Violent storms sweep Midwest, South, kill four

By United Press International
The death toll mounted to four Wednesday from 10-inch rains that swamped Houston, a mudslide that buried a home on South Dakota's Black Hills and violent storms that swept much of the Midwest and South.
The rain fell for seven hours in Houston Tuesday, sending bayous and creeks into basements of hospitals, forcing thousands of motorists to abandon automobiles in high waters and causing a weather postponement of a Houston Astro game for the first time in its 11-year history.

Patricia Willhite, 8, was torn from her mother's arms by floodwaters rushing down a Houston street and drowned in a sewer. The body of a mudslide victim was recovered from a crumpled home at Deadwood, S.D. A Minnesota farmer was killed in a violent storm Tuesday and a 72-year-old Coopersville, Mich.

woman was struck and killed by lightning.
Two persons were injured in Berrien County, Michigan, when high winds damaged their trailer homes. Other violent storms, including tornadoes, swept wide areas of the Midwest.
Behind the storm front, a mass of cold air sent temperatures tumbling to record lows for the date. The mercury dipped into the 30s in Nebraska and a record low was set as far south as Midland, Tex.

In contrast, California had hot weather. Readings in the 90s to 100 were common in the state Tuesday and several cities reported 100-degree readings.
In Houston, fire department medics rescued a pregnant woman from her flooded and tilted car and delivered her baby in an ambulance.
Thousands of abandoned cars littered streets and freeways today as a remnant of the fully drivers met in trying to navigate during the storm.

"We expected a lot of rain in advance of a cool front moving through the state," said a National Weather Service spokesman, "but the warm, humid conditions brought on the onslaught a lot sooner than we expected."
The Civil Defense spokesman said shelters for persons forced out of their homes were set up in the east and north sections of Houston, but there was no count on the number of evacuees.

HEAVY RAIN storms caused widespread flooding in Houston, Texas, Tuesday. These youngsters in southwest Houston took advantage of the water to get in some boating. Ten inches of rain was reported to have fallen in downtown Houston. (UPI)

Frost nips Lincoln crops

SHOSHONE—The growth of Lincoln County crops was blunted by a frost this week, according to Ivan Hopkins, extension agent.
He said he would not be able to give a damage estimate for at least two weeks, when farmers are able to see how their crops were affected.
"Particularly hit hard were bean, corn and potato fields, with some farmers plowing up the planted bean fields. Some farmers will replant them, hoping for a late fall freeze to allow their maturity," Hopkins said.
Otherwise, he said he expects the other crops to "make a comeback" with possibly simply a two-week setback.
Prior to the frost, Hopkins said he had never seen the crops in Lincoln County doing so well. With the frost, perhaps the setback will cause only an "average" yield, he said.
As an example, he said the average yield for beans in Lincoln County is about 16 to 17 sacks per acre.
"Of course," he added "all depends on whether we get another unseasonable frost this summer or too early in the fall."
Last fall the first frost didn't come until mid-October, but that is about one month later than usual for this area.
Hopkins said this month's late frost is about two weeks later than usual. Records show a similar frost occurring on June 26, 1966.

Evacuees return to homes

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — A fire which released clouds of toxic gas fumes, forcing evacuation of thousands of persons, burned itself out shortly after daybreak today and authorities began allowing residents to return home.
Fire Battalion Chief David Sloan said the fire was reduced "to small pockets of material... all we have to do is get it and turn it over."
Some gas lingered close to the ground near the fire which destroyed a warehouse containing stocks of chlorine and muriatic acid but Sloan said it was rapidly diluting.
Only two mobile home parks adjacent to the warehouse were still under evacuation.
Police estimated some 5,000 persons were ordered out of a four square mile area by officers who raced the gas cloud through the streets in the middle of the night, sounding sirens and blaring bullhorn warnings to sleeping residents to "put towels over your mouths and get out immediately."

A team of six firemen with breathing equipment and dry powder extinguishers moved in on the flames at daybreak in the first attempt to put out the fire which Battalion Chief Don Tschirhart said was "burning itself right into a corner."
"There's not much left to burn," Tschirhart said.
He said residents of the area would not be allowed back into the area until the problem was over.
"You don't want to evacuate someone then let him back in just to tell him he has to get out again. That's not realistic."

Ambassador disappears

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador to Lebanon Francis E. Meloy and another embassy official disappeared in war-torn Beirut today, the State Department said. Fears immediately arose that they were kidnaped.
"We've lost an ambassador in Lebanon," said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. "He has disappeared."
The White House said the wife of a chauffeur, who was driving Meloy and embassy Economic Counselor Robert O. Waring to a Beirut meeting with Lebanese President-Elect Elias Sarkis, received a telephone call saying they had been kidnaped.
The car never reached its destination.
"We can confirm (the two men) have been missing since late Wednesday morning Beirut time," spokesman Robert Funnell told reporters at the State Department.
"The two men were traveling by car to meet an appointment with President-Elect Sarkis but failed to reach their destination. We are making every effort to locate the two men," he said.
Meloy arrived in Beirut only five weeks ago, on May 8, under orders from President Ford to try and arrange a ceasefire between warring Muslims and Christians.

Ford was informed that the two men were missing at 7:30 a.m. EDT by National Security Affairs Adviser Brent Scowcroft at the White House.
Kissinger, who selected Meloy for his job as ambassador to Guatemala for the difficult Beirut assignment, received the news of his disappearance while he was having breakfast with a group of United Press International executives at the State Department. He was handed an urgent cable and announced: "We've lost an ambassador in Lebanon. He has disappeared."
A career foreign service officer, Meloy's priority assignment was to try help the warring Lebanese factions achieve a political settlement and establish a ceasefire.
Meloy was born in Washington, D. C., and graduated with a from American University in 1939. He took his master's degree at Yale in 1942. Meloy entered the Navy during World War II and was posted to Dhahran as principal officer.
After service in Paris at the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Defense College in 1953, he was transferred to Saigon as political officer.

O'Leary report due

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — An insurance inspection of O'Leary High School Monday should result in a report to the school district early next week detailing some conditions for insurability of the school.
According to Steve Berg, insurance agent for the district, a tour was conducted Monday morning by a loss-control engineer for Fireman's Fund, the carrier of the school district's insurance.
The engineer was "non-committal" in his assessment of the old school which was closed June 7 by the city as a fire hazard.
Berg said the engineer will make a quick report to the insurance company, and the company will then report to the school district on the school's insurability.
In addition to the engineer's report, Berg added, the insurance company has also requested a listing from the city of the minimum conditions it would accept for reopening the school.
"At least the minimum requirements list" would be the difference between the city's ideals and the minimum standards they may accept," Berg said.
Berg said the insurance company had indicated it would "prefer to discuss it (insurability) internally" before announcing its assessment.
Fireman's Fund currently carries all the school district's building insurance but the policy under which the city's schools are covered expires July 1.
Berg said there will probably be "many meetings" between insurance, city and school district representatives prior to the July 1 expiration date.

Asked if insurance for the entire school district would lapse if the O'Leary question were not answered by July 1, Berg said he did not know for sure what would happen.
"I'm sure arrangements will be made prior to July 1 so the district does not find itself in a bind," he said.
While the insurability of O'Leary overshadows other questions concerning continued use of the school, the school district may soon call in its own expert to examine the building and prepare a report which could be part of a school district representative's presentation to the July 1 expiration date.
School district attorney Fred Decker said this morning that two experts had been lined up. Decker said neither had been called in for an inspection pending a decision on the insurability of the school.
"One of the experts could make an inspection next week," Decker said, "but the school board decides if it wants the inspection."
That possibility will be discussed at tonight's meeting of the school board, Decker added.

Growers won't leave exchange

BOISE — Idaho potato growers have not threatened to pull their product out of a major potato futures market if a series of new regulations are adopted regarding contracts, according to the head of the Idaho Potato Commission (IPC).
The Times-News Tuesday reported Gov. Cecil D. Andrus wrote a letter warning the Chicago Mercantile Exchange (CME) that Idaho potatoes may be pulled off the exchange if the exchange adopts new regulations concerning the trading of Idaho potatoes.
Actually, the governor wrote a letter to Gordon Randall, executive director of the IPC, about the proposed changes in futures contracts regulations being studied by the federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC).
"The potato growers in Idaho haven't threatened to withdraw from the exchange, they are studying the possibility, Randall added.
The CFTC is currently studying regulation changes including a change in the name of contracts from Idaho Russets to Western Russets. Should such a change be instituted at the CME, Idaho contracts would fall under the same title as potatoes from other areas including Wisconsin and North Dakota.

Japan gets quakes

TOKYO (UPI) — Three earthquakes with epicenters in the same area jolted central Japan today, one of them strong enough to stop commuter trains in Tokyo during the early morning rush hour.
Police said one driver was injured when a falling rock hit his car in the western outskirts of Tokyo.
There were reports of broken window glass and fallen roof tiles in Yamaguchi province.
Commuters in Tokyo jammed into surface and subway trains delayed by the second tremor.
Japanese National Railways high-speed "Bullet" train service was suspended in the Tokyo area for about three hours.

8 sect members arrested

HONOLULU (UPI) — Police arrested eight members of a Hawaii religious sect called "The Source" Tuesday night and recovered a man's body who had refused to release.
The corpse of the 22-year-old man, who died while hanging, had been kept in the sect's home since Monday night. A doctor who was preparing to hang glide helped sect members recover the body from the Nakapuni cliffs on Oahu. They put it in a van and drove to their Lanikai headquarters.

Students fired on

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Palestinians agreed today to extend Beirut's shaky cease-fire to the surrounding countryside, but they charged Syria was already violating the truce with new armored thrusts into northern and southeastern Lebanon and shelling of refugee camps at Sidon.
The Palestinians announced their accord as Arab mediators assembling a pan-Arab peace force prepared a timetable for partial withdrawal of Syrian troops who were reported to have struck to within 2 1/2 miles of the Israeli border.

Syria violates truce

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police fired into a crowd of about 10,000 rioting black students today, killing five persons, a police spokesman said. One white policeman also was killed in the biggest anti-government demonstration in years.
At least 33 persons were admitted to hospitals, 19 with bullet wounds, in the rioting which began about 8 a.m. in the African township of Soweto, outside Johannesburg.

Ticks tucked in letter asking 'overdue' payment

DENVER (UPI) — FBI scientists today investigated the possibility a batch of ticks mailed in a plain brown envelope to an insurance firm were infected with a variety of deadly diseases.
"We don't have the facilities to handle the investigation here, so we sent the ticks to our laboratories in Washington, D.C.," said Ted Rosack, head of the Denver FBI office.
The ticks were discovered Tuesday, 24 hours after they arrived at the regional office of Combined Insurance Co. of America.
Authorities said the ticks may have been part of a nationwide extortion scheme. They were mailed in an envelope similar to ones, which delivered letter bombs to major corporations around the nation this week.
At least 14 letter bombs had been received at various locations around the country by Tuesday night. Authorities said most apparently were mailed at or near Texarkana, Tex.
UPI obtained a copy of the envelope and letter which accompanied the ticks in Denver. The postmark was unreadable.
The letter ended with the typed name of "J. Foxworth, Fort Walton Road."

A smudged city and zip code from somewhere in Connecticut followed the name.
The letter said two of the ticks, named "Exxon" and "La Metralia," were accompanied by "little family."
"Many of them are quite small, barely visible to the eye. You may assume you did not see all of them making their exit from this envelope."
"I mentioned that Exxon and Metralia and their little family have a secret," said the letter. "The secret is that B.A. Fox has a fine bacteria lab, well-stocked with various types of bacteria, viruses, germs — ranging from simple staphylococcus infections up to and including rabies."
The letter said similar mailings were made across the nation "to remind the company officers that an account owed to B.A. Fox is long overdue and must be paid immediately."
Maurice Billon, regional administrator for the Chicago-based insurance firm, said he had no idea who "B.A. Fox" might be or why the letter was sent to his company.

5,000 craftsmen show wares

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the midday heat, John Kocjanec, 46, of Johnsbury, Pa., and his brother EDWARD, 44, of Kane, Pa., stood at one end of a 14-inch wide pine log. At the other end stood Rudolph Kocjanec, 48.

At a signal, John and Ed started sawing with a two-man crosscut. Rudy went to work at his end with a power saw.

John and Ed finished first with a few mighty strokes. A wedge of log, as thick and round as a pig, fell to the ground.

"You can do it for maybe two cuts," said John, a burly man, breathing hard, sweat pouring from his face. "After that, the power saw beats you."

The Kocjanec brothers, whose father was a logger and whose mother was a cook at a logging camp, were sawing logs in the middle of Washington because they are participants in the American Festival of Folk Life.

Today is opening day for the free outdoor festival. It runs for 12 weeks and is expected to attract 17 million visitors to celebrate the ordinary in American life. It is the biggest event of its type.

More than 5,000 craftsmen, musicians, workingmen, dancers and cooks will demonstrate how things are done where they come from. The festival covers 45 acres of the mall between the Lincoln and Washington Monuments.

Besides watching the Kocjanecs compete, an energetic visitor during opening week could observe a snowshoe maker from Caratunk, Maine, at work; eat apple-butter-made-by-a-cook from Millerstown, Pa.; see circle dancing by Romanians and Kurds from Israel; listen to a fiddler from Perkinville, Va.; and a storyteller from Grampson, Pa., and watch children build castles from a huge mound of sand put there for that purpose.

The festival is put on by the Smithsonian Institution on a budget of $7.5 million. It brings participants from 33 countries, 35 unions and every region of the United States.

The themes are Regional America, African Diaspora, Native Americans, Working Americans, Old Ways in the New World, Family Folklore and Children's Folklore. Each week different participants with different skills show how things are done where they come from.

At one spot they are growing corn, beans and peas — "the American Flare," a sign says, "together they give a balanced diet" — and three other crops native to this continent: tomatoes, pumpkins and sunflowers.

Down the path, folklorists will use tape recorders to record, for preserving in archives and academic research, the inside stories that families tell about themselves.

Pasted on the wall of their tent is one such story which was collected last year. It explains why to one family the expression, "Get up Shields, you're beat your Daddy," meant that a child has bested his parents. This is the story the folklorists recorded:

"Someone in my family had three children, one of whom was named Shields. The old man was quite a drunk and often would beat up on his family when in liquor. One day he started in on Shields who by then was a grown teenager, and Shields kicked the tar out of him. Finally, the old man was down and Shields was sitting on his chest. The old man looked up and said ruefully, 'Get up Shields, you beat your daddy.'"

Viking I hurtles to Mars

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Viking I, with pressure slowly building in the propellant tank, from a slow, helium leak, hurtled toward Mars today for a 1600-mile an hour aimed at an orbit of the planet Saturday and a landing on July 4.

Despite the baking helium valve, which has caused problems in the timetable of the Mars probe, Project Manager Jim Martin said Viking was functioning normally.

"Martin" said the leak could cause pressure in the tanks to build to 30 or 35 pounds per square inch over normal, but it would still be acceptable.

Viking I, one of twin spacecraft headed for Mars, is scheduled to go into orbit six hours later than originally planned and the first orbit revolution will be two days long instead of one.

After that, Martin said, another maneuver will be made to "trim" the spacecraft into a smaller orbit in the path of the preferred landing site in Mars' northern hemisphere and the original timetable will be resumed.

Viking I is to perform a long series of science experiments to test the Martian atmosphere, soil, biological and organic makeup and to see if life in any form exists or has ever existed there.

But the organic and biological testing will not be made immediately, Dr. Gerald Soffen, a Viking scientist, said. The danger of damaging the boom and collector — the long arm that extends out several feet to scoop up soil samples — would be too great unless extensive readines are made first.

Viking I has traveled 300 million miles in a looping path toward its encounter with Mars since last Aug. 20. Viking I was scheduled to go into Mars orbit Aug. 2 and land Sept. 1.

Martin said landing July 4 will be tough because of the corrections.

Brush, grass fires burn both ends of California

RED BLUFF, Calif. (UPI) — Brush and grass fires burned at both ends of California today and state officials feared even bigger blazes might follow because a front wave, after a rainless winter has left the state tinder dry.

Some 400 firefighters Tuesday evening contained a fire which blackened 15,000 acres east of Red Bluff after it "burned the heart out" of a winter feeding range, state Division of Forestry spokesman Larry Peck said.

Air tankers helped battle the blaze in what Peck termed "the roughest, steepest, terrain you can imagine."

The biggest conflagration in the southern portion of the state — a 2,700-acre fire in the rugged McDevitt National Forest — was controlled late Tuesday.

A fire in Marin county which blackened nearly 200 acres burned five homes, injured two firemen and sent hundreds fleeing to safety. A juvenile believed responsible for starting the fire was arrested.

Other brush fires flared in the San Francisco Bay Area.

