Truck talks go on

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — Representative lives of the Teamsters Union and the trucking industry resumed talks today aimed at averting a nationwide truckers' strike set for midnight Wednesday.

Labor Secretary W.J. Usery worked with the bargaining teams into the early morning hours and an industry source said the talks resumed shortly after 8 a.m. after the negotiators had a few hours rest.

A blackout covered the intensive talks but union sources said a new industry wage offer was on the table. A Teamster spokesman described the offer as "insufficient."

Ford administration officials plotted strategy to deal with a strike, which could bring the nation's recovering economy to a virtual standstill.

Some 400,000 Teamsters have voted overwhelmingly to strike at midnight Wednesday if no national "master freight agreement" is reached.

The current pact, covering warehousemen and over-the-road truckers, expires at midnight Wednesday.

It would be the first nationwide Teamster walkout in more than a decade.

Union sources indicated President Ford may take a personal role in efforts to attain a strike-free settlement — possibly calling negotiators to the White House.

But in Washington, White House press secretary Ron Nessen said Ford hoped the negotiators could settle their differences without presidential intervention.

Nessen would not say whether Ford would order an 80-day cooling off period under the Taft-Hartley Act if the Teamsters do strike.

However, Justice Department officials said work had begun to lay the groundwork for a Taft-Hartley injunction.

Usery and James Seare, head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, began renewed talks with negotiators for major trucking companies and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters Monday.

Union sources said the industry had upped its wage offer of 20 per cent over 39 months but that it still fell "well short" of Teamster demands for 39 per cent in 36 months.

The 20 per cent offer was defeated, resoundingly in weekend balloting, in which Teamsters authorized a walkout.

"The present offer does not come close to the mark and in no way justifies a 39-month contract," a source close to negotiations told UPI.

Industry negotiators have maintained that a 39-month contract is imperative. If trucking firms are to offset increased labor costs through freight rate hikes, which must be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Union negotiators are holding strong for a 36-month contract, saying any longer contract would have to be compensated for by substantial wage and benefit increases.

License lineup

HUNDREDS of automobile owners jammed the Twin Falls County Courthouse this morning, attempting to beat the price hike on license plate stickers. Ron Taylor, county assessor, said he expects a similar situation Wednesday. Prices will increase about $10 on a new automobile as of April 1. Lines this morning filled the main floor lobby, extended up the two stairwells and onto the second floor.

Hussein says Mideast at crossroads

WASHINGTON (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan told President Ford today the Middle East is at the "crossroads of war and peace," and its future will greatly depend on the United States.

Hussein, praised by Ford for being America's most loyal friend in the Arab world, said the future course of the Middle East largely "will rely on your leadership."

With full military fanfare, Ford welcomed Hussein and his wife, Queen Alia, to the White House, calling him a "sincere" and "loyal" friend of the United States. It was Hussein's 17th U.S. visit.

Arab-Israeli rioting flares

DEIR HANA, Israel (UPI) — Arabs hurling rocks, flaming torches and firebombs battled Israeli forces in northern Galilee today in the worst outbreak of Arab rioting in Israel since the birth of the Jewish state 27 years ago.

Authorities reported six persons were killed, dozens wounded and hundreds arrested as the first general strike by the nation's minority Arabs crippled commerce in Galilee. West Bank and annexed East Jerusalem.

Left-wing Arab officials' elting "information from the people," told of one more death and accused the battle-equipped Israeli troops of provoking the violence.

Arab and Jewish informants reported incidents across Galilee but the worst of the unrest was at the three-village complex of Deir Hana, Sakinin and Araba. The area was sealed off by strong security forces.

A government communique said troops and police shot three Arab youths to death in Sakinin Tuesday morning after killing a young Arab man in Araba the night before. Fighting Arab officials reported another youth slain in Araba.

A government communique reported one Arab killed at Tira, 22 miles north of Tel Aviv.

Gem HS student scores fall

BOISE — The downward slide in test scores of Idaho high school juniors continued this year as test performance dropped in areas of vocabulary, math, social studies, use of sources, and reading comprehension.

But scores held steady in areas of total reading, language arts, science background, language usage and spelling, according to the State Department of Education.

When all separate test areas were combined into a composite score, the state's student test record for the 1975-76 school year stood at the 48th percentile compared to national standards.

This means that 51 per cent of the nation's students would test higher than the Idaho group, and 47 per cent would test lower.

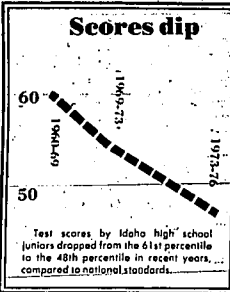

The composite test performance shows a downward trend through the years. In the 1969-69 period the Idaho test takers had been in the 61st percentile nationally. By the 1969-72 period the Idaho composite score had dropped to the 55th percentile.

In the 1975-76 year, the Idaho composite score again fell to the 48th percentile, where it has remained.

Those test areas which declined, compared with last year's percentile performance, were: Vocabulary, 47th percentile, compared to the 57th percentile the year before; math, down to the 43rd from the 50th percentile; social studies, down to the 31st from the 47th percentile; use of sources, down to the 42nd from the 47th percentile, and reading comprehension, down to the 47th from the 52nd percentile.

Those test areas where percentile results held constant were: total reading, 54th percentile; language arts, 49th percentile; science background, 49th percentile; language usage, 48th percentile, and spelling, 43rd percentile. Supt. of Public Instruction Roy Truby said "We're concerned and we're not going to try to rationalize about it."

Idahoans challenge ban on alcohol

BOISE (UPI) — Students from Idaho's three state universities have quietly filed suit contesting Board of Education rules prohibiting the possession or consumption of alcoholic beverages on campuses.

The suit filed in Fourth District Court at Boise contends the rules and regulations are unequally enforced, deprive students of their constitutional rights to privacy and were improperly adopted in the first place.

The students also contend the rules adopted June 14, 1973, deny them due process and equal protection of the laws.

The suit was filed by Tracy Miller on behalf of the Associated Students at Boise State University, Richard W. Boeger and Associated Students at The University of Idaho, Andrea M. Hanson and Associated Students at Idaho State University.

James Hargis, deputy attorney general assigned to the board, said he will inform the board of the suit and discuss it with the board members during their meeting Thursday and Friday in Pocatello in preparation for making a response to the suit.

The board under Idaho statutes is the regulatory agency for the supervision and control of educational institutions in Idaho.

The brief filed by William R. Snyder, Boise, on behalf of the students said the rule is null because the board failed to follow its own procedural rules in promulgating such substantive rules and failed to follow procedures of adoption and publication as set out in the Idaho Code.

The students argue that the rule is unequally enforced because it attempts to control the possession or consumption of alcohol by unmarried residents of campus housing but not of members during their meeting Thursday and Friday in Pocatello in preparation for making a response to the suit.

the married students living in campus housing, nor of the students living off campus.

The students also said the legislature enacted laws concerning alcoholic beverages, the ages for consumption, identification needed for purchase, places for sale and consumption, offenses for drunkenness, and preempted other state agencies from promulgating rules controlling the same.

The rules in student handbooks involving the enforcement by investigation of the legal residences deny the individual's right to privacy, the students said.

They allege the rules were adopted not because "of the best interest of students and education but rather was decided on political sentiment and/or constituency feeling all without regard to fact."

The suit is asking the court to declare the rules null and void as proper and legal rules, for a declaration that the rules deprive students of their constitutional rights and privileges.

No protests received on Gooding budget

BY LORAYNE SMITH Times-News writer

GOODING — The 1976 Gooding city budget of $630,000 was approved without any citizen protest at a special hearing Monday night.

It is 10 per cent higher than last year.

City Clerk George Silva said no one attended besides the councilmen and "we were through in 15 minutes."

The new budget provides for a lower garbage fee for residential patrons. Effective in April, the monthly rate for garbage and sanitation service to residences will be $2 instead of $2.50. Rates for businesses will remain the same.

$400 from last year, to $1,500, while the police department budget remains the same at $62,000. The fire department's planned expenditures will be $42,000 and includes a $22,800 increase to purchase a new truck and radio alert system.

The street department budget of $130,000 is down $3,478 from last year while the airport budget of $16,000 is an increase of $6,430 to provide repair for runways.

The recreation budget of $28,000 is $23,170 lower than last year. The 1976 recreation budget included $16,000 paid by the city as its share in the joint project with the school district to build tennis courts and a baseball field on the high school grounds.

The new library budget was raised $5,200 to $16,700 with plans to set aside money for a building fund, Silva said.

Despite the increase in the budget, anticipated revenue from local taxes is down 11 per cent. The city clerk said this is possible because expected revenue from state tax money in 1976 because of inflation, plus trimming on planned city expenditures.

He said $85,500 is budgeted from anticipated local tax money, with $4,110 expected in capital improvement tax about the same.

The revenue sharing budget of $38,000 is earmarked for building funds. The sewer budget of $56,500 is $9,700 lower than last year. The sanitation budget will be $58,500 with $58,000 also planned for irrigation expenditures and $65,000 for waterworks.

The water department budgeted an additional $16,250 above the 1975 figure for capital improvements in the water system.

He stressed, however, that Turkey would continue to cooperate militarily with the United States within the framework of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and also politically. One twister wiped out the entire business district of the central Arkansas community of Cabot in less than a minute, killing five persons, injuring more than 100, and smashing at least 60 buildings. A tornado cut a path two miles long and 200 yards wide in Canton, Miss. Civil Defense officials placed the toll figure at five dead, with more than 150 persons injured, at least 15 in critical or serious condition. Another twister crushed a 67-year-old man to death in the ruins of his home and injured five other persons at Drasco, Ark. In all, the National Weather Service said at least 44 tornadoes were reported Wednesday in seven states: Arkansas, Mississippi, Tennessee, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Illinois. The barrage continued Tuesday. Tornadoes spun out of stormy skies in south central Texas, toppling trailer houses and knocking down power lines. Ten persons were injured at Garfield, Tex., and five at Center Point, Tex. The vast storm system flared the minutes from Nebraska to the Gulf Coast. Heavy snow, driven by high winds, caused a power blackout over more than 1,900 square miles of south central Nebraska. Arkansas Gov. David Pryor, who ordered National Guardsmen to Cabot and viewed the devastation, said it was a "miracle" that more persons were not killed or injured.

Cabot, Ark., residents view tornado damage

"It's unbelievable, the power of the tornado," he said. "And I guess the amazing thing is, looking at all the damage—the whole town is literally wiped out—is that more people were not killed or injured. I think that is still one of the miracles." State Police Sgt. John Chambers said, "We don't know how many people were in the downtown business district; we hope we've pulled them all out; we hope we've got everybody." Grocery owner Jake Lawman, who was driving across town, took cover in a ditch. "It took about 45 seconds for the entire downtown area to be wiped out," he said. "Cars were stacked two and three deep." The tornado struck Canton, Miss., a witness said, "with a roar like nine or 10 jet planes." Hospital officials at Canton said more than 150 persons were treated for injuries.

Lebanese pushed toward truce

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) - Syrian and Palestinian pressure pushed Moscow leftists toward a cease-fire today amid indications that any failure to agree to a truce would bring Syrian military intervention. Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt and leftist allies called a conference today to discuss the latest Syrian-sponsored peace proposals. The talks followed a meeting Monday night between Jumblatt and Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization. The talks coincided with heavy new fighting in Beirut and across the country, as Christians and Muslims battled with tanks and artillery. The Middle East News agency said the northern port of Tripoli was threatened by an oil refinery fire fraging out of control. Political sources said Arafat urged Jumblatt to freeze the fighting for one week to enable parliament to meet and elect a new president. This would be done by the House approving a draft amendment to the constitution allowing for presidential elections six months prior to the expiration date for the incumbent head of state. President Suleiman Franjieh's term expires in September. Sources said Franjieh, despite protestations to the contrary, would resign when a new president was elected as part of a deal with Syria. Arab and military commander Brig. Gen. Aziz Abidat joined the appeal for a truce in a radio broadcast.

"Stop the fighting and this barbaric shelling which is only spreading death and destruction," he said. "I appeal to all military and civilian supporters of my movement to immediately contribute to a cease-fire." Chaos in Lebanon worsened with the failure of telephone and Telen systems in Beirut and outgoing telecommunications on leased lines to foreign countries ceased. It has not been possible to contact PTT technicians but it appears that equipment and batteries which had not been serviced for weeks had failed and that the engineers have been unable to put a proper current on telephone and tele lines. Christians and Muslim leftists battled in fierce new fighting in Beirut's hotel district today, the Middle East news agency said.

Japanese strike

TOKYO (UPI) - Transit, postal and communication workers staged a one-day strike today, crippling business and giving millions of Japanese an enforced holiday from their jobs. The Ministry of Labor said that 2.2 million workers from 50 unions struck for all or part of the day. The strike was Japanese Labor's first blow in its annual "spring struggle" for higher wages and other concessions from government and management.

Leftists hurl challenge to Argentina's Videla

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) - Left-wing guerrillas have launched a renewed campaign of violence in a direct challenge to the anti-terrorist government of newly installed military President Jorge Videla. In a series of incidents apparently timed to correspond with Lt. Gen. Videla's formal swearing-in Monday, left-wingers killed a ranking police official, exploded a bomb and attacked a police station. Three left-wingers died in the shootout, raising to 149 the number of political killings in Argentina since Videla led the coup that toppled former President Isabel Peron last week. Videla, Argentina's army commander and a staunch anti-Communist, took the oath of office in an austere 20-minute ceremony at the Casa Rosada presidential palace Monday. A few hours earlier, hooded terrorists shot and killed Chief Police Inspector Guillermo Pavan, spraying him with machine-gun fire as he left his home to go to work. Pavan's chauffeur was hospitalized with eight bullet wounds in the leg and in the chest. In an attack after the ceremony, a bomb exploded near a pedestrian overpass in the capital's Caballito district. Police reported no casualties. But Monday night, a "comrad" army unit police patrol killed three persons in a gunfight with about 20 guerrillas apparently on their way to attack a police station on the outskirts of Buenos Aires, the official news agency Tolam reported. The clashes posed a direct threat to Videla's government, which has pledged to eradicate Argentina's guerrillas. There has been no indication of how long Videla will remain as president, but he will retain his seat on the three-man junta that is scheduled to be replaced in three years. The junta, composed of Videla, air force commander Lt. Gen. Orlando Agosti and navy chief Adm. Emilio Massera, will be assisted by a nineteen legislative advisory committee in drawing up laws in cooperation with Argentina's disastrous economic slump. The country has an annual inflation rate of 423 per cent, a nearly empty treasury and huge balances-of-trade and balance-of-payments deficits.

Bonn grants Egyptian aid

BONN, West Germany (UPI) - West Germany granted Egypt aid of $80 million today and promised it still more as a sign of solidarity with President Anwar Sadat. The aid was provided in an agreement signed here today by West German Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher and Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy. Diplomatic sources said that the aid would not include the arms shipments Sadat seeks to replace those he sent the Russians refused to deliver. He abrogated the Egyptian friendship treaty with the Soviet Union last week because of the arms embargo.

