SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An agitated and discouraged Mayor George Moscone has asserted that no settlement of the 24-day strike by city craft union workers is possible while the Board of Supervisors insists on submitting proposals for approval.

"The supervisors can't get rid of that principle. I don't think a settlement to the strike is possible," Moscone said Thursday night.

"If you start putting everything on the ballot," he continued, "it would bring an end to collective bargaining for public employees."

The Mayor and the board held a three-hour press conference on the strike at City Hall Thursday. A spokesman said they were "defining a proposal made by the mayor earlier this week for ending the deadlock."

Moscone said he will make the terms of the proposal public if there is no progress in negotiations.

About 1,750 city craft workers struck on March 31 to protest city-ordered pay cuts in "swearing-in" grants pay normally based on private pay scales to the general fringe benefit and working conditions of most other city employees. Other city employees, including the city's municipal transportation system, have gone out in support of the striking craft workers.

Not far from City Hall Thursday, George Evanscoff, head of the Laborers Union, said the return to work by 150 laborers at city housing projects would not weaken the strike because they were not working for the city, but for the San Francisco Housing Authority.

Ford's plea eyed by panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Intelligence Committee announced today it would consider next Monday President Ford's plea not to publish in its final report the overall budget of the U.S. intelligence community.

A committee spokesman said CIA Director George Bush would meet with the panel to argue the president's position.

The committee meeting, headed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, voted 8 to 3 several weeks ago to include the overall budget figure of the intelligence community in its final report. That report is to be issued Monday, shortly after the special meeting.

The New York Times meanwhile reported Friday that the committee's final document will disclose that the FBI has maintained a network of confidential informers inside major news organizations, universities and charity foundations. The Times quoted sources close to the report as saying none of the "news reporters or other confidential sources would be named."

The committee spokesman declined to comment on the report.

Quake prediction reaction calm

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — As the camera pans across the Los Angeles basin in the movie "Earthquake," the view sweeps across Hollywood, showing the famous Chinese Theater.

Los Angeles audiences, watching the destruction of their city on the screen, immediately sighted the theater — the very one they were sitting in.

The laughter reflected some nervousness, but more amusement and resignation. Inhabitants of seismic zones can only cast their lot with "blind" luck or move out of earthquake country. It was pointless to worry because quakes were impossible to predict, much less do anything about.

"It's different," the infant science of earthquake prediction, with a few successes to its credit, warned 6 million persons this week that there are signs a major quake may strike the Los Angeles area within a year.

"How do they react?" Some worry and a few pray but for the most part residents displayed the same calm resignation that prevailed before.

"I live four miles from the epicenter of the last one and also I'm right in the path of the Bouquet reservoir, so I'll probably drown," cracked Rochelle Bryan of Saugus. "But I'd rather die by an earthquake than in the snow and tornadoes back east."

"Sure it frightens you," said Gerry Mannion, a secretary who works in a 52-story building — at 11th and Main — on the 30th floor, we're gone. It's just got to snap."

The strongest reaction came from Los Angeles City Councilman Louis Nowell, representing the San Fernando Valley suburbs at the heart of the warning zone. He asked the city to sue the respected seismologist who made the prediction, Dr. James Whitcomb of Caltech, charging him with irresponsibly lowering property values in the area and causing "mental anguish" to the residents.

Real estate brokers said however that no such reaction had appeared and psychiatrists said the time frame-of-the-forecast should most people from worrying.

"If you know the hour, the day or the month, it might make a difference," said Dr. Steven Howard of the San Fernando Valley Child guidance clinic, which treated the psychiatric problems of children terrified by the 1971 temblor that killed 65 persons and did $500 million damage.

"But within the next 12 months it's too vague."

He expects the prediction to cause more anxiety among children, with their more unfettered imaginations, than adults.

"Utilities and government agencies said they had made disaster plans following the 1971 shake and are as prepared as they can get."

"It's awful but has gone on since '71," said Robert E. Neiman, assistant county disaster services director. The announcement hasn't triggered any special response on our part."

"I think for Christians it's a prediction of the second coming of Christ," reacted Elizabeth Saunders of Sylmar, the heart of the area shaken in 1971 and in the warning area.

"That doesn't take away the fear of the earthquake when you're right in it but I think it's part of God's plan."

Pete DiNovi, who was planning to move anyway, said he "just hopes I get to Phoenix before it hits."

And what does Whittcomb plan?

The prediction process is so new and imprecise that "I can't really recommend that people take any action," he said.

All he did was move his hi-fi speakers from the wall to the floor.

Barbara Walters denies job rumors

NEW YORK (UPI) — Barbara Walters, lured by ABC from her longtime news job with NBC, denied today on nationwide television that NBC had dropped its offer to her, and said NBC had offered to match ABC's reported $1 million a year salary.

Miss Walters, co-host of the NBC "Today" show, read a statement twice during the program in which she said NBC had "erroneously reported" that "they had withdrawn their offer to me prior to my accepting ABC's offer."

Her comments were in response to a statement issued Thursday by an NBC official, who said the network had pulled out of salary competition with ABC because of the "carnival atmosphere and demands unlike a journalist and more like a movie queen."

Miss Walters has accepted an offer to become a major ABC television personality and the co-anchor, with Harry Hessmeyer, of "The Evening News," which network sources said would be expanded from 30 minutes to 45 minutes.

"It was erroneously reported by NBC last night that they had withdrawn their offer to me prior to my accepting ABC's offer. That is untrue as were all the other statements made in connection with this assertion," Miss Walters said on the program.

"It was a mistake made by an uninformated, unidentified spokesman for NBC and is a disservice to the distinguished men who run this company — men of whom I am very fond."

"Few newsmen could turn down such an opportunity and for a newswoman it is unique and most exciting," she said.

After Miss Walters read her statement — on the morning television show, the same NBC spokesman who had issued critical remarks about her Thursday said, "It's a new day. We don't want to get into it any more. We wish her luck."

BI bomber opposition seeks help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A coalition of national groups organized to oppose the BI bomber today asked the Democratic party to go on record against any more spending on the plane they call an anachronism in a missile age.

"What we are asking is that the Democratic party renounce this BI program and decide if it is in the interest of the ordinary citizen," said Roh Freund of the National Committee to Stop the BI Bomber.

The group is a coalition of some 30 organizations including the American Friends Service Committee, Common Cause, Environmental Action, the National Taxpayers Union, SANE, the Textile Workers Union and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union.

Freund's remarks were prepared for the Midwest regional hearings of the Democratic platform committee in Kansas City, Saturday. A copy of his remarks was made available in Washington.

The BI program is in its final year of research and development. Earlier this month the House, 210 to 177, voted to authorize about $1 billion to begin production of the sophisticated new bomber.

Bergman did not indicate where he planned to settle, but said he would not be involved in any more films or plays in Sweden.

Strikes pressure variety of firms

A rash of labor disputes today tied up a variety of fields from tires and television to tracheotomies and transportation. Even the flow of beer was affected:

A strike by the United Rubber Workers against four major tire manufacturers led the list of disputes. The URW Thursday cited pressure on the auto industry as an ally in their drive for a new contract.

Elsewhere, young doctors continued a strike against three major Los Angeles County hospitals—nurses picketed a hospital in Willimantic, Conn., and San Francisco city craft union workers picketed a convention hall and lited public transportation.

Rubber workers began a walkout against the industry's big four—Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., Goodyear Tire and Rubber Corp., B.F. Goodrich and Uniroyal—when their three-year contract expired Tuesday.

URW President Pete Bommarito said "if the auto industry needs tires, they'll instruct the tire companies to sell."

Auto makers said they had enough tires to last at least a month but feared a long walkout would slow the industry's growing sales momentum.

Negotiations continued in Cleveland with Firestone as the company and union worked to hammer out an agreement that would set the pattern for a new master contract that would cover 70,000 union members nationwide.

In Los Angeles, about 200 interns and residents striking three county hospitals showed up for a county supervisors' meeting. The board refused to hear their grievances and told them to return to work.

County officials said about two-fifths of the 1,200 interns and residents had joined a walkout at three hospitals, seeking to improve the quality of care at the institutions as well as to get shorter hours and more pay.

San Francisco city officials held closed-door meetings on a proposal which Mayor George Moscone hoped would end the long walkout by city crafts workers.

Construction workers on strike for two weeks in Kansas City prepared to vote Monday on a new contract. The walkout has blocked downtown projects, including work on the Radisson Muehlenbach hotel where preparations are in progress for the August Republican National Convention.

A spokesman for Anheuser-Busch, brewers of Budweiser, said groundwork had been made for resuming negotiations in a strike of beer bottlers against the company. The nationwide strike began March 1.

Nurses striking against the Windham Community Memorial Hospital at Willimantic, Conn., sought an 11 per cent wage increase and a two-year contract.

Negotiators for the striking National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians prepared a counterproposal in their three-week strike against the National Broadcasting Co.

