

Regional airport exists only in blueprints, files

By GORDON JUDD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — On paper the plans for a regional airport in Magic Valley have looked good for years.

Enthusiastic talk of a major airport complex, complete with modern terminals and runways, served by the major airlines, with passengers from eight counties streaming through the gates, has been heard throughout the Magic Valley since the 1960s.

First of a series

— But after 15 years of talk, a regional airport still hasn't been built.

Today, even with the help of dozens of public meetings, widespread coverage in the news media and the presentation of a mountain of facts and figures, a Magic Valley regional airport lives only on blueprints and in file folders.

Although the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority (SIRAA) enters its 10th year of existence in 1976, fewer than 50 per cent of Magic Valley's population now belongs to the authority. While the SIRAA once generated major interest in Magic Valley the airport authority now doggedly pursues the dream of a regional airport without much public attention.

Even as the planning goes on for a regional airport, the two existing major airports in Magic Valley continue to expand.

The Twin Falls City-Country Airport now is served by DC-9 jets and offers good connections to Salt Lake City and San Francisco. Friedman Memorial Airport in Hailley now has become the busiest airport in Idaho. Sun Valley Key and Air Idaho offer airline service to the doors of Sun Valley.

While these airports continue to grow, dreams of a large regional airport fade. The problems plaguing Magic Valley's regional airport go back at least 10 years.

A three-month investigation by the Times-News has identified a number of bottlenecks which have kept the regional airport from being developed.

These problems include: — Widespread bickering and distrust among the eight Magic Valley counties over the location of the airport. — A poorly written law in the Idaho legislature which seriously hampered development of a regional airport authority in Magic Valley. — A credibility gap between the Southern Idaho Regional Airport Authority and the public over the need for the airport. — The lack of support for the airport in Blaine and Twin Falls counties.

Serious questioning about the accuracy of information supporting the current proposed site for the airport. — No clear answer to the question of environmental damage which could result from construction of the regional airport on the north side of the Snake River. Beginning today, the Times-News will explore the major stumbling blocks which have crippled development of a Magic Valley regional airport. (Continued on p. 13)

US hockey team keeps hopes up

INNSBRUCK (UPI) — America's young hockey team defeated Finland today, 5-4, keeping alive its hopes for a bronze medal. The United States surpassed its medal total in the 1972 winter games as Dan Immerfall of Wisconsin won a bronze medal in the men's 500-meter speed skating. Dorothy Hamill of California, the national champion, placed second in compulsory figures in women's figure skating.

The hockey team still must play Poland and West Germany, the two weakest teams in the round robin format. Victories would set up the bronze medal. The team lost to the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia in earlier games.

Marxist forces seize key ports

By United Press International

Forces of the Marxist Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola today captured the ports of Lobito and Benguela, two of the pro-Western forces' last major strongholds in the South. The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported from Luanda. Tanjug said the Soviet-backed MPLA forces entered these two ports and the town of Katingala without meeting any resistance as South African and pro-Western forces of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola had already pulled out.

Gunmen slay man in Basque town

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Suspected separatist gunmen killed a man in the Basque town of Cizturqui today, Spanish news agency reports said. It was the second political slaying in two days in the politically restive Basque region. The reports identified the victim as Juan Galarraga. They said he apparently was mistaken for the gunmen for the town's mayor because of physical likeness.

Missing Idaho flier found this morning

Idaho Department of Aeronautics pilots late this morning located the downed craft of a Dayton, Idaho, flyer missing for two days after he crashed his plane while attempting to land in a snowstorm at Preston. Roger Biedron, 75, was last heard from over Burley, Idaho, Sunday evening when he asked for Preston weather information. The pilot was found with his plane, about 12 miles northeast of Preston. He was flown to a Preston hospital by helicopter for emergency first aid treatment.

House panel kills gun turn-in bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee today killed legislation that would have imposed a nationwide ban on all handguns except for those owned by police and certified gun clubs. The committee, by a 25-8 vote, defeated an amendment by Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., which would have banned the manufacture, sale, importation and ownership of all handguns, requiring citizens who now have handguns to turn them in for their fair market value.

Coleman says he can reverse decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Transportation Secretary William Coleman Jr. said today he can reverse his decision to admit the Concorde supersonic transport to the United States "within an hour" if it proves dangerous to the health or safety of the American people. Coleman said, however, he thinks the Concorde should be granted a 16-month period of trial flights to New York and Washington so it can be judged on its actual performance rather than on theories and unsupported emotional claims.

Medical groups score Ford proposals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's largest hospital and doctor organizations today attacked President Ford's Medicare reform proposals, saying they would result in higher health costs for non-Medicare patients. Leaders of the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association asked Congress to reject Ford's proposed annual ceilings of 7 per cent in Medicare hospital bills and 4 per cent in doctor bills.

Ford signs defense bill, blasts aid ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today signed a $112.3 billion defense appropriations bill, but denounced a provision halting U. S. aid to Angola and said he accepted the measure only because of importance of the programs it finances. "I am deeply disappointed that the Congress has acted in this bill to deprive the people of Angola of the assistance needed to resist Soviet and Cuban military intervention in their country," Ford said in a statement. "I believe this provision is an extremely undesirable precedent that could limit severely our ability to play a positive and effective role in international affairs. The huge money increases requested by the Pentagon for continued research on the 411 bomber, increased accuracy for nuclear weapons, the Trident missile-firing submarine and the Cruise missile — essentially a pilotless plane carrying nuclear weapons. Congress voted to stop American aid to Angola over strong and repeated administration objections and despite several personal appeals by Ford. "Because of the importance of the programs which are funded by appropriations in this bill and the problems which would be caused by a further delay of this legislation, I shall not veto the bill," Ford said in his statement. The bill appropriates $90.46 billion for the Defense Department in the current 1975 fiscal year and another $21.86 billion for a three-month "transitional" period before the start of fiscal 1977 (UPI). Ford also criticized Congress for approving what he called an "unconstitutional provision" in the appropriation for the Army's purchase of ammunition and he said he would treat it "as a complete nullity." That section, added by a House-Senate conference committee, restricts the obligation of funds for certain purposes "until approval is received from the Appropriations and Armed Services Committees of the House and Senate." Ford said it "violates the fundamental separation of powers" in the Constitution. "The exercise of an otherwise valid executive power cannot be limited by a discretionary act of a committee of Congress nor can a committee give the executive a power which it otherwise would not have," Ford said.

Tough libel law emerges

BOISE (UPI) — Despite a plea that the small newspapers of the state would be damaged, the Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee today sent to the floor without recommendation a bill repealing a portion of the state's libel laws. The vote was 4-2 to send it to the floor without recommendation after the committee failed on a 3-3 tie vote to have the measure reported out with a "do pass" recommendation. Sponsor of the bill, Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, said the proposal was aimed at "basic fairness." He said it would provide for equal protection.

"The press by and large does a good job in carrying out its sacred trust," Risch said, adding he was not being vindictive but had drawn the bill to protect the public. The bill would provide that the injured party has 30 days to demand a retraction and the media has three weeks after that to make good the demands. Even after a retraction, the injured party can still sue for actual damages as well as punitive damages. Bill Moore, executive director of the Idaho Newspaper Association, said the bill allowed "a room for maneuver" by newspapers or broadcaster. He said it "demands perfection of the media." Ski theft ring broken

BURLEY — An arrest in Cassia County late Sunday may have broken up a ring of ski equipment thieves. Five people were charged with grand larceny in connection with the theft of rental ski equipment from Pomerele Ski Resort. Among those arrested was Bob Parker (also known as Raymond Jaynes), 30. Parker is being held on $100,000 bond. Cassia County sheriff's deputies found that Parker is wanted on another charge in Globe, Ariz.

Three other men are being held on $25,000 bond each. They are Tommy Peterson, 25, Raymond, Neb.; John Henry Richardson, 22, Liberty, Mo.; and Steven Ross Dyson, 20, California. Mary Parker (also known as Marilyn S. Jaynes), 26, has been released on $500 bond. Terry Bingham-Cassia County deputy sheriff, said the people apparently are connected with an operation selling lightning rods and roofing repairs. He said a combined law enforcement investigation is continuing. "Bingham arrested" the quintet late Sunday after receiving a call from Pomerele. The caller told him that a car with Power County license plates had just left the parking lot and was suspected of carrying stolen rental ski equipment. Bingham stopped the car in Albion. When he questioned the driver the man produced a pair of Pomerele ski boots. The deputy took the people back to the ski resort. Bingham said the people then consented to a search of the car. In the car were found two pairs of skis, four pairs of ski boots and two pairs of ski poles, the deputy said.

