TF orders O'Leary closure

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Notices closing Vera C. O'Leary will be tacked to the old Junior High school's doors Monday.

The notices will prevent all entry into the building except for the making of repairs.

City officials issued the closing notice Wednesday afternoon, citing defects in the 1912 structure which make it a fire hazard.

School Board Chairman Dr. Howard Ronk, who signed an acknowledgment of the order Wednesday, said the school district still plans to appeal the closure.

The school board indicated earlier that busing and double shifting the nearly 1,000 students at O'Leary would be necessary if the school can't be used next year.

The notice to close cited open stairways, lack of smoke partitions, lack of a sprinkler system, poor interior finish and other conditions in jeopardy—an emergency which necessitates the immediate closure of the school.

The closure will take place at 8:30 a.m. Monday, June 7.

The building will be posted with "Do Not Enter—Unsafe to Occupy" signs.

"I don't think we have any choice but to appeal it (the closure)," Dr. Ronk said. "We still are of the opinion that spill sessions for those kids at another school we're going to accept as a last resort. We feel that a spill session situation is at best a compromise situation... and we're just not anxious to go that route at all."

The notice to close, which was signed by Fire Marshal Fred Higgins and Building Inspector Darrell Howard, did contain a clause allowing a "partial three to five year reopening... upon the installation of a complete fire protection sprinkler system."

Ronk said, however, that the costs of such would "be substantial" and he implied that the district would seek instead to keep the building in use until a new junior high can be built.

"I'm quite confident that fire sprinkles that whole building would cost us more than what was originally stipulated to bring it (the building) up to code," Ronk said.

Ronk said the school board is still studying the alternatives open to it, but he added that the seeking of an injunction to prevent or delay the closure would be unlikely.

"I think the appeals route is the way that we'll go," he said.

"The City, Ronk said, has as yet to appoint an appeals board."

"I'm sure that an appeals board will be appointed," Ronk said, "and we'll be in contact with them."

According to School Superintendent George Staudaher the closure will have little immediate effect on the district.

"There's not much scheduled for the O'Leary during the summer," Staudaher said. "There certainly would be next fall."

Staudaher said O'Leary principal Carl Snow will continue to work at the school until Monday and then will work at home before he goes on summer vacation.

Britons say Nixon had affair

LONDON — Three British newspapers, including the respected London Times, have reported that 22 letters allegedly written by Richard Nixon during the Watergate crisis suggest the former president was having an affair with a diplomat's wife while in office.

The Times quotes a literary agent who claims that 2½ months of checking-by handwriting experts shows the letters to be in Nixon's hand.

The husband of the woman involved was identified as a European diplomat who later was "escorted out of the country."

Bolivian ex-president slain

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Police found the blindfolded, bullet-punctured body of Bolivian ex-president Juan Jose Torres Wednesday, a day after his family reported him missing and feared kidnapped, security sources said today.

Another body, with a knife in the chest and a sign saying "Montoneros" was found in a field in Garin, 25 miles north of Buenos Aires late Wednesday.

Security forces said they were investigating the possibility the second body was that of Col. Juan Pita, government-appointed chief of Argentina's largest labor group, kidnapped Sunday.

The body of the assassinated former leftist president, with three bullets in the head, was found late Wednesday near San Andres de Giles, 60 miles west of Buenos Aires, the sources said.

Snake oil or victory for Jimmy

LOS ANGELES — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. Wednesday night called Jimmy Carter "a fuzzy fellow" peddling "snake oil."

Meanwhile, Carter, the Democratic frontrunner, said, "I feel more confident of a second ballot victory, as he wrapped up his campaign for the California primary in next week's 'Super Tuesday.'"

Carter also said Brown apparently can't count on delegates pledged to Alabama Gov. George Wallace will shift to his column if there is a second ballot.

Wallace may lose Fed funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal campaign funds to George Wallace will be cut off June 17 unless he files financial statements required by the election reform law under action taken by the Federal Election Commission Thursday.

Wallace, who has raised and spent $9.7 million on his campaign, has not made public a list of his contributors since Feb. 1. The law requires that financial reports, including contributors, be filed monthly in a presidential year.

The Federal Election Commission voted unanimously Thursday to send a letter warning candidates that federal funds would be cut off in two weeks if there are major deficiencies in their campaign reports.

ID store gets fire warning

TWIN FALLS — City officials have warned the Idaho Department Store owners that the store on the Hill will have to be brought up to fire code standards or it may be shut down.

According to Mrs. Harold Texido, wife of the Idaho Falls owner of the building, the store will be brought up to code rather than closed.

The warning on fire deficiencies at the store may be only the first of a number of warnings to fire code standards whose structures do not meet the state-enforced fire code.

City manager Joan Miller said a letter citing deficiencies at the ID Store was sent in mid-May. A meeting to discuss the problems was held between store representatives and city fire and building officials, Miller said.

"If the ID ignores the letter or doesn't do anything, we are obligated by the requirements of the code to force a closure," Miller added, "but this is all done within reasonable (time) limits."

According to fire Marshall Fred Higgins, the deficiencies at the ID Store include the lack of double stairways in both the basement and from the second floor. The store also lacks a basement sprinkler system, Higgins said.

He added that the store owners would have the option of either enclosing all stairways in the building or putting in a sprinkler system throughout the entire structure.

"The ID Store having just one stairway up into their second floor and enclosing the building such as they did to improve it and dress up the Mall didn't help any as far as fire department access to the second floor and getting people out of the building," Higgins said.

He said no time deadline has been imposed for the upgrading at the store. Mrs. Texido said no estimates on the costs of the repairs to be made have been obtained.

"It's something that has to be done to assure the safety of the people on the top floor," she said, "so we're willing to go along."

Higgins said there are other buildings to be brought up to code, but he declined to name them.

"We will try to get to them as soon as we can, but this is going to take time," Higgins said.

He said he would rather work on a personal basis with building owners than release the sites of the buildings and do "any flock shooting so to speak" in the press.

Pillar of fire

FIREMEN in Twin Falls battled a stubborn blaze in the warehouse of Everton Mattress Factory Inc., 322 2nd Ave. S., Wednesday night. The warehouse and its contents, including 70 bales of cotton, were destroyed but firemen saved the adjoining main plant where mattresses and beds are manufactured. Mop-up operations are continuing today.

Syrian invaders pause before strategic port

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian troops marching toward Beirut seized right-wing, left-wing and Palestinian positions in southeast Lebanon today but halted their advance short of the strategic southern port of Sidon.

The troops, part of a 4,000-man force that invaded the eastern Bekaa valley Tuesday, moved south out of the valley and west across the lower Chouf region, meeting little resistance as they marched toward Sidon, 30 miles south of Beirut on the Mediterranean coast.

Right-wing sources in contact with the Syrians said the troops planned to take the port, a leftist supply center, and then proceed toward Beirut to secure air airport and other strategic locations "in a decisive move" to end the 14-month civil war.

One ranking officer of the right-wing Phalangist party with access to Syrian military information said the force had advanced to within a few miles of Sidon — "If the Syrians decided to take the port — an advance which Beirut can be expected to follow within a few days."

A general strike called to protest the Syrian military intervention shut down Moslem areas of the capital today. Scattered clashes in Beirut claimed another 50 dead and 100 wounded over the past 24 hours but the city was reported calm again by morning.

An advance column of about 100 men moved three miles west from the crossroads city of Chitara to the leftist-held foothills of Mount Lebanon at Dahr el-Batroun, halting about 500 yards from left-wing positions, reporters returning from the region said.

The Syrians imposed a strict ban against carrying weapons and no shots were fired in the area.

Tension ran high in the capital as some residents made plans to evacuate in case of a Syrian attack.

Spokesmen for the United States and British embassies denied reports the U.S. 8th Fleet and British forces on Cyprus had gone on alert for a possible evacuation of their nationals.

Canal waterusers balk

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Anybody who has lived in irrigating country knows that two parties in a ditch is not good. No matter how good your neighbors are, you won't get along," says Faye Frahn, Twin Falls Canal Co. board member.

Frahn is one of the few Twin Falls Canal Co. board members who will comment on a proposal by Canyon View Irrigation, Inc. for joint use of the canal company's High Line and Main Line canals.

The issue is highly emotional, according to Hugo Meyer, stockholder in the canal company and also a Canyon View landowner.

Originally, the Twin Falls Canal Co. board of directors "felt like it was right to start with."

Canal company stockholders, however, vetoed a plan the board had approved initially, according to Meyer. Now Canyon View has made another proposal, and may have to file suit for right of way.

Canyon View, a group of private agricultural developers, has about 20,000 acres of land that needs water for irrigation. The corporation has already purchased $50,000 worth of water rights and plans to purchase another $50,000 worth.

Canyon View's problem is getting the water.

300 cubic feet per second, out of the Snake River to the desert land Canyon View hopes to farm.

Canyon View has proposed to pay for joint use of the canal system and will assume the cost of any improvements necessary to prepare canals for increased volume.

A controversy has arisen, however, over whether the project should be allowed.

About 100 of the 3,000 stockholders of the canal company voted in January against the proposal, directing the board of directors not to negotiate a mutual conveyance arrangement in the company's canal.

End of series

The major objection to the project is that the canal cannot hold any more water without leaking or seeping into adjoining lands, said Al Peters, former manager of the Canal company.

He said, "I'm not in favor of putting more water in it (the canal) now. It is running to capacity. You get a lot of difficulties trying to run more water in the canal."

He also cautioned about the danger of breakage in canal banks.