Sadat, on the second day of his two-week trip to Europe in search of arms and aid, conferred for two and one-half hours at the Chancellery with Chancellor Helmut Schmidt. "The meeting fulfilled all my expectations," he told reporters in a brief impromptu news conference he held with Schmidt. But in answer to a question, he added, "We did not discuss arms."

Swisher about set to try for seat on Idaho court

POCATELLO (UPI) — Rep. Perry Swisher, D-Pocatello, has just about decided to apply for a vacancy on the Idaho Supreme Court.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus recently suggested the Judicial Council consider a layman for the post vacated by the resignation of Justice Henry F. McQuade who took a federal job. He mentioned Swisher as a potential candidate.

"It's more likely than not that I will," Swisher said. "It may be too big a temptation to resist. It really has caught my imagination."

A veteran of both houses of the legislature Swisher has served in both parties and in 1966 campaigned as an independent for governor after Don Samuelson won the GOP nomination.

Swisher agrees with Andrus that the Idaho Constitution does not prohibit laymen from serving on the high court. He said the council cannot impose restrictions on an office that the Constitution does not require.

"Unlike Attorney General Wayne Kidwell and some other lawyers I know, I can read the Idaho Constitution," Swisher said, "and it just says 'the governor shall appoint the justices.'"

Andrus' suggestion that a layman be considered for the post struck an immediate wellspring of opposition from within the Idaho Bar.

Don Burnett, Pocatello, executive director of the Judicial Council, said the council will meet in Boise April 24 to consider applications for the vacancy. He said the members have decided not to comment at this time on whether lay persons could be recommended to the governor for consideration.

The deadline for making application for the vacancy is April 12.

Idaho students hold own in 5 subjects, lag in 5

Barry Bull, planner and statistics consultant from the Department of Education, put together and analyzed the test data from the participating school districts.

Bull said the analysis found another factor which concerns him. It appears that among the students taking the test, the percentage of those who do extremely well is falling while the number of those doing very poorly is rising.

However, he said Idaho still has a smaller proportion of students who score extremely low on the test than the national sample.

Truby said the percentiles have gone down slightly over a period of 10 years.

"The accumulation, though not alarming, gives us cause for concern," he said.

The specific percentile rankings for 1975-76 are: 49 in vocabulary — down from 57; 54 in total reading; 49 in language arts; 43 in math — down from 50; 41 in social sciences — down from 47; 49 in science background; 42 in use of sources — down from 47; 47 in reading comprehension — down from 52; 48 in language arts usage and 43 in spelling.

If should be noted, however, that the median scores are expressed in whole numbers only so a drop of one point means a corresponding drop of from four to eight percentile points on the national norms.

Out of Idaho's 121 high schools, 109 of them participated in giving the test to a total of 13,629 students out of the state's 15,403 high school juniors.

Truby said results of the test "are one reason we're having an extensive review of high school graduation requirements, possibly to include performance-based graduation requirements."

He said this also is one of the reasons the State Department of Education in 1976-77 hopes to take a sample of Idaho students at random from the fourth, eighth and eleventh grades and measure their performance on basic skill tests to provide some sort of regular benchmark.

Over the last five years, the percentage of Idaho students scoring 25 or better on the composite ITED has slowly dropped from 9.9 per cent in 1971-72 to 8.1 per cent in 1975-76, compared to 10 per cent of the national sample.

However, 10 per cent of the students in the national sample scored eight or less compared to 5.8 per cent of Idaho's students in 1971-72. But as of 1975-76 Idaho's percentage of low scores has climbed to 7.8 per cent.

Bull said the test has gone through different forms and norms over the past 15 years and although he used test company data to make the information as comparable as possible from year to year, there is a certain amount of statistical danger in attaching too much significance to specific numbers in the chart.

McClure offers solar bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Solar Energy Administration is designed to "restore Energy Research and Development Administration funding for solar energy research," was sponsored Monday by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

The bill would restore a slashed budget request of $110 million to $238 million in fiscal 1977 for the ERDA solar division. The money then would be available for the development of solar and other forms of energy production.

The original 1977 budget for division was slashed in half.

"This bill restores the outlay authority for solar research and development of other forms of energy generation which might be particularly important in agriculture," said McClure.

Specifically, the bill calls for three so-called anaerobic digesters. They are biomass fuel devices which produce methane from animal and farm wastes.

"These devices are widely used internationally and may markedly reduce the dependency of farmers on propane."

The measure also would seek budget requests for research into solar photovoltaic projects.

Engineer sees need for Gem power plants

BOISE (UPI) — A retired engineer says if Idaho's energy demands continue to grow at a rate predicted by the Idaho Society of Professional Engineers $4 billion worth of new power plants will be needed by the year 2000.

Lynam Wilbur told the Public Utilities Commission Monday that the society based its report on studies by the Idaho Power Company and the Arthur D. Little study on load-growth projections.

The PUC is conducting hearings on Idaho Power's request to build a 1,000 megawatt coal-fired power plant near Orchard.

The power company's peak load requirements will reach 7,200 megawatts by the year 2000, according to the study, by the Society of Professional Engineers.

An attorney for Citizens for Alternatives to Pioneer, Richard Skinner, said to meet that demand would mean building a 500-megawatt coal-fired plant every other year between 1980 and 2000.

"Based on BPA (Bonneville Power Administration) projections, that's what is taking place," Wilbur said.

"Since I came to Idaho in 1947, the amount of power has increased 15 times and this was accomplished by Idaho Power," he said. "A similar experience could be accomplished in the future."

More than 2,000 megawatts are planned in power plant construction in the Northwest, he said.

If the projected demand for power as figured by the power company were put in half, he said, the need for Pioneer would be delayed only two years.

Quit in protest

BOISE (UPI) — Protesting the "sexism and exploitation of women as sex objects," two contestants have withdrawn from the Miss Boise State University contest.

Millyn James and "Finnish" Scott said a formal letter of withdrawal would be given sponsors of the contest at the judges' interview today. Tonight they and other students plan to picket the pageant in the BSSU Special Events Center.

Ms. James said the women entered the pageant in an attempt to educate the public on its "alienating and dehumanizing" atmosphere. Both women criticized the emphasis the pageant places on clothes and the "smile pretty" attitude.

Partly derailed gondolas scraped past Vail towers

VAIL, Colo. (UPI) — Forest Service officials said today several gondolas, apparently partially derailed by a frayed cable, made it safely past lift towers before two of the cars snapped from the line and plunged 100 feet to the mountainside — killing four persons.

Pat Finney, information officer for the Forest Service, also said an official report on an investigation into last Friday's accident at President Ford's vacation retreat in the Colorado Rockies probably would be ready by Thursday.

Finney said the report would be available to Secret Service agents assigned to protect Ford during his ski vacations. He said several gondolas were derailed below the point where the two cars eventually snapped 1600 feet. They did not fall, apparently being pulled clear by a cable through the bottom of the cars.

Finney said scratch marks and strands of frayed cable were found on a lower lift tower "and it appears those strands of cable were carried there by some of the cars."

The cable beneath the gondolas which fell eventually became detached, he said.

Jurors deliberating

BOISE (UPI) — An eight-man, four-woman Fourth District Court jury resumes its deliberations today in the rape case against Michael Hightower.

Hightower is accused of kidnapping and raping a Boise State University co-ed in December of 1973 after escaping from a mental health unit. He was not tried until because at one time he was considered mentally unfit to

Exclusion ruled error

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court in an advisory opinion Monday said a Third District Court judge erred in excluding evidence of blood alcohol level from a case in which a man was accused of involuntary manslaughter.

Duane Sulliff was tried for involuntary manslaughter after the pickup truck he was driving collided with a motorcycle, fatally injuring its driver. He was acquitted on the charge but found guilty of the lesser offense of driving while under the influence of alcohol.

Non-candidate casting long shadow in New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Noncandidate Hubert Humphrey is casting an increasingly long shadow over the April 6 New York primary. Day by day, the Minnesota senator has picked up slates of uncommitted Democratic delegates on the primary ballot — and he could win up to about 30 of the 205 delegates on the primary ballot.

Humphrey insists he has not authorized the delegate drive in any other state but he filed in New York City later this week to speak to a gathering of students, meet with labor leaders and address the state's mayors.

Jimmy Carter, Morris Udall and Henry Jackson, the leading Democratic contenders in the primary, joined Sen. Frank Church and former Sen. Fred Harris in New York City Monday night for a League of Women Voters candidate forum.

Jackson took a campaign swing across upstate New York and in Binghamton said Udall would be "highly acceptable" as a vice presidential candidate, although he had made no decision.

"I have no hesitation in saying he would be highly acceptable," Jackson said.

Udall earlier said he would be willing to be the running mate of either Carter or Jackson if his own presidential bid fails.

Carter's lawyers said they would go to federal court in an effort to get his delegates reinstated on the ballot in 10 congressional districts.

Jackson called the action "a last minute sour grapes approach." Jackson workers pillaged the change that resulted in Carter delegates being ruled off the ballots in 10 districts.

"There is no statewide popular vote in New York. There will be 205 delegates elected in the 39 congressional districts and 69 at-large delegates will be apportioned to the candidates on the basis of the primary outcome.

Carter states are now on the ballot in 26 districts, Udall is running in 37, Jackson in 45, and there are 20 uncommitted slates.

On the Republican side, the GOP organization, still controlled by Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, is fielding uncommitted slates — and is being challenged in only 12 delegate races by supporters of Ronald Reagan.

HENRY KISSINGER ... denies claims

Red domination acceptance denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger have repudiated published reports which suggest the United States has come to accept Soviet domination of Eastern Europe.

In separate actions Monday, Kissinger rejected accounts of a briefing in London by a State Department counselor, and White House spokesman Ron Nessen said Ford "strongly supports the aspirations of the peoples of Eastern Europe ... and opposes spheres of influence."

Kissinger, additionally, told the House International Relations Committee, the United States would consider Soviet intervention in Yugoslavia "a very grave matter."

The top level statements were prompted by an account leaked to Washington columnist Rowland Evans and Robert Novak of a December briefing in London by State Department Counselor Helmut Sonnenfeldt.

"According to the account published in the Washington Post last week, Sonnenfeldt told a group of U.S. ambassadors the Soviet Union dominates Eastern Europe through sheer military force which he said could explode and cause World War III. For this reason, Sonnenfeldt was quoted as saying, the United States should seek to stabilize the Soviet empire in Eastern Europe to prevent the outbreak of war.

Kissinger made these points:

— The report of Sonnenfeldt's remarks sent by the U.S. embassy in London to Washington was garbled.

— There is no "Sonnenfeldt Doctrine" under which the United States recognizes Soviet domination over Eastern Europe.

— By visiting Yugoslavia, Rumania, and Poland, Richard M. Nixon and President Ford both emphasized U.S. rejection of exclusive Soviet dominance in eastern Europe.

Carter blitzing cities in Wisconsin campaign

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Jimmy Carter, running hard to wipe out the memory of his only primary loss in Massachusetts March 3, returns to Wisconsin today for a 48-hour skip-stop campaign blitz of the state's population centers.

Carter hopes to make the April 6 primary here his sixth win in seven contests. He will stump the state from west to east, ending in the Milwaukee area Wednesday night. He is expected to return for more Wisconsin campaigning during the weekend.

The man he is trying hardest to beat, Morris Udall, also scheduled a brief Milwaukee appearance today, but was giving most of his time this week to campaigning in New York.

Carter lost to Sen. Henry Jackson, Udall and George Wallace in Massachusetts, nearly a month ago, but since has beaten both Jackson and Wallace in several states.

Udall was the early favorite in Wisconsin because he lined up impressive endorsements and put an organization in place before the other candidates. But after an independent poll several weeks ago found Carter, Jackson and Wallace running ahead of him, the odds started shifting toward the former Georgia governor.

5 American mercenaries missing after Angola war

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two Americans who fought with pro-Western forces in Angola Monday night that five other U.S. mercenaries are missing in the civil war in the African nation.

They also said they believed 11 Americans fought with anti-Communist forces in Angola although they knew of only nine including themselves.

David F. Burkin, 38, of Fresno, Calif., and a 25-year-old comrade from Los Angeles and who identified himself only as Lobo, spoke to reporters after taping an interview on NBC's Tomorrow program.

Both Burkin and Lobo said they joined the National Front for the Liberation of Angola because they believed in the cause of Holden Roberto, head of the organization.

Burkin said the mercenaries got $1,200 a month to start. "Later, we got a raise to $2,000 a month and when it was over, I got a bonus." He declined to say how much.

Wallace also was working Wisconsin hard, flying to smaller cities Monday and concentrating on the Madison area today. Jackson scheduled an almost complete aerial circuit of the state, ending with a rally in Milwaukee before heading back to New York. His prime prize is for April 6.

President Ford had Melvin Laird, a former defense secretary and Wisconsin congressman, slated to make a series of appearances on his behalf in Madison.

"Ronald Reagan, who cancelled a heavy schedule after winning the North Carolina primary last week, was inactive but some observers expect him to return to Wisconsin before the primary despite strong indications that Ford is well ahead.

And, in what reporters declined to accept as coincidence, Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota spoke in Madison at a medical convention.

Humphrey, standing on his long held position of readiness to accept the Democratic standard if none of the active campaigners can capture it, called it "premature" to say that anyone has "a lock on the nomination."

Mexican heroin latest epidemic in US

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's top drug fighter says huge shipments of Mexican heroin are fattening a new American drug epidemic.

Dr. Robert DuPont, head of the National Institute on Drug Abuse, said Monday he sees little hope of a quick victory in the drug war unless the Mexican heroin industry can be stamped out.

DuPont told drug fighters from across America — at the third "National Drug Abuse Conference."

"I've flown in a helicopter over the poppy fields in the Sierra Madre area. I landed — and I can tell you, it's a big, well-hidden and lucrative operation."

DuPont said President Ford, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the Mexican government are aware of the seriousness of the situation.

He said 90 per cent of the heroin sold in the United States today comes from Mexico.

DuPont said the Mexican government is trying to wipe out the heroin industry by spraying poppy fields with defoliant chemicals.

Opium from the poppies, cultivated on 27,000 acres, is processed into heroin in laboratories on Mexican soil, he said. At the border, the heroin sells for $15,000 a kilogram — 2.2 pounds. Shipments last year were worth $1.5 billion at entry points, he said.

DuPont said underworld figures in Mexico and the United States turned to fields in Mexico after America persuaded Turkey to stop growing poppies in 1972.

Sen. William Hathaway, D-Maine, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics, warned the conference that falling back on methadone, a drug used in treatment of heroin addiction, is not the way out of the crisis.

Methadone has made it possible for some heroin victims to lead nearly normal lives but is itself illegal — and addictive.

"No one knows the eventual consequences of long-term use of methadone," Hathaway said.

DuPont said the drug epidemic is widespread. "Now you find illegal drugs in the Jackson, Mississippi's of the nation and the Cheyenne, Wyoming, too."

Dr. Peter Bourne, consultant to the Drug Abuse Control act at Harvard Medical School, said it has spread around the world. "There has been a significant increase in heroin use in Europe, particularly in Germany, Italy, Denmark and the Netherlands.

"The problem of heroin addiction is getting steadily worse, worldwide with all the evidence suggesting that we are heading into a catastrophic situation," Bourne said.

