

today in brief

FCC rejects Reagan backers' claim

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The seven members of the Federal Communications Commission, while apparently agreeing in private that President Ford may be gaining a political advantage from an interview on a Miami television station, has rejected a complaint against the station by supporters of Ronald Reagan seeking equal time.

The complaint, filed by Citizens for Reagan, contended that he should be granted equal time because WKLT-TV is broadcasting this week a series of interviews with a 30-minute interval of one of its reporters, Richard Whitcomb, had with the President at the White House last Monday.

Rhodesia reinforces armed units

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Rhodesia's defense minister said today the white-ruled country is reinforcing its army to deal with the threat posed by about 1,000 black nationalist guerrillas operating inside the country and 4,000 to 5,000 others based in neighboring black states.

Defense Minister Pieter van der Byl made the announcement as the Rhodesian government tightened gasoline rationing by 20 per cent now that its chief route to the sea has been severed by neighboring black Mozambique.

Leonid again

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Communist party named Leonid Brezhnev, 79, today to continue leading the world's largest nation and sacked Agriculture Minister Dmitry Polyansky, apparently because of disastrous grain harvests.

Brezhnev, who already has led the nation for 11 years, pledged the new leadership would seek "to ensure great new victories for communism and the cause of peace."

French move to quell wine 'revolt'

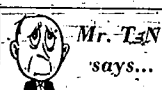

NARBONNE, France (UPI) — The government airlifted tough riot troops and armored cars to France's explosive wine country today, defying threats by rebellious wine growers to meet police reinforcements with bloodshed.

The smoldering "wine war" over the importation of cheap Italian wine erupted Thursday in a bloody battle between about 1,000 vintners and police, leaving two persons dead and dozens injured.

Wife of abducted Yank seeks release

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The weeping, haggard wife of kidnapped American businessman William Nicholas has made a televised appeal to guerrilla abductors to "please return my husband alive."

Flanked by her two children, Donna Nicholas told her audience in halting, broken Spanish Thursday night that her husband, held for political reasons, "has absolutely no strategic value."

Red-led workers free 2 Americans

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Communist-led workers today freed two American tire executives they had kept bottled up in a factory near Lisbon for four days over a pay dispute.

"They were released by a decision of the workers," said a plant employee.

But the workers had been under heavy pressure from the government to change the form of their protest.

Political sources said the incident embarrassed Portugal at a time when efforts were underway to attract foreign investment.

European aides mull jobless problem

PARIS (UPI) — Labor ministers of the 12-country Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development met today in the final day of a two-day conference to deal with the worst unemployment and inflation since World War II.

More than 13,670,000 persons are unemployed in the OECD countries, which are drawn from industrial, non-Communist nations including the United States, Japan and Canada.

US jobless rate skids to 7.6%

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment fell to 7.6 per cent in February, completing a rapid 1 per cent plunge over the past four months that brought the nation's jobless rate to its lowest level in more than a year, the Labor Department said today.

The February unemployment rate was 0.2 per cent below January's 7.8 per cent rate and 1.6 per cent below the recession peak established last May. Joblessness has declined a full percentage point since October.

The employment report, combined with earlier news that wholesale prices had declined 0.5 per cent in February, lent substance to President Ford's campaign claims that his conservative economic policies are working.

The good news prompted Ford's economic advisers to predict that unemployment may fall below 7 per cent by the end of 1976.

But Julius Shiskin, head of the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, noted in testimony prepared for Congress' Joint Economic Committee today that 7.6 per cent unemployment is still "a high rate by historical standards."

While total employment has returned to its pre-recession peak, he noted, that unemployment has been reduced only 27 per cent from the recession high.

"The recovery continues to be stronger in employment, than that following the severe recession of 1957-58," he said, "but weaker in unemployment."

The improvement in February brought unemployment to its lowest level since December, 1974, when it stood at 7.2 per cent.

Unemployment declined by 150,000 persons to 7.1 million during February while total employment increased only slightly to 86.3 million. Most of the new jobs went to the so-called "traditional breadwinners."

There were continued declines in joblessness among full-time workers, while workers and heads of households, in fact, the unemployment for heads of households fell below 5 per cent for the first time since late 1974.

The unemployment rate for married men and adult women remained unchanged. Blacks experienced an 0.5-percentage-point increase in joblessness to 13.7 per cent while unemployment among teen-agers fell 0.7 per cent to 19.2 per cent.

After falling 2.2 million, total employment has now returned to its pre-recession peak of 86.3 million workers. Most of the recovery has taken place among women. Employment among men is still 700,000 below its high point.

Adult women also have accounted for most of the 1.9 million increase in the total labor force over the past year. The labor force held steady at 93.5 million during February.

Non-agricultural payroll employment rose 210,000 in February, capping eight months of steady increase. At 78.3 million, payroll employment is still 400,000 below its all-time high set in September, 1974.

Agricultural employment dropped 270,000 while nonagricultural employment grew.

TF Council alters new sewer charges

By Dave Horsman

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council has decided to change a controversial plan to boost sewer service rates in the city.

The changes will reduce proposed rate increases for large water users, including some owners of commercial firms who protested the initial proposal to hike the rates.

However, hospitals will pay more under the revised plan.

The new rate plan was decided by the council at a special work session early today.

The council did not change its proposed 30-cent per month increase for single family residences.

Under the revised plan, those in a new user category, Commercial 2, will pay $3.50 cents per 1,000 gallons of water they receive.

The category includes motels and hotels, restaurants and taverns, clubs and unions.

Under the revised plan, those in a new user category, Commercial 2, will pay $3.50 cents per 1,000 gallons of water they receive. The category includes motels and hotels, restaurants and taverns, clubs and unions.

With the exception of the three additions, all users in the Commercial 2 category would have paid 35 cents under the old plan also.

But the council tacked a new provision onto the revised plan that will cut the bills of large water users in Commercial 2. They will receive a 1, but not 25 per cent rate reductions as their consumption of water goes up.

City Manager Jean Miller today said the "actual breakpoints" — where the reductions will take place — have not been established yet.

But the provision undoubtedly is a big break for some commercial firms that consume as much as 1 million gallons a month. The initial proposal called for an across-the-board rate of 35 cents, regardless of the volume of water used.

The bills of 10 million-gallon users would have jumped to $330 a month from the current $37 under that proposal.

Miller said reductions for large users are based on the premise that big bulk quantities of sewage can be processed at less cost.

Hospitals were scheduled to pay 19 cents per 1,000 gallons under the initial plan. Miller said they were placed in the 35-cent category because most of their metered water is returned to the sewage system, than originally estimated.

It was assumed that a large amount of the water was used for lawn sprinkling.

Mobile home and multi-family units were scheduled to pay $1.75 per month under the initial plan. Some mobile home park owners had requested a shift to the 35-cent category because they believe monthly bills will be lower. They claimed mobile home units generate less sewage than standard single-family homes.

The revised rate plan probably will be adopted at the next council meeting on March 15, Miller said.

Farm policy revamp set

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — President Ford today announced a reorganization of federal agricultural policy-making machinery, and proposed a 150 per cent increase in the current estate tax exemption to help many Americans, especially family farm owners.

Ford came here to start two days of campaigning against Ronald Reagan in the March 16 Illinois primary. That will be their first head-to-head battle in the heart of the nation's farm belt, where Ford is said to be in political trouble because of declining prices at the marketplace.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a "rural forum," Ford said he had put Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz in charge of a new Cabinet-level "Agricultural Policy Committee" that will coordinate decision-making on all domestic and international food issues.

"I am confident that this bolstering of agricultural policy within the executive branch will benefit the farmers of Illinois and all Americans," he said.

Ford said he was proposing an increase in the present $60,000 estate tax exemption to $150,000 to ease the burden on "the many Americans with modest estates," particularly owners of family farms who have their savings tied up in land.

Gem gas tax hike passes

BOISE (UPI) — By a nearly two-thirds majority the House passed and sent to the Senate today a three-bill package to hike gasoline taxes a penny a gallon, car registration fees 70 cents, and the state's share of $8.1 million in federal road building and repair money.

The three-bill package was designed to raise $8.2 million in additional state road-building and repair money. The Department of Transportation has said it needs $8.6 million.

Other proposals in the package call for a $9 increase in motor vehicle registration fees and a cutting on law enforcement's share of the motor vehicle fund.

Rep. Larry Jackson, R-Boise, steered the gas tax increase through the hour-long debate, saying the money is needed to match federal highway funds and to maintain and rehabilitate roads.

He said a gas tax increase makes sense as a source for the money because everybody who uses the highways pays it. — in an in-state motorist or a tourist visiting Idaho.

Lockheed probe proceeds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate subcommittee today completed a second day of closed hearings into possible Lockheed payoffs to influence the sale of the firm's "Flying Col" F104 Starfighters to Germany, but reached no decision whether to open sessions to the public.

Emerging from the meeting, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the panel chairman, said the subcommittee on multinational corporations had also made no decision on whether to release materials which the subcommittee has gathered.

Meanwhile, Marius Holtrup, a member of the Dutch investigative commission looking into Lockheed's alleged $11 million in payments to Prince Bernhard in the 1960s, met for about two hours Thursday with Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns.

Burns is a member of the Federal Loan Guarantee Board that oversees the government-backed $195 million loan to Lockheed.

A Federal Reserve spokesman said he did not know the reason for the "lengthy" meeting.

The board, whose members include Burns, Treasury Secretary William Simon and Securities and Exchange Chairman Frederick Hills, has stated on several occasions that Lockheed has refused to provide information on the recipients of alleged payoffs.

The multinational corporations panel is looking at the West German situation and has already uncovered payoffs. Intended for government officials in Italy, Holland and Japan.

Blaine wells bring lawsuit

KETCHUM — After nearly a year of research, the Idaho attorney general's office will file suit against the U.S. Forest Service for drilling nine wells without a state permit.

Early last year, during the controversy over a proposed new road for the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, the TIMES-NEWS discovered the SNRA had not applied for a permit to drill a well on Murdoch Creek which will supply water for the headquarters.

Robert Loughen, IPUC commissioner, said he does not want to speculate on how the commission would decide the Idaho Power application. He said that "it would seem to be highly unlikely" that the commission would give an "open-ended" approval for building the second unit as needed.

Loughen said Idaho Power informally approached the commission a month to six weeks ago with the request "to set that (second) unit, better for an interest in the (Boardman) Ore. 1 plant and we indicated approval."

An IPUC study by Arthur D. Little, Inc. on the plant and second unit months concluded that Idaho Power Co. will need one 500,000 kilowatt unit on line by 1981 to serve its customers.

The study predicted, however, that a second unit should not be necessary at least until 1985 if Idaho Power can make seasonal trading agreements with other utilities in the Northwest.

It noted that Idaho Power's highest loads occur in the summer, while highest loads of surrounding Northwest utilities occur in the winter.

Brown said Idaho Power has not changed its growth predictions. He said he does not know why the power company decided to lift the cap on putting its second unit of Pioneer into operation.

He said, however, that the agreement to purchase 10 per cent of the power from the Boardman plant would help replace a runoff of power from the Bonneville, Power Authority. He said, however, that the BPA has supplied Idaho Power with energy during the summer to pay for the company's transmitting BPA electricity to BPA customers in southern Idaho.

But this year Brown said, BPA is going to start paying for this service with cash, instead of electricity.

Pioneer plant second stage target date dropped

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Capital Bureau

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. no longer has a target date for putting the second unit of the proposed Pioneer coal-fired power plant into operation, according to a company spokesman.

The power company has applied to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to build a million kilowatt plant near Boise in two stages. In its original application the company set 1980 and 1981 as preliminary target dates for having the units in operation.

The application has not been amended, but more recently, 1981 and 1982 have been proposed as the years in which the first and second units would be operating.

But now Idaho Power has no projected target date for its second unit, according to Robert Brown, senior director for the firm.