Top Rhode Island officials took part in talks at Cranston, R.I., designed to end a walkout by 600 United Steel Workers against the Gorham Silver plant at Providence. The strike began last September.

Court-named psychiatrist supports Patricia's story

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A court-appointed psychiatrist supports convicted bank robber Patricia Hearst's story that she lived in fear of William and Emily Harris during her underground life and was just trying to survive.

Dr. Donald Lunde, the first psychiatrist to examine the newspaper heiress after her capture seven months ago, told UPI Thursday she had an "irrational fear" of the Harrises, charged last week with her kidnap as members of the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army.

He said she was frightened of the police and FBI and tried to stay alive "on a day-to-day basis."

Miss Hearst was excused Wednesday from a Los Angeles court appearance with the Harrises on kidnap and robbery charges because she is hospitalized with a collapsed lung. She was reported "terrified" of her captors Thursday.

Miss Hearst, 22, was reported improving steadily at Sequoia Hospital in nearby Redwood City, Calif., also said she was no longer on a special diet to combat malnutrition and she was eating without coaxing.

Lunde, 38, a Stanford University professor, said Miss Hearst was afraid she would be killed during her life as a fugitive because the Harrises might try to shoot it out if trapped, like six other SLA members slain earlier in a Los Angeles gunfight with police.

She said she was afraid that any day the police would appear and there would be a repeat of that episode—that the Harrises, if provoked, would not give up without a fight," the psychiatrist said.

Lunde was one of three psychiatrists appointed by U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter to determine if Miss Hearst was mentally competent to stand trial for bank robbery. He told the judge she was. Another court-appointed psychiatrist, Dr. Louis J. West, later testified for Miss Hearst.

According to Lunde, Miss Hearst's "terror" of the Harrises continued when she and Emily Harris were near each other in cells at the San Mateo County Jail south of San Francisco. But there was "a noticeable change" in Miss Hearst's attitude when the Harrises were transferred to Los Angeles, he said.

She began to relax. Her almost irrational fear disappeared, Lunde said.

Jackson campaign heads for Pennsylvania mines

By United Press International
Sen. Henry Jackson headed into the coal mines of western Pennsylvania in search of primary election votes today while rivals Jimmy Carter and Morris Udall swept through the small towns in the central section of the delegate-rich Keystone state.

The Washington senator, still the favorite to win a majority of the 134 Democratic national convention delegates, if not the statewide popular vote Tuesday, was the center of Carter and Udall attacks Thursday while Jackson was away campaigning in Michigan.

Jackson scheduled a nighttime descent into a coal mine today after planned day-long swings through the Pittsburgh area. Carter and Udall were expected to cross paths as both headed for Reading, Lancaster and the state capitol of Harrisburg.

Carter pushed off on his increasingly busy Pennsylvania schedule after getting influential black support in Philadelphia Thursday. A score of black civic, business, religious and education leaders, banded as "The Family of Leaders," endorsed the former Georgia governor because of his "high moral and spiritual qualities that are needed to bring this nation together."

The intensity of the vote-seeking by the three major Democratic candidates gave further emphasis to the importance of the Pennsylvania primary in which President Ford is the only Republican contender. A win for Carter would seriously cripple Jackson, who has the backing of major labor and state political leaders, and all but wipe out Udall.

"Our public opinion polls show that in spite of the fact labor leaders have professed support of Senator Jackson, I have a great deal of support among labor families," Carter told a Senanton news conference Thursday.

Udall predicted on a Philadelphia television show where he appeared with Carter that if he did not finish first "I'll at least be second" and he criticized Jackson's stand on school busing.

"He was against it in Massachusetts but for it elsewhere," said Udall.

President Ford parades as prosperity champion

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — President Ford paraded in Indiana today as the champion of prosperity.

He even outdisted other presidential candidates in running short of campaign funds through having "wasted their money."

But late Thursday he turned serious to declare that his administration has no intention whatsoever of recognizing North Vietnam.

Opponent Ronald Reagan's suggestions that he might do so, and also that he plans to "give away" the Panama Canal, are irresponsible, he said.

Ford made falling inflation and rising employment—the theme of speeches and in interview statements after his arrival from Washington Thursday. Aides said he planned more of the same through today, here and in Evansville, before leaving for Georgia.

Cheered by 16,000 in the Butler University Fieldhouse—the largest indoor crowd of his campaign—Ford recited his economic rally cry.

"Today everything that is supposed to be going up is going up and everything that is supposed to be going down is going down," Ford said.

The President broke the pattern only when Indiana credit-watchers asked him about Reagan criticism of his foreign policy.

Told of Reagan's suggestion that he might do so, and also that he plans to "give away" the Panama Canal, are irresponsible, he said.

Asked about Reagan's statement that Ford was moving toward "surrender" of the Panama Canal, the President said his rival's position against ever yielding any control over the waterway is "totally irresponsible."

When an Indianapolis reporter asked about his campaign financing, the President said his committee's bank accounts are "in the black ... I kind of like to operate a balanced budget, whether it is in the federal government or whether it is in the President Ford Committee ... some of these other candidates have apparently either wasted their money or have not planned it properly so they are in some trouble."

Soliah tells jury of life with Patty

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Accused bank robber Steven Soliah testified Thursday that he had an affair with Patricia Hearst and fell deeply for her.

"I lived with her. I slept with her. We had a close relationship," Soliah disclosed as he took the stand and faced the eight-woman, four-man jury and a crowded courtroom.

The former college track team member said Miss Hearst's situation "made me feel sorry for her."

Soliah denied his intimate relationship drew him into participating in a $150,000 Symbionese Liberation Army "kinked-bank robbery" during which a mother-of-four children was killed. And he said, he was not a member of the hoodlum team.

Soliah, 27, said Miss Hearst fell she had been "abandoned" by her parents and wanted to remain underground.

Miss Hearst, who shared a San Francisco apartment with Soliah for three months before their arrests, refused to testify at her own bank robbery trial about her "missing year" activities in Sacramento.

Under questioning by defense attorney Sheldon Otis, Soliah said he met Miss Hearst and SLA members William and Emily Harris about a month after a fiery gun battle between Los Angeles police and six members of the SLA.

Dual decision critical question in Pennsylvania

By JACK W. GERMOND

PHILADELPHIA The critical question in the Pennsylvania primary on April 27 — and perhaps in the final verdict on the Democratic presidential nomination... is whether the voters here are willing to make a two-step decision when they go to the polls.

son" or "stand-in" candidates who ran on the premise voters would support them to preserve an option they might exercise later.

And in one significant test to preserve a strategy this year, in the Illinois primary March 16, delegate candidates supporting Carter defeated those backing Sen. Adlai B. Stevenson in most of the districts in which they faced one another.

There are, however, important differences in the situation here. The most obvious being the signals Humphrey himself is sending that he will be in the competition once the filing

And three days after that there are primaries in Indiana, Georgia, Alabama and the District of Columbia in which he would be heavily favored to be the over-all winner if he defeats Jackson and Udall here.

By contrast, Jackson does not have a "good" primary on his schedule until May 18 in Michigan, and there are those who doubt that it is really fertile ground for him.

Aside from his positioning, however, Carter is being buoyed these days by a spreading awareness among Democratic politicians that there is a point at which he cannot be denied the nomination without tearing apart the party and forfeiting its hopes for defeating the Republicans in November.

Just what that tipping point will be is far from certain. Douglas Fraser, a vice president of the United Auto Workers sympathetic to Udall, has put it as low as $50 to 1,000 of the 1,595 delegates needed to win.

A third element in the Democratic equation at this critical point is the growing suspicion, fed by opinion surveys such as last week's Gallup Poll, that Carter might have a better chance of defeating President Ford than Humphrey.

Success for the stop-Carter bloc would require a whole new set of political calculations.

Success for Udall, who has been clinging to his 5 per cent in the national poll, would force the party into a radical re-examination of the widely-held view now that no liberal candidate is capable of broadening his base to a serious competitor for the nomination this year.

For one thing, it would seem to assure that no candidate could arrive at the convention near a tipping point, wherever it is set. Carter's hopes for success in later primaries — such as those in Indiana and Michigan, for example — are predicted to a large degree on his reputation as the guy who can lick any man in the house.

But a Jackson triumph here also would change the outlook for Humphrey. The Washington Democrat demonstrated at the 1972 national convention that his ambitions for a presidential nomination are not easily put aside.

And so long as he is in the field, there is no way Humphrey can enter the competition without being accused of playing political mischief.

Some Humphrey supporters here write scenarios in which Jackson goes to the win finally decides he cannot be nominated and throws his support to his colleague from Minnesota. But, as one Jackson intimate put it last week, "I'm not so sure Hubert would be Scoop's first choice if it came down to that."