Centers of talk

DEMOCRATIC politics centered on two Texans today. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, left, is expected to announce his withdrawal from national campaigning but to remain as a favorite son presidential candidate. governor's signature. The resolution would not have power of law, but would encourage a national drive for such a constitutional amendment. Another abortion proposal is less direct but has potentially far greater immediate impact. The proposal soon to be considered by the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee would require doctors performing an abortion to file a report on each abortion with the state. According to the bill's sponsor, Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, the report would require information on the reason for the abortion, the previous medical record of the individual undergoing the abortion — including conception and past abortion history — when the abortion, took place during pregnancy and whether the abortion was necessary to preserve the life or the health of the mother. The report would require the signature of the doctor and the name of the person who had the abortion. (Continued on p. 13)

Quake toll past 17,000

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (UPI) — The Agency for International Development said today the United States had now sent $3.8 million in emergency aid to Guatemala where relief officials estimated the death toll had climbed above the 17,000 mark. President Jiguel Eugenio Laugerud, who put the toll at 16,032 and still climbing, disclosed that a number of shopkeepers have been jailed for price gouging and that "there have been people selling water from public wells." Relief officials put the number of injured in the earthquake at 54,823 and the homeless at 1,044,411 in the nation of 5.6 million. They said 108,000 urban and 115,000 rural dwellings were destroyed and that all of Zone 3 in Guatemala housing 59,000 persons will have to be razed. Residents were moving into tent cities. The earthquake, which hit before dawn last Wednesday and was followed by a series of heavy aftershocks, was the biggest disaster to strike Central America. The Dec. 23, 1972 quake in Managua, Nicaragua, killed 10,000. The heaviest toll in South America was 70,000 in the 1970 earthquake in Peru.

Plan buried

BOISE (UPI) — Questioning the need for it at this time, the House Education Committee buried today a bill to create a single state university system with four campuses under one chancellor. Rep. C. "Bunch" Otter, R-Caldwell, one of the sponsors of the legislation, said he felt such a system would create more efficiency and at the same time reduce personnel and save money. But Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, said it far removed from the working level of the institutions it governs. Rep. T. W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, tried to move the bill to the floor without recommendation but his motion failed 6-8. Then the committee voted 3-5 to hold the measure for further study. Stivers spoke of the savings the bill would bring about, saying there is too much duplication of administrative and budget personnel.

Rape, abortion, divorce bills to fore in Senate

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Capitol Bureau
— Rape, abortion and divorce legislation has come to the fore in the Idaho Senate. On a voice vote Monday, the Senate passed a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to permit states to ban abortion. "I don't think the Supreme Court spoke for a majority of the American people" when it legitimized abortion in 1973," Sen. Dale Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, sponsor of the resolution said in an interview. Since the U. S. Supreme Court has interpreted the Constitution to permit abortion, Watkins said it is impossible to pass a law banning it nationally, so he maintained a constitutional amendment is "a step in the right direction." "The proposed amendment says that states shall have the power to protect life from the beginning of new life and at every stage of biological development irrespective of age, health or condition of physical dependency." Watkins said he thinks the resolution will pass the House as a resolution. It does not require the governor's signature. The resolution would not have power of law, but would encourage a national drive for such a constitutional amendment. Another abortion proposal is less direct but has potentially far greater immediate impact. The proposal soon to be considered by the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee would require doctors performing an abortion to file a report on each abortion with the state. SV, union still fight

SUN VALLEY — The United Transportation Union and Sun Valley Co. are still fighting over an option giving employees the choice of joining the union. The UTU voted Monday to reject the most recent proposal for a settlement by the company. Few changes have been made over the issue of union security and the fight by the company to subcontract working non-union labor, according to sources, and negotiations will continue. According to union and company officials, the union wants it mandatory that employees of the company join the union after 30 days.

Texans in campaign spotlight

By United Press International
The Democratic presidential game-of-musical-chairs pulled a pair of Texans in the spotlight today.

Sen. Lloyd Benenson was expected to announce his withdrawal from national campaign trailing while remaining a favorite son. Former Gov. John Connally, a 1972 convert to the GOP, may be entered as a write-in candidate in the New Hampshire primary.

Connally was traveling in Japan and unavailable for comment on a drive launched by Virginia conservative William F. Buckley to make him a candidate.

Viguerie, a direct mail expert who has raised almost $1 million for George Wallace, told UPI he plans to spend $200,000 of his own promoting Connally.

"The Democratic primary is dominated by liberals who are all trying to be more liberal than the other," Viguerie said. "With the exception of Jimmy Carter, there's nobody among Democrats in New Hampshire who is to the right of center."

Republican contender Ronald Reagan, an unquestioned conservative, said at the University of New Hampshire Monday night it might be a good idea to invest social security funds for profit.

"You couldn't dump all of it in the stock market because you'd lose up the market," he said. But he suggested some of the money could be used as a loan, for example, to a company like General Motors if it needed help.

Reagan has passed up the March 2 primary in Vermont, but President Ford was going to enter it by today's deadline and thus assure himself of victory in the professional primary, which will have no direct influence on selection of convention delegates.

Democrats in or expected to be in the Vermont battle by day's end were Carter, Fred Harris, Sargent Shriver and Elliot M. Corcoran, an anti-liberationist candidate.

The Democratic candidates have started sniping at one another's chances in various contexts.

Morris Udall says George Wallace wouldn't be his running mate, and Wallace says, "I don't think Mr. Udall is going to decide one way or another who's going to be on his ticket."

Wallace reiterated Monday his feeling he will not do well in the March 9 Massachusetts primary, although Udall predicted "it is quite possible for Wallace to win" because of division of strength among liberal candidates.

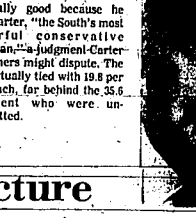

Carter, vying in Florida against Henry Jackson for support of Democrats who don't want Wallace, says Jackson's support peaked a year ago.

Jackson won applause from college students in Clearwater, Fla., when he criticized recipients of foreign aid for not doing their part in the drive against world hunger.

Harris said the showing he made in Oklahoma was not especially good because he beat Carter, "the South's most powerful conservative politician."

Judgment-Carter and others might dispute. The two voters in Oklahoma were 10.8 percent each, far behind the 35.6 percent who were uncommitted.

Britons return from Angola war

LONDON (UPI) — Shaven-headed British mercenaries, some on crutches or wheelchairs, came home from the Angolan war today. They differed on reports that 14 of their comrades had been executed for refusing to fight.

Scotland Yard special branch plainclothesmen quickly took the approximately 50 men aside for questioning about whether Britons had murdered or been murdered in Angola.

Referring the governments' crackdown on British mercenaries fighting in Angola, three of the men were arrested — two for offenses allegedly committed before they left, the third for illegal possession of firearms.

The youngest of the mercenaries, David Murphy, 17, spoke to newsmen on the plane from Kinshasa about reports that he had been tortured.

When of the execution, he was reported to have been one of the victims.

"It's just not true," he said. "What really happened is that 20 of our men went out one

Conductor Percy Faith dies at 68

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — Percy Faith, a famous name in music as conductor and composer, died of cancer Monday at Valley Presbyterian Hospital. He was 68.

Faith was born in Toronto, Canada, April 7, 1908, and began studying the violin at the age of 7. He also studied to be a pianist but his hands were burned severely in an accident and he became a conductor of dance bands.

He leaves his widow Mary "Dolly," daughter Marilyn Leonard and four grandchildren.

Faith joined the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. in 1934 as an arranger and conductor and got his own radio program "Music by Faith" in 1937.

He came to the United States to become musical director of the Carnation radio program, originating in Chicago in 1940, and became a familiar name on many big radio programs.

FEC restructure measures readied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican leaders are proposing to bypass committee opposition and go straight to the full House with a bill recreating the Federal Election Commission along lines acceptable to the Supreme Court.

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., chairman of the House GOP conference, Monday proposed taking the campaign reform issue from Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who is opposed to the FEC and who could delay legislation until after the court's 30-day extension.

Anderson is a member of the House Rules Committee, and he said that panel could send directly to the House floor a bill that would provide presidential appointment of the six members of the FEC.

The Supreme Court ruled Jan. 30 the FEC is unconstitutional because four of the members are not federal officers.

House Republican leader John Rhodes supported Anderson's move but said a reconstituted commission should also have a "self-destruct" provision, as suggested by President Ford, so it would go out of business automatically at a certain time, perhaps three months after the November election.

Hays, chairman of the House Administration Committee with jurisdiction over election reform, has sought to abolish the FEC.

Two members of his panel, Reps. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., and John Brademas, D-Ind., have introduced a bill to recreate the FEC but also set up a Watergate-type prosecutor independent of the commission to carry out election reform laws.

Hays has introduced a bill to give the General Accounting Office authority to handle federal matching funds for presidential candidates. But Anderson said that plan and the Thompson-Brademas approach are "dilatory at best, and destructive at worst."

Adelines set event at Burley

BURLEY — Women take to the burlesque stage Friday as the Sweet Adelines present a program of harmony.

The Burley Chapter has planned its program around the theme of "Keeping America Beautiful" and will feature the results of a contest by Porter and Stephen Foster. The program is at 8 p.m. Friday in the Burley High School auditorium.

Two Utah barbershop quartets will be featured, guests.

The Back Patch Gang, of Bountiful, is three-time winner of the Utah State Fair competition and recently completed a two-week cruise Alaska as winners of Region 12 competition.

Fan-Pare '76 is a mixed quartet from Provo and is backed by an eight-piece orchestra.

The Burley Sweet Adelines were organized in 1964 and now have a membership of 40 under its original director, Cliff Mullikin, with Loanda Mann, assistant.

Helen McMurray (phone 678-7189) is president of the Sweet Adelines. Virginia Waterson (678-8664) is membership chairman.

Reagan fires salvos

EXETER, N.H. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan attacked the administration's foreign policy today, criticizing the President, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and U.S. policy on Angola, Russia, China and the Panama Canal.

