Party humor?

COLLECTIVE LAUGH is enjoyed by Sen. Frank Church, D-Ohio, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, right, and newsman Douglas Kiker during the "Today" show on NBC-TV today. Church appeared on the show before meeting with Democratic presidential front-runner Jimmy Carter to discuss the vice presidential slot on the ticket. ## Harmony prevails at Demo meet

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Democrats open their national convention tonight in a festive and harmonious mood with the nomination of Jimmy Carter, who emerged from Georgia politics to pull them together.

In a situation rare for the party in recent years, the only suspense at the start of the four-day convocation was Carter's choice of a running mate from among seven members of Congress. "So far as I know," remaining on his list.

He completed interviews with the finalists just hours before Party Chairman Robert Strauss gave to order the 37th Democratic National Convention at 8 p.m. EDT in Madison Square Garden.

The final two interviews were with Sens.

Frank Church of Idaho, who beat Carter in four primaries, and Sen. Adlai Stevenson II of Illinois. Others on the list were Sens. John Glenn of Ohio, Henry Jackson of Washington, Walter Mondale of Minnesota, and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, and Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey.

"There are maybe three that are at the top of my list," Carter said prior to the 90-minute session with Church.

Afterward, at a joint news conference with the senator, the former Georgia governor gave no further clue as to the choice he will announce following the formality of his nomination Wednesday evening.

Church said of Carter: "I have great admiration for him. When he and I went on the campaign trail he often beat me."

Carter also indicated that if elected, he would have a close, hard look at U.S. intelligence activities — a field in which Church became expert when his select Senate committee investigated abuses by the CIA and other agencies.

"I think that we need a good, competent intelligence network," Carter said. Another of the vice presidential prospects, Mondale, arrived in New York today and said he would accept the second spot on the ticket if Carter offers it. He said he believes Carter would make the vice presidency a strong position that he could serve in without hesitation.

Under questioning, Carter said there was "no significance" to the order in which he has interviewed the vice presidential possibilities.

Church meets with Carter

By CHRISTOPHER BOGAN
Times-News writer

NEW YORK CITY — Senator Frank Church met with Jimmy Carter this morning to discuss a possible Carter-Church Democratic ticket. A press aide for Sen. Church told the Times-News today that the meeting was "very friendly."

The senator and the governor first met each other's families and then retired into another room for their discussion, one of several scheduled with potential vice presidential candidates.

Carter and Church reportedly talked about foreign affairs, revenue sharing, the vice presidency and Church's work on the Interior Committee.

When a press aide for Senator Church was asked if the Senator's chances for the nomination seemed "enhanced" or "diminished" after the meeting, the aide could only repeat that it was "a friendly meeting," and the "decision is up to the governor."

The spokesman said the reason Sen. Church was one of the last candidates to meet with Gov. Carter was because the Senator was on vacation with his family, and the governor did not want to intrude upon that time.

According to UPI, Carter said of Church, "I have great admiration for him. When he and I went on the campaign trail he often beat me."

Church won primaries in Nebraska, Idaho, Oregon and Montana.

Carter also indicated that he may be interested in reorganizing intelligence agencies in light of CIA abuses, which Church's special senate committee helped investigate.

Meanwhile, Idaho Democratic delegates had arrived in New York and were entering the swing of the convention.

Betty Lavery, Democratic delegate from Ketchum, said that it seems like "the lull before the storm; democrats are not usually this quiet," quiet.

Mercedes McCarter, Democratic delegate from Coral, said that people have "not gotten into the swing of the convention yet. Folks are just milling about and chatting."

Last night, however, things were moving. There was a huge party hosted by Gov. Carter. Over 5,000 people were said to have attended.

Both Lavery and McCarter reported that support for Sen. Church for the vice presidential nomination appeared strong among the other convention delegates.

According to Lavery and McCarter, support for Church was expressed by delegates from Nebraska, Utah, California, Oregon, New Mexico and Montana.

Last night there was a meeting of the "Right to Life" group, a group that is opposed to legal abortion. Their members met with signs and buttons, and various speakers addressed the group.

TF bank robbed

TWIN FALLS — A man wearing a backpack robbed the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co., escaping with an undisclosed amount of money.

Twin Falls police reported at about 12:15 they had arrested a suspect in the case.

No further details were available on the arrest.

Twin Falls Police Chief Frank Barnett said $500 is "probably close" to the amount the robber took.

Barnett said the black male suspect was arrested by plain clothes detectives in the Twin Falls bus depot.

He said the man was not armed and did not resist arrest.

He said most of the money had been recovered.

Barnett said he could not identify the suspect. He said the man was alone at the time of the arrest.

Police immediately set up roadblocks and scoured the area seeking the man described as a Negro in his mid 20s, accompanied by a blonde white woman riding in a late model bronze-colored pickup truck.

According to bank cashier Fred Ott, the robber did not show a weapon, but handed a note to a teller who handed over an undisclosed amount of money.

Bank officials would not say what the note said.

Nobody was injured in the incident.

According to Ott, "The alarm was tripped and the robber responded." He added that the robber escaped before police could arrive.

Ott said the amount of money obtained was not known. "We can't determine how much yet. We haven't had time to audit the cage yet," he said.

The robbery occurred at 10:47 a.m., according to police.

The robbery reportedly was first seen arriving east on Main Avenue a few minutes after the robbery.

Wallace seeks to halt revolt

NEW YORK (UPI) — George Wallace, having discovered many of his supporters don't like the idea of supporting Jimmy Carter, agreed to meet with his delegates today in an effort to head off a rebellion.

Wallace scheduled the meeting after his delegates from several states told reporters they were planning to vote against him as a protest against his stands on busing and other issues.

Buhl man faces charges in horse dragging case

BUHL — A Buhl man was arrested Sunday for dragging a castrated horse along pavement behind his pickup truck when the animal refused to be led.

The animal died this morning. The animal had been castrated about a mile. Sheriff's officers said charges were expected to be filed today in the case.

According to Twin Falls Sheriff's Deputy Jack Hopwood, Buhl police received a report about 8:30 p.m. Sunday that a horse was being dragged behind a pickup truck along Clear Lakes Road south of Buhl.

Investigating officers arrested Otha R. Manson, 68, for drunk driving and cruelty to an animal.

Hopwood said the horse was on its feet when officers arrived but was sliding on all fours and not leading. He said the animal had been dragged on its right side to the extent that hide was rubbed off its ribs and right shoulder. The horse was dragged by a rope-litter tied to Manson's pickup, Hopwood said.

Hopwood said Manson had allegedly taken the animal to be castrated prior to dragging it with the pickup.

He said the animal was bleeding badly and was thoroughly shocked.

Manson reportedly lost consciousness while talking with Buhl officers at the scene and was taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, where he remained today.

Hopwood said the complaint would be filed by Buhl officers who witnessed the incident.

Howe case motions denied

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A city court judge today denied a handful of motions directed toward dismissal of sex charges against Rep. Allan Howe, D-Utah.

Judge Raymond Ud denied defense motions to dismiss sex solicitation charges against the freshman Utah Democrat on the bases of prejudicial misconduct; prejudicial pretrial publicity; errors in the formal complaint; allegations that the city ordinance under which Howe was charged is unconstitutional and an allegation the police deputy prostitutes had enticed Howe.

Howe is scheduled to stand trial before Judge Udo July 19 on the misdemeanor charge of soliciting sex acts for hire.

Howe sat at the defense table taking notes throughout the proceeding, his hands visibly shaking during parts of the session.

Crash kills Burley woman

NEW MEADOWS — A Burley woman was killed Saturday afternoon in a two-car, head-on collision about eight miles north of New Meadows on Highway 95.

Sherry Matthews, 38, was pronounced dead on arrival at McCall Hospital after her small foreign sedan collided with a larger domestic car driven by Roger K. Fletcher, 24, Moscow.

Mrs. Matthews' one-year-old son, James, who was beside her in the front seat at the time of the accident, was being treated today for multiple fractures at the hospital in McCall. According to police reports, the child suffered breaks in both legs.

New Meadows Idaho State Police trooper Keith Johnson, who investigated the accident, said the collision occurred about 2:15 p.m. Saturday.

He said both vehicles were in the middle of the highway when they collided. Vision was clear for three-quarters of a mile in either direction from the accident site, he added.

Fletcher was taken to McCall Hospital and held overnight for observation but released Sunday after treatment for "minor" injuries.

Johnson added that charges would probably be filed in the case, but he refused to disclose what those charges might be.

He said Fletcher had made a confidential statement regarding the accident, but he refused to disclose the contents of the statement.

"It's still under investigation," he said.

Heart-ening tale

MOSCOW (UPI) — While cleaning a rooster, cooks in the Ukrainian city of Dnepropetrovsk found it had nine hearts and three livers, the newspaper Trud reported Sunday.

Trud said a farmer had noticed that the rooster was unusually heavy and extraordinarily feisty.

"The secret was discovered when he was brought to the cooks," it said. "The cooks were very much surprised because this cockerel had nine hearts and, in addition, three livers."

Trud said the hearts were arranged like grapes on a single stem.

It quoted V.F. Makovskiy, a professor of abnormal anatomy as saying this was a "unique phenomenon."

Gun fired accidentally, Border Patrol agent says

RUPERT — A U.S. Border Patrol agent said today that he stumbled and fell, accidentally discharging the weapon that killed an 18-year-old illegal alien on June 17.

Dennis Lee Hendrickson told a Minidoka County coroner's jury that the bullet which struck Jorge Lemus in the back of the head was fired "either directly against him . . . or up to four inches away."

Hendrickson said he had reached to grab Lemus, who was climbing out a window, when one man threw his arm around the agent and another jostled him while pushing him back into the interior of the J. R. Simplot Livestock Co. bunkhouse.

The agent said he stumbled and fell. He said he caught his fall with his left hand on the window sill.

Hendrickson said he had seen one man with what appeared to be a kitchen knife in the doorway before he entered the house and the other drew his gun and raised it up the air to show the others that he was armed. A pocket knife was found under a mattress, but no knife answering Hendrickson's description was discovered.

In a statement to Minidoka County sheriff's deputies following the shooting, Hendrickson had said "My right hand struck the person in the back of the head, missing my finger against the trigger."

Hendrickson said today that he was not sure his hand had hit Lemus but "my finger was in pain after the gun went off."

The bullet struck Lemus on the left side of the back of the head, moving in an upward path.

Under questioning by Minidoka Press Atty. H. G.D. Manning, Hendrickson admitted that the double-action 38 caliber special has a "fairly strong trigger, our said he is sure he had not cocked the hammer before the shooting occurred.

The regular issue for agents on patrol is a .357 caliber, but Hendrickson was issued the gun at a doctor's request because of the extra weight of the other gun was pinching a nerve.

Hendrickson said he had never qualified with the gun on a target range and had fired it only at a May pistol show in Burley.

