Wholesale price index dips 0.5% in February

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wholesale prices fell 0.5 per cent in February, the biggest monthly decline in nearly a year, the Labor Department said today. The overall decline reflected the fourth consecutive monthly drop in food prices and an easing of inflationary pressures on industrial goods. Wholesale prices, which generally foreshadow prices paid by consumers, have either declined or remained unchanged over the past four months. But February's report showed the biggest single monthly improvement since an 0.5 per cent drop in March, 1975. Following a 1.8 per cent leap last October, wholesale prices remained unchanged in

Stanley chill lowest in US

STANLEY — The minus 32 reported in Stanley may be one of the coldest lows in the nation for last night. The Weather Service says the coldest officially reported low was minus 19 in Butte, Mont. Stanley surpassed that and so did Fairfield with minus 26. According to Steve and Kathy Cole, Stanley, the mercury had risen to 19 below by 8:30 a.m. today in Stanley. They said there is four feet of new snow on the level in the Stanley Basin and snowmobiling and cross country skiing are good to excellent. Chilly temperatures were reported in other Magic Valley towns with Kimberly reporting 13; Twin Falls reporting 12, Jerome, 8, Buhl, 13, Gooding, 5, Rupert, 15, and Burley, 14.

November, declined 0.4 per cent in December and were unchanged in January. The February wholesale price report brought good news for President Ford, who has cited recent improvements in inflation and unemployment as evidence his go-slow economic policies are working. February's unemployment report was to be released Friday. Wholesale prices for industrial goods rose 0.3 per cent, compared to average monthly increases of 0.7 per cent during the last half of 1975. Contributing to this improvement was a substantial decline in fuel and power costs, petroleum prices under the Energy Policy and Conservation Act. Food and farm prices fell 2.3 per cent, continuing a trend that began last November. Meat and dairy prices declined along with sugar prices — which had increased during January. The Wholesale Price Index in February was 179.4, or 4.7 per cent higher than a year ago. This means that goods costing $100 in 1974 now cost $179.4.

Ford's critics, particularly those in organized labor and on the campaign trail, have contended that the economic indicators will soon be coming months.

Big bangs out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission Thursday issued a nationwide ban against all but the smallest firecrackers and put manufacturers of other fireworks on notice they will have to meet stiffer safety requirements. Although announced today in the Federal Register, the ban will not go into effect until September, allowing the nation's Bicentennial July 4th celebrations to be a noisy one. The commission's ban applies to all firecrackers containing more than 50 milligrams of explosive, thus permitting small crackers less than one inch long and commonly known as "indulgences" still to be sold.

Spying shackles sought

WASHINGTON — The draft of the final report of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence will contain strongly worded recommendations to control the domestic intelligence activities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the electronic eavesdropping capabilities of the National Security Agency, key congressional sources said Wednesday. The subcommittee is putting the final touches on sections covering the findings and recommendations that will be placed before the full committee for approval next week. In total, the final report of the committee's year-long investigation into abuses by United States Intelligence agencies is expected to be about 1,500 pages in three separate volumes.

One volume, the findings and recommendations, is expected to be made public by mid-March, according to committee sources. Two other sections, one on foreign and military intelligence and the other on domestic intelligence activities, will be made public later, committee sources said. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, who has chaired the committee through its entire existence, said the draft would offer strong language on either the FBI or the NSA. He said, however, he would support such recommendations and he hoped the other members would. (Continued on p. 2)

Dam challenge bar near death

By BILL LAZARUS and SHANE O'NEILL Times-News writer
BOISE — A bill which effectively would prevent a court challenge of the American Falls replacement dam is headed for a quiet death in a legislative committee. Rep. Ralph Gustafson, R-Twin Falls, and Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said Wednesday they have decided to pull the measure off the House floor and back to committee where it will die from inaction. Sen. Caviness, attorney for Falls Irrigation District, expressed satisfaction when apprised of the withdrawal today. "The next step of the procedure, I presume, is to file a suit," Caviness said. "That's what we've been waiting for, really, we'd just like to have avoided it if we could have." Caviness, representing one of the dissident speculators in American Falls' dam replacement project, had just returned from meeting with Department of Interior officials in Washington, D.C. Norman Nielson, Burley Irrigation District legal counsel, and William Holden, representing Minidoka Irrigation District and several upper valley canal companies, had not yet returned from the trip. Caviness was the one who had discovered the Barker bill last week after it had passed the Senate unanimously. Caviness was in Boise to testify on another matter before the House Judiciary Committee on Rules and Rep. Ralph Wheeler handed him a copy of a bill and asked for his reaction. The bill provoked an outcry from irrigation districts opposing the dam replacement project.

As originally passed by the Senate, the measure provides that when any lawsuit is brought against an irrigation district, school district, city, county or other political subdivision, the government could demand that the person bringing the suit post a bond. The bond would be to make up for economic losses caused by the delay of the project because of the suit. The court would determine the size of the bond. If the person bringing the lawsuit lost, he would lose the bond. When applied to a project as large as the $44 million American Falls Dam project, the bond could exceed $1 million.

The bill has been up for amendment since a meeting in Washington between attorneys for opposing privately-funded replacement of the American Falls Dam and been given five days to furnish additional information in opposition to the project. The grace period came Wednesday during a meeting in Washington between attorneys for opposing irrigation interests and Department of Interior officials. Norman Nielson, Burley Irrigation District, Ben Caviness, Falls Irrigation District, and William Holden, representing Minidoka Irrigation District and 10 other Upper Snake River Valley canal companies, discussed irrigation farmers' concerns for more than three hours. Their objections to the construction agreement between spaceholders and Idaho Power Co. were heard by Jack O. Horton, assistant secretary for water and resources; his solicitor, and E.F. Sullivan, deputy commissioner of the Bureau of Reclamation. Bureau Commissioner Gilbert Slamm had been expected to attend, but sent a representative in his place. The solicitor told dissident representatives they had until Monday to mail additional information concerning their opposition to the dam construction project.

He said the new information will be reviewed with the points presented in Wednesday's meeting before Secretary of Interior Thomas Killeps make a final determination on approval of the project and its related contracts. The bureau also had three other officials there to provide information concerning the various positions on the four contracts involved in the replacement program and the past performance of the bureau regarding the existing dam.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, and representatives from both of Idaho's senators also were present for the meeting. "I think they'll tell us we had raised a number of issues," commented Nielson, who was scheduled to leave Washington for Burley this afternoon. "But to tell you that they're going to reverse themselves, I couldn't say that."

The three attorneys took turns in detailing their joint positions of opposition and the peculiar situations of the Burley and Falls district regarding water-storage rights in the existing dam. (Continued on p. 17)

approached him with these amendments and asked whether they should be run. But Barker said they decided it would be better to pull the bill back to committee. "It sounds as though we are just trying to be punitive and that's not what I'm trying to do. I still think it's a good bill," Barker said. He said it was decided not to run the bill in the House as is, without amendments, because it would not be able to pass this year. Barker said that he is still interested in getting the measure passed, without narrowing its scope. In another year, he maintained the bill will have a better chance of passing later if it is not defeated this year. Of the Barker bill, wateruser attorney Caviness said, "I have no objection to a bill which would provide protection to a governmental body against spurious suits. I agree with the concept of allowing a person who wants to challenge a government action to post some bond he is capable of paying — not large enough to deprive him of his constitutional right to a day in court, but enough that he realizes that, if he loses, what he can't pay — he is going to be recompensed." Caviness said his concern was that the avowed goal of the Barker bill was not to provide compensation, but was designed to prevent obtaining relief. "In this instance, this was special legislation," he said, "designed for the avowed purpose of making it too expensive to people being railroaded out of their water rights to file any action. It's tough to get a $2 million bond and it would be very expensive."

Vitamin tried on cancer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a radical new approach in the battle against cancer, government researchers are investigating the possible use of synthetic forms of vitamin A to try and prevent some types of cancer from getting a start in the body.

Although the work is highly experimental, it has progressed to the point where the National Cancer Institute is considering testing one non-toxic version of vitamin A in a few persons considered to be at high risk of developing lung cancer.

The unconventional research was outlined at a seminar late Wednesday by Dr. Michael R. Sporn, chief of the lung cancer branch in the NCI's division of cancer cause and prevention.

He emphasized that naturally occurring forms of vitamin A are ineffective and, more importantly, too dangerous to be used in large amounts in man. Large amounts of vitamin A cause liver damage and other problems. Safer synthetic forms are under development and are not available commercially.

It therefore may be years before such a cancer preventing agent becomes available even if current research bears fruit.

Vitamin A, which is present in such foods as eggs, cheese and liver, is vital to human vision and bone development. It also is needed for the health of the epithelial tissues which line our bodies and organs.

It is the vitamin's role in epithelial tissues that is significant in the NCI research. Sporn said 75 percent of all cancers including relatively common cancers of the lung, colon and breast involve epithelial tissues.

Animals with a long-term deficiency in vitamin A are known to be more vulnerable to cancer-causing agents.

Several studies in the past few years have shown that natural and synthetic forms of vitamin A can inhibit the development of some kinds of cancer in mice and rats exposed deliberately to cancer-causing chemicals. In most cases, cancer rates were significantly reduced but not eliminated by feeding the vitamin A compounds to the animals.

It is on the basis of those experiments, and the apparently safe use of a synthetic form of vitamin A known as 13-cis-retinoic acid in Europe to treat skin disorders that Sporn and his associates are considering trying the chemical in humans on a carefully watched trial basis.

"I think there are people who are of such high risk for developing lung cancer that we could put them on 13-cis-retinoic acid on a prophylactic basis," Sporn said. "I would like that within the next year we could sponsor a trial in a high risk group."

"This represents a new way to deal with the disease."

Ready for trial

Church also said that he would urge his committee to support legislation to bar the Central Intelligence Agency or any intelligence arm from covertly intervening in the domestic affairs of a free or democratically elected foreign government. His committee issued a report last year in which it detailed CIA's efforts to manipulate the internal affairs of Chile after a democratic election brought a Marxist Dr. Salvador Allende Gossens to the presidency in 1970.

Church said he would also "personally favor" laws to keep the CIA from inflicting American educational, religious, and news media institutions to conduct secret foreign operations.

His committee and the press have uncovered evidence that the CIA uses the news media and religious institutions as a "cover" for agents and intelligence officers.

Earlier this year the director of Central Intelligence, George Bush, ordered the CIA to stop recruiting agents from or infiltrating religious groups or news organizations that are owned or generally controlled in the United States. An executive order by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1967 banned the CIA from infiltrating educational groups.

Church said, however, that he believed these prohibitions would be more effective if they were solidified by legislation.

The senator said he would urge members of his committee to back recommendations in the draft calling for legislation to set limits on the term of service of the directors of the CIA and the FBI. According to committee sources, they are weighing recommendations that would set terms of office and appointment dates for these two posts that would remove them from the normal political patronage of changing presidential administrations.

The committee, the Congressional sources said, is not expected to make public any new information about CIA covert operations. In addition to its investigation about CIA covert operations, in addition to its investigation of Chile operations it looked at activities in six foreign countries.

Reports on the operations in other countries will become part of secret files to be turned over to permanent intelligence oversight committees, the sources said.

The committee will try to determine how the House Intelligence Committee report on covert CIA operations was leaked to Schorr, who passed it on to the New York Times and Voice newspaper in New York.

The senator said he would urge members of his committee to back recommendations in the draft calling for legislation to set limits on the term of service of the directors of the CIA and the FBI. According to committee sources, they are weighing recommendations that would set terms of office and appointment dates for these two posts that would remove them from the normal political patronage of changing presidential administrations.

The committee, the Congressional sources said, is not expected to make public any new information about CIA covert operations. In addition to its investigation about CIA covert operations, in addition to its investigation of Chile operations it looked at activities in six foreign countries.

Reports on the operations in other countries will become part of secret files to be turned over to permanent intelligence oversight committees, the sources said.

Expert notes 'deceptions'

NEW YORK — Nat Laurendi, a retired New York City detective and lie-detector expert, said Wednesday in his opinion there were "indications" of deception in answers Patricia Hearst gave in polygraph tests.

The challenged answers involved her denial that she had voluntarily joined in a bank robbery with her kidnappers.

But Laurendi, who had been scheduled to be a prosecution rebuttal witness at Miss Hearst's bank robbery trial in San Francisco, also said that it was to the credit of F. Lee Bailey, Miss Hearst's counsel, that he withdrew last Friday his request to show the jury the results of the tests.

Laurendi said it was his opinion that Miss Hearst answered falsely in the negative when asked in the tests whether she had voluntarily participated in the bank robbery, and also in answering some other questions.

He said he based this on the way "her blood pressure rose, her breathing faltered and slowed down, and the galvanic skin response registered more electrically in her body."

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Newsmen are mistreating Idaho's senior senator.

Day after day they speculate about his presidential ambitions, the date he will announce his candidacy and even what he might do if he won the nomination or the job.

Now, "old what's his name" — it just isn't fair to compromise him by using his name when he's an "unannounced" candidate — has said many times he will not be a candidate while his investigative committee is working.

Patience, he says, would be betrayed by a sensationalist pit in him to look into the Central Intelligence Agency — the Federal Bureau of Investigation and other nocturnal operations.

And he's right. You know, it just isn't proper for a man with such headline-grabbing power to rip off his potential competitors for the nation's highest elected position. Just because he runs around the country making speeches at election time doesn't mean he's running for something.

analysis

But what do my colleagues in the media do? Would you believe — they publicize his every move, get his comments on the fate of other contenders in the primaries? Why it's enough to make a public relations man blush.

They even quote the campaign chairman for "this noncandidate. And in every story, they mention "old what's his name's" name. That just doesn't seem fair to a man who is trying so hard to stay out of the limelight he almost missed some of that federal campaign money.

Now, you might ask, "Just what is a non-candidate or an unannounced candidate, anyway?" Why, shuckydans, folks, everybody knows that non-candidates simply prefer running without taking a stand and unannounced candidates are ones waiting for their backers to manufacture a groundswell. In both cases, of course, discretion is the watchword. And that's why it's so patently unfair to "old what's his name" to keep giving him all that campaign publicity. If the media keep it up, why pretty soon "old what's his name" is going to have to speak to issues or — worse — create his own groundswell.

If that happens, he'll lose all that free advertising, get trapped in the equal time rules and, by Jimine, might even force the public into remembering "old what's his name" — is running for president.

Revolt surfaces in nuclear panel

WASHINGTON — The first well-organized congressional revolt in memory against the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy has surfaced.

Some 30 members of the House were prepared to announce today their support for a resolution to set up a special select committee that would study the controversial question of the spread of nuclear materials to other countries.

Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., leader of the group, said he believes the joint committee has for years "abandoned its legislative prerogative to the executive branch" in controlling the spread of nuclear materials.

Nuclear proliferation, as it is known, is one of the more controversial questions in the over-all subject of nuclear safety.

The United States is one of 106 countries that have joined the International Atomic Energy Agency in an effort to detect the diversion of nuclear materials for nonpeaceful purposes.

But membership in the IAEA does not obligate a country to accept safeguards on its facilities. Additionally, the nuclear facilities of some countries, including India, are not subject to agency safeguards.

India exploded a nuclear device in 1974, using plutonium, a waste byproduct of nuclear reactors, as the fuel.

The 30 congressmen propose that the select committee study such matters as the threat of nuclear proliferation, U.S. government policies concerning the sharing of nuclear information with other governments, and Congress' role in monitoring government policy.

A spokesman for long said materials would be disclosed showing that the joint committee which is charged with oversight responsibilities on the nation's nuclear programs "has held one hearing on nuclear proliferation in the last five years."

