

I Think My Dad Should be president

This is just one of more than 30 letters from Magic Valley children who think their fathers should be president. The letters and the names of the six prize winners in the letter contest begin on page 21 of today's Times-News in a special Fathers' Day tribute.

today in brief

LUANDA, Angola (UPI) — A string of prosecution witnesses today drew a grim picture of murder, pillage and intimidation in the dying days of the civil war in northern Angola and pointed accusing fingers at the 13 mercenaries sitting in the dock behind them.

One said that some of the 14 billions ordered to be executed by Col. Tony Callan, "Georgiou" were left to bleed to death. Another contradicted claims by seven of the defendants that they used no threat or force when they took refuge in his jungle hut for four days.

Nuclear meet ends

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI) — Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, wrapping up a meeting with Western nuclear experts, will arrive in Kenya tonight to discuss the sale of U.S. jet fighters to the Nairobi government.

Rumsfeld's African trip, which also will include arms talks in Zaire, is aimed at countering growing Soviet military influence in nations bordering Kenya and Zaire. He will make a refueling stop in Athens en route to Nairobi.

Rumsfeld, attending a meeting of North-Atlantic Treaty Organization's Nuclear Planning Group, won approval in principle for his proposal to improve the yield and accuracy of the alliance's tactical nuclear weapons and move more of them out to sea.

Resistance pockets cleaned

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Syrian army units cleaned out pockets of left-wing and Palestinian resistance near the Israeli-held Golan Heights today, and leftist leaders appealed to radical Arab countries to lend troops to aid their fight.

The Syrians rolled across the snow-patched slopes of Mount Hermon in southeast Lebanon Monday to capture a key left-wing outpost at Rasayna, less than 10 miles from Israeli-occupied territory, and further tighten their control over the eastern half of the country.

Campaign opens

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — Politicians representing powerful economic interests have opened a campaign to unseat Premier Carlos Arias Navarro over the issue of political reform, the newspaper El Pais said in a frontpage report today.

"A government crisis promoted by sectors of the regime may be in the making right now, sparked by the difficulties encountered by the reforms of the Arias government," the newspaper said.

The latest program aims at changing the institutions of the late Generalissimo Francisco Franco's regime, mainly by introducing a two-chamber-parliamentary system based on universal suffrage and legalizing political parties. It has run into difficulties in the Cortes (parliament) and the Council of the National Movement — still Spain's only legal political party — which acts as a consultative body.

Lower meat price or else

ROME (UPI) — Police today rescued meat importer Giuseppe Ambrosio whose abductors threatened to kill him unless 71 Rome butcher shops sold prime beef at one-fourth the usual price.

The 53-year-old Ambrosio, abducted Monday, was found tied to a bed on the second floor of a former girls' boarding school near the Colosseum. One man was arrested, police said.

The building's administrator, making an inspection tour, was attacked on the second floor by one or two men, who handcuffed and bound him and put adhesive tape over his mouth. But the administrator managed to roll down the stairs and into the street to give the alarm, police said.

Ford addresses Baptists

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — President Ford, in apparent reference to allegations of sexual misconduct in Congress, told Southern Baptists today that public officials "have a special responsibility to set a good example... in both their private and public conduct."

"The American people, particularly our young people, cannot be expected to take pride or even to participate in a system of government that is defiled or dishonored — whether in the White House or in the halls of Congress," he said in an address prepared for the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Idaho may withdraw from Chicago exchange

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Idaho potato growers have threatened to pull their product out of a major potato futures market if a series of new regulations are adopted which the growers feel will lower potato prices in Idaho and damage the image of Idaho potatoes.

"The Times-News learned today Gov. Cecil Andrus has written a letter warning the Chicago Merchants Exchange (CME) that Idaho potatoes may be pulled off the market if the Exchange adopts new regulations concerning the trading of Idaho potatoes.

Five of Idaho's major potato growers, two processors and two potato shippers who make up the Potato Growers of Idaho have unanimously agreed to pull out of the Chicago Merchants Exchange if the new regulations are approved.

"Through May of 1976 15.17 million pounds of Idaho potatoes were traded on the Chicago Merchants Exchange.

Clarence Parr, Burley, a member of the Potato Growers of Idaho said the new regulation proposed for the Chicago Merchants Exchange in effect would allow other states to substitute their potatoes for Idaho potatoes on the futures market.

Parr opposes these new regulations. "Other PGJ members opposing the changes are Melvin West, Paul Leonard Scribner, Aberdeen, Del-Ray Boyd, Rexburg, and Lonnie Stimpson, Nampa.

Processors opposing the regulations are Hugo

DiSoglio, of J. R. Simplot and William Robinson, of the F. T. French Corporation.

At the heart of the proposed change on the CME is a provision which allows potato growers in Wisconsin, Oregon, Washington, North Dakota, Colorado and Michigan to substitute their potatoes for Idaho's.

However, in order to substitute other potatoes for Idaho's, the other states would have to discount their potatoes by 50 cents to $1.50 per hundred pound bag.

Currently, the Chicago Merchants Exchange trades in Idaho russet potato contracts and does not allow substitution of any other western russet potatoes for the Idaho-grown product.

Temblors noted in Idaho-Utah

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Several hundred small earthquakes, including two which neared the magnitude which can be felt, occurred Monday along the Utah-Idaho line southwest of Malad, the University of Utah reported today.

Dr. Walter Arabasz, research seismologist at the university seismograph station, said the flurry of quakes included a tremor registering 3.1 on the Richter scale at 3:37 a.m. MDT. It was centered in the northern end of the Pocatello Valley southwest of Malad.

A 2.0 Richter shock occurred at 8:08 p.m. 15 miles farther south in Blue Creek Valley.

Arabasz said a quake registering 3.0 on the Richter scale is "just on the threshold of being felt," but no reports of the quakes being felt by residents of the area had been received by the university.

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Nearly a year ago, Paul Smith and his family went to look for America. Some 40,000 miles later, they report it is bigger, better, more prosperous and more optimistic than they had expected.

Last July 4, Smith, his wife, Maria, and their teen-ager son and daughter set out from Collins, Mo., in a little yellow Volkswagen. "In 10 1/2 months of living on the road, they learned a lot about the virtues of America."

They arrived Monday with their Bicentennial journey nearly over. They had four more states to go and added to a bit of homesickness — but they wouldn't have traded this last year for anything in the world. Not that it was any luxury tour.

Along the way, they have labored in the migrant camps of California's Salinas Valley, suffered three broken arms, fought off voracious insects while tenting in Alaska and gotten stuck in the wilds of western Canada.

But they've gone the way they wanted to go — close to the land and its people.

Marlene, 18, who put off her first year of college to join the odyssey, said, "If we had not done it this way, we would have had nearly the experiences we've had."

Those experiences included meeting an Indian who was born in a teepee, getting caught up in the struggles between rival unions in the vegetable fields of California, and talking with hundreds of people like the gentle Amish farmer in Ohio and the gregarious Portuguese fisherman in Rhode Island.

"It has been a once in a lifetime thing," said Smith — but added, "I wouldn't want to do every other year."

Working at odd jobs in Washington state, California, Louisiana and other places brought the Smiths closer to the people — but it also was the only way they could have managed.

"We had been talking for years about getting out and getting acquainted with the country, but we knew we would have to finance it by working," said Smith, who owns a strawberry farm outside Collins — a hamlet of about 150 persons in southwest Missouri.

Food delay asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorneys for an anti-hunger coalition asked a federal court today to continue an order banning enforcement of new regulations which would eliminate or reduce food stamps for some 10 million people.

The plea, strongly resisted by government attorneys, was made in briefs prepared for a hearing before Judge John Lewis Smith Jr., in federal district court.

Spokesmen for the Food Research and Action Center of New York, a public interest law firm which filed suit against the proposed regulations by the Agriculture Department are illegal, asked the court to approve a preliminary injunction against adoption of the rules until a full trial on the merits of the case can be held.

The new rules had been scheduled to take effect June 1. Critics said they would drop 5.3 million people from the stamp program and raise aid to another 3.8 million because of tightened eligibility standards based on government poverty guidelines.

Spokesmen estimated the changes would also increase aid for an estimated 4.5 million people while leaving 5.5 million unchanged.

The regulations were sidetracked temporarily May 28 by a federal judge who granted FRAC's application for a temporary restraining order pending today's hearing.

Justice Department attorneys defended the new rules — designed to cut costs by about $1.2 billion — as being within the government's authority under present law.

President Ford personally ordered the regulations issued earlier this year because he felt Congress was moving too slowly on food stamp reforms.

FRAC attorney Ronald Palack, who is arguing the case for 73 individual plaintiffs, 28 states and more than 100 organizations, contended in a brief that regulations banning stamp eligibility on past income — instead of current income — as at present — violate both existing law and the constitution.

He also contended the entire package is illegal because it would deprive many needy people of aid promised by the stamp law.

Senate eyes tax reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Can tax shillers be closed without hurting housing and other industries? Should working parents get bigger child care tax breaks? Should those who insure their homes be rewarded with a tax credit? How should tax cuts be extended?

These and hundreds of other questions faced the Senate today as it prepared for days or even weeks of debate on a major tax "reform" bill, the first significant effort at tax revision since 1959.

The bill is 1,536 pages long and weighs more than five pounds, not counting dozens of amendments added by the Senate Finance Committee.

A similar but tougher bill has passed the House.

The bill faces numerous challenges in the Senate from liberals who feel it has been watered down to the point where it cannot be called reform.

The first challenge was expected from the Senate Budget Committee, which says the Senate Finance Committee, led by chairman Russell Long, D-La., did not follow the Budget Committee's mandate to raise at least $2 billion in new treasury revenue through tax reform.

The Finance Committee bill raised only $1 billion in reform measures, then managed to squeeze within the Budget Committee's overall money goals by extending one part of individual tax cuts through July 1, 1977, instead of through the full year.

Technically this produced a tax cut of $15.6 billion instead of $17.3 billion, although it was expected the cuts for the remainder of the year would be passed later.

The Smiths said they generally found things in the heartland are not quite as they had been led to believe by the news media.

"I found people were more patriotic than I expected," said Smith. "I'm sure there's a great future for this country."

His wife, born in Colombia, said the trip "reinforced my belief in America. This is a land of opportunity."