WILMINGTON, Del. (UPI) — Strong tall winds aided more than 100 female pilots flying into Wilmington today on the last lap of the 2,916 mile coast-to-coast Powder Puff Derby.

A derby official said planes were flying from as far away as Santa Fe, N.M., but she expected all pilots to be in Wilmington by dusk today. At least 25 planes landed this morning with some coming in within five minutes of an on-ther.

"Great tall winds are really helping today," the spokeswoman said. "We've got only isolated showers today, so there should be no any problems."

Beirut refugee camp fall nears

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Christian troops claimed control of the bitterly defended Tai Zaatar refugee camp in Beirut today and said they have pushed to within a half mile of Tripoli, the leftist stronghold to the north.

A Christian spokesman denied that the camp had fallen, but said privately its collapse was "imminent and inevitable."

Christians battered the camp in southeast Beirut for 21 days in some of the bloodiest fighting of the 15-month war.

The Phalangist radio report said Tai Zaatar fell Sunday afternoon after a half-hour, house-to-house battle amid the flattened ruins of the camp's school and tin shacks.

An estimated 150 persons died on all fronts in fighting during the night.

Some of the heaviest fighting of the past week has centered on Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest port, where rightists are pushing from the north, south and southeast to bottle up the leftists.

Backed by what the Palestinians charged was Syrian artillery support, the Christians said they pushed to within a half mile of the city today after capturing Batrounine, five miles southeast.

Batrounine was the 17th leftist town to fall in the weeklong offensive, the Christians said.

The offensive was seen as an attempt to make strategic gains before any possible cease-fire can be worked out by Arab League foreign ministers meeting today in Cairo.

"The situation is much more serious than you imagine," Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, reportedly said in a cable to Egypt Sunday. "We are caught in a real pincer. After the Syrians shelled the Zahrani refinery, gasoline and diesel oil has run out.

For the third day, a huge fire roared out of control at the American-owned refinery, 35 miles south of Beirut.

Palestinians said Syrian artillery also shelled the Weyfel refugee camp near the ancient city of Baalbek, 56 miles northeast of Beirut, the Nahrel Bared and Baddawi camps in Tripoli, and the Ain El Helweh camp in the port of Sidon, 30 miles south of the capital.

Italian chief conferring on choosing new premier

ROME (UPI) — President Giovanni Leone, facing a Communist demand for power sharing, today began two days of delicate consultations to choose a new premier who will form Italy's 33rd government in 23 years.

Leone's consultations with parliament party leaders, former Presidents and premiers began with Foreign Minister Mariano Rumor, a former premier. They were scheduled to continue through Tuesday evening.

Leone's task was complicated by the strong Communist party showing in the June 20-21 parliamentary elections.

Although the Christian Democrats held their ground and remain Italy's largest party, the Communists increased their parliamentary strength by 2.2 per cent in the balloting and have been demanding a (formal) policymaking role in the next government.

Scheduled to follow Rumor to the Quirinale Palace were Senate President Amintore Fanfani, a Christian Democrat, and three-time premier, and Communist lawyer Pietro Ingrao, the new president of the Chamber of Deputies.

Politicians said Budget Minister Giulio Andreotti, who headed a center-right cabinet four years ago, was the likely winner because of his friendly relation with some leading Socialists.

The Socialists have said they will not join any government opposed by the Communists and have ruled out an institutional cabinet of non-political technocrats, a suggestion by Christian Democratic conservatives.

Other possible choices for premier were Defense Minister Arnaldo Forlani and Interior Minister Francesco Cossiga.

Outgoing Premier Aldo Moro was not entirely out of the running, Christian Democratic sources said, but he would prefer not to have the job for what would be a record sixth time.

Moro's Christian Democratic minority caretaker government resigned Friday after leading Italy through the national elections.

The Christian Democrats have 202 seats and the Communists 228 in the 630-seat Chamber.

US seeking return of Gearhart body

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — The U.S. embassy has begun arrangements to bring home the body of a 24-year-old Vietnam veteran executed with three British mercenaries by an Angolan firing squad.

Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., who was enroute to Luanda when Daniel Gearhart was executed Saturday, said contact with the Angolan government was initiated at the request of Gearhart's widow in Kensington, Md.

"She expressed a wish that the body be returned and the Angolans have said this would be permitted," Mathias said Sunday.

Hon. London, the British Foreign Office said it had instructed British diplomats in Angola to arrange for the return of the bodies of the three Britons if requested by their families.

The executions were carried out as Mathias waited in Lisbon for a visa to fly to Luanda to plead for Gearhart's life. His one remaining hope was that he might accompany the body home to Gearhart's widow and four children for burial.

Gearhart claimed he never fired a shot in Angola and was captured less than four days after he entered the country.

Although the United States has no diplomatic relations with Angola, the senator said he hoped arrangements to ship Gearhart's body home could be completed rapidly.

An Angolan information ministry official contacted by telephone said the Angolan government had no objections to the bodies being sent home. He said they would be retained for eight days to give the families time to make arrangements.

China buries Chu

CHINA Buries Chu Teh, China's greatest military leader and head of the country's parliament, was buried in Peking Sunday in a restrained ceremony that contrasted sharply with the emotional service for Prime Minister Chou En-lai last winter.

Hua Kuo-feng, the new prime minister and first vice-chairman of the Communist party, delivered a eulogy before a crowd of 5,000 in the Great Hall of the People, Hua said. Chu, who died last Tuesday at the age of 69, had Chu's ashes were buried in the Popanshan cemetery for China's revolutionaries. Chu was one of the founders of the Red Army in 1927 and along with Chairman Mao Tse-tung was considered one of the main architects of the communists' victory in 1949.

Chairman Mao, who has been in poor health in recent months, did not attend Sunday's ceremonies. But virtually all of China's other

Salyut gathers data

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Soviet cosmonauts orbiting earth in the Salyut 5 research station collected medical data today that will help in the training of future spacemen, Tass news agency said.

Mission commander Col. Boris Volynov, 41, and flight engineer Lt. Col. Vitaly Zolobov, 29, were in space for the sixth day.

Tass said they carried out research on blood circulation, heart activity, respiration and the condition of blood vessels under the conditions in space.

The announcement was made in a joint communique signed by Foreign Minister Carlos P. Romulo and visiting Vietnamese Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs Phan Hien.

In a statement after the signing Romulo said:

"Morning has come, dawn, sunrise — it is a new turn in the history of the region.

"Yesterday, we admit, was beyond our control. But today we can march together to achieve our objectives of unity and concord between our two peoples."

The foreign minister said the announcement would take effect "today."

No mention was made in the accompanying statements to the current negotiation of the status of the two huge American military bases on Philippine territory, now the last major U.S. installations in Southeast Asia.

Storage space questioned

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho wheat growers may have trouble finding storage space for their crops if favorable weather conditions continue and crop forecasts are realized, a transportation consultant to the Idaho Wheat Commission said Sunday.

Robert Henry, Idaho Transportation Council, said storage space at port terminals may be filled by the time Idaho growers start harvesting.

"Harvest dates in some Oregon and Washington wheat producing districts will be ahead of any harvesting in Idaho and much of the port storage will likely be filled," Henry said. "Henry said carryover stocks from last year's crop will occupy additional space."

"Farmers will need to add some grain bins on the farm or home for some sales at harvest time," Henry said.

Harold West, Boise-Idaho-Wheat Commission administrator, said spring wheat acres have increased 16 per cent this year.

Entomologist named

BOISE (UPI) — Robert C. Saunders, Boise, has been named state entomologist for the Idaho Department of Agriculture. Saunders received bachelor's and master's degrees from Utah State University and a doctorate in zoology from Brigham Young University in 1974.

He worked as an entomology technician for the University of Idaho at its Parma research station prior to starting his current position with the state agriculture department.

North Carolina firm chosen

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — The Jones-Boccon Company, Charlotte, N. Carolina, has been chosen to construct the new waste calcining facility at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Idaho Falls.

The laboratory is operated by the Energy Research and Development Administration, which will negotiate the contract.

Estimated cost of the new structure is about $40 million and the project is expected to take 40 months to complete.

The new facility will replace the existing one which converts highly radioactive liquid waste into granular solids.

Questionnaires sent

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Questionnaires are being sent to all U. S. House and Senate candidates in Idaho in an effort to find out their positions on compulsory unionism, the National Right to Work Committee said Sunday.

Results of the questionnaires will be made public before the August 3 state primary.

Organization President Reed Larson said the congressional survey is to identify candidates who "can be counted on to work to restore full freedom of choice to wage-earners throughout the country."

Larson said public opinion studies have shown consistently that more than two-thirds of the American people, including more than half of all voting-age members of union households, believe union membership should be voluntary, not compulsory.

Library funds okayed

BOISE (UPI) — The State Library Board has authorized payment of $500,000 worth of state and federal grants to Idaho's six regional library systems for fiscal 1977.

State funds for the regional grants amounted to $183,000 while federal funds are expected to total $317,000. The money will be used to buy books for use in each region, to hire staff to assist with reference questions and for other purposes.

Chairman Tom Neal, Moscow, said the board also voted to ask for up to $500,000 in fiscal 1978 from the state's general fund for the regional programs because federal funding is becoming increasingly uncertain. He said a similar total of $500,000 also will be sought from the legislature for public library construction grants.

Records indicate more tornadoes hit Texas than any other state, mainly because of its size, but it ranks ninth in terms of tornadoes per 10,000 square miles, an average of 3.6 per year.

Foreign journalists visit in Idaho

GLENNS FERRY, Idaho (UPI) — A group of top ranking foreign journalists visited Idaho Sunday during a stop by Caravan America at Three Island Crossing State Park.

The visitors were greeted by Idaho Division of Tourism and Industrial Development employee Dorine Goertzen, park manager Larry Smith and his wife, Aida Smith.

The foreign journalists visited historical sites and learned about the Oregon Trail and its Snake River crossing.

The tour began in Washington, D.C. The journalists and their families were invited to participate by the Society of American Travel Writers. Some 400 journalists from 50 nations are participating in the tours.

A later tour beginning in San Francisco will also cross southeastern Idaho en route to Yellowstone Park.

4-state plan funded

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — The WAMI regional medical education program has received $980,480 from the federal Health Resources Administration, officials said Friday.

WAMI, which stands for Washington, Alaska, Montana and Idaho, was established by the University of Washington School of Medicine in 1971 to allow more students from Northwest states to enter medical school and to help offset the maldistribution of physicians in the region.

The four states provide matching funds for the program totalling 50 per cent of the ultimate cost of student training. By the 1978-79 academic year, the states will be requested to provide all the needed funds.

WAMI started with nine students studying part of the year at the University of Alaska. Since then the University of Idaho, Montana State University and Washington State University have joined the program.

Hearings delayed again

BOISE (UPI) — Public hearings on two draft environmental impact statements related to phosphate mining in southeastern Idaho have again been suspended because of Teton dam disaster relief efforts.

