Movies once pushed at dam

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A U.S. geologist was so concerned about the safety of the Teton Dam, which collapsed Saturday, that he once suggested setting up movie cameras to film the massive flooding that would occur when it broke. The Washington Post reported today.

The suggestion was contained in a December, 1972, memorandum from David Schleicher, then with the U.S. Geological Survey, in Denver, the Post said.

On Saturday, water burst through the new, $55 million dam, sending more than 300,000 acre feet of water crashing through eastern Idaho.

The existence of Schleicher's 1972 memorandum warning of earthquake hazards to the dam was confirmed Tuesday by the U.S. Geological Survey in Washington. The memorandum said, "Since such a flood could be anticipated, we might consider a series of strategically placed motion picture cameras to document the process of catastrophic flooding."

Schleicher, now based in Pocatello, could not be reached for comment but an associate in Denver said he was "quite certain" that Schleicher was indicating his concern rather than making an actual proposal.

However, Robert Curry, professor of hazard geology at the University of Montana, said he believed the suggestion was a serious one.

"We wanted to learn from what seemed a certain and probably imminent disaster, how big masses of water behave when released," Curry said. No cameras were in place when the break occurred, however.

Curry said he had passed on the concern of several U.S. geologists to various Washington agencies and the public before the dam was built.

In addition, United Press International said today U.S. Geological Survey studies, reported to the Bureau of Reclamation as early as 1973, showed geologic faults in the Teton Dam area. These faults could have contributed to the dam's rupture, according to the studies.

Steven Ortel, survey official, was quoted in copyrighted story in the Jackson, Wyo., Times as saying studies were begun in 1973 to assess the earthquake risk for the entire Rocky Mountain region.

He said geologists discovered a series of faults in the area of the Teton Dam, which was only in the planning stages at the time.

Blaine protests removal

By BART QUESNELL Times News writer

HAILEY — A shocked and vocal coalition of businessmen, professionals and residents told the Region 5 Director of Health and Welfare Tuesday that it is unfair to move the only clinical psychologist from Blaine County.

Region 5 Director Dennis McDermott told the group of angry citizens that federal funding for health and welfare's child development program was cut completely this year resulting in staff reductions in the Twin Falls office.

The cutback in discipline directly influences the other divisions, McDermott said, meaning that positions must be filled where the greatest need arises.

"I have expressed that the position of the clinical psychologist in Blaine County, now held by Frank Andrews, has moved to the Twin Falls Child Development center to serve the greatest number of people."

Dennis Murray, Mental Health Director for Region 5, said the case load in Blaine County is not sufficient to warrant both a psychologist and a social work specialist.

In a memorandum Murray wrote that the Twin Falls area has a greater need especially with the cut-back in child development funds and the large number of persons to be served.

Murray based his decision on an in-house study of the Blaine County mental health case load.

Last to know

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sometimes a candidate is among the last to find out the results.

"I wish someone would tell me what's going on," said Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, as he walked into the ABC News control room Tuesday night to tape some interviews.

He said a "telephone strike" in Ohio had prevented him from getting all but the earliest returns from there.

He was given a piece of paper tabulating Jimmy Carter's wins. Church never stopped smiling, and he wouldn't quite concede.

Levee work begins

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Army engineers began a $1.1 million emergency levee reconstruction program today to prevent melting mountain snow from reflooding an area deluged in the break of the Teton Dam last weekend.

The 307-foot high dam had been built to control the runoff.

Engineer spokesman Pat King said Tuesday an "emergency flood fight" had been declared, enabling repair work to begin immediately on the ravaged levees.

King said the snopack is 150 to 160 per cent higher than normal and the "peak runoff from the Snake and Teton Rivers has not occurred."

The $1 billion flood from the dam burst roared through 85 miles of eastern Idaho Saturday.

Authorities Tuesday revised from seven to five the number of flood-caused deaths, not counting heart attacks. They also said 1,277 persons had been treated and released by area hospitals and first aid stations. Nine persons were hospitalized, two in serious condition.

Idaho National Guardsmen searched for some 50 persons still unaccounted for.

A Red Cross spokesman said an incomplete survey of two of the hardest hit areas showed 1,014 homes destroyed, 3,225 more with major damage and 2,620 with minor damage.

In addition, 180 mobile homes were destroyed, 77 damaged, 416 small businesses damaged and 7,500 automobiles affected.

Authorities prepared to destroy thousands of carcasses of farm animals.

"We are going in and round up the dead animals, dig a pit and burn them," said Brig. Gen. Gordon Shor, state assistant adjutant general.

Damage from the flood also posed a threat to a half million acres of unflooded croplands.

Carter, Ford leaders after final primaries

By United Press International

Jimmy Carter all but sewed up the Democratic Presidential nomination Tuesday despite losses in California to local favorite Jerry Brown.

President Ford also moved ahead despite his California loss to Ronald Reagan.

Idaho's Democratic hopeful Sen. Frank Church saw his "late-late" strategy collapse as he came in third in California and Ohio and second in New Jersey.

Carter steamrolled toward the Democratic nomination for president with his wins in Ohio and New Jersey and with sudden support thrown in by Chicago's Mayor Daley and Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Carter who got to within 383 delegates of the 1,505 needed for nomination, according to the UPI count — he claimed he is within 250 — said today, he doesn't have to promise anything to anybody to win the nomination.

He then won Daley's personal support and a spokesman for George Wallace said the Alabama governor would announce he is releasing his 168 delegates and asking them to vote for Carter. Carter in Atlanta has no doubt that one-time contender Henry Jackson would also support him.

Daley controls between 85 and 100 Illinois delegates and Wallace won 168 in the primaries. If Carter's calculations are correct, both men could give him enough delegates to ensure his nomination on the first ballot at the national convention next month.

Hubert H. Humphrey, who said he would reassess his noncandidacy after the final three primaries, scheduled an announcement later in the day and sources close to him said he would again say he will not be a candidate.

Daley was quoted by aide Frank Sullivan as having said upon entering his office this morning, "Carter's victory in Ohio is the ball game." Sullivan said Daley personally plans to cast his ballot for Carter at the Democratic convention next month.

As California, Ohio and New Jersey cleaned up vote counting from the last of the bicentennial, year primaries Tuesday, Carter had 1,122 delegates according to UPI's count — he claimed more than 1,250 of the 1,505 required — and Ford had 914 of the 1,130 required for the GOP nomination. Reagan had 857 with another 203 uncommitted.

Ford said this morning, "We had a good day yesterday," despite the loss of California's 167 delegates to Reagan. Ford won 91 delegates in Ohio and New Jersey's 67 uncommitted were believed to be for Ford.

Vice President Nelson Rockefeller said the results amounted to a "standoff."

Emergency meet held

CAIRO (UPI) — An emergency conference of Arab foreign ministers agreed today to send a token Arab peace-keeping force to Lebanon where Syrian troops have intervened in the fighting between Christians and Muslims.

An Arab ministerial team immediately flew to Damascus to seek Syrian acceptance of the resolution that also called for a cease-fire and the withdrawal of Syrian troops.

Bomb explodes in embassy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A bomb went off outside the Yugoslav embassy early today, shattering windows, blowing in a door and slightly injuring three persons.

Windows also were knocked out at a private residence on the west side of the embassy, metropolitan police said.

One of the injured, a woman, refused treatment, police said. The other two were taken by auto to George Washington University Hospital where they were treated and released for superficial wounds caused by flying glass.

The FBI was investigating the explosion, which occurred about 12:15 a.m. EDT.

Tribal chief kidnaped

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (UPI) — Black guerrillas have kidnaped a prominent African tribal chief apparently for urging his tribe to cooperate with white security forces.

Internal Affairs Minister Jack Mussett announced Tuesday that guerrillas seized Chief Mabhika, member of Rhodesia's 23 member multiracial senate, in his home district of Bikita, 80 miles west of the Mozambique border.

Mussett provided no further details.

Political parties legalized

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — The Spanish parliament (Cortes) today approved the first of two government bills that will legalize political parties for the first time in 37 years.

AF dam steady

BURLEY — Water in the Snake River below American Falls Reservoir was holding steady at 23,000 acre feet today, Carlos Randolph, superintendent for the Bureau of Reclamation in Burley said.

"This is just what we said it would do and what was intended from the beginning," he said.

Flood waters from the Teton Dam break began reaching the American Falls reservoir Tuesday and, as of this morning the level was 231,500 acre feet. This is only about 1.5 feet into the restricted area of American Falls, Randolph said.

He said there had been no problems anticipated at American Falls and none occurred. Water was released at American Falls on a basis of about 1,000 second feet each two hours shortly after it was learned the Teton Dam had burst.

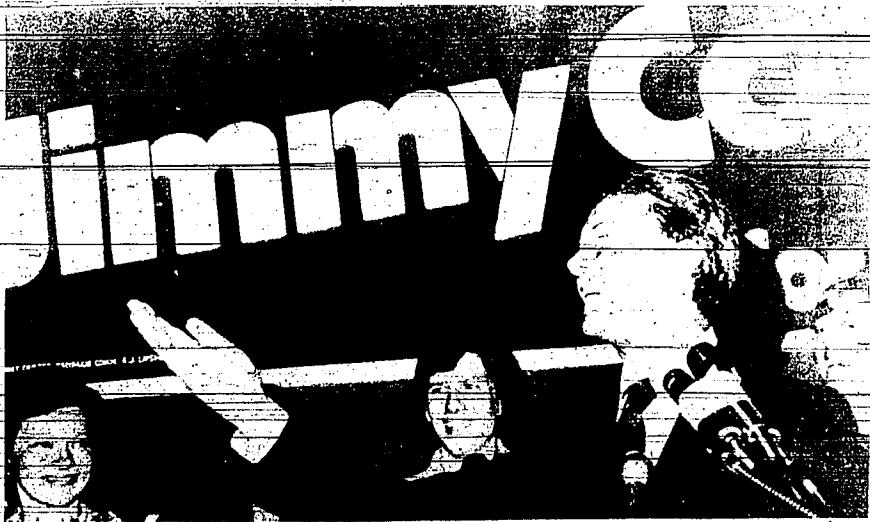

While Blackfoot was still flooded this morning Snake River at American Falls, and downstream through the Burley and Twin Falls areas was maintaining a steady flow of 23,000 second feet, Randolph said.