The Smiths are due off to Illinois, where they will celebrate July 4 in Jefferson City, Miss. capital.

As they go, persons along the way will see their greeting, painted on the front of the "Hello America, how are you?"

US marks Flag Day

By United Press International
The little old lady looked up at the Stars and Stripes, waving above the flags of the nation's 50 states in front of a rough-hewn schoolhouse at Fredonia, Wis.

"That's a beautiful flag," she said, splinting to get a better look at it. "It stands for so very much."

The flag fluttered from homes on residential streets across the nation Monday as Americans marked the Bicentennial observance of Flag Day.

It was at the one-room schoolhouse at Fredonia that the holiday was born. On June 14, 1890, when a 19-year-old teacher, Bernard Cleveland, decided to honor the 100th anniversary of the adoption of the U.S. flag by the Continental Congress on June 14, 1777.

Cleveland was determined to create his life and get a national Flag Day established. The year passed off in 1910 when President Woodrow Wilson signed a proclamation making June 14 that year as Flag Day.

But it wasn't until Aug. 31, 1949, that President Harry Truman signed legislation making Flag Day a permanent national observance.

Several hundred persons turned out Monday for the event, described by the National Fraternal Congress of America as the "most significant individual Bicentennial Flag Day in the nation."

At the ceremony, representatives from each state placed partitions in a time capsule set for opening in the year 2000.

There were tears in the eyes of some 100-hour bystanders in Detroit as a 235-by-104-foot American flag, with 50 six-foot-high stars and 13 eight-foot-wide stripes, was draped over the six floors of the J. J. Hudson Co. department store.

The banner, tattered and threadbare from a quarter century of annual displays, was retired in 1974 but was brought out once more for the Bicentennial showing—it was unfurled by 55 workmen while the Detroit Symphony played "America the Beautiful."

Eight women worked 700 hours to produce the flag in 1949. The flag, recognized by the Guinness Book of World Records as the world's largest, was updated later to include new stars for Alaska and Hawaii.

Worker says human rights 'violated'

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The head of the U.S. worker delegation charged today the International Labor Organization is praising Communist countries for having full employment while ignoring their violation of human rights.

Irving Brown told the world employment conference that the ILO in effect is inviting developing countries to do the same.

"The most unforgivable deficiency" of Chapter IV of the ILO report on employment and poverty "is to isolate the problems of employment from human rights as defined in the ILO constitution," Brown said.

Letter bomb injures four

By United Press International
Letter bombs mailed from eastern Texas arrived Monday at the offices of large corporations in New York, Chicago, Delaware and Ohio, authorities said. One of the devices exploded when it was opened, injuring four people.

In Washington, FBI Director Clarence Kelley said explosive devices were received by large corporations and individuals in several U.S. cities.

No group claimed responsibility for the mailings.

One of the letter bombs, mailed to the New York brokerage office of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, exploded in the hands of a female employee who opened it, police said. She sustained serious cuts of the arms and was hospitalized. Three coworkers were slightly injured.

Police said the exploded bomb was packaged in an 8 1/2 by 11 inch manila envelope bearing a postmark from Rockport, Texas.

Identical packages were mailed to Exxon Corp. and the Bunge Corp. in New York, but were deactivated by police.

The bomb mailed to Exxon Corp. also was postmarked Rockport, Texas, police said. The package sent to the Bunge Corp. was postmarked Atlanta, Tex., about 25 miles from Rockport.

The Prairie Food Corp. in Chicago also received a bomb in package with a Rockport postmark. The device was disarmed.

In the Chicago suburb of Oakbrook, Ill., a letter bomb mailed to the offices of McDonald's, the fast food chain, was opened by a secretary but did not explode. The postmark on the package containing the bomb was not known.

In Wilmington, Del., a letter bomb mailed from Rockport and addressed to a general manager of the DuPont Corp. was discovered Monday by a secretary and deactivated by police.

Jack Conny, a DuPont spokesman, said company officials "have no idea" why the bomb was sent.

Conny said the unidentified executive to whom the bomb was addressed had not been the target of previous harassment.

Spring storm

10" rain triggers Dakotan mudslide

By United Press International
Ten inches of rain triggered a house-burying mudslide and drove more than 200 persons from their homes in the Black Hills of South Dakota today. Deep June snows stranded sight-steered tourists and an antique car caravan in the Rockies.

Tornadoes and violent storms — not as death-dealing as those that killed four persons and injured at least 55 Sunday night — swept the Midwest and Northeast.

Mountain streams went on a rampage when up to 10 inches of rain deluged the northern Black Hills in 24 hours. A mudslide loosened by the downpour crushed a house near Deadwood and trapped four persons.

Rescue crews, toiling for more than five hours, dug three persons out of the mud and debris and searched for the fourth. The three were listed in serious condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in Deadwood.

Two firemen suffered smoke inhalation while trying to battle a house fire in Grizzly Gulch with only water buckets and fire extinguishers. Firemen were unable to get fire trucks to the scene across a flood-weakened bridge.

In several Black Hills communities, South Dakota National Guardsmen helped move families to safety and sandbagged flood-threatened points.

More than three feet of snow bogged parts of the Rocky Mountains. Tourists who only 24 hours earlier were basking in June warmth were stranded in Rocky Mountain National Park. Trail Ridge Road, which crosses the Continental Divide in the park, was closed.

The caravan of vintage automobiles, en route to a Bicentennial celebration in Philadelphia, was waylaid by the late spring storm in eastern Wyoming's Big Horn Mountains.

A 1911 Model T Ford was plowed under by a snowplow on its 8,000-foot Grant's Pass. Thirty-eight belayers finally made it through the pass but one, a 1912 Cadillac, was damaged by the storm.

Eighteen other drivers, with their wives and children, holed up in a motel on the west side of the pass. Some busboys of fishing poles and cast for trout in mountain streams. Others sang songs and organized a talent show for the youngsters.

7 more persons missing in Teton disaster found

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho — Seven of the eight persons listed Saturday as missing and unaccounted for in the Teton Dam disaster have been found, Rexburg civil defense officials confirmed Monday.

Those located were: Jerry Carmean, Murl Elliot, Dee Fullmer, Ron Gentry, Mrs. Kelsey and her son Kelly Kelsey and Jason Wood.

The whereabouts of the persons were verified by county and city law enforcement officials and area civil defense personnel.

Steve Levy, a spokesman for the state department of law enforcement, said they were not aware that they were listed as missing.

The eighth missing person, Glen Bedford, 21, St. Anthony, remains missing and is presumed dead by Rexburg civil defense officials.

The Bureau of Reclamation reported about 75 per cent of the estimated 400,000 acres of southeastern Idaho farmland cut off from irrigation service by the flood damage should be restored by week.

Don Falls, the bureau's Teton emergency coordinator, said about 150,000 acres have been put back into service since the dam failure last week.

The American National Red Cross said nearly 2,200 families have received more than $500,000 in immediate assistance.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reported the completion of 800 ft. of levees in the Teton City area and 450 ft. in the Ferry Butte area below Blackfoot.

Monday, repairs began on the freeway levy on the left bank of the Snake River above Blackfoot and another 1,000 ft. near Rexburg on the Teton River.

Yet to be repaired is 800 ft. in the Teton City area and 450 ft. in the Ferry Butte area.

The Idaho National Guard is continuing to offer support services to local efforts. Helicopters are assisting in the removal of dead cattle in Madison, Jefferson and Fremont counties. The guard is doing road reconnaissance in Madison county.

The Small Business Administration said 1,288 loan applications have been requested as of Saturday night. Wayne J. Luders, SBA disaster coordinator, said the applications included 1,026 for homes and 262 for businesses.

Luders said 522 home loans and 147 business applications were requested from the Rexburg assistance center. Some 281 home and 28 business loans were processed at the Idaho Falls center and 158 home and 19 business loans came through the Blackfoot Center.

Park dedicated

CATALDO, Idaho (UPI) — "Old Mission" Historical state park, was dedicated in ceremonies here Sunday.

The newly created state park is better known as the Cataldo Indian Mission, the state's oldest building.

R. J. Bruning, who represented Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus at the dedication, led the crowd of 100 on behalf of the governor. "This mission is a monument to the brotherhood of man, and embodies the spirit of mutuality and love."

The renovation of the mission was accomplished through the cooperation of the Association for the Preservation and Commemoration of the Old Cataldo Mission, Inc., headed by Idaho mining executive Henry Day, and the Idaho Bicentennial Commission, directed by Dr. J. M. Neil.

Storm strands old autos

SHELL, Wyo. (UPI) — A foot of snow accumulated in an open 1914 Model T Ford. Another 1914 Model T was covered by a "drift" from snowplow. A 1912 Cadillac made it across the snowy pass, but was damaged by the storm.

The cars were part of a caravan of vintage automobiles on their way to a Philadelphia bicentennial celebration. The caravan was stranded by a late spring storm Monday on snowbound Grant's Pass in the Big Horn Mountains of northern Wyoming.

Thirty-eight cars made it through the 4,550-foot pass in eight miles of snow. The other drivers planned to try again today.

Among those successfully crossing the pass was tour chairman Millard Newman of Tampa, Fla., driving a 1911 Rolls Royce.

"About four of the cars are still up there in the pass," Newman said by phone from a Sheridan motel. "A 1914 Model T was pulled out by a snowplow but it was pulled out. Some of the drivers stayed with people in motor homes up there."

On the west side of the pass, 18 drivers, their wives and children relaxed at a motel in Shell. Grant Ross, a plastics manufacturer from Deerfield, Ill., said he would try to drive his 1910 Packard over the pass today.

Boss said some drivers borrowed fishing poles and caught trout in the mountain streams while others sang songs and watched their children participate in a hastily organized talent show. "We're having a great time," Ross said. "We've seen more today than in the last six years. We might even wash our cars before we leave Tuesday."

Steve Malackosky of Akron, Ohio, was one of the drivers who made it across the pass in Sheridan before U.S.-14 was closed by the Wyoming Highway Patrol because of blowing and drifting snow. Malackosky's open 1914 Model T Ford had a foot of snow in it when he and his wife reached Dayton, near the base of the Big Horns.

Prostitution conviction reversed by Gem court

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court reversed a prostitution conviction today on grounds the defendant's constitutional rights were violated, and the prostitution statute was unconstitutionally vague.

