HOUSTON (UPI) — Workers today pumped water from basements and buildings deluged by a heavy rainstorm responsible for eight flood-related deaths.

The Red Cross said today 375 persons sought shelter Wednesday night. It said most hastily set up flood refuge centers had closed but several had stayed open for persons unable to find other accommodations.

Eight deaths were attributed to the Tuesday flooding.

Patricia Whitte, 8, was swept into a storm sewer as she played in high water near her home. Nikusuvilla Frank, 22-month-old son of Ruth Frank, drowned when the mother fell into a water-filled ditch and lost her hold on the boy. Michael Brauford, 21 fell into a 22-foot hole filled with water at a construction site.

Deadly flames

FOUR PEOPLE ARE reported dead, seventeen more injured and an entire block of stores and buildings destroyed following a tremendous explosion and fire in Culver City, Calif., shortly before noon Wednesday. The flames and explosion were the result of the rupture of a liquid gas line at a street repair site. (UPI)

Gas explosion destroys city block; four dead

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The death toll from a gasoline-line explosion that destroyed a city block rose to four early today with the deaths of two sisters.

Seventeen other persons were burned and three were missing.

Mrs. Mae Woods, 71, died at County-USC Medical Center, from burns she suffered in the explosion and fire Wednesday. Her sister, Mrs. Clara Drown, 53, Phoenix, Ariz., died in the same hospital earlier.

The husbands of the two women were among the injured.

Two other women died in the fire, and explosion.

A street widening crew's excavating machine accidentally ripped apart a buried Standard Oil pipeline, sending 16,000 gallons of gasoline under 600 pounds per square inch pressure fountaining high above the street.

It vaporized into a gasoline fog, and for about 30 seconds the 5300 block of Venice Boulevard in Palms was like the inside of an auto engine's combustion chamber just before the spark plug fires.

With a mighty whoosh, the cloud blossomed into a fireball, engulfing seven buildings and setting dozens of men and women afire.

"All of a sudden everything went foggy outside," said drapery shop owner Cornelius Brown. "Then there was the smell of gasoline."

"I got drenched from gasoline," said survivor Ray Gallagher. "I can taste it in my mouth. I knew it was gasoline, so I started to shout 'Let's get out of here.'"

He had just turned a corner when the gasoline exploded.

"I should have gone off like a roman candle," he said. "I'm damn lucky I wasn't burned to death."

Burning people writhed on the ground in agony, flames flickering about them, and others ran screaming in pain.

More fire and explosions followed as gasoline spurted from the pipeline and ran into the street.

"Flames were like a river of fire in the gutter," a survivor said.

Jess Mendoza, plywood factory worker, broke into tears as he told how burning people ran past him screaming for help.

An automatic alarm shut-off the pipeline in two minutes. It took 25 companies of firemen more than an hour to bring the fire under control, leaving the block of apartments and businesses looking like a war ruin.

Bombs mailed in Louisiana

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — Businessmen watching for letterbombs postmarked Texas better also be wary of packages from northwest Louisiana.

An FBI spokesman in New Orleans Wednesday disclosed that at least two of the letterbombs received earlier this week by corporate and business executives were mailed in Shreveport last week. Several of the 200 extortion letters sent last fall were also post-marked in Shreveport.

Ernest Wall, the spokesman, said the Shreveport letterbombs were mailed June 11 and June 12 to a New York City businessman and a Dallas corporation. He did not identify the recipients.

The FBI had disclosed earlier that several of the bombs were mailed from Texarkana, Tex., and Atlanta, Tex., both within 75 miles of Shreveport in the area where the borders of Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas meet.

Wall said both letterbombs mailed from Shreveport matched the general description of the others — a 9-by-12-inch or 11-by-13-inch envelope, between a half-inch and an inch thick and with a gummed address label.

He would not say how many of the extortion letters had been mailed from Shreveport, but said there were several. Wall said he did not know whether a post office or street mailbox was used for the mailings.

"I don't think there's any indication of where these people are from," he said.

Four persons were slightly injured at a stock brokerage firm in New York Monday by an exploding package, but there have been no other injuries from other letterbombs recovered.

Rain misses drought area

By United Press International

Water drenched over most of the nation's storm-tossed midlands Wednesday — except on drought-withered crops.

The meteorological irony was underscored in South Dakota — where Gov. Richard Kneip studied the need for twin disaster declarations by the White House — one for floods, another for drought.

To the south, Houston hospitals turned away the ill and Civil Defense officials and residents battled high waters left by nearly 13 inches of rain.

The "three-day" round of tornadoes, thunderstorms and flooding in the midlands killed at least seven persons — three in Houston and one each in South Dakota, Minnesota, Indiana and Michigan.

In Houston, a city of 1.6 million, Civil Defense officials called for volunteer teams to provide boats to evacuate some flooded areas and pumps to bail-out homes and businesses.

St. Luke's Hospital turned down new patients and Methodist Hospital restricted bed, admissions and surgery.

Most power was knocked out for three hours at Methodist Tuesday night and water flooded over medical supplies stored in the basement.

Flooding caused an estimated $2 million damage to Hermann Hospital and "catastrophic" losses of art objects in the city's Contemporary Arts Museum.

Three persons were killed in weather-related mishaps in Houston. An 8-year-old girl was swept to her death in a storm sewer. A 24-year-old man was killed when his car plowed into a stalled tractor-trailer truck and an 18-year-old youth was killed by a passing automobile as he watched his own car being towed away.

Kneip asked President Ford to declare a state of emergency because of drought conditions in 54 of South Dakota's 67 counties.

The governor said he probably will ask for a presidential disaster declaration to help flood-hit areas in the Black Hills.

Southern Baptists embroiled in debate

NORFOLK, Virginia (UPI) — Southern Baptists have found themselves embroiled in the emotional, highly controversial abortion debate.

On Wednesday, the resolutions committee of the Southern Baptist Convention reported to the 18,400 messengers, or delegates, a summary of the Supreme Court's 1973 decision declaring anti-abortion laws illegal.

The resolution before the annual meeting says abortion

"is a very serious moral and spiritual problem—and the practice of abortion for non-therapeutic reasons 'dulls our society's moral sensitivity, and leads to a cheapening of all human life.'"

Aide says water more crucial than energy crisis

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Thomas S. Killeps says moving ahead on water resource development is even more crucial than coping with the energy crisis because much of the West faces "devastating water problems."

Speaking at the 1976 national conference of the Water Resources Congress, Killeps Wednesday also said it would be "terribly unfortunate" if the collapse of the Teton Dam in Idaho were used to block construction of other water projects.

"We are deeply concerned that significant areas of the West face the prospect of devastating water problems during the next quarter century," he said.

The secretary said drought conditions in California and in the Midwest and Southwest pointed to the need for moving ahead with projects to meet water needs of the 1990's and beyond.

"That is what we're doing with energy development, and it is even more important that we continue moving our water development programs," he said.

But Chairman Ray Roberts, D-Texas, of the House Water Resources Subcommittee charged during an earlier panel discussion that President Ford's failure to ask Congress for funds to start new projects threatened the very survival of the nation's water resources course.

"This represents a policy that would, of course, put the Corps of Engineers out of business," the Democratic congressman said.

"It is a policy that we are not ready to accept," Roberts also said. Congress should take a "long, hard look" at proposals for interbasin water transfers. Such plans have long been controversial because of the reluctance of water-rich areas such as the Pacific Northwest to see their water pumped to more arid areas such as the Colorado River Basin.

Assistant Army Secretary Victor V. Veysey, appearing on the panel with Roberts, agreed with Roberts that a new look should be taken at proposals for interbasin water transfers but did not comment on the Democratic criticism of Ford's budget proposals.

However, Veysey later told a reporter that failure to budget new construction starts was only partly a matter of trying "to keep the budget within bounds." Leaving now starts out of the budget, he said, also represented "a little bit of politics."

"We know full well that Congress will put them back in," he said.

That way, he added, congressmen could get credit from their constituents for winning approval of such projects.

Asked whether this meant Ford was unlikely to veto a public works appropriations bill with such projects added, he said, "I don't think there's very much danger of a veto."

Water pollution meet set

BOISE (UPI) — An advisory committee of 15 members will meet June 22 for the first time to take a direction on its $1.2 million study of water pollution problems in Idaho.

Sen. John Peavoy, R-Rupert, chairman of the newly formed committee said, "The purpose of the meeting will be to talk and get feedback from members concerning where we are now and where we'll be going with the Idaho Clean Water project."

Idaho Clean Water is a statewide program that will utilize a recently received $1.2 million federal grant for pollution control planning. The Idaho Department of Health and Welfare reported the state's goal is to have fishable swimmable waters by 1983.

Nominations for the committee were made by various industries, agencies and interest groups from around Idaho. Peavoy said, Milton Klein, director of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, selected the final 15-member committee.

The members and their affiliations include: John Peavoy; Tom Hovenden, Idaho Cattle Feeders Association and Food Producers of Idaho; Robert Bohm, Earth Resources Co. and the Idaho Mining Association; Al Eklund, Boise Cascade Corp.; and Idaho Forest-Industry Council; Ted Dick, Northwest Canal Company and Idaho Water Users Association; Rodney Hansen, Idaho Soil Conservation Commission.

Other members include: Doli Ohee, Idaho League of Women Voters; Merl E. Leonard, Twin Falls County Commission and the Idaho Association of Commissioners and Clerks; Kenneth Sizak, Idaho State Division of Budget Policy Planning and Coordination; Dr. Kenneth Cameron, Idaho Conservation League; Floyd Ducker, Association of Idaho Cities; Dick Huff, U.S. Bureau of Land Management; Bill Gee, U.S. Forest Service; Dr. Steve Oki, Idaho Wildlife Federation; and Mel Alstott, J.R. Simplot Company and Idaho Association of Industry and Commerce.

Last body recovered

REXBURG, Idaho (UPI) — The body of Glenn Edward Bedford, 30, Parker — the last known missing after the collapse of the Teton Dam June 5 — has been recovered.

Discovery of the body raised the official death count from the disaster to 11. Bedford's body was found by Madison County deputy sheriffs in a canal one mile east of Salem Church, which is five miles west of Rexburg.

Bedford, along with his 35-year-old brother, James, and Charles MacRae, 56, Parker, were evacuating belongings when they were swept away by flood waters. James Bedford's body was found four miles from where he was washed away. MacRae was found five miles away.

Officials said searchers will continue looking for tourists and transients who could have been in the area at the time of the dam's collapse.

In addition to MacRae and the Bedfords, three other persons drowned. They were David J. Benson, 21, Teton, who was fishing just below the dam; and Clarence Daw, 29, Wilford, and his wife, Florence, no age, who were found in their pickup truck.

Five other persons were listed on the official death toll as flood-related victims.

Don't wonder about the weather.

Capital Sodom, Gomorrah by Potomac

Are small schools really that good?

Memories of the tiny country school, complete with a jolly school teacher who sits at a desk with an apple on the corner, is part of America's heritage... Everybody's grandmother either attended a small country school or knew somebody who did.

Defenders of small schools also consistently hammer away at the advantages a small high school gives students. Where else can a kid be a starter on the basketball team, the football team, in debate, and graduate valedictorian?

Even the widely-accepted belief that small schools offer more chance for a student to participate in school activities could be questioned since many small schools don't offer a full range of extra curricular activities.

Some of Magic Valley's smallest schools don't offer tennis, or swimming, or volleyball. Many don't have Future Homemakers of America or other high school service organizations.

While defenders of small school districts say smaller schools give more attention to individual students, no southern Idaho high school could be considered so large that students get lost in some academic shuffle.

Yet most counties have fought for years to keep three or four small high schools operating rather than consolidate into a single or perhaps two countywide schools.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With all the earnestness of aggrieved penitents, two former secretaries have stopped baring their bodies and started baring their souls about the wickedness of life on Capitol Hill.

Just as it was hoping the glory of a Bicentennial Fourth of July would wash away the last stubborn stains of political miscegenation, Washington has found itself reviled once again.

Still smarting from the shame of Watergate, the nation's capital has suddenly become Sodom and Gomorrah by the Potomac.

As Elizabeth Ray and Colleen Gardner spilled their titillating secrets to the newspapers and a federal grand jury, staffers at the Washington Post said their telephones were ringing off the hook with calls from women clamoring to get their own juicy "confessions" in print.

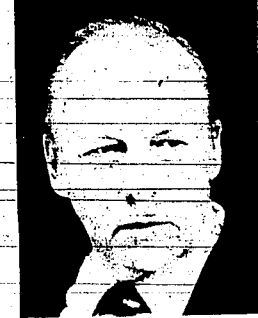

Even the most glib members of Congress have clammed up, refusing to answer reporters' questions even off the record.

While Miss Ray, 33, a self-styled "little girl from the South," was off hunting for fictional autobiography in London, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, 57, his political career ruined by her revelations, was in a hospital back home recovering from an overdose of sleeping pills.

A few days after Time magazine published reports that Ray and other women "looked part in a highway in the Capitol assigned to Speaker Carl Albert" and in suburban apartments, Albert denied it all.

As former Rep. Kenneth Gray, D-Ill., said, when asked about Miss Gardner's allegation that she once saw Miss Ray having sexual relations with Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, aboard Gray's houseboat...

WASHINGTON is in a monumental tizzy as two former secretaries have started to bare their souls about the wickedness of life on Capitol Hill.