No problems were reported at American Falls from the debris carried in the flood waters.

Cease fire pushed in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Leftist and Palestinian forces held off the Syrian army on three fronts today and Arab mediators tried to forge a cease-fire to end the fierce fighting between Syria, its rightist allies, and the left.

Syrian troops, who have been pounding leftist forces south and east of Beirut, with tank and artillery fire, opened a third-front today in the northern city of Tripoli, leftist reports said.

US scholars claim China faces unrest

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — Scholars from the United States and Taiwan said Tuesday China is facing its most crucial period since the Communists came to power in 1949 and faces possible large-scale political upheaval.

The scholars, opening the fifth annual Sino-American Conference held alternately in the United States and Taiwan, focused their debate on the struggle between so-called radicals aligned with Communist Chairman Mao Tse-tung and moderate forces once assembled behind the deposed Teng Hsiao-ping.

Herbert A. Scalapino, University of California professor, and Dr. Chen Shih-liang, president of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, both said in opening addresses that this political struggle was the most serious challenge to face China since 1949. "Even for a layman like myself, never properly trained in area studies, it seems clear that ominous changes are about to emerge after the purge of Teng Hsiao-ping, and the renewed struggle between the so-called 'radicals' and 'moderates' culminating in the Tienanmen riots a few weeks ago," Chen said.

Dr. Tani-Wei-ping, director of the Institute of International Relations in Taiwan, which sponsors the conference, told the 100 participants that "it is conceivable that a large scale upheaval might erupt in the mainland at any moment."

With Chou En-lai and Kang Sheng gone from the scene and the aged Mao declining in health, it is doubtful whether their successors will be able to survive the leadership crisis precipitated by the growing contention between the veteran cadres, who are desperately trying to retain power, and the young radicals striving to supplant them," he said.

School levy approved by Shoshone patrons

SHOSHONE — Patrons of the Shoshone School District approved a five mill override levy in the special election Monday.

There were 41 votes cast in favor of the levy with 13 against. It took a simple majority according to Supt. Kenneth Crothers, who explained the money will be used to cover necessary expenses in operating the school.

At the school board hearing at 7 p.m., no patron appeared. The budget was approved as published at $457,082. This is up from $309,173 last year. Crothers explained the increase is reflected in the general increase of costs in such things as textbook supplies, teacher's salaries and insurance.

In other business handled at the school board meeting, three new teachers and a custodian for the grade school were hired. They are Cheryl Miller, high school music; Howard Bond, second school English and speech; Larry Bond, second and third grade combination class in grade school.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller graduated this spring from the Lewis Clark State College, Lewiston. He is a native of Idaho. She was reared in California.

Donna Kansas, taught in the state last year. Modesto Guisasa was hired as custodian of the Lincoln Grade School and will take over duties on June 15.

Candidates campaign in Twin Falls

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In a rambling session, Republican congressional candidates George Forschler and Dr. Glen Wegner and the wife of Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, spoke to a group of about 60 members of the Twin Falls County Republican Women's Club here Monday.

Forschler mentioned that some people had decided that we should "not point fingers" at who is responsible for the flood disaster in eastern Idaho. "I'd just like to flash my fist at what's going on out there," he said. He said irrigation associations have long emphasized the importance of upstream storage safety.

On another matter, Forschler warned that "the road that we are taking today can only lead to disaster." He said that 60 per cent of America's workforce "is somehow dependent upon the American taxpayer."

"We have adopted a policy that we are not only helping the needy of America, but we are also helping the greedy and how long can we go on helping the greedy?" he said. Forschler also said he had heard of a petition for registration in the Communist Party being passed around in a Boise supermarket. "Can I see what's going on?" he said.

He called for more participation in politics and said, "We are too busy picking the golden apples of freedom trees to take the time and fertilize the roots."

Candidate Glen Wegner, Boise, took another tack in his campaign for the congressional seat held by Hansen.

"I honestly and sincerely feel that Mr. Hansen has broken his pick," Wegner said. He said he would not detail the congressman's troubles during his past two year term. But he said these problems have destroyed his "credibility" among his colleagues in Congress.

Wegner maintained that Americans must "rededicate ourselves to spiritual guidance" and said that the nation's political leaders must be in the forefront of this dedication.

He called for voluntary disclosure of personal sources of income as well as the mandatory disclosure of campaign sources. He said he would make public his own personal tax records and challenged the other candidates to do likewise.

On other matters, Wegner supported limitations on terms for congressmen, senators and presidents. He called for trying to change OSHA and not becoming involved in a fruitless effort to repeal it and not there must be a balance between the environment and growth.

Connie Hansen called the past two years "turbulent" for herself and her husband. "It was very rough going. But I think we have survived, and I think we will continue to survive," she said.

She maintained that Hansen "respected by the leadership in the House" and has acquired important committee positions.

Geologists claim faults were known

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — Two government geologists say the Bureau of Reclamation knew as early as 1974 of U.S. Geological Survey studies showing geologic faults in the area of the Teton Dam, which collapsed last weekend.

Steven Oriel of the USGS's Goodale Division was quoted in a copyrighted story in the Jackson Hole Guide Tuesday as saying studies were begun in 1972 to assess the earthquake risk of the entire Rocky Mountain region.

He said geologists discovered a series of faults in the area of the Teton Dam, which was in the planning stages at the time. The dam collapsed Saturday, flooding Idaho's Upper Snake River Valley, killing at least six persons and leaving thousands homeless.

Oriel said he and other geologists wrote to the Bureau of Reclamation in June, 1973, advising it of the potential for earthquakes in the area and the risks the earthquakes could cause in the structural safety of the Teton Dam.

The geologist said he does not know if the bureau took any action from the USGS findings. He also said he does not have the engineering expertise to determine whether the dam should have been constructed at a different location.

"I recognize that engineering structures are built on a wide variety of geological sites so I can't say whether the dam should have been built," Oriel said. "But I can say that you ought to take various conditions, both geological and soil conditions, into account."

David Schleiher, also a USGS geologist, told the Guide the findings were used by the Bureau of Reclamation as an internal organ, not as a means to warn the public of the possible risks in building the dam.

"The bureau did not set up any seismometers to measure earth movements at the dam site before construction began, although the site was in a seismically active area," Schleiher said.

He said earthquakes had been recorded only 40 to 50 miles from the site at the Fallsades Reservoir.

Birds take ride

IDAHO-FALLS — The collapse of the Teton Dam apparently hasn't dampened the spirits of birds along the Snake River.

Clean-up crews in the Idaho Falls area say blackbirds and cowbirds are taking advantage of the floating debris in the Snake River.

"The blackbirds and the cowbirds were the only birds having fun," Ramsey, the chief construction inspector for the city of Idaho Falls said Tuesday.

Grandmas' walk nets new floor

IRVINGHED, Minn. (UPI) — Two grandmothers walked 26 miles Tuesday in 99-degree heat in a charity fight to raise money and ended with funds for a new floor in the American Legion Club in Pine River, Minn.

V. Clark and Katy Carlson are auxiliary members of the Pine River American Legion Club, and they aren't about to give their ages. To raise funds for the club, one of them suggested, "Let's walk like old ladies."

Their idea was to walk from Pine River to Nisswa, 26 miles away.

They did and pledges for their walk, which took about 11 hours, resulted in $1,000 for the Legion's new floor in Pine River.

Gierek in Germany

HAMBURG, West Germany (UPI) — Polish leader Edward Gierek arrived in West Germany Tuesday for the first visit by a ranking Polish official since World War II.

In an interview published to coincide with his arrival, Gierek said he disagreed with the French and Italian Communists on their decision to renounce the old Marxist dogma of the dictatorship of the proletariat.

100-foot bnt for Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sculptor Claes Oldenburg, whose works include a 45-foot challenge coin and a 24-foot lipstick, is doing up a 100-foot red steel baseball bat for the city of Chicago.

The $100,000 open lattice-work sculpture, believed to be the tallest erected in the United States since the 151-foot Statue of Liberty was dedicated 90 years ago, is scheduled to take its place outside the new Social Security Administration building this fall.

Oldenburg calls it "Batcolumn."

Kauper resigns

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Attorney General Thomas Kauper has resigned as head of the Justice Department's antitrust division to return to the faculty of the University of Michigan.

Kauper, 40, said Tuesday he was weary of being a bureaucrat and wanted to spend more time with his wife and two young daughters.

Nixon may speak

HELIOSOTH, Mass. (UPI) — Tabitha Baruch-Korff says former President Richard Nixon may accept invitations to speak to university audiences after the presidential election.

"After the election, I have reason to believe Mr. Nixon will begin to accept some invitations from heads of state and universities here and abroad," Korff said.

"He appears to be in good health, relatively better health than I had seen him in a long time."