All members of the court concurred in the reversal of the conviction against Maria Lopez, who appealed to the high court from a Fourth District Court conviction, although they did so for different reasons.

Justice Robert Bales said the complaint under which the accused was convicted did not state an offense and the conviction under this complaint was a violation of her constitutional rights.

Justices Charles Donaldson and Henry McQuade concurred.

Bales said the complaint under which the Lopez woman was prosecuted neither informed her of what she was accused. He said it did not specifically describe the time, place and manner of her alleged criminal conduct, but merely told her she was being prosecuted for the crime of prostitution because she engaged in sexual activity as a business.

The opinion said the Idaho Constitution gave the accused the right to be formed of the specific nature of the accusation against her so that she could prepare her defense and so that she could use the writ of habeas corpus to plead double jeopardy should another prosecution arise out of the same conduct.

Because the complaint did not do these things, the opinion said, it violated the constitution.

Justice Allan Shepard wrote, and Chief Justice Joseph McFadden concurred, the state was vague.

"It is society through its legislative process continues to demand the prohibition and punishment for the sale of the human body for sexual gratification—then the judicial branch of government should uphold the right of society to prosecute such conduct," Shepard said.

"However, if in so doing it is necessary for the legislature to define the term 'prostitution,' it should be accomplished through the use of clear, unambiguous language which provides notice of proscribed conduct," Shepard added. "The lack of such clear prescription of particular conduct is the vice in the instant statute."

Delegates back Carter

BOISE (UPI) — Six Idaho delegates pledged to Sen. Frank Church said they plan to support Jimmy Carter now that Church has thrown his support to the front runner.

Eight of the sixteen Church delegates could not be contacted.

Of those delegates who were telephoned six said they could back Carter and two were uncommitted.

"Politically" comes from the name of Tantalus who, in Greek mythology, was condemned to stand up to his chin in water under a luscious fruit tree, always beyond his reach.

Burning forests could turn nasty

Smokey the Bear would turn in his grave. For years Smokey told the American public to stamp out forest fires.

Now, the U.S. Forest Service has changed its tune and says some fires should burn.

Foresters now believe some fires actually are beneficial to the health of our national forests.

A new policy, under consideration for the Sawtooth Wilderness in central Idaho, would allow infrequent fires to burn without interference.

In what best can be considered a back-to-nature philosophy, foresters say lightning fires are part of the natural process and should be allowed to take their course.

These fires destroy dead, rotten timber and often are the catalyst to termination of some pine cones. Allowing nature to take its course is good — up to a point.

The problem in Idaho and other forested states is that man has for decades tried to control fires.

Years of dousing all fires has led to an accumulation of tinder-like ground fuel in many forests that would create a holocaust if a policy of benign neglect suddenly was imposed.

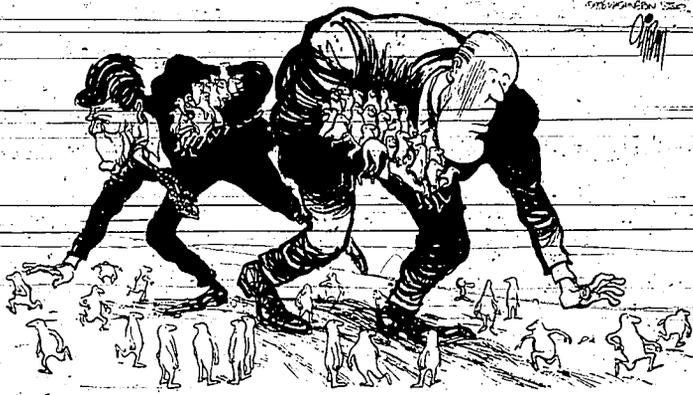

An unintended lightning fire in today's forest could mushroom into a major catastrophe.

Today, many small alpine forest fires start and go out by themselves every year. Most of the larger, unintended fires eventually would do the same.

But where and how can the Forest Service draw a clean line between a small, self-tending fire and a major disaster?

Before Idaho's forests are added to the list of natural burn areas the Forest Service must carefully analyze what areas of the forest can safely be allowed to burn.

One mistake under a natural burn philosophy could send millions of acres of valuable forest up in smoke.

Congressmen don't have spending limit

Newhouse News Service WASHINGTON — Both the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees will be limited this year to an absolute spending ceiling of $21.8 million each for their campaigns — but for candidates running for Congress, the sky's the limit.

Because the presidential race will be financed for the first time with public funds drawn from the U.S. Treasury, millions of dollars from private sources which would otherwise have gone to the White House contenders will now flow to Senate and House candidates.

As a result, spending by both Democrats and Republicans seeking seats in Congress will hit record levels, with much of the money coming from special interest groups which can make the largest legal contributions under the new federal election laws.

Thus, the new campaign reform laws have probably succeeded in increasing — rather than diminishing — the influence of big money in congressional elections.

It wasn't supposed to be that way. This was going to be the year federal elective offices were taken off the auction block. A $70,000 campaign limit was set for House races. Senate races were to cost no more than $100,000 or 12 cents per voting age resident, whichever was larger.

But last month, Jan. 30, the Supreme Court struck down the campaign spending limits. Congress had imposed on itself in the 1974 Federal Elections Act and thereby set the stage for what undoubtedly will be the most lavishly financed congressional election in history.

Under the new law, corporations are permitted to create "political action committees" (PACs) to raise money among favored candidates. Already, 400 such committees are in business. They have banked millions which soon will cascade into congressional races.

Each of these committees can make contributions up to $5,000 to a candidate. Individual citizens, however, are limited to contributions of no more than $1,000 under the law.

In 1974, congressional candidates spent a total of $74 million on Senate and House races. The total this year could approach $100 million.

Eight seats in the House cost their occupants a quarter of a million dollars in campaign costs in 1974.

This year, as many as 40 House seats may carry price tags that high, according to one senior member of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

Charles Hemenway, national director of the National Committee for an Effective Congress, fears that many of the liberal and moderate candidates his group supports will be swept away by opponents heavily financed by corporate and right-wing political committees.

"We believe that spending by these groups could reach an incredible $50 million by this November," Hemenway says. "We already know that liberal and moderate recipients of much of it will be opponents of the progressive new congressmen elected in 1974 from marginal districts. Many of these new members of Congress ran modestly financed grass roots campaigns in traditionally conservative districts."

Rep. Phillip Burton (D-Calif.), chairman of the House Democratic Caucus agrees that there will be "more big money involved in congressional contests this year than ever before, particularly big business money."

But Burton predicts that a considerable amount of business money may find its way to liberal Democratic candidates, particularly those certain to be re-elected.

"They'll try to soften us up," Burton believes. "One healthy aspect of the new campaign laws: Under the strict new disclosure requirements it will be difficult for candidates to hide the source of their contributions. And it will be possible to follow the money from the special interests to the candidates they consider their special friends."

Gifted student class supported

Editor, Times-News: An open letter to the Twin Falls School Board: As a parent of young children in the Twin Falls School District, and as a special educator by profession, I wish to commend the local school board for remaining open-minded on the issue of special education.

First, the point should be made that such programs benefit all pupils, not just those of whom they are especially intimated and maintained. One of our nation's most prominent educators, Samuel A. Kirk, makes this point in his second edition of Education Exceptional Children (1972, page 4):

"The programs for exceptional children in school systems have been found to benefit not only the deviant child but also other children. Handicapped or gifted children in a regular classroom sometimes require individual attention. It is inevitable that if a regular classroom teacher devotes inadequate time to a deviant child he must curtail the attention which he ordinarily gives the other children. But when special services are offered the deviant child, the normal pupils benefit by having more of the regular teacher's time."

Perhaps, however, it is superfluous to conjure with the argument whether pro or con, surrounding the implementation of any special education programming. According to the Idaho Code, such programming has already been mandated to the public school districts: "Each public school district is responsible for and shall provide for the education and training of their resident exceptional pupils." (section 33-2001)

"Exceptional children" means those children whose handicaps or capabilities are so great as to require special education and special services in order to develop to their fullest capacity. This definition includes, but does not limit itself to, those children who are physically handicapped, mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed, chronically ill, or who have perceptual, visual or auditory handicaps or speech impairment, as well as those children who are so academically talented that they need special education programs to achieve to their fullest potential." (Section 33-2002)

My sincere appreciation goes to the group of dedicated teachers and psychologists on your staff who have worked so very hard in writing and presenting for approval the proposed special education program for the exceptional child who happens to be at the upper end of the continuum of academic capabilities. Too much advice from government

Elkhart Truth The federal government gets "free" advice from members of more than 1,200 advisory committees. We certainly don't discount the public spirit of numerous persons who donate their expertise. In many cases the research and the resulting recommendations have been most helpful.

Still, Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., has raised some thoughtful concern about the practice. He points out that the projects are not without cost. The committees invest heavily in staff, expenses, consultants and contractors. Last year $62 million was spent for the 1,000 or so reports made to federal agencies and officials.

It should be questioned also whether that many advisory committees really are needed. Are some problems being "farmed out" to these committees which should instead be decided by Congress and by the many administrative agencies being paid to make such decisions?

As one example, Metcalf's government operations subcommittee is to determine whether a definition of "national policy toward gambling" is worth the $2 million spent on this project the past two years.

Perhaps there should be one more advisory committee — to help decide if we could do with fewer advisory committees.

Special classes also criticized

Editor, Times-News: During the past month a group of people have been very forcefully voicing their demands in School Board meetings and in the paper. I am speaking of the parents of "exceptional Children."

They purport that their children are being discriminated against by the School System by not adequately servicing their advanced intellects. So they violently oppose the school Board's decision to not adopt the program for exceptional students.

These parents argue that "there are special programs for the slow student and programs for the average student, but no programs for the gifted student."

What is a worthy goal to give every student his maximum potential education. It is the express duty of a school system to give each student an adequate education, to bring each student to some educational standard. Therefore the existing programs for the average academic students are necessary, and the programs for the slow student are imperative.

These parents should be very proud that their children have been selected as gifted children, but they must realize that the only way a child can really reach his full potential is through self-motivation and self-mastery. A child can learn self-motivation through a special program, or more effectively, they can learn from conscientious parents. If these parents really want to help their children they should start in the home.

