Valley joins national fete

MAGIC VALLEY — Residents of the Magic Valley joined millions of other Americans in celebrating the nation's Bicentennial Saturday.

Parades, rodeos, beard-competitions, concerts, theatricals and arts and crafts festivals were among the activities crowding the schedules in towns throughout the Magic Valley Saturday.

Skies were sunny and with the big Elmore County race fire controlled, the smoky haze that shrouded southern Idaho for three days dissipated. Temperatures rose to near 90 degrees and fair skies are forecast for today, when most towns will wind up their celebrations of the 200th anniversary of the founding of the United States.

Today, the first focus of many Bicentennial celebrations will be in church services. A highlight of the observation of Independence Day in Twin Falls will be a union service at 11 a.m. in the City Park.

Gooding's one-day celebration Saturday was climaxed with a free barbecue at Fralin Junior High School and a dance at War Memorial Hall Saturday.

Many area residents crowded Gooding's Main Street Saturday morning to view a Bicentennial parade which featured entries from church, civil, farm and business organizations throughout Gooding County. Additional floats from Jerome also participated.

During the afternoon there was a musical program and dedication of a veterans' memorial plaque and Bicentennial Wagon Trail scroll presentation in county officials.

In Twin Falls, Saturday's activities started at 11 a.m. with a parade through the central part of town. Gaffe-dressed spectators in a holiday mood lined Main Avenue and Stonehenge Street to watch the procession.

Artisans and craftsmen displayed their exhibits at the College of Southern Idaho all afternoon. The Dilettantes, Magic Valley Little Theater, Northwest Opera Association, and Antique Festival Theater performed for festive audiences.

There were street dances on the mall at CSI during the evening.

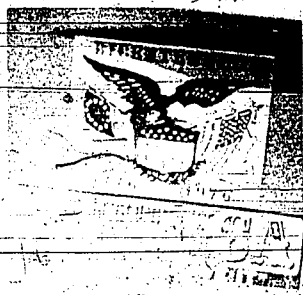

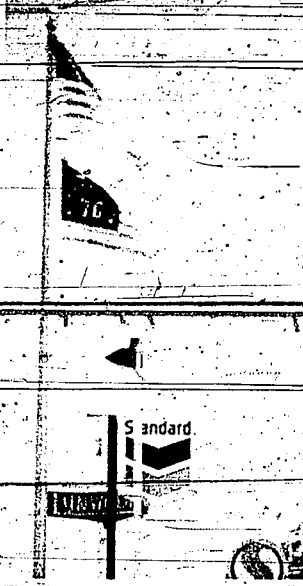

In Blaine County, rick music wafted from the base of Bald Mountain, a shoot-out was staged on Main Street in Halley, costumed children paraded, a rodeo was held, and residents danced the night away at the Halley armory.

There was an ice carnival in Sun Valley.

Court's decision saves 2 in Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — U. S. Supreme Court decisions allowing the death penalty apparently knocked out capital punishment in Idaho Friday, thereby saving the lives of two condemned killers on death row.

While the decisions said the death penalty may be invoked, they said judges and juries must be allowed some discretion. Idaho law at present allows no such discretion.

The decisions upheld death penalty laws in Georgia, Texas and Florida while at the same time declaring unconstitutional the penalties in North Carolina and Louisiana.

Idaho's legislature rewrote its law in 1973 — after an earlier high court decision that too much discretion would invalidate such a law.

The Gem State made the death penalty mandatory for conviction of first-degree murder, patterning the law after one adopted by North Carolina.

"Unfortunately, Idaho copied the North Carolina statute and it does not allow discretion," Attorney General Wayne L. Kildwell said. "So it does appear Idaho is invalidated by the decision. The Supreme Court decision which allows the death penalty to be invoked ironically invalidates Idaho's death penalty statute."

The legislature was following the earlier case, and in that case the Supreme Court said there was too much discretion in the Georgia statute.

"So the Idaho legislature in 1973 was attempting to do what the Supreme Court said it was supposed to do."

"Now, the Supreme Court has eroded or almost changed their thinking from that decision and has adopted a new approach."

"It appears Idaho is going to have to change its statute. At this time it looks like the Georgia approach is the best way to go. That is a two-stage approach: first the jury must decide if a defendant is guilty of first-degree murder and then it must go back and decide if there are aggravating or mitigating circumstances and whether the death penalty should be inflicted."

Washington descendants raise Stars and Stripes

ATLANTA (UPI) — Twenty-seven descendants of George Washington got together Saturday night to lower the Union Jack and raise the Stars and Stripes in a celebration of the nation's Bicentennial.

George Washington had no children, but his wife Martha, a widow when George married her, had four by her first marriage and George had other nephews, nieces, and cousins. Descendants of these came from as far as New Mexico and Ohio to hail the nation's 200th birthday.

The group, joined by five descendants of British Gen. Charles Cornwallis, whose surrender to Washington at Yorktown led to the end of British rule over the 13 colonies, toasted Queen Elizabeth and President Ford and at midnight, lowered the British flag and raised Old Glory.

Dressed in colonial garb, several members of the group reenacted the toast between Washington and Cornwallis after the Battle of Yorktown.

Most of the descendants were strangers and were eager to compare lineage.

Barton Babanks of Austin, Tex., brought his wife and three teen-age daughters to the celebration at Ardmore town hotel.

Ethanks said he had no "egotistical pride" about being related to Samuel Washington, one of George's brothers, but "it's significant to see what one's ancestors have accomplished."

Miss Thornton White of Alexandria, La., said she was related to Charles Washington, another brother.

"We have some of the Washington silver, also the will of his mother," she said. "We're proud, but not bragging proud. We feel very humble."

Colby Biggs, a junior high school principal from Dayton, Ohio, said he didn't find out about his heritage until his grandmother died when he was 20 and left him some papers.

Ford casts 51st

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford Saturday cast the 51st veto, rejecting a politically sensitive bill that would have given western states a bigger share of royalties from mining and oil drilling on federal land leased to private industries.

Asked whether all 51 of Israel's and 43 French nationals held hostage had been freed, an army spokesman said: "We're being very precise about the announcement and we have nothing further to say at this time."

He said a news conference would likely be held later in the morning when more information became available. There was no word on the fate of the hijackers, or whether any of the commandos or hostages has been wounded in the rescue.

Israeli sources here said the commandos flew the 2,300 miles direct from Israel to Entebbe in three planes — two Boeing 707 military cargo jets and one Hercules cargo plane.

Parades protest state of nation after 200 years

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Few flags and no patriotic banners decorate N. 2nd and 3rd Streets, routes of two July Fourth parades intended to protest, not celebrate, the state of the nation after 200 years.

Shortly after 10 a.m. the radical Rich Off Our Back July Fourth Coalition begins its march in northeastern Philadelphia to protest what it calls exploitation of the poor by the rich, and to broadcast a slogan of one component group — "We Won't Fight Another Rich Man's War." They hope for 1,000 people.

The coalition, composed of Vietnam Veterans Against the War, The Revolutionary Communist Party, the Radical Student Brigade, Unemployed Workers Organizing Committee and similar groups, has this particular parade route not by choice but by federal court order.

They wanted to march to the center of the city when President Ford speaks. They also wanted a tent city and an outdoor concert, both of which the court denied. The city also successfully blocked attempts to erect a Workers' History pavilion in the park by requiring $1 million in insurance.

The Norris Square community in the let-live tradition of many mixed communities, plans to protest apart from what local political leaders already have done, but they are not happy.

On the west side of Broad Street, initial problems over routing of the other alternate parade were worked out between community groups and the July Fourth Coalition. That group is a mixture of some 400 minority groups, including the American Indian Movement, the Puerto Rican Socialist Party, Black Panthers, gay liberation groups, women's groups and black economic and social action groups.

The new routing for the parade, which is expected to draw 40,000 people, is down one edge of 4,000-acre Fairmount Park. Old stately homes, some shabby, some abandoned, many freshly and brightly painted, line the other side of the street. Behind 33rd Street is a neighborhood of closely packed brick row homes similar to those around Second Street but occupied mostly by blacks.

Cars with loudspeakers have been circulating the narrow streets urging a huge turnout for the parade.

"We the Black people have nothing to celebrate. The Bicentennial is a lie," is the message.

New flag wired

GILROY, Calif. (UPI) — Merle Johnson's American flags have become targets for Bicentennial thieves.

Johnson said Friday he has installed a burglar alarm on the U.S. flag in front of his home because thieves have made off with five of them in recent weeks.

Porkies draw big turnout

COUNCIL, Idaho (UPI) — Some 3,000 people gathered at Council to celebrate the country's 200th Fourth of July by cheering at a race of quill-covered basketballs.

The fifth annual Council Chamber of Commerce Porcupine Race attracted spectators from all over the country as the varmints and their handlers came out of the woods to race on an 80-foot-long track.

The Adams County Commissioners swept the top honors as their porcupine, named "14-1" after a controversial tax law in the county, waddled away with first place — and $100. No one knew if the prize money would go into the tax kitty.

A group of 12 bicyclists, The Spokes, took third place and pocketed a $30 prize for their cross-country trip as part of the Bicentennial. The bikers were from as far away as Tennessee, Ohio and California and started their trip at Astoria, Ore. and will finish the trip in Washington, D.C.

The event was conducted in a series of heats which pitted the best racers against each other.

Each porcupine had two handlers — one carried the critter in a garbage can to the starting line and put it over the racer. When the starting gun was fired the can was lifted and the porcupines emerged from the darkness into the glare of sun and frenzy on the straightaway.

The second handler was allowed to change the direction of the porcupine with the gentle guidance of a broom at any time but no swatting or coercion was permitted in the race.

New York flotilla in place

NEW YORK (UPI) — An awesome array of warships from 21 nations, watched by hundreds of thousands of persons along the shores of Long Island Sound, has maneuvered Saturday into positions they will hold for the Fourth of July review of sailing ships.

To piers, parks, skyscrapers, beaches, and boardwalks, the spectators came. Helicopters and blimps hovered above the sea-going panorama and small boats cut sparkling wakes in the summer sunshine among the gray naval ships.

More than 10,000 persons crowded the shore at Sandy Hook National Park on the New Jersey shore south of the harbor, where 20 tall sailing ships — their graceful canvas and towering spars reminiscent of another era — lay at anchor awaiting Sunday's sea parade.

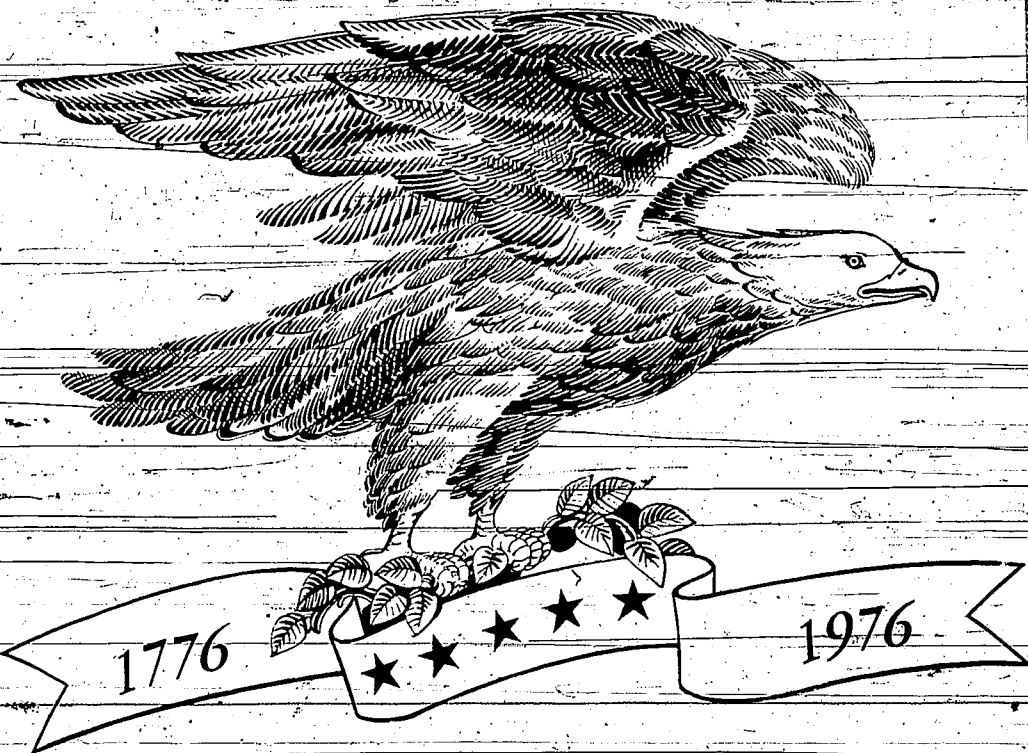

Nearly 250 sailing vessels, under 30 flags, will follow the wake of the warships into the Hudson River on Sunday.

Saturday's crowds were considered only the forerunner of a forecast 5 to 7 million spectators who are expected to create Sunday the greatest throng in New York's history to watch the nautical show and a nighttime fireworks display.

Fearing traffic jams that would be monumental even for New York City, officials have closed many highways along or leading to the shoreline and banned parking in many areas, including all of lower Manhattan Island.

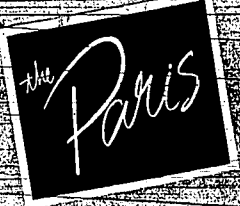

In the Hudson River, the U.S.S. Intrepid, central in its four-day journey from Charleston, S.C., and began its job as flagship for Sunday's International Naval Review.

Behind the 477-foot guided missile cruiser, 48 other ships formed a 28-mile-long parade to the Bicentennial as they cruised into New York harbor beneath the arching spray of fireboat Salute.

Destiny is not a matter of chance,
it is a matter of choice;
it is not a thing to be waited for,
it is a thing to be achieved.

We must continue to shape
our country's destiny with our commitment to achievement.

Celebration day early for imprisoned Yankees

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — There won't be any fireworks, but Americans in Mexican jails marked the U.S. Bicentennial day early with hot dogs, lemonade and — for some — the company of female prisoners.

Mexican penal officials, who have been charged with brutality in the treatment of the U.S. drug offenders, agreed to let them celebrate the Fourth of July behind prison walls Saturday.

Wardens of U.S. Embassies, official, asked authorities at the Lecumberri and Santa Maria Prisons if they would let the incarcerated Americans hold special celebrations and the Mexican officials consented.

There are about 160 Americans serving terms in the two prisons. Lecumberri, known as "The Black Palace," has 80 male prisoners and there are another 80 at Santa Maria, 40 males and 40 females held in separate sections.

After the news of the Mexican approval spread, wives of U.S. Embassy staff set Operation Fourth of July in motion. They began preparing hot dogs, lemonade and homemade specialties to be sent inside the gate in time for a picnic lunch.

The Mexican warden was president of the celebration, ball, touch football and listened in music. But the loudest cheers were expected at Santa Maria where male and female inmates were being united for the festivities.

There were no recreational plans at Lecumberri, a smaller institution. In recent letters to President Ford, Mexican President Luis Echeverria, and former President Nixon, the U.S. President Nixon, the U.S.

Jefferson descendants celebrate

CHARTERSVILLE, Va. — Sunday marks not only the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence but also the 150th anniversary of the death of Thomas Jefferson, the declaration's author.

So July 4, 1976, is an extra-special day for Jefferson descendants, though in that special Jefferson manner they seem disinclined to make a special fuss.

"I think I'll just be myself," Rob Cole, one of the third generation great-grandsons, said with a chuckle. Cole looks like Thomas Jefferson reincarnate and stars in a locally produced Bicentennial skit. He has his famous forebear's flaming red hair, the freckles, the strong mouth, the solid jaw, even the athletic frame.

Gypsy culture exhibit display opens

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Gypsy James Marks can neither read nor write, but on July 4, at the invitation of President Ford, he will unveil 2,000 years of Gypsy culture as part of the Smithsonian Institution's "Nation of Nations" exhibit in Washington, D.C.

"The older Gypsies are afraid of being swallowed by the Americans. The younger Gypsies are realizing they are in the system so they are going to take the opportunities of this great nation."

Marks, 29, a used car salesman from Spokane, worked for 18 months to put together the display of his people's heritage and history. After the unveiling, he will represent the Gypsy nation at the White House when Ford addresses a Bicentennial ceremony.

"I'll be sitting with Blacks, Indians and other minorities," he said. "This will be a first for Gypsies. I'm excited for our people, for our people."

Last wagon train ends trek at Valley Forge

'Gimmick' duplicates pioneer way

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) — The Bicentennial Wagon Train, originally created as an advertising gimmick, turned out to be more of a replica of pioneer travel than expected — three travelers died, horses became sick and seven couples were married.

Five wagon trains, one of which left Blaine, Wash., 301 days ago, converged on Valley Forge State Park Saturday in preparation for ceremonies with President Ford on Sunday.

The way back home for the 300 riders and their families, they'll take advantage of modern technology this time. Most have brought horse vans with them or plan to sell their horses at local auctions.

Project Director Bob Gnyar described the journey, which covered virtually the entire country as a "microcosm of America."

The project began when the Pennsylvania Bicentennial Commission asked for suggestions on how to promote the state's celebration of the nation's 200th birthday and attract people to Pennsylvania. The Philadelphia advertising firm of Altkin-Kynell Co. Inc. conceived the idea for the Bicentennial Wagon Train.