The Interior Department and Forest Service said they suspended the hearings at the request of Gov. Cecil Andrus.

The hearings were to have resumed July 13 after being suspended so Idaho State personnel could carry out emergency assignments following the June 5 Teton Dam collapse. Additional work related to the dam cleanup and investigation has made it unlikely that the hearings will resume before Labor Day, the Interior officials said.

Hearings will be held in Soda Springs, Pocatello and Boise.

The draft statements cover the possible impacts of mining and processing federally-owned phosphate deposits on 145,000 acres of six southeast Idaho counties and on the Diamond Creek planning unit of the Caribou National Forest.

Traditional process remains

By MERCER CROSS
Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Changing the traditional methods of choosing vice presidents is a lot like the weather. Everybody talks about it, but nobody does much.

— Election year 1976 is no exception. If either party decides to make any changes, they won't take effect until 1980.

Even without formal revisions in the selection process, however, things will be different this year, at least for the Democrats. Jimmy Carter has been so sure of the Democratic nomination for so many weeks before the convention begins July 12 that he has had plenty of time to consider prospective running mates.

The two front-runners for the Republican nomination, President Ford and Ronald Reagan, do not have that luxury. The GOP contest is expected to be a tight to the finish, unlikely to be resolved before the mid-August convention.

Above all else, the two parties want to avoid a repeat performance of the kinds of disasters that befell their 1972 vice presidential nominees.

Spiro T. Agnew was nominated for a second term and re-elected as part of the Republican team that swept to a near-rout in 1972. Less than a year later, he resigned in disgrace after pleading "no contest" to a tax evasion charge.

Missouri Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton was the Democratic vice presidential nominee — but not for long. Disclosure that he had been treated for mental depression led to his removal from the ticket a few days after the convention. "Something must be wrong with a system which requires the presidential nominee to select a running mate under extreme time limitation," complained South Dakota Sen. George McGovern, the hapless Democratic candidate for president.

The parties' disasters had at least one positive effect. Both the Democrats and the Republicans were spurred toward new attempts at reforming the vice-presidential-selection process. McGovern's complaint was heeded to the extent that both parties sought ways to provide more time for deliberation.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota chaired a Vice Presidential Selection Commission for the Democrats. In December 1973, the commission made three recommendations to the party's national committee:

— To establish a screening committee for prospective vice presidential candidates.

— To extend Democratic conventions to five days from four, relieving some of the pressure for choosing running mates under a frazzling deadline.

— To give presidential nominees the option of postponing their decision, recommending their choice to a mini-convention 21 days after the national convention.

The Democratic National Committee turned down the screening committee idea. In December 1974, at their first national midterm conference, the Democrats took no action on the other two proposals. "After we were all through," said Humphrey, "we went to the mountains and gave birth to a mouse, so to speak."

The Republicans, too, have been working for improvements. Their chief vehicle for change after Agnew's resignation was the so-called Rule 29 Committee, chaired by Rep. William A. Steiger of Wisconsin.

Like the Democrats, the Republicans emphasized the need for more time to choose vice presidential candidates. Their goal for change is now 1980, not 1976.

One Republican proposal came from Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan. In 1975, he introduced a bill outlining for a constitutional amendment. The party conventions would nominate presidential candidates only. The President-elect would submit the name of his proposed running mate to Congress for confirmation.

Congress took no action on Griffin's bill, which would have established procedures similar to those in the Twenty-fifth Amendment to the constitution. These were first used in confirming Gerald R. Ford and then Nelson A. Rockefeller as vice president.

Republican Sen. Bill Brock of Tennessee introduced in 1974 — and reintroduced this year — a bill to permit potential candidates to have the FBI investigate the background of prospective running mates who were willing to be investigated.

The Rules Committees for both parties have listened to several recommendations this year for changes in the vice-presidential-election system. The year's most thoughtful study has come from a group at the Institute of Politics of the Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University.

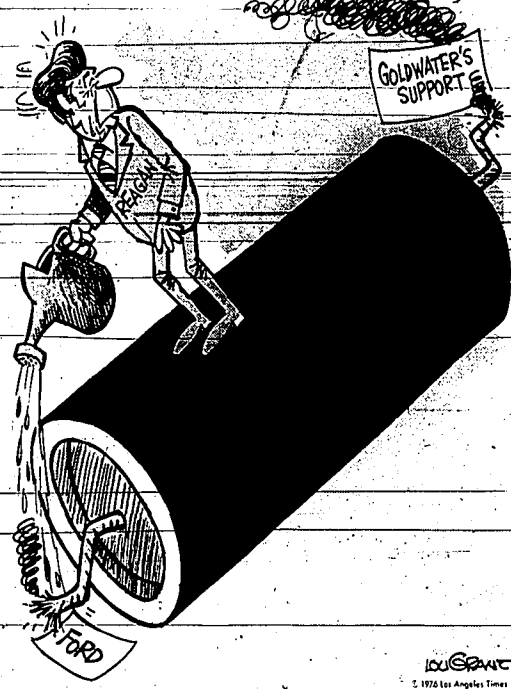

Comments by the study group and by some of the politicians who have looked into the question reflect a belief that the existing system has worked reasonably well over the years, despite its shortcomings.

"We do not believe that radical changes are desirable or workable," the report of the Harvard group stated. Its authors wrote that they felt strongly "that the predominant role of the presidential candidate in the election of a running mate should be protected."

Humphrey spoke in support of a rearranged convention schedule and of presidential and vice presidential candidates running as team in regional primaries. He also said, "I think you could formalize the machinery whereby you had a kind of council of elders of the party, selected by the party leadership to go out on kind of a finding mission."

Steiger said the one proposed change he considers rational is a rearranged national convention to allow an extra day for nominating a vice president. "I basically don't think you should, or are you ever going to be able to, change the system to any substantial degree," he said.

Entebbe euphoria for Israel

© Chicago Daily News
JERUSALEM — The Entebbe Affair has sparked a euphoria in Israel, faith in the army and enhanced the reputation of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin.
The lightning raid that liberated more than 100 hostages in Uganda Sunday gave the nation a feeling of pride and success since the heavy defeat in the Six-Day War of 1967. The one man who has reaped most of the credit has been Rabin.
Rabin's political stock has risen to a point not equaled since March, 1975, when the nation rallied behind his decision to turn down

American and Egyptian bids to continue the Sinai peace talks.
Rabin's associates are ecstatic about the political dividends he is bound to gain from the Entebbe success. One privately called the operation a "turning point" for Rabin.
Before Entebbe, Rabin's critics were predicting his shaky coalition government might collapse.
After Entebbe, Rabin's aides gleefully suggested that Rabin's critics had been muted by the military action, largely because he deserved credit for organizing the rescue. "You had to be there to see it," said one of his aides. "He held it all together."

Rosenbergs' sons want 'frame' investigated

NEW YORK (UPI) — The sons of convicted atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg hope to show Americans that the Watergate scandal was just an extension of the type of government misdeeds that sent their parents to the electric chair 23 years ago.
The Rosenbergs were executed at Sing Sing Prison June 19, 1953 for conspiracy to commit espionage in wartime. They were convicted of helping steal United States atomic secrets and passing them to the Soviet Union.
The Rosenbergs' sons, Michael and Robert Meeropol, are leading a drive to reopen the Rosenberg case, charging their parents were "framed" and their deaths were part of an anti-Communist hysteria that swept the nation after the outbreak of the Korean War.
"I would like to see the facts produce the kind of trial that would have cleared my parents," Michael Meeropol said. "I would like to see prosecution of the people who killed my parents. That is a dream that I don't believe will come true, but I would like to see it."

They feel that recently released FBI documents concerning the trial and its aftermath point to a government conspiracy to deny the Rosenbergs and co-defendant Morton Sobell a fair trial.
"Our first goal is to get as much of the information out as possible," Robert Meeropol said. "I'd like to get the American public to see that Watergate was not an isolated instance — that the same kind of thing happened in my parents' case and has been happening all along."
"I think we have a fighting chance to see the truth known. We have lost a lot of detail over the years, but there is one more book to be written — how the frameup was put together. The FBI files will go a long way toward this."
The Rosenberg brothers, who were raised and born in New York, were 19 and 17 years old, respectively, when their parents were executed June 19, 1953.
"The Rosenbergs were Communists and it was because they were Communists they were persecuted," Marshall Perlin, attorney for the Meeropols, said at a June 15 rally at Carnegie Hall in memory of the 23rd anniversary of the Rosenbergs' execution.

He pointed out that the government insisted on trying the Rosenbergs on a wartime espionage statute, despite the fact that the Soviet Union was an ally of the United States at the time of the alleged crimes.
The Meeropols feel that the release of the FBI documents under the Freedom of Information Act was the biggest opening for a re-examination of the Rosenberg case.
"This is the most important break we've had in the case," Michael Meeropol said of the documents dealing with federal trial Judge Irving R. Kaufman.
The Meeropols hope that public pressure for re-examination of the Rosenberg case can bring about release of more FBI documents. They estimate the FBI has 300,000 more pages of documents relating to the case.

Kaufman's office said the judge never commented on his cases outside of court, but inquiries were referred to another prosecutor in the case, New York attorney Jim Kilsheimer.
Kilsheimer also disputed the Meeropols' contention that Kaufman lied when he said at the time of sentencing he had not asked the government for recommendations on sentencing.
Kilsheimer said Kaufman never asked for a prosecution recommendation on sentencing and probably would not have gotten one had he asked, since government attorneys were divided on the subject.
But attorney Perlin, nonetheless, feels Kaufman's actions during the trial and the appeals process constitute grounds for either reopening the case before an independent local chapters, a six-member legal team and two full-time employees, all supported by voluntary contributions and lecture fees paid Robert and Michael.

Until three years ago, the Meeropol brothers maintained a low profile as teachers at Western New England College in Springfield, Mass., avoiding connection with their parents.
"Whenever we were Rosenbergs, as children, our lives were horrible," Michael said. "When we were Meeropols, life was peaceful."
Their public involvement in the Rosenberg case began three years ago with the publication of a book by Louis Nizer, which quoted portions of the Rosenbergs' letters from prison.
They filed suit, charging that the letters were used without permission, and they instantly became public figures.
They forced us into the growing evidence of a frameup," Michael said. "It created a drastic change in our lives, as we knew it would."

Executed in 1953

CHARGED with and convicted of conspiracy to commit espionage in wartime, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg were executed at Sing Sing prison June 19, 1953. They were convicted of helping steal U.S. atomic secrets and passing them to the Soviet Union. (UPI).