"You never know when you're going to have a break," Peters said. (Continued on p. 17)

RESCUE workers carry away one of the dead after a large scaffolding plunged from the top of a building under construction in Tel Aviv Thursday. Police reported at least five persons killed and eight injured. (UPI)

Police sources said an initial investigation indicated the scaffolding was overworked with workers when it tore free of its pulleys and plunged 10 floors to the roof of the adjoining shopping center.
 Most of the scaffolding fell on top of the roof of the shopping complex, smashing into hundreds of pieces of wood and metal. The rest plunged through an inner courtyard, shattering the windows of shops in the center.
 Men working on the scaffolding were trapped in the rubble for up to two hours as rescue workers threw the pieces of wood and metal aside in a frantic effort to reach them.

 Down below, shoppers stood paralyzed in horror. Some collapsed from shock and others stood staring somberly as rescue workers brought the dead and injured down.

"It was horrible," a woman at a flower store next to the courtyard said. "I was just paralyzed. I stood there and was too afraid to move. It was like an earthquake."
 She said a man standing next to her collapsed in shock and a pregnant woman was injured by flying glass.

Employees strike Calif. hospital

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Public hospital patients and social-welfare recipients were among the hardest hit today by an Alameda County employees strike.
 Most of the county's 9,500 workers remained on the job Wednesday in the first day of a walkout called by a union representing 5,500 of their fellow employees.
 It was the second public workers' strike in the San Francisco Bay Area this year and chief union negotiator John Bowers conceded, "We really do believe it is the wrong time" for a walkout. But he said county officials forced it.
 San Francisco city crafts workers were out for 38 days in April and May in a similar pay dispute that crippled the public transportation system.
 In Alameda County, the two public hospitals were hardest hit. Some Highland hospital patients were transferred after about two-thirds of the nursing staff failed to come to work, said County Administrator Loren Enoch.
 Elective surgery also was curtailed at Highland and at Fairmount hospital in nearby San Leandro.
 Welfare Department and Health Department offices were closed in Fremont, south of Oakland, but Enoch said most other county services were functioning, although handicapped by small staffs.
 Three locals of the Service Employees International Union called the strike in support of their demand for a wage increase of approximately 2 percent. Negotiations deadlocked between the union and representatives of the county Board of Supervisors, who have approved an increase of about 4 percent.

Lawmakers riled by secret ratings

BOISE (UPI) — A secret rating of Idaho legislators by the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry has riled several lawmakers and lobbyists.
 Legislators called it "dumb" and "ridiculous" and predicted it would lessen the effectiveness of the association in future legislative sessions.
 The association list, which appeared in print earlier this week, rated Idaho's 195 senators and representatives on their voting records, their competency and diligence and on whether they should be re-elected.
 "Richard Chastain, Boise, chairman of the association's Public Affairs Committee, said the list was not designed to cause any fear."
 "It certainly was not our intent to insult legislators," Chastain said. "Our singular intent is to try to build and

Woman flip-flops on scandal tale

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Ford greet King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia of Spain as they arrive at the White House Wednesday for a dinner in their honor. The royal couple are the first rulers of Spain to ever visit the United States. (UPI)

CHICAGO (UPI) — Elizabeth Ray has told federal agents Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, was only one of 13 congressmen and two senators who spent leisure hours in her bedroom, according to the Chicago Tribune. An attorney for Miss Ray said she denied the report.

The Tribune reported in today's edition Miss Ray had told federal agents she secretly tape-recorded intimate interludes with the 15. Seymour Feig of New York, an attorney for Miss Ray, said Miss Ray categorically denies making any such statement to anyone. And please underline anyone.

But the Tribune said Feig after denying the story, consulted with Miss Ray and reached by telephone at Miss Ray's apartment, later acknowledged his client had supplied investigators with a list of legislators' names.

Miss Ray, when told of the specifics in a CBS News interview, replied, "Untrue; untrue."

Asked if she had anything to say to any of her Washington paramours who might be worried about having their sex lives publicized, she said with a smile, "Have no fear gentlemen. I will not do anything to hurt you."

Source said Miss Ray recorded the liaisons with a voice-activated tape recorder under her bed, the Tribune said. She then phoned the congressman the next day to discuss their lovemaking, taping them into incriminating themselves, the source told the Tribune.

The newspaper quoted sources close to the case as saying several of the men she named are prominent and that evidence and allegations compiled suggest the scandal might become "the congressional Watergate."

The Tribune story named no congressman but said they allegedly included:

- A well-known senator who talked frequently about his grandchildren.
- A congressman whose name is a household word.
- A House committee chairman who asked Miss Ray to submit to bondage during their lovings.

The Tribune said Miss Ray did name David Hume Kennerly, President Ford's personal photographer, as one of her dates.

Home target

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music singer Tammy Wynette's plush home, damaged by three fires last Friday, has been the target of vandals "at least five times" since January, according to police records.

The incidents range from prowlers and threatening phone Friday, to false reports and egg-throwing.

State arson investigators say they have narrowed their investigation to "two or three persons who were in the house at the time of the fires, which caused $100,000 in damages."

WASHINGTON — Amtrak, the government-funded corporation set up by Congress in 1971 to run the nation's passenger trains for a profit, has passed the five-year mark laden with debt and heading toward a future of uncertainty.

The major question facing the National Railroad Passenger Corporation — Amtrak's official name — is whether the young company will survive another five years intact.

Pointing to operating losses that totaled more than a billion dollars at the end of 1975, the Ford administration is suggesting that Amtrak be shrunk back to the urban corridors whose dense population might sustain rail passenger service.

"We've got to get away from this idea that you have to be subsidizing trains in parts of the country where there is no volume," Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. said earlier this year.

For fiscal 1977, the administration has proposed a budget that Amtrak says will force the railroad to drop 19 of its 38 routes nationwide, leaving a bare skeleton serving only the major cities in the country.

The administration's budget decision is tantamount to a major policy determination that the present Amtrak route system is to be reduced by almost half.

Amtrak President Paul H. Reistrup contends, "Amtrak did not and does not concur with this budgetary decision."

Amtrak is the successor to a system of private passenger lines that had been in decline since World War II and that by 1960, when Congress stepped in, was on the verge of collapse.

In a last-ditch effort to salvage the system, the transportation department transferred passenger trains under contract with the railroads that owned them.

On May 1, 1971, Amtrak assumed the burden of running the trains for the railroads, thus freeing them to concentrate on their more profitable freight business.

In exchange for payment by the lines in dollars, service or equipment, railroads that chose to participate in the system were given stock in Amtrak or tax deductions.

The 1970 legislation provided that Amtrak be a national system of interconnected routes and directed the corporation to operate on a "for-profit" basis.

Five years later, Amtrak's nowhere close to seeing a profit. Except for fiscal 1973, Amtrak's deficits have mounted yearly, from $133.5 million in fiscal 1972 to more than twice that, $313.3 million, in fiscal 1975.

The total accumulated deficit at the end of fiscal 1975 was $896.5 million.

The deficits have represented the difference between Amtrak's operating costs and its revenues from passenger fares. To make up the shortage, the federal government has been obliged to supply to Amtrak subsidies that will total more than a billion dollars through September of this year.

"The taxpayer is now paying approximately $1.25 to Amtrak for every one dollar that Amtrak spends," says a spokesman for the department. "The deficit is increasing every year." Deputy Transportation Secretary John W. Barnum told a Senate subcommittee in March.

The subcommittee would be shocked if I went down to Union Station... and started handing out $10 bills, but it's not as if we're handing out $10 bills when we approve Amtrak's operating grants."

Amtrak's operating grants are not as if we're handing out $10 bills when we approve Amtrak's operating grants."

Talent, energy lost in American society

In America, youth reigns supreme. Glorification of young couples and young singles living the good life overshadows older Americans who also pursue happiness in society.

Growing old in America seems moving out of the mainstream of activity onto some forgotten track.

Underutilization of America's elderly results in a tremendous loss of talent and experience.

In the last quarter century America's senior citizen population—those men and women 65 or older, has doubled to 22 million people.

Fewer than one in 20 elderly persons in America is incapable of working because of disease or senility.

Yet only 20 per cent of America's senior citizens have paying jobs.

The number of older people who work has declined significantly in recent years. In 1950 half of all men over 65 held jobs.

By 1960 the percentage dropped to 35 per cent and today only 18 per cent of men over 65 work.

Of course, many seniors welcome the respite from work. Earlier retirement is held up as a reward for a lifetime of work.

But many older Americans would gladly give more time to their community and neighborhood if they could find an avenue for their talent.

In 1973 a White House conference on Aging identified some of the causes of mental and physical decline among old people.

A significant percentage of elderly men and women healthily at the time of retirement were shamed into senility and physical deterioration because of inactivity after age 65.

Much of the emotional isolation and despondency of old age is tied directly to the loss of a meaningful role in society for the elderly.

Amtrak shouldn't be just a society for the young. Too much talent and energy are wasted when old people are left out of the family, community and the nation's business.

Class structure key to Great Britain's troubles

The news from Great Britain is that the pound is down to $1.77—and that the brain drain continues.

One trouble with Britain, I suppose, is that too much is expected of her — why should any country continue forever to be "great"?

I remember a dazzling moment with Harold MacMillan, when a student panelist on the television program asked him whether it might not sadly be concluded of Great Britain that she no longer was generating great leaders.

He turned on the youthfully "greater than her," and in not more than a few sentences humbly-reminded her that England was an island of barely 3 million people when she defeated the Armada and began, over a period of three centuries, to put three quarters of the globe under her formal dominion.

But always during those years, MacMillan said, there was talk talk talk of the imminent end of British greatness. Indeed, as a young man he remembered being at White's the day Ronald Lawton, lastingly an elder statesman at the time, began the long and illustrious career of the irreplacible great Englishmen, "Ronald Lawton... Lloyd George... Asquith... Now," he shook his head sadly, "there are only a few left."