The 200 wagons were greeted by cheering crowds daily, led by horsemen given weekly by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, dropped food from a Navy helicopter while crossing a Nevada desert and even for jackets from an Oklahoma manufacturer to keep warm.

But not unlike the pioneers, 200 years ago, the wagon trains had problems. Three riders died; two of heart attacks, Doug Druse, who left Blaine June 8, 1975 on the first wagon train, died weeks later went to bed one night and never woke up. Graver said. The Washington wagon train carries a plaque in memory of him.

Levee leak stirs Sugar City fears

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho — Sugar City, the first town hit by the wall of water released when the Teton Dam collapse June 5 was beginning to lift its head and try to find the spill to celebrate the nation's 200th birthday when a tremor of fear shook the town.

A levee on the South Fork of the Teton River sprung a leak about noon Saturday threatening to flood the town again.

Temporary home sites — 120 of them — could have been damaged if the leak had grown and become uncontrollable, said a spokesman for the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration.

This time, however, the FDA and all the emergency agencies of the federal and state government, as well as many private entities under contract for flood damage repair, were ready.

The leak developed in a levee about four miles from flood-devastated Sugar City and an FDA spokesman said officials at the site speculated that the river would have delivered water at least to the outskirts of the rebuilding town.

The break, estimated by Soil Conservation Service engineers to be about 100 ft. long, "is not spilling large quantities of water" but six inches to one foot of water is flowing over the breach.

By noon Saturday the FDA had authorized Soil Conservation Service to advise the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to use the contractors already in the area and move it once to close the breach.

The corps team finished their flood fight work Friday and had dispersed their personnel and contractors.

Tom Spofford, with the Soil Conservation Service, said the flow could be stopped today and the levee could be completely repaired within 24 hours. He said serious damage cap be averted.

The Bureau of Reclamation also has contractors in the area and will send them to the levee site if necessary.

Corps engineers said that the Teton was flowing at 3,000 cubic feet per second, which is near normal for this time of year. The river gauges show a 150 cubic feet per second drop in the last 24 hours.

Sealed capsules record US today

By United Press International
Time capsules, those antiquely American devices for creating instant history, are being sealed at record rates in hopes of showing Tricentennial celebrants what was dear to hearts in 1976.

Time capsule — 20 feet long, 10 feet wide and 6 feet high, which they have spent the last year filling with some 10,000 items. Included is a yellow Chevrolet Vega coupe, complete with radio and heater, a motorcycle, a bikini bathing suit and a frying pan.

Harold Davison, a Seward businessman who headed the capsule drive, said the high tomb of American consumables will be sealed in several weeks and opened in 2025.

"The main reason we wanted it opened in 24 years instead of 100 was to enable children who saw the capsule started in the first place to see it opened," Davison said. "If you waited for a large piggy bank. Second place went to."

One of the items being placed in a time capsule in Wellington, Okla., is a miniature picture of the "Spirit of 76," the famous painting by Archibald Willard, a native of the Logan County community.

Willard, who died in 1918, unveiled the first of his paintings at Philadelphia's Centennial celebration.

In Topeka, Kan., state judicial officials Wednesday filed a time capsule with 20th century memorabilia to be placed in the cornerstone of the Kansas Supreme Court building.

Inside the copper box are legal documents; a 1976 World Almanac; a Kansas Directory; a Bicentennial quarter and half-dollar; a $1 bill and a new $2 bill; and various items of historic concern. The box will be pumped full of helium to preserve the contents.

In Crystal Lake, Ill., the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission says it plans to buy a $1,000 government bond, signed by Treasury Secretary William Simon, to be placed in a time capsule for unsealing in 2076.

The commission said it will solicit the signatures of citizens to accompany the bond, and will accept a $1 donation from each signer to help cover the cost of the bond and its storage. Signers will be recorded as holding a share in the bond.

A treasury official has estimated by the time the bond is taken from the capsule in 2076 it will be worth $1 million.

In the Pittsburgh suburb of Mount Lebanon, two stainless steel capsules will be buried beneath a sun dial under construction in Tricentennial plaza.

Borrowed flag stolen

BOUNTIFUL, Utah (UPI) — Somebody stole the 30 x 40 foot American flag which Bountiful had borrowed to display for the Bicentennial celebration.

City Manager Grant Peterson said the huge flag was hanging from its floodlit pole in a city park at midnight last week when police drove by about 3 o'clock Saturday morning it was gone.

Gem high court upholds shooting death judgment

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court upheld Friday a Sixth District Court judgment that three Tetonello residents were negligent in a fatal shooting death during a party at their home.

Mary Joyner had brought action against William H. and Mary Burke Jones and Miss Burke's daughter, Monica, seeking damages for the death of her son, Percy Joyner Jr., during a party at the Jones home.

The shooting occurred when an invited guest, Richard Woodward, showed up with a gun at a party being held by Miss Burke, who asked that Woodward stand by her door and not remove or surrender the weapon.

After a brief discussion, Joyner apparently tried to take the gun from Woodward and it discharged, killing Joyner.

In an opinion by Chief Justice Joseph J. Madden, the Supreme Court held the ob-viousness of the danger posed by the gun exceeded any possible duty of the defendants to warn Joyner of that danger.

The high court also ruled the defendants were not responsible for the actions of Woodward because he was a third party and under their control and the danger was as obvious to Joyner as it was to Miss Burke.

Furthermore, the court said Joyner's action in attempting to take the gun from Woodward was an intervening, superseding cause of the injury that would relieve the defendants of any possible liability for negligence in their failure to advise Joyner of the danger.

In another ruling, the Supreme Court affirmed a judgment awarding $18,236 to Jesse S. Eberhard and Gary W. Holsapple of Caldwell, who had brought suit to recover compensation for feeding and caring for 900 head of cattle owned by Albert Pellandini Jr. and Robert Pellandini.

Reports due

BOISE (UPI) — Campaign financial reports are now due at the secretary of state's office.

Secretary of State Pete T. Cenarrusa reminded political treasurers certified under the Sunshine Law Friday that they are required to turn in their campaign financial statements this week.

Cenarrusa said reports are deemed timely if they are received in the secretary of state's office on or before July 5. Mailed reports should be postmarked on or before July 4.

Teton collapse report due

DENVER (UPI) — The Interior Department will release a report next week offering five possible causes for the Teton Dam collapse, which killed 10 persons and caused more than $1 billion in damages.

The study of the June 5 accident was made by an independent panel set up by the federal agency and Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The nine-member investigation panel, headed by Wallace Chadwick, met last week in closed sessions. Chadwick said panel members requested the hearings be closed to insure the accident was discussed in a "frank and open" manner.

However, he said the panel will conduct a public hearing later this month in Idaho and set up an Idaho Falls office to continue the inquiry. Chadwick is a Los Angeles-based consultant to the California Division of Dam Safety.

The Bureau of Reclamation issued a preliminary report on the dam failure last month, indicating water from the reservoir seeped through the north abutment and weakened a portion of the earth and rock dam.

Callister nominated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Marion J. Callister, U.S. District Attorney for Idaho, was officially nominated by President Ford Friday to replace J. Blaine Anderson as Federal District Court Judge of Boise.

Anderson's appointment to the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco was confirmed by the U.S. Senate earlier in the day.

Sen. James McClure recommended Callister's appointment, which also must be confirmed by the Senate.

A native of Blackfoot,

Callister was just recently confirmed by the Senate as U.S. Attorney for Idaho. He previously held a number of judicial positions in Idaho, including serving as Fourth District Judge in Boise.

Decision news

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission expects to determine the fate of the Pioneer coal-fired generating plant by the end of summer, M. Karl Shurtliff, commission president, said Friday.

Shurtliff said the PUC will make an effort to issue a decision either granting or dismissing the application by Idaho Power Co. to build the Pioneer plant "as expeditiously as possible."

Hearings had been expected to end this week but the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare asked for one more series of hearings to get its full case on the record.

Dam fill exceeded plan rate

BOISE (UPI) — U.S. Bureau of Reclamation officials said they allowed the Teton Dam reservoir to fill with spring snowmelt up to four times faster than dam designer recommended.

They said they did so because of serious leaks in unexpected table incrustations developed the day before the collapse.

Engineers at the dam site were unable to slow the rate of filling, once the decision was made, because river outlets had not been completed. The outlets were not finished although they were scheduled for completion in May.

The rapid fill was described "as one of the most salient points to be looked at closely" by the chairman of the investigating committee chairman William Chadwick.

The reservoir was filled up to four feet a day at times.

"I would not have filled a reservoir that big that fast," R. Keith Hingston, director of Idaho Water Resources, said.

He said that the first time a reservoir is filled, any problems such as major leaks appear. Slow filling allows time to deal with such problems, he said.

The 17-mile-long reservoir was about three-fifths full when leaks weakened the north side of the earth structure.

Ten persons died and an estimated $1 billion in property damage was done in the flood.

Open dam hearings may cost panelists

BOISE (UPI) — The chairman of the panel investigating the failure of the Teton Dam and several other members of the team have threatened to quit if the committee must open its hearings to the public.

Bill Aulter, Gov. Cecil D.

Andrus, nor Secretary of Interior Thomas Kleppe, the two men who appointed the committee, plan to make such a demand although both have suggested open proceedings.

The governor is maintaining his "strong urging" that the meetings be open, a spokesman said.

Meeting in Denver Friday, the nine-member panel continued to look for the causes of the dam collapse June 5.

A spokesman for William Chadwick, committee chairman, said "if panel members are told to open the meeting he will resign and several members of the panel have said they would also."

Speaking for Gov. Andrus, an aide said, "However in line with the guarantee given by Mr. Chadwick that the tributary commission be an independent commission, he (Andrus) feels the same order."

Mr. Chadwick is open that meeting even though he strongly feels that he should do

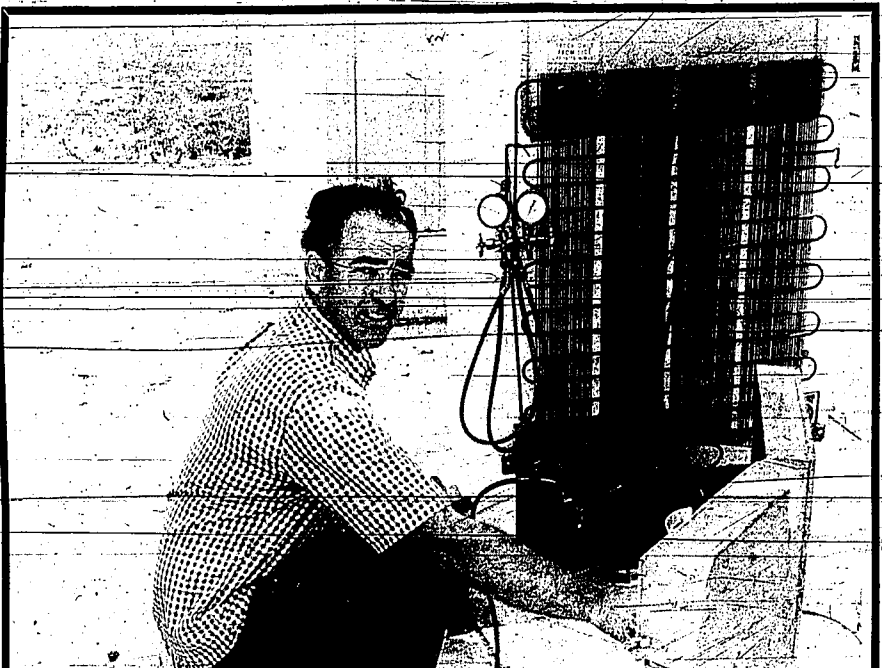

Gem cities pick Hurst

BOISE (UPI) — Mayor Harold Hurst of Heyburn was elected President of the Association of Idaho Cities 1976-77 during the association's annual conference in Coeur D'Alene this week.

Four members were also elected to the executive committee.

Mayor Dick Kaprielian was elected first vice president, Coeur D'Alene Councilman Don Peterson, second vice president, and Idaho Falls Councilman Gil Karst third vice president.

Members of the board elected at the business session include: Harold Sims, mayor of Bonanza, Borah, from district one; Richard Adams, mayor of Lewiston and Larry Sorenson, councilman of Genesee, from district two; Robert Pasley, mayor of Caldwell from district three; Floyd Taylor, Barley councilman from district four; M.W. Ferguson, mayor of American Falls, from district five and George Webman, mayor of Ammon, from district six.

Ford joins festivities, speaks at Valley Forge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the third day in a row, President Ford Saturday joined celebrated the nation's 200th birthday in a round of activities in the Washington area.

Ford spent the morning at the White House, then headed for the Burning Tree Country Club for a round of golf with Bob Hope in a match against Washington Redskins quarterback Billy Kilmer, and backer Rusty Tillman.

PRESIDENT FORD

...cites duties

States of America is about to have another happy birthday, still going strong at 200, and in the words of the great Al Jolson — "You ain't seen nothin' yet."

Ford said the United States "is probably the only country on earth that puts the pursuit of happiness right after life and liberty among the God-given rights of every human being."

In remarks prepared for delivery at Valley Forge Sunday, Ford said:

"As we continue our American adventure, the patriots of Valley Forge, and the pioneers of the American frontier, indeed all our heroes and heroines of war and peace, send us this single urgent message: Though prosperity is a good thing, though compassion, charity, is a good thing, though institutional reform is a good thing, a nation survives only so long as the spirit of sacrifice and self-discipline is strong within its people.

"Independence has to be defended as well as declared; freedom is always worth fighting for, and liberty ultimately belongs only to those willing to suffer for it.

"If we remember this, we can bring health where there is now disease, peace where there is strife, progress where there is want."

In remarks prepared for delivery Sunday at Independence Hall in Philadelphia, Ford said, "Liberty is a living flame to be fed, not dead ashes to be revered, even in a Bicentennial year."

He said Americans should ask the "hard questions" whether their institutions work, as they should; are the foundations laid in 1776 and 1789 "strong enough and sound enough to resist the tremors of our times? Are our God-given rights secure, our hard-won liberties protected?"

Ford said the "American adventure is a continuing process...As we begin our third century, is it less so much to be done."

Parade overwhelms rally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A record crowd of over half a million spectators turned out in the July heat of the nation's capital Saturday to view the Bicentennial parade picturing the progress of the American people through 200 years of freedom.

The massive throng more than tripled pre-parade estimates and went off without incident. There was one purse snatching reported during the three-hour procession and one arrest for disorderly conduct of a person who kept skittering in an artificial lake adjacent to the Washington Monument grounds.

In comparison with the parade down Constitution

Avenue, a rally by the American Nazi Party at Lafayette Park across from the White House paled into insignificance as an event in Washington's Fourth of July weekend celebration.

The half a hundred swastika-bearing adherents of the right wing group were outnumbered by watchful police and bemused tourists.

The police were on hand to prevent any disorder that might be triggered by Nazi speakers declaring "Free America from all Jewish domination and free American from nonwhite minorities."

What had posed the possibility of a physical clash between the Nazis and the Jewish Defense League did not occur after the head of the JDL's Washington chapter urged members to stay away from the rally and prevent an incident which might mar the national holiday.

However, an antagonist in the anti-Semitic parade counter-demonstrators was doused by the police and the Nazis were taunted with signs of "white trash" from the crowd.

Good reason to disperse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Parade planners say to great lengths to keep things moving. The Military District of the District of Columbia was no exception at Saturday's three-hour parade by 10,000 participants in the nation's capital.

The planners set up a dispersal area near the end of the parade route from where marchers were hustled aboard buses and transported from downtown to prevent traffic tieups.

Cargill makes big Soviet bean sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Cargill Inc., a private grain trading firm based in Minneapolis, has sold one million tons of soybeans worth about $250 million to the Soviet Union, the Agriculture Department announced Friday.

The department said Cargill is expected to draw about $800 million of soybeans worth about $200 million from the 1976 American crop for shipment in the 1976-77 marketing season which begins next fall.

The remaining 200,000 tons — and perhaps part of a Bicentennial American sale — was handled on an "optional origin" basis by Cargill's subsidiary, Traxac, S.A., of Geneva, the department said.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Richard Bell said earlier in the week that more than a million tons of U.S. soybeans could be sold to Russia without leaving American consumers short.

Soviet buyers, meanwhile, have also ordered about 2.5 million tons of American corn, wheat and oats for 1976-77 delivery. Agriculture Department officials expect these orders will eventually reach 10 to 15 million tons following purchases of 16.5 million tons in the current marketing year.

Kissinger, Vorster to confer

WASHINGTON — Another meeting, possibly next month, is projected between Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa to accelerate their search for a political solution in Rhodesia.

According to conversations in the last week with sources familiar with the secretary's talks last month with the South African leader, no dates for a second round were set.

Construction bill vetoed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford vetoed a $1.3 billion military construction measure Friday because it would diminish his power to alter military installations.

In a message to the House, Ford said he found "highly objectionable" a provision that would have required a president to give Congress about a year's notice before closing or cutting the civilian staff of military installations.

Woman pick for FCC seat

WASHINGTON — President Ford has decided to nominate Margita E. White, an assistant White House press secretary, to a seat on the Federal Communications Commission, according to administration officials.