The U.S. Forest Service announced the closure to the public of several large areas of Los Padres National Forest because of "lack of rainfall and rapidly increasing fire danger."

Ed Waldrop, spokesman for the Forest Service, said the regions affected included a 500-square-mile area north of Santa Barbara and the 170-square-mile Sespe Canyon Sanctuary-Cobblestone Mountain area — north of Fillmore.

A 120-square-mile section in the Junipero Serra and Pinyon Peak areas west of King City and two smaller sections in the Chalk Peak-Nacimiento Station and Pinyon Creek areas also will remain closed "until adequate fall season rains lessen the fire danger," the Forest Service said.

THE Festival of American Folklore, now in its tenth year in Washington D.C., begins its summer-long presentation today. More than 17 million Americans are expected to attend the festival. Loggers are shown in action with the Washington Monument in the background. (UPI)

Firestone must reveal report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. must make a full public report about $30,000 in illegal contributions to Congress and other federal, state and local politicians between 1970 and 1973.

The money allegedly was kept in the private safe of the Ohio corporation's chief officer, Raymond C. Firestone. He and Robert P. Bestley, who retired as vice chairman 16 days ago, allegedly administered the fund.

In a consent decree Tuesday, Judge Howard Corcoran of the U.S. District Court ordered the defendants not to repeat the offenses, which they neither admitted nor denied.

The Securities and Exchange Commission, the federal agency that supervises public corporations, filed the charges against the company.

In agreeing to settle the case without a long legal fight, the corporation said it would continue an internal investigation of the contributions and thousands of dollars in foreign payoffs.

The SEC did not specify that political recipients be named. But in past cases involving three oil companies — Ashland, Gulf and Phillips — the SEC refused to accept a report unless it contained the names of Congressional recipients. The SEC has not required the names of countries involved in foreign payoffs.

More than 140 corporations have been linked to illegal campaign contributions or foreign payoffs, since the SEC's "management fraud" probe two years ago.

The SEC said Firestone and 16 two principal officers failed to comply with the securities laws that require reporting of the improper and illegal payments.

Although the complaint dealt with $30,000 in political contributions for a three-year period, the SEC charged that the practice actually began before 1968.

Southern Baptists select new leader

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — Southern Baptists today chose a prominent member of the "Nashville Establishment" to head the nation's largest Protestant denomination.

The Rev. James Sullivan, retired head of the Southern Baptist Sunday School Board, was elected to a one-year term as president of the Southern Baptist Convention after the withdrawal of Dr. Adrian Rogers, a candidate of archconservatives within the 12-million-member denomination.

Sullivan's election is considered a victory for moderates in the denomination. It was under his leadership of the Sunday School Board, that the fundamentalists became concerned about what they consider to be creeping liberalism and denominational literature published by the board.

A Native of Silver Creek, Miss., Sullivan now makes his home in Nashville, Tenn., headquarters of the SBC, and is one of the most widely known and respected leaders of the denomination.

Sullivan served as president of the Sunday School Board between 1953 and 1974, and is currently a vice president of the Baptist World Alliance — an international organization of Baptist bodies from more than 100 countries.

Rogers, a board member of the fundamentalist Baptist Faith and Message Fellowship, Tuesday withdrew his name from nomination, "because the Lord has spoken in my heart" against his candidacy.

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — No more contractors are needed in the Teton Dam disaster area, Federal-state disaster assistance officers said Monday that the response of private contractors for debris removal and levee repairs has been so great that hiring agencies have long waiting lists.

J. Paul Getty had cancer

LONDON (UPI) — J. Paul Getty contracted cancer during the last months of his life, his personal physician said today.

Dr. Clive Mackenzie said prostate cancer was diagnosed two months ago in the oil billionaire, one of the world's great men. He died June 6 at age 82.

"Mr. Getty knew he had cancer," he said. "I discussed it with him and he took it very well. He was one of the few people I'd call outright."

A few others shared the secret — his son, Gordon, Penelope Kitson, a close friend, personal assistant Noel Bramlett and a team of nurses.

Idaho supports Sawtooth landowners

BOISE (UPI) — The State of Idaho has joined in support of landowners in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area who are suing to stop government purchase of their property.

In a brief filed in Federal District Court in Boise, Attorney General Wayne Kidwell accused the Department of Agriculture of "coercive, overboard and subjective" administrative action.

Kidwell's office was given permission by the court last week to join the suit brought by landowners of Obsidian, who are testing the government's right to regulate their private land within the SNRA.

The Forest Service has been negotiating with the 200 owners to purchase their land. The owners charge the Forest Service with an "attempted seizure" of their land, which has scenic views of the Sawtooth mountains. The service denies it is taking away property rights.

In his brief, Kidwell said:

— Tax revenues will be illegally lost to the Idaho counties should the land be condemned.

— Zoning and land-use planning requirements of Custer County, where the property is located, must be determined by the counties under authority of the 1975 Local Planning Act.

— The Agriculture Department is exercising "police power" reserved for the state in zoning the lands agricultural to maintain scenic values.

— Such federal condemnation actions are eroding the amount of land in Idaho for private use.

Idaho Republicans urge Andrus to return plane

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho leaders of the Republican Party have decided to "call upon Gov. Cecil Andrus to return his personal state plane and use the $169,000 along with state surplus funds to support practical efforts to assist the flood devastated communities in eastern Idaho."

Vernon Ravenscroft, Idaho Republican state chairman, Tuesday said that after contacting legislative officers and members of the executive board it was "the unanimous decision" to do so.

Ravenscroft said, "We cannot afford extravagance in the midst of a major disaster." The state chairman said, "Three years ago when floods destroyed roads and bridges in northern Idaho the legislature made available $1 million from state surplus funds for immediate loans to enable the quick replacement of public facilities."

The money has since been repaid in full by those northern Idaho communities. Right now eastern Idaho has experienced a far greater disaster, but to date the governor has not called a special legislative session, which could authorize similar help for eastern Idaho communities in need.

Instead the governor hurriedly purchased an administrative airplane in the name of emergency use."

Ravenscroft said an examination has been made of the purchase and "it is questionable on three counts."

— the funds would be far better spent helping flood victims

— the purchase was made from an out-of-state, unregistered dealer without bids

— the purchase was never authorized by legislative appropriation, in fact, was denied after thorough investigation by the last legislative session.

— the new plane really isn't needed because the Idaho National Guard already has two planes with experienced pilots available for state use (one army guard and one air guard)."

Demo chief says criticism 'politically motivated'

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho — The state Democratic chairman said Tuesday Vernon Ravenscroft's criticism of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' $169,000 airplane purchase is "politically motivated."

Chairman Decker Rice, Idaho Falls, said, "It's very typical of the state Republican chairman to mix politics with disaster. He simply can't get over having run against Cecil Andrus and losing so he keeps trying to second guess the governor with inaccurate and inadequate information which of course leads him to issue frequently incorrect statements."

Mrs. Rice said the governor "did not expend disaster funds for the purchase of an aircraft but because of the emergency that was created by this disaster he was able to pool unexpended appropriations from his office and from three of the state agencies to purchase an aircraft the purpose of which was to assist in the flood relief efforts of southeast Idaho."

"The Democratic chairman said, "It is typical of Cecil Andrus that he chose an economical plane rather than the expensive method that Mr. Ravenscroft suggests."

Relying on information from the governor's staff, Mrs. Rice said, "The Navajo Chieftain will cost only about $75 an hour to operate versus the $400 an hour it costs to operate the national guard C-130 plane."

Addressing herself to Ravenscroft's allegation that the expenditure was unnecessary, she said, "I'd like to point out to Mr.

Ravenscroft that because his expenditure was necessitated to bring aid to the Teton Dam disaster victims just like all the public and private expenses associated with the disaster this will be chargeable against the federal government and much of the expenses will be recovered." Mrs. Rice said, "Right now besides national guard aircraft I'm told that Idaho is leasing aircraft and using a borrowed airplane from California to ferry the state government relief personnel and relief supplies and federal paperwork to the flood-ravaged areas of eastern Idaho."

"I won't respond to all the inadequate or the typically distorted inaccuracies made by the Republican chairman but I would point out to him that national guard regulations specifically prohibit the governor and other state officials from using national guard airplanes. Most governors because they are commander in chief of their national guards simply order guard planes if they are available... often planes are not available."

Mrs. Rice said, "Governor Andrus, to his credit, has tried through the national governors conference to have this regulation of the Department of Defense changed to legitimate state government use of national guard planes."

Concluding her statement Mrs. Rice said, "I can only suggest Mr. Ravenscroft try talking to the governor and get mixing politics with this tragic disaster that the people of southeast Idaho are enduring."

No damage reported

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — Oneida County Sheriff Kenneth Wharton said no damage was reported from the 3.1 earthquake in the Pocatello Valley Monday morning although some residents reported feeling the tremor.

The epicenter of the Monday tremor, just north of the Utah-Idaho state line, is some five or six miles north of the epicenter of the 6.3 earthquake that shook the area on March 27, 1975, intensifying the damage done in the Pocatello Valley by a 1934 quake.

The 1934 quake occurred with major activity near Coconino Springs at the northern end of the Great Salt Lake where a fissure was opened in the earth. Subsequent tremors in 1975 rating as high as 4.8 intensified the previous damage. A 4.7 tremor was felt the night before the 1975 quake.

The earthquake caused damage in Oneida County exceeding $1 million that affected almost every building in the Pocatello Valley. The shift knocked a number of chimneys from their statures.

Older buildings in Oneida County that had been damaged in March 12, 1934, suffered heavier damage in the 1975.

The year before, tremors occurred near Snowville, Utah, at the south end of the Pocatello Valley, rating 3.4 on Sept. 12 and 3.8 on Sept. 22, 1975.

The March 27, 1975, quake occurred on the anniversary of the 1964 Good Friday-Alaskan earthquake. Both were felt about 9:30 p.m.

Mobile home relocated

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Ralph Davis, 23, his wife and their son, moved into their first mobile home relocated in the Teton Dam disaster area Tuesday.

Davis' own trailer home was parked near St. Anthony when the flood waters hit. It was carried downstream into some trees, leaving only the foundation a mile behind.

Twenty members of the initial aid order were diverted directly to St. Anthony due to poor road conditions. A total of 1,000 homes will be moved into the disaster area.

Some 40 trailers a day will be delivered to the staging area at Idaho Falls.

Bad weather has hindered the shipment from a disaster pool in S. Dakota where they were used in a 1972 flood.

Flood victims can live in the houses up to a year rent-free. The homes will be allocated on a first-come first-served basis in most cases.

Disaster assistance officials said it usually takes 65 to 90 days to find temporary homes for 2,000 families but Mayer said they hope to beat that average with "good management, judgment and organization."

"While homeless families are being moved into mobile housing units, William Mayer, regional director of the federal Disaster Assistance Administration, said he would like to close four disaster relief centers by the end of the week to return federal employees to their jobs."

Mayer said flood victims still could receive aid after the centers close but they would have to go to six different federal agency locations.

The Madison County sheriff ordered written proof of ownership from persons leaving the disaster area with private property. Four persons were arrested Sunday night.

Twelve persons have been arrested since the June 5 dam collapse for looting and Rexburg chief of police Blair Siepert is certain others have escaped.

White House won't let aides review fund plans

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General Wayne Kidwell said Tuesday the White House has refused to allow himself and Gov. Cecil D. Andrus to review regulations drafted by the Department of Interior for disbursement of $200 million requested by President Ford for aid to victims of the Teton Dam collapse.

Kidwell said the department has delivered the proposed regulations to the Office of Management and Budget at the White House.

So far, Kidwell said, the "White House has refused to give a copy of the regulations for our review."

"It's critical to Idaho to have some input on how the money is disbursed and the damages it will cover so we can fully protect Idaho citizens who were injured by the disaster."

The attorney general said he couldn't understand the refusal because the state should have an opportunity to look at them before they become final.

"We are urging that we be allowed to review them," Kidwell said. "I am sure they will be all right, but the State of Idaho should have some input, taking into account Idaho law and the rights of Idaho citizens."

Kidwell said he expected Congress to approve Ford's $200 million request.

Gem fire center sends equipment

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise Interagency Fire Center sent an international food and equipment package to the Canadian government to fight a 67,000-acre fire in the province of Ontario for a little over two weeks.

The aid package was the second transaction of its kind between the two governments and the largest equipment transport the Boise office has executed.

W.E. Bellsie, a Canadian liaison officer, said the man-power and fire-fighting equipment in the province were "depleted" the week of May 20 when the United States was asked for assistance.

The cost to the Canadian government for transportation and replacement of the borrowed equipment is estimated at $30,000 to $40,000, Bellsie said.

Ford manages worst of both worlds

Vice Presidency important to U.S.

Presidential candidates squirm and twitch under public scrutiny every election year. Voters sift through the personal, political, and family histories of presidential candidates looking for a bit of dirt. Public concern over the integrity of presidential candidates is healthy. But the same electorate often gives only a casual glance to vice-presidential candidates and potential cabinet members of any presidential cabinet. The public can't examine vice presidents or cabinet members because presidential candidates never mention running mates and advisors in the early going of an election year. A Vice President of the United States stands one step away from the most powerful job on Earth. Presidential advisors are privy to the most important decisions made in this nation. Yet the public never gets a chance to examine these men and women until they are already appointed. One only has to remember the traumas of the 1972 election to see the importance of Vice Presidents. George McGovern's candidacy was doomed almost from the start because of the Tom Eagleton fiasco. And Spiro Agnew, while getting into office, was a major liability to Richard Nixon and eventually resigned his job over tax evasion charges. People in 1972 joked that Spiro Agnew wasn't a household word. Perhaps vice presidential candidates should become better known to the public. Vice Presidents often are viewed as just presidential sidekicks, good for a few state dinners and not much more. But Vice Presidents have either been elected president or moved into the top spot in 20 of the last 35 years. The public should begin asking presidential candidates who they want as a running mate. Public scrutiny also is needed in selection of cabinet officials. Presidential politics involves more than a single man at the top of the ticket. Before Jimmy Carter, or Gerald Ford, or Ronald Reagan gets a vote of confidence in America, their choices for the Vice Presidency and cabinet should be known to the public.

WASHINGTON — The Ford administration's seriousness of purpose about busing can be measured by the languishing of White House legislative suggestions, untouched and forgotten, in the Justice Department for two and one-half months until dislodged by election year commotion. Current feverish efforts to draft a Ford anti-busing bill are widely interpreted as another example of President Ford adjusting public policy in Republican politics. Actually, the administration's performance on racial school busing the past month stems not only from Mr. Ford's irreplaceable political opportunism but also administrative incompetency and hopelessly amateurish attorney general.

The result is what Mr. Ford often manages: the worst of two worlds: with both the anti-busing majority and the pro-busing minority furious at the President. The administration's wayward bus, moreover, helps explain why an incumbent President, presiding over peace and prosperity, now struggles for his own party's nomination. The administration's last orderly election to busing came March 12 when James Cannon, director of the White House Domestic Council, wrote a busing memorandum that included a legislative option: attempt limiting the scope of court orders. Cannon sent the memo to Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi at the Justice Department (as well as Secretary David Matthews at the Health, Education and Welfare Department) and asked for proposals. Nothing happened. The Justice Department ignored the memo, and the White House ignored the Justice Department. This may be understandable because of Mr. Ford's dismantling Richard M. Nixon's Prussian-style system. But it also indicates that busing was mighty low on the President's list of priorities during those 10 weeks of inaction.

The nearly universal political inference in Washington and in Boston's city hall is that the intensifying struggle with Ronald Reagan rekindled the administration's interest in busing. The truth, however, seems less political and more mindless. On May 5, Solicitor General Robert Bork brought the case to the Supreme Court. Bork and Levi, both resolutely anti-busing and non-political, thought it would be a good idea. J. Stanley Pottinger, assistant attorney general for civil rights, objected on both legal and political grounds. Nevertheless, Levi and Bork decided to go ahead. By Monday, May 10, Bork had drafted a petition for the Supreme Court. Incredible though it sounds, the White House no longer had the petition for the first time with a telephone call to the Justice Department from Presidential Counsel Philip Buchen asking what in the world was going on. Levi and Bork had mindlessly denoted a major political objective. Two prominent Republican blacks, Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts and Secretary of Transportation William Coleman, angrily protested to Levi. As for Pottinger, he at least would not sign Bork's petition to the Court and at worst would resign (undoubtedly accompanied by most of the government's civil rights lawyers.) But the President appeared delighted and sought benefits from the Levi-Bork initiative.

Thoughts for today
When angry, count to before you speak. If very angry, count to a hundred. — Thomas Jefferson, Third United States President.
It takes a person who is wide awake to make his dream come true. — Roger Babson, American statistician.
Man's destiny for many millions of years to come is, so far as our present knowledge shows, in his own hands. It rests with him to decide whether he will plunge into disaster or climb to undream-of heights. — Bertrand Russell, English philosopher.
No man can tell whether he is rich or poor by turning to his ledger. It is the heart that makes a man rich. It is rich according to what he is, not according to what he has. — Henry Ward Beecher, American clergyman.