NY pimps might hold their own meet in capital

N.Y. Times Service In Washington, New York politicians are famous for their naivete. And just so, right now, for example, New York politicians believe it is terribly vital to elect the pimps and prostitutes during the week of the Democratic convention.

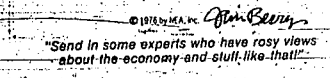

Would it not be sane to persuade New York's pimps and prostitutes to hold a convention of their own in Washington the week the Democrats are convening in New York? All we need do is hold the convention a week off, and this being the Bicentennial summer, what could be more appropriate than a week in the nation's capital?

conceded, the convention might even be productive. But he still didn't like it. "You don't need to be in New York with a lot of Democrats, do you, Harry?" I asked.

"Huh? That?" Harry asked me. "That says it all. Lolla thought for a moment. "Of course," she said, "if the cops would sweep the streets of congressmen and telephone recording studios for the week we were going to spend there, it might not be so bad."

Berry's World

The feeling is that Democrats would be so shocked by the evidence of sex's survival that they might sink into a catatonic depression in which they would be unable to do anything for anybody for President. Let's not fret with the temptation to suggest that this eventually could be the nappiest of all possible political outcomes, for there isn't a grain of plausibility in it.

"Send in some experts who have rosy views about the economy and stuff like that!"

Young solons seek reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First-term congressmen — fearful that the voters may drive them from office because of the extracurricular activities of Wayne Hays and others — are calling for sweeping reforms of the way the House operates.

The proposals would strip Hays' House Administration Committee of almost all its power — regardless of whether Hays himself loses his chairmanship next week, which is possible.

Leaders of the 75-member freshman class set a meeting for today to discuss plans for bringing the reforms up at a caucus within two weeks for a yes-or-no vote of every Democrat in the House. Maryland Republican Rep. Robert Bauman also intends to push for reform at the first opportunity. His plan would take from Hays' committee the power to increase congressmen's payrolls and allowances without a vote of the House.

One Democratic reform proposal would open to public and press scrutiny the office payrolls of House members. Payrolls now are kept secret for up to six months.

Payroll abuse is the charge against Hays — raised by Elizabeth Ray. She said he kept her on his staff for the sole purpose of providing him with sexual entertainment.

Nurse arrested

LEONORA PEREZ, 31, is escorted by a policeman and policewoman, rear, after being arrested Wednesday on first degree murder charges relating to last summer's mysterious series of deaths at the VA hospital in Ann Arbor, Mich. (UPI)

Budget committee at political fork

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new congressional budget process is at a political fork in the road; put there by a battle between two Senate committees over tax reform legislation.

The battle could determine the limits of the Senate Budget Committee's powers to give orders to other Senate committees and thus determine how tough Congress can be in controlling federal spending.

The issue is considered so important by the Senate that all decisions on the 1,536-page tax-revenue bill have been postponed until the question has been settled.

Under the congressional budget process, Congress must pass a joint budget resolution setting spending and income goals for the federal government during the next fiscal year. Spending is separated into broad categories such as health or defense, but the resolution doesn't detail how the money must be spent within those categories.

2 nurses charged with killing five patients

DETROIT (UPI) — Two registered nurses have been arrested on charges they killed five patients at a Veterans Administration hospital by injecting a lethal drug into the patients' intravenous tubes.

The FBI Wednesday announced the arrests of Filipina B. Naresio, 38, of Ypsilanti, Mich., and Leonora M. Perez, 31, a former Ann Arbor, Mich., resident who now lives in Evanston, Ill. and works at a VA hospital in Chicago. Both are citizens of the Philippines.

The arrests were disclosed shortly after a federal grand jury indicted the two on five counts of first degree murder, 10 counts of poisoning intravenous injections and one count of conspiracy to commit first degree murder in connection with the deaths at the Ann Arbor VA hospital.

Miss Naresio was arrested at the Ann Arbor VA hospital and Mrs. Perez at the Lakeside VA hospital in Chicago, where she had been transferred last fall.

The FBI refused to discuss a possible motive for the killings.

Arraignment of the women was set for today before U.S. magistrates in Detroit and Chicago.

FBI officials said the two would be tried under federal law, since the hospital is a government facility. They face maximum life sentences if convicted on any one of the charges.

The arrests capped a 10-month investigation into a baffling series of breathing failures at the Ann Arbor facility.

Last July and August, 23 patients stopped breathing for no immediately apparent reason. Five of them died.

Investigators determined the victims were injected with Pavulon, a potentially lethal and fast-acting muscle relaxant, commonly used during surgery.

Both Miss Naresio and Mrs.

Perez had been suspects almost from the beginning. A patient identified Miss Naresio as the nurse who injected something into his intravenous tube before he stopped breathing.

Mrs. Perez was implicated by testimony from a dying cancer patient.

Thomas O'Brien, attorney for the two, said the women would not plead guilty at their arraignment but said he had not worked out the specifics of their pleas.

Little was known about the two nurses, other than that both are Philippine citizens and worked the 4 p.m. to midnight shift in the intensive care unit at the Ann Arbor hospital last summer.

Mrs. Perez and her husband, Epifanio, have a 3-year-old son, Christopher.

$7 million in debt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter's $7 million successful campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination is more than $1 million in debt.

Official campaign reports for spending through June 1 showed Carter had by far the biggest debt of any presidential candidate. But the reports, filed Wednesday at the Federal Election Commission, also showed Carter had been outspent by George Wallace and both Republican contenders.

The report did not include money spent during the final week of the primary season leading up to June 8 when Ohio, New Jersey and California all held primaries.

Ronald Reagan's campaign reported it had paid off all but $150,000 of a $1 million debt it reported a month ago. Heavy contributions from Reagan's nationwide television address accounted for much of the campaign's financial improvement.

Reagan and President Ford have matched each other almost dollar for dollar in campaign spending. Reagan has raised — and spent — $11.3 million and Ford, who filed his report last week, has spent $11.4 million.

While Reagan's campaign still owed money, Ford reported a surplus of about $30,000.

Senate OK's job proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In February Congress fought a major veto battle with President Ford over public works jobs and lost. Now the issue is back, and Congress thinks it can win.

The Senate Wednesday approved a $4 billion bill sponsors claim would create up to 300,000 jobs. The 69-25 vote was six more than the two-thirds needed to override a possible veto.

Although the amount of money is less, the bill is almost identical to a $6 billion measure Ford vetoed in February. The House voted to override but the Senate fell three votes short.

Since then both House and Senate have passed new bills and a conference committee negotiated differences between them. The Senate voted Wednesday to approve the conference version. After the House acts, it goes to the President.

The bill would provide $2 billion in grants to local governments for public works projects which could begin in 90 days. $1.25 billion in budget aid to state and local governments to keep them from having to lay off employees or reduce services, and $700 million for water treatment plants in 33 states.

Democrats said it would help reduce unemployment, concentrating on the construction industry where the jobless rate has been 14 percent, twice the national rate.

They said the bill also would ease the budget squeeze which the recession has brought on local governments.

Court approves Nixon request

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A three-judge federal court has approved former President Richard Nixon's request that a U.S. flag made in a Hanon POW camp be displayed in Philadelphia's July 4 Bicentennial parade.

Air Force Col. John Drames of Philadelphia made the flag during his six years as a POW, struggled to knit of North Vietnam when he was released, and gave it to Nixon as a gift in 1974.

It and most other items received by Nixon while president wound up in the custody of the General Services Administration as a result of a 1974 law stemming from the Watergate scandal, and it takes a court order to have any of it released.

Nixon asked that Drames be allowed to display the flag while serving as color guard in the Philadelphia parade, and the judges granted his request. The flag is to be returned to the GSA by Sept. 15.

Hope home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hope Cooke Namygal, former New York socialite who renounced her U.S. citizenship to marry the crown prince of Siam, now has permanent residence status here.

President Ford signed a bill Wednesday granting her that legal status.

After the prince was overthrown by pro-Indian legislators and placed under house arrest, she returned to the United States with her two children.

Newsmen ousted

LIANDA, Angola (UPI) — Angola's Marxist regime Wednesday expelled London Times correspondents Stewart Tendler because of a Times article on Cuban influence in the Angolan government.

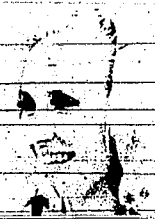

Director General of Information Luis de Almeida said the government had no antagonism against Tendler, whom he described as "one of the most correct and polite of the journalists here."

But he accused the Times of being involved in a "campaign of defamation" against Angola and indicated Tendler ought to be on the overnight flight to Lisbon.

Tammy to wed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Country music singer Tammy Wynette, whose recordings include "Stand By Your Man" and "I Don't Want to Be a C. C.," is getting married next month for the third time.

Miss Wynette, 31, who divorced singer George Jones 15 months ago, announced at a news conference Wednesday she will marry Nashville real estate executive John Michael Tomlin, 31, whom she met while dining with friends a year ago.

Palm hearts recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — More than 216,000 cans of palm hearts imported from Brazil are being recalled because improper canning could cause the growth of bacteria in the cans.

The Food and Drug Administration announced the recall Wednesday. It involves palm hearts, a gourmet food, marketed under the brand name Roland Brand-Hearts of Palm and imported by Bruno Scheidt Inc. of New York.

Stassen runs again

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Veteran politician Harold Stassen, whose quest for the presidency began in 1938, was campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination again today.

Stassen said he would confer with delegates at the weekend Iowa Republican state convention.

"He wants to meet with some delegates," a Stassen spokesman said. "He's definitely interested in the possibilities of gaining some delegates now that he's an awarded candidate."

Stassen announced June 8 he would seek the GOP nomination.

Author files suit

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — William Peter Blatty, author of "The Exorcist," filed a $1.5 million suit in federal court Wednesday against Edward and Fred Doumani, directors of Transcendental Hotel Corp.

Blatty charged the corporation violated the Securities Act. The hotel and the Doumanis' corporation failed to deliver stock certificates after Blatty invested a $500,000 in 1974.

Blatty also charged that when he tried to back out of the deal, Doumani refused to give him his money back.

House clergymen eye sex scandals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Six clergymen members of the House say they can understand how a few of their colleagues could be involved in sex scandals and they believe public condemnation of Congress as a whole is unfair.

"This is a terribly lonely place," said Rep. Andrew Young, D-Ga., for 22 years a minister of the United Church of Christ and one of seven clergymen in the House.

Only Rep. Walter Fauntroy, Democratic delegate from the District of Columbia and pastor of the New Bethel Baptist Church here, was not available for a UPI interview.

"We work 14 hours a day, six or seven days a week. Some of us are away from our families. The human factor sets in. Some of them weaken," said Rep. Robert Edgar, freshman Democrat from Pennsylvania and a minister of the United Methodist church.

The members were asked how they, first as ministers or priests and secondly as congressmen, felt the impact of sex allegations against Reps. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, John Young, D-Ohio, and Alan Howe, D-Utah.

"My own reaction is that of mercy and forgiveness first," Andy Young said. "I cannot condone these weaknesses or indiscretions but they are people who suffer more pressure than most people and have fewer places to turn to."

Regardless of what at scandals are reported, on the aggregate the guys around here are probably no worse, and I would say they are better than any other profession, like teachers, ministers or doctors," he said.

The Georgian said "members of Congress probably need more help and forgiveness than others" because they have more problems and need more help to survive.

Rep. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., the first Roman Catholic priest elected to Congress in 1970, said the allegations offend him as a priest and as a person, "but he added:

"I can't generalize. Like with Alan Howe (charged with soliciting two police women posing as prostitutes in Salt Lake City) is there a connection with his public life? I don't know."

"Congress is like a mirror," said Rep. John Buchanan, R-Ia., pastor of several Protestant churches. "It reflects what the American people are. You see here in Congress the strengths as well as the weaknesses of the American people."

"You see instances of immorality here as is the case generally in American life but you also see many decent, moral, hardworking Americans."

Vice squad jobs gain popularity

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Dozens of women have applied for jobs as police decoys in Salt Lake City's red light district since last weekend's arrest of Congressman Allan Howe.

Capt. Wilford Stoler, who runs the vice squad, said his office has been flooded with calls from women who want the part-time jobs.

"Why not," he said. "It's good part-time work."

He attributes the influx of inquiries to the arrest of Howe on charges of soliciting sex acts from two police decoys masquerading as prostitutes.

Stoler said the department has never had any trouble getting enough women for the job, but is now receiving applications in record numbers.

Duel role 'costly'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Earl J. Schmitt Jr. says he was "inadequately and incompetently represented" in his trial for a $2.4 million theft. Schmitt, an attorney, served as his own counsel during the trial and was found guilty.

"The record is replete with instances when counsel, namely defendant, seemingly was at a total loss as to how to defend his client," a motion for a new trial said.

"Doubtlessly the emotional involvement and strain involved caused the client Schmitt to be inadequately represented by his attorney, Schmitt."

Death motive lacking

DALLAS (UPI) — Billy Locklear, 36, had tuberculosis and doctors had given him less than a year to live.

He and his wife Hazel, 28, planned to move to central Texas so their two children could become acquainted with Locklear's half-brother, who planned to take care of them when Locklear died. They had only two more weeks before their planned move when they were murdered.

Police found the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Locklear tied back to back, both of them stabbed to death. The children, Billy Jr., 3, and Mary, 2, were lying on the floor, apparently uninjured but sick and unable to walk.

"It looks like the children had been in the playacting to wake up their parents," said police spokesman Bob Shaw. "They were dirty and their clothes were blood stained."

