Irrigators demand rights

Time-News writer RUPERT - The Minidoka Irrigation District is ready to go to court if necessary to enforce contractual rights at American Falls Dam.

to get the bureau to replace the dam fall. The MID approved Duffin's position Saturday. The board authorized Duffin to make the stand clear in a Feb. 18 meeting of dissenting speculators called for the offices of Norman Nielson, counsel for the Burley Irrigation District.

IRS seeks OK for Ponderosa Inn sale

BURLEY - The Internal Revenue Service is seeking the bankruptcy shelter now covering Ponderosa Inns Inc. The IRS has filed an action seeking permission to sell the Ponderosa Inn in Burley to satisfy a tax lien filed on Jan. 7, when the IRS seized the North Burley property.

U. S. Bankruptcy Judge Merlin Young withheld his ruling on a creditor-requested requirement that "Ponderosa - Inns" post a bankruptcy bond until Thursday's meeting with creditors. Young placed tight controls on financial transactions of the company and demanded a full audit and periodic reports by a certified public accountant on the firm's financial status.

the IRS action for sale of the Burley Inn. A hearing on the proposed sale has been scheduled by Young for March 9 in Twin Falls. Gene Bryan, Twin Falls IRS collection agent, said the Ponderosa Inn in Burley could be auctioned off two weeks after approval by the bankruptcy referee, Monte Hobson, group supervisor for IRS in Boise, said the IRS could conduct the sale between 10 and 40 days after the auction was advertised.

Mao protege becomes China premier

HONG KONG (UPI) - In a surprise appointment, Hua Kuo-feng, a protege of Communist Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung, has been chosen acting successor to the late Premier, Chou En-lai. Hua's appointment was disclosed Saturday night by the New China News Agency in a routine dispatch from Peking that astonished China watchers.

become permanent, but diplomatic analysts cautioned that Hua may be an interim choice for the position. After Chou died of cancer last month, most China watchers predicted that Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping would take over as head of the Chinese government. Teng had performed most of the premier's duties since Chou was hospitalized in 1974.

The initial reaction of some China analysts in Hong Kong and Peking was that Hua might have been a compromise candidate - chosen after heated debate among party leaders. Hua, in his mid-50's, was deputy governor of Mao's native province, Hunan, from 1958 until 1967. He also held party posts in the province before the Cultural Revolution.

Gas control under attack

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb launched a delayed attack Saturday against a House-passed bill to extend the scope of federal natural gas price controls, saying it is "clearly a step in the wrong direction." It was the administration's first strong reaction to the measure, which the House adopted Thursday. Aides said Zarb held off until he could assess the bill's impact.

echoing earlier complaints by the petroleum industry. "What the nation needs is natural gas deregulation, not the added regulation called for in this bill. The natural gas bill passed by the House is counterproductive and clearly moves in the wrong direction." The House bill was a compromise that would free small producers from price controls but would continue the controls for the 25 or 30 largest producers and extend Federal Power Commission regulation from gas crossing state lines to gas used in the state where it is produced.

committee. Zarb's attack appeared to be aimed at influencing that effort. Zarb gave four specific objections to the House bill: - Extension of price controls to the presently unregulated intrastate market would promote wasteful consumption and discourage future production.

MADRID, Spain (UPI) - Authorities closed down Madrid's huge Casa del Campo Park Saturday, and sent in 20 police jeeps, a helicopter, paramilitary civil guards, sharpshooters and zoo keepers with tranquilizer guns to track down a rampaging lioness allegedly sighted by two visitors and a police officer.

Indian Hills plan may hit snag in Idaho House would be turned over to the winners of a lottery. The persons acquiring the parcels would be responsible for paying for the $24 million irrigation project over a period of 40 years. Most of the land in the proposed Indian Hills project has already been farmed. According to Kenneth Dunn, administrator of the Water Resource Board's Division of Operations, in 1964 a group of people settled the land under the Desert Entry Act. The federal district court in Boise found in favor of the BLM, which took back the property.

The State Water Resources Board proposes to expand the Indian Hills project and open up under the Carey Act to settlers to be chosen by lottery. Although the existing project needs to be revamped with new pumps, pipes, reservoirs and canals, it still will be cheaper than developing desert land into farm land from scratch, Dunn said. Carter sees NH victory

By United Press International
Jimmy Carter told supporters Saturday he will finish first or second in the New Hampshire Democratic primary election as other contenders fall by the wayside in a "very rapid and very severe" screening process.

JIMMY CARTER

... predicts win

"I will guarantee you we will come in either first or second in New Hampshire," Carter told a rally at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

"It is going to be myself and one other candidate" after the March 16 primary in Illinois, the former Georgia governor said. "That early screening-out process is very rapid and very severe."

A poor finish in Oklahoma precinct caucuses held Saturday would finish at least one of his nine opponents — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Jr., D-Tex., Carter said as he launched a seven-city campaign swing through Illinois.

Carter, Benton, Alabama Gov. George Wallace and former Sen. Fred Harris, of Oklahoma sought votes in the Oklahoma precinct caucuses.

The first step toward selecting delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

As President Ford launched a weekend campaign trip into chilly New Hampshire, where he received a warm airport greeting but was snubbed by Gov. Meldrim Thomson, Callaway addressed the Northeast Republican Conference in suburban Washington, D.C.

Conservative opponent Ronald Reagan, meanwhile, addressed the Florida Jaycees in Daytona Beach, Fla., Saturday, along with Democratic contenders Milton Shapp and George Wallace.

In other developments: Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., won endorsement of the Massachusetts State Building and Construction Trades Council.

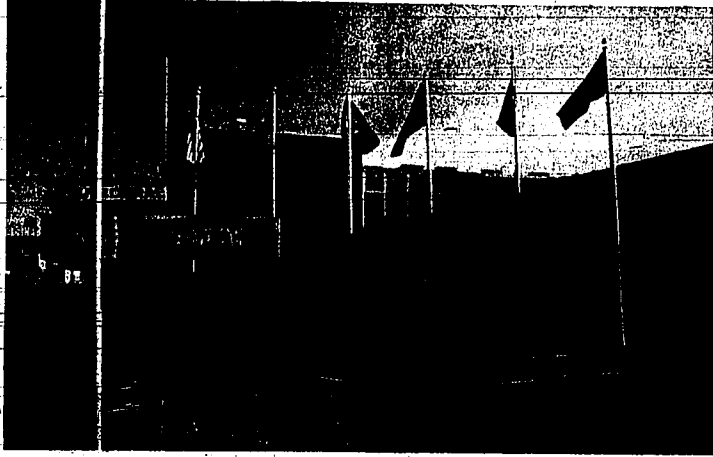

Reagan, asked to respond to Democrat Morris Udall's comment that he and Wallace are the "twin horsemen of the radical right," replied: "Some fellows in the campaign will say anything to get their names in the paper."

Carter said later Saturday persons, "quite close" to Chicago Mayor Richard Daley have promised to support him if he ran strong in early primaries and caucuses.

Wallace's 23-year-old son said in Charleston, W.Va., there is a possibility of a Wallace-Byrd ticket for the No. 1 and 2 spots in the nation this fall. "I was delighted to hear that," George C. Wallace Jr., said about last week's statement by Sen. Robert Byrd, Democratic whip, that he could be Wallace's vice president. "I think there is a possibility there. Senator Byrd's philosophy and my father's are closer than some of the other Democratic politicians."

In Wichita, Kan., the national chairman of the Women's Political Caucus Saturday said she would like to see Betty Ford remain in the White House for another four years. "I've heard many, many women say that they wish Betty Ford was running instead of — of — the President," Audrey Colom said.

Fugitives nabbed

EDMONTON, ALBERTA (UPI) — Canadian police Saturday positively identified a man arrested the day before as Leonard Peltier, sought in connection with the slayings of two FBI agents on South Dakota's Pine Ridge Indian reservation in June, 1975.

A police spokesman said Peltier's identity was confirmed through fingerprints, and extradition hearings to the United States would probably begin early in the week in Vancouver, British Columbia.

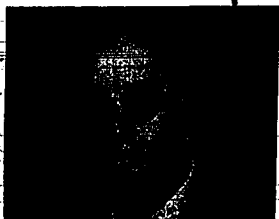

Royal Canadian Mounted Police Inspector S.W. Kelly said Peltier and a second man arrested with him, Frank Blackhorse, were being kept in custody in Edmonton pending the extradition hearings.

Peltier, 31, was one of four persons indicted by a federal grand jury on murder charges after FBI agents Jack Coler and Ronald Williams, both 27, were shot to death on the reservation while trying to make an arrest near the hamlet of Oglala.

Blackhorse was wanted by the FBI for jumping bail on a number of charges stemming from the occupation of Wounded Knee on the airforce reservation in 1973.

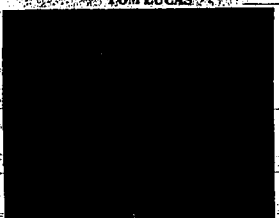

Peltier and Blackhorse were arrested Friday in the small town of Hinton, Alberta, about 40 miles west of Edmonton, following probes by the RCMP on the understanding the two were in Western Canada.

dedited in an alleged milk scandal. His acquittal rekindled the old ambitions, and reports have it that if something turns up, abundant Texas oil money will sustain Connolly's belief that he would be ideally suited to unlie a Republican party fractured by a Ford-Reagan standoff...

Rockefeller and Connolly will continue to reconnoiter, in their own ways, just as on the Democratic side, Hubert H. Humphrey moves about, visible, loose, in demand: As with Rockefeller, time's running out for Humphrey. But if the primaries don't cough up a Democrat who is plausible, the Minnesotaan knows that powerful labor, ethnic and regular party forces will try to make daylight available to him. Rockefeller can't count on similar support among Republicans, although Sen. Barry Goldwater has granted him absolution...

All this presupposes that Ford will continue to squander the power of incumbency, continue to be perceived as miserably and vulnerable. He has yet to displace the notion that he is a caretaker President, a minority leader. More than that, he has failed to convince Reagan, Rockefeller, Connolly and a handful of dubious Republican senators who also lurk in the woods that he has the political sagacity to handle a national campaign. Two Harvard "dropouts" from his administration, former labor secretary John Danlop and U. S. Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan cast him in the role of a cloakroom politician and an uncertain personal manager.

The President may surprise his critics. His sense of timing may be underestimated. Observers with an historical bent like to recall Harry Truman's plight in 1948, when Democratic leaders showed their jaded dismay and scouted about for alternatives. The defiant Truman gave them no daylight to run to, and shut them out. The memory encourages the Ford people. But precedents like the sage's pleasures and promises, are made to be broken. That thought doesn't encourage them.

Strong recovery by noted jurist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Watergate Judge John J. Sirica continued Saturday to recover from a near fatal heart attack, and his doctor said he may be taken off the "serious list" in 24 hours.

"We foresee removing him from the serious list tomorrow morning if he continues to progress in a satisfactory manner," said Dr. Joel Gorfinkel, associate director of the coronary care unit at George Washington University Medical Center.

The 71-year-old judge who gained fame by his handling of the Watergate case was stricken Thursday while addressing a lawyers' group at a downtown club.

Gorfinkel said his patient was making a satisfactory recovery with no complications.

Sirica, whose heart had stopped before he reached the hospital emergency room Thursday, at first was listed in critical condition. But his condition was upgraded to "serious" on Friday.

Paroled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dwight Chapin, appointments secretary to former President Richard Nixon, was granted a parole Friday by the U.S. Parole Board. The parole is effective April 2.

Chapin was imprisoned six months ago for lying to the special Watergate grand jury.

Nancy's surgery 'successful'

BOSTON (UPI) — Nancy Kissinger underwent "successful" surgery Saturday for a gastric ulcer in which 40 per cent of her stomach was removed. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said his wife was in excellent condition.

The operation on Mrs. Kissinger, 41, took two hours, according to Dr. George Nardi, who headed the surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital.

She'd be mum

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Nancy Reagan, wife of Ronald Reagan, said Saturday she would avoid answering the kind of question which has created nationwide controversy for First Lady Betty Ford.

"Whether you are in public life or not, you do have a right to a private life. The question should not be asked and if it is asked, it shouldn't be answered," she said.

Court approves amputation

BOSTON (UPI) — The leg of a 6-year-old woman was amputated Saturday after doctors sought and received judicial permission for the operation because the woman was blind, deaf, had no living relatives, did not speak English and would not otherwise consent.

Anna Thomas, of Manchester, was reported in stable condition in the intensive care ward of Homestead Hospital after undergoing the surgery.

She was admitted to the hospital Jan. 21, suffering from a possible urinary tract infection, senility and vague abdominal pain.

Wants out

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Foreign Minister Park Jong-jin said Saturday South Korea hopes to avoid the annual Korea issue debate at the United Nations General Assembly because it does not serve any constructive purpose.

Park also said South Korea would seek to strengthen bilateral relations with non-aligned nations to help them.

Aide denies tale about Nixon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An aide of Sen. Alan Cranston today denied statements attributed to him that former President Richard Nixon had attempted to persuade two congressmen to drop impeachment proceedings against him by saying he "could push a button and kill 60 million people."

Low Haas, the aide, said misunderstanding had arisen from published reports in which the senator said Friday in San Francisco that he would propose legislation to keep any president from using nuclear weapons in normal circumstances without first consulting other national leaders.

Cranston quoted two unnamed congressmen as saying Nixon told them, "at any moment I could go into the next room, push a button and 20 minutes later 60 million people would be dead."

Interfaith marriages due study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Jewish Committee said Saturday it plans a major study of interfaith marriages to determine what social and psychological effects they have on husbands and wife, children and the Jewish community.

"The underlying purpose of this study is to cast light, rather than heat, on this often highly emotional subject," said Yehuda Rosenman, director of the committee's Jewish-Communal Affairs Department.

The survey, believed to be the first nationwide study on the subject of Jewish interfaith marriages, will be guided by Rosenman. It begins on a pilot basis in six communities.

There are diverse views within both religious and secular organizations as to what responsibilities the Jewish community has as participants of marriages between Jews and non-Jews, Rosenman said.

"We cannot determine what, if anything, should be done until we have the objective data which tells us what the problems are and what the solutions are," he said. "The study's effect will be to bring continuity in, stemming from increased interfaith marriages," he said.

Ohio 'Valentine lady' offering advice

LOVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — The "Valentine Lady," the 63-year-old grandmother who makes thousands of valentines extra special by affixing this community's appropriate postmark and reminding them, is branching out into advising the lovelorn.

"I received a sad note from a regular patron this week," said Mrs. Doris Pfister. "She wrote to tell me that her husband had left her. I wrote her back and tried to console her. And, I suggested that she try sending a valentine to someone else—maybe someone who might not get one otherwise and it would make them both feel better."

Mrs. Pfister hates to see anyone sad about her favorite day—although the approach of Feb. 14 always means a lot of work for her.

The grandmother of six was called in for special duty when the Chamber of Commerce in this Cincinnati suburb of 8,000 decided to see if people might be interested in having their valentines postmarked "Loveland."

Scarcely publicized four years ago, only 36 valentines were sent in for remailing. Limited area publicity two years ago brought in 1,000, but last year a UPI story about the service went around the country and Mrs. Pfister was swamped with 4,600 valentine remailings.

"I loved it," she says. "They came in from every state—the more the merrier. I know people appreciated them. I get little notes enclosed with the valentines and thank you letters all the time. It's very rewarding for me."

Not only does the postmarked envelope let the valentine recipient know that his or her greeting was mailed from "Loveland," but there also is a special picture and message stamped on the envelope by Mrs. Pfister.

Cupid, complete with bow and arrow, is depicted in red ink with the declaration that "There is nothing in this world so sweet as love."

SYCAMORE, Ill. (UPI) — It isn't New York City, but travelers along Illinois 23 can view a 25-foot snow sculpture of the Statue of Liberty.

In the spirit of the bicentennial year, members of the Good Times Committee constructed the snow sculpture in hopes of having it ready by New Year's Day.

The Good Times Committee is "a group of friends who have been together a long time," said treasurer John Strain, 24, whose family owns the store.

Strain said 12 men in their twenties worked on the sculpture for three days straight with the help of dump trucks and heavy equipment. Eight parttime workers also helped, making the effort a total of 350 man hours.

"The first big snow that came, we got out there and had things ready to hold it up and working."

"There were a few preparations we had to do ahead of time, like plant a telephone pole to hold it up and

Senate leaders OK catastrophic health insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate leaders Mike Mansfield and Hugh Scott Saturday endorsed catastrophic health insurance as a "first step" toward a program of national health insurance.

Mansfield and Scott also indicated they favored providing insurance for major illnesses to all Americans rather than limiting it to Medicare recipients — proposed by President Ford.

The two Senate leaders said they favored a broader national health insurance program but conceded there is virtually no chance Congress can act this year.

Mansfield, the Democratic leader, said it would be "extremely difficult" and Scott, the Republican leader, added, "It would have rough sledding this year because of time elements."

Mansfield said the chances of approving some form of catastrophic health insurance was "good" — something had to be done to take care of the medical needs of the American people.

To me, catastrophic illness (insurance) is vital, needed, necessary (and) is a first step but not the final answer to the

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Citing an urgent need to speak in one voice, border cities from Texas to California Saturday organized to lobby for relief from Washington for a wide array of international problems associated with their proximity to Mexico.

The new Organization of Border Cities elected El Paso Mayor Don Henderson, temporary president, Commissioner Jess Haro of San Diego, Calif., temporary vice president and Mayor Arthur Donn, of Nogales, Ariz., as secretary-treasurer.

great expenses which confront the American people at this time," Mansfield said.

"So, I will support catastrophic illness legislation, but I will continue to work eventually towards national health insurance."

Scott said, "I think we've got to get legislation on that subject as soon as possible.

"I don't know any people in any income category, except the very wealthy, who are not likely to be stricken with enormous medical bills in the event of catastrophic illness and most people just can't cope with it — particularly middle-income people or people with heavy expenses like children in college."

Tax info use ban drawn

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Privacy Study Commission, an independent agency created by Congress, is preparing a draft proposal that would forbid use of information from income tax returns in general criminal investigations.

Executive Director Carole W. Parsons said if Congress adopted the proposal it might affect the Justice Department's controversial use of Internal Revenue Service agents in its organized crime strike forces.

Miss Parsons stressed in an interview that the draft recommendation she expects to issue in a few days is tentative, not final.

"We're about to put out draft recommendations... for public comment so we can get their views," she said. "It will also be part of the subject of a hearing in mid-March in Washington."

IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander last month won an agreement from the Justice Department limiting use of tax investigators loaned to the strike forces for "general" criminal investigations — those not involving tax evasion.

Before that agreement was reached with Deputy Attorney General Harold R. Tyler, Alexander was pulling some of his men out. The Justice Department complained this was hampering the investigations.

Strike forces concentrate on all forms of organized crime and also on government corruption, narcotics trafficking and white collar crime. Under the agreement, tax agents will pull out unless they also find tax violations.

Delegates smooth ruffled feathers

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — It wasn't even "we will bury you," only "come to your senses, gentlemen."

But the remark by Soviet Ambassador Yakov Malik at the United Nations was translated into English as "take care."

That was enough to arouse the ire of U.S. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan.

Hearing the words at a Security Council meeting Friday, Moynihan bristled and told Malik, "We do not care. We don't give a damn."

Malik protested later that the phrase meant only that the United States should "take heed" before criticizing Soviet policies.

UPI was read the phrase in question on Saturday in Russian. It turned out to be "Opominites Gospoda!"

According to Snirskiy's Russian-English dictionary, the phrase can be translated "come to your senses, gentlemen," or "collect yourselves gentlemen."

The Russian explained later he really meant "take heed," and claimed that his remarks had been mistranslated by the U.N. interpreter.

"I never said 'take care,'" he said. "I said 'take heed, gentlemen; you are the laughing stock of Africa.' I would like to assert that my Russian word cannot be translated 'beware' or 'take care.' It means 'take heed'."

Moynihan said he had obtained a transcript in which the English translation had Malik saying "take care."

"I ask forgiveness for what was a wholly unintended mistake," the flamboyant U.S. delegate said.

"The record must be amended to show that the distinguished representative of the Soviet Union said what he wanted to say. That being so, my statement will also be amended to reflect it."

Moynihan ended the exchange by saying he took "some satisfaction that I have added to the merriment of nations."

Pesticide rules due

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Maryland plans to implement emergency regulations for handling the toxic pesticide Kepone by Feb. 18, the state labor commissioner said Saturday.