Judge will pay surgery expenses

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Antonio Santiago says he transported 1,200 pounds of marijuana to pay for heart surgery on his 18-month-old daughter.

He was jailed, but Superior Court Judge Jack G. Marks, who underwent the same open heart operation five years ago, said Monday he would pay for Jackie Santiago's surgery.

Marks has already paid travel expenses for the ailing child and her mother from Guadalajara, Mexico, to the United States and has consulted with the same Houston, Tex., doctor who operated on him in 1971.

"We're human beings first and judges second," Marks said. "When I learned that the child might only live for another year or so, I called for the surgeon."

Santiago, an American citizen, pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana for sale. But Marks delayed sentencing so he could see his daughter and wife, who were deported after his arrest. A charge of transporting marijuana was dropped.

A county probation officer, who interviewed Santiago, said the man was trying to raise $10,000 for the open-heart surgery and had been offered $5,000 to smuggle the marijuana into the United States.

The girl, who has a hole between two valves in her heart, will begin tests at a Tucson hospital this week.

One out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert Ingersoll is resigning as deputy secretary of state.

No successor was announced immediately for Ingersoll, who assumed the No. 2 post behind Secretary of State Henry Kissinger at the end of June, 1974. His resignation had been expected for several weeks.

Ingersoll, who began his diplomatic duties as U.S. ambassador to Japan, joined the Nixon administration after serving as board chairman and chief operating officer of Borg Warner Corp.

'Pot' legalization backed

JANESVILLE, Wis. (UPI) — The sons of two presidential candidates have come out for the legalization of pot — Jack Ford and now Jeff Carter.

Young Carter said in a radio interview Monday he has tried marijuana once and thinks it should be decriminalized.

He said he was speaking for himself and not his father. "I feel it should be legalized and taxed," he said, "but in steps, the first step being decriminalization."

President Ford's son, Jack, said earlier he has smoked pot.

Indian giver

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Zoo Zee Gaber was cited in a $28,000 lawsuit Monday by an Illinois woman who claimed the actress promised her a job as a personal aide but turned her down after she moved to California.

Elanore Lehman said Miss Gaber told her in December she would be hired if she moved to the West Coast but informed her upon her arrival she no longer was wanted.

Deputy director named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice Adm. Daniel Murphy, named deputy director of the CIA Monday, has been given the job of directing the day-to-day business of the staff and managing its intelligence resources.

Murphy, 54, has served 23 years in the Navy. He was military assistant to the secretary of defense, commander of the 6th Fleet and director of antisubmarine warfare and ocean surveillance programs in the chief of naval operations' office.

Views aired

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Former CIA director William Colby says television newsman Daniel Sebarr "confused the world America cannot keep a secret" by releasing a House report of U.S. intelligence operations but that he should not be punished.

In a panel discussion at Tulane University Sunday night, Colby said Sebarr "carried out his obligations to the 1st Amendment to the Constitution and to himself as a newsmen."

Unpopular items listed

DALATHE, Kan. (UPI) — Cigarettes and automobiles were the most unpopular items in a poll of elementary school students on "things which shouldn't have been invented."

A recent survey of third, fourth, fifth and sixth graders at the Stanley Elementary School showed 70 per cent said cigarettes should not have been invented. Sixty per cent of the students disagreed with the invention of cars, citing air pollution and traffic accidents for their opposition.

Thirty per cent of the children polled opposed airplanes because of high fuel consumption and pollution, 20 per cent opposed alcohol and drugs, and 10 per cent voted against television, matches and dishwashers.

Divorce wanted

DENVER (UPI) — Actress Sue Lyon says her husband, California murderer Gary Clayton Adams, wants a divorce and she plans to oblige.

"Miss Lyon said Adams recently wrote her a letter from his San Francisco jail cell saying 'I only see you hurting me in court. I have other people's feelings to consider.'"

Miss Lyon, reached in California by the Denver Post, said Adams' letter implied she was responsible for the break-up of their marriage.

"He's got a lot of nerve putting it all on me," she said.

Winning film takes five top awards

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" made motion picture history Monday night, becoming the first film in 42 years to win the five top Oscars — Best Picture, Best Actor, Best Actress, Best Director and Best Screenplay.

Jack Nicholson and Louise Fletcher won the major acting awards for their roles as a rebellious asylum lunatic and an unsympathetic nurse.

Czechoslovakia-born Milos Forman won the directing honor, and the award for a screenplay adapted from other material went to writers Lawrence Hauben and Bo Goldman.

Not since 1931, when "It Happened One Night" was named Best Picture and stars Clark Gable and Carole Lombard won the best acting awards, has a movie swept the major Oscars.

Sentimental Favorite George Burns, 80, was named Best Supporting Actor for his role as the combative old vaudeville in "The Sunshine Boys."

Lee Grant was voted Best Supporting Actress for her characterization of a disenchanted and adulterous wife in "Shampoo."

This was the first show in recent memory with all four winning performers on hand to accept their awards.

The winners from "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" clearly were the most popular with the audience at the Music Center, from which the 48th annual ceremonies were telecast nationally and to 42 countries.

The movie, adapted from the novel by Ken Kesey and produced by Saul Zaentz and Michael Douglas for United Artists, deals with the humor, pathos and tragedy of inmates in a mental institution.

"Barry Lyndon," a Stanley Kubrick film set in 18th-century England and France, won five awards in less spectacular categories — Best Achievements in Scoring, Best Adaptation, Best Direction, Best Original Score and Best Achievement in Sound.

"Dog Day Afternoon" won the Oscar for Best Original Screenplay by Frank Pierson.

"I'm Easy," Keilli Carradine's song from "Mashville," won the award for Best Original Song in a 1975 film.

Russia's Mosfilm Studios produced "Dersu Uzal" won the Oscar for Best Foreign Language Film of the year.

The crazy gang from "Cuckoo's Nest" provided the greatest excitement and most of the joy of the evening.

A grinning Nicholson, pelted with roses by fans as he arrived, said after the show, "I was surprised to win because I was a favorite four times before."

"But I always like to come because I enjoy the evening. I love movie stars."

Asked why he was the only star to wear dark glasses, the actor quipped, "Because of all the lights, and besides I look better in photographs."

As he accepted the Oscar

Nicholson said, "I guess this proves there are as many nuts in the academy as anywhere else."

Miss Fletcher provided the evening's most emotional moment when she thanked her deaf parents in sign language for the television cameras.

"I was watching at home in Birmingham (Ala.)," she said later, "and a local television station filmed them for me so I could see their reactions."

"It was difficult to play Nurse Ratched as human," Miss Fletcher said. "She was monstrous, but I couldn't play a science fiction heavy."

"I've never had a proper wedding until now," Holding up the Oscar, she added, "And this is it — with him."

After accepting the supporting actress award in an old wedding gown, explained: "I wanted to wear something that meant something to somebody. I got it in a second hand store."

"I've never had a proper wedding until now," Holding up the Oscar, she added, "And this is it — with him."

Asked how he felt about replacing his longtime friend Jack Benny, originally cast for the role, Burns said, "That was pretty funny for me. But life goes on. I know the character because I've been in vaudeville all my life and I've been old all my life."

The 2 1/2-hour telecast featured five hosts — Walter Matthau, Robert Shaw, George Segal, Goldie Hawn

Laetrile case appealed by FDA

CONWAY SPRINGS, Kan. (UPI) — Glen Rutherford says the illegal drug he used to save his life. But the Food and Drug Administration is trying to stop him from importing more of the substance.

The FDA said there is no evidence to support claims the drug aids cancer patients.

Rutherford said, "It's my life that is at stake."

He said that four years ago he had a malignant tumor the size of a small orange in his colon. Today, the tumor is gone.

"I continue to be on laetrile and I owe my life to it," Rutherford said.

Rutherford has been taking daily doses of laetrile, which has been banned in the United States since 1963 but is legal in 24 other countries including Mexico, Canada, Germany and Japan.

He and Oklahoma Ernest Ray are believed the only persons in the United States allowed to take the drug legally. U.S. District Judge Luther Bohannon ruled both men could import a six-month supply for their personal use.

The FDA is appealing Rutherford's case to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver.

"We feel it sets a very dangerous precedent," said Jerry Henderson, FDA program manager for consumer affairs in Dallas.

Jehovah's Witnesses claim torture in Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI)—The Jehovah's Witnesses say their followers in Malawi in the eastern part of central Africa are being subjected to an unchecked campaign of officially backed beatings, torture, rape and imprisonment.

The reports cannot be independently corroborated by reporters. Foreign correspondents have been barred entry to Malawi for several years on the orders of Life President Komuxa Banda. Malawi envoys overseas deny that atrocities are taking place. They say the Jehovah's Witnesses "don't exist" in the central African state. The movement was banned nine years ago.

Since black independence swept Africa more than a decade ago, the Witnesses have angered many new governments because they refuse to join ruling political parties—often the only party by law—and often they will not sing anthems or stand and salute the national flag.

The Witnesses consider such support for nonsecular authority a betrayal of a basic Jehovah tenet not to become involved in politics.

The movements' presiding minister in South Africa, Frans Muller, describes the treatment of witnesses in Malawi as "a reign of terror reminiscent of Nazi Germany" and estimates 5,000 followers are being held in Malawi jails in "the most degrading conditions."

The campaign against the Jehovah's Witnesses was first launched in Malawi in 1967 when the movement was declared an "unlawful society," a term usually reserved in former British colonies for subversive underground organizations.

Banda last year publicly referred to the witnesses as "Devils of God."

According to Muller, across dozens of Malawi villages, police and government officials tacitly approve the "indiscriminate attacks" on Witnesses by the Young Pioneers, a wing of the ruling Congress Party.

Throughout the civil service, officials have been told to fire or bar from employment anyone not carrying a Congress Party card, which wears a portrait of Banda. Muller says the ruling is aimed directly at Witnesses. Pioneers have raped and looted, and even beaten up the followers have sought refuge in neighboring Mozambique in recent years, but since the Portuguese colonists quit and a black Marxist regime took over last year, the refugees have been herded into detention camps and have been joined by some 10,000 more Witnesses rounded up in Mozambique itself.

aged, among the sect, according to Muller. In January, two men died after their genitals were cut off, according to "Awake," the Jehovah's magazine published with the U.S. Tract and Bible Society, which says most of the culprits are not charged in court.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune N. News Synd.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have two children ages 3 and 6. My husband doesn't like to hire others. He says it's too expensive, but I notice he has money for his boat and a store room filled with the latest in hunting and fishing equipment.

Anyway, the last time we went out for an evening we left our kids overnight with his parents. The next day, our 6-year-old had walloped and beaten all over his little body. He told us that his Granddaddy had whipped him with a leather belt for telling a fib!

My husband didn't seem at all upset. He said whoever whips his kid will have a right to punish them any way he sees fit.

Abby, we have never whipped our kids with a belt, and I say nobody else should, either. Please settle this.

MONTANA MOTHER

Grandpa beats him

DEAR MOTHER: I agree with you 100 per cent. NEVER leave your children with those grandparents again and tell them why. "Granddaddy" sounds as though he needs a thorough checkup. (Physical and mental). And where was "Grandma" when all this was going on?

GEORGE A. KELLOGG

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is a beautiful, bright young woman who has a mind of her own. For seven years I have been trying to train her not to overdraw on her checking account, but without success. Have you any suggestions?

GEORGE A. KELLOGG

DEAR GEORGE: If after seven years you haven't been able to train her, give up. At this stage of the game, it's obvious that she has YOU trained.

DEAR ABBY: About that woman who was embarrassed by her boyfriend's bad grammar. My glamorous mother was divorced 20 years ago. When she started dating again, she wouldn't even consider dating a man who said "We wasn't" or "He don't."

For the last six months, her constant companion has been a man who says, "We wasn't" and uses "youise" for the plural of "you." But he is the sweetest, kindest, most patient man she's ever known. He's a big success financially, too.

Her Mom had stuck to her original standards, she would have cheated herself out of plenty. Also, this man in her life has made her a lot easier to live with.

HER DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Neither glamour nor grammar guarantees a good relationship.

Today, every expert knows the standard safety play with this combination. You lead a heart to your ace at trick two and then lead back toward dummy. If West plays a low heart, your stick in dummy's nine. This will lose a trick to a doubton queen, but that will be all you lose. Against the actual holding of four to the queen-10, West would show out. You would rise with dummy's king and lead a third trump toward your jack.

Ask the Jacobys

A North Carolina reader wants to know how to score seven diamonds redoubled and made with an overtrick. It seems the defenders revoked and made just one trick. The answer is that the revoke penalty only applies to tricks taken at the revoking trick or later and under no circumstances will it cost the revoking side more than one trick if it only takes one trick.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" in this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

SPRING REDUCING - BE TRIM

By Mary Sue Miller

The exercise routines and diet advice that appeared in the column in the late winter win prizes for almost any figure. But only if the program was faithfully followed.

You cannot rest on your winnings though, without eventually losing them. That does not mean you must diet forever. Only that you must eat wisely—a healthful balance of nutrients with a calorie count that maintains your normal weight.

Nor must you continue with spot exercise to keep in shape, although it surely is the easiest and most readily available type of workout. As doctors advise, you do need some form of regular exercise to stay fit.

In addition to neat proportions, perfection grooming is a requisite of a prize-winning figure. Surely no lovely would ever be tempted to slight her grooming rites. She would live by the ways to increase their effectiveness. At all seasons she would be lussy about the fit and efficiency of her underpinnings. This seems especially vital in an era of unconstructed—body clinging—clothes.

Lastly, she would never abuse the world's most marvelous mechanism—the human body, her body. She would live by the health rules and get sufficient sleep, rest, relaxation and fresh air.

So doing, how could she have less than a fine figure? How could she not be you?

Memo: What the column for special advice about summer-time good looks.

WHY WEIGHT?

To diet or exercise? Independently, both will work wonders on your figure. But together it will make you a head-turner. My new booklet, WHY WEIGHT?, offers a sensible two-week program for trimming those edges. For your copy write to Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin.

Court upholds Nampa sign removal

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Supreme Court upheld today a summary judgment ordering removal of certain signs from encroaching over and above a public street in the City of Nampa.

Those ordered removed are a marquee and canopy projecting from the Pix Theater and Hazy's Book and Stationery Store in the 200 block of 12th Avenue South.

In April 1974 the city brought suit to compel removal of these signs on public nuisance grounds.

The marquee and the canopy had been in existence since the creation of the theater and the book store, some 28 and 11 years respectively. During that time they had extended over the eastern sidewalk without objection from the city.

However, in 1973 the city widened and improved 12th Avenue South, causing the signs to hang over the road surface.

Owners of Hazy's and the Pix appealed the order of removal on two grounds:

— Acknowledging the signs encroached over the roadway, they argued that the city must show that the obstructions impede and interfere with public travel.

— That by allowing the signs to encroach for a substantial number of years the city was barred from requiring their removal until it becomes necessary to replace them.

In an opinion written by Justice Allan G. Shepard, the Supreme Court rejected these arguments, saying in this case proof the signs interfered with public travel was unnecessary to find them public nuisances.

It emphasized that a state law permits vehicles up to 14 feet in height to travel on public streets.

"The encroachments at issue here are approximately nine and 11 feet respectively above the road surface and therefore the probable interference of these encroachments with the lawful and usual use of the surface of the highway is both real and apparent," Shepard said.

