awards, the highest honor given volunteer workers, will be presented.

Colorado land, Sierra tie eyed

By BILL LAZARUS CHEYENNE, Wyo. — A "camouflage" sewer system apparently existed on land owned by Powder Mountain Ski Corp., a Colorado county assessor testified in a Sierra Life Insurance Co. hearing here Tuesday. George Bunte Jr., assessor for Mesa County, Colo., was unable to describe the connection between Sierra Life and Powder Mountain. He said the assessor's office had no information regarding mortgages on property. Bunte was able to testify, however, to the lack of development of property owned by Powder Mountain in Mesa County, Colo. At the end of 1974, Powder Mountain assigned mortgages on about 1,000 acres of property it owned in Mesa County to serve as security on $2.2 million in promissory notes. In Idaho hearings on the financial condition of Sierra earlier this year, one of Sierra's appraisers valued the Mesa County property on which Sierra holds mortgages at $30 million. Another Sierra appraiser valued it at $18 million. But the appraiser working for the state of Idaho valued it at $274,000, according to the hearing officers report and findings. Walter Bithell, a Boise attorney, who served as the Idaho hearing officer, determined the Powder Mountain property was to be developed with condominiums and commercial enterprises and decided that the property was worth enough to secure the promissory notes to Sierra. But the Wyoming Department of Insurance is challenging the value of the property in the hearings before the Wyoming Commissioner of Insurance. During the hearings, Sierra's attorney, James Applegate, Cheyenne, objected that Bunte had not shown how the Powder Mountain property has any relevance to Sierra. Arthur Hanscum, attorney for the department of insurance, said the relevance would be shown with the testimony of future witnesses. He identified one 640-acre section of land which Bunte discussed as land on which Sierra has mortgage liens. In the southeastern corner of the section of land, Bunte said, there is a ski tow base, "which is the only improvement on the entire section." The property visible to the northwest is "so thick with oak brush you cannot walk there. Even cattle have trouble going through there," he said. Bunte said the property is appraised as farm land. He said he had no sewerage facilities on the property, but he testified one of his employees apparently saw some pipes and steel covers which "were only camouflage" for a sewer system. During the hearing, Sierra's attorneys A. Bob Jordan, Oklahoma City, Okla., and Applegate defended the use of Idaho standards. "I'm sure the hearing will show that Idaho code is substantially equal to that of Wyoming. There are certain variations in quantity, but not in quality," he said. He was also talking about a technical accountant's game that has nothing to do with the real insolencies or the real solvency... of Sierra. The evidence will show that Sierra is solvent," Applegate said.

TF salaries increase 71%

(Continued from p. 1) Public utilities employees' incomes almost doubled from $2.7 million to $4.5 million, suggesting that community growth required many new service hookups as well as expansion of public utility facilities. Contract construction incomes, which had already reached $4.6 million at the beginning of the 1965-66 fiscal year for a net gain of 35 per cent during the period. Finance, insurance and real estate incomes also rose about 50 per cent, from $2.9 million to $4.4. Local government incomes, which amounted to $5.4 million in 1965, more than doubled when they reached $11 million in 1972 for a 103 per cent increase. Largest of these total incomes was school salaries, which grew from $2.8 million to $4.5 million. The number of dollars received by Twin Falls County residents from sources such as Social Security, public assistance, Medicare and other assistance (transfer payments) totaled more than retail commerce incomes or non-farm proprietary incomes. About $19.3 million was received by Twin Falls County residents in 1972, of which $10.2 million was Social Security payments, which rose 122 per cent during the study period. Public assistance payments took a sharp increase over the years, rising from $106,000 in 1965 to $1.76 million at the end of the study, for a 148 per cent increase. Compared to neighbor Cassia County, however, the ratio of persons receiving assistance compared to population was lower in Twin Falls County. Bollinger ends his study with this qualification: "While personal incomes is the single most comprehensive indicator of the economic well being of people, it is not a proxy for measuring the overall quality of life. This study makes no pretense of determining that quality." "Unfortunately, economic indicators are too frequently used as local indicators, but alas, they are not. For example, the scenery enjoyed by residents of Teton County, whose per capita income is next to the bottom, may easily surpass in beauty the view enjoyed by professional people living in high-rise beauty apartments."

Buhl without ambulance aid

BUHL — Buhl is without local ambulance service and city commissioners plan to confer with county commissioners on the problem. William C. Pryor, who previously operated an ambulance in Buhl for Magie Valley Ambulance Service, owned by Cloyce Edwards, Twin Falls, has been hired as a Buhl policeman, replacing Chris DeAlba, who returned to the US Border Patrol. Edwards told the council Tuesday night he would like to keep an ambulance stationed in the Buhl area but he was losing money on the operation. Councilmen plan to discuss the possibility of obtaining county funds to subsidize the operation. Councilmen also approved the 1976 budget. No one commented at a public hearing on the $522,289 budget, which is an 18 per cent increase over last year's estimated expenditures. Three citizens attended the hearing, according to Peggy McClure, city clerk. Councilmen continued their discussion over insurance coverage for city-owned vehicles. Costs have risen "tremendously," according to Councilman Joe Feltenbacher, and councilmen have "thought seriously" about eliminating collision coverage. This type coverage has been dropped on the older vehicles, he said. Completion of the insurance coverage for the coming year is being delayed while city officials confer with Bill Assenard, insurance agent, over details of coverage of the more expensive equipment, such as fire trucks.

Events discussed

COMING Boy Scout events are discussed by John Massey, Falls district chairman; Ed Schell, newly appointed scouting executive, and Ed Schell, chairman of scouting in the district. Hanks met Tuesday noon with Falls district committee chairman.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market opened lower Wednesday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up 1.81 point to 956.00 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 247 to 122, among the 512 issues crossing the tape.

Just as the market opened, the Commerce Department reported its index of leading economic indicators rose 0.4 per cent for December, the first gain in two months. It showed the economy is moving again, following a fourth quarter lull.

Many analysts said the market's advance this year has been triggered, in part, by confidence the economy would recover in a steady, solid manner from the worst recession since World War II.

Profit-taking, some analysts said late selling was prompted by a House vote to override President Ford's veto of a $45 billion appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor and Health, Education and Welfare.

Colonel honors governor

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — First Col. Harlan Sanders of fried chicken fame made Gov. David Pryor an honorary Kentucky colonel. Then the two celebrated over a luncheon of shrimp.

Amid it all Monday, Sanders allowed as how there were chicken pickers in Kentucky who made more money than the governor of Arkansas.

That was not hard to visualize. The governor makes $10,000 a year and is the lowest paid chief executive in the nation.

Sanders, who is spending a few days in Arkansas, and the governor had lunch together, but Pryor said at a news conference the entire was shrimp, not chicken.

Sanders had little comment, except to say he never got tired of eating chicken — "my own" — and lamenting the governor's salary.

"People ought to be ashamed," he said, and added quickly, "not you," aside to the governor, which was good because someone really must do the job and not everyone can get on as a chicken plucker.

