Mars air OK for life

PASADENA, Calif. — Viking 1 instruments have reported that Mars has an atmosphere that project scientists believe is "encouraging to the search for life but by no means conclusive."
An atmospheric "sniffer" on the Viking landing craft detected between 2 and 4 percent nitrogen, confirming an earlier finding by the Viking during its descent through the upper atmosphere.
"Dr. Tobias Owen, a member of the project science team, said at a news conference Monday that he was "delighted that we have finally found nitrogen in the Martian atmosphere," adding, "It doesn't show that there's anything (any life) there, but it shows that there's a chance."
The confirmation of Martian nitrogen was made by the landing craft's gas chromatograph mass spectrometer, an instrument designed to analyze the chemistry of the Martian atmosphere and soil. The chief scientist of the experiment is Dr. Klaus Biemann of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The instrument made the following analysis of the content of the Martian atmosphere: carbon dioxide, 95 per cent; nitrogen, 2 to 4 per cent; argon, 1 to 2 per cent; oxygen, 0.3 per cent. The atmosphere of Mars is less than 1 per cent the density of the earth's.
On earth the air is 78 per cent nitrogen, 21 per cent oxygen, 0.7 per cent argon - 40, and 0.03 per cent carbon dioxide.
As Owen said of the Martian atmosphere, there is "nothing in it dangerous to life as we conceive it," and in fact, if it had more oxygen, we could safely breathe it.
The project scientists reported that the atmosphere findings indicated that the presence of an abundance of liquid water on Mars, enough to have cycled on the many deep channels seen on the surface, must have been a transient event that came and went ages ago. The existence of a tiny fraction of argon-36 is assumed to be a remnant of a time when the Martian atmosphere was richer and denser.

A more detailed investigation of the possibility of life on Mars is scheduled to begin early Wednesday morning when the Viking 1's robot arm is to reach out and scoop up samples of soil for analysis by three biology experiments on board the spacecraft.

Martian skies pink

"The sky is indeed a pink to a kind of cream orange," according to Dr. Thomas Mutch, chief of Viking 1's picture analysis. In the new photo, the surface is stained an even deeper rust red than first believed.
Shortly after Viking 1 landed on Mars last week, it broadcast the first color photo from Mars. That photo showed the sky to be a bluish color and the surface a brick red.
However, questions were raised immediately about the color fidelity of the first photograph.
The color pictures are taken with a black and white camera which is able to separate "different colors by using color filters. The separate photos are broadcast to earth, where they are combined into a color picture."
Scientists speculated that the sky's reddish cast comes from reddish sediment or dust suspended in the lower atmosphere.
The Martian surface colors were described as "very vivid and intense."

TF kitchen may get OK with gauge

By GEORGE WILEY
Times News writer
TWIN FALLS — A temperature recorder to be installed later this week will probably allow the Twin Falls Canning Kitchen to be used to prepare foods for the county fair.
The kitchen had been banned for public food preparation earlier by the South Central Health District, which feared a lack of temperature checking devices might allow the formation of toxic bacteria.
However, following an inspection of the facilities Monday, the health district decided to allow use of the kitchen if a temperature recording gauge were installed to make sure that food prepared for public consumption was safe.
Canning kitchen board member Richard Wise said today a temperature recording device had been purchased and would be installed by Friday, at which time it will be tested.
The gauge cost about $200, he said.
Ron Howard, environmentalist for the health district, said the temperature recorder will go on one robot (cooking pot) in the kitchen which will be used for canning of food prepared for public consumption.
Howard said the installation of the gauge was voluntary on the part of the kitchen, but he added that the device was required for approval of food prepared for the public.
The temperature gauge would be set to record the retort temperature to make sure it remained constant during the cooking time, Howard said.
For chili, he said, the cooking time in the steam retort would be 90 minutes at 230 degrees.
The gauge will show if this temperature has been maintained through the 90 minutes, he said.
Maintenance of the high cooking temperature is necessary for the prevention of toxic spores forming in the sealed cans at a later time, Howard said.
"If you undercook the cans, there's a possibility that you may not destroy all the bacterial spores in the cans themselves. What we're trying to do is stop botulin bacteria," Howard said.
One of the most powerful of poisons, botulin often grows in home-canned products. Other bacteria, although less toxic, will also be prevented by the timed cooking process, Howard said.
The health district said the health district will not allow the sale of home-made canned goods at the fair. The canning kitchen will meet minimum commercial requirements, he added.
The health district will allow the sale of home-baked fruit pies at the fair, but will not allow cream pies to be sold because of the bacteria which can grow in them under unheated conditions, Howard said.

Gas price hike wins OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Power Commission nearly tripled today the rates producers can charge for natural gas sold in interstate commerce.
The commission, ruling after a two-year review of the current ceiling of 53 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, set a new ceiling of $1.42 for gas headed for interstate commerce after Jan. 1 of this year.
It also set a $1.01 ceiling for gas dedicated from Jan. 1, 1973, to Dec. 31, 1974.
Gas which is already under sales contracts could not be increased in price unless its contracts allowed that. Some contracts have no price clauses.
Commissioner Don S. Smith "strongly disagreed with the 3-4 FCC decision saying, 'It is too high. The costs do not support the rate. The impact is excessive.'"
Smith estimated the increases would total $1.3 billion in the first year of the new rates, which are effective immediately.
Energy Action, an energy interest group, said it will ask a federal court Wednesday to post-pone effective date of the rates, and then will return to court to challenge them as too high.
The consumer will feel much less than the on-paper rate change. Because it essentially deals with gas newly produced and sold interstate, it will come gradually into the rate scale. Also, the gas price "in the wellhead" — at the point of production — is but a fraction of a homeowner's average gas bill.

The FCC majority said it took the action "to reverse the trend of diminishing dedications of new gas supplies to the interstate market."
In addition to the new rate ceilings, the FCC will allow a four-cent yearly escalation to match inflation.
The commission said 40 cents of the new price "reflects the tax reduction act of 1975," which cut down on some of the tax breaks of oil and gas firms.
"Drilling costs have climbed 14 per cent and changes in the tax code have also contributed to the need for increased new gas ceilings," the commission said.
"Since 1968, total consumption of natural gas has exceeded the annual addition of new reserves," it said. "Active intrastate markets, with higher prices, captured most new onshore gas."
The commission does not regulate intrastate gas sold in the same state as produced. Prices for that gas vary widely, from perhaps 20 cents per thousand cubic feet to nearly $2. Some imported gas sells for much higher than U.S. gas price ceilings.

"Over the long run, we expect consumers will benefit as a result of reduced reliance on expensive alternate fuels," the FCC said. "We believe this decision will lead to increased gas supply and to greater gas conservation."

Probe starts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A grand jury is investigating the slaying by a guard of Chester Plummer Jr., a 38-year-old man who sealed the six-foot high White House fence and approached the mansion carrying a length of pipe late Sunday.
Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Monday President Ford — who was in the White House family quarters at the time of the incident — believes the Executive Protective Service guard who shot Plummer was doing his duty and did not overreact.

Well done

TWIN FALLS — Police officers and firemen rushed to the scene of a reported fire at the Twin Falls Chapel Monday evening only to find a smoking barbecue.
"They took 'em" and Mrs. Paul barbecued hamburgers on their patio.
"We invited them to stay for dinner," Mrs. Paul said. "But they didn't want to stay."

Sawtooth park airing goes on

SUN VALLEY, IDAHO (UPI) — Secretary of Interior Thomas Kleppe asked cooperation of all the Western States today in striking a balance between energy development and the environment.
Speaking to the 5th annual conference of the Western State Fish and Game Commissioners, Kleppe said, "We must not sacrifice our quality of life to maintain our standard of living."
After his speech, Kleppe told newsmen his agency still was in the process of taking comments from all the people involved as to whether the Sawtooth National Recreation Area in Central Idaho would become a National Park.
Addressing the convention, Kleppe asked for assistance in "our commitment to a clean and wholesome environment while energy resources are developed."
He assured delegates from 13 Western States and two Canadian provinces that the recent Supreme Court ruling on the Wild Horse and Burro Act "is not a federal take-over of state authority."
"It is not our intent to request Congress to write or pass any legislation that would in any way give federal agencies authority to make state regulations," he said.

No loafing around with New Orleans' muffuletta

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — In a city famed for mouthwatering workman's foods such as roast beef, hot sandwiches and red beans and rice, the Creole-Italian muffuletta is a special feast.
Slices of provolone cheese, Genoa salami and Italian ham topped with a freshly made, well-seasoned olive salad and tucked between slices of the special muffuletta loaf — a 10-inch crusty disc sprinkled with sesame seeds — form a sandwich to feed two adults for about $2.40.
New Orleans is the only place to get a true muffuletta, although flimsy imitations have been reported in New York and Chicago. Forget Italy.
"You go to Italy and ask them to make a muffuletta and they don't know what you're talking about," said Frank Tusa, co-owner of the Central Grocery.
No one is quite sure who created the sandwich, although it is generally agreed it came into being about the turn of the century. The basis of the sandwich is the muffuletta loaf, which Tusa said probably cannot be duplicated anywhere else because the New Orleans water and humid climate were factors.

The Central Grocery, across the street from the French Market, consistently is rated by local food writers as the best muffuletta shop in town. A sign out front identifies it as the "Home of the original muffuletta" despite Tusa's insistence the shop is a grocery first.
"We don't want to become a restaurant. Our first business is the grocery business," he said. "We've had so many people lined up for sandwiches they were getting in the way of our grocery customers."
The grocery — a favorite of gourmet shoppers and cordon bleu cooks, is a throwback to the turn-of-the-century "bodega" stores with high sliding glass doors, boxes of loose spaghetti and noodles, shelves protruding from age-yellowed walls hold olive oil and artichoke hearts from Italy, octopus from Japan and mussels from Spain. Sacks of dry beans and huge wheels of cheese rest on the concrete floor.
Central supplied muffuletta to President de Gaulle of France and President Eisenhower. Orders regularly go out by plane to other parts of the country.

US imports soar during June

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Largely due to a surge in oil imports, the United States imported considerably more than it exported in June, the government said today.
The Commerce Department said last month's $72.2 billion deficit almost equaled May's $35.6 billion surplus — the nation's only trade surplus of the year.
"As a result, the United States has a $1,048 billion trade deficit for the year as a whole, compared with the $5,045 billion surplus (that) at the same time in 1975."
Imports rose 9.9 per cent in June, the largest one-month increase in 11 months. In July 1975, imports jumped 10.3 per cent, the department said.

Although all major import categories advanced last month, with the exception of the machinery and transportation sector, most of the overall increase came as a result of a $517.5 million rise in petroleum imports.
The June surge in oil imports was a complete reversal of May's sharp drop in imported petroleum products.
Other imports that expanded considerably over May levels were food and live animals, up $109.8 million; iron and steel, up $92.3 million; and coffee, up $63.9 million.

Idaho GOP delegates resent Reagan announcement

BOISE (UPI) — Ronald Reagan's announcement of his vice presidential preference Monday met with surprise, puzzlement and a degree of resentment from Idaho delegates to the Republican national convention.