So if the game in Pennsylvania is Stop Carter, and it most assuredly is, it is far from certain that it is necessarily Start Hubert, as well.

deadlines for primaries have passed. Moreover, Humphrey has always been particularly strong in a state whose 2.8 million Democrats are dominated by organized labor and a pervasive organization.

First, there is recognition that Carter is ideally positioned to take advantage of a triumph here April 27. Four days later, he is the only candidate other than Wallace challenging the favorite son state of Sen. Lloyd Bentsen in Texas, a situation in which he would need no better than a respectable second-place to claim

Rocky out of spotlight but looking to US future

By N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON Ever since Nelson Rockefeller withdrew from the 1976 vice presidential race, he has seemed to drop out of the headlines almost as completely as Spiro Agnew.

What has he been doing, and where is he going, if anywhere? For one thing, he has been off talking to world leaders about what many of them regard as a serious decline in America's influence, and for another he has been preparing and delivering the best series of speeches on our internal problems of any politician on the scene today.

This is no great compliment, for as the vice president himself observed the other day, "We are not having an informed debate on the grave issues that face present day America... In the plethora of primaries, we witness mostly personality contests — candidates based not on party programs or issues but on personalities and promises."

"Let's face the facts. We've been on a backward, negative kick for four years. We've been looking backward and we've been rehashing the old issues for this year."

"Most of us can, as we choose, make of this world either a palace or a prison." — John Lubbock, English astronomer.

"All government — indeed every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act — is founded on compromise and barter." — Edmund Burke, English statesman and orator.

"Human affairs inspire in noble hearts only two feelings — admiration or pity." — Anatole France, French novelist.

"Every man should make up his mind that if he expects to succeed, he must give an honest return for the other man's dollar." — Edward H. Harriman, American industrialist.

"Calmly war, famine, death, adversity, disease, injury do not necessarily produce repentance. The essence of repentance is that we cannot be repentant until we confront our own self-righteousness with God's righteousness." — Bishop Fulton J. Sheen.

"I believe the true road to preeminent success in any line is to make yourself master of that line." — Andrew Carnegie, American philanthropist.

"A good name, like good will, is got by many actions and lost by one." — Lord Francis Jeffrey, Scottish critic and jurist.

"Liberty is the only thing you cannot have unless you are willing to give it to others." — William Allen White, American journalist.

"The only true happiness comes from musing ourselves for a purpose." — John Mason Brown, American critic and lecturer.

"I believe that love is the greatest thing in the world; that if love can overcome hate, that right can and will triumph over might." — John D. Rockefeller Jr., American philanthropist.

He was not surprised but he was disappointed when Nixon didn't choose him for the vice presidency after the Spiro Agnew disaster.

But after a while, he took refuge in the future and his problems, and is still supporting the President, without always supporting the President's policies.

Rockefeller has always said he would not now accept anything less than the vice presidency, but this awkward job never fit his temperament or character.

He is good at the tireless duties of government ceremony, but essentially he is a man of action with a gift of recruiting men of thought.

Meanwhile, though he wouldn't like the phrase, he will undoubtedly play the role of the elder statesman thinking about the coming age, with his customary optimism.

It is a useful role, and while nobody is paying much attention to what he says, he is about the only experienced politician on the stage who is seeking out the best brains in the country and trying to play it.

Crumbled cookies no big crisis

Now they've done it. Those meanies on the school board have voted to abolish the ovens which once brought fresh-baked goodies to Twin Falls kindergarten kids.

No more crumbs on the desktops. No more spilled milk on the floors. No more crumpled napkins stuffed in the radiator. All because of a heartless school board.

Think of it, mom: now your five year old won't just poke around at lunch because he polished off a cookie in kindergarten minutes before. No, junior now may be forced to eat lunch.

Social commentators on the kindergarten set undoubtedly will issue dire warnings about the consequences of such a daring move as eliminating treats.

We probably can expect five-year-olds taking to the streets, protesting the end of snacktime, carrying banners of "Cookie Power."

And who knows? Five-year-olds now may be tempted to take cookies from complete strangers waiting on the edge of the schoolyard to prey on the defenseless young.

Parents themselves may soon form political action groups to aid the stomachs of their young ones.

Sure, people complained about the cost of establishing kindergartens but that was last year. Now that we have the programs why not make it tasty for the kids. After all, snacks are as American as cavities and fat arms.

Trimming the $13,456 snack budget is like telling kids not to nap, right? Let the schools lower teachers' salaries, use old textbooks, turn down the heat, but keep the snack budget intact!

But the defenders of this dastardly deed must have their say. We live in shaky economic times, remember? School isn't a place for kids to get a free lunch.

The five-year-old, who eats a free cookie today may someday be on the welfare rolls asking for an extra meal. Idaho isn't a land of pointless frills.

If they want snacks in kindergarten let their mothers bring them brownies!

Yes, the snack program does account for one quarter of one per cent of the school budget.

Yes, Twin Falls is about to begin serious teacher negotiations for this year.

Yes, the school is planning a new building program for the junior high.

Is there something more important to debate than snacks for kindergarten kids?

You answer that.

Is there a supreme truth hidden in the treats for tots debate?

Yes.

The last word needed to put the kindergarten snack debate to rest is a simple phrase known to all — that's the way the cookie crumbles.

Now you know

Gem board moves toward implementing pay bonus

BOISE (UPI) — Learning funds are $400,000 short of needs, the State Board of Examiners moved Thursday toward partial implementation of a long-term pay bonus the legislature directed for state employees.

In a bill passed in the waning days of the last session, the legislature directed the board to implement the long-term feature of an interim commission pay bonus, consisting of 2 to 5, 7.5 or 10 per cent, depending on length of service.

To finance the bonus for general fund employees the lawmakers appropriated $1,693,700 and directed it be added to their agency appropriations. To pay it to dedicated fund employees they provided for revision of programs within existing appropriations.

Larry Stale, chief of the Budget Bureau, told the board at a special meeting Thursday that the total cost of implementing the full bonus for all full-time general fund employees including university faculty is $2,665,026. That means the money appropriated will cover only 81 per cent of the total cost of the pay bonus.

He added that the dedicated fund total of $2,562,573 for full implementation brings the grand total of the plan for fiscal 1977 to $4,697,773.

Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell and his deputy, Christopher Bray, told the board it can go one of two ways:

— Pay the full available money for the start of the new fiscal year, July 1, and go back to the legislature in January and ask for money to implement the rest of the bonus.

— Begin paying the full rate of the increase directed by the legislature as of July 1 and ask the next session of the legislature for a supplemental appropriation to make up the deficit.

The board directed Stale to doublecheck his figures with department heads and then begin modifying appropriations bills for action at a meeting to be called early in May.

At that time, the board will decide whether to appropriate or start paying them in full each month and ask the legislature for a supplemental appropriation to cover the deficit.

All three members of the board indicated they are leaning in the direction of prorating the bonuses July 1 and then increasing them if the next legislature comes up with more money.

Accordingly, they directed Stale to apply 81 per cent of the pay increases to the general fund agencies and 100 per cent of the bonus within existing appropriations.

Idaho Power asks delay to prepare testimony

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Company president James Kitchin asked Thursday the company be asked for a postponement in hearings on the proposed Pioneer plant because more time is needed to prepare testimony.

The company also wants more time to investigate possible alternative sources of supply for growing customer requirements.

He said the postponement would allow the company to present more definitive information on power availability, cost and other factors when the hearings resume.

"Idaho Power for years has purchased from, sold to and traded with other utilities throughout the West. We will continue to explore every avenue of possible economic exchange or purchase of power and if, due to changing demand requirements in some areas we can delay building additional power facilities, we will most certainly do so.

The public "can be assured we will not proceed with construction of any new power plant — even if authorized — unless it is the only viable and economic solution to what appears to be a developing power shortage on our system in the early 1980's."

Idaho Power's application

explained that the company has been unable to obtain and profile the testimony of its expert witnesses in the short period between the end of the last phase of the hearings and the deadline set by the PUC.

"It now appears that the testimony of several witnesses would not be available until Monday, April 26, for review by the commission and parties. Since some of Idaho Power's testimony will be very technical, the intervenors probably would require another recess in order to allow time for adequate preparation of a list of cross-examination.

US interior aide speaks in Boise

BOISE (UPI) — The nation can adjust to protecting the environment and still develop new energy supplies, Interior Secretary Thomas Killeps told the Rocky Mountain and Gas Association Thursday.

Killeps called the Rocky Mountain States the "energy storehouse of the nation."

"Given the opportunity to explore and develop these Rocky Mountain resources in an environmentally sound manner, I believe that private industry can and will ease the national trend toward more and more oil imports and that the United States can achieve that degree of energy production necessary to our strategic and economic independence," he said.

Dedication ceremonies planned

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, announced Thursday there will be two dedication ceremonies in June for the Hells Canyon National Recreation Area.

Ceremonies will be held June 19 at Hat Point, Ore., overlooking the mile deep canyon. On Sunday, June 20, ceremonies will be held at Lewiston, Idaho, and will include a riverboat trip upstream along with other festivities.