Urban renewal again?

CONDITIONS along Second Avenue South remind many Twin Falls residents of the days of the Urban Renewal project of a few years ago in the downtown area. The Department of Highways is widening the street which is the east-bound couplet of U.S. Highway 30 through Twin Falls. To widen the street, crews have removed the old pavement, curbs and gutters and are building a new grade. Dust and road equipment add to problems for motorists.

God protected him in leap

By JOSE M. SANDOVAL, NEW YORK
I was living in a little room in a men's hotel on 34th Street in New York City. Recently released from a veterans' hospital after four months of treatment, I was blind in one eye, with only partial vision in the other. I was worried. How would I get along?

"Oh, God, I've got to get out of here!" I remembered a metal fire-escape door down the hall. I could hold my breath for two minutes. Within that time, I knew, I had to get out that fire door. When I pulled open my door again, thick, hot asphyxiating smoke swallowed me. I groped along the walls.

my tired muscles. And then I remembered. God had brought me this far. I could not let down now. I waded the flashlight again. A thin cry heated up: "Don't jump!" Had someone seen me? And then other voices rose, encouraging voices: "Don't jump." "We're coming, hold on!"

So I told him. I told him God had shown me the way to that window and that I was sure He had helped me reach that ledge. He stared at me for a moment, then turned to set up his equipment. Whether he believed me is something I don't know. But I do know without a doubt that I couldn't possibly have escaped that burning building without God's help.

JOSE SANDOVAL

And then I seemed to hear a voice, strong, powerful, commanding: "Run to the window! Fast! Run!" I rose and began running blindly, twisting, turning through the labyrinth of corridors.

Police were also investigating two incidents of damage to private property.

NOW challenges child care plan

SPOKANE (UPI) — An official of the Spokane chapter of the National Organization of Women (NOW) says the state's new rules for child care subsidy discriminates against the working mother and will be challenged in the courts.

Dr. Barbara Davis-Murray said over the weekend that a class action suit challenging the new eligibility standards was being prepared in Seattle.

She said it would be filed on or before April 1, the day the new rules go into effect.

Dr. Davis-Murray said about 80 women in Spokane County have received letters from the state Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) advising them they will no longer be eligible for child care assistance after April 1.

"These are women who, for the most part, would be better off financially accepting welfare than working to support themselves and their children."

"For example, a woman earning $395 a month who supports three children will not be eligible for any state child care assistance after April 1 because her gross earnings are greater than the $370 she is eligible for in an Aid-to-Dependent child program."

She noted Federal Title XX legislation recommends maximum income for child care assistance be set at 80 per cent of a state's median income, which in Washington for a mother supporting three children would be $785.

Meat stolen from TF home freezer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police Monday were investigating the theft of a pickup truck belonging to William Oldham, Salmon, occurred early Sunday when the properly parked truck was struck by an unknown vehicle. Damage was to the rear of the truck.

Goss Gordon, Twin Falls, also reported malicious destruction to police. A fence behind his home, Gordon said, sustained about $300 damage when it was burned in several places by a wind-whipped fire. Goss said the fire may have been started at a construction site behind his home.

Diseases plague Bellevue School

By BART QUEENWELL Times-News writer

BELLEVUE — Red spots are breaking out all over Bellevue Elementary School children.

The hard measles, chickenpox and the flu have found a foothold in the school and the county health department has closed the facility.

The situation has reached epidemic proportions with 20 to 25 per cent absentee rates recorded Monday at the school.

Geraldine True, the county public health nurse, said the school district and health department have decided to close the school for a week.

Miss True said she has five to six confirmed cases of the hard measles which generally last 10 days.

She said the public health department will have a special immunization clinic this Friday and urges all parents to get their children immunized, especially ages one through 12.

Anyone who has been in contact with the measles should come to the special clinic, she said. The immunizations are about 95 per cent effective, according to Miss True.

Miss True said the measles are generally a springtime virus. The Twin Falls area went through an epidemic six weeks ago and the Bellevue situation may be the end of that, she said.

There are reports that students are out in Carey with suspected measles as well, she said. She said she will probably have an immunization clinic in the school next week besides the clinic Friday.

Burley civil rights plan accepted

By SHANE O'NEILL Times-News Writer

BURLEY — Burley schools' attainment of a civil rights plan Monday when the federal government approved the Cassia County comprehensive education plan.

The Cassia County School District, the only Idaho district faced with a civil rights compliance complaint, received word from the regional office of Civil Rights Monday that its plan has been accepted.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare had charged the district with non-compliance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964 in five areas of education.

In addition, the Cassia district was listed in a lawsuit against HEW as one of the three worst violators in the Northwest, following behind Fairbanks, Alaska, and Ontario, Ore.

In the letter received Monday, Region X Director Marlaina Kiner wrote her office "has determined that, if fully implemented, it is the comprehensive plan will reasonably ensure the district's compliance with the provisions and regulations of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964."

1964."

But OCR will continue to look over the shoulders of district officials.

The letter warned, "In order to assist you and ensure full implementation of the plan, the Office of Civil Rights will be monitoring and reviewing your efforts during the next three years."

It also warned that failure to meet the terms of the plan "shall be grounds for immediate initiation of enforcement proceedings."

The monitoring will determine if the district fully implements the program and if the program "adequately resolves the areas of non-compliance." And if OCR or the district "becomes aware that the plan, even if fully implemented, will not effectively resolve the problems, we will advise you so that the plan can be modified."

Five basic areas of district non-compliance with the civil rights act were listed following the OCR review more than two years ago in October, 1975, although the findings were not announced until December, 1977. The government charged that the district was "collectively excluding Mexican-American students from full benefit of and participation in the Burley education program."

OCR officials have told district administrators that the review stemmed from discovery that one elementary school in Burley had 85 per cent Mexican-Americans, although the city's Mexican-American student enrollment is only 15 per cent.

Earlier this month the school board approved a plan of boundary changes that is projected to reduce that figure to less than 49 per cent next fiscal year. The district by continued efforts to cut the percentage in future years. Last month the board rejected a busing plan that would have made Overland a school only for fourth graders and eliminated the problem.

The five areas of non-compliance listed by OCR included:

- lack of an educational program to meet the linguistic and cultural needs of Mexican-American students resulting in higher absenteeism and lower educational achievement.
- Disciplining of Mexican-American students more frequently and with more severe sanctions than non-minority children."

- Assisting Mexican-American students "disproportionately" to special education courses, specifically language learning disabilities, without the benefit of testing parent approval or a specialized curriculum geared to meet the needs of these children."

- Failure to employ a culturally aware staff who, by reason of language and culture, are unable to effectively impart an education program to Mexican-American students, particularly those minority group children whose primary language is Spanish."

- Failure to "adequately involve and notify Mexican-American parents of school activities and other school related function which are called to the attention of other non-minority parents."

Monday's OCR letter summed up the weighty document adopted by the school board to meet federal requirements and warned that any proceeding against the district "shall be solely related to compliance with this agreement," rather than to the issue of actual discrimination.

The letter stated that "bilingual-bicultural education programs will be provided to ensure that Mexican-American culture and history is incorporated into and reflected by the coursework and extra-curricular activities" and each Mexican-American student will receive "an individual educational program, providing for diagnostic, prescriptive learning and evaluation."

A curriculum advisory committee of parents, students and community citizens will review programs and assist the district.

The letter pointed out that the district "has adopted record-keeping and discipline procedures which provide a student the process prior to any suspension or expulsion action" and is "committed to instituting an aggressive dropout prevention program" that includes contacting former students and developing new programs to encourage students to remain to graduation.

Evaluation and placement procedures are to include "informed parental consent and an educationally justifiable evaluation prior to testing and placement in any special education or resource room" and any testing, evaluation and teaching will be "by individuals with demonstrated expertise in the student's language and culture."

Burley hires new principal

MALTA — Burley High School will have an assistant principal next year.

The Cassia County School Board, split 6-2-2, adopted a plan Monday night to "develop a vice-principal position" at the school.

Charles Ward, Malta, made the motion with the second of John Adams, Oakley.

Chairman Dan Crane, Burley, had to break a tie vote after Trustees Paul Johnson and Gerald Frost, both of Burley, opposed the motion.

Dr. Brown had raised the suggestion of an assistant principal for the school two months ago, repeating a proposal he had made in each of the last two years. But he had the position to athletic duties.

Brown's earlier had moved that the board approve advertising for an assistant principal "with specific assignment in athletics." That motion was defeated on the same line-up that passed Ward's motion.

Brown explained later that his reference to athletics was because he felt the district should place greater emphasis on its physical education program, not just its athletic teams.

Crane supported that, saying school teams do not allow enough youngsters to participate and there should be more intramural activities. Crane remarked that he wins all losses of the school's sophomore team mean little; he cited the example of a Burley victory over Twin Falls, pointing out that the opponent had better sophomores on the varsity.

Facing Brown's specific inclusion of athletic duties, Ward had argued that the position should be advertised strictly for an assistant principal and the duties assigned by the superintendent and principal.

Burley High Principal Tom Gruwell may have sealed that motion's fate when, answering a question from Crane, he said, "I'd hate to have it advertised so the same one thinking he was going to be a full-time athletic director."

Superintendent of Schools Harold Blauer recommended the new position, pointing out that a group of district residents complaining about coaching had urged an athletic director earlier this month.

Blauer said he and Gruwell had considered the two positions for some time, but he felt the district could not afford adding both in one year.

Sentencing postponed

RUPERT — Sentencing of a former Blackfoot magistrate judge on an embezzlement verdict has been postponed.

Eugene L. McCoy, magistrate judge in Bingham County until his arrest 15 months ago, was to have been sentenced in Fifth District Court here Monday.

Judge Sherman Bellwood postponed sentencing until April 12, because of the illness of the court reporter.

McCoy was found guilty here in December on four counts of embezzlement in connection with handling of bond money. The original charges covered nearly $300. McCoy's attorneys filed motion for a new trial, but Bellwood denied the motion.

Sierra Life amends suit

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sierra Life Insurance Co. has amended its foreclosure suit against Greater Idaho Corp.

On Jan. 3 Sierra asked the U. S. District Court that 44.3 million shares of Greater Idaho Stock be put up for sale to pay off a $143,959 debt to Sierra plus $147,500 in attorney's fees.

Greater Idaho is a financially troubled Twin Falls-based holding company whose assets include Ponderosa Inns, Air Idaho and Regal Homes.

Sierra indirectly sold its majority interest in Greater Idaho in late 1974 to John, an Oklahoma City-based corporation owned by five men — Dalhart, Briggers, Floyd C. Anglin, Rudy Lane, John Hadley and Charles Howe.

Sierra has listed Dalhart, Anglin and several corporations owned in various combinations by the owners of Dalhart in its suit. In its amended complaint, Sierra has added a request for a "declaratory judgment" by the court that all the contracts between Sierra, Sierra president Fred Frazier, and the various defendants "were not founded on any misrepresentation or fraud on the part of Sierra, Fred M. Frazier, their officers, agents or attorneys."

Sierra also has asked the court to find that "Sierra and Frazier have completely performed all duties and obligations required of them by the contracts."

In a news release Monday, Sierra stated that the new part of the suit "centered around Sierra and Frazier exchanging approximately $9 million of assets that they then owned to Powder Mountain, Anglin and Indagroup."

"Anglin tries to blame all of their difficulties in managing Greater Idaho and its financial problems on Sierra's failure to loan them money or on Greater Idaho's prior management. This suit is to set the record straight," Frazier said in the release.

"We have completed 100 per cent of all our commitments to Anglin and his group and we are asking the Federal Court in Boise to interpret all of our contracts and agreements, to show once and for all Sierra and I fully performed all of our agreements to the group from February 1975," he added.

Anglin told the Times-News that since he would be filing a $9 million fraud suit against Frazier, "I think he's just trying to bludge the knife if you really want to know," Anglin said.

In its suit, Sierra claims that Dalhart guaranteed all payments due Sierra in December, 1975, and the first quarter of 1976 by other defendants in the suit. This guarantee "was given to Sierra to induce it not to foreclose the underlying security for the non-payment of the 1975 installments due," Sierra claims.

The guarantee "was secured into Sierra on July 31, 1975, and as security for the debt of Transnational Debt Sierra arising from the two said agreements, by the physical pledge of 30 million shares of the common capital stock of Greater Idaho Corp., owned by Dalhart and the deposit with Sierra of the remaining stock of Greater Idaho Corp. owned by Dalhart in the amount of 14.3 million shares," the suit states.

Records presented in the Idaho Department of Insurance by Sierra, however, say that on Dec. 31, 1975, Sierra loaned Dalhart Corp., Powder Mountain Ski Corp., and Transnational Realty, $413,959, with 44.3 million shares of Greater Idaho Corp. stock put up as security.

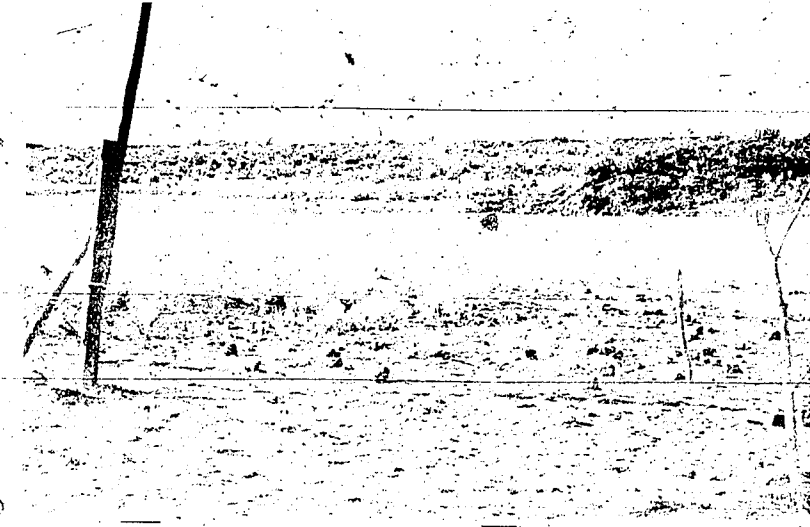

In its Jan. 9 suit, Sierra is not asking to foreclose any of the underlying securities but just for sale of the Greater Idaho Corp. stock to pay for the $143,959 in debts and $147,500 in attorneys fees. It claims are owed by Powder Mountain, Transnational Anglin, and other defendants named in the suit.

Mobile home owner sues motorecyclist

HAILEY — A mobile home owner who allegedly was run off the road by a motorcycle here last August has filed a $10,174 suit against the boy and his father.

Gerald Greening contends Brett Gelsky, son of Donald Gelsky, drove a 1975 motorcycle in such a manner as to cause the automobile pulling the mobile home to collide.

As a result of the collision the home and car were forced into a borrow pit, according to Greening, causing the home to overturn and sustain $10,174 worth of damage. Greening is seeking damage and court costs.

Health advisers appointed

By CHARLOTTE BELL Times-News writer

JEROME — Twenty-nine Magic Valley residents have been appointed to serve on the sub-area advisory council to the Idaho Health Systems Agency Inc.