They weren't consulted. None of the seven delegates interviewed had heard of Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., Congressman Steve Symms said he was "both surprised and disappointed" with the selection of Sen. Schweiker as Reagan's running mate. "I can only say I will go to the Republican convention in August prepared to nominate a more mainstream Republican for the vice presidency if Gov. Reagan should win the GOP nomination."

A Symms aide said the congressman was "an avowed supporter of Reagan's in the past."

The aide said Symms cannot support Schweiker's 91 percent voting record in favor of labor's Committee on Political Education (COPE) and his 9 percent favorable record with the American Conservative Union.

Following Schweiker's selection, Sen. Walter Mondale, Symms said, "I don't see why we need want to snatch defeat from the jaws of victory by getting a Sen. Mondale on the Republican ticket."

Reagan received 68 percent of the vote in the Republican caucus. The state Republican chairman, state said the reaction of delegates could be "significant."

He summed up the remarks of the other delegates in a letter to Reagan's choice of a little-known liberal, Kildwell said, "I don't think it serves to help him in a state like Idaho but it may help him in the northeastern industrial areas."

Reagan's choice of a vice president, especially in Pennsylvania where there are so many uncommitted voters. When asked about delegate input, Kildwell said, "as I understand it, Reagan only will serve to unite the party and if there's anything the Republicans need right now it's a united front."

Reagan delegates Marjorie Moly-Walton said, "I am not acquainted with Mr. Schweiker so I really couldn't say. I'll have to look into it further and see what I think about it."

Don Todd, Boise, aide to the Idaho attorney general and a Reagan delegate, said, "no problem."

"Checking his record is not his opposed to busing, government abortion aid, and gun control. He's for the death penalty and for defense spending."

Todd said he believes it will be a coalition that will strengthen the ticket.

Miners strike over court ruling fuss

By United Press International
More than 60,000 miners in West Virginia and Ohio were idle today and the wildcat strike could spread to Pennsylvania in a mushrooming dispute over a federal court ruling.

The miners dispute spilled over into rail traffic, causing the furlough of hundreds of Chessie System employees.

In California, fruit growers said they had lost one-fifth of the cling peach crop because of the winter strike.

And in Oregon, a judge was to a state request to force striking grain inspectors back on the job.

Ben Romero, vice president of Eastern Associated Coal Corp., said sources had told him the company's Pennsylvania mines could expect picketing in the wildcat strike which began in West Virginia and has already spread to Ohio.

Miners said they were angered by a $50,000 fine levied against a United Mine Workers local in a job bidding dispute earlier this month. Coal losses for the first week of the strike were estimated at $20 million.

"Several hundred of our employees have been furloughed," said a Chessie System spokesman. "Many of those whose jobs are directly related to the mining industry have been furloughed."

Keep GEORGE in WASHINGTON

Now serving his third term in Congress, Congressman George Hansen was recently named chairman of a House Republican Task force to investigate ways to reduce the size and scope of the Federal bureaucracy. He promised Idahoans two years ago he would help "cut down big government," and he is working around the clock to do just that.

In addition, he is a ranking subcommittee member of the powerful banking committee, where he is able to deal directly with the nation—that of interest rates, monetary policy, credit, and housing. He also serves on the Veterans Affairs Committee and has past experience as a member of the House Agriculture and Interior Committees where he still wields considerable influence.

Schweiker choice brings mixed reaction from GOP

Happy about it

DAUGHTER KRISTI, 6, receives a kiss from Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., Monday after the announcement by Ronald Reagan that he would name Schweiker his running mate if he wins the Republican presidential nomination. (UPI)

By United Press International
Republicans voiced some approval, some disgust, but mostly wonderment and surprise at Ronald Reagan's choice of liberal Sen. Richard Schweiker of Pennsylvania as a potential running mate.

Some hailed it as a bold political move that would unify the party. Others used such terms as "a move of desperation" to describe Reagan, and "political whore" to describe Schweiker. But most of all Republicans were surprised at the odd coupling of the conservative Californian and the Pennsylvanian whose rankings with labor and other liberal groups are higher than those of Sen. Walter Mondale, Jimmy Carter's running mate on the Democratic ticket.

"It seems to me it's the widest political wingspan in history," said Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. "There's a lot of astonishment around the country to say the least."

"What the hell kind of pussyfooting is this guy Schweiker doing?" asked J.D. Roskos, an uncommitted delegate from Kingston, Pa. "He was running with Ford, what kind of guy is he?"

But Richard M. Scalle, the Pittsburgh bank millionaire and a Ford delegate said that while he wasn't changing his mind, he admired the move.

"It is probably a very smart move for him," Scalle said. "It counters the logic of a Carter-Mondale ticket, Reagan the conservative and Schweiker the liberal. I would suspect Reagan will pick up a few delegates because of this."

Rep. John Ashbrook, R-Ohio, a national conservative leader and a longtime Reagan supporter, called Reagan's announcement "the dumbest thing I've ever heard of," and declared "I can't possibly support him anymore."

Gov. Otis R. Bowen of Indiana said of the Schweiker announcement: "It is hard to believe. I'm really surprised. I still think the strongest ticket is Ford and Reagan."

Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., one of President Ford's closest supporters, called Reagan's unexpected choice "a move of desperation," while Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., another conservative who is supporting Ford, said it was "a bold move" but one that "could move Mr. Reagan right out of the picture."

Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., another Ford supporter, called the decision "an incredible aberration" and said it "assured Ford of the nomination."

Reagan's decision demonstrates "boldness and candor."
Reactions were fast and furious, and ranged from stunned disbelief to perplexed wonderment to bitterness.
Ford himself had no immediate comment, but his campaign manager Rogers C.B. Morton called the ticket a "mismatch," and said "It appears to be an effort to exchange the second-highest office in the land for a handful of delegates."
From all across the land the comments poured in, but there was no indication of any early avalanche of either approval or disapproval from Republicans.
In Georgia, Carter expressed surprise at the announcement but had little else to say about it. The Democratic candidate arose early, took a long walk shortly after 6 a.m., and then settled in with Mondale for a full day of briefings by his issues advisors.
In mid-afternoon he told reporters he rejects Reagan's contention the United States is second to the Soviet Union in armed strength. He said the United States has more aggregate weapons and is "far superior in manned bomber forces."
But he declared: "We need to maintain a strong defense. We can never permit our nation to be vulnerable to attack or blackmail."
Carter confirmed reports that his 29-year-old nephew, William Carter Spang, is in prison in California for two armed robberies. He said the young man had been in trouble most of his life.

Reagan's blockbuster breaks apart no blocs

By United Press International
Ronald Reagan's choice of liberal Pennsylvania Sen. Richard Schweiker was a calculated blockbuster. But so far it hasn't busted any blocs of delegates.

An extensive but incomplete recheck by UPI of Pennsylvania's 103-person delegation shows the only firm switch to Reagan is Schweiker himself — and there is some indication of possible movement the other way.

An uncommitted conservative college student previously leaning toward Reagan was offended by the choice: "My gut reaction is to jump immediately to the Ford team," said James Stein, 21.

But most Pennsylvanians wanted to wait until after the entire delegation has talked to Ford Thursday in a meeting that has been scheduled for some time.

Meanwhile, in Plains, Ga., Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and his running mate, Walter Mondale, finished intensive defense briefings and began consulting economic advisers on campaign issues of employment and inflation.

Reagan's dramatic announcement at midday Monday belied his repeated statements that he wanted a running mate whose philosophy was "compatible" with his own.

Schweiker, at a Washington press conference following the announcement, acknowledged differences of viewpoint but said he and Reagan could form a new coalition that would revive the fortunes of the Republican party. He said

Reagan's decision demonstrates "boldness and candor."
Reactions were fast and furious, and ranged from stunned disbelief to perplexed wonderment to bitterness.
Ford himself had no immediate comment, but his campaign manager Rogers C.B. Morton called the ticket a "mismatch," and said "It appears to be an effort to exchange the second-highest office in the land for a handful of delegates."
From all across the land the comments poured in, but there was no indication of any early avalanche of either approval or disapproval from Republicans.
In Georgia, Carter expressed surprise at the announcement but had little else to say about it. The Democratic candidate arose early, took a long walk shortly after 6 a.m., and then settled in with Mondale for a full day of briefings by his issues advisors.
In mid-afternoon he told reporters he rejects Reagan's contention the United States is second to the Soviet Union in armed strength. He said the United States has more aggregate weapons and is "far superior in manned bomber forces."
But he declared: "We need to maintain a strong defense. We can never permit our nation to be vulnerable to attack or blackmail."

CIA mail snoops won't be charged

© N.Y. Times Service

WASHINGTON — Justice department lawyers investigating the Central Intelligence Agency's 20-year program of opening mail between the United States and Communist countries have recommended against the criminal prosecution of CIA officials involved in the project, a government official familiar with the investigation said Monday.

The official said that the lawyers' recommendation, which has been forwarded to Attorney General Edward H. Levi for a final decision, was based on the conclusion that "a continuum of presidential authority" had rendered the mail openings legal, despite federal statutes that prohibit tampering with first-class mail inside the United States.

The Justice Department, the official said, had, in the course of its secret examination, "found evidence of presidential knowledge" of the CIA operation, code-named IT Lingua, that between 1953 and 1973 resulted in the opening of nearly 250,000 letters passing through postal facilities in New York City, San Francisco and elsewhere.

The Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, which issued a long report on domestic mail openings in April, said it had found no documentary evidence that any President during the two decades in question had ever authorized the CIA to open letters and photograph their contents.

"The only president who might conceivably have been informed of such an effort, the committee said, was Lyndon B. Johnson, but added that it had been unable to find any conclusive record that he had ever advised.

Richard M. Nixon told the Senate committee, in a written response to questions, that he did not recall ever having received information while President that the CIA or any other government agency was engaged in opening mail without the authority of a judicial warrant.

Asked how the Justice Department lawyers had squared their conclusion about the existence of continuing presidential authority with Nixon's denial of any such knowledge, the official replied that the department had "looked at more than that, the denial of instructing their recommendation."

He declined, however, to characterize the additional evidence examined by the lawyers.

Nixon's purported ignorance of the CIA mail intercept program was a central focus of the Senate committee's hearings, and the committee staff rebuked some of Nixon's aides for having advised him in 1970 that such coverage had been "discontinued" when in fact, it had not.

Insurance plan sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government will try again within two days to find a way to insure drug manufacturers so they will produce vaccine for the proposed national swine flu inoculation program.

Officials of the Health, Education and Welfare department met Monday with manufacturers and insurers on a possible liability agreement to allow the vaccination program to proceed.

After a 1 1/2-hour meeting, the group split into two sections and HEW spokesman Leo Parent said, "They agreed to meet again within the next 48 hours."

The program is stalled because individual insurance companies considered it too risky to underwrite, and Congress has refused a request to authorize government guarantees to the insurers.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — About 150 fans of the late mystery writer Dashiell Hammett took a walk of remembrance through downtown San Francisco and found a plaque commemorating his most famous creation, private eye Sam Spade.

Blue or pink skies of Mars

The first color picture from Mars created something of a sensation, bringing smiles of satisfaction to many on earth. Instead of the incredibly drab surface of the moon that had been pounded into our consciousness, the Martian surface was ablaze with color: Brick red soil with a few rocks that appeared to be bluish.

House ethics panel asks reprimand for Floridian

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House ethics committee says Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., "has violated standards of conduct applicable to all members of Congress," and should be reprimanded but not punished.