Her nomination probably will be sent to the Senate for confirmation within two weeks so long as she clears a background check, the officials said. Miss White, 39, has been the director of the White House Office of Communications for the last two years.

Court rule saves 2 in Idaho

Thomas Eugene Creech, 26, a transient, and Philip Lindquist, 31, Spokane, awaiting death sentences at the state prison. Creech for killing two inmates and Lindquist for the murder of a woman near Rattlum.

Both men had appeared and both voiced comment on the Supreme Court's decision Friday because of their appeals.

Kidwell said he could not speak with any certainty but "the most likely result seems to be their sentences will be commuted to life imprisonment" because of the rulings.

Bruce O. Robinson, Creech's attorney said he was not surprised the high court ruled as it did. But he said he will continue with Creech's appeal because there are other aspects to it which are not affected by these decisions. He, too, felt it is "more than likely" Creech's sentence will be commuted.

"With the basis of that ruling and the Idaho statute there would be discrimination and there would either be commutation to a life sentence or the possible consideration of a new trial," Robinson said.

Robinson dismissed that the Idaho Supreme Court, meantime, has rejected motions by Oregon and California to remove Creech to those jurisdictions to face murder charges there. A source close to the court said Idaho law requires that the penalty under death sentences be held in solitary confinement until the sentence is carried out.

Valley County Prosecutor Hubert Remakhus, Cascade, declined comment on the effect of the ruling on the Creech case until he has had time to read and study the high court's opinions.

Raymond Tomkies, Jr., Spokane, one of the attorneys for Lindquist applauded the decision, saying "that's good news from our point of view."

"That's a tremendous landmark decision. I would say if that's the case, there's no question at all if Idaho's statute is mandatory, it would likely be my opinion that the Idaho statute would have to fall according to what you indicated about the North Carolina and Louisiana mandatory provisions."

"If there is premeditation and intent, under the Idaho statute you've got murder in the first degree."

Fourth District Judge J. Ray Dartsch, Creech's trial judge, said "The critical element in the decision seems to be the way the law is framed."

"I'm not going to make a comment because the case is still pending in the Idaho Supreme Court," Dartsch said, "but I feel it would be improper to make a comment at this time."

Little death row reaction

BOISE (UPI) — A decision by the U.S. Supreme Court that may overturn Idaho's death penalty laws is not getting much of a reaction from the state penitentiary's two inmates waiting on death row.

Warden Richard Anderson said Friday the two men "are just kind of taking it in and aren't saying much."

Idaho's mandatory death penalty laws "may be in trouble" as a result of the high court's decision, Attorney General Wayne Kidwell said. Pending an Idaho Supreme Court decision, Thomas E. Creech, 26, and Philip Lindquist, 31, are to be executed for premeditated murder.

Both men are appealing their convictions on several grounds in addition to arguing the unconstitutionality of the death sentence. They were "apparently optimistic about escaping the penalty," Anderson said.

Anderson said Friday he had visited the maximum security unit where the two men are maintained and said they "didn't have too much to say one way or another."

New Ruby link in JFK death?

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Daily News reported in its Sunday edition it has learned a former CIA agent told the Senate Intelligence Committee that Jack Ruby, the man who killed Lee Harvey Oswald, once discussed with Fidel Castro the possibility of assassinating President John F. Kennedy.

The News did not identify the former agent. It said his was "a contract operative — that is not a regular payroll employee — who worked for the CIA in Cuba."

The News said it learned the former agent recently got in touch with the Senate Intelligence Committee, which has been studying the possibility of reopening the investigation of Kennedy's death, and told the committee Ruby met with Castro in the summer of 1964.

The News said the agent said Ruby, a nightclub operator in Dallas, had a secret trip to Havana about a week before Kennedy's death by plane from Mexico City for the purpose of offering Castro "arms and military equipment in exchange for permission to use Cuba as a conduit for drug shipments to the U.S."

The agent, the News said, said Ruby met with Castro and four other Cuban leaders who told him the CIA had been trying to assassinate Castro and that a close aide to Castro had been killed in a recent attempt. He said Castro "blamed Kennedy for the murder, plots, and indicated that he was ready to strike back."

The News said the agent said Ruby was asked "whether he would be willing to kill Kennedy or could arrange an assassination," but said it was not known what the agent said Ruby had replied.

Magic Valley residents join 200th celebration

In Albion, the census county activities started with a Bicentennial queen's breakfast followed by a parade, a musical drama, give-away of a 1,000 pound beef, and a fireworks display.

In Rupert, the LDS Church presented a narrative of early days in America; residents took turns paying $5 to help finance and break ground for a new historical museum.

Swimmers tested their speed in swim races in the Rupert pool, and a rodeo was staged. Jerome youths played games and watched movies, the Buttans and Bows square danced, and fireworks were set off in the evening.

Buhl activities started with a pancake breakfast. An all-day sidewalk sale, a free barbecue, the crowning of the Sagebrush Days queen, and a dance with music by the Walden Brothers followed.

Today, although activities are beginning to slow down, there is still plenty to do. In Rupert, there will be music by the Old Time Fiddlers Association and a musical Indian Village will be set up by the Boy Scouts.

Buhl residents can watch the West End Bicentennial Parade at 1:30 or view the Legion Sagebrush baseball tournament games in the evening.

The arts and crafts held at CSI will continue in Twin Falls this afternoon, followed by another performance of a Bicentennial comedy by Antique Festival Theater.

Later in the evening, there will be a joint concert by the Magic Valley Choral and the Marchbards, followed by fireworks at frogger field.

In Halley, early birds can eat breakfast at the Grange Hall at 8 a.m., then watch the queen judging at the arena at 10 a.m.

A bicycle race will start at The Bank of Idaho in Ketchum at 11:30 a.m., followed at 12:30 p.m. by the Days of the Old West parade. In the afternoon, Halley City Park will be the scene of a rodeo, followed by a winter barbecue.

Winners in the Bicentennial parade, entries in Twin Falls included:

Best of Theme, South Hill Sidekicks; All-Time sweepstakes, LDS Third Ward; best commercial, Haeleondalomes; best civic entry, Valley Christian-First Christian churches; best transient entry, Twin Falls Mounted Sheriff's Posse; best band, the Twin Falls High School Band; best drill team, East Minico Junior High.

Winners in the beard contest sponsored by the foytees in Twin Falls, City Park were in four categories. Most entrants had been growing their beards since January.

The oldest beard was Ted Knight, Twin Falls, 75, the longest, Chris Beck, 97, Twin Falls; the longest beard was grown by Jerry Matthews, 72, inches. Fred Stuchel had the most distinguished looking beard.

Each winner received a belt buckle with an inscribed silver dollar.

Birthday cake sliced

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Philadelphia's "national" birthday cake, a 49,000 pound confection of chocolate and white royal icing, was unveiled to the public Saturday under the cream and baby blue dome of Memorial Hall, a relic of the centennial celebration.

And Cheryl Kaufman of Norfolk, Va., said she waited two hours with a sprained ankle to see it. "It's a beautiful cake. It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing," she said when asked if it was worth the wait.

John DeKester, project leader for Sara Lee Kitchens which baked the 50-foot high cake, said it was being viewed by about 5,000 persons each hour. Many collected one of the 25,000 chocolate cupcakes, baked from the same recipe as the original, being passed out free.

200 Klansmen march

SHEPHERDSVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — An estimated 200 robed Ku Klux Klansmen marched peacefully through the center of this northern Kentucky community Saturday despite pleas from city officials to disperse.

The Rev. Charles Kirby of Louisville, state president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said blacks would stage a march of their own in Shepherdsville in the near future to counter the Klan demonstration.

The Klansmen, led by six leaders decked out in white regalia, held the parade as part of a Bicentennial celebration.

Nurses needed at Twin Falls Hospital

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The nursing director at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital says there is a blanket need for more licensed nursing personnel at the institution.

"We have specific needs in every area," said Nursing Director Nancy Churchman from the medical floor, the surgical floor, the intensive care unit, the post-natal intensive care unit — there are needs in every area of licensed personnel and also for the supervisory staff and in the nursing office."

Hospital administrator James Rosenbaum said earlier that the institution has budgeted for 12 new full-time nurses or the equivalent. That much help, he said, would bring the nursing staff up to the "optimum level."

But Mrs. Churchman said the hospital could use more nurses if it could find them and would hire more if it could.

"Mr. Rosenbaum has budgeted for 12," she said, "but I'm sure if I could find more I would not be told no."

The hospital is now advertising for supervisory personnel, she said, and routinely advertises for nurses.

She also said the need for nursing personnel affects all shifts at the hospital, not just the day shift.

Asked if his proposed wage increase to bring the nursing pay at the hospital in line with Boise hospitals would be likely to "ease" the shortage, Mrs. Churchman said, "I hope so."

"Any director of nursing is greatly about professional help," she said.

The nursing shortage at the hospital has been one element of concern to an ad hoc committee of nurses who last week presented the hospital board a list of 16 recommendations for improvement of nursing services.

Among those recommendations was an increase in the board's per hour wage increase for nursing staff and the appointment of a director of staff development to provide a better orientation program for nurses.

Several nurses have been critical of the lack of attention at the hospital and have also charged that the nursing shortage has hindered the use of unlicensed personnel to perform chores under aseptic or sterile conditions, which is not permitted by law.

Mrs. Churchman said earlier that such violations were not extensive.

TF facility may not close

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, Inc., may not have to close its facilities on July 5 after all.

A petition drive and several phone calls helped get immediate action by the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare (IDHW) to restore transportation to 14 clients which had been without a ride to the facility after July 1, according to Grant Zollinger, Wendell.

Dennis McDermott, regional director of HAW, said, "We have assured that by July 8, the date that MVRS said they would have to close, we would have the clients there by some means."

HAW, the agency which had been providing transportation for the clients it referred to MVRS, "got out of the transportation business because of a cutback in our Child Development Center (CDC) appropriation," McDermott said.

He said that HAW did not have the money this year to provide all the services they provided out of the CDC funds last year. He added that the lack of funds is not the fault of the legislature.

"The legislature did its job," McDermott added. "Statewide, there were other regions that needed CDC appropriations to enable them to either start a CDC or expand their services."

The continuation of the HAW clients may still not be enough to keep the MVRS facility open, according to Jeff Crumrine, executive director.

Crumrine said that HAW clients may not be the only agency which refers clients to his center. The center, when it budgeted its income this year expected to receive $68,000 from HAW and $233,000 from the Idaho state Vocational Rehabilitation Service (VRS).

He said the HAW money is already contracted. The VRS money is not guaranteed.

"The VRS don't earmark any money in their budget for clients referred to our center," Crumrine said. "They told us we could expect 20 this year, so we built our budget around that."

"At this point it appears that we won't get the money from VRS," Crumrine continued. "If the clients are there and need the service, they will send them in — but they will not guarantee ahead of time."

And, according to Crumrine, the VRS has not referred nearly enough clients to meet with the expectations of the MVRS staff. "He does not know his situation or anybody," Crumrine said.

And so far, it appears that the needed clients will not be forthcoming, according to Crumrine.

Crumrine concluded that the board of director of MVRS decided to keep the facility open if enough clients attend, but to keep their original resolution to close if there are not enough clients to pay the costs of operating.

"Ed (Bossard, chairman of the board) said that if the clients are there, the dollars are there, and we are solvent," Crumrine concluded. "If the clients do not get there, the board will go ahead with the resolution as they adopted it."

Eyes injured

TWIN FALLS — Two youngsters have suffered eye injuries as a result of Fourth of July fireworks, according to a Twin Falls ophthalmologist.

Both youngsters have come here from Jerome County and both were injured by "bottle rockets." In one case, the doctor said, the child appears to have lost the sight of one eye.

The other boy has suffered hemorrhaging of the eye.

Officials of the Twin Falls Fire Department said a bottle rocket is an explosive device attached to a stick which is anchored in a bottle as the rocket is discharged. Bottle rockets are not permitted in Twin Falls under the safe and sane fireworks ordinance.

"Fire Department officials here said they believe the devices are also outlawed under the state's safe and sane fireworks regulation and would probably have to be purchased in some other state."

Big range fire said contained

BOISE — Bureau of Land Management fire crews finally contained the 150,000-acre range fire 18 miles west of Buhl by 8 a.m. Saturday and were demobilizing during the rest of the day.

In the event that high winds should come up again, according to Keris, information officer for the BLM staff office in Boise, flare ups could occur. About 80 men will remain on duty until sometime today to be certain they have gained complete control of the fire.

Long said that the land was being rested from grazing this year and any livestock that was in the area was removed before the fire reached them.

He said firemen spotted about 18 wild horses roaming on the burned area. They plan to keep watch over the animals in case they need additional feed or assistance.

"The big part of the project now may well be rehabilitation of the land," Long said. "It will start with aerial photography and will be projects."

Council eyes zone proposal

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council will consider a motion to adopt proposed Ordinance No. 172 rezoning land located south and adjacent to Fourth Avenue East between Madonna Street and Eastland Drive Tuesday night.

Rape center planned in TF

TWIN FALLS — Concerned women in Twin Falls are at work on plans for a rape crisis center to help help their past trauma.

Marie Scott, Twin Falls social worker, said Saturday that the women met last week and organized the rape crisis center in the wake of a rape conference held last month.

She said the center "will serve as an in-house service for the victim."

"That included being with her (the victim) as soon as she gives us a call," Mrs. Scott said.

She stressed that volunteers at the center would help a rape victim get medical aid and take the steps necessary for prosecution.

"Rape has long-lasting effects," Ms. Scott continued. "And the victim needs to know that she can have someone there that she can talk to for weeks afterwards."

Ms. Scott added that the volunteers who will help man the center will also help victims in taking care of extraneous details that she may not be able to handle such as making sure someone is taking care of her children, telling her boss that she will not be at work for a few days, and simply being there for moral support.

Members of the organization will provide training for their volunteer counselors by arranging for training sessions with someone with expertise in training volunteers, according to Ms. Scott.

"At this point we are going to operate on a strictly volunteer basis and hope we can fund ourselves in some other way at a future time," she said.

All persons interested in helping organize the center are urged to attend Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the YWCA.

TF commissioner named to national board

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — MITT E. Leonard, chairman of the Twin Falls county commission, has been named national director to represent the state of Idaho on the board of directors for the National Association of Counties.

He was elected in the 1st annual conference of the national organization held June 26-30 in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Leonard, who is completing his first term as a county commissioner this year, succeeds Otto Bremner, Lewiston, as Idaho's director. As a member of the national board he will attend four meetings a year including one in Washington, D.C. Leonard said state funds cover the Idaho delegates' travel expenses other than what he spends himself.

"The five-day conference in Salt Lake City was attended by more than 200 county officials from throughout the nation."

"Our programs are all the same. Only the geographic locations differ," Leonard said.

Workshops were conducted on such matters as transportation, welfare, taxation and financing growth and development, zoning, labor, health, and criminal justice.

Purpose of the national organization, Leonard said, is to lobby before Congress on matters of importance to county government. Some of the more important pending legislation for Idaho, Leonard said, include restoring the revenue sharing program and the payments in lieu of taxes on public lands.

Melvin Sharratt has passed the House and will come before the Senate later this month.

Proposals for payment from the federal government on federal lands in the counties would mean about $465,000 in annual income in Twin Falls County. The county has more than 30,000 acres in National Resource land and about 90,000 acres in Forest Service land.

Leonard said the counties are responsible for roads and other services but receives no revenue. Were the lands private tax revenue would make up for cost of services.

The National Association of Counties is proposing the government pay in lieu of these taxes on a basis of acreage and population of the counties.

The money could go into the county general fund for benefit of all taxpayers and residents of the county.

Collective bargaining was discussed in one of the workshop sessions, and Leonard said some counties in the west have a county employee labor union.

Mortgage rates head up

© Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Anyone who was waiting for mortgage rates to go down, some more before buying a home, will have missed the boat.

Mortgage rates have passed their lows for this cycle. They have already begun to edge up. And they will creep still higher, especially, as they always do, before the year is over. In the spring, when the recession prompted decline in mortgage costs reached bottom, the rate prevailing in many parts of the country was around 9 1/2 per cent. In some sections, borrowers able to place large down payments could get as little as 9 per cent.

When the mortgage picture—the entire interest rate picture—suddenly changed. The credit-controlling Federal Reserve System saw evidence that the nation's money supply was growing too rapidly. With the economy expanding briskly, it stood up in inflation—possible, excessive—money growth as disturbing. So the Fed tugged on the credit reins.

When interest rates—in obligations due in a year or more—began to climb one-half to three-quarters of a percentage point. And this has had both direct and indirect effects on the mortgage market.

General rise in short-term interest rates lifted the price of investments like three-month U.S. Treasury bills to 10 1/2 per cent maximum, that mortgage-lending through banks is permitted to pay on passbook deposits. Some who had been parking cash temporarily in such associations and mutual savings banks shifted their funds. This coincided with a slowing in savings inflows from the fabulous totals of the first few months of this year. With the supply of savings down, and demand at least holding steady, the cost of mortgage money began to edge up.

But the Fed's tightening has also had an indirect, psychological impact on mortgage rates. It made lenders feel that a new phase in the cycle had begun—and during which interest rates would be moving up across the board. They began to ask for slightly higher rates, anticipating the levels likely to prevail in months ahead.

