Vietnam slates elections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Simultaneous elections Sunday in North and South Vietnam will set the stage for swift reunification of the split nation, possibly by the birthday next month of the late Communist leader Ho Chi Minh, a U.S. expert on Southeast Asia said Saturday.

Allan W. Cameron, assistant dean of the Tufts University Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, said the time has come for the United States to think about dealing with a single Vietnam.

"Hanoi's longstanding scenario for unification is ...moving rapidly towards its conclusion," Cameron said.

"It is clear that the declaration of formal reunification will follow quickly after the elections. Given the North Vietnamese fondness for anniversaries, it is likely that formal reunification will be proclaimed on May-19, Ho Chi Minh's birthday.

"The United States must come to terms with the reality and consequences of Hanoi's victory. If for no other reason than that the other states with whom Washington must deal accept that reality and those consequences as facts," he said.

Cameron acknowledged that achieving a good Washington-Hanoi relationship will be difficult. "Washington still smarts from its defeat," he said. "Instinct rebels at doing business with an adversary who consistently manifests behavior which this country finds distasteful."

Cameron presented his analysis in a new book "Indochina: Prospects After The End," published by the private, nonprofit American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research. Despite Hanoi's plan to unify Vietnam, Cameron said, the biggest problem North Vietnamese leaders face is establishing control in the South.

Hanoi remains a military threat to Southeast Asia as long as it has an assured source of military weapons, such as the Soviet Union, Cameron said. He said there is evidence the North Vietnamese have supported insurgent movements in Malaysia, Burma and Thailand and could extend such operations to Indonesia and the Philippines.

But Cameron said North Vietnamese reliance on the Soviet Union and China has lessened since the end of the war. "In the wake of victory, the North Vietnamese have given little credit to either Moscow or Peking, or, indeed, to anything other than the correctness of the party line," the wisdom of Ho Chi Minh, self reliance, and the spirit of the Vietnamese people," he said.

Amin warns whites to leave Rhodesia

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Ugandan President Idi Amin Saturday warned all whites to leave Rhodesia quickly "or identify yourselves with the black majority," Radio Uganda reported.

Amin said black nationalist guerrillas have received fresh military supplies and "it will not be long before freedom fighters take decisive military action" to overthrow Rhodesia's white supremacy regime.

The monitored broadcast coincided with reports of new violence in Rhodesia and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's departure on an African tour aimed in part at promoting a peaceful transition to black rule in that continent.

In Salisbury, security forces said Saturday black guerrillas killed one soldier and seriously wounded two others in an ambush in southeastern-Rhodesia. Two guerrillas were killed in the clash, security forces said. Amin, chairman of the Zambian Organization of African Unity, warned "all innocent Europeans to get out (of Rhodesia) quickly or identify yourselves with the black majority," Radio Uganda said.

Otherwise, Amin said, the whites would have only themselves to blame for the coming bloodbath.

The warning came shortly before Kissinger, was due in Kenya on the first leg of a seven-nation African tour. Uganda is not on his itinerary.

Amin previously attacked Kissinger's trip, calling the secretary a "murderer of African leaders" and warning other African leaders that Kissinger was trying to promote a policy of "divide and rule" among them.

Italians blast Church

ROME (UPI) — Stung by charges that an Italian premier took Lockheed bribes money, the ruling Christian Democratic party accused Americans Saturday of trying to undermine Italy's economic and political system.

It also attacked Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, as "an immature and irresponsible" publicity seeker.

The accusations in the party's weekly magazine La Discussione came as Christian Democratic leaders decided to call a debate in parliament to determine whether the troubled nation should hold early elections in June.

The editorial was sparked by Italian newspaper reports Thursday that the U.S. Senate subcommittee on multinational corporations, headed by Church, had evidence one of Italy's three premiers during the years from 1965 to 1969 was bribed by Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

"An indecisive political system without leadership has let this avalanche hit the political system of an allied country," it said. "There is something in the American River system which for some time has been aiming at the collapse of the Italian economy."

The three premiers are the current president of Italy, Giovanni Leone, Premier Aldo Moro and Foreign Minister Mariano Rumor, all Christian Democrats. They denied involvement and the party "pledged" to them "full and respectful solidarity."

Parliamentary investigators said Friday they plan to go to Washington to attempt to identify the accused premier identified in Lockheed documents as "Antelope Cobbler" — a code name for prime minister.

The Communist party is expected to make strong gains in the next elections, possibly opening the door to their participation in the government even should U.S. objections.

today in brief

No progress in strike
United Rubber Workers President Peter Bonmarito Saturday said contract discussions had been "healthy," but he reported no progress toward settling a four-day-old strike by 70,000 union members against the big four rubber manufacturers.
Nurses paced picket lines in Williamette, Calif., city workers were still off the job in San Francisco, some 8,000 beer bottlers and truck drivers extended their eight-week-old strike against Anheuser-Busch, and NBC technicians and newswriters began the fourth week of their walkout.
"I feel there has been a healthy discussion of the issues involved," said Peter Bonmarito, president of the rubber workers union, but he stopped short of reporting progress in the talks that recessed Friday.

U.S. not embargo proof
Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III (D-Ill.) warned Friday that a federal energy official's prediction that the nation could be oil "embargo proof" by 1985 is "dangerously misleading."
Stevenson criticized the statement, made Wednesday by Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb, and told business students at the University of Illinois Circle Campus:
"Even with optimistic assumptions, Zarb's own agency projects a dependence on foreign sources of oil for almost 7 million barrels per day in 1985—about 600,000 more per day than the U.S. is currently importing."

Residents like Bellevue

BY BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer
BELLEVUE — People attending a two-day seminar to discuss small-town problems appeared satisfied with what is happening here and apparently were not shaken with forecasts of future growth.

Officials of Idaho Heritage magazine, a young bi-monthly, is touring the state taking a varied program to small-towns listening to residents and offering suggestions on how best to protect community and Idaho small-town heritage.
At its Friday night meeting the group heard Bellevue Mayor L.T. "Pete" Johnson say "Our problems aren't great and what we have are generally just man-made."

Johnson said the feeling of the residents here is to let the city grow first and "hold down development" in the areas immediately adjacent.

Glenn Stelma, city alderman, said Bellevue now serves as the home of the majority of the working people in the Wood River Valley. He also sees a growing number of young people moving here.

"In previous years the young people left," Stelma said. Now with more construction in the area he sees the younger population coming back to a small community that has, improving job prospects.

Stelma and Johnson agree Bellevue will grow along with the booming recreational market. Others in the small audience unanimously agreed they like small-town life.

Asked why they liked Bellevue, residents said "people are friendly, we can visit our neighbors, and I just like living there."

Johnson said city bills are probably the most important and discussed issues in the town.

Few farmers rich from efforts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A recently published study shows that farm families in the United States now rely upon sources of the farm for close to 60 per cent of their net income and that more than half of these families rely on full or part-time jobs to make ends meet.

The study, which uses some previously unpublished census data, also showed that 72.4 per cent of all farm families were below a poverty line of $5,000 in yearly income if only farm earnings were taken into account.
Slightly more than half of these families were able to raise themselves above the $5,000 level by means of outside income from various sources.

In part on data from the 1970 census and thus gives no insight on what further effect the economic problems of the first half of the 1970s had on the financial situation of farm families.

Census data showed in 1960 income earned by the farm was $1.5 billion, 42 per cent of the total. By 1970 it had more than doubled to $17.4 billion and was 51 per cent of the total.
When farm losses were figured in, off-farm income jumped up to 57.5 per cent of the net income of farm families in 1970. Nearly 22 per cent of the families reported farm losses, leading Larson to conclude that "without off-farm income, many probably could not have sustained or even covered losses for an extended period."
Salaried part-time or full-time job accounts for 52.6 per cent of all of the non-farm income reported by a group of about 2.4 million farm families, according to the study.

The data also showed that only 39 per cent of the farmers in the group were able to earn net incomes of $25,000 or higher on farm income alone. Thirteen per cent of the group had net incomes between $5,000 and $10,000, based only on farm income.
A total of 72.4 per cent of the farmers were below $5,000 when only farm income was taken into consideration.
When outside income was taken into consideration, 37.9 per cent, or slightly more than half, of the families moved out of the $5,000 poverty level into higher brackets.

of the families had incomes of more than $25,000 yearly if non-farm income was taken into consideration. If it wasn't, slightly less than 30 per cent of the families would be able to live on $10,000 a year or more.

What do all these figures say? For one, as most farmers don't have to be told, become harder to make ends meet on the farm. In recent years without some off-farm income, a regular job for one or more family members.
Larson also concluded that the availability of off-farm jobs was a reason why farm residents remained in the same income brackets and in the same poverty level decade after decade.

Church-goers reminded
If you went to church this morning and walked in the front door just as everyone stood for the final hymn, it probably means you forgot to turn your clock forward an hour last night.
There's still time to make up for it, and avoid being fired tomorrow morning when you walk into the office an hour late because you didn't realize Daylight Savings Time has officially begun.
Remember, set the clock one hour forward, not one hour back, or you'll really be in trouble!

Reagan picks up support

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan scored his second victory Saturday, winning a majority of the South Carolina delegation to the Republican national convention.

Though there was no official commitment, it appeared that 23 of the state's 36 delegates were Reagan supporters. Six appeared to back President Ford and the remaining seven were uncommitted.

An early effort by Gov. James Edwards to commit the delegation to a unit rule was declared out of order by parliamentarian Jay McKay who said Edwards was making a nominating speech. The unit rule would have instructed the entire delegation to vote with the majority.

Edwards said later he was not upset by his failure to get the unit proposal adopted. "That's what I like about Republicans," he said. "They are independent, free thinking people who won't let anybody tell them what to do."

Rupert queen contestants accepted

RUPERT — Entries in the Rupert Fourth of July Rodeo Queen contest are now being accepted by the Rupert Chamber of Commerce.

Contestants must be 17-24 years old and never have been married. They must reside in Minidoka County, the Jackson area east of Rupert in Cassia County, the Crestview-Knott district of Jerome County or the Kimama-Adelade district of Lincoln County.

Rex Rasmussen, chairman of the queen contest, said the girls chosen this year will be crowned during the Fourth of July Rodeo and will reign over the rodeo events in 1977.

Linda Schenk, the 1975 winner, will reign over this year's rodeo. The chamber also sponsors the new queen in the state rodeo queen contest.

Rasmussen said he is being assisted by Bus Howard, Carl Rasmussen and former Rupert Rodeo Queen Diane Nielsen. Candidates begin riding practice on May 17 and will practice each Monday and Thursday until the riding competition.

Dedication set in June

LEWISTON — Dedication of the Hollis Canyon National Recreation Area will be field in June, with ceremonies at Lewiston and at Hat Point in Oregon's Willowa-Whitman National Forest.

Most of the 662,000-acre area designated by Congress and turned into law on Dec. 31, 1975, is in the Snake River country of Oregon and Idaho. A small portion is in Washington.

Regional Forester Vern Harne, U.S. Forest Service, said there will be a ceremony at Hat Point overlooking North America's deepest gorge.

Soliah, Hearst ties key to robbery trial

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Steven Soliah's intimate relationship with Patricia Hearst, which colored his entire bank robbery trial, will be a key factor in jury deliberations this week.

Soliah testified he became involved with the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army out of pity and affection for the newspaper heiress but denied any participation in the holdup.

Two eyewitnesses, however, identified the 27-year-old housepainter as a shotgun-wielding, obscenely-shouting bandit in an SLA-linked holdup which left a woman customer dead. Their testimony was the heart of the prosecution case.

But defense lawyers argued the frightened bank employees were confused by their identification by a look-alike who stood briefly in the same location where the eyewitnesses placed Soliah during the holdup.

An eight-woman, four-man jury this week will begin to unravel the conflicting evidence presented during nearly four weeks of testimony. Final arguments in the case were scheduled Monday, and the jury could begin deliberations late that day or Tuesday.

Jurors will review prosecution evidence linking a bill stolen from the bank found in an apartment shared by Soliah and Miss Hearst. They also have Soliah's testimony that he was not intimately aware of the SLA plans of William and Emily Harris and only was interested in helping the newspaper heiress.

If convicted, Soliah would face a possible maximum life prison term. Myrna Opsahl, 42, the mother of four children, was killed by a shotgun blast during the April 21, 1975, holdup of the Crocker-National Bank, Carmichael branch. Four robbers, linked by authorities to the SLA, took $15,000.

During more than three hours on the witness stand, Soliah steadfastly denied he had any participation in the robbery. He said he was in San Francisco, more than 90 miles away, on the day of the holdup.

The defense, however, could produce no one to testify about Soliah's whereabouts the morning of the holdup, which occurred at 9 a.m.

Soliah testified he first helped Miss Hearst and the Harrises because he feared they might be killed by police. He recalled the death of SLA "soldier" Angela Atwood, a friend and one of six members of the terrorist band killed in a fiery shootout with Los Angeles police in May 1974.

Soliah testified he grew to dislike the Harrises, whom he said became "uptight" when he asked about their activities, but kept in touch with them during their stay in a Sacramento apartment during late 1974 and early 1975.

U.S. Attorney Dwight Keyes asked Soliah why he continued to aid the Harrises if he disliked them.

"At that time, I felt really close to — to Patricia," Soliah replied. "I lived with her. I slept with her. We had a close relationship," he said.

NEW YORK—Victoria Fyodorova Pouy gives a kiss to her mother, Soviet actress Zoya Fyodorova, as they meet at the airport here following the arrival of the 64-year-old stage and screen star from Russia. ## Soviet actress visits US, waiting for grandchild

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Soviet actress Zoya Fyodorova spent her first full day in the United States Saturday weary, fascinated by television and anxiously awaiting the birth of her "love-child" daughter's first child.

"It feels like a fairy tale to be in the United States," said the 64-year-old Fyodorova.

Her pregnant daughter said her mother "likes America, she likes Connecticut and everything here," and was glued to the television set after the long trip from Moscow.

Her daughter Victoria is the celebrated "love child" of the actress and naval officer Jackson R. Tate, the result of an affair in Russia during World War II.

Asked if she thought she would ever be reunited with her daughter, the actress said, "It is a surprise because I waited so long. One year, one month and one day."

One of the most popular Soviet actresses in the 1930s and 1940s, Zoya said she already had some practice as a grandmother. "I have one film in which I played both a mother and a grandmother."

IUD risks told

WASHINGTON — Women who use intrauterine devices (IUD's) are five times more likely to suffer from pelvic inflammatory diseases than nonusers, according to a study by the Federal Center for Disease Control (CDC).

The study of 326 women treated for various reasons at Grady Memorial Hospital in Atlanta showed that 38 per cent of the women using IUD's were suffering from pelvic inflammatory disease.

"Compared to non-users of the IUD, IUD users overall had five times the risk of contracting pelvic inflammatory disease," said the CDC study, published Sunday in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Nonetheless, the study said that the rate of infection with IUD's was low and that the death rate associated with IUD's was lower than that associated with birth control pills.

"Since the incidence of pelvic infections associated with IUD use is low, and serious complications represent only a fraction of this total, continued use of the IUD as a method of contraception seems justified," the study said. "However, ways should be investigated to lower or eliminate this risk."

Coeds free hostage trustees after demands met on hiring

ATLANTA (UPI) — Spelman College coeds, who took 14 school trustees hostage in a bid to get a black woman named head of the school, succeeded Saturday in wringing agreement from the trustees to reconsider an earlier decision to appoint a man.

The trustees were set free Friday evening after spending 26 hours locked in a room where they had met to put a final stamp of approval on the naming of Dr. Donald Stewart, an associate dean of the University of Pennsylvania, to succeed retiring school president Dr. Albert Manley.

Spelman is a predominantly black school for women. The coeds' campaign has the backing of many of the faculty.

The young women freed their hostages only after the trustees agreed to meet with a committee made up of students, faculty, alumni and administration representatives. The meeting convened a few hours after the trustees were released and continued on into the early hours of Saturday.

Following the conference, one of the coeds reported the trustees had agreed to reconsider their decision to name Stewart as president of the school. "They the trustees will let us know in 30 days," she said.

The coeds, referring to themselves as the "Concerned Spelman College Family," said Manley's replacement to begin anew and that this time they wanted some voice in the selection.

Manley initially was among those taken hostage, but the coeds quickly released him since he now is a non-voting member of the board of trustees.

The girls kept the trustees corralled by tying ropes to the door of the meeting room and securing thimbles to other doorknobs along a hallway. They permitted some light food and water to be sent in and also provided the trustees with a trash can, some tissue and sheets so they could set up a makeshift toilet facility.

Reagan winner in S.C.

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI) — South Carolina Republicans chose their delegates to the GOP national convention Saturday, and Ronald Reagan, political hero of Gov. James B. Edwards, seemed assured of the lion's share.

Party officials said it would take hours, perhaps days, to determine who will go to the convention, but it was thought most would go to Reagan's corner.

Edwards, who heads the Reagan campaign in South Carolina, pushed for all of the state's 36 delegates to support Reagan. Such support would take the form of an informal agreement that all delegates would support the candidate most of the delegates want to support.

We appreciate our 1971 Wagoneer both winter and summer. The 1971 Wagoneer is built on icy roads and during the summer... handles like any other passenger car for pleasure driving. We can go down the highway just like any other sedan, then when we need to get off the road, we're really not worried, says Mr. Brackett.

Wagoneer is America's luxury 4-door, 4-wheel drive vehicle. Many of the convenience items that are optional on competitive 4-wheel drive vehicles are standard on Wagoneer. Plus, you get extra toughness to get you where you're headed... in style!

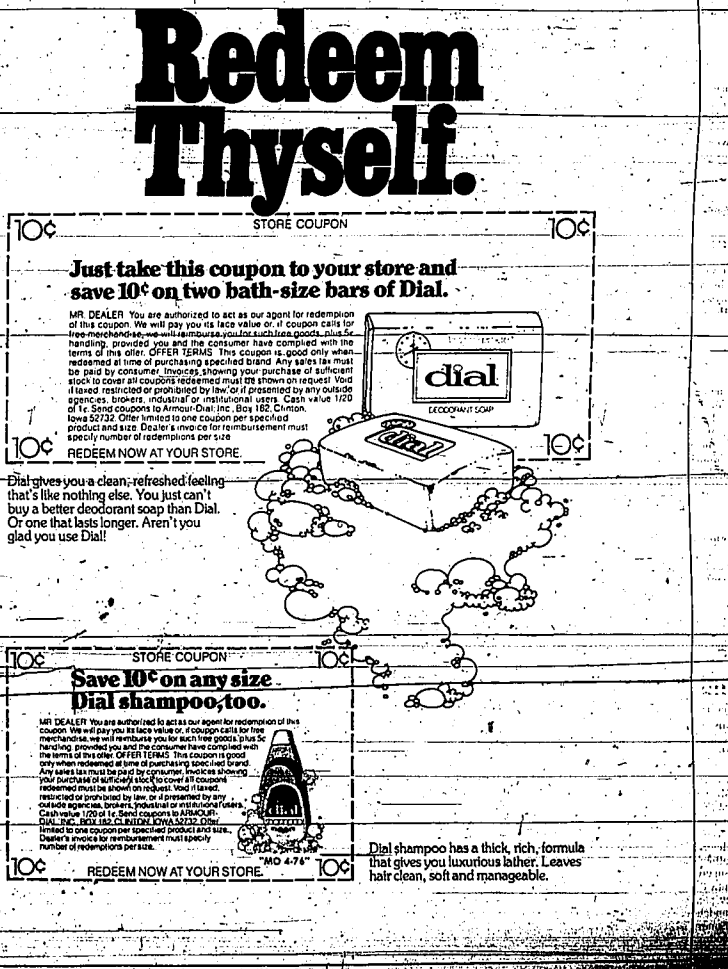

All the most wanted options are standard equipment on Wagoneer: Quadra-Trac (automatic full-time 4-wheel drive), automatic transmission, 360 2bbl V8 engine, lower steering, power front disc brakes, woodgrain trim, custom door trim panels with woodgrain trim and carpet on floor and wheel housings, wheel covers. Also, there is an electronic ignition system, an improved Ogilvy frame to enhance greater durability and riding comfort, a 23 gallon fuel tank, heavy duty air cleaner, and a standard front end designed for tight turns, and easy service... in motion just a few of Wagoneer's many standard features.

Will's Motor Co. is proud to present a 4-wheel drive vehicle like Jeep Wagoneer that has an average hard working life of over 145,000 miles. Jeep's reputation with 4-wheel drives has developed and lasted 30 years, and today Jeep is recognized as having written the book on 4-wheel drives. Jeep's still writing it.

Guessing games pleasant work if you get it to everybody these days and will make an amiable game at anything, including his own future.

WASHINGTON — The big foreign embassies in Washington are situated in a rough triangle from the Soviet compound on lower 16th Street...

Apparently Teng provoked considerable opposition in China by emphasizing stability and economic progress as compared to more radical and ideological policies.

ding on top of Lenin's Tomb during Red Square celebrations.

Economic hardships threaten small farmer

American farmers often are heralded as saviors of the world. They produce enough food to feed half of humanity and are expected to shoulder an even greater responsibility for keeping the Earth fed in coming decades.

What irony then, that 60 per cent of America's farmers cannot survive on the net income their farms produce.

A recent study by the Agriculture Department shows more than half America's farmers rely on full or part-time jobs to make ends meet.

The same study cites a highly discouraging statistic which shows 72.4 per cent of all farm families are below the poverty line of $5,000 a year if only farm earnings are taken into account.

These statistics suggest farmers aren't getting rich for their labors and raise the disturbing likelihood that small farmers may not be able to feed the world much longer because they can't feed themselves.

Of course many small farmers continue to get by with the aid of jobs off the farm. More than half of those farmers who make less than $5000 a year on the farm bring home comfortable salaries with the aid of other jobs.

But the writing on the wall for other farmers suggests it's now too hard to make ends meet simply producing food for mankind. Undoubtedly, that will lead to some decline in the number of small farmers.

The damage done to less developed countries when farmers abandon their fields for more lucrative work should be a lesson for America.

We cannot allow small-time agriculture to become so marginal a business that the farmers put down their tools and go to the city for work.

One only has to look to Asia, Africa or South America to see what happens when small farmers forsake the fields for the cities.

The cities become overcrowded, the fields underproductive.

Obviously, the United States won't slip to the level of impoverished nations simply because farming becomes unprofitable. But squeezing out the small farmer may encourage two damaging trends.

First, small farmers probably will have to sell their land if farming becomes a losing proposition.

The sale of farmland to urban developers could dramatically reduce the amount of arable soil left in the country.

Continued reduction of usable farmland means less room for growing surplus food — food which the hungry nations desperately need.

Second, unprofitable small farming will lead to more and more corporate farming operations.

While many corporations surely would use good judgment in the controlling of the food chain, the potential for uncontrolled fluctuations in price cannot be lightly dismissed.

Perhaps more important, corporate farming is a much more likely target for increased federal control of farming and would raise the possibility that America's food would become an international political weapon.

Small farmers who make a decent wage are the backbone of American agriculture.

Keeping small agriculture alive is a task which consumers and the government must recognize as supremely important.

What is this Jimmy Carter anyway and what kind of foreign policy will he support? What is he smiling about all the time, and whom would he choose to replace Kissinger?

Who is this Nelson Rockefeller as secretary of state, and (c) pulling U. S. troops out of Europe if Italy goes Communist?

What are Ford's chances of (a) winning, (b) picking Nelson Rockefeller as secretary of state, and (c) pulling U. S. troops out of Europe if Italy goes Communist?

What are Ford's chances of (a) winning, (b) picking Nelson Rockefeller as secretary of state, and (c) pulling U. S. troops out of Europe if Italy goes Communist?

Also, during Kissinger's last visit to China, he was assured on the highest authority that Teng would be kept on as No. 2, but even our two latest envoys to China, David Bruce and George Bush, now both in Washington, haven't a clue to what it all means.

The China experts here are not saying that the successor to Teng is anti-American or anti-West. They believe domestic considerations and personal rivalries were the main reasons for the switch.

For many years the future of the USSR was the main topic in the game, and the future of that mysterious country was foretold by observing the relative positions of officials standing on top of Lenin's Tomb during Red Square celebrations.

Fortunately, nobody checks up on the bad guesses of the past. Nixon would never go, most of them agreed, repeating the poor judgment of the press, and Ford didn't even figure in their guesses at the downfall of Spiro Agnew.

But guessing is pleasant work if you can get it — almost as painless as writing a column.

US economy climbs near far rim of valley now

By LEONARD SILK

NEW YORK — Following the first quarter's strong gain, with the real gross national product rising at an annual rate of 7.5 per cent, the United States economy has about made it up the other side of the valley into which it began sliding during the fourth quarter of 1973.

This economic recovery provides cause for celebration, especially when one recalls the grim warnings in some circles that this nation, and perhaps the world, were in danger of falling into another great depression like that of the 1930s.

Years were probably even greater in Western Europe and Japan than in the United States. The other industrial countries had enjoyed faster and more stable growth than the United States during most of the postwar period, and their worries, when the last slump began, were correspondingly greater.

But Germany and Japan, like the United States, are not clearly on the mend. These three great industrial powers will provide the thrust for the rest of the Western world to recover in the year ahead.

1970's. The economic policy that became familiar under the name "Keynesian," named for John Maynard Keynes of Britain, now appears either inadequate or obsolete to a growing number of economists.

They contend that the Keynesian doctrines were essentially designed to deal with the problems of the Depression when deep unemployment was combined with deflation, rather than (as now) with inflation.

Nell J. McMullen, an international economist with the National Planning Association in Washington, maintains that it is now crucial for economists to create new solutions to the new problems of the Western World.

He considers that the basic Keynesian doctrine of "demand management" is no longer satisfactory for dealing with stagflation. The Keynesian formula called for increasing total demand for goods and services when there was high unemployment and for cutting total demand when there was inflation.

These increases or decreases in total demand could be affected by changing the level of government spending or the rate of taxation, together with changes in the degree of monetary stimulus or restraint provided by the monetary authorities.

The new conditions of the 1970's, according to McMullen, call for greater focus on the supply side — to increase the availability of resources and the factors of production. However, neither has nor most other economists believe that this calls for abandoning efforts to control total demand. What they are looking for is a way to operate on both sides of the aggregate supply-demand equation.

According to this view, economic policy should focus on structural economic problems, such as programs to improve labor skills and to increase investment, particularly in research and development, and in production of raw materials. The policy also calls for providing better incentives for productive economic activity.

The purely Keynesian era is over," says McMullen. "The obstacle to economic progress is no longer secular stagnation but supply constraints to full employment and growth."

What is needed may not amount to a revolution in economic thought. It is certainly an evolution in economic thinking — that is, the development of macroeconomic policy beyond demand management toward the augmentation of supplies and the enhancement of incentives.

Robert J. Gordon of Northwestern University has reached the same conclusion. "A good argument can be made that the day of stabilization policy is past," says Gordon, "and that the real progress in the next 10 to 20 years will be in the area of dealing with the allocation of resources and the distribution of wealth and income."

In Gordon's view, economic policy in the future will have to devote greater attention to the role of unemployment compensation and Social Security, overcoming capital shortages, reducing the costs of pollution, determining the appropriate size of the governmental sector, deciding on government programs for creating specific types of "human capital" through manpower training and through cooperative programs with private industry, methods of replacing existing welfare and food stamp programs and the like.

Another ethnic issue

WASHINGTON — The ethnic issue has become a major one in this year's campaign. Every presidential candidate, in one way or another, has assured his audience that, while he is not for ethnic parity, he won't let the government should get into the business of ethnic parity.

"I have a black colleague who is nervous about the direction the campaign is taking. They don't talk about unemployment, corruption in government, or tax reform, any more. They're all tripping over themselves trying to explain that, while they think blacks should live anywhere they want to, the government should not do anything to hurt the neighborhood."

"That's reasonable," I said to Wilson. "If you're a candidate, the ethnic vote is important in this country and it would be political suicide to get those people mad."

"I agree. But what worries me is that some reporter is going to ask a candidate what he thinks about slavery. Suppose the newspaper man says, 'Are you in favor of repealing the Thirteenth Amendment? What's the politician going to say?'"

"I'm certain he'll say he's against bringing back slavery," I said.

"I'm not too sure," Wilson said. "The South is important to the election and most of the candidates might waffle a bit, just as they have on ethnic parity."

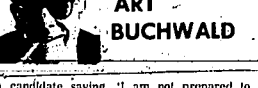

"What do you mean?"

"Well, one candidate might say, 'Everyone knows my record on slavery, and I don't believe in it. At the same time, I do not think it's Washington's job to say to the people they can't own slaves if they want them. I think each area should make its own decision on whether they think slaves are good or bad for the community.'" the campaign and the reporters would ask all the candidates where they stood on slavery. "Wouldn't they denounce it?"

"Not during the primaries. There are a lot of states where the pro-segregation forces could swing an election. What would happen is that one candidate would say, 'I do not believe in slavery per se, but with the high unemployment in the country we shouldn't discard it out of hand.' Another candidate would attack his opponents for raising the slavery issue, but would go on the record as saying, 'The economy comes first, and if we can reduce the welfare bill in this country by bringing slavery back I think it will benefit all Americans, of every race, creed and color.'"

Wilson continued, "The best we can hope for is a candidate saying, 'I am not prepared to discuss the slavery issue at this time, but if I am elected President I will appoint a commission to look into it.'"

"Wilson," I said, "I think you're overreacting. I don't believe slavery will become an issue in the campaign. There are many other important issues like the Panama Canal that I can't conceive of that becoming one."

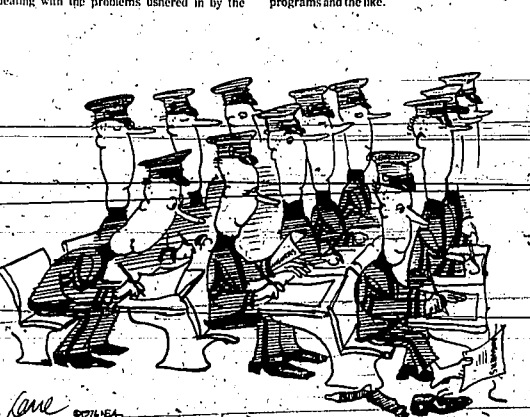

"What about ethnic parity? No one thought that would be an issue, but when it came up the media ran with it like a hot potato. By the way, where will you stand on it if it does come up?"

"Well, I don't like slavery any better than anybody else," I said. "And I wouldn't vote for anyone who comes out for the repeal of the Thirteenth Amendment. At the same time, if it could bring down the price of cotton and tobacco and increase our balance of trade with other nations, I don't see anything wrong with having a pilot program to see if it would work. But it should be done on a local level. I would hate to see the Washington bureaucrats get involved with it because they would only screw it up."

Power sites on Payette?

Editor, Times-News:

There has been so much controversy over the construction of Idaho Power's Pioneer Plant 1 that I would like to offer this alternative — install a series of hydroelectric generating plants on the Payette River between McCall and Horseshoe Bend.

This river of wasted energy falls roughly 4,000 ft. according to the Idaho Department of Water Resources. It's not called "State Water Plan," published March 1976, the North Fork of the Payette River has an average annual flow of 600 cubic feet per second.

During April through September, which cover the months of maximum power use, the stream flow is available. If the stream could be diverted into closed pipes by construction of shallow dams with very little upstream flooding, and carried down stream until the optimum drop in elevation is obtained, then put through a generating plant.

This method could be repeated several times as the additional power is required until the full amount of energy is utilized.