McClure said final details for the dedication are being worked out by the U. S. Forest Service. President Ford signed the bill establishing the national recreation area for Hells Canyon.

Officer resigns

REXBURG, Idaho (UPI) — Rexburg police officer Stan Isaacson resigned from the force Thursday after being implicated in a recent drug investigation.

Chief Blair Sepeck said the 22-year-old officer was under investigation in the wake of raids earlier this week by police and Barks College security forces.

BOISE (UPI) — Interior Secretary Thomas Killeps predicted Thursday federal participation would be needed for the development of oil shale resources and to make energy conservation efforts really work.

Killeps told a news conference there is nothing in the leasing process his agency uses for geothermal explorations that could be articulated in a way that they could never be awarded more rapid development of that resource.

He said competitive bidding in issuing the leases is necessary for the agency to protect the public interest. He said that never before has the federal government been asked to build for the processing of shale-oil resources. Killeps said he does not expect that to happen without help from the federal government.

"I think there is a limit on what private enterprise can do in the development of oil shale," he said, adding the federal government "must be a partner in this."

On questioning about the national goal to achieve energy independence by 1985.

Suspended

BOISE (UPI) — The Public Utilities Commission Thursday announced a temporary suspension of further hearings into Idaho Power Company's request to construct the Pioneer coal-fired generating plant.

The commissioners said they will reschedule the hearing for rebuttal testimony at a later date. The hearing was scheduled to begin April 27.

The commission suspended the hearing in response to a motion filed Thursday by Idaho Power seeking additional time to investigate alternatives to the coal fired plant.

The company's motion also noted that they had overlooked the commission's April 19 deadline for pre-filing rebuttal testimony for next week's hearing.

The commission said it was in the public interest to postpone the hearing to permit the staff and intervenors ample time to review the rebuttal testimony when it is pre-filed and prepare cross-examination.

Oil shale development may need US help

BOISE (UPI) — Interior Secretary Thomas Killeps predicted Thursday federal participation would be needed for the development of oil shale resources and to make energy conservation efforts really work.

Killeps told a news conference there is nothing in the leasing process his agency uses for geothermal explorations that could be articulated in a way that they could never be awarded more rapid development of that resource.

He said competitive bidding in issuing the leases is necessary for the agency to protect the public interest. He said that never before has the federal government been asked to build for the processing of shale-oil resources. Killeps said he does not expect that to happen without help from the federal government.

"I think there is a limit on what private enterprise can do in the development of oil shale," he said, adding the federal government "must be a partner in this."

On questioning about the national goal to achieve energy independence by 1985.

he said conservation can be as constructive, or more constructive, than other measures to stretch the nation's fuel supplies.

"However," he said, "he does not expect much cooperation from the general public for conservation efforts without federal regulations."

He later said the deregulation of natural gas and oil prices would act as a built-in conserving factor.

Asked about the possibility there will be modifications in the CAFE Act to allow both a husband and a wife to file for 160 acres each under desert entry rather than the 100 acres total now allowed, Killeps said he could not comment on it because "unless a situation gets to a crisis stage, it doesn't get to my desk."

He also said the agency had denied a request from Gov. Cecil D. Andrus for a six-months delay in the environmental impact statements on the phosphate mining area of southeast Idaho because his staff "didn't think that amount of delay would serve any purpose."

After the conference, an aide traveling with Killeps showed reporters the memo included in the briefing book that was prepared for the secretary before his trip to Idaho. The secretary said he was unfamiliar with the situation and that he had not read the staff memo.

The briefing paper included a notation that the Bureau of Land Management in February recommended a moratorium on additional mineral lease applications because of the limited water supply in the Snake River

Wilson to be knighted

LONDON (UPI) — Former Prime Minister and Labor Party leader Harold Wilson will appear before the Queen on Monday to receive the title "Sir Harold."

He has been dubbed a Knight Companion of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, one of England's highest orders of chivalry.

He and the Duke of Grafton will fill Garter vacancies caused by the deaths of the Duke of Norfolk and World War II Field Marshal, Lord Montgomery.

Released from hospital

NEW LONDON, Conn. (UPI) — L. Patrick Gray, former acting director of the FBI, was released Thursday from Lawrence and Memorial Hospital after five days of treatment for an undisclosed ailment.

A hospital spokesman refused to say whether Gray's condition was related to a previous surgery for an aneurysm — a bubble on his aorta near the heart.

Cher feels better

HONOLULU (UPI) — Cher has changed into her own nightgown at Kapiolani Hospital — a sure sign that she is feeling better.

The entertainer was having labor pains two months before her child is due. Doctors at the maternity hospital are administering an alcohol solution to discourage the contractions.

A hospital spokesman said Thursday the pains were recurring but birth was not imminent and it is still hoped she can return to Los Angeles before delivery.

Seeks political sanctuary

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Dennis Banks, cofounder of the American Indian Movement, said he is seeking political sanctuary in Oregon.

Banks is fighting extradition to South Dakota for riot and assault charges. He said he left the state before sentencing to avoid a "contract" that had been issued on his life in the penitentiary.

The AIM leader is free on bail and awaiting trial in U.S. District Court in Portland, Ore., May 12 on federal firearms charges. The charges stem from an alleged shootout between Oregon State Police and several AIM members near Ontario, Ore., last November.

He works at 101

CHICAGO (UPI) — George Zervas, who turns 100 Saturday, gave up his holdup push-cart and retired 15 years ago — to a full-time job as a supermarket worker.

"How old am I?" he asks. "Here's my passport. Can you read it? Maybe not. You wear glasses." Zervas doesn't. Nor does he smoke, drink or eat more than one small helping of meat a week.

"I'll say April 24, 1876. Born in Alonistea, Greece."

Bill Allen, a colleague at the Treasure Island supermarket, thinks Zervas may really be 101.

"I've lied a year because he thought 100 was the mandatory retirement age," Allen said. He thinks Zervas may be the oldest full-time working man in Chicago, possibly in the United States.

Zervas entertains customers as he weighs and prices parcels, bags groceries or shoves a line of carts into place by singing old war songs — in Greek, French or Arabic. He speaks all three languages plus English and Italian.

T-N reporter makes run on Oregon's Owyhee River

We were moving along faster than I, as navigator and earman, had estimated when we approached the first major rapids and a deepening dusk simultaneously.

In true captain's tradition Harry settled the argument about shore or rapids by abandoning ship and hauling the raft to shore over my one-armed protest.

HARRY'S lava-rock chokes at campsite left something to be desired, but the whitecaps below us silenced protest. Scouting these rapids the next morning, I spotted a canoe and gear on the opposite bank; we had stopped above the rapids that ended our predecessors' trip.

Unable to get from shore around a jutting rock formation, we lined to the lower side.

That was the only break-in our water-journey. We beated through several worse rapids, but in broad daylight.

In fact, we had no sooner boarded than Harry snaked us a bath we came to expect as soon as we left shore. Then we had a dispute with a large rock that failed to wrap us up but did drop us into a 4-6 foot hole.

We baited our way past a vertical rock wall on the left, and stopped beyond clay badlands on the right to scout some steep and heavy rapids about 17 1/2 miles down. Mick was our firemaker and soon had one going for a leisurely lunch.

Casting a jaundiced eye at the rapids, I volunteered to photograph the drowning, and took pictures of Harry hanging up on a rock before the raft rolled free with a water-lashed caverned hole in the bottom.

Harry and I patched the raft, while Mick fired up for supper. A long evening of conversation followed, salted with apprehension about Whistling Bird Rapids two miles below us.

Saturday morning, after recasting the craft and heading again, we found Harry up to his old tricks. This time he hung up where current struck a large patch of willows. He and I climbed out on the rocks and pulled the raft free while Mick manned the oars.

Whistling Bird is about 29 1/2 miles downriver with a vertical wall of beautiful red rock on the left and a huge rock slab fallen into the river to form an arch on the right. The current flows directly into the slab and we scouted warily.

Most of the rest of the day was spent running rapids with fairly strong eddies, but only medium waves and few obstacles. Three miles of the trip ran through a spectacular steep-walled canyon. In it, about 32 1/2 miles down where the river takes a left bend to avoid broken lava rubble, we scouted again. Then Harry ran it without incident despite a strong current rushing toward a rock wall on the left.

We camped about 5 1/2 miles beyond at a large, sandy site, where Mick discovered our first cool water. The evening was spent sheering at the ease with which we ran the earlier rapids and wondering how we would get the raft past the broken dam 1 1/2 miles below, since we were all going to walk.

Next morning, waded by the raft and a creek cascading down a gully on the left, we stopped and scouted the dam. It appeared runnable in the center, but Harry chose to avoid the rocks there and steer near the remaining dam wall on the right.

One big drop and the problems were over, aided by the high water. The runout was smooth and a mile later the trip was over.