Harry A. Epstein, Commissioner of Labor and Industry, said the greatest concentration of bulk Kepone in the United States is stored at an Allied Chemical Plant in Baltimore.

Earlier this week a worker at the plant, Joseph Smailwood, 51, was hospitalized with Kepone symptoms — joint pains, blurred vision and hand tremors.

'Scoop' takes lead in NY

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. "Scoop" Jackson of Washington now appears to have stolen a march on his Democratic rivals in New York State's April 6 presidential primary.

But hovering over the primary is the vice presidential pick — Republican Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, former vice president and now Sen. Hubert H. Carey, D-Minn., and Democratic Gov. Hugh L. Carey, who despite emphatic denials of national ambition continues to be an object of presidential or vice presidential speculation.

Their presence almost guarantees that: — New York's 274-member Democratic delegation — second only to California's 280 in numbers — will arrive at the party's national convention in New York City this summer fractionalized among several announced candidates along with a scattering of uncommitted delegates.

The 154-member GOP delegation will hit Kingston City "in almost unanimous" uncommitted but united" group under the direct control and command of Rockefeller, who served as the state's governor for 15 years before resigning in 1973 and subsequently being named vice president by President Ford in 1974.

Rockefeller heads 57 at-large delegates already selected and 100 chairman Richard Rosenbaum says he anticipates only three or four contested states when the enrolled Republicans elect the 117 other delegates — three from each of the state's 39 congressional districts.

The "uncommitted" designation is seen by observers as a plan to allow Rockefeller to step in if Ford falters in his race against former California Gov. Ronald Reagan.

If the Republican situation is slightly complicated, the Democrat maneuvering is a complete maze marked by the state party's usual free-swinging squabbles among various factions.

Originally, Carey and some of the other party leaders held out hopes for an "uncommitted" slate of their own, apparently on the ground that the big bloc of votes could serve as a kingpin at the national convention or that Carey himself might be thrust into the foreground by a deadlock.

Those faint hopes went out the window late last month when Brooklyn chairman Meade Esposito, the party's leader in Carey's home district, announced he would support Jackson. Esposito promptly was joined by Queens County chairman Donald Manes, giving Jackson a big edge over his rivals in New York City. Brooklyn and Queens represent 58 votes at the convention.

The Democrats will be electing 205 delegates in the primary — four or five or six from each congressional district — and the state committee will choose the other 69 shortly after the primary.

Board hears 'nay' on Caldwell union

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education heard opposition Friday to a proposed consolidation at Caldwell of the University of Idaho College of Agriculture.

Jerry D. Stone, Parma, urged the board not to "upset the applecart" by moving extension personnel from Parma to facilities at the College of Idaho.

The University College of Agriculture has asked the board to allow it to negotiate with the College of Idaho over the renting of offices and research facilities for five or six scientists on the Caldwell campus.

The discussion came during a session set aside for review of future plans for a Caldwell diagnostic clinic for the Primate School of Veterinary Medicine, a proposal to begin a 4-11 research program at Nampa, and proposed consolidation of research and extension personnel at Caldwell.

Dr. Ernest Hartung, university president, told the board current plans are to place the veterinary medicine facility on land used by the Caldwell Research Extension Center.

Preliminary work has been completed, he said, and negotiations are underway for the U of I to purchase some 30 acres of the 320-acre site owned by the State Land Board.

Other issues for the board to consider, he said, are whether to consolidate the research and extension personnel, whether to continue the Caldwell center on the Caldwell land with the knowledge that the town is growing toward that area, and whether to shift part of the research program to land at the Idaho State School and Hospital at Nampa.

Howard Kent, Canyon County cattle feeder, said the entire board suggested the Nampa land for the cattle research project.

His group made the suggestion to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus who incorporated it in his budget message to the legislature by asking more than $400,000 be spent to begin developing the project.

Dr. John Swartley, Boise, criticized College of Agriculture Dean Otis Mullins for not informing the board of a possible project at Nampa.

"I feel that you as dean of the school had an obligation to keep this board informed," he said, adding, "I found out about this in the newspaper and I'm a board member and it shocked me."

But Kent said the proposal "grew like Topsy." "We didn't really know we had anything until all of a sudden we did. Looking back, we probably didn't act in the most diplomatic way or something. He (Mullins) made it clear to us that if it was a project, it was our project."

'1st class' office furnished governor

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus may travel coach fare on a commercial airliner but when it comes to furnishing his office he goes first class.

When Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell bought a new desk for his private office recently he paid $1,500 for it. It's a six-foot simulated antique.

"The cost is about the same as executive desks being purchased throughout government," Kidwell said, when a reporter asked him about the purchase.

"We also looked at desks in the $2,500 range and felt that would be too extravagant," he said.

During remodeling of his office suite the governor decided to get his receptionist a new desk and credenza. The Stuenkel desk now in use, a beautiful, restored antique, apparently is the one he had in mind.

Statement from Henderson's furniture store in Boise indicates the cost of that desk and credenza was $1,200.

"I think if you check the price of good, sturdy, front-end modern furniture you'll find it's expensive as all get out," said John D. Hough, Andrus' administrative assistant, who authorized the purchase.

"The first one we looked at, if my memory is correct, cost almost $5,000," he said. "We decided against it solely on the basis of cost — it was extravagant and not wholly functional."

Hough said the one finally ordered has filing space, a swing and other features the governor's receptionist needs to handle her receptionist and secretarial duties.

"It is also compatible with the other furnishings which we purchased at considerable expense," he said.

He acknowledged the furnishings for the office are expensive. But he said they are tasteful, sturdy and hopefully will serve the office for decades to come.

For the reception room, besides the reception desk and credenza, furnishings include a $1,485 leather sofa, a $466 guest book console, three wing chairs at $657.50 apiece, a $410 hachelor chest, a $476 console table, two lamp tables at $265 apiece, two lamps at $225 apiece, $143.89 worth of protective glass tops for tables, three hutch desk pads for $89.85 and $122 for a picture framed and hangers.

Frightened by shocks

FEAR MARKS the faces of two women in Guatemala City Friday as they watch the still-swaying Ritz Continental Hotel moments after an aftershock struck the city. The death toll from Wednesday's big quake has passed 8,000. Aftershocks are continuing. (UPI)

Drifting North America called big quake cause

NEW YORK—The inexorable westward movement of North America relative to the Caribbean region is believed to have been responsible for the earthquake that killed thousands in Guatemala Wednesday and for a damaging aftershock Friday.

This interpretation derives from the theory, now widely accepted, that the earth's surface is divided into gigantic plates whose motions relative to one another are largely responsible for earthquakes, volcanic activity and mountain formation.

From preliminary analysis by the National Earthquake Information Service in Boulder, Colo., it appears that the primary movement in Wednesday's quake was lateral along the Motagua Fault, which runs inland from the Gulf of Honduras on the Caribbean coast of Guatemala. The region to the north apparently shows some of the same movement.

The Motagua fault is believed to make part of the boundary between a vast section of the earth's rigid surface, known as the North American Plate, and the Caribbean Plate to the south.

The Caribbean Plate includes almost the entire floor of the Caribbean Sea plus that part of Central America to the west of it. The North American Plate consists of this continent as well as all of the North Atlantic Ocean west of the Mid-Atlantic Ridge.

While data from the far-flung seismic stations that have reported to the center in Colorado indicate that the chief movement was horizontal, there may also have been violent up-and-down movement.

Most Central American Earthquakes and volcanic eruptions are attributed to the descent of a section of Pacific Ocean floor, known as the Cocos Plate, beneath the Pacific coast of that region. The line along which the Cocos Plate descends is marked by the Middle America Trench, a deep valley in the sea floor that parallels the coast.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI)—Creation of an Agricultural Labor Relations Board last summer held the promise of peace in the fields of the nation's number one farm state, but the board now has run out of money and closed up shop.

IRS bucks Ponderosa bankruptcy

(Continued from p. 1) The minimum bid for the Burley facility would be $128,128.69, which is the amount of the tax lien filed by IRS on Jan. 7. The purchaser of the Inn would receive the equity on the Ponderosa and would be required to pay off recorded obligations.

First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Twin Falls filed a lawsuit in Fifth District Court in Rupert in early December. The suit asked for a foreclosure order on a mortgage with nearly $1 million still due.

Go Publishing Co., Encino, Calif., offered $2 million for the Burley Ponderosa Inn after the IRS seized it last month. Rudy Lang, president of Greater Idaho Inc., a parent holding corporation, signed an agreement with Go Publishing but it was rejected by the board of directors of both Ponderosa Inc. and Ponderosa Inns Inc.

Ponderosa Inns Inc. holds the physical property at Burley on a lease. Transfer made only the Friday before the seizure. It is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Ponderosa Inns Inc. In turn, it is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Ponderosa.

Ponderosa Inn at Burley is a 300-unit motel with restaurant and lounge facilities and a swimming pool. It was appraised at $1.2 million.

Brown Jr., failed to produce a compromise with rural legislators and growers to allow passage of an emergency appropriation to keep the board operating. The board closed its offices at 5 p.m. Friday.

"Our only recourse is to take our cause to the people of California and return to strikes and boycotts," warned Cesar Chavez, leader of the United Farm Workers of America.

But Governor Brown predicted agreement would be reached to let the board resume conducting secret ballot union elections under the new law. The law had been hailed as a model for the nation and Democrat Brown's finest achievement.

"I am confident," he said, "after a certain period of discussions and anxious waiting that the board will be back in action."

Passage of Brown's $3.8

million emergency appropriation bill has been blocked in the Senate by Republicans and rural Democrats demanding major changes in the law.

"Growers are angry about what they term the 'pro-labor' posture of the board. They seek changes in the law to give farmers an increased say in how unions organize and elections are conducted.

But after meeting with Brown—Republican—Sen. Howard Wray said, "We are nowhere near reaching a compromise."

Meanwhile, the board supervised its last two elections: laid off 150 staff members, but kept a skeleton crew.

Since August, the board conducted 40 elections. The score is 195 for the UFW, 120 for the Teamsters, 19 for other unions, 25 for no union.

Memo questions CIA operations' legality

NEW YORK—The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence has obtained a copy of a memorandum, drawn up last year for the director of central intelligence, that one committee source described as raising "serious questions" about the constitutionality of covert military and political operations undertaken by the United States between 1947 and the passage of the Foreign Assistance Act in 1974.

The memorandum, was produced last September by a group of legal researchers under contract to a group that works for the director of central intelligence in his capacity as coordinator of the federal intelligence agencies.

The Senate source said it appeared to lawyers who had obtained the memorandum, that it was "important in undercutting the theory" with which the CIA has justified initiating overt operations without first seeking the approval of Congress.

The CIA has argued that the President's inherent powers to control some aspects of foreign and military affairs, along with the language of the 1947

National Security Act that established the CIA, have made a congressional authorization unnecessary.

One senior intelligence official asserted Saturday that the 1975 memorandum had no official status as a policy document within the CIA, since it had been approved by neither the agency's general counsel nor its special counsel.

One government lawyer said that the acceptance of the memorandum by the intelligence community staff did not amount to an internal admission by the CIA that its stated policy over the last two decades had been badly founded in law.

The paper notes that authority in the field of foreign affairs has historically been shared by Congress, whose approval is required for treaties, declarations of war and funds for their conduct, and the president, who under the Constitution negotiates treaties and serves as commander in chief of the nation's military forces.

The collection of foreign intelligence necessary to the formulation of foreign policy, it said, is an executive function that can be carried out by the President, through the CIA and other executive agencies, without supporting legislation.

Nor, it continued, is there any doubt about the President's authority to use covert or other means, in his capacity as the supreme military commander, to meet the threats of war or national emergency.

But the memorandum declares that until the passage of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1974, "there was serious doubt that the CIA had authority to engage in covert operations involving the use of political and military force against, or in support of, a foreign government or its leaders."

The Foreign Assistance Act, which limits the authority of the President to use appropriated funds to finance covert political or military operations in foreign countries, requires him to first report to Congress the importance of such operations to the national security.

Press role aired

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Privacy should be respected, but it should not be allowed to infringe the constitutional right to a free press, the president of a nationwide journalism organization said Saturday.

"I don't think the First Amendment should be sacrificed for any other amendment," Robert S. McCord, president of the Society of Professional Journalists, SDX, told a Virginia Commonwealth University mass communications conference luncheon.

McCord said many groups, such as the American Civil Liberties Union, which have traditionally supported the press, have in recent years backed privacy instead of a free press.

A right-to-privacy-he said—is something he respects, but "unlike a free press, it is not a right engrafted in the Constitution."

McCord also said he was worried about a "print and be damned" attitude in reporting and that "this can go too far."

Steen Sunshine changes voted down by senators

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Senators refused Friday to go against the will of the people and overwhelmingly rejected a proposal which would have virtually destroyed the provisions of the state's present Sunshine law.

Senators voted 22-10 against the measure proposed by Sen. J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, who called the present law a "monster" with which a candidate "can't live with honestly."

Steen said that when the Sunshine Initiative went out to the ballot to be approved by the voters of the state, "the people did not change the extent of the law they wanted."

The Sunshine Initiative providing for campaign disclosure and lobbyist registration was drafted by Idaho voters in 1974.

Steen's bill would repeal provisions of the present law and substitute a requirement a candidate need not report for both his primary and general election campaign until 30 days after the general election.

Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, said Steen's proposal would make "a drastic change in the Sunshine law," and urged his fellow senators not to tamper with it.

Prime mover of the Sunshine Initiative, Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, said the bill by Steen would allow for "sush funds in the thousands of dollars and not one red cent would be reported."

"The people passed this law and we should sustain it," Peavey said.

Supporting Steen's bill, Sen. W. Dean Abraham, R-Clidwell, said the Sunshine law "was sold to the public as a way to do away with crooked politicians." He said "99 per cent of the people who signed the petitions did not read the initiative and 99 per cent of the people who voted for it did not know what they voted for."

Gem board head asks careful career pick

BOISE (UPI) — The president of the State Board of Education urged women in higher education Saturday to help female students consider all options before making career decisions.

Janet Hay, Nampa, was banquet speaker for a two-day workshop at Boise State University sponsored by the Northwest-Intermountain Region of the Women's Caucus of the American Association for Higher Education.

The workshop, "Survival Skills for Women in Higher Education Administration," included sessions on budget preparation, assertiveness training, legal rights and responsibilities, and management by objectives.

"Since you are successful women in higher education, you are role models and advisors for the younger women who will be following in your footsteps," Mrs. Hay told the group. "How shall we warn these young women of the difficult choices they will face?"

The freshman woman of 1976 faces not a lack of choice, but a "complete freedom of choice," Mrs. Hay said. Options include whether to have children, or whether to combine marriage, career or children.

"We should advise these women, or perhaps warn would be a better word, that their goals in life may change as the years go by and they should be prepared to deal with those changing goals," she added.

She noted one aspect of the American education system particularly important to women is the encouragement of people to follow their interests or change professions at any time during their lives.

"It is a very inefficient system since some of us end up by not using our graduate educations as they were intended, and we think nothing of going back to school to learn new professions and new skills at any time in life. But in our American system of values, we place freedom of choice for the individual higher than efficiency."

She urged workshop participants to help expand options open to women by working to upgrade part-time jobs in business and industry, to design career patterns which would be interrupted by women returning to work, homemaking and to resist steering young women to careers at work or in the home simply because of social pressures.

Senate committee stalls public bargaining bill

BOISE (UPI) — The public employees collective bargaining bill ran into a solid block of no votes from Republicans in the Senate State Affairs Committee Friday and the measure will remain in committee.

Six Republicans defeated a motion to send the bill to the floor without recommendations, overriding the three Democrats present at the meeting.

Sen. Cy Chase, D-St. Maries, said the measure was the type of legislation "a lot of people are concerned with." He said it should be sent to the floor and "aired out there."

The bill's prime sponsor, Sen. Robert Kinghorn, D-Pocahontas, said "admittedly, it is controversial and I'd like to see the discussion on the floor."

Wednesday, the committee held a four and a half-hour public hearing on the bill with county commissions, school boards, chambers of commerce and city officials opposing it and labor, educators and public employees favoring it.

Voting to send the bill to the floor were Chase, Kinghorn and Sen. Robert Saxvik, D-Burley. The Republican senators against sending it out for a vote were James Ellsworth, Ledore; Phil Batt, Wilder; Dick Smith, Reuberg; Walter Yarbrough; Grand View; Ron Swenson, Nampa; and H. Dean Summers, Boise.

Measure OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — The House State Affairs Committee sent to the floor without recommendation Friday a bill lowering to 16 the minimum age for a person to sell beer and wine to take out.

At present the minimum age is 19. Rep. E. V. McHan, R-Ketchum, said the present law works a hardship on small "mom and pop" grocery stores.

Under normal procedures the bill should come up for final consideration of the House about Tuesday.

Amendment wins OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has approved an amendment sponsored by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, which seeks regulations to require American corporations to disclose payments they make abroad in selling defense hardware.

Church is chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Multinational Corporations which has revealed in a series of hearings that some American corporations have been paying bribes to foreign officials to win sales contracts.

"In the course of our investigation, we have discovered not only that these enormous payoffs have become epidemic, but that they are typically deducted as business expenses in the income tax returns of the various companies," Church said.

"So, in the end, the American people themselves are defrauded by this all-pervasive corruption."

Church said the subcommittee checked with the State Department and was told the reaction to the disclosure provisions in European capitals was favorable, that other governments might follow the example of the amendment.

Road fund bills drawn

BOISE (UPI) — Confronted with Senate defeat of its proposal to finance Law Enforcement out of the general fund the House Transportation Committee called for introduction Friday of six proposals to raise road-building funds.

At present, the Department of Law Enforcement gets approximately 10 per cent of the highway user revenues. These and other features of the bill passed by the House and introduced in the Senate would have put $8.2 million into the highway user fund to match federal road-building monies.

The Department of Transportation has said it needs at least $8.6 million to match anticipated federal funds.

Among the proposals, the Transportation Committee agreed to introduce were bills to:

- Increase motor vehicle registration fees a flat $2 in each category.
- Give Law Enforcement five per cent of the highway revenues and finance the remaining $3.3 million some other way.
- Increase the 25 cents per gallon gasoline tax one cent.
- Like the gasoline tax two cents a gallon.
- Raise the basic gasoline tax to 9.5 cents a gallon from 8.5 and allow a fluctuation above that of up to one cent per year, depending on gasoline prices.
- Raise the basic automobile registration fee 10 and on top of that add seven cents per cubic inch displacement of engine size for passenger cars and hike levies for special fees.

Chairman John Sessions, R-Driggs, told the House prior to the committee meeting that defeat of the law enforcement bill in the Senate is reducing the number of alternatives to a gasoline tax increase.

He said that while many of his constituents do not want a tax increase there either must be one, a readjustment of other budgets or a status quo budget for highways.

Speakers named

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, will discuss national water and land legislation during the 19th annual meeting of the Southwestern Idaho Development Association Wednesday in Boise.

McClure will be featured speaker for the session at the Downtown Ramada Inn. A member of the Senate Interior and Insular Affairs, public works and budget committees, McClure will give the association a look at water and land use legislation now pending in Congress.

Other speakers at the meeting, open to the public, will be William L. Mathews, Idaho director of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management, and R. Keith Higginson, director of the Idaho Water Resources Department.

Gem House may snag land plan

Andrus reappoints Munson

That means, he said, there would be a "large number" of private groups that would develop the project by itself, under the Carey Act.

But, if the state arranges the development and puts the land up for grabs in a lottery, "whoever gets it, gets it by luck," Munson said.

The Board needs legislative approval before the federal government will allow the state to release desert lands in 320-acre parcels to a husband and wife. The BLM, he said, now maintains that a husband and wife should be considered legally as one individual, while the state maintains they should be counted separately, allowing them to acquire two 160-acre parcels.

Dunn said a resolution of this problem is expected to come out of U.S. District Court in Boise this spring. He expects the courts to rule that husband and wife may be counted as separate individuals in determining land allotments.

But the Water Resources Board faces a much more immediate hurdle with its Indian Hills project proposal — the legislature.

The Board needs legislative approval before it can go ahead to arrange the financing for the project. Its proposal now is in the House Agricultural Affairs Committee. It faces considerable opposition.

One supporter said he does not expect it to pass the committee and believes approval by the whole House even less likely. Most committee members interviewed by the Times-News opposed the plan.