Lasser sentenced

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Louise Lasser, star of the "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" television series, has been placed in a drug diversion program — consisting of seeing her psychiatrist — in connection with a cocaine possession charge.

In ordering the program, common for first-time drug offenders instead of a trial, Municipal Court Judge Leonard Wolfe Tuesday set Dec. 1 for Miss Lasser's return to court. Charges could be dropped at that time.

Prosecutors objected because Miss Lasser, 31, had been seeing a psychiatrist at the time of her arrest.

Amoo case narrows

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — An investigation into three suspicious fires at the home of country recording star Tammy Wynette has cleared the singer and her family of any involvement, according to state arson investigators.

Cecil Patterson, the state's chief arson investigator, said Tuesday Rudy Gatlin, a member of Miss Wynette's band who was in the house at the time of the May 25 fires, also has been exonerated.

Nine persons were in the home when the fires broke out. They were Miss Wynette, her four daughters, her mother, an aunt, a friend of her daughters' and Gatlin.

Veterans protest

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fifteen veterans — barreled themselves behind chained and locked doors in the Statue of Liberty today to protest cutbacks in GI benefits.

The group from the Vietnam Veterans Against the War hung a banner from the statue's crown, 22 stories above the ground, which read: "Expand and Expand the GI Bill."

"We have seized the Statue of Liberty in opposition to the Memorial Day cutoff of the GI Bill," said Jim Duffy, a spokesman for the group who remained outside to announce the takeover.

Duffy said the veterans would occupy the statue in defiance of the National Park Service official said members of the group indicated to park service guards on Liberty Island they might leave later today.

Duffy told reporters cuts in GI educational benefits, which took effect May 31, left the veterans without funds on which to live while attending college.

"It has forced thousands of veterans onto the street with no jobs to be found and no income," Duffy said.

Flag lowered

CHARLES H. POLLARD, Chester, Conn., has for years lowered the flag on the tiny green next to his Main Street home each time someone died in the small Connecticut river town. This week the flag flutters low for Charlie, 71, who died in his sleep Sunday.

Old Glory lowered in Charlie's honor

CHESTER, Conn. (UPI) — The flag fluttered at half staff today for Charles Pollard, who for nine years lowered the Stars and Stripes whenever someone in the town died.

The red in Old Glory's bars matched a cluster of geraniums at the flagpole's base in the center of town. And Charlie's widow vowed to carry on the tradition.

Charlie, 71, who suffered from emphysema, died Sunday night in his red-shingled house at Main and Maple streets. His wife, Barbara, a teacher at Chester Elementary School, lowered the flag to half staff.

"He'd done it for everyone else and I was going to do it for him," she said. Just up the hill from Charlie's house is the United Church of Chester. There his friends and neighbors today were to pay their last respects.

Charlie was a tool and die maker. He retired in 1967 to his porch which gave him a commanding view of Main Street, its dozen shops, restaurants, the town hall — and the flagpole. — It was from the porch with his cat, Red, napping at his feet, that Charlie told a UPI reporter two weeks ago about his love for a Flag Day story.

He mirrored the stage manager in "Our Town," the narrator in the late Thornton Wilder's 1938 Pulitzer Prize-winning play about life in rural New England village, as he spoke: "The flag has been lowered for every death in town since before World War II. The man who owned the hardware store across the street used to do it, but he passed away, and I've been doing it the last eight or nine years."

"As soon as I hear of a death, I lower the flag, and it's lowered every day until the burial. I get word from the neighbors of the deceased or the town clerk's office. It's more or less by word of mouth."

"There were some questions and arguments when we first started. Some said the national flag shouldn't be lowered for private citizens. They figured it wasn't proper," he said. "Others said it was good to do it, to honor the old people who've left us."

"It's my opinion that everybody's equal as far as the town is concerned. Of course, some are more prominent than others, but the flag is lowered for any citizen," he said.

Charlie likes to time his small town — pop 3,200 — where he lives, every day.

"I like to wave to all my friends in town. I've got a lot of friends."

"It makes time that way."

Will outlines burial plans

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Oil billionaire J. Paul Getty never saw his lavish museum on the seaside bluffs where he grew up as a boy, but it will be the lion's share of his estate — and his own body.

Getty, one of the world's richest men, died Sunday at his estate, Bel Air, London, at age 87. But his will was notified for probate Tuesday. It was thought a California law would prevent his burial on his private Malibu ranch.

The suitably oily tycoon, in a will setting the value of the estate at more than $1 billion but not specifying the exact total, elaborately described his burial plans which sidestepped a law prohibiting interment on private land.

First, he made arrangements to have his executors set aside a one-acre cemetery on the 65-acre ranch. On it will be built "a

The will leaves individual bequests to two surviving sons, Gordon Getty and Jean Ronald Getty, to other members of his family and friends and employees.

The largest specific dollar bequest — a lifetime $55,000 a year — was left to Getty's fifth and last wife, Louise Lynch Getty, in a single lump. They were divorced May 29, 1951.

Most other bequests were in the form of shares of stock in the Getty Oil Co.

87 students ready for big spelling bee

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A record 87 students will mind their p's and q's in the 49th National Spelling Bee today and Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel.

"This is far and away the biggest national spelling bee in history," says director James Nease. Last year's bee had 79 contestants, and there were 80 in 1974.

This year's spelling contest, sponsored annually by Scripps Howard newspapers has 49 girls and 28 boys between 10 and 14 years old competing for the $1,000 first prize.

About eight million children under 16 years of age and below the ninth grade took part in elimination contests locally, by telephone.

The youngest school grade represented this year is the fifth, which has two young champions competing. There are four sixth-graders, 26 from the seventh grade and 55 from the eighth. This year's spellers come from 34 states, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Brazil. Each represents one of 83 newspapers.

John Fawcett is the first contestant from South America. Fawcett, 14, is from Sao Paulo, Brazil, where his father is a missionary, and there were 80 in 1974.

There are two repeaters, spellers who have previously made it to the Washington finals. It is the smallest number of repeaters since 1970, when there was only one.

The two this year, both from 1974, are Anne Curry of the Maine Sunday Telegram, who finished 62nd that year, and Glenn Margolis of the Lubbock, Tex., Avalanche Journal, who finished 61st.

Hugh C. Tostevin, representing the San Juan Star, was last year's winner.

California drops safety proposal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California voters Tuesday rejected a controversial ballot measure designed to tighten the safety standards of atomic power plants in the nation's first major vote on the future of nuclear energy.

Supporters of the measure, including consumer watchdog Ralph Nader, said Proposition 13's defeat was the work of a multimillion-dollar campaign by big utilities and oil companies "which spread grossly distorting" information.

People's Lobby, a sponsor of Prop. 13, said it would try to qualify another ballot initiative in 1978.

"This is only the first round on atomic energy and its expensive and catastrophic risks to present and future generations," Nader said. "The thousands of Californians who worked for Prop. 13 will try again."

With 41 per cent of the ballots counted, the vote was 66-per cent "no to 34 per cent yes."

Even with its defeat, proponents claimed a partial victory, saying the initiative forced the legislature into quickly passing three nuclear safeguard bills, signed into law last week by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. which would prohibit construction of new plants until waste disposal and reprocessing of nuclear fuel are approved by the legislature.

Opponents charged the measure was "destabilizing" and would actually "shut down" nuclear power plants in the nation's largest state, increasing California's already high unemployment rate, and deprive 21 million residents of badly needed energy sources.

But pro-initiative forces said the proposition would guarantee safe atomic power plants. Present safeguards, they said, are inadequate.

Victory speech

FORMER Gov. Ronald Reagan stands beneath "White House Express" banner Tuesday as he makes victory speech after win in California primary. On platform with Reagan are his wife, Nancy, left, daughter, Marureen and son, Skipper. (UPI)

Two favorite sons win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — California gave native son challenger—Ronald Reagan—and Edmund G. Brown Jr. key primary victories Tuesday in their uphill fight to deny the presidential nominations to President Ford and Jimmy Carter.

As expected, Reagan, 65-year-old retired governor and Brown, his nonconformist 38-year-old successor, destroyed their front-running competitors. But the margins were even greater than polls had forecast.

Brown outdistanced Carter by about 60-20 per cent. Reagan drubbed Ford by about 60-40.

"In every primary I've entered," Carter "has" lost," declared Brown as he prepared to rush his late-starting campaign to Louisiana today in search of more uncommitted delegates.

"It's going to be all the way," he said.

In the Senate race, first-term Democratic Sen. John V. Tunney routed Tom Hayden, the 1960s antiwar radical trying for a chance to "work within the system."

Felsty S.I. Hayakawa, 69, who gained national attention for his hard line in quelling campus rioting at San Francisco State College in 1969, won the GOP nomination and measure to impose tough safeguards on the development of nuclear power plants. The issue split the atomic science community, was supported by conservationists and opposed by business and labor.

If you're having a dill, you might as well have a dilly.

Our barrel-cured beauties, pickled with dainty pearl onions, carrots, whole bay leaves, horse radish flakes and real dill sprigs are just like the pickles that were munched with gusto at the turn-of-the-century. Our six other kinds of pickles will make you feel nostalgic, too. Try them. You'll taste why we call them the new old-fashioned pickles.

Daley to shut down Nazis

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley says the city will seek a court order shutting down the headquarters of the American Nazi Party, which is holding a "white power rally" Sunday.

Daley Tuesday said the city would try to close the headquarters "in the interest of fairness, in the interest of justice and in the interest of what's right."