Left were the memories of rock and white-water of colorful gorges, limestone and carved clay badlands. We saw desert sheep, deer and antelope; we roused geese and watched ducks play in riffles; there were buzzards and hawks, as well as aquatic animals.

Our method strayed from accepted practice for tackling whitewater, and we don't advise it for others. But we did return to laugh—and plan another.

Bailing water

MICK bails water like mad from the 10' man raft which took the three Magic Valley explorers down the Owyhee River a few days ago. The high waves frequently dumped the river around the feet of the crew.

Camp grub

HARRY, left, and Mick, right, relax with a cup of coffee as the stew brews on the campfire.

Shooting rapids

HARRY (at the oars) and Mick defeat a large and irregular wave caused by the broken irrigation dam in the middle of the Owyhee River channel. The dam is near the end of the 40 mile raft trip.

Protestant hails Catholic stands

CHICAGO — One of the nation's leading Protestant thinkers urges the use of tax money for parochial schools, defends the anti-abortion fight of the Roman Catholic Church and hails Catholic institutions as dikes holding back the "rush of totalitarianism."
 "All of us — and that includes Protestants, Jews, agnostics and recent denizens of Hindu communes — have an enormous stake in the vitality of American Catholicism and its institutions," sociologist Peter Berger said at the National Catholic Educational Assn. convention Tuesday.
 "Most of the world outside North America and western Europe," Berger said, "is in a headlong rush toward various forms of totalitarianism. If we do not want to follow the rush, we must strengthen every institution and every community that offers an alternative to the monopolization of moral authority by the state."
 Turning to specifics, Berger, a Lutheran layman, said, "It is in the public interest that there be a strong vital and vitally Catholic system of parochial education in this country. Therefore I'm emphatically in favor of using tax funds for this purpose wherever it is legally possible — and, if a constitutional amendment is necessary to do this, then let us work toward a constitutional amendment."
 On the abortion issue, Berger said his views "are not identical to the official Roman Catholic position, though closer to that position than to the ideas propagated by pro-abortion forces."
 Despite differences in viewpoint, he went on, "All Americans should recognize the right of Catholics to state their moral convictions and to organize politically on the basis of these convictions."
 "Down the road from the 1973 Supreme Court decisions on abortion is the nightmare of the eugenic state. If America is going to be preserved from this fate, I'm sure the Catholic witness will have become one of the crucial factors."
 A year ago Berger played a decisive role in formulating the "Harford Appeal for Theological Affirmation," the statement signed by 18 Protestant, Catholic and Eastern Orthodox theologians urged contemporary Christians to remain faithful to their tradition and not capitulate to the "idols" of modern secular thought.

Moral education interest increases

CHICAGO — The signs are multiplying. A reconstructionist spirit is at work in the United States. It can be detected in attempts to find a new sense of moral and ethical grounding.
 Typical of what's happening was the conference at DePaul University centered on the theme, "Moral Education: An Imperative in Today's Schools."
 "Since Watergate," said Prof. Andrew T. Kepan, one of the conference leaders, "interest in moral education has been burgeoning." As if to prove his point, some 175 school board members and elementary and high school teachers and principals showed up for the daylong event. The participants came from public and parochial schools.
 The final speaker was Sid Sijman, who since Feb. 2 has been filling a new job, co-ordinator of responsibility education for the Illinois Office of Education. In a sense, Sijman is the acting coordinator because the responsibility education program will not become official until (and unless) it is approved by the state Board of Education.
 Spelling out the reasons for the new emphasis in education, Sijman said: "Our nation has been wrung out by many years of troubles. Our culture is in unusual trouble. The need for responsibility education is demonstrated by the sorry state of our institutions."
 Sijman got down to specifics. In 1975, he said, 12,000 armed robberies were attributed to preteen-agers and teen-agers, as were 100 murders, 9,000 rapes and 204,000 aggravated assaults on teachers or fellow students.
 As the DePaul conference progressed, it became apparent that the participants were committed to several schools of thought within the moral education movement.
 Some take their signals primarily from Lawrence Kohlberg of Harvard University, an educational psychologist. According to Kohlberg's "cognitive-developmental approach" to moral education, individuals move through six stages of moral development, ranging from an "obedience-punishment orientation" at the lowest level to a "conscience or principle orientation" at the highest level.
 Other conferees were identified primarily with the "responsibility education" point-of-view or with the so-called values clarification movement.
 Generally, however, it was agreed that "indiscriminatory styles" of moral instruction do not produce morally mature persons.
 The Rev. Thomas F. Sullivan, an associate superintendent of schools for the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Chicago, said: "Indiscriminatory moral education is ineffective after people reach Kohlberg's stage four." (Kohlberg says stage four individuals are characterized by an "orientation-to doing good, showing respect for authority and maintaining the given social order for its own sake."
 "Some things in our past," Father Sullivan added, "keep people at the stage four level. There is a great need in the Catholic community to help people freely form their own consciences while at the same time taking into account the contributions of their own tradition."

Butz swing cost $112,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and a party of 25 other persons, including wives of department officials, are using an Air Force VIP jet on a globe-girdling trade tour that will cost $112,000 more per person than commercial airfares.

The Agriculture Department said in a statement, released in response to questions, that it will reimburse the Air Force for the cost of operating the VC135 aircraft and crew on the three-week trip. Total cost is estimated at about $112,000.

This averages out to $4,207 for each of the 26 persons making the full 10-country tour through the Pacific, Asia and Europe. According to travel agencies, a regular economy class ticket for the same trip would cost $2,349.

Agriculture officials had no comment on the use of Air Force transportation, but other department sources said cabinet officers try to avoid official travel on commercial airlines because of the increase in plane hijackings abroad in recent years.

In addition to Butz, 13 department officials and nine of their wives, the party includes three reporters, John T. Smith, commercial counselor at the Australian Embassy in Washington, and his wife, also accompanied the group as far as Australia.

The statement released by the Agriculture Department said that "USDA will not bill non-government passengers since the cost is the same whether the passenger is a cabinet officer or a tourist."

The reporters are Bernard Brenner of United Press International, president of the Newspaper

Editors of America; William Mason of WGN in Chicago, president of the National Association of Farm Broadcasters; and Richard Krumme of the Successful Farming magazine, president of the American Agricultural Association.

Grant Dillman, UPI Vice-President and Washington Manager, said Brenner was authorized to make the trip in his role as president of the Farm Writers and that UPI will pick up all of Brenner's expenses except transportation. Dillman said the trip's news value alone would not have justified Brenner's participation.

In its statement, the Agriculture Department said the plane left Andrews Air Force base April 11 with a full passenger load.

It said the plane, an aerial tanker plane similar to the commercial 707-Jetliner but modified for VIP travel, seats 28 passengers and can carry a crew of 10, including flight personnel, stewards and security guards.

The department said each passenger will be billed for meals served on board the aircraft, while government employees claiming reimbursement. It said the department wives will not be reimbursed. Each traveler also will pay for hotels and other expenses with government employees again claiming reimbursement.

Butz returns May 2 after conferences with government officials and trade groups in New Zealand, Australia, Indonesia, Singapore, Malaysia, Greece, Bulgaria, Switzerland, Spain, and Portugal.

Idaho weed contest lists open

TWIN FALLS — Farmers interested in competing in the 1978 Idaho Governor's Weed Control Awards program should obtain application forms from the county extension office, says Donald Youtz, county extension agricultural agent.

The applications are due in May.

This is the third year for the program. Youtz said any Idaho farm operator who has not been a previous winner may apply. Farmers will compete in their own districts. A farm operator may own or rent a minimum of 1/2 acres.

District winners and their wives will be guests of the Governor at a special recognition dinner in Boise in October, and a Boise State University football game, along with motel and meals. The 1975 district winner was Arlin Ashmead, Fairfield. Dean Moore, Hansen was district winner in 1974.

Officers named

TWIN FALLS — Officers were elected at the convention of the South Central Future Farmers of America Chapter.

The officers are president, Lonnie Anderson, Hagerman; vice-president, Scott Tverdy, Castleford; secretary, Julie Cartney, Twin Falls; treasurer, Ralph May, Wendell; reporter, George Freeman, Hagerman, and sentinel, Rick Novacek, Buhl.

Sugar growers paid

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah (UPI) — U and I Incorporated announced today it has mailed individual checks totaling $1,558,822 to Idaho sugarbeet growers.

Lloyd V. Olsen, Idaho district manager for the company, said this regular additional payment for sugarbeets delivered last fall amounts to an average of $3.15 per ton.

He said together with the initial payment made in November, Idaho growers to date have received $3,668,427, or an average of $29.91 per ton for 1975 crop sugarbeets. Olsen explained sugarbeet growers receive an initial payment for beets delivered at harvest time. He said then they participate with the processors in the net returns from the sale of sugar made from their beets as they are sold during the year.

Both the quantity and quality of a grower's sugarbeets affect his individual payment. Olsen said.