T-N scored for reporting lack

Editor, Times-News: Each time our subscription to the Times-News has to be renewed I vow I won't subscribe again. I've become increasingly concerned with the Times-News because of the lack of reporting news vital to the well-being and freedoms of every true American. You have reported the news of the Teton Dam, discuss very well but the US government may have items that you have failed to give any space to such as: In April 1976 did you print the story, quote, "The Senate to vote on Genocide Treaty?" ("Spotlight" April 26/76). For those of you who have never heard of the Genocide Treaty, if adopted by the US government any American citizen could be arrested, taken to a foreign country, tried by their courts and sentenced for making a public comment that a citizen of that foreign country could take exception to. We could be forced to serve time in a foreign prison.

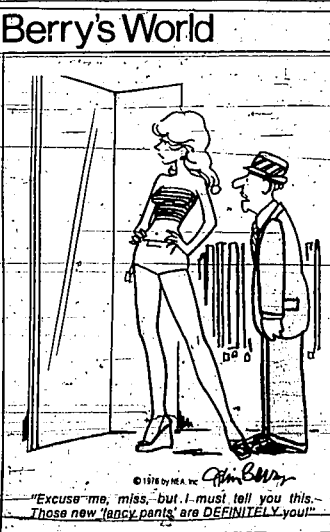

LETTERS Heyburn aide stresses energy independence

Editor, Times-News: Quoting Chris Peck of the Times-News: Heyburn it seems is one of the nearly 100 small towns and electric companies being hit up by the Washington-Public Power-Supply System (WPSS) for money to build a pair of $1 billion power plants. The claims of the Northwest office of the Sierra Club and the Coalition for Safe Energy (CASE), both vigorous opponents of the plants were stated. Mr. Peck all while trying to remain objective, about "The $3.8 million question nobody asks", referring to Heyburn's share of energy from the plants. Although not explaining that amount will be spread over the life of the plants. For example: City of Heyburn, Idaho — 27 per cent; City of Seattle, Washington — 12 per cent; City of Burley, Idaho — 204 per cent; City of Tacoma, Washington — 11.5 per cent; City of Rupert, Idaho — .381 per cent.

the future generations. Objections could cause a sad situation for young men and women just beginning family life if there were no power for their homes. No amount of blame on environmentalists, CASE, Sierra Club or others will lead a home or cook a meal. The $3.8 million questions had been asked. It is being asked, and will be asked again before a decision is made by the Heyburn City Council to sign the contract. Citizens are eagerly sought and sincerely appreciated at Heyburn. Many hours of research, evaluation, negotiation and concern have been involved in decisions of Heyburn's future power supply. CASE claims that the Heyburn's of the Northwest will be financing expansion of large cities and industry. Each participant of WPSS will contract for a specified amount in direct proportion to local needs. The availability of power for industrial growth actually stabilizes residential rates.

the past. In the enlightened and educated opinion of responsible engineers, planners and administrators, Heyburn will be precisely under the WPA allocation of 2500 average kilowatts available in the early 1980s. Heyburn will have requirements beyond available supply before either of the two nuclear plants could come on line. Heyburn and the area will continue to grow on an accelerated pace because the citizens want it, most of us would prefer to remain a small community. However we have no choice or authority to limit expansion or population growth. Heyburn therefore has a responsibility to plan for and economically meet continuing growth. A case could be made that economic freedom depends on energy freedom. But in 1976 freedom to use energy productively is seriously threatened. Almost three years after the oil embargo, we lack a comprehensive energy policy. We remain dependent on foreign oil. Natural gas reserves diminish. Restrictions on mining and burning of coal keep it from compensating for the shortages of other fuels. Uncertainty about energy delays industrial expansion and unduly depresses housing starts. Economic recovery may be imperiled.

Berry's World
Excuse me, miss, but I must let you this. Those new fancy pants are DEFINITELY you!

correctly placed. Bonneville Power Administration (BPA) had periodically advised its customers of a documented forecast of an insufficiency of energy that would occur in the Pacific-Northwest in the 1980s. As a result Heyburn and over 100 small, medium and large cities, cooperatives, public utility districts, irrigation districts, investor-owned utilities and others joined WPSS to plan, finance, construct and operate power generating facilities to supplement the insufficiency of the BPA hydro-generation in the 1980s. The plants are not federally funded, but will be owned by the users. The concept is not new as it is being done nationwide on a regional basis. The contract alluded to obligates the WPSS participants to pay for energy only as it is consumed. The adverse cost of paying for a non-productive plant could come about if opponents are successful in their attempts to block construction, delay completion, or any other methods to keep the plants from coming on line. These are the very same arguments from power-granting laws that have caused significant construction delays and resultant significant cost escalation. As usual the consumer will absorb these needless costs. Those who oppose these plants or any needed facilities cause added costs and increased cost of energy. In my opinion they are short changing the future generations. Objections could cause a sad situation for young men and women just beginning family life if there were no power for their homes. No amount of blame on environmentalists, CASE, Sierra Club or others will lead a home or cook a meal. The $3.8 million questions had been asked. It is being asked, and will be asked again before a decision is made by the Heyburn City Council to sign the contract. Citizens are eagerly sought and sincerely appreciated at Heyburn. Many hours of research, evaluation, negotiation and concern have been involved in decisions of Heyburn's future power supply. CASE claims that the Heyburn's of the Northwest will be financing expansion of large cities and industry. Each participant of WPSS will contract for a specified amount in direct proportion to local needs. The availability of power for industrial growth actually stabilizes residential rates. We need to take heed of the recent drought in Yugoslavia which resulted in rotating seven-hour-a-day blackouts. Power crises are expected to be common there for the next couple of years. Consumption has overtaken construction of new generation. However, constant over-irrigation for this year even on assumption of normal river flows. Forecasts overlooked the weather and other natural occurrences and in February the Yugoslav power system was insufficient. Improvement is not expected until planners are determined not to repeat a mistake of a few years ago—1966 and early 1970s in underinvesting in power facilities. The Slovenians have calculated that for every one dollar decrease in the gross product of the power industry there is a 4.75 dollar drop in the gross product of the entire Slovenian economy. At the national government level, power development now ranks with food production, transportation, and communications as the top priority items for investment. As far as saying no one can predict Heyburn's power needs in the next 20 years, that prediction is actually a requirement of the federal government. The prediction (forecast) must be made on cut and dried, black and white, documented, and documented figures. Historically, Heyburn has consistently over-run, almost overran load growth projections of our government has stated that the U. S. should achieve energy independence. Critics say it can't be done. Their arguments appear almost as overblowing as those of the loyalists. This said a vast army could never stand off the British legions in 1776. But such arguments and opposition cannot deter us. The best present we could give our country, ourselves and future generations would be energy independence. To achieve it, we must deregulate nuclear gas, really get serious about conserving all forms of energy, speed construction of nuclear power plants, ease restrictions on mining and burning coal — our most abundant energy source. In the meantime, accelerate studies that be solar, geothermal, wind, tide or some form as yet undiscovered. All these fuel sources could be used in electrical form. What better year than 1976 to start achieving energy independence, and preserving economic independence.

Networks panic over possible ho-hum convention

WASHINGTON — Six months ago all the political experts predicted that the Democratic Convention held in New York in July would be a bloody battle and one of the most exciting events in presidential nominating history. At the same time we were told the Republican Convention held in Kansas City in August would be one big yawn as the Republicans went through the boring process of nominating their incumbent President Gerald Ford. Well, for the first time in history, the experts were wrong, and it now looks as if the Democratic Convention will be the big sleep and the Republican Convention will be the one that produces all the action and entertainment. This has put tremendous pressure on all of the networks who have the responsibility of making the Democratic Convention exciting for four days whether it is or not. This is what is actually going on now at the TV election centers in New York City. "All right, you guys, it looks like Carter has it in the bag and we've got four days of heaven to save time to fill. What do we do with it?" "We could have an interview with Hubert Humphrey explaining where his strategy went wrong."

audiences how peasant butter is made. "How long do you think it should run?" "We figure with commentary we could get a tight 90 minutes out of it. We could put David Brinkley on live at the farm and have John Chancellor ask him questions from New York about the peanut business." "Okay, film it. But what else can we do to hold the audience?" "I think we should have a unit covering Jerry Brown. It's possible even after Carter gets nominated that Brown will win the Democratic Convention should have a chance to decide on somebody else." "Good idea. But we still have two and a half days to fill. Let's come on with something that will grab the people." "What about doing all the nominating speeches for the Democratic candidates of the last 20 years? It would be a great treat with the Bicentennial. We could use actors for the early ones, and the real nominating speeches taken from old film." "That's a good idea. Get someone working on it. What else?" "What about highlights of last year's Super Bowl?"

What the Jell has that got to go with the Democratic Convention? "Nothing, but I just thought the TV audience might enjoy it more than listening to the platform committee report." "Now later to me. Anyone can put on an exciting political convention. But it takes real talent to put one on when the issue isn't in doubt. We've got to have some suspense in this thing. If you guys can't come up with something, I'll find somebody who can." "Why don't we start a 'Stop Jimmy Carter' movement?" "What do you mean 'we'?" "The networks. We could get Cronkite, Reagoner, Brinkley and Chancellor to form a committee and announce for the good of television they intend to stop Carter from getting the nomination." "And how do we do that?" "We don't cover the first ballot. If no one sees Carter get the nomination, we'll have a first ballot, and there will be a second ballot, and that could change the whole ball game." "By God, it might work! Get me Cronkite and Reagoner on the phone."

Carter now has 20 extra delegates

By LEWIS LORD
 United Press International
 A nationwide survey shows Jimmy Carter now has 20 more than the 1,565 national convention delegates he needs to win the Democratic presidential nomination on the first ballot.

The Carter bandwagon. Carter's decisive edge came in the counting of new supporters in West Virginia and Pennsylvania. The candidate, confident of victory, was vacationing at Sea Island, Ga. President Ford passed the 1,000-delegate mark in his quest for the 1,128 needed for the Republican nomination. The UPI count showed Ford with 1,009 delegates and Ronald Reagan with 892. There were 18 uncommitted delegates; and 238 still to be chosen. Ford and Reagan will be in Des Moines this weekend trying to line up delegates of the Iowa GOP convention. Republican delegates also are being chosen this weekend in Delaware and Washington State. The Democrats' platform committee, meeting in Washington, approved a party platform aimed at avoiding major conflicts with Carter's views. The 18 Connecticut delegates released by Rep. Morris Udall refused to come out for Carter. Instead they issued a statement urging the national convention to nominate Udall for vice president. Sen. Frank Church's Nebraska coordinator said his delegates in Nebraska also want Church's name placed in nomination for vice president. Ford, an Episcopalian, addressed the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention in Norfolk, Va., and recalled that Carter, a Southern Baptist lay leader, introduced him to a Southern Baptist breakfast in Dallas two years ago.

The man introducing me was very considerate, very generous in his remarks, and very friendly," said Ford. "I was introduced as a man with an open mind and a compassionate heart... and I would like to return that compliment today to the man who introduced me - Gov. Jimmy Carter." Ford told the Baptists that public officials have an obligation to set a good example for others to follow in both their public and private lives. A number of Baptist leaders had objected to Ford's being invited to address the convention while Carter was left off its agenda.

Job openings better than '75

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Job opportunities for this year's college graduates aren't as good as last year but better than had been feared, according to the College Placement Council. The council, a private organization which studies job prospects for college graduates, had predicted last November that hiring this year would be down 5 per cent from last year. But there was an unanticipated hiring surge during the spring, the council said Tuesday, and it now expects hiring to be down 2 per cent instead of 5 per cent. A sharp decline in government jobs was the biggest factor in the slump. The council said private employers reported an increase of nearly 10 per cent in hiring over last year but Civil Service hirings were down 24 per cent. Largest increases over last year were reported by automotive and mechanical equipment firms, followed by tire and rubber, food and beverage processing, electrical machinery and equipment, and merchandising services and research consulting, the survey said. Down from last year, along with government agencies, are jobs in petroleum, metals and nonprofit and educational institutions.

House Demos caucus over scandals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — As more sex scandal reports spread over Capitol Hill, House Democrats caucused today amid growing opposition from freshmen members to a leadership plan to delay a vote on stripping Rep. Wayne Hays of his major chairmanship. An undetermined number of the 75 first-term Democrats met Tuesday seeking a consensus on whether to push for a vote on removing Hays as chairman of the House Administration Committee or go along with a plan by Speaker Carl Albert to put off a decision for a week. The Ohio Democrat remained in an Ohio hospital after an overdose of sleeping pills, Albert said the caucus should not act on the chairmanship "until Mr. Hays is here to defend himself." Hays has recovered from the overdose but his doctors have advised him to rest for about three weeks. Asked if he would push for a vote next week, Albert said "I would hope we could dispose of it at that time." Freshmen Democrats, many of whom were concerned about reelection chances even before the sex scandal allegations, broke upon Congress, felt some disciplinary action was needed in the Hays case to improve Congress' image. Meanwhile, Sen. Harry Byrd Jr., an independent from Virginia, described as "totally false" publisher allegations that he had sex with a Virginia woman who claimed to have sought his help on a personal problem. Columnist Jack Anderson quoted the woman as saying she had gone to Byrd for help in locating her husband and had ended up submitting to Byrd's advances, both in his office and later at his apartment. Anderson did not identify the woman. Neither did Byrd, who handed reporters a copy of a letter he said he received from the woman last week. "The letter," published in the Gaithersburg, Md. said: "It has come to my attention that some prominent newspapermen might, in light of recent events in the news, attempt to print something about you and myself which might undermine your bid for reelection. Should this occur, I intend to unequivocally deny that I know you or ever met you personally. I hope that you will do the same and this will quell any rumors or other scandal-seeking for the sake of headlines. I am assured that the only reason I sought you out was my desperation with my situation and not to involve you in any sort of compromising situation." He closed with the words, "en revoir," but the signature was blocked out on the copy. Byrd's statement said his lawyers advised him he should not name the woman since Anderson had not. In Salt Lake City, Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah, won a delay in entering his plea to a charge of soliciting sex from two policemen posing as prostitutes. Howe's lawyers asked for a five-day postponement so they could consult with him. Howe is under pressure from his party and the public to withdraw as a candidate for reelection. The Cleveland Plain Dealer today reported Rep. Charles Vank, D-Ohio, has kept a 39-year-old woman once convicted of prostitution on his congressional payroll.

American spirit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lady Bird Johnson says the Bicentennial spirit has opened a "new era of challenge to Americans."

"I believe that thousands of Americans, from sea to shining sea, are trying and giving us what we have to do," said the widow of President Lyndon Johnson in a flag day ceremony in Congress Tuesday.

Default set aside

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A default judgment which awarded the Wayne Motorist Agency $193,000 from singer Wayne Newton was set aside Tuesday because the singer said he was never personally served with a copy of the complaint.

Court records showed the agency won a $193,000 judgment against Newton in New York in a suit over a contract dispute. The company later filed action in district court in Las Vegas in an attempt to collect the money and was awarded judgment by default.

Newton said in an affidavit he never tried an answer to the Nevada suit because he was not aware of it.

Nixon seeks flag display

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon is asking a federal court to allow a flag made by a former prisoner of war and presented to him in 1974 to be displayed in Philadelphia's July 4 parade.

The flag, fashioned from scraps of clothing and towels by Lt. Col. John Dramesi while a POW for six years in Hanoi, is being held with other materials Nixon received as President by the General Services Administration to assure that no Watergate-related evidence is destroyed.

Nixon's lawyers filed papers asking that Dramesi be allowed to have the flag so he can use it as the color guard in Philadelphia's Bicentennial parade.

Scott to China

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott plans to go to Peking next month to gain a first-hand report of the Chinese political situation for President Ford.

Scott's interest in China dates to the days before World War II when he worked as a lawyer in Philadelphia. Author of "The Golden Days of Chinese Art," Scott is reputed to have one of the best collections of Chinese art objects in the capital.

Princess to return

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Princess Grace of Monaco is returning to the movie industry — not before the cameras, but on the business side.

She will become a member of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox studios, board chairman Dennis Stanfill said Tuesday.

As Grace Kelly she won an Academy Award in 1955 for her role in "The Country Girl." She gave up acting when she married Prince Rainier of Monaco in 1956.

Leap halted

TACOMA, Wash. (UPI) — Cocktail waitress Julie Keltum, who said she was going to jump or dive 350 feet from the rail of the Tacoma Narrows Bridge in Puget Sound some 350 feet below, was intercepted by the law.

