Safe-keeper

SAN LORENZO, Calif. (UPI) — Burglars stole a safe from a San Lorenzo Junior high school and discovered they couldn't open it. In frustration, the thieves put the 25-pound safe on the railroad tracks and waited. A Southern Pacific train hit the safe, knocking it 40 feet down the tracks. It was still sealed when found by authorities. Police said the safe contained keys and a small amount of cash. They said the burglars escaped and the train was not damaged.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today outlined specifics of his intelligence reform package, which included the naming of CIA Director George Bush as the nation's top intelligence official and a request that specific CIA covert operations be allowed without prior permission from Congress.

"There should be no requirement for prior notification (to Congress) of specific activities," said a White House fact sheet issued along with Ford's message to Congress and an executive order carrying out the reforms.

"I will include retired diplomat Robert Murphy, former Army secretary Stephen Ailes, and economist sculptor Leo Cherne."

The panel will be called the Committee on Foreign Intelligence. It will be responsible for management of the CIA and other intelligence agencies. Bush will report to the President's National Security Council and to Ford himself.

Ford also eliminated the Forty Committee, the covert action directorship headed for six years by Kissinger.

He put in its place the Operations Advisory Group, headed by Brent Scowcroft, Ford's national security affairs adviser. That panel, while still including Kissinger, also listed among members Ford's key legal and fiscal ministers — Attorney General Edward Levi and James Lynn, the director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Bush said today that in addition to the safeguards proposed by Ford, "I certainly do think there should be congressional oversight."

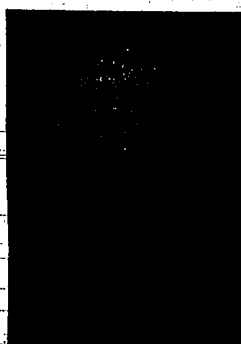

"Part of the president's recommendations was for a joint congressional oversight committee," he said. "I will want to report to the congress."

Bush was interviewed on the NBC Today program.

Idaho arms rules package proposed

BOISE (UPI) — The House State Affairs Committee called for introduction today of a seven-bill package of firearms and destructive devices regulation its proponents said may mitigate stiffer federal laws.

Asked if the federal government has stepped in to enforce the federal laws, they said, make violation a felony. Some of their proposed Idaho counterparts, they said, would be misdemeanors.

Most of the bills put before the committee are patterned after California laws, they said, noting that since the enactment of them in the coastal state the federal government has left enforcement primarily to the state.

Asked if the federal government still could enforce its laws if the state enacted similar ones, Robson said, "They're willing to come in here and enforce their own."

Major among the seven bills is the "Idaho Firearms Act," which provides definition of legal firearms, who may own, and who may carry them.

It prohibits carrying of a concealed firearm in any place, street or building where the general public has lawful access unless the bearer has a permit from a proper authority.

Also prohibited in the bill is carrying of a loaded, operating firearm in a motor vehicle or compartment capable of being closed or locked.

No loaded operating handgun could be carried within the confines of an incorporated city or town unless by permit or unless the gun is cased in a "substantial box or container."

Felons would be prohibited from owning or possessing firearms unless pardoned, released under a withheld sentence or until they have been free for five years.

Another major proposal would establish a "Destructive Devices Act" which would make the possession of any destructive device a misdemeanor and the injury of any person through willful or malicious explosion a felony punishable by death or life imprisonment.

Other features of the package would: — Give sheriffs and police chiefs the power to issue statewide firearms permits.

— Provide for fifteen firearms training by sheriffs and city police officers upon citizen request and payment of fees.

— Set up regulation for retail firearms sales and provide for a one-day delay in delivery of pistols and revolvers.

Gem lawyer advertising decision may come later

BY DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Bar Association (IABA) Tuesday approved changes in ethical codes that would allow lawyers to advertise their services in the yellow pages of the telephone book or in legal directories.

However, Idaho lawyers still can't advertise until the state bar association accepts the ABA's unprecedented action.

Tom Nelson, Twin Falls, who left office as president of the Idaho State Bar in June said today, "I think the total restriction on advertising ought to be relaxed to the extent that availability of service can be made known."

This would allow new lawyers to announce their practice in a city and would permit an established lawyer who moves to "let his clients and the public know where he is," Nelson said.

He said a decision on whether to allow Idaho probably will have to wait until the fall unless a special session of the state bar is held. A fall meeting is the next regularly scheduled policy-making session.

State lifting liquor permit

BY BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer
SUN VALLEY — The Idaho Department of Law Enforcement will issue a notice to Sun Valley Co., suspending the liquor license at the Sun Valley Inn.

Richard Cade, chief of the Idaho liquor law enforcement and criminal investigation, said the company should receive notice of the suspension within a week.

Under the Idaho Code, the suspension could last up to six months.

The action comes after an investigation into last weekend's fund-raising event for the Sun Valley Ski Team.

On the evening of Feb. 13 Sun Valley Co. sponsored a "Calcutta" where patrons of the ski team conducted a lottery to draw names of ski teams which would be racing the following day in the Sanderson Pro-Am race.

After the names of the ski teams were drawn, patrons placed bets on their teams. A total of $38,000 in bets was placed on the race.

The pre-race activities were held in the Linnelight Room of the Sun Valley Inn.

Cade said the suspension of the inn's liquor license could be brought for a number of reasons, including after-hours drinking, serving liquor to minors, gambling and other violations of state liquor laws.

"And they were gambling," Cade said, "a lottery if you will." He said the suspension notice the report has 10 days to appeal the order.

Nelson said there might be "some difficulty in the concept of price advertising" by lawyers. It would be very difficult for attorneys to list specific prices for services since the fee depends on complications that arise during the course of a case, he said.

Nelson said advertisement of hourly rates "might be a way to go." At least a client would know what he would be looking at per hour.

Advertisement of specialty areas by lawyers could "really get sticky," according to Nelson.

If the bar allows such a practice, "then it's got to be prepared to certify in the specialty," he said, or it might require that a lawyer limit his practice to a special area.

The change in the ABA Canon of Ethics, first passed in 1908, still left in doubt whether lawyers could cooperate with consumer groups publishing a directory of services and charges, the subject of a petition filed by Consumers Union pending in Virginia federal court.

After three hours of debate Tuesday, the canon was changed on a voice vote to permit publication of a lawyer's standard fee for an initial consultation in the yellow pages and in "reputable law lists or legal directories."

Lawyers also were allowed to advertise their office hours, legal education, credit terms and fields of concentration.

The action came in response to a Supreme Court ruling last June removing antitrust protection from the legal profession.

The Consumers Union suit charges that First Amendment rights of consumers were offended by old rules forbidding any advertising of price information. Since ABA officials were unclear about the impact of Tuesday's vote, it was uncertain whether the new canon would eliminate the need for further court action in the Consumers Union case.

Lewis Van Dusen, a Philadelphia lawyer who chaired the committee reviewing advertising guidelines, suggested that a consumer legal guide still must obtain ABA approval, costing $750, before it could enlist the cooperation of lawyers.

Another major proposal would establish a "Destructive Devices Act" which would make the possession of any destructive device a misdemeanor and the injury of any person through willful or malicious explosion a felony punishable by death or life imprisonment.

Panel blasts 'special' ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee today lifted an amendment that would have banned the manufacture, sale, resale and importation of cheap, easily concealable handguns — "Saturday night specials."

The amendment offered by Rep. Martin Russo, D-Ill., to a handgun control bill being considered by the committee was defeated 17 to 14.

Russo's proposal was aimed at totally banning inexpensive, common handguns known as Saturday night specials, but would have given the Treasury secretary the discretion to ban other handguns he considered in the same category.

Pulling small barrel revolvers from his pants belt and the inside pocket of his suit jacket to demonstrate their concealability, Russo said his proposal was "aimed at the criminal elements which are in existence today."

The committee then moved to consideration of a scaled-down substitute offered by Rep. Thomas Rallsback, R-Ill., for the entire committee bill.

Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., said Rallsback's substitute "just guts the bill."

Union raps 'gimmickry'

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (UPI) — AFL-CIO economists charged today the Labor Department used statistical "gimmickry" to exaggerate a decline in the nation's unemployment rate in January.

The economists, in a report to the annual winter meeting to the AFL-CIO Executive Council, said unemployment actually made a "modest decline" in January.

The Labor Department report released earlier this month showed a decline in the unemployment rate from 8.3 per cent to 7.8 per cent during January. The substantial drop was loudly hailed by the administration as proof that President Ford's economic policies are working.

But the AFL-CIO report said "it is now generally accepted that the Labor Department's official report on unemployment in January 1976 was exaggerated by statistical aberration."

Wind blowing wild

By United Press International

The death toll in a tornado that smashed across two southeast Arkansas counties mounted to three today and torrential rains, touched off floods in the Ohio valley and East.

High winds were blamed for toppling three cars from a freight train in Wyoming and 15 to 20 foot waves lashed the Oregon coast, surging into an inn at Depoe Bay and slightly injuring two women.

An 11-year-old Parkdale, Ark., girl — a victim of Tuesday night's twister — died early today in a hospital at Greenville, Miss. Two other Parkdale residents also died in the tornado.

Arkansas state police said at least 20 persons were injured in the tornado, which roared through the communities of Parkdale, Wilmore and Lake Village, causing damage estimated to total at least $200,000. A spokesman for the state Office of Emergency Services said at least 50 persons may have been injured.

Refugees were housed in the National Guard Armory at Lake Village and the OES spokesman said, "We think the people are being taken care of. The big problem now is trying to get the thing tied together to determine whether there is a need for federal assistance."

Floods from up to 5 inches of rain drove an estimated 100 persons from their homes in western Kentucky. Some were taken to safety by boat.

"It was pretty bad there for a while," Greg Benton of the Civil Defense disaster service said, "but it eased up early today."

The National Weather Service issued a flood warning for 11 Ohio counties and several families were evacuated from homes near Levlitsburg. The weather service said lowland dwellers "should take immediate action to safeguard life and property."

In the resort community of Sunset Bay, N.Y., some 400 permanent residents were out of their homes because of flood waters from Cataraugus Creek. An unseasonable warm spell caused the flooding.

Ford's orders to intelligence agencies today included bans on:

- Spying on U.S. citizens, corporations, organizations and permanent resident aliens.
- Searching or electronic-bugging of U.S. citizens.
- Illegal opening of U.S. mail.
- Infringing domestic groups.
- Experimenting with drugs on humans without the person's consent.

Ford's fact sheet said "limited exception" will be allowed to meet legal needs of national security. The exceptions were designed to help the agencies check on the security of their employes, persons with access to government secrets and "persons who may assist the part of Ford's action most likely to raise debate in Congress dealt with his suggestions on how the lawmakers should exercise oversight of the intelligence agencies.

Openly distributed by leaks of intelligence secrets through congressional committees, Ford's fact sheet said, "The oversight functions should be centralized in a Joint House-Senate Committee to provide better security."

As the "law" stands, the intelligence agencies must brief at least six separate congressional committees, each with separate staffs.

Ford asked the lawmakers to act to ensure security secrecy, both in Congress and in the agencies themselves.

On the other hand, he said, "The executive branch should keep the Joint Oversight Committee fully informed of foreign intelligence matters, but there should be no requirement for prior notification of specific activities."

Members of Congress have been demanding the right to veto such actions as CIA covert operations before they were carried out.

Ford news meet in brief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's Tuesday news conference at a glance:

Intelligence

In an opening statement, announced he has put CIA director George Bush in charge of all U.S. intelligence operations and created independent three-man White House board to protect against abuses, with protection of citizens against illegal spying. But he said he bears ultimate responsibility for such activities. Asked Congress to outlaw attempted assassination of foreign officials.

Leaks

Also asked Congress to make it a crime for government officials to leak intelligence information.

"Nixon Trip

Said he will not interfere with former President Richard Nixon's China trip this week, and reiterated it is a visit by a private citizen at Peking's invitation.

Politics

Said "anyone to the right of me cannot win" the presidential election; that he differs with GOP opponent Ronald Reagan on Social Security policy and Reagan's proposed $80 billion cut in federal spending; and he expects to do well in both New Hampshire and Florida primaries.

Veto

Called the $2.2 billion jobs bill he vetoed "a hoax.... a campaign document," but said he could support more modest Republican-sponsored measure.

Gem worker fund losses deplored

BOISE — The Idaho Public Employees Association says further appropriations by the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee above those recommended by the executive department will erode funds which should be allocated to state employees.

Stephen Swadley, executive director of the employees' organization reported the committee's action in approving $3.7 million more than that recommended by the governor primarily in the area of public school and vocational education endangers legitimate state employee proposals.

Swadley says the association's efforts to delay full implementation of the 1977 and Associates wage plan may be successful. He says the absence of a thorough classification study prior to the salary calculations made by the Clary survey firm made the plan "very unacceptable to employees."

Pike says Ford's plan secretive, lacks clout

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The chairman of the House Intelligence Committee says President Ford's reshuffle of intelligence operations would reduce congressional control while creating a White House oversight panel with no clout.

Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., Tuesday night said Ford's reorganization put stress "largely on preserving all of the secrets in the executive branch and very little on guaranteeing a lack of any further abuses."

Several members of the Senate Intelligence Committee, including Sens. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., Vice Chairman John Chafee, R-Tex., Charles McClellan, R-Pa., and Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., Huddleston, D-Ky., welcomed the proposal as at least a good first step toward tighter control.

Ford said CIA Director George Bush would assume full control over all foreign intelligence gathering and named a three-person intelligence panel to monitor operations for the White House.

Pike said the proposed three-man executive oversight board was composed of good individuals but "I don't think they'll have much clout in this operation."

"There was nothing in his statement, getting information out to the public," said Pike. "I think there would be less congressional oversight than a year ago if we went his route."

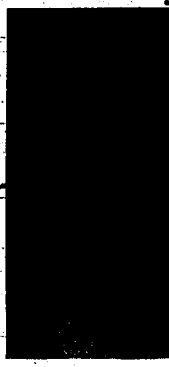

Mondale said he and Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, would recommend that the panel hold hearings on Ford's recommendations.