Rep. Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, said he has three objections to the board's plan.

"All we're doing is setting up a bunch of go-broke farmers," Olmstead said. Allotments of 160 acres, he said, would not be feasible economically. Allotments of 320 acres "would work" but still would be deficient in the Indian Hills area, he said.

Under a lottery system, he said, veterans would get some preference. But, he said, there would be no preference based on background or ability factors. This would help lead to the "go-broke" situation, he said.

Olmstead also objected to the Water Resource Board's plan to scatter game preserves among the foothills of the Indian Hills project. He said this would reduce farm efficiency, hinder future expansion and clash with a need to mix farming with livestock programs.

Finally, Olmstead objected to the idea of the state going into a project of the size. "I don't think that the State of Idaho should be competing with private enterprise to establish this kind of project," he said. He said small private groups have developed irrigation projects on less desirable lands and should be given the chance to develop Indian Hills.

Perhaps, he said, a 100,000-acre project requiring a diversion dam would necessitate state help, but not a project like this.

Olmstead suggested that the state could auction off the land itself and take whatever "windfall profit" there might be.

"I've got the same feeling as most all the others I'm sure. Just don't think at this time the state should enter into development of the ground," Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, said.

"I don't know that windfall is as big as we think it is," he said, adding that the land is in a "rundown" condition. Brooks also maintained that the 160-acre or even 320-acre parcels would tend to lead to a "go broke" situation for farmers.

"I think it better be started by private capital instead of the state getting involved in it," Rep. Gordon Hillfield, R-Jerome, said.

"If it's just put up for drawing, the people who drew would be very apt to go broke," he said.

Rep. Angus Condie, R-Erwin, had another view. "The state's plan has merit," he maintained.

He said that the BLM's position is that now that the land has been developed, it is no longer subject for desert entry.

"The lottery is the only way the state could justify getting into it," he said. In an auction, he maintained, "someone could buy the entire property and this would be contrary to the BLM's philosophy and to the Carey Act."

He said he is "inclined to support" the Water

Resource Board's plan. But, he said, "I'm a little doubtful about it receiving committee approval and I'm even more doubtful about it receiving legislative approval."

Rep. Ray Infanger, R-Salmon, said he was in favor of the state encouraging development of farmland. But he said he wants to know why desert entries can't be taken out on the Indian Hills land instead of using limited Carey Act allotments.

Even if the federal government won't allow desert entries, Infanger said he still had some doubts about the proposed project. "I don't know how far is right for the state to go," he said. He said he has not yet decided whether the land should be developed by a group of private individuals.

William Mathews, state director of the BLM, said the bureau is not allowed to permit desert entries on already developed land. He said the BLM has decided it would be in the public interest to not allow the Indian Hills land to go back to desert.

The proposal to develop the land under the Carey Act, he said, now has been given priority. But, if it is rejected, there are alternatives.

The State of Idaho he said has about 27,000 acres in "lieu lands" coming to it from the federal government. Idaho could take the property as part of the lieu lands owed it and would then be free to dispose of the land as it pleased.

Or, he said, the department might exchange the Indian Hills property for certain private lands, particularly along the foothills of Boise.

However, the Indian Hills situation is reserved. It may serve as somewhat of a precedent.

Similar situations are developing in regards to two other farm projects south of the Glenn Ferry area. In administrative hearings the U.S. Department of Interior has found that two desert entry projects — Black Mesa and Sallor Creek — have been developed by corporations.

The government has refused granting title to the properties in the entries and is now in federal district court on the matter.

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus made a surprise visit to the State Board of Education meeting Friday to announce reappointment of Dr. J.P. Munson of Sandpoint.

Munson, whose term was to expire in March, will serve through March 1981. He was Andrus' first appointment to the State Board in 1971.

Andrus said he realized that unless he reappointed Munson this would be his last meeting.

Andrus drew a laugh when he added, "Now you won't have to give him a going away party."

Salmon solon seeks public lands

BY BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE, Idaho — The state admitted Idaho as a public land in Idaho ought to belong to the state itself, according to Rep. Ray Infanger, R-Salmon.

Infanger maintains that the act admitting Idaho as a state guarantees it the same rights as the original 13 states. Since these states kept their public lands after joining the union, Infanger says, Idaho should be able to keep its lands.

However, a provision at the end of the 1846 Constitution appears to spoil Infanger's argument.

In any case, Infanger's line of reasoning is foretold. He reads an initial provision of the act admitting Idaho as a state:

"The State of Idaho is hereby declared to be a state of the United States of America and is hereby declared admitted into the union on an equal footing with the original states in all respects whatever."

Infanger then shows a pile of letters he has received from each of the secretaries of states of the original 13 states and from the U.S. General Services Administration. The letters show that the original states retained their public property and did not turn it over to the federal government.

All I'm saying is that we should be treated as the original 13 states were treated," Infanger says.

"We're supposed to have equal right in all respects whatever. Now that's a pretty broad statement. Well, I don't feel we've been treated equally."

"If they want our share of the State of Idaho, then where's our share of the State of New York," LaGuardia airfield I want to turn into a wilderness section," Infanger says.

A provision in the Idaho Constitution, however, ap-

CIA denies Basque area snooping

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's secretary of state said CIA officials in a meeting with him this week denied ever being in the Basque provinces of Spain for any reasons other than as tourists.

Secretary of State Peter Cenarrusa questioned the CIA officials during a trip to Washington to urge the U.S. Senate delay ratifying a proposed $1.2 billion treaty with Spain for arms and personnel aid until Spain is willing to make concessions guaranteeing freedom for all Spanish people.

He also wanted to question CIA officials on the contents of statements that the agency has been involved in covert activities to divide the Basque people among themselves.

Cenarrusa said it was embarrassing that the CIA would have been so brazen in dividing the Basques since the United States may be asking for their help again as they did during World War II.

In addition, he said CIA involvement against the Basques would run contrary to U.S. efforts to bring Spain into NATO as a full-fledged member.

For Spain to be accepted in NATO there would have to be a liberalization in Spain, he said. All other Western European nations have denied membership to Spain until it becomes a democracy.

Theoretically, CIA officials said they feel covert action in the Basque country would hinder the posture of the United States.

"In my judgment, the CIA officials were sincere in painting an accurate picture of the internal situation in the Basque country and they appeared to be believing with me concerning non-U.S. intelligence involvement in the Basque country."

He said Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, have both agreed to follow up with the investigation as have Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and his investigating committee.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, told Cenarrusa he was going to urge Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the Spanish Ambassador to make positive efforts toward influencing Spain toward becoming a democracy.

Gulf funds to McClure

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Republican Sen. James McClure has been listed by Gulf Oil Company as a senator in office who has received campaign contributions from the company.

Gulf named the senators in a recent fund report to the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and U.S. District Court.

The Department of Justice reportedly is gathering evidence for presentation to a grand jury. Several senators who received campaign contributions and Jim McClure's assistant, Jim Galt, are also on the list.

McClure's assistant, Jim Galt, said the senator received a personal check for $2,500 from Gulf vice president Claude Wilde in April 1972.

Galt said the personal contributions are legal and the senator saw no problem in accepting the check.

Galt said all corporate contributions received by the McClure campaign committee were returned to the sender.

BOISE (UPI) — A representative of El Paso Alaska, Co. said Friday the economy of Idaho and Eastern Washington will receive a $160 million boost if the company is allowed to ship natural gas from Alaska's Prudhoe Bay to the continental United States. Mike Holland, assistant to the vice president, told Greater Boise Chamber of Commerce members that this economic impact would be cut in half if gas is transported by another company. El Paso and Arctic Gas Co. have presented two different routes to bring gas from the North Slope before the Federal Power Commission. El Paso proposes to pipe the gas to Gravina Point, on Alaska's southwestern coast, where the gas will be liquefied and shipped by tanker to Los Angeles. The route is similar to one the Alaska oil pipeline will use, Holland said. Arctic has proposed piping the gas from Prudhoe Bay into Alberta where the pipeline divides. One line would enter Idaho and the other branch would pipe oil to the Eastern United States, according to Arctic Gas President Robert W. Ward. Ward visited Boise in October and told the chamber of his company's plan. The chamber will listen to R. D. Grimm, president of Intercontinental Gas Co., before it endorses one of the proposals. Holland said the surge in Idaho economy would be produced "because pipeline construction would increase Alaska's population by 41,000. Since Alaska imports nearly all of its manufactured goods and foodstuffs from the Pacific Northwest, "what benefits Alaska, benefits the Northwest," he added. He said during the three-year construction period, 160 million worth of goods will be needed. Once the Trans-Alaska Gas Pipeline is built, "it will cause an additional $54 million per year impact on the Eastern Washington and Idaho economies."

Holland also noted the El Paso route is all-U.S., using American labor and ships and not subject to a foreign government's control.

Gem auto sales turn up

BOISE (UPI) — New car sales in Idaho took a sharp upturn in January, according to Bob Rice, president of the Idaho Automobile Dealers Association. Rice noted total new car registrations in January totaled 4,097, compared to 3,446 in January of 1975. "New car sales in 1975 generally lagged, but we are following the national trend with the pickup in sales in this new year," he said. Sales of new vehicles last month included 1,771 domestic passenger cars, compared to 1,420 last January; 413 foreign passenger cars in comparison to 364 a year ago; and 1,853 trucks and commercial vehicles, compared to 1,662 during the month in 1975.

Brutality probe sought

BOISE (UPI) — Corrections officials asked the Idaho attorney general Friday to investigate allegations of brutality made by inmates against the prison guards. At the same time, they banned newspaper reporters from the prison. Don Erickson, director of corrections, and Richard Anderson, warden, asked Attorney General Wayne Kidwell to "initiate the investigation through his office. Kidwell said his office will begin the investigation almost immediately. He said the corrections director asked his office to look into several allegations that have been made about brutality at the prison and he said that will be the center of the investigation.

A representative of Kidwell's office in the next several days will talk with individuals who have information on the alleged incidents. Prison officials told Kidwell they will turn over whatever information they have on the incidents.

Erickson said no member of the press will be allowed access to the prison or its inmates until the investigation is completed.

Old prison plan outlined

BOISE (UPI) — The director of the Idaho Historical Society presented plans for developing the Old State Prison Friday and said the society is not organized to handle trail and camping facilities envisioned for the land.

Arthur A. Hart presented the concept of Idaho's Department of Parks and Recreation for managing a major portion of the land surrounding the old penitentiary during a meeting with the State Parks and Recreation Board.

The parks department proposal would leave the top three acres in the immediate area of the old penitentiary under Historical Society management—but place the remaining land under state parks management.

Hart told the board the historical society is not organized to take on the responsibility of trail maintenance or campground facilities that have been envisioned for the project.

Presently, the land is under the authority of the State Land Board and any decision concerning its management would be up to that board. The parks and recreation board agreed to consider a recommendation on Hart's proposal but did not take a stand on the plan Friday.

Selective service closing set

BOISE (UPI) — All Idaho selective service offices, except state headquarters, will close by Feb. 20 in compliance with original termination of the selective service system, said state director Gen. George B. Bennett.

Bennett said the selective service, in existence since 1948, has provided almost 15 million men to the armed forces. The service inducted its last man in December 1972.

Bennett added all activity in connection with service operations, including registration, the lottery, classification and induction, have now been ended.

TV's 'Big 3' forecast record revenues, profits

NEW YORK — Despite a slight decline in daily viewing, an extremely high rate of program failure and a critical consensus that regular program fare has been notably poor, the three television networks are forecasting record revenues and profits for 1976 on the basis of advance sales.

CBS, NBC, and ABC have all already sold about 90 per cent of their available commercial spots in prime time through the first week in September. Moreover, advertisers have been buying the networks' summer schedules without specific knowledge of the programming, because that will probably not be determined until April or May.

"We just can't seem to do anything wrong this year, the rush to buy has been so unbelievable," remarked a network sales executive — one of a number interviewed.

Network executives observed that the main spurt in long-range television buying occurred in mid-December, weeks before the stock market rally last month. Some see a relationship between the dramatic upturn on Wall Street and the rush to buy television time.

"There would seem to be a correlation," said Mike Weinblatt, executive vice president of NBC-TV. "The wave of buying clearly signified that business was optimistic about the new year."

Most executives attribute the extraordinary sales activity partly to the realization by advertisers that the Olympic Games and the year's political events would create a scarcity of network time.

For the spring quarter, some advertisers have agreed to pay as much as $6 for every 1,000 viewers reached, a record price for a general audience undifferentiated by age or sex. The typical rate for general viewers last year was $4.25 a thousand. Advertisers do pay much higher rates to reach specific audiences, such as women in the 18-to-34 age group, or men 18 to 49.

Some industry estimates are that network revenues will increase as much as 10 per cent over 1975.

US-backed jobs no remedy: Ford

WASHINGTON — President Ford, defending his go-slow approach toward economic recovery, asserted Friday that government-sponsored jobs will "never" solve the nation's unemployment problems.

"Even when make-work programs were operating on a massive scale in the 1930s, national unemployment stayed astonishingly high," Ford said.

"It was World War II — demanding an economy operating at full speed — that brought America back to full employment," the President said in a speech prepared for delivery at a meeting here of Republican leaders from northeastern states.

"The WPA of the 1930s is not the answer to unemployment in the 1970s — and obviously war is not the answer to anything," he declared. "To create jobs — real, permanent jobs with a future — we need to stimulate growth in private business and industry, where five out of every six American jobs are to be found."

The President said that "we need to rev up the mighty engines of the free American economic system," adding that this is what his program of giving tax breaks to business would do.

During the darkest days of the economic recession, Ford said, it "would have been very easy to stampede — to turn our backs on the inherent strength of the world's greatest economic machine — to turn instead to quick-fix gimmicks and snake oil solutions."

Among these, he indicated, was the proposal by Congressional Democrats for the federal government to create jobs directly. The Democrats have renewed this proposal this month in a new jobs bill, which Ford has promised to veto.

"Citing the drop in unemployment in January reported Friday, Ford said that his administration's restraint in moving for economic recovery has been vindicated. The rate of unemployment for January was 7.8 per cent, down from 8.3 per cent in December.

"That's going in the right direction, and that's good news," he said. "This means that 96 per cent of the jobs lost during the recession have now been recovered — and that's good news."

"Today 2.1 million more Americans are working than at the bottom of the recession, and last month the national employment total rose by 800,000," he said. "And that's really good news."

TWIN FALLS — A suit seeking $450,000 damages has been filed in Fifth District Court by heirs of three persons killed in a traffic accident last July 12.

Farm Bureau seeks broader tax base

TWIN FALLS — Farm Bureau members in Twin Falls and elsewhere in Idaho are pushing for a broader tax base to bring relief to the property owner.

Gordon Hofffield, Jerome, the Farm Bureau's proposed law would bring in a broader tax base at the local level and share some of the load from property owners to persons with little property but sizeable incomes, Harris said.

Sen. High said there are three land-use planning bills now before the Senate which would include planning jurisdiction over adjoining areas.

Sen. John Barker, district 24, who heads Health, Education and Welfare, complimented the governor on appointing Bill Klein to head the state Health and Welfare Department.

Merl Leonard, county commission chairman, said he doesn't see how the commission could justify using county tax money to subsidize ambulance service for a certain area of the county only.

TWIN FALLS — For the past month a number of Twin Falls County courthouses have been seeing an occasional flock of broncs.

The attorney said maintenance should include replacement of deteriorating parts and enforcement of the proposed contract would deprive MID water users of their property rights in these contracts without due process of law and would violate their constitutional rights.

Airlines gets help on gas

Richfield man remains critical

BOISE — Ray Hubsmith, 36, also taken to the Boise hospital, has been released and returned to her home, according to a hospital official.

"I got there about 10 seconds after the plane took off," he said, "and found the mechanic had purchased the gasoline moments before I arrived. He knew I would make it good," Rowe said.

The program board will meet Tuesday at noon in the student conference room and the student senate will meet from 3 p.m. in the same room.

The CSI track team will participate in an indoor meet at Provo, Utah, on Friday. State music scholarship auditions will be at 11:30 in the music room.

TF construction reaches record high in 1975

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's unemployment rate increased slightly in January, in contrast to a plunge in the national rate, but construction in Twin Falls reached a record high in 1975.

In the Burley area, all of the processing plants in the area were shut down for two weeks over the holiday period.

According to the review, the mild increase reflects very little change in the state's economy. Conditions are essentially the same.

By the first time in 14 months the current month's figure has been lower than that for the same month in any year earlier.

He noted the total labor force increased by 1,700 from December to January, while the unemployment total increased 1,100. This indicates workers are entering the labor market, Seward said.

Indiana

wins in overtime

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — The bench rescued Indiana's top-rated Hoosier basketball team from the brink of defeat Saturday.

Wayne Radford, an unheralded sophomore, was sent into the nationally televised game with Michigan with the Hoosiers in deep trouble. His clutch scoring turned the tide for a rousing 72-67 overtime victory, extending the Hoosiers' record Big Ten winning streak to 23 games. The Hoosiers also won for the 28th straight time at their Assembly Hall.

"I don't think we have ever had a player come off the bench and do a better job than Radford," Indiana Coach Bobby Knight said.

"Michigan was really ready to play. They played 45 minutes of good basketball — we played 23 minutes of good basketball."

With the Hoosiers halting back from an eight-point deficit, Radford drilled in five straight field goals to help force overtime. The extra session was assured when Michigan's Steve Grote missed a free throw with 14 seconds left and towering Indiana center Kent Benson tipped in a rebound at the horn to tie the score for the fourth time, 60-60.

Then all-American Scott May gave the Hoosiers their first lead, 68-67, with a looping jumper with 1:31 left in the overtime and the Hoosiers took control for their 19th win of the season.

Indiana "just wasn't playing" in the first half, said May. Indiana trailed by as many as 12 points and never could solve Michigan's tight zone defense.

In fact, Indiana hit less than 30 per cent of its shots in the first 20 minutes while Michigan connected on an even 50 per cent for a 39-29 halftime lead.

May said there wasn't much story — Knight could do nothing to urge his club to play better, but "he told us to get out there and play the way we're capable of playing."

The Hoosiers, the nation's No. 1-ranked team all season, started to clear the gap at the outset of the second half and when Radford got hot the tide gradually turned.

Hawaii cage coach suspended

HONOLULU (UPI) — A "cute" 60-second television spot will mean many days and weeks of agony for all parties involved, in particular the University of Hawaii and its basketball coach-in-limbo, Bruce O'Neil.

O'Neil, 30, was relieved of his coaching duties Friday for an "indefinite period" by Chancellor E. E. "Big Boy" Tamamura and did not accompany the team which left for a scheduled two-game road swing through California.

The Rainbows are 9-12 for the year with six games remaining.

O'Neil personally made the announcement of his relief from coaching duties and said in a prepared statement that he accepted the suspension for the taping of a television commercial featuring four Hawaii players. The NCAA later ruled the commercial was in violation of its amateur "athletic rules."

"It was poor judgement on my part in not being present to see that things were being handled correctly," O'Neil said. "As I said before, my conscience is clear in that I had no intention of breaking any rules."

"It's a hard lesson for me, but as I said all along, it's the players who come first."

New Mexico trims UTEP

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — New Mexico's Ricky Williams hit 12 of his 18 points in the first half, leading the Lobos to 11 straight points which pushed them well ahead of Texas-El Paso and toward an eventual 69-58 victory Saturday afternoon. It's Western Athletic Conference action.

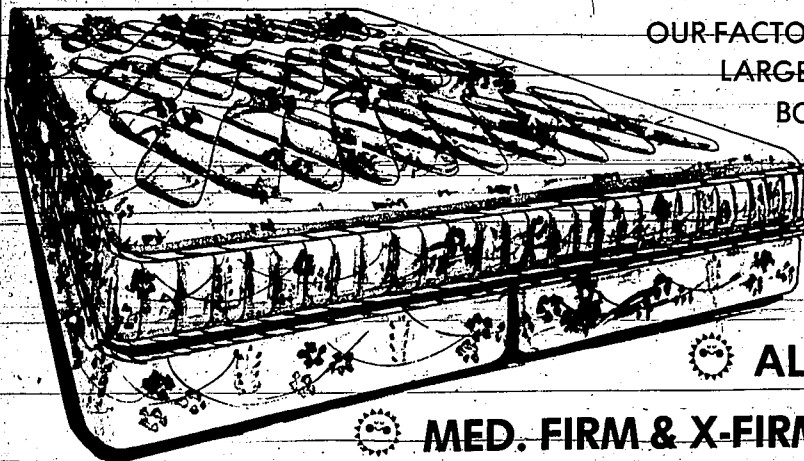

The Lobos, now 4-3 in the conference and 12-9 overall, rode that 11-point streak to a 42-28 halftime lead. The Miners were unable to come back in the second half.