The School Board is not trying to hurt your children. In their best judgment this program is not in the best interest of your children or the rest of the school system, at this time. You can rest assured that they are more than anxious to give every student the best education possible.

Should the parents of these exceptional children should take a lesson in self-motivation from their children. Their behavior at the last School Board meeting was extremely juvenile. Their attitude of "if we don't get what we want (the exceptional children program) you won't get what you want (the upcoming school bond issue), indicates that these parents are in need of a little education themselves. SCOTT BURNETT Twin Falls

F & G congratulated

Editor, Times-News: Open letter to the Idaho Fish and Game Commissioners: Congratulations on the very wise and conservative game laws you enacted this year. I'm very glad you listened to Joe Greenley. I'm sure it was a hard decision for Joe to reach, asking for a ban only hunt on elk and moose bucks only on deer, as well as much shorter seasons throughout the state.

To be sure, many sportsmen? people will definitely be against it. However, as I said many times before, it must be done if we are to have any big game left for the future. Lions stated before that the entire blame for the drastic decline in Idaho's big game herds lies entirely the fault of the Fish and Game Department.

Granted, the Fish and Game Dept. has been far too lenient with fish and game laws for too long. Perhaps the F. & G. Dept. had placed too much "trust" in the public. Personally, I feel greedy, sportsman-like meat hunters are to blame for the decline in big game. A lot of these people will shoot anything that is free, legal or illegal.

Also, a lot of families shoot, or did when they could find them, several deer each year. I say several I mean 8 or 10 deer each season, as well as elk. Then, like the teenagers they are, they brag about all the deer they got without tagging any and how they fooled the game warden. Well, the joke's on them, as all the time these game law violators were only fooling themselves. The game warden were trying to protect the very game these people like to hunt. So now that their game is disappearing, these same people are screaming bloody murder.

Well, many, but not all, brought it on themselves by their greediness. Now they will have to pay and perhaps for a long time. No animals on the face of the earth, could survive the relentless slaughter placed on them by such thoughtless, uncaring people. Actually, it's amazing the herds endured this long.

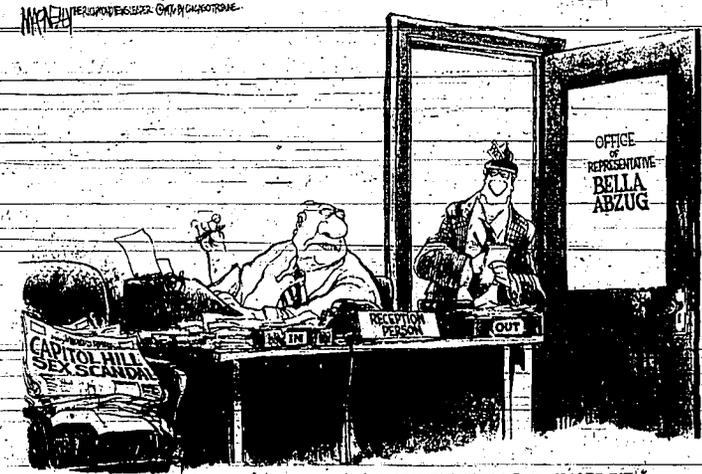

The Fish and Game Department truly has its work cut out inasmuch as the more restrictive game laws will require ever more round the clock enforcing by conservation officers. DONALD P. BRESSETTE, Sr. Twin Falls

Utah aide urged to resign post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Allen Howe's colleagues were urging him to leave politics today, and the Utah Democrat — at the center of Washington's latest sex scandal — was expected to withdraw as a candidate for re-election.

Howe, 49, was arrested in Salt Lake City Saturday night for allegedly soliciting a police decoy prostitute.

Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah, met for 90 minutes Monday afternoon with Howe, his wife and Utah's other congressman, Rep. Gunn McKay.

Moss later told reporters he would not support Howe for renomination and felt the incident was damaging to all Democrats running in the state.

"I think it would do considerable damage to not only us the end McKay), but to all Democrats," he said.

Moss said he expected Howe to announce a decision on his political future, quickly, but that he was "not at liberty" to say whether the freshman congressman had decided against seeking a second term.

"Congressman Howe indicated he would have a statement to issue later," Moss said, although a spokeswoman for Howe said he had not informed his office of any change in his plans. Asked if he would support Howe if he decided to stay in the race, Moss replied: "I won't work against him, but not for him."

Moss said he did not want to "pressure him or twist arms" but did not hide his feelings concerning the political effects of the incident.

He said he asked Howe to join him at his mind how to plead, or the criminal misdemeanor charge.

Moss, third-ranking member of the Senate Democratic leadership, said Howe had not made up his mind how to plead, or the criminal misdemeanor charge.

"As every American, he's presumed innocent until proven guilty," Moss said.

The Utah Democratic Party holds its 20th annual convention Saturday.

Moss said he did not think Howe could win re-election if the election were held today. He said there was a great difference between Howe's decision to legally defend himself against the charge and the political results of such an arrest.

"He sees that decision very clearly," Moss said. "The senator added that if the arrest stands, it would be 'very damaging' to Howe's standing in the Mormon Church."

Teamster chief refutes charges

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Teamsters Union President Frank Fitzsimmons is emphatic in his refusal to make concessions to dissidents and reformers who are accusing him of corruption.

"Go to hell," he told them Monday.

Fitzsimmons and other Teamster leaders said these dissidents, acting in concert with news media, are trying to destroy the nation's largest labor union.

"For those who say it is time we reform this union, who say it is time for the officers to stop selling out the members, I say to them — go to hell," Fitzsimmons said in a speech to open a four-day Teamster convention.

Those sentiments were seconded by former Teamster president Dave Beck, who once was imprisoned for his union activities.

"To hell with those kind of people — that I applaud," Beck said, prompting the convention's 2,300 delegates to an ovation.

Although they have stolen the limelight, dissident groups are not allowed inside the convention doors. One, known as the Teamsters for a Decent Union, responded to Fitzsimmons in an impromptu news conference outside the hall.

Death from drugs?

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Marine Pvt. Lynn McClure, whose death set off a congressional investigation of military training, may have been killed by drugs in his hospital bed, not by the blows of his fellow recruits on the training field.

This was the defense outlined Monday at the opening of the first of the "puff stick" courts-martial.

Sgt. Harold L. Bronson entered pleas of "innocent to charges of negligent homicide, violating orders, assault and maltreatment of a recruit in the death of McClure, 29, of LaJolla, Tex."

Two other sergeants and a captain are awaiting separate trials. Two officers and a sergeant were disciplined on lesser charges.

Carter tries for harmonious plank

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Supporters of Jimmy Carter are fighting to keep several highly controversial planks out of the Democratic platform for fear they will provide ammunition for the Republican who runs against him.

Gov. John Gilligan, task force chairman, "the drafting committee left out the word 'amnesty' because of the strain that ran through the McGovern campaign — amnesty; abortion and acid."

The task force also rejected efforts to delete language, supported by Carter, opposing any conditional amendment to overturn Supreme Court decisions permitting abortions.

voice vote an economic plank calling for steps to reduce adult unemployment to 3 per cent within four years. It proclaims a "right of all adult Americans willing, able and seeking work to have opportunities for useful jobs of living wages."

The 153-member Platform Committee rejected by voice vote Monday night a plank that declared "we oppose capital punishment."

After Stuart Blanton, Carter's national issues director, said it was a "red flag" which Republicans would use against the Democrats.

Blanton vetoed the same objection to a proposal to "decriminalize laws of temperance to govern sex practices — among consenting adults."

"We are going to run a race against one of two conservative Republicans," he said. "There is no need to give them unnecessarily emotional issues to run on." The proposal was defeated.

However issues of homosexual rights, abortion and amnesty — which divided Democrats in 1972 — were expected to come up today as the platform committee considered a section on government and human needs.

A draft platform urged pardon for draft violators who objected to the Vietnam war.

Supporters said the word "pardon" was chosen rather than "amnesty" so as not to imply there was no guilt.

A human needs task force Monday rejected efforts to substitute the word "amnesty" and to expand it to include Vietnam deserters.

Court declines to review case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court will not review a federal judge's decision requiring the busing of 21,000 students in Boston, an order that has spanned two years of racial turmoil in the city's school system.

The decision, offered Monday without explanation, leaves Boston's desegregation controversy in the hands of U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Conway, who issued the busing order.

An antibusing leader said in Boston people may "turn to other ways" to settle the issue. Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis urged citizens to "unite behind" quality education for all.

President Ford met at the White House with civil rights leaders who urged him to abandon plans to offer legislation that would strictly limit the use of court-ordered busing.

Although Ford was noncommittal during the 20-minute session, aides say he intends to proceed with his proposal to virtually eliminate forced busing as a judicial tool, except when a law is being broken.

Ford has ordered Attorney General Edward Levi to look for a case in which the government could argue for a rollback in the extent of court-ordered busing.

Louise renewed!

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Louise Lasser will return next year as the bedridden heroine of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," the syndicated series which goes into a second season, producer Norman Lear said Monday. That, although negotiations have not been completed with all stations carrying the show, enough have signed on for a second season to make it economically feasible to continue.

Stella too in te

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Actress Stella Stevens lost her invasion of privacy case against Playboy magazine over a 14-year-old nude picture because her $7 million lawsuit was filed two weeks too late.

Miss Stevens was the magazine's centerfold girl in January, 1964. In January, 1974, in a retrospective titled "20 years of Playboy," the magazine published some shots from photo sessions its readers don't usually see — including a photo of a nude Stella Stevens making a face, crossing her eyes and sticking out her tongue.

Superior Court Judge Robert Weill dismissed the case Monday. He said there is a one-year statute of limitations on invasion of privacy cases, and she had filed two weeks after the year was up.

US. ambassador

MEADVILLE, Pa. (UPI)—CIA Director George Bush says he is concerned about how other countries view America's credibility and commitment abroad.

Push told 432 graduates of Allegheny College Monday he is convinced other countries are looking at America and asking, "Do the American people still believe? Do they believe enough to sacrifice for themselves, to say nothing of sacrificing for others?"

"I am saying we have obligations to countries that are free. We are a world power and we have worldwide obligations," he said.