Mondale said he was troubled that the plan did not increase congressional oversight of the FBI.

Huddleston, who agreed, said, "The executive needed to establish better control, but there is a need for congressional oversight."

Before creation of the House and Senate investigating panels early last year following charges of wrongdoing by the CIA, FBI and other agencies, the only congressional oversight of intelligence operations rested with a handful of senior lawmakers who were informally kept aware of less than the full picture.

PATRICIA HEARST tells her story.

Patty joined SLA 'so I could stay alive'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Patricia Hearst, her "credibility" questioned by the judge, says she joined the Symbionese Liberation Army two weeks before she took part in a bank robbery "so I could stay alive."

The police magazine heiress insists she faked her conversion to terrorism and radical politics because her kidnapers told her she must "fight or die."

But while Miss Hearst told her story, U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter issued an order indicating he didn't believe her testimony last week that she was coerced into making confessions to the robbery for which she is on trial.

The judge said her "version of the facts, if true, would require the conclusion that her confession was involuntary." But he said a preponderance of evidence shows the admissions were voluntary.

Miss Hearst, scheduled to return to the stand today, said she didn't know if her gun was loaded and that she went into the bank with a warning she would be killed if she "messed up."

She spent the day Tuesday telling the jury of seven women and five men that two of her male captors virtually raped her in a tiny closet about a month after her kidnapping to indoctrinate her in SLA sexual customs.

The defendant, faltering and gasping for breath, said she was forced into sexual intercourse with Donald "Clique" DeFreeze, the black ex-convict who led the SLA, and William Wolfe.

Defense attorney, F. Lee Bailey told reporters there were other incidents of sexual assault but he did not intend to introduce them in evidence unless the prosecution brought them up.

Miss Hearst said she was kept blindfolded in closets at two hideouts for almost two months, getting out only to go to the bathroom and to take weekly baths — with a masked SLA member watching. She said she was moved from one "safe house" to the other in a garbage can.

She said DeFreeze told her the kidnapers were "thinking about spinning me a decision" — well, he said, fight or die, that I would either have to stay with them and join up with them, or I'd be killed and that I better start thinking about it.

Bailey questioned her about a tape recording made two weeks before the robbery in which she said she had joined the SLA.

"Now, at the time you made the statement, what did you want the members of the SLA to believe?" he asked.

"That I joined."

"Why did you want them to think you joined?"

"So I could stay alive."

"Were you convinced in your own mind at the time that if you did not join, that they would dispose of you?"

"Oh, yes."

Carter's formal order explained his decision last week that the defendant "voluntarily" made recordings and statements that she took part willingly in the April 15, 1974, robbery of a Hilbert Bank in San Francisco.

"The court has determined that the defendant's version of the facts, if true, would require the conclusion that her confession is involuntary," the judge wrote.

Ford asserts Reagan's conservatism handicap

NEW YORK (UPI)—President Ford, in his nationally televised news conference, asserted Tuesday that Ronald Reagan was too conservative to be elected president.

Ford said that "I think Governor Reagan is to the right of me philosophically and that 'I believe anyone to the right of me, Democrat or Republican, cannot be elected president.'"

As an example of the philosophy of the former California governor, the President's opponent for the Republican presidential nomination, Ford declared that Reagan had "suggested from time to time" that contributions to the Social Security system should be voluntary and that Social Security trust funds should be investigated in the stock market.

Reagan, in recent weeks, has said that he has changed his mind about whether Social Security contributions should be voluntary and now believes they should be mandatory.

Reagan has also said that he has not advocated private investment of Social Security funds but rather has suggested that it was an option that might be considered.

Ford said that he was confident that he would win the New Hampshire primary next week, and the one in Florida two weeks after that.

He said that the large crowds and "enthusiasm" that greeted him in Florida last weekend were "extremely encouraging."

The President also criticized new Reagan's proposal for transferring "$30 billion" worth of federal programs to the states and localities "where they either have to abandon the programs or raise taxes to support them."

Abortion foe's fund bid queried

WASHINGTON—Anti-abortion presidential candidate Ellen McCormack's bid for federal election funds has been challenged on grounds that she solicited contributions in the name of the right to life movement rather than her own candidacy.

In a legal action filed Tuesday with the Federal Election Commission (FEC), the National Abortion Rights Action League (NARAL) also asked for an investigation of any Roman Catholic Church involvement in Mrs. McCormack's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The executive director of NARAL charged that Mrs. McCormack's fund-raising activities had been designed solely to acquire access to television time to air anti-abortion commercials that could not be challenged under the fairness doctrine of the Federal Communication Commission (FCC).

Administration may have to hear of China trip

Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON—Whether they like it or not, Ford administration officials may feel compelled to hear what former president Richard M. Nixon has to say about the Chinese leadership when he returns from his forthcoming visit to Peking late this month.

Nixon will be the first Western visitor to talk to Chairman Mao Tse-tung and perhaps to Hua Kuo-feng, the acting premier, since Hua was not explicitly elevated to the top operating post in the Chinese hierarchy.

choice to succeed the late Premier Chou En-lai. Teng's star appears to have been eclipsed by Hua's emergence. The posters recently appearing at Peking University, and elsewhere, concerning "capitalist roaders" have been judged by China-watchers to be directed at Teng, who was sidetracked or called from the Peking power center during the Cultural Revolution but presumably had been fully rehabilitated.

The timing of the Chinese invitation to Nixon, in disgraceful exile himself, could hardly have been more embarrassing to Ford. The Nixon visit to Peking, coming three days before the New Hampshire presidential primary, is expected to revive memories of Ford's pardon of the ex-president and Nixon's selection of Ford as vice president to succeed Spiro Agnew, who pledged no contest to charges of tax evasion and also resigned disgraced.

The White House could hardly conceal its dismay, and moved quickly to put distance between the President and his political connection; disclaiming any knowledge of or connection with the Nixon trip.

But, as one official noted, "history plays many tricks, sometimes." Events now promise to give Nixon the first Western glimpse of Mao and Hua, an opportunity to appraise their relationship, and a chance to claim to speak authoritatively, within limits, of what the shake-up in Peking might portend.

Nixon may even discover in Peking why the Chinese seemed so anxious to have him come at this juncture, diplomatic officials point out.

These officials confess to ignorance about the motives underlying the invitation to Nixon and the sudden switch from Teng to Hua as Chou's potential successor. "The Chinese hierarchy is a closed corporation, the most secretive in the world," an official remarks. "We don't know what's going on, but we're not alone."

This was not foreclosed speculation, however. Hua Kuo-feng, who was the police chief of the Chinese Ministry of Public Security, would be an important figure in a period of turmoil and uncertainty, these officials emphasize.

They also note, quoting from China expert Ross Terrell, that Hua made a speech on relations with the Russians, although it would not explain why the old Cultural Revolution phrase, "capitalist roaders," has been exhausted to criticize Teng.

On the Nixon invitation, officials stress that the Chinese are subtle exponents of symbolism. It takes a gifted reader to sort out the symbols, they concede.

It could be that Mao invited Nixon out of "sheer sentimentality," one source speculates. The aged Communist godhead, now in his 80s, may look back on the Nixon visit in 1972 as an historic watershed in China's global relations and want to "rehabilitate" the former president. In that event, the source notes, Mao betrays a limited understanding of U.S. society.

The Nixon visit would also fit the conjecture that Peking is impatient with the pace of relations with Washington and wants "to break us," as another official put it. The Chinese leaders might also have concluded that Nixon would not have gone as far as Ford has in the policy of detente with the Russians. If that is true, these officials believe, Mao has misread Nixon, who probably would have promoted detente more assiduously than Ford.

Robert Pollard's troubling message

In an attempt to find relief for an energy-starved nation, the Congress Tuesday endorsed continued development of nuclear-powered breeder reactors. An estimated $1.7 billion and some of the brightest engineers in the nation will work in the coming months to perfect the space-age energy prodigies.

In theory, breeder reactors could solve the nation's energy crisis. The plants are marvels of modern technology which actually produce more energy than they consume.

Earlier this month, however, some of the men who helped develop the breeder reactors publicly questioned the safety of the huge nuclear facilities. Most troubling of these critics is Robert D. Pollard, a project manager for the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, who resigned from his influential job in protest of what he called the massive potential dangers of the nuclear-powered breeder reactors and more conventional nuclear plants.

Pollard, an engineer who has supervised federal safety evaluations for seven nuclear plants, says the government does not have stringent enough safety standards for nuclear plants. As a result Pollard says his moral responsibility is to inform the public of these dangers.

What bothers Robert Pollard is what he calls the "inherent danger of nuclear power." He claims most nuclear plants could inflict harm on human life from any of 200 flaws he has found in existing plants.

Pollard's public resignation from the nation's top nuclear energy agency came before Congress' approval of the breeder reactor money. But most Congressmen seemed little concerned with the resignation.

Instead, the Congress said the breeders were essential to the future of the nation.

Without question the nation needs to find new sources of energy but to dismiss the fears of one of the country's top nuclear experts, without further examination could be a disastrous mistake.

If the development of breeder reactors goes ahead without the absolute assurance that the reactors are safe, America is only counting down to a major nuclear disaster.

Ski patrol bill

Salt Lake Tribune

Languishing in the Judiciary Committee of the U.S. Senate and House are identical bills that while probably not of earth-shaking importance, would be quickly and favorably considered by Congress give a great humanitarian organization a helping hand.

S 1736 and HR 7239 propose granting the National Ski Patrol System, Inc., a federal charter. Grant of a national charter would not be plowing any new legal ground. And it wouldn't provide any federal funds. Many other non-profit charitable and humanitarian organizations have been federally chartered. Some of the more notable ones are the American Red Cross, the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

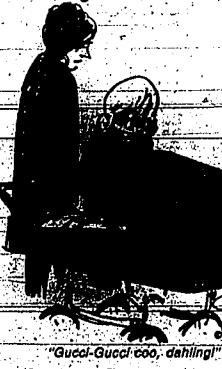

A federal charter for the National Ski Patrol System would remedy one of the organization's most troubling administrative headaches by establishing its non-profit status on a national basis.

The National Ski Patrol is presently incorporated in New York as a non-profit corporation. But in order for it to organize local affiliated ski patrols in other states, such as Utah, it must incorporate as a "foreign corporation," a frequently complicated and expensive business. A national charter would eliminate this red tape, permitting local ski patrols, most of whom are non-professional volunteers to devote their limited time to furthering their ski safety work and to use their scant funds to buy medical supplies and other patrol equipment.

Federal chartering would also, because of the non-profit designation, provide the 776 local ski patrols (with a collective membership of about 25,000 ski patrolmen) with an important fund raising tool — the much used tax deduction.

While the major advantage to be enjoyed by the National Ski Patrol System, Inc. if it gets a federal charter, is the easing of a major administrative headache, prompt congressional action will, collectively, be a national recognition of the countless hours several thousand men and women have given, mostly without compensation, to rescuing injured skiers, helping with non-skiing rescues and rescues and generally working to make skiing safer and more enjoyable for the American public.

Stuart class makes survey

Editor, Times-News:

Being disturbed at what we felt was inadequate and unfair reporting in your December junior high series, we decided to research the influence of those articles.

Our major conclusion is that the Times-News does not have a good credibility rating among its readers concerning the four-part series.

We have drawn our conclusions from the following survey results. Only 16 per cent of those contacted thought junior highs today compared unfavorably with the junior highs they attended while 52 per cent thought they were better and 22 per cent the same.

You listed alcohol, drugs and sex as the major problems. Our results show that discipline (20 percent) is considered the number one problem followed in order by drugs (17 per cent), teacher related problems (13 per cent), no known problems (11 per cent) and smoking (9 per cent). All other problems received six or fewer mentions. Alcohol was listed by six out of 123 answers while sex received only two votes.

In addition, we found that 29 per cent of those interviewed were not aware of any junior high activities. Of the remainder, 88 knew of sports, 19 of dances and 10 of the music department. All other activities were mentioned by fewer than 10 people. We feel there is plenty of good news to be covered.

We interviewed 117 adults, none of whom were teachers or parents of junior high students. These people were drawn from a variety of occupations, ages and sections of town. Full survey information is available at your request.

Plant siting bill endorsed

Editor, Times-News:

There is a power plant siting bill that is coming up before the legislature that should have the support of every individual in the state. It is Senate Bill 1401.

In the construction and operation of large power plants this bill will insure that justice is done to our state. This bill requires that the state take into consideration environmental degradation and depletion of our natural resources before allowing construction of power plants.

We are expecting an impact from large

Editor, Times-News:

The article entitled "Valley Teachers Pay Law" which appeared in the Feb. 3 issue of the Times-News needs some clarification to avoid possible misunderstanding by the public. The article was well-written and the information contained therein authentic.

Even though the beginning and maximum salaries for teachers in Blaine and Minidoka counties are above the state average for beginning and above, the actual averages of those two counties are below the average teacher's salary in Idaho of $10,206. In addition, Cassia County teachers are below the state average in salary. The classroom teacher's average salary in the respective school districts are as follows: Blaine County — $9,975; Cassia County — $10,192; and Minidoka County — $10,127.

Maximum salaries are not achieved by teachers without a great deal of faithful service and continued education. Four of the largest school districts in the Magic Valley are listed below with the number of graduate credits of years that it takes a teacher to reach the maximum salary:

Blaine County — After obtaining a master's degree and teaching in the district for 12 years a teacher may earn $11,720.

Cassia County — After obtaining a master's degree and teaching in the district for 12 years a teacher may earn $11,858.

and those who say they believe in equal rights but are not Women's Libbers. We all work for the same thing and think about justice and human rights, though many more are quiet, but protest unfair treatment.

I have read quite a few books and articles on the subject of equal rights and women's liberation, and I would really encourage anyone who is seriously studying the pros and cons of the whole idea to read these also.

"Between Myth and Morning" by Elizabeth Janeway is a sane, calm treatise on the background and the beginnings and need for women's liberation. "Sexual Justice" by Karen DeCrow is a documented tone of those "good words" publication of the less than just way women are treated by our judicial system. She is a lawyer and political activist.