The panel's formal report on the Sikes case was published Monday and confirmed earlier UPI reports that it would recommend a reprimand on two of three complaints against him and was withholding a rebuke on the third, because it took place too long ago.

It was the first time the committee has acted against any member of Congress since it was created in 1968 after the late Adam Clayton Powell was expelled from the House for misuse of committee funds.

But one member chastised the committee for the July "leak" of its findings to UPI and the Washington Star.

The report is tentatively scheduled to come to the House floor Thursday, where it could be opened to amendment by a majority vote or simply voted up or down.

Sikes declined comment pending a speech in the House, but in a CBS interview, he called the findings unjustified and said his reelection chances had not been damaged by the action.

The committee acted after Common Cause, the citizens advocacy group, filed complaints claiming that Sikes failed to disclose stock holdings in Fairchild Industries, a major defense contractor, while he was chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee on military construction.

Failed to disclose holding stock in a bank which he helped establish on the Pensacola Naval Air Station.

Failed to disclose an interest in a Florida land development project at a time he pushed legislation advantageous to the project.

The committee recommended reprimand for the Fairchild and bank stock cases but said since the land case occurred in 1961 and 1962 it did not feel it had jurisdiction because it was not in existence at that time.

The report said that "if such activity had occurred within a relatively recent time frame and had just now become a matter of public knowledge, the recommendation of some form of punishment would be a matter for consideration by the committee."

Common Cause said in a statement it was pleased the committee accused Sikes of "wrongdoing" but it still believed "censure would be more appropriate than reprimand."

Reprimand carries no penalty other than being carried on the House official records. Censure would have required Sikes to be publicly denounced for his actions in the well of the House. The committee could have stripped him of his seniority or recommended expulsion from the House.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., who with Rep. Olin Teague, D-Tex., cast the two "no" votes in the 10-2 committee vote adopting the report, filed dissenting views.

SEN. DAN INOUEYE accepted payment

DETROIT (UPI) — The announcement of record second quarter earnings by Chrysler Corp. Monday apparently ended any chance for the firm to plead poverty in the current contract talks with the United Auto Workers.

With General Motors and Ford expected to announce record level earnings later this week, the Big Three automakers would be hard pressed to explain why workers should not get a jump in wages, cost of living protection and other benefits.

As early as last week when talks began, UAW Vice President Douglas Fraser, who heads the union negotiating team at Chrysler, said earnings would be a factor in the union's demands.

"I had we met in 1974 or 1975 to work out an agreement," Fraser said, "I'm sure finances would have been a major question. There sure won't be any arguments to plead poverty this year."

In contract talks Monday, Fraser's attitude was evident as UAW officials told Chrysler and General Motors they want the new contract to include improved cost-of-living protection, plus an increase in base wages that exceeds the 3 per cent figure in effect for the past six years.

Chrysler, the first of the Big Three to report quarterly earnings, said profits hit $155.1 million in the period, compared to a $5.5 million loss a year ago.

Profits easily surpassed the previous second quarter record of $108.6 million in 1973, just before the Arab oil embargo touched off the industry's worst slump since World War II.

"The company is in solid financial condition," Chairman John Riccardo and President E. A. Cañero said in a joint statement.

"We reduced our debt by $228 million in the first six months of 1978 and have now reduced our debt by $255 million over the past 18 months."

Former research clerk admits copying CIA memo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former researcher for the House Intelligence Committee says she copied a sensitive CIA memo and passed it on to the panel although she was warned not to mention names.

Sandra A. Zeune, researcher for the now defunct House Intelligence panel, testified Monday before the House Ethics committee which is investigating the leak of a secret intelligence report to CBS news correspondent Daniel Schorr.

While being questioned on the intelligence committee's own security, she brought up what is now known as the "Jackson memo."

Miss Zeune said she came across the memo, which concerned adviser Sen. Henry A. Jackson, D-Wash., gave to the agency by chance while going through classified documents at the CIA's Langley, Va., headquarters.

"I was told it was a raw file and part of other documents — to take notes not names," she testified.

She said she made an almost verbatim handwritten copy, memorized the names and turned it over to the intelligence committee staff which, she said, was trying to develop evidence of congressional protection of the CIA.

The memo, purportedly written by a CIA official, described a Feb. 3, 1973, meeting with Jackson.

The CIA at the time feared exposure of its covert activities in Chile and expected to be called by a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee which was questioning the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. about alleged links with the agency in South America.

Jackson, according to the memo, advised the CIA to protect itself by having Senate inquiries transferred to another committee with a more benign view of CIA activities.

After the story was leaked and published by the New York Times, the Washington senator denied any suggestion he was trying to "cover up" for the CIA. All he did, he said, was give official advice on "procedural matters" in connection with the subcommittee's investigation.

In other testimony, Miss Zeune said she was not responsible for leaking the intelligence report to Schorr but had unsubstantiated suspicions on the possible culprit.

When she declined to elaborate at the open hearing, the committee voted to continue her testimony in a later closed hearing with press and public excluded.

Earlier, another group of members and staff of the defunct intelligence committee denied responsibility for the leak.

They included Rep. Robert N. Galtimo, D-Conn., who said that he was not responsible but that he considered the leaked report not classified material.

US trials to nail contribution case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government was reported ready to complete its case against Claude C. Wild, former Gulf Oil Corp. lobbyist charged with making an illegal $5,000 campaign contribution to Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii.

Then the defense attorney, William Hundley, will try to prove the contribution, which Wild admits, was made more than three years before he was indicted last March 12. That would clear him under the statute of limitations.

U.S. District Judge Joseph C. Waddy must decide whether to believe Wild or Inouye's administrative assistant, Henry Guigni, who testified under immunity that Wild gave him the cash later than March 15, 1973.

Wild, who waived a jury trial, could receive up to two years in prison and a $10,000 fine if found guilty.

Alan Adlestein, an attorney from the Watergate Special Prosecutor's office, testified during the opening session of the hearing Monday that Hundley would try to prove he made the payment in 1972.

Adlestein said this is the reason he introduced a Gulf attorney's memo that indicated no payments were made in 1972 to any senator who later served on the Senate Watergate Committee. Inouye was one of the seven members of that panel.

Hundley tried in vain to shake Guigni's testimony, that Wild paid him the cash in a plain white envelope some time after Wild attended a fundraising dinner for Inouye at the Georgetown Club here on March 15, 1973.

Guigni said he never reported the donation as legally required. He said he spent the cash for campaign purposes, including $1,200 he paid Inouye in cash, to reimburse the Senator for his own out-of-pocket campaign expenses.

When Inouye testified, Hundley tried in vain to shake his testimony that he saw no reason to question the source of the cash Guigni gave him.

Term limit up again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate is trying for the third time to win House approval for limiting the term of the FBI director to five years.

It attached the limitation Monday as an amendment to a bill authorizing $5.4 billion to continue the crime-fighting Law Enforcement Assistance Administration for five more years.

The authorization measure was approved 87-2 after the amendment by Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., to limit the FBI director's term of service was passed 81-4.

The Senate has passed a 10-year term proposal twice previously but it has never been acted on by the House.

Panel hears Nixon drug war secrets

© Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — John Ehrlichman was back on Capitol Hill today, selling secrets on how the Nixon White House got into the drug control business for publicity purposes.

The 51-year-old top domestic adviser to former President Nixon, in testimony prepared for a Senate subcommittee investigating the inter-agency warfare in federal narcotics suppression efforts, said the major job was to get various agencies cooperating at the lower levels.

But, he added, "there is one exception to this principle which applies to narcotics." "Narcotics suppression is a very sexy political issue. It usually has high media visibility. Parents are worried about narcotics. They listen to a politician talking about drug suppression when they turn him out on the energy problem."

Border guards see suspect

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — A suspected abductor of 26 school children attempted to flee into Canada, but was turned back at the border because he carried three pistols and a rifle, authorities said Monday night.

The incident at the Washington-Canadian border occurred July 19, three days after the children and their bus driver returned their way to freedom from an underground prison at a Livestock, Calif., quarry. However, it was before arrest warrants were issued in the case.

Border guards detained James Schoenfeld, 24, while a check on him and the guns was made through police networks. Schoenfeld was cleared by the checks and released. He was given back the four guns seized by customs, but was not permitted entry to Canada.

An "International Bulletin" describing the suspect and his attempt to cross the border was broadcast by Canadian police late Monday as a "matter of routine" and did not mean he was in that country, authorities said.

Border guards said Schoenfeld, son of a wealthy Atherton, Calif., podiatrist, drove a 1963 beige Chrysler with California license plate HM913.

An all-points bulletin was put out on July 22 for Schoenfeld, Frederick Woods and Schoenfeld's younger brother, Richard, 22, who surrendered that same day in Alameda County.

In Marin County, a search for evidence in the case was launched Monday in the Siltson Beach area north of San Francisco. No details were disclosed.

The younger Schoenfeld jailed in Oakland on a million bail, is sentenced to be arraigned Thursday in Chowchilla, Calif., from where the children were abducted on their bus trip home from swimming outing on July 16.

Attorney William Gugen said his client would plead innocent to 43 kidnap-rubbery charges.

At the time James Schoenfeld was stopped at the Laurier Border crossing near Colville, Wash., there were no warrants yet issued for his arrest.

Constable Brian Flemming of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said he personally searched Schoenfeld's car after guards found that he was carrying a pistol.

"We located three more firearms, two pistols and one rifle. The three were located in the trunk," Flemming said the guns were given back to Schoenfeld after he paid a penalty for not declaring them. However, the possession of the undeclared guns barred him from entering Canada.

The border incident came to light when William Pifer, a part-time Washington State border guard, came across Schoenfeld's name earlier Monday while routinely going through the Canadian border reports.

New world record

A NEW world hamburger eating record was set Sunday by John Duchek of Houston when he consumed 18 burgers in 30 minutes, surpassing the previous Guinness Book mark by one. The contest was part of festivities benefiting the March of Dimes. Earlier in the day, a 500-pound hamburger was auctioned off for $6,200 or $12 per pound. (UPI)

Gypsies won't be detained

OGDENSBURG, N.Y. (UPI) — Border Patrol officials say a band of gypsies suspected in several New York state larcenies will remain at large while U.S. authorities search for a country which will take them in.

Border patrolmen say the group of about 35, who claim to be Yugoslav, has been refused by the Netherlands, Italy, Switzerland, Bulgaria and the U.S.S.R.

Despite deportation orders, regulations forbid detaining the group until a country which will accept them is located.

The group entered the United States from Mexico in February, 1974, without reporting for inspection. They were ordered deported in June of that year but as yet authorities have failed to find a country that will accept them.

New York State police say the gypsies, suspected in larcenies totaling more than $5,000, allegedly operate by crowding a store with their people, drawing clerks away from cash drawers by asking prices, faking shoplifting attempts and causing disturbances.

This allows one member of the group to slip into an office or behind the counter and lift the cash, the troopers said.

The band first came to the attention of state authorities July 2 when they allegedly made off with $2,500 from a grocery store in Star Lake, N.Y. State police halted them shortly afterward but charges were dropped when the money was returned.