Foreign aid bill wins nod in House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed a $4.8 billion foreign aid authorization bill, nearly half of it for Israel, and today turns to separate legislation to provide the money for it.

After day-long debate and the rejection of repeated efforts to eliminate military aid to Iran, the House passed the legislation 240 to 169 late Wednesday and returned it to the Senate.

A conference will be held later this month to resolve differences with a Senate version passed earlier. Meanwhile, the House today was scheduled to debate the appropriations bill to fund the programs.

As passed Wednesday, the bill gives Congress tighter controls over foreign arms sales, prohibits security aid to any nations violating human rights or harboring terrorists and forbids arms to Angola or Chile — restrictions strongly opposed by the administration.

The bill authorizes $3.5 billion for international security assistance programs plus $1.3 billion in credit loan guarantees for military sales. These are some highlights:

— $2.5 billion for Israel, including $1.5 billion in foreign military sales credits, for which repayment of half would be immediately forgiven.

— $750 million for Egypt; $222.5 million for Jordan and $90 million for Syria.

— $140 million in grant military and supporting assistance for Greece, while Turkey gets $50 million in grant military assistance and $125 million in military credits.

Efforts to eliminate military aid to Egypt, Jordan and Syria and increase aid to Israel were shouted down after House International Relations Committee Chairman Thomas P. Morgan, D-Pa., said U.S. peace efforts in the Middle East would be wrecked if the aid to the Arabs were eliminated.

Church flays lack of Gem train runs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Wednesday the refusal of the executive branch to establish passenger train service in Idaho is defiance of the law.

"What will it take to implement this legislation duly passed by Congress?" Church said. "This arrogance is not new to us. We have seen it many times before. But the familiarity of its theme must not deter us from an effective response."

"We must insist on the full implementation of the purpose for which it was created — the provision of railroad passenger service nationwide."

In a letter to Paul Reister, president of AMTRAK, and his testimony before the Senate Subcommittee on Surface Transportation, Church said legislation passed in 1974 mandated the establishment of an experimental route through Idaho during 1975.

"The legislative history of this bill clearly demonstrates Congress' intent that service to Idaho and other such areas must be instituted before any other experimental routes are designated."

Church testified Wednesday before the committee and said "the people of Idaho badly need and want this service. We want to give them a chance to exercise the feasibility of a route that was promised without justification."

"I can understand the requirements of lead time, the need for long-term planning, but we have had little for all of that. No further delay is warranted, nor can it be tolerated."

"He said there can be no justification for the expenditure of billions of dollars to improve rail passenger service to one part of the country while ignoring the needs of another."

Church urged the committee to reaffirm the mandate in the law that rail passenger service can be restored to Idaho and we can start to make AMTRAK the national system it was intended to be.

Welcome, VFW to canyon cause

The Veterans of Foreign Wars helped make "America: Love It or Leave It" one of the best-known slogans of the 1960s. Now, local VFW posts are pushing another bumpersticker slogan...

These latest orange bumperstickers carry the message, "Help the VFW Save the Canyon." Eleven veterans' groups in Magic Valley have joined in a campaign to preserve a 23 mile stretch of the Snake River Canyon and rim.

Undeveloped canyonlands upstream from Snoshone Falls all the way to Milner Dam are the focus of the VFW preservation drive. The stretch of land is one of the few undeveloped, publicly-owned parcels left on the Snake.

Keeping Snake River rimbands and bottomlands from being gobbled up through continued residential or commercial development isn't a new idea. The Bureau of Land Management, the Tri-County Rim Study Association and a dozen other environmental groups have endorsed some plan to protect the scenic canyon from unlimited development.

But the Veterans of Foreign Wars' support of a save-the-canyon drive is a welcome surprise. The traditional pose of these veterans' groups has been that of being superpatriots more concerned with helping veterans and conducting military funerals than in getting involved in conservation programs.

The "Help the VFW Save the Canyon" project shows that preserving the natural beauty of the Snake River isn't something only the Sierra Club and the college-educated liberals want.

The VFW is on a different end of the political spectrum compared to most environmental groups but their help in saving the Snake River canyon is a positive, constructive gesture.

Henry's perch

The Pendleton East-Oregonian
Henry Kissinger crawled out on a shaky limb when he told Venezuelan leaders America wouldn't permit any more aggression by Cuba. Members of Congress might say off that limb just as they did on Angola.

When Secretary of State Kissinger met this week in Venezuela with officials of that South American country, President Perez asked him about the intervention by Cuban soldiers in Angola. In Africa, it's natural Perez should have brought that up.

Cuba has been an adventurous ally in Latin America and leaders of the countries have to watch with interest as Cubans take part in the Angolan fight between pro-Soviet and anti-Soviet forces.

Kissinger assured Perez and his colleagues that the United States would oppose any Cuban attempt to repeat foreign aggression. That's a broad pledge. While it may have given comfort to the Venezuelans, the promise may fall to heavy water when it counts.

Memories of Vietnam remain strong in this country, as members of Congress showed in voting to cut off U.S. aid to anti-Soviet forces in Angola. Congress seemed to vote down the bill partly because the Ford administration had funneled funds to Angola without telling Congress and partly because of Vietnam memories. If Cuba invaded Venezuela, Congress might stand in the way once again of U.S. help.

Regardless of Angola or Vietnam, though, no secretary of state should make such sweeping commitments as did Kissinger. No secretary of state or president can make a solid, guaranteed promise of aid in time of attack. The Constitution gives Congress the power of granting funds and declaring war. And since Vietnam—members of the House and Senate are taking these responsibilities seriously.

Kissinger would have done better just to have pledged cooperation with Venezuela in economic and diplomatic efforts to strengthen Venezuela's ability to live her life without meddling by Communists or anyone else.

Proposed ban on Soviet trade stirs hot debate

By Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON — Disturbed by the Soviet Union's intervention in the Angolan civil war, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and other conservatives want to counter this action by banning sales of grain and computers to the Soviets.

While the Russians channeled military supplies to Angola, the United States continued to sell them essential electronic and agricultural products on a business-as-usual basis. Offering an amendment to a foreign military aid bill debated recently in the Senate, Goldwater proposed that this trade be halted until the Russians cease their military involvement in the African nation. But opponents argued that a trade ban would seriously damage U.S. Soviet relations and would cause hardship for American farmers with abundant grain supplies.

Although no vote was taken on the amendment because it was ruled not germane to the bill, the proposal nevertheless raises serious foreign policy questions about the future of Washington's policy of détente with Moscow. Even one opponent conceded that the amendment "has forced us to bring out into the open... an issue we have been shying away from."

PRO: Goldwater and other backers of the amendment maintained that since the Soviet Union was dependent on U.S. grain supplies, the United States should "use the power of its food" to influence Soviet military policies. The purpose, said Goldwater, "is merely to bring a little common sense into our foreign policy so that we can say to a country that has foregone its grain: 'Fine and good. We might even give it to you, but we would like some concessions. Take your arms out of the Middle East, take your arms out of Angola. Give up trying to dominate the continent of Africa.'"

Declared Sen. Nunn, D-Ga.: "The Soviet Union cannot maintain the military machinery it has today unless we subsidize the rest of their economy, from which they are currently diverting substantial resources to build a military machine of unparalleled might." Knocking down the arguments of those who said the Soviets would turn elsewhere for grain supplies, supporters of the amendment contended that "adequate replacements" would not be available to the Soviet Union.

Goldwater conceded that American farmers, who have long argued to strive for full production of grain commodities, would suffer from a prohibition on sales. But "the struggle for freedom has to take priority," he said.

"If alternative buyers cannot be found," Goldwater added, "the United States could consider purchasing any excess grain that would go to grain reserves." Nunn later explained that the federal government has not prepared a plan that would protect U.S. farmers if exports to the Soviet Union were banned. "That has not been done. That can't be easy, but it must be done," the senator said.

CON: Opponents turned Goldwater's principal arguments around, insisting that a continuation of food sales would be the best way to assure that the Soviets would not be tempted to restrict their foreign policy.

WASHINGTON — The chilling prospect that Fidel Castro intends further use of his 12,000 Cuban troops in Angola to "free" South African-controlled Namibia is causing far more concern inside President Ford's White House than Cuba's original Angolan intervention.

Unlike Castro's quick Angolan triumph, a move into Namibia would confront South Africa's predominantly white army and threaten bloody racial warfare. The fight at the moment is still out of the question that any such Cuban adventure would go unchallenged.

While the White House vows Castro will not be allowed to use military force again anywhere, the question is how to stop him. One possible answer under a new administration is an outright U.S. naval blockade of Cuba itself.

It was precisely this bleak prospect that led

Said Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn.: "When we can get a country like the Soviet Union... relying on the United States as a source of food over a long term... I say that is a constructive development for us... and it is a regretful loss of Soviet military capability."

Opponents of the Goldwater amendment argued that Soviet restraint would grow apparent as the Russians became dependent on the United States for grain over a long period of time. They also pointed out that the Soviet Union would have less money available for producing military hardware because funds would be diverted from the Soviet economy to purchase food commodities.

Although Sen. Jacob K. JAVITS, R-N.Y., expressed opposition to the amendment, he warned that "it should be understood that this is not something that can be ruled out as absolutely impossible. I think the Soviets ought to worry about this and I hope they do." As Goldwater had predicted, opponents noted that a grain sales ban would have a serious impact on U.S. farmers. "The market will fall, we will have bank failures in every state bank."

we will have a collapse of farm income... If the amendment were approved, Humphrey claimed.

Robert Dole, R-Kan., who said wheat producers in his state liked "open-access to markets," suggested that these farmers would be willing to make the sacrifice that would result from a grain sales ban "as long as the sacrifice is across the board," shared by other U.S. business interests that trade with Russia.

S. Africa next Castro target?

WASHINGTON — The chilling prospect that Fidel Castro intends further use of his 12,000 Cuban troops in Angola to "free" South African-controlled Namibia is causing far more concern inside President Ford's White House than Cuba's original Angolan intervention.

Both congressional reluctance and Castro's boldness are buttressed by the fact a Cuban move to "free" Namibia would be done under cover of "international" legality, with Castro claiming United Nations support, Namibia (formerly Southwest Africa) is legally a UN trusteeship, though South Africa has never relinquished its long control over the huge sparingly settled territory on its northern border. Accordingly, Cuban military operations in Namibia would be given a superficial sanctity, with or without specific UN action.

The reasoning of high administration levels is that 12,000 Cuban troops were far more than was needed to pacify Angola. That raises the question of how the Angola only begins Communist Cuba's renewed pursuit of world revolution.

"We will defend Angola and we will defend Africa," Castro said last December in a speech being sharply scrutinized here. "When we say it, we mean it. When we say fight, we mean it. Let the South African racists and Yankee imperialists know it." Realists in the Ford administration are belatedly believing Castro means exactly what he said.

Contractors pouring out secrets

© 1978, Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON — Probably the biggest business in Washington is manufacturing secrets.

In the past 20 years the demand for secrets has increased tenfold and, because the government cannot keep up with it, all federal agencies are now subcontracting their orders for secrets to private industry.

Arnold Zankel, one of the founders of the company, works eight hours a day. He said proudly, "Everyone in the government is desperate for secrets and they all need them immediately."

"I thought the CIA hearings and the disclosures about the FBI and the Watergate scandal would have hurt our business," Zankel said. "As soon as a secret is revealed to the public, the agency invents orders for a new one to replace it." The demand for full disclosure of what the government is up to has made every government department scramble for more sophisticated secrets that can't be discovered.

more and more secrets from the executive branch of the government. So we are manufacturing secrets, especially tailored to satisfy congressional subpoenas. For example, these chips have been ordered by the Federal Reserve Board and have to do with the private affairs of banks. When Congress demands to see the secret papers in the Fed's files, the Federal Reserve Bank will send these over. Obviously, they're so complicated that no one can understand them. But since they have a lot of bulk to them the committees are usually satisfied.

House panel tables pair of minimum flow measures

BOISE (UPI) — The House Resources Committee today tabled two minimum stream flow bills, Wednesday, and sent to the floor, with approval one drafted last summer by an interim study committee.

Then, the committee sent to the floor without recommendation a bill to prohibit clear cutting of forests which would result in erosion that would enter streams of the state.

Under normal procedures, the bills probably will come up for a vote Saturday or Monday.

Rep. Dan Emery, D-Boise, urged the committee to report the interim committee streamflow bill rather than two others, one backed by the governor and the other by the water users. He said he felt it had the best chance of passing the legislature.

But the man who chaired the interim committee, Rep. J. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, urged the committee to hang onto the bill — saying it should be held one more year to find out what the public thinks of the water study and how it will be used.

The bill sent to the floor declares that the public health, safety and welfare require that Idaho and their environments be protected against loss of water supply to preserve minimum stream flows required for the protection of fish and wildlife habitat, aquatic life, recreation, aesthetic beauty, transportation and navigation values and water quality.

It declares preservation of water for purposes of the act to be a beneficial use of such water and further declares minimum stream flow a beneficial use of water of the streams for the purpose of protecting them from interstate diversion.

Minimum stream flows as established hereunder shall be prior in right to any claims asserted by any other state, government agency or person for but of state diversion.

Rep. Herb Fitz, R-New Meadows, moved to table all three bills. But the question was divided and the committee voted to report the water user's bills but not the interim committee measure. After a brief debate it voted 10-7 to send the interim committee bill to the floor with a "do pass" recommendation.

Fitz said he moved to table the bills because "if we get one of these bills out it will be most difficult to do anything with these streams." He said all the water of Idaho must be used rather than to let one-half of it go right into the ocean without any benefit to the state whatsoever.

Emery argued that "we don't have any time left to play games with these damn bills." He said one company already is planning to run a pipeline out of Gillette, Wyo., through Idaho to move liquid coal. That, he said, takes water.

"If my job was to move that coal I'd be filling on that water," he said, adding, "our law is vulnerable."

Chaburn disagreed, saying he did not think hauling coal by slurry would be a beneficial use of water under the Idaho Constitution.

The bill in question provides for application of unappropriated waters and provides that it not be approved unless it will not interfere with any vested water right, permit, or water right application with priority of right dated earlier than the date of receipt in the office of the water resource director.

House approves local option tax

BOISE (UPI) — After considering a number of alternatives — either in committee or on the floor — the House approved 38-30 and sent to the Senate Wednesday a local option city-county sales tax bill.

This proposal, trimmed down from an original proposal to allow up to 14 taxes, would permit counties and cities — with voter approval — to impose a sales and use tax.

It requires the exact amount and duration of the tax to be put on the ballot for consideration and provides for a property tax relief fund for surplus monies. It stipulates that a county-wide tax would supersede a city tax and the money would be apportioned to the county and cities within that county on the basis of population.

Proponents said the bill will give cities and counties an alternative to pulling the burden of supporting local government primarily on real property. But opponents said it simply is another tax on the people that will create problems for retailers.

Gem finance panel agrees on funding

BOISE (UPI) — The legislative Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee finally agreed Wednesday on an appropriation of $5,733,000 for the State Permanent Building Fund and act on expenditure of slightly more than $2 million in surplus general funds accruing this fiscal year.

Tuesday, the committee voted on three motions without getting approval on a final figure for the building fund. It finally agreed on a fourth motion today.

The motion by Sen. Mike Mitchell, D-Lewiston, included $800,000 for State Hospital South at Blackfoot to bring the facility's standards up to meet requirements for federal funds.

Also included in the final figure was $1,809,700 for the science education building at Boise State University.

Funds for the BSU science building were approved when the committee voted on expenditure of the surplus in the 1976 fiscal general fund. Boise State would receive an additional $1,540,300 in surplus monies.