Two books written for men by men are "The Liberated Man," by Warren Farrell, an educator and political advisor, and "A Male Guide to Women's Liberation" by Gene Marine, who is a reporter and writer.

ERA supporter explains position

Editor, Times-News:

In the paper of Feb. 6 I read a letter from Louise Koontz of Kimberly. She tells about appropriations from national government departments being used to promote the Equal Rights Amendment, and in according to her statement, "seething with anger" about it. She mentions a "clique of women-libbers" and the "mischievous" of promoting the E.R.A. She says this "clique" does not represent American women.

According to my way of thinking, the money isn't being misused, if that is, indeed, what it was used for. I'm all for the E.R.A. and for equal treatment and justice for every citizen who inhabits this land; whether he or she is a man or a woman. The point I would like to bring out, however, is that Miss Koontz seems to imply that the anti-E.R.A. ladies represent American women.

I wish to object to this implication. I feel obligated to speak out for myself and others in the country who believe in equal rights. I want to speak for Women's Libbers, articulate or silent, Ladies' Home Journal says some women are afraid of what they may lose by having equal rights. Some women are convinced too, that women are less intelligent than men, having been conditioned with this idea since infancy.

By the way, the "clique" — the "The Feminine Mystique," explains why so many middle-aged and older women are dissatisfied but do not know why. They have been taught to live only to promote their husbands — and families — and to live — "for themselves." Their mental capacities have not been challenged and their abilities went unused. Their lives seem easy, but they are still frustrated.

The only way to understand about women's lib or equal rights is to read and perhaps discuss. If we are "against," without knowing, we haven't used our God-given mental faculties. I believe we are, as a nation of people, learning and growing; and becoming enlightened about many things — even enough of us learn the truth and what is right and just we should all be free.

Land use plan votes shock TF resident

Editor, Times-News:

Dear Reps: Ralph Olmstead, Tom Silvers, Noy Brackett and William Roberts:

Your vote Tuesday for House Bill 1389 and against the principle of land use planning shocks and dismays me. I cannot understand how all four leaders from one of the most agriculturally oriented counties of the state, and the area which will benefit most from planning in the future, could vote en bloc against the principle of preserving agricultural land.

Your votes were shortsighted and most certainly you miss the whole point of the land use planning legislation which requires local citizens and officials to sit down together at the local level to assure that future use of our limited land will be decided by informed, and involved citizens and local officials. Your votes were for the past system in which it was who could influence most and buy off lands for development without consideration of what the effect would be to the community, the surrounding area and, most important, the citizens living there.

All four of you certainly have had your heads buried in the sand when it comes to the land use planning idea. Haven't you all seen what has happened in so many parts of the U.S. and particularly in California? Haven't you noticed the numbers of out-of-staters searching the "Magic Valley" for land? Don't you realize that too many of these new or prospective new citizens are those who took part in ruining other agricultural areas of the nation? And that, unless we sit down, get informed, educated, and consider what kind of community we want to live in, we will be handing over to the future that these strangers will bring the same policies here that led to urban sprawl and the destruction of farm land in other states? You gentlemen have fallen victim to scare tactics of those who are opposed to the idea of local citizens determining the orderly use of land. The charges that land use laws now in force, and those proposed, take away our right to own property are phony. In no way is the principle of due process destroyed by these laws. But, what these land use laws do establish is protection for the unscrupulous, the opportunists and those who consider land only as a commodity to be traded, swapped and developed for the greatest and fastest dollar profit.

Development should not be stopped. But we must act now to assure that this growth will be done in a planned and orderly way that preserves every acre of good agricultural land possible. You should have voted against the anti-land use bill and you should be busy convincing both farmers and city dwellers why planning by us, for us in the local level is needed. If you don't get informed and educated on this issue, I say that the farmers and those depending upon the farmers for their living in Twin Falls County need now to begin searching for legislative candidates and Magic Valley local citizens who will protect and defend the sovereignty of citizens and officials about stopping and preventing more uncontrolled growth.

State ID cards win Andrus' OK

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus signed a bill Tuesday authorizing the issuance of state identification cards which will be used to show proof of age or provide pictorial identification for personal monetary business.

The cards may be acquired for 45 with one-half the fee going to the county current expense fund and the other half going to the State Motor Vehicle Fund. They will be similar to the state driver's license.

Applicants for the cards may be made through driver license examiners in all 44 counties. The applicants must provide name, address, a certified copy of a birth certificate or satisfactory evidence of date of birth, place of birth, height, weight, eye and hair color and signature.

If the applicant cannot show proof of birth date in a manner satisfactory to the driver license examiner, the application can be refused.

Free enterprise classes win Gem House approval

BOISE (UPI) — House members approved Tuesday legislation to force the schools to give children a positive understanding about free enterprise despite assertions it is tantamount to dogma.

Floor sponsor Doyle Miner, R-St. Anthony, said the bill — which goes now to the Senate — is written in broad language and will permit teaching both of good and bad points of the system.

It's purpose, he said, is to prepare young people for the economic world in which they will live and understand the positive values of profit in the system.

Rep. Dorothy Reynolds, D-Caldwell, attacked the proposal on two grounds: it could lead to additional problems in the Legislature begins to legislate specific curricula — and the word "positive" is a poor one. Rather than positive, she said, the measure should contain the word "realistic."

Unless students learn both the positive and negative aspects of an economic system, she said, their instruction amounts to indoctrination.

"Let's leave that to countries other than our own," she said. "If we're going to do something to improve economic education teachers should be better trained by the universities."

Miner agreed that all aspects of the system should be taught in addition to how other types of economic systems operate.

Rep. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, asked Miner how the bill could be enforced. He said if the State Board of Education does not carry out its intent he would hope the governor would appoint a new board of education.

Challenging Mrs. Reynolds' contention that the bill calls for legislative designation of curricula — Rep. F. W. Shivers, R-Twin Falls, said: "We're not asking for specific curricula to be installed in our schools. We're asking for general courses in free enterprise."

He said children are being graduated from high school ill-fitted for a college education and ill-equipped to understand the capitalistic system. He charged they are being "indoctrinated about the horrors of the profit system."

"It takes employers long hours to teach new employees that it's the profits that are paying their salaries," he said.

Budget work continuing

BOISE (UPI) — Today is the 45th legislative day of the Idaho Legislature and the day by statute the Joint Finance & Appropriations Committee is to have its budget work done.

But Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, committee co-chairman, said, "We're a long way from having our work done."

He said it probably would be at least another 10 days before the committee completed work on the budget recommendations for fiscal 1977.

Bill emerges

BOISE (UPI) — A constitutional proposal to set up a citizens' committee on legislative compensation came out of the House State Affairs Committee without recommendation Tuesday.

Under normal procedures, the proposed amendment should come before the House for a vote by Thursday or Friday.

It eliminates the present constitutional limitation of $10 per day salary for the first 60 days of regular and 20 days of special sessions.

More interest asked

BOISE (UPI) — The House Resources and Conservation Committee called Tuesday for introduction of a bill to require banks and other lending institutions to pay interest on reserve accounts.

As written, the bill would require the lending institutions to pay the same rate of interest on the reserve accounts that they pay on regular savings accounts.

Cenarrasa switches

BOISE (UPI) — Secretary of State Fred Cenarrasa reversed a previous stand Tuesday and announced his intention to vigorously enforce Idaho's head to head statute.

He said the refusal Monday by the House of Representatives to repeal the legislation prompted his decision.

Minimum pay hike earns OK in House

BOISE (UPI) — Two-thirds of the House approved and sent to the Senate today a bill to raise Idaho's present $1.50 per hour minimum wage to the federal level of $2.20 by July 1, 1977.

Moving in steps, the bill calls for boosting the minimum to $2 next July 1 and $2.20 next Jan. 1 and to $2.30 in July, 1977. Rep. B. E. "Bud" Lewis, R-St. Maries, steered the bill through a 32-minute debate to passage, 48-22, pointing out the present state minimum was set in July 1972 and that inflation has increased prices considerably since then.

"When federal and state laws are the same it is much easier for all concerned," Lewis added.

Rep. C. L. "Butch" Otter, R-Caldwell, urged defeat of the proposal. Any increase in pay, he said, will be paid for by the consumer, not the employer.

He outlined the case of some farm workers who, as a family, earned up to $7 per hour — the father earning the most and the others paid according to their abilities.

When a minimum wage went in, he said, all but the father lost their jobs and the family income was reduced to $2 per hour. Rep. E. V. McFarr, R-Ketchum, said the present minimum wage is less than paid to a welfare mother with two children and even at $2.20 per hour would not be much more than that paid a "person on relief."

Relief attempt made

BOISE (UPI) — House taxwriters made another attempt at tax relief Tuesday, sending to the floor with approval two bills to lower the eight-mill county school levy to four mills.

One proposal calls for reducing the levy next year only, replacing the $6.8 million lost at the local level with general fund surplus. The other would permanently lower the levy, taking the money out of the sales tax fund.

Under normal procedures the bills should be up for final consideration in the House by Thursday. Earlier, the House defeated a bill which would have lowered the mill levy next year by using surplus and also would have made the reduction permanent, taking the money from the general fund after the first year.

Clear-cut ban asked

BOISE (UPI) — The House Resources and Conservation Committee introduced legislation Tuesday to prohibit clear-cutting of timber in the drainage of any "stream channel" in Idaho.

The bill defines stream channel as a "natural water course of perceptible extent, with definite bed and banks, which confines and conducts continuously flowing water."

It requires any agency with authority under the laws of the United States or of the State of Idaho to issue permits for harvesting forest products to submit to the State Department of Water Resources each application to clear-cut filed with the agency.

Rate hike sought

SPOKANE (UPI) — The Washington Water Power Company has filed requests for general rate increases in electricity and natural gas in eastern Washington and northern Idaho. The utility seeks a five per cent gas rate hike and a 14 per cent electrical rate hike in Washington and a two per cent gas hike and a 15 per cent electrical rate hike in Idaho.

Soviets exceed US in key industrial output

NEW YORK — The Soviet Union last year continued to exceed United States output of key industrial commodities—from oil and coal to steel and cement—but fell short in farm production, creating one of the greatest agricultural gaps between the two countries in recent decades. At the same time, overall economic performance in the Soviet Union again lagged behind that of the United States, achieving only about three-fifths of the American Gross National Product and remaining far behind in quality of output, productivity and living standards.

Rupert man surrenders

BURLEY — A Rupert man turned himself in to Burley police Tuesday morning in connection with a stabbing late Friday night in a downtown Burley tavern. Wayne Leroy Dryden, 21, is charged with assault with a deadly weapon. He is accused of stabbing Joseph Dunn three times in the chest and abdomen. Dryden turned over a buck knife, police said, which allegedly was used in the stabbing. The incident occurred about 11:30 p.m. Friday at the Oasis. Dunn was held in Cassia Memorial Hospital for treatment over the weekend and released Sunday. Witnesses said Dunn was stabbed when he tried to break up a quarrel between Dryden and his wife.

Vengeful Palestinian student shoots two in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A Palestinian student, seeking revenge for his expulsion from the American University, shot and killed an American and a Lebanese faculty dean Tuesday then was shot himself when he surrendered. University officials identified the killer as Najem Najem, 23 a Jordanian of Palestinian origin who was an engineering student at the university from 1969 until his expulsion in 1974. He was one of 103 radical students dismissed after a series of strikes and riots. On a revenge mission, he shot and killed the American Dean of Students, Robert Najemy, 56, of Worcester, Mass., married and a father of four children, and Lebanese dean of Engineering, Raymond Ghosn, 54. Najemy died instantly and Ghosn soon after arrival at a hospital. The shootings sent panicky students and staff members fleeing from the campus and Najem, waving a pistol in one hand and a grenade in the other, ran to the main administration block. He held the University's Vice President and eight other staff members hostage for more than an hour before officials talked him into giving himself up. University officials said Najem was "very nervous and kept saying over and over: 'I'm doing this on my own...I'm doing this on my own.'"

Caldwell miss among nominees

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Ronce Blakley's family, is "just thrilled" but not too surprised that she has been nominated for an Academy Award for her performance in "Nashville."

"We're just thrilled," said her mother, Mrs. Ronald M. Blakley, Caldwell. "We're not surprised because of her talent — because we always knew she had talent."

"But for everyone who gets nominated there's a thousand with talent," she said. "It just took someone to open the door for her. We knew if the door was open, she'd walk right through."

Miss Blakley is among the nominees for best supporting actress.

Home sold unfit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The home Julie Andrews, of "Mary Poppins," fame, shares with her husband, producer Blake Edwards, is an "improper environment" for Blake's son by a previous marriage, the boy's mother charged Tuesday.

Mrs. Patricia Edwards, divorced from Edwards in 1967, filed a Superior Court petition asking he not be allowed to bring home their son, Geoffrey, 16. The boy has "extreme personal problems" requiring close supervision by a psychiatrist, she alleged.

Mrs. Edwards also asked her attorney be raised from $1,850 to $5,000 a month and child support be increased from $150 to $1,200 a month. She argued that Edwards "earned in excess of $2 million in the past two years."

Stafford remembers

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Apollo-Soyuz astronaut Thomas Stafford still remembers his Russian. "Gavaryu Khroshto (I speak well)," he replied Tuesday when U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon asked him, also in Russian, about his command of the language.

Stafford and fellow astronaut Vance Brand and Donald Slayton learned Russian for their joint spaceflight with Soviet cosmonauts last year.

Toon picked it up during his service at the U.S. embassy in Moscow.

The three spacemen arrived in Israel from Kuwait for a brief halt as part of a world tour.

"Believe me, I didn't worry at all about coming back to earth," Brand said of the Apollo-Soyuz mission at a brief airport chat with reporters.

Burger rests at home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief Justice Warren Burger, whose bout with the flu kept him from delivering his annual judicial message at the American Bar Association session Sunday, will rest at home for the remainder of the week, a court spokesman has reported.

Dr. William Howell of the Washington Clinic said the chief justice's slight fever has disappeared but that he should not come to work for a few more days.