Here are a few of the advantages of hydropower over fossil fuel or nuclear power generation:

1. No air pollution.
2. Much less production cost.
3. Energy available as long as the sun shines and the snow falls.
4. Improved fish habitat in slow-moving section of river due to reduction in nitrogen saturation caused by entrained air bubbles in the water in the many roaring rapids in the course of the river falling 4,000 ft.
5. Bill Lazarus did such an outstanding job on the nuclear energy reports, could he examine the feasibility of this method of energy production and publish his findings?

Dam terms under fire

Editor, Times-News:

We are a group of farmer speakeholders in the American Falls Reservoir District No. 11 who foolishly voted on a bond election on Jan. 12 several weeks before the contract for the replacement program between the American Falls Reservoir District, the Idaho Power Co. and the speakeholders was made available to us farmers.

Had we known the vicious provisions of this contract we would have voted entirely different from the vote we cast.

After reading the contract we feel it is in violation of existing contractual rights in this district and other districts similarly situated. Furthermore, the proposed contract has been materially altered and changed since we voted on Jan. 12.

We feel there was a failure to disclose the terms of the proposed American Falls Replacement Contract prior to the election on Jan. 12.

We wish to give high praise to William Kermer, former chairman of the American Falls Board of Directors of District No. 2 who was ousted from his position as chairman of the board in a most irresponsible and unorthodox manner, so that he then hastily appointed chairman could sign the contracts.

Thank goodness Mr. Kermer and Mr. Barnes felt they could not sign the contracts in their present form, or that the farmer speakeholders could not live under them.

We are hopeful that through the courts of law we may be able to vote on a new contract that we can live under.

Little worry on procedure

Editor, Times-News:

This is in reference to the April 13 article written on Officer Donald Green's dismissal from the Twin Falls Police Force. One city official stated that proper procedures were not followed by Green in performance of his duties. For this minor misjudgment on Green's part, I don't see why the "Gang" should get so upset. Anyway proper procedures have not been of that importance in the past. I cite Clyde Thomson's inept removal from the Municipal Golf Course as one prime example.

If it were Green, I would fight this thing, even if it meant to take it to court, be exonerated, then notify the "Power" to take their police job and shove it.

Recruiter sounds off on cost increase

Editor, Times-News:

The feature "Wages Ran In Year" April 13 edition contained several erroneous and misleading statements which I would like to correct.

The article, pertaining to the rapidly escalating cost of Armed Forces recruiting, pointed out that the cost of military recruiting had jumped from $7 million to $96.1 million annually in a four-year period.

It failed, however, to make any mention of the fact that during this same time-frame the Selective Service has been virtually eliminated, with the advent of the all-volunteer force. While not in possession of actual figures regarding the savings to the government as a result of the elimination of the draft, I contend that they are substantial. I feel that this saving, when coupled with the inflation factor involved in the four-year period, would compare favorably with the $96.1 million figure mentioned in the article.

The allusion to the fact that all services have access to "free broadcast advertising" is misleading. While it is true that radio and television stations are required to provide a certain amount of free air-time for "public service" messages, they are not required to provide free time to any one particular institution or agency.

The Armed Forces must compete with hundreds of other organizations for a relatively small amount of free advertising. Further, as an economic necessity, the radio and TV stations involved, this "free-time" often occurs early in the morning or late at night.

I am willing to wager that the reporter who wrote "recruiting is a prestige job in today's armed services" has never been assigned to recruiting duty. Fifteen to 15-hour days and six-day work weeks are not uncommon. The higher cost of civilian housing, food and medical care encountered by military personnel residing in a civilian community must also be weighed when viewing military recruiting duty as a lush or "prestige" job.

The stereotyped image of the military recruiter as a fat non-commissioned officer with his feet on the desk, drinking coffee, reading a comic-book and wasting the government's money while waiting for recruits to walk into his office is as obsolete today as the crossbow and the mace.

I must point out that the views contained in this letter are mine and do not necessarily reflect those of the Department of Defense or the Department of the Army.

EPA aide replies to standards letter

Editor, Times-News:

Reader Robert J. Brown Jr. of the Idaho Power Co. quoted at length (Times-News, March 21) from a February 29 Los Angeles Times article charging that distorted data from a United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) study were the basis for EPA concerns about pollution from sulfur-bearing fuels.

The Times story implied that EPA's regulatory program for controlling sulfur oxide emissions from electric power plants and other fossil-fuel burning sources is based solely on data gathered by the EPA's Community Health and Environmental Surveillance System (CHES).

This is totally untrue.

EPA's national ambient air quality standard for Sulfur Dioxide (SO2) was established in 1970. Its validity with respect to adverse health effects has been substantiated by the National Academy of Sciences and other scientific groups. The sulfur oxide emission standards for individual power plants are based solely upon the emission reductions required to meet the air quality standard for sulfur dioxide. The CHES studies were not involved in setting the SO2 ambient standard.

The Agency position on intermittent controls and tall stacks as power plant pollution controls is based upon the language of the Clean Air Act, as interpreted by the courts, which require continuous emission reduction and not dispersion to meet ambient standards.

Moreover, we are concerned about long range pollutant effects, such as acid rain, and as discussed in our 1975 "Position Paper," an economic necessity to the radio and TV stations involved, this "free-time" often occurs early in the morning or late at night.

The EPA Position Paper on Regulation of Atmospheric Sulfates makes clear that the overall agency concern over atmospheric sulfates is based upon a variety of studies and study critiques, of which CHES is only one among others. The particular thrust of the CHES study was to develop correlations between specific pollutant levels and adverse health effects.

In considering the study, EPA's Science Advisory Board assembled an Ad Hoc Panel on Scientific and Technical Issues Relating to Sulfates, chaired by Dr. Norton Nelson of New York University, of which Dr. James Whittemberger, chairman of Harvard University's Krege Center for Environmental Health, was a panel member.

The panel, in its report on March 13, 1975, concluded that "until better information is obtained, which will require years of effort, the probability of adverse health effects from the sulfur oxides/particulate complex is such that increases in exposure to sulfur oxides or particulates in localities where sulfur dioxide and/or total suspended particulates exceed primary standards should be viewed with grave concern."

Moon determines Easter date

Editor, Times-News:

Many ask how the date of Easter is determined. Because it seldom is given with the qualifications that make it wholly right (no pun intended), I shall state the rules as it should be.

Easter is the first Sunday after the paschal full moon or after March 21. The paschal full moon is distinguished from the calendar (astronomical) full moon, it being the 14th day of the new moon.

This year it makes no difference as far as the date of Easter is concerned. The calendar full moon is April 14, the paschal April 12. The first Sunday after each full moon is April 18, the date of Easter 1976.

But it can make a difference. It did in 1954. Then, according to the rule generally given, Easter is the first Sunday after the full moon on or after the vernal equinox. Easter would have been April 25 instead of April 18, as it was. The calendar full moon that year was April 18; the paschal, April 16.

In our part of the world the actual equinox comes sometimes on March 20 and sometimes on March 21. Leap years tend to keep it from running.

How legal are Idaho religious study classes?

RUPERT — For 300 Mormon students at Minco High School an average school day includes not three Rs, but four.

Besides reading, writing and arithmetic, most Mormon kids also take an hour of religious study every day.

Nobody in southeastern Idaho seems to worry that these Mormon-dominated religious courses come perilously close to eliminating the wall which traditionally separates Church from the public schools of the State — and may be unconstitutional as well.

Religious study has been a part of Idaho school schedules for 50 years. Today, more than 20 southern Idaho high schools openly endorse a release study program where students use an hour of regular class time to attend Mormon seminars.

Most schools give academic credit for the seminary classes.

Since the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints counts a majority of southern Idahoans as members, these constitutionally questionable religious classes are accepted as an integral part of a well-rounded education.

Challenging the legality and legitimacy of the Mormon release time programs apparently is viewed as political suicide in this state.

The Idaho Attorney General's office hasn't issued an opinion on the legality of religious studies programs since 1929.

"Please, please, please don't put us on the spot," a panicked Deputy Atty. Gen. Jim Hargus said when questioned about the legality of Idaho school's religious studies.

Hargus says the attorney general's office "suspects many Idaho school districts make virtually no distinction between Mormon seminary and public schools."

But he quickly adds nobody has ever challenged the programs so why should the Attorney General?

A serious challenger to the constitutionality of the Idaho release time programs probably could be mounted on the basis of the U. S. Supreme Court's 1963 Schemp decision.

This landmark case, still the legal precedent establishing boundaries between public schools and religion, says state-run schools "cannot endorse a religious program which instills the ideals of any particular religion over any other religion."

The Schemp decision also makes it clear public schools should not participate in religious study programs which give systematic indoctrination of the religious creed.

The question nobody wants to ask in Idaho is how can 7,000 high school students who are taught an hour a day by Mormon teachers in Mormon-run seminars get an objective course in religious studies?

In the 13 years since the Schemp decision, neither the Idaho attorney general, the Idaho Board of Education or any county attorney has ever tested the constitutional legality of the Mormon-run religious classes.

And, the State Dept. of Education doesn't seem about ready to jump into the lion's den.

Al Luke, the associate superintendent of Idaho's Division of Institutions, admits many public school religious studies programs probably aren't meeting the letter of the law in view of the Schemp decision.

southeastern Idaho would ever instigate such a challenge.

Perhaps that explains why Idaho has been making haste very slowly on checking the constitutionality of release time programs.

Idaho's five decade blind spot on the question of religious studies doesn't extend to the University of Utah.

The prestigious dean of graduate studies at Utah, Sterling M. McMurrin, openly states that the strings which tie Idaho and Utah public schools to the Church.

McMurrin says both states are suffering from "a questionable breakdown of the separation of church and state which is so important to the quality of American culture and political life."

Miffing McMurrin with public education worries Dean McMurrin because the mixture seriously weakens the primary function of the schools, namely free and uninhibited education of students.

When the shadow of the Mormon Church touches students in public school every day, McMurrin asks how schools can expect to pursue objective, truthful study — which possibly goes contrary to Church doctrine.

And, McMurrin asks, are students who spend one hour a day in Mormon seminary classes giving up needed academic classes for Church study?

Minco High School may well be an example of this potentially damaging blend of church and public schools.

By the time a Minco senior graduates he may have spent 180 hours in religious study classes taught by the Mormons.

Within the Minco School District, few people question the release time program.

Floyd Merrill, director of curriculum, says simply the release time program "is a good one" which has never been questioned.

Still, questions remain.

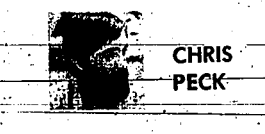

The good intentions of the Mormon Church are not the issue.

No one denies the Mormons vigorously support release time out of a conviction that students need character-building religious classes.

But should the public schools provide the time and the students for this religious training?

Clearly the wall between the LDS Church and Idaho public schools is thin and often undefined.

And, it seems no one is ready to rebuild that weakened barrier.

Until the release time programs are challenged, however, or until they are seen to threaten the minimum requirements for high school graduation in Idaho, Luke says the state is unlikely to open a can of worms.

Ignoring the release time has actually become official policy of the Idaho Board of Education.

In a revisitor of the 1970 policy manual, the state board says it "does not have sufficient funds for prosecuting violations of the Constitution and Law of the State relative to religious instruction."

Therefore, action shall be taken through the officers or courts of the county in which the violation occurred.

That puts any inquiry into Idaho's Mormon religious study programs in a Catch-22 dilemma.

Any county prosecutor could pursue unconstitutional religious studies programs, but no prosecutor in the heavily LDS counties of

Viewer scores TV programs

Editor, Times-News:

I would like to commend Mr. Kemper of Buhl for his letter regarding KMYT Channel 11. I have never seen such awful programming. Since KMYT forces residents to go to Cable TV they should get a kick-back from the Cablevision people.

Everytime there is an outstanding program such as the "Eleanor and Franklin" movie by the "NFL" players on "KMYT" has microwave difficulties. Why can't these difficulties ever happen during "KMYT News"? Because the news staff has enough difficulties of their own!

Instead of "Major League Baseball" on Saturday, April 17, we're going to see "The NFL players on 'KMYT' has microwave difficulties. Why can't these difficulties ever happen during 'KMYT News'? Because the news staff has enough difficulties of their own!"

Also I'm tired of seeing previews for movies such as "Five Easy Pieces," an academy award winning movie, only to never have the picture telecast on KMYT.

Even though I hate to pay to watch TV I see that as the only alternative to the amateurs at KMYT.

Prayer for today

Help us to feel the after-glow of Easter, God. Jesus didn't just suffer, die, rise again, and return to you. He, also, promised we should never be alone. He promised to send a comforter to be with us constantly — Your spirit to guide us in everything.

We know that it doesn't help to have a prayer book if you aren't there. If we aren't aware that you are with us, you can't help us. If, after the glow of Easter, help us to cultivate an awareness of your presence and an eagerness for your guidance. Ushia Martin

Swedish director chooses 'exile'

Chicago Sun-Times film director Ingmar Bergman, who said Friday he is choosing exile from his native Sweden, will hold a press conference Wednesday in Los Angeles to explain his reasons. Bergman, who suffered a nervous breakdown earlier this year after tax evasion charges were brought against him and later dropped, indicated in Paris Friday that he would probably never work in Sweden again.

Bergman's publicist, Ernie Anderson, told The Chicago Sun-Times that Bergman was to spend two days in conferences with producer Dino DeLaurentis and agent Paul Kohner in Los Angeles before meeting with the press.

Anderson said — Bergman's next film, a circus drama named "The Serpent's Eye," will be filmed in Germany, but that the director will probably move permanently to the Los Angeles area and base his operations there.

Bergman, considered for 20 years to be one of a handful of the world's greatest filmmakers, had fashioned a legendary work style for himself in Sweden. Treasuring his privacy, he built a studio on Faro, the Baltic island where he lived, and worked constantly with the same intimate group of assistants and technicians, he called them "my 18 friends."

Now, according to Anderson, Bergman's bitterness against the Swedish government is so intense that he will leave all that behind.

"He's selling his studio, he's selling his home on Faro and his condominium in Stockholm, and turning over his company to the people who worked for him," Anderson said. "It's almost a surgical operation."

Bergman has directed some 35 films, but never previously shot a single frame outside of Sweden. For action-based-in-London in his 1970 film "The Touch," he briefed cinematographer Sven Nykvist on what he wanted, and Nykvist traveled to England to direct his scenes.

Swedish film and cultural leaders were in shock over the prospect of the country losing its most famous artist. Bergman's prestige helped to establish the relatively small nation as one of the world's most important producers of film. But the move away from Sweden may be a good one for Bergman personally according to Anderson.

"For the first time in his career, he has a blank check from a producer, Dino DeLaurentis," he said. "Despite all of his fame, Bergman could never count on adequate financing. Now he has it. And he will direct only in English from now on — he speaks it fairly well, as most Swedes do."

'Shocking' power bill

WAYNE Kinkel, a staff artist for a Helena newspaper got the shock of his life earlier this week when he opened up his utility bill to find he owed the Montana Power Company $1,294.80 for one month of electricity and gas. The error was made when the power company assumed his gas meter had gone completely around, which company officials later admitted wasn't likely.

Kinkel lives in a small two-bedroom house and normally has a $40-$50 utility bill. (UPI)

CIA propaganda plan heard by committee

Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — The CIA has employed hundreds of journalists overseas in a massive program designed to influence world opinion with covert propaganda, the Senate Intelligence committee has been told.

The journalists — all foreign nationals — have given the Central Intelligence Agency access, for the dissemination of propaganda, to about 200 newspapers, 30 news services, 20 radio and television outlets and 25 book publishers — all foreign owned.

The committee, headed by Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho), found that propaganda is the CIA's largest single covert action program, consuming about a quarter of the agency's covert action budget in fiscal 1976.

The Chicago Daily News learned that the Church committee was told that much of the propaganda falls into the so-called "black" category — meaning it is either false or attributed to a false source.

Although such propaganda is directed at foreign audiences, the committee concluded that there is no way to prevent it from being picked up by U.S. news agencies and then published at home.

The CIA does try to shield U.S. policy-makers from black propaganda, but intelligence sources said the Church committee was informed of at least one case in which a major U.S. policy decision was influenced by black propaganda that wasn't properly identified.

In addition, the sources say, there undoubtedly have been instances in which U.S. businessmen have based important decisions in part on false information distributed by the CIA through its black propaganda program in foreign media.

Although the existence of CIA-linked journalists has previously been reported, this is the first disclosure of the extent and influence of the program.

NASCAR vet soothes car

Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — Most folks talk to their cars only when the engine turns balky or a tire goes flat — unpleasant sort of talk.

Not Cale Yarborough. He says sweet, soothing things to his car.

The popular NASCAR veteran — one of only four stock car drivers to earn more than $1 million in prize money — apparently is choosing his words with extra care this season. He's running a strong second to Benny Parsons in the point standings and a win in either Sunday's $50,000 race at Martinsville, Va., or in the $250,000 Alabama 500 the following week, could give him the first leg championship.

"Sure, I talk to my car," admitted Yarborough during a Chicago stopover. "I know that if the truth were known a lot of drivers do the same thing. Maybe it's just a way to relax and to relieve the tension, but it's a habit I've gotten into that I probably couldn't break even if I wanted to."

Yarborough, who shrugged aside an unrewarding two-year stint (1971-72) in the USAC Champ Car circuit, is usually "putting it all together" after a slow restart in NASCAR competition.

XXX theater closes in SLC

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Cutting-bomb threats, financial ruin, attempts to burn him out and "continued harassment" from city officials, Deep Throat has closed the doors to his XXX-rated movie theater.

Harper, who calls himself vice president for operations of the Palace Theater, turned off the projectors Friday and shut his doors.

"I'm broke," he said, claiming he has spent $20,000 defending in court what he called "the public's right to choose" to see sex movies which he brought to Salt Lake City, starting with the legendary "Deep Throat."

Harper, whose downtown auditorium has been picketed in recent weeks by sign-carrying smut opponents, said his theater has been on the receiving end of four-bomb threats, two arson attempts and a brick thrown through a window. Fights have broken between employees, patrons and picketers.

But it was the legal expenses which he said broke his back. The Palace faces a jury trial May 25 for showing Deep Throat. It was convicted in city court of showing an obscene movie but that conviction was reversed in Third District Court.

The city is seeking a declaratory judgment against the Palace in an attempt to destroy the existing prints of Deep Throat.

High school senior speaks out on sex

BOISE (UPI) — The "governor" at the two-day 1978 YMCA Youth Government session Friday urged that laws prohibiting homosexuality and other sex acts between consenting adults be repealed and that a memorial urging a public vote on the Pioneer plant be passed.

John Frank, a Caldwell High School student, is serving as governor for the session which ends today at the Statehouse. Friday he addressed a joint session of the 350 Idaho high school students participating in the mock legislative sessions.

Today the students will vote on bills ranging from the Equal Rights Amendment to a joint memorial asking the Soviet Union to remove Mountain Home from its list of nuclear targets.

During his address Frank presented a five-point program to the student, which would repeal the "victimless crime" statutes, bring the Pioneer plant issue to a vote, codify the rights of students, equalize state funding to public schools and limit evidence of past sexual conduct of victims in rape cases.

He said "We must act to prevent the selective enforcement of victimless crimes. Presently we have unenforceable laws which fail to recognize the right of the people to set their own morals within the framework of a responsible society."

"It is with this in mind that I ask you to support legislation in the Senate which would eliminate from the criminal code certain sexual relationships between consenting adults. This bill does not condone such actions but neither does it condemn them for that is not a proper task for our government."

Sen. Church enters Connecticut race

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Frank Church will vie with Morris K. Udall for Connecticut's liberal Democratic vote in the state's first-ever presidential primary next month, it was learned Friday.

Jim Vlock, Church's Connecticut coordinator, said the Idaho senator has decided to file slates in most of Connecticut's 169 towns, except Hartford and West Hartford.

The decision, made four days before the filing deadline for slates in the May 11 primary, appeared to spell trouble for Udall in his drive to win as many of the state's 51 national convention delegates as possible.

The beneficiaries of Church's entrance apparently will be Henry Jackson and Jimmy Carter, both considered more conservative than Udall and Church, and an uncommitted slate thought to be a holding action for Hubert Humphrey.

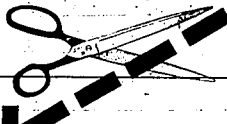

Jackson, Carter and the uncommitted have divided the support of party remnants of the once-powerful Democratic organization put together by the late national Democratic Chairman John M. ...

"We're going full tilt in Connecticut, Hartford and West Hartford," Vlock said, that he hopes to have slates in at least 100 towns.

He said his organization had concluded Udall was too strong among party reformers in those two communities.

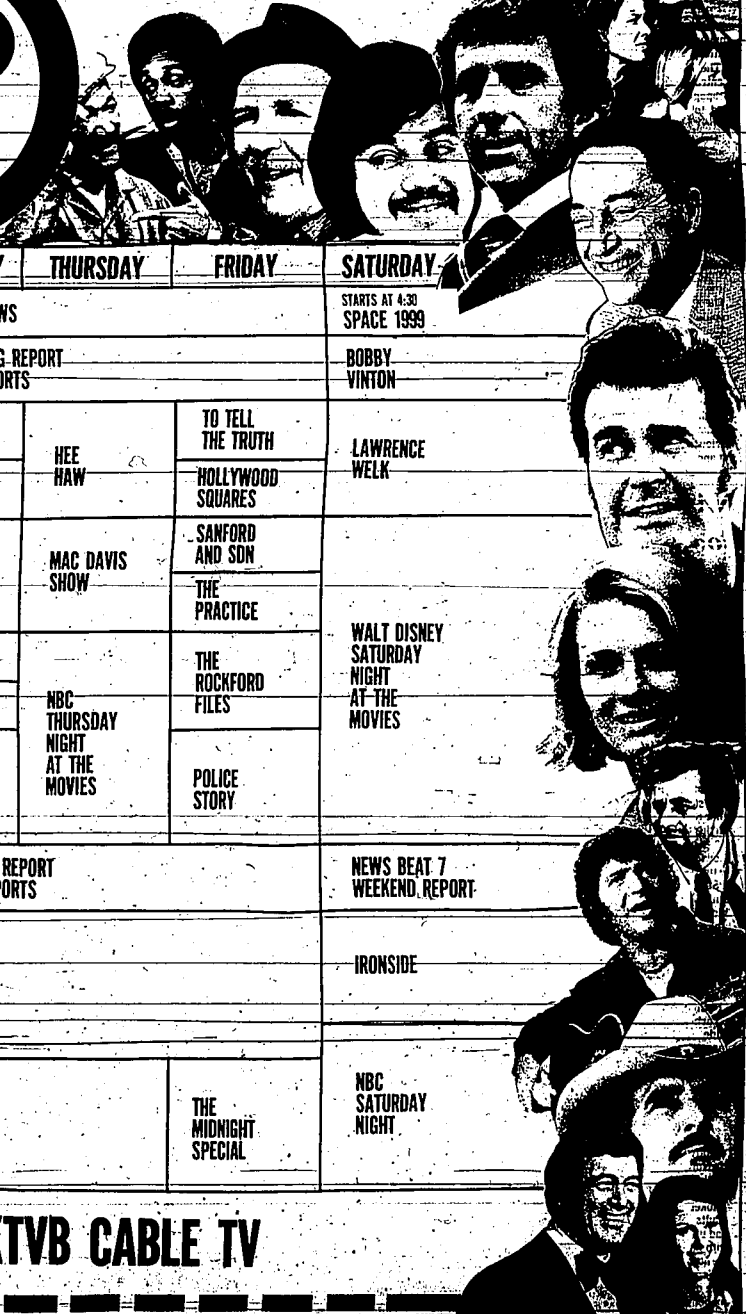

Church had previously declined to himself on whether he would contest Connecticut at all.

Earlier this week representatives of the two parties met in hopes of working an agreement to prevent progressives from splitting their strength.

Africans want answers on Rhodesia

© N.Y. Times Service

NAIROBI, Kenya — The major question that African leaders are waiting to ask Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who begins a tour of Africa here Saturday night, is just how far he is prepared to go in offering tangible support for African nationalist movements in Rhodesia and South-West Africa.

The issue is expected to come to a head early next week when Kissinger stops in Tanzania and Zambia on the first leg of his 12-day tour of seven African states. The presidents of those two countries, Julius K. Nyerere and Kenneth Kaunda, will press hard for U.S. assurances of backing, even direct military backing for the guerrilla forces now seeking to topple the white-minority government of Prime Minister Ian Smith of Rhodesia.

Mr. Kissinger, if UPI, will be hard pressed not to offer some form of assistance if he seeks to impress African states with his recent warnings of the dangers to world and continental peace posed by recent Soviet and Cuban interventions in Africa. For such leaders as Nyerere, Kaunda and others, the U.S. presence as minimal compared with what they view as the urgent need to end white domination in Rhodesia by any means and with whatever assistance possible.

African diplomats and political observers here are wondering whether Kissinger will be able to offer anything that those African states most active in their support of Rhodesian nationalists could accept as credible and realistic.

"He could for example promise funds for the reconstruction and development of Zimbabwe once Smith was ousted," said Hilary Ng'weno, the well-known editor of the influential Weekly Review, a Kenyan news magazine. "But I doubt this would satisfy Nyerere and Kaunda, whose concerns right now are to defeat Smith militarily."

"If he's going to impress anyone with his warnings about the Soviets he's going to have to offer something to counter the aid the Soviets are providing and if he is able to convince Congress to provide such substance it would probably only encourage the Soviets to increase their military contributions," said Ng'weno.

Primarily in regard to Rhodesia, there is the question of which nationalist faction if any should be the recipient of U.S. aid. Western diplomats were saying as late as Thursday that Kissinger might meet in Zambia with Joshua Nkomo, the leader of the faction that until last October in Southern Rhodesia was negotiating with the Smith government.

Such a meeting was thrown into doubt however by a statement this week by the leader of the opposing nationalist group, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, who charged that Kissinger wanted to "subvert and sabotage black Rhodesia's war of liberation" and that his prime interest was to establish "puppet regimes in those parts of Southern Africa where he thinks majority rule is imminent."

The U.S. embassy in Lusaka attacked the statement Friday as "unfortunate and unconstructive," but it is difficult to see how in the light of such a division Kissinger can meet Nkomo. The Russians are not so encumbered having given aid and assistance to both groups of nationalists.

Kissinger's major response to the issues raised by Rhodesia and the liberation movement is to come on Tuesday in Zambia where he will make a speech on U.S. policy in Southern Africa. Ng'weno said "I really don't think Africa should expect too much, but perhaps we just might be able to pull some rabbit out of the hat."

While Southern Africa will be the thorniest problem facing the secretary, he will also be asked to consider several requests for military and development assistance by the leaders he visits in his first trip to this continent as a public official.

Here in Kenya, a staunch pro-Western country, the emphasis of the attention he will meet is presumed to center on stepped-up military assistance. Kenya has by far the weakest armed forces in the region while three of her neighbors, Somalia, Uganda and Tanzania have been heavily armed by the Russians and the Chinese.

Latin poverty outlined

THE HOME OF MAN. By Barbara Ward. 320 Pages. Illustrated. W. W. Norton. $8.95 cloth; $3.95 paper.

Nearly half the cities in Latin America have neither piped water nor sewage systems. In Africa and Asia the proportion is even higher. In many of the world's cities, shanty-town squatters represent one-third to one-half of the population. Eighty per cent of the eight million people in Calcutta live on the basis of one room per family.

Such deprivation is not confined to the "developing" world. On the outskirts of Paris there are individual water faucets that serve 2,000 people. And in London, Rome, New York and scores of other American cities there are, of course, conditions we'd rather not think about.

The city is one of mankind's basic creations: a focus of life and aspirations — but now, after thousands of years, also a focus of inadequacies, tribulations and perplexities. How do we untangle urban — and conjunctive rural — problems? Is there any hope for overcoming urban ills, and transforming cities into the serviceable and even idyllic instruments for living that our imaginations tell us they could be?

These are the principal questions that Barbara Ward, the British economist, addresses in a book commissioned by the United Nations as a sort of keynote for the Global Conference on Human Settlements ("Habitat") that will convene in Vancouver, British Columbia on May 31.

Conventional routes for commentators on Urban problems are either "Doomsday" compilations of enormities or Utopian panaceas that evoke only yawns or laughs at city halls. Miss Ward, long noted for her insights and her engaging articulation of them, steers far clear of these futile oversimplifications. In a virtuoso display of familiarity with both history and contemporary evolutions all the way from Tokyo to Massachusetts, she dissects community problems, scrutinizes their causes and projects some plausible paths toward their solution.

Cities, she observes, are ungainly but inevitable combinations of the intentional and the unintended — settlements that had innumerable reasons for being, but that in the industrial era have been assailed by influxes of population, exceeding their assimilative dexterity. If over 20,000 population is taken as the arbitrary criterion of a city, nearly half the world's people now live in cities, and the proportion is growing steadily. Of the world's 191 million population, cities more than half, remarkably, are in the developing countries.

Ford speech termed 'plastic'

Washington Star

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says President Ford has a more "plastic" way of expressing himself than Kissinger does, and the world is left to wonder whether this is a compliment or a putdown.

Kissinger's own explanation at a news conference Thursday was "I think that the President's use of adjectives is more graphic than mine because, being from the Teutonic tradition, you cannot tell what a sentence means until I place the verb at the end of it."

Kissinger used the expression when a reporter asked why Ford said Fidel Castro was an "international outlaw" when Kissinger didn't.

Kissinger replied that "the President has a more plastic way of expressing himself than I do. Or I may have a more complicated way of expressing myself."

When a reporter asked what Kissinger meant by "plastic," the secretary laughed and said, "You are determined that I ruin myself before I get off to Africa."

Brazil muzzles press

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — The military government has ordered the Argentine press not to print any reports on guerrilla activities, kidnappings or the appearance of corpses unless officially confirmed. The presidential press office said Saturday.

The orders were given verbally to editors earlier in the week, but the text of the message was not made public until Saturday.

It said: "It is prohibited to inform, comment on or refer to the subjects of subversive acts, the appearance of cadavers, or the death of subversives and members of the security forces."

Session set on learning

TWIN FALLS — Educators and parents are invited to attend a workshop on preventing learning difficulties in young children before they enter school.

The workshop will be led by Merle Stoddard, director of the Magic Valley Easter Seal Center, Monday at the College of Southern Idaho.

Interested people should go to the Shields Building, room 110 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Stoddard, who has worked on early prevention of learning difficulties for many years at the Easter Seal Center, will discuss children with visual and auditory discrimination problems and motor coordination difficulty.

She will show how these problems, if untreated, can slow the school learning experiences of otherwise healthy children.

Video tapes of how these children have been taught will be shown.

Great escape baboons' last

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The "Great Escape" pulled off by 50 baboons at Kings Island amusement park will be their last act.

"Their show business career is over," says park spokesman Dan Alyward. "They bowed out with their 'Great Escape.' We do not plan to put them back on display."

Park officials are using apples "spiked" with potent sleep-inducing tranquilizers in their latest attempt to capture the irksome baboons that escaped park fences nine days ago.

"We hope this stuff puts the baboons to sleep so we can pick them up and put them in cages," Alyward said. "We're using a higher concentrated dosage than we tried before.

Previous attempts to "drug" the baboons didn't work. Luring the baboons back home and then switching on an electrical fence didn't work either.

The young, 15-pound baboons escaped the park's Lion Country Safari area 12-foot-high fence April 14. Park officials managed to keep all but one in the immediate area by placing fresh fruit on the ground.

One footloose baboon ran away and was last seen five miles north of the park. Officials managed to shoot another baboon with a tranquilizer dart gun earlier this week and capture him.