By early June the mortgage loan rate in many areas had climbed to about 9 per cent, according to reports by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The Federal Reserve seems to be standing pat with the present degree of monetary restraint, willing to see what happens to the economy. Inflation and the money supply's growth. It is unlikely to tighten further over the next several weeks—and possibly not during the rest of the summer, either. So mortgage rates may sit where they are for some time.

But this fall, when the quickening economy brings new credit demands and the Federal Reserve proves reluctant to provide the money, short-term interest rates can go up some more—perhaps another percentage point, more or less, by the end of the year. Mortgage interest rates would probably move up, too. They probably wouldn't move up as much. But something like 9 1/4 per cent could become widespread for mortgages on new homes.

Arco, Anaconda merger proposed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Atlantic Richfield Co. and Anaconda Co. have signed a preliminary agreement calling for an exchange of stock and cash in which Anaconda would become a wholly owned Arco subsidiary, the companies said Friday.

In another development, Arco, which owns 6 million, or 27.2 per cent, of Anaconda's common shares, said it had made a $100 million capital investment in Anaconda. Terms of the loan were not disclosed.

The proposed merger of the giant oil company with Anaconda, a leading producer of copper, aluminum and related products that suffered a sharp drop in earnings last year, is subject to final approval by directors of both companies and Anaconda shareholders, as well as favorable rulings from the Internal Revenue Service.

The agreement calls for the exchange of each share of Anaconda common stock for a quarter share of Arco common stock and $6 in cash. Since Arco plans a 2-1 stock split to be distributed Sept. 13, the exchange after that date would amount to a half Arco share and $6 for each Anaconda share. Arco acquired its interest in Anaconda through a tender offer last March in which the company bought 6 million shares at $27 a share. At the time, Arco said it had no immediate plan for a merger or combination with Anaconda but left open that possibility.

Crane Co. of New York, a major stockholder in Anaconda, said after the merger announcement that the move "seems to be a constructive solution to Anaconda's problems."

However, Thomas H. Evans, chairman of Crane which owns about a 19 per cent interest in Anaconda, expressed "surprise" that terms of the $100 million loan from Arco to Anaconda were not announced along with the merger plan. Evans also said the proposed merger should be completed before "there is further deterioration in Anaconda's finances."

Crane is facing a Justice Department suit which seeks to have the company divest itself of its Anaconda holdings because both Crane and Anaconda manufacture valves.

Indonesia revises oil formulas

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Indonesian officials have served notice on American oil companies of a drastic revision in their oil contracts. The notice came to take as much as $2.5 billion in American tax credits from 1975 to 1980 annually.

Oil industry sources told UPI that Indonesian Oil and Mining Minister Mohammed Sadi had served a "final order," retroactive to January 1, on foreign oil contractors revising the production sharing formulas under which they do business in Indonesia.

The government said all oil produced in Indonesia under production-sharing contracts will now be divided 85 percent for Indonesia and 15 percent for the foreign producers.

After a further small deduction of all for domestic use, the foreign operators' share of production will be approximately 12 per cent.

The formula does away with the previous policy of allowing foreign producers to set their own prices for recovery of their costs in finding and developing the offshore fields.

But sources said the ruling was worded in such a way as to allow the American-based oil companies to claim increased tax credits from the United States government as a consequence of the change in Indonesian contracts.

One industry source said if the new Indonesian formula was accepted by U.S. tax authorities, the American operators could claim tax write-offs of as much as $2.5 billion annually.

Major foreign oil companies in Indonesia were outraged by the sudden change and feared that they might have to repay hundreds of millions of dollars to the Indonesian government.

Under the previous production-sharing contracts, the profit margin for foreign operators in Indonesia was one of the most attractive in the world.

But in the wake of the near-bankruptcy of the Indonesian national oil company Pertamina — which has outstanding debts totalling over $7 billion — the government is moving to trim those profits sharply.

Under the previous production-sharing contracts, the profit margin for foreign operators in Indonesia was one of the most attractive in the world.

Plants lacking care info may conk out

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
WHY PLANTS DIE

"Some people say 'I don't have a green thumb. Every time I buy a plant it dies!' Maybe it's not your fault that plants conk out."

Last January a survey in California showed an astounding casualty rate among plants purchased without any care information on the labels.

The study commissioned by the Plant Institute of America indicated that California alone bought 100 million plants at a cost of $27 million, during 1976.

Of these, about 1/3 or $9.9 million worth, died. About 65 per cent of those that died lacked label information on their care.

Projected on a nationwide basis, U.S. households bought 551 million plants last year and shelled out nearly $2 billion for them. This meshes with a Bank of America estimate that gross annual sales of flowers and potted plants in the United States would reach $5 billion by 1980.

Would there be less plant mortality if home owners had current information on the labels? Chances are there would be, because the vast majority (80 per cent) of indoor plant buyers and 77 per cent of outdoor-plant buyers said they wanted to get care instructions along with the plant.

A lot of the plants that die is not your fault. Many indoor plants need a special kind of treatment ("acclimatization") in a greenhouse before you get them.

Some of these plants are grown under hot sunny conditions in Florida and Puerto Rico and when brought into your home the leaves yellow and drop and may lead to death of the plant.

Reason No. 2 is improper watering. Plants in plastic pots are often watered as frequently as those in clay pots, which is wrong because plastic pots do NOT breathe. Over 50 per cent of the water applied to a plant in a clay pot the plant never uses because it evaporates. Keep soil moist but not soggy.

Reason No. 3 is improper feeding. Plants that are forced to meet the unprecedented plant boom are often fed to times the normal amount, which means there are a lot of "hot salts" in the soil when you get the plant.

When a soil gets dry the salts conk the roots, preventing uptake of moisture. Many people think that a sick plant "needs a shot of fertilizer" which is the worst thing you can do for a plant.

EVERGREENS TURN BROWN

The handsome evergreen, Japanese yew, does a strange thing: It will grow nicely then suddenly turn brown and die. What causes this? The Japanese yew (Taxus) is sensitive to "wet feet" or poor drainage. In fact, it can die when standing in water for 36 hours.

Periods of excessive rainfall last season or this past spring made the plants more subject to root damage.

It's even worse when plants go into winter with wet soggy soils. Death of feeder roots means plants can't cope during subsequent periods of moisture stress, and that's why the plant suddenly turns a reddish brown and dies. Don't blame your nurseryman!

You often see this with yews under an overhang, or where the down spout spills around the base of these plants.

Root-rot disease and nematodes also may cause death of yews, but usually in a more gradual fashion. Plants appear unhealthy and decline over a period of time before turning brown.

Suggestion: Once plants turn completely brown, they can't be helped and should be yanked out. A good policy is not to plant back in the same spot with another yew, unless you do something about the drainage.

We pour perlite into the bottom of a hole before planting shrubs, trees and evergreens because it aids in drainage.

SQUASH VINE BORER

If you grow summer squash, pumpkins or gourds prevent the squash vine borer from boring into the stalks. As soon as the vines begin to run, apply rotenone dust or spray of Sevin or Melthoxychlor to the base of the plants as this is where injury occurs. Treat three times at seven-day intervals.

DRY WEATHER EFFECTS

People are asking what causes browning or scorching along the margins of leaves. This can be due to dry weather and maples, oaks, dogwoods, catalpa, plus others are most affected. When severe, entire leaves may turn brown, wither and drop.

Usually, a few sets of leaves is produced. This is a "physiological condition" and is not caused by any insect or disease. This is not spread from one tree to another, and spraying is useless.

HANGING BASKETS

Plants in hanging baskets need watering more often than those in pots. Since roots are in a confined area, it's a good idea to feed a weak liquid plant food once every two weeks. Snip off faded pods, spent blooms, dead leaves and scraggly stems can be pinched back half. If aphids are present, spray with nicotine sulfate with a little soap or kerosene added. Cover the top and bottom leaves.

ZEBRA PLANT CARE

The so-called zebra plant (Aphelandra) likes a light, semi-sunny window plus a soil mixture of one part peat, loam, sand, or perlite, two parts peat moss, and leaf mold. Keep soil evenly moist but not soggy. Plants produce spikes of waxy flowers either orange or yellow.

Brown edges around leaves is due to poor drainage or lack of humidity.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: S. D. of Twin Falls, Our garden is near-a-walnut tree—is it true that you cannot grow good crops in the area, and also if so, the crops are not edible?

It is true that black walnut trees (Juglans nigra) do suppress or eliminate the growth of many plants within the root area around the tree.

It was first noticed with tomatoes; apple trees; alfalfa and ribwortedranoms. We've never seen a list of plants which are susceptible, but it appears that the list of plants that will not grow under or near walnut trees is greater than that of plants that will.

In order for a walnut to be toxic, the roots of the walnut tree must come in actual contact with the roots of the other plant. Walnut roots do not "shoot" secrete or squirt a toxic substance into the soil, as many believe.

Strangely, carefully controlled experiments in the greenhouse in which tomatoes, alfalfa and apple trees were grown in large jars with walnut trees showed no toxic effect on these plants. Why is that? The toxic substance (juglone) is not formed under physical conditions that occur in nature.

Nothing grows underneath a forest of walnut trees, as the rains wash juglone into the soil. Also, the water in which freshly hulled walnuts have been washed, if emptied on the lawn, will bring earthworms quickly to the surface where they die.

However, walnut nuts can be used as a mulch on grape vines without damage and when composted, can be used without harm to plants. The explanation is that juglone (the toxic substance) is a substance which breaks down rapidly in the soil.

Walnuts are recommended for shade plants because they can't produce blue-green grass will grow underneath the trees. In highland forests, where walnuts are native, other trees grow well together with walnut.

Former friends call Spiro Agnew a bigot

By MIKE ROYKO
Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — It's always sad when there is a falling out among old friends, especially when it is bitter and out of the open for all to see.

But that's what has happened between Spiro Agnew, the budding novelist, and two prominent journalists who used to be his aides back in the good old Washington days — William Safire, now a distinguished pundit for the New York Times; and Vic Gold, a syndicated columnist.

Gold and Safire are upset because they believe that Spiro was a right-wing, neo-conservative influence in the news media, is anti-Semitic.

Safire, who used to write speeches for Spiro, said in his column that the mouth he once filled with words is "now encouraging an irrational hatred of Jews."

And that, he said, makes Spiro "a bigot."

Gold, who used to be Spiro's press aide, wrote that his old boss has now betrayed those who once trusted him. "Millions... of schmooks like me," Gold wrote.

I don't know if Spiro is an anti-Semite or if his old friends are just overly sensitive.

But I am surprised at how patient they have been with him in general.

Take Safire. If he doesn't like bigots now, his speeches must have suffered at least a slight twinge back when he was writing speeches for the man.

After all, Spiro hadn't been on the national scene very long when he began making it clear that people who were on the lower rungs of America's social order weren't his dearest concern.

You've seen one, you've seen them all — Spiro's attitude toward the "HONK" people.

But I don't recall reading or hearing anything about Safire, the hired political speech writer, declaring that he could not create any more graceful prose for the lips of a bigot.

Safire now complains that Spiro is "undertaking a crusade" to persuade the American people that they are being brainwashed and manipulated by a cabal of Jews who sit astride most of the channels of communication, and thereby encouraging an irrational hatred of Jews.

If that's what Spiro is doing, then he is wrong. Indeed, while there are many influential journalists who are Jewish, they do not dominate the industry.

But, once again, I'm surprised that Safire didn't get angry back when Spiro was declining to even honor for generalities. While riding high as vice president, a pretty impressive office, he was trying to convince the American people that the entire news industry was filled with a pack of left-leaning liars, brainwashing the country from down to dark.

Many people believed this was a calculated attempt to browbeat the press into timidity — a very dangerous threat to our system.

But not a peep out of Safire back on those days. He just slipped another piece of paper into his hired typewriter and helped smoothly Spiro sweep his sinister savagery.

There there was Gold.

I remember when Spiro came to town and made a speech at some gathering of high-level Illinois Republicans.

He raked about people on welfare, and it was one of the most bigoted, cruel, racist utterances that I've ever heard from a major govern-

Olympic organizers go ahead, apprehensive over China dispute

MONTREAL (UPI) — Organizers plunged ahead Saturday with plans to open the 1976 Summer Olympics scheduled on July 17, but they were apprehensive over the China dispute between Canada and the International Olympic Committee.

Officials of the Montreal Olympic organizing committee refused to comment on the situation at their July 3 games briefing.

IOC President Lord Killam was scheduled to arrive Monday, but the organizers stressed his visit had already been planned and was "not related to the incidents of the past few days."

In Ottawa, spokesmen for Prime Minister Pierre-Trudeau's government restated Canada's firm resolve not to allow Taiwan athletes into the country if they insist on calling themselves the Republic of China.

One government imposed restriction on the entry of Taiwanese after Canada recognized the People's Republic of China (Peking) in 1970. It said the IOC had been advised of the restrictions back in 1969.

Canada's stance prompted the IOC to issue a warning Thursday that such action against the Nationalist Chinese team "was in direct conflict of the fundamental Olympic principles no discrimination is allowed against any country or person on the grounds of race, religion or political affiliation."

Lord Killam took some of the team out of the confrontation with the Canadian government Friday by saying reports the IOC might withdraw its support for the games were incorrect.

Privately, officials of the Montreal organizing committee, COJO, said they expected Lord Killam's meetings with the 21-member IOC starting Monday would make a start toward defusing the crisis.

"We also expect him to meet with federal government officials," said a COJO source. "But as far as we know, no meetings have been scheduled yet."

An External Affairs spokesman said the government was prepared to meet with the IOC at any time but "I think the ball is in the IOC court."

"We have made our position clear and we look forward to hearing from them on how they propose to deal with the situation," said External spokesman Glen Shortliffe. "The next move must come from the IOC and we will meet with them when they desire."

While the dispute simmered, athletes continued to arrive from around the world, with groups from South Korea, the Soviet Union, New Zealand and Hungary flying in Saturday.

Hungary was to be the first Olympic delegation to be officially received at the Olympic Village with a flag raising ceremony scheduled for 10 a.m. Sunday.

Officials said more than 1,000 of the 10,000 athletes and officials expected for the games were already in residence at the Village.

NFL teams begin training camps

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National Football League, with two new teams, five new coaches and no more outside competition, throws open the door of the 1976 season this week as 21 of its 28 members begin their summer training camps.

Six of the remaining seven teams open camp the following week with the Minnesota Vikings, the league's traditional slow starter, calling their teams together for the first time July 21.

The two new teams—the Seattle Seahawks and Tampa Bay Buccaneers—both introduce pro football to their respective areas this week with the Buccaneers beginning on-field operations under Coach John McKay July 5 and the Seahawks starting under Coach Jack Patera July 5.

The five other coaches starting anew with the summer sessions are Hank Stram with New Orleans, Monte Clark with San Francisco, Bill Johnson with Cincinnati and Lou Holtz with the New York Jets.

It will also be the first time in three summers that all 28 teams have to compete with the World Football League, which called it quits last fall after an aborted 1½ year run against the senior league. Many of the NFL's star players, however, will live on in NFL uniforms this season.

Larry Coonka, a former All Pro fullback and ing generator of the Memphis-Shuttlesworth attack, has signed to play with the New York Jets, while his WFL running mates, Jim Wick and Willie Spencer, also latched on with NFL teams. Kliek went to Denver and Spencer will make his National League debut this year with Philadelphia.

Bumping back Tommy Reamon, one of a trio of MVP selections in the WFL's first year, has signed on with Pittsburgh and Cliff Hill of Dallas and Hawaiians fame has joined the ranks of the Washington Redskins.

George Allen's Redskins were the most active team during the off-season as with NFL teams. A horde of free agents in addition to Hill, most notably starting tight end Jean Fagueot from the NFC champion Dallas Cowboys, 1,000-yard rusher John Higgins from the New York Jets and former Heisman Trophy winning quarterback Pat Sullivan from Atlanta.

Most of the top rookies will not make it to their respective pro camps until later in the month, after they participate in the College All Star Game July 23 in Chicago.

The All Stars, who will take on the NFL champion, Pittsburgh Steelers that day, will include Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin of Cincinnati, top draftee Lerry Simon of Tampa Bay and Alabama quarterback Richard Todd, who will be Joe Namath's understudy with the Jets this season.

U.S. women clinch berth in Olympic basketball tourney

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — The United States women's basketball team Saturday secured its berth in this month's Olympics Games at Montreal by beating Bulgaria 76-73 to close out the pre-Olympic tournament as the only undefeated team.

The victory gave the Americans a 5-0 record, including two straight wins in the final round. Entering the final game in the women's division, the U.S. already was assured a spot in the Games when Cuba upset Poland 84-79 in overtime earlier in the day.

With the trip to Montreal a certainty, the U.S. squad was outplayed in the first half as Bulgaria took a 16-12 lead by intermission.

"I do think we were a little flat, because we were aware that Cuba had defeated Poland and that we had clinched it," American Coach Billie Moore said. "It was a natural let down."

But, Julien Simpson of Gallup, N.M., scored four straight baskets to start the second half and draw the United States within two points. It went ahead to stay when Lusia Harris, of Minter City, Miss., missed in a two-pointer from under the basket with 11:57 remaining.

