

Shots end ordeal

SEVEN HOURS of negotiations between police officers and a Louisiana bank robbery suspect ended in a shootout near Fort Morgan, Colo., late Sunday, in which the fugitive died and a woman hostage was slightly hurt when she dived out of his car. Steve H. Coleman, 31, and his hostage, a former girl friend, Linda Richardson, 34, talked with reporters from the rear seat of their stolen car, above, at one point.

Later, Miss Richardson fled when officers closed in, below. She was treated for slight wounds from flying glass, right, and hospitalized. Another suspect in the Thursday robbery was arrested Saturday when police tried to obtain Miss Richardson's release. Police trailed the fugitives for several hundred miles across eastern Colorado. Candidates eye Nebraska upset

OMAHA (UPI) — The unlikely duo of Ronald Reagan, and Frank Church could make Tuesday's Nebraska presidential primary a double dip political upset in the already lopsided 1976 campaign. Reagan, the conservative former California governor, is expected to give President Ford a stiff test in the GOP contest. Church, the liberal Idaho senator, claimed to be gaining on Jimmy Carter in a crowded and confusing 11-man Democratic field. Ford and Carter still were the favorites as campaigning wound down over the weekend. Only Church, making his first primary effort here, remained today to seek votes in the state's two biggest cities, Lincoln and Omaha. "The President and the former Georgia governor had substantial leads in newspaper polls taken the last week of April. But that was before Reagan put together a string of four primary victories and before Church's campaign, by far the most strenuous of any candidate, had a chance to take hold. Ford came to Nebraska Friday and Saturday with his campaign staff clearly concerned. One aide said the contest could be "damn close," and some saw a possibility of one candidate winning the preferential "beauty contest" and the other capturing a majority of the state's 25-GOP national convention delegates. Carter also stumped the state late Friday and all day Saturday seeking to add Nebraska's 23 Democratic delegates to his front running total. Carter said his own late polls showed him "slightly ahead," but lumped Church with Sens. Hubert Humphrey and Edward Kennedy as his "observers." Humphrey and Kennedy are not active candidates and tried to get their names off the Nebraska ballot, but state law does not provide for disclaimers. Nebraska is not a "crossover" primary, as were Texas and Indiana. The results in those two states indicated a strong swing of Democrats to Reagan, but the Californian had to make his appeal here directly to the state's 377,500 registered Republicans. But the state, with the only all-GOP House and Senate delegation in Congress, is regarded as a conservative bastion and Reagan appeared to be getting a warm response in his campaigning which ended earlier last week. Church courted a crossover of his own. He repeatedly urged Democrats who backed Humphrey, Kennedy, Henry Jackson, Morris Udall, on the ballot but inactive here — and all the dropout candidates to unite behind him. He also appealed to a regional loyalty, urging Nebraskans to show those who regard Carter as a sure winner that the Midwest and West had not yet been heard from. The Nebraska primary is one of the nation's first, but from 1916 to 1952 went to the Republican nominee only three times. But in the last 20 years every Republican who has won the primary here has gone on to capture the GOP nomination.

Reagan's campaign visits TF Tuesday

BY DAVE HORSMAN AND CHRIS PECK
TWIN FALLS — Ronald Reagan, riding a crest of recent primary election victories, brings his presidential campaign to Twin Falls Tuesday. The former California governor will fly into Twin Falls at 1:30 p.m. and deliver a 2 p.m. speech from the bandshell at the downtown City Park. He will depart for Boise at 3:30 p.m. Reagan will face President Ford in Idaho's May 25 presidential primary election. Two Secret Service men, escorted by Idaho State Police, will accompany Reagan to all persons who will ride in Reagan's automobile. And, the Secret Service is "checking out" the City Park to see whether it is a suitable location for Reagan's public speech. After Reagan's four primary victories last week security around the former governor has been tightened, according to Nancy Havin, a campaign worker for Reagan in Twin Falls. An additional 10 to 12 Secret Service men will fly into Twin Falls with Reagan tomorrow. "The name, age, and social security numbers of local newsmen and supporters of Reagan were collected for the Secret Service Friday by Havin. She said the information was needed to get a security clearance for those who would be near Reagan in Twin Falls. The extent of security involvement by local law enforcement agencies had not been determined early today. Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corrier and City Police Chief Frank Barnett said a meeting was scheduled for 2 p.m. today with the Secret Service to make security arrangements. A statewide poll published by the Idaho Statesman Sunday showed Reagan leading Ford by a two-to-one margin. In a poll of 588 voters in 23 of Idaho's 44 counties favored Reagan in the preference survey, while only 33 per cent supported Ford. The poll showed a dramatic turn around since an earlier survey in April when Ford was the frontrunner with 52 per cent and Reagan behind with 47 per cent. Reagan will speak in Idaho Falls Tuesday before coming to Twin Falls. "At Twin Falls City-Country Airport he will be greeted by local dignitaries and will field questions from members of the local press before taking a motorcade to the park. The motorcade is expected to enter Twin Falls on Blue Lakes Boulevard South, turn onto Main Avenue and take Shoshone Street to the park. Reagan will "speak a few minutes and then open it up for questions and answers," according to Mrs. Havin, Twin Falls coordinator for the event. She said the Sun Valley Trio, a musical group, will begin playing at the park about 12:30 p.m. and the Twin Falls High School pep band will greet Reagan when he arrives. School Supt. George Staudacher said classes will not be dismissed for the visit, but students will be excused at the request of parents.

Indian backs Henry's idea

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — India today applauded proposals put forward by the United States and France at the U.N. Conference on Trade and Development for closing the gap between rich and poor nations. Indian Commerce Minister D.P. Chatterjee said "some new and positive ideas are now emerging from some developed nations" on the issues before the conference. Chatterjee later told reporters he was referring to ideas advanced last week by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and French Finance Minister Jean-Pierre Fourcade.

Fresh look at Warren data hinted

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Idaho Sen. Frank Church, stepping briefly back into his role as head of the Senate Intelligence Committee, said today a report will be released soon that may prompt another look at the Warren Commission report on the assassination of John F. Kennedy. "I believe there will be a new call for a further look at the Warren Commission work," Church said during a news conference on the final day of his Democratic presidential primary campaign in Nebraska. It is the senator's first outing as a presidential candidate.

today in brief

Ford asks for another billion
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress today for $1.1 billion more defense spending to help pay for an additional nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, four more guided missile frigates and one more fleet oiler. In a message to Congress, Ford said the money also would speed development of a vertical-short takeoff and landing warplane and other alternatives to large deck aircraft carriers. Ford asked the money be added to his requests for the fiscal year 1977 budget.

Rocky calls for block on Reds
PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Vice President Nelson Rockefeller today urged free nations to block the spread of communism to prevent what he called a "new empire in which the Soviet sun never sets." Rockefeller, here to address the opening session of the International Press Institute's annual conference, also told reporters he would not accept a draft for the Republican presidential nomination.

Ray loses bid for new trial
CINCINNATI (UPI) — James Earl Ray, the confessed assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who now claims he is innocent, today lost his latest attempt to change his guilty plea and stand trial. The U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, in a unanimous 3-0 ruling, decided that Ray had intelligently and voluntarily pleaded guilty to killing the civil rights leader and had received competent legal advice.

Jet wreckage yields 11 bodies
MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Army rescuers recovered 11 charred bodies today from the wreckage of an Iranian air force Boeing 747 cargo jet that crashed in a rainstorm on approach to Madrid airport Sunday, killing all 17 or 18 persons aboard. Spanish police and aviation authorities said the plane carried 17 persons on its flight from Teheran to Maguire Air Force Base in New Jersey. Aviation sources in Teheran said they included four Americans training Iranian personnel in the operation of the wide-bodied plane.

Idaho jobless rate declines

BOISE (UPI) — Unemployment fell off slightly in Idaho during April, but the State Department of Employment said today the drop "doesn't signify any sizeable improvement in economic conditions." The department added, however, the decrease was a "welcome change in direction" after two consecutive months of increase in the unemployment rate. After reaching a high of 7.1 per cent seasonally adjusted in March, it dropped to 6.3 per cent during April. Last year in April the unemployment rate was 7.8 per cent. While unemployment fell by 3,000 during the first three months, the department said, employment "leaped" by 12,000 — a 3.5 per cent increase. "That kind of growth can be expected to continue throughout 1976," the agency said. One reason, the department said, was about 5,000 people gave up looking for work last year. "Either their traditional source of employment dried up or job prospects in the economy appeared dreary," the agency said. "Since they are not actively searching for employment they are not counted as unemployed."

Oil aides meet

PARIS (UPI) — Finance Ministers of the 13 nations of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met in Paris today under stringent security precautions to discuss aid to underdeveloped countries. More than 2,500 police in uniform and plain clothes were stationed inside and outside the International Conference Center near the Arc de Triomphe when the three-day meeting opened.