Lioness shot

CALL, Colombia (UPI) — A 225-pound lioness that broke loose from her cage and went on a dog-killing rampage through city streets was shot and killed by a policeman, authorities reported Friday.

A police spokesman said the lioness was brought to the southwestern Colombian city from the United States two years ago, escaped from her zoo cage Thursday morning. She roamed freely through residential areas, killing and eating three dogs and mauling off a ponie among residents.

Police launched a citywide hunt for the animal and broadcast urgent warnings for people to stay in their homes.

An unidentified officer finally spotted and shot her dead, authorities said.

Hagerman man works in pro athletes ministry

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times News Staff Writer

HAGERMAN — Tom Hamilton, a relative newcomer to Hagerman Valley, rubs shoulders with the pros.

In his case, the "pros" are mostly professional football players, many of whose names are household words for football fans. Hamilton's association with these "big timers" comes from his position as chairman of the board of directors of the Pro Athletes Outreach, headquartered in Scottsdale, Ariz.

The vigorous and genial Hamilton donates an estimated third of his time to traveling and speaking throughout the United States and Canada, and even Ireland, in the interest of the Pro Athletes Outreach, a Christian teaching ministry to help athletes know Christ and then learn how to share their faith with others.

He will describe the interesting chain of circumstances leading to his decision to become a Christian while attending an executive seminar of Campus Crusade in Dallas, Tex., Feb. 3, 1972, when he speaks in Twin Falls May 1 at the Fall Gospel Businessmen's monthly meeting. The session is scheduled at the Rogerson hotel with a dinner at 7 p.m. Anyone interested in hearing the speaker only can come at 8 p.m.

While he and his gracious wife, Charlotte, now live in Hagerman valley, where they plan to build a new home overlooking the Snake River, the world is literally at their fingertips, thanks to modern transportation.

Not only does Hamilton fly throughout the country on his volunteer work, but he also commutes by air to his law firm in San Diego, where he spends another one-third of his time contributing to his own economic future.

A typical example of his schedule shows a speaking engagement at a PAG board meeting in Phoenix May 8. He will fly there from Colorado Springs, Colo., where he is to attend a meeting May 7 of the National Rifle Association, of which he is a director and serves on finance and management, review committee.

Last month his wife met him in Chicago and accompanied him to Queens University where he addressed representatives of three law schools on the topic "Christianity and the Law."

Hamilton sees a growing interest in Christianity, as evidenced by the fact for the first time in its existence, the California State Bar Association held a prayer breakfast at its annual meeting.

When the Hamiltons became Christians, their way of life changed, physically as well as spiritually. For the very next day he met Adis Priest, a Christian Businessman from Phoenix, whom Hamilton terms "the most effective communicator I've ever heard."

Priest, however, was so impressed he "tagged along" periodically for about a year with Priest on the latter's speaking engagements for Athletes in Action, another Christian group working with pro athletes.

Then the men decided to form the PAG, incorporating it to receive tax deductible contributions and using their expertise and connections in the business world to provide financial backing for the athletes themselves to share their faith with other youth.

They are convinced pro athletes have the greatest audience of any group in the world.

"That's where you get the biggest bang for the buck," Hamilton says briskly. "I could probably keep an audience awake, but young people literally hang on every word spoken by such name players as Mike McCoy of the Green Bay Packers, Ken Houston of the Washington Redskins or Jeff Stanton of the Minnesota Vikings. These are among the members of the PAG executive committee.

The PAG's main effort is holding annual training conferences to which all athletes who are interested are invited along with their wives. These days find not only inspiration but practical help in becoming effective witnesses.

From there the businessmen and athletes fan out, speaking at schools or wherever they are invited in meetings big or small. While the school assemblies never are compulsory, Hamilton says many times they are invited into schools because of the keen interest in the athletes. He said they addressed 68,000 youths in Atlanta. Similar sessions have been held from Birmingham, Ala., to Seattle.

How the Hamiltons came to find their present 35-acre home on the old Bliss highway is a story in itself. Hamilton said they had search for five years for the right place to settle.

"They had found nothing in this area and the September Sunday in 1974 when Evel Knievel gave Twin Falls national spotlight in his ill fated canyon jump, they were sitting in a Bliss motel.

Gem Highway Department plans MV road projects

MAGIC VALLEY — Spring highway construction is getting up after the winter snowing.

Six projects currently are under contract in the Shoshone-Jerome area, and another six under contract in the Twin Falls area.

Drainage structures are being built and preparation made to begin aggregate crushing operations for bituminous surface material on the 10.584 mile section of State Highway 24 in Lincoln County.

Western Construction Company, Boise, has this contract for $1,343,217.50 and it is about 75 per cent complete at this time, according to Howard Johnson, District engineer.

When this roadway section is complete, an old road will run from Minidoka through to Shoshone, a project carried out over a number of years and which will provide facilities for farm, school bus and general use travel.

Car mart sponsored by local dealership

TWIN FALLS — Car owners will be crowding into a car lot the first weekend of May but not just to buy a car, also to sell their own cars.

Blue Lakes Volkswagen is sponsoring a "Car Mart" May 1 and 2. Car owners will be offered the opportunity to park their cars on the Blue Lakes lot, for a rental fee, and join in a communal car sale.

"Anyone can bring any vehicle," says John Altman, sales representative for Blue Lakes Volkswagen. He says cars, trucks, boats, trailers, motorcycles, "anything they can drive on and off" the lot will be welcomed to the sale.

Altman says the dealership is expecting from 40 to 60 vehicles which has marked the lot for the vehicles. He adds this is only "half the space available" at the lot.

Still, he says reservations "wouldn't hurt." To make a reservation the car owner must sign a waiver freeing the Blue Lakes firm from any responsibility for the car while it is parked on the lot.

A rental fee of $10 will be charged for a space of 15 x 20 feet or $15 for use of the same sized space for two days. Smaller spaces will be available for about $5 to $6, Altman says.

"If the people of Magic Valley want it, it will be a regular event," Altman says. He says it may be offered twice a month during the summer if interest is great enough.

Altman says he conceived the idea of a car mart because customers often "come in and want to get rid of their car, but want more money" than they are able to obtain.

The car mart is a way of promoting public relations at the Volkswagen dealership and helping people sell cars communally rather than "having to go it alone."

Optimist Club elects at Jerome

JEROME — The newly formed Jerome Optimist club has elected Larry Darling as its first president for the upcoming year.

Other officers elected were Bob Cochran, vice-president; Ernie McCallum, vice president; Mario Dalry, Tim Dunne, Joe Fuschelli, Robin Kinsey, Bill Werry, and Richard Yankey, all directors and Joe Eyre, secretary-treasurer.

The Jerome chapter sponsored by the Boise Optimist club, now joins more than 3,000 Optimist clubs throughout the United States and Canada which are engaged in a wide variety of youth and community service projects.

Work had not yet resumed on 9.7 miles of State Highway 28, Clear Creek Summit-West project.

Johnson said a project to remove existing parapet rail and attaching guardrail on the "PD-4 Canal, M. Canal, U Canal and R Canal structures on US 28 in Jerome County will be completed this month.

Work has not yet started on construction of rest rooms, sewage disposal system, arbors, tables, water distribution system, underground waterlines, systems and furnishing of shrubs and trees at Timmerman Rest Area.

Preparations are underway to begin deck placement on the new Perrine Memorial Bridge north of Twin Falls.

The section of roadway only takes in 0.829 miles but is one of the all-time big projects for the district engineering and construction department. Allied Structural Steel Co., Hammond, Ind., has the contract for $8,476,315.10.

Improvements being made at the Gridley Bridge area in Twin Falls, along with improvements on 30.14 miles of US 20 roadway is now about 85 per cent complete. The fence is being installed now and irrigation structures placed.

Minor traffic interference can be expected at the Second Avenue West and South US 20 in Twin Falls project location. Beyer Paving Company, Twin Falls, has this project for $567,340.50 and it covers 1.157 miles. The roadway is being excavated at this time and crews are hauling and placing base aggregate.

Improvements on 2.3 miles of Clear Lakes Road are about 69 per cent complete. The fence is being installed and drainage structures installed at this time. Lone Pine Equipment Co., Inc. Kimberly, has the contract for $490,105.75.

As soon as materials are delivered, traffic signals in the City of Twin Falls, Shoshone Street at 4th Avenue N & E and 6th Avenue N & E, Addison Avenue E and Locust Avenue, Addison Avenue E and Eastland Drive, will be installed.

Tri-State Electric, Inc., Boise, has this contract for $117,125.

Work is about 65 per cent complete on the Cedar Creek project in Twin Falls County. At the present, crews are hauling and placing borrow and installing irrigation facilities. This project calls for removing existing bridge structure, construction of roadway, drainage structure, guardrail and roadside seeding. Nelson & Co., Twin Falls, has the contract for $136,181.

Automobile damaged

TWIN FALLS — David Armstrong, Twin Falls, told city police someone used a blunt instrument to break out the rear window and both headlights of his vehicle.

He said the car was parked at 121 Third Street East at the time. Damage was estimated at $120.

MR. AND Mrs. E. D. "Ted" Crckett, left, president and secretary of the Idaho Fourth District PTA, and Mrs. Kermit Lier, vice president of the Twin Falls County PTA, make plans for a PTA conference at Hansen.

Workshops designed PTA conference slated at Hansen

HANSEN — The Idaho Fourth District PTA conference will be held Saturday at Hansen High School.

The fourth district covers all of Magic Valley and all PTA members are invited to attend the conference.

Registration will be from 8:30-9 a.m. at the school. Cost of registration will be $2 per person and cost of lunch will be $2.50 per person. Pre-registration should be mailed to Ted Crckett, Route 2, Hansen 83334, by Monday.

The conference on the theme "This is Our Heritage" will open with a community sing at 9:15 a.m.

A special program will be presented in the morning with workshops in the afternoon. Sen. John Pooney, R-Idaho, Rupert, will present a brief history of education in the U.S. and a panel discussion of problems in education "today and tomorrow" will follow.

Doctor advocates 'paramarriages'

CHICAGO (UPI) — If teenagers were allowed to live together legally for two years with no long-term commitment, there would be fewer illegitimate children, fewer abortions and less venereal disease, a Philadelphia doctor says.

Dr. Thaddeus L. Montgomery, writing in the current issue of the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology, proposed that the United States adopt a system of two-year "paramarriages" for the young.

He said it would allow teenagers to vent their sexual energies in a socially acceptable manner, and would reduce tensions between parents and teens.

Under Montgomery's plan, boys 18 or older and girls 17 or older could apply for a paramarriage license a month before they planned to begin living together. The woman would keep her maiden name, and neither would be financially responsible for the other.

Prior to obtaining a license, the couple would be required to take tests for syphilis and gonorrhea, and contraceptive devices would be made available.

If children were born during the paramarriage, they would be considered legitimate and the couple would be responsible for them, even if they chose to discontinue the union after two years.

At the end of the two-year period, couples deciding to stay together would simply convert their license into a marriage license, Montgomery said.

National Frisbee championship one of spring rites

BY PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Education Editor

What is 50 per cent of 25 per cent of 50 per cent of $2? If you can answer that correctly, you might be of a mind to help Trivia Bowl spread to the college of your choice.

Trivia Bowl, started this month by Princeton sophomores Thomas Alexander, Johns Concrete Canoe Races and Frisbee Tournaments as a rite of spring on the college campus.

These things now are as near to fever pitch as they ever get. This weekend the National Collegiate Frisbee Championship takes place in Amherst, Mass.

And some more of the nearly 20 regional Concrete Canoe Races will take place Saturday, including one of the University of Illinois in Champaign-Urbana.

Prof. Clyde Keeler started the current boat sport in 1970. He had engineering students make the first concrete canoe "to let students have some fun while learning about concrete." Then Purdue did it and they raced.

Thirty or 40 students from a dozen or so schools show up for each of the concrete canoe regional championships. It's on the east coast, the west coast and places in between, according to the professor.

Princeton's Epstein, of Toronto, Canada, single-handedly is trying to get Trivia Bowl off the ground.

"Students on campus no longer feel a need to justify every activity as meaningful," he said. "Trivia is okay again."

The Princeton Trivia Team will fight Harvard, Cornell and Brown the weekend of May 1.

In the first match a few weeks ago Princeton beat Yale. The score was 300 to 270.

The three member teams fielded questions on geography, literature, history, mythology, math and such before a cheering audience of 50 at Princeton's Whig Hall.

"Macaroni" was the answer to this question: "What did Yankee Doodle call a Feather-In-His-Cap?"

Neither Princeton nor Yale trivia players could answer this question: "How many cubic feet of earth are in a hole five feet by four feet by six feet?"

The answer is "zero." A hole is a hole is a hole. It doesn't contain anything.

Yale Trivia Captain Bob Whalen after the defeat at Princeton, said:

"I think all six of us knew the same amount but Princeton just hit the buzzer more often."

Yale Junior Lucy Williams, told how she got to be on the Eli Trivia Team.

"Some maniac called me one morning at 7:30 and woke me up. He asked me to come fight for God and Yale in a Trivia Bowl at Princeton. I said 'yes,' thinking he was crazy, and went back to bed."

Princeton, also pretty good at Frisbee, is third-seeded in the Ultimate Frisbee Tournament in Amherst.

Rutgers is number-one, Hampshire College, two-and-Cornell University, fourth.

Yale is in the top ten among the 16 teams competing in the finals, according to Nancy Grimm, of Syracuse, N.Y., and a regular on the Hampshire College Frisbee team.

Frisbee started on the Yale campus more than 20 years ago, when students began casting the metal pin fins of the Frisbie Pie Company of Norwich, Conn.

Tests readied

Hearing, visual clinic planned

LIN Carpenter, Junior Club, administers a vision test to 3-year old Marci Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alexander, in preparation for the Free Vision and Hearing Clinic to be held this week at the TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls organizations will join together again this year to conduct a free visual and hearing clinic open to all preschool children in the area.

Members of the Junior Club, Delta Gamma Alumnae Association, and Welcome Wagon will be conducting the clinic at the "Y" Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday this week for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Appointments are not necessary. Parents are urged to bring their children, ages 3 years to 6 years, to the free clinic for testing, as early detection is important for early correction.

It is important to note that if children have been screened in the past, they should be screened again, as eyes and ears change quickly. Problems that are detected at the clinic are referred to medical specialists for further examination. The clinic screening does not constitute a professional exam.

Volunteers from the three organizations will be trained to use the special eye charts and audiometers used in the screening.

Lin Carpenter, Jr. Club, Wendy Slane, Welcome Wagon, and Mrs. Robert Goss, Delta Gamma, are general chairpersons for the clinic.

Jay Lloyd, audiologist, will conduct the training for the audiometers which are being donated by Telex Hearing Aid Service and Mide Hearing Aid Center.

For any questions call Shirley Straubhaar, 733-3910.

Floridian falls victim to old rumor

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Out of the goodness of her heart, Sharon Palmer spent months collecting thousands of empty cigarette packages.

She thought they could be swapped for dialysis treatment for a 9-year-old boy with kidney trouble.

She was wrong. Mrs. Palmer fell victim to a puzzling and apparently baseless rumor that, with many variations, has plagued Good Samaritans for a quarter century.

"Cigarette companies do not redeem empty packages. Neither does anyone else, says a spokesman for the tobacco industry.

Mrs. Palmer estimates she saved about 10,000 empty packs after being told by a storekeeper that each 100 packs would buy three minutes of treatment on a dialysis machine for a 9-year-old boy. Many of her friends pitched in to help collect the packs.

The offer described in the rumor is nowhere to be found around Orlando, according to Michael Vaughn, executive director of the Kidney Foundation of Central Florida.

"It's a farce," says Vaughn, who has tried in vain to trace the rumor to its source locally. "A lot of its source's valuable time is being wasted."

"We can find no reason for it," he said. "There apparently is no malice, but it's causing the National Kidney Foundation a lot of trouble."

Vaughn says about 25,000 empty packs have been collected in Orlando to meet the current revival of the rumor.

He fears people will be so discouraged when they discover they've wasted their time that they will be reluctant to do worthwhile volunteer work.

Mrs. Palmer said she spent a lot of time and gas money collecting the cigarette packs, but is not angry.

"I'm upset in regard to the people who tried to help, who took time and went to parking lots and asked their friends and then turned around and found it was a hoax," Mrs. Palmer said.

She said she had no idea how or why the rumor began. "I don't know," she said. "My only feeling is that I hate to throw them away. So many people have worked so hard."

But she might as well sell them away, according to cigarette manufacturers, who have never redeemed empty packages.

"There is no redemption by cigarette manufacturers or anybody else of empty cigarette packs," says William Klopfer of The Tobacco Institute in Washington. He said cigarette firms spend millions of dollars annually in medical research but adds emphatically, "none of them, none of them conducts any redemption mechanism."

Pilot Joseph Zinno tries in vain to fly his pedal-plane

Man-powered airplane fails to fly

QUONSET POINT, R.I. (UPI) — Joseph Zinno, 62, pedaled hard Thursday, but his 150-pound man-powered airplane did not pass go and did not collect $92,500.

"I think the machine is holding up about as good as I can," the retired colonel and former jet pilot said between breaths after putting away on the Olympian, a balsam wood and plastic craft.

He never made it off the abandoned Navy runway. British industrialist Henry Kreyer has offered a $50,000 prize for anyone who flies a figure-eight around two pylons a half-mile apart, staying 10 feet above ground.

"You're not flying a CH-1 out there," said a crew member who helped steady the airplane's fragile 78-foot wingspan as Zinno glided forward before about 100 onlookers under a perfect, windless daybreak sky.

The North Providence man wanted to be the first American to fly a foot-powered craft. He said he would try again after some modifications.

To build up momentum, Zinno pedals a bicycle wheel which pushes the plane forward on the ground and turns a propeller behind the cockpit.

The propeller spins faster than a windmill but slower than a child's whirlygig toy. This, along with the aerodynamic design of the craft, is supposed to get him airborne.

At least 16 human-powered airplanes been successfully flown, all in Europe. No such craft has flown more than 1.71 yards and none have been able to turn. Zinno hopes to do both.

"I'm not about to climb in that bird and learn how to fly it in one day and expect to fly a figure eight curve," he said. "If you don't take the time someone else will take it for you."

Zinno's blond wife, Fran, stood by the runway in a white coat and asked the cheering section that has stood by him since he began drawing up plans for the airplane nearly six years ago.

"Screwy, No," she said to a skeptic. "I have more confidence in my husband than that. I think he at first didn't realize the magnitude of what he wanted."

Zinno won't try again until he balances the wing outriggers, cuts a ventilation hole in the cockpit, adjusts his seatbelts and replaces the tires with ones of higher pressure to provide for less friction.

Wisconsin proposes braille bingo cards

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Blind persons would be able to play bingo with braille cards under a proposal to be considered by the state's Bingo Control Board.

Robert Hoskins, executive director of the board, said the proposed administrative rule would legalize sale and use of braille bingo cards. He said some are already being used and the board has been asked to adopt the rule to make it legal.

"Braille cards were used in three or four places in Wisconsin the past year or so," Hoskins said. "So we thought we'd pass a rule."

Asked whether he anticipated a big demand for the braille cards if they are legalized, Hoskins said, "No, not really."

"I suspect there might occasionally be a blind player. I wouldn't expect there would be more than 10 blind persons in the state playing bingo. But I may be wrong. There might be a lot more if cards are available."

The rule would void what now is a technical violation of the law when the cards are used.

"The only company that makes them is the American Foundation for the Blind in New York City," Hoskins said.

According to Wisconsin law all bingo cards have to be bought from a licensed supplier. Blind persons should not be writing to the foundation for the cards. We want licensed suppliers to have some on hand for blind players so there won't be a technical violation of the law.

The rule would also head off another possible problem — a braille card that has no regular numbers on it that can be confirmed by sighted persons operating the bingo game.

Mothers travel fund benefits from circus

TWIN FALLS — A check for $500, presented in Twin Falls last week by William Kay, president of William Kay Productions, Saratoga, Fla., will go to the local Shrine Hospital Travel Fund.

The special fund, Kay said, is used to assist the mother of children requiring hospitalization at the Shriners Hospital, Salt Lake City, Utah. In some cases, he said, the mothers lack travel funds to be with the child during surgery or special treatment and the Shrine Club maintains this fund to assist these mothers.

John Roper is chairman of the travel fund.

Jim Olson, circus chairman, for the El Korah Magic Mini Patrol, sponsors of the circus said the $500 represents final payments on Shrine Circus ticket sales which were received after the circus.

William Kay Productions stages the annual Shrine Circus in Twin Falls.

The 1978 Shrine Circus will be held June 15 and 16 at Twin Falls County Fair Grounds in Filer. It will again feature the William Kay circus and will be sponsored by the El Korah Magic Mini Patrol.

Valley to evaluate school curriculum

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Patrons of the Valley School District will have a chance to make their wishes known as to the needs of the curriculum in the elementary schools.

Bryce Sorenson, principal of the Eden and Elberton Elementary Schools, reports that the district will begin its needs assessment program for the elementary schools this week. This is in compliance with the Idaho Department of Education.

The evaluation will be made in the form of a "Bonanza Game" and both children and their parents will be able to express their wants for the school.

Each person will be given school funds on paper and allowed to spend it for the curriculum improvements they feel would be most beneficial.

The children will play the game Tuesday and will take home similar games for their parents to play Tuesday evening.

Patrons are being asked to return to completed games to the school by April 30. Patrons who do not have children in the elementary schools and who want to play the game may call the Hazelton School and forms will be mailed to them.

Sorenson reports that in addition to his curriculum assessment, questionnaires regarding the needs assessment of the school plant facility will be mailed to all the people of the school district Wednesday or Thursday.

They are asked to return this completed questionnaire as soon as possible.

Smoke-filled rooms better

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Professor James MacGregor Burns, pausing to look over the events of this spring, asks, "Is this the way to choose Presidents?" and answers with a frowning, despairing "no." He'd much prefer the smoke-filled room.

One trouble with the country's system of finding leaders — the presidential primary — is that only "highly motivated men, ambitious men who dream the big dream of being in the White House" can get nominated, says Burns.

"We have forgotten that democracy, too, must have the capacity to turn for leadership to a man or woman. We need you," he says.

Burns, 56, teacher at Williams College since 1941, president of the American Political Science Association, Pulitzer prize-winning biographer of Franklin D. Roosevelt and John F. Kennedy, author of a new book about Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, and a practicing Democrat, lectured the Women's National Democratic Club Thursday about the primary system, now in place in 31 states.

He wants to give back to the convention the job of nominating candidates. Now, he says, delegates only ratify the casual decisions of a small percentage of a bored electorate. Burns sees the caucus where delegates are chosen as Democratic and Republican town meetings where voters who are truly interested would debate issues and interview candidates.

In 1960, his friend John F. Kennedy was the beneficiary, he says, and it surprises him that Hubert Humphrey, the victim, still does not weep at the unfairness of it all.

Burns says a "caucus-convention system could be opened to maximum participation by women, blacks, the young and old with vast publicity to overcome the pitfalls — small turnouts and caucuses packed by followers of the best organized candidates, the George McGovern formula of 1972.

These would help preserve the parties, which he says are withering to the jeopardy of "democracy." Party meetings today, in "daring little hovels," are boring, he says, because parties have nothing left to do. Why can't they "pose questions, grab issues, hold

Least tern confused by encroachment

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The least tern, a small shorebird which migrates to Mission Bay each year, has become confused by man-made developments and has taken to nesting on parking lots, freeway interchanges, and alongside airport runways.

The first of about 400 birds have begun to arrive to nest along the bay and in nearby Camp Pendleton. They are an endangered species, with harassment punishable by fines of up to $20,000 and a year in jail.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has a Least Tern Recovery Team which has experimented with helping the terns build nests in some areas where they would be safe from human encroachment.

Michigan rental owned by G. Ford

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — When the roof leaks or the plumbing goes bad, Louise Carr doesn't fool with it. She calls the White House.

That's where her landlord lives. Mrs. Carr and her 80-year-old mother rent the downstairs of President Ford's two-story duplex in a neighborhood of older homes in East Grand Rapids.

Ford bought the place in 1950 when he was a freshman congressman and began renting out both apartments when he moved his family to Washington. He still lists the address as his legal residence.

Both tenants are Democrats and neither said they expect to vote for Ford in the presidential election.

"The Fords are just real nice people and he's a good landlord, but I don't think I should comment on that," Mrs. Carr said when asked her presidential preference.

Miss Reed, who came from Tulsa, Okla., two years ago to work for the Grand Rapids public school system, said she didn't know it was Ford's house until she signed a one-year lease last December.

"When I saw on the lease that Gerald R. Ford was my landlord I wasn't too thrilled about it," Miss Reed said.

"I'm not what you call a Ford supporter."

"My friends kid me about it and want to know when I'm going to throw a party," she said. "There's not going to be one."

Neither tenant deals directly with the President. They send their monthly rental checks to a local bank where Ford maintains an account. When problems arise they contact Ford's personal secretary in Washington.

"With the little things, I just go ahead and do it myself," Mrs. Carr said. "But if it's something serious and it gets to be up around $100, I call the White House and talk to the president's secretary."

In the few months she's lived there, Miss Reed has had no reason to call the White House. But that doesn't mean she has no complaints.

"For one thing it's too expensive for what I'm getting," Miss Reed said. "I pay more than any of my friends who have the same size apartments. Plus I pay all my utilities, garbage pickup and snow removal. It's a strain on a single girl. And I have to be so quiet. You can hear everything that's going on through the radiator."

She said, she was "really ticked off" when she learned she was paying $25 more a month than Mrs. Carr for an identical apartment.

But the prestige of living in the president's house, is not worth the premium to Miss Reed who says she probably will not renew her lease.

Students present concert

JEROME — Students in grades three and four presented their spring music concert Friday (April 23) in the High School gymnasium.

The program presented instrumental songs and variations which included "I Hear a Drum" by Joyce Alrman.

The songs and speeches told of the development of the United States.

Larry Scheer and Scott Jackson narrated "I Hear a Drum" while speakers were Shan Gough, Julie Rose, Lara Jacobson and Kenny Leavitt.

Drummers accompanying the presentation were Niki Byrnes, Ike Anderson, Robyn Hoskin, Lisa Lawson, Kathy Jones and Susan Adams.

The concert was under the direction of Mrs. Lew Fort, elementary music instructor.

Bidders needed for TF student-built playhouse

TWIN FALLS — The O'Leary wood hutchers' industrial arts manufacturing club has a house to sell.

The house, built by club members during non-school hours, is now on display at Anderson Lumber Co. through Wednesday. The structure then will be taken to Idaho Falls for the State Industrial Arts Student Exhibit there.

Proposed bids will be accepted until the close of the working day, Monday. A check for the full amount must accompany each bid. The club reserves the right to reject any or all of the bids. The sale must include the buyer's permission to let the club take the house to the Idaho Falls exhibit.

Upon returning, the house will be delivered to the winning bidder's chosen destination if anywhere within ten miles of Anderson Lumber Co.

The small house, with a 6 by 10-foot floor, contains full wall and ceiling insulation, cedar shakes, paneling, cedar trim, Dutch door, light wiring, convenience outlet, sink with hose hook-up, cabinets and carpet.

Designed with a play house in mind, but suitable for a hobby house, storage or just a place to get away from it all, the house was built using standard framing procedures and full size lumber.

The club is self sufficient, operating on funds earned from the sale of such projects as the house built this spring. Meeting Thursdays night, the club uses mass production methods.

The young builders constructed adjustable splints for the police and fire department earlier this year.

All members are eighth graders at O'Leary

Bids under advisement

JEROME — The Jerome City Council has taken under advisement bids for three separate city projects.

Scaled bids for work on the completion of Phase One of the improvements to the city water system were received from two firms.

Apparent low bidder was Valley Utilities, Inc., Jerome, who submitted a bid of approximately $114,359. The bid included prices on three booster pumps, a motorized control valve, rock excavation, pipework and electrical work.

Second bidder was Home Plumbing and Heating Co., Twin Falls, who submitted a bid of approximately $120,180.

Three bids for providing the city with a new street sweeper were submitted with Starline Equipment Company submitting the lowest bid at $15,500 including $8,500 trade-in on the old city sweeper. Starline also submitted another bid of $18,400 including the trade-in.

Arrowhead Machinery Company submitted a bid of $17,179 including $8,200 trade-in and Glen Dick Equipment Company was the high bidder at $26,504 including $3,750 trade-in.

Bids on gravel for street work this summer were also accepted by the council.

Two firms submitted bids for the gravel with the apparent low bidder being G. Glenn Clark with a bid of $3.50 per ton for 1,500 tons of three-quarter inch maximum gravel; $3.50 per ton for 1,000 tons of 1.5 inch maximum gravel and $6 per ton for 500 tons of half-inch maximum gravel.

Twin Falls Construction Company submitted a bid of $3.70 per ton for the three-quarter inch gravel; $3.55 per ton for the 1.5 inch gravel and $5.50 per ton for the half-inch gravel.

Ed Evans, public works director, said the bids on all three purchases have been taken under advisement until officials have checked specifications.

TF police arrest juveniles

TWIN FALLS — Two juvenile boys, ages 14 and 11, were taken into custody by Twin Falls police Wednesday evening in connection with the alleged assault of a 10-year-old Twin Falls boy.

Police said a group of boys was riding bicycles behind 1019 Morningstar Drive when accosted by two larger boys.

Steve Ellis, 10, was shot in the back of the neck with a pellet gun after the two older youths fired the pellet gun into one of the bicycles and then forced the younger boys to fight each other, police reports stated.

Officers said further action is pending against the 14-year-old and 11-year-old.

'Bigfoot' hassle surfaces again

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) — A mystery creature that reportedly walked on its hind legs, screamed horribly in the night, and left behind a dismembered, badly mangled deer carcass has California's Bigfoot faithful buzzing again.

For more than 100 years there have been rumors and periodic alleged sightings of a large, hairy, humanoid prowling the mountains from Alaska to Mexico. Residents in this community on the north side of San Francisco Bay have their own version of the legend — a Bigfoot who walks the rugged, jagged sides of Mount Tamalpais.

It made the policemen nervous. Guns drawn, they warily hiked down the pitch black, wooded slopes, training their flashlights through the underbrush.

"I heard this heavy breathing ahead of us," Murphy said. Then there were "crackling and rustling noises as if something was approaching through the brush."

The officers began a retreat. It was then that Murphy said the beam of his light gave him a glimpse of a "large, dark-colored thing."

"It was walking on its legs. I saw it climb an eight-foot retaining wall and disappear into the brush."

After the sun came up the officers returned and found a thick trail of blood. They followed it through the brush and came upon a slain deer, its neck broken, and a body dismembered — and badly mangled.

The dead deer was taken to the Marin Humane Society where authorities speculated it had fallen prey to a mountain lion.

"It was a weird thing all right," said Murphy, "but I never said anything about Bigfoot — somebody must have made that up."

Familiar place

Feds may close Texas post office

CONE, Tex. (UPI) — This little west Texas farming town contains 110 people, a cafe, two churches, two cotton gins, a farm supply company, a religious foundation office, 17 residences and Joe Jackson's general store.

Two decades ago the government closed the town's school, merging it with others around the region. Now another fight for autonomy has begun.

The government wants to close the post office, a little cubbyhole in Jackson's store that has been there since 1903.

Cone was among 12,000 small rural post offices which the U. S. Postal Service said would be closed to cut expenses. The nearest post office is at Falls eight miles away or at Floydada 12 miles away.