McQueen to star

NEW YORK (UPI) — Warner Brothers says it has signed Steve McQueen for a starring role in its planned big-budget movie version of the Israeli commando raid which freed 103 hostages at Uganda's Entebbe Airport this month.

Ted Ashley, Warner's chairman, said McQueen will play Brig. Gen. Dan Sholomon, the chief officer of Israel's paratrooper and infantry forces who commanded the Entebbe raiders.

Warner said the film, as yet untitled, is budgeted at $10 million to $12 million. It will be directed by Franklin Schaffner, who also directed another McQueen film, "Papillon."

Kennedy Jr. cited

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (UPI) — John Kennedy Jr., son of the late President, and his cousin Tim Shriver have been commended for their "valuable work" in the town of Rabinal, in quake devastated Guatemala.

The two teen-agers arrived in Guatemala June 20 and worked until last Tuesday.

Antonio Gomez y Gomez, director of the Family Integration Corps said Mayor Pedro Xitamal presented Kennedy and Shriver with a document thanking them for their "valuable collaboration in reconstructing the town."

O'Hair seeks count

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Atheist Madalyn Murray O'Hair says she plans to run for governor in 1978 to get some idea on the number of atheists in Texas.

Mrs. O'Hair says she does not expect to win.

"That isn't important. I need to get a count on the atheist population," she said.

Mrs. O'Hair, whose legal action resulted in a U.S. Supreme Court ban on compulsory prayer in public schools, said she believes atheists now make up about 25 per cent of the population.

Zsa Zsa reports burglary

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A burglar made off with Zsa Zsa Gabor's $50,000 diamond and sapphire earrings, the actress reported to police Monday.

She told police she was in her home when she returned to her Bel-Air home following a three-day absence she found the front door open, her dog released from the garage, a safe opened and the earrings and some costume jewelry stolen from her bedroom.

Ever backward

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The world's backward walkman champion has clamped the mirrors back on his eyeglasses.

Fleeno Wingo, 31, is off again, this time on a two to three-month backward trek from San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf via the coast highway to the Santa Monica, Calif., pier.

During the Great Depression of the '30s, Wingo gained publicity by walking backwards from Santa Monica to Texas and then on to the east coast.

Cardinal seeks help

SALVADOR, Brazil (UPI) — Roman Catholic Cardinal Avelar Brandão of Salvador has asked the federal justice ministry for help in protecting Brazil's churches from being robbed of their religious artifacts.

In a note to Justice Minister Armando Falcão, the cardinal said he believed "an interstate or international network is systematically robbing the churches in a manner which is difficult for the police to track."

João Laranjeira, a 41-year-old newly created police task force which captured 10 church thieves and recovered 500 religious artifacts, said the church robbery rings are run by collectors who visit the churches disguised as tourists and take photographs of the pieces they desire.

The collectors turn the photographs over to robbers who then fill the orders, Laranjeira said.

 My daughter has infectious hepatitis.
 Her doctor says there is no cure for it and she probably got the virus from food served at a restaurant. Will you comment on the disease if you have a Health Letter telling more about it I would appreciate getting it.

In some cases a smoldering case of hepatitis persists.
 You can prevent infectious hepatitis from food and water contamination for about six months by taking one shot of pooled gamma globulin. You may even prevent it if you have already been exposed.
 For example, if several people ate at a restaurant and some of the people then developed hepatitis it is presumed the others have been exposed too. These people can all be given pooled gamma globulin and the attack prevented or its severity greatly diminished. Anyone getting into an area of the world where food and water sanitation are poor is wise to have a shot of pooled gamma globulin in advance to protect them from infectious hepatitis.

Aid continues for flood victims

BOISE (UPI)—Contributions in money and materials continue to come into the flood-hit Rexburg area.
 A $5,000 check was sent to Riggs College to help "reimburse the college for the many, many thousands of dollars they have spent in helping the Teton flood victims in Rexburg."

Richard N. Adams, president of the bank, sent the check to President Henry B. Eyring for the officers, directors and employees of the Bank of Commerce.

A "Books for Rexburg" project has been started by the International Reading Association's Idaho chapter.

James Sawyer, national director, said the national organization is sending the books to Rexburg which lost its library in the June 5 Teton Dam collapse.

Mothers honored at Bicentennial tea

FILER—Mothers were honored at a Bicentennial tea given by members of the Betsy Ross Bakers' Club July 24 at the home of Celestine and Heather Herrett.

Mothers were greeted by Virginia Steele and Heather Herrett and presented red, white and blue feather corsages. Special guest Mrs. Lillian Sullivan entertained on the piano with patriotic solos.

Amy Conrad and Celestine Herrett served at the table. Tea cookies, nut breads, fresh fruit salad, orange sherbet, punch, nuts and mints were served.

Pam Steele, mother of one of the members, gave a special demonstration on how to make a variety of sweets using a simple yeast recipe.

Two kinds of hepatitis

Dear Reader -
 There are two kinds of viral hepatitis. One comes from food and the other from needles or blood and plasma transfusions. The type one gets from the disease if you have a Health Letter telling more about it I would appreciate getting it.

presumed the others have been exposed too. These people can all be given pooled gamma globulin and the attack prevented or its severity greatly diminished. Anyone getting into an area of the world where food and water sanitation are poor is wise to have a shot of pooled gamma globulin in advance to protect them from infectious hepatitis.

The food type results from contamination of food or water sources with the virus, usually from sewage or fecal contamination. Contaminated shellfish are one source but certainly not the only one or even the main one.

I am sending you The Health Letter you asked for. Number 7-8: Living with Your Liver. Others who want this issue on how the liver functions and its main diseases can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 236: San Antonio, TX 78202.

Viral hepatitis from food or water contamination is more common than many realize. It is almost epidemic in some parts of the world. In severe form it can cause jaundice and severe liver dysfunction.

In milder forms it may not cause any jaundice at all and may appear as a mild case of gastroenteritis. In most cases the person recovers without any significant residual damage at all.

It is obvious from what I have said that the many mild cases require no treatment. Most people don't even know they have had it. Even people with jaundice with infectious hepatitis usually recover without residual liver damage.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1978 by Chicago Tribune Co., News Syndicate Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Your viewpoint and that of other executives' wives on the subject of husbands taking their secretaries-out-to-lunch would be appreciated. The claim that there's nothing "wrong" in it makes me bristle. I disapprove but am almost ashamed to say so because I am called absurd, insecure and just plain childish. I am married to an executive and this is my problem. I was formerly a secretary (not his) and never found "business" to be the topic of conversation when my boss invited me to lunch. I wonder what the silent league—the secretaries' husbands—have to say?

NOBODY'S FOOL

Lunch dates questioned

DEAR NOBODY'S: Lunching with one's boss is not in itself morally wrong, but the attendant gossip can do much harm. Circumstances differ, however, and one must consider the boss, the secretary, the place and the frequency of such dates. And who's feeding whom what.

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who is a wonderful person, but my husband thinks her husband is a terrible bore. This friend has had us to her home for dinner several times, and I've been able to persuade my husband to go. But now he says, "No more!"

I have had this couple for dinner, and although my husband wasn't rude, he didn't urge them to stay longer when they said, rather early and halfheartedly, "I think we'd better be going."

Abby, I have entertained some of my husband's business friends, many of whom are bores, but I don't complain. So is it asking too much of him to do the same for me once in a while?

Why should we wives do all the giving?
EQUAL PARTNER

DEAR PARTNER: You shouldn't. And many don't. Why don't you play "let's make a deal?" As an equal partner, your husband should do as much for you as you do for him.

DEAR ABBY: The man signed DISGUSTED, who was wondering how to signal a waitress in a restaurant, should use a little common sense.

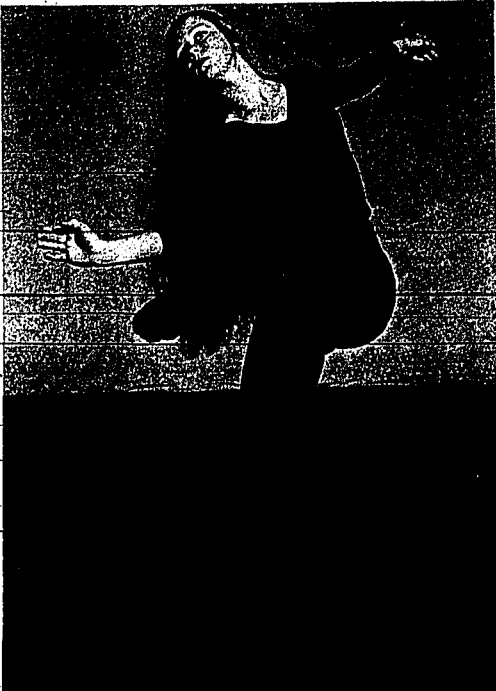

I've been a waitress for five years, and the first thing I do is let the customer know my name. If the waitress doesn't do this, the customer should ask. It saves a lot of confusion when he needs something if he knows exactly who waited on him.

I don't know any waitress who likes to be called "Hey, Girlie," or have someone whistle or snap his fingers to summon her.

Thanks for hearing our side.
C.S.

DEAR C.S.: Not all waitresses want to be addressed by their names. Some feel it is too familiar. So unless the waitress is wearing a name pin, or introduces herself, I recommend calling her either "Miss" or "Waitress."

Jole Allred, Twin Falls, to perform with Ballet Folk

TF miss among Gem students to perform with Ballet Folk

TWIN FALLS—Jole Allred, Twin Falls, is among the nine members of Summer Festival Touring Company to perform with the Ballet Folk in their performance at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Filer High School Auditorium.

Miss Allred, a ballet student of Beverly Hackney, was a scholarship winner last spring who was chosen for a training-touring experience with Ballet Folk. This program was designed to provide opportunity for study and performance for promising dance students from throughout the state.

These students, Miss Allred, Twin Falls; Sally Swanby, Sparkle Swanby, Valerie

Stephans, Jennifer Gould, Jackie Schultz and Lori Bishop, Boise, and Mindi Lyons and Cally Utzman, Moscow, have completed a six-week study period at the Ballet Folk Summer Workshop at the University of Idaho in Moscow, and now are performing with the Company in Moscow, Pocatello, Twin Falls and Boise.

These nine young dancers will be performing three dance selections choreographed for them by the Ballet Folk staff and guest teachers. Proceeds of this performance go to the Federated Music Club Idaho Dance Arts Alliance Scholarship Fund for college and summer dance workshop scholarships. This program is sponsored by the Idaho Commission on the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Tickets are available at the Music Center, at the door, from Twin Falls Dance students, or by calling 733-3321.

Alcohol, brain damage linked

© Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — Chronic alcoholism, long associated with liver damage, also may cause destruction of brain tissue, medical scientists at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center have discovered.

Using a new type of scan system that furnished three-dimensional pictures of the brain, the investigators found small cavities in the brain similar to that seen in aged individuals with tissue atrophy.

The report was made in two studies reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Principal investigators were Dr. Jacob H. Fox, a neurologist, and Dr. Phillip Epstein, a psychiatrist.

They studied 12 chronic alcoholics, ages 30 to 74, hospitalized for such symptoms as confusion, memory loss and seizure. All had been alcoholics for at least five years and all had evidence of liver disease.

The investigators noted that the group studied probably is not representative of chronic alcoholics in the general population since they had some kind of neurologic symptoms.

