

today in brief

Ford calls press conference

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The White House announced today that President Ford will hold a televised news conference at 6 p.m. MST in the East Room to disclose his proposals to reform U. S. intelligence agencies.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that Ford will open the news conference with about a five-minute statement on his recommendations to reorganize intelligence operations.

Ford's reform package will not be submitted to Congress until noon Wednesday.

Envoy not ill

MOSCOW (UPI)—A United States embassy spokesman said Monday reports that Ambassador Walter Stoessel Jr. is suffering from a "mysterious blood ailment" are misleading.

The spokesman said Stoessel spent the past weekend skiing. The suspected ailment was linked to reported radiation from bugging of the embassy by the Soviet secret police.

Church wants pressure on Moscow

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI)—Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, opened the World Conference on Soviet Jews today by urging President Ford to pressure the Soviet government to give better treatment to its Jews.

"I believe that President Ford and Secretary of State (Henry A.) Kissinger could, if they wished, more affirmatively manifest to the Soviet government the concern of the American people for more humane treatment of Soviet Jews," Church said.

Demo chief scores Nixon trip

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chairman Robert Strauss of the Democratic National Committee said today President Ford should ask Richard Nixon to abandon his plans for a return trip to China.

At the very least, he said, Ford should make it clear to the Chinese that the former president is traveling there with "no authority."

Hopeful Demo

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Bernard Schecter, like a 20th-century Don Quixote, believes someone can rise from the public banks and reach the White House.

To prove it, the 57 year old retired Air Force colonel is running for the Democratic presidential nomination in New Hampshire. And like any other candidate for office, he is talking confidently of winning.

IRA bombs wreck stores, start fires

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—The Irish Republican Army kept up its revenge bombing campaign in downtown Belfast today, blowing up at least two department stores and setting off a fire that threatened the entire block.

Three gunmen entered the Cooperative department store on Deogall street, planted a bomb on the ground floor and left shouting a warning while panic-stricken customers rushed to the doors.

The gunmen ran only a few yards to Meenan's store where they repeated the performance before escaping in an automobile waiting with its motor running.

The explosions took place nearly one hour later and police said no one was injured. The blasts set both stores on fire and firemen struggled to get the flames under control.

Dress contractors lock out workers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Job contractors in the dress industry today began a lockout of dressmakers in protest over a contract recently negotiated with the garment workers union.

A spokesman for the International Ladies Garment Workers Union said "some contractor shops in Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx have locked out workers today, but it does not appear to involve too many."

Mercenaries return, rap organization

LONDON (UPI)—A group of Angola-bound mercenaries who never reached the war zone returned to London today, complaining that the mercenary army was badly organized.

The 22 men, including an American identified only as Robert Edward Fofi, were taken into custody at Kinshasa, Zaire, en route to Angola after President Mobutu Sese Seko banned mercenaries from passing through his country.

The men were sent back to London via Brussels.

Breeder reactor given boost

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Continuation of the controversial liquid fast breeder reactor—the next generation of nuclear power now in the development stage—won the enthusiastic endorsement of a congressional review committee today.

Despite its already heavy cost overruns, an increasing concern over its safety and environmental impact, "a high priority effort" was urged for the breeder on grounds that it is "essential to the energy future of the nation."

Addressing itself to arguments that the breeder—called because it produces more atomic energy than it consumes—is being advanced without any plans for doing away with its wastes, the review committee recommended "serious consideration" to legislation creating "energy centers."

These centers would be set up specifically to reduce risks against theft of nuclear materials and increase protection of nuclear facilities against sabotage. The idea is to collect the hazardous materials in one place to reduce risks.

The endorsement for the breeder comes from the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy's subcommittee set up to review the national breeder reactor program. The subcommittee report was being made public today.

The joint committee is generally considered pro-nuclear and the subcommittee chairman, Rep. Mike McCormack, D-Wash., is a former nuclear scientist.

For its study the subcommittee held a series of hearings in which it called industry, government and academic and public witnesses. Generally, the review committee operated on the theory that the country's energy demands would increase at about 3 per cent a year and that the gap between this demand and available domestic supplies would have to be filled by coal and uranium, the latter for nuclear power plants.

But the subcommittee says future uranium supplies at marketable prices are questionable.

As a result, and recognizing this "likely inability of uranium supplies to economically support the future energy load projected for nuclear power," the country must, on "an urgent basis," turn to the breeder.

When first conceived about 25 years ago, the breeder was expected to cost around $30 million for the demonstration plant now under construction on the Clinch River near Oak Ridge, Tenn. Latest estimates is that the breeder will cost around $1.7 billion, the congressional study group said, despite its problems that "the time has come to end the discussion over whether or not this nation should have a breeder research-and-development program."

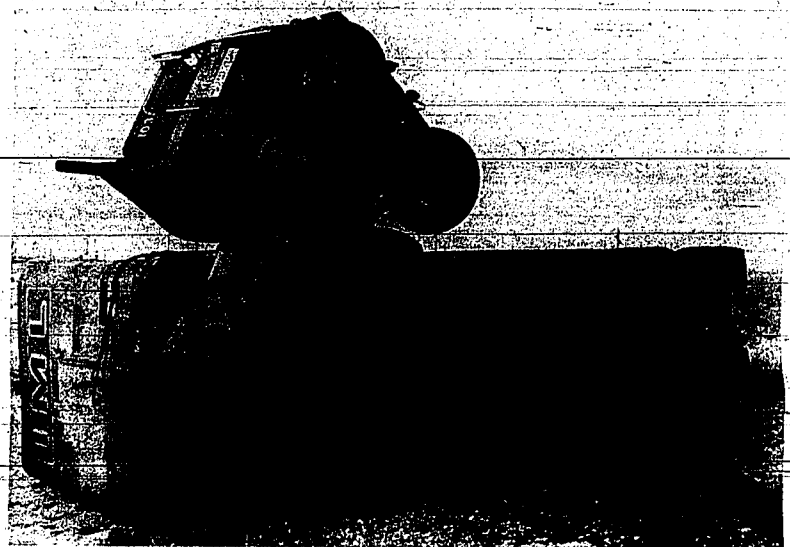

"Hence, national attention should be turned toward solving the outstanding problems associated with the program and its eventual commercialization," the subcommittee concludes.

The subcommittee, in its final report, appeared almost disdainful of concerns that plutonium manufactured through nuclear power could cause cancer in human beings.

It said that about 5 tons of toxic substance has been injected into the atmosphere, through weapons testing and that about 4 tons of this heavy human being in the Northern Hemisphere is carrying a measurable amount of plutonium in his body. Although these atmospheric weapons tests occurred more than a decade ago, there is no indication this plutonium deposition has caused any unusual health effects," the report states.

The breeder reactor was "since considered the principal answer to the country's future energy needs. A few years ago, though, the Nixon administration began questioning whether the program was hazardous. Decisions since have been to go ahead with the program, largely because of the money already spent on it.

Snow mishap claims TF man

YELLOW PINE—Gilbert Terrel, 42, Twin Falls, died Sunday of head injuries suffered in a snowmobile accident near here Saturday night. He died while being taken to Cascade by Snow Cat. A helicopter rescue was aborted because of bad weather.

A snowmobiling companion of Terrel, Rose Musick, 27, Boise, suffered a broken shoulder, broken ribs and a broken hip in the accident. She was flown to a Boise hospital by fixed-wing aircraft and was reported in satisfactory condition Monday.

Valley County Sheriff Derold Lynskey said the plane was instructed to PEEK UP MUSICK because it could carry only one passenger. Terrel required constant medical care and it was assumed the helicopter could pickup him and a registered nurse for a flight to a hospital, Lynskey said.

The accident occurred about 11 p.m. Saturday. Deputy Sheriff Jim Maxwell said Terrel and Musick were about one-eighth mile east of Yellow Pine when the left runner of the snowmobile apparently hooked a tree, throwing both riders into the tree.

Musick climbed back aboard the snowmobile and headed for Yellow Pine. Another group of snowmobilers found her near a bridge on the edge of town.

Maxwell said Musick "couldn't remember much about the accident or where it occurred." It took the snowmobilers about two hours to find Terrel.

Terrel and Musick were brought to Yellow Pine about 1:30 a.m. Sunday, where two registered nurses administered first aid while two residents headed for Cascade on snowmobiles, arriving there about 4 a.m.

Terrel owned the Ditch Witch of Idaho franchise in Twin Falls.

Mr. T-N says

There's one thing about this weather—it has something for everyone, sooner or later.

BEAVER—Utah—John A. Stevens, 25, Gooding, died Monday night in a one-car accident on icy Interstate 15 south of here.

Stevens was a passenger in a car driven by William Forsyth, 22, Provo, Utah. The Utah Highway Patrol said the northbound vehicle rolled on the freeway because of heavy ice.

Stevens was dead at the scene six miles south of here. Forsyth was hospitalized in good condition.

Revised contracts OK'd for MVMH specialists

By LINDALEE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Revised contracts for hospital pathologists and radiologists were announced Monday night by the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Board.

The contracts were revised to establish a sliding scale for payment of doctors, administering the two departments. The new fee schedules give the doctors proportionally less as the size of their department income grows.

According to hospital officials, the contracts will hold average physician income in the two departments to between $30,000 and $43,000 a year, assuming four pathologists and three radiologists are at work.

Under the old contracts, the pathologists and radiologists had been paid a flat $2.5 per cent of after-expense income of their departments, with the rest going to the hospital. The new contracts provide separate fee schedules for the two departments.

Dr. Robert H. Maier was signed as new head of the department of pathology.

Dr. C. R. McWilliams continues as head of radiology, a position he has held since 1950. Since Maier and McWilliams are independent contractors with the hospital, they are not considered to be hospital employees. Their services are compensated for by providing them with a percentage of the gross profit from their departments, according to Hospital Administrator James Rosenbaum.

They in turn, employ other doctors in the departments.

In the department of pathology, Dr. Maier will receive as a fee 17 per cent of the monthly income after expenses if that figure ranges between $30,000 and $24,999; 7 per cent if between $25,000 and $29,999; 6 per cent if between $30,000 and $34,999; and 5 per cent for a monthly income after expenses that is $35,000 or above.

In the department of radiology, Dr. McWilliams will receive as a fee 30 per cent of the monthly income after expenses if that figure ranges between $10,000 and $14,999; 30 per cent if between $15,000 and $19,999; 32 per cent if between $20,000 and $24,999; and 30 per cent for a monthly income after expenses that is $25,000 or above.

or above. How the chief pathologist and radiologist divide this money up is their private business, according to hospital attorney Fred Decker.

Rosenbaum said he expects the department of radiology to operate with three radiologists and the department of pathology to operate with two pathologists by the end of the year.

Another change in the new contracts refers to the "direct expenses" which are deducted from the monthly incomes before the percentages for fees are applied.

The old contract defined direct expenses as salaries to non-professionals, supplies, and repairs and maintenance.

The new contract defines direct expenses as the same for last year but includes equipment, lease rental and interest, and the depreciation equipment.