"They closed our school and now they want to close our post office," said Maggie Gordon, who owns and operates the Cone Cafe. "What next?" The townspeople sent petitions containing 100 names to the Postal Service in Lubbock and to congressmen and senators in Washington.

However, the chances are bleak. Last fiscal year, the little post office took in less than $3,000 in revenue. That alone, according to postal authorities, is reason enough for closure.

IN AN economy move, the federal government wants to close this post office at Cone, Tex. To Sherri Lamb, 2, it's a place with funny boxes, to her mother Mrs. Teresa Lamb, it's the country store and the place to get the mail and to Joe Jackson it represents 19 years of work as its postmaster. (UPI)

Gooding school offers safety class

GOODING — A water safety instructor's course will be offered in a live-day "crash" course at the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind beginning Thursday.

Janete Braga said Shirley Nelson, Hollister, will be instructor for the 30-hour course which will qualify participants to become certified as water safety instructors.

Anyone having a senior life saving certificate or advanced life saving may participate. Sessions are planned from 3:30 to 8 p.m. both Thursday and Friday and all day Saturday and again May 3 and 4, with another session May 5 if needed.

The course also will serve as an update class for persons already certified, Braga said. Further information may be obtained by calling 934-4457, Ext. 54 or 33.

Smaller settlements in 1976 contracts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Major wage contracts negotiated since the start of 1976 generally have provided smaller increases than those reached last year, the Labor Department reported today.

One obvious factor in the smaller settlements was the promise of unspecified cost-of-living escalator clauses, the department said.

The report, covering 270,000 workers under 84 collective bargaining agreements, did not include a separate master freight agreement won by the Teamsters Union early this month after a brief nationwide strike.

Year's heavy round of major contract negotiations in such industries as autos, electrical manufacturing, rubber and construction. The United Rubber Workers went on strike earlier this week to back up their wage demands.

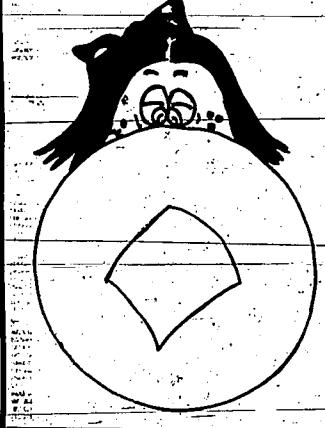

Contacts negotiated for more than 1,000 workers in the first quarter of 1976 averaged 8.8 per cent in the first contract year and 7.4 per cent a year over the life of the contract.

This compared to negotiated increases of 10.8 per cent and 7.6 per cent in 1975 — including subsequent cost-of-living raises.

This meant that contracts continued to be "front loaded," providing greater increases at the beginning than at the end of the contract life.

Editor now against death penalty after observing 26 years

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Don Reid, after watching 189 men die in the electric chair, says the death penalty is "not a deterrent."

"The only person it deters is the man being executed," he says.

Reid's experiences have turned him firmly against capital punishment.

But it wasn't always that way.

"I was 26 when I witnessed my first execution and it didn't bother me one way or the other," says Reid, 64, a newspaper editor in this city, location of the penitentiary system and of "Old Sparky," the state's electric chair.

"But as I got into it — interviewing the men, the families and the victims and attorneys — I reached a point at which I said there must be a better way. Now, I'm very much opposed to it."

Reid, editor of the Huntsville Item, spent 26 years as an official execution witness for the Texas Department of Corrections.

The last execution he witnessed was on a warm summer night in 1964 when Joseph Johnson Sr. died in the electric chair. It was also the last execution in the state of Texas.

Now capital punishment may be reinstated, depending on how the U.S. Supreme Court rules on appeals from five states, including Texas. A ruling could come by the end of the Supreme Court's term in June.

In the years when executions were being carried out, Reid recalls, "the mechanics were fairly simple. The whole process usually took only five or six minutes."

As Reid tells it:

The condemned man was brought to the death chamber at the stroke of midnight. His head had been shaved to provide a better conductor for the electricity that would be running through his body.

The warden greeted the man and asked him if he had anything to say. The warden then told the man to "have a seat, please." Reid says the warden was not being facetious, but was "really a gentleman."

A mask was placed over the man's eyes, and cotton was put in his nose to stem the hemorrhaging that would occur.

The man was strapped to the chair, and the executioner, sitting in another room and watching him through a one-way mirror, threw the switch.

The first charge of electricity, 1,800 volts, flashed through the condemned man. The shock was so powerful that the man rose a couple of inches out of his chair. The head was so intense that the blood in the man's brain boiled, killing him instantly.

The current was reduced to 200 volts, then increased to 1,200 volts, then shut off. The attending physician examined the man and declared him legally dead.

Bid opening set on road project

SHOSHONE — Bids will be opened Tuesday for a highway construction project in the Twin Falls area.

According to Howard Johnson, district engineer, the project specifically calls for seal coating 10.3 miles of US 30 and 93; I-80N to Junction SH 25, Addison Avenue to Snake River, Deadmans Gulch, to West 5 Points and East 5 Points to cemetery, and placing secondary screenings in stockpile at the Twin Falls maintenance yard.

In the Burley-Rupert area crews are completing remaining installation details and traffic signals are to be complete this month at the intersection of US 30 and Eastland-Main-and-Hiland, Overland and Alfredo Road.

C & L Electric Co., Pocatello, has the contract for $150,160.

Controlled traffic can be expected over the Twin Bridges of Snake River, east of Burley on I-80N as work begins in placing deck overlays and covering the approaches on 0.280 miles of Interstate Highway 80N. Contractor is Goodwin Construction Co., Blackfoot, and has the job for $675,067.

New procedures eyed for crash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Safety Investigators said today a fatal plane crash 3.8 miles from the Cleveland, Ohio, airport, had been undiscovered for five hours.

The report shows the urgent need for new procedures to prevent undetected aircraft disappearances.

The crash, which killed the pilot and the sole passenger, was discovered by a National Transportation Safety Board investigation on May 10 when a twin-engine Piper Aztec flown by William J. Coleman went down while trying to land at Cleveland.

Coleman was killed in the post-impact crash. His 15-year-old son, the only other person aboard, survived, but was seriously injured.

The crash site was near the airport and the plane's landing gear reportedly was being monitored on radar, the board said. But radar controllers did not notice the plane's disappearance and the crash was not discovered until almost five hours later, when Coleman's son struggled to the ground.

Safety board investigators said it was impossible to determine why the plane descended too soon and hit the ground almost four miles short of the runway. The board said the evidence "suggests that the pilot... was asleep."

It said Coleman was cleared by one ground controller to start his landing approach and was told to contact the airport local controller on another frequency, but did not do so.

The plane was "handed off" from the approach controller's radar screen to the local controller's screen by automatic computer equipment. The local controller did not see the plane on his screen, although it should have showed up there for two or three minutes before it crashed.

"It must be concluded that the local controller was not monitoring the (radar) display effectively and that, instead, he relied on the pilot's call... to alert him to his control responsibilities," the board said.

The Federal Aviation Administration tightened the radar monitoring rules for local controllers four days after the crash, the board said. But it said all controllers should study the events of the Cleveland crash and make sure they do not rely on automatic equipment when there is no need to do so.

Should he try for a club slam? He decided instead to play spades unless George wanted to take him out of a spade contract. Hence, his four-spade bid that ended the auction.

Ben ruffed the second heart, promptly cashed the top spades and went after clubs. West scored two spade tricks, but Ben scored 620.

The other South also played in four spades, but tried a spade finesse. It wound up down one when West took his queen and continued hearts.

SV reports master plan

SUN VALLEY — Sun Valley Co. has released a master plan to the U.S. Forest Service listing all future development plans on Bald Mountain.

The anticipated development will come in three basic areas — Cold Springs, Frenchman's Gulch and west of the present Warm Springs runs.

There are now 670 acres of developable runs on the mountain, according to Burch Harper, assistant ranger of the Ketchum district. If Sun Valley Co. fully completes the development plan, an additional 450 acres will be added, most of that in intermediate skiing.

Tom Farr, Ketchum ranger, said, "Our push for several years has been, 'let's get more intermediate terrain up there.'"

Bald Mountain is known as an expert hill for experienced skiers, he said, with little skiing for the person who has skied only a short time.

Sun Valley Co.'s immediate plans call for improvements to the mountain restaurants and the replacement of the Exhibition Ski Lift. Harper said Sun Valley has been given just one more year to operate Exhibition before it has to be replaced or improved.

Presently, the company estimates 6,033 as the maximum number of skiers at one time on the available acreage. The additional 451 acres of development will increase that number to 9,270.

If the development plan is followed through an additional ten lifts are anticipated to be installed on Bald Mountain. There are over 60 separate locations on the mountain that will be developed for new ski runs or improvements to existing runs and 11 new development lanes for transportation.

The Sun Valley report is a draft and not a final development plan, Harper explained.

The development listed is very conceptual, he said.

Another federal agency will be involved in the development before approval is given in Cold Springs, Harper said. Over half of the proposed development in the Cold Springs area is on Bureau of Land Management property.

Harper said the forest service will manage the recreational resources on Bureau of Land Management land, but all development proposals must pass through and be accepted by the BLM.

Bellevue people satisfied

Bellevue eyes problems

Regular city council meetings are well attended only when there is some controversy, he said "or whenever they want something."

"We have to live by the charter," Johnson continued, "It spells out exactly what we can and can't do."

Bellevue is the last chartered city in the state. Discussion spread to subdivision encroachment in and around the city. Although there is speculation for land development nearby, residents at the Friday night meeting seemed little concerned.

When asked if Bellevue would end up much like Ketchum, which in recent years has experienced heavy growth and constant demand on services, some of the audience said "no."

"Bellevue has some zoning here now," one person said, "That is something Ketchum did not have before their development."

A majority of the discussion during the two-day program centered on old and historic buildings that line Main Street and those scattered throughout the townsite. The most interesting revolved around the restoration of the buildings constructed before the turn of the century.

Arthur Hart, Idaho State Historical Society

director, suggested the city start a historical district. He said matching funds are available from federal agencies that will allow exact restoration of the old landmarks.

Certain segments of the town and its buildings would be marked for inclusion in the district, he said, which would protect the heritage of past ages.

Idaho Heritage Magazine Editor Alan Minskoff said the purpose of the tour is not so much the problems surrounding small towns as the background and makeup of the people living in them.

Bellevue has been the quietest group of people, he said, of any on the tour. The program has been taken to Idaho City, New Plymouth, Bruneau, Grand View and Oakley. The group will move on to Mackay, Lava Hot Springs, Paris, Victor, Elk River, Juliaetta, Hope, Rathdrum and Murray.

Idaho Heritage will print one issue of the magazine centered only on small towns and the people living in them.

The common element throughout the tour, Minskoff said, is the concern for gradual change. Small-town folk also like a familiarity with each other and the continuity of the town they live in.

MV farmers meet with top officials

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley farmers had no chance Friday afternoon to air their questions and, in some cases, gripes before top government officials.

The officials included deputy secretary from the U.S. Department of Agriculture and U.S. Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.

The farmers attended a Magic Valley Agricultural Symposium hosted by McClure at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium where he brought new programs and legislation before local farmers to allow them to question directly the officials involved.

Dale Sherwin, USDA deputy assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs and special guest at the symposium, explained recent trade policy decisions and their impact specifically to export sales of grain to the Soviet Union.

During the question and answer period, he defended government export policy and government action on the Sugar Act and termed it highly unlikely that the federal government would ever transfer ownership of federal lands to the states.

Also a subject of attention was government interference in the free market system. Many local farmers bemoaned federal intervention in market situations, especially in grain sales, sugar beet subsidies and in the sheep industry.

Bill Matthews, state director of the Bureau of Land Management, discussed the conversion of rangeland to farmland under the Carey Act and the Desert Entry Act.

He said that the lands under application present a special problem because there are far more acres of land under file than are irrigable with existing water supplies.

A five-year site-specific plan on environmental impact has been formulated, according to Matthews, and will be presented to the state advisory board in June.

Matthews said that the BLM wants to declare a moratorium on filing for rangeland. The bureau wants to "clean up" the old cases on record.

During the question period, C. J. Boss, president of the Magic Valley Cattlemen Association, asked Sen. McClure to read a resolution passed by the Cattlemen's association which charges the BLM with poor management of public lands. The resolution asked that public lands be placed under state control.

Matthews answered that such a transfer of land was up to Congress.

And McClure said that it was unlikely that such a transfer would take place. "And even if it was considered there would probably be a division even among Idahoans," he said.

"If we are to maximize agricultural development, it will be with water, we will have to increase our storage capacity for water which is wasted during the winter."

Lloyd Brown, program specialist for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), enumerated the changes in the functions of his department.

He said the emphasis of recent ASCS programs is on marketing of produce and not production for storage.

Brown also mentioned that the ASCS 700 program pays about $20,000 annually to beekeepers who have lost bees to pesticide applications.

Halle Cox, director of range management for the U.S. Forest Service, said that long-range plans for range management include an increase of cattle grazing on forest lands; improvement of management of ranges and more restoration work.

Richard Jackson, area director for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), revealed that new legislation affecting farmers who employ laborers will go into effect June 7.

CSI academic dean to resign

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho's academic dean, John Terry Smith, announced Friday he is resigning his position this summer after eight years of service.

Smith said his resignation would be effective June 30, the end of this contract year. He had no comments as to why he was resigning or what his plans would be in the future.

Dr. James L. Taylor, president of CSI, said Friday, although he had received no official notice of Smith's resignation yet, "We regret this, we think he has done a good job with us."

Taylor added, "We wish him well in whatever endeavor he might undertake."

As academic dean, Smith provided leadership for the academic instructional programs.

Taylor said he did not at this time have anyone specific in mind to replace Smith, but he said he keeps a log of capable people for every position should a vacancy arise.

"I will advertise the job if I feel that I need to advertise it," he said. Otherwise he said he would be looking at people both at CSI and other institutions that he is already familiar with.

"I would consider a woman if I thought there was a capable woman around."

As for himself, Taylor said he would be back on the job next year and did not expect vacancies in any other key positions at the college.

Jerome area civic clubs protest no hospital news

JEROME — A decision to discontinue the release of hospital news by the directors of St. Benedict's Hospital has brought protests from area civic clubs.

An effective Feb. 1 of this year, St. Benedict's discontinued the practice of releasing to the news media hospital admissions, discharges and birth announcements. According to a letter from the hospital, the information is no longer released "solely to insure full patient privacy."

The hospital's board of directors and administrators have received a number of letters from individuals and civic groups asking the hospital to reconsider its position and begin releasing the news.

A letter signed by members from the Barriviere Civic Club voiced the same opinion most of the clubs have written. They asked for the news to be kept "back in the paper because 'Many of us appreciate hearing from our friends and neighbors while we are laid up and feel that the knowledge of others caring quickens our recovery.'

All of the letters noted the release of the names should be within the description of the patients to whether or not his or her name should be released.

Appleton Club members questioned whether or not the patient's morale had been considered, noting "most people would feel forgotten and depressed if they had a hospital stay and no one, or only a few, took notice of it."

A petition with 17 signatures was sent to the hospital by the Hi-Land Sewing Club and all members of the Jerome Grange signed a letter of protest and members of Syringa Rebekah Lodge No. 110.

Connie Raugust, president of the Barrymore Club, said she has received a letter from the hospital which states the hospital ran a poll for 90 days asking patients whether or not they wanted their names released to the press. Of those polled, over 90 per cent did not want their names in the paper.

Also, according to the letter from the hospital to the club, several incidents also "motivated" the hospital to withdraw the names. The letter listed three — an 81-year-old patient was admitted and on dismissal she was listed with a newborn infant; a young single patient was admitted for minor surgery and was listed as also having left with a newborn infant, and the third incident involved a woman who had been admitted to the hospital. The news was released, and was dismissed five days later to find her home had been consaneked.

According to the letter, in these incidents permission was given by the patients for their names to appear in the news media. After the mistakes the newspaper personnel indicated it could not have been a misprint, that the data was given them incorrectly.

"But who will be sued in the advent of legal action? You may be sure it will be the hospital and not the paper," the letter said.

Mrs. Raugust said she could see the hospital's position in the matter. She noted the letter would be presented to the hospital members at the next regular meeting and further action, if any, would be up to the members.

Jerome teacher loses bid for reinstatement

JEROME — A Jerome teacher's attempt to get the Idaho Supreme Court to order him rehired has failed.

However the court will allow him to proceed in an attempt to recover damages for being called "ineffective."

The teacher, Orrin M. Gardner, claimed he was improperly forced to resign his teaching job at the Jerome Junior High in 1971. In addition he claimed that Supl. John B. Campbell made "false, defamatory and slanderous" statements about him.

Gardner claimed that his resignation was forced by Campbell, who said he resigned without consulting an attorney. He later asked to be allowed to withdraw his resignation and be rehired.

School board officials declined to rehire Gardner who then took the matter to court. He used for reinstatement and $141,400 damages, charging that he had suffered general and punitive damages in that amount.

Fifth District Judge Theron Ward decided against Gardner who then appealed to the supreme court.

In their unanimous opinion Thursday the court upheld Judge Ward's ruling on the rehiring of Gardner. The high court said that his lawsuit and the papers filed with it did not give rise to any legal basis for his being rehired.

The court did not agree with Judge Ward that Gardner's suit for defamation against the school board and Supl. Campbell should be dismissed. Instead the court ruled that Judge Ward must allow Gardner to try to present proof of the defamatory statement he claims was made and sent the case back for further proceedings.

Wendell citizens protest storage structure plans

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

WENDELL — Ten citizens appeared at the Wendell City Council Thursday night to protest city plans to construct a new storage building in their neighborhood.

The group had attended a planning and zoning commission meeting earlier in the evening, held at the request of the city to change the zoning designation in the north half of block 48 from residential to industrial.

The planning group has not yet given its recommendation to the city, but the citizens all oppose the proposed construction. Spokesmen Jim Benson and Jim Eaton suggested that instead of enlarging the present shop facilities the city should build an other city-owned property in the southwest part of town.

Mayor Otto Lemke and councilmen agreed to investigate the feasibility of building in the southwestern part of town, even though this location would prove more costly, according to Gwen Collier, city clerk.

Shg said extra costs will be incurred because water and sewer lines will have to be extended. Councilmen have budgeted funds gained from the sale of some city lots last fall for the new shop building.

Mayor Lemke asks all residents to cooperate in the cleanup day Friday. Benson said his PFA class will participate as they did last year. Business men are asked to provide pickups and drivers and be at the high school at 9 a.m. Friday.

Dave Slusher and Arlon Dennis were appointed to the city planning and zoning commission. Bob Renall was named recreation director again this summer.

Bob Thackeray, park-board member, announced Wendell will host the Little League baseball tournament July 15-18 at McGinnis park. Plans are under way to get a concession stand built, he said.

Ten members of Renell's high school government class attended the council meeting to observe city government in action.

Pageant set.

GLENN'S FERRY — A musical presentation, "Our Country 'tis of Thee," a bicentennial musical pageant, will be given on Wednesday in the high school gym at 7 p.m.

No admission will be charged and the public is invited to attend.

According to Mrs. Paul Shrum, the pageant will feature the music of the past 200 years in chronological order and will be performed by elementary grades 1 through 5 and the junior high school chorus.

Musical kits will also be part of the program.

Patents delay pesticide progress

MOSCOW (UPI) — A University of Idaho College of Agriculture professor told the Bean Commission a slow down in issuing patents is discouraging the development of new pesticides.

Dr. Raymond Miller, director of research for the University College of Agriculture, at the same meeting—told—the commissioners Idaho needs an integrated research and extension program for dry beans.

Miller said, "The large chemical companies are becoming more and more reticent to go through the costly process of developing and registering new pesticides unless it is for a major crop."

Gettins also said it costs from $5 million to $8 million to perform the necessary testing of pesticides in order to have it registered with the Environmental Protection Agency.

"Then the patent runs out and the company has not gotten its investment back. The situation is beginning to improve and a speed-up of registrations appears to be coming."

"All of a sudden, there seems to be some recognition that this is a real problem that we need to do something about and finally, some money is becoming available. The next order of business is to get some priorities established in order to get needed pesticides registered."

Miller presented a general overview of program needs for both long and short-term projects. The commission is being asked for $23,800 to cover the cost of some of the programs.

"The continuing investment by the Idaho Bean Commission into research and extension is needed to help the Idaho bean industry to maintain its unique and important position in the nation and the world," he said.

An integrated program would overcome key problems limiting bean quality and production, he said. Such a program involves solving problems with a combination of different approaches, using the latest tools and information.

"Experience has shown that such an integrated program solves more difficult problems more quickly than relying solely on one approach."

Projects he proposed included, continued, research efforts on bean breeding, pathology, weed control in bean fields, symbiotic nitrogen fixation, studies of sediment in runoff water from irrigated crops and studies on insect pest problems.

reviewed by the bean commission at its meetings in May and June.

Feeding world farmer's challenge

By SHANE O'NEILL

Times-News writer

BLACKFOOT — Feeding the world's growing population is going to be a nip-and-tuck challenge for the farmer, according to DeVon Woodland, a national vice-president of the National Farmers Organization.

The Blackfoot farmer, says the American farmer "has greater ability than any corporation, conglomerate or cartel."

"If he can't do it, we're in real trouble," Woodland said, "because nobody else can. He's the best the world's got."

Woodland pointed to the relationship with the soil, saying the man on the family-size farm works long hours and will live with his cattle and hogs if he has to.

"That doesn't happen in absentee ownership very often," Woodland said.

Woodland cited the figures from two world food conferences to emphasize the problem. In 1962, the conference reported a 95-day supply of food of the world, in 1974 that supply had been reduced to 26 days.

"In this country we have a 3-4 day supply of raw milk," Woodland said, "and 5-6 days of red meat" if slaughtering and processing stopped.

Woodland noted efforts among governments and nutrition experts to "get people off protein through meat and onto cereal for protein." He said it started 45 years ago with the argument "you can't feed the world and have a population of 4 billion on meat because it's uneconomical."

But experts say it can be done economically on corn flakes, he said.

"We're seeing a lot of emphasis on substitute-type agricultural products," Woodland pointed out, using vegetable proteins (primarily from soybeans) for such things as sausage, ham, bacon, milk and butter substitutes.

He predicted that trend will continue, but even these sources have their origins on the farm.

Another source discussed is the extensive use of kelp for a world food "may be years and years down the road and then would only be some assistance. That too would be a new form of agriculture."

"Agriculture must feed the world if it's going to get fed," Woodland said, "and it can't do it unless the farmer and rancher are in a position to protect themselves and create their own incentive."

Woodland said that most doubts about the new government meat grading system, which has boosted grass-fed beef to "choice." He said the action could create a major meat shortage.

He explained that most ranchers' cow-calf operations are based on cow units, with the calves sold off at feeder weight. The new grading encourages the farmer-rancher to hold that calf for another year and sell him for meat of 800-900 pounds.

Woodland said that would necessitate cutting the cow numbers.

"In 24 months we could find ourselves with a national problem as far as meat is concerned," he warned.

The action is part of the effort to get people off meat and onto grains. Woodland claimed, and is dangerous for the grain producer and the meat producer.

He said it was shortsighted to consider the immediate benefit. If meat consumption declines, the cow-calf man would be back in the same position he is today, without incentive to increase his herds and production.

The farm incentives, Woodland said, are poor now. He said the dairyman needs $10-11 per hundredweight and is getting 22-23.

The wheat farmer needs

$5.50 and is getting $3-$3.50.

The cattleman needs 45-48 cents and is operating on a 35-38-cent market.

"He can continue as long as inflated land values allow him to borrow and increase his mortgage on the farm," Woodland said, "but eventually he's going to have to deal with it, and then he's in real trouble."

Woodland said that food prices will be going higher, because the producer costs double and triple and farmers "can't continue to produce beyond what it costs them forever."

He predicted this will be a short-term fix because 40 per cent of the major crops in the nation are up this year and they'll get increases.

Industries will pass that cost on to the consumer.

"Farmers, the largest consumer of industrial goods in the world and particularly this country, have to absorb that cost or pass it on," Woodland said. "They've not been able to pass them on and are in a very weakened condition as far as absorbing them."

They have to get in such a position, Woodland said, if they are to have incentive to continue.

"There's no question but what the American farmer is the envy of the world," Woodland said. "He can provide for this country and many countries abroad, but he must have the incentive or there will be a natural inclination to cut back. He's not going to continue to produce unless he has some type of reward for what he does."

Woodland predicted, "The farmer and rancher eventually will unite themselves sufficiently to gain strength enough to protect themselves in the market."

He admitted farmers are an independent class of people, but said they will work together out of necessity.

"We're finding out that there's much more interest in a group action type of program than there used to be," he said.

"A few years ago they resisted group action and organized effort by farmers. That's history now; they recognize everybody else they deal with is an organized group and they themselves have to become involved in group action."

That is the prime purpose of the drive to control 90 per cent of each raw commodity in an effort to determine market prices," Woodland admitted many farmers still question the NFO way to accomplish the goals, but said they don't question the goals anymore.

"They believe they should have the right to determine the price of their product," he said. "We're seeing a lot of young people get back into agriculture now, which is encouraging. A lot of second generation farmers have grown up with group action and accept it more readily."

Woodland said efforts are being made by other interests to gain control of the food and fiber plant. Distribution is controlled 60-70 per cent by major chain stores and processing is organized, leaving production the only independent entity.

"We think it's vitally important that production stay in the hands of the farmer-rancher as an independent entity," Woodland said.

Ballet Folk plays at Filer

FILER — "Idaho's Growth — Its Affect in Human Values" is the subject of a special ballet performance by the Ballet Folk Company to be followed by a discussion by a panel of academic humanists with open audience participation.

The program scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the Filer High School Auditorium is offered free of charge to the public by means of a grant from Association for Humanities in Idaho and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Ballet Folk, Idaho's professional Ballet Company tours the state and region with a full and varied repertoire of classic and contemporary ballets.

"This is somewhat of an experimental program for us," explains Ballet Folk director, Carl Petrick. "It is the first time we have created a ballet especially for a topical theme like 'Idaho's Growth' and the first time we have combined the arts and humanities in one program."

The Ballet Folk Humanities Program is being sponsored by the Twin Falls American Association of University Women and the Filer Bicentennial Committee. For more information contact: Mitiga Fisher in Filer High School.

Man exercises by digging for cannon, old bones

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — Three days a week, 62-year-old Toward England takes his shovel, goes out to old Fort Zachary Taylor and tries to dig up another Civil War cannon.

England has found 18 cannons so far, but says he still has 180 to go.

Instead of a cannon, England sometimes finds a brass button, a mini ball, a clay pipe or a fragment of china. Occasionally he finds a scrap of bone from a slave or a pebbles Indian and several times he has found potentially dangerous Civil War shells with its charge still active.

Since 1968, the retired naval architect-historian has made Fort Taylor his personal labor of love. At first he worked only on weekends, but after retiring three years ago from the now-deactivated Key West Naval Base, he began digging three days a week at the fort.

So far, England has spent 9,000 hours on the project and $400 for tools. His only help is from volunteers, who currently include 10 sailors assigned to the nearby Boca Chica Naval Air Station.

At his present rate, England figures it will take him 11 more years to complete the job. But if all goes well, Florida may get title to Fort Taylor this year from the federal General Services Administration. Then England may get some excavating machinery and complete the job in two or three years.

Fort Taylor was one of a chain of forts begun during the Mexican War to protect America's Atlantic and Gulf Coasts. Stephen Mallory, first a U.S. Senator from Florida and later navy secretary of the Confederacy, loaned some of his slaves to work on it.

The old 1844 model Columbiad cannon and more modern Rodman and Parrot guns commanded all of Key West from the fort, which then was 1,200 feet off shore and connected to the southwest tip of the island by a causeway.

Mallory was so impressed with the fort and its armament that he dissuaded Jefferson Davis from ordering it attacked. Thus Key West became the only city in the Confederacy to remain in Union hands throughout the Civil War.

At the time of the Spanish-American War in 1898, Fort Taylor was modernized and 12-inch coast defense rifles replaced the Civil War muzzle-loading cannons. Because the second floor casemates interfered with the trajectory of the new guns, it was ordered removed and the lower rooms filled in.

That's how England's cannons and the bones got there.

The cannons were dumped into the rooms and a contractor was hired to haul in sand and earth to fill the rooms. Unbeknown to the Army, which then controlled the fort, the contractor dug up sand from a cemetery that had been destroyed by a hurricane in 1846. The bodies in the marked graves in the cemetery were moved after the hurricanes, but the bodies of slaves had been buried in unmarked graves and their bones became part of the Fort Taylor fill.

When the fort's commander learned where the contractor was getting his sand, he ordered him to find another source. So the contractor went to nearby Boca Chico and scooped away earth from an Indian burial mound some 3,000 to 4,000 years old, and its bone fragments also found their way into Fort Taylor along with some Indian tools fashioned from conch shells.

England became interested in Fort Taylor when a woman wrote to a Miami newspaper (the Miami Herald) in 1968 asking why old Fort Jefferson on Dry Tortugas, 78 miles away, was a national monument but Fort Taylor, used in the Mexican, Civil, and Spanish-American Wars as well as World Wars I and II, was nothing more than an unmarked mound of earth.

England, a Key West native, got permission from Rear Adm. Francis Bruus, to begin his excavations that year.

He tried to interest the National Park Service in the project and Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., introduced a bill in Congress to make the fort a national monument. But Park Service Director Ronald Walker replied two years ago that all the money it had was needed for "exciting" parks and monuments and the Interior Department wasn't interested in Fort Taylor.

The Navy got title to the fort in 1947 and filled in the last of the water separating it from Key West. When the Key West Navy Base was deactivated three years ago, the fort was handed over to the General Services Administration.

Diplomats tested for radiation ills

MOSCOW (UPI) — A U.S. medical expert is taking blood samples from American diplomats and their families to check for possible illnesses associated with radiation, embassy sources said Friday.

They said so far no relation has been found between any medical problems and the radiation situation.

Officials said last February radiation had been detected at the 10-story embassy and reports said it could stem from microwaves beamed at the building by Soviet secret police to bug conversations or knock out antimonitoring devices. Other reports suggested the radiation came from the embassy's own electronic equipment.

Officials said there was "no significant danger" from radiation in those parts of the embassy accessible to American staffers and visitors below diplomatic rank, but refused to comment when asked if this meant there were dangers in more secure parts of the embassy.

A medical technician flew in to review health records and begin medical checks. The embassy reportedly is continuing to make its own checks on the radiation level.

The sources said Friday officials believe radiation is still a problem and the medical hasn't been giving blood tests to all embassy employees and their families, whether or not they live in the embassy compound. The results are being sent to Washington for analysis.

The sources added that no American staff or embassy personnel had asked for a transfer since the radiation issue emerged.

Talks have been taking place between American and Soviet officials in Washington about the situation. Officials at the Moscow embassy still want the problem eliminated, the sources said.

Another recent embassy problem—harassment—has dropped off this week, the sources said.

In recent weeks, diplomats have been subjected to telephone calls, letters, close surveillance and street confrontations in which they have been threatened over Zionist attacks against Soviet officials in New York.

Ecuador talk given by exchange student

TWIN FALLS — The MSMS Club met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Willard Nelson with Mrs. Irvin Hodenak as co-hostess. New officers for next year are: president, Cora Bodensat; vice president, Cheri McAllister; secretary, Mary Lou Frazier; treasurer, Rosie Requa, and auditor, Nellie Black.

The names of new members were presented and accepted. They are Jane Bybee, Rhea Smith and Genevieve Swan.