Dowries banned

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The southern state of Punjab Tuesday banned dowries, an ancient practice that has driven unmarried girls to suicide and wiped out family fortunes in a single day.

The state legislative assembly passed a bill that would punish offenders with one-year jail terms and fines of $120.

The new law also bans ostentatious weddings with large processions, displays of wealth and lavish feasting, all common in Indian marriages.

Traditionally, parents of prospective brides must offer dowries ranging as high as $12,000, depending on the status of the groom.

The system has been prevalent in India for centuries. It has created economic hardship for countless families and in some cases wiped out all their savings and put them deep into debt.

Hundreds of young women, whose parents were unable to pay the high prices, have committed suicide.

Nicholson gets 5th shot at Oscar

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," which won more Academy Award nominations than any other film this year, has given Jack Nicholson his fifth shot at an Oscar.

Nicholson's competition for the best actor award includes Al Pacino of "Dog Day Afternoon," a four-time nominee but, like Nicholson, never a winner.

A best-actress nomination for two-time winner Glenda Jackson for her performance in "Hedda" gave her a chance to join Ingrid Bergman and Katharine Hepburn as the only three-Oscar actresses.

This is the fourth time Nicholson has been nominated for best actor, and the third time for Pacino. Each also had a nomination for best supporting actor.

Nicholson won a place in the list of nominees announced by the Motion Picture Academy Tuesday for his portrayal of a not-so-crazy patient battling the system in a state mental hospital. Pacino was nominated for his role as a bisexual bank robber in "Dog Day Afternoon." "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" collected nine nominations, including best movie, best director, best supporting actor and a best actress nomination for Louise Fletcher, who played the cold-blooded Nurse Ratched.

Second with seven nominations was "Barry Lyndon," Stanley Kubrick's stately study of a social climbing rogue. Others named for best film were "Dog Day Afternoon," "Nashville" and "Jaws," which has made more money than any other movie.

Facing Fletcher and Miss Jackson for the best actress Oscar are Ann-Margret for "Tommy," Isabella Adjani, "The Story of Adele H.," and Carol Kane, "Hester Street." The other nominees for best actor were Walter Mathau for "The Sunshine Boys," Maximilian Schell, "The Man in the Glass Booth," and James Whitmore, "Give 'em Hell, Harry." The only previous winners among the men were Mathau, who took a best supporting Oscar in 1974 for "Paper Moon," and Schell, named best actor in 1981 for "Judgment at Nuremberg."

"Dog Day Afternoon" won six nominations, "Funny Lady" and "Nashville" five each, and four apiece went to "Jaws," "The Man Who Would Be King," "Shampoo" and "The Sunshine Boys."

Other nominations: Best supporting actor — George Burns, "The Sunshine Boys"; Brad Dourif, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest"; Burgess Meredith, "Day of the Locust"; Chris Sarandon,

"Dog Day Afternoon," and Jack Warden, "Shampoo." Best supporting actress — Ronce Blakley and Lily Tomlin, "Nashville"; Lee Grant, "Shampoo"; Brenda Vaccaro, "Once Is Not Enough"; and Sylvia Miles, "Farewell My Lovely."

Best director — Milos Forman, "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest"; Federico Fellini, "Amarcord"; Stanley Kubrick, "Barry Lyndon"; Sidney Lumet, "Dog Day Afternoon"; and Robert Altman, "Nashville."

Kubrick and Fellini both were nominated for the fourth time.

Decision delayed in custody case

HOUSTON (UPI) — A juvenile court judge has delayed a decision on whether a teenage mother who sold her baby to buy heroin still has legal custody of the boy.

Sheri Alton, 19, said she sold her 18-month-old son, Ricky, for $1,800 to pay her rent and buy heroin. Although she is in jail on a robbery charge, she said she wanted the baby back.

Judge Robert Lowery Tuesday ordered Ricky's court-appointed attorney, Barry Dillinger, to report on the case by March 18. The boy has been put in the custody of the county child welfare agency.

Lowry ruled an affidavit giving up the baby and signed by Miss Alton was not legal because it was not dated.

Home cures eyed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Some Mexican-Americans treat a child's fever by rubbing egg on the victim's head and feeding him herbal tea. Some rural blacks use spider webs to control bleeding. A few rural southerners treat garter with salt and fish.

Dr. Maria Luisa Urdaneta, a researcher at the University of Texas at San Antonio, says these and other home remedies might not be as silly as they seem.

"It is a matter of fact that many home remedies are just as effective at curing some illnesses as prescription medicines," she said.

"Our middle class population has gotten used to modern, scientific medical treatment, but ethnomedicine — folk medicine practices among the poor and ethnic minorities — is very much alive and utilized."

Dr. Urdaneta, an assistant professor of social sciences with a Ph.D. in medical anthropology, said that in her studies she has found 80 to 90 per cent of those who become ill recover "whether they go to see their doctor or to see their grandmother."

She said folk medicine is still practiced because "in many areas there are no health care practitioners available."

The board voted the travel aid for Debbie Bliss, Minico High School band member, and band director James Brague. Brague estimated expenses of a trip to Atlantic City next month as $1,200, with about $900 already collected.

The 100-member National High School Honor Band represents all 50 states and the Minico High clarinet player is the only musician chosen in Idaho this year.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delford Bliss, Paul, she was chosen through Brague's recommendation and written and taped audition.

The band is sponsored by the National Band Association. It will perform for the Music Educators National Conference meeting March 13 at Atlantic City and will present a special concert at Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., the following day.

Miss Bliss was named to the All-State Band in her sophomore year and chosen for the All-Northwest Band last year.

Rupert man 'fair' after bullet wound

RUPERT — A 19-year-old Rupert man was listed in fair condition Tuesday following an accidental shooting Sunday.

Marty Bean is in Minidoka Memorial Hospital, where surgery was performed to remove a .22 caliber bullet from his abdomen. Bean was accidentally shot while a party of five men were target shooting in the desert area in Blaine County northeast of Minidoka.

The bullet came from a lever action rifle in the hands of Rodney Couch; Rupert. The rifle reportedly failed to fire when the trigger was pulled, then went off as the rifle barrel was swung toward Bean.

The bullet entered Bean in the left side of the abdomen. Bean was taken to Minidoka Hospital by Couch, Steve Antonio, John Edwards and Frank Foster, all of Rupert.

Bean's older brother was injured in another gun accident about eight years ago.

Bar fails to approve prostitution law reform

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — By a margin of but two votes, the American Bar Association's governing body has decided against placing the organization's stamp of approval on efforts to remove criminal sanctions for prostitution.

The association's predominantly male house of delegates voted 134 to 132 Monday against a resolution to back state legislation removing criminal sanctions for private sexual conduct. The house — 335 men and five women — approved a series of 20 recommendations for shielding law enforcement agencies from Watergate-type political influences in Congress and the White House.

None of the bar association supported resolutions that force of law, although Congress is expected to examine them for possible legislation.

During debate over the prostitution resolution, both sides quoted the Bible and Charles Kickham Jr. of Brookline, Mass., told delegates that treating prostitution was a moral problem best left to the states.

Carole Bellows, a Chicago lawyer and a major sponsor of the proposal, termed the narrow vote a victory for equal treatment of women and decriminalization of "victimless crimes."

"The fact we came so close here will be support for legal reform by other organizations," she said. "It was the second formal defeat of the resolution. Delegates voted it down at the 1974 annual meeting in Honolulu and tabled it last summer in Montreal. Proposals that the Justice Department log every outside contact about a criminal investigation and that a special court be created to name a special prosecutor to investigate government crimes when needed passed easily. Deputy Attorney General Harold Tyler opposed the resolutions. He said logging of contacts was unwieldy and that illegitimate attempts to influence the department could easily avoid being logged."

He also said the special court would be an unconstitutional exercise of executive powers by the judiciary since it would decide what matters should be investigated.

also included New Jersey, California, Pennsylvania and New York.

The investigators said in one selected assortment of eight tests, Illinois paid $354,000 more in six months last year than private patients would have been charged.

The laboratories also make money by performing tests physicians did not order, and collecting for them from Medicare-Medicaid.

The investigators also found Medicare and Medicaid payment schedules were out of date and assumed most of the laboratory work was being done by hand. In reality, computers and other advanced technology greatly reduced the costs of lab work but the lower costs were not reflected in the fees.

The investigators told a subcommittee hearing they found "the only way" for state to obtain Medicaid accounts from physicians was to offer kickbacks averaging 30 percent of the value of the services ordered by the physician and paid for from state and federal funds.

Laboratories apparently made up the cost of the kickbacks in various ways, the investigators said.

Probes in Illinois found laboratories charged Medicaid as much as 110 per cent more than they charged private patients. The investigation concentrated on Illinois, but

Medicare 'gold rush' end sought by senator

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A New Mexico senator is calling for Congress to end a "gold rush" of widespread abuse — including overcharges and kickbacks — at the Medicare and Medicaid programs by clinical laboratories.

"I think it is time that the Congress stepped in and ended this gold rush in the area of health care for the poor and aged," said Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., Monday.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: May God bless you for asking readers who had spent three months or more in a mental hospital to write you explaining the problems of getting back into society. You really do care about people, don't you?

I spent two years in a county mental hospital. At first I expected to be thrown together with freaks and nuts who would climb the walls, scream bloody murder and act crazy. Some were a little strange, and occasionally hostile and hard to handle, but none was dangerous. Most were in a deep state of depression.

Hospital praised

SANDRA ALLRED plans rites

Abby, will you please say a kind word for those wonderful people who work with disturbed patients? It takes a deep love for humanity to care for people who are mentally ill. Today I am home, well and happy, and I know I never could have made it without the patient, loving and understanding people who looked after me. Thank you for your help.

FORMER MENTAL PATIENT

DEAR-FORMER: I appreciate your kind letter. And I still welcome letters from former mental patients. You need not sign your names. The response to my request has been heartwarming.

DEAR ABBY: I am a minister's wife, and I would like to tell you what Christmas means to me: It means spending the holidays going to programs in which my musically talented children perform. (Most ministers marry women who can play the piano so they will always have someone to play for the services. These wives usually produce musically gifted children.)

Christmas means working hard to make gifts for the family in order to live within a limited budget. Minister's wives have always done this. It means cooking everything from scratch for the same reason.

Christmas means being excluded from a lot of holiday parties because most people don't want to know the kind of driving they're seeing. (We know anyway.)

Christmas means spending all the time at the stove, sink or washing machine. Nobody offers to help with anything, and after a few tries, you end up doing it alone because it's easier than begging for help.

Christmas means receiving gifts from your family that will enable you to serve them better—rarely anything to satisfy your personal, feminine desires.

Christmas means becoming physically exhausted and trying to keep it from showing. The family isn't concerned. Any suggestions, Abby?

NAMELESS AND NO LOCATION

DEAR NAMELESS: Yours is the saddest Christmas message I've ever heard. Clap hands and show it to your family. If they don't know how you feel, they should.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with Roy for a year and a half. We plan to be married.

Roy's brother went with a girl I treat Gloria. Gloria and I are good friends. Gloria broke up with Roy's brother and is going to marry someone else.

My boyfriend and I were invited to the wedding. I want to go. My boyfriend says that he will not go and that out of respect to his brother, I shouldn't go, either. I think he's out of line, and I told him I thought he was childish—and if everyone thought like this, no one would have a friend in the world.

EASTERNER

DEAR EASTERNER: I'm with you. Adults choose their own friends. (And enemies.)

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Bob Wills' Texas Playboys hit the road again

DALLAS (UPI) — The Texas Playboys, scattered by World War II and reunited as a final wish of their dying leader, are on the air and hitting the road again because a third generation of Americans has "discovered" Western Swing.

Crowds-of-young-people seeking something authentic in popular music roar approval from Village clubs in New York to dance halls in San Antonio at the mention of Bob Wills' name or the introduction of his widow.

No longer are the crowds satisfied that Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings and Asleep at the Wheel sing the old Playboys tunes. They demand the real thing. And, it's causing a group of old players and fiddlers, a drummer and piano player to try to find the magic once again.

The Playboys are scattered from Arizona to Arkansas, Oklahoma to Tennessee and Texas; but Betty Wills is in contact with each of her "boys" from the Fort Worth home where she raised the children of her marriage to Bob Wills.

"Bob left the Texas Playboys to me," she said. "I want to do everything to perpetuate his name as originator of Western Swing."

"Music was Bob's life. I think everybody will agree he put everything into his music. We are quite proud of what he did and I'm pleased that the younger people have accepted his music like they have."

"Of course, Bob, during the last several years of his life was confined to hospitals and nursing homes—and we lost contact with what was going on in the music field then with young people catching on to his music."

"Last year I had the opportunity to go to Houston to accept an award and was amazed at the reaction the name Bob Wills brought from the younger people."

More recently the Texas Playboys taped an Austin concert which was shown by Public-Broadcasting-System-affiliates. Mrs. Wills went to New York when the "Austin City Limits" concert was aired nationally.

"Asleep at the Wheel was there doing a concert at the Bottom Line in the Village." Mrs. Wills said. "I had thought perhaps this revival was just in Texas, this surge toward Western Swing. But if you shut your eyes and listen you would think you were in Austin. The roof just came off when they said they were going to play a Bob Wills tune. When you say Bob Wills' name in New York and get the same response as in Austin, it makes you feel like it (Western Swing) has gone all over."

The response to the Playboys is more easily accepted than the idea the band could be regrouped to play live music again. For the most part the men left organized music behind after World War II. They managed radio stations, sold trailers, worked at small-town newspapers and developed other careers and families. At one point they did not play together for 29 years.

But then Wills became seriously ill, crippled by a stroke. He grew stronger but it was certain he would never recover. And it grew increasingly important to him the "original" Playboys, so named because he found the combination of players he liked in 1935, assemble and record one more album.

"All during Bob's illness there never was a day one of the Playboys didn't call," Mrs.

Wills said. "We had visits from different members of them. What I consider the original Playboys were in contact with the time. Older men such as Art Stricklin, Leon McCallum, Smokey Dacus, Steepley Johnson. These men, they looked on Bob as a fatherly image. They were most concerned about his health, and kept in close contact."