Also included in the surplus funding approved by the committee was $250,000 for

Hike loses

BOISE (UPI) — The House defeated 33-31 after a brief debate today a measure for Idaho's Supreme Court and district court judges.

The measure would have hiked the justices to $33,000 a year and the district judges to $29,000.

Benefit rule change breathes

B-O-I-S-E (U.P.I.) — Republicans successfully kept down an attempt by Democratic senators to table a bill which would change the eligibility requirements for unemployment benefits.

By a 14-21 vote, Kinghorn's motion was rejected. The vote was 11-22 not to excuse the committee from bringing the bill to the floor.

Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, sponsor of the bill, asked that it go to the committee of the whole for minor amendments. Risch explained the bill provides that a person can't receive unemployment until termination or vacation pay is exhausted.

He said the bill was tabled in committee after he left the meeting.

Ellsworth sees fast windup

BOISE (UPI) — Senate President Pro-tem James Ellsworth, R-Leadore, predicted today the second regular session of the 43rd Idaho Legislature could wind up pretty fast now.

Ellsworth declined to pick an exact date for the final sine die adjournment, adding he had hoped the session would have finished its work today — the 50th legislative day and the day that ends the legislative constitutional pay.

Drafters of the constitution settled on a 60-day session and provided for $10 a day in pay for that number of days; although lawmakers now receive $3 a day in expenses as long as they are in session, except for those living in Ada County.

Ellsworth said if the legislation forthcoming is not any more landmark than what it has been to this point, I don't know why we can't wind up the session fairly fast, provided we can get suspension of rules to deal with appropriation bills."

The President Pro-tem said accomplishments to date in the session "make biennial sessions look better."

Ellsworth noted the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee nearly was finished with its work and had most appropriation bills drafted.

Still the big stumbling block to final adjournment is funding of highway programs.

"I don't know what we will do about highways," Ellsworth said. "There may be some other things lurking around, but the most important thing is highways and passage of appropriations bills."

Ellsworth said the only major appropriations still not acted upon by the joint committee were the Department of Transportation and Department of Law Enforcement.

Training plan dies

BOISE (UPI) — Voicing strong objections to its compulsory features, the House killed 32-35 Wednesday a bill to require training and licensing of city water and sewer system operators.

But in killing the measure, the House — which defeated the bill and then revived it for reconsideration last Friday — the House had to endure another long debate. There even was an unsuccessful move — began 21-

43 — to put the bill into Committee of the Whole for amendment.

Floor sponsor Doyle Miner, R-St. Anthony, said the bill merely provided for licensing of the water and waste water system operators. He said the measure is grandfathered in that protects existing operators.

He said it simply will assist smaller cities and stressed, "This is not the federal safe drinking water act."

'Living together' tops poll

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — The happiest Europeans are unmarried men and women living together, according to a Common Market poll.

The results, published Wednesday, was one of several eye-openers in the poll of 8,500 persons aged 15 and over on women's place in European society.

Generally, men and women queried had surprisingly similar attitudes towards feminism and women's rights, with 50 per cent of both sexes agreeing women are worse off than men in wages, job opportunities and promotions.

On the subject of general happiness, the largest group of persons describing themselves as "very happy" — 22 per cent — were unmarried men and women living together.

By contrast, only 17 per cent of those married called themselves "very happy."

Doctors lose insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Psychologists are losing malpractice insurance coverage because some of them have sex with their patients.

The malpractice insurance has been dropped for members of the American Psychological Association in rife of large claims for sexual abuse in psychotherapy, according to Paul O'Brien, Washington lawyer who administers the APA insurance trust.

O'Brien said at least five claims for alleged sexual abuse were received by Central Mutual of Ohio, the insurance company that began underwriting the APA program in 1974 and has announced it is terminating coverage effective Jan. 31 of this year.

Insurance companies now assume that between one and five per cent of psychologists have sex at one time or another with their patients and regard doctor-patient sex relations as an occupational hazard, O'Brien said.

Asked if he agrees with the assumption, he said an APA study on "the extent of the practice is nearly complete and he doesn't know the results.

Studies indicate fewer than 1 per cent of general physicians have sex with their patients, but "with psychologists we suspect it will be higher," he said.

O'Brien was quoted in the March, 1976, issue of APA Monitor as a monthly newspaper, and elaborated on his remarks in a telephone interview.

He told the Monitor that although Central Mutual was believed to have dropped its coverage of psychologists because of a spillover from the malpractice crisis facing many physicians, the company in fact discontinued APA's policy primarily because it feared pre-empting claims for sexual abuses in psychotherapy.

All five claims received by the company from psychologists involved male therapists and female clients, the Monitor said. They are pending in the courts, with damages sought in amounts from $500,000 to $2 million.

In one malpractice case last year, a female patient received $200,000 in damages from a New York psychiatrist with whom she had had sexual relations, the Monitor said.

Anne ready to begin new job

LONDON (UPI) — Anne Armstrong, America's first woman ambassador to the United Kingdom, says she is looking forward to discussing "the big issues of the day" with Prime Minister Harold Wilson and other British leaders.

Mrs. Armstrong, 48, a White House counselor during the Nixon administration, arrived Wednesday night and said she knew of no time when U. S.-British relations have been better.

her lack of foreign affairs expertise. Mrs. Armstrong said: "I like the idea of mix of lay people and our splendid foreign service people."

Fighting closes school

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Dixie College High School will remain closed until Monday because of racial fighting on school grounds which left eight students injured and resulted in the arrest of nine others.

Assistant school superintendent Stanley Moore said he did not know how Wednesday's fighting started but believed that it was a direct result of an incident at the school last week when a series of fistfights broke out for an unknown reason.

Actor wins

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor James Stacy won a $200,000 out-of-court settlement from the city of Santa Monica Wednesday in connection with an auto-motorcycle accident in which he lost an arm and a leg and a woman companion was killed.

Stacy filed suit in Superior Court March 7 and had sought $10 million in damages from the city, allegedly for failing to maintain Benedict Canyon Drive in the Hollywood Hills for the safety of motorists.

Unexpected ride

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — Steven Gayley, 18, took an unexpected ride with Mary Ann Edwards' car. Neither of them enjoyed the experience but it was hard for Gayley to complain since he was trapped under Mrs. Edwards' car.

Gayley, a maintenance worker, was lying on his stomach in a grocery store parking lot Wednesday with his head in a manhole checking a water valve.

Mrs. Edwards' car drove over him, snaring him in the undercarriage.

Baker rebuked

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — State Rep. Bill Hester, Tenn., said Wednesday he will return an estimated $2,500 of a $5,000 campaign donation which Gulf Oil Corp. officials informed him came from illegal corporate funds.

Baker, who was assured by the oil company two years ago that it had made no illegal contributions to his campaign, was told Wednesday that about half of the $5,000 came from corporate donations.

Unusual discovery

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — A man cleaning his house came across an unusual discovery — a jar containing formaldehyde and a set of five human fingers.

Richard Mizate turned the jar over to police, who said they were mystified about who had owned the jar.

The jar was then turned over to the Caddo Parish coroner's office, which said the set of fingers had probably belonged to a medical student.

Fugitive aid bar called trial goal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Steven Soliah, charged with a fatal Symbionese Liberation Army-linked bank robbery, says the government is prosecuting him to discourage anyone from aiding fugitives like Patricia Hearst.

The 27-year-old housepainter, arrested the same day as Miss Hearst and charged with harboring her, said in an exclusive interview that he was not a member of the SLA and did not take part in a $15,000 Sacramento area bank robbery in which a middle-aged mother was shot to death.

Prosecutors dropped the harboring charge against Soliah the same day he was indicted by a Sacramento federal grand jury on a charge of bank robbery resulting in a death. He is convicted. Soliah could face up to life in prison.

"I think the government is trying to discourage anyone who might consider helping a fugitive, such as Patricia Hearst," Soliah said. "They want to get the message across that this will happen to you if you dare to give aid to anyone who is a fugitive."

Federal prosecutors say they will prosecute anyone who can identify Soliah as a participant in the holdup when his trial opens in Sacramento next Monday. They also say Soliah's fingerprint is on a license plate used on a stolen getaway car.

Udall calls on liberals

BOSTON (UPI) — Rep. Morris Udall, polling to his strong second place finish in Massachusetts, today urged fellow liberals to rally to his candidacy or forfeit the party's presidential mantle.

"There just isn't any other horse to ride if they don't get going to lose it if they don't get behind my campaign," the Arizona congressman told a cheering victory party early this morning.

Udall, who outpolled four other liberals to trail Sen. Henry Jackson by 23-18 per cent, said "it's not important that I be president. What is important is that someone from the progressive wing of the party is elected."

There were early signs that Udall's rallying call to progressives would be heeded.

Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, who garnered a dismal 5 per cent in a state he had expected to win, summoned a meeting of his top lieutenants today to reassess his candidacy.

"We're going together to determine what role I should play as we continue to pursue the dual role of electing the Democratic president who can get this country into the kind of shape that it should have been all along," Bayh told his lieutenants Tuesday night.

He urged them "not to be disheartened, but to continue to lead the principles of the Democratic party are important," and the election of a Democratic president is still important.

Udall said he felt "a great sadness" for Bayh, adding "I hope to be working with him soon the road."

Udall said he had achieved a major goal in Massachusetts — emerging as "the front-runner of the progressive wing of the party."

Richard Siegel, a Udall press aide, said: "our second objective is to start moving up on these other people. We still have to do that. With some of the others out who may start doing that in New York and Wisconsin."

Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris, who is running on a shoestring budget, was likely to continue his roving campaign in hopes things might start breaking right for him despite poor finishes in all three primaries.

And Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp, a millionaire not hunting yet for campaign funds, also was expected to keep trying for awhile.

But Sargent Shriver, who had counted on his New England connections to do well Tuesday, was under attack casually. He is running out of funds, and the situation was not helped with an unimpressive second in Vermont and his out-of-the-money showing in Massachusetts.

REP. MORRIS UDALL liberal leader

Carter scoffs

MIAMI (UPI) — Jimmy Carter said Wednesday Henry Jackson rode the busting issue to victory in Massachusetts but predicted he cannot duplicate the triumph next Tuesday when Florida holds the South's first primary.

"Carter said at a news conference in Orlando that he underestimated the impact of busting in Tuesday's Massachusetts primary while Jackson ran a one-issue campaign, and it paid off for him."

"Jackson will not do as well in Florida as he did in 1972," Carter said. Jackson finished third four years ago with 13.6 per cent of the vote and trailed George Wallace and Hubert Humphrey.

Eligible voters top 150 million

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 150 million Americans will be eligible to vote in the November elections, an increase of 10 million from the 1972 presidential election, the Census Bureau said Wednesday.

California and Florida alone will add an extra million voters each to their rolls.

The Census Bureau estimated the total of eligible voters on election day this year will be 150,041,000 — more than ever before. That represented a 7.1 per cent increase from 1972.

The 1972 elections themselves had represented a major jump in voter eligibility since it was the first time 18-year-olds were given the vote in all states.

Since then, the largest increase in the number of eligible voters has been in California, where an estimated 1,325,000 have been added, an increase of 9.2 per cent since 1972.

Florida's addition of 1,084,000 voters was a 20.7 per cent hike, the largest percentage increase in the nation.

Only Rhode Island, owing to the District of Columbia showed slight decreases in the number of eligible voters. Rhode Island was down 23,000 or 3.4 per cent and the District decreased about 15,000 or 2 per cent.

The Mountain region of the West showed the greatest regional gain of 14.9 per cent and Arizona, with 250,000 new voters for a 20.1 per cent gain was the only state besides Florida to gain more than 20 per cent.

The Northeast gained only 3.2 per cent and the North Central states, 4.7 per cent. The West, however, had an 11 per cent increase during the last four years while the South increased 10.2 per cent.

Other states with large percentage gains in the number of eligible voters were Nevada, 18.8 per cent; Alaska, 17.3 per cent; Wyoming, 16.2 per cent; Idaho, 15.5 per cent; New Mexico, 14.9 per cent; Utah, 12 per cent; Hawaii, 11.9 per cent; Colorado 11.4 per cent; Texas, 11.1 per cent; and Arkansas, 11 per cent.

Canadian Red endorses detente

MOSCOW (UPI) — Canada's Communist leader won ringing applause from Soviet party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev Wednesday with a strong affirmation of detente just two days after President Ford said he would no longer use the word to describe U.S.-Soviet relations.

The comments by Canadian party leader, William Kashtan came near the close of eight days of speechmaking at the Soviet party's 25th congress. Elections for Soviet leadership follow, although analysts expect little change at the top with Brezhnev continuing in power.

Kashtan's address was the first before the congress specifically mentioning detente since Ford told a television interview Monday, "I don't use the word detente any more. I don't think it is applicable anymore."

The Canadian was quoted by the official Soviet news agency Tass as saying: "This will be a congress of outstanding significance in the struggle for peace and to make the relaxation of tension irreversible and to spread it to the military field."

"Relaxation of tension" is the Soviet translation of detente, a French word coined by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in the late 1960s to describe the new U.S. policy of negotiation instead of confrontation with the Soviet Union.

Brezhnev, the 69-year-old party general secretary, who has scored a marked personal success at the congress, reappeared Wednesday after a day-and-a-half absence and joined in the applause for Kashtan's praise of detente.

Although there has been no official reaction to Ford's statement, the congress has been studded with declarations of support for the policy beginning with Brezhnev's keynote speech.

Kashtan, followed by the steps of American Communist Gus Hall in urging "strong proletarian internationalism," meaning loyalty to Moscow. Analysts said his speech would be welcomed by the Kremlin following demands for greater independence from the Italian, French, British and Romanian parties.

Ford backs aid to vets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford promised Wednesday he would do his best to raise to record levels federal spending for veterans' medical care, compensation and pensions.

"You deserve nothing less. I will do all that I can to make certain that you receive nothing less," Ford said in a speech written for delivery at the dedication of the new Disabled American Veterans National Service Headquarters building.

"You gave your muscle, your blood, your courage and your years. It is a priceless gift America must never forget," he said.

"Even within the tight constraints of my federal budget for Fiscal Year 1977, I have proposed a record amount of over $4 billion for VA medical care."

"I have requested funds for more than 3,000 new VA medical personnel in my budgets for Fiscal Years 1976 and 1977... And those budgets provide some $600 million for VA medical construction projects," he said.

Fighter rules on tank cars asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal rules that let a potential explosive be listed as a "flammable solid" are inadequate to prevent railroad tank car explosions like the one that killed two persons and injured 11 in Washington state in 1974, safety investigators said Wednesday.

The National Transportation Safety Board urged prompt action to tighten the rules, it said. The Federal Railroad Administration has not yet acted on an NTSB call issued almost a year ago for the identification of all explosive liquids shipped by tank car.

Although the board's findings were based on a report on the explosion Aug. 6, 1974, in Wenatchee, Wash., they have nationwide significance because railroad freight trains carry hazardous materials through towns and cities all over the United States.

"Testimony given during the safety board's public hearing into this accident clearly indicated that current classifications are inadequate to prevent similar accidents," the report said.

The 1974 explosion occurred during switching operations in a tank car filled with a monomethylamine nitric solution called PRM. The blast blasted into the tank car as far as a mile, destroyed buildings and equipment in the Burlington Northern's Apple Yard and shattered windows up to 3.5 miles away.

Total damage was placed at $7.7 million.

The PRM was shipped from the DuPont plant in Iwawak, Minn., under a special Transportation Department permit. The board said there had been 44 previous shipments, all without incident.

But, the report said, the permit was issued without an evaluation of the hazards involved and the PRM was listed as a flammable solid rather than an explosive without a request.