Police, state troopers and sheriff's deputies stepped in Tuesday and stopped her from her well-publicized leap, while a crowd of about 500 grained its disappointment.

She said the jump would be rescheduled at a later time, but that only one television station would be notified so that the leap can be recorded on film.

Vaccine program menaced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A proposed national immunization program to vaccinate all Americans against an expected outbreak of swine flu is threatened by insurance problems.

Parke-Davis, one of the drug companies producing vaccine for the mass inoculation said Tuesday its liability insurance is being canceled July 1, creating "an impossible situation."

The company appealed through its parent organization, the American Lambert Co. of Morris Plains, N.J., for government help.

The National Influenza Immunization Program involves late summer and early fall vaccinations for "protect most-Americans against a potential outbreak of a virulent form of flu."

Dr. Theodore Cooper, assistant secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, said his department plans to ask Congress for legislation "which would indemnify the companies against claims attributable to inoculation with the vaccine."

Such legislation would not indemnify companies against claims resulting from manufacturer negligence, he said.

"Our company is more than willing to produce the vaccine for the government program," Parke-Davis said in telegrams to President Ford, administration health officials and key lawmakers.

However, he was placed in an untenable position when we are requested to supply influenza vaccine to be used in a mass immunization program without any insurance coverage."

Drug industry representatives predicted in April that insurers might be reluctant, because of the risks of side effects, to continue coverage for the flu program.

Companies cannot take responsibility for any adverse reaction that might be associated with the flu vaccine, nor could they adequately inform users of the potential reactions to the shots, they said at the time.

Las Vegas 'magic' costly spell

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Las Vegas is one of the few cities where impulsive couples have the "magic" opportunity to dash out and get a marriage license at 3 a.m., and it's worth $15,000 to the city fathers to preserve the spell.

The Clark County commission debated a proposal Tuesday to save that, much by closing the county clerk's marriage license office, which is now open 24 hours a day, for eight hours each night.

Commissioner David Canter convoked the commissioners to keep the office open, arguing that "once you destroy the magic of Las Vegas being a 24-hour town it will have repercussions in the whole resort industry."

Judge's coin toss ruling rapped

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The Louisiana Judiciary Commission has recommended disciplinary action against a Baton Rouge city judge accused of ruling on cases by the flip of a coin.

The commission recommended actions such as censure and suspension in the Louisiana Supreme Court could take against Judge William Hawk Daniels, who cited him as "with misconduct, saying his actions were without illegal, immoral or evil intent."

"Dinner of the Week" a New Customer Service at Smith's

Carolya Dunn, Dinner of the Week Manager and Customer Advisor at the President Smith's Food King

To help you with your meal planning and shopping, this week we're printing our first "Dinner of the Week" menu. Your copy is free, and it's waiting for you at the Customer Service Centers at Smith's Food King.

The menu will be changed weekly, and each will feature a complete dinner - main course, salad, vegetable and dessert, etc. All the recipes are favorites of mine and all have been tested by our staff.

The "Dinner of the Week" will pay special attention to foods in season and economically priced at Smith's. We'll concentrate on basic, nourishing dishes that don't take forever to make, but will give you a good variety and good value.

As always, I'll welcome your suggestions: if you have a favorite dinner or single recipe, share it with us by calling me on the Red Phone.

On the back of the recipe, I've included special current market information on shopping and buying tips that I think you'll find helpful. Actually, it's a condensation of my former "marketing newsletter" so many of you have asked for.

The "Dinner of the Week" is another new feature at Smith's, because we really do want to be your favorite store.

your health

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 member of the family has pericarditis. There is very little about this in our medical books. Can you give me any information about it? — R. G.

It doesn't speak well for whatever medical book you're using. It's not an uncommon ailment. It's a "two-ply" covering over the heart. The word means "around the heart." There is a thin film of fluid between the two layers, and this helps "lubricate" the surfaces during heart movement. Pericarditis is an inflammation in this structure.

Causes are numerous. Rheumatic heart disease, virus diseases such as mumps, bacterial or fungus infections, heart attacks that affect the heart muscle itself and others.

The inflammation causes pain that can extend to the back, shoulders and abdomen. Breathing becomes painful, especially deep breathing. The liver can become affected, and there can be a buildup of body fluids, a puffiness.

Prompt treatment of the pericarditis is important because it can have fast-moving and widespread effects. Heart action itself can be impeded, especially if fluid builds up between those layers I mentioned. Eventually deposits can form and the pericardium may "sprinkle" to the point where heart action is hindered.

X-rays may reveal any scar formation or collection of fluids.

The problem often develops from a long-lasting virus infection.

Bedrest is essential. Antibiotics or steroid drugs (depending on the type of infecting organism involved) are usually effective. Fortunately the symptoms chiefly pain are so obvious that treatment is sought before the pericarditis becomes chronic.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 Are you familiar with double vision and its causes? I was told mine was from a very low thyroid. This is being corrected with synthroid to bring the thyroid up. How long will it take for my vision to get back to normal?

Important structure

My Ophthalmologist assures me there is nothing wrong with my eyes. — Mrs. E. M.

We don't usually think of double vision as a specific result of an underactive thyroid. The usual cause is head injury and poisonings, as from alcoholism. It can also occur with multiple sclerosis and meningitis (brain and nerve disturbances) or similar ailments. In these, muscles or nerves serving the eyeballs can be damaged, causing vision problems.

I assume your double vision is one of several other thyroid symptoms. An underactive thyroid would cause a general lessening of body functions. Blood circulation might, for example, be sluggish. This could affect muscles or nerves to the eyes.

The medicine you mention makes up for the deficiency of hormone production in the thyroid. Such drugs are prescribed cautiously with the dosage increased gradually until the right level is reached in the body. This would determine how quickly your vision problem will be cleared up, if that is your problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 Exactly how does caffeine work in the body to stimulate it? — A. M.

It acts on the central nervous system just like any stimulant does. Nerves, like some people, can be easily excited. Stimulants initiate a chemical process that makes the body's nerves more easily "excited."

We're not too certain just how it works. Nor are we entirely sure just how the depressant drugs (like alcohol) do their work, except that they make it harder to excite the nerves.

"Coffee jitters" means the caffeine has overstimulated the nerves of the body.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 We have an awful lot of lime in the water here. It builds up a sediment that stops the flow of water in the shower head. If it does this to the shower head what does it do to our bodies? — Mrs. E. C.

The human body, being a bit more efficient than indoor plumbing, does the sensible thing — gets rid of it. The body's absorption of calcium lime is calcium oxide is determined by the Vitamin D level. The rest is excreted in the stool.

Dr. Thosteson's "Dizzy Spells," discusses loss of balance, vertigo and nausea. Meniere's disease and labyrinthitis. For a copy write to him in care of this newspaper. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson invites reader mail that regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Now that summer is here, I notice so many teenagers driving much too fast and recklessly. Two years ago I clipped the enclosed editorial from our local newspaper and showed it to our teenage son and daughter, and after they read it they became two of the most sensible drivers alive.

Please print it, Abby. It may do the same for others. DAILY READER

DEAR READER: It's well worth an entire column. Who wrote it? And for which newspaper? I want to credit the author.

PLEASE GOD, I'M ONLY 17

The day I died was an ordinary school day. How I wish I had taken the bus! But I was too cool for the bus. I remember how I subbed the car out of Mom. "Special favor," I threw all my books in the locker. When the 2:50 bell rang, I piled all my books in the locker. I was free until 8:40 tomorrow night—free to the parking lot, excited at the thought of driving a car and being my own boss. Free!

Column for teens

It doesn't matter how the accident happened. I was goofing off—going to the gym. I was enjoying my freedom and having fun. The last thing I remember was passing an old lady who seemed to be going awfully slow. I heard the deafening crash and felt a terrific jolt. Glass and steel flew everywhere. My whole body seemed to be turning inside out. I heard my own scream.

Suddenly I awakened; it was very quiet. A police officer was standing over me. Then I saw a doctor. My body was mangled. I was saturated with blood. Pieces of jagged glass were sticking out all over. Strange that I couldn't feel anything.

"Hey, don't pull that sheet over my head. I can't be dead. I'm only 17. I've got a date tonight. I am supposed to grow up and have a wonderful life. I haven't lived yet—can't be dead."

Later I was placed in a drawer. My folks had to identify me. Why did they have to see me like this? Why did I have to look at Mom's eyes when she faced the most terrible ordeal of her life? Dad suddenly looked like an old man. He told the man in charge, "Yes, he is my son."

The funeral was a weird experience. I saw all my relatives and friends walk toward the casket. They passed by, one by one, and looked at me with the saddest eyes I've ever seen. Some of my buddies were crying. A few of the girls touched my hand and sobbed as they walked away.

Please, somebody, wake me up! Get me out of here. I can't bear to see my Mom and Dad so broken up. My grandparents are so racked with grief they can barely walk. My brother and sisters are like zombies. They move like robots. In a daze, everybody! No one can believe this. And I can't believe it either.

Please don't bury me! I'm not dead! I have a lot of living to do! I want to laugh and run again. I want to sing and dance. Please don't put me in the ground. I promise if you give me just one more chance, God, I'll be the most careful driver in the whole world. All I want is one more chance. Please, God, I'm only 17!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

To watch some rubber-bridge players in action you would think that the Declaration of Independence said that all men were created free and equal and entitled to play all nontump contracts.

South was one of those nontumpists. He knew that he played nontump contracts brilliantly. He also knew that the way to get to three nontump was to bid it.

South might well have opened the bidding with one club. If he had done that and heard hearts after North responded with either one or two diamonds, South would probably have wound up playing a nontump or diamond slam. A heart-or-spade lead would give him that contract.

With a diamond club lead he would have had to find the right line of play.

However, South passed his 12 high-card points when North opened the bidding he had to make sure to be the nontump bidder and decided to bid game.

North thought about going on but decided to pass. West opened the queen of spades and all South's genius played

Fashion fads 'spawn spin-offs'

By BARBARA VARRO
Chicago Sun-Times

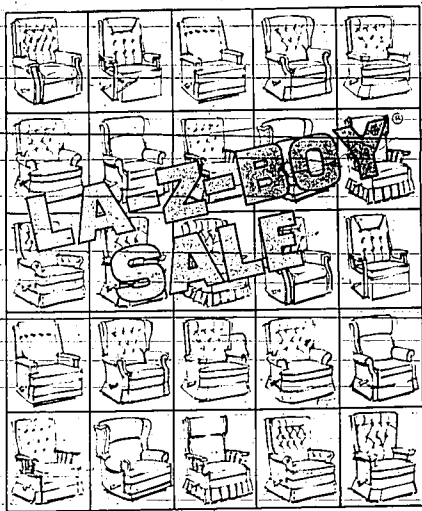

Fashion fads don't always fade away. They sometimes spawn spin-offs. The latest bit of nonsense is a T-shirt based on the concept of the mood ring.

The T-shirts, made in Chicago, are called Sensitivity-Tees. The lettering printed on the front of the shirts contain a nontoxic chemical that reacts to the body temperature and changes color. They spell things like "I'm in a couple of linked hearts or male and female symbols. The makers claim that the shirts have magical powers to reflect a person's mood. When you're relaxed and cool, the letters are gray. When you're warm and sensitive, they turn green, and when you're feeling romantic and turned on, they turn blue.

If you don't want to wear your feelings on your chest, you'd better skip the shirt.

Simplot fate in abeyance

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS— Officials of the New York Mercantile Exchange (NYME) still haven't decided how to penalize Jack Simplot for last month's massive default on potato futures contracts.

Simplot and P. J. Taggares have been held responsible for failure to deliver nearly 30 million pounds of Maine potatoes or buy up contracts for the potatoes on the Maine potato futures market.

The nearly $4.5 million default on the potato contracts is the largest breach of contract ever recorded on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Simplot and Taggares could be fined up to $100,000 for their failure to buy up the potato futures contracts or deliver the potatoes.

But no firm action against Simplot or Taggares has yet been taken either by the New York Mercantile Exchange or the federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission both of which are investigating the default.

Last Thursday and Friday, according to Robert Cornfeld, a spokesman for the exchange, the exchange held hearings on the default, trying to determine who actually negotiated on behalf of Simplot in the Maine potato market.

Yesterday, the NYME held a review of the settlement price of $10.66 per hundredweight set by the three-man Fair Market Committee Tuesday, June 8.

"Since it (the default) is an unprecedented situation, they (the board of governors of the exchange) want to proceed judiciously," Cornfeld said.

Meanwhile, two more class action suits have been filed against Simplot and others by William R. Buster, Jr., a New Jersey photographer record distributor who says he lost in "excess of $10,000" in the May Maine white futures as a result of the short sales that were not liquidated by the May 25 deadline.

The first suit by Buster accuses Simplot and Taggares of manipulating the market downwards by huge short sales and causing losses to many investors. Simplot's son-in-law, C. L. Otter and two Simplot companies are named as codefendants.

The suit also accuses the defendants of exceeding the lawful limit on the number of contracts a trader can hold.

The other action by Buster is against the New York Mercantile Exchange and three brokerage houses which handled short sales contracts.

This suit accuses the exchange and the brokerage houses of negligence and failure to regulate properly the trading in May Maine potato futures to the detriment of all traders.

Taxes not insurance

A story in Tuesday's Times-News concerning the possible annexation of the Twin Falls Labor Center said that "insurance costs" at the camp might rise by $2,000 if the camp is annexed. According to Labor Sponsoring Association President Lawrence Knigge taxes at the camp might rise, not insurance, in the case of annexation. Knigge had originally said taxes, not insurance. The Times-News regrets the error.

Camp annexation may lower rates

TWIN FALLS— Directors of the Twin Falls Labor Camp learned Tuesday if the camp is annexed into the city water and sewer rates would be lowered but taxes would be more heavy on the camp.

Twin Falls city manager Jean Millar told the association directors the good news and the bad news during the annual meeting of labor camp directors last night.

Members of the board took the matter under consideration and announced another meeting with city officials is planned within a few weeks to continue discussing annexation.

Millar said the labor camp would pay double water and sewer rates as a result of a resolution adopted in connection with the new sewage treatment facilities in the city.

The labor camp, consisting of about 35 acres, lies just south of the city and blocks continuity between the city and a number of urban developments including subdivisions served by city water and sewer.

"The city would like to annex these areas but would have to include the labor camp for continuity," Millar said.

He said labor association officials have indicated they plan to continue operating the camp as a migrant housing facility for the next several years at least.

In the meeting Tuesday night, he told the directors they would, if annexed, have to pay city taxes, but would gain a sizeable insurance rate reduction through improved fire protection. In addition water and sewer rates which will increase under the city policy would be reduced by about 30 percent.

The labor camp fees have been offered at the regular city rate in the past, but under the new sewer policy, all out of city service will be double the amounts charged within the city.

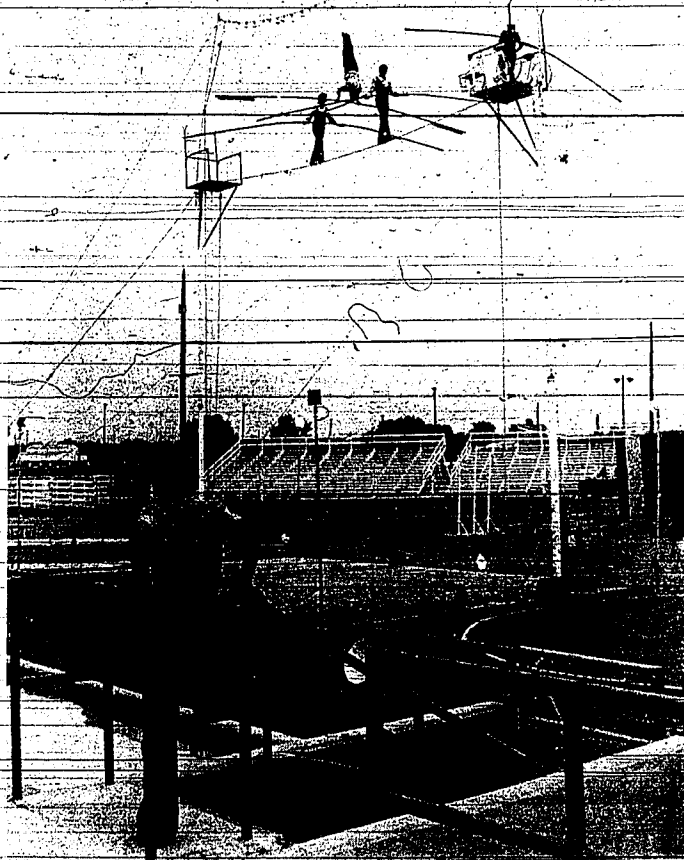

Millar said it will be up to the labor group to decide if it is to their advantage financially and otherwise to be part of the city.