On the other side, individuals involved in the Rosenberg prosecution maintain "there is no evidence to justify reopening the case and there is no question of the defendants' guilt."
"Everything that the Rosenbergs' sons talk about doesn't deal with the fact that the jury voted 12-1 that they were guilty," lawyer Roy Cohn, an assistant U.S. attorney in the Rosenberg case, said in an interview. "They have lost all of their attacks on the evidence and now they are attacking the judge for what seems like ulterior purposes."
The 32 FBI documents released by the Committee to Reopen the Rosenberg Case cover a 23-year period, from 1951 to 1975. They deal primarily with communications to and from Judge Kaufman, now chief judge of the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York.
The Meeropols say two of the earliest documents indicate Kaufman lied when he said he had not consulted with the prosecution about sentencing for the three defendants before the trial ended.
One of the FBI memos, dated April 3, 1951 — two days before Kaufman passed sentence — said prosecutor Cohn told an FBI agent that Kaufman informed him he favored sentencing the Rosenbergs to death and sending Sobell to prison.
"Kaufman never discussed sentencing with me and to the best of my recollection, I never talked with the FBI agent named in the memo about sentencing," Cohn said.

Leading campaign

CONTENDING their parents' deaths were part of anti-Communist hysteria that swept the nation during the Korean war, Michael and Robert Meeropol, the Rosenbergs' sons, are leading a drive to reopen the case. They claim their parents were "framed." This protest was in Albany, N.Y., in June, 1975. (UPI)

Dateline 1776

By United Press International
PHILADELPHIA, July 12 — A committee headed by Pennsylvania's John Dickinson, who had abstained from voting for the Declaration of Independence, submitted to Congress a draft of the Articles of Confederation which were adopted in November. It called for a union of colonies "never to be divided by any act whatever" but reserving to them the right to their own laws, rights and customs.

Carter, women disagree on move to expand role

N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK—Jimmy Carter and a group of leading women Democrats were unable to reach agreement Sunday on a proposal for expanding the participation of women in the party's 1980 convention.

Carter's refusal to endorse the exact language of the women's proposed new party rule left uncertain whether or not there would be a fight on the convention floor over the issue. If such a fight occurs, it appeared likely to be the Carter's only battle of any significance.

After he announced that he could not accept their proposal, Carter made arrangements to continue work on it at another meeting Monday morning with a group of the party's activist feminists. His expressed confidence that an acceptable compromise would be worked out.

Carter did not specify precisely what portion of the proposal he objected to, but reiterated his long-standing opposition to "mandatory quotas."

It appeared certain that whatever the language of a new draft rule, some of the women, possibly a substantial number, would want to reject it.

Strong feminists had argued that even Sunday's proposal constituted too great a retreat from what they really wanted. They have fought for language that would require equal representation of men and women at the 1980 convention.

The draft that Carter said needed more work said only that the party should "promote" equal representation for women at the 1980 convention. That language has already been approved by the convention's rules committee.

However, another portion of Sunday's proposal differed from the committee's language in a section dealing with procedures for implementation of the rule. The version adopted by the Rules Committee last June said the goal of equal representation for women "shall rest with each state party."

Sunday's proposal said: "The national party shall take all feasible steps to assist state parties to incorporate this goal in their delegate selection plans for the 1980 convention."

That language gives the national party some authority to intervene at the state level in party business, an issue on which many Democrats are touchy.

At the meeting with about 50 of the leading women Democrats, held in a small public room at the Americana hotel, his headquarters, Carter committed himself as President to work to eliminate "the last vestiges of legal discrimination" against women.

He recalled that another Democratic president, Lyndon B. Johnson, had seen to the final eradication of laws that permitted discrimination against blacks and said that he wanted to be the president who achieved this objective for women.

He endorsed ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution and pledged to use his influence as President to secure its passage.

His remarks on this issue and many others, including an extraordinarily strong pledge to appoint women to jobs at all levels in his administration, elicited a favorable response from many of the women present, despite their disappointment at his failure to endorse their rules proposal.

Ford shakes image-maker staff with battles near

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Dropping his television adviser and dividing powers held by his senior aide, President Ford shook up his image-making staff in preparation for battling Ronald Reagan and perhaps Jimmy Carter.

Out went television adviser Robert Mead, blamed by presidential press secretary Ron Nessen for spilling last week's nationwide telecast of Ford's White House dinner for Queen Elizabeth.

Counselor Robert Hartmann, with Ford since his days in Congress, lost control of all written presidential statements but will supervise speech writing.

Ford promoted former assistant speech writer David Gergen to serve as White House communications director, under Nessen's and handle written, accidental statements. He replaced Margita White, a Swedish-born Californian, nominated to the Federal Communications Commission.

William Rattigan returned to the White House as Gergen's assistant, both are former aides to President Richard Nixon.

The action followed weeks of White House discussion and a Sunday session by Ford in his dining room and on the golf course with some of his closest political advisers: former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, deputy campaign manager Stuart Spencer, House GOP leader John Rhodes of Arizona and White House chief of staff Richard Cheney.

"There was a lot of engaging political conversation," James Cannon, director of the White House domestic council, told reporters after sitting in at the lunch.

The action also reflected Ford's confidence in public and private that he will defeat Reagan for the Republican nomination at next month's Kansas City national convention.

Catholics lukewarm

N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK—Jimmy Carter has so far shown no signs of being able to win the landslide margin among Roman Catholic voters that has helped to elect every winning Democrat in this century, according to an analysis of surveys conducted by the New York Times and CBS News.

However, Carter's gains among Protestants have been so substantial that if present trends hold up, he could win the presidency without a Catholic landslide.

Carter's relative weakness among Catholics has reportedly led his pollster, Patrick H. Cadell, to urge the former Georgia governor to consider a Catholic as his running mate.

The surveys—the latest conducted in mid-June—indicate that Carter's candidacy will dramatically increase the Democratic share of the Protestant vote, from something less than a third in 1972 to about half this year.

Rallies promote causes

NEW YORK (UPI)—The opening today of the Democratic national convention expected to be a five-day tribute to Jimmy Carter, was preceded by two rallies designed to coincide with the political "show" but not choreographed to please its star.

Right-to-life activists and supporters of gay rights staged separate rallies Sunday at Madison Square Garden, the convention site, to demand repeal of laws which they say stifle their respective causes.

Neither demonstration drew as many participants as its organizers had expected.

Police estimates about 3,000 anti-abortion supporters gathered in Central Park to hear presidential candidate Ellen McCormack, who has campaigned almost exclusively on the right to life issue and has five delegates to show for her efforts.

"It may take us many years to win our struggle against the powerful judges and the powerful legislators who have decided that it is convenient to allow one million unborn children to die every year," said Mrs. McCormack, a mother of three from Merrick, L.I.

Referring to the Constitutional guarantees of Americans, Mrs. McCormack cannot be taken away by Jimmy Carter.

The march, which Mrs. McCormack did not join, fell far short of earlier predictions ranging up to 130,000 participants, but groups from as far away as Oregon, California, Florida, Texas and Canada were represented.

On the lower side of Manhattan, gay rights supporters marched uptown from Washington Square Park to the Garden, chanting, "Two, four, six, eight, separate church and state."

The coalition called for repeal of laws which prohibit sodomy and passage of gay civil rights legislation.

They too, had reservations about Carter.

"Delegates who enter that building to anoint their king in peanut oil," said Gay Teachers Alliance spokesman Marc R. in "think they don't need us. They wrote us out of the platform."

"Not one gay vote should be cast for their candidates," he said. "Within the privacy of the voting booth each of us can be a gay activist."

Lunar-like Mars pleases scientists

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—Scientists seeking a safe landing site for Viking 1 are encouraged by photographs suggesting that part of the surface of Mars is something like the moon.

Jim Martin, project manager for the life-seeking mission, said Sunday new photographs of a potential landing spot west of previous characteristics as the moon—including craters, stream beds and ridges caused by volcanic activity.

Martin said Viking 1 is equipped to land on a moon-like surface and probably will settle down on the western edge of the Northwest Territory if more photographs received today confirm the present data.

A decision whether to land at the site will be made Wednesday, he said. If the so-called Western Front is chosen, the landing, originally planned as part of the nation's Fourth of July celebration, could be set for the pre-dawn hours of July 20.

If the western site is considered too hazardous, Martin said, the landing probably would be rescheduled for the

Both sites are part of the Chryse Basin, a section of Mars that is more rugged than project officials desired but offers more geological potential than scientists expected.

"Somebody has switched planets on me," Martin joked, as he studied pictures from Viking assembled by Jet Propulsion Laboratory technicians over the weekend.

The photographic mosaic shows a pattern of river channels flowing out of a canyon and winding around mesas and buttes.

Car rental 'plot' hit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The nation's three biggest car rental companies — Hertz, Avis and National — have been ordered, not to conspire to monopolize the $500 million-a-year car rental business, the Federal Trade Commission said today.

The order grew out of a complaint issued a little over one year ago which alleged the three companies fixed prices, harassed smaller competitors and kept potential competitors out of the nation's hipsters where they controlled 96 percent of the rent-a-car business during 1973.

The negotiated settlement of the complaint prohibits each company from conspiring to monopolize the car rental business anywhere, including airports, for working out agreements with airports which would have the effect of excluding smaller operations; and from making recommendations to airport operators which have the effect of giving the three big firms a "stranglehold" on business there.

Idaho Agriculture; feeding others and our economy.

As Idaho's number one industry, the 27,600 farmers and ranchers in Idaho supply much of the nation's food. And it's more than just potatoes. It's many things: beef, dairy products, wheat, beans, beets, fruit. In all, more than 50 agricultural commodities are raised in the state.

It's more than just we here in Idaho can consume. So a lot of it is shipped out of the state — to feed the rest of the country . . . and indeed the world.

And in return, money flows back into the state to help fuel Idaho's economy. Much of it ends up as part of the $380 million spent by our farmers and ranchers.

Barbara, Frank exchange vows

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI)—Frank Sinatra and Barbara Marx were married Sunday at a ceremony kept secret from everyone but the 130 guests and then surprised each other with announcements of their wedding plans.

Barbara Marx Sinatra, 46, the singer's long-time fiancée, gave her new husband a gray Jaguar.

He surprised her with a $100,000 Rolls-Royce — a deep blue color, to match her eyes, he said — equipped with several luxury extras and special license plates reading "BMS 1" for her new initials.

Sinatra, 60, and his bride, dressed in a flowing beige gown, were married in a civil ceremony Sunday afternoon at the desert estate of Walter Annenberg, former U.S. ambassador to Britain.

The afternoon temperature rose to a sizzling 109, but the groom in a light tan suit and guests wore ties as requested, on engraved invitations "to a party" sent out a few days earlier.

The celebrity-filled guest list included former Vice President Spiro Agnew, who escorted Sinatra's daughter Nancy, and former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and his wife, Nancy.

Other well-known guests at the wedding and reception following at Sinatra's compound half a mile from the Annenberg's "Sunnylands" estate included Rosalind Russell, Milton Berle, Gregory Peck, Kirk Douglas and Pat Henry.

Freeman Gosden of the old "Amos and Andy" radio series served as best man while Beatrice Korfman, wife of a prominent Los Angeles attorney, was matron of honor.