Simpson, who scored 12 points in the second half, was high for the U.S. with 16. Harris and Pat Lewis of Agribusiness, Tenn., were the only other American scorers in double figures, 10 apiece.

Center Penka Stoyanova of Bulgaria was high for the game with 24.

Despite the loss, the Bulgarians also advanced to the Olympics from this tournament which started last week with nine women's teams.

In the complicated point system that breaks ties in the standings, the Bulgarians earned their spot in Montreal by a 100th-of-a-point over Poland.

Bulgaria and the United States will compete in Montreal against teams from the Soviet Union, Canada, Japan and Czechoslovakia, all of which qualified previously. It will be the first time ever for women's basketball in the Games.

Borg blanks Nastase for Wimbledon crown

WIMBLEDON (UPI) — Bjorn Borg, declining "attack was the best form of defense" against the artistry of Ilie Nastase, cut the temperamental Romanian down in straight sets Saturday to become the youngest Wimbledon champion in 45 years despite playing with three cortisone injections to ease a painfully strained stomach muscle.

Borg defeated Nastase 6-1, 62-97 in 90 degree temperatures to add the coveted Wimbledon title to the ICT championship the Swede won in Dallas last May and now must look as the No. 1 player in the world.

Nastase kissed Borg as they met at the net and the Swede, so cool and authoritative during the action, appeared to be crying in the moment of triumph after he retrieved his racket, which he threw high in the air on championship point.

Bjorn Borg triumphs

peratures to add the coveted Wimbledon title to the ICT championship the Swede won in Dallas last May and now must look as the No. 1 player in the world.

Who won the help to Arthur Ashe who made the same two titles last year.

Before the title match started, there was a notable event in the royal bag. One of the hottest anti-rap music hits of the year, the "Duce of KRCIT," written of Queen Elizabeth, arose and in full view of the 12,000 Center Court, crowd took off his jacket and sat in his shirt sleeves. His example was immediately followed by King Constantine of Greece, the Lord Mayor of London and assorted generals and air marshals.

The commoners in the stands had been jacketless, and in some instances shirtless, for the entire championship which opened in Friday with King weather — not a drop of rain and temperatures over the 100 degree mark most of the time.

Queen Anne-Marie of Greece, Queen Mother Ingrid of Denmark, the Duchess of Kent and Princess Alexandra of Romania were also in the royal box along with the Swedish and Romanian ambassadors.

Borg committed only four unforced errors and lifted his supposedly weaker ground game to match Nastase's "having problems with his ground game" tried a dozen times to get his shots over the Swede only to have the ball smashed by him for winners.

Nastase found Borg's first service very hard to handle and his backcourt, especially on the backhand, let him down time and again.

Nastase took the first three games of the match after Borg won the 10th slice cleared to receive a play interpreted as an attempt to "psyche" the temperamental Romanian.

Borg then took three straight to 3-1 and from that point on he matched the break for 4-1. Nastase was broken in the third game of the second set, and in the final game of the set he displayed a rare example of sportsmanship that drew an ovation from the crowd. Borg's service was called a fault.

Nastase had the umpire R was on eye and the ruling was changed in the Swede's favor.

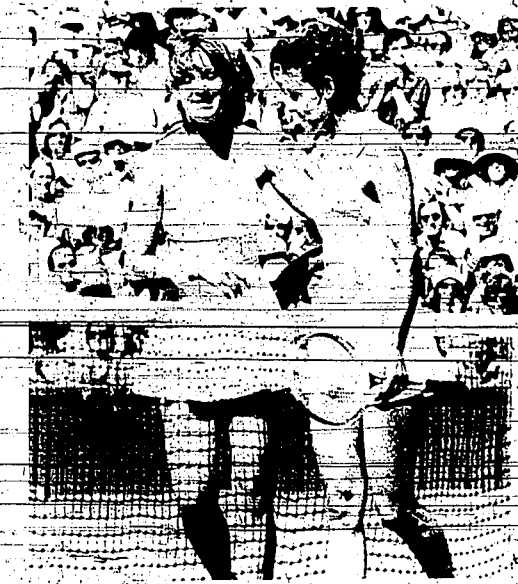

Borg broke Nastase in the first game of the final set and held his own service at love to 2-0. Nastase served a love game and Borg replied in kind to 3-1. But Nastase was unable to lob Borg without risking a return ground game kept faltering.

Nastase saved a match point by breaking Borg's service to 5-11. But Borg broke 10-7 with two backhand passes, served a winner in the final game.

Borg served the last game of the 1 hour, 50-minute match at love. Nastase erubling a weak backhand return at service into the net on the final point.

What had started out as a great match turned out to be a great disappointment for the crowd — some of whom had camped out for 50 hours to pay $9 for the 140 Center Court tickets on sale. Scalpers got as much as $150 a ticket.

Arizona Stater last man cut from U.S. cage squad

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — Mark Landsberger of Arizona State University was cut from the U.S. Olympic basketball team Saturday, replacing the team to its limit of 12 players for the Montreal games later this month.

The first cut was made by the coach at the University of North Carolina.

Smith earlier trimmed Scott Lloyd of Arizona State and Otis Bledsoe of Houston from the 15-member squad picked after a week of trials.

The team now consists of seven players from Smith's own Athletic Coast Conference, four from UNC and two from other ACC clubs within North Carolina.

"Making this cut was even more difficult than making the first one," said Smith in a statement issued to reporters. "Mark had become a member of the team both on and off the court."

"This cut wasn't based on performance, as much as on position," he said. "Mark could certainly help us in Montreal."

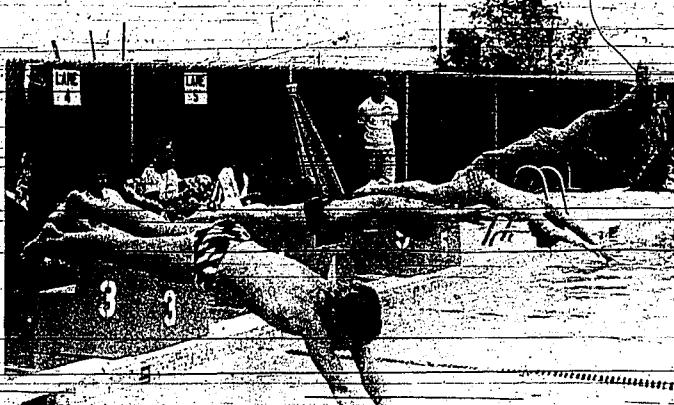

"However, we felt we had to cut a forward because that position had been stacked with so many players by the selection committee."

The team resumed its practice sessions Saturday at UNC, preparing to face the top four teams in the tournament in a week.

"I admire and respect him very much as an individual and a player," said Smith.

The national Olympic team includes North Carolina's Phil Ford; Dieter Kopsch, Tommy LaGrande and Walter Davis, along with Tatis Armstrong of Duke, Kenny Carr of North Carolina State University and Steve Sheppard of Maryland.

Also on the team are Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, Scott May and Quinn Buckner of Indiana, Ernie Grunfeld of Tennessee and Phil Hubbard of Michigan.

Ali recovers from various leg hurts

BANTA-MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Muhammad Ali reported making "substantial progress" Saturday from a variety of leg ailments suffered in his marital arts exhibition match in Japan, which included apparently minor blood clots in both his knees.

His physician, Dr. Peter Boasberg, said the heavyweight champion spent a restful night at St. John's Hospital and was taking whirlpool baths for his legs Saturday.

"He appears to be in very good spirits," a hospital spokesman said. "All in good condition and continues to improve."

The heavyweight champ was expected to remain in St. John's for several more days of rest and medication. No further tests were planned.

When Ali first limped into the hospital Thursday, complaining of severe leg pains, it was feared the clotting in his legs might have been serious.

But tests conducted Friday by Dr. Robert Kaschek revealed only superficial clotting near the surface of both knees. Ali also was suffering from severe muscle damage in his left leg, anemia produced by bleeding into the leg from the injury to blood vessels in the muscle of the leg, vein damage and an accumulation of both fluid and blood in the leg.

All, who was receiving selected visitors, was expected to get a Sunday from his next opponent, Ken Norton, who was scheduled to fight Ali at Yankee Stadium Sept. 25. Norton will break training camp at Gilman Hot Springs Sunday morning and drive to St. John's to pay a personal call.

"I want to see him because I respect the man and like him very much as a person," Norton said.

The 31-year-old California boxer paid a visit to Ali in the hospital once before, in 1973 when Norton broke Ali's jaw in a bout.

Fishing hints: by Swen That 6th-12-incher

During the first few days of the general season many people were still confused about the new limit on trout. The most often faced problem was to have live 12 inch or longer fish on your stringer and then hook into a target fish.

According to the new law you should release the fish without hurting it. The method advised by the Idaho Fish and Game Dept. is to start using barbless hooks after you have caught the 5th-12 inch and/or when you release that extra fish cut the line as close to the fish's mouth as possible LEAVING THE HOOK IN THE FISH. The fish will eventually desolve the hook with the acids in his body.

THE HOT SPOTS: Swen has been in Colorado fishing and learning for the past 3 weeks. . . but since my return I have found that the Snake river has lowered and the fishing was tremendous. Also, Magic reservoir has been good for the first time in a couple of years. Also, I have reports that the Richfield canal has been producing some fish in the 2 pound range. These fishing the Richfield canal report the best success in about 5 years. They report that the Shrimp are back in the canal. Most of the large fish have been caught in the upper reaches of the canal. I would like to note that the fishing in Colorado was good. BUT. . . I can never get used to all the people fishing in the same 50-ft. piece of water. Let us hope that we can always have elbow room for our fishing and that we can retain the quality of fishing and outdoor activities we now have.

THE BEST WAY OF DOING THIS IS NOT BEING A FISH HOG. Let us all share in our great area.

Boxing world jumps on band wagon for Foreman

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Foreman wasn't the only person impressed by the manner in which he punched Joe Frazier into retirement June 15.

Joe Louis, considered by many the greatest heavyweight champion of all time, and Eddie Futch, one of contemporary boxing's finest trainers, have jumped aboard the George Foreman bandwagon.

"I'd like to see him to say Ken Norton could beat Muhammad Ali and George Foreman could beat them both," says Louis.

The 27-year-old Foreman, is still rated as completely rehabilitated by his fifth-round technical knockout of Frazier, who has since won the world title.

"The next time I fight Ali, it will be like a country boy picking peas," predicts Foreman. "And everybody knows what I did to Norton."

What Foreman did to Norton was knock him out in the second round of their fight in Caracas, Venezuela in March of 1972.

"I'd like to see him to say Ken Norton could beat Muhammad Ali and George Foreman could beat them both," says Louis.

To accomplish that objective, Foreman says he'll fight within the next six months, hopefully within the next three, most likely against Jimmy Young, who lost a controversial decision to Ali in an April title fight.

"I present, Foreman is bubbling with confidence, having proved to himself that he is a complete boxer, not an undisputed slugger hanging away without a purpose, trying to take a man out with one punch."

"I want to work really aggressive type fighter. After the third round I saw here wasn't gonna be an easy knockout so I went down to him to the body. I thought it might give the distance so I lined down the groundwork."

Futch, who was in Frazier's corner that night and rushed along the edge of the ring to get to referee Harold Van Zant to stop the fight, totally agrees with Foreman's self-analysis.

"I think he's a very smart fighter. He used his feet to stop his man. He mixed his attack up smartly. He threw combinations behind the jab, then went to the body. I saw him use these things against lesser fighters but I never saw him do it against the top ones."

Trainer Gil Clancy, hired by Foreman after he fired his entire entourage of advisors following his defeat at the hands of Ali in Zaire in October 1973, is the man most responsible for that dramatic improvement.

"It was the best cornerwork I've had in boxing," Foreman said. "There was mutual respect."

Chamber's quarterhorse derby highlights races

By SHANE O'NEILL, Times News writer

RUPERT — Eight horses are scheduled to run this afternoon in the first Rupert Chamber of Commerce Quarter Horse Derby. The derby is for $2,337.50 added purse, and neither of the top two jockeys in the first two days of the meet are scheduled to board horses for the race, the ninth on today's program.

Ken Peterson leads the jockey competition for winners, riding to victory twice on Friday and repeating that performance Saturday.

J. Singleton won only one race Friday, but came back to win two on Saturday.

Monday's races feature the Quarter Horse and Thoroughbred futurities.

Listed for the derby today are Kandeek Rocket, ridden by R. Price (with two wins); Mickle Lou, with Tim Holdaway; Michael Dew, with D. Bramble; Twenty Below, with P. Traubman; Ripkey's Rocket, with G. Price; Bachelor's Girl, with R. Timms; Miss Angel Dust, with Scott Goughly; what has two wins; and Tex A. Feast, with Terry Sadler (who has two wins). Miss Angel Dust paid $1.60 in winning the fifth race on Friday. Ripkey's Rocket was second, Bachelor's Girl third and Mickle Lou fourth.

Michael Dew won the seventh race Friday. Kandeek Rocket was second Jet On to Win finished third. Twenty Below made the derby on the basis of a rerun of Friday's sixth race because officials failed to get a time on the original race.

Other than Twenty Below, other horses qualified from the fourth and sixth trials.

J. Singleton kicked off the racing card's for both Friday and Saturday with victories. He rode Eighty-Nine's Pixie to a win Friday over Sure A Gem, with Diamond K Joe Bar third and Like Moon fourth. On Saturday he rode Sue Sue to a win ahead of Puky Gold, with Salt Decks third and Fa Setta fourth.

Sanders qualifies

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI) — American Doug Sanders, twice runner-up in the British Open, overcame a shoulder injury Saturday to qualify for this year's golf classic with a two round total of 142.

Playing at the Southport and Ainsdale course, Sanders, who was in such pain Friday he could hardly swing a club, carded a 69 to add to his previous round of a two-over-par 71.

Hill assumes four-stroke lead in Milwaukee tourney

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Dave Hill attacked the Tuckaway Country Club Course like a man starved for victory Saturday and took a four-stroke lead after three rounds of the 36-hole Greater Milwaukee Open.

Hill, who said Friday said he felt he had in a 71-month slump, was playing for every quarter of a mile. He birdied three of the first five holes, including three birdies on the back nine of a four-under-par 64 and a three-day total of 201, 6-under-par.

Holter Baines, who had four birdies, matched Hill's 64 and moved into second with 202.

Fred Zoeller, the second-round leader, blamed the wind and tricky pin placements for his two over 74, as he slipped into three-way tie for third. Tied with Zoeller were Johnny Jacobs, who shot a 76, and Ted Speed, the 1974 G.M.O. winner, who shot a 76.

Despite his early birdie-90% and his hole-in-one overall, Hill said his lead over the 7,000-yard Tuckaway layout was not the result of a burning desire to win his first tournament since last fall's Salsburg national.

"I found that winning doesn't really mean a damn thing," Hill said. "I'd like to win, of course, but I really don't desire it that much. I want to figure out some years ago what are the important things in life. Winning golf events isn't one of them."

Hill credited "a good second wife" for changing his philosophy. "Nonetheless, Hill charged Saturday, rolling in birdie puts on the 27-yard second hole, the 39-yard fourth hole and the 17th and fifth holes in the front nine.

He bogeyed the 17th and eighth holes when he hit another bunker and then missed a second putt, but he resumed his attack with birdies on the 9th and 11th and the 25th and 26th.

He went to 16 under by adding yet another birdie, his-time he sank a 36-foot downhill putt on the 53-yard 16th, then suffered his second bogey by hitting into the rough again on the par-4 23rd and 17th.

"I was absolutely confident," he said. "I took a great putt that failed on the 17th. The ball spun out at the last moment I should have had it."

Hill, who said he felt strange leading a tournament again, said he will continue to charge for years in the state's 1988 "Championship."

"I'm not going to play ever steadily if only I've got a four or five stroke lead without a few holes to go," he said.

Ken Still, the first-round leader who had slipped to a 73 Friday, continued to fall far behind. Hill shot a two-over par 74 for a 41 total, 10 strokes back.

Art Wall, the defending champion, was at 23 after shooting his best round so far, a two-under par 70.

Nicklaus eyes 17th major title in British tourney

SOUTHPORT, England (UPI) — Lee Trevino won the last year's British Open when he beat Jack Nicklaus, who else is the betting favorite to win the 105th Open at Carnoustie in Scotland for his 17th major victory to lead in the "Big Four" tournaments.

Although he ranks fifth on the list of PGA money-winners, Nicklaus has laid an indifferent year by his own high standards, but he could regain his touch in Britain where there are less demands on his time despite his great popularity which now rivals that of Arnold Palmer.

Defending champion Tom Watson, who was in a playoff from Australia's Jack Newman at Carnoustie last year, heads the list of 25 American competitors, which include U.S. Open champion Jerry Pate, Tom Weiskopf, the 1973 winner at Troon, Johnny Miller and Hale Irwin.

Watson, a tied-for-second in the U.S. Open at Atlanta last month. He has not won in the four this year, but he's been knocking on the door and Birdie could be the scene of his second major victory.

Nicklaus, despite his indifferent form, is the bookies' choice at 6-1 because he never has finished lower than fifth in addition to winning in 1966 and 1970.