"The only motive anybody can think of is robbery, but there just wasn't all that much there to take. When folks are on welfare, they aren't good robbery prospects."

The bodies were discovered by a neighbor, who said he had not seen the Locklears since 11 a.m. Saturday, previous to his discovery.

The doors were unlocked, but the children had been disciplined not to go outside by themselves.

Locklear's relatives and Mrs. Locklear's parents from Austin were in Dallas Wednesday making arrangements for burial. The children officially are wards of the state pending a custody hearing.

Reagan, Ford to meet in Iowa

United Press International President Ford and Ronald Reagan—the first time in this presidential campaign plan to be in the same room at the same time.

Both candidates will address a Republican dinner in Des Moines, Iowa, Friday night. They hope to line up support for the Iowa Republican convention which will name 36 national-convention delegates Saturday and Sunday.

Both sides consider the Iowa contest a "must-win" for the campaign. Reagan currently leads in national delegates, 1,009 to 893, with 1,130 needed for the nomination.

Jimmy Carter, with the Democratic nomination already sewed up, spent 12 hours Wednesday deep-sea fishing off the Georgia coast. He caught one small tuna but his day wasn't a bust.

Sen. Henry Jackson formally endorsed Carter as "the strongest possible candidate" and urged his 22 delegates to support the Georgian on the first ballot.

Those Jackson delegates are not among the 1,535 already counted in Carter's column—now 30 more than the number needed for the Democratic nomination.

California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who has refused to concede—the nomination—to Carter, announced the purchase of 30 minutes of network time from NBC-TV June 16.

There was no indication what Brown would say. A spokesman said Brown had "no current plans to endorse Carter."

Reports filed with the Federal Election Commission showed Carter spending nearly $7 million on his campaign for the nomination. That includes a $1.2 million debt largest of any of the candidates.

Teamster chief sees difficulty

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Under increasing pressure from reformers and federal investigators concerned about corruption, Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons says there will be "difficult times ahead" for the nation's biggest union.

That was Fitzsimmons' observation Wednesday after Teamster conventioners elected him to another five-year term and allowed him to tighten his grasp on the resources of the two-million-member union.

He told the convention's nearly 2,300 delegates none of these outside pressures would alter the status quo.

"We have had difficult times in the past and there are difficult times ahead," he said. "We will overcome these difficult times."

The delegates elected by acclamation all incumbent officers—and adopted every constitutional change recommended by the leadership. They also elected the first black Teamsters vice president, John Cleveland of Washington, for whom a position was created.

Chemical reaction caused deadly fumes

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — Firemen pouring water on a blaze at a pool supply firm Wednesday apparently triggered a chemical reaction that speeded deadly chlorine-saturated smoke over four-square miles of the San Fernando Valley.

The poisonous gas hovered like a fog over the densely populated Los Angeles suburb, forcing the evacuation of 5,000 residents and hospitalization of another 50 before finally burning itself out nine hours after the fire started.

The toxic fumes caused choking, stinging eyes and a burning sensation in the eyes and throat.

One witness said it "made the whole neighborhood stink as if it had been dipped in household bleach."

"It was an acrid smell and burned my throat," said Louise Stauffer, 42, who was asleep when awakened by police.

Cause of the fire had not been determined.

A fire-department spokesman said the blaze apparently started in a chlorine storage yard and quickly engulfed the building. The lethal fog was the result of a chemical reaction that occurred when fire fighters poured water onto the blazing stocks of chlorine and muriatic acid.

Most smokers won't ever quit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most Americans think smoking is harmful, but a majority of smokers say they'll never quit. And more than three-fourths of adults believe doctors and teachers should set an example by not smoking cigarettes.

Ninety per cent of adults agree smoking is harmful, 84 per cent think it is enough of a health hazard for something to be done about it and 82 per cent believe it frequently causes disease and death.

Less than 3 per cent, mostly smokers, consider cigarettes not hazardous.

These were among the findings of a national survey on adult use of tobacco, published today by the National Cancer Institute here and the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Two thirds of persons with a history of smoking say they have never been advised by a doctor to quit smoking or even to cut down, the report said.

All health care professionals, including nurses, 78 per cent say they would advise a patient to quit. 57 per cent say they would advise a patient to quit if the patient were a high school graduate, suggesting a correlation between income and the cost of cigarettes for persons in this education group.

Men and women who are divorced or separated are more likely to be cigarette smokers than persons who are married, widowed or single.

Among men, white collar workers, including sales personnel, are least likely to be smokers than those in any other occupation.

One-third of the women who work outside the home are smokers, while 27 per cent of housewives smoke.

More than 45 per cent of smokers believe management has the right to ban smoking in places of business. Among all adults, including nonsmokers, 78 per cent say management has the right to ban smoking, 16 per cent say it does not, and 6 per cent are undecided.

Half the men and 60 per cent of the women believe a fear of gaining weight keeps people from kicking the habit.

The behavior of smokers has changed since 1970 in several respects, tending toward cigarettes with lower levels of tar and nicotine, but increasing for women the average number smoked a day from 17 to 19. The average for men was unchanged at 15.

Smoking rates are lowest for persons who never attended high school, suggesting a correlation between income and the cost of cigarettes for persons in this education group.

CIA subversion work widespread

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Documents made public Wednesday show the CIA for 29 years has engaged in covert operations ranging from subversion and sabotage to aiding guerrillas — although nothing in its charter authorizes such activities.

Stories of Halperin, a former Pentagon official and once an associate of Henry Kissinger on the National Security Council, discussed at a news conference the top secret documents obtained under the Freedom of Information Act.

Halperin and the American Civil Liberties Union have been seeking release of CIA documents on subversion and sabotage measures, including assistance to underground resistance movements, guerrillas and refugee liberation groups, and support of indigenous anti-Communist elements in threatening countries of the free world, which operations shall not include armed conflict by recognized military forces, espionage, counter-espionage, and cover and deception for military operations.

A Feb. 17, 1970, directive signed by President Richard Nixon and addressed to the secretary of state, secretary of defense and director of the CIA, said "I have determined that it is essential to the defense and security of the United States and its efforts for world peace that the overt foreign activities of the U.S. government continue to be supplemented by covert action operations."

"By covert action operations, I mean those activities which, although designed to further official U.S. programs and policies abroad, are so planned and executed that the hand of the U.S. government is not apparent to unauthorized persons."

"Cover operations" (which are understood to be all activities which are conducted or sponsored by this government against foreign states or groups in support of friendly foreign states or groups but which are so planned and conducted that any U.S. government responsibility for them is not evident to unauthorized persons and that if uncovered the U.S. government can plausibly disclaim any responsibility for them.)

Specifically, such operations shall include: propaganda; economic warfare; preventive direct action; including sabotage; subversion against hostile states, including assistance to underground resistance movements, guerrillas and refugee liberation groups, and support of indigenous anti-Communist elements in threatening countries of the free world.

Jerome trustees consider policy

JEROME — Jerome school trustees are considering an educational philosophy for the district, plus total revision of the district's policy book.

Percy Christensen, superintendent of schools, has presented the trustees with a four-page document that outlines what Christensen believes should be the school district's educational philosophy, goals and objectives.

However, not all board members agree with the document and action has been delayed until the trustees have an opportunity to study the policy in more detail.

Christensen told trustees the educational philosophy is "the keystone" of the district's school policy manual.

According to Christensen, the document summarizes the district's overall policies and goals.

Lyle Van Orman, school trustee, said he thought much of the document was general knowledge and just taken for granted. "I can't see why it is needed," Van Orman said.

According to Christensen, a definition of the school's position is needed because "it has been taken for granted for so long." He added that the Jerome School District is among the last of the districts to revise its policy book and the statement of philosophy.

"The policy book is the law of the school and should be looked at and updated frequently," Christensen said. He said the district's policy manual is outdated and some of the books are incorrect. He said all of the district's policy manuals need to be completely revised, page by page.

Christensen told trustees he would be spending the next school year revamping the district's policy book.

Jerry Galten, school trustee, objected to the first sections of the philosophy stating that thought it made the school sound like they should be passing school bonds each year.

Christensen said he was not asking the trustees to "buy this in total. I'm only putting it out for your consideration," he said.

Christensen's educational philosophy document states that the Jerome School District is looked upon as an everchanging social community where young people live.

"Here they are provided opportunities to determine and to work toward goals that are purposeful and significant to them," Christensen said.

Under the objectives, the philosophy states "we believe that in every experience the whole child must be considered. The mental, physical, moral, spiritual, emotional and well-being."

"We must provide challenges for the child according to his abilities. We should not expect all children to develop at the same rate. The school program must be adjusted to the child's needs, interests, abilities and rate of growth."

Under the objectives of self-realization, the document states "in order that our children may become all that their talents promise for them, we must supply experiences that will create a desire to learn and a desire to search for truth, to teach how to read and to write effectively and to speak the English language clearly and to assist in developing logical thinking ability in order to solve mathematical problems and problems of daily living."

Under the objectives for civil responsibilities, seven different objectives have been outlined which include "in order that our children may learn that liberty with security demands civic responsibility, it is essential to:

- Give immediate and continuing attention to the promotion of peace.
- Lead them to acquire attitudes of tolerance and desires for understanding.
- Offer opportunity and help in developing qualities of good leadership.
- Help them develop the ability to carry out responsibilities without constant direction.
- Give them practice in the procedures of democracy so that as citizens they may have courage, unselfishness and a fine sense of humor.

Indian school meets needs

N.Y. TIMES SERVICE
CHICAGO — When urban American Indian teenagers are graduated from Little Big Horn High School in Chicago, they receive the usual diplomas, but they have learned more than mathematics, English and history. They have learned about themselves.

Little Big Horn is a big city high school for urban Indians, geared to making sure they stay in school and graduate. Its curriculum melds traditional high school course with Indian philosophy, art, shaman stories, Indian recipes and languages.

This year, its fifth, Little Big Horn graduated seven seniors. More than 100 Indians from more than 20 tribes were enrolled under a staff of 13. It is housed in a former elementary school building.

"Little Big Horn was established to meet the needs of Indian students," said Lucille, St. Germaine, the contributor. Five years ago, the dropout rate for American Indians was 92 per cent in Chicago. Our dropout rate this year was 11 per cent, so we must be meeting their needs."

"We look at the contributions of the Indian culture to white men," Mrs. St. Germaine said. "We want to find reasons for our existence. Most American history classes begin at the date 1492, but Indians have been here for millions of years."

"We have to delve back, look at the habitations, maps of the Indian tribes, how they hunted and fished, why they were fighting together. We look at the religious ceremonies. Most Indians practiced the Ten Commandments before they had heard of stone utensils."

Earth science is "oriented toward the Indian philosophy that the earth is our mother," Mrs. St. Germaine said. "It's like ecology. Our kids experiment with agar cultures. We approach it through the eye of the Indian. We love the earth like it is part of us. Why would we want to tear her up and leave her open — we look at the effects of that."

In sociology, the students analyze Uptown, the northern area of Chicago, where most of Chicago's 15,000 American Indians live.

Britain leases US gravesite

OCRAOKE, N.C. (UPI) — A little cemetery in North Carolina where the bodies of four British seamen were buried during World War II soon will become their native soil.

The state has purchased the cemetery near the small island village of Ocraoke on the Outer Banks and arrangements have been made to lease the site to Great Britain for $1 a year.

On the white picket fence surrounding the plot is a plaque that reads:

"If I should die, think only this of me:
That there's some corner of a foreign field
That is forever England..."

A.L. Henderson, the state property and control officer who worked out most of the lease arrangements, said Tuesday, "Those men were actually here protecting the coast of North Carolina and the nation and we consider it a gesture of good will."

The four men were members of crew of H.M.S. Bedfordshire, torpedoed by a German submarine off the North Carolina coast. All hands aboard were killed.

Four bodies washed ashore May 14, 1942, three days after the Bedfordshire sank 40 miles southeast of Cape Lookout. Two of the bodies were those of Lt. Tom Cunningham and Stanley Craig, a telegraphist.

The other two remain unidentified.

Henderson sent the paperwork on the lease to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission June 3. Officials are hoping to transfer control of the land during a formal ceremony later this year.

The state purchased the property for $1,000 from three landowners and the lease will run "in perpetuity."

Lincoln County court collects fines, fees

SHOSHONE — About $1,100 was collected at the clerk-magistrate's court in Lincoln County for the month of May, according to a report made to county commissioners Monday.

Of that, $275.50 was in fines and fees, and $770.25 was recording fees in the clerk's office.

About $1,400 will go to the state government, $50.40 to the city of Shoshone, $361.76 to the county, $161 to other counties, $78.29 to district court fund and $170.28 to recording fees fund.

Many splendor'd body of rules govern selection of political delegates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a long and complex process, delegates pledged to themselves and their opponents.

For the most part, the delegates will vote as pledged, at least on the first ballot. But also for the most part, there is nothing but their word of honor to hold delegates to their pledges.

Some state laws or state party rules are stern on the subject of delegate instructions. Arkansas' five-year exile from party affairs is the toughest, but a number of other states impose signed oaths and pledges and provide explicit instructions to delegates.

No state or party rules permit a candidate to "deliver" his pledged delegates to another candidate. However, some states specifically permit "stunt" rules — a majority of the delegation decides for the entire group — that could have the effect of requiring delegates to vote for a candidate they oppose.

Of the states that "bind" national convention delegates, most release them from their responsibilities after the second ballot, although a number cover only the first ballot.