Discussion on Idaho education — past and present was led by Cheri McAllister. The Mothers' Day Luncheon was planned for May 19 at the Golden Griddle Restaurant. Reservations are in charge of Nellie Black and Frances Mothershead.

Eleanor Burkhardt, program chairman, presented Chabela Bernudez Cornejo, an exchange student from Ecuador. Miss Cornejo gave a talk about Ecuador and showed and explained pictures of her country.

Shoshone to cut mail service

SHOSHONE—Beginning Monday, mail service hours will be reduced in the Post Office in Shoshone, according to William Haux, postmaster.

Decision to cut hours was not made on a local basis, Haux explained, but "this office will have to comply with the decision."

Outgoing mail on any given day must be in the post office by 4:30 p.m. in order to be processed that same day.

Haux asks that mail for areas other than Shoshone be deposited in the outside box on Saturdays, since the new working schedule will not allow time for processing.

Local mail may still be mailed inside the post office on Saturdays and postal parcel service is being discontinued on Saturday.

The lobby will be open at 7:15 a.m. and close 7:30 p.m. on weekdays while the Saturday hours will remain the same. The Sunday and holidays lobby hours will be 8:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m.

The service lobby will be open the same as in the past, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., five days a week.

Executives hit inaccurate views

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade executives, taking issue with comments made at a meeting of the River-Of-No-Return Wilderness Council, said the corporation's views on classification of primitive area were inaccurately presented.

Samuel R. Donaldson, manager of communications for Boise Cascade, said comments by Ted Trustbald and Ernie Day at the council meeting "were not completely or accurately representing Boise Cascade's views" on the need for studies of portions of the Salmon River Breaks and Idaho Primitive areas.

Donaldson said the company's views are more accurately presented in a speech by John Fery, Boise Cascade president, made April 19 before the Intermountain Logging Conference.

"Because of the indisputable wilderness character, encompassing fragile alpine terrain and a major river system, and their insignificant value as a source of timber, we believe approximately 600,000 acres, or 50 percent, of the two existing primitive areas should be legislatively set aside as the Idaho Wilderness Area."

"The remaining 800,000 acres we believe are of questionable wilderness character and contain a supply of timber which could help ease the wood shortage which is projected to occur within the next few decades."

"Therefore, we've suggested that this acreage undergo a truly-comprehensive government study prior to altering its classification."

"The study should determine what the relative values of the area are and whether forest management activities could be carried on there without undue disturbance to natural and recreational values."

"If the study demonstrated that environmental values were higher, that forest management activities would be excessively disruptive and that timber from the area would not be needed to meet future demand, we would expect that area to be classified as Wilderness."

"In the meantime, throughout the study, no timber harvesting would occur in the area."

"In our view, the controversy over these primitive areas is an matter of honest disagreement. We feel that a thorough study of the land involved would shed light on the facts and, ultimately, would serve the public's best interests."

"For a nation concerned about maintaining its quality of life — both economic and environmental — what could be more reasonable than to keep our options open until all the facts are in?"

Not about to retire

WEARING A FRESH carnation in the lapel of his working jacket, George Zervas, who was 101 Saturday, isn't about to retire from his job at a Chicago supermarket where he puts in a full day's work. Zervas, who may be the oldest full-time working man in the area and possibly in the country, is termed an all-around guy at the supermarket. He also handles the sidewalk watermelon sales and "loses them around like they were grapefruit," his employer says. (UPI)

Harbor seal in no hurry

ROCKFORD, Maine (UPI) — A local resident who spends his summers in Rockport and his winters in Boston seems in no hurry to return this year.

Andre, the harbor seal, still was lolling off the coast Thursday.

Andre has been spending his winters at the New England Aquarium in Boston the past three years, swimming back to Rockport for the summer, usually in three or four days.

He left Marblehead, Mass., a week and a half ago and although he has been spotted within 20 miles of Rockport, his trainer Harry Goodridge said he has not returned to Rockport Harbor.

Andre was spotted Thursday morning snoozing in a small boat moored off Deer Isle but a few hours later Goodridge said the seal had disappeared again.

Salt domes to provide oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Millions of barrels of crude oil stored in ancient salt domes along the Gulf Coast soon will form America's first hedge against a possible new oil embargo.

Some of the oil to be stored in the hollowed-out domes will come from domestic supplies, but some of it will come from the very nations that imposed the 1973 embargo and hold the power to declare a new one.

Federal Energy Administration chief Frank Zarb said Thursday the Gulf Coast storage plan to be carried out over the next three years, is the first step in a program ordered last year by Congress to defuse the embargo threat by creating a U.S. strategic reserve of up to a billion barrels of oil by 1982.

At least 150 million barrels will be stored in the first phase of the plan, FEA officials said. They said the salt domes for the first five or 10 sites probably will be on the coasts of Texas and Louisiana near existing pipelines and refineries.

"If we had had 150 million barrels of crude in domestic storage two years ago during the embargo, we could have replaced half the shortage we faced," Zarb said.

The domes the FEA is looking at are huge pillars of salt, from two to five miles across and up to 10 miles deep, which dige back 225 million years. They would be hollowed out with water and then filled with from 15 to 30 million barrels of oil each.

FEA experts believe there would be no leakage from the domes and little adverse environmental impact.

Zarb said the program could create a large enough stockpile within 10 years to offset a yearlong embargo.

The 1973 cutoff lasted 19 weeks, but Zarb said it "threw half a million Americans out of work and cost the economy a $3 billion loss in Gross National Product."

He told a news conference the threat of a new oil embargo is greater now than ever before, and America is relying more than ever on foreign oil.

Zarb said buying the initial salt-dome sites, and the first 50 million barrels of oil will cost $50 million, all of which still must be approved by Congress. He called it "the largest commitment of energy funds since the establishment of the Energy Research and Development Administration."

Cartoonist invents pre-sweated cowboy hat

Lincoln planning meeting scheduled

SHOSHONE — A meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Lincoln County courthouse, Shoshone, for the county planning commission.
Ray Nicholson, State Planning Commission member, and Jack Frostenson, president of the Camas County Planning Commission, will be present to discuss any questions and to help with further plans for the Lincoln County plan.

KERRVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — The lanky young man wearing western boots whacked his beat-up, stained felt hat against his thigh as he'd been working cattle all day.
"He'd sell you the hat off his head, but no self-respectin' cowboy would wear that hat." Ace Reid, inventor of the pre-sweated cowboy hat, said, indicating his salesman and "hat sweater."
Reid, 51, draws the "Cowpokes" cartoon strip which appears in 367 newspapers in the West and a "Cowpokes" calendar which adorns the walls of beer joints, feed stores and western clothing outlets.
He invented the pre-sweated hat during a visit to nearby Austin where he saw "hippies" wearing cowboy boots buying felt hats.
"They'd buy these $25 hats and take 'em outside and beat 'em up and stomp on 'em," Reid said, chuckling. "I invented the hat and one time when I was in Austin I picked up some hippies and showed 'em the hats."

"You know, they asked if we could sell 'em some shirts with sweat on 'em, too."
In his western-style pants and hat, black pointed-toe boots, and protruding stomach covering his belt buckle, Reid fills the stereotyped cowboy image. He started drawing cartoons in the Navy during World War II and now can "knock out" four or five of them in a day.
A popular after-dinner speaker, Reid's "Irons in the fire" include a bicentennial trail drive, movies a nonviolent Pony Express show and "Trail Drive - Rooster" about a chicken that stops a gunfight and sweat.
"That's why I invented sweat — if there's an easy way to figure it all out, I can do it," he said. "But I've been caught a little off-guard with this thing."
Two minutes of sweat on a felt hat will cost a drugstore cowboy $26.
Reid buys the hats from a Houston manufacturer and hired an employee to "sweat" them. Occasionally the "sweater" stands in the rain to make the hats floppy and worn looking.

The two-part formula — partly poured from a plastic squeeze bottle around the brim of the hat which is then dusted with a powder — is Reid's secret.

"One outfit in Fort Worth tried to buy the process. There's an actual market for sweat. I came up with selling sweat and damn if it don't sell," he said.

Miss Harvey selected as Rotary delegate

TWIN FALLS — Margaret "Meg" Harvey, daughter of Bob Harvey, Twin Falls, has been selected as the representative of the Pocatello Rotary Club in the district 543 competition for Rotary Foundation Awards for International Understanding.

Miss Harvey was named delegate in competition with five Idaho State University finalists. She is a sophomore dental hygiene major at Idaho State. Her application has been sent to the district 543 governor in Salt Lake City for judging with other entrants from Utah and southern Idaho.

Miss Harvey is interested in studying in Spain. Rotary Foundation awards involve people going abroad to study, to absorb, to learn, to communicate with special emphasis on working with Rotarians in the task of better understanding among people of different nations. In essence, to act as ambassadors of goodwill between two countries. She would be required to speak at service clubs and other organizations while studying in a foreign country, and to make similar presentations to local clubs upon her return from study abroad.

Miss Harvey is active in student affairs at Idaho State. Listed in Who's Who in American Universities, participates in intramural sports and has been selected as a resident assistant at Turner House for the next academic year. She is a 1974 graduate of Twin Falls High School.

Vital services offered by course

RUPERT — Health occupation courses, new at Minico and Burley high schools this year, offer a vital service to both students and the medical field, a nurse instructor said Thursday.

Carol Cheney, instructor at Minico High School, told the Rupert Chamber of Commerce that "most areas are crying for workers."

She said there are 200 cataloged jobs in the medical fields now, some requiring only a few months training.

The health occupations course in Idaho is only six years old, the first ones being offered in Boise and Caldwell.

Burley and Minico were among five high schools to install the courses this year. Minico Senior Sylvia Abrego won the gold medal in nurses aide and assistant competition at the state level.

Mrs. Cheney said the course is designed to meet the industrial demands over a wide range of medical fields. She said many students can find jobs in that field "without a great deal of college."

The Minico course has one boy and seven girls this year. In a morning session of three hours, they study anatomy and physiology at the school limit the sessions to 12 students, but an afternoon session could be developed if the demand is there next year.

The course starts with nine weeks of classroom study and training. The students then go into actual practice at hospitals and with health professionals.

She thanked the professionals for helping student training by allowing them to observe and participate. Among those cited were optometrists, physicians, veterinarians, hospitals and laboratories and the ambulance services.

Extension agent issues warning

RUPERT — Chemical purchases made by telephone may not be the type needed by the farmer, Ed Gage, Minidoka agricultural extension agent, warned this week.

Gage said he has received several calls about the sale of agricultural chemicals over the phone.

Gage urged that farmers request a label be sent so they will know what they are buying.

If it is an honest company representing a good product, Gage said, "they should be happy to send a label to you and answer all or any questions you might have."

Chemicals usually are legally registered in the state, but they may be intended for non-chemical use.

He said the labels usually recommend straight product application, rather than diluting with water.

Study reveals drug use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six of every 10 inmates of state prisons have at some point used drugs illicitly, according to the first report of an ongoing government study of prisoner drug use.

It found that 61 per cent of the 191,400 inmates of state correctional facilities acknowledged having at some period of their lives used such drugs as heroin, methadone, cocaine, marijuana, amphetamines or barbiturates without a doctor's prescription and outside of a drug treatment program.

Other findings: — Almost one-third of the inmates have at some time used drugs daily or almost daily.

One-fourth of all inmates said they were under the influence of drugs at the time of the offense which landed them behind bars.

A similar percentage said they had been drinking at the time of the offenses which resulted in imprisonment; and one-fifth of all inmates said they had been drinking heavily.

Before imprisonment, three of 10 inmates had tried heroin, and two of 10 had used it daily or almost daily; more than half had tried marijuana, and one-fourth had used it daily or almost daily.

The study was presented at a National Drug Abuse Conference last month in New York City and summarized for more than 200 delegates attending a National Issues and Strategies Symposium on the Drug Abuse Criminal Offender in nearby Reston, Va., this week.

The study acknowledges assistance from several government agencies including the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and the national prisoner statistics branch and crime statistics analysis staff of the Census Bureau.

Storage problem

THIS is the railroad box car that the Twin Falls School Board thought three years ago would solve the storage needs of the high school track team. It now stands in the northeast corner of the stadium field, door ajar, filled with chunks of rubber foam. According to Principal Frank Charlton, there is no lock made which will keep vandals out so the board is now selling the box car and will consider other forms of storage.

Princess still hospitalized

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Anne's doctor says she is making an excellent recovery from a horsetraining spill and there is nothing to stop her from resuming competition for this summer's Montreal Olympics.

Dr. Richard Bayliss, who is also Queen Elizabeth's personal physician, said Anne, who is recovering from a mild concussion, still had a headache.

He said she will be able to resume riding when the pain from her fall has ceased.

"There are no other medical reasons to prevent her resuming," he said Thursday. "A faint fracture crack in a bone of the main vertebra in the small of the back is of no consequence."

The 25-year-old Princess returned to London on a stretcher from Poole General Hospital, 110 miles to the southwest, where she was taken after her horse Candewick fell at a fence and rolled on her during a jumping competition Wednesday.

There was no word on when the Princess would leave King Edward VII hospital, where Bayliss is her chief.

Her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, who drove up from Poole with her, visited her again Thursday evening, Prince Charles, Anne's brother, also stopped by to see her.

Soon after Anne arrived at the London hospital, a stream of good wishes and flowers began to arrive, including fillets of the valley from her aunt, Princess Margaret.

Anne was named last week in a list of five contenders from which the four-member British equestrian Olympic team will be chosen. She was named with her horse Goodwill, on which she finished runnerup in last September's European championships in West Germany.

It had been said that to remain a contender for the team, Anne would have to compete again in the French eventing trials.

But Alison Oliver, her trainer, said the Princess's chances will not be affected by the accident.

Wednesday's spill was the worst of some half-dozen tumbles Anne has had in a decade of horse riding during. Her previous worst spill was during the 1973 European three-day championships.

'4' license plates to expire

BOISE — Idaho motorists with license plates on the staggered system ending in "4" displaying "1976" red and white stickers are reminded their license ends the last day of April.

The licenses must be renewed. Black on white "76" validation stickers may be acquired at the county assessor's office in the county of residence and motorists are reminded a new license-plate fee schedule went into effect April 1.

Idahoans who own and operate passenger cars and pickups are still required by law to continuously have automobile liability insurance.

Applicants must certify the existence of automobile liability insurance covering the motor vehicle.

The Idaho Department of Law Enforcement may immediately cancel the license plate of the vehicle upon notification that the insurance certification was not correctly represented.

Travel trailers, motorhomes, truck campers, camping trailers and van conversions must also be licensed and display a recreational vehicle sticker in addition to any valid license plate needed for the vehicle.

Iowa terms sunflower 'noxious'

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Iowa declared the state flower of Kansas — the sunflower — a noxious weed.

Now Kansas is considering declaring the Iowa state bird an "obscene" public nuisance.

The Iowa Senate recently voted to include the Kansas state flower on a list of secondary noxious weeds which warrant eradication by the Iowa Conservation Commission.

Iowa farmers have complained the tall sunflower often blocks sunlight from corn and soybean fields and disrupts planting.

Kansas House Speaker Duane S. "Pete" McGill then proposed the anti-goldfinch resolution and promised action on it before the 1976 session adjourns this week.

Nets out Spurs from playoff

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — The New York Nets, hanging on the edge of playoff elimination, got nine points from Brian Taylor in a 24-minute span down the stretch Saturday night as they eluded their way to a 121-114 victory over the San Antonio Spurs and a berth in the American Basketball Association finals.

former Net Larry Kennan clipped in 21. The game was played before the Nets' first home sellout crowd in two years, 15,341. More than a thousand fans were turned away for this crucial game after barely 5,000 showed up for the second game of the series.

Pocatello duo leads TF golf tourney

Frank Bente and Steve Beebe of Pocatello will carry a tight one-stroke lead over the final day of the Twin Falls' two-man best ball tournament Sunday.

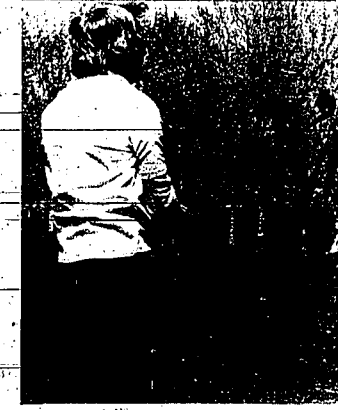

Bente and Beebe turned the 64-par course to a 62 to finish a one-stroke lead over Twin Falls' Jim Purves and Jack Hamer.

The two-day tournament ends about 6 p.m. Sunday with the front-runners teeing off at 1:20 p.m.

Minico football coach resigns

HUPERT — Dennis Hansen, head football coach at Minico High School, resigned that position Friday unexpectedly. Hansen's future plans were not known although he reportedly had lined up an interview for another position next week.

The Nets will begin their quest for their second championship in three years Wednesday at Denver before returning to New York on Sunday. The Nuggets hold a 2-1 lead in the series.

Two American track marks broken in Drake relays

DES MOINES (UPI) — Olympian Mike Bolt and his Eastern New Mexico teammates continued their strong showing at the Drake Relays Saturday and added two more victories to their already impressive string of triumphs.

Bolt and company provided much of the interest in the rainy wrap-up of the 67th annual spring event. Despite the foul weather and a slippery track, two American records were broken, one was tied and two Drake marks fell, one of them broken by Harvey Glance of Auburn, Iowa, co-holder of the world record in the 100-meter dash.

Eastern New Mexico won the college distance and sprint medley relays Saturday, with Bolt winning the anchor legs in both races. Bolt, a native of Kenya, won the special 800 meters in record time Friday and was the likely choice as the meet's outstanding performer to be announced Monday.

Eastern won the distance medley in 9:40.26 and took the sprint medley in 3:22.78. It was the Grayhounds' fourth straight victory at Drake in the distance medley and second straight in the sprint medley.

Bolt, the bronze medal winner in the 800 meters at the 1972 Olympics, ran a 3:02.6 anchor mile in the first race and a 1:59.9 half-mile in the second. He was pulling away at the end in both races.

The American records were established in the women's 5,000 meters and high school 10,000 meters and tied in the women's 880-yard medley relay.

Peg Neppel of Iowa State raced to the record in the 5,000 meters, finishing in 16:28.38. The previous mark was 16:38.0 by Julie Brown of Los Angeles in 1974.

There was some confusion as to whether Brown's mark was actually the record, but relays officials confirmed it about 30 minutes after the race.

Randy Chapa of Hammond, Ind., set a high school record in the 10,000 meters with a time of 28:32.64. Eric Hulst of Laguna Beach, Calif., set the old record of 28:54.8 earlier this year.

Chapa, who qualified for the U.S. Olympic trials, also bettered the national interscholastic mark for six miles, covering that distance in 27:38.4. He finished fifth in the 10,000 meters, which was won by Ed Mendoza of Arizona in 28:22.15.

over a strong field in 10.01 seconds. Charlie Greene of Nebraska held the old record of 10.1 seconds, set in 1967. Glance tied the world record of 9.9 seconds earlier this year.

Prattie View tied its own American record of 1:40.1 in winning the 880-yard medley relay for women and came back later in the day to win the women's one-mile relay.

The other Drake record broken was in the women's high jump. Julie White of Ontario cleared 6-1 to break the record of 6-7 set by Connie Dorsey of the Terre Haute, Ind., Track Club last year.

American record holder Françoise Larrieu of the Pacific Coast Track Club was the only Relays double winner.

Cummings nips Waigwa to take mile in Penn relays

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Former NCAA champion Paul Cummings, considered the United States' top Olympic prospect in the 1,500-meter run, held off Kenya's Wilson Waigwa in a torrid stretch run Saturday to win his specialty in the 82nd annual Penn Relays.

Waigwa, who attends the University of Texas-El Paso, entered the final lap 15 yards behind the pace-setting Cummings and dropped back another five yards on the backstretch. But the collegian caught the Brigham-Young graduate at the top of the final turn and the two matched strides to the finish line with Cummings inching forward at the tape.

Both men were clocked in a time of 3:38.9, which converts to about a 3:57.9 time for the mile.

Cummings was under the treatment of a doctor after the race suffering from a mild case of heat exhaustion, although the temperature was a pleasant 70 degrees under clear skies.

NCAA sprint champion Reggie Jones, who earlier anchored Tennessee's winning 400-meter relay team, came back to win the college 100-meter dash in a time of 10.2 seconds. Jones overtook runner-up Stan Harris of Florida midway through the race and won by three strides.

In the Olympic development 100-meter dash, Steve Williams, a co-holder of the world record in that event, trebled his victory in the wind-aided time of 10 seconds flat.

Mike Shine of Penn State led all the way to take the 110-meter high hurdles in a time of 1:6.6 seconds, one-tenth of a second faster than second-place Gary Burl of Arizona State.

Villanova, anchored by Mark Beliger, won the 3,200-meter relay in the time of 7:18 to take its third distance relay event of the two-day affair. Earlier, Irish Olympian Eamonn Coghlan, running his second 1,500-meter anchor leg in as many days, paced the Wildcats' 6,000-meter relay team to an easy victory.

Coghlan duelled with ICA4 cross-country champion Dave Merrick of Penn for about 200 meters before pulling away to cross the tape 50 yards ahead of Merrick and give the Wildcats their fourth consecutive victory in the relays.

Coghlan ran his split in the time of 3:42.5 to lead Villanova to a winning time of 15:33.

Colts sign Jones to long contract

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts Saturday announced the signing of quarterback Bert Jones to a multi-year contract.

Jones, who will start his fourth season in the National Football League this year, signed the contract Thursday in Houston but it was not announced until Saturday. Baltimore General Manager Joe Thomas refused to disclose details of the contract, but sources said it was probably for five years.

The 24-year-old Jones, a graduate of Louisiana State University, has started at quarterback for the Colts most of the past two years after beating out Marty Domres. He was the Colts number three draft pick in 1974.

Last year, he led the Colts to the greatest team turn-around in NFL history. The Colts rebounded from 2-12 in 1974 to 10-4 and the American Football Conference Eastern Division championship.

Jones completed 59 per cent of his passes last season, a Col record. He also set an NFL mark in the last game against the New York Jets by completing 17 consecutive passes.

Jones and his father, Dub, are the only father-son combination in the NFL record books. His father once scored six touchdowns in a single game while playing for the Cleveland Browns.

Last season, Jones completed 203 of 344 passes for 2,483 yards and 18 touchdowns.

Prepster sets record

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Rudy Chapa of Hammond, Ind., set a national high school record for the 10,000-meter run Saturday on the final day of the annual Drake Relays.

Chapa, who finished fifth in the race involving many of the nation's top amateurs, was clocked in 28:32.64, easily breaking the old prep record of 28:54.8 set by Eric Hulst of Laguna Beach, Calif., earlier this year.

Chapa, 18, a senior at Hammond High School, also broke the national prep mark for six miles, covering that distance in 27:38.4. The old mark of 27:58.0 also was set by Hulst earlier this year.

Chapa's time qualified him for the U.S. Olympic trials later this year.

"I feel the longer the distance, the stronger I get," Chapa said. "I'm not that quick as I'm not that good at shorter distances."

Ed Mendoza of Arizona won the 10,000-meter run in steady drizzle, in 28:23.15.

South Africa has Davis cup lead

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — South Africa's Frew Macmillan and Byron Bertrand staged a dramatic comeback Saturday to capture the American Zone Davis Cup doubles match and a 2-1 lead in the series.

The South Africans rallied to overcome a two-set lead built up by Chileans Jaime Filoli and Patricio Cornejo to win the next three sets and the match 3-6, 8-10, 6-2, 6-4, 3-1.

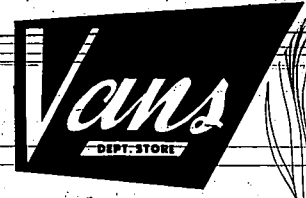

The series will be concluded Sunday, when the final two singles matches are played. South African Roy Moore will meet Patricio Cornejo and Bernie Milton will play Chile's Jaime Filoli in the final matches.

Hero of the day for the South Africans was Bertrand, who was making his first start in Davis Cup competition for his country. Bertrand started the first set visibly nervous but improved as the three-hour and one minute match progressed.

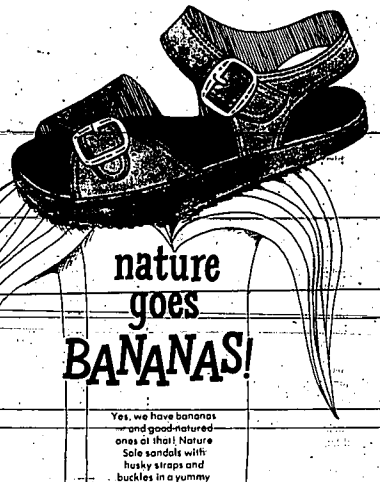

Macmillan, considered one of the world's best doubles players, said "the Chileans started well while this was the first time Bertrand and I had played together."

"We knew after we won that third set that our combination was more closely knit," Macmillan said. He believed South Africa had the edge for the final two singles matches on Sunday.

"Cornejo and Filoli played yesterday and today while we will have fresh players," the South African said.

Twins nip Orioles in 14th

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Danny Ford hit a sacrifice fly with the bases loaded in the 14th inning to score Luis Gomez Saturday and give the Minnesota Twins a 2-1 nationally televised victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

With one out in the 14th, Gomez, a defensive replacement, singled off loser Grant Jackson (0-1) and moved to third on Danny Thompson's double. Lyman Bostock was walked intentionally to load the bases and Ford came through with his sacrifice fly.

The winning pitcher was Bill Campbell, who worked 5 1/3 innings in relief of starter Bert Blyleven.

Minnesota scored in the first inning when Rod Carew singled, stole second and coasted home on a double by designated hitter Craig Klusick.

The bottom third of the Orioles' batting order tied it in the fourth. Brooks Robinson singled for his 2,800th career hit, moved to third on Dave Duncan's single and scored on another single by Mark Belanger.

Baltimore got singles from Al Bumbry and Paul Blair in the seventh but the threat died when Grich and Singleton struck out.

Twins manager Gene Mauch pulled Blyleven in the ninth after he issued a pair of walks, bringing his game total to a career high of eight.

Yankees edge Royals in 11th

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chris Chambliss' one-out single in the 11th inning scored Roy White with the winning run Saturday to give the New York Yankees a 9-8 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

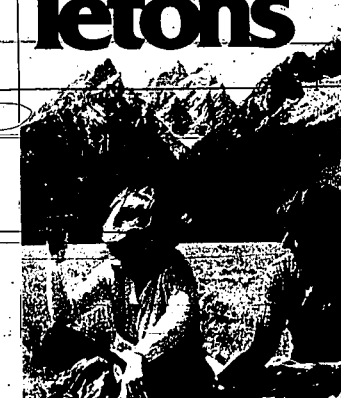

Roy White singled with one out and moved to second when Thurman Munson was hit by a pitch, setting the stage for Chambliss' winning hit. Marty Pattin, 6-2, took the loss for the Royals, while Sparky Lyle, 2-0, picked up the win for the Yankees.

The Royals lost what seemed to be the winning run in the eighth inning on an appeal play. With one out, Jim Wolfson singled and stole second. Amos Oss struck out, and George Brett was intentionally passed to get to John Mayberry.

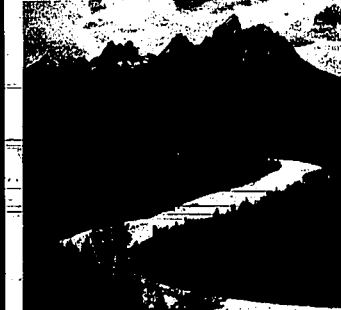

Mayberry singled to right, scoring Wolfson, but the Yankees appealed that Wolfson had missed third base. Third base umpire Nestor Shylak upheld the decision, nullifying the hit and the RBI.

The Yankees scored a pair of runs in the third inning on a walk, a pair of singles and three stolen bases.

The Royals matched the pair in the fourth when, with two out, three singles and a stolen tied the score. The Yankees went ahead in the bottom half of the inning on a double, a dropped fly ball by Al Cowens, Lou Piniella's sacrifice fly and Graig Nettles' squeeze bunt.

Reds outlast Expos 6-4

MONTREAL (UPI) — Dave Conception drove in two runs with a bases loaded single in the 11th inning Saturday to carry the Cincinnati Reds to a 6-4 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Dan Driessen led off the inning-off with a single and Johnny Bench was safe on an infield error by Larry Parrish. Both runners advanced a base on a sacrifice by Mike Lum and Cesar Geronimo was walked intentionally.

Driessen and Bench scored on Conception's single to center field, which gave reliever Rolfe Eastwick his first decision of the season. Don Caruthers, 0-1, was the loser.

The Expos tied the game 4-4 in the seventh inning on a solo homer by rookie outfielder Ellis Valentine. Pete Mearns singled home Jim Dwyer in the sixth inning to narrow the Reds lead to 4-3.

Cincinnati went ahead 4-2 in the sixth inning on Joe Morgan's three-run homer.

Montreal was leading 2-0 in the fifth inning when Lum homered for the Reds with nobody on.

Phillies power past Atlanta

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Mike Schmidt's eighth home in six games ignited a five-run eighth inning Friday night and Greg Luzinski belted the first grand slam of his career to carry the Philadelphia Phillies to a 9-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Schmidt's homer, his ninth of the season, came with one out in the eighth after Luzinski had doubled to open the inning. A two-run single by Larry Bowa capped the inning. The win, combined with Pittsburgh's loss to San Francisco, enabled the Phils to climb into first place in the National League East.

The Phillies also scored five times in the third.

Seaver, Mets tame Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Tom Seaver fired a three-hitter and knocked in two runs to aid his own cause Saturday night in a 7-1 victory for the New York Mets over the Houston Astros.

In posting his second win of the season against no losses, Seaver allowed only a first inning single to Cesar Cedeno, plus seventh and ninth innings base hits to Greg Gross.

Giants trim Pirates 3-1

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sacrifice flies by Derrel Thomas and Chris Speller Saturday knuckled the combined 10-hit pitching of Ed Halicki and rubber-armed Gary Lavelle to give the San Francisco Giants to a 3-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Thomas' sacrifice fly came after Von Joshua tripled, in first inning and Speller's run-scoring fly capped a two-run San Francisco third inning. The first Giant run of the frame scored off a wild pitch by loser Jim Rooker.

Halicki had a shutout through seven innings but was lifted in the eighth after Ritchie Hebner opened the inning with a single. Lavelle, appearing in his seventh game, gave up a single to Willie Stargell and an infield out by Dave Parker scored Hebner. ## Minico has 4-3 win over Bonneville

RUPERT — The Minico Spartans rode the pitching of Kevin Donner and Brown to a 4-3 decision over Blackfoot Saturday.

Donner went four and two-thirds innings before errors got him into trouble and Coach John Astorquin sent Brown in to help the situation. Donner fanned 11 and allowed five hits. 7-0.

Minico took the lead in the fourth when Bill Covell lived on a two-base error and rode in on Greer McKendrick's base hit. McKendrick continued in second on the throw in to set up an RBI for Tony Wilson who followed with a single.

An inning later Dick Mangard started another Minico outburst with a hit and Covell and McKendrick then hit bouncers that resulted in no-out fielder choices. Tony Bringhurst's single plated the decisive runs.

Blackfoot did all the scoring in the sixth when Brinney lived on an error and Smith singled. With two away Kevin Resney reached base on another error while the first Bee run scored and Lovelace added the next two with a single.

Minico will visit Twin Falls Tuesday afternoon for a doubleheader at 7 p.m. and conclude the season against Hurley Thursday.