Rosenbaum said the percentage of the monthly income after direct expenses which is held for the hospital and not paid in fees is used to pay other expenses of running these departments. He said the other expenses included heating, lighting, housekeeping, billing, paper, forms, hospital insurance, and other such items. Another new aspect of the pathology and radiology contracts is a provision which provides for the possibility of separate billing for the departments.

The contract states that the board will accept proposals for the radiologist and the pathologist to bill patients separately for their professional services. In that case the hospital would also bill the patient for the expense of providing the service.

However, Rosenbaum said the contract did not include a proposal for separate billing would be approved only if considered.

Another change in the radiology and pathology contracts this year is a provision for review of the contracts at three month intervals.

One of the reasons to modify the contracts, according to Decker, could be an increase in charges for services rendered by the departments.

"If the charges for services are changed, then the percentages for fees can be re-examined and re-determined," Decker said.

Hideout visited
MAKING HER way through a crowd, Patricia Hearst, arrow, is escorted by U.S. marshals as she arrives at the Golden Gate Avenue hideout where she was held after she was kidnaped two years ago. Under tight security, the jury in her bank robbery trial toured the apartment along with Miss Hearst, attorneys and U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter. (UPI)

Patty's own words may be heist trial verdict key
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's own words may determine the verdict in her bank robbery trial.
 "If the jury believes Patty, that's the end of the case," says her lawyer, F. Lee Bailey.
 After an emotionally charged visit to two hideouts where the Symbionese Liberation Army held her captive in closets, Miss Hearst was to resume her testimony today.
 The newspaper helress, who will be 22 Friday, appeared terrified and near collapse Monday when she accompanied the jury in a defense-requested tour of an apartment and house in which, she has said, the SLA kept her in closets for nine weeks, brainwashing and sexually molesting her while she was held.
 At one point, as she left the San Francisco apartment, with residents watching from windows and reporters pressing close, she was kept from collapsing by two marshals who grasped her waist and arms.
 "When she first went into the apartment closet, she sobbed and cried," said Bailey's associate, attorney Albert Johnson. "She was reluctant to go."
 "I had to hold her up. I thought she was going to faint."
 Then Miss Hearst was transported 13 miles by car in the rain to the first site of her SLA imprisonment, a small house south of San Francisco in a Daly City tract development.
 She was driven directly into the garage to protect her from public exposure and possible threats to her life. She spent 25 minutes in the house, then was returned in a driving rain.

Amnesty request to Spanish king

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — A church leader publicly asked King Juan Carlos today to grant an amnesty that would free Spain's remaining 1,000 political prisoners.
 The appeal was made on the second day of the king's official visit to Catalonia during services at the historic monastery of Montserrat, the spiritual center of that northeastern region.
 "Our hearts are filled with desires of reconciliation and amnesty, participation and recognition of the rights of the Catalan people," Abbot Mossen Cassi just said in a homily. "We pray for the reconciliation as the fruit of a generous amnesty for the political prisoners."
 A total amnesty of political prisoners has been put forward as the main political issue during the early stages of Juan Carlos' reign by the Basque and France regime's partial royal pardon decreed by Juan Carlos in the first days of his reign has been widely criticized as insufficient.
 Juan Carlos and Queen Sophia are visiting Spain's troubled northeastern region in an attempt to show Madrid's interest for its problems.
 The four Catalan provinces — Spain's richest — often chafed under the rule of the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco. They are pressing for democratic freedoms and home rule. Barcelona and other Catalan towns have been the scene of street demonstrations involving tens of thousands of persons.

storm to St. Mateo County jail.
 A guard of 25 U.S. marshals and a police kept watch in her automobile caravan to the two residences. Threats from the underground New World Liberation Front which last week claimed responsibility for a bombing at the Hearst San Simeon estate intensified the security arrangements.
 As Miss Hearst was driven from the Daly City garage, a female marshal sitting with her in the back seat threw herself against the helress to shield her. Miss Hearst, had expressed fears of assassination from radical groups seeking retribution for her testimony against the SLA, her lawyers said.
 Johnson said Miss Hearst probably would testify for two more days under direct examination by Bailey. He said the defense expected to call about six more witnesses and would wind up its case in a week.

Baily later said the witnesses would include three brainwash experts, two lie detector specialists and a psychologist.
 Federal Judge Oliver Carter used the President's Birthday court holiday for the first time.
 Although brought to court in handcuffs each day, Miss Hearst was not manacled during the tour. It was reported the reason was the belief that seeing her shackled might prejudice the jury against her.
 Johnson said a plan to have Miss Hearst and the jury also visit the bank Monday was postponed because "the bonding company insuring the bank would not allow it to be opened on a holiday."

Annexation tax impact spread under new bill

BOISE (UPI) — House taxwriters agreed Monday to introduce legislation easing the tax impact on property owners when they are annexed to cities.

This bill provides that only one third of the additional property taxes take effect the first year and only two-thirds the second. The full impact of the city taxes would not be felt until the third year.

Rep. W. Israel Merrill, D-Blackfoot, said he favored the theory but that he felt the proposal would be difficult for county assessors to administer.

Ada County Assessor Mike Clark agreed, saying he would have to have additional funds for accounting. He said it especially would be difficult if reappraisal were under way in the annexed area at the same time. But the father of the proposal, Rep. Perry Swisher, D-Pocahontas, said the assessor could cope with that simply by setting up the annexed area on a different roll.

"I wasn't writing this bill for the assessors, of course," Swisher said. "I was thinking of a person called the taxpayer."

Rep. Ray Infanger, R-Salmon, asked if it would not be easier merely to exempt the annexed area from the additional taxation for two years.

Swisher said he thought about it but that this would create two classes of citizens, thereby provoking constitutional problems with the bill. Merrill said he felt the legislation was eroding the cities' constitutional powers which, he said, "have stood the test of time."

In committee, persons in favor of the compensation measure said it simply would give property owners the right to petition the court for damages when property is rezoned.

Richard Greener, representing the Idaho Home Builders Association, said the compensation measure represents "a revitalization of our concern for our individual property rights."

But Dick Eardley, Boise mayor, representing the Association of Idaho Cities, said it would enable speculators to profit. He also questioned if a person's property were zoned for more uses.

"Shouldn't you also force a local property owner to pay if he should be benefited by a change in zone?" Eardley said.

He claimed that the measure would "remove all semblance of planning and zoning in Idaho."

The bill, which the committee sent to the Senate, provides that "a governing board shall not adopt or amend a zoning ordinance, or take any other action, which decreases the economic value of previously zoned real property, or which forbids or restricts a previously allowed or allowable use of real property" without providing "just compensation."

A technical amendment was made to the bill late Monday. It soon will be up for consideration by the Senate as a whole.

Another measure which the Senate local government and taxation committee will consider would effectively eliminate all comprehensive planning. The bill passed by the house last week would prohibit private land to be considered comprehensive plans until written permission from the land owner was obtained.

Prospects for the bill now appear dim. "I think that the possibility of the bill getting out of committee is very remote," Cobbs said. He expected that his committee would be considering the proposal within the next few weeks.

But Yost had another view. "I wouldn't be surprised if what we don't vote on House Bill 389 on the floor," he said.

He said he would support the compensation measure.

"I like that bill because I don't think the state should be involved in planning private property," he said.

Yost said he also would support the compensation measure.

"I don't think that the state or a planning agency should deprive an individual of his private property without due process or compensation."

High said he is not yet familiar with the compensation bill and would not comment on why he voted for the governor's regional hearing bill. But he did say he "would have to oppose" the bill which would require written permission from a land owner before his property could be planned.

High said this measure "in fact does great damage to people's property rights in that it destroys about 30 years of local progress in zoning."

In general, he said the Senate's vote against the governor's land use legislation "indicates somewhat of a shift away from land use planning." Saxvick supported getting the compensation measure out of committee, but would not take a position on the proposal.

"Don't nail me down yet," he said, when asked how he would vote.

"I support the principle, but I'm a little bit scared about the mechanics," he said. He questioned in particular how and from whom the money would be found to pay the compensation. He also said passage of the bill is not "critical" because land owners already have recourse to the courts in the event of unfavorable zoning decisions.

Perry said he would oppose the compensation measure. He said it could lead to several problems. Specifically, he said some property owners might attempt to have their land down zoned in order to obtain the economic benefit while still keeping the land in the same use.

Barker said he was not directly familiar with the compensation measure.

On the floor of the Senate, Barker said he had supported the initial land use bill last year and said it was a good local-control measure. But he questioned the means provided in the regional hearing bill for settling up regional hearings and opposed the measure.

Planned City

The largest Historic Landmark in the United States is the old city of Savannah, Ga. Founded in 1733 by Gen. James Oglethorpe, on the Savannah River, 18 miles up in stream from the Atlantic Ocean, Savannah was the first planned city in what is now the United States.

Gem school funds win OK in House

BOISE (UPI) — The second regular session of the 43rd Idaho Legislature made a major budget decision Monday when the House approved 66-1 an $85 million general fund appropriation for public schools.

Already approved by the Senate, 35-0, the appropriation goes now to the governor for his consideration. It represents a 10 per cent increase from last year and a 1.1 increase from what Gov. Cecil D. Andrus recommended.

"We wish the appropriation could be larger," Appropriations Chairman William Roberts, R-Boise, told the House. "We recommend it as a figure we feel is tentatively adequate for support of the public schools."

Roberts spoke for five minutes and there was no opposition debate. Earlier, the House debated an election bill for 25 minutes before killing it.

Besides the $85 million from the general fund the bill approved Monday also includes up to $8.2 million revenue sharing from the federal government. Roberts said the federal sum depends on whether the Congress extends revenue sharing. If it does not, he said, there will be only $6.5 million for the schools.

Because the public school appropriation is the largest single item in the general fund budget a decision on the spending level in this area plays a large role in determining options available for other state-supported programs.

House OK's filing law

BOISE (UPI) — Despite fears it could jeopardize results of the next election, the House refused 23-44 today to repeal the law requiring candidates for the House to run "head to head."

This law, enacted at the last session of the legislature, requires a candidate to file for seat "at-large" or seat "in-district" and not run at large in the manner present House members were elected.

Flour sponsor Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, said there is a serious constitutional question about the law. He said it could mean that the second highest vote getter in the district might be defeated for office.

If the law is challenged successfully in the courts, he said, it could result in the overturning of this year's House elections.

"It's an extremely high price to pay for a little self-satisfaction of those serving in the legislature," he said.

Rep. J. Vard Chattran, R-Albion, led the attack on the repealer, saying that "running at large makes it difficult to tell for whom a candidate is campaigning and difficult to explain a program or run on a record.

"Nothing is unconstitutional until the Supreme Court says so," Chattran said.

Nothing is unconstitutional until the Supreme Court says so, Chattran said. Nothing is unconstitutional until the Supreme Court Justices and district judges are elected in the same manner, he said he doubted if the courts would overturn this system for the House.