"We are still applying for two units. It's just a matter of when the second unit goes on. It could be 1983 or whenever," Brown said Friday.

In line with this change, he said, the firm has given Portland General Electric its place in line for construction of the boiler for the second unit.

In turn, he said, Idaho Power has obtained the right to purchase 10 per cent of the power from the 530,000 kilowatt from the P. G. E. plant to be built near Boardman, Ore.

He said Idaho Power probably would be buying the P. G. E. energy during its summer load peak.

Idaho Power also has ordered turbine generators for its proposed Pioneer plant. Brown said he does not know whether the firm has arranged for another utility to take its place in line for purchase of these generators.

The second unit of Pioneer would be built to serve the "load growth as required," he said. There is no projected date to build the plant and did not know whether Idaho Power must have to reapply to the IPUC to build the second unit.

Basques march in protest

MADRID, Spain—(UPI)—A crowd of about 150 Basques, many of them carrying flags, marched through the Basque town of Vitoria today, turning the funeral of three workers killed in 1937-38 into a political protest.

In Madrid, the government of Prime Minister Carlos Arias Navarro met to ponder the growing political violence which newspapers, warned, could put a halt to King Juan Carlos' plans for step-by-step democratization.

At the end of funeral services for the dead workers at the Cathedral for the immaculate, fellow laborers hoisted the coffins on their shoulders and started a march through the town center.

A crowd estimated by the national news agency Orea at more than 50,000 followed after the funeral procession, many of them clammoring "long live liberty" and shouting "a united people will never be defeated."

In an apparent effort to calm the demonstrators, police blocked the entrance to the cemetery, saying the burial had been postponed until 5 p.m.

Police did not interfere with the march, although some of the mourners made threatening signs to units guarding local government offices and other official buildings. No incidents were reported during the march.

The funeral mass was officiated by the bishop of Vitoria, assisted by close to 100 priests.

An estimated 15,000 mourners packed the cathedral and overflowing into the church square interrupted the sermon and speeches by workers' representatives, repeatedly with applause as the speakers defended labor rights and condemned violence.

Gulf wants donations returned

WASHINGTON, (UPI)—Gulf Oil Corp., under fire for donating $5 million to American politicians in recent years, is asking them to give it back.

A Gulf spokesman in Pittsburgh said Thursday the company sent letters this week to an undisclosed number of politicians "asking each of them to return whatever corporate money they have received."

Rep. John H. Rostenkowski, D-Ill., immediately said he is returning $600,000 Gulf gave to his 1972 political campaign. He said he had assumed it was contributed legally by Gulf employees.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said he received the Gulf letter and turned it over to his lawyer. Scott again denied ever knowingly accepting corporate funds and said he welcomed the opportunity to have this matter resolved in a proper forum.

Another twister, Sen. Russell Long, D-La., also was asked by Gulf to return the funds, reportedly to at least $43,000. Long said he doesn't recall ever getting corporate funds from Gulf.

The Securities and Exchange Commission determined Gulf had donated millions of dollars from a corporate slush fund to U.S. politicians and foreign congresses over 14 years through 1974.

Twisters blitz Midwest

Heavy ice spread from Kansas to Wisconsin.

Local officials declared Washington County, Wisconsin, disaster areas after being disrupted electrical and power services, turned roads to ribbons of ice and felled telephone poles like saplings under a windstorm.

Several southeastern Kansas towns were virtually paralyzed by a sheath of ice that doctored trees and power lines and isolated telephone exchanges Wednesday night and early Thursday.

The ice storm was the second in three days in the Midwest. Power has been out to some 200,000 homes in Michigan since Tuesday night.

Harford Wis. Mayor Don E. Harford, Wis. declared a state of emergency and appealed for outside help as the second ice storm hit Thursday. Some 7,000 Harford residents were still without power because of Tuesday night's storm.

Another twister struck the small Missouri community of Mokane, destroying a mobile home and overturning a motor.

Yet another twister startled the western Illinois community of Victoria, damaging homes and businesses and knocking out telephone service and fire communications. There were no injuries.

The measure, which should come up for a final vote in the House Saturday or Monday, under normal procedures, covers all phases of the residential market, including oral and written contracts.

Solidarity goal of Giscard's coming US visit

PARIS — When France's President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing visits the United States next May it will be the first time he comes to America — nor, for that matter, the first time his family name was heard in our country.

A "cultural ancestor," Count Charles de Gaulle, commanded the first French expedition supporting the 13 colonies in their revolution against Britain.

As a vice admiral, the Count was sent to surprise British squadrons off New York and also served in the vicinity of Newport, R.I., and Savannah, Ga., where he was seriously wounded.

All this occurred in 1778 which makes the president's journey almost a kind of family bicentennial for him when he journeys to honor the first great national revolution.

Giscard himself already was a considerable acquaintance with the U.S.A. He has traveled in New York (where he once lived briefly as a member of France's U.N. delegation), to Washington, D.C., Arizona, California and Illinois where he spent a vacation. Now in preparation for a new itinerary (Washington, Philadelphia, New Orleans and Texas) he is polishing up his English.

This is not an arduous task. His friend, German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, says: "He has a vocabulary at least as large as an American senator's," yet he is working hard to improve his accent in weekly lessons with an English phonetic professor from the Sorbonne. The particular reason is to help him stress the themes he hopes to get across in his planned address to the U.S. Congress.

The principal message is solidarity, a kind of timeless historical solidarity between the French and American peoples. It began 200 years ago when France, then a great European and world power, helped the colonies gain their national identity. Almost simultaneously, the two nations new and one old struck out on a course based on what were then revolutionary democratic concepts.

These first took root in the United States (although largely based on the ideas of French political philosophers), a few years later they shook France. The point Giscard hopes to underscore comes in answer to a rhetorical question: "Where are we now?" The answer is that both countries retain similar views on these two fundamentals, democracy and national identity, and our strength remains founded on the democratic institutions we have for so long preserved.

This should not be taken to mean there are not and will not in the future be differences between Washington and Paris although in the Ellysée's view mutual relations correspond to what they should be. The United States plainly acknowledges that the world is a friendly, allied country which must nevertheless conduct its independent policies as it sees fit.

On most things Giscard is confident there is genuine agreement between the two nations. He told President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger that "since there are no common problems and relations are cordial and relaxed, it is useless to argue much about such differences as to occur, especially in "form."

This type of thing arises, for example, on monetary views or on legal questions involving rights of the supersonic Concorde to land at Kennedy Airport, New York, or on contrasting views concerning recognition of the MPLA regime in Angola.

With respect to the first, Giscard seems persuaded that Washington has acted with understanding on the whole Concorde question and won't be deflected from its grant of a test landing period at Dulles Airport, regardless of judicial debates. With respect to the second, the French President wrote Ford explaining why France had decided to take the initiative among West European states in recognizing the Luanda government.

It would seem that in Giscard's eyes the only period in recent history when Paris-Washington differences were major, involving both substance and form, was at the time General de Gaulle was French President. Giscard apparently feels the general was quite right in insisting on the recapture of a certain "national" authority over France's political and military policy.

The Ellysée's present incumbent clearly supported De Gaulle on this. However, he seems persuaded that despite occasional abruptness, the general was not seeking deliberately to irritate the United States.

In any case, certain abrasiveness that existed between Washington and Paris a decade ago has now wholly vanished and when President Giscard d'Estaing flies over to a Concorde for what is virtually a double bicentennial, there is every reason to expect that our oldest alliance will be sentimentally strengthened.

State water plan — a landmark document

Idaho's water is her most valuable natural resource.

The state's future growth and quality of life are fundamentally tied to wise use of water and the debate over what constitutes wise use probably will be the most important public issue Idahoans face in this decade.

A few days ago the Idaho Dept. of Water Resources released a landmark state water plan. The importance of the document is hard to over-estimate.

The proposed state water plan sets agricultural expansion boundaries for the next 50 years. The plan determines the fate of the fish and wildlife in the main Snake River and charts the course of economic development in the arid desert lands of southern Idaho.

The water plan has taken ten years of research to complete. The document clearly is a compromise between strictly environmental concerns and economic development in Idaho.

The state water department admits the plan is a compromise, but argues that Idaho can have its cake and eat it, too, under the plan.

Having your cake means that Idaho must adopt minimum stream flow requirements for the major rivers in the state. Preserving the cake also means new agricultural development will be slowed down from the historical rate of growth of the past 75 years.

Eating your cake means an additional 1.2 million acres of new desert land will be opened up to agriculture by the year 2020. The cost of this agricultural expansion will be that fish and wildlife populations in the main Snake River will be wiped out.

Already the sparks are beginning to fly over the proposed water plan.

Farmers are extremely suspicious of minimum stream flow legislation because they see it as an attempt to take away their water rights.

Environmentalists are stunned by the plan because it admits fish populations in the Snake River will be eliminated.

The debate over the state water plan promises to become a major political issue. Traditional splits between north and south Idaho will emerge, conflicts between environmentalists and developers, Republicans and Democrats, agricultural interests and utility companies surely will be aired as the water plan debate continues.

In the end, when a revised water plan becomes law, some special interests will have taken a back seat.

The water plan is an important document, one which needs reasoned consideration by all of us who want Idaho to be a good place to live in the next century.

Wise use of Idaho water is the most important factor in the future of this state.

Here's platform suggestion

Editor, Times-News:

A presidential candidate, who considers himself worthy of recognition has emerged. While not a native Idahoan, he feels he should do well here not because our fair state is well saturated with political fertilizer.

Since his bill is a dark horse he wished to be known by his given name, just Sam, and while he has not yet made an appearance in Idaho he represents himself against the majority by being an independent candidate.

Sam says, "As candidate I promise you nothing. This way you will know I am an honest person. After all, honesty comes from the fear of getting caught."

Here is his ten-point platform.

Take all Congressmen off salary and put them on a straight commission basis.

Legalize gun ownership but decrease the velocity of bullets by 99 per cent.

Eliminate Wednesday from the calendar to establish a four-day work week.

Abolish the present income tax law and instead charge families $1 a month body weight for each member on April 15th.

Furnish better public facilities for both dogs and cats.

Issue postage stamps with nude photos of average Americans to get the post office out of debt.

Provide no-fault insurance for suicides.

Reduce air pollution by having those who smoke exhale into a shoe box. The captured smoke can then be flushed down the toilet.

Require all doctors to publish their medical school grades in the telephone book.

Appoint former President "Nixon" as ambassador to Cuba.

And like all serious candidates Sam has a catchy slogan. — Vote for Sam and give a damn.

While some of these may seem trivial, think of the wasted hours and days which are spent by some of our legislative bodies in discussing of equally unimportant press publicity.

Whatever, do it quietly

Editor, Times-News:

I guess the people of America are going to be fed Patty Hearst until the media gets tired of playing that very old record. The media has gotten that way, relishing anything or anybody who can provide some good, cheap, sensationalism with which to bend our mind and buckle our spines.

But this is a different kind of fairy tale, even for these times, only the ending seems assured. My money's on the rich, Patty, with the cute lawyer, even though the sinister forces of government bureaucracy are making expensive, but taken, jobs in her retribution.

According to Newsweek and P. Lee, the defense has taken every advantage by keeping Patty on the TV the prosecution is an firefighter who saves his until the later rounds. The defense, P. Lee & Co., has it that since Patty seldom blew her nose on her nanny's dress, did time in a closet and a perfume can, and lusted the blank sheet with it, that it really okay that she sneak high-caliber cannibals into poor innocent's bellies, even blinding away. (Oops, sorry, by accident) on occasion.

The prosecution, of course, doesn't entirely agree, although that's hard sometimes to tell.

Newsweek relates the man as one who stumbles limply into the lures of theatrical defense, ploys and lamely tries to limp out. The man's name should be Lamely. Or whatever, but justice shouldn't be a bag of tricks or a circus side-show.