Fox now plans to investigate whether the patients have a corresponding loss of intellectual function and whether the brain damage is permanent.

The pathology was detected by computerized axial tomography, an imaging system that takes pictures of organs in layers, like a loaf of sliced bread.

Today's hand is typical of the hands shown in the auction bridge columns and books of 50 or 60 years ago. South bid one no trump and everyone would pass since in auctions you got credit for all over tricks below the line.

West would open the three of spades and the defense would gather in four spade tricks. East would signal with the 10 of diamonds on the fourth spade and West would lead a diamond.

South would take his ace of diamonds and cash four club tricks. West would discard three diamonds.

Now South would cash his ace and queen of hearts and finesse for West's jack in order to score nine tricks and win the rubber.

The author would explain that the finesse was a sure thing. If West had held a five-card diamond suit he would have opened it. In auction you let your longest suit against no trump. We betide any iconoclast who violates that rule. Hence, when West showed out on the second club lead he was marked with 4-4-1 distribution.

Western bean cutworms show up in area fields

TWIN FALLS — Extension Service entomologists advise farmers to check their corn and bean crops for signs of infestation by the Western bean cutworm.

"Light traps set in fields around the Magic Valley by the entomologists show infestations are now present," Robert Stoltz, entomologist, said farmers should check their fields carefully and frequently this time of year.

Stoltz said the first signs of a major infestation.

He said the Western bean cutworm causes considerable damage each year to the Magic Valley bean and corn fields. Adult moths, he said, emerge in early July and mid-August and begin laying eggs. These eggs hatch about six days after the eggs are laid. Egg masses can be found in groups of five to 200.

"More than half of the traps in the Kimberly and Hansen area indicate infestations heavy enough to cause economic loss," Stoltz said.

In the Castelford, Piler and Buhl areas infestations are not quite as heavy but the insects are present.

Stoltz said farmers might be able to save some production costs by spraying as soon as they see any indication of the cutworm eggs.

He suggested farmers contact their fieldmen to check the crops themselves. The leaves of young corn and beans provide feed for the pests. They feed on the undersides of the bean leaves and, as the plants bud, they move to the buds and later feed on the bean pods. They move into the ears of corn as they begin to develop.

Treatment should be applied to the corn before the ears are entered, or between about July 27 and Aug. 7 when the corn is in the tassel stage.

Beans should be treated when feeding is noticed on the underside of the leaves and before the insects reach the bean pods.

Stoltz said the infestations are spotty. One field may be infested while the field across the road or a short distance away is clean. The younger the insect is when treated, the more effective the treatment, he said.

Utah lambs fewer

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah's 1976 lamb crop and wool production continued to decline, according to the Utah-Crop and-Livestock Reporting Service mid-July report.

The state agency estimates Utah sheepmen have 430,000 lambs this year, down from 481,000 head as of Jan. 1, and down from 558,000 lambs as of Jan. 1, 1975.

The service also said, with about 64,000 fewer sheep to be shorn this year, the 1976 wool production in Utah is estimated at slightly more than 5.4 million pounds — down from 6.14 million pounds in 1975.

The number of sheep shorn, or to be shorn, this year is 527,000 — a drop from the 1975 recent low year of 591,000 sheep.

McClure endorses braceros

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho, said the U.S. could end "the fruitless pursuit of illegal aliens throughout our western states if the country returned to 'the old Bracero program.'"

He said under the policy "there were some problems and pitfalls but alien laborers were allowed into the United States to do work at a specific job — for a specific length of time."

"U.S. citizens were given priority for jobs," Hansen said.

"Aliens were both protected under our laws and mandated to obey the laws and we curtailed the fruitless pursuit of illegal aliens throughout the western states that has now reached huge proportions."

McClure said a $10,000 advertising campaign waged in 1950 to attract laborers to move sprinkler pipes ended with "not one pipe-mover" located and hired in southern Idaho.

"It is no wonder, then, that Idaho's farmers find themselves turning to alien laborers. There is little other choice," McClure said.

"Yet in the halls of Congress legislation has been proposed which would make the former the criminal for knowingly employing an illegal alien."

McClure said. "This same Congress has made welfare hand-outs so easy to come by that for some it is easier to take the free dole than to put in a hard day's work — work that is available to Idaho."

"Whether laborers come from our over-crowded urban centers or from south of our border really doesn't matter, as long as they are willing to work and work hard for a day's pay," the senator said.

Plow under crops, Gem farmers told

CHANGEVILLE, Idaho (UPI) — A University of Idaho crop physiologist has advised Camas Prairie farmers faced with 8,000 acres of immature wheat to plow their crops and prepare for next year.

Glen Murray said that would be the first choice for farmers facing a possible $1 million crop loss.

"Land owned by about 90 farmers in two Idaho counties was seeded earlier this year with what turned out to be the wrong kind of wheat."

The unidentified wheat is apparently an autumn variety that does not mature as fast as the regular spring wheat and thus won't be ready for harvest.

Some farmers have indicated they are contemplating legal action.

Edward Mink, Idaho County agricultural extension agent, said samples of the wheat have been sent to the University of Idaho for testing to determine its specific identity.

In the meantime, Mink said warehouse personnel and insurance adjusters are considering equitable restitution to farmers.

A storage bin miscalculation "a private warehouse is believed to be the source of the problem."

Predictable USSR grain sales asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new report says just Russian grain purchases have had a disruptive effect in the United States because of their widely varying size and the secrecy with which Soviet buyers have approached them.

The congressional Office of Technology Assessment said the United States could reap economic benefits and achieve lower food prices if such sales were made on a regular and predictable basis.

During the past seven years Japan has been a larger buyer of U.S. grain than has the Soviet Union, the report said, but Japanese purchases have been regular and predictable and have caused no market disruption.

Russia bought 2.51 million tons in 1972, while in 1973 they put in orders for 12.88 million tons, bought from U.S. grains companies "opacitally and secretly."

These purchases caused a major market disruption that was blamed for contributing to the U.S. inflationary spiral.

Soviet purchases dropped to 778 million tons in 1974 and to 2.73 billion in 1975, the report said, then swelled abruptly to 13.38 million this year.

In an effort to stabilize the grain transactions, the United States and Soviet Union signed a five-year agreement in 1975 calling for the Russians to buy at least 6 million tons a year and spend 6 billion dollars on "using the entire year"

Business activity slows up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Productivity in the business sector of the American economy slowed substantially in the spring quarter, rising only 3.6 per cent, the government said today.

The Labor Department said the moderate advance in productivity — output per worker-hour — was less than half the first quarter rise of 7.5 per cent. Nevertheless, the productivity increase was still a vast improvement over the 1.6 per cent decline registered in the fourth quarter of last year.

The slowdown in productivity came as no surprise following last week's Commerce Department report on Gross National Product. Productivity usually registers when the overall rate of output in the economy eases.

Last week's GNP figures showed that the nation's total output of goods and services — stripped of inflation — rose only 4.4 per cent during April, May and June, a considerable dropoff from the first quarter's 9.2 per cent surge.

The productivity figures deal exclusively with the private or business sector of the economy. Statistics for government employees are not included since the Labor Department feels there is no accurate way to measure their output.

The small increase in productivity came as a result of a 5.1 per cent increase in output and a 1.8 per cent rise in hours, the department said. In the first quarter, output was up 10.4 per cent and hours rose 2.5 per cent.

In breaking down the manufacturing portion of the business sector, the government said productivity fared a little better, rising 7.8 per cent in the second quarter compared to a 5.1 per cent in the first quarter.

Clean air standards discussed

WASHINGTON — The Ford administration would like to see clean-air standards for automobiles split off from the rest of the Clean Air Bill, which is the most important piece of environmental legislation before Congress this year.

The bill, which deals with all kinds of dirty-air problems, was scheduled to come up for debate on the Senate floor Monday or Tuesday.

"We think there's tremendous urgency for the auto industry" while other controversial provisions "haven't the same degree of urgency," L. William Seidman, the President's economic counselor, said over the weekend.

Besides the auto section, the most controversial provision is in the Senate version of the bill — it deals with "non-deterioration," meaning that air anywhere in the country would not be permitted to get dirtier than now.

The administration fears this provision will preclude industrial development in pristine areas, particularly in the West.

The reason behind the White House's view that the auto standards are so urgent is that car manufacturers require three years' notice of what kind of cars they can build.

The proposed amendments to the 1970 Clean Air Act forested another hassle between the White House and Congress, but for the time it is a three-cornered fight. One generally between the White House and Congress, the other between the Senate and the House.

This situation raises the question of whether the bill can get out of Congress this year, particularly with a presidential election coming up.

Another peculiarity in the politics of clean air is that some Republicans and Democrats are in agreement on some provisions while other members in each of the parties silently disagree.

For example, Republican members of the Senate Public Works Committee met with President Ford's chief of staff and told him they were going to go along with the Democrats on the committee, which is led by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

Italian Marxists expand influence

ROME (UPI) — Italy's parliament elected its first Communist committee chairman in almost three decades today in a move that gave the Marxists increased influence over taxation and government spending policy.

The committee chairmanships, allocated in a compromise arrangement between the Communists and ruling Christian Democrats, put Marxists at the head of four committees in the Chamber of Deputies and three in the Senate.

In the Chamber of Deputies, Communists took the chairmanships of the powerful finance and treasury committee, the constitutional affairs committee and the public works committee.

In addition, an independent leftist elected on the Communist ticket won the chairmanship of the transport committee.

In the Senate, Communists were elected to head up the budget, agriculture and public health committees.

The Communist chairmen were elected according to a compromise accord with the Christian Democrats worked out Monday night that reflected the Marxists' increased parliamentary strength following the June 29-21 national elections.

The Communists increased their parliamentary strength by 7 per cent in the June balloting, winning 228 seats in the Chamber of Deputies to the Christian Democrats' 262.

The results left the Christian Democrats, dependent on indirect left-wing support from the Communists and third ranking Socialist party in their attempts to form a minority government.

The Communist chairmanships in the Chamber and Senate were the second concession the Christian Democrats have made to win left-wing support. The first was their agreement to the election of Pietro Ingrao as the first Communist resident of the Chamber.

The Communists were demanding an additional Christian Democratic vote before they would agree to obtain in a parliamentary vote of confidence on a minority government headed by Christian Democratic premier-designate Giulio Andreotti.

We'll be in our new house soon now. It's a move we've worked and planned for, over a period of six or seven years. We did more than plan . . . we've been saving.

The money we saved in our First Federal account each month, together with our profit from the sale of our first house, gave us enough for the down payment on our new home. We even had enough left over for landscaping!

No, it wasn't easy to save, but it sure was worth it in the end. Our First Federal account earns 5 1/4% interest . . . and whenever we build up $1,000 over our basic savings account, we put it in a higher-interest Certificate account.

We're going to save on our new home several years sooner . . . because we've been saving.

Hearst trial in January

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's second trial has been postponed twice, agreed on Jan. 19.

"I do not think it is possible to find jurors any place in the United States — probably in the world — who have not heard of her prior conviction," attorney Albert Johnson said Monday.

"For that reason she could not get a jury trial."

Johnson made his argument when the 22-year-old newspaper heiress, ashen pale and down to 90 pounds, was brought by U.S. marshals to a brief appearance in Superior Court.