Quick approval asked on aid

WASHINGTON— A call for quick approval of legislation to compensate the victims of the Teton Dam disaster was heard during the first Senate Subcommittee hearings today. Idaho's two U. S. Senators, Jim McClure and Frank Church, both members of the Senate Interior Committee, called for "quick approval" of legislation they have jointly introduced.

McClure, during opening statements said, "I think it is clear that no act of God created the destruction, no act of God took the toll of human lives, and no act of God caused the thousands of animals and people who were swept down through the Snake River Valley." The Republican Senator continued, "There is no question but that the Federal Government is directly responsible for the consequences of the dam failure."

The legislation would provide full compensation for loss of property, injuries and deaths as a result of the dam's failure. Similar legislation has been introduced by President Ford which would provide $300 million for flood relief.

City, homebuilders plan meeting

TWIN FALLS— Members of the City Council have been invited to meet tonight with members of the Twin Falls Homebuilders Association to go over the city's proposed developer's agreement.

The city council at its regular meeting June 7 tabled adoption of the proposed agreement to give the Homebuilders the chance to review and suggest changes in the document.

The agreement spells out conditions for the inspection and construction of streets, sewers, water lines, lights, sidewalks, and drainage and irrigation systems in subdivisions and other proposed housing developments.

The agreement basically requires developers to shoulder installation costs of these facilities except where the city determines that the facilities should be oversized to meet other non-development usage. In that event, the city agrees to pay the difference in cost between the normal facilities and those additionally required.

According to city manager Jean Millar the agreement "does not change any policies the city has had in effect for quite some time — it merely clarifies what the city already has."

Calling the agreement "a housekeeping measure" more than anything else, Millar said it would apply basically to the development of subdivisions or "single tract housing."

The agreement would not apply normally to in-city tracts where water and sewer installations have already been made, Millar added.

Dave Armstrong, president of the Home Builders Association, asked the council to give the Association an opportunity for review and input before the adoption of the agreement.

School aides okay budget

FILER— School trustees of District #13, Filer, have accepted the proposed budget for 1976-77.

A budget hearing held during Monday drew only one person who came to discuss the budget with board member Leo Gilchrist.

This year's budget is up approximately $53,000 from 1975-76. Most of the increase goes toward a ten per cent raise given all teachers in the district.

The board also increased the monthly health insurance payment for each teacher by $3 and now will pay $28 toward each employer's Red Cross health insurance.

Votes from the recent trustee election were counted and accepted. A total of 22 votes was cast in zone two with 21 of them for Everett Andrews, incumbent trustee, and one write-in vote.

Resignations read and accepted included Ken Mourer, Dorothy Morris, Sheila Webber, Dorcasia said BPA new is preparing notices on insufficiency of power and will deliver them to customers soon. He said the notices will state that, after July 1, 1983, BPA can no longer guarantee it will have the energy to provide for load growth by those customers.

He pointed out that all BPA new power projects have been delayed in construction at least 18 months.

Derksena said the new allocation formula would not basically change the present hydroelectric allocations received by preference customers.

Customers of June 20:25. He said the Public Power Council also is urging the agreements and only 45 preference customers still must sign the agreements.

Mediator to assist in Buhl

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

BUHL— Most teachers in Buhl still haven't returned contracts for the 1976-77 school year but the faculty has agreed to bring in a federal mediator to try to settle the two-month long dispute over contracts. School Supt. Dan Mabe said.

Buhl teachers originally wanted to bypass mediation and go direct to fact finding after declaring an impasse in negotiations last week.

However, the teachers and administration now jointly have requested a mediator be sent from the national service in an attempt to help reach an agreement prior to the opening of school this fall.

Contracts were mailed to teachers last week and Mabe said a few have already been returned although teachers have 10 days in which to return the contracts if they choose to do so.

In a meeting of the School Board Monday trustees discussed plans for a disciplinary policy committee for each school in the district.

The teachers requested the board establish such committees composed of principals, teachers and parents. Purpose of the committee would be to determine a disciplinary policy and help parents understand the need for authority in the classroom.

The board also discussed a proposed lease agreement with the city of Buhl for use of the old labor camp land adjacent to the elementary and high school property for a nature study area. No agreement was reached on leasing the property.

Vacancies were reported in the teaching staff in Buhl for a third grade and sixth grade position and a science and social science position in the junior high school.

Both of the junior high school positions will also require coaching of boys athletic classes. Mabe said a number of applications are on file with the district.

Mabe reported on the summer training programs. He said about 60 youngsters are enrolled in the summer education programs for elementary students. There are three classrooms covering basic studies such as reading, math, and spelling.

In the migrant summer program about 60 youngsters are attending summer classes. Mabe said a driver's education program will begin June 21 at 9 a.m. at the Buhl High school.

Mabe told the board the re-roofing of the old portion of the high school has been completed and accepted.

Decision expected on 'gifted' program

TWIN FALLS— The fate of an enrichment program for bright elementary school students will be decided tonight at a specially-called meeting of the Twin Falls school board.

The school board announced at a regular meeting last week they would give anxious parents a decision tonight.

The program for gifted students would have provided enrichment sessions in math, language skills and science to about 45 students selected as outstanding from fourth, fifth and sixth grade classes in the city's five elementary schools.

The program was originally approved by the board on April 20. It had received state approval and would have been funded almost entirely with state special education monies.

At a special meeting on May 18, the Twin Falls board reversed its earlier decision, however, and ordered the program cancelled for next year.

The making of this decision the board cited a tight budget and a desire not to start new programs while old programs were having to be cut back in some areas.

The scrapping of the program angered parents of gifted students who had already been selected for the program, and the parents began a campaign to get the school board to reverse itself a second time and again approve the program.

That campaign culminated last week in a sometimes heated meeting at which about 50 parents voiced arguments in favor of the program and presented board members with petitions containing more than 300 names in favor of the program.

After the meeting last week, the board announced tonight's meeting and promised a decision.

The meeting tonight will begin at 8 p.m. at school district headquarters, 201 Main Ave. West—Also on the agenda will be the announcement of new hirings by the board.

Power pact okayed

RUPERT— Bonneville Power Administration officials urged Rupert Tuesday night to sign a new energy-allocation agreement in the face of impending power shortages.

The council voted to sign the power allocation contract amendment.

Although not directly connected the allocation amendment is a forerunner to a pact for participation in construction of a new energy-allocation power pact in the State of Washington. The council set a meeting with Derksena on the participation agreement for July 6.

Martin Derksena, regional manager for BPA at Idaho Falls, urged the city council to agree to the new allocation formula for preference customers by June 20:25. He said the Public Power Council also is urging the agreements and only 45 preference customers still must sign the agreements.

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices opened lower Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 53-point point Tuesday, was off 0.81 point to 955.11 shortly after the opening. Declines led advanced issues, 194 to 178, among the 578 issues closing the day.

Turnover amounted to about 560,000 shares.

Profit taking and the Senate's oil company breakup bill were major factors as prices fell ground Tuesday for the first time in four sessions. Most observers, who anticipated the profit taking, were impressed with the way the market held up overall.

The Senate Judiciary Committee's 81-07 vote approving a bill to break up the nation's 18 largest oil companies took the steam out of the late afternoon rally attempt.

Seeks disclosure

PRESIDENT Ford will seek legislation requiring disclosure of payments by U.S. firms seeking to influence foreign transactions. With the President is Secretary of Commerce Elliot Richardson. (UPI)

Ford moves to restore trust

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford announced Tuesday he will move to restore trust in big business through legislation requiring American corporations to disclose payments to foreign officials "as a deterrent to bribery." Ford acted on recommendations of a cabinet level task force headed by Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, which was created last March 31 after congressional investigating committees found the Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and other big American businesses had bribed foreign officials in pursuit of contracts. The President also said he would ask America's major trading partners to move swiftly on a proposed international agreement on questionable corporate payments from abroad. He told reporters he hoped the proposed legislation would act "as a deterrent to bribery." Ford said the "vast majority" of American business firms are "honest and outstanding" but declared "unethical" corporations have harmed the business environment. "It is totally inconsistent with American values," he said in a statement. "It threatens to harm our foreign relations. It allowed to continue it could badly erode public and international confidence in American business and institutions." "Many citizens no longer trust big business," he said. Richardson said a law outlawing bribery of foreigners aboard by U.S. firms would be very hard to enforce and at present his violation of U.S. law for an American firm to pay a bribe overseas. However, under the proposed legislation, the firm would have to disclose the bribe or face a U.S. penalty. Once disclosed, the State Department would notify the country where the bribe was paid, Richardson said, noting most countries have laws against bribery. The secretary said the United States proposed March 5 at a U.N. economic conference in Lima, Peru, a treaty that would set up an international standard to police such foreign bribery by all countries. Richardson told a news briefing the action is aimed not only at bribery payments but also at payments involved in extortion, money given to political organizations and sums of such "sheer size" that they raise the question of where it goes and to whom.

Hearings held on payments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Testifying at the congressional hearings on legislation to provide full payment for damage done by the collapse of the Teton Dam, Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said it appears that a combination of the Senate and House versions will emerge. The hearings started Monday before the energy-research, water resource subcommittee of the Senate interior committee. Hansen said he expects the combined bill to provide full and early compensation with an early and substantial interim payment of 30 percent to prevent hardship on those who have complications arising at a satisfactory settlement.

Power users may help pay for losses

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The possibility was raised today that electric power users, throughout the Pacific Northwest might be called upon to help pay for lives and property lost when the Teton Dam collapsed. The possibility of higher electric rates and irrigation fees arose during Senate hearings by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, on the June 5 Idaho disaster that cost at least 10 lives and property damage estimated as high as $1 billion. The hearing focused on President Ford's emergency request for $200 million to help pay for losses and on legislation by Church and Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho, calling for "full compensation" out of the Treasury for all victims of the disaster. Deputy Assistant Attorney General Irving Jaffe testified that the Bureau of Reclamation already has authority under existing law to pay claims for loss of life and private property but that such costs are "nonreimbursable." Under federal reclamation law, "nonreimbursable" costs must be repaid out of revenues from the sale of irrigation water, and power produced at government dams. In response to questioning by Church, Jaffe said the law had not contemplated "a disaster of this magnitude" but that Ford's request included a provision that money paid out for damages would not have to be repaid. Church pointed out, however, that such a provision in an appropriations bill could be challenged and that separate legislation would be needed to make certain the payment of private claims would be "nonreimbursable." The Idaho Democrat said it was "very critical" that both the supplemental appropriations bill requested by Ford and his and McClure's bill calling for full compensation be passed. "The President's appropriations request is just a start," Church said after noting that estimates of losses due to the collapse of the $55 million dam ranged from $500 million to $1 billion. Reclamation Commissioner Gilbert Stamm said in an interview that failure to pass legislation making payments not repayable would eventually force an increase in the electric rates charged by the Bonneville Power Administration, the federal agency that sells power produced at government dams in the Pacific Northwest. He said reimbursable costs would first have to be charged against the Teton project itself and then against revenues of the BPA. In his testimony before the committee, Stamm noted that the President's request proposed a "nonreimbursable" appropriation. However, he said he was "not in a position" to comment on the Church-McClure bill. None of the federal officials appearing before the Senate panel supported the Church-McClure bill. Jaffe said "I believe we need legislation" but said the President's request for a supplementary appropriation would provide the authority to make payment of claims "nonreimbursable." Acting Administrator William E. Crockett of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration also told the committee that his agency lacks authority to pay for losses to private property. "We do not have such authority," Mr. Chairman Crockett said in response to a direct question by Church. Both Church and McClure expressed concern that efforts to compensate those who suffered losses as a result of the dam's collapse might get bogged down in legal technicalities. The disaster, McClure said, was "no act of God" but the responsibility of the federal government. "These people are not victims of a natural disaster, but of a government structure that failed," McClure said.

Com Key. Because a business phone should solve problems, not create them.

Every office has its own set of problems. Some of them are directly related to its phone system. For example, many offices waste valuable time setting up conference calls through an outside operator. Or maybe the problem is as simple as outgrowing an existing phone system. Now there's a phone system that not only solves these problems, but many others that continually plague businesses. Com Key. It's available only through Mountain Bell. It allows you to set up conference calls with as many as five other people without going through an outside operator. And because it's extremely versatile it can easily be tied into a larger phone system. In fact, you'll find features that may be optional on other phone systems standard on Com Key. Minico panel fails to take dam stand REPURT—An opponent of the American Falls replacement dam panel failed Monday to get Minidoka County Commissioners to take a stand.

John McGill, a farmer in Cassia and Minidoka counties, appeared at the commissioner meeting Monday and asked the board to take a formal position opposing construction of the replacement dam.

Commissioners took no action. Commissioner Elmer Ketterling said he had voted against the project personally, "because I didn't think we ought to give up our water rights to the power company."

Under the joint project, Idaho Power Co. obtains falling water rights at the new dam in return for paying more than $19 million toward construction.

Ketterling cast his vote against the dam replacement last week when the board voted against the project. The MID failed in a decision to obtain the two-thirds majority necessary to approve a bond repayment contract. Burley Irrigation District rejected its contract overwhelmingly.

The MID board of directors last week voted to call a new election July 22 on whether or not to sign the repayment contract. On the same ballot will be a proposal to allow MID to incur debt in paying the share of the replacement dam costs.

The new MID vote will come before a court decision on confirmation of elections in those districts that have approved the repayment contracts.

FID District Judge Tison Ward has set July 20 as the deadline for filings from anyone wishing to contest a vote.

MID chairman William Nichols said Monday that points raised by the bursting of the Teton Dam 10 days ago will be presented before MID waterusers during meetings before the election.

Nichols said that member Ruben Ketterling pointed out that the existing American Falls Dam did not break when the floodwaters from the Teton River reached American Falls Reservoir. The water level did move up about 1 1/2 feet, reaching into the top third of the dam which is restricted from use because of deterioration in the concrete of the dam.

Nichols also said the dam will have earthen sides, as did the Teton Dam. He said it will be difficult to convince farmers of the replacement dam's safety since the same type of construction is being used.

The MID chairman said waterusers also are concerned about the federal government's lack of financial responsibility for any breach. He and Ketterling said the government or the engineers should be responsible.

Nichols voiced fear that the financial responsibility for any flood damages caused by a dam break would fall upon the stockholders (and their waterusers) participating in the dam construction project.

Work toward construction of the replacement dam already has been started by Gordon H. Ball, Inc., of Danville, Calif. Doug Baker Sr., of Danville is the construction manager and has opened an office in American Falls. Baker has 20 years of experience in dam construction and has worked on about five Bureau of Reclamation dam projects, including the recently completed Auburn Dam in California.

All-night pursuit results in arrest

By CHARLOTTE BELL Times-News writer

JEROME—An all-night chase by area law enforcement officers through the desert—and Snake River Canyon—has resulted in the arrest of John William Lenter.

Allan John Wiseman and John Doe, Lenter was arraigned Monday afternoon before Magistrate Russel C. Shaud on two felony counts. Lenter has been charged with first-degree burglary and grand larceny. He has asked for the assistance of the public defender—which was granted after efforts by Shaud to find out where Lenter was from failed.

Lenter when first arrested refused to give his name, age or any information about himself. According to Etza Hall, Jerome County sheriff, it is believed Lenter threw all of his identification papers in the Snake River during the chase.

Because of Lenter's refusal to speak he was subsequently booked as John Doe. Later, officers came to suspect his name was John Wiseman. According to Hall, the suspect Monday morning said his name was John William Lenter but refused to provide any more information.

Lenter told Shaud his name and said his age was 27 but he refused to reveal any more about himself until he had seen an attorney.

He has requested a preliminary hearing. Shaud placed him on $10,000 bond.

According to police reports the grand larceny—charge against Lenter stems from a charge that Lenter allegedly drove and removed a vehicle belonging to a Jerome resident, Charles Andrus.

The first degree burglary charge stems from an alleged break-in at the Blue Lakes Country Club.

Jerome County deputy sheriff Larry Webb was traveling along Idaho 79 near the Perrine bridge at about 3:20 a.m. Sunday morning when, according to Webb, he spotted a pickup traveling without tail lights. Webb said he turned his patrol vehicle around to pursue the pickup and coming upon the vehicle found it in the ditch by the Blue Lakes Country Club road with the lights on, motor running and the door on the driver's side open.

Hall was subsequently called to the scene, and a search was started for Lenter. Assisting in the search were Jerome City police and Twin Falls city and county deputies.

According to Hall, Lenter was spotted at about 4:30 a.m. at an amusement park on U. S. 93 but he fled on foot by the time sheriff deputies arrived.

CAA lacks funds to aid Minidoka

REPURT—Community Action Agency (CAA) officials told Minidoka County commissioners Monday that the agency will no longer provide help to Minidoka County residents.

CAA has provided emergency food aid, in some instances even food stamp money to residents. In addition, Minidoka County officials have referred residents to the agency in the past.