Right shoulders dip

By BOB JOHNSON
Special to the Times-News
SALMON — Of 885 students found without any posture defect in Salmon schools, a fourth of them did have a low right shoulder. "This is not affecting their spinal column at all but it might be a notice to parents to encourage their children to carry objects in both arms or during the growing years first in one hand then another," Nan Clackador, registered physical therapist who conducted the testing, advised. She said the high incidence of low right shoulder is due to right-handedness resulting in the students using that side more. "This could lead to spinal problems in the future but these children are not showing any spinal problems now," she said. The posture testing was conducted on 882 students in all 12 grades. Ten per cent of the total showed posture defects or 97 students. Only seven had a structural condition which required immediate treatment.

Rubber strike talks resume

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Economic issues were the focal point of today's talks aimed at ending a 29-day-old strike by the United Rubber Workers Union against the nation's leading tire makers. UAW President Pete Bommarito, who calls the walkout the worst crisis the union has faced since its formation four decades ago, and company negotiators have made it known they would like to end the dispute.

Italian quake death toll near 1,000

UDINE, Italy (UPI) — Two new tremors shook northern Italy's disaster area today, and a government spokesman said the death toll from Thursday's earthquake would soar over the 1,000 mark. An army of soldiers and volunteer rescuers dug through the ruins of two dozen quake-shattered mountain communities for the fourth day and officials said their original estimate of 1,000 dead may have been too low. "When we first spoke of 1,000 dead, it was what we feared," Udine prefecture spokesman Natale Labita said. "Now we are almost there and we fear it will be even more." Police said 815 bodies had been recovered from the rubble of 10 Italian towns and villages hit by the Thursday earthquake and 523 had been identified. Police reported about 1,300 injured. Digging resumed at dawn among debris made shakier Sunday by a heavy downpour and officials would not estimate how many bodies they believed were still there. Reports from outlying villages said at least three persons were found alive under the rubble Sunday. Officials said it would be several more days before isolated hamlets can be combed for bodies or survivors. Two more shocks, measuring between 5 and 6 on the 12-degree Mercalli scale, were felt in the area before and no new damage or casualties were reported. The aftershocks were intense enough to cause only moderate damage under normal circumstances, but scientists said they could have caused the collapse of buildings weakened by the main shock. They did not even awaken many refugees in their army tents or railroad cars. Aftershocks of the quake, however, were felt over a wide area of northern Italy. In Bolzano, 100 miles to the northwest, a 6.0-pound marble statue came crashing down 150 feet from the belltower, smashing through the green-tiled roof of the apse. The fire brigade said the statue was apparently weakened by Thursday's shock and toppled Monday by a heavy wind. "There is no great problem with the shocks, but the weak masonry things very difficult for the sun and the wind," an Italian interior ministry spokesman said in Udine. Rescuers working through heavy rains appealed for tents to shelter the thousands left homeless by Thursday's killer quake. National police said 815 bodies had been recovered and 523 had been identified. Rescue and search coordinators said the final toll might top 1,000.

FBI 'black baggers' busy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI conducted more than 200 illegal "black bag job" break-ins — against domestic groups between 1949 and 1962 without telling the Justice Department, a Senate committee staff report said today.

The report, latest in a series released by the Senate Intelligence Committee, said former FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover outlawed the practice for use against domestic targets in 1962 for undisclosed reasons.

It quoted from a 1962 staff memo by former assistant FBI director William C. Sullivan, saying the technique was "clearly illegal" and that the latest report said "black bag" entries against at least 15 targets were reported from 1,000 other break-ins made to install hidden microphones or wiretaps.

It said the FBI reported at least 239 entries between 1949 and 1962, more than 200 of them in the post-World War II years and some of them, involving repeated entries against the same targets.

Despite Hoover's ban, the report said there was evidence one illegal truck was made against a "domestic subversive target" between 1966 and 1968.

Targets included the Ku Klux Klan, the Socialist Workers Party and its affiliates, and an unidentified "white hate organization."

The report said in most cases the FBI was able to obtain keys for the break-ins from cooperative landlords or neighbors, but if this was impossible, agents, especially trained in "lock studies" were available to open doors and safes.

One SWP affiliate was such a frequent target the FBI even had written instructions to burglarize the offices of the report said. The FBI carefully avoided mention of break-ins for any purpose to higher officials, the report said.

It quoted an FBI official who briefed former attorney general Robert F. Kennedy on bugging operations as saying he was "purposely vague" and that Kennedy may not have been aware break-ins were used to plant the bugs.

Japanese lobbyist indicted

TOKYO, UPI — Right-wing lobbyist Yoshio Kodama was indicted today on charges of violating Japan's foreign currency control law by receiving secret payments totaling almost $1.5 million from Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

The two-count indictment against Kodama, 65, Lockheed's secret sales agent in Japan, was filed by the Tokyo District Prosecutor's office.

It came within an hour after a special police task force investigating Kodama's relationship with Lockheed had submitted a final report recommending that Kodama be prosecuted.

Former Lockheed executives testifying before a U.S. Senate subcommittee on April 28, 1975, said they had secret sales agent in Japan from 1958-1975.

They also said that during those years Kodama was paid more than $7 million of the $12 million Lockheed Aircraft Corp. secretly to promote sales of military aircraft and jetliners.

CSI alumni unit honors 2 women

TWIN FALLS — Two women were honored at the 10th anniversary meeting of the College of Southern Idaho Alumni Association Friday night.

Dr. Adelle Thompson, dean of women, and Mary Grace Cox, who has served as both president and historian of the association, received certificates of achievement from Elvin Brown, Twin Falls, president.

The presentation was made at a dinner at the Turf Club which preceded the CSI graduation ceremony. The women were cited for their work in establishing the alumni group and hosting the reception for the graduates for the past 10 years.

Dr. Thompson and Mrs. Cox are the only 10-year members among this year's graduates. A history of the alumni group was read by Dr. Thompson, who said a computerized list of all CSI graduates has been compiled.

Theme for the dinner was "Smile for yours is the future forever." A seven-foot banner welcomed the alumni and tables were decorated with 18-inch smile plaques.

Japanese lobbyist indicted

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Communist, Socialist and other underground-left-wing groups called a general strike in the Navarre region today to protest the slaying of a youth by Tommy gun-carrying rightists.

Ricardo Tillegra, 19, died Sunday and 23 other persons were wounded when rival monarchist groups clashed during the annual pilgrimage to Montejuar, the "holy mountain" of the Carlist movement.

In a separate incident Sunday, suspected Basque separatist guerrillas wounded a member of the paramilitary Civil guards in a gun battle outside Martunone prison in the northern town of San Sebastian.

The gunfire started when a group of civilians lingering near the jail opened fire on a police patrol, police said. It was not known whether any of the suspected separatists were injured in the gunfire.

The red-breasted Carlists are left-wing, dissident monarchists who support exiled prince Carlos Hugo de Borbon y Parma for the Spanish throne now held by King Juan Carlos de Borbon y Borbon, a distant relative. Carlos Hugo secretly returned to Spain to lead the pilgrimage.

Representatives of 10 underground left-wing parties told a news conference today a general strike in Navarre, in Spain's northern Basque country, was to be a protest against "right-wing assassination of workers."

The violence was sparked by a conservative faction of the Carlists that opposes Prince Carlos Hugo's leftist politics.

Spanish leftists call strike

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Communist, Socialist and other underground-left-wing groups called a general strike in the Navarre region today to protest the slaying of a youth by Tommy gun-carrying rightists.

The violence was sparked by a conservative faction of the Carlists that opposes Prince Carlos Hugo's leftist politics.

bars, the conservatives attacked 6,000 left-wingers at a monastery at the foot of the mountain, injuring several.

Later, Carlos Hugo tried to lead his followers to the mountain top for traditional Carlist rituals. He was shot by his rightist brother, Sixto de Borbon y Parma.

Gathered around Prince Sixto's fleur-de-lis family flag, the right-wingers ordered the pilgrims back, then opened fire with Tommy guns when they refused to stop.

Carlos Hugo, barred from Spain since 1968, and his wife Princess Irene — a daughter of Dutch Queen Juliana — were less than 50 feet away from where the first row of marchers were mowed-down by bullets, witnesses said.

The wounded were carried down the mountain and the memorial services held at a spot out of reach of the right-winger's guns. In a statement, Carlos Hugo, 46, renewed his claims to the throne and demanded a socialist, federated Spain.

The Carlists fought with the late Generalissimo Franco in the 1936-39 civil war, but most of them turned against him and adopted a socialist program after he named Juan Carlos to the throne.

Only Sixto's group remained loyal to Franco's regime.