"The classification as a flammable solid probably resulted in less stringent surveillance and less adherence to pre-shipment requirements in loading, shipping and transporting PRM," the board said.

Among other recommendations, the board said the DOT should change federal regulations to set up tests of "every known way in which detonable materials could explode — accidentally — in transportation."

Heath was charged with driving while intoxicated, repeated offense. Pitareo Corona Maroni, 52, also Kimberly, pleaded guilty and will be sentenced following a pre-sentence report. He was also charged with driving while intoxicated, repeated offense. Les Hay Christensen, 22, Twin Falls, was sentenced to five years in the state prison and the sentence withheld in favor of a three-year probation period. He was charged with resisting arrest by means of force against city police officer Jim Milton. He was also charged with damage to public property in the city jail. Christensen appeared and changed an innocent plea to one of guilty before sentence was pronounced by Judge Cunningham. Guy Potter, 23, Orem, Utah, entered a plea of innocent to charges of second degree kidnapping Oct. 1, 1975 of Patricia Ann Birch. The court set April 31 at 9 a.m. as the time for trial before district court jury. Manuel Marinacrena, 23, appeared on charges of assault with a deadly weapon and entered a plea of guilty. He requested a pre-sentence investigation which was granted by the court. He is accused of assaulting Jean Lewis on July 12, 1975. Larry Duane Jennings, 23, Twin Falls, charged with possession of a controlled substance, was placed on 18-month probation after pleading guilty. Steve G. Wilcox, 35, Twin Falls was placed on probation for an indefinite period. The case to be re-viewed again in six months. He pleaded guilty to a check charge. As part of the probation, he is not to maintain any checking or banking accounts during probation. Timothy Lynn Youtz, 20, Twin Falls, was granted a pre-sentence investigation. # 3 hurt in TF traffic mishap

TWIN FALLS — Three persons suffered minor injuries Tuesday afternoon in a two-car accident at Eastland Drive and Kimberly Road. City police said a vehicle driven by Allee K. Thompson, 30, Filer, and one operated by Robert C. Conroy, 45, Twin Falls, collided in the intersection. Police said Conroy was traveling east and Mrs. Thompson, west when the Thompson vehicle pulled into the turning lane. Officers said trucks changing the signal in the intersection apparently blocked the view of the westbound driver. She and her two passengers, Everette Thompson, 4, and Ann Burgoyne, were treated for cuts and bruises. The accident was investigated by city police at about 1 p.m.

2 physicians, hospital sued

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls couple is seeking $25,000 damages in a suit filed here Tuesday afternoon against two local physicians and Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Rosanna K. and Ronald Castle charge negligence on the part of Dr. Byron Bush, Dr. John McCain and another physician unknown to the plaintiffs but identified as Dr. John Doe. The complaint states on April 12, 1975, Mrs. Castle underwent surgery for the removal of a cervical rib and as the result of negligence on the part of the physicians who performed the surgery and the hospital, she suffered permanent injuries. She asks $125,000 for general damages and any other amount the court may determine for past and future medical costs.

Angola regime on 'list'

WASHINGTON — The U.S. government will continue to withhold recognition from the Popular Movement regime in Angola because of the uncertainty about the next move of the Cuban expeditionary force there, but there are clear signs of return to more normal commercial relations.

State Department spokesman Robert Fumeth said Tuesday the department has removed its "hold" on two Boeing 737 planes, ordered and partly paid for by the Luanda government. And Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Tuesday he understands the State Department now has informed Gulf Oil Corp. that it may resume payment of multimillion dollar royalties to the Popular Movement government, as well as resume drilling and pumping operations in the Cabinda enclave.

The implication of these disclosures, officials said, is that the United States will be ready to open official contacts with the victorious Popular Movement once Washington is certain about the course the Popular Movement-Cuban armed forces will follow in regard to Angola's neighbors.

They also said the State Department now has informed Gulf Oil Corp. that it may resume payment of multimillion dollar royalties to the Popular Movement government, as well as resume drilling and pumping operations in the Cabinda enclave.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A proposed passenger route from Denver to Portland via Boise, Idaho, would lose $7-10 for every dollar it received in revenue since only one-third to one-half of the seats would be filled, Amtrak analysts estimate.

"The problem is that there's just no population density between Ogden and Portland," said Donald C. Matthews, of financial analysis and planning for Amtrak. "The end points are the only places where you'd pick up any ridership."

The preliminary report indicated that there would be no more than 30-40 passengers on board the trains making the routes pushed by Northwest legislators — Idaho is one of three states which does not have passenger rail service to any of its major population centers.

Four routes have been proposed for the route, the most economical being one running from Denver to Salt Lake City three times a week, and daily from Salt Lake to Boise, continuing to Portland and Seattle. The run would generate $1.5 million per year in revenue from passenger fares, meals and payments for carrying mail, but it would cost $11.5 million to operate.

The least economical of the routes, running from Denver to Ogden, Utah, three times a week, then continuing daily to Boise and Portland. It would take in less than $1 million while costing $11 million.

The Portland-Seattle train, one of several routes being considered for possible elimination because of its huge deficit, loses about $4 for every dollar of revenue.

Brian Duff of Amtrak said the Boise study was primarily to narrow the number of routes for a more detailed study to be completed later, and did not include inspection of tracks, stations and maintenance facilities. He said it was assumed these costs would be the same as the railroad average.

The study also assumed that the Denver-Portland routes could save money by hooking onto an existing Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad train from Denver to Salt Lake City or Ogden.

A Senate subcommittee is scheduled to begin hearings Thursday on the future of existing routes, including Portland-Seattle.

Gravity waves sought

© N.Y. Times Service

SADENA, Calif. — United States and Soviet physicists have proposed a new space flight technique to verify the existence of elusive gravitational waves and to use them as a means of probing the interiors of quasars and other explosive cosmic events.

If the experiment is tried and found successful, it could open a new branch of astronomy — gravitational astronomy — capable of observing the violent forces inside quasars, at the centers of galaxies, in collapsing stars, and of colliding black holes.

The proposal was made by Dr. Kip S. Thorne, professor of theoretical physics at the California Institute of Technology here, and Errol V. Lindblom, of the University of Washington. It was described in the current issue of Astrophysical Journal and in an interview with Thorne.

The technique involves a dragnet of radio signals between earth and interplanetary spacecraft. Because the extremely precise clocks necessary for the experiment are just being developed, Thorne and Lindblom expect that the search for gravity waves from large cosmic events might not succeed for another five to 10 years.

Gravitational waves were first predicted by Albert Einstein, and physicists generally agree that, according to the fundamental principles of physics, the waves have to exist. They are the gravitational force what lightwaves are to the electrical force.

There are three fundamental manifestations of the electrical force. One is the static electric field, which makes pieces of paper stick together after coming through a photocopying machine. Another is static magnetism, which causes a bar magnet to pick up iron shavings. The third manifestation is radio waves in the form of visible light, radio, X-rays, infrared, ultraviolet and gamma rays.

Physicists believe that gravity should have the same kinds of manifestations. The first and most obvious is gravity's attractive force, which holds the moon in its orbit of earth and causes a ball to fall to the ground. Gravity's equivalent to static magnetism has never been seen but it is presumably caused by the motions of matter and is the subject of current tests.

Gravitational energy in the form of waves must also exist, Thorne said, "unless we have been extremely misled by all the principles of physics." But they have so far defied detection. "Once you've found them," Thorne added, "you can use them as you use the light from stars, to tell you what's going on in the universe. The disadvantage of light is that it reveals only the surfaces of objects."

Thorne said that the collision or near-collision of two giant black holes deep in the core of a galaxy should produce bursts of gravitational waves. Black holes are believed to be what happens to a large star when its nuclear fire dies out and it collapses into itself, leaving a spinning hole with a gravitational field so strong that light cannot leave it.

So should a gigantic explosion of a star or in a quasar, Thorne said. Quasars, or quasi-stellar sources, are the most energetic of all the known sources of radiation in the universe.

Pink alligator found in Florida

ANDYTOWN, Fla. (UPI) — When airboat tour guide Danny Decker spotted a pink lump in the murky waters of an Everglades canal, he thought it was a log. It was a pink alligator.

When Decker eased the airboat closer, he discovered a swamp rat — a 5-foot pink alligator.

Decker's boss at Everglades Holiday Park, Dick Eggleston, was skeptical when he heard about the pink gator Tuesday.

But on a second trip down the canal that day, Decker took five tourists as passengers, including commercial photographer Alfred Herkins.

TF registrars appointed

TWIN FALLS — Voter registration books are now in the hands of the registrars in all 47 Twin Falls county precincts for voters to register in advance of the May 25 presidential primary election.

Harold Lancaster said his office is urging voters to register with the registrar rather than the clerk's office to save time for the clerk's staff while the books are at the homes of the registrars.

Registration will continue through May 19 at the homes of registrars who are paid by the county on a basis of 50 cents per registration.

Persons who have moved from one precinct to another may contact either their registrar or the clerk's office on the second floor of the county courthouse for a transfer of their registration.

Lancaster said those who must register are all new voters who have become 18 years of age since the last election or who will be 18 by election day. Those who have moved to Twin Falls and have not registered or those who may have let their registration lapse through failing to vote in recent elections.

Medal of honor taken from woman

WASHINGTON — The only woman ever to receive the Congressional Medal of Honor, Dr. Mary E. Walker of Oswego, N.Y., has had the country's original "women's libbers" had the medal taken from her by panel of five retired U.S. Army generals.

"Dr. Mary" — diminutive, pants-suited, Civil War physician, lost the right to possess the medal — which she wore always pinned to her chest — 52 years after it was awarded.

President Andrew Johnson presented the medal to her in 1865 for her service as a battlefield doctor. The award had been recommended by President Abraham Lincoln.

But 23 years after the medal was awarded, a board decided that the medal had not been properly awarded for distinguished services as defined by the 1916 law which set up the board.

So the name of Dr. Mary, who became known as "the little lady in pants," was stricken from the honor roll.

A 19th-century frontier fighter, William F. Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill, also lost his medal, as did 999 others, mostly foot soldiers. The records do not indicate why Cody's medal was awarded in the first place.

The 11 "losers" were among 2,625 medal holders up to Jan. 31, 1977, when the board completed its review. Of the 911 persons, 224 were members of a single regiment, the 77th Maine Volunteer Infantry whose enlistments were to have expired in June, 1863.

To keep the regiment on active duty during a critical period, Lincoln authorized Medals of Honor for any of its members who volunteered for another tour of duty.

Of the 964 members of the regiment, 309 volunteered for extended duty which, of course, meant more action and the risk of death. The board noted they certainly were demonstrating "soldierlike" qualities and as such were entitled to the medal under the provision of the law.

But their act in no way measured up to the 1916 standards, the board indicated. A clerical error gave medals not only to the 309 volunteers but also the balance of the regiment who had gone home.

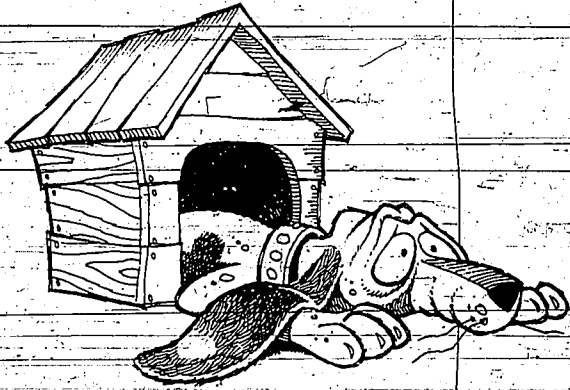

Dr. Mary and Buffalo Bill were among the 47 others who lost the medal. The board said it felt that the 47, as well as the regimenters, had not been properly awarded the medal.

The fact that the board consisted of five retired Army generals — all men — probably didn't help the case of a woman who not only had the audacity in those days to become a physician — and wear pants — but also to be an active and outspoken fighter for women's rights.

Dr. Walker's great-grandniece, Ana Walker of Washington, D.C., believes that Dr. Mary lost her medal for social and political reasons.

Rupert refers swim proposal

RUPERT — Reorganization of the Rupert swimming team program was proposed Tuesday night.

The council withheld action after Council President George Macdonald said the matter should be referred to the city's recreation committee.

Councilmen did approve a $100 donation to the Kiwanis to the Fourth of July fireworks display and authorized purchase of a pitching machine for the baseball program.

The bid for a Rupert swimming team was made by Dave Greene, who proposed that Skip Leone run the program and coach the team. Leone, who has charge of the city swimming pool, agreed to accept the responsibility. Greene said the program died last year when adults failed to organize the team. He said the 7-13-year-olds benefited and the swim team

"is a real program that we can't give up in the city."

Greene asked for $300, saying the previous figure had been $250.

He said the team in recent years has competed with the Twin Falls team because Twin Falls has sizeable numbers in both the A and B classes. He explained that Rupert probably has only four A swimmers but could easily get a team of 15 or more members, most of them in Class B.

The council approved $300 from the recreation budget for purchase of the pitching machine from Minico High School. The purchase had been requested by Recreation Director Dan Schab.

The $100 contribution to the Kiwanis came after a two-week delay for research for previous fireworks donations. The only records discovered were $6 last year to the Rupert Chamber of Commerce and a previous $25 donation.

Other officers include Glenn Gergens, Twin Falls, vice chief ranger; Dorothy Hiler, Twin Falls, finance secretary; Ernie Hiler, Filer, deputy.

Rupert meet set on sewer charge

RUPERT — A meeting will be held between city and Minidoka County School District officials on sewer service charges.

The service in question is a Minico High School, where a sewer line was installed last year as part of the city's federally-funded sewer system renovation.

The district has objected to a proposal that the charge be determined similar to the method used in determining industrial fees.

The city has had problems with the Ninth Street sewer lift station, another part of the overall project.

Frank Lebrock, consulting city engineer, told the city council Tuesday that the contractor had realigned the pump three weeks ago, but Sewer Superintendent Doug Reynolds found a pipe split two days later and water gey spraying from the pump station.

Lebrock said the contractor had agreed to make a replacement and, if the break appeared due to incorrect pump installation, to pay 50 percent of the cost.

If not, Lebrock said, the cost would be paid through the grant program.

On one other item, Lebrock asked if the council wanted additional information on the proposed Eighth Street beautification and city improvement project.

Rupert considers three subdivisions

RUPERT — Three subdivisions were before the Rupert City Council Tuesday night.

They included the already approved Pashegma Kay Subdivision and two new plans, which were approved by the council subject to several conditions.

The council instructed Building Inspector William McClung to withhold four requested building permits at the Pashegma Kay Subdivision until a settlement is made with the city for about $7,000 toward paving costs on 18th street.

Glenn Walker had agreed to pay the amount upon sale of the property. Devo, a Boise developer, requested the four permits, indicating that he would apply for 18-building permits for the remaining lots soon.

McClung said Devo was to call him Thursday and he would tell the firm to contact city officials.

The Stone Wood flat approval for John Simpson contemplated acceptance because of Simpson's request for city services.

Aides installed

Some agencies don't always know

RUPERT — Sometimes the left hand doesn't know what the right is doing, that may be particularly true of government agencies.

The City of Rupert faces the possibility of losing its high priority for street signing and bicycle path projects totaling more than $34,000.

That is it might have lost that priority if the programs had not already been approved. The city council Tuesday heard a letter from the State Department of Transportation warning that the two projects under the Suter Road Program might drop in ranking with the new listing on July 1.

But both projects are now being finalized. The state already has approved grants for the projects and only the final paperwork remains.

The bike path and pedestrian walk, with a grant of $6,492, will be a seven-foot strip of pavement in the right-of-way along the 14-foot car travel width and will be 2 1/2 feet from the property line.