Mrs. Betty Samuelson of Burley's CAA office said Monday that the agency only is funded to provide emergency food in three counties: Cassia, Twin Falls and Jerome.

About 10 years ago, Minidoka County officials rejected a proposal for a CAA office, and officials have not changed that position since.

Mrs. Samuelson said emergency food funds are for people claiming an immediate emergency and the need not be verified. She said money for food stamps can be given in such cases as a major medical bill in a particular month.

She said the law has been changing Minidoka County residents until a recent heavy demand hit the agency from both area residents and migrants. When her "cash rate" ran high, she was told Minidoka County is not eligible for the service.

Mrs. Samuelson said she feels "frustrated" about refusing people that cross the county line because "they're just as hungry as the rest." But she said Cassia County does not receive a large enough allocation to spend it on non-residents.

She said other CAA programs are available for the entire eight counties in the Magic Valley.

She said emphasis has been placed on helping senior citizens with storm windows and insulation for their houses in the hope they will then have more money to spend on food.

In Twin Falls County, CAA has constructed greenhouses attached to houses, hoping to show that greenhouses will heat the houses and allow growing winter vegetables.

Mrs. Samuelson said at least one is planned in Minidoka County.

Terrorists hit school

MANILA, Philippines (UPI)—Moslem terrorists hurled two grenades into a southern Philippines school run by American missionaries Monday, killing at least four persons and wounding 33 others, military sources said.

The sources said the terrorists struck at midmorning on the first day of school this year, lobbing a grenade inside two classrooms at Notre Dame College outside Catabato City.

SAM Gordon says he suffers from a disease called "Americana" and because of this he was "ticked pink" to put up $44,000 to buy a stagecoach built in 1860. Stagecoach bought for private museum

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sam Gordon says he suffers from a disease called Americana, and because of it he was ticked pink to put up $44,000 to buy a stagecoach built in 1860.

The eight-foot carriage was one of 1,200 items of memorabilia of the defunct Railway Express Agency auctioned Monday at Butterfield and Butterfield.

"It's beautiful. It's so original," Gordon said after submitting the winning bid. "It looks like you turned the clock back. It hasn't been messed with."

"I just love Americana."

Gordon said he would place the stagecoach in a museum he maintains at his restaurant between Sacramento and Lake Tahoe.

"Americana," he said, "is a disease with me. My house is even laid out like that. I can't help myself."

The restaurateur didn't win easily at the auction. Wells Fargo Bank went all the way to $35,000 in its efforts to land the stagecoach. And a man from Atlanta, Ga., bid $43,000.

"I'm glad we stopped where we did," Gordon said.

To show he had no hard feelings against the gentleman from the South he told him, "Maybe one of these days I'll sell it to you."

Gordon said he just loves America.

"Remember in 1961? I paid $5,000 for a ball that Roger Maris of the New York Yankee sluggers hit in the bleachers," he said. "A little Italian boy caught the ball, and I paid him $5,000."

He said his restaurant museum has several old horse-drawn vehicles which he purchased from movie studios in Hollywood. He said he even bought a horse-drawn fire engine which had been used by the New York City Fire Department.

Butterfield and Butterfield spokesman Andrew Johnson said the $100,000 auction collection came from REA's offices in Chicago and New York City. He said the stagecoach itself recently had been brought here from the Hawthorne Museum in Chicago.

The auction also brought a winning bid of $1,600 for a scale model of a Wells Fargo and Co. Overland Stage, and an American Railway Express surrey went for $3,000.

Medical program phaseout may leave gaps in service

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — Phasing out of the Mountain States Regional Medical Program this summer may leave some voids in people services in Magic Valley, Dr. John W. Gerdes, regional director of the program, says.

For the past two years the Mountain States Regional—Medical Program (MSRMP) has provided funds for local projects in medical services in Idaho, Montana, Wyoming and Nevada. In that time $16 million has been spent in the four-state area.

James Rosenbaum, Magic Valley Memorial Hospital administrator, said the hospital here benefited by the program as it helped establish the neonatal intensive care unit to treat critically ill newborn infants. MSRMP funds provided specialized training for personnel to staff the unit, Rosenbaum said.

Anticipating the program was to be phased out in 1976, Rosenbaum said, Magic Valley Memorial handled the unit program once it was established.

"The MSRMP is one of several health programs being phased out under the National Health Resources and Development act of 1973. This act combines the functions of the nation's 53 regional medical programs, the Comprehensive Health Planning Agencies and Hill Burton programs into the Health Systems Agency."

Rosenbaum said it will probably take some time to fully organize the Health Systems Agency in Idaho and a number of the Regional Medical Program services will be lost during the interim.

Dr. Gerdes estimated a year or more before HSA is ready to function in Idaho. "Unfortunately during the start up period there will be little if any money available to continue health systems developed under RMP."

Dr. Gerdes said Magic Valley Memorial was one of five Idaho hospitals and 11 in the region receiving special training funds for neonatal intensive care personnel. About 2,500 infants received care in these intensive care units in Idaho since they opened.

Only one project, the Mountain States Tumor Institute in Boise, received help from the MSRMP for more than three consecutive years. The tumor institute received about $900,000 in four years.

Residents of Magic Valley who suffer heart attacks or traffic accident injuries also benefit from services backed by MSRMP. In a three year period $179,335 went into the state's emergency Medical Service Bureau.

Money was used to develop the Emergency Medical Services plan and to train emergency technicians, trauma nurses, quick response units and others to implement the program.

Dr. Gerdes said many of the projects selected by advisory council members were used to improve services in rural communities of the four states.

Nurse practitioners to serve in rural communities and assist physicians provide primary care were trained through the MSRMP program. Ethouise Gebauer, Twin Falls, is one of 19 such nurses trained in Idaho.

Other programs offered included the hypertension and breast cancer screening and educational clinics held throughout the state. More than 2,500 Magic Valley residents received free blood pressure checks and 14,000 Idahoans received blood pressure exams.

Twin Falls was one of seven communities in Idaho holding breast cancer clinics through MSRMP and the American Cancer Society. More than 1,187 women were screened in the clinics and 56 of these were referred to their physicians for further examination.

US debt ceiling up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The national debt is once again raising the roof. The House voted 184 to 47 Monday to increase the ceiling to $700 billion in three stages through Sept. 30, 1977. The bill now goes to the Senate. The current $627 billion ceiling expires June 30.

Queen Elizabeth confers honor on Harold Wilson

WINDSOR, England (UPI) — With a clasp of a jeweled garter, Queen Elizabeth invested former Prime Minister Harold Wilson into Britain's noblest order of chivalry in a ceremony reminiscent of 600-year-old courtly traditions.

The queen conferred the honor of the Most Noble Order of the Garter upon Wilson at Windsor Castle Monday when she slipped the garter just below his left knee.

The former Labor-party leader, who resigned the premiership in March, thus joined the exclusive ranks of some 900 other knights who have held the honor since 1348.

The origins of Europe's oldest chivalrous order are obscure. One story has it the tradition began when King Edward III stooped to retrieve the countess of Salisbury's garter during a royal ball, with the words: "Honi soit qui mal y pense." ("Shame be upon him who thinks evil of it.")

But the exclusivity of the order is no doubt. Sir Winston Churchill was a member, as was Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery. The order is limited to 26 members at any one time.

The installation service at St. George's Chapel that followed the investiture reflected the pagantry of the 14th century royal court.

Wilson, dressed in a blue velvet cloak and a velvet tricorne hat adorned with an ostrich plume, marched in procession in the shadow of the castle's walls.

Black and white pepper come from the same red berry that grows in clusters on a perennial climbing vine. For black pepper, the berry is picked before it is fully ripe. The resulting dried berry is the familiar little black peppercorn, which is black outside and white inside. White pepper is the matured berry with its outer husk removed.

Foreman stops Frazier on fifth-round TKO

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — George Foreman unleashed a furious fusillade of punches to knock Joe Frazier down twice and score a technical knockout at 2:26 of the fifth round Tuesday night in his scheduled 12-rounder.

Frazier, who entered the ring with his head shaved as a psychological ploy, had held his own until the fifth round, bobbing and weaving and using the ropes in an attempt to make Foreman fight himself weary.

Suddenly in the fifth round, Foreman landed a right uppercut, then proceeded to hammer away at a defenseless Frazier for at least a half minute before scoring a knockdown with a short right hand.

Frazier was up almost immediately, but appeared dazed. Foreman, sensing the kill, charged across the ring from a neutral corner and once more began to hammer away. Frazier went down seconds later for an eight count and his handler.

Eddie Futch, rushed across the outside of the ring apron to tell referee Harold Valton to stop the fight.

The loss for Frazier almost certainly marks the end of one of contemporary boxing's most faltered careers. The last sentence of the last chapter of Frazier's ring career will not do justice to his performance as he sought revenge against the man who gave him a savage beating in taking his heavyweight championship 3 1/2 years ago at Kingston, Jamaica.

The fashion in which the 27-year-old Foreman raised his record to 42 and 4, with 39 knockouts, should silence the majority of his critics and should prove conclusively he's ready for a shot at regaining the heavyweight title lost to Muhammad Ali in Zaire.

Foreman displayed fine defensive ability, catching many of Frazier's blows on his arms, and showed he can take a good punch. This was the first time Foreman had won impressively since losing the title in 1973 and his performance undoubtedly earned him serious consideration for a rematch with Ali, provided the champion defeats Ken Norton in his next title defense.

Frazier, who moved backwards for the first time in his career in carrying out his battle plan almost to perfection during the first four rounds, countered with left hooks over Foreman's right uppercuts before reverting to his natural instincts in fifth and paying the price.

Foreman, criticized for "luring himself out" with his freewheeling against Ali and Tom Layle, maintained his composure and picked his spots. He talked to Frazier, showing no signs of the shattered ego believed to be the result of his loss to Ali.

Frazier weighed the heaviest of his career at 224 1/2 pounds, the same weight as Foreman. His record fell to 34-4. Frazier never had Foreman in trouble, although he won the second round when he landed a half dozen left hooks.

And Valan never warned Foreman for pushing, something Futch had complained happened in Frazier's first fight with Foreman. Foreman was warned for cuffing in the third round.

With a crowd estimated at more than 10,000 chanting "Let George Joe," Foreman took command in the third round when he landed a left-right combination as Frazier tried to make him arm weary by lying on the ropes as Ali had done so successfully in Zaire.

Foreman opened a cut under Frazier's right nostril in the fourth round, then began to measure his punches and they began to land with greater frequency.

Each fighter was guaranteed $1 million plus 35 per cent of agreed upon rights, making the fight the richest non-title bout in history. The fight was shown on closed circuit television.

Finley sells Blue, Rudi, Fingers for million each

OAKLAND (UPI) — Flamboyant Charles O. Finley, in the most spectacular series of deals of major league baseball history, Tuesday night stripped his three-time world champion Oakland A's of superstar Joe Rudi, Rollie Fingers and Vida Blue in two separate straight-cash deals involving a total of $3 million.

In the first startling announcement of the evening, Finley sent Rudi and Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each. He then announced that Blue, a three-time 20-game winner and the Cy Young Award winner in 1971, had been sold to the New York Yankees, also for $1 million.

The deals virtually completed the dismantling of Finley's championship teams of 1972-73-74 as he previously had sent Reggie Jackson and Ken Holtzman to the Baltimore Orioles in a blockbuster trade prior to the start of the season.

All five Oakland superstars had not signed contracts for 1976 and were scheduled to become free agents at the conclusion of this season. It was for this reason that Finley chose to unload them.

"I just refuse to let these athletes drive me into bankruptcy with their astronomical, unjustified salary demands," said Finley in his Chicago office. "I'm disappointed over the necessity of having to make these sales today."

Asked if he had any more trades in the works, Finley said "the night is young."

It was the most spectacular dismantling of a championship club since Connie Mack broke up his 1929-31 Philadelphia A's teams. Despite winning, Mack gave up superstars Jimmie Foxx, Left Grove, Al Simmons, George Walberg and Max Bishop in separate deals because the club still wasn't drawing at the gate.

Finley, characterized by his hard-boiled attitude toward player salary demands, said: "There was a lot of sweat, a lot of blood and a lot of sacrifice put into this balletic. Yet, five ballplayers of mine had an agent by the name of Jerry Kapstein who kept me in the dark continuously."

Kapstein is the business adviser for Rudi, Fingers, Bert Campaneris, Gene Tenace and Don Baylor, who came over to the Jackson trade with Baltimore.

Finley complained repeatedly that Kapstein had conducted all negotiations over the longdistance phone instead of coming to see him. Kapstein, who makes his office in Springfield, Va., said repeatedly that he was willing to meet Finley, but no meeting date was ever set by the Oakland owner.

With five of his top stars gone now, Finley obviously faces a much tougher job ahead. That didn't seem to worry him.

However, "We will rebuild," he said, "and fast!"

Meanwhile, in Boston, Red Sox manager Darrell Johnson, apparently unaware of the Yankees acquisition of Blue, smiled and said, "we'll run New York down pretty soon and have some fun this summer."

"We are talking about one of the premier, if not the premier pitcher in the American League, in the last few years," he said in reference to Fingers. Adding in regard to Rudi, he said: "We're talking about one of the best players in the American League."

"Certainly the first Red Sox are dang happy to have both of them on the club."

"It's the best thing that could happen to me," said Blue, when informed of the sale. "The Yankees are a first-class organization and they are in first place. It will be a relief to be able to go out and do my job without having to worry about Charlie Finley."

Blue, who like Rudi and Fingers had not signed a contract for the 1976 season with the A's and would become a free agent at the conclusion of the season, won the American League's Cy Young and Most Valuable Player awards in his rookie season in 1971 when he was 23rd with a .322 earned run average and 30 strikeouts.

After a salary dispute with Finley the next spring, he completed only a 6-10 record after joining the team late.

The following year he again won 20 games. He became a 20-game winner for the third time last year when he was 22-11 with a .01 era.

Blue was the starting pitcher and pitched five innings in a game late last season as four Oakland pitchers combined for a no-hitter.

Rudi and Fingers had bittersweet reactions to the deals. "I'm both happy and sad about this deal," said Rudi. "I'm happy that I'm going to a good club and sad because I'm leaving the A's."

Fingers, one of baseball's premier relievers who was experiencing one of his poorest seasons, was more philosophical about the startling deal. "It didn't make any difference to me where I played," he said. "I just want to play ball. I don't care about money. I want to play ball with one of the best teams in baseball history these last few years with the A's."

A's captain Sal Bando, who also is unsigned, said: "We can't win without Rudi, Fingers and Blue. With them gone, we'll be battling the Angels for last place in the American League West."

Kippes' grand slammer points Buhl Legion past Lewis-Clark

BUHL — Joe Kippes' first-inning grand slam home-pointed the Buhl Legion past the Lewis and Clark Cubs 9-6 Tuesday night.

Kippes' blow settled things as Buhl's Chuck Stoddard kept Lewis-Clark in control until raining into wildness problems in the seventh inning. Rick Davis nailed it down.

The teams met in a doubleheader Wednesday night at Buhl, the host team sending its first-year men into the opening contest with the nightcap entry being the usual starting lineup.

Buhl took advantage of its hitting to pile up the runs as Lewis-Clark pitching accounted for 13 of the 18 runs or strikeouts.

Allyn Reynolds opened the game by living on an error on the bases because loaded when Terry Clayton singled and Stoddard bled.

Donnie Chandler's single scored one run before

Kippes lofted his grand slammer over the left-field wall.

Lewis-Clark bounced back as Mike Rafferty, who accounted for all three visitor hits, doubled and came around on an error and wild pitch.

Buhl nullified that in the third when Chris Bell singled and scored on Kippes' two-bagger and an inning later Terry Clayton's sacrifice fly plated singling Brian Crawford.

A pair of errors set up an unusual two-run sacrifice fly by Clayton in the sixth. Lewis-Clark's outfielder fell down after making the catch and both Reynolds and Brad Hellwig scored.

In the seventh inning, three walks, an error and another walk gave Lewis-Clark two runs and brought in Davis. Rafferty lined a two-run single to right field but Davis then closed out the win.

NY gets Holtzman in late trade

CHICAGO (UPI) — The New York Yankees acquired unsigned Baltimore pitcher Ken Holtzman and Doyle Alexander and sent unsigned catcher Rick Dempsey to the Orioles in a 10-player deal.

Holtzman, acquired by the Orioles earlier in the season along with Reggie Jackson from Oakland and dealt to the Kansas City Saturday in a trade that fell through when he refused to sign a Royals' contract, went to the Yankees along with Alexander, reliever Grant Jackson and catcher Elrod Hendricks.

Going to Baltimore was Dempsey, the Yankees No. 2 catcher. Seattle's pitcher Rudy May and Tippy Martinez, right-hander Dave Pagan and minor league pitcher Scott MacGregor, The Orioles also sent pitcher Jim Freeman to the Yankees' Syracuse farm club.