Almost all states permit delegates to operate as free agents if released by the candidate to whom they are pledged — and some let delegates vote as they wish if their candidate receives less than a specified percentage of the previous convention ballot.

The most common percentage in these requirements is 25 percent. Maryland, Nebraska, Oregon and South Dakota use that figure, although Texas and Tennessee release delegates when their candidates fall below 20 percent on the third or subsequent ballots.

California Republicans are bound to use their "best efforts" for their candidates unless they drop below 10 percent on a ballot, while Democrats are supposed to stand fast above 15 percent.

North Dakota delegates sign an oath saying they will use their "best judgment" and ability to "carry out the wishes" of their state party conventions, while states such as Illinois specify that the presidential primary was "advisory only" and bind delegates to nothing.

New Hampshire, which holds the first primary of the presidential year, has one of the loosest sets of instructions. Delegates need pledges only if it elected they will attend the national convention unless they are sick or otherwise unable to get there.

Emergency fund gets boost

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Board of Examiners replenished by $100,000 today the governor's emergency fund which was depleted by the June 5 Teton Dam disaster in eastern Idaho.

The board issued a proclamation to allow issuance of warrants to make available an additional $100,000 in the fund.

Gov. Cecil Andrus said originally there was $148,000 in the fund and $15,000 had been obligated to the State Land Department. The remainder, he added, has been depleted by the devastation in the Upper Snake River Valley.

Deputy Attorney General Warren Felton explained that in previous disasters, the board had issued a proclamation allowing warrants to be issued to replenish the fund when all monies had been expended.

The last time this method was used, Felton said, was during the 1967 Sandpoint fire in near Sandpoint near Idaho. He added, however, it had been used several other times, dating back to 1940.

Felton said in an emergency situation the board can develop warrants which can be purchased with general fund surplus funds, trust monies from the endowment fund or by banks.

In 1967, he said, trust funds and banks purchased the warrants, which amounted to between $2 million and $3 million.

State Treasurer Marjorie Rihl Moon has funds and is willing to invest in them (the warrants), Felton said.

Felton said the board would have to request an appropriation from the next session of the Legislature to pay off the warrants. But Andrus said 99 per cent of the monies being expended were reimbursable from the federal government and it probably would not be necessary to ask the legislature for the money.

Andrus said he felt that $100,000 would be sufficient because most of the money from his emergency fund was expended by the impact during the first week of the disaster.

The governor said if he did run out of money, he would call a special meeting of the board to explain where the funds were expended and ask for an additional amount.

In another action, the board authorized payment of $22,296 to Idaho's share to Oregon for purchase of special equipment for tagging of fish.

Commission sets meet in Boise

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Human Rights Commission will reconvene at a two day meeting in Boise next week.

The sessions will begin in Room 426 of the statehouse Monday afternoon with a regular business meeting and continuation of the round table discussion Tuesday morning.

The results of the discussion will be the basis of the commission's remarks on the commission's relationship with the government Tuesday afternoon.

Members will discuss what the commission and the government expect from each other during the closing meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Spotty rainfall expected in Valley

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley, Rupert area: Some isolated thunder shower activity this evening, clearing tonight and sunny and warmer Friday. Low temperatures tonight in the middle 40s. Highs Friday 75 to 80. Gusty winds near thunder showers this evening. Probability of measurable rainfall 20 per cent this evening. Synopsis: Thunder shower activity this evening will be just a little more general than it was last night, however, rainfall will be quite spotty. The air mass will stabilize during the night and for the remainder of the week so that little or no thunder shower activity is expected after tonight.

Temperatures are expected to rise strongly through the remainder of the week with highs climbing into the 80s and night-time lows in the upper 40s to the lower 50s. Abundant sunshine and good drying conditions will be welcome news for the haybalers. Spraying and dusting conditions will be good most mornings and evenings. Irrigation requirements will be heavier than they have been all season due to the higher temperatures and strong evaporative conditions.

Whooper egg transfer set

SODA SPRINGS, Idaho — Two whooping crane eggs will be traded with greater sandhill cranes in the Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge in southeastern Idaho as soon as the weather clears, the fish and wildlife service announced today.

The eggs are being flown today from the Patuxent Wildlife Research center in Maryland, "in special incubator egg-carrying suitcases," John Sayer, of the Portland office reported. The eggs will be transported under late-nesting greater sandhill cranes.

"Most of the sandhills have already nested but there were some that nested later than usual," Sayer said.

The sandhills were chosen as "foster parents" to hatch the exchanged eggs because "they are so similar to whooping cranes," Sayer said.

Sayer said "the idea of a captive whooping crane flock was to be able to do research and reproduce them under captive conditions to get a captive breeding flock to return the endangered species to their wild surroundings."

He said ten of the fifteen whooping crane eggs flown from Canada last year survived.

Women like male nudies?

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Women, at least most of those surveyed by a research firm, like pictures of nude men, Playgirl magazine says.

The magazine, which publishes nude male centerfolds, commissioned the research firm of Huang and Associates to determine whether women really like such pictures.

If the answer were no, a magazine spokeswoman told a news conference Tuesday, that would have been the end of the centerfolds.

Two thirds of 500 "urban women" questioned in New York, Atlanta, Chicago, Houston and Los Angeles replied they find pictures of nude men "appealing, exciting and sexual," the magazine said — so the centerfolds will continue.

Hydro projects inspected

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Power Company said Wednesday all of its hydroelectric dams on the Snake River were inspected for safety only last month.

W. D. Arms, vice-president for engineering, said the firm's hydro projects on the Snake undergo exhaustive safety inspections as frequently as once a year.

"Regular inspections of our projects, both by independent engineers and Idaho Power employees, are simple, good, sound procedures to guarantee their continued safe and efficient operation," Arms said.

He said the annual inspection completed in May included checks for leakage. It was made by an engineer from the Federal Power Commission's regional office in San Francisco.

Arms said the FPC engineer, who worked for an engineering design firm before joining the federal agency, spent about two days at each of the company's projects during the course of his inspection.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 Although I have been on a salt-free diet for 20 years I have "swelling" which has become a problem. I still gain weight, even when I have a small amount of salt.
 My blood pressure, cholesterol and all blood tests are normal. Could there be something else that is causing this? — Mrs. G.G.
 Salt isn't the only factor in edema (retention of fluid). It does promote fluid buildup by changing the blood chemistry, thus allowing liquid to enter tissue cells more easily; hence the puffiness.
 But a lack of protein in the blood can cause the same

You will undoubtedly be questioned about this sort of thing at the time of the test. The doctor will want to know whether you have been restricting or using iodine products heavily.
 It's well to check ground rules for such tests with the physician.
 Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 Could insomnia be a part of the menopause? — Mrs. F. R.
 Not as common as the hot flashes, but it can be a part of the general picture for some women.
 Troubled with gout? To learn of new treatment for this painful disease, write to Dr. Thosteson. In care of this problem. This is why you find protein-starved people in some food-poor societies.

Protein-lack causes edema

 Perhaps, if your tests did not include one, a check of your blood for protein levels would be in order.
 Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 I am a 27-year-old woman who has had facial acne since I was 18. I am sick of taking the antibiotics and having the vaginitis that results. What is the truth in the old song-and-dance routine about "genes, nerves, hormones, etc."? — L.S.

newspaper, for a copy of his booklet "The Modern Way to Stop It." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.
 Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.
 Copyright 1976 Field Enterprises, Inc.

The song-and-dance routine I live on it can be to some degree in fact there's more to it than that. Even I assume you've been checked for the possible factors you mention. Does the "etc." include a search for a possible allergy? To list all the possible causes of acne would take several columns. If you'd like a copy of my booklet on acne, send 25 cents to me in care of this newspaper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Specifically, though, I'd recommend you look into the vitamin A acid treatment if that has not been tried. A new study reports a high success with it in treatment of the 19- to 25 age group. It was used on a group of 80 acne sufferers. The acid was applied as both cream and jelly once a day for 90 days. The doctors reported about a 90 per cent success rate. That is, it reduced acne by that amount in the patients, who had all stages of the problem. Apparently some could not tolerate the acid, though.
 Another tip. One woman sufferer improved her facial acne by simply changing her pillow covering nightly. Simple, common sense measures as this can often help.

One of the colonists loyal to King George III and the mother-country was William Franklin, last royal governor of New Jersey, Tory leader, and illegitimate son of Benjamin Franklin. Father was estranged from son at the start of the war after failing to win him over to the patriot cause. On June 15, 1776, the Provincial Congress of New Jersey declared William Franklin an enemy and ordered his arrest. After severe treatment as a prisoner in Connecticut, Franklin was exchanged in October, 1776, for John McKinley of Delaware. The World Almanac recalls.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
 Would use of iodized salt have an effect on a T-4 test? — R.W.P.
 Yes, it could. "T-4" is medical shorthand for a hormone produced by the thyroid gland. The test determines how much or how little of the hormone is being produced by the gland.
 Its production depends on the amount of iodine in the body, so ideally you should avoid any extra use of it before that test. You should avoid, where possible, any iodine-containing medicine, iodized salt, or foods high in iodine (such as seafoods).

Demo platform highlights

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here are highlights of the platform adopted yesterday by the Democratic Platform Committee:

Economy:

- Make "every responsible effort" to reduce adult unemployment to 3 per cent within four years through stimulation of the economy and job programs.
- Reform taxes to reduce unjustified tax shelters and loopholes.
- "Comprehensive anti-inflation policy" stopping short of mandatory wage and price controls.
- Support the right of construction workers to peacefully picket an entire job site. Support repeal of Section 14b of the Taft-Hartley act which allows states to legislate open shops.

Government reform:

- Review government programs to eliminate duplication and end those no longer needed. Open government.
- Overhaul civil service laws to stop "political cronyism."
- Select an attorney general who is "free of political obligation."
- Matching federal funds for candidates in congressional campaigns.

Human needs:

- A "comprehensive national health insurance system with universal and mandatory coverage" financed by employer-employee payroll taxes and general revenues.
- Replace the present patchwork of welfare programs with an "income maintenance" system "substantially" financed by the federal government. It would provide a minimum income for the working poor and those unable to work. Others would be required to accept jobs or job training.

- Oppose constitutional amendment to overturn Supreme Court abortion decision.
- "A full and complete pardon for those who are in legal or financial jeopardy because of their peaceful opposition to the Vietnam war, with deserters to be considered on a case by case basis."
- Describes housing as "a judicial tool of last resort" but encourages other methods of school desegregation.
- "Constitutionally acceptable" aid to pupils in nonsegregated schools.

Local government:

- A higher proportion of revenue sharing funds to big cities and poor areas.
- A housing program to meet people's needs and overcome "stagnation" in the industry.
- Ban "Saturday night special" handguns.

US Senate passes Teton bill

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Interior Committee passed a Teton Dam compensation bill Wednesday that allows victims to file claims for two years after the bill takes effect and provides for partial payment to persons who file immediately.

The bill was introduced jointly by Senators Church and McClure. McClure said that when the bill passes, the usual three-month waiting period, which is normally, will be waived to get payments to the flood victims as soon as possible.

McClure said, "victims have the option of filing damage claims for two years after enactment of this bill. This insures that those people who might discover flood damage not immediately visible have the opportunity to be fully compensated for damage, which might surface only later," McClure said.

"This bill is also directed to see that those in immediate trouble can receive some partial payment if they file immediately. It will also allow them the opportunity to file in a regular court or through the special claims provisions established by this bill," McClure said.

Panie Paiz, Holland wed in TF ceremony

TWIN FALLS — Janie Marie Paiz and Steven C. Holland were united in marriage June 6 at St. Edward's Catholic Church with Father Perry Dodds officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Connie Paiz, Twin Falls. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Holland, Twin Falls.

The bride was escorted down the aisle by a friend, Prunk Garcia. She wore a traditional wedding dress of chantilly lace. The gown featured a fitted bodice with a scalloped neckline and fitted chantilly lace sleeves. The skirt, flowed from the waistline into a chapel train. Her hair hid a three-tiered fingertip veil of nylon illusion.

The bride's bouquet was crystal entwined with red baby roses. The crystal bouquet was a special gift from the bride's mother.

Matron of honor was sister Jarvis, Kimberly, twin sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Julie Kray, Cottonwood; Diane Lopez, Jerome; and Gail Scherbinski, Twin Falls.

Best man was Al Jenkins, Jr., Twin Falls. Ushers were Jim Jenkins and Fred Walker, both Twin Falls; and Gary Holland, Boise, brother of the bridegroom.

Leticia Garcia, sister of the bride, was flower girl. Marvin Cuellar was train bearer.

Godparents included in the wedding party were Mr. and Mrs. Cecilio Gonzalez, Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Galindo and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Olivas, all Twin Falls; and Mr. and Mrs. Dioncio Benavides, Nampa.

A reception dinner and dance was held in the St. Edward's School basement. The wedding party table was decorated with white lace over pink and baskets of pink carnations.

The wedding cake featured two three-tiered cakes decorated with pink roses and topped with cupid, separated by a cascading waterfall. A bride over the waterfall joined the cakes. A miniature bride and bridegroom and bridesmaids and ushers were on the bridge. The cake was made and decorated by Mrs. Edna Ford of Hansen.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at their home the evening prior to the wedding.

After a short honeymoon trip to the Sun Valley and Stanley area, the couple is at home, 2100 Denver St., Boise.

Guests attended from Boise, Nampa, Challis, Salmon, Pocatello, Twin Falls and surrounding towns. Out-of-state guests attended from Nevada, Montana and Arizona.