Bernhard cleared

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (UPI) — The government-appointed panel investigating allegations that Prince Bernhard received $1.1 million to promote Lockheed aircraft in the Netherlands has found him innocent, a Dutch newspaper said today.

A spokesman for the panel, however, said, "the report is completely on the newspaper's account. I have no comment on the contents."

The newspaper Algemeen Dagblad said, "Prince Bernhard has not received one cent from the Lockheed bribe monies. The three-month-old investigation... has shown this. The Dutch government knows of this."

But a government spokesman said he did not know of a panel report having been submitted to Prime Minister Joop Den Uyl's government.

The panel of "three wise men" was created in February to probe widespread allegations that the "high Dutch official" cited in U.S. Congressional hearings on the Lockheed payoff scandal was actually Bernhard, Queen Juliana's 61-year-old consort.

First test passed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — President-elect Elias Sarkis appeared to have mastered the Christian challenge today by calming a fierce battle in the mountains northeast of the capital.

Sarkis held intensive telephone consultations with Palestinian guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat and other leaders to try to stop the fighting among the mountain peaks and snow-capped cragtops of the central Mount Lebanon region.

Rightist Christians around the mountain towns of Ain-tourah and Mein had pushed forward with American-made tanks and heavy artillery in a drive to dislodge leftists from a road leading to the Christian center of Zahlé.

Reports from the combat zone said the clashes died down by afternoon.

The fighting climaxed more than 500 lives in a week and threatened the fragile ceasefire between leftist and right-wing forces in Beirut's ravaged port and downtown areas.

Political sources said Sarkis may soon hold a meeting with Socialist Kamal Jumblatt in an attempt to forge a vital reconciliation between his regime and the leftist alliance.

Throughout the country many innovations have been applied to funeral processes in an effort to reduce their potential traffic hazards.

Two new trends are becoming evident in the heavily populated eastern states. In the New York City area many interments are private — only the family goes to the cemetery; in some New England cities it has become customary for the committal time to be announced at the conclusion of the funeral service. Friends who go to the cemetery do so individually, they receive an appointment card and thereby eliminate the funeral procession. Both of these plans effectively reduce funeral customs, and at the same time reduce traffic hazards.

There is much to recommend either procedure. If it is anyone's wish to eliminate the procession to the cemetery, we easily can arrange to do so.

Question

Funeral processions to a cemetery seem to be a traffic hazard in addition to being old-fashioned. Most funeral customs have been updated and many have been eliminated. Has this remained unchanged?

Interior chief predicts coal leasing due in '77

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The time for delay in expanding federal coal resources has ended, Interior Secretary Thomas S. Kleppe said today, predicting the government will start issuing competitive coal leases around mid-1977.

Private industry can finish President Ford's goal of mining 4 billion tons of coal a year by 1985 and still protect the environment, he said. But there will have to be compromises on both sides.

Kleppe's remarks were prepared for delivery to the American Mining Congress in Detroit. The text was released in Washington.

"It's not a question of trading in the environment for stripmined coal," the interior secretary said. "It is, however, a question of reclaiming that coal as an alternative for this country's economic health and international standing."

"It will be far easier to reclaim the environment as we remove coal from the surface, than to reclaim our independence from foreign oil,"

he said. "The time for delay has ended."

Kleppe recently lifted a moratorium in effect since 1971 on leasing coal reserves located on government-owned land. He said his department will complete a mid-line new regulations to govern competitive leases.

It plans to ask industry, state governments and the public next month to nominate federal mining tracts which should or should not be leased, he said.

"These nominations will tell us where the demand is for coal leases," he said. This will be followed by environmental impact statements and other planning stages with a lead time of up to 10 months, so we don't expect to be leasing coal on a competitive basis until mid-1977."

Priority will be given to applicants for leases which show the best potential for prompt development, he said, in light of the nation's energy crunch.

New standards will require companies which now hold leases for 16 billion tons of coal, to get production underway "in a timely manner" or lose their federal leases. "Our rough estimates show that for environmental and economic reasons only about 10 billion tons from current leases can be mined," Kleppe said.

Trees planted

RUSSELL Manwarring, Soil Conservation Service, assists in the planting of a Scotch pine on the Shoshone courthouse lawn. Shoshone elementary and high school students helped plant about 10 trees on the courthouse lawn and at the city park. The trees at the courthouse were purchased by the county commissioners as replacements for others which had died and the trees for the park were memorials given by residents.

Hughes estate claims 'pour in'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The judge assigned to the Howard Hughes case says he's received some "incredible mail" from persons who think the billionaire meant to mention them in his will.

Judge Keith Hayes, who will help determine if the hand-written will found last month is valid, said he "also received one threatening call warning that 'the judge is going to die.'"

Hayes said he'd been contacted by friends he hadn't heard from in 20 years and is sometimes stopped on the street by people who jokingly suggest he cut them in on a piece of the estate's action.

"I've received some incredible mail, there is no other way to describe it," Hayes, 41, a soft-spoken former state legislator, said in an interview.

"One letter from Japan suggested the real Hughes will was in the possession of a serviceman in Korea."

"Another came from a woman who said she hit chibuked an airplane ride from Hughes while she was wearing hot pants.

"Some are pathetic letters from persons with tormented minds. They are rambling and incoherent. Every other word is 'conspiracy,' 'plot' or 'mafia.' The writer feels he is the one who is sorely oppressed because he has been left out of the will."

Hayes said persons who really think they deserve a share in the estate shouldn't waste time writing to him or contacting him in person.

"The only way to stake their claim, he said, is to file legal papers. He also plans to remind the letter writers and others that making a false claim against the estate is a felony.

A Mormon, Hayes said he felt no conflict of interest over the will's one-sixteenth bequest, an estimated $125 million, to the church.

"The role of the church is to preach the gospel and not to make money," he explained, saying the church would probably receive the money if he did something illegal.

"This matter will go on for years," he said. "How many, no one knows."

Biggest 'catch' comes up missing

SANDPOINT, Idaho (UPI) — Thanks to some Kamloops-loving thief, Charlene Hutchinson doesn't have her prizewinning fish anymore but the $1,000 she won Saturday should make up for it.

Her 24-pound, two-ounce catch was the biggest during Sandpoint's Kamloops and Kokanee Week and earned her top prize.

Unfortunately, the St. Maries, Idaho, resident's fish was stolen earlier last week while on display.

Kamloops and Kokanee Week is this northern Idaho community's annual celebration to mark the start of fishing season at Lake Pend Oreille. The Kamloops is a freshwater salmon first planted in the massive lake

Auction benefits center

BOISE (UPI) — The Fantasy '76 auction raised more than $200,000 for the proposed Morrison Center Saturday night, the largest amount ever raised by the charity auction.

The first item on the auction block — two lifetime seats at the center — raised more than $2,000. It's $1,000 for the tickets for $12,000 and then donated them for auction.

Velma Morrison purchased them the second time, for $13,000. Mrs. Morrison said the two seats will be given to the Boise Senior Citizen Association.

Other items auctioned during the evening were a home for $27,000; a trip for two to Mazatlan, Mexico for $1,100; and a peach-colored dress that brought $450. A $500 scholarship to the College of Idaho brought $500.

The Morrison Center bond election will be held Tuesday May 11 in Boise. A two-thirds majority is needed to pass the measure.

Spain remains under Franco's hand

By MILT FREUDENHEIM

Chicago Daily News

MADRID — The dead hand of the dictator still lies heavily on Spain.

According to a grim joke making the rounds here five months after Generalissimo Francisco Franco's death, he is appearing in "visions" to government ministers. They immediately snap to attention and await orders.

In the office of Premier Carlos Arias Navarro, a holdover Franco caretaker, an aide insists that the government is sincerely moving toward democracy.

But Arias' men are equally insistent that they cannot disown the past. Franco's 36 years of iron-fisted, one-man rule is the only "legitimacy" behind the Arias government.

Even King Juan Carlos, who will make his first official visit to the United States June 4, still owes his crown only to Franco, despite his royal family tree.

"We are living in a political vacuum," said a close friend of the king. "The only power is in the army, which wants to stay out of politics, and the police."

The police are being used by Vice Premier Manuel Fraga Iribarne, 53, who is interior minister, to promote himself as successor to Arias, said another official who sees a lot of the king.

Fraga, a former ambassador to London, was considered too liberal for the top job by the Franco-appointed royal counselors. They forced the king to retain Arias in December. Now the interior minister is trying to prove them wrong by lifting the police crack heads, arresting striking workers, students in the university and outspoken priests.

His friends say Fraga wouldn't condone the torture which Communists suspects allegedly are undergoing at Madrid police headquarters. But as interior minister, he is responsible.

"He wants to show the army and the center-rightists that he can keep order," the official said. By so doing he appears to have made himself unacceptable, however, to the opposition.

The army has three main demands on the government," the official added. "Law and order, suppression of communism, and preventing separatism in the Basque and Catalan provinces."