Sinatra's other daughter, Kristina, was also present, along with her mother, Natalie, and the bride's parents, Charles and Irene Blakely.

Colorful reception greets royal couple

BOSTON (UPI) — Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip spent the last day of their Bicentennial state visit to the United States touring Revolutionary War sites and stressing the friendship between America and Britain.

Boston gave the royal couple one of the most lavish and colorful receptions of their six-day visit.

The day opened with a 21-gun salute from Old Ironsides, the frigate used against Britain in the War of 1812, and ended with a banquet aboard the royal yacht Britannia before it sailed for Halifax, Canada.

In her only speech of the day, the queen — told — Bostonians outside the Old Statehouse, "We have enjoyed tremendously joining with the people of America in the celebration of the Bicentennial. We are deeply gratified for the kindness with which we have been welcomed over here."

She attended church services at the Old North Episcopal Church, where hung belfry two lanterns, when bungee April 18, 1975, to warn of the approach of British troops by sea.

The vicar, Robert Colledge, said the example of friendship between Britain and the United States after the Revolutionary War should be followed by riot-torn Boston.

"Knowing when and how to relinquish something you have been so proud to possess is the mark of a nation's fair claim to a strength found in brave men, not a weakness. Her Majesty spoke most graciously and clearly a day or so ago in Washington of the value of the British-Commonwealth to the world learned." Gollidge said.

"Perhaps Your Majesty's comment on the lesson learned by Great Britain can teach us a similar wisdom and decency to guide us, in her recollection as a community," he said.

A day of general greeting for the British sovereign had a single sour note. Pro-Irish demonstrators demanding the British withdraw from Northern Ireland gathered at City Hall where the royal couple attended a civic lunch.

The queen appeared slightly shaken by the hundred or so demonstrators who came within a few feet of her carrying banners and shouting "England Get Out of Ireland" and "IRA the Only Way." But the demonstrators' shouts were drowned out by the cheers of the remainder of the crowd.

A remark by the queen Sunday appeared to sum up her visit.

Pat Nixon's condition improves, but 'not yet out of the woods'

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Pat Nixon, buoyed by a visit from her family, a gardenia plucked from her garden and cards and letters from around the world, today was reported past the critical stage in her fight for recovery from a paralyzing stroke.

But her doctors cautioned that the condition of the wife of former President Richard Nixon still was serious, and that she was "not yet out of the woods."

Her family physician, Dr. John Ljungren, and consulting neurologist, Dr. Jack Mosier, scheduled a medical briefing today at Long Beach Memorial Hospital.

"The critical stage is over," Ljungren said in a brief statement issued Sunday. "But Mrs. Nixon is not yet out of the woods; she is progressing very nicely."

Mrs. Nixon was suffering from a slight paralysis on her left side, but she was receiving therapy in two-day-a-day walks in her hospital room with assistance. Her speech, slightly slurred as a result of the stroke, was reported improving.

Mrs. Nixon was transferred Saturday to the same room her husband, Richard Nixon, occupied when he was stricken with phtlebitis and died 21 months ago.

Nixon, accompanied by his daughters Julie and Tricia in a 4 1/2-hour visit to the hospital Sunday, said the room held "unpleasant memories for me."

"But in the end, I was able to pull out of it, and so that perhaps perks up her spirit a bit."

"It may be a lucky room. With the proper care combined with her determination, I think that she is passing through the crisis and maybe has passed through it... Time will tell."

Nixon, who chatted with reporters for about 10 minutes before entering the hospital, clutched a single white flower and a parcel filled with cards and letters as he left his limousine.

"I think she'll especially like this," Nixon said, pointing to the flower in his hand. "This is a fresh gardenia from the plant that was just outside of her bedroom that we picked this morning."

Nixon said the cards and letters he carried were "not only from famous people like emperors and kings, but also from quite she has never met."

"It's quite touching that people, from all over this country and in other countries, are thinking of her at this time."

Pat Nixon, buoyed by a visit from her family, a gardenia plucked from her garden and cards and letters from around the world, today was reported past the critical stage in her fight for recovery from a paralyzing stroke.

Crash conditions simulated

NEDERLAND, Colo. (UPI) — To seven Boulder residents simulating conditions the survivors of a 1972 plane crash in the Andes Mountains of South America experiences a mouse running along the Continental Divide looks good.

Paramount Pictures tested the film "Survive" June 28 in the mountain community. The movie shows how the 16 crash survivors lived for 70 days in subfreezing temperatures and resorted to cannibalism.

Co-organizer Mike Gilbert, 22, said the five men and two women decided to camp on a glacier 12,000 feet for three weeks to recreate the situation. He said provisions were also selected to conform to those available at the Andes camp.

According to Gilbert, about half of the 10 quarts of wine, seven candy bars, four cans of sardines, one jar of marmalade, a half pound of cheese and tea have been eaten.

However, Gilbert said the actual survivors of the crash, "I think they started to eat flesh by the 13th day," he said. The Nederland group has been on the glacier for 14 days.

The campers, who are not being paid for their experiment, have spent their days listening to a radio, playing cards and listening for the thunder and lightning which often begins rock slides.

The favorite topic of conversation is food.

"We've got to have a big celebration dinner," said Gilbert. "We'll have salads and stuff like that, turkey and potatoes... lobster."

"However, a mouse wandering near the camp was the only morsel in sight."

"That mouse doesn't know it, but it's looking better and better," said Peter Werner.

Pat Nixon, buoyed by a visit from her family, a gardenia plucked from her garden and cards and letters from around the world, today was reported past the critical stage in her fight for recovery from a paralyzing stroke.

No bargain, prosecutor says

ASPEN, Colo. (UPI) — District Attorney Frank Tucker Sunday said he would not bargain for the slaying of his lover Vladimir "Spider" Sabich, there would be no plea bargaining.

"No specific bargain was mentioned, just the offer or concept of plea bargaining was discussed," Tucker said. "I said there was nothing to talk about."

"Miss Longet, the French-born former wife of slinger Andy Williams, was charged with felony manslaughter in the shooting death of the proskrier 21 in the luxury mountain chalet they shared near Aspen for two years."

Sabich, 31, died minutes after he was shot in the stomach with a single .22 caliber bullet.

Miss Longet, 35, has pleaded innocent to the charge and her trial is scheduled for Aug. 30.

Tucker said attorneys for Miss Longet recently discussed with him the possibility of plea bargaining in the case, but Tucker said he "was not interested."

"I said I didn't think it would be appropriate in this case," he said. "Defense counsel talked about the concept, but I said there will be no plea bargaining."

A three-day hearing on suppression of evidence two weeks ago in Aspen was recessed by District Judge George Lehr. The judge was expected to return this week on a warrant issued to search the Sabich home was illegal.

The defense signed the warrant affidavit was not signed by a judge.

Abby

Valley Living

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to BUKED ON MY HONEYMOON did nothing but perpetuate the male-performance-oriented approach to sex. You said people might think there's something wrong with the husband if his wife spent all her time writing thank-you notes on their honeymoon—Why put all the pressure on the male in sexual relations while the woman sits back and waits for his move? I get the same thing from the girls I take out. They all call themselves "liberated," but do you think they'd ever initiate anything? No! I've got to kiss them first and make all the first moves. Then they're supposed to say, "No, when I go too far. (At least, the first time)." Who made up the rules for this game anyway?

SINGLE MALE

Abby answer brings retort

DEAR SINGLE: You're either playing with an old set of rules or some very old players. The truly liberated woman doesn't wait for the man to make the first move or say, "No," when he goes to far—if he's appealing. The honeymoon scene is another matter. If the bride spends most of her time writing thank-you notes, it's assumed she has no choice.

DEAR ABBY: A reader submitted "Lectori Salutem" as a practical, non-sexist salutation for a business letter, explaining that it meant, "Hail to the reader!" You replied "Hail to Most Americans have enough trouble with English!"

CORRY'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I don't consider myself a "dummy," but since I've never studied Latin, "Lectori Salutem" would be Greek to me.

DEAR ABBY: I was a widow and he was a widower. We were both lonely and decided that marriage would be a better way of living for both of us. I have my own income and Herbert has his, but we do share living expenses, so there's no problem there. On my birthday Herbert bought me a bicycle. I was thrilled with it because it was the first gift he ever gave me. I ride the bicycle occasionally, but apparently I don't ride it enough to suit Herbert, because he keeps threatening to sell it if I don't ride it more.

HURT IN FLORIDA

DEAR HURT: Perhaps it's Herbert's way of trying to get you to exercise more for your own good. However, regardless of his motivations, when he gave you the bicycle it became your property, and he has no right to sell anything that is yours.

TF hospital to offer parent, baby classes

TWIN FALLS—A series of parent and infant care classes will begin Wednesday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for couples whose babies are expected between mid-August and the end of September. All classes are held from 7 to 9 p.m. on consecutive Wednesdays in the hospital auditorium. Courses consist of six classes each and are conducted continuously. There is no charge to participants; however, persons wishing to attend the series must be present at the first or second class to be eligible for the remainder of the course. The only exception is the sixth class, of the topic of infant care, which is open to any interested person. Parent and infant care classes are presented on the hospital on a regular basis. The next series will begin on Aug. 25 (for parents of babies to be born from October through mid-November).

At the other table North and South slammed banged into seven hearts and East-West took the save at seven spades. The defense collected just four tricks to score a mere 700." Oswald: "I don't like to take away credit from South's virtuous bidding performance, but I feel that if East had been really alert he would still have bid seven spades rather than risk letting his opponents score their vulnerable grand slam." Jim: "I agree but you can't quarrel with success."

your health

DEAR DR. LAMB—I would like some information on a nervous stomach. I have a bitter taste almost every morning when I first get up. I went for a gall bladder X-ray and my doctor gave me eight dye tablets to take 14 hours before the X-ray. Around 4:30 the next morning my head started spinning and I almost passed out. Then I had diarrhea. I asked the nurse about this and she said the dye pills sometimes did this. My gall bladder had swollen to the size of a hen's egg. Then I was given an egg yolk to drink, waited 40 minutes and had two more X-rays. My gall bladder had returned to normal. The doctor said my gall bladder was OK but I had a nervous stomach. Could this be true? Is it serious? When was X-rayed could they tell if I had ulcers or a tumor too?