Millan receives award

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Emilio Millan, news director of Miami radio station WQBA who lost his legs in a terrorist bombing, has received the "Freedom Fighter" award from the Florida Association of Broadcasters.

Millan, still hospitalized, was honored for a series of editorials against terrorism in Miami's Cuban community—he was only the second person to receive the honor.

The award was accepted by Herbert Levin, general manager of WQBA, who said Millan was expected to be out of the hospital and back to work in about six weeks.

Hays' aide promises statement

BARNESVILLE, Ohio (UPI)—Wayne Hays' news secretary says she will "help her" boss "put together a statement" sometime next month about the sleeping pill overdose that sent the congressman involved in a Washington sex scandal to a hospital last week.

Carol Clawson said Monday that by then the Ohio Democratic representative should have recovered from the overdose and be back at work in Washington.

Hays, accused by Elizabeth Ray of putting her on a federal payroll, simply to serve as his mistress, was taken to Barnesville Hospital Thursday.

Conditions Monday, still confined, to bed but alert, progressing and on a regular diet.

Ms. Clawson theorized that exhaustion may have led to an accidental drug overdose. She said Hays had flown to Washington early Wednesday and returned that night and had a lack of food and sleep could have resulted in an accident.

Aides for the congressman said he had arranged for his St. Clairsville office to receive the bill for extra phones installed in the hospital to handle news media coverage of his illness.

They said extra security guards at the hospital have been dismissed but that they were all volunteers.

The aides also said that since Friday, Hays had received about 150 letters and cards. They said no special deliveries had been made to the hospital.

Cigarette ad ban supported

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A majority of adult Americans, including smokers, believe cigarette advertising should be banned and Americans generally are opposing less tolerance of smoking, a government survey showed today.

The report, issued jointly by the National Cancer Institute and the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, speculated that 40 per cent of smokers support an advertising ban either because they are trying to quit and find that ads make it more difficult, or because they hate to see younger persons taking up the habit.

The proportion of adults who smoke cigarettes has declined since 1970, except for slight increases among women aged 21-24 and 55 and older, and men 65 and older, it found.

But the overall number of adult smokers increased by 873,000 based on population growth, the report said.

Since 1970, public attitudes have become increasingly less tolerant of cigarette smokers, the report said. It cited as examples:

— Increased agreement that "the smoking of cigarettes should be allowed in fewer places than it is now." Only 52 per cent of adults agreed with this statement in 1964 and 1970, 57 per cent in 1970 and 70 per cent last year.

— Nearly two-thirds of adults, including one-third of the smokers polled, say it is annoying to be near a person smoking cigarettes. A decade ago less than half agreed.

"The majority of these respondents expressed belief that cigarettes are more annoying than smoking a pipe, cracking knuckles, chewing gum and humming or whistling," the report said.

An even greater number said cigars are more unpleasant than cigarettes.

The report was based on telephone and personal interviews conducted by Clifton Research Services of Philadelphia with 15,500 persons 21 and older.

A government announcement labeled it "the definitive study of adult smoking in the '70s" and said the survey was the largest yet on smoking behavior and attitudes.

It found that 56 per cent of adults, including two of every five smokers, believed cigarette advertising should be stopped completely.

MR. AND MRS. ORLO MCEWEN

DEAR ABBY: The letter from FOREVER SORRY brought back some memories that this old grandfather would like share.

"I'll never forget when my wife called me at work and said, 'Come right home after work, John; we've got a problem on our hands.'"

"When I got home, there sat our 17-year-old daughter and her 19-year-old boyfriend with their eyes on the floor."

"Nobody had to tell me what the problem was. My wife said, 'Doty's pregnant.'"

"I was heartick—I had wanted her to go to college."

"Where I found the words, I'll never know, but I said, 'So what? There will be just one more to love.'"

"I told the boy if he trapped the door was open. There would be no abortion."

"The kids got married. That was six years ago, and they're still very much in love. And now they have TWO to love."

LUCKY GRANDPA

Problems solved

DEAR ABBY: I was in the same predicament as FOREVER SORRY until my beautiful daughter was nearly 2 1/2 years old.

"Although my unforgiving mother worshipped my little girl, she constantly reminded me that I had 'disgraced' her because I was a pregnant bride."

"She would put on a long face and say, 'I can't look at that child without feeling betrayed and ashamed, knowing that she was conceived in sin.'"

"I finally had it with the guilt my mother was laying on me, so I said, 'All right, Mother, I don't want you to suffer anymore, so if that's the way you feel, I'll never bring my daughter to your house again, and you need to come here.'"

"Well, Abby, that was the last time my mother ever mentioned my 'sin' again."

PROBLEM SOLVED IN LONG BEACH

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from FOREVER SORRY, the happily married mother of a beautiful 2-year-old daughter. She said her mother never forgave her for being pregnant when she was married, even though she had planned to marry the man anyway.

"If Mom would only say, 'I forgive you,' she wrote, 'it would help so much, but she won't.'"

"Thanks, Abby, for telling her she didn't need her mother's forgiveness—that only God had the power to forgive."

"May I say something to FOREVER SORRY? We must be sisters, Hon, because we have the same mother."

"I'm 22 and have two sons. One is 8 months old, and the other is 4 years old."

"My husband has made a wonderful home for us and we've been happily married for four and a half years."

"My mother still throws my 'lurid premarital affair' in my face. She dishes out guilt by the gallon."

"I finally went to my County Mental Health Clinic where a wonderful woman therapist assured me that I had long since 'beat my mother.' She made me realize that I was a worthwhile ADULT person, not a 'bad little girl' who needed Mama's approval."

"While helping me to understand my mother's hangups, she freed me from feeling guilty: 'What an improvement she made in my life!'"

"Please get counseling at your nearest Mental Health Clinic. It may take a while, but you will find that you can live happily without an 'I forgive you' from your mother. I do!"

The open house will be from 2 to 4 p.m.

The couple's seven children are hosts for the event. The children include Mr. and Mrs. Donald McEwen, Twin Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip McEwen, Hazelton; Mr. and Mrs. Gary McEwen, St. Johns; Ariz.; Mr. and Mrs. Preston Bell, San Antonio, Tex.; Mr. and Mrs. Jess Troutman, Storey, Wyo.; Mr. and Mrs. David Smith,Connellsville, Pa.; and Mrs. Leslie Pickett, Hansen. They have 36 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The couple was married in Twin Falls on June 20, 1928. They have lived in the Kimberly and Hansen area except for a short time in Richfield. McEwen was foreman at the University of Idaho Research Center until his retirement. The couple invites all friends and relatives to the open house.

Dye meet scheduled

CASTLEFORD — Looms and Wheels will have an all-day dye session at the home of Mrs. Art Reese Monday.

Mrs. Reese said plans are for work to begin at 10 a.m., with participants to stay as long as they like.

The Reese home is located one mile west and one and one-half miles south of Castleford.

"Those attending should bring skeins of yarn prepared for dyeing, a non-aluminum pot which can be placed over a heat source, any natural dye stuff they wish to use and a sack lunch."

Mrs. Reese said anyone who wants may bring wool, cards and spinning equipment so that spare time may be spent spinning, if desired.

The event is open to anyone interested in "dyeing" wanting to participate and those wanting to observe are all welcome.

For more information, call Mrs. Bob Suss, 733-5883, or Mrs. Gene Carpenter, 734-3581, Twin Falls, or Mrs. Reese, 537-6573.

Consumer group asks Bounce ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer group has asked the government to ban the fabric softener "Bounce," allegedly because it causes skin irritations.

The manufacturer, Procter and Gamble, vehemently denies there is a problem.

The product, marketed nationwide, consists of a nonwoven rayon cloth that has been soaked in chemicals. When a strip of the cloth is torn off and tossed into the dryer with wet clothes, it reduces static, softens fabrics and, in the words of a P.-and-G. spokesman, "provides a fresh, pleasant scent and increases ironing ease."

Judy Bralman of Rochester, N.Y., president of the Empire State Consumer Association Inc., has asked the Consumer Product Safety Commission to ban "Bounce" on the basis of 63 skin irritation complaints recorded by the Monroe County, N.Y., Health Department.

The complaints affected men and women equally and ranged from mild problems to very severe ones that covered parts of the body from the arms to the feet.

"My own children had reactions to it," Mrs. Bralman told UPI.

The commission, depending on who's doing the talking, has itself received anywhere from 47 to 200 similar complaints from various parts of the country.

The agency now is studying the petition. On the basis of early laboratory tests, a commission spokesman says the product did appear to be an irritant. It was prepared at first point to tell the company to put something on the label advising consumers of a possible problem, until the manufacturer presented it with in-use data that supposedly showed no problem exists.

Mrs. Bralman's petition has reopened the investigation.

Asked about the question, a company spokesman said: "In no case have we been able to attribute irritation complaints to Bounce, as a result of exhaustive safety testing both before and after ironing ease."

During introduction consumers many times will coincidentally associate the new product with some skin condition or other."

The spokesman said more than 800 million sheets of the product have been sold and used in over 25 million households for more than three years. The number of complaints, compared to the use record, is "almost negligible," the spokesman said, about one complaint for each 3.5 million uses.

Mrs. Bralman, who also is a consumer adviser on one of the commission's advisory panels, rejects the idea that people are somehow blaming "Bounce" for their skin problems just because it is a new product.

"I don't think any government agency will buy that," she said. "We were given the list of chemicals in it, but they were only trade names so the actual chemicals are a trade secret. We don't know which chemical is causing the reaction, and P and G refuses to label it."

She also contends that patch tests are not a true indication of whether the product is responsible for rashes and other skin problems.

A consumer spokesman, however, one CBS investigator crossed paths with a dermatologist who had examined an "angry victim" and "confirmed that it was not the Bounce" that caused the problem in that particular case.

worked their way up to five or seven six hearts. We will never know, because good old South had the equivalent of a spade opening one-heart bid.

The fact that West's opening spade bid had cut down the value of his king of spades and that East's two-diamond call had shown both diamonds and at least 10 or 11 high-card points did not save South. His hand was worth an opening bid. Nobody was going to keep him from overcalling and he did bid two hearts.

West doubled to end the bidding. South did get something of a break. West didn't have a diamond and decided to lead his ace of spades. He continued with a low spade. East ruffed and South's king of spades had bitten the dust.