Perry Mason was good, but I did wish Ham Burger could have won at least once, ever in fiction. Maybe we are all for sale in the society — a million-dollar, good-as-fiction lawyer, carrying his client's freedom by putting on a show as good as the Super Bowl or the seventh game of the Series. And sponsored by America.

But in fiction upon upon a limb is permissible, and once upon a time, maybe a group similar to the Shas would have walked into Twin Falls bank, not caring a damn who got killed, and pointed heavy hardware at a wife, or mother, or father, or other loved one who happened to be in that bank. Maybe your people, maybe mine.

But since money got Patty Hearst into this, perhaps it's poetic that money should get her out. One way or the other, I wish they could do it quietly.

A look at the arms bill

Congress is expected within a matter of weeks to enact into law the bill passed by the Senate regarding the sale or transfer of conventional arms to foreign countries.

There is a great deal that is superficially appealing about this measure. The trouble of course is that its corollaries are substantially unexamined. At more or less the same time the United States is announcing that it will no longer assist the world's war and that it will no longer permit other countries to act as their own policemen. So much, finally, for Vietnamization.

Granted, Congress has not yet voted to embargo the export of arms to anybody. It has specifically transferred the authority to approve exports from the executive to the legislative. It is, on the whole, an attractive idea to recapture for the legislative some of the powers gradually usurped over the years by the executive, but it makes the conduct of foreign policy, at the margin, difficult.

If the United States were the sole producer of weapons, the idealistic attractions of slowly diminishing the world's supply of them are overwhelming. Of course, we aren't. And the principle alternative source of weapons, the Soviet Union, will continue to produce weapons pursuant to political forethought.

We are walking into a number of interesting difficulties. Take the Kennedy Amendment. It carried with a nice margin. Senator Kennedy added a provision forbidding the sale of arms to "Chile, on the grounds that Chile is suppressing human rights." Senator Kennedy's patience, he reported, is exhausted. On the other hand, Senator Kennedy's patience is infinite in respect of the suppression of human rights in other countries. We have given more arms to Yugoslavia since before Senator Kennedy began his "lifetime study of ethics at Harvard University."

In fact you know it, I know it, and Senator Kennedy knows it, that Chile is selling off its overthrown government of Salvador Allende, and thereby incurred the undying hostility of the world's leftwing press, the most durable and most effective apparatus of power in the world.

Only a few months ago it had grown into schools, dormitories, post and public buildings through its top nagel General Franco for executing five guerrillas. The terrorists were merely the proximate cause of a renewal of the campaign against Franco that began the day he won the civil war against the forces backed by the U.S.

The same day that Senator Kennedy made his protest against Chile, Amnesty International filed its report on torture in Uruguay. The same day that Henry Kissinger exchanged pleasantries with the governors of Peru, who have not hesitated to use torture to suppress political dissent, the same day that Richard Nixon flew off to renew the delights of his association with the most systematic freedom-suppressors in history, the Chinese Communists.

If Senator Kennedy wants to stop sending arms to any country that suppresses human rights — indeed, that is one of the grand purposes of the Senate bill — he had better quickly take the Massachusetts and find out how many jobs are going to be lost this time around. It would spare him the embarrassment he sustained a few years ago when he was forced to recommend the closing of military bases everywhere except in Massachusetts, where the climate is so propitious for military bases.

Senator McGovern had the same problem in South Dakota.

Congress is shuffling its doctrines so fast, it's hard to make any coherence out of them. First we have the Fulbright Doctrine, which announces that the United States has no pro-quest against any country, no matter how obnoxious its internal policies, so long as it does not seek to export them. Now we make an exception of Chile, as we did of South Africa a while back. Then we announce that other countries will have to look after their own frontiers; we'll supply the arms. But now we supply the arms. If we disapprove of the pedigree of the government, then we encourage friendly countries to buy our stuff, not theirs. But increasingly, our hardware is subject to interdiction, at the wheezing of Senator Kennedy's conscience.

It is a sad admixture, what we are getting into. Half-fundamentalism, half-realpolitik, and, increasingly, all of it bombast.

Pioneer opponents speak out

Editor, Times-News:

Let it be said that by silence we approve and support the proposed new Pioneer power plant, we would like to make sure that both Idaho Power Company and the Public Utilities Commission understand we do NOT support this plan to create that new plant. We are opposed to it in every sense.

The $1 billion debt the people of south Idaho would be saddled with is too outrageous — especially when there seems to be real doubt as to the need for the plant in the first place.

We haven't the income to be able to afford a 72 per cent increased power bill. Our average bill of $20 a month would be nearly doubled in four years — and by 1984 would be $50 a month.

Current generating facilities can provide 60 per cent more power. Idaho Power's projections to justify the need for this new plant, as stated in their testimony at PUC hearings, contain the following very important inaccuracies:

- 1 — predicted increase in residential population to slightly over DOUBLE the present population in the next 15 years.
- 2 — each residential consumer will use 72 per cent more electricity by that same time.
- 3 — predicted increase of 50 percent by commercial users — an increase of 2.3 times more electricity consumption per commercial user.
- 4 — predicted "0" growth for large industry (such as phosphate plants).

15 — only a predicted 4 per cent growth so far as irrigation pumping is concerned.

The farmers and ranchers believe this plant is vital to meet their needs for irrigation — yet, only an 8 per cent increase in consumption by irrigation is predicted. Can you believe this, farmers?

State law guarantees Idaho Power sufficient income to pay off their debts — and to glean an 8 per cent profit besides. If their prophecy for population increase and increased consumption does not materialize, our power bills must increase even more to pay off this $1 billion bond debt.

The Public Utilities Commission believes, Poetatlans are behind this Pioneer power plant, that we approve. Well, we aren't behind it, and we aren't willing to accept this plan. We say NO to Pioneer and urge the people of southern Idaho to open their eyes to what is about to happen.

Only weeks remain to halt this push for Pioneer. The CAP (Citizens for Alternatives to Pioneer) needs donations to help fight this plant, and the Public Utilities Commission members need consumer support to offset the erroneous information given them by Idaho Power — voice your opposition.

Once approval is granted for the Pioneer power plant, we're stuck with it for the rest of our lives.

BILL and JEAN DAVIDSON

Reagan takes off gloves in blistering Ford work

United Press International
Ronald Reagan, fighting to keep his White House hopes alive in the Florida primary, says fellow Republican Gerald Ford lacks the vision and leadership to reverse the nation's decline.

Responding to backers' pleas that he take off the gloves, Reagan called the President by name Thursday and, for the first time, attacked his performance as chief executive.

Meanwhile, a downhearted Birch Bayh withdrew as an active Democratic candidate, and Sargent Shriver also was reported to be considering leaving the pack. Democrats Jimmy Carter, Henry Jackson and George Wallace blitzed Florida, as Ford set today and Saturday aside for an Illinois swing.

"Despite Mr. Ford's evident decency, honor and patriotism," Reagan told a news conference in Orlando, Fla., "he has neither the vision nor the leadership necessary to halt and reverse the economic and military decline of the United States."

"That is the truth, and even those of us who like Gerald Ford as a person know it is the truth," Reagan said.

Ford's trip to Illinois was to start with the unveiling of a cornerstone at Abraham Lincoln's home at Springfield.

In remarks prepared for the ceremony, Ford drew encouragement in Lincoln's reply to political attacks on his leadership.

"I do the very best I know how," the very best man," Ford quoted Lincoln, "and I mean to keep doing so until the end. If the end brings me out all right, what is said against me won't Reagan accused Ford of using "election year rhetoric as a substitute for strength" and said the Soviet Union will exploit defeat until a new president and secretary of state are named. A crowd of 2,500 screamed and cheered when Reagan attacked Ford again at an evening rally at Winter Park.

In Chicago, former Treasury Secretary John Connally said it would be "a heck of a ticket" if the GOP nominated Ford for president and Reagan for vice president but "I don't know if you can pull it together."

Morris Udall predicted he would inherit most of the labor support that had gone to Birch Bayh, whose dismal showing in the Massachusetts primary forced him to quit campaigning.

"Progressives made a poor showing because there were too many of us," Udall said.

Shriver, in Chicago, said he will seek "hard nosed political advice" the next few days before deciding whether to remain active in the March 16 Illinois primary.

Carter met Leonard Woodcock, president of the United Auto Workers, for the first time in a private session at St. Petersburg, Fla. Carter said he didn't ask for an endorsement.

Jackson rejected Carter's claim his Massachusetts victory stemmed from his opposition to school busing.

"It's amazing that Gov. Carter accused me of running a racist campaign when he campaigned on anti-busing to get elected governor of Georgia," Jackson said, saying Carter is "the last one" who should make civil rights an issue.

Luncheon date

Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — President Gerald Ford plans to have lunch Saturday with a farmer who merely "leans" towards voting for him.

Lyle Grace, 59, owns a 800-acre, soybean and corn farm on route 45 outside of Champaign-Urbana, Ill. The President plans a one-hour stop-over there.

Grace says about voting for the President, "Right now, I'm keeping my options open. Yes, I'm a registered Republican. I'm leaning towards voting for the President, but of course we still have time before the elections."

Grace hopes to talk over farm problems with the President. Grace adds, "We farmers have been irritated by him for putting a trade embargo on the Russians. We were all unhappy about that because we're all essentially in favor of free trade."

Henry eyes Cuban moves

Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says possible movement of Cuban troops into white-ruled territory presents the "gravest problem" in Southern Africa — but he declines to say what the United States would do about it.

"I do not think prior to such an event, that it would be appropriate for me to make any concrete suggestion," Kissinger told the House International Relations Committee yesterday.

Kissinger announced he might include white-ruled South Africa — but not Rhodesia — in his itinerary for a trip to Africa in April. He said he planned to visit Nigeria, Tanzania, Zaire, Zambia and other nations.

Kissinger also said the United States would consider establishing diplomatic relations with the Marxist government of Angola "once it's clear they are an African government and not totally beholden to some foreign influence."

The Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola took control of the country with the assistance of 12,000 Cuban troops and massive Soviet aid. The United States sought to aid rival groups by funneling money and supplies through neighboring Zaire. Congress stopped further assistance.

The White House is worried that Cuban troops may move into Rhodesia or South Africa, controlled Namibia (Southwest Africa), producing a divisive debate within the United States over what to do.

Kissinger pointed out that the United States does not support Rhodesia's minority government of South African control of Namibia, but he said this country "cannot accept that any country, especially from the Western Hemisphere, has the right to intervene in these crises with military forces."

Kissinger said, "We do not want Cuba to be the policeman of Africa."

According to "high-ranking administration officials, any U.S. action probably would come in the form of direct action against Cuba, although the officials would not say what form it would take."

If any U.S. aid is provided to the white-ruled regimes, according to the official, it would probably be requested openly from Congress, rather than supplied covertly, as in Angola.

President Ford has said any new Cuban moves in Africa would be challenged by the United States in Angola, but Kissinger told the House committee that U.S. responses "cannot always be deduced from what we did in Angola."

Reporting to the committee on his recent trip to Latin America, Kissinger said nations there shared "extreme concern" over Cuban conduct in Angola, which he called "a Cuban conquest precedent for intervention" in the Western Hemisphere.

"I found that every government except perhaps one was extremely concerned about what the Cuban troops might do once they return to the hemisphere."

Hammer files plea

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — It took the millionaire defendant more than five months, and the determination to get out of a hospital and come to court in a wheelchair, but he finally succeeded. He persuaded a reluctant judge to find him guilty.

With cardiologists monitoring his heart from another room, industrialist and oil company president Armand Hammer was finally allowed to plead guilty Thursday to misdemeanor charges of illegally contributing $54,000 to Richard Nixon's 1972 presidential campaign.

Hammer had been trying to do so since October. Two federal judges refused to accept the plea, despite — and partly because of — his lawyers' arguments that the unsettled case was aggravating the 77-year-old Hammer's heart ailment.

Aid money gains OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — After beating back efforts to cut aid to Israel, the House has passed a $5.3 billion foreign aid money bill, half of it for the Middle East.