Test causes discomfort

DEAR READER—Your experience with the gall bladder test was not too unusual. The nurse was right—the pills do act as a laxative to some people. Your gall bladder did not swell up in an abnormal fashion. The gall bladder is designed to collect bile formed by the liver. When it fills it swells normally. The pills you took contain a dye that is excreted by the liver in the bile. The dye shows up on X-rays and in this way the gall bladder, full of dye stained bile, can be seen. Your description is of a normally filled gall bladder. If your gall bladder had contained stones they would have been outlined in the dye-stained bile. Then the drink you had contained fat. Fat stimulates the gall bladder to contract, expelling the stored bile. The X-rays showed that your gall bladder responded normally and emptied when you drank or ate fat. The very reason why you are not supposed to eat anything that would contain any fat after you have taken the dye pills and before you have your first X-ray is because fat stimulates the gall bladder to contract. I am sending you the Health Letter number 4-9, Gall Stones and Gall Bladder Disease. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 60 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1531, Idaho City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Nervous stomach covers a lot of territory. It is true that nervous tension can cause indigestion symptoms or acid indigestion. The nervous tension causes the stomach to form excess amounts of acid digestive juices. This condition can lead to ulcers. The taste in your mouth suggests though that the stomach contents leaked backward into the lower esophagus while you were lying down. Try not eating anything for at least three hours before you go to bed, take some antacid also, and see if that helps. An X-ray of the gall bladder alone will not outline the stomach to tell you if there is disease in the stomach or if you have a hernia through the diaphragm. However, if your doctor had you drink a milk shake, then eat a banana, then have your X-ray, he might be able to tell and how he knows that you do not have a hernia through the diaphragm or a peptic ulcer. Look at you bill and if it does not include a bill for X-rays of the stomach—perhaps labeled as examination of the upper gastrointestinal system—often noted Upper G.I., your stomach has not been examined.

Miss Miller, Hunter married in Jerome

WENDELL—Mary Ann Miller and Max Von Hunter were married June 26 at St. Jerome Catholic Church, Jerome. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller, Wendell, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hunter, Blonnie, Wash. Father Stephen Hoffman, O.S.B., officiated for the ceremony. The bride wore a gown of chiffon over bridal satin. The gown was appliqued with re-embroidered lace and pearls on the neckline, sleeves, bodice and gathered skirt. The gown featured a v-neckline, long sheer chiffon sleeves, and a cathedral train. The gown was designed by the bride and made by her mother. Her veil was of bridal illusion with lace appliques of roses edged with lace to match the lace of the dress. The veil was floorlength and gathered to a caplet of flowers and pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink bridesmaid roses, statice and baby's breath tied with white ribbons. Mrs. Pat Miller, Wendell, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Ron Kather, Pocatello, and Debbie Well, Kamiah. Jeanne Miller, sister of the bride was junior bridesmaid. Michael Hunter, Spokane, Wash., was best man and John Cashmere and John Johnson, both Pocatello, were ushers. Shayna Miller, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. An open reception was held at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The yard was decorated with hanging baskets of garden flowers and white wedding bells. The bride's table was covered with white lace cloth over blue nylon tulle with white candles in silver candle holders. The three-tiered wedding cake was topped with pink roses. Mrs. M.J.E. Scheidt served as the reception hostess. Cake was served by Mrs. Neal Mahrose and Mrs. Barry Howsford. Mrs. Laurel Martin, aunt of the bride, served coffee and Mrs. Scott Cutler served punch. Terry Gunnung was in charge of the champagne table. After a wedding trip to the Oregon Coast, the couple will reside in Pocatello where the bride is employed at the First Security Bank, and the bridegroom is employed as a teacher at Alameda Junior High School.

Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness

On our nation's 200th birthday, let us reflect on the youth of America and their refreshing views of our heritage. School children from the Twin Falls area have given us their renderings to express the ideas this country was founded upon. And, as this picture shows below, life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness are just as important now as they were when our struggle for independence began. The work of other young artists is on display in our lobby. Stop and take a look at our way of pursuing happiness.

IOC caves in—boots Taiwan from games

MONTREAL (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee, which over the years has always compromised when faced with a major decision, did again Sunday on the matter of the Republic of China's participation in the Montreal Games, this time giving the IOC's politicians to take charge of the 80-year-old movement.

The IOC, after almost five days of non-stop talk, said it would recommend to the Council meeting later this week that Taiwan be excluded from the Games, "so that the Games can go on."

Lawrence S. Peng, chief of the Republic of China delegation, said, "The IOC president (Lord Killisnoo) has announced we have lost the battle. He completely gave in to terms laid down by the Canadian government."

"He is going to recommend to the council session we do not take part. We shall stay at the Games despite this loss of all Olympic ideals." But he said the delegation would not take part.

The Canadian government, which recognizes the Peking regime of the People's Republic of China, refused to permit entry of a team under the name and flag of the Republic of China, insisting that it be changed to Taiwan.

By its decision the IOC invited the politicians to take charge of the movement.

The next Summer Olympics are scheduled in Moscow in 1980 and the Russians already have introduced politics into sport and are unlikely to permit Chile to enter its team despite a guarantee to the IOC which insures participation of all members in good standing.

The Canadian government had given a similar guarantee when it was awarded the Games four years ago.

The IOC's statement was announced nearly 90 minutes after the media was informed a settlement within the nine-man Executive Board had been reached.

One IOC source said the delay in the announcement was necessary "because we tried until the very last minute to get the Taiwanese to agree to march behind a flag bearing the Olympic rings."

"We tried everything we knew to get them to compromise, but they refused to budge one inch."

The IOC statement noted that "fundamental Olympic principles are being seriously jeopardized by the attitude of the Canadian government," but it gave in because of the athletes who already are here and for those who are expected within the next few days for the Games' opening ceremony July 17.

The statement said, in part: "In view of the fact that athletes from over 100 countries have, for several years, been preparing themselves to take part in this gathering of youth of the world, and the City of Montreal, the Canadian Olympic Association and the Organizing Committee have fulfilled their commitments as far as the IOC is concerned, both from the point of view of sports infrastructure and organization, the Executive Board has no other alternative but to recommend to the 78th IOC session that the Games must go on.

"I appeal formally to the Canadian government to review its attitude in keeping its word and holds it entirely responsible for any harm which the Olympic movement may suffer."

Chi Cheng, bronze medalist in the 80-meter hurdles at the 1968 Olympics and a former world 100-meter record holder, said, "I'm hurt, really hurt. It's terrible. I really want to cry. Not for myself, but for the athletes who already are in the United States. I think our Chief of Delegation (Peng) will tell us what to do."

"I'm proud of my country and its name. All my life it has been the Republic of China. This is terrible. It's just like your name. I'm sure you are proud of your name. And if Chi Cheng tells you you cannot use it, how would you feel? It's terrible."

A spokesman for the External Affairs Department, which had conducted a day-long meeting with the IOC Executive Board on Saturday, declined immediate comment.

"We have not seen the text of any official statement from the IOC, so for the moment we decline comment," the spokesman said. "But we have said all along that with respect to this situation, the decisions were decisions that had to be taken by the IOC."

Later this week, when the 78th Congress goes into full session, the IOC will have to wrestle with the problem of New Zealand.

Tanzania already has withdrawn from the Games and Mauritius Sunday withdrew its two-man team in support, both nations calling on other black African countries to do likewise.

Tanzania's action deprives the Games of one of its highlights, the 5,000-meter race between Filbert Bayi and John Walker, and was taken because the New Zealand Rugby Union football team elected to go through with its tour of South Africa following the recent race riots in the republic.

"There is no way New Zealand will be asked to leave," a high-placed IOC source said. "New Zealand is an old member in good standing and has done nothing wrong. After all, rugby is not even an Olympic sport."

But in the light of the Republic of China decision, the New Zealand team wondered about its fate. Officials declined comment in the Olympic Village.

The head of one European delegation said, "We have thrown the Olympics open to the politicians."

The Republic of China's only hope now remains with the sports leaders who demanded the IOC take a tough stand against the Canadian government, the first to challenge the IOC's authority since the modern Games were revived in 1896 at Athens, but it is expected the Executive Board's decision will be approved.

Informed sources said the Republic of China, which has represented All-China in the IOC since 1960, probably will be expelled from the movement during the Congress in favor of the People's Republic of China.

Stanwood takes state title by 9 shots

SUN VALLEY — Young Bill Stanwood of Caldwell strolled around Elkhorn's golf course in even par Sunday and smashed it to the Idaho state amateur gold championship with nine strokes to spare.

Stanwood, who held a six-stroke advantage over Wally Low of Boise going into the final round, saw any threat of a challenge dissipate on the second hole when the Boisean posted a three-over-par seven.

From then on Stanwood clicked off pars regularly and threw a late minor wind and bothersome rain — of small amount — did nothing to upset him.

It was probably the least exciting state amateur since the days of match play when the late Dr. Max Wilkinson won the finals eight and seven.

By the end of the 54-hole test Stanwood had posted a one-under-par 215 on the Robert Trent Jones-designed layout. The defending champion, Dave Molitor of Boise, closed for second place with a 224 while Lowe and Joe Lodge of Caldwell ended in a tie for third at 228.

The state amateur, the third major event in the last three weeks, kept things humming at the resort course and the major portion of its schedule concludes this week with a two-day pro-am. Both Elkhorn and Sun Valley courses will be used Wednesday and Thursday when 57 livesomes gather for the pro-am.

Although the 246 participants in the amateur were divided into eight flights, with very little difference in handicap, the Idaho Golf Association decided for some reason to award net prizes.

Lodge ended up the net leader with a 218 in the championship flight when Burley's Glenn Blakeley had a 221 for second; Gary Duncan, Twin Falls, had 222 and Dave Miller, Sun Valley, had a 223.

Bruce Herbst of Blackfoot took the first flight gross award with a 237, three shots ahead of Dale Williams, Burley. Larry Thompson, Pocatello, and Jim Patton of Sun Valley were locked at 245. In net Bill Spencer, Burley, had a 220, followed by Pat Bauman, Sun Valley, 225; Doug Rosen, Pocatello, 227, and Tom Williams, Idaho Falls, 228.

Twin Falls' Dave Driscoll won the second flight at 244, five shots ahead of Kevin McCandless, Pocatello, and Doyle Morrill, Twin Falls, at 249. Mike Root, Sun Valley, and Bert Bender, Sun Valley, shared net at 219.

Others flight winners include:

Third flight, Dick Keim, Nampa; 240; Hollen Hiller, Idaho Falls, 248; Fred McCullum, Sun Valley, 252; George Ward, Burley, 258. Net: Cecil McHEWEN, Pocatello; 214; Preston Struve, Salt Lake City, 218; Bob Packard, Twin Falls, 225, and Kevin Williams, Sun Valley, 227.

Fourth flight, Vince Fales, Sun Valley; Gary Jenkins, Twin Falls; Herb Wright, Sun Valley, and Carlos Livingston, Boise. Net: Kevin Briscoe; Don Lizon; Pocatello; Tracy Frank, Twin Falls, and Bob Chatterton, Boise.

Fifth flight, Ray Rosen, Burley; Jeff Ide; D. Morrow, and J. Dahlberg; net, G. Dahlinger; Dale Cain, Sun Valley; C. Moffitt, Burley, and Wes Karlson, Burley.