Miner Tom Paulings was high point man with 22 points, and 13 rebounds, and Ronald Jones added 13 points.

ALL THE STRAIN of a wrestling tournament isn't found on the mats, as evidenced by the sideline action of these "club" coaches during district action in Jerome this week. From left, Vic Jackman of Burley leans back in his chair in an effort to keep his Burley wrestler from going too far to a Minico man. Jerome's Skip Andrews isn't pleased with what he's seeing — with Burley's Dave Hanks uses his hands to explain what needs to be done on the mat, although the Bobcat, the coaching is aimed at a double-duty, too-busy-to-see it: Twin Falls' Doug Rex provides a little body English and vocal encouragement. When it was all over Andrews owned the gold trophy.

Shoshone girls grab Northside Crown

WENDELL — Shoshone came away the champion of the Northside sub-district girls B basketball tournament Saturday night with a 27-23 win over Wendell.

Shoshone jumped to an early lead in the game and had the edge by four at the quarter mark. Wendell battled back in the second period and only trailed by one at the half.

After the intermission Shoshone broke away and led by seven at the end of the third quarter. Wendell battled back again in the final period but fell four points short as Shoshone grabbed the title.

Fish-wildlife statewide plan formulated

By ROYCE WILLIAMS
Idaho Department of Fish and Game

The general thrust and format of the Department of Fish and Game's statewide fish and wildlife plan has been approved by Fish and Game commissioners.

Volume I of a "Plan for the Future Management of Idaho's Fish and Wildlife Resources" is expected to be in a form for public review this summer. Joe Greenley, department director, said.

Greenley said the plan is designed to provide clear strategies and policies to guide future management programs developed by his department.

In giving reasons for the plan, Greenley said Idaho wildlife has not been adversely affected to the degree other areas have because of relatively low human population and a lack of intensive development.

"As a result, our diverse fish and wildlife populations have been kept at a high level during past years," he said.

"That's no longer the case," Greenley said. He said Idaho is at a turning point in its history.

"It faces increases in population, natural resource exploitation and industrial development at a rapid rate."

"Conditions now existing will result in serious adverse impacts on Idaho's fish and wildlife habitat at the same time demand on the fish and wildlife resource is increasing," Greenley said.

In face of these events and future demands, Greenley said, more effort by several entities controlling fish and wildlife will be necessary.

Another major reason for the plan is "to define the commission's management policies so that the public can be better informed and have a better understanding of the department's intentions as it preserves and perpetuates the state's fish and wildlife," Greenley said.

The Fish and Game Commission approved the general outline of the plan, which includes setting department policy through 1990 with updates every five years.

"The long-term policy plan will be supplemented by operating plans for each species program, Greenley said. Species programs are designed to carry out the long-term goals and objectives set in the policy plan, he said.

He said the five-year operating plans will be further broken down into one-year segments in which goals and objectives will be stated.

Sticking to the plan, Greenley said, will require critical evaluation of existing programs as to their costs and benefits to the resource.

"It (the plan) means setting program priorities to meet goals with available funds," Greenley said.

The plan is designed to make the goals set by the department measurable, and "performance in meeting goals and objectives will be monitored to see what we've accomplished and as a guide to revision of the plan if that is necessary," he said.

Aside from making his own department more efficient, Greenley said the plan will let other management agencies know the department's direction, thus providing information on fish and wildlife for those agencies' plans.

For example, a species program will be broken down into seven parts:

Background on the amount of habitat available to the species, supply and demand projections for the species, a discussion of the goals and objectives, the department will set for a species, problems that may hinder reaching the goals, ways to overcome those problems and specific policies that set the management framework for that species, Greenley said.

Deer herd composition counts have been completed in Region 4 and show a ratio of 78 fawns per 100 does, according to Gary Will, Regional Game Manager.

The ratio of fawns per doe is an excellent indicator of range conditions and herd survival. Will states any ratio over 70 or more fawns is good production. A total of 2,151 deer were classified by Region 4 personnel which is the highest number since the counts were begun in 1973.

Most of the classification is completed by Conservation Officers. Several sportsmen donated the use of their snow machines and U.S. Forest Service and Bureau of Land Management personnel assisted in some areas.

The basic technique involves locating deer concentration areas on winter range in late December and early January before the bucks shed their antlers. Once a herd is sighted, the number of fawns and bucks are determined by use of a spotting scope. The fawns can be identified from the does by their shorter, more triangular-shaped head and smaller size.

Will states that it is a normal situation for herd productivity to fluctuate from year to year. For example, Unit 54 (Cassia) dropped from 103 fawns per 100 does in 1974 to 75 fawns per 100 does in 1975. A high fawn crop in one year results in numerous yearlings the following year if their survival is good. A yearling doe is classified as mature even though most of these will not be bred until two years old. A large number of yearling does in the population will result in a lower doe-fawn ratio. This is probably what happened between 1974 and 1975 in Unit 54.

The ratio was 55 bucks per 100 does in Unit 54 this year. This number of bucks in the herd provides an excellent chance for the hunter to bag a trophy. Compare this with some areas of "bucks only" seasons in Oregon where the ratio may be as low as three bucks per 100 does.

Hunters in Unit 54 harvested a good number of antlered bucks, as compared to does and fawns in the herd although bucks constitute only about one third of the total animals. In the Rock Creek Station had 168 bucks check through for every 157 does and fawns bagged. In 1974 this ratio was 120 bucks for every 146 does and fawns. Both of these numbers show the hunter is seeing enough deer to be selective toward bucks.

Carey outlasts Bliss

BLISS — Carey downed Bliss Wednesday 67-59 Saturday night.

Carey opened the game with hot shooting and led by 11 at the end of the first quarter. Carey continued to build the lead in the second quarter and led by 18 at the half.

Bliss closed the gap to 10 in the third quarter and saw the margin close to within four early in the fourth period.

Early in the fourth quarter, Carey fouled out of the ball game leaving the Bears without a substitute at guard.

UCLA manhandles Washington State

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — Marcus Johnson scored 32 points Saturday to lead UCLA past Washington State 91-71 and keep the Bruins all alone at the top of the Pacific-8 Conference.

On the other side, the Cougar's Norton Barnhill fired in 27 points for his best single game performance at WSU.

But it was not enough as the Bruins controlled the boards throughout the game and kept the Cougars from getting much more than one shot each trip down the court.

The win pushed UCLA to 6-1 in the conference, while Washington State slipped into fourth place with a 4-3 record.

The two teams remained close through about eight minutes of the first half until UCLA scored eight unanswered points to move out ahead.

WSU fought back on the scoring of Barnhill and Steve Pudokas, who had 23 for the game, to pull within four until Johnson scored on the buzzer to give the Bruins a 39-34 halftime edge.

But the Bruins got two quick baskets in the opening minutes of the second half, to some breathing room and were never threatened again, except for a short-lived Cougar rally with about five minutes to go when WSU pulled within nine.

Backing up Johnson in scoring for the Bruins was Rich Washington, who pumped in 18 points.

Kimberly fisherman hooks trophy trout

Because he only goes fishing every chance he gets, Calvin Guggell, Kimberly, has a nice trout trophy.

Guggell picked up a rainbow trout out of Salmon Reservoir Tuesday, the lunker going 28 1/2 inches in length. But it didn't have the girth and depth of fish that size and weighed in at six and one-quarter pounds dressed.

Guggell caught only two fish. The first was a perch female that was carrying some eggs. He wrapped the eggs around his hook, flipped the line out about 12 feet and seconds later was in business with the big one.

"I didn't put up much of a fight," he said. "When it wanted to stop it did and it was like being hooked onto a log. It stopped three times on the way in but came in pretty quietly."

Other members of his fishing party caught two rainbow, both in the two-pound area.

For those interested in trying to pick up cannibals preying on spawners around the reservoir edges, Guggell said if appeared the trout were closer to spawning than the perch.

Dietrich rallies past Rockland

DIETRICH — Using a press effectively, Dietrich overhauled Rockland in the final minutes for a 56-54 decision in a basketball game Saturday night.

The Blue Devils started their comeback in the non-league game after being down by as much as 15 points in the second period. Louis Ballard's layin after a steal knotted the score at 47-all and Dietrich went ahead for good on Jeff Astle's three point play, 55-54, with 44 seconds remaining.

Mike Rogers' free throw, his only point of the night, tied it with four seconds to go. Ballard's 18 points led a three-pronged attack with Astle adding 16, and Larry Perron chipping in 14.

Reeves led Rockland with 18 points and his loss on fouls in the final period hurt the visiting team.

Rockland won the jayvee game, 50-34.

Buhl drops Minico for regional berth

BUHL — The Buhl girls raced from behind in the fourth quarter to overturn Minico 31-28 and clinch a spot in next week's regionals.

The victory gave Buhl second place in the fourth district class. A journey and ended Minico's season.

District champion Twin Falls and Buhl advance to the regionals Thursday and Friday at the Twin Falls gymnasium. Buhl will take Capital at 7 p.m. while Twin Falls meets either Middleton or Bishop Kelly. Friday night will be losers at 7 p.m. and winners at 8:30 with only the champion moving on to a four-team state playoff in Moscow the following week.

For the third straight game Buhl pulled the victory out in the second half. The Indians bounced ahead 8-2 in the first quarter before Minico turned on its full court press, caused some turnovers and started coming back. The Spartans closed to within on when Larsen hit a long shot just before the buzzer.

Minico moved ahead 20-17 in the third period as Isebnarht, Seienk and Larsen picked up points.

Karen Meltzner tied it up by hitting the first points of the fourth period. The teams then battled through two more ties, Sidney Howard hitting for Buhl and Reinke for Minico to make it 22-22 and then Howard and Isebnarht fashioning the 24-all draw.

Smutney gave Buhl the leads for keeps from the foul line as Meltzner made it three points when she blocked a shot, recovered and went down for a field goal. Two free throws by Huffaker and a snap shot off a tip situation by Smutney ended Buhl's scoring at 31-24.

In the closing seconds Larsen and Isebnarht hit one free throw and Julie Uscola two to establish the final count. A swisher by Uscola came just after the final buzzer had sounded.

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Freshman forward John McCullough, ignoring 10,000 screaming fans, sank four free throws in the final 20 seconds Saturday and lifted Oklahoma to a 67-63 Big Eight upset of Kansas in a regionally televised game.

McCullough led the Sooners with 20 points while Mike Mene had 17 and Billy Graham 14 for Oklahoma, 6-13 overall and 3-4 in the conference.

Kansas, in losing its first home game to Oklahoma in 13 years, was led by Norm Cook with 17 points and Paul Mokeski and Herb Nobles with 12 points each.

hitting the first points of the fourth period. The teams then battled through two more ties, Sidney Howard hitting for Buhl and Reinke for Minico to make it 22-22 and then Howard and Isebnarht fashioning the 24-all draw.

Smutney gave Buhl the leads for keeps from the foul line as Meltzner made it three points when she blocked a shot, recovered and went down for a field goal. Two free throws by Huffaker and a snap shot off a tip situation by Smutney ended Buhl's scoring at 31-24.

In the closing seconds Larsen and Isebnarht hit one free throw and Julie Uscola two to establish the final count. A swisher by Uscola came just after the final buzzer had sounded.

Filer tops Hansen for southside title

MURTAUGH — The Filer Wildcats clinched the southside class B girls sub-district title Saturday night by dropping the Hansen-Huskies 40-18.

The decision will send Filer against northside champion Shoshone in a one-game district playoff at 8 p.m. Tuesday at Valley High School. Both Filer and Shoshone will advance to regionals in the Boise area later in the week.

Hansen, which had made a practice of coming from behind in the second half through the tournament, couldn't stem the favored Wildcats Saturday night. Filer led 21-8 at intermission and never was threatened.

Casper leads Hope classic

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Billy Casper, making the most of his few birdie chances, shot a four-under-par 68 Saturday for a one-shot lead over Jack Nicklaus and Rick Massengale with one round left to play in the 90-hole, $100,000 Bortruppe Desert Classic.

Casper, 44, had four birdies and no bogeys on a card of 3335 at Indian Wells for 72-hole score of nine-under-par 273.

"Play was held up for nearly an hour because of heavy rain and soggy courses," but "it did not seem to affect the scores." Nicklaus shot a 69, also at Indian Wells, and Massengale had a 68 at tougher Bermuda Dunes to trail by a shot at 280.

Defending champion Johnny Miller, despite putting woes, had a 68 at Indian Wells and Brian Allen, who led in the first three rounds, shot a 71 at La Quinta to trail Casper by two shots at 281.

Casper has won 51 tournaments in his 21-year pro career but only one title in the last two years.

Earlier in the Hope he shot 72 at Bermuda Dunes, 65 at Eldorado and 74 in the rain Friday at La Quinta. In two of those rounds he needed 34 and 33 putts so he has been lucky in many ways.

"I haven't putted all that well," Casper said. "But I've missed only eight greens in four rounds, and that's why I'm in the running. Really I feel fortunate to be where I am."

Nicklaus had three birdies, and no bogeys while Massengale had four birdies and no bogeys.

"I hit the ball much better in this round," Nicklaus said. "I made some pretty good putts but not as many as I would have liked. I two-putted too many holes where I had a chance."

The 68 was Miller's best round of the tournament, but he was unhappy with it because he missed too many short putts.

"It could have been a lot better round," Miller said. "If I hadn't gone to sleep on several puts. Still, if I have an average putting round Sunday, I should have a good chance to win."

Dave Newquist shot a 71 for 282 while Dwight Nevil, with a 72, and Lee Elder, with a 69, were at 283, five under par and four shots off the lead.

Bill Rogers, Jerry Heard and Mike McCullough were another shot back at 284 while Vic Regalado was at 285.

Arnold Palmer was only four shots off the lead after three rounds, but he left for his home in Latrobe, Pa., late Friday after learning his father had suffered a fatal heart attack in Florida.

Stephenson rallies

NAPLES, Fla. (UPI) — Club course. Jerilyn Britz also matched par for the day to stand at one-over-par 145 along with Judy Rankin, who shot a 75. At 142 was Laura Baugh, who fired a 69 to match Stephenson for the day's best round.

The 24-year-old Stephenson chipped in from 20 feet for her first birdie of the day and sank putts of 5, eight and 15 feet for her other birdies. Her only bogey came when she missed the green on the 17th hole.

"This is the first time I've gone two days with no three putts," she said. "I've worked on my putting all summer."

Stephenson said she couldn't believe she led a tournament after two rounds.

Poulos, Young collect Olympic skating medals

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — Leah Poulos ended her four-year quest for an Olympic medal and teammate Sheila Young earned her third in as many days Saturday when they finished 23 behind world record holder Tatiana Averina of the Soviet Union, in the women's 1,000-meter speed skating race.

By adding a bronze to her 500-meter gold and 1,500-meter silver, Young completed a complete set of the hardware and became the first American skater ever to take home three medals from a single Winter Olympics.

"That's quite an honor for me," beamed the attractive 22-year-old speed queen from Detroit. "I was at the awards ceremony last night. It happened to see the bronze medal, and I thought that looked the nicest."

Averina, third in both the 500 and 1,500 finally earned her gold with an Olympic record time of one minute, 28.43 seconds and later said, "I have set 12 world records in the last two years, but I would trade all of them if possible to have this gold medal."

The four speed skating medals gained by Young and Poulos equalled the U.S. production of 1972 at Sapporo where Dianne Holm, now the women's coach, and Anne Henning won two medals each.

Poulos, of Northbrook, Ill., although missing out on the gold by .14 seconds was thrilled to win a medal after missing out in two races in Sapporo and the first two here. She had a time of 1:28.57 to Young's 1:29.34.

"After yesterday and Thursday I was fired up enough," the 24-year-old Leal said as her fiancé, Peter Mueller, of the men's team, stood by. "It was just a question of putting it together."

"I feel happy about the medal. I just wish Leouid had done it a little sooner. I guess you always expect more of yourself than others expect of you."

Poulos, after suffering from food poisoning last weekend at Davos, Switzerland, along with the effects of a lingering cold, said she felt it when she came here. "But this is the Olympic Games and all the training is behind you. You just have to go out there and not let things bother you."

Leah felt she had a near-perfect race until near the end, explaining, "I could have worked the last turn better. I didn't lean into it as much as I should have. I let up a little."

While Poulos is making no commitment on her future in speed skating beyond the world championships, Young has said repeatedly this is her last year of competition.

"What a way to wind it up," she said. "A world record in the 500 at Davos last week and three Olympic medals."

When she woke up Saturday morning, though, Sheila didn't think she'd be able to help herself to the third medal.

"The way I felt before the race I wasn't sure I could do it," said Young, who has held the world sprint cycling championship as well as the speed skating.

"My legs didn't feel well. I had been pushed around from one place to another so much yesterday after winning the 500 that I had forgotten about warming down. My legs felt strained this morning."

Buckendorf-led Buhl city bowl meet enters last day

beats Filer 60-46

FILER — Steady Ben Buckendorf pumped through 22-points-to-kill the Buhl Indians past the Filer Wildcats 60-46 Saturday night.

Buckendorf was the only steady thing in the slam-bang affair which found the highly-favored Indians having to use free throws to clinch the victory. Buckendorf hit 12 of 15 attempts from the foul line as Buhl, outscored 19-17 in field goals, canned 26 free ones against 12 for the Wildcats.

Although Buhl never trailed, the Indians didn't get anything close to a comfortable lead until the late third quarter and its advantage didn't reach double-digits until the middle of the last period.

"Through the first half Buhl's biggest advantage was four points, Gary Schmeckpeper provided six points in the first eight and one-half minutes while Buckendorf was relatively quiet. Buhl four times held the four-point lead, the last time at 17-13 on two Buckendorf free throws.

Then McKoy and Tom Williams brought Filer into a tie and Brad Hallwig at Buhl and Rick Davis of Filer had offsetting shots to lead it 19-19 at halftime.

Buhl hit the first seven points of the second half as Givie Bell got a jumper, Bill Wilcox a close-in shot and Buckendorf a free throw and 18-foot jumper.

That seven points pretty much told the story. Buhl went up by nine twice but was back to seven at the end of the quarter.

Filer's last hope came at 41-36 on a Davis field goal. But Helwig hit two field goals and Buckendorf two more free throws to send Buhl up by 13. The Wildcats twice closed to within 10, the last time at 54-47.

Buhl took the preliminary 60-46.

The doubles leaders also remained the same, Grace Gray and Donna Wagner, at 1193 scratch and 1341 handicap.

Tigers drop Camas to gain loop tie

RICHFIELD — The Richfield Tigers whipped Camas County 51-36 Saturday night and threw the Northwest Conference race into a three-way tie.

The Tigers had some problems in the first half and trailed 22-21 at that point. But they outscored Camas County 19-6 in the third quarter and coasted home.

Camas County pressed throughout the night, not causing many turnovers but Richfield had trouble settling into its offense due to the pressure.

But as the third quarter started Richfield immediately began pulling away. Mike Robinson hit minor 20 points during the third period. He also grabbed 23 rebounds.

Free throws made a big difference in the game, Richfield collecting 17 against six for the pressing Mustangs.

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Cliff Wiley of Kansas set an American record, in the 100-meter dash Saturday night with a time of 10.2 seconds during the Jaycee's Indoor Track and Field Championships at the Idaho State University Gymnasium.

Wiley bettered the old mark of 10.7, held by a number of sprinters.

He also ran the third leg of the mile relay, building Kansas a 5-yard lead it held to win in 3:14.

More than 100 athletes competed in the invitational event.

Ted Castaneda of the Colorado Track Club ran the fourth fastest three-mile ever, winning in 13:24.9. Castaneda avenged a 5,000-meter defeat at last summer's Pan American games by Domingo Tillis of

Missouri rips Colorado

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Guard Willie Smith had a game-high 22 points Saturday night to lift 10th-ranked Missouri to a 96-78 Big Eight win over Colorado.

The win, along with Nebraska's 66-56 victory at Iowa State Saturday, kept the Tigers and Huskers ducked at atop Big Eight standings with 6-1 records.

Smith hit 11 of his 22 shots from the floor as the Tigers hit 57 per cent for the game in whipping (C)U which dropped its sixth game in 7 starts.