Just before the final vote, however, the House approved an amendment by Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., prohibiting aid to nations delinquent more than one year on debt repayments to the United States.

Alexander estimated there are 71 delinquent nations, including Israel, Egypt, Syria and Jordan — major recipients of the aid legislation.

The appropriations bill was passed late Thursday in the house on a vote of 218 to 154. The bill authorizing $4.8 billion aid was passed only the day before.

Bitter battle among Demos shaping

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mike Mansfield's announced retirement has triggered what could be a bitter Democratic battle for the power and prestige of the Senate leadership he has held longer than anyone in history.

And the contest for Democratic leader will coincide next January with a Republican battle over replacing GOP leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, who also retires at the end of this year.

The anticipated upheavals could even reach across the Capitol into the House of Representatives, where Speaker Carl Albert has not yet decided whether to seek another term.

The contests are expected to sharply underscore, and perhaps aggravate, deep conservative and liberal divisions within both parties.

Only hours after Mansfield revealed his decision not to seek reelection, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine formally declared his candidacy for the job which becomes vacant in January.

"I will seek the majority leader's post in the Democratic caucus and will seek the support of my Democratic colleagues," Muskie said.

Muskie's candidacy pits him against assistant Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia, who has made no secret of his ambition to succeed Mansfield and who is generally considered to have the inside track.

Assistant Republican leader Robert Griffin of Michigan wants Scott's job, but may be challenged for the post by the more conservative Sen. John Tower of Texas, chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee.

And if either Griffin or Byrd steps up, their number 2 posts will, of course, be up for grabs.

Byrd won his assistant leadership post in a close upset over Sen. Edward Kennedy in 1971 after years of meticulously courting his colleagues and mastering Senate rules and procedures.

He has, since won the approval of his colleagues for his hard work, with Mansfield virtually delegating the Senate's day-to-day routine operations to him.

"He's done an awful lot of favors around here," one senator said. "He has ingratiated himself with a lot of senators."

But close Senate observers say Byrd by no means has "it wrapped up." In the end, his conservative political past — including membership long ago in the Ku Klux Klan — may be his undoing.

Muskie, his party's 1968 vice presidential candidate, now chairs the influential Budget Committee and has twice been chosen to present nationally televised Democratic policy speeches to the country.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota also would like to see the long political career end with the leadership post. He has been at time highly critical of the "lack of leadership" in Congress.

No contest plea filed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways has pleaded no contest to an indictment charging that its violation of federal cargo transport rules caused a 1972 jet crash in Boston which killed three crewmen.

It was the first time an airline had been criminally prosecuted in connection with an air crash.

The federal grand jury in Brooklyn also charged four other corporations and an employee of one of the firms.

"A number of civil suits resulting from the crash are still pending."

U.S. Attorney David G. Trager said the indictments provided the first criminal prosecution for violating Federal Aviation Administration regulations.

Trager said they would serve notice that the rules would be "strictly enforced."

Pan Am faces a maximum fine of $50,000 by U.S. District Court Judge Orin Jordan on one felony and 59 misdemeanor counts.

Agricultural exports: our balance with the world.

This country needs the income derived from exporting our surplus food. Such income keeps our trade in balance with the rest of the world. And it keeps our dollars in balance.

The exporting of our food pays for the large amount of oil and other items we import.

The U.S.D.A. estimates that out of an expected wheat crop of some 2.2 billion bushels, only 800 million is needed at home. So if our farm surplus were not exported, it would have to be stockpiled.

Agricultural exports are needed. They are our balance with the world.

Anti-arms

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Daniel Ellsberg, the former Marine officer and defense analyst who leaked the Pentagon Papers to the New York Times, says the United States should begin a movement toward world disarmament. Ellsberg told reporters Thursday he is not calling for total, unilateral American disarmament, but said some nations must set an example to disarm the world and "we are the appropriate country to begin massive efforts toward world disarmament" and to show a "willingness to recognize waste."

Nazi memorabilia auctioned

NEW YORK (UPI)—The largest collection of Nazi memorabilia ever offered for sale was auctioned Thursday, with a letter from Adolf Hitler to a German author bringing $275. In the letter, Hitler thanked the author, serving in the military, for a copy of his book entitled, "The Horror of War and the Delight of Life." Other Third Reich articles auctioned by the Charles Hamilton Gallery included two sets of Hitler's personal silverware, which sold for $400 each, and a letter from Eva Braun, Hitler's mistress, which brought $550.

Fabian fined

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Fabian, the slick-haired rock singer of the early 1960s, was fined $200 and placed on three years' probation Thursday, in connection with charges he beat his wife and mother-in-law. The 32-year-old singer, whose full name is Fabian Forte, was arrested Oct. 6 at the Yucca Valley home of his estranged wife, Katie. She accused him of beating her and roughing up her mother, Margaret Reagan, 66. They were treated for cuts and bruises.

Nickel a week

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Ralph Avellino had the funeral he paid for—for 30 years at a nickel a week. When Avellino arrived in this country from Italy in 1905, he started paying the Oliver H. Hair funeral home in Philadelphia a nickel a week on a $100 insurance policy that would assure him a proper funeral when he died. It took Avellino 36 years to pay off the policy. He died Sunday at the age of 85, and Thursday he was accorded the funeral he wanted. The plans included an engraved nameplate on his casket, five horse-drawn coaches to take his family to the cemetery, and an obituary in the local press.

Ross by remote

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Diana Ross will be the first performer to take home the annual Oscar award ceremony by remote-broadcast from Europe, the Motion Picture Academy said Thursday. Miss Ross will be on tour in Amsterdam when the awards are presented March 29. She is scheduled to sing "Do You Know Where You're Going To," theme song from her movie "Mahogany," which has been nominated for best song.

Bugged by Betty

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—Betty Ford's scheduled visit next Tuesday bothers the Mesa Citizens for Family Unity, which objects to her personal views. "We like the American family concept as projected by our forefathers and we would like to see this concept continued in Mesa," a spokeswoman for the group, Peggy Griffin, said Thursday. She said the group sent telegrams to the White House, Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., the mayor and school district officials asking that Mrs. Ford's visit be canceled because of her views on abortion, premarital sex, drugs and the Equal Rights Amendment.

'King Kong' recalls role

BY BOB GREENE

© 1970 Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — I had a few hours to kill, so I went to call on King Kong.

He was where he usually is: on the sub-basement loading dock at the Continental Insurance Companies, where he p.m.-to-midnight shift as a uniformed security guard.

"Yeah, I was King Kong, all right," he said. "I guess there aren't a whole lot of people who remember."

His name is Carmen Nigro, he is 71 years old, he lives in a small apartment in suburban Cicero, and he did, indeed, play the title role in the classic 1933 movie, "King Kong."

"They used an animated doll for most of the sequences of the gorilla," Nigro said, sitting at a checkpoint table as the insurance companies' employees left for the day. "But for all of the scenes where they needed someone to act like a real gorilla — that was me. It was me on top of the Empire State Building, for example."

Nigro was referring to the famous scene where, perched atop what was then the world's tallest building, King Kong holds Fay Wray in his hairy palms, and is then attacked by a fleet of airplanes.

"What they did is they used a backdrop showing New York City," Nigro said. "Then they built a model of the very top part of the Empire State Building, and I stood on top of that. Most of the airplanes were really a movie projected on the backdrop. But they had about three of them little gas-powered planes, and they hooked the planes up to wires and pined 'em at me."

"The way it worked, I had this little doll in my hand that was supposed to be Fay Wray. I put the doll down on the ledge, and then I had to catch one of them little planes. I was wearing ballet shoes covered with fur, and I had rubber suction cups on the bottoms, so I could stay balanced on top of the building. It took about four hours to shoot it."

Nigro said that King Kong wasn't the only gorilla he ever played in the movies.

"Hell, no," he said. "I spent all that money to have my suit made — it took six bear skins to make it, and it cost me $2,500. I only made $7,000 for 'King Kong.' I was also in 'Mighty Joe Young,' 'Tarzan of the Apes,' 'Tarzan and His Mate,' 'Ape Man' — I played gorillas in about 25 or 30 movies. But I made about 133 movies in all, as a stunt man."

He said that the competition for the role of King Kong was limited, but intense.

"There was a fellow in Hollywood named Charles Gormer. He wanted the part," Nigro said. "But he really wasn't very good at being a gorilla. He was more like a chimpanzee, or an orangutan. Then there was another fellow, name of Van Horn, who wanted the part. But I got it, because I had a better costume to begin with, and I knew how to act like a gorilla better. I had been to Africa with Frank Buck, the great animal hunter, and I knew how an ape walked."

With that, Nigro got up from his seat at the desk, and began lumbering around the garage, very much in the manner of an ape.

"You see?" he said. "It's like this—Your gorilla thrusts his body forward, and he weaves. He has a side-to-side motion." Nigro demonstrated among the parked cars and trucks. "He isn't very tall when he's walking, but when he stretches out — Nigro stretched his arms toward the fluorescent lights on the ceiling — "he's much bigger."

Seemingly not winded, he returned to his seat.

"I don't play King Kong any more," he said. "After my movie days were over, I got a job on the railroad as a cook, and now I get my railroad pension, plus the money I make from this job. Once, Frank Buck had his 'Bring 'em Back Alive' show on the road, and one of his apes froze to death in a railroad boxcar, so he used me as 'The Perseus Gorilla' until he could find a real ape as a replacement and once the owner of a bar wired me to come into his place one night in my costume, but a lady had a heart attack and the proprietor almost got sued

KING KONG, the huge gorilla that terrorized New York City and actress Fay Wray, now lives in Cicero, Ill., and works as a security guard. Carmen Nigro, 71, the original King Kong, Mighty Joe Young and hairy heavy in about 60 ape movies, displays ape mask. (UPI) because of it, so I didn't do that any more."

Nigro's nephew, George Nigro, said on the telephone that it's just as well. "Uncle Carmen is getting a little old to be going around in his gorilla suit," the nephew said.

"We have scraps of his career, but I'm glad that he's given up being King Kong. It might not be good for his health."

Carmen Nigro said that the disadvantages of being King Kong were many. "You ever been in a sweat box?" he said. "That's what it was like inside that gorilla costume. I'd have to take the head off every 15 minutes, just to get my breath. I still keep the costume around my apartment, even though it's disintegrating. It's made of six parts — the body, the head, two arms, and two extension hands."

"Used to store it in a trunk with gum camphor, but that's made in China, by the Red Communists, so I can't get any more. And mothballs stink up the fur, the smell never comes out. The costume's in pretty bad shape."

Although there is much talk in Hollywood of a remake of "King Kong," Nigro said that he wants nothing to do with it. "I'm just a security guard now," he said.

Panel urges Idaho Amtrak route

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Amtrak committee is urging residents of Idaho, Oregon, Wyoming and Utah to show their backing for a proposal to establish an experimental passenger train route through Idaho.

Dwight Jensen, Boise, chairman of the Idaho advisory committee, said officials of the office of the Amtrak president have told him that a decision on the experimental route probably will be made in April or May.

The directors then will choose between a route serving Boise and a route serving New Orleans, La., and Jacksonville, Fla.

Jensen said letters and telegrams of support should be sent to Paul Reistrup, Amtrak President, 955 L'Enfant Plaza North, S. W., Washington, D. C., 20024.

He also suggested that concerned citizens write to their congressional representatives urging the consideration of proposed route criteria submitted by Amtrak and to adopt criteria favorable to the Boise route.

Amtrak has submitted a packet of proposed criteria which, if adopted, would establish new rules governing the opening of new routes and the closing of old ones.

Jensen said he suspects the proposals might be a continuation of the political maneuvering that already has seen the Boise route delayed one year.

Such a play should not be allowed to further delay a route through Idaho, he said. The existing law clearly mandates a route through Idaho — and the rules of the game should not be changed now in order to avoid that routing.