"One wonders if we even have a foreign policy, for it is impossible to detect a coherent global view," the GOP presidential candidate told a slugging at Phillips Exeter Academy.

Reagan made the attacks in his fifth campaign trip to this state, which holds the nation's first presidential preference primary Feb. 24.

Libel law change to floor

Moon pointed out that even if the media won the suit it still would be costly in attorney fees and could possibly put a small newspaper out of business.
Clinging several instances where he felt the public had been misled by what he thought to be erroneous headlines, Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said this was the reason the public was disturbed.
He said there were two recent stories in the Twin Falls Times-News where the stories "were right but the heads were wrong and they misled the public."
Barker said there was later a brief explanation of the heads but he did not feel that it was treated properly and didn't amount to "fair play."
Jim Davidson of radio station KIDO, Boise, told the committee that most media people try to be "fair in the presentation of the news." He said they try to go to the source and see that the facts are there and if there was an erroneous statement "we do everything possible to correct it."
Lewis Hower, an Emmett publisher, said it would be great if there was legislation which would make editors and publishers perfect as well as doctors and "even perfect legislators."
He said repeal of a section of the present law would not make the news media "infallible."
"Repeat-of this bill" smacks of "vindictiveness," Hower said, adding that it was not going to correct anything and would not make journalists more responsible.
He said the news people are very concerned for "accuracy and responsibility."

Sen. Orval Snow, D-Moscow, said he would support the bill because he lost his bill in a previous session which would have forced editorial personnel to identify themselves on stories.
He said some of these editorials "can ruin a man."
Hower replied that this was just "one more step in controlling the press."
Richard Hronek, managing editor of the Idaho Statesman, Boise, said he felt that early retraction of a wrong was important and that his paper would take immediate steps to make the correction in the "same content" as the original article.
Sen. James Yost, R-Wendell, told Hronek: "We're going to shoot this bill right at you. I've checked with the House and it's going to fly."
He said the matter was a "serious situation" and "you are not living up to your name. You're a point man when you're not being a newspaper."

Yost asked Hronek if his paper would have any objection to having a single page for retractions.
"I hope we don't need a page for corrections," Hronek replied.
Rich closed committee discussion of the bill, saying he objected to those who claimed the bill was vindictive. He said it was a bill to afford "equal protection" and to provide fairness.
Rep. John Reardon, R-Boise, said the bill provides for an "arbitrary decision" on what should be built on the land and asked what happens to a man whose taxes are paid up and who lacks the capital to improve the property in the manner decided by zoning.
"His tax'd off his land," Reardon said.
When the bill came up for final consideration of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, the committee member told it to the floor with a recommendation it "do not pass," an unusual move.

House kills land tax bill

BOISE (UPI) — Heeding the advice of its tax committee, the House killed 15-53 today a bill to phase out taxes on real property improvements and shift them to the land itself.
Rep. William Onweiler, R-Boise, put the measure before the House, saying it would encourage the best and highest use of land and stop the speculative practice of retaining vacant lots.
"You encourage this with the property tax blight and also urban sprawl," Onweiler said.
Rep. Ralph Gines, R-Nampa, led the attack on the proposal. He said it would deny a property owner the right to build what he wants on his own land by forcing the value of the land down and the taxes on it up.
"Today, in my community even if you build a concrete driveway they raise your taxes," he said.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair
HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss... and grow more hair.
But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure, what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.
Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... NOW is the time to do something about it before it's too late.
The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.
Naturally, they would not enter this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.
Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc. will supply you with treatment for 30 days, at their risk. If they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail, and without obligation.

Land-planning foe battles on floor

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Dan Emery carries his battle against zoning "use planning to the floor of the House today.
The Boise Democrat is one of several legislators sponsoring a bill to require the consent of the owner to include his property in present or future land use plans.
Emery told the House earlier in floor speeches that local planning and zoning restrictions prevented him from dividing up his property into homesites for his children.
His bill, if enacted into law, would negate such plans unless property owners went along with them.

Revised non-property city tax bill drafted

BOISE (UPI) — A House tax subcommittee sent to the billdrafting center Monday afternoon still another version of a plan to permit cities, with voter approval, to impose certain non-property taxes.
This revision came just 36 hours before a scheduled public hearing by the Full Revenue and Taxation Committee at 8 a.m. Wednesday.
It reduces to three the number of non-property taxes a city could impose. These would be sales and use, income and household. They would have to be voted in for a specific period of time by the electorate.
Still another change would permit counties to vote in the alternative forms of taxation, which they raised the way then would be distributed to the cities and counties on a population basis.
If a city were to impose one or more of the non-property taxes and the county later were to do likewise, only one tax in each category would be imposed. A subcommittee member said there would be no "piggy-back," for example, of a county sales tax on top of a city sales tax.
Originally, the tax bill permitted imposition of 13 different non-property taxes by a simple majority vote of the people.
This was cut to six, with three of them — liquor by the drink, payroll and hotel-motel occupancy — requiring a two-thirds majority vote of the people to pass. These three were eliminated from the latest bill.
Still another feature of the bill — in both the second and third readings — provides for a property tax relief fund should money raised through the alternative taxes be more than needed.

Panel named

BOISE (UPI) — House Republicans appointed a four-member committee Monday to come up with alternative plans to increase insurance benefits and the state's share of the cost of them for state employees.
Caucus Chairman Elaine Kearnes, R-Idaho Falls, said the GOP asked Reps. Jack Kennevel, Boise; Virgil Kraus, Mountain Home; Vard Chaburn, Ablion; and Larry Jackson, Boise, to look into the matter.

Majority ruled enough in certain recall votes

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho attorney general today said an affirmative vote of a majority of those voting at a recall election is sufficient to recall a public official who was appointed to fill a vacancy.
The opinion, prepared by deputy attorney general Christopher D. Bray, said the Idaho Constitution subjects all public officials to recall and that should not be voided in the case of an official serving as a vacancy appointee.
The constitution establishes two criteria for a successful recall — a majority of the votes cast at the election must be in favor of recall and the number of votes favoring recall must equal or exceed the votes cast at the last general election for the officer in question.
Since the first criteria cannot be met, Bray said "a reasonable construction of the statute is that recall is achieved by the casting of a majority of votes for recall at the special election."
In a letter to Bob J. White, Idaho County Clerk, Bray said the legislature has not dealt with that particular question.

Gem energy incentives pass House

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' proposal to grant income tax incentives for home insulation and installation of alternative energy devices in homes sailed through the House 61-6 Monday.
This bill, which goes now to the Senate, provides for an income tax deduction of the actual amount paid for home insulation and for deductions for installation of such alternative energy devices as solar, geothermal and wind devices.
Forty per cent of the cost of the alternative energy device could be deducted the first year and 20 per cent of the cost could be deducted each of the three succeeding years. No more than $2,000, however, could be deducted in any one year.
Andrus also proposed a property tax exemption on the devices but the Revenue and Taxation Committee still is holding that proposal and its chances of being reported to the floor are not too good.
Rep. Karl Koch, D-Hammett, explained the income tax deduction bill to the House. There was no debate against it.
After the debate, one of the opponents of the bill, Rep. C. L. "Buffy" Otter, R-Caldwell, said in the corridor that he voted against the bill because it did not include new homes or industry.

Auto sales tax hike loses

BOISE (UPI) — House Democrats rejected Monday a proposal to impose an additional two per cent sales tax on car purchases but were unable to reach a decision on six other funding alternatives.
Caucus Chairman Marion Davidson, D-Bonners Ferry, said the Democrats discussed all seven proposals presented by the House Transportation Committee but could not reach a consensus on which to support.
Of the seven, the Transportation Committee called for introduction of only six. It did not seek introduction of the two per cent sales tax on cars.
Two of the proposals crossed the front desk of the House in bill form Monday. One would raise the 8 1/2-cents a gallon gasoline tax by a penny and one by two cents.

Combined primary bill to floor

BOISE (UPI) — By a vote of 87, the House State Affairs Committee on the floor without recommendation Monday a bill to combine the regular and presidential primaries.
After the vote, House Minority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, tried unsuccessfully to get the committee to rescind its action. She was not present for the original vote.
The bill would move the regular August primary to the fourth Tuesday in May, the date of the presidential primary. Supporters of the legislation claim the state would save $150,000 by holding both elections the same day.

Clean campaigns likely for candidates of '76

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court's opinion ran to 177 pages, plus 89 pages of appendix.

Chief Justice Burger wrote 23 pages in dissent, and Justice White added 30 more. Justices Marshall and Rehnquist unloaded five pages each. Justice Blackman contended himself with one. It was the longest deliberance in the history of the high court, and there was less there than met the eye.

The Election Campaign Act of 1974 was the principal legislative monument to the Watergate affair. After the Court had finished with it last week, little was standing but an outer shell. "What remains after today's holding," said Burger, "leaves no more than a shadow of what Congress contemplated."

It was a dubious decision, but it may have been the best the Court could do with a most lamentable law. The framers of the 1974 act had the best intentions: They wanted to purify our nation's electoral process. They wanted to free it from the taint of corruption. But they went at this commendable task so clumsily that they wrote an untenable statute. It won't be easy to patch the thing back together.

Under the law, Congress sought to put ceilings on both campaign contributions and campaign expenditures. The act imposed sweeping requirements for the disclosure of contributions. The law provided for public financing of presidential campaigns, and it created a Federal Election Commission to supervise and to enforce the complex provisions.