Bill pulled back

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, asked and received consent from the Senate Monday to return to the Judiciary and Rules Committee his bill which would repeal Idaho's libel law.

Although he said he felt there was a problem, Risch said it had been brought to his attention that the bill would not affect the bigger media outlets but could have a possible "disastrous" effect on smaller newspapers and radio stations.

"I want to have another look at the bill before running it on the floor," Risch said.

Pay boosts OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — Per diem increases for three state boards from $25 to $50 per day were approved with a minimum of debate Monday by the Idaho Senate.

The increases would be for members of the Transportation Board, Board of Education and Retirement Board.

Sen. Lester Hartvigsen, D-Madison, said he didn't feel it was "right to raise just for a few." He said if the legislature was going to make per diem increases for board members it should increase the compensation for other boards.

Inspection defeated

BOISE (UPI) — Repeal of Idaho's vehicle safety inspection law once again passed the Senate and was sent to the House today by a vote of 24-11.

The Senate approved the repealer last year, but that measure died in the House.

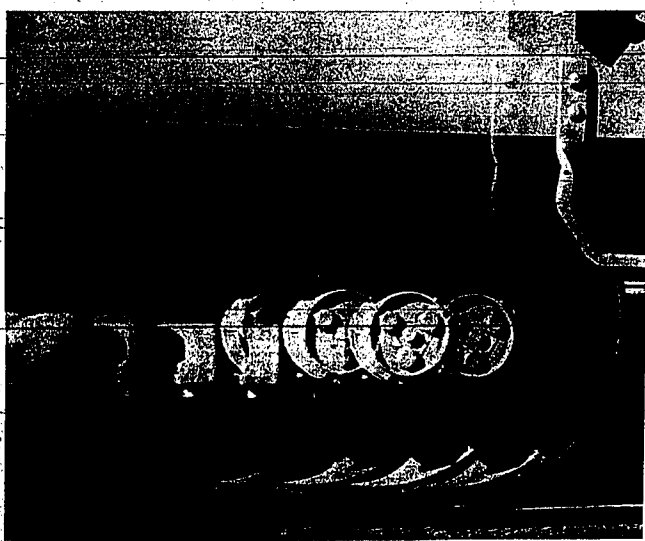

Urging adoption of the repealer, Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, the bill's sponsor, said the program has not worked and, for the first eight years, the citizens of Idaho have "been ripped off."

Repealer introduced

BOISE (UPI) — The House Health and Welfare Committee voted to introduce a bill Monday to repeal statutes requiring the appointment of guardians for mentally handicapped persons.

Curtis Eaton, an attorney for the State Health and Welfare Department, said the present law requires the appointment of a guardian for all purposes for a mentally handicapped person.

The proposal would allow the court to appoint a guardian to handle expressly delineated responsibilities.

Beefalo promises new ranching era

The beefalo, a cross between ordinary cattle and the American bison that once roamed the plains by the millions, is starting to make a little headway in the meat business after 15 years of experimental breeding.

Kenneth Schwartz of Rundale Realty Corp., New York, owns three small herds of beefalo and has sold a number of farmers on the idea of breeding them.

Schwartz said at least four associations are promoting the breeding of the beefalo, primarily as a means to conserve grain. There are a number of other prominent breeders, among them Jim Barnett who runs herds at Boulder, Colo., and in Texas.

Pioneer farmers on the Great Plains attempted to cross the bison with domestic cattle. The calves always were stillborn or malformed and sterile. But in the past 15 years the hardy, shaggy bison has been crossed successfully with Charolais and Hereford beef cattle and Holstein dairy cattle by means of artificial insemination.

Schwartz said it probably will be about seven more years before ranchers experimenting with beefalo will know for sure whether it will win wide public acceptance.

"The big attraction of the beefalo," Schwartz said, "is that he doesn't have to be fed any grain. He feeds on grass and roughage, even such rugged roughage as ground almond shells, cactus or swamp weeds."

According to an article by Tony Tedeschi in the American Airlines magazine, American way, the beefalo also stands extreme cold and heat, like his bison ancestors and is nearly immune to most cattle diseases.

Tedeschi's article said the beefalo steer puts fat-free meat on his frame as rapidly or better than the Charolais or Hereford - and the meat is just as tender and flavorful.

In frontier days, buffalo meat or "wild beef," had the reputation of being tough and a little gamey, perhaps, Schwartz said, because so many very old bison were slaughtered for market in those days.

Basolo estimated 2,000 ranchers in the country are raising few beefalo now and he sees the number perhaps doubling each year.

But some cattle experts have their fingers crossed. They point out that in the long history of the western range many breeds have been hailed as the miraculous critter who would make every rancher rich and put cheap beef on every dinner table in the country.

Bayh 'fed up, frustrated' by nation's course

EDITOR'S NOTE: Candidates for the presidential nomination of their parties, and other political leaders, were invited by Newspaper Enterprise Association to contribute articles concerning presidential character.

BY BIRCH BAYH Political prognostication is always risky. But I am confident that in November of 1978 the American people will elect a Democrat to the presidency who has the vision to see what must be done to set us on the right course once more and the will and determination to do it.

On Oct. 21 I announced my candidacy because like many Americans I am fed up and frustrated. I am fed up with programs that don't work and with the politics as usual approach of so-called leaders who shrink from making hard decisions.

When a president vetoes legislation to create critically needed public service jobs while more than eight million Americans are unemployed, it is time for a change.

When a president vetoes emergency housing legislation that would create jobs for unemployed construction workers and make it easier for Americans to buy decent housing, it is time for a change.

Bayh 'fed up, frustrated' by nation's course

When a president vetoes legislation to put decent health care within the reach of the average citizen, it is time for a change.

When a president tells us we cannot afford to feed our hungry, but we can afford a new tax break for the richest five per cent of our taxpayers, it is time for a change.

Those who say there is no great moral issue to argue the American people today, are wrong. Severe recession and double-digit inflation are moral issues. They are not the result of mysterious impersonal forces of the marketplace, but the result of the disastrous monetary and fiscal policies of two Republican presidents.

Such a policy is "both intellectually and morally bankrupt." The man who is elected president in November of 1978 will be a man who recognizes, as the American people are beginning to recognize, that the development of natural resource curbs and the growth of multinational corporate empires have radically changed the character of the American marketplace.

High interest rates will not save us

The American people will not elect as their president a man who underestimates their intelligence. They are too smart to be fooled by the political sleight of hand represented by President Ford's latest tax proposal.

The American people recognize that these difficult times the new answers we seek must be arrived at openly and honestly. I believe they will insist that the man they elect as President be a man with the courage to frankly admit that we will not find the solutions to our economic and social problems by clinging nostalgically to all the New Deal, New Frontier, and Great Society approaches.

man who convinces the American people he will continue to try, so long as there are men and women without jobs, children and old people who go to bed hungry, sick who get undated and families who are ill housed.

The American people will elect as their president the man who offers the kind of leadership that will tap the great strength of the American people and unites us in the pursuit of common goals.

Alternatives considered

Editor, Times-News: We see in the papers that Ford is still seething about our denial of military aid to Angola.

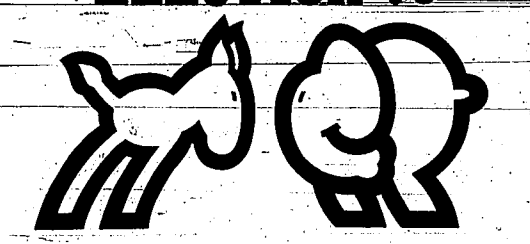

We observe that Ford and Kissinger have concluded that the best chance for a peaceful, frequent sharp warnings to Russia, Rhodesia, South Africa, Cuba, NATO, the Moslem countries and what we jokingly call the United Nations Assembly because they have not chosen to go along with the day to day whims of our military State Department.

Kissinger has threatened to resign every once in awhile, but since no one seems to give a damn, he alternately rants and sulks. Cheers given for T-N staff

Editor, Times-News: First of all - I give three cheers for Bill Lazarus and the other T-N reporters who are doing a superb job of telling us the way it is.

I respect the fact that some of these local "organizations" feel that their activities are above reproach regardless of what they do and any "rights" should be reported.

The medical profession repeatedly elicits the high cost of their education to condone their high incomes. Well, have they ever thought that all of us "professionals" - the farmer, the plumber, electrician, mechanics and all the others I've listed - have spent up to 25 years learning our professions. The cost of our educations has been terrific but we can't include it in our fees. And does your local plumber leave town because the public suspects he's getting rich?

I know, doctors they have life and death in their hands. Well, the tendency is for people to recover from their illnesses. That's what a lot of these doctors have working for them. If we farmers all malpracticed in the same year, we would have life and death in our hands!

As for the fellow who wants the "very best" doctor for his operation - maybe he'll get him. And maybe he won't. He'll never know. The best medical is given, or even if the operation was necessary in the first place. I paid for a specialist for my operation and an intern did it! It was a failure and I didn't sue!

Anyway - keep up the good work, T-N. ETHEL ROMANS Post

Hope in Filer meetings

Editor, Times-News: The meetings for adult evaluation of Filer High School Feb. 17 and elementary school Feb. 13 offer a bright hope to solve one of our nation's basic ills as it relates to Filer community. It could be the turning point.

Our society is sick. The results from conflict between two ideologies, individualism and groupism. The effort to convert our society to groupism has gone on for over two generations. It has been most successful in our schools.

So-called progressive education is the path these efforts took. It can be traced from publication of "My Pedagogic Creed" by John Dewey in 1897, in which he saw the destruction of the child's individualistic traits as the primary goal of education. You can't make Socialists out of individuals. John Dewey was an all-out Socialist. After 1904 he was a dominant figure in Teachers College, Columbia University.

Dewey, along with George Counts, Harold Rugg and others set rolling a snowball of teacher training and textbook revision which has now penetrated every school in our nation. It has been financed by grants from tax exempt foundations and public taxes and enforced by government regulation. It has permeated every facet of our society. The thinking and efforts of Socialist-oriented people are the root causes of our problems. We can cure the problems only by eliminating socialism.

Education is and has been a battle for the minds of our future citizens. The morals and beliefs of the next generation are being shaped

In our schools now. Schools should be controlled by the people of the community which each serves. The textbooks and teacher guides used should be controlled locally.

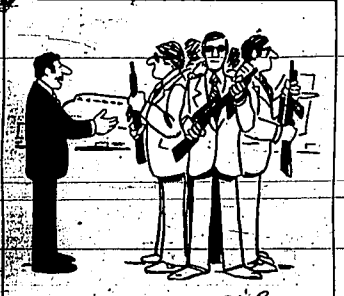

Slavery is too high a price to pay for the realization of social reforms, and socialism in its ultimate form is slavery. The textbook "American Government" by Magnus states bluntly, "Place the burden of supporting the unfortunate or even the shiftless on everyone."

Are you willing to give up freedom for yourself and your posterity so the shiftless can be provided for... in the manner government bureaucrats think they should. Are you willing to continue to support a system which creates more and ever more shiftless?