A reporter asked the governor if they had discussed the possibility of his naming a Colonel Sanders franchise as a means of augmenting his income. "I'd settle for one of those $5 gift certificates he's carrying around," said Pryor.

The colonel began franchising Kentucky Fried Chicken at the age of 66 after he sold his Corbin, Ky., restaurant. Now 85 and as familiar to Americans as the President, he sold his interest in the company in 1963 for $2 million and stayed on as a paid consultant for life.

"They have to pay me $40,000 a year for the rest of my life, whether I go nuts or anything," said Sanders.

Precautions taken

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Possible terrorist infiltration of the huge Nevada Test Site — the cause of recent beefed up security precautions including the addition of tanks — prompted federal officials Monday to replace at least 10 handicapped security guards.

An Energy Research and Development Administration spokesman said the strengthened security measures were only precautionary and that no threats or incidents had occurred at the nuclear testing facility.

The guards, long time employees at the test site, appeared the terminations

Authorities said Monday a response squad, similar to a SWAT team, also patrolled the site. The Nevada Test Site, a 1,000 square mile desolate desert area 63 miles northeast of Las Vegas, is the center for the United States testing of nuclear weapons.

18 years ago the Starkweather name struck fear into Nebraska hearts

Lincoln, Neb. (UPI) — Eighteen years ago today, the name of fear in Nebraska was Charles Starkweather.

It was on Jan. 27, 1958, that law enforcement officials found in northwest Lincoln the body of Marion Bartlett wrapped in paper in a chicken coop.

The body of his wife was found wrapped in a quilt in an infant girl which had been stuffed into a cardboard box.

There had been a warning of what was to come. But it was not until Jan. 27 that the true meaning of the Dec. 1, 1957, death of a service station attendant, Robert G. Colvert, 21, was known.

Lincoln residents armed themselves and waited as the death toll mounted in the wake of the travels of Starkweather, a 19-year-old red-haired ex-garbage man, and his 14-year-old girl friend, Carl Ann Fugate.

The final count was 11 dead. Starkweather was executed June 25, 1959. Carl will know in June whether she will get the parole she has sought the last three years.

willing accomplice and she didn't know Starkweather had killed her stepfather, mother and half sister.

Starkweather went to the Bartlett home Jan. 21. On Jan. 27, after a relative showed up to inquire about the family, the pair decided to flee. They took with them a 10 shotgun.

Starkweather and Miss Fugate went to the August Meyer farm near Bonnett, Neb., where Starkweather had hunted. Meyer was killed with the shotgun.

Starkweather's car became mired in the mud and they were picked up by two Bennet

Starkweather wrestled with another motorist as police came up. Miss Fugate ran down the road to the approaching car of a deputy sheriff and Starkweather took off in the Ward car.

The chase was on, at speeds of up to 100 miles per hour. One officer was firing as he followed.

On Jan. 29, near Douglas, Wyo., the fleeing couple stopped by a parked car where Marie Collins, a salesman from Great Falls, Mont., was sleeping. He, too, was killed.

Texas port workers claim innocence in scandals

Editors note: This is the fourth in a series of five articles on corruption in the U.S. export grain industry.

By BRUCE E. HICKS
HOUSTON (UPI) — Baird Sibley, a grain inspector for 25 years and chief inspector of the Houston Merchants Exchange for seven, described himself as more embarrassed than nervous about the allegations of corruption in the Texas grain exporting industry.

"I think we inherited guilt from across the way in New Orleans," Sibley said. "If there have a problem over—there they need to clean it up. But why hurt us?

"I think in Houston — and not just because I've been here for 25 years — the inspection department has done a fine job. I can't recall a complaint from overseas in the last 15 years, unless it's about weevils or something."

Sibley was understating the allegations of corruption in the U.S. export grain industry. He is one of 150 formal complaints about grain arriving, infested with bugs or other foreign matter and was of a poorer quality than contracted for. Of the 100 complaints which told where the grain was shipped from, 45 were from Texas ports and the bulk of those were from Houston.

It is true that the complaints do not prove wrongdoing. The allegations could have become contaminated in transit.

Investigation of the industry by five federal agencies began nearly two years ago in Louisiana and led to 52 indictments and convictions.

It soon became apparent the Louisiana investigation was in its early stages and had expanded. In an equally large proportion to Texas, a federal grand jury in Houston indicted five inspectors — all employees of Sibley's Houston Merchant's Exchange — last March 23 on charges of accepting bribes totaling $5,350 from 1970 to 1974 from Capt. Victor Diaz who commanded grain ships owned by the New York-based Maritime Overseas Corp. Diaz claimed he bribed "the inspectors to certify his ships clean and free of insects without an actual inspection."

The U.S. Attorney's office said Diaz became ill in New York and could not testify, and so the trial was delayed.

"I've known these men for a long time and I believe they're innocent," said Frank Hemen, Houston general manager of the Cargill, Inc. grain firm based in Minneapolis. "Why would the government bring them to trial? That's the real story."

"I don't believe they would sell out," Sibley said. Similar pleas of specific and general innocence for the Texas industry echo from the Sabine Pass in the north to Brownsville in the south.

Clarence Danysh, chief

grain inspector for the Corpus Christi Grain Exchange, responsible for all of Texas south of Houston, said: "We've had the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Office of Inspection. We've had the FBI. We've had the General Accounting Office. They've contacted every firm in South Texas and talked to them."

Asked whether illegalities had been discovered, Danysh replied: "No sir, not in South Texas that I know of. As far as quality, we've had, oh, maybe a couple of complaints from Russia about insects. Insects are a big problem and people in Russia say a lot of the stuff is infested. But it is infested in transit."

Errel Lantz is operating officer for the Brownsville Board of Trade, a publicly owned corporation which hires grain weighers, who are bonded and licensed by the Texas Agriculture Department, and employs the Corpus Christi Grain Exchange to inspect grain.

He said Brownsville exports 21 to 22 million bushels of produce, most of it milled in the Rio Grande Valley. Ninety per cent of the exports are feed grain for animals.

"The feds have increased the checking on every plant. The survey intimated that this thing in New Orleans," Lantz said, "in our case and as far as I know, in Corpus Christi, they haven't found anything. There's been nobody even threatened with indictment here."

The strongest suspicions about the Texas grain exporting industry centers around the Port of Houston, the nation's third largest.

In New Orleans, the investigation had been underway for 15 months before the first indictments were returned. Further indictments — or a clean bill — are expected to be similarly slow in emerging in Texas.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Rene Gonzalez told UPI a federal grand jury in Houston is investigating the industry and interviewed its first 12 witnesses late last year.

He said more witnesses may be called and, notwithstanding claims of innocence in the past, Star State, the current panel and subsequent grand juries may remain occupied with the investigation stage of their duties for a year.

Farm Veterinary plan requires boost

PORTLAND (UPI) — Establishment of a regional school of veterinary medicine which would provide Oregon with a source of future veterinarians depends on cutting a lot of red tape, the head of the state's veterinary medicine program said Monday.