Miller, who opened the season with a rush that has since fallen into a slump, has always enjoyed playing in Britain because of the cooler weather and this could be his year. He finished second to Weiskopf in 73 and was third last year, a stroke back of Watson and Trevino, who finished the regulation 72 holes at 279.

Miller is quoted at 8-1, two points shorter than Irwin, who finished second in 1974. Trevino, still suffering from a back injury which kept him out of the U.S. Open, is at 16-1 along with Gary Player, a two-time winner, and leading money-winner Hale Irwin.

"There's no one looking to Irwin, a steady player who goes about his business in quiet fashion."

"He really wants to beat your teams out," said Tom Kite, who is among the exempted players for Birkdale.

"With Irwin every shot is life or death. He is after you from the first tee to the 18th green," said a visiting U.S.G.A. official.

Basil Birdie, a 37-year-old, left-handed player, is a professional. It is regarded as the best championship course in England, although it does not quite match up to the classic Scottish courses like St. Andrews, Birkdale, Troon, and Carnoustie, where powerful winds are a major factor.

The rough, which drew a lot of complaints in Atlanta, has been allowed to grow at Birkdale and anyone who fails to find the fairway with his drive will pay a stiff penalty.

Two new traps have been added at the 33rd-par, 5-1/2 hole, the "tiger hole," to discourage those who attempt to gain distance with draw.

Back in 1967 Palmer, who won the first of his two Opens at Birkdale, hit one of his greatest ever golf shots when he came out of a bunker to make a clear run over a 125-yard hole with a 40-rod 40-yard drive.

The hole has been renamed "Arnold Palmer" in memory of that shot but it is unlikely Palmer will be a contender.

Broncos sign Penrose

DENVER (UPI) — Quarterback Craig Penrose, the 1975 passing champion and the Broncos fourth round draft choice, has signed a contract with the team, officials said Saturday.

A native of Woodland, Calif., Penrose attended Calicut University before transferring to San Diego State where he became a five-year starter.

"During his two years in San Diego, Penrose threw 344 times for 4,343 yards and 25 touchdowns. After college, he played in the East-West Shrine Game, the Blue-Gray Game and the Senior Bowl."

Newhouse confident

PLATTSMOUTH, N.Y. (UPI) — Fred Newhouse said Saturday he might be the only 400-meter runner in the world who would like to see his old man on the cover of the magazine.

Talking about the 43.8-second clocking Lee Eaton established at the Mexico games eight years ago, the Evans River, La., runner said, "It'd give, I'll be the man to do it."

He said that "so far, of all the people in the 400 meters today, amateur, I have the fastest time. My 44.2 is the best of any amateur."

"When I ran it, I hit up 20 yards from the tape. I think it's a fair time and if anyone can beat it, I'm going to take it."

Newhouse, who finished second at the Olympic trials in Eugene, Ore., will concentrate on his starting technique and the last 100 meters in final training sessions at the State University College in Maine.

"With a note of celebration in his voice, Newhouse said the team wants "to make Montreal a Bicentennial victory. I think our 400-meter dash men, Mack Parks and Herman Frisberg, and myself will be the best representatives of the U.S. they could have."

Soviets lead U.S.

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union took a 2-2 1/2-1 lead over the United States Friday night after the first day of an international junior track and field meet in Tallinn, Estonia, in which American Sprinter Michael Key won his 100-meter dash in 19 seconds flat.

The assistant agency said Saturday the Soviet athletes won 12 of the 17 events on Friday, with the Americans dominating the dashes and relays.

Canada's stance scored

LONDON (UPI) — Two international sports federations Saturday issued statements emphasizing Canada's restrictions on the Soviet team at the Montreal Olympics.

Lord Ewster, president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF), possibly the strongest of all 26 major federations, said the IAAF "strongly supports the stand which the International Olympic Committee (IOC) is making on an important matter of principle and declares an attempt to restrict sport for political reasons."

"The Canadian government has made its political position clear. It must now be urged to honor its promise to the rest of the world and to withdraw its athletes from the games," he said.

"I'm not a Communist," Ewster said in a telegram to IOC President Lord Killam.

Charles Palmer, president of the International Judo Federation, said he was convinced that "for the protection of the interests of all future Olympic games, it will be far better to license these 1976 Games because of this political interference, and to hold the Canadian state department, which is not only applying, with its jurisdiction, responsibility for all costs and all consequences suffered by all countries attending to take part."

Chargers sign Joe Washington

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Chargers Saturday announced the signing of all-america running back Joe Washington of Oklahoma, their No. 1 draft pick, to a series of one-year contracts. Terms were not disclosed.

"Washington is our bicentennial present to San Diego Fans," said Charger president Gene Klein, whose team finished with a 2-12 record last season for the worst mark in the NFL.

"We're putting him in charge of a Charger offense," Klein said.

The 25-year-old Washington, a 5-foot-10, 184-pound speedster from Port Arthur, Tex., was Oklahoma's all-time leading rusher with 3,995 yards for a 6.1 yard average and 30 touchdowns.

"He's a home-run hitter and an exciting player who can break up a game," said Charger Coach Tommy Prothro.

Before joining the Charger training at UC San Diego, Washington will go to Chicago to play for the college all-stars in their game against the world champion Pittsburgh Steelers July 23.

Pro-tainted amateurs belie Olympic creed

LONDON (UPI) — An Olympic Games open to professionals and amateurs alike is a thing of the distant future, according to Lord Killam, president of the International Olympic Committee.

"But it is no secret that I emphasize including gold medals at the Montreal Games in July are professionals in it but name."

"The IOC is going to do everything to keep the "amateurs only" image of the Olympics, are being broken every day."

American Frank Shorter, who will be defending the marathon title he won in Munich four years ago, admitted as much in testimony to the U.S. President's Commission on Olympic sports last September.

"Referring to the eligibility code, Shorter said: "By these rules they can get any of us that they want. I have probably violated nearly all of these rules. They are just an anachronism."

Shorter could see no sense in continuing the distinction between amateurs and professionals, especially in the highly competitive track and field scene where so much national prestige is involved.

"I think we are all professionals now. It is no longer feasible for an Olympic amateur athlete to work a 40-hour week and still be able to train in order to maintain his form, much less improve, he said."

There has been only one instance of the IOC dispensing authority for any professional. That was in the 1972 Winter Olympics when Austrian Alpine skier Karl Schranz was banned.

The charge: the American Indian runner Oklahoma who won the pentathlon and decathlon events at the 1912 Stockholm Olympics, was stripped of his titles because he had received a small payment for playing baseball.

Boxers get Olympic last shot

WASHINGTON, Va. (UPI) — Big John Tate, a 221-pound heavy-weight from Knoxville, Tenn., will try to punch his way to Montreal as a last chance for the U.S. Olympic boxing team.

Tate meets Marvin Sinton, of Philadelphia, in a bout to fill the heavyweight berth at the Olympics in Montreal.

The Sinton-Tate fight, and two other matches will be held at Fairfax Gymnasium at the University of Vermont.

Winners will round out the U.S. squad of 14 boxers. The other eight champions won berths on the team June 26.

The 64 Tate was stunned June 26 by a faster and more experienced Sinton in the second match of the box-offs.

The judges awarded their unanimous decision to Sinton on the basis of his quickness and ability to counter-punch.

Last month in Cincinnati, Tate outpointed the 192-pound Sinton in the first bout of the box-off series.

In the other bouts on Monday's card, Keith Broome, of the U.S. Navy, will try to repeat his upset win over Michael Spinks of St. Louis, in the middleweight class.

Spinks is trying to join his brother, U.S. Marine Leo Spinks Jr., who slugged his way to a light heavyweight berth on the team. If the lighter Spinks wins his bout Monday it will be the first time two brothers have been on the same U.S. Olympic squad.

Yugoslavia, Mexico, Czechs win Olympic basketball spots

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — Yugoslavia, Mexico and Czechoslovakia survived a hectic two-week long elimination tournament Saturday to advance to the basketball competition at this month's 1976 Summer Olympics.

The Yugoslavians entered the final day of play assured a spot as one of the three teams qualified for Montreal and the Mexicans found themselves with a berth when Brazil beat Spain 109-100 early in the day.

But the Czechs had to fight off a stubborn Netherlands squad, 90-79, to earn their place in the Games.

"According to the complicated point system used in this round robin tournament, a 16-point Dutch victory would have given them the third berth and eliminated the Czechs. If they had won by less than 16, Brazil would have guaranteed that spot."

The last game of the tournament between Yugoslavia and Mexico did not affect which teams go to Montreal.

On the women's side, the United States completed the tournament with the only undefeated record 15-0 in earning its place in the Games.

The American squad held a determined Bulgarian team 26-23 Saturday but had clinched its place in the Olympics earlier in the day when Cuba defeated Poland 64-79 in overtime.

Despite the loss, Bulgaria became the second women's team of the nine that started in this tournament to win a place at the games.

Brazil's win over Spain was sparked by a spectacular second half by guard Milton Setrin, who scored all of his 22 points in the second 20 minutes. But 19-year-old Marcelo de Souza was high scorer for Brazil and in the game, adding 31 points to boost his average for the tournament to 18 per game.

The Czechs were never really in trouble in their pivotal contest with the Netherlands. They lead 46-40 at the half and never lost the lead. They were led by sharp-shooting guard Kimel Brabene, whose deadly outside shooting gave him a game-high 26 points.

The Dutch never paced by Jimmy Woodstra, the high scorer in this tournament with a 20.3 average, with 24.

The Yugoslavians entered this 13-nation men's tournament as favorites, with Czechoslovakia and Brazil ranked right behind. Only Brazil failed to qualify for the games, being replaced by the Mexicans. It will mark the first time that a Brazilian

Tiger rookie blanks Orioles 4-0

METRO (UPI) — Rookie pitcher Mark Fidrych pitched the first shutout of his brief career Saturday night, clobbering a masterful four-hitter in front of his second straight near capacity crowd to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 4-0 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

A total of 51,032 fans turned out on the otherwise ordinary night to watch Fidrych raise his record to 9-1 and lower his ERA to 1.85. He drew 47,855 in beating New York's 5-1 past Monday on national television and the Tigers juggled the rotation so he will pitch at home next Friday in his last start before the All-Star game.

The 21-year-old right-hander was aided by Rusty Staub's sixth home run of the season, the second straight game he has clubbed a home run for Fidrych in the first inning. This one came with two men aboard and saddled Mike Cuellar with his ninth loss in 13 decisions.

Reds outslug Houston 9-8
CINCINNATI (UPI) — Bob Bailey hit a pair of homers and Johnny Bench added a solo shot Saturday night to power the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-8 triumph over the Houston Astros.

Despite the power display, it was an error by Enos Cabell on Bench's grounder in the eighth inning that enabled the Reds to push across the winning run.

With the score tied 8-8, Griffey led off the eighth inning by beating out his 18th infield hit of the season. He went to second on a passed ball and, after Joe Morgan walked, Griffey stole third and one out later scored when Cabell bobbled Bench's ground ball.

Pedro Borbon blanked the Astros the last two innings to win.

Twins edge Angels 2-0
BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Run-scoring singles by Steve Braun and Rod Carew in the third inning knocked the five-hit pitching of Bill Singer Saturday and paced the Minnesota Twins to a 2-0 victory over Nolan Ryan and the California Angels.

Singer, raising his record to 7-3, allowed only a pair of infield hits by Braun and Carew in the seventh inning when the Angels loaded the bases on two singles and a walk. But Singer and Mario Guerrero on a pop allowed just one more single the rest of the way.

Yankees trim Cleveland 7-3
CLEVELAND (UPI) — Home runs by Mickey Rivers and Roy White helped Ken Holtzman pick up his first victory since a Yankee Saturday night and led New York to a 7-3 triumph over the Cleveland Indians before more than 70,000 fans—largest crowd in the majors this season.

Rivers "sequaled" his major league career home run total by belting his fifth of the season, to trigger a four-out third inning, and White smacked a two-run shot into the right field stands for his sixth of the year in the fourth.

Mets nip Cubs for 9th in row
NEW YORK (UPI) — Bud Harrison raced home from third with the winning run with one out in the 10th inning Saturday on an errant pickoff attempt. Harrison was aided by pitcher Dwight Gooden to give the New York Mets their ninth Harrison opened the 10th with a triple off loser Rich Rodriguez, 9-6, and pinch hitter Joe Torre and Mike Phillips were both walked intentionally to fill the bases. Knowles relieved and struck out Bruce Botsch, but his throw attempting to pick off Rodriguez at first got by first baseman Pete LaCock and Harrison scored.

Brewers rally past Boston
MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Tom House will pitch home one run and Art Kaspery doubled in three more during a four-run seventh inning Saturday night to carry the Milwaukee Brewers to a 6-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh with the bases loaded and two out, House relieved Reggie Cleveland, 4-0, face pinchhitter Charlie Moore. With the count 1-2, House threw the pitch into the dirt past catcher Carlton Fisk, enabling Sisto, Exacum to score the winning run.

Royals beat Oakland 7-5
KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Frank White, Al Cowens and Fred Patek drove in two runs each Saturday night to give the Kansas City Royals a 7-5 victory over the Oakland Athletics behind the eight-hit pitching of Dennis Leonard and Steve Mingori.

White, breaking an 0-for-13 slump, highlighted a three-run rally in the sixth inning with a bases-loaded single to break a 4-4 tie. Singles by Cowens and Bob Stinson and an intentional walk to Patek loaded the bases for White, who had driven in a run since June 10.

Rhoden wins 8th for L.A.
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Unbeaten Dick Rhoden won his eighth straight game of the season Saturday night by pitching the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-1 victory over the San Diego Padres.

The victory left Los Angeles in the lead in the National League West, 14½ games out of the Dodgers' second victory in eight games against San Diego this year.

The 23-year-old Rhoden, 8-0, gave up only six hits including a first-inning home run by Willie Davis. The yard-drawing right-hander, whose Dodgers' second victory in eight games against San Diego this year.

Lewis and Clark

TOM Lancaster, left, and G. D. Pesciallo play captains Lewis and Clark in the Antique Festival Theatre production of "Toussaint's Incredible Chronicle," a musical comedy about history and the Bicentennial.

Early Gem history will come to life in AFT musical slated today in TF

TWIN FALLS — The Antique Festival Theatre's contribution to Bicentennial entertainment for this holiday weekend is a light-hearted musical production about Idaho history.

"Toussaint's Incredible Chronicle" is a fantasy about early Idaho history, laughingly seen through the eyes of the Antique Theatre. It gives credit to Sacajawea's French husband, Toussaint Charboneau who was somewhat played down in most Idaho history accounts.

Theater promoters say the musical "is sprinkled with comic songs and satire and parodied to delight the entire family."

The first performance was Thursday in Mountain Home with the cast singing in their gliderbats in Glens Ferry on Friday and Jerome on Saturday. The Glens Ferry performance was in the Three Island State Park.

Today the cast will be performing at Frontier Field at 4 p.m. in another open-air show. The play will be seen during the Bicentennial summer in all major communities of Magic Valley.

The schedule also includes July 16, Gooding, Idaho Resource Center for the Arts, 8:30 p.m.; July 17, Murtaugh, Football Field, 8:30 p.m.; July 20, Stanley, Sawtooth Shopping Center, 8:30 p.m.; July 22, Huxley, Football Field, 8:30 p.m.; July 23, Sha Valley, 8:30 p.m.; July 24, Fairfield, 8:30 p.m.; July 25, Casselton, Balanced Rock Park, 8:30 p.m.

August 17, Hagerman, football field, 8:30 p.m.; August 18, Arco, high school auditorium, 8:30 p.m. and August 19, Shoshone, Shoshone Park, 8:30 p.m.

The Bicentennial play was written especially for the Antique Festival Theatre by Gary McDonough, playwright-in-residence for the theater.

When asked to write the play, he said he began thinking of Idaho history and naturally of Lewis and Clark.

"I started researching their expedition and to my surprise, found Toussaint Charboneau, Sacajawea's French husband, never died—at least there is no record of his ever having died.

"This is where the story began," McDonough said.

The play deals with reincarnation and a lot of looking back, with tongue-in-cheek, to Indian lore and the history of Lewis and Clark.

McDonough is a native of Salt Lake City and lives with his wife Ronni and their infant daughter in an apartment at the Idaho Resource Center for Arts in Gooding, home of the AFT. He is a graduate of the University of Utah and attended law school. He completed additional graduate study at Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland.

McDonough received the National Schubert Fellowship in 1970-71 and again in 1971-72, being one of only five people in the nation to have the fellowship honor renewed.

He was the founder and director of the Moab Art Theater in Utah and has a long record in playwright positions.

In the east of the summer '76 schedule are young dramatists from Idaho, Oregon, New York, Michigan and Missouri.

John Gregor Edgerton, Boise, will play the title role in the Bicentennial production. He is a theater arts major at Boise State University where he is a senior. He has played in some 20 productions and toured with AFT in 1975 and is adept at writing, directing and acting.

Idaho's history makers, Capt. Meriwether Lewis and Capt. Clark will be played by Tom Lancaster and G. D. Pesciallo, respectively. Lancaster, 22, is from Detroit, Mich. He studied at the Academy of Dramatic Arts, Rochester, Minn., and has performed in such theaters as Actors Theater, Louisville, Ky.; Summer Showcase, Decatur, Ill., and others in Michigan, Tennessee and New England states.