The welfare of those who can not provide for themselves should be left to the charity of their family, friends and neighbors. Let's get the leaders, criminals and big government off our backs. Socialist theories sound beautiful. When you inject the human factor by practicing socialism in real life it becomes ugly and brutal. Take a long hard look at it before you support it. If you don't support it, let the schools be a battleground. Decide what you want for the future and attend one of the meetings. The Socialists and the people they have converted or deceived will be there.

Labor launches effort to head off Carter win

By United Press International

Near-final tallies from Oklahoma's Feb. 7 precinct caucuses show Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter scored a narrow win over native son Fred Harris, but uncommitted delegates drew more votes than both men combined.

Backers of Harris' rival, Henry Jackson in the AFL-CIO Executive Council launched a drive to prevent more union endorsements for Carter. President Ford urged Congress to prevent the death of the Federal Election Commission in two weeks and Democratic candidates spent the holiday weekend stumping New Hampshire.

"Bill Clinton" administrative aide to Oklahoma's Democratic party, said 18.5 per cent of the delegates selected favored Carter and 17 per cent were committed to Harris. But 60 per cent were uncommitted, as urged by Gov. David Boren.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, George Wallace and a scattering of other candidates accounted for the rest.

At a midwinter meeting of the AFL-CIO council in Florida, backers of Jackson urged Harris to stop Carter material to head off additional union endorsements.

George Meany contributed to the effort Monday when he urged his own opposition to Jackson and told reporters he understood Carter's record was not "too great" on labor issues. But Meany insisted he had seen none of the stop-Carter material.

Congress has only two weeks to make the election commission meet Supreme Court objections of the door—will close on further federal election money for candidates.

Ford urged the House and Senate to let him appoint all six commissioners so election reforms could be carried out for the rest of this year. "There can be no retreat on an issue so fundamental to our democracy," he said.

The FEC has certified more than $7.1 million in matching funds for candidates.

Ford's Florida campaign manager, Rep. Lou Frey, R-Fla., said a Ronald Reagan victory could split the GOP so badly the Democrats might win the general election in November. But "a Ford win will keep the Republican party from bleeding to death in the rest of the country," he said.

Democrats' Bill Bart, Harris, Sargent Shriver and Morris Udall were in New Hampshire, where the first primary will be held Feb. 24. Bart and Harris both predicted they would finish third in the Democratic balloting, presumably behind Udall and Carter.

In other developments, Wallace said he would enter the Ohio primary June 8 and repeated that he never again will run for national office unless he wins this year.

Udall said "a competitive free market is a thing of the past" and recommended "delegated decentralization" of major industries, including oil and automobiles.

South Carolina Gov. James Edwards endorsed Reagan and became his state manager.

Feds heading off news leak probes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, is calling for a Justice Department probe of the leak to a newspaper of a House committee's secret CIA report, but a new directive may virtually bar such an investigation.

The Washington Post reported today that the attorney general's office has set up temporary rules that virtually prohibit the FBI from probing news leaks of secret information.

The Post said an FBI investigation, could only be conducted when a federal law has been violated, which normally would involve either espionage or the theft of government property.

The decision by Attorney General Edward H. Levi was the result of disclosures that in the past the FBI and CIA have tried to track down the sources of news leaks. The Post said.

Rep. Samuel Altmann, D-N.Y., has said he will ask that CBS News reporter Daniel Schorr be cited for contempt of Congress. Schorr has admitted giving the report to the Village Voice, a New York City weekly.

Taft Monday said the move to cite Schorr was not original. "We must find the original source of the document and see to it that those responsible are punished to the fullest extent of the law," he said.

"We have seen far too much of perilous leaks and abuse of citizens' and public responsibility, not only from the likes of Mr. Schorr, but from elected public officials as well," Taft

Venezuela welcomes Kissinger on tour

Chicago Daily News

CARACAS Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, traveling the same route on which he descended upon then Vice President Richard Nixon in 1958, got close to what is being described here as a major address on U.S.-Latin-American relations at a symposium jointly sponsored by U.S. and Venezuelan academic centers. It is a follow-up to a similar forum a year ago held by business interests of the two countries.

Central to the discussion between Kissinger and officials of Venezuela is the exclusion of this nation, along with Ecuador — from the benefits of the U.S. Trade Act, implemented in 1975, in which preferential treatment is given certain countries but denied others, including members of the organization of oil-producing and exporting countries (OPEC) to which Ecuador and Venezuela belong.

Kissinger's problem is that he must convince Perez and others of the security of the state department position in given certain countries but denied others, including members of the organization of oil-producing and exporting countries (OPEC) to which Ecuador and Venezuela belong.

Kissinger's problem is that he must convince Perez and others of the security of the state department position in given certain countries but denied others, including members of the organization of oil-producing and exporting countries (OPEC) to which Ecuador and Venezuela belong.

Oil revenues make up nearly two thirds of this country's income. It exports more than half its production to the United States, accounting for nearly a fourth of all U.S. imports, according to the state department sources.

Perez recently stated publicly that despite the lure of other markets — especially in Europe, Japan and Brazil — Venezuela has "never thought of reducing our oil shipments to the United States."

But he also has complained of Venezuela's "voracious exports" — sending its foreign exchange earned by its oil exports back to the countries that pay for the oil, and receiving, in turn, "trash products" by the so-called consumer society, which are so harmful" to Venezuelans. He named names.

As Kissinger progresses through conferences with nine other heads of state he will find U.S. difficulties in other areas as well — notably the problem of a settlement of the Panama Canal issue.

This looked promising in position successfully.

February 1974, when eight principles agreeing to greater participation by Panama in the control and operation of the canal were agreed to. But the agreement has run into congressional opposition.

Kissinger, it can be reliably stated, is expected to emphasize to the Latin Americans that the U.S. foreign policy finds itself in every four years with U.S. elections are held and rhetoric inflames rather than heals, foreign policy differences.

There is a double impact which has not been sufficiently realized by Congress, according to this understanding.

One is a conceivable fear held by Latin nations of a repetition of the Cuban intervention — although Fidel Castro is generally credited with giving up "revolution for export" in the hemisphere. And a second is a positive Latin admiration for the "daring" Cuban operation in the face of U.S. failure to act.

Nor has it been sufficiently realized what the impact might have been on Cuban internal society as a result of Cuban debt coming home from ventures abroad, or Cuban prisoners being taken. It is the first such phenomenon on a mass scale since the Castro social revolution of 1959.

If effective opposition had been mounted to the victorious Cubans in Angola, its effect might have been far-reaching for the Castro government.

Tennessee bank fails; no depositor loss

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — An army of 150 federal banking agents swarmed over Hamilton National Bank, tallying cash and assets. Within hours, they declared it the third largest bank failure in U.S. history.

BATL officials said depositors stood to lose nothing. The only change they would note when doors opened today was the name — no longer Hamilton National, but the First Tennessee National Bank.

When the federal tallying was through Monday, the First Tennessee National Corp. of Memphis showed it had bought H.N. in 114 on National for $18,251,000.

George W. Hill, chief of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's division of liquidation, said that in size, Hamilton National's failure was behind only Franklin National Bank in New York, with $3.7 billion in assets, and the United States National Bank of San Diego, with assets of $1,265 billion.

Hamilton National buckled under when it had $94 million in foreclosed — and questionable loans sold to the bank by Hamilton Mortgage Co. Both the bank and the mortgage company are owned by Hamilton Bancshares, one of the state's largest bank holding companies.

The Chattanooga bank was the largest of 11 in the chain. It was understood to have had about $34 million in foreclosed loans and $50 million in questionable loans.

It was reported the bank posted its stock as collateral for $80 million in loans from a group of New York banks. That money is still owed.

Those who would suffer the most, Hill said, were Hamilton's shareholders. The bank's stock, which sold for about $25 a share in 1972, dropped to $2 or $3 a share last week before trading was suspended. Today it was virtually worthless.

The deal to sell Hamilton National to First Tennessee National, a bank holding company that owns First National Bank of Memphis, went through within an hour of the announcement that the bank was insolvent and had been placed in receivership of FDIC.

Hill and his 150-man force moved in Monday afternoon, as soon as the bank closed, to begin counting money and proving assets. The agents spread out through the bank's operations center, its warehouse and 23 branches.

Hill said that as buyer First Tennessee will get the good assets in this case mostly good loans. The FDIC will take over loans that are the most questionable and an agent will live in Chattanooga for several years attempting to take out as many benefits from those.

N-plant danger outlined

BOSTON (UPI) — The potential exists for a large scale loss of life in the vicinity of the Millstone Nuclear Power Plant site in Connecticut, Robert D. Pollard, former project manager with the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said Monday.

"There are some 200 generic dangers of various degrees of significance to all nuclear power plants and maybe 50 of them apply to the Millstone plant in Connecticut," he said.

"There's the potential for a large scale loss of life if there were ever an accident like the one they had at Browns Ferry," he said during a news conference arranged by the Union of Concerned Scientists at the Parker House Hotel.

"Browns Ferry in North Carolina," he said, "is the only single plant held by a workman inspecting an area of the plant resulted in the burning out of electrical wires and the failure of the cooling system."

"Earlier this month, one of the completed Millstone units was shut down because of a problem with the steam generator," he said.

"The Millstone plant, like the Browns Ferry plant is a "pressurized water reactor," Millstone No. 1, which emitted the radioactive materials, was completed in January, 1971, at a cost of $69 million. It was previously shut down in September, 1972, for repair of damages caused by salt water leaking into its reactor.

Pollard quit the Nuclear Regulatory Commission last week to publicly denounce the agency's licensing standards. He has joined the Union of Concerned Scientists and is traveling throughout the nation to inform the public of the "inherent dangers of nuclear power."

As project manager, Pollard oversaw safety measures for seven nuclear power plants in the nation.

"For all practical purposes I would have been fired if I spoke out publicly while still a government employee," he said. "Pressures were placed on me from higher up every time I went in the direction of not approving plant designs."

Insurance firm offers big reward

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Commercial Union Insurance Co. has offered a $25,000 reward for information leading to the recovery of $500,000 taken by a young security guard when he left an armored truck to deliver a case of champagne.

Richard C. Rees, 26, a Brinks, Inc., employee for two years and a Marine veteran of Vietnam, disappeared with the money last Wednesday when he entered the San Mateo restaurant.

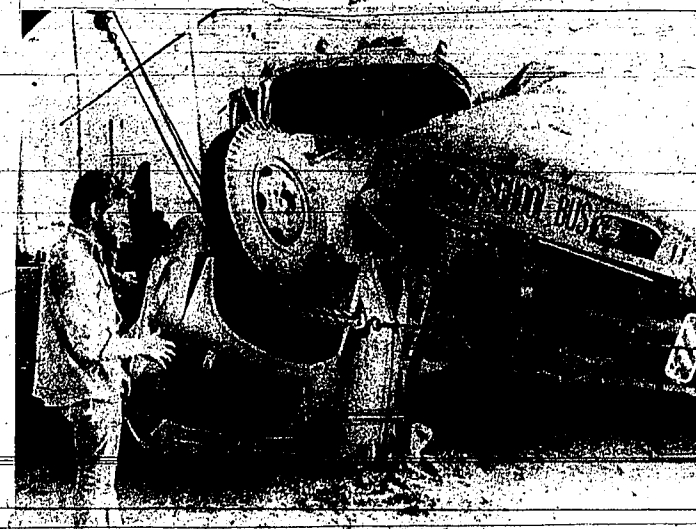

Police said he entered the Hungry Tiger restaurant and brought cash back to the truck. Then, they said, he told the driver he had to return to the restaurant to deliver a case of champagne to a friend.