Dr. E. Edward Wedman, dean of the School of Veterinary Medicine at Oregon State University, told the Oregon Veterinary Association, a veterinary medicine teaching hospital at OSU 15 to 19, million and three years away. Wedman is dean of a school without faculty, operating funds or students. It was given status independent from the School of Agriculture only last November. Its facilities remain those of its old, pre-veterinary medicine training.

Wedman said it will be March before a regional plan to provide veterinary medicine training for 120 students from Oregon, Washington and Idaho is submitted to federal and state authorities for approval.

Under the plan 50 students from Washington, 30 from Oregon, 15 from Idaho and 25 from other Western states would begin studies in the College of Veterinary Medicine at Washington State University at Pullman with additional faculty and facilities provided by the University of Idaho at Moscow eight miles away.

After two years the students would finish their studies at a clinical teaching hospital at Oregon State.

The Oregon Legislature appropriated $400,000 for planning the hospital last year but the funds are being withheld until federal agencies approve construction funds.

Wedman said, "The regional plan has never been done. We would be the first to do this if it works out."

While Oregon has only 400 licensed veterinarians and many of those are nearing retirement age. Because other states give priority to their own residents in admissions to veterinary schools only about 10 Oregon residents begin the professional course each year, he added.

Similar pleas of specific and general innocence for the Texas industry echo from the Sabine Pass in the north to Brownsville in the south.

Services survey set for February

BOISE — A nationwide survey in February conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture will gather information to help indicate the times and services farmers buy to produce crops, livestock and poultry.

The survey, directed in Idaho by the Statistician in Charge, Richard C. Max, will collect data during personal interviews about farmers' expenditures for fuel, fertilizer, feed, seed, livestock, interest, taxes, cash wages and repairs.

Max pointed out that the survey results will help measure the actual kinds and amount of these expenses encountered by producers and will be very useful in establishing a reliable indication of net farm income. The survey intimated that this thing in New Orleans," Lantz said, "in our case and as far as I know, in Corpus Christi, they haven't found anything. There's been nobody even threatened with indictment here."

Land meet called

ELKO, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada ranchers will meet Feb. 2 to consider legal and other means of opposing the Bureau of Land Management's plan to rehabilitate the range, partly through curtailed grazing.

The long-range plan announced last week would limit grazing ranges to 10 months a year. Ranchers said this would force some livestockmen out of business, especially in view of recently announced grazing fee increases.

BLM officials agreed some marginal operators might go out of business but said the intensive management program is necessary to head off deterioration of the range. They said the eventual results would benefit ranchers, sportsmen, and environmentalists.

Last week, Attorney General Robert F. List, told livestock industry representatives he would give them legal support. He said a first step to block the BLM plan would be to use all available administrative appeals. He said this could delay it for at least a year.

UFW plans big effort in region

PASCO, Wash. (UPI) — A regional organizer for the United Farm Workers Union says the UFW is preparing to make a major organization drive in the Yakima Valley and Columbia Basin areas of Washington along with areas of Oregon and Idaho this year.

Robert Trevino said a dozen deputy organizers will begin training in February.

Meanwhile, in Olympia, State-Agriculture Director Stewart Bledsoe said he expects renewed effort during the current legislative session to enact a farm law.

Bledsoe said the new California Agriculture Labor Law and the Cesar Chavez Successorship would spark new moves in Washington state.

Potatoes keep sliding; meats, grains turn up

Courtesy Sinclair & Co.
CHICAGO — Potato futures continued to slide but other commodities moved upward in Tuesday trading.

The May delivery of Idaho russet potatoes lost another 20 cents, closing at 12.20 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said Maine spuds sustained a second day of 50 point limit down moves in current crop months as investors took profits on last week's advances. Volume totaled 6,000 contracts. Traders called the current move a technical correction as the market seeks to digest possible export prospects.

Mixed fundamental and technical factors kept corn fluctuating on both sides of a small range, and after a flurry of local short covering in the futures market, the cash crop contract closed with fractional gains. Commercial and professional house bear spreading supported new crop contracts, which settled about speculative enthusiasm may have been dampened by morning hedge selling.

Live cattle ended a long losing spell, advancing sharply with the back months leading the way and moving to near limit gains. Lighter slaughter, and cattle markets added support but some traders feel the positive movement was a technical correction.

Sugar 11 moved higher by 10 to 16 points on steady short covering. Volume was 4,615 lots. Sugar 12 was untraded,

Feed sheep numbers dip

BOISE (UPI) — Sheep and lambs on feed as of Jan. 1 in Idaho totaled 16,000 head, a decrease of 100,000 from the number on feed a year earlier, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

On Jan. 1, 1975, Idaho had 21,000 sheep and lambs on feed. The service noted the 1976 figure is 46 per cent of last year's total.

Sheep and lambs on feed for slaughter market in 28 states totaled 1,806,000 head, down 9 per cent from Jan. 1, 1975, and 28 per cent below 1974, the report added.

BLM officials agreed some marginal operators might go out of business but said the intensive management program is necessary to head off deterioration of the range. They said the eventual results would benefit ranchers, sportsmen, and environmentalists.

WAITING to go back up with the follow shot, Buhl's Cary Schmeckepper draws a lot of attention from the Burley Bobcats. Mike Geenan (10) is airborne while Jones attacks from the side. Buhl won 65-56.

Buhl uses third-quarter point spurt to beat Burley 65-56

The Buhl Indians outscored Burley 16-6 in the first four minutes of the third period and went on to claim a 65-56 decision Tuesday night. The Indians extended a tight four-point halftime lead of 30-26 into a 49-32 advantage and Burley was unable to get closer than six thereafter. But the Bobcats, riding the offensive back boards generally and the scoring of junior Farrell Williams particularly, established that six-point deficit late in the game and had time to pull it out. Cary Schmeckepper's three free throws and a bucket by Chris Bell stopped all rally ideas. The offensive boards kept Burley in the game through the first half. The Bobcats had five follow shots and a tip-in to account for 12 of their 36 first-half points. The board effort came despite a zone defense employed by Buhl which Coach Terry Adolphson hoped would offset Burley's height advantage. The teams were tied five times and the lead changed hands three times in a 14-14 first period. The tie hit maintained itself through 24

24. Then Ben Buckendorf, Steve Hill and Bell all connected for Buhl before Williams hit one for Burley to establish the halftime count. The teams had two offsetting field goals each to open the second half. Then Schmeckepper and Brad Helwig gunned the Indians up 49-38. After Gee hit for the Bobcats, Bell put Buhl's first offensive board points. Hill hit two free throws and Schmeckepper collected four points on a rebound shot and a fastbreak cripple. That made it 46-32. Burley was back to within 10 at the break and buckets by Gary Byington and Kay Dalton narrowed it to 60-54 with two minutes left. Burley won the preliminary.

F&G seeks alternative fund source

BOISE (UPI) — Alternative sources of funding, including voluntary licenses for photographers or taxes on outdoor equipment, were discussed Tuesday by Idaho Fish and Game commissioners as ways to meet higher operating costs. Reports on hunting and fishing licenses sales in 1975 showed a drop that cut into the agency's source of revenue. Commissioner Wayne Blake of Lewiston said the commission should look to alternative sources of funding for the department.