Sixth flight, Jeff Foss, Sun Valley; Guy Butterfield, Sun Valley; Bill Brodeen, Buhl, and Bob Knudson, American Falls. Net: Dave Welch, Boise; Fred Sumner; Dave Roberts, and Jim Hoch.

Seventh flight, Paul Naleid, Doyle Clark, Mountain Home; Clark Perry and Ed McJinn, Twin Falls. Net: Glen Thacker, Twin Falls; Denny Stanfield; Jeff Brown, and H.J. Deering.

STATE CHAMPION BILL Stanwood of Caldwell rolls his eye on the ninth hole enroute to a par closing round and a nine-stroke victory in the Idaho state amateur golf championship.

Jones vs. Fidrych in all-star classic

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — It's the kind of pairing that Arch Ward had in mind for his "dream game" when he founded the All-Star contest in 1933 as part of the Chicago World's Fair.

Randy Jones versus Mark Fidrych.

What better matchup could there be than baseball's two most exciting pitchers and biggest gate attractions of the season showing their stuff to the guys in the "other league" before the President of the United States and the largest All-Star Game crowd in more than two decades?

That confrontation became official Sunday when Darrell Johnson, manager of the American League, named the colorful 21-year-old Fidrych to start against the National League in the 47th All-Star game Tuesday night at Veterans Stadium.

Jones, the winningest pitcher in the majors with 16 victories, had previously been named by manager Sparky Anderson to start for the National League.

All-Star Game rules prohibit a starting pitcher from going more than three innings and chances are neither pitcher will have a dramatic effect on the game's final outcome. But no matter, it's an intriguing matchup and it's the kind of thing the All-Star game is supposed to be about.

In getting the nomination, Fidrych will become only the second rookie in history to start an All-Star game. The first was Dave Stenhouse of Washington, who started the second All-Star game of the 1962 season. Unfortunately, that proved to be the high point of Stenhouse's career. After posting a 10-4 record with a 2.73 earned run average for the first half of the 1962 season, Stenhouse finished the year with an 11-2 record. Two years later he was gone from the major leagues.

Even if he doesn't get a batter out, though, Fidrych is bound to please the crowd, which is expected to number more than 60,000 and include a host of notable dignitaries, including President Ford. A hyperactive youngster who talks out loud to the baseball and runs around the infield congratulating teammates for good plays, "The Big Bird," as he is called, has succeeded in drawing large crowds wherever he has pitched this season. His 9-2 record and major league leading 1.78 earned run average indicate there is nothing flakey about his ability, however.

Jones, too, has been something of a curiosity but not because of any emotional behavior. The 26-year-old southpaw, who has been attracting from 10 to 15,000 more fans to the park whenever he pitches, is considered unique because he wins without being able to throw a major league fastball. He is a sinkerball specialist who seldom walks a batter and while his pitches look delectable, batters have trouble connecting solidly. In one game against Cincinnati this year, A.J. Star Pete Rose, a switchhitter, got up

Gabriel to retire if knee won't heal

CHESTER, Pa. (UPI) — Philadelphia Eagles Coach Dick Vermeil said Sunday veteran quarterback Roman Gabriel plans to retire unless his injured knee shows substantial improvement over the next few weeks.

Vermeil said he spoke with Gabriel by phone Sunday afternoon. Gabriel had called to give him a status report on his right knee on which he had surgery during the off-season.

"Gabe said he would like to be here," Vermeil said, "but as of right now, the knee has not progressed far enough for him to be a football player."

"The coach has been working extremely hard to get it (the knee) ready and I know he's going to continue working as hard as he possibly can," he said.

"If in two weeks it shows enough improvement that he thinks he could still make a contribution to the Eagles, he said he would then call and find out if we have a spot available for him," Vermeil said.

Vermeil said Gabriel is going to retire.

Despite the fact he is a free agent, an Eagles spokesman said Gabriel has told Vermeil he would come back if he felt the knee were rehabilitated.

Gabriel has been working out at his Rancho Niraje, Calif. home since undergoing the surgery.

He had previously undergone four other operations on his right knee during his career.

All three rookie quarterbacks in the Eagles camp — John Walton, Steve Joseph and John Chisholm — played in Saturday night's 21-20 exhibition loss to the Baltimore Colts.

The Eagles added 6-foot-3, 245-pound defensive lineman Pete Lazerch, a free agent with three previous years in the NFL with the San Diego Chargers.

Two rookies, sixth round draft choice Kirk Johnson, a tackle from Howard Payne, and 13th round draft choice Brett White, a placekicker from UCLA, left camp voluntarily Sunday.

Brockington to give all—but would rather be traded

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — John Brockington, the unhappy running back who wants to be traded to Los Angeles, Miami or Oakland, has reported to the Green Bay Packers' training camp prepared to go through the season with the Packers.

"If I'm going to be here, I'll do the best I can," Brockington said Sunday. "I'm not going to lay down. My attitude is fine if I play here. I'm going to play to the best of my ability."

Brockington, who arrived in Green Bay late Saturday night, said he had only talked briefly with Packers Coach Bart Starr. He said he expected to talk with Starr later Sunday. Starr would not comment on Brockington's status.

Brockington, in his sixth year, is second on the Packers' all-time rushing list with 4,293 yards. He gained over 1,000 in each of his first three seasons, but slipped to 883 in 1974 and only 341 last year.

Brockington admitted the Packers might have trouble trading him because of the past two seasons.

"It might be the problem they're running into," he said.

He said he began having doubts about his future in Green Bay at the end of last season.

He lamented the trade of halfback MacArthur Lane to the Kansas City Chiefs prior to the 1975 season and the treatment he received from the Packers fans last year.

"I missed Mac last year," Brockington said. "He kept me up and I kept him up. Mac is probably one of the best blocking backs in the league."

Brockington also recalled that in the last game of the 1975 season he was booed by Packers fans.

"On Dec. 21, I got booed in this stadium," Brockington said. "I refuse to have somebody tell me how to run with the football, especially somebody from the stands."

Asked if there was a possibility he might withdraw his request to be traded, Brockington said, "I don't know. I really don't."

Brockington is now among 30 players—50 veterans and 30 rookies—at the Packers camp. Many of the veterans report Saturday night and will begin two-a-day workouts Monday.

Wide receiver Earl Thomas, who was acquired in a trade earlier this year from the St. Louis Cardinals, did not report to camp. No one seemed sure when he would arrive.

the World champion—Cincinnati—Reds dominate the NL squad. The Reds will have Rose, second baseman Joe Morgan, shortstop Dave Concepcion, catcher Johnny Bench and outfielder George Foster in the starting lineup. In addition Cincinnati's Tony Perez, a first baseman, and Ken Griffey an outfielder, were added to the squad by Anderson's young Cincinnati seven representatives on the squad.

Olympic cage team whips 76ers 115-91

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Notre Dame forward Adrian Dantley rapidly adapting to the rigors of international basketball and becoming a force this season, scored 36 points and four teammates got in double figures Sunday night to lead the U.S. Olympic team to a 115-91 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

The Olympic team, consisting of eight players out of 10 played against American professional competition, now move into international competition as they continue preparations for next week's summer Olympic games.

With Dantley and North Carolina's Mitch Kupchak moving their way inside the Olympic game.

Kupchak finished the game with 19 points, while Kenny Carr of North Carolina State had 13. Buckner and Indiana teammate Scott May each had 10.

Joe Bryant and Lloyd Free paced Philadelphia with 22 each.

Nastase wins title

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (UPI) — Romanian first prize Nastase defeated Spain's Manuel Orantes, 6-4, 6-3, Sunday to win the $75,000 first Grand Slam of Tennis.

American Jimmy Connors, subbing for ailing Bjorn Borg, took 1975 Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe in the consolation match, 6-4, 7-6.

Orantes collected $40,000 for second place. Connors received $20,000 for third and Ashe won $15,000.

Serving inconsistently at times, Nastase combined five aces against two double faults in dominating Orantes, the 1975 U.S. Open champion. His power serve was effective against Orantes' finesse playing.

In the second set, Nastase broke service in the fourth game to jump to a 4-1 lead in games. Orantes fought back with aces in the sixth and eighth games, but he failed to overcome Nastase's determined efforts.

Showing no signs of fatigue from his recent globe-trotting travel schedule, Nastase double faulted on his first service in the seventh game of the second set, but immediately came back with a service ace.

Both players were troubled by strong winds in the second set, which forced them to make adjustments in their serves and volleys.

Tourists' clothes stolen from washer

TWIN FALLS — A New Jersey family, traveling through Twin Falls, told city police they lost about $30 worth of clothing from a washing machine at the Holiday Inn, Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sherry, Cherry Hill, N.J., said Mrs. Sherry was washing the family's clothing in the machine at the Inn and returned to her room briefly. When she went to check on the washing a short time later, it was missing. A burglary at Richardson's, 451 Main Ave. E., resulted in about $100 damage but only netted $11 for the burglar. City police reported someone broke into the fireplace sales business sometime Thursday night. They tore the cash register apart to get the $11 in change in cash. The cash register was then thrown outside.

'Hermy' crabby company

OCEAN CITY, Md. (UPI) — As the saying goes, misery loves company, and what better companion could a moody person have than his very own hermit crab. Milton Walcott, a manager of a store along the Ocean City Boardwalk, is ready to meet the needs of 10,000 crabby people. His little pets climb the walls of a wire cage, sheltered by their multicolored shells. "They're gentle, easy to care for, don't eat very much or make any disturbing noises," Walcott said. "Some women come in here and pull back in disgust, but the crabs are very clean. I stand here all day and never smell a thing." The crabs are imports from tropical climates. Unlike the hardshells familiar to most area residents, these crabs would drop if placed in water. They are strictly land crabs which live in trees. "They're clean, odorless and playful."

The hand being quicker than the eye, one of the men promptly removed a wallet from the trousers and the two made their getaway in a white car $500 to $600 richer. The Griffins told Gallatin County Sheriff Glen McCabe the two claimed to be from Social Security. The "doctor" said he would like to examine Griffin, and suggested he lie on a bed after removing his trousers and shoes. Griffin did as he was told, and "paid" $500 to $600 for the "examination."

10 range fires reported

MAGIC VALLEY — Ten range fires were reported by the Shoshone district office of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) Sunday according to Michael Green, public information officer.

The largest started seven miles southeast of Gooding at 5:30 p.m. and burned 600 acres before it was contained at 11 p.m. Green said he expected the fire to be under control by noon today.

There were 41 men dispatched to that site, with seven ground tankers and one refill tanker. Fire fighters also dropped retardant from a plane.

The next largest fire was a lightning caused fire which burned 300 acres at the Wildlife Refuge at Minidoka. The fire started at 4 p.m.

The Burley district (BLM) handled the initial attack. They used one refill tanker and two ground tankers to bring the blaze under control.

Four fires were reported along the railroad track from five miles west of Shoshone to four miles west of Kimama. Kimama is located 13 miles north of Paul.

Some 50 acres burned between 3:30 p.m. and 5 p.m. Four ground tankers were used to control these blazes.