By its decision, the court sustained the ceiling on contributions. With some reservations, it sustained the disclosure and public financing provisions. But the court found the ceilings on expenditures unconstitutional, and it left the commission in limbo. The upshot is that a voter may not contribute more than $1,000 directly to a candidate, but the voter may spend whatever he pleases for his own political expression. This part of the court's decision shoots a hole in the act as big as a barn door. The commission is left powerless to enforce.

For all practical purposes, the sky once again is the limit on expenditures for House and Senate campaigns. Candidates will still have to keep meticulous accounts of direct contributions, but if friendly Joe Blow wants to buy a dozen billboards to help the cause along, old Joe's right of free speech is not to be abridged.

Burger wrote the best of the several opinions. He objected to compelled disclosure of contributions. He thought the public funding provisions unfair to minority parties. And he could see no sense in the majority's distinction between contributions and expenditures: "For me contributions and expenditures are two sides of the same First Amendment coin."

"The Court's attempt to distinguish the communications inherent in political contributions from the speech aspects of political expenditures simply will not wash," Burger said. "We do little but engage in word games unless we recognize that people contribute and contributors spend money on political activity because they wish to communicate ideas, and their constitutional interest in doing so is precisely the same whether they or someone else utter the words."

Where are we now? The Public Election Commission has spent months in a frenzy of rules, regulations, notices, warnings, and advisory opinions. The act, as drawn, vested the commission with "bristling powers of enforcement. But the court found that the commission had been constituted unconstitutionally. Within 30 days Congress must provide for presidential appointment of commission members (rather than congressional appointment). Otherwise the commission may perform only investigatory and informative functions.

Will Congress respond promptly to the court's invitation to reconstitute the commission? Don't bet on it. Over the past year the commission has trod on some sensitive toes. Such powerful figures as Ohio's Wayne Hays may want to let the commission be left alone to do its work. The boilers of reform have cooled in the past 12 months; most of the steam has leaked out of the purity drive.

It would be as well, in my own view, to leave the situation in genteel confusion. If the normal forces of public opinion are permitted to work normally, the candidates of 1976 will run tolerably clean campaigns; they will not dare risk the appearance of scandal.

This was the essential purpose of the 1974 act. Let us cling to that, and let the rest go.

February snow sign for better

First, the ground hoag — was it an Idaho rock-cluck? — saw his shadow, prognosticating another six weeks of winter.

Then, less than 48 hours later, the season's heaviest snow arrived, followed by the coldest temperatures of the season. As the chill from that double assault abated, the next round of rain, ice and snow moved into the Magic Valley.

Winter sports enthusiasts, who appreciate the white stuff for its recreational value, and farmers — who like to see plenty of snow while cogitating the amount of water available during the next growing season — were understandably happy. Some of the inconveniences imposed on others, such as slipping on ice and watching fuel bills edge upward, dimmed their enthusiasm for this tough February winter.

But when all's done, and the time of day comes when one can sit back — perhaps before a crackling fireplace — and meditate upon the month of presidents and its fickle, unsettled, chilly, damp weather, there's one thought that comes through clearly.

February's snows are a harbinger of better conditions coming — sunshine, warmer temperatures, even flowers and "green-up time" — which aren't far away.

Moynihan's future

Portland Oregonian — Any idea that Daniel Patrick Moynihan has withdrawn permanently from government and politics to his professorship at Harvard would be unrealistic.

What the resigned U.S. ambassador to the United Nations is likely to do is to get back on the Democratic side of the street he occupied as a worker for the late John F. Kennedy, after serving in sub-Cabinet and ambassadorial posts in the Nixon and Ford regimes.

Moynihan has obtained national prominence by his eloquent and hard-hitting column attacks in the United Nations on the ill-tempered abusive spokesmen for third world and Communist nations who have been lashing the United States while demanding U.S. cash and favors. Similar popular support was earned in the 1960s by Henry Cabot Lodge, the former senator from Massachusetts, who counterattacked the surly Russian propagandists.

Lodge won the presidential primary in Massachusetts while absent in Vietnam as the U.S. ambassador and might have won in Oregon had he, like Nelson Rockefeller, "cared enough to come." Moynihan may not have his eyes on the presidency or vice presidency. But he has given consideration to running for the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat held by James F. Buckley, New York Conservative-Republican. He left that and other political possibilities open in remarks following his resignation from the United Nations post, effective when his term as president of the Security Council expires Feb. 29.

There is no question that Moynihan's combative stance in the United Nations, while popular with the American people, irritated some high-level U.S. and allied diplomats. But he did not have to quit. Both President Ford and Secretary of State Kissinger gave him the public support he demanded. It was not a forced resignation. Moynihan did not even inform the President in advance that Harvard would not give him a longer extension of his leave for government service. Even so, Ford publicly praised Moynihan's record and regretted his departure.

Moynihan's earlier comments on running for office have been taken out of context in some news reports. He did not say it would be "dishonorable" to be a candidate. He said it would be dishonorable to use his U.N. post to launch a candidacy. Now that he has resigned, and when he weighs the attractions of Harvard and of public office, he should not consider it dishonorable to test his popularity with the voters.

We have not heard the last of Pat Moynihan.

Betrayal disclosure worries Ford

WASHINGTON — One section of the still-secret Pike committee report especially troubling to the White House is the revelation of a shameful action for which President Ford must be held responsible: The betrayal of the Kurdish hostages.

The two million Kurds are a distinct ethnic group, Moslem but not Arab, most living in Iraq, who have been fighting for self-determination for 40 years. When President Nixon visited the Shah of Iran after his Moscow summit conference in 1972, the Shah asked the United States to help him help the Kurds make life difficult for his enemy and neighbor, Communist-dominated Iraq.

The Shah was capable of helping the Kurds by himself, but the Kurds did not trust him; they did trust the word of the United States, however, and as the unrepentant Pike report says: "... the United States acted in effect as a guarantor that the insurgent group (brackets) the Kurds (unbrackets) would not be summarily dropped by the foreign hand of state (brackets) the Shah (unbrackets)."

In utmost secrecy, the United States agreed, with Treasury Secretary John Connally, carrying the word to the Shah, "Israel, too, was delighted; the separatist Kurds could do down the Iraqi army." But when the Yom Kippur surprise attack on Israel took place in October 1973, and the Kurds were willing to launch an attack of their own that would have won their freedom as well as taken some heat off the Israelis, Secretary Kissinger refused to let his Kurdish pawns move.

On Oct. 16, he ordered intelligence chief William Colby to send this message to the Kurds: "We do not repeat not consider it advisable for you to undertake the offensive military action that 'another government' (brackets) the Pike committee, meaning Israel, has suggested to you."

The Kurds obeyed: The United States was the ally they trusted. They (and we) did not know that at that moment in 1972, the Shah was putting together OPEC, the oil cartel — and a crucial part of the inducement to Iraq and other Arab neighbors was Iran's willingness to double-cross the nestless Kurds.

Iran and its neighbor, Iraq, Kurds and OPEC price rises stunned the Western world. Through 1974, the Shah of Iran kept the Kurds in Iraq quiet, but still kept them well enough supplied to be "A card to play," as a CIA memo characterized his views. The CIA then viewed the low-key support of the Kurds as "A militarily useful tool for weakening 'our ally's enemy' (brackets) the report, meaning Iran, Iraq, Iraq, potential for international adventurism."

Then the Shah, having played Nixon for a sucker on oil, played Ford for a double-crosser on the Kurds: In March 1975, with Ford hopelessly dependent on Henry Kissinger, the Persian rug was jerked. "... the extent of our ally's leverage over U.S. policy," continues the suppressed Pike report, "... was such that he apparently made no effort to notify his Junior American partners that the program's end was near."

"The insurgents were clearly taken by surprise as well. Their adversaries (the report is referring to the Communist-dominated Iraqis), knowing of the impending oil cut-off, launched an all-out search-and-destroy campaign the day after the agreement was signed. The autonomy movement was over."

The Shah forsaken Kurds, the Kurds, turned to the United States. The CIA chief of station in Tehran felt guilty and called Colby on March 10, 1975: "Iran's action has not only shattered their political hopes. It endangers lives of thousands."

The station chief made some suggestions for amelioration and concluded, "It would be the decent thing for us to do."

The Kurdish leader, Gen. Mustafa Barzani, directed a plea to Kissinger on the same day: "Our movement and people are being destroyed, in an unbelievable way with silence from everyone." But on Kissinger's advice, Ford maintained that silence. Some 200,000 Kurdish refugees fled to Iran, and 40,000 of the most vulnerable were sent back to Iraq.

"This unconscionable sellout took place without a peep out of the United States, public or private; no U.S. pressure on the Shah to make a decent deal for Kurdish autonomy in Iraq; not even a dime proposed for humanitarian aid. Gerald Ford was the first U.S. president in such a circumstance to look the other way."

"A high U.S. official," who is trying to keep secret his remark to the Pike committee staff, dismissed this betrayal of an ethnic group that placed its trust in the secret assurances of the United States in these words:

"Covert action should not be confused with missionary work. This is a tough guy talking. But since when is it U.S. policy to be tough on the weak, and weak on the tough? When did U.S. presidents get in the habit of encouraging people to fight for their freedom, giving them guns, and then cravenly walking away from the consequences?"