Shoshone miss part of '76 program

SHOSHONE — Alyssa C. Curry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Curry, has been selected to participate in the "America's Youth in Concert," a 1976 program sponsored by the Universal Academy For Music.

The event takes place in Princeton, N.J. Purpose of the program is to demonstrate internationally the fine character of American Youth while expanding the musical and cultural horizons of youth.

The students are selected through a nationwide audition. The 1976 program promises to be exceptional.

with a Philadelphia Bicentennial Committee invitation to perform on the 200th birthday of the nation, and then a New York City performance at Carnegie Hall prior to European tour departure. They will then participate in programs in London, Paris, Geneva, Innsbruck, Venice, Florence and Rome.

Miss Curry, a senior at Shoshone High School, is a member of the National Honor Society. She has sung alto in the school choir and participated in other concerts.

Polish up your sweet tooth

Chicago Daily News CHICAGO — Strike up the band, wave the flags and polish your sweet tooth. The great American bicentennial birthday cake is in the ovens of Sara Lee.

It's a colossal creation that will be five stories high with a total surface of 4,700 square feet — the size of a regulation basketball court.

Tons of flour, sugar and shortening and hundreds of dozens of eggs are going into the mixing bowls to turn out a plant chocolate cake that will be the world's biggest ever. The cake is being prepared by the Kitchens of Sara Lee to be presented to the City of Philadelphia, birthplace of the nation, and will be the centerpiece during a splashy 200th birthday party on July 3 in Philadelphia's Memorial Hall.

Coated with vanilla frosting, the cake will be decorated with colorful icing, whipped up by seven Sara Lee pastry chefs at the Deerfield (Ill.) plant, now being called "Sara's workshop." The chef elves are using the icing to fashion 120 scenes out of America's past from the Declaration of Independence to the Moon Walk. Among the historical events depicted will be Lee's surrender to Grant, the Alamo, the Emancipation Proclamation and Uncle Sam pointing his finger.

An American eagle with an eight-foot wing spread will be perched atop, flanked by the first American flag and Old Glory as it is today.

The cake was the brainchild of Chef Bernard, a French-born food columnist and Massachusetts TV chef. Philadelphia officials like his idea as did Sara Lee president Thomas F. Barrum.

For three weeks now, layers of chocolate cake have been popping out of the ovens at the company's plant in New Hampton, N.Y., where they are being assembled for frosting. The cake is being frozen in specially constructed cartons for shipment.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: This problem is driving me crazy, and I've got to get to the bottom of it to have some peace of mind.

I was married at 17 and had a pair of twin girls at 18. I've been married now for 34 years, but I still have a big question nagging at me.

I gave birth to the twins in a New York City hospital, which I still live near. My doctor didn't know I was going to have twins until I was giving birth. After one baby came, thinking it was all over, I heard the doctor say, "Wait, there's another one coming!" (I was conscious the whole time.)

"I said, 'I don't want it!' The doctor calmed me by saying, 'Don't worry, I'll take it.'"

Abby, I really think that doctor gave my second baby away. I saw both babies alive and crying at birth, but the next day I was told the second baby had died. We never were given a birth certificate or a death certificate, and neither my husband nor I ever saw the "dead" baby.

Mother haunted

A few weeks ago, someone told me that my baby never died, and I can still look into the matter. I really think she's alive. The doctor is probably dead by now, but I know his name. Would the hospital still have those records? Would they let me see them? Do I need a lawyer? Don't tell me to forget it. I have to know.

I promise not to hurt anyone or sue the hospital.
J.M. IN NYC

DEAR J.M.: You say you "gave birth to twins" some 34 years ago and now you want to know what happened to the second baby? A lawyer could help you search the records and take affidavits from any person present at the event.

But another question hangs in the air: Why did you wait for so long? P.S. If you can establish the fact that you had twins, and no birth or death certificate was ever filed, the hospital is vulnerable to serious action.

DEAR ABBY: A lady signed "TEETH ON MY HANDS" wrote that she had the sets of dentures from deceased relatives and didn't know what to do with them. You should tell her to drop them off at the local undertaker's. In my home town, it was a common practice for the bums and others of lesser means to stop by the back door and "try on for size" the used choppers.

TRAVELIN' MAN

DEAR MAN: Recycled dentures? You're puttin' me out!

DEAR ABBY: I never cease to be amazed at some of the letters you get, and no less so at some of your answers. Any woman who would stretch herself out on the couch, stark naked, to "surprise" her husband when he came home from work must be crazy.

If I ever pulled a stunt like that, my husband would have kicked me out of the door and thrown my clothes out after me, and that would have been the end of our marriage!

LINDA WEBB names date

Shoshone pair sets June date

SHOSHONE — Mr. and Mrs. Bennie Ray Webb, Shoshone, announce the engagement of their daughter, Linda Diane, to Ronald Allen Engman, son of Mrs. Ron McKay, Ottawa, Canada, and Albert D. Engman, Shoshone.

Miss Webb is a 1974 graduate of Shoshone High School where she was active in extracurricular activities, a member of the National Honor Society and student body secretary. She graduated from Links Business College in June 1975 and is now employed by Idaho Transportation Department in Boise.

Engman attended high school in Bliss. He graduated from ACC, five craft school in Weiser as a cement mason in October of 1975, and is now employed by Mitchell Construction Co. in Boise.

The couple will be married June 26 at the Shoshone First Baptist Church.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — Teresa Stradley, who was elected state senator on the Nationalist party ticket at the current session of Girls State is the daughter of Mrs. Stan Detweiler and Homer Stradley, both Twin Falls.

Her father's name was omitted from a report in Tuesday's Times-News.

Valley group elects

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Carla Nakano has been named president of the Valley S.O.S. organization.

Other new officers include Becky Craig, vice president; Karen Agee, second vice president; Ann Kaserman, secretary; and Joyce Buschorn, treasurer. Barbara Balach was installing officer.

The organization will sponsor a booth at the June 25 Hazelton Fourth of July celebration.

Members plan to continue the ski program another year and possibly expand it.

Members are making plans for a tour of homes as a fundraising activity.

A representative of the PTA will attend a fall meeting to explain to members "the advantages of being a part of the national PTA organization."

The next meeting will be at 1 p.m. Friday at the Hazelton City Park and anyone interested in helping with the booth at the June 26 celebration or interested in learning about the organization is urged to attend. More information is available by calling 829-5679 or 829-5371.

Congress has established three themes to serve as the focus of Bicentennial activities. They are: Heritage 1976, Festival USA and Horizons 1976, said John W. Warner, administrator of the American Revolution Bicentennial Administration.

STEPHEN BURGNER receives degree

Degree received

TWIN FALLS — C. Stephen Burgner, son of Norma Burgner, has received a doctor of dental surgery degree from Loyola University School of Dentistry in Chicago.

A 1968 graduate of Twin Falls High School, he received a bachelor's degree in biology from Idaho State University in 1972. He belonged to Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity and was also a member of Delta Sigma Delta professional fraternity.

He was listed in Who's Who Among College Students and was a member of the symphony orchestra. He will return to Idaho to practice.

Idea outlined for campers

POCATELLO (ISU) — Any black inner tube can be transformed into a solar water heater to provide hot water at isolated camp sites or in other areas during emergencies, according to Leland E. Corey, director of the energy experiment station at Idaho State University.

"The tube is filled with water and solar energy is absorbed by the black tube surface and transferred to the water," Corey said. "On a sunny day, if the tube is put out in the sun in the morning, by mid-afternoon the water temperature in the tube will reach about 110 degrees. The water will get about 30 degrees hotter than the surrounding air."

Corey recently modified an automobile inner tube by installing a spigot fixture which can be inserted for filling the tube. Heated water is drawn from the tube by opening the spigot, which was taken from a throwaway type of lightweight plastic jug.

The inner tube modification provides a small, inexpensive portable solar water heater for use at any site where there is no other means of heating water.

Making the solar water heater from an inner tube was Corey's idea, but it is not patented and anyone can use the innovation. He said commercial solar water heaters working the same way are available but cost more.

RUPERT — Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Miller, Rupert, announce the engagement of their daughter, Beverly, to Gary Garner.

Garner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Deán C. Garner.

Miss Miller is a 1973 graduate of Minico High School and is presently employed at the First Security Bank office in Rupert.

Garner is a 1973 graduate of Minico High School and farms. He has served a two-year mission for the LDS Church.

The couple plans a July 31 wedding in the Ogden LDS Temple.

Faulty canning lids eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — New canning lids are beginning to flood the market in the wake of last year's shortage, but government officials admit consumers receive almost no protection against brands which could be faulty or dangerous.

Because of a jurisdictional dispute, no agency accepts responsibility for determining whether the new lids are safe.

In an attempt to fill the gap, both the Food and Drug Administration and the Agriculture Department are urging the Consumer Product Safety Commission to step in.

All the agencies report complaints about faulty lids which have resulted in spoiled food. The new lids are from novice manufacturers or importers.

The safety agency last year decided it could not act because it lacks jurisdiction over whether canning lids do what they are supposed to do — seal the food effectively to make it edible months later.

Since then, however, the FDA has told the commission it is "troubled" by that stand and believes the safety commission "could exercise jurisdiction to deal with such problems as containers that fail to seal, or equipment that operates improperly."

The FDA believes its own powers are limited to cases where a chemical or some other substance might leech from the lid and enter the food — thus becoming a "food additive" and making the lid subject to its jurisdiction.

Nancy Steerts, Agriculture Department consumer adviser, said the government has been "deluged with inquiries from both consumers and retailers asking whether these new lids are safe to use."

"Because of a lack of a testing program we are left in the unfortunate position of saying 'we don't know,'" she said.

Both Mrs. Steerts and the FDA urged the safety commission to "reconsider" its earlier stand. The agency may vote later this week on whether to do so.

Troth revealed

JEROME — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Everson announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Chris, to Laird Jenkins.

Jenkins is the son of Dorla Jenkins-Parker.

Miss Everson is a graduate of Jerome High School and a 1976 graduate of the Hicks College School of Nursing. She is employed at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Jenkins is a 1976 graduate of Hicks College and served a mission to Hawaii for the LDS Church.

An Aug. 13 wedding is planned in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple after their marriage the couple will make their home in Pocatello while continuing their education.

Briefs

TWIN FALLS — Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary will sponsor a dance at 8 p.m. Friday at the DAV Hall. There will be live music for dancing. The public is welcome.

BOISE — Four right-to-read directors from Magic Valley area schools are attending a two-week training session in Boise. Valerie Churchman, Shoshone; Judy Snider, Piler; Mary Ann Ranells, Wendell; and Betty Conover, Buhl, are enrolled in the federally-funded workshop on reading methods and program development.

bridge

NEITHER — Mr. and Mrs. Oswald and James Jacoby have bid three hearts instead of three notrump.

Either of those bids would have led to his partner playing a cinch four-heart contract.

South never thought of that because he was too busy telling North that he should have rebid his five-card heart suit. That is another symptom of acute notrumpitis. The sufferer is always in there blaming his unfortunate partner for his own mistakes.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know what the odds are that North will hold at least five spades. North has just responded one spade to South's opening bid of one if North follows the recommendations of the American Bridge Teacher's Association the odds are almost 2 to 1 that he has five spades since with 4-4 in either spades and diamonds or spades and hearts he is supposed to respond in the red suit.

(For a copy of JACOBY MODERN, send $1 to "Win at Bridge," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 402, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.)

NEITHER — After South wound up one trick short at three notrump it never occurred to him that he might well have bid two hearts instead of one notrump and that he certainly should

High school rodeo begins at Burley

BURLEY — First-round action got underway here Wednesday morning in the 11th annual Idaho High School Championship Rodeo.

Defending all-around cowgirl Deon White, Emmett, came out of the first round sitting third in her specialty of pole bending, which she earlier won in district competition.

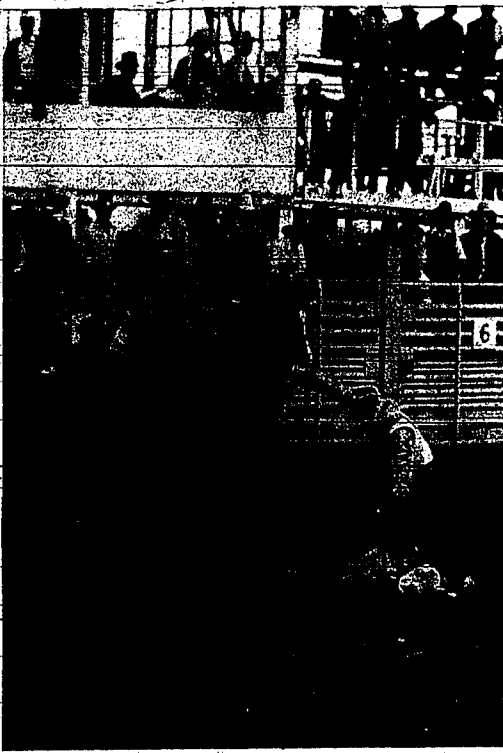

Laren Sweet, Fairfield, set a time of 20.83 seconds, with Janene Connerley, Lewiston, second at 21.09. Miss White was 21.46, and Julieanne Jolley, Abbot, timed at 21.56.

The competition was lighter through the top four places in barrel racing, with Debbie Malstrom, Boise, the leader at 18.09, and Miss Connerley second at 18.30. Chris Musse, Twin Falls, was only one-hundredths of a second back in third place with Tracy Hietts, Boise, timing at 18.49.