March wedding planned

CASTLEFORD — Mr. and Mrs. John W. Allred, Castleford, announce the engagement of their daughter, Sandra, to James D. Clawson. Clawson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Clawson, Twin Falls.

Miss Allred graduated from Castleford High School in 1974 and attended Ricks College. Clawson graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1973 and served an LDS mission in the Ohio, Columbus mission. He is an associate with J.A. Clawson Construction Co.

The couple plans a March 23 wedding in the Salt Lake City LDS Temple.

Scribblers hold meet

TWIN FALLS — The Scribbler Club met Friday evening at the home of Anna Hansen Hayes.

Roll call was answered with a tribute written to Ruth Vandenberg, who is a 49-year club member. She has sold her property and is leaving for Oregon to live near her daughter and family.

The evening's assignment, factual historical events of family life and others living in Magic Valley, were read by members present. Illuminating facts were learned, such as the first wedding in Twin Falls, the first grocery stores and the derivation of the names of cities and towns in Magic Valley.

The next meeting will be at the home of Uarda King Terry.

Panel checks contraceptive ads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A major commission of the National Council of Churches Tuesday called for research in test-markets to determine if televised advertising of non-prescription contraceptives can help reduce unwanted pregnancies and venereal disease.

But, the NCC's Communication Commission, after a three-month study of the issue, concluded that it does not believe there is sufficient information at this time to justify widespread advertising of non-prescription contraceptives on radio and television.

The National Association of Broadcasters' Code Board is currently considering whether it should relax restrictions against accepting advertising from makers of non-prescription contraceptives.

"We believe that it is essential that careful research into the results of radio and television advertising in a few test markets be conducted, in terms of actual reduction in venereal disease and unwanted pregnancies, before nationwide advertising be considered," the commission said.

But it said it had "a serious question" as to whether advertising could be expected to be "sufficiently truthful and responsible so as to be beneficial."

At the same time, the commission called on broadcasters to develop "far more informational programming in the area of the control of fertility."

Broadcasters should immediately begin a campaign to inform teen-agers about the problems of venereal disease and contraception during prime time hours, the commission said.

BPW holds meet, party

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Business and Professional Women's Club held its regular meeting and a Valentine party at Sunny View Courts Monday night.

Gela Miller, parliamentarian and program chairman, gave a talk on parliamentary procedure and a refresher course on club bylaws.

The district meet will be held in Jerome, April 4. The white elephant was won by Mae Chatterton. Refreshments were served by Fernie Aldrich, Blanche Widener, Miss Chatterton and Foye Hoffman.

The next meeting will be at George K's Restaurant on March 1.

The seriousness of the present epidemic of venereal disease requires broadcasters to respond to the crisis as part of their public service responsibility," the commission said, adding that the churches, too, have the responsibility to commit personnel and money to help carry out such educational projects.

Earlier this month, Bishop James S. Rausch, general secretary of the United States Catholic Conference, called for a complete prohibition of all televised advertising for contraceptives.

The National Council of Churches is a cooperative agency of 31 Protestant and Orthodox confessions in the United States.

Weiser makes change

WEISER, Idaho (UPI) — In an effort to avoid attracting individuals who are looking for a fling, the Weiser Chamber of Commerce announced it is dropping the word "festival" from the annual contest for Oldtime Fiddlers.

The Oldtime Fiddlers Contest will be held June 21-26. Seth Dunn, general chairman, said the change in the name was made to "de-emphasize festival aspects in hopes that people who have been coming for a 'fling' will stay away."

The contest started in 1953 and now attracts more than 200 best fiddlers of the nation.

Weiser's fiddlers contest has done much to perpetuate oldtime fiddling which has been the primary purpose of the annual event," said Dunn. "We are still anxious for fiddlers and connoisseurs of oldtime fiddling but hope that those who have been coming for other entertainment will pass us by."

Dunn said last year there were 6,000 people who invaded the town of 5,000 population during "Fiddlers' Week" creating serious law enforcement problems ranging from drunkenness and nudity to roaming dogs and shop lifting.

Suit filed against LA dating service

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The women think the men are rascals, the men think the women are frosty and the city thinks the dating service is misleading them both.

The city attorney's office filed a suit in Superior Court Tuesday against Round Table Interpersonal Dynamics Inc., a dating service, alleging false and misleading advertising.

Deputy City Attorney Joseph McCarthy said women had complained they did not realize that questionnaires they filled out would be used to compose ads sent to the male subscribers with their telephone numbers and descriptions of their figures.

Women complained the ads attracted suggestive phone calls, and men complained that instead of being "warm and pleasant" as advertised, the women gave them frosty receptions, treating them like obscene callers, the suit charged.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am very much interested in hearing your views on the use of estrogen for women over 50. Several of my friends use it daily and swear by it. They feel young and strong and healthy. On the other hand I have questioned two doctors, both of whom discourage its use. One claimed that if a person were to take the estrogen would increase the chance of having it. The other frowned on the entire matter on the use of estrogen.

I would very much like to think I can safely use it, and feel as young and as good as my friends. I am 58. — J.M.

The female hormone (estrogen) is no panacea, nor can it provide eternal youth. The need for it should be positively identified before it is prescribed.

We are constantly being confronted with conflicting reports on side effects. Estrogen therapy is not recommended if the patient has a history of cancer or other disorders, as thrombophlebitis or liver disease. However, there are definite symptoms which call for its use, many of them menopausal. It is also helpful in women who show signs of changes in genital or bone structures in advanced years.

The point is that use of estrogen — any drug, for that matter — can still be desirable to combat an immediate medical problem in the face of potential risks. Doctors often are called upon to decide when such risks are "acceptable." Again, it is a decision to be faced with many other drugs.

Awards presented

MOCK ANGEL FOOD CAKE
Frost 1 cup. Measure one and one-half cups cake flour, one and one-half cups sugar and one-half teaspoon salt. Sift together into mixing bowl. Scald one cup milk and pour over dry ingredients while hot. Beat five egg whites until foamy. Then, add three level teaspoons baking powder and beat until stiff. Fold egg whites into first mixture and pour it into an ungreased angel food cake pan. Bake 35 to 40 minutes in a 350 degree oven.

FROSTING
Sift five egg yolks and one cup sugar together, until creamy. Add one cup evaporated milk. Cook over low heat until thick, stirring constantly to avoid scorching. Add one teaspoon vanilla, cool and spread on cake. Sprinkle with nut meats. If chocolate frosting is desired, add one square of chocolate or two and one-half tablespoons cocoa.

Estrogen needs vary

Your doctors are being conservative. Why use medications whose use is not indicated, or which could perhaps produce side effects (no matter how harmless)? If you have sailed through menopause without serious or debilitating symptoms, there is no reason to take estrogen pills or hormone therapy.

If, on the other hand, you have some of the unpleasant effects of menopause, there is no reason to avoid taking estrogen unless your medical history precludes its use. However, it should be in amounts carefully measured to alleviate the symptoms. Some women take estrogen cyclically or periodically as needed.

It seems foolish to "shop around" for a doctor who will prescribe something you may not need. If your friends feel better with estrogen therapy, they may well have needed it to begin with. If not they are wasting their money.

It will only make you feel "younger" by alleviating problems that are making you feel "older."

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Can you tell me if hiatal hernia can be related to pregnancy? I have pressure and shortness of breath. I'm using antacid. — G.B.

Pregnancy, like obesity, can aggravate a hiatal (esophageal) hernia, and for the same reason — increased pressure within the abdomen. Antacids are frequently necessary, but are not to be overdone.

This is no time to have an X-ray, else I would suggest you to determine whether you have such a condition. If your symptoms persist after delivery, then have an X-ray to establish whether or not you do. Except for discomfort it would not have any effect on your delivery.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Is it possible for a man to eat so much that it causes a heart attack? My husband has had two severe attacks and uses nitroglycerine pills for smaller ones. He is not overweight, nor does he have any other ailments. He does smoke, though doctors have told him to quit. — M.T.

It is possible to eat too much. When food goes into the stomach, a series of events occurs, which results in an increase of blood supply. This includes digestive contractions in the stomach and intestinal walls and activation of the glands involved, each of which must be supplied additional blood. The heart itself requires more blood to nourish its own muscles.

Your husband's history of heart attacks, and I suspect, from the fact that he is taking nitroglycerine of angina pectoris, indicates that he should avoid heavy meals or any undue exercise after his meals.

Is angina pectoris dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about this heart condition, write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of this newspaper, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." Enclose a long, self-addressed stamped (13 cents now) envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but requests that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Reader questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Couple says vows

HAMMETT — James Schwager, Higgunn, Mass., and Christina Reith were married on Jan. 17 at St. Pius Church in Middletown, Conn.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Reith, Framingham, Mass., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Schwager, Hammett.

Mrs. Richard Adams, Nashua, N.H., was her sister's matron of honor. Randy Schwager, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. The bride graduated from Framingham State College, Massachusetts, and received her master's degree in education from the Central Connecticut State College. She teaches in Middletown.

The bridegroom attended local schools and graduated from Glenns Ferry High School. He received a degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Idaho, Moscow.

Peron ouster stalled

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI)—In an apparent move to "wait" a possible impeachment motion against President Isabel Peron, the government has withdrawn its mandate for the current emergency session of congress.

The move comes at a time of increased calls for Mrs. Peron's resignation and serious talk in Congress of impeaching her or declaring her incompetent. These last two possibilities were expected to be formally discussed, and possibly voted on later this week.

The only explanation given by the government ending the emergency session was to mention the need to "draw up laws more in line to the special situation that exists in the socio-economic and political institutional sectors."

Congress also was expected this week to vote on the extension of the mandate of the congressional committee investigating alleged administrative corruption. By ending the emergency session, the government forced the committee to cease its activities.

The possibilities of impeaching Mrs. Peron or of declaring her incompetent were viewed by political analysts as "institutional" solutions to the worst political and economic crisis in Argentina's history.

The search for these solutions got under way in earnest last week as rumors of an imminent coup intensified. The 24-hour businessmen's protest strike against the government's economic policies ended Tuesday with shops, stores and restaurants reopening.

The strike represented the energetic repudiation of the socio-economic policies that have been in force since 1973, said Felix Villarreal, one of the strike organizers. The Peronists came to power in 1973 after seven years of military rule.

LONDON (UPI)—Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is the most popular political figure depicted in Madame Tussaud's Waxworks for the second year running.

according to a survey of visitors. British prime minister Harold Wilson and President Idi Amin of Uganda, tied for second place in the popularity stakes, a spokesman at Madame Tussaud's said. Wilson appeared to have gained in popularity, the spokesman said.

Ranch burgled near Raft River

RAFT RIVER—A ranch machine shop and house trailer were burglarized last week southwest of here. The burglars took away $3,330 worth of shop equipment and home appliances and furniture. The theft occurred at a machine shop on the Rainbow Ranch north of Yale Road.

Ray Bateman told Cassia County deputy sheriff Saturday that the theft occurred sometime during the past week. The shop is located three-quarters of a mile north of Yale Road and about two miles east of interstate 80. About $2,700 worth of shop equipment and tools were taken. They included a $300 welder set; two oxygen and acetylene cutting torch sets and tanks, valued at $300; suitcase wolveria for a tractor front-end; a hand grinder, bench vice, electric motor for pivot sprinkler, two hydraulic jacks, a battery charger and miscellaneous tools.

Japan execs resign after Lockheed talk

TOKYO (UPI)—Two executives of the giant Japanese trading corporation, Marubeni, resigned Tuesday only hours after they testified at parliamentary hearings on alleged Lockheed Aircraft Corp. payoffs in Japan.

The resignations of Toshiharu Ookubo and Hiroshi Ito, both managing directors of Marubeni, were announced tonight by company president Taiichiro Matsuo.

The announcement came after Marubeni, Lockheed's agent and one of Japan's top general trading companies, held an emergency executive meeting.

Ookubo and Ito were two of the four Marubeni executives who testified today regarding allegations in a U.S. senate subcommittee investigation that Lockheed spent millions to promote sales of its planes in Japan.

Ookubo and Ito were mentioned in Lockheed's disclosures as the Japanese businessmen who signed payment receipts Lockheed said it spent in Japan. They both acknowledged they signed the receipts but claimed they knew nothing about the payoffs.

CSI rolls hit all-time high

TWIN FALLS — Enrollment at the College of Southern Idaho has reached an all-time high.

Dr. James Taylor, college president, told the board of directors Monday night the total "head count" is now 3,342. This compares with 2,855 for the corresponding time last year. He said the academic program includes 1,875 students, vocational programs, 780 students, and continuing education, 687 students. The number of full-time equivalent students is one taking in excess of 10 credit hours in academic courses.

Dr. Taylor told the board he will not recommend any increase in board and room rates for the 1976-77 school year.

He told the board plans are still in the making for a building to house the Herrett Museum of Idaho History which has been donated to the college by Norman Herrett, 75, for said plans are being made for a 12,000-square-foot modular building to house the museum. It would include a full basement for work areas and storage.

He said the Civic Auditorium Association has agreed to make its remaining funds available to the college for the museum project. No figure on available funds from this group was given.

Dr. Taylor said construction on the campus building for the vocational-technical programs is progressing according to schedule. Board directors agreed to award bids for purchase of equipment for the building on the basis of recommendations from the vocational director.

All bids were awarded low bidders except where a special reason was cited by the director for purchase of other specific items. Welding equipment was purchased from the low bidder on each item with the additional remote control units not to exceed a cost of $77 each.

Dr. Charles H. Lehman, board member, said some musical groups have had problems scheduling use of the Fine Arts Auditorium. He recommended such groups meet with the Fine Arts Advisory Committee to work out the problems.

Bank of Idaho eyes Regal foreclosure

TWIN FALLS — The Bank of Idaho is seeking to foreclose on a $325,000 promissory note issued to Regal Manufacturing Co., Twin Falls.