Magic Valley county commissioners and mayors met in Jerome to appoint the 29 council members and alternates. From the 29 selected, three members will be chosen at a special meeting Wednesday night to become members in the corporation of the Idaho Health Systems Agency Inc.

They will represent the Magic Valley and the other 26 members of the sub-area council.

Dr. Charles Parker, chairman of the Magic Valley Comprehensive Health Planning Council, met with the commissioners and mayors and explained the governmental structure of the Idaho Health Systems Agency Inc. (IHSA), which was created because of the national health planning and resource development act of 1974.

This law authorizes a $1 billion three year program of health planning and resources development. It mandates the establishment of a new organizational system for health planning within the state.

Dr. Parker said Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has designated Idaho as a single health service area, meaning that there will be a single health systems agency (IHSA) for the state.

According to Dr. Parker, the IHSA will be a private, not-for-profit corporation which will be designated by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to serve as the state health systems agency. He added that under the new act all existing federal health planning organizations will be completely replaced by the system established by the act.

"The IHSA is a not-for-profit corporation which is submitting applications to the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for designation as the state health systems agency. It was formed by a task force consisting of representatives from all reaches of the state together with representatives of major consumer and health care provider organizations," Dr. Parker said.

He said the IHSA includes six sub-area councils. The membership of which is appointed by local officials in consultation with health care providers and consumer organizations.

"The overwhelming response at public meetings around the state indicates a strong desire for maximum local input into the health planning process. The sub-area council will provide for that local participation by involving the local officials in the process. Public accountability of this private agency will be enhanced," Dr. Parker said.

He called the use of the previously established uniform planning regions as the sub-area health planning district facilities both the participation of local officials and the use of data gathering functions already in operation within those planning districts.

Dr. Parker provided a list of names for the commissioners and mayors to select the sub council members from. Dr. Parker said that 51 per cent of those selected should be consumers, in other words someone who uses the health service and the other 49 per cent providers or those who give the health service.

Burley residents defend coaches

MALTA — Burley residents came to the defense of Burley High School basketball coach Ivan Davis Monday night in the wake of attacks on the school's coaching staff.

Two petitions were presented to the Cassia County School Board at a special meeting here. Superintendent of Schools Harold Blauer announced a count of 556 signatures supporting Davis and 433 asking for his removal.

Davis came under public criticism from people attending a hearing in Burley earlier this month. They asked for a "clean sweep" of the Burley-High coaching staff, also specifically mentioning Ray Berryhill, head football and track coach.

Berryhill announced his resignation a week ago and submitted the formal letter late last week. He said his decision, coming after two years at the Burley helm, had nothing to do with the complaints made at the board meeting.

Charges listed against Davis Monday night were that he was unable to motivate his players, lacked discipline and failed to teach fundamentals.

But Dr. Walter Peterson, who has acted as Burley High team physician, told the board he represented a group of people "extremely concerned about what's going on."

"The issue is no longer Ivan Davis," he said. "The issue is division four community."

Peterson cited Davis' record of 63 wins, 63 losses in six years, which would be turned around to 59-50 by eliminating his first season.

He argued that a lot of coaches in Idaho could be dismissed on poorer records.

He also pointed out two Eastern Idaho Conference championships and a third missed by a single point. He said the school had scheduled larger schools during those six years.

"If we go strictly on win-loss records, I think we'd better keep Coach Davis," he said.

Peterson said he admired Davis' character and principles. He said the basketball program has been developed from the little leagues up to the state level rather than play sports than yell. They dislike the regimentation and seven-semester graduation or a light-class eighth "mister to allow senior girls to skip learning 'Mickey Mouse' yells."

He said pep club advisers have been changed and uniforms have been changed, but the activity still fits to arouse participation. But he contended that students do have a keen allegiance to their school.

"The students have a better attitude than the community does," he said, pledging to support either Davis or a successor next year.

Dean Van Engelen, Burley, said the criteria should be "how good a teacher" and "how good a man."

The number of games won, he said "is so far down the road it doesn't even count."

Van Engelen said he had reports that Davis was an excellent teacher and called him "a real man to be proud of in the faculty at Burley High School."

Charging that opponents are "tearing a man's character down," the speaker said it would be "an awful injustice to relieve him of his job right now."

Gary Jones, Burley, said he appreciated the time spent by coaches with his boys. He said his biggest disappointment came when the team lost to Minico High School last year for the championship and three men chewed out his son.

"My boy is a better boy because of the athletic program at Burley High School," Jones said.

Dr. Lee Frosham said he enjoyed the basketball games and felt the boys do "a fine job."

Robert Jacobs, Burley, has led the effort to replace Davis. He said Davis does not have "the ability to motivate the players to win or to accept a loss and look to next week."

He claimed there is no discipline, saying one ballplayer with "a lot of talent," fouls out frequently in the third period.

He also cited the five-game suspension of two ballplayers, who were put back on the team after two losses. "Apparently the team voted," he said.

Bureaucracy check asked by Idahoan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Regulatory Review Act of 1976, a bill requiring the federal bureaucracy to be directly accountable to the people was sponsored today by Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

The bill would require any agency proposing any rule or regulation to submit to Congress an estimate of the costs to be incurred by government, the private sector and consumers as well as its effect on interstate commerce if the "proposed" rule or regulation is implemented.

"For the first time, Congress and the American public will know the costs as well as the benefits of regulatory actions before those actions take place."

Federal regulations have a direct impact on almost every American," he said, "and thus these proposals should be reviewed by a governmental body directly responsible to the people."

The Regulatory Review Act would give Congress greater oversight responsibilities and lead to better, and hopefully less, regulations, he said.

McClure said Congress now passes laws and leaves the writing of the specific regulations up to the agencies involved.

Fair skies, light winds cover MV

The outlook for Thursday — dry and mild.

Synopsis: Fair skies and light winds covered much of the Magic Valley this morning. Temperatures were mostly in the 20s early this morning. High pressure centered over Idaho and Utah will weaken slowly as an approaching front moves inland today.

This Pacific frontal system now off the Oregon and Washington coast is expected to move very slowly inland, bringing an increase in high cloudiness by Wednesday evening. Except for some light precipitation in the central and northern mountain areas, no precipitation is expected from the system.

Daytime temperatures will continue their climb into the 50s on Wednesday with possibly a few readings in the lower 60s.

The extended outlook for Thursday through Saturday calls for dry, and mild weather. Thursday, turning a little cooler by Saturday. Temperatures will lower back into the 40s with overnight lows in the 20s by Saturday.

Soil temperatures will probably reach the upper 40s during the next two days, but lower back into the 30s at night. A little drying can be expected through the weekend.

Report meeting set

The six county legislators will report on the activities of their committees and the significant events of the session. A question-answer session will follow.

Individuals or groups having questions or comments on the legislation considered during the session are invited to participate. The meeting is sponsored by the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee, Chairman Laird Noh said.

Depression addles aged

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Depression, not senility, is often the reason old persons lose their memory or act abnormally, a Stanford University study reports.

"Unrecognized depression may be a more important problem in old age than organic brain conditions," Dr. Leo E. Hollister of Stanford's School of Medicine wrote in the current Journal of the American Medical Association.

Age alone does not necessarily mean that a person's emotional disorder is caused by organic brain disease, said Hollister, a professor of medicine and psychiatry.

Postal Service trimming costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Postal Service is trimming its operating costs so it will not have to consider another rate hike until next year, Postmaster General Benjamin F. Ballar said Monday.

"Cost-cutting has been and is the one and only course open to us to try to prevent the Postal Service from slipping into insolvency, with all the dire consequences that would bring," Ballar told the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

He said the service faces serious financial problems that can be resolved only by higher rates, cutbacks in service or a government subsidy.

Ballar said it would be "more acceptable to the public" to reduce rural services rather than cut deliveries from six days a week to five.

Because the rate for first class mail was increased from 10 to 13 cents, the Postal Service has been operating on a "near break even basis" for the past two months, the postmaster general said.

"Our financial situation hopefully will allow us to go into 1977 without talking about higher rates," Ballar said.

But, he said, the Postal Service needs a temporary subsidy "to get us back on our financial feet" or face a deficit that could reach $3 billion by the end of the current fiscal year.

Ballar supported a bill authorizing a government subsidy for the Postal Service as a "temporary solution, a badly needed one" until a study can be conducted on the "public service" functions of the agency.

He included in this category "social" benefits such as maintenance of post offices in some rural areas and the job-producing aspects of the operation.

He said the public service functions of the post offices must be funded "outside the postal rate structure," presumably by government subsidy. "Or else they'll strangle the Postal Service, they'll wipe the Postal Service."

Ballar said the temporary subsidy proposed by the legislation will "help us overcome our current financial impasse and lessen the immediate pressure to curtail some aspects of service."

Ballar said he has tried repeatedly to get the President's Office of Management and Budget to discuss with Postal Service officials the need for additional government aid.

"Their inaccessibility and attitude are both discouraging and disheartening," Ballar said.

Gay activists suffer another defeat in US court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that consenting adults can be criminally prosecuted for homosexual acts in their own homes.

The justices affirmed a three-judge lower court ruling that Virginia's sodomy law does not violate a homosexual's right to privacy. With one justice dissenting, the lower court held that homosexual activities do not have the same privacy shield as sex acts between married persons.

The Supreme Court acted in a brief order.

Justices Thurgood Marshall, William J. Brennan Jr. and John Paul Stevens voted to set the case for oral argument, but four votes are needed.

The American Civil Liberties Union said 37 states have laws similar to Virginia's, and it estimated that from 5 million to 20 million persons in the United States are either active homosexuals or have practiced homosexuality.

Monday's was the latest in a long series of defeats in federal and state courts for gay activists seeking to establish constitutional rights to equal treatment.

Last November, the Supreme Court said state laws banning "crimes against nature" are not unconstitutionally vague if there are court rulings defining what the phrase means.

The justices have consistently declined to hear appeals by homosexual school teachers and other government employees who were fired because of their sex preferences.

The Virginia law provides a one to three-year prison sentence for anal or oral intercourse, and it is used almost exclusively against homosexuals.

Two anonymous Virginia men asked the three-judge court to declare the law an unconstitutional invasion of privacy when applied to consenting adults.

Judge Albert V. Bryan, in the Virginia ruling against them, said although the Supreme Court has recognized a right to privacy among married couples, that social contract, the same principles do not apply to homosexuals.

World feels USSR food situation

WASHINGTON — For more than half a century, Russia under Communist rule has become an economic and military superpower.

Under the same rule, however, she has not learned how to produce an assured food supply.

The result is that periodically, as in 1972, and probably again this year, Russia will have to buy grains in world markets to help feed her population. Why?

Daniel Green, a student of world hunger and food production, says: "There would seem to be some special quality in Communism that acts on agriculture in a way that it acts on no other industry, and that may have nothing to do specifically with Russian conditions, climate, history and national characteristics."

Writing in "The Politics of Food," Green points out the Soviet Union's problems of food under-production and periodic shortages never have been solved despite the opening of vast new land areas, shifts in agriculture policy and five-year plans.

This is of great importance to a food-short world, Green says. In bad crop years the Soviets have the means to purchase what they need in world markets, but what they need most then is substituted from the whole available. And that translates into even deeper hunger for the have-not countries.

Green, born on an English farm, studied both law and agriculture at Cambridge University, then spent 20 years running his own and family farms in East Anglia. His experience as a hungry prisoner in World War II gave him a deep interest since then in problems of hunger and food production.

His present book is based upon belief that the bread and butter of food is politics; that food production depends upon the agriculture policies of the United States and Russia, Europe and Britain; and that since we all must eat, the politics of food is the politics of survival.

In Russia, food production must accord with Marxist theory, Green says, and that theory holds that the food industry is no different from other industries; all its problems can be solved in terms of socialism.

But this hasn't happened, the author points out. In the past 50 to 60 years, as the Soviets were achieving industrial revolution, the already industrialized West went through an agricultural revolution. Today, he declares, the West's agricultural problems usually involve surpluses. Russia's are shortages.

Under their Marxist doctrines, however, he writes, the Soviets refuse to agree that the nature of nature and the nature of man together are largely responsible for what happens in any nation's fields.

So the Soviet Union still blames its ambitious failures or its failed ambitions in agriculture on man alone.

In Central and Eastern Europe, where Communism was largely forced upon the people, Green writes, agriculture production also is far below what could be expected. And it is the lowest of all, he says, "where the Soviet experiment (in agriculture) has been most closely followed."

The relevance of all this in the rest of the world, he declares, lies in the fact that about one-third of the world's people now depend for their food on collectivized or otherwise socialized agriculture.

"What they produce, or fail to produce," he emphasizes, "is of importance to more than themselves."

A solution to the Soviet dilemma might spring from its policy of permitting citizens to plant for their own benefit or sale if they wish small, private plots of ground. In 1969, Green says, these plots produced one-third of Russia's meat, milk and vegetables, half the eggs and two-thirds of its potatoes, although occupying less than 3 per cent of that vast nation's arable area.

"When so much can be produced off so little, whilst, by contrast, so little is produced off all the rest," Green writes, there certainly are some grounds for believing that peasants now working apathetically for the state would spruce up production considerably — given an incentive.

"The problem is that the state cannot, or dares not, allow the profit motive to work strongly enough."

So the real Soviet agricultural problem would seem to be in finding a way to bypass the Marxist stranglehold on food production, he concludes.

Compromise fishing bill gains nod

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate agreed Monday to compromise legislation extending U.S. fisheries jurisdiction to 200 miles despite the possibility of confrontations with other fishing nations.

The bill, passed by voice vote, requires House approval before it can go to the White House, President Ford has promised to sign it despite opposition from the State Department and the Pentagon.

The legislation, as worked out by a House-Senate conference committee, would require foreign fishermen to get U.S. permits to fish within 200 miles of U.S. shores beginning March 1, 1977.

It will extend the current 12-mile fishing zone to 200 miles but it will not change the existing three-mile territorial sea.

The proposal was strongly supported by most American fishermen and passed by large majorities in both the House and Senate because of fear that offshore fisheries were in danger of being wiped out by Japanese, Russian and other foreign fishing fleets.

"I will keep the foreign fishing pirates off our waters," said Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., the chief sponsor of the bill.

Disease menaces herds of Midwestern dairies

CHICAGO — Four hundred dairy cows have been destroyed in McHenry County, Ill., because of a serious outbreak of a cattle disease that is threatening dairy herds in Illinois, Indiana and Southern Wisconsin.

The disease — bovine tuberculosis — can be contracted by human beings, although federal officials said that the likelihood is slight that that will happen because of modern sanitation methods.

Several thousand head of cattle in the three states will be tested for the disease in the coming weeks, according to a spokesman for the U.S. Agriculture Department's animal, plant health inspection service.

The disease can only be contracted by humans if they drink the unpasteurized milk from a diseased cow, according to the inspection service officials.

Three families who purchased milk from the contaminated herds in McHenry are being tested for the possibility they might have contracted the disease, according to the inspection service spokesman. He would not identify the families.

Cattle herds in McHenry, Lake, Boone and Winnebago Counties will be tested, as well as herds in 17 downstate counties along the border with Indiana.

Herds in Indiana and in Southern Wisconsin also will be tested by federal and state inspectors.

"This disease has been around for sometime," the inspection service spokesman said. "It's not one people get excited about."