Fraga's police convinced him that the bombing-torn Basque ETA extremists were plotting with the Communist party to bring down the government by May 1, an Arias aide said.

In response hundreds of suspected revolutionary, including Marcelino Camacho, head of the underground Communist-led trade unions, have been imprisoned.

"They will be freed by July 25," the premier's spokesman promised. But then Arias hopes to have set in motion his program for partial democracy leading to the first general elections since before the 1939 civil war.

"The country is to be asked to vote in a referendum in October approving a new two-house Parliament with one house directly elected. A second part of the referendum would change the laws of succession for the king, amounting to implied approval of the institution of monarchy."

A young Madrid woman recalled the last Franco referendum she witnessed in a small town. "They put the 'yes' ballot box in the city hall and the 'no' box in the police station," she said. "Only one ballot was cast in the town."

Arias hasn't said so yet, but the premier's assembly to sweep aside Franco's heirs.

"They want to force us to say that victors were wrong in the civil war and that the Communists, the losers, were right," Arias's aide objects.

This battle over a past which two-thirds of the population is too young to remember recalls the medieval church's insistence on religious conformity 500 years ago in the Spanish Inquisition, one American observer remarked.

The premier is counting on approval by mid-June of new laws to permit peaceful meetings and demonstrations, and to allow political parties.

His timetable calls for election of the new lower House of Parliament in January or February, and the first direct election of municipal officials the following month.

The present Parliament, the Cortes, would be modified and continued as the new upper house or senate.

Arias is confident the Cortes will pass his measures. Its 560 members include 30 diehard Franco devotees, opposing all change, and another 80 considered open-minded. The rest are believed to be open to pressure.

The new senate will include the present 40 Franco-named senators-for-life plus new appointees named by the king and representatives chosen by the city councils, professional organizations, and the official labor syndicate. Until the dictator's death Nov. 20, all of these aides promise that political parties — except the Communists — will be free to campaign before the referendum.

Parties will be obliged to register with the interior ministry, promise to uphold Spain's laws, and reject violence and totalitarianism.

This formula is intended to bar the Communist party and split its present unity with Socialists, Christian Democrats, and Monarchists opposing Arias's slowness in permitting democracy.

The opposition front known as the Plata Junta, insists all parties should be free to operate. It demands a referendum on Spain's form of government, the monarchy itself, and free elections for a constitution-writing congress." The Communists also plan to organize a boycott of the referendum. Sanchez calls it "a sham."

But the party which Arias and Interior Minister Fraga regard as a "foreign-directed subversive front" is trying to follow an Italian-style policy of peaceful confrontation with the police at all costs," Sanchez said. Government threats to suppress any demonstrations on May 1 were countered by rather mild, scattered gatherings of workers and party members.

The party is seeking to contact church and army leaders, businessmen and reformists in the government, Sanchez said.

A leading businessman pointed out that Spain needs real democracy before it can get into the European Common Market.

The Communist notes that many business officials are looking for responsible partnership sign labor agreements that will be kept. Communist unions have done well with this approach in Italy.

A national wave of strikes in January, February and March involved 3 million workers, said Nicholas Sarcotius, a leader of the underground unions. He said the strikes "broke the government wage freeze, freed us more active members, and convinced politicians on the moderate right to join in the Plata Junta union coordination."

The strikes also worried the army and right-wing Franco-followers, bringing on the police crackdown, especially after a mob riot in Viloria in the Basque region in early March. Police fired on the crowd, killing five persons.

Socialist Pablo Castellano warns that other parties need time to unite their splintered factions and compete with the Communists. "The Communists still are the only real national party," a business man agreed.

Public opinion expert Sebastian Del Campo points out that recent polls show the Spanish public is skeptical about politics after 36 years of Franco rule.

Prof. Del Campo, who did graduate work at the University of Chicago, 1955-1957, found that 50 per cent offer no choice or no opinion when asked their preference for a political party.

The loosely coordinated Plata-Junta parties get 37 per cent, while the Franco Flangists and Nation Movement get less than 3 per cent.

The public is far more interested in economic issues, jobs and prices, than in politics. It is pro-King Juan Carlos by 64 per cent and says it is satisfied with the present government, rating it good or excellent by a total of 62 per cent.

The Communists poll less than 2 per cent in the three latest polls. Prof. Del Campo appraises the no-choice, no-opinion results and finds the conservatives will ahead with 40 per cent, the left, 29 per cent (including 5 for the Communists), and the center, 26 per cent.

"The leftist parties are weak," he said. "People have to be taught the generally accepted meanings of words such as 'federalism' and 'political parties,' which they have been told are dangerous and bad."

"We need time and patience to make a peaceful changeover to democracy," Del Campo added.

But after 10 years of telling each other, "wait until Franco dies," patience among the politically active is in short supply. "Franco has been dead five months now, and nothing has happened," Socialist Pablo Castellano complained bitterly.

The 'ole swimming hole

Why Gov. Reagan comes to Idaho

The frontrunning candidate for the Republican presidential nomination comes to Twin Falls Tuesday.

Former California Governor Ronald Reagan, riding the crest of four consecutive primary victories over President Ford, comes to Idaho tomorrow in anticipation of the May 25 presidential primary.

Idaho's primary, along with those in other western states, are crucial to Reagan.

If he wins a few more skirmishes with Ford in the West, the President will be packing up his tent and moving back to Grand Rapids, Michigan.

Only a few weeks ago Republicans were telling Reagan to do the packing.

Struggling through defeats in New Hampshire, Florida, and Pennsylvania, Reagan's political base was written off as representing only the right wing of the Party.

In the month of April, Reagan rode back out of the sunset.

In smashing victories in Texas, Georgia and Indiana, Reagan suddenly scored extremely well among independents, Republicans and conservative Democrats.

His political acceptability rose by leaps and bounds, pulling in the George Wallace vote, the anti-Watergate vote, the conservative vote.

After Republican caucuses in Wyoming and Oklahoma this weekend, Reagan held a commanding lead in national delegates over Ford. Reagan had 400 committed delegates, Ford only 336.

Perhaps more significant, Reagan continues to get the public's attention on issues which Ford doesn't like.

Instead of playing up the continued economic recovery, Ford must incessantly debate the Panama Canal and Henry Kissinger — two issues of Reagan's choice.

The former California governor isn't particularly well-versed on foreign policy matters but he is extremely well-educated on how to run a media campaign. He speaks with a silver tongue.

Ford, meanwhile, suffers day after day from the image of bumblers.

He knocks his head as he gets into airplanes. He stumbles over words in prepared speeches. He lacks charisma.

Reagan isn't completely clear on many important issues. But Ford is even less clear and cannot match the style of politicking practiced by Reagan.

Coming into the western primaries, President Ford clearly is in trouble.

If the President loses the Idaho, Oregon, Montana, Nevada and California primaries, he probably will not be the Republican nominee in 1976.

Reagan wants badly to win in the West. If he continues his string of primary victories, he believes he can win the Republican nomination.

The governor seems well on his way to winning the shootout with Ford in Idaho. A poll released Sunday shows Reagan with a commanding lead.

If Reagan wins in the West, he will almost certainly dislodge President Ford for the nomination.

That's why Ronald Reagan is coming to Twin Falls.

It is Idaho and the handful of other western states which now assume the pivotal role in presidential politics.

Here's one way to become a multi-millionaire

An amazing story in the last few days is the one about Howard Hughes' will.

He supposedly left $125 million to a stranger who helped him out when he mysteriously was wandering in the desert.

Why can't something like that happen to you or to me?

Well, I decided I'm not going to be caught unaware and have adopted some positive plans just in case I meet H. I. Hunt or one of the Rockefeller's lying in a gutter in need of assistance.

For the last week, to the bewilderment of my wife, I've brought a derelict home for dinner. I generally go out before dark and check allies and cheap dives until I find a forsaken, broken-down cjein. Then I lusus him off, take him home, feed him, and subtly die out his life story.

I generally reveal sometime in the course of the evening that I'm not in top economical shape and would really appreciate being a multi-millionaire.

Last night, however, I realized I had hit a snag. I've discovered that, when read the papers, too, and may be using the Hughes story as a leverage.

I "rescued" this complete degenerate who had passed out under a pool table in a local tavern and took him home as per my regular routine. After dinner as we sat around chatting, he began dropping six hints that he was not only a man of considerable means, but perhaps had cornered the market on fossil fuels. Several times he would inadvertently lapse into a foreign tongue which I detected as arabic. He mentioned belly-dancing, camels — and the desert.

Once he went into 20-minute dissertation on the care and growing of figs and dates. In addition, he carried the recognizable odor of motor oil on his clothes and person. For all I know, the Shah of Iran went on a bender in Twin Falls to discover an heir for his will and is now living in my spare room in the basement.