Derby seen as 2-horse contest

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI)—The Kentucky Derby, the 1 1/2-mile classic in which trainers would sell their soul for a come-from-behind horse, appears to be a contest between two front-runners, Honest Pleasure and Bold Forbes.

Bob Pistone's Honest Pleasure, winner of his last nine races and 10 of 12 starts for $600,000 in career earnings, has scored off most of the horde of three-year-olds headed for Saturday's second running of the $250,000 added Derby.

Last year's champion two-year-old colt, Honest Pleasure, was sired by What A Pleasure, who was dedicated for a record $8 million, and thus is a half brother of 1975 Kentucky Derby winner Affirmed.

Despite the possibility for a frantic early duel, killing the chances of Honest Pleasure and Bold Forbes, most of the eligible three-year-olds have been persuaded from competing. This is the result of Honest Pleasure's extremely impressive victory in the Flamingo Stakes and the Florida Derby, which touched off speculation by some that he may be the next Secretariat.

Eugene Cashman's Elecutonist, the winner of the Arkansas Derby—and the Foreunner purse, appears to be the colt with the best chance of upsetting the two favorites but even Elecutonist has shown a tendency for front-running and the second-gate home may be difficult to keep off the pace.

Through trainer LeRoy Jolley, attempt to have Honest Pleasure continue his early speed in the Bluegrass Stakes, Thursday met with questionable success, the colt still will wear the favorite's mantle at Churchill Downs.

The times of 1:49-2/5 for the 1 1/2-mile Bluegrass was not impressive, but Jolley said, "I was very satisfied with the race. He ran the last eighth of a mile in 12 seconds on a living track, that's good enough for me."

Jolley's not known whether Jolley will have Jockey Braulio Baeza apply the same straightedge on Honest Pleasure in the early stages of the Derby.

However, Jolley is more than a little worried about Honest Pleasure and Bold Forbes setting a torrid early pace which could leave his colt with nothing at the end and thereby set up a late-closer.

Rodriguez Titat's Bold Forbes, the winner of the Wood Memorial, has become the pride of Puerto Rico. After beginning his career in the Caribbean island, Bold Forbes has been the greatest colt to emerge from the mainland with the Puerto Rican team of trainer Laz Barrera and jockey Angel Coche.

The son of Irish Castle Comedy Nell shattered the Wood record with a time of 1:52-3/5 for the 1 1/2-mile.

Afterward, Barrera said, "I will not know how good Bold Forbes is but for the first time in his life, Honest Pleasure will have tough competition to meet in the Derby."

Kojak's tendency to lug in toward the rail during the stretch run has kept him out of this year's Derby prep. If he is starter, Chris McCarron will get the ride.

The only possible California entry is June Silton's June's Blazer, the winner of the Brandbury Stakes at Santa Anita.

Another probable starter is Currier and Jackman's It C Krickit, who has been running at Thistle Downs.

More horses vying for the Kentucky Derby shape up as tactical than either Jolley or Barrera or, if you prefer, Baeza and Coche.

Early speed usually does not win the Kentucky Derby, but it's odd that tradition will take a beating this year.

Fast machine TF sets 2 marks, Tappan wins two-mile at Boise

BOISE—The Twin Falls boys came up with two new and school relay records and the Twin Falls girls had their usual strong day in the Boise relays invitation Saturday.

Memorable, Bull's Mark Tappan won the two-mile and junior Chris Bell pushed a second out of the 100-yard dash.

No team scores were kept, which probably was just as well for the Twin Falls boys, as they collapsed in the field events, excepting Bartlett pushing a second place out of the pole vault.

Tappan won the two-mile easily in a solid 9:56.3 time. With the surprise being that Mountain Home's Konicki was second and Mike Thompson at Jerome third. Twin Falls' Rick Murray was unplaced, but came back well in the distance medley after a brief closing with coach Jerry Kleinkopf.

The 100-yard dash was a blanket finish with Kenneth's Willie getting to the tape just ahead of Bell, who had about a similar edge on Brian Hon IK.

Twin Falls records came in the 440 and 880-yard relays and they added '77 distance medley and two-mile relay to their haul.

The Brain lineup of IK, Jack Morrison, George Salinas and Clay Meyer, took the 880-yard relay by a rather snug margin in the time of 1:30.0 in the quarter-mile relay. It was Meyer and Salinas and IK and IK putting a strong anchor leg on to bring the baton home in 43.2.

The distance medley was Jay Doinks, Kelly Kleinkopf, Brent Arngel and Murray, turning that in 11:01.7.

Coach Kleinkopf who was disappointed in a second place Boise, also doubling its half-mile in the same two events.

Twin Falls' girls actually had a rather team competition as they wanted but it came from across the Idaho line and from Ontario.

Twin Falls used distance over Debbie Brice only in the mile relay and that turned the long distance relay to the Oregon girls. It was up to Small's Ontario General Brenda Fish's of Twin Falls in 2:27.9. Fish's time was 2:24.0.

A solid distance effort developed from Karen of Mountain Home who hit 122, leaving Karen Brown second with a career best of 114. Tracy Engelhart won the hurdles without much strain at 16.2, not her best time.

A delight developed in the girls' mile relay which Twin Falls hitably won at 4:06.2. The runner-up was a half-second behind and Borah topped at a strong 4:10. Flash started that with a time 61.2 while Engelhart and Brize had 62-second splits. "Pillone" Haugstad just nailed it down with a 71.

Wilkins sets world record in discus

WALNUT, Calif. (UPI)—Mae Wilkins, formerly of University of Oregon and now competing for the Pacific Coast Club, shattered the world discus record with a prodigious heave of 228 feet 11 inches at the Mt. San Antonio Relays Saturday.

Wilkins, 25, a 6-4, 260-pound former school teacher who quit work this year and moved to California, to train with coach Al Feuerbach to get ready for the Olympics, led a previous lifetime best of 219-11/2, did that last Aug. 24 in Walnut.

There was some confusion of what his new world record was, 228-11 and inches in a cover-up from 69.18 meters; it was well pronounced 227 feet even and later at 228-11 1/2.

Wilkins actually measured 228-11 1/2, but half inches are not allowed for world records, according to the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

Wilkins' series of throws Saturday on the second day of the three-day relays at Mt. San Antonio Junior College was 207-9, 227-7, a foul, 226-11, 221-6 and 221-4.

Wilkins taking over from John Powell, the former Webfoot star, and took his walk by setting his record compilers.

"I got this record throw. 'Get out my way.'"

Later he told reporters, "I hurt my back a week ago lifting weights. I could hardly put on my shoes. I was never heavier to throw now 465 feet today. My back got lighter as they progressed."

"I'd like to get the discus more under control. The world record throw was more of an easy throw than technique. Powell has to be the favorite for the gold medal. But I can improve my technique and get a little more experience. I could be there."

Wilkins, who also is a 60-foot shot putter, competed against former world record holder and 1972 silver medalist Jay Silvester of Utah. "I try to imitate Jay Silvester," Wilkins said.

McIntyre leads CSI through track meet

POCATELLO — CSI, entering only a limited number of events, failed to secure a first place in a track visit to Idaho State Saturday.

But sophomore Neil McIntyre came up with two good performances, grabbing second place in the 100-yard dash in .9.8 and collecting another runner-up spot in the 220-yard dash.

Kevin Blaisdell was fifth in the long jump at 22 1/2' and added a 49-foot quarter pole-fourth, three-Brian-Silvestre-chirled-the-discus 146-feet-for-fourth-and-John-Hunter placed fifth in the steeplechase. Wilbur Charters with fifth in 15.3 in the high hurdles.

CSI did not enter a relay practice due to a leg strain sustained by fresh Leo Bond during bison exchange Friday. Coach Jim Blaisdell had planned to go in the 4x400-meter relay with them.

CSI and a limited number of Ricks tracksters participated in adjunct to a four-way meet among Idaho State, Utah State, BYU and Weber.

The Eagles will host their first track meet over Saturday at Bruin Stadium. Treasure Valley, Ricks, College of Idaho and Northwest Nazarene are expected to enter full teams. Field events will start at 1 p.m. and the sprint relay is slated for 1:45 p.m.

Camas County takes two track wins

WENDELL — The Camas County Musters won both ends of a four-way track meet at Wendell Friday afternoon with a steady display of relay depth.

The Musters lost only one of the eight relays in the boys and girls divisions, the girls placing second in the medley.

Most of the "Mastaggs" boys-mile-relay won the just even of the competition to nip Wood River for team honors.

Going into the thing the Musters trailed 88-78, but defeated the Volunteers 10-50 swap places with them.

Robin Tracy took the triple and high-jump-and-leuston won both weights, although he was down a little from last week's state-class efforts. They accounted for most of Wood River's first places.

In the girls-division it was largely a matter of the three Pate sisters and the two Ashmeads. The Pate girls won four events and lost at least one member of the family in all the relays. The Ashmead girls ran one-two in the 100 and 75-yard dashes with junior Mona taking the two wins and then adding the 200-yard dash.

Already rated the fastest A-3 or A-4 girl in the state, Mona clipped the 100 in 11.6; the 220 in 27.4 and the 75-yard dash in 8.5.

Camas County, Shoshone and Wendell now advance to their conference championships next weekend. The Musters will go against the Northside at Gooding State while Shoshone and Wendell will participate in the Little Five finals in Glenns Ferry Friday.

I-F. wins match
IDAHO FALLS — The Idaho Falls Tigers dropped Twin Falls and Pocatello in a three-way golf match Friday.

The Tigers won with 227 strokes, followed by Twin Falls at 230 and Pocatello 233.

Medalist honors went to Kenton Smith of Pocatello at 73. Twin Falls scorers were Mark Mingo 81, Jay Empey 81, Pat Donnelly 83, Kelly Patterson 85 and Mike Courtwright 90.

Five records broken as West Minico wins Burley frosh meet

BURLEY — West Minico, headed by record-breaking Todd Heiner, won the 16th annual Burley frosh meet on Friday.

West Minico just ousted Burley 52-50 while Brent Stuart had 42, O'Leary 20%, East Minico 17% and Jerome 15%.

Five records fell during the day, which was nearly ideal for track.

Heiner hoisted his high jump record to a fine 6.3, breaking by an inch and one-half the mark established in 1971 by Burley's Brent Bodily.

Reed Bauer of Burley lowered the quarter-mile record to 55 flat, sideling the 55.4 established by Byron Lyons of Jerome in 1972.

Pat Allison of Stuart hiked the triple jump mark to 37-10 1/2, against 35-9 set two years ago by Jerome's Rick Hillier.

Heiner was the big point man of the day as he picked up victories in the 100-yard dash and long jump to go with his record-breaking high jump win. He also anchored the 440-yard relay team which lowered that record to 47.4, seventenths of a second under the time posted by O'Leary in 1970.

Stuart's 880-yard relay team added the fifth mark at 1:39.1, compared with 1:40.0 run by Minico in 1968.

The other double winners were Hunter of East Minico in the two distances. Allison in the triple Jump and 220-yard dash and Allred of Burley in the weights.

Team scoring — West Minico 52; Burley 50; Stuart 42; O'Leary 20%; East Minico 17%; Jerome 15%.

High hurdles — Roodick, Stuart, Crane, Bur; Scott, West; Sandman, Bur; 7.7.

880-yard relay — Stuart (Allison, Cook, Jessard, Gambrell), West; Burley, O'Leary, 1:39.1 (New record; old record 141.0 by Minico, 1968).

880-yard run — Wright, East; Delgado, West; Cool, West; Trapp, Jer. 5:17.7.

440-yard relay — West Minico (Fracy, Scott, Terry, Heiner), Stuart, O'Leary, Jerome, 41.7. (New record; old record 48.2 by O'Leary, 1970).

440-yard dash — Bauer, Bur; Gambrell, Stuart; Ehlers, O. Patterson, Jer. 20.9. (New record; old record 24.4 by Byron Lyons, Jerome, 1972).

880-yard run — Slurry, Stuart; Sandman, Bur; (Ile) Crane, Bur. and Scott, West, 4:51.

880-yard run — Wright, West; Dick, Bur; Corvan, East; Deason, O. 218.0.

Stuart, Burley; (Ile) West Minico and East Minico, 4:12.

220-yard dash — Allison, Stuart; Tracy, West; Bauer, Butte; Keith, O. 24.5.

Two-mile run — Hunter, East; Cool, West; Trapp, Jerome; Duder, Stuart; 14:45.9.

880-yard run — Wright, West; West Minico/O'Leary, Jerome, 5:37.8.

Shotput — Allred, Bur; Sauer, Jer; Lowe, O. Kelsey, Bur. 41.9.

Pole vault — Christian, O. Uniquen, East; Mastag, O. Munro, O. 9.7.

High jump — Todd Heiner, West; Teeter, Jer; Birch, Bur; (Ile) Sandman, Bur; and Sauer, O. 6.3 (New record; old record 5.9 by Brent Bodily, Burley, 1971).

100-yard dash — Heiner, West; Dick, Bur; Slurry, Stuart; Davis, Jer. 10.4.

Triple jump — Allison, Stuart; Scott, West; Dick, Burley; Ehlers, O. 37-10 1/2. (New record; old record 36.6 by Rick Hillier, Jerome, 1974).

Discus — Allred, Bur; Albert, West; Sauer, Jer; Borchert, East. 135.3.

O'Leary girls nab frosh track win

TWIN FALLS — The O'Leary girls nabbed their second win in some performance to win Twin Falls invitational.

O'Leary won all the relay events and picked up double wins from Mingo and Halsead to push its point total to 98.

Stuart, with Sweet grabbing three victories, was second with 45 1/2, while West Minico had 29, East Minico 26 1/2 and Burley 21.

Sweet's best showing came with a 65.1 in the quarter-mile.

Martin ties mark, leads golf tourney

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Katly Martin, equalling a day-old course record for women, Saturday fired a seven-under par 65 to storm to a four-stroke second round lead in the $40,000 LPGA Birmingham Golf Classic.

Martin also set an LPGA tour record by putting together back-to-back rounds of 66 and 65 over the Green Valley Country Club course. She shaved one stroke off the 136-hole record of 132, set by Carol Mann in 1968, Lady Carling Open.

First-round leader Jan Stephenson led the course record Friday with a 65 in the opening round, but fell to 70 in the second round after running into trouble on the final two holes. She bogied Nos. 17 and 18 to end the round four strokes off the pace at 135.

Laura Baugh carded a 69 for a two-day total of 137, and third place. She was followed by Debbie Austin at 138, following a second-round 70, and defending champion Maria Astorgues and Betty Cowen with 139.

The LPGA tour's top money winner, Judy Rankin, added another 71 Saturday for a total of 145, 14 strokes behind the leader. Rankin has won $56,891 so far this year.

Martin, a 31-year-old four-year veteran of the LPGA tour from Thousand Oaks, Calif., said the Green Valley Course seems to match her style of play.

"I've always preferred slow greens," she said. "On the fast greens I tend to get jumpy."

Century's Envoy cops LA handicap

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Favored Century's Envoy races to a two-length victory Saturday in the 24th running of the $51,450 Los Angeles Handicap at Hollywood Park, one of the nation's top sprint races.

The win was the first in a stakes race for Century's Envoy since 1973, when he dominated two-year-old West Coast racing and captured the $100,000 Hollywood Juvenile Championship.

The late-closing Home Jerome was second and Sporting Goods finished third in the field of seven.

Century's Envoy raced the seven-furlongs in the good time of 1:20 4/5 and was pulling away from his opposition at the finish.

The 2-1 choice of the crowd of more than 35,000, Century's Envoy returned $6, $3.40 and $2.60. Home Jerome paid $5.60 and $3.30 and Sporting Goods paid $4.10.

The win was the first in eight races Saturday for leading jockey Sandy Hawley, who got the winner out of the gate fast and held his lead to the finish. Sporting Goods and Pay Tribute were closest to the leader while Home Jerome lagged far back in the early stages.

"It was the eighth career stakes victory for Century's Envoy" and the winning price of $21,500 increased his career earnings to $530,000.

Century's Envoy is a 4-year-old gelded son of Envoy and sired by Mrs. Elizabeth Elmore, who bred him in California.

Sunday, the Century Handicap, first of three races at the meeting for $100,000 or more on the turf, drew a field of 11 grass specialists.

Building contract awarded

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County commissioners Thursday awarded a contract to Eugene Jensen, Twin Falls, for construction of a weed department building for the west end of the county. The building will be located in Buhl on property recently acquired by the county for this purpose. Meil E. Leonard, commission chairman, said the bid of Jensen was $20,225 and was the low bid of five received for the 1,120-square-foot structure. Other bids include J.A. Clawson Construction Co., $21,108; Design Builders, $24,750; Idaho Construction, $25,425; and Joe-Lyn Construction Co., $30,490. Commissioners said construction will begin within the next few days and the building is expected to be available for use this summer. It will include a small office area, space for parking trucks and storage area for chemicals.

Ex-Boisean in play lead role

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A play adapted from science-fiction writer Ray Bradbury's "Dandelion Wine" has opened in Washington, D.C., with Norman Martin, 14, formerly of Boise, in the leading role. Martin's parents, Norman and Marlon, were journalists while living in Idaho. The youthful actor plays Douglas Spaulding in Bradbury's story about three boys in the summer of 1928 in a mythical Southern Illinois town. The play will run two months at Arena Stage's Kreeger Theater, a repertory company which received the Tony Award April 18 for excellence as a regional theater. Martin has had minor roles in two other plays at Arena Stage — "An Enemy of the People" — and in a Hungarian play — "The Tol Family."

Watering rules for Shoshone

SHOSHONE — Irrigation rules for the city of Shoshone have been announced by the City Council. Irrigation from sprinklers should only be done between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. Residents of houses facing the north and east will irrigate only on odd days of the month while those facing the south and east should irrigate only on even days of the month. Only public lawns are to be irrigated on the 31st day of the month. Openings in sprinklers must not be over one-fourth inch in diameter and water from open hoses is not permitted. Regarding the rules will result in a fine of $2 and discontinuance of water service if the fine is paid.

Volkswagen to build plant in US

WOLFSBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Volkswagen will spend $186 million on a U.S. assembly plant to cut its costs and attempt to regain its status as the most popular foreign automobile in America, the West German automaker said Friday.

The decision to invest in the United States will give jobs to up to 5,000 American workers and make Volkswagen the nation's sixth-largest auto builder. The firm's German board did not choose a site for the plant, but narrowed the choice to three locations in Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Auto industry sources in the United States said a former tank plant in Brook Park, Ohio, a suburb of Cleveland, appeared to be the best. The other candidates were New Stanton, Pa., where Chrysler Corp. abandoned plans for a plant southwest of Pittsburgh, and Columbus, Ohio, a dark horse site that had not been mentioned previously.

The site will be announced within two months, Volkswagen president Toni Schmuecker told reporters.

The plant will build Rabbits — the cheapest model of the Volkswagen compact costs $3,499 — with the first car due off the assembly line in the autumn of 1977.

First production phases will employ 2,000 workers. The plant will have 5,000 jobs when full capacity of 200,000 cars per year is reached in 1983, Schmuecker said.

"We must reduce costs," Schmuecker said. "That is our strategic target and that is why we are going to the United States."

"We want to be over there in the big leagues," said Arthur

Ratlion, vice president of Volkswagen of America. The 21-member Volkswagen supervisory board, including seven labor union members, approved the U.S. project unanimously. A management promise — that no Germans would lose their jobs overcame opposition from the automobile workers' union here.

U.S. sales by Volkswagen, which introduced the distinctive Beetle more than 20 years ago, dropped from 570,000 in 1970 to 330,000 in 1975. The first three months of this year sales slipped even more, falling to 50,283.

The Japanese Toyota has replaced Volkswagen as the No. 1 foreign car and the German firm lost more than $400 million in the past two years.

"We will save $156 a car on shipping costs," Schmuecker said, and cut assembly costs by $196 per car.

Schmuecker said engines REASONABLY PRICED MACHINERY is for sale in today's West Ada.

School 'fair' offers fun galore

TWIN FALLS — Fun galore is in store May 1 at the Harrison School fair. "This Is Your Life, America," co-sponsored by faculty, students and PTO.

Offering games, booths, entertainment and demonstrations reminiscent of the past century, the fair will be held from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. on the school grounds.

A recently enticed event sure to allure many will be the dunking trough offering up Frances Anderson, principal; Boyd Grant and other Golden Eagles, Johnny Mac, George Staudaher, Chris Talkington, teachers, and many others, as brave victims.

More old-fashioned events for the energetic will be a pie-eating contest, three-legged sack races, a raw egg throw, dressed pole climb, spelling bee and hoop rolling with a stick.

Still more games and events include a strong-man hammer bell ring; bingo under the trees, checkers on a stump; a showing of Abbott and Costello, Keystone Cops, etc., movies in a National Guard tent; Beverly Sturgill's makeup booth (thuy-a-face), picture-taking by Muldoon girls from Pennywise-Drug Store behind authentic old-fashioned props donated by Valey; cloths selling helium balloons; moon walk; judge walk; horse shoes and dart games.

Food concessions include such all-time favorites as fried chicken, corn-on-the-cob, cotton candy, sno-cones, hot dogs, chorizos, pop corn, lemonade and cookies and pop

Scheduled events in the amphitheater include a choir presentation at 11 a.m.; Old Time Fiddlers at noon; Carletta Cox and a country and western group, 2 p.m.; jazz band, 3 p.m.; Mexican band, 4 p.m.; Mrs. Alleen Taylor's fifth grade square dancers, 5 p.m. and the Square Rounds, between 5 and 6 p.m.

Performing on the stage in front of the new addition to the school will be a choir assembly and flag-raising ceremony at 11 a.m.; Indian dancers (here or near Indian tent), noon; Mrs. Frances Satterwhite's second grade, and Mrs. Mildred Jacobs' fourth graders (three-minute), 1 p.m.; Mrs. Lynn Weidenhelt's fourth and fifth graders doing the Charleston, and Mrs. Judy Watson's fourth, fifth and sixth graders doing the Jitterbug, all between 1 and 2 p.m.; karate demonstration, 2 p.m.; Basque dancers, 3 p.m.; bagpipe groups, 3:30 p.m. and Willa Dean Nelson with a dance number, 4:30 p.m.

Appearing on a trucked stage in back of the school will be a lunch box auction at 11:30; barbershop quartet, noon; VanderDoes Brothers' pop group, 1 p.m.; Sweet Adelines, noon to 2:30, and VanderDoes, again, throughout the afternoon.

Live historical scenes with sets and costumes designed by students and teachers will be given the first 20 minutes of each hour beginning at 2, 3 and 4 p.m.

A Basque sheepherder will be present to give children tours through his wagon.

Old-fashioned crafts to be demonstrated will include wool spinning, weaving and carding and pottery throwing and wood carving.

A chance to visit an almost extinct institution — the old general store — will be provided in a general store run by Larry and Jean Hovey. The store will offer Idaho bakers with such goodies as cookies, candles and breads, "Little House On the Prairie" bonnets, oranges, hand-made soap, quilts, afghans, pickles in a barrel donated by Cellar, Inc., of Eden; hand-made games—penny candy and dried beans.

Proceeds from the fair will be used to fund a summer bookmobile, "The Little Bookie," in conjunction with the public library. A 1976 Volkswagen van has been donated for the summer months.

Variety planned

MALACHI Gossell plays the bagpipes for several students as final preparations are made for "This Is Your Life, America" scheduled May 1 at Harrison School. A variety of entertainment and activities is planned for the event.

Careful aim

JERRY Gage, 9, fires a ball at the target attempting to dunk Steve Willis, third grade teacher, in the water. According to school officials—the dunking will be one of the most popular activities of the day with various school officials volunteering as targets.

Hotdogs anyone?

CHERIE Vollmer, 5, left, and Maurice Neville, 4, get a jump on things as they prepare to sample the hotdogs served by Pat Gablica, conifer, and Maggio Noville as they prepare for the forthcoming Harrison School event.

School project

WILLA Nelson poses with sledge hammer in front of the Harrison School playground she helped design. All activities for the school's "This Is Your Life, America" will be held on the school grounds, with entertainment planned for the entire community.

DEAR ABBY: I'm well over 21, and old enough to know better, but six months ago I started dating the golf pro at our club.

It all started when I took some lessons from him to improve my game. One thing led to another very quickly, and he asked me to marry him. I was walking on air. Then, he said we would have to postpone the marriage for about a year due to some financial obligations he had to clear up first.

In order to speed up the marriage I let him have $2,500. Then I found out that he has been seeing another woman. Now I realize that he was only using me, but I must admit he certainly improved my game.

I have too much pride to report him to the club manager, but I would like to get my money back. Any suggestions? TWELVE HANDICAP

briefs

TWIN FALLS — The Twentieth Century Club will have the last meeting of the year at 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Golf Club. There will be a musical program and new officers will be installed.

TWIN FALLS — The ATA Registered Trap Shoot will be held May 2 beginning at 9 a.m. at the Twin Falls Gun Club.

FILER — Bonnie Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Miller, Filer, was among 276 seniors who participated in the 78th commencement exercises at Goshen College, Indiana on April 14. Miss Miller received a degree in nursing. She will complete requirements for graduation in August.

RUPERT — The Idaho State University Concert Band will perform in Rupert and Kimberly Monday; in Gooding and Jerome Tuesday; and in Burley and American Falls Wednesday, in a special 1976 bi-centennial tour. Greg Paige, Halley, will perform with the band in a trumpet quartet.

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman High School Music Department will present a spring concert Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the school gym. Mrs. Joyce Snapp is music director for the program which will include both choral and band numbers.

MV reading group to elect

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Council of the International Reading Association will meet Thursday in Twin Falls to elect new officers and promote goals of the association.

Joan Edwards, Twin Falls, said the meeting will include workshops to help both parents and teachers promote literacy and create enthusiasm for the printed word. She said the International Reading Association has adopted goals for the bi-centennial year aimed at improving the level of literacy among all citizens. The mark of one people's freedom cannot be realized without considering the impact which reading has made upon that quest, the IRA contends.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in room 116 of the Shields Building on the College of Southern Idaho campus. New membership will be accepted during the meeting and all interested teachers and parents are urged to participate. Workshops include: "Monsters, Ghosts, Dragons and Things — K-3"; "Creativity in Children's Literature — Intermediate"; and "Literary for Life—Secondary and Above."

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS HIGH

Thomas High weds in Boise ceremony

TWIN FALLS — Thomas High and Patricia Purdy were married April 10 in Boise.

Father Don Skinner performed the ceremony in the First Church of Religious Science Wedding Chapel. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Glen Purdy, Boise, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert High, Twin Falls.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin featuring a net overlay with appliqued flowers and seed pearls. The dress featured a V-neckline, long full sleeves and empire waistline, and detachable train.

A head piece of fresh white daisies was worn and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white daisies. The bride was escorted by Jay Sherlock, a friend of the family. Karen Purdy, sister of the bride, was maid of honor.

James Baugh attended the bridegroom as best man and Brad Purdy and Doug High were ushers. Janet High was organist.

A reception at the home of the bride's mother followed the ceremony. The three tiered cake featured a miniature bride and bridegroom and was decorated with yellow roses. The table was covered with a hand crocheted white lace cloth. Mrs. Alice Elwood, grandmother of the bride, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Marge White assisted with the reception. Special guests were the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Elwood and the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam High, Out-of-town guests attended from California, Utah, Colorado, Twin Falls, Buhl, Weiser, Moscow and Coeur d'Alene.

Parents of the bridegroom hosted a rehearsal dinner Friday at the Rodeway Inn in Boise.

Following a wedding trip to Sun Valley, the couple lives at 210 Warm Springs, Boise. The bridegroom is employed by the Bureau of Land Management.

An open house for the couple will be held in Twin Falls today at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert High, 1212 Lawlittale Drive. Friends are invited to attend between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. today.

Affections under par

DEAR TWELVE: Forget your pride and tell the club manager that the golf pro is under par in integrity. And don't get so chummy with professional swingers again unless you can remember to keep your head down and your eye on your purse!

DEAR ABBY: I have a nodding acquaintance with a woman who goes overboard when it comes to "remembering" people on their birthdays, anniversaries and all the holidays. She remembers people she never sees and hardly knows, and I, for one, wish that she would quit "remembering" me because I feel guilty if I don't acknowledge her card.

I always write her a "thank-you" note because I don't feel right ignoring her "good wishes." It's easier than calling her on the phone because she likes to visit, and I don't care for long drawn-out telephone conversations. (She kept me on the phone once for nearly an hour when I phoned to thank her for sending me an Easter card.) Tell me, Abby, is it necessary to acknowledge a greeting card? If you say it isn't, I'll dance for joy.

A BUSY LADY

DEAR BUSY: Don't dance, dear. All expressions of good wishes should be acknowledged. Get a stack of postcards, and do it the easy way.

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school freshman and my mother still wants me in the house by 12 o'clock sharp every time I go out on a date.

LYNNE

DEAR LYNNE: She knows. That's why she wants you in the house at 12 o'clock sharp.

DEAR ABBY: Is it still "in style" for a young man to ask the father of a young lady for her hand in marriage, or isn't that done any more? Our children, who are 19 and 21, tell us that this is "corny" and that we are old-fashioned to expect it. We would like your opinion.

OLD-FASHIONED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: It may be "corny," but there's a kernel of good manners there. It is a formality, however. When a fellow asks for a lady's "hand," he usually has both feet in the door.

Banquet scheduled

TWIN FALLS — Beta Sigma Phi met Wednesday night at the home of Valerie Samson.

Final plans were made for the annual Founders Day banquet at the Holiday Inn April 30.

Plans were also made for the Mother's Day luncheon at Bonnie Gillespie's on May 8. Each member is asked to bring supplies to make gifts for their mothers at the next meeting. A salad bar will be offered.

The meeting was highlighted by rushes taking their pledge ritual. Cheryl Olsen, Bonnie Tolman and Marilyn Roeb were the rushes.

The next meeting will be at Sherri Manker's home on May 5 at 8 p.m.

Valley briefs

BURLEY — Several students from Magic Valley are members of the Bengal Rifles, the official Idaho bicentennial drill team, from Idaho State University, which recently placed fifth in the inspection category at the annual governor of Arizona's drill meet in Tempe. MR. AND MRS. JAMES COOKE

Mtss Henning weds Cooke at priory

TWIN FALLS — Mary Therese Henning, Twin Falls, became the bride of James V. Cooke, Jerome, in a formal ceremony April 10 in the St. Benedict's Priory.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Henning, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E.V. Cooke Jr., Jerome.

Father Eugene Esch performed the double ring ceremony before an altar flanked by tall baskets of yellow mums, daisies and carnations.

The bride wore a gown of white satin trimmed with lace roses, with see-through sleeves of lace and a long train held in place by a head piece of matching lace. Her bouquet was of yellow roses, white daisies, baby breath and greenery.

The bride wore a silver necklace set with cut glass, and diamonds which had belonged to her grandmother.

Barbara Henning was maid of honor for her sister. Other bride's attendants were Linda Henning, the bride's sister-in-law, and Kathy Dwyer, both

Twin Falls.

Keavan Shropshire, Jerome, was best man for the bridegroom. Ushers were Gary Henning, Twin Falls and Randy Stockton, Jerome.

A reception at the priory followed the wedding. The five tiered wedding cake centered the bride's table decorated in white net over an orange table cover. The lemon cake was decorated with yellow and orange roses and topped by a cross and two entwining hearts.

Attendees at the reception included Joy Waite, Jerome; Sharon Pew, Filer; Rita Baum and Rheda Hartz, Twin Falls.