Named as defendants in the complaint in Fifth Judicial District Court are Regal Manufacturing Co. Inc., Sierra Life Insurance Co., Frank and Flora Echavarras of E and G Excavating Co., Twin Falls Construction Co., Greater Idaho Corp., Brent Corp., and ABC Corp., and John and Jane Doe. The complaint states Regal borrowed $250,000 Feb. 10, 1975, offering mortgages on certain property as security for the promissory note.

Plaintiff states the defendant, Regal Manufacturing Co., has defaulted on payments and interest payments, with interest due amounting to $16,880, at 12 per cent. Further, the plaintiff asks attorney fees estimated at $50,000.

Land involved in the foreclosure includes two Twin Falls parcels, one of which covers part of the Villa Vista Subdivision No. 2. The complaint asks a plan for that subdivision be vacated to give the plaintiff the right to determine development plans for the land.

Purchase approved

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners approved purchase of a new copy machine Tuesday for the Twin Falls County sheriff's office.

The machine, one which has been in the office on a demonstration basis, will be purchased for $1,485 from Finch-Brown Co., Boise. The price includes a $300 trade-in on an old machine the sheriff has been using.

Commission Chairman Merl E. Leonard said "It is not necessary to call for bids on equipment under $5,000, but department heads generally compare price and features desired in the equipment to make the best selection."

TF police officer honored by club

TWIN FALLS — Lee Talkington, chief of Police of Southern Idaho, was honored by the Twin Falls Exchange Club Tuesday as police officer of the year.

In accepting the award, Talkington told the club members and guests he and other officers in his area take pride in their jobs.

"I am not ashamed to enforce the law. If it were not for enforcement officers the community would be meaningless," he said. Talkington said the work an officer does is just as much a part of law enforcement when he is working with a group of young boys or girls, teaching them the difference between right and wrong, as teaching a law violator.

"The work of a law enforcement officer is not always visible. The crime you prevent is the work that counts," he said.

Magistrate Judge Dan Meehl addressed the group praising the dedication and services of all law enforcement agencies in Twin Falls County. He said they work well with the courts and assist the courts in keeping cases current.

Meehl said when criminal cases are handled quickly by both the officer and the offender, benefit society also benefits, he said, by having the offender brought to justice while the crime is still fresh in his mind and his rehabilitation more effective.

In all cases, he said, the court must decide if the individual and the public will best be served by a jail sentence or time spent in a reformatory.

"Our ultimate goal is to keep the individual from committing another crime and from continuing to come back into the community," he said to decide what method we feel will best accomplish this," Meehl said.

Proposal protested TF County comprehensive plan drafting resumes

By GORDON JUDD Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County planners will meet again tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the judicial building to wrestle with the problem of completing a comprehensive plan for the county and its five cities.

Until last week the Twin Falls County Joint Planning Council's biggest problem appeared to be the selection of a consultant planning firm to finish a plan started by fired planner David Ritchey.

Last Thursday the county planning and zoning commission, which is represented on the joint council, charged at its own meeting that the joint council is "out of balance" for failing to use planning information that is available to it through its agency which has been in existence longer than the joint council.

In addition, members of the county planning and zoning commission made it clear that they do not believe the services of any consultant are needed to draft a plan.

"They would like to see the joint council save the $15,000 which they seem ready to spend to hire J-U-B Engineering Inc., Twin Falls, to complete the plan.

J. A. "Al" Clawson, a member of the county planning and zoning commission and last year's delegate to the joint council, said the comprehensive plan could be completed without the need for a consultant firm if only the joint council and the county planning body would work together.

Tonight the joint council will have to act on the hiring of J-U-B which has prepared a written contract for its approval. If the contract is approved, J-U-B has promised to send two of its Boise planners, Michael "Mike" Wardle and Lawrence "Larry" Sale, to start meeting with Twin Falls County officials. They would then go back to Boise and write a comprehensive plan which would later be offered to the public here for comment and input.

In addition to the known difference of opinion between joint council members over the hiring of a consultant or doing the work themselves, the county commissioners have let it be known that they favor combining the personnel of the joint council and the county planning and zoning agency.

Commissioner Merl Leonard has said he favors an approach which would utilize the services of County Zoning Administrator Ed Woods to help bring about the plan in place of the Boise planners. Leonard gives the impression that he believes in Woods' ability to communicate with the "common man" which he is known to feel is a skill which fired planner Ritchey did not have or make use of.

Leonard also said he favored combining the offices of the two agencies now located in the old hospital building on separate floors.

SV welcomes Olympic skiers

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — A high school band and a crowd of more than 100 persons turned out in a snowstorm Tuesday evening to welcome home Olympic skiers Susie and Pete Patterson.

Brother and sister, the Pattersons competed in the Winter Olympic games at Innsbruck, Austria — Susie finishing 13th in the downhill race and Pete 14th in the women's downhill.

The Wood River High School band played march music and popular tunes while the crowd drank free beer distributed by the resort. Friends and guests gathered on the steps of the Sun Valley Inn.

Sun Valley Company, owner of the ski resort, gave the Pattersons each a gold ring with the Sun Valley crest and a lifetime ski pass. "The Pattersons live in Ketchum."

Zone proposal draws protests

BY DAVID HORSMAN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — About 50 persons filled the City Council chambers Monday night to protest proposed medium-density zoning of a housing development northwest of Twin Falls.

Developer Robert Willis wants the city to annex and zone for medium-density use a 23-acre tract north of Ridgeway Drive. He plans to build houses and duplexes on the property.

The land abuts low-density subdivisions in the city, however, and residents of the area charge Monday night that Willis' project might ruin their lifestyle.

An ordinance annexing the property with medium-density zoning was given a second reading Monday night. A third and final reading will come at the next City Council meeting March 1.

ROBERT McElfresh, who said he was acting as spokesman for most of the protesters, claimed medium-density zoning would "destroy a trend" of low-density zoning and "disrupt a tranquil area."

Housing in the area has a "more or less agricultural-type atmosphere," with large yards and plenty of space for children to play, McElfresh said.

"This is why we moved to this part of town," he added. Medium-density zoning would allow lots with smaller yards and would permit construction of duplexes on 7,000-square-foot lots rather than the 12,000-square-foot minimum of low-density zoning. Medium-density also allows mobile home parks as a "conditional use," but Willis has promised that a restrictive covenant will rule out the parks.

McElfresh asked for "continuity of the neighborhood that we live in today." He said residents are not against annexation and development of the Willis property as long as it is given a low-density zoning designation.

He also warned that medium-density zoning in the area could set a precedent, making it difficult for the City Council to turn down a request for the same zoning designation in other developments abutting low density areas. Willis reportedly owns or holds options on another 57 acres in the same area as the proposed development.

"Ten other persons testified against medium-density zoning for the Willis development, most of them echoing McElfresh's complaint that it would lower living standards.

The annexation and zoning proposal was approved by the city planning and zoning commission and forwarded to the council. Ingrid Stroppe cast the lone negative vote among the zoners.

Willis had invited the planning and zoning commission members to a luncheon meeting at the Holiday Inn in December in which he discussed the need for medium-density zoning.

According to Councilman Leon Smith, an attorney who has been hired by Willis to work on the legal end of the development and therefore has disqualified himself in any discussion or vote on the project.

Smith said he has received calls from some people "mentioning collusion" between city officials and Willis on the project.

"But I don't believe that," Smith said. "I don't sense any impropriety but apparently a lot of people do."

In another action, the council delayed action on seven bids received for construction of a city animal impoundment building. City Manager Jean Millar had recommended that a $28,450 bid by Clawson Construction Co. be accepted for the basic building and electrical work.

The delay was the result of a request by Twin Falls veterinarian Dr. Charles Donnelly that the City Council withhold the county commissioners to discuss the possibility of building a joint facility. Donnelly said a joint project would help eliminate a county-wide problem with stray dogs and cats.

"If someone can show us a plan that would work as well or more economically than a city-owned building, then we would certainly listen," Mayor Paul Ostyn told Donnelly in a luncheon meeting Monday.

The council heard a first reading of an ordinance that would hike sewer use fees in the city. The increase would cover higher costs for maintaining and operating the city's new sewage treatment plant.

The ordinance would boost residential fees to $2.30 per month from the current $2 and would hike commercial fees to 32 cents per 1,000 gallons of usage and public institution rates to 19 cents per 1,000 gallons. Industrial users would pay according to special contracts.

Ostyn said the increases would help city commercial users hardest, with some paying "as high as five times the present fee."

Owners of several broken home parks in and around Twin Falls asked the council to reconsider the proposed sewer use hike to $1.75 from $1 for mobile home units is generally less than traditional homes because the occupancy rate is lower, they said.

Pizza planned

BURLEY — National Ski Patrol members will be serving pizza at the O'Leary Junior High School auditorium Thursday, Friday and Saturday night.

The patrol, led by Ralph Breeding, will serve from 6 p.m. to 11 p.m. and will receive part of the profits of the evening to pay for bandages and other materials in their rescue operations.

Ron Klebe, public relations and entertainment chairman, said the Freeway Four barber shop quartet will sing during the evening.

Performances scheduled

COMPANY 1, a newly organized Twin Falls acting troupe, will present "A Streetcar Named Desire" Thursday, Friday and Saturday night at the O'Leary Junior High School auditorium. Tickets for the performance will be available at the door for $2.

Peavey proposes Snake use moratorium

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — A moratorium on use of Snake River water for farmland development downstream from Bliss has been proposed by Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert.

Peavey also proposed in a Senate speech the establishment of a state "water bank" to buy and sell private water rights and called for private enterprise in power production.

The senator mentioned the possible need to expand power generation at Twin Falls and Shoshone Falls to accommodate likely increased riverflow resulting from this proposal.

Peavey's argument in support of a moratorium on the use of Snake River water between Bliss and Hells Canyon was economic.

He said it is "quite likely that close to 400,000 acres of land will be opened up downstream from Bliss."

located below Bliss and that to replace the lost hydroelectricity because of lost riverflow would require another 750 million kilowatt hours of electricity.

"This alone will take practically all the production of one-half of the coal-fired Placer, Plant," Peavey said.

"Looking at it another way, if all of us are asked to build one-half of Placer, an investment of 400 million, to irrigate 490,000 acres, we are investing $816 an acre plus continuing pay for ... (Snake River) dams while they will be operating at drastically reduced capacity," he said.

"The Snake River ... is truly a workhorse river. We cannot continue to bleed dry the river to death and expect it to continue to produce cheap electricity for us," he said.

"It will be futile to denigrate our hydroelectric capability if we are going to dry up the river and render our biggest generators nearly useless during the critical part of the summer.

"Therefore, we should immediately declare a moratorium on approved new diversions on that section of the river from Upper Salmon Falls (near Bliss) to Brownlee Reservoir in Hells Canyon during the critical summer period," he said.

The moratorium, he said, should be in effect until a state water plan is ratified by the legislature.

Peavey said the "water bank" under jurisdiction of the Department of Water Resources "could buy or lease appropriated water from willing sellers. It could then be subleased or sold back to others for power or irrigation or both."

Besides farmers who convert to more efficient, sprinkler irrigation, there will be other potential sellers, he said. Peavey suggested that persons living in subdivisions have always been paying for water they could not use and would be able to sell.

He also said some irrigation districts might sell water, "Take for example," he said, "the Burley Irrigation District. In 1975, it owned 157,942 acre feet of water in American Falls. They used only about two-thirds of this water."

yet they still had to pay for all of it.

"If the water is purchased or leased upstream from Milner, the Twin Falls Canal could be used to transport that water along the rim to a point above the backwaters of Twin Falls Reservoir. The water could then be let down over the rim and then run turbines that would plug water into the Twin Falls reservoir pool.

"We should have a system where a neighborhood source of electricity, perhaps wind or solar power ... could develop and operate within our present regulated electrical distribution system. The state could act as a referee to assure fair compensation to the larger utility who owns the poles and lines.

"Utilities should no longer be required to hook up new customers on demand. If this were done, then a market for power rights would develop in areas where the resources are limited," he said.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices of mixed in heavy trading Wednesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which lost 7.79 points Tuesday, was led off 0.28 to 118.49 shortly after the opening bell.

Wall Street observers attributed some investor uneasiness to the expected failure of the Hamilton National Bank of Chattanooga, the third largest bank in the country in U.S. history. There has been widespread concern over recent news reports claiming several major banks have an inordinate amount of loans outstanding and the Federal Reserve's trouble-laden links.

Stormy weather to continue in MV

Twin Falls, Northdale, Burley, Rupert areas. Continued windy. Increasing clouds tonight with periods of light snow early Tuesday morning through late afternoon. Continued windy. Highs Thursday 45 to 48. Overnight lows in the 20s.

The outlook for Friday — mostly dry.

Halley, Camas-Prairie, lower Wood River Valley. Areas of scattered snow flurries today with increasing clouds tonight. Periods of light snow late tonight through Thursday. Continued windy. Highs Thursday in the mid-30s. Overnight lows 10 to 15.

The outlook for Friday — a few snow flurries.

Synopsis: The frontal system that moved through the Magic Valley during the night caused mostly light snow. A few thunderstorms were reported near Sun Valley. Gooding, Hagerman and Pocatello. High winds associated with the front were reported gusting to 62 miles per hour at Burley and 54 miles per hour at Idaho Falls.

Another storm now in the eastern Pacific is moving eastward rapidly and is expected to bring more precipitation and strong gusty winds to the Magic Valley area late tonight and early Thursday. Moist unstable air behind this system will continue to produce scattered snow showers through the day.

Back country travelers and cross-country skiers in uncontrolled areas should be aware that avalanche warnings remain in effect for the mountainous areas north to Stanley.

The extended outlook for Friday through Sunday calls for not much change since the Idaho area will remain under the Pacific storm track. Some drying is expected Friday with an increasing chance of rain or snow over the weekend. Highs will be in the upper 30s and the 40s with overnight lows in the 20s.

Castleford thumps Red Devils 69-40

MURTAUGH — The Castleford Wolves exploded away in the middle quarters to thump the Murtaugh Red Devils 69-40 Tuesday night.

The teams were tied at 12 after the first period before Castleford started moving away. The Wolves scored 21 points in the second to take an eight-point lead and then led the decision when they outscored Murtaugh 16-5 in the third quarter.