The path will run from the irrigation canal north on the west side of A Street (Meridian Road) to 18th Street. It will be lined off, clearly marked and posted with signs.

The street signing project, on a $27,900 grant, will be at two F Street intersections. The project includes developing right turn lanes from all directions at Scott Avenue and Fourth Street intersections with F Street.

Variance granted Rupert business

RUPERT — A variance was granted Tuesday night to allow Nedra Caldwell to operate a beauty shop at 1200 N. 13th St.

The Rupert City Council approved the variances after a report from Councilman Duvalle Allred that the zoning commission had approved the variance, had the signatures of 75 per cent of the residents with 300 feet of the location.

The council also authorized signing of a consent document to allow assignment of a city lease from Royce Jensen to Major Linn.

The council had given its approval in November, but no document was prepared. The lease is on the location of the Pancake House.

Another variance approved by the zoning commission last week was not before the council Tuesday. That variance would allow Robert Walk to operate a non-advertised firearms business in his home.

Firearms are a hobby to Walk, but the variance is required for Walk to obtain a federal firearms license. Allred said he did not know why the variance was not on the council agenda, but said

TWIN FALLS — Kriace Hope Cueller and Hugh Dale Hollibaugh were married in a double ring ceremony Feb. 14 at the Twin Falls LDS Church.

Gates open for prison wedding rites

MENARD, Ill. (UPI) — A June bride inside prison walls. It could happen this year in the Illinois prison system.

A no-frills marriage ceremony at the Menard Correctional Center last Saturday wasn't the first in an Illinois prison and officials think there may be more.

Joseph Fecondo, administrator of adult institutions for the Department of Corrections, says there are no special accommodations for a bride and groom — no extra time beyond the ceremony and certainly no honeymoon.

The gates to marriage ceremonies inside prisons opened four or five months ago, Fecondo said, after a legal service group from Carbondale, Ill., "suggested" it was a violation of an incarcerated person's rights to deny a marriage ceremony.

"Our legal people, after checking with several states, basically agreed that we didn't have a legal leg to stand on," Fecondo said.

So the marriages began. "To the best of my recollection, we had one marriage at Pontiac and the one at Menard and two more are pending at Joliet and Stateville," he said.

"Fecondo said he would be surprised if ceremonies inside prisons increase but "I don't expect a run on marriages."

Menard Warden Thomas Israel said the marriage ceremony last Saturday was performed by the prison chaplain in an office just off the visiting room at the prison and didn't make it.

The new bridegroom, Israel said, is Kenneth Paul Rogers, 35, who is serving up to 10 years on multiple charges of murder and one of rape dating back to 1969. Israel declined to identify Rogers' wife.

"The warden said Rogers will be eligible for his first parole before the parole board Dec. 27, 1980."

DEAR ABBY: This is for Joe's lady friend who is concerned about Joe's poor grammar. I think she is both immature and a snob. I am a retired school teacher whose late husband's education ended with the third grade. He, too, used poor grammar. I never considered it a fault because he had attributes that far outweighed his lack of education. In fact, his knowledge of many subjects was far superior to mine.

MABEL IN GAINESVILLE, FLA.
DEAR MABEL: I'm not putting down men who achieved success with "book learning," but even more credit is due those "street-smart" winners who made it without.

DEAR ABBY: That woman who complained because they are now letting women work side by side with men in the coal mines is absolutely right! It has been proved that one of the biggest reasons for the increase in the divorce rate is letting men and women work together. It all started when women went to work in war plants during World War II. Why would it be any different in the coal mines?

'Street-smart' draws points

As long as women can work where they can throw themselves at men, the ones who want to can start a lot of trouble.

BEEN THERE

DEAR BEEN: So what's the alternative? Are you suggesting that I negate the sexes where both men and women are employed? That would equal opportunity back 100 years!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 42-year-old woman with a wonderful husband and family. However, I have had a problem that has been with me ever since I can remember. I don't believe the parents who raised me are my real parents. I know I am not adopted! I have a birth certificate from Queen of Angels Hospital in L.A., and everything is in order, but what drives me nuts is: How can I be sure that I am the person on that birth certificate? I have never felt that I was the child of my parents. Since childhood, people have observed that I bear absolutely NO resemblance to either of my parents or to any of my brothers or sisters. I was born when an earthquake hit L.A., and my mother didn't see me for three days during that time, so I think it's possible that some of the babies in the hospital nursery were mixed up. How can I make sure that I am really the child of my parents? I don't care if you print this.

DIANE IN CATHEDRAL CITY

DEAR DIANE: An infant's footprint is usually registered at the time of birth, so you could make a comparison. But think it over: What will you (or your parents) gain from discovering an error? You both have a stake in this, you know.

TWIN FALLS — Michelle Conn and Ronn Jones were united in marriage Feb. 20 in an evening ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Coleman.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Conn, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Jones, Buhl. Bishop Coleman performed the ceremony and vows were given before a window setting flanked by baskets of white carnations and mums with accents of yellow baby roses and daisies.

The bride's gown was champagne satin styled with an empire waistline. The yoke and hemline were accented with tiny seed pearls. Her shoulder-length veil of matching tulle was held by a lace and pearl tiara. She carried a cascade

The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated in white and trimmed with white doves and yellow roses, was made and served by Mrs. Shara Hicks, Salt Lake City, sister of the bride. Assisting at the refreshment table was Kim Jones, Buhl, sister of the bridegroom.

The reception was catered by the Windmill, managed by Louise Heindel, Twin Falls, and Gail Wiser, Eden. Special guests included Mrs. Mabel Jones, Twin Falls, and Mrs. Merinda Jones, Buhl, grandmothers of the bride and bridegroom.

The bride was honored with a pre-wedding shower hosted by Miss Kimball and Miss Bates. A wedding rehearsal was held followed by dinner at George K's hosted by the bridegroom's parents.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am a 62-year-old woman, and I've been having trouble with leg cramps. Last night I woke up three times, once with the large foot bent forward in a rigid position, the other two times with regular cramps in the calves and around the ankles. It is quite painful.
I do have varicose veins in both legs, but this hasn't bothered me so far. I wear support stockings. Is there anything I can do about this condition? Is it related to the varicose veins, do you think? — Mrs. E. M.

Cramps, vein problem linked

Yes, the cramps can very definitely be a part of the varicose problem, which implies impaired circulation to begin with. The most common cause of leg cramps is poor circulation. Besides impaired flow of blood from extremities, varicosities can also impede the flow of fresh blood to the extremities.

The support stockings are a good idea for the control of the varicose veins, but they could be contributing to the cramping, especially if they are too tight. You might try a larger size. Your problem seems to be in balancing the need to control the varicose problem and the needs of the legs for a proper supply of blood. You may require surgery to correct the vein problem. A rolled blanket between the sheets at the foot of the bed will raise the covers, allowing more room for your feet. This often helps.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am a girl, 15, 5-foot-2, and I weigh 115 pounds. Often I have noticed that about two hours after eating I get hypoglycemia. Besides now I am on a low-carbohydrate diet, so I eat mostly fruits, vegetables and meat. My mother has low blood sugar, and she says possibly I may have it, too.
When I get shaky, she makes me eat something with a lot of protein in it. This usually helps, but I don't like eating when I'm not hungry. What do you think about this? Also, two years ago I had iron deficiency anemia. — D. S. M.

You could have what is called reactive hypoglycemia. This could be verified by a sugar tolerance test. Also, your blood count should be checked again for anemia.
Your mother is wise. The keynote in dietary treatment for low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) is a high protein intake.
You say that when you don't feel hungry you just don't eat. This is natural, but you should realize as well that another aspect of dietary treatment in hypoglycemia is regular food intake.

This may require as many as four, even six, smaller portion meals a day.
I cannot tell from your letter whether you are presently dieting to lose weight. If so, you should discontinue that. From your weight and height statistics you don't appear to need that.

Readers who want more information on hypoglycemia can send for my booklet, Mail 25 cents to me in care of this newspaper, and enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
For the past six months I have had a problem with nerves or muscle jumping under the eye. Could you please tell me what could cause this? It is more noticeable to others and makes me nervous. I have seen two doctors, but so far no help. What would you suggest? — Mrs. O.C.

My first suggestion is that you stop worrying yourself about it. This is a tic — a painless spasm or twitching made involuntarily by muscles usually under voluntary control. Face muscles are common sites. This is most often psychological in origin.

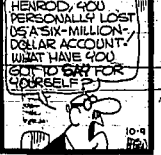

Perhaps you have recently experienced some annoying conflict in your life. If you can identify it and resolve it, your twitching should subside. Such tics as this often appear in youth and continue on through adulthood.

If yours persists and becomes too annoying, you might consult a neurologist, who can prescribe appropriate relaxants. If you are a tense person (most tic-sufferers are) learning to relax is the best therapy.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be found — write to Dr. Thosteson, in care of this newspaper for a copy of his booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers questions are incorporated in this column whenever possible.

Pioneer rose history sought by college agriculture unit

MOSCOW — Brought to Idaho by pioneer settlers, rose bushes now 100 years old still thrive in various parts of the state.

Each pioneer rose has an interesting history, and the University of Idaho College of Agriculture is trying to compile the histories, which are still remembered by Idaho residents.

The historical project came into being as a result of a request from the American Rose Society.

In this bicentennial year, the rose society is featuring the story of old garden roses in a forthcoming issue of its magazine. One projected article will describe the pioneer roses of Idaho. Where are today's oldest roses located? By whom were they planted? When? To answer these questions, College of Agriculture information specialists are asking the help of people who have historical facts.

Information about old roses should be sent to Clifton Anderson, Agricultural Information Department, University of Idaho, Moscow 83843.

"Any rose which has a history going back to the 19th century is of great interest to us," Anderson said. "Some of the old roses were planted by pioneer settlers, while others were started from cuttings in later generations of pioneers. Many stories have been handed down in Idaho families concerning the ways roses were brought into the state and established here. All these stories are being sought in the historical project.

"People who submit information about old roses should describe the bushes and flowers," Anderson said. "If variety names are known, this will be a big help. Idaho's roses are our major interest, but we welcome information about old roses in the neighboring states also."

Rupert City Council plans budget hearing March 16 at city hall

RUPERT — The total operating budget for the City of Rupert tentatively has increased 14 per cent, but there will be no increase in the general mill levy.

The city council has designated an operating budget of $1,001,844. The council Tuesday set a public hearing on the budget for 7 p.m. March 16 at city hall.

"I feel we have a good, sound budget," Councilman Clark Cameron said.

Cameron said the 1976 budget was organized "with great time and effort and we are well within the time limit," which is March 31.

He said the general levy will remain at 20 mills, with a bond levy of one mill. He also pointed out that "services charged will not have to be increased. The only thing that has to be added is the library levy, making it five mills to purchase additional materials there."

Cameron said the 14 per cent increase, he estimated, expenditures includes a 5.6 per cent across-the-board salary increase for city employees, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Councilman Dwinelle Allen agreed with Cameron that the council received "full cooperation from department heads."

Councilman W. F. Whitton commented that he was proud the council could set a budget without increasing the general tax levy or service fees, although it took some "budget-lightening techniques."

He said the budget includes plans to solve low-pressure irrigation problems, on the south side of town and that the council is concerned about city water problems and is working on plans to solve them.

The overall budget, including nearly $5 million for secondary sewer plant construction, is $6,737,814. It includes a water project of $192,000 to replace wooden lines in South Rupert and the separate electrical operation of $625,000 (the latter was $546,441 in 1976).

Revenue sharing expenditures are listed as $15,800 for fire truck lease, $6,750 for police cars, $16,000 for water poles, $1,575 for engineer equipment, $2,475 for library and $4,000 for a sewer department pickup truck.

Exclusive of the contingency fund and the CET A II program, the operating budget for 1978 is set at $906,000, compared with $810,306 last year.

The largest departmental budget is $183,200 for the police department, which spent $170,478 in 1976.

Water and irrigation is listed at $173,500, up from the $150,161 expenditure for last year. The street department budget is $132,500, compared with $121,001 in 1976.

Only the sewer and engineering departments and city shop-maintenance have budgets lower than 1976 expenditures.

The sewer operation budget is $85,200 after $28,800 was spent in 1976, including consultant fees. Engineering is listed at $34,700, while $27,522 was spent last year. Maintenance is set at $2,000 this year, compared with expenses of $2,685 in 1976.

Parks will get $88,500 this year, $74,074 was spent on parks in 1976. Recreation went up from $38,422 to $42,000.

The garbage department budget shows $29,500, compared with the $28,853 spent last year. The fire department takes a big jump from expenditures of $17,218 to a budget of $41,300.

Administration has a budget of $100,000 for 1976, compared with expenditures of $15,036.

and grounds — get $18,900 was spent.

Some 41 programs are listed at $49,800 and the contingency fund at $45,044.

Some funds include the $21,000 sewer bond plan at $16,000, local government districts at $4,000 and bond plan and LID payments for Nos. 12, 13, 14 and 15 at $1,800.

King eyes nuclear power

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Sweden's 28-year-old King Carl XVI Gustaf says he believes in nuclear power, but would be reluctant as a monarch to dedicate an atomic power station.

In an almost five-hour interview with a group of foreign journalists Friday, the Swedish king also said when he eventually gets married, he would prefer his wife stay at home and take care of the house and children.

"If she has a profession, she should go to work if she wants to. It would not be right then for her to be forced to stay at home, but I would want her to stay at home if possible to take care of the house. She would be much better at it than I."

On the feminist movement, he said he thought it was a good thing, but said "people do not have been shouting about it too much in the northern countries."

"One should instead look at the women in the developing countries and help them."

Regarding nuclear power, the king said, "One has to go that way now since there is nothing else. If a new method is found, fine, but I can't see any other way right now."

The king said, however, he would be reluctant as a monarch to dedicate to "a dedicated" such a "nation because of his strong environmental convictions."

During the rare royal interview at the Stockholm palace, Carl Gustaf said he was glad to be the king of Sweden, but admitted he sometimes wished to change jobs.

Probe financing sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It could cost more than a third of a billion dollars, a probe which leaked a CBS intelligence report to secret New York Times columnist Daniel Schorr.

The chairman of the House ethics committee is asking $50,000 to create a staff of investigators to look into the disclosure and publication of the report of the House Select Committee on a Intelligence, which subsequently was published in the weekly New York Village Voice.

Rep. John Flynt, D-Ga., said Tuesday the staff would be between 15 and 40 members and might spend 10 months on its probe.

He said the $50,000 he requested would provide for "1,100 man days of investigation."

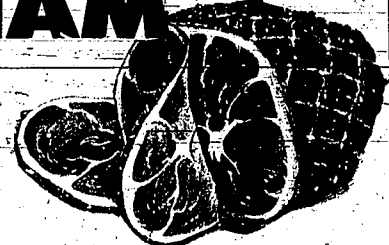

"The basic idea was how long the whistle-blower said, 'It might be (to the House Rules Committee) mean the cleared for a floor vote a separate resolution stating Flynt's ethics panel would subpoena power to call witnesses and seek any documents might need.'"

The House ordered the inquiry after Schorr admitted he forwarded a draft of the report to the Village Voice.

Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., said at the rules committee hearing that he doubted reports could be forced to reveal their sources.

Flow plans spark clash

BOISE — The Idaho supreme court may end up deciding whether minimum stream flows should be adopted to protect fish, wildlife and recreation in the Snake River basin.

Part of a series of agricultural growth would be restricted to 2 million acres by the year 2025 in order to protect fish and wildlife in the basin under the proposed plan.

But the Department of Water Administration currently has no power to deny an application for water use in order to preserve minimum flow.