The Tigers, who also were paced by Jim Kennedy with 18, broke out of a 22-30 lead with 7:41 remaining in the first half to check up a 46-28 halftime margin.

Meters gone

A YEAR-long anti-parking meter campaign paid off for Sue Dodds, publisher and editor of the Marengo Republican News, in Marengo, Ill. About a year ago Mrs. Dodds noticed an ordinance had been passed to remove the meters in 1970, but the meters had never been removed. She also found that one month the city collected only $250 from the meters, but paid one man $750 a month to maintain the meters. She fought a reluctant city council who finally had the meters removed Jan. 16. (UPI)

Moms make 'chauvinists'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mothers frequently are responsible for turning their male children into male chauvinists by imbuing their offspring with a sense of male superiority, according to a study by a California psychiatrist. The study, published in the current edition of the Archives of General Psychiatry, notes that male chauvinism is not simply a problem of men. Dr. Sherynn M. Woods, a psychiatrist at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, studied a group of 11 men. Woods found that, in most cases, mothers directly or indirectly taught or supported the idea that adequacy of a man meant dominance and superiority over women. A sense of chauvinism instilled by mothers was found much more frequently than identification of chauvinism of fathers, he said. Often, he said, the mother let her son know that the father was not a "chauvinistic" though, this, Woods said, resulted in impossible standards of male performance.

Warning ban caution asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two New York state researchers, citing the impact of a shortlived ban on spray adhesives, urged government agencies Saturday to use caution when alerting consumers about possibly dangerous products. Warnings about hazardous products can have far-reaching consequences, said Ernest B. Hook and Kristine M. Healy of the Albany, N.Y., Birth Defects Institute. Writing in Science, the Journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the researchers said "there are indications some women decided to undergo abortions as a result of a government warning about spray adhesives that since has been withdrawn. The federal Consumer Product Safety Commission reported in August, 1973, that research showed an association between birth defects and exposure to some spray adhesives. Sale of these products was banned, and the commission warned pregnant women exposed to them to consult doctors for possible tests to see if their unborn children were affected. The ban was withdrawn six months later because research results could not be confirmed, the Science report said. HAVE A HORSE FOR SALE? Enthusiasts are looking for him in the Classified Ads. Consumers burping

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The state has filed suit against a pharmaceutical company, charging that its techin tablets are adulterated with gas that makes consumers burp. The attorney general's office, acting for Health Director Jerome Lackner, filed suit in Superior Court against Pharmcaps Inc., alleging that tablets tested by state technicians contained from 1 to 10 per cent hexane, a petroleum-based gas.

Governor returns gifts

SACRAMENTO Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who lives in a $250-a-month apartment rather than a new million-dollar governor's mansion, has returned presents which ranged from a carton of raisins to memberships in plush golf and tennis clubs to state records show. The governor's policy is to return all gifts worth more than $25. The disclosure was made in a statement of economic interest filed by Brown Thursday night. The report is required of top elected officials under California's Political Reform Act of 1974. Asked if there were any presents he wanted to keep, Brown told a reporter: "I have more possessions than I personally want." He said he didn't keep anything that the reform act defines as a gift.

'200 Years of Country' planned

By NORMA HERZINGER
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — In keeping with the bicentennial year, "200 Years of Country" will be presented during the Magic Valley Country Music Association's 15th annual Country Music Jamboree.

The annual event is set for Monday and Tuesday, at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium with shows to begin at 8 p.m.

Musicians from throughout Magic Valley will be lending their talents in a variety of tunes with all proceeds earmarked for the Easter Seal Center to purchase a special portable audiometer machine. The machine will be used to test hearing and middle ear damage on both children and adults.

Country music has always been a part of American lives (some more than others) so in keeping with the theme, many old favorites will be heard with a different show scheduled each night.

"200 Years of Country" is a perfect theme for a country music show as this type of music has its grass roots in American history. Old spirituals, folk songs, blue grass, and "blues" songs are the forerunners of country music as we know it today. Many of these songs were never written down or copyrighted, but passed down through generations by word of mouth.

Despite the fact that it has been around all this time, only during the last few years has it come into its rightful place with all types of musicians recording and making good money with country music.

An estimated $25 million was spent on country music records and tapes last year — up $43 million for a year before. And country music television shows have been put in prime time slots.

According to a recent wire service story the number of full-time country music radio stations in the last year rose from 81 in 1964 to 1,156 last year.

The National Association of Record Merchandisers, which keeps track of sales, reports that country music has cornered a respectable percentage of the total record sales market and is climbing.

White pop, rock and soul and middle-of-the-road styles are slipping.

Country music has gone right to the top — to the White House. Melie Haggard entertained 23 of President Nixon's guests and Tennessee Ernie Ford serenaded President and Mrs. Ford with "Anniversary Waltz."

Recently the wire services reported Johnny Cash, because of exhaustion, called out of a White House entertainment for President Anwar Sadat of Egypt. Cash had made previous appearances at the White House, however. The top has gone to country, too. A good example is when President Nixon played the piano and twirled a xylophone with Tony Martin on the Grand Ole Opry.

Magic Valley residents have always appreciated country music as is evident in the eagerly awaited jamboree. This year promises to be no different as valley musicians go into final rehearsals for the forthcoming shows.

Chuck Daniels, Bill and Bibi Taylor, Tom Ellis are co-directors of the show, with the well-known Zeb Bell serving as master of ceremonies. Among the bands participating will be Silas Dossy and the Swing Shift, Cliff Hawk and the Last Resorts, Jim Winkle and the High Country, Hearts and Diamonds, Carl Merchaus and the Country People, Chuck Daniels and the Nevada Gamblers, Jim Wallis and the Discards, The Broncos, Sunset Horizons, and Bud Williamson and the Gem State Gems.

Individuals participating will include the yodeling Buzz Goeritzen with his children Tammy and Kelly; Geri Vollweiler, Lennie Malone and her dad, Russ Diller; Jan Conti, Dick Kemison, Wilbert Perkins, Betty Stewart, Ken Hellenbach, Virgil, Wilma and Rick Martin, John Day, Terry Van Zante, Ted Maughn, Shanna Stephens, Rhyona Stephens, John Robinette and Lennie Hodge, Rosalind Welch, Merry Floyd and Everett Perry.

A newcomer to the jamboree and billed as a "specialty" act will be Washboard Annie. The type-of-act she has is a little vague but promises to be good family entertainment. Another special attraction will be June Emberton who is deaf doing her songs in sign language. June will be on both nights.

Tickets can be purchased at Sullivan and the Music Center, Blue Lakes Sporting Goods, Sam Mor Sport and Peterson's Western Appare in Twin Falls, Sae-Ade, Drug, Bibi, McClintock Drug, Jerome, Greenawalts, Gooding; from any participating musician or at the door the night of the performances.

Zeb Bell will serve as emcee

TF concert will feature 5 soloists

TWIN FALLS — Five young people from the Magic Valley will be soloists with the Magic Valley Symphony Orchestra in the last concert of the season.

Performances will be held Feb. 17 at 8 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium and Feb. 16 at the Gooding High School Auditorium, also at 8 p.m.

The soloists include Ann Bertus, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G.J. Bertus, Wendell, Minibst, Steve Moss, son of Ernest Moss, Twin Falls, pianist; Kathleen Bondurant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bondurant, Kimberly, flutist; Jack Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Nelson, "Jevoc" and "Samuel" Hammond, daughter of Harley Hammond and Mrs. Helen Hammond, both Twin Falls, trumpets.

Larry Curtis, conductor, said it is coincidental that all soloists also are members of the symphony. Trials were held last November and the soloists were selected by John Best of the music faculty of Boise State University.

Miss Bertus, a junior at Wendell High School, will play the first movement of Mozart's "Violin Concerto No. 3." She also plays the flute, oboe and piano and studies violin with Jean Phipps.

Nelson and Miss Hammond, both are sopranos at the College of Southern Idaho, were members of the Idaho All-State Band in 1967 and study trumpet with Curtis. They will play Vivaldi's "Concerto for Two Trumpets," Miss Bondurant will play the first movement of Mozart's "Flute Concerto in G." She is a senior at Twin Falls High School and was selected outstanding female musician at the University of Idaho music camp last summer. She will be soloing with the Pachelbel Symphony later this spring. She studies flute with Curtis.

Moss will play the first movement of Kabalevsky's "Piano Concerto, No. 27." A student at Twin Falls High School and plays the cello. He studies cello with Helen Colfer and was selected for the Idaho All-State Orchestra, both last year and this year.

In addition to the soloists, the symphony will play Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony," Rossini's Overture to "The Barber of Seville" and Mozart's "American Salute."

Curtis, head of the CSI Music Department, is conductor and musical director of the symphony. Ernest Moss is honor president and concertmaster. The 69 members include adults from all walks of life and some students.

The symphony was formed in 1959 under the leadership of Richard Smith, then orchestra director in the Twin Falls High School, Del Slaughter, longtime instrumental director in the high school, directed the group for more than a decade, retiring at the end of last year's season.

Tickets for the Feb. 16 and 17 concerts will be available at the door. Holders of patron tickets and their families are admitted to both concerts free by the symphony-concert season.

Theater's tryouts this week

TWIN FALLS—Tryouts for Magic Valley Little Theater's first show of the year are slated at Robert Stuart Junior High at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday.

The production of a one-act play, including "Hello Out There," to be directed by Lonnie Hodge, and Anton Chekov's "The Door" are scheduled for the first weekend in April.

Roy "Nick" Nicholson, coordinating director of the production, noted the purpose of doing three one-acts is to include people who haven't been able to participate in previous productions due to cast limitations. Anyone interested in any phase of the theater is urged to try out.

In conjunction with the three one-act workshops will be held in characterization, makeup, costuming and set construction.

New board members for the year are Mrs. Fisher, president; John Robinson, Lonnie Hodge, Jean Hovey, Ken Hodge, Roy "Nick" Nicholson, Esther Nicholson, Art Franz, and Ron Ghanney, secretary.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
My husband had six kidney stones that passed, but one did not. Surgery showed one more inside the kidney. He had it removed. Two months later his urine showed blood. His doctor thinks another stone was passed.

Do you think a kidney stone could have formed within two months? We don't believe it. Why was blood coming out of his urine? He is okay now, but we would like your comment on this. It could ease our minds. —Mrs. W. D.

It is quite likely he passed another stone. The bloody urine could have been a symptom of this. A small stone can form in two months.

It is also possible that while six were passed another could have been lurking in the kidney, masked from the X-ray. It takes a time for some of these stones to loosen and descend the urinary tract, and they can set off irritations in the process in matter how small.

My advice is to accept the new reports that show everything is okay. Your husband should be concerned now with a program to help avoid future stone formation. This would include such factors as a liberal fluid intake and a special diet, with restrictions based on the chemical content of the stones—whether of calcium or urates.

Overactivity of the parathyroid glands should also be considered a possibility.

Kidney stones develop fast

I would imagine that your husband has gone through a rather painful experience. He would want to avoid another if possible. —Dear Dr. Thosteson.

I have had acne for years, but after coming under a dermatologist's care it has been under control. Now I would like to know about dermabrasion and how it is done. I'm 24, and a little embarrassed about considering dermabrasion. It looks like I'm more concerned about my looks than more important things. That is, I would want a nice complexion when you've never had it. —B.B.

Nothing wrong with wanting a nice complexion as you can have. But you give no clue as to the degree of scarring you have. Scars can fade gradually, sometimes sometimes in being back in the middle of the natural appearance of the skin. If your doctor feels there is a chance of this occurring, I'd suggest you bear with things and give three months before resorting to dermabrasion.

Dermabrasion involves abraded the outer layers of the skin to eradicate the scars. It's done in a doctor's office. Bandages are applied afterward to suppress bleeding and avoid infection. Scars fall off in about a week, and then the pinkish skin can be washed. The pinkness usually subsides in about a month.

Dermabrasion, which has lost some adherents, remains effective in skilled hands. As the description of the procedure indicates, it is best done when the patient has time for privacy, in recovery, as during a vacation. You must avoid the sun for a month or so afterward. Otherwise there can be unsightly pigmentation.

There are other aspects space prohibits going into here. My booklet on acne might be informative to you as well as other readers. For a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope. The dermatologist you are seeing would be able to describe the other aspects of dermabrasion for you, and advise in your individual case. —Dear Dr. Thosteson.

Regarding the adverse reaction from contact lenses, I had this too, and I found out it was a reaction to the soaking solution I had been using to clean the lenses. Thought it might be worth passing on. —E.J.

It certainly is.

To find out what causes high blood pressure and what can be done to treat it, send for a copy of "Controlling Your Blood Pressure (Hypertension)" by Dr. Thosteson. Write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

My husband's doctor says he has no regrets that, due to the treatment he received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
1976 Chicago Tribune & News Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband is being used by his family, only he can't see it.
He works six days a week, and I like to plan something for us to do together on his day off.
My husband's socks are his "thing" called on his day off and asked if he would take her shopping. He said yes, so there went our plans.
The next week, his sister called and asked if he would help her move on his day off. He said he would, so there went our plans for the day again.
Last week, his brother called and said he needed help to unload a truckload of wood, so my husband, the fool, spent his whole day off helping his brother.
I finally got mad and told him that he was putting his family before me, and he said, "Well, I've known them for 21 years and live with you only a year and a half."
Why do you think he will start putting me ahead of them?

Family ties hubby up

DEAR EVERYBODY: According to the way your husband figures, it will take at least another 20 years.

DEAR ABBY: A man I had always thought was married asked me for a date. I turned him down, saying I do not date married men.

He then told me that he was not really "married" because he is Catholic and he was married by a justice of the peace, so in the eyes of the Church he is single.

Is that right?
Please let me know because it's against my principles to go out with married men. Thank you.

PLAYING IT SAFE

DEAR PLAYING: Unless this man obtained a legal divorce, in the eyes of the LAW he is married.

DEAR ABBY: Clyde and I have been dating for eight months. We love each other very much and have talked about getting married.

We eat out on weekends and take turns paying for the meal. (We both have good jobs.) Here's the problem: I am a very slow eater, and Clyde eats fast. While I'm eating my first course, Clyde eats his, plus his salad, and then he eats my salad, too.

When the main courses come, he devours his in no time, and then reaches over and starts in on mine. Before I've had three bites, Clyde has eaten everything on my plate! I don't order dessert anymore because Clyde gobbles his up and mine, too.

What kind of husband do you think he'd make? His hoggliness is not only disgusting and embarrassing, it leaves me...

HUNGRY

DEAR HUNGRY: Clyde's hoggliness isn't your only problem. An appalling lack of communication between two people who "love each other" is just as serious.

What's wrong with telling Clyde how you feel about his eating habits? Do that, and then you'll know what kind of husband he'd make.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, c/o L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Worst, 10, wins Cub Scout bake-off

TWIN FALLS - Results of the Cub Scout "bake-off" contest have been announced and the top 10-year-old cook in Den 2, Pack 66 is Tug Worst.

The contest was the brainchild of one of the Cub Scouts in Pack 66 and was started as an annual event. Mark Alexander, a member of the den, volunteered the services of his recently retired grandfather, John Alexander, as judge.

After Alexander taste tested each of the offerings, he named Tug as the winner.

Each boy is responsible for providing refreshments at a weekly den meeting. After considering the bragging about the merits of their own cookies they agreed a contest should be held.

For the contest den mothers Mrs. Tom Nelson and Mrs. Dick Worst assigned each boy a number. He prepared his contest entry, placed it in a brown paper bag with his assigned number and submitted it to the contest judge.

Other activities of the den include collecting newspapers for recycling, display of crafts, during the week of Feb. 2 in the Price Hardware window; installation of handcrafted bird feeders at their homes and preparation for the blue and gold banquet Feb. 19.

Den 2 will join other dens in Pack 66 at the annual scout Sunday church services Feb. 8 at their sponsoring, Presbyterian Church. February is scouting month.

TWIN FALLS - The Twin Falls Shrine Club will have a regular meeting at George K's Restaurant, Monday, beginning with a social hour at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:15 p.m. This will be ladies night.

Cuddling study says men like it

CHICAGO (UPI) — Men like to be cuddled just as much as women do, according to a study by five Vanderbilt University psychologists.

However, the study of 75 men and women psychiatric patients indicates that the "intensity" of a man's need to be held is slightly less than a woman's, the researchers said.

The study, published in the latest edition of the Archives of General Psychiatry, was headed by Drs. Marc H. Hollender and Alexander J. Moegele of the Department of Psychiatry in Vanderbilt's School of Medicine.

Hollender and Moegele said cultural stereotypes of holding apparently result from two factors:

"The first is that American mothers are encouraged to spend more time holding and cuddling their female infants than their male infants, thereby conditioning a response pattern.

"The second factor is that according to our prevailing viewpoint, it is unmanly to want to be held or cuddled; only women are permitted or encouraged to express such feminine wishes." Being held by their mothers and their partner is active, in a complementary pair; the woman is seen as being held, the man as holding.

"I was, therefore, postulated that men would find it easier to acknowledge and discuss their wish to be held rather than their wish to be held," they wrote. "Our data, however, do not support this."

The data showed that 30 men had a mean score of 35.33 on wishing to be held and 35.93 on the intensity of their longing to hold. The 45 women studied had a score of 33.33 on wishing to be held, and 36.63 on their desire to hold.

Hollender and Moegele conducted that "cultural factors do influence the wish to be held in men," and most men's desire to be held is not as intense as women's, but men still can acknowledge their longing to be held.

The researchers also noted that although they expected to find that most men could not separate their wish to be held from a desire to have sexual intercourse, most male subjects could separate these wishes.

"They quoted one man as saying, 'Sometimes I just want to be held, and I don't even have sex on my mind.'"

However, the report said, it may be "that men are more easily seduced sexually by body contact, and therefore, are less able than women to remain focused on the wish to be held as a goal in itself."

Benefit ball set

Camp Fire Girls salute veterans

FILER — Filer Camp Fire Girls will participate Monday in the national salute to hospitalized veterans sponsored by a non-profit organization "No Greater Love."

The group has requested Camp Fire Girls, Blue Birds and adventure groups to write and send letters to veteran hospitals throughout the United States. The Filer group will send letters to the Veterans Hospital, Boise, which will need its letters. Adventure groups in Magic Valley will assist.

Pat Reel, guardian of the Filer group, said the girls write letters to the veterans but have no particular one assigned to them. It is hoped the project will become a national one.

Authorities question eye technique

Chicago Sun-Times — Authorities in eye-disease have questioned the usefulness of a controversial contact-lens system that its backers contend can restore normal vision to nearsighted people.

At the same time, an optometrist contended that the technique, orthokeratology, is widely sought after by persons who want normal vision restored temporarily — just long enough to enable them to pass employment examinations that require normal vision without glasses.

Moreover, a dispute between optometrists (practitioners licensed to examine the eyes and sell glasses and contact lenses) and ophthalmologists (physicians specializing in eye disorders) cannot be resolved because virtually no objective scientific research has been done on orthokeratology.

Ophthalmologists optometrist Joseph A. Nolan contend that by fitting special contact lenses to nearsighted people, they can gradually make the eye's lens-like outer layer reshape a deformed cornea — and restore normal vision.

After completing a three-year treatment of a cost of from $1,100 to $2,800, patients receive a final set of "blank" contact lenses whose only function is to keep the reshaped cornea from regaining its original distortion. Nearsighted persons can see clearly only objects held close to the eyes.

If the "blank" lenses are removed, Nolan said, normal vision will remain for awhile — sometimes indefinitely. Nolan said the technique "cures" about 3 per cent of its patients.

He said the best results are achieved with young children whose eyes are growing while the treatment is being done. Nolan said he has been offering orthokeratology for nine years and has treated about 300 patients.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Max Hardy of Los Angeles is both a top player and top teacher. His pupils play a lot of duplicate bridge and Max tries to show the difference between the play of the cards at rubber bridge and match-point duplicate.

He uses today's hand as a classic example. Whether South opens one club, one heart or the one notrump that Max teaches the final contract should be three notrump.

South wins the spade lead and leads that nice six-card diamond suit in dummy. If he is a careless rubber bridge player, he starts to run high diamonds. East shows out on the second diamond-lead. The careless player spends the next 10 minutes trying to salvage his contract and the next five complaining about him.

The careful player ducks the first diamond. This would cost him a trick if the suit broke 3-2 but it would be the sort of trick rubber bridge players can afford to lose.