The callous, amoral voice may be Kissinger's, but that decision of only 11 months ago is the direct responsibility of Ford. If the President wants to defend this sellout of the Kurds at the command of the Shah, let him do so; if he wants to disavow this act of American dishonor, let him fire the adviser who urged the dishonorable decision upon him.

And such a dramatic dropping of the plot be "lacking in compassion" to Kissinger, that selfless aide who longs to become an Oxford don at a time of his own choosing? Perhaps. But presidential action should not be confused with missionary work.

Your obedient servant, Elliot Richardson

This is the President's reply. "Dear Elliot: It was with extreme pleasure that I received your letter announcing your decision to remain as secretary of commerce. No one has done as much against 'high for-midable odds' as you have during your career as a cabinet officer. Your country owes you a debt of gratitude for the great service you have performed in one of the most difficult roles any American has been asked to undertake. Without you, the Commerce Department would have been a shambles.

"What I have admired about you, Elliot, is that you have always been a team player, and the last seven days have proved that once I give you the ball, you can run with it."

"Please accept all my good wishes for the future, and on behalf of Betty and myself, the best of luck wherever your travels as secretary of commerce may take you."

Sincerely, Gerald Ford President of the United States

Richardson staying on for month

WASHINGTON — The biggest news in Washington last week was not that Daniel Patrick Moynihan resigned, but that Elliot Richardson decided to stay on as secretary of commerce for the rest of the month of February.

As everyone knows, Mr. Richardson has not remained at one position in the government for long. He has been secretary of health, education and welfare, secretary of defense, attorney general, ambassador to the Court of St. James and was sworn in last week as secretary of commerce.

While most people send the President a letter when they resign and receive a letter from the President regretting their departure, Mr. Richardson turned the tables and wrote the President saying he planned to remain at his post.

Here is the over-rough of letters between the President and Secretary Richardson.

"Dear Mr. President: I am happy to tell you that after a week as secretary of commerce I intend to stay. My reasons for this decision are personal — I need the job."

"You have always treated me fairly and supported me during these trying days when the Commerce Department has been under fire from all sides. I hope you are satisfied with the job I did during the last week and the decisions I made over the weekend. It has been a pleasure working in your Administration and with you personally."

ART BUCHWALD

"While my reasons for staying on are my own, I will be frank and say that I discussed them with my wife. She thought I might do some good in the private sector but urged me to stay on in my present position because of the security involved. My wife also played a part in the decision. Everytime they went to school and some one asked them what their father did for a living, they said they couldn't remember."

"I have assured them that, at least until the election, they could say I was secretary of commerce as long as you can see my decision to remain in your Cabinet has not come about lightly. It was discussed at home and with close personal friends, and the conclusion was unanimous that I stay where I am."

"I want you to know, Mr. President, that although I will remain at my post as secretary of commerce, I will always be available for consultation and advice whenever you wish it. By staying in the government, I have not lost my interest in the affairs of state, and I hope you will call on me for future service in my country."

Your obedient servant, Elliot Richardson

"Dear Elliot: It was with extreme pleasure that I received your letter announcing your decision to remain as secretary of commerce. No one has done as much against 'high for-midable odds' as you have during your career as a cabinet officer. Your country owes you a debt of gratitude for the great service you have performed in one of the most difficult roles any American has been asked to undertake. Without you, the Commerce Department would have been a shambles.

"What I have admired about you, Elliot, is that you have always been a team player, and the last seven days have proved that once I give you the ball, you can run with it."

"Please accept all my good wishes for the future, and on behalf of Betty and myself, the best of luck wherever your travels as secretary of commerce may take you."

Sincerely, Gerald Ford President of the United States

Non-smokers begin asserting rights

By NEA/London Economist News Service MINNEAPOLIS (LENS) — Neither the surgeon general's warnings that is compulsorily printed on cigarette packages nowadays, nor the other efforts to enlighten people about the damage that smoking does to health, have made much of a dent in the cigarette industry yet.

Signs have appeared of a tiny falling-off in the number of cigarettes smoked a head and 10 million people are said to have quit smoking in the last 5 years, but total consumption in the United States continued up. The anti-tobacco campaigners are not giving up, but they are asking the Pike committee, meaning Israel, to persuade smokers of the folly of their addiction to asserting the rights of non-smokers against them.

Last month six sports fans sued the Louisiana Superdome for allowing smoking and thereby inflicting them with the "involuntary consumption of hazardous fumes."

Some 30 states now have smoker segregation laws of widely varying severity. By far the most comprehensive is the clean indoor air act in Minnesota. Although the act has been six months on the books, its real effect will depend on the implementing regulations, and these are still being vigorously fought over. The act was conceived as a bill of rights for the three out of every four Minnesotans who do not smoke, it passed without serious opposition, and Gov. Wendell Anderson, who detests tobacco himself, signed it gladly.

Its general principle is to prohibit smoking in public places and public meetings, except in designated areas that are marked "smoking permitted." At first there was a rush to comply in places like the airport terminals, government and university buildings, and family restaurants that serve little or no drink. The general hotel and restaurant business went slow while its trade associations kept an eye on the drafting of the regulations.

Some disagreeable incidents have occurred, as when a recalcitrant restaurant proprietor designated his entire place as a smoking-permitted zone except for a protected table by the kitchen or the lavatory door. The "no-smoking" bars had to be made no attempt to define what a bar was, so the trade hit on the idea that the serving of any drink made a place a bar.

In the prevailing view of restaurant-keepers in Minnesota, most diners drink and most drinkers smoke. Where, then, they ask, does freedom of choice come in?

"They proposed the 'airline procedure' by which each customer is asked to indicate his choice of zone as a condition of being seated. Their answer to the trade's arguments is that either the non-smokers are still unaware of their rights, or a long haul of repression at the hands of aggressive smokers has made them an underprivileged lot, too timid to demand the protection which the law promises them."

Patty Hearst answers query from F. Lee Bailey

Nixon reply anticipated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate intelligence committee expects Richard M. Nixon to complete sworn answers to 77 questions before he takes off for a visit to China next week.

The committee dispatched the questionnaire last Thursday, asking that it be answered expeditiously. Contrary to earlier reports, the questionnaire was not mailed but hand carried by a committee staff member to Nixon's San Clemente villa in California.

A committee spokesman said Monday that since the staffer has not yet returned, he presumably is willing for the answers, and the panel expects them before Nixon and his wife, Pat, arrive in China Feb. 21.

The committee, chaired by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, wants to get Nixon's version of intelligence operations during his administration.

Patty describes months with SLA in quiet voice

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In a quiet, emotionless voice, Patricia Hearst finally told her story of life underground with the Symbionese Liberation Army — a life of fear, sexual assault and physical abuse.

The 21-year-old newspaper heiress admitted Monday she helped rob a bank, fired a machine gun at a Los Angeles sporting goods store, helped kidnap a high school student and trekked back and forth across the country with radicals without trying to escape.

She said she took part in the bank robbery and did whatever else she was told after being threatened with death "hundreds of times." She said she was "locked in dark closets" for several weeks after her kidnapping, raped in one of them by William Wolfe and other SLA members, hauled from one hideout to another in a garbage can carried in a car trunk, and punched in the eye four times by William Harris.

For that either the SLA or FBI would kill her — especially after she watched six of her kidnapers slain in a battle with Los Angeles police on television — kept her from taking advantage of repeated chances to escape, Miss Hearst said.

Miss Hearst testified in a soft voice which often trailed off and became almost inaudible at times after the courtroom public address system failed.

The granddaughter-of-newspaper-magnate William Randolph Hearst renounced her SLA comrades and denied ever being emotionally involved with William Wolfe, whom she described in a tape made after his death as "the gentlest, most beautiful man I've ever known" and as someone she "loved so much" because of his commitment to revolutionary goals.

Miss Hearst said her eulogy to Wolfe and five other SLA members killed in the Los Angeles battle was written by Emily Harris and that she was forced to read it.

She said SLA member Angela Alwood wrote the script for an April 18, 1974, tape in which Miss Hearst said she voluntarily took part in the bank holdup as a soldier in the people's army, and insisted she hadn't been brainwashed.

"Now there are statements on the tape ... indicating that you acted voluntarily when you went to the Hebrides Bank. Was that true? Did you, in fact, act voluntarily?" Bailey asked.

"Yes," she replied.

Bailey and Browning asked her about the May 16, 1974, incidents in Los Angeles, when she sprayed the front of a sporting goods store with machine gun bullets to help the Harris escape.

"You did, in fact, fire the weapon in the direction of the people who were detaining the Harris, didn't you?" asked Browning.

"Yes."

"Now, can you explain to me, Miss Hearst, why you did that?"

"From the time I took the blindfold off until that happened, there were classes every day, and this was one of the particular ones to do something like that happened, and when it happened I didn't even think. I just did it, and if I had not done it and they had been able to get away they would have killed me."

Solah venue shift denied

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Steven Solah, who shared an apartment with Patricia Hearst, may get another chance to have his trial moved to San Francisco if a federal judge decides a fair jury cannot be chosen here.

U.S. District Judge Philip Wilkins said Monday that, even though he refused to move the trial now, he would reconsider the defense request if he found potential jurors were prejudiced against Solah.