The Nazi party has been named by police as ringleaders of a crowd of white persons who attacked blacks with bottles, bricks and baseball bats in the Marquette Park District of Chicago's Southwest Side Sunday.

They had gathered in anticipation of an open housing march by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. "Movement" which failed to develop. The crowd then turned on any passing blacks.

Fourteen persons were injured and 32 persons arrested.

Tunney, Hayakawa win in California

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Democratic Sen. John V. Tunney swamped onetime antiwar radical Tom Hayden Tuesday while feisty semantist S.I. Hayakawa won the Republican nomination in his first bid for public office.

Hayden, a Chicago Seven defendant—whose campaign was bankrolled heavily by his wife, actress Jane Fonda, gave Tunney the political scare of his life in the bitterly fought contest. But he lost by a 3-2 margin.

Hayakawa, who gained national attention in the 1960s for "squealing" campus riots, overcame three major challengers by a surprisingly large spread. The 69-year-old retired San Francisco State University president switched to the Republican Party only two years ago.

He upset former Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch, who campaigned for two years; eight-term Rep. Alphonzo Bell and former Lt. Gov. John Harmer.

Revenue sharing future debated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A many-sided argument is developing in the House over a bill to continue federal revenue sharing to 30,000 state, county and local governments.

The House begins debate today on the bill which would extend revenue sharing through Sept. 30, 1980, at a cost of $25 billion, or $655 billion a year.

The program expires at the end of this year unless Congress extends it. It was begun under the Nixon administration in 1972, and under it localities have received $30 billion in federal money to use virtually as they see fit.

Local governments are lobbying for extension. So is President Ford, who wanted a 5-year extension instead of the 31 years contained in the bill.

House Republican leader John Rhodes said Tuesday that Democrats, including some who would like to kill revenue sharing, are trying to load it up with "crippling amendments."

Unless these are removed, he said, Ford will consider a veto, after which a new bill would have to be written.

"The amendments 'he cited would..."

— Urge states to prepare plans to "modernize" state and local governments, which Rhodes called a step toward federal control of local affairs.

— Require the union wage rate in the nearest big city to be paid—on construction projects in which any revenue sharing funds are used.

— Distribute $150 million a year under a new formula, which more heavily favors big cities and poor rural areas.

WindMobile-invented

SEBASTOPOLE, Calif. (UPI) — Now it's the WindMobile.
An enthusiastic entrepreneur hopes to have his three-wheeled wind-powered vehicle — with a large sail arching over the rear on the road by the end of the year.
Mark Golles, president of Sunwind, Ltd., a small company at the outskirts of this community in Northern California's apple country, says it is "the most energy-efficient vehicle ever developed."

Essentially a three-wheeled motorcycle, the WindMobile runs on batteries, aided by the play of air currents on the sail and on the wheel skirts.

Hoping to add solar cells later to replace the batteries, Golles has an alternate game for the three-wheeler — The Sun-wind electric surprise.
If you saw one cruising along the highway, it would certainly be a surprise, looking like something out of science fiction.

The driver sits in a small cockpit under a transparent windshield. The 12-foot body of the WindMobile is made of fiberglass and is shaped like a bomb. The high, thin sail arcs between two small horizontal tail fins.

Golles claims a speed of 50 miles an hour on the batteries alone, and 60 miles an hour with a 12-mph crosswind.

He says its range is 30 miles at 50 mph without any wind and 300 miles or more if there is a 10-mph wind.

The vehicle was invented in 1969 by James L. Amick, of Ann Arbor, Mich. The Sunwind company holds the patent to it.

Golles plans to have a commercial model built by Great Outdoor Boat Co., of San Rafael, Calif., and says it will be available by the end of the year. He said it will sell for $4,975 — without batteries which will cost $50 each — six required.

But he said the customer can take the WindMobile home in a kit for $2,975 and build it in a couple of weekends.
Golles said it will be "quite simple to drive." It has only a throttle to operate the 2.5-horsepower motor over the rear wheels; a steering wheel and a foot brake.

The sail is stationary and does not require adjusting.

Complaint brings return

BOSTON (UPI) — Debbie Cook is 8 years old. But she knows what she wants.
She went shopping for dresses three weeks ago and didn't like what she found. So she complained.

She wrote a letter to Filene's Department Store, saying:

"Dear Filene's:
"I am Debbie Cook. I like size 7 or 8 dresses. I would like to know why you don't make kids' dresses as cute as babies' dresses — like dresses with ducks, animals and other stuff. Kids like cute dresses, to 'sies. Here are some dresses I like. Thank You!
"Love Debbie"

She accompanied the letter with a page full of dress designs. They contained "ducks, animals and other stuff."

On Monday a delivery man arrived at the suburban Brookline home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cook, Debbie's parents. He had a package and a letter from Franklin Simon, president of Filene's.

The letter said:
"Dear Debbie:
"I couldn't have been more pleased to have your letter and your suggestions for dresses you would like to have. You shall have at least one of them because we had your design with a duck made up for you."

Democratic phone booths

A TELEPHONE man works on one of the hundreds of phone booths being installed in Madison Square Garden in New York in preparation for the July 11 opening of the 1978 Democratic National Convention. By the time the delegates gather to nominate their presidential candidate, thousands of miles of wire and cable will be in place. (UPI)

Monsters studied

LOCH-NESS - Scotland (UPI) - Dr. Robert Rines, head of the 1976 expedition hoping to find the Loch Ness monster, said today his cameras already have taken 8,000 pictures and these are now being processed before being examined by experts. Anything on the prints that tend to support the controversial photographs taken by the 1976 expedition, which convinced some authorities that a large animal, given the scientific name "Nessiteras Rhombopyrex," lives in the lake will be sent to zoologists all over the world, he said. Dr. Rines told a news conference the recipients will include scientists of the British Museum of Natural History who were the most skeptical of those who did not believe the 1976 pictures.

Dr. Rines said photographs were being taken at the rate of one every 15 minutes with stroboscopic, flash equipment and a huge battery of equipment including still and tv cameras using black and white and color would be stered underwater in a stereoscopic pattern. Some cameras will be linked to closed circuit screens on shore that will be monitored around the clock. One of the photo-experts of the expedition, Charles Wyckoff of Needham, Mass., said the camera setup is three times as effective as that used in 1975. "It's obvious our chances are very high," Rines said. "This is the fourth year we've been here. We've already seen (in previous years) some very large things in Urquhart Bay on an underwater ledge overlooking a deep depression."

He said these "large animals" were probably feeding on salmon and this could be the best place to capture them on film. "We're not here on a circus but on a very serious scientific expedition", said Rines, who is President of the Academy of Applied Science in Boston.

Sophisticated balloon tracks air pollution

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - The often-delayed flight of Da Vinci II, a government sponsored balloon designed to float along with air pollution and track where it goes and how it changes, finally began Tuesday from Arrowhead Airport.

The 70-foot-wide helium balloon, sponsored by the Federal Energy Research and Development Administration, carries a payload of 6,500 pounds, including sophisticated testing equipment and a crew of four. It is designed to fly as long as 36 hours in the direction of Illinois and Indiana. The balloon lifted off shortly before 10 a.m. EDT. Officials said a 24-hour flight would set the balloon down near Terre Haute, Ind., and a full 36-hour flight would bring it near Indianapolis. The flight is a follow-up to the 12-hour flight in November, 1974, of Da Vinci I in the relatively pollution-free air near Las Cruces, N.M.

Diet pills falsely advertised

WASHINGTON (UPI) - A Federal Trade Commission judge ruled Tuesday the makers of a diet pill falsely advertised that users could lose weight while continuing to eat whatever they wanted. The product involved is called "X-11" diet tablets. In an unusual move the decision by Administrative Law Judge Daniel H. Hanscom also found the drug store chain which sold the pills guilty of the same offense. Hanscom ruled that the manufacturer, Porter and Dietsch Inc., St. Paul, Minn., falsely advertised that users of X-11 tablets can lose weight without restricting their eating habits. The product contains a unique ingredient, phenylpropranolamine. In reality, he said, the ingredient is found in a number of other non-prescription products. He also said the company had no reasonable basis to conclude that substantially all users of X-11 tablets would lose a significant amount of weight. Also named in the decision were the firm's advertising agency, Kelly Ketting Furth Inc., Chicago, and Pay'n Save Corp., Seattle, a major chain of drug and sundry stores operating in the Pacific Northwest. Hanscom said the chain published advertisements over its own name making affirmative claims and representations to the public for the X-11 tablets without knowing whether or not these claims and representations were true or false. Just because the ads were prepared by someone else does not relieve the drug store chain of its responsibility to the public, he ruled. The decision may be appealed to the full commission by any of the parties involved.

Orville and Wilbur 'great humorists'

By ERMA BOMBECK
When the great humorists of our times are recorded, there is no doubt in my mind that the Wright Brothers will lead the list.
These Sunshine Boys of the sky refined humor. They bypassed the one-liners, eliminated the pie-in-the-face routine and replaced the scantly-clad assistant with one prop: a plane.
They got their 12-second act together in 1903, and played Kitzhawk, N.C., before bringing it into New York. Hardly anyone laughed.
It wasn't until 1905 they got their first big break. They performed for the United

"I thought we weren't going to have the scantily-clad assistant. They always remind me of a magic act."
"What are you talking about. With this whole thing it is a magic act if we can pull it off. Anyway, she can stand there and tell them where the oxygen is when they can't breathe."
"You're sure that's funny, Orville?"
"They'll love it, and if the plane is going over water, she'll demonstrate a life preserver."
"Right about the airplane cushion that floats? We'll call it a flotation pillow and get this, Orville, no one knows

Summer program

SANDY Lewin, Charles and Curtis Sandy, from left, are among children enrolled in the Shoshone City Library reading program this summer. The course will last through Aug. 15 and children who complete requirements will receive certificates of achievement.