Lynn Harding, sister of the bride, was soloist for the ceremony and Jeanne Cupp, organist. Candelighters were Blakey Kirsch and Terry Scherwefeger, Twin Falls.

Among special guests attending were the bridegroom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Womack, Bonners

Luncheon held

TWIN FALLS — The Addison Avenue Club observed its 54th anniversary with a luncheon meeting at the Holiday Inn Thursday.

Mrs. Madeline Webb, club president arranged for the anniversary event. Special guests were Mrs. Carolyn (Prude) Buck and Sue Ellen Littlefield. Mrs. Buck sang several songs accompanied by Mrs. Littlefield at the piano.

Norma Walker read a selection of short Original nostalgic essays. Decorations consisted of spring flowers with gifts of candies presented each member and guest.

Employees to meet

JEROME — The Magic-Valley Chapter of Idaho Public Employees Association will meet at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the State Building, Chapter 14, Gooding.

A resolution concerning disbursement of shares will be discussed at the meeting. Ideas for resolutions for general council will also be presented, according to George Merritt, chapter president.

Merritt said election of chapter officers will also be held at the Tuesday meeting.

Those seeking election include George Merritt for president, Robert Snow, vice-president, Charlene Bateman and Florence Petersen, secretary; Linda Arellano and John Perfect, treasurer. Also on the ballot is Edward Scholes for alternate delegate to the general council.

According to Merritt, since there is only one candidate on the ballot for alternate delegate, the two candidates not elected will automatically become second- and third alternates, depending on their total votes.

Merritt added that Ray Ann Reinke with Nationwide Insurance Co. will attend the meeting.

Book Review

"Making Our Way" by Eric Sloane

What was life like in America at the turn-of-the-century for a midwestern farmer's wife, a black southern sharecropper, a stockyard worker, a coal miner, a cowboy, a sweatshop girl, a tramp?

This book gives an intimate glimpse into ordinary lives and tells what no standard history could. Fresh insights are provided into old, perspectives of a turbulent, often misrepresented era.

"The Seasons of America

pumps—and wells, stumping and maple-sugaring methods, axes, plows, and scythes.

A section of old recipes adds color, and certain practical value, to this re-creation of the forgotten seasons.

"The Physicians," by Henry Decker

A stunningly dramatic novel set against two worlds of medicine and law. Dr. Christopher Grant, young, idealistic and dedicated to the care of the newborn, is involved in the treatment of John Stewart Reynolds' infant grandson, and when postnatal complications cause the boy to be reared, it is Grant that the old man blames.

Wonderfully detailed and full of dramatic courtroom and hospital scenes, this is a major novel of modern medicine.

"Commemorations" by Hans Herin

The structure of the story is a classic hunt for Dr. Boettcher. Or is the structure a classic story of mistaken identity? The driving force is a love story—or is it three love stories? Or is the book really about the awful quality of great wealth?

Some will say it is about weakness and strength, and how they save us—or cost us our lives and spirits. You may feel it's about the folly of trying to recover the past—or the folly of trying to escape it. Or about hate, and how it depends on love, or about happiness, and how it depends on—what?

THE GREAT PROLOGUE

Mark E. Petersen

"This great American nation the Almighty fashions by the power of his omnipotent hand, that it might be possible in the latter days for the kingdom of God to be established in the earth." These words set the stage for a retelling of the thrilling events that led up to the establishment of the United States of America and the subsequent restoration of the gospel.

Elder Petersen traces events prior to the discovery of America, the voyages of Christopher Columbus, the early settlers who found political and religious refuge here, the great patriots who fought the Revolutionary War and established democracy on the American continent, and the statesmen who brought life to the new nation through the Constitution.

All of these events are part of The Great Prologue leading eventually to the coming of the Savior. The Great Prologue is a powerful statement of patriotism and love for democratic principles as America moves into its bicentennial celebration of many of the events described herein.

Elder Mark E. Petersen has served as a member of the Council of the Twelve since 1944. His deep love for and understanding of the gospel of Jesus Christ has led to his writing this excellent volume on the mission of America.

TWIN FALLS—Carol Lynn Rayborn and James Michael Burkhart were married at the Church of the Nazarenes, Pomeroy, Wash., April 10. She is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Melvin Rayborn of Pomeroy. The groom is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Peter Burkhart of Nampa.

The father of the bride escorted her down the aisle. Officiating at the double ring, afternoon ceremony were the pastor of the church, the bride's mother, with white satin with organza overlay and ruffles at the V-neck and wrists, with a lace covered blue inset in the bodice. The skirt flowed into a short train. She wore a long organza veil attached to a white lace floral headpiece with a single pearl in the center, matching the single pearl in a cross worn around her neck.

She carried a white orchid corsage on her sister's white Bible.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Cathy Lynch. Bridesmaids were Sandy and Janet Burkhart—sisters of the bridegroom—and Mrs. Zella Flowers, cousin of the bride, all Nampa.

Dan Burkhart of Nampa was his brother's best man. The groomsmen were Mark Whaley of Colorado Springs, Colo.; David Verne of Boise and Randy Rayborn, brother of the bride.

Cathleen Cook of Mountain Home was flower girl. Rodney Emerson was ring bearer and carried the rings on a pillow made from the wedding gown fabric.

Lighting the candles were Ricky Rayborn and Philip Burkhart, brothers of the couple.

Soloists were Pam Bullock of Nampa and Bud Vogt, accompanied by Mrs. Virgil Bowles at the organ.

Mrs. Layton Keilberg arranged the white lilies, white glads, yellow roses and blue runms which decorated the church.

Hostess was Mrs. Vern Emerson. Mrs. Jerry Morris distributed the programs and scrolls and in charge of the guest-book was Sheila Louich of Vancouver. Receiving the gifts were Pam Bekkedahl of Kallispell, Mont., and Tammy Matson of Vancouver.

Reception hostesses were Mrs. Ellis Bartlow and Mrs. Elmer Melson. The cake, made by Mrs. Virgil Bowles, was served by Mrs. John Flowers, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Wall Duncan. Serving punch and coffee were Mrs. Jerry Morris and JoAnn Flowers.

The newlyweds honeymooned at McCall and are now living in Twin Falls where he is employed with Idaho Power Co. and she plans to teach school. Both are 1975 graduates of Northwest Nazarene College.

Special guests included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burkhart, grandparents.

Sam Brannan, newspaper publisher, railroad agent, miller and banker, is considered to have been California's first millionaire. Unfortunately, Brannan was unable in his later years to manage his fortune and he died penniless in 1899.

Jerome winner listed

JEROME—Winners of the Jerome Chapter of the Chamber's biennial essay contest were announced at the Wednesday meeting of the chamber.

Melody Barlow, daughter of Mrs. Doris Barlow, was the top winner in the contest and was presented a $125 for her effort.

Tied for second place were Jeff Bragg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Bragg, and Sandra Vanhooser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Vanhooser. The two contestants split the second place money, each receiving $62.50.

The winning essay by Miss Barlow was entitled, "Cooperative Magic" which traced the history and development of Ida Gem Dairy, Inc.

Bragg's essay was the "Old Jerome Reservoir" and Miss Vanhooser's was entitled "Progress Wins the Final Battle" on the North Side Inn.

All participants received certificates of appreciation from chamber president Bill Hag.

TOPS box was Margaret Grant. The flag contest started this week with Miss Whelan and Miss Stone as team captains. Each team has five pieces each to put on flags.

Since the first of the year TOPS ID No. 3 has lost a total of 94 1/2 pounds. All those interested in help in losing weight are invited to call Coats at 723-6106, Whelan at 328-4044, or Gladys Dayley at 723-7169.

Next is the "Tuesday" at 1:30 a.m. at the city hall.

Officers named

TWIN FALLS — New officers of the Magic Toastmistress club were named in the regular meeting Wednesday night.

Margaret Lewis is president; Mary Akkerman, vice president; Ethel Martin, secretary and Cassandra Blakey, treasurer.

Officers will be installed in the May meeting at the home of Jeri Miller. Mary Akkerman, speech contest winner for the local club will be honored at the May event.

The group met Thursday at Smitty's Pancake House with Vera Young winning the blue pencil as the best speaker. Her topic was "From the Sublime to the Ridiculous." Theme of the day was "America On Parade — Bicentennial Year." Other speakers included Ruby Box, "I Love A Parade."

Eileen Cappell was toastmistress; Aida Strong gave the lexicology lesson, and Jeri Miller education lesson. Members were invited to meet as judges for the Boy Scout Speech Contest May 12. The invitation was accepted.

Travelogue slated for Jerome group

JEROME — The Jerome Toastmistress Club will meet May 2 for a travelogue program presented by Mrs. J. R. Thomson.

Mrs. Thomson won the best speaker award for the April meeting of the club held last week at Wood Cafe here. It was announced the club's contestant, Marion vanLeishout placed third in the Council 7 speech contest in Twin Falls April 17.

Edith Nancolas spoke on several aspects of the Jerome County Bicentennial observance. Marion vanLeishout appointed Nancy Thomson as chairman of a nominating committee. The club voted to support Mary Akkerman of the Magic Toastmistress Club, speechcontest in Yakima in June.

Mrs. vanLeishout also conducted table topics for a meeting. Introducing a discussion on "wet rocks," Mrs. Cathy Hopper gave an educational lesson. Mrs. Gene Hite presented the flag salute and inspiration.

Sister night held by TF Bethel 43

TWIN FALLS — Sister Night was observed by Bethel 43, International Order of Jobs Daughters, at its regular meeting Thursday evening.

Cayman Griffin, honored queen, presided.

Reports were presented by Corenea Nussbaum, Audrey Fuller, Paula Deweg and Marion Billmeier.

A yard clean-up is planned for Saturday. The DeMolay dance will be Saturday evening at the Moose Hall.

Go-to-church Sunday will be Sunday with breakfast scheduled for 9 a.m. and services at the First United Methodist Church at 11 a.m. Bethel 43 and the Twin Falls chapter of DeMolay will participate May 1 in the Johnny Horton clean-up. Librarian Sandra Shaff read a poem.

An invitation to attend the Twin Falls Shrine Club Antique Show, May 15-16, was extended by Dave Ferguson.

Birthday honorees were Miss Fuller, Laurie Rommerup, Suzie Solomon, Carmen Sharp and Barbara Fuller. Miss Solomon won the birthday cake which was donated by Brenda Deweg.

Altrusa club has founders dinner

TWIN FALLS — The Altrusa Club of Twin Falls held its Founders Day Dinner Thursday at the Round-up Room of the Rogerson Hotel.

Sara Sterling was named girls state delegate and Susan Meyer, scholarship winner.

Name as girls of the month were Dorothy Decorde, September; Elaine Hendrickson, October; Suzanne Thomas, November; Karen Farmer, December; Jayne Devline, January; Susan Herringer, February; Tammy Krumm, March; Debbie Rindisbakar, April, and Melanie Hamilton, May.

The girls of the month presented a comedy skit depicting periods of history in celebration of the bicentennial.

Proceeds from the Easter Seal Smorgasbord were presented to Merle Stoddard, director of the Twin Falls Easter Seal Center, by Ola Cannon, community service chairman.

The smorgasbord is an annual event sponsored by the Altrusa Club and is held each year at the Turf Club.

Ruthann LeBaron, from the College of Southern Idaho, speaking "primarily" to the girls at the month, scholarship winner and Girls' State delegate, stressed the importance of education.

"In today's world you need as much and as broad an education as you can possibly acquire in order to be able to understand and cope with the increasing complexity of daily life," she said.

She told the young women vocational education can "prepare you for a great variety of occupations" as well as an academic education.

"Learning is the only form of wealth which cannot be taken from you because it is within your mind," Mrs. LeBaron said in closing.

Elaine Nesbitt, president, presided. Others who assisted were Rosemarie White, Altrusa blessing; Margaret McCall, flag salute, and Mary Helen Perry, toastmistress.

The benediction was given by Dottie Rowe.

Mrs. Chris Charlton, adviser from Twin Falls High School, attended as a guest.

Speaker welcomed

RUTHANN LeBaron, left, professor of biology at the College of Southern Idaho, is being welcomed to the Altrusa Club's Founders Day banquet by Margaret Wats, center, Altrusa information chairman. Looking on is Virginia Bancroft, vocational service chairman. Mrs. LeBaron was featured speaker of the banquet Thursday evening at the Rogerson Roundup Room.

Happy go luckies meet

TWIN FALLS — The Happy Go Lucky 4-H Club held a meeting Thursday at the home of Robyn and Kristine Reynolds.

The flag salute was led by Kim Holbrook and the 4-H pledge was led by Kristine Reynolds.

Christine Britt, assistant leader, led a discussion on making toasty cheese sandwiches from the Foods For All Seasons project.

Mrs. Fred Britt, leader, led a discussion on "submarines" and soup; fun-to-fix fruit desserts from the Tricks for Treats project and yankee snicker doodles from the All American Foods project.

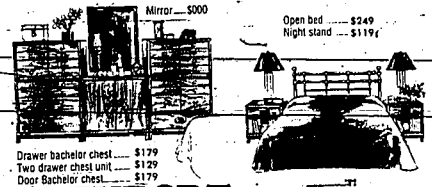

Demonstrations were given by Kristine Reynolds on making a strawberry float and Robyn Reynolds on making vanilla pudding.

'Godspell' players — 'You are the light of the world'

Opening set

"Is there a man among you who will offer his son a stone when he asks for bread?" Here, Glenn Hollinger, back; Joe Jimenez, left, and James Stephens rehearse their lines in "Godspell" set Wednesday, Friday and Saturday at O'Leary Junior High School Auditorium. Performances are set for 8:15 p.m. Tickets may be reserved by calling 733-6551 during school hours or may be purchased at the door the evenings of the production. William J. Langley Jr. is the director.

Final rehearsals

TIM Driscoll and Beckie Porter rehearse a scene from "Godspell" during final rehearsals at Twin Falls High School. In this scene you hear "If the only light you have is darkness, then the darkness will be doubly dark."

'Godspell' to open in TF Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — The Twin High Playhouse production of "Godspell" opens Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the O'Leary Auditorium.

Other performances of the John-Michael Tebbick and Stephen Schwartz play are slated for Friday and Saturday night, also at 8:15 p.m.

"Godspell" is a musical based on the gospel according to St. Matthew with music and lyrics by Schwartz. The play takes a fresh and youthful look at the teachings of Jesus Christ.

Tim Driscoll as Jesus Christ and Earl Starr as John the Baptist — Judas are exceptions in a cast with the task of self-portrayal. Characters played by the cast, with the above two exceptions, will bear a striking resemblance to their real-life counterparts. "Godspell" is Twin Falls High's first musical.

William J. Langley Jr., director, says in the past it has been a gamble to try to produce musicals on the high school level. He says musical theater from the Broadway stage has been too complex for the high-school stage from the standpoint of talent, stage settings and production costs.

Recently, Langley says, the New York stage has come up with plays better suited to high school actors.

Other actors in the musical include Janet Burkhardt, Beckie Porter, Joe Jimenez, Glenn Hollinger, Barbara Hawkins, James Stephens, Darla Thompson and Sheryl Hunt.

Some of the plays' popular tunes are "Save The People," "All for the Best," "On the Willows," "Bless-the-Lord," "By My Side" and "Day by Day."

The back-up group, under the direction of Ted Hadley, features Michelle Burrows and Steve Moss on piano; Tracy Sorensen and Libby Wallace on guitar; Brent Boyd on drums, and Scott Herzinger on bass guitar.

Technical crew includes David Vance, Kevin Lee, Craig Lewin, Terry Kasel, Peggy Graybill, Kathy Jones, Terrel Munden and Todd Messersmith, set construction; Mary Henson, LeAnn Hall, Rose Hrnac, Becky Jones, Audrey Fuller and Peggy Eden, publicity; Mary Mikesell, Jole Alred and Doug Braley, properties; and Kelly Carey and Beth Allen, makeup.

Others on the technical crew are Carolea Webb, Randy Wentworth and Brad Patterson, lights; Dave Moss and Lawrence Warden, sound; Susan Baker, Karen Farmer, Marcia Stovall, Shelly Nielson and Ken Freeman, tickets; Claudia Van Patten, Wendy Walker, Pam Parker and Tami Jones, ushers; Diane Bennett, Anita Abundis and Cheryl Greenup, costumes, and Paula Turner, house manager.

Langley urges all interested in attending to make reservations soon as seating in the O'Leary Auditorium is limited.

Tickets may be reserved by calling 733-6551 during school hours or may be purchased at the door the evenings of the production.

Musicians ready

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1978

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A considerable amount of confusion develops in daytime as most everyone feels he or she is right, though wrong, so don't be too positive. True understanding is released later in day, and it is a good time to pursue your ideas.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Avoid tangents or you get into deep trouble; you can accomplish much of importance. Confide in kin and discuss unusual events that occur.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't argue over bills or copyrights, since you could be wrong. Buddy them-well-Mate will be in far better humor by evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't light into a partner before you understand all the facts and are sure something is wrong. Avoid a big bust.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Forget problems that can't be solved today and get busy with outside work, then in the evening relax. Avoid one who is well-meaning but who is not as sincere as you are.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't be extravagant for pleasure, but do try to save more money. Consult an advisor who can be helpful to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be with an associate for important accomplishments, even though kin may want more attention. You can later please family and all is fine.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't argue with anyone since this will lead to something serious that is best avoided. Enjoy recreation that helps health.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may find you have difficulties during the day but the evening is fine for enjoying the day (as you desire). Postpone creative work.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be more objective about problems at home and don't make any remarks that are unkind for or you later regret them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Analyze where you stand with others, then you can carry through in a positive fashion. Exercise care in motion of all kinds.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get advice of an expert before handing any financial affair; you do not fully understand. Put off important decisions to p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You are confused about what should be done regarding personal affair during day, so wait the evening before deciding.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will need whatever is confusing explained carefully and patiently in order to understand it; this will help your progeny solve problems well upon reaching adulthood, when the life will be much easier. Slant education along lines of work that will give your child education and neat touch as requirements. Teach early to whatever has once been started.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of life is largely up to YOU!

L.M. Dryd

Apparently sane men who kill their wives in sudden tend to be the sons of domineering mothers. Or so a study at the Virginia State Penitentiary has indicated. It was "felicitously" thought by study, it concluded that those killers unconsciously resemble their pushy mothers; yet sought out wives of a similar ilk, then came unstung when said spouses got too bossy.

Old hands, warm hearts, my Aunt Mitti Cold hands are a sign of tension, anxiety, fear. If the medical men are right, tests indicate you're at your fastest in hitting the teakettle in your tent. And you don't stay quite that fast in your 20s and on. Generally, generally.

WASPS

Q. "Why did Yellow Jacket, Cole, come to be so named?"

A. Because of the countless wasps nests plastered on the canyon walls thereabouts; unsurprisingly.

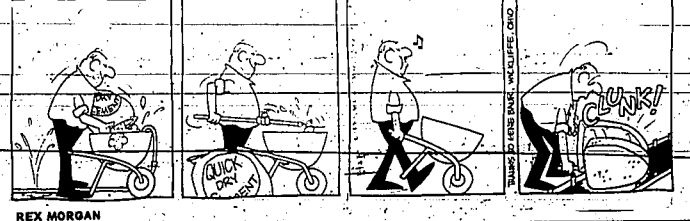

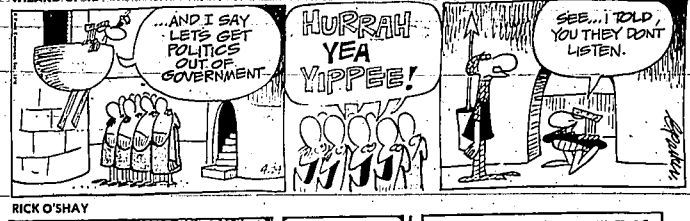

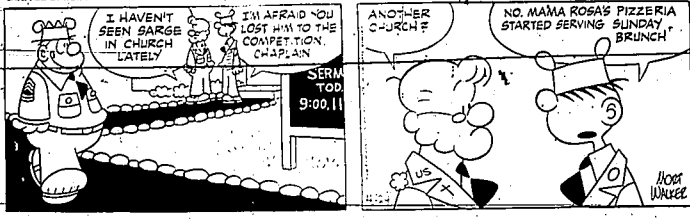

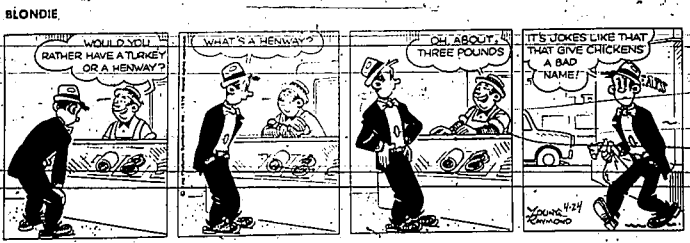

Once you can coast to find out how many different ways sports fans struggle liquor into the games. Believed 38 techniques were submitted. But the only one that comes forward at the moment was the old University of Pittsburgh... Consider scholars there used to roll grapes to soften them, inject quickie gin into the stadium, I've seen row upon row of fans there, all cheering, talking vivaciously, and sucking oranges. But that was long ago and far away.

GIGOLO

The original "gigolo" was a young man hired by a wealthy woman all right, but not necessarily for romantic liaison. The fashionable lady of the 17th century wore expensive high heels that had trouble walking without falling forward. The gigolo's job was to stroll closely in front of her so she could lean on him in case she tripped. Some job.

Again an asked what word in English holds the most consecutive double letters. Wasn't that the occupational identity of the "yellow" in the "yellow" who designs beer-parlors? He's the "yellow" in the "yellow" who designs beer-parlors? He took the title away from the man at the zoo who called the "reconnnoisseur."

It's commonly believed that the cold country up around the North Pole is awesomely quiet. That's not quite right, it's noisy little and big grind against one another. An oil explorer recently returned says the roaring is almost constant.

Pickling business flourishes in Eden

Valley comment

QUESTION: Do you believe the national forests are being adequately managed by the U.S. Forest or should there be more stringent guidelines set or more emphasis on certain programs?

Jim Bowen, Twin Falls:

Basically, management is adequate. However, in the South Hills, I have noticed there is no enforcement of clean up after a timber cutting camp moves out. They not only leave a lot of slash from the tree cutting, but the campsites are usually littered with garbage.

Ralph Heller, Albion:

I only recently moved to this area from a state where there are no forests and I agree with the multiple-use concept. There seems to be a demand for a variety of recreation uses and this need might not be fully met at this time.

David Woodhead, Twin Falls:

I think the forest service manages the forests as though they were out of their tree, or should I say their trees?

Harold Stanger, Burley:

I feel the forest service is getting involved with things it knows nothing about and not getting involved in the things it is qualified to handle. I am referring to forest employees "trying to" tell an experienced and qualified ski area operator how to operate his area.

Lyndel Carter, Eden:

I don't think management is as good as it was say, 15 years ago. It doesn't seem anything is being done to protect the big game ranges and wintering areas. Hunting is also poorly managed as most of the deer and elk that were plentiful 15 years ago have disappeared.

Nancy Lierman, Hansen:

I will say this for them, they have done a good job with campgrounds and facilities in the South Hills. However, in that same general area I think skiers should be given at least equal consideration with snowmobilers. Nothing is done by the forest service to help skiers. The interest seems to be with snowmobiling.

Dick Beeson, Rupert:

They are probably doing as well as they can with the limited budget they have to work with. I am only familiar with the recreation portion of the forest service program and I think there could be more assistance given in providing adequate recreation facilities.

Carolyn Hessler, Rupert:

I honestly think they could do more. We have such a wide open area here and some beautiful country but in the Lake Cleveland area and these mountains in general there is a critical shortage of developed camping and picnicking sites.

Local pickles make good

The small community of Eden is the home base of the only pickle processor and packer in the mountain state area. Cellar, Inc., was started in 1971 by Joe Morgan, right, who used the recipe of his great uncle to launch the business. Morgan and partner, Mark Wilson, have been successful, selling 25,000 gallons of their pickles to groceries and restaurants from Boise to Pocatello.

New recreation vehicle offers patient freedom

© Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — An unusual recreational vehicle in Peoria, Ill., is giving new freedom to that area's kidney patients.

This camper is like no other vehicle in this country. Tucked away in it is a kidney dialysis machine. While there are several mobile dialysis units this is the only one designed so that a family with a kidney patient can take the patient on vacation trips without the worry of finding a dialysis machine.

"It was like taking off a pair of too-tight shoes," noted Pat Dunlop. "The freedom we had to come and go as we pleased was something we haven't enjoyed for a long, long time."

The vehicle is sponsored by several businesses in the Peoria area through a nonprofit company, Dialysis on Wheels. There's no charge for the vehicle but users pay for gas and oil.

The idea for the RV was the brainchild of George Burton, branch manager for Great West Life Insurance Co.'s Peoria branch; Bob Linder, executive vice president of Morton Metalcraft Co. of Morton, and Don Dunlop, one of Linder's employees.

Dunlop once mentioned that because his wife, Pat, was a kidney patient, they had to schedule vacations where a machine would be available.

"We all came up with the idea of why not put a dialysis RV?" Burton said.

So the three formed the nonprofit company for the RV-kidney machine. That was only the beginning.

Dunlop worked with Ron Thompson at Morton's plant converting the RV to house the dialysis unit — which itself takes up 30 cubic feet.

"They ended up ripping out the back half of the RV," Burton said.

It was finally tucked away without infringing on the living area.

Besides the unit, the modifications included rewiring to handle the extra power requirements, water storage tanks, a generator and an ice maker.

The project cost about $45,000 but the biggest obstacle was the insurance — $1,600 a year in premiums because of the medical equipment.

The first trip in the RV was by the Dunlops to Disneyworld in Florida.

"The RV means that a kidney patient can go anywhere the vehicle can go," Burton said. "He doesn't have to worry about the availability of a machine at his destination." Patients on dialysis are on the unit for six hours at a time three times a week.

The RV is booked for the summer and is used by patients in Peoria's tri-county area. A doctor must give approval for the patient to use the RV and a family member is checked on operating the unit.

Burton said several groups have inquired about constructing a similar vehicle in their communities but thus far have been stopped by the cost.

"For us, it's been a very rewarding experience," he said.

Convenience' indicated

Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — Grocery buyers care about low prices, but a friendly checker and a store close to home are very important too.

Those were some findings of data collected by the Progressive Grocer Co., which sponsored a grocery seminar here recently.

One indication that price isn't all-important is the increasing sales of "convenience stores" which don't seek shoppers through low prices and special sales. Edgar H. Walzer, Progressive Grocer president, said sales by convenience stores are growing by $1 billion a year and should hit $7.5 billion for 25,000 stores this year.

In addition to price, shoppers value a clean store, pleasant checkers, clear price marking, and a good produce department, said Jeffrey Schaeffer, executive vice president.

Schaeffer concluded that shoppers "aren't yet ready to sacrifice shopping pleasures for the sake of price. Walzer and Schaeffer were among the speakers to about 125 persons, mainly advertising agents and food manufacturers at the seminar.

Walzer said that retail food stores' sales climbed 9.5 per cent to $143 billion last year, the best year for retail growth that is being inflated into account, since 1972.

A major problem is the rising cost of energy. Walzer said that for independent stores, the average energy bill jumped 20 per cent and for chain stores 30 per cent last year.

"A large supermarket in metropolitan New York has to budget $1,000 a day," he said. Some stores have cut back on heating, air conditioning and lighting to cut costs, he said.

Schaeffer said that a survey of 1,000 weekend shoppers in Jewel Food Stores here and Acme stores in Philadelphia showed that coupon cashers and working women "spend more and faster than their opposite numbers."

Progressive Grocer provides information and conducts research projects and product sampling related to supermarkets. It is a subsidiary of American Can Co.

Wash your hands first

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

If you're a user of tobacco in any form, be sure to wash your hands before handling petunias, peppers, tomatoes, egg plants and other members of the "tomato family."

The reason? Tobacco mosaic spreads to these plants and could be a cause for poor growth. The best thing to use on your hands is ordinary milk. Just how milk neutralizes viruses of tomatoes, peppers and other crops is not easily understood.

Virologists seem to think that milk, being a collection of proteins, probably "ties up" or does something to the virus itself. Think of it as a lock and key arrangement, whereby milk plugs the lock so that the key can't turn or get in.

Good old fashioned soap is also good for neutralizing or washing off the tobacco mosaic virus from your hands. It's always a good idea not to smoke while handling flowers and vegetable plants because of danger of tobacco mosaic disease.

WHY HOUSE PLANTS DIE

Many readers tell us they buy a foliage plant, bring it home and then have it die off a few days later. What's the reason for this? One reason is "hot salts."

Growers of foliage plants in the south try to meet the demand for foliage plants during the "green plant boom" and to do this, many apply ten times as much fertilizer as is normally needed, to force the plants along.

As a result, the plants are shipped out with salts loaded with "hot salts," or to use a college term, "soluble" salts. These can be various chemicals which dissolve in water.

Where do these hot salts come from?

(1) Plant foods such as those containing ammonium, calcium, chlorides, magnesium, nitrates, potassium, sulfates, etc. Overfeeding produces lots of them.

(2) Fertilizer residues. Not all the nutrients are used by the plants. Take ammonium, sulfate for example. The nitrogen is taken up by the plant, and the sulfate remains.

(3) Water content. That white material you see on the outside of pots or on soil surface is due to chlorides or carbonates found in hard water.

Symptoms of hot salts injury: If your plant is stunted, hardened or wilts even though the soil is wet, look for root injury. Roots cannot take up water because the minerals in the soil "call" for water. The moisture comes from the roots. This hardens them, and the root loss means a hardening as well as a stunting of the plant.

Suggestion: Flush of "leach" out the excess salts. You leach merely by watering the soil heavily and repeating a second watering an hour later.

HOME GROWN RADISHES:

Radishes are among the easiest of all vegetables to grow, but they do have one problem - radish maggots. Several suggestions have been passed along for preventing maggot injury:

- (1) After seed is sown, pour boiling hot water over seed and row. Then cover with soil.
- (2) Dust seed and soil with Sevin.
- (3) Scatter wood ashes over the seed before covering with soil.
- (4) Dip seed in kerosene and plant while wet.

Another problem often encountered is botanically tops. This is due to seed sown too thickly. Sow about 1/2 inch deep in rows, and then thin each seedling 1 inch apart. Thicker than this produces lots of tops and no bottoms.

Also, make a succession planting every week or so throughout the cool period of spring (or early fall) so you'll have a crop of radishes over a long period - not all of them at once.

Good varieties: Champion (28 days), mild even when it gets extra large. Cherry Belle is another good one. Ideal for window sill gardeners or those who have a greenhouse.

Lonely winter turns into busy spring

HERNSHAW, W. Va. (UPI) - If it were not for his banjo and two cats, Jim Seaver might have pangs of loneliness.

For much of the year, Bee Mountain is his world. He's either weathering bleak winters in a cabin, or tolerating scorching summers in a 5-by-5 foot cubicle atop a seven-story-high tower.

He's one of a dying breed - a lookout for forest fires. These days Seaver is busy. The state is experiencing its worst rash of forest fires in a decade.

Nearly 1,000 fires have been reported this season in the six-county area Seaver surveys from his tower, located a few yards from his primitive cabin.

It's Seaver's job to observe a white column of smoke billowing up through the trees, to plot its coordinates and relay the information to the local fire department.

It's one of the quickest to reach edible size - 24 days and round as a marble.

STRAWBERRIES IN HANGING BASKETS

A real test of your green thumb is to grow strawberries in a hanging basket. Many are doing it now and with success.