Wilkins also turned down a motion by defense attorneys Sheldon Ots and Stefan Imhoff to close to the public a hearing on prosecution evidence taken from the apartment the two shared at the time of Miss Hearst's capture.

National Bank in which Myra Opsahl, 42, mother of four, was killed. Four bandits took $15,000 in the April 21, 1975, robbery.

In a written order made available Monday, Wilkins said he denied the defense had failed to show "pervasive community prejudice" against Solah. He denied motions for dismissal and change of venue.

The judge said he would reconsider his decision if he found prejudice against Solah among potential jurors, and this was one of the particular ones to do it perfectly willing to reassess my opinion at that time," he said.

Wilkins refused Ots's request that a pretrial evidence hearing be closed to reporters and the public to prevent potential jurors hearing or reading about evidence that might be presented during the trial, scheduled to begin Feb. 23.

Church asks 7 year term

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, of the Senate intelligence committee believes the directors of CIA and FBI should be limited by law to terms of no more than seven years.

He made the recommendation Monday in a letter to members of his committee. "Clearly, in view of the gravity and extent of the abuses we have uncovered, the law should prevent any one individual from holding so much power for too long a time," Church said.

Both the FBI and CIA directors should serve at the pleasure of the President, but I would like to see the Select Committee recommend, as an interim limit, a seven year term for these two powerful positions.

Last week Church urged creation of a special prosecutor to investigate and prosecute crimes by intelligence officials.

Death toll reaches 27

CHICAGO (UPI) — The death toll has reached 27 in the Chicago area's two recent nursing home fires.

Two elderly women died in hospitals Monday from the effects of smoke inhalation suffered in the fires.

Honore Feeley, 85, died at St. Francis Hospital in suburban Evanston where she was under treatment after the Jan. 30 fire at the Wincrest Nursing and Rest home. She was the 20th victim of the fire.

A few hours earlier Helen Erickson, 81, died at Loretto Hospital from the effects of smoke inhaled in the Feb. 4 blaze at the Cermak nursing home in nearby Cicero. Seven deaths now are listed in the Cermak blaze.

Going it alone

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Ferdinand Marcos predicted Monday an end to U.S. military aid and said the Philippines must develop its own defense capability.

"We must depend upon local resources, for the United States can help us only so far and, as I read it, the basic policy of the United States is not to continue with military aid to countries like the Philippines," Marcos said in a speech.

Pregnant juror honored

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Jurors in the 198-day Zebra murder trial honored one of their own Monday — with a baby shower.

Superior Court Judge Joseph Karesh granted the panel a special two-hour lunch break so it could have a shower for pregnant juror No. 8.

The eight women and four men on the jury showed up at the Hall of Justice with baby gifts and a lunch.

The pregnant juror was a bride when the trial began on March 3. Karesh is considering a recess in the trial of four Black Muslims accused of random street killings in 1972 and 1974 to give her a chance to give birth before the start-of-jury deliberations.

'No room'

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., Monday called for negotiations between Israel and Jordan over the future of the West Bank before the Palestinian Liberation Organization grows further in political power.

Speaking before members of the congregation of Beth Torah, Javits said there was "no room" for establishing a third country between Israel and Jordan.

Quinn release rejected

CONCORD, N.H. (UPI) — A federal judge has turned down a petition to release former Concord Mayor Herbert Quinn, jailed for refusing to answer grand jury questions on alleged gunrunning from New Hampshire to Northern Ireland.

U.S. District Court Judge Hugh Bownes turned the request down without comment.

Quinn's lawyer argued the incarceration was strictly punitive and would not help in making Quinn talk.

Kennedy tops poll

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — John F. Kennedy, in a poll of more than 34,000 visitors to a presidential exhibit at a Columbus museum, has been voted the most popular president in American history.

Kennedy has received more than 3,900 votes, about 31 per cent of the total, as the United States' favorite leader, since the exhibit opened last October at the Center of Science and Industry.

Second with 3,458 votes is Richard M. Nixon, followed by Abraham Lincoln with 3,282, President Ford with 3,168 and George Washington with 3,070.

The least-voted-for presidents are William Henry Harrison, Zachary Taylor, Franklin Pierce, James Buchanan and Chester A. Arthur.

David Hanley will seek top US post

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — David Hanley caught the public eye in the 1977 election year through the nonpolitical act of ramming his car into a hijacked airliner. He is following up in 1978 by running for president.

"I won't deny that the hijacking episode is my one claim to fame," Hanley said Monday in announcing his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Only three weeks ago, he said he was running for governor of Missouri. He will give that up for the presidential race, Hanley said.

"Realistically, honestly, I don't expect to win," he said. "I expect to give the people an option to update their government."

On June 24, 1972, Hanley became incensed at the inability of scores of security agents to stop the hijacking of an American Airlines jetliner at St. Louis' Lambert Field. He drove his convertible through a fence, sped down the runway and smashed it against the nose and landing gear of the Trio 'off the trip' after four months

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — When Robert Rubin went off on his would-be UFO trip to eternal happiness last fall, his wife said he'd be back in three months. It was more like four.

Rubin and two others who followed a mysterious couple called "The Two" promising a higher form of life on another planet through a ride in an unidentified flying object, are back in the state.

They say they are "off the trip" and urge their fellow travelers to take another look at the philosophy they have espoused.

Rubin and Roy and Judy Greenberg are back in the Waldport, Ore. area where a nationwide furor started when more than a dozen persons vanished after listening to the "Two" in September.

Rubin did his traveling by car, not UFO.

He and the Greenbergs in an interview Monday estimated perhaps 50 of the 400 persons who joined the movement nationwide have quit.

"As far as we know everyone who has followed them is all right physically," Rubin said. But they said anyone who has joined the movement and leaves may have some mental problems.

"You really get shattered," he said. "They told us I never believe the newspapers and I if we ever left this movement, we would self-destruct."

Mud slides claim 2
TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — Mud slides Monday swept away 40 shanties, constructed mostly of cardboard, wood and flattened tin cans.

A mother and her infant son were killed.

Police ordered the evacuation of the shantytowns that dot the hillsides of this city south of San Diego because heavy rain and flooding threatened to start mud slides.

Agricultural exports: our balance with the world.

This country needs the income derived from exporting our surplus food. Such income keeps our trade in balance with the rest of the world. And it keeps our dollars in balance.

The exporting of our food pays for the large amount of oil and other items we import.

The U.S.D.A. estimates that out of an expected wheat crop of some 2.2 billion bushels, only 800 million is needed at home. So if our farm surplus were not exported, it would have to be stockpiled.

Agricultural exports are needed. They are our balance with the world.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 35-year-old man who's in love with a beautiful, 28-year-old divorcee. I want to marry her, but she keeps wanting more time to think it over.

In the meantime, she's seeing another man, and I'm afraid he has the edge on me. You see, he's part Kickapoo Indian, and I hear Indians are superior to the white man when it comes to lovemaking. Closely guarded tribal secrets on how to satisfy a woman are passed down from father to son. If there is any truth to that, I'm willing to pay whatever is necessary to find out.

Let me say that I was married for four years, and I never had any complaints from my wife, but if Indians are better lovers than white men, I would like to find out why. Maybe your readers can help. Thank you.

ED IN EAST ILLINOIS

DEAR ED: I can offer two suggestions: Try The Bureau of Indian Affairs or the American Indian Movement.

Beau-seeks love secrets

DEAR ABBY: With reference to that ding-a-ling who is anxiously considering suing his parents for $100,000 for having had him circumcised as an infant—a "barbaric surgery, an assault on his person, which permanently maimed and disfigured him."—In my opinion, he was circumcised at the wrong end.

YIDDISH MAMA: SILVER SPRINGS, MD.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 50-year-old nurse who has been widowed for 15 years.

In the line of duty, I took care of a very attractive widower, age 39. When he left the hospital, he asked if he could see me again so we could get better acquainted. I agreed.

It took him nearly six months to call me, after which we started dating. I was on cloud eight! We've been going out for over a year now, and he proposed marriage. My problem is that he admits that he is still seeing several other women and says that until he has a definite answer from me he will continue to date others.

Abby, this has turned me off on him and made me skeptical of his so-called marriage proposal. I am losing my respect for him. If a man thinks enough of a woman to want to marry her, why would he want to date other women? How can I say yes tonight when I know he had another woman in his arms last night?

FRUSTRATED-AT-50

DEAR FRUSTRATED: My guess is that he is trying to maneuver you into an early decision. If you want to marry him, say yes. And until you do, he's a free agent.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teenagers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 152 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26¢) envelope.

'Mysterious' tree

RIDGWAY, Ill. (UPI) — Somebody has been mysteriously felling about a 500-pound tree stump from one house in Ridgway to another, and another. Residents are asking where will it wind up.

Since Jan. 11, the stump has showed up in a van, a garage and in front of several homes. It arrives mysteriously in the night and just as stealthily disappears a night or two later, sometimes reappearing on the same doorstep.

Iona Holmes, wife of Mayor J. B. Holmes, said the stump was cut off so a small building could be moved to make way for a fire department expansion.

Before the stump got away, Mrs. Holmes tied a red bow around it, and laced on a poem: "Roses are red, the stump is brown; it's the greatest attraction—in our whole town."

Utahan to represent nation's cub scouts

NORTH BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) — A 10-year-old Ogden, Utah, cub scout has been selected to represent the nation's 1.8 million cub scouts this month during the week long 66th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

Jett F. Hunsaker, the BSA's 1976 Cub Scout National Youth Representative, will present the youth organization's "Yearly Report to the Nation" before members of Congress Feb. 25.