Dr. Hal White, veterinarian in charge for the U.S. Agriculture Department was in Illinois and Indiana, said he thinks the outbreak was caught in time to keep confined.

"The first case was turned up in a meat packing plant in Indiana," Dr. White said.

The diseased carcass was spotted by a federal health inspector in January and was traced to a herd in Indiana.

Unfortunately, by that time cattle from the farm had been sold to farmers and breeders in Illinois and Wisconsin. Then some of the Illinois herds were sold to farmers from Wisconsin, Dr. White said.

Federal, state and McHenry County agriculture officials met in Springfield to plot their strategy for confining the disease.

"At the present time we have eight herds in McHenry County that are being tested," Dr. William Searles of the inspection service said.

"We plan to test all of the cows that have been exposed," Dr. Searles said. "But I think we have more or less put the fire out. We feel safe the high risk cows have been tested."

"Later in the year we will test all of the cows in the county," he said.

"The disease is not a problem for humans as long as the milk has been pasteurized," Dr. Searles said.

Dr. White said the disease is highly contagious among cattle and also can be passed on to swine, although there have been no cases of such infection reported in the current outbreak.

The disease is spread from cow to cow through the air, or through feed or water that has been contaminated by a sick animal, Dr. White said. When animals must be destroyed, their owners are reimbursed by the federal government, an inspection service spokesman said.

The disease is common in undeveloped nations where pasteurization is not used.

Slightly lower prices for beef may continue

CHICAGO — Supermarket shoppers who have been enjoying slightly lower beef prices this month should continue to do so, at least until early summer, though meat they buy may not be as fat as they've had before.

The country's cattle feeding lots, where ranch animals are fattened to choice and prime grade weights, are now full again for the first time in more than a year.

There were 48 per cent more steers on feed last week than last year, and these animals will be coming to market for the next two or three months.

As a result of the large increase in the fattened beef supply, stockyard prices for choice grade animals had dropped last week to around $35 a hundred pounds, a substantial decline from the $39 level a year ago.

But with the Agriculture Department's new beef grading standards now in effect, some of the choice and prime grade cuts are leaner than before and less tender.

In promoting the new standards, the Agriculture Department contended that the new beef would taste just as good and would eventually cost less because cattle feeders would not have to stuff as much corn into an animal to bring it to the lower choice and prime weights.

"I certainly haven't found these claims to be true," a Des Moines, Iowa, meat wholesaler said. "Some of my customers, particularly the restaurateurs, have been complaining about getting tougher cuts from me. So I've had to be sure of the quality by buying what's now graded prime for a few cents more a pound. It's actually the same beef that was graded high choice under the old standards."

Market analysts attribute the current decline in stockyard prices and the slightly lower retail prices to the increase in supply rather than to the new standards.

There has also been a decline in wholesale beef prices, which last week were nearly 20 per cent below last year's level. Retail prices, which usually follow wholesale prices, though often at a lesser rate, were also down.

In its monthly survey of retail beef prices in 19 cities, the American National Cattlemen's Association found the average price for five cuts had dropped to $1.31 a pound, down four cents from a month earlier.

While these lower prices made cheering news for consumers, they were pushing cattle feeders back into an unprofitable position.

Feeders were complaining that they were losing from $50 to $100 on each animal they sold and some were talking of cutting back.

Complaint accuses Nampa firm

BOISE (UPI) — The U.S. Department of Labor has filed a complaint in federal district court against the N13 Fertilizer Company of Nampa alleging the firm violated the Fair Labor Standards Act.

The complaint alleges the company failed to pay many of its employees time and one-half their regular rates of pay for all hours worked in excess of 40 hours in a work week and failed to make and maintain certain records to be kept by the act and the applicable regulations.

The suit asks the court to permanently enjoin the defendant from violating the act.

ATTENTION POTATO GROWERS

The potato growers of Idaho is pleased to announce that ten contracts for 1976 fall crop potatoes have been approved to date.

One of these contracts is between seed and commercial potato growers and provides payment of $5.10 per cwt. for certified seed potatoes. Growers interested in either buying or selling seed potatoes on contract are invited to contact P.G.I.

P.G.I. has approved nine 1976 contracts with the following seven firms:

- ORE-IDA FOODS
- R. T. FRENCH CO.
- CARNATION
- ROGERS BROTHERS CO.
- LAMB-WESTON
- IDAHO FALLS BONDED
- IDAHO-FROZEN FOODS
- PRODUCE & SUPPLY CO.

Contracts with these firms will yield the average grower $3.60 to $3.80 per cwt. for usable potatoes. In comparison, the offer being made by the J.R. Simplot Co. is in the $3.35 to $3.40 per cwt. range.

P.G.I. has carefully evaluated production costs, potato & wheat market conditions, and growers' views on what is a reasonable price. We are pleased that our conclusions on price have been substantiated by seven Idaho Potato Processors and fresh shippers.

While P.G.I. and the Simplot Company did not agree on the value of contract potatoes, the efforts of both parties to arrive at a common value were sincere. Since our last of six negotiation meetings we have maintained frequent contact with company officials to keep the door open for possible negotiations.

Meanwhile, the cooperation of potato growers in not accepting contracts not approved by P.G.I. has been excellent. We wish to thank the growers for this support and pledge to continue advancing your interests in future negotiations.

Seaver unsigned

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Tom Seaver, the New York Mets' three-time Cy Young Award winner, said Monday night he has rejected the club's first firm money offer for a new contract.

Seaver said the Mets agreed to a three-year contract but that the money was "unsatisfactory."

He said he will meet again with the general manager, Joe McDonald on Tuesday.

Spurs defeat Nets

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — James Silas scored 33 points, 12 in the last quarter, Monday night as the San Antonio Spurs scored a 116-101 ABA victory over the New York Nets.

The game was tied 10 times and the lead changed hands 13 times until the Spurs went ahead to stay at 6:48 in the third quarter on George Gervin's hop, skip and stiff.

But, in the end, it was free throw accuracy that sustained the victory. San Antonio connected on 38 of 44 charity attempts while New York hit 16-26.

The spurs outrebounded the Nets 54-40 and outshot them 52 to 46 per cent from the floor.

Gervin ended with 24 points and 11 rebounds, Larry Kenon added 20 and 17 rebounds, Bill Paulitz had 17 points and 15 rebounds and Mike Gale clicked with 11 points as SA upped its record to 46-33-6 Julius Erving held to four points in the first half, broke loose in the second half to total 24 for the Nets and also led his team with 12 rebounds.

Hoosier fans cheer NCAA champion

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — There are thunder and lightning, honking horns, firecrackers and students everywhere — riding a fire engine, on the hoods of cars and running joyfully through the spring rain — after Indiana won the NCAA basketball championship Monday night.

"During the game, there was no one down in the middle of campus," Dan Shryve, a reporter for the Indiana Daily Student, said. "Now its bumper to bumper outside with horns honking and kids running everywhere without umbrellas shouting, 'We're No. 1!'"

The main celebration for IU's 86-68 victory over the University of Michigan was slated for Tuesday at Assembly Hall, the home of the Hoosier Hoosiers, after the team members came back from Philadelphia.

However, that did not stop students on the Bloomington campus from letting the world know they had gotten the win they thought they would have earned if it had not been for a freak accident during the 1975 season.

Last year, All-American Scott May suffered a broken arm then and his teammates lost during the prefinals competition of the NCAA. Monday night, despite losing the services of guard Bob Wilkerson in the opening minutes, the Hoosiers overcame a six-point halftime deficit to win the battle going away.

Della Upsilon fraternity brought out its fire truck and clamped around campus with the siren blaring but almost being drowned out by the shouts of members perched on the side despite the steady rain.

"Downtown there were firecrackers and thunder and lightning but somehow it all seemed to go together as a beautiful spring day," one observer said.

Some students jumped on the hoods of cars as they went blaring through the streets of the campus in the driving rain.

Telephone lines in the Bloomington area were jammed as well-wishers aired in their congratulations.

Rutgers coach says UCLA most talented

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Rutgers Coach Tom Young said, in his opinion, his team lost the NCAA consolation game to the best team in the tournament.

"I think UCLA's got more talent than anybody," Young said after the Bruins defeated the Scarlet Knights, 106-92, for third place in the NCAA.

"I repeat, UCLA has more talent than anyone here, but the most talented team doesn't always win."

Such a comment was bound only to add to the discontent of UCLA Coach Gene Bartow, whose Bruins were beaten in Saturday's semifinals by undefeated Indiana, 65-51.

As the Bruins completed their season with a 27-5 record, their worst in 10 years, Bartow could take little consolation in Young's comment.

"It's never," said Bartow, who had the thankless task of succeeding John Wooden and his string of 10 national titles in the last 12 years. "It's been difficult."

"I think we beat a good Rutgers team in the same kind of game most third place games are."

But the specter of Wooden and his failure to win the national championship hung over Bartow.

"I think the best coach who ever lived is John Wooden," Bartow said. "And I wouldn't recommend following him as a coach as a steady diet."

Bartow said he has tried to avoid reading newspapers since December, but he apparently still feels the sting of comparison with Wooden.

"If I were writing a book, I think it would sell," Bartow said of his pressure filled first year at UCLA.

Marques Johnson, who was the game's high scorer with 30 points, said it was the Scarlet Knights who made UCLA come to life.

"When I came here, I figured the game really meant nothing," Johnson said. "The whole day, it was blah — warmups too."

Ferguson completes Dodgers roster

VERO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Catcher-outfielder Joe Ferguson ended his holdout with the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday by signing his 1976 contract.

Ferguson was the only holdout and his signing completed the storied Dodgers roster, which will be trimmed to 26 Tuesday, according to manager Walter Alton. Terms of Ferguson's contract were not disclosed.

Ferguson, who was out last year with a broken arm and replaced by Steve Yegler, said he wanted assurances that he would play before he joined the team.

Tommy John makes his second start of his comeback season Tuesday in the Dodgers' next to last Florida spring training game against the Baltimore Orioles. Ross Grimsley will start for Baltimore.

Benson, May lead Indiana to NCAA title

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Undefeated Indiana, trailing by six points at halftime to surprising Michigan, went to its pair of all-Americans Kent Benson and Scott May in the second half Monday night to defeat the Wolverines 86-68 and win the 1976 NCAA basketball championship.

Benson and May combined for 27 of Indiana's first 36 points in the second half as the Hoosiers, who had beaten Big Ten rival Michigan twice during the regular season, gained a 65-59 lead with slightly less than six minutes left in the game. May finished with a game-high 26 points and Benson had 25.

Indiana, which gained the six-point lead on a basket by May, added eight straight more points for a 73-59 margin to guarantee their record-tying 32nd victory of the season.

Indiana, which had lost only once in the past two seasons, became only the fourth school to win the national championship with an undefeated record in the 38-year history of the NCAA tournament. The Hoosiers tied the 1957 North Carolina Tar heels for the most victories in an undefeated season.

In the earlier third place consolation game at the spectrum, Marques Johnson and Andre McCarter combined for 56 points to lead UCLA to a 106-92 victory over Rutgers.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight became the first ever to win national championships as a player and a coach. He was a member of Ohio State's 1960 national champions.

The victory touched off a jubilant dance by the fiercely aggressive but usually stoic Hoosiers. On the court awaiting the awards ceremony, the Indiana team popped open a bottle of champagne and waved the bubbly beverage triumphantly around the floor.

Guard Quinn Buckner, a senior co-captain benched during midseason for poor play, was accorded the honor of cutting down the rag after scoring 16 points and doing a superbly defensive job on Michigan's Rickey Green. Buckner's value was increased early in the game when the Hoosiers' other starting guard Bobby Wilkerson was carried from the court with a moderate concussion.

But it was the outstanding performances of May and Benson that finally wore down the Wolverines, who had come closer to beating the Hoosiers than any team this season in an overtime game at Bloomington.

May, UPI's college player of the year, and the massive 6-10 Benson scored Indiana's first 10 points of the second half to lift the Hoosiers into a 39-33 tie with the Wolverines.

The score was tied six more times before May put Indiana ahead for good, 53-51, with 9:55 to play. Tom Abernethy, the hero of the Hoosiers' semifinal victory over 1975 champion UCLA and playing with a severe bruise about his left knee, increased the margin to four and Benson made it 56-51 with a foul shot.

Michigan had managed to gain a first half lead with aggressive defense and 62 per cent shooting from the floor.

But with Benson attacking the Wolverine defense mercilessly in the second half, Michigan's 6-7 center Phil Hubbard and top defensive forward 6-2 Wayman Britt fouled out of the game. Benson was elected the tournament's most valuable player.

Victory

Britt had held May to only 12 points when he was sent to the bench with four fouls at 16:14 left in the game. When he returned, Britt was unable to continue his aggressive pursuit of May and fouled out with 4:58 remaining.

Green led the Michigan scoring with 18 points and Steve Grote had 12. Britt finished with 11 and Hubbard 10.

Abernethy had 13 points for the Hoosiers.

Indiana guard JIM Wisman, humiliated on national television when Knight pulled him out of the overtime game against Michigan by his Jersey for numerous turnovers, played most of the second half in place of Wilkerson. Although he scored only two points, Wisman played almost flawless ball.

Michigan, which set up this first championship game between two teams of the same conference, finished the season with a 25-7 record. It was the most victories in a single season for the Wolverines.

Indiana previously had won the national championship in 1940 and 1953 and the victory made the Hoosiers 30 in title games.

Chris Evert returns to winning ways

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Chris Evert, on the rebound from a first-round loss at Boston, overcame Cynthia Doerner of Australia Monday night by 6-3, 6-1 in the opening round of the $75,000 Virginia Slims of Philadelphia Tennis Tournament.

Miss Evert closed out the match after her opponent fought off two match points.

Sixth-seeded Olga Morozova, a Russian who won the tournament here two years ago and who was also beaten in last week's first round at Boston, barely stood off Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia 6-2, 4-6, 7-6.

Miss Morozova trapped her opponent with a lob in winning the third set tie-breaker by 5-1. She had fought back from 2-4 in the final set.

Other first-round winners were Marce Louie by 6-3, 6-1, over fellow American Carrie Meyer; Wendy Turnbull of Australia by 6-2, 6-1 over Lisa Fernandez of Columbia, South America, and Betty Stave of Holland by 6-4, 6-3 over Peggy Michel of the U.S.

In doubles play, Julie Anthony of the U.S. and Natasha Chmyreva of the Soviet Union, pit out Evonne Goolagong of Australia and Peggy Michel by 2-6, 6-3, 6-2. Rosie Casals of the U.S. and Françoise Durr of France advanced by 6-0, 6-4 over Betsy Nagelsen and Janice Metcalf of the U.S.

UCLA tops Rutgers for third in NCAA

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Marques Johnson and Andre McCarter combined for 56 points Monday night to lead UCLA to a wild 106-92 victory over Rutgers and capture third place in the NCAA National Basketball tournament.

Johnson, a 6-6 forward moved back to a wing position as UCLA started four big men to exploit its superior height, scored 30 points. McCarter, almost a legend in his high school days in Philadelphia, scored 26 points in his final game as a Bruin.

UCLA's total set a new NCAA national consolation record for regulation time game, eclipsing the 105 points scored by North Carolina in its victory over Louisville in 1972.