Pesciallo, Eugene, Ore., is a drama major and member of the University Theatre Executive board. He specializes in western puppet history, masks and received the Tiespan Award in 1971 and 1972 at the University of Oregon.

Rachel Schneider, 19, Hagen, N.Y., will play Sacajawea. She is a student at Cornell University majoring in music, dance and drama. She began her dramatic and singing career at age 5 and sang semi-professionally in children's operas at the age of 8.

Aldrich Bowler, one of the organizers of AFT, 33 years, also directs and produces the play assisted by H. Paul Kliss, general manager. Kliss was another of the originators of the AFT which is now the only fully professional regional touring company supported by the National Endowment for the Arts in this area.

AFT also has the support of the Idaho State Commission on the Arts and the Idaho State Bicentennial Commission with other contributions from interested individuals in the community. Since 1964 the company has performed over 70 full-length productions and toured them to over 150 communities in the West. Annually the AFT players perform to a combined audience of more than 46,000 persons.

This is a book that may and should — affect the mathematical education of every child in America.

The book is aimed at a wide audience, Christians, Jews, people not affiliated with any creed, scholars, and educated laymen. Bracelet for Sandy WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has sent a letter and a bracelet to the Ohio crowd whose exploding camera flashbulbs ignited a momentary assassination scare. White House officials said Friday.

They said Ford wrote Sandy Snyder of Bowling Green State University of his concern for her ordeal June 7.

She was trying to photograph Ford, making a presidential campaign appearance at Bowling Green, when the flashbulb exploded on her camera. The popping sound sounded like a gunshot.

A New Hampshire reader wants to know if it is permissible for dummy to tell partner which hand the lead is in.

The answer is "Yes," but dummy should only use this right to keep partner from leading out of the wrong hand when it appears that he is about to do so.

The first bidding systems in contract all stressed fairly tight opening bids in first and second seat and much stronger minimums for third and fourth hand. Hal Sims was the first top expert to lean the other way. He probably won't be credited for it, but his arguments with Cubertson and the real old timers did a lot to lead to the modern three-card hand system. An opening bid in one seat is worth an opening bid in all seats.

Hal also thought of the Sims three bid to ask for aces. The idea was good, unfortunately the hand finally ever came where it did, the results were likely to be very good.

Today's hand occurred in the 1910 Eastfins' Hal and Willard Karn, his partner, were one of the few pairs to play at six hearts.

Others played seven hearts or six or seven spades with one pair actually playing seven hearts, doubted and going down nine.

Even with the best modern methods it is very probable that most pairs in a match-point game would go astray

How's fat again?

TWIN FALLS — Embellished across the front of a tee shirt in the widow of a women's shop here: "Til for fat."

Weight compared

Chicago Daily News — A new study not only confirms the long-held opinion that chubby children become fat, adults also shows the die is cast by 6 months of age.

The study examined the medical records of 366 individuals born 20 to 30 years ago and traced them to their present status.

Those who attained the 90th percentile weighed more than 50 per cent of their age group were 2.6 more likely to be overweight as adults than those who were infants of average and light weight.

The study was conducted by the department of pediatrics, University of Rochester, in collaboration with practicing pediatricians in the community.

Results were published in today's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. Of the babies whose weight in the first six months was in the 97th percentile, 45 per cent were obese as adults.

When at least one parent was overweight and the infant's weight was above the 97th percentile, more than half were obese as adults according to Dr. Evan Charney, who headed the study.

The infant's height made no difference. Those who were both tall and heavy were more likely to be overweight as adults than those who were short and heavy.

Neither did the child's birth year, sex, birth order or whether breast or bottle fed make a difference.

What the study indicates is that a weight risk Dr. Charney is not certain what should be done about it.

"We do not know whether the infant weight is responsible for the adult obesity or is an expression of a genetic predisposition," he says.

"If it is the cause, is it amenable to dietary intervention?"

Club leaders

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When my husband first suggested that we join a swingers club and switch partners with other couples who advertised their availability in a porno magazine, I told him I wasn't interested. (He's 34, I'm 30 and we've been married 10 years.)

He called me a prude and said that swinging was a common practice with married couples. (Is it?) I told him I would divorce him if he ever fooled around like that. I thought the subject was forgotten, then I found a letter he had written to this club saying he wanted to participate, but he would have to be divorced because his wife wasn't interested. I wasn't snooping, Abby; the letter was laying on top of the desk in our den. With the letter was a Polaroid picture he had taken of himself in a mirror—naked!

I've always treated him until now. He's a good father and provider, and I do love him. What should I do? File for divorce or forget I saw the letter? I am sick to death over this.

HURT AND DESPERATE

Hubby wants to switch

DEAR HURTY: Tell him you saw the letter and picture, and ask him to get a marriage counselor with you. He needs to have his head straightened out if you're to get your marriage back on the right track.

He's wrong. Respectable married couples do not exchange sex partners with other couples. THAT is the beginning of the end.

DEAR ABBY: I have been widowed for four months. About six weeks ago I took a bus trip to the West Coast from Illinois. While waiting in the bus terminal for the bus to be serviced, I met a nice-looking, well-dressed gentleman. He asked me to have a cup of coffee with him, and before I boarded the bus he asked for my address. He said he came through my town often and wanted to see me again.

Well, I wasn't back home very long when this man called and said he was in town. He took me over for dinner, and we had a fine time. He calls me long distance every night and comes to see me every weekend.

He wants to marry me, but I am not sure I want to marry him because he's been married and divorced four times. He admits he has no money because his last wife took him for everything he had. He has no health or life insurance, but he does have high blood pressure, emphysema and diabetes. I am 58 and he is 62.

Common sense tells me to turn around and run like mad, but I think I'm falling in love with him, and my heart seems to be ruling my head. I'm not a rich woman, but I'm not poor either.

My children are begging me to quit seeing him. Should I? IN LOVE OR LONELY?

DEAR IN LOVE: I'd say, heed your common sense, Ma'am, and don't make any important decisions unless you are absolutely sure you can live with them.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancée and I were making plans for our wedding when a problem came up. He asked me if I minded if he asked a girl to be his best man. He says she is his best friend.

I didn't want to hurt his feelings, so I didn't say flat out that I minded; I just said maybe he should give it a little more thought.

Abby, I come from a very conventional family, and I don't want a girl to be "best man" at my wedding even if she is my fiancée's best friend.

Can you suggest a tactful way to let my fiancée know that I would prefer that he ask a male?

To be perfectly honest about it, my main objection is that I am afraid people will make fun of us, and I don't want anything to spoil my wedding day.

VERMONT BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Since the expected ridicule would take the joy out of your wedding, level with your fiancé and ask him to select a male for his best man.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Poor, Las Vegas, Nev., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Schultz, Twin Falls.

A lawn reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

The bride's table was covered with a white wedding cloth. The three-tiered wedding cake was decorated with several shades of blue roses.

Bride and bridegroom wine goblets were played by the bride.

Mrs. Elaine Bouslog, Easy Grand Forks, Minn., aunt of the bridegroom, and Romana Garkow, Las Vegas, Nev., cut and served the cake.

Mrs. Marie Thorne, aunt of the bridegroom, poured coffee and tea.

Special guests were Mrs. Hazel Anderson, Crookston, Minn., grandmother of the bridegroom; Mrs. Leona Schultz, East Grand Forks, Minn.; Mrs. Alice Norman, Las Vegas, Nev., grandmother of the bride.

Kansas luncheon scheduled

TWIN FALLS — Former Kansans now living in Idaho will meet here Aug. 1 for their annual get-together.

The South Idaho Kansas Picnic will be in Twin Falls City Park, with a potluck luncheon at 1 p.m. opening the program.

The event is open to all former Kansans residents living in Idaho, with most of those attending coming from the Magic Valley. However, in past years persons have come from as far as Payette and Idaho Falls to attend.

In addition to the luncheon, a business meeting is planned and adequate time will be allowed for visiting. Dale Stewart, Twin Falls, president of the picnic association, said. Entertainment plans are incomplete at this time.

Held for a number of years at Jerome, the picnic was moved to Twin Falls in 1975 by vote of those attending the previous year. A trend of declining attendance was stopped a year ago when 45 persons attended, many for the first time, Stewart said.

Those planning to attend are asked to bring meat dishes, cold drinks, a salad or dessert and their table service.

Club donates

RUTH Brown, left, member of the real estate board of the Twin Falls Twentieth Century Club, presents $1,000 check to Debra Park, assistant librarian and head of the children's department of the Twin Falls Public Library. The money will be applied on new shelving, seen in background.

Loungewear sales up

Chicago Sun-Times — You'd think no one was working and everyone was loafing around the house, judging from the profusion of loungewear in the stores today.

Everyone wants to get into the loungewear act, including designers who see that area of fashion rapidly mushrooming.

It's not that busy women have more leisure time today. It's just that more of them are fashion-conscious when they have time to relax. They want special clothes for those occasions. Instead of putting on a beat-up old robe when they come home from work, they are apt to put on something like a roomy caftan.

Another reason for the new interest in leisure styles is the fact that entertaining has become less formal in recent years. Instead of cocktail dresses or long gowns, many women or, certain at home or go to informal parties in what is termed at-home clothes. That could be anything from a long knit T-shirt to a cotton jumpsuit.

Bill Blass, who is one of the latest prestige designers to enter the leisurewear field with a group of styles for Royal Robes, believes that clothes designed for relaxing should above all be comfortable and simple. He thinks it should have a sportswear feeling without frills.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

Would you please explain the pituitary gland? I'm 20 pounds overweight and I've heard that this gland is at fault in obese weight. Also, I've heard that there are foods that trigger this gland and others that block it.

Please advise and explain. I do need to lose weight. I'm up in years. — Mrs. S. G.

I suspect you have been reading something about this in a new diet book.

The pituitary gland (hypophysis) is often called the "master gland." It's about the size of a lima bean and, as a matter of fact, it bears a striking resemblance to one. It's located near the center of the head at the base of the brain. From here it controls the entire endocrine (gland) system of the body.

Pituitary explained

It can enter the picture in weight gain through its control of the thyroid, another important gland that controls metabolism (how we use the food we eat). A low-functioning thyroid can be related to a low-functioning pituitary. Metabolism may be slowed down and weight gain may result.

But, as I've said there before, it makes no sense to tinker with glands at the slightest sign of something wrong. Only in extreme cases of disabling obesity is such an approach even considered. Your 20 pounds of excess weight is certainly no indication of a problem of this nature. In fact, there are no specific foods that's going to have any significant effect on how these glands work.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I would like to know if a person is on a salt-free diet for a heart problem, should he also avoid food containing baking powder, lunch meats, and other prepared meats that contain sodium nitrate for preservative? — Mrs. MoM.

You certainly shouldn't overdo on these items or any high-sodium foods. However, you have to take a balanced view of such things. The prepared meats might contain the sodium product you mention, but they don't require any table salt (sodium) for flavoring. Most of the fresh meats do.

There is no such thing as a "salt-free" diet. You are bound to get some amount in any diet you go on. A good thing, too. The body needs a certain amount of salt for health.

As for the baking soda, it seems an extreme measure to eliminate that. Better to restrict the amount of biscuits and other baked goods containing it. Look for the unsalted crackers rather than salted ones, etc. My book on diet and blood pressure may be of help to you in the matter of diet. For a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of this newspaper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I am a 24-year-old woman, married, with a three-month-old son. My problem is my skin. I can't say I have acne, but my face is always breaking out. Could you give me some idea as to why it still breaks out at 24? Could it be because I sleep with my hand on my face? — Mrs. M.R.

Difficult to say. The hand could be the cause. So could your pillow. One woman told me she found her problem was with her pillow slip. She began using a fresh one every night and her face improved considerably.

Try that, and try sleeping with your hand under your pillow, bringing your head that way. Let me know if it helps. Other friends would be interested, so would I.

One common problem for anyone growing up, if you are bothered with it, is to have children who are, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, for a copy of his booklet "Controlling Acne, Blackheads and Pimples." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Writer continues to learn about flag

By ERMA BOBECK

No one ever taught me about flag.

When I was five years old, I was in a dance recital. My costume was a silver leotard. Attached to it at the shoulders and wrists was a flag. During the last few bars, I spread my arms, revealing all stars on a field of white. The crowd went crazy cheering. I learned that a flag could make you look like you had talent.

A few years later at a baseball game in Cincinnati, two men were calling one another names that would stretch your underwear. One said Ted Kuzneski hit like a girl and the other guy threatened to rearrange his nose. Just then, they hoisted the flag and both of them stood with their hats over their hearts. I learned that a flag could break up a fight.

Wit's end

During the second World War, my Grandma sent her son to war. I never saw her cry when he left, when he wrote, or when we talked about him, but one afternoon when she thought no one was watching, she went to the front window and put a little flag on the sill. There were flags all up and down the street in the windows. I learned that a flag could bring tears to the eyes of people who didn't usually cry.

When I was in New York once, I saw a group of demonstrators protesting the war. They lit a match to the flag. I watched in horror as the silk stripes curled in flames because I knew what was coming. Within minutes, there would be a ball of lightning and thunder to strike them all dead. Nothing happened. The earth didn't part. The sky didn't fall. And the VFW was open regular hours. I learned that a flag could touch the ground and life could go on.

Later, I was to learn that people would make underwear out of the flag, keyrings and toilet seats. The flag was a successful commercial venture.

I would learn that you wouldn't think about the flag for a long time; then you'd see it being raised slowly over a gold medal winner at the Olympics and you'd get up out of your chair quickly and say, "Anyone want a bare while I'm up?" and go to the kitchen to hide your tears.

I'm still learning about flag. It's an enigma to me. I've known it all my life. It's so familiar, yet it occasionally touches a nerve that excites to the point where I square my shoulders and say in a perfect stranger's accent, "I see that with the red and white stripes and the blue stars. That's my country."

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JULY 4, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Use caution in dealing with others since there is likely to be some difficulties on this day. Take the time to be especially considerate of others where cultural interests are concerned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you find it difficult to contact a good friend, get busy on other activities. Don't forget to meditate or attend the services of your choice.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Contact associates and use tact in coming to a better understanding with them. Be sure to take the health treatments you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are desirous of having a happy time but the evening is best for this, since the day will prove worrisome. Think constructively.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Strive for more harmony in the home. Do some entertaining tonight and invite friends and relations.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Contact good friends and obtain the support you need. Take time early in the day to study written material for possible errors.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take time early in the day to figure out a better way to cut down on expenses. Be more tolerant of mate. Show that you are a considerate person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Figure out what you want most in life and plan how to gain your aims. Make sure your mind is working in the right direction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) It would be wise to consult an expert regarding a difficult situation you are facing and get it cleared up quickly. Show devotion to mate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A personal aim may seem elusive but it only requires more thought on your part to be successful. Be sure to attend to the social tonight.

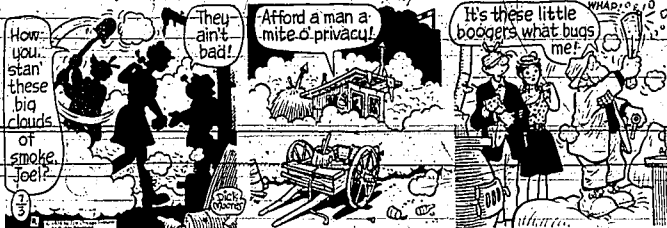

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Some outside matters do not seem to be progressing as you would like and it may require different tactics that those you are using.

QUARUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Concentrate on how-to advance more quickly in the future, be it in business or personal endeavor. Postpone a trip you are planning.

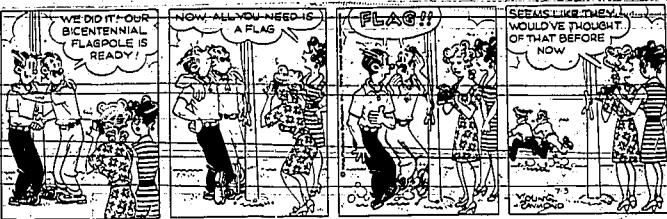

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Certain responsibilities may be boring but they have to be discharged nonetheless, so get busy on them. Show more devotion to mate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY: ...he or she will enjoy the company of others and may find it difficult doing almost anything alone. Teach to be more self-reliant and to join with others only when necessary. Otherwise, your promising progeny could become a mere hanger-on and never amount to much. The field of music, art, or whatever requires precision and persistence is fine here.

A matrimonial scholar contends "most any marriage is endangered by how the man and woman act toward each other during the first four minutes after they meet on any given occasion. When he comes home from work, for instance, or she gets back from the store. These are the crucial times that make or break the marriage, says this savant, not those high moments of wrath and romance. Our Love and War man is studying the findings.

Statistically, that time-of-day when a baby is most likely to be born is between 9 a.m. and noon, recent studies show. And from 9 p.m. to midnight is when that baby is least likely to be born. These figures do not hold for first-born babies, though. Between noon and 1 p.m. it is said to be when they're most likely to be born. And least likely, between 2 and 3 a.m.