Reading program under way

SHOSHONE — A summer reading program at the Shoshone City Library was launched this week under the bi-centennial theme with readers called patriots.
The program will continue through to Aug. 15 when a special program will be presented and certificates presented those who complete the course.
According to Mrs. Marx Nielsen, librarian, the children aged first through third grades will read for pleasure, while those fourth through sixth do have some requirements and will be reading a variety of types of books. They must also read at least 35 books during the summer program period.

Grangeville, Jerome women top Idaho cooking contest

NAMPA — Ms. Lillian Hatheway, Grangeville, has a recipe for cooking chicken that could be worth $10,000.
Winner of the state cookoff held recently at Rarher Hall in Nampa, she will represent Idaho at the 1976 National Chicken Cooking Contest on July 14 in Philadelphia. Her recipe for Chicken and Sour Cream Enchiladas will compete with 50 others, one from each state and the District of Columbia, for the grand prize of $10,000.
Runner-up in the state competition was Mrs. Lillian H. Tucker, Jerome. She prepared Braided Chicken Breasts for the judges of the state contest in which there were six contestants.

Mrs. Tucker won for Idaho in 1970 and went to Princess Ann, Md. and cooked chicken there and in 1974 she also won and went to Winston-Salem, N.C. to compete.
She said contestants must use Mazola oil and Ac'cent since they are sponsors. They also must use a different recipe each time. Mrs. Tucker said she has used recipes she has modified and improved. She said she plans to enter the contest again next year.
The National Chicken Cooking Contest is sponsored by the National Broiler Council and the makers of Ac'cent flavor enhancer and Mazola corn oil.

one-half cups broth.
Mrs. Tucker's recipe is for:
Braided Chicken Breasts
1 broiler, chicken breasts halved and boned
6 tablespoons Mazola corn oil
1 teaspoon Ac'cent monosodium glutamate
1 cup rich chicken broth
1/2 cup peach chutney
4 slices ham
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup water chestnuts, chopped
Heat one-fourth cup of the oil and brown the chicken breasts on all sides. Add the Ac'cent, chicken broth and bread, and reduce the heat and simmer until the chicken is tender.
Remove the chicken, saute the ham slices in the same juice the chicken was cooked in.
Arrange the water chestnuts in the rest of the oil in a separate pan. Remove chestnuts and heat the mushrooms. Combine all together and heat in the juice.
Arrange the water chestnuts, top with chicken pieces and then add mushrooms and chestnuts and sauce and serve to four.

Try a change from the usual cottage cheese-pineapple salad. Toss a can of pineapple chunks with grated onion or orange peel, layer with cottage cheese in parfait glasses. Tuck in a few small marionette spears. Top with a dash of red jelly.

Remove front heat. Strain broth. Refrigerate chicken and broth at once. Chill when entering to cook. Remove meat from bones and skin. Cut into chunks or dice. A 3-pound broiler-fryer chicken will yield about three cups diced cooked chicken and two to two and States government who thought the routine had possibilities, but that before the public would accept it it had to be punctured up with lies.

Orville and Wilbur talked about it.
"Let's go over it again. Orville was talking safety and comfort in flying. Right? Okay, so in the lobby, just before you get to board the plane, we'll have a counter to sell insurance."
"What possibilities, Wilbur, go on."
"Then, a little farther down, we'll have a security check to make sure no one with guns is boarding."
"I like it! I like it! Then when they're on board, we'll strap them in and a cute lassie will appear and" what a flotation pillow is!"

"They, here's something else. After we tell them how safe it is, we'll put a bag in the pocket telling them how to throw up in two languages: English and Spanish."
"Stop it, Orville, you're cracking me up."
"And we'll have restrooms that no one can stand up in and give the pilot lines like 'For those of you on the left-hand side of your plane' when everyone is sitting on the right side."
"Yep. Somehow I can just see Orville and Wilbur Wright on a celestial bike path looking down and saying, 'The idiots bought it!'"

Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged divorcee. For the last two years I've been dating a very attractive single man. We are not officially engaged, but since we've been seeing each other I haven't dated anyone else, and the only time he has when one of his friends or relatives fixes him up with a "lovely lady" they think he should meet, or when he's asked as a favor to escort a lady somewhere.

I've very much resent others casting my gentleman friend in the role of a single available man. When I tell him that I don't appreciate his accommodating others by escorting another lady, or agreeing to accept an arranged date, she tells me I'm being foolish.

Annoying situation

How can I handle this annoying situation without appearing possessive and jealous?

NUMBER ONE LADY

DEAR LADY: You can't. Don't blame others for casting your gentleman friend "in the role" of an available man. He doesn't have to accept that role unless he wants to.

DEAR ABBY: Do they sell donkey blinders anymore? If so, I would like to buy a pair for my husband. He never looks at the road when he drives. Instead, he is busy gawking at the young women who are walking along the streets.

He slows down to about five miles an hour to be sure he doesn't miss anything. We've come within inches of having accidents more times than I can count.

How can I get this old coot to keep his eyes on the road? He's 52 and I'm 20.

GAWKER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Even donkey blinders would be useless for the kind of donkey. If you can't get him to keep his eyes on the road, take the wheel. And if he doesn't like it, let him trot!

DEAR ABBY: A friend of ours who is a married woman with children recently lost her mother.

My mother and I disagree on how the condolence card should be addressed.

I say, condolences should be addressed to: "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones and family."

My mother insists that the condolence card be addressed only to my friend whose mother died.

Is it proper to console only the party directly bereaved? Or shouldn't my friend's husband and children also receive condolences? After all, her husband lost his mother-in-law, and the children lost their grandmother.

FRIEND OF THE FAMILY

DEAR FRIEND: I vote with you.

DEAR ABBY: About LONG SUFFERING HUSBAND, whose wife would not permit smoking in the house: There is no point in my repeating the damage that smokers do to themselves, but they should realize the suffering they cause others and not expect nonsmokers to remain silent.

It would like to wish that my husband, if his wife had had no lover, would he expect her to tolerate ragged in the house?

Miss Diehl, Allison wed in Jerome rites

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson:
I am a 48-year-old woman who had a benign tumor removed from my breast. I have talked to other women who have had tumors of breasts and who found dissatisfaction among doctors about it. Some do a needle biopsy and others say they prefer to remove a lump and have a pathologist there, then proceed according to what is found.
If a doctor does a needle biopsy and the tumor is found to be benign, does he just leave it there? How do they know the best method to use? — Mrs. J. O.

Biopsy technique

This is a knotty problem. The answer lies in the skillful preliminary diagnosis of suspicious tissue. The surgeon must use his own judgment as to the best method of making a final determination — which biopsy technique to use.
There are three basic methods to obtain a sample of the tissue. They are the needle technique, the "incision" method and the "excision" method.
Using the needle, the surgeon draws out a bit of material from the growth to be studied under a microscope. Or he may make a small incision to remove a larger sample.
With excision the entire growth is removed.
The needle method is the simpler and less expensive way, but it has its drawbacks, especially if the growth is a tiny one. However, with this method there is less chance of disturbing surrounding tissue and lymph glands.
The incision technique is usually favored if the suspicious mass is large. The object is to get as large a sample as possible. This cuts down chances of getting a false reading from a bit of tissue that is not representative of the whole.
The last method, where the entire growth is removed, is decided on when the tissue has been identified as cancerous or where strong suspicion exists that part of it may be or become so.

Often a combination of these methods is used. For example, the needle sample may prove to be benign. But was the sample accurate? To be sure, the surgeon may have to use one of the other methods.
As I said, it is a knotty problem.
If tissue is inaccurately found to be non-cancerous, that is worse than if it is inaccurately judged to be malignant.
Often, the doctor or pathologist (the one who studies the tissue for him) does not have time on his side. Tests are not 100 per cent reliable and they do take several hours.
My advice for anyone having a biopsy is to have a frank discussion with the doctor regarding the proposed method and the alternatives that must be decided on by him.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
We eat a lot of lettuce in our diet, and I read recently something by a nutritionist (the one who studies the food we eat) who is afraid to eat it because we don't know what fiber is. Can you tell us? — A.S.
Lettuce is a good fiber food. There's nothing bad about it. All foods contain three basic things — proteins, carbohydrates and fats. These can all be broken down (or digested) so that the body can use them. Digestion of these substances takes place somewhere along the digestive tract.
While the plants we eat, a fourth ingredient is added — cellulose. This is a non-digestible material that forms the plant's cell walls. This is fiber.
While your body cannot digest cellulose, it puts it to good use. As bulk it is a great help in the digestion of other foods. It provides the bowel with the bulk it needs to work efficiently. Without bulk constipation would result.
You'll occasionally hear references to high-residue or low-residue diets, or even high in bulk or low in bulk. It all means basically the same thing.
Confidential to G. E.
"Pilonitis" (the P-I-O-N-I-T-I-S) is excessive tightness of the foreskin to the point where it cannot be drawn back normally. The answer often is surgery (circumcision).
What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading "Dr. Thosteson's booklet, 'The Way to Stop Constipation.'" For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.
Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

JEROME — Merilee Diehl and Steve Allison were married in a 7 p.m. candlelight ceremony May 22 at the First United Presbyterian Church.