What's wrong with Great Britain is its class structure. The conventional criticism of it is that it keeps Britons separated, frustrates mobility, encouraging an abjectness of the spirit. I view the problem differently. The class structure in Great Britain is a trap that the obsession with which drags Britain to interminable war with itself.

Socialism, that hoary vision of a factitious fraternity which gave theoretical respectability to an untold generation's superstitions... "collective ownership" will breed collective satisfaction — fired its enthusiasts only in part because they were seduced by its eschatological pretensions. It didn't take long to establish that socialist industries tend to produce inferior products at high prices by dissatisfied workers.

You can get a smile even at Brighton — maybe even from Barbara Castle. If the sun is shining — by quoting Kropotkin's charming little heresy about socialism ("What happens when the Soviet Union takes over the Sahara Desert?") "Answer: Nothing. For 50 years. After that, there is a shortage of sand."

It isn't that the socialists desire really to own the steel companies: it is that they desire — that the people who owned the steel companies should cease to own them. One part is envy, but much more important part is resentment. And the fury of the envious, I think, is magnified at the polls precisely by virtue of that dimly which a tradition of good manners enjoins at home and at work.

The character in fiction who on his day off is fawning viceroy to lord marches with the most radical pickets demanding an end to wealth and privilege isn't a character from Shaw. He is Colonel Blimp's stepson.

A guide who took my son and me a few years ago around Copenhagen railed on about the accomplishments of his remarkable little state and, arriving at the peroration, said rather breathlessly, "Here we have a 99 per cent tax on the highest brackets of income!" He beamed with pleasure, as if no one could now deny that Denmark had achieved the highest mark of western civilization. I remarked that Britain was not far behind, and he said patently that yes, Britain with its 85 per cent tax was doing pretty well.

But of course Britain is not doing pretty well, and it isn't only the ravages of a tax rate so grotesquely high as to encourage economic stupidity. It is the implicit demand behind such phlogopolex tax rates.

A rate of 83 per cent against the most productive members of society, apart from what is done to discourage savings, investment, and the intelligent allocation of resources, is a shrewdly any plausible theory of equal rights under the law we are not all Englishmen; we are, in an invidious way, servants and masters; it stimulates a sense of bitterness by a vitimized class; it robs Britons of the morale that makes partnership of endeavor an act of spontaneity — the genuine of Switzerland — encourages outright defiance of parliamentary authority; thus undermining political democracy; and e) causes a few sensitive and important Britons to feel that their only defense is to take residence outside Britain. Anthony Burgess is not moved primarily by material emotions. But he feels an indignity to live in a country that does not need his pulpy surplus, but declines to let him have it.

Something is wrong with any society a significant number of whose luminaries feel that the prerequisites for being taken their measurements are the founding of a big football, as well as walking up the immigration authorities, they alight-out of the country, lest they Harold MacMillan from his review.

US may recognize China this year

TOKYO (UPI) — The United States may cut its diplomatic ties with Taiwan and give full recognition to China next end of this year, Harvard China scholar John K. Fairbank said today.

Fairbank, a leading authority on China, said that if such a step is taken, the US government will make it clear that it is still interested in Taiwan's military safety.

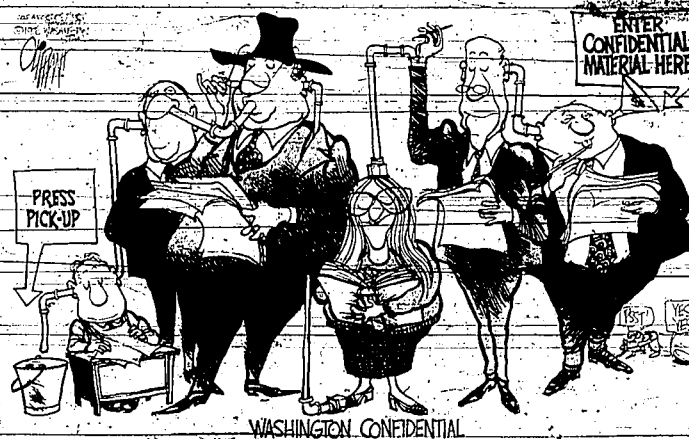

"The next step is to make a matter of recognition with China," Fairbank said in an address to the Harvard Club of Japan. "Whatever solution we put forward will have to come about the end of the year."

Fairbank noted that Japan was able to open an embassy in Peking in 1972 and continue trade and investment in Taiwan.

The Japanese model is available to the United States and may be adopted, he said. "You could continue to have a trade agency like the Japanese have in Taiwan, which would perform some of the functions of a consulate."

Fairbank said America's situation with the rival Chinese governments differs from Japan's in that the United States has a defense treaty with Taiwan, Japan did not.

He said that when the United States recognizes Peking, it could issue "a unilateral statement of American interest in the security of the Western Pacific."

Bomb blasts reporter probing mob

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Newspaper reporter Don Bolles checked out a tip on a Mafia story he was writing and returned to his car. Seconds later a "bomb" blast ripped through the vehicle blowing off his right leg.

Bolles told paramedics he was "an investigative reporter working on a Mafia story." "They got me," he said. "I Bolles, 48, of the Arizona Republic, was hospitalized Wednesday in critical condition."

It was his seventh wedding anniversary. Police are searching for the tptner who lured him to a hotel but did not show up. Associates said Bolles was "tapped."

The explosion blew a hole in the floor of the car, shattered the windshield and the windows of a nearby hotel. Bolles was blasted out of the auto, blowing off his right leg and severely mangled his left leg.

British claim Nixon affair

LONDON (UPI) — Two British newspapers reported today 22 letters, allegedly written by Richard Nixon during the height of the Watergate crisis, suggest the former president was having an affair with a diplomat's wife while in office.

The stories in The Times of London and the London Daily Telegraph were similar to one published Wednesday in the London Evening Standard.

The newspapers said literary agent Scott Meredith believed the 22 letters in his possession are genuine.

The Times quoted Meredith as saying handwriting experts who have examined the letters over the past 2½ months "regarded them as being in Mr. Nixon's hand."

It quoted Meredith as saying the long letters were written to a beautiful woman, who looks younger than her age, "and leave no doubt that they concern an affair."

It said the woman, who has a child and is married to a European diplomat, "admitted having a friendship with Mr. Nixon" in conversations with Meredith. Her husband later was "expelled out of the country," he said.

He said the "affair apparently lasted for some time, at least a year or two." Some of the latest letters speak of drinking too much as the result of Watergate pressures.

The London Evening Standard, in its story Wednesday, said 24 letters were involved and the woman was then living in California.

The newspaper said an agent of Meredith's met the woman and that she has "admitted knowing Nixon, but would not confirm or deny his authorship of the letters."

"I personally believe these letters are genuine," Meredith was quoted as saying.

"If the letters are authentic they could be worth millions because they are obviously written from true, deep personal feeling," Meredith was quoted as having told the Evening Standard.

Mixup slows arrival of new flu vaccine

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A plan to inoculate ill and elderly Americans against swine flu may be set back four to six weeks because of a production mixup at one drug company.

The mistake, which resulted in the wrong kind of vaccine being produced — is not expected to affect the nationwide inoculation program for other segments of the population.

The Public Health Service said Wednesday that Parke-Davis Co., one of four companies producing the vaccine, made 2.6 million doses, an unknown number of which were based of a similar but different flu virus from the one isolated among recruits at Ft. Dix, N.J., in February.

None of the company's production before the mistake was uncovered can be used, the agency said, though there might have been no harm and immunization might have been effective against swine flu.

Illness slows Church

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, stricken with a sore throat and ear infection, canceled all his campaign appearances today to spend the day in bed on doctor's orders.

It was unclear when he would be able to resume his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Church, making brief appearances Wednesday, although obviously ill, called for a debate featuring what he called the "three finalists" in the Democratic race — himself, Jimmy Carter of Georgia and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

'Tail End Charlie'

AIR Academy cadet Jose A. Garcia, Del Rio, Texas, was graduated at the bottom of the 1976 class at Air Academy, Colo., Wednesday, and walks away with the title of "Tail End Charlie." The last graduate each year is called "Tail End Charlie." Each cadet placed $1 in the cup for Garcia. (UPI)

Church told reporters he had an infection in his throat and ear and would have to cancel some appearances.

A campaign spokeswoman later said Church was examined by a doctor and told to remain in bed at least until Friday.

Church was forced to cancel a street walk in a Los Angeles Jewish neighborhood, an appearance at the University of California at Berkeley and most, importantly, a speech to the California state legislature in Sacramento, which would have received heavy news coverage.

Services 'quiet'

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (UPI) — The family of Martha MCVITT "insisted" her hometown funeral services today be as quiet and simple as possible, according to a mortuary spokesman.

"This is what we're trying to do," said Ralph Robinson of Robinson and Son Mortuary.

"We're just trying not to make a big deal out of it," Mrs. Mitchell, 57, a favorite of President Richard Nixon's who became one of his leading critics during the Watergate scandals, died in a New York hospital Monday of a rare form of cancer of the bone marrow.

Services were scheduled at the First Presbyterian Church. Burial will be in the family plot in Hollywood Cemetery.

Meany raps 'politics'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany charged today the administration is trying to "buy" votes with policies that will send the economy into a tailspin after election day.

Meany's attack came in a speech written for the historic merger between the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the Textile Workers Union, and the announcement of an AFL-CIO endorsed campaign boycott against the nation's second largest textile manufacturer, J.P. Stevens and Co.

But Meany was obviously preoccupied by politics. Only one page of the 38-page speech was devoted to the merger. He warned union leaders they will be "sorely tested" as they fight inaction from the Stevens.

Meany severely criticized President Ford for campaign claims about an improved economy and attacks on the federal bureaucracy.