Why know? After much thought I've finally arrived at a decision of what course I should follow in life. My plan is to adopt the knowledge I've learned in the past few weeks and recline in idleness with a mysterious glint in my eye and mumble incoherently with respect and splendor. Sounds crazy, but it just might work.

GOVERNMENT BY FORCE

As various states voted for or against adopting the new Constitution, various voices were heard on the subject. Melancton Smith of New York was for revision but called for sensible delegates to discuss the matter.

"Almost all of the governments that have arisen among mankind have sprung from force and violence. The records of history inform us of none that have been the result of cool and dispassionate reason and reflection. It is reserved for this favored country to exhibit to mankind the first example. This opportunity is now given us, and we are to exercise our rights in the choice of persons to represent us in convention, to deliberate and determine upon the Constitution proposed. It will be to our everlasting disgrace to be indifferent on such a subject; for it is impossible that we can contemplate anything that relates to the affairs of this life of half the importance.

Ford, aides considering campaign strategy shift

By United Press International
A worried President Ford, facing prospects of losing "special" primaries to Ronald Reagan in Nebraska Tuesday and in his home state of Michigan May 18, summoned political aides to talk strategy and revise his campaign schedule.

The President returned Saturday from a two-day swing through Nebraska, and called in campaign aides Sunday, where it was decided to add a second day in Michigan this week. Additional senior aides, including campaign manager Rogers Morton, were to meet with him late today.

Originally scheduled to campaign in Michigan Wednesday, and in Kentucky, Tennessee and possibly Arkansas later in the week, Ford has rescheduled a second trip to Michigan — to the tulip festival in Holland and to his home town of Grand Rapids — Saturday.

The second day in Michigan potentially came at the expense of Arkansas, but that had not been a firm date.

Meanwhile, the Yankee state of Maine, which gave southerner Jimmy Carter one of his early boosts for the Democratic nomination by favoring him in district delegate maneuvering before New Hampshire, now may have given him a rare — if minor — setback.

Carter won nine of the state's 20 delegates in Maine's Democratic state convention. But the convention unexpectedly elected five delegates for Morris Udall and left six uncommitted, thus blocking Carter from winning the majority his supporters predicted.

Carter spent Sunday at his home in Plains, Ga., while Udall and Henry Jackson campaigned in Connecticut in hopes of upsetting the former Georgia governor there.

Jackson took himself out of the active campaign after losing the Pennsylvania primary first month, but said he would fulfill his commitments in Connecticut and on Sunday spoke of a possible miracle, there-to-reestablish his candidacy.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. said on television (CBS-TV's Face the Nation) the race is still wide open and he hopes to win the Maryland primary May 18. He picked up his first delegate Saturday in Wyoming.

"Some people think the campaign is locked up," said Brown. "I think it's wide open ... I think the chemistry of this campaign can change in Maryland. And as we spread across the country, you're going to see some real surprises."

Brown said he is seeking uncommitted delegates across the country, and will campaign in New Jersey, Nevada, and his home state of California.

Reagan widened his lead over Ford in weekend delegate selection in six states, gaining 29 new delegates to Ford's 18. The new totals show Reagan with 397 to Ford's 336, with 298 uncommitted. It takes 1,130 to nominate at the GOP convention in Kansas City in August.

In Democratic delegate elections, 39 were chosen over the weekend but most of them were uncommitted. Carter picked up 13 to bring his total to 574. The Democratic nominee needs 1,565 delegates at his convention in New York City's Madison Square Garden in July.

Hubert Humphrey wrote a memo to Lyndon B. Johnson in 1965 warning against U.S. military escalation in Indochina. The next day, Johnson ignored his advice and ordered the bombing of North Vietnam.

In a television interview (NBC's Meet the Press) Sunday, Humphrey confirmed "news reports" about the strongly worded memo he wrote as vice president, seeking to influence Johnson's decision on Vietnam.

Latter, Humphrey became a supporter of Johnson's Vietnam policy.

Labor disputes idle thousands

By United Press International
Cable cars, buses and trolleys were moving again in San Francisco, but major labor disputes across the nation continued to idle 100,000 workers.

Passengers carrying bottles of champagne hopped on San Francisco cable cars Sunday to celebrate the end of a city workers strike which shut down mass transit and other city services for 39 days. An agreement was reached Saturday.

A couple of members of the city's board of supervisors saluted. San Franciscans for their patience during the strike by 3,800 workers which stranded about 250,000 daily transit riders.

City officials said a tough stand against the walkout helped avoid a financial crisis.

However, Mayor George Moscone warned that sudden "anti-Unionism" could lead to San Francisco becoming "like New York was, a series of warring camps."

In New York City, the eight-day walkout by 22,000 building workers has resulted in a garbage pileup outside apartment buildings. Sanitation workers collected garbage outside apartment houses only where it was declared a health threat.

State Mediation Board Chairman Vincent McDonnell said a new contract proposal, hammered out Sunday night with the striking apartment workers' union, would be presented to landlord representatives at a joint negotiating session today.

Negotiators for 70,000 striking United Rubber Workers and the nation's "Big Four" rubber manufacturers planned to meet today in an effort to settle a three-week-old walkout. The labor dispute has caused a couple of the nation's automakers to send cars out without spare tires.

Some 1,700 technicians and newswriters were scheduled to vote Tuesday on a contract offer which, if approved, would end a five-week strike against the National Broadcasting Company. Union officials made no recommendation on the offer.

Intensive bargaining was scheduled for this week in an effort to end the 10-day strike by 14,000 Teamsters against United Parcel Service offices in 13 midwestern and western states. The U.S. Postal Service called employees in on overtime to keep up with the extra load brought on by the strike.

Several pickets were reported outside the Northlake, Ill., GTE automate electric plant early today. Some 2,500 members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Local 713 voted to strike at 11 p.m. Sunday. The plant manufactures telephones.

Negotiations were expected to continue in the lengthy beer bottlers strike against Anheuser-Busch that has idled 8,000 workers.

Iran ponders oil-for-arms dealings

© N.Y. Times Service
TEHRAN — Iranian Foreign Minister G. Zarb, the Federal Energy administrator, said here Sunday that the Iranian government had been holding talks with United States companies about buying billions of dollars worth of Iranian oil for American products.

Iran, which has been having cash flow problems, is understood to have been holding the talks with three United States companies whose military aircraft Shah Mohammed Riza Pavelevi is interested in buying: General Dynamics, Northrop and Boeing.

about the discussions which are now underway with a number of United States companies about the exchange of products for oil.

He said the talks had begun four to six weeks ago involving the National Iranian Oil Company on the Iranian side, and were still in such an early stage that "there's hardly anything to comment on."

Other highly placed Iranian officials indicated, however, that barter deals were being contemplated. They involve quantities of military aircraft. As many as 300 General Dynamics F16 fighters and 200 or more land-based versions of the Northrop F16 naval fighter in addition to several costly Boeing airborne warning and combat control aircraft.

All told, Iran has already ordered $10 billion worth of military equipment from the United States since 1972 and of Efforts to reach officials on the three companies for comment were unsuccessful.

Speaking at a news conference at the Teheran Hilton Hotel, Zarb also said that in recent talks with leaders in Saudi Arabia and Iran he had recommended an absolute freeze in the price of oil through the end of 1976. But he added that he did not know what the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries would decide at its May 27 meeting in Indonesia.

During his current visit here Zarb said he and Iranian officials had "talked generally

Ford cites character

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford, marking Armed Forces Week, said today a nation's military strength does not lie in weapons alone but in the character and courage of its soldiers and commanders.

The President made the remarks in an address prepared for delivery at the Washington monument grounds where the latest military weaponry was on display.

"Around us this morning are stirring symbols of America's military might," he said.

"They remind us of the advanced technology and industry which keep America's defenses strong. But let us remember, in the midst of this impressive display, that our military strength does not lie in these weapons alone. It lies in the muscle and brain, the sweat and blood and bone of those who serve in our armed forces."

Ford's trip to the monument came amid political strategy meetings at the White House.

After one such meeting Sunday, it was announced that Ford will visit Michigan twice this week — on Wednesday and again on Saturday — instead of the single visit he had planned.

Malaria cases reported

ATLANTA (UPI) — Seven members of the Hare Krishna religious sect contracted malaria during a spring pilgrimage to India, the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said. The malaria cases were reported in Atlanta, New York City, Philadelphia and Los Angeles, the CDC said, and six other Krishna followers may also have contracted the disease. The seven malaria victims were among 300 American Krishnas who participated in the religious organization's annual pilgrimage to India March 8 through April 12. About 900 Krishnas from 30 countries made the journey to India.

The CDC urged all Americans who made the India trip to seek treatment. The center said state health departments and the 21 Krishna temples in the United States had been notified of the outbreak.