Police said Rees apparently stuffed the empty champagne case with money accumulated in pickups before the theft. Rees' car was found nearby, and scrawled on it was: "Look at me. I'm rich."

Angle honored

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Angle Dickinson was named "Woman of the Year" Monday by the Hollywood Radio and Television Society for the success of her television series "Police Woman."

She was only the fourth woman to be given the society's top honor, preceded by Mary Tyler Moore in 1973, Sandy Duncan in 1971 and Carol Burnett in 1968.

'High roller' deal costs law student savings plus

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Before he went on vacation last July, American University law student A. S. Caskey withdrew nearly $25,000 in savings from his bank and turned it over to a commodities broker, with hopes of striking it rich.

When Caskey returned to his Washington apartment a few weeks later, he found a letter from the broker stating that not only was his $25,000 gone, but he was $31,000 in debt.

"I couldn't believe it," the 25-year-old law student told UPI. "Not only was my money gone, but I owed them more than I have. How did it happen? I still don't know and can't find out."

"I was taking a law exam and my mind went blank. I was sweating. I was thinking about all the money I had lost."

Caskey said he went to his broker, Hornblower & Weeks, Homplhill, New York, Inc., but got no satisfaction. He said Hornblower demanded he pay up.

"My broker told me this was a way to make a lot of money. 'Come on, get in, you'll make a lot of money. Now he won't talk to me,' he said. 'You take your money and dump you on the street.'"

Caskey filed a complaint last week with the new federal commission seeking reparations for his $56,000 loss.

A commission spokesman said the Caskey case might set a precedent for determining future penalties brought by investors claiming their interests were not served by their brokers.

Cancer flare-ups cut by drug mix

NEW YORK (UPI) — A one-two-three punch with drugs just after breast surgery cuts later flare-ups of cancer, according to Italian researchers.

They said all breast cancer patients in their study had positive lymph node involvement, making them high risks for recurrence of cancer in the other breast or at a distant point in the body.

received the medicine, others did not. By noting cancer flareups in each group, the researchers said they could calculate effectiveness of the drug therapy.

Dr. Gianni Bonadonna and associates of Italy's Istituto Nazionale Tumori in Milan said they found the drug mix cut cancer recurrence from 21 to 5.3 per cent.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — The University of Michigan recently received a letter from Mercedes, East Germany, addressed to James C. Watson, director of the college observatory.

University officials couldn't quite place the name and began digging into the records in an attempt to locate him and, if possible, to forward the letter.

The university located Watson in the files Monday. A spokesman said Watson served as observatory director from 1865 to 1879 and died in Madison, Wis., in 1880.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan's ranch has a good and bad side to it, as a site for a crash landing, as glider pilot Stan Buller discovered.

Buller, 52, had been soaring for about two hours Sunday on "a beautiful day when I made a mistake." The mistake was to glide into a thick cloud and lose his bearings.

He smashed into trees on Sunday near Park. Buller was not injured seriously.

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Gambling figure Tracy C. "Fody" Poe had no argument with the Internal Revenue Service, which said he owed $2,945.86 in wagering taxes for December, 1974. But he suggested the tax agents collect $1,400 of the amount from the FBI.

Poe said Monday he informed the IRS the FBI had confiscated the $1,400 in cash during a raid in December, 1974, and had never returned the money. He said he was not arguing about the amount owed, but suggested if the IRS wanted the money it should "walk across the hall" and get it from the FBI.

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — The bride and groom emerged from the church to the walls of sirens.

Two fire brigade cars and three ambulances roared into view from around the corner and screeched to a halt.

A crowd quickly gathered to watch the puzzled firemen and ambulance attendants search for a bloody traffic pickup that clearly wasn't there.

Authorities established that a phone call reporting a smashup outside the church with 10 persons killed or injured was a hoax.

Police said they traced the call to a 68-year-old aunt of the bride who was upset because she was not invited to the wedding. She was charged with turning in a false alarm.

DEAR ABBY: Couples living together without marriage is a bummer. In cases where both parties invest in joint properties, if the man dies in an industrial accident, the woman can claim nothing. When the property goes to probate to pay off the bills, the woman is out of luck. Former wives, children and family can all claim a bigger share than this kind of "widow" can.

A good case was the woman who not only had one illegitimate child, but was carrying another. He always talked about marrying her, but never did. The husband-to-be was killed in a car wreck, wherein insurance could be claimed, but the woman had no legal standing.

If the man decides to "leave," the rejected woman must find another partner, but by that time, the woman has the reputation of a tramp.

Of course, if she can spawn enough children without matrimony, with Aid to Dependent Children, food stamps, low-cost housing and welfare, she can get by, and possibly even find a wealthy boyfriend, which we taxpayers have to pay for. But the children from this unhappy mess is another matter, and your whole column could be filled with those problems.

MAGISTRATE IN ALASKA

Benefits lacking

DEAR MAG: Yours is only one of 50 states that has its own laws regarding "common-law marriages." However, your timely warning concerning the new cultural phenomenon known as "shacking up" is appreciated, and I hereby pass it on.

DEAR ABBY: My wife of 14 years has suddenly developed a strong desire for children. Both of us would enjoy having a child; however, at this time in our lives (I am 42 and she is 42), do you think it's practical for us to take on the responsibility of raising a child?

My wife constantly argues that a child would bring needed happiness and a more youthful outlook on life to both of us.

I contend it's too late in life for us to start out with an infant, but I am willing to adopt a child of elementary school age or even one in his (or her) early teens.

Our clergyman favors adoption. My wife's physician says she is capable of having a child.

I am more inclined to adopt a child who needs a home, but my wife feels strongly about having our own.

Please give me your views.

ABLE BUT UNWILLING

DEAR ABBY: Sorry, but this is one problem that you and your wife will have to solve yourselves. Some people are "old" at 30, and others are "young" at 60. It takes love, patience, understanding, determination, energy, fortitude, generosity and time to raise a child of any age. How much love do you?

DEAR ABBY: This concerns people who never seem able to accept a compliment graciously. For years I was one of those people. It took me a long time to understand why. It goes back to my childhood. My family (bless them) always gave me an honest-to-goodness compliment. If I did especially nice, they would say, "You look nice—but I can't do something else with your hair?" This made it impossible for me to say, "Thank you." Instead, I was always trying to make apologies and put myself down.

Compliments should be given freely and without little digs to spoil them.

"THANK YOU"

DEAR THANK: And thank YOU!

He won the diamond lead and promptly led a low trump toward dummy's seven and six. East won a surprise trick with his eight, but now South had an entry to dummy to be able to discard his two low clubs on the ace and king of spades.

Divorce beats US tax system

Washington Star

WASHINGTON — David and Angle Boyter of Elliott City, happily married for nine years, plan now to get happily divorced each year ever after.

At the moment, they have been married for just a month. They had a nice time down in Haiti in December; staying in a nice hotel where the meals were good. And, in one pleasant interlude which lasted about an hour and was far more entertaining than an old mossy fort, they got divorced.

The judge dissolved the marriage on grounds of "incompatibility of temperament." In all, the week they spent cost about $1,100 — including air fare; hotel and the lawyer's fee.

The $1,000 saving was worth the divorce.

A spokesman for the IRS said that in some income brackets it is cheaper to file as a single person, but there is the question of whether the tax saving is worth the inconvenience and expense of a divorce.

Once New Year's was out of the way, the Boyters, having saved $1,300 in taxes with the divorce, were married again in Howard County. "It was a lovely courthouse ceremony. In Haiti, incidentally, they met a Chicago couple doing the same thing.

The Boyters' vacation divorce in Haiti was a protest aimed at the American income tax system. The system, they feel, favors single persons over married tax payers.

Angle Boyter is a mathematician. David Boyter is a physicist. Both work for the government, and each earns about $23,000 annually.

Sometime last year, they both figured their taxes would be about $10,000 whether they filed a joint or single return. However, as single persons their taxes would be about $4,500 each, a total of $9,000.

your health

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M. D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I have a swelling in my left arm. It started swelling a year ago following a mastectomy. I have been told about treatment for it — moist heat and massage, which is available at a clinic. This is supposed to reduce the swelling.

I would appreciate any information about this. I do not know anyone who has had this treatment. I have no idea if they help. I do not want to have to advise me — S.K.B.
Such swellings are reported by approximately 25 per cent of women who have undergone radical mastectomy. In most cases, the swelling disappears after a few weeks. The swelling represents an accumulation of lymph fluid in tissue under the skin, because lymph nodes and lymph channels may be disturbed in such surgery. The condition is called "lymphedema."

Massage, heat applications, elevation of the limb and the use of an elastic sleeve are among measures that can be used. I have seen excellent results from such therapy. I strongly urge you to go to the clinic to have your situation evaluated.

The swelling, after all this time, requires some attention.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
What causes post-nasal drip? Is it sinus trouble? What can be done to relieve it? Does the mucus just keep accumulating in your nose and sinuses? I do have some allergy problems with this. — D.F.

Soprano concert set Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — Community Concert members will have an opportunity to hear Patricia Corbett, a lyric coloratura soprano, here Wednesday night.

The Magle Valley Community Concert will be held at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center at the College of Southern Idaho. Admission is by Community Concert membership card.

Miss Corbett has recently appeared in the Los Angeles Opera Guild production as Queen of the Night in "Magle Flute". She also appeared as Marie in "The Barbered Bride" and as Gretel in "Hansen and Gretel" for the Los Angeles Opera Guild.

Gift legality status unknown

HOUSTON (UPI) — Tennessee Inc. made campaign contributions to Texas and Louisiana candidates and payments to officials in 24 foreign countries, but the company says an internal investigation could not determine whether the payments were illegal.

The company disclosed payments of $100,000 to a foreign government employee and $500,000 to "the military and certain military personnel in a foreign country for protection" of operations.

The report said the sheriff collected $2,000 a month for five years in legal fees from a Tennesse subsidiary.

Kissing champion reported

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Terry Driscoll became the new kissing champion of Florida Technological University by smooching visitors to the Sea World tourist attraction at the rate of 2,178 an hour.

Survival name of game among Demos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the Democratic presidential battle so far, survival is the name of the game.

There have been no big winners or real losers in the early precinct caucuses, but there have been some who did not survive.

Surviving takes about 20 per cent of the vote, apparently. The candidate who manages that seems able to go on. Candidates who get about 10 per cent — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen — did in Oklahoma's precinct caucuses — go home to become favorites.