Buhl Migrant School will open Monday

BUHL — The annual Buhl Migrant School opens Monday and will run through July 18, according to Dale Thornberry, high school principal and program director.

Classes will run from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday for children of Mexican-American migrants. Thornberry said the program for kindergarten through sixth grade is state funded.

The enrichment program is designed to give supplementary training in basic skills to the migrant children, as well as provide breakfast and lunch. Recreation and field trips also will be included.

Three teachers and five aides will work in the classes at the Buhl Elementary School.

Hughes will called real

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A handwriting analyst has declared the purported "Mormon will" of billionaire Howard Hughes authentic, partly because rainy days are rare in the desert.

An attorney for Noah Dietrich, named executor in the controversial document, called for assembly of "a panel of experts from all over the world" to weigh its authenticity.

The lawyer, Harold Rhoden, said Tuesday he had been assured by telephone by Michael Kratz, that the document is genuine.

Kratz said a three-week investigation left him with "no doubt" that Howard Hughes scrawled the three-page document secretly left on a desk in Mormon Church headquarters in Salt Lake City after his death, according to Rhoden.

"Not only is the handwriting identical to two known examples of Hughes' writing—showing the "same inconsistencies," Kratz said, but a slight running of the ink showed the paper was moistened.

Records show that on March 10, 1958, the date on the will—one hundredth of an inch of rain fell on Las Vegas, Nev., where Hughes was living at the time, Kratz said.

"Kratz was the third analyst to say the will appeared genuine. Two others have declared it a well executed forgery.

If accepted by the courts, the will would distribute Hughes' $2.5 billion fortune, including a share of more than $100 million to Melvin Dummer, a Utah gasoline station operator who says he once gave a ride and a quarter to a shabby old man who said he was Howard Hughes.

Rhoden said he was still waiting for Kratz's written report to arrive by mail before acting on his findings, but that his conclusion probably would influence Dietrich to push his claim.

"Now we should gather a panel of experts from all over the world to prepare to testify" on the document's authenticity, he said.

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
In the last year I have had swellings on different parts of my body, especially the face and lips. I was in a hospital for a week with a bad swelling. Tests showed nothing, but it was diagnosed as an allergy.
I have to eliminate certain foods, (chocolate, nuts, eggs, fish, citrus fruits) from my menu.
The day after I was released from the hospital the swelling cleared again. I don't know what I'm fighting. Can you give me any advice? I'm 47 years old. — Mr. A.J.

Swelling discussed

It certainly sounds like an allergy. Rather than eliminate all these foods at once, it might be best to do it systematically through an elimination diet. That is where one food at a time is left out; in this way you may be able to track down the specific offender.

You may also have to check out other notorious allergy-producing foods like wheat and milk. And you can't overlook drugs.
Allergies are pretty tricky things. Nerves can be a factor. It's not uncommon for nervousness to tip the scales and allow an allergy to a specific food to pop up.

You are probably a breadwinner and understandably concerned about how all this is going to affect your work. You may have been in a nervous state when you came home from the hospital.

All of that is just guesswork; but with allergy guesswork often pays off. If you are a nervous type—perhaps a mild tranquilizer will help you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am 20 years old and I was 140 pounds, but went on a low-calorie diet and lost 40 pounds. I am still eating less than 1,000 calories a day. But I just can't seem to lose any more. What seems to be wrong? — S.G.

I don't know your height and build, so I can't say for sure. But a weight loss from 140 to 100 pounds is considerable. You would have to be under 5 feet tall with a tiny frame to be considered overweight now. What do you want to do — dry up and blow away?

Starvation begins to occur when a person loses half of his normal weight. You are 20 and I think too smart to let anything like that happen. But I sense that there's a lot about this dieting business you don't understand. My reducing booklet won't help you unless you are already underweight, but it may give you some needed insights. If you want a copy send 35 cents to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to cover the costs of printing and handling.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
My husband is 62. For the past two years it has been impossible for us to have sexual relations because of what the doctor calls Peyronie's disease, or "ribbed spine." I'm sure you are familiar with this. I believe it is more prevalent than is generally realized.

Is there anything that can be done about it? — Mrs. C.S.
This handling of the penis occurs chiefly in the 45- and older age groups. It is not really as common as you think. The reducing doctors see a lot of it because it is a difficult condition to live with.

A built-up and hardening of certain fibers in the spongy tissue of the penis results in a bend and pain during erection. Some men who have this also develop a similar disorder of the hand, called Dupuytren's contracture. In this there is a finger deformity.

Have your husband look into the possibility of ultra-sound treatment. It has been helpful in about 80 per cent of the cases. Vitamin E has also been tried, but I can't say how effective it is. It might be worth a try.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
Can arthritis in the knees and ankles cause pain in the hips and feet? — H.T.

Yes it can if you are favoring the affected joints. It would be bound to put new pressures on the hip joints.

Did you know that 80 per cent of stroke victims resume to some degree their former lives? In "Stroke Recovery Hope and Help," Dr. Thosteson describes the causes and treatment of stroke. For a copy write him in care of this newspaper, enclosing 25 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Earthquakes hit old Burma Road

HONG KONG (UPI) — Two earthquakes struck a section of the old "Burma Road" in Southwest China last Saturday but forecasts by Chinese seismologists helped "to greatly alleviate casualties and losses," the official New China News Agency reported today.

The twin tremors, which occurred in one of China's most dangerous earthquake belts, were the most powerful to hit the world's most populous nation in almost three years.

It also was the second time in a row that Chinese seismologists accurately had predicted a major earthquake in time for preventive measures to be taken. A severe quake which struck heavily industrialized Liaoning Province in northeast China in February, 1975 was predicted more than six months in advance.

A special conference was held a month before it struck to discuss and arrange preventive measures.

The epicenter of last Saturday's quakes was just across the Burma border but no serious damage was reported there.

The hardest hit area in China was between the towns of Lungling and Luai, located about 31 miles apart on what was the "Burma Road" of World War II fame. The towns are about 20 miles southeast of Kunming, capital of Yunnan Province.

The first shock occurred at 8:23 a.m. and had a magnitude of 7.5. The second followed at 10:11 a.m. with a magnitude of 7.6. The Chinese gave no indication of what scale was being used but apparently it is the Richter Scale or similar to it.

"China's seismological departments had made forecasts of the strong earthquakes," RCTNA said. "Under the unified leadership of the Yunnan Provincial Committee of the Communist Party of China, the departments concerned had adopted preventive measures to greatly alleviate casualties and losses." Despite the advance warning, however, there were indications that damage still was heavy.

Chile victim says US taught torture

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — U.S. and Brazilian soldiers taught the "techniques" and supervised the torture of political prisoners in Chile in 1973 and 1974, according to a letter allegedly written by the victims.

Juan Carlos Cuevas Jimenez, 26, a former Chilean prisoner now living in Rhode Island, said in a story in the Providence Evening Bulletin he smuggled the letter into the United States in the soles of his shoes.

Jimenez said the 3,000-word letter was written by 70 prisoners, all but two of whom still are allegedly held at Tres Alamos prison in Santiago. It was signed by 22 prisoners whom Jimenez said have been imprisoned the longest.

"Regardless of the danger we are prepared to run whatever risks for the sake of the truth in order the better this dictatorship," the letter said.

Jimenez said the uniforms of English-speaking military men involved in 1973 and 1974 had "US ARMY" stenciled over the breast pocket. The newspaper said a spokesman for the State Department "categorically denied" the charges in the letter. But the newspaper said a spokesman for the U.S. Southern Command in Panama acknowledged that U.S. Special Forces were in Chile in 1973 and 1974 to train Chilean forces.

"According to the newspaper, 'a major international human-rights organization' confirmed that many of the signers of the letter are known to have been imprisoned by the ruling junta."

The letter detailed various tortures ranging from sexual abuses to beatings and electric shocks.

"The American and Brazilian military men were giving instructions in the training of dogs and in giving torture to give information," Jimenez said.

"The Americans did not perform the tortures, but it was they who gave instructions on how to do it."

"The first step in the interrogation consists of a beating and a kicking by a crew of five or six individuals armed with iron fists, handcuffs, blackjacks and clubs," the letter said.

Window damage, thefts reported to TF police

TWIN FALLS — Tools were stolen in two Twin Falls burglaries, police reported Wednesday.

Ed Lynch, 335 Diamond St., told city officers someone broke in his house, stole his tools and removed a number of large pieces of equipment and smaller tools. Lynch told police missing items included power saws, drills and boxes of small wrenches. He estimated the loss at $1,000.

Ray Deleski, 21 Buchanan St., reported theft of tools from a camper on a pickup parked at his home. He estimated value of the tools at $200. Both thefts were reported Tuesday to city police.

Len Mable, 1275 Granddora Dr., told city police someone broke out a double glass window in his dining room shortly before midnight Tuesday. He said his wife was sitting in the dining room when something shattered the window and she saw a vehicle driving off of view. The window measured by 4 feet. Damage was estimated at $300.

Estrogen said linked to cancer

BOSTON (UPI) — An article in the current New England Journal of Medicine indicates a link between an increase in cases of uterine cancer and use of estrogen to relieve the symptoms of menopause.

Researchers from the University of Southern California reported their study of women in a retirement community near Los Angeles supports "at a high level of statistical significance," the best estrogen pills might cause endometrial cancer, a cancer of the lining of the womb.

They said uterine cancer rates among women in the retirement community were up to eight times higher among women who had taken estrogen than those who had not.

The researchers noted the use of estrogen pills to relieve some of the discomfort of menopause began increasing in 1958 and leveled off in 1966 at about three million prescriptions per year. They said another increase in prescriptions began in 1971 and about five million prescriptions per year were written in 1974.