Retriever trial set

A picnic trial Sunday will be the first project of the newly organized Magic Valley Retriever Club. The informal competition will be held one mile north of Perrine Bridge and on the east side of U. S. Highway 89.

All members or persons interested in entering retrievers may participate. Further information may be obtained from Mike Sessions at 734-5264.

Idaho names aide

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — John "Jack" Elway, former Washington State University offensive coordinator, has joined the University of Idaho football coaching staff.

Dr. Leon Green, Idaho athletic director, said Tuesday that Elway, 41, would succeed Dennis Erickson, who left the coaching staff in December to join Elway's former boss, Jim Sweeney, at Fresno State.

Green said Elway will coach offensive backs as well as coordinate the running and passing game under the direction of offensive coordinator John McMahon.

Green said Elway has also been assigned the state of Washington for recruiting, and may in the near future coordinate the entire recruiting program for Idaho football.

Seattle jury dismissed

EVERETT (UPI) — The jury hearing the multi-million dollar suit against the American League was dismissed Tuesday and the case — as per agreement — was continued until April, 1977.

The action, by King County Superior Court Judge Frank Showers, followed the lines of an agreement worked out last week between the league and the plaintiffs — the City of Seattle, King County and Washington State.

All have agreed that the suit will be dropped when Seattle's proposed 1977 expansion plan begins play on opening day.

Louisville wins

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Fourteenth-ranked Louisville, leading a revival when Tulsa's Tom Vincent, a Louisville native, missed a game-clinching shot in the final two minutes, went on to defeat the surprising Hurricane, 98-90, in overtime Tuesday night.

Vincent, handed a dramatic opportunity to win the game before a hometown crowd, missed the first of his two free throws the closing two seconds of regulation play, but made the second to tie the score at 90-90.

The Cardinals, stretching their winning streak to 11 games and Tulsa's losing skin to seven, took quick command in the overtime session.

Aggies trim Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Wally Swanson and Steve Jones, playing on place of suspended Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams, combined for 39 points Tuesday night to spark the Texas A&M Aggies to a 94-90 victory over the Houston Cougars to keep them on top of the Southwest Conference race.

The entire Aggie bench provided more strength than expected when A&M senior basketball coach Tony Parker found himself in "hot trouble" early in the first half.

Parker did manage 19 points, well below his average, and also became involved in a brief brawl with a Houston student on the edge of the court early in the second half.

No violations found

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — U.S. Attorney Gerald Gallinhouse said Tuesday 10 months of investigation concerning construction of the Louisiana Superdome had not disclosed any "provable federal criminal violation."

Gallinhouse turned over 23 large boxes of files and documents pertaining to the dome to East Baton Rouge District Attorney Oles Brum, who impounded his own grand jury Tuesday to investigate possible state violations at the stadium.

Buhl thumps Jerome to take SCIC crown

BUHL — The Buhl Indians clinched the South Central Idaho Conference basketball championship Tuesday night by dropping the Jerome Tigers 64-43.

The Indians, who also took the foot loofball and wrestling prize, had things easy when Jerome ran into cold streaks in the second and third quarters.

"The victory clinches a first-round bye for Buhl in the fourth district A-2 tournament opening at CSI gymnasium next week.

Turnovers, largely on poor passes and receptions, cost Jerome any chance of upsetting the Indians.

The game was closed only until Gary Schmeckpeper broke a 6-6 tie to give Buhl the lead for the night.

The Indians, with Ben Buckendorf, Chris Bell and Steve Hill all hitting, opened up a 17-8 lead before Rick Hillier, Rod Phelan and Greg Thibault reduced that to 21-13 at the quarter.

Jerome then missed on four straight trips to the foul line before Buhl started hitting.

Oakley tops Declo in final quarter

DECLO — The Oakley Hornets took advantage of free throw shooting in the last quarter Tuesday night to outlast the Declo Hornets 58-50.

"The Intra-Cassia County battle was tight" throughout but Oakley sailed it down by hitting 10 of 17 free throws in the final period. That was one more than Declo managed from everywhere during the quarter.

It was a two or three-point game most of the time until the closing minutes.

Oakley took the preliminary 45-33.

Taller Wood River overpowers Valley

EDEN-HAZELTON — The Wood River Wolverines rolled to a 65-54 non-conference decision over Valley's Vikings Tuesday night.

Wood River was too tall for the Vikings and quickly established control. The Wolverines led 19-4 at the end of the first period and Coach Fred Trenkle used his bench quite liberally thereafter.

The Wolverines had three men in double scoring figures to offset the 21-point production of Ritchey.

Hagerman outlasts Hansen rally 52-50

HANSEN — Phil Goss rang in with some timely buckets and Hagerman weathered two late-bids-by-Hansen to clinch a 52-50 decision Tuesday night.

In an airtight game, Goss and Tate provided most of Hagerman scoring with Mothershead and Lockwood keeping Hansen in contention with good outside shooting.

Hansen mounted a five-point lead near the middle of the third quarter with Hagerman rallying back into the lead by the end of the period.

The Pirates held the lead throughout the fourth quarter, their biggest margin being five. Hansen pulled to within a point with 16 seconds to play with Tate giving Hagerman a little breathing room with a free throw.

LA's training plans in limbo

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The start of the Los Angeles Dodgers spring training season remained in doubt Tuesday due to a pending court appeal on pitcher Andy Messersmith's free-agent status and a dispute with the players' association, manager Walter Alton said.

The Dodgers usually depart for their spring training camp at Vero Beach, Fla., in late February, Alton told a news conference.

Messersmith, who won 19 games for the Dodgers last year, played out his option in 1975. He was declared a free agent in a ruling by arbitrator Peter Seltz that has been upheld by U.S. District Court Judge John W. Oliver.

"Management has appealed the decision," Seltz said. "I don't know anymore than the bellboy here if Messersmith will be with the Dodgers this season," Alton said. "He's a free agent. I don't know and I don't think he knows where he will be playing."

Alton said he always starts the season optimistically. "I think our pitching may surprise some people, even without Messersmith," he said. "But Hoodon and Don Sutton continue to do well and Young Rick Rhoden is as good as we hope he will be."

He said he is hopeful that Tommy John, who was injured last season, will return to his pre-injury effectiveness.

Minnesota pushed for new stadium

ST. PAUL (UPI) — Plans for a new domed football and baseball stadium costing $7 million less than the proposed stadium near downtown Minneapolis will be presented to the Minnesota legislature Friday by Bloomington officials.

The last-ditch effort to keep professional sports in suburban Bloomington was drafted by that city's chamber of commerce and Ellerbe Architects-Engineers.

The proposal calls for construction of a $39.3 million multi-purpose stadium for the Minnesota Twins and Vikings near Metropolitan Stadium. The Met would be torn down.

"In essence, we're saying that if government is going to get involved, then let's keep expenditures to the minimum amount possible," said Rep. Ray Pleasant, one of the suburban legislators expected to push the plan.

Sen. Robert North has proposed a $46.4 million multipurpose stadium in the Industry Square renewal area of Minneapolis.

Negotiations slow Giant sale decision

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A tedious, point-by-point approval of a sale memorandum by directors of the National Exhibition Co. may delay transfer of the San Francisco Giants to Bob Lurie and Bob Short for several days, the attorney for the company said Tuesday.

"I doubt if we'll have a decision today," James L. Hunt said after meeting with directors of NEC, the parent company of the financially ailing National League team. "It might be a couple of days, maybe longer. Points that have to be renegotiated might stretch it out."

The Lurie and Short combine made an $8 million cash offer for the franchise last week, but Hunt said, "It is much more complicated than the first offer made in court last week. Getting the exact terms of the cash transaction is not simple. There probably will be counterproposals and counter-counter proposals."

"However, we're hopeful that everything will be worked out as quickly as possible."

Hunt, who said he has notified league president Charles S. (Chub) Feeney that a final decision is not expected before Friday, declined comment on whether the board had rejected proposals put down by the prospective new buyers.

"I don't want to say whether or not there are stumbling blocks," he said. "I don't want to prejudice the sale."

"Maybe things will go easily. Maybe we'll reach an impasse. Then, it will be give-and-take work. It all depends on how things go."

He added the four board members present, including owner Horace C. Stoneham, were prepared to stay in town until the sale is completed. A fifth member of the board was delayed in Tacoma, Wash., but was expected to be on hand for the remaining sessions.

The board was summoned for the meeting Monday night after final details of the sale memorandum from Lurie, who said he was highly optimistic, and Short were worked out.

"Right now, we just have to wait and see what happens," Lurie said.

If the Lurie-Short bid is accepted, the next step will be approval by the NL, which has tentatively scheduled a meeting in Chicago Friday. The meeting originally was set for Wednesday, but was moved back to make certain all details of the sale were completed.

A&M players sue for right to play

DALLAS (UPI) — Attorneys for Texas A&M basketball starters Karl Godine and Jarvis Williams, suspended by the Southwest Conference, tried and failed Tuesday to win a restraining order for the players, thus preventing them from appearing in Tuesday night's Aggie-Houston game.

The lawyers apparently planned another attempt Wednesday to win a temporary restraining order that would allow Godine and Williams to participate in the remainder of the schedule for the league-leading Aggies.

Godine and Williams, both freshmen, were suspended by the conference last Sunday. League officials have refused to say publicly why the action was taken, although subsequent reports have indicated the suspensions resulted from alleged recruiting violations.

Attorney Hugh Smith, hired by Godine's brother to represent Godine and Williams, filed the temporary restraining order request early Tuesday in an emergency attempt to have the players cleared for action against the Houston Cougars Tuesday night.

In it he said the players' constitutional rights of due process of law were violated because they had not been allowed to question their accusers during conference meetings or to present their own evidence.

The suit also denied any violation of NCAA regulations by the players.

"Each of them received many offers and promises over and above that of an athletic scholarship," the suit said.

Coach expects reprimand

SEATTLE (UPI) — Basketball coach Marv Harshman of the Washington Huskies says he expects to be reprimanded for his criticism of officiating after last Saturday's game at UCLA but "I think coaches have to say what they feel."

Harshman told the Puget Sound Sportswriters and Sportscasters luncheon Tuesday his criticism of official Robert Herrold wasn't personal but he did feel Herrold subconsciously gave in to pressures favoring the home team.

"We don't have any complaints on the fouls called on us," the Husky coach said in postgame comments. "But they should be called the same at the other end of the court. All we are asking is consistency."

UCLA won the televised thriller 78-76.

He said the performance of officials should be as open to criticism as that of coaches and players.

Harshman said he is convinced there are no dishonest officials and the mistakes of officials are mostly a matter of omission rather than commission, resulting from subconscious psychological factors.

Ali clowns instead of spars for crowd

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — World heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali was too fired to spar, his nose dripped and throat coughed, but he was still king of the ring to 600 cheering fans and hecklers who watched him strut about the canvas and promise to give Belgian challenger Jean-Pierre Coopman a "colored folks whupping."

All cancelled a sparring session and limited his workout to jumping rope, punching the bag, and shadow boxing.

He frequently coughed and wiped his nose—a sign he has been unsuccessful in shaking a cold plaguing him since the weekend.

Not to let down the crowd that paid $5 a head at the Hotel El San Juan to watch the champion practice, Ali delivered one of his famed "I am the greatest in the world" monologues for 20 minutes.

"I'm here to talk, not to fight," he said.

And talk he did, so long, in fact, that Coopman's supporters yelled at him to get out of the ring so the Belgian challenger could train.

"Bring that sucker over here," All yelled toward a group escorting in Coopman at the doorway.

"Have you ever had a colored folks whupping? We're going to give you a colored folks whupping."

A heckler yelled back, "Coopman is the greatest, the greatest in the world!"

All grinned.

"The only thing that worries me about this fight is that this sucker doesn't know English," he shouted. The crowd roared with laughter.

"I hear somebody just taught him one word. Just one word...Nigger!"

"There was more laughter."

"Remember the Congo," All yelled, pointing toward Coopman.

"Patrice Lumumba where are you?"

"Remember the Alamo. Remember the Congo!"

Lumumba, a leftist leader, was killed in the former Belgian Congo in 1961 during a civil war. By then the ballroom was in complete pandemonium.

Olympic fund writeoff sought

LONGMONT, Colo. (UPI) — Connie Aguayo thinks the U.S. Olympics team would have fared better at Innsbruck, Austria, if it had received stronger financial backing, and she wants to make sure that future teams have the money they need.

The Longmont city employee has started a petition drive which would allow taxpayers to check off a $1 contribution on income tax forms for the Olympics team, much the same way which they now do for presidential campaigns.

She said she got the idea while discussing the 1976 Winter Olympics with fellow employees. She said they all were upset by the way Russia dominated the United States at the games.

"If they had a little financial help, I think we would do much better," Miss Aguayo explained.

"I don't know how many signatures we have, but everybody I talked to is agreeable to it," Miss Aguayo said.

"We were talking about how the Russians and other countries financially backed their people," she said. "In some countries, it's their only occupation, and they can train 24 hours a day, while for us it can be tough moneywise."

Chinese assail strays

HONG KONG (UPI) — The Chinese Communist Party newspaper, People's Daily said today that leaders under attack in China's current political struggle were trying to introduce Khrushchev-type "revisionism."

A front-page article broadcast by Peking Radio said these "unrepentant capitalist leaders" in positions of power had attempted to force the political line of party Chairman Mao Tse-tung. Ignoring Mao's directives that class struggle must be paramount, these leaders encouraged "revisionist" development and unity and stability.

So far, attacks on these leaders have only identified them as people purged during the Cultural Revolution and since restored to power. Teng Hsiao-ping, a party vice chairman, a vice premier and acting chief of the armed forces general staff, is the most prominent person in this category. China analysts in Peking and Hong Kong believe he undoubtedly is the main target of the attacks, which are spreading rapidly throughout the country.

A Shanghai Radio broadcast Monday said Mao had "personally initiated" the struggle, which is viewed as the most serious in years. It could lead to a major showdown between power factions within the party leadership.