Undhjem, Sorenson favored in Times-News Magic Valley meet

GOODING — Virginia Undhjem of Twin Falls and Sergene Sorenson of Burley are rated as the ones to watch Thursday when the annual Times-News Magic Valley women's golf tournament opens at the Gooding country club.

Mrs. Undhjem, who has dominated this tournament over the last 15 years, has been playing a lot and playing well this spring. And the same is true of Mrs. Sorenson, both are former champions.

Another former winner is Helen Spradling of Buhl who won in a good duet with Ardath Morgan of Jerome three years ago. The foursome usually includes Gussie Gussie, Dawn Ellis, who has not yet been able to put together two solid rounds in the Magic Valley although she has posted the best one-day score on several occasions. Penny Jones gives Rupert a contender.

The event is sponsored by the Times-News along with the women's association of the best golf course. This year the tournament corresponds with the opening of Gooding's elegant new clubhouse.

Competition each day will be preceded by a coffee and rolls type breakfast and the awards luncheon will conclude action Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Sorenson will be shooting for her second straight and third overall Magic Valley title. She claimed the 1975 title at the end of a torrid stretch—law-hor-claim-the-Gate-City-and-Bupper tournaments.

Her victory came despite a pinched nerve that cut down on her swing last year although she said inability to hit the ball farther was made up in part by hitting it straighter.

The top five finishers in that event were Mrs. Sorenson, Mrs. Undhjem, Mrs. Morgan, Mrs. Gussie and Mrs. Jones.

Frazier can smile about retiring

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—Beteen Joe Frazier, an ugly lump on the side of his right eye, was smiling nevertheless when he announced he was officially retiring from the ring.

"I think it's time to put the gloves up on the wall," he said, still managing a twinkle in his eye.

The ever popular Frazier announced his retirement a half hour after suffering a fifth round TKO by big George Foreman.

With a patch of tape over his right eye and a red welt on the right side of his freshly shaven head, Frazier beamed at Foreman for the second time.

"It didn't really go the way I wanted, but for five rounds you'll have to say George Foreman caught all the hell he'd want to take," Frazier, who lost his world heavyweight title to Foreman in their first fight in Kingston, Jamaica, 3 1/2 years ago, looked at the newsmen standing before him, thanked them for all they had written about him during his career and then talked about what he expected when he went back to see his wife tonight.

"Maybe when I get home I'll get the eviction notice," he said laughing some more. "I may have to put the gloves on the wall."

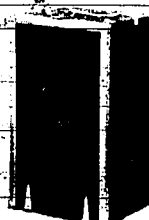

First he used the word "no." The more he talked the more positive he became that he did not wish to fight anymore.

"I think it's time to stop folks and let some of the young fellows show what they can do," he said. "I had my time and it was a lot of fun, but now I think I should let someone else show what he can do and I'll just go on my way and boogie, boogie, boogie."

Frazier remained in his dressing room for more than a half hour before emerging. One of those who was allowed in to see him was Weathers' 13-year-old daughter.

Foreman awaits shot at title

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI)—The countdown begins at 100 today for George Foreman.

That's how many days it will be until Foreman, who scored a fifth-round TKO over Joe Frazier Tuesday night, to establish himself as the top heavyweight contender.

Who he must pursue in a bid to regain the championship that was his a year and a half ago.

That's the day, Sept. 28, he will fight champion Muhammad Ali meets Ken Norton in a title defense with the winner certain to have Foreman knocking on his door for a second shot at the crown.

"In my mind," Foreman said after his battering of Frazier, "there's only one person fighting the champion No. 1 challenger. And that's me, George Foreman."

Foreman proved himself a top contender with a fifth-round flurry that knocked Frazier's mouthpiece flying into the first row. Then he knocked him down once with a left and then with a right and it was all over, stopped by referee Harold Valqui.

"I knew only one thing," Foreman explained. "I had to go after my opportunity. And I knew when it came I'd keep it going."

"It was a great fight for me. I was able to do all that I had done in eight weeks in the gym. No matter what he did, I had something for it."

Frazier shocked not only Foreman but a crowd in excess of 10,000 when he appeared in the ring with a shaven head. In the first round he dropped his gloves and challenged Foreman to hit him and reverted to two other All tricks, the "rope-a-dope" and a peek-a-bow crouch to frustrate Foreman in the second round.

"I knew after the first round there would be a little bit of everything in this fight," Foreman said.

"This fight was better than the first one. I had to use a different strategy. After the shaved head, and getting used to the idea this was a different Joe Frazier, I was ready to go to the body, wear him down with body punches."

"I've always been a strong finisher when I see a man down there's no stopping me."

It was the second victory for Foreman in 25 many tries against Frazier.

Kidd cops Thunder's main event

TWIN FALLS — Gaylen Kidd of Declo took the main event in the Thunder raceway main event over the weekend.

Kidd led Dean Jones and Duane Stephens across the line.

Earlier in the day, Jones posted a 25-03 for the fastest qualifying time but couldn't convert it into a win.

He was third in the last heat, won by Norm Jones with Kidd finishing second. "I'm slow here, Jim Rose was first, followed by Homer Giles and Stephens."

The trophy dash was taken by Gene Hamilton with Gary Munsinger second.

Dale Stone took the unwanted roll-over trophy.

First Federal eyes city slowpitch title

TWIN FALLS — Undefeated First Federal gets its chance to rattle down the city slowpitch championship Wednesday night at Hartman Park.

First Federal, which must lose twice, will await the challenge of either Beyster, Miller or Willis Motor.

Those two will play in the lower bracket semi-finals at 7 p.m. Wednesday with the survivor going against First Federal. If a third game is necessary to establish the champion, it will be played Wednesday evening.

HARRIED Joe Frazier retreats from the pressure of George Foreman during action Tuesday night. Foreman won a TKO in the fifth round to earn a heavyweight title shot. (UPI telephoto)

OAKLAND (UPI) — Gene Tenace's second home of the game, a lolly shot leading off the ninth inning, gave the Oakland A's a 3-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox Tuesday night, following the major deal between the two clubs.

Tenace hit a 3-pitch off of Red Sox pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, 57, for his 15th homer — five of them against Boston. All six have come in Tenace's last seven games. His first shot of the evening was a solo homer in the fifth.

Season ticket sales boom as Florida awaits new NBA club

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — Enthusiasm began to build and ticket sales appeared to be surging Tuesday with the news that the Buffalo Braves will probably move to the Sportatorium here next season.

The team has 6,000 telephone pledges for season tickets, but the first person to actually plunk down cash was Phil Yonke, a Fort Lauderdale dress shop owner, who handed over $4,788 for tickets for himself and 11 friends.

He was at Sportatorium offices when they opened at 8:45 a.m., but most prospective buyers did so by telephone and were told to mail in their ticket requests.

"The phones haven't stopped ringing since the switchboard opened this morning," Sportatorium Manager Bruce Johnson said.

Irwin Cowan, owner of the nearby Diplomat Hotel, was given an option to buy 10 percent of the Braves by owner Paul Snyder, but a lease agreement was completed with Sportatorium owners on Monday.

The sale is contingent on approval by the National Basketball Association Board

Astrodome has first rainout

HOUSTON (UPI) — Rain forced the first cancellation of a sporting event at the Astrodome's 11-year history Tuesday, and members of the regional baseball teams celebrated with a sit-down dinner on the infield.

"The (Pittsburgh) Pirates and the (Houston) Astros have put up banners on the infield and are sitting down for supper," a Dome spokesman said. "It's not exactly a rainout. It's a rain in. We're bone dry inside."

The game was cancelled after more than 70 inches of rain flooded Houston streets and freeways, preventing fans from driving to the huge concrete stadium.

"Probably less than 10 or 20 people got here. Just a handful of real diehards," the spokesman said.

He said streets leading to the stadium were flooded for more than two hours before scheduled game time.

The spokesman said the game would be made up on the Pirates next trip to Houston in mid-August.

Inventiveness pays off

HORN LAKE, Miss. (UPI) — Pat Hightower's high-voltage bills in two 40-foot wires in his yard and 16 storage batteries in his garage.

"I'd like to have the feeling that I don't have to rely on local power companies to provide comfort for my family," Hightower said.

So far, with an outlay of $800, he's cut his electric bill in half. He says he will have his neighbors' bills ranged from $50 to $150.

"The guy across the street wants to run an extension cord over here."

Hightower, an employee in nearby Memphis, just an ad in the El Paso Journal of Dodge City, Kan., last December offering to buy windelectric plants he says are increasingly inefficient for farm use.

"People hear what you're doing and they refer you to someone who has what you need," he said. "Everybody wants to help."

June 26 deadline for Albion's Miss Bicentennial entries

ALBION — The deadline for entries in the Miss Bicentennial contest for the Albion July 3 celebration is June 26.

Candidates must have been born in Cassia County, be between 16 and 19 years old and wear a costume depicting the nation's heritage. Miss Bicentennial will be chosen for her beauty, personality, and posture and will reign over the July 3 activities.

Entries will be accepted by Keith Amende, general chairman of the July 3 celebration, at Box 157, Albion, or by Pat Treadaway, chairman of entertainment for the festivities.

Judging will be at 8 a.m. on July 3, with the top four contestants riding in the parade at 10 a.m.

The final judging will be held during the general program at 11 a.m. in the city park and the winner announced there.

Parade entries may be sent to Amende. Among entries will be a National guard tank which will be parked at the celebration throughout the day for children to examine.

The National Guard also has offered its color guard and equipment for the parade.

A committee is planning reconstruction of Albion's trophy-winning territorial continental float for the parade. Parade chairman Sue Keller said a children's section will be included in the parade.

The old courthouse in Cassia's first county seat will be headquarters for the celebration, as well as for historical display and a first aid station. Kerma Olson is chairman of the display; those wanting to have items in the exhibit can contact her.

Amende has urged a residential yard cleanup before the celebration.

The Albion Chamber of Commerce is urging people to display the American flag for the occasion. Ralph Heller has flags with a counting kit which can be purchased.

Cassia County Commissioner Weldon Beck has donated a halter calf for a drawing to be held July 3. Proceeds of that effort will go to defray community expenses.

Contributions are being sought throughout the county. The Burley City Council made a cash donation of $300 toward the fireworks display, which is scheduled for 10 p.m.

Merchants return $2 bills to banks

By GLEN CARPENTER
United Press International

An Illinois banker believes the U.S. government laid a "golden egg" with the reintroduction of the $2 bill.

Others believe the $2 bill is a financial rotten egg.

O.L. Musgrave, president of the Bank of Marion, Ill., said many merchants returned the new notes the day after they got them.

"Mr. Olmon has laid a golden egg on this one," Musgrave said, referring to Treasury Secretary William French Smith.

"It's like coming out with a 75-cent piece."

A coast-to-coast survey by UPI shows that after a flurry of interest in $2 bills on their reintroduction in April, the public and merchants have not fully accepted them because...

Collectors hoard them. Some persons believe they are unlucky.

They are confused with $20 bills.

Most cash register drawers do not have a slot for $2 bills.

The government, which hoped to save millions of dollars over the printing of $1 bills, said 225 million bills were printed in April, but most have since disappeared.

A Federal Reserve Board official said there was no way to determine where the bills went — but speculated "they ended up in the pockets of collectors."

The first ones were a novelty, but that will wear off if we persist in printing them," he said.

There was an initial run on the bills in April. Many persons bought them and had them postmarked so they could be used as collector's items.

But Marlene Lineham, a teller at the main office of Central National Bank and Trust Co. of Des Moines, Iowa, said customers now are refusing to take $2 bills.

"People came in for bundles of them during the first week they were available; but not anymore," she said. "A lot of my customers just don't like them. And, grocery stores are turning them back into the bank with their deposits because they are afraid of a mixup while counting change."

Superstition plagued the old $2 bill and seems to be plaguing the new ones. Bank officials already are seeing tom corners.

According to "A Treasury of American Superstition," people tear the corners off $2 bills to ward off bad luck. The superstition, according to the book, may have had its origin with gamblers.

A $2 bill relates to a 2, the lowest card in the deck, often called a "deuce." The book says deuce is a word derived from the devil, meaning bad luck.

Although there were reports of acceptance of the bills in scattered parts of the nation, the survey showed the government still has a selling job to do.

The government intends to keep printing the $2 bills.

The Fed plans to have more than 400 million bills in circulation by the end of June and 800 million or more in circulation by 1979.

That's a lot of tom corners.

High cost

NEW YORK (UPI) — The average cost to hospitals, per patient, per day, rose to more than $40 during the first three quarters of 1978, says the Health Insurance Institute. This figure represents a 17 percent increase over the same period of 1974.

'Actualism' workshop planned June 19-20

TWIN FALLS — Ralph Metzner, Ph.D., clinical psychologist who worked with Timothy Leary on LSD research in the 1960's, will be in Twin Falls June 19 and 20 at the YMCA to give a workshop in actualism.

The school of actualism is based upon the principles formulated by Russell Paul Schofield and teaches the student to experience and actualize his untapped potentials for creative self-expression and communication.

In this weekend workshop, according to Metzner, the student will work with specific light-tire energy techniques and learn to channel the light in different situations.

Metzner is the author of Maps of Consciousness, editor of The Esoteric Adventure, and co-author of The Psychedelic Experience with Timothy Leary and of a translation of the Tibetan Book of the Dead with Leary and Richard Alpert.

The technique of light-tire is also known as Agni-Yoga in ancient India. It teaches the laying on of lighted hands for healing purposes, according to the informational brochure for the workshop.

The techniques of actualism also enhance personal creativity, and satisfying personal and family relationships, according to the brochure.

The workshop will be held at the YM-YWCA from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Saturday, June 19, and from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. Sunday, June 20. Tuition for the workshop will be $30 per person. Call Angie Arrien at 733-5285 for further information.

Twin Falls man charged with reckless driving

TWIN FALLS — John W. Bates, 20, Twin Falls, was charged with reckless driving early Saturday after allegedly leading a city police officer on a high speed chase.

City police reported they were attempting to stop the vehicle on a routine stop-suspension. Bates took off when Bates took off from the bridge, speed along Pole Line Road and onto Grand View and North Washington Street. Officers said the vehicle ran several stop signs during the chase and reached speeds of 110 miles per hour.

Bates was arrested as he drove into the driveway of North View Manor and walked from the vehicle.

TWIN FALLS — A man injured in a tree-trimming accident last month is seeking $1 million damages in a suit filed in Fifth Judicial District Court here.

from the neck down, with the exception of his arms and shoulders.

The couple charges negligence on the part of Nelson who was operating a tractor and attempting to pull a tree limb free. In addition to the $1 million, the complaint seeks medical and hospital expenses yet to be determined and $100,000 for Mrs. Wood for loss of consortium with her husband.

Super sleuth 'no joke now'

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (UPI)— One of the top detectives in rural Central Virginia has a barrel chest, a sensitive nose and four legs.

He's a slightly overweight bloodhound named Thurber. Since going to work at the Charlottesville-Albemarle County Joint Security Complex about a year ago, this super sleuth has helped recapture burglars, suspected murderers and escaped felons. He also found a lost child.

One suspect he stalked was so scared he literally ran out of his pants.

Thurber's abilities have earned him the respect of area law enforcement officers as well as the population of the 100-inmate facility, a few of whom he helped put there.

"The inmates don't seem to want to see him at all, and Sgt. David A. Wallace, dog shift commander at the jail, in fact, they seem to respect him."

His accomplishments have been described in the prison newspaper, "Bird Cage," and for a while a spoof column was run, along the lines of "Dear Abby," called "Ask Thurber."

Thurber arrived at the complex as a pup and was trained by a trusty, Sidney Keys, who says he has been in and out of jail much of his 50 years, mostly for petty larceny.

Keys, who keeps a running tally of Thurber's record, says the canine detective has helped find six wanted men; five wanted boys and one mentally retarded child.

For a while, Thurber's accomplishments went unacknowledged among state troopers, police and deputies who accompanied him on his missions.

"A lot of them tried to take credit for his work," Hall said. "They'd get the names in the paper while poor Thurber was just called a dog."

Recently, five juveniles broke into and robbed a country store in an adjoining Madison County.

Thurber was called in, sniffed around and within minutes picked up their scent. He led a band of law enforcement officers to a wooded area about a mile away where they found the young thieves.

An inmate who bolted from a rural road gang successfully eluded police until Thurber arrived and tracked him down 17 miles away, hiding out in a heavily wooded area.

"There was this one time, and this is no joke," Wallace said. "This guy wanted for robbing a convenience store was so scared by Thurber chasing him that he literally ran out of his pants."

Complaints fall on deaf ears

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city's 61 policemen are angry because of their uniforms' do little or nothing to enhance their female charms.