Susy Glesher of Fairfield timed at 5.47 in the breakaway roping with Lenna Bradford, Rupert, sitting second at 7.37. Terri Hagler, Kuna, had 8.63, and Mary Shirrers, Challis, was well back at 14.83.

In the goat tying, Ina Jantz, Rupert, led with 12.83. Jan Quinn was in second place at 13.37, and Donna Pope, Gooding, had 13.55.

Among the boys, Randy Austin, Weston, had the steer wrestling top time of 5.83 seconds. James McKenzie, Lewiston, was second at 6.21. Chuck Turner, Gooding, third at 7.12, and Kevin Saxton of Declo fourth at 7.58.

TF school board changes policy

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls school board has changed its policy on the use of tape recorders at public meetings.

At the board's regular meeting June 8 board chairman Howard Ronk ordered KTFJ news director Robert Miller to turn off a tape recorder. Miller was using to take down the proceedings of the meeting.

At that time, Ronk said the ban on tape recorders was a long-standing policy of the board.

Incensed by Ronk's directive, Miller later contacted state Attorney General Wayne Kidwell and solicited an opinion that "if the printed media is allowed, I'm sure that tape recorders would also be allowed by electronic media."

Last night, citing the attorney general and the advice of the school district attorney, Ronk said "tape recorders and other tools of the media may be used as long as they are not disruptive."

The change of policy prevented a possible confrontation with Miller, who showed up with a tape recorder and said before the meeting that he would ask the board to expell him if the recorder were not allowed.

Miller's boss, KTFJ station manager Richard Ryall, found himself in a bind on the issue since he is also a member of the school board.

Ryall said last night the situation had been personally "a little awkward."

He said he made no special effort, however, to get the board to change its policy on tape recorders.

"I didn't require a fight on the board," he said.

He said he thought the electronic media had a right to its tools and then added, "I'm most happy to see all the media."

TF man files damage suit

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man who was injured almost a year ago while working for a tree trimming company is seeking more than $200,000 in damages.

In a suit filed in Fifth District Court here, Charles McBride, and his wife, Sandra McBride, ask for damages from Ford Motor Co., KDS Manufacturing Co., and Chipmore Chipper Co.

The plaintiff alleges he was injured when a fan blade from the motor, manufactured by Ford Motor Co., and operating the Chipmore Chipper, a machine that cuts up wood, broke, striking him in the back. He was employed by Dewey Tree Expert Co., and working in Twin Falls County when the accident occurred. His earnings were $11,000 annually.

McBride asks $300,000 in loss of future wages and earning power, $50,000 general damages, $150,000 punitive damages, $22,000 in wages lost since the accident, $4,197 medical costs, $5,000 future medical expenses and court costs.

TF parents win 'partial' victory

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls school board last night reversed an earlier decision and gave the school district permission to implement an enrichment program for gifted elementary students.

The board's action was only a partial victory for parents who "HAD" objected to the program; however, since final approval was withheld pending proposed changes in the project.

There was nothing in the board's directive to indicate the program will be initiated at the start of next school year, although administrators said today they are "hopeful" the program will get underway "sometime" next year.

After meeting in a closed session to draft a motion on the controversial program, the board assembled for public meeting and unanimously approved a directive "giving permission to implement a program which shall be approved at a future time by this board."

"We're saying yes, but some changes will be made," said board member Ruth Day, who drafted the motion.

Board chairman Howard Ronk said the board's decision "does mean a program next year."

"When we get through," he added, "it may be rather radically changed — I don't know."

Ronk said changes in the project would not mean that the district would have to get the program approved by the state, but he added that there would probably be amendments to the current proposal which would require state approval.

Calling the program full of "plusses and minuses," Ronk said the board was concerned both with the costs of the program to the district and with the effect the program would have on other activities in the school system.

Asked why the board changed its position and permitted the program, it had scrapped earlier, Ronk said "further knowledge of the subject was probably the key factor. Knowledge of the workings of the program."

According to Doyt Simcoe, director of special education, the board was concerned the program as proposed would have been detrimental to high school activities since the three part-time instructors for the elementary project would have been drawn from the high school staff.

Simcoe said the board was also concerned about the cost of the project. He said he had given the board "very rough" estimates, but he refused to say what those estimates were.

Earlier estimates of the costs to the district had been in the neighborhood of $2,000 per year. The project would be about 90 percent funded by the state.

Simcoe said the "clarification" desired by the board might delay the program beyond the start of the next school year.

"I don't see any problem in getting it initiated sometime next year," he said. "We'll work as rapidly as we can and as thoroughly as we can. We want the project in a refined state before we implement it."

Simcoe said the old interpret

New laws would prohibit russet contract trading

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News writer

BOISE — The state of Idaho is preparing to prohibit potato futures trading on a proposed western russet contract.

Gov. Cecil Andrus has directed his staff to prepare legislation which would restrict and prohibit the western russet contract trading in the state of Idaho.

Joseph Welch, special assistant to the governor, said Wednesday, "This legislation will be forthcoming, if necessary, at the next session of the Idaho Legislature."

Governor Andrus has warned the national Commodity Futures Trading Commission of the steps that will be taken if the Chicago Mercantile Exchange expands the Idaho potato futures contract into a "western russet contract."

The warning was issued in a letter dated June 3 to Gordon Randall of the Idaho Potato Commission to be hand carried to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission in Washington, D.C.

Idaho russet potatoes historically have enjoyed a price $1 to $1.50 per hundred weight higher than russets from other states. Through the Idaho Potato Commission and promotional efforts, growers have spent money to enhance that image.

Clarence Parr, Burley member of the Idaho Potato Commission, charges "now other areas want to cash in . . . through futures trading."

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange, at the urging of other potato producing states, is considering a "western russet" contract to replace the Idaho potato futures contract.

Parr asked discounts of 50 percent per hundred weight on Washington potatoes and $1 on Wisconsin potatoes. He said the mercantile exchange amendment would "set up delivery points in Quincy, Wash.; Buncida, Vista, Colo."

Work under way on new AF Dam

By BOB ZUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

AMERICAN FALLS — Workers this week are moving trucks, tractors and bulldozers into place to aid in the construction of the new earth-filled American Falls Dam.

Lars Johanson, project engineer, said today about "16 highway trucks with trailers, five bulldozers and three other tractors are being driven into place."

In the next two years machinery will transport close to 500,000 cubic yards of rock from a quarry about six miles away for use in construction of the dam.

In addition, close to 100,000 cubic yards of concrete will be used in the construction of the new dam, said Johanson, engineer for Gordon H. Bell, Inc., the construction company hired for the project.

Construction should begin in about two weeks, he added. The dam is scheduled for completion June 1979.

The project, expected to cost about $35 million, is the first of its kind because spaceholders have decided to pay for the project themselves rather than wait for federal funds.

The new dam will be built around the old American Falls dam, excluding the spillway, according to Thomas Schaefer, Twin Falls representative of several of the spaceholders.

"The existing dam will be the impervious core of the new dam," said Schaefer, who works with the firm Newton and Schaefer.

Asked why the new dam will cost about $30 million less than the smaller Teton Dam which recently collapsed, Schaefer said, "Dams aren't comparable by size, when it comes to costs."

He said "a multitude of things" affects costs, such as foundation conditions, access problems, varying material costs, and how much time and money must be spent to prepare the site.

"The Teton Dam was a lot less wide than the proposed American Falls Dam, but it was also lot taller," Schaefer said.

Water that raged through eastern Idaho when the Teton Dam burst 12 days ago has not affected the American Falls project, according to Schaefer.

"The water didn't do anything to the old American Falls Dam, and had little effect on the water elevation," Schaefer noted. The water level in the American Falls Dam reportedly rose about 1 1/2 feet when water from the Teton Dam further upstream, reached it.

Schaefer said he has been told the water level and spillway operation at the American Falls Dam were "back to normal" Wednesday.

The number of men who helped construct the new American Falls dam will vary but will reach a peak of about 400 in September, 1977.

Schaefer said the new dam is being built because the old one has deteriorated. The old dam, which had a capacity of 1.7 million acre feet of water, now only holds 1.1 million acre feet, because of dam deterioration, Schaefer said.

The new dam will have a 1.7 million acre feet capacity, he said.

John Barker, Buhl, president of American Falls Reservoir District No. 1, said no special grounds exist for economic planning.

Confirmation hearings on the project have been continued in Twin Falls Fifth District Court until June 30, with persons being allowed to continue filing objections until July 30.

John Rasholt, attorney for the American Falls Reservoir District, said the hearings and objections should not delay construction of the dam, but will delay permanent financing.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation built the present dam, in 1927 as a major feature of the Mindoka Project. The dam provides primary and supplemental water to more than 900,000 acres of land in the Upper Snake River Valley.

Buhl medical facility plan delayed with another snag

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Medical facilities for Buhl have hit another snag.

James Rosenbaum, administrator of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, told hospital board members Monday night it does not appear the hospital can take over and then lease a building in Buhl in order to bring doctors to that community.

He said attorneys have advised him that the county hospital would face loss of an important tax exemption and possible disqualification from receiving grants if it were in a position of obtaining revenue from a lease.

Rosenbaum said he hopes the delay doesn't discourage Buhl residents who are working for a medical facility and medical service in the community.

He said he is confident a solution can be reached, but it may take a little longer than anticipated.

"It just isn't going to be the simple situation we had thought," Rosenbaum said, "but we intend to keep working on the matter until we can solve the problem."

A committee of Buhl residents had proposed they finance building of a facility for medical care and office space for doctors in order to attract doctors to Buhl. The management and operation of the facility would have been turned over to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital which would then lease space to doctors who would be willing to practice in Buhl. At present, there is only one doctor in Buhl.

Residents of Buhl said the medical facility would be in close cooperation with Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, serving the west end of the county. Patients not requiring hospitalization would be handled there as well as emergency treatment for patients until they could be taken to the hospital in Twin Falls.

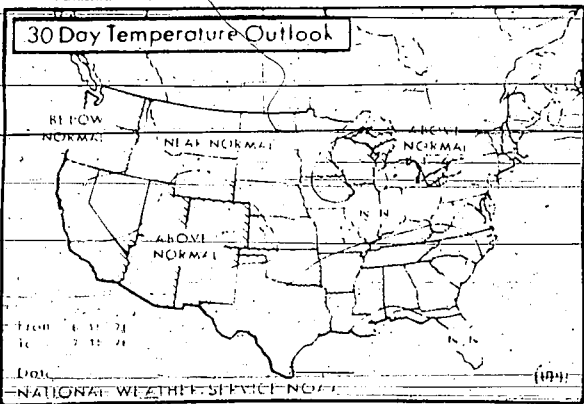

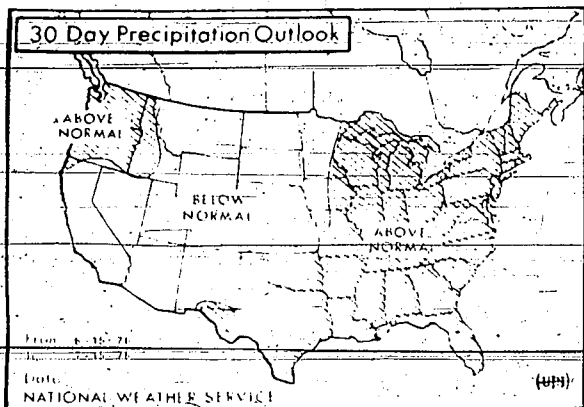

Nancy Churchman, assistant administrator in charge of nursing services, told the board the hospital is still short of nurses inspite of nine nurse graduates of this spring who joined the staff. She said recruiting efforts are continuing.

Convention scheduled

THE CSI auditorium stood empty Wednesday night in preparation for the Idaho State Democratic Convention. An estimated 3,000 Democrats arrived in Twin Falls Wednesday for the convention.

THE NATIONAL Weather Service's 30-day outlook for mid-June to mid-July is for temperatures to average below seasonal norms over most of the South and Northwest. Above normal averages are indicated for the Great Lakes to New England as well as over the central and southern Rocky Mountains and southern portions of both the Plateau and Pacific Coast. Elsewhere near normal temperatures are in prospect. Rainfall is expected to exceed the median amount east of the Mississippi River and also over the southern Great Plains, the lower Mississippi Valley and Northwest. (UHF)

Senate farm leaders begin review

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate farm leaders, laying the groundwork for what is expected to be a major 1977 battle over farm legislation, have quietly begun a novel policy review.

Instead of starting with advance public hearings to gather basic testimony on food, agriculture and trade problems — and now policy proposals, the committee is asking major groups and leaders involved to put it in writing.

In letters last week to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, a prominent former Democratic farm official and a long list of farm and consumer groups, Agriculture Committee Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., has asked them to submit reports on their views on future farm and food policy.

The reports, which the Agriculture Committee hopes to publish in a single volume in August, may "lay the basic groundwork" for the issues the committee will face in 1977 when it must write a new farm bill.

The current basic farm law, which lays out government support programs for corn, wheat and other grains and cotton, is due to expire at the end of the 1977 crop season. Next year's farm bill must spell out future support and control authority for those crops along with others including rice, wool and soybeans.

The 1977 bill, which administration officials have said may be the most significant piece of economic legislation facing Congress next year, will affect the agricultural and food economies for some years into the future.

An Agriculture Committee spokesman said the written reports will not be a substitute for public hearings on the new farm bill. But they may provide a starting point for later hearings and debates, he said.