The bride wore a Victorian style gown of lilac satin with ivory eyelet over it. The dress was styled with long sleeves and a standup collar. The yoke of the gown was trimmed with eyelet lace. Matching trim was used for the sleeves and collar.
Her veil of ivory tulle was held in place by a lace-trimmed headband. She carried a formal cascade arrangement of light and dark lavender and white lilies.
She carried a hand-tatted handkerchief which had been carried by all of the brides on the maternal side of her family. She was the fifth bride to use it.

Jennifer Diehl, sister of the bride, was maid-of-honor. Bridesmaids were Diane Eggers, cousin of the bride; Debbie Allison, sister of the bridegroom; and Cindy Scheer.

Wade and Jerry Diehl, brothers of the bride, were candlebearers.

Fireman honored

FILER — Ron Stokesberry was named "Fireman of the Month" for May by the Filer Volunteer Fire Department.
The firemen responded to three city fires in Filer and two county fires during this month, according to Gerald Muller, fire chief.
May 10 the department was called to the Blackfoot (Pa.) 312 Yakima, where a trash can was afire and was causing minor damage to a wooden fence next to the can.
May 15 the volunteers answered a call to the home of Willard Garrard, one and a half miles south of Jeffery's Gun Shop where a haystack was on fire. The stack was destroyed but the fire was kept from other property.
May 19 firemen were called to a house fire at the home of Rod Harter, 608 North St., Filer. No firemate was given on the damage.
May 25 the department was called to the Lawrence Kolbfleisch farm (two miles west of Filer) where a machine shed was on fire and was destroyed. An electric pole nearby was also afire but was extinguished. The Idaho Power Co. was called.
May 27 a fire in a trash can inside Quality Wood Products building on Main Street was discovered and firemen were called. No damage was reported.

When West followed to that lead Sandy paused to try to construct the West hand and had already played his one club.
So Sandy led dummy's eight of clubs and let it ride for a successful double finesse. One more club finesse and the contract was home.
Ask the Jacobys
A Kansas reader wants to know how you handle a bad hand with a long club suit when you play two clubs as your only forcing bid.
The answer is that you open two clubs and bid whatever number of clubs you have to at your next turn.

UP Railroad depot at Shoshone symbol of bygone era

By MELBA THORNE
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE. — The Union Pacific Railroad business in Shoshone continues to draw interest from tourists passing through and could well become a bi-centennial highlight of the area.

People often stop off to take a better look at the depot or comment about that nostalgic era of passenger train days.

Dennie A. Everett, agent at the Shoshone depot, said a visitor recently was so taken with the Old Oregon Shortline bulletin board, in the train man's cage—that he offered a "tidy" sum-of-money-to-be-allowed to saw it off the wall and take it home.

Everett pointed out the "old bulletin board" was not for sale.

It will continue to hang there in the iron-caged little engineer's room as reminder of the early days when Oregon Shortline schedules were posted in the center.

Everett, speaking of his first years in Shoshone in the 1940s, remembers when it wasn't unusual to see 500 people at the Shoshone depot.

Today, the entire passenger service depot is used as headquarters for freight dispatches. All passenger trains, four each way, including the steamliner City of Portland, stopped at Shoshone up until 1971.

In the 1930s and 1940s, four freight trains per day ran on the Ketchum, Hill City branches, hauling sheep, cattle and grain along stations at Marley, Richfield, Pagari, Priest, Gannett, Bellevue, Triley, Pleabe and Bartle.

From the two branches more sheep was shipped than from any other branch of the Union Pacific Mainline.

In addition, all ore from the Triumph Mine north of Halley was shipped on a lift from the mine about eight miles up the North Fork of Little Wood.

Or buckets of the lift brought ore from Triumph to Gimlet and then UP loaded about 17 car loads per day from that mine, Everett said.

The Hill City branch had stops at Rawson, Burmah, Magic, Macan, Rands, Fairfield, Corral, and Hill City itself.

Lambis were shipped out in May, June and July to Ogden, Utah. Grain shipping was another important commodity of these branches.

There were agents at Dietrich, Richfield, Pleabe, Bellevue, Ketchum, Kelchum, Magic, Fairfield and Hill City until 1950. Now, the agent at Shoshone handles all of these stations.

The original agents were, more or less, operators as there were no telephones in use on branches until the 1940s and all messages had to be sent via telegraph wires.

Everett said tickets for passengers looked like something off the teletype machine. An example, the ticket from Kelchum to Butte, Mont., would be about two feet long and showed Ketchum in Shoshone to Minidoka, to Pocatello, to Silver Bow, to Butte, and "that was just one way," he added.

In 1925 the last steam trains to Ketchum and Hill City were discontinued.

One vehicle considered of interest was known as the Galloping Goose, a diesel train with engine on one end and passengers in the middle with baggage space on the rear.

The Union Pacific Oregon Shortline first came into Shoshone in 1882-1883.

A box car served as the first depot, with the first actual building erected in 1883, now standing and in use for storage on the east end of the yards.

Originally, the old depot was situated just west of the Apple Street crossing and was moved to the present site on Dec. 1, 1928. The new depot, now standing on the east end of Main Street, was constructed on the present site.

It was opened for passengers Dec. 6, 1928, and so occupied until May 1, 1971, when passenger service was cut off and the depot then became the present freight agent's office.

The old waiting room area is the roadmaster's office and signal supervisor's office and the baggage room became the mechanic's office.

Some of the roadmasters of this district have been W. C. Price, Jim Wise and Jack Schiller in the 1930s; Gilbert Sweet in the 1940s, and 50s, and Doyle Bennett in the 60s with Kenneth R. Rose—presently holding the position.

Probably as many as 500 young men have had opportunity to work parttime in this part of the railroad operation over the years, earning money mostly to help finance their college education, Everett said.

An interesting fact, Everett pointed out, is that Sid Gressing, first of Shoshone, died in 1965. He actually taught in Shoshone in 1945, but his name is not on the list of teachers.

Sid Smith, who still lives in Shoshone, who figured strongly in sheep operations for years.

Some of the agents include T. N. Cook in 1929; Matt Whitbeck, 1929; F. D. Kelley, 1936; R. W. Manning, 1955; D. S. Bailey, 1959, and D. A. Everett, taking over the duties in 1965. He actually taught in Shoshone in 1945, but his name is not on the list of teachers.

telegrapher for a number of years.

Everett said he is now handling 23 stations, where at one time there was a man at each.

As late as 1960, the Shoshone railroad employed as many as 25 people in the passenger depot, six at the freight office and had 25 telegraphers in the department that employed 15 many as 75 persons. They handled the water, round house and engines. Then, besides, there were six crews of five men each running trains on the branches for the branch landing operations.

Passenger train business for many years was built around Masson Valley resort, Union Pacific signed Sun Valley until

When the passenger service was closed in Shoshone in 1971, the city leased the two little parks and brick platform at each end of the depot. Purpose of this was to keep it in neat repair and actually preserve the brick, since it was the rule by the UP to remove it and replace the area with gravel, as was done in American Falls.

Union Pacific, none-the-less, has continued to keep the building in good repair, only just recently finishing a new interior and exterior paint job in the familiar white and green colors.

Besides the Boise and Caldwell stations, Shoshone's depot is the oldest in Idaho.

Everett said Union Pacific is considering phasing out a number of agents, which would mean there would be no permanent agent in any town, but one, combined in several places. The agent, for example, would travel between Shoshone and Gooding, and another one would likely handle the Jerome-Wendell-Twin Falls area.

Echoes of the past

DENNIE A. Everett, Union Pacific Railroad agent, stands outside the Shoshone depot in the picture at left and is shown by the ticket sales window in photo above. The "date-stamp" on the shelf behind Everett was used to stamp tickets purchased at the depot and Everett estimates it is older than most Shoshone residents.

Shoot...if it wasn't for Pierce's Bacon those cowboys wouldn't have made it to Abilene.

You know how particular cowboys are about their bacon. That's why I've always used Pierce's Old Faithful Bacon. It has what Mr. Pierce calls his Cure of 76... and this means it's cured the same old-fashioned way. With lots of real sugar and hard wood smoke. Up here in Montana, Pierce's Old Faithful Bacon is kind of a legend, so why not give it a try? Shoot...they don't call it Old Faithful for nothin'.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened mild Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.24 point to 557.73 shortly after the opening. Advances led declines, 224 to 210, among the 684 issues crossing the tape.

Investors were concerned the heavy fighting in Lebanon, where Syrian troops pushed toward the capital of Beirut, could expand into major Middle East war, sparking a 1973-oil embargo for the West.

Early in the day, Baghdad Radio reported Iraqi troop movements "to take their positions in the Arab arena in order to perform their national duty," the Middle East News Agency said.

Teton flood-affects Gem economy

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Eastern Idaho's Teton Dam disaster will have a tremendous impact on the economy but, farm specialists said Monday, it will take a more complete damage assessment to make specific predictions.

Destruction of croplands and livestock not only may lead to shortages and higher prices for farm products but the resultant loss of income to many farmers could affect the entire economy of the area.

Shortages of such crops as potatoes could raise prices elsewhere.

The specialists said it was hard to determine the extent of the damage to crops and livestock because of the lack of communications in the flood-damaged area and the fact some areas were still inaccessible because of the inundation.

"There's quite a bit of damage assessment to be figured out as soon as we can get into specific areas other than just flying over them," said Wilson Kellogg, Idaho

Director of Agriculture. Kellogg said some crops may produce this year, but quickly added many farms in the area probably were lost forever to production.

"Fields were cut right out — just cavities in them," Kellogg said. "Other places are just piles of gravel."