As for the match point players. Three notrump is such a normal contract that they should forget about the safety play. They should try to run the diamonds and wind up one down, but with an average score.

ASK THE GOODBYES

Several readers have asked us if we recommend ever opening one notrump when holding a worthless doubleton. Our answer is that we like to have at least the jack and one, but have opened hands such as South with one notrump when the spirit moved us.

Hosiery firm designs $2,000 pair of pantyhose for diamond jubilee

© Chicago Sun-Times
If you think you're spending too much as it is on pantyhose, how does $2,000 for a pair grab you?
No. Inflation hasn't escalated that drastically. The $2,000 pair of pantyhose were designed by Hanes Hosiery for its diamond jubilee this year. The sheer black hose have a knitted pattern on the side of each leg decorated with 20 one-carat Wellington counterfeit diamonds.

Anyone with cash to burn who wants to have the ultimate in luxurious leg-adornment can order the pantyhose, which are part of the Hanes touring Bicentennial showcase. This display depicts leg fashions from 1901 to the present. The nylon pantyhose, which have become a staple of almost every woman's wardrobe today, were unheard of at the turn of the century.

Anyone who caught a glimpse of an ankle under a long skirt at that time would see textured or patterned stockings in cotton or silk. They were held up by a corset or a garter belt, of course.
By the '20s, when the leg was shockingly exposed to the knees by flappers dancing the Charleston, stockings turned fold. Silk stockings were chic as well as difficult to keep in shape. Decorations such as embroidered, check patterns on the sides became the vogue with women who kicked up their heels in short dance dresses.

In 1924 nylon hosiery became one of this century's most revolutionary fashion items, touted for its strength, elasticity and washability.

But women hardly had time to get the feel of it before World War II curtailed production. After the war, nylon was back in the hosiery picture in plain styles with just a few decorations. Then in 1951 seamless hose liberated women from the need to constantly straighten their back seams.
In the '60s fishnet stockings, patterned hose and shimmering silver styles became accessories for mod fashions. Pantyhose arrived on the scene in 1963 just in time for the miniskirt, which raised hemlines to daring heights. Next to the introduction of nylon stockings, the arrival of pantyhose was one of the century's most significant fashion events.
Pantyhose still pose many of the same problems as other nylon stockings — running, snagging and tearing. But today there is a greater variety than ever in different weights and grades of sheerness as well as support. Inseams are calculated to relax muscles and styles designed to keep legs cool.

There are also styles with tummy-control tops, a wide range of sizes to fit everyone from the lean to the fat.

DON LOTVEDT
... new assignment

BLM picks resource unit manager

BURLEY — A veteran area manager for the Bureau of Land Management has taken over the helm of the Magic Resource Area.

Don Lotvedt is the new area manager for the Burley district sector, that includes Twin Falls County and western Cassia County.

Lotvedt hopes to move into a house in Burley next week. He has been on the job for three weeks.

Riverside, Calif., in 1963. He moved to the Missoula, Mont., district in 1967 as a natural resource specialist for six years before being promoted to the Glacier-Blaine position.

While in the Malta district, Lotvedt received the BLM Special Achievement award for his "exceptional performance and accomplishments."

Lotvedt said one of the major concerns at his new post will be more management plans in connection with grazing rights on BLM land.

He said another big task will be studied in connection with designation of the Salmon Falls Creek natural area. The district multiple-use advisory board Wednesday recommended the designation over a 25-mile section of the canyon.

Lotvedt said other work will include some desert land entires, wildlife efforts and rights of way.

The new area manager was born in Rugby, N. D., hailed as the geographical center of North America, and was raised on a grain farm near Minot, N. D.

He received an associate of science degree from the North Dakota School of Forestry at Bismarck in 1961 and a B. A. degree from North Dakota State University at Fargo in 1963.

Lotvedt and his wife, Lynn, have two children, Kirsten, 10, and Mark, 5.

At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, county agents were in the Taylor farm to weigh and tag calves in the Almo, Elba and Wallace areas.

The team will complete its job Monday, taking care of the Burley area calves at 3 p.m. at the Rex Bingham farm.

Calf checks start

BURLEY — Weighing and tagging of calves for the Cassia County 4-H market best program began Thursday.

County extension agents tagged and weighed them for the Deelo and Albion area Thursday. They were at the Dalton Elquist farm in the Oakley area at 3 p.m. Friday.

The weigh-ins moved to the Malta area Saturday morning, with the tagging beginning at 10 a.m. at the Jack Pierce farm.

Idaho farming receipts show drop in late 1975

(Courtesy Sinclair & Co.)
BOISE (CNS) — Idaho's business patterns remained generally unchanged in last year, but some improvement showing in lumber production and the over-all rate of unemployment.

Economic activity in the construction and mineral industries held at favorable levels, but agricultural cash receipts were below 1974.

Cash receipts from marketing showed resume normal growth pattern in 1975 after falling 12.3 per cent to $988.5 million through the first 10 months of 1975. Receipts from the sale of crops slipped nearly 16 per cent to $639.3 million while livestock and livestock-product receipts rose 2 per cent to $359.8 million.

"The decline in cash receipts from the sale of crops primarily reflects a lower price structure as production of many commodities — with the exception of potatoes and wheat — exceeded 1974 output levels," reports First Security Corporation, a Salt Lake City-based bank holding company.

The state's total wheat crop last year at 60.1 million bushels was 3 per cent below 1974. Average of winter wheat planted for 1975 is up 2 per cent and the bank predicts production will rise 9 per cent. Idaho's barley and oat crops in 1975 were sharply higher, but the prices for the two grains were also sharply lower than in 1974.

Production of fall potatoes at 75.1 million cwts was 8 per cent below the 1974 record crop, reflecting mostly a drop in acres planted and a slight decline in yield per acre. Total stocks of potatoes held in Idaho at Dec. 1 topped year-earlier levels, reflecting a 28 per cent fall-off in the rate of disappearance, the slowest since 1964.

Idaho's lumber production for the January-October period amounted to 1,312 billion board feet, down by 6.6 per cent from the year earlier level. With a pick up in housing construction nationally, production in August, September and October increased well above comparable prior year figures.

Last year's production of silver was 15.8 per cent higher than in 1974, with copper up 7.8 per cent, lead 5 per cent, zinc 31.6 per cent and copper 20 per cent.

The bank says building permit construction in 39 Idaho counties and the unincorporated areas of seven counties totaled $286.8 million through the first 11 months of 1975, a gain of 14.2 per cent over 1974.

Farming practices survey scheduled

JEROME — The U. S. Department of Agriculture is conducting a nationwide survey of farmers on agricultural practices.

The survey in the Magic Valley is designed to gather information to help farmers buy to produce crops, livestock and poultry.

The Idaho survey is under the direction of Richard C. Max. Max said the data will be collected by personal interviews.

Interviewers will be asking farmers about expenditures for fuel, fertilizer, feed, pest livestock, insecticides, taxes, cash wages and repairs.

Max said the survey results will help measure the actual kinds and amounts of these expenditures, and that by producers and will be very useful in establishing a reliable indication of net farm income," Max said.

He noted the survey information will also identify production needs and establish priorities for energy and other input requirements for farming. The data will be used for periodic updating of the index of prices paid by farmers, commonly called the parity index, he added.

Max said that all information provided by individual farmers during the interviews will be kept confidential and only state and national summaries will be published.

Beef meet at Gooding

JEROME — Beef production programs are being held throughout Magic Valley with the next program in Gooding Tuesday.

Meetings have already been held in Twin Falls and Richfield. The next Gooding meeting will be at the Gooding Inn with the program to begin at 10:30 a.m. The meeting will conclude at 3:30 p.m. with a 45-minute lunch break.

The programs are designed to help expand the cattlemen's understanding in the principles of practical mineral and protein supplementation and beef cattle evaluation programs, according to Jesse Wilson, Jerome County agent.

Wilson said information presented will be of a practical nature and should be of interest to the producer in range type situations who are interested in a beef cattle improvement program.

Lecture topics include protein supplementation, mineral supplementation, beef cattle evaluation, and the use of the Damona.

The last meeting will be in Burley Feb. 18 at the Damona

Bug control seen more difficult in few years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An expert study committee predicts increasing insect resistance to current pesticides, combined with environmental concerns and greater demands for food production, will make pest control increasingly difficult in the years ahead.

To counter this growing problem, the National Academy of Sciences committee Thursday called for greater expenditures of research money to develop safer "third generation" chemicals along with new bactericidal and viral agents to control crop pests.

"This is no time for complacency and lack of concern," the committee said. Dr. Donald Kennedy, chairman of the panel and Stanford University professor of biology, said it may take considerable time and effort to come up with needed alternative technologies in insect control. The big problem is a rapid buildup of genetic resistance to today's chemicals.

Disaster threat grows in dry Texas districts

DALLAS (UPI) — Most of Texas has not had a good hard rain since before Halloween, and the resulting drought has started winter crop, endangered spring planting and may force ranchers to sell their livestock.

Agriculture officials say the drought "verges on disaster" in some areas of the state. One of the hardest hit areas is Central Texas, where many farm tanks already are dry and winter, small grains are dead or dying in the fields.

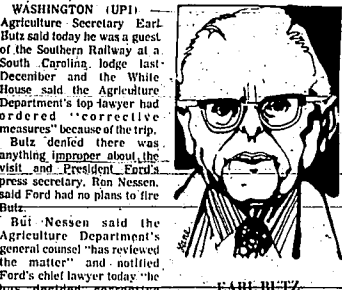

House committee clears payments

There was a time in the history of the theater when one certain performer appeared in every scene, no matter what the play. Never did this character have lines to speak outside of his place; he carried a large manuscript, which he seemed to study carefully as he trotted, stilled and hopped from place to place around the stage. The proscenium, his job was to whisper all the upcoming lines to the actors. And the record shows that the audiences in those 16th Century days got used to his presence right away and he became virtually invisible to them.

Q. "You know the sexy model that makes TV commercials for toothpaste and hair conditioner and shaving cream? She slinks around, singing, 'My name is Creamy, the cha cha, or something like that. Who in the world is that girl?'"
A. Her name is Farrah Fawcett. Her dad is an oil field contractor in Corpus Christi, Texas. Her husband, regret to report, is actor Lee Majors, the $8 million man.

Q. "Where was it that the law required the attending physician to lead the funeral parade of the deceased?"
A. Believe you refer to the custom but not the law in Canandaigua, N.Y., between 1790 and 1800.

Q. "The actress Liv Ullmann is Swedish, no?"
A. No, no, a thousand times no, cries Liv. She says she's Norwegian. "My father was a civil engineer... he and mama happened to be in Japan when I was manufactured."

How many of the drivers that pass you in the opposite lane of the freeway can be rightly described as drunk? That's what the U.S. Department of Transportation wanted to know. A study of the matter, combined with its statistics that one out of every 50 should be so labeled. In one hour's driving time along a busy thoroughfare, they concluded, you can expect to pass one drunken driver every two minutes. Remarkable. If true, Address mail to L.M. Boyd, P.O. Scout volunteers win silver beaver tributes

TWIN FALLS — Five silver beaver awards, the highest honor given volunteers in the Boy Scout program, were presented in the annual Snake River Area Council award banquet.

The banquet was held last Thursday in the Holiday Inn with Jordan Beckstead, Twin Falls, council treasurer, as master of ceremonies.

Winning the silver beaver awards for outstanding service in 1975 were Roy T. Roper, and Stanley Z. Snow, both Twin Falls; John Wilson, Buhl; Margaret Smith, Rupert, and Robert Rowe, Filer.

Roper is Snake River council administrative vice president and was honored for his work on the council executive board and his tireless effort to assist in financing the council operation.

Long-time successful scoutmaster and scouting supporter.

The annual scouters recognition banquet was attended by 250 scouting leaders from all parts of the council which includes Twin Falls, Gooding, Jerome, Lincoln, Blaine, Cassia and Minidoka counties.

Warren Felton, Boise, Idaho deputy attorney general, was principal speaker for the event. He has a background in scouting in addition to his career in law. He was a Boy Scout, Explorer adviser and Sea Scout skipper.

In addition to the silver beaver awards, key leader awards were presented. These awards are the highest given by a local district or subdivision of the council. Five scouting leaders were selected for the awards.

Winners were:

- Edward Berg, Twin Falls, for outstanding work in Cub Scouting, including Cub Scout Olympic chairman and Falls District Scout-O-Hama and Council Paw Wow chairman.
- Jim Jones, Filer, for his work as district chairman for the Northside district.
- Val Parke, Halley, for his work as district chairman for the Wood River district.
- Bert Lindger, Burley, for his work in scout advancement, especially the successful "Cassia" district "Merit Badge Schools."
- Harold Short, Rupert, for his work as Minidoka district

Newly appointed council scout executive, Del Hanks, was introduced to the scout leaders. Elvis Cain presented the annual president's report. He also presented two special "president's awards" to Cloyd Taylor, Burley, and Ross Hunsaker, Rupert. Taylor was a member of the council executive board and assisted in financial undertakings in the Burley area. Hunsaker organized and directed the "major memberships" phase of the council finance program.

Ron Thorne and Walt Thueson, Jerome, were in charge of the banquet ceremonies.

Britain's overrun with lions

LONDON (UPI) — Britain is overrun with lions. There are so many that most of the country's lionesses are on the pill.

"There is a glut of cubs, no doubt about it," said an official at Windsor Safari Park.

"It's gotten so you can hardly give one away to what I would call a legitimate market."

A less legitimate market has sprung up in suburban streets and city apartments far from the lions' normal jungle haunts. The British are keeping them as household pets.

A recent advertisement in a London newspaper offering "magnificent 9-week-old lame lion cubs" for $250 each drew 20 replies.

"I take my lion to the pub," said a suburban Londoner on a BBC program. "I'm stopped by children, old people, young people. You've no idea how much pleasure he gives."

The pleasure is strictly temporary. Lions grow fast. They do not stay lame long. These facts have responsible animal men worried.

"There have been one or two minor incidents, but luckily nothing serious has happened yet," the Windsor spokesman said. "But I imagine it's only a question of time before someone is hurt quite badly."

It almost happened last year in a Midlands industrial town. A visitor to a suburban house checked at the "Beware of the Lion" sign — obviously a joke — and pushed open the gate. A lion charged the full length of its chain and knocked him flat. Police took no action because, they said, the lion was not loose and the visitor had been warned.

"I'm constantly being consulted by people who have been sold cubs at fancy prices," said David Taylor, a veterinarian who treats animals at Windsor and several other zoos.

Volunteers offer free income tax assistance

TWIN FALLS — Free federal income tax assistance is being offered by volunteers in the Maple Valley area under the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program.

In Twin Falls, assistance will be available every Saturday, Feb. 7 through April 10 from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. at the YM-YWCA at room 3. Tax assistance will also be offered from 1 to 4:30 p.m. each Tuesday from Feb. 10 through April 11 at room 206, Shields Building, College of Southern Idaho.

Assistance will also be offered at the Burley Post Office from 10:5 p.m. each Monday from Feb. 9 through April 12; at the Buhl West End Senior Citizens Center from 3 to 5 p.m. each Thursday, Feb. 12 through April 15; by appointment — Monday through Friday until April 12 by calling J. Lois Hammmond, 334-5624, for Jerome — residents by appointment — on Mondays and Tuesdays through April 14 by calling Debbie Veator, 934-4105 between 1 and 5 p.m. for Gooding residents.

Taxpayers wishing to use the free assistance should bring the tax packages they received in the mail and a record of income and deductions, including W-2 forms and statements of interest and dividends. The assistance is offered by Internal Revenue Service volunteers' audits for taxpayers having fairly simple returns to file.

Valley comment

QUESTION: Which do you think is more damaging to the national defense—the CIA or the CIA investigations and why?

Diane Ronayne, Twin Falls:

The CIA, definitely. The investigations are revealing many things that must be revealed in order to preserve our American civil liberties. These things should be known by the public.

Doc Ainsworth, Twin Falls:

The investigations. I don't think it's necessary to put out the information the way we are doing it. There are some things which are damaging if they are made known to everyone in general.

Nona Young, Abilene:

In my personal opinion, the investigations are worse. They are blowing things up out of proportion. They (the investigating committee members) act as though these things have never been done by anyone else.

Cheryl Howard, Kimberly:

I really don't know that much about it. I haven't paid very much attention to the whole situation.

Vera Ivie, Twin Falls:

The investigations. I feel they are exposing too much. We do nothing about spies from other countries so—why—should—we—do anything about our own?

Elmer Hagerty, Twin Falls:

I have no argument at all with the investigations. They are good, but some of leaks which have come from the committee members are "damaging." Some of these things should not be made public as this compromises our position.

Floyd Lilly, Twin Falls:

I'd say the investigations. It's necessary to have the CIA and it seems to me they should be able to control it without an open investigation at this point.

Travis Freeman, Twin Falls:

The CIA. They are a bunch of dummies.

Cancer clinics prove valuable

HOUSTON (UPI) — Women who have been taking advantage of breast cancer detection centers even if they have not experienced obvious trouble signs often receive diagnosis which save their lives.

Dr. Benjamin Byrd, president of the American Cancer Society, said the society and the National Cancer Institute currently have 27 diagnostic centers around the country in which women can get the latest information and tests.

"The projects are discovering more than six cancers per 1,000 women, but most importantly, they find that 77 per cent of these women have negative axillary lymph nodes at the time of surgery," Byrd said.

Negative axillary lymph nodes means the cancer has not evolved or spread to lymph nodes near the armpits.

Byrd, in Houston for the start of the society's 1976 national crusade, said the ACS planned to fund $109.5 million in cancer programs this year, including $4.3 million to improve personnel.

A specialist in breast cancer at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., Byrd said latest research trends involved a combination of surgery and chemotherapy in treating women, whereas in the past either one of the other was used.

Breast cancer is the leading site of cancer in females and death among women.

"We are seeing a great many types of breast cancer and there are many procedures," he said.

"There is an increasing incidence of breast cancer," Byrd said. "The single biggest risk factor is age, because we have an aging population."

Byrd said the incidence of breast cancer worldwide was significant in the 40-44 age group, but in Western Europe and America breast cancer was found also in women over 55. In the older group, the incidence was 100 per cent more than in undeveloped nations.

Boy doll achieves 'realism' level

HAWTHORNE, Calif. (UPI) — Mattel Toy Co.'s "Baby Brother Tender Love" has achieved a new level in realism — so much so that television advertising is proving a problem.

"The problem is that 'Baby Brother' is correct to the last detail, from his soft hair to what's hidden beneath the shorts which enables him to wet his pants.

"The doll, produced by a subsidiary of dollbuyers' requests, comes in two versions — a fleshy "pink" blond and a chocolate, dark-haired model — and will be "discreetly" packaged, according to Mattel spokesman.

"There will be a fully printed disclosure outside the package so parents won't be surprised when their child opens the box," said Mattel's Joel Rubenstein.

Consumer acceptance is no problem, says Rubenstein. Marketing is something else. He said "TV codes won't even let us show a doll's bare bottom, much less this. We will have to focus on a significant print campaign aimed at mothers, more than a million little girls receive Skipper's Christmas," according to Rubenstein.

"The networks have to adhere to strict regulations that prevent us from fully disclosing what Baby Brother has to offer.

"We are treating this in a very serious way. We have established that there is a market, a demand for a male doll that is correct to the last detail."

"The packaging shows a nude Baby Brother with his privates discreetly shrouded, but discernable. Also prominently displayed is a description of what may be found under the shorts inside."

"The reaction has been 'It's about time' — Rubenstein said.

"We tested consumer acceptance in four major cities and children and mothers preferred Baby Brother 4 to 1 over other dolls. We have had enough letters requesting a baby boy doll to call attention to the need for the doll."

"For reasons I cannot explain, we have had no requests for a anatomically correct female doll. Generally, I guess, dolls are perceived as girls and there has been no need for a female doll with all the parts."

But Mattel introduced the highly successful "Growing-Up-With-Skipper" doll last year with blossoming bosoms and an accentuated posterior.

More than a million little girls receive Skipper's Christmas," according to Rubenstein.

IS "EVERYBODY'S FAVORITE CITY" YOURS?