The commission did not decide on any particular method but ideas discussed included the Washington State program of special wildlife license plates that are sold on a voluntary basis and the Colorado voluntary program of $5 licenses sold to wildlife photographers. Other suggestions were for a general fund appropriation, taxes on liquor or cigarettes, possibly rerouting some game law violation fines back to the department rather than to counties as the fine system now works. At the beginning of the meeting, Commissioner Pete Thompson of Sandpoint was elected chairman for 1978. Thompson is publisher of the Sandpoint Bee-Bulletin. He replaced Jack Hemingway of Kelchum. In other action Tuesday, the commission approved a $9,000 federal project to improve habitat on the Boundary County Wildlife Management Area. The project will be conducted in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service. The commissioners approved purchase of a public access site on the Big Lost River that has an appraised value of $1,557,300 and approved the department's plan to split competitive bidding for a lease on 622 acres of state land near the Boise River game range. At a hearing, members of the public spoke out in favor of the department's plan to split opening days for deer and elk seasons to relieve pressure on the game. There also was approval voiced for the mid-week openings used in 1975 rather than the weekend opening dates set in previous years. Sportsmen for muzzle loaders gun clubs at the hearing requested a season for their type of weapons in southern Idaho. They said they do not like to have to drive to the north Idaho area to participate in the muzzle loader hunts. There also were requests for the commission to set shorter hunting seasons and to ask the U. S. Forest Service to give access to backcountry areas so fewer hunters could go there, relieving pressure on the herds.

ABA teams put up $1.7 million to insure competition in '77

DENVER (UPI) — The seven existing American Basketball Association clubs agreed Tuesday to put up $1.7 million to assure the financial viability of the league through the 1977-78 season. Commissioner Dave DeBusschere announced the financial commitment after two days of closed-door meetings with representatives of the seven teams and the ABA Players' Association.

The trustees of the ABA have, through financial means, assured operation of the ABA next year as an independent entity. DeBusschere said shortly before the start of the league's ninth annual all-star game. "This is the best situation the ABA has been in anytime, anywhere."

DeBusschere said the money between $1.3 and $1.7 million, would be delivered within 45 days. "I'm a lot more optimistic about what the future holds for us today than I was yesterday," said Julius Erving, vice president of the ABA Players' Association. "We've offered our services through our counsel, to get everything together."

Busch abandons plan to buy Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Discouraged by the $11-million price tag and the "uncertainties" of sports August A. Busch Jr. has abandoned efforts to personally purchase the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team. Busch had been in talks with the Cardinals' management of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., which he built into the world's largest brewery. He has said purchasing the baseball team would be a way to occupy his time. His son, August A. Busch III, is now president of the brewery.

Anheuser-Busch purchased the Cardinals in 1962 when there was the danger that St. Louis, losing the Browns to Baltimore, also would lose the Cardinals to another city. Busch also pushed through the brewery's board in 1968 a $5 million allocation towards building the $20-million Busch Stadium, home of the baseball and football Cardinals. Busch's son, commenting on his father's decision, said, "Anheuser-Busch is not interested in selling the club to anyone else." He said it would be retained by the brewery as a subsidiary.

Playoff format okayed by NCAA

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Commissioner Fred Jacoby of the mid-American conference has announced the framework for a possible playoff for the league's berth in the NCAA basketball tournament.

In case of a tie, all teams deadlocking for the title will be considered co-champions. The playoffs, if necessary, will only be to determine the league representative to the NCAA tourney.

The conference guidelines on possible playoffs are: — If two teams tie and one of those teams has won both regular season games against the other, the winner will go to the NCAA. — If two teams tie and they have split their regular season games, then a neutral court playoff will determine the NCAA team.

Baseball open to clause modification

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The attorney for the National League said Tuesday the major league baseball owners will agree to make changes in the reserve clause as long as "the guts" of the system remains untouched.

"We can't touch the guts of the reserve clause, but there are other things we can do and maybe those will solve the problems the players are faced with," Louis Hoynes said during a hearing on the owners' suit challenging the right of an arbitrator to declare two players free agents.

The owners argue the action of arbitrator Peter Seitz in the case of Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally effectively voids the reserve clause, which binds players to major league teams.

Hoynes said what the owners considered "the guts" were described by former NL counsel Lewis F. Carroll during 1969 meetings between owners and players discussing the reserve system. The areas the owners dealt with included the owners' option to renew contracts indefinitely, maintenance of a reserve list and prohibition of other clubs from tampering with players under contract.

"The purpose of the meetings (in 1969) were to get a handle on the issues and see how we could proceed when negotiations started (for the 1970 collective bargaining agreement)," said Hoynes. "We were at that time discussing the reserve system from two aspects, the immutable and the other rules which we felt could be modified to make life less difficult for the players."

Alexander Hodgen, general counsel for the baseball commissioner's office, said the owners felt player control was essential and never consented to any changes in that aspect of the reserve system.

"But there was the indication if a means could be found to preserve club control of player contract then modification of the system would be fine," said Hodgen.

U.S. District Judge John W. Oliver was hearing testimony in hopes of resolving contentions by the owners that players representative had previously agreed to refrain from calling for arbitration on the option rules.

The attorney for the Major League Baseball Players Association said the MLBPA never intended to remove the reserve clause from arbitration during 1970 and 1971 contract negotiations.

Richard Moss, testifying during a hearing on the owners' suit challenging the right of an arbitrator to declare two players free agents, said a provision of the 1970 and 1971 working agreement excluding the reserve system from the agreement did not deal with arbitration.

Counsel for the owners contended the excluding the reserve system from the contract, it also was excluded from the grievance section of the agreement which stipulates which matters can be brought before an arbitrator.

"The language was written in litigation and excluded in totality the reserve system from the basic agreement," said Moss, who was the only witness called during Tuesday's morning session. "It was never intended this would take any contract provision away as far as grievance procedures for players."

Nelson to retire

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Celtics veteran Don Nelson, who has played five minutes in the last three games, said Tuesday he plans to retire at the end of this season.

"I think I could safely say that this is my last season, but I really haven't made any announcements yet," said the 35-year-old forward in a telephone interview.

Earlier in the day the 14-year veteran had discussed his role on the team with Coach Tom Heinsohn.

"He was just telling me in so many words that he had other people who were doing the job," said Nelson, the NBA's leading shooter last season with a 53.9 percentage. "He said to keep at it and hang in there."

The meeting came two days after Heinsohn had used every player but Nelson in a nationally televised tour of the Buffalo Braves. Nelson said he was asked if he wanted to play late in the game, with Boston ahead by 30 points, but responded, "Let the kids play."

TF matmen top WR

Twin Falls wrestlers picked their last match of the year for their first victory Tuesday night, defeating Wood River 28-19.

The Bruins won the final two matches to break the season.

Both teams now are pointed toward the district tournament opening in Jerome Tuesday.