At 4 p.m. Sunday, three acres burned northeast of Dietrich. There was one small fire near Bliss and one-half acre burned six miles south of Gooding at 10 p.m. The BLM assisted the Wendell fire department at the fire near Gooding.

Two fires were reported Saturday both about 3 p.m. One was six miles southeast of Hazelton and the other eight miles east of Hazelton. Four ground tankers with 25 men were dispatched to fight these fires and had them controlled by 7 p.m.

Burley District fire fighters also sent two tankers Saturday to suppress a man-caused fire that burned about 35 acres near Hub Butte, south of Twin Falls.

A small quarter-acre fire was suppressed by a single tanker and crew in the Cottrell Mountains near Conner Creek Store, about 10 miles south of Albion.

3 receive sentences

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls County men have drawn stiff prison sentences. Larry Hansen, 22, Twin Falls and John Raymond Thomasen, 18, Filer, have been sentenced to three year prison terms for burglary.

And a Twin Falls man was sentenced for five years on drug charges.

Hansen was sentenced by Fifth District Court Judge James M. Cunningham to three years in the state prison with credit for time spent in the county jail.

Thomasen was sentenced to three years on each of two counts of burglary, the terms to be served concurrently.

Both men had pleaded guilty. Both charged with the burglary of the Twin Falls Liquor Store March 18, 1976. In addition Thomasen is charged with burglarizing the Clover Lutheran school sometime between Jan. 20 and Feb. 1, 1976.

In other court action, Francis George DeLeon, 25, Twin Falls, was sentenced to five years and two years, the terms to run concurrently, after pleading guilty to one count of delivery of a controlled substance and another on possession of a controlled substance. The sentence was withheld for 120 days after which he may return to appear in court for further consideration.

DeLeon was arrested in November, 1975 and charged with the delivery of amphetamines and possession of amphetamines and hashish.

Highway projects discussed TF man hospitalized

TWIN FALLS — Better signing programs for highways in the city of Twin Falls and the Twin Falls Highway District were discussed in meetings last week with officials of the Idaho Traffic Safety Commission.

Parke Garrard, assistant administrator of the Traffic Safety Commission, and Lee Wilson, engineer, met with city and county highway officials in Magic Valley during the past week to discuss current projects and programs aimed at safer highway travel.

Garrard said one of the big problems on a county wide basis throughout the state is record keeping on accidents. He said few of the county law enforcement agencies keep adequate statistics on accident locations to show the more concentrated accident areas.

"We say call for studies or send engineering experts into the areas to determine why so many accidents are occurring at a specific intersection or section of highway. We can work with the local agencies in trying to correct conditions contributing to the accidents," Garrard said.

TF man hospitalized

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was reported in good condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital recovering from a stab wound received early Sunday morning.

According to police reports, Fernando Hernandez, 21, was stabbed about 2:45 a.m. Sunday when he was attacked in a South Park alley by unknown assailants.

Hernandez was reportedly stabbed once on the left side of the chest. The wound caused the collapse of a lung.

Hernandez told police he left the South Park Lounge early Sunday and was walking along an alley behind the lounge when he was attacked by the two assailants.

Hernandez said the lay in the alley for a short time and was found by two boys who assisted him to Magic Valley Memorial.

Police were investigating the stabbing today.

Heyburn man listed 'fair'

BURLEY — A Heyburn man was in fair condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital following an auto accident Sunday.

Recovering from internal injuries was Thomas Allen Gahagan, 20, Heyburn. Gahagan was injured about 5:45 p.m. Sunday when his pickup truck collided with a car driven by Rejme-Joe-E. Vallejo, 31, Rupert on Highway 81.

According to Cassia County Sheriff's officers Vallejo's car was apparently westbound in the pavement when she lost control. She said she brought the vehicle back onto the road when it rolled onto its right side on the pavement and ended on its left side in a grain field.

A deputy said she was traveling at least 50 m.p.h. when the accident occurred just after 7 p.m. Saturday. She was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital by a private vehicle.

MVMH about 7:30 p.m. Sunday. The deputy said empty beer cans and bottles and a partially full can were found in Vallejo's car. Citations are pending.

In a second accident, Teresa Kay Ritchie, 19, Burley, was injured Saturday morning when she lost control of her four-wheel drive on Highway 27 just south of Burley.

The victim said she was headed north when the vehicle went off the right side of the pavement when she lost control. She said she brought the vehicle back onto the road when it rolled onto its right side on the pavement and ended on its left side in a grain field.

A deputy said she was traveling at least 50 m.p.h. when the accident occurred just after 7 p.m. Saturday. She was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital by a private vehicle.

Large water charge upsets TF woman

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Kay Williams, who lives at 202 Blue Lakes Boulevard, thinks the city is making a mistake when they say she has used 70,000 gallons of water in a month.

Mrs. Williams lives in a three-bedroom home with two baths, one of which is no longer used because only her adult son lives with her.

"She says two people who do their laundry only once a week, use very little water on the lawn and are almost never home, could hardly use that much water," she said.

"Nevertheless, the city tells her this is what the meter shows and she will have to pay the bill which is over $20 a month for the past several billings.

"For the past four months period," she says, "The city says I owe $83, but I don't intend to pay it."

Mrs. Williams says part of that four month period would not include any lawn sprinkling because it was too cold in March and April.

"Besides that, I work at the courthouse all day and then go to work at the Holiday Inn at night so I don't have time to water the lawn. It's burning up now from lack of water," she said.

Another Twin Falls resident says there are five in his family including two teen-agers and a washing machine that is used daily plus an average size lawn which he waters continually. He says he had a bill for 20,000 gallons.

Another woman who lives with a teen-age daughter and also uses a washing machine daily has two bathrooms, both in use, and a very green lawn paid a peak bill of $18 for the current billing month, the first billing period for heavy lawn sprinkling.

For the previous month, her bill was $11. James Barnhart, head of the city water department, said Mrs. Williams' report is correct as to the 70,000 gallons used in the past month, but he said in one day's time when the city was watching the meter, 1,000 gallons were used and the lawn was being sprinkled.

He said the billing includes sanitation, and sewer fees as well and for the past six months water use alone, Mrs. Williams was billed $52, with the $33 including sewer and sanitation costs, as well.

Impact area need cited

RUPERT — Establishment of areas of urban impact for the cities of Acquia and Minidoka is not as critical as for the other three cities in Minidoka County, according to Planning Coordinator David Abo.

He said those two smaller cities "are not facing the same development problem."

Abo is urging speed in setting urban impact areas under the Local Planning Act of 1975. The Minidoka County Planning Commission has turned its attention to study of urban impact in an effort to reach city-county agreement on boundaries for maps to accompany the city-county comprehensive plan now with the county commissioners.

Paul has already given its approval to an urban impact area also endorsed by the county planning and zoning commissions. That map is now before the county commissioners, who are awaiting consideration on the plan itself.

Efforts are now being made to develop similar maps for Rupert and Heyburn.

Abo said that Minidoka's only concern is the impact of the Union Pacific Railroad through the city.

He said the late Mayor Vernon Stockwell felt that Acquia would probably cut its impact area back to the city limits from the one-mile buffer zone surrounding those limits that is now operable.

Abo explained that Acquia has large undeveloped areas already within the city boundaries. Acquia's jurisdiction extends over about 15 sections of land.

The planning coordinator said Heyburn originally felt its impact area should be bounded by 300 West Road on the east, the Snake River on the south, 600 West Road on the west and I-80 on the north.

Envision three actors on a stage, each wearing a different colored wig, one straight, one curly blonde and one tussled red. Which is the villain? The hero? The comic servant? Correct, the stereotypes go all the way back to the ancient Greek theater. Black was villainous, blonde heroic, and red humorous. It's utterly unreal. There's no basis at all for trying to gather the colors with the characters. But when asked you to identify the roles by the wigs, you guessed rightly, did you not?

FEATHERS

Q. "How many feathers on the average hen?"

A. What kind of hen? A Plymouth rock has about 9,000.

Q. "What proportion of the college men wear beards?" How about long sideburns?"

A. Beards, only six out of every 100. Long sideburns, 28 out of 100.

Q. "About 20 years ago, the Hollywood Women's Press Club gave some sort of honorary title to Ronald Reagan. What was it?"

A. "World's most sincere actor."

Contrary to previous report, that Japanese town of Usa was not so named to permit the natives there to stamp their manufactured goods "Made in USA." Turns out it bore that name at least 800 years before the United States ever existed.

LOVE AND WAR

Among the pirates on the sea of matrimony, the women outnumber the men considerably. Or so our Love and War man has reported. By pirates, he refers to those citizens who break up other people's marriages. Most men tend to keep a hands-off attitude towards seemingly happy marriages. But most women, if they're pirates at all, are inclined to regard a seemingly happy marriage as a challenge. When queried in the matter, they say that a marriage that can be broken up isn't worth saving.

Half a century after it was written, F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Great Gatsby" still sells about 300,000 paperbacks a year. Some book. The college crowd wants to label it as the great American novel, finally.

DOONESBURY

Stocks at midday

NEW YORK (UPI) — After a strong initial surge, the stock market fought to hold onto a broad gain Monday as the Dow Jones industrial average ran into profit taking pressure at the 1,000 level.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was fairly active.

Shortly before noon EDT, the Dow average was ahead 2.38 points to 1,003.49. It had been ahead more than four points at the start of the day on an 11.5-point gain Friday.

As has been the case on numerous occasions this year, profit taking was a factor in the 1,000 to 1,010 area of the Dow. The bluechip average reached a 1976 high of 1,011.02 on April 21.

Advances led declines, 867 to 333, among the 1,643 issues crossing the tape. There were 443 unchanged issues, reflecting growing caution among investors.

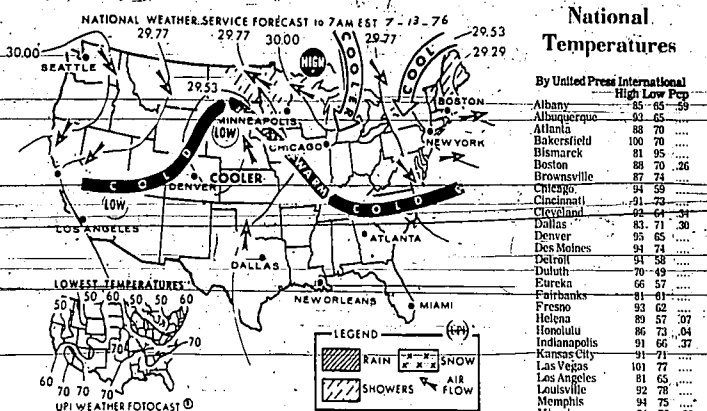

The two-hour turnover amounted to about 2,200,000 shares, compared with 1,980,000 traded during the same period Friday. Trading slowed after the first hour, analysts said.