"One can expect still another increase in the incidence of endometrial cancer corresponding to the increase in now prescriptions over the period from 1970 to 1974, whether or not a few years of stable rates precede it, and probably whether or not estrogen consumption declines, as expected, in the next few years," the researchers said. "This increase can be expected to continue past 1980."

Another article, based on a study by Dr. Noel S. Weiss of the University of Washington and others, stated there was an increase in uterine cancer rates between 1969 and 1973 among a large sampling in California, Connecticut and Hawaii. The increase ranged from 40 per cent to 150 per cent, depending on the particular area studied.

Gem murderer still at large

BOISE (UPI) — As search efforts continue for Gary Russell Anspaugh, escaped murderer who is still at large, Warden Richard Anderson is trying to determine why the prisoner was allowed to accompany another inmate leaving the prison in an ambulance Saturday night.

Anderson said he will recommend disciplinary and preventive measures to the prison supervisor Friday in regard to the incident he sees as a direct violation of the prison's custody policies.

Regulations governing supervision of inmates specify that medium custody inmates like Anspaugh are not to leave the grounds without the warden's permission and require that the prisoners are at least handcuffed.

Warden Richard Anderson said, "The way I see it there was no decision to be made" because the procedure prohibiting the incident was spelled out in the employees' handbook.

Anspaugh was a medium custody prisoner requiring the third highest degree of security at the penitentiary, ranking after "maximum" and "close" custody classifications.

Under the regulations concerning medium custody inmates "approval of the warden only will grant them access off the main institutional grounds. This approval must be obtained each time a medium custody inmate leaves the main institutional grounds."

The shift supervisor at the time of the escape did not secure permission from the warden before allowing Anspaugh to leave the grounds in the ambulance.

Anspaugh left the prison without restraints although the handbook states "when being transported, handcuffs will be utilized, upon the discretion of the chief of security; additional restraint equipment will be issued."

Anderson said he thinks Anspaugh probably conspired with Cecil Flummer, the prisoner in the ambulance to make the escape before they overpowered the guards driving the vehicle and fled.

The supervisor who permitted Anspaugh to leave the grounds in contradiction to the regulations had summoned him to look at Flummer in a cellhouse where he complained of chest pains.

Anderson "suffered" an atmosphere of excitement was created by other inmates who suggested the supervisor would be responsible for killing Flummer if he didn't provide immediate medical attention.

Germany smashes spy ring

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (UPI) — West German Prosecutor Siegfried Buback announced today that security agents have smashed a 15-member East German spy ring that stole secrets from the defense ministry and operated for at least 18 years.

Buback told reporters it was one of the biggest spy round-ups in the history of the West German state.

He said the ring had tentacles in the West German defense ministry and transmitted military secrets to the East.

Fish-in said violation

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — The state attempted to prove Wednesday that two persons arrested during a "fish-in" demonstration March 20 at North Fork, Idaho, had violated a state fishing law.

The defense said it would try to prove the fishermen had a legal right to protest what they believed an unreasonable government regulation.

Annie Taylor and Roger Miller, both of Salmon, are the first two persons to go on trial as a result of the "fish-in."

The two are charged with fishing in closed waters.

Fred Snook Jr., Lemhi County prosecuting attorney, called four witnesses who testified the two were fishing with conventional fishing equipment. All four witnesses are from the fish and game department.

The trial got underway Wednesday afternoon after selection of a jury consisting of five women and one man. More than 50 persons were in attendance.

The trial was recessed Wednesday about 5:30 p.m. and will resume Thursday at 10:30 before Judge Milton Slavov in magistrate court.

Billy Isley, attorney for the defendants, has subpoenaed Joseph Greenley, director of the Idaho Fish and Game Department, to appear in Court Thursday.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1976 by Hearst Publications. All Rights Reserved.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 19, pregnant and unmarried. It's too late for her to have a safe abortion, so she has decided to put up the baby for adoption. She says she doesn't want to know who adopts it, and she doesn't want them to know who or where she is—ever. Abby, my husband and I want this child. We would adopt it and give it a good home. It is our flesh and blood, and we feel that we have the right to raise this child. This will be our first grandchild and perhaps our only one, as our daughter is an only child. She says she wishes to put that entire episode out of her life and if we adopt it, that won't be possible.

Abby, don't grandparents have some rights? We don't want to fight her in court, but we will if we have to. Please tell us what your feelings are in this matter. BROKENHEARTED

Parents want custody

DEAR BROKENHEARTED: A lawyer must tell you what your legal rights are. I sympathize with you, but your daughter's feelings take precedence over yours. If I were you, I wouldn't fight it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are the proud parents of a newly adopted baby. My husband (72) asked, "Is the baby illegitimate?" My husband spoke up and said, "Of course not. We've been married for years. Thought maybe you'd like to share this with your readers."

NEW MAMA

DEAR MAMA: Beautiful! Consider it shared.

DEAR ABBY: May I enter an opinion on your recent columns on "Euthanasia and Living Wills"? You called upon three distinguished representatives of our major faiths to give their "official" views on these important topics. The "majority" position of Traditional Judaism on these subjects is reflected by the chief rabbi of the British Commonwealth, Dr. Immanuel Jakobovits, in his revised book: "Jewish Medical Ethics."

On "Euthanasia," the same authorities "sanction" the removal from a dying patient of medications or machines which only serve to prolong his agony, so long as no NATURAL means of subsistence (such as food, blood and oxygen) are withdrawn... however, some add that once artificial aids are utilized they also should not be removed.

On Kidney Transplants: "The generally prevailing view is to permit such donations as acts of supreme charity, but not as an obligation..."

On "Eye-banks": "...the donor should stipulate in his bequest that his eyes be used only for patients suffering from, or threatened by, complete blindness. There must be prior consent of the donor or his family, and the dissected part of the eye after the cornea has been removed should not be disposed of except by burial..."

With blessings on your work.

Poultry needs special care

MOSCOW — It pays to be careful when you select, store and cook poultry, cautions Esther Wilson, extension nutrition specialist, University of Idaho.

Poultry loses quality rapidly when not frozen, she explains. Even when it is frozen, it keeps best at 20 degrees Fahrenheit.

"Eat only that poultry that comes from a refrigerator or freezer case," she says. "If you buy frozen poultry, be sure the package is full after you select it to take home. Check the package for torn or incomplete wrappers. Torn wrapping allows rapid loss of meat quality and increases the chance of bacterial contamination."

"When you buy poultry, the UI specialist suggests you use it within 24 hours or freeze it immediately. This will keep quality loss and bacterial contamination at a minimum. It may also be a good idea to repack the meat before freezing it, as store wrapping is rarely moisture proof.

"Be sure to cook the bird all at one time," says Mrs. Wilson. "Don't cook it partially one day and finish cooking it the next; that gives bacteria more time to contaminate the meat."

"Do not contaminate the meat."

"Once the poultry has been cooked and served, refrigerate the unused portion. Leftovers that will be eaten within a day or two can safely be left in the refrigerator."

"A good rule to remember, notes Mrs. Wilson, is never to thaw raw or cooked poultry in the refrigerator or freezer any longer than necessary. The maximum is two to four hours — even less time is desirable during hot weather."

Teen answers surprise officials

LONDON (UPI) — Officials of Lloyd's Bank revealed today the surprise outcome of a nationwide contest in which 15- to 18-year-olds were asked to name the American they most wanted to meet.

Names like Edward Kennedy, Henry Kissinger, Jimmy Carter, Robert Redford or John Wayne, all expected to finish high, came nowhere.

Bob Dylan, Timothy Leary and Jane Fonda also ranked low in the choices.

One boy wrote "I would like to have met John F. Kennedy because he had the best address book in the world and I would like to have got hold of it."

"The name which 'stuck out a mile,'" bank officials said, was that of astronaut Neil Armstrong, who was the first man on the moon.

"Interesting," said a bank official.

Plant lovers select cactus

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The latest craze among plant lovers is the lowly cactus — and the price can run up to $800 if you want to be really "in."

"Sophisticated plant lovers are getting tired of the usual garden variety of household plants — creeping Charles, wandering Jews and the like," Dean Vanderveen, co-owner of Sky Branch Cacti in North Beach, said.

"They want something different."

"There are several stores in the San Francisco Bay area where cacti can be purchased for the home — and business is booming."

"We can't keep track of the number we sell," Patsy Kober, owner of The Red Desert in San Francisco, said. "It must be in the thousands already."

"Who are these caught up in the cactus craze and what tickles their fancy?"

Executive types generally go for cacti which cost up to $800. One is the saguaro — prickly, towering and powerful-looking.

Secretaries are attracted to a pink barrel which may be had for $55. It turns flaming red when wet.

Artists and decorators are drawn to the strange, sculptural form of the euhorbia — $85 to $250.

"The whole thing is a natural extension of the phenomenal current interest in plants," the Red Desert owner said.

The shops get their succulents, the broad term for the water-retaining plants, from southern California, Arizona and Texas. Some exotic types are brought from Mexico and Africa.

Lila Lillie, owner of Lila's in San Rafael, said the current water shortage in Marin County has played a part in the popularity of cacti.

"We are indebted to H. W. Kelsey and his "Bridge Logic" for another hand. You have reached three no trump without showing your club suit and West opens the eight of clubs. One entry is gone from dummy, but you don't worry or maybe you do.

Anyway, you lead a heart to your ace which holds. You cash your ace of hearts and East drops a club. How can you establish your hearts? The simple way is to lead a diamond and play dummy's ♠ 10. If it holds you will make a pair of tricks. If it loses and a ruff comes back, your contract may disappear into thin air.

Do you need four diamond tricks? No, two will be enough.

You lead your queen of diamonds to dummy's king. Now you lead the jack of hearts. West wins but he can't lead that, deedly. He leads a second club. You take your king and lead a low diamond to dummy's 10 and nine. You are sure of your contract in spite of all your misfortunes.