He also argued that there already is a rail passenger service on about half the proposed New Orleans-Jacksonville route, that the rest of the route is served by Greyhound bus service as fast as a train would be and connecting with the existing train on a one-ticket arrangement.

Jensen said such convenient and fast arrangement does not exist in Idaho which is one reason the Idaho route should be established ahead of the New Orleans-Jacksonville line.

Oil import rule opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho's junior senator is opposing a proposed rule change by the Federal Energy Administration which he feels would raise gasoline prices in the West and encourage increased oil imports.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, said the proposed rule would grant subsidies to importers of foreign-refined residual fuel oil to the detriment of domestic refiners and consumers.

McClure joined other senators in telling Frank Zarb, administrator of the energy office, of their displeasure with the proposal. He said the rule change "would increase the total energy cost per household in most of the nation while decreasing the total energy cost per household on the Eastern Seaboard."

The rule would decrease the cost of gasoline and home fuel oil nationwide and it would encourage increased imports, thus increasing our dependence on overseas refiners.

McClure also said the proposed rule would create a new level of bureaucratic control to oversee the increased payment of entitlements.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am in shock. The other day I found my puppy which had been missing for two days. I happily went to show her to my husband, who is a dentist. (His office is in our home.)

When I walked in, I found him passionately kissing a woman patient in the dental chair! Naturally when they discovered me they were both very much embarrassed, and my husband tried to pass it off as a "holiday" kiss. Believe me, it was no holiday kiss. They were both putting everything they had into it!

The woman is married and younger than both my husband and me (we are middle-aged). We have children, and I don't want them to know. Also, I don't want to ruin my husband's practice by making a public stink of it. My husband insists there was nothing to it. I thought he was getting all the affection he needed at home, but maybe I was wrong. What should I do?

IN SHOCK IN MONTREAL

Holiday kiss?

DEAR IN: Don't mention the incident to him. Just carry on as though it never happened and let him frown himself trying to make it up to you.

DEAR ABBY: A seamstress wrote to you complaining because a lady expected her to work on clothes that reeked of H.O.

I don't know where the seamstress lives, but in Michigan, seamstresses and tailors are protected by law against such impositions. Anyone who sews for the public may refuse to accept a soiled garment. Or they may accept it and send it out to be dry-cleaned and add the cost of the cleaning to the cost of alteration.

SEWS IN MICHIGAN

DEAR SEWS: Seems like a good law. If other states don't have it, someone should start needing their legislators to mend their ways.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my 16-year-old son. Ever since Sonny was 12 years old he has been "in love" with someone. Right now he's in love with a 13-year-old girl. She lives out of town, and the phone bills he's been buying on me are unbelievable. He gave her a ring for Christmas. It wasn't very expensive. It looks like a diamond, but isn't. Anyway, Sonny wants to quit school and get a job so he can marry this girl. When I told him he was foolish to think of marriage at his age, he said that Romeo and Juliet were only 13 years old. (Is that true, or did Sonny just make that up?)

Actually, I don't care what Romeo and Juliet did. I don't want my son to marry any 13-year-old girl.

Can I stop him?

UPSET IN MINNESOTA

DEAR UPSET: Yes, Sonny and his girlfriend are much too young to marry in Minnesota without parental consent. And even though "Juliet" was 13 and Romeo was slightly older, times have changed a lot since 1300 A.D. (P.S.—But one friendly persuasion before resorting to the law.)

With two club tricks and shifts to a heart or diamond, South wins the trick and cashes the three top trumps. He doesn't mind about the failure of the Jack to fall since he is going to run diamonds until such time as East elects to trump in.

The score for bidding and making four spades is 620. The score for bidding and making five diamonds is 600.

This 20 points is worth its weight in gold in match points. It is just the merest trifle in rubber bridge!

Ask the Jacobys

An Oregon reader wants to know how often you will expect the defenders six cards in a suit to break 3-2.

The answer is that a suit breaks 3-2 a trifle over 36 percent of the time. It divides 4-2 just over 48 percent of the time; 5-1 some 14.5 percent and all six show up in one hand or the other 1.5 percent of the time.

Good service

FIRST time visitors to Pratt, Kan., may do a double take when they look up at the city's water towers. In very straight and businesslike lotters, the city leaders apparently have expressed some humor. On the opposite and seemingly serious side, the towers say "Pratt." (UPI)

BUHL — The Magic Valley Baptist Church at Buhl will feature the Singing Shook Family in a revival March 7-10, Sunday through Wednesday.

The Singing Shooks have been presenting sacred music concerts for more than 10 years in the West and Midwestern states, and in 1974 expanded into the Eastern states.

They share their testimony and special ministry of Western and family style gospel music in several states every year. In past years they have entertained in some of America's finest county fairs and auditoriums, but now have dedicated themselves to the rebuilding of "of American families" through their ministry in the Independent Fundamental, Bible Believing Churches, working to carry out the great commission. On Monday, the guest speaker will be Chester Whitaker, associate pastor of Jerome Bible Baptist Church.

Hoosier prof says killer bees 'bunk'

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A University of Notre Dame biology professor says those stories about South American killer bees headed for the United States are a lot of bunk.

Dr. Harold Esch said sensational reports of vicious Brazilian-based African bees moving north are caused mostly by Brazilians who discover the foreign bees have stingers.

"It's more a problem of the attitude of people rather than the attitude of the bees themselves," he said.

Esch explained that bees native to Brazil are stingless.

so Indians have become used to breaking open a nest to remove the honey without fear of being stung. Then they meet the African bees or those from other imported strains with stingers.

"The problem in Brazil is that people who have read reports about killer bees get fearful and they start trying really dumb things to eradicate them," he said.

He said Brazilians use hammers, axes—even flamethrowers—to get rid of the bees.

"The bees react to this treatment and sting people and the whole thing goes in a vicious cycle, creating new stories about killer bees."

Esch said he didn't find the African bees any more aggressive than those in Europe or North America.

African bees have been imported and crossed with United States strains for years, Esch said.

"A Michigan beekeeper imported a tremendous number of African queens. If Africanization produces super aggressive bees we should have been receiving reports of attacks by killer bees in southern Michigan and not here in Indiana."

Esch has traveled to South America several times in the past 10 years and says he never saw an incident involving attacking bees.

In 1964, Esch's wife worked in an area containing up to 50 hives of the so-called killer bees and was not attacked, nor even stung, he said.

While he dismissed the scare stories about the African bees, Esch said they can be dangerous if not handled properly and Brazilians may well consider the bees vicious.

"If you are allergic to bee stings, one sting can be enough to kill you if you do not receive proper care immediately," Esch said, adding that a high percentage of Brazilians may be allergic to bee venom because they are not used to it from native bees.

Perhaps as many as 100 Brazilians die from bee stings in a year, few more than the 200-300 bee stinging deaths that go largely unreported each year in the United States, he said.

Esch said all the killer bees in South America are supposedly descended from 28 queens of the African strain that escaped near Sao Paulo, Brazil, in 1957. But by the simple rules of genetics, he said, any aggressive tendency should be getting weaker in succeeding generations.

"Twenty-six queens is not very many at all compared with the numbers that have been imported into the U.S. from Africa," he said.

Feed grain use starts upswing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department said today recent attaché reports indicate the use of feed grains in foreign countries may be on the upswing after leveling off during the past two years.

In its weekly world trade and production roundup, USDA says Western European feed grain usage in 1975-76 is now expected to show almost a 1 million ton increase from 1974-75, while as of late 1975, the expectation was for a decline of about 500,000 tons.

Early forecasts for 1976-77 point toward sizable increases 4 to 6 per cent of feed grain use in many countries, apparently reflecting plans for expansion of livestock numbers, USDA says.

Soviet livestock numbers decline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department reported today that all classes of livestock on Soviet collective and state farms declined between Jan. 1 and Feb. 1.

In its weekly world trade and production report, USDA says cattle numbers during January fell off 1 per cent but remained substantially above a year earlier. Hog numbers continued to drop in January, by 700,000 head, and poultry numbers declined another 200,000, USDA said.

As of Jan. 1, total numbers for each class of Soviet livestock were down from a year earlier except for cattle, according to USDA figures. Hog numbers were estimated at 57.8 million head, down 17 per cent from Jan. 1, 1975, sheep and goat numbers at 145.9 million head were down 1.5 per cent and cattle numbers were put at 311 million head, up 1.5 per cent.

On collective and state farms, however, USDA said cattle numbers were up still more. January cattle numbers were 61.8 million head, up 5 per cent from a year ago. The component amounted to 27.4 million 1 per cent greater than a year earlier.

Hog numbers on collective and state farms were 41.9 million, 22 per cent below year earlier numbers. Poultry numbers were 358.8 million head, 9 per cent below the Jan. 1, 1975 numbers.

Grocers sue sugar firms

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Three Texas wholesale grocers filed a class-action suit Wednesday charging five large sugar companies violated federal antitrust laws to maintain sugar prices at artificially high and non-competitive levels in 19 states.

The suit was filed by San Antonio attorney Arthur Gogman on behalf of Piedras Negras Wholesale, Eagle Pass, Tex.; Saldana & Garza, Inc., San Antonio; American Sales and Service, Del Rio, Tex., and more than 2,500 other wholesale grocers similarly situated in the so-called Chicago-West and Southwest markets.

It charged that the Great Western Sugar Co., Denver, Colo.; Holly Sugar Corp., Colorado Springs, Colo.; California and Hawaiian (CAH) Sugar Co., San Francisco, Calif.; American Crystal Sugar Co., a New Jersey Corp.; and Amalgamated Sugar Co., Ogden, Utah, since sometime before 1970, "have engaged in a combination and conspiracy in unreasonable restraint of interstate trade and commerce."

According to the suit, 212 million hundredweights of domestic sales of refined sugar totaled $2.5 billion in the Chicago-West market area of Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado, Montana, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Texas and in Wyoming east of the town of Rawlins during 1974, including more than 20 million hundredweights worth $230 million in the Southwest market.

The suit charged the five big sugar firms conspired to fix and raise the base prices of refined sugar; to fix prepaid freight applications; to eliminate, restrict and prevent giving of allowances to customers for refined sugar, and to fix, raise, maintain and stabilize the effective selling price of refined sugar.

Butz keeps pledge in boosting supports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz Wednesday carried out a pledge to "compromise" with Congress by announcing a 3.5 cent a gallon increase in government milk supports effective April 1.

The increase will probably prevent any general retail price declines for dairy products for the foreseeable future, administration experts said.

Officials estimated the support increase will push lawyer costs for supporting dairy products to about $10 million for the year beginning April 1, an increase of about $5 million over costs in the current 1975-76 marketing season.

Butz had pledged Congress he would increase the milk price support if it would drop proposed legislation ordering an even steeper price hike.

Apparently, as part of the same compromise, Butz also said he will review the support quarterly in the future — in stead of semiannually — and will adjust prices again "if necessary to assure an adequate supply of milk."

Butz said the government's support for manufacturing grade milk will be set at 80 percent of the "fair" parity standard for the marketing year which begins April 1.

He said 80 percent will produce a support price of $8.12 per hundredweight, about 5.4 percent, or 42 cents, above the current support price of $7.71.

Butz' announcement made no mention of the fact he had disclosed plans to make the increase last month in a letter to senators just before a Senate vote which upheld President Ford's veto of a bill raising supports to 85 percent of parity.

Experts noted new support prices are close to current markets for major dairy products including butter and cheese.

The current $7.71 support was also equal to 80 percent of parity when it was set last October. But the parity price on which the support price is based — has itself risen since last fall because it moves up with inflation in farm costs.

Therefore, experts noted, it takes a higher dollar-and-cent support price to equal 80 percent of parity now than it did last fall.

Experts said market prices for milk, which are currently declining seasonally, since reaching a recent peak of around $10 per hundredweight for manufacturing milk last fall, probably will sink to the new support level this spring.