The agriculture chief said "these farms aren't replaceable."

He said many farms were covered with gravel and the top soil was washed away or there were "flat farms with deep gullies cut through them — small canyons — that will be hard to fill and start over."

Kellogg said it was too early to tell what the damage will have on the price of potatoes.

But he said that the loss is bound to have an effect.

"It will be a very heavy loss to Idaho agriculture and a tremendous loss to the entire economy in the area," Kellogg said. "The loss will be in the millions, but I don't know where to peg it right now."

The three counties hardest hit when Teton Dam broke Saturday — Jefferson, Madison and Fremont — are agriculture areas, growing potatoes, alfalfa-sugarbeets and grain. Jefferson and Madison counties are among the major potato producing counties in the state. There also are numerous dairy herds in the county.

Gordon Randall, head of the Idaho Potato Commission, said he has been unable to get through to eastern Idaho and didn't have any idea of total damage to the potato crop.

Harold West of the Idaho Wheat Commission said grain crops in the area would not be as hard hit as the crops in lower areas.

Some grain is produced in the basin area but the majority is produced on benches surrounding the flooded acreage, West said.

"I don't know how much was left in storage," he said. "Grain in small farm storages and commercial storages all got wet. They (the farmers) will have to move it and turn it quickly or it will spoil, but all their equipment is gone."

West agreed with Kellogg that many farms in the area, especially where the flood waters roared out of the Teton River canyon were heavily damaged.

"It's just going to destroy that whole area immediately below the dam and I don't know how far down," West said. "I sure will have an effect on the entire economy that's no fooling."

Bill Maxwell, director of public relations for the J.R. Simplot Company-Boise, said his firm does not buy many potatoes in that end of the state. He said the information they were able to obtain was "there was no estimate of how many crops were damaged."

He said most of the potatoes in that area were purchased by French and Rogers Brothers. Officials of those companies could not be contacted because of communications problems.

Maxwell said even crops that may have escaped damage faced a problem because they were surface irrigated and irrigation canals throughout the disaster area have been destroyed.

"Maybe some of the crops were not wiped out, but they will have no water."

Maxwell said he could not comment on what effect the disaster would have on the future prices of potatoes.

"We will just have to get the pieces of the puzzle together before we have any concrete answers," he said.

Ray West, administrator of the Idaho Dairyman's Association, said he has been unable to obtain information from eastern Idaho on livestock losses.

"There is such turmoil we haven't been able to assess the situation," West said.

Ja Garner, potato specialist for the Idaho Extension Service in Blackfoot, said if potatoes were under flood waters any length of time it will reduce yield and result in a loss of nutrients and leaching. He added rhizoctonia — a fungus — if the fields are buried too long and covered with silt, there will be a complete loss of the crop.

Garner said "Plants won't be able to survive."

Potato storage bins in the upper valley were covered with water from Saturday's flood, but Garner said he didn't think many farmers still had their potatoes in storage.

Vernon Ravenscroft talks in Castleford

Clear cutting 'nature's way'

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — Clear cutting is nature's way of harvesting pine trees in the forest, according to Vern Ravenscroft.

Ravenscroft — a trained forester and a man who makes part of his living by harvesting trees from Idaho forests, was the featured speaker at the Castleford Men's Club luncheon meeting Monday.

Ravenscroft told the group of nearly 20 Castleford residents that there is presently a nationwide debate over proper forest management and harvest methods.

He said three bills are pending before Congress concerning forest management. The first, a preservation bill, would not allow much clear cutting and would provide for management by strict regulations.

A second bill, proposed by Sen. Hubert Humphrey, is "spray workable," according to Ravenscroft.

And a third bill is a rewrite of the second which will probably end looking more like the first, he said.

The real issue is whether clear cutting is the best method of harvesting, Ravenscroft said.

Different species of trees need different kinds of harvesting.

The tolerance of a species of tree, or its ability to withstand shading by taller trees, is of major concern in harvesting, he said. Selective cutting of forest trees can produce a crop of cringles if the trees are not tolerant of shade.

There have been some big mistakes in clear cutting in the past which have given it a bad name, according to Ravenscroft. Erosion, wind throw, and ugliness have been the result.

But Ravenscroft cited the famous Black Forest in Germany as a good example of proper clear cut harvesting. For the past 600 years, the spruce from that forest have been carefully harvested by clear cut methods and the forest is now more productive than ever.

Good methods of clear cutting include putting the cuts on contour to avoid erosion.

Advisory unit on food regulations draws protest

By BERNARD BENNER
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new Agriculture Department advisory committee set up to review food regulatory programs is beginning work under sharp criticism from consumer spokesmen.

The eight-member panel was established in March by Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butte and scheduled its first meeting today and Wednesday to review existing programs ranging from meat and poultry inspection to marketing orders for milk, fruits and vegetables, and to decide which of the operations it intends to "evaluate."

Even before the first session, however, the panel was under fire from a coalition led by the Consumer Federation of America on grounds committee members named as consumer and academic representatives also had food industry ties.

The consumer expert on the panel is Jane Armstrong, vice president for consumer affairs of Jewel Foods Melrose Park, Ill. The academic representative is Dr. E. M. Foster, director of the Food Research Institute of the University of Wisconsin.

CFA officials said the Institute is "industry sponsored" and that Foster also serves on the board of directors of a company manufacturing the controversial red food coloring.

Armstrong said earlier she sees no conflict of interest between her industry job and her ability to speak for consumers on the committee. But, she said, she believes a "grass roots" consumer spokesman should be added to the panel and she intends to propose such a move to agriculture officials.

Other members of the committee include representatives of farmers, state governments and food industry groups.

Donald Wilkinson, head of the Agricultural Marketing Service, said the committee's basic purpose will be to find out how well regulatory programs contribute to orderly marketing of farm products, and how they affect consumer prices and farm income.

Celts unite Boston—if only briefly

BOSTON (UPI)—The world champion Boston Celtics Tuesday did what city leaders have not been able to do for the past two years: bring an air of harmony to this troubled city, if only briefly.

An estimated 30,000 people forgot racial tensions which have divided the city for months to line a two-mile ticker tape parade route between Boston Garden and City Hall Plaza honoring the Celtics' 13th National Basketball Association crown in 20 seasons.

At City Hall another 30,000 fans were waiting in the sunny, red-bricked plaza—remembered by many as the site where black attorney Theodore Landsmark was beaten by white students during a protest over court-ordered school busing only months ago.

"You have won for a thousand different reasons. In other arenas we haven't done so well," Mayor Kevin H. White told the players as they stepped onto City Hall balcony to gaze over the sea of deafening cheers.

"We're number one. We're number one," the crowd chanted as White tried to quiet them to introduce the team members who flew in Monday night from Phoenix where they clinched the title over the Suns on Sunday.

"Today Boston honors the greatest collection of athletes in the world," White yelled through the microphone.

White first presented an award to clear chumping Celtics General Manager Red Auerbach, who he called "the creator of the greatest dynasty in sports history."

side intrams, belloyed to the crowd in his chronically hoarse voice. "We've got a great, great basketball team here, and we're going to do it again next year."

"There was prolonged applause for Don Nelson, who has announced his retirement earlier this year. "It's been 11 of the best years of my life," the former University of Iowa star said quietly.

award along the way. "I'd just like to say one thing," he grinned: "HOW SWEET IT IS!"

But the most enthusiastic eruption was saved for Captain John Havlicek, 36 the old man of the team who spent more time with his injured foot in an ice bucket for he did on the playing floor during the playoffs.

Shula can't buy judge's draft idea

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula opposed a federal judge's suggestion Friday that the pro football league limit to perhaps two rounds of "blue chip" stars, with the other college players becoming unclaimed free agents.

The proposal came from U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant, presiding over the non-trial of an antitrust suit filed by former Washington Redskins Jim "Yazoo" Smith, who is challenging the legality of the draft.

Bryant suggested the idea of the draft being confined to only a handful of seeded college stars who are virtually assured of making pro teams under the current system of each club picking 17 rounds. The judge indicated this would create a wide-open reservoir or pool of less-sought-after college talents.

commented. "The stronger clubs would get stronger because they would retain their share of the blue chippers and yet be able to go out and get most of those good players still available."

Shula, who built the expansion Dolphins into Super Bowl champions two years in a row, predicted that under Bryant's proposed system, "the top college players would want to take their shot with the stronger teams" and the "weaker teams would have to give more money than a stronger team to get a good player's services."

"I'd rather be able to get more than my fair share of those after the first two rounds," he asserted.

The Miami coach also testified that the team which selects a player in the draft has an investment in him through the money spent in scouting, developing and coaching him.

"The player benefits from the investment because it creates a competitive balance in the league and enhances popularity of the game, which in turn helps pay for his higher salaries and bonuses," Shula added.

Buhl jumped ahead in the first inning when Dennis Chandler lived on a fielder's choice, moved around on a throwing error and Jerry Clayton's single and scored on another error.

Twin Falls managed a tie in the second when VanNest lived on an error, took third on Clay Bingham's bunt and scored on a Mike Kay single.

Jeff Lierman then thrust Buhl ahead to stay in the bottom of the inning when he opened with a double and rode in on Chris Bell's hit.

In the fifth, Terry Hellwig and Allyn Reynolds opened with base hits and all hands lived when Lierman, bunted and Hellwig beat the force throw to third. Sacrifice flies by Bell and Hudson plated the final two runs.

Witness describes shooting

VIRGINIA CITY, Nev. (UPI)—A state witness testified Tuesday that Argentine heavy-hitter Oscar Bonavena was "a nice kind of man" and called the gate at a brothel shortly before he was shot to death.