Girl watching queried

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Declaring "girl watching is as American as blue berry pie," a district court judge Tuesday refused to order the permanent closing of a nightclub featuring 25 dancers.

Judge Richard V. Armstrong refused to issue a permanent injunction requested by District Attorney S.M. Falls, who sought the closing of the Regency Lounge. But the judge kept in force a temporary restraining order requiring the nightclub to meet certain conditions if it is to remain open.

"Although the feminist movement might not agree, girl watching is as American as blue berry pie," the judge said.

Parent and infant care classes slated

TWIN FALLS — A new series of parent and infant care classes will begin June 2 at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for couples whose babies are expected between mid-July and the end of August.

All classes are held from 7 — 9 p.m. on consecutive Wednesdays in the hospital auditorium. Courses consist of six classes each and are conducted continuously.

There is no charge to participants; however, persons wishing to attend the series must be present at the first or second class to be eligible for the remainder of the course.

The only exception is the sixth class on the topic of infant care, which is open to any interested person.

Conducted by the nursing staff of the hospital's obstetrics department, the course includes lectures, discussions, film showings and printed materials.

It provides information for mothers and fathers on pregnancy, growth and development of the unborn child, hospitalization, labor and delivery and various aspects of the care of the infant during the first year of life.

Iceland wins cod war

OSLO, Norway (UPI) — Iceland and Britain have ended their 20-year-old "cod war" over fishing rights and will reestablish diplomatic ties within two days.

In what diplomatic sources saw as a clear victory for Iceland, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland and Icelandic Foreign Minister Einar Augustsson announced Tuesday that a temporary fishing agreement was reached after two days of negotiations.

They said diplomatic ties between the two North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies would be restored by Thursday.

Even the somber Icelandic foreign minister cracked a smile as he said, "Iceland won the cod war."

Iceland broke diplomatic relations with Britain Feb. 19 after the British refused to withdraw their trawlers from Iceland's self-proclaimed 200-mile fishing limit. Britain sent in warships to protect its fleet, leading to numerous collisions and ramming incidents between opposing vessels.

The new agreement, valid until Dec. 31, limits British trawlers within the fishing limit to 24 and forbids any fishing in spawning grounds. A permanent agreement will have to be reached if the British are to be allowed to fish in Icelandic waters after the provisional pact expires.

"This is the best agreement that possibly could be reached at this moment," Crosland said, adding that Britain and the Common Market could no longer remain exempt from the worldwide move toward 200-mile limits.

Augustsson called the agreement "a victory for all countries pressing for a 200-mile agreement."

The British foreign secretary, reportedly under heavy pressure from such NATO allies as the United States and West Germany to negotiate a settlement, was criticized before his flight in Oslo for trying to sell out his country's fishermen.

(In London, a British Trawlers' Federation spokesman said new agreement will mean the loss of 1,500 seagoing jobs and could jeopardize another 7,500 related jobs.)

Iceland, a strategic island in the North Atlantic, threatened to withdraw from NATO if the dispute continued.

US accused of weapons ban brake

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union Wednesday accused Western countries led by the United States of seeking to prevent an agreement banning new weapons of mass destruction.

"A lengthy article by Tass, the official news agency, recalled that the proposal to prohibit new weapons systems was made by Soviet leader Leonid J. Brezhnev June 13, 1975, and was later debated at the United Nations.

It said the technical experts met with the Geneva Committee on Disarmament at the recommendation of the U.N. General Assembly, "but experts from the main Western participants — the United States, Britain, West Germany, Italy and a number of other countries — were conspicuous by their absence."

Referring to the "sluggishness" of the Western nations, Tass allowed there might not have been time to prepare for practical consideration.

"But it urged the same countries abstained from the U.N. resolution accepting the need for an international prohibition.

"Does it not look like a deliberate policy aimed at preventing a ban on new types of mass destruction weapons?" Tass asked.

The Soviet agency noted the disarmament committee means agreement.

"It is extremely important that all participants in the talks should display proper responsibility in considering the issue."

"There is a responsibility to millions — upon millions — of people. The question of banning production of new types of mass destruction weapons can be resolved. There are no insurmountable obstacles. It is necessary to do this in the nearest future before it is too late."

All Twin Falls firemen were called to fight the warehouse blaze at Everton

Fire destroys TF warehouse

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A fire which destroyed a warehouse at the Everton Mattress Factory early Wednesday night.

Larry Everton, vice president and manager, said he still is unable to estimate his losses, but feels $100,000 would cover the inventory and possibly the building if replacement costs are not considered.

The spectacular fire attracted hundreds of persons to the scene about 8 p.m. Wednesday. The 40-year-old business operates at 325 2nd Ave. S.

Capt. Ted Poulton of the Twin Falls Fire Department, said one fireman was hospitalized when pinned under some cotton bales in the warehouse.

Another was treated at the scene for hyperventilation. Firemen and company officials were thankful a fire wall between the warehouse and the main factory building held.

The masonry wall built to fire code standards, separates the main building from the old warehouse building.

Everton said at one time the double metal fire doors in this wall were cherry red from the heat.

Firemen went down the fire wall at frequent intervals keeping the fire outside the main building. "Had it gotten into the main plant we would be looking at a loss of well over $1 million," Everton said.

Fearing the fire doors and wall might not hold, volunteers and employees moved all of the company records including a computer out of the building and into a pickup truck Wednesday evening.

Damage in the main building is confined to smoke and some water, Everton said.

He said he would be unable to give an estimate of loss until he and other workers can get into the warehouse area and until insurance adjusters have an opportunity to look over the ruins.

The old warehouse was acquired about three or four years ago by Everton and was formerly a storage building for Young Dairy refrigerator trucks. Prior to that the major part of the building was a roller skating rink and another portion had once served as a livery stable.

Cpt. Poulton said all available firemen were called to the scene and four pumper trucks and the ladder truck were in use.

The fire was under control by 10 p.m. and firemen were able to enter the building at that time to get to the heart of the fire.

Dean Reddick, 23, was working inside the building when a stack of cotton bales toppled, pinning him underneath. He suffered a fractured leg and burns about the face and hands and was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance. Reddick is listed in fair condition this morning.

Another fireman, Rick Letcher, 25, who came to work with the department only Tuesday, suffered from hyperventilation and was treated at the scene.

Everton said the warehouse stored all of the business materials used in the manufacture of mattresses and beds.

He said about 70 bales of cotton, each weighing between 500 and 600 lbs., had just been brought into the building and another order is expected soon.

In addition the building housed some finished mattresses which would be a complete loss, a quantity of baled springs for beds, and many metal bed frames and some wooden bunk beds and frames.

Everton said it may be possible to salvage some of the metal frames but this will not be known to some time.

Foam and other plastics used in making bedding items were also stored in the building.

Both Everton and Poulton said they have no reason to suspect arson, but neither could give a cause of the fire.

Everton said all employees had left the building by 6 p.m. He said he was one of the last to leave and detected no indication of fire. Everton was called by Don Brown's Safety Service, a neighboring business, about 7:45 p.m. and notified of the fire.

Everton disassembled wiring as the cause, saying all wiring was redone at the time of the remodeling in the main building and all wall plugs were disconnected.

He said cotton will react much like hay and had some of the cotton baled wet, spontaneous combustion may have started the fire in the cotton bales.

Everton said today he plans to rebuild as soon as possible.

"We have to have a warehouse. It may not be as large as the old building, but it will have a sprinkler system," he said.

The main plant has both an alarm and sprinkler systems but there was not enough heat to trigger either system Wednesday night.

Everton praised the skill and efforts of the firemen in confining the damage to the warehouse.

"I'm afraid if the fire had gone another minute or two without being detected, we would have lost the whole plant," he added.

Animal proposal draws protests

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — A recommendation to outlaw animals in the city of Jerome drew protest at a public hearing Wednesday night on the city's comprehensive plan.

Henry Pharris, chairman of the city planning and zoning commission, explained the Jerome comprehensive plan lists to goals for the future of the city.

Most people attending the meeting apparently had no objection to most of the comprehensive plan, except for a section which states "future planning should phase out the practice of permitting livestock to be quartered within the city limits."

Giving testimony against the objective was Forrest Hymas who offered several alternatives to the commission for consideration.

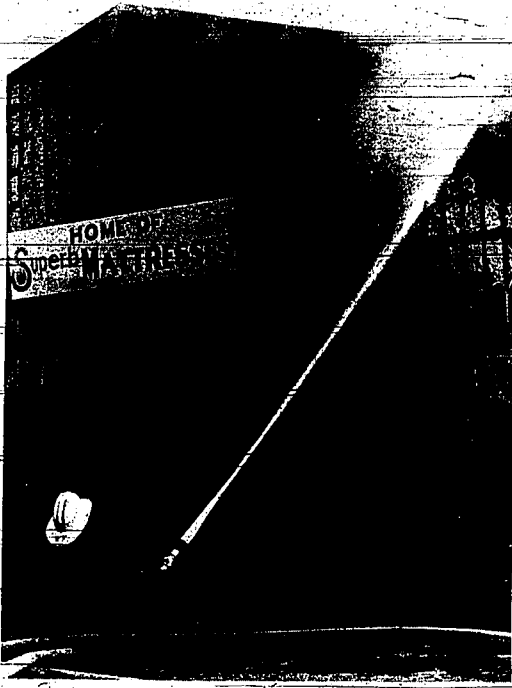

Hymas said that Jerome is a rural community and animals are a point of the rural life.

"41.69 per cent of the people in Jerome County live in the city and I'm sure if you checked with them you would find a majority of them wish they could get an acreage outside of town and have a horse, cow or whatever," Hymas said.