Butz, who has already said he wants the existing "market oriented" farm law extended next year without major change, was invited to list the Ford administration's views in the report.

A counter view will be prepared by Edwin A. Jaenke, an Agriculture Department official during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and later head of the Farm Credit Administration, who is now a private agricultural consultant.

Aides said other reports have been requested from a wide range of organizations designed to reflect all shades of opinion, including the American Farm Bureau Federation, National Farmers Union, National Farmers Organization and the National Grange. Talmadge is also seeking proposals from the Consumer Federation of America, the National Consumers Congress, the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation and several leading college economists. In addition, the list of groups invited to lay out proposals for future farm policy includes many major farm commodity and cooperative organizations.

Among them are the National Milk Producers Federation, the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, the National Association of Wheat Growers, the American National Cattlemen's Association, the National Cotton Council, and associations of wool, corn and soybean growers.

Several farm groups earlier had urged Senate and House farm leaders to schedule public hearings this year — preferably at sites across the country — so that Congress could be ready to make an early start next year on the job of patching together a new farm bill. Chairman Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., of the House Agriculture Committee said he has not ruled out the possibility of hearings later this year, but he has not been able to see any opportunity to schedule sessions this summer or fall. Foley said he wanted to be certain that any hearings held this year — do not become involved in partisan disputes linked to the elections.

NFO member drive opens

TWIN FALLS — The National Farmers Organization (NFO) is conducting its first membership drive in Idaho since 1959. Dave Miller, director of field staff in the now membership division of NFO, came to Idaho last week to speak to local NFO members and appeared on Party Line, a radio talk show, to inform residents of the drive.

Miller said the basic goal of the NFO is to keep farmers independent and to keep ownership of farms and land in private hands.

"We try to give farmers the opportunity to put a price on their products," Miller said. "Store-owners price their products, but the farmer is the only one who cannot do so. We want to see him make a reasonable profit."

Miller said that there are 1,700 chartered counties in the 48 states of the continental United States with at least 25 members per charter. Some counties have a membership of 500 to 600 men.

Corn in good condition

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's corn crop — the key to prospects for continuing ample supplies and stable prices of meat, milk and poultry — was in "generally good condition" through the end of last week, the Agriculture Department says.

The department's weekly crop-and-weather report Tuesday said the crop, which officials say set a new record of over six billion bushels this year if weather conditions are normal, was "well advanced" in Southern states.

Officials said the crop was in good condition in Illinois and in good to excellent condition in Iowa despite dry soils in the northwest and west-central portions of that state.

The weekly report, covering conditions through last Sunday, warned that soil moisture was still "short" in the northcentral states which have been suffering from drought, although rainfall temporarily relieved conditions in northern Minnesota.

The report also noted that the winter wheat harvest was "active" last week and should be moving up from southern areas into parts of southeast and south-central Kansas soon. The progress of the harvest, which had been delayed by rains, continued behind last year's pace, however.

Officials added that cotton conditions were improving after a poor start, but warned that drought-damaged pastures were furnishing only poor grazing in many north-central and Mountain states and California. Farmers in some of the driest areas including South Dakota and California have been forced to move cattle to market because pastures are too thin to sustain them, the report said.

65% of normal

BOISE (UPI) — A coordinator for the Soil Conservation Service says, farmland damaged by the Teton Dam collapse will only be up to 65 percent of normal production this year.

Dale Schlader said Tuesday it is too early to determine how much of the 128,000 acres of farmland hit by floodwaters was destroyed.

But he estimated that possibly 10,000 acres of farmland could have been permanently destroyed by the flood which struck four southeastern Idaho counties after the dam collapsed June 5. He said a better estimate would not be available for a few months.

Burley market steady

State BLM director named

BOISE (UPI) — Larry Woodard, formerly chief of the Bureau of Land Management district manager, was announced Tuesday as the new associate Idaho state BLM director.

State Director William L. Mathews said Woodard would replace Clair Whitlock, who recently transferred with the bureau to Alaska.

In his new position, Mathews said, Woodard will serve as the principal assistant to the state director with special emphasis on the management of the annual work plan for the bureau in the state.

Woodard will be replaced at Coeur d'Alene by Joe Zimmer, who presently is in the BLM's forestry staff in Washington, D.C. Zimmer will assume his Idaho duties July 12.

Woodard is a graduate of Oregon State University in forest management. He began his BLM career in Roseburg, Ore., and has since moved with the bureau to Portland, Washington, D.C., and Coeur d'Alene.

Spouse traits listed

MOSCOW (UPI) — The average young Russian wants his future bride to be loving, faithful and hard-working. In that order. Girls see their ideal husbands as loving, good with children and modest, according to a survey published Wednesday.

Results of a questionnaire completed by 1,000 Moscow students and published in the weekly Literary Gazette, indicated that good looks were not important, but brain power was.

More than half believed that the principal basis for a happy marriage "was mutual understanding along with secure material conditions."

"The results disclose that modern youth is conscious of the institution of the family, its formation and stability," the newspaper said.

Asked to name the three qualities they most sought in a future wife, almost all the men mentioned love for the husband and children, faithfulness and industriousness with a knowledge of home-making.

Most of the girls also put love in first place. A few demanded industriousness in a future husband. They also mentioned kindness, a sense of justice, sensitivity and readiness to compromise.

One out of three boys and every second girl wanted a clever, educated or intelligent spouse, "so young people who don't want to continue their education could be in a critical situation," the newspaper commented.

About 25 per cent of the boys mentioned appearance as a desirable characteristic and about 10 per cent of the girls.

The majority of both sexes thought 20 to 23 the ideal age for marriage and that the husband should be the elder by two to four years.

The ideal size of the family was put at two children, though some of the students preferred three.

Fifty-nine per cent of the boys and 58 per cent of the girls did not consider it necessary to have their parents' approval for marriage.

Flushing evidence 'risky'

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Drug users who have found toiletless handy devices for quick disposal of evidence will have to find somewhere else to dump their drugs when police come knocking on their doors.

In a ruling issued Tuesday, the New Mexico Court of Appeals concluded that two police officers did not violate constitutional rights by recovering two bags of heroin from a sewer pipe located underneath a suspected drug user's trailer.

The court reached its findings in a decision affirming the conviction of Olivia Anaya for possession of heroin.

Court records show Santa Fe police obtained a search warrant to search a trailer home in which the woman and a man, Bennie Baca, were believed to be using drugs. Two of the officers crawled underneath the trailer and began sawing through a plastic sewer pipe.

When other officers knocked on the door of the trailer in an attempt to serve a search warrant, they heard someone inside the trailer running towards the bathroom and the sound of a toilet flushing.

The two officers underneath the trailer saw two packets of heroin flow out of the sewer pipe and recovered them.

Attorneys for the woman contended that the officers' "unannounced intrusion" into the crawl space under the trailer was unconstitutional and contended the heroin recovered from the sewer pipe could not be used as evidence.

But the Appeals Court disagreed, saying the entry underneath the trailer and the severing of the sewer pipe "was not an unconstitutional search under the circumstances."

The Appeals Court reversed the conviction of Baca for possession of heroin on grounds the evidence obtained at the trailer could not be linked directly to him. The officers said Baca was asleep at the time the officers arrived at the trailer.

USMC death story unfolds in court

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — "He was crying, very hysterical...He was yelling things, 'I don't want to fight, I don't know how'...He felt. He didn't get up. He had mucus running out of his nose and mouth."

In those words, the men who gave Marine Pvt. Lynn McClure the beating that killed him told his drill sergeant's court martial Wednesday how they were ordered to take turns hosing him as he sobbed, screamed for mercy and tried to run away.

A blow that missed the mentally retarded recruit knocked a board out of a fence, one said.

Four former members of McClure's "motivation platoon" for troublesome recruits testified in the court martial of S.Sgt. Harold Bronson, one of the sergeants in charge of pugil stick bouts at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in December.

They said McClure was crying with terror, refused to fight and kept begging them to stop. They told reporters earlier that the sergeants ordered them to keep beating McClure until he fought back.

"He was hysterical," said ex-Marine Richard Van Owen, who fought the first and third of the five bouts with McClure. "He was crying and yelling things, 'I don't want to fight, I don't know how'."

He said the sergeants deliberately picked out big opponents for the 5-foot-6, 140-pound McClure, such as Pvt. Robert Perry, one of the largest recruits in the unit.

Everyone in Open knows Nicklaus is there

DULUTH, Ga. (UPI) — In the end, it all keeps coming back to one name.

Hubert Green may be the leading money winner, Hale Irwin the hottest, Tom Weiskopf confident and others merely hopeful, but still the inescapable name on everybody's mind at the U.S. Open is the same one it always is.

"If you were going to bet," said Weiskopf, "who doesn't who are you gonna bet on?"

"He's always there," added Tom Watson. "How can you go against a guy who's won 14 major (professional) championships, hasn't missed a cut in four years (almost six years, actually), and always finishes in the top-10?"

"You can't deny the man," said Larry Ziegler, who was forced to withdraw from the Open, which begins Thursday, because of a pulled shoulder muscle. "Go back, look at the Masters. He didn't play that well, and still he finished third."

The guy they're all talking about, of course, is Jack Nicklaus.

"I'm playing well," said Nicklaus, who until now has not had by his standards, a particularly outstanding year with "only" one victory in seven starts. "But I'm in a good frame of mind, and now I've got my tournament (this new Memorial Tournament at Dublin, Ohio) behind me."

Frame of mind—the mental part of the game—is always so important in the U.S. Open. The course is set to exciting standards with its narrow fairways, tangled rough that has the consistency of steel wool, and slick, hard, fast greens, and nobody can survive without some bogeys and an occasional double bogey. But few people have the ability Nicklaus has to forget misfortune and get back to work.

In fact, a lot of people think the mental side of the game is all that separates Nicklaus from Weiskopf, his former Ohio State teammate who many consider a superior shotmaker.

"Weiskopf hits the ball as good as anybody," Ziegler said. "Why doesn't he win more? There's got to be more to it than just hitting the ball."

When I watch Nicklaus playing I just like to think of what's going through his mind."

The site of this Open, the first time the national championship ever has been played in the deep South, is Atlanta Athletic Club, Bobby Jones' old club but not his golf course. The 7,015-yard, par-7 layout was built nine years ago along the Chattahoochee River, and it's one of the few times the U.S. Open has been played on a relatively untested golf course.

Some controversy had been expected about a few of the holes, such as the notable 40-yard finishing hole which features water to the left of the fairway and in front of the green, and could provide the setting for a spectacular finish. But the only hole that seems to have sparked much discussion is the 11th, at 480 yards the longest par-4 in U.S. Open history.

"That will be a par-5 for most people," Watson said.

It requires a drive of approximately 200 yards to reach a small, flat landing area for the second shot downhill to the green. Anything less than that will leave players facing a long iron or fairway wood from a downhill lie.

"There's no particular hole other than 11 that's gonna favor anybody," said John Mahaffey, runner-up to Lou Graham last year. "That hole favors the long hitters."

"It's not a classic course, but it's consistently difficult," said Johnny Miller. "Medinah (last year's Open course outside Chicago) had its good and bad holes. If you got under trees there you had a chance to recover. But not here. A lot of holes are so tough I don't know what words to use to describe them."

"I've played in Opens at Pebble Beach, Winged Foot and Oakmont," said Mahaffey. "You don't have the fear here that you have at places like that. You go there and hear legends, about holes where guys have made nines and tens on. You don't have that here."

Miller believes the winning score could be "one of the highest in Open history," particularly if it does not rain and the greens get hard. But Nicklaus says he expects someone to shoot "reasonably low."

Watson believes "there are a lot of birdsie opportunities," and Irwin thinks the greens are "slower and softer" than is usual for the Open.

Thirteen different players have won the last 12 tournaments on the PGA tour, ever since Green won three straight and then took a week off. Those who have not won in that stretch include Nicklaus, Weiskopf, Irwin and Miller, and it's not inconceivable one of them will win this weekend.

Weiskopf—sometimes moody, sometimes brilliant, has placed in the top 10 in his last three tournaments. He says, "right now, I'm in a good period—ever though I'm not winning." He has one major to his credit, the '73 British Open.

Irwin, the '74 U.S. Open champ, has been threatening

Nicklaus' dominance of the tour this year much as Miller did two years ago. He has two victories, a second, a third, a fourth and a fifth place in six of his last nine starts.

Miller isn't particularly bubbling with optimism but believes that "in the back of my mind, I'm capable of a low round."

It can also be recalled that the last three Open winners—Miller, Irwin and Graham—were surprise winners. Miller and Irwin since have earned superstar ranking but hardly can be considered in that category before winning the Open.

Foreman praises everyone as confidence flows at new high

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — The morning after he punched Joe Frazier into retirement and himself into a position to regain the heavyweight championship, George Foreman had praise for everyone—his beaten adversary, his handlers, even Muhammad Ali.

"He will be a champion always because he's got champions in his corner," Foreman said Wednesday at Frazier when he and Joe met the press at a poolside news conference. "His victories will always be much greater than any of his losses."

"Joe Frazier's a tremendous individual, he's courageous, he's one of the finest people in boxing. I can't have anything but praise for him."

Foreman was also satisfied with the way he fought Frazier.

"That was a good boxing performance," Foreman said. "It was clear to me that I was not only fighting Joe Frazier but his corner and strategies as well. It was a tough fight mentally. I want to work like a journeyman fighter. After the third round I saw there wasn't gonna be an easy knockout. I thought it might go the distance so I layed down the groundwork and hit the body."