Former Gov. Terry Sanford of North Carolina was the first fatally. He dropped out because a poll showed him at the virtual zero in recognition and popularity. That made Sanford a non-survivor, not a loser.

That does not mean they cannot win. But it does mean they don't have any money to invest in television commercials. Without money for television, you don't win very often in this game.

But George Wallace and Henry Jackson have lots of money for television — and they're using it in Massachusetts and Florida.

Both Ronald Reagan and President Ford have revised their schedules to plan some last-minute campaigning in New Hampshire this week.

Ford strategists, who were about to write off the nation's first primary, also have revised their hopes. Ford is scheduled to go back to the Granite State because his aides now believe there is a good chance to beat Reagan.

Ellen McCormack — a Long

Island Democrat, has raised more than $100,000 in her campaign for the presidency and is expected to be certified officially for federal campaign funds this week by the Federal Election Commission.

Ms. McCormack is running on an anti-abortion platform. But infatti, she is not a one-issue candidate.

The FEC also is about to certify that Sen. Frank Church has qualified for federal funds by raising $5,000 in each of 25 states — in individual contributions of $250 or less.

Normally the money would be paid out a little each month through the year. But the Supreme Court has ruled that the commission goes out of business at the end of the month unless reconstituted by Congress.

John Kennedy edged out Richard Nixon as the most popular president among voters at the presidential exhibit at a Columbus, Ohio, museum last week.

Kennedy received more than 3,800 votes while Nixon was second with 3,458. Abraham Lincoln edged Gerald Ford for third by a vote of 3,282 to 3,166. George Washington finished 11th.

Swelling worrisome

Post-nasal drip is the drainage of excessive mucus from the nose into the nasopharynx, which is the portion of the throat behind the nose.

However, swelling of the nasal passages as from an irritation — excessive smoking, allergy or sinus infection — does not block this passage and the drainage is by the nasopharynx directly into the throat. This can provoke coughing, in an attempt to release this drained substance.

An obstruction can result from nasal polyps (growths) or a severely deviated nasal septum. Excessive use of nasal spray can cause a swelling, leading to post-nasal drip.

You mention an allergy as one of your problems. It is very likely life prime cause of your drip. If it is a year-round thing, then the allergy can be due to some food, or house dust. If it is seasonal, suspect some outdoor factor as pollen. A low humidity in your home can be a factor, as can cigarette smoking.

My booklet on sinus discusses the problem in more detail. Readers who would like a copy can get one by sending 35 cents to me in care of this newspaper. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Does hypoglycemia have any effect in pregnancy? Can it produce a larger baby as in diabetes? Can the condition change with pregnancy? My obstetrician assures me that low blood sugar does not exist, so he is of no help. — L.B.H.

Low blood sugar has few effects on pregnancy or on the fetus. The mother's blood sugar level tends to rise naturally during a pregnancy. So if you had hypoglycemia before your pregnancy, it might not reveal itself in the newborn.

I can't understand your statement that your doctor is "of no help." The periodic tests during the pregnancy would readily reveal any disorder. There are a group of symptoms that occur with hypoglycemia, including headache, sudden hunger, sometimes heart palpitations, general nervousness. But all of these can occur without hypoglycemia, and then only an extensive series of blood tests would reveal the true state of affairs.

You could be contributing to these symptoms with anxiety over a condition which, if it did exist, would not harm your baby anyway.

Low blood sugar is often the cause of faintness, headaches, visual and emotional disturbances. To learn how it can be identified and brought under control, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of this newspaper, for a copy of "Help for Hypoglycemia," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

'Windy' Texas power potential

DALLAS (UPI) — Wind power, which one day may become essential for producing electricity, already provides a good return on a farmer's investment in gusty West Texas.

Researchers at the Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio say the area from the Texas Panhandle through western Kansas, Nebraska and Wyoming to the Canadian border has the most reliable winds in the United States.

"It is the prime area in the United States for wind potential," said Robert K. Swanson, an electrical engineer and physicist at the institute and an expert on wind power.

Swanson said there had been a lack of wind technology from the West when Texas' 50,000 wind chargers on the Great Plains to the present day, chiefly because of the rural electrification program and low-cost electricity. But he said utilities, which already have a disposition to install windmills, probably would be the first to begin wind generation. If it becomes practical

"It's close to practically gone for the big machines — particularly if one projects fuel costs with pretty good assurance that fuel costs will go up," he said.

But John Sibley says there are hundreds of windmills scattered across the country to pump water and most of them can pump much more water than can be used.

Sibley has spent the last year developing a mill that solves the farmer's two biggest problems — low initial cost and operating reliability. He plans full production of a $1,200 mill this summer and is looking into electrical generation as a bonus.

Sibley's Bluebonnet Windmills, Inc. is located beyond the Granddaddy Mountains in far West Texas.

"Out here I don't think the wind ever stops, but our mill will work almost anywhere," he said.

We have some advice for you...

North Wind Getting through?

Button up your home for comfort

It drafts whistle through your home like the arctic wind, it may mean your house isn't adequately weather-proofed. The warm air your heating system is producing — and you are paying for — may be escaping through cracks and chinks around doors and windows and along the foundation.

The solution is to button up your home with weatherstripping and caulking and to install double doors and windows. If your house rests on a concrete slab, you should consider perimeter insulation around the outside of the foundation.

Proper weatherstripping and adequate insulation will make your home more comfortable for you and your family, conserve energy, and save heating dollars.

Want some help? Call your Idaho Power office for an Energy Adviser. He'll give you a home or business energy efficiency check, and discuss your heating and cooling systems, insulation and general energy use. His advice is free, and it just might help you cut waste from your energy consumption.

Old TF Perrine bridge must go

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The old Perrine Bridge must come down when its replacement is finished, according to Howard Johnson, Shoshone district supervisor for the Idaho Highway Department.

"Retention of the structure as a scenic path for pedestrians and bicyclists would cost too much," Johnson said today.

"The bridge is not structurally sound right now and it would deteriorate rapidly if you left it there. It would require a tremendous amount of upkeep," he added.

Johnson estimated maintenance of the old bridge would cost $50,000 a year, including liability insurance to protect the state.

Allied Structural Steel Co., general contractor for the bridge replacement job, will be paid $200,000 to dismantle and haul away the old structure. The firm also will receive the salvage value of the estimated 2,700 tons of scrap metal in the bridge.

"The salvage should bring about $100,000, according to Gary Cole, contracts manager for Shurtleff and Andrews, Salt Lake City, the subcontractor hired by Allied to take down the old structure.

Cole said the bridge will be dismantled immediately after the replacement is completed in August or September. The job should take about three months, he said.

Johnson also said retention of the old bridge would create "kind of an esthetic mess" looking up the canyon with the two bridges there.

"The structure 'needs painting right now,'" he said, "which would cost between $50,000 and $100,000."

He said overlooks will be constructed at each end of the new bridge and sidewalks will be built across it.

Buhl man writes book

BUIHL—Horse races used to be a big thing in the early days of Buhl, Lloyd Byrnes told Buhl Chamber of Commerce members at noon Monday.

"Humorous glimpses of the town's history seen through Byrnes' recollections as a boy have been compiled into a book which he plans to have published in Boise."

He said he is ordering 1,000 copies which will sell at $3 each and "if the chamber wants to make a little money they can help sell $1.50."

Byrnes' family came here in 1908 and his father operated a stage line which made two-day trips to Jarbridge, Nev., stopping overnight at Three Creek. He recalled the time three "ladies of pleasure" wanted transportation and Byrnes' mother told his father he shouldn't "take those hussies to demoralize Jarbridge."

But Byrnes said he remembers his father saying "Their $20 gold pieces are just as good as anyone else's" and so the ladies got their ride.

TF physician questions X-ray department policy

By LINDA LEE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—A Magic Valley Memorial Hospital physician questioned the policies and practices of the radiology department at the Monday night hospital board meeting.

Dr. Werner H. Kramer said he thought it was "ridiculous" that the head radiologist's contract with his professional staff was not public information.

Dr. C. R. McWilliams who is the head of the radiology department is under contract with MVMH to run that department and provide radiological services to the hospital.

Under his contract, he has the authority to hire—and set the salaries of—his assistant radiologists. According to James Rosenbaum, hospital administrator, the particulars of McWilliams' arrangements with his assistants are not required to be public.

"How can they run this hospital without a modicum of knowledge about how the departments are run," Kramer asked the board.

"It's none of his damn business what I pay those radiologists," McWilliams said.

Dr. R. Dennis Davis, McWilliams' assistant, said he was satisfied with his arrangement.

Kramer also referred to the pathology department which is run under a similar arrangement.

Rosenbaum said that the hospital contracts with the heads of pathology and radiology to run their own departments. Part of MVMH's expectation is that the heads of the departments will run their departments in the best management practices.

According to Rosenbaum, if the hospital demanded to know the arrangements the heads of pathology and radiology make with their staff then it would be treating them as hospital employees and not as independent contractors.

However, Rosenbaum added if the hospital is not satisfied with the way a department head runs his department, then the hospital can refuse to give him another contract.

Joseph Savage, board chairman, said he was satisfied with the way the departments were being managed.

Another concern of Dr. Kramer was that X-rays ordered by physicians at MVMH should be read by a radiologist as soon as X-rays are developed.

"That's what they do in the daytime, and I don't see why it should be any different at night," Kramer said later.

Dr. Kramer said his concern was in the emergency room when a physician without the expert knowledge of a radiologist reads an X-ray at night when the department of radiology is closed.

He said a mistake might be made which could not be corrected until the next morning.

McWilliams said if a physician is concerned he should just call a radiologist.

Fred Decker, hospital attorney, said requiring a radiologist to read all X-rays first is not a practice in most hospitals in the United States.

Decker said he thought Kramer was "deadly serious" in his attempt in having this practice instituted at the hospital.

According to the present MVMH contract with the department of radiology, a radiologist must respond to any telephone call for his services by a physician.

McWilliams said he thought this should apply any of Dr. Kramer's concerns.

In addition, the radiologist is required by the hospital to issue a written report on any X-ray within 24 hours of the time it is taken.

Other concerns Dr. Kramer voiced at the meeting included a question about the disappearance of building materials from the MVMH premises.

Rosenbaum assured him that the police were called in on any cases of theft at the hospital.

When replacement is finished, old Perrine Bridge must come down

Dam chief answers 'allegations'

TWIN FALLS—American Falls Reservoir District president John Barker has responded to "recent allegations" by a Burley attorney concerning the American Falls-Dam replacement project.

Barker said some statements made by Lawrence Duffin and published in the Mindoka County News are "inaccurate," Duffin represents the Mindoka Irrigation District, which has refused to join the $45 million replacement project.

Countering Duffin's proposal that the dam be replaced by the federal government rather than reservoir speculators, Barker said the current plan "offers speculators the best alternative to expeditiously replace" the deteriorating structure.

The state's Congressional delegation has "indicated that a federal replacement of the project could take as long as 12 years," Barker said.