The center said the World Health Organization and the Pan American Health Organization had also been informed of the outbreak.

Marriage rate declines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of marriages declined in 1974 for the first time in 16 years, according to the National Center for Health Statistics. The 2,229,667 marriages were 54,000 fewer than in 1973, and early data for 1975 indicate a continuing decline with an estimated 2,126,000 marriages performed, the center said Sunday. The center is a unit of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. During the past decade, but the groom's age remained steady, it said. The average age of brides at first marriage was 20.6 years in 1974, up from 20.3 in 1963. The median age of grooms was 22.5 in both years.

Peaceful surrender

CULVER CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Police say Ruben Ramos, 24, was driving over the speed limit as he passed the city police station. When officers tried to pull him over he put on the gas and sped away, followed by a growing chain of Culver City and Los Angeles police cars and two police helicopters, authorities said. Ramos apparently changed his mind as he approached downtown Los Angeles. He suddenly turned around and led the entire police entourage back to Culver City, where he pulled up in front of the police station. He surrendered peacefully and was booked on suspicion of drunken driving.

Cranston backs BI

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sen. Alan Cranston says BI bombers would be safer for Americans than missiles in case of war. The California democrat, meeting with 50 persons occupying his field office during the weekend to protest his support of the BI, said the bomber may be the nation's last chance to develop a military weapon that could be recalled. The demonstrators complained that money spent to develop the bomber should be used instead to build hospitals and day care centers.

Black power

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California Lt. Gov. Mervyn Dymally says politics has replaced marches and sit-ins as the main weapon of the fight for civil rights. "The black agenda today is to make politics the cutting edge of the civil rights movement," Dymally told the Western Conference of Black Elected Officials during the weekend. Dymally said he is pleased with Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s presidential campaign trips because he becomes acting governor when Brown is out of state and that gives him "the opportunity to show that blacks indeed can govern."

Cardinal comments

CRACOW, Poland (UPI) — Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski, the Roman Catholic primate of Poland, told a congregation at Skalica Church Sunday many Poles kept their faith secret despite constitutional guarantees of freedom of religion. "Despite the fact that the constitution guarantees freedom of religion, there are some situations when a man is afraid to admit to be a member of the Church, make a sign of the cross or participate in church celebrations because it might harm his job," Wyszynski said.

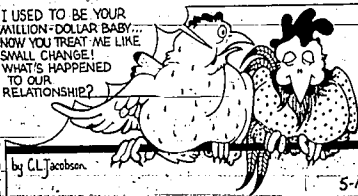

Capability stressed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa says his country has the "capability" to produce nuclear weapons, Newsweek magazine reports. Vorster was quoted by Newsweek Sunday as saying "we are only interested in the peaceful applications of nuclear power. But we can enrich uranium and we have the capability." South Africa, he said, did not sign the nuclear nonproliferation treaty.

Colorado gets birthday stamp

DENVER (UPI) — Steve Datz became upset because the Postal Service didn't honor Colorado's 100th birthday with a commemorative stamp — so he printed his own. Datz said he and his group, called the Committee to Commemorate Colorado, paid $400 to print the sheets of stamps. He said the stamps were only for decorating envelopes. "The Postal Service has done nothing but stall, pass the buck, and make excuses which tend to insult the intelligence of those citizens for whom the stamps are intended," Datz said. Datz's stamps are imprinted with the words "Colorado 1876 — 1976." The background is of sky and the state capitol. The stamps contain the words "100th Anniversary of Statehood."

Barge claimed

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — An Irish setter, found dirty and hungry by the Bruce Morris family, rescued the Morris' 2-year-old daughter by smashing through a window of a burning auto and pulling the child from the car, authorities said.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce R. Morris, Harvester, Mo., visited a suburban Bridgerton auto dealer during the weekend and left their daughter, Margaret, in the backseat of their car with Red.

"I had rolled all the windows down about five inches, locked the door and every few minutes I would look out to make sure Margaret was okay," Morris said. "Then I heard a salesman yell, 'My God, there's a girl in that car.'"

"I saw the dog jump through the front window on the driver's side," Morris said. "I've never seen a dog go through a window like that — the glass shattered all over." The 75-pound setter touched the ground, jumped up and reached back through the window with his paws on the side of the car. He grabbed Margaret's coat collar with his teeth and dragged the girl out the broken window.

FOUR MEN, one with a rifle, have claimed possession of this barge filled with French wines which is grounded off the Massachusetts coast. The barge, carrying more than 30 containers of the wine, perishable foods and dry goods, was being towed to New York, but a storm severed the cable May 5 and it went aground. The cargo is valued at $500,000.

Lawlessness upsets town council

MILAN, Mo. (UPI) — Police Judge Coleman Smith was elected to the post in this north central Missouri town last month with an unusual platform of lawlessness. "I told the people I wasn't going to enforce the laws and I'm going to keep that promise," Smith declared. A man of his word, Smith did not appear to be sworn in and skipped one Saturday morning court session. He attended the next session and forced policemen to stand at attention and berated one officer to the point that slander charges are being considered. He also dismissed all the cases pending before the city court. "Coleman's lawlessness upsets the town council, so much they have called a special meeting for Tuesday evening to decide what to do about it. The meeting will be held in the county courthouse courtroom rather than in the council chambers because, as one resident said, 'This is going to be one hell of a show and there will be a lot of people here to watch." Earlier, the council placed an advertisement in the local newspaper suggesting the town abolish its police force if it did not want local law enforcement. The ad said the city could then save $12,000 a year. City officials say the residents commented very loudly they want law and order. "I've had about 200 calls from people who are against Smith's stand," said Alderman

David Wilson. "I've not had one phone call that wanted us to get along with him." Smith was arrested by then policeman Brian Pickering for drunken driving Dec. 10, 1974. Smith allegedly offered Pickering and county Sheriff Gary Reynolds a $2,000 bribe to forget about it. Smith also allegedly threatened Pickering's life. Witnesses say the bribe and the threat were made while Smith was drunk. Pickering has since quit the force.

Researchers blame FDA for program lag

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two medical researchers blame "protectionist-inspired control" by the Federal Drug Administration for preventing methadone rehabilitation programs from reaching the majority of heroin addicts. "The Food and Drug Administration concentrated obsessively on the problem of diversion (illicit use) of methadone and has ignored the damage that has been done to the rehabilitation program by its protectionist inspirations," Drs. Vincent P. Dole and Marie E. Nyswander of Rockefeller University, New York City, wrote in this week's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Unfortunately the field of addiction is highly political. The rapid expansion of medical treatment in the period from 1970 to 1973 came in response to pressure from the White House to eliminate the addiction problem with a crash program." The doctors said there are an estimated 400,000 to 500,000 in the United States and an additional 5 million are intermittent users. There are fewer than 30,000 persons in methadone maintenance programs. "The great majority of heroin addicts in our cities remain on the streets and programs have lost their ability to attract them to treatment," Methadone hydrochloride is a drug that relieves withdrawal-cravings in addicts, permitting them to hold jobs and lead relatively normal lives.

Reporting on 10 years of experience, the doctors said stringent controls imposed by the Food and Drug Administration to curb illicit use of methadone, an admitted problem, has "created a governmental monopoly of treatment facilities which are often cold and uncaring." "Bureaucratic control of methadone programs has given us slots, a rule book, and an army of inspectors, but relatively little rehabilitation," the doctors said. "To succeed, the doctors said, the programs must enable patients to feel pride and hope and to accept responsibility. "Without mutual respect, an adversary relationship develops between patients and staff, reinforced by arbitrary rules and the indifference of persons in authority," they wrote. "Patients held in contempt by the staff continue to act like addicts and the overcrowded facility becomes a public nuisance. "Methadone is not a panacea," the doctors concluded. "The most that any chemical agent can do for an addict is to relieve his compulsive drive for illicit narcotics. To give him hope and self-respect requires human warmth—to be a productive citizen he needs the effective support of persons who can help him find a job and protect him from discrimination. It is in these human qualities that the treatment programs have failed."

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Is pokeweed or its berries poisonous? What could happen if a person ate some of the berries? — T.M.

Pokeweed is also called inkberry. Depends on what part of the plant you live in. But no matter where you find it, it's toxic. It is a field plant and is commonly found in barnyards.

As with other poisonous plants the chief effects of ingestion: are intestinal. In fact, fatalities have occurred. Pokeweed is recognizable by its rather slim leaves and the black seeds on the ends of the stems.

Symptoms of poisoning are burning in the mouth, stomach cramps, vomiting, diarrhea, and sometimes visual disturbances, weak pulse and breathing difficulty. The eye, pulse and breathing symptoms usually follow the others.