He said that a lot of the animals now in the city are on EEA projects which "keep our Jerome youth busy."

"We don't need to phase out animals. What we need is a good animal ordinance," Hymas said. He suggested that a permit system could be instigated whereby the regulation of an animal ordinance could be outlined. He noted the permit could contain a clause allowing its revocation if the ordinances were not lived up to.

Bill Cannedy said he echoed Hymas' feelings about the animals and said that because of the lack of planning in the past, a number of acreages in Jerome are blacked and are not good for anything else but animals.

Sentence given

JEROME — A Jerome man who was arrested following a high speed chase in which county officers fired a number of shots has been sentenced to 10 days in jail by District Court Judge James Cunningham Thursday.

Thomas Cecil Wood appeared in Fifth District Court for sentencing on a reduced charge of resisting arrest stemming from the high speed automobile chase through Jerome and into the county.

Wood originally had been charged with assault with a deadly weapon (an automobile) for allegedly attempting to run down a Jerome County deputy and with driving while intoxicated.

Wood has been ordered to serve his 10 day sentence on four consecutive weekdays, as well as to interfere with his job at the Community Action Agency.

Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall testified he did not think sending Wood to jail would serve any purpose and said he was not seeking jail time for Wood.

Amtrak route probed

RUPERT — Any Amtrak service to Idaho should serve the entire southern part of the state, the Rupert City Council said Tuesday.

Urged by Council Chairman George MacDonald, members voted that service from Portland to Salt Lake City would be preferable to a Portland-to-Boise route, although some were unwilling to commit themselves to support of Amtrak in Idaho at all.

"If Idaho is to have Amtrak, it's of little value just from Boise to Portland," MacDonald argued.

Mayor Wendell Johnson agreed, saying a line to Chicago would be of more value than one to Portland. Amtrak passenger service does reach both the east and west coasts from Salt Lake City.

The mayor voiced concern about the possibility of foreign oil costs raising gas prices to $1 a gallon. He suggested most people might be forced economically to seek mass transportation if that occurred.

Councilman Clark Cameron agreed with authorizing the mayor to write a letter supporting the extended service into Idaho, but said, "I don't feel I'm qualified to speak for the community" on the issue of Idaho service.

"I think it's a political issue," Councilman W. F. (Bill) Whitton remarked. The council authorization stemmed from a letter from Dwight Jensen, chairman of the Idaho Advisory Committee on Amtrak.

Jensen said Amtrak is considering a Portland-to-Boise run without providing any service to eastern Idaho or connections at Salt Lake City.

He said the current proposal would not offer "a realistic chance of breaking even financially or being successful."

The committee has recommended a passenger line connecting Seattle, Portland, Boise, Pocatello, Salt Lake City, Las Vegas and Los Angeles. Jensen said the Portland-Boise-Salt Lake City run, "if properly scheduled and marketed, would have such a chance."

Jensen is urging businesses and governmental entities to present their own proposals in writing to "President and Board of Directors, AMTRAK, 855 L'Enfant Plaza North, S.W., Washington, D.C."

Canyon View controversy rages

Canyon View responded that it will make all necessary improvements to the canal banks to increase the water capacity sufficiently and to carry the water safely.

"We are using the best engineering know-how available to make the proper improvements," Canyon View president, Dick Kerbs said. "We will go to concrete or a closed channel where necessary."

Kerbs also emphasized that the work would be started 15 months before any additional water would be run down the canal. He said that would give the newly constructed parts of the canal time to settle before being subjected to increased water flow.

He also added work the engineers are planning on the canal banks would provide adequate protection against any breaks in the banks.

When asked if it would be possible to make the canal safe for extra water, Peters replied, "Any canal can be made safe if you spend enough money on it and do enough work."

He added that he felt the cost would be prohibitive and that it would be cheaper for Canyon View to build a second canal adjacent to the present High Line Canal. He said that more projects than just Canyon View could be served by a new canal.

Kerbs replied that the canal company stockholders should not worry about the cost since Canyon View is willing to pay for all expenses involved in improving the canal.

He said that building a new canal would be like building two two-lane highways side by side, when one two-lane highway would suffice. He added too much land would be taken out of production if another canal were built.

He also said that a larger canal would carry water more efficiently than two smaller ones. Less water would be lost from evaporation and seepage, he said.

Public views asked on Minidoka plan

RUPERT — The Minidoka Planning Commission appeared ready Wednesday night to send the city's comprehensive plan to county commissioners again.

But the commission decided to wait for any further written suggestions. It set a Wednesday deadline for any public comment and scheduled a special meeting for 8 p.m. June 16, to act on the plan.

A motion actually was made to accept the plan and forward it to the commissioners with suggestions. John Cameron objected, saying he would present at least three written proposals today.

Commission members Gene Snapp and Don Dickson said they wanted to see many suggestions as possible before they voted to forward the plan. The commission rejected immediate approval with only Charles Clark dissenting.

Commission Chairman George Falkner said some good proposals had come up during the public hearing Wednesday.

"We'd be burning our heads in the sand if we didn't listen," he said.

Falkner suggested the commission recommend the plan for adoption as it now stands, but "make note of some of these things for six months from now." He referred to provision in state law that the plan can be updated every six months.

Commission member Leon Blacker commented on the numerous remarks made during the hearing about preserving individual rights.

Blacker, who has sided with a commission majority favoring limitation on zoning regulations, said he supports individual rights.

"But I don't know any of us that live as individuals," he added.

Many of the comments during the hearing opposed a comprehensive plan as an unconstitutional violation of rights in property.

priority date of 1955. The corporation is merely asking to be allowed to transport this water through the High Line Canal.

He added that if the Canyon View project is completed, the water left over at the permit site would be kept in a reservoir where it could be pumped, to stockholders instead of being run back into the river.

Peters, however, said that during the short water months of July and August, many stockholders might use more water. And if Canyon View were taking water enough might not be available to go around.

Kerbs said extra water in the canal would help canal company stockholders, especially those with high taps that may not have enough water at times.

Because canal company stockholders have voted against the project, it appears that Canyon View will resort to the courts for a decision.

According to John Heworth, attorney for Canyon View, the corporation's last resort will be litigation in the form of a lawsuit. Heworth and it appears that the respondents will force petitioners to bring suit.

Heworth is basing his argument upon the very words of the original contract of the Twin Falls Canal Co., dated January 2, 1903, which states that the canal company sell shares of water to stockholders and to the owners of other lands not described herein, but which are susceptible of irrigation from this canal system.

Such language occurs throughout the contract, raising the possibility for others to become members of the canal company and to benefit from its existence, Heworth said.

A lawsuit appears to be the next step after the right to survey has been regained, according to the language in the Canyon View petition. The petition reads, "The respondents' canal company (TFC) have refused to negotiate with the petitioner (Canyon View) for the use of the respondent's canal system

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices opened higher Thursday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was ahead 0.51 point to 976.84 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines 73 to 211 among the 73 issues crossing the tape.

Many institutional investors, who made large commitments in January and February, were expected to remain on the sidelines, waiting for the Federal Reserve Board figures on the nation's money supply, to be released late in the day.

Receipts lucrative in scandal

TOKYO (UPI)—An American businessman Wednesday told a parliamentary committee investigating Japan's $12 million Lockheed payoff scandal that he was paid $72,150 by the American aircraft manufacturer just for issuing blank receipts.

But Shigeharu Katayama of Los Angeles, Calif., who appeared voluntarily before a select committee of the lower house of parliament "to prove his innocence," repeatedly answered "I don't remember" to many questions posed by legislators.

"Lockheed has a large Japanese agent called Marubeni Corp. and a secret agent, Mr. Yoshio Kodama, My influence in Japan regarding Lockheed's promotion efforts is limited," Katayama said.

Marubeni is among Japan's "big five" trading companies and had acted as Lockheed's official agent in Japan. Katayama, a second generation American, said eight blank receipts were issued in a Hong Kong hotel room in 1974 for A.H. Ehlert, farmer head of the Lockheed's Tokyo office, who asked them for "accounting purposes." He said he didn't remember whether specific amounts of money were put on the receipts, but that they were "just for in-house purposes."

Expressing regrets over the furor caused by the bribery scandal, Katayama said through an interpreter his role in making out false receipts "was a bad decision."

Two other witnesses subpoenaed to testify in West Germany's hearings—Kodama and Taro Fukuda—former president of Japan Public Relations Inc.—declined to appear on grounds of ill health.

Japanese observers said that I-D Corp. receipts were apparently needed to facilitate Lockheed's spending in Japan because persons actually received the money did not want their names appear on the aircraft manufacturer's official receipts.

Lockheed testified before the U. S. Congress in February it spent more than $12 million in Japan between 1958 and 1975 to promote its aircraft sales. It said more than $7 million of the money went to Kodama.

British pound at historic low

LONDON (UPI)—British dealers brushed aside Monetary reassurances on the crippled pound today, pushing the currency to another record low.

The pound opened at $1.7020, its lowest price ever against the dollar.

It also sank against other currencies, knocked 2-1/2 percent to 11.9 percent from the official rates in December, 1971. Wednesday the rate was 41.1 percent.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey said Wednesday in a nationwide broadcast that Britain must not panic in its fight to strengthen the pound.

His remarks followed the pound's worst day in a succession of bad days. It plunged more than four cents against the dollar in just three hours of trading, though afternoon deals pulled it up again to close at $1.7245.

"We must keep our nerve and not panic," he said. "One panic move now will do infinitely more damage than food."

But initial trading after that reassurance knocked 2-1/2 cents of the pound's value.

Some early trades forced it down even further to an even $1.70. But within minutes it picked up slightly, standing at $1.7040 after 20 minutes of trading.