Projects in California, Texas and Arizona would have to be bypassed by Congress to place the American Falls project at the top of the appropriations list, according to Barker.

"Idaho doesn't have that much political muscle," he said.

Barker said "all rumored possibilities" for a quick replacement of the dam "have been explored and no federal emergency alternatives" are available.

He also noted that there was "practically no opposition" to the private-financing plan at a 1974 Congressional hearing in Burley.

Barker denied Duffin's charge that presentations to Congress concerning the project "resulted in a fraud on Congress."

He said the proposal had "unanimous support of the Congressional delegation, the Bureau of Reclamation, the state and all the speculator organizations."

Barker also took issue with Duffin's suggestion that only wateruser bonds be used to fund the project, eliminating Idaho Power Company's involvement as guarantor of the construction bonds.

He said the district's financial advisor warned that the wateruser bonds "would not be saleable without the guarantee of the power company." The guarantee will "help keep" the interest down on the bonds, according to Barker.

Responding to fact that the district's town firm, Barry, Robertson, Daly and Larson, also represents Idaho Power Co., Barker said the firm was hired "with the consent of the American Falls Reservoir District and the Committee of 8 (speculator) representatives."

"Everyone knew that the firm had represented the Idaho Power Co.," Barker added. He listed all the attorneys and legal experts who have worked on the replacement project and said: "We are proud of their accomplishments. . . . The waterusers have been adequately and fairly represented."

Barker said Duffin's "idea of delaying the project" could cost the waterusers more money. "Each year of delay costs 2 per cent to 12 per cent because of inflation and construction cost increases," he said.

today in brief

TF thefts probed—Several thefts were under investigation in Twin Falls today by city police.

Officials at McVey's Inc. told police someone removed 10 weights from a tractor owned by Vic K. Kerbs. The tractor had been brought to McVey's for repairs and the parts were taken sometime between Feb. 11 and 13.

Richard Sherman, 1036 Blue Lakes Blvd., told police someone entered the garage of his home and took about $150 in tools. He discovered the tools missing Monday.

Kenneth Hilteneck reported about $300 worth of tools taken from a wrecker owned by Jansson Wrecker Service while it was parked in front of his home at 377 Shoup Ave. Sunday night.

CB's aid trucker

MOUNTAIN HOME—Members of the 1-80 Citizens Band Club here pitched in Monday afternoon to help reload meat for a stranded trucker whose vehicle had skidded on ice and overturned on the Interstate a mile west of Hammett.

Elmore County sheriff's officers said the driver of an 18-wheeler "outrig" from Lubbock, Tex., was not hurt when the vehicle overturned, but the load of about 375 cases of fresh packaged meat had to be transferred to another refrigerated truck before the overturned vehicle could be righted.

The officer said the 1-80 group obtained volunteers who spent about two hours lifting the cases of packaged meat from the overturned truck. Each case weighs about 75 pounds.

The entire operation took about 10 hours, the sheriff's officers said. The truck overturned about 10 a.m. and by the time permission was obtained to transfer the meat, another truck obtained and the volunteers rounded up and the meat transferred it was nearly 10 p.m., officers said.

Center planned in Buhl

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

BUIHL—Two young women plan to open a combined day-care center and nursery school about March 1 in Buhl.

Carol Cooper told chamber of commerce members Monday noon that she and Gall Greene have purchased a house at 825 11th Ave. N. and are licensed by the Idaho Health Department.

The Peach Tree Nursery School will operate in two-and-one-half hour sessions morning and afternoon and the day care center will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. to accommodate working mothers.

Mrs. Cooper said they will take children from 2½ to 6 years of age and as young as 2 "if they are potty trained."

There will be no structured program, but the women plan "many creative arts and crafts projects," "all kinds of messy things like play dough and collages," she said.

Cost for the day-care center will be $4 per day for working mothers. Mrs. Cooper said. This will include hot lunch at noon. Mrs. Cooper said the owners hope to open by March 1, but there has been a delay in getting child-size toilet seats.

The operators plan an open house at the Peach Tree school Feb. 28 so the public may inspect the facility. The women have remodeled the house to make one large playroom with sinks installed at pre-schoolers height.

The women also plan to create "tricycling paths" in the fenced back yard when spring comes. Mrs. Cooper said.

Ex-Gem man faces kidnaping charges

TWIN FALLS—A 34-year-old man was in custody this morning in Twin Falls on charges of two counts of second-degree kidnaping and assault with intent to commit murder.

Detective Capt. Tim Qualls of the Twin Falls Police Department said Robert Dix Birch, 34, formerly of St. Anthony, was arrested about 2:25 a.m. northwest of Twin Falls following an extensive search and roadblock operation by area law enforcement officers.

Qualls said officers from Twin Falls city and county, Jerome, Hansen, Kimberly, Filer, Buhl and state police joined in a search for the Birch vehicle shortly after police received a report of the alleged abduction.

Qualls said the police department received a call at 11:16 p.m. Monday reporting Birch's former wife had been abducted from her home in Twin Falls. Roadsides were immediately searched and a description of a suspect vehicle broadcast to all departments. Shortly after 2 a.m. officers sighted the vehicle on a road north of Asgrov Sewed Co. Laboratories.

Qualls said the vehicle was off the road and when the victim saw a police car approaching, she managed to get away and run toward the officers. Police heard a gunshot, Qualls said, and found Birch with a self-inflicted wound in the left chest area.

He was placed under arrest and taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment. The victim was also taken to the hospital; but was not injured, officers said.

Qualls said a warrant had been issued Oct. 1, 1975 for the arrest of Birch, charging second-degree kidnaping in an earlier incident. A second warrant was issued Oct. 10, 1975, charging assault with intent to commit murder. All instances, Qualls said, involved the suspect's former wife.

She has been living in Twin Falls recently. Qualls said; Birch has apparently been living in Missouri, the officer said.

Birch was hospitalized under guard Monday night and listed in fair condition. Hospital officials said he would be released this morning to the Twin Falls County Jail.

Mother Nature turns on the fireworks

MAGIC VALLEY—Thunder and lightning, snow, sleet, high winds and rain buffeted the Magic Valley Monday.

Although the foul weather provided some spectacular fireworks and tremendous views of Mother Nature's power, the storm did relatively little damage.

Schools in Magic Valley opened as usual today even though Jerome, Gooding and Halley all reported nearly a foot of snow.

High winds interrupted electric service in many parts of the Magic Valley last night. Idaho Power Co. crews were busy much of the night repairing damage to lines knocked down by the winds.

Company spokesman Jim Johnston termed the storm's damage "nothing major."

"We had a lot of scattered interruptions," he said. "Especially hard hit were Murthaugh, Hansen, Paul and areas just north and south of the Snake River."

The longest interruption was about two hours," Johnston said. He said no lightning strikes were recorded and no transformers or other expensive equipment was damaged.

The storm passed through about 41 a.m. and the problems started to subside by late in the evening.

According to Jerome police department personnel, the Jerome County sheriff and state police put in most of Monday providing assistance to several wreckers who were kept busy pulling cars out of the borrow pit. Despite heavy snow conditions, no accidents were reported within the city of Jerome.

A storm from the south hit Jerome at about 9:45 a.m. Monday. Heavy snow fell until noon. Over six inches of fresh snow was deposited.

From noon until 5 p.m., a wide variety of weather conditions prevailed. At one point, heavy rain fell, accompanied by high winds gusting to 30 miles per hour. No damage was reported from the wind.

No schools were reported closed today even though from 6 to 8 inches of new snow fell in the Gooding area, followed by "just enough rain to make it sticky."

Gooding schools were dismissed early Monday because it was snowing so hard, but plows had bus routes passable today.

Magic Valley district also was back in session following an unscheduled holiday Monday because of furnace problems in Valley High School. School officials said attendance was near normal.

School buses in Fairfield followed snowplows this morning, but all routes were completed without problems.

Don Valley's News Bureau reported 10 inches of snow this morning, with 18 inches of new snow falling since Friday.

The top of Baldy now has a 50 inch base with 20 inches of snow on the Valley floor.

Although the weather is good with temperatures in the teens today, another storm is expected tomorrow in the Sun Valley area.

Camper shell theft reported

Officials of the firm said a roof camper shell was displayed on the sales yard and employees noticed Thursday one of them was missing. Value was set at $150.

4 HS students charged

TWIN FALLS—Four high school students, all juveniles, were charged with disorderly conduct in connection with an incident at the Big Boy restaurant.

Approximately 2:30 damage resulted at J. B.'s Big Boy restaurant when the four allegedly poured water on tables, the floor and spread ketchup over tables and other furniture.

Police were called to remove the four from the building shortly after 1 a.m.

CSI tops Montana State JVs, points to key game at North Idaho on Saturday

No. 1 ranked College of Southern Idaho knocked off Montana State 81-59 and now turns its attention to North Idaho and a clinching of the regional tournament title.

Ken Davis and Ed Nickols scored four each as CSI zipped out to an 11-2 lead over the next several minutes it stayed at about 10. In the final 10 minutes, Eric Hovey collected 10 points as CSI left the floor at intermission ahead 40-25.

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI) — Stockholders agreed Monday to sell Hialeah Race Track to New Jersey contractor John J. Brunetti for about $14 million and Brunetti's firm commitment to keep the 51-year-old thoroughbred showplace in operation.

In accepting Brunetti's offer, the Hialeah board turned down a firmer cash offer from James Donn, president of nearby Gulfstream Park. Donn had admitted he intended to close Hialeah and move his racing dates to his Broward County track at Hollywood.

"I submitted a check for $100,000 and a $13.5 million commitment from the bank," Donn said. "That's what I don't understand. They wanted approval by letter from a bank and from all owners." Brunetti still doesn't have it.

Giants owners vote on offer Tuesday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The National Exhibition Co., the holding company in control of the San Francisco Giants, will vote Tuesday on whether to accept an $8 million offer for the club.

Short-Lurie offer is accepted by NEC vote on approval of the sale. Charles B. Rupert, executive vice-president of the Giants, said he had "not seen anything in writing," but added Hunt and Murray had been in contact with the prospective buyers since the $8 million offer was made Wednesday.

"It would take only a few hours to call the board together for a vote," Rupert said. Lurie is local financial spokesman, met during the weekend in Minneapolis with Short, former owner of the American League Washington Senators-Texas Rangers, and said, "Everything is going great, and we're very optimistic."

San Diego Chargers name new manager

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Johnny Sanders, who began his professional football career 22 years ago as a part-time scout with the Los Angeles Rams, Monday was chosen to replace Harland Svare as general manager of the San Diego Chargers.

Sanders started in pro ball with the Rams in 1948 and worked his way up from part-time coach to assistant general manager in 1959. Kieln was asked about the Svare firing during a news conference and said: "I think it's pretty obvious that the [Dr. Arnold] Mandel who is in his book totally destroyed Harland's credibility and therefore his effectiveness."