South did manage to collect three tricks, but down 1400 was a lot to pay for the pleasure of making a bad overall.

Night drags

POCATELLO — The second night drag race of the season gets underway this Saturday at International Raceway in Pocatello.

Dave Austin, Twin Falls, will lead a contingent of Magic Valley racers in the drag with his G/Gen. classed '57 Chev. Austin donated a number of out of state entries at the last event to gain runner-up honors in Modified Eliminator.

Track manager Jim Hennessy reports that eliminations will begin promptly at 8:30 p.m.

Pairings set for Little League Series

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — Pairings in the Little League Baseball World Series have been made on two levels: International and United States, to assure a foreign team against an American squad in the title game.

Canada will oppose Latin America and the U.S. East will meet the U.S. West in first round games Aug. 24.

The other two first round games Aug. 25 feature the U.S. South against the U.S. Central and the Far East against Europe.

The semifinals are scheduled for the following day, with the consolation and world championship games slated for Aug. 28.

By a 12-1 vote by the board last December, foreign teams were readmitted to the series after being banned for one year.

In five of the six series from 1963 to 1974, the world championship was won by teams from Taiwan.

US basketball team tops Spanish five

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — North Carolina's Phil Ford and Anthony Marie Landberger were unable to play Monday, but the U.S. Olympic basketball team defeated the Spanish Olympic team, 84-70, in a three-period scrimmage.

Ford was out with an infected foot and Landberger was recuperating from a bronchial infection.

Steve Sheppard of Maryland and Ernie Grunfeld of Tennessee each scored 14 points to lead the U.S. team. North Carolina's Mitch Kupchak and Indiana's Quinn Buckner added 10 points each.

About 1,000 fans watched at Carmichael Auditorium as the U.S. squad hit 31 of 51 from the floor in its second victory against the Spanish team.

In a more formal scrimmage Saturday night, the United States downed the Spanish team, 155-108.

"It looks like the Spanish team was a lot more enthused today," said U.S. coach Don Smith of North Carolina.

Smith, who has until June 28 to cut the 15-man squad to 12, will have a more complete opportunity to see his men in action.

The squad will face the ABA's Denver Nuggets in a scrimmage Wednesday night at Greensboro and again on Friday night at Raleigh.

NBA-ABA merger talks set for today

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI) — Officials of the National Basketball Association and American Basketball Association will begin three days of meetings Tuesday to discuss the possibility of a merger.

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien said Monday, at the start of the league's board of governors meeting, the discussions were arranged at the suggestion of federal court Judge Robert L. Carter of New York. Carter is handling the ABA's suit against the NBA.

"The two groups are here strictly on economic matters," O'Brien said. "We'll have informal meetings tonight (Monday) and present information at meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday."

Other matters to be discussed will be the permanent use of a third official (to be called an umpire) in regular season and playoff games. Players and coaches liked the idea last year when it was tried in preseason games.

New NCAA plan may affect Idaho schools

By United Press International

The proposed restructuring of the NCAA's football divisions won't affect Utah's three major schools but other Utah and Idaho teams will be reclassified.

The NCAA Monday announced it had reorganized its football setup and created a new classification — Division IA.

Utah and BYU and all other Western Athletic Conference teams remain in Division I as does independent Utah State. But the University of Idaho, in Division I from its days in the Pacific Coast Conference, was downgraded to Division I-A. The rest of the Big Sky Conference, including Weber State, will also be in the new division.

The plan still has to be approved at the regular NCAA meetings in January.

Montana coach quits

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI) — Montana Football Coach Jack Swarthout Monday quit and was replaced by his assistant, Gene Carlson, at least through the 1978 season.

Swarthout, 46, compiled a 51-51 record as the Grizzlies' coach. He had defeated regular seasons in 1969 and 1970. But Montana lost to North Dakota State in both years at the Camellia Bowl in Sacramento, Calif.

Carlson, 44, was at Great Falls High School for 15 years before joining the Montana staff in 1974. School officials said a new coach might be named at the end of next season.

Tourney delayed

IDAHO FALLS — The Idaho state junior golf tournament, postponed due to the flooding in eastern Idaho, has been rescheduled for next month at Idaho Falls.

Last professional Mike Hrenshaw said the tournament is scheduled for July 22 and 23 at this course. If motel space is not available, efforts will be made to lodge the participants in private homes.

Blakeley, Williams top Burley pro-am

BURLEY — Glenn Blakeley and Darwin Williams of Burley grabbed individual honors and Clyde Thomsen's Twin Falls team won that division in the annual Burley pro-am Monday.

Blakeley was the only amateur bettering par as he carded a one-under 70 to win the 6-11 handicap gross division. Williams won the net prize at 63.

Thomsen's crew of Phil McRoberts, Carl Hoss, Bill Cook and hot-pulter Fred Matz was 30 under par in winning the two-best ball competition.

Following Blakeley in the 6-11-russ division were Kit Dickenson, Boise at 72 while Bill Spencer, Burley, and Gary Hubert, Twin Falls, carded 73.

Williams won the net by three shots over a tussle of Lou Hirsmeier, Elkhorst, and Carl Hoss, Twin Falls.

In the upper handicap side, Larry Richardson, Boise, and Frank McFarland, Rupert, shared honors at 78. One stroke ahead of Don Clayton and John Kober, both Burley.

Hitse Florence, Fayetteville, fired a devastating 56 net to win three with Paul Edledge, Twin Falls, and Truman Bradley, Burley, at 63. Sharing 65 were John Seal, Burley, and Matz.

Mark Payne of Boise took the professional sweepstakes with a 20 while Tom Sanderson, Elkhorst, Bob Evans, Twin Falls, and Jim Packard, Canyon Springs, had 7's.

Mike Corretto Jr., Burley, and his crew of Blakeley, Williams, Kyle Church and Frank Langer, were second in the pro-am with a 115. At 116 were Bostello pro-Denny Howell and amateurs Florence, Willet Hunt, Laurance Robinson and Steve Rogers. The fourth position went for 117 to Boise pro Ray Hensberger and amateurs Brady, Mike Ellis, Gordon Seward and Kober.

SMILING — with a clenched fist, Joe Coleman watches his birdie put on the fourth hole. The win was Nolan's first on the PGA tour. He came in at 11 under par 27. (UPI file)

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Rick Wise allowed one hit — an infield single by Jerry Terrell in the third inning — Monday night in pitching the Boston Red Sox to a 5-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins and their third win in a row.

Boston, on the other hand, used its first five hits to build a 5-0 lead after 4 1/2 innings. The Red Sox took a 2-0 lead in the second on a single by Carl Yastrzemski, Jim Rice's triple and a sacrifice fly by Carlton Fisk.

your health

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I have dryness in my mouth. At night it is difficult for me to sleep. I am 35, a woman, and in general good health. I take no medicine, just a vitamin tablet every morning. Do you have any suggestions? — B.M.

No real answer for such symptoms. Dry mouth is often a natural result of aging, but I wouldn't suspect that at your age. So many factors can be involved. You might be surprised how quickly a little mouth breathing can dry out the membranes. A deficiency of vitamins A, C and the B group can cause it. Or it can be symptomatic of Sjogren's disease. With the latter there would be dry skin and an absence of tears in addition to the dry mouth.

Some people have a dry mouth after removing dentures for the night. There can be a lessening of salivation. Or there can be sensitivity to the denture material or cement.

I've found a common cause to be a poorly ventilated bedroom. Without stretching a point too much you might even suspect emotions as a factor. This is somewhat related to the dry mouth associated with "right or tension." Some folks have a habit of lying in bed tense up about the day's or the next day's events.

All of these possibilities are worth checking out. Often a complete physical will turn up an unsuspected cause of such symptoms as dry mouth, dry skin or any ailment of that kind.

Dry mouth explained

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I was laid low recently with a kidney infection. Thank God it is better now. I was lucky. But this is what I'm asking about.

I am concerned now about my fingernails. They have developed crossway ridges — from side to side. Is this expected? They are really noticeable. Can this be related to my recent problem? — Mrs. E.C.

Nails can be affected by any serious illness; especially one where there has been high fever. These are called "Beau's lines." Lengthwise ridges are common among the elderly and don't have to mean any illness.

It's difficult to speculate about nail symptoms. Various ridges and pittings can mean different things in different persons. A poor diet (protein-poor) can cause unhealthy nails. So can lack of use. Fungus infection can be involved as can use of certain harsh household chemicals. The "list is large" and I've put together a booklet on the subject of nails (finger and toe). It covers most of the common causes. I send it to you for 25 cents. To me in care of this newspaper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

If your recent kidney infection is involved new nails should grow in without the lines. It must feel pretty good to be up and about again, able to worry about the attractiveness of your nails.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

Our teenage daughter has a rash all over her body. It has been diagnosed as purpura. The doctor said it was caused by a sore throat — we have never heard of this before. Could you discuss it? — Mrs. V.A.

Purpura is a disease that affects blood platelets of the capillaries — tiny blood vessels serving the skin area. It causes them to bleed into surrounding tissue.

It can follow an infection, be related to an allergy or be a reaction to certain medications.

Your doctor was referring to the infection that caused her sore throat. Purpura is often found in young girls following an attack of German measles. A more serious kind of purpura is one in which the cause cannot be pinpointed. It causes severe hemorrhaging (bleeding). Often, if the spleen is involved, it must be removed.

The symptoms are similar in both types — the red patches and other signs of bleeding. The bleeding is caused by a drop in the number of certain blood components (platelets) essential in proper clotting.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am a woman of 55. I am told by my son that my breath has an odor when I'm standing up close. Can this be caused by the hormone changes with menopause? — Mrs. G.

It could be. It is not unheard of. But there are many common causes of mouth odor more likely than menopause.

"Bad Breath Can Be Corrected" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet explaining the causes and cure of bad breath. For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in this column whenever possible.

Rural library proposal dismissed by TF aides

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Outlying residents of Twin Falls County apparently want lower taxes more than a rural library district.

Petitions seeking formation of a countywide rural library district were dismissed by Twin Falls county commissioners Monday. The petitions asked for a county election on the formation of a library district.

In turning down the request for an election the commissioners cited numerous protests from outlying residents who said they didn't want to pay for a rural library district with extra tax dollars.