But Foreman, his ego intact and his confidence flowing at an all-time high, was also quick to give credit to his corner.

"It was the best cornerwork I've had in boxing," said Foreman, who fired his handlers after being knocked out by Muhammad Ali in Zaire in October of 1974. "There was mutual respect in the ring. I asked a question, they answered. I listened. I did what they said. I was very pleased by the precision work in the corner."

With that in mind, Foreman set his sights on scattering scores with Muhammad Ali, who defends his title Sept. 28 against Ken Norton in New York's Yankee Stadium.

"At least he's going to fight the leading contender instead of the 'least' contenders," Foreman quipped. "When we fight this time it will be like picking peas, like a country boy picking peas."

"The worst thing I did after the first Frazier bout was to stay inactive. I want to stay busy. I can't stay idle. Inactivity can kill me as well. I'll try to pick up and see what the promoters have to say."

"Jimmy Young would be an excellent choice. He's somebody a lot of people believe beat the champion."

Frazier, who wore dark glasses to hide a right eye completely closed by a cut that required five stitches, said he'll miss boxing but had no regrets.

Owners offer bait

NEW YORK (UPI) — The 24 major league baseball clubs told the players association Wednesday that $80,000 will be deposited in the players' benefit plan provided that the players or their association do not prevent the all-star game from being played.

It has been reported that labor disputes between the players and club owners might prompt a player walk-out of the July 13 classic.

Should a walk-out occur, the owners say they will not deposit the money.

The owners proposed in April to deposit $77 million, in each of the next four years, to the players' benefit plan. However, in the absence of a binding agreement between the parties, the owners say they will only deposit the $80,000 provided that the all-star game is played.

Owner representative John Gaherin, in a letter to player representative Marvin Miller, said this is the "same deposit and conditions which prevailed" between the players and club owners last year.

Players can't see TPC making 'major'

DULUTH, Ga. (UPI) — Hale Irwin and Tom Weiskopf said Wednesday an idea of the TPC's to make the Tournament Players Championship to ever reach "major" status despite efforts in that direction by pro golf Commissioner Deane Beman.

At the present time there are four tournaments carrying the "major" label—the U.S. Open, the British Open, the Masters and the PGA Championship.

"The TPC has a stronger field than any of these four," said Weiskopf. "I'd rate the TPC the strongest, the PGA second and the Open third. But, I doubt it will ever have the same sort of tradition."

"Once we go to five majors, the doors would swing open to others. There'd be six, seven, eight in short order. I guess we'd have to stop at 12 since that would be one a month."

"I don't think we'll ever get to No. 5," said Irwin. "I mean no disrespect to Mr. Beman, but you'll notice that none of the players have ever called the TPC a major championship."

Irwin, who won the U.S. Open in 1974 and, as this year's No. 2 money winner ($175,000) rates as a solid contender this week, said he "thinks the U.S. Open deserves to be listed as the top tournament because it is our national championship."

Weiskopf indicated some partiality toward the British Open, the only "major" he has won. "The British Open is the only major I go to ahead of time," he said, "and that's only so I can adjust to the time change."

"As for the other majors, I never go in ahead of time to practice. I never have and I never will."

That prompted a question as to whether he was more excited about the U.S. Open than some of the other four stops.

"Of course," said Weiskopf. "But, what do you want me to do, turn earthwheels?"

Weiskopf teamed with Arnold Palmer to play Irwin and Jack Nicklaus in Wednesday's final pre-Open practice session.

Weiskopf said he didn't know what he shot. "I don't get paid for practice."

Finley gives judges, owners and players object lesson in reserve clause value

Brewers discuss 'almost' trades

NEW YORK (UPI) — The way everybody is getting so worked up about that awful Charlie Finley, calling him all kinds of terrible names and walling over what an outrageous thing he did, you'd think for sure he committed some high crime.

What crime?

Charlie Finley performed a public service. For baseball fans everywhere, for his fellow owners, yes, even for all the ballplayers. He was the only one with guts enough to do it.

They shouldn't give him a bad time for selling Joe Rudi and Rolfe Fingers to the Red Sox and Vida Blue to the Yankees for $3 million. They should give him a medal.

More than anybody else, Charlie Finley is demonstrating vividly baseball is doomed if it continues without some form of reserve clause. He's proving it to the fans, the players, the owners, Peter Seitz and Marvin Miller.

Charlie Finley is showing that every man has a limit, whether it's a club owner who feels the way he does, that he was being ranged up by his Oakland players; or whether it's the poor over-clubbed baseball fan who has to keep shelling out more and more for the same nine innings. Maybe he isn't doing it in the most orthodox fashion, but Charlie Finley is proving that if the fans quit coming out, it's goodbye players, goodbye owners and then goodbye baseball.

What about all the money he's getting for his players, you ask?

Okay, what about it? He can't go to bed with the money. He can't even spend it because he has an uncle guaranteed to take most of it, Uncle Sam.

Nobody wants to win more than Charlie Finley. I've seen him put winning above money many times and so have his players. But it is so hard to understand what he means when he says: "I just refuse to let these athletes drive me into bankruptcy with their astronomical, unjustified salary demands."

I can understand what he means. What makes it amusing is that all his critics would love to do the same thing he did—if they had his courage. And his ballplayers: Why do you think went out and got them? You're right, Charlie Finley did.

Baseball needed a good shaking up and maybe he's providing it by illustrating the obvious weakness of players becoming free agents after one year.

I have to laugh at all those hollering for Bowie Kuhn to step in and make Finley stop what he's doing. Step in where? The commissioner can't do a thing, legally or otherwise, and he knows it.

What did Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis do back in the '30's when he was commissioner and Connie Mack broke up his Philadelphia A's by selling off such stars as Lefty Grove, Jimmy Fox, Mickey Cochrane, Al Simmons and others.

Landis did nothing. There wasn't anything he could do.

Marvin Miller, the head of the players union, says there's nothing to worry about if the players gain their free agency. He says only a few will choose to go to other clubs. I'd like him to bounce that one off the wall for me again. Nice and slow-bly.

Ken Holtzman has been with three clubs now in less than three months and still hasn't signed his contract. Actually, he was with four, but a deal for him with Kansas City was cancelled last Sunday after it already had been made because his terms weren't met.

The Royals had agreed to give him $155,000 this year, $165,000 next year and $175,000 the year after. That's $495,000. The deal came apart when Holtzman wanted $175,000 guaranteed for the fourth year plus an extra $20,000 if he was traded.

For awhile it looked as if there might be a race in the American League East but you can forget about that now. The only race will be between the two teams with the money, the Yankees and the Red Sox. The other four clubs can go home.

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — If Nolan Ryan hadn't pitched so well against Milwaukee, he might have wound up wearing a Brewer uniform. And if Charlie Finley had not decided to sell Joe Rudi instead of making a player trade, Rudi also might have become a Brewer.

Jim Baumer, general manager of the Brewers, said Wednesday the club had been trying to work out a trade with either the Oakland A's or California Angels and that the trades almost materialized.

But the trading deadline came at 2 a.m. Wednesday and the Brewers failed to complete a transaction.

Baumer said one of the last calls the club made was to the Angels and he said that Ryan, who beat the Brewers Tuesday night on a two-litter, was the player the Brewers wanted.

Ryan's name was bantered about quite a bit, said Baumer. "I think there was a good chance something would have happened if Ryan had not pitched so well Tuesday night but that was his best game of the season, so they obviously decided to keep him."

Baumer also said that the Brewers were talking to Oakland about acquiring Rudi and that thought we were pretty close to getting him.

But Finley's decision to sell Rudi for cash instead of trading him messed up the deal for the Brewers. Finley sold Rudi and Rolfe Fingers to the Boston Red Sox for $1 million each and he sold Vida Blue to the Yankees for $1.5 million.

"Originally he was trying to trade the players for other players but he said to hell with it. I'll just sell them," Baumer said.

Kuhn calls meeting to discuss Finley's sales

NEW YORK (UPI) — (EDT) Thursday meeting Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn Wednesday night restrained Oakland A's superstars Vida Blue, Joe Rudi and Rolfe Fingers from joining the active roster of their new clubs in lieu of a hearing Thursday on the slandering $2-million-dispersed sale held by owner Charlie O. Finley.

Kuhn called a 2:30 p.m.

feel require a hearing," Kuhn said in a letter to the 31 major league clubs. "As such, the three players involved will remain on the active list of the Oakland club, but may not appear in uniform or participate in Oakland games."

Meanwhile, Texas Rangers owner Brad Corbett demanded Kuhn hold the sales and scolded all reports the commissioner was behind the calling of the meeting.

Corbett said, "Kuhn didn't call any meeting, and you can quote me on this. Walter O'Malley, owner of the Los Angeles Dodgers, not one of the sport's most powerful men, wanted the meeting."

When it was suggested to Corbett that Kuhn could probably do nothing to declare the Finley deals null and void, the Texas owner said:

"Why not? I would. Let him (Finley) sue me."

"I think the commissioner should not allow any of these straight cash deals to be made while the reserve clause is in litigation."

Hawks swap VanArsdale

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI) — The Buffalo Braves Wednesday traded guard Ken Charles and swingman Dick Gittus to the Atlanta Hawks for veteran forward Tom VanArsdale.

Charles, 6-4, 180 pounds, had been a starter for the Braves most of last season, but was replaced by Eric Digregorio during the NBA playoff series against the Boston Celtics.

A three-year pro, Charles, a 25-year-old native of Trinidad, had his best season in 1974-75, averaging 7.6 points a game.

Gittus, 27, is joining his sixth team since entering the league in 1971. His finest season came in 1973-74 with Seattle when the 6-5 Texas-El Paso graduate had a 10.8 average. He was used sparingly last season.

should not allow any of these straight cash deals to be made while the reserve clause is in litigation."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 18, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Only through a new attitude will you be able to get out from some annoying tensions today. Take some time to extricate yourself from a position you inadvertently got involved in.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact a good friend to get you out of a difficult situation. Don't lose your temper with others. Keep cool during an emergency.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try to make yourself more attractive so others are more impressed. A money matter is not suitable at this time, so forget it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show higher-up that you can be trusted and you gain the higher position you want. Engage in civic affairs with the right persons.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Visit new places with a fascinating companion who can be helpful to you in the days ahead. Put aside unimportant tasks.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) It is best to handle important responsibilities in the morning. Be more practical with the one you love and get far better results.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Endeavor to find out what is expected of you by associates and come to a better understanding. Take health treatments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have a great deal of work to do and you should attend to it before engaging in recreation. Show more devotion to mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Try to cooperate more with an associate who has good ideas. Put that special talent to work and add to your income. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you talk over any problems you have with friends, you get good advice. Avoid associates as much as you can today. Be more self-reliant.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make plans with co-workers how you can be more productive and earn more money. Make future plans with mate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Any money problems you have can now be worked out satisfactorily if you apply yourself seriously. Plan how to add to present income.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day for making long-range plans for the future. Showing appreciation to those who have done you favors is wise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she should be taught to be practical at an early age. Instill in your progeny's mind the importance of finishing whatever has been started. Direct the education along business lines for greatest success. Don't neglect religious training.

what's what

L.M. Boyd

Do men who marry women older than themselves tend to chase? So inquires a client. Our Love and War man wouldn't say so, no. The fact that Distell, who was younger than his wife-by-at least a dozen years, kept four different bedrooms for himself so nobody ever knew where he was sleeping, that doesn't prove anything. And the fact that President Warren G. Harding, who also was younger than his wife, developed a reputation as a closet lover, that doesn't prove anything, either.

Some anti-bill in Australia are a little like compasses. The white ant of the desert is a little like a compass that points directly north and south.

It was the Babylonian Hammurabi Code of 4,000 years ago, too, that first set a maximum interest rate for loans.

FIRST TV AD

Q: "Who sponsored the first TV commercial?"
A: The first TV commercial was on a Tuesday, July 1, 1941. Station WNDT, now WNBC, ran it at a cost of $9, as follows: "At the sound-of-the-tone it will be exactly 1:30 (Tone) - B-U-L-O-V-A - Bulova watch time." Any seasoned citizen will tell you the same commercial had been running for many years on radio.

Q: "How do you account for the fact that the bloodhound grows a lot more skin than body?"
A: Among the early hounds, the looser the skin, the better the chance for survival. Because the predators' teeth were less likely to get a firm grip. That's one theory.

Q: "What kind of musical instruments are used in a Chinese orchestra?"
A: Drums, cymbals, castanets, horns, flutes and three varieties of bells: po-chung, pe-chung and pin-chung.

OWNED BY WOMEN

Question arises as to how many businesses in this country are owned entirely by women. About 400,000. Two out of five are in California, New York, Texas, Illinois and Ohio. Real estate offices, cafes, stenographic services, grocery stores and motels make up a lot of those operations.

The town of "Utsa" in Japan was named with a commercial purpose. Back in the days when that country was flooding our markets with cheap imitations of our own goods, a few wily businessmen over there named one small manufacturing area so its merchandise could be stamped: "Made in Utsa."

Spring is the time when a young man's fancy turns to romance. So said the poet. Or words to that effect. But it's wrong, evidently. An intensive eight-year study shows the low point of the year for the conception of human babies falls between May and July.

Old Ed Durling contended: "Red-haired women and brown-eyed honey blondes should be kissed goodnight on the first date, and the kiss should be of a 30-second duration."