Results of the matches, Twin Falls men listed first, include 199 pounds, Peterson defeated Peterson 13-3; 167, Lawrence defeated Head 5-0; 133, Prescott defeated Byler 4-0; 121, F. Salinas defeated Hurlis 12-11; 129-129, Matthews defeated Shire 12-12; 134, Dobbs pinned Coates; 140, Lagg defeated Larrigan 7-1; 147, Engle pinned Shaw; 157, Davis pinned Layba; 169, Carr pinned Eakin; 187, Gambrel defeated Northcott 11-3. No heavy weight match.

Nuggets defeat ABA all-stars

DENVER (UPI) — Rookie David Thompson hit 15 of his 29 points in the short period Tuesday night to give the Denver Nuggets a 144-138 win over the American Basketball Association All-Stars before the largest crowd ever to see an ABA game.

Thompson, the game's most valuable player, brought the Nuggets back from a 37-92 deficit at the end of the third quarter.

An ABA record crowd of 17,708 watched the league-leading Nuggets battle a squad of All-Stars made up from the other six teams in the league.

The All-Stars had command of the first three quarters but went four minutes without scoring a field goal in the fourth quarter.

Julius Erving of the New York Nets was the leading scorer for the All-Stars with 23 points, although he sat out the entire third period. Billy Knight of the Indiana Pacers had 20 points for the All-Stars, 18 in the second half.

The score was tied 17 times before Dan Issel got a tip in with 6:25 left to put the Nuggets ahead for good. It was the first All-Star win for Denver Coach Larry Brown, who lost last year's game 151-184. New York coach Kevin Loughery lost his first All-Star game.

Artis Gilmore, a 7-2 center from Kentucky, scored only 14 points before fouling out with 2:35 left in the game. Nuggets forward Bobby Jones had 24 points, while Issel and Guard Ralph Simpson added 19 each.

Drug use probe ends, NCAA's continues on Kentucky campus

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — University of Kentucky Athletic Director Cliff Hagan maintained Tuesday that other major universities were to investigate their own athletic programs. "We would find drug-related problems similar to those uncovered at his school."

Hagan's comments came after the release of a UK investigation, which revealed 23 students, including 16 football players, violated student code regulations involving drug abuse on the campus. The investigation began as the result of rumors surrounding drug abuse by players last November.

Hagan hinted he was somewhat disappointed the football players had to be singled out among the students, none of whom were named, but conceded the public has grown to have a higher expectation of student athletes than regular students.

"I would think any other major university, if they look it upon themselves to make a similar probe, would find out what we found out here," Hagan said. "I guess it is not completely fair to single the people out as football players in the study, but the thing was expected and drew quite a bit of attention."

"People have grown to have higher standards for football players than for normal students and, sometimes, the athletes forget this," Hagan said.

Another investigation continues at the Southeastern Conference school into possible NCAA violations and this report, Hagan noted.

was still not complete. UK football coach Fran Curel was in Florida recruiting and could not be reached for comment.

Hagan termed the report as "very serious" and he said it would hurt the football program. But, the former UK and pro basketball player emphasized a section of the report by Dean of Students Joe Burch said drug use by UK football players was not disproportionate to other drug use by other students.

The report recommended three areas of review to be undertaken by the athletic department, including a review of the drug education program, an examination of housing of football players and the creation of a plan for improved supervision of student athletes.

Hagan said his department would have no trouble developing solutions to the recommendations, adding the whole controversy could have some redeeming value.

"Maybe other athletes on other colleges will see that we treated our football players just like they should be, like any other students," Hagan said. "Some people will be shocked because of the national spotlight on us, some will view it as not as bad as some had thought. Hopefully, we can deal with this thing now that things are in focus."

"We need to get this tiger by the tail, and hopefully, after examining ourselves, we can develop some recommendations and plans to help this situation," Hagan added.

Oriole owner denies pledging team to Seattle permanently

EVERETT, Wash. (UPI) — Jerrold Hoffberger, owner of the Baltimore Orioles, contended Tuesday the American League made no commitment to stay in Seattle with the expansion franchise Pilots — a team which traded only one year before being moved to Milwaukee.

"We made no commitment to remain here forever," Hoffberger testified in the trial of a multimillion-dollar suit filed against the league by the state, King County and City of Seattle over transfer of the Pilots in 1970.

Hoffberger said he wanted to see this ball club stay here, but he added he would not accept the proposition that the league had promised not to move.

William Dwyer, chief attorney for the plaintiffs, tried to pin down Hoffberger on whether the league had made commitments to the voters of King County when various league representatives expressed concern that a bond issue for construction of a domed stadium might fail. Hoffberger had written then American League President Joe Crispin, expressing concern that the bond issue might not pass.

"I wanted the thought conveyed to the community that there was little or no way they would get a ball club unless they had a house of sufficient size and quality to play in," he testified.

He said Crispin traveled to Seattle "to tell people how good baseball was and hope that it would get them to vote for the bond issue."

The voters eventually passed a $40-million bond issue, and the stadium construction is nearing completion, but there is no baseball team ready to move in.

American League owners have voted to expand to Seattle in 1977. However, the league also wanted the National League to expand to Washington D.C. and approve late league play but National League owners vetoed that idea.

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I am pickpocket, but I just don't like to see an ex-convict make a fool of himself.

I refer to the gentleman who had been a high-ranking Army officer in World War II and insisted on wearing his uniform instead of a tuxedo to social functions.

I am sure there are many more like him who hate to give up the prestige they once had. On the other hand, I am glad to know that there are still men who are proud to have served their country.

However, it would be a kindness to let him know that unless he is on active duty, it is not only improper to wear his uniform, it is against the law!

MIKE IN AURORA, ILL.

DEAR MIKE: Thanks for the info. I realize that for every regulation there's a reason, but I think that the ex-convict (or woman!) who can still button his uniform from W.W. II should be allowed to wear it!

Improper dress?

DEAR ABBY: I live in a duplex apartment building. The lady who occupies the other apartment has access to mine. I gave her a key for security reasons because I work out of town.

She doesn't have a phone so I gave her permission to use mine. She does not abuse the privilege, but because she is in my apartment almost daily a problem has arisen.

I keep a bottle of whiskey in my kitchen cabinet for guests who drink. My neighbor nips a little, and during the last year my liquor supply has dwindled about two inches a week.

I have devised a method that should eliminate this problem. First, I make a pot of hot tea. To this I add a liberal amount of salt and add some lemon concentrate to lighten the color. Once in the bottle, the mixture resembles the original contents and surprisingly enough, it tastes like sour whiskey.

Do you consider my solution in bad taste?

B.F.

DEAR B.F.: Not if you can get away with it.

DEAR ABBY: Re that Peeping Tom, whose wife caught him peeping on one of her sisters who was taking a bath and again on another sister who was changing her clothes. You said he was a "voyeur" and suggested that he get help at the nearest mental health clinic.

Are you kidding? Most homes have window shades to pull down and bathroom doors with locks. Sounds to me as though the sisters were asking for it. But if they were not worth peeping at, by all means the guy should be hauled off to a mental health clinic.