Tuesday's People's Daily article left little doubt that Mao was behind the "serious and drastic struggle" against "those unrepentant capitalist leaders within the party."

It denounced them for "middle-of-the-roadism" which emphasized "stability and unity" and "developing the national economy" while ignoring Mao's key link of class struggle out into the ninth heaven.

"Their socialism is nothing but the late Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's 'revisionism' and bourgeois Communism," the article said. This attack helps explain the publication on New Year's Day of two poems written by Mao in 1965, just before he launched the Cultural Revolution. One of these poems, which the traditional New Year's policy editorial in party and army organs centered on, referred to Khrushchev's "revisionist Communism" and called it "windy nonsense."

That New Year's editorial quoted a "recent" Mao directive which said "stability and unity do not mean writing off class struggle; class struggle is the key link and everything else hinges on it."

Federation in Mideast under study

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Syria and Jordan may form a federation called the "United Arab States," according to a joint constitution and parliament for their two countries, a newspaper report said today.

The federation, to be headed by Syrian President Hafez Assad with Jordan's King Hussein serving as his deputy, could be set up by June barring "unforeseen circumstances," the English-language Jerusalem Post said.

The Post said integrations talks now under way could lead to a federation (using the nations' political and military systems).

Syrian Prime Minister Mahmoud Ayyoubi arrived in Amman today at the head of a delegation sent from Damascus to pursue the plan, initiated eight months ago.

The Post said the joint constitution would bridge differences stemming from the two countries' different governmental systems. Syria is a Socialist democracy and Jordan a monarchy. The joint parliament will meet alternately at Damascus and Amman, the newspaper said. It said each country would be downgraded to an autonomous "region" under the plan.

Handgun signups beaten

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee Tuesday defeated two national handgun registration proposals — one that would have required the States to enact their own plans within two years and another that would have created a national registration program.

The committee's action coincided with the release of a federal study which showed that in 45 per cent of street crimes involving guns, "Saturday Night Specials" were used largely because they are cheap and easy to conceal.

The committee killed, 16 to 11, an amendment that would have required existing handgun control laws, also defeated, 18 to 13, an amendment which would have required the states to enact their own gun registration laws by 1977.

The committee last week overwhelmingly defeated amendments which would have banned the manufacture, sale, importation, or ownership of handguns.

The federal gun registration amendment was offered by Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., and Don Edwards, D-Calif. The proposal to require the states to enact their own plans — with the cost to be reimbursed by the federal government — was offered by Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill.

McClory's amendment would have established federal guidelines for the states to follow in enacting their own gun registration plans. A federal plan would be imposed on those states not complying with the required guidelines.

"This is aimed at the criminals in our society, and not at the law abiding citizens who wish to buy a handgun," McClory said. "This is the direction we should be moving."

The study by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, traced 7,815 handgun seizures by police in 16 cities during intervals over 32 months.

Bureau Director Rex D. Lee said the study also shows criminals bought more guns from pawn shops than they stole.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEB. 19, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Lack of cooperation between you and others could cause some friction. But you make a point to clarify your desires you are able to reach a better understanding.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you comprehend exactly what is expected of you by associates and try to cooperate to the fullest.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Strive for greater production in your line of endeavor and gain excellent results. Steer clear of an opponent.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you spend more than you can afford today you will soon be regretting it. Safeguard your assets. Relax tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You need to control your temper at home today despite friction. Use your good judgment for best results.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are in a position to assist associates in solving their problematical affairs so be sure to give your advice.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care you don't overspend today, but try to save money instead. Use your own good judgment now for best results.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make sure you know what it is you want of a personal nature before you commit yourself. Improve your health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't waste time in handling an important matter. You can easily benefit from outside connections today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go ahead with whatever it is you have to do today and don't rely on friends who may have their own problems.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Losing your temper is no way to solve an annoying matter, be it civic or whatever. Don't neglect to pay bills.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Engage in tasks awaiting your attention and labor diligently until you get them all done. Avoid being restless.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A higher-up can give you the support you need if you consult this person early in the day. Show devotion to mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will want to cooperate with others, but is likely to be pugnacious out of sheer enthusiasm in attempting to be successful. Anything of a governmental or teaching nature is fine here. Don't neglect ethical training.

what's what

L. M. Boyd

Any Seasoned Citizen will tell you that the late Bill "Bojangles" Robinson was some sort of a recordbreaker in that theatrical act called tap dancing. But not many realize he was indeed a recordbreaker, too, in the athletic activity of running backwards. Robinson also in the world equaled him in 50-yard dash backwards at 8 seconds, the 75-yard dash backwards at 8.2 seconds and the 100-yard dash backwards at 13.2 seconds.

Believe William Archibald Spooner's premiere slip of the tongue was his remark to a bridegroom: "It is kistomary to cuss the bride." I like that one better than his line to a student: "You missed my mystery lecture."

BIFOCALS

Q. "What's that tropical fish with bifocal lenses on its eyes?"
A. The ananleps? Isn't that the little beast that swims along the surface, looking out of the water and under the water at the same time? Believe so.

When researchers asked numerous Catholic scholars at Columbia University if they expected to marry outside their faith, approximately 65 per cent said yes. About 48 per cent of the Protestants said yes, too. But only 15 per cent of the Jewish students said yes.

Now and again in the flea markets you find a small porcelain cup - which may have been called by many names a century or more ago, but was in fact a lady's cuspidor.

VAUDEVILLE

Thereabouts of 500 years ago lived a poet named Oliver Bassel - or maybe his name was Basselin, that's unclear - who composed lively little songs in France. Specifically, he lived in the town of Vaude on the river Vire, so his home was identified as Vaudeville. Long after Oliver's type of entertainment caught on, that town name gave us our word "vaudeville."

Do you realize that 75 years ago a newborn infant had less chance of surviving a week than did a man of 90?

Adolf Hitler gave that mark called the swastika a mighty bad reputation. Originally in Sanskrit, however, the word itself for that symbol meant "It is well," a most honorable sign.

Nobody liked that song called "You're the Flower of My Heart; Sweet Rosalie." Nobody, nobody. Then the title was changed to "Sweet Adelaide." And everybody liked it. Everybody, everybody.

Thailand closing door to refugees

© Chicago Daily News
BANGKOK — Thailand plans to close its doors to any more Indochina refugees fleeing from South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos, Thai government sources say.

The decision to prosecute and deport new refugees entering Thailand illegally was reached during a meeting of the Thai-Khmer border committee headed by Thai Foreign Minister Chulabhorn Choonavan. The action requires formal cabinet approval.

Thailand's refugee camps along its northern and northeastern border areas already are overflowing with Indochina refugees who have been arriving steadily since last April.

Presently there are some 70,000 refugees from the three Communist-Indochina countries. Thailand has had no clear-cut policy on its handling of the refugees, other than to keep them closely contained in the camps, where many are suffering from disease and malnutrition.

Thailand has been under pressure from the United Nations to absorb some of the refugees. In a five-hour visit to Thailand this last weekend, U.N. Sec. Gen. Kurt Waldheim urged Thai officials to consider giving permanent refuge to many of the displaced persons.

The Thais, however, are reluctant to absorb the refugees mainly for two reasons. Thailand does not want to alienate its Communist neighbors by becoming a political haven; and even more important, it spreads the refugees as a potential fifth column that could help speed the Communist-led insurgency.

Already the Thais have been nervously noting the 50,000 Vietnamese refugees who have been living in the northeast province of Nong Khai since 1954. Top Thai military authorities are convinced the Vietnamese community is involved in anti-government activities and that a large group of Vietnamese saboteurs has infiltrated the Bangkok area in the last eight days.

Last week's joint communique following the Laotian leaders' visit to North Vietnam didn't help subdue Thailand's anxieties toward the refugees.

Senators agree report proves need for reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three farm bloc senators agreed Tuesday a General Accounting Office report proves the need to federalize part of most of the nation's grain inspection system.

The GAO report, released Monday by the Senate and House Agriculture committees which had requested the study of the system, said corruption, inefficiency and other problems were so pervasive they can be fully cured only by putting most inspection under federal control.

Sen. Dick Clark, D-Iowa and Hubert Humphrey, D-Min., promptly endorsed the proposal and said they will press for legislation to carry out the plan for federal inspection of ports and major inland grain terminals.

Federal inspectors would cover an estimated 85 per cent of all grain sampling, grading and weighing. The remaining 15 per cent would be inspected at minor inland terminals and country elevators by private and state agencies under rigid new federal controls.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., did not endorse the entire GAO proposal but said he will introduce a bill under which all export grain would be federally inspected while inland inspections remain in the hands of government-supervised private and state agencies.

Clark said Congress should follow the GAO proposals in final drafting of inspection reform bills pending in both the House and Senate. He said, however, that "it seems certain there will be a concerted effort by the administration and the multinational grain companies to preserve as much of the status quo as they can."

"There is no question that this report represents the most complete study of the nation's grain inspection system ever made," Clark told a reporter.

Humphrey said the report documents far too many instances of misgrading and short weights for us to conclude that anything short of wholesale overhaul will restore our credibility in the eyes of our customers.

Dole said the report indicated he has become a "way of doing business" in grain inspection.

The move toward an overhaul of the grain inspection system grew out of investigations which produced more than 280 criminal charges against 61 individuals and four companies in New Orleans, Houston, Dallas-Ft. Worth and Portland, Ore., on matters including misgrading and shortweighing of grain shipments and allied abuses.

Potato futures lock limit down

Courtesy Sinclair & Co.

CHICAGO — Potato futures spent most of Tuesday locked limit down while weather strength gave a boost to corn and wheat.

The May deliver of Idaho sweet potatoes was at the allowable 50 cents at 11.55 per hundredweight.

Commodity News Service said Maine spuds were limited to a trade of 220 lots by the limit down lock on the market, which opened limit-down. May closed with an unofficial pool of 1,506 unfilled sell orders.

New crop November fluctuated over a six point range before closing with a 2 point gain.

Continued disappointment over the unexpectedly low disappearance rate prompted the declines.

A late buying surge from commercial commission house and local interests pushed wheat near the day's highs, allowing 7 to 9 cent gains. Weather continued to be the major factor, most forecasts indicating no significant drought relief in the winter wheat belt. Taiwan and Japan are prospective buyers.

Chicago cash basis is nominally unchanged at 8 cents over Chicago March for hard winter wheat and 4 over Chicago March for soft red winter.

Corn posted modest gains of half a cent to 1 1/2 cents as a recurrent pattern of commercial selling opposed to speculative buying highlighted the session. Dryness in the winter wheat belt provided most of the impetus for speculative longs. Hedging through most of the afternoon pared gains to the final amount. Chicago cash basis was nominally unchanged for hoppers at 1 over March while boxcars were 1 under March, easing a cent.

Soybeans derived some support from the general grain demand developed from the moisture needs of the wheat belt, while oil's negative performance was partly offset by recurrent modest rallies in meal. At the close, beans were half a cent to 3/4 cents higher, meal 20 cents to 100 higher in active contracts and oil mostly 13 to 25 points lower.

Live cattle rebounded from the day's lows, with prices still mostly lower by the close. Nearby February, bolstered by a lack of deliveries, was the subject of commission house buying.

April led declines with 45 cents loss in a total volume of 9,500 contracts. June closed 22 cents lower after a 35 cent gain after losing ground despite increased bear spreading. Barely steady cash prices offered little direction. Traders feel last week's increase in beef output placed additional pressure in April.

Hog futures closed higher although early gains were trimmed. Spot February gained 65 points while other months closed unchanged to 27 higher. Mixed prices at some cash markets brought caution into the trade.

Pork bellies closed higher across the board, with final prices off from near limit highs posted early in the day. Spot February closed 117 points up at 71.50. With other months finished with gains of 82 to 120 points. Improved dressed pork prices and higher live hog markets prompted early buying.

Beet grower school at Burley Thursday

BURLEY — A sugar beet school for growers will start at 9 a.m. Thursday at the Fonderston Inn.

The school is being sponsored by the Idaho, Twin Falls, Minidoka and Cassia beet growers associations. Sessions will be conducted by personnel from the University of Idaho, the Agricultural Research Service and Amalgamated Sugar Co.

Schedules are identical each day, starting with a 9 a.m. coffee.

Fertilizer requirements and recommendations will be discussed at 9:30 a.m. by Charles Painter, Twin Falls soil specialist with the University of Idaho Cooperative Extension Service. He will be followed at 10 a.m. by Glen Laggitt, soil scientist with the Agricultural Research Service at Kimberly, with discussion of survey levels and minor elements in beet farming.

Amalgamated Sugar agronomists Dale Strong and Leonard Kerbs will cover nitrogen determination and sugar quality at 10:30 a.m. Insects and their control will be the 11 a.m. topic for Robert Sloat, Twin Falls entomologist with the extension service.

The afternoon session will begin at 1 p.m. with a talk on powdery mildew and diseases by Harry Fenwick, Moscow plant pathologist with the extension service. He will be followed at 1:30 p.m. by Gerald Griffin, Logan, Utah, nematologist with the Agricultural Research Service, who will talk on nematodes and control.

Dan Stallings, Twin Falls research agronomist for Amalgamated, will discuss weed control at 2 p.m.

Following a short break, the beet growers will turn to irrigation methods.

Washington price for spuds reached

QUINCY, Wash. (UPI) — Officials of Lamb-Weston, Inc., and the Washington Agriculture Marketing Association have announced a base price of $61 a ton for the 1976 potato crop.

The agreement whereby Lamb-Weston agrees to buy its potatoes at that price is expected to set the stage for other contracts, according to Kurt Miller, manager of the potato division for the Marketing Association.

The price represents an increase of $1 over last year's agreement.

The Association is the marketing division of the Farm Bureau and handled half of the states 2.34 million tons of potatoes in 1975.

Lamb-Weston is the largest Mid-Columbia potato processor with plants at Quincy, Connell and Hermiton, Ore.

Miller said the bi-centennial year spud crop looks strong now, but added there are indications a surplus may be in store next fall.

Henry Michaels, assistant administrator of the Washington State Potato Commission, said acreage should equal last year's 104,000 acres or be slightly higher.