They have told Sgt. Bob Bernardini, secretary to the department's uniform committee, that they don't like the cap—it ruins their hairdo.

The troopers, they said, should have a little more. The Eisenhower jackets are unbecoming a lady, and the shoes should have a little lift in the heels.

Bernardini said Monday that most of the complaints have fallen on deaf ears because the current uniform is the safest for officers.

However, he said, the women may be allowed to leave their caps in their lockers.

Navy seeks amends for big bonus error

GROTON, Conn. (UPI)— The Navy says it paid Richard Gault a re-enlistment bonus of $3,700 in error two years ago and now Gault—unemployed and about to be married—must pay it back.

"The whole situation is ridiculous. It's their mistake, and now I'm being made to pay for it. I could hardly live on $18 a month," says the 37-year-old, unemployed, and I'm going to be married," Gault said Thursday.

When the payment was discovered in April, a month before Gault was discharged.

Gault has appealed the repayment and has the backing of the Rayburn's executive officer, S. M. Buescher, who has filed an endorsement of Gault's appeal.

His last few paychecks were garnished so the former petty officer took home $42 a week and repaid $1,000.

The balance of $2,700 won't have to be repaid until the issue is resolved, the Navy said.

Gault, a machinist mate second class, was discharged in May from the ballistic missile submarine USS Sam Rayburn. He received the money as a "variable re-enlistment bonus." Before his re-enlistment took effect in June, 1974, however, the bonuses were canceled.

Gem mint acreage increases

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's mint acreage is up 400 acres from last year, the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture reported today. The 9,300-acre total, 5,000 are peppermint and 4,300 are spearmint.

Peppermint acreage is down 200 acres and spearmint acreage is up by 600 acres from 1975.

Growth of both crops is well ahead of last year. Although stands appear about normal cool weather could present weed problems before harvest. On a national scale peppermint acreage for the 1976 harvest is estimated at 71,900 acres. The estimate is six per cent higher than the acres harvested in 1975. Spearmint growers expect to harvest 30,200 acres this year, up eight per cent from 1975.

Reason unknown for onion seed decline

By KEN HODGE Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — "The onion seed industry has been decreasing in production over the last 15 years, and no one knows why."

So says Merl Brown, soils scientist at the Snake River Conservation Research Center north of Kimberly, who with Dr. Jim Wright and Robert Kohl, has studied onion seed production under different conditions in recent years.

"We suspected that the onion umbels (flowers) may have been getting too hot," Wright said. "Our idea was to see if we could control the micro climate."

"We proposed that we could keep them cooler with sprinkler irrigation," Wright added.

According to Wright, the general feeling was that sprinkling would not work for growing onion seed because it would harm the umbels.

He said that some growers thought it would dilute the nectar in the flowers and make it less desirable for bees which help to pollinate the plants. Thus, growers had never sprinkled onion fields being grown for seed, although sprinklers had been used for other onion fields.

Other growers have had troubles with getting bees to pollinate onion seed fields, according to Wright and Brown.

"Bees aren't the natural pollinators of onions," Wright said. "But they have been used for years."

Dr. Gordon Waller found that bees actually prefer diluted nectar, according to Wright.

Waller made a model flower and let the bees choose the nectar they preferred. He found that the insects preferred nectar diluted from 30 to 50 per cent.

And these findings fit right in with the plans Wright, Brown and Kohl had for their irrigation research.

"They used sensors to detect changes in umbel temperature and when the air temperature rose above 30 degrees C, automatic sprinklers sprayed the fields for five minutes cooling the flowers as much as 15 degrees C, according to Wright.

The delicate sensors monitored temperatures within the umbels during the growing season, according to Wright.

And the researchers dissected three umbels from each plot at harvest time. They discovered that the sections of the umbel which reached the highest temperatures during the season had fewer and smaller seeds, than cooler sections of the umbel, ac-ording to a paper written by the group.

In addition, the researchers also found that sprinkler irrigation is a desirable method for onion seed production, according to the paper.

The research may prove valuable to the onion seed industry since the researchers compared different combinations of furrow irrigation, sprinkler irrigation and misting of the umbels, according to the paper.

The heaviest seed was obtained from plots that were furrow irrigated and misted, according to the paper.

The smallest bird in the world is the Fairy or Princess Helen's hummingbird of Cuba. Its body is two inches long.

Area FFA youths win at Moscow

TWIN FALLS — Magie Valley members who placed in the state FFA judging contests held at the University of Idaho, were announced today.

Over 600 FFA boys and girls from 51 Idaho schools participated in the contests.

Magie Valley students who placed among the five highest individuals in livestock judging were Nancy Brackman, Kimberly, third place, and Gene Colter, Gooding, fifth place. Tony DeLeon, Valley High School, Hazelton-Eggen, tied for the top place in tool identification.

We realize that electricity, like food, is a necessity, no matter what the price. But as with groceries, the costs of producing and delivering the electricity you need have been increasing in recent years, with an effect on the rate you pay. While inflation and increased construction costs mean rates probably will be going up, we'll be doing everything we can to continue giving you the best bargain possible.

Your average cost for a kilowatt hour of electricity is lower today than it was in 1939. Thirty-five percent lower, in fact. That's because Idaho Power Company has held the line on prices about as effectively as any supplier of goods or services anywhere.

Idaho Power rates are among the very lowest for investor-owned electric utilities in the nation. Your cost for 1000 kilowatt hours ($19.56) is $12.55 below the national average ($32.11).

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you may feel you have been treated badly by certain people, but such an attitude is unwise. If you continue this viewpoint you are likely to lose out where it means the most to you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to important duties ahead of you instead of running off on some tangent that could lead to unexpected trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) It is best to rely on your own resources today since a friend could disappoint you now. Show loyalty to trusted friends.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure not to jeopardize your good reputation in the community where you live. Don't neglect an important credit matter.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Trying to escape from a responsibility you have assumed could turn one in power against you. Avoid one who gossips.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Some associates may laugh at your ideas now, but pay no attention, since you have the right slant on things. Remain steadfast.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Taking the treatments that will improve your health is wise today. Use extreme caution in motion today. Relax at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to duties awaiting you and handle them most efficiently. Sidestep a plan that a co-worker has in mind at this time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try not to be fearful with others at this time. Show increased devotion to loved one. Take needed health treatments.

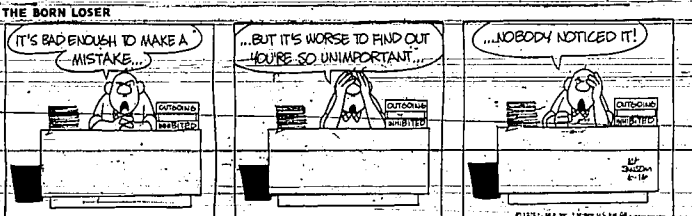

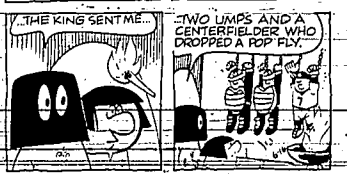

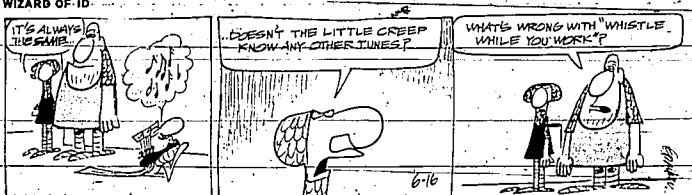

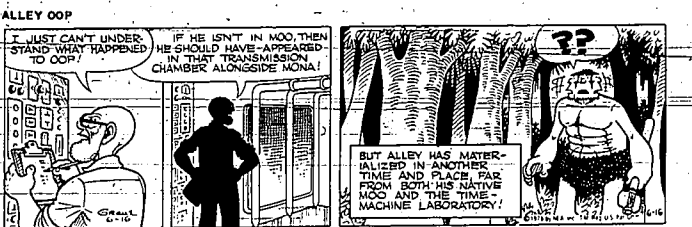

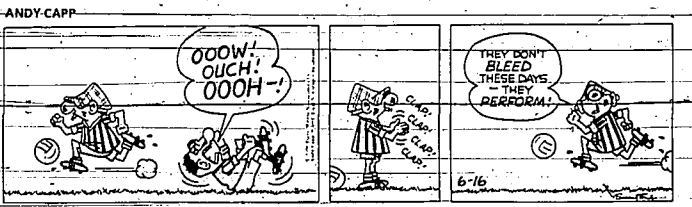

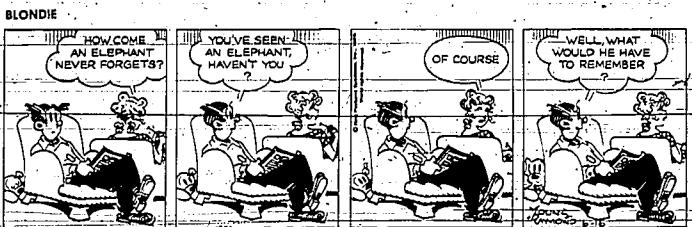

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Control your temper at home or there could be trouble ensuing. Forget all those dubious angles you have been working on.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Exercise zeal care in motion everywhere you go today and avoid possible accident. Strive for harmony with loved one.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't permit others to pressure you into spending too much money. Make long-range plans for future big ticket items.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Do something constructive about a problem you have instead of avoiding it. Show others that you are an excellent citizen.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she should be taught early in life to finish what has once been started. There is likely to be a self-pitying tendency here which can be curbed through understanding. There is an artistic talent here that should be encouraged throughout lifetime.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

How do you explain the fact that it takes 365 days for a mother-to-be zebra to have her baby while it only takes a mother-to-be horse 330 days? ... There are places on this earth where a young man can't marry a girl unless he owns a machete. ... Under Emperor Nero, ancient Rome had 978 official holidays per year. ... There are some historians who think their contention is that much later in the year. ... If a man ate like a hummingbird, proportionately, he'd put away about 165,000 calories a day. ... There are 665 yards of 19 different kinds of thread in the typical vested man's business suit. And 18 buttons, too.

What single technique should you practice most to improve your bowling? So inquires a client. Checked that out with a professional-bowling champion who says: 'Work on ways to pick-up spares.'

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS
Q. "Ask your Love and War Man if Christopher Columbus ever mested around?"
A. That he did. He was married to Filippa Moniz Perestrello in 1748. And he was the father of a youngster by Beatriz Enriquez. Problem was, he had to hang around the Spanish court for about four years to get Queen Isabella's okay for his trip. Beatriz was thereabouts at the time.
Q. "What name does the Bible list for Noah's wife?"
A. It doesn't identify her by name. A Jewish tradition, however, says she was named Naaman.
Q. "What color were Abraham Lincoln's eyes?"
A. "Dark gray."

MALE OR FEMALE
Numerous inanimate objects are designated male or female, in a lot of foreign languages, at any rate. If you want to write away the time, try assigning a gender to some of the things around the house. Obviously, the sewing machine is female. I believe the typewriter is male, however. The telephone is female. But, the fireplace is male. What's the sex of the piano, the doorman, the little electronic calculator?
The first Steinway piano was cut, fitted and strung in a kitchen. Specifically, the kitchen of the German cabinet maker Heinrich Steinweg. When the notion to build the thing hit him, he got so obsessed with it, he filled up the kitchen with all sorts of boards and wire. That interrupted a lot of meals.
When a tree becomes diseased, its temperature rises. That was reported. Less widely-known is the fact that a diseased tree's temperature usually is higher in the morning than at any other time of day.

It's the claim of a Canadian anesthesiologist that city people need bigger doses of drugs to put them to sleep than do country people.

Country music hard to find in Nashville

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The chances are slim of finding good country music at a Nashville club on any given night.

Harsh words, perhaps, but the recording capital of country music is hit or miss when it comes to a great night out on the town.

A few Music Row denizens have offered their theories as to why this is so.

"Nashville is just overexposed to big-famous-and special events," says ABC-20 vice president of promotion Larry Baumach.

"People get very blasé when a Glenn Campbell or a Dolly Parton or a Loretta Lynn are in and out of here all the time for big events. There's just no interest or support for a good country music club."

"Thank God for the tourists. Nashville just won't support a club," said Bob Swain, the manager of George Jones' Pecosm Holler, a slick club where you can eat white beans and ham hocks — and catch a glimpse of the owner about once a month.

Baumach also thinks that the prevalence of middle-of-the-road "sort-of" country music has "ruined the chances" for a straight country club to survive.

"Other towns have straight rock clubs, R and B, or country. Nashville is just a M.O.R. polyglot, a meringue pie with a little bit of everything. You don't realize how putrid the club situation is here until you go to places like Huntsville Ala., Phoenix or Austin," he said.

There are still a few places that can be good. "But you're still taking a 50-50 chance of finding a good house," warns Gerry Wood, a writer for Billboard.

Treading carefully with the caveat that one man's "good, old-time country music dancehall" is another man's dive, here is a brief, highly-subjective guide to country music in Nashville.

For most country fans, the Pecosm-Holler in downtown Nashville ranks high and is beginning to establish a reputation for good music; a large dance floor, occasional celebrity-watching and a lack of drunks. Cover charges on weekends runs $1 per person.

Jones' appearances are rare but publicized and usually bring in fellow artists, including his ex-wife, Tammy Wynette, who jump up on stage and jam.

Troisie's Orchard Lounge next door to the old Ryman Auditorium was for years a hang-out for Grand Ole Opry stars when the Opry was in its former home. It is an increasingly rare to find any notables at the bar, wall-papered with photographs of the knowns and unknowns in country music. The music is loud and not very good.

"People shy away from that part of town, too, because it has an image of being risky, too many drunks, thieves and pickpockets. The mayor ought to revitalized it," said Baumach.

Printer's Alley, a row of mostly strip joints and restaurants, had one country music club, the Western Room featuring a good singer, Bobby Borcher. The Alley is a haven for out-of-town businessmen with expense accounts and restaurants had one country music club, the Western Room featuring a good singer, Bobby Borcher. The Alley is a haven for out-of-town businessmen with expense accounts and restaurants had one country music club, the Western Room featuring a good singer, Bobby Borcher.

Baumach's find is the Glynn View Inn: "the only place you can go and find people square dancing and broom dancing. The band is good and they play country hits from 10 years ago."

"It's the kind of place where 60-year-old women come up and ask you to dance and the girls run around in hot pants. Only beer is served."

At the other end of the spectrum is the Exit-In. A small club with an excellent sound system, the Exit-In features quality music in all categories except classical and heavy metal rock. Linda Ronstadt, Barry Manilow, Dottie West, Melissa Manchester, Emmy Lou Harris, Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings and David Allen Coe all played the Exit-In before they gained national recognition. The admission fee can be high — as much as $6 for an hour-long set. But the acoustics in the 250-person

"listening room" are superb and the natives are fond of saying "a performance at the Exit-In is like a concert in your living room."

Mention should be made of three bluegrass clubs — the Old Time Picking Parlor, the Bluegrass Inn and the Dusty Road. The Parlor and the Inn have paid performers, but the atmosphere allows enthusiastic customers to join in. The 30-year-old, Dusty Road has no paid entertainers, but instruments are provided and an occasional "name" will drop in to play what he feels like instead of what he's paid to play.

The Grand Ole Opry is the only consistent show in town.

Memorabilia — or trivia?

Ballet troupe gets grant

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — A $1,700 grant was awarded to Ballet Folks Inc., Moscow Saturday when The Idaho Bicentennial Commission approved $25,000 in grant applications for federal Bicentennial-matching grants.

The grant to the ballet troupe will enable them to make six performances in Idaho, Philadelphia and Washington, D.C. later this year.

The commission also approved applications for a $1,245 grant for construction of a picnic shelter in the Aberdeen City Park; $1,500 to purchase shrubs and trees for a waterfront park in Coeur d'Alene; $2,500 for restoration of the Hatch home in Franklin, one of the oldest homes in Idaho; $2,297 for renovation of the historic ore wagons in Ketchum; $1,000 for construction of a park in Melba; $2,500 to rescue negatives in the Bernard-Stockbridge collection at the University of Idaho; a $604 construction grant for a picnic shelter in Tacknosh; $2,500 for the Minidoka County Bicentennial Museum; $2,500 for Fairfield School District 121 for development of a tabloid newspaper; $933 to refurbish a water fountain in Pioneer Park in Lewiston; and $1,665 to construct a cover for a bateau French boat in Pierce.

Remaining funds, totalling about $2,700, were approved for the commission's oral history project — about $2,700.

The commission denied applications from the College of Idaho to publish a guidebook for the Sawtooth and White Cloud Mountain areas and another application for $5,000 to assist flood victims in Roberts.

They voted to have the Idaho Historical Society to act as caretaker agency when the commission's existence is terminated in September.

Sunday the Commission dedicated the old Mission State Historical Park at Cataldo.