Wary Salsbury

The hills of San Francisco rising out of the bay dotted with sailing junks is reminiscent of Hong Kong. Wherever you look there are sights and sounds of many foreign cities. Union Square with Commodore DeWey's statue, brilliant flower beds circled by fine stores and hotels resembles Paris' Place Vendôme. The 75-year-old Ferry Building at foot of Market St. was modelled after Giralda Tower in Seville, Spain. There in Chinatown are the 15 million dollar Japanese Center; Little Italy; the Marina; and Fisherman's Wharf looking like the Mediterranean villages of Portofino or St. Tropez. 40 Cattle cars, over 100 years old, are still in use. The faces of people who road 25 to 30 years in a 1940's car are everywhere. In restaurants serving the greatest variety of around-the-world cuisine, could be captured railways of the Swiss Alps. You are not on a cruise around the world, you are merely in "The City."

Considering it is only two hours from Magic Valley, the greatest place on earth, the experience of San Francisco should be appreciated often. A daily Highway Patrol flight. Sixteen costs $100 round trip. The hills and bay furnish scenic automobile continuing resulting in year round springtime. A long walk in San Francisco could well fit that epiphany of vacation progress for yourself right now! Visit Fisherman's Wharf, Ghirardelli Square and the famous Cannery. For 1 1/2 hours in the $3.25, sail under Golden Gate and Oakland Bay Bridges watch the seals and listening to the history of the bay and the city. Or take the "Trolley" for a great seafood lunch and a few hours shopping in quaint shops.

The brand new Bay Area Rapid Train (BART) will take you, in minutes to Oakland and other East and North Bay cities. Entertainment in San Francisco is dazzling: chic discotheques; superstar performances; Symphony, Opera and Ballet; and Pro Ball Classics. You choose, you're a doctor, it's sensational, exhilarating and just like magic!

Marilyn Monroe legend queried

DALLAS (UPI) — An amateur genealogist says new information about Marilyn Monroe's father disproves the claim she was illegitimate.

According to James P. Cummings of Irving, Tex., the father of the 1950's movie sex symbol was not an elusive, unidentified figure but was Martin Edward Mortensen of Alameda, Calif.

Mortensen's name is familiar in Hollywood legends about the late actress, Cummings, an accountant who dips through public records in his spare time, says he can prove Mortensen existed and was her father.

One Monroe legend held that film makers promoted the Mortensen paternity theory to dispute reports of her illegitimacy. The legend says Mortensen, a native of Norway, was married briefly to her mother, Gladys Pearl.

Monroe, a film processor.

Mortensen, the studio publicist, said, died in an Ohio motorcycle accident before his daughter's birth.

"Miss Monroe's marriage certificate to baseball great Joe DiMaggio named her father as Edward Mortensen and her mother as Gladys Monroe, but the controversy never quieted.

Cummings says Miss Monroe's mother was Gladys Pearl Monroe, daughter of a couple who lived briefly in Chihuahua de Diaz, Mexico. The family moved to Los Angeles area in the early 1900s.

According to a California marriage license, Gladys married John Baker, owner of a concession stand at Santa Monica pier, on May 17, 1917. The couple later was divorced.

This much agrees with the legend.

because you're my age you have to keep up and sit in a rocking chair or play shuffleboard?" she asked.

"Not me."

"Along with my bookings are coming, and they are. I want to keep going. I want to do some summer theater, concert and symphony work. I'm going into the cosmetics business for women over 40. I have marvelous plans," said the woman who was born Hildegarde Loretta Stein in Adel, a little village north of here.

"I just drive me crazy to hear old people say how old they are getting," she said. "If you think old, you are old. If you think useful, you will stay useful."

Of course, the wrinkles come, she said. But a daily regimen of skin-care and stretching exercises help her keep a trim figure.

Even after 50 years of entertaining, said, she confesses to getting terrible attacks of butterflies before every opening — and the feeling lasts about a half an hour.

"I just hate it, but I can't help it," she said. Maybe her well known handkerchiefs could be considered my security blanket."

She readily admits that she knows how to sell a song much like another well known Milwaukeean Liberace. She said she didn't know him here, but then laughs. "He stole a couple of my tricks," she says.

"We both have motley suits and gimmicks. I have gloves and roses and handkerchiefs and he has candelabras and flashy clothes. He made me a satin blouse once with a piano here and a keyboard there and it even had a hand with a ring on it. I didn't wear it, but I always treasure it."

She said she has tried to stay versatile, singing her old favorites, but mixing in pop, jazz and the old standards.

She has never married.

"I came close three times," she says. "Two of my boys died, but I'm kind of fickle anyway. And in this business, new boys, new engagements."

"My only goal," she said, "is to think ahead and not think about what I did last year and what I can do this year. I interview me again when I'm 80."

Canine brucellosis widespread, harmful disease

By LINDA MERRY DV
Question: Our little Sheltie had two litters which she aborted. We were desperate to get a puppy, so I sent her to a veterinary school. They said she had "Canine Brucellosis" and put her on antibiotics for a very long time.

We finally have three healthy puppies and are, of course, delighted. But we still don't really understand this disease. Is there any new information about it or can you explain in words we can get?

Answer: I can try. Canine brucellosis is an infectious disease which causes widespread outbreaks of abortion and dead or weak puppies in dogs. It is contagious to human beings and there's more of it around than we ever dreamed a year or two ago.

Its signs in both dogs and people are so vague that it was barely recognized until now testing methods were recently developed.

Female dogs infected with the bacteria, Brucella canis, usually abort around the 55th to 60th day of pregnancy. The aborted fetuses are heavily contaminated with the organism, as are the fluids and post partum discharges.

Because dogs normally eat the fetal membranes and lick all discharges, the possibility for spread is tremendous — both for other dogs and in humans.

There is increased danger in kennels and shelters, but an outbreak can just as easily start in the backyard of the best neighborhood. Male dogs that are infected carry the bacteria in their urine and semen. They can either pass or pick up the organism during breeding. From there, one infected male used for breeding purposes, or just freeloancing, could spread the disease to many females in a great many areas.

Artificial insemination is no answer, either, since the organism will still be carried in the affected semen.

We don't know just how many of our dogs have brucellosis. Some studies have shown as much as a 25 per cent incidence. Others show the incidence at about 9 to 10 per cent. I'd be more prone to believe the lower figure and that probably varies from one area to the next.

Medical doctors aren't sure of human incidence either. More cases will undoubtedly be picked up as physicians test and look for the disease. One case recently reported in the AMA Journal involved a patient whose symptoms resembled infectious mononucleosis. In reality, he had a high titer to B. canis and positive blood cultures. In another case, a man working on the plumbing and air conditioning of a home crawled under the house where the dog stayed and contacted brucellosis. The public health veterinarian in Tennessee has documented 13 cases of human infection.

Cleanliness and awareness are our two best weapons against this disease. Male dogs who constantly lick the scrotum, have abnormal sized testicles, poor semen quality, or are infertile are suspect.

A female that aborts or partially aborts at the end of pregnancy should be checked. Likewise, a bitch that whelps dead pups or whose pups die within a few days—has a prolonged vaginal discharge, or is infertile is a brucellosis candidate. Veterinarians can and should incorporate the Brucella canis diagnostic test as part of routine exams. Check your paper, particularly for dogs of breeding age.

Owners can help by separating mother dogs from the rest of the general dog population and cleaning up and disinfecting thoroughly after whelping. If the dog aborts, rubber gloves should be worn in the cleanup. The dog should then be tested, treated, and/or removed from breeding.

Musicians write song about Nixon

Mike Royko

BY MIKE ROYKO

Chicago Daily News

Fans of Richard Nixon who wonder how he is spending his time in San Clemente might be interested in this report.

Mr. Nixon recently granted a visit to a group of Nashville music people who have made a record about him.

They say he was pleased by the song. It is called "He Played a Yo Yo in Nashville."

The title and lyrics are inspired by a trip Mr. Nixon made to Nashville in 1974, to attend the opening of a new building for the Grand Ole Opry. In a light-hearted moment, then-President Nixon played a yo yo on stage.

After Mr. Nixon withdrew from public life, the yo yo incident stuck in the mind of Harley Hatcher, president of Artists of America, a recording company.

He wanted to write a song that would capture that unique moment, when a president, with the jargon of Watergate swirling about him, still found a moment to play with a yo yo.

The song was written and recorded. But Hatcher and the singer — Sean Martin Downey, son of the legendary Irish tenor — were concerned that Mr. Nixon might take offense.

They wanted him to know that it was not meant to be disrespectful. To the contrary, he believed that it showed a lighter side of his character that was usually lost in his serious manner.

As a show of respect, one of Mr. Nixon's aides, who is personal friend, and was invited to visit San Clemente.

Downey and Hatcher arrived, bearing a stereo set as a gift, and were taken to Mr. Nixon's executive office.

There they had a half-hour chat and presented Mr. Nixon with a copy of the record and lyrics.

The chorus of the song is done in a brisk rinky-tink piano style and goes like this:

He played a yo yo in Nashville.
He played it at the Grand Ole Opry.
He played a yo yo in Nashville.
Oh, he had lots of friends in Tennessee.

Then, the rest of the song, slower, and more heart-felt, goes this way:

It was in the spring of 1974
And there was trouble brewing in the land.

The leader of a mighty nation
Had circled his wagons to take a stand.
He hit the road to tell his story
Of what he knew and what he didn't know.
He stayed a while down in Tennessee
And played on an old piano and a yo yo.

(repeat chorus)
The people cheered and made him smile
He knew they wanted to believe
He spoke the truth and it'll be over soon.
You know he's a fighter, he'll never leave.
But deep inside he felt the burning fire
And knew he would never be free.
Oh how he'll long for the cheering crowds
And the happy days of Nashville, Tennessee.

(repeat chorus)
The sun is shining brightly in California
A lonely man sits by the peaceful shore.
His famous words still echo through his brain:
You won't have me to kick around any more.

Hatcher and Downey were thrilled to find that the former President liked "He Played a Yo Yo in Nashville." In fact, they said he told them that the beautiful thing about country music is that it could tell a story the way it really happened.

Before leaving, they gave him the stereo set and he gave them some golf balls upon which were stamped the Presidential Seal.

And to Mrs. Downey, Mr. Nixon gave a charm bracelet. On one side of the bracelet was the Presidential Seal. Engraved on the other side was the name Gerald R. Ford. Downey says that since the visit, an aide to Mr. Nixon has told him that hearing "He Played a Yo Yo in Nashville" has lifted Mr. Nixon's spirit.

Meanwhile, Hatcher and Downey have been on a nationwide promotional tour of the record and say it is soaring to the tops of the country hit list and is doing remarkably well in the general pop lists.

The say the Nixon-Yo Yo song appears to have the potential to be as great a smash as "Conway."

If it becomes that popular, it could have a permanent impact upon Mr. Nixon's place in our history: there is now a President who is now remembered as "The Great Emancipator," "The Father of His Country," "The Sage of Monticello," "Old Hickory" and "The Tough Rider."

Will Nixon be remembered as "The Yo Yo Player"?

The wrinkles in the face have been earned... one at a time. The stubborn one around the lips that has deepened with every "No!" The thin ones on the forehead that mysteriously appeared when the first child was born.

Her eyes are protected by glass now, but you can still see the perma-crinkles around them. Young eyes are darting and fleeing. These are mature eyes that reflect a lifetime. Eyes that have glinted with pride, filled with tears of sorrow, snapped in anger, and burned from loss of sleep.

They are now direct and penetrating and look at you when you speak.

The bulges are classic. They developed slowly from babies too sleepy to walk who had to be carried home from Grandma's grocery bags lugged from the car, ashes carried out of the basement while her husband was at war. Now, they are fed by a minimum of activity, a full refrigerator and TV bends.

The legs are still slinky, but the step is slower. They ran too often for the bus, stood a little too long when she "clerked" in the department store, got beat up while teaching her daughter how to ride a two-wheeler. They're purple at the back of the knees.

The hands? They're small and veined and have been dunked, dipped, shock, patted, wrung, caught in doors, splintered, dyed, bitter and blistered, but you can't help but be impressed when you see the ring finger that has shrunk, from years of wearing the same wedding ring. It takes time — and much more — to diminish a finger.

I looked at mother long and hard the other day and said, "Mom, I have never seen you so beautiful."

"I work at it," she snapped.

Newsman paper hat undergoes changes

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — It will cause a ripple in the high fashion world, but there have been some subtle changes in one of the oldest and most stylish in the country — the traditional pressman's paper.

The square paper hat, which has become a sort of nickname for the newspaper backshop workers, is a folded paper concoction traditionally made out of newsprint. It is cheap and functional, designed to be worn as protection against ink, grease, oil and paper lint which otherwise might get in one's hair or rest atop a bald pate.

In the old days in many backshops, the hat was used from papers already printed and either rejected or returned. By erasing your neck, you might be able to glean a few notes of interest from yesterday's news.

But today, at least in Minneapolis' newspaper row, the hats are made of virgin newsprint. And that's not the only quiet change. Some of the square hats now are being made of craft paper, a sort of wrapping paper.

And sacrifice of seerleese, some hats are held together by Scotch or masking tape.

To make a paper square hat you need a newspaper sized sheet of paper, and then make at least 10 complicated folds. (From a diagram furnished by the promotion department of the newspaper, we reproduced part of it.)

With modern printing and plant equipment, particularly air purifiers, the paper hats are going out of fashion.

"Not many of them wear 'em any more," said Cecil Hempler, who has been in the malling room of the Minneapolis Star-Tribune for 40 years. "But you still see them on the old timers."

Greenhouse gardening booms as nation hobby

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

BUILD A GREENHOUSE

In our recent book on greenhouse gardening, we wrote: "A famous British doctor said, 'No man is really happy or safe without a hobby.'"

"There isn't a better hobby than greenhouse gardening. In fact, the greenhouse boom is on and home owners are building more greenhouses than ever before.

—Just a short while ago the "only ones" who owned greenhouses were the rich, nurserymen and certain botanical freaks. Now, anyone handy with a saw, hammer and screwdriver can erect some type of a 'greenhouse.

"A greenhouse is a great tranquillizer. In a world filled with tension and frustration, you can enter your greenhouse, close the door and shut yourself away from all the world's problems.

"There's something soothing about firming seeds in the soil and tending plants under glass while raindrops fall against the panes.

Before you spring for any greenhouse, study catalogs or look at your neighbor's structure. The framework of a prefabricated greenhouse can be made out of aluminum, steel or redwood or cedar.

Redwood advocates say their greenhouses lose less heat; they claim that aluminum transmits heat 1400 times faster than redwood. We have both types and like both.

You might wonder which is best: glass or fiberglass. For permanence, we prefer glass, but fiberglass has several advantages. It is 4.41 times as efficient as glass and 70.8 times as efficient as polyethylene film in retaining heat.

Large fiberglass panels mean few joints through which heat can escape, far less than in a house that has several windows, each with a few panes of glass.

The corrugations in some types of fiberglass also make for a very tight fit at lap joints. Fiberglass greenhouses are so airtight that extra care is needed for venting to prevent excessive condensation of moisture.

plant foods galore — anything to push the plants along faster and faster.

These plants, arrive at their destinations, their roots are allowed to dry out, burning may result. That's why it's a good idea for sellers of plants to warn their customers that very little if any fertilizer is needed for a least three months.

We feel that the application rate on most commercial fertilizers is excessive. Some people think that it's not doing well, a feeding and that's about like making a sick man eat bacon and eggs.

It's also a good idea not to use cold water on plants. Some foliage plants will die if the temperature of the water is as low as 45 degrees F., and quite often the tap water is that cold, or even lower in winter.

Misting or spraying leaves may keep plants cool, but we're beginning to wonder if this practice isn't bringing on some bacterial and fungal problems.

SHOULD PLANTS BE LABELED?

We received a letter from the Federal Trade Commission which conducted an investigation of growers, wholesalers and retailers of indoor and outdoor plants to determine if they are in violation of law by failing to provide identity, care and toxicity information with the plants they sell.

In short, how do we feel about the idea of providing consumers with information about plants they buy?

1. We are in favor of plants being labeled with the scientific name and a common name. With the proper botanical name, a customer can learn anything he wishes to know because the scientific name is the same, whether you live in Ottawa, Canada or in Santa Fe, N.M.

2. Cultural information in capsule form could be helpful. For example, "avoid direct sun" or "avoid over-watering."

3. We don't believe in putting toxicity information on labels, unless there is proof. There's too much misinformation passed along concerning plant toxicity, by ignorant or nervous gardeners, or, namely the poison sellers that pops up each year. Some plants such as the flashy (and fiery) hot pepper sold at Christmas time could carry a caution note as many children have had their eyes burned from it after handling.

What we don't need is hysteria. However, plants proven to be toxic should be labeled. Labels aren't going to keep children from eating plants and, for nearly the same reason, scare that pops up each year.

Parents should start at an early age to teach kids that plants are a no-no, starting at one year. We warn them against eating show plants, thumbsticks and cactuses. Why not preach the same warning regarding plants?

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. R. OF Twin Falls:
"Many times we have seen your reference to using epsom salts for tomato plants and for growing melons. Since we had poor luck last year, we'd like to try using epsom salts and hope you can tell us how."

Several growers are happy about the results they get from using epsom salts on tomatoes as well as melons. They tell us that plants produce larger fruit without loss of flavor. For tomatoes, you can prepare the hole by adding and mixing about a half cup of epsom salts with the soil in the bottom before planting the plant.

About a month later an equal amount of epsom salts should be worked into the soil in a circle about six inches away from the base.

Tasteless melons may be due to discolor, or a lack of magnesium or boron in the soil, and in such cases epsom salts or borax. Melon growers have found that melons can be corrected by giving them a dose of epsom salts and ordinary household borax.

We've suggested mixing six and one-half tablespoons of the borax to five gallons of spray-water and applying it when vines start to run and again when the fruit is the size of a golf ball.

Gardeners who have used this mixture on tomatoes, cucumbers and other vegetables tell us it improves the quality of their crops. Keep in mind that nothing takes the place of heat for germination... 75 to 80 degrees, day and night.

Place three to four seeds in each container and cover lightly with peat, vermiculite or perlite. Never let any seed dry out during the germination period. One drying out can be a disaster.

G. F. of Halcy:
"Do you believe in planting by the moon? My neighbor does and he was wonderful luck."

Some people swear by it. Others think it's a hoax. Colin Bewcock, a gardener in Wollaston, England, grew a 25-pound lettuce, 26-pound cabbage and a 35-pound celery by planting by the moon. He also had great quantities of plant food and (his plant inadvertently reports the 1975 Guinness Book of World Records.

green thumb

WATER AND HOUSE PLANTS:

Often, when you buy a plant from a supermarket, florist or garden center, the advice is to "let the plants dry out between waterings."

We are beginning to disagree with the theory of letting plants dry out between waterings. When certain foliage plants are obtained from the south, they should be, though watered to remove the high soluble salt content, but should never stand in water.

These southern plants may have been fed 10 times the fertilizer salts needed to get fast growth. Growers, to keep up with the green plant boom, use extra heat, water and

c. They are definitely in favor of dating a lot of different people.

Sixteen per cent (more than their peers) feel their friends "iron" on the idea of dating different people. In addition, nearly half of both boys and girls think their friends prefer going steady, even if they don't disapprove of dating different people.

"There is pressure to go steady," says 18-year-old Diane Stelgerwald of Whitehall, Pa. "If it's Saturday night and you're not with someone, you're considered out of it. When kids go out now, they get serious right away."

"Kids kind of look up to you if you're going around with somebody," says Phil Gregory, 14, of Manhattan Beach, Calif. "They see you're popular with somebody. The you kind of feel better about yourself, too." The result, says Phil, is that "60 per cent, maybe 70 per cent" of his classmates have a steady boyfriend or girlfriend.

Cathy Cole, a 17-year-old senior of Bogota, N.J., says it isn't simply peer pressure that makes her go steady. "I couldn't take a situation of dating a lot of people. I'd feel uncomfortable. It would bother me to know why I'm with with some other girl the day before," she says.

Going steady has even been accepted by her family. Cathy says, "My mother used to be after me all the time. 'Don't you wish you could go out with different people?' she'd ask... or 'Don't you get tired of going out with the same guy all the time?' She wanted me to get to know a lot of people, but now she's saying I'm going steady. She doesn't have to worry about me as much."

While the pressure to pair up is high, there are some signs that going steady is far more casual than it was 20 years ago. In the 1950s, when the parents of today's teenagers were teenagers themselves, going steady was considered a fairly serious relationship that might lead to marriage. Today, says Mark Sherrill, 16, a 10-year-old classmate of Cathy, the relationships are more casual.