Johnson and prosecutor Samuel Mayerson, urged by Judge William Ruiz to do so, had argued for the postponement 11 times already.

The trial was postponed because Miss Hearst is in custody of the federal prison system, undergoing psychiatric examination for review of her tentative 45-year sentence for a federal bank robbery conviction.

Johnson told the court the evaluation would end Oct. 18 and he would need three months to prepare for trial.

Miss Hearst was driven the 100 miles from the San Diego Metropolitan Correctional Center in an unmarked van escorted by unmarked cars carrying U.S. marshals. She appeared thin, thinner.

Castro, pal voice unity

MIAMI (UPI) — Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro and Angolan President Agostino Neto joined in a show of unity during the 30th anniversary celebration commemorating the beginning of Castro's revolution.

The two leaders spoke Monday at a rally at Pinar del Rio in Cuba. The speeches were broadcast over Havana radio and monitored in Miami.

Castro said Cuba was fulfilling its international duties when it sent arms and troops to fight alongside the Popular Front for the Liberation of Angola in that country's recent civil war.

EPA gives urban areas more funds

Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — In a change designed to give the industrial Northeast a better break, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has decided to allocate regional planning funds for controlling water pollution under a new formula that assigns 65 per cent of the money to urban areas.

EPA proposed the change in response to a federal court order. The new formula would be applied to planning grants that amount to $2.5 billion, and which are to be distributed in 176 regional planning agencies and to state governments.

Regional agencies in New York and New Jersey would benefit most from the change. They are due to receive $1.5 million more than they would have under the formula in use prior to the court order.

Agencies in the Atlanta area and elsewhere in the Southeast would get $1.2 million more, and another $500,000 would go to agencies in the San Francisco area.

Four regions of the country stand to lose money under the formula, in which allocations would be based 85 per cent on population and 15 per cent on the size of the geographic area covered by a regional agency. The Pacific Northwest, particularly Alaska, would lose $1 million; the Rocky Mountain states would lose $1.2 million, Texas $300,000 and the Great Plains states $200,000.

The money to be distributed covers regional planning for water-pollution control programs which include sewage treatment plants, and land use and economic growth considerations.

While most of the money is concentrated on urban industrial pollution, some of it also is earmarked for regional and state planning agencies that deal with runoff from farms, mines and logging operations. In addition, regional agencies are required to use some of it to control pollution from nonpoint sources such as erosion and stormwater runoff.

Latin recovery slow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Inter-American Development Bank says the industrialized world is recovering from recession, but Latin American nations are still in a "tragic" slump and must wait a few years for full economic resurgence.

In a 420-page report on the "Economic and Social Progress in Latin America," the IDB blamed the high petroleum prices of the OPEC oil cartel for much of the problem.

"The economics of the industrialized nations (including the United States) have gone through the most severe recession since the second World War, unprecedented not only for its length and depth but also for its widespread nature," the IDB said in its study issued here Monday.

It said the recent economic growth in the United States and other industrialized nations will work favorably for Latin America this year but predicted that "a full resumption of higher economic growth rates in Latin America will probably not take place until 1977."

Tennis tourney planned

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Tennis Association will hold the Magic Valley Tennis Tournament here Saturday and Sunday.

Players from Sun Valley, Boise, Salt Lake City and Idaho Falls will compete with entrants from across Southern Idaho.

All players are invited to enter the tournament. Entry blanks can be obtained at Newton Sports Center with a $8.00 fee per event.

The tournament will include men's and women's singles, men's and women's doubles, mixed doubles and singles for men over 40.

Tournament play begins at 8:00 a.m. Saturday and is expected to run for two full days.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners and the Twin Falls Tennis Association will hold a barbecue Saturday night.

Pole vags drag Leon Saturday night

Drag racing action returns to Intermountain Raceway in Pocatello this Saturday night at 8:00 p.m. With crowds consistently running over the one thousand mark and racers showing up from three states, track owner Jim Hennessy has remarked, "It appears that Intermountain has a program that appeals to both fans and participants. This year we have already paid over $6,000 in prize money to qualifiers and winners."

Competition Eliminator has taken on new interest to local fans. Dragsters from Utah had dominated the eight second category. The last event when driver pilot Al Bloom, Idaho Falls, survived the tough field in his Chevrolet powered rail. Bloom's car runs the quarter mile in nine seconds flat at 147 over 140 mph.

Frank Wise, presently Idaho's most competitive drag racer in the Northwest, will return to Intermountain from Mountain Home to compete in his national record holding Super Stock Chevy II.

Popular Al and Kathy Steinmetz, Pocatello, will again be favored to capture the honors in Stock Eliminator with a Modified Oldsmobile 428.

Magie Valley has a new, tough competitor in the pair of Jerome. The team of Dennis Wallin and Saul Gonzalez, Jerome, entered an F7/Gas classed Calmar at the last race and turned an elapsed time of 11.72 seconds. The newly-built Chevy looks to be the most competitive car from the Jerome area in several years.

Thunder Raceway results posted

TWIN FALLS — Jerald Lochin, Buhl, took the gold in both the Modified Trophy Dash and the Modified Heat Race as racing returned to Thunder Raceway over the weekend.

The Modified Main was won by Gene Hamilton of Twin Falls while John Adams of Rupert led the entire 25 laps in winning the J-Stock Main.

A new track record was set on the 1/8 mile oval by J. R. Miller, Twin Falls, when he drove his new modified Chevy to a 26.0 second run during the time trials. Fuel problems for the rest of the afternoon kept him from finishing in the money however.

Swim team called the best US ever produced

MONTREAL (UPI) — Dr. James Counsellman, a man who selects his words judiciously, considered the remarkable performance of the U.S. men's swimming team and boldly resorted to superlatives.

"This is the greatest international team the United States has ever had, including track and field, and basketball," said Counsellman, who also coached the American men's swim team in the 1964 Olympics.

It was an uncharacteristically bold statement, but one which would be hard to dispute.

The United States men won 12 of 13 gold medals and 27 of a possible 35 total medals. The American women fell victim to the outstanding East German team, but salvaged a large measure of Olympic glory with a smashing upset in the final swimming event, the 400-meter freestyle relay.

The United States men had been so nearly perfect, the shortcomings of the American women were almost painful to watch as the East Germans won 11 of 13 events.

"We needed that one bad," said Dr. John Bogert, the U.S. swim team manager, after Kim Peyton, Wendy Boghlin, Jill Stekel and Shirley Babashoff upset East German Kornelia Ender's try for a fifth gold medal.

John Naber, a 6-foot-6 Californian, led the American men's medal parade with four gold medals and one silver. Naber set records in both backstroke events and was a member of several record-setting relay teams in the 100-meter freestyle and the 400-meter medley. He won his silver in the 200-meter freestyle.

Connors wins prize in Washington tourney

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmie Connors relentlessly marched to a 62-63 win over his Mexican Davis Cup rival Raul Ramirez Monday to capture the $125,000 Washington Star Tennis Championship.

The 25-year-old "top seeded" American advanced in the sixth-seeded Ramirez for the $20,000 first prize purse. It was the third time Connors had defeated Ramirez since the Mexican upset him in Davis Cup play to knock the United States out of contention.

Connors, leading Ramirez five straight games, paired his way to a 5-1 lead, winning five straight games on a pair of service breaks.

The first game as Connors forced his opponent to the base line with deep backhand shots and forced four errors. The seeded Ramirez, with the help of a double fault, a passing shot off Ramirez's service and two shots by the latter into the net.

Connors scored a service ace on the first game of the second set but the latter was once again twice on a double fault and two errors in the eighth game to allow Ramirez to draw even.

But then, down love-30, he broke back immediately and nailed down the match in a deuce game when a Ramirez lob floated out and his service was netted.

MONTREAL (UPI) — And so, it has come down to this. Four years and 4,000 miles removed from the claus that was Munich, a team of college all-stars in one basketball game away from wiping out the memory of the United States' most bitter defeat in international sport.

A 85-77 victory over Canada Monday night, a game in which the young Americans led from the start and were never-in-trouble, sent them into Tuesday night's gold medal play for the Olympic basketball championship.

The U.S. played its best right when it needed to. Flag-waving fans from both nations turned the historic Forum into a frenzy, but the U.S. team, youngest ever to compete in the Olympics, never lost its cool.

After seven minutes, the Americans led 20-8, as Canada could not get closer than six points the rest of the way.

Scott May, the college player of the year last season who led Indiana University to the NCAA championship, scored 22 points to pace the U.S. attack.

Unfortunately, the only sour note of the whole scene is that the U.S. — through no fault of its own — will not get a chance to play the team it would most have liked to play for the title.

The Soviet Union, beneficiary of — to put it mildly — some rather unusual timekeeping in the Olympic final at Munich, failed to make it to the main event. The Big Red Machine was shocked 89-84 by Yugoslavia in the other semi-final Monday.

"Physiologically, it would have been better for us to play the Soviet Union in the championship of what happened in 1972," said Dean Smith, the coach of the U.S. team.

But, he admitted, that really does not matter.

It will be another emotional night in the Forum, Russia or no, and even Mirko Novsel, coach of the Yugoslavian team — which the U.S. beat by 19 points last week, says: "The U.S. is 75 per cent certain of the gold medal."

Yugoslavia's victory, its second in the series, led the Russians in the last three Olympics, was ironically over by a former-U.S. college player, Kresimir Cosic, who played at Brigham Young, scored 20 points.

In the U.S. game, Tom LaGarde of Smith's North Carolina team had 16 points and Indiana's Quinn Buckner and Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley added 12 apiece for the Americans, who led 33-35 at halftime. Phil Toneberg, another former Brigham Young player, had a game high 25 for Canada.

The American fascination with Olympic gold in basketball is easily explainable. Basketball is a uniquely American sport. Like baseball, which is not played in the Olympics, it's a game that was invented in the U.S. Dr. James Naismith, having tucked up his first peach basket on the wall at the Y.M.C.A. in Springfield, Mass., one blustery December night in 1891.

And it is a game the Americans used to dominate in international competition.

The U.S. had won every Olympic game it ever played — not just the gold medals, but every game — until the Great Clock Game in Munich that Saturday night, Sept. 10, 1972.

While the team was just reaching the final, the U.S. women's basketball team achieved a milestone Monday.

The Americans, who never before had finished higher than eighth in an international women's basketball competition, won the silver medal by routing Czechoslovakia 83-67 behind 17 points by Lucia Harris, 14 by Nancy Dunlap and 10 by Patricia Roberts.

Fifteen straight points midway through the second half broke the game open.

Afterwards, the U.S. team had the reservations made, said coach Billie Moore, "I figured this team deserved a celebration just because it made it through the Olympics and now that we won a medal it is obvious we deserve one."

In boxing, heavyweight John Tate of Knoxville, Tenn., and light heavyweight Leon Spinks of St. Louis hammered their way into the quarter-finals by defeating a pair of European champions. Tate pummeled Poland's Andrzej Biegalski, opening cuts on his opponent's nose and mouth. Spinks defeated Russia's Anatoly Kirmanov, Spinks' brother, Michael, a middleweight, advanced on a foulout.

That gave the U.S. ninth boxers in the quarter-finals.

It was not a good day in the new Olympic stadium for U.S. track and field performers, however; and the biggest loss came about because of a mistake in strategy.