There's an alpine strawberry, a variety of the cultivated fruit, which produces good berries of the prized fraises des bois type. These plants do not grow runners as do the outdoor types, but multiply into dense clumps which are easy to divide and make new plants.

Start them from seed and they'll fruit in six months. Indoors, they like a bright window, 72 degrees, and an occasional syringing.

Many nurseries are selling strawberries (outdoor types) in hanging baskets. They're quite a novelty and produce fruit the first year. Keep soil watered daily since most hanging basket plants dry out quicker than "grounded" plants.

WHITE SWEET CORN

You mention white corn to some people and they'll tell you it's "horse corn." Not so. Some sweet corn varieties are the most delicious of all.

Take Silver Queen, for example. It has 14 to 16 rows of pearly white kernels unsurpassed for sweetness. Spring white is another good early white corn, high in flavor. It ripens in 66 days.

Plant several kinds of sweet corn to make repeat plantings and you'll have ears early, midseason and late.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: E. D. of Twin Falls: Last year we grew some impatiens bought from a florist. It was the most beautiful plant we ever had and now we want to grow some from seed. Is it difficult?

Fatigue or saltana or "impatience" aren't too difficult to grow from seed. They start to flower from seed in about three months. The secret is to sow seed in a loose mixture, such as Jiffy-Mix, Red-Earth, Pro-Mix or one of the other soilless mixes.

Sow seed in a box and place a sheet of plastic or pane of glass over it. Do not cover with soil as they like light for germination. Keep them moist at all times. One drying out can be fatal!

They like heat - at least 72 degrees, both day and night. They are very susceptible to damage from low temperature. If fact, seed will rot if the temperature drops below 70. Seed germinates in 15 days so don't be impatient.

There are some new dwarf types (10 inch tall) coming in a variety of colors. And don't forget the elfin hybrids. These are self-branching and do not need to have the tips pinched out for bushiness. They are naturally dwarf, 10 inch high, and come in eight bright vivid colors.

There are tall varieties (15-20 inch high) which give you a dandy splash of color for sun or shade. We're lucky to have impatiens, begonias and coleus to grow in shady places where other flowering plants won't grow.

E. H. of Aberdeen: Is there such a thing as a dwarf mock orange, or is there a way we can keep ours trimmed so the plant won't grow so high?

There is a dwarf mock orange called Silver Shush, reaching a height of three feet or so, and there's a semi-dwarf called Glacier, reaching six feet or so. If your mock orange is one of the regular types, it may reach 10 feet or so. By occasional pruning you can keep it much lower, but you may sacrifice a few flowers.

Never shear a mock orange or you'll ruin its shape and floral display. Reach in with a pair of clippers and snip out a shoot here and there. Wait until after the bush flowers so you won't remove any buds for the year's show.

tower in Lincoln County in the southwestern part of the state.

At this point, forest rangers are alerted to assemble volunteers to fight the blaze.

"This is the worst I've ever seen it," said Seaver. "It's a Class Five day, and that's the highest risk for fires."

However, more and more these days, surveillance aircraft are being used to spot forest fires. Seaver says fire towers are being phased out in national forests and most states.

If the fire tower on Bee Mountain is deemed obsolete, Seaver says a permit license might end.

For now, though, he is content to sit in his log cabin during the winter, spending his time reading, or strumming his banjo. During the winter, he may go for weeks at a time without seeing another human.

Fragrant canine causes problems

By LINDA MERRY DVM
Question:
We have a little female dachshund, 4-years-old. Her trouble is anal glands, which causes her to have a terrible odor.
I have taken her to a veterinary to have it cleaned several times, but the odor always comes right back again. Do you have any suggestions?

anus becomes plugged, the secretions accumulate and often produce a "boll" which ruptures to the outside. The pain and pressure that go with this condition usually cause the dog to "scoot" on his tail, and lick the anal area and be as irritable as you might expect.
Treatment depends on the degree of affliction. A

merry pet

She is a darling little dog and we love her dearly, but the fumes from those glands are almost unbearable at times. Thank you for any help on this subject you can give.
Answer:
Ah, anal sacs. I never met a dog that wasn't endowed with two. For some dogs (and their owners) anal sacculitis is unknown. In fact, they don't even know where to look for these two little appendages. But in the owner whose dog has the problem, the mere thought of an anal sac produces revulsion. If not hysteria.
The anal sacs are two small pouches, about the size of a Pinto bean, located on each side of the anus. They're comparable to the scent glands of a skunk, and their secretion is almost as fragrant.
They serve no earthly purpose for the dog, unless it's to test his patience — Job fashion. Most dogs are able to express the contents of the sacs as they defecate.
However, if the duct that leads from the sacs to the simple impaction can be relieved manually whenever necessary, an abscessed sac requires lancing and antibiotics. A chronic infection calls for intense and repeated treatment, or removal of the sacs all together.

I would be willing to bet that your dog's anal sacs are infected. In that case, just expressing their contents won't relieve either her discomfort, or your nasal passages.
The anal probably lies in culturing the organism entrenched in—the sacs, testing it for sensitivity to various drugs, and then treating with the best of those—the odor persists after that, both glands can be removed surgically. This operation is delicate, and—time-consuming, but usually quite effective.
Certainly it's worth pursuing since the odor does not disappear when ignored. Furthermore, this particular scent defies ignoring. I'm sure anyone who's ever encountered it will join me in wishing you good luck, and God speed to the nearest veterinarian's office.

Guards on privacy of absent parents

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government is taking steps to protect information given to states about runaway parents who owe child support payments.
New rules, announced Tuesday, are intended to protect the privacy of individuals tracked down with the help of a Federal Parent Locator Service, administered by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.
HEW estimates about 14 million absent welfare fathers wish on $1 billion a year in court-ordered support payments that could be collected. The new service-to-states helps identify and locate them.
All data files will be protected by unique passwords and security codes," said HEW's revision of earlier rules.
Other changes explain the types of information that may be collected and recorded and how the records will be used, and state that records of address information "are maintained only long enough to communicate them to the state."
HEW said the revisions were made to comply with the Privacy Act of 1974.

Youth feel financial obligation

By SCHOLASTIC MAGAZINE EDITORS

Nearly all the teens recently surveyed by Scholastic Magazines feel once young people finish their schooling, they have a financial obligation to their parents.

"My parents raised me," says 16-year-old Helen Hooper Sharon, K.M. "To them, that was an obligation. I feel it. My parents need help — financially or mentally. I'll be there."

Sixty-two per cent of the 28,000 junior and senior high respondents feel they have a financial obligation to their parents. And 33 per cent feel such a commitment, but would help out "only in emergencies, or if their parents are unable to work." Only 5 per cent say they feel no such obligation.

Dr. Tom Blumenfeld, pediatric specialist with Columbia University's Physicians and Surgeons Hospital, today said that the nuclear family is less close, that kids are more out for themselves, that's not what these answers reflect. It is a great misconception that kids don't care anymore. My experience is that kids are responsive, responsible and interested people."

Recently, Scholastic asked: "Once finished with their schooling, do you think young people have any obligation to help their parents financially?"

	Boys	Girls	Total
a. Yes	61	62	62
b. Only in emergencies, or if parents are unable to work	35	31	33
c. No	3	3	3

Perhaps the bonds between generations are stronger than popular notion sometimes has it. Eighteen-year-old Mike Burhans of Chicago says, "You help your parents because they're your best friends, not because you're obligated. They're the ones who started this. They produced me."

"If they need money to put food on the table, or have a crisis, sure I'll help," says Mike. "But not if they want $500 bucks for a color TV."

To an Idaho girl the situation is even simpler. "If they needed it, and I had it, I'd give it to them. It would not be an obligation."

"Your parents raised you for 18 years," says Jim Cosgriff, 17, of Sheffield, Mass. "It cost them $70,000 for food, clothing, and education, according to a story in The New York Times. So you'd want to help them out, if only because you love them."

During the depression, many young people pitched in to help the household financially. Now, in the current recession, some young people face similar decisions.

Keith Wlening, 18, of Evergreen Park, Ill., recently found himself holding when his mother lost her job. Even though Keith's father continued to work, the family budget was strained. So, says Keith, who had a part-time job at a poultry club, "Every paycheck, I'd throw about half to help with the food."

Other young people say that even in good economic times, their parents might need their help. A long disabling illness is frequently mentioned.

"My parents are kind of elderly," says Kathleen Miller, who lives near Miami, Fla. "I could foresee if they'd be hospitalized, I'd be willing to take care of them. We're this together. If I'm in trouble they'll help me. If they're trouble, I help them."

For most of the young people, such a situation is more hypothetical than real. "I'd be happy to help out," says Vera Reagins, 16, of Gary, Ind. "But I don't think the problem will come up."

And some young people just feel like helping out of gratitude for their parents' help to them. A 15-year-old Michigan youth says that his parents are putting his two brothers through school. "That's costing them quite a bit — $500 to $800 a semester. When I'm ready, they're going to pay for me."

When he finishes his schooling, he says, "I was thinking I might save up and help them with something special. Buy them a car; maybe. They like to travel. Maybe I could send them on a trip to Las Vegas, or something like that."

Switch answer to TV problem

By BILL GRANGER

© Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — A friend of mine who has five kids has a problem. No, it's not the five kids. It's violence on television.

A few weeks ago, he finally laid down the law. The kids could not watch television after 8 p.m. on school nights. During work on current events, my friend knew that TV's blood and guts hour — starts promptly at 8 p.m. — fight after the sweetness and light family hour.

No, he's not afraid of his kids. He doesn't think they're going to grab a gun and go out and shoot someone just because they can ingest a couple of dozen murders a week on the tube. But he doesn't like the idea of them filling their heads with trash every night and "the special" doesn't like them to get a demeaning view of the worth of human life. One summer, he barred television from them but eventually relented. I know he wanted an ogre, but he's a nice guy and he's got nice kids.

"My problem," he told me the other day, "is that the kids say there are pretty good shows after 8 p.m. Some of the kids are older and can stay up, but don't want to have to monitor all the series to see which ones are violent and which aren't. I can't stand to watch that much television."

Well, maybe I can help him out.

Since I've seen about every series on television more than once this year, I thought I could provide him with a sort of negative guide to programs that really aren't suitable for kids. I dug out the ones that shows most kids' want to watch, but that's the way kids are.

Not all cops and robbers shows are as demeaning and violent as others. There is a kind of scale of violence and whether the violence is in context. For example, I don't think the Ellery Queen program on NBC Sunday nights would hurt any kid. It is a classic murder mystery, constructed like a puzzle, and the kids have an instinctive feel for the fantasy nature of it.

On the other hand, a reality had program like Police Woman gives kids a perverted sense of violence, humiliation in sex and a rough exposure to sadomasochistic tendencies in violent society. Adults shouldn't watch this trash, let alone kids. And that goes for President Ford, too. (Fortunately, it is his favorite show.)

Here, then, is my list of the really tough and violent series on the air now. I include one adult comedy that is too aggressive for younger kids. I hope it helps out my friend and you, too.

Sunday: Kojak. Most of the McCloud mystery movies. Bronk.

Outward Bound
 The exodus from the city to the suburbs is still going strong. Over the past five years, the suburban population rose by more than 18 per cent, while the cities' population shrank by 2.5 per cent. Continuing urban deterioration and financial problems are two major reasons why this trend is likely to continue, according to The Conference Board. By 1980, over 60 per cent of all metropolitan dwellers will live in the suburbs, up from 54 per cent in 1970.

Jigsaw Tuesday.

Police Woman. Rookies. City of Angels (these three are especially simple-minded in portrayal of casual violence). Wednesday: Cannon. Baretta. Blue Knight. Starsky and Hutch.

Thursday: Streets of San Francisco. Barney. Jones. Monday-to-Friday (10-11 p.m.). A note of explanation here: Streets and Jongs are included because of what I see as truly cynical use of casual murder to advance, muddering plot lines. Friday: Rockford Files. Police Story and the

Rookies (in reruns at 10:30 p.m.)

Saturday: Bonanza. W. A. F. Bert D'Angelo Superstar.

Remember the next time you get exercised over a piece of trash that has filtered onto the horizon that you are still the first line of defense for our kids. Baxte them with something else.

Or turn the thing off.

Disgusting creep profile drawn

© CHICAGO Daily News

CHICAGO — Most normal people were genuinely horrified by the recent heckling incidents in Madison, Wis. They have been asking: What kind of disgusting creep would split in the face of one presidential candidate, and make fun of the crippled condition of another?

The answer is: "The usual kind of disgusting creep. I have checked into his background, and there are no surprises. To begin with, his name is Ben Mossel, he is 21, and he was a student at the University of Wisconsin until he dropped out to devote all of his energies to being an obnoxious pain in the lower back. He is connected in some capacity with a rag called the Yipster Times, printed in New York. He now spends a lot of time in Kansas City, where he intends to be a nuisance during the Republican convention. He has been arrested many times in Madison for acting like a goof. That is his thumbnail sketch. No surprises, there."

For further information, we contacted his parents. They live in a suburb of New York City. It is upper middle class. The cheapest homes are in the $50,000 ranges. Most of the residents are professional people. The schools are excellent. The houses have lawns and big trees.

Ben's mother said: "Ben is very, very bright. He has a very, high IQ. He was a national merit semifinalist in high school.

Sports? No, he wasn't active in sports. But he is an excellent chess player."

No surprises. I have yet to run across a Yipple type who came out of a working class background. And Ben definitely couldn't have.

Why not? Let's say he had grown up in some city neighborhood.

Long before he got to be 21, he would have learned that it is not nice to spit in somebody's face, even if you don't like their political views.

The first time he did it — whether it was on the street corner, in the hallway in school, or in the neighborhood bar — somebody would have pummed large lungs on his very, very, very smart head.

Mike Royko

But the way Ben undoubtedly grew up, if he spit at someone, the school psychologist would have discussed it with him and his parents, and everybody would have finally concluded that maybe he was right. Or if not right, not entirely wrong.

I can only guess at that, though, because Ben's mother, and also his father, who was on an extension said they did not wish to discuss him further.

And a cat's blame them. One day the nurse puts this sweet bundle in your arms. You clothe him, feed him good nourishing food, teach him to talk, and send him to good schools, raise him with all the advantages, and send him away to a college.

Then you pick up the front page and there he is spitting in Henry Jackson's face.

No wonder so many people are using the Pill.

WASHINGTON — Shakespeare's anti-heroine, the Dark Lady of the Sonnets, remains as elusive and unyielding after almost 400 years of scholarly pursuit as she apparently was to the poet she inspired.

But in debunking the latest effort by a British scholar to identify the real Dark Lady, Dr. Samuel Schoenbaum of the City College of New York says all may not have been in vain.

The search has brought to light the lives of a variety of obscure but passionate Renaissance ladies. Schoenbaum says a guest lecture at the Folger Shakespeare Library.

The British scholar, A.L. Rowe, who claimed he had penetrated the enigma of the Dark Lady, in fact did not do better than any of his predecessors as a literary detective. Schoenbaum said.

But in pinpointing Amelia Landrey as Shakespeare's mistress and muse for the Sonnets, Rowe, like other scholars, has helped up to learn about intimate, day-to-day details of Elizabethan society that otherwise might never have surfaced. Schoenbaum said.

It turns out that Amelia was a poet and a feminist far before her time — discoveries made only after Rowe's startling, if premature announcement that she was the Dark Lady who inspired so many disturbing thoughts in Shakespeare's Sonnets. Rowe, Schoenbaum explained, came across Amelia in the papers of one of her sons, an American physician and lecher of high society in Elizabethan London. Amelia was a promiscuous, came from a musical family and was the right age to have been the Dark Lady. But a reference to her in Foreman's papers (which became the basis for Rowe's book "Sex and Sin in Elizabethan Society: The Life of Simon Foreman") as "brown" turned out on closer inspection to have been the word "brave."

At Wit's End

It's more than just the authoritative way in which a product is presented to us. I think Americans are just plain impressed with people who speak their language — even if it is their own.

It's dumb when you think about it. Take coffee. The housewife's authority on good coffee has to be Mrs. Olson. Old "Spauld maul" like a revolving door, spreading the richest kind of whole-bodied goodness wherever she goes.

Think about it. Sweden exports about 700 cups of coffee a year — not exactly their gross national product. So why should I believe Mrs. Olson?

My ballpoint pens — I was called sick and Claude Kelly sit before a roaring fire penning a bit of prose to someone with his new pen and went out and bought a couple of dozen. Since when is France the ballpoint pen capital of the world?

In penning the best built up myths about difmen, we all know it's Frenchmen like Louis Jordan who would send us poor or Englishmen like Puff Blow who would fly us to class anywhere in the world.

I even bought the bit from the Spanish beauty who said go out and buy my wine so I won't have to make any more commercials.

Face it. We're still under the influence of the old world. I expect any day now on the bicentennial minute to hear: "The voyage from Southampton to the Colonies was a rough one and would have been rougher without Mother Hill's Seaside Pillets. They soothed our tumblers, brought down fever, and took care of irregularities."

Who's arrived in their new country, feeling refreshed and ready to revolt. This is Queen Elizabeth and that's the way it was. That's the way it is.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Not all British naval efforts were hampered in battle by traditional military strategy. Britain's George Brydges Rodney learned new strategies in the process of discarding his nation's customary tactic of breaking the "line of battle" and shattering the French fleet in the West Indies in 1782. The "World's Almanac" recalls.

In a pickle, and liking it!

The big barrels and the smaller jars of Eden-produced dill pickles

By LINDA LEE
Times-News writer

EDEN Take two bright, educated young men, a treasured family tradition, and a commitment to making it outside the big city corporate system and you get Cellar, Inc., a pickle company in Eden.

Cellar pickles come in all shapes, sizes and flavors.

The business is grossing $60,000 a year now and with the current increase in orders will gross over $100,000 next year, according to the owners.

Joe Morgan and Mark Wilson are the young entrepreneurs who are betting on a good market for pickles.

Both spent years getting an education in business, economics and agriculture.

Joe has a B. S. in plant science and an M. S. in agricultural economics; Mark has a B. A. in business and economics.

Joe started the business in 1971 after he graduated from college. He says he came home to farm and decided the slow winter season might be filled with developing a business out of his great uncle's famous recipe for dill pickles.

Ellis Crabtree, the uncle, made and sold dill pickles on a small scale back in the 40s in Twin Falls. Then Joe's father Bill Morgan decided to use Crabtree's recipe to make the pickles in one of his potato cellars. He did it as a hobby for ten years and just gave them away to friends.

When Joe decided to carry on the family tradition, he says, "It seemed like a natural to farm in the summer and do pickles in the winter." But the pickles soon became a full-time successful business, and he stopped farming.

Mark came into the business two years ago. He says he was living in California at that time and did some market research for his old high school buddy, Joe. Then he decided to come back to the Magic Valley to handle the marketing end of Cellar pickles, while Joe managed the production end.

Before Mark came back he had been working in management consulting, mostly in Boise.

Joe and Mark grew up in Burley and attended high school together there.

The Cellar company grows its own cucumbers, dill and garlic for the production of Cellar pickles.

The pickle which launched the business is an old fashioned, fermented dill. Uncle Crabtree's original recipe has been adapted for commercial, large-scale production.

The cucumbers are planted in May and harvested in July and August. When they reach the cellar for processing they are conveyed on the trucks to a washer, then sorted by size and dumped into 50 gallon, wooden barrels with fresh dill and garlic.

The brine, a solution of salt water, vinegar and pickling spices, floods into the barrels and fermentation begins. At no time are the pickles cooked.

"It is a cold pack process from start to finish," which is why the potato cellar is such a good place to process the pickles. It provides a constant cool temperature and low cost storage.

After six weeks of fermentation, tumeric, a natural spice, is added to restore color to the pickles which are by now white. The barrel lids are sealed with wax paper and the pickles are left to cure for another six weeks. Then they are ready for market.

Cellar, Inc. also produces sweet pickles, three varieties of relish — sweet, hamburger, and honey — and bread and butter pickles. Joe and Mark are now experimenting with pickled peppers and pepper sauce.

To make the sweet pickles, the dill pickles are completely washed. Then sugar, cinnamon, clove, tumeric and corn syrup are added and these pickles are cured again.

The relish is the only cooked product that Cellar, Inc. makes.

Currently the firm is processing about 60 to 100 tons of cucumbers a year which make about 25,000 gallons of pickles.

The best market area is in the Magic Valley, particularly Twin Falls and Burley. But recently Cellar pickles have been going into stores from Boise to Pocatello.

Local stores at which the pickles can be purchased include Buttrey's and Smith's Food King in Twin Falls, Safeway's in Jerome and Burley, I. G. A. stores and several small groceries. Soon they will come to the Swensen's Magic Markets.

Cellar, Inc. is the only pickle processor and packer in the Idaho, Utah, Montana, Nevada and Wyoming area.

Joe and Mark say their prices are very competitive, considering that Cellar is a small business.

The pickles are also sold to wholesale distributors, like Pacific Fruit & Produce and American Strevell, Inc.

Over 50 per cent of their business is industrial use pickles sold to restaurants. Perhaps because these pickles only have to be sold to the restaurant manager, then each customer gets them.

With pickles sold off the shelf in grocery stores, it is different. Each customer has to be sold. Cellar, Inc. does not have an advertising campaign. Sometimes, promotions of the pickles are held in the stores, but mostly sales are made by word of mouth advertising.

In case you are already a fan of Cellar pickles, look out for a new label soon. Joe and Mark say they are now designing a label which will stand out a little more than the old label which didn't emphasize the name Cellar very much.

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: Is Bernie Cornfeld, who got into so much trouble when his financial empire collapsed, still in jail? T. A., Key West.

A: Bernie spent some time in a Swiss prison and is still entangled with the courts over his wheeling and dealing with Investors Overseas Services but he is now back at his Beverly Hills mansion and reportedly planning marriage. The polygamous financier is noted for his high living and his ever-present entourage of noble young women, has apparently found a partner whom he would like to be the mother of his children. She is tall, brunette Lorraine Armbruster, an American model who was working in Europe when she met still Mrs. Elkins and that's what counts at the moment.

Q: You reported recently that many of Playgirl magazine's readers are men. Do you know what the percentages of men and women readers are exactly? T. P., Los Angeles, Calif.

A: We actually reported that many readers were homosexuals although this was a rumor and not a fact born out by our readership surveys. The surveys do indicate that nearly half or 43.5 per cent of the readership are males. Of the males 66.6 per cent are married.

Q: Do you think Liz Taylor is sad or glad that she remarried Richard Burton in Africa? Also, on the Oscar telecast I thought she looked rather plump. Has she gained weight? W. L., Augusta, Me.

A: Liz confided to a Hollywood friend that marrying Richard again was a really big mistake on her part and she is sorry she did. Yes, Liz has gained about 15 pounds, enough extra weight to require a major overhaul of her extensive wardrobe.

Q: Does Ingrid Bergman still see her ex-husband, Roberto Rossellini? Q. J., Solon, Ohio.

A: Ingrid, who is filming her latest movie, "A Matter of Time," in Rome, is good friends with Rossellini and sees him often. She is particularly delighted that his most recent film, "The Messiah," has brought him success after a long dry spell. Besides their son Roberto who caused such a fuss by being born out of wedlock 24 years ago the couple had twin daughters after they were married. That which caused them to break up "he was so Italian and I was so Nordic and precise," says Ingrid.

Q: Which male stars have the biggest following among teen-age girls? H. D., Gary, Ind.

A: If we were calling the race we'd say that Robert Redford and Paul Newman are still at the head of the pack but showing some weariness. New stars Al Pacino and Robert DeNiro are moving up though they may be limited because they insist on playing unlovable characters. Dustin Hoffman and Jack Nicholson are too unpredictable and Charles Bronson is too old. Coming up fast are TV's Henry Winkler of "Happy Days" and, surprisingly, Chevy Chase of "Saturday Night." But the real danger may be Nick Nolte, who was such a hit on "Rich Man, Poor Man."

Q: Is Muhammad Ali still seeing that girl friend of his? K. M., Toledo, Ohio.

A: The normally talkative Ali has been clammed up completely of late on the subject of his private life. When asked at a recent interview, if there was any truth to the rumor that his long-time companion Veronica Forster, 24, was pregnant, he Champ simply looked at the ceiling and waited for the next question.

Q: Remember those stories of the actresses in the old Hollywood who worked in stag films before making it big? Are current porn films also a stepping stone to stardom? I. T., Galveston, Tex.

A: Not according to actress Eddy Williams, who performed in a soft-core movie and has now turned anti-porn activist, Eddy claims autobiography? T. T., Harrisburg, Pa.

A: James Morris, now Jan Morris, is continuing her career as a writer. Morris' specialty has been travel writing and 11 of her articles will appear in book form later this month. Early reviews describe the collection as "intoxicating," indicating that, although—the author has had some family problems, her talent has not been diminished by her transformation from man to woman.

Q: Does ballet dancer Rudolf Nureyev ever expect to go back to Russia? Y. C., Baldwin, N. Y.

A: Nureyev's chief concern is to get his elderly mother out of Russia for a brief visit at least. So far he has received no response from the Russians, even though President Ford has promised to do what he can to help. Nureyev's mother, Farida, is over 70 and lives in a remote area of Russia—without a telephone. The dancer has been careful never to say harsh words about the U. S. S. R. since he left.

Q: Audrey Hepburn seems to be getting growing older and not being an ingenue anymore. Does this reflect the general attitude of European women as opposed to Americans who fight encroaching age? T. C., Princeton, N. J.

A: Audrey has given a lot of interviews about how she likes getting older but close friends have suggested otherwise. She really hates getting old and is quite preoccupied with this fact of her life. Some suggest that all other talk about her cheerful acceptance of maturity is nothing more than whistling in the dark.

EDY

advice for aspiring porn queens nude film actresses are branded by producers as poor risks and almost never go on to roles in regular features. She warns prospective actresses that a single appearance in a porno flick might end their careers forever.

Q: Did ex-Queen Soraya of Iran ever remarry? P. E., Erid, Okla.

A: For years she has been following the migrations of jet-set society, for awhile in the company of actor Hugh O'Brian, but she has never married, since Iran's Shah divorced her in 1958 for not producing a male heir. Now, however, there is talk of marriage to an Italian industrialist named Massimo Garcia, 36, Massimo's relative youth obviously doesn't bother him as he has previously been the escort of Greta Garbo, Francine Sagan, and the late Aly Khan's good friend, Bettina.

Q: Why do I hear of so many people getting heart pacemakers? Is it a fad? A. J., Miami, Fla.

A: The Pacemaker is obviously a valuable medical device, prolonging the life of many heart patients. But, as the number of units implanted continues to soar, many are wondering if the Pacemaker's popularity is medically justified or is being artificially stimulated by doctors all too willing to perform the relatively uncomplicated operation for which Medicare pays out a whopping $2,000. Florida is the leading center of Pacemaker operations, where some doctors implant as many as three to four units a day. Investigations into this question are reportedly being planned.

Q: What happened to that writer named James Morris who had a back change operation and told all about it in an her future husband, Cornfeld says of Lorraine. "She's a lovely girl, a dull, but a bit clubby right now."

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Why is Richard Burton's face red? It seems that Burton likes to endlessly retell the story of his first love affair with the theater usherette. The actor sets the scene in front of a roaring fire which burned his feet after he had dazed off causing him to dream that he had gone to Hell for his youthful sin. Now the usherette has come forth in the British press to say that there was no affair, just a cup of tea; and as for the fires of Hell, there was nothing in the grate but cold ashes. At least Richard's story is more dramatic.

Q: When the Queen of England and the President of France visit the U. S. this year for the Bicentennial will they fly over in their super-sonic Concordes? U. V., Schenectady, N. Y.

A: Early indications were that both would arrive by SST but with the Concorde controversy now at such a delicate stage neither head of state is making any definite statement for fear of appearing too pushy. The problem is that the Queen's wardrobe trunks are too large to fit through the Concorde's narrow baggage doors.

Q: I read that actress Claire Bloom was back with her husband, Broadway producer Hillard Elkins. Didn't they break up long ago? Y. S., Columbia, S. C.

A: We can't understand why there are so many rumors about Claire, 45, and her six-year marriage to Elkins. She always seemed so sweet and demure. For a while she was supposed to be smitten with fellow actor Anthony Quinn. And now we hear she and writer Philip Roth "Portnoy's Complaint" are a twosome, in any case she is

Stage technician not retiring at 91

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The question has been put to him many times before, so Ed Bickel has an answer ready when asked why he doesn't retire after 65 years in the stage lighting business.

"You sit down too long and you begin to dry up," replied the 91-year-old Bickel.

And, Bickel says, there's work to do.

A short interview was interrupted by a telephone call for information on how to have a smoke effect on stage ("just bust up some dry ice, pour hot water over it and have a fan blow it across the stage") and two customers interested in buying small spotlights.

When Bickel went into the business, the lighting was done with gas lamps. "They were called limelights," he said. "That's where the saying, 'in the limelight' comes from."

The entertainment world also "was different with many burlesque shows going on every night—all needing lighting.

"Each show would have maybe three variable file acts and two production numbers. They didn't have the 'strip women' then. They brought that in later."

Now Bickel keeps busy with circuses, operas, ice shows, private parties and rock concerts.

"I work rock shows all the time," he said. "They smoke a lot of pot at them. It makes you dizzy. At least that's what the operators tell me. I never fool with that."

Bent with age, Bickel does need a little help with handling the larger spotlights, which can cost up to $7,500.

"I have the boys to help me," he said, adding that one of his "boys" reached the mandatory retirement age of 65 at another job.

Bickel's fondest memories are watching Sonja Henie skate and helping put on a production number called "Crossing the River Styx" which used moving clouds, rippling water, flying butterflies and angels and colored lights.

Looking at the busy streets, which were filled with horses when he first set up shop, Bickel acknowledges the vast changes but also indicates that some things never do change.

Asked the biggest difference now, he cutely said, "The price of stuff."

Legislative session memorable for birds

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Missouri Capitol is legendary for many reasons. With a rather dull legislative session, this year could well be remembered for the pigeons.

John A. Cooper, director of design and construction for the Office of Administration, asked the legislature for $50,000 to get rid of the pigeons and their messy legacy on the sidewalks and window ledges of the ornate, five-story domed statehouse on a hill in Jefferson City.

"It is not the first time. All past efforts to eradicate pesky birds from capitol complex failed.

In 1967, five employees of Cooper's predecessor, John D. Paulus Jr., were fined $50 dollars each for shooting what they thought were starlings making a nuisance on the grounds of the nearby governor's mansion. The birds were later identified as purple martins, protected by federal law and an international treaty.

The plain old everyday pigeon, however, is the problem at the capitol this year.

Thousands of them roost

in the nooks and crannies, eaves and porticos, cooing and flopping wings in noises loud enough at times to draw on nearby traffic. Steps leading government officials, legislators, employees and visitors into the building are sometimes completely covered and caked with pigeon droppings.

"We're going to take a 105 mm. howitzer out on the lawn and blast them out," Cooper joked when asked about his plans for the pigeons should he get the money down from the fourth floor and then they'll really be getting some pigeons.

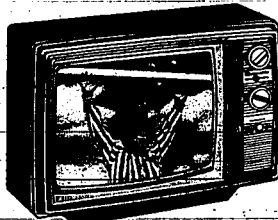

Offices of the legislators comprise most of the top three floors.

Cooper said a plan has not actually been devised yet. He did, however, say the pigeons would be killed only as a last resort.

"We have a number of alternatives," he said. "Our main attempt, as I see it, is to keep the birds from roosting. We can try this with electrodes or electric wires. We can try nylon netting, which entangles their feet and keeps them from roosting. We can plant poison grain or grain treated so as to render them sterile."