To change this situation, the draft water plan proposes legislation to provide the director of the Department of Water Resources the authority to consider the public interest as identified in the plan.

The state water plan is scheduled to be adopted at the end of this year, following informational sessions and public hearings before the Idaho Water Resources Board.

The specific legislative proposals under the plan then will be presented to the 1977 Idaho Legislature. But a provision would allow the legislature to "pass" minimum flow legislation.

Keth Higginson, director of the Department of Water Administration, said that in this situation, he would continue to issue water permits without considering the need to maintain minimum flow as established under the plan.

But Higginson said that in order to force the Department to consider minimum flow, he would have to have no specific direction from the legislature giving it the authority to consider minimum stream flow needs.

Eventually, he said, the Idaho supreme court would have to decide between two apparently conflicting sections of the state constitution.

One section, adopted in 1964, states that a water resource board shall have the power to formulate and implement a state water plan for optimum development of water resources.

Persons bringing the lawsuit could contend that this means that once the Idaho Water Resources Board adopts the plan, the director of the Department of Water Administration would have the duty to follow it, since the constitution gives the board the authority to implement it.

This provision, however, appears to be circumscribed by a final passage which states that the board's powers are "all under such laws as may be prescribed by the legislature."

Even so, Higginson said he would expect a lawsuit against the department to force it to abide by the plan. The Supreme Court, he believes, would have to judge between the constitutional provision giving the water resource board the authority and another provision guaranteeing the right of the public to appropriate unappropriated waters.

This other provision states, "the right to divert and appropriate the unappropriated waters of any natural stream to beneficial uses shall never be denied except that the state may regulate and limit the use thereof for power purposes."

If minimum stream flow legislation is adopted, Higginson maintains, this constitutional provision regarding appropriations would be applied, since minimum flows would actually be appropriated and therefore unavailable as unappropriated water.

But without the minimum stream flow legislation, the court likely would have to decide the apparent clash between the constitutional provisions, Higginson said.

A bill recently passed by the legislature, however, would prevent the water plan from being adopted until the legislature has approved it.

AF Dam critics given deadline

Nelson also covered the changes made in the contracts since the bond repayment contracts went to elections in January. Those elections resulted in approval by 99 per cent of the space holdings in the American Falls Dam, but dissidents contend that the allocation of costs has been substantially amended by these changes.

The changes are dated Feb. 20. They cover possible claims against the Bureau of Reclamation and the possibility of the construction costs exceeding the estimated ceiling of $14.7 million.

Under them, if additional bonds are issued to complete the new dam, water delivery cannot be withheld from a speecheholder for "failure to execute a supplemental contract covering the excess bonds" until it is judicially determined that the speecheholder is obligated to pay its proportionate share of the total cost.

Dissidents have objected to the cost of the project and the fact that there is no effective ceiling on those costs under a three-man authority where litigation districts can be outvoted by Idaho Power Co. and American Falls Reservoir District No. 1.

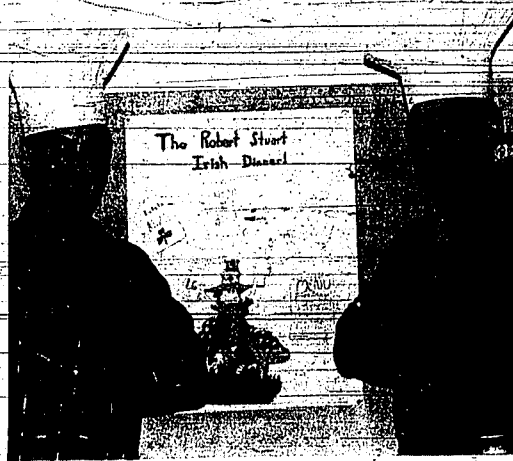

The changes also cover costs of an award of damages to a non-participating water user whose space is permanently terminated.

It provides that money in the Idaho Power Co. construction fund, if available, will first be used to pay such damages, awarded by the court. Otherwise the money "shall be reimbursed as part of the speecheholder replacement dam operations and maintenance payments from speecheholders."

The original contract provisions were less detailed on damage awards, with American Falls Reservoir District No. 1 holding the bureau harmless from damage claims. Dissidents had contended that it was arguable that other speecheholders were not responsible under those provisions for repayment of the amount awarded for damages.

All three attorneys discussed various aspects of the joint disident position paper in line with a plan laid out during their meeting in Idaho Falls Monday.

Holden particularly stressed the provision of the enabling legislation passed by Congress in 1974 that placed the dam under the jurisdiction of the Federal Power Commission.

Blaine avalanches warned

There are many precautions to take, to avoid an avalanche, however, the safest measure is to stay home during severe avalanche warnings to travel only on the low foothills.

If you are caught in an avalanche, discard all equipment, make swimming motions, try to lay on top of the slide and get your hands in front of your face.

Use common sense when out in the winter snow. Although many precautions can be taken, according to Harper, there are no rules.

Proposed pipeline called 'no threat'

BY GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A proposed coal slurry pipeline through southern Idaho poses no permanent threat to agricultural lands, according to the public relations director of Northwest Pipeline Corp.

Joseph Valley, says the proposed 1,100-mile pipeline through southern Idaho near Burley and Boise would have "no permanent effect on the land at all." He admitted, however, that the pipeline company would retain access rights to crossings on private land.

According to Valley, two or three bills are now before Congress to allow coal slurry pipelines which could carry coal dust mixed with water to power plants and other industrial uses, the right of eminent domain such as already applies to natural gas pipelines, railroads, other utilities and some public agencies.

Eminent domain gives the carrier the legal sanction to force the sale of private land for a reasonable price to assure the installation of the pipeline or other facility.

Northwest has proposed two alternate routes for a slurry pipeline across Idaho from Wyoming coal fields to the Columbia River in Oregon. One route would cross central Idaho and miss southern Idaho altogether. The second route bypasses the central valley, but the construction of the proposed Pioneer coal-fired generating plant near Boise by Idaho Power Co. would cross through southern Idaho, passing near Burley and Boise.

Whether there is a slurry pipeline at all depends on whether Congress grants the eminent domain.

Valley said the bills now before Congress are being opposed by railroad companies which also are in the coal carrying business.

The advantages of the slurry pipeline, Valley said, is that it would provide a continuous and reliable supply of coal at a cheaper deliver rate than rail rates.

TF man arrested

TWIN FALLS — Jerry Duane Cromer, 39, Twin Falls, was arrested by Twin Falls police Wednesday night on charges of leaving the scene of an accident and while being booked in to jail, was also charged with illegal possession of a controlled substance.

Police charged Cromer with striking a vehicle owned by Miller Carter, Jerome, which was parked in the alley behind 312 1/2 Ave. W. About $800 damage was caused, officers said.

Following Cromer's arrest and while he was being booked into jail, officers found a plastic bag containing marijuana in his pocket.

Gem court eyes TF well death

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Idaho Supreme Court Justices sitting in Twin Falls today heard an appeal in a Twin Falls county case involving a half-acre tract which was lowered into a deep well in an attempt to drill for oil.

Appellants in the case are Martin Anderson and Bernice Boyer, parents of the victim, Richard Anderson of Idaho. He was 26 when he died May 2, 1974 in a well while employed by Gem Energy, a Boise, Idaho, oil and gas company.

The plaintiffs charged Gemley with negligence in the death of their son, charging he let the man go into the 265 foot deep hole in an attempt to weld the broken drill bit which was blocking further work. Gemley offered $200 to anyone who would make the attempt and Anderson agreed to be lowered down the shaft.

A jury verdict ruled Gemley was not negligent. Following arguments, the Supreme Court may consider such issues as whether or not the jury was properly instructed regarding Anderson's status as an employee of Gemley, and the fact the lower court said if Anderson volunteered for the assignment, knowing the dangers, then his parents were not in a position to recover damages.

Arguments were also heard this morning in the appeal of the University of Utah Hospital Medical Center, Sharon Ann Verikas, indigent patient, Peter and Terri Verikas, indigent parents, and Roger Duke, lawyer and doctor, Hayden, in a case against the Minnoka County clerk and commissioners.

The case involves refusal of the county officials to issue a certificate of indigency and thereby be required to pay medical expenses for the two infants at the University of Utah Hospital.

On the afternoon agenda today was an appeal of the Idaho Association of Public Health Technicians and eight individual technicians against the Idaho Board of Dental Examiners. The Twin Falls county dental technicians certify as plaintiffs in the suit, charged the state board, with denying them the right to earn a living.

Judge James Cunningham dismissed the suit, holding the state act is unconstitutional. The technicians have appealed, saying the state board maliciously harassed and invaded privacy of the denturists.

Two cases are scheduled before the Supreme Court in Twin Falls Friday. The first appeal is by the estate of Gerardo, Victor Guzman and Raymond Rudy Vigil, convicted of robbery in Cassia County.

The defendants' appellants contend they did not receive a fair trial and their conviction resulted from an all white jury hearing the case when they are all Chicano-Americans.

In the final appeal for the Twin Falls session, William Avery versus B and H Toilet Rentals and the Department of Employment, is asking reconsideration of his original action to get compensation, following his employment termination. The district court ruled he was not entitled to such payment because he was fired for insubordination by the employer.

The next long session of the Supreme Court in Twin Falls began Monday with three appeals heard each day. The court justices will deliberate over arguments presented here and return a decision at a later time in each of the cases.

Advice heard on rim use

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls County Joint Planning Council, received recommendations from the Rim Advisory Committee, HACL, at a special meeting Wednesday.

A complete presentation, similar to ones previously given to county and city planners last year was repeated by HACL for the benefit of the joint council which must now consider rim use problems in connection with its work on a comprehensive plan for Twin Falls County and the eight communities within its borders.

The HACL met with the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission in November. HACL recommendations were debated then by county planners in an effort to resolve controversial portions of the HACL's recommendations.

Wednesday night the joint council heard the results of the County Planning and Zoning Commission's efforts in this regard and will now have to decide whether to adopt that body's findings or to make additional or different recommendations to be used in its comprehensive plan.

Joint council chairman Ann Cover said after the meeting she would like to have a review with the county zoners and planners have already done as well as review what has already been written to try to come up with recommendations.

The position of the joint council is not yet firm on rim use. It will recommend for the comprehensive plan and last night's meeting did not result in any firm decisions or commitments, Cover said.

Slurry lines or railroad?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Interior Secretary James Watt said Wednesday the controversy over whether to transport coal by slurry pipeline rather than by railroad must be solved with "free market decisions, freely made by investors."

Watt's proposals are being considered to build slurry pipelines, through which a mixture of water and coal can be moved great distances, to transport coal from the Northern Great Plains to electric generating plants in the South and West.

Railroads oppose the slurry lines, saying they would seriously hurt their freight business.

In an address to the Calvin Bullock Forum, Kleepe said he views slurry lines "as a supplement to, not a replacement for, transportation of coal from the mines to the point of consumption."

"There are strong environmental arguments in favor of slurry lines," he added. "The license of the firm was renewed. Later, Levery, said his technical staff started checking the investments of Sierra Life.

He said the staff found that more than two per cent of its assets were invested in a single mortgage, which is contrary to Nevada law. When adjustments were made to the company's portfolio, Levery said Sierra Life did not meet the capital and surplus money requirements of Nevada. He said he issued his order because it failed to file any facts on which a defense could be built. They both contend that the two per cent mortgage required Nevada does not apply in since the firm is headquartered in Idaho which allows an insurance company to put up to seven per cent of its assets in a single mortgage.

Jordan asked Levery if during his examination he ever called the company for an explanation or to see if the mortgages in question had been sold or changed. Levery said he had not contacted the company at any time during the examination of the financial records. Information to the insurance commissioner's office here. However, he said Sierra Life was not required to provide additional data during the year on its investments.

Sierra Life had $1.4 million in bond built against Levery and Nevada State Insurance Commissioner Dick Rittman in federal court in Boise for statements allegedly made about the financial condition of the company.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) - Prices opened lower Thursday in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average was off 13.73 points to 977.80 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 236 to 120, among the 50 issues comprising the tape. Analysts said the diminished volume lately demonstrated the market was laboring after its sharp run up in the first two months of the year. Also, they said it showed uncertainty about interest rates.

Analysts said the news could encourage some investors. The Labor Department reported the February Wholesale Price Index fell 0.3 percent, a sharp drop in farm prices contributed strongly to the fourth consecutive overall monthly decline. Analysts said the news could encourage some investors.

Guarded truck moves silver dollar collection

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A heavily guarded Brinks truck left Reno Tuesday morning with what may be the last major shipment of silver from the Comstock lode — the LaVerre Redfield silver dollar collection.

A-Mark Coins of Beverly Hills, Calif., bought the collection Jan. 27 for $7.3 million. The dates and mint marks of the coins have never been made public, but many of the coins are believed to bear the Carson City mint mark.

Many of the 407,283 mostly uncirculated cartwheels were still in their original U.S. Mint bags. Gary Grodon, president of A-Mark, said it took nearly a month to count and package the coins for shipment.

Gordon said the coins were removed from the bank bags and checked in plastic tubes, each holding 20 coins. The tubes were put in boxes and the boxes in new bags for shipment.

Tuesday, under Gordon's watchful eye, Brinks guards hauled 14 carts loaded with the 60 pound bags, a total of 12½ tons of silver, out of First National Bank's vault and onto a large armored truck.

Gordon said most of the coins will be sold to distributors in lots over the next two to three years to keep from flooding the market. He said, however, A-Mark is planning to sell individual silver dollars to persons who wish to buy a souvenir "Redfield dollar."

He said the company, one of the largest coin wholesalers in the nation, expects to realize more than 100 per cent profit.

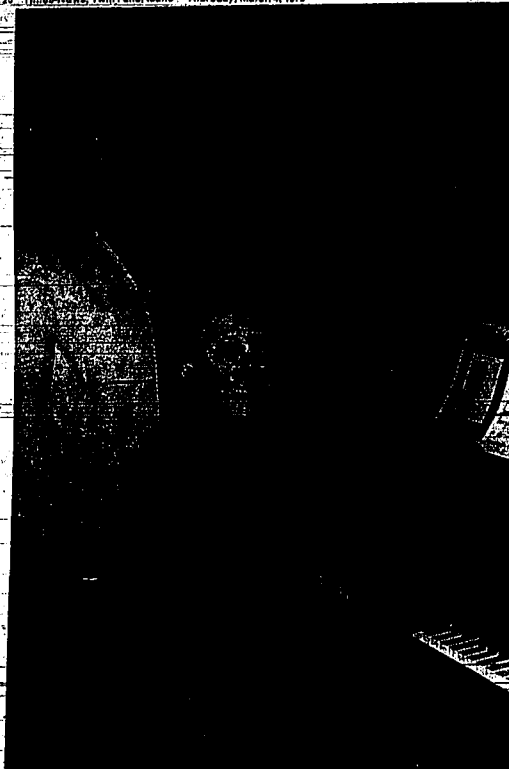

That profit would have been greater, however, if Rare Coin Galleries had not forced the sale open for bidding in Washoe District Court. A-Mark had signed a private sale agreement with the Redfield estate for $25 million last year.

Then Rare Coin Galleries offered to up the ante to $6.5 million.

Despite A-Mark's protests, Washoe District Judge John Gabrielli voided the earlier contract and threw the collection open for bidding. But he refused to make public a detailed inventory of the collection, leaving A-Mark the only wholesaler who knew exactly what was in the collection. A-Mark won the bidding with a cashier's check for $7.3 million.

Gordon said he still did not want to say exactly what was in the collection. He said there are more than 100 different dates and mint marks.