Glass suit names 19 DES makers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nineteen manufacturers of DES, a drug prescribed to prevent miscarriages, face a $25 billion class action suit which alleges the drug caused cervical cancer in female children of users.

The suit was filed Wednesday in Manhattan Supreme Court naming among other manufacturers of the drug (diethylstilbestrol), E.R. Squibb and Sons Inc., Abbott Laboratories, Eli Lilly Inc., the Upjohn Co., and the Rexall Drug Co.

Lawyer Aaron Broder brought the action on behalf of three local women, two of whom, he said, aged 23 and 24, developed cervical cancer and were forced to have hysterectomies.

He alleged, in court papers, that the companies "maliciously" submitted false information on the effects of DES to federal regulatory agencies with "reckless disregard for the truth concerning the hazards and dangers."

He said the drug "is proving as time goes on more and more lethal. There are cases of fatalities."

In addition to the punitive damages, the suit also asked that the companies set up a $500 million fund to provide examinations and treatment for the children of DES users and to set up research programs on the drug.

It is estimated that since the late 1940s, DES has been prescribed for millions of American women believed to be prone to miscarriage.

The drug had been used by gentlemen to fatten up livestock but federal authorities recently banned its use for that purpose.

TF plant wins engineer's honor

Autograph party Saturday

BLISS — An autograph party is scheduled Saturday from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Lenker Grocery Store for D. W. "Bud" Bliss, Hermiston, Ore., who has just published a book about his grandfather, for whom the town is named.

Entitled "Bliss, the Town and the Man" (the 70-page paperback is both the story of David Bradley Bliss and the early days of the town which bears his name.

TF sewage facility rated award winner

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls' new sewage treatment plant is an award winner.

The $7 million facility placed second in engineering excellence judging by Consulting Engineers of Idaho, a Boise-based group. The award was presented recently to Hamilton and Vueller, Inc., consulting engineers for the project.

The plant treats sewage from Twin Falls, Kimberly, Idaho, Pocatello and six minor industries. It can handle a load equivalent to a city of 250,000.

Consulting Engineers of Idaho pointed out five "unique design features" in presenting the award:

- Energy savings. The activated biofilter process saves 400 horsepower over an equivalent activated sludge process, resulting in annual power savings of $20,000 to users of the plant.
- Responsiveness to water quality goals. The plant is capable of meeting present as well as possible future water quality requirements through its built-in capability for expansion at minimum cost.
- Aesthetics. The facility is "well compatible" with its Snake River Canyon environment, according to the engineers.
- Operation. To aid plant operation and minimize operating labor requirements, a complete instrumentation and control system has been provided.
- Resource recovery. The treated sludge is safe for beneficial reuse, such as soil conditioner for food and fiber production and supplemental cattle feed.

The project will be entered in the National Engineering Excellence Award competition scheduled this month.

Court sessions conclude today

TWIN FALLS — The week-long Twin Falls session of the Idaho Supreme Court concluded today with arguments heard on two Magic Valley appeals.

The initial case this morning involved the appeal of three men from a conviction of a robbery charge. The three, Robert Gerhardt, Victor Guzman and Raymond Rudy Vigil were convicted by a jury in Cassia County. In their appeal, their right to a fair trial was violated since the jury which heard the case was composed entirely of Anglo-Americans while the appellants are all Chicano Americans. They also argued prejudicial evidence was secured by an unconstitutional search of their vehicle and that the state prejudiced the appellants by asking leading questions.

Final case before the court here was an appeal from the Idaho Industrial Commission ruling involving William Avery, appellant. The ruling denied Avery's claim for unemployment insurance benefits. The state commission ruled he had been discharged from his job with J and B Rental Tools, Twin Falls, for insubordination to the employer and therefore denied the claim for benefits.

Avery argued his actions did not amount to insubordination and that he did not disobey any order of his employer, jeopardize his employer's interest or in any way fail to perform assigned duties.

The Supreme Court convened here Monday morning to hear appeals from judgments and verdicts in Fifth Judicial District Court. During the week, the court heard arguments in 13 appeals. Information will be considered by the justices and verdicts announced later from Boise.

5 await action in narcotic bust

By CHARLOTTE BELL

Times-News writer

JEROME — Five people arrested in Jerome in January in what narcotics officials said was the largest pill bust in Idaho's history are still awaiting disposition of their cases.

An estimated 30,000 amphetamine pills were confiscated during a raid by police and narcotics officers on a private home in Jerome two months ago. Arrested in the raid were Sam and Deanna Wallace, both 22, Hal Ballard, 28, and Celeste Baidler, 29. Arrested a few days after the raid was David Alex McKay.

McKay appeared in Fifth District Court before Judge Theron Ward Wednesday and changed his plea of innocent to guilty on the charge of delivery of a controlled substance.

The change of plea was accepted by the court after Judge Ward explained to McKay he could receive a maximum sentence of life imprisonment on the charge.

Phil Becker, public defender, asked the court to release McKay on his own recognition.

However, it was brought out that McKay had jumped a bond in Twin Falls and that bench warrants had to be issued against him.

McKay's attorney denied the requested release but reduced McKay's bond to $1,000.

However, McKay is able to post the bond in Jerome County, he will be immediately picked up by Twin Falls County officials on a felony charge of obtaining property under false pretenses.

Sam Wallace, who pleaded guilty in January to charges of two counts of unlawful delivery of a controlled substance and a single count of possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver. She is also awaiting a pre-sentence investigation. The couple is presently free on bond.

His wife, Deanna Wallace, has also pleaded guilty to a single charge of possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver. She is also awaiting a pre-sentence investigation. The couple is presently free on bond.

Investigation.

Local firm sees daylight through cloud of debts

By GORDON JUDD

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Regal Homes believes it is starting to see some daylight at the end of a tunnel lined with its local creditors.

Company officials and an attorney, heading a committee of the firm's creditors met again this week for further discussions of the debt-ridden firm's exact financial condition.

The firm has now agreed to seek the cooperation of its secured creditors—among them Sierra Pacific Insurance Company, to forego any attempts to collect debts for the next 120 days.

If the secured creditors will agree to the sum of debt moratorium that the unsecured creditors are being asked to abide by, the company believes its chances for working out of its financial difficulties are good.

At the meeting this week, company president Claude T. Rowe presented documentation of the company's present debt and an idea of the firm's future plans, which include beginning construction of a 24-unit apartment building in Jerome. Rowe said his company's plant could be in production within two weeks if financing can be worked out to allow it to restart its construction line.

"This is what we are doing today... starting the rebuilding process," Rowe said. He said the Farm Home Loan Assoc. had already cleared the Jerome apartment project for a loan and that construction could be started as soon as Regal could get into production.

Attorney Emil F. Pike Jr., conferring Thursday that Regal had given the creditors' committee information that is assured him was complete and correct. Pike said, however, that the key to the debt moratorium being asked by the creditors was the cooperation of the secured creditors to agree with the unsecured creditors his committee represents on the debt moratorium.

Pike also confirmed that the company's efforts would be reported within the next week.

Regal, a large builder of modular housing, got into financial difficulties with its bank and had to curtail construction in 1975. Currently the company says it owes about $20,000 to local suppliers and says it has no way to pay its debts unless it can get back into production.

Minidoka hearing postponed

RUPERT — The Minidoka city council postponed two weeks because of objections raised concerning the commerce section.

The delay was postponed Thursday night by Lyle Barton, chairman of the county commissioners, to allow city councils and the county zoning commission to study the plan.

The public hearing will be held at 7 p.m. April 8 in the fifth district courtroom in the judicial building at Rupert. The hearing originally was scheduled for March 15.

Barton asked elected city officials Thursday if they would like the postponement commenting that he had heard objections that the March 25 date did not allow enough time for adequate input.

This occurred, however, in the days before food shortages, the energy crisis, rapid inflation and high unemployment, Stillings said. Now, he said, the bureau has decided that this is a good time to at least get on with planning irrigation projects.

A letter announcing the continuation of the Oakley Fan study project was sent to state and federal agencies last month.

Idaho, supplying supplemental water and irrigating new land in the Salmon Falls tract, west of the Oakley fan, has top priority. But, Ishburn Mayor Harold Hurst asked if "there was any chance of changing between now and then." The city of Rupert has already filed an objection to a commerce provision that would require annual reports with a cost accounting on forced labor exchanges.

A zoning commission had asked that the board be given a chance to consider the plan. It said other persons had contacted him with objections on the commerce section.

Planning chairman George Falker agreed that the postponement might be good.

"I think that people were within their rights; they should have it," he said. "I didn't agree with everything in their mind and I'm sure not everyone on the board agreed with everything either—I think that's the purpose of the public hearing."

Oakley ag development study reopened

By BILL LAZARUS

Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — The U. S. Bureau of Reclamation has reopened a study on agricultural development of the Oakley Fan area.

Between 1969 and mid-1973, the bureau had studied the possibility of supplying supplemental water to about 80,000 acres of irrigated land in the fan area and extending irrigation to another about 60,000 acres.

Part of a series "But the study was dropped in line with changes in national bureau policy. When the government decided to put top priority on irrigation projects, the Oakley Fan study fell out of favor, according to Fred Stillings, staffer in the planning division of the U. S. Bureau of Reclamation in Boise.

This occurred, however, in the days before food shortages, the energy crisis, rapid inflation and high unemployment, Stillings said. Now, he said, the bureau has decided that this is a good time to at least get on with planning irrigation projects.

A letter announcing the continuation of the Oakley Fan study project was sent to state and federal agencies last month.

Idaho, supplying supplemental water and irrigating new land in the Salmon Falls tract, west of the Oakley fan, has top priority. But,

Stillings said, the fan area comes second. The proposed State Water Plan for the Snake River Basin, recently released by the Idaho Department of Water Administration, also puts high priority on studies to develop the Oakley Fan.

The area fans out north from Oakley 40 to the higher country near Burley and about 100 miles south of Burley. It covers a total of about 160,000 acres.

Ground water pumping has supplied most of the water to the 80,000 acres of irrigated land in the area. But, in the early 1960's the Idaho Department of Water Administration found that ground water levels had critically diminished, and as a result prohibited new wells and curtailed pumping in much of the fan area.

The critical ground water level problem was the reason for first initiating a study of the Oakley Fan irrigation potential, Stillings said. It created a reason for placing development of the Fan area as a high priority, he said. With farmers in the fan area having a high investment on water-shed land, he said, there is an "obligation" in developing a water plan to "solve their water problems" before you go on and irrigate more land.

The irrigation project, Stillings said, is similar to that being planned for the Salmon Falls tract, although it would be more than twice as large.

Ranchers take case to Andrus

By BART QUENNEL

Times-News writer

FAIRFIELD — A Camas County rancher and his son, convinced something has to be done to stop the depletion of big game and sage grouse, have taken their case to Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Lee Tucker and his son Craig, lifelong residents of the Camas Prairie, went to Gov. Andrus Monday asking for a two-year moratorium on sage grouse hunting in Camas County.

Tucker said Andrus was "responsive" to the meeting and has drafted a letter to the Idaho Fish and Game outlining their proposal.

Nearly 1200 signatures supporting the two year moratorium on sage grouse hunting were presented to Andrus by the Fairfield men.

In his letter to the Fish and Game Gov. Andrus wrote that the Tuckers "... are not the habitual expert types that we sometimes run into."

"Should the commission be desirous of testimony prior to settling the seasons this year I will see that the Tuckers are available to the commission at anytime..." Andrus added. The moratorium request had the support of the Camas County commissioners who included a letter to the governor which was presented by the Tuckers.

"The near extinction of sage grouse in Camas County warrants our support of the petition. We realize that these peacocks are honored," the commissioners wrote.

Support for a big game hunting moratorium came from Camas County cattlemen. One longtime cattle rancher, Cotton Riley, included a letter which documented the decline in deer populations in Camas County.

"Last year I saw only a few does and a fawn," Riley wrote.