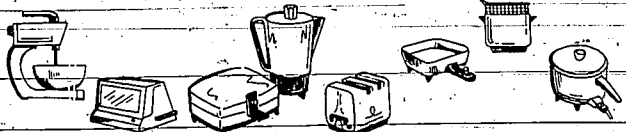

Hunsaker and three other scouts will also visit the White House and tour Capitol Hill that week.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Hunsaker, a student at H. Guy Child Elementary School, Hunsaker holds the rank of Webelos in cub scouts. He is a former native of Logan where he was awarded the Silver Medal by the BSA's Cache-Valley Council's.

Scout David E. Honigs of Topeka, Kan., and 1975 National Explorer-President Larry A. Carpenter of Raleigh, N.C. are the other national youth representatives.

Joining the three will be Star Scout Robert Gutierrez of Phoenix, Ariz.

Wonder what it costs to operate appliances?

Knowing approximate operating costs of appliances can help you to use electric energy more wisely. Accompanying each appliance below is its average electric consumption in annual kilowatt-hours.* The second column shows average costs in Idaho Power Company's service area, including the recent rate increase. The data below give an idea of relative costs, helping you to use your appliances to maximum advantage in terms of your own budget.

Mrs. Marsh's work has been claiming awards since 1925. Her work is in the permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum, New Jersey State Museum, Montclair Art Museum, Newark Public Library, Museum of Modern Art, Library of Congress, Philadelphia Museum and in private collections.

The exhibit consists of 15 watercolors and 15 prints, principally of rural or nature studies.

Enlarged heart causes concern elevation of blood pressure or valvular disturbance has to be watched.

"The key point in this is not that your heart may be slightly larger than an average man's, but whether the enlargement process has been noted on one examination to another over a recent period of time. The true size of the heart is determined by an X-ray of the chest. This shows the relationship of the heart dimensions to those of the chest."

Dear Dr. Theotson: I have been constipated despite my diet, which contains a good deal of high roughage foods. A friend has told me I eat because I drink a lot of tea. I also eat a lot of cheese. Does either cause constipation? — Mrs. A.E.

No food taken in moderation will cause constipation. Overdoing certain foods can.

In this sense both the tea and the cheese could be the cause of your constipation. Tea is an astringent. In excess it could have a disruptive effect on the bowel. Cheese is one of the low residue foods. Since it is low residue it leaves little material remaining after digestion and thus fails to promote essential lower bowel activity.

You should be sure that whatever roughage you are getting is taken on a regular basis along with the tea and cheese. I mean that you should not consider great quantities of tea and cheese as an adequate meal in themselves. People who gorge on cheese for a couple of days at the expense of other foods will experience constipation symptoms. Often the cause is simply not enough residue to form any fecal matter.

So you might alter your eating habits if this "shoe fits." Adding a bit of prune juice to your diet can be a simple matter. This has a good, natural laxative effect. If changing eating habits doesn't help matters, then you might suspect other factors. An X-ray of your colon (baelium enema) as well as direct examination by proctoscope would be in order.

My booklet, "How to Stop Constipation," goes into other aspects of the problem which space forbids here. Readers may get a copy by sending 25 cents to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Theotson: I have nodes in the groin, armpits, and on the breasts, plus some difficulty in swallowing. Please enlighten me. — Mrs. A.R.

You should see your physician immediately, because multiple locations of enlarged lymph nodes can be ominous. You don't provide sufficient information for me to comment beyond this. Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Theotson, in care of this newspaper, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Enclose a long, self-addressed stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Theotson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

the king of clubs and decided to shift to a trump. Three trump leads accounted for the trump suit, while two hearts were shed from dummy. Then South cashed his ace of diamonds and went into a huddle to end all huddles. East surely held eight clubs. He had played three spades and a diamond. Was his other card another diamond or a heart? Finally South decided to play for a 4-4 heart break. He led a heart, stuck in dummy's nine and had thrown away a slam. If South had thought clearly he would have realized that East would have doubled six spades to call for heart lead if he didn't hold any hearts.

Ask the Jacobys

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Part of top-flight competition in any game includes the thrust and counterthrust of measures designed to embarrass the other side.

East's five-club opening was designed for that purpose. It worked far beyond his wildest dreams, with a double being primarily for penalty, but North decided a seven-card heart suit was worth a slam.

South should have passed at six hearts, but the solid spade suit was too much temptation. He went to six spades.

East won the first trick with

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market opened mixed Tuesday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 0.7 point to 956.47 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 184 to 143, among the 501 issues crossing the tape.

Analysts said smaller issues have become more active recently, while institutions apparently have satisfied their buying needs for the time being.

Investors generally have been encouraged by signs the economy is improving, the nation's jobless rate is down and more than 800,000 persons found new work in January.

Government reports indicated consumers have gained confidence in the economy and have started buying. While business is good, some are watching for indications inflation might revive.

Profit taking, however, remains a factor, and some analysts said this would be healthy in the long run.

Gem sheep, lambs continue decline

BOISE (UPI) — The number of sheep and lambs on Idaho farms continued to decline during 1975, following a trend of recent years, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The current inventory on Jan. 1 was 536,000 head, down 10 per cent from the Jan. 1, 1975 inventory. Stock sheep totaled 520,000 head, a decline of seven per cent from the previous year. Sheep and lambs on feed dropped by 16,000 head.

The 1975 Idaho lamb crop is estimated at 560,000 head, 13 per cent less than the 1974 crop.

Nationally, the Jan. 1 inventory of all sheep and lambs was 173 million head, a decline of eight per cent during 1975. The total value of all sheep and lambs on hand is $496.5 million, compared with $481.9 million last year. This year's value of $37.50 per head is up sharply from last year's $30.40.

BURLEY — A beef cattle production program will be Friday at the Ramada Inn here.

The program begins at 10:30 a.m. It is sponsored by District II University of Idaho Cooperative Extension agricultural agents and specialists, under the direction of Cassia County Extension Agent Wayne Cole.

Protein and mineral supplements, disease and bull evaluations will be highlighted during the day, with a luncheon served at noon.

G. W. Gibson, extension livestock specialist, will talk on protein supplementation. Dr. Hank Mayland, research leader and solid scientist at Kimberly, will discuss mineral supplements.

Beef cattle diseases will be discussed by Dr. Richard Hall, extension veterinarian at the Caldwell Research Extension Center, and Dr. Floyd Frank, department head and dean of the College of Veterinary Medicine.

Bull grading, limits of beef cattle improvement, bull testing and record use and selection of physical traits will be discussed in the afternoon.

Spud futures hit skids; cattle show solid gains

COURTESY SHELDRUP & CO. CHICAGO — Potatoes declined while most other commodity futures were unchanged to slightly higher or lower Monday.

The May delivery of Idaho-russel potatoes closed at 12.10 per hundredweight, a 50 cent decline.

Commodity News Service said Maine potato futures closed from limit down in May to 8 lower in new crop November. Heavy selling by a major commercial and speculative interest followed word that Belgian officials had rejected a shipment of United States table stock spuds. The shipment was resold and directed to Mediterranean ports. Exports of seed potatoes to Belgium and other overseas destinations continue.

Traders said market action reflected fears of nervous longs that an export market in Europe would not develop, while others said the market fell on evening up prior to the stocks in storage report due Thursday.

Live cattle closed with solid gains behind improved support, as short covering before midday advanced the market, although profit taking softened prices somewhat. Higher cash prices and an improved tone in dressed channels were constructive factors.

Hog futures strengthened after the opening but nearby months softened later, closing lower for the day. February led the decline with a 37 point loss while April and June closed 12 and 7 points lower. July through October were 5 to 25 points higher while December and February closed unchanged. Light hedge selling in summer deliveries was noted, and the slip toward the close resulted from weaker dressed pork demand and a more cautious attitude by packers in the live market.

Pork bellies broke sharply in late trading, setting new lows for the day before rebounding on short covering. Closing prices were mostly just over the day's lows, with February down 127 points, while May lost 175 and distant August was off 150. Local profit taking and day-closing sales on other offerings eroded values.

Corn eased late in the day, with closing prices down half a cent to 1 1/2 cents after persistent light hedging and speculative pressure from selling which spread from the wheat pit. Chicago spot basis increased 2 1/2 cents, but corn in boxcars was at 3 over March and hoppers were at 4 over by the close.

Wheat lost early gains, closing unchanged to 2 cents higher after longs liquidated on private reports of moisture deficit. Weather controlled the market, in absence of other concerns. Selling pressure pulled the day's lows to a cent to 2 cents under Friday, before light short covering brought prices to their final level. Colombia and Brazil are prospective buyers at midweek.

Soybean and product futures labored through an uneventful day of mostly lower prices before closing beans fractions to 3/4 cents easier, meal down 20 cents to 1.70 and oil unchanged to 12 points. Some observers attribute the market to attempts to capitalize on wheat strength, which was inadequate.

Reports of lower sugar beet yields for the 1975-76 season produced a flurry of trading which advances Sugar 11 from a narrow 15 point trading range and moved them about 40 points higher. Volume was 4,984 lots. The world spot price was up 4 cent at 13.7 cents a pound and the domestic spot was up 4 cents at 15.3 cents a pound.