How rare was dealt with in Biblical times is a matter of curiosity. If it occurred in a city, both the man and the woman were judged equally guilty, so punished by stoning. If it happened in the countryside, only the man was decreed culpable, so "stoned" to death; and the woman was let free after reasoning was that in a town, a woman's scream for help would have been heard, so if there were no such cries, she was regarded as a partner in the crime. But out in the fields, with nobody-around-to-hear-her-yell, she was permitted the presumption of unwilling innocence.

GOOD HELP
So you think good help is hard to find, do you? That's not new. George Washington himself had to advertise as follows: "A cook is wanted for the family of the President of the United States. No one need apply who is not perfect in the business and can undoubtedly function in a sober manner, be honest, and give full attention to the station."

Some historians claim it was Mrs. Deborah Read Franklin, not her husband Benjamin Franklin himself, who actually did the work as Postmaster-General-of-the-United-States. Of their 44 years in marital harness, the pair were separated for 25 years. Blame Ben's various chores that. But Mrs. Franklin was a highly active citizen, too. She speculated in real estate lots.

Italy asks aid from partners

ROME (UPI) — Italy looked to its European Common Market partners today for financial help in reopening its foreign exchange markets, closed 26 days ago to curb speculation against the lira during a government crisis.

Treasury Minister Emilio Colombo flew to Brussels for a meeting of European Economic Community finance ministers. Politicians said it would begin negotiating a five-year, $1 billion loan.

The politicians said Italy might also seek $30 million from the International Monetary Fund and request an extension of an existing $1.5 billion loan from West Germany.

Rinaldo Ossola, director general of the Bank of Italy, said the bank's defense of the lira when markets reopened would be flexible.

Judge proposes death penalty

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — A judge who once jailed fathers for refusing child support has proposed mandatory death penalty for convicted murderers and a minimum five-year prison term for the use of firearms in the commission of a felony.

Judge Rolf Larsen has teamed up with a key state senator to revise Pennsylvania's criminal statutes.

He says the proposed revisions to criminal law would make the state's penal code the toughest in the nation.

"There are statistics showing capital punishments not a deterrent," Larsen said in an interview during the weekend. "And there are other statistics which say every execution prevents 17 other murders. One thing is sure. Anyone who is executed will not murder again."

Larsen is working with state Sen. Thomas Nolan, majority leader of the Pennsylvania Senate, on the legislation designed to cut the crime rate. The cornerstone of the proposals is to mandate the death penalty for first and second degree murders and still prison terms for other major crimes.

"If the bill is adopted Pennsylvania's penal code would become the toughest in the United States," Larsen said. "Also, I believe this is the first time when a judge and a legislator teamed up to make sweeping proposals in the criminal code."

Larsen, the proposal, anyone convicted of premeditated murder would be executed. Second degree murder, a slaying committed during the commission of such crimes such as rape, robbery, kidnapping and burglary would also carry a mandatory life term.

Under the present law, first degree murder carries a discretionary death penalty or life imprisonment, but no one-sentence for years.

The proposed bill would extend a maximum discretionary sentence to up to 40 years for rape, robbery, burglary, kidnapping and arson.

Bridge opening delay 'honored'

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Procrastinator's Club of America was so impressed with the year-long delay in opening the Betsy Ross bridge it thought the span was worthy of an "Award to Come Later."

"Such exceptional procrastination should not go unrecognized," said Les Wass, president of the club. "So the bridge got a license to procrastinate."

The bridge has been completed for a year, however, when it will be open for the public.

About 45 members of the club gathered on the span Sunday to participate in the award ceremony and assisted in posting a zero mile per hour speed limit and a one-way traffic sign with two arrows pointing at each other.

"Everybody arrived on time," Wass said. "For our club affairs, everyone arrives right on time."

The club members also signed a petition to rename the bridge "which spans the Delaware River between Philadelphia and Camden, N.J. The Elizabeth Gracemore Ashburn-Claypole Bridge," so credit would go to the husbands Betsy Ross, the legendary flagmaker, and her husband, William. Wass said the $105 million span was completed more than a year ago, but it cannot be opened because the ramps on the Pennsylvania side are not finished.

Wass said the reason the ramps are not completed deserves special recognition.

When Gov. Milton J. Shapp took office, he said, "for some reason—by error—money for the ramps was not included in the budget and it had to be put in the next budget."

So the club posted a sign on the bridge saying "Award To Come Later."

Don't cut power lines yet for generator

DALLAS (UPI) — So you've already got a wind mill pumping water and you've heard you can make it pay by adding an electrical generator. Don't cut the electric lines just yet.

Even in areas such as West Texas and northward across the Great Plains where wind is considered the most reliable in the United States, it doesn't blow all the time and there would be times the lights would go out.

The use of windpower to supplement utility-delivered electricity may be practical for farmers who are using their mills just a few hours a day to pump water, but it is far from dependable.

Researcher Robert K. Swanson of the Southwest Research Institute at San Antonio, Tex., says there are two good methods of storage being studied and an inventor in Wisconsin has found a third, although its use may have to be tested in court.

"In view of the fact that wind is not perfectly reliable you need a practical storage network," Swanson said.

"When the wind blows, use it to generate electricity, all you need, and then save the rest for a stock period.

He says you can store wind by pumping it into the rocks, caverns or old wells which are available in most sections of the country.

"Use the wind you need for generation and use the excess to compress air into a cavern in the ground," he said. "When the wind blows pump air into the cavern and when you need more electricity than the generator is producing, withdraw some of it and run it through turbines.

Another method is hydro storage, but Swanson says its potential does not appear as great as the compressed air method because in areas where there is good windpower, there also is a high evaporation rate.

Hans Meyer of Mukwonago, Wis., says there's a better storage system and he's invented a $1,300 "black box" to take advantage of it.

Meyer's box is called the Geminal Power Conversion Unit and it connects wind generators, the electric lines and the home or consumer. It has three functions: If you're generating no power or not enough power to meet your needs the PCU will draw on the utility line as needed; if you're generating exactly the amount of power you need, it uses it and draws nothing from the line; and if you're generating more electricity than you need, the PCU puts it back into the power lines for storage and runs your utility meter backward.

Since the PCU is actually selling power back to the utility at retail rates, the utilities are unlikely to object. Their biggest costs are not in fuel, but rather in the generators, regulators and the distribution system the PCU would use for free. They put a ratchet on Meyer's meter so it wouldn't run backwards and installed a second meter to see how much electricity was going back into the lines. They plan to reach an agreement on its value through the Wisconsin utility commission.

New approaches sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Monday challenged the nation's high school principals to help end "alarming trends" in alienation among young people by finding new ways to teach students about law and government.

In a prepared address for delivery to the National Association of Secondary School Principals here, Ford said he will soon send to Congress proposals to consolidate federal aid to education and to give state and local authorities greater flexibility in its use.

"We must make federal aid more effective than it has been," the President said, adding that he wanted to "untie the red tape" that binds education at the local level.

At the outset of his appearance, Ford was introduced into the National Honor Society, which he joined in 1930.

Urging that the educational system adapt to meet changing needs, Ford said:

"Today we are faced with another urgent problem in our nation's development. It is apparent that many citizens are uninformed or worse, unconcerned about the workings of their government and the execution of their laws.

"Young people in particular appear cynical and alienated with our system of government."

"Too many Americans see the law as a threat, rather than as a protection," Ford said. "Too few have been taught to understand the way the laws are created and administered and peacefully changed."

US Postal Service slashes payrolls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The financially-troubled U.S. Postal Service cut 14,936 positions from its payroll in 1970. Postmaster General Benjamin F. Ballar said today.

Ballar said the move, which leaves nearly 700,000 persons in post office jobs, will save approximately $200 million in man-hours pay this year. It is part of a nationwide program to reduce costs by as much as possible without hurting essential mail delivery services, he said.

But Ballar has warned in the past that the only way to cut the tremendous operating deficit would be to continue increasing postage costs or to cut back services.

"The postal service is in a financial bind and cannot foresee any hope of immediate solution to its operating deficit problem," Ballar said today.

Pasture workshop set at Shoshone

SHOSHONE A pasture workshop is being planned by the Wood River Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors.

The workshop will be on March 4 with Harold Huyser, chairman.

According to Waldo Faught, chairman of the board, the Idaho Soil Conservation Commission budget was cut over $19,000. Wood River District will write to legislators opposing this cut and will send letters of support to conservation programs to Jim Bush, Idaho Association of Soil Conservation Districts' representative in Washington, D.C.

Russell Hanwaring, district conservationist, reports completing two farm plans. coparcator agreement was signed with Donald Tabor, Roland Dean, Richfield, and Gary Bowman, Dietrich, were appointed associate supervisors.

Cassia girl wins award

BURLEY — A Burley area girl has been named one of four 4-H members receiving the Idaho Horseman Award.

Karen Badke received the award Thursday during the Cassia County 4-H Leaders Council dinner.

The honor is a memorial donated by Andrew Little.

Entries must pass a 100-question test with at least 70 per cent. They then must score at least 90 in grooming, pattern riding and demonstration.

Wayne Cole, Cassia County cooperative extension agent, said 68 took the written test, with only 18 surviving to go through the other stages. Only four members in the state qualified for the award.

The council honored two businesses for their efforts in promoting 4-H work. They were Janet's Kilt Shop, Burley, and Clark's IGA Store, Oakley.

A 25-year leader pin was presented to Betty Walker, Declo. Cole, who also acts as a volunteer leader, received a 15-year pin and Wanda Hutchinson, Malta, a 10-year pin. Five-year pins went to David Hutchinson, Malta; Stan Barth, Burley, and Joelo Gillette, Declo.

The council also elected officers for 1970. They were Chuck Payton, Oakley, president; Farum Warr, Milner, vice-president; and Marie Hanzel, Burley, secretary.

Light effect seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although poor weather conditions in the Great Plains may reduce this year's winter wheat crop, any crop loss should not affect food prices in the near future, according to the Agriculture Council of America.

"We definitely have a problem with wind and drought damaging winter crops right now," said council chairman E. L. Hatcher, "but losses could be checked somewhat if we get the moisture we need."

Hatcher, a wheat and beef producer from Lamar, Colo., said the consumer "is assured of adequate supplies regardless because total stocks will more than triple domestic requirements."

As of Feb. 1, the Agriculture Department said the winter wheat crop was below normal conditions but failed to make a specific crop estimate. However, growers groups say the prospects are "well below" the last official estimate of slightly less than 1.5 billion bushels in December.

Record setter going

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Aop'a, a six-month-old calf, is still going after setting a world record 96 days living with an artificial heart.

Scientists at the University of Utah Artificial Organs Center said the calf passed the "old" mark at 11:30 a.m. Saturday on a different type machine than the one used to set the previous record.

Dr. Don Olsen said Aop'a's heart has only two artificial valves and uses his natural aorta and pulmonary valves. Previous artificial hearts have used four artificial valves.

Utah's artificial organ program has produced several records for longevity on the implanted hearts, which are powered from an outside source. Aop'a's stablemate Louie has survived 47 days on a similar device.