- ### QUERIES FROM CLIENTS
- Q: "Is there any such thing as a snake that can fly?"
A: Not really. But there's an Egyptian snake that can glide. From high branches to low branches. Will it do?
 - Q: "How many laundries in Venice?"
A: About 400.
 - Q: What's the ideal water temperature for a swimming race?"
A: Am advised that's 76 degrees F.
 - Q: "How many toes on a house cat?"
A: Just 18. Five per front paw, four per hind paw.
 - Q: "Connie Stevens is of Latin American extraction, no?"
A: The record "Connie" indicates she, once it is certainly known, is Italian, English, Irish and Mohican Indian.

TIGHTS

Argument continues as to whether that item of apparel known as the leotard really was invented by a French trapeze act named Jules Leotard, named in his honor. It certainly was. But the name of costume, called tight, was created earlier. In 1792, to be exact. During a performance of the "Circus of Philadelphia." That was where and when a certain unnamed acrobat, falling to get back from the cleaners his customary costume, had to go on in his long-handed underwear. Ah, how the audience approved! It's possible that's where Leotard got the notion, who knows?

The sole of your foot has four separate layers of complicated little muscles. Most of them seem purposeless. In trying to figure out the why of them, some medicals have concluded only that they've survived from a time when the early human being picked-up things-with their feet the way monkeys do now.

Hollister man searches for rocks of ages

BY LINDA LEE
Times-News writer

HOLLISTER — Digging in the dirt may sound like child's play, but it can be rewarding when a person unearths an 8,000-year-old Indian tool.

The ground in this area has given up just such a treasure plus much more to Jerry Lee Young of Hollister.

Since 1966, Jerry has been seriously "shoveling" and sifting Magic Valley dirt, searching for artifacts, objects of olden man.

An artifact is any man-made object which has been made or used, recorded in the past. Various types of artifacts include: arrowheads, spearheads, knives, spears, hammers, axes, scrapers, drills, and various types of tools. Some artifacts are made of stone, some of bone, some of wood, some of metal, and some of other materials.

Jerry says today, as men in a digger can find artifacts left behind by Indians several hundred or more years ago. Below the three-foot level the artifacts are usually 1,000 years old or more, he says.

The 8,000-year-old tool he found, a flute point, was used to kill big game, Jerry says a friend of his in Nevada was building a road on his property and came across some points. The friend called Jerry, because the friend knew of his interest in artifacts.

The point, found about 20 feet underground, is a rare find for a collector. Another rare find of Jerry's is a 6,000-year-old point unearthed along the Snake River. The point, called a Scotts Bluff, was also used against large game.

In all, Jerry has unearthed roughly 3,000 pieces. His most common finds are arrowhead points. Jerry also has found a variety of tools, from awls and axes to scrapers, drills, knives, spears and hammers. His collection also includes several knives and Yuma points.

Most of these objects were fashioned from hard rock, like granite. In addition, Jerry has found objects made of bone, wood, and various types of metal. Various types of artifacts include: arrowheads, spearheads, knives, spears, hammers, axes, scrapers, drills, and various types of tools. Some artifacts are made of stone, some of bone, some of wood, some of metal, and some of other materials.

Jerry found 90 per cent of his collection on his friend's farms and ranches in the Magic Valley.

Jerry says he finds many of his artifacts near the Snake River, because early man almost always camped along a river or stream.

Sometimes Jerry has found old camp sites in desert-like areas near ancient streams. "He says stinging nettle is a good clue to where ancient streams are. The weed often grows on the ground above the tracks of ancient streams," he says.

Once Jerry has decided on a digging site, he gets out his shovel and screen table. As he digs, he throws the dirt on the screen, which sifts out the artifacts if there are any.

His teacher was Bert Dobbs, an uncle, who first took him along on digging expeditions when Jerry was in the seventh grade in Twin Falls. By the time he was 16, Jerry started going out on his own. For the last ten years, he has seriously searched for Indian artifacts alone.

This year his collection will appear in the fourth edition of "Magic Valley Indian Relics." His collection is attracting attention from collectors and archaeologists. Jerry has been invited to give talks at various schools and museums. He has also been invited to give talks at various schools and museums. He has also been invited to give talks at various schools and museums.

Last year the same case won the Northwest Regional competition in Billings, Montana. It was only the third time in 25 years that a member of the Magic Valley Gem Club won the regional competition first place award.

Jerry's artifacts have also won awards in Twin Falls, Mountain Home, Idaho Falls, and Ogden, Utah.

"Being first isn't new to Jerry. In high school he won the Golden Gloves for boxing, was state archery and wrestling champion, gold medals in swimming and was an All-Conference player for two years in football.

He graduated from Twin Falls High School in 1969, married Marsha Callen of Hollister in 1971, and has two daughters, Candine, 4, and Jodie, 2.

Between carpentry work in the winter and ranch work in the summer, Jerry still manages to put in a lot of time in searching for artifacts.

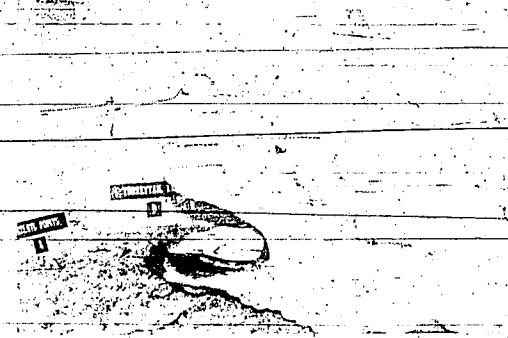

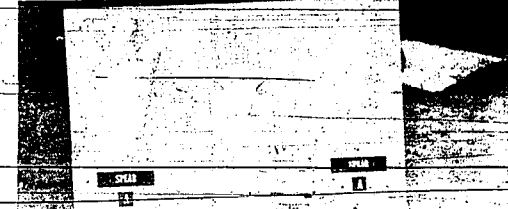

When asked if he was interested in pursuing a formal study of archaeology, he said no. Jerry says he is not an archaeologist by a hobby but of more public notice than those found by professionals.

Scientists have a tendency to dig up the ancient tools, study them and then throw them in a box in a museum, where they are never seen again, according to Jerry.

He says he won't reveal the digging sites for fear other interested people would dig there, and after all, as he says, he discovered the places.

For those interested in pursuing the art of ancient tool hunting, he cautions that as much work must go into the study of literature on artifacts, as goes into actually hunting them.

If one doesn't study the literature, he won't know what he's got, Jerry says.

THE HEAD of a coyote lies in front of a display of arrowheads that Jerry Lee Young, Hollister, found. The arrowheads are from 1,000 to 2,000 years old.

CAROL BURNETT

... among the film flops

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q What happened to that girl who was going with Alexander Dumas before he suddenly upped and married Christina Onassis? — T. Y., Denver, Colo.

A That was Denise Sioris and right now she is in Washington where she works as a waitress at a place called Dixie's Warehouse. But don't get all weepy about Denise's plight. She's a philosophical sort and holds no grudge.

Anyway, she always expected that Alex would leave her if a better catch came along—before and here.

Q With all those romances coming to light involving the likes of Kennedy, Hays, Wilbur Mills, etc., how come nothing has surfaced on that great lady's man, Henry Kissinger? — I. J., N. Y., N. Y.

A We have never heard anything worth reporting from any of the women Henry took out. You might say a case of a bit of smoke but not much fire.

NO SMOKING: We hear that Tony Randall's co-star in a new TV show will be Rex Harrison's ex-wife Rachel Roberts. The problem is that anti-smoking laws are an averaging angle when it comes to smokers. And Rachel is a dedicated pack-a-day purfer. Well, perhaps Rachel's experiences dealing with the irascible Rex will come in handy.

Q What about Cher and Greg Allman? Are they still together and has she had her baby yet? — P. P., Hartford, Conn.

A Cher is at the beach in Malibu awaiting her second child, which should arrive in a minute now. She was desperately ill in Hawaii with a pregnancy-related problem but is better now. She was 350 very sick when she started "differently" when she was pregnant. Highly likely when she was so beautiful, this young lady would Allman, who flew to her side at a Hawaiian hospital. And by the way, he has gotten himself totally off drugs and is in terrific shape for the first time in years.

Q Is it true that Ramon Welch insured her bust for a million dollars through Lloyd's of London? — U. C., Oakland, Calif.

A No. The people at Lloyd's say they read these stories too, but the reports are just publicly gimmicks. They never handled the insurance on Damon's boss Jayce Mizel's busts, but — they're the same — they did cover Betty Grable's busts for one million, but that was just during the shooting of one picture.

The only legs that concern them at the moment are those of Rudolph Nureyev, who has insured his principal means of support for $50,000.

Q Is Glenda Jackson ever going to reconcile with her husband? — A. M., Austin, Tex.

A Glenda, who spent a fortune setting husband Roy Hodges up in various business enterprises, has no intention of patching up her 16-year marriage.

Roy, however, candidly admits he misses all the glamour, jet-setting and money that went with being the consort of a reigning movie queen. He now has to grub along in a tiny apartment working as manager of a small theatrical group while Glenda goes on living high.

Didn't Hodges get a decent financial settlement? "Only if you think 2 per cent of the gross is decent," he complains. And he gave her the best years of his life, too.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Guess who's the best actress for good looks in Washington? We hear it's none other than the Secret Service. Some D.C. reporters have gotten the best setups of their lives from the S. S. Caroline.

Q Did Caroling get her mother to agree to let her work at the Olympics in Montreal next month? — E. A., Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Which of the two famous Carolines do you mean? Caroline Kennedy has been permitted to take a job as an assistant camerawoman for ABC at the Summer Olympics. In addition, Princess Grace is allowing her Caroline to serve as a French interpreter at the games.

Q What's with Faye Dunaway and her rock musician husband Peter Wolf? There were lots of pictures of Faye at the Cannes Film Festival but he wasn't in any of them. — C. C., Naples, Fla.

A He wasn't in the photographs because he wasn't at Cannes. Looks to us as though he and Faye were in the same boat.

JULIE and BLAKE still sweet on each other

FAYE DUNAWAY

... she was there — Pete was not the lady and her husband are traveling in different directions.

Q How did Lee Remick do in her London production of "Bus Stop"? — C. J., Lexington, Ky.

A She was a snafu, as usual. But her star Keir Dullea was not having such a good time because Lee's name covered most of the theater audiences and Dullea's was hardly visible. With Miss Remick's support he spoke to the management but they wouldn't budge. So Ker returned to go on and his understudy took the part.

Dullea resumed the role for the next performance with the billboards in mind. The show must go on, we guess, even if your name is in small type.

Q How do Julie Andrews and her husband get along? — K. L., Baltimore, Md.

A It seems like a real story-book marriage. Even after going together for four years and being wed for seven more, they still seem to be in love.

They were seen in public, holding hands on the street and generally behaving like teenagers.

At the same time, Julie is trying hard to shed that innocent image that had some smart saying she was so sweet she could transmit "good" decay at 50 paces. So Julie dutifully talks about how she smoked pot, loves X-rated movies and dates an oddball musician.

But she still comes across as sweet as ever. However, when the public sees her in her latest film where she co-stars with her husband, she's under a different light. Her husband, the old image man, finally has broken for good. We hope not.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: How come those lithe-sized inflatable dolls are selling like hotcakes in Los Angeles, Motopars on E? — A — are buying them in an effort to dodge a new freeway regulation which sets aside certain lanes for cars carrying at least two passengers. The scheme is another effort to encourage car pools.

Foxy drivers are popping up the dolls as pseudo passe-airs. Whizzing by at 60 who can tell the difference?

Q Have you heard anything about a revival of the old amateur hour show for television? — J. McD., San Bernardino, Calif.

A They're working on the pilot for a new version right now. There's too much trouble because the producers were going the traditional hook to haul the most likely contestants off stage when they talked.

A few of the judges rejected this was a bad and inhuman punishment and withdrew from the pilot show.

Q Wouldn't you think Paul McCartney would drop his wife from the Wings group in view of the terrible reviews she keeps getting? — D. B., Knoxville, Tenn.

A These slams and abuses seem to have the opposite effect of Paul, making him ever more determined to keep taking the show. No, it isn't obstinate McCartney feels a great need to repay his wife for the warm, comfortable home she has provided.

What other rock star would do so well an ode to domesticity like "Cook at the House" just for his wife to sing? Linda is up on that stage for as long as she wants to stay.

Q Did I hear right that actress Charlotte Rampling had a big fling with my guy at the Cannes Film Festival? — K. F., Huntsville, Ala.

A And you thought that Charlotte had finally gotten "now" right? No, she never manage a tryst and that sort of thing. Well, Charlotte, who was a judge at the festival, met up with musician Jim McInerney, 23, and set the wheels in motion.

Left behind were husband Brian Southcombe and son Nicholas. Mr. McInerney says she'll be back at a couple of months, but she'll be home with a baby.

Q Is Sigmund Freud's daughter Anna still alive? — P. D., Traverse City, Mich.

A Yes, she's 29. The doctor is managing her work. Famous of the family, she came in England, recently 45, to do a long-standing role in a book club. She works at the clinic when she does. The producer ever under the direction of her brother, to photograph her in a film.

Buffalo chip throwing contest slated

By SAM FOGG
United Press International
 In the plastic age of the 1970s, residents of Salida, Colo., are looking back to the 1930s for a new event for their 50th birthday on July 27. They are sponsoring a buffalo chip throwing championship.

But when terms like "chip" and "throwing" are put into the same sentence, it is not surprising that the contest originated centuries ago by the Indians who migrated from the Pacific.

And in the 1930s, it was the "buffalo chip" that was used to make a "buffalo chip" in the town of Salida, Colo.

holding a tricycle race for adults as part of its bicentennial weekend.

While the major league cities will enter their traditional baseball fare, other communities will provide competitions of more pioneer flavor.

New-Philadelphia, Ohio, will sponsor a long-vailing contest on July 3. On the same day, Cairo, Ga., will be the scene of the Grady County marble games.

A three-day rodeo at Vale, Ore., opens July 2 with what is billed as a "suicide race" on horseback down mile-high Vale Butte and across the Ford River. An all-Indian rodeo takes place over the weekend at Flagstaff, Ariz.

Shreveport, La., is hosting the international BB gun championships Friday through Sunday with boys and girls from ages 7 to 14 entered from the 50 states, Canada and Mexico. Beulah, Colo., is staging a 30-mile Pony Express race. Yuma, Colo., its 10th annual championship inner tube competition on the Yuma River. Kerrville, Texas, a canoe race on the Guadalupe River.

Seward, Neb., is sponsoring a fireman's water fight and a old-fashioned 11-foot ascension. Columbus, Iowa, a fireman's water fight, a horse shoe exhibition and an antique tractor pull.

The all-Alaska championship competition in logging, axthrowing and pole-teeing takes place at Sitka. Copra-cutting and spear-chucking contests will be held on American Samoa. International soccer matches will be played at Raleigh, N.C.

Greased pig chases and old fiddlers contest is on tap at an all-day 4th of July community picnic at Ada,

Oklahoma. Vineland, N.J., however called off its greased pig chase when the local chapter of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals threatened to bring suit. The secretary of the Vineland club, sponsoring the festivities, said the greased pig event was "as American as apple pie" but agreed to substitute a hog-calling contest.

Other sports events of more recognized nature for the weekend include the Firecracker 400 stock car race at Daytona Beach; the Silver Eagle International regatta at San Francisco, and the Pike's Peak auto hill climb at Manitou Springs, Colo.

Insects destroy timber in western states

MISSOULA, Mont., (UPI)—Forest insects and diseases have destroyed enough timber to build more than 100,000 new 1968 houses, a thirteen national news service reported.

The volume of timber destroyed exceeds the amount harvested in the forests of Montana, Idaho,

North Dakota and western South Dakota, the agency announced.

Defoliation is expected to continue at about the same intensity as in 1975 but the number of acres infested is expected to increase.

Infestations in western Montana and northern Idaho are expected to remain static or decrease in 1976.

Although it was reported that insect infestations in western white- and ponderosa pine continue to increase, in those two areas:

A 15-page report put out by the forest service stated that visible defoliation by the western spruce budworm alone "now extends over 30 million acres, excluding the Nez Perce National Forest of northern Idaho."

Root diseases on 2,900 acres of the Panhandle National Forests showed that eight to 10 per cent of the area is covered by root disease centers, as shown in the forest service report.

This brand new siding from Johns-Manville doesn't do what other sidings do. (And that's why it's so much better.)

- Doesn't show scratches: Driftgrain's color goes off the way through, so scrapes don't show.
- Doesn't rust or corrode: Unlike metal siding, vinyl siding is resistant to weather.
- Doesn't dent, stain and bubble: Heat and hotballs make their marks on metal siding, but not on vinyl.
- Doesn't pool, blister, chip or crack: The color in Driftgrain is 40 times as thick as the color on painted siding.
- Doesn't ever need repainting: Maintenance-free vinyl is the only siding that never needs repainting.
- Doesn't rot, mildew or warp: Vinyl is totally waterproof.
- Doesn't show its age: All siding looks good when it's new. Driftgrain stays that way.
- Doesn't sound like a drum when it rains: Vinyl siding is much quieter than metal siding in a hailstorm.
- Doesn't interfere with your TV: Metal siding can adversely affect your TV reception. Not vinyl.
- Doesn't conduct electricity: Vinyl siding is safe during electrical storms.
- Doesn't support combustion: Protecting your family and belongings is always important.