The UCLA and Rutgers combined total of 192 points also set a regulation time consolation game record, breaking the total in North Carolina's 105-91 victory.

The Bruins finished their season with a 27-5 record under first year head coach Gene Bartow for the worst UCLA mark in 10 years. The Bruins had won the national championship eight of the last 10 years, also finishing third in 1974, when North Carolina State won the title.

Phil Sellers scored 23 points and Mike Dabney 21 as the Scarlet Knights gamely attempted to erase the embarrassment of Saturday's atrocious showing against Michigan.

But UCLA's tremendous height advantage, increased even more by the insertion of center David Greenwood and Ralph Drollinger at the same time, proved too much for Rutgers to overcome.

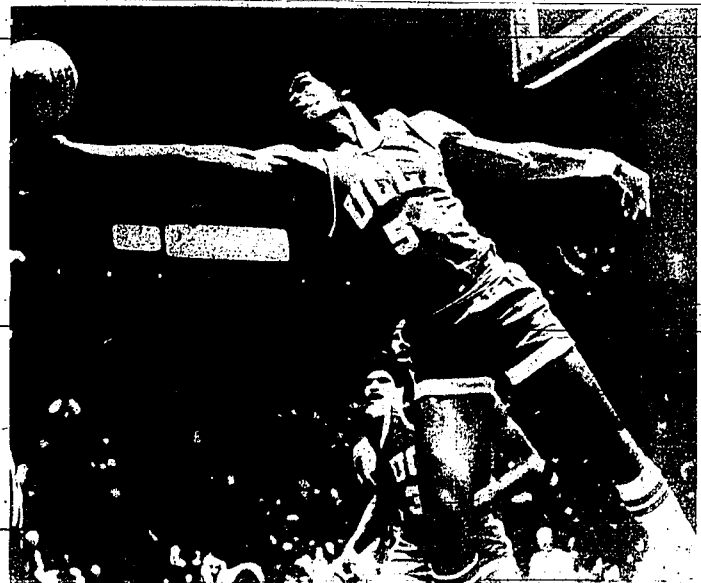

With 6:10 all-America Richard Washington at forward, UCLA averaged just a shade under seven feet on the front line with freshman center Jim Bailey Rutgers' tallest starter at 6-8.

Although trailing most of the game, Rutgers managed to take the lead 74-73 with 11:17 to play on guard Ed Jordan's layup.

But a tap-in by Johnson put UCLA back in front 77-73 and the Bruins gradually pulled away.

Drollinger finished with 12 points and Washington with 11 as Bartow used his substitutes liberally throughout the game.

Hollis Copeland had 13 for the Scarlet Knights, who had entered the semifinals with a perfect 31-0 mark. The fourth place finish was the best in Rutgers' history.

Good save

UCLA's Marques Johnson reaches way out to stop the ball from going out of bounds in the consolation game of the NCAA championships. Johnson scored 30 points in the winning effort. (UPI tele)

Track coach blasts scholarship limit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "Next year when track scholarships are reduced from 23 to 14, it will definitely hurt the program," UCLA track coach Jim Bush told the Southern California Track Writers Association Monday.

"There will be very few college athletes on the United States Olympic team," Bush said. "Our Olympic team will be greatly weakened in track and field."

"Track coaches are frustrated. I am glad I only have about 10 more years of coaching. Young track coaches should get out."

Bush said the NCAA is allowing each school to have 18 scholarships for hockey.

"And more than half of those scholarships will go to Canadians, the UCLA coach said with a trace of anger in his voice. "Although I don't have anything against Canadians, I think the most college scholarships should go to American athletes."

Bush said it is too late to have the limitation on track scholarships reversed for next year.

"This one year is going to set track and field in universities back so far it will take years to recover," he added.

Louis aide dies

CHICAGO (UPI) — Julian A. Black, one-time manager of former world heavyweight champion Joe Louis, died Monday. He was 78.

Black died at Northwestern Memorial Hospital, which he entered March 15 after suffering a fall in his apartment on March 11. He died of complications from the fall, a hospital spokesman said.

Fight promoter Ben Bentley called Black one of the "all time great managers" in boxing history.

"Black did more than anyone I can think of to break down the barriers for black fighters."

"The three of them, Black, co-manager Roxborough and Louis) set an example for everyone. They showed that minorities with talent could truly make it to the top," Bentley said.

Black and co-manager John Roxborough discovered Louis on an assembly line at the Ford Motor Co. in Detroit in 1937. They managed the "Brown Bomber" throughout his 13 years as world heavyweight champion.

Born in Milwaukee, Wis., Black came to Chicago as a young man. He owned a real estate company for 40 years, but sold it four years ago because of ill health.

Black is survived by his widow, Russell. The couple had no children.

Sutton for Seaver trade is rumored

By United Press International

Don Sutton, one of baseball's leading practical jokers, doesn't appreciate one currently being played on him, but he won't let it affect his performance.

The 28-year-old Sutton, who has won 35 games in the last two seasons for the Los Angeles Dodgers, has been mentioned prominently in trade rumors that will send him to the New York Mets as part of a package deal for Tom Seaver, and he doesn't like it.

"About this story, I don't know," Sutton said Monday after pitching seven innings of one-run ball against the Montreal Expos in a 3-2 loss.

"My preference would be to play in Los Angeles for what they say they are willing to pay me in New York, but the Dodgers would have to ask me because I'm a sand-bag man."

"Nobody has spoken to me, but if they can trade Willie Mays and Hank Aaron, anyone can trade conversations involving Seaver were initiated earlier this month when the 31-year-old right-hander was quoted as saying he wanted a three-year contract in the neighborhood of $1 million. He has since come down to $825,000. The Mets have countered with a $600,000 proposition. Seaver rejected an offer Monday night but will meet general manager Joe McDonald later today in an effort to patch things up.

On the surface, a Seaver-Sutton deal even up would appear to be a steal for The Dodgers. A popular rumor around the Mets' clubhouse has Dodger shortstop Bill Russell and catcher-outfielder Joe Ferguson included in the deal to sweeten the pot.

ON OTHER SPRING TRAINING FRONTS ... Ray Bare and Bill Laxton combined for the first no-hit game of the exhibition season and Rusty Staub hit a game-winning homer to help Detroit sweep the Chicago White Sox to start an 8-3 first game victory ... Atlanta reaped the benefits of a winter deal with the Dodgers when Jim Wynn cracked a homer, Tom Pincroak stroked a two-run single and Erny Rostaer knocked in a run in an 8-4 victory over the Mets.

Jeff Burroughs, who slumped miserably last year after being the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1974, ripped a three-run homer and three singles to boost his spring average to .500 as Texas defeated Kansas City 12-7.

Reggie Smith's two-run double and Ted Simmons' homer led to a 11-4 St. Louis triumph of Cincinnati ... Brent Strom and Bill Greif combined on a five-hitter as San Diego blanked Cleveland 7-0 ... Bill Robinson's three-run homer triggered a 121 Pittsburgh victory over Philadelphia ... Cecil Cooper's two-run homer propelled Boston over to a 5-1 victory over Houston ... Billy North drove in four runs with a single, double and triple in Oakland's 8-6 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

On the block

RUMORS continue to fly about a trade giving Don Sutton (L) to the Mets for Cy Young award winner Tom Seaver. Neither the Dodgers Sutton or the Mets Seaver seems anxious for a trade. (UPI/Telephone)

ABA will expand without NBA merger

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The American Basketball Association hopes for a merger with the rival National Basketball Association but is still planning on expansion for the 1976-77 season, says ABA commissioner Dave DeBusschere.

Two cities have applied for ABA franchises. DeBusschere said Monday, but a court-ordered ban on ABA-NBA merger talks is expected to be lifted as early as next week.

The ABA plans to be in operation next season and will not let merger talks dictate its actions. DeBusschere said, and having a merger the league will expand to "eight, maybe nine" teams. DeBusschere declined to name sites for the proposed franchises.

"I am optimistic at this time about the future of the ABA. The ABA is poised, ready to go ahead next year regardless of whether there is any accommodation or merger," DeBusschere told a gathering of local government leaders, owners of the ABA San Antonio Spurs and reporters. "Somewhere down the line we've got to reach an accord with the NBA. I think the door is open to negotiations."

A court order has prevented DeBusschere from talking to NBA commissioner Lawrence O'Brien about a merger.

The commissioner said he did not know the basis for published reports an ABA-NBA accommodation would be reached before the end of this year's playoffs, saying such a merger would be "a very, very complicated issue." Taking a month to six weeks to work out. "There is no way you could accomplish it in such a short time," he said.

The merger would be advantageous to both leagues. DeBusschere said, by eliminating the "bidding war" with the adoption of a common draft and would boost attendance by addition of "the ABA mystique" to the older league, enhancing the possibility of broader network television coverage.

ABA franchises in San Diego, Salt Lake City and Memphis folded earlier this season, leaving seven teams. The poor drawing St. Louis Spirit reportedly might move to Salt Lake City next season and the financially shaky Virginia Squires are a question mark.

DeBusschere said he has no merger plan to present to the NBA over the court order is lifted, but would suggest all seven ABA teams be admitted to the NBA.

DeBusschere said the ABA is hoping for possible network televising of some of the ABA playoff games this spring.

Also at the meeting, DeBusschere flipped a coin to determine the site of a playoff game between Kentucky and San Antonio should the teams tie for third place in the ABA. San Antonio won the toss.

Green hot but looking for rest

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (UPI) — Hubert Green's fantastic streak is being interrupted this week by chafe.

"I gave some thought to playing in Greensboro (N.C.), but I just can't do it," said Green who has won the three most recent PGA golf tournaments.

"I've been playing for six straight weeks and I'm mentally exhausted. If I played at Greensboro I'd wind up playing 10 weeks in a row. That's too much. I'm not backing for a purple heart."

"Anyway," Green continued, "I've got to get back to Birmingham (Ala.) and work on my income taxes."

Green won more money the past three weeks — $118,000, than he won all of last year ($113,569). But his total earnings so far this year, $132,000, is still nearly $36,000 shy of the amount he won in 1974 when he was third on the money list behind Johnny Miller and Jack Nicklaus.

That three-week total is a record for PGA play. Green got $48,000 for winning the Doral Open at Miami, $35,000 for winning the Greater Jacksonville Open, and $43,000 for winning the Heritage Classic here Sunday.

The last golfer to win three straight tournaments was Johnny Miller at the start of the 1974 tour. But Miller's earnings for that span was $37,750 — $30,000 less than Green's record figure.

Before Miller, you have to go all the way back to 1922 and Arnold Palmer's three-in-a-row streak. Palmer earned all of $22,388 for the three wins.

Jack Nicklaus won all three tournaments, and $110,000, he played in a five-week span last year, playing every other week and earned $128,400 for four appearances over a seven-week period.

Despite his "current" hot streak, the 29-year-old Green, winner of 11 tournaments and nearly $600,000 in less than six full four years, doesn't think he belongs among the great, at least not yet.

"Sure, I've been playing very well of late," he said after going 40 under par in his three straight wins. "But I certainly don't put myself in the class with men like Ben Hogan, Jack Nicklaus and Sam Snead."

Green was a child when Hogan and Snead were in their prime, but he's seen a lot of Nicklaus since he joined the tour in the fall of 1970.

"I'm in awe of Jack Nicklaus," said Green. "But although he wins a far larger percentage of the tournaments he plays than the rest of us, he can be beaten."

Green had never beaten Nicklaus before three weeks ago. But Nicklaus tied for second at Doral, six strokes behind Green; didn't play Jacksonville; and wound up tied for 11th, eight strokes behind Green in the Heritage.

For awhile in the third round on Saturday and again for a brief moment in the final round on Sunday it looked like Nicklaus might be making a run at Green.

"Now, I wasn't worried about Jack," said Green. "Sure, I kept an eye on him. After all, he was in my threesome. But I had a six-stroke lead over him after we played the first hole. Anytime I have that kind of lead over any man with 17 holes to go, I'll bet on myself."

Nicklaus was defending champion in both the Doral and the Heritage and will be defending champion again next week when Green goes against him in the Masters.

Sprinters to meet in Colonial relays

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Three of the world's fastest humans will square off Friday and Saturday in the Colonial Relays track meet at the College of William & Mary.

Ivory Crockett, Steve Riddlek and Haseley Crawford will compete in the 100-meter dash.

The three, all members of the Philadelphia Pioneer track club, are tuning up for the Olympiads set for late June in Eugene, Ore.

Riddlek, former Hampton High School and Norfolk State sprinter, lurched in the world's fastest 100 meters this year when he was clocked at 10.70 on March 20 at Duke University.

Crockett is the co-holder of the world record in the 100-yard dash with Houston McTear with a clocking of 9 seconds.

Crawford, the Eastern Michigan product from Trinidad, is the defending NCAA indoor and outdoor titleholder for 100 yards and was a finalist in the 100-meter relay for the 1972 Olympics.

Michigan coach sad over Indiana loss

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Michigan Coach Johnny Orr admitted Monday night he couldn't keep a promise to not feel sad if his team lost the NCAA championship to Big Ten rival Indiana.

But he still found some reason for optimism.

"It's hard not to feel sorry," Orr said after his team's 86-68 loss to the unbeaten Hoosiers. "It's always been my goal, I won't quit trying. But I can't help but think maybe we won't get another chance."

Orr said, however, his optimism stems from the previous two seasons.

In 1974, when the Wolverines were eliminated from the NCAA tournament by Notre Dame in the second round, Orr felt sure he would never get another shot at the national title.

Although Michigan did get another shot at it the following year, Orr felt again he had missed his last chance at the crown when UCLA knocked the Wolverines out in overtime in the first round.

"But this year I'm more optimistic, and I think we're going to have the chance but it's harder to get when they (Indiana) got Benson and May," Orr said.

"They have a great team," he added. "There's no doubt about it. They're the best team in the country."

Orr and his players believed the difference in the game was the second half when the Wolverines, who had led 35-29 at the break, just seemed to run out of talent and steam.

"Down the stretch," Orr said, "they made all the free throws and baskets and whenever we tried to run on them, we missed the free throws and the baskets. That was the difference."

Rickey Green, who led Michigan with 18 points, said, "We just couldn't get the running game going in the second half. They were making their shots, and we wouldn't get the rebounds. We've got to get rebounds to run. I think we ran pretty well in the first half and that was the difference."

The Wolverines finished with a 25-7 record, but only the three losses they suffered to Indiana this season seemed to bother them.

"This was World War III," said guard Steve Grote, who scored 12 points for the Wolverines as he tried to explain the intensity of the game. "They had the first two — tonight was the third one."

NL still hopes to block AL in Toronto

TAMPA (UPI) — The National League, in an apparently futile gesture, still hopes to throw a roadblock into the American League's plans to expand to Toronto.

That became apparent Monday when NL owners voted 10-2 in favor of expanding to Toronto and Washington, D.C. The 10-2 vote fell short, however, because of a National League bylaw which requires a unanimous vote for expansion.

Undaunted, the NL owners adopted a resolution that the unanimous vote necessary for expansion was "not in the best interests of baseball." Following that up, they issued a plea to baseball commissioners to slow the pace of expansion, but make a ruling that would "in effect" restrict their own league to just under the same "best interests of baseball."