The 1975 sugarbeet crop was "about average," Olsen said, both in yield and sugar content.

Indications are that the 1976 crop also will be about normal," he added.

McClure backs exemptions

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, is cosponsoring legislation which would exempt custom-combine operators and sheep shearers from some provisions of the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act of 1963.

Calling the Registration Act "another example of bureaucratic meddling in the affairs of agriculture," McClure said that the Department of Labor has taken it upon itself to interpret the law to require registration of custom-combine crews and sheep shearers even though they are employed on a contract basis.

McClure said the Labor Department rules just lead to more red tape for farmers and sheep ranchers, and serve little useful purpose. Further, McClure said, in reviewing the history of this act, it is obvious that Congress had no intention of placing such a restriction on combine crews and sheep shearers. "That," McClure said, "was decided by some Labor Department employees who apparently thought the rule would serve some useful purpose."

McClure said that there have already been many examples of how the rules are adversely affecting agriculture. For example, in some cases, 25 different forms and statements are required for each custom operation. Many of the forms and statements would have to be submitted repeatedly for each employee, for each vehicle used, and for each job performed by the operator.

Further, the Labor Department regulations require that "custom-combine operators and their employees would have to be fingerprinted."

McClure said it "seems ridiculous that Congress must continuously pass laws restrict rules and regulations written by government agencies, which were created by Congress in the first place."

Oregon ranch sale near completion

BURNS, Ore. (UPI) — One of Oregon's largest cattle ranches — the 150,000-acre spread where cattle baron Pete French was shot to death by a homesteader in 1898 — is being sold.

Allied Properties of San Francisco plans to sell the 150,000-acre and timber grazing rights on 272,000 acres to Roaring Springs Corp., Harry Olson, executive vice president of Allied, said Wednesday.

Headquarters for the cow-calf operation is at Roaring Springs Ranch about 75 miles southeast of Burns in Harney County in southeastern Oregon.

The property is part of land

Allied was ordered to sell as a result of a lawsuit filed three years ago by dissident stockholders, Olson said. He said the sale may be presented by stockholder approval at a meeting next month.

Olson said Roaring Springs Corp. has two or three principal bidders he declined to name them. He said the same individuals plan to buy Allied cattle land in Nevada.

An assumed business name of Roaring Springs Farm was filed with the Oregon corporation commissioner last Friday by Mile R. Walker and Len E. Nelson, who listed a Gold Hill, Ore., address.

An official of the Bureau of Land Management said Allied was reported to have asked $4.5 million for the land. He said there have been reports that a holding company would buy the land and divide it into smaller ranches.

The federal grazing lands used by cattle from the Allied ranch for part of the year are managed by BLM.

DI-SYSTON prevents stress-set-back caused by sucking pests.

Dry beans are delicate short-season crops. They can't stand a lot of stress that robs them of vital early-season growing time. DI-SYSTON liquid or granular insecticide, applied as you plant, prevents stress-loss caused by thrips, aphids, mites and leafhoppers. Insect protection is inside seedlings the instant they emerge. And it lasts for weeks. Bean plants take off quick, and

Question: Can you name all the Democratic candidates, including the one who has officially withdrawn from the race but whose name will be on the Idaho ballot?

Answer: The active candidates are Sen. Frank Church, former Georgia Governor

Jimmy Carter, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson, Sen. Morris Udall, and Gov. George Wallace. Sen. Fred Harris has withdrawn from the race but since Idaho's law requires you to die or become "incapacitated" before your name will be removed from the ballot, Sen. Harris' name will remain on the ballot.

Question: Will there be any other names on the ballot you need to concern yourself with except for your choice of a presidential candidate?

Answer: Yes, you will be voting for a precinct committeeman.

Question: What happens if you don't want to vote for a precinct committeeman because you don't know that person or even recognize his name but want to show a preference for a presidential candidate?

Answer: Go ahead and just vote for the presidential candidate. It is not necessary to vote for precinct committeeman. It does not in any way void your vote from being recorded.

Question: Can you write in a candidate name for President?

Answer: You bet, you can even write in the name of a precinct committeeman.

Question: What is the effect of voting for "None of the names shown"?

Answer: You are voting to show that you prefer to have the Idaho delegation of the party you have chosen to remain "uncommitted" at the national convention of the party you have chosen to vote for.

Question: Will I have any other choices on the ballot other than voting for a presidential candidate and a precinct committeeman or "None of the names shown"?

Answer: It depends on the county you are voting in.

In Minidoka County, Clerk August Belhke said voters will also be asked to vote for or against a bond issue, which if passed will provide funds for construction of a long term care facility at Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

Belhke said it is also possible that the County

Commissioners might decide to put an additional question on the ballot dealing with the sale of beer on Sundays. Presently there is a local option system which could be changed to provide for legalization of beer sales in all establishments on Sundays.

No other Magic Valley County Clerks contacted knew of any special issues that would be on their ballots.

Gooding County Clerk, Margaret E. Clements reported that the question of whether voters want to see the Pioneer coal fired power plant at Orchard approved will not be on the ballot.

Question: Will the presidential candidates in our primary be on any other primaries on the same day?

Answer: Yes, Oregon and Nevada will hold their primary on the same date as ours. This is because these other states have primary laws similar to ours calling for their primaries to be held on the fourth Tuesday of May.

Question: Suppose you and the majority of Idaho's Republican voters choose President

Ford and the Democrats express a majority preference for Sen. Frank Church, will the delegates eventually selected by each party to attend their national convention be committed to vote for the winner of the party primaries?

Answer: Laird Noh, Twin Falls County Republican Committee Chairman says 21 Republican delegates from Idaho will go to his party's national convention and up to 80 per cent can be committed by voters to back a particular candidate.

In other words, Ford and Reagan will each have "a proportionate number" of delegates committed to them based upon their showing in this election. These delegates however, will only be committed on the first ballot.

In addition at least 20 per cent of the delegates will go back uncommitted pursuant to our new state law. Noh pointed out this figure could be increased if a large number of voters vote for "None of the names shown" at the polls instead of voting for a particular candidate.

MVAG officials chart new plan

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — The Magic Valley Association of Governments executive board will try to convince Magic Valley city and county officials to seek Economic Development Administration (EDA) funds to keep the planning organization alive.

Board members of the MVAG will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Jerome county courthouse to discuss the possibility of obtaining a $47,000 planning grant from EDA.

City and county representatives from the eight Magic Valley counties have been invited to attend the meeting.

According to Del Taylor MVAG's executive director, the federal funds would have to be matched by 25 per cent on the local level which may put some counties in opposition to the proposal.

"If the MVAG board agrees to apply for the EDA funding for next year, the association could receive as much as $47,000 in planning grants," Taylor said.

The EDA funding can be used for water system improvements, county building and other community projects.

Taylor said MVAG has been seeking funds from EDA for over a year but cut backs in the federal program made the chances slim for the Magic Valley area to be designated an EDA district.

"The release of EDA funds a week ago has provided sufficient monies to establish 54 new districts nationwide, with six district slots open in the Alaska, Idaho, Washington, and Oregon region," Taylor said.

Taylor said Lincoln, Blaine and Jerome are the only Magic Valley counties eligible for EDA funding.

Eligibility is based on underemployment, outmigration of people and other factors. "The eligibility of Jerome county could be questionable due to rapid development of the area in the past few years," Taylor said.

He noted other counties would be included in the district plan as part of the growth area.

Accident instigates truck route talks

BURLEY — A Wednesday morning collision between a truck-trailer rig and a passenger car prompted new discussion of a truck route for Burley.

The Burley Chamber of Commerce board of directors Thursday discussed the importance of designating a truck route after a wreck at the city's main intersection, Main Street and Overland Avenue.

The accident occurred about 10:15 a.m. Wednesday. It involved truck driver Nolan R. Williams, 24, and car driver Resi Goldaraz, 41, both of Rupert.

Williams drives for Robert E. Feller Trucking of Caldwell. The car's damage was estimated at $2,000; truck damage was minor.

The chamber has been concerned about developing a truck route for several years and, in 1974, made a concerted effort that involved a public hearing. Garry Asson, chairman of the chamber highway committee then, has been reappointed for this year.

Suspect arrested in Las Vegas

TWIN FALLS — City and county authorities in Twin Falls were advised this morning of the arrest of a man in Las Vegas, Nev., who may be the "rape suspect" sought here.

City police reported a 1975 sedan, stolen from Thelsen Motor Co. lot late Wednesday afternoon, has been recovered in Las Vegas with the occupant asleep in the vehicle.

Sheriff Paul Corder said he has provided a description of the suspect by telephone and investigation is continuing to determine if the occupant is the same man who allegedly raped a young Twin Falls County woman Monday night after stopping her vehicle as she was driving along Highway 30.

The woman who was forced to accompany the man at knife point, raped and then returned to her own vehicle, furnished officers a description of the man and vehicle.