A range rider for 11 years in Camas County, Riley said he has observed a steady decline in the number of deer and elk on the Camas prairie in the last decade.

In his letter to Andrus, Riley said since 1973 the number of elk on Camp Creek in Camas County has declined from 45 to 8 in two years. The hunters are hard on the game...

Tucker said he appreciated the interest Gov. Andrus showed in the moratorium idea. "I don't want to get in a hassle with the Fish and Game," Tucker said, "we just want to present some facts and try to work this thing out."

The Idaho Fish and Game will set the 1978 big game and sage grouse hunting seasons in May. Tucker said he hasn't yet heard from the Fish and Game concerning his moratorium proposal.

Sierra must show evidence

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Attorneys for Sierra Life Insurance Co. of Twin Falls, Idaho, accused of being insolvent, last July, lost a preliminary motion Thursday for reinstatement of its Nevada license.

State Commerce Director Mike Melner, who is holding an administrative hearing on the issue, told the company it must present its evidence to show it was financially stable.

At the same time, evidence put on by the Nevada State Insurance Division showed there was "at least minimally a violation of statutes" and now it was Sierra's turn to put on its case.

The hearing was recessed for at least 20 days and a new date will be set later for resumption.

The State Insurance Division on July 30, 1975, said Sierra, which had 385 customers in Nevada then, was insolvent. At the two-day hearing this week, witnesses from the division said the Idaho firm had invested more than two per cent of its assets in a single mortgage which contrary to Nevada law and that the investments in some mortgages were overvalued in the financial statement.

Attorneys for Sierra however contend the insurance division never really knew the financial condition of the company on July 30.

Sierra attorneys said the division issued: "they said the state insurance division used a seven-month old report to gather information and never checked with company officials to determine if there were any changes."

Sierra Life operates in Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, New Mexico and Oklahoma and has about 20,000 policy holders.

The firm has filed a $14-million libel suit against Nevada State Insurance Commissioner Dick Rottman and his chief deputy Vernon Levery in federal court in Boise, Idaho, in connection with the incident.

GOODING — Advertisement of bids on construction of a replacement dam, at American Falls today awaits project approval of the secretary of the interior.

Cecil Hobday, authorized representative in the construction for spaceholders at the reservoir, said today the three-man committee still hopes to open bids for the estimated maximum $44.7-million project on April 20.

"The schedule is pretty tight," he said, but he felt it could still be met. If Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe does not delay his decision until Monday, the Interior Department for consideration before the dam contracts are approved.

More new snow for MV skiers

TWIN FALLS — Skiers will find between six inches and two feet of new snow this week as a result of storms during the past few days.

The Sawtooth National Forest recreation report for this weekend states sunny skies and cold temperatures as of Thursday but warming and clearing trends today.

Soldier Mountain reports eight inches of new snow Saturday, a total of six inches at the lodge and 60 inches on top of the slopes.

Rotarun at Hatley has six inches of new snow with 36 inches total depth.

Sun Valley received nine inches of new snow this week and now has 63 inches at the top of Bald Mountain—41 at the Roundhouse and 23 on the valley floor.

Magic Mountain reports 12 inches of new snow since last weekend. Total depths are now 44 inches at the lodge and about 50 at the top of the ski lift.

Pomeroy reports 24 inches of new snow during the week. The resort has 90 inches of snow at the lodge.

Snowmobiling is listed as excellent in the South Hills, north of Fairfield, but only fair to good in the Wood River Valley and Stanley Basin areas. Cross country skiing is good to excellent throughout the forest.

Dam bidding awaits OK

GOODING — Advertisement of bids on construction of a replacement dam, at American Falls today awaits project approval of the secretary of the interior.

Cecil Hobday, authorized representative in the construction for spaceholders at the reservoir, said today the three-man committee still hopes to open bids for the estimated maximum $44.7-million project on April 20.

"The schedule is pretty tight," he said, but he felt it could still be met. If Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe does not delay his decision until Monday, the Interior Department for consideration before the dam contracts are approved.

The Gooding attorney is one of three representatives authorized to handle the details of the construction project. The two others represent American Falls Reservoir District No. 1, as primary constructing agent, and Idaho Power Co.

Hobday said two approvals are involved in the start of construction. The Bureau of Reclamation gave its approval of plans, specifications and designs for the new dam. That approval was delayed during meetings last week in Boise.

Hobday said that approval cleared the way for advertising for bids on those specifications but the entire project must await Kleppe's approval of contracts tying Idaho Power AP District No. 1, other spaceholders and the federal government to the construction program.

Despite the five day delay, the second allowed protest by the secretary, Hobday is optimistic that approval will be forthcoming soon.

He said the schedule calls for contractors to begin supplying materials and equipment at the end of June.

The American Falls Reservoir District No. 1 anticipates starting the sale of bonds that month, and gaining the advantage of lower interest rates expected this summer on non-taxable interest bonds.

for the Oakley Fan appears to be many years off. Stillings said the fan study project is scheduled to be completed in 1980. Studies of land quality, groundwater conditions, geologic conditions—economic feasibility—need to be continued, he said.

If the study is favorable, several steps, including obtaining authorization and funds from Congress and other study projects would have to be completed before a construction project would start. "Some of these things go on for years and years," Stillings said.

Change in ownership of land in the Oakley Fan also would have to be worked out if the area were to be further developed under a bureau project.

According to the bureau's 1974 status report, about 40 landowners owned on the average about 2,000 acres each in the fan.

If these landowners wanted to receive water from the Oakley Fan, Division project, they would have to comply with acreage limitations set for federal reclamation projects. "Of federal reclamation projects, project water cannot be delivered to more than 150 acres in a single ownership or more than 320 acres owned by a man and wife unless the landowners agree to sell their excess lands within 10 years," the report states.

Hayes, Hill share Citrus tourney lead

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Young Mark Hayes finished a red-hot putter while veteran Mike Hill depended on his irons Thursday, but the result was the same — both shot 7-under-par, 65, to share the first round lead in the Citrus Open.

Hayes, appearing to get progressively better in his third year on the pro golf tour, made five of his eight birdie putts from 12 feet or further, two of them from more than 20 feet.

Hill, "putting much better than I have been of late," made seven birdie putts, but only two of those were from outside 10 feet.

Even with those glimmers, Hayes and Hill were only one stroke ahead of Gary Brewer and only two ahead of Kennel Zarley, four rookie George Burns, Pat Fitzsimons and John Schroeder.

The early finishers complained about the brisk wind that buffeted the Rio Pinar course all day and about the tough pin placements. But Hayes said he thought the course "played a little easier with the wind," and added that the greens were so good "all you had to do was read 'em right and stroke 'em."

"I don't like to play in the wind," said Hill.

"But, when you're hitting the ball close in the hole, you don't notice the wind. I hit my iron shots just sure."

Jack Nicklaus, winner of this past week's Tournament of Champions, and Johnny Miller, the No. 2 money winner on this year's tour, are not playing in the Citrus Open.

Leading money winner Ben Crenshaw, 23 strokes behind Nicklaus this past week, got off to a reasonable start with a 70. Arnold Palmer, a big favorite in this mid-Florida area where he owns a golf course, was grumbling about his 74 and defending champion Lee Trevino and Gary Player both had 75s.

J.C. Snead, winner at San Diego and second in the TPC, had a 70, and Hale Irwin, the Los Angeles winner, had a 74.

British Open champ Tom Watson was three strokes back at 77 along with early leader Rick Adcox, Gary McCord and Gene Jones. Bob Murphy, always a threat in his native Florida, and South African Bobby Cole were among the 68 shooters.

Oregon nips Beavers

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Ron Lee set a Pacific 8 Conference career scoring record and led Oregon with 24 points Thursday night as he paced the Ducks to a 57-50 win over Oregon State.

Lee's last basket gave the Ducks the victory. Both Oregon and Oregon State ended the regular Pac-8 season with 10-4 records, leaving them tied for second behind UCLA.

Washington, also 9-4 has one game left and so do the 10-3 Bruins. With 55 seconds left and the Beavers leading 54-53, Lee sank two free throws. OSU's Tim Hemmery then dropped in two free throws, only 30 seconds to go. Lee ended the scoring with 13 seconds remaining on a 15-foot jumper.

Lee's four-year career scoring total in Pac-8 games rose to 1,061.

Only four independents selected for NCAA regional tourney berths

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The NCAA named only four independents to fill the 11 at-large berths in its 32-team championship basketball tournament, but the NCAA selection committee says the figure is deceptive.

"The four independents we selected this year — Marquette, Notre Dame, Nevada-Las Vegas and Virginia Tech — were the strongest in the consensus of the committee in terms of records and schedules," said Ken Carr, a committee member and athletic director at San Diego State.

"On the surface it may appear a bit different than it is in reality," said Carr. "Last year there were five independents selected but you should note that the Metro Six is a new conference and it encompasses six of the better independents of a year ago and two representatives of that conference were extended invitations this year."

The Metro Six championship, being decided in a tournament this weekend, was among 17 conference champions as well as the champions of the Eastern College Athletic Conference's four regional tournaments given an automatic berth in the tournament.

When the NCAA named its at-large berths, it invited a second Metro Six team — either No. 17, Louisville or 18th-ranked Cincinnati.

Second teams were also invited from the Southeastern Conference, either No. 7 Alabama or No. 13 Tennessee; the Pacific 8, 11th-ranked Washington; the Big 10, No. 9 Michigan; and the Atlantic Coast Conference, third-ranked North Carolina or No. 8 Maryland, as well as a second team from the ECAC Metro New York-New Jersey tournament, either fourth-ranked Rutgers or 16th-ranked St. Johns.

One spot was left to be filled during a committee conference call on Sunday. It will go to Utah as the second team from the Western Athletic Conference, Kansas State as the second Big Eight team or independent DePaul. If either Utah or DePaul are picked, Virginia Tech will play in the Midwest Region but if Kansas State gets the bid, Virginia Tech will compete in the East.

"The final shot was the most difficult to nail down," said Carr. "The committee wishes to wait until the final weekend before making a final decision."

Among the top independents overlooked were Oral Roberts and Florida State.

Raft River to play Oakley for crown

MURTAUGH — Raft River cranked up its running game in the fourth quarter Thursday night, to overhaul Castleford 52-43 and advance to the fifth district A-4 championship game.

The Trojans, seeded No. 1 at the tournament's outset, had three quarters of misery from Castleford's stingy defense but once Del Hutchison and Kay Harper started clicking, things quickly turned Raft River's way.

The result sends Raft River against undefeated Oakley at 8:30 p.m. Friday night. Oakley could clinch it by winning Friday but if Raft River takes the game the tournament will go into sudden-death Saturday night at 6 p.m.

Friday's possible final will be preceded by a jaycee championship battle between Oakley and Murtaugh. Castleford's Jayvees, seeded 16th, will play Thursday by downing Hagerman 59-38 while Oakley earned the right to play Murtaugh for the crown by outlasting Raft River 40-43 in overtime.

Raft River ran into six-point efforts in the first and third quarters which allowed Castleford to hold the lead most of the time. But Castleford's scoring dwindled to eight points in the decisive fourth quarter.

Raft River went 5:20 without a point to open the game but Castleford wasn't let warmer and led only 7-0 at the end of the span.

The Trojans warmed up in the second quarter as Rick Harper hit seven points and Russusson and Cottle five and four, respectively, for a narrow 23-22 lead at intermission.

The third quarter belonged to Castleford as the Wolves strode ahead 35-29 before hit three-field goals. Keller opened the last period with a bucket to make it 37-29 but then on it was all downhill for the Wolves.

Harper and Hutchison hit eight points each and Briggs added four to decide it. Harper started the flurry with two medium range jumpers with Hutchison adding a layin and Russusson a follow shot.

Briggs scored off the offensive boards and Harper rang in four more points — all while Castleford could muster only a field goal by Howard.