Meanwhile, Bon voyeur, Tom!

Medical scientists face big dilemma

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Sexual relations between therapists and patients are one of the key ethical dilemmas facing medical and social scientists attempting to develop standards for the practice of sex therapy across the nation.

That some therapists seduce vulnerable patients was generally acknowledged and condemned by a panel of specialists from a half dozen fields meeting last week in an unprecedented conference on the ethics of sex therapy and sex research.

Left unanswered was the question of whether trained female surrogates should have sex with male patients in an attempt to help solve their sexual problems. This practice was once used by pioneering sex researchers William Masters and Virginia Johnson, who sponsored the conference.

Masters said that before the practice was discontinued in 1970, 50 men were treated with the use of substitute wives. He said the program was halted because the surrogates were assuming a pseudo-therapist role.

"We are in an infancy and we have much to learn," Masters said. "We are going to make mistakes. We have and we will."

Dr. Judd Marmor, president of the American Psychiatric Association and professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, said often the patient who becomes involved with a therapist is seeking love and a permanent relationship.

"When inevitably, in the vast majority of instances, that expectation is shattered, then the patient is damaged," he said. "I have yet to see one that doesn't end up with bitterness, disappointment and in a few cases, a psychotic break."

Dr. John Green, professor of psychiatry at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, said some clinics which permit therapists to have sex with patients specifically say in advance what the therapy will include. He asked if this too were unethical.

"The only thing I can say there is caveat emptor," replied Marmor. "At least the patient is warned in advance and if the patient goes ahead voluntarily, he has either him or herself to blame."

Yale University psychiatrist Fritz Redlich said there are two kinds of sexual relationships between therapists and patients. In one, the patient is vulnerable and Redlich said this situation is comparable to statutory rape.

In the second case, he said, an aggressive patient seduces the therapist. Once this happens, the therapist "is finished as a helping person whom the patient can respect and trust."

'Y' classes begin Monday

TWIN FALLS — The YM-YWCA February season begins Monday with several swimming classes for children and adults.

A "Tommy and Me" class for children 6 months to 3 years and their mothers begins Monday. The class provides water-orientation skills for the youngster. The mother is taught under the supervision of a certified instructor.

The "Adoptle" program also begins Monday teaching preschoolers 3 to 4 years old to swim. The classes are small and provide individualized instruction.

Lap swimming time will be provided for those who wish it. For more information call 733-4381.

New look

PIERRE Cardin chose this caption to highlight his spring fashion show in Paris this week. The silk striped lamo dress has a baggy top that cups under the derriere over a narrow skirt. The look for spring is shoulder below, blousy above. The off-the-shoulder gathered neckline and little puffed sleeves are other new trends. (UPI)

Fashion trend?

SKINNY cigarette trousers for day and nighttime wear rolled back into Paris fashions with the Pierre Cardin show Monday. The white, crape trousers with sparkling sequins were teamed with a top that cupped the derriere, another trend in the show. (UPI)

Narrow-leg pants hit fashion scene

PARIS—(UPI)—Narrow "cigarette trousers" hitting above the ankle have rolled back into Paris fashions again. The Pierre Cardin show, second in the lineup of the spring high fashion collections, opened today with a bombshell — narrow 1950sist trousers showing an expanse of skin between ankle and shoe, a look that Paris has said for years was ugly.

Pierre Balmain's collection Sunday "light" show featured skinny tube trousers. Cardin showed off his incredible creative talent by displaying trousers in every shape possible and some nearly impossible. Trousers meant for streetwear, not the beach, were gathered at the ankle with a flaring cut below. Wide trousers came with matching belted jackets.

The show took the lady one-piece jumpsuit and turned it into high fashion in elegant fabrics from pale ivory silk to checked crepe. He showed blibbed wide coveralls worn over skirts. Evening jumpsuits and harem pants came in palest chiffons.

The crowd of press and buyers jamming Cardin's theater, "Espace Cardin," gasped at his ballooning blouses in wallpaper printed silks caught with light cuts right below the knee. Some had off-the-shoulder gathered or smoked tops and you might be able to get by with them at a resort.

After the pants parade, the Cardin girls showed dresses and suits that emphasized what is expected to be the general "silhouette" in this week's shows: narrow, flat skirts with lots of soft fullness above the waist.

The crowd applauded the prettiest dresses Cardin has shown in years. Pale silks had those narrow but soft skirts and tons of ruffles with wide low-cut collars or long pointed sleeves slashed from shoulder to wrist so they moved like floating panels. Some dresses had gigantic triangle-shaped tops, others enormous batwing sleeves.

The Cardin fireworks included straw hats with asymmetrical wide brims and high heel shoes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am a male, 36 years old, and I have a pilonidal cyst at the end of my spine, which fills up and bursts periodically. It has become more frequent, now about every two weeks. Is surgery indicated?

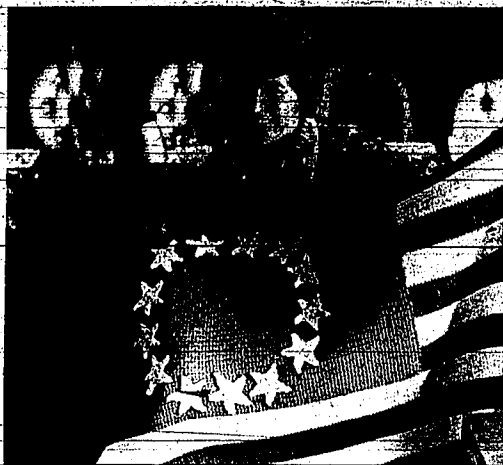

Would surgery correct this permanently? How long would the period of recovery be after surgery? Is there danger in not seeking surgical attention? — G. C.

This is a cavity, a sort of in-folding of skin in which hair continues to grow, resulting in a swelling. Pilonidal cysts are located in the middle of the back just above the anus. They are thought to be congenital, although often the precise cause is not clear.

These cysts vary in extent and severity. Some are superficial enough so that debris within the nidus (nest) of the cyst can be removed, with recurrence prevented by keeping the area clean and avoiding pressure on the lower back. Weight reduction for the obese is recommended.

Other pilonidal cysts are deeper, and require more radical treatment. Even though there may be periodic drainage as in your case, this will not be helpful and will not preclude recurrence.

Saturday 'special' for TF man

TWIN FALLS — When Gerald "Jerry" Hunt goes to the Rogerson Hotel Friday for his usual "coffee time" it will be a little extra special.

Hunt will be 62 years old Saturday. The longtime Twin Falls barber, who ran his own shop here for 46 years, has been going to the Rogerson Coffee Shop at 10 a.m. several times a week for about five years. He began the habit, which has become traditional with many of his friends, after his wife's death six years ago.

He quit driving last year and now either takes a taxi or his daughter, Mrs. Lois Snow, Twin Falls, takes him.