A county deputy spotted the vehicle Tuesday near a playground but the suspect fled when he saw the police car.

A chase ended in Lynwood Shopping Center where the suspect abandoned the 1975 pickup truck he was driving.

Sheriff Corder said investigation revealed the

Realtors plan open house in TF

TWIN FALLS — Realtors in Twin Falls will climax Realtors Week Sunday with an open house and home tour.

Most of the 25 offices included in the Twin Falls Multiple Listing Service plan to participate in the open house Sunday, according to John Howard, president of Twin Falls Board of Realtors.

A map with information about the home tour will be included in Sunday's Times-News.

Howard said most visitors to Twin Falls belong to the Multiple Listing Service because it is a "marketing tool for the benefit of the seller in getting homes or land sold quicker."

Last year $42 million in real estate sales were recorded through the firms participating in Multiple Listing Service. These included homes, business structures, farms and some bare land.

Howard said despite the current record high prices real estate is now bringing potential buyers are urged to purchase a home now, because both land and construction costs are still increasing.

A typical three-bedroom, one and a half bath home, with carport, including about 1,200 square feet, now is selling for $40,000, he said. Land costs have contributed to this raise in prices, with an average residential lot now costing $5,000.

Construction costs now are averaging about $25 per square foot, pushing the price for an average "starter" home into the high $30,000 mark, compared to $22,000 to $28,000, even four years ago.

$14 million suit filed against Sierra Life

Builders is a California corporation associated with Anglin.

In their suit, Dalhart, Builders and Anglin charge that Frazier required purchase of his own stock in Sierra at $15 a share when the market price was $1 a share as an "essential part" of their agreement to buy Greater Idaho stock and 200,000 shares of Sierra stock.

The suit charges that 200,000 shares of Sierra stock were put up as security on the promise to buy Frazier's stock of about 132,000 shares and that Frazier took this stock "without notice or other legal action."

Also the suit charges that Frazier and Jordan agreed to arrange $4 million in loans on Greater Idaho and Western Skins Motel and that Sierra would guarantee these loans.

It charged that Frazier and Jordan said that the $4 million in loans would be enough to make payments owed Sierra and also the payments owed Frazier for his personal stock.

The suit charges that these statements by Frazier and Jordan were made to induce the counterclaimants (Dalhart, Builders and Anglin) to make a down payment in excess of $1 million in a transaction that could not be completed and was designed to benefit Frazier. The statements were willful, wanton, and malicious and designed to harm the counterclaimants.

Frazier, the suit states, refused to produce the promised $4 million in loans, except for one loan of about $500,000 for the purchase of property in Hawaii, one for $200,000 and one for $200,000.

"As a condition of the latter two loans being made Frazier required that $120,000 of the $200,000 and $170,000 of the $200,000 be retained by Frazier or Sierra. It is further alleged that a portion of said payment was retained by Frazier as a payment on his personal stocks," the suit states.

The suit maintains that Frazier and Jordan had said that Western Skins Corporation was free of debt and that Regal Manufacturing Company had an operating line of credit of $1 million and that Sierra would continue to insure the credit continuation for a year.

"They further represented that each of the subsidiary corporations of Greater Idaho Corp. with the exception of Aie Idaho, had a positive cash flow and that immediate cash would be needed for their continued operation," the suit states.

But, the suit maintained that Dalhart, Builders and Anglin learned later that Western Skins was in debt for $300,000.

The suit also charges that Frazier caused Greater Idaho to be insolvent. It charges that checks were drawn on Regal Homes and Ponderosa Inns the day before the closing of their purchase from Sierra on December 20, 1974.

These checks, the suit maintains, were mailed to be cashed after Dalhart, Builders and Anglin took possession of Greater Idaho on Jan. 1, 1975.

and that these checks "created an immediate deficit of approximately $165,000."

The suit also charges that Jordan created Dalhart and Builders in Oklahoma City. It states that Jordan caused Dalhart to guarantee the debts for which Sierra is suing for the stock of Greater Idaho "fully knowing that the corporation (Dalhart) had liabilities exceeding the assets of approximately $48 million."

Jordan, it says, still retains the books and records of Dalhart in his Oklahoma City office.

Three oarsmen down
Bonn (UPI) — Three top East German oarsmen were drowned during a pre-Olympic training session on Lake Mueggelsee near East Berlin, the Bild newspaper said in a report released Thursday.

Big said East German authorities had thrown a veil of secrecy around the fatal accident which it said took place three weeks ago. In stormy weather, the East German Rowing Association Thursday confirmed the death of two oarsmen. "The third fatality has not been officially confirmed," Bild said.

Investigations into the cause of the accident have not been completed, Bild quoted the East German Rowing Association as saying.

Reesor takes early New Orleans lead

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus, having spent a pleasant morning enjoying one of spring's most perfect days, looked out upon the greenery of Lakewood Country Club Thursday and made his forecast.

"If someone doesn't break the course record before the day is over I'll be very surprised," said golf's Mr. Big. "The day is made for it."

The big round Nicklaus was expecting finally came in the opening play of the 115,000 New Orleans Open, but there was still a surprise because it was Mike Reesor who shot it. Reesor's seven-under-par 65 was only one shot off the course record and it put the little-known seven-year-old veteran two shots in front of two other non-winners — Wally Armstrong and Monty Kaser — and defending champion Billy Casper.

Denver leads Kentucky series

DENVER (UPI) — Rookie forward David Thompson scored 34 points and helped spark a third-quarter outburst Thursday to give the Denver Nuggets a 127-117 victory over the Kentucky Colonels and a 3-2 advantage in their American Basketball Association playoff series.

The sixth game in the semifinal playoff will be Sunday's fifth and final game, if necessary — will be played Wednesday in Denver.

The contest was decided in the third quarter when Denver, led by Thompson and guard Ralph Simpson, launched a devastating attack. The Nuggets hit 16 of 22 shots from the field in that quarter for a 73 per cent shooting mark, while the Colonels hit only nine of 24 for 29 per cent. Simpson had 11 points and Thompson eight in the quarter as Denver outscored the Colonels 39-23.

Prior to the third quarter, Denver never led by more than two points and the Colonels threatened to turn the game into a runaway as they jumped to a 13-point lead in the first period.

Cavs take lead over Bullets

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — Jimmy Clemons layed in a rebound shot at the buzzer Thursday night to give the Cleveland Cavaliers a 92-91 victory over the Washington Bullets for a 3-2 lead in their best-of-seven NBA playoff series.

An NBA playoff record crowd of 21,212 watched the Cavs take over the ball with five seconds left and pull out the victory. It was the third straight record crowd and gave the Cavs a total of 62,347 fans to attend the three playoff games in Cleveland. The Cavs took over the lead at 11:35 of the third period and held on until 1:12 left in the game for a three-point play by Elvin Hayes put the Bullets ahead 89-88.

Dick Snyder, who topped the Cavs with 26 points, dropped in a 20-footer with 45 seconds left, but Phil Chenier put Washington back on top, 91-90, with a turn-around 10-foot jumper with 37 seconds showing on the clock.

Hayes missed two free throws with seven seconds left and the Cavs called time out with six seconds to go.

Mike Tinsley of the Bullets fouled Jim Chones on the inbound pass and the Cavs took the ball out again with five seconds left. Bobby Smith, who won game three with a final-second shot, missed the hoop completely from 18 feet out, but Clemons was there to drop in the rebound for the winning two points.

Hayes topped Washington with 25 points while Campy Russell added 18 for Cleveland.

"Maybe I'm beginning to jell. 'I've actually had a chance to win fairly. But you just don't know how little difference there is between shooting 65 and 67. When you start making some putts you can suddenly be three under instead of seven over."

And Reesor made his share of putts Thursday over the par 72 layout — using his putter only 28 times. He ran in three putts of 30 feet or more and made four birdies in a row on the back nine to rush to the lead.

All the names close behind Reesor, the most noticeable one is naturally Nicklaus. The Golden Bear appeared ready to cut loose with a new "forensic" grip. The "forensic" grip was a variation of the "claw" grip that he had used in the past. He had used it in the past but he had never used it in a tournament before.

McGlothin suspended, fined in bean ball row

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — St. Louis Cardinals pitcher Lynn McGlothin was fined $300 and suspended for five days starting Thursday by National League President Club Feeney for deliberately striking two batters in a beanball battle in Tuesday night's game against the New York Mets.

McGlothin will miss his next scheduled start Sunday at San Diego.

Stung by six hits, including three two-run homers, in the first two innings of the game, McGlothin struck Mets centerfielder Del Unser in the elbow in the third inning. Unser hit one of the homers and also had won Monday's series opener with a homer in the 17th inning.

When McGlothin led off the bottom of the third, New York starter Jon Matlack threw close to the Cardinal pitcher, bringing a $50 fine from plate umpire Bruce Froemming.