Commissioner William Chancey said rural library district supporters now must obtain signatures from 51 per cent of the qualified electors in the rural area of the county to get a vote on the library district.

The decision against calling an election came after a public hearing last week where a number of country taxpayers protested.

Most of the opposition was on a basis of additional taxes.

Fred House, chairman of the group supporting an election and library service for rural areas and small communities of the county proposed a one mill tax levy to support the district.

Those opposing the plan pointed out state law allows up to three mills as a maximum levy. Opponents said they felt this maximum would be reached in the near future if not at the beginning of district organization.

The supporters proposed serving the rural areas through existing libraries by mail, book mobiles or branch book deposit stations in the county. Libraries are now maintained in Twin Falls, Buhl and Hansen.

Other areas would be covered by district library services under the proposal.

Ted Mason, Kimberly, an opponent of the plan, said all county schools must have libraries which serve students and are available to residents of the school districts. The College of Southern Idaho library is also available to the public, he said.

Rural residents may purchase library membership in Twin Falls at a cost of about $17 per year. Opponents of the plan say this is about what it would cost the average farmer in taxes to support the district. They suggested those who wish the service purchase it through the existing libraries without requiring all taxpayers to share the cost.

The original petitions presented county commissioners contained more than 600 signatures.

House said today his committee has not had an opportunity to meet and discuss the possibility of obtaining signatures from 51 per cent of the qualified voters who voted in the last general election. This would be signatures of 51 per cent of the voters in the areas outside of Twin Falls, Buhl and Hansen.

"That is still a lot of signatures and I don't know at this time if the committee wants to attempt this," he said.

Aides to mull Labor Camp annexation

TWIN FALLS — Annexation of the Twin Falls Labor Camp may be key to any southerly expansion of the city.

The board of the Twin Falls Labor Sponsoring Association which runs the migrant housing unit will meet with city officials tonight to discuss the possibility of bringing the camp into town.

According to camp board chairman Lawrence Knigge the preliminary meeting is only to give board members background on what annexation could mean.

A decision by the board will "definitely" not be forthcoming for several weeks. Knigge added.

He said cost factors and other potential benefits to the camp will have to be thoroughly investigated before any decision is made. He added that camp insurance costs might rise as much as $2,000 if the camp is annexed.

"It will take some time to figure out," he said. The subject of the annexation was raised at a special luncheon working session of the city council Monday. Tonight's meeting was announced at that time.

City Manager Jean Millar told the council the camp is currently paying for its sewer and water rates under an old agreement, but he added that the camp should legally be paying a doubled out-of-city rate. If the higher rate were imposed, he said, the camp could save about $100 per year by annexing.

If the camp is not annexed, however, it would apparently "lose" expansion of the city along Washington Street South.

According to a map of projected annexations which showed a fingerlike strip along south Washington as possible for inclusion in the city, a failure to annex the labor camp would cut off continuity and force the city to grow around the south Washington project before including it.

"If the labor camp won't go, it throws us out of all that south property, doesn't it?" Councilman Leon Smith asked.

One advantage of annexation to the city is the increase in the city's tax base. One disadvantage is the provision of city services to a wider population.

Millar told the council Monday that annexation "is important to let the free-lancers participate in the effort of keeping up community service."

If annexation is orderly the city will save money. Millar said, and if annexation is not orderly, the city will lose money by having to provide services in scattered areas.

Several councilmen, including Steve Lincoln and Mayor Paul Ostyn, called for more study of the city's annexation plans.

Fishy theft

TWIN FALLS — Burglars who broke into the Jack Clough home at 322 Teton St. took time for a snack but nothing else was missing from the home.

The thief said the home was entered through a window which had been left partially open. The entire house was ransacked but the only items missing were two cans of shrimp and a head of lettuce. Officers said it appeared the burglars had prepared a shrimp salad, eaten it and then left.

The empty cans which had contained the shrimp were in the trash container.

He said the seminar was held in May, but it was held to help magistrates become familiar with the new Child Protection Act.

In two years, the new magistrate will come up for public confirmation for the first time.

Bike paths coming to TF

TWIN FALLS — City officials presented a proposal to the City Council Monday for a system of bicycle routes which would connect city schools, parks and the downtown area.

LaMar Orton, community development specialist, and George Michael, city engineer, presented the proposal.

Orton, in charge of the designing of the proposed Rock Creek Canyon Parkway, added that he was involved because he wanted to make sure that the proposed Parkway, to be located in Rock Creek Canyon, included a bicycle path connected to the network of bike paths in the city.

Officials for Bike Paths gathered more than 1,000 signatures in support of bike paths in the city. Gale Holt, Chris Talkington, and Raymond Grandal were organizers of the bike path committee.

Mott, owner of the Spoke and Wheel, a bicycle shop, said, "I'm very very happy with the progress so far."

Talkington, a city council member, emphasized the proposal's make good sense in view of rising gasoline costs and increasing amounts of air pollution and traffic congestion in Twin Falls.

"Our primary consideration in Twin Falls has been traffic," Talkington told the Times-News. "The bike route is not just for school kids. We mean it for people to be able to use it to go to and from work."

"It should mean increased safety for the driver who doesn't need to worry about a kid on a bicycle," Talkington said.

"Twin Falls is quite backward," he continued. "Boise and Pocatello already have paths, Burley has one, and Rupert is putting one in with Urban D. bikes. It is not a question of whether we are going to make room for money, they are already here," he added.

"It is a sizable minority of working people who wish they could ride a bike without taking their life in their hands," he concluded.

Forschler 2nd district GOP candidate for US congress

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — George Forschler wants to go to Congress.

To reach that goal the Second District Republican candidate is preaching a hard line of states' rights and small government.

"We're destroying the middle-class people," Forschler says. "The middle class is the backbone of the American people and the federal bureaucracy is trying to destroy that. People are overtaxed and overburdened with federal regulations."

Forschler also objects to massive welfare rolls and federal and state assistance to non-workers.

"We have a responsibility to the voters," the 43-year-old candidate says, "because they did their work — that's paid in full — and to the needy. But we don't have to be the greedy."

Forschler calls Washington, D. C., a "hopeless jungle of high-pressure interest groups."

"The American people," he says, "must take action to clean up and clean out and bring the government back to the people — with states' rights and local options."

On local issues, the Burley businessman — and farmer — emphasizes storage and power dam projects to make the best use of Idaho's water. He also favors a free-trade market for agricultural products.

"The most powerful weapon," he says, "is food itself."

Forschler sees a need for future power development in the state, but he is undecided on the feasibility of Idaho Power's proposed Pioneer plant.

"We have to have more input and more studies on the Pioneer plant — and we should take a look at existing projects which could be further developed, and take a total look at the feasibility of development in Idaho, rather than piecemeal development."

Forschler advocates environmental-quality controls, but he believes such controls should not come "at the expense of human needs and priorities."

The Environmental Protection Agency, Forschler says, should "go back to being responsible for clean water and clean air and quit meddling in water storage basin construction and power projects."

"The EPA shouldn't rule on dams, water storage and those things," he says.

Forschler, a naturalized citizen, was born in Berlin and came to the US in 1951.

He attended the College of Idaho, where he majored in political science, supporting himself by playing the drums with dance bands.

Forschler resigned the Ponderosa last year to prepare for his congressional race and to look after his personal investments, which include the International Supply Co., Burley, and a small farm near Oakley.

Forschler and his wife, Laura, are the parents of a daughter and two sons.

In addition to serving on the regional airport board, Forschler is a Lieutenant Colonel in the Air Force Reserve.

Demos convene in TF Thursday

TWIN FALLS (UPI) — Adoption of rules will launch the three-day Idaho Democratic-State Convention Thursday morning at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

Rule adoption will be followed by drafting of the party platform during the afternoon session. The platform is expected to be general in nature and is not expected to raise many controversial issues, party officials said Monday.

They said work on finalizing the platform is expected to continue through Saturday's concluding session.

Delegates at large to the National Democratic Convention in New York in July will be named Saturday afternoon.

Keynote for the Idaho convention will be Montana Gov. Thomas Judge. He will address the general convention at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Friday night the governor's banquet will honor Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, who will be the banquet speaker. The convention concludes Saturday night with a rally and barbecue, highlighted by Sen. Frank Church.

Hospital seeks 3rd phase funds

TWIN FALLS — An application for $1.75 million for the third phase of construction at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital has been submitted to the Idaho Health Facilities Authority. Adm. James Rosenbaum told hospital board members Monday.

He said the authority has indicated tentative approval of the loan.

Rosenbaum explained there are no federal funds involved and the loan is placed by the Idaho Health Facilities Authority with private investors, probably within the state of Idaho. This will have considerable time and probably result in a good interest rate around 5 to 6.5 per cent.

Phase 3 construction would involve relocation and expansion of the emergency room and other first floor facilities. Phase 2, the addition of some 20 hospital beds has just been completed through a second floor remodeling program.

Board Chairman Joseph Stavage asked members to make a decision on whether Magic Valley Memorial Hospital should join the voluntary rate review program for Idaho hospitals.

Although two board members expressed lack of enthusiasm for additional hospital studies, the board voted unanimously to join the voluntary rate review program of the Idaho Hospital Association.

The proposed program is being undertaken in the hope federal rate reviews and regulations will not be imposed on hospitals in Idaho.

Rosenbaum told the board there will be other benefits including an opportunity for comparison of administrative matters, specific problems and their solutions. The Rate Review Committee and hospitals will be able to make a comparison of all records and operations with other participating hospitals in the state, he said.

Rosenbaum reported week-end emergency room coverage by physicians from the University of Utah is working well. Board members approved an increase in pay for these doctors from $11 to $14 per hour effective July 1.

John Hayden, hospital controller, told the board this will probably necessitate the raising of emergency room physician fees from $15 to $20. No action was taken Monday night on the fee increase.

Several board members said they have heard favorable comment on the emergency room coverage. Rosenbaum said it is being used as a 24-hour doctors' office with many persons coming to the hospital for treatment instead of calling their own physicians.

Wallenda featured

FILER — Karl Wallenda and his high wire act will be the highlight of the Shrine Circus in its four performances today and Wednesday.

The circus, with two performances daily at 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Filer, also features acrobats, daredevils, a trained dog act, elephants, chimpanzees, aerialists and feats of horsemanship.