Snow and Hunt "go to the shop" together. Hunt said when he is approached by the taxi driver once for "being pretty clumsy" the driver told him "That's better than driving young." Since that the driver has suffered a heart attack.

but reportedly is recovering, according to Hunt who is interested in and likes everyone. The gentler barber is widely known by the many patrons he has had during his more than half a century of barbering and on Christmas and birthdays he gets cards from throughout the country. One friend, Sam Olson, Portland, former Twin Falls resident, even has written a poem about him.

Hunt already was an experienced barber when he stopped in Twin Falls in 1908. Intending to go on to Portland, He had learned his trade in his brother's shop in Ft. Collins, Colo., in 1903, before the days when formal schooling and licensing were required. His family had moved to Ft. Collins when he was a youth from Nevada, Mo., where he was born in 1884.

The young barber was hired temporarily when he came to Twin Falls and within a few days had his own shop. Twin Falls barbers were then charging 35 cents for hair.

cuts and 15 cents per shave. This was a dime more than he had been getting for haircuts in Colorado and one reason he remained in Twin Falls.

When he retired at age 82, he had spent a total of 62 years in the business.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt had two children. Mrs. Snow and Richard (Skip) Hunt, who was associated with John Bishop and the late Ray Nelson in development of the Lynwood Shopping Center here. The younger Hunt now lives in San Francisco where he still is in the real estate business.

Hunt, who continues to live alone in the house where he has been for 50 years, recently was asked by a member from his church to call a "sultan" and he jokingly reminded her he could be so classified himself.

Workshop scheduled

TWIN FALLS — A "positive action" workshop is scheduled Saturday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the cafeteria of Twin Falls High School.

Featured speaker will be Glen Jorgenson, a behavioral scientist from Los Angeles. "It's a skills approach to reaching a positive attitude," says Carol Alford, teacher at the high school.

She says the workshop is "directed toward teachers" but the program is for anyone, and all are welcome to participate. Two to six hours of credit are offered for the class through California Poly-Technical College.

April temple date set

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Nickels, Twin Falls, formerly from Belfast, North Ireland, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Margaret Ann, to Steven Lamarr Arrington.

Arrington is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Arrington, Twin Falls.

Miss Nickels graduated from Graymont Girls' Secondary School, Belfast. She came to Twin Falls 22 months ago, attended the College of Southern Idaho for a semester and is employed at May, May, Sudweeks and Fuller.

Arrington is a graduate of Twin Falls High School. He served a two-year mission for the LDS church in Greensboro, N. C. He is employed by Arrington Bros. Construction. An April 10 wedding is planned in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple.

TF group sets meet

TWIN FALLS — The first meeting of the Twin Falls Bicentennial Commission since October, 1975, will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the city hall auditorium.

Arten-Gull, chairman of the commission, said he hoped that interested persons will attend this meeting, at which plans for celebration activities between now and the end of July will be coordinated. He said the commission will help to groups making plans for bicentennial celebrations.

He said the commission is particularly interested in activities for the week of the Fourth of July. He said so far interest seems to center around a fireworks display, parade and some sort of outdoor festival. Groups that might be interested in participating in such a festival or the parade are encouraged to send representatives to this initial planning meeting. Call said.

There are apt to be sinus tracts leading from the skin to the deeper part of the cyst, and these can contribute to infection. This type requires surgery to clean out the tract thoroughly. If this can be done, recurrence is unlikely, although it can seldom be ruled out.

The danger in not having surgical treatment is a continuation of discharge, pain and resulting disability. If the area becomes abscessed, your troubles will be multiplied.

You will require a week or two for recovery from surgery, and will have to be scrupulous about hygiene and minimize pressure on the area for about a bit longer.

Since you report periodic drainage, it is high time for you to consider surgical treatment.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I have a very serious problem. I am 17, and recently about a week before my period, I seem to lose control of my urine. Sometimes when I wake I find my bed wet. I am really scared. Could you give me some advice? — Miss B. T. S.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am a 19-year-old female college student with an unusual and embarrassing problem, so embarrassing I won't go to my doctor with it. About a week before and after my period I wet the bed at night. I refrain from drinking liquids at night and I use the toilet before I go to bed, but it doesn't help. Any suggestions? — Miss A. R.

This question was raised recently at a meeting of urologists I attended. It does not seem to be a very common problem. Either that or many other young women like yourself find it too embarrassing to raise with their doctors. Of course, you can raise it to your doctor and without embarrassment.

Among the urologists I spoke with, one had seen the problem once. Another, a professor of urology, had not seen it in all his experience.

It might be a phase of pre-menstrual or menstrual tension or a result of congestive changes in the genital area with menstruation. One idea expressed was that a vaginal tampon might act as a foreign body, causing irritation.

You should, indeed, speak to your doctors about this. Perhaps one of the anti-bedwetting medications, such as imipramine, might be suggested. This would be taken prior to menstruation. Also, keep in mind the tampon suggestion.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

Would you please put an article in the paper about the use of cracked eggs. I've heard rumors they are harmful, yet I know lots of people who use them. — B. J. B.

Cracked eggs should be discarded, except, of course, where one has been cracked accidentally by a cook and immediately placed (covered) in the refrigerator. Otherwise the few cents gained is not worth the risk of salmonella (a form of food poisoning).

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can find out about the causes — and the cures — in this troublesome complaint in Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get your copy, write to him in care of this newspaper. Enclose a long, stamped, and self-addressed envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

AZTEC

Radiant Heaters

Aztec. A breakthrough in low-energy heating. Attractive, decorative warmth. AZTEC HEATERS come in a variety of attractive silk-screened panels created by artists to match your existing decor. They are available in portable, desk and bathroom models — for nurseries, children's rooms, dens, basements, living rooms, kitchens, bathrooms, hallways, workshops — wherever standard electric current is available. Gentle, natural warmth. Plug in an AZTEC RADIANT HEATER and you'll experience the same gentle, natural warmth that you do with sunshine! That's radiant heat — heat that quietly and gently warms people and objects instead of the air around them. It's not air that they HEAT, they heat. The secret of Aztec's cozy, economical warmth is that no energy is wasted in heating the air for ceiling! The AZTEC HEATER's special patented surface of finely silicon crystals makes this energy-saving action possible. Like a prism dispersing light rays, AZTEC's crystalline surface spreads out heat waves in all directions instead of concentrating them inefficiently in front of the panel. The heat waves go to warm you, with none of the heat loss of ordinary electric heaters, which first warm the air and then let the air warm you. Economical energy-saving warmth. Since it takes less energy to heat people and the specific places in which they live and work than it does to heat all the air in a building, AZTEC HEATERS are a thrifty way to warm up the cold spots in your home or office. You can lower room temperature and save energy without giving up warmth and comfort. Another savings plus: AZTEC HEATERS operate on 110 volt AC — the same voltage used by conventional supplemental heaters! A safe "cool" heat. The AZTEC HEATER's crystalline surface has a temperature under 200°F, a level which will not burn a hand, scorch a wall, or start a fire in any exposed blowing coils, no moving parts. AZTEC HEATERS (whether picture panel, portable, desk or bath heater) are safe to use near children. AZTEC HEATERS produce no heat, clean heat with no movement, no stirring up of dust and pollen, and no drying of the air. 50 safe and gentle AZTEC warmth that AZTEC HEATERS are used in hospitals, nurseries, day care centers.