MEN'S PHYSICAL FITNESS

Business and industry across the country are spending millions of dollars for facilities and equipment to help their employees maintain physical fitness. The Magic Valley YMCA with its mini-gym and indoor, heated swimming pool has the facilities to help the men of the Magic Valley keep physically fit. The "Y" offers a class three times a week from 5:30 P.M. to 7:00 P.M. and plans to expand the program as more men become involved. The modest $35 per year membership fee means that a man can exercise three times a week for a whole year for 67¢ a week. The mini-gym makes it possible for a man to jog, do calisthenics, lift weights, ride an exercycle and more, and then relax in the heated swimming pool. A perfect way to close out the day and become more physically fit.

VOLLEYBALL

Through the fall and winter months the "Y" has volleyball programs for men and young couples. The men's volleyball program starts in September and is sponsored in conjunction with the Twin Falls Recreation Department. The teams are made up of from 8 to 12 players and they play once a week at Robert Stuart Jr. High School.

The couples volleyball program is also organized in September and by October the teams are established. Couples interested, and not on a team are most welcome. The goal of this program is to give as many couples as possible the opportunity of playing, having fun and making new friends.

Milk support hiked

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butts Wednesday announced a 3.3-cent-a-gallon increase in government milk price supports, effective April.

Administration experts said the increase probably would prevent any general retail price declines for dairy products in the foreseeable future.

Butts' action carried out a pledge he made to Congress as part of a successful effort to forestall passage of legislation calling for a steeper price hike.

The agriculture secretary, in addition to announcing the increase in support prices, also said he will review the support next month — instead of semi-annually — and will adjust prices again if necessary to assure an adequate supply of milk.

Soviets confirm sugar estimates

NEW YORK (CNS)—USDA estimates of the 1975-76 sugar production and import needs of the USSR, which caused a stir in the New York market three weeks ago, have been confirmed in an official USSR economic report released at the 25th Communist Party congress in Moscow.

The report, which was introduced by prime minister Kosygin at the Kremlin, listed the total sugar being crop for the last five years at 380 million tons. Earlier soviet reports carried the total production from 1971 through 1974-75 at 313.5 million tons.

Sugar sources said, which would mean the 1975-76 crop would mean the USSR would total 66.4 million tons, the lowest since 1963.

More cold in store for MV area

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley-Rupert Area:

Clearing this afternoon. Some night and morning fog or low clouds, becoming mostly fair Friday. Slow warming overnight Friday.

Overnight lows 5 to 10. Saturday's outlook, fair and warmer.

Halley, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley:

Mostly fair with slow warming through Friday. Highs Friday in the mid 20s to mid 30s. Overnight lows zero to 10 below. The outlook for Saturday, fair and slightly warmer.

Synopsis:

Northwesterly flow and building high pressure dominated the weather pattern at the surface and aloft this morning. This has effectively blocked all Pacific storms from entering Idaho and will cause them to move into Canada.

Most Idaho stations were reporting clear skies, this morning with the exception of fog and low clouds in the Magic Valley and the upper Snake River Valley. This helped keep most lows in the teens in the Magic Valley this morning. A few isolated snow flurries were also reported in the Magie Valley. Temperatures are expected to return to normal by the end of the weekend as high pressure continues to build over the Pacific northwest. The extended outlook for Saturday through Monday calls for a little warmer over the weekend, but with a chance of precipitation Sunday. A little cooler again Monday. Highs will be mostly in the 40s with overnight lows in the 20s.

Archeologists boost Owyhee bighorn herd

BOISE (UPI)—Archeological findings that bighorn sheep lived in Owyhee County for 2,000 years encouraged government agencies to start what has become a successful program to reestablish herds in the desert canyon.

The Idaho Department of Fish and Game and the Bureau of Land Management started 15 years ago to reestablish bighorns in the rugged Canyon and plateau in Owyhee County, Idaho, after they had been absent for 50 years.

The herd has been large enough in recent years to allow strictly controlled hunting.

When Deer Creek Cave on the West Fork Owyhee River was unearthed, archeologists found Native Americans had lived in the area for more than 5,000 years. Bones these people discarded showed a staple in their diets had been bighorn sheep.

Other excavations across Owyhee County and northern Nevada added to the findings that bighorn were an integral part of historic life. But the animals began to disappear in the late 1800s.

The gold and silver rushes brought more people to the area and with them came domestic sheep and cattle. Range deterioration and poornutrition may have made the sheep more susceptible to diseases.

The Fish and Game Department in reporting on the reestablishment program said "whole bands of bighorns died, probably from scabies—a mite believed introduced to the area by domestic sheep. One of the worst epidemics recorded was the winter of 1884-85.

Some of the last verified sightings of bighorns were around Red Canyon—in the Juniper Mountain area in 1915 and in Lower Butte Creek in 1920.

The last ram reported in the county was killed on Little Creek in 1927.

In 1962 the department and BLM began the reestablishment program, using California Bighorns because they were rarer than the Rocky Mountain bighorns and because their habitat needs were available in parts of Owyhee Canyon.

Paul Hanna, a department biologist, said Idaho's reestablishment program, although limited in scope, has been very successful.

"Two separate populations have been established, and the potential is good for more bands in the more remote canyon country where the bighorns do not conflict with today's cattle operations."

The first bighorns arrived from British Columbia and were released in the East Fork of the Owyhee River. Because of the success of the initial reestablishment, another site was located and in 1967 bighorns were released in Little Jacks Creek Canyon.

The first controlled hunt on the bighorn rams was in 1969, Hanna said, and today there are 10 controlled hunt permits available.

The department's management objectives include cataloging suitable habitat for establishing new areas; extending the distribution of bighorn into historic habitat where suitable conditions still exist; transplanting sheep from Idaho stock and when possible from other stocks.

In addition, bands now in the county will be managed first to increase their numbers and second to provide more hunting opportunities.

When bands can stand removal, surplus sheep should be available to other western states.

Hanna said transplanting sheep to new areas in southwest Idaho must be an integral part of sheep management because "we have found the bighorns reluctant to pioneer new areas on their own."

The East Fork sheep, for example, have dispersed only 15 miles from the release site in 12 years.

"As far as we can determine, the Little Jacks Creek band has not moved more than seven miles from the release site in eight years."

The BLM has agreed to "encourage the reestablishment of big horn sheep in their habitats found suitable and where it is compatible with other resource uses."

Interest rates may be starting to rise

WASHINGTON - After more than three months of decline the price of money or stability, interest rates seem to be starting what some analysts believe will be a gradual, but steady and prolonged rise. The rise will be most apparent in short-term rates... those on obligations that come due to a year or two. But there will be some impact on bond yields and mortgage rates... only a marked braking in what was once widely expected to be a fairly significant decline.

subtle thing, visible largely to professional traders in Treasury securities... But this is the way basic changes in rate direction classically first materialize. The new trend is being engineered by the credit-controlling Federal Reserve System which through its control of the amount of money banks can create... For many months now, the Federal Reserve has been keeping the Federal funds rate at 4 7/8 percent.

The reaction described in the credit markets... Prices of bonds, notes, and Treasury bills declined... What surprised the market, though, was not the direction of the move, but its timing. Bond and money market analysts were generally assuring that the next move in interest rates would be upward. For one thing, the economy is clearly doing well these days...

Supply contract termination OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Supreme Court ruled 6-0 Wednesday that the Federal Power Commission may authorize natural gas producers to enter into long-term supply contracts which can be abandoned after a fixed time without further FPC hearings.

abandonment is not in the public interest. Justices Potter Stewart, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and John Paul Stevens did not participate in the decision.

The court reversed a decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals to seek FPC approval of long-term contracts providing set price increases over the span of the agreement with pipeline companies and utilities. The increases would be filed with the FPC but no future hearings normally would be required.

In addition, the producer could pull out of the contracts and abandon production after a date specified in the contract if the operation proved unprofitable.

N.M. 'rebels' to miss game

ALBUQUERQUE, (UPI) — New Mexico basketball coach Nora Ellenberger announced Wednesday that the five black players who demanded his dismissal and cut practice this week will not play in the season's final game Saturday against Texas at Paso.

"Our standard rule is that if you don't practice, you don't play," said Ellenberger. "As concerns anything beyond Saturday, I have not talked individually to all the players yet. I will not deal with the future past Saturday at this time. It's Wednesday and I've got a game to play."

The five players, all underclassmen—guards Ricky Williams and Dale Slaughter, forwards George Berry and Larry Gray and center Mike Patterson—along with former team member Larry Forte, missed practice Wednesday. All except Slaughter are starters for the 15-11 Lobos.

On Monday, they said they would not return to the UNM squad next season unless Ellenberger and chief assistant John Whisenand were fired, citing Ellenberger's treatment toward them, his slow-down style of play and the amount of playing time each had received.

Ricks, Cards open C playoffs tonight

Ricks College and North Idaho face a do-or-die basketball confrontation at 7 p.m. today at the CSI gymnasium. The two leading teams will meet in a one-game playoff to see which one advances to the regional playoffs which open here Friday.

Until that day ends the first-round pairings won't be known, though three of the teams now are finalized. The Ricks-North Idaho winner will play Oregon champion the Community College at 7 p.m. Friday night with College of Southern Idaho, ranked No. 7 in the final poll, taking North Union of Albany in the nightcap at 8 p.m. Friday.

CSU booster president, Dr. Robert Edgeway, issued an edict Wednesday evening calling on all CSI fans to wear gold or yellow to the games to show their support for the Eagles. The Ricks-North Idaho battle should come in near blood-letting. North Idaho Coach, Rolfe Williams wasn't overly pleased with the officiating his Cardinals received during a losing effort at Reburg.

Near was Ricks Coach Glen Dalling of last Saturday's defeat at Reburg. "I feel we can beat them (North Idaho) on a neutral court with neutral referees. We will be there to win Thursday," he was quoted in a Ricks College news release.

Linn-Benton comes into the regional with a Cinderella tag, having placed fourth in the conference and then grabbed the runner-up spot in the final. They are expected to play at 7 p.m. Friday night with a guard at 5-11, Wagner, their 65 center, is rated an excellent player.

Regional tournament tickets are available at Buhl Sav-Mor Drug, Prescott's in Jerome, and Idaho First National Bank, Blue Lakes Branch; Twin Falls Bank and Trust downtown and Shirley and Wyatt's.

Louisville favored in metro six meet

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Forget those glossy season records 17th-ranked Louisville and 18th-ranked Cincinnati are bringing into the Metro Six Conference basketball tournament opening tonight.

Four of the six teams in the new basketball conference, all that matters now is what happens during the next three nights in 19,500-seat Freedom Hall because they will determine which team represents the league in the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Top-seeded Cincinnati, 22-5, and second-seeded Louisville, 20-6, earned first-round byes with their records. So they will await the outcome of tonight's games to learn their opponents for the semifinals Friday night.

Fourth-seeded Tulane, 18-4, faces fifth-seeded Georgia Tech, 15-1, at 7 p.m. (EST) and third-seeded Memphis State, 19-7, battles sixth-seeded St. Louis, 13-13, at 9 p.m.

Cincinnati will meet the Tulane-Georgia Tech winner and Louisville will play the Memphis-St. Louis victor Friday night. Gale Catlett, Cincinnati's assistant coach, said there is little doubt in his mind that Louisville will emerge the champion Saturday night.

"You can't beat having a homecourt advantage in a tourney like this," Catlett said. "But I still think Memphis has by far the best talent in the conference."

Memphis is the hottest team entering the tourney as Coach Wayne Yates' Tigers finished their season with a nine-game winning streak.

Baseball contract talks drone on

MIAMI BEACH, (UPI) — Representatives of the major league players and owners met for two and a half hours Wednesday and the only thing they could agree on was that there was no significant progress in resolving the problems that have shut down baseball's training camps.

The major portion of the two and a half hours was spent in discussing a new proposal by the players, who have been locked out of camp.

But the questions of liability and retroactivity continue to plague the talks.

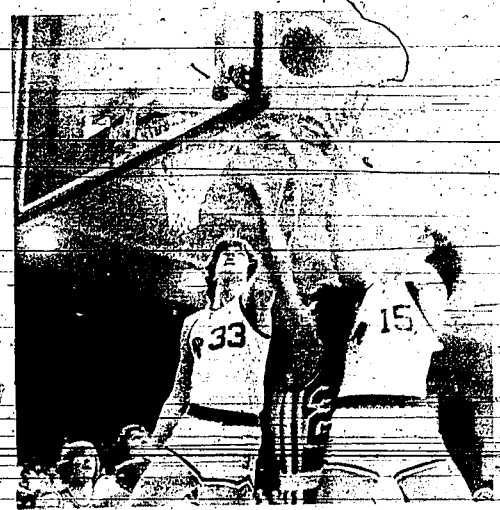

The players maintain they have the right to play out their option after one year's service, on the basis of an arbitrator's decision in the Andy Messersmith-Dave McNally case, and Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Players Association, says he is not within his rights to ask the players to give up what they already have.

The owners maintain they cannot live with such a situation, that it would be too chaotic and too costly. They suggest that any new agreement should be retroactive to include all those presently under contract and wipe away the one-and-one rule.

The players have under the Messersmith-McNally ruling. As a counter-proposal to a recent owners' proposal in which free agency would be granted to a player after nine years (eight years plus the option year), the players suggested a six-year plan: Any player with six years of major league service can become a free agent, provided he informs his club in writing of his wish to do so a year in advance.

"They won't even discuss it," Miller said of the owners' reaction to the proposal.

Buhl thumps Wood River 53-34 for A-2 title, right to defend state laurels

Out-numbered, out-jumped SANDWICHED between two Wood River Wolverines, an unidentified Buhl Indian lost this rebound battle to Robin Tracy (33) and Darryl Worl (15). Indians won to clinch their second straight district A-2 championship.

Sloan adds pressure to Terps on eve of Atlantic coach meet

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Norm Sloan isn't going to say anything that will ease the pressure on Maryland to win the first Atlantic Coast Conference tournament ever played outside of North Carolina.

Instead, he added a little of his own Wednesday. He picked Buhl-ranked Maryland as the No. 2 team in the tournament, ahead of his own 20th-ranked North Carolina State team, which—with Virginia—was the only ACC school to lose both its regular season games with Maryland.

Sloan, whose hopes for a berth in the NCAA playoffs—wide on an up-swing—of Maryland in the tournament—that begins Thursday, said the Terps would have to prove if their past complaints about always playing the tournament in its state were valid.

"When the tournament was in North Carolina some of the Maryland players made a point of saying that because it was there they didn't win," he said after the Wolfpack worked out at the Capital Centre Wednesday afternoon. "Now that it's here it puts the pressure on them to produce."

"Or we may find out that what they were saying was true."

Sloan picked North Carolina, which drew a first round bye by winning the ACC regular season championship, as the favorite and Maryland as No. 2.

"I've got to go with Maryland next because of their won and lost record. They seem also to have come up with a lot of momentum recently."

Maryland coach Lefty Driesell said he didn't believe his team would face undue pressure just because the tournament was out of North Carolina for the first time in its 22 year history.

"I don't feel any pressure," he said. "I don't think they (the Terps) do."

But the only ACC school virtually guaranteed of a spot in the NCAA playoffs was North Carolina. Even if they lose in the semifinals Friday, as league champion Maryland did last year, their overall record—2nd-No. 3 national ranking would carry weight with NCAA tournament selectors.

If all goes according to form, a key contest would be a N.C. State-Maryland semifinal clash, with the winner aiming to advance at least the league's second NCAA playoff bid.

But Sloan said none of the schools would be a pushover in a league that did not have any team with an overall losing record.

He said he didn't think "there's any chance of anybody beating past anybody else in the first round of this tournament." He defended his team which he criticized for losing its last three regular season games, all in the conference.