N.C. teams fail on Maryland court

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — During the 22 years the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball tournament was held in North Carolina, out-of-state teams often complained it was an advantage for the "Big One."

Perhaps they were right. Thursday, in this year's opening round at the Capital Centre in suburban Washington, three North Carolina teams played — and lost.

Duke lost eighth-ranked Maryland on the ropes but missed three one-and-one free throw opportunities in the final 13 seconds of regulation and lost, 70-78, in overtime. Virginia surprised 20th-ranked North Carolina State, 75-74, and Clemson dumped Wake Forest, 76-63.

In tonight's semifinals, Clemson meets third-ranked North Carolina at 7 p.m. and Maryland plays Virginia at 9 p.m. The winners meet in Saturday's 8 p.m. final with a berth in the NCAA tournament at stake.

"Hey, we coast 'em," so don't say they all got beat," joked Ted Heel, coach Dean Smith, whose team will go to the NCAA regardless of its performance because it won the league's regular season title.

Asked if the thought his club might pick up some support from disgruntled Deacons, Blue Devil and Wolfpack fans in the capacity crowd of 19,000, Smith shrugged.

"I don't know if the fans are cheering for our team," Smith said. "They want them to fall flat on their faces," he said.

Duke, largely on the shooting of guard Tate Armstrong, forged a 45-39 halftime lead but it slipped away in the second half as the Terps got superior inside play from Steve Sheppard and Chris Patton.

With the Devils ahead 74-72 and 13 seconds left, Mark Crow missed the first half of a one-and-one, but Duke got the rebound. Four seconds later, guard Paul Fox missed a one-and-one and the game time happened.

Why the "patent medicines" originally were so called remains a mystery. Hardly any of them actually were patented. It's not that they couldn't have been patented. But the makers would have had to list their ingredients, but not the magic contents usually claimed they didn't want to reveal the magic contents to competitors. In fact, they didn't want to make a record of the alcohol content with whatever innocuous flavorings.

Tired of winter? Longing for spring? Visit Cornell University's ornithology lab. More than 4,000 tape recordings there will let you listen to 600 species of birds' songs, tra la la la.

Latest calculations show the average cost of producing a business letter now is $3.78.

LOVE AND WAR

Q. "Ask your Love and War man whether I should tell my boyfriend that I was faking?"
A. He says you only need to make a point of letting him know if you expect him to find out.

The husbands who kill their wives outnumber the wives who kill their husbands by about four to one. Not much works better to leave your windshield streakless than rubbing alcohol. As for the people aboard ocean liners, the children under a year old aren't regarded as passengers. Most of the Louisiana Cajuns who speak French can't read or write same. A man typically devotes as much time to shaving in his life as he puts into 312 eight-hour working shifts.

HORSE RACING

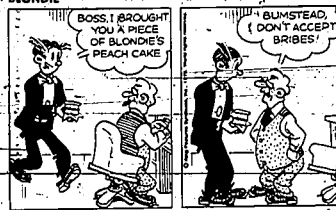

In that matter of who first set down generally acceptable rules and regulations for horseracing credit a woman. Specifically, Queen Anne of England. Make mention of this point because numerous turf-writers of late report that the girls are finally taking their rightful places in the sport of kings. Finally, my foot. Queen Anne positioned the first gold cup prize, authorized the first cash purse, and then proceeded to win it herself on her own mount. In 1614, that was.

Am not absolutely certain the raped women in this country outnumbered the raped men in Japan by two to one, but that's what the police records indicate. Could be a matter of erratic reporting, though.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

My husband has a condition known as gynecomastia. We are hoping you can suggest something to do or someone to see about correcting this.

He is six feet tall and weighs about 190 pounds. He feels very sensitive about his appearance. Once an avid swimmer, he doesn't do this anymore and will only wear certain types of shirts. — Mrs. F.

Husband sensitive

This is an enlargement of the breasts in males. It occurs in about 10 per cent of adolescent boys, but tends to disappear in about a year as they mature. The cause is hormonal.

Males produce a predominance of the male hormone testosterone, but they also produce some estrogen (the female hormone). If the amount of testosterone is reduced, as it can be in older males, the estrogen imbalance can cause such enlargement. Men on digitalis may also experience breast enlargement.

Also, certain glandular defects (pituitary and sex glands) as well as cirrhosis of the liver can cause gynecomastia. The cirrhosis-related gynecomastia occurs because the damaged liver cells do not carry out their function in handling estrogen. The result is an increased level in the blood.

Unless the cause of the gynecomastia is found and treated, there is really little to be done. It often disappears without treatment. Remember, too, that breast tissue is largely fat, and enlargement can accompany obesity, in which case reducing is the answer.

If the condition is causing psychological damage, as in your husband's case, he might be a rare candidate for surgery to reduce the size of the breasts.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

My foot problem. It is in the middle toe, and I have been told it is a pinched nerve which must be killed. I've never heard of this before. I have had a series of cortisone shots, but with no results. Please explain and suggest something!

This sounds like Morton's toe, or "plantar neuroma," as it is also known. In this condition, the nerve in the middle of the foot at the web space between the third and fourth toes. The thickening occurs at a point where the nerve branches out to serve these two digits.

If cortisone or adjustment of foot mechanics (special arch supports) do not relieve the situation, surgical removal of the tumor is necessary. Nerve involvement, which you mention, strongly suggests the presence of Morton's toe, but you should obtain a definite diagnosis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

Is there an age limit for receiving the mumps vaccine? My daughter will soon be 18 and has never had mumps or received the vaccine. Is there any risk involved? — Mrs. G.S.

The chief risk in mumps is the possible effect on the reproductive organs. The most common complication is orchitis, infection of the testes when mumps is contracted after puberty. A similar complication in the ovaries can occur in post-pubescent females, but this is not common.

There is a skin test that can determine whether your daughter is now immune. She may have had childhood mumps in a very mild form, so mild as to have escaped detection at the time.

I suggest you have this skin test done, then leave it up to your physician as to whether immunization now is advisable.

Safety rules postponed

© N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — A federal agency that has been criticized by President Ford for being too tough on business has postponed until after the November election the adoption of a group of new safety regulations that could affect the health of millions of employees.

The postponement of the promulgation of new standards setting industrial exposure levels for such cancer-causing agents as asbestos and beryllium and for more general health problems such as excessive noise was disclosed in a standards development schedule prepared by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration on Feb. 23. A copy of the schedule has been obtained by the New York Times.

Joe Mancias, a spokesman for the agency, said in response to an inquiry about the postponements that "we are concerned about dates, but no final decision has been made on scheduling."

Inmates due medical tests

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — State penitentiary inmates who were exposed to large doses of radiation as part of medical experiments on sex organs are now being offered "extensive medical tests."

In addition to the experiments on 67 men, corrections officials revealed Wednesday that medical experiments were conducted on 12 female inmates between 1957 and 1962. The women were paid between $25 and $125 each to act as guinea pigs in a University of Oregon Medical School "hormonal" research program.

Corrections officials said no followup studies have been done on the women or the men. It is not known whether any of the women still remain at the Women's Corrections Institution.

Darrell Buttle, information officer for the Department of Human Resources, said that state "inmates" who participated in the radiation experiments are now being offered extensive medical evaluations to make certain they are not suffering adverse after-effects from the experiments.

President Ford, business groups and business men all over the country have made the agency a favorite target in widespread criticism of all kinds of federal regulations.

In a speech early last month in New Hampshire, for example, Ford told his business men audience that he knew they would "like to throw O.S.H.A. into the ocean." And he said he had instructed it to start dealing "with citizens as friends, not enemies."

"I will not tolerate the unnecessary and unjustified harassment of citizens," the President said.

Others, including the President's Council of Economic Advisors, have criticized the safety agency as being ineffective.

Proclamation of a new exposure standard for ammonia, for example, which the government estimated is handled by 500,000 workers, was moved from June 1975 to February 1977, Asbestos, a carcinogen that is directly handled by 100,000 workers and indirectly by 3 million to 5 million construction workers and shipping employees, was moved from July 1976 to at least January 1977.

The major cause cited in the agency's delay in publishing final standards was a requirement by the Ford administration that an inflationary impact statement be prepared before promulgation of major new federal regulations. An inflationary impact statement estimates the cost to industry of adopting a given proposal and supposedly the benefits that will be realized from it.

In virtually all of the cases, the postponement means that the standards scheduled for before the election in November will now be promulgated after it.

LEARNING about farm animals by first hand experience in an FFA-sponsored program, these Bickel fourth graders enjoy a visit from a live lamb. Julie Carney, FFA girl from the Twin Falls High School, holding lamb, is one of several assisting with elementary school programs on agriculture.

Students learn food chain

TWIN FALLS — Future Farmer of America members of the Twin Falls High School have joined a national "Food for America" program and are working to give elementary school children a better understanding of food production.

This week six FFA boys and girls from the high school visited Elgin, Harrison, Bickel, Morningstar and Sawtooth fourth graders to present displays of food products and overhead slide programs.

As part of the displays, a live lamb visited the youngsters and became a hit and while FFA members say they probably didn't encourage too many to eat lamb chops, the children observed first hand the beginning of meat production.

"Food for America" is an effort by FFA chapters across the country to tell elementary school students the story of modern agriculture. The FFA members are assisted by an instructional resource material kit including a farm art book and the overhead slides.

In the Farm Art Book agricultural illustrations which the youngsters can color in his own fashion and which illustrate the farm information accompanying them.

The "Food for America" project is co-sponsored through the National FFA Foundation Inc. and four agricultural businesses including the American Breeders Service, division of W. H. Grace and Co., J. I. Case, a Tennessee Co., Chemagro Agricultural Division of Moly Chemical Corp., and DPKATV.

John Gibson, FFA advisor in Twin Falls, said there is much concern that so few young children understand where their food comes from and the production of farm products in this farming area.

Andy Wiseman, president of the Twin Falls chapter, said the FFA members have set up six booths on agricultural products which are touring the grade schools.

Working with him are FFA members Marlin Nussbaum, Sam Wiseman, Charles Southwick, Treva Watkins, and Julie Carney. Each demonstrates one of the booths which are built around "agricultural products. These include sugar beets, lamb, dairy products, beef meat, grains and by products of animal production including leather.

Klansmen chartered

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The King Klegle of an "open, legal" and "absolutely non-subversive" chapter of the Ku Klux Klan received the group's state charter Wednesday as a non-profit corporation and said the Klan plans to emulate NAACP tactics to regain the rights of whites.

"The NAACP has taught us we can be whipped legally and politically and we're fighting back the same way," said Gordon Galle, a paint supervisor in Piquetteville. Galle and Imperial Wizard Bill Wilkinson of Denham Springs, La., picked up the group's charter at the secretary of state's office. According to Wilkinson the new Klan, officially known as The Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, is already operating in Texas, Louisiana and Alabama.

Wilkinson refused to disclose membership figures for the organization, but he said it is one of 35 "so-called Klans."

US troops to pull out

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — A senior American official indicated today that between 200 and 400 U.S. military personnel may remain in Thailand beyond the scheduled withdrawal date for all troops, a Thai student leader said.

A U.S. Embassy political counselor Thomas F. Conlon also said Bangkok and Washington have not yet agreed on a final timetable for American troop withdrawals, according to the student leader.

Chirach at Marukapitak, deputy secretary-general of the National Student Center of Thailand, said Conlon told the organization, "U.S. forces and troops will pull out of Thailand, but the U.S. government does not think that the definite schedule is essential."

The Thai government has called for complete withdrawal of American military personnel by March 20 and Chirach said the powerful NSCT, which strongly opposes a continued U.S. military presence, would consult with Thai Prime Minister Kukrit Pramoj on the matter.

"Mr. Conlon said by this time (March 20) there will be about 2,000 to 3,000 American servicemen in Thailand, and when they will get out of Thailand depends on the decision of the Thai government," Chirach said.

Military spokesmen said there are about 5,000 U.S. troops now in Thailand.