That was in the pole vault, which became an endurance contest after nearly eight hours of competition as darkness

Men's slowpitch tennis tourney gets underway at Harmon

TWIN FALLS — Wigson Wheel of Burley returned Wholesale Tires of Twin Falls 10:9 in one of the mid-summer spectacles attending the opening rounds of the men's district slowpitch tournament Monday night.

In other action, A.C. Houston defeated Cain's white Burley Beverage was downing Northwest Plywood of Twin Falls. Sawtooth of Ketchum-Halley defeated Marshall Warehouse of Jerome and Will O'Dell-Mazles Pizza dropped Project Mutual of Rupert 8-5.

Highly regarded Beymer Driving-Miller Construction of Twin Falls broke away from A.C. Prime in one of Burley with six runs in the fifth inning to win 10-8.

Action resumes at the two Harmon Park fields at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday. On diamond one, Union Pacific-Ford vs. Twin Falls Bank and Trust; 8 p.m., A.C. Houston vs. Bull Herald, and 9:15, Blincoe Farms vs. 6:45 p.m., Dept. ## Packard, Crane lead best ball meet

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls assistant pro Arlen Crane and amateur Kevin Packard aired a four-under par 65 Monday to lead the first round of the annual four-scratch two-man best ball tournament.

The affair was scheduled to wind up Tuesday afternoon at Blue Lakes Country Club.

The Twin Falls duo was being hotly pursued by two other Twin Falls teams. Tied at 66 were high professional Nate Ross and amateur John Hoshell and Canyon Spring assistant Jim Packard and Carl Hoss.

Jerry Breaux and Dr. Bill Cifer of Boise and Hossens 68; Hutchins and Mick Fulbrim were knotted at 67. Alone at 69 was the Boise duo of Stoney Brown and Larry Jackson.

"Equaling par were pro Dave Kilien and Dan Cook, pro Mike Renshaw and Fred Richardson of Idaho Falls; pro Carl Simpson and Bill Spencer of Burley; pro Pete Summerbell and John Bancroft of Jackson Hole, and pro Steve Brandt and Larry Thompson of Pocatello.

Rod Carew ejected

MINNAPOLIS (UPI) — American League batting champion Rod Carew of the Minnesota Twins showered the field with bats and helmets Monday night after he was ejected from the Twins' Texas Rangers game.

Umpire Jim Evans thumbed Carew after he threw his batting helmet on the field after being called out attempting to steal second base in the fourth inning. Twins' officials said they believed it was the first time in his nine-year career that Carew has been thrown out of a game.

settled and rain fell. Dave Roberts, the world record holder, decided to pass 18 feet 2 1/2 inches, and after he did, the other survivors all missed. But when Roberts called out, not clear 18 1/2 inches, and Roberts settled for third place.

"Before I came here, I had planned to skip 18 1/2," said. "I figured I could make 18 1/2 just as easy." Roberts said. "The only thing I didn't figure on was the rain."

A note of irony was injected when the scoreboard operator thought Roberts had cleared the record on his second attempt and flashed the words, "Olympic record Dave Roberts," on the electronic scoreboard.

"I didn't even see the scoreboard," Roberts said. "I knew I missed."

It was the second time in a row the U.S. lost the Olympic vault after having won it in every Olympiad through 1956.

Don Quarrie of Jamaica, the world record holder, won the 200 meters in 20.25 as top champion Czeslowski of Trinidad pulled up with a leg injury after 30 yards. Two Americans, A.M. champion Millard Hampton of San Jose, Calif., and 17-year-old Dwayne Evans of Phoenix, Ariz., were 2-4.

Lasse Viren of Finland became the third man ever to win the 10,000 meters to finish first in 27:40.30, then ran a blistering 50-second last 400 to finish first in 27:40.30, and then ran a historic victory lap with two companions carrying the Finnish flag, much as he did after winning four years ago at Munich.

Attkiss Nemetz of Hungary completed the first father-son Olympic title by winning the javelin with a world record throw of 310-4 1/2. His father won the hammer throw in 1948.

The only other American medal Monday was a surprise, a third place finish in the women's basketball, a baker from Plainfield, N.J., in the heavyweight judo competition.

Russia leads the race for medals with 27 gold, 26 silver and 29 bronze, a total of 73. The U.S. has 21-23-17-61 and East Germany has 27-17-14-58.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Earl Faison, a former San Diego Charger who used to be known as "The Tree" because of his size, spends two nights a week teaching scrimmage plays on a blackboard to football widows.

His audience consists of wives and girlfriends of football addicts. Faison conducts a series of eight classes which he attempts to explain many of the basic terms of the game, comparing football at times to military battle.

Faison, 6-foot-5, and 265, was an all-AFL defensive end and a member of the Chargers' Fearsome Foursome until sidelined with leg injuries in 1966.

Faison, who admits he was known as one of the meanest men in football, is an administrative intern at a local high school and is pursuing a master's degree in human behavior.

USDA hikes funds

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has increased the federal reimbursement rate received by schools and institutions participating in the national school lunch, breakfast special, milk and child care food programs.

The adjustments, effective July 1, were made to keep pace with the cost of obtaining food away from home as determined by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The adjustment is made every six months. The increase for December 1975 through May 1978 was 3.125 per cent.

Federal payments to states, made on an actual per-serving basis, is intended to help schools defray food costs.

In the national school lunch program the average payment will increase .5 to .13 cents a meal. Reimbursement for reduced price lunches served to needy will increase 1.75 cents to 61.5. Free lunches to qualifying children will be reimbursed 71.5 cents.

School breakfast program payments will increase .5 to 10.5 cents. Reduced price meals up to 5 to 20 cents and free breakfasts up to 36 cents.

Under the child care food program payments for mid-morning and mid-afternoon snacks remain at 5.25 cents. Reduced price snacks will be reimbursed 16 cents and free snacks 21.5 cents.

The adjusted rate of reimbursement under the special milk program will be 6 cents for the new fiscal year. An increase of 6.9 per cent over fiscal year 1975. The payment for milk served to needy children was equal to the actual purchase price of the milk.

Minidoka accidents reported

RUPERT — Three accidents occurred in Minidoka County over the weekend, sheriff's officers reported today.

Three Portland residents received minor injuries Saturday afternoon when Judy Barber, 31, lost control of her car and the car oversteered east of the 212 interchange.

Passengers Willie B. Harris, 44, and Steven Barber, 6, reportedly suffered abrasions but were not hospitalized, according to the sheriff's report.

A two-car collision occurred at 2:08 a.m. Saturday when Mike M. Garcia, 20, Paul Labor Camp, turned off Highway 24 near Rupert and his vehicle collided with one driven by Alfred Earl Aston, 25, Rupert, who was parked in the Stinker station driveway.

No citations were issued.

Robbie Dean Jordan, 16, Paul, escaped injury when a tie rod broke in the small pickup he was driving, causing the vehicle to go out of control Friday night on Highway 25.

Farmers to back candidate

IDAHO FALLS — A committee of Idaho farmers to back the second district democratic congressional campaign of Idaho State Sen. Stan Kress has been announced by Earl Hoopes.

"Stan Kress is the only farmer in the second district race," Hoopes said. "That is why this group has been organized to help send him to Washington as our representative."

Hoopes said that the committee includes 17 farmers from the district.

Margie Vetter farmers pledged to help Kress include George Anthony, Earl Hinder, Henry Garfield, Ed Smith and Fred Hingert, all Twin Falls.

Kress is Keith-Johnson, Blaine County; Jay and Jean Reichhart, Jerome County; and Richard Strickland, Gooding County.

800 acres eyed for annexation

By BOBUCKERMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—City officials are considering the annexation of about 800 acres scattered around the city.

At a City Council luncheon Monday, City Manager Jean Milar recommended most of the areas be annexed, including the largest area south of the city along Washington Street South. The area includes 285 residences assessed at more than $316,000.

At the luncheon, Milar presented a map showing 14 possible areas of annexation. The areas also include a section at the northeast corner of Addison Avenue and Eastland Drive, some land east of the city, several industrial areas southwest of the city, a residential pocket on Osterloh Avenue and an area centering at the intersection of Fuier Avenue-West and Grand View Drive.

Milar emphasized the study of annexation is in "the very preliminary stages." The council will meet again in two weeks to study the planned annexations and possibly tour the areas involved, he said.

Before annexations may be completed, the city must hold public hearings on the zoning of all lands to be annexed, he said. If the city should decide to annex some of the land, public hearings on zoning of the land would probably not be held until September, Milar said.

Annexations are usually made "just prior to the first of the year," Milar said. Among other reasons cities usually annex land in December so they can include persons on the land in census counts, Milar explained. State and federal funds are usually made available to cities on the basis of their early-year population, he said.

Milar recommended only two of the areas on the map not be annexed.

Area four, land directly east of the city, and area eight, land southeast of the city near the Rock Creek Canyon, would not be annexed because costs of providing city services to the areas would outweigh benefits, Milar said.

In addition, annexation of those lands would put more pressure on the city to add another fire substation since existing fire substation coverage would need to be stretched to include those areas, Milar said.

Milar admitted annexation of a large portion south of the city on Washington Street South would put pressure on the city to add a fire substation south of the Rock Creek Canyon, but he said such pressure existed already.

Washington may grow more spuds

By KEN HODGE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Washington State is rapidly becoming a major producer of potatoes and may surpass Idaho in total potato production within the next ten years, according to Washington Potato officials.

"Twenty years ago, we only had 30,000 acres of potatoes in Washington," Henry Michaels, assistant administrator of the Washington Potato Commission said today. "This year, the state projects our acreage to be 120,000 acres."

And, Hugh K. Hawley, chairman of the Washington Potato Commission, said further irrigation projects in the Columbia Basin will nearly double the size of the state's entire farm acreage.

"A great deal of that will be potatoes, I imagine," Hawley said.

Idaho farmers have recently noted competition from Washington and Oregon is becoming much stiffer.

Bill Kelly, a researcher for the Idaho Potato Commission, noted that Idaho still leads the pack, but admits Washington is catching up.

Kelly noted the difference between Idaho potatoes and those grown in other states is decreasing, making it harder for producers to price Idaho potatoes.

Bill Davis, president of J. H. Henry Produce Co., Kimberly, said "Oregon and Washington are expanding their potato industry and putting pressure on the industry pie-wise."

Statistically, Washington State seems to be growing faster in its potato acreage, although Idaho still has it far outdistanced in total acreage and production.

Michaels, quoted Department of Agriculture figures, noted in 1975 Washington had 105,000 acres planted in potatoes. This year predictions place total acreage at 120,000 acres, an increase of about 30 per cent.

He said Washington produced 46.8 million hundredweight of potatoes in 1975 and projections are for over 50 million hundredweight in 1976.

These figures compare to Idaho's total potato acreage of 235,000 acres in 1975 and 335,000 acres in 1976. Idaho's total production in 1975 was 75 million hundredweight.

Clearly, Michaels noted, Idaho does not appear to be growing as rapidly as Washington.

Michaels also said Washington usually gets higher yield per acre on potato production.

"Our yields are roughly twice that of other areas, like Idaho," he said. "We have a longer frost-free growing season which allows us to plant earlier and grow longer."