BOISE — The Idaho State Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Substance Abuse in Twin Falls, has been granted $2,850 by the Association for the Humanities in Idaho.

An all-day conference will be held on Feb. 21 in Twin Falls, entitled, "A Symposium on Alcohol: Crime or Treatment — An Ethical Issue for Idaho." The conference will explore the ethical and legal issues posed by the Alcohol Intoxication and Treatment Act and proposed amendments to it. The conference will begin with an Antique Festival Theatre presentation of a brief play, "Lady on the Rocks."

Oakley and Bellevue are among 14 towns in Idaho with a population under 1,000 which will participate in two-day meetings as part of an Idaho Heritage program.

The meetings will include films, slides, papers and open discussions of the topic, "concept of home rule" and "preservation in the small town."

Local legislators will be invited to explore these issues with panelists and the audience.

Among those elected to membership at the AHI's business meeting on Saturday, was State Senator Richard High, Twin Falls.

Burley law move held up by mud

BURLEY — The city-county law enforcement building may be completed in another two weeks, but it appears it could be two months before it is occupied.

Burley Mayor Chuck Shaddock last week said that work on a street extension and parking lot probably will not start for six weeks. County Commissioner Weldon Beck said Sunday it may be "a couple of months" before city police and the sheriff's department move into the facility, even with continued warm weather and a good westerly wind.

Both cited the extremely wet condition of the ground and said nothing could be done until it dries out.

The street, its improvements and the parking areas around the new building are a current bone of contention between the two governmental entities.

The city will extend Albion Avenue along the east side of the building to connect it between 14th and 15th streets.

Commissioners were not holding their regular meeting today, but next Monday they will have before them a proposal regarding east of the street and the parking lots. The council voted last week to make that proposal.

Under it, the county would pay for that portion of the street and its improvements adjacent the county property. The city would pay for the rest of the project.

The city would also do all the fill work and base preparation of the parking lots, bringing them up to grade to the point of blacktopping.

It would also contract the blacktopping for the parking lot on the north side of the law enforcement building, since it does not have blacktop equipment.

The county would be responsible for blacktopping a 55 by 200-foot parking lot east of the building across Albion Avenue. Commissioners had expressed the hope that the city would complete both parking lots and the street.

City, county at odds

Theisen Motors Named Magic Valley Honda Dealer

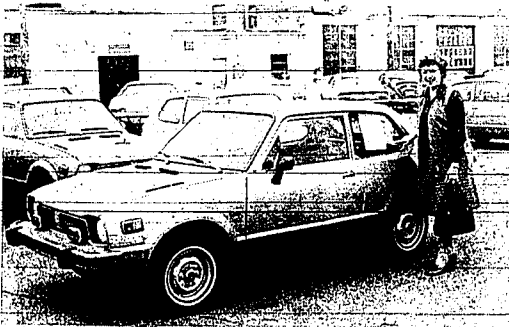

TWIN FALLS — American Honda Motor Co. announced today the appointment of Theisen Motors as their Magic Valley Honda dealer. The appointment is a first for the Magic Valley and highlights a year long study conducted by Honda Corporation on the automotive purchasing preferences of Magic Valley Residents.

The Honda line that Theisen Motors will handle includes the Honda Civic and the Honda Civic. Both models offer a variety of transmissions such as the 4 speed, 5 speed and Hondamatic as well as a host of options eager to please even the most particular drivers. Front wheel drive is a standard feature on Honda cars and is a very strong selling point especially when a buyer realizes that the Honda Civic is rated as highest mile per gallon car on the road and the lowest priced new car sold in America.

What The World Is Coming To

Honda Civic has the highest gasoline mileage of anybody. EPA estimates for the Honda Civic with 5 speed is 47 miles per gallon on the highway and 35 miles per gallon in the city to give a combined mileage of 40 miles per gallon. Not only is Honda the most economical new car on the road, it is also the lowest priced new car sold in America. Coupled with quality and innovative design, the Honda gives more for your money than any other new car sold in America. The best way to get to know the Honda is to drive one. We think you'll like what the world is coming to.

Honda Fills The Gap!

Aileen Lindemood, Twin Falls inspects a new 1976 Honda. Honda fills the need for an economy car with lots of power and comfort. Aileen said she was impressed with the long list of features on the 1976 Honda Civic. The engine is mounted sideways, so there's more room on the inside and with front-wheel drive there's no transmission hump. Inside, the Honda Civic holds four adults and luggage, too. Plus there's the standard engineering features on a Civic — features that many cars don't have: rack and pinion steering, front-wheel drive, four wheel independent suspension, front disc brakes, full interior carpeting, tinted glass, adjustable reclining front bucket seats and wood-grain dash trim. And all for the low, low price of:

THEISEN MOTORS

The Number 1 Lincoln-Mercury Dealership In The U.S.A.
 701 MAIN AVE. E. 733-7700

Merrill Lewis, Honda Specialist, just returned from a 2 week course in Honda mechanics in California. Merrill said that he was impressed with the ease with which a Honda can be serviced and repaired and the low costs of parts. "We now have a complete stock of parts and a full shop of specialty equipment to repair any Honda."

"I am extremely proud that we were selected as the Honda dealer for the Magic Valley. Of course we will continue to offer the fine Theisen Motors sales and service which you deserve and appreciate. I believe by adding the Honda line to our already famous Lincoln-Mercury line, we are offering you, Magic Valley a more complete automobile line. We made the decision to carry the Honda line because of your needs, for economy, durability, comfort, and low maintenance cost. Yes, free oil changes with the finest oil available for as long as you own a new Honda."

Sincerely,
 Emmett E. Harrison

Henry called Sadat buffoon, book says

CHICAGO (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger once characterized Egyptian President Anwar Sadat as "a fool, a clown, a buffoon," according to a still unpublished book by an Israeli journalist, the Chicago Sun-Times reported today.

The Sun-Times, in a dispatch from Washington by Morton Kotler, said it had obtained portions of the book "From Confrontation to Disengagement" by Matti Golan, diplomatic reporter for the Israeli newspaper Haaretz.

The book in its original version reportedly was expressed on direct orders of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, the Sun-Times said. The newspaper said a revised version has since been cleared by Israeli censors.

In it, the Sun-Times said, Kissinger is quoted as telling former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir: "Who is Sadat? We all thought he was a fool, a clown, a buffoon who goes to the stage every other day to utter a war."

The Sun-Times said records were kept of Kissinger's conversations with Israeli leaders and others without his knowledge and later made available to Golan.

The Sun-Times said Golan also reported: "Kissinger told Rabin nearly two years ago that he would have to make peace with King Hussein of Jordan or wind up having to negotiate with the Palestine Liberation Organization."

Rabin said of Kissinger, "It is impossible to believe a word that man is saying."

Kissinger called Soviet diplomacy "cowardly and inept."