Beware of poison plants

With summer approaching, youngsters will again be roaming the yards and fields looking for new and strange additions to their diets. The best thing to tell them is to eat nothing outdoors they have not eaten at the dining table, no matter how attractive it looks to them. The most attractive parts of many plants are often the most poisonous.

There are several common plants that are dangerous to eat. For example, the rubbery leaf is poisonous, even though the stalks can make a delicious pie. Certain greenish spots on the edible parts of potatoes are toxic, as are the shoots, sprouts, leaves and stems.

Fortunately, nature has a way of making poisonous substances rather unpleasant tasting generally. Your local poison control center will usually have lists of poisonous plants in your area.

Strictly speaking, poison ivy and its relatives (poison oak and sumac) aren't "poisonous" at all. They contain "allergens," and these affect only those persons who are sensitive to them. Most truly poisonous plants must be eaten to cause their harm.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
How can a teenage girl overcome shyness? I need to know by this summer. It is important. — Miss M.D.

Shyness is not considered to be a medical problem, but according to my mail on the subject, it is nonetheless, a problem. And it isn't limited to young girls. Some people never overcome it.

Usually, though, it is a condition that improves with years. I'd bet that as soon as you gain a bit more confidence in yourself, you won't do just that.

You don't say why you have to overcome it by "this summer." But as far as I know, there are no crash programs available in this. The only thing I can suggest is to enroll in a public-speaking course. It will be too late for you with the school year nearly over. But if you ask a speech instructor he or she might suggest some non-school program. Learning to speak before people is one of the best antidotes to shyness I know of.

People are the cause of your shyness. Becoming used to them cuts it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Is there any truth to the rumor that eating a lot of yogurt can cause cataracts? I eat it daily. — Mrs. M.R.

No truth in it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am a woman in my 50s who has never had sexual intercourse. Do I need a Pap test as often as a woman who has been sexually active? Are we subject to the same kinds of female disorders? How often should I get one?

I think this would be interesting to enough women to warrant a small space in your column. — R.M.

Except for venereal disease, women like yourself are subject to the same female disorders as those who have been active sexually. You should have periodic pelvic examinations — once a year, at least.

WENDELL — Students in Mrs. Lula Correll's fifth grade class at Wendell are learning about first aid in a realistic manner.

Wednesday they experienced the next thing to applying artificial respiration in a real life situation. They breathed into a life-like appearing dummy whose chest moved if their breath was directed properly. The air could be heard coursing through "his" throat and lungs.

The experience culminated the first aid course in their health-class, taught by Mrs. Melvin Jones, Wendell, a qualified Red Cross instructor.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Agriculture Committee Thursday backed away from action on a bill which would set up a 15-member commission to make an in-depth study of the nation's food marketing industry.

Committee members tentatively agreed in a show of hands "straw vote" they would prefer to order such a study made by one of their own subcommittees on grounds it would be cheaper.

Several members, however, noted that if their panel doesn't approve legislation setting up a national commission, the House Judiciary Committee may step in with a similar bill which includes provisions opposed by many farm groups.

Agriculture Committee Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., said the issue will be considered again on Friday or next Monday.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Anybody who thinks women have equal rights in this country is crazy. If a man's trousers are too tight, he's just put on a little weight. (If a woman's skirt is too tight, she's trying to be sexy.) If a man stands on a street corner, he's getting some fresh air. (If a woman stands on a corner, she's looking to be picked up.) If a man has one drink too many, he's "feeling good." (If a woman has one drink too many, she's a lush.) If a man has a night out with the boys, he's put in a hard day at work and needs to "relax." (If a woman has a night out with the girls, she's up to no good and should stay home with her family.) If a man cheats on his wife, people say he's probably married to a cold fish and he's only human. (If a woman cheats, she's a tramp.)

MR. AND MRS. DAVID ANDERSON

Jan Planasky weds Anderson at Priory

TWIN FALLS — Jan Planasky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Planasky, became the bride of David Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Anderson, all Twin Falls, April 24 at St. Benedict's Priory.

Father Cosmas White performed the ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a dress of sheer polyester over peach de sole bridal satin, with long full sleeves, square neckline, and empire waistline. She wore a cross of her paternal grandmother and carried her maternal grandparents' wedding rings tied in her bouquet.

The bride's bouquet was made of daisies, carnations and baby's breath. Maid of Honor was Kathy Planasky, sister of the bride. Best man was Jerry Anderson, brother of the bridegroom.

Ushers were Jim Jenkins and Dennis Ryall and candlelighters were Julie and Cheryl Dubois, nieces of the groom.

The reception table featured a three tier wedding cake topped with a gold wedding cross set in a bouquet of mixed flowers. The cake was placed over a fountain. The bride's table was decorated with white lace cloth over yellow.

The reception table was cared for by Mrs. Chris Oles, Boise; Mrs. Dick Weymouth, Ontario, Ore.; Mrs. Milford Drago, Payette, aunts of the bride; Kim Mari and Mrs. Barry Eacker.

The gift table was cared for by Mrs. Jean Christensen, Mrs. Kim Showmaker, Mrs. Myron Ulrich and Janice Phillips. The guest book was cared-for by Nina Bates, Boise.

The soloist was Mrs. Leon Vogel and the organist was Mrs. Francis Ryder.

Bridal showers were given by Mrs. Ray Sabala and Tracy Sabala, and by Mrs. Barry Eacker and Janice Phillips.

Out of town guests attended from Boise; Payette, Ore.; Ontario, Ore.; Deaver, Colo.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Blackfoot, and Idaho Falls.

The bride is employed at Plankey Johnson Kvanvig and Stoker. The bridegroom is employed at Shirley and Wyatt.

The couple honeymooned in Sun Valley and are now residing in Twin Falls. The bridegroom's parents gave the rehearsal dinner at the Outlaw Inn.

Bridge winners

DEAR WANTS: Only if he's single. If he's married, almost everything is in his wife's name.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14, and the oldest of five kids, so I'm the one who has to help my mom with the dishes and housework. I also have to help with the younger kids and I hate it!

When I complain about all the work I have to do around here, my mom gives me the hospital to what good "practice" it will be for me in later life.

Abby, please help me! I plan on being a model or an actress, and I don't need all this "practice."

DEAR TIRED: That's what YOU think! What do you think happens to all those broken-down models and actresses?

DEAR ABBY: A member of our family was recently in a near fatal accident and naturally we are very much concerned, but our problem is this.

Friends and relatives who mean well have been calling us constantly to find out how he is getting along. Abby, we are half crazy answering the telephone every few minutes. They all want to know the "details" of the accident, and I am exhausted reliving that nightmare so many times a day!

Also, friends have been phoning the hospital to inquire about the patient's condition, and we've been asked by the hospital personnel to instruct them not to call so much.

Abby, please tell your readers that it would help so much if they would send a cheery card to the hospital instead. Then the patient could read the cards and be assured if he's safely and promptly recovered and keep them as souvenirs if he so desires.

"We keep getting questions about whether or not it is necessary to play a club opening bid as forcing merely because you may open a three-card suit. The answer to that one is that every expert will open a three-card suit with a club and he considers appropriate, but practically no expert plays the bid as forcing. It is no tragedy to play one club undoubled with a three-card suit on the rare occasions when everyone does pass."

Jim: "The hands range from simple to complex. For instance, let's look at his first example. Oswald: 'South is in four spades. West opens the king of hearts' and 'continues' with dummy ducks. South wins that trick and leads a trump to West's ace. A third heart is led and ruffed, trumps are drawn, a diamond is led from

Beef price hike predicted by ANCA

N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — Wray Finney, who owns a 4,000-acre cattle ranch in southwest Oklahoma, does not see much of it these days. He is too busy giving a message to American housewives: Beef prices will start going up soon and will continue rising through the summer and into the fall.

Finney, who is president of the American-national Cattlemen's Association, is traveling around the country talking to consumer groups, Congressmen, union leaders and anyone else who will listen. He is telling them why meat prices cannot go lower and undoubtedly will move higher.

If the ranchers are looking or making very little on their cattle, why is there confusion about high meat prices? It involves what the government calls the farm-retail spread—the difference between farm value and retail cost. Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz told a consumer group this story to illustrate the inefficiencies in marketing that cost Americans billions of dollars. This morning 300 refrigerators trucks left St. Louis City, Iowa, with beef halves hanging in them. Half the space was air.

On Thursday the government reported a rise in wholesale prices of 0.8 percent for April, the sharpest in six months, and livestock was a category showing one of the biggest gains.

When a housewife, who typically spends about one-sixth of the family food budget on beef, reaches into a supermarket freezer and takes out packages of chopped beef at $1 or more a pound, she probably cannot understand the high prices or the talk of still higher prices.

From this point on what do you know about building a building?