He said Washington can take advantage of the early fresh market-starting about this time of year while other states are still growing their spuds.

And with this state's agricultural acreage expected to more than double as soon as new projects are completed, he guessed that potato acreages will increase, too, passing a threat to Idaho's potato sovereignty.

Temblor shakes Salmon area

SALMON—(UPI)—A "mild" earthquake jolted the Salmon area early today but apparently did not cause any significant damage.

Rated between 3 and 3.5 on the Richter scale by a University of Utah seismograph field station in northern Idaho, the quake occurred at 4:36 A.M. in the Salmon National Forest near Salmon.

No tremors were reported in Twin Falls County.

Bob Johnson, editor of the Salmon Recorder-Herald, said the temblor awakened him at his cabin on Williams Lake, about 12 miles south of Salmon.

"I thought somebody had run into my dock with a boat or something," Johnson said, adding it was a strong but brief jolt.

He said he was awake, waiting for another shock but none came.

Several persons in Salmon felt the quake, he said, although some slept through it.

"It was very brief."

Traffic fatalities decrease in Valley

MAGIC VALLEY—Traffic fatalities in the Magic Valley fell 31 per cent in 1975 and are expected to decrease again this year, according to the State Bureau of Highway Safety.

Safety officials reported there were 60 traffic fatalities in 1975, a drop from 72 fatalities in 1974.

The bureau also reported traffic fatalities throughout Idaho were lower in 1975 than in the previous year.

According to officials, Idaho had the second greatest per cent decrease of traffic fatalities in the nation last year.

Safety officials said motor vehicle fatalities during 1975 were caused primarily by a driver's failure to yield the right-of-way, speeding and improper driving.

Laboratory analysis of valid blood samples from accident victims proved 49.9 per cent of the victims who died in traffic crashes had alcohol in their blood, according to bureau officials.

Officials also reported motorcycle, train crossing and pedestrian collisions in Idaho took more lives in 1975 than during 1974.

Train-crossing collisions increased 71 per cent in 1975 and pedestrian fatalities dropped, bureau reports show.

SNRA 'no park' reports differ

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

RETCHEM—Officials inside the National Park Service and the U.S. Department of the Interior have issued contradictory explanations on why a recommendation against a national park in central Idaho was made.

The Park Service sent a "no park" recommendation to the federal Office of Management and Budget in Washington, D.C., last Friday.

That recommendation reversed the recommendations of the regional National Park Service office.

The regional office had recommended two separate wilderness areas and two national parks for Idaho to replace the present SNRA.

According to Richard Curry, an associate legislative official for the National Park Service, the decision to reverse the regional report was made inside the Department of Interior.

Curry said the National Park Service was not wanted to follow the recommendations made by the Regional Park Service office.

Curry said the National Park Service felt the regional report outlining two national parks and

Nurses instrumental in MVMH wage hike

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS—The Magic Valley Memorial Hospital wage increase scheduled this fall is about 50 per cent more than employees would have received if the nursing staff had not taken action.

Wage increases from 11 to 20 per cent were approved for hospital employees earlier this month by the hospital board after the nurses' ad hoc committee requested an across-the-board $1 per hour increase for the nursing staff.

While the nurses didn't get all they requested, the raises approved will go to all the hospital staff rather than the nursing staff alone. The wage hikes are scheduled to be paid in installments after funds have accumulated from the room rate increase approved Monday by the board.

The first wage installment, one-fourth of the increase, will become effective Sept. 19. A second increment, also one-fourth, will be paid Oct. 17, and the final half of the increase will show up in employees' paychecks on Nov. 14.

The board approved a room rate increase of $15 per day beginning Sunday for all rooms except newborn nursery, crib and intensive care beds to pay for the wage hikes.

According to hospital administrator James Rosenbaum, the delay between the room rate jump and the wage increase is necessary to allow funds from the room rate increase to appear in the hospital's budget.

Rosenbaum told the board before they approved the increase that the hospital averages a 78-day turn-around between the time hospital bills are sent out and the time they are paid.

Standing watch

TWIN FALLS—Rep. George Hansen, R-Ida., stood in the doorway greeting passersby and well-wishers Saturday at the opening of his Twin Falls headquarters on the ground floor of the old Radio Radioque building on Main Avenue South.

In the background, campaign aides served punch and circled with trays of cookies and nuts. Hansen was given a hamburger, and he munched it while he sat down for a short interview.

"It looks fine," Hansen said of his run for reelection. "I'm very optimistic about it. It's going about as well as a campaign could go."

Hansen said he was not troubled by the campaign law violations which tainted his election in his current term.

"I think just people realize that they were just bookkeeping technicalities, and I think they're impatient with anyone who tries to make anything more out of it," Hansen said. "If you talk to most people everyone's frustrated with federal terms and regulations. Everyone's looking for relief."

Hansen pleaded guilty in February, 1975, to failing to file accurate campaign reports during his 1974 primary. He was at first sentenced to two months in jail, but that sentence was later suspended and a fine of $2,000 imposed.

The battle with federal campaign forms has led Hansen to make federal regulations a key issue in his current campaign. A favorite Hansen target is the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), which requires extensive reports from employers and monitors working conditions in various occupational fields.

"I've found people here in Twin Falls who've had as many as eight OSHA inspections in the last year or so," Hansen said. "They resent the heavy hand of government."

Hansen has carried his campaign against federal regulations into Congress. He serves as chairman of a Republican Congressmen's Government Executive Agency Review Task Force to cut down on "overzealous government," and he also heads an American Conservative Union stop-OSHA campaign.

"We do have OSHA on the run," he said. "In the courts they have now made it possible for an employer to reject an inspection unless the inspector has gone to a magistrate and obtained a search warrant based on some complaint or probable cause."

Hansen said he also objects to proposed gun controls, "and many other efforts to socialize the nation's fiscal policies."

When asked his opinion of the Congressional sex scandals, Hansen said, "The sex scandal in Washington is shocking to anyone, but even more shocking is the fact that many of those involved have been supporting their indiscretions with public funds or at the public's expense."

"The scandal has erupted and is still erupting to such proportions that the Democratic Congress might well become as emurled as the Nixon Administration was in Watergate."

"This kind of behavior in Congress, both in its personal affect and in its effect on the public, is indefensible and offenders should be legally punished wherever possible," Hansen continued, "and hopefully their constituents will see fit to also clean house as appropriate."

"The problem that's existed has been a terrible arrogance on the part of leadership that's been in too long and unchallenged in Congress. This kind of abuse of power seriously damage it, not destroy many individuals. Hopefully, the revelations in Washington will end many of these abuses."

Hansen said he took no personal satisfaction in seeing an old antagonist, Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, tumble from power in the scandals, but he added that Hays' power had been such that when Hays had sought Congressional investigation of Hansen's campaign violations, Hansen had worked through friends to get the case transferred to the Justice Department.

TWIN FALLS—The Twin Falls Boondockers Four Wheel Drive Club was incorrectly listed as the Twin Falls Boondockers 4-H Club in Sunday's paper.

The Times-News regrets the error.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 28, 1976

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds you with poor judgment and it is not the time to make any commitments of a serious nature. Later in the day you are able to attain some of the goals that you seek.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't try to do too much in the morning where policy-making decisions are concerned. Be wise in the use of creative skills.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Regular routines should be postponed today so you can engage in worthwhile activities. Be persistent in the planning of your future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A fine time to make plans for the future. Invite fascinating persons to your home tonight and have a happy time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) First handle practical affairs, then consult a financial expert about money matters. Fate can be most affectionate tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Improve your health and then you can accomplish a great deal. Handle a social matter early and you will gain the benefits later.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Listen to what an expert has to say that will help you get ahead in career matters. Plan to rid yourself of any tensions you may have.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't permit a gossiping friend to waste your time. Make better plans to gain your cherished aims. Relax at home tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you upset a higher-up, you are likely to find yourself in a less enviable position; so use tact. Don't neglect to pay your bills.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A new project should be studied more thoroughly before putting it in operation. Concentrate on having greater abundance in the future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find the right way to add to your income. More kindness toward your mate brings excellent results at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan to engage in civic work you like, but be sure it is done precisely. Don't take any risks in the afternoon.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You must handle those duties that are tedious if you are to gain the approval of higher-ups. Take time to improve your health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ... he or she must have religious and ethical training early in life to follow the right path that will lead to success and happiness instead of just the opposite. Take pains in the rearing of your progeny and give the best education you can afford.

Today's weather

Slight cooling trend predicted

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley
Twin Falls through Wednesday with gusty afternoon winds. Overnight lows near 50. Highs in the mid-80s. Thursday's outlook, little change. Spraying and dusting conditions will be generally fair during the early morning hours and generally poor during the day.

Haley, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley
Fair and cooler through Wednesday with gusty afternoon winds. High temperatures 80-85 with overnight lows in mid-50s.

Thursday's outlook, little change.
Sunny skies and warm temperatures dominated the weather pattern over Southern Idaho Monday. Temperatures climbed into the 80s in most areas of the Magic Valley with King Hill reporting 88. As a weak Pacific cold front moves across Idaho today temperatures are expected to be somewhat lower along with gusty southwest winds. These conditions are expected to continue into Wednesday as high pressure rebuilds over the intermountain region. A dry, northerly flow of air in the upper atmosphere is expected to keep temperatures to near normal through Saturday. High temperatures will range from 85 to 95 with overnight lows mostly in the 50s.

Ex-Idaho official selected
TWIN FALLS—Robert Hay has been appointed vice president of SURE LIFE Insurance Co. The appointment was approved in a meeting of the board of directors of the company July 15. Hay will assist in the administration of subsidiaries and will act as a liaison with the various state insurance departments. He was the former chief insurance examiner and commissioner of insurance for the state of Idaho. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin where he majored in insurance and finance. The newly appointed vice president has attended insurance institutes throughout the United States and has been active in the National Association of Insurance Commissioners. He is married to the former Karen Assendrup of Buhl. The couple has four children. They will be moving to Twin Falls from Seattle, Wash.

Power firm names aide
BOISE (UPI)—Thomas A. Spoford has been named manager of system-wide divisions operations for the Idaho Power Co. vice president Robert J. O'Connor said Sunday. Spoford, a 27-year career employee, was promoted to the new post after serving as eastern division manager of the company.

Killer won't be prosecuted

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Seven year old Jeffrey Krauch's killer will never be prosecuted. He's only 7.

Police said Monday the child who took his stepfather's pistol from a kitchen table and shot Jeffrey is too young to be held legally responsible.

Jeffrey was shot at point blank range with a .357 Magnum owned by the younger child's father, a security guard licensed to carry the weapon.

The child took the 2 1/2 pound weapon from the kitchen table of a house where his family was visiting. Then, accompanied by a brother two years older, lugged it into the yard where Jeffrey was playing with a friend.

Health plan 'abused, overused'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal public health officials told Congress Monday overuse and abuse of the Medicare-Medicaid programs are a much greater problem than multi-fund fraud.

They said of 15,000 cases of fraud followed through the system, there were 600 indictments and 49 resulted in convictions.

Medicare and Medicaid cost $22 billion in federal funds in the past fiscal year and $5.6 billion in state money.

He added "the cumulative effect of these organizational, administrative and reimbursement arrangements, coupled with the growth of private health insurance coverage, has been chaotic."