"All of a sudden people starting making us heavy favorites. I'm not surprised to lose a game to any school in this conference. I was disappointed but not surprised. But I think we have the right to think we can win any game we play."

The tournament, which will be played before sellout crowds of more than 19,500 begins at 1 p.m. Thursday—with Maryland-Texas (21-5) meeting, last place Duke (3-9, 13-31), at 3 p.m. N.C. State (7-5, 19-7) plays Virginia (4-8, 15-11) and, at 5 p.m., Clemson (5-7, 17-9) plays Wake Forest (6-7, 19-9).

The Clemson-Wake Forest winner meets top-seeded North Carolina (11-1, 24-2) Friday at 7 p.m.—with other two winners playing at 9 p.m.

Defending champion Buhl, with Craig Kaster the catalyst, smothered Wood River 53-34 for the A-2 district cage championship Wednesday night.

The victory gave Buhl the right to return to Pocatello next week and defend their state A-2 championship.

Wood River will travel to Mountain Home at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday with a second chance of winning a berth in the state tournament. The Wolverines will play the third district ( Boise area) runner-up in that inter-district playoff.

It wasn't a lively game, Buhl played the "no matter what happens, we're still going to win" and Wood River replied with "we know it."

Both teams opened with zone defenses although early on Buhl switched to a man for a time. Offensively, neither team tried to speed it up. Buhl, periodically on fast-breaks, only Wood River's movement was hurt by the lack of Craig Falco, senior guard, who broke his wrist Tuesday night.

Kaster, a lanky 6-3 senior, scored 14 of his 18 points in the second half to preserve a lead the Indians built up largely in the final two minutes of the second period.

The teams basically probed each other in the first period with Chris Bell and Steve Hill giving Buhl the last four points and an 8-4 lead.

Twice in the second quarter Buhl extended its five points but in each case Wood River inches back. The last time came at 15 after Wood River's Randy Linderman had hit three points. Kaster replied for Buhl and Hill reeled off two straight-points, the first two on a cripple off-a-steel. Ben Buckendorf added two free throws for the first 10-point lead of the night with Darryl Worl pulling Wood River within eight at intermission.

Robb Tracy trimmed Buhl to six in open the second half but after a basket trade Kaster hit four straight points. House managed one for the Wolverines before Kaster, Hill and Brad Hellwig wound up the third period with six points and a 35-21 Buhl lead.

Worl got the first four points of the last period before Kaster and Bell nullified those and Buhl raced easily into the victory.

GF nips Kimberly at gun to clinch trip to state

Tony Willis banked in a short jumper at the final gun Wednesday night to lift Glens Ferry past Kimberly 56-54 and clinch a trip to the A-3 state tournament.

Willis' bucket ended a hectic final six minutes that saw Kimberly erase an eight-point deficit and force three ties.

Meanwhile, Shoshone edged Westside 73-67 in overtime to stay alive in the district playoffs.

Shoshone advances to the loser bracket semi-finals against Kimberly at 8:30 p.m. Thursday night, following two Jayvee preliminary games. The winner of that one will clinch a spot in the state meet, opening next Thursday at the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium, and move against Glens Ferry in the championship game Friday at Wendell.

Glens Ferry now must lose twice to blow the championship and the right to play the feature game of the state tournament first night. The runner-up team will play Thursday afternoon.

Kimberly, behind early points from Steve Fullmer, Vern Exner and Kendall Luff — plus the rebounding of Ed Coats — led through the first 10 minutes in its slowdown with Glens Ferry.

Their last lead came at 19:16 before Kevin King and Dan Sims pushed Glens Ferry up 21-18 and the Pilots were ahead to stay.

Glens Ferry could never put the Bulldogs away, however, as the team fought through one to five-point leads and those ties.

Kimberly fell back 31-26 early in the second half but then flurried, taking its last lead at 32:31 on a Luff field goal. Sims immediately hit twice for Glens Ferry with Coats cutting the deficit to one again from the foul line.

Glens Ferry's chance to break it came in the fourth period when Sims opened with a three-point play and two free throws and Tom Wicker converted a triple after a King steal.

But the Pilots then became too cautious offensively and Kimberly, with Randy Glens leading the ball hawking, came up with three straight turnovers.

Fullmer trimmed Glens Ferry's lead to 46-40 with 6:10 to play and Bennett then ran in four straight free throws. Fullmer tied it with 4:30 remaining and the teams went through another tie at 4:58.

King and Sims showed Glens Ferry up 52-48 with Exner and Luff replying for the Bulldogs.

King's bucket made it 54-52 with 24 seconds left but Kimberly showed good poise in getting the ball down the baseline to Luff who tied it again with five seconds.

After a time out, Glens Ferry hustled the ball downcourt and tossed it to Willis who appeared more willing to pass than shoot but ended up being the hero.

A premature slowdown hurt Westside's chances of getting past Shoshone, the Pirates taking a six-point lead with three minutes left and going into a deep delay. But they couldn't handle the ball well enough and a couple of turnovers proved all Shoshone needed to eke out the victory.

Westside trailed to a 22-16 first-quarter lead and then posted a rarity when McDermott, a 6-1 center, scored all 17 of the Pirates' second-quarter points for a 39-38 intermission advantage. But McDermott managed just six free throws thereafter.

Westside entered the fourth period six points up, wasted that and then rebuilt it in time to go into its delay.

Shoshone rallied into a tie, left behind and then tied it five seconds before game's end to force the overtime.

Meservy started the overtime with a field goal and Shoshone retrieved the ball and became cautious. Westside had to start fouling and the Indians, with Jason Webb hitting three and Meservy two, picked up six free throws to preserve the victory.

Clemson still will be trying

LANDOVER, Md., (UPI)—The Clemson Tigers know they can win all the marbles at this week's Atlantic Coast Conference championship tournament and still wind up going no where in the pursuit of the NCAA title because of their probationary status.

But Clemson coach Bill Foster believes the situation will have little impact on how his team fares in the pressurized tournament which begins Thursday with a tripleheader that matches the Tigers against Wake Forest in an opening round game.

"It's one of those things," Foster said of the probation which has kept Clemson from any NCAA tournament post-season play.

Richfield unbeaten, Carey ousted in A-4

GOODING — Richfield strode into the fourth district A-4 basketball finals Wednesday night by downing Dietrich 52-44 while Camas County ousted Carey 55-53 to keep its faint title hopes alive.

Richfield advanced to the final Friday night at Gooding high school gymnasium awaiting a challenge either from Dietrich or Camas County. The two unbeaten teams will meet at 8 p.m. Thursday. The winner would have to "knock off" Richfield Friday and Saturday nights to wrest away the title and a trip to the state tournament next week.

Dietrich defeated the Mushers in the second night of the tournament after Camas County had topped the Devils twice during the season.

Richfield maintained its undefeated boast with some free throw sharp-shooting in the fourth quarter.

Neither team shot particularly well during the game. Camas County managed only two free throws while Richfield had eight — five of those coming in the final minutes.

Richfield bounced up to an early 6-0 lead but Dietrich closed to within two by the end of the first period and it seemed the real of the way.

Richfield took a 35-34 edge into the last period with both teams leading about equal time. But in the last four minutes Richfield moved into a slight lead and held it.

In the first game, Carey fought from behind in the first half, built up a five-point lead during the third quarter but threatened when (Manning) just two-field goals in the last period.

Carey still managed to keep ahead in the final quarter until about the last two minutes. Keith East had probably his best performance of the season as he hit six of his eight points in the comeback effort and

Player returns to U.S. pro golf tour

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—Gary Player, the compact South African who plays barely a third of the U.S. tour because he likes to explore all over the world, has just about adjusted again to stateside play.

"And that has to make the man in black one of the favorites in the $200,000 Citrus Open which begins today.

"I think I've been tougher for me to play this tour than any man," said Player who has been back in the states just a couple of weeks. "Just about the time I get into a good groove, it's time to leave again."

Player came over earlier than usual this year to prepare for last weekend's Tournament Players Championship. He made his U.S. debut a week earlier at Los Angeles where a pair of closing 9s gave him third and he also had a final round of 71 in the TPC to tie for ninth.

Kapp takes stand in suit against NFL

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—So far so good for Joe Kapp in his damages trial in Federal court, but the worst is yet to come, and it might begin for the former star quarterback today.

Wednesday, Kapp, who is seeking damages from the New England Patriots and the National Football League because he claims they prevented him from honoring a three-year agreement in 1971 and in effect deprived him from making a living as a player, was on the witness stand for 2½ hours.

That was as the first witness for the plaintiff, that is in his own behalf. So things went smoothly and easily as attorney Patrick

Hanger took him through his career step by step until the start of the 1968 season with the Minnesota Vikings.

Hanger will finish questioning Kapp today and then it will be the defense's turn. It is not known as yet which of six defense attorneys will get the first whack at Kapp, but if Wednesday's performances during opening statements could be used as a barometer, former San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto now hands down over an attorney from Washington, D.C. (John McKay) and another from New York City (William Willis).

Donovan expected to be SF new general manager

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Naming Bill Rigney, manager of the San Francisco Giants, may have been Bob Lurie's worst kept secret and the next worst one may be that he will pick Jerry Donovan as the club's general manager, probably today.

Reading the newspapers. "I like every thing I see about Mr. Rigney. Anything he and Bob want to do as far as running the club on the field is all right with me. I'll attend as many home games as I can but it will be more as a fan than as an owner," bought in more for pleasure than business although I'm not against making money."

Ford studies 'appropriate' funding for 1982 Olympics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Ford Administration official asked Wednesday that Congress not act on a bill seeking $50 million for the 1980 Olympic Winter Games at Lake Placid, N.Y., until the Administration decides how big a federal contribution, if any, would be "appropriate."

That assistance will be. "In some cases, the Commerce Department official said, loans might be more appropriate than outright grants. He also suggested it might be "more appropriate" for the state to pay for additional facilities and for revenues from the games to be used to offset permanent construction costs.

Killebrew ends 22-year career

BOISE (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew, one of baseball's all-time power hitters, Wednesday announced his retirement as an active player, thus ending a career of 22 years.

CSI runners shoot for U.S. titles

KANSAS CITY — National points, national championships and all-Americans. College of Southern Idaho should pick up something in all three categories Thursday in the final day of the national junior college indoor track and field championships.

Bruins invade Burley tonight

The question for Thursday: Are the Twin Falls Bruins good enough to beat any team in four times in a row?

Defensively Twin Falls did a poor job against Minico, not maintaining early outdoor pressure. "It was more like the 'ole'," says coach Watson, referring to the manner in which matadors allow the bull to pass by them.

Do you know the medical name for that ailment which afflicts some men and women about to get married? Engysitis. No, it's not just what you and I might recognize as the wedding day jitters. It's the extreme. With the anxiety, the depression and the indecision, there's sleeplessness and headaches usually. The engysitis patient doesn't much care for food either. Sometimes that poor party loses considerably weight. Our Love and War man says it is to premarital nervousness what pneumonia is to the cold.

There are a few south sea islands and some tribal colonies in the mountains of India where nobody has ever been known to commit suicide.

SHAKES

Q. "Any snakes in New Zealand?"
A. Not a one.

One out of every five men hereabouts between the ages of 65 and 68 is not holding down a job... if you find yourself afflicted with the compelling desire to buy unnecessary goods, what you suffer from is onomaniacs... No, caesarian surgery is not uncommon at all on mama-Pekingese dogs, my dear.

This is a good year to point out, too, that Philadelphia's Independence Hall once was used by the British as a prison for captured American soldiers.

ALICE

"Stop the presses!" cried Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, or words to that effect, as the printer stamped out the first copies of "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." Only 48 books came off that first run, and the whereabouts of only 21 of those highly valuable little treasures is now known. Charles, who called himself Lewis Carroll in print, was not satisfied with what he had written. He wanted to edit some more. Writers who turn into editors are like that.

No doubt you know that ladybugs are sold by the gallon to farmers, nurserymen and other garden growers. Lady bugs kill 45 other kinds of insect-pests. But do you know how many ladybugs are in a gallon? About 135,000.

Isn't any trick at all to count the vertebrae in a snake's back. Just turn the little fellow over and note the scale rows across its middle. That's it.

Pollsters also report the average college girl shaves her legs twice a week.

Massachusetts primary means different things to each candidate

By WARREN TAUBOT

United Press International

To Mo Udall, Massachusetts meant he's the top liberal.
To Scoop Jackson, it meant putting together the old Democratic "grand coalition."
For Birch Bayh, it meant an agonizing reappraisal of his presidential dreams.
And for Gerald Ford, it meant shedding the image that he can win only in Grand Rapids.
Udall, an Arizona congressman, finished behind Sen. Henry M. Jackson, almost in a dead heat with Alabama Gov. George Wallace for second.

Jackson, who spent more than $300,000 in Massachusetts, told overjoyed supporters his victory was the result of the "grand coalition" that elected Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, John F. Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson.
Bayh, of Indiana, wound up with just 5 per cent in Massachusetts and told supporters that the time has come to reassess his candidacy.
"We won by more than we thought we would," Ford campaign chairman Howard Callaway said of Massachusetts. "A great deal was said about his never won anywhere except Grand Rapids, and now he's won in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts."

Wallace was pleased with his second place showing in Massachusetts.
"Second is a victory as far as I'm concerned," he said, from a Miami hotel room where he watched the returns.
And former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, also in Miami for next week's Florida primary, said he was not disappointed with his fourth place finish.
"I don't consider my showing in Massachusetts a defeat at all. I came in the middle of the field with a minimum of effort," Carter said. He won Vermont's presidential preference Tuesday over Sargent Shriver and former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris.

"Tonight Morris Udall has been clearly established as the candidate of the progressive wing of the Democratic party," Udall told supporters. "This campaign is alive and well tonight and we're going all the way. I never thought the fight would be easy. It's a long distance runner."
"It's not important that I be president. What is important is that someone from the progressive wing of the party is elected," he said.

Jackson, who voted with Wallace for the astonishing vote, said "a long road" lies ahead.
"But there's no secret to our victory," he said. "We brought America back together again in the state of Massachusetts, and we will do it for the rest of the 90 states."
Today could be grim for Bayh.
"I will meet with my campaign staff to determine what role I can play in electing a Democratic president, Bayh said. "It is still possible to make the United States the country that we want."

Florida looms as 3-way fight

MIAMI (UPI)— Sen. Henry M. Jackson — shedding his image as a loser in presidential politics — has turned Florida's March 8 primary into a major three-way fight with Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Jimmy Carter.
Which is exactly what Jackson predicted.
Jackson's clear-cut victory in the Massachusetts primary last night was expected to provide a strong boost to his chances in Florida, probably at the expense of Carter, the former Georgia governor.
But neither Carter nor Wallace — who both predict victory in Florida — are willing to concede that Jackson can match his Massachusetts success in Florida's Democratic presidential primary.
Wallace said Tuesday the Massachusetts results, which showed Jackson winning and Wallace and Carter running third and fourth, would help Jackson "come" in Florida.

While conceding he may be "underestimating" Jackson, Carter claimed the Washington senator would finish a "a very poor third" in Florida.
Wallace and Carter already were in Florida, Jackson and the fourth active Democratic candidate in the Florida primary — Pennsylvania Gov. Milton Shapp — were expected in the state today.
Wallace — whose stronghold is in the panhandle area in the northern tier of the state — remained another day in the populous Miami area to woo Jewish and anti-abortion votes. Carter planned to campaign in the vicinity of the Cape Canaveral space center and in an old-fashioned fishery.
Jackson was scheduled to come into the western part of the state late in the day to launch a final blitz he feels could put him ahead of Wallace and Carter next Tuesday.