New York silver, supported by grain in the morning, closed near the low after losing about 300 points on a trade placed at 4.683 contracts.

New York gold eased down in light selling throughout the day, closing $164.00 off on an estimated 1,165 contracts. Short covering pulled April up to a close 100 points down.

Idaho milk output gains in December

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho milk cows produced 122 million pounds of milk during December 1975, up 10 percent from the same month in 1974, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

The number of milk cows on farms in Idaho during December totaled 115,000, down three percent from a year earlier, the report said. Milk production per cow in December averaged 840 pounds, up 50 pounds from a year ago.

Idaho producers received $9.21 per hundredweight during December for milk used in the production of American cheese. This was 25 cents more than the November level and $2.27 above a year ago.

Producers averaged $9.95 for milk going to butter plants during December. This was 45 cents more than the November average and $2.80 above a year earlier.

Butter production in Idaho during December totaled 750,000 pounds, compared with 1,210,000 in December 1974. Idaho American cheese production for December was 5,100,000 pounds, up 26 percent from the 4,048,000 pounds produced in December 1974.

Ice cream production in Idaho during December totaled 215,000 gallons, compared with 236,000 gallons produced a year earlier.

A WAY TO BORROW MONEY THAT'S SIMPLE, EASY TO UNDERSTAND AND CAN BE LESS COSTLY

It's First Security Bank's new Timeway Simple Interest Loan.

This Timeway Loan is simple because you pay interest only on the amount of your loan that you still owe. You actually are borrowing on a day-to-day basis paying interest only for the money you use for the time you use it.

A Timeway Simple Interest Loan can be less costly because now you have the option to make early monthly payments or pay extra amounts in advance, thereby reducing the loan balance and the amount of interest you pay.

And, your Timeway Simple Interest Loan is easier to understand because it's written for you in simple language.

There are other Timeway Simple Interest advantages too, such as a payment holiday if you need it. So talk to your First Security banker today. He'll give you all the details.

Question arises as to whether overweight women engage more frequently than the thinner girls in that thing called physical romance. No, our Love and War man has turned up a doctoral dissertation which purports to prove that the pleasingly plump and the slender ladies are just about equally active in this matter. Their desires, however, are not quite equal, evidently. The study indicates the women with the excess pounds are more inclined than the lighter girls to crave such passionate encounters.

ELVIS

Q. "Is Elvis Presley a tenor or a baritone?"
A. A baritone. But he's niftier on the higher notes than on the lower notes.

It's said the only animal in the world with four knees is the elephant.

Hold on, don't carry your disposable butane cigarette lighter aboard that airplane. It's liable to explode at the high altitude and blowing light fire all over the place. Dangerous. Very dangerous.

Did you ever see a picture of Abraham Lincoln spitting nails with an A? So have I. A technical error, that, Abe and all rail splitters of the day used wedges and nails for such work. But never axes.

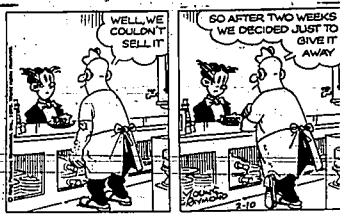

CAESAR SALAD

Everybody knows it was the late Caesar Cardini who invented the famous Caesar salad. But few realize it was Chet L. Switell who made said salad famous. Chet is a seasoned public relations man who has dealt with projects of such notables as Charlie Chaplin and Howard Hughes among others. It was Chet who told me how Frank Epperson one night slipped orange soda on his front porch, then put the half-filled paper cup down on the floor, placed a melted teaspoon in it, and went inside to get warm. Bitter cold came. Next morning young Frank found the frozen concoction which eventually led to the sale yearly of three billion popcicles.

Can you identify that single substance more than any other that supplies food for the human race? Say starch.

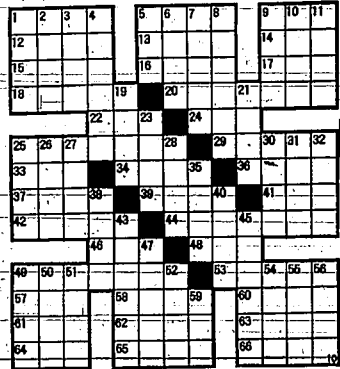

No, I'm not the one who claimed Americans have picked up an extra three inches of spread across their backsides in recent years. The American Seating Company of Grand Rapids, Mich., disclosed that.

FAMILY CIRCUS

Crop value in 1975 $983 million

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service has placed the 1975 value of crops produced by Idaho farmers, excluding sugarcane, at $983 million, a six per cent decline from last year's $1,051 million.

The service said the decrease from last year resulted primarily from lower production values for grain and dry beans. Commodities showing increases included hay and onions. Idaho farmers harvested crops from 4.6 million acres last year, virtually the same as the year before although crops grown on the acreages varied. Sugarcane harvested acres jumped to 67,600 acres in 1975, an increase of 74 per cent.

Other crops showing increases were barley, oats, corn, beans.

mink, lentils and green peas for processing. Declines in acres harvested were recorded for winter wheat, mixed grain, hay, peas, potatoes, seeds, hops and sweet corn for processing.

The 1975 crop production index at 115.8 (1967 equals 100) registered a slight increase from last year. Production increases for sugarcane, barley and several other crops contributed to this gain. Nearly offsetting the gains were decreases recorded for potatoes and dry edible peas.

The production level for spring wheat in Idaho during 1975 was the highest since 1959. All hay was the highest on record as a result of higher yields on hays other than alfalfa. Commercial dry beans also achieved a record high due to increased acreage. Crop yields on Idaho's leading crops last year were generally below 1974, except small grains, all hay, lentils and other less significant crops.

Nationally, total crop production reached a new high in 1975, exceeding the 1973 record and rebounding sharply from the low 1974 record. Increased acres harvested accounted for the new record production. Only the major crop of soybeans had a record yield.

Average of principal crops harvested in 1975 totaled 325 million acres, two per cent above 1974. Producers harvested more acres of corn for grain, sorghum for grain, oats, barley, winter wheat, durum wheat, rice, popcorn, soybeans, sugarbeets, sugarcane, tobacco and hay.

Idaho farm prices show January gain

BOISE (UPI) — Prices received by Idaho farmers and ranchers for most major commodities were slightly higher Jan. 15 than a month earlier, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

Slight price increases were recorded for oats, barley, mixed grain, apples, potatoes, beef cows, calves, lambs, wool, milk cows and milk sold to plants.

Price declines were noted for dry beans, dry peas, beef cattle, hogs and eggs. Prices on wheat and alfalfa hay were unchanged from the previous month.

Compared with levels a year ago, most crop prices were lower, except for apples, potatoes and alfalfa hay. Livestock and livestock products are also up from the previous year.

Prices paid by Idaho farmers for a selected group of feed concentrates on Jan. 15 were slightly lower or unchanged from a month earlier, the service report said. Prices for soybean meal and chick starter were unchanged, while the remainder of the selected feed concentrates declined. All prices were below levels a year ago.

New Low Tar Entry Packs Taste Of Cigarettes Having 60% More Tar.

'Enriched Flavor' idea succeeds—increases taste of new 9 mg. tar MERIT without the usual increase in tar.

You can write today for a study conducted by the American Institute of Consumer Opinion for Philip Morris showing that 9 mg. tar MERIT delivers as much—or more—flavor than higher tar brands—brands having up to 60% more tar.

The reason is 'Enriched Flavor.' An extraordinary new flavor-process developed by Philip Morris researchers.

'Enriched Flavor' is extra flavor. Natural flavor. Flavor that can't burn-out, can't fade out, can't do anything but come through for you.

And it's only in MERIT. At 9 mg. tar, one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today.

If you're looking to become a low tar smoker, or don't particularly enjoy the taste of the low tar brand you smoke now—you'll be interested.

Low Tar, Good Taste: Filters Fall Short

At first, we tried designing special filters. Like others, our results were generally disappointing.

These results confirmed a belief that if there was any way to get flavor—real flavor—into a low tar cigarette, the answer had to lie somewhere in the tobacco itself.

So we focused on the business end of smoking. The tobacco end. And decided if we wanted to get more flavor through to you, we'd just have to start with more.

After a twelve-year effort, our Richmond Research Center succeeded. They isolated the "key" flavor ingredients of tobacco as they exist in cigarette smoke.

By fortifying tobacco with those natural ingredients that proved to be high flavor yet low tar producers, they were able to pack MERIT with 'Enriched Flavor'—without the usual corresponding increase in tar.

Taste-Tested By People Like You

9 mg. tar MERIT was taste-tested against five current leading low tar brands ranging from 11 mg. to 15 mg. tar.

Thousands of filter smokers were involved, smokers like yourself, tested at home.*

The results were conclusive.

Even if the cigarette tested had 60% more tar than MERIT, a significant majority of all smokers tested reported new 'Enriched Flavor' MERIT delivered more taste.

Repeat: delivered more taste.

In similar tests against 11 mg. to 15 mg. menthol brands, 9 mg. tar MERIT MENTHOL performed strongly too, delivering as much—or more—taste than the higher tar brands tested.

You've been smoking "low tar, good taste" claims long enough. Now you've got the cigarette.

MERIT. Incredible smoking pleasure at one of the lowest tar levels in smoking today—only 9 mg. tar.