Matlack led off the fourth and McGlothin threw three close pitches and hit the Mets' left hander in the back with a fourth pitch, touching off a fracas in which both dugouts came charging on the field.

McGlothin and Matlack both emphatically admitted they threw at the batters.

"I threw that baseball to hit Unser. Let me make that perfectly clear," McGlothin said after the game.

Matlack said, "The man hit my hitter and he's going down. If I didn't get him, I'd get the next man."

Mets general manager Joe McDonald sent a letter of protest to Feeney complaining about the way Froemming handled the situation.

"I didn't complain about McGlothin as much as I complained about how Bruce Froemming handled it," McDonald said. "We let four pitchers go by that either hit or nearly hit someone before ejecting anyone. That's too long to wait."

McDonald said he had begun playing for the Orioles without a contract. "I'd also be playing with no guarantee if I got anything I broke a leg."

As to being traded by the Orioles to another team, a possibility the Orioles rank as a "last resort" move, Jackson said, "we could deal me off if that doesn't make sense. I'd like some kind of guarantee that if I did get injured, I wouldn't get left holding the bag. I anticipate signing a long-term contract, but we gotta have something for me to go out and take a chance of breaking a leg."

"But if we were Jerry Hoffberger (the Orioles owner) and I were Bob, I might get on a Lear Jet and go down to Australia and stay there for two or three months and see how tough the guy was. I."

L.M. Boyd

Believe our Love and War man already told you about the big wedding of 324 B. C. in Susa, Persia. Alexander the Great in a single ceremony married off 10,000 of his Macedonian soldiers to that many Persian girls. It remains the biggest mass wedding in all history. Citizen Laska what prompted Alex to do the thing, sheer lust? No, it was his ambition to unite two empires and to rule did that.

Most of the trivia experts credit a San Francisco bartender with the invention of that concoction known as the martini. It remains the most ordered of mixed drinks, I'm told.

Peculiarly enough, it's not yet really known why men are more apt to snore than are women.

CATTLE BRAND

Q. "Who first used the cattle brand of three Christian crosses?"

A. None other than Hernando Cortez, the Spaniard who conquered Mexico. Was Cortez, in fact, who originated the hot iron brand for cattle.

Maybe you knew that a reindeer is a superb swimmer, but did you know why? The hair is hollow, traps air. It keeps the best afloat.

Although that plant called chlamydomonas comes not just in two sexes but in 10, it remains unconfused, report the botanists.

Two bad more men than women go to Alaska. Should be the other way around. The women have almost twice as much physical protection from the cold as do men. Takes higher temperatures to make them perspire, too.

WAITRESS WORK

The surveytakers checked out 25,000 restaurants, hotel and motels. Tipped employees, they learned, earn as much as 92 per cent more money per hour than do the untipped, average employees in the same jobs. Brings to mind a directive my mother once delivered to my sister: "Don't take up work as a waitress. Too soon a waitress learns to live on her tips and bank her salary, so she finds other jobs unacceptable thereafter. But waitress work will kill you. Not even the daily security, it's worth that life-long pain in your back."

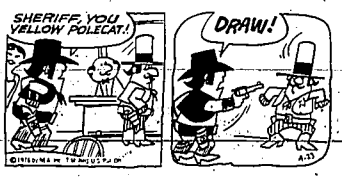

Understand it's still true that the United States scraps more cars every year than the rest of the world manufactures... It's a matter of record, too that this average woman uses exactly 19 rollers in putting up her hair... Those who research the medical records say women have four times as much foot trouble as do men.

Clouds may hide the Moon tonight

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley, Rupert areas: Increasing clouds tonight, leading to a chance of rain on Saturday. High temperatures, 60-65 Saturday. Overnight lows in the 30s.

Sunday's outlook: chance of showers and a little cooler.

Sunny skies and light winds cover the Magic Valley today. This was the result of a high pressure area centered over Idaho. Sunny weather today will see farm activities in full force. Good drying conditions are expected today after Thursday night's rain.

Rain amounts were generally on the light side except in Jerome which received 21 of an inch. Soil temperatures will continue to climb and are expected to be in the 50s today and Saturday.

The storm track continues to flow across Idaho and the next system, now off the Washington coast, will move inland today and into Idaho on Saturday. This will cause light rain and gusty winds again by Saturday afternoon or evening.

The extended outlook for Sunday through Tuesday calls for a chance of rain Sunday, then good drying conditions and warmer temperatures through the period. Highs will be generally in the 60s with lows in the upper 30s.

Ag census improvements its goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. census bureau has come under fire because of inaccuracies, cumbersome methods and neglect of farmers in the agricultural census which it conducts across the country each five years.

A move is under way to turn the census over to the Agriculture Department, which would use workers of its Statistical Reporting Service to interview a scientific sample of farmers to gauge how its programs are keeping pace with changing patterns of farm life.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Rep. Neal Smith, D-Iowa, have introduced legislation—in Congress—to make the switch as the result of complaints which include: In the 1969 census, the Census Bureau missed an estimated 5.8 million head of cattle, or more than 10 percent of the total. The bureau acknowledges the omission. It also admits it missed 15 per cent of agricultural producers in the country, but says they account for only 3.3 per cent of production.

Information from the 1969 census did not become available until 1974, when it was already time for the next census. The Census Bureau says it hopes to have information from the 1974 census ready by the middle of this year.

The Census Bureau no longer conducts personal interviews but instead relies on questionnaires that can run 15 pages long and are so complicated critics describe them as "absurd." Some farmers have refused to fill them out and complain they have been threatened with prosecution by the bureau as a result.

Farmers object to some Census Bureau questions as invasions of privacy, particularly inquiries about loans to operate farms between members of the same family.

Agriculture Department officials carefully avoid statements which could be taken to mean that they are anxious to wrest the farm census away from the Census Bureau, which is part of the Commerce Department. But they make clear they are not happy with the way it is now run.

Don Paarlberg, the Agriculture Department's senior economist, says he regards a good agricultural census as necessary to his department's operations. He says the Agriculture Department would be satisfied "if the Census Bureau would give the agricultural census the priority it should have."

Agriculture officials also make clear they believe they can do the job. If the Census Bureau can't, the Census Bureau has vowed to fight the proposed legislation, but does not appear ready to change its methods.

Orrin L. Whitte, the acting head of the Census Bureau's agriculture division, told UPI that to interview the nation's farmers each five years would require an additional $0 million and would be "very difficult."

Agriculture Department officials counter that it is not necessary to interview each farmer and rancher, and that adequate results can be obtained by scientific sampling of agricultural producers.

Whitte concedes that delays are partly caused by a lack of willingness on the part of

Gem desert caves center for study

BOISE (UPI) — An archeological study that could fill some important pieces into the puzzle of prehistoric Idaho is being conducted in three remote caves in the desert south of Boise.

Marion Delisio, a geographer-archeologist at Boise State University, said the sites may hold records that could help document the idea that prehistoric man used southern Idaho as a migratory route to the Northwest from the Great Plains.

The caves are natural places to find a preserved record of man's culture and environment, he said. Sediment collected over thousands of years could contain some archeological clues that might help fill some gaps in the story of man's migratory routes. He said.

Already Delisio and his student crew have found conclusive evidence that man lived in the one cave they have studied. From remains, they have uncovered, Delisio thinks the area was used by semipermanent hunters and gatherers. Mashed shells indicate they traveled to the Snake River for food.

Other archeologists, who have investigated sites in the middle and eastern Snake River Plain, Delisio said, have gathered information from the three caves near Boise will link together with other studies to form a more complete picture of early man in southern Idaho.

Once the three caves are mapped, the group will begin more extensive excavations on the "most promising" sites. Even then, they will study only a portion of the caves; the rest will be left until better methods and techniques are discovered.

About 20 students have worked on the project since January. Delisio estimates work will continue at least for another three years.

Assessment available

TWIN FALLS — A summary of the U.S. Forest Service proposed program and assessment prepared under the Forest and Rangeland Renewable Resources Planning Act of 1974 is now available.

In Twin Falls the RPA publication can be obtained at Sawtooth National Forest, 1525 Addison Ave., P. 8301.

The report has been transmitted to Congress by President Ford. It is designed to meet, at reasonable costs, the nation's potential needs for term needs for resources such as outdoor recreation wilderness, range forage, timber, water and wildlife habitat.

Beet thinning time is time for Eptam

Selective Herbicide

Apply Eptam herbicide in irrigation water after thinning sugar beets. That's it! Eptam controls weeds for the rest of the season. For bigger sugar beet yields and easier harvest. It's easy. Meter Eptam into the irrigation ditch or sprinkler line. The water does the work of application. It disperses Eptam evenly throughout the soil to control grass and broadleaf weeds in your beets from thinning time to harvest. Also, use Eptam in irrigation water to control weeds in alfalfa and potatoes. Always follow label directions carefully. Without weeds you'll have cleaner fields and bigger crops. See your Stauffer supplier for Eptam.