The American League, which requires only a 9-12 vote to approve expansion, officially awarded Toronto a franchise for 1977 last Friday. Recipient of that expansion franchise was the Labatt's Brewery. Similarly, the AL owners voted to expand to Seattle last month, giving them 14 teams by 1977.

The two National League dissenters at Monday's meeting were the Cincinnati Reds and the Philadelphia Phillies. At a meeting in New York March 20, Cincinnati president Bob Howsam stormed out angrily, claiming he was being pressured into voting for expansion.

In a separate action over the weekend, the National League sought to get a group together that could secure the lease for Toronto's CNE Stadium. Labatt's president Don McDougall revealed after being awarded the AL expansion franchise that he participated no problem in securing the lease for the Toronto Stadium.

Both the plea to Kuhn and the behind-the-scenes stadium lease effort were seen to be somewhat futile exercises for the National League. The NL turned down a bid by the Labatt's group to purchase the San Francisco Giants last month, only to suddenly show strange renewed interest when the AL beat it to the Caundantinity.

No road for cars leads into the town of Zermatt, Switzerland. To get there, you either hike or ride a narrow gauge railroad line. Whether to build a "car" road into that town was put to the ballot there not long ago. And the voters nixed it overwhelmingly. No cars, they said resoundingly: Never ever.

TASTE BUDS

It's the taste buds toward the front of the tongue that pick out the sweet and salty flavors. The taste buds farther back identify the bitter and the sour. Studies at Duke University show that those taste buds in front withdraw first as you age. This, they say, is why older people tend to lose their liking for candy, but continue to enjoy such comestibles as pickled dill.

A law in Bavaria now requires all riding horses to wear license plates... It's a matter of record, too, that the caper color which most readily infuriates a bull is not red, but white... Fiercest beast of all for its weight and size is the army ant, I'm told. And it's totally blind.

LOVE AND WAR

Best of the men handlers are the blue-eyed brunettes. Or so contends one self-proclaimed expert on matters romantic. Our Love and War man is reluctant to argue, but he repeatedly has voiced the personal opinion that green-eyed redheads are second to none in that knack of dominating gentlemen friends. The blue-eyed brunettes, he says, are apt to be too tender, a falling rarely evidenced among the green-eyed redheads.

When is dinner time? Around 6 p. m. in most places nationwide. And at 8 p. m. usually in the bigger cities. But about 9:30 p. m. in the Mediterranean countries. And that's only lately. A century ago in most all English-speaking circles it was at noon.

Initial minimum margins reduced

CHICAGO — The Chicago Mercantile Exchange has reduced initial minimum margin requirements for several commodities traded on the C.M.E. and its two divisions, effective March 22.

Everette B. Harris, president, announced.

The lowered initial margins will apply only to new contracts as they are listed, Harris said.

At the same time, it also will reduce some minimum maintenance margins for positions on contracts that are open on Monday and thereafter.

Margin, or security deposit as it is called on the International Monetary Market division of the C.M.E., is good-faith or earnest money binding the trader to the fulfillment of his contract. It usually represents from 1 percent to 10 percent of the value of the contract. It is not a down payment.

Maintenance margin is the amount below which a trader's balance is not allowed to fall before he is asked to deposit additional funds to bring his balance up to the initial margin figure.

Speculative and hedge margins for the C.M.E.'s new live-cattle contract were reduced to $900 initial and $700 maintenance from $1,200 and $800 respectively. The old cattle minimum remained unchanged at $1,200 initial and $800 maintenance.

The feeder cattle minimum was lowered to $900 initial and $700 maintenance from $1,200 initial and $800 maintenance.

This was a drop from $1,000 initial and $700 maintenance for speculators and from $700 and $400 for hedgers.

Frozen pork bellies speculative and hedge margins remained at $1,500 initial and $1,000 maintenance, but spread margins were reduced to $750 from $1,000 initial and to $500 from $700 maintenance.

The Idaho potato contract, which is traded on both the C.M.E. and its Non-Futures Market division, saw reductions to $800 initial and $600 maintenance from $1,000 and $800 respectively.

Idaho joins suit

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho has joined California and other states as friends of the court in a case that will have far-reaching effects on the federal government and the environmentalist movement.

Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell said an amicus curiae brief will be filed with the Supreme Court of the United States urging it to require the federal government to file environmental impact statements, as required by the National Environmental Policy Act. In all cases where major federal actions will or may affect a state's environmental quality.

"It's about time the federal government started living by the rules that it has laid down for everyone else in this country," Kidwell said.

"I firmly believe, if these laws are good for industry and the private citizen, they should also be lived up to by the federal government which is the biggest special interest in the country."

The case is on appeal to the Supreme Court from a Ninth Circuit Federal Court of Appeals decision requiring such impact statements.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

My three-year-old girl grinds her teeth in her sleep, and our nerves are shot. She has been checked for worms. None. One doctor said it was due to anxiety. What do you say, doctor? — C.F.

Pinworms are often the cause of this, so it is well this was ruled out.

For many years the grinding of teeth was thought to be a symptom of tension and anxiety, and these may well be factors. Recent studies indicate there's no great psychological difference between grinders and non-grinders, and that the fault may be in the mouth itself.

Grinding not always anxiety

In a recently published article, Niles F. Gulchet, D.D.S., says most people grind their teeth in an unconscious effort to correct irregularities of the chewing surfaces, called "malocclusions."

"They grind away," says Dr. Gulchet, "in order to eliminate a spot which is too high, to find a comfortable place to fit the upper and lower teeth together." He warns that the forces exerted in grinding can actually loosen teeth and even lead to jaw muscle and ligament problems.

I suggest you have your daughter's teeth looked at from this standpoint. Corrections may have to be made.

Grinding can be mighty annoying, as any one who has lived with a grinder can tell you. It is estimated that one in 20 adults and three in 20 children are teeth-grinders, figures some dental authorities consider conservative.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You have mentioned a low-residue diet. Can you print a good, healthful, low-residue diet in your column? — C.Z.H.

I could, but it would be too lengthy to include all of the variations and options available in such a diet.

Basically, what you avoid is as important as what you include. You should avoid uncooked fruits and vegetables, whole-wheat cereals, bran, whole-wheat breads, and nuts — any uncooked high-fiber foods.

The idea is to spare the gastrointestinal tract any excess activity through frequent feedings of easily-digested foods. It is recommended in certain ailments affecting the gastrointestinal tract. There are exceptions to this, of course — as, for example, in diverticulosis where some residue is advisable.

Diets are listed in several of my booklets. The ones most pertinent in your case would be found in "Collitis and Kindred Complications." For a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been bothered with high cholesterol, but it has now come down from 400 to 200. Is this about normal for a man who is 62 years old?

Another thing, is shrimp high in cholesterol? — W.H.

A level of 200 is considered normal. Shrimp has 150 milligrams of cholesterol for each 100 grams (about 3 oz.) of weight. To put that into perspective, consider that an equal amount of whole milk contains 2,200 mgs. of cholesterol, butter 280, lamb liver 610, and chicken light meat 90.

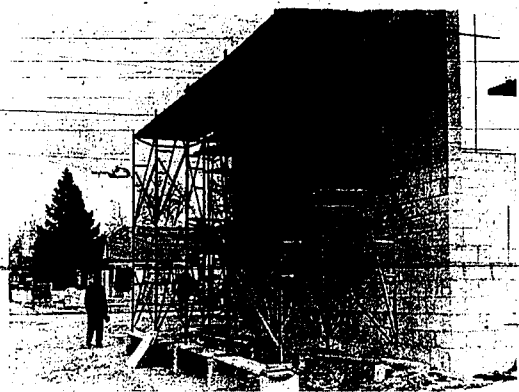

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My granddaughter, who is 16, is active in sports. She has pierced ears and wears rather large, ring-type earrings. I tell her this can be dangerous, but she just thinks I'm being old-fashioned when I tell her she shouldn't wear them while engaged in her activities. She might listen to you. — Mrs. F.Y.

I'm with you, grandmother. Earrings that lie snugly against the skin would be better for sports-minded young ladies than ring-type or pendant-type earrings. It would be best that she not wear any at all. But if she thinks you're old-fashioned about this, what makes you think she'd feel any differently about my advice?

Although cholesterol has been implicated in heart attacks and other circulatory troubles, it is also vital to human life: for this reason Dr. Thosteson has entitled his booklet, "Control Your Cholesterol Sensibly." For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in this column whenever possible.

TF police facility rises

CREWS are continuing to work on exterior walls of the new Twin Falls city police building with some of the ceiling joists going into place in the past week. The building will house the Twin Falls Police Department when completed at the end of the year. It adjoins the city hall and new fire station.

$60,000 spent to learn how humans view animals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sex and education are major factors determining whether people view animals as friends, servants, targets for hunting or don't pay any attention to them, according to a study conducted for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Americans most often view animals in one of three ways — with indifference, with the type of personal affection characterized by pet owners or as useful for some function like a plow horse.

Stephen R. Kellert, a research associate with the Behavioral Sciences Study Center at Yale University, said the "utilitarian attitude" appears to be decreasing in popularity, while an interest in wildlife, natural settings and "humanistic" feelings for pets are on the rise.

Kellert presented his preliminary findings on "Perceptions of Animals in American Society" at the recent North American Wildlife Conference here. The government has spent $60,000 for the project so far.

Kellert said sex and education were consistently the two most important social differentiators of people's attitudes toward animals and the natural world.

Women "were far more concerned with protecting animals from suffering and much more inclined to express strong loving feelings toward pet animals," he said. Men were more interested in direct contact with wildlife and the outdoors.

Men more readily accepted such pragmatic activities as killing animals for meat and harvesting wildlife for fur, he said. "Females were less interested either in mastering animals for sporting purposes or training them to perform specific tasks."

Kellert said people with less than an eighth grade education expressed "far more fear, lack of affection and disinterest in animals" than more highly educated people.

They were more favorable toward trapping and hunting for meat and generally expressed a "more authoritarian relation" to animals, he said. Concern about animal welfare and the environment is more likely to come from outdoors.

US 'even more dependent'

NEW YORK (UPI) — The United States is even more dependent on Arab nations for crude oil supplies today than it was before the oil embargo, according to a study by an independent consulting firm.

The Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, in a study released today, said total Arab imports into the United States last year rose 86 per cent over 1974, when imports were artificially low because of the embargo early in the year.

"Nevertheless," said John Liechblau, director of the foundation, "compared to 1973, which was not significantly affected by the embargo, Arab imports here in 1975 rose by 49 per cent."

He said 25 per cent of all petroleum imports, including refined products, came from Arab sources last year compared with 16 per cent in 1973.

total U.S. crude imports were of Arab origin," Liechblau said.

Liechblau said the Eastern Hemisphere accounted for 38 per cent of all imports "and, thus, for the first time for more than half our total imports." The trend is accelerating and in the last three months of 1975, 62.5 per cent of U.S. imports were of Eastern Hemisphere origin, he said.

The major reasons for the decline in the Western Hemisphere's share of the U.S. market were the drop in Canadian crude oil shipments and a reduction in residual fuel oil imports from Venezuela, Liechblau said.

Total petroleum imports, including crude, residual oil, unfinished oils and other petroleum products, declined by less than 1 per cent in 1975 after dropping 3.5 per cent in 1974, according to the study.

Many 'closet atheists'

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Madalyn Murray O'Hair says she never realized how many "closet atheists" there were "until" she threatened to quit as unofficial leader of the American atheist movement.

In fact, she said during the weekend, she has received so many offers of support that she is reconsidering her decision to give up her leadership role.

"We got people coming in from all over the nation to give us help — secretaries, clerks, stenographers — hands, hands, hands," she said.

"I'm just stunned by that kind of response. There sure are a lot of closet atheists out there. They are just now coming out. Where the hell were they 15 years ago?"

Mrs. O'Hair said she plans to attend a convention of atheists in New York April 9-11 to see what kind of response she will get from the delegates.

"I decided to go up to the convention to see what the atheist community has to offer," she said. "If they offer a budget to keep us going, may continue."

She said poor health and a pending divorce from her husband, Richard, contributed to her announcement in Dallas last week that she was no longer able to withstand the attacks of the Christian community without the support of her family and other atheists.

"I've been pretty fed up and I'm tired and I'm sick," she said. "You can get pretty low at points and I guess I got as low as the underbelly of a snake there for a while."

The white-haired atheist gained nationwide attention 13 years ago when her Supreme Court test case effectively banned prayer recitation and Bible reading in public schools.

Since that time she repeatedly has made public her views concerning the interaction of religion and government — once asking and being refused a tax exemption for her Atheist Church and another time criticizing astronauts for reading the Bible in space.

We have some advice for you . . .

WISE USE IS COMMON SENSE

Hormones could prevent tumors

By AL ROSSITER JR., UPI Science Editor

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A Southern California biophysicist has reported a novel anti-cancer research approach in which he hopes ultimately to prevent tumor growth by starving it of needed hormones.

Dr. Gordon H. Sato of the University of California at San Diego said his idea is to take advantage of laboratory studies which showed that the hormonal requirements of different cells can be determined by growing cells in test tubes.

"We are hopeful that by knowing the detailed hormonal requirements of a given human tumor, we can eventually control its growth in a patient by withholding these hormones," he said Sunday at an American Cancer Society seminar.

He and his co-workers believe every type of human cancer cell, of which there are many, needs a complex of five to 10 hormones to grow and divide.

Tumors begin from a single cancerous cell. It takes the most aggressive breast cancer cell, for example, 22 days to divide. For a single cell to grow into a tiny tumor measuring one millimeter, it must double 20 times. This takes at least 440 days.

Scientists have been growing animal and human cells in the laboratory for almost 70 years. These cells are grown in a liquid consisting of a synthetic mixture of salts, sugars, amino acids, vitamins and other organic compounds.

In addition, the synthetic medium is supplemented by animal serum. Sato's group theorized that this serum serves as the source of hormones necessary for cell growth.

"We tested this hypothesis and found that indeed the sera of the cell culture media can be replaced by a mixture of hormones," Sato said.

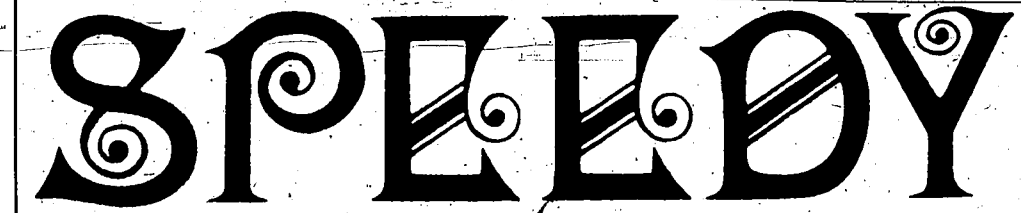

"It is now clear that the hormonal requirements of different cells can now be determined with tissue culture techniques by determining the mixture of hormones which can replace the serum requirements of a cell line.

"What we propose to do is to use this information in cancer treatment," he said.

Once the particular hormonal requirements of a specific type of cancer cell are determined, Sato believes it will be possible to "delete" at least some of these hormones from the body without seriously affecting other body cells and disrupting normal body functions.

"This certainly must eventually have great application in cancer therapy," he said.