The first to feel the effect of the sagging pound will be Britons taking vacations abroad as the plunging pound sends the price of package holidays soaring.

Families booked on tours may have to pay more than 10 percent above the prices when they booked. For those going to Switzerland, the "surcharge" could be as high as 30 percent.

Healey, fighting "the increasing cost of imports that threaten the anti-inflation pay policy worked out with labor unions, said in a nationwide broadcast there will be no panic measures, but gave no indication of what the government intended to do to curb public spending.

Healey said the important thing is "to keep our nerve and not panic." He hinted there could be a speedup in public spending cuts and the government already had made massive cuts.

The opposition Conservative party demanded Healey make a statement to Parliament on the measures the government proposed taking to arrest the fall in sterling's value.

John Nott said the party's shadow chancellor, Sir Geoffrey Howe, had called on Healey to make a statement on the crisis as soon as Parliament reassembles Monday.

There were unconfirmed reports that government officials already were preparing a program of cuts in local government spending, including a total freeze on capital spending by city halls.

There also was renewed talk of selective import controls and cuts in allowances for Britons vacationing abroad.

Buffalo, 'copters said answer

ARTESIA WELLS, Tex. (UPI) — Rancher Phil Koehne has a world answer to the shortage of cowboys — raise buffalo and use helicopters to herd them.

"We just can't get no cowboys," said Koehne, 31, who talks like, walks like, dresses like and looks like a cowboy from the first button-of-his khaki shirt to the rounded toes of his Scruffy western boots.

From his shirt collar on up he looks like a hippie. That is, his straight-brown hair falls past his shoulders and he talks through a mustache that would look more at home on one-fourth of a basketball player.

There's a remarkable resemblance between Koehne and the picture of Buffalo Bill Cody on his belt buckle, except Koehne seems to grin constantly.

Appearances aside, Koehne is a rancher and he raises Texas longhorns, buffalo and some regular cattle on his 13,000-acre spread in semi-arid South Texas.

"Used to, guys would work for $25 a day and bring their own horse," he said. "Now we have a couple of outfits working helicopters for $100 an hour, and believe it or not, it's cheaper."

The last time Koehne hired cowboys, it cost him nearly $800 — "not counting the beer, whiskey and food" — for five of them for five days.

Koehne admits he isn't a threat to the beef market, but he sells buffalo meat to a couple of restaurants. He hopes to expand his operation nationally and internationally.

"I want to expand my buffalo meat sales to up north and in Europe and Japan. They go ape for that cowboy stuff," he said, grinning widely.

"Buffalo meat not only is a novelty," he said, "it also tastes good. He says buffalo hamburger tastes like steak and buffalo steak tastes like the best heavy aged beef."

Wheat industry to seek checkoff for promotions

By BERNARD BRENNER, UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for wheat growers, millers and major bakers are preparing to ask Congress to sanction an industry-financed checkoff to promote research and "education" on the nutritional value of wheat foods.

The plan, which backers estimate could raise $2 to $10 million a year from bakers and other wheat food processors, follows a pattern which has been adopted by a number of farm groups anxious to promote sales of their products in recent years.

Cotton growers began in 1967 to make checkoff contributions of 5¢ a bale to finance a sales promotion and research program designed to help their fiber compete with synthetics. Similar programs have been authorized by law for producers of a variety of commodities including wool, eggs, potatoes and most recently, beef.

The new plan for wheat, which will come up for consideration in a House Agriculture subcommittee hearing June 15, differs from earlier programs in at least two significant areas. It would raise checkoff funds only from processors, like bakers, not from farmers. And it would include formal voting membership representation for consumers on a council set up to guide spending of the checkoff funds.

In other respects, however, the wheat food proposal would be similar to existing commodity research-promotion programs.

The proposed checkoff would be activated only if Congress first passes legislation to authorize it and processors then approve it in a referendum. Processors attacked by the plan would be compelled to pay the checkoff fees if the program is set up, but they would also have the legal right to refunds if they object to the contributions.

Plans for spending money raised by the checkoff would be made by a Wheat Foods Council including 20 members — five representing farmers, five speaking for millers and other intermediate processors, five for the end product manufacturers — like bakers, and five representing consumers about wheat and nutrition, the spokesmen said.

A somewhat similar plan was defeated in the House in 1972, but spokesmen noted it omitted many features of the new legislation including the referendum and refund provisions. Backers conceded, however, that they may face opposition this time from biscuit manufacturers and an organization representing small retail bakers.

If the legislation becomes law, large-scale bakers and other affected processors would pay checkoff fees which could be set as low as 1 cent or as high as 5 cents for each hundred pounds of flour or other processed wheat the firm uses. Small operators, including virtually all local retail bakeries, would be exempt by a proviso excluding from the program all those who use less than 2,000 hundredweight of flour annually.

One backer of the plan conceded in an interview that if it takes effect, the research fund costs might eventually be passed on to consumers like all other industry operating costs. But at most the checkoff cost would equal no more than one percent of bread — and the benefits to the consumer would far outweigh the cost.

Hereford operation for sale

CHEYENNE (UPI) — A 55,000-acre Wyoming Hereford Ranch, which operators say is one of the largest Hereford outfits in the nation, has been offered for sale.

The ranch, located southeast of Cheyenne, has been advertised for sale in the Denver Record Stockman and other livestock magazines and newspapers in the Rocky Mountain region. A livestock dispersal sale has been scheduled Sept. 20-23.

Bill Wadlow, ranch manager, also said another day would be needed to dispose of farming equipment and another day for sale of ranch equipment. That sale will probably be scheduled in October, he said.

Once called "the oldest, largest and most famous producers of purebred beef in the United States," Wadlow said the ranch is still one of the largest purebred hereford operations in the country.

The ranch, which was originally established in 1883, was purchased in 1967 by Nelson Enterprises from Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Leavy, who purchased it with G. C. Parker in 1957, and assumed sole ownership in September, 1958.

Medical Bills

While Americans are spending more on personal health care, they are getting increasing help in paying their bills. Medical spending leaped from $10.4 billion in 1950 to $103.2 billion in 1975. But between 1966 and 1975, the bill declined from a half to a third. The Conference Board notes. Taking up the slack were private insurance, which covered 25 per cent of total medical expenditures last year, and public funds, which accounted for 40 per cent.

Minimum flows scorned

BOISE (UPI) — A water quality hearing held in Boise Tuesday night, farmers want a government guarantee there will be adequate snow in the mountains every winter before they will support minimum stream flows.

Tom Houghton, secretary of the Idaho Food Producers, said he couldn't see "how you can talk about minimum stream flows unless you can guarantee precipitation the snow in the mountains."

Houghton was one of only a dozen persons who attended the hearing conducted by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare on its proposed Water Quality Management Plan.

Farmers are "extremely leery" of minimum stream flow requirements because of the uncertainties of water supplies, Houghton said.

He said considering average precipitation over the years is one thing, but the occasional drought year is what concerns farmers.

Mike Smith, an environmental engineering specialist for the state agency, said in some cases it may be cheaper and socially better to require minimum stream flows rather than force the districts and municipalities to build additional sewage treatment plants to meet stringent treatment requirements.

Antler hunts okayed by state commission

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Fish and Game commissioners heeded a warning Wednesday that drastic steps must be taken to halt the decline in the state's big game herds and adopted a number of major changes in 1976 hunting regulations.

Commissioner Wynne Blake, Lewisston, said it may not be a temporary one-year stopgap but "may be for two or three years or even more."

Commissioner Jack Hemingway, Ketchum, suggested the commission adopt a statement that the bulls-only elk hunt was a temporary emergency policy.

Commissioner Pete Thompson, Sandpoint, said it was the fear of most sportsmen that they would be saddled from now on with bulls only.

Commissioner Wynne Blake, Lewisston, said it may not be a temporary one-year stopgap but "may be for two or three years or even more."

Ornamental hardware

Hey, bud! wanna buy superdome

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Superdome, the largest enclosed sports arena in the world, is for sale. The state of Louisiana is looking for a $100 million cash offer.

State administration commissioner Charles Roemer, whose office is presently running the $62.5 million facility, Wednesday said his department has been negotiating informally for two weeks with two firms about the possibility of selling the Superdome.

Roemer said the firms, which he did not identify, represent large corporate and industrial interests. He said they are "not necessarily Americans, but they are represented by Americans."

Roemer sidestepped a question on whether Arab oil millionaires might be interested. "Well, they intend to leave the dome here, so you'll have to judge for yourself," he said.

"We feel that we have two bona fide offers," he said. "We have now instructed them to go back and give us written proposals. We in turn are taking steps to analyze through our counsel what the steps would be in the actual sales process, should the buyers come forward with the $100 million or so in cash."

The Superdome, which is home for the New Orleans Saints, New Orleans Jazz and several college football teams and games, has been beset by problems since its inception.

Several legislators who have been closely linked with dome operations said they liked the idea of selling it.

"I'd say it's the biggest garage sale I've ever heard of," said state Rep. Sam LeBlanc III of New Orleans, a member of the Superdome Commission.

"If we can sell that Superdome and get our money out of it and turn it over to somebody that thinks they can run it and make money, I think we ought to do it — no question about it."

If you don't know where to turn you haven't heard about Classified Ads.

ADAM: WHO IS HE?
A Thought Provoking Book For Every Serious Student of Theology

$4.95
Adam and Eve have been misunderstood for centuries. So states Elder Mark E. Petersen in this enlightening book. Drawing from the scriptures as well as statements of past prophets and apostles, he establishes the true identity of our early progenitors. Elder Petersen puts to rest many of the misconceptions about Adam, such as the theory that he was only as tall as a gnat, that Adam and Eve were the offspring of Satan, and many other theories. "Adam: Who is He?" is a book that you want to read!