Wallenda, a busy man at 71, recently performed what he calls a "big walk" across a 610-foot high wire stretched from one side of the Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia to the other. The high-wire was more than 150 feet off the ground and Wallenda performed the walk in 18 minutes before a crowd of more than 50,000. He carried two thousand fans with him.

The big walk in Philadelphia was dangerous, Wallenda said, because of high winds that day which buffeted the two flags.

This year, Wallenda's act features his 15-year-old grandnephew who has been working on the high wire since she was 5-year-old.

"She does something different," Wallenda said. "I always try to go to the public and show them not the same thing all the time."

"We only hope that the weather is good this year," he continued. "Last year there was a storm and we were not able to do anything."

Sitting outside his Airstream trailerhouse parked at the fairgrounds, Wallenda reminisced briefly about his 57 years on the high wire.

He was born into a show family and started on the high wire when he was 16-year-old. He said his favorite act is the bicycle pyramid.

Wallenda's wife is traveling with him. "She worked 25-years with me on the wire," he said. But now she travels with the show. When Wallenda ribbed her about her jurisdiction over the children, she said, "You keep out of this, it's my department. Your department is the high wire."

And Wallenda, despite his 71-years, still runs the show. "I have the experience of 57 years, still there," he said. "I still be careful, I'm not reckless up there."

When asked what he thinks about when he is up on the wire before a crowd, he said, "We think that we want to make the people happy and have them appreciate us."

New judge named

By SHANE O'NEILL

BURLEY — Cassia County's deputy prosecutor has been named magistrate to fill the new traveling position in the Fifth District.

Roy Holloway, a native of Blackfoot, was appointed to the position Friday night by the Fifth District Magistrate Commission.

Holloway will take office in Burley July 1. His initial task will be to help Cassia County Magistrate Judge George Granata catch up on the backlog of magistrate cases in the county. He will then be available around the Fifth Judicial District to help with backlogs, to take over during vacations or to assume control of the courtroom if the presiding magistrate is disqualified.

The state Supreme Court will be faced with the need to approve a waiver of a provision in the law to allow Holloway to take office. The law requires that a prospective magistrate attend a magistrate's seminar before taking office. But a seminar is scheduled between now and July.

"WHY MY DAD SHOULD BE PRESIDENT IN 1976!"

We asked children in the Valley to write us and tell why they thought their Dad should be President in this bicentennial year of '76. The results were both fun and enlightening to read. We wish they all could have been winners; but we're sure they are winners in their Dad's eyes! Thanks, kids for your time and thoughts... here are a sampling of the letters we received.

Why My Dad Should be President in 1976

I think my dad should be President because he is peaceful and is kind all the time. He would try to make a better place for man to live in. He would get some scientists to find out how to get more food for the country too. He would try to solve everyone's problems and help the people that are sick. He'd help anyone he could. He wouldn't need the White House for a home he would live in a regular old house. My dad doesn't believe in wasting money for silly things and would cut down spending money for foolish things. He would see to it the rich people paid their share so the poor people wouldn't always get stuck with all the taxes. He would see that all the people who could work. That's why I think my dad should be President in 1976.

My name is Jamie Baker and I think my Dad should be president because he is nice and he helps me in Boy Scouts. And he teaches me to build things and do things. And he sometimes buys me things. He also takes me places with him. And that's why I think he should be president.

Why my Dad should be president in 1976. Because he is very kind and does good deeds and every body likes him. Because he helps him and he works with them and he works with electricity and he makes things work. For people and that's why my Dad should be president in 1976. P.O. 244, Hazelton, Idaho 83335

My Dad should be president because he has good ideas. My Dad is good at bossing. And he is good at And he is very honest person. He is a very nice person. From Teresa McGinnis.

Why My Dad Should Be President In 1976

My dad would make a good president for 1976 because he loves his and his country. He believes in paying respect while it is due. It is a hard working man and he doesn't think government people should get paid to go get a job. He is open minded, and he will listen to everybody and then try to do what is right. He thinks where is too much big government and this great nation of ours should be ruled of the people, by the people and for the people as our forefathers had planned it many years ago.

Why my Dad should be president in 1976? Because he is the best dad in the whole world. He helps us and buys all our clothes. He lets us swim he is also very honest. He is very nice.

P.S. I love my dad for what he is and does.

Dear Sir:
Susan Burns
R #1 Eden, Idaho

My Dad should be President in 1976 because he takes a person from the people to know what the people want and need and my Dad is that kind of person. My Dad believes in the law and nothing will stop him from saying what he believes even when the President he votes for does not get elected.

Unlike most Dads, my Dad is a farmer. Most people think farmers are like hillbillies and poor but this is wrong. Even George Washington after being President of the U.S. said he wanted to be the best farmer in the country and my Dad knows enough about politics to be the President of the U.S. which is exactly why I am writing this letter.

My Dad works hard all days in the field and supports our family enough for every necessity including love. But he always finds time for his family. Once in a while our family might get a little short of money but Dad still works as hard as ever and when he comes in from work and we get together we forget all about the things we could be doing.

Here is one message I'd like to say and that is even if my Dad doesn't win this contest he'll still be the best Dad in the world to me!

Why My Dad Should Be President In 1976

Chris Walton
Age 10

Phone 733-6120

I think that my dad should be president because, for example: Whenever he's real busy, and I come in where he is he'll always look up from what he's doing, no matter how busy he is, he'll always give me a smile and say hi. I think he'd make a good president because no matter how big a problem he's on, like something on a foreign country, he'd have time for a smaller one like something about a school crossing.

Dear Times News, 733-5156

This is why my dad should be president in 1976. Because he's nice and understanding and he's extra sweet. When I have problems he talks to me and then I feel better. Sometimes I'm bad and he speaks me but I think I need it and I think that if my dad were president in 1976, if people had problems he could help them too.

My dad could make all the big decisions that the president does now because he's smart and my dad would get more votes than any candidate would ever get because people like what he would do. He would make sure our country always had its freedom.

and that's what I think of my dad. He's SWEET!

Love,
Marcy

Why My Dad should be President

My dad should be president because my dad doesn't allow anyone to fight when his around. My dad would also stop people who spend too much money by making them what they need. That something people they had a good reason he would be ahead but if they didn't have a good reason they didn't would probably say my dad should be president.

Why my Dad should be President in 1976

Dear Sirs,

Even though I'm too old for the contest I could like you to know that I'm still proud of my dad & this is why I think he should be President in 1976.

I wrote to you last year telling you why I'm proud of my dad. I'm that little I told you how my dad took care of me & loved, cared & gave me something to live for. There isn't to many men who would take a girl in that they only ment mee after she had been deserted by both parents.

My man that would adopt me more child when he already had three of his own. I should be President in 1976. He could teach people the most important thing there is to know that is how to love & be loved. To love man as well as God.

That is why I think my dad Ken Pierce should be President in 1976.

P.S. my sister Paula is age 11 and two brothers Tod age 10

Boots age 5 say the same thing. I do about our dad we love him very much.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

In the several weeks following the disastrous San Francisco earthquake on April 18, 1906, two compelling phony stories were reported nationwide and believed. One, that all the gold animals in the zoo had escaped and were eating the refugees in Golden Gate Park. And two, that vigilantes were catching numerous ghoulish men with woman's fingers in their pockets, they not having taken the time otherwise to remove the rings.

Believe I mentioned that the length of the average man's arm is 28 inches. That's fortuitous, what? Because, in fact, the average woman's waist-measure 28 inches. So it's noted that the average man's arm is designed to fit around the average woman's waist, a curiosity our Love and War man filed many years ago.

It's rare, very rare, that you see corned beef and cabbage served in Ireland... The skin specialists nationwide report a rise in the outbreak of facial allergies among men. What accounts for this? Colognes, they contend.

COSTLEST PAGE

O. "What's the most expensive advertising page in a magazine?"
A. The back cover. After that, the inside of the front cover. Then, the inside of the back cover.

The emperors of ancient Rome had their own intelligence officers. "Delatores" was what they were called. They were assigned to mingle with the population and report back the current rumors. They also worked at dirty-tricks chores. If the emperors didn't care for the rumors they heard, they dispatched those intelligence officers to pass out counter-rumors.

SUMMER MOVE

If a mother and father have to move their household, they usually prefer to do so in the summer, so the youngsters can start out fresh at the beginning of the fall school term. That's too bad. Studies indicate children do better in making such a change. If they get into a new school after the semester starts, they do better. I mean a first friends more reliable. Because they have so much trouble in settling down socially as do the newcomers who join in the class at the outset of the semester.

One out of every 25 citizens nationwide routinely has nothing for breakfast but coffee... Nothing does away with household cockroaches better than that little pet lizard known as the gecko. I'm told... Maybe you didn't realize there are automotive experts who can tell you the make and the size of a car just by the sound of its horn... Our Chat Propagator thinks we will be paying $2 a pound for coffee shortly... Three out of five of all the wild beasts from biggest to tiniest are liveliest at night.

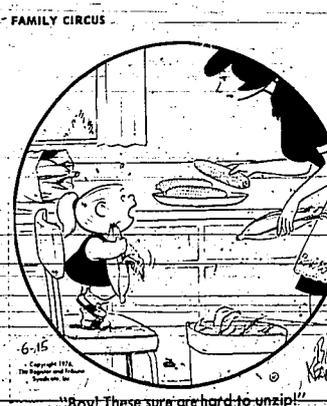

The typical squirrel will take about 10 naps a day, sir.

Why My Dad Should be President in 1976

The first reason I think my dad should be president is he can decide decision very quickly. My brother, sister, and I fight an awful lot but my dad always settles it fairly. It's always the worst decision. So you can see his good at making decisions.

The second reason is honesty and trustworthy. He never cheats on bills or anyone's person. Nixon was an untrustworthy person. I'm sure everyone heard about the watergate. My dad would never do a thing like that. He wouldn't go to England just for looks. He'd go there just for business. Now you can see that besides being a good decision maker he's also trustworthy and honest.

Now you can see why I think my dad should be president.

Why my dad should be president in '76.

Cause he knows all the tricks. He would smoke his pipe all day long. While he puts things back where they belong. Truthfully speaking I think he'd be really great. At any rate.

My dad is a lawyer now see. Which would qualify him naturally!