You've got your lot, now what? Well, there are clearances, permits, rights-of-way, planning, budgeting, designing, contracting, clearing, excavating, constructing, roofing, finishing, interior finishing, grounds work, landscaping, etc., etc. You can learn about all these things yourself. Or you can get in touch with us. We take care of every detail—from the first steps to the last. As much as you want us to handle, we'll handle. So give us a call when you're ready to build. early tonight, accompanied by scattered thunderstorms and strong gusty winds. Rainfall is expected to be spotty and mostly light, so that irrigation schedules should be maintained. Cooler and more stable air should follow on Tuesday. However, the cooling is expected to be about 10 degrees only, so that frost or freezing temperatures do not seem likely for at least the next five days.

The extended outlook is for mostly dry weather and seasonal temperatures during the last half of the week. The normal highs and lows at this time of year are 72 and 41. Soil temperatures are now averaging around 65 degrees and this should be adequate for germination and rapid growth of most any crop or garden plantings. However, frosts have occurred in previous years as late as May 22, 25 per cent of the 58 years of record.

Toxic chemical now found in humans

© N.Y. Times Service
CHARLEVOIX, Mich. — "If I were a cow, the state would execute me," said Marty Jo Warner, a 26-year-old farmer's wife who is expecting a child in June.

The level of PBB, a toxic chemical, in Mrs. Warner's system is 2.115 parts per million, she says, or seven times greater than the 0.3 part per million the Food and Drug Administration has designated as the safe level for livestock.

"If any amount over that 0.3 level is dangerous for an 1,800-pound dairy cow," Mrs. Warner wonders, "what is it for a human weighing slightly more than 100 pounds?"

PBB — polybrominated biphenyl — is a fire retardant manufactured by the Michigan Chemical Co. that was accidentally mixed into cattle feed sold by the Michigan Farm Bureau Services in 1973.

Like members of many other farm families, Mrs. Warner was contaminated with the substance through milk and meat raised on the farm her husband, Douglas, operates some 10 miles south of this northern Michigan resort.

Mrs. Warner's plight is at the heart of an increasingly acrimonious debate that has gripped Michigan since the contamination was discovered.

Two years ago, most federal and state public health authorities contended that PBB presented no real danger to public health, that it would go away. Now, however, they admit that it was not gone away, that it may be entering the food chain, that its residues may expand and that if those residues begin to break down unknown years from now, the breakdown may produce serious ill effects.

It is being called the nation's greatest agricultural disaster, resulting in the destruction of 30,000 cattle, 1.5 million chickens and 1,700 other farm animals. There have been damage claims — estimated to total about $75 million. Some farmers have gone bankrupt.

Beyond that, PBB was insinuated itself into the food chain into the soil, streams and swamps. Laboratory tests have disclosed high levels of PBB in wild bears and coyotes.

Consumers as well as farm families who have eaten contaminated eggs, pork, beef and dairy products complain of symptoms ranging from dizziness, weariness and headaches to swollen joints, stomach cramps and sores. However, public health officials say they cannot correlate any of the symptoms with PBB.

The entire controversy is to be taken up Monday by a six-member committee of scientists appointed by Gov. William G. Milliken to advise him on the matter.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 11, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An unusually good day and evening when relations with others person turn out as you would like them to be. You can easily establish a more harmonious set of circumstances with others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contacting associates and talking over present operations can yield fine benefits at this time show that you are a capable person.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Schedule your time and work wisely so that you get the maximum accomplished in the minimum of time. Don't overspend when out shopping.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan time for amusements that you like. Higher-ups can help you commercialize on the fine talents you possess. Relax at home tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make it a point to improve conditions at home in every way you can. Avoid one who is likely to put a dampener on your activities.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact allies and state your ideas. You can easily gain the cooperation of co-workers now. Exercise extreme caution in motion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Ideal day to handle monetary affairs in a most intelligent way. Make the evening a charming one from a social standpoint.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are feeling magnetic today and should contact many persons who can help you advance. Show that you have good manners.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study conditions that are puzzling and come up with the right solutions. Plan to spend more time with the one you love. Strive for happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Time spent with good friends today can yield fine benefits after your work is done. Your personal aims can easily be attained now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get an early start on these activities that will improve your status in the outside world. Show your finest talents to higher-ups.

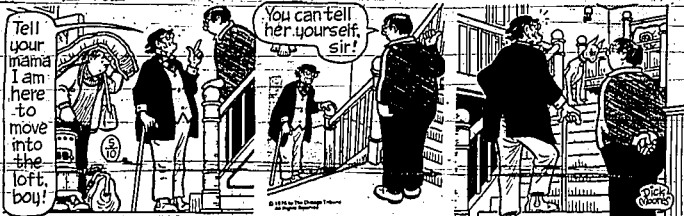

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) New ideas you have should be put in operation without delay. Make any changes that are necessary later. Obtain the data you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to come to a better understanding with mate, even if it takes spending more time with this person. Don't neglect your duties.

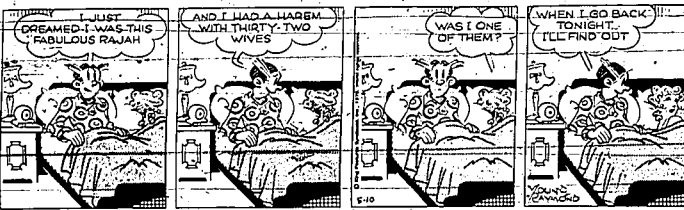

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will want to cooperate with others, so direct the education along diplomatic lines. A fine artistic and musical talent here. Give spiritual and ethical training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

That party who plays hard to get tends to inspire more passion in the person who is trying to get it. And the romantic pushover loses less amorous interest. This matter of common knowledge has been confirmed by our Love and Sex Columnist after extensive study. He is in agreement with such great love and war experts as Socrates, Ovid, Terence and Kamasutra.

It's against the law to give bride prizes in Boston. An adjusted the name of lows came from the Indian word "Auyihwa" meaning "sleepy ones."

One egg of that extinct fowl known as the elephant bird could have made an omelet big enough to feed 90 people.

GEORGE KENNEDY
Q. "How did actor George Kennedy get into show business?"
A. When he was an army officer, the Pentagon assigned him as a technical advisor to Paul Silvers' old TV Billco series. And producer Nat Hiken put him into a few episodes for laughs. That did it.

Used to be an awful lot of stray cats and dogs in England. And no flood control whatsoever. After heavy rains, townsfolk saw the bodies of the poor little beasts floating in the runoff. The unlearned didn't know where all the dead animals came from. They just assumed they fell out of the sky. Our Language man says that's thought by some word experts to be the origin of the phrase "raining cats and dogs."

THE HARD FACTS
Given a choice for dinner, the chigger would prefer the skin of a toad to that of a human being, say the science boys, uncomprehendingly. Do you know why the Swiss turn their cheses at least twice a week? To distribute the holes evenly inside of same. What's the name of that little town in West Germany where 28 different distilleries turn out that many different kinds of rum?

The embezzler rarely takes sick leave. Takes the average healthy young man 1.76 seconds to move 10 feet from a standing start. Average professional baseball player does it in 1.02 seconds.

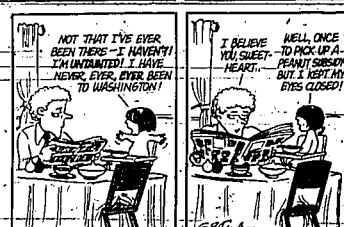

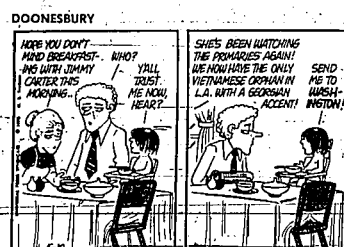

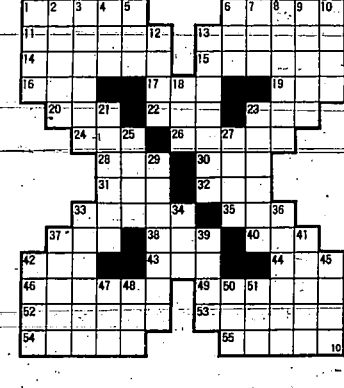

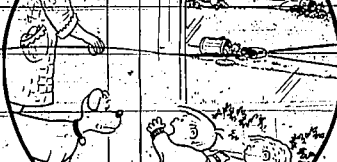

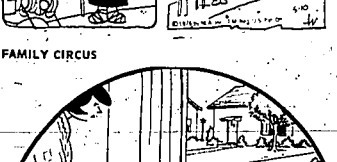

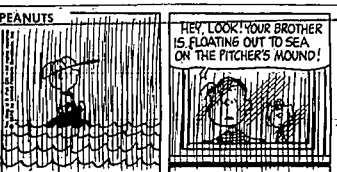

If you've seen a house spider stomping around your place each of the last three days, you might as well hang in there. Normal longevity of those minuscule animals is only four days.