"In this school, it's couples mostly. They go out together a few weeks or a few months, then they break up." Mark himself is going steady but explains that it probably won't last. "I plan to go away to college. She wants to stay around here."

While the nature of going steady may be changing, the symbols aren't. The most common sign of tightness is still the exchanged high school ring. Some schools have decorative key pins that students exchange, and J. D. bracelets are also popular. But wearing identical clothing or wearing a boy's jacket — practices that were popular in the 40s and 50s — are rarely used anymore.

There are, of course, many kids who don't want any part of a steady relationship. Sherrill Ledwahl, 16, of Grenora, N. D., recently broke up with her steady because, she says, "I'd rather go out with more people. It's more fun." And a 17-year-old youth from Houston says: "I don't care what anybody says or thinks. I'm having my fun right now. I'm going out every chance I get with every girl I get a chance to. I can get tired down later."

Teens feel 'go steady' pressure

By Scholastic Magazines Editors

A majority of teenagers recently surveyed by Scholastic Magazines feels strong peer pressure to go steady — although many say their friends say no.

In a poll of 38,000 juniors and senior high school students, 49 per cent of the respondents say that their friends "favor going steady," and 16 per cent think their friends actually disapprove of "playing the field." This totals nearly a two-thirds majority of respondents who consider going steady the more socially acceptable practice.

Yet when asked for their own preferences, 38 per cent prefer dating different people, and 24 per cent aren't sure — a total of nearly two-thirds who are less than enthusiastic about going steady themselves.

For some students, this peer pressure to pair off creates such situations as that facing Mary Cousins of Elbert, Ga. She is now going steady but would rather not be. "I have no choice in the matter," says Mary. "One person asks you out, and right away you're going steady with him. No one else will ask you out."

"I'd change it if I could. But that's just the way it is." Teenagers in general are known to be highly influenced by the views of their friends, or at least that they think their friends think. And according to the results of the poll, this pressure to conform seems to be particularly the case with dating.

Recently, Scholastic asked: "During the late 1950s, teens tended to go steady rather than date a lot of people. Check the statement that best describes your personal feelings about this."

| | Boys | Girls | Total |
|--|----------|----------|----------|

| b. I would prefer going steady. | 40 | 35 | 38 |

CURIOSITY: a greater percentage of girls than boys see danger in date different people. Forty-one per cent of the girls say they like to date more than one person, while only 36 per cent of the boys say they do; 40 per cent of the boys say they'd prefer going steady, compared to 35 per cent of the girls who say they would.

Mary Cousins suggests a reason for this difference between the sexes: "The boys are afraid of being turned down when they ask for a date. If they have a steady, they avoid the whole problem of having to ask."

Scholastic then asked: "Check the statement below that best describes how your friends feel about dating practices."

TWIN FALLS — Some people equate square dancing with barn-raising, country schools and other outdated fragments of pioneer existence long since gone from the American scene.

But square dancing is alive and well in Magic Valley. Backers claim the dancing provides mental and physical exercise and in recent years has become one of the most popular current activities in the United States.

A bill is before Congress that would make square dancing the national dance, according to Wait Anthis, Kimberly, president of the Magic Valley Square Dance Association.

The popularity of square dancing surfaced recently when two Twin Falls clubs sponsored a number of the Twin Falls Armory. The event attracted 25 squares, or 200 dancers, and an estimated 100 observers, according to Mary Goldmann, publicity chairman for the Square Rounders Club. Dancers came from Nevada, Boise, Pocatello and Washington.

Square dancing first gained general popularity in the early '50s and at one time 20 individual square dancing clubs existed in this area.

Anthis says popularity waned during the '60s with many local callers either moving away or quitting. Twin Falls did not have a caller in the area association for some time.

Two local clubs, both comparatively new, are the Square Rounders which meets at Bicket School with Chet and Huelbe-Hundley as callers, and the Magic Squares whose members dance at the YM-YWCA building with Anthis as teacher and caller.

The oldest of the six Magic Valley clubs, the Melody Squares at Gooding, recently observed its 25th anniversary. Myron Bliss, who started the club, is still the caller.

The other valley clubs include the River Reelers, Rupert, with Gerald Hurst as caller; Buttons and Bows, Jerome, with Wilford Allison as caller, and the Buckaroo Squares, Burley, where Wait Baker is caller.

Like most recreational groups, square dancers are organized from the local to the national level.

The Magic Valley association is one of five such associations in the state, Anthis says.

Every state has a federation of square dance associations topped by the national federation. Anthis estimates there are 40 clubs in Idaho belonging to the five regional associations, and probably some other clubs which do not belong.

One such club in Magic Valley is a new group started at Pocatello with Ken Sams as caller.

The national and state organizations sponsor huge jamborees which draw thousands of enthusiasts each year. Anthis estimates 10,000 to 15,000 persons attended the national event this past year.

The state gathering is planned for Boise in June and the national jamboree, scheduled for the third week in June, is planned for Anaheim, Calif. The Magic Valley Association holds about four special dances yearly with outside callers.

Although generally believed to have originated in pioneer America, square dancing is enjoyed in many other countries, Anthis says. He said the activity is popular in Japan, for example, even though the calls are usually in English.

The practice of having four couples facing each other in a square, perform various patterns or figures as directed by a caller was developed during early pioneer days, but the history of the individual dance steps goes back centuries.

The round or couple dances which provide a chance for dancers to rest after the more energetic square dance numbers, are based on combinations of the waltz, two step and polka, folk dances whose ethnic roots stem from many European countries.

One of the biggest square dancing gatherings is held in Canada. More than 3,000 dancers spent four days at the resort town of Penticton dancing and participating in other lakeside recreation.

Somewhat is the network of communication between dance clubs throughout the US. Anthis said that it is possible for a vacationing couple coupling into most any town to call a local person named in a nationwide or state directory, and learn when the nearest dance is scheduled.

If the tourists feel like dancing they could attend and not feel at all out of place, even though they may be miles from their hometown club. The reason is that all the basic figures used in square dancing in the US were standardized back in the '50s.

However, Anthis says, although the basic figures remain the same, new "calls" are constantly being developed for square dancing with new patterns. "You're always learning."

More than 10 firms record new square dance music and calls. Popular music is used almost entirely now, another factor in erasing the old fashioned image of square dancing.

The top callers in the country, those who participate in the state and national events and make a living from their activity, are constantly recording new music, many with singing calls. Bob Baier, Houston, Tex., who called for the professionals in Twin Falls, is one of these professionals.

Square dancers make great claims for their favorite recreation. In addition to providing both mental and physical exercise, square dancing is one of the least expensive forms of entertainment. Where else can a couple dance all night and have refreshments, usually a potluck dinner, for $2.50?

This is the usual price for a local dance per couple, though admission to the larger association dances is around a dollar more.

Square dancers who are anxious to interest others in their activity and Anthis says lessons are offered in either square or round dancing by local clubs each fall. Anyone interested in learning should contact any of the callers or club officers.

Horsey and Vivian Lampe are presidents of the Square Rounders and Dell and John Brawley, Magic Squares, all Twin Falls; Del Rasmussen heads the River Reelers, Rupert; Vestal and Louise Adams, Buttons and Bows, Jerome, and Max Drake, Buckaroo Squares, Burley.

How about a treat?

Process server scores

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Process server Charles Tubbs has missed his mark only once in his 21-year career — the man he sought was found dead in a cemetery.

He has crushed posh parties in water-tie and tails, served papers virtually under white and posed as a postman and a Western Union messenger.

Tubbs, a 41-year-old fifth generation San Franciscan transplant to Minnesota, polished his image as one of the best in his business last week when he slipped legal papers into the uniform trunks of a high school basketball player at the end of a game between Brooklyn Center and Mahanood.

The writ was served on Perry Martin in a suit brought by Raymond Postels Jr., a machinist. Martin, a part-time model-bellboy, is accused of assaulting Postels with a shovel Oct. 19.

Tubbs waited until the basketball game was over — "I didn't want to spoil the game for him."

"Then I walked on the court, and I asked one of the players 'if he were Martin — I didn't have a program. He pointed to him, and I stuffed the paper in his trunks. In process serving all you have to do is touch a person with the paper."

Then all they broke loose. Martin's 15-year-old sister came out of the stands and started pounding on me.

PURSE-SNATCHING PIRATE...

The ghost of Blackbeard the pirate (PETER USTINOV) tries to steal money from the purse of Jo Anne Baker (SUZANNE PLESSETTE), to whom he is in love, while track coach Steve Walker (DEAN JONES) roasts a meat in this scene from "Blackbeard's Ghost." Walt Disney's swashbuckling comedy in color by Technicolor. Playing this week in Magic Valley.

DEAN JONES REMAINS LANDLOCKED FOR DISNEY'S "BLACKBEARD'S GHOST"

Dean Jones is a landlubber. People keep trying to put him on the water, but it's a hard, dry fact that he never makes it, once again proved in "Blackbeard's Ghost," Walt Disney's swashbuckling comedy set for re-release.

For example, Dean spent a four-year hitch in the Navy and not once climbed aboard ship. Most of his time was spent operating target drones for gunnery practice and participating in basic entertainment programs. After his discharge, he became famous as the lead in NBC-TV's "Ensign O'Toole" series — without water. Most of the show was filmed on a studio backlot. The only "waves" the Jones boy saw were actresses in military uniform.

Now, assailed by a seagoing spirit in "Blackbeard's Ghost," Jones is once again saddled to the shoreline as a frustrated track coach with a sad-sack team. There is a consolation prize, however, in the form of co-star Suzanne Pleshette who, although not a mermaid, is quite "see-worthy."

Filmed in color by Technicolor, "Blackbeard's Ghost" also stars Peter Ustinov. Robert Stevenson directed the "Bill Walsh-Don DaGradi" screenplay which is based on a novel by noted illustrator Ben Stahl. Walsh is co-producer of the Buena Vista re-release.

Special gift

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Dominican Sisters of the Sick-Poor decided to do something special for the celebration of an incoming sister taking her vows. It was a sandwich day and would have been proud of it.

"The seven-and-a-half-foot long sandwich, made from a single loaf of bread, was filled with 12 pounds of meat...three pounds of cheese, two heads of lettuce, a half-gallon of mayonnaise and various other ingredients.

"Super Huey" had its beginnings when the sisters called several Cincinnati bakers and eaters before finding one willing to make the stretch long sandwich they wanted.

It had to be delivered in a station wagon and carried in by two men.

"We've done a lot of people want something different, but never anything like this," said Huey Dyer, owner of Dyer's Catering, who gave his name to the sandwich.

Dyer's workers needed an hour-and-a-half to build the sandwich, which contained five pounds of ham, four pounds of bologna, three pounds of hard salami, plus the other ingredients and garnished by 11 olives — all for $45.

The long, long sandwich was more than enough.

"We had a couple in need of leftovers," said sister Monica McClain, supervisor of the sisters. The order provides nursing care for the elderly and poor.

Woman robbed 2 times

DENVER (UPI) — Maria Martinez, 82, painfully saved $300 twice from her monthly Social Security checks to visit her hometown in Mexico, but each time she was robbed. The latest robbery occurred last month, but Mrs. Martinez will be able to make her trip to Penjamo, Mexico, after all. And Mrs. Martinez, who left Penjamo in 1908 to come to Denver, will have spending money left over thanks to the generosity of persons throughout the country. Officials of the Denver bank said $277 had been sent to Mrs. Martinez, after newspapers printed articles detailing her plight.

LYLE WAGGONER
... the wrong exposure

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: What ever happened to the handsome couple who played husband and wife in that lion picture, "Born Free," about ten years ago? — I. N. Greeley, Colo.

A: They were Virginia McKenna and Bill Travers, who in real life have been married for 19 years. She was one of Britain's top stars at the time but slowed down a bit to raise four children and has now returned to the stage. Travers, a classical actor, has switched to producing nature films. We don't know what happened to Elsa, the lion.

Q: I've written everybody but can't get an answer to my question: Why was Lyle Waggoner dropped from the Carol Burnett TV show? — D. K. Lake, Charles, La.

A: He wasn't dropped. He quit because he wasn't getting enough to do of the kind of exposure he wanted on the show.

Q: It's so good to see Margaret Hamilton again even if it's just doing those Maxwell House coffee commercials on TV. Will she do any more movies? — J. D., Newark, N. J.

A: Hopefully so but right now the character actress is ill in a New York hospital.

Q: Has the mystery of Kung Fu star Bruce Lee's death ever been cleared up? — H. G., St. Louis, Mo.

A: Bruce Lee died a couple of years ago in the bedroom of actress Betty Ping Pei. One

PATRICIA NEAL
... still cool with Tessa version has it that the rugged actor took a lethal dose of pills after making love to Ms. Pei. But now Ms. Pei herself has made a film called "Lover" in which she claims to set what really happened. In the movie their relationship is depicted as platonic, out of respect for Lee's wife and children, and Bruce dies of natural causes. It's a magnificent bit of tough-house in the bedroom. Q: Where is this place in Brazil where they claim miraculous cures for drug addiction? — H. V., Cherry Hill, N. J.

A: There is a shrine in the Brazilian village of Porto das Caixas where miraculous cures have been reported since a day in 188 when real blood is said to have oozed from a statue of Christ in the local church.

Pilgrims come by bus daily and many claim to have been healed of cancer, paralysis and blindness. Recently the shrine has been visited by an increasing number of drug users as word has spread that the statue has miraculous powers to help the addicted. "It's the hub." Q: I've lost track of actor John Phillip Law, the gorgeous blond in that movie, "The Russians Are Coming." Where is he? — R. O., Macon, Ga.

... not all sweetness

A: "Law" is working in Rome in a movie right now. But you'd never recognize him. He's become a total vegetarian (mainly nuts and berries) and is a gaudy version of the winner he once was. Q: What is this about Hubert Humphrey having throat cancer? — C. D., Arlington, Va.

A: This malicious rumor becomes more rife everytime it's denied. But H. H. H. says it's definitely not so and when reporters Alex Cuckburn and Jim Ridgeway checked it out, they also came up with a negative. Since Humphrey was candid about his operation for a bladder tumor several years ago, he'd surely be candid about any serious illness now. We believe Humphrey is ok.

Q: "I understand" that Patricia Neal has been having trouble with her daughter, Tessa. Have they patched it up? — U. O., Ames, Iowa.

A: Things are still a bit chilly. Tessa, 18, left home hardly a year ago and has since been involved in at least four admitted love affairs, including one with Peter Sellers and has refused to stay in school.

Patricia, who once had a well-publicized, three-year affair with Gary Cooper, says that she is not against romance but thinks that Tessa's crowded schedule is beginning to look like promiscuously. And that scolds Patricia. Is too much of a good thing.

Q: I believe that Dr. David Reuben, the "Everything You Ever Wanted to Know About Sex" psychiatrist, used to treat some movie stars. Does he still have Hollywood people as patients? — J. G., Rumson, N. J.

A: Dr. Reuben, who has made a fortune from his various books, no longer practices psychiatry but concentrates solely on his writing. The doctor bought a house in Costa Rica and lives there now, with his wife and three children.

Q: How is Tony Curtis's career going, now that he's back in Hollywood from England? — M. L., Key West, Fla.

A: Tony got a big boost when he was chosen to play the part of Rodriguez in the upcoming film of Scott Fitzgerald's novel about Hollywood, "The Last Tycoon."

The character was added to the story by scriptwriter Harold Pinter, who invented a Latin-lover type film star who had grown up as a Jewish boy in the Bronx. Said director Elia Kazan to Curtis: "You are Rodriguez."

Q: What's happened to Michael Douglas since he and Brenda Vaccaro broke up? — J. T., Miami, Fla.

A: The actor who co-produced "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" is really happy with his freedom and film's success. He recently visited New York with a new 18-year-old girl friend and is now considering buying a house in Aspen, Colo. Why? Well, for one thing, the irresistible Jill St. John lives there.

Q: I understand that the marriage of Mia Farrow and Andre Previn is in some trouble. What's happening? — H. U., Ogden, Utah.

A: The glamorous couple who have five children (two adopted Viet orphans) recently experienced some problems but everything is okay now. It seems that after conducting a concert Andre needs someone to talk to in order to relieve his tensions, and he prefers a sympathetic woman.

Since Mia is of no party acting somewhere, he has had to enlist substitutes. Now that Mia understands, all is forgiven. Somehow, she had gotten the wrong idea about those late night tele-enters.

Q: Hugh O'Brian always seems to be out with a different girl. Why hasn't he ever married? — D. D., Ontario, Calif.

A: According to Hugh, 50, he has enough problems without taking on the additional difficulties of marriage.

He plans to remain a bachelor for keeps and told a reporter recently that he has formed a Marriage Anonymous organization whose members will rush to his side any hour of the day or night if he feels an urge to propose.

So if some smart lass doesn't cut his telephone line Hugh may remain free forever.

Q: My favorite character on the TV program "Maude" is that doctor from next door. I don't see why they don't use him more? — C. McC., Lewiston, Me.

DR. DAVID REUBEN
... writing, not shrinking

A: That actor, Conrad Bain, would agree with you. We hear he's straining at the old bit on the "Maude" show and if he doesn't get more scenes he may not renew his contract.

Bain is known to Maude audiences as a comedian but he has a fine reputation as a serious character actor too.

Q: Do the stars of "The Waltons" get along together as well off screen as they do on? — O. B., Birmingham, Ala.

A: When TV casts work together continually in long running shows, friendships usually develop. And "The Waltons" is no exception, in spite of its image of sweet reasonableness.

One problem is that Richard Thomas, John-Boy, likes it understood that he is the star of the show.

Recently, we hear, he showed his fangs when his shooting schedule was altered to allow another actor to meet an outside commitment, a routine practice.

Q: They are always showing addresses and telephone numbers on TV when I don't! I have a pencil handy. What can I do about it? — Z. T., South Bend, Ind.

A: You could take a memory course but a Japanese TV manufacturer may have a better solution.

The company will soon market TV sets with a storage tube added which will allow you, at the flick of a switch, to freeze the picture in a corner of the screen while the program continues uninterrupted over the rest of the area.

Besides addresses and telephone numbers you will be able to "hold" recipes, box scores or just close-ups of Rachel Welch.

Q: It seems as though Dean Martin's ex-wife, Jeanne, is reported to be going with a new man every week. Who's the latest? — C. A., Pine Bluff, Ark.

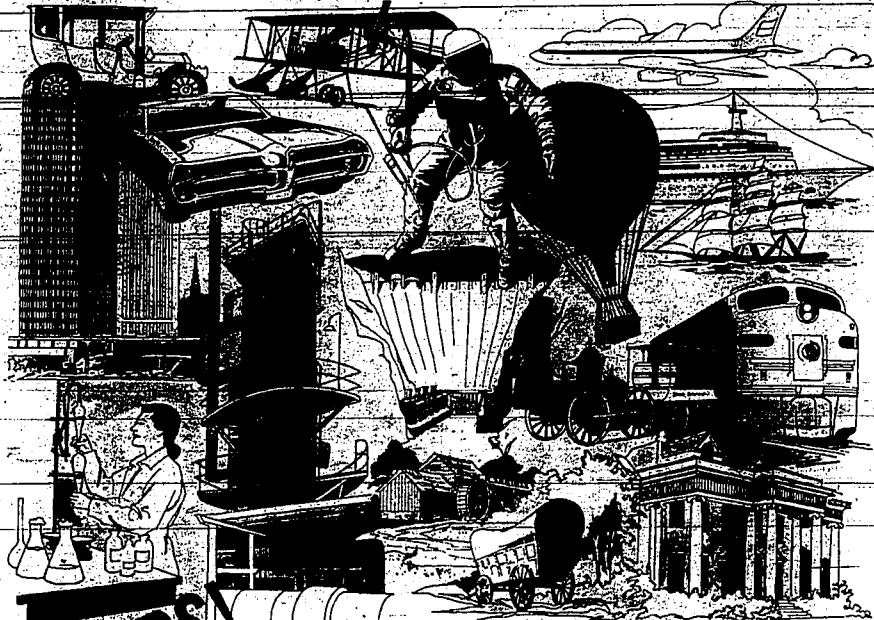

A: Jeanne's current escort is said to be actor Stuart Whitman. But there's more: Jeanne's son Dino, who is getting divorced from actress Olivia Hussey, is now being seen around with Whitman's ex-wife, Caroline.

That could mean that Caroline might have a mother-in-law, Jeanne, who would be... but why don't you work it out!