John Colletti, a security guard at the Mustang Ranch house of prostitution, testified at a preliminary hearing in Justice Court here that Bonavena demanded to see Joe Conforte, owner of the establishment. Colletti said he and Bonavena talked for about five minutes and then the boxer moved behind his car in a parking lot and disappeared from view.

NHL governors settle nothing

MONTREAL (UPI)—The board of governors of the National Hockey League played for time Tuesday on three thorny questions before their annual meeting.

The Kansas City question was a $5 million debt over two years in operation.

They shelved decisions until later this month on the financial woes of two troubled teams—the California Golden Seals and the Kansas City Scouts, and they rejected aging Clarence S. Campbell as president for a while longer after a head-hunting presidential search committee failed to come up with an acceptable successor.

Campbell, 70, had been scheduled to retire this week, but instead will begin his 31st year as NHL president. The board members returned to their presidential search and promised to come up with a successor "by or near the end of 1976."

The Seals were reprivated at least until June 25 when owner Mel Swig said he hoped to come up with a decision on whether he will to absorb a team that has failed to draw crowds in the Oakland-San Francisco area.

After falling in attempts to have an arena built in San Francisco, Swig, who purchased the Seals from the league last summer, threatened to move the franchise to another city. He has denied reports Denver was a possible new site.

Earlier, Storey County Sheriff Bob Del Carlo testified a second gun had been found underneath Bonavena's body, but that Mustang security chief Lloyd McNulty had admitted planting the pistol there.

Del Carlo said McNulty told Sheriff Bill Pilon he put the gun under the boxer's body. The other gun mentioned was a .38-caliber pistol found in a holster in Bonavena's left boot.

It has been reported that comedian, W. C. Fields kept about 200 different bank accounts world-wide under phony names. Client asks how they were all checked out after his death in 1946. They weren't. Only 45 of those accounts actually were located by his executors. The researchers said they were gratified to see approximately $500,000 of his estate has never turned up.

Football players did not always wear helmets. In the early days, they just put on hair. Very long hair. The record shows it protected them fairly well. Why the record does not show that numerous football players were tackled by their hair I do not know, but it doesn't.

IN LOVE

"Never trust a man's opinion on any subject until he has been in love. Love is the only thing which can make life as clear as noon day." So said John Oliver Hobbes. Here's to John Oliver - drink! ... Have you put on an extra five pounds lately? If so, bear in mind your body has to build an additional four miles of blood vessels to handle that.

"Of all the household appliances now on the market, which is generally considered by the majority of women to be the best labor-saving device?"

A. Believe wash-and-wear clothing merits that distinction.

"Do alligators have ears?"

A. That they do. High on their heads so the ears are out of water when the alligators go cruising along the surface.

Can you name the woman who most influenced the nation's garment business in the last 25 years? Not Jackie Onassis nor Princess Grace nor the Duchessa-of-Windsor nor Greta Garbo. Am told it was Marlene Dietrich. When she stepped herself in slacks in 1934, the California clothing makers pounced on the fad. Within a few years their business jumped 50 per cent and the entire industry changed its course therefor.

SUICIDES DROPPED

During a newspaper strike in Detroit sometime back, the suicide rate thereabouts dropped 20 per cent. ... It was the Belgians, not the French, who invented french fried potatoes. ... Changes are about one in 25 college graduates will wind up in jail sometime.

Average newborn baby cries 113 minutes a day. It's reported that the top-most crying. Any baby that cries 113 minutes a day isn't getting sufficient attention. Incidentally, do you know the quietest time of day in most hospital nurseries? It's 10 a.m. Quietest time is around midnight.

Rail car rams circus train

SELKIRK, N.Y. (UPI) — The Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, en route to Louisville, Ky., Tuesday despite a near-disaster Monday in which a freight car rammed the circus train and injured 13 circus employees.

The 32-car train was parked in a huge railroad switching yard outside of Selkirk, N.Y., to water the animals when the big cement hopper car struck, opening the sleeping compartment of the train.

Only one of the 13 persons injured was hospitalized. Officials at Albany Medical Center Hospital said Corrado Stacion of Washington, D.C., is in satisfactory condition.

After examination and rejoined the train, which was bound for a performance in Providence, R.I., to a man in Lansing, Mich.

The car, about midway in the long train, was occupied by persons who operate concessions for the circus. An adjacent car also was occupied by concessionaires and another was occupied by performers. There were no injuries in the latter two cars.

Concessionaire Bill Williams said he was asleep in the car immediately behind the car that took most of the impact. He was awakened by the fall of a noise. He said he and other occupants left their car and began helping the injured.

A Penn Central Railroad official said it could not be immediately determined if the accident was caused by human failure to throw a switch or by a mechanical failure in the switching mechanism.

The animals were several cars away from the impact and, circus officials said, they were not unduly disturbed by the crash.

Circus trainmaster Charles Smith said he believed the four-hour delay could be easily made up. He said the train will arrive in Louisville, tonight "about on schedule."

Rhode Island
Rhode Island is distinguished historically for its contributions to freedom of conscience and action, begun by Roger Williams, founder of Providence, who was exiled from Massachusetts Bay Colony in 1636, and Anne Hutchinson, exiled in 1637. The first Baptist church in the United States was founded in Providence the same year. Rhode Island gave protection to Quakers in 1657 and to Jews from Holland in 1658.

Debris examined

Pearl Harbor burial sought by survivor

FORT DODGE, Iowa (UPI) — Russ Lott was one of the lucky ones when the USS Arizona sank in the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. He survived.

But when the time comes, the 56-year-old Fort Dodge resident wants to be with his old shipmates.

In a letter to Bedell, Lott wrote said because of Lott's "unique category as a survivor on the attack of the USS Arizona," it is proper that his remains be buried beside those of his shipmates. Wentworth said a Navy chaplain will be present at the service, which "will be in keeping with the highest traditions of the Navy."

Lott has requested—and received, permission from the U.S. Navy to be buried next to the Arizona, which has been at the bottom of Pearl Harbor since the attack on Dec. 7, 1941.

Lott said it is his understanding that only survivors of the Arizona can get permission to be buried next to the ship. He said he doesn't think anyone else has asked permission to do so, although he plans to inform others of his plan.

He has made arrangements to be cremated when he dies and his ashes will be placed in an urn, flown to Pearl Harbor and lowered to the bottom next to the ship.

"They are 1-177 of my former shipmates still there. Why shouldn't I go back to the ship?" he said.

Lott, 56, made his desires known earlier this year. With the help of Rep. Berkeley Bedell, D-Iowa, the arrangements were made through Rear Adm. U.S. Wentworth Jr., commandant of the 14th Naval District.

Only 223 crewmen survived the sinking of the Arizona. Bedell said 21 at the time, recalls it vividly.

Nixon White House tried to discredit columnist

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon White House made an effort in March, 1972, to discredit columnist Jack Anderson by dragging him so he would appear incoherent during a public appearance, it was disclosed Tuesday.

J. Howard Hunt, subsequently convicted in the Watergate break-in, lunched with a retired CIA physician at a Washington restaurant a stone's throw from the White House in hopes of obtaining a hallucinogenic drug for the project.

"However, a White House effort was made—in consultation with a former CIA physician to explore means of drugging Anderson to discredit him by rendering him incoherent before a public appearance."

"This effort apparently never proceeded beyond the planning stage."

Juveniles arrested in TF

TWIN FALLS — Two juveniles, ages 12 and 9, were arrested by Twin Falls city police and charged with burglary of a storage building Monday.

Details of the attempt to discredit Anderson — who aroused administration ire by publishing secret White House transcripts revealing President Nixon's "tilt" in favor of Pakistan in the Indo-Pakistan war of 1971 — were published by the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence in a special supplement to its final report.

Hunt acted, the report said, after he was summoned by presidential aide Charles Colson, whose logbook showed he met Hunt March 14, 1972.

Colson testified to the Senate committee he was asked "many times" by President Nixon to discredit Anderson although Nixon did not specifically suggest drugging.

Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said two juveniles were seen leaving the building owned by Terry Newman 429 Fifth Ave. N. Officers said about $30 damage was done in the storage building. Several items were damaged or destroyed. Two other juveniles were apprehended by city police at the home of Raymond Grubbs, 1210 Addison Ave. E.

The project was dropped after it was determined to be impractical.

The intelligence committee report denied a Washington Post report by Bob Woodward, Sept. 21, 1975, that the White House actually attempted to assassinate Anderson.

Senate investigators also spoke with the doctor, unnamed in the report, who said Nov. 7, 1975.

"I was asked if I could help them provide behavior-altering medication to an individual, unidentified, and in no way could I detect of whom they were speaking. I said I could not. I had retired in 1971. I had no access to any kind of medicines. So I did not provide it."

Candidates submit petitions

BURLEY — Cassia County commissioner Orville Beecher did not file for re-election before Monday's deadline.

Two Republicans and one American Party candidate have filed for the seat Beecher held.

Rex A. Utley and Norman E. Dayley, both Elba, have filed on the Republican ticket. Robert Parker, Maha, filed on the American Party ticket.

Incumbent Republican Commissioner Weldon Beck is unopposed for re-election in the first district.

Sheriff Ray Mitchell, Republican, faces two opponents in his bid for re-election. They are Democrat Clarence Wright and American Party member Wilson J. Hutchinson, both Burley.

Two other incumbents are unopposed for re-election. They are C. Bruce Young, for coroner and Alfred E. Barras, for treasurer, both Republicans.
